5 counties OK port authority

By RONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Staff Writer
TWIN FALLS — Idaho's first Regional Airport Authority was created Tuesday by voters in five Magic Valley counties.

Missing from the group, however, was the largest county in the valley, Twin Falls.

The step is one of the largest regional cooperative endeavors in the history of Idaho.

Voting for creation of the authority were Gooding, Cassia, Minidoka, Lincoln and Jerome counties.

The proposal was turned down in Twin Falls, Camas and Blaine counties.

Counties voting against the airport issue and their unofficial returns included Twin Falls, 2,391 yes and 6,954 no; Camas, 14 yes and 125 no, and Blaine, 278 yes and 411 no.

Counties approving the airport authority included Jerome, 887 yes and 683 no; Lincoln, 281 yes and 243 no; Minidoka, 685 yes and 575 no; Cassia, 848 yes and 454 no, and Gooding, 817 yes and 729 no.

George Forschler, Burley, chairman of the Interim Airport Board said his board is greatly elated over the election returns and will meet early next week to fully review election returns and discuss plans for the future.

"It is a long way down the road as a reality," he said of the regional airport, "but I am confident we can have such an airport. I am also confident when we have the authority formed and plans firmed up, Twin Falls County will decide to join the other counties."

He said his board will follow requirements of the regional airport law and officially notify the Idaho Department of Aeronautics of the election returns and proceed from there.

"We plan to move slowly and cautiously but once we have a legal vehicle, I am sure the other counties will want to be a part of it," Forschler said.

Twin Falls County turned down the issue by an overwhelming majority of about 74 per cent in a vote of 2,391 for and 6,954 against, based on unofficial complete returns from the 48 county precincts. It failed to carry in any single precinct but was close in several. The 27 precincts in Twin Falls City cast 1,556 yes votes and 4,496 no votes on the airport question, while rural and smaller community voters totaled 835 yes and 2,459 no, again all individual precincts voting the issue down.

William L. (Bill) Chancey, chairman of the Twin Falls county commission, who opposed the regional airport authority issue in favor of retaining the existing Twin Falls City-County Airport as a regional facility, said he appreciated the confidence of the Twin Falls County voters.

"I felt confident the people of Twin Falls County would vote it down once the facts were brought out in the proper and true light," he said.

Chancey and Commissioner

Heber Loughmiller, who remained at the courthouse to watch returns come in from the voting machines around the county, said they felt without Twin Falls County the other counties would find it difficult to finance a regional airport facility.

Both said they felt the overwhelming vote against the issue indicated a strong feeling by county residents in the matter.

Threats of a bomb planted in the county courthouse in Twin Falls cleared election officials from the building immediately after the returns were in and officials said they did not know if the threat came from a disgruntled airport supporter.

Sheriff's officers said it was apparently a prank as no bomb or other explosives could be found in a search of the building. A false fire report was also received at the sheriff's office from the Hanson area during the election tabulation.

THESE FIVE COUNTIES will constitute the new Regional Airport Authority created in Tuesday's election. Voters approved the proposal to establish the authority in Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln and Minidoka and Cassia counties, while the issue was defeated in Blaine, Camas and Twin Falls counties.

Taiwan ouster now argument for aid slash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Foreign Aid program, which already was in deep trouble, faced a new assault today from senators who contend the United States has been dealt a humiliating setback at the United Nations by the very nations it has been helping.

The $3.2-billion aid bill, brought to the Senate floor Tuesday, was greeted by angry calls for retaliation against aid recipients who voted to expel Taiwan and give its seat to Communist China. Friends of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government were expected to mount an effort to trim the bill — particularly a $100 million U.S. contribution to the U.N.'s development assistance program.

The aid bill, even before the U.N. vote, was on shaky ground because of longtime opposition from the traditionally isolationist Midwest and because of new criticism from senators who feel that bilateral aid is at the root of U.S. overinvolvement around the world.

The U.N. vote on China, however, heightened the criticism and produced warnings that the entire aid program may be scuttled. Sen. William B. Saxe, R-Ohio, sought to send the bill back to the Foreign Relations Committee until tempers cool, but he withdrew the motion when it became obvious he would lose.

The administration indicated Tuesday it might approve of cuts in the U.N. contribution to the United Nations — not as a retaliatory measure but simply because the world organization has been spending too much money and that the U.S. contribution has been too high for too long.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers gave that indication at a news conference, adding, "I hope the United Nations will not be weakened." He called the expulsion of the Nationalists a mistake of major proportions and predicted that the world body will be damaged by it.

The current U.S. appropriation to the U.N. operating expenses is $2,437,700. The total U.S. contribution last year for all activities — including voluntary and specialized agencies — was $318 million — 33 per cent of the entire U.N. budget.

Robbery suspects nabbed

TWIN FALLS — Complaints and warrants against three men being held by Boise authorities were being filed today by Twin Falls Police who report the men are believed to be involved in an armed robbery last week in Twin Falls.

I. Garry Corder of the Twin Falls Police Department said complaints against the three, Jeffery M. Folsom, 24, Dennis L. Laudon, 26, and Maurice R. Ruddell, 22, all Eugene, Ore., will list armed robbery and grand larceny. The larceny charge, I. Corder said, arises from a stolen auto in Twin Falls.

The men are believed to have robbed Marty's Market in South Park just prior to 10 p.m. Saturday and escaped with about $500.

On Sunday the men were taken into custody in Boise after a supermarket robbery there. Boise authorities are holding Folsom for grand larceny and armed robbery, and Laudon and Ruddell are being held for grand larceny, armed robbery and assault with a deadly weapon.

Alaska H-test slated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration has decided that the United States will go ahead Nov. 4 with its controversial project to explode one of history's mightiest underground tests of a nuclear weapon, the office of Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, said today.

"The Atomic Energy Commission called a news conference for this afternoon, presumably to make the formal announcement.

The test, code-named Cannikin, is to be exploded more than a mile beneath the surface of the remote Alaskan island of Amchitka in the Aleutians despite strong objections by Canada, Japan, many conservationist and environmental groups, and representatives of Alaska and Hawaii.

It will equal in power nearly five million tons (five megatons) of TNT — more than 250 times the might of the atomic bomb which leveled Hiroshima in World War II.

The purpose of Cannikin, which has cost about $200 million to prepare, is to test a Spartan missile warhead for the administration's Safeguard defense system against nuclear missiles.

The Cannikin test device, the most complicated ever designed, is now nestled in its shot chamber 5,875 feet beneath Amchitka's bleak surface.

Retail wine sales vote by county, unofficial returns:

TWIN FALLS — Voters of three Magic Valley counties approved the sale of table wine in special elections Tuesday.

Twin Falls county residents voted 5,154 for and 3,789 against in the wine sale election held in conjunction with the regional airport authority election.

In Gooding County the issue carried by a smaller majority, 817 for and 719 against.

The other county voting on wine, Lincoln voted in wine sales by only a slim margin of 281 for and 243 against.

Blaine County previously had authorized wine sales by a vote of members of the county commission. William L. (Bill) Chancey, county commission chairman in Twin Falls, said the next step will be for the county to determine a license fee for grocery stores in the county wishing to place the table wine on shelves.

Support or opposition to wine sales prior to election time was relatively light with beer distributors who plan to distribute wine urging approval of the wine sales. Some church groups voiced opposition to the wine sales.

Of the 27 precincts in Twin Falls City, three voted wine down while 24 approved it, usually by a small majority. Precincts voting it down included Twin Falls 17, Twin Falls 9 and Twin Falls 20.

Other counties in the Magic Valley area passed up the opportunity of holding the wine election in conjunction with the airport election, thereby saving the cost of an additional vote.

County officials in those counties said they did so because no expression had been received from their citizens asking they approve wine sales or place the question on the ballot.

Technicality could affect airport election validity

TWIN FALLS — A technicality could cause the results of the Regional Airport Authority election to be challenged.

Idaho law requires that polls be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. in special elections. Blaine, Lincoln, Jerome, Minidoka, Cassia and Camas counties opened their polls at noon instead of 8 a.m.

Only Twin Falls and Gooding Counties opened at the earlier hour.

In Jerome County, Ella McVey, county clerk said her county commissioners and county attorney wrote the attorney general's office for an opinion but did not receive a response in time for the deadline on publishing election notices.

Under the circumstances, she said, the county commissioners decided the voting potential of the county did not warrant the cost of keeping election polls open the full day.

She said the one "yes" and "no" question did not seem to require the cost of paying election workers for the 12-hour election plus tabulation time.

Breakfast report from China visit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Presidential assistant Henry A. Kissinger breakfasted this morning with President Nixon and Secretary of State William Rogers to discuss the President's China trip.

Kissinger returned Tuesday from Peking where he arranged for the Nixon visit at the very time the United Nations was considering whether to admit the Chinese Community government.

He spent six days in China working out details, presumably including the date and an agenda for Nixon's talks with Premier Chou En-lai. It is expected an announcement of the date of the visit will be made soon.

Trailer pioneer succumbs

HAGERMAN — Harold H. Soper, 65, Hagerman, prominent former Twin Falls businessman, died of an apparent heart attack Tuesday afternoon while pheasant hunting near here.

Soper was hunting along a canal bank, about five miles west of Wendell on the Wendell-Hagerman highway.

Soper operated Soper's Trailers and Trailer Rentals in Twin Falls for about 40 years. He closed the business in May when he retired. At that time he moved to property he had acquired in Hagerman Valley.

He came to Twin Falls in 1925. In 1930 he opened a machine shop and during the years it grew into a trailer manufacturing business. He built the first Magic Valley small camper trailers, forerunners of the modern travel trailer, and sold them throughout the western states.

Chinese celebrate vote

HONG KONG (UPI) — Communist China today celebrated its election to membership in the United Nations, claiming the action was a major defeat for the United States.

Almost all speeches, broadcasts and newspaper articles from China took the opportunity to lash out at the United States and Japan, which also had opposed the Communist entry while attempting to save a seat in the United Nations for the Nationalist Chinese.

Chi Pong-fei, acting Chinese foreign minister, set the tone in a speech Tuesday when he said

"this is a victory of the people of the whole world, and it is the complete bankruptcy of the policy long pursued by U.S. imperialism."

Peking Radio said in a commentary today that China's admission was a trend against the United States and Japan.

"Representatives of the United States and Japan were like ants on a hot frying pan" during the crucial voting Monday night in the U.N. General Assembly.

It accused the United States and Japan of using "crude threats" to try to persuade countries to vote against Nationalist Chinese expulsion and added "they have met with complete failure."

There was speculation among China watchers here that Premier Chou En-lai himself might lead the delegation to take over his country's new seat in the Security Council. However, there was no indication from Peking itself this might happen.

Before the debate on the China question began in the United Nations, Peking-based diplomats told UPI that it was likely one of the first Chinese speeches in the world body would be moderate. They said it probably would contain some sweeping proposals, including a renewed call for a world summit conference to discuss disarmament and destruction of nuclear weapons.

Some credence was given to this diplomatic speculation by Chinese officials in Geneva Tuesday. They indicated China would not join current disarmament talks there but still favored a world summit conference to discuss this problem. The Chinese have put forth this proposal many times in the past, even before they acquired nuclear weapons in 1964.

TF man bound to trial

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man charged with resisting an officer by means of violence was bound over to stand trial in Fifth District Court at the conclusion of a preliminary hearing Tuesday in Twin Falls Magistrate Court.

Judge Daniel Meehl, presiding at the hearing, ruled that while there was a discrepancy in prosecution and defense testimony, the matter should be decided by a jury.

John Richardson, 26, was arrested in August after being involved in an altercation with two Twin Falls police officers. Prosecution witnesses testified that Richardson kicked Capt. Kenneth Johnston in the face after the officer fell down during the scuffle outside a Twin Falls restaurant.

Richardson, who took the stand in his own behalf, said that Capt. Johnston struck him "two or three times" in the stomach and once in the face. Richardson said that he did not kick Capt. Johnston, but that he did strike him in the face after the officer struck him.

Capt. Johnston and Sgt. Don Hughes, both prosecution witnesses, said that Richardson had been placed under arrest for disorderly conduct prior to the time the fight took place. Richardson said he was not under arrest until after the fight was over.

SAIGON (UPI) — Antigovernment demonstrators today firebombed an American jeep and two automobiles in a new outbreak of protests against the forthcoming inauguration of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

In another relentless pre-dawn security check, police knocked on doors of hundreds of apartments today to awaken residents adjacent to the site of the inaugural of Thieu.

On battlefronts, the South Vietnamese command reported, Communist troops renewed attacks against the Cambodian rubber plantation town of Krok and assaulted a village in Tay Ninh province northwest of Saigon.

Military activity was also reported in the Central Highlands province of Kontum where American B52 bombers carried out raids on Communist storage areas and a U.S. observation plane was shot down.

U.S. military sources said that the American command meanwhile passed two milestones in the war today. Aircraft losses surpassed the 8,000 mark due to the destruction from typhoon Heaster and the number of U.S. troops in Vietnam fell below 200,000 for the first time since early 1966.

Antigovernment demonstrators in Saigon firebombed a U.S. Navy jeep near Tan Son Nhut Airport today and later threw a Molotov cocktail at a Japanese-made car near U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth C. Bunker's residence. No arrests were reported.

Saigon police announced they would pay a $150 reward for information leading to arrests in the campaign of violence against Thieu's forthcoming inauguration for another four-year term.

Thieu was re-elected without opposition Oct. 3 after both his opponents withdrew from the race accusing Thieu of rigging the election.

In the action near Krok and Tay Ninh, military sources said three South Vietnamese troops were killed and eight wounded.

The Communists hit Krok with 20 rounds of 120mm mortar fire, killing one South Vietnamese Ranger and wounding four others.

In Tay Ninh Province, the Viet Cong shelled Thanh Duc Village 50 miles northwest of Saigon then carried out a commando-type raid against the village office, killing two militiamen and wounding four.

In the Central Highlands, Communist antiaircraft fire shot down an American O-1 Birddog observation plane northwest of Kontum City at the junction of the borders of Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam. Two crewmen of the plane were wounded.

Bomb explodes, Seen 2 soldiers die

RELFERT, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A bomb exploded and killed two soldiers at an army post in Londonderry today, an army spokesman said.

The Londonderry attack followed a sudden three-hour wave of bombing and shooting attacks Tuesday night and today on a seaside resort, police station and homes of policemen in Belfast, security forces spokesman said.

The latest explosion occurred at the post overlooking the Rosemount Police Station on the fringe of the Creggan Estates, a spokesman said.

At least seven policemen and five civilians were injured in the attacks, a police spokesman said. Two of the police are in serious condition, he said. Sniper attacks wounded three soldiers, one seriously, an army spokesman said.

An army source speculated the stepped-up campaign against policemen might be in retaliation for the shooting by two detectives Sunday night of a man and a woman suspected of planting a bomb in a Belfast night club.

One man was killed by the "detectives' bullets, a woman wounded and a second man captured half a mile away. The nightclub was cleared and the time bomb exploded two hours later, heavily damaging the building but causing no injuries.

Police said three men in a car pulled up to the Larnoe Police Station 20 miles north of Belfast at about 11 p.m., left a suitcase outside and started to drive off. A policeman challenged them and opened fire. The men fired back, and escaped, the police spokesman said.

Seconds later an explosion ripped out the front of the station in the predominantly Protestant community. Six policemen were injured as were two civilians in nearby houses, he said.

The gunman at the front was hit by one of the policeman's bullets and was dragged away by his companion. They escaped in a car.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Police arrested nearly 300 antiwar demonstrators; one block from the White House gates after they flopped down in a rush hour street when officers blocked their march to serve an "eviction notice" on President Nixon.

Among those hauled away at the end of Tuesday's pedestrian and traffic bogging demonstration were several protest leaders, including Rennie Davis, David Dellinger, John Froines and Milwaukee's Fr. James Groppi.

The incident was largely peaceful and involved only hundreds of demonstrators instead of the thousands which the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice had predicted would participate.

Armed bandit robs Boise bank

BOISE (UPI) — A dark-haired man, armed with an automatic pistol, and described as "very distinguished looking," robbed the State Street Branch of the first Security Bank of $2,014 Tuesday and fled on foot.

Paul Scragg, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Boise, said the suspect was "a white male about 30, dressed in a dark sportcoat and dark slacks, 5'8" to 5'11" and weighing about 165 pounds."

Scragg said the robber was last seen fleeing on foot down the alley behind the bank.

The robber had entered the bank at 10th and State Streets about 1:30 p.m. He put a plastic sack in front of teller Barbara Holt and a note which said:

"This is a holdup. Fill this sack with money"

Witnesses in the bank said the operation was so quick they didn't even realize a holdup was taking place.

City police, bank auditors and agents of the FBI went to the bank and closed the doors and began questioning the teller and other witnesses to the robbery.

Officers said someone in the bank had triggered a special answering service alarm system and the answering service notified police of the holdup.

Howard Gentles, bank vice president, said the bank was not equipped with a camera monitoring system.

Scragg said the FBI has not ruled-out the possibility that the suspect was working with an accomplice.

Obituaries

Mary Hobson

BURLEY — Mrs. Mary Adelpha Hobson, 78, Burley resident, died Monday at a Burley nursing home following a long illness.

She was born Aug. 3, 1893 at Hooper, Utah. She received her education in the Utah schools. On Nov. 17, 1909, she married Frank LeRoy Frodsham and their marriage was long and happy.

Mr. Frodsham preceded her in death Feb. 27, 1923.

On Sept. 2, 1925 she married Jesse Ver Hobson and the couple lived in Utah until 1940 when they moved to a farm west of Burley. In later years they spent the winters in Tucson, Ariz.

Mr. Hobson died on Feb. 7, 1964.

Mrs. Hobson was a lifelong member of the LDS Church and was active in various departments of the church, having served as relief society president and was active in the mutual, primary and Sunday school.

