Rogers asks Pakistan, India to end fighting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers has urgently appealed to India and Pakistan to cease hostilities and engage in a mutual withdrawal of forces along the East Pakistani-Indian border.

Summoned on short notice to the State Department were the Pakistani ambassador and the Indian Charge d'Affairs in two separate meetings with Rogers, each lasting about 20 minutes, department officials said today.

The officials said that the United States was working actively behind the scenes calling for restraining among all the parties who are interested or affected by the outbreak of clashes between India and Pakistan.

Reports on the fighting reaching the State Department were fragmentary, but responsible U.S. officials were willing to confirm that some Indian forces had moved into Pakistani territory in the last 24 to 48 hours. The State Department, apparently concerned that a statement could inflame passions, was studiously silent on details of the conflict or even its implications for the United States.

Officials would only cite a public speech by Rogers Nov. 12 to Sigma Delta Chi, the journalism society, in which he said that the United States would work to prevent hostilities and would keep the United States from becoming involved in another conflict in Asia.

So strict was the State Department policy of silence that department spokesman Charles W. Bray neither would confirm nor deny if the United States had a secret commitment to come to the assistance of Pakistan with arms and U.S. troops if Pakistan were attacked.

Benjamin H. Oehlert Jr., U.S. ambassador to Pakistan during 1967-1969, suggested in a letter to the New York Times on Nov. 3 that such a bilateral agreement existed.

Apparently responsible administration officials were concerned if the United States denied such a secret agreement, such a denial might be taken among some of the combatants to be a "coverup statement" actually confirming the existence of some secret military defense agreement.

Bray would only say that he cautioned newsmen against speculating that a secret alliance existed between the United States and Pakistan.

Rogers told Pakistan's Ambassador Gen. Mohammad Raza and Indian Charge d'Affairs M. Rsgotra "that in the view of the United States government, the most immediate consideration was a gers told Pakistan's Ambassador Gen. Mohammad Raza and Indian Charge d'Affairs M. Rsgotra "that in the view of the United States government, the most immediate consideration was a military disengagement and mutual withdrawal to keep the situation from escalating," Bray said.

Pakistanis claim edge in battles

By United Press International Pakistani troops have killed 1,042 Indian troops and damaged 20 Indian tanks since hostilities erupted along the East Pakistan border Sunday, an official Pakistani report said today.

The report said fighting was continuing in the Sylhet district where Pakistani troops recaptured a border outpost overrun earlier by Indians.

Pakistani President Agha Mohammad Yhaya Kahn, speaking at the dedication of a machinery complex built by the Communist Chinese at Taxila, 20 miles from Islamabad, said his country is "gravely threatened by Indian armed aggression."

The Indian action, he said, was leading the two countries to "the point of no return."

"All attempts to settle the dispute through peaceful means so far have been frustrated by Indian intransigence," he said.

A 12-member delegation from Peking, headed by Li Shulching, Communist China's minister for machine building, was also on hand for the dedication.

Li, who spoke briefly during the ceremony, said Peking "resolutely supports" Pakistan in its fight "against foreign aggression and interference."

Aid bill delayed until '72

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation which started out as an attempt to funnel money to school districts faced with desegregation problems but ended up as a vehicle for the foes of racial busing has been delayed until early next year. The Senate Wednesday postponed debate on the $2.5 billion measure until January when it became apparent that immediate consideration of it would have produced a drawn-out debate—and interfered with the lawmakers' plans to get home for the holidays.

Originally the Senate had planned to routinely send the legislation to a conference committee to adjust House and Senate differences before sending it on to President Nixon's desk; but Southerners threatened to filibuster to keep in the bill provisions against using the money to promote the busing of students for racial balance.

Since such a debate could have lasted well toward the Christmas holidays, the Senate decided instead to send the bill back to the Labor and Public Welfare Committee with orders to rewrite it.

Jersey warden seized

RAHWAY, N.J. (UPI)—Between 50-150 inmates held Warden Hugh Vukcevic hostage in the Rahway State Prison Auditorium today and battled a group of guards who tried to rescue him.

Six guards were injured in the rescue attempt, a spokesman said. Five of the men were cut in the scuffle with inmates and one suffered minor bruises. Four of them were hospitalized and the other two were released.

Other prisoners, meanwhile, roamed at will throughout the four wings of the maximum security institution, setting fire to trash bins and noisily celebrating their freedom.

"The place is bedlam," one guard said. The prison houses 1,300 men—about 75 per cent of them black. It was not known how many were participating in the disturbance but officials said many inmates stayed in their cells.

A spokesman said the most serious trouble was in the auditorium where 50-150 inmates were holding Vukcevic.

Malta pair die in crash

UCON, Idaho (UPI) — Two vehicles collided head-on about two miles north of Ucon in Jefferson County Wednesday evening, killing a young Magic Valley couple.

State Police identified the victims as Bill Dwight Rogers, 17, and Kathryn Dawn Durfee, 18, Malta.

Officers said a car driven by Rogers was struck head-on by a pickup truck driven by Rex Wade, 19, Ashton, on U. S. 191. They said Wade's vehicle went over the center line of the road before striking Rogers' car.

Rogers was dead at the scene, Miss Durfee was dead on arrival at an Idaho Falls hospital.

Pullback studied

By United Press International Prime Minister Golda Meir will propose a plan for partial Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territory during discussions with President Nixon next week, an Israeli newspaper said today.

The newspaper, Ha'Aretz, quoting "authoritative" American and Israeli sources, did not give details. But it said there was some feeling that such a proposal could lead to the United States granting Israel the Phantom jets it has requested.

"The feeling here is that President Nixon needs something that he could take to Moscow when he visits there next spring, and the Phantom deal now depends on territorial concessions," the newspaper said.

There was no comment by the government, Mrs. Meir is flying to the United States next week on an unofficial visit and will meet with Nixon in Washington Dec. 2.

Mrs. Meir and Foreign Minister Abba Eban were meeting today with the two-man mission from the Organization of African Unity — Presidents Leopold Senghor of Senegal and Yakubu Gowon of Nigeria.

Viet units drive on toward port

SAIGON (UPI) — Members of a South Vietnamese armored group and 2,000 elite paratroopers leapt toward the Mekong River city of Kampong Cham today to try to break up a Communist stronghold in neighboring Cambodia.

In Paris, meanwhile, negotiators at the Vietnamese talks took the day off to let the United States representatives celebrate Thanksgiving. The talks will resume their weekly schedule Dec. 2.

Military sources said three battalions of paratroopers were dropped into the Chup Rubber Plantation in Cambodia Wednesday.

Burley man slain in robbery try

BY GEORGIA LAYTON Times-News Writer

BURLEY — Richard Thomas Jenkins, 29, Burley, was fatally shot by Burley police Wednesday evening as he was attempting to rob the Safeway store on Overland Avenue.

Officers said Jenkins, who had lived in Burley for about six weeks, approached the checkout stand at the store about 8:30 p.m. Wednesday with an armload of groceries and demanded money from the cash register.

He then demanded to see either the manager or the assistant manager.

Mike Lyda, assistant manager, was in the store at the time. As he approached the checkstand, Jenkins pointed a small caliber pistol at him and demanded the money from the safe.

Lyda opened the safe. As he was placing the money in a sack, Mike Hill, a store employee, made his way to the office and phoned the Burley Police Department.

The call was answered by Chief Ken Barry and Patrolman Rex Madden. When the pair entered the store, Jenkins reportedly fired at them, and the bullet struck the chief in the head, inflicting a surface wound. Officer Madden reportedly fired three times at Jenkins, mortally injuring him.

Jenkins ran from the building, firing a second time, and dropped to the sidewalk about 25 feet from the southwest corner of the building as he was running east on 16th Street. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Cassia Memorial Hospital.

Chief Barry received treatment there for the scalp wound and was released.

Jenkins left the money sack, containing $1,288, on the floor of the store in front of the safe.

An autopsy has been ordered, according to Cassia County Prosecutor Gordon Nielson. It will be performed Friday morning. The body is at Payne Mortuary.

At the time of his death, Jenkins was reportedly on his way from South Carolina to California, where he was on parole on another armed robbery charge, Nielson said. Nielson also said Jenkins had served eight terms for armed robbery and burglary in the past.

Lyda told the Times-News today there were only about 15 customers left in the store at the time of the incident as it was close to closing time.

He said everyone remained calm and no one else was injured.

FATIGUE shows in face of Tim Macklow, stewardess aboard hijacked Northwest Airlines 727, who was held on plane by hijacker along with three other crew members for flight from Seattle to Reno, Nev. Crewman shielded her from reporters, saying, "Let up on Tim. She's had a rough day." (UPI)

FBI hunts vanishing hijacker

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — A courteous middle-aged man disappeared, apparently by parachute, with a $200,000 ransom Wednesday night while a jetliner he hijacked was en route from Seattle to Reno.

FBI Agent Harold Campbell said that two of the four chutes the hijacker had been given in addition to the ransom were missing when the plane reached Reno and there was "no way he could have gotten off in Reno."

The man, described by Airline Captain William Scott as "very courteous," flashed what he said was a bomb in making good his hijack, but Campbell declared it was not known if it was actually explosive. A search was under way, Campbell said, between Seattle, Wash., and Reno, Nev., especially in the wilderness areas of Oregon.

Campbell declined to comment on reports that the hijacker was an experienced parachutist, possibly a fire-fighting smoke jumper.

The man was tentatively identified as a "D.B. Cooper." Passengers reported he was "very relaxed."

They also said he chatted amiably with a stewardess before handing her a note saying he was taking over the plane. FBI agents with dogs unsuccessfully scoured the area around the Reno airport after the landing, moving through a residential community and a sage brush wilderness.

The Northwest Airlines 727 jetliner with 43 aboard was hijacked on a flight from Portland, Ore., to Seattle.

A stewardess saw "two red cylinders and wires" which the hijacker claimed was the bomb, the FBI said.

All the passengers and two stewardesses were permitted to disembark the plane at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport after he was given the money, the biggest ransom ever paid a hijacker. Northwest Airlines said the money was collected from Seattle area banks.

He was also given four parachutes, delivered by McCord Air Force Base near Seattle.

The Air Force sent aloft a jet fighter, a jet trainer, and a cargo plane with parachutists aboard to trail the airliner as it flew south. An Air Force spokesman said the pursuing planes may not have been able to see the hijacker jump from the jet because it was too low and too dark.

The hijacking began between Portland, Ore., and Seattle, Wash., when the hijacker handed a stewardess a note asking $200,000 ransom money.

The plane, Flight 305, originally took off from Washington, D.C., and made stops at Minneapolis, Minn.; Great Falls, Mont.; Missoula, Mont.; Spokane, Wash.; and Portland. The plane circled Seattle-Tacoma International Airport for nearly two hours while Northwest Airlines officials obtained the money and personnel cleared a section of the field.

The man told the pilot that everyone would be killed if his demands were not met. The passengers described the man as "very relaxed" before the hijack which sent off so smoothly most people didn't know what had happened until the plane landed.

The plane took off from Seattle 8:37 p.m. Pacific Standard Time with a new load of fuel and flew slowly, about 180 knots per hour and at a low altitude on a flight plan that was to land him in Reno for refueling 3 1/2 hours later. (Continued on p. 2)

Real discipline only in schools

By O. A. (GUS) KELKER
Editor, Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Ed Cavanaugh, head athletic coach at Idaho State University, Pocatello, Wednesday told members of the local Kiwanis Club the athletic program in schools is the only place left where real discipline can be found — even above the home and the church.

With 33 members of the Kiwanis sponsored Little League football team as guests, the club members were warned by the Pocatello coach that the national move to eliminate inter-scholastic athletic competition is "an easy bill of goods to buy" but that it was "90 per cent malarky."

He said the "out and out" movement to drop athletics "would be a tragedy if it succeeded."

"The trouble is," he said, "is that there are too many people, including our youth, who believe it is a sin to even sweat, let alone work."

He commended Kiwanis Club members for "backing a group like these boys" because it served to teach them that if they wanted something then they had to work for it. Speaking to the team members — all seventh grade junior high school youths — the coach said anything in life worth having was worth an effort and that "dogging" it would end up with the individual getting nowhere.

Speaking briefly was Bob Griffin, one of the assistant coaches at Idaho State. He discussed ball handling and passing.

The two speakers were introduced by Max Brown, program chairman for the day.

Stan Snow, Kiwanis member and coach of the Little League team, introduced the team members. Mentioning that the team did not win a game during the season, he said the effort could be "chalked up to character building." It brought a laugh response from the young guests.

Kiwanian Bill Koch presented Coach Cavanaugh with a plaque which named him as an honorary member of the Vandal Booster organization. It was given the coach, he said, because Idaho State beat Boise State and thus enabled the University of Idaho to win the Big Sky conference championship. That game was Nov. 13.

Richard Reed told members the annual ladies night would be held on Tuesday, Dec. 7 at the Blue Lakes Country Club. Dinner will be at 8 p.m. and dancing will start shortly after nine with music furnished by the Sun Valley Steel Band.

Hunt hijacker

The jetliner landed in Reno after passing over Spokane, Wash., Portland, Red Bluff, Calif., and Sacramento, Calif. Just before leaving the Seattle airport the Federal Aviation Administration told the pilot he could fly with no restrictions on altitude or direction.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Larry Finegold, one of the passengers that disembarked in Seattle, told newsmen that the crew informed those aboard "there were some minor difficulties." "Then we saw they were dumping gas, and I thought there was some landing gear problem. After we landed, I saw this gas truck drive up and I thought to myself, "Why don't they get us off first?"

He said he then saw a money bag being handed over "and I realized there had been a hijack."

Another passenger, Mrs. Richard Simmons, Seattle, said the stewardesses "kept wishing us a happy Thanksgiving and the crew kept us ignorant to avoid panic."

"We thought we were on our way to Vancouver after the plane passed over Seattle, and I thought, 'Oh, my gosh, either we're being hijacked or we got on the wrong plane.'"

Friends may call at the mortuary on Friday and until 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

Nixons to West Coast for Thanksgiving quiet

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon and his wife Pat today began a quiet weekend in the Western White House, the President joining millions of American men in a Thanksgiving Tradition — watching football on television.

Nixon left the plane talking about the Nebraska-Oklahoma game.

It was the first family holiday since they have been in the White House that the Nixons were separated from their daughters, and the first Thanksgiving out of Washington for them since Nixon took office.

While Nixon relaxed, he was believed to be planning possible action in the East Coast dock strike and preparing an announcement on the date of his Peking trip.

The President arrived from Washington in a jovial mood and was already talking football when he left the plane at El Toro Marine Air Station Wednesday night.

The Nebraska-Oklahoma game, pitting the top two college teams in the country, was the subject of Nixon's conversation with Phil Ellsworth, former athletic director at Occidental College in Los Angeles.

"That's going to be a great game," he told Ellsworth, who knew him when Nixon was a third-string griddier warming the bench for Whittier College.

The Nixons planned a turkey dinner, but without their daughters, Tricia Cox and Julie Eisenhower, who were spending the holidays with their husbands and in-laws.

Mrs. Nixon said she made no big plans because she was not certain where they were going to spend the holiday. The White House said they would remain until Sunday and perhaps longer.

Nixon awaited a report from his board of inquiry today on the deadlocked East and Gulf Coast dock strike. It was considered likely that Nixon, probably Friday, will seek a Taft-Hartley injunction which would halt the longshoremen's strike for 80 days.

Before flying to his California seaside villa Wednesday, Nixon ordered the board to determine the status of the strike. Such a probe is a legally required first step in the Taft-Hartley process.

"BRIGHTEN YOUR WORLD WITH FLOWERS"

Old world's super-rich interesting

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Old World does not have as many centimillionaires (in dollars) as the United States and not nearly so many millionaires—but it has a few more billionaires.

The old world super rich frequently are more interesting than their American counterparts because of exotic backgrounds that sometimes are historically significant.

Take Bavaria's Prince Johannes von Thurn un Taxis. His fortune goes back to the beginning of the 18th century when his forebears started the world's first regular mail service between Vienna and Brussels. Or the March brothers of Spain, Bartolome and Juan, sons of a poor swineherd who laid the foundation for an immense fortune by purchasing a schooner and smuggling tobacco across the Mediterranean from Morocco.

It is not so easy to finger the big rich in the Old World as in the United States. Tax records are not so accessible and business disclosure requirements are few. Rich families have been secretive about the extent of their wealth for generations.

Europeans and Asians still follow feudal tradition and keep the wealth in the family.

For this reason, it is difficult to tell how much of the $5 billion empire of the Wallenberg family in Sweden is personal wealth or what stake any of the three brothers and a sister has in the $700 million March empire in Spain.

The Wallenbergs have dominated Swedish banking and industry for 200 years and the family enterprise is considered to be as solid as the massive blocks of granite out of which the main Wallenberg banking house in Stockholm is built. The Wallenbergs control eight of Sweden's 10 largest companies and 72-year-old Dr. Marcus serves personally as chairman of 15 companies.

The Wallenberg enterprises employ 150,000 Swedes at home and 100,000 persons in operations around the world. They include banks, telecommunications, airplane automobiles (Saab), airlines, iron mines and countless other operations.

Sir John Reeves Ellerman inherited his fortune in 1933. His father, also Sir John, built an empire of shipping, breweries, newspapers and other ventures. The second baronet married Ester de Sola, daughter of a Canadian descendant of a fabulously wealthy Spanish Jewish family. He is a shy recluse and an amateur zoologist, the author of books about rodents.

A socialist enemy of Baron August Finck says the German magazine "Der Spiegel" had to be right in estimating the steel magnate's fortune at $1.1 billion. Otherwise, the Socialist said, Baron Finck would have raised the roof. Now 73, Baron Finck is considered as granitic as he is secretive. The cornerstone of his fortune is 5,000 acres of choice suburban land at Munich, Germany's fastest growing city. This acreage was acquired 100 years ago by his father, Wilhelm, who rose from a humble clerk to joint ownership with his brother of Munich's Merck, Christian Bank now said to be worth $270 million. Finck also owns breweries, insurance companies, railways and electrical factories.

Aristotle Onassis and Stavros Niarchos are well known around the world because of their flamboyant style of living. Niarchos' one-time brother-in-law, George Livanos, runs his own fleet of five million tons of shipping from London. Livanos was educated at a prep school in Massachusetts and universities in Greece and England. He inherited the business from his father.

The few business associates close to Livanos say he is a serious, charming man. I have known him since his Massachusetts schoolboy days," says Greek-American shipowner Thomas Pappas, "George is a great credit to Greece."

Just 103 years ago, a German, Heinrich Sommer, opened a small hardware store in Portugal. He didn't do too well and on his death, the business was inherited by three nephews and a niece. The girl married a French immigrant, Antonio Champallimaud, who turned out to be brilliant businessman. Using the merger capital of his wife and her brothers, Champallimaud laid the foundation for what is now the biggest fortune in Portugal and one of the largest in Europe. Cement mills were the mother lode of the fortune, but the family also is in banking and various important enterprises in the African colonies of Angola and Mozambique. They built Portugal's first steel mill in 1961 and have vast real estate holdings. Antonio runs the enterprises from Mexico. He fled Portugal three years ago to avoid prosecution on charges of embezzling family funds of about $1.7 million.

Juan March, the smuggler who died at 81 in 1962, helped finance the revolution that put Gen. Francisco Franco in power in Spain. His sons, who live in secluded palaces on Mallorca and at Madrid and Geneva, control an empire of banks, steel mills, mining, oil, public utilities, airlines, automobiles and tobacco.

Few Americans outside the oil business have heard of Hilmar Reksten, yet the Norwegian tanker magnate operated ships on the Great Lakes in the woodpulp trade as long as 1929. Regarded as the boldest gambler in the international tanker business, Reksten cleaned up $600 million in profits between 1967 and 1971 by taking advantage of the series of Middle Eastern crises. He gambles on short charters at high rates instead of long-term charters.

Language therapy

ALL CHILDREN have different degrees of learning ability, says former Twin Falls resident, Linda McRoberts Carmine. Here she works with a group of children at Easter Seal Center in language therapy. She conducted three sessions in Twin Falls Wednesday for persons working with children who have learning problems.

Technical advice given on learning problems

TWIN FALLS — Area residents working with children who have learning problems were given special assistance Wednesday in three separate sessions conducted by Linda McRoberts Carmine, University of Oregon.

Mrs. Carmine explained the Engelmann theory of working with such children and assisted teachers, parents and therapists from Magic Valley during volunteer free workshops at the Easter Seal Center and Happy Day School. A third session was held at CSI Wednesday night for members of a therapy class taught by Merle Stoddard.

