Springs area study sought

BOISE — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, has asked the National Park Service to conduct a study of the Box Canyon-Thousand Springs area near Hagerman to determine if the area should be designated as a national monument.

Church said the National Park Service study should determine how the Box Canyon-Thousand Springs area could best be managed within the framework of the National Park Service with a view toward restoring Thousand Springs to its original appearance.

Piracy charge pends

CHICAGO (UPI) — Everett Leary Holt, 25, a one-time high school honor student back home in Indiana, sat in a Chicago jail cell Saturday while authorities prepared to bring him to court on a charge of attempting the $200,000-ransom hijacking of a Northwest Airlines passenger plane on Christmas Eve.

None of the 27 passengers and six crew members of the Boeing 707 was injured in a five-hour drama which ended with Holt's surrender to FBI agents under glaring lights at Chicago's O'Hare Airport Friday.

The ransom and two parachutes had been delivered to the plane.

Holt attempted to keep some passengers and crew aboard the plane as it sat on a remote runway at O'Hare, but all save one — slipped — out — as — Holt rummaged through the plane — on a Minneapolis-Chicago-Miami flight.

Students said Holt had been a student at Indiana University after graduation from Greenfield (Ind.) High School. He had worked at post offices in Indianapolis and in Greenfield until recently.

Korea blaze kills scores

SEOUL (UPI) — A gas tank exploded in the kitchen of a second floor coffee shop in the Taeyongak Hotel Saturday, spewing an inferno of smoke and flames through the upper levels of the 22-story building.

Forty were rescued from the blaze that reportedly trapped scores on the 12 upper floors, including eight Americans.

Police said more bodies may be discovered during daylight rescue operations Sunday.

There were 438 persons, including 203 guests, inside the hotel when the fire broke out. The registered guests included 35 Japanese, three of whom were confirmed dead, nine Americans and one Chinese.

Suspect nabbed in Blaine raid

BELLEVUE — Twelve pounds of marijuana was recovered during a Friday morning raid on a Bellevue apartment, according to Blaine County Sheriff Orville Drexler.

Drexler said the market value of the marijuana is $10 an ounce, making the cache worth more than $1,900.

An occupant of the apartment, Bruce Gill, 23, Hayden Lake, was arrested and charged with possession of a controlled substance. Drexler said Gill was charged with a felony because of the quantity of drugs recovered. Gill had been living at the apartment for about one month.

Drexler said the raid and arrest were part of a county-wide crack-down on drug offenders.

Hope to offer Hanoi proposal

LONG BINH, Vietnam (UPI) — Bob Hope said Saturday he would submit a specific proposal to North Vietnam Monday on the release of American prisoners of war. However, Hope said he doubted he would get a visa to visit Hanoi.

Hope's performance today was marred by about 30 soldiers who held up two anti-war signs and an American flag emblazoned with the peace symbol.

Landslide buries 5

NOVA FRIBURGO, Brazil (UPI) — A rainfall jarred loose mud and rock and buried five persons early Saturday in this mountain factory town. Rio de Janeiro state police said. Five others were injured.

Lindsay primed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor John V. Lindsay, only four months a Democrat, will plunge into his attempt to oust President Nixon Tuesday by formally announcing his entry into Florida's Democratic presidential primary.

Then he will try to Milwaukee to announce Wednesday he will enter the Wisconsin primary. The second contest he considers crucial to establish his viability as a candidate. Lindsay aides admit that his political clout around the nation is far stronger than it is in his own city.

Hope's proposal revolves around what he called "a children to children thing" whereby he would raise millions of dollars in the United States through charity shows with the money given to North Vietnamese children in hopes the POWs would be freed.

The comedian appeared hopeful he could raise much more than the $10 million he mentioned originally and said he already had received his first donation — a check for $10 cabled to his hotel in Bangkok from a man in the United States.

Some bored, others face danger

THE ONG DONG PLAIN, Vietnam (UPI) — Clumps of elephant grass sprouted in the sun as far as the eye could see. A red dirt road wound through the grasslands and faded into the pastel blue sky on the horizon.

For Briggs, a medic, it was a beautiful day despite the bumpy ride. He leaned back on his elbows and looked out at the countryside.

Briggs and the other men of the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment had been setting up a new base camp in the Ong Dong Plain, 25 miles northeast of Saigon.

Spec. 4 Gerald Gray, 23, of Milwaukee, Wis., the driver, was sitting on the ground; his chin bleeding and his bare chest splattered with dirt. Spec. 4 Joseph Fureigh, 21, of Millington, Miss., the commander, was standing nearby trying to comfort his buddy.

Viets broadcast holiday messages

SAIGON (UPI)—Two Christmas messages said to have been taped by captured American servicemen were broadcast today by Radio Liberation, the clandestine radio station of the Viet Cong.

The new messages made a total of four such messages so far this Christmas, compared to about 30 last year. This year, unlike last, no messages have yet been broadcast from American pilots held in North Vietnam.

The two speakers were identified as Alfonso Ray Riato, serial No. 2315750, and James Alexander Daly, serial No. 11815568. The Committee of Liaison for Families of Servicemen Detained in North Vietnam said Riato is from Bell Gardens, Calif., and Daly from Brooklyn, N.Y.

The broadcast said the men are being held in "a camp of detention for captured American servicemen in South Vietnam." Military sources say the camp probably is in North Vietnam.

"Our government should respect the just demands of the Vietnamese people, not adhere to a few Vietnamese traitors in Saigon. As to the treatment given to me under the humane policy of the National Front for Liberation and the provisional revolutionary government of the republic of South Vietnam, I can assure you that I am in the best of health and receiving excellent treatment.

"Please don't worry about me. I suggest you contact one of the peace organizations to get more information on Vietnam and our government's policy. Once again, Merry Christmas and a happy New Year. Always your brother, Al."

Daly: "I hope this message finds all of you in the best of health. As for me, I am in very good health and I miss all of you very much."

As usual, the voices had American accents but the messages were partly in stilted English as if some of the sentences had been drafted by the Viet Cong themselves.

Full texts of both messages: Riato: "It is within my mind that I think of the enjoyable Christmas holidays we have spent as brothers. In mind and heart we will be together. Please enjoy this one: I am living thanks to the Vietnamese people who have sincerely cared for my being, a captured military man who has brought suffering to the Vietnamese people.

"Our government should re-

Baskets packed

PACKING food, toys and clothing baskets which were distributed in Filer and Jerome are, from left, Rev. Royde Schweitzer, Filer; Mrs. Richard DeVall, Filer, and Mrs. Vern Durham, Heron. Baskets were packed through the efforts of the Community Action Agency, the Filer Civic Club, churches and interested citizens.

Holiday baskets given

TWIN FALLS — Families in Jerome and Filer received baskets for Christmas, thanks to cooperation between area residents, churches and the Community Action Agency's Emergency Food program.

Mrs. Richard DeVall, CAA worker in Twin Falls, said food for the Filer area was provided by churches and the emergency food pantry. The Filer Civic Club donated toys and clothing also was donated.

In Jerome food was obtained from churches and the pantry, clothing from donations and toys from HOPE and donations, according to Mrs. Vern Durham, outreach worker. Turkey which was put in baskets were donated by the Twin Falls Elks Lodge.

Eight families were given complete baskets in Filer. Four in Jerome got all items and four received toys and clothing.

Airline strike talks planned

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Airline officials and striking mechanics of Hughes Aircraft have agreed to meet in Washington, D.C. Tuesday at the request of the National Mediation Board.

The airline has curtailed most of its operations in seven states, Canada and Mexico because of the strike which began Dec. 15 by the Airline Mechanics Fraternal Association.

Still operating are flights between San Francisco - Eureka, and from Phoenix to Las Vegas, Reno and Salt Lake City.

The Washington meeting will be the first time negotiations have taken place since the strike began over higher pay, fringe benefits and improved work rules.

The mechanics have worked without a contract since last March and are seeking a 35.4 per cent pay raise from their present $5.06 per hour base pay.

In Los Angeles, a U.S. District Court judge has under study an Airwest petition for a preliminary injunction against the Airline Pilots Association which has honored picket lines.

A contempt hearing sought by the company against the pilots was heard in the U.S. 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in Los Angeles and continued until Jan. 6.

Disney spirit to continue

BUREBANK, Calif. (UPI)—The spirit of the Disney "magic kingdom" — entertainment in good taste for the family — will be nurtured by a four-man council that now heads the multimillion dollar entertainment empire.

Roy O. Disney, who headed the corporation since the death of his brother Walt in 1966, succumbed Monday to a cerebral hemorrhage.

Roy had always handled the financial side of the business, while Walt guided the creative end, and the elder Disney brother had planned for the succession of power after his death.

Roy was 78 and he did a good job of figuring out how to leave responsibility and control in the hands of others before he died," a Disney executive said Wednesday.

Donna Tatum, president of Walt Disney Productions, said: "I don't look for any change in the spirit of Disney enterprises."

"The philosophy will continue to be the same — a constructive approach to amusement, entertainment and recreation, designed to appeal to the broad family audience throughout the world."

"The philosophy is deeply ingrained in us. We in the management have all been trained in it, understand it and believe in it. We're geared to think and act that way, and these have become our fundamental principles."

"The people who operate the enterprise and the people who draw the pictures, they all have been imbued with these principles."

Control passed to a council of four men. In addition to Tatum, they were: E. Cardon Walker, executive vice president and chief operating officer; executive producer Ronald W. Miller, husband of one of Walt Disney's daughters, and Roy E. Disney, son of Roy O., who as executive vice president produces most of the shows for television's "The Wonderful World of Disney."

Tatum said the corporation has about 30,000 stockholders, with members of the Disney family holding the largest number of shares.

But he said no single stockholder or small group of stockholders has majority control.

Funeral services for Roy Disney were held Thursday at St. Charles Church in North Hollywood with private interment to follow.

Tuition aid given
KENNETH J. NEWMAN, on left, presents checks totaling $850 to Jerry Meyerhoeffer, admissions officer for the College of Southern Idaho, on behalf of the First Security Foundation. The funds include $500 in scholarship moneys and a $150 library grant.

Scholarship funds donated by bank

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho has received $850 in grants and scholarships from the First Security Foundation.

Each year, the foundation distributes scholarship and grant funds to the intermountain region, with $21,850 donated this year; according to Kenneth J. Newman, vice president of First Security Bank and manager of the Twin Falls office.

The CSI funds include $500 in scholarship funds and a $150 library grant.

The grants bring to $387,250 the total amount donated by the First Security Foundation since its inception in 1952, Newman said.

George S. Eccles, president and chief executive officer of the First Security Corporation, is president of the First Security Foundation. Other trustees include Marriner S. Eccles, Willard L. Eccles, R. H. Burton and Ralph J. Comstock Jr.

Recipients of the foundation funds include the University of Idaho, Idaho State University, Boise State College, Ricks College, College of Idaho, North Idaho College, Northwest Nazarene College, Lewis-Clark Normal College, University of Utah, Brigham Young University, Utah State University, Weber State College, Westminster College, Snow College and the College of Eastern Utah.

In addition, Future Farmers of America and 4-H chapters throughout the area will receive $3,000 in individual and unit awards during 1972.

Newman said that in addition to the scholarships, banks of the First Security Corporation system have been active in making student loans, and as of Oct. 20, were assisting more than 14,000 students with loans totaling more than $14 million.

Chinese airlines have no delays

WASHINGTON (UPI)—When President Nixon's blue and silver jetliner arrives in Peking in February there should be no problem with air traffic delays. Red China's airline industry is third-rate by Western standards.

The Chinese have only four pure jets in their entire fleet, and those — British-built Trident 3s — were purchased from Pakistan only last year.

The workhorses of China's airline, known as CAA (Civil Aviation Administration), are lumbering turboprop planes — Russian-built Ilyushin 14s and British-made Viscounts. Added to these is a fleet of Chinese-built prop planes used for the short haul market.

The thought of breaking into the Chinese market with American-made commercial jetliners is a dazzling prospect for manufacturers like the Boeing Company and McDonnell Douglas. Boeing already has attempted to sell planes to Romania, and is reported planning to use Romania as its go-between in trade talks with China. The plan is faltering, however, because Romania is expected to buy surplus American jetliners, which now glut the American market as a result of the recession in the U.S. airline industry.

Should American manufacturers manage to negotiate a deal with Red China demands for airliners could be substantial. China has a population of 780 million. Added to potential airline customers is a willing army of foreign tourists who would visit China if the Peking government gave the go-ahead.

The main means of travel between Chinese cities now is by rail. But many large cities are serviced by air.

Aerial stunt cuts power

SPOKANE (UPI)—The Federal Aviation Administration says a 34-year-old local man has turned himself in to FAA officials as the pilot of the plane that buzzed Spokane early Wednesday morning, knocking out a high voltage power line.

Officials said Charles A. Pittman Jr., surrendered his pilot's license Wednesday afternoon pending the outcome of a hearing on the matter.

About 12:45 Wednesday morning a twin-engine Cessna 310 aircraft was taken from Spokane International Airport and buzzed the downtown area. The plane returned to the field at 1:05 a.m. and the pilot disappeared.

The craft, owned by Harlow Tucker, president of Davenport Hotel, Inc., Spokane, suffered between $4,000-$5,000 damage when it struck a high-voltage transmission line about 70 feet off the ground on the city's east side. Part of the line was found on the plane.

Power to a section of the city was knocked out for about an hour after the incident.