Survivors include four sons, Dan L. Frodsham, Logan, Utah; V. J. Frodsham, Brigham City, Utah; Dr. Lee L. Frodsham and J. Vaughn Hobson, both Burley; three daughters, Mrs. Charles (Blanche) Wilson, Tucson, Ariz.; Mrs. Lawrence, (Dahria) Hanks and Mrs. Don (Mavis) Wrigley, both Burley; one stepson, Clifford Hobson, Brigham City, Utah; one brother, LaVon Priest, Burley; four sisters, Mrs. Annie Hunsaker, Rupert; Mrs. Catherine Forrest, Brigham City; Mrs. Blanche Barnes and Mrs. Hartell Woodland, both Burley; 42 grandchildren and 26 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 a.m. Friday in the Star LDS Chapel with Bishop Lee L. Frodsham officiating. Final rites will be held at 3:30 p.m. in the Brigham City Cemetery. Friends may call at Payne Mortuary Thursday afternoon and evening and at the chapel Friday one hour prior to services.

H. Suttmiller

CENTRALIA, Wash. — Helen B. Suttmiller, 82, former Twin Falls resident, died last Saturday in a Centralia nursing home following a long illness.

She was born in West Liberty, Iowa on Aug. 13, 1889. She was graduated from the Twin Falls High School and had been employed by Chris-Line Originals while she lived in Twin Falls.

Survivors include one son, five grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Graveside services were held Tuesday in Washington.

Border is tense

NEW DELHI (UPI) — A spokesman for India's foreign office said that the situation at the borders with Pakistan remained tense today with "no improvement nor any deterioration" in efforts to stop possible war between the two nations.

One frontier incident was reported Tuesday. The Press Trust of India (PTI) said small arms fire from the East Pakistani side at a border village in the district of West Bengal, near Calcutta, killed one person and wounded six others.

JEROME — Violet Goin, 51, Jerome, died early today at St. Benedict's Hospital of a short illness. Funeral services will be announced through the Hope Funeral Chapel, Jerome.

E. Twombly

CAREY — Everett L. Twombly, 62, Carey, died suddenly Tuesday afternoon while at work at a service station. Funeral services will be announced through the Bird Funeral Home, Halley.

Blue pencil is awarded

TWIN FALLS — Frank Robinson received the blue pencil for best speaker and Elmer Little, table topics, when members of the I. B. Perrine Toastmasters Club met Monday evening at Kay's Supper Club.

Speakers included Robinson, Divert Douglas and Ken Glasby. Bob Brackett was the table topic chairman, with LeRoy Baker as toastmaster and Elmer Little as timer. Homer Roberts was general evaluator.

Guests included Ray Assendrup, Ted Doahl and Warren Hart, all Jerome, and Art Minor, Eugene, Ore.

It was announced the area speech contest is set for 8 a.m. Oct. 30 at the Hamada Inn, Burley. A letter was read from the League of Women Voters inviting the group to attend a meeting Oct. 29. Members voted to cancel the Nov. 8 meeting and meet with the Jerome Club on Nov. 10.

Common Market

Britain is about to join the European Common Market, forming the nucleus for another superpower with 275 million people and a gross product of $550 billion, more than that of the Soviet Union.

After 10 years of often frustrating negotiations, the British public seemed to cool to the idea after the six-member nations laid out the welcome mat.

But, the economic facts of life dictate that Britain seize the opportunity to share in free access to this vast market and in dynamic development of trade and earnings.

The six Common Market countries, France, Italy, Belgium, West Germany, Luxembourg and The Netherlands, may become 10 by 1973 as Denmark, Norway and Ireland also are seeking admission.

President Nixon's economic shock therapy, aimed primarily at Japan which sought to keep rapidly expanding export trade behind protectionist walls, also hit the Common Market which buys more from the United States than it sells, $9 billion against $6.6 billion last year. This makes it imperative that the monetary crisis be ended with all practicable speed and the import surcharge dropped before it causes a rash of retaliation by our best trading partners.

Britain hopes to gain economically through increased exports to its new partners, and to the other countries with whom the Common Market has arranged trade agreements. It also hopes to gain politically by playing a leading role in directing Western Europe toward becoming a power for good in the world instead of turning inward.

While the United States may find in the enlarged European Common Market a fierce competitor, a European union capable of standing up to Soviet Russia could do much to advance the cause of peace.

Some economists believe British consumers will pay more for food as a result of giving preference to products from Europe and that American farm exports may suffer because of European tariffs. This need not prove prohibitive.

Europe's — and the world's best hope lies with a strong Common Market that will participate in guiding mankind toward peace and shared prosperity.

WASHINGTON — Largely overlooked in President Nixon's abrupt and wise retreat in the squalid Supreme Court battle of 1971 was the inexplicable failure of his Justice Department advisers to smell the approaching storm and lead the President to shelter.

For example, the President received private information raising serious questions about Little Rock attorney Herschel Friday's qualifications for the high court after the decision to appoint him. That information came not from Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell's sleuths-at-justice but from the President's own official family in the White House.

Moreover, not until far too late in the Administration's search for needles of mediocrity in the haystack of highly qualified jurists and attorneys did Mr. Nixon learn that Judge Mildred L. Lillie, of the California Court of Appeals would be formally opposed by her local bar association of Los Angeles.

Conceivably the President was so emotionally fixed on the idea of naming unknown mediocrities to the high court, as though he were appointing building inspectors or members of a local police court, that Mitchell and Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst lacked their usual influence. The contrary opinion—that they let him down—is widely accepted.

Thus, when the Judiciary committee of the American Bar Association (ABA) secretly found both Friday and Judge Lillie unqualified for the Supreme Court early last week (a verdict that leaked to the press on Oct. 20), Mr. Nixon instinctively reacted as he always does in the face of genuine crises. He holed up alone with a thick sheaf of critical press stories, the familiar pad of yellow foolscap and his own thoughts in the hideaway in the Executive Office Building. Mitchell was not at this side.

The President did not leave his hideaway until 11 p.m. on Tuesday night. He was there most of the day on Wednesday and there on Thursday he personally wrote his televised speech for Thursday evening.

It was during that solitary period that the President decided he could not deliver on his commitment to Friday or Judge Lillie. The reason was not so much the ABA's verdict of "not qualified" or the crescendo of informed public opinion against his choices. It was his rising fear that one or both might be rejected by the Senate.

When the Senate having rebuffed him twice by refusing to confirm Clement Haynsworth in 1969 and G. Harrold Carswell in 1970, a third and possibly a fourth reelection in 1971 carried too grave a political risk.

But the Justice Department had let Mr. Nixon with no ready alternatives. Of the six possible appointees dispatched to the ABA for consideration, only Friday and Judge Lillie were bona fide. The other four, including Democratic Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, were mere smokecreens.

Accordingly, once he decided to dump his two real choices, Mr. Nixon faced another crisis. He had publicly pledged to announce his selections by late last week and as of midweek he had no serious alternatives.

That led to the surprising—but highly praised—selection of Lewis F. Powell, Jr., a former ABA president and much-respected Richmond, Va., attorney. Powell was the very first name considered after the late Justice Hugo L. Black announced his resignation on Sept. 17. He was immediately ruled out by the Justice Department, however, on grounds of age—he is 64—and the President's preference for younger jurists.

Squeezed by the pressuroof events, the President resurrected Powell in the space of 48 hours. He then turned to his own Administration for 47-year-old Asst. Atty. Gen. William H. Rehnquist, a cerebral right-wing ideologue whose record of intellectual brilliance rebuts any charge of mediocrity. Rehnquist has already been criticized for recommending Federal wire-tapping without court orders; but most politicians believe he will win Senate confirmation without much trouble.

Thus Mr. Nixon at the last moment turned away from blatant mediocrity, to the vast relief of some of his own intimates. With the element of surprise he glories in, he recouped a situation fraught with political disaster. Left unexplained is why Mitchell and Kleindienst once again failed to do their homework and permitted the President to crawl so far out on a rotten limb.

Strategy for the Big Game

The Canal

The left-leaning government of Brigadier General Omar Torrijos, Panama's dictator, apparently is winning its long struggle to gain a share in control of the Canal Zone, seeded "in perpetuity" to the U.S. in 1903 on payment of $10 million and an annuity of $250 thousand dollars.

President Theodore Roosevelt, aware of the strategic importance of the Canal, did not hesitate to support a revolt of Panamanians against Columbia in order to gain the waterway.

While the Canal was a great success, strategically and financially, it became a constant source of friction with the Panamanians, to whom it symbolized North American domination. The prosperity the Canal brought to the country only raised demands for more.

So negotiations, seeking a way to reconcile Panama's aspirations and the United States' strategic and economic interests, have proceeded intermittently through the years. There have been 17 meetings since last June and progress toward a new treaty is reported.

The United States wants to rid itself of the "Colonialist" image in Panama and the rest of Latin America and is likely to give General Torrijos just about everything he wants with two reservations — the right to operate and defend the Canal and to improve it or supplement it with another.

A new sea level canal would take 15 years and $3 billion dollars. It would amortize in 60 years. Would the treaty last that long?

MR. SPECTATOR

The Old Flagship

Here in Idaho we are a long ways from the ocean — any ocean. But we all seem to be interested in things involving oceanic tales so we have one for you to chew on today.

History does not record what became of the Nina and the Pinta, two of Christopher Columbus' ships which made the 1492 journey with him. Columbus recorded in his log what happened to his flagship, the Santa Maria.

The vessel foundered on a coral reef in what is now Cap-Haitien Bay off the northern coast of Haiti on Christmas Day, 1492.

Finding the remains of the Santa Maria long ago has fascinated explorers. One of them, Fred Dickson, Jr., believes he has found the wreck. Sighting a bulk about the size of a hull in an aerial survey, Dickson has been salvaging the site by suction hose.

So far he has six copper spikes, several pieces of wood, a brass bolt, two iron rudder clamps and a piece of pottery for his labors. The significant point, Mr. Spectator would point out, is that tests conducted by the Museum of Allied Science Center for Archeology at the University of Pennsylvania have identified the pottery as dating from about 1475 and the wood from about 1500.

Precise dating is not possible, but those years are close enough to give added hope to the search. If that is indeed the Santa Maria which is giving up its remains a bit at a time, one of the most significant reclamations of the new world is being made.

AWASH A Philadelphia hotel has announced it will give its patrons who have been intrigued but remain skeptical about waterbeds a chance to try them before they buy. The hotel has ordered 1,300 of the beds, to be made available on an extra charge basis. With an investment of that magnitude, the hotel management obviously expects a rippling tide of reservations to come pouring in. Nothing was mentioned in the announcement about life rafts in every room, but at least the hotel ought to double check its supply of seasick remedies and flood insurance coverage. Say something like this took place here in Twin Falls. Would you fill the thing with treated water, Blue Lakes water, or with irrigation water — perhaps to give it a little color?

ANDREW TULLY

You Don't Say

WASHINGTON — Because I am one of those squares who argue that lawsuits should be settled in the courts, I do not presume to submit an opinion on the action brought by a former Vassar coed, who claims she flunked out after her freshman year because her room-mate operated all-night drug parties.

Nancy Graber, 20, of West Hempstead, L.I., is seeking $1-million in damages from Vassar. It is an action that must strike terror in the hearts of college administrators everywhere, especially the with-it types, because the issue is whether what is humorously called an "institution of higher learning" is legally obliged to permit its students to learn.

Miss Graber says she couldn't sleep or study because of the dope-induced goings-on allegedly sponsored by the roommate, identified only as "Pamela." After she flunked out, says Miss Graber, Vassar refused to recommend her matriculation at other colleges on the grounds she was "unfit" further to pursue her education.

Obviously, Miss Graber also is a kind of square. She has come right out and deposed that she went to Vassar to get an education in subjects other than mass protests and free love. This could be held against her by some judges I have encountered over the past several years and by that community of swinging parents who strive so hard to "communicate" with their sprouts by acting 20 years younger than their age.

Nevertheless, I am seized with the suspicion that Miss Graber's case could result in a landmark decision if Daddy Graber is rich enough and persistent enough to prosecute the litigation to the bitter end. One way or the other, the responsibility of a college to its students and their bill-paying parents will be spelled out. If Nancy Graber's complaints are valid, the wonder is that the cops haven't raided Vassar long before this. Her suit says that in February, 1970, her roommate "Pamela" was "introduced" to marijuana and "quickly embraced all aspects of the drug culture." Pamela, says Miss Graber, "was shortly using amphetamines, tranquilizers and mescaline. She became a focal point of the drug users on campus." As a result, the complaint charges, "The drug users held psychedelic gatherings, playing loud music and singing with abandon all through the night... in our suite... Regularly, while Pamela was on a trip she would play her guitar and sing throughout the night. Pamela loaned her... suite key to others who were obviously on trips and these persons awoke and harassed me... during my sleeping hours...

According to Miss Graber, she complained to Mrs. Elizabeth M. Drubillet, the dean of residence, about the heavy marijuana-smoke in her room and was told: "Open the windows." Nancy also quoted Prof. Robert F. Martin, a house fellow of her building, as telling her and a group of other students that he "was powerless to act in drug matters."

It is this facet of Miss Graber's allegations that if proved true, bugs me straight up the wall. The last time I looked, using dope of the kind cited by Miss Graber was illegal. Every hour on the hour some anonymous black is

PAUL HARVEY

Cure For Age

Statistically, it's established that we are living longer — you and I.

But here is a University of Missouriian who says that you are part of the world's first "death-free" generation. When Prof. Robert Fulton calls ours a "death-free" generation, he means that statistically babies born today can expect to live 20 years without a death in the family. Early American pioneers could expect to live only an average 27 years.

Born in 1900, granddad could anticipate 68 years. Today you can expect to live to age 71 and your wife to age 78 and that's the "average."

In my files are many couples who've been married that long. Up to now the factors adding five years to our life expectancy every 50 years were reduced infant mortality and improved health care.

But new factors are being added to the equation now, new drugs which promise to increase life expectancy spectacularly. At the University of Wisconsin, they have created an artificial gene. Hopefully eventually such could eradicate hereditary diseases with genetic bases, mongolism, hemophilia, diabetes. Finnish-born scientist, Dr. John Bjorksten, reports progress in the development of an anti-aging pill, a "cure" for old age. Biologically, we grow old and gray because our molecular structure loses its elasticity. Molecules within us begin to hailed into pokey for messing with junk, and narcotics agents this year have seized millions of dollars of illicit drugs. If Vassar is "powerless to act," except for proffering the advice to "open the windows," then Vassar as an institution is an ass.

There is of course an extenuating circumstance. The New Thought holds that colleges no longer exist for the acquiring of an education to teach the young "how to live." Possibly, the indiscriminate use of junk is now considered a proper subject in which to major. If that is the case, parents would do well to dispatch their kids to certain street corners for matriculation. For a while, at least, the tuition is a lot cheaper than Vassar's.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

That Ankle

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Eight years ago I severely sprained my left ankle and tore some tendons. Since then my ankle would "give out" maybe once a year. More recently it has occurred about once a month — the ankle gives out completely and I step down on the side of my foot. The pain is terrific and I fall.

Could the sprain possibly be getting worse? Is there an exercise to get strength back in the ankle? I've also developed a bunion. Could the two be related? Is there any exercise to cure a bunion? — Mrs. G. B. I have my doubts that the sprain, eight years ago, is causing your trouble, but the combination of troubles (ankle turning and the bunion) would make me strongly suspect faulty foot mechanics — something gone wrong with the bone and muscle structure. Before trying to "strengthen the ankle," I'd most certainly have a podiatrist or an orthopedist examine the foot to see whether some quite different treatment may be wint your need.

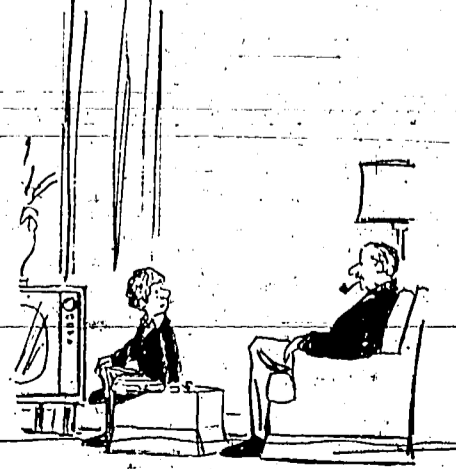

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you explain the cause of constant buzzing in one ear, and a remedy for same? — Mrs. N. L. B. Buzzing is one of the common "ear noises" that I discuss in my booklet, "Ear Noises: Their Causes and Cures." Send 15 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope for the booklet. As you may surmise from the title, there is no single cause of ear noises (buzzing, chirps, ringing sounds and all the other odd sounds), so there is no single remedy. The old Gilbert and Sullivan opera has a song about "making the punishment fit the crime." Well, there's no substitute for making the remedy fit the cause, so give the booklet a careful reading. It isn't very long or complicated, but it will make clear to you some of the widely divergent causes of ear noises.

Much heart trouble is preventable. Write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper for a copy of his booklet, "How To Take Care of Your Heart," enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Grandpa, when I grow up, will we be in 'Phase 3?'"

Panel vows fight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The seven members of the Price Commission swore on the Bible Tuesday to fight inflation when the wage-price freeze expires. They now have 17 days to figure out how to do it.

The new commissioners—six men and one woman and all representatives of the public at large—took their oath of office in a brief ceremony and quickly got down to the business of mapping a price control plan for Phase II of President Nixon's economic controls policy which begins Nov. 13.

The fifteen members of the Pay Board, who will set the limits on post-freeze wage increases, will be sworn in Wednesday.

As the Price Commission held its first meeting, Treasury Secretary John B. Connally spent the day preparing for his appearance Wednesday before the House Banking Committee where he will defend the administration's request for a one-year extension of the Economic Stabilization Act—the legislation that gave Nixon the power to impose the freeze.

