TEN CENTS

Repercussions, echo from wage guideline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pay Board went ahead today with its plan to put a 5.5 per cent ceiling on future pay raises, despite continued criticism from labor and warnings of economic strife.

In the latest developments: — It appeared that only the largest companies, perhaps those employing 1,000 or more, will have to submit their contracts to the government to see if they meet the 5.5 per cent yardstick. This would affect about 11 million of the nearly 18 million workers covered by contracts — but — would presumably set the pattern for the rest.

—The American Federation of Teachers, an AFL-CIO union, said the board's decision to deny retroactive pay raises caught in the freeze was a step towards fascism. There were indications, however, that some teachers might get retroactive wage raises, if taxes had been raised before the freeze to cover them.

—It was learned that longevity and merit pay raises caught by the freeze would be allowed to take effect when the freeze ends at midnight Saturday, provided the increases do not exceed 5.5 per cent.

The White House expressed optimism that organized labor would not boycott the Pay Board over its ban on retroactive pay boosts falling due during the freeze under previously negotiated contracts, except on a case-by-case basis.

But AFL-CIO President George Meany, charging the board had "abrogated legal collective bargaining agreements involving millions of American wage earners," said he would take the issue to the labor federation's convention in Bal Harbour, Fla., next week.

Although Meany refrained from committing himself on labor's next step, the executive board of the Amalgamated Meatcutters and Butcher Workmen said it would "work actively" to have the convention call a general strike to recover lost wage increases. It urged Meany and four other labor representatives to quit the board.

Informed sources close to the Pay Board's deliberations said meanwhile that longevity and merit raises deferred during the freeze would be allowed during Phase II of President Nixon's economic stabilization program which starts Sunday, if they fall within the board's general ceiling of 5.5 per cent for annual increases.

Nominee 'zealot'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Organized labor branded Assistant Attorney General William H. Rehnquist a right wing zealot today and urged the Senate to reject his nomination to the Supreme Court.

The AFL-CIO thus joined the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, the NAACP and the Americans for Democratic Action in opposition of Rehnquist. As did those other organizations, organized labor took no position on the nomination of Lewis F. Powell Jr., the Richmond, Va., lawyer nominated for a second vacancy.

Andrew Biemiller, legislative representative of the AFL-CIO, delivered labor's position paper opposing Rehnquist to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

"We do so because Rehnquist's public record demonstrates him to be a right wing zealot whose sole distinction in public life are that he was the only major person of stature who opposed the Arizona Civil Rights Bill in 1964 and that he has been one of the prime theoreticians of and an apologist for this administration's root and branch assault on the constitutional system of checks and balances," Biemiller said in his prepared statement.

The only reason Rehnquist's name was submitted for the Supreme Court, Biemiller said, was because he had demonstrated his "complete fealty" to Nixon administration programs.

Clean river role eyed for farmers

TWIN FALLS — Final preparations were being made today for Magic Valley's first public conference focused on the role of the farmer in water pollution control.

The valley-wide conference will be held Saturday at the College of Southern Idaho.

The all-day conference is intended to bring a number of well-known national and local speakers to consider what can be done within the agricultural sector of the economy to limit Snake River pollution.

Particular attention will be placed on problems of water management and new research trends which have some bearing on pollution cleanup.

Nixon sounds like candidate

CHICAGO (UPI) — President Nixon looked and sounded like a candidate but did not give the official word Tuesday night when his supporters from coast to coast, led by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, raised a chorus urging him actively to seek a second term.

In a jet age swing, Nixon appeared at $500-a-plate Republican fund-raising dinners in New York and Chicago, sweetening the party coffers by nearly $5 million. Nixon's appearances were linked by closed circuit television to 18 other Republican dinners across the country.

Nixon's trip, regarded by many as the launching pad of his 1972 candidacy, was not without stormy sidelights.

An estimated 2,500 persons opposed to the Vietnam War and Illinois welfare cuts massed in front of the Conrad Hilton Hotel, scene of the riots of the 1968 Democratic National Convention. There were three arrests, but by the time the President slipped in a side door of the hotel, the number of protesters waiting in the chilly night had dwindled to 50.

Union demonstrators were on hand outside the New York hotel where Nixon spoke. At Beverly Hills, Calif., where Attorney General John N. Mitchell featured a $500-a-plate affair, a 14-cents-a-plate dinner of boiled rice and tea was RUPERT — Peter Baumgartner, 67, Burley was killed Tuesday evening in the collision of his station wagon and a beet truck 1.5 miles south of Rupert.

Idaho State Police said the beet truck was driven by James L. Walton, 26, Rupert. Walton was unhurt.

The truck was owned by Oris Gibson, Rupert.

Walton told investigating officers he was returning home after emptying a load of sugar beets. He entered State Highway 24 headed north. State police said Baumgartner, driving north in his station

Pesticide regulation bill OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An administration-backed bill to tighten federal regulation of 60,000 pesticide products ranging from weed killers to housewives' bathroom sprays was approved by the House on a 288-91 vote Tuesday.

Similar legislation is pending in the Senate.

The bill classifies some pesticides as safe for general use and freely available to all.

But in a new regulatory crackdown, it classifies as "restricted" some others, stipulating that they may be used only by trained applicators licensed by the states.

The legislation would give the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) the power to decide which chemicals should be placed in the restricted category.

Nearly 1 billion pounds of pesticides used annually would be controlled by the legislation. Farmers use nearly half of the pesticides to control insects, weeds and diseases attacking crops.

Medics warned on drug

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) today warned doctors against giving pregnant women diethylstilbestrol (DES), a cancer-causing drug already controversial because the government allows it to be used in animal feeds.

"A statistically significant association has been reported between maternal ingestion during pregnancy of DES and the occurrence of vaginal carcinoma (cancer) in the offspring," the FDA said in today's Federal Register.

The notice followed by only one day an FDA proposal designed to prevent DES residues in beef and lamb. The drug, a hormone, is mixed with animal feeds to promote growth.

Cattle and lambs are supposed to be withdrawn from DES feeding two days before slaughter to make sure their meat contains no DES residues; but the Agriculture Department has acknowledged finding DES in 13 sheep and lamb carcasses since April.

The finding prompted demands from Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and some consumer advocates that DES be banned from animal feeds, as it is in 21 other nations.

Diseased Buhl man sues tobacco, produce firms

TWIN FALLS — A Buhl man has filed a half-million dollar suit against a tobacco company and a Buhl firm allegedly responsible for a respiratory disease he suffers.

David Langley, Buhl, asked $509,000 from the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., and Rangen, Inc., Buhl.

The suit, filed in Fifth Judicial District Court in Twin Falls, alleges Rangen, Inc., manufacturer of animal feed products, was negligent in failing to eliminate a serious dust condition in its plant.

Langley said he was employed by the firm for 20 years until Feb. 3, 1971. During that entire time he said he worked in the plant where a dusty condition was allowed to continue.

Langley also states he smoked two packages of cigarettes per day for about 40 years. He charges the R. J. Reynolds Co., manufacturers of the product he smoked, failed to indicate to him or to the public in general, its product was and is harmful to health of users.

He charges the company had known users of the product could suffer ill effect but had made no attempt to warn the users and had continued to advertise it as a safe product.

Langley says because of the working conditions at Rangen Inc., and his use of cigarettes manufactured by R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., he now suffers a severe respiratory disease.

He is asking $3,000 medical expenses, $6,000 loss of earnings and $500,000 general damages. The plaintiff is represented by Douglas Kramer, Twin Falls attorney.

'Jersey Joe' now 1st black sheriff

CAMDEN, N.J. (UPI) — Famed ex-heavyweight boxing champion Jersey Joe Walcott was released temporarily from a local hospital Tuesday and was sworn into office, becoming New Jersey's first black sheriff.

The 57-year-old Walcott, whose real name is Arnold Cream, took the oath of office on the steps of the Camden County Courthouse in 30 degree weather. He returned almost immediately to Cooper Hospital where he has been recovering from what his doctors say is exhaustion resulting from his campaign.

The ex-champ's son, the Rev. Vincent Cream, delivered the invocation and held the bible.

Choked with emotion, Walcott said, "I just want to say that the honor being bestowed on me here is an honor being bestowed on the little people."

Burley driver dies in crash

BY GEORGIA LAYTON Times News Writer

RUPERT — Peter Baumgartner, 67, Burley was killed Tuesday evening in the collision of his station wagon and a beet truck 1.5 miles south of Rupert.

Idaho State Police said the beet truck was driven by James L. Walton, 26, Rupert. Walton was unhurt.

The truck was owned by Oris Gibson, Rupert.

Walton told investigating officers he was returning home after emptying a load of sugar beets. He entered State Highway 24 headed north. State police said Baumgartner, driving north in his station wagon, collided with the truck from behind. The station wagon was shredded back to the rear seat.

The truck was spun around and came to rest on its left side in a borrow pit next to a fence. Both men were pinned in their wrecked vehicles. Officers and wrecker crews worked for about 30 minutes before freeing Baumgartner's body.

Robert Walk, Minidoka County coroner, said Baumgartner was apparently killed instantly.

Investigating officers said both vehicles were demolished. Funeral services are pending and will be announced by Walk Mortuary.

Irish women tar teen-age girl

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—A crowd yelling "soldier lover" watched three masked women tie a teen-age Roman Catholic girl to a post, shave her head and tar and feather her, witnesses said today.

The incident, late Tuesday night in Londonderry's Roman Catholic Bogside area, was the second terror attack in two days on a girl who dated British soldiers, residents said.

In Belfast, British soldiers carried out their second large-scale search of a Roman Catholic area within 24 hours, an army spokesman said. About 800 troops were used in a two-hour sweep of the Ardoyne.

Also in Belfast, for the second time in five days an army bomb disposal team narrowly missed death or injury from a time bomb planted in a hotel.

The Londonderry tarring victim was Martha Doherty, 19. Witnesses said three masked women dragged her from her home tied her to a post, shaved her head and then tarred and feathered her while photographers took pictures.

Monday night six women invaded a 20-year-old girl's home, blindfolded her, and then cut off her hair in a similar attack, residents said.

The army's search of the Ardoyne Tuesday night and today netted only 200 rounds of ammunition, including "dumdum" bullets designed to shatter on impact, a holster, a gun belt and several maps, the army spokesman said.

The day also saw the death of another soldier—the 36th to die in Northern Ireland this year. Lance Cpl. Ian Curtis, 23, was hit by a sniper's bullet as he left an army post at the edge of the Bogside in Londonderry.

The latest narrow escape by an army bomb disposal team came at the Woodbourne House, a modern brick hotel in West Belfast's Suffolk area. Five men, three with guns, planted a bomb there about 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Employees and guests were evacuated while the bomb disposal team went to work. About 8:15 p.m. its members decided to begin sandbagging the area around the bar where the parcel had been left. As they approached the hotel entrance, the bomb exploded, starting a fire that leveled the building.

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—The manager of the Shrine of Mausoleum and Crematory says the theft of $2,558 in cash and jewels from an empty crypt Tuesday was an inside job.

George Jeffries said the thieves opened just four of 4,000 crypts in the mausoleum before they found the loot, stashed in empty coffee cans.

Officer Darrell K. Goodrich

said the thieves broke into the mausoleum through a restroom window and used a tire iron to break into the marbled-faced crypts.

Demonstrators gather at site of Demo confab

CHICAGO (UPI)—Thousands of demonstrators gathered Tuesday night at the site of the 1968 Democratic National Convention riots to protest Nixon administration policies, the war in Indochina and welfare cuts in Illinois.

The occasion was President Nixon's appearance at a $500-a-plate fund raising dinner for Republican campaign coffers in 1972.

Nixon made appearances in New York and Chicago Tuesday night, and his speeches were beamed on closed circuit television to GOP party faithful in 18 other major U.S. cities who also paid $500 for their dinner.

Scattered demonstrations also were reported in other parts of the country, but none of the magnitude along Chicago's Michigan Avenue.

Police estimated the throng at 2,500 about 2 1/2 hours before the President arrived in Chicago. However, the crowd later dwindled to an estimated 700 to 1,000 persons.

Michigan Avenue was littered with broken glass, the result of about 10 bottles police said were tossed from across the street from Conrad Hilton Hotel where Nixon spoke. Ears of ornamental corn and other objects were also thrown, police said.

House, Senate consider foreign aid bills today

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Both the House and Senate began coming to grips today with the impasse over foreign aid. One chamber set its sights on keeping the program alive past midnight Monday while the other mapped out a plan for the coming year.

In the House, leaders called up a resolution to allow the Agency for International Development (AID) and other federal agencies which have not yet received their regular appropriations. To continue spending at the levels of the fiscal year which ended June 30.

Traditional foes of the AID program were poised to offer amendments that would knock the economic part of the program from the "continuing resolution." Republican and Democratic leaders were ready to oppose them.

George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee in charge of steering the resolution through the House and on to the Senate, said he hoped members, regardless of their feelings about foreign aid, would allow both chambers time to put together a substitute for the AID authorization recently killed by the Senate. The continuing resolution, which would expire with the end of the current congressional session, would do that, he said.

The beginnings of that decision were taking place in the Senate.

AID supporters there warily made plans to seek an increase in the separate $1.2 billion military and $1.1 billion economic aid bills that were fashioned out of the wreckage of the Oct. 29 Senate defeat of the $2.9 billion AID bill.

Their fear was that the AID package might collapse again if they added too much to it.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., was leading the fight to increase the economic aid measure. He planned to start with an amendment to strike a section of the bill that the administration claims would wreck the development assistance program.

Smylie speaks for TF Rotary

TWIN FALLS—Stabilizing the dollar is the single most important task facing the nation today, former governor Robert E. Smylie, Boise, said today in remarks prepared for the Twin Falls Rotary Club.

The former governor, who is making an appearance in political circles after a five year absence, was scheduled to address a noon luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club at the Turf Club. He earlier announced his candidacy for the U. S. Senate seat, being vacated by Sen. Len B. Jordan, R-Idaho.

He said whether or not the people of Idaho and other states like facing up to the fact, there is no other issue which touches the welfare of every one as does the new economic program.

Smylie said it is not up to the President and Congress alone, but up to every citizen of the country to make the program work if the dollar is to be stabilized and inflation slowed to acceptable rates of increase.

Employment can only rise when this has been done, he said. "The durability of the program requires it should not exact too great a toll from the economy. One implication of this is that price, wage and rent standards must be sufficiently flexible to avoid pressures which stop production or distortions in the price-wage structure that impair efficiency," the senatorial hopeful said.

Smylie said the first requirement is to hold down the rate of inflation. No other conditions should be allowed to dominate that main objective.

"The basic problem therefore is to satisfy these requirements within a program that will efficiently control inflation. The decisions embodied in the post-freeze program are designed to do this," he said.

The speaker declared the new economic program's success is in its reliance on voluntary compliance and voluntary cooperation from the farmers, workers, businessmen and consumers.

"The program cries out for cooperative participation. It will fall without the help of all of us and as the President says, 'What is best for all of us is best for each of us,'" he said.

County adopts theme

FILER — "Youth Tomorrow's Leaders" has been adopted as the theme of the 1972 Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo.

Harold O. Hove, president of the fair board, said the outstanding contributions of the county's 4-H and FFA exhibitors to the annual show will be spotlighted in 1972. Plans are being made to give special recognition to youth leaders of the county.

Fair board members also are planning to continue the National Register of Merit Hereford Show next year. Tom Shouse, fair and rodeo manager, said winners of this year's event went on to take honors in other major shows around the nation, an indication of highly qualified judges and outstanding exhibits at the Filer show.

Indian found dead

POCATELLO (UPI) — A Fort Hall reservation Indian was found dead in his cell at the Bannock County Jail Tuesday, but an investigator said he could find no incidence of neglect on the part of his jailers.

The man, a member of the Shoshone-Bannock Indian tribe, was identified as La Von Diggle, 29. He was picked up in Pocatello early Tuesday on charges of driving under the influence of alcohol.

Diggle was taken to the county jail and admitted to a cell. The jailer checked at 7:25 a.m. to find the man sleeping. Less than an hour later, the jailer said he found Diggle hanging by his shift in the cell — an apparent victim of suicide.

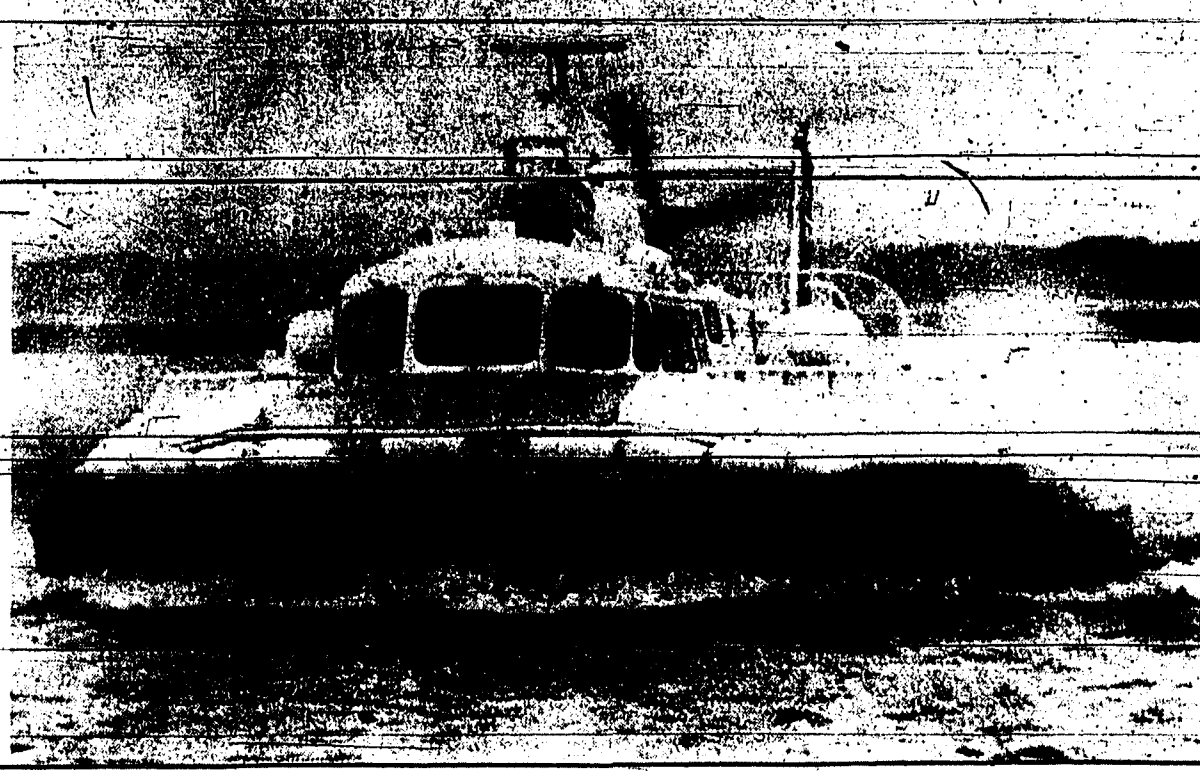

Joe Spivey, criminal investigator at the reservation, said he could find no incidence of neglect on the part of the jailer in connection with Diggle's death.

Meeting set Thursday

BOISE (UPI) — The Interim Legislative Budget-Fiscal Committee will meet in the State Office Building Thursday to hear the performance audit on the Youth Training Center at St. Anthony.

James Defenbach, legislative auditor, said the committee will also hear a report from the State Planning and Community Affairs Agency on federal funding for projects, and will discuss schedules for budget request hearings in the upcoming legislature.

Garmendia was scheduled to stand jury trial starting Monday on a charge of first degree murder in connection with a downtown shooting death May 21. Two psychiatrists, however, declared Garmendia in "unfit mental condition to stand trial." Garmendia was accused in the slaying of John B. Garchana, 76, owner-operator of the Elbe Bird Hotel and barbershop.