At the Easter Seal Center, employees and directors of the Child Development Center also attended.

Mrs. Carmine, visiting her mother, Mrs. E. W. McRoberts for Thanksgiving, offered her time and technical advice to those of the surrounding area in new techniques developed by Siegfried Engelmann of the University of Oregon. She has been teaching there with Engelmann and Dr. Wesley Becker in therapy for children with learning problems.

Mrs. Carmine said training should begin at the earliest age and as soon as the difficulty is detected. She said language training can be followed immediately with reading instructions. All of the children seen in the Twin Falls workshops, she said, can be taught to read and most can learn math and other school subjects.

Mrs. Stoddard said the goal of the Easter Seal Center is to find the "high risk" baby as soon as possible and begin language training. She said all agencies including the Child Development Center work together to train the child to the fullest extent of his abilities.

Mrs. Carmine said the first step is to determine the skills the child has and develop these fully and then teach him skills he does not have.

Agency delegates to participate

TWIN FALLS — Two representatives of the South-Central Community Action Agency will leave Sunday morning for Washington, D. C. to participate in the White House Conference on Aging.

Mrs. Edna Belle Ostlund, Twin Falls, representing the Tri-County CAA Senior Citizens Agency, and Manuel Lopez, Burley, director of the Neighborhood Center, will represent Magic Valley agencies at the national conference which starts Sunday evening in Washington, D. C.

They will fly to Washington, leaving the Twin Falls City-County Airport at 8:40 a.m. Sunday. The duo will return following adjournment of the conference Thursday noon.

The White House Conference on Aging will attract several hundred community representatives from throughout the nation to consider problems of America's senior citizens and their solutions.

Contract

RUPERT — Larry Wright Construction, Rupert, has been awarded a contract for additions to the Minidoka County Hospital.

Meeting this week in a joint session the hospital board and county commissioners awarded Wright the contract for $38,621.

Facilities for laboratory space, x-ray unit, and office space will be constructed. The contractor has included a 75-day completion stipulation in his agreement with hospital officials, with work set to begin Dec. 1.

Winners announced

BURLEY — Coming events for the Burley Lady Elks Duplicate Bridge Club were announced during regular play at Elks Lodge Hall.

The annual Christmas party will be Dec. 16 with a no host smorgasbord followed by raffle and point bridge. Prizes will be awarded.

With five tables in play winners were Harry Warnke and Gail Wolf, first; Mae Solomon and Dell Holmes, second; Mrs. Margaret Hogg and Mrs. Jean Holmes, third; Mrs. Clair Holmes and Mrs. Louise Brown, tied with Mrs. Val Gierisch and Mrs. Shirley Hunter for fourth.

WE SERVE TO SERVE AGAIN!

Mind Your Money

By PETER WEAVER

Q — I responded to an ad which said: "Home worker badly needed. Address envelopes in spare time." I sent in for the "free" details and received a letter saying that for $1.00 would be sent a list of 50 or more firms that need people to address envelopes.

I sent in my dollar and, nearly six months later, I haven't received a list. I've written several times asking for my list but no answer. Can't something be done about these frauds in the mail? — Mrs. J. P. W., Sedalia, Mo.

A — At long last, help may be on the way for frustrated mail-order consumers such as yourself. The Federal Trade Commission has proposed a new regulation which would require mail-order companies to deliver goods or services within 21 days or face a government lawsuit.

The FTC wants comments from consumers, documented by copies of cancelled checks, correspondence and other evidence. Your complaint has been passed on. Anyone with complaints about nondelivery or improper delivery of mail-order products is urged to write: Steven Goldberg, Room 263, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D. C. 20580.

The FTC will hold hearings on the mail-order mess in January and your comments will be entered as evidence in the official record.

Q — We're planning to put in central heating and air conditioning but have no existing duct work. Would it be practical to make plywood-ducts between the floor joists? — K. B., Henderson, Ky.

A — You can use this space for ducts but they must be carefully insulated. In some parts of the country this type of duct system is illegal. If the job is not properly done, water can condense along the joists and weaken the floor or ceiling. Check with your local building authority to see what rules are involved for duct installation.

You might consider a 2-inch flexible duct system sold by Space Pack. This can be self-installed by drilling outlets through the ceiling.

Q — I am shocked by your suggestion that movers should be tipped—half at first, half when the job's done. This is outright bribery. — Mrs. F. M., Easthampton, Mass.

A — I agree that we should not have to tip moving men. It's a form of bribe but so is most tipping. In talking with people who have dealt with movers many, many times, I offered their advice for coping with an imperfect situation.

Should barbers get a tip? Parking lot attendants? Beauticians? Who knows for sure? Theoretically, they should get enough pay and not have to rely on tips. But, practically, they usually don't get enough pay and we succumb to tipping if we want good service to be repeated.

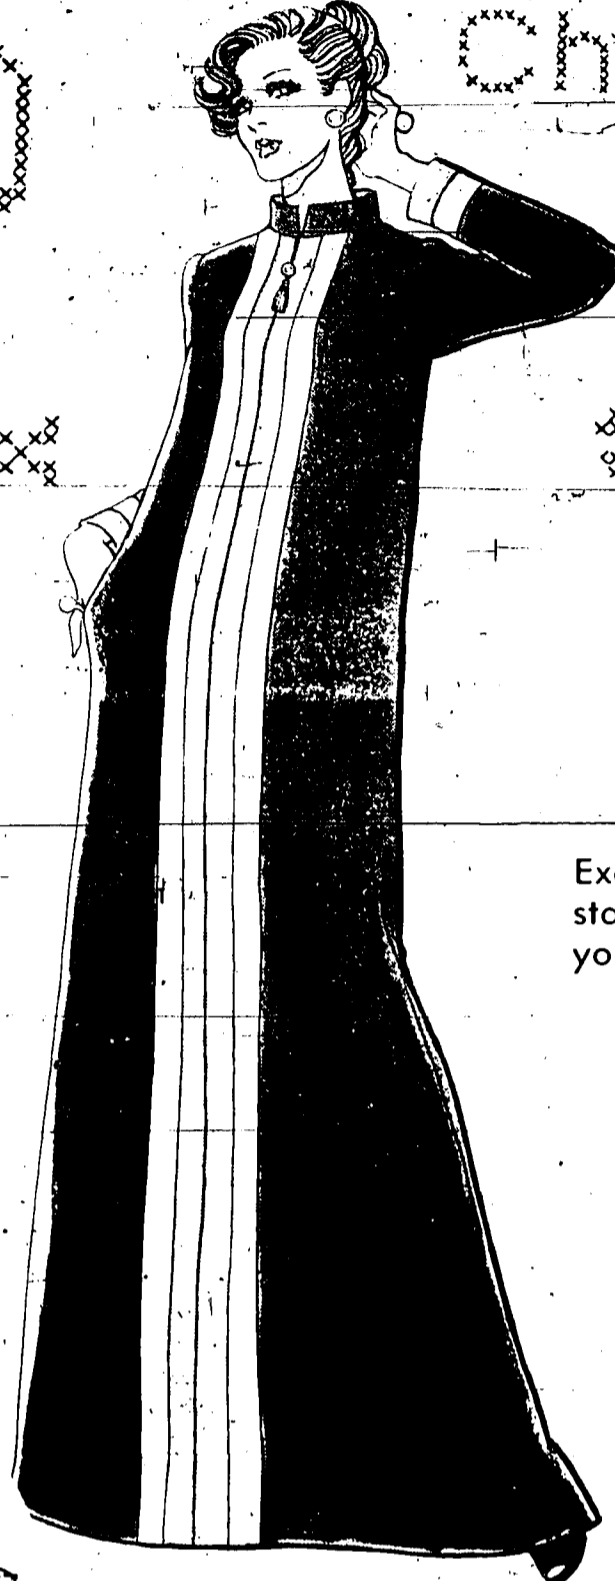

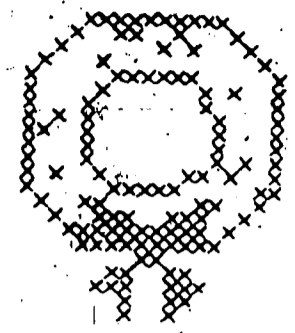

Q — I recently read about some new U. S. savings bonds which would cost $1,000 each and would pay 7.25 per cent. interest for 10 years. Nobody seems to know about them. Got any ideas? — W. J. N., Cumberland, R-I.

A — These are regular treasury bonds, not savings bonds, and were offered last summer. They come out from time to time and the only way you can spot them is to keep an eye on the financial pages or ask your local bank to advise you the next time the bonds are offered.

These bonds pay good interest but, if you suddenly have to cash them in before maturity, you may lose money by selling them on the open market. Of course, it's also possible to gain by selling on the open market.

'Jesus freaks' entering Asia

KABUL, Afghanistan (UPI)—The word is around that "Jesus Freaks" have hit Kabul—and what's more they plan to set up in Katmandu, Istanbul, Benares and Goa in the coming year.

Two multi-national teams came to Afghanistan this year. One team flew directly to Kabul, the other traveled overland along the Asian highway from Istanbul to Tehran and through Kabul to sound out the scene in India and Nepal before returning to Kabul. Their mission is to help any freak, acid-head or addict who is stranded, sick or disillusioned to make it home and maybe find a faith at the same time.

The first team was composed mainly of students who have returned for the beginning of the academic year. But some of the second team, including team leader Floyd McClung, 26, and his wife, Sally, 23, of Los Angeles, Calif., have stayed on in Kabul to set up a permanent base from which to help the hippie community.

They have taken over the top two floors of the third-rate Ufat Hotel in the center of Kabul. The top floor is a spacious pad known as "The Way Out" where free tea is served to anyone who just wants to sit around and talk about his or her problems to sympathetic listeners. The floor below has rooms for rent as low as 12 cents a night for floor space. Below that are two hotel floors of cheap crowded rooms where the aroma of hashish is ever-present.

There is plenty for the team to do. In the summer months as many as 4,000 world travelers, hippies and beards are in Afghanistan at any one time, dropping to well under half that number in winter when most head for warmer weather in India. Many of these are students and young teachers or married couples who have driven east for an adventurous long vacation and who return the same way. But many, too, are on some undefined spiritual quest, lured by the mystery and pantheism of the religions of India, searching through drugs for something beyond themselves.

It is this latter group that the Jesus Freaks are trying to help, before despair or disillusionment sends them on the downward spiral of the hard drugs.

The Way Out is the first group, Christian or otherwise, to do something to help the foreign hippie community in Afghanistan. Foreigners can always go to their embassies if they are in trouble, but many of them are so alienated from their own societies and anything that smacks of the establishment that they would rather beg on the streets than ask for help—which is what some are doing.

At present the team numbers six with four more on the way from the United States and Canada. They call themselves "helpers." Anyone who is interested enough in the intellectual content of Christianity to live with them and join the prayer and bible study sessions is known as a "guest." Everyone else who needs physical or psychological help, no matter what his religious beliefs or nationality, is a "friend."

Some members of the team, like Harry Derbing of West Berlin, were on hashish and LSD themselves until they discovered Christ. Most have traveled widely and all know the problems and uncertainties that face the young today.

Floyd and Sally McClung have been traveling for four years in 67 countries by every available means of transportation from ox carts to aircraft. Floyd feels that Christianity is a way of life that has to be lived, not a matter of going to church to show the neighbors on Sunday. It is this conviction that has led him and his wife to devote themselves to the Way Out.

"This was an experiment," the 6 foot 4 inch McClung said, "but it has proved so successful that we are going to set up similar places wherever the freaks are gathering—Kathmandu, Benares, Goa—wherever we are needed."

But McClung wants to move the group into a house to escape the influence of the floors below. He told the story of a French girl who commuted between the Way Out and her acid-dropping friends on the floor beneath, trying to decide between one and the other.

"We should have given her more love and understanding,"

Harry said. "She was getting something from them that we were not giving her—not only drugs."

This provoked a far-ranging discussion of how best she could be helped, what she was looking for, in which helpers, guests and friends all joined in. The constant theme was love, only love could really help her.

Other people whom the team had helped were mentioned: Manfred, dropping acid, tried to slit his wrist and jump off the balcony. Unable to follow through, he went to the Kabul chief of police asking to be put in jail. The Jesus Freaks worked with him instead: Dana, whom they discovered in an Afghan hospital, was brought back to the Way Out and nursed for weeks until he was strong enough to go home.

Robert, always stoned on hash, deeply depressed, swore he would never return to France. With the help of the Jesus Freaks he underwent a conversion and has now gone back.

The cost of running the Way Out lies somewhere between $300 and $400 a month. This includes the rent, subsidies for meals that friends and guests pay as little as 12 cents for, and occasional financial help for those on their way home. Half the expenses are covered by regular contributions by members of the international Christian community in Kabul who are giving considerable support to the venture. As for the rest "we just pray, and the Lord sends it in," McClung says.

"We got $350 in the last 10 days," McClung said. "One helper got $100 in the mail and handed $75 over to the team. Money comes from most unexpected sources. But we are going to need more to set up team houses elsewhere." The team has the tacit support of the Afghan authorities but has had its problems too. When "Chip," an American who was staying with them, was found to have 43 kilos of hash stashed away in a false bottom of his car, the Way Out came under suspicion as a front for a smuggling operation. "Chip" fled the country leaving his car and hash behind.

so impressed members of the foreign community in Kabul that they are prepared to keep funding them. And Christian groups in India and Nepal with whom McClung has been in contact have also expressed interest in bringing in teams.

Law, order issue returns to place in scheme

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There is evidence from the big city elections that the waning law-and-order issue finally has returned to its logical place in the political scheme of things.

It seems unlikely that anyone — politician or voter — believed that a candidate for president of the U.S. Senate could really do much to stop crime in the streets.

But in the late 1960s, when citizens were becoming alarmed about rising crime rates, candidates seeking election to the highest offices of national and state government were busy offering solutions that often stopped just short of promising to strap on pistols and go after the muggers, burglars and rapists themselves.

The fact is that big time politicians were scared to death of the issue and many felt they had to "pin on the sheriff's badge" to be on the right side.

Law enforcement certainly does need federal and state government support, especially to provide funds to improve and expand local police forces, and in the longer run to strike at the root causes of crime — poverty, ignorance, discrimination and the other iniquities of society.

But the key to controlling the kind of person-to-person crime that has alarmed so many Americans is and always was law enforcement at the local level. Neither rhetoric nor cash from Washington and the state capitals will stop hoodlums and junkies from robbing people in their homes or on the streets. Mayors and police chiefs, judges and jailers are the people to see about this kind of problem.

A few years ago, voters of

Storms sulfur source

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lightning isn't all bad. True, it starts fires that cost millions, and it takes a toll of lives, too.

But it also transforms millions of tons of inert atmospheric nitrogen into priceless fertilizer for the soil.

Hurricanes aren't all bad, either. True, they are the most destructive of storms. But they transport immense amounts of water immense distances to regions, such as the Northeastern United States, which might be in trouble if they did not occur.

Now comes an Irish agriculturist to assert that even air pollution does some good.

One of the great air pollution villains is sulfur dioxide poured into the atmosphere by fuel burning industries. It damages health, attacks buildings, and eats away at works of art.

So, obviously it would seem a switch must be made to low-sulfur fuels.

But this, says P. K. Hanley, "would have implications for agriculture since a considerable amount of the sulfur needed by crops comes from atmospheric sources."

Hanley is associated with the Soils Division, Agricultural Institute, of the Johnstown Castle Agricultural College, Wexford, Ireland. In a letter to Science, the weekly journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, he said:

"Soil and plant analyses and field experiments in many areas of the world show that sulfur is a limiting nutrient element in crop production, particularly in non-industrialized regions."

"In cleaning up the air, due allowances will need to be made for the removal of one unsought bonus of air pollution — the millions of tons of sulfur that are released annually into the atmosphere."

Hanley noted that there has "been a significant decrease in the sulfur content of fertilizers in recent years." Is this because air pollution has provided enough of this particular crop nutrient — at least in industrialized regions? And if air pollution is hiked, will the fertilizer makers have to start putting more sulfur into their product?

Hanley's letter didn't answer these questions, except perhaps inferentially.

Minneapolis elected a policeman to be mayor, causing some observers to announce the arrival of a straw in the wind. And when Philadelphia, the fourth largest city in the country, elected its former police commissioner, Frank Rizzo, to be mayor, the same observers declared the time had arrived for local officials to get hard nosed about crime or face political oblivion.

But such analyses of the outcome in Philadelphia, where Rizzo's "tough cop" image was the prime issue, and Cleveland, where another law and order candidate beat the candidate of retiring Mayor Carl Stokes, ignore some counter currents in what is now claimed to be the political mainstream for municipal officials.

Boston is an example. Mayor Kevin White beat Rep. Louis Day Hicks by a sizable margin. Law and order was one of the issues in Boston and Mrs. Hicks should have profited from it if the voters simply wanted a candidate with a get tough line. Boston has a crime problem (54 per cent of citizens interviewed for a recent National League of Cities poll felt unsafe on their neighborhood streets at night) and Mrs. Hicks has a nonsense reputation stemming from her days on the Boston school board.

Mrs. Hicks did try to use the law and order issue, but she could not corner White. Instead of accusing her of crying wolf, the mayor emphasized what he was doing to fight crime — such as adding 400 men to the police force — and effectively neutralized the issue.

White followed the advice of political analysts Richard Scammon and Ben Wattenberg in their book "The Real Majority" for liberals to avoid letting their support for blacks and other minorities become confused with softness on law and order.

In San Francisco, something completely in conflict with the get tough theory occurred. Richard D. Hongisto, 34, was elected sheriff, beating the incumbent of 15 years and a pledged to improve the food, medical care and living conditions of the inmates.

Philadelphia and Cleveland are very different cities from Boston and San Francisco. But people anywhere are not all that different and if there is a common lesson to be taken from the four cities it may be that while law and order is very definitely a political issue, voters do not demand one answer and no other.

Lowest total of war

He's thankful

FIVE-YEAR-OLD Roger Alan Wojcik, hospitalized since birth with a rare and unusual fatal skin disease, looks forward to another Thanksgiving, perhaps his last, from his hospital bed. "Oh boy," he exclaimed to a nurse when told that turkey would be on the menu. (UPI)

SAIGON (UPI) — American combat casualties of five killed and four wounded last week were the lowest overall total on Indochina war records going back to the beginning of 1965, the U.S. command reported today.

The five GIs killed in battle was the same number as the previous week. It brought the American war dead toll to 45,804 since Jan. 1, 1961, command spokesmen said.

The four soldiers wounded were the fewest for as long as command records go, back to Jan. 1, 1965, spokesmen said. It brought the total of wounded in the conflict to 302,205.

Three of the men were wounded in Vietnam and hospitalized, spokesmen said. The fourth was wounded in "air operations" over Laos and though spokesmen had no details of the incident, they said the serviceman was treated and returned to duty.

South Vietnamese and Communist casualties last week were at about the same level of recent weeks, the allied commands reported.

U.S. spokesmen said the combined total of nine killed and wounded was the lowest weekly casualty toll, although in the week ended Oct. 30 two Americans died in fighting.

Agnew's effect aired

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Spiro Agnew could seriously affect President Nixon's chances for re-election if he is the vice presidential nominee next November, the California poll reported today.

The statewide independent survey showed New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller would be the GOP's best bet for the second spot while California Gov. Ronald Reagan would be the poorest choice.

California has a large segment of non-Republicans whom the GOP must appeal to if it is to win the largest bloc of electoral votes in the nation, the poll said.

Among Democrats, Rockefeller drew the most appeal (34 per cent), followed by John Connally, Agnew and Reagan. Republicans chose Agnew first (33 per cent), followed by Reagan, Rockefeller and Connally.

Bayh asks time for arguments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., wants the Senate to take time to hear all the arguments against the nomination of William H. Rehnquist to the Supreme Court.

Bayh indicated Wednesday debate on the Rehnquist nomination might delay adjournment of Congress past the Dec. 4 target date. But he denied he intended to filibuster against confirmation.

The Senate Judiciary Committee has approved Rehnquist's nomination by a 12-4 vote. It also approved unanimously, 16-0, the nomination of Richmond, Va., attorney Lewis F. Powell.

Bayh opposed Rehnquist's nomination in the committee on grounds that Rehnquist, a former Phoenix, Ariz., attorney and a chief aide to Attorney General John M. Mitchell, has a poor record on civil rights and civil liberties.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., the assistant Democratic leader in the Senate, said he hoped the nominations for the two Supreme Court vacancies could be called up for a vote by the full Senate no later than Saturday, Dec. 4.