FAA inspector Delmore F. Randles said Pittman came to his office Wednesday afternoon and admitted flying the plane but gave no reason for the incident.

Jury acquits leader of Black Panthers

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A jury acquitted Elmer Pratt, Southern California leader of the Black Panther party and 11 other defendants Thursday of conspiracy to commit murder, and assault with deadly weapons on police officers.

The jury did find Pratt and eight other Panthers guilty of conspiracy to possess illegal weapons, including a machine gun and firebombs.

The seven-month trial grew out of a four-hour gun battle between police officers and Panthers at the party headquarters in south central Los Angeles on Dec. 8, 1969, in which three policemen and six Panthers were wounded.

Three of the defendants were acquitted of all charges against them.

The defense had argued that the gun battle was the result of police provocation when they tried to enter the building occupied by the Panthers before dawn and then opened a massive barrage when shots were fired from inside.

Pratt, 26, who was "deputy defense minister" of the Panthers, is a follower of the Eldridge Cleaver faction of the party and his wife, Sandra, 23, who had been one of the defendants, was found murdered early in November.

Time For Action

It is time for Congress to quit ignoring a state of affairs... controlled by law. A limit of time for completion of bargaining should be set and, if not reached, settlement might well be made by a disinterested group...

In the Airwest controversy some 500 mechanics have been able to throw a wrench into the gears of a major transportation necessity... Most businesses in America have shown a willingness to cooperate with the spirit as well as the letter of bargaining...

Toro Next?

You'd think that the discovery that another celestial body besides the moon lies within earth's gravitational field would be big news... The tiny asteroid was actually discovered back in 1964 by UCLA astronomer Samuel Herrick...

unmanned space mission sent to Toro as another step in unlocking the secrets of the origin of the solar system... At its closest Toro is 9.3 million miles from earth, about 50 times farther away than the moon...

Tax Take Low

Tax resistance in Oregon has held the rate of growth of per capita state and local taxes here to the slowest among the 50 states... Figures distributed by the Education Commission of the States reveal that in fiscal 1970 Oregon's per capita tax amounted to $400, only $13 more than the year before...

of the states with regard to education expenditures... In Oregon, 47.2 per cent of all local and state expenditures go to education at all levels... Only three other states, Utah (53.7 per cent), Indiana (50.6) and New Mexico (49.6), have a higher proportion of funds devoted to education...

A Two-Day Week?

Talk about the trend to a four-day week. Some companies are going to three-day and even two-day work weeks for specific operations... Mr. Spectator read about this situation in Industry Week Magazine... It must be something like beating your head against a wall - it's so nice when you stop.

WASHINGTON - A major factor behind President Nixon's cautious decision to open up the Phantom pipeline for Israel within the next few months is the political necessity for the U.S. to regain its credibility as a great power following the humiliation of American-backed Pakistan in the war with India.

For months, President Nixon has exhibited political courage at home by refusing to yield to the hysterical demands of Democratic politicians - and Prime Minister Golda Meir of Israel - that new shipments of the U.S. Phantom fighter-bomber must be sent to Israel.

Pakistan (linked to the U.S. by regional anti-Communist security treaties) by India (which last August signed a treaty of friendship with the Soviet Union) is forcing the President's hand.

catastrophic for the Egyptians. The loss of U.S. prestige in the dismemberment of Pakistan shatters Mr. Nixon's options to take chances along the Suez Canal.

by Soviet vetoes in the Security Council or by India's refusal to accept General Assembly resolutions, the impotence of the UN was dramatically exposed.

Humphrey "Must"

WASHINGTON - Sen. Hubert Humphrey thinks he can't make a serious 1972 presidential bid unless he proves himself in the primaries the way Richard Nixon chose to do in 1968... In 1968, of course, Humphrey won the Democratic nomination without running the gamut of primaries...

measures. Fitzsimmons, without openly quarrelling with Meany, quietly but emphatically announced that he and the Teamsters were standing by the President and his economic proposals.

This very fortuitous endorsement definitely was important in calming other labor rumblings and dissension. It goes without saying that's not hurting Hoffa's cause.

CHRIS CARLSON Child Supporters

WASHINGTON—Idaho's two strong Congressional supporters of child care development legislation split last week over the recent veto by President Nixon of a comprehensive child care bill. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, criticized the veto while Rep. Orval Hansen, R-2nd, supported it. Hansen, who introduced some of the original child care legislation, said he voted against the bill for the same reason: the president eventually vetoed the measure. "The delivery system was hopelessly defective," Hansen charged. According to the Idaho Falls congressman, the bill's administrative structure was impossible. "It gave virtually an absolute right to any community with more than 5000 population to deal directly with the Federal Government and pre-empted the right of the State to serve that area," Hansen said, adding that this would make it almost impossible for the State to develop its program. Hansen said he strongly favored some type of child care development program, but that the bill his subcommittee reported out was too drastically altered on the House floor for him to support. The Idaho Falls congressman said he received a telegram and a telephone call from Gov. Cecil Andrus in which Andrus, a Democrat, expressed support of Hansen's position because of his passing of the state's role by the final bill. Hansen charged that proponents of the autonomous local unit theory did not recognize that the state could just as easily handle the local units in its statewide program. He said insuring a role by the state did not mean smaller areas in need of child care development centers would be overlooked. Hansen predicted "we could have had a bill written into law except for the fact that it got caught up in the Office of Economic Opportunity's continuing resolution."

RAY CROMLEY Dollar Crisis

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Nixon, not noted for finesse, may have managed a psychological coup in the dollar crisis. His strategy can now be outlined in some detail. First, Mr. Nixon and his advisers believed they had to shock West Europe, Japan and Canada into action. They believed long, slow conferences would not succeed. Mr. Nixon was convinced that direct devaluation of the dollar would not succeed and that such action would be followed by a rash of counter-devaluations by countries determined to hold their trade advantages. With such a demonstration of U. S. "weakness," there could have continued a slow but steady run on U. S. gold. Devaluation in terms of gold would have enriched France, the Soviet Union and certain other countries which had been most uncooperative and encouraged further foreign dollar-gold manipulation and speculation in the years ahead. Mr. Nixon solved this dilemma by floating the dollar and going off gold. The President was almost certain the importance of the American market was such that the countries of the world would have no choice but to cooperate as they saw the United States meant business. To make it even more attractive for foreign governments to cooperate with his proposals, Mr. Nixon levied a 10 per cent surtax, making it crystal clear that retaliation meant a continuation of that tax and cooperation meant the tax would be dropped. Up to this point, U. S. Treasury Secretary John Connally had acted very tough indeed. To the principal trading nations, Connally had said: "upvalue your currencies, get ready to cut unfair barriers to U. S. goods." Mr. Nixon then waited while outraged governments around the world demanded that the United States devalue. When Mr. Nixon did not move (but Connally gave hints), the other

The Needs Of Youth

Editor, Times-News: Who cares enough about the Youth of this valley to do something about their needs and problems? These are your sons and daughters and mine. Many of them are headed for trouble unless we do something now. They have many needs and problems, and many of them are turning to the temporary delusions of narcotics. Marijuana is becoming very common place and the majority of the young have either tried it or have become steady users. The present system of control is almost totally ineffective except to make criminals out of some. The solution is to get to the bottom of their needs and provide a better way of life. They are at a restless age and require a variety of ways to express themselves. They need a place to dance and listen to their music. They need jobs, purposeful goals and involvement in worthy causes. Our young people need our patience, understanding, advice and most of all they need our LOVE and CONCERN. They are faced with problems and questions you and I never had to face. They have doubts and fears about their place in this crazy mixed up world we are leaving them. Their future is uncertain to say the least. They question our sense of values where the worth of a person is determined by appearances or social standing, where the rich are more highly esteemed than the poor even when they gain by dishonest or heartless methods. They say LOVE is the answer and I say they are right. Love for God should be 1st and love for your fellow man 2nd. The kind of love Christ gave, a love that is self-sacrificing. Love that does not judge, a love that makes no demands, a love that has compassion. Who is there in this Valley that can say I love our Young, I care? I do care and would like to do something about our youngsters needs. I am limited financially but I will give all I have. My limited resources, my sympathy and understanding, and all my heart to a program to help our young people. The type of organization I have in mind is a Non profit Valley Youth Co. designed to provide various work projects such as ceramic making, leather craft, woodworking, furniture and appliance repair and refinishing, gardening projects and many other possible projects. The production from these projects would be sold at the Kimberly Auction and Swap Shop, providing a profit and income to the participating youth. I would like to see informal Bible study groups formed and group discussions where young people can get together and discuss their problems and help each other to solve them. I would like to see a group of young people working on the narcotic problem and also a program where young and adults could meet to improve communications and understanding. We would plan to develop Youth Centers and recreation facilities thru-out the Valley where the young can meet to visit, dance, play games, listen to music and express themselves. These centers should be designed to provide low cost entertainment and refreshments. The success of these functions I feel, would be assured if the youth themselves were to be given active parts in management and policing under adult supervision. To accomplish these objectives we will need the help and co-operation of everyone in the Valley as well as various Govt. agencies. May have already pledged time, tools, and money, but much more is needed. I have a large bldg. in Kimberly that would serve as a good marketing and workshop center. I would like to dedicate part of this bldg. to the youth program with some of the work shop facilities to be available for adult do it yourself projects during slack hours. Including an auto repair facility and welding shop. Who cares? Who will help the young people? The boys and girls I have met with are willing to work for this project but we need money, supplies and tool. We also need adult citizens to participate in many different capacities. If you care and would like to do something to help our countrys future then NOW IS THE TIME TO STAND UP AND BE COUNTED. If possible plan to attend meeting at the Kimberly Auction Center on West Monroe St. in Kimberly on Dec. 30, at 7:00pm. Mail correspondence to Ken Thacker, Rt. 2, Kimberly, Idaho 83341. You may pledge anything of value, whether time, money, materials, furniture, tools, or services. I will do my part; the Youth will do their part and if you will do your part I believe we will see results that will shape and benefit the lives of many of our young men and women in this valley. ANDREW TULLY Ever So Briefly

WASHINGTON — Now the storied Magi, beautifully and yet so briefly that today there is only legend to fill in the gaps, a collection of folklore which scholars unsuccessfully have tried to verify for more than 1,000 years. Today, in the Cathedral of Cologne, lie the bones of three men. Legend says they are the Three Wise Men who worshipped the Babe of Bethlehem. If legend is historical fact, they have come a long way to their honored tombs. There is a story of a caravan of camels, richly caparisoned, making its way across the sea of sand, its leaders obviously men of wealth and importance, guided by a star of extraordinary brightness which, as Matthew tells us, "went before them till it came and stood over where the young Child was." Throughout the centuries, scholars vainly have sought out the mystery of that great star. Some believe that the planets Jupiter and Saturn swung into such positions that they appeared to be in conjunction as one star. But the sages do agree there was a star, if only because so many legends say so. Chinese records, for instance, report that along about 4 B.C. a glowing "ovanesence" appeared in the sky. And of course many savants claim that Jesus actually was born between 4 and 6 B.C.—that is, four to six years after 1 A.D. The Three Wise Men invariably are pictured as worshipping Jesus in the stable where He was born. The inference is that they arrived on the very very night of the Birth, and this would have been impossible if, as the legends indicate, the Magi came from a great distance. What is more probable is that the Christmas legend has telescoped events that happened during the period of the Nativity but not necessarily simultaneous with it. At any rate, the feast of Epiphany, which celebrates the coming of the Magi, occurs annually, on Twelfth Night. Possibly each day represents a week, or even a month, which would account for the Biblical report that the Wise Men stopped in Jerusalem for directions. Later, the Wise Men were warned by "God in a dream" not to return to King Herod with news of the Child, and departed into their own country another way. There the Bible leaves them forever, and there legend picks them up. It tells us that on their return home the Magi gave away all their worldly goods and went about preaching the Gospel of Jesus. It tells us that St. Thomas, traveling in India 40 years later, found the Magi and banished and crucified them and that they later suffered martyrdom for their faith. Even then, legend refuses to desert the Wise Men. It says their bones were discovered by Empress Helena, mother of Constantine the Great, and placed in the church of St. Sophia in Constantinople, whence they were removed by soldiers of the First Crusade to the Cathedral of Milan. And finally, in 1164, when the German Emperor Frederick, called Barbarossa, conquered Milan, he transferred the remains to Cologne.

PAUL HARVEY Rape Or Love?