The White House asked Congress to stretch that authority until April 3, and expand it by adding standby power to control interest rates and dividends if they begin to climb.

Sharing four Bibles among them, the seven price commissioners pledged to "well and faithfully discharge" their duties, which include setting standards for prices and rent during Phase II and reviewing appeals for exemption from controls.

They also have authority to force rollbacks in "windfall" profits—profits which result from the economic controls system itself. An example might be a company which does unusually well because its foreign competition is suffering under the 10 per cent import surcharge.

After the opening ceremony in a high ceiling conference room in the Executive Office Building, next to the White House, the commission members spent the day reviewing freeze regulations with staff members from the Cost of Living Council the policy-making arm of the controls system.

Both the pay and price groups are expected to meet daily in the White House annex until permanent quarters are ready in a office building about four blocks away.

Under the ground rules, the two boards will act virtually independent of White House authority. The administration laid down a broad objective—reducing inflation to 2.3 per cent by the end of next year—and said the boards could decide the best way to meet that goal.

Senate predicts deficit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A gloomy Senate subcommittee assessment predicts that Amtrak, the new government corporation running most railroad passenger services, will incur a $152.3 million deficit during the current fiscal year.

Amtrak will suffer an operating deficit of another $123.8 million in the next fiscal year, the Senate Surface Transportation subcommittee said Tuesday.

It said Amtrak will run out of operating funds Nov. 1, forcing it to dip into a $100 million loan fund to keep running.

Roger Lewis, Amtrak president, asked the subcommittee to approve a bill authorizing $170 million to run the corporation through June 30, 1973.

When Amtrak took over rail passenger service last May, Congress gave it $40 million in cash and created the $100 million loan fund.

Arstein endorses east Idaho dam

By DAVID ESPO Times-News Writer

BURLEY — The Idaho commissioner of agriculture gave tacit endorsement Tuesday to the controversial Teton Dam proposed for eastern Idaho.

He made his remarks before the 63rd annual session of the Idaho State Grange.

In response to a question from the audience about dam construction, Oscar Arstein, the state's top agricultural official, said "In order to develop Idaho and her resources we should put the resources to the best use. To store water in the upper reaches is only natural."

At the same time, Arstein warned against those who would "misuse" natural resources. He said the Department of Agriculture presently commits 90 per cent of its budget to controlling the environment in various ways.

"We continue to do research necessary in knowing what is economical and not contrary to the environment," Arstein said.

The commissioner also called upon the farmers in the audience to join with state officials to control the use of pesticides in the state.

He said, "We must regulate the use of pesticides. If we don't, the federal government under the Environmental Protection Agency will not spoon feed us but will take them away from us. We have to come up with a responsible plan."

Arstein strongly defended the role of agriculturalists in the area in maintaining a proper ecological balance. "Somebody will charge agriculture with being overbearing with our ecology," he said. "Without due regard for what we say, we have to as an industry take responsibility for coming up with a responsible program."

At the same time he also expressed reservations about the formation of a proposed state department of ecology. He said it would be good to set up "a commission of some type, but you can't take a bureaucracy and call it a bureau of ecology. You can't solve anything with that."

Arstein appeared before the Grange in place of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus who had to cancel his speaking engagement to attend a governor's meeting in St. Louis, Mo. A spokesman for the Grange said Monday night he was disappointed by the governor's cancellation, but not surprised.

"He hasn't done much for us," he said. The convention will run until Friday with Sen. Len B. Jordan, R-Idaho, scheduled to deliver an address Thursday morning. In addition, the group expects to hear speeches concerning no-fault insurance, the Peace Corps and the state's potato industry.

Officials Monday night, said they expected to have 600-700 delegates at the meeting, but said Tuesday there were only about 250 present to hear Arstein speak.

The Grange will also consider about 40 resolutions introduced by local Granges for statewide debate. Most of them deal with issues of taxation and farming.

Farm atom use meet convenes

TWIN FALLS — Nuclear scientists and agricultural experts opened a mutual exchange of information today in a two-day "agronuclear" conference at the Holiday Inn in Twin Falls.

Dr. Gene P. Rutledge, executive director of the Idaho Nuclear Energy Commission and coordinator of the session, said the purpose of the conference is to develop "solid communication exchange between nuclear and agricultural spokesmen on the application and future benefits of the two fields of knowledge, especially since the National Reactor Testing Station is located in Idaho."

Idaho Agriculture Commissioner Oscar Arstein will discuss Idaho agriculture on Thursday as a featured speaker during the conference.

Dr. Nathan S. Hall, director of the AEC's Agriculture Research Laboratory at the University of Tennessee, another featured speaker, will speak on "Agronuclear Research" during the opening sessions today.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The jury in the second murder trial of Charles Manson, already under sentence of death for the Tate slayings, deliberated for a fourth day Tuesday without reaching a verdict.

Manson, 36, is accused of killing ranch hand Donald "Shorty" Shea and musician Gary Hinman.

Fleeing robber asks hostage to note view

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—An ex-convict who allegedly held up a bank, then held and released four hostages while eluding police from Missouri to Colorado, on Tuesday asked his latest hostage to advise a view of the mountains.

The host, John L. Dorrell III, told police Tuesday night after he was released unharmed, St. Louis about the four days spent in a car with James Eroy Cochran, 34, the subject of an intensive search since allegedly held up a savings and loan association here Thursday.

One of the biggest manhunts in the metropolitan area's history continued today, with helicopters and the canine cops helping officers check out leads in the elusive Cochran's whereabouts.

Police said Dorrell's 1970 Barracuda was found Tuesday night in South St. Louis near the home of former convict Richard Enloe, with whom Cochran had served time in prison. Enloe told police Cochran went to Enloe's south side home about 30 minutes after Dorrell was released and demanded a car and money.

Enloe said he gave Cochran his 1961 Pontiac station wagon and $5.

"He's no dummy," Dorrell said. "He's the lightest sleeper I've ever known."

During the four days, Dorrell, an employee of McDonnell Douglas Corp., told police that they stopped for food only once—a few slices of luncheon meat, a quart of milk and two cinnamon rolls.

Dorrell, 30, a former medical corpsman in the armed forces, said he thought Cochran was suffering from lead poisoning from a wound in the leg or another one in the shoulder. Police said they thought Cochran was hit when he exchanged shots with them Friday in a St.

Louis cemetery. Dorrell told police he was on his way to a doctor's appointment Saturday when Cochran abducted him at gunpoint.

The two began driving to Albuquerque, N.M., Dorrell said.

He said as they were leaving New Mexico Cochran stopped and said he wanted to look at some mountains. Dorrell said Cochran told him to get out of the car. When Dorrell expressed fear that this might be his death, he said Cochran assured him—that "I'm not gonna kill you. Come on and look at these mountains."

Dorrell said Cochran then changed his mind and decided to go to Chicago to "get lost." When they neared St. Louis, Cochran told Dorrell he was going to let him out. Dorrell said he was "dropped off and warned not to call anyone for an hour."

Halloween observance in TF asked Saturday

TWIN FALLS — It's official — Halloween will be observed on Saturday in Twin Falls.

Because the traditional day for ghosts, goblins and trick-or-treat squads falls on Sunday, the Twin Falls Jaycees have asked Mayor Frank Feldtman to proclaim Saturday as Halloween for greater convenience of residents and their children.

Mayor Feldtman has officially named Saturday as "Trick-Or-Treat" Day in Twin Falls. He asked parents and children to cooperate by limiting their activities to the hours between 5 and 9 p.m.

In cooperation with the Jaycees Halloween safety campaign, Mayor Feldtman also asked children and parents to observe safety regulations. He asked citizens to turn on their porch lights during those hours to protect the small children and to indicate they are participating in treating small visitors.

John Mildon, chairman of the Jaycees Halloween Safety Project, said the organization's plan employs safety rules set forth by the National Safety Council, provides parents with guidelines for protecting their children and is designed to allow children the fun of wearing costumes and calling on residents of their immediate neighborhoods for treats.

Recommendations of the Jaycees safety committee: small children be accompanied by a parent or other responsible adult; children remain in their own immediate neighborhoods; accept only wrapped or sealed treats; wait until they are home before eating the collections; wear light colored Halloween costumes decorated with reflector tape for greater visibility; not wear masks since they restrict vision; use flashlights after dark, and light the pumpkin with a flashlight instead of a candle if carrying a jack-o-lantern.

Safety recommendations also call for observing National Safety Council rules for pedestrian safety.

For the motorists, the Jaycees ask they be alert for the excited youngsters during the designated Halloween observance.

France will sign Russ agreement

PARIS (UPI)—France has agreed to sign a political cooperation agreement with the Soviet Union before Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev ends his visit to France Saturday, government officials said Tuesday.

The officials said the declaration of close political cooperation will fall short of the treaty of friendship Brezhnev has been urging the French to sign for weeks.

It will be signed by Brezhnev and French President Georges Pompidou along with a joint communique and a new economic agreement just before the Soviet Communist party leader leaves.

Word of the signing was made public as Brezhnev, playing his role with evident enjoyment, drove around Paris waving his hat and acting like a politician on the stump.

Paris crowds, urged on by appeals from the French Communist party responded mainly with applause and cheers. But Brezhnev was reminded he is the target of Jewish and anti-Communist groups.

Armenian-born Pierre Bazian, 36, broke through the French police cordon to thrust a letter through the window of Brezhnev's car when he left the Soviet Embassy after lunch. He was arrested.

Another man, identified by police as Boris Chalen, a Soviet-born Israeli, was halted by police on the Champs Elysees Avenue as he almost got to the Soviet leader's slow-moving car.

Brezhnev shrugged off the two incidents.

Lawyer refutes Johnson claim

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Arthur J. Goldberg said Tuesday "nothing could be further from the truth" than former President Johnson's claim that Goldberg was bored on the Supreme Court and asked to be appointed U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Goldberg, now a private lawyer here, referred to Johnson's forthcoming book "Vantage Point: Perspectives of the Presidency 1963-1969," and newspaper installments of the memoir now being published. He called Johnson's version of the event "self-serving and biased."

Goldberg said he had received a copy of the book in advance of publication and sought to make his statement at the same time newspapers published the installment referring to him.

Goldberg not only disputed Johnson's account of his stunning decision to resign from the high court to take the U.N. post, but denied another statement of the former president that Goldberg had sought appointment as secretary of health, education and welfare.

Pilot refuses to go back to Cuba

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—State Department efforts to return to Havana 19 Cubans who arrived without visas to attend a sugar conference snarled Tuesday when the pilot of the Russian-built airplane refused to go back without instructions from his government.

The 19 Cubans and three crew members of the sleek Cubana Airlines AN24 twin turboprop were ordered moved to a New Orleans hotel to spend the night.

The State Department was getting in touch with the Cuban government through the Czechoslovakian Embassy in Washington in an effort to have return instructions relayed to the pilot, identified as Ray Morina.

The State Department said earlier Tuesday the plane was being refueled and would take off during the afternoon, but later changed this report.

The State department said it advised the Cuban government Sept. 24 it could not grant visas for the 19-member delegation.

"Denial of the visas was consistent with our practice of not issuing the visas to Cuban officials unless they are coming to the United Nations or other inter-governmental organizations of which Cuba is a member," a State Department spokesman said.

The State Department spokesman, Charles W. Bray, said the Houston Air Control Center was advised in the morning the plane would be arriving in New Orleans before noon Tuesday and that this was the first message received about the flight.

The plane, carrying 19 passengers and a crew of three, landed at 11:17 a.m. EDT, he said, and the Cubans were there to attend the international meeting of the sugar cane technologists.

In New Orleans, government officials said earlier that 25 Cubans were aboard the plane and the discrepancy in numbers was not explained immediately.

U.S. help to continue for Greece

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States will continue to provide military and commercial assistance to Greece as a NATO ally, although that country's military government has not re-established democratic rule, the White House said Tuesday.

"Greece is a NATO ally," Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said. "Within that framework the assistance that we provide reflects the importance of Greece to the alliance."

Ziegler was asked to comment on a report by the Washington Post the administration had approved a loan to help the Greek government build a $50 million aerospace plant to service modern war planes.

Ziegler declined to say specifically whether such a deal had been made but he referred to it as "a routine commercial transaction."

"A general policy decision has been made that this type of transaction will proceed for a number of countries," Ziegler said.

Sudden birth

CHICAGO (UPI)—Babies born suddenly at home usually have normal and easy births, Dr. J. P. Greenhill says in his new book, "The Miracle of Life" (Year Book Medical Publishers).

Dr. Greenhill, senior attending obstetrician and gynecologist at Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center, says usually the baby will start crying immediately, a good sign. It means the infant is breathing on his own. At that stage it is okay to leave the baby and mother connected by umbilical cord until the doctor arrives.

Suspects searched

ROBBERY-SUSPECTS Henry Madden (left, wearing hat) and Richard Griffie are searched at side of police car they commandeered during robbery and 150 mile chase Tuesday. They were caught at roadblock in San Diego County, Calif., and two hostages were released unharmed. Suspects were returned to Long Beach, Calif. (UPI)

Bandits caught, pair of hostages released

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Two bandits commandeered a police car by "entending" the lives of hostages Tuesday and fled down Southern California toward the Mexican border before they were captured at a desert roadblock.

Two hostages were rescued unharmed at a lonely crossroads where forest rangers blocked their flight with bulldozers, as they were trailed by Long Beach police, sheriff's deputies, California Highway Patrol officers and a helicopter.

The chase covered more than 150 miles and ran southward down the San Diego Freeway between Los Angeles and the border, passing within 50 yards of the gate to the Western White House at San Clemente.

Police said the bandits threw their guns out of the car and surrendered when they saw the bulldozer roadblock at Buckman Springs road about 50 miles east of San Diego near the crossroads hamlet of Laguna Junction.

The suspects, identified as Henry Madden, 25, and Mark Richard Griffie, 16, both of Long Beach, were booked at the San Diego County Jail and Griffie was turned over to juvenile authorities.

The flight of the desperadoes was marked by tense scenes with hostages—more than a dozen—at the supermarket they tried to rob in Long Beach and a home in Laguna Hills where they held a group that included a 6-year-old girl.

At one point the bandits demanded $20,000 ransom and a guarantee of "safe passage" for the lives of the hostages.

Mexican police at the border crossing point at Tijuana braced to receive them, saying they would "do everything in our power to safeguard the lives of the hostages" if they crossed into that country.

The green Dodge carrying the bandits—an unmarked radio car—turned east on Interstate 8 only 15 miles north of the border and sped toward the desert farming area of the Imperial Valley with one of the hostages at the wheel.

Madden and Griffie sat in the back with 12-gauge shotguns trained on the driver, Henry Lee Davis, 51, the supermarket janitor.

The other hostage, Mrs. Sarah Joan Keleher, 57, a bakery clerk at the market, was seated next to Davis. She was hysterical after being rescued.

The two bandits tried to hold up the Lucky Market in Long Beach, just south of Los Angeles, at about 7 a.m., police said, but were foiled when a clerk arriving for work noticed the robbery in progress and called police.

Police surrounded the market and the bandits sighted them and called Long Beach police, telling Capt. Willis Platt they would kill the 12 hostages they held unless they were given "safe passage" and a helicopter to escape in.

Police refused the helicopter but pulled back all units for a block and gave the gunmen five minutes to escape in return for a promise to release all the hostages.

However, the bandits held on to three hostages and dashed off in their own car, with police trailing them. They broke into a home in Laguna Hills, about 30 miles south. The mother and father of the family there managed to get away but the bandits took as hostage their 6-year-old daughter, the Orange County sheriff's office said.

They demanded an unmarked patrol car in which to continue their getaway, the sheriff's office said, and were furnished one. Over the two-way radio they demanded the $20,000 ransom. The Lucky Market agreed to provide the money but the gunmen jumped into the patrol car and fled southward, trailed by California Highway Patrol officers and a helicopter, leaving the little girl behind.

One of the supermarket hostages was released near the Western White House and told to call police.

The Almanac

By United Press International Today is Wednesday, Oct. 27, the 300th day of 1971.

The moon is in its first quarter.

The morning star is Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Libra.

President Theodore Roosevelt was born Oct. 27, 1858.

On this day in history: In 1871 the political chief of New York's Tammany Hall, Boss Tweed, was arrested on charges of defrauding the city.

In 1904 the first practical subway began operating in New York City, from the Brooklyn Bridge to 145th Street in Manhattan.

In 1917 concert violinist Jascha Heifetz made his debut in Carnegie Hall at the age of 16.

In 1961 the United Nations General Assembly adopted by an overwhelming vote a resolution against Russian explosion of a 50-megaton atomic bomb.

A thought for today: President Franklin D. Roosevelt said, "When you see a rattlesnake poised to strike, you do not wait until he has struck before you crush him."

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hamlett, live on Route 2, Kimberly. After a short training period aboard ship, Hamlett will attend a basic nuclear power school.

TIMOTHY J. CURRIE

BUHL — Air Force Capt. Walter T. Leitch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Leitch, Buhl, has received the Distinguished Flying Cross for extraordinary aerial achievement in Southeast Asia, according to the Air Force.

Flying as a forward air controller on a reconnaissance mission, Capt. Leitch located a hostile truck convoy and directed strike aircraft against the target. His action resulted in the destruction of three trucks. Capt. Leitch, who also holds nine awards of the Air Medal, was honored at Williams Air Force Base, Ariz., where he is serving as a jet trainer instructor pilot with the Air Training Command.

He was graduated from Buhl High School in 1963, subsequently earning a bachelor of science degree in civil engineering from the University of Idaho, where he was also commissioned through the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps.

China asks arms confab

GENEVA (UPI) — Communist Chinese officials today reiterated demands for a world summit conference on arms control separate from the smaller Geneva disarmament negotiations.