Bayh, however, said he felt a "responsibility to bring to this body certain information at hand on Rehnquist."

The Indiana Senator said he knew that Senators were anxious to wind up the session and get home for Christmas, but he said they should "be willing to take the time to hear sufficient argument (on Rehnquist)."

Bayh led successful fights against the confirmation of two other nominations by President Nixon to the Supreme Court — G. Harrold Carswell of Florida and Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. of South Carolina.

2 arrested

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Two Chinese seamen were arrested after federal agents seized an estimated $1 million worth of heroin on the Dutch freighter Nederwall, the U.S. Customs Service reported Wednesday.

Three pounds of heroin and four pounds of smoking opium were found during a search of the freighter Tuesday night. Inspectors boarded the ship after small quantities of drugs were found during a routine waterfront check.

GRANDRAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Roger Alan Wojcik, who at 5½ already has lived five years longer than he was expected to, spent this Thanksgiving in the same hospital bed in which he has celebrated almost every other day of his life.

He had little more to look forward to than a turkey dinner.

But for Roger, the victim of a rare and usually fatal skin disease, this was a lot.

"Oh Boy," he exclaimed when informed that turkey was on the menu.

However, the feast, although a rare treat, will be a lonely one for Roger. His parents pressed for funds and torn by emotion, spent a quiet day at their Three Oaks home in southwest Michigan rather than join their son.

"I'm afraid to go up," his father, Charles Wojcik, said.

"Last year it nearly cost me my life. It's the feeling for the child. I couldn't get him off my mind and lost control of the truck, hit a pole and rolled it over and over."

Born with a skin disease known as epidermolysis bullosa, Roger has made his home at Mary Freebed Rehabilitation Hospital here since shortly after birth, but his parents have not lost hope that he will some day be cured.

"They said he may not live five weeks and here it is over five years and he's still going," his father said.

Dr. George T. R. Fahlund, executive director of the hospital, described Roger's ailment as "a chronic, relentlessly progressive disease," which prevents the boy from growing new skin and "results in large blisters and the skin breaks down in blotches all over the body."

Like the disease, the cost of hospitalization grows progressively worse — at the rate of $1,300 a month. In 5½ years, the Wojciks have accumulated more than $88,000 in hospital ills. "I just don't earn that kind of money to pay it," said Wojcik, 48, a lab technician at American Cyanamid Chemical Co. in Michigan City, Ind. "I can't live long enough to ever pay it."

The state, under the crippled children's fund, has assumed a large share of the expenses, but requires Wojcik to repay $80 a month to the fund and regularly checks the family's earnings to determine if they can pay more.

McKeithen didn't show

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Attorney General Jack P.F. Gremlillon challenged Gov. John McKeithen to bring a gun to the state capitol at high noon Wednesday.

When McKeithen failed to show up, Gremlillon called him a coward.

"I didn't think he was gonna show up in the first place. He's a first class coward," Gremlillon said.

Gremlillon's challenge was issued in response to a remark McKeithen made in a speech Monday.

McKeithen had referred to Gremlillon's conviction last month for lying to a federal grand jury about his connection with a loan company that went bankrupt.

"I'm awfully embarrassed by our attorney general," McKeithen said. "I don't know of anything else to do but shoot him."

McKeithen said his remark was misinterpreted. He said he intended it to be "facetious" and only meant Gremlillon's perjury case "has been through the courts and there is nothing else to do unless you want to take him out and shoot him."

But Gremlillon refused to be soothed.

Marines still in Vietnam

HOI AN, Vietnam (UPI) —R. P. Moore, 21, of Goldendale, Wash. stood at rigid attention while his commanding officer and gunnery sergeant hit him on the arms.

The raps made official the promotion of "Rip" Moore to corporal in the U.S. Marine Corps. Rip is one of about 70 members of Sub-Unit 1, 1st Air and Naval Gunfire Co. —the largest single outfit of Marines left in Vietnam.

That the "Anglico" unit is still in the country puzzles many people who have read and heard that Marines are no longer in the war zone.

A photo hangs in the Anglico Club showing a Marine walking off a ship in the United States. He is identified as the last Leatherneck to leave.

"Army guys come up to me all the time and ask me what I'm still doing here," said 1st Lt. Don Leland of Portland, N.C., the company's executive officer.

Numerous complaints are heard around the sandy base near the coast that Martha Mitchell, wife of the U.S. attorney general, made a publicized statement that all Marines had gone home. But the Marines —about 500 in all —are still in Vietnam. They mainly are the Anglico unit, guards at U.S. embassies and advisers to South Vietnamese marine forces.

The Anglico men are spread from the Mekong Delta to the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) —mainly in observation posts to guide naval artillery and air strikes. In addition, the unit acts as support to bring in American Army helicopters assisting Republic of Korea marines at bases in this area.

Maj. E. J. Dyer of Kansas City, Mo., commands the Anglico team here through its final months. The unit will break up as the Korean marine brigade goes home.

While the Marines are still here, the stiff code of discipline and conduct remains in effect. Uniforms are clean and enlisted men seem to say "sir!" twice in every sentence. Scrawled in black on a piece of cardboard in the Anglico Club is the legend:

"Only God looks down on Marines
"Everybody else looks up.

US patrols defensive

LEECH VALLEY, Vietnam (UPI) — It was literally a dot on the map.

A tiny black dot inside a small yellow circle and it showed where 21 American soldiers were using black machetes to hack their way through head-high elephant grass in a combat patrol.

The dot was the 3rd Platoon, Alpha Company of the 1st Battalion, 327th Infantry.

By nightfall on the third day of their patrol in the rocket belt five miles from Da Nang, the platoon had moved their dot to a small hill at one end of Leech Valley. It was duly recorded on the big map back at Fire Base Maude and on bigger maps elsewhere in American headquarters around South Vietnam.

The moving dot is termed "defensive" patrolling, since the United States is pulling its troops out of the war zone. The 21 men of the platoon packed everything from a pair of machine guns to grenade. Gunships and artillery support were a radio call away.

The men could not stop to admire the view as monsoon clouds loitered below the peaks of the surrounding dark green mountains and silver waterfalls flashed in the setting sun. They were hushed and their "L.T." (lieutenant) had trained his binoculars on three Viet Cong stalking across a nearby hill.

The platoon has not fired a shot in anger in months. The bag for this patrol had been a 14-foot-long python, a smooth-skinned snake that measured about five feet long, and several hundred mosquitos.

First Lt. Ed Holland of West Islip, N.Y., passed the glasses on and hunkered down by a gnarled tree, listening to the crackle of his radio through a plastic-covered receiver jammed against his left ear.

While various members of the platoon watched the three men vanish over the hill, Holland tried to confirm that all friendly soldiers in the area were accounted for in order to avoid shooting at possible U.S. or South Vietnamese troops.

ENGINEERS TEST Pioneer spacecraft to be launched toward Jupiter Feb. 27 from Cape Kennedy. It will be first flight past Mars. Probe needs large radio antenna to maintain communication with Earth. Voyage will take 22 months. (UPI)

Jupiter bound

Robot spacecraft due risky trip to Jupiter

REDONDO BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—The U.S. space agency plans to send a robot spacecraft in three months on a risky, 22-month pathfinding voyage through the asteroid belt beyond Mars to the colossal planet Jupiter.

It will be the first flight of a spacecraft beyond Mars and the space agency says the mission in many respects is much more ambitious, challenging and complex than that of Mariner 9 now orbiting Mars.

The Jupiter explorer, a silvery spacecraft called Pioneer F, is now undergoing final testing at the TRW Corp. plant here and will be shipped to Cape Kennedy next month for final launch preparations.

It is scheduled to be launched from the Florida spaceport Feb. 27 by an Atlas-Centaur rocket using a third stage for the first time. Pioneer must be accelerated to more than 32,000 miles per hour—a record—to reach Jupiter 380 million miles away.

Pioneer is scheduled to fly within 100,000 miles of the giant planet around Christmas Day, 1973. It will photograph the planet and possibly some of its 12 moons and perform a dozen other experiments to answer some of the many mysteries of Jupiter and pave the way for more advanced spacecraft to follow later this decade and in the 1980s.

"Pioneer is a very vital precursor for all flights to follow," said Robert S. Kraemer, director of planetary programs for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

The spacecraft and a second to follow in 1973 will be the first to fly through the asteroid belt, a ring of space debris orbiting the sun for 180 million to 330 million miles out. The rock chunks range in size from the 480 mile thick ceres to tiny fragments.

"We think we can fly through this belt without damage to the spacecraft, but we don't know for sure," Kraemer said.

Another potential hazard will come when the 550-pound probe reaches the potentially hazardous radiation belts around Jupiter. Pioneer will fly into the heart of them to measure their intensity.

Pioneer will be so far away when it reaches Jupiter, it will take 45 minutes for its signals to travel back to earth. That means if the craft reports any problems, it will take controllers on earth 90 minutes to do anything about them.

Gold in ocean

CHICAGO (UPI)—There's gold in those oceans—and if you can get it out it's all yours.

The total amount of gold in the world's seas, says Encyclopaedia Britannica, has been estimated at billions of tons. But as the concentration is .00006 parts gold per 1 million parts water no one has found an economical method of extracting it from the brine.

Burly student in new field

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (UPI)—Charles A. Smith is a burly and bearded graduate student doing research in a field traditionally dominated by women—nursery schools.

Smith, on leave of absence from Purdue University, is a full-time staff member of the Bowling Green State University Nursery School. He also is an instructor in home economics.

"I do quite a bit more than just wipe noses and watch kids play," Smith said in an interview. "What I'm trying to do here is to utilize a new kind of nursery school curriculum for young children, centering on the work of Swiss psychologist Jean Piaget."

He explained that Piaget's theory is that "action is important for young children. They learn from their actions on the environment."

Smith, who holds a bachelor's degree in psychology and a master's in child development, said "I'm concerned about children's feelings during the three hours they spend with me. We discuss things like what it means to be happy, what it means to be sad, and how do you know someone is happy-sad?"

Along this line, Smith said, "I think it's all right for a teacher to tell Billy she's angry with him if he just hit her. She should let him know what effect that had on her."

Being a man in a woman's field has led Smith to search for a teaching style "that's consistent with my social conditioning as a man." He noted that men in the nursery school field usually observe and teach under the supervision of women, but they "can't copy women in their treatment of children or in classroom manner."

"I believe in providing activities for both sexes to play. I don't steer children—boys playing with tools and girls with dolls and purses. If a boy wants to play in the housekeeping area, that's okay with me," Smith said.

Flexibility is stressed in Smith's classroom with no rigid time schedule of things to do. "The children decide what they want to do," Smith said, "and the only rules concern aggressive behavior and mistreatment of property."

Few women in higher government

By LOUIS CASSELS
 United Press International
 When President Nixon passed up the opportunity to name a woman to the Supreme Court, he called fresh attention to a fact that is galling even to the more moderate advocates of women's liberation.
 Although women make up more than 50 per cent of the citizenry of the United States, they are grossly under-represented in the higher councils of the government.
 There are a handful of women in Congress, but none in the Cabinet and none on the Supreme Court. The highest-ranking women in the executive branch today are the chairmen of two regulatory commissions—the Maritime Commission and the Tariff Commission.

 While these certainly are important jobs, they hardly add up to a major female breakthrough into the inner circle of government policy-making.
 Even at the second echelon, women are strikingly scarce. Of the 3,854 federal jobs that rank in the top two Civil Service grades or are filled by presidential appointment, a recent study showed, only 63, or 1.6 per cent, are now occupied by women.

 Statistics compiled by the Civil Service Commission reveal that this pattern of discrimination against women extends through every level of federal employment. In the six lowest Civil Service pay grades, nearly half of the government's employees are women.
 But in the six middle grades, women comprise only 20 per cent of the government's work force. And in the six highest grades, less than 4 per cent of the jobs are held by women.

 Supporters of equal opportunity say these figures show that women are being wronged in two ways. First, they are denied fair representation in the levels of government where policies are framed and decisions are made.
 Second, women who do work for the government are paid far less, on the average, than their male colleagues. The pay gap was dramatically illustrated by a recent survey in the U.S. Office of Education.

Thursday, November 25, 1971 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 13
 This federal agency takes pride in the fact that 56 per cent of its employees are women. But a study, ordered by Education Commissioner Sidney P. Marland at the request of a women's rights group, revealed that the median pay of male employees was approximately twice the median pay of female employees in the agency. The Department of Health, Education & Welfare—of which the Office of Education is part—has ordered all of its branches to bear down on recruitment and promotion of women to the higher Civil Service grades.

 But the figures clearly indicate that the government so far has not done a very good job of practicing what it preaches about equal opportunity in employment.

Ultra-rich often shy, mysterious figures

The richest Americans:
 John Paul Getty, oil, $2 billion.
 Howard Hughes, industrialist, $2 billion.
 H.L. Hunt and sons, oil $1.5 billion plus.
 Daniel K. Ludwig, shipping, $1 billion.
 H. Ross Perot, data processing, $800 million.
 Dr. Edwin Land, Polaroid, $600 million.
 Paul Mellon, banking, industry, $500 million.
 John D. MacArthur, insurance, $500 million.
 Bob Hope, entertainer, $450 million.
 R.E. Smith, Houston, Tex., realty operator, $400 million.

By LEROY POPE
 UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI)—The rich and super rich are more numerous than most people suppose. Many are shy, mysterious figures. Some are even difficult to identify.
 Even in the United States, where concealment of wealth from tax gatherers is difficult, there may be centimillionaires hiding from public view. In some foreign lands it is relatively easy to hide a big fortune—but it's also harder to accumulate one.
 There are at least 150 centimillionaires in the United States, probably nearer 175. In the Old World, fortunes often are kept intact or nearly so for generations despite inheritance taxes through arrangements that keep the principal in the family. American law forces breakups.

 John Paul Getty, considered the richest man in the world today, insists that "It's no bargain to be rich." Taxes hurt too much. It is too painful, he told United Press International in London, to see 80 to 90 percent of your income vanish into the tax gatherer's maw.
 Although it has been calculated that Getty controls an empire worth $12 billion, this has to be exaggerated unless it includes ventures in which his supposed control rests on extremely thin leverage. Experts put his wealth at $2 billion.
 Howard Hughes, possessor of the next largest American fortune, has held the headlines for years yet nobody knows him.

 While there is no reason to doubt that the shy and somewhat misanthropic billionaire is still alive, the state of his health is as much a mystery as his whereabouts.
 Hughes' money came from Hughes Tool Co. of Houston, which he inherited, from Hughes Aircraft Corp., from successful motion picture ventures, real estate speculations and other enterprises.
 H. L. Hunt, 82, no longer is in the public eye. Two of his sons, N. Bunker Hunt, following his father's path in oil and real estate, and Lamar, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs football team, are. The Hunts, between them, may be almost as rich as Hughes, and old H.L. never has denied being a billionaire.

 Most creative of the billionaires is Daniel Keith Ludwig, 74, a native of South Haven, Mich., who now lives in New York. Besides his vast shipping fleet, Ludwig controls real estate, resort hotels and mining and ranching operations in Mexico, Australia, Germany, the Caribbean, Brazil and many parts of the United States.
 His latest venture, on which he plans to spend $60 million, is the growing of new hardwood forests on 2.4 million acres of Brazil's Amazon Valley on the Jarl River. He has chosen the Asian gmelina tree.
 H. Ross Perot learned the fundamentals of business as a lad attending his father's weekly mule auctions in Texarkana, Tex. Next he talked the circulation manager of the Texarkana Gazette into letting him start a new route in a black neighborhood where no carrier ever had succeeded and allowing him 70 per cent of the gross instead of the usual 35 per cent. He delivered the 12-mile route on muleback and netted $40 to $50 a month.

 Perot first hit headlines by spending $2 million on the venture to send two chartered plane loads of Christmas gifts to American war prisoners in North Vietnam. The Communists wouldn't let the packages through and ultimately most of them went to Texas tornado victims.

 Dr. Edwin Land, 81, of Cambridge, Mass., inventor of the Polaroid camera, is another of the new big rich. He had a hard struggle to perfect and market his invention, then it took off like a space vehicle. Dr. Land still is more a scientist than a business man, a world famous expert on optics and light. In recent years he has turned to the behavioral sciences and sociology.
 Paul Mellon, the 77-year-old son of Andrew Mellon, the banking, oil and business magnate who was secretary of the Treasury in the 1920s, is known chiefly as a patron of the arts and is president of the National Gallery in Washington. John D. MacArthur, who managed to avoid the limelight until one of his disgruntled ex-employees wrote a book about him called "The Stockholder," admits he, rather than Howard Hughes, is the misanthropic billionaire. Author William Hoffman said in the book that MacArthur despises humanity and has expressed the hope that he is forgotten when he passes on.

 Besides his insurance empire, MacArthur is said to be the biggest landowner in Florida.
 English-born comedian Bob Hope is unique among the big rich because he had an early time accumulating his pile—no setbacks and not much sweat. Hope apparently is four times as rich as his nearest rivals in the entertainment world.

Park rangers play both sides cool

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Last year Yosemite National Park became almost a "war front" between long-haired youths and park rangers. This year both sides played it cool.

According to Park Information Officer Lew Albert, the difference — or one of the differences — was "communication."

In July, 1970, Yosemite resembled an armed camp girding for attack, and following a July 4 confrontation between Rangers and hippies at Stoneman Meadow, Rangers and U.S. marshals set up stringent inspection checks at the gates.

Youths were arrested for drug violations, cars with loud mufflers or other defects were turned back and persons not in cars who did not appear to have camping gear or means of support were not allowed to walk into the park.

"They'll just be stealing your gear," said a park spokesman of those turned away, noting that thefts of camping gear and other items were "astromonical" during the summer of 1970. But as the 1971 season nears a close the picture is totally different.

The park's law enforcement office reports larceny in Yosemite was down by some 30 per cent. Arrests declined by 50 per cent and there were no major disturbances.

The reason for the return to tranquility cannot be spelled out precisely, according to park authorities. But Albert suggested one factor was the Park Service's decision to switch the emphasis from law enforcement to communication, and the opening up of new "visitor participation" programs.

"This summer for instance we started an ecology float trip and naturalists took anybody who wanted to go down the Merced River on air mattresses. They explained the ecology of the area as they went," said Albert.

A "rap session" was developed whereby Rangers went into campgrounds and encouraged all persons, young and old, to ask questions about the park.

"We are trying to show maybe a little more compassion and public service," said Albert. "In previous years I think maybe we lost sight of that. We are reminding our people now that they are public servants."

During the 1970 incident park Rangers were accused of overreacting and a Florida doctor particularly protested the tactics of Rangers on horseback riding through groups of youths to disperse them.

There is still a horse patrol unit in Yosemite and the riders are trained in law enforcement techniques.

"But they are now very effective as a public relations group also," said Albert. "Their primary job is to be on camp trails, meeting people and assisting visitors."

The nine-man riding unit put on two horse shows this summer including formation riding, jumping and comedy skits.

Next summer the park hopes to institute more new programs to draw the interest of a wider spectrum of visitors.

"We work for the people," said Albert.

Shoshone chamber slates election dinner Dec. 13

SHOSHONE — The annual election dinner meeting for the Shoshone Chamber of Commerce will be at 7 p.m. Dec. 13 at the Manhattan Cafe.

Francis Bergin will be the chairman, according to Myron D. Johnson, president.

During a meeting Tuesday, Robert Miller reported that the high school students will assist in bagging candy and nuts for the visit of Santa Claus on Saturday, Dec. 11. There will also be a free movie for the children at 2 p.m. at the Rex Theater. Santa is scheduled to arrive about 1:30 p.m. by sleigh or the city fire engine, according to the weather, to visit with the younger children before the movie.

In other business, chamber members voted to write to legislative delegates in opposition to House Bill 15311, which would guarantee welfare recipients what the members considered an exorbitant income.

Herb Forbes asked for assistance in wiring and hanging the town's Christmas decorations. These are angels that are large and will require considerable help. Those who can assist are asked to meet at 1 p.m. Friday at the Farmer Dougherty building.

Mayor Ellwood R. Werry reported city officials have received several complaints that horses and cattle are tramping yards and gardens within the city limits. He said if the beautification of the town is to be considered, he would appreciate the support of city organizations in this matter.

There is an old ordinance which might require updating to enforce proper regulation, he said.

Service filming big job

NEW YORK (UPI) — Six camera crews were poised for filming. Josh Logan, director, and Mitch Miller, musical director, stood ready to signal for the first take. In front of the cameras was a cast of more than 100, including such personalities as Johnny Carson, Myrna Loy, Henry Fonda, Eli Wallach, Al McGraw, Ray Charles and Ed Sullivan.