9 generals to testify

FT. MEADE, Md. (UPI) — Defense attorney Henry R. Rothblatt said Tuesday he would call nine generals as witnesses to try to prove that Col. Oran K. Henderson is innocent of charges he tried to cover up evidence of the My Lai massacre.

With the most serious charge against Henderson ordered dismissed by the military judge, Rothblatt opened his case before the jury of two generals and five colonels by depicting Henderson as a man of sterling character... an honest sincere soldier doing his job as he understood it.

Among the nine general officers Rothblatt said would testify was Brig. Gen. George Young Jr., who, according to prosecution witnesses, ordered Henderson to investigate complaints of civilian slaughter at My Lai.

The judge in Henderson's drawn-out court martial, Col. Peter S. Wondolowski, Monday dismissed a charge that Henderson lied under oath to a special Pentagon group that investigated the Army's inquiry into the reported massacre. But Henderson remains accused of dereliction of duty and of inadequately investigating alleged slayings of civilians at My Lai; failure to report to superiors about his investigation; and making a false statement during a pre-trial investigation.

Rothblatt did not identify the other eight generals he would summon.

Following Rothblatt's opening statement, the defense presented its first three witnesses, all of whom served in Quang Ngai province, where My Lai was situated, at the time of the incident.

The leadoff witness, career foreign service officer James May, testified that he received no reports on the intentional killing of civilians although he routinely got detailed information from the villages through a Quaker group and other private organizations working with the local populace.

The other two, Lt. Col. Donald Keating and Lt. Col. Paul C. Gavin, described the situation in the Communist infested countryside during the period of My Lai and also said they received no information about atrocities except in Viet Cong propaganda, which they discounted.

Inmate charged

NAMPA (UPI) — Idaho State Prison inmate Frank J. Martinez, 27, Nampa, was taken into custody Tuesday by FBI agents and police on a federal warrant charging him with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Martinez was arrested at the home of his mother and sister, according to Nampa Police Chief Buster Baker.

Martinez escaped from the penitentiary in Boise last April. He had been serving a life sentence for a second degree murder conviction.

Baker said unlawful flight was charged because it was assumed Martinez left the state after he escaped from the prison.

The man was taken to the Nampa Police Department and placed in the custody of a representative of the U.S. Marshal's office in Boise.

Plant's boiler still smoking

TWIN FALLS — Black smoke drifting from the Amalgamated Sugar Co. plant is from the boiler stack, which has not yet been equipped to reduce the boiler output.

Earlier this year, more than $500,000 was spent to install scrubbers on dryer stacks which also emit smoke and other anti-pollution measures, plant officials said. That equipment has no link with the smoke which is emitted through the boiler stack.

Arnold Croft, plant

superintendent, said that within three years the smoke problem should be eliminated, since additional equipment is planned to reduce the output of the boiler stack.

Croft said that if smoke comes from the sugar plant, it is from the boiler stack. These fumes are often forced close to the ground by barometric pressure.

Croft said smoke from present operations passes Ringleman test density requirements for air pollution.

Protest waged by Okinawans

OKINAWA (UPI) — More than 50,000 Okinawans walked off their jobs today in protest against the continuation of American military presence after the island goes back under Japanese rule next year.

Rioting broke out and an Okinawan policeman was reported killed.

A group of Okinawan youths stormed a police station, throwing firebombs. The clash erupted between demonstrators and police when an undetermined number of youths, believed to be students, attacked a police box, the Japanese Kyodo News Agency said.

A policeman was reported killed in a wild demonstration by workers and students tonight.

The Okinawans were demanding that the reversion agreement be renegotiated to give them more control over military activity on the small Western Pacific island after it is returned to Japan. They also oppose the treaty itself because it makes no specific reference to nuclear weapons and allows American military authorities ultimate legal control over servicemen who commit crimes.

U.S. commanders ordered all American servicemen to stay on base and laid out rolls of barbed wire around key installations as a precaution should demonstrators try to force their way onto the bases.

College course offered

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho is offering an opportunity for those who wish to brush-up on their shorthand, or for those who want to improve their efficiency in this field.

This course is not for beginners. The class is scheduled to begin Nov. 17 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Room 211 of the Shields Academic Building.

Cost for the course is $12 and registration will be held the first night of class. Further information can be obtained by contacting Karl Black, College of Southern Idaho, 733-9554 extension 261.

Proceedings suspended

BOISE (UPI) — Fourth District Court Judge J. Ray Durtsche has suspended proceedings in the case of Jose Giori Garmendia, 50, Boise, placed in the custody of the State Board of Health for institutionalization.

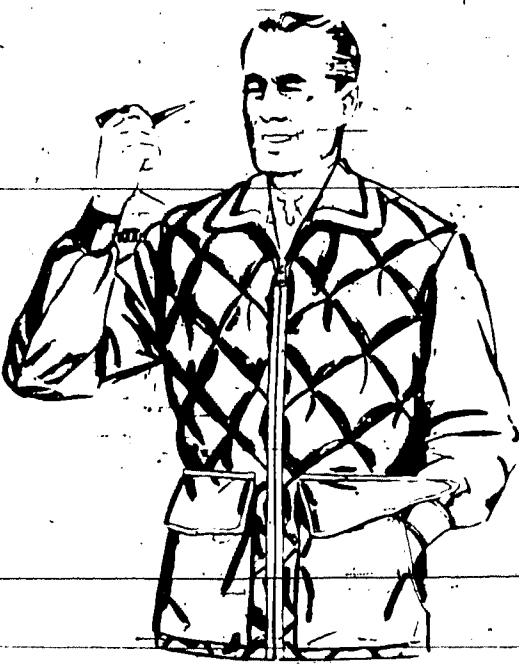

Garmendia was scheduled to stand jury trial starting Monday on a charge of first degree murder in connection with a downtown shooting death May 21. Two psychiatrists, however, declared Garmendia in "unfit mental condition to stand trial."

Garmendia was accused in the slaying of John B. Garchana, 76, owner-operator of the Elbe Bird Hotel and barbershop.

Common Cause Is In The Chips

WASHINGTON — When it comes to being in the chips, Common Cause, militant liberal lobbying and pressure organization, is in a class by itself. As of Oct. 15, it has a cash reserve of $3,382,406 — and the money is continuing to roll in. Headed by John Gardner, Department of Health, Education and Welfare and previously president of the Carnegie Corporation, Common Cause is the best-heeled lobbying outfit in Washington — outshining in that regard even COPE, the well-financed political arm of the AFL-CIO.

Consistently anti-Nixon administration and stridently dovish on one hand, and markedly pro-Democratic on the other, Common Cause has a balance sheet that reads like a promoter's dream. Following are the highlights as of Oct. 15: Receipts: $3,038,760. Expenditures: $724,574. Cash reserve carried over from 1970: $1,070,220. Total cash reserve: $3,382,406. In addition, there was a $40,000 grant from the tax-exempt Stern Fund to finance a "voter rights" suit. This money is listed as in a special account and will not be used in federal lobbying operations.

Other big contributors during this period were: J. W. Drown, Bel Air, Calif., $10,000, and $10,000 in 1970; I. P. Crowe, Woodstock, Vt.; $5,000; C. S. Robertson, New York City, $5,000 and another $5,000 last year; W. A. Haas, Jr., San Francisco, chairman of Levi Strauss & Co., $5,000, plus $5,000 earlier this year; H. L. Karp, New York City, $2,500. R. E. Larson, New York City vice-chairman Time, Inc., $2,000; Mrs. F. Worden, Weston, Mass., $2,000, plus $2,000 in 1970; P. S. Bing, Los Angeles, $2,000; American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, Washington, D. C., $2,000; J. C. Willson, Rochester, N.Y., $1,250, plus $1,000 in 1970; C. R. Smith, former Commerce Secretary, $1,000; V. H. Palmieri, Los Angeles, former president Janss Investment Co., $1,000; D. C. Burnham, Pittsburgh, president Westinghouse Electric $1,000, and a similar amount last year; S. C. Johnson, Racine, Wisc.; president Johnson Wax Co., $1,000 plus $2,500 in 1970. While Common Cause has a 60-member board of directors, policies are made and operations conducted solely by Gardner and a small hand-picked staff of assistants.

Receipts comprise two items: dues and gifts. In the first half of this year, they produced a combined total of $2,204,200. In the third quarter, dues amounted to $667,427; gifts, $165,133. Dues are $15 a year, and Common Cause claims a membership of between 205,000 and 240,000. During the third quarter, there were 26 gifts to Common Cause ranging from $1,000 to $10,000. Most singular of these gifts was $1,000 from Allied Chemical Corporation — which gave another $1,000 earlier in the year. Not known is whether the company informed its stockholders about these grants. Another gift that raises legal questions is $1,000 from the tax-exempt Mr. and Mrs. Elliot Handler Foundation. He is head of Mattel Toys. While Common Cause professes not to be a political organization, there can be no argument it is deeply embroiled in political affairs.

Wages And Politics

Congress is moving towards adoption of a minimum wage of $2.00 an hour with little dissent and scant regard for the realities of the unemployment problem such a boost would only aggravate. Unskilled workers, young and old, would find themselves priced out of the market, and a broad inflationary push to raise all wages would be a severe setback to the national effort to slow the upward spiral. Obviously, the minimum wage has its greatest impact on those on the bottom rung of the economy, and instead of lifting them up, it can have the effect of kicking even the bottom rung from under them. Secretary of Labor Hodgson has urged that a lower minimum be set for teenage workers, where unemployment runs nearly three times as high as the national average. George Meany scoffed at the idea but experience supports Hodgson's view.

Arthur F. Burns, after a 1965 study, observed that the ratio of unemployment of teenagers to adults invariably went up after an increase in minimum wages. Congress can fix a minimum wage but it cannot decree that a man's labor is worth more than he can produce in goods and services. Any such pretense is a fraud on the public. The power of the minimum wage to destroy jobs is not limited to those that require the least skills. As labor costs rise faster than productivity, industry turns to mechanization as the only alternative. This can benefit the economy but it does so at the cost of job opportunities. Congress has put off at least until next year any action on welfare reform. It certainly ought to put off any action that will increase the welfare burden and the minimum wage boost will do just that.

A Resolution

Sixty members of the U. S. Senate belatedly have taken recognition of the unequal representation of the world's population in the UN's General Assembly. The senators are backing a resolution which calls for reform of the UN charter to do away with the one-nation one-vote concept. Sixty members of the resolution oppose the present method of ballot allocation, under which members representing only four percent of the world population hold a majority of the votes in the General Assembly. The voting imbalance has existed from the beginning of the organization. But it has become pronounced in the last decade with the admission of dozens of newly emerged countries in Africa and Asia. Each possesses the same vote strength as the United States but many have populations less than that of a medium size American city. The attempt to persuade the UN to revise its charter to make the body more representative has obvious merit, but it will fail. The only way the charter can be changed is by vote of the members, and that four percent of the world population which now controls the UN is not about to voluntarily relinquish its power. About the only effect the Senate resolution will have is to act as a balm to soothe the ruffled feathers between the senators and their constituents over recent UN actions. If the senators wished to pass a meaningful resolution they would tie continued largescale U. S. assistance to the UN to charter reform. That procedure might not work either, but it would provide a convenient avenue for the U. S. to back off its financial support for an unrepresentative body with large mischiefmaking propensities.

Times-News Public Forum

It's Disturbing

Editor, Times-News: This is an open letter to Evelyn Nolt of Carmel Valley, California, who recently wrote letters of comment to the Times-News. Having just got through reading your letter in the Times News of Oct. 6, I'd like to bring to your mind a few thoughts that have occurred to me. I, too, feel a terrible sick sensation at the thought of rabbits being beaten to death with clubs. I feel sick to think of steers being slaughtered for meat, or, indeed, being branded and ear-marked, watted, and vaccinated along with another operation which is regularly performed upon them. I feel sick to think of gophers and starlings being poisoned, of little children being beaten to the point of death by adults, of people being maimed, crippled, and killed by automobiles, of the people of India and other countries starving to death, of the atrocities being perpetrated upon subjected peoples in so many countries, and on and on. War makes me sick, to think our boys and young men have to face the horrors they do face. But I feel humble and very grateful that somebody is strong enough to do these things. Somebody has to face the communists and keep them from confronting you and me at our front door, and maybe reducing us to slavery. Somebody has to raise, fatten, and butcher steers, pigs, chickens, etc. so we can eat meat. Somebody has to poison gophers and starlings and get rid of rabbits, so they won't take the food meant for the cattle and people. If the food in this United States isn't protected from predators we'd all be deprived, the producer of it and you and me, also. I agree with you that the rabbit affair isn't pretty, but would you like it better if each rabbit had to die with poison in his belly? That's a horrible death too. When I was about eight or ten years old my parents and my children lived on the edge of sagebrush near Richfield, Idaho. We went to a rabbit drive. The rabbits were as thick the people there had to do something to save acres of grain and hay they needed to live. I saw the rabbits being slaughtered, and I didn't enjoy it. Neither do I now. I doubt if any of them did, but it seemed very necessary to those people. In those days children experienced the realities of life along with the adults. And I don't believe they grew up into fiends because of it. I feel it is false sentiment to keep all the realities of life away from young people until as adults they have to meet the cruelties and stark facts without any preparation. I assure you I am as "sane" as a big share of my fellow citizens, and as humane and sympathetic, as kind hearted, but I feel we are living in a world that requires savagery at times. The Lord help us if we can't muster up the necessary strength to be savage as occasion demands. We need enough backbone to do what we must do to live, be it protecting our crops from rabbits, chastising our child, fighting for a just cause, or defending ourselves from being annihilated. In closing, I'd suggest that you and all the others who have been appalled at the rabbit story find out the facts. Perhaps you then would feel more understanding and not be so ready to condemn. Suggestions

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am tied down with my mother and can't get out for advice so I will write to you. I had a small place on my neck and the doctor said it looked like a cyst so he removed it. When I went back to have the stitches removed, he said it was a benign tumor, but later he called me to his office and told me it was a skin cancer. It upset me so I left the office without asking any questions, and now I want to know. How long a life does one have after the first sign of skin cancer? How long before there will be other places? Should there be some treatment I should be getting? — Mrs. W. B. People with skin cancer live as long as anyone else — provided the cancer is completely removed. Since the cancer is on the surface, it can be seen and thus removed early. You can't always tell just by looking at it, so when tissue is removed, the safe thing is to send it to a laboratory for microscopic examination. That's what your doctor did. You certainly should return to your doctor, to see if there is any sign of further growth. If examination shows that he was successful in removing all of the cancerous tissue, then forget about it. But DO go back for a recheck. That's the only safe thing for you to do now.

It means there's excessive activity by the thyroid gland. This can cause rapid heart beat and some degree of heart failure and angina that is refractory to treatment until the thyroid problem is brought under control. Diverticulosis is a bulge in the digestive tract. To become more familiar with the subject, write for Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You," enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling. Dear Dr. Thosteson: What danger would there be to the baby if one should unknowingly become pregnant while using a foam contraceptive and has continued to use such a contraceptive? Also what risks are involved if one should become pregnant a few weeks after a miscarriage, and before the first menstrual period has occurred? — Mrs. P. M. P. First question: no danger. Second: no special risk. If the factors, whatever they were, that caused the miscarriage are still present, then another miscarriage could occur. Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do polyps in the rectum ever grow back once you have them removed? — C. W. C. Such polyps don't usually grow back, but there is no guarantee that new ones won't appear in the general area.

MR. SPECTATOR

Change In Policy

There's been a change in policy around the office. We received a memorandum addressed to all employees. We thought you would like to share it. So—tongue in cheek—we pass it on: Due to the excessive number of absences from this establishment the following rules will be put into effect as of this date: SICKNESS: No excuse. We will no longer accept your doctor's statement as proof, as we believe that if you are able to go to the doctor, you are able to come to work. DEATH: (other than your own). This is no excuse. There is nothing you can do for them and we are sure that someone else, with a lesser position, can attend to the arrangements. However, if the funeral can be held in the late afternoon, we will be glad to let you off one hour early, provided that your share of the work is ahead enough to keep the job going during your absence. LEAVE OF ABSENCE: (for an operation). We are no longer allowing this practice. We wish to discourage any thoughts that you may have about needing an operation as we believe that as long as you are employed here, you will need all of whatever you have and you should not consider having anything removed. We hired you as you are, and to have anything removed would certainly make you less than we bargained for. DEATH: (your own). This will be accepted as an excuse but we would like two weeks notice. We feel it is your duty to teach your successor your job before you leave. We would also point out that entirely too much time is being spent in the restroom. In the future we will follow the practice of going in alphabetical order. For example: Those whose names begin with "A" will go from 8 to 8:15; "B's" will go from 8:15 to 8:30 and so on. If you are unable to go at your appointed time, it will be necessary to wait until the next day when your turn comes again. Now, remember, Mr. Spectator said that he presented this memorandum "with tongue in cheek." Actually it was not issued at the Times-News. The newspaper has absolutely no rule which says you must give notice before you die—so there! GIVEAWAY DEPT: We have two dogs to give away. One is an Australian Shepherd just starting to work. The other—someone dropped off on us. She is a Border-Collie mixture and is pretty fair working cattle. Both are friendly and will make good pets. Please telephone E. Egbert, Route Two, Jerome, at 324-2062.

Price Freeze

Editor, Times-News: Perhaps some people have wondered how the wage-price freeze is doing. Any of you who are employed by someone else know how the wage freeze is working. But how about the costs of articles here in our own little community of Twin Falls. On Thursday, Nov. 4 I spent an hour of time checking grocery prices in the September 2 edition of the Times-News. I compared these prices with prices here today. The store I will give as an example is, I believe, the major grocery store in Twin Falls. The first figure given is the advertised price in the September 2 issue of the Times-News. The second figure is the price of the same article on November 4. In each case the priced article is identical in size, weight and packaging: Skyrak bread, 29 cents and 35 cents; DelMonte catsup, 25 cents and 35 cents; AA (Store brand) eggs, medium a dozen, 36 cents and 42 cents; Van Camp pork and beans, 19 cents and 19 cents; DM whole corn, 25 cents and 27 cents; DM beans, whole 25 cents and 27 cents; Gold Medal flour, 10 pounds, $1.28 and $1.38; Grade A Fryers, store brand, 35 cents and 39 cents; ground beef, store package, one pound, 58 cents and 58 cents; Bar S ham, pound package 98 cents and 98 cents; wieners, Falls Brand pound package, 49 cents and 59 cents; bologna, store brand, pound, 49 cents and 59 cents; All-Sweet margarine, pound, 34 cents and 34 cents; Scott paper towels, two for 53 cents and two for 53 cents; milk, store brand, gallon, 99 cents and 1.15. This adds up to $8.61 paid for these items on Sept. 2 and $9.37 paid for identical list on November 4. From this comparison you can see that food prices in this store have risen an average of about 10 per cent. The compared prices in one other store I checked near the one whose prices are quoted, showed prices there are up 13 per cent over the same period. I think we understand the wage freeze part of the President's economic plan but will someone please explain the price freeze? These prices were personally checked with the aid of my wife. Is there something phony about this so-called price freeze? Robert A. Johnson Twin Falls

It's really a pity, but I suppose, since my people sent you Russian spies back home—your people will send our group back to Great Britain!

Historical meet set

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Historical Society will hold its first indoor meeting of the season on Wednesday Nov. 17.

It will be held at 8 p.m. at the Idaho Power Auditorium, according to Mrs. Harold Waggoner, Twin Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Waggoner will show slides of the field trips the society took to historical areas during this past summer. The tours included Jordan Valley, Ore., Boulder City, Lemhi Valley, Gilmore, charcoal kilns, old Fort Lemhi, Leesburg and the Crystal Ice Caves.

If anyone missed any of the tours, now is the time to see what was missed.