Asked whether China would now consider joining the negotiations, the officials said: "We have no instructions or information from our government about the Geneva conference. As we stated two months ago we desire a world conference at the summit level to discuss the disarmament question."

The officials said "there is no policy yet" as to whether such a summit gathering would be followed by further talks within the framework of a smaller forum such as the Geneva conference, which has been going on since 1962.

The Geneva talks have resulted in several arms control agreements, none of which has been signed by Peking.

They include the limited nuclear test ban treaty, the nuclear nonproliferation treaty, the nuclear-free seabed treaty and, this September, the treaty prohibiting biological weapons. Presently at U.N. headquarters in Geneva negotiators are presently at U.N. headquarters in New York.

Tito's visit is important

By STEWART HENSLEY
UPI Diplomatic Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon attaches great importance to the visit later this week of President Tito of Yugoslavia because of his enduring position of leadership of the so-called nonaligned nations of the world.

given red carpet treatment of the highest order. They will go to Camp David, President Nixon's retreat in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains, to spend the night before arriving at the White House Thursday morning for their official welcome by Nixon and his cabinet.

In addition to a White House dinner, and a luncheon to be given by Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Tito will visit Capitol Hill for talks with influential senators.

All of the fulsome honors paid Tito are designed not only to express appreciation for his position but to make up in part for the fact that there has been a long delay in inviting him to make this fall dress appearance in the American capital. Yugoslavs have been hard put to understand why he was not invited many years ago.

The reason lay in the concern of previous administrations, as well as this one, over the possible demonstrations which might greet him because of the presence in the United States of numerous Yugoslav royalist remnants as well as other anti-Tito persons of Yugoslav ancestry.

In addition to red carpet treatment, Tito's visit undoubtedly will be marked by strict security precautions. Officials here have not forgotten the series of bombings which afflicted the Yugoslav Embassy and other Yugoslav consulates in other American cities just a few years ago.

The other three are dead. They were Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India, President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt and President Sukarno of Indonesia.

The successors of the three deceased presidents have tried to maintain nonaligned positions but in one way or another each has failed to adhere to the strict neutrality which has characterized Tito's course.

For this reason his support is valued by both the East and West in the "Cold War" which sometimes wanes but never ends.

The nine month total represents 80.20 per cent of the $7,000,000 Idaho state 1971 goal.

Mamie has a check-up

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Mrs. Mamie D. Eisenhower, 74, widow of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, is having her annual physical checkup today at the Army's Brooke General Hospital.

She is staying on the seventh floor of the hospital in what is known as the Presidential Suite.

HONG KONG (UPI)—While the United Nations was voting to accept Communist China as a member, Chinese in Peking were celebrating the 21st anniversary of China's entry into the Korean War against forces of the United Nations Command (UNC).

The vote in the U.N. General Assembly which ousted Nationalist China and admitted the People's Republic of China came 21 years to the day that a multimillion-man force of Chinese "volunteers" crossed the Yalu River into North Korea and fought the UNC to a standstill.

Su Yu, a vice minister of national defense and a former chief of the Chinese general staff, spoke at a reception given by the North Koreans. He made no specific mention of the United Nations. But he denounced the United States, saying the U.S. "madly launched the war of aggression against Korea."

When troops of the U.N. Command broke the back of the North Korean forces that had invaded South Korea in 1950 and crossed the 38th parallel in pursuit of the battered North Korean army, China sent more than a million men across the Yalu to engage the U.N. forces. That war ended on July 27, 1953, with what has now become the longest armistice in history.

Vet attacks fund use

BOISE (UPI) — An officer of the Ada County United Veterans Council Tuesday took issue with reported allocation of United Fund monies to an organization lobbying for handgun control legislation.

Janice Shintani, executive secretary of the council, past Idaho department commander of the Disabled American Veterans, former district commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and former district vice commander of the Veterans of the American Legion, said he will bring the question to the council's attention at a meeting next Monday.

"I will suggest to the council that the matter be brought to the attention of the local posts that United Fund money is being spent for this type of legislation which we're very much against," Shintani said.

Shintani, a Boise native who served in the European theater with the famed "go for broke" Japanese-American 442nd Regimental combat team, said he understood some United Fund money is allocated to the "Crime and Delinquency Council."

He said he understood this group, among other things, is lobbying for federal handgun control legislation.

He said he and other veterans object to use of United Fund monies for lobbying purposes — especially for lobbying for handgun control legislation.

"We're not against the United Fund," Shintani stressed. "We know the United Fund is a good deal. But the purpose of the United Fund is to help people — not the lobby."

He said he felt the United Fund, either should cut off support to the Crime and Delinquency Council or put such strings on the contribution it gives the council to prevent its use by lobbyists.

Byron J. Johnson, president of the United Fund in this area, said the Crime and Delinquency Council is a national group organized "primarily to provide research and assistance in the areas of crime — legislation at the national level and research at the local level."

Johnson said it is possible this council is lobbying the Congress. He said he does not "honestly know" whether this council is lobbying for handgun control legislation but "its conceivable that they are." He said he will have to look into this aspect of the council's work.

"Our contribution to them is rather modest — just a few hundred dollars," Johnson said.

He said he is acquainted with some of the Crime and Delinquency Council's efforts.

He said the organization helped the state of Idaho review its penal program in 1965 and again in 1968.

Arizona governor ends woman's prison term

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Gov. Jack Williams Tuesday night granted a commutation of sentence to Winnie Ruth Judd, famed bank murderess of the 1930s.

In a statement released by his office, Williams said, "I have given this matter long and deliberate thought and I concur with the unanimous feeling of the Board of Pardons and Parole. I therefore grant Mrs. Judd a commutation of sentence so that in lieu of the life sentence that she has been serving, her minimum sentence shall be reduced to time served and her maximum sentence shall remain at life imprisonment."

Identified by law officers investigating a murder in the area.

Mrs. Judd, now 67 and a prisoner at the Arizona State Prison in Florence, Ariz., was convicted in 1931 of killing one of two friends whose bodies were found in trunks at the Los Angeles Railway Station.

She had been sentenced to hang but just 72 hours before the execution she was granted a sanity hearing and a jury at Florence ruled in 1933 that she was insane.

Then, in 1952, former Gov. Howard Pyle commuted the death sentence to life in prison shortly after Mrs. Judd was returned to the state mental hospital following her sixth escape. She said she kept running away because she believed in her sanity.

Writer called Senate prospect

MARSING (UPI) — Publisher Rodney Hawes has suggested that Boise political writer John Corlett run for the United States Senate.

In a front page four column editorial in his "Owyhee Nugget" Hawes said in the present world turmoil of change. "Idaho and the rest of the U. S. citizens could well use the able services of a veteran newspaperman... John Corlett."

Hawes traced Corlett's career, as a newspaperman from 1935 to the present, singling out for special attention the journalist's participation in special conferences on education.

Hawes also noted that "John Corlett's newspaper experience includes coverage of all Republican and Democratic conventions since 1948, innumerable governor and political party conferences and campaigns of presidential hopefuls and candidates."

Hawes suggested that either the Idaho Republican or Democratic party "would be proud to have John Corlett on their ticket for U. S. Senator."

The editorial said, "were John Corlett to run for and be chosen to succeed Lon B. Jordan in the U. S. Senate, he would be representing the Idaho people, not selfish interest groups of a minority nature."

Jordan has announced he will not seek re-election when his term expires in 1972.

Library funding said shy

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — Improvements have been made in library facilities in Idaho but there is still inadequate funding for them, State Sen. Art Manley, D-Coeur d'Alene, said Tuesday.

Manley spoke in an address to the state library board staff members during the regional fall library workshop here.

While the legislator praised library improvement, his outlook for more funds was dimmed "in view of the growing fiscal problems facing the state."

Manley said during the past two years library facilities have been made available to the state youth training facility at St. Anthony and the state prison.

He said at St. Anthony there is a building and library facilities "but we still lack sufficient volume and professional library services."

He said at the state penitentiary near Boise open library services are now available but books are lacking as are trained librarians and adequate space.

Manley said the state library staff had made improvements by "almost creating miracles in expanding library services throughout the state on a shoestring."

the 'two Chinas' we desired, but rather to an empty China seat on the Security Council while Taiwan remained in the General Assembly.

"Such an outcome would have represented a long step backward from the goal of universalization," he said.

Appointed

BOISE (UPI) — State Sen. Wayne Kidwell, R-Boise, Senate majority leader, has been appointed to membership on the Intergovernmental Relations Committee of the National Legislative Conference.

Kidwell was appointed by John H. Conolly, president of the National Legislative Conference.

Kidwell said Idaho has never before been represented on the leadership committee.

Taiwan ouster 'not tragedy'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Tuesday while he would have preferred to see Taiwan remain in the United Nations, the failure to do so "is not a tragedy of surpassing magnitude."

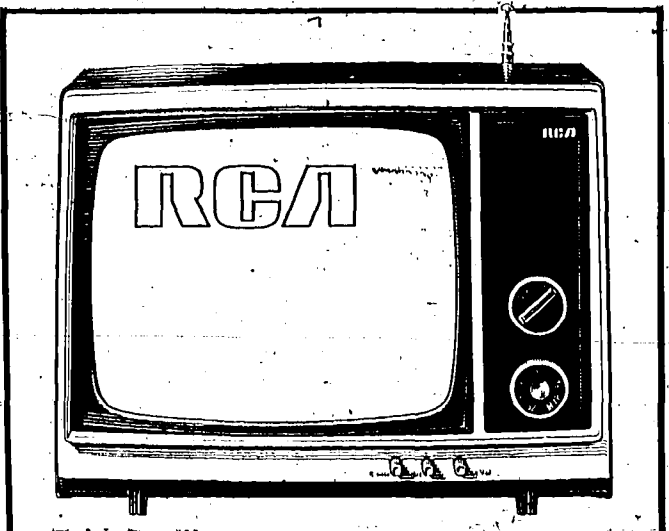

Church said the "two Chinas" issue had been troubling the world "too long and as with many problems of long duration the corrosive effects of its perpetuation could well have proved worse than this unfavorable resolution."

Church said he commended the Nixon Administration for repudiating a proposal to drastically reduce U. S. contributions to the United Nations if nationalistic China were expelled.

"The principle at stake is one which is essential to the successful functioning of any political institution: that to some degree the members of the body must subordinate their own preference to the decisions of the corporate whole," Church said.

He said there was a possibility the People's Republic of China would not have accepted a "two Chinas" operation, adding, "if we had carried the vote, it probably would not have led to

Fashion show slated Nov. 2

September sales soar for Gold Mine in Ketchum

TWIN FALLS — A fashion show sponsored by the 20th Century Club on Nov. 2 at the Turf Club will raise funds for a club donation to the Twin Falls County Parks and Recreation Board to develop Rock Creek Park.

The luncheon and fashion show will begin at 1 p.m. at the Turf Club, featuring styles from the Mayfair, and models from Buhl, Piler, Kimberly and Twin Falls.

Makeup and door prizes will be supplied by Crowley Pharmacy, with an exquisite gown from the Mayfair to be awarded as a door prize.

A display of gladioli will be shown in form California by the Mayfair to highlight the surroundings of the fashion show.

Tickets must be purchased in advance from the Mayfair. They will not be available at the door, according to the sponsors.

Christmas bazaar set by Catholics

JEROME — Plans for a Christmas Bazaar to be held Dec. 4 were made at the October meeting of Catholic Women's League.

The bazaar, to be held in the parish hall, will feature all kinds of crafts, food items, doll clothes, aprons and other products made by the women of the parish, according to Mrs. Richard Scheer, president of the group.

Mrs. Scheer said all women of the parish are urged to use their talents to help earn money for the furnishing of the kitchen for the new parish hall.

Chairman of the event will be Mrs. Kenneth Maglin, with Mrs. Don Nutsch, as co-chairman. They can be contacted for information about the talent or service they could use to help raise the funds, Mrs. Scheer said. She noted that services and goods available will be advertised in the parish bulletin.

Hot lines are 24-hour telephone services staffed at crisis intervention centers in many communities.

Jerome doctor named charter member of ABFP

JEROME — Dr. James Sloat, Jerome, has been named a charter member of the American Board of Family Practice as a result of passing a certification examination administered by the ABFP.

To achieve membership status Dr. Sloat, through an intensive two-day written examination, proved his ability in the areas of internal medicine, surgery, obstetrics-gynecology, pediatrics, psychiatry, preventative medicine and other traditional specialties, and is now certified in medicine's newest specialty, family practice.

The 3,285 doctors, nationally, who earned this distinction, are the vanguard of a new type of highly competent "people doctor" who accepts responsibility for the patient's total health care and serves as the natural point of entry into the complex medical system.

Fall bazaar, luncheon set

JEROME — Plans were finalized for the annual fall bazaar, luncheon and dinner to be held Nov. 6 for the Women's Society of Christian Service of the United Methodist Church at their October meeting of General Circle, according to Mrs. Orville Bean, president of the group.

The bazaar will feature many novelty items, fancy breads, cakes and other foods as well as crocheted, knitted and embroidered items for Christmas giving, Mrs. Bean said.

Antiques displayed

FAIRFIELD — "Antiques" was the subject for the October meeting of the Camas Club. Dick and Sallie Drake of the Chalet Antiques Shop, Shoshone, and Mrs. Charles Kramer of Kramer's Antiques, Gooding, presented the program.

They brought many articles to display including glassware, jewelry, dolls, purses, plates and some articles that are called "collectables" that are more modern but scarce.

The club is purchasing street name signs for the town and will be assisted by the Chamber of Commerce.

A Halloween theme was carried out in the table decorations and refreshments were served by Mrs. Lucien Ennis, Mrs. Tom Wokerson, Mrs. Marion Kerns and Mrs. William Stewart.

KETCHUM — September sales soared at the Ketchum Gold Mine Thrift Shop, according to Mrs. Harry Holmes, chairman of the merchandising committee.

She told board members of the community library association at the October meeting that two record breaking sales days last month contributed to the brisk round of business. The popular bargain shop is open Tuesdays and Saturdays, noon to 4:30 p.m. Its proceeds lend financial support to the library.

In her librarian's report, Mrs. Daniel Hart said 85 new books were added to the collection this past month. Six hundred eleven adult books, 369 juvenile books and 60 records were circulated.

She noted book checkouts by grade school students remained high even though children are actively participating in an additional library program at the Hemingway Grade School. Mrs. Hart announced Miss Terry Hughes, Wood River High student, will assist her in accordance with the vocational, educational training program.

Mrs. Louis Mallone reported the fall term of the Children's Story Hour is open to all four and five-year-old youngsters each Monday and Friday, 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the library. The board reviewed the association's by-laws, recommended and agreed to revision. Elected to the nominating committee were Mrs. Clifford Bentley Mrs. Samurra Sword, Whiteney, Melvin Brooks, Mrs. Leif Odmark, Mrs. Oliver Dibble and Mrs. Rene Meyer. Their proposals for officers and committee heads will be presented at the November board meeting.

New books added to the collection include: "America's Last Wild Horses," Ryden; "Discretions," De Rachewitz; "The Gift Horse" Knief; Scott's "Standard Postage Stamp Catalogue"; "The Beat Generation," Cook and "We Talk, You Listen," Dellria.

Adult fiction includes "Between the Hills and the Sea," Gildeon; "Wheels," Halley; "Larkman," Innes; "The Spanish Bridegroom," Plaidy; "Willy Remembers," Faust; "To Spite Her Face," Dolson.

Juvenile non-fiction include "Animals at Bay," Stoutenberg; "High Meadow," The Ecology of a Mountain meadow," Heady; "Cricket Songs," (Japanese Haiku) Behn Dehn; "Ice Hockey," Whitehead; "Jamestown, First English Colony," Flahwick. Juvenile fiction includes "A

Anderson heads Science Club

GOODING — Elected president of the Gooding High School Science Club this year was Mike Anderson, vice president is Kevin Nathan with secretary-treasurer, JoAnn McKay and Joel Caldwell, adviser.

According to Caldwell, the club has expanded into several areas this year. "One of the projects is the audio visual team," Caldwell said.

These teams will go out to the school and assist teachers in the operation of movie projectors, overhead projectors, mimeograph machines and other audio visual machines, Caldwell explained.

Another project is the student demonstration team. The science club members have access to all high school science equipment to perform experiments for grade school and Jr. high school teachers.

Caldwell noted the main goal of the club this year is to sponsor another Science Fair. The fair will be held Dec. 7. It will be divided into four divisions, high school, junior high school, grade school and special division, which is for the general public.

Each division will be divided into a science project division and hobby division, Caldwell said. Prizes will be given in each division.

Caldwell emphasized they would like the public to enter the fair. Further information concerning the group can be obtained by contacting Mike Anderson or Joel Caldwell.

"Electric heat is easy on the nerves"

MRS. ALIA HOLDEN, ONTARIO, OREGON

"My furnace was on its last legs, giving me noise and odor instead of comfort," says Mrs. Holden. "Finally I decided I couldn't put up with it any longer, and changed to electric heat. I'm glad I did. Now I have clean, quiet, even heat. My electric bills were almost identical with the combination costs of heating and electric use the previous year. One thing sure and certain, electric heat is easier on my nerves."

Couple observes 25th anniversary

SHOSHONE — The family of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Colter, North Shoshone, honored them with open house this past weekend for their 25th wedding anniversary. The event was held at the American Legion Hall, Gooding.

Arrangements were by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Casper, Twin Falls, and Galen Colter, Moscow.

A blue and white color scheme was used in decorations. Mrs. Colter wore her wedding dress, pale blue lace over dark blue with matching shoes accented with a pink rose corsage. A highlight of the evening was a mock wedding.

Mrs. Colter's sister, Mrs. William Varin, was bridesmaid. Owen Colter was best man for his brother.