When a great tree slides through the blades of a saw, professional ecologists cry, "Siamoi!" Professional lumbermen use the tree while professing devotion to the forest, concern for its future. Is it "rape" or "love"? The forest is a dynamic part of the ecosystem in which we live, supplying oxygen, watershed protection, wildlife habitat, recreation. Environmentalists are urging us to look up what's left, fences in the trees, fence out the man with the saw. And since 1900 we have locked up 18 million acres of forestland. That's equivalent to the land area of Rhode Island, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Delaware—preserved permanently as parks and wilderness areas. Elsewhere, however, the lumberman continues to harvest the forest. But before we indict him for rape—certainly before we convict him—let's check the numbers. In the last 15 years he has cut down and used up 197 billion cubic feet of timber. But during those same 15 years, he and we have grown 245 billion cubic feet of new wood. Until 1925, man had planted a total of only 1.6 million acres of trees. We're now planting that many every year. But the protesters protest, new seedlings are not to be compared to the irreplaceable magnificence of virgin timber, rife with wildlife. Well, let's see. Any forester knows that the unmanaged forest is destined to self-destruct. It cuts off its own sunlight. It chokes to death lonely browse. There are 30 per cent to 500 per cent more deer in managed forests than in dense, uncut forests. I'm not making a case for the man with the ax. I saw him abuse his prerogatives in the first half of this century. Unrestrained, he might indeed have ravaged our woodlands beyond resurrection. But unlike restraint is equally shortsighted. We each need 500 pounds of paper per year now and we'll need 1,000 pounds each within 25 years. We will need 25 billion cubic feet of lumber; twice as much as now. Our forests cannot afford to stagnate; they've got to be growing. Now, about pollution. You and I consume oxygen; exhale carbon dioxide. Trees consume carbon dioxide, give off oxygen. In this way more than in any other, we need each other. But an old forest of overly mature trees consumes as much oxygen as it generates. An average acre of vigorously growing young trees consumes five to six tons of carbon dioxide per year, gives off four tons of fresh oxygen—while producing four tons of new wood. And it cools and humidifies the atmosphere. The growing commercial forest is the most efficient atmospheric decontaminator developed. The forest has real enemies; careless people, disease, insects. The insect consumes one-fourth as much as the saw and produces nothing. The man with the saw, planting more than he's cutting, is building us an ark.

JOHN GOLDSMITH The Pay Board Mess

WASHINGTON — The bureaucratic chaos inside the 15-man Pay Board is best seen by the fact that, six weeks after the start of Phase II of President Nixon's New Economic Policy, the forms for employers to make their reports on wage increases have not been published. That means thousands of employers, lacking resources of big business and big labor such as General Motors and the auto workers union with highly-paid staffs in plush Washington offices, have no legal way of justifying wage or salary increases over the 5.5 per cent ceiling. The latest version of the vital reporting form is now at the White House Office, of Management and Budget for approval — still far from the hands of the employers who need them. This is only the tip of the iceberg of confusion plaguing the Pay Board and its beleaguered chairman, Federal Judge George Boldt. The iceberg itself suggests that the Pay Board has been handed an assignment far beyond its scope, endangering the overall Nixon control program and suggesting the need for some immediate decontrol. Consider, for another conspicuous example of inefficiency, the near total confusion over the highly emotional question of retroactively for wage increases that fall due during the three-month freeze. After weeks of internal wrangling the Pay Board, over violent objections from its labor members, voted to allow retroactivity only in a few special cases. One example: if the employer had raised his prices to compensate for the higher wages he had planned to pay his employees. But the President's Construction Industry Stabilization Commission, set up long before the Aug. 15 wage-price freeze to rely in runaway construction wages, bilthely went ahead and approved some 400 individual contracts allowing full retroactivity. When the Pay Board heard about that, it summoned John Dunlop, chairman of the CISC, to Washington Dec. 8 for an explanation. Dunlop arrived with a clipping from the New York Times which he used to justify the CISC approval of retroactivity. That clipping, in fact, represented what was thought to be an early Pay Board decision that actually had been superseded by the board. Boldt never bothered to send the Pay Board's formal ruling to Dunlop. In short, the first six weeks of the Pay Board under Judge Boldt (picked by top Presidential domestic aide John Ehrlichman) have been a bureaucratic disaster. In the words of one member: "We would sit for eight hours and get 20 minutes' work done." Several times, board members found themselves recorded as voting opposite to the way they thought they were voting. In those six weeks, the board ran through no less than three executive staff directors. Although some board members claim that this period of confusion is now ending, the deeper problem of the board's credibility is very much alive. Thus, citizen complaints have been pouring into the board about its approval of huge wage settlements for coal miners, longshoremen and rail workers. Although these "catch-up" wage contracts are now coming to an end, the damage to the pay board's credibility — and hence to Mr. Nixon's whole stabilization program — has been severe. To counter this growing credibility gap, the President is now being urged by some aides to take his stabilization program to the country in a series of regional speeches to generate public pressure behind the program. A far more drastic solution is being quietly pressed both by members of the Pay Board and by Mr. Nixon's own advisers: start a modest program of decontrol, both price and wage, and the sooner the better. The purpose: to exempt thousands of small labor-management contracts, along with most of the 80 million wage-earners not in unions, and retain controls only on big industrial and construction unions (the pace-setters in cost-push inflation) — and some other categories such as Federal, state and local government workers. With the President dead set against a huge stabilization bureaucracy, partial decontrol may be the only salvation for the Pay Board. Its experience to date strongly indicates that the policing of 180,000 individual collective bargaining agreements, plus wages of the millions of unorganized

New variety show due Tuesday

By VEINON SCOTT
UPI-Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Sonny and Cher were seated on the carpeting of their inner sanctum office at CBS eating Mexican food from a large coffee table and discussing a stroke of good luck—their own musical-variety series, scheduled to beam Dec. 27.

Sonny wore a long-sleeved shirt, the arms of which were spangled with blue stars. His chest was a series of vertical red and white stripes. Cher, more conventional, wore pants and a blue blouse. Both were delighted that in a season of few variety shows they have been chosen to head an hour-long mélange of humor and songs.

"We did six summer replacement shows," Sonny (whose real name is Salvatore Bono) said. "And we were told there was a remote possibility to go from there to a regular season show of our own."

"The odds are 500-1 against that happening," Cher chirped in. "The public doesn't expect as much from television in the summer as it does during the rest of the year. So we didn't have to live up to a great build-up. We had no locked format. We just came up with ideas, sketches and songs that we enjoyed ourselves."

Deanna liked acting, not lack of privacy

NEAUPH, ILE-CHATEAU, France (UPI)—It was not unusual for mothers from Minneapolis to Moscow in the late 1930s to chide their daughters by asking, "Why can't you be like Deanna Durbin?" The soprano actress was Hollywood's ideal teen-ager—a well-groomed, sparkling-eyed brunette whose screen manners and morals were light years away from those of the molls of motorcycle gangs and surf board symbiotes who are today's film teen queens.

At her peak, Miss Durbin got $150,000 a film (big money then); was the movie industry's No. 1 box office draw, and had dolls, paper dolls and careers named for her. Her career lost momentum in the mid-1940s due to a weight problem and changing tastes for film musicals. She made her last film, "Up in Central Park," in 1947.

Where is Deanna now? Living happily in this Paris suburb with her third husband, French movie director Charles-Henri David, whom she married in 1950. Mother of two grown children and fighting against middle-age spread, the 49-year-old Miss Durbin insists she likes being a housewife and has no desire for a comeback. She says she liked acting but never the publicity or lack of privacy. Worst of all, she said, "They never allowed me to grow up."

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—What impact would the major development of cable television have on over-the-air video? This is the subject of an important segment in the recently released report by the Sloan Commission entitled "On the Cable: The Television of Abundance."

If cable is allowed to develop, says the commission, "there will take place a transformation of American television from a system in which virtually every viewer relies upon local over-the-air stations to one in which a great many viewers subscribe to cable."

Regarding program quality, the commission says: "As cable systems become an important market for the creativity and skill of the performer, the writer and the producer, certain programming that would otherwise find its way over the air will be bought by cable operators and losses. 'Fractionation of audience will mean lower income for some broadcast stations and networks, and might reduce the funds that conventional television can now apply to program production; in particular, expenditures for local news and local entertainment, already low, might decline or even vanish.'"

Cable system's impact on video studied

Agreeing with many observers that large scale pay-TV could outbid commercial sponsors for top sports events, the commission notes that the Federal Communications Commission has come up with rules to counter attempts to "siphon" off such programs from so-called free television. But the commission feels that "any anti-siphoning rule is more appropriately left in the hands of Congress than the FCC."

Visitors' facility built for county

TWIN FALLS — Workers of Arrington Construction Co. are erecting a new visitor facility on the fourth floor of the Twin Falls County Courthouse which Sheriff Paul Corder says will provide the first visitor security measure for the jail.

A cubicle is being located in the area previously taken up by an opening below a large skylight. It will be divided into four small booths, each facing outside where 12 inmates at one time will be able to sit and talk with visitors or attorneys through an enclosure.

Sheriff Corder said this will prevent problems the jail has had for some time in which visitors have passed unauthorized items, even razor blades, to prisoners.

Presently the visitors sit on old-fashioned benches in the corridor to talk with inmates while a deputy stands by. Since one deputy must watch several prisoners at a time maintaining adequate security is difficult, officers say.

This is the first step of a jail renovation program. A stairway will be enclosed to provide juvenile detention facilities and the sheriff's apartment adjoining the jail will be converted to additional cell areas.

Work is now in progress in the jail area to repaint and make the area lighter and more attractive. Old silver cell walls and bars are being painted light blue with a darker blue trim and ceilings are white. Sheriff Corder said this makes it much easier to see into the jail area because of improved light.

The building crews are working by the hour and as much work as can be financed will be done at this time, commissioners said.

Deadline announced

BOISE — Final payment for taxpayers who took the option of paying their estimated individual income tax in four installments are due by Jan. 15, 1972, according to John C. Anduiza, public information officer of the Internal Revenue Service for Idaho.

Taxpayers whose total estimated income and self-employment tax for 1971 exceeds their total withheld income tax by $40 or more, and those whose income is not subject to withholding tax by employers, must file form 1040S declaration of estimated tax, by April 15 each year.

Trade tokens aren't valuable

By FRANK SCHELL

From R.D. Shoshone: I recently came across some coins and was wondering if you could help me out as to value.

(1) About the size of a dollar, brass color, one also says "Idaho's Leading Clothing Store, Kohly's, Boise." The other side, "The holder of one of these checks will be allowed 50 cents rebate on any suit or overcoat."

(2) About the size of a dollar. One side shows a figure of a lady with a wreath of flowers over her arm. Some buildings in the background. The words "Fort Boise Centennial Celebration 1834-1934" Other side reads "Commemorating the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of Old Fort Boise, Boise, Idaho, Sept. 13, 14, 15."

I would appreciate any help you might give me.

Answer: The first token you have is a trade piece given to promote trade. Hundreds of different varieties of these checks exist, as they have been used for years all over the country.

Tokens such as this bring from 50 cents to $1 to a token collector — otherwise they have no value.

Your second piece is a medal. This medal was struck by "Whitehead-Hogg," which name is imprinted on the lower edge of the medal. The piece was struck for the 1934 anniversary celebration at Boise. This particular medal is illustrated in "Hilber-Kappens" "So-Called Dollars."

It is not scarce, and currently sells from $3 to $5, depending upon its condition. In new condition, it is a beautiful example of the medallist's art — unfortunately it is not valuable. It is listed as HK-690. If you are interested in its number.

From Mrs. D. P. Hazleton: I have a 1908 Indian Head penny in really good condition that I would like to know the value of. I have a clipping from a magazine which says all Indian Head pennies older than 1910 are worth $1,750 and I'd like to know if this is so. The bank in Hazelton told me to write to you as they don't know. Thank you.

Answer: I do not know where you got the clipping — which mentions such a ridiculous amount, but I am constantly trying to warn people of these misleading advertisements. They are unethical and absolutely untrue — but unfortunately, there is no legal way to stop them.

For your information — there are no Indian Head Cents which are worth anywhere near the figure quoted. The 1877 Indian Head is the rarest of all, having been minted in only 852,500 copies.

This coin, in absolutely uncirculated (new) condition sells at $800, dealer price. Collector selling value would be somewhere in the neighborhood of $500. If there is any wear at all, the price would drop to about $450 and $250.

Other Indian Heads, in brand new condition, might bring up to $300, depending upon the mintage — but would have to be absolutely uncirculated — and they are difficult to find. All the dates of Indian Heads from about 1887 up to 1909 are in the 35 to 50 million mintage, and prices on uncirculated coins of those years run from about $20 down to $13 — dealer's prices.

You could get about 40 per cent less than this. In 1908 and 1909, a few Indian Heads were struck at the San Francisco mint — all the rest at Philadelphia.

The 1908-S brings up to $100, but in any condition less than new, drops to $15 to $43. The 1909-S sells slightly higher than this.

A few of the Indian Heads were made in "Proof" condition, and these command higher prices. But certainly not anywhere near the $1,750 you quote.

Sorry to disillusion you — but also glad we can be of service.

(Questions on coins and currency should be sent to The Money Box, c/o The Times News, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301).

Brighter News Of Record year for jobless

SEATTLE — A U. S. Department of Labor year-end review of the Public Employment Program pointed up a brighter New Year for 9,300 of the northwest region's jobless or underemployed people in terms of "meaningful public employment."

Jess C. Ramaker, Seattle, the Labor Department's Northwest Regional Manpower Administrator, said first year PEP funding of $65,301,900 in the four northwest states has been shared as follows by state, county and hiring agents under the Emergency Employment Act: Idaho, $2,524,900 and 333 jobs; Washington, $45,720,900 and 6,217 jobs; Oregon, $12,090,500 and 1067 jobs; Alaska, $1,908,700 and 843 jobs.

Ramaker said a high percentage of the jobs have been filled.

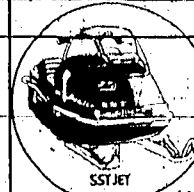

Public service jobs created under the program cover a broad range of community needs.

In the northwest, Ramaker said about 34 per cent are in the field of education, ranging from custodial to teaching positions; 13 per cent are in law enforcement and about 12 per cent are in public works and transportation. The remainder are spread across the fields of health and hospital work, environmental quality, fire protection, parks recreation and social services.

The Manpower Administrator also called attention to $807,300 first year federal funding under EEA for Indians.