Conrad, formerly of Buhl. Lombard graduated from Valley High School at Eden, then earned a bachelor of architecture degree from Idaho State University, Pocatello. While attending college, he worked for the Pocatello firm of Hamilton and Voeller, consulting engineers.

A registered architect and a qualified fallout shelter analyst, Lombard is responsible for development of design concepts of all of Adams' projects. He joined the firm in 1968.

Conrad, a graduate of Buhl High School, received his bachelor of architecture degree from the University of Idaho, and has worked in Moscow, where he was employed by the city of Moscow in the engineering department, as well as by the architectural firm of Pritchard-Blanton, and for a firm in Vancouver, British Columbia.

Conrad is responsible for preparation of contract documents for construction of projects designed by Adams and his associates. He also became affiliated with the firm in 1968.

Summer range fire damage repair starts

SHOSHONE — Some of the 1971 summer range fire damage on public lands in Idaho is now being repaired.

William L. Mathews, state Bureau of Land Management director, said an initial allocation of $315,200 has provided funds to begin fire rehabilitation work on about 50,000 acres. Bill Jensen, BLM forester in charge of the rehabilitation project, said one contract, on the 2,000 acre south side burn in the Shoshone District, has already been completed.

Four others, totaling about 34,000 acres in the Idaho Falls and Shoshone districts, are now under contract and work is proceeding. Bids have been opened for 8,000 acres of reseeded on the cheatgrass burn south of Hammett in the Boise District, Jensen said.

BLM crews have planted about 500 acres on the Sugar Creek burn, also in the Boise District.

Magic Valley's Home Newspaper

Wednesday, November 10, 1971 Al Westergren, Publisher PHONE 733-0931

Official City and County Newspaper Member of Audit Bureau of Circulation and U.P. Pursuant to Section 60-108 Idaho Code, Thursday is hereby designated as the day of the week on which legal notices will be published.

WASHINGTON — When it comes to being in the chips, Common Cause, militant liberal lobbying and pressure organization, is in a class by itself.

1965-68 Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and previously president of the Carnegie Corporation, Common Cause is the best-heeled lobbying outfit in Washington — outshining in that regard even COPE, the well-financed political arm of the AFL-CIO.

Consistently anti-Nixon administration and stridently dovish on one hand, and markedly pro-Democratic on the other, Common Cause has a balance sheet that reads like a promoter's dream. Following are the highlights as of Oct. 15: Receipts: $3,038,760. Expenditures: $724,574.

Cash reserve carried over from 1970: $1,070,230. Total cash reserve: $3,382,406. In addition, there was a $40,000 grant from the tax-exempt Stern Fund to finance a "voter rights" suit. This money is listed as in a special account and will not be used in federal lobbying operations.

Other big contributors during this period were: J. W. Brown, Bel Air, Calif., $10,000, and $10,000 in 1970; I. P. Crowe, Woodstock, Vt., $5,000; C. S. Robertson, New York City, $5,000 and another $5,000 last year; W. A. Haas, Jr., San Francisco, chairman of Levi Strauss & Co., $5,000, plus $5,000 earlier this year; H. L. Karp, New York City, $2,500; R. E. Larson, New York City, vice-chairman Time, Inc., $2,000; Mrs. F. Worden, Weston, Mass., $2,000; plus $2,000 in 1970; P. S. Bing, Los Angeles, $2,000; American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, Washington, D. C., $2,000; J. C. Wilson, Rochester, N.Y., $1,250, plus $1,000 in 1970; C. R. Smith, former Commerce Secretary, $1,000; V. H. Palmieri, Los Angeles, former president Janss Investment Co., $1,000; D. C. Burnham, Pittsburgh, president Westinghouse Electric $1,000, and a similar amount last year; S. C. Johnson, Racine, Wis., president Johnson Wax Co., $1,000 plus $2,500 in 1970.

While Common Cause has a 60-member board of directors, policies are made and operations conducted solely by Gardner and a small hand-picked staff of assistants.

Wages And Politics

Congress is moving towards adoption of a minimum wage of $2.00 an hour with little dissent and scant regard for the realities of the unemployment problem such a boost would only aggravate.

Unskilled workers, young and old, would find themselves priced out of the market, and a broad inflationary push to raise all wages would be a severe setback to the national effort to slow the upward spiral.

Obviously, the minimum wage has its greatest impact on those on the bottom rung of the economy, and instead of lifting them up, it can have the effect of kicking even the bottom rung from under them.

Secretary of Labor Hodgson has urged that a lower minimum be set for teenage workers, where unemployment runs nearly three times as high as the national average. George Meany scoffed at the idea but experience supports Hodgson's view.

Arthur F. Burns, after a 1965 study, observed that the ratio of unemployment of teenagers to adults invariably went up after an increase in minimum wages.

Congress can fix a minimum wage but it cannot decree that a man's labor is worth more than he can produce in goods and services. Any such pretense is a fraud on the public.

The power of the minimum wage to destroy jobs is not limited to those that require the least skills. As labor costs rise faster than productivity, industry turns to mechanization as the only alternative. This can benefit the economy but it does so at the cost of job opportunities.

Congress has put off at least until next year any action on welfare reform. It certainly ought to put off any action that will increase the welfare burden and the minimum wage boost will do just that.

A Resolution

Sixty members of the U. S. Senate belatedly have taken recognition of the unequal representation of the world's population in the UN's General Assembly. The senators are backing a resolution which calls for reform of the UN charter to do away with the one-nation one-vote concept.

Sponsors of the resolution oppose the present method of ballot allocation, under which members representing only four percent of the world population hold a majority of the votes in the General Assembly. The voting imbalance has existed from the beginning of the organization.

But it has become pronounced in the last decade with the admission of dozens of newly emerged countries in Africa and Asia. Each possesses the same vote strength as the United States but many have populations less than that of a medium size American city.

The attempt to persuade the UN to revise its charter to make the body more representative has obvious merit, but it will fail. The only way the charter can be changed is by vote of the members, and that four percent of the world population which now controls the UN is not about to voluntarily relinquish its power.

About the only effect the Senate resolution will have is to act as a balm to soothe ruffled feathers between the senators and their constituents over recent UN actions. If the senators wished to pass a meaningful resolution they would tie continued largescale U. S. assistance to the UN to charter reform.

That procedure might not work either, but it would provide a convenient avenue for the U. S. to back off its financial support for an unrepresentative body with large mischiefmaking propensities.

MR. SPECTATOR

Change In Policy

There's been a change in policy around the office. We received a memorandum addressed to all employees. We thought you would like to share it. So—tongue in cheek—we pass it on:

Due to the excessive number of absences from this establishment the following rules will be put into effect as of this date:

SICKNESS: No excuse. We will no longer accept your doctor's statement as proof, as we believe that if you are able to go to the doctor, you are able to come to work.

DEATH: (other than your own). This is no excuse. There is nothing you can do for them and we are sure that someone else, with a lesser position, can attend to the arrangements. However, if the funeral can be held in the late afternoon, we will be glad to let you off one hour early, provided that your share of the work is ahead enough to keep the job going during your absence.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE: (for an operation). We are no longer allowing this practice. We wish to discourage any thoughts that you may have about needing an operation as we believe that as long as you are employed here, you will need all of whatever you have and you should not consider having anything removed. We hired you as you are and to have anything removed would certainly make you less than we bargained for. DEATH: (your own). This will be accepted as an excuse but we would like two weeks notice. We feel it is your duty to teach your successor your job before you leave.

We would also point out that entirely too much time is being spent in the restroom. In the future we will follow the practice of going in alphabetical order.

For example: Those whose names begin with "A" will go from 8 to 8:15; "B's" will go from 8:15 to 8:30 and so on. If you are unable to go at your appointed time, it will be necessary to wait until the next day when your turn comes again.

Now, remember Mr. Spectator said that he presented this memorandum "with tongue in cheek." Actually it was not issued at the Times-News. The newspaper has absolutely no rule which says you must give notice before you die—so there!

GIVEAWAY DEPT.

"I JUST MIGHT HAVE A MALPRACTICE SUIT HERE"

Times-News Public Forum

It's Disturbing

Editor, Times-News:

This is an open letter to Evelyn Nolt of Carmel Valley, California, who recently wrote letters of comment to the Times-News.

Having just got through reading your letter in the Times News of Oct. 6, I'd like to bring to your mind a few thoughts that have occurred to me.

I, too, feel a terrible sick sensation at the thought of rabbits being beaten to death with clubs. I feel sick to think of steers being slaughtered for meat, or, indeed, being branded and ear-marked, watted, and vaccinated along with another operation which is regularly performed upon them. I feel sick to think of gophers and sturlings being poisoned, of little children being beaten to the point of death by adults, of people being maimed, crippled, and killed by automobiles, of the people of India and other countries starving to death, of the atrocities being perpetrated upon subjected peoples in so many countries, and on and on.

War makes me sick, to think our boys and young men have to face the horrors they do face. But I feel humble and very grateful that somebody is strong enough to do these things. Somebody has to face the communists and keep them from confronting you and me at our front door, and maybe reducing us to slavery. Somebody has to raise, fatten, and butcher steers, pigs, chickens, etc. so we can eat meat. Somebody has to poison gophers and sturlings and get rid of rabbits, so they won't take the food meant for the cattle and people. If the food in this United States isn't protected from predators we'd all be deprived, the producer of it, and you and me, also.

I agree with you that the rabbit skin isn't pretty, but would you like it better if each rabbit had to die with poison in his belly? That's a horrible death too.

When I was about eight or ten years old my parents and we children lived on the edge of sagebrush near Richfield, Idaho. We went to a rabbit drive. The rabbits were thick

the people there had to do something to save acres of grain and hay they needed to live. I saw the rabbits being slaughtered, and I didn't enjoy it. Neither do I, but I seemed very necessary to those people. In those days children experienced the realities of life along with the adults. And I don't believe they grew up into fiends because of it. I feel it is false sentiment to keep all the realities of life away from young people until, as adults they have to meet the cruelties and stark facts without any preparation. I assure you I am as "sane" as a big share of my fellow citizens, and as humane and sympathetic, as kind hearted, but I feel we are living in a world that requires savagery at times. The Lord help us if we can't muster up the necessary strength to be savage as occasion demands: We need enough backbone to do what we must do to live, be it protecting our crops from rabbits, chastising our child, fighting for a just cause, or defending ourselves from being annihilated.

In closing, I'd suggest that you and all the others who have been appalled at the rabbit story find out the facts. Perhaps you then would feel more understanding and not be so ready to condemn.

Price Freeze

Editor, Times-News:

Perhaps some people have wondered how the wage-price freeze is doing. Any of you who are employed by someone else know how the wage freeze is working. But how about the costs of articles here in our own little community of Twin Falls.

On Thursday, Nov. 4 I spent an hour of time checking grocery prices in the September 2 edition of the Times-News. I compared these prices with prices here today. The store I will give as an example is, I believe, the major grocery store in Twin Falls.

The first figure given is the advertised price in the September 2 issue of the Times-News. The second figure is the price of the same article on November 4. In each case the priced article is identical in size, weight and packaging:

Slivark bread, 29 cents and 35 cents; Del Monte catsup, 25 cents and 35 cents; AA (Store brand) eggs, medium a dozen, 36 cents and 42 cents; Van Camp pork and beans, 18 cents and 19 cents; DM whole corn, 25 cents and 27 cents; DM beans, whole 25 cents and 27 cents; Gold Medal flour, 10 pounds, $1.28 and $1.38; Grade A eggs, store brand, 55 cents and 60 cents; ground beef, store package, one pound, 58 cents and 58 cents; Bar S ham, pound package 98 cents and 98 cents; wieners, Falls Brand pound package, 49 cents and 59 cents; bologna, store brand, pound, 49 cents and 59 cents; All-Sweet margarine, pound, 34 cents and 34 cents; Scott paper towels, two for 53 cents and two for 53 cents; milk, store brand, gallon, 99 cents and 1.16.

This adds up to $8.61 paid for these items on Sept. 2 and $9.37 paid for identical list on November 4.

From this comparison you can see that food prices in this store have risen an average of about 10 per cent. The compared prices in one other store I checked near the one whose prices are quoted, showed prices there are up 13 per cent over the same period.

I think we understand the wage freeze part of the President's economic plan but will someone please explain the price-freeze?

These prices were personally checked with the aid of my wife. Is there something phoney about this so-called price-freeze? Robert A. Johnson Twin Falls

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Suggestions

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am tied down with my mother and can't get out for advice so I will write to you:

I had a small place on my neck and the doctor said it looked like a cyst so he removed it. When I went back to have the stitches removed, he said it was a benign tumor, but later he called me to his office and told me it was a skin cancer.

It upset me so I left the office without asking any questions, and now I want to know.

How long a life does one have after the first sign of skin cancer? How long before there will be other places? Should there be some treatment I should be getting? — Mrs. W. B.

People with skin cancer live as long as anyone else — provided the cancer is completely removed. Since the cancer is on the surface, it can be seen and thus removed early.

You can't always tell just by looking at it, so when tissue is removed, the safe thing is to send it to a laboratory for microscopic examination. That's what your doctor did.

You certainly should return to your doctor, to see if there is any sign of further growth. If examination shows that he was successful in removing all of the cancerous tissue, then forget about it.

But do go back for a recheck. That's the only safe thing for you to do now.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had two myocardial infarctions, prolonged angina pectoris, and the last time in the hospital thyrotoxic heart disease was added to the list. Can you explain this to me? — H.M.A.

It means there is excessive activity by the thyroid gland. This can cause rapid heart beat and some degree of heart failure and angina that is refractory to treatment until the thyroid problem is brought under control.

Diverticulosis is a bulge in the digestive tract. To become more familiar with the subject, write for Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You," enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What danger would there be to the baby if one should unknowingly become pregnant while using a foam contraceptive and has continued to use such a contraceptive?

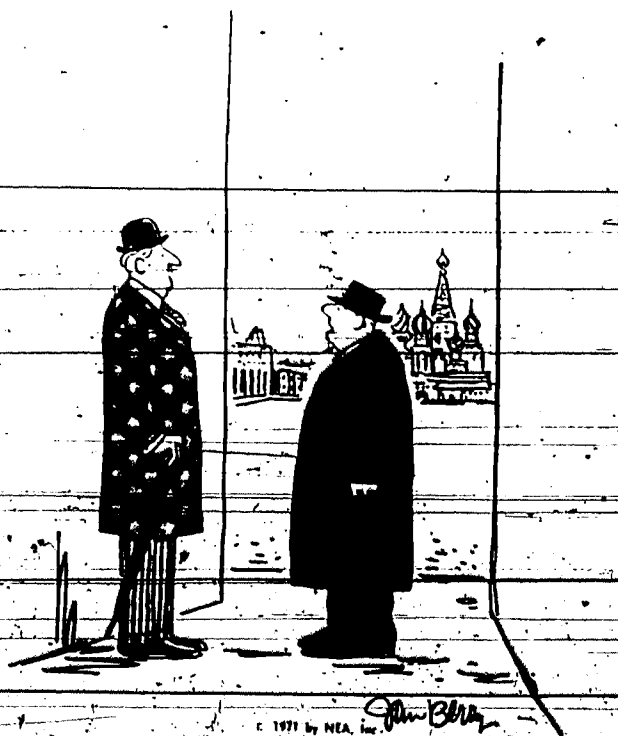

Also what risks are involved if one should become pregnant a few weeks after a miscarriage, and before the first menstrual period has occurred? — Mrs. P. M. P.

First question: no danger. Second: no special risk. If the factors, whatever they were, that caused the miscarriage are still present, then another miscarriage could occur.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do polyps in the rectum ever grow back once you have them removed? — C. W. C.

Such polyps don't usually grow back, but there is no guarantee that new ones won't appear in the general area.

Historical meet set

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Historical Society will hold its first indoor meeting of the season on Wednesday Nov. 17.

It will be held at 8 p.m. at the Idaho Power Auditorium, according to Mrs. Harold Waggoner, Twin Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Waggoner will show slides of the field trips the society took to historical areas during this past summer. The tours included Jordan Valley, Ore., Boulder City, Lemhi Valley, Gilmore, charcoal kilns, old Fort Lemhi, Leesburg and the Crystal Ice Caves.

If anyone missed any of the tours, now is the time to see what was missed.

Conrad, formerly of Buhl, Lombard graduated from Valley High School at Eden, then earned a bachelor of architecture degree from Idaho State University, Pocatello. While attending college, he worked for the Pocatello firm of Hamilton and Voeller, consulting engineers.

A registered architect and a qualified fallow shelter analyst, Lombard is responsible for development of design concepts of all of Adams' projects. He joined the firm in 1968.

Conrad, a graduate of Buhl High School, received his bachelor of architecture degree from the University of Idaho, and has worked in Moscow, where he was employed by the city of Moscow in the engineering department, as well as by the architectural firm of Prichard-Blanton, and for a firm in Vancouver, British Columbia.

Conrad is responsible for preparation of contract documents for construction of projects designed by Adams and his associates. He also became affiliated with the firm in 1968.

Summer range fire damage repair starts

SHOSHONE — Some of the 1971 summer range fire damage on public lands in Idaho is now being repaired.

William L. Mathews, state Bureau of Land Management director, said an initial allocation of $315,200 has provided funds to begin fire rehabilitation work on about 50,000 acres. Bill Jensen, BLM forester in charge of the rehabilitation project, said one contract, on the 2,000 acre south side burn in the Shoshone District, has already been completed.

Four others, totaling about 34,000 acres in the Idaho Falls and Shoshone districts, are now under contract and work is proceeding. Bids have been opened for 8,000 acres of reseeded on the cheatgrass burn south of Hammett in the Boise District, Jensen said. BLM crews have planted about 500 acres on the Sugar Creek burn, also in the Boise District.

32 violators cited

JEROME — Thirty-two violators were cited into court for alleged Idaho Fish and Game Department regulation violations in Magic Valley, according to a report released today by regional headquarters at Jerome.

Fifteen of these violators were successful deer hunters who failed to punch their deer tags or didn't have the tag attached.

Another 23 violators were issued warnings on minor infractions—

Famed meeting century ago

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Nov. 10 marks the 100th anniversary of one of the world's best known meetings, between an aging missionary, believed lost, and a newspaper reporter who trekked eight months through African wilderness to find him.

Although time was blurred, the thrust of the event as one of the leading news stories of an era, the first words exchanged by the two still live on:

"Dr. Livingstone, I presume."

Yes.

Henry Morton Stanley, the reporter sent to find Dr. David Livingstone, earned fame because of the meeting. But, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, Stanley's true importance lies in his discovery and development of the Congo.

Stanley, an illegitimate Welsh boy, ran away from a workhouse and migrated to America at the age of 15. He fought in the Civil War—for the South until captured, then for the North—and afterward became a reporter. He covered Indian uprisings for a St. Louis newspaper then joined the New York Herald as a foreign correspondent.

While covering one of the Spanish civil wars he was given what was to become perhaps the best known assignment in the history of journalism—"find Livingstone."

Serious exploration of the continent's interior, postponed since the dawn of history, was just beginning, and Livingstone's accounts of "Darkest Africa" had interested readers throughout Europe and America.

A Scotman, Livingstone was trying to end the slave trade by finding new trade routes for a substitute commerce through the hundreds of miles of wilderness.

For three years there had been no direct word from the missionary. Rumors persisted that he was alive and in dire need. Stanley, after stopping off to cover the opening of the Suez Canal, reached Zanzibar on Jan. 8, 1871, and finally set out for the interior on March 21 through country infested by warfare and disease.

Stanley, as luck would have it, got a tip. Natives said a white man was ill in the village of Ujiji, on Lake Tanganyika. This was the headquarters of the slave traders. But Stanley sensed that the old missionary's zeal could indeed have brought him to the door of the enemy. He went in that direction and found his story.