The serving table was covered with white lace over blue and a three-tiered wedding cake, baked by Mrs. Omer Shook, was topped with silver bells and ribbon bows and trimmed in blue and white roses. On the lower tier, the same miniature bride and groom used 25 years ago on their cake, was used along with the numerals 25.

Blue tapers and red roses in white vases completed the decorating scheme, with various colors of asters in arrangements around the room.

Mrs. William Varin cut the cake; Marlene Varin poured punch, and Mrs. William Kerner poured coffee. Gene Colter registered guests from Gooding, Shoshone, Moscow, Castleford, Weiser, Cambridge, Twin Falls, Boise and South Dakota.

A Kerner family tradition presentation of a money tree was given the couple by Mrs. Colter's brothers and sisters. Their children gave them an engraved silver platter and crystal glass, and 30 families in the neighborhood were represented in giving a gift of a silver bowl of white carnations.

On Sunday the Colters held a family dinner, attended by their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Casper; son, Galen, and three sons at home.

Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Colter's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. William Neu, American Falls, visited them.

Granges install

SHOSHONE — Joint installation services were held for Magic and Wood River Center granges at the Wood River Center Grange Hall it was announced today.

Mrs. Ira Kistler, Gooding, state grange deputy, and Ira Kistler, state overseer, were installing officers, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Vern Bumgarner, Gooding.

Mrs. Donald Sandy was assisted by Mrs. Clifton Dayley in serving refreshments which were provided by all members of the granges.

Delta Kappa Gamma meets

BURLEY — Delta Kappa Gamma held its luncheon meeting this past week at Price's Cafe and it was announced the Nov. 20 meeting, Henrietta Hojan, first vice president of the state association, will make an official visit.

Program included music furnished by Erlene Harrison and the program was arranged by Mrs. Mary Chisholm and Mrs. Estelle Golbe.

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. E. J. Bellwood, president. It was announced new members will be initiated during the Nov. 20 meeting at Price's Cafe.

The luncheon tables were decorated by Mrs. Teresa Edwards with fall flowers in pumpkin vases and fall leaves using the Halloween theme.

The years between birth and the time a child enters school at about age six are the most important years for acquisition of communications skills that are going to serve him for the rest of his life, speech authorities report.

BURLEY — The Golden Gleam Dance Club will hold a potluck dinner with dance following at the Burley IOOF Hall. The dinner begins at 8 p.m. The public is invited.

JEHOE — Senior citizens from Hazelton, Eden, Jerome and Twin Falls were entertained recently at the IOOF Hall in Hazelton. Providing the music for the occasion was Dorothy Bryson and Russell Dillo, both Twin Falls; Roy Spurgeon, Jerome, members of the Old-Time Fiddlers Association, and John Mitchell and Gayle Pegram, Jerome; Debora Corle, Hazelton, and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hammond, Eden.

Ray Lincoln speaks for GOP women

TWIN FALLS — "If you haven't done so before, begin today to make yourselves environmentally informed," State Rep. Ray Lincoln, Twin Falls, said here Monday.

He urged members of the Twin Falls Republican Women's Club at a meeting at the Rogerson Hotel to find out what "your state and you are doing and should do in the future."

Rep. Lincoln who was introduced by Mrs. R. L. Ullman, program chairman, said Idaho has a pollution control committee under the department of health which sets policy and enforces regulations.

He cited individual efforts being made by individuals in the community, including Mrs. Marshall LeBaron, Kimberly, who records air pollution readings and a feedlot owner whose new corrals are "anti-pollution" planned and constructed.

Mrs. James Sinclair reported on the Western States GOP Conference held in Las Vegas, Nev. Mrs. Roy Painter, president of the Twin Falls Twentieth Century Club, asked for help in making Twin Falls the cleanest city in Idaho.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I have recently married a kind, considerate and generous man; who took on a divorced 40-year-old woman, plus her three rambunctious teenagers and a cat.

He wants to move us out of our present home into a larger, more pretentious one. I would like to stay put for another four years, until my youngest is out of high school. My children have changed schools many times in their lives, and now they are happy, and I don't want them to have to adjust to another change. I believe the teen years are the most difficult when it comes to breaking into a new circle of friends.

My home is pleasant and adequate, and in an entirely acceptable neighborhood, but my husband would like something a little less modest. I want desperately to make this wonderful man happy, but at the moment I am torn with indecision about where my first obligation lies. Please tell me what you think.

TORN

DEAR TORN: You seem to be a very unselfish, sensitive and thoughtful woman. Tell your husband why you prefer to "stay put" rather than move into a more pretentious home. If he's as kind, considerate and generous as you say he is, he will respect you for your attitude, and defer willingly.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 71-year-old widow. I live alone in a little home which I own and I am afraid to be here alone at night.

Do you think I'd be the talk of the town if I let a man sleep in my basement? The man I have in mind is clean and respectable. He's a little retarded. Can't read or write, but he is honest. He's done some odd jobs for me over the years.

I have asked a few of my good friends, and they said, "Sure, why not?"

What do you say?

MRS. I. J.

DEAR MRS. J.: Sure, why not, indeed!

DEAR ABBY: I don't know whom to believe. My teenage daughter tells me that her friends have complained to her about the way her father acts towards them. Father is 40, good-looking and very lively. I mentioned this to him and he said those girls have misinterpreted his actions—that he is just trying to have a little fun, teasing them.

He tickles them in the ribs and sneaks up behind them and puts his hands around their shoulders or their waists. Your suggestions are most welcome in this misunderstanding.

MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Tell father that if he will keep his hands to himself there will be no chance of a "misinterpretation"—misunderstanding or whatever.

DEAR ABBY: After being officially engaged for five months, I realize that it would be a big mistake to marry Harry. I feel bad about having to break our engagement after all the parties and gifts given in our honor, but there is no other way.

I have already figured out what to say to him, my family and friends, but what do I do with the engagement ring? Should I pay him the $300 and keep it? (I don't really want it.) He still has the wedding ring, which is part of the set, and half a set won't do either one of us any good.

Please hurry your answer as I want to settle this soon.

RING TROUBLE

DEAR RING: Give the engagement ring back to him. What he does with it after that is his problem.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 6970, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

A Lovelier You

HERE'S YOUR HAT

By Mary Sue Miller

Have you worn a hat lately? You will miss a most flattering final touch to your winter wardrobe if you pass up new hat fashions. To top off your coat or walking suit on the first frigid day, there's a marvelous diversity of selections.

Hoods and snoods, caps and berets, snuggly cloches and swagging brims... Wool, crocheted, velvet, brocade, felt and fur felt, leather and suede, fake fur and the real thing... Featherers, veils, a greenhouse posy, a bejeweled pin.

But "what's in" is not the sole test of a smashing choice. For the inexperienced among us, these selection tips:

Watch the ads prior to shopping. That way you get a line on what suits your needs and your looks—those shapes and shades that compliment your face and coloring, the types and colors that dovetail with your wardrobe. Do give a thought to distinction, the designs that bespeak your individuality.

When you set out to shop, look your loveliest. You cannot otherwise judge a hat's effect. Mirror-test your final choices from every angle, including full-length views. And do check head sizes. A hat will not sit properly and may cause you discomfort, unless it fits. In most instances, sizes can be adjusted up or down.

Test over, you just might ask what you do for the hat, rather than what it does for you!

Janss backs port

HAILEY — A regional airport would have a positive economic impact on Magic Valley, Bill Janss, owner of Sun Valley, said today.

Commenting on Tuesday's airport election in which Blaine County voters defeated the proposal 411 to 278, Janss said, "It was a shame it did not pass in Blaine."

"I think a regional airport will be proper planning for the future. Many cities and states are bankrupt today because they did not plan for growth. Hopefully Idaho has an opportunity to plan so it will not be bankrupt."

He said a regional facility will also have an effect on the growth of recreation. "Recreation is non-demanding in capital investment to the state and county government, and is a very positive producer of wealth to the state in the form of taxes."

Clayton Stewart, also Sun Valley and president of the South Idaho Chamber of Commerce, which backed the proposal, said "We appreciate the efforts of all those who worked so hard and gave so freely of their time without reimbursement to work for the passage of the regional airport authority."

"The South Idaho Chamber of Commerce will always work for unification and cooperation between all the communities which comprise Magic Valley," he said.

Issues pass in Lincoln

SHOSHONE — Kimama, Richfield and Dietrich precincts of Lincoln County narrowly approved establishment of a regional airport authority and retail wine sales, while Shoshone and North Shoshone approved both by a larger majority.

In the precincts of Shoshone and North Shoshone the airport question was passed by 189 to 152, while the wine question received a vote of 201 to 134.

In Kimama, Richfield and Dietrich, the airport vote was 92 in favor, 91 against. The wine vote there was 104 in favor, 103 against.

Most Lincoln County residents questioned Tuesday said they felt it would be a good thing to establish a regional airport authority and have a thorough study to determine the pros and cons of the issue.

Myron D. Johnson, president of the Shoshone Chamber of Commerce, said his group had originally voted against a regional airport but when there were petitions to be circulated to call for the airport authority vote, members of the chamber voted to do this.

Johnson said in his opinion the authority should be established to provide for a thorough study to determine if a regional airport is needed or if the Twin Falls, City-County Airport is adequate to serve the region.

Shoshone Mayor Ellwood Werry said he heard some retired citizens of the area say they were fearful a regional airport might increase their taxes. With fixed wages in this age group, Werry said, any increase in taxes is a "mighty serious thing."

Burley supports airport

BURLEY — Burley voters cast about three fourths of the 848 Cassia County ballots favoring creation of a regional airport authority Tuesday.

Cassia County approved formation of the authority with 848 "yes" votes and 454 "no" votes.

Voters at Burley Junior High School favored the proposal by a 336-174 margin, while those casting ballots at Burley High School backed it by a 344-102 margin.

Five of the eight polling places in Cassia County reported returns favoring creation of the airport authority, with voters in the Parsons area backing it 24-1.

The proposal was approved at Albion by a 40-11 margin and at Malta by a 28-22 vote.

Voters at Almo, Declo and Oakley turned down the proposal. Returns listed included Almo with 3 for and 23 against; Declo with 43 for and 56 against; and Oakley with 30 for and 65 against.

Jerome seeks anti-drug aide

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News Writer

JEROME — Jerome City and County officials are pursuing plans to hire a person to work solely with the drug abuse problem in the area.

County commissioners, Mayor Jack Russell and city councilmen met Tuesday afternoon to discuss the second phase of Mayor Russell's proposed three-phase drug abuse plan presented at the Oct. 5 city council meeting.

The three-point program recommends changing the city's curfew law from 10 to 11 p.m. and enforcing it, hiring an extra person to coordinate drug abuse problems and having the police chief submit to the city council cost of a special drug abuse testing kit.

John Van Orman, county commission chairman, said no decisions were made at the meeting and that officials want to meet with Jerome Police Chief C. H. Pantney, Sheriff

James (Pat) Burns and magistrate judges in Twin Falls and Jerome counties to get answers to questions raised at the meeting.

They discussed mutual arrangements between the Jerome city and county governmental units to share the cost of hiring an additional law enforcement officer and equipping him.

It was agreed the person should be an expert on drugs and would work closely with youths to provide them with information about the dangers of drug abuse.

"We thought if we can do something in cooperative effort it might help the entire area and not make it so equally for anyone," Van Orman said.

Pros. Atty. Eugene Frederickson, who also met with the officials, said "I feel we need a coordinator not only in drug cases, but also in miscellaneous criminal cases. The Jerome law enforcement officers are tied down with regular duties and do not have as much time as they should to investigate smaller criminal complaints; that 'this' man, if hired, could do. Many cases which now are lying on the courts could be eliminated, Frederickson said.

Another meeting is planned, probably within the next three weeks, Van Orman said.

SEVERAL YOUNG, ambitious fellows give a helping hand as they lower the ceiling in the new HOPE building in Jerome. The organization will be open in its new location soon.

Rupert wins OK for port

RUPERT — Heyburn and Rupert voters endorsed Minidoka County for the regional airport authority in Tuesday's balloting, casting the bulk of the 655 favorable votes.

The county approved formation of the authority, 655 to 575.

In Rupert, there were 311 votes for the proposal and 282 against. In Heyburn, there were 143 favorable votes and 124 against.

In the other three voting precincts in the county, the returns showed:

Acequia, 32 yes, 45 no.
Paul, 134 yes, 120 no.
A&B Irrigation office, for Adelaide and Nprland precincts, 35 yes, 24 no.

9th grade endorses 2 issues

TWIN FALLS — Ninth grade social studies classes at Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School approved formation of the regional airport authority and sale of wine in grocery stores in a straw vote Tuesday.

In balloting set up by Carl Shaner and Richard Chilcote, social studies teachers, about 300 pupils cast ballots.

TF comments on election

TWIN FALLS — City and county officials in Twin Falls today viewed the overwhelming defeat of the airport authority in Twin Falls County as a strong indication of dissatisfaction in the present facility.

William L. (Bill) Chancey, county commission chairman, said he believes residents of the county feel they have adequate airport facilities now and for the future.

"I cannot see any hope for Twin Falls joining the regional airport plan in the immediate future. With a 74 per cent opposition to the authority voted in the county, passage of a bond issue to finance the project would have almost no chance," Chancey said.

He said if at some future date federal funds become available on a larger share, residents of Twin Falls would have an opportunity to again vote on joining the region, but for now, he said the county apparently wants no part of the cost of a new regional airport.

Mayor Frank Feldtman said the election supports the belief of city officials that the Twin Falls City-County Airport is adequate to serve the area needs at the present time and in the foreseeable future. He said as long as the facility meets the demands of the air carriers there should be no problem.

Feldtman said he would never underestimate the action of the Idaho legislature and it is certainly possible a bill could be passed making it mandatory all counties in the region become part of the airport region and support a regional facility.

"We will have to wait until that time comes," he said, "and make a determination if this takes place as to the future of the Twin Falls airport."

Mayor Feldtman also said he does not believe Twin Falls residents would support a bond issue for a regional airport and said if federal funds become available on a basis of as much as 90 per cent there is a possibility Twin Falls could accept the responsibility of sharing in the 10 per cent local financing. "If it could be done on a cash basis without a bond issue, I think we could accept it," he said.

TF rural, town vote down port

TWIN FALLS — Residents of Twin Falls County voted nearly three to one against participating in a regional airport authority Tuesday with the final unofficial count showing 2,391 yes and 6,954 no votes.

This is more than 74 per cent opposition.

In the 27 precincts of Twin Falls City, the count was 1,554 for and 4,496 against, while the remaining part of the county voted 835 for and 2,458 against. The seven Bull precincts voted 346 for and 628 against while Filer's three precincts voted 95 in favor and 457 against.

In Kimberly, two precincts voted 164 for and 318 against the authority. Rural precincts in the county and their vote for and against the airport authority: Marea, 18 and 82; Deep Creek, 17 and 88; Murtaugh, 44 and 120; Allendale 12 and 98; Hansen, 52 and 143; Hallister 22 and 125; Rock Creek, 11 and 81; Clover, 10 and 82; and Castleford 41 and 140.

Jerome mayor glad at airport passage

JEROME — Jerome Mayor Jack Russell expressed jubilation over results of Tuesday's airport election in which five counties approved the proposal to establish a regional airport authority.

"I'm very happy. I think we won't see a regional airport next year or the year after but in future years they will get to work and we'll have something this county is going to need if it's going to grow. I don't think an airport bond election would pass at the present time, but I don't look for a bond election until future years."

John Van Orman, Jerome County Commission chairman, said, "I don't know what the interim board's feelings are but now that the regional airport authority has been established, it can now levy up to one mill in each of the five counties which approved it."

"No use crying over spilled milk. I don't want to start a fight with the interim board. It will have to be its decision on whether or not it will have enough revenue from the five counties to proceed. There still are many legal questions I'd like to have answered since so much of this was based on Twin Falls County's participation before I make any further comment," he said.

Cattle sale slated

FILER — The largest mixed breed bull sale in the northwest will begin at 11 a.m. Friday at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds at Filer.

This year's annual Filer bull sale will be the 32nd to be sponsored by the Idaho Cattlemen's Association. About 25 bulls are consigned.

Breeds include horned and polled Herefords, Angus, Red

Angus, Shorthorns and Charolais.

Grading for the bulls will be Thursday when champion and grand champion bulls will be selected, according to Jim Falkner, Bliss, sale manager.

Officials at the fairgrounds said during the past 28 years of the sale gross sales of bulls has amounted to over $3.6 million.

Eden man injured in wreck

TWIN FALLS — An Eden man was seriously injured early today when he was struck and crushed between two cars on Addison Avenue East about four and a half miles east of Twin Falls.

Twin Falls County sheriff's officers said Evan Edward Kohtz, 26, was traveling east on Addison when his car stalled about 3:15 a.m. today. Kohtz got out of his car, raised the hood of the vehicle and was standing outside the car near the driver's side of the vehicle when a car approached from the east.

The west-bound car, driven by Larry Wayne Kuhn, 35, Twin Falls, crossed the center line, officers said, and slammed into Kohtz and the stalled vehicle, catching Kohtz between the two cars.

Kohtz was thrown about 50 feet through the air and skidded another 25 feet as the Kuhn vehicle broke free and skidded about 200 feet down the road and off into the north borrow pit.

Kohtz was taken by ambulance to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital where his left leg was amputated. He was reported to be in fair condition this morning.

Kuhn received only minor injuries.

Jerome man leaps from truck fire

JEROME — An employe of Magic Valley Growers, Grant Duncan, Jerome, escaped injury Tuesday afternoon when he jumped from a burning truck.

He told officers the vehicle "exploded" as he applied brakes at the railroad crossing west of Jerome and became engulfed in flames. Duncan rolled down an embankment.