The Merry Pet

By LINDA MERRY, DVM

Question: I have a six month old male poodle that won't stop scratching. He has scratched most of the hair off his neck and shoulders. I've tried dipping him in a preparation for fleas, ticks, mange, eczema.

I've given him an oil skin conditioner, and also vitamin tablets that my vet prescribed, but nothing has helped. His litter brother also scratched his coat out but I've never had any trouble with his mother. I keep them in the house and feed them Top Choice and Purina puppy chow.

Answer: Sounds like you've tried all the treatments, now how about a diagnosis? Severe itching can easily turn into a seven year project if it is treated hit and miss.

Mange mites, ringworm or other fungi, fleas, ticks, lice, internal parasites, allergies, sunlight, diabetes, distemper, too much bathing or the wrong shampoo, lack of thyroid, too many or too few male hormones, rat poison and a few million other things cause itching and hair loss. It's ludicrous to start treating all these maladies in the hope you'll hit on one of them.

You're on the right track with a skin conditioner, prescription vitamins, and the good diet you're feeding. The next step should be giving your veterinarian a complete family history (on Pap and his relatives, too) and having him examine the pup.

I would be suspicious of allergy or mange here. But there are three different types of mange mites (and three different treatments). A skin scraping is required to show their presence and tell which one to treat. I would get though, before the dog loses the rest of his hair and has to live this winter without a coat.

Question: I have a Tortoiseshell cat and I want to know if she needs a distemper shot. She is four weeks old. Who should I go to? Scarey Cat.

Answer: Dear Scarey Cat: Yes, your kitten needs her distemper vaccination. If she has been weaned and you cannot keep her isolated from the virus (if it's on your grounds or the kitten has recently been exposed), she will need a temporary vaccination right away.

Go to a veterinarian. They're the only people licensed to care for your kitten.

Twin Falls teachers will receive pay raises

TWIN FALLS—Teachers in the Twin Falls School District will receive a post-Christmas salary schedule, were present on Jan. 29 1972, in the form of their retroactive pay, ranging from about $50 to $160 per teacher.

George Staudaer, superintendent of Twin Falls schools, said Friday the bill signed by President Nixon on Wednesday allows payment of the retroactive wages, held up under the federal wage freeze. About $30,000 in additional wages will be paid in the additional January checks.

Staudaer said. Paychecks for December, based on the 1971-72 salary schedule, were distributed this week before schools closed for the holidays. All subsequent paychecks will be based on the higher wages allowed in the new salary schedule, Staudaer said.

The legislation enacted by President Nixon ends a long period of doubt and frustration for teachers and administration alike, while terms of the federal clampdown were debated and argued.

European movie trends listed

Editor's note: Mehmed Husich is a 19-year-old exchange student from Yugoslavia who is currently a CSI student while living with Mr. and Mrs. Matt Smith, Twin Falls. In the following series of articles he offers his observations on some of the differences between the American way of life and that of his native country.

BY MEHMED (MIKE) HUSICH

Films are the seventh and youngest of the arts. They were born in Paris in 1895, and at that time they were a blend between arts and technique. For years people were more successful with the technique than with the message due in part to the kings of the film world being in Hollywood, Cinescra (in Rome) and other similar studios. It was the time of the Western, super-spectacular, sentimental movies, tear jerkers through which many women sobbed away even knowing the ending would be a happy one. But in the last ten years young directors have started to make much better movies, films about real people, and man's everyday life, common incidents.

It began in France. A group of young enthusiasts, who are today famous, started to make movies about their lives. Their first movies, Jean Lick Godar "Woman is Woman," "Live Your Own Life," "Made in U.S.A.," "Mail-Female," "China's Woman," "Crazy Pierre," "Francis Truffe "400 Blows," "To the Last Breath," "Jill and Jim," Luis Mail "Lovers," "Private Life," "Cloud Lelusha "Man and the Woman," "Live for Life," were something new, and the public liked them. After these movies a few great actors started to be popular—Jean Paul Belmondo, Alain Delon, Anna Karina, Jean Seberg, Jean Moreau, Jean-Luis Trantignan.

Very soon the same kind of movies were being made in England: "Saturday Night Sunday Morning," "Sport Life," "Billy the Liar," "Darling," John Schlesinger, director of the popular "Midnight Cowboy," was director of "Billy the Liar" and "Darling." Joseph Lousy's movies were exceptionally good—movies such as "Servant" and "Accident." At the same time these were first starring roles for actors such as Richard Harris, Albert Finney, Tom Courtney, Julie Christie, Dirk Bogarde, and some others. Surprisingly enough, at this time, Czechoslovakia came forth with new movies. This kind of movie now had its new home in Czechoslovakia. Some of the best movies from this country were: "One Day One Cat," "Black Peter," "Love From One Blonde," "Shop on the Main Street" and had as their directors Milosh Forman, Jan Kadar and Elmar Klos.

In Sweden the established Ingmar Bergman turned to this new type of picture, and every one of his new films was a success. From the young and famous director Bj Vldberg we have "Diva Madigan" and "Hole in Adolein." Swedish stars Max Von Sidow, Ingrid Tullin and Liv Ullmann today make movies all over the world.

Yugoslavia at this time began producing pictures about the little man of today, or his personal tragedy in war. Successful directors were Sasha Petrovich "Da" "Days "Throb," "I Saw A Gypsy Happier than Me," "It Will Soon Be End of the World," Zlka Pavlovich "Wake a Mouse," "Red Eye," and many others. In the last few years from Yugoslavia have come two big war spectaculars, "Battle on Neretva" and "Sutjeska." Director of those movies was Veljko Bulajich.

In Italy the established directors are still big, because at the time of the new trend they were among the first to join. The best examples are: Luciano Viskony "Roko and his Brothers," "Gepard," "Big Star of Little Bear," Federico Fellini "8 1/2," "Julietta" and "Spirits," "Satyricon," Michelangelo Antonioni "Night," "Red Desert," "Adventure." After these movies Marcello Mastroianni, Renzo Salvatore, Sophia Loren, Claudia Cardinale, Monica Vitti, Gina Lollobrigida and other stars grow in popularity. About four years ago Italy tried Westerns along the lines of those popular here in U.S. Most of them were bad, but there were a few exceptions—"The Good, the Bad, the Ugly" and "Once in the West." Today their director, Sergio Leone, and main actors Clint Eastwood and Giuliano Gemma, are famous.

Western Germany and Russia never had good modern movies.

Lately political movies have been very popular. Kosla Gavras "Z," "Sunset," and Glin Maria Volonte "Good Citizen" are well known directors of this type.

When Europe started producing the "earthy" movie, America's movies lost popularity, but three years ago "The Graduate" was successful in Europe. This was introduction of modern film in America. After "The Graduate" came movies such as "M.A.S.H.," "Batch, Cassidy and Sundance Kid," "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?," "Today America has gone overseas. There is a danger in overexposure.

At the box office the movie industry here in the United States is beginning to notice the public already tiring of the modern trend. The question is "What next?"

(Next time: Sports in Europe.)

Atlanta makes effort in inner-city problem

By LOUIS CASSELS

United Press International

Atlanta—the proud and progressive capital of the new South, is making an energetic effort to solve a racial-economic problem familiar to nearly all of America's big cities.

The problem derives from a strong tendency of white middle-class families to flee into "safe" suburbs, leaving the inner core of the city to become overwhelmingly black, economically deprived and crime-ridden.

The most flagrant example of this may be Washington, D.C. The District of Columbia is more than 75 per cent black and in deep trouble. The surrounding Maryland and Virginia suburbs are more than 75 per cent white, prosperous and generally indifferent to their inner city's needs.

Atlanta is headed in the same direction, but its civic and political leaders are smart enough to recognize the danger and to undertake realistic measures to curb it.

The white flight to the suburbs in Atlanta is documented by census figures showing that the city proper now contains 82 per cent of the black population, but only 23 per cent of the total population of the five-county metropolitan area.

With the backing of some 150 public, civic and private organizations, the Atlanta Community Relations Commission has proclaimed as its No. 1 objective in 1972 the achievement of a better balance in population distribution. Three measures, in particular, will be employed to this end:

—Encouraging construction of more middle and upper income housing near the heart of the city to make it an attractive place for white families to remain (or to move back to, when they get fed up with the trials of commuting).

—Putting muscle into enforcement of the federal law which requires that a person of any race be able to buy or rent a home wherever he can afford.

This law was intended to—and where enforced, can—open up the suburbs to the increasingly large proportion of blacks who belong economically to the middle class.

—Most controversial, dispersal of low-cost public housing in small units throughout the metropolitan area instead of concentrating it in a few developments in the inner city.

Hidden disease

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—A health screening insurance plan which has detected previously undiagnosed disease in one out of every 10 state employees has been extended to cover 66,000 insured dependant spouses, reports the Michigan Department of Civil Service.

Results of the initial screening of 25,000 employees showed that one out of three had test abnormalities and one out of 10 were actually hospitalized or placed under a physician's care as a result of the testing. The tests are performed in one hour by nurses and technicians and the results are referred to the employee's private physician.

Average doctors said ill-prepared in VD rise

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dr. R. H. Kampmeier, a medical educator, heard from some of his students that doctors are the only persons over 30 who whom youth may listen. But he was more distressed than flattered. His reaction was that if, indeed, youth will listen to them, doctors are ill-prepared, emotionally or scientifically, to discuss a problem of enormous importance to youth—venereal diseases. He said he is alarmed that the VD rate kept mounting during 1971, mostly among persons under 24. What does the average doctor really know about VD? Some years ago, when the last statistics were gathered, the average U.S. medical school allotted 13 hours over the four-year course to these diseases. These days medical students may "elect" to take a considerable portion of the curriculum, which means, Kampmeier said, that for VD this average "may approach zero for many students." Yet "what other diseases offer such a broad educational experience in human behavior?" he asked.

BUHL — The year 1971 has marked the end of an era in the North View community located northeast of Buhl. The school building, which has been the focal point of community life since 1912, was sold to Mrs. Otie Burbank for use as her home.

Early residents seeking education for their children, found the North View community had been forgotten when other school districts were formed and tax moneys apportioned. Not to be outdone, the residents constructed a one room "shack" to serve as a classroom and saw to their own needs until other arrangements could be made.

Finally the patrons of the area appealed to the state legislature to form a school district and by a special act of the legislature they were able to form a district. A mill levy was set up to the full amount allowed by law.

In 1912 a two-room building with cloak rooms and an entrance way was built. The school was constructed on two acres with ample room for a ball diamond, playground equipment and a two-room tenchorage.

At that time the area had not been officially named. One of the carpenters working on the school told the patrons if they would let him name the district he would paint the name on the school without charge. As Worthy Olds looked at the beautiful view of the Soldier Mountains to the north, he decided to call the community North View.

The first actual records of the school began when Alice Davis, the first child born in the community, entered first grade. A souvenir from her teacher, Grace McGinnis, in 1917 lists Fred Clute, R. B. Davis and R. Shaeffer as school board members and 28 students. Alice is now Mrs. Roy Strickland of Buhl.

Other early day teachers included Wilda Oloer, Miss Thompson, Mary Hart, Miss McCormack, Mrs. Willard Rathbun, Mrs. Ruth Ownbey, Helen Gifford, Lois Brab, Iaubell Clark and Miss Zimmerman. Mrs. Ownbey, now Mrs. Maurice Currington, Buhl, taught at the school for five years and one year during her tenure the North View district topped all other county districts in the eighth grade tests.

One student, Glenn Hart, had a perfect attendance record for his eight years at North View, until he came down with measles during the last week of eighth grade.

During the early days, most of the community activities centered around the school. Spring and fall pageants were major productions with teachers and parents working on costumes.

Halloween was a favorite holiday among the children. After making the rounds in the neighborhood, the children gathered at the school where the teachers furnished hot chocolate and treats. According to Ivan Bonar, one year the teachers were out of milk so there was no hot chocolate for the youngsters. A group of older boys remedied the situation by "borrowing" a herd of milk cows which they drove to the school and milked. The next day the farmer had quite a time rounding up his herd.

Each school year ended with the annual "end-of-school" picnic, with the entire community taking part.

The school building also served for church and Sunday school services on Sunday afternoons. Rev. Guy Jones was the pastor.

During the years of World War I the women of the community organized into a war service club with headquarters in the school. They made shirts, knitted socks and gloves and made sheets, bandages and hospital gowns for the men overseas. The ladies club continued and during the World War II they sent food boxes and letters to the servicemen.

A project carried out by the club for some 30 years was supplying food to the Boise Children's Home.

In 1923 the North View Grange was chartered with Riley Maxwell as master. Juvenile Grange was organized under the sponsorship of the parent grange with Edwin Clute as the first master. Both granges flourished with large attendance for several years.

In those early years every one worked together. Harvest time was a community effort and the small pox epidemic in the early 1920s was felt by the entire community.

In the fall of 1937 the original school burned and the children had a holiday for awhile. The school was soon rebuilt and a basement was added to the new building. The basement was used as a gymnasium and auditorium for the school and as a community meeting hall. The stage featured a beautiful curtain bearing advertising of early day businesses of Buhl.

In 1947 the North View school consolidated with the Buhl School District. The community patrons purchased the building from the Buhl school board for $2,615. In due time they were organized and operated under the name of the North View Community Hall Association. The board of trustees was organized into a "Declaration of Trust" comprised of Ward Moffett, Ralph Skinner, Dorothy Shriver, Ester Nelson and Ivan Bonar.