The celebrated meeting occurred on Nov. 10, 1871, and Stanley stayed on with Livingstone several weeks. Together they explored Lake Tanganyika. Stanley then returned to England.

Livingstone that next August received reinforcements of supplies and men sent by Stanley. Somewhat recovered, he began another exploration. But his sickness returned and he died on the trail, drawing maps almost until the end of his life.

Livingstone's death inspired Stanley to take up African exploration where his friend left off. He made many important geographical contributions, including discovery of Lake George and the mouth of the Ubangi, and his river navigations provided the key to opening the interior. But he failed to interest the British in the Congo. He then accepted the invitation of Belgium to develop the area.

Mariner reaches orbit

AFTER 248 million-mile journey from Earth, Mariner 9 goes into orbit around Mars on Nov. 13 in this artist's drawing. Earth and its moon, somewhat enlarged, are in background. Mariner will be first U.S. spacecraft to orbit another planet. Its mission is to take TV pictures of Mars, mapping over 70 per cent of its surface, study surface temperature, and examine composition of surface and atmosphere. Orbit will last 12 hours, varying from 750 miles to 10,700 miles. (UPI)

Autos defective

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—The Auto Club of Missouri said Monday tests on American cars produced since 1965 showed that a percentage of every make of automobile had defective motor mounts.

In a report released Monday, the club said it made the discovery while checking Chevrolets at its auto diagnostic center to document recent National Highway Traffic Safety Administration charges that faulty motor mounts had been found in Chevrolets produced from 1965 to 1969.

Other cars produced since 1965 also were checked during the study, the club said, and their motor mounts were found defective.

The mounts, consisting of a pad of rubber between two steel plates, are designed to absorb noise, vibration and torque reaction from the engine's operation while providing support. Defective mounts can cause loss of control of a car.

The club said it inspected 536 cars at its clinic last month and 116 were found to have broken mounts and 56 worn mounts.

Of the cars inspected, the club said General Motors cars had 29 per cent defective mounts, Ford 22 per cent and Chrysler 10 per cent. Out of 19 American Motor Co. cars checked, one had a broken mount. In addition, defective mounts were discovered on Volkswagen, Mercedes and MG cars, the club said.

Opera's manager knighted

LONDON (UPI)—Rudolf Bing became Sir Rudolf Tuesday in a Buckingham Palace ceremony which he said represented for him "a wonderful climax to a hard-working career."

Queen Elizabeth knighted the Vienna-born general manager of New York's Metropolitan Opera House in appreciation for his services to music and the arts over a career that spanned more than four decades.

Only hours before Bing, 69, bowed his head and became a Knight of the British Empire, he was relaxing in a hotel room armchair, saying he was through with opera.

"No, no more," he said with a resolute shake of the head. "I've had enough. I want to get away from it. I mean, 23 years is a long time, isn't it?"

Bing retires from his post at the Met next June.

"It's not that I don't love opera," he said. "But things have grown harder, more complicated over the years. When I joined the Metropolitan, we had a 16-week season. Now it's 31. We tour for six, spend another three doing festivals, another two in concerts in the park. In all, it adds up to a 62-week year."

Approval expected

SPOKANE (UPI)—The chairman of the board of Spokane's planned world exposition in 1974 said here Monday he was "very optimistic" that the event would receive the blessing of the bureau or international exhibitions when it meets Nov. 24 in Paris.

Roderick Lindsay said there were still some questions to be cleared up regarding rules and regulations for the Expo, but he said they were being worked out.

Lindsay said he will return to Paris this week and rejoin Expo's managing director, King F. Cole, for a meeting of the classification committee of the BIE Nov. 22.

Lindsay said the classification committee then will make its recommendations to the 80 member-nation BIE, which will make the final decision Nov. 24.

Medic, lawyer join for high rating

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—How much does a hit show like "Marcus Welby, M.D." mean to a network in the television ratings?

The answer couldn't be more clear as a result of the last two national popularity rankings of all the prime time network programs.

For the ratings of the week ending Oct. 24, ABC-TV's "Welby" and "Owen Marshall, Counselor At Law" came in second and third as they teamed up for an interwoven two-part story.

It also helped "Marshall" that the CBS-TV competition was a documentary. Nonetheless, there is little question that "Marshall" would have done remarkably well in the ratings anyway because of the temporary tieup with "Welby."

And to a network, that means money, often lots of it, as its ratings average is pushed up, meaning it can ask higher advertising prices.

Now consider "Owen Marshall, Counselor At Law" in the latest national ratings for the week ending Oct. 31. This time it was strictly on its own, there was no tieup with "Welby," no CBS-TV documentary either—and it came in 36th.

"Welby," however, is still right up there—in third place, behind NBC-TV's Flip Wilson and CBS-TV's "All In The Family."

Rounding out the top five are a couple of potboiler CBS-TV action series, "Hawaii Five-O" and "Mannix."

The big surprise in the top 10 is the ninth place showing of ABC-TV's Monday night pro football game.

It happened to be a first class athletic attraction—the Baltimore Colts against the Minnesota Vikings—and it showed how a network can make hay by presenting truly outstanding sports events in prime time.

Also continuing to do well for ABC-TV is its new series "Longstreet," with James Franciscus as a blind insurance investigator. It ranked 16th this time, and has been renewed by the network for the season.

By the way, one of the atrocious new series, CBS-TV's "The Chicago Teddy Bears," a speakeasy-era comedy, is reported by the trade paper "Daily Variety" to have been canceled by the network. It came in 67th.

At the same network, there was disappointment that Bill Cosby's half-hour "Aesop's Fables" special finished only 45th. Cosby, whose NBC-TV comedy was canceled last season, is reported set to do an hour variety series for CBS-TV next fall.

Over at NBC-TV, meanwhile, attempts to push the new comedy-variety series, "The Funny Side," continue to come up short. In the latest ratings, it failed twice, once as a Special and once in its regular spot.

The "Special," which was really just another edition of the series, ranked 52nd, and the regularly-scheduled show came in 68th, barely above the network's Saturday evening news.

Holding down last position again is the Shirley MacLaine comedy, which had a rating lower than the evening news broadcasts of the same network, ABC-TV.

State asks approval

BOISE (UPI) — The State Tuesday asked for federal court approval of the controversial 1971 legislative reapportionment plan.

State officials said the plan was solid except for some minor changes needed to correct clerical errors.

Chief Deputy Attorney General Clarence D. Sulter said the plan was the result of a "heroic and well-considered job" by the legislature.

The reapportionment plan has been challenged by critics who charge it has population disparities, dilutes urban interests and has other faults. A suit against the plan will be taken up in U. S. District Court here Nov. 19.

Sulter said population disparities in the plan were deliberate.

The brief filed Tuesday, signed by Sulter, Attorney General W. Anthony Park, and Assistant Attorney General J. Dennis Williams, asks for the court's approval of the plan with any corrections to be made later by the legislature.

As an alternative, the state asked that if the court finds the reapportionment plan does not comply with requirements of the equal protection clause of the 14th amendment to the Constitution the legislature, rather than the court, be ordered to prepare another plan.

The brief further asks that if the court decides to prepare and order into effect a provisional reapportionment plan that plan incorporate as much of the present legislation as constitutionally possible.

Sulter's brief, accompanied by statements from various legislators, contends the legislative districts established by the reapportionment law have "substantially equal populations."

It claims the variations in population between legislative districts were based on "legitimate considerations" including population growth which could be predicted with accuracy, adjustments to account for non-resident students, and the desire to use as much as practical existing county, natural and historic boundary lines to establish districts with "sufficient community of interest" to provide the most effective representation.

TOM HELTON, Denver, stares into space as he holds his daughter, Jennifer, 2, and feeds her some grapes. Mrs. Lyn Helton, 20, a terminal cancer patient who talked about her thoughts on death and recorded these thoughts on tape, died Nov. 7. (UPI)

Utah banker refuses to testify voluntarily

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Utah banker refused to testify voluntarily on charges El Paso Natural Gas Co. offered his bank an interest free deposit of $100,000 if he supported legislation to grant the company an exemption from antitrust laws.

It was learned Tuesday that the Senate Commerce Committee will subpoena Salt Lake City Banker John H. Klas, who also is Utah's Democratic chairman, to testify on the alleged offer by an El Paso official.

A witness before the committee said last month Klas—whom he did not name in open session—was reluctant to testify for fear of "economic reprisals" by the huge pipeline company.

Scott Cuming, El Paso vice president and general counsel, testifying under oath, said at the time the testimony by a Ralph Nader associate was "an absolute, unmitigated lie."

The Nader associate, Beverly C. Moore Jr., who identified Klas only as a Utah banker active in Democratic politics, later told the committee privately he was talking about Klas.

Klas testified earlier in the hearing in opposition to the bill introduced by the committee chairman, Sen. Warren D. Magnuson, D-Wash., to reverse four Supreme Court rulings that El Paso had illegally taken over the Pacific Northwest Pipeline Co.

Following Moore's testimony, Klas was asked to submit an affidavit on the subject, but refused to do so unless he was subpoenaed by the committee.

Magnuson contends the court-ordered vestiture of the smaller pipeline by El Paso would result in higher gas costs for Pacific Northwest consumers and merely replace a big monopoly with a smaller one.

Authority tested

BOISE (UPI) — In a case testing the authority of an urban renewal agency to condemn property, the Boise Redevelopment Agency was portrayed Tuesday as the "alter ego of the city."

The Yick Kong Corporation of Washington, owner of real estate along Front Street near Capitol in Boise, had appealed to the high court a Fourth District Court decision by Judge Alfred C. Hagan that the condemnation of private property for an urban renewal project was constitutional.

The appellant contends that the Idaho Urban Renewal Law of 1965, which grants the power of eminent domain to the Boise Redevelopment Agency (BRA), was an invalid legislative delegation of power.

Ell Weston, Boise, attorney for the Yick Kong Corp., said the BRA acts in behalf of the city to issue revenue bonds for project financing that don't require voter approval.

Weston argued that these bonds must have prior voter approval.

The corporation also argued that the condemnation is not for "public use."

Weston said the term "public use" is too vague as defined in the 1965 law and said the question is who benefits from a condemnation action.

He contended that private corporations are the benefactors since the BRA merely transfers ownership of the condemned property to another private company.

But Robert Ennis, attorney for the BRA, said the determination of "public use" is outlined in the law.

Ennis said the "elimination of slums, blight and deterioration" are the benefits and that "the sale of land to private corporations after being acquired by the urban renewal agency is merely incidental to the public use benefits."

Ennis said, without the power of public domain the agency couldn't function and without the issuance of revenue bonds the renewal projects could not be financed.

The Yick Kong property had been found deteriorated by a Boise City Council resolution in 1967.

Boise Redevelopment and Yick Kong were unable to negotiate the sale of the property and the case was submitted to the Fourth District Court.

Judge Hagan ruled that while part of the 1965 Idaho law was unconstitutional.

Teton Dam hearing slated

BOISE (UPI) — A hearing is scheduled in Federal Court before Judge Fred M. Taylor Nov. 22 for arguments on three motions involving the controversial Teton Dam project in southeastern Idaho.

The court will hear the motion by environmentalists to halt construction of the project on grounds it is not economically feasible and has not been fully studied.

The court will also hear the motion of the Madison-Fremont Irrigation District to intervene on behalf of the defendants and a motion of the Idaho Reclamation Association to intervene as amicus curiae (friend of the court).

Supreme court considers case

BOISE (UPI) — The Supreme Court Tuesday considered a case testing whether the Idaho Water Resource Board acted unconstitutionally in making a loan for development of lands near Payette.

The case involved a $5,500 loan made by the board from its revolving development fund to Arvoe I. Christensen for development of irrigation wells to be used in supplying water to arid lands near Payette.

W. F. Yost, Nampa, appealing a Fourth District Court decision which held the loan proper, contended the loan to the individual was "absolutely a lending of the credit of the State of Idaho" which is prohibited by the constitution.

He said the state can make such loans only when there is a "compelling public interest" and said in this case there was no such interest. The loan was made to an individual to profit on a private enterprise.

But Phillip Barber, assistant attorney general appearing for the water board, said the loan was an extension of credit for public purpose rather than a lending of credit.

Barber said the public purpose is to develop the state's arid lands and to help limit any diversion of Idaho's water to other states.

"The actual benefits are going to be to the State of Idaho in the realization of development of its water resources," he said.

Board asked to refine priorities

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho board of corrections was asked to refine its priorities Tuesday for the new prison site after a spokesman said occupation of the facility could begin with a $3 million allocation for completion of priority buildings.

Bob Rice of Boise, told the Permanent Building Fund Council that the timetable acceleration would be accomplished by putting off some $1.1 million in lower-priority construction.

The request came after the Department of Public Works told the council there would be about $1.1 million available for building projects in fiscal 1973 because of estimated fiscal 1973 income at $4.3 million and contract obligations of $3.2 million.

Castro opens Chilean talks

SANTIAGO (UPI) — Fidel Castro begins a visit of at least one week in Chile today, his first trip outside Cuba in seven years. President Salvador Allende said talks between the two leaders will center on matters "divine" and "human."

The exact itinerary and length of the Cuban premier's trip remained secret, presumably for security reasons. More than 2,500 police were assigned to guard him in Santiago.

Allende outlined the program Tuesday night during a news conference attended by the more than 100 foreign reporters who have converged on the capital for the visit.

Allende, who first met Castro Jan. 26, 1959, in the presidential palace in Havana and eight times since in the Cuban capital, said their conversations in the next week would be free from protocol.

"We will talk of the divine and the human," he said, smiling broadly.

Allende also said that Castro, who expelled 600 foreign priests after seizing power in Cuba in 1959, will confer with Chilean Cardinal Raul Silva Henriquez, an extreme liberal who has endorsed the programs of the Allende government and publicly embraced avowed atheist Allende.

Castro was educated in Roman Catholic schools but abandoned the faith when he became a self-proclaimed Marxist-Leninist. Some time after the expulsion of the priests, most of them Spanish, the Cuban leader made a rapprochement with the Roman Catholic Church.

The Cuban premier will travel almost the length of the 2,600-mile-long nation, visiting nationalized copper mining camps in the north, several cities and petroleum fields in the south.

Allende said he would spend two days in the capital of 3 million persons, depart Friday for the northern city of Antofagasta and may go from there to Arica on the Peruvian border.

Vets get unfair treatment

ATLANTA (UPI) — Army Chief of Staff Gen. William C. Westmoreland told the Southern Governors' Conference Tuesday that America's Vietnam veterans too often are coming home to a nation that unfairly suspects them of being drug addicts, and has too few jobs to offer them.

The governors, holding their 37th annual meeting, also heard the federal government's anti-crime program denounced as a "mugging" operation, and received a report from Tennessee Gov. Winfield Dunn on how his state is establishing regional jails to replace huge prisons.

Alabama Gov. George Wallace, meanwhile, dropped an anti-busing resolution into the hopper, while professing he wished somebody else would lead the way. Several other governors are expected to offer similar resolutions, and the conference is expected to take a stand against busing to achieve racial balance in public schools.

Westmoreland called on the governors to do their part in seeing that returning Vietnam veterans get fair treatment in the job market and the education, if they so desired.

He said veterans should be employed in state jobs while attending schools to supplement their GI bill, which he said was "inadequate to support a student veteran and his family if he is married."

The Army chief of staff said Vietnam veterans "are as deserving of the nation's support as any other veterans in our past history," but that many are "returning to a civilian environment which they find indifferent to their needs and, in some cases, downright hostile."

He said the situation is further complicated by the current high unemployment rate and the unsettled economic condition.

"Much publicity has been given to the drug problem among military men to the extent it appears many are suspect without cause," Westmoreland said.

He pointed that the drug problem is a national one and should be understood in a national context, rather than focusing on one group.

Republican Gov. Linwood Holton of Virginia told his colleagues the federal government was "mugging" the states with matching fund programs, like the Crime Control Act.

"We've got to spend our money for education, welfare, health and other essential services we have so we can't put up new dollars to help finance new programs, glamorous though they may be," Holton said.

Sentenced

HARRY C. BASS Jr. hides his face Tuesday after leaving the federal courtroom at Little Rock, Ark., where he was sentenced to four years in prison and fined $20,000. Bass, the president of the Selb Manufacturing Co., Walnut Ridge, Ark., was convicted of conspiring to conceal defective parts manufactured by his plant for use in General Dynamics F4H fighter bomber. (UPI)

On Sept. 29, 1939, Germany and Russia signed an agreement dividing Poland between them.

Liberal party has wide lead

MANILA (UPI) — The opposition Liberal Party held wide leads Tuesday over six of the eight senate candidates backed by President Ferdinand E. Marcos in the most violent election in the Philippines' 25 years of independence.

During balloting Monday 51 persons were killed, raising the toll since the campaign began July 9 to 213 dead and 242 wounded.

In the Manila mayoralty race, considered the second most important office after the presidency, Liberal Party candidate Ramon D. Bagatsing, 55, defeated two-term incumbent Antonio J. Villagas.

The president was not up for election in this off-year in which eight of the nation's 24 senate seats were at stake. Liberty Party victories in six of the eight contests would give the senate 15 members from Marcos' Nacionalista Party, eight Liberals and one independent. A senate term is for six years.

Front-running liberals were incumbent Sens. Jovito Salonga, Genaro Magsaysay and Eva Estrada-Kalaw, Rep. John Osriena, Rep. Ramon Mitra and former Rep. Edgar Ilarde. The two Nacionalistas were Manuel Elizalde Jr. and Ernesto Maceda.

Israel will talk canal reopening

By United Press International — Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said Tuesday Israel still is willing to negotiate an agreement with Egypt on reopening the Suez Canal. A leading Egyptian political figure said Cairo never will accept a settlement authorized by the United States and Israel.

In another development in the simmering Middle East dispute, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat presided at a four-hour meeting Tuesday night of the supreme council of the armed forces where military leaders discussed important military questions connected with the developments of the Middle East crisis and its possible future developments. The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram said in its Wednesday editions.

Sadat assumed direct control of Egypt's 800,000-man armed forces last week. Monday, War Minister Mohammed Ahmed Sadek, who was at the meeting, said Sadat was devoting the majority of his time to the armed forces now that there is "no alternative to the battle" with Israel.

The Egyptian politician Mohammed Abdel Salam el-Zayyat, first secretary of the Arab Socialist Union's central committee, told a Cairo celebration marking the 54th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution in Russia.

School tax hike rejected

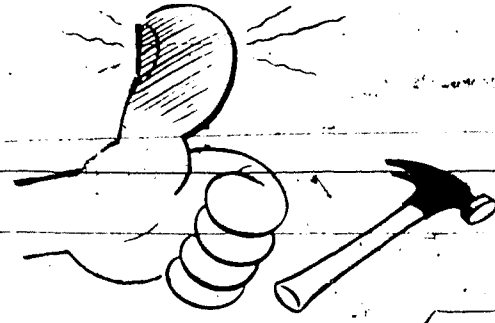

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI) — Residents of this Kansas City suburb, home of former President Harry S. Truman, Tuesday soundly rejected a proposed school tax increase that would have reopened the city's 25 public schools.

The outcome left uncertain the fate of 17,000 students who have been out of class since Nov. 1, when officials closed the schools because they lacked money to meet the November teacher payroll.

With returns in from all but one of the city's 12 polling places, plus absentee ballots, the vote was 8,070 in favor and 3,153 against, with a two-third majority needed for passage.

Officials had promised to reopen schools Wednesday if the increase were approved. But they said a defeat would keep them closed until month's end.

Top court refuses to change ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court refused today to interfere with a lower court ruling that pension plans compelling women workers to retire at an earlier age than men is a civil rights violation.

In another action, the court let stand a circuit court decision that airlines cannot impose a "women only" qualification for the job of flight attendant without violating the civil rights law against sexual discrimination.

The pension order came in the form of a brief order without comment. It left standing an appeals court decision which is technically binding only in the states of Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin which that circuit contains.