The Jerome Fire Department was called at 12:30 p.m. and brought the fire under control before any other damage occurred. Investigation into the cause of the fire is continuing, firemen said. Company officials said there may have been a leak in the oil drum and the explosion was caused by a backfire as Duncan slowed at the crossing.

Snow coats Sawtooths

SHOSHONE — The Idaho Highway Department said Shoshone reports some snowfall in parts of Magic Valley.

An inch of snow is reported at Galena and two inches at Stanley. Snow also was reported to be falling in the Juniper area of the interstate. There is generally a wet roadway surface in these areas, the department reports, while elsewhere in the valley dry roads are reported although overcast skies indicate rain or snow may fall sometime today.

Saturday Halloween requested

SHOSHONE — School and city officials in Shoshone suggest young children who want to trick or treat for Halloween do so early Saturday evening because the holiday falls on Sunday this year.

High school principal, Carl Kinney said the annual high school Halloween public carnival will be from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Saturday at the Lincoln School auditorium.

Mayor Ellwood Werry said because the high school is sponsoring its carnival on Saturday this seems the appropriate time for trick or treating for small children.

He discouraged older children from the activity, however, he also urged all citizens to use caution while driving in the city Saturday to avoid any accidents involving the youngsters.

Candidate forum set

KETCHUM — The video-tape recording of the recent "Know Your City Council Candidates" forum will be broadcast Thursday at 7:30 p.m. over Ketchum Cable-Television Channel 6.

The public service program is about two hours long. It also will be broadcast on election eve, Nov. 1, at 7:30 p.m.

HOPE sets up in new home

JEROME — Help Other People Everywhere — HOPE — will have a new home again, according to Mrs. Julia Sloat, an active member of the organization. Mrs. Sloat said that HOPE must move again and will be doing so this Saturday with the help of some of the high school students.

This week and part of last week was spent fixing up the new building that is located in the 100 block of East Main next to the Western Auto storage building, Mrs. Sloat said. She noted that volunteers from the Jerome Jaycees and Towle's 70 Station, under the direction of Mike Morgan, lowered and put up a new ceiling at the new location.

The old one had previously been removed by the members of the Jerome Choralaires group.

She said members of the high school shop worked to fix shelves, benches, etc., for the clothing articles.

Country musicians' show nets $2,500

TWIN FALLS — More than $2,500 was realized from the country music benefit Tuesday evening at the College of northern Idaho Auditorium.

Proceeds from the Southern Idaho Country Music Association-sponsored program will go to Mrs. Charles W. (Arton) Crane, Twin Falls, whose life depends on the use of a dialysis machine. Mrs. Crane has renal failure and must rely on the kidney machine nine hours a day three times a week.

Top country music entertainers from throughout Magic Valley performed for a capacity crowd.

Among those volunteering their time and talent for the show were the Missills and Penny; Hits and Misses; Chuck Daniels and the Nevada Gamblers, Walden Brothers and Linda Wells, Ray Crumbliss and the Saints, Young-ang, KART Hands, Slim Dossey and the Gem State Gems and Frank Hodge.

The original members of the Saints, Jim Burk, George Serr and Bill Freeman, were featured in several numbers with Ray Crumbliss, and Jack Miller, Frank Carroll and Charlie Crane, three of the original members of Holly Haufburg's Double II Buckaroos, presented some old-time favorites.

During the Walden Brothers portion of the show they brought out two up-and-coming entertainers, their young sons, Jeff and Scott Walden.

Paul man escapes from burning home

PAUL — A 50-year-old Paul man in serious condition from burns received when his house was demolished early this morning by fire.

The Paul Volunteer Fire Department was called at 1:30 a.m. to the home of Walt Fry, North First East Avenue in Paul. The one-bedroom frame house was on fire when he got out of the house. He lives alone. Cause of the fire is unknown. Firemen stayed at the scene about two hours.

They were called out earlier Tuesday night when a portable welder caught fire at the Paul Sugar factory about 10:15 p.m.

That blaze was contained in about an hour.

Fry was taken to Minidoka Memorial Hospital.

Air pollution 126 index

The pollution reading was taken by the staff of the South Central Health District at the Twin Falls city hall. The reading is reported as the number of micrograms of particulate material per cubic meter of air for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today.

Federal pollution regulations say pollution levels should be kept below 75 micrograms every 24-hour period and should not be permitted to rise above 760 micrograms in even a short period of time.

Forecast

Today: Excellent
Tonight: Poor
Tomorrow: Good

The forecast provided by the Idaho Department of Health indicates the ability of the atmosphere to disperse pollution. Burning is permitted by law should be curtailed when there is a possibility of dispersing pollutants.

Sculptor to talk at Burley dinner

BURLEY — Suzanne Silvercrucys, the internationally famous Belgian-American sculptor, will be the dinner speaker at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Ponderosa Inn for the Burley-Rupert Knife and Fork Club. Her subject will be "Self Expression."

A program which is quite different and definitely on the distinguished side, will be offered by the guest speaker for the club members. She is truly a master of the fine arts and masterful, too, in the manner in which she combines speaking and sculpting.

"There is nothing, 'arty' nor 'long haired' about Mrs. Silvercrucys. She is a charming, polished gentlewoman who has not lost the common touch, and she knows well how to handle an audience; any audience.

Many excellent tributes have been paid to her work as a sculptor, but she has never received a more sincere one than was paid to her by the art editor of the New York Times Sunday Magazine section when he chose her figure, "Reaching For Freedom," to illustrate a full page article by the distinguished British historian, Arnold J. Toynbee, which was in the issue of Oct. 21, 1951.

It has been observed by critics of charm from Petronius to J. M. Barrie, that a really delightful woman "has what it takes." Warm, vital and alive, Mrs. Silvercrucys is a showman par excellence. Her audiences are fired by the vigor which is hers and the timeliness and importance of her observations.

"Art has no nationality," says Mrs. Silvercrucys, "no frontier, no boundaries, art belongs to all the people, all the time, People of every creed, color and race. It speaks a universal language."

Born a Belgian, the youngest daughter of Baron Silvercrucys, late President of the Belgium Supreme Court, she came to this country during World War I to escape the dangers of war-torn Belgium.

Quite by accident she made her debut as a speaker while still a student.

At the annual United States

Press Banquet, being sponsored by the Poor Richard's Club in Philadelphia, the scheduled speaker, Secretary of War, Baker, failed to appear and young Suzanne, who was in the visitor's gallery wearing a Belgian costume, was asked to tell of her country's plight. The dramatic appeal made by this young girl was such a sensation that the Belgian Embassy sent her on a speaking tour of the United States. During the two years which she traveled throughout this nation and Canada, she raised nearly a million dollars for her native land.

Later upon making her home here in the United States, Suzanne Silvercrucys undertook her career as a sculptor. She studied at the Yale School of Fine Arts and completed the five year course in three years.

Hard times for textile worker

ROANOKE, Ala. (UPI)—For Roxetta Knight and a good many others in this sleepy town in east Alabama, there's always been only one way to make a living—in a textile mill.

The work is tedious and it doesn't pay well. But it's better than not working. That point was driven home the past few months when more than 1,300 workers at Roanoke's two big mills were laid off.

Roxetta Knight, who started working at Handley Mill 45 years ago when she was 14, is dipping into lifetime savings to buy groceries and pay medical bills sustained by her husband, Bill, who retired with diabetes and heart trouble in 1968 after working 45 years as a spinning fixer.

"We don't buy anything we don't need," said Mrs. Knight, who remains cheerful despite hard times. "I haven't bought any clothes since I was laid off."

The Knights and many others started scrimping last November when Handley Mill, in operation since 1901, went bankrupt, largely as a result of low-cost textile imports from Asia. That threw 840 persons

Space agency plans for mini-labs in orbit

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—The space agency hopes to build mini-labs to give scientists a place to work in orbit in the late 1970's and early 1980's until a full-scale, permanent space station can be developed.

The small laboratories, each called a RAM, for research and application module, would be carried to mid from orbit inside the cargo bay of the proposed space shuttle orbital transport.

As now planned, most of the RAMs would remain attached to the shuttle in orbit to give several scientists and engineers an opportunity to perform experiments for six or seven days in space.

An individual scientist could carry his own experimental gear to the shuttle, install it in a RAM, fly in space with it and perform his research. After his return to earth, the researcher would leave the shuttle port with his scientific equipment and data in hand.

Another type of RAM would be a more complex, automated satellite that would be launched from the shuttle and serviced every three or four months by technicians operating from a shuttle craft. Such a man-tended free-flying RAM might be a large astronomical observatory that would stay in orbit for a year before being returned to earth for overhaul.

The RAMs would be sized to fit in the cargo bay of the space shuttle and would be 14 feet in diameter and up to 58 feet long. Each module would weigh no more than 32,000 pounds.

The RAM would be the first manned payload for the space shuttle, which is still in the preliminary design phase. The shuttle is envisioned as a reusable, winged rocket that would take off vertically and return to horizontal airport landings. It could start flying in 1978.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) had hoped to start final design and development this winter, but this has been delayed at least six months because of budget restrictions.

The mini-labs also are in the preliminary design stage and are not yet fully approved NASA projects. The General Dynamics Corp., San Diego, Calif., was awarded a $2 million, 15-month RAM design contract last May.

As it now stands, the last fully approved and funded NASA manned spaceflight project is the Skylab space station set to fly for eight months in 1973. It will serve as a medical and experimental laboratory to see how well man can live and work in weightless space for long periods of time.

Parade set on Saturday

WENDELL — Annual Halloween costume parade will be held Saturday night in Wendell.

All spoons, goblins and other characters are to gather at Marshall's and Mel's Big O Tire store on South Idaho Street at 7 p.m. Police Chief Dale Bunn, chairman, said participants must be in costume to be eligible for treats.

Prizes will be awarded in three categories—pre-school, first through third grade and for fourth to sixth graders.

Bunn suggests the younger children be accompanied by a parent or responsible older brother or sister as a safety precaution.

The event is sponsored by the Wendell Chamber of Commerce which has done this for several years to provide wholesome entertainment on Halloween as well as create goodwill toward the merchants and help avoid accidents and vandalism in the community, Bunn said.

The treats are furnished by Wendell merchants and prepared by members of the Wendell chapter of Future Homemakers of America under supervision of Dorothy Barni, adviser.

Bunn said children will follow the fire truck down Idaho street to the parking lot of the Idaho First National Bank where the judging will be done and treats distributed by members of the Wendell City and Rural Volunteer Fire Departments.

Report cards sent

WENDELL — Report cards will be sent to the parents of students in the Wendell school district on Thursday, said Will Spalding, principal, but this will be only the first step in the districts' yearly testing program.

During the week freshmen will take the differential aptitude test which is used as a guidance tool. The test is to measure achievement that is interpreted through a data system to be used by Dale Tilley, counselor, to strengthen the weak spots of the individual in areas such as math and English.

The Idaho Department of Employment will give a general aptitude test to the seniors who plan to go directly into the world of work on Thursday.

Later in the year the sophomores will take the Iowa tests and various college entrance tests which are only a facet of the guidance program of the Wendell schools, said Spalding.

Rare woodpecker sighted in swamp

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI)—The ivory-billed woodpecker, its presence undocumented for more than 30 years, has been sighted and photographed in the southeastern United States, a representative of the National Audubon Society reported Monday.

William M. Campbell, president of the local chapter of the Audubon Society, told United Press International the society has "documented proof" of the existence of the bird.

Campbell's announcement was confirmed by Robert Manns, southeastern representative for the society in Atlanta. He said a pair of the birds had been sighted and a photograph taken of one of them recently.

Campbell and Manns refused to reveal the location of the birds, explaining they feared an influx of hundreds of bird watchers if the site were made known.

Last year officials of the Audubon Society made a recording of the mating call of the bird in the Santee Swamp in South Carolina. However, the woodpecker itself was never observed at that time.

"We can safely say the ivory-billed woodpecker is not extinct," said Campbell. "We have a photograph of it and we know that it was observed jointly by at least two highly qualified observers."

Plan drive

BETTY LOU TROUNSON, left, and Ann Hagerman, moderator of the United Presbyterian Church youth, hold posters for a house-to-house "Trick or Treat for UNICEF" at Wendell. The event will be held Nov. 7 instead of the traditional Halloween.

Church youth to join in UNICEF drive Nov. 7

WENDELL — Youth groups of both the Presbyterian and Methodist churches will join on Nov. 7 to "Trick or Treat for UNICEF."

Ann Hagerman, moderator for the United Presbyterian youth in Wendell, said members will meet at 7 p.m. Nov. 7 at the Presbyterian church. The event will be held a week later than usual because a retreat is planned for this weekend.

After the youths canvass the community they will go back to the church for refreshments.

Wendell residents have supported the UNICEF yearly project to provide funds for food, health care and even vocational training to the world's underprivileged children, Miss Hagerman said. She asks that persons turn on their porch lights to welcome the youthful solicitors. Groups in other areas have held neighborhood fairs, given programs in schools and found many new ways to help promote UNICEF which has aided more than three and one-half million children throughout the world.

Party set tonight at Mormon church

WENDELL — A Halloween party is planned for the teenagers of the community tonight at 8 p.m. in the LDS Cultural Hall, said Robert Smith, counselor in the presidency. The event is sponsored by the Wendell Ward M.I.A. and will have a western theme with an old fashioned barn dance. Smith stated there will be no admission but all attending should come in costume but not masks. Music will be recordings and there will be square dancing as well as other types of dances. Refreshments will be served. The hall will be decorated under the direction of Mrs. Don Hillis, activity counselor of the M.I.A.

Meet

WENDELL — Members of the Wendell City Council will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday in the city hall. Anyone having business to discuss with the council should contact Mayor Eugene Soares.

Valley Briefs

WENDELL — Mrs. Audrey Schiffer and Mary Holsinger will serve as hostesses for the monthly meeting of the Mary-Martha Circle of the United Presbyterian Church to be held at the Schiffer home at 2 p.m. Thursday.

WENDELL — Mrs. Glen Parsons will give the lesson for the October meeting at 2 p.m. Thursday for the Ruth-Naomi Circle at the United Methodist Church. Mrs. Cora Prith and Mrs. Emma Andersen will serve as co-hostesses.

The blonde performer and Larsen were married in Las Vegas 11 years ago and are the parents of one son, Erik, 10.

Firm ghost writes collegians' papers

DENVER (UPI) — It won't be long before kids need only a credit card to get their term papers or theses written. Right now they can do it with cash and the services of a fledgling firm known as Research and Educational Associates.

The company began ghost-writing student papers five months ago, and business has been booming. Already officials of the firm are mapping out plans to expand across the nation.

Things are going so good that the company plans to begin offering BankAmericard and Master Charge service in November.

"That way, their parents can pay for the papers, and the kids won't have to cut into their beer money," explained Larry Groeger, 20, one of five stockholders who launched the firm.

Groeger, a native of Castle Rock, Colo., said the company expected about a $100,000 volume of business during the current academic year.

He said the firm has contracted with business managers to open offices in Lansing, Mich.; Cleveland; Chicago, and Washington, D.C. A business manager is being sought for the Tucson, Ariz., area.

Groeger said the firm, which he thinks eventually will become the first nationwide academic ghost-writing service in America, already has sold term papers, masters theses and doctoral dissertations to more than 500 Denver-area students.

So far there has been only one complaint, Groeger said, and that came from a graduate student who bought a paper for a philosophy seminar.

"The subject was a very sophisticated one," Groeger said. "He didn't understand it, and others in the seminar shot him down."

Groeger, who is a student at Metropolitan State College in Denver, said he sees nothing unethical about the work. "People in politics and business make mutual agreements in the form of so-called favors for people," he said. "Not that there's anything immoral or unethical in this as a way of transacting business. That's just the way the world operates."

Charles H. Johnson, who serves as president of the firm, agrees. He said it was a working agreement and students pay from $3 to $5 a page, depending upon the ease with which the material can be researched and written.

"We provide the research and a format," Johnson said. "What they (the students) do with it is their business. Frankly, the ethics of the situation don't bother me."

"A very similar service is provided by the Library of Congress for senators and representatives in Washington. We provide much the same service, only we provide it to students."

Funds spent by the U.S. Department of Agriculture are often used for non-farm programs such as free lunches at schools in urban areas.

School chief outlines value of kindergarten

WENDELL — Kindergarten programs are important in the over-all district educational system as a transition for the young child from home to school, Supt. Lawrence LaRue said today.

In reviewing the district's purpose for participating in the state sponsored kindergarten program, Supt. LaRue said the kindergarten program provides orientation for first grade students and eliminates at least nine weeks adjustment time for the first grade pupils.

LaRue said the Wendell School District was given the opportunity to participate in the state program and the school administration and Hub City PTA made a joint effort to survey the number of potential kindergarten students within the district.

Letters were sent to parents of 48 students asking if they would be interested in public kindergarten classes if they became available. Of the 48, 44 responded "yes" for a 91.6 per cent affirmative reply of the eligible children.

LaRue said Wendell did have classroom facilities and furnishings for a kindergarten program but could not have gone ahead with a full-time kindergarten had federal funds not been made available and had the community not provided parental assistance.

LaRue said estimated local cost of the program will not exceed $500. The district has received a number of requests from parents, living outside of the district asking their children be enrolled but LaRue said the present teacher, whose salary is provided by federal funds, has two full classes of 23 children each and enrollment must be restricted to district residents.

The superintendent said the program, now one week old, seems to be well accepted by children and parents. A classroom was made available in the elementary school and surplus furnishings from first grade classes are being used by the pre-schoolers.

LaRue said the Wendell district, like other districts, is hoping for additional vocational programs depending on availability of other outside funds.

Pool business looking good

By LEROY POPE UPI Business Writer NEW YORK (UPI)—The swimming pool industry, usually a reliable economic barometer, seems to be pointing toward a business recovery this year.