In the spring of 1970 the North View Grange turned in its charter and in early 1971 the board of trustees decided that with no further use for the building it would be auctioned off. Following the auction, all original donors in the purchase of the building were repaid, as well as any outstanding bills. The remaining $1400 was divided equally among the Buhl Boy Scouts, the Buhl Recreation Association, the Easter Seal Foundation and the Idaho Youth Ranch. The donations were made in memory of the pioneers of the North View District.

School souvenir

THERE WERE 28 students at North View School in 1917 when a pamphlet carrying the picture of the school's teacher, Grace McGinnis, was published. It was the first publication for the school and listed the teacher, school officers and students. It also carried several illustrated poems and sayings such as "Oh! Swift the time has fled away; as fleeting as the rose, since school began its opening day; till now its day of close," and "Live to learn and you will learn to live"; "Good instruction is better than riches"; "Advance in learning as you advance in life"; "Education is the chief defense of nations," and "Acquire not only learning but the habit of learning."

Class members

History

Rebekahs have gift exchange

TWIN FALLS — A Christmas gift exchange was held when members of Primrose Rebekah Lodge met this past week at the IOOF Hall.

It was reported shut-in members have been sent Christmas-remembrances, and installation will be held Jan. 10 for new officers.

Members of the program committee were Mrs. Alice Shiffer and Mrs. Frank Eastman. Mrs. Dale Bowman was soloist and Mrs. Mae Chatterton read a Christmas story.

Hostess committee members were Mrs. Myrl Ashcraft, Mrs. Henry Wise and Mrs. Lora Doas.

Sick calls were reported and flowers and cards sent. Evelyn Atwood read a tribute to the Past Noble Grand.

Wendell miss listed in 'Who's Who'

WENDELL — Elaine Ambrose, Wendell, has been named in "Who's Who Among American Student Leaders."

The honor was based upon leadership honors, activities and scholastic grades at the University of Idaho.

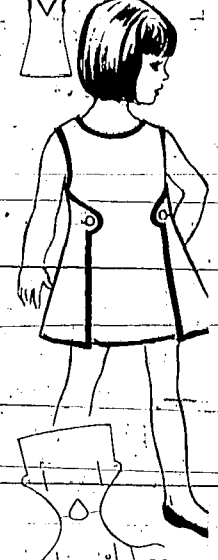

"Who's Who Among American College Student Leaders" is a yearly publication honoring outstanding college students throughout the nation.

Miss Ambrose, who was recently elected president of the Delta Gamma sorority, is a junior from Wendell and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Ambrose, Wendell.

Donations great

140 families receive Christmas baskets from local community

TWIN FALLS — Community-wide efforts, coordinated by the YWCA, provided Christmas food baskets for more than 140 families and volunteers said no one should have gone hungry this Christmas in Twin Falls.

Collections from the grade schools, although not received until Wednesday because of the two-day closure for flu, were more abundant than in past years. Interact Club members of the high school and Boy Scouts from Troop 67 of the Methodist Church — along with youth groups of the "Y" packed about 60 boxes for delivery Friday.

Members of the Elks Club assisted about 80 families, and items not used at the "Y" were donated to the Elks. Salvation Army officials also cared for a number of families and served dinner Christmas Day at the shelter for those alone at Christmas-time.

In addition to the food, the Twin Falls Fire Department repaired and delivered toys to the needy families. Firemen worked throughout the year on the toys which are donated and in need of new paint or minor repairs.

Money contributions were used to purchase clothing needs such as overcoats, coats and trousers for some of the children and other money covered the purchase of turkey or other meat items for the baskets.

Sally Molyneux, coordinator for the program, said residents of Twin Falls were most generous this year. She said a number of migrant families who stayed in the community following fall harvest work this year because they could not find seasonal work elsewhere, probably increased the number of needy this year.

"Nothing was wanted," she said, "and many of these people have to eat after Christmas too, and any left over meat and canned produce will be used to help them" but during the remainder of the winter," Mrs. Molyneux said.

Children's party held

ALIMO — An LDS primary children's Christmas party was held at the LDS Church.

Mrs. Rulon Koyle directed group singing of Christmas carols, accompanied by Mrs. Curtis Durfee.

Mrs. William Jones, Mrs. Bert Tracy and Mrs. Koyle were in charge of games. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. Robert Ward, president, Mrs. Arley Cahoon, counselor and Mrs. Zenith Taylor were in charge of arrangements, assisted by other officers and teachers.

Magic Valley Favorites

Wook's Recipe Winner
MRS. CHARLES HOWELL
Route 2, Jerome

CHICKEN AND FRUIT SALAD
3 cups sliced cooked chicken
1 orange
1 apple, sliced
1 banana
20 to 25 large grapes
1/2 cup sliced almonds
1/4 cup mayonnaise

Cut orange segments into pieces and cut grapes into halves, removing seeds. Slice banana. Mix all ingredients lightly but thoroughly and chill.

Serves eight. Canned chicken may be used in place of freshly cooked chicken.

Night scene

MAIN STREET of Waikiki follows the Hawaiian coast line of the Pacific Ocean. This night scene on Kalakaua Avenue faces Waikiki Beach in Honolulu, first stop on the Magic of Hawaii '72 tour which leaves Twin Falls Feb. 14.

Tour features 'free time'

TWIN FALLS — One of the nicest things about the Magic of Hawaii '72 tour is that there's lots of free time to go exploring on your own — and what better place to roam than this tropical paradise?

By day or night, the famous beach area of Waikiki and city of Honolulu, first stop on the tour, offer the tourist much to delight in.

The Idaho tourists will land Monday, Feb. 14, in Hawaii by Pan American Airlines, first stop on the 11-day tour of the islands. That night there will be a poolside get-together and orientation session. The following two days are spent partially in conducted tours, which include the Pearl Harbor area and the Polynesian Cultural Center. On Thursday there is a full day free to explore the 60th state's largest city and surrounding area.

Remaining days are spent on Kauai, Maui, and the big island of Hawaii. On these islands, too, guided tours are offered to some of the most spectacular scenery in the world, but there is still free time for leisure, by yourself, exploring, deep sea fishing or whatever strikes your fancy.

Everywhere in Hawaii the emphasis is on leisure and a casual life. Favorite wear for women is muu muu and for men, brightly colored floral shirts.

Anyone interested in participating in the tour is requested to sign up as soon as possible. More information about the tour, sponsored by the Times-News and Magic Carpet

The word is "loud" for prints coming up in the 1972-73 fashion picture, according to trends at the 28th Fabric Fair held in Frankfurt, Germany. Flowers, stripes, plaids and geometrics are among the loud prints.

Travels, can be obtained from Ruth Miller, tour hostess, Box 548, Times-News, Twin Falls, or Magic Carpet Travels, Box MM, Twin Falls.

Party held

MURTAUGH — Members of the Happy Hour Club and their husbands held their annual Christmas dinner and gift exchange at the Holiday Inn, Twin Falls, this week.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Slim Dossey. Dossey entertained with electric guitar and country-western music.

'Wolf whistle' fashions predicted

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York designer Mollie Parnis sees fashions in the years ahead once more making a woman "something to whistle at."

California's Rudl Gernreich (Remember the man who did the first topless swim suit?) thinks men's and women's clothes will be more alike and that "people are going to be more interested in wearing clothes that are comfortable and conform to their own idea of what works for their lives."

Pauline Trigere of New York believes the greatest influence of fashions of the '70s will be travel. "And because we'll be changing climates so rapidly," she said, "clothes will be in layers so that we can put more on or remove as we need."

The Marchese Emilio Pucci of Italy, one of the most influential designers internationally, says fashion in the '70s will depend on the way the world turns — if toward peace, "there will be a super-feminine, careful, classic beautiful fashion."

But if the "many negative forces in action prevail, there will be non-fashion," Pucci said.

These were some of the reactions of designers in U.S. and foreign fashion capitals in answer to questions of whether styles in the '70s, including the immediate spring ahead.

We already know pretty well what's ahead for spring-summer 1972. For, since late October, press and buyers have been seeing the designers' collections.

First off, you'll be hearing a lot about the Chinese influence, obviously an offshot of President Nixon's coming trip to Peking in February. Chinese touches overwhelm some collections, are minimal in others.

Said Miss Parnis, "If things go well, and God knows I hope they do, we'll have some of the classic Chinese influences. We'll get some of their silks, for instance ..."

But she sees no overpowering Chinese effect of western fashions long-term. "China will need so much from us ... the only thing we are getting from them now is quotations."

Among other trends coming up in the seasons ahead, some actually are a looking backward, to the classics of the 1930s and '40s.

Miss and Mrs. America simply rebelled at some of the far-out fashions of the past few years — turned down the Gypsy Look, the Thrift Shop Look, the "Do Your Own Thing". Look. Designers, manufacturers and retailers felt the rebuff where it hurt the most — in the pocket-book.

"Designers have suddenly realized they have to make Mrs. Middle America happy, because she has the money today," is the way Stan Herman, designer for Mr. Mort, puts it. "And Mrs. Middle America is not a woman who takes to change. She likes coordinated, classic clothes."

Ergo, the return of the blazer, the flared skirt, the belted waistline, the glamor evening clothes.

For the future, the designers talk of the "Unified Look," many of them planning the entire costume including hats and footwear.

SUSAN TAYLOR
Miss Taylor, Shepherd
name date

By MIKE ROBERTSON
Times-News Photographer
TWIN FALLS — The camera is a marvelous instrument that can capture an instant of time and preserve it on film forever.

One big advantage of the SLR camera is the readily interchangeable lenses. The photographer can change lenses in seconds whenever the use of a wide-angle, telephoto or close-up lens is needed for certain situations.

This piece of time in a photo can be shared for generations as it was seen by the original beholder.

Sometimes, photography is called the "universal language." It can bridge any language gap, and say the same thing to a person of any language. The face of a small, happy child or the agony of a dying soldier captured on film is the same language to everyone.

They are somewhat more bulky and heavier than a rangefinder, but not such that they are inconvenient. They are much more convenient to use than a larger roll film camera.

Most of the SLR cameras have another advantage of automatic lenses. In this line, slit diaphragm opening can be set at the maximum opening for focusing with the greatest amount of light possible. At the instant of the exposure, the lens closes down to a set aperture.

Nothing is too small nor too large for the eye of the lens. Nor is the endless flow of time ever too fast to be stopped at some moment — a moment that can show any emotion of joy, love, hate or fear.

A photo can show the time of years in an old sailor's wrinkled face; the sun as an old day dies or a new day is born. The camera is the master of time.

On the other hand, the lens can be set manually at an aperture so the depth of field may be viewed directly through the lens.

Volumes have been written about both types of cameras and the advantages and disadvantages. But the final choice by a potentially serious photographer should come when he finds how he is going to use the camera, what his needs are and what his future needs will be.

Is there a "best" camera for the average photographer-to-use? After the mechanical operations of using the camera become automatic, photography is the art of seeing and composition.

The different makes of camera can be chosen best by feel and features. Get what you need, but not less. The camera is an extension of your eye, so use the best extension you can to show what you see.

He can see and capture an instant with a simple box camera, but it lacks essential exposure control adjustment for creative photos.

A casual or serious amateur who is considering taking a great number of photos and who carries his camera with him most of the time should use a fully adjustable camera. There are several types of adjustable cameras for the amateur, but the most versatile are the 35 mm film size cameras.

The 35 mm cameras are classified mainly by focusing mechanisms. The first is the rangefinder type. The subject is focused by bringing two images of the subject into one. The photographer is not looking through the lens, but a window parallel to the lens. The rangefinder has the advantage of being a small and handy-to-use camera. The disadvantage comes in the use of extra lenses. Except for the most expensive rangefinder cameras, most do not have interchangeable lens capability.

The single lens reflex camera is the most popular among professionals and advanced amateurs using 35 mm cameras. In the SLR, the photographer actually sights through the lens through which the photo is being taken. He sees the exact subject being photographed.

Focusing with a SLR is generally on a ground glass viewfinder.

The out-of-focus subject is fuzzy and distorted. When brought into focus, the subject is clearly defined.

Scholarships awarded

POCATELLO — Seven area students are included in a list of 98 Idaho State University School of Vocational-Technical Education students awarded scholarships for the spring season.

The students are Albert Belliston and Karl Eames, both Burley, both $50; Charlotte Reid, Burley, secretarial occupations, $75; Ronald Hunsaker, Rupert, crop and soil technology, $50; Gaylin Carille, Minidoka, secretarial occupations, $125; Kenneth Becker, Gooding, graphic arts, $100; Lucinda Osborne, Fairfield, special scholarship, $190.

Hints

Spring clothes are "for a lady all the way" is the way Travilla sees his collection for Paul Farnes. The designer used softening effects throughout the collection. These included bowed white organza blouses, white collar and cuffs on long black crepe dinner suits and the all-out femininity of ruffled black chiffon evening dresses.

AARP has Yule party

TWIN FALLS — Members and guests of Magic Valley Chapter No. 423 of the American Association of Retired Persons held a potluck dinner in the Methodist Church Fellowship Hall, this past week.

Mrs. Ardis Roso, president, presided.

Jack Carlton, administrator of the local Social Security office, spoke on the recent White House Conference on Aging held in Washington, D. C. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Craig and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Waggoner, all Twin Falls, were given honorary memberships.

John Perfect was guest violinist.

Pete Creed announced the pancake supper for the Idaho Youth Ranch will be held Jan. 14 at the Twin Falls Grange Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mansfield and Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Turska, all Twin Falls, were guests.