But it could have widespread implications if, and when suits on behalf of women's rights are decided in other areas of the country.

The ruling on behalf of an Indiana woman, brewery employee came from the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals which said that forcing women to retire earlier than men is tantamount to discharge on the basis of sex and thus violates the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

In the airlines case, the Supreme Court let stand a decision by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that the refusal of Pan American World Airways to hire a male as a flight attendant was a civil rights violation.

The court took these other actions:
Refused to review a ruling that Thomas G. Jolley, a 27-year-old draft dodger who renounced his American citizenship, is now a man without a country as far as the United States is concerned. Jolley, a native of Greensboro, N.C., formally executed an oath giving up his citizenship after taking refuge from the draft in Canada. He returned to the United States in 1968 and sought to regain his citizenship. The court refusal to hear his case lets stand an immigration service order that he either leave the country within 90 days or be deported to Canada.

Agreed to hear a government appeal that rulings by two lower courts have opened huge loopholes in the tax laws to the benefit of heirs of the wealthy. The case involving the estate of an Ohio businessman who died in 1964 and left controlling interest in three corporations in trust to his children will be argued later this term with the court handing down a written decision later.

Again refused to consider whether to make retroactive a 1969 ruling that military personnel who commit non-service-related crimes must be tried in civilian courts. Without comment, the court dismissed the appeal of Army M.Sgt. Gerald V. Allen who was convicted by court-martial of assault while stationed in Hawaii.

Let stand a decision that the Seattle Times was entitled to publish certain aspects of a 1970 murder even though the Everett, Wash., trial judge had ruled to the contrary. The Washington State Supreme Court had thrown out contempt findings against two reporters for the newspaper.

The woman who brought the pension case to the courts was Ann Bartmess of South Bend, Ind., who was forced to retire at Drewry's brewery on her 62nd birthday under terms of a pension plan negotiated by her union. Male employees were allowed to continue working until age 65.

She first complained to the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission (EEOC) four months before her scheduled retirement date, and when given the go-ahead by the EEOC two years later, sued the company and the union, Local 275 of the United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers of America.

The U.S. District Court at South Bend dismissed her suit on technical grounds—a decision the appeals court reversed in its ruling. The company and the union appealed to the Supreme Court, arguing that the appeals court decision would have "substantial, if not disastrous" financial consequences for "a host of other companies and unions" that have retirement plans differentiating between men and women.

Sentenced

STEVE GROGAN, 20, was sentenced to death in the gas chamber by a Superior Court jury in Los Angeles after being convicted of first degree murder in the slaying of movie stuntman Donald (Shorty) Shea, whose body never was found. He is the seventh member of the Charles Manson "family" to receive the death penalty. (UPI)

Too early to tell on taxes

BOISE (UPI)—Acting Budget Director D.E. "Skip" Chilberg said Monday it is still too soon to make any long-range projections concerning tax returns so far in fiscal 1972.

Chilberg said it was too early to tell what effect the federal economic policies would have on returns to the state's coffers.

It was noted, however, that in the first four months of the current fiscal year—July through October—that all taxes collected were six per cent more than in the first four months of fiscal 1971.

The return to the state's general fund so far has been $32.8 million. The acting director noted the state's present general fund budget is based on an income of $125.3 million to the fund. But, he said, it will be sometime after April before it will be known whether the income will meet the anticipated total.

He added a five-man revenue projection committee should report by next month on the outlook for the state of Idaho.

Figures released by the state tax commission included:
—An 11.5 per cent increase in sales tax collections from $122 million to $127 million, down slightly from the earlier increases of about 12 per cent.

—An increase of 6.1 per cent in the motor fuel tax collections.
—A $119,367 increase in individual income tax collections in the first four months of fiscal 1972.

—and increases in cigarette, beer and inheritance taxes with a new collection of $151,847 on the retail wines.

Wire lack silences Big Ben

LONDON (UPI)—Time stood still Monday for Big Ben—all because of a piece of wire.

The famous clock above the houses of parliament is one of the world's most accurate timepieces. But for 67 minutes Monday, Big Ben said it was 4:53 p.m.

A spokesman for the Ministry of Public Buildings and Works said a piece of cable discarded by post office engineers had wrapped around the clock's drive shaft on the east face and stopped it.

John Vernon of the London clockmakers Thwaites and Reed got Big Ben going again at precisely 6 p.m.

Despite its reputation, Big Ben has had its untimely moments over the years. Soon after it was erected last century, for instance, it struck one hour 49 times in a row.

Phase II wage policy adopted

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The text of the Phase II wage policy adopted Monday by the Pay Board on a 10 to 5 vote:

1. Millions of workers in the nation are looking to the Pay Board for guidance with respect to permissible changes in wages, salaries, various benefits and all other forms of employe total compensation. It is imperative to have a simple standard with as broad a coverage as possible at as early a date as possible.

There is probably a need for exceptions and for individual consideration of special situations as soon as practicable and guidance to the millions whose pay relations are relatively simple is an early essential.

2. This general pay standard is intended, in conjunction with other needed measures, to meet the objectives which led to the establishment of this board.

3. The general pay standard should be applicable to:

Changes that need approval before becoming effective; changes that must be reported when they become effective, and all other changes requiring compliance but not requiring specific approval or reporting.

4. (A) Effective Nov. 14, 1971, the general pay standard shall be applicable to new labor agreements and, where no labor agreement is in effect, to existing pay practices. The general pay standard would provide:

On and after Nov. 14, 1971, permissible annual aggregate increases would be those normally considered supportable by productivity improvement and cost of living trends. Initially, the general pay standard is established as 5.5 per cent. The appropriateness of this figure will be reviewed periodically by the board, taking into account such factors as the long-term productivity trend of 3 per cent, cost of living trends, and the objective of reducing inflation.

In reviewing new contracts and pay practices, the Pay Board shall consider ongoing collective bargaining and pay practices and the equitable position of the employees involved, including the impact of recent changes in the cost of living upon the employees' compensation.

(B) Existing contracts and pay practices previously set forth will be allowed to operate according to their terms except that specific contracts or pay practices are subject to review, when challenged by a party at interest or by five or more members of the board, to determine whether any increase is unreasonably inconsistent with the criteria established by this board.

In reviewing existing contracts and pay practices, the Pay Board shall consider ongoing collective bargaining and pay practices and the equitable position of the employees involved, including the impact of recent changes in the cost of living upon the employees' compensation.

(C) Scheduled increases in payment for services rendered during the "freeze" of Aug. 16 through Nov. 13, 1971, may be made only if approved by the board in specific cases. The board may approve such payments in cases which are shown to meet any of the following criteria:

(I) Prices were raised in anticipation of wage increases scheduled to occur during the "freeze."

(II) A wage agreement made after Aug. 15, 1971, succeeded an agreement that had expired prior to Aug. 16, 1971, and retroactivity was an established practice or had been agreed to by the parties.

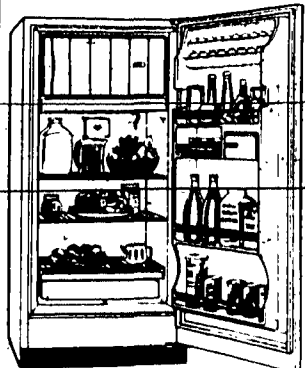

(III) Such other criteria as the board may hereafter establish to remedy severe inequities.

5. Following approval of special procedures by the Pay Board with respect to hearing "prior approval" cases and other special situations, application may be made for an exception to the general pay standard and for a hearing on such matters as inequities and substantial conditions.

6. No retroactive downward adjustment of rates now being paid will be required by operation of the general pay standard unless the rates were raised in violation of the freeze or of the general pay standard.

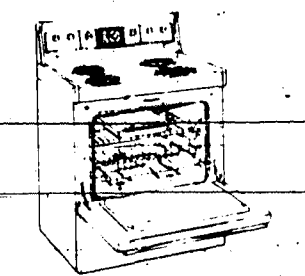

7. Provisions may be considered for vacation plans, in-plant adjustments of wages and salaries, in-grade and length of service increases, payments under compensation plans, transfers and the like.

Col. Herbert denies McGovern staff job

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (UPI)—Lt. Col. Anthony Herbert, who is quitting the Army because he allegedly has been harassed for exposing Vietnam atrocities, denied Tuesday that he had accepted a job on the staff of presidential candidate Sen. George S. McGovern.

The South Dakota Democrat announced in Washington earlier in the day that Herbert would function on his staff as a military and veterans affairs adviser.

"It's all a misunderstanding," Herbert said. "It's not true. I'm in uniform and I don't discuss any politics until I'm out of the Army, and that won't be until March 1."

"I was offered a job and I said I would look at the offer—I'd look at any job offer, from General Motors or a shoe company, but I accepted nothing."

"I don't believe a man in uniform has the right to discuss politics or make political statements and since I don't believe others should do it, I certainly won't do it."

Herbert said he had asked that the McGovern offer be put in writing, and apparently this was misconstrued as an acceptance.

"I'm sure it was an honest mistake," Herbert said.

McGovern, in a surprise announcement while speaking to the women's Democratic Club in Bethesda, Md., said: "He (Herbert) told my office this morning that coming to work in my campaign was just what he had in mind when he said yesterday that he would continue to work for what he thought was right for the Army after he retired."

McGovern said Herbert "also offered to speak on my behalf during the campaign."

Herbert, a 41-year-old career soldier and the Army's most decorated enlisted man in the Korean War, signed the forms Tuesday requesting his separation from service.

"If I saved one Vietnamese kid, it's worth it," he said, referring to his ruined military career.

"I think I have awakened many people not aware of what is going on in the service. We have got to get a civilian grip on the military."

"A general now is going to think twice before he orders a free fire or shoots up the place."

want to play, but I am not going to subject my family to it any longer," Herbert said.

He said he and his family had received harassing phone calls at home, and that his commanding officer at Ft. McPherson nagged him about his manner of saluting and his phrasing of the word sir.

HELSINKI (UPI)—A Finn likes his drink so much the state-owned alcohol monopoly ALKO last year became Finland's largest company with a turnover of about 1,133 million marks ($282 million) according to a recent study. Second on the list was Enso-Gutzeit, a paper products manufacturer, and third, Neste, an oil company.

Richfield delays training program

RICHFIELD — Richfield High School's driver training class will be delayed because of lack of funds.

Trustees decided at the monthly meeting Monday night the new program will not start as planned until money is appropriated from the legislature. Richfield needs about $1,000 and plans are made to start in March if the money is available, said Supt. Neil Andreason.

The drivers training program is held after school with the commercial teacher, Charles Buttane.

Andreason reported on attendance of the trustee convention in Twin Falls and announced the discontinuance of teachers institute and reported on driver training plans.

He said the school tuition indebtedness to Minico School district had been reduced and over $7,000 was paid in tuition this year.

Forty students from the Kimama District attended school in the Minico district. Each year, Richfield had been trying to reduce the amount of indebtedness. About $2,000 remains to be paid to the Minico district.

Display of spuds

POTATO display at the Aberdeen experimental station shows unnamed selections of spuds which show promise as varieties which will have superior disease resistance and quality.

Russet potato program developed

ABERDEEN — Are Idaho's Russet Burbank potatoes, second best?

This challenging question must be answered by scientists at the Aberdeen Experiment Station.

In order to resolve this problem, the U. S. Department of Agriculture and University of Idaho Cooperative Potato Breeding program was initiated in 1949. The primary object of the program is to develop and introduce for commercial production a russet skinned potato that would have equal or superior quality plus added disease resistance to that of the Russet Burbank potato.

This has, even though it was expected, turned out to be an exceptionally difficult task. Throughout the duration of the program one variety has been released. This was Shoshoni.

However, this variety was not accepted in the Pacific Northwest because of the fact that it lacked the ideal shape for the fresh market potato that packers desire. It did, however, have superior disease resistance and comparable quality to the Russet Burbank.

There are several seedlings that do show excellent promise at the present time. These seedlings have the desirable shape plus the disease resistance and necessary quality, scientists believe.

Two professional men are responsible for the breeding program. They are a geneticist, Dr. Joseph Pavak, and a plant pathologist, Dr. Dexter Douglas. These men are employed by the U.S.D.A.

Three technical assistants are also employed in the breeding program. One of these is supplied by the university and the other two are supported by funds from the Idaho Potato Commission.

At Aberdeen, laboratory, greenhouse, field and office space and supplies are supplied by the University.

The program is initiated by making desirable breeding crosses between different potatoes. The true seeds from these crosses are grown in the greenhouse at Aberdeen.

About 50,000 seedlings are grown—each year. The tubers from each seedling are harvested and then grown individually in three-foot spaced hills in the field. These hills are dug and then selection for external appearance, shape, russeting is carried out, about two to three per cent are selected. The next year these selections are grown in 10 hill plots. From these plots evaluations are made on quality, approximate yield, and again for external appearance.

The selections that are selected from the 10 hill plots are then the following year placed in numerous disease evaluation and yield trials. The diseases that are evaluated for are leafroll, verticillium wilt, Rhizoctonia, early blight, corky ringspot, and scab.

Preliminary quality evaluations are for specific gravity, cooked texture, and french fry color.

After a selection has shown desirable quality, disease resistance, and external appearance, it is then submitted to a complete quality evaluation by a quality control panel consisting of Dr. Richard Ohms, Twin Falls; Don Robertson, J. R. Simplot Co., Burley; Roger Jones, Magic Valley Foods, Inc., Rupert; Charlie

Carma Owens, Earl Snow exchange nuptial promise

TWIN FALLS — Carma Owens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale K. Owens, Filer, was married to Earl Thomas Snow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Snow, Twin Falls, in rites Oct. 23 at the Idaho Falls LDS Temple.

A reception was held that evening at the Second Ward LDS Church.

The bride wore a gown of embossed taffeta, which she fashioned. The long-sleeved gown featured pearl trim at the empire-waistline with lace flowers enhanced with pearl centers at the neckline and sleeves. Her bouffant veil of bridal illusion was held in place by a small band of white flowers on blue lace. She carried a bouquet of blue carnations and baby's breath. She wore an ivory necklace belonging to her aunt, Mrs. Reed Hulet, Wendell. Glenda Miller, Buhl, was the honor attendant, with Martha Jones, Hollister, and Patricia MacKay, Buhl, as bridesmaids. Jerry McCalman served as best man, with John Snow and Dick Snow, brothers of the bridegroom, as ushers. Guests were registered by Mrs. Jerry McCalman at a table skirted with white net and accented with a blue plumed pen.

The bride's table was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake decorated with blue roses and topped with a miniature of the Salt Lake City LDS Temple. Each tier was encircled with flowers alternating with doves on wedding rings. The table was skirted with white net and trimmed with blue bows. Blue net butterflies decorated the table top. The cake was made by Mrs. Floyd Byington, Ogden. Quartet tables were covered with blue net and trimmed with white pompons over white satin. A blue roses was centered on each table. The gift table was skirted with white net over white satin enhanced with blue bows and white wedding bells. Joe Allen was master of ceremonies for the program. Cake was served by Marsha Snow, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. John Snow and Mrs. Dick Snow, both sisters-in-law of the bridegroom, assisted by Mary Crosserhede, Glenda Wetzelin Connie Wetzelin and Cindy Cammack. Giftbearers were Shirley, Patsy, Tom and Virgil Owens, all sisters and brothers of the bride. Gifts were displayed by Connie Baird, cousin of the bride, and Debbie McCalman. The couple took a honeymoon trip to Boise and will reside at 330 2nd Ave. N. Twin Falls. The bride is attending the College of Southern Idaho and the bridegroom is employed at Penney's.

DOES Lodge to welcome new members

BURLEY — New members will be inducted Nov. 15 during a meeting of the DOES Lodge No. 206 at Burley Elks Lodge Hall.

Mrs. William Morrison, president, Mrs. Helene Coffey, Mrs. Wayne Rogers and Mrs. Rodney Murphy, all trustees, were selected by the members to serve as the officers nominating committee. A report on a slate of officers will be given at the next meeting.

During the recent business meeting the group voted to purchase an item for each of the senior citizens in the geriatrics wing of Cassia Memorial Hospital to be given to them at Christmas. Presently there are 20 senior citizens at the hospital.

Mrs. LePage Layton was appointed chairman of the Christmas gift charity project, assisted by Mrs. Sam Hamilton.

Ways and means project for funds to finance the Christmas charity gifts will be a clothes hamper filled with household items and an afghan. Mrs. Darrell Butcher was appointed chairman of the donations for the project.

Donations may be given to any of the officers of the DOES Lodge. Members have donated trading stamp books which were used to purchase the clothes hamper. They are also donating the household items to fill the hamper. The afghan was made by members. The clothes hamper and the afghan will be awarded Dec. 6 during the group's Christmas party.

Council awards life membership

JEROME — A life membership in the National Council of State Garden Clubs has been presented to Mrs. Marlan Ricketts, Jerome, by the Leaf and Petal Club, according to Mrs. Ivan Mink, club president.

Mrs. Ricketts' activities in the Garden Club field are outstanding and include two years as president of Idaho Federation of Garden Clubs and also two years as vice president, Mrs. Mink said. She has been Magic Valley district director as well as president of the Leaf and Petal Club and has held all other leaf and Petal offices, Mrs. Mink noted.

While serving as state president, Mrs. Ricketts was given a citation for civic leaders of American which was recognized in a National Civic Publication.

State leader is speaker

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho state president of Alpha Delta Kappa, Mrs. Blanche Little, Nampa, was the featured speaker at a meeting of the society this past week at the Rogerson Hotel Roundup Room.

She reviewed the recent International Convention in New York and quoted the convention as an experience in "learning fun and work." Alpha Delta Kappa is an International Society with a capital I," she said. She urged everyone to actively participate for "as you sow so shall you reap."

The society presented Mrs. Little a gift. A door prize was awarded to Marjorie Oldham. Mrs. Ruth Gates, president, conducted the business meeting. Reports were given by Marjorie Oldham and Ruth Rierman.

At present and for many years, she has been a state committee chairman. As a life member, Mrs. Ricketts has received an invitation to attend the annual Life Membership banquet to be held in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1972.

Miss Cook receives scholarship

TWIN FALLS — Janice Cook, Twin Falls, was among 30 Utah State University students to receive $400 Union Pacific scholarships, the railroad recently announced.

Miss Cook is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey M. Cook and a graduate of Twin Falls High School. She is planning to study home economics at USU. The railroad scholarship was raised from its previous amount of $200 to this year's $400, because of the continually rising cost of higher education, according to Union Pacific President John C. Kenefick.

Two Shoshone educators selected for membership

SHOSHONE — The International Platform Assn. has selected two Shoshone educators for inclusion in its membership.

They are Mrs. Ralph Anderson, a former Lincoln elementary teacher for 28 years, and Mrs. William Flavel, who is presently teaching the special reading program at the Lincoln school.

Membership in the IPA places Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Flavel among ranks of the world's notables.

Mrs. Flavel received her bachelor of arts degree in elementary and secondary education at Idaho State University and has now completed her fifth year of college at Boise State. She is now in the master's program as a reading specialist at BSC Reading Center the only center of its kind in the state of Idaho.

She has served in local Idaho Education Assn. Chapter at Shoshone a member of Delta Kappa Gamma Society, national teachers honorary society, and past president of the Richfield-Legion Auxiliary and PTA.

She was graduated from Albion State Normal School and taught in Gooding schools prior to her marriage in 1941. The family home in Richfield and rearing of four children occupied her time until she returned to teaching at Richfield in 1956. In 1962 she came to the Shoshone system and for the past five years has been engaged in the reading program at Lincoln Elementary and Junior High School. She feels the special reading program is a very important facet of a child's education. "It has been interesting, challenging and rewarding," she said.

Mrs. Anderson, a native of Idaho, was graduated from Rupert High School. When faced with rearing and supporting three children, she went back to school, graduating from Albion State Normal in 1942, specializing in primary education.