A big Hollywood film about to be shot?

No. It was the first take for a television commercial for the nation's single largest advertiser. And that's not General Motors, General Foods or Procter & Gamble. It's the Advertising Council which conducted more than 20 public service campaigns last year.

In 1971, the total value of contributed media time and space will come to more than $450 million.

The commercial mentioned, produced for the National Urban Coalition by Ketchum, MacLeod & Gorve, New York, would have cost $5 million for talent and production alone had it been done for a commercial advertiser. But everyone involved donated his services and the costs involving raw material and some servicing was minimal.

In addition to television, the National Urban Coalition plea for racial harmony ("love comes in many colors") was extended through the cooperation of magazines, newspapers, outdoor and transit advertising media.

A 22-minute documentary shot during the filming of the commercial has been shown all over the country. There have been thousands of requests for posters tied into the campaign.

"The real test of any advertising program is the response it generates," said William H. Genge, president of Ketchum, MacLeod & Gorve. And over the years, the Advertising Council has produced real impact with campaigns covering drug abuse, forest fire prevention, education, rehabilitating the handicapped, traffic safety, crime prevention and others.

The drug abuse program, in operation for only one year, has generated requests for 250,000 copies of a fact booklet so far.

In 1958, when the Council launched an Aid For Higher Education campaign, donations totaled $780 million. Today they total $1.8 billion.

The forest-fire prevention program has helped reduce man-caused fires from 5,000 per million forest visitors to 176 per million visitors. The money savings in natural resources is estimated at $17 billion.

Since the general traffic safety campaign started in 1945, the Safety Council has credited the advertising campaign with helping to save more than 750,000 lives.

The jobs program campaign, developed for the National Alliance of Businessmen in its drive to create jobs for the hard-core unemployed, has been a force in getting job for 485,000 people. Some 27,570 companies have participated.

Similar response has been demonstrated in other Advertising Council campaigns in behalf of minority business, Radio Free Europe and the fight against pollution. The Council also takes on emergency projects such as the Pakistan Relief Fund.

The nighthawk's diet consists of insects.

Nixon, Pompidou set meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and French President Georges Pompidou will confer in the Azores next month on an array of problems ranging from the threat of hostilities in the Middle East to the international monetary dispute.

The White House announced the two allied leaders would meet in the Portuguese-owned islands on Dec. 13 and 14 before Nixon departed Wednesday for a Thanksgiving stay at the California White House.

The Nixon-Pompidou conference will precede the President's planned trips to Moscow and Peking early next year. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler suggested that similar meetings between Nixon and other free world leaders may be in the works.

Asked if there would be similar prior conferences with other leaders, he noted that both the British and West German governments were notified of the Pompidou meeting before it was announced.

"I have nothing to give you now," he commented. "As these meetings develop, they will be announced."

He told newsmen the President's forthcoming trips to the Soviet Union and mainland China would be primary topics in the talks with Pompidou not noted other issues of mutual concern would be on the agenda.

Ziegler did not specifically pinpoint the mounting border hostilities between India and Pakistan or the impasse in the Israeli-Arab situation but the two leaders were expected to exchange views on the problems.

He cited the problem of French-American cooperation in trying to cope with the world narcotics traffic as a likely topic and added: "I'm sure the question of the international monetary situation will come up."

The official announcement noted that Nixon had initiated the request for a meeting with Pompidou. Ziegler said the Azores, 1,000 miles off the coast of Portugal, was selected as a site mutually convenient to both.

In California, the President's schedule called for him to participate in dedication ceremonies of a $7.5 million Eisenhower Memorial Hospital at Palm Springs on Saturday.

State funds asked

GOODING — The Idaho Land Board plans to ask the state legislature to finance maintenance of the unused tuberculosis hospital at Gooding.

Land Commissioner Gordon Twombly told the board at a meeting in Gooding Wednesday that maintenance costs about $50,000 per year and that this year only $10,000 was available. Twombly said maintenance could be paid from his department's budget, but if no supplemental appropriation is forthcoming, his own department would show a deficit. Maintenance provisions, he said, are not included in his original request.

Gov. Cecil Andrus told the board in a letter read at the meeting there are two alternatives for the future of the facility which has been used since July 1, 1970.

It could be used as a veterans nursing home.

Purchase by an unnamed party for $265,000 also is possible. Both proposals are being studied. There was no indication in the governor's letter what the building would be used for if the purchase is transacted.

Stunt man gets Okay for jump

TWIN FALLS — Evel Knievel, the daredevil motorcycle stunt man, has been given clearance for his proposed leap across the Snake River Canyon near Twin Falls.

The Idaho State Land Board cleared the way for the jump after Knievel and his promoters filed the necessary "harmless" documents with the state, holding the state free of any liability for injury to Knievel or his equipment.

Land Commissioner Gordon Twombly said no date has been set for the stunt, but Atty. Gen. Anthony Park said he understood it was tentatively scheduled for next September.

TF aides attend confab

TWIN FALLS — The three newly elected Twin Falls City Council members, accompanied by Councilman Paul Ostyn, attended a conference on city government in Boise last week, Ostyn said today.

He said Michael P. Gray, Stephen Lincoln and Mrs. Ann Cover who will take over their new duties after the first of the year attended the Boise session, one of three in the state, designed to assist new city officials better understand city government responsibilities and rules, Ostyn said.

In the Boise meeting, budgeting, wage negotiation laws, taxing and proposed legislation were discussed during a one-day meeting.

City Manager Jean Milar addressed a similar session in Pocatello, speaking on budgeting. He expressed disappointment the new Twin Falls council members did not attend. He said today he was unaware they had participated in a similar meeting in Boise.

Shoshone to work on river

SHOSHONE — The city of Shoshone has been given permission to rip-rap along Little Wood River through the city limits.

Individuals who want this work done along their property are asked to secure permission through the watermaster of Water District 37-37M.

In order to have the rip-rapping done the banks of the river must be prepared by sloping. The sloping will prevent the rip-rapping from falling into the channel and blocking off the water flow.

Real Thanksgiving

PILGRIMS AND Indians gathered under a makeshift shelter for a First Thanksgiving feast sharing turkey and other food cooked over an open fire. It was almost the First Thanksgiving, but it was 350 years later and held at the Ernest Hemingway Elementary School in Ketchum. The Indians and Pilgrims were members of Virginia Hale's fifth grade class re-enacting the first Thanksgiving.

Application complete for housing loan

By CHARLOTTE BELL, Times-News Writer

EDEN-HAZELTON — Application for Farm Home Administration funding for a 50 unit farm housing complex in the Eden-Hazelton area was completed Tuesday.

Bill Pressey, vice chairman of the housing authority assisting in the development, said Wednesday the application will be submitted this week to the Jerome office of FHA. That office will send it to Boise for state FHA approval. The application must travel to Washington D. C., for federal approval.

After conducting preliminary studies the cost is estimated at $604,000. Pressey said "We are making a preliminary request for an 80 per cent grant and a 20 per cent loan. If we find when we get near completion of facilities this grant is not sufficient, then we will have the privilege of going back and applying for an additional 10 per cent grant."

Under the present FHA program a 90 per cent grant with a 10 per cent loan at a one per cent interest rate could be okayed. Pressey said the housing authority will put in its own sewage disposal system and drill wells to provide domestic water. This, he said, will eliminate need to use the Hazelton water or sewer system.

"This is tentative and the way the application is going in," Pressey said, "and does not mean that we may not change our minds in the future and hook into the city system. But at present we are going on the basis that we are going to develop and install our own system."

Pressey said as far as the housing authority knows, the development will be constructed on 20 acres of land west of Hazelton cornered by the Murtaugh road and State Highway 25. The authority has an option with the owner, Ellis Shawver, to purchase the land. "Of course, FHA may say we do not need that much land. We are going to try and justify the fact that we do need the 20 acres," Pressey said.

The present labor camp, which the new development is planned to replace, has facilities for 37 families and is owned by farmers. Pressey said the committee has no authority over the camp. What will be done with it has not been determined.

The housing development will be constructed on the same principle as the Paul camp and will be composed of 25 duplexes. Each unit will have from one to three bedrooms, bath, family and kitchen area and will be equipped with stove, refrigerator, beds, table and chairs, to farm laborers. It will not be used for low income families, Pressey said, but only for farm laborers.

The name chosen for the project is Valley Agricultural Housing Complex. As soon as the committee is notified the grant has been approved, development of the area will begin.

Fire

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls firemen were called Wednesday night to the Elks building for a smoke investigation.

Firemen said the smoke was found to be coming from an overheated furnace which was malfunctioning. There was no damage.

The call was received at 9:20 p.m. and one truck was dispatched.

Turkey dinners provided in TF

TWIN FALLS — Free turkey dinners to anyone alone on Thanksgiving or unable to provide their own turkey and trimmings were offered today at the Salvation Army Shelter in Twin Falls.

Capt. George Driver said the program is not just for those who could not afford a turkey dinner but for those alone who would not otherwise have anyone to share Thanksgiving Day with and would be alone.

About 40 persons, most of them local, but some transients, participate in the dinner. Capt. Driver said. Three large turkeys were roasted under the direction of Kenney Scheline.

Even the prisoners in the jail observed Thanksgiving. Mrs. Paul Corder had two large turkeys, a total of 40 pounds of turkey, roasting at 4 a.m. today. She said she would be feeding 14 prisoners turkey, dressing, candied yams, potatoes and gravy, pumpkin and mince pie and all of the other traditional Thanksgiving specialties. She said the prisoners would probably be eating "leftovers" during the rest of the week.

In the city jail, officers said any prisoners who might be picked up during the day would have a turkey dinner.

Hearing set Dec. 6 on airlines case

BOISE (UPI) — A hearing on petitions of reclamation filed against Trans Magic Airlines has been set for Dec. 6.

But Judge Merlin S. Young said Wednesday he would delay a decision on whether to require filing of indemnity bond or move for bankruptcy proceedings against the airline, now in the midst of debtor proceedings.

However, he warned, "this really means if there can't be a plan (presented by the airline) or a creditor is in danger, we will move to bankruptcy immediately."

Joseph M. Imhoff Jr., attorney for Trans Magic, told the court there is "no question...but what revenues will be more than adequate" to continue operation of the airline. He said Trans Magic can continue its operations "without dissipating what little assets we do have."

He said the plan to be presented to the court by Trans Magic are based on the possibility of an arrangement with the Small Business Administration. If successful, he said, the airline plans to give up its three operating aircraft and lease one larger airplane to serve existing routes.

It is possible another airplane will be added if routes or passenger loadings demand it, he said.

Petitions for reclamation have been filed by C.I.T. Corp. of Boise, with an interest in two of the airplanes, and Hughes Aircraft, and another is expected to be filed by Commercial Credit Equipment Corp., with an interest in another airplane.

Charles B. Sturgell, special representative of the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, told the court the IPUC is interested in "safe, dependable service" for airline customers and said the IPUC will order the airline closed immediately if insurance coverage is allowed to lapse.

He also said the IPUC warned Federal Aviation Administration standards must be met by Trans Magic "or else the FAA and the IPUC will have no alternative but to close it down."

Unsecured creditors at the hearing declined to name a creditor's committee and declined to nominate a stand-by trustee, which Judge Young said would be necessary only if proceedings move to bankruptcy.

Judge Young continued the creditors meeting until Jan. 24. Trans Magic must present its continuation plan to the court by Dec. 31 and copies will be mailed to all creditors to give time for study prior to the next meeting.

Election set

SHOSHONE — One commissioner will be elected to the Shoshone Highway Board Dec. 6 at the office of Roger Maxwell, Shoshone.

Polls will be open from 1 to 7 p.m. Judges of the election are Mrs. Ed Mathison, Mrs. R. B. Kelley and Mrs. Burrell Williams.

All persons who are qualified electors of the Shoshone Highway District No. 2 will be entitled to vote.

Andrus' proposals termed fresh approach

By RICHARD CHARNOCK
BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' proposal for government reorganization offers a fresh approach to an old problem but it well may run afoul of election year politics.

In proposing a constitutional amendment to limit the number of principal state agencies to 20 Andrus hopes to avoid some of the usually fatal infighting that develops when empires are threatened.

Confronted with a mandate "from the people to reduce executive entities of state government to that number, legislators supposedly would have an easier task of consolidating agencies.

While many believe the idea has merit — some are expressing reservations. These include Republicans who, while they also want to see government streamlined, hate like the very devil the idea of giving a Democratic governor the credit for accomplishing it.

In addition, they have some very honest and sincere questions about the proposal itself.

Secretary of State Pete T. Cenarrusa, for instance, says the governor is asking the legislature to buy as Cenarrusa puts it, "a pig in a poke." He said he wants to see just how the governor proposes to streamline the various agencies.

"I'd like to see a plan without this constitutional amendment," he said. "I believe most of it can be done through statutory changes."

Andrus has said he has no detailed plan at present and will seek "input" from both the public and the legislature as he develops one. Very wisely he recognizes he cannot accomplish this task he has set for himself without both the help of the public and the Republican-controlled legislature.

If the legislature puts the amendment before the people and they approve it at the next election Andrus hopes to call a special legislative session in 1973 to begin the reorganization. He hopes to bring the whole thing about by Jan. 1, 1975.

It's no secret the governor wants a Democratic legislature from the people in the next election. That alone would be a good reason to hold off on a detailed plan until 1973. Timing of the overall plan also bodes well for the gubernatorial election of 1974.

Republicans know this and naturally are wary. They want to retain not only their hold on the legislature but turn Andrus out of office, if they can, and put one of their own back in.

Cenarrusa, among others, has a very obvious eye on the governorship and as the only remaining Republican in full-time, elected state office is certain to speak up on such matters as this.

However, in the secretary of state's case he will be speaking from a solid background on reorganization.

Back in 1966, as speaker of the House, Cenarrusa chaired a legislative interim committee which studied executive reorganization and made a 109-page report to the legislature.

This report recommended eventually reducing the number of principal agencies to 18 and set both short and long-range goals. Much of the plan could have been accomplished through statutory, rather than constitutional changes.

A key feature of this plan was creation of the controversial Department of Administrative Services against which Andrus campaigned in the last election. This was the only feature of the reorganization plan to be adopted by the legislature and the governor — then both in GOP hands — and even that was pared down.

Other agencies proposed by the committee, with directors to be named by the governor, included agriculture, education, fish and game, commerce, law enforcement, health, public assistance, economic planning and development, defense, highways, labor, natural resources, local affairs, personnel, corrections, federal programs, and public works.

To accomplish all of this, of course, would have required a few constitutional changes — especially in the fields of education, natural resources and corrections.

Since that committee put forth its report — now residing in the archives of the Legislative Council — even further consolidations within the proposed 18 agencies have been studied. To date, however, nothing has been done.

Cenarrusa also has had second thoughts. He said he hopes the legislature does not substitute a bureaucratic superstructure which simply hides the present proliferation of agencies from the public.

Andrus, of course, is aware of the five-year-old report. As a state senator in 1966 he was a member of the Legislative Council to which the committee reported and through which it transmitted its findings to the legislature.

Whether he intends to take advantage of this report — based on an extensive, two-year study by the legislative committee — he has not said, at least, not in public.

But it might be worth further study — providing he can get his proposed amendment through the gauntlet of election year politics.

Firm probes new hatchery

GLENN'S FERRY — The feasibility of locating a fish hatchery in the Bancroft Springs area near Glenn's Ferry is being studied by a Hagerman firm.

Fieldmen for Clear Lakes Trout Co. have been in the area checking on possible pond locations it was revealed at a Glenn's Ferry Chamber of Commerce meeting Monday. Chamber members were told the idea is still in the "paper stage" although the area is under study as a possible hatchery location. Members of the chamber will be guests of the Clear Lakes Trout Co. this week for a tour of the Hagerman hatchery.

Gordon Hansen, Idaho Power Co. manager for the Glenn's Ferry-Mountain Home district, was guest speaker at the chamber meeting. He discussed how his company strives to keep its operations clean and ecology minded.

Wrong person

SHOSHONE — The wrong person was listed as having been fined in Lincoln County for a speeding ticket.

Instead of Brian Stimpson, the cited individual was Bryce Stimpson. His fine was $15.

Wendell council meet set

WENDELL — The Wendell City Council will meet at 8 p.m. Monday in the city hall instead of today because of Thanksgiving.

The next meeting, scheduled for Dec. 3, will serve as a public hearing on requests from Jim Archibald and Larry Peterson for permission to establish mobile homes in variance with the zoning law adopted earlier by the council.

The ordinance states no home in the city shall be established on a lot smaller than 6,250 feet.

Six pounds of corn can be converted into a pound of beef.

Filer sets highway vote Dec. 6

FILER — The Filer Highway District will hold its annual election Dec. 6. Polls will be open between 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. in the district's office.

The term of Thane Lancaster will expire. Lancaster has not yet announced if he will seek reelection to the board for another four-year term.

Nominating petitions for other candidates will be accepted by Harold Huston, district secretary, up to seven days prior to the election. A petition must be signed by not less than 25 qualified electors in the sub-district of the candidate, said Huston.

The election, however, is district-wide, and any qualified voter residing within the district may vote.

Holdover directors are Harvey Maxson and Bill Olson. Olson was appointed last year to fill the unexpired term of Merl Leonard who was elected a Twin Falls County commissioner.

Telegrams cost hiked

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's Public Utilities Commission says Western Union Telegraph Company may raise its charges for intrastate service in Idaho on one-day notice to the commission.

The commission said it reviewed on Monday its findings and order dated last July 30 granting a rate increase, effective on and after Aug. 30.

"The commission in its review finds that the provisions are consistent with the Economic Stabilization Act of 1970 as amended and that the increased rates should now become effective on one-day's notice to this commission," the PUC said.

Sweetheart named for FFA group

RUPERT — Sgt. Keith A. Vilhauer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Vilhauer, Rupert, is a member of a unit at Othello Air Force Station, Wash., that has won the newly created Back-Up Intercept Control trophy as the top air defense group in the Aerospace Defense Command. Sgt. Vilhauer is a 1967 graduate of Minidoka County High School, attended Western Technical College, Englewood, Colo., and has completed a tour of duty in Vietnam.

TWIN FALLS — Navy Fireman Apprentice Arthur G. Youts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Youts, Twin Falls, graduated from basic training at the Naval Training Center in San Diego.

Busy solons

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas lawmakers passed a record number of 1,067 new laws during the 140-day 1971 session. A total of 2,298 bills were introduced. Another 32 bills were proposed and 13 enacted during a four-day special session.

Low bidder

BOISE (UPI) — Quinn Robbins Company, Inc. Boise, was apparent low bidder Tuesday for an Idaho Department of Highways project.

The company bid $619,825 to do road work in downtown Nampa on Second Street South, the Second Street South extension, and Seventh Street South.

Nevada, which has an average yearly rainfall of 8.8 inches, is the driest state in the Union.

Concert set at Jerome

JEROME — The Jerome School District's boys and girls glee group will present a fall concert Nov. 30 at the junior high auditorium at 8 p.m.

Carson Wong, vocal music director, said the concert represents the first time the two singing groups will perform by themselves.

He noted that the high school choralliers will provide assistance.

"There are 54 girls in one group and 34 boys in the other singing unit. The selections to be performed will be light and entertaining," Wong said.

There will be a small admission charge.

Agency takes home complaints

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Social Security Office has been appointed to serve as a local center to receive complaints about substandard conditions in nursing homes.

The Twin Falls office was one of those in 850 cities appointed by Elliot L. Richardson, secretary of health, education and welfare.

Persons who have information about instances of poor quality care, neglect, unsanitary or unsafe conditions in a nursing home may give that information to the nearest social security office in person, or by letter or phone. If desired, the name of the person making the complaint and the name of the nursing home patient will be kept confidential, John K. Carlton, social security district manager in Twin Falls, said.

The social security office will see that the complaint gets to the proper federal, state, or local authority for investigation, he said. The designation of the nation's social security offices as "nursing home listening posts" is preliminary to a plan announced by Secretary Richardson for the establishment of an ombudsman system in the states. The ombudsmen would take complaints and suggestions about nursing home care and make sure they get to the right people. They would also find out what nursing home patients think — not only about the facilities where they live, but also about alternatives to nursing home care — ways in which older people may be enabled to stay in familiar surroundings instead of being institutionalized.

Time for living

By ROGERS FRANKLIN

Find a profession in high demand (and with few applicants) and you've got yourself an interesting second career. Have you thought about nursing?

There's a critical nurse shortage across the country. Many of you — both men and women — can help relieve this situation.

If you fellows think I jest, look at this experimental program in New York City.