Program presented

MALTA — Annual Christmas program of the Raft River High School featured a one-act play, "Mugy's Merry Christmas," and the high school chorus in special holiday music.

The play was directed by Mrs. Orville Sears and presented by members of the high school drama department.

Gerald Dagggett, music instructor, directed the chorus in Christmas numbers and JoAnn Tracy accompanied the singers.

FILER — Mr. and Mrs. Don L. Taylor, Filer, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Susan Lynn, Boise, to Terry Kent Shepherd, Boise, son of Mrs. Clifford McCoy, Filer, and Floyd Shepherd, Hanson.

Miss Taylor was graduated from Filer High School in 1970 and is a senior at St. Alphonsus School of Radiological Technology, Boise.

Shepherd was graduated from Filer High School in 1968 and is employed by the Idaho National Guard as a mechanic.

A Feb. 19 wedding is planned by Filer.

American favorite

GREEN-SKINNED Northwest Newtown apples add their special tangy-sweet flavor to this French Apple Tart, a continental version of an American favorite.

Apples fill luscious family pie

SEATTLE, Wash. — Apple pie ranks high on America's list of favorite desserts and here's one with a French flavor that is sure to be a hit when you serve it to guests with after-dinner coffee or for an afternoon or evening get-together.

Green-skinned Northwest Newtown apples with their tangy flavor and juicy texture fill this delectable French Apple Tart. Crisp apple wedges are cooked in a syrup made of white wine, water, sugar and a touch of lemon to spark the tart-sweet apple flavor. Tapioca is added to thicken the mixture. When tender, the apples are piled into a baked pie shell and glazed with the wine-leek syrup. A lattice crust is woven over the apples and the tart goes into the oven just long enough for the top to brown.

Northwest Newtown apples are an all-purpose apple, adaptable to all of your favorite apple recipes. The tart-sweet flavor and crisp juicy texture that give them their popularity for delicious out-of-hand eating also make them a delightful addition to cool refreshing salads and shimmering gelatin molds.

Northwest Newtowns are a favorite cooking apple too. Baked or poached, they become soft and tender, yet retain their shape. Try them in luscious cobbblers and pies, tantalizing quick breads, or baked whole for an easy-to-make dessert. You'll find that when you buy versatile Northwest Newtowns you need only one variety of apples.

The rich soil and ideal climatic conditions of the Pacific Northwest states are the winning combination for producing these superb apples. Their excellent keeping qualities make them available through May, so keep a supply of Northwest Newtowns on hand and enjoy their juicy flavorful goodness throughout the winter and spring months.

FRENCH APPLE TART
 6 Northwest Newtown apples
 1/2 cup white wine
 1/4 cup water
 1 cup sugar
 2 tablespoons tapioca
 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 1/2 teaspoon salt

Pastry for 2-crust 9-inch pie
 Peel and core apples. Cut each into eight wedges. Prepare syrup by combining wine, water, sugar, tapioca, lemon juice, vanilla and salt. Cook five minutes. Add apples and cook until tender. Meanwhile, prepare pastry dough and roll out half to fit 9-inch pie plate. Bake at 450 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Place apples and syrup in baked pie shell. Roll out remaining dough and cut into 1/4-inch strips. Make lattice top over apples. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes or until top is browned. Makes six to eight servings.

Movie Review

BY DAVID WOODHEAD
TWIN FALLS. — The latest James Bond flick, "Diamonds Are Forever," was filmed in four countries. It stars Sean Connery and Jill St. John.

The products of half a dozen large corporations, including Ford Motor Co., are used in the production. Since much of the movie is set in Las Vegas, a number of big name hotels also appear in the credits.

Yet, despite this rather expensive show of extravagant movie-making (you wouldn't believe what it costs to make a James Bond picture) only the most glibbie are apt to be taken in by "Diamonds Are Forever." And even they will wince now and then when confronted by the antics of the film.

It isn't simply the puns that are liable to try one's patience. Although the Bond films are famous (or infamous) for the "wit" they contain, this might be ignored or even condoned, depending upon how much tolerance one has for this sort of thing. The real complaint to be found in this particular episode in the continuing life of James Bond is the amazing lack of credibility.

When Bond evades a total of seven police cars in a single parking lot, one may laugh at top efficiency. But when Bond evades one police car by driving on two wheels through narrow space between buildings one is tempted to shrug his shoulders and yawn.

Speaking of yawning... that is precisely the action this movie seems to be forwarding. From every farcical scene one gains more and more of that droopy feeling one would expect from listening to a lullaby at about two in the morning. This film is immensely boring — after a while. Of course it is certainly amusing to watch the usual Bond performance for a few minutes. (Everyone is entitled to some indulgence.) But such unrestraint is possible for only so long.

It is interesting to note the difference that has overcome Sean Connery since the last time he made a Bond film. He is after all, older now. And, I suppose, this has caused something of an inconvenience for the scriptwriters because all that excess weight isn't doing Connery much good when it is required of him that he wrestle with thugs, ladies and goons.

Perhaps for this reason he ends up on the ground much more often than the younger Bond. That's the way it is though.

You can't keep up an image like Bond's forever, no matter who you are.

But I do wish someone would take the hint and STOP trying to make money this way. I'm sure the American public can be fooled in some other, "original" manner. If we are to pay for a cheap thrill it might as well be a NEW amusement.

WINTERTIME or summertime, any time is fun time for youngsters of all kinds, and young Norman Trent Gibson, close to 3 years old, finds plenty of companionship in a couple of frisky friends. Trent, as he prefers to be called, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Gibson, Twin Falls.

Writers League party held

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls Chapter of the Idaho Writers League met this past week at the home of Mrs. Jewell A. Von-Ins for their annual Christmas party after a luncheon at the Rogerson Coffee Shop.

Mrs. Ethlyn Walkington presented an illustrated program on her extended trip through 27 states, including the southern states.

Mrs. Suelle Hager, Kimberly, read several Christmas poems.

As members opened their gifts, they tried to guess what they were from poems and descriptions written by the donors.

Members were in attendance from Jerome, Buhl, Kimberly, Hansen and Twin Falls.

Reports given for Rotary

SHOSHONE — Members of the Rotary Club heard reports on plans for development of the area surrounding the proposed Regional Airport at their meeting this past week.

Don Runberg, of the Bureau of Land Management, spoke on the BLM, government participation plans in event the airport is developed there.

Ladies Night will be held Wednesday, with Leo Senten as chairman. A dinner meeting will be held at the Turf Club, Twin Falls.

Gifts were presented to Mrs. Erma Detakell and Mrs. Hal Ross.

Guests were Craig S. Hadden, Pilot Rock, Ore.; Lowell Chamberlain and Alan McCombs; Gooding, and Marvin Edstrom, Eden.

DeMolay leaders

Musical program given for AAUW

TWIN FALLS — The American Association of University Women was entertained with a program of musical numbers directed by Mrs. Janie Ellen Shaw at its December meeting.

Among those performing were Mrs. Eldon Evans, vocal solo, accompanied by Mrs. Shaw, and a string trio, Kenneth Shaw, cellist, Jananelene Stark, violinist and Mrs. Shaw, pianist.

Several song and dance numbers were presented by children from the Special Education class. The program was closed with group singing of Christmas carols.

Refreshments were served to Special Education children, guests and members. A silent auction was held by AAUW members after the refreshment hour.

Hired

WENDELL — John Teeter, Pocatello, has been hired to teach mathematics in the Wendell High School, Superintendent Lawrence LaRue announced.

Teeter is a graduate of the Emmett High School and has just received his degree in mathematics from the Idaho State University, Pocatello. He will begin his new duties when school reconvenes Jan. 3.

He succeeds Edward Ottom who has accepted a fellowship to teach for the next two years in Australia. Ottom has been teaching in the Wendell system the past 10 years.

DEAR ABBY: I am an identical twin and am often called "Twin" or "Twinnie," and I hate it! My twin sister and I share many common interests, but we are not carbon copies of one another.

Abby, please tell people NOT to ask a twin what it feels like to be a twin. [They have never been anything else, so have nothing to compare it with.]

- Point at twins in public places, stare and remark loudly on how "cute" they are.
- Ask twins how people can tell them apart.
- Ask a twin if she can "feel" her sister's pain, and vice versa. [That's ridiculous!]
- Ask twins if they always think the same thoughts. [Nobody does.]

And please DO

- Treat twins as individuals.
- Make an effort to tell twins apart. [There is always some difference.]

Abby, I have had 21 years of this twin-twin-twin garbage, and I am sick of it. Thanks for listening. Maybe people will read this and be a little more considerate of identical twins.

CATHY (OR IS IT BETH?)

DEAR C. OR B.: Being an identical twin, I have been asked all the questions you have been asked, but I did not react as you seem to. I enjoyed being a twin.

If identical twins really want to be "individuals" they should not dress alike. But if twins enjoy the special attention accorded them because they are identical twins (and my twin and I did), they don't mind putting up with a few idiotic questions.

DEAR ABBY: What is the right thing to do? My son comes home from school and says the teacher is always picking on him. But when I say I am going to school to talk to that teacher, he says if I go, the teacher will pick on him worse for complaining to me.

So how can I help him? If he won't let me go to school and ask the teacher why she is always picking on my boy?

A MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Some youngsters bring home some very vague "complaints." [The teacher is always picking on me.] is a good example. If your son can't be more explicit, ignore it.

DEAR ABBY: I recently read in your column a bitter reference to wives who do not have custody of their children following a divorce. [She's divorced and her husband has custody of the children, so you know what SHE'S like.] I would like to tell you of my own experience: I was divorced three years ago, and my ex-husband has custody of our children, now 6 and 8 years old. He and I discuss it at great length. Neither of us was stupid, immoral or emotionally disturbed. We decided that my husband would make a better "mother" than I. He enjoyed childhood games, spending time with the children, reading to them, etc. He was a rotten husband but an excellent father.

He and I get along wonderfully well now that we are divorced, and more important, the children are better off. I have unrestricted visitation rights, they love me, and I see them often.

It is time people, and the courts, realized that some men are more capable of rearing children than some women. Just because a mother gives her husband custody of the children doesn't make her a horrible person.

Perhaps she has made greater sacrifices for the benefit of her children than the hardheaded, bitter mother who uses her children for financial gain and a club to punish her husband. Please be fair and print this.

"G"

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. R. S. IN BROOKLYN, N. Y.: Don't demand that your 21-year-old son either quit seeing the girl or leave the house unless you are fully prepared to have him leave. It's a better than even bet, he'll pack up and leave.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Yule dinner held for Soroptimists

TWIN FALLS — Soroptimist Club held its annual Christmas dinner this past week at the home of Helen Cannon.

Making arrangements for the event were Ruth Carter, Louise Marsh, Beth Wickham, Marlene Welch and Mrs. Cannon.

Members were urged to bring their contributions for Christmas baskets to the proper place during a short business meeting preceding the dinner.

It was reported that the sale of fruitcakes was progressing nicely.

Vice-president Dollie Louder presided at the meeting in the absence of Louise Bush, president, who was ill.

After the dinner, members were entertained by Marty Mead, accompanied by Mrs. Jim Gibson, who presented appropriate vocal selections.

Noma Creed, former member, presented a reading, "The Many Moods of Christmas." Group singing was led by Mrs. Mead, with Mrs. Gibson as accompanist.

Don't eat!
 BOISE (UPI) — "Please, don't eat the Poinsettias."

Manor has Yule party, program

TWIN FALLS — An annual Christmas party and program at Heritage Retirement Manor this past week featured a variety of entertainment ranging from the traditional appearance of Santa to music by the King's Brass of Twin Falls.

Residents of the manor and their families attended the program in the lounge of the building. A puppet show was presented by Ronnie Percy and Johnny Mason. Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Drake and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Drake provided the party and entertainment. Refreshments were served including holiday punch, cookies and other holiday specialties served by Myrtle Will, Hazel Coleman and Juanita Green of the cafeteria staff.

Mrs. Harold Drake read "The Legend of the Rose" and each resident of the manor was presented an American Beauty rosebud in a bud vase as a gift from the Drakes.

"Santa" delivered gifts before the Christmas tree in the lounge room of the manor.

House mothers assisting with the event included Bernice Percy, Ruth Hansen, Lucille Shelly, Georgia Thioten, Elizabeth Korlin and Cheryl Drake.

Similar programs were held last week for residents of Sky View Manor and Hazel Del Manor.

Grange party

KING HILL — Members of the King Hill Grange held their annual Christmas party and program this past week.

The story of "The Little Match Girl" was acted out by young people of the grange, with Mrs. Horace Lipo telling the story. Taking part were Ardella Ruberry, Gail and Mary Morrison, Craig, Mark and Lucille Finlayson, Karen and Rachael Hiteaman and Debbie Davis. Holiday decorations were provided by Mrs. T. M. Timbers, lecturer in charge, and Mrs. Caeli Bott.

Holiday party

SHOSHONE — The annual Christmas party at the Magic Grange Hall featured recitations and carols.

Treats were presented to all present. Mrs. Louis Couch was program chairman.

Mrs. William Kerner, Sr., women's activity chairman, assisted by other women of the grange, served refreshments.

Diverse firm not shipper

By DEAN C. MILLER
UPI Business Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—Mention W. R. Grace & Co., New York, and most people think of shipping, cruises and South America.
Those areas actually accounted for only two per cent of the 120-year-old company's earnings last year. One would hardly recognize Grace, long noted for its "Casa Grace" in South America and the familiar green and black stacks on its ships.
W. R. Grace, completely out of the shipping business today, typifies the way companies are diversifying and internationalizing to stay afloat competitively. Today, Grace is the 50th largest U.S. industrial company with 1970 sales of $1.92 billion and a finger in many foreign pies.