Along with her teaching in Lincoln County schools, she took extension courses from Idaho State University and the University of Idaho. She has been active in school and community life, serving as vice president of the IEA and holding PTA offices.

She was acting principal at Lincoln school for 1960-61 school year and states she is still very much interested in education. Although not actively engaged in teaching at the present time, she said she still feels strongly about it and feels today's educators should continue to stress reading, phonics, English, good citizenship and good discipline as basic fundamentals.

A Lovelier You

WINTERTIME EXERCISE

By Mary Sue Miller

A mature Lovelier writes I am not overweight, but my figure is getting out of shape. From what I read, exercise seems to be the only remedy. I plus some golf in the summer. But what can one do at my age in harsh weather?

The Answer: Swimming in a heated or indoor pool provides a first-rate workout — whatever your age. Biking also comes highly recommended. It is one of the most popular pastimes in this country today. Only a deluge of deep snow need keep you from a ride. And what exercise could you have not to walk? Doctors are all for walking and jogging for your general well-being.

If you decide on swimming or biking, be ready to give at least three half-hour periods to it each week. An adequate walking program consists of two miles, five days weekly. For good climate, rollers, those lucky people, the minimum is once weekly.

In addition, most localities offer gym and ballet classes. Both are fun, as modern methods focus on rhythmical movements rather than grinding routines. Twice weekly attendance is necessary.

Then there's the home program — the daily dozen. If that sounds boring, remember figures so produced are anything but dull.

Before starting an exercise program make sure you are in normal health. Start off easy, increasing your workouts at your own speed. Once you gain stamina, you will find exercise enjoyable and its own reward.

TF women attend Boise meet

BOISE — The Idaho Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, held its annual state board meeting Saturday at the Rodeway Inn, Boise.

Reports of all state committees were heard at the meeting. Mrs. Ann Wilson, state president, presided.

Mrs. Doris Harper, president of the Twin Falls Club, was Samothrace chairman, pro tem, and reported on the CSI Club.

The CSI Talon was shown as well as pictures of Bonnie Allie, Miss Wool. This is the largest Samothrace Club active in Idaho.

In attendance from the Twin Falls Club were Faye Hoffman, Francis Buchler, Marguerite Montgomery, Joa Powell, Ina Knox, Gertrude Smith, Doris Plinn, Elsie Miller and Mrs. Harper.

Popular story hour

TALES OF TROLLS and holeless doughnuts interest Ketchum children as Ketchum librarians Mrs. Daniel Hart reads to a group of about 12 youngsters during the community library's story hour. The program is open to all 4- and 5-year-olds and is held at 10 a.m. on Monday and Friday.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote in saying she and her husband were embarrassed by a friend who carried on with his girl friend in public, "kissing, hugging, smooching and what not." She claimed it was bad manners, and you advised, "Tell Loverboy to knock off the love scenes in public."

I think you were both wrong. I see nothing wrong with showing affection in public. If people waited until they had total privacy, there would be very little affection shown. And if children were not exposed to displays of affection, they would grow up without knowing what "love" is.

My father is 57, and Mom is 48, and he has always kissed her whenever he felt like it. It didn't matter if we had company or not. And it wasn't a little peck on the cheek. He'd take her in his arms and really kiss her. And not lightly, and not just once, either. And it's the same today.

Once Mom joked, "You've mussed my hair and smeared my lipstick." And Dad grabbed her again and said, "Who has a better right?" And that, in my opinion, is the right attitude. RAISED RIGHT

DEAR RAISED: Hold it! I was also raised right, having seen my father hug and kiss my mother, plus giving her an occasional affectionate whack on the backside. But good taste demands limits. And limits we had in our house. Kids grow up knowing what "love" is without having seen it demonstrated thru to the last act.

DEAR ABBY: George and I have been dating regularly and we really get along very well but he has one habit which drives me up a wall!

When we eat together, before he even TASTES the food, George gets busy with the salt and pepper, and he really lays it on. He does this when we are eating at my home, at the homes of others, or when we're eating out.

Now, Abby, I pride myself on being a pretty good cook, and I know how to season food properly, and I feel insulted when I see him add salt and pepper before he even knows if the food needs it or not.

Can I come right out and tell George it's bad manners? Or should I just ask him to cut it out because it irritates me? I have even thought of making a stew and drowning it in salt and pepper just to teach him a lesson. What is your advice? GEORGE'S LADYFRIEND

DEAR LADYFRIEND: Why waste good food? Simply tell George to please taste the food first, and then if he thinks it needs more salt and pepper to add it. I.P.S. And if this is George's biggest fault, you're a lucky lady!

DEAR ABBY: I am only 20 years old and I am married to a guy who can't get enough sleep. We've been married for two years and he's been this way for the last year, and he's getting worse. I used to have to start begging him on Thursday to take me out on Saturday night. Now it's such a chore I don't even bother. I just sit and watch the Saturday night movie on TV all by myself while he sleeps.

As for sex, he can take it or leave it alone, but he mostly leaves it alone. Is this normal for a 23-year-old guy? I still get whistled at when I walk down the street, so I know it's not ME!

He told me he had a physical at the plant where he works and he came out A-O-K. Please tell me how I can wake up this Rip Van Winkle? RIP'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: It is not normal for a 23-year-old man to be so disinterested in sex. And anyone who sleeps as much as your husband should wake up and get a throbbing erection by another doctor. Don't let him put it off. It could be serious.

TOPS hold rally

TWIN FALLS — Members of TOPS AND KOPS clubs from Magic Valley gathered Monday in Twin Falls for a rally. Peg Curry, Division No. 4 State Trophy winner, was guest speaker.

She said with "group therapy from TOPS I have been offered help in an inexpensive way to get down from a size 20 to a size 9 to 10 dress. We all want what's best out of life. Let's all get on the right path to slimmness. Help people be happy. Work with TOPS."

Featured at the dinner at the Holiday Inn were a style show with fashions from the Paris Co.; a humorous reading, a baggy dress parade, songs, special music and speeches.

Grand master makes official lodge visit

RICHFIELD — George Knoff, grand master of the Masonic lodge for the state of Idaho made his official visit to the Richfield lodge this past week.

Bob Lawson, district deputy grand master for the 13th district, Glenns Ferry, also attended.

Halley Masonic lodge was co-host with the Richfield lodge, with nine Halley men attending. John Lemmon, Richfield master, presided.

Election of officers will take place at the Dec. 2 Richfield lodge meeting.

WENDELL — The United Presbyterian Women will meet at the church on Thursday for a 1:30 p.m. dessert. Mrs. Audrey Schiffler, Mrs. Emma McCloud and Mrs. John Wert are hostesses. The program will be presented by Mrs. Helen Newberry. Her topic will be the alternatives for use of the "Thank Offering" which is an annual observance. Mrs. M. E. Scheel will lead a worship service prior to the afternoon program.

TWIN FALLS — Bridge winners were Mrs. Bill Langley and Dorothy Chapman when members of the PanheHenic Association met at the Colonial House for its monthly meeting. Hostesses were Berniece Babcock and Ruth Edmunds. December hostesses are Mrs. Hilda Burgess and Beulah Way.

GOODING — Advance tickets are now on sale for the Billy Graham film, "For Pete's Sake," to be shown at the Schubert Theatre at 6:30 p.m. and 8:45 p.m. Nov. 16 and 18. Tickets can be purchased from the ticket station at Carrico Hardware through Nov. 15. Tickets will also be available Saturday at a sidewalk ticket booth manned by youth from the First Baptist Church.

Convention speaker scheduled for WOTM

TWIN FALLS — Serving one of the featured speakers at the Idaho Women of the Moose convention this week in Twin Falls will be Mrs. Florence Desrosiers Hackwood, Nanaimo, B. C., Canada.

Mrs. Hackwood, who has belonged to the Vancouver Chapter No. 130, for 45 years, is now Grand Regent of the Women of the Moose. She was appointed to the top post in the WOTM at the international conference at Detroit this year.

The Idaho Women of the Moose and the Idaho Loyal Order of the Moose will hold joint sessions in Twin Falls beginning Thursday. The conventions will end Sunday morning.

FLORENCE HACKWOOD

OES official feted at Filer meeting

FILER — Mrs. Raymond Reichert, grand representative of the grand jurisdiction of the District of Columbia in Idaho, was honored this past week at a meeting of the Order of the Eastern Star at the Masonic Temple.

Also introduced and welcomed by Mrs. Everett Bonnichsen, worthy matron, were Mrs. Richard Machamer, chairman of District No. 11 home interest and benevolent fund; Mrs. B. J. Hawkins, registration committee, and Mrs. Duane Ramseyer, hospitality chairman. Mrs. Bonnichsen presented Mr. and Mrs. Claude Allen, worthy patron and matron of the Hagerman Chapter, and Mrs. Ruby Dean, worthy matron of Hollister.

The chapter discussed the card party to be held Nov. 13 and "Candles for Cancer."

Balloting was held for new members and a new member was received by affiliation. Past Matrons' Club will meet Nov. 19 at the home of Mrs. M. J. Milton and Star Social Club will meet Nov. 17 at the home of Mrs. Irma Tucker.

A Thanksgiving poem was read by Mrs. Raymond Thomas and several humorous readings were presented by Mrs. J. Woodson Creed. Past matrons

Sales begin

WINE WENT ON sale in two Jerome grocery stores Tuesday. Paul Malone of Paul's Market is shown selling a bottle of the bubbly to Mrs. Lyle Lattin, Jerome. Safeways and Paul's market both have had trouble in obtaining state licenses to allow wine sales. They now have all three licenses. A third store in Jerome, the Circle K, also is licensed to sell wine.

TF meet will focus on agri-pollution

(Continued from p. 1) Farmers and ranchers, agricultural agency workers, and the general public are invited, according to Mrs. Marge Slotten, Twin Falls, committee chairman.

The meeting is being sponsored by an informal group from Magic Valley who earlier had attended a similar multi-state three-day seminar in Boise studying resource problems in the Snake River Basin.

The Magic Valley group, subsequently obtained a federal grant through the League of Women Voters to help pay conference costs.

The featured speaker is Hurlon Ray, Seattle deputy director for administration for the northwest region of the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency — the agency responsible for enforcement of Federal pollution guidelines on the Snake River.

Other speakers and panelists include: Robert R. Lee, director of the Idaho Water Resource Board; Dr. Wayne Carte, director of the South Central District Health Department; and Dr. Marvin Jensen, director of the Snake River Conservation Research Center at Kimberly.

Virgil Temple, manager of A and B Irrigation District, Rupert; Ruthann LeBaron, associate professor of biological sciences, CSI, and Dr. David L. Carter, research soil scientist, Snake River Conservation Research Center.

Woman hurt when auto kills horse

TWIN FALLS — A Kimberly woman was injured Tuesday evening when the horse she was riding was struck and killed by a car driven by her husband.

Idaho State Police said William Kinsey, 46, Kimberly, was charged with driving while intoxicated after the 6 p.m. accident on the foothill road near Cottonwood Creek "about nine miles southeast of Twin Falls.

Officers said Mrs. Kensey, 49, was moving cattle on the road, assisted by a hired man and a neighbor. The car driven by Kinsey came over a rise in the road and skidded 190 feet before striking the horse.

They said Mrs. Kinsey was thrown from the horse and the horse, which died several minutes after the accident, fell on top of her.

Hearing set Thursday at Richfield

RICHFIELD — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission will conduct a hearing at 1:30 p.m. Thursday at the Richfield American Legion Hall to hear protests against the proposed telephone rate increase.

The raise has been requested by the Gem State Utilities Corp., Grand View, which operates the telephone system in the Richfield area.

John Doerr, legal adviser for the city of Richfield, will represent the city in its protest. The meeting is open to the public.

Meet set

KETCHUM — The proposed new $2 million Ketchum water system will be discussed Thursday during the regular meeting of the Ketchum Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce at the Warm Springs Ranch Inn.

Representatives from JUB Engineers, the consulting engineers on the system, will explain the project and answer questions.

Blaine planning new high school

HAILEY — Blaine County School Trustees have started planning for a new high school. School Supt. Charles Clark said the board will take one year to study site locations, curriculum and designs for the school. Each trustee from the five districts will choose two interested residents from his district to aid in planning.

"We want a school we can use, one that will do the job and not be obsolete the day we move in," Clark said. Clark said trustees are watching enrollment figures in the district now.

W. B. Mallory, board chairman, said tentative plans are for the new school to serve the area from Ketchum to Picabo, now served by Wood River High School at Hailey. The district's other high school is at Carey and serves the rest of the county.

Mallory said a year will be needed to develop the design for the building, with first priority being given to a study of curriculum. He said faculty and students will be included among the trustee district representatives to be chosen by board members.

Donors at Jerome miss blood quota

JEROME — Jerome blood donors failed to make the 150-pint quota Tuesday in the quarterly Red Cross blood drawing.

A total of 115 pints was donated, with 119 persons volunteering. Mrs. Charles Parker, bloodmobile chairman, said:

Mrs. Edna Warner received a five-gallon donor pin; Mrs. George Bruckner, four gallon; Jack Benson, two gallon, and Mrs. Barbara Weigle, one gallon.

Mrs. Parker said 89 pints of blood were replaced in the blood bank. The Catholic Women's League prepared lunch for the bloodmobile staff members and the Christian Women's Club members provided refreshments for donors.

The high school Key Club assisted in setting and taking down the bloodmobile equipment.

Others assisting were Mrs. Carler Luther and Kay McRoberts, blood replacement cards table; Mrs. Wayne Pathel, Mrs. John Van Orman, Dora Hurd, Mrs. Cleo Ambrose, Mrs. Leighton Imes and Beed Jackson, nurses aides.

Receptionist was Mrs. Nancy Thompson and typists were Mrs. Robert Nancolas, Mrs. John Weston, Mrs. Wilford Allison and Mrs. Howard Andrews. Working in the canteen were Mrs. S. P. Richard, Mrs. Julius Toetz and Mrs. Gene Broughton. Nurses included Mrs. Gene Overfield, Mrs. Weldon Weigle, both Jerome; Mrs. Blanch Wray, Gooding, and Mrs. Dorothy Alexander, Shoshone.

Rezoning granted for mobile homes

TWIN FALLS — Rezoning of a plot of ground west of Filer to allow for a mobile home court was granted Monday by the Twin Falls County Commissioners following a hearing in the commissioners' office.

Bernard J. Reis had petitioned for a zoning change from agricultural to agricultural residential in lot 2 of Ripley Riecher's subdivision.

County commission chairman William Chancey said there was no opposition to the change when the hearing was held Monday. He said the rezoning had previously been recommended for approval by the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning board.

Buhl funded for reading program

BUHL — The Buhl School District has been granted about $3,000 under the Title government program to set up a reading program in the secondary schools, according to Dan Mabe, district superintendent.

He said the district has also received a grant under the Title 3, National Defense Education Action program for a 50 per cent matching fund up to $2,379 for instructional materials, and equipment for the school district.

Mabe reported these programs to the Monday night meeting of the Buhl School Trustees.

Monte Davis, school district auditor, told the trustees the school district is in sound financial shape. Mabe said no driver training classes could start in the state or in the district for the balance of the year unless the legislature provided special funding.

Mabe said students in the district will have a full school day Nov. 24. They will have Thanksgiving vacation Nov. 25 and 26.

Votes OK at Rupert

RUPERT — The Rupert City Council met in special session Tuesday night to canvass votes from the Nov. 5 municipal election.

Official returns show William Strasser and Clark Cameron were elected to four-year terms on the council. They defeated incumbents Charles Dalry and Grover Newman as well as challengers Ilene Benward and John Hilling.

Final returns show 948 votes were cast out of 1,185 registered voters. Forty-seven citizens cast absentee ballots.

Fund lack stops Filer tot class

FILER — Filer school trustees gave up a planned kindergarten program Tuesday night because of lack of transportation funds.

According to Supt. Tom Turner, there is no money available in the budget for the transportation costs estimated to be $100 a day. He said the costs would be high because of the large size of the district. He said no funds were available for kindergarten class supplies.

The action came after a two month feasibility study showed that money was not available in the current district budget.

Turner told the board that Howard Kinsfather, principal of the Hollister school, has set up a remedial reading program at the school. Two Filer School District principals were granted approval for a title project setting up a "right to read" program in Filer district schools. Turner said the project involves about $3,000 in federal money to help improve student reading in the school.

Frank Suchan, Paul, has filled the teaching vacancy at Filer High School created by the death of Wayne Kious.

Filer High School students were granted a request for baccalaureate May 14 and commencement May 16.

The trustees voted to dismiss school at 2 p.m. Nov. 24 for the Thanksgiving vacation.

Minidoka upset over driver class delays

BY DAVID ESPO Times-News Writer

RUPERT — Local officials reacted with concern Tuesday to word that no new driver education classes could start during the second semester of the school year.

One official called the word from the Idaho Department of Education "a shot between the eyes."

School officials were informed by mail Monday that legislative appropriations for the program had run out and no second semester classes could enroll unless emergency legislative action is taken.

The Idaho Legislature earlier this year appropriated $530,000 for driver ed, but nearly $220,000 of it went to pay the 1970 deficit. In the past, the state has funded the costs of driver education up to $55 per student.

Dr. Darrell J. Hatfield, Minidoka County superintendent of schools, said about 60 students would probably be affected by the lack of funds. He said in general there are more students in the program on a statewide basis than had been anticipated and the costs were rising. "We averaged in Minidoka County $41-$42 per student and now the cost is up to around $50. The state is behind with the amount of funds for the number of students."

Elmer Eddington, head of the county driver education program and member of a statewide legislative committee, said the legislative group had scheduled a meeting Friday to formulate proposals for legislators to consider. Eddington said he would probably recommend raising the license fee by $2 and call for the doubling of the cost of learning permits from $3 to $6.

In explaining the tentative proposals, Eddington said "Of course all of this money would have to go to driver education, but it would take so little to keep this program where it is." Eddington said the legislative group, a committee of the Idaho Driver Education Association, would request immediate action by lawmakers to keep the program funded at a full level through the second semester.

Wendell chamber urges interchange

WENDELL — Wendell Chamber of Commerce members received new impetus today in their campaign to get a four-way interchange from Interstate 80 N.

Members voted at a breakfast meeting at the Motor Inn Cafe to inform Congressmen and the Idaho Highway Department that the population, agricultural and industrial growth of the Wendell trading center necessitates the four-way interchange instead of the two-way interchange which is planned.

Facts about the growth of the area were presented at the meeting by Tom Lane, advertising representative for the Times-News.

He said there are 2,800 households in the Wendell trading area with an estimated income per household of $8,124.

Total retail sales in 1970 for the area were $17.3 million, Lane said, and the effective buying income he listed at $22,748.

Chamber President John

Wert appointed Melvin Gates and Kenneth Bradshaw to obtain information and draft the letter urging the larger interchange.

In other business, Wilbur Whitehead, Harold Simerly and Ellis Thomason were appointed to the nominating committee. Officers will be elected in December. Plans for Christmas decorations were reported by Marshal Howsden and the annual Christmas lighting contest was discussed.

Members voted to purchase a permit for an outdoor advertising sign on I 80 N east of Wendell.

Richfield permits wine, but no sales

RICHFIELD — This Lincoln County town has a wine sale license fee but merchants in Richfield don't plan to sell wine.

The City Council set a wine sale license fee of $25 Tuesday night, but Mayor C. W. Ward said merchants told him they won't apply for licenses or stock since they think the town is too small.

The council leased the public library building to the Richfield Library District for 20 years at no cost other than keeping up the building. The library district has been using the building as a library.

A canvass of votes cast in the Nov. 2 municipal election and sewer bond voting were found correct. John Lemmon received 90 votes and Mrs. Keith (Billie) Swainston received 76. The sewer bond proposal passed.