Sales of pools of all types, which dropped to 82,500 in 1970 from 91,000 in 1969, reportedly are heading for 95,000 more this year.

The figures come from the publishers of the industry's leading trade papers, Swimming Pool Weekly and Pool News.

The biggest gains reported are in the in-ground vinyl lined pools, but concrete pool sales are doing well today as are the panlike above-ground vinyl lined pools. There probably are about two and a half times as many of these children's splashers installed as in-ground pools, but it takes ten of them to represent the same investment as an in-ground pool.

The recovery in swimming pool sales in the face of spotty business conditions is due to several cumulative factors, people in the industry say. They are:

—Continuation of the trend towards recreation at home to avoid jammed highway traffic and the rising cost of vacation trips.

—A growing fear of lake and stream pollution—belief that it's safer to swim at home.

—A push by the banks this year to finance sales of swimming pools. There are relatively high-rate loans, much easier to write than mortgages, for example. When the vinyl liner pools first came out, bank loan officials tended to look askance at them, but they have held up so well in use that the banks now are willing to finance their sales, according to Cascade Industries, Inc., which originated them.

—The prices of swimming pools, have not gone up nearly so much as the inflation of money, so many people consider them a good buy.

—The vinyl liner pool, which is at least $2,000 cheaper than the concrete pool, has created a big blue collar home-owner market. The pool can be refilled for $300 after it has been used for years if something goes wrong.

—Widespread belief that a swimming pool adds at least 10 per cent more than it costs to the value of a house.

Whether or not these beliefs are correct, residential sales are the fastest growing part of the pool business. The best statistics available indicate that, in 1948, there were only 2,500 pools in private homes out of a total of 10,800. By the end of 1970, residential pools had sprung to 777,700—more than three-quarters of the 1,065,000 in use.

Big backlog

MILLION POUNDS of cargo bound for McMurdo Station for Operation Deep Freeze 1972 in Antarctica have piled up as airfield at Christchurch, New Zealand, after total whiteout on frozen continent. After week of operation, blowing snowfall of 20 inches piled into 15 foot deep drifts causing zero visibility and halting flight in and out of McMurdo, located on Ross Ice Shelf. (UPI)

Why LBJ quit

By Lyndon B. Johnson

THE VANTAGE POINT — Part XI — The Weight Is Lifted

When I took the oath as President in January 1965 to begin my first full term in office, I felt that it would be my last, and this feeling grew stronger with every passing week in the White House.

At the end of the first year of my administration, I was reasonably certain that by the time my term was over I would have gone as far as I could.

Two hospitalizations for surgery while I was in the White House had sharpened my apprehensions about my health. My heart attack of 1955 seemed well behind me, but I was conscious that it was part of the background of my life — just as I was conscious of my family's history of stroke and heart disease. I did not fear death so much as I feared disability.

Whenever I walked through the Red Room and saw the portrait of Woodrow Wilson hanging there, I thought of him stretched out upstairs in the White House, powerless to move, with the machinery of the American government in disarray around him.

I have very strong feelings about work. When it is there to be done, I do it. And the work of the Presidency is demanding and unrelenting. It is always there to be done. Of all the 1,886 nights I was President, there were not many when I got to sleep before 1 or 2 A.M., and there were few mornings when I didn't wake up by 6 or 6:30. It became a question of how much the physical constitution could take.

I frankly did not believe in 1968 that I could survive another four years of the long hours and unremitting tensions I had just gone through.

These were considerations I had lived with from the beginning. Others had developed in the course of events. On that last morning in March, as I moved toward one of the most significant hours of my life, several factors relating to the state of the nation fed into the decisions I was preparing to announce.

First, we faced the absolute necessity of an increase in taxes. For two years the Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers had been stressing the need for a tax increase in the strongest terms. I knew that the stability of the dollar and the economic health of the nation and the world demanded an increase at the earliest possible time.

I also knew that the likelihood of obtaining the necessary Republican votes to propel a tax bill through Congress, particularly in an election year, would be close to zero if I were a candidate for reelection.

Headlines screamed the decision

Second, we faced the possibility of new riots and turmoil in the cities in the summer of 1968. We had experienced widespread disturbances the previous summer, many of them exploited, I believe, by men who took advantage of distressed people to advance their own political causes.

The principal responsibility for dealing with such disorders rests with the nation's mayors and Governors, but in a few cities in 1967 I had been asked to invoke Presidential authority and send in federal troops. It seemed likely that I might face the same decisions again.

I did not want the slightest suspicion to arise — in Congress, the media, or any segment of the public — that I had responded with too little or too much, too soon or too late, with one eye on the safety of our citizens and the other on Election Day.

Finally, there was the question of Vietnam. I had been preparing a speech on this subject to deliver to the American people late in March. In that speech I wanted to restate our position in Vietnam as clearly as possible — why we were there, what we hoped to achieve. I wanted to put the enemy's Tet offensive in proper perspective, and now that the offensive had been blunted and there was a chance that the enemy might respond favorably, I wanted to announce our new initiative for peace.

If we were going to take the risk of a bombing pause, I felt I should make it clear that my decision had been made without political considerations. I wanted that decision to be understood by the enemy and by everyone everywhere as a serious and sincere effort to find a road to peace.

The most persuasive way to get this across, I believed, would be to couple my announcement of a bombing halt with the statement that I would not be a candidate for re-election.

I also hoped that the combined announcement would accomplish something else. The issue of Vietnam had created divisions and hostilities among Americans, as I had feared. I wanted to heal some of those wounds and restore unity to the nation. This speech might help to do that. I deeply hoped so.

For several years Lady Bird and I had spoken many times about our plans to leave the White House at the end of my first full term. Her position had remained perfectly clear and consistent since she had first expressed it to me in the spring of 1964: She did not want me to be a candidate in 1968.

As the months wore on, we talked it over with our daughters and their husbands. The girls' reactions were divided. Luci did not want me to run. She insisted that she wanted a living father. Lynda's response was more complex. As a daughter, she said, she would prefer that I not run, but as a citizen she hoped I would. Later, when her husband, Marine Captain Charles Robb, was under orders to go to Vietnam, her reaction as a citizen superseded her reaction as a daughter.

Late in March, while work on my forthcoming speech on Vietnam progressed, I asked Horace Busby to make a new try at drafting the announcement. I told him I wanted a statement that would be as clear and effective as he and I together could make it. Busby sent me his new version on Saturday, March 30. I was in the Cabinet Room going over the final draft of the rest of the address, which was scheduled to be given the following day, March 31.

Our daughter Lynda had been flying all night from California on the "Red Eye Special." She had just said good-by to her husband, Chuck, who was leaving for duty in Vietnam. Mrs. Johnson and I got up early and were waiting at the south entrance of the White House to welcome her home. When she arrived, a little after 7 A.M., that 'I frankly did not believe I could survive ...'

'Why, she asked, was her husband going away to fight, and maybe die, for people who did not even want to be protected ...'

Sunday morning, we all went up together to the family quarters on the second floor of the Executive Mansion.

Lynda was tired, and she seemed lonely and bewildered. War and separation were cruel intrusions into her young life. The divisions in the country had left their mark on her, as they had on her mother and her sister, Luci. Lynda had been reading about those demonstrators and critics who looked on such sacrifices as hers and Chuck's as meaningless, or worse.

The hurt that had been building up inside her was now released in a flood of tears. Why, she asked, was her husband going away to fight, and maybe die, for people who did not even want to be protected? It was a question that might have been asked by any young woman who had just seen her husband off to Vietnam. I wanted to comfort her, and I could not.

That was the way the day started — March 31, 1968 — a day that I profoundly hoped would mark the beginning of the end of the war that had brought so much pain and anguish to the people of my country.

That afternoon I worked again on the final draft of my speech. I read the text of the speech aloud — without the ending. At 8:10 P.M. less than an hour before I was scheduled to go on the air, I turned the final paragraphs over to be put on the Tele Prompter.

Troop morale a factor

In those final months, as the announcement of my decision neared, I believe only one thing could have changed my mind — an indication that the men in Vietnam would regard it as unfair or unwise. I asked General Westmoreland to come home in November 1967, and I put the question directly to him.

As we sat in the family living room on the second floor of the White House one evening after dinner, I asked him what the effect on troop morale would be if I announced that I would not run for another term. Would the men think the Commander in Chief who had sent them to the battlefield had let them down?

General Westmoreland looked for a few moments at the windows facing out on the rose garden. Then he turned to me. "Mr. President," he said, "I do not believe so."

Measuring his words as he went along, he said that he felt most of the men in Vietnam would completely understand the decision. Westmoreland was a man I could trust, with decisions or anything else, and he never, as far as I know, even told his wife. If he did tell her, she kept the confidence as well as he did.

Blue's first half of year earns Young award

NEW YORK (UPI)—A brilliant first half-season, when he won 17 and lost only three, was the decisive factor in the selection today of Vida Blue of the Oakland Athletics as the American League Cy Young award winner for the 1971 baseball season. Blue, at 22, is the youngest pitcher ever to win the Award, which went to him by the balloting of 24-man committees of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The writers gave 34 first-place votes to Blue, nine to Mickey Lolich of the Detroit Tigers and one to Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox. Blue's performance prior to the

All-Star break saw him include six shutouts in his 17 wins, and send the A's off and running to the AL West championship. In the final half of the season, however, Vida was only 7-5, tiring under the strain of pitching every fourth day and, perhaps reacting to the enormous publicity he received—publicly which centered on the likelihood of his becoming a 30-game winner.

As Blue tailed off, Lolich came on strong, and posted a fine 25-14 mark and a 2.92 earned run average. The Tiger completed 20 of the 45 games he started. The 31-year-old Lolich had been 14-6 at midseason.

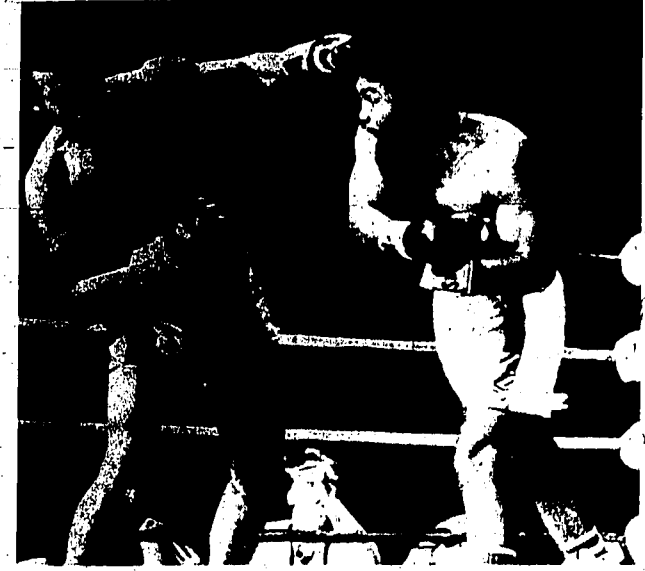

Wood, a former relief pitcher, was 9-4 at midseason, but came down the second half with a 13-7 mark. He completed half of his 44 starts and wound up with a 1.91 ERA, second only to Blue's 1.82.

Blue also led the league in shutouts with eight, one more than Wood. Yida had 301 strikeouts, second to Lolich's 308.

In the AL pennant playoff, Blue lost the opening game to the Baltimore Orioles.

The Orioles, who had four 20 game winners on their staff, had to settle for fourth place in the Young Award, which went to Dave McNally with eight points. Dave was followed by Kansas City's Dick Drango and California's Andy Messersmith, each of whom received one point.

Under the voting system, the panel casts votes for three men with five points for first, three for second and one for third. Blue was named on all 24 ballots, accumulating 98 points while Lolich, left off one ballot, garnered 85 points. Wood finished with 23.

Martin surprised that award selectors overlooked Lolich

By MILTON RICHMAN UPI Sports Writer NEW YORK (UPI)—Billy Martin has to be a little shocked.

Not so much by the vote for Communist China as by the vote for Vida Blue.

The spectacular 22-year-old Oakland left-hander may be the American League's latest recipient of the Cy Young award as far as everyone else is concerned, but Billy Martin keeps a little book as manager of the Detroit Tigers and in that book the Cy Young winner is his own lefty, Mickey Lolich, not Vida Blue.

Mickey Lolich won 25 ball games for the Tigers. That was one more than Vida Blue won for the A's and Lolich predicted he'd finish second to the Oakland flash in the Cy Young balloting and he was absolutely right.

Billy Martin, on the other hand, was a Mickey Lolich man all the way. He felt his man should win the award and he told that to anybody who'd listen.

I distinctly remember him telling me that back on Sept. 5. The reason I recall the date was because the Tigers were here for a three-game series with the Yankees and Lolich was going especially well at the time.

He had thrown a six-hit shutout at Cleveland in his last start, won three of his last four and his record at that time was 22-10 compared with Blue's 23-7.

Lolich told me he didn't expect to win the Cy Young Award for a number of reasons. He said if he got a telephone call telling him he had won he'd have to figure somebody was playing a joke on him.

Martin, who had seen us talking, button-holed me afterward and said to me:

"Lolich deserves to win the Cy Young Award and I'll give you some reasons. He's going to pitch more innings and win more games than Blue. You watch and see. He's gonna pass him soon."

When I went upstairs to the pressbox that day I wrote a column setting forth what Mickey Lolich had to say about the Cy Young Award and what Billy Martin had to say about it. Then I had my say, and what I said was that no matter what Billy Martin said, Vida Blue was going to win the Cy Young Award.

As it turned out, Billy Martin was right on two counts. His man won more ball games than Vida Blue and worked more innings. Lolich's 376 innings pitched in fact represent the most innings worked by any major league pitcher since they livened up the ball in 1920.

The day after Martin spoke with me, Lolich beat Washington for his 23rd victory and eight days after that he beat Boston for his 24th. That actually put him ahead of Blue in victories and created something of a ground swell for Lolich because from Sept. 5, on the A's fireballer failed to win any of his next four starts.

You heard a lot of talk about Blue's September "slump." Let's look at it a little closer. Blue was 10-3 on Aug. 25 and from then on he was 5-5. But here's a point generally overlooked. On Aug. 21, Lolich was 20-9 and after that, you know what he was? Same as Blue, 5-5.

Under the voting system, the panel casts votes for three men with five points for first, three for second and one for third. Blue was named on all 24 ballots, accumulating 98 points while Lolich, left off one ballot, garnered 85 points. Wood finished with 23.

During the World Series, Billy Martin happened to run into me, and when everybody was running around talking Roberto Clemente and Steve Blass, here was Billy Never-Give-Up still talking Mickey Lolich.

"After all I told you," he said going back to Sept. 5, "you went and wrote Blue was gonna win the award anyway. You didn't listen to me. How are you gonna look when they come out and announce Lolich is the winner?"

I reminded Martin he had told me earlier the Tigers were going to finish first in their division this year. I also reminded him I had taken his word and picked them to win.

For a moment that stopped Billy Martin. Not for long though.

"You gotta admit," he came right back, "we battled 'em like hell."

Bucks belt Baltimore

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—The Milwaukee Bucks rebounded from a slow start Tuesday night and crushed an injury-riddled Baltimore Bullets team 120-90 in a National Basketball Association game.

The win was the seventh without a loss for the Bucks this season. Baltimore dropped to a 1-5 mark.

The Bullets jumped to a quick 4-0 lead before the Bucks could get untracked but Milwaukee spurred from a 14-14 tie to a 22-14 lead and from there on it was all Milwaukee.

Beaty, Stars thump Dallas

DALLAS (UPI)—Zelmo Beaty pumped in 32 points to lead the Utah Stars to a 131-116 victory over the Dallas Chaparrals in ABA action Tuesday night.

Beaty, who also was the game's top rebounder with 14, got the Stars rolling in the first half by hitting 19 points. The Stars pulled away in the second quarter by outscoring Dallas 41-27, and the Roadrunners were never able to catch up.

Champion TKOs Brennan in 13th

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Vicente Rondon of Venezuela successfully defended his World Boxing Association light heavyweight title Tuesday night with a 13th-round TKO over Gomo Brennan of the Bahamas.

Referee Eddie Eckerd stopped the scheduled 15 rounder between the 12th and 13th rounds after Dr. Theodore Struhl of the Miami Boxing Commission examined the closed left eye of Brennan. The eye was pounded shut by Rondon's repeated uppercuts. There were no knockdowns in the bout.

Rondon, 175, retained his share of the title with the use of hard right uppercuts and quick footwork.

Rondon is recognized as the light heavyweight champion by the World Boxing Association which stripped Bob Foster of the crown for failure to meet the top challengers. Foster is still recognized as champion in countries not under WBA jurisdiction.

Rondon displayed a devastating right uppercut from in close which Brennan could never solve. Brennan, 167 1/2 tried bobbing and weaving but from the time the eye swelled up in the fifth round, Rondon kept poking at it.

The fight against the taller and quicker Venezuelan seemed to be a puzzle to Brennan from the start.

Brennan found that he could not make up the two-inch advantage in reach Rondon possessed. From in close, the variety of right uppercuts and jabs from the Latin fighter kept Brennan from staging an offense of his own.

With a large contingent of his native Bahamian fans on hand, dancing up and down in the aisles when their man rallied with flurries of long-range punches, Brennan rallied only in the second, seventh and 10th rounds. In those rounds, he was able to back off a bit and even slightly stagger Rondon with his right hand.

Dr. Struhl said Brennan's closed left eye was too severe an injury for him to continue. "The left eye is swollen completely shut," he said. "He can't see out of it. Out of his right eye, his vision was maybe five to 10 per cent."

'Skins swap for McNeil

NEW YORK (UPI)—George Allen got rid of three more draft choices just four hours before the 4 p.m. trading deadline Tuesday for the National Football League this season.

Allen, the Washington Redskins coach who's revitalized the team by trading draft choices for veterans, obtained injured wide receiver Clifton McNeil from the New York Giants for three draft picks.