Chances are the last turkey or record album you bought was wrapped in a Grace division's flexible packaging film, and your order of fresh meat may have been marketed in a Grace-made meat tray. That new skyscraper downtown may have been coated with a new Grace spray-on fireproofing, or perhaps the Halloween candy you gave the neighborhood kids came from Grace's candy unit. Even the books you take out of the public library may have been purchased through a Grace division.

Grace employs more than 80,000 people around the world in more than 300 plants, 1,000 sales offices and distribution facilities. They are located in 48 states and 43 countries of North and South America, Europe, Africa, Asia, Australia and New Zealand.
Its main business thrusts today are chemicals and consumer products and services.
Grace's chemical business includes battery separators, container sealing compounds and catalysts. Industrial chemicals and specialty products, bases for its chemical business, range from petroleum and industrial catalysts and graphics products to cleaning chemicals and water and pollution control chemicals.

In the early 1960's, Grace decided to get into the consumer market and has its frozen foods business includes national distribution for seafood and pizzas. On the West Coast and in the Southwest, Nalley's (a Grace division) snack food products can be found on supermarket shelves. In the West and more recently in the East, one can dine in one or more than 50 Grace-owned restaurants. The company retains some of its nautical flavor through riverboat-style restaurants in St. Louis and California.
Grace units design and market furniture upholstery and bedding, office supplies, footwear and handbags, women's casual wear and sporting goods. F. A. O. Schwarz, the famed New York toy store, is part of the Grace family.

Abroad, through subsidiaries, Grace is Number 1 in France and Spain and Number 2 in Europe in the expressway business. It dominates the in-plant feeding and meal voucher business in Continental Europe. In Italy, it operates the world's largest pasta manufacturing unit. It is a major producer of ice cream in Ireland and Italy.

Woman is honored in complex name

PLEASANTVILLE, N. Y. (UPI) — The $6.1-million garden apartment complex to rise on St. Croix in the Virgin Islands is called "Lorraine Village" in honor of an energetic black woman who doesn't carry a hod or cement bricks but who clears the way for those who do.

Lorraine Alexander, who spent three years working for a federal agency, specializes in shredding federal red tape and securing the federal and state loans necessary to her firm, Soblo Construction Co. Her boss, Mike Levitt, says he knows of no other woman in a comparable position in the construction field.

Mrs. Alexander presides at all closings and relies on her high school education. "I took one business course" and 15 years on-the-job training to hold her own not only with federal employees but with the bankers and lawyers, with whom she deals.

Levitt says the naming of the St. Croix project, which will provide an initial 250 apartments for middle-income residents, is a tribute to the self-taught expertise that took Mrs. Alexander from a secretary for his four-employee firm 15 years ago to a shareholder in Soblo, which expects to do $30 million worth of business next year.

"I can't really think of this as a man's domain because I have been doing it for so long," says Mrs. Alexander. "She won't give her age but admits to having a daughter who teaches school and another in high school.

"I personally have had no problems because of my sex — maybe women's lib won't like me for saying that, but it's true," she adds.

Mrs. Alexander, whose husband has been a policeman in adjacent Atlantic City for more than 20 years, says that "most people in government and private business accept me for what and who I am. I have found no personal prejudice due to my race."

Although her title is "project coordinator" for Soblo, which earlier this year became a division of U. S. Home Corp., she laughingly calls herself the "chief paper-pusher." But she admits that the job involves her "from inception to completion" — in each of the company's projects. There are at least a dozen jobs each year on which ground is broken, plus twice that number that get started but are dropped.

Levitt says Mrs. Alexander is "very much an individual" whose work brings her a salary "at the executive level," plus the stock.

Petition filed against union

SPOKANE (UPI) — The year did either party seek a wage stabilization fund.

Inland Empire Sheet Metal Contractors' Association has filed a petition in federal district court here seeking invalidation of an arbitration award in a dispute between the association and locals 212, 232 and 242 of the Sheet Metal Workers' International Association.

The petition, filed Wednesday, seeks to vacate a directive by the National Joint Adjustment Board for the sheet metal industry that a wage stabilization fund be established by July 1 of next year.

The petition says at no time during negotiations this past

The unions here and in Walla Walla and Richland struck the contractors association May 3 and the strike ended May 17. Negotiations continued until Sept. 9 when it was agreed that unresolved issues be submitted for arbitration.

The petition contends the National Joint Adjustment Board exceeded its powers when it added the wage stabilization fund to the contract.

Wine law

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The head of a household can legally produce up to 200 gallons of wine each year for family use without a winery permit in Texas. Legislators passed a law this year to permit home making of wine from dandelions, grapes, raisins or fruit juices.

Green Berets assume new role as instructors

LONG HAI, Vietnam (UPI)—The Green Berets, officially pulled out of the Vietnam War last January, are in reality still hard at work training Cambodian army soldiers.

About 300 of the elite Special Forces troops, aided by other hand-picked officers with airborne and ranger training, have instructed 30,000 Cambodians at three American camps in South Vietnam in the past 18 months.

The Americans accompany the Cambodians on combat missions during the training, searching for guerrillas in Vietnam's mountain jungles.

According to one officer, Cambodian Prime Minister Norodom Ranariddh asked specifically that the Green Berets handle the training of his troops in South Vietnam. The Special Forces, who were about to be phased out of Vietnam, were proud to comply. They are not listed as "Special Forces" in army records but they still wear the Green Beret.

'We don't question their ages... they're all between 18 and 35 years old.'

The training teams are commanded by Lt. Col. Edward S. Rybat, a 10-year veteran of the Green Berets.

At his "low profile" headquarters inside a South Vietnamese compound at Ban Hoa, 15 miles north of Saigon, Rybat says the Cambodian training program "is the most important mission to the U.S. Army today."

The training is different from what the Green Berets are used to. Experienced counter-insurgency officers now find themselves teaching basic infantry tactics to the Cambodian troops.

Although the Cambodian unit often include obviously underage boys and old men, "we don't question their ages," said one officer. "So far as we're concerned, they are all between 18 and 35."

Rybat's training group is officially part of the U.S. Army, but he reports directly to Brig. Gen. Stan L. McLellan, a special assistant of U.S. Troop Commander Gen. Creighton W. Abrams and director of Abrams's training directorate.

Known as the U.S. Army Vietnam Individual Training Group (UITG), Rybat's men have taken over former "secret training bases" used in the heyday of the Green Berets to train their 35,000 mercenary soldiers in South Vietnam.

Two of them are at Long Hai, a sleepy district capital 48 miles southeast of Saigon. The other is at Dong Ba Thinh, 105 miles northeast of the capital on the central coast.

The third camp used to be in Phnom Penh aboard U.S. C-130 transport planes, and whirled through three days of shots and equipment issue. They are given full field uniforms, packs and M16 rifles, mortars and machine guns.

Americans run the entire training program. There are no South Vietnamese in the bases, except for small security elements.

The troops arrive from interpreters for the camps, and many of the security guards, are former Green Beret-trained forces from the old mercenary program. They are Cambodian residents of South Vietnam.

"There was a plan for the South Vietnamese to take over this program after we trained 18 battalions," said one officer. "But that fell through." He said the South Vietnamese were both unwilling and unable to handle the combat training of the Cambodians, even if the Americans paid them to do it. Close to 60 battalions of 512 men each have passed through the schools, and nearly a battalion a week is now being "graduated" back to the Cambodian battlefields.

Pronghorn antelope sleep often, without regularly, for short periods.

Newsmen encounter new difficulties

SAIGON (UPI) — As the American role in the Vietnam war winds down, American news sources are drying up to an extent that has correspondents here seriously concerned. Reporters have complained about inadequate and unresponsive news sources since time began. But what is happening in Vietnam is, by consensus of veteran correspondents here, something approaching an invasion of the public's right to know.

American correspondents in Vietnam today are getting far less hard news out of the American military than they ever did, even though there are still 178,000 American servicemen here, including roughly 30,000 who are still in combat roles.

The upshot is that accredited U.S. correspondents — there were 250 in Vietnam at the peak in mid-1968 and there are still 117 here today — find themselves working with information that is more fragmented, conjectural and undetailed than it has ever been before in Vietnam.

When the new South Vietnamese drive into the guerrilla sanctuaries in Cambodia began last month, the U.S. command declined for three days even to admit the drive had U.S. operational support.

It was not until two days later that the U.S. command revealed that American helicopters were flying sorties, and later hundreds, of sorties a day to support the South Vietnamese offensive.

The U.S. command used to give the number of shelling reported throughout South Vietnam in the daily press communiqué. Now not even the total of shelling against U.S. bases is given — only the "significant" ones. The military themselves decide which are significant.

Correspondents here feel, rightly or wrongly, that more information is made available in Washington because correspondents there are far from the scene.

Background intelligence briefings for the American press corps, once held about twice a week, petered out completely two years ago.

American officers will not discuss, on the record, why they are freezing out the press. But the fact is that relations between the military and the press, usually uneasy even in "popular" wars like World War II, have been stretched beyond the breaking point in Vietnam.

Murder trial set in Driggs deaths

REXBURG, Idaho (UPI) — Michael Wren Rennpage and Joyce Diane Frye are scheduled to go on trial in Seventh District Court Jan. 25 on charges of first-degree murder.

Besides the triple slaying, they also are accused of two counts of attempted murder in the wounding of Richard DeLuna, a cousin of the victims, and Marvin Jones, the Driggs town marshal.

Judge Willard C. Burton set the trial date Wednesday after denying a request of Mrs. Frye's attorney the two defendants be tried separately.

Shoplifting battle peaks at Christmas

CHICAGO (UPI)—The running battle of nerves between shoplifters and storekeepers peaks during the Christmas season because of crowds and frantic counter activity. Merchants expect much of the $3 billion annual loss to shoplifters and thieving employees to happen in this holiday season. But Roger Leyden of Chicago believes this loss could be trimmed by using one of his anti-shoplifting devices, like the Kord-Kontrol. It's a long, rope-like cord which ties items of merchandise together loosely enough so they can be handled and examined by customers—and shoplifters. The wire core of the cord is connected to terminals in a metallic box or module hidden and fastened to a wall or floor. It is equipped with a battery-powered alarm that goes off when the cord is pulled, tampered with or severed. Sounds a little like Goldberger. But a businessman who sells jewelry, cameras, tape recorders, radios and other portable items tried it and liked it. "We used to find a lot of stuff missing, now we don't," said the businessman who asked to remain anonymous. "I don't want those guys (shoplifters) coming around to challenge the system. We'd be inviting trouble. But the thing works and if it saves one item, it's paid for." One Kord-Kontrol costs about $50. Leyden moved into the security business seven years ago when he established Sekure Controls firm.

"But the thing works and it saves one item, it's paid for."

"I had all this experience, five years of electronics training in the U.S. Air Force," Leyden said. "When it came time for me to get my discharge I wanted to find a way of putting that service training into my own business." After reading about the growing concern among businessmen about shoplifting, Leyden made his move. He learned that shoplifters often work in pairs. "One guy distracts the salesman, the other steals," he explained. Christmas is a particularly difficult time for merchants. The large crowds become human camouflage for shoplifters and barriers to even the most alert security officers. "Any knowledgeable businessman will tell you a uniformed man is no deterrent, especially when small items are involved," said Leyden. A second Leyden device protects showcases containing jewelry and other small expensive goods. It has an alarm horn which becomes activated if an intruder reaches over the counter and tampers with the showcase doors. A floor mat on the salesman's side of the counter must be stepped on with both feet before the doors can be opened. The alarm also is activated when the employee walks off the mat without securing the showcase doors. Leyden said the security business is one of the fastest growing industries in the U.S. "The store detective is being replaced by a director of security. Some of the directors are vice presidents," said Leyden. "Companies are forming separate security departments and budgeting big money for them." Leyden looks to the shops and stores in Europe's major cities as a market for his protection devices. He says shoplifting finally has become a major problem on the Continent and businessmen are looking for solutions.

Astronauts to carry cosmic detectors

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Apollo 16's astronauts will carry a special array of cosmic ray detectors to the moon in March to find out more about the mysterious particles that can streak through men and their spacecraft. Cosmic rays are atomic particles that travel through space at nearly the speed of light. Some come from the sun but the most powerful cosmic rays come from all directions outside the solar system. When they pass through plastic and other materials, they leave a trail of damage less than a millionth of an inch wide. Such tracks have been found in plastic helmets worn by Apollo astronauts. Cosmic rays passing through space pilots' eyes are believed to be responsible for the light flashes seen by Astronauts with their eyes closed. Scientists say such cosmic ray penetration is of no concern to astronauts spending only a few days in space. But there has been research to indicate that men flying on two-year missions to planets without adequate shielding might suffer a potentially harmful amount of body cell damage from cosmic rays. Earth's magnetic field and atmosphere protects its inhabitants from cosmic radiation. A four foot long cosmic ray detector consisting of four hinged panels has been attached to the outside of the Apollo 16 moon lander. Apollo 16 Astronauts John W. Young, Thomas K. Mattingly and Charles M. Duke are scheduled for launch to the moon March 17 and they will spend 12 days in space. The panels are made up mostly of thin sheets of the kind of high impact strength plastic used in spacecraft helmets. Other types of plastic also are used and there are several glass samples. As a cosmic ray passes through the plastic, it will leave a distinctive track which will be enlarged for laboratory study after the astronauts bring the cosmic detector back to Earth.