Air pollution 123 index

The pollution reading was taken by the staff of the South Central Health District of the Twin Falls City Hall. The reading is expressed as the number of micrograms of particulate material per cubic meter of air for the 24 hour period.

Reading at 8 a.m. today: Federal pollution regulation on air pollution levels should be kept below 75 micrograms per one 24 hour period. Readings should not be permitted to rise above 260 micrograms for even a short period of time.

Forecast

Today: Excellent
Tonight: Good
Tomorrow: Excellent

This forecast provided by the Idaho Department of Health indicates the ability of the atmosphere to disperse pollution burning as permitted by law should be regulated when the air is poorly able to disperse air pollutants.

Citizenship awards program outlined

BURLEY — The Soroptimist Club Youth Citizenship Committee, with Mrs. E. C. Stephenson as chairman, announced the opening of the annual Youth Citizenship Awards Program.

Eligible to enter are all high school seniors, boys and girls, who will be graduating in spring of 1972.

School counselors at Raft River, Oakley, Declo, Burley and Minico High Schools have application forms supplied by the Burley Soroptimist Club. All entries must be returned to the Burley Soroptimist Club by Jan. 1, reported Mrs. Stephenson.

The applicants are asked to answer what is their concept of good citizenship in home, school and community. All entries will be judged by a team of independent judges and the winner will be selected on the basis of service, dependability, leadership and a clear sense of purpose.

The local winner will receive a savings bond and the entry will be submitted to the Rocky Mountain Soroptimist Region for competition at that level. Seventeen regional winners will each receive $1,000 in cash to spend as they choose with no string attached. The regional winner is then entered in the national competition and the winner at national level receives an additional $1,500. The awards total $17,000 in the Soroptimist Foundation's citizenship search.

The Soroptimist Foundation has been awarded the Freedoms Foundation George Washington Honor Medal for seven consecutive years for its Youth Citizenship Program.

Soroptimists are executive business and professional women, organized in classified service clubs. The organization celebrated its 50th Anniversary this year.

Mrs. Stephenson urges all interested seniors to contact their school counselors for further information. Last year's local winner was Kathryn Barry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Barry.

Lodge events slated

RUPERT — The Rupert Elks Lodge announces coming events including Charter Member Recognition Night Nov. 30 for Elks only at the lodge hall.

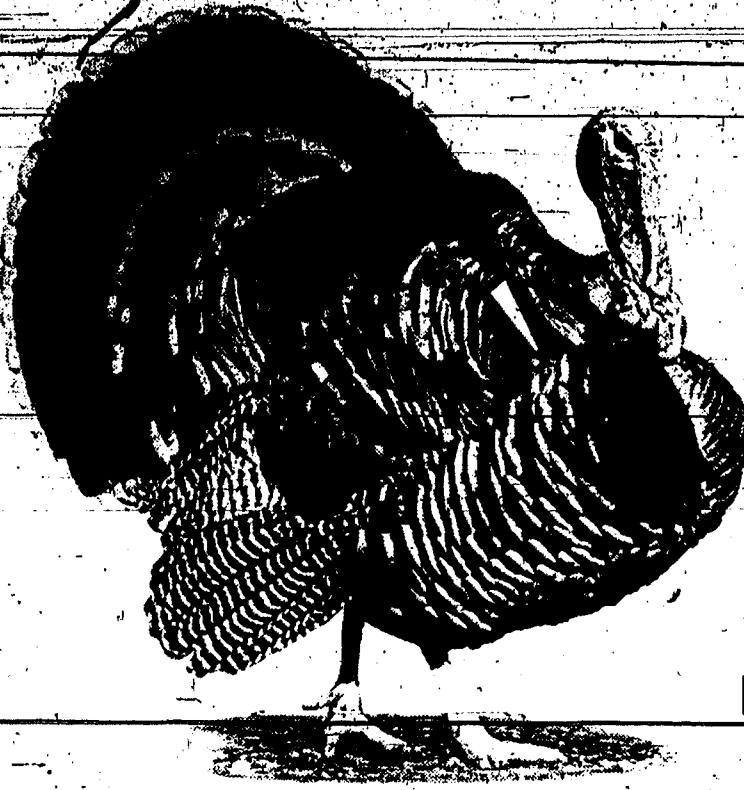

Other events include annual Charity Ball, Dec. 4, with Al DeVries furnishing the dance music. Basket packing for Christmas Basket project will be the evening of Dec. 22 and the baskets will be delivered Dec. 24 during the morning to needy families in the area.

The annual holiday youth dance will be Dec. 30 this year so college students both for the holidays may attend. Also planned is the New Year's Eve dance for Elks and their guests.

A new dining room schedule has been announced by Joe Reitan, secretary-manager of the dining room, includes 11 seven consecutive years for its Youth Citizenship Program.

49 representatives attend Burley meet

BURLEY — The Idaho State Federation of Music Clubs board members held a meeting at Ramada Inn, with 49 representatives of every local club in the state and state officers attending, it was announced today.

Mrs. Clifford Mullikin, Burley, state president presided at the board meeting. She gave a report on the fall board meeting of the National Federation of Music Clubs which she attended at Cheyenne, Wyo. The National Federation is 73 years old this year and the federation is dedicated to preserving "our musical heritage through the promotion of music." Theme for this year is "tell and sell the Federation story."

A luncheon was served at noon and the program was provided by students from Minico High School. Priscilla Belnap sang two solos, accompanied by Tom Clark. Miss Belnap and Clark then sang a medley of songs from "Fiddler on the Roof" in which they both are stars for the performance Nov. 18 and 19 at Minico High School. They were accompanied by Kim Croft.

Committee meetings were held in the afternoon. Each chairman and club president gave their reports.

Local arrangements were directed by Mrs. J. W. Young, Burley Music Club president.

Health board sets meet

BOISE (UPI) — State Health Board Chairman Fred Humphreys said Monday the board would meet Thursday at Idaho State University and Friday at State Hospital South to develop a legislative program for the 1972 legislative session.

Humphreys said they would also review the Department of Health's mental health and mental retardation and child development programs.

Board members are scheduled to meet with the superintendent of the Blackfoot hospital, Dr. Lida Brown, as well as with staff personnel to discuss the current status and future plans for the institution.

New dean

PROVO (UPI) — Edwin Lee, 36-year-old Phoenix attorney, was named today as the first dean of the new J. Reuben Clark college of law at Brigham Young University.

Lee, one-time law clerk for Justice Byron White of the U.S. Supreme Court, was introduced to students and faculty at today's homecoming assembly by President Dallin H. Oaks.

Benefit funds returned

PAUL — The "LaDonna Mingo Fund" at Paul Idaho Bank and Trust has been closed at the request of the Mingo family. The fund was started by the Kasota Women's Club.

Mrs. Mingo was seriously injured in a potato harvester accident in Nevada. Presently she is at home in the Kasota area.

According to the Mingo family any funds that have been donated will be returned to the sender.

Mrs. Mingo expressed thanks to the community for their thoughtfulness.

Rites honor dream

ST. GEORGE (UPI)—An LDS Church temple, begun 100 years ago today, will be remembered by Mormon faithful as the result of a church president's dream and a project to give pioneers something to keep busy.

The St. George Temple, the oldest temple in use by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon), will be the focal point this week of private centennial observances which culminate Saturday with a "solemn service" open only to church members holding the priesthood.

A church spokesman said "solemn services" are those closed to the general public.

Brigham Young ordered the temple built and was in St. George Nov. 9, 1871, to preside over groundbreaking ceremonies. Historians say President's reasons for the order were twofold.

He wanted to see a temple completed before his death and he was reportedly disappointed that work on the Salt Lake City temple was progressing so slowly. Also, Mormon pioneers in the St. George cotton mission were suffering washed out crops, food shortages and hot dry weather.

President Young wanted to give the people something to keep them busy, something to strive for.

Six years following the groundbreaking, in April 1877, the temple was dedicated, and Young died only two months later.

Reacts

MEXICAN-American leader Reyes Lopez Tijerina makes view known during press conference at Denver airport. Among other matters, Tijerina denounced New Mexico attorney general's office statement terming "calculated lies" an earlier charge by Tijerina that his wife had been raped by 10 persons including New Mexico state policeman. Alleged attack occurred while Tijerina was in jail. (UPI)

Israelis protest concerts

TEL AVIV (UPI)—The memory of six million Jews who died in Nazi concentration camps during World War II haunts this Jewish State.

Thousands of Israelis lost loved ones, some entire families. Many bear the tattooed serial numbers from the camps on their forearms.

So when the West German embassy scheduled its first cultural week to coincide with what Israel considers to be the anniversary of the beginning of the holocaust, the uproar began.

A spokesman for the city of Tel Aviv, one of the sponsors, said it was merely an oversight to have the event include Kristallnacht, marking the night of Nov. 9-10, 1938, when the Nazis smashed nearly 500 synagogues and embarked on Adolf Hitler's "Final Solution."

It was symbolic of the problems the two nations are encountering in attempting to maintain normal relations in the shadow of the past.

The week of concerts, lectures and plays began as planned Sunday, but not without protests, angry letters to the editor and some hasty scheduled changes to mollify the outraged.

"I for one have had enough German culture to last me a lifetime," wrote one woman who identified herself in a letter to the Jerusalem Post as a former inmate of Auschwitz.

Under pressure from the former partisans and Nazi prisoners' organization, Mayor Yehoshua Rabinowitz of Tel Aviv agreed not to make a speech at Sunday's opening concert, which was plagued by youthful demonstrators waving slogans and chanting "Remember."

Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek withdrew his city's association from a lecture to be given there as part of cultural week by Hebrew University Prof. Akiva Erns Simon, an Israeli.

In the Knesset (Parliament), members of the right wing Gahal bloc and of the religious parties condemned official approval of the use of "the same language used to command millions to march to horrible deaths."

Wendell teacher receives stipend to teach two years in Australia

WENDELL — Ed Otton is one of 60 teachers from 30 states in the United States and Canada to receive a two-year teaching fellowship which was established last year by the Australian government. Otton applied for the fellowship through Al Luke, Boise, Idaho Department of Education.

Academic qualifications for the fellowship were a degree with at least a major study in physics, chemistry, biology or mathematics, together with at least one year of credits in teacher education courses, and from four to six years of teaching experience. Otton has taught in the Wendell school system for the past 10 years. He teaches math and courses in the sciences. He has served as assistant basketball, football and track coach in both junior and high school. He has been head basketball coach of the high school for the past three years. He graduated from the University of Idaho, Moscow, with a bachelor of science degree in education, majoring physical science with a minor in math.

During summer sessions he has earned his master's degree in natural science, majoring in physics and a minor in chemistry. He has also received his administrator's certificate. Otton is one of about 30 teachers in Idaho who is qualified to teach ECCP, the study of the interaction between man and a technological world. He said that Wendell High School is the only small school, to his knowledge, in the state that offers the course.

He said the ECCP course is designed to be taught to the average student and can be used for career exploration into computer learning. It is oriented more toward a technical world and its problems rather than math or physical science. Otton said at this time he has no idea what he will teach in the province of Victoria nowhere. He and his family will leave by chartered flight from San Francisco on Jan. 23 for Melbourne, Australia, which is the major city of Victoria. He offered his resignation to members of the Wendell School Board Monday night and they accepted.

The Otton family consists of Edward Sr., his wife Colleen, and two sons, Edward Jr. and Steve

Former radio star will perform at farmers fete

By MYRTLE SCHRENK
Times-News Writer

WENDELL — Austin (Bud) Durfee, former radio and western road show star, will be one of the entertainers at the annual Farmers Night Banquet sponsored by the Wendell merchants Thursday at the elementary all-purpose room.

Durfee began his musical career on KTFI Radio on the Harry Musgrave Show in 1928. He continued his career through the '30's, and toured 40 states performing in theaters with many notables of western music.

He recalls that "The Purple Sage Riders" a group that he performed with were booked to play for "Grand Old Opry" in Nashville, Tenn., but went to Chattanooga and from there to Cincinnati, Ohio.

He said that his father bought him a guitar for $2 when he was 11 years old and he learned to play by ear. Although he has not played professionally since the 1940's, he plays the guitar, banjo and some piano.

During his career, he played the guitar, sang solo and in a trio, and used to specialize in yodel numbers written by Merle

Travis. He said, "Music gets in your blood but road shows are no life for a family man."

For those who remember Durfee when he played and sang with Cliff Goddard's "Reno Racketeers" in Radioland, Twin Falls, the "Southern Stars" and "The Purple Sage Riders" it is unbelievable that the only regalia of his heyday in western music is a "Jumbo Martin" guitar which he still plays.

Notables that Durfee played and sang with include Spade Cooley, Merle Travis, Bud Dean, Tex Williams, Red Foley, Jimmy Rogers and Dean Ecker, who visits at least every year when they renew acquaintance and play many of the old favorites which were written by "The Sons of the Pioneers."

Among his favorite tunes of the old days are "Tumbling, Tumble Weeds" and "Way Out There."

Durfee says even though he has had no formal training in music that he developed a fine ear because he had the opportunity to play and sing with performers of great talent.

In 1939 he left the entertainment field for work in a defense plant. In 1944 he married his wife, Helen, who was from Hawaii, and they returned to Magic Valley where he farmed and ranched and made music his sideline.

He has three children, Sandra, Sylvia and Steve, who all inherited his musical ability.

Wendell slates 6th annual event

WENDELL — The sixth annual Farmers Night Banquet sponsored by the Wendell merchants is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Wendell Elementary School All-Purpose room.

Holly Houfburg, Kimberly, will be master of ceremonies. Clyde Petersen, general chairman, said the dinner is being catered by Wood Cafe, Jerome, and preparations are being made to serve about 300 guests. The event has been successful in past years in promoting better relations between ranchers and farmers and merchants in the Wendell area.

He said this year, since Wendell has several new area ranchers, he hopes they will take this opportunity to attend the dinner and become better acquainted with their neighbors as well as local businessmen.

This event has been devoted largely to men of the community, but if a woman wishes to attend, she is welcome, he said.

Committees named by Petersen include Mark Koll, tickets; Joe Leeper, prizes; Marshall Yowsden, seating arrangements, and Jim Freeman, invitations.

Petersen said if any farmer or rancher has not been invited because of oversight he should feel free to come anyway and is welcome.

Retired teacher artist of month

WENDELL — Mrs. Hazel Lawton is being honored as "Artist of the Month" and a variety of her landscapes in oil are on display at the Wendell branch of the Idaho First National Bank for the next four weeks.

This is the first time Mrs. Lawton has publicly shown her paintings. She said she has always had an interest in art, which was manifested in grade school through map drawing and copying pictures from tablets and calendars, then painting them with water colors, but for the most part there has been little time in her life for painting.

After attending Lewiston Normal school her life was filled for many years with domestic duties, rearing a family, dressmaking and 25 years of public school teaching.

Two years ago she retired from teaching home economics in the Wendell school and said that she hopes to have more time to paint, and at present is studying in Gooding under Quinten Gregory, a Boise artist.

At the time of retirement the Wendell teachers and school personnel presented her with a table easel and an oil painting case with some oils, which served as an incentive for her talent. She is presently designing a Christmas card which will be a reproduction of her home in Wendell.

Mrs. Lawton recalls there was no time in high school for art classes but when she received her training for home economics at the University of Idaho courses included fashion designing, interior decorating, and house construction, all of which required some drawing.

Like so many of the artists she attributes much of the interest in art in Wendell to Charlotte Duggan who provided a class in art several years ago. Mrs. Lawton said that the spark of interest was kept alive by Mrs. Duggan as occasionally she brought a guest artist to the area.

Also she urged people to display their art work. Mrs. Lawton says she seldom took an active part in the lessons, because of being exhausted after a long day in the school room, but felt a close association because it was her duty to unlock and lock the doors of the high school for the art group.

She has studied under Gloria Hann, Buhl; Marilyn LaCroix, Gooding; Oliver Parson, Ricks College, and two sessions under Lee Parkinson, Ogden.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks, pressured by economic uncertainty and world monetary worries, worked lower in light trading through mid-session Wednesday.

The government's Cost of Living Council plans to unveil details this afternoon of its system for applying wage and price controls to the nation's business community in Phase Two of President Nixon's economic program. The move will be a follow-up to the decision Monday by the Pay Board to set a 5.5 per cent wage ceiling in Phase Two.

Labor has strongly rejected the Pay Board's action, and this has been weighing on the stock market because it raised a possibility of a walkout by labor representatives from the board, which is made up of labor, business and the public.

On Wall Street there were nearly twice as many declines as advances. The Dow Jones industrial average was off about 5 1/2 points at 832.14. Turnover at 1 p.m. amounted to 7,140,000 shares, down from 7,610,000 shares traded at a comparable period the previous session.

Electronic Data Systems, the day's most active stock, plunged 7 1/2 on 286,000 shares, including a block of 225,900 shares crossed at 33 1/2 down 8 1/2. H. Ross Perot, president of the firm, said there have been no internal changes in the company to account for the stock's slide.

Active Pan American World Airways was off 1/2. Boeing 747s were off 1/2.

United Aircraft 2 1/2 and Johnsonville 1 1/2. Less active and also in reverse were Control Data by 2 1/4, Burroughs 1 1/4, Polaroid 1 1/4, Bausch & Lomb 2 1/4, Wrigley 2 and Levitz Furniture 3 1/2. Corning Glass and Mercantile Stores, however, rose more than a point each.

State treasurer functions as official banker

(Editors note: A household may have just one or two bank accounts, but the state's banking practices are more complicated. Here, in the third of five dispatches on the state's budget system, is the role of the state treasurer.)

By LINDY HIGH
BOISE (UPI) — State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon functions as the state's own bank, a job that requires, among other things, a little bit of faith on the part of the financial institutions.

"It's all on the same scale as people handling their own bank accounts," Miss Moon said. "But our accounts are in the millions."
Miss Moon — whose mother was also state treasurer — describes the procedures in her job as "very tricky" sometimes. Her office functions as a "bank" by receiving from the agencies all income due to the state and depositing it in banks:

in "demand" accounts where it can be used for payment and in "Savings" accounts where it can earn interest.

"But while a household might have one or two accounts, the state had 27 in one week during September of this year."

Any bank which wants a state account can have one. The banks are rated according to size of capital and surplus and money is divided proportionately among the banks.

When a homeowner writes a check, the recipient cashes the check and the amount is deducted from the homeowner's bank account.

The state's system is more complicated. The state auditor first writes a warrant, the recipient can cash the warrant at a bank, the bank turns the warrant over to the state treasurer, the treasurer writes a check for the amount, and, finally, the check is cashed on one of the state's many bank accounts.

The banks of course, are really acting on faith that the state will honor the warrant with a check.

"Actually, the bank is advancing the recipient $10, for instance," Miss Moon said, "and if that warrant should not be legal for some reason — not endorsed maybe — then the bank is just out that money."

One of the problems that can arise is that a state agency will assume there is a certain amount of money in its account when there may not be if anticipated deposits have not been made. A housewife with a routine monthly deposit could face the situation if her husband failed to deposit the money when expected.

The state auditor, checking the paper accounts for each agency, would have no way of knowing the collections and deposits have not been made.

So the state treasurer watches the actual bank accounts. If a fund is overdrawn, the warrant will be returned stamped "insufficient funds" and either held until the funds are available or returned to the state agency.

The state does have more leeway than a household, however, because state accounts by law can run in the red for 30 days and, if money still isn't available, tax anticipation notes can be issued.

The state's "savings" accounts are also different from a taxpayer's savings account. A taxpayer may deposit a specific amount each month or may deposit just from time to time when there is a little extra cash.

Miss Moon, however, invests the state's "idle funds" — Those funds not needed to meet each day's bills — and income earned from the "savings" deposits is turned back to the general fund.

Last calendar year investments earned the state over $3 million in interests.