Last year Hunter College — Bellevue School of Nursing of City University began training policemen and firemen — who were approaching retirement — for nursing careers. It's a specially designed program of part-time studies running two-and-a-half years.

On graduation, the men are eligible to take the state licensing exam for registered nurses.

An important program objective: to attract more men into the nursing profession.

"We want to change the nursing image, which people traditionally label strictly a woman's profession," said Prof. Marguerite C. Holmes, dean of the Hunter College-Bellevue School of Nursing of City University. (Less than one percent of the nation's total nurse force are men.)

"Men have an important nursing role to play," Dean Holmes added. "They function extremely well in community nursing, emergency admission, urological and psychiatric nursing."

Dr. Martin Moed, the university's associate dean for community college affairs, helped plan the project. He, too, hopes to alter the prevailing attitude that nursing is solely "women's work."

"Policemen and firemen have already proven their masculinity," he said. "They can set an example to other men who might want to become professional nurses."

The program, the first of its kind, is limited to retiring New York policemen and firemen. If the program (a federal grant supports it) proves successful, new nursing opportunities for all of us can result.

Meanwhile, you can follow the example of Edna Wardall, 64, Everett, Wash. Four years ago she enrolled in community college's nursing program (it had no age limit). Today she's a nurse at Children's Orthopedic Hospital and Medical Center in Seattle.

Yes, she had difficult times as an older student. "I'm not a natural scholar and there were all those science courses," she said. But her determination and her family's encouragement gave her constant incentive during the comprehensive two-year nursing course.

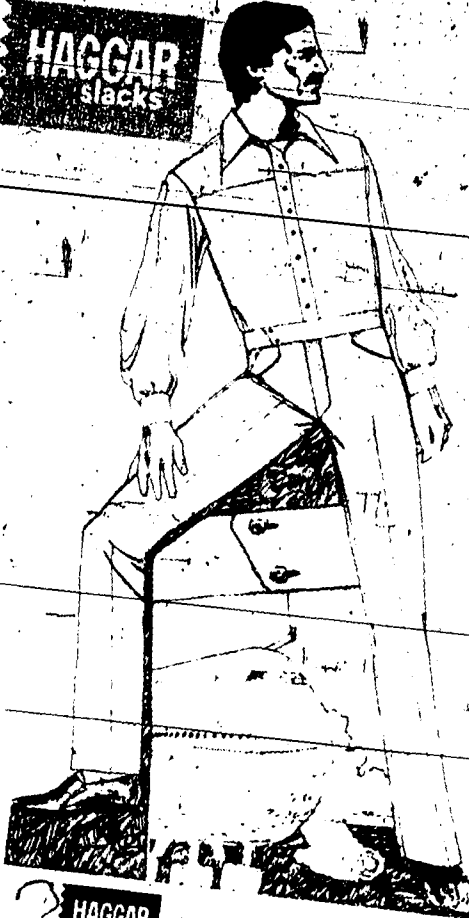

"There's a great deal to learn afterwards, too," she said. "Every hospital has its own way of doing things — just measuring and giving medications takes practice."

Mrs. Wardall finds nursing children especially rewarding. "Although my friends wonder how I can be around sick children with my soft heart, it's something I've always been able to do. When you know you're helping to cure, you don't get so involved in the illness itself."

Agreed, you must hold a firm resolution to tackle the hours of study and practice required of student nurses. But I'm sure many of you qualify. Most important, don't let your age or sex inhibit you in at least giving it a try.

More money

NEW YORK (UPI) — The median family income will reach $15,000 annually by 1980, according to a research report by Hornblower & Weeks-Hemphill Noyes, New York investment banking and brokerage houses. This compares with the present $9,500, which is 70 per cent higher than 10 years ago. In 1950, 11 per cent of the population had family incomes of $10,000 or more in today's buying power, the report says. This figure now is 45 per cent of a much larger population base.

Early vacation from balky boiler

TWIN FALLS — Special education classes at Robert Stuart Junior High School started their Thanksgiving vacation a day early Wednesday, thanks to a balky boiler in the school's heating system.

The classes for handicapped children, conducted in a building adjoining Robert Stuart, had to be dismissed when the heating system failed to provide sufficient heat. Regular classes were not affected, according to school Supt. George Staudaher.

The Twin Falls schools will be dismissed at the regular time today for the four-day Thanksgiving vacation, resuming Monday morning for the short run down to the longer Christmas vacation.

The special education classes will resume Monday with the remainder of the school district, Staudaher said.

Sun Valley opens oldest ski shop

SUN VALLEY — Peté Lane's Store, Sun Valley, has announced it will open for its 35th anniversary year Friday.

The establishment is Idaho's oldest ski shop, having first opened its doors in the Challenger Inn in 1938, a year after Sun Valley opened.

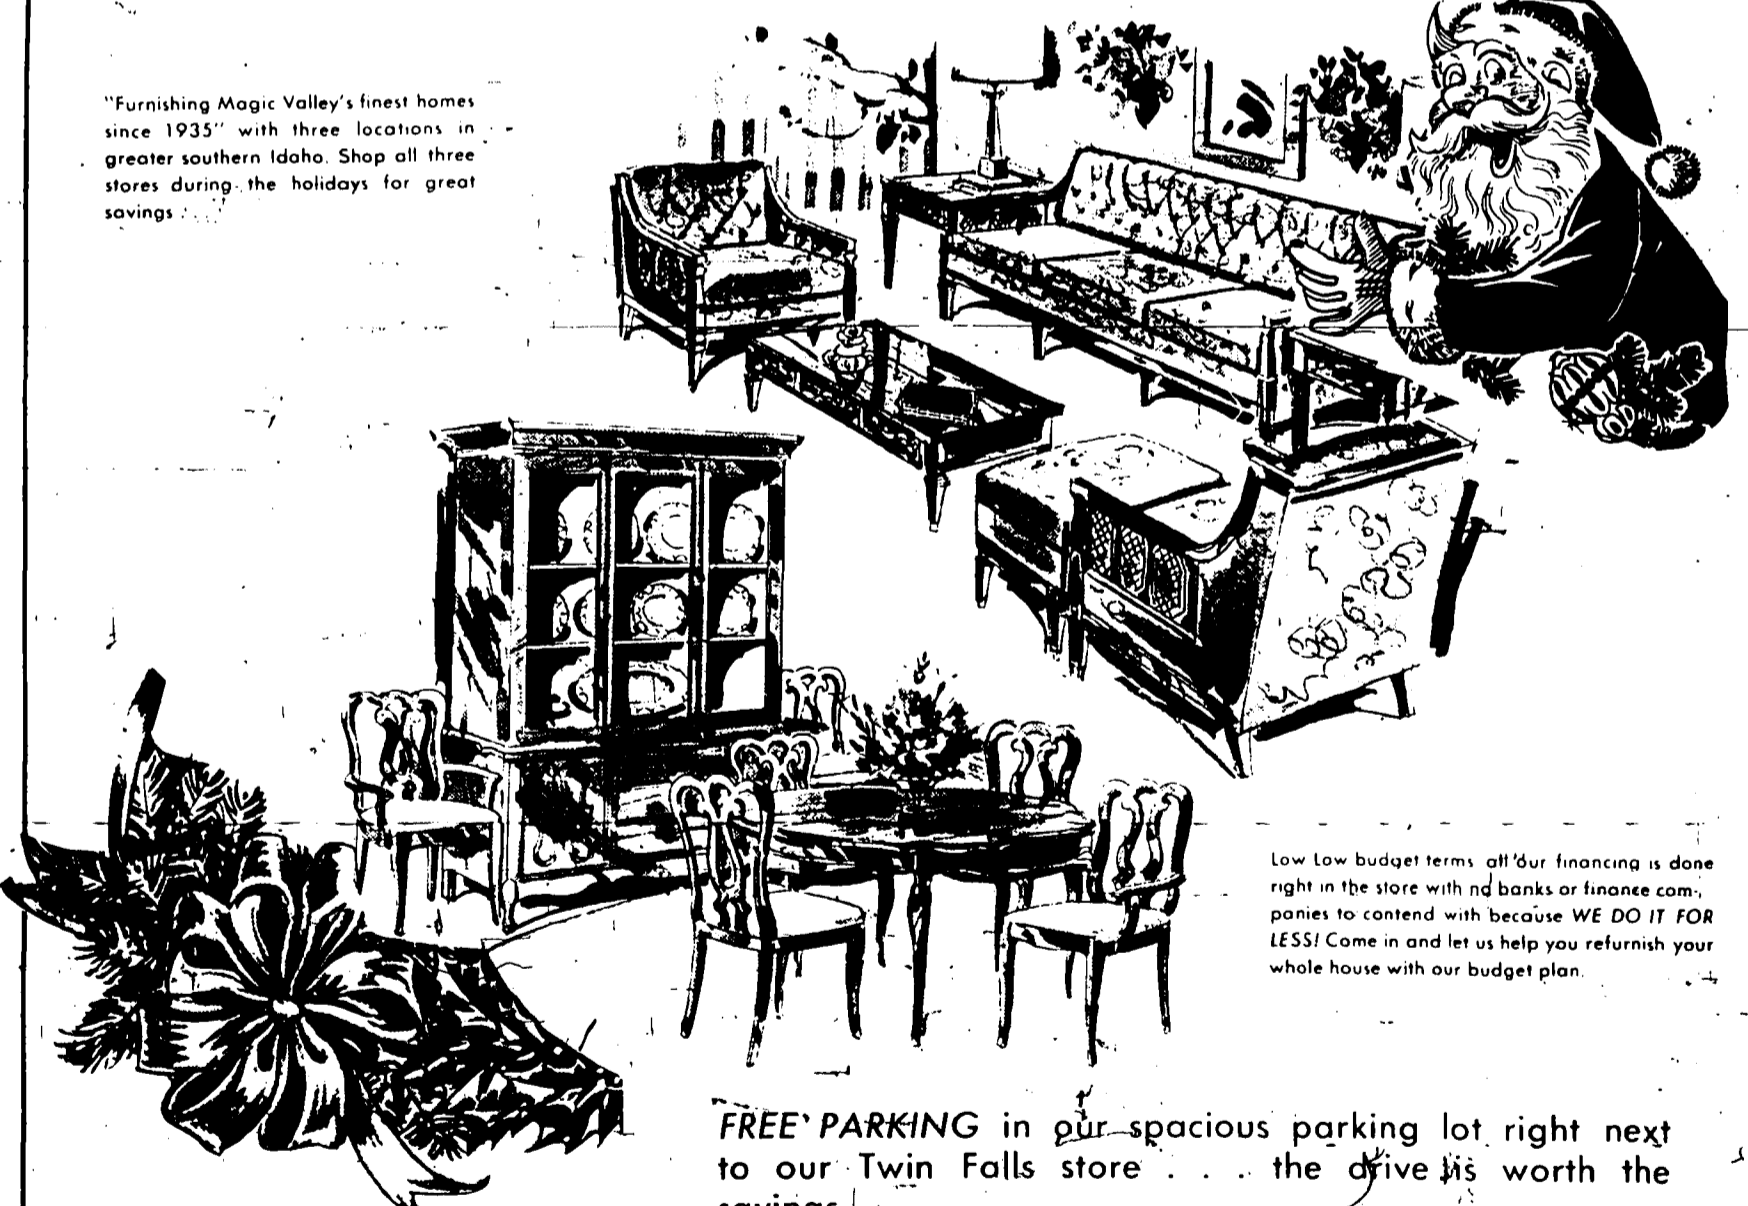

The store last year won the ski industry's "Western Retailer of the Year" award and moved in after Saks Fifth Avenue gave up the shop they operated in the lodge the first year, 1937.

Jack Lane, Blaine County sheepman, founded the establishment which is now run by present owner Peté Lane. The firm carries a complete line of ski equipment and wear for sale and rent.

Price boost shaved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Price Commission Wednesday approved a 4.5 per cent average price increase for Chrysler Corp. cars and trucks, but lopped 0.8 per cent off the company's request.

The commission said the big automaker's request for 1972 models and optional equipment had been 5.3 per cent, but it reduced the hike on the basis of Chrysler's expected volume and productivity advances during the year.

The Chrysler increase was only the sixth approved by the commission and the first to be cut back by the panel. On the basis of Chrysler's original price hike request, 5.9 per cent on a calendar year, rather than this model year basis, approved, the cut appeared even larger.

Earlier in the week, the commission approved an American Motors increase of 2.5 per cent. It has since received applications from General Motors for a 2.5 per cent hike and from Ford Motor Co. for 4.4 per cent.

The Chrysler action came as new price increase requests from some of the nation's business giants showered down on the commission, and as President Nixon and Treasury Secretary John Connally conferred at the White House on an undisclosed subject.

Applications to raise prices came in from steel companies, coal mining companies, natural gas suppliers, railroads and utilities. At the end of business Tuesday, the commission said, 106 firms with annual sales of $100 million a year or more had applied for price hikes.

The fifth application approved since the commission opened shop Nov. 14, was from Field Enterprises Inc., which got permission to raise newspaper advertising rates 3.8 per cent. The boost, according to the commission, will increase Field's over-all revenues only 1.3 per cent.

GIs due turkey dinners

SAIGON (UPI) — It'll be shrimp cocktail, hot turkey and pumpkin pie for American soldiers from the Mekong Delta in the south to the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) in the north.

Mess sergeants across South Vietnam prepared Thanksgiving Day dinners for 184,000 GIs, the lowest troop level in the war zone in six years.

The American troops were expected to eat 236,000 pounds of turkey, 12,000 cans of shrimp, 24,000 cans of cranberry sauce, 10,000 pumpkin pies, 9,800 pounds of mixed nuts and 7,200 pounds of candy.

Chaplains will go along on some of the UH-1 Huey helicopters carrying the hot meals to troops out in the field.

The Thanksgiving menu throughout Vietnam was expected to include shrimp cocktail, lemon slices, crackers, turkey, gravy, mashed potatoes, sweet potatoes, broccoli, green beans, salad, relishes, butter and rolls, cranberry sauce, pumpkin pie, mincemeat pie, fruit cake, candy, nuts, fruit, soft drinks.

Kosygin pledges expansion

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin Wednesday pledged the Soviet Union to surpass in four years the current economic might of the United States, a nation he described as the sick man of the world.

The industrial and agricultural output of the Soviet Union will exceed the present level of the United States by the end of 1975," Kosygin said in a report made before the Supreme Soviet (parliament) of the Soviet Union at a session attended by Maurice H. Stans, the U.S. commerce secretary who is on a trade tour of the U.S.S.R.

Perhaps for Stans' benefit, Kosygin dwelt at surprising length on the United States. He said America was in a state of economic crisis, burdening its capitalist partners with import quotas and depreciated dollars. He said he hoped for greater Soviet-American trade, but he blamed the United States for erecting barriers to keep it low. "It is up to the United States to give up its efforts to discriminate against the U.S.S.R. in trade, credit and navigation," Kosygin said. Stans had no immediate comment on the premier's remarks.

Japan accepts Okinawa treaty despite boycott

TOKYO (UPI) — The last major stumbling block to the reversion of Okinawa was cleared Wednesday when the Japanese Diet (parliament) approved the controversial reversion treaty despite a boycott by two opposition parties and rallies of tens of thousands of persons.

The Diet approval came on a 285-73 vote in the lower house where the Socialist and Communist parties staged their boycott to oppose both the terms of the return of Okinawa and the parliamentary tactics of the ruling Liberal Democratic party.

Within hours after the vote was taken, an estimated 100,000 persons attended various rallies to oppose the treaty, specifically the continued presence of U.S. troops on Okinawa after the western Pacific island is returned to Japan sometime between April and July.

After accepting the treaty, the lower house also approved a resolution calling for the removal of U.S. nuclear weapons from Okinawa and a reduction in the number of American military bases on the island.

Okinawa has been the key to the U.S. Far East strategic forces for nearly 30 years. Although most of the forces will remain after reversion, the United States will be obliged to seek Japan's permission before taking any military action with forces based on this island.

The treaty was approved earlier this month in the U.S. Senate by an 84-6 vote.

Hunger end sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scoring the administration's record in providing food for the poor, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., called Wednesday for a new national policy to end hunger in America.

In a Thanksgiving eve statement, he said he has spent all year as the Senate Hunger Committee's chairman trying to make sure everyone had at least enough food for good health.

"Yet despite my efforts, and those of concerned Americans all across the land, this year, once again, I am unable to report a victory."

Indians claim waters of giant reservoirs

NEPELEM, Wash. (UPI) — The Colville Indian Business Council has served notice it is claiming all waters adjacent to its 1.3 million acre reservation and will charge non-Indians $5 to fish in the waters during the fishing season.

Mel Tonasket, council chairman, said the waters include all of Lake Roosevelt from a point just below Rice, Wash., to Grand Coulee Dam, the Columbia River from the dam to the mouth of the Okanogan River and the Okanogan River almost to where it reaches Riverside, Howard Stewart of Nespelem, tribal game warden, said the $5 Indian fishing permit, in addition to the state fishing license, will be required beginning Jan. 1.

He said the Colville tribe did not allow on-reservation hunting this year. He added that non-Indians who hunt on the waters now claimed may be subject to arrest.

Tonasket explained that the presidential executive order that created the Colville reservation was specific as to the exact boundary along the Columbia River. "But it has been generally assumed that the boundary extends to the opposite side of the river," he said.

A number of court cases have established the fact that Indians own the bottoms of the rivers that are adjacent to the reservations," Tonasket continued. "That is why we feel we own all of the water that is adjacent to our reservation."

Tonasket said he hopes the Colvilles can negotiate an agreement with the Spokane Indians over that portion of Lake Roosevelt that is bounded by both the Colville and Spokane Indian reservations. "Meanwhile, Glenn Galbraith, Wellpinit, a member of the Spokane Indian Tribe and a state game commission member, said the Spokane Indians have discussed the possibility of assuming jurisdiction over all the water bordering its reservation. "However, no decisions have been made," he added.

School chief's mail protested

HOUSTON (UPI) — The leading candidate for superintendent of Houston's public schools received Playboy Magazine in the mail, according to a protesting letter carrier's wife who thinks the magazine is immoral, obscene and lewd.

The disclosure of the deliveries of the publication to Dr. George Garver's home has resulted in a temporary suspension for mailman Leslie MacLean. Postal Service regulations prohibit revealing the nature of deliveries.

Garver was fired from his $41,500-a-year job in August by conservative school board members, and a controversy over the action has raged ever since. In an election Saturday, voters replaced two of three conservatives with liberals who campaigned on a promise to reinstate Garver.

"A man who reads Playboy should not have a position in the schools. To any decent person, Playboy is one of the most immoral obscene and lewd type publications and should not be found in a decent home and never near children," Mrs. MacLean said in a letter to the Houston Chronicle.

Margaret MacLean's complaint to a Houston newspaper cost her husband his job.

"He hasn't carried Dr. Garver's mail for several months," she said Tuesday, "but he knows the man who delivers the mail. They are all familiar with it. It, Playboy, has been delivered to his house consecutive month after month after month."

Pay boost backers see chances fade

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backers of a move to give 3.8 million federal workers, including the military, a pay raise Jan. 1 conceded today they have little chance of success this year. They hope to revive the issue early in 1972 on a retroactive basis.

Spokesmen for Sen. Hiram L. Fong, R-Hawaii, and Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., told UPI a decision by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana not to include the pay bill as "must" legislation before adjournment this year killed its chances of consideration.

Fong and Udall had introduced identical bills that would order President Nixon to give the estimated 1.2 million civilian federal workers a raise effective Jan. 1. An earlier law automatically would include 2.6 million military personnel, who already received a $1.5 billion pay boost when the wage-price freeze ended Nov. 13.

Nixon earlier announced that a scheduled 5.5 per cent boost for the civilian and military on Jan. 1 would be deferred until July 1, 1972 as part of his drive to combat inflation. Resolutions that would have overturned Nixon's order failed in both the senate and house.

Atom test trace seen

HONG KONG (UPI) — The Royal Observatory has recorded a higher level of radioactivity in the atmosphere than usual following Communist China's latest nuclear test, a government spokesman said today.

Rate boost approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Price Commission today announced approval of a 3.8 per cent price increase for Field Enterprise Inc. newspaper advertising and received 40 new price hike applications from large U.S. businesses.

The increase for Field Enterprises, allowing a "pass through of direct labor costs for the newspaper advertising division" will have the effect of increasing the company's expected revenues only 1.3 per cent, the Price Commission said.

The Field Enterprises approval was the fifth for a company in the $100 million-plus classification since the commission set up shop Nov. 14. The announcement stressed that while the percentage increase for advertising rates was 3.8 per cent the boost actually would have a smaller effect on the firm's income and would fall well within the 2.5 per cent commission guideline for price rises.