The Giants obtained a fifth, sixth and seventh round selection from the Redskins for McNeil, who's caught 18 passes for 209 yards this season.

Actually, the Giants are obtaining the fifth and seventh round selection originally belonging to Los Angeles and the sixth-round choice by New Orleans. Altep had obtained the three selections in prior deals.

McNeil is suffering from bruised ribs and the Giants think he will be unable to play for at least two weeks. But Allen, who contacted the Giants about McNeil's availability, is aware of the injury and there is no conditional clause to the deal.

Washington was interested in a wide receiver because Charley Taylor is suffering from a broken ankle.

The Giants plan to start Don Herrmann, who has been sidelined much of the season with a broken collarbone, in McNeil's spot.

Giants coach Alex Webster, claiming "I'm a great believer in the draft," said he felt the trade would help the club next year. The Giants are a bit thin in next year's draft because they've already traded their first two picks for next season.

The Giants had been interested in a second-round pick for McNeil but the Redskins don't have a second-round choice left and the two clubs then agreed on the three lower round selections.

Pruitt's only loss on carry came after slip on end sweep

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—There is a way to stop Greg Pruitt, but it's only been done once this season.

Flying around end four games ago, Pruitt slipped and fell. The carry against Southern California went for a two-yard loss, the only time the Oklahoma halfback was not gained this season.

Pruitt's 294-yard outburst against Kansas State last week enhanced his statistics appreciably. The "Hello-Goodbye" halfback now has 1,113 yards on only 92 carries for a 12.1-yard average.

Pruitt has rolled up his yardage in only six games, while only six previous Big Eight Conference backs have done better in full seasons. Steve Owens' 1,530 yards in 1968, the conference record, seems certain to be surpassed. And Owens needed 357 carries to get his yardage.

Pruitt is running almost faster than Nebraska's Jerry Taggo can throw. Taggo is the total offense (passing and running) leader with 1,353 yards, but Pruitt's rushing total makes him second.

The 176-pound halfback is averaging 185.5 yards per game running, while Oklahoma quarterback Jack Mildren has a 103.2 clip. Iowa State's George Amundson ranks second with 117.7.

Taggo is the top passer with 1,180 yards, completing 86 of 130 passes for 61.9 per cent.

Nebraska slotback Johnny Rodgers is the top pass receiver, catching 28 passes for 513 yards and eight touchdowns. Oklahoma State's Dick Graham and Kansas' John Schroll have 27 catches each. Rodgers also is the punt and kickoff return leader.

Oklahoma players dominate the scoring statistics, as expected. Pruitt leads with 78 points. Mildren is fourth with 60 and kicker John Carroll is sixth with 50.

Oklahoma State's Jim Benien continues to lead the punters with 42 kicks for a 46.5 average.

WSU upset of Stanford earns week's honors

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI)—For Jim Sweeney victories have been few and far between the past few years. However, he won what he called the "biggest of my career" last Saturday when his Washington State Cougars upset then nationally ranked Stanford, 24-23, on a last second field goal by Don Sweet.

Sweet and the rest of the Cougars won. Sweeney the United Press International Coach of the Week award by their efforts.

"I think it's beautiful," Sweeney said when told of the award. "It's a great honor for our players, particularly the seniors. It's a great honor for our coaching staff. They have done a helluva job of coaching."

He said, "when an honor comes like that it comes to a staff and as a staff honor it's richly deserved and humbly received."

"The win over Stanford has got to be the biggest of my career," said Sweeney, who formerly coached at Montana State.

Sweeney has been coaching for 22 years, starting when he was a senior at the University of Portland. The school dropped football as a sport when Sweeney was a senior and he spent his final collegiate year coaching Columbia High School in Portland, Ore., then spent nine years coaching high school football in Montana before becoming an assistant at Montana State under head coach Herb Ajoses.

"I learned a great deal from the game during my three years with Herb," Sweeney said.

Sweeney served five years at Montana State before coming here in 1966. During his three years here prior to this season the Cougars have been walloping in the collar of the Pacific Eight Conference and WSU had won only five games, while losing 25 and tying one.

However, this year the Cougars are 3-4 and have a chance, although slim, to go to the Rose Bowl for the first time since 1931. It won't be easy because to get there they have to beat Oregon, Southern California, Oregon State and Washington.

Of the victory over Stanford, Sweeney said, "I'm particularly proud of the guys, particularly the seniors, who kept the faith when the odds were tough."

He said he felt the win was a "tremendous team effort."

"When I talk about a team effort, I am talking about every guy giving it all he's got every play," the coach said.

Sharp trader knows his merchandise

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Milwaukee Brewers general manager Frank Lane has become known as an astute trader, but even he admits that sometimes he doesn't know what he's talking about.

Lane was talking Tuesday about the conversations that went on with the Boston Red Sox before that big 10-player deal a few weeks ago and he said it had been decided to use minor league outfielder Pat Skrabale as an added inducement.

"I knew nothing about him—not even how he batted," Lane said candidly. "So, when they asked me, 'How does he bat?' I answered 'He's a switch-hitter.'"

"As it turned out, Skrabale is a left-handed batter."

"I figured it would be better to be only 50 per cent wrong than all wrong," Lane said.

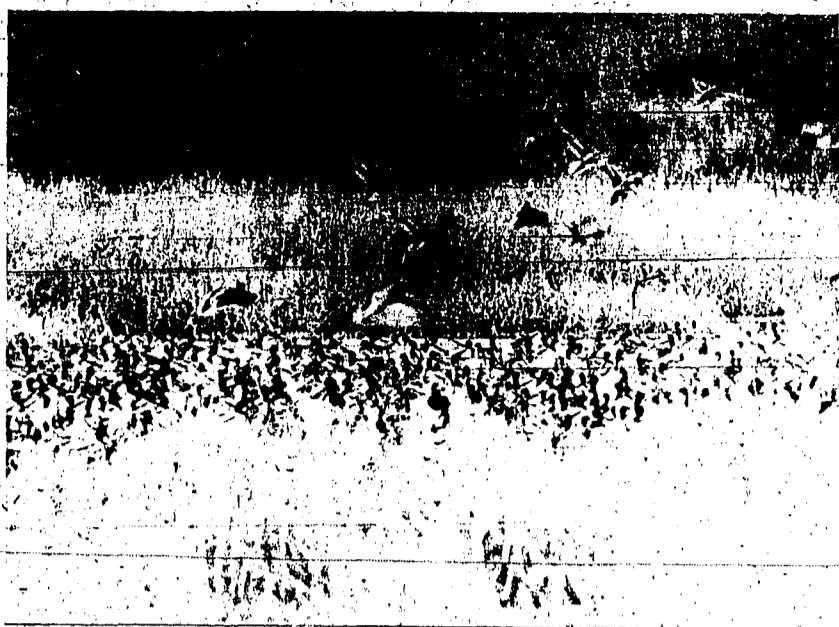

Squires rip Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Charles Scott poured in 39 points and rookie Julius Erving added 35 more Tuesday night as the Virginia Squires raced to a 140-136 victory over the Pittsburgh Condors in the American Basketball Association's eastern division.

Virginia jumped to an early 5-0 lead, raced to a 74-42 halftime lead and led 122-106 with 8:04 remaining to play before Pittsburgh began to close the gap.

Rookie Jimmy O'Brien and Arvesta Kelly, who had eight assists each, moved Pittsburgh to within 13 points, 140-127, but it wasn't enough as Virginia improved its record to 3-2. Pittsburgh stands now at 2-4 in the ABA East.

John Belser led the Condors with 38 points, while Paul Huffner had 25.

Blanda can be No. 1 pro scorer

NEW YORK (UPI)—The National Football League already lists Georgia Blanda, the 44-year-old wonder child of the Oakland Raiders, as the all-time scoring champion, but Pro Football's Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio, does not.

The Hall still lists Tom Groza as top man, because the Hall counts the points Lou scored in the long ago All-America Football Conference. Canton's records have Groza, after 21 years in the AAFC and the NFL, with 1608 points, and he died after 22 years in the American and National Football Leagues with 1601.

But that confusion can be cleared up Sunday, when Blanda and the Raiders face the Kansas City Chiefs. Blanda, who starred in the Raiders' Sunday win over Cincinnati, may see action again, and should he collect nine or more points, he will be recognized as the top scorer in all pro football history.

Groza accumulated his point total with one touchdown, 810 extra points and 264 field goals. Blanda has nine touchdowns, 750 extra points and 283 field goals.

Ortiz to return to ring

NEW YORK (UPI)—Carlos Ortiz, 35 years old and former lightweight champion, has decided to return to the ring after a two-year retirement.

Ortiz won the world title from Joe Brown at Las Vegas in 1962. He defended it successfully three times, then lost it to Ismael Laguna on April 10, 1965. He took his crown back from Laguna on Nov. 13, 1965, and held it through five more defenses before bowing to Teo Cruz on June 29, 1968. Ortiz fought and won his last fight on Nov. 21, 1968 against Edmundo Leite.

Ortiz will resume fighting on Nov. 27 under the auspices of promoter Murray Goodman at the New Jersey State Fair Grounds in a building which seats 3,000.

Sox obtain reliever

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago White Sox Tuesday announced the acquisition of relief pitcher Lowell Palmer from the Philadelphia Phillies in return for first baseman Bob Spence and left handed pitcher Don Bolte.

Palmer had a 6-5 record with Eugene, Ore. in the Pacific Coast League during 1971. In 1968 with San Diego he had a 13-8 record with a 3.44 earned run average.

Cal coach pleased by win over UCLA, but fears Southern Cal

OAKLAND (UPI)—California Bears football coach Ray Wilsey said Tuesday his team played its "best game of the season" in beating the UCLA Bruins, but the USC Trojans are another animal.

"I think USC's win over Notre Dame got them straightened out," Wilsey told a luncheon of the Northern California football writers. California and the Trojans meet Saturday in Berkeley.

"They (Trojans) had a lot of hard luck early, but don't forget they lost to two of the top five teams in the country in Oklahoma and Alabama. They seem to have found themselves and are playing as they are capable."

"The UCLA win was our best football game of the season. (Quarterback Jay) Cruze threw well and did a good job directing the team. More important he kept from making mistakes. Sherm White, our defensive tackle, played very well again in leading our defensive effort."

Cruze and White were named offensive and defensive players of the week for the parts they played in Cal's 31-24 win over UCLA. Cruze completed 11 of 20 passes and lofted a 35-yard TD aerial to Steve Sweeney for the winning score with 1:10 remaining.

White, a 6-5, 250-pounder, has been a consistent performer all season for the Bears with 40 tackles, including nine where the ball carriers were thrown for losses, and three passes deflections.

Stanford coach John Ralston said his Indians were "just beaten by a better team" in the 24-23 upset by Washington State.

"But I don't think we'll have any problem in getting ready for Oregon State this Saturday," added Ralston. "Just as was the case after our loss to Duke, we will simply try to forget that whole experience (against Washington State) and get ready for Oregon State."

After watching his Spartans get whipped 34-14 by Oregon, San Jose State coach Dewey King called Duck quarterback Dan Fouts "the best quarterback I've seen this fall. He brings a presence and demeanor onto the field that only the great quarterbacks have."

San Francisco State coach Vic Rowen, whose Gators play Santa Clara this week, praised Bronco quarterback Clyde Lebaron.

"In many ways, Lebaron is a better college quarterback than Dan Pastorini," said Rowen of the first-round draft choice of the Houston Oilers last season. "Pastorini was more physical but Lebaron gives you more versatility."

Eastern Michigan, a 31-0 victor over Wisconsin at Milwaukee, retained the No. 3 spot and McNeese State, benefactor of three first place votes, advanced from fifth to fourth after being idle. The Cowboys are 6-0.

North Dakota State, which lost its No. 1 ranking to Delaware last week after losing to home-state rival North Dakota, rebounded from eighth place to fifth this week by downing Northern Iowa 23-11.

Woburn State, which beat Nevada-Las Vegas 30-17, moved up from eleventh to sixth as only a 21-21 tie with Montana State mars its 5-0-1 record. North Dakota was seventh and completing the top 10 were Western Kentucky (8th), Tennessee State (9th), and Tampa (10th).

MAGIC VALLEY CHAPTER of the waterfowl conservation's international body will be formed at a banquet Nov. 17 at Blue Lakes Country Club. The dinner, which will include a social hour, many sports-oriented free prizes and membership in Ducks Unlimited, hopefully will draw 200 area waterfowlers. Tickets may be obtained from Jim Answorth, Don Zark, Larry Drexler, Voy Hudson and Paul Beck.

Bruins, W.R. favored in state runoff

JEROME — The Twin Falls Bruins are favored to win their third straight Class A state title and the Wood River Wolverines, after losing out the B title for the past two years, are expected to resume their title Friday afternoon in the combined running of the state cross country championships over the Jerome Country Club golf course Friday.

Wood River has been even more favored by itself.

FOR

Five nation power game

EDITORS' NOTE: The big powers have their own views of the world around them. In the following interview, the foreign minister of Singapore, one of the smaller nations, tells how the world situation looks from his vantage point.

By PEGGY POLK UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The foreign minister of Singapore says he believes that power politics, a two-handed

Now it will be three, possibly five.

Rajaratnam predicts a period of world tension as the new powers vie for influence. "After all," he said, "it took 25 years for the United States and the Soviet Union to arrange a detente."

But he expects "no overwhelming disaster" because all the nations involved either are or have the capacity to become nuclear powers — "and the price of nuclear conflict is annihilation."

Instead, he warns of the increased danger of "a series of indirect conflicts," with small nations quarrel they naturally attract the big powers," he said.

Possible about the chances of the big powers abandoning the struggle, Rajaratnam looks to the small nations to guard against providing the opportunity for power politics and to concentrate on development and stabilization of their governments.

Rajaratnam has little sympathy for the expressed fears of the developing nations that the U.S. economic moves will mean a cut in aid to them. "It may not be a bad thing if the aid is cut because some of the developing countries must learn they cannot depend on other countries' charity," he said.

"Aid without self help is a pointless exercise. If you try to teach a child to walk by giving it crutches, it will never learn," Rajaratnam said.

game between the United States and the Soviet Union since World War II, soon may have five players.

There is no question about the emergence of Communist China as a force to be reckoned with on the international scene. Foreign Minister S. Rajaratnam said. But it also is possible that a highly industrialized Japan and the six Common Market nations of Western Europe with their individual past histories of world dominance will show increasing power, he said.

"China's admission to the United Nations will mean a qualitative change in international relations," Rajaratnam said in an interview while attending the 26th General Assembly session. "Before, only two people were playing poker."

Ambassador to U.N. says morale is high

NEW YORK (UPI)—Nationalist China's U.N. ambassador, Liu Chieh, sat behind the desk in his gold-carpeted office, a newspaper opened to the headline "Buckley Slams U.N. Action."

Asked to describe the reaction at the mission's ninth floor offices the morning after Taiwan had been expelled from the United Nations, the ambassador said "the mood is business as usual. Every officer and staff member is at his desk as usual."

"The morale is high, we worked very hard at it," he said, referring to the mission's efforts to keep Taiwan in the United Nations. "I'm very proud of my staff."

Asked whether he foresaw the vote for expulsion, the ambassador replied "I can't say I expected it" but added "it did not come as a great surprise."

There were no signs that packing had begun for the 23 members of the permanent mission and the 17 clerical employees and drivers who do not enjoy diplomatic status.

For the first time in 26 years there was no flag of China in front of the U.N. headquarters today. The flag of Nationalist China was not raised, nor was that of Communist China.

Japanese lose in UN debate

By United Press International

"Well, we lost, didn't we?" That was how Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato greeted newsmen in Tokyo pressing him for comment on failure of the joint U.S.-Japanese fight to retain Nationalist China's seat in the United Nations.

For Japan it meant a reappraisal of Japanese relations with Peking and Taipei, and it could mean the loss of Sato's job for his support of the Nationalists while Red China was growing into a nuclear power with vast trading possibilities.

Sato's words summed up the feelings of the anti-Communist nations of Asia—the knowledge that international politics had suddenly changed and that the old concept of an isolated China was gone forever.

In Taipei there was dismay and official silence. Privately, the people expressed fears for their survival economically and politically and fears of an eventual takeover of the island that the Communists contend is only a Chinese province.

In Manila, staunchly anti-Communist President Ferdinand E. Marcos said the Philippines will maintain friendly relations with Nationalist China but will seek closer contact with Peking—a view expressed in Asian capitals.

In Kuala Lumpur, Malaysian Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak said he welcomed the seating of Communist China and called it an important event in international relations. Razak has suggested neutralization of Southeast Asia but did not say whether he thought admission of Peking would further his views.

The situation in Indonesia was different—the government now headed by President Suharto once overcame a 1965

Chinese Communist plot to takeover Indonesia for communism. Diplomatic relations were suspended in 1967 but Indonesia still recognizes only mainland China and said there would be no change in its policy.

Saigon reacted with bitterness. A foreign office spokesman expressed displeasure and called the expulsion unfair.

Ceylon, as expected, reacted with pleasure—Premier Sirimavo R. D. Bandaranaike has embarked upon a course of leading Ceylon toward socialism. Another woman prime minister, Indira Gandhi of India also reacted favorably although India has fought a number of border wars with Red China in recent years. Mrs. Gandhi, now visiting in Brussels, said the situation with Peking excluded from the U.N. had been unrealistic.

Australia and New Zealand officials spokesmen said they deplored the U.N. decision to admit mainland China and exclude Taiwan. New Zealand Prime Minister Sir Keith Holyoake expressed fears Peking would think it now had the green light to settle the Taiwan dispute by force.

Two other anti-Communist nations, Thailand and South Korea, expressed similar views. They called the decision regrettable, and said their relationship with the Nationalist regime would be unchanged.