The state also has some zero balance accounts opened merely for the convenience of state agencies operating in remote parts of the state. Agencies merely make deposits in these accounts and the state treasurer's office immediately withdraws the money and puts it in an operating account.

Kootenai aide blasts Gem law

BOISE (UPI) — Kootenai County Clerk Harold E. Peterson has asked First District Court to declare unconstitutional Idaho's revised election laws.

Peterson's brief, filed in response to a request from Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa for a writ of mandate to compel Peterson to mail out voter re-registration cards, asks for dismissal of Cenarrusa's petition and for a judgment declaring all the election laws to be unconstitutional.

Peterson's brief claims the laws violate the Idaho Constitution in that they "provide such a confusing disparity in the process of filing for election, registration for such election, and time and place for voting in such election" that the people of Idaho "are effectively deprived of their inalienable rights to exercise their inherent political power through obfuscation of their right of suffrage."

The brief was filed in the office of the Kootenai county clerk — Peterson's office — as the latest in a long dispute between Peterson and the Idaho attorney general's office. Cenarrusa ordered county clerks to mail out the voter re-registration cards by Oct. 1, but thus far Peterson has declined to send out the approximately 36,000 cards in his county.

Further, Peterson alleges Cenarrusa has no authority under the constitution of Idaho to issue the directive to mail out the cards.

Peterson also contends there is no lawful way to comply with the statute requiring the county clerks to send each qualified voter a mail-out card.

His brief claims the Idaho Code specifically defines a qualified elector as a person "registered as required by law" but said the only persons now so registered are those who have done so in 1971 — which means those persons do not require re-registration.

The brief denies it is the "ministerial and non-discretionary" duty of a county clerk to mail out the cards. As chief elections officer under the revised elections law, Cenarrusa is charged with coordinating the election efforts of the 44 counties and the mail-out was part of a massive voter re-registration statewide program.

Beach wall ban hearing slated

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — First District Judge Watt Prather has scheduled a hearing Nov. 26 on a request from the state of Idaho for a preliminary injunction against a sea wall on a Lake Coeur d'Alene beach.

The complaint was filed by the State Board of Land Commissioners against Dr. F.R.W. Fox and his wife, Jane Doe Fox and alleges the Foxes have begun constructing permanent retaining walls at Sanders Beach.

But the suit claims the wall when complete will extend across all or a portion of Sanders Beach to a point below the ordinary high water mark of Lake Coeur d'Alene and will constitute a "wrongful trespass upon the lands of the state of Idaho, a wrongful appropriation of such lands, a public nuisance and a working immediate and threatened irreparable damage to the public."

The complaint further contends that the public has used

Sanders Beach as a public area for over 30 years without asking permission from the Foxes, even though the area known as Sanders Beach is in the immediate vicinity of the Foxes property.

The suit claims the land has been "impliedly dedicated" to public use and said by using the land the public has acquired a prescriptive easement of right of way across and upon Sanders Beach.

If the wall is built, the state contends, the public will be deprived of use of Sanders Beach.

The suit asks that the defendants be enjoined from continuing to construct the retaining walls and asks that the Foxes be ordered to remove the walls within 30 days or within a reasonable length of time.

The state is also asking that the construction be considered a trespass on public lands and asks that the court decide the public has acquired a public right of way for recreational purposes across Sanders Beach.

Strike proposed

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — The national meatcutters union called for consideration of a general strike Tuesday in protest of President Nixon's Pay Board's decision to outlaw retroactive pay raises and place a 5.5 per cent ceiling on future wage hikes.

The half-million member union also urged AFL-CIO President George Meany and other labor members of the Pay Board to resign from the board.

The executive board of the Amalgamated Meatcutters and Butcher Workmen said it would vote Wednesday on a membership strike to get payment of back wages.

The board said it has introduced a resolution for the AFL-CIO convention opening here Nov. 18 "to take whatever action necessary including a national work stoppage or general strike" and added that "this union will work actively for the passage of such a resolution by the AFL-CIO convention."

"We urge President Meany and his labor colleagues to withdraw from the Pay Board in view of this lopsided anti-labor decision," the executive board's resolution said.

Torre selected as National's most valuable

NEW YORK (UPI) — A slimmer-down Joe Torre, the major league's leading batter with a .363 average and 230 hits, was selected Tuesday as the National League's Most Valuable Player for 1971.

The 31-year-old St. Louis Cardinal third baseman received 21 of 24 first-place votes for a total of 318 points in balloting conducted by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh received the remaining three first-place votes and wound up second with 222 points.

Only Torre, Stargell and 37-year-old Henry Aaron of the Atlanta Braves were named on all 24 ballots. Aaron accumulated 139 points to finish third. Torre achieved his .363 average and 137 runs-batted-in after going on a high-protein diet two winters ago and dropping from 228 pounds to 203. The Brooklyn-born infielder also led the majors in hits with 230 and topped his league in total bases with 352.

Torre was remarkably consistent throughout the season. He hit safely in his first 22 games and finished by hitting safely in 35 of his last 37 games. From May 19 to the finish, he never went more than one game without getting at least one hit. Torre slugged 24 home runs, eight triples and 34 doubles and contributed 22 game-winning RBIs to a St. Louis cause that saw the Cardinals move within 5 1-2 games of Pittsburgh late in September before settling for second place in the National League East.

Torre, who came to St. Louis in 1969 after eight full seasons as a catcher-first baseman for the Milwaukee-Atlanta Braves, also was a durable performer, appearing in 161 of his team's 163 games.

St. Louis general manager Bing Devine secured Torre on March 17, 1969, in a straight-player deal in which Orlando Cepeda went to Atlanta.

Torre, stating that Atlanta was not a "first-class organization" and claiming Braves general manager Paul Richards had humiliated him, was delighted with the trade.

He hit 289 with 18 home runs and 101 runs batted in during the 1969 season, while playing first base and catching in 169 games for his new team.

Torre—who weighed 240 pounds and had a 40-inch waistline as a 16-year-old boy—batted .325 with 203 hits and 100 RBIs in 1970. In addition, he smacked 21 home runs.

Torre is the 12th Cardinal and the third N.L. third baseman to win the MVP award since it was instituted 40 years ago. Bob Elliott of Boston in 1947 and Ken Boyer of St. Louis in 1949 were the other third basemen.

Stargell led the majors in home runs with 48, one more than Aaron. Bobby Bonds of the San Francisco Giants, with 139 points, and Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh (87) rounded out the top five in the voting.

Ferguson Jenkins, the National League Cy Young Award winner, finished seventh.

MVP says he'd rather win pennant

ST LOUIS (UPI) — Joe Torre, selected Tuesday as the National League's Most Valuable Player, said it was his first national honor "and it's really great," but added that he would like to repeat next year on a pennant winning team.

"I hope I can repeat next year but with a pennant winner. I've never been on a pennant winner before, and my finger is still vacant for that championship ring," the 31-year-old third baseman said. "I very definitely wanted the MVP award," he said. "But I never considered having this good of a year. In fact I never thought about the batting title until June or July."

Referring to the runner-up in the MVP balloting, Torre said, "Willie Stargell had a great start in the season but then he hurt his knee. And on the Pirates there are so many good players that it's difficult for one to stand out."

"I thought I might have a chance for this award," Torre added. "But to win over-ly is a surprise to me."

New champ expects to lose crown

MADRID (UPI) — Spain's Pedro Carrasco, controversial winner of the World Boxing Council (WBC) lightweight title, today said he would not be amazed if the WBC stripped him of his crown.

Carrasco won the vacant title when Nigerian referee Samuel Odubote disqualified Ramos at the end of the 11th round for hitting below the belt. The verdict saved Carrasco from an almost certain knockout. The Spaniard was knocked down four times in previous rounds and looked groggy.

"The decision of the referee cannot be appealed," Carrasco said, "but it would not amaze me if the WBC reversed the verdict. The WBC is American-influenced, and Ramos has much protection in the U.S."

Carrasco admitted that he was losing when Odubote disqualified Ramos. But he added that his Mexican-born opponent had hit low several times.

"The movie taken of the fight clearly proves it, and it also shows the referee warning Ramos," he added.

Cleveland selects Aspromonte

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Reeling from their second worst season in their history this year, the Cleveland Indians Tuesday named Ken Aspromonte as field manager for 1972. He said his foremost task will be to "motivate" the team.

Aspromonte, 40, succeeds Johnny Lipon, who had served as interim manager since the firing of Alvin Dark in mid-summer. Cleveland lost 102 games during the past season and won only 60 for its worst season since 1914.

"No terms for the contract were announced, but it was only for one year."

"Last year this team lost 102 games and I will have to motivate the team," Aspromonte said after he was named field manager by Indians' President and General Manager Gabe Paul.

"There is a lot of talent on this ball club and all it needs is a little experience," he said. "I believe I have had the experience to manage in the big leagues because I have worked with Cleveland players for the last four years."

Aspromonte said the Indians' pitching staff is "one of the bright spots for the future" and he mentioned third baseman Craig Nettles, first baseman Chris Chamblis, catcher Ray Fosse and newly acquired outfielder Alex Johnson as the "strength" of the team.

Giants hire new coach

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants announced Tuesday they have acquired services to former Giants player Joe Amalfitano from the Chicago Cubs and will use him as a first base coach next year.

Amalfitano, who played for the Giants three different times going back to 1954 when they signed him to a big bonus, will take Wes Westrum's spot on the San Francisco coaching staff.

Westrum, the Giants said, asked for and was granted his wish to step down as a coach and work for the organization in a scouting capacity.

Seattle-baseball suit forces extra innings

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals went into extra innings Tuesday to decide a thorny jurisdictional dispute involving another suit against major league baseball.

This time it is the city of Seattle, King County and the state of Washington that are seeking redress in a suit against the American League revolving around the transfer of the Seattle Pilots to Milwaukee nearly two years ago.

Attorneys for both sides pleaded before the three-man panel for more than an hour Tuesday and then the jurists withdrew to make a ruling.

Seattle is seeking to have its suit, which alleges breach of contract, fraud, anti-trust violations and conspiracy, returned to a state court while the American League wants the case heard in a federal court.

The suit originally—in Oct. 1970—was heard in a state court, which decided it should be heard in a federal court instead. Attorneys for Seattle, King County and Washington appealed to the circuit court here to have the case returned for another hearing on the state level, citing nine violations of Washington statutes compared to only three of federal statutes.

The jurists agreed there were similarities in this suit as in the one brought several years ago by Milwaukee against the Braves when that National League franchise was transferred to Atlanta.

That case was heard on the state level first and Milwaukee won. The N. L. then appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court, which over turned the lower court.

Seattle interests, apparently, have given up hope of reacquiring their lost baseball franchise—the Pilots—and are seeking damages instead. That was not the case in the Milwaukee dispute. The American League awarded Seattle a franchise in 1968 but only, according to attorney William M. Dwyer, "after it had extracted promises that a new domed stadium would be built to house the team."

"The commissioner, the American League, President and other baseball people came to Seattle to campaign for a bond issue to finance the proposed stadium," Dwyer explained to the jurists.

"The Bond issue then was passed by the public and the sale of bonds actually had taken place when the franchise was taken away."

"It is in that context that our suit is based. Obviously, baseball is a monopoly in violation of the anti-trust laws."

Dwyer also listed other violations which he lumped under "broken promises" and said that because of this long series of complaints, mostly in violation of state statutes, its suit should be returned to a state court.

David E. Wagoner, a Seattle attorney representing the American League, said that the federal violations "as stated by Dwyer" take precedent over state violations and thus the case should be remanded to a federal court.

Aussie says world cup champion to be anyone beating American duo

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (UPI)—Australia's Bruce Devlin was less than diplomatic Tuesday as he teed-off for a practice round on the soggy and windswept PGA National Golf Club's east course as a prelude to the 19th World Cup competition.

Devlin and his teammate, David Graham, defending champions in the international tournament, left little room for doubt about how they rate the other 46 teams in the field.

"Whoever beats Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino will win this tournament," said Devlin. "If we beat them by a stroke, we will win, defending champions or not."

Devlin and Graham scored a team total of 544 for 72 holes in last year's World Cup event in Buenos Aires, shattering the record of 548 set by Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus in 1966.

Nicklaus, who lives in nearby Lost Tree Village and is well versed on the PGA layout didn't bother to practice Tuesday. He was resting up from his Dunlop victory in Sydney, Australia over the weekend.

But Trevino, frustrated in his try to add the Mexican Open to his list of titles this year, teed off in the afternoon on the 7,096 yard course which has been deluged with more than 11 inches of rain in the past week.

Nicklaus and Trevino will be in a foursome Wednesday with comedians Bob Hope and Jackie Gleason with serious play in the 72-hole tournament to begin Thursday.

Devlin, who has played the PGA many times, described the track as a "prolonged, difficult course." The recent rains have left the fairways soggy and overgrown, too boggy to mow. The greens are slow.

Canada's Moe Norman, trying to hit a few chip shots from the rough, broke up in giggles. "This is something else," he said. "You can't hit the ball without grabbing grass."

Devlin said his group "has been terrible." In Australia, over the weekend, he finished far back in the pack.

"But golf is a funny game, you can come back just like that," added Devlin, snapping his fingers.

Argentina's Roberto de Senoz—the man who missed the playoff in the 1968 Masters because of a scorecard mishap—is back to defend his international trophy awarded the player posting the lowest individual score.

Other top contenders in the field include South Africa's Gary Player and Harold Henning and England's Peter Oosterhuis and Tony Jacklin.

Nicklaus, who has been on four winning World Cup teams, says he is honored to be on the U.S. team "because it's a privilege to represent your country." The prize money is nominal, only $1,000 for each of the winning team members.

For Trevino, the World Cup title would round out a year which has seen him collect the U.S., Canadian, and British Open titles, and establish him as undisputed world champion.

BSC climbs to fourth in small college rankings

NEW YORK (UPI) The University of Delaware, coming off an impressive 49-22 victory over Lehigh, has regained the No. 1 spot in the United Press International Board of Coaches small college football ratings.

The Blue Hens (7-1), who lost their No. 1 ranking last week after being upset 32-27 by highly-regarded major college Temple, were awarded 16 first place votes and 311 points this week from the 35-member coaches panel as both of last week's 1-2 clubs, Eastern Michigan and McNeese State, tied over the weekend.

McNeese State, which was held to a 3-3 tie with Northwest Louisiana, got seven first place votes and 273 points to retain its No. 2 ranking. Eastern Michigan, which suffered its second tie of the season Saturday, (10-10 with Northeast Louisiana) fell from first to third, getting only five first place votes.

Boise State, which upped its record to 8-1 by edging Northern Arizona 22-17, moved up from seventh to fourth with 208 points including a first place vote. Tennessee State got two first place votes and was fifth this week with 193 points.

Louisiana Tech improved from ninth to sixth and unbeaten Arkansas Tech came all the way from 16th to seventh as three of last week's top 10 teams lost in addition to the two ties at the top of the ranks.

C. Post, led by the nation's hottest pro quarterback prospect, Gary Wickard, advanced from 18th to eighth after burying Ithaca 66-0. Western Kentucky and Northern Colorado completed the top 10.

Leading off the second ten was St. John's of Minnesota, up from 15th to 16th, while Southwest Texas State improved from 20th to 17th despite tying Howard Payne Saturday.

At No. 13 was Samford College of Florida making its first appearance in the ratings.

NHL expands into Atlanta, New York

NEW YORK (UPI)—President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League Tuesday announced that franchises will be granted to Long Island and Atlanta for the 1972-73 season.

Campbell said the granting of the franchises was contingent on selecting owners acceptable to both the NHL and the commissions of the Nassau County Coliseum and the Atlanta Coliseum. Both are new buildings under construction.

The NHL also announced it is considering the possible re-structure from its present two, seven-team division setup to four, four-team divisions.

Additionally, the NHL governors voted unanimously to add two more franchises for play in the 1974-75 season.

The price of each of the four additional franchises is $6 million, the same as when Vancouver and Buffalo joined the league in 1970-71.

In the case of the Long Island franchise, there will be additional compensation to the New York Rangers.

The Rangers have asked for $5 million but Campbell said the figure and payment would be negotiated by the Rangers.

Long Island is expected to open the 1972-73 season in the 15,000 seat Nassau Coliseum in Hempstead, N.Y. while Atlanta will play in the new 15,000 seat Atlanta Coliseum.

Oklahoma's stats edge reduced

NEW YORK (UPI)—Oklahoma's offensive "triple crown" may be in jeopardy. The Sooners, who have been leading the nation in total offense, rushing offense and scoring, were surprised in the scoring category last week by Penn State. And Michigan is right on the Sooners' heels.

Oklahoma was "held" to 20 points last week by Missouri while Penn State and Missouri both scored 63 points. That left Penn State with a 44.1 scoring average and dropped Oklahoma to second with 43.6 while Michigan is third at 42.1.

However, Oklahoma still has a wide lead in total offense with 562.9 yards per game and rushing offense with 478.9 yards per game. Penn State is third in total offense and Michigan ninth. Michigan is third in rushing offense and Penn State sixth.

Bucks outlast Suns 118-113

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Kareem Jabbar scored 44 points Tuesday night but it took some last minute heroics by Jon McGlocklin to save the Milwaukee Bucks a hard-fought 118-113 National Basketball Association win over the Phoenix Suns.

The Suns, using the same type of fast break offense that made Milwaukee famous, battled back in the opening going from a 9-6 deficit to take a 32-30 lead at the end of the first quarter.

The Bucks outscored the Suns 31-26 in the second period to lead 61-58 at intermission. But Phoenix battled back in the third stanza to take an 87-84 lead into the last quarter.

Browns hire pass coach

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Cleveland Browns owner Pat Modell Tuesday night announced the hiring for former Philadelphia Eagles head coach Jerry Williams as an assistant Cleveland coach in charge of the passing offense.

Modell said Browns coach Nick Skorich requested that Williams be hired to fill the vacancy left by the death of Howard Keys three weeks ago.

"Jerry Williams and Howard Keys worked closely together for four years with the Calgary team of the Canadian League," Skorich said. "In addition, he worked for me three seasons at Philadelphia. I know he can help us."

Bulls drop third in row

CHICAGO (UPI)—Jim McMillan scored 26 points and Gail Goodrich and Jerry West 34 apiece to lead the Los Angeles Lakers to a 122-109 triumph over the Chicago Bulls Tuesday night, the Bulls' third straight defeat.

The Bulls led until midway through the second period when the Lakers rallied to wipe out a seven-point Chicago advantage and grab a 56-50 lead at the half.

New league hurt, but still alive

NEW YORK (UPI)—The granting of a franchise to Long Island by the National Hockey League Tuesday could knock the New York entry out of the rival World Hockey Association next season, but it won't prevent the younger league from beginning play as scheduled.

"Our chances are a lot slimmer than they were before today," said Neil Shayne, president of the New York franchise in the WHA. "But with us or without us, the WHA will start next season. Of course, I prefer it with us."

Shayne had been bidding to put his team in the Nassau County Coliseum, scheduled for completion early next year, but the Coliseum was holding out for an NHL franchise, which it now apparently will get in time for next season.

Shayne, a 39-year-old attorney, contends that the NHL, deliberately moved up its expansion timetable two years to frustrate the plans for the WHA and of New York in particular.

CSI slates drill tonight

The College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles will make their first public appearance of the year Wednesday night in a scrimmage against an AAU all-star team from Pocatello at the CSI gymnasium. The scrimmage will start at 8 p.m.

The AAU team will be headed by Willie Humes, one of the top collegiate scorers the past two years, and other ex-Idaho State players.

The event is a benefit for the March of Dimes and all proceeds will go to that charity.

1st film

Film of the Idaho State football victory over Portland State will be shown at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the College of Southern Idaho student union building.

The film showing has been set up in conjunction with the CSI-Idaho State player basketball scrimmage which will begin at 8 p.m.