Mideast lineups bristle

MASSIVE buildup of Egyptian forces along Suez Canal, detailed in chart above, is termed by some military intelligence experts in London as comparable to Allied force gathered for D-Day invasion of Europe in 1944. Array of men and tanks is supplemented by amphibious craft, bridge building equipment, other material, airplanes and anti-aircraft missiles. Israel's Bar-Lev line is heavily fortified and Israeli Air Force is considered supreme. Oblivious of intelligence estimates is Israeli recruit, left, as he goes through first stages of basic training at Jerusalem base. He is starting three years of compulsory service. (UPI)

Bubble bursts, drink firm stock fraud seen

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Investigators probed deeper today into the tangled financial affairs of Bubble Up, a soft drink company that went flat in what a detective called the biggest stock fraud in California history — $4.5 million.

Among those allegedly bilked were singer Glen Campbell, auto race driver Sam Hanks and celebrity auto dealer Ralph Williams.

Investigators also were looking into what became of $1 million in federal funds entrusted to the company.

After four days of secret hearings, a county grand jury Tuesday brought charges of grand theft and violation of state security laws against 20 persons.

The charges in the indictment were based on the sale of $358,000 worth of stock to 66 investors, including the celebrities. Campbell, Hanks and Williams sank a total of $28,750 in Bubble Up, the district attorney's office said.

The Bubble Up shares are "virtually worthless" now and those allegedly fleeced have no recourse except to try to sue for their money back, the district attorney's office said.

Frank Beeson, head of the city police bunco squad, said the case involved $4.5 million in stock in all, and 800 investors. He called it the biggest stock fraud in the history of the state.

Central figures in the indictment were Leonard Key, 46, coproducer of the Broadway hit "Pal Joey," and former chairman of the board and president of the company; and the Bubble Up's former vice president, Maurice W. Barbakow, 33, of Philadelphia.

They each were indicted on one count of grand theft for allegedly deceiving investors by claiming the stock would quickly triple in value; and 19 counts of violating state security laws by selling unregistered stock. California law requires all stock offered for sale to be registered with the State Corporations Commission.

Bubble Up went bankrupt in August, 1970 but the soft drink is still being produced. The firm is being operated by bankruptcy trustees under a federal court reorganization plan.

Monster movie draws crowds

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—There is a double feature monster attraction playing in Arkansas these days that is drawing better than the Wolf Man-Frankenstein re-runs at the local drive-in.

But unlike the celluloid renditions of Lon Chaney and Boris Karloff in Hollywood's version of Transylvania, the two Arkansas monsters are for real. At least they're real in the minds of those who say they've seen them.

One revels in north Arkansas and is apparently a sea monster of sorts, while the other is more of your standard land monster type, with hairy chest, towering bulk and fire-red eyes. He does most of his business in southern sections.

The White River rushes in bubbles out of the Ozark Mountains in north Arkansas and cuts its way diagonally across the state towards the Mississippi. In the thickly wooded parts of northwest Arkansas near Newport the White River grows more sedate and slows expansively between banks 75 feet apart.

It's here that old timers tell stories of a "bottomless pit" in the middle of the murky channel—the subterranean den of the White River Monster.

Natives of the area say the White River Monster reappears about every 40 years and the hot weather this summer seemed to have set the alarm clock ringing in the creature's brain.

Many area residents reported seeing flashes of its huge bulk swirling in the dark waters.

One longtime resident of the Newport area, Ernest Dinks, said he saw the monster surface.

"It was over 40 feet long and weighed way over a ton and it looked like it could eat anything, anywhere, anytime," said Dinks who claims to have seen the monster before.

Unfortunately, Dinks did not have a camera handy—a missed opportunity shared by all the "sighters."

Cloyce Warren is another Newport resident who is convinced that something resembling the real life version of the creature from the black lagoon, lurks in the deep channel. Warren said he saw the monster surface briefly.

"It was between 30 to 40 feet long with a spiny ridged backbone and splashing all around," he said.

The White River Monster has swum tenaciously through the lore of the region ever since the first settlers arrived in the early 1800s.

The first recorded sightings of the monster occurred in the 1860s when it showed its southern leanings and allegedly sunk a union gunboat. But apparently after that first taste of combat the monster decided against the life of a fresh water Moby Dick and has confined itself to its brief appearance every 40 years.

Arkansas' other monster attraction is a cross between King Kong and the Wolf Man, if local accounts are accurate.

The Fouke Monster, as he is called, is a mere upstart in monster lore when compared to its venerable White River cousin.

But many residents of Fouke, the small southern Arkansas town from which the monster took its name, believe staunchly in their monster, which has been seen in the area for the past-18 years.

This monster, which is said to lurch violently through the soybean fields of the area when he is out on the prowl, is generally described as a brown hairy creature, not unlike a gorilla, and estimates of its height range from 4 to 8 feet.

He was living a quiet life for the past few years but recently showed an unexpected nasty streak and allegedly attacked Bobby Ford, 25, near his home about four miles north of Fouke. That's what Ford reported.

After Ford was treated for scratches and released from a local hospital, he described the monster as being a hairy creature about seven feet tall with red eyes.

Shortly after that two motorists reported seeing the monster, and when a Little Rock radio station offered a reward for its capture, the hunt was on.

For several weeks the usually quiet woods around Fouke were full of noisy monster hunters, many of them armed. But the monster, apparently no fool, stayed well hidden.

The thought of several hundred armed persons with trigger fingers alert for the slightest movement of the monster scared the residents of the area far worse than the monster ever had.

Technology available

BOISE—Performance tested technology is available for removal of phosphates from sewage wastewater at a reasonable cost, a spokesman for an environmental engineering firm said today.

Earl C. Reynolds, Jr., Boise regional manager for CH2M-Hill, said his firm supports the decision of the federal government to accelerate its assistance program to finance phosphate removal equipment at sewage treatment plants.

Reynolds believes this to be a realistic approach, since undesirable amounts of phosphate would remain in wastewater even if the use of phosphates in detergents is banned.

The U. S. Surgeon General on Sept. 16 advised continuation of the use of phosphate containing detergents, saying that known phosphate substitutes may be health hazards. The Environmental Protection Agency said it would spend up to $500 million to upgrade sewage treatment plants for phosphate removal.

Reynolds, noting that his firm has designed more than 350 sewage treatment plants over the last 25 years, said that in many cases over 50 per cent of the phosphates in sewage are from sources other than detergents, so that a ban on phosphate containing detergents does not necessarily solve the water pollution problem.

On the basis of CH2M-Hill's experience in designing several tertiary or advanced waste treatment plants, cost of adding phosphate removal to a conventional secondary sewage treatment plant would increase the total cost of sewage treatment less than one cent per person served per day.

Reynolds quoted the firm's authorities on advanced waste treatment, Sidney S. Lasswell, director of water and wastewater division, and L. Gene Suhr, director of wastewater treatment, on the technology available.

Suhr and Lasswell said that phosphate removal processes using alum, lime, or iron salts as a coagulant have been proven in both pilot plant and full-scale treatment plant operations. Alum and lime offer the potential for chemical recovery and recycling, thus reducing costs, conserving resources, and alleviating solid waste problems.

At the 7.5 million gallon per day South Lake Tahoe, Calif., waste water reclamation plant, lime is used as a coagulant, combining with the phosphate to form an insoluble lime sludge. This material is settled out of the wastewater and then sent to a recalcining furnace.

The lime is recovered and reused in the process, and the only residue is a small amount of insoluble mineral ash. This plant has been in continuous operation since March 1, 1968, producing effluent meeting drinking water standards.

The Tahoe plant demonstrates on a large scale the practical aspects of phosphate removal, the engineers believe.

Practicality of phosphate removal for small communities also has been demonstrated, the engineers said. They cited the town of Tualatin, Ore., where alum is used as the coagulant to remove phosphate in a 250,000 gallon per day treatment plant.

Like Tahoe, a federal grant helped finance the plant, which has been in operation 18 months.

At Denver, CH2M-Hill engineers are involved with the Denver Water Board in a long range program for total water reuse of 100 million gallons per day of reclaimed waste water.

This program involves treatment to completely reclaim waste water for direct discharge into the potable water system. Suhr and Lasswell noted this is presently being done at Windhoek, South Africa, where advanced waste water treatment plant effluent is being recycled directly to the inlet of the city's water treatment plant.

In the Virginia suburbs of Washington, D.C., CH2M-Hill engineers are designing a major waste water reclamation plant for the Upper Occoquan Sewage Authority.

Sooners, Nebraska ready for Thanksgiving clash

By United Press-International
Oklahoma runs, Nebraska hits. Whichever team does its thing better Thursday will probably emerge as the national champion.

The top-ranked Cornhuskers from Nebraska face their toughest test in this Turkey-day classic when they travel to Norman, Okla. to face the No. 2-ranked Sooners.

Nebraska has busted up 10 opponents this season with a defense that resembles some pro sets in size and strength. The Cornhuskers align in a 5-2 with monster man Dave Mason lining up facing the strong side. Nebraska does little stunting but it doesn't have to.

"We just whip 'em man-to-man," says a team spokesman. Iowa State quarterback Dean Carlson, who could only direct his offense for 106 total yards against Nebraska said after his team was shut out 37-0: "I think the Vikings are the only ones who have a defense like theirs."

Coach Johnny Majors of Iowa State also praised Nebraska after his team was unable to move the ball against the Cornhuskers.

"I didn't see any weaknesses out there," said Majors. "I didn't see any cracks in their defense."

Nebraska's interior line consists of John Adkins, Willie Harper, Larry Jacobson, Bill Janssen and Rich Glover. The linebackers are Bob Terrio and Jim Branch while Joe Blahak, Jim Anderson and Bill Kosch play in the secondary.

Nebraska wins its games with defense but the Cornhuskers haven't gone up against an offense as explosive as Oklahoma's.

The Sooners have breezed past nine opponents this season, scoring over 50 points on three occasions. The top threat is Greg Pruitt, a small scabback who runs out of the Wishbone-T and has been virtually unstoppable. He has carried 150 times for 1,423 yards. Adding to the Sooners' ground attack are Joe Wylie, Leon Crosswhite and Roy Bell.

Quarterback Jack Mildren runs the Oklahoma offense. Mildren is a runner who has chalked up 968 yards in 55 attempts. He has thrown only 43 times this season but has connected for seven touchdowns. He has been intercepted twice.

Ken Johnson, quarterback of the Colorado team which was clobbered by both Nebraska and Oklahoma, summed up this crucial confrontation best when he said: "Nebraska's got the better defense, but Oklahoma's got the better offense. It's gonna be unreal."

The game is rated a toss-up. In other traditional rivalries today Texas is 14 over Texas A&M Georgia is seven over Georgia Tech and Mississippi is seven over Mississippi St.

On Saturday, Army is seven over Navy, Southern Methodist is three over Texas Christian, Alabama is three over Auburn, Miami (Fla.) is seven over Florida, Rice is 10 over Baylor, South Carolina is 10 over Clemson, Florida State is 21 over Pittsburgh, Tennessee is 21 over Vanderbilt and Louisiana State is 21 over Tulane.

Staubach doubtful for game

DALLAS (UPI)—Dallas Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach threw Wednesday for the first time this week but it was not known if Staubach would start Thursday against the Los Angeles Rams.

Staubach bruised his shoulder in Sunday's win over the Washington Redskins and has not thrown in practice since until Wednesday.

Coach Tom Landry said he was optimistic Staubach would start but he said he would not make a final decision until after Thursday's pregame warmups. If Staubach's arm looks alright during the warmups, he'll start, Landry said; if not, Craig Morton will get the call.

Morton is the Cowboys' former No. 1 quarterback who was unseated by Staubach three weeks ago.

The Thanksgiving Day contest, which is 250 tickets short of being a sellout, matches two teams that have only been in first place in their respective NFC divisions for five days.

The Cowboys got to the top of the Eastern Division with their 13-0 win over Washington. The Rams dumped the San Francisco Forty-Niners last Sunday to climb to the top in the Western Division.

Toasts rookie award

Earl Williams is selected as NL rookie of the year

NEW YORK (UPI)—Earl Williams of the Atlanta Braves made smart use of the "tools of ignorance" and was voted Wednesday the National League Rookie of the Year for 1971 by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Williams did not begin to hit his award-winning stride until Braves manager Lum Harris handed him catcher's mitt and mask before the second game of a doubleheader with the Cincinnati Reds last June 20 and said, "you're my catcher."

Williams, who understudied Clete Boyer at third base and Orlando Cepeda at first during the opening months of the season, wound up with 33 home runs, 87 runs-batted-in and a .260 batting average in 145 games.

The 23-year-old native of Montclair, N.J. won decisively over Philadelphia freshman Willie Montanez in what amounted to a two-man contest. Williams garnered 18 of the votes cast by the 24-man selection committee, with Montanez attracting the remaining six.

Montanez, playing centerfield for the Phillies, appeared in 158 contests, hitting .255 with 30 home runs and 99 rbi.

In addition to being the only catcher besides Johnny Bench to win the NL's top rookie award, Williams was the first Atlanta player to be so honored.

USING A GLASS of milk to toast the good news of his being named National League Rookie of the Year for 1971 is Earl Williams, catcher for the Atlanta Braves, at his home in Montclair, N. J. The 23-year-old rookie wound up the season with 33 home runs, 87 runs-batted-in and a .260 batting average in 145 games. (UPI telephoto)

Nicklaus returns for tourney to challenge for money lead

HILTON HEAD, S.C. (UPI)—Jack Nicklaus returns to the regular PGA golf tour for the first time in three months Thursday to challenge gregarious Lee Trevino for the title as this year's top official money winner.

Nicklaus, who trails Trevino by about $20,000, has played in a number of prestigious tournaments during the past three months but none that counted in the money race since he played at Philadelphia in late August.

Nicklaus, Trevino and the always popular Arnold Palmer head the list for the $110,000 Heritage Golf Classic which begins Thursday at this plush seacoast resort and, with $22,000 the top prize, big Jack could catch up this week if he has a hot hand and Trevino doesn't.

"It wasn't just the money that brought me here," said Nicklaus. "I like this course and the way this tournament is run. Anyway, I always try to play 25 tournaments a year and this will be No. 24 for me."

To reach that total, Nicklaus, who has won $207,000 in 16 PGA stops, includes the World Cup Matches, which he and Trevino won as partners; the Ryder Cup Matches; and some tournaments he played in Australia. "A lot of people think I've been taking it easy, but that simply hasn't been the case," said Nicklaus. "I've played in six events since Philadelphia. They may not have counted in the official money, but they were just as demanding."

Trevino and Palmer made their last "official" appearances in the Sahara Invitational four weeks ago. Trevino won that one to boost his earnings to $227,242 and Palmer, third on the official list, picked up enough to boost his yearly earnings to $196,206—less than $11,000 behind Nicklaus.

This course will be a good test for all three of us," said Nicklaus, who helped design the Harbour Town course and insists "it's different from any other course on the tour. It demands all sorts of shots."

Nicklaus, who now helps to design about four courses a year, said Harbour Town differed slightly from his earliest plans because he didn't know at the beginning the Heritage Classic would be played here.

"I try not to include it in my list of great golf courses because I helped build it," said Nicklaus. "But, really, I think it is one of the best we play on and I'm not just saying that because it was my baby."

Thursday marks the first time Nicklaus, Palmer and Trevino—the current big three of American golf—have played in the same PGA tournament since the Westchester Classic back in July. It is only the eighth time all year that all three have been on hand at the same time.

Of the seven previous times, the "big three" won four—two by Nicklaus and once each by the other two. South Africa's Gary Player, who hasn't played on the tour since late last summer, won one of the others and Tom Shaw, 15th on the money list, won the other two.

"The 'official' money isn't a true comparison between Lee and myself this year," said Nicklaus. "I've played in only about half as many PGA tour events as he has. As far as the outside money goes, we've both won some of that."

Heavy rain battered Hilton Head Wednesday and scores were pretty high in the pro-am. But Nicklaus insisted he is as sharp now as he was at mid-year. "That's part of my scheduling," he said. "I try to play just often enough to keep my game sharp—to allow me to play as well in November as I do in June."

"When I was a teenager, I'd usually burn myself out by the end of summer and do poorly in the fall. I guess that's something you learn with age."

Christian minister only desire for church

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UPI) — The one thing members of Kern Memorial United Methodist Church do not want is to be pictured as heroes, as having done something outstandingly praiseworthy.

"The only thing we really were concerned with," says Paul Wilkinson, lay leader of the church, "was getting a Christian minister. If the pastor were truly Christian, there was nothing we could do but accept him. That's the way the people here feel."

And it was in this context that the Rev. Walter Willis, a 40-year-old native of Sylacauga, Ala., became the first black pastor of an all-white Methodist church in the Southeast, in July.

"There was obviously a lot of discussion," Wilkinson said in an interview, recalling last spring when the district superintendent came to the leadership of Kern Memorial and asked them if they would work with a black minister.

Bishop L. Scott Allen, the first black head of the Holston United Methodist Conference, which covers east Tennessee and a small area of southwest Virginia, was looking for a white church which would work with a black minister.

"We were among 25 or so churches under consideration," said Charles Kite, chairman of the administrative board of the church.

A special meeting of the board was called, and most of its 50 members were there, plus some other members of the congregation. The proposal was openly and thoroughly discussed and put to a vote by secret ballot.

"I think the vote was 38 to 8 in favor," Wilkinson said, and with that approval the "venture in faith," as Willis calls it, was launched. "If the pastor was not an ideal match, black or white, it was not going to break the church," Wilkinson said. "We'd had experience with white ministers who were not always an ideal match."

"If anybody was taking a chance, it was much more on the part of the preacher than on the part of the church membership."

Willis came to Oak Ridge after three years in the Division of Curriculum Resources of the United Methodist Board of Education in Nashville.

He had entered the ministry in 1949, had served as minister and dean of men at Huston-Tillotson College in Austin, Tex., and as minister at Clafin College in Orangeburg, S.C. He had been pastor of a number of churches in Alabama and Tennessee, after his start in Evergreen, Ala. He liked what he was doing in Nashville. And the decision to come here was not easily made.

For Willis, the venture began with a request that he take the appointment from Bishop Allen.

"If he had not ever asked me, I would have been happy," Willis admits. "A lot of time was spent in prayer. It was basically the children with whom I was concerned."

There are three Willis children, Henry Walter, 13; Timothy John, 9, and Stephen Edward, 6. In addition, Mrs. Lula Willis' mother, Mrs. Lula Garrett of Greenville, S.C., is a member of the family which moved into the parsonage near the church in a white neighborhood.

"I had the feeling that I just could not say no," Willis says. "It was a challenge, and not an easy thing to do. It allowed me to put my faith on the line, even though I would do something that might be risky."

Willis says his main concern was not for himself but with how the children would adjust to being removed from a basically black environment in Nashville, where they had friends, and put into a white environment where they would have to start over.

Three months is too short a time to really evaluate the final outcome of the move, but Willis has found his "venture in faith" a rewarding experience so far.

There have been no disturbing phone calls, no nasty letters, only one small incident which could be interpreted as hostile—a neighbor who asked that the Willis children not come into his yard.

There were some who found the move hard to accept, but even they came to church and gave their new pastor a look.

"This is a wide open church," says Willis, "with a strong spiritual quality." And, although many were doubtful about the "publicity" a news story would give the church, on the Sunday this reporter attended services the congregation was warm, friendly and generous with the new pastor.

"We have a rather broad cross-section of the community in this congregation," Wilkinson said of Kern Memorial, which has about 853 members—third largest among Methodist congregations in the city.

The church has a history of greater than average social concern, Kite said, and this may be a factor in its acceptance of Willis.

"We're active with Youth Haven, a temporary shelter for wards of the court. Some Sunday School classes regularly visit Eastern State Psychiatric Hospital at Knoxville to visit the elderly or to meet with drug addicts," Kite said.

"We were asked by the Holston conference to contribute $2,600 to the Fund for Reconciliation—a $20 million program to help the economically disadvantaged. The church contributed $8,200."

Willis hasn't performed any weddings or officiated at any funerals, yet. "But I'm not sensitive about that," he said. He has been sought out by members seeking counseling, "and you don't ask counsel of someone you don't trust."

As to the future, Willis says he would not hesitate to go to another all-white church after his experience with Kern Memorial. And he believes Kern will be a different church for the experience, even though it may not have another black minister for many years.

"This church won't become a dumping ground for black ministers," Willis said bluntly. Whether it could have succeeded so well in another city in the South is hard to say. Oak Ridge, born with the atomic age, is not a typical Southern town. Less than 10 per cent black, with higher educational and economic levels than other east Tennessee cities, it has to be different.

Optimistic

MANILA (UPI) — Tourism Commissioner Gregorio Araneta II predicts that tourism soon will become one of the Philippines' major industries.

Araneta said projects that have been "selling" the country's tourist spots are Rizal Park, near Manila Bay, the Banaue rice terraces, an engineering wonder, and the World War II fortress island of Corregidor.

Cash loss survey reviewed

NEW YORK (UPI)—An associate walked in the office to say that his wife had had her purse stolen with loss of $75 cash, all her credit cards and charge plates, checkbook, keys, driver's license and other documents that are pretty standard purse contents.

All she'd done, he said, was put her purse on a chair beside her as she tried on shoes in a local department store. She turned—and the purse was missing.

Not only was he moaning the money loss, but the total inconvenience now of cancelling credit cards, charge accounts, stopping all check payments, getting apartment locks changed and applying for new documents.

As he talked, I opened the morning mail—to the coincidence of a study on how people lose cash and who loses it.

The study is called "8,000,000 Victims: A Study of Personal Cash Loss in the United States," the latest in a continuing survey by the Response Analysis Corp. of Princeton, N.J., at the request of the American Express Co.

Loss by travelers has shown a decrease since 1965, says the report, but the "stay-at-homes are no better off."

Most frequent loss of money takes place in homes or apartments (39 per cent), shopping (17 per cent), and places of employment (11 per cent). The rest of the loss came under miscellaneous.

The study does not attempt to advise on safe-keeping of money and other valuables, but anyone can get a lesson from what some of the women replied when asked how they lost funds.

Said one, "The money was stolen. I was very careless about leaving it around."

Others said: "I lost it in the supermarket. It was carelessness on my part."

"It was stolen from the house while we were on a picnic."

"I put it in reach of someone where it was too much of a temptation."

"Our neighbor was having a garage sale. We went next door and left our front door open."

"It was stolen where I work."

"I was in a store. I went to buy something and I put my pocketbook in the shopping cart. When I got to the checkout counter, it was missing."

"During the evening, I had some ladies in for a decorating accessories party. I noticed the money was missing after the party."

1,000 women test pill

CHICAGO (UPI)—A birth control pill taken within 72 hours after sexual intercourse has been shown successful in tests upon 1,000 women of child-bearing age without serious side effects, a physician reported Monday.

Dr. Lucile Kirtland Kuchera of the University of Michigan Health Service said nearly 900 of the women had used no form of contraceptive protection.

She said the probability of a woman becoming pregnant following sexual intercourse without protection is between one in 50 and one in 25.

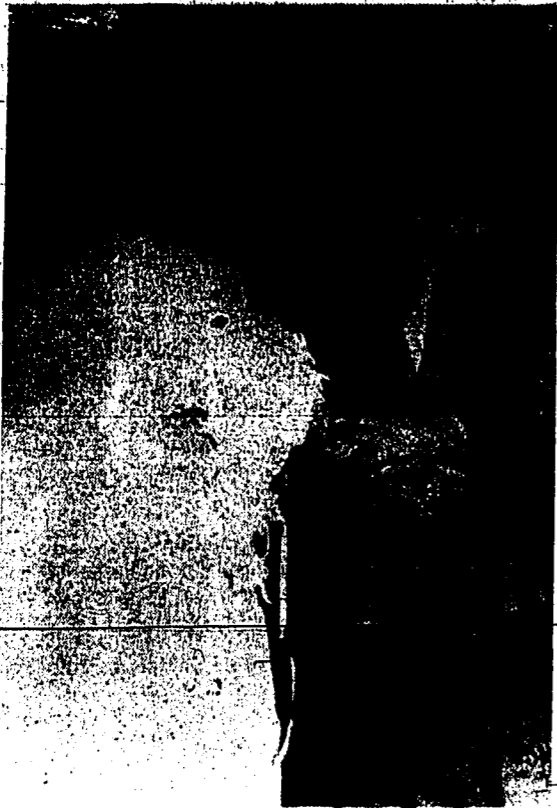

Dr. Kuchera made her report of a synthetic estrogen known as diethylstilbestrol in an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

She said she gave the pill twice daily for five days to consenting women. It was an emergency type treatment, she said, and she advised the women to use other means of contraception on a regular basis.

"In each of the 1,000 cases, an interview or letter was obtained following the ingestion of diethylstilbestrol, so that it was definitely known that her next menses came and that she was not pregnant."

Some of the women reported minor side effects such as nausea and vomiting, but "no serious side effect was known in any of the 1,000 cases while taking diethylstilbestrol or afterward," she said.

Famed Lake Geneva in Switzerland is about 45 miles long.

MR. AND MRS. ZEB BELL

Deanne Ricketts, Zeb Bell say vows

JEROME — Deanne Ricketts and Zeb Bell were married Nov. 12 in rites at the United Presbyterian Church, Jerome. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Ricketts, Jerome, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Zebell, Ft. Atkinson, Wis.

Rev. William Barrett officiated at the ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of white lace and satin, fashioned with a mandarin collar, a lace bodice with full lace panels down the front of the gown studded with sequin flowers and gathered chiffon sleeves with lace cuffs. Her cathedral veil of bridal illusion was edged with lace matching the gown and caught to a white beaded cap. She carried a bouquet of white feather flowers centered with pale lavender with white streamers. Her gown was borrowed from her friend, Mrs. Clifford Hinton, Jerome.

Linda Lickley, Jerome, was maid of honor and Mrs. Clifford Hinton, Jerome, and Jari Ann Zebell, Neptune Beach, Florida, were bridesmaids.

Best man was Dr. John Lowry, Twin Falls. Ushers were Stan Ricketts, Jerome; Mike Morrison, Buhl, and Larry Schutte, Twin Falls.

The couple was honored at a reception after the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth with a white chiffon skirt trimmed with three velvet bows. Lavender tapers in crystal candelabra flanked the wedding cake. The cake was shaped like a wedding bell topped with a large white bow and hung from an arch covered with greenery and lavender flowers. Serving tables were covered with white tablecloths, centered with baskets of candied flowers.

Reception hostess was Mrs. Ray Lickley. Melody Brown, Kimberly, was in charge of the guest book. Mary Van Zante and Larayne McKinney cut the cake. Kathy Thomason poured punch and Mrs. Larry Bateman poured coffee.

Brenda Lickley and Diane McKinney were in charge of the gifts and passed the bridegroom's cake.

The bride is a sophomore at CSI. The bridegroom is employed at KLIX Radio station. They reside at 256 1/2 Fillmore St., Twin Falls.

Cheese bargain package

SHOSHONE — "If you are looking for a bargain package of food, say 'cheese,'" said Mrs. Jeanene Annest, Shoshone home economist.

Cheese is full of protein, vitamins and minerals. It has appealing taste, can be used in dozens of ways and ounce for ounce, is as economical as almost anything that can be found in a market. Cheese is on a par with meat, poultry and fish in helping children grow and keeping adults fit. Convenience is right down its alley.

By itself, cheese is a gold mine of flavor, the agent points out. It is also a flavor builder for scores of other dishes.

There is hardly any waste. Half a pound served in a main dish such as spaghetti, fondue or souffle provides enough protein for four people. Furthermore, if a chunk of cheese does get hard in the refrigerator it can be grated for taste use in casseroles, open-faced sandwiches or flavor for other baked products.

"If you don't like one variety, try another," Mrs. Annest said. "There are hundreds of kinds, strong, mild, old, young, soft-hard, smelly and unsmelly. All are rich in food value."

'Intelligent dressing' describes fashions

NEW YORK (UPI)—Designer Pauline Trigere sums up her spring fashion look as "intelligent dressing."

The term to this designer means handsome clothes without gimmicks, daytime hemlines that cover the knees, many two and three-piece interchangeable outfits for both day and evening, sleeveless jackets and coats worn over dresses, the revival of rustling peau de soie for evening, and an elongated sleeve on evening clothes cut to give the effect of a floating scarf.

Miss Trigere showed her spring collection ideas recently to buyers and press with the comment that the collection stressed the "separables," that the whole motif represented "intelligent dressing."

One of the keys to her separables lies in her dressy mallot, which she introduced last year. This is a blouse-top cut in one-piece with skinny pants of the same material, just like the mallot bathing suit classic.

Over it, slip a full tie-on skirt, either short or long, for day or evening. Typical was an ultra-sheer wool in bright navy and white, horizontal stripes, the blouse with long, full sleeves, the short overskirt gathered into a mass of fullness.

Islands awaiting tourists

DEAR READERS: Today is the day to reflect and give special thanks for our blessings. My personal blessings are many. May I share with you a few letters for which I am extremely thankful?
Happy Thanksgiving!
ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I don't think you realize the impact your column on V. D. had thruout the nation. Your advice to minors to telephone their public health department if they suspected they had V. D. brought in a flood of calls. So many youngsters did not realize that in some states a doctor is able to treat a minor for V. D. without informing his parents. You deserve a medal.
AN M. D. IN L. A.

DEAR ABBY: If you never do another thing, you will have earned your place in heaven for that fine column you wrote telling youngsters what they stood to lose by trying marijuana. We had that column printed up by the thousands and distributed to all the schools in our community.
FOR YOU IN ILLINOIS

DEAR ABBY: May God bless you for your column on fire prevention. You reached millions with information that will surely save many lives.
C. K. W., ZANESVILLE, O.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for the Confidential you had in your column saying, "Tell your parents at once. They are your best friends and no matter what they have said, I promise you they will help you."
You were right. Our daughter came home.
GRATEFUL IN EL PASO

DEAR ABBY: Just a line to say a heartfelt thanks for the advice you gave me. I was so upset until I read your letter telling me that about a year with no results. Then one day you published a letter from a doctor who warned parents about spinal disorders in teen-agers. He described a simple test a mother could give her child at home. I tested my daughter, and she had all the symptoms. We took her to an orthopedic surgeon and found she had a spinal disease.
With the help of God and a back brace, it is being corrected. Surgery may be needed later, but even if it is, we thank you for printing that wonderful doctor's letter. I hope that article helped others the way it helped our daughter.
MRS. J. W. PASADENA

DEAR ABBY: I must say that in your enlightened attitude toward homosexuals, you are spiritually far ahead of all the churches in America.
Being strongly religiously trained, I should know, after three attempted suicides and four psychiatrists. For the sake of others like myself, please print this. Bless you.
CAN'T SIGN

DEAR ABBY: This is to thank you for what you did for our family. We had been scolding our 13-year-old daughter for her bad posture for about a year with no results. I tested my daughter, and she had all the symptoms. We took her to an orthopedic surgeon and found she had a spinal disease.

MRS. J. W. PASADENA

DEAR ABBY: I'm an old lady who lives alone, and sometimes the brightest spot in my day is the pleasure I get from reading your column. You tickle me so much I often laugh right out loud. Don't ever lose your sense of humor, Abby.

Beach beckons

SUN-SPARKLED sand on an Hawaiian beach beckons to a lone surfer. This scene, on Waikiki, is duplicated throughout the tour islands included on the Times-News Magic of Hawaii '72 tour.

TWIN FALLS — Four islands with fabulous tropical scenery is the sight awaiting the Times-News Magic of Hawaii tourists.
The tour, which leaves Twin Falls on Feb. 15 and returns Feb. 25, will travel to Kauai, Oahu, Maui and the big island of Hawaii during its 11 days.

The tour will travel by Pan American Airlines to and from the islands and will hop from one island to another by air.

Included in the tour are exciting excursions to historical, cultural and scenic attractions in the 50th state. For those who like to branch out on their own, there is ample free time for leisure or for taking optional tours.

Last year's tour to Hawaii, with Norma Herzinger, Times-News women's editor, was one of the most successful and enjoyable of those sponsored by the Times-News in conjunction with Magic Carpet Travels. Mrs. Herzinger was hostess to more than 50 Magic Valley area residents on the 10-day tour.

The 1972 tour, which will be led by Ruth Miller of the Times-News staff, has been expanded to 11 days, meaning an extra day of fun for those joining the group.

Sun, sand and scenery await Magic Valley residents who want to get away from the wintery climate of an Idaho February.

Reservations are now being taken for the tour. Further information is available from Mrs. Miller at the Times-News, Box 548, Twin Falls, or Magic Carpet Travels, Box MM, Twin Falls.

Hints given on disposals

SHOSHONE — Water should be run for 15 to 30 seconds before and after running the waste disposal. Cold water should be run, even when scraping dishes, and the disposal should be run after each meal to allow good water drainage from the sink.

And, if the dishwasher drain connects to the disposer, run the disposer before the start of the dishwasher so that wash water can drain freely.

home extension agent, said it is wise to keep your hand near the switch so if it stalls or if you hear wrong sounds, it can be turned off quickly.

Silverware, dishcloths, sponges will make a different noise than the sound of ordinary garbage grinding. These items must be removed immediately in order not to damage the disposer, but "make sure the switch is off before you reach in."

Trainees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thirty American Indians are enrolled in new physician assistant training courses at Indian Health Service facilities in Arizona and New Mexico, reports Dr. Emery A. Johnson, assistant surgeon general of the United States and director, Indian Health Service. "Indian community health needs are conceived primarily as a means of extending health services to remote locations where there is no full-time physician," Dr. Johnson said. Among trainees are ten men and one woman who have served as medical corpsmen.

Bridge winners

TWIN FALLS — Monday Afternoon Duplicate Bridge Club held the last game of its six week series. North and south winners were Mrs. A. V. Williams and Mrs. Harmon Munyon, first; Mrs. Gene Carpenter and Mrs. L. H. Van Riper, second; Mrs. Margaret McCall and Mrs. Don Jacobson, third. East and west winners were Mrs. Gus Averett and Mrs. John Stoddard, first; Mrs. Floyd Broadhead and Mrs. H. D. Fitzpatrick, second, and Mrs. Dudley Driscoll and Mrs. Ann Cover, third.

High cost of higher education

NEW YORK (UPI)—A family with a gross income of $21,000 a year shouldn't have trouble paying college tuition for one child, you say? Not so. If that family must send one son or daughter to a private college with no tuition aid, according to Dr. Miller Upton, president of Beloit College in Wisconsin. The high cost of higher education is one reason Beloit is introducing a sliding scale on tuition fees—based on a family's net income, as reported in federal tax returns—plus a figure equal to 10 per cent of a family's assets. Dr. Upton said in an interview the reduced tuition, in increments of $35, could apply to families whose net incomes plus 10 per cent of assets range from $7,000 to $21,000 with one child in college. Dr. Upton said if the family has two children in college a reduction would be effected in cases where net incomes plus the 10 per cent figure came to from $8,000 to $30,000. The new plan, according to Dr. Upton, is an attempt to more directly approach the problem of providing relief for the families of children in private colleges. "Even with a gross income of $21,000 a year it is difficult for a family to pay the expenses with no tuition aid for just one child in private college," he said. Dr. Upton said that tax credits would be "one of the most direct ways of helping everyone—the students, the families, the private colleges." Though he has endorsed such an approach for many years, he sees little chance of anything like that happening in the near future. "A tax credit would mean that you could deduct a portion of the monies paid for college at income tax paying time. A subsidy based on need of the individual student," he said.

Eye Tip

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—Glaucoma is the nemesis of elderly persons, says Dr. A. E. H. Knox, medical director of the Hartford Insurance Group. "It is most prevalent in the over-40 age group and strikes 10 per cent of the population with a family history of this disease," he said. The best way to be sure one is not becoming a victim of the sight-robbing disease is to have an eye examination every two years after the age of 40. The glaucoma test is available at many clinics. The Society for the Prevention of Blindness, in some areas, arranges such tests through citizens clubs.

Altrusa honors student

TWIN FALLS — October Girl of the Month, Ruth Morris, and guest speaker, Kathy Alzawa, Jerome, were special guests during the Twin Falls Altrusa Club meeting at the home of Terry Waegelin.

Miss Alzawa, former Girl Stater, spoke on her trip to Japan through the Youth For Understanding program. She told of her experiences and showed pictures of her host family.

Miss Morris, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Herbert E. Morris, was presented her Girl of the Month certificate by Mrs. Jane Peterson.

Mrs. Marie Sanders, Jerome, was co-hostess and presided during the evening in the absence of Mrs. Ola Cannon, president.

"Girl of the Month"

Snowmobile club elects officers

STANLEY — Officers of the Salmon River Snowmobile Club are announced.

Jerry Funderburg is president; Ted Williams, vice president, and Tom Kovalicky, secretary-treasurer. Don Cutler and Louis Piva were elected directors and will serve with holdover members Stan Iwakiri and Phil Sullivan.

Committee chairmen include Dave Kimpton and Bill James, search and rescue committee; Don Cutler, race committee; Giner Iwakiri and Sharon Cutler, refreshments, and Gerald Nicholson, entertainment.

Plans are under way for the annual Stanley Cross Country Races to be held the first week in February. Freda Nicholson, reporter, said a 35-mile cross-country race is scheduled for women and a 100-mile trek for men.

Other activities planned for the winter are monthly rides to such places as the Big Meadows, Stanley Lake and Cape Horn, as well as card parties and potluck dinners.

A large work party replaced the decking on the bridge over Valley Creek near Stanley last weekend and added low side rails. This bridge is used in the 100-mile. Lumber was donated to the club by Clayton Hurliss Clayton.

The refurbished lunch room also will provide a place for school children to play during the winter, Mrs. Nicholson said.

Men's field

A classic of the men's wear field now has gone over to the girls. It's the T-shirt sweater, an outerwear version of a man's undershirt. Designer Chester Weinberg puts the sweaters over printed silks for daytime, notably in a red silk print with black knit pullon.

Woman holds top position

NEW YORK (UPI)—Gertrude Schimmel was front page news when she became New York City's first woman police captain.

There was no fanfare, though, when the other day she became captain-commanding officer of the Policewomen's Bureau in the nation's largest city.

Actually, Captain Schimmel would just as soon have it that way. She's more of the quiet, unassuming type who lets her 30-plus years as one of New York's Finest speak for themselves.

But you hear her speak out "loud and clear" when it comes to the number of women in the Police Department compared with the number of men, of some of the things she thinks should be done to improve women's role in law enforcement and thereby improve enforcement itself.

"There should be more policewomen, it's as simple as that," said Captain Schimmel. "When we have a full complement, there are 352 policewomen," she said. "That is only one per cent of the total force."

LINDA CONN

Linda Conn, Kimball set nuptial date

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Conn, Twin Falls, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Linda Rae, to Michael Elan Kimball, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Kimball, Hazelton.

Miss Conn is a 1971 graduate of Twin Falls High School and is presently employed at Kellwood.

Kimball is a 1968 graduate of Valley High School and was graduated from College of Southern Idaho. He is presently employed at Abbie Uriguen's. A Dec. 28 wedding is planned.

Hints for holiday happiness

NEW YORK, N. Y. — 'Twas the night before Christmas and all through the house not a creature was stirring — mother was exhausted, the children weren't speaking and dad was fuming because his "bargain" tree was already shedding — and he hadn't even taken it out of the garage!

Sound familiar? While Christmas is anticipated with delight by most families, a "Bah! Humbug!" attitude often sets in as physical and emotional fatigue take their toll. To relieve some of this year's pressures, The Bayer Co. suggests you break the season down to its six major elements and allow planning, as well as execution time, for each. Here's how:

Card lists should be pruned before writing begins — there are always people on them who are really little more than the ghosts of Christmases past. Begin to write cards in November doing a couple of dozen a few evenings a week. This year you might want to experiment with the "letter" card — you write a letter bringing people up-to-date on family highlights and have it made into your Christmas card.

Gift-buying, the second element, is easier and faster when it is organized. Purchase a soft notebook and clip a pen to it. Devote two facing pages to each person and on the left side list all their clothing sizes; on the right side list their hobbies, and hot chocolate are perfect sports, reading and other accommodations.

Cooking is the final phase of Christmas before the fun of entertaining begins. Figure out what you can cook ahead of time to freeze: puddings, pies, sweet breads, appetizers and home-made fudge, among other things. Cookies, of course, can be made ahead in quantity and stored in air-tight containers. If the children are old enough, cookie decorating can be their responsibility — it adds to their feeling of involvement and relieves you of some of the details.

By planning these six major elements of Christmas ahead of time, relief is what you'll be feeling when the "night before Christmas" rolls around this year.

Gift wrapping is best done as you go along rather than waiting until all your shopping is done. If you wait, chances are that other, equally time-consuming, emergencies will have arisen to demand your attention ... and cause tensions.

Decorating the house and garden for Christmas is one of the more relaxing elements of Christmas. When shared by all members of the family it can be

Changes anticipated with sweepstakes

SHOSHONE — According to the Federal Trade Commission orders, some changes are anticipated in sweepstakes across the country, Mrs. Jeanene Anneel, home economist, said today.

There will be fewer mailings because the companies holding such sweepstakes will be required to have prior consent of persons before their names can be used for a promotional purpose.

In addition, all prizes of the value and type included must be awarded and the exact prizes, their retail value, number of each and the numerical odds for winning each prize must be given.

Misrepresentation of facts has been a complaint with sweepstakes games and ambiguous statements such as "participants had a reasonable opportunity to win a prize," when actually the chances were one in 980,000. Suggested recipients tickets were lucky numbers tickets which would entitle them to a prize when most were not winning tickets; and that recipients were selected to participate when actually the material was sent to millions.

Laundry methods can spread germs

SHOSHONE — "Are you spreading germs by your laundry method?" inquires Mrs. Jeanene Anneel, Lincoln, Blaine and Camas County home economics agent.

She then warned that "if you are using cold or warm water, better change to hot water."

A recent agricultural research service project has shown hot water reduces virus contamination of fabrics.

The project studied the effect of home laundering on six fabrics previously contaminated. Virus-contaminated cotton sheeting and terry cloth, wool blanketing, washable wool, dull nylon and dacron-cotton shirting were laundered in cold and warm water. All but the wools were also laundered in hot water.

Very little detectable virus remained after a hot-water wash. Warm and cold washings, however, decreased virus content but significant virus remained in moist fabrics. On drying, virus levels declined further, often below detectable levels. Usually virus reduction was not markedly different on various fabrics.

Water samples taken near the end of each rinse cycle revealed no active virus in hot-water washings. Fabrics washed in cold or warm rinse water contained some virus, indicating laundry waste water can be contamination source.

There was little difference in virus-moving ability between two basic types of household detergents used in the study.

Wild horse herd thinned from air

LOVELL, Wyo. (UPI)—The small band of wild horses stood motionless on the high, wind-swept, Wyoming plain, ears alert, listening to the rhythmic, pitched "thumpthum" of the approaching helicopter.

Then, as if from a central, but inaudible, command, the band wheeled and plunged madly toward a nearby canyon, spreading as they ran.

There are only two areas left in the nation where these horses, remnants of once vast herds, still survive, protected by the government and clinging to the instincts of their Spanish mustang heritage.

One area is in Nevada and the other is the Pryor Mountain Wild Horse Refuge near Lovell, a 32,000-acre area of mountains, high plains, steep canyons, rocks and juniper bushes which sprawls across the Wyoming-Montana border, run by the Federal Bureau of Land Management.

On the Pryor Mountain refuge the horses are threatened by starvation because there is not enough winter range to tide the 157 horses through the winter which lies ahead.

Since early November, a small team of Bureau of Land Management men, all expert riders and ropers, have been tracking the small herd with the aid of a helicopter, and then roping out some of its numbers so the land can support the horses which remain.

It never has been necessary to reduce—or cull—the herd before, because until three years ago, the range was unfenced and the animals could wander where they pleased to seek adequate forage.

The Wild Horse Organized Assistance, Inc., (WHOA) of Nevada, and Montana's Crow Indian Tribes agreed to find new homes for horses removed from the herd.

The BLM decided to cull out foals, which would be unlikely to survive the winter, and bachelor stallions, which have been expelled from the herd by stronger males. WHOA will place the colts, while the Crows will take the stallions to their Montana reservation.

The actual culling is headed by Willie Petersen, a BLM employee from Miles City, Mont. Since early November, his men have worked about 14 hours per day, first in mild weather, and then in waist deep snow.

"We use a helicopter for spotting," he said, "and we have five or six guys on horses and three or four on the ground. When the helicopter spots a group, they radio its location to us, and we go in." So far, 10 foals have been captured, although 18 were counted this summer. Officials said they feared the other eight colts had already been killed by the bleak weather.

WILD HORSES, protected by federal law and clinging to instincts of Spanish mustang heritage (above) run free on Pryor Mountain Wild Horse Refuge near Lovell, Wyo. Threat of starvation has caused men to use helicopter (below) to remove colt to another range from where snow stranded it atop mountain. (UPI)

Winged relief

Ford still pioneering

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Director John Ford is a giant whose shadow stretches back a half-century in motion picture history and who may yet pioneer with camera and film in the year to come.

At age 76 Ford has a revolutionary plan: To co-direct with his friend Frank Capara a new movie, all the profits of which will go to the Motion Picture Country House and Hospital.

It will be the first time two celebrated directors ever worked side by side on a single film.

Ford, a patch over one eye, sat in the den of his Bel Air home, his six Oscars standing tall on the mantle above the fireplace. He stoked up a 7-cent cigar, explaining he'd smoked the brand since he was a kid, and said gruffly, "I don't like interviews. Never have. But I'm doing this for my grandson, Daniel Sergeant Ford."

Grandson Ford wrote an hour-long special, "The American West of John Ford," to be televised Dec. 5 by CBS.

"Daniel is just back from Vietnam where he was decorated seven times, including the Silver Star, and he was wounded several times," Ford said. "So the least I can do is help him out."

Although the special salutes Ford for his westerns, the director said horse operas represent less than 10 per cent of his films.

The television show will feature clips from a dozen of his Westerns in addition to footage of Ford talking to three of his biggest stars: John Wayne, Jimmy Stewart and Henry Fonda.

Among the clips will be "The Iron Horse," a 1924 silent epic and "Stagecoach," the first Western ever filmed in magnificent Monument Valley, Utah, in 1938.

Of his new project with Capara, Ford is secretive.

"We are having some troubles obtaining the rights to the property," he explained. "But Frank and I would co-produce and co-direct the picture. We've been friends for many years and there would be no conflict."

"Because the profits would go to the country house all the actors would work for scale. And so far we've had a great response from the stars."

Then, with a glint of anticipation in his good eye, the old master concluded, "I'm looking forward to it."

Pilgrim band's heritage traced in proclamation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon issued the following proclamation designating Thursday, Nov. 25, as National Thanksgiving Day: The White House Thanksgiving Day, 1971

By the President of the United States of America
A Proclamation
 One of the splendid events which shape man's destiny occurred when a small band of people, believing in the essential sanctity of their own being, went in search of a land in which their individuality might be the highest national value, before any arbitrary limitation to duty placed upon some men by the whim or design of others. They went in search of a land where they might live out their own commitment to their own ideal of human freedom. In the purpose of their search, the human spirit found its ultimate definition, and in the product of their search, its ultimate expression. They found the land they sought, and it was a difficult land, but it was rich. With their sacrifices they brought forth its riches, and laid the foundation for a new nation.

But more than that, they revealed a new possibility for the expression of man's spirit. In the sure unfolding of that possibility man has begun to experience a world in which he may do justice, love mercy and walk humbly with his God forever.

For what those early settlers established, we give thanks in a way which began with them. In their first years on the hard cold edge of man's bright golden dream, they were tried and their faith was tested. But when their bodies failed, their faith did not.

The stark simple words on a sarcophagus in a little village on the seacoast of Massachusetts tell the story well: "This monument marks the first burying-ground in Plymouth of the passengers of the Mayflower. Here, under cover of darkness, the fast dwindling company laid their dead; lest the Indians should learn how many were the graves."

Yet, because mankind was not created merely to survive, in the face of all hardship and suffering, these men and women—and those of the other early settlements—prevailed. And the settlers gathered to give thanks for 'God's' bounty, for the blessings of life itself, and for the freedom which they so cherished that no hardship could quench it. And now their heritage is ours.

What they dared to imagine for this land came to pass. What they planted here prospered.

And for our heritage of a land rich with the bountiful blessings of God, and the freedom to enjoy those rich blessings—we give thanks to God almighty in this time, and for all time.

Now, therefore, I, Richard Nixon, President of the United States of America, in accordance with the wish of the Congress as expressed in Section 6103 of Title 5 of the United States Code, do hereby proclaim Thursday, November 25, 1971, as a day of national Thanksgiving. I call upon all Americans to share this day, to give thanks in homes and in places of worship for the many blessings our people enjoy, to welcome the elderly and less fortunate as special participants in this day's festivities and observances, thereby truly showing our gratitude to God by expressing and reflecting his love.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand this fifth day of November, in the year of Our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-one, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-sixth.
 Richard Nixon

Tax bill hikes exempt earnings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The tax bill passed by the Senate Monday night:

Individuals — Increases the personal exemption, now $650, to $875 for income earned in 1971 and to $800 for income earned in future years. House bill provides $750 exemption for 1972 and thereafter.

The poor — Relieves 2.8 million of all income tax liability and lowers taxes for 25 million low income taxpayers by raising the minimum standard deduction to $1,300 for income earned in 1971 and thereafter.

Motorists — Repeals the 7 per cent auto excise tax and the 10 per cent tax on light trucks retroactive to Aug. 15.

Working mothers — Allows couples with children under 15 to deduct up to $4,800 for child-care costs, including maids, babysitters or day care centers, paid while the mother is at work. Full benefits available to couples with joint incomes of $18,000 or less but those with incomes of up to $27,600 can take partial benefits.

Elderly poor — Permits elderly couples with taxable income under $6,500 to subtract from taxes owed up to $300 a year if they pay that much in property taxes or if that represents at least 25 per cent of their rent.

The unemployed — Extends for 26 additional weeks period unemployment compensation is paid in states with unemployment rates averaging 6 per cent over 13 weeks.

Businesses — Permits firms and farmers to subtract from taxes owed 7 per cent of the cost of new equipment and machinery, purchased after April 15.

Exporting firms — Allows firms which export their products to defer taxation on half of their profits arising from exports if profits are reinvested in export-inducing activity.

Air employed in papermaking

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new process for making paper in a stream of air instead of in water may become a commercial reality within five years, Arthur D. Little, Inc., the Boston management engineering firm, said today.

One firm is using the dry paper forming process in a small commercial operation in Japan, and another is operating experimentally in Europe.

Forty-five American paper and chemical and machinery companies engaged Little to make a feasibility study of the method, says Donald B. Sparrow, senior consultant at Little.

"The process is feasible for any kind of paper product," Sparrow said. "The big limiting factor on its ultimate use would be the vast sums already invested in integrated wet process pulp and paper mills for quantity commodity papers such as newsprint, kraft or linerboard."

"Technically," he said, "the process will be easier to use initially for loosely bonded papers such as tissues. It also will be much more commercially feasible for making papers from wastepaper and other recycled fibers. I can't see it being used soon to make papers from virgin pulp."

But the ultimate potential of dry forming of papers is staggering, particularly to people who are concerned about water pollution. The wet process for pulping logs and making paper employs 100 to 500 tons of water for every ton of paper produced. The water is recycled and cleaned up but the loss of clean water may run to 50 tons for each ton of paper produced.

This enormous water consumption is one of the main reasons paper mills have to be so big in order to pay their way. A dry forming process not only would make much smaller mills viable but it would no longer be necessary to locate every paper mill on a large natural waterway. Therefore the transportation problem of the industry would be greatly simplified.

Sparrow emphasized although there is nothing inherent in the process to forbid its use in making any kind of paper, economically it will be best, initially at least, for making loosely bonded tissues, disposables and bulky papers now generally made from recycled fiber.

British TV, media attacked for alleged bias in Ulster

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's new media — particularly television — are coming under fire for allegedly biased reporting of violence in Northern Ireland.

Some members of parliament have even demanded censorship of news coverage while the crisis lasts.

The government has rejected any such suggestion. Nevertheless, Home Secretary Reginald Maudling has expressed the "concern" of some Conservative party lawmakers to the heads of Britain's two TV networks and has urged voluntary "restraint."

The controversy resembles in many respects that in the United States some years ago about Vietnam War reporting.

It stems from the scenes of violence brought almost nightly on TV screens into British homes since the dispatch of troops to Ulster in 1969.

Particular criticism has been leveled at what is described as "hostile" or "aggressive" interviewing of troop commanders.

Indignation also has been expressed that British TV screened a lengthy interview with the brother of Joe Cahill, a leader of the illegal Irish Republican Army (IRA).

Julian Critchley, secretary of the Conservative party's parliamentary broadcast committee, said editors of TV networks "should be extremely reluctant to use film of instant interviews and they should think more carefully of the hurt given by the broadcasting of extremist views."

Critchley criticized as "quite unfair" the "totip" questioning of a confused and harassed army major immediately after a shooting incident in which a Belfast woman was killed and another wounded.

Lt. Col. Colin "Mad Mitch" Mitchell, commander of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders during guerrilla fighting at Aden in 1967 and now a Conservative party lawmaker, charged that TV coverage from Northern Ireland is "subsidized subversion."

He demanded censorship and said reporters in Northern Ireland should be made war correspondents, put into uniform and kicked out if they ignore the rules.

Such suggestions have been strongly resisted by representatives of the British news media.

Uruguay ballot Sunday dominated by leftists

NEW YORK (UPI) — An associate of mine was saying, "I wish there were something like a 'Bah, Humbug' to say to Thanksgiving."

She contends that Thanksgiving beats her down faster than Christmas which had Scrooge muttering his displeasure in the classic written by Charles Dickens.

She says she's already come down with the holiday virus that starts and spreads this time of the year — so much to be done, so little time to do it in.

"Thanksgiving," she grumbled, "is a male chauvinist holiday."

She went on: Especially susceptible at Thanksgiving time is the working wife and mother. No matter how she tries to distribute the work load, no matter how much hubby offers "I'll do that," she still ends up with most of the job.

There's the matter of keeping office and holiday household going simultaneously. She's a conscientious woman and Thanksgiving means doing five days work in four. In some offices, it would mean three because Friday also would be a day off.

"But here," she says, "I've got to face up to the feast, the cleanup, and then back to the office next morning limp as the dishrag I've been wringing the last several days."

Cleanup's a real "Bah, Humbug" subject.

Scrooge changed his mind about Christmas. Now why couldn't my friend change her mind about Thanksgiving? "Sit down," I said, "and list things you honestly have to be thankful for."

She thought for a moment then wrapped it all up when she expressed thanks for "having a family I can do all this for; that I have the money to be able to buy the turkey and all the trimmings; the good health of all of us to eat it; thankful for my job and my friends as well as my family ..."

"And thankful this is one meal that won't make me fat. I hate turkey."

Scotch user

NEW YORK (UPI) — If he's in the 25-to-49 age group, is known to enjoy a cocktail or two occasionally, has attended college, earns more than $12,000 a year and lives in or around one of the major metropolitan areas, chances are he's a scotch drinker, according to a study by a distilling firm.

Nearly 60 per cent of the scotch users who have four or more drinks a week are 25 to 49 years old and 52 per cent of them are in households with income of $12,000 or more, says the Black & White survey.

Indonesia TB

DKAJARTA (UPI) — About half of Indonesia's total population of 120 million are carriers of tuberculosis, although only 5 per cent are afflicted seriously enough to be a threat to others, according to a Health Ministry official.

Dr. Kusnadi of the government's tuberculosis eradication program said the largest group of sufferers from the disease are Indonesians between the ages 16 and 45, the most productive age group. The number of persons afflicted is estimated to increase by as much as 180,000 each year, Kusnadi said.

TV's funniest girl really man

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — One of the funniest females on television is a man, the same man who bamboozles us into believing we see two invisible supporting actors and an invisible dog.

He is Flip Wilson, whose television show is at the top of the heap.

Wilson's black button eyes flash with humor and intelligence when he speaks. His hands, elbows feet and head punctuate his palaver.

"It's possible I may retire Geraldine (his riotous female impersonation) if I can get Mae West to appear on the show with her. That would be the ultimate for Geraldine."

"It's almost impossible to sell a female character by a male impressionist to women viewers. If they don't like the character they won't laugh. So I have to make the audience like me before they like her."

simmering down. "But she was born on television when I did that special in 1969."

"Jonathan Winters was on that show doing Maudie Frickett. Maudie was already established. So I figured if I worked in Geraldine with her nobody would object. And they didn't. It was a good way to do it."

It was smart way and well thought out.

If nothing else, Flip Wilson is always thinking.

BANKAMERI

Therein lies the entire secret to Flip Wilson's outstanding success — the most popular comedian to hit the air in the past two years.

Wilson works five days a week, 12 hours a day at making himself the most likable man, black or white, on the tube. He gets up at 4 a.m. to work on his scripts. He bounces before the camera with the exuberance of a joyous schoolboy, the grin and grimaces are endearing.

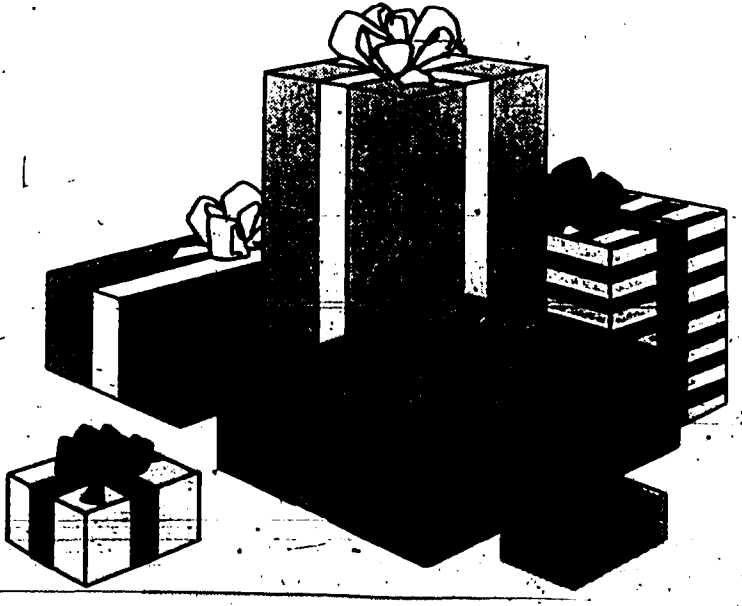

Flip doesn't make the same effort away from the cameras. He's a serious, introverted man, as are most comedians, absorbed by his work.

The invisible killer, Roscoe, and Ralph (the dog) are his inventions, as are the Reverend Leroy, Freddie Johnson, Danny Danger, Herbie the icecream man and Marvin Latimer.

Think of it as Santa.

A gift is special. Worth a search. Wherever you find it, with First Security BankAmericard you already have a charge account.

But Geraldine is his pet: "At first she was just an innocent voice of Butterfly McQueen running around in my head for two years."

"I used Geraldine's voice in nightclub acts when I needed a female response," Wilson said.

Pilgrims' Thanksgiving feast is national custom by resolution

Commentary
National Window
By LOUIS CASSELS

The first Thanksgiving observance in America, as every school child knows, was conducted by the Pilgrims who settled in what is now Massachusetts in 1621.

But contrary to what most school children and ex-school children think, the idea didn't just catch on and become a national custom.

Quite the opposite. Thanksgiving as a holiday disappeared from American life shortly after the Pilgrims had that legendary turkey feed, and may never have reappeared had it not been for a little-known New Jersey congressman named Elias Boudinot.

If anyone deserves to be remembered as originator of the national holiday Americans are observing today, it's not the Pilgrim fathers, but Rep. Boudinot.

Boudinot was a deeply religious man who was a founder and first president of the American Bible Society. In 1789, at the age of 49, he was elected to sit in the first Congress of the United States.

On Sept. 25, 1789, the annals of the House disclose, Rep. Boudinot delivered a speech saying he "could not think of letting the session pass over without offering an opportunity to all the citizens of the United States of joining, with one voice, in returning to Almighty God their sincere thanks for the many blessings He has poured down upon them."

He introduced a resolution requesting the president to set aside "a day of public thanksgiving and prayer."

There was, inevitably, a certain amount of opposition. In the U.S. Congress, you can't introduce a resolution hoping the sun will rise tomorrow without some colleague finding fault with it. The annals show that Rep. Thomas T. Tucker of South Carolina "thought the House had no business to interfere in a matter which did not concern them."

"Why should the president direct the people to do what, perhaps, they have no mind to do?" asked Tucker, who either was an early exponent of church-state separation or was just feeling grumpy that day.

Sherman Provides Support
Rep. Roger Sherman of Connecticut leaped to Boudinot's support with copious biblical quotations showing that the proposal was "warranted by a number of precedents in holy writ: For example, the solemn thanksgivings and rejoicings which took place in the time of Solomon after the building of the temple."

"The question was now put on the resolution, and it was ried," the annals record.

So President Washington issued a proclamation setting aside the last Thursday in November as a national day of thanksgiving.