Women play role in war

"I WOULD be willing to do anything... anything at all," says Kate, a member of the fierce provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA). Kate didn't want her last name given for obvious reasons, considering the violence of the Irish civil war. Women perform many roles in the guerrilla warfare of Northern Ireland, some operating spontaneously, while those in the IRA work under strict military orders. The main women's force calls itself the "Women's Club," but are informally called "Black Berets" because of their caps. (UPI) (Life Magazine photos, copyright Time, Inc.)

Fruit shipper in trouble

NEW YORK (UPI)—The recent decision of United Fruit Co. to move its big banana terminal up the Hudson to Albany was a shock to New York shipping circles, but apparently they face worse news.

United Fruit said that since it made a change some years ago to boxing its bananas in the tropics instead of shipping them on stems, it no longer needed the specialized handling equipment installed in its New York terminal. Other considerations also made it desirable to let its ships move up the river to a convenient truck and rail center.

These "other considerations" apparently are driving huge amounts of import and export ocean freight out of New York and other American ports to Canada, particularly to Halifax. The other considerations are (1) the Canadian ports do not experience the frequent dockworker strikes that tie up U.S. ports for weeks at a time, (2) Halifax and Montreal have new intermodal container loading and unloading facilities that save time and money, and (3) for some imports, the combined rail and ocean freight to U.S. cities is less than by way of New York when handling charges are added.

Halifax, despite its far north location, is ice free the year around and its harbor is deep enough for the largest conventional or container ships. Montreal, the other principal Canadian port, is more convenient to U.S. markets but has winter ice problems.

Floor Fashions

By TERRY HARTLEY

"CHILD-PROOF" CARPETS may be just the dream of advertising copywriters, as far as many mothers of young children are concerned. The damage a two-year-old turned loose can do in just a few minutes, or a pair of growing boys running back and forth through the house, or, leading their pack of friends, can often make skeptics of any parents. But if there aren't any completely "child-proof" carpets, there are many among today's new and proven fibers that come close to the mark.

any hungry pack of kids. Nylon is highly spot and stain-resistant, too. Most stains can be sponged or washed out easily because the carpet fibers "reject" them. And heavier cleaning periodically will keep a quality nylon carpet looking new for years.

Early intensity of winter brings hazards to big game

MOSCOW — Although the "field season" for scientists is traditionally during the summer months, researchers from the University of Idaho Cooperative Fishery Unit often continue field studies through the rigorous Idaho winter.

Recent investigations conducted by the fishery unit on habitat selection by steelhead trout, chinook salmon and smallmouth bass has led to winter work on several Idaho river systems.

Idaho fishery biologists have known for several years that steelhead and chinook fingerlings migrate out of tributary streams on their way to the sea during September and October. However, Idaho Fish and Game personnel reported that the fall migrants generally do not pass through Ice Harbor Dam at the junction of the Snake and Columbia Rivers until the next spring. Besides, juvenile steelhead usually do not move to the sea before they are three years old.

Wading along river tributaries with electric shocking equipment which stuns fish, unit professors and students began a systematic search for the winter habitats preferred by salmon and trout as well as bass. The search was carried out while air temperatures averaged about 10 degrees Fahrenheit and a wind-induced chill factor produced temperatures close to 10 degrees below zero. When electrofishing yielded fingerlings, snorkel divers in wet suits would pick apart the stream bottom looking for fish in water which averaged between 34 and 39 degrees Fahrenheit.

The study team located the young steelhead and chinook buried in the stream bottom under large rocks. The fish were dark, sluggish and easily captured by the divers in a hand dip net. In most stream areas of the upper Clearwater and Salmon, the density of the fish was greater than during the summer months, Chapman noted.

On the Snake River, the study team determined that smallmouth bass demonstrate a clumped distribution over and under large rock rubble areas during the winter. In laboratory experiments connected with the winter field work, unit students showed that smallmouth go to the bottom and congregate in and around large rubble at water temperatures below about 45 degrees Fahrenheit, while steelhead and chinook seek the substrate at temperatures below about 39 degrees Fahrenheit.

Fishery unit biologists have theorized that juvenile trout and salmon, which do not feed and remain inactive under rocks during the winter, are responding to metabolic changes triggered by the onset of low water temperatures, according to Chapman. He added that violent ice movements in rivers during the winter may also be a factor in the winter habitat preference of salmonids and bass.

"The winter habitat preferred by both salmonids and bass suggest that the winter fish-holding capacity of streams might be improved by the addition of rubble to areas which lack large rocks," Chapman said.

Subsequent research comparing the winter fish-holding capacity of gravel and rubble supported the findings of the winter habitat study. When 11 dump truck loads of rubble were added to two sections of gravelly stream near Salmon, the rubble areas held more fish during the winter than the surrounding gravel bottom.

Cracking down

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—The licenses of more than 121,000 Michigan drivers were suspended or revoked during the first eight months of 1971, an increase of 5,000 over the comparable period a year ago.

"Unfortunately, we are very likely to eclipse our previous high of nearly 175,000 drivers who were disciplined last year," says Secretary of State Richard Austin. "At current levels, 1971 totals should rise above 180,000."

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—Duane Thomas ran in for a 13-yard touchdown after a pass interception early in the second half and quarterback Roger Staubach passed to Bob Hayes for another score in the third quarter Saturday to give the Dallas-Cowboys a 20-12 victory over the Minnesota Vikings and the right to play in the NFC championship game next week.

The Cowboys will face the winner of the Washington-San Francisco game for the National Football Conference title on Jan. 2, with the winner of that contest going to the Super Bowl.

It was the third time in four years that the Vikings have lost the first playoff game after winning the Central Division championship.

quarterback for Minnesota, threw toward Bob Grim at the Minnesota 43 early in the third quarter, but Cliff Harris intercepted and returned it to the Minnesota 13. On the next play, Thomas broke up the middle, getting into the end zone standing up to put Dallas ahead 13-3.

Charlie West returned the following kickoff 51 yards to the Dallas 42. However, the Cowboys gave up only three yards, and a field-goal attempt by Fred Cox from the 46 hit the right upright.

Dallas virtually wrapped up the game later in the third quarter when Staubach drove the Cowboys from his own 48 to the Minnesota 9, then hit Hayes in the back of the end zone. The touchdown, at 13:51, made it 20-3 for Dallas.

The big play of that drive was a 30-yard pass to Lance Alworth who was forced out of bounds on the Minnesota 27. Staubach hit the wide receiver on a third-and-15 situation as he faced a strong Viking rush.

Alvin Page dumped Staubach in the end zone for a Minnesota safety at 2:47 of the fourth quarter to make the score 20-5. Coach Bud Grant then sent in Gary Cuzzo to replace Lee at quarterback, and Cuzzo drove the Vikings to the Dallas 19, with passes to Gene Washington and Stu Volgt.

But Bob Grim let a pass go through his hands to the Cowboys' Leo Roy Jordan at the Cowboys' 5 and he returned it five yards to the 11 to end the Minnesota threat.

Later in the game, however, Cuzzo drove the Vikings 66 yards for a touchdown, hitting Volgt on a six-yard pass play for the score. But the touchdown which came at 13:52 was too late for Minnesota.

The game was close in the first half as the Vikings picked up seven first downs and their defense, which led the NFC, held the Cowboys to only four. The Minnesota offense, which was 12th out of the 13 NFC teams, rolled up 311 total yards compared to 183 for Dallas, which had the No. 1 offense in the NFC.

The Cowboys moved to a 6-3 halftime lead on two Mike

Clark field goals. Clark scored on the 44 after Chuck Howley intercepted Lee's pass deep in Dallas territory and returned it to the Minnesota 34.

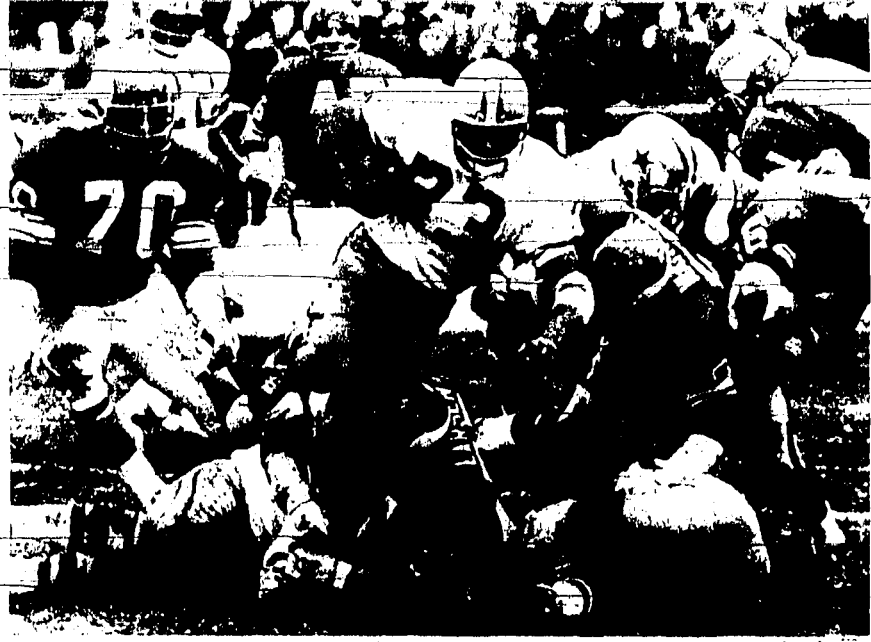

Clark put the Cowboys ahead 3-0 after taking advantage of a Minnesota fumble early in the first period.

Dave Osborn was hit hard by Dallas' Larry Cole on his own 36, and the ball rolled loose. Jethro Pugh recovered it for the Cowboys.

The Cowboys moved moved to the Viking 19 and on fourth and 7, Clark kicked a 26-yard field goal.

The Vikings tied it up at 3-3 on a 27-yard field goal by Fred Cox at 8:59 of the second quarter.

The Vikings threatened to go ahead in the second half when Lee connected with Bob Grim for 49 yards on a third-down situation, giving the home team the ball on the Dallas 29. However, Howley intercepted a Lee pass at the Dallas 37 and returned it 26 yards to the Minnesota 37, setting up Clark's second field goal.

Miami edges Chiefs in record-length pro game

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Garo Yepremian ended the longest game in pro football history Saturday when his 37-yard field goal cleared the uprights seven minutes, 40 seconds deep into the sixth quarter, giving the Miami Dolphins an uphill 27-24 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs in an American Football Conference playoff game.

"But the Dolphins came right back, sailing 72 yards in eight plays, Griese, who completed 20 of 35 passes, hit Howard Twilley for 24 yards and Paul Warfield for 23 in the march. Kliek cracked over from the 1 with one minute left in the third quarter. A sensational 63-yard pass play from Len Dawson to rookie Elmo Wright set up a three-yard touchdown run by Podolak with 6:46 left in the fourth quarter, giving Kansas City a 24-17 lead.

That would have finished a lesser team, but the Griese-led Dolphins wouldn't quit. He hit Warfield for 26 yards on a third-down play to the Kansas City 12 and two plays later found fleming for the tying touchdown.

Dawson says K.C. gave Miami too many gifts to expect win.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—It turned out to be a most enjoyable Christmas for the Miami Dolphins. It was 63 degrees and sunny and the Kansas City Chiefs came through with plenty of presents. "We gave them too many gifts," Chiefs quarterback Len Dawson said after his team's 27-24 double-overtime loss. "You had to see it to believe it."

Last year's dream becomes reality

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Garo Yepremian was day-dreaming in the stands when Jim O'Brien came on the field to boot the winning field goal in last season's Super Bowl.

"Before he kicked it I wished to God that I was in his position," the diminutive Cyprian said after his 37-yard field goal had given the Miami Dolphins a 27-24 sudden-death victory over the Kansas City Chiefs in an American Football Conference playoff game Saturday.

"The gifts came in the form of two missed field goals by Jan Stenerud and a fumble by Ed Podolak on the Kansas City 12 just before halftime, which enabled Garo Yepremian to tie the game at 10-10.

Pistons post first victory over Bucks

DETROIT (UPI)—Bob Lanier scored Detroit's last three baskets in overtime after Jimmy Walker tied the score with one second to play in regulation Saturday night as the Pistons defeated the Milwaukee Bucks for the first time in eight contests in two years, 120-110.

"I know that kick would make me or break me," he said. "There was a little pressure on me before the kick. I could hear the crowd. I just told them (his teammates) to this (taunt) to give me enough time to kick and not to let anybody through." he told a crush of reporters standing around him in the jubilant Miami dressing room.

The winning bot terminated the longest game in pro football history, sailing true about a foot inside the right upright 7:40 deep into the sixth quarter. "The victory gives the 'Dolphins, division winners in the East of the AFC, a shot at the AFC championship against the winner of the Baltimore-Cleveland game Sunday. It also assures them of the home field advantage for that contest.

Celtics keep holiday touch

CINCINNATI (UPI)—The Boston Celtics, Atlantic Division leaders in the National Basketball Association, won their seventh straight game on Christmas night, defeating the hapless Cincinnati Royals, 99-94.

"The game was so long we'd used all of our other plays so we thought we'd try it," Czonka likes to run it, so we used it." "It was a story of guts and determination." Coach Don Shula said. "When things looked darkest we seemed to come up with the big play. It was a great day for Garo (Yepremian). Who wasn't picked to the all-star team. It was a big day for Garo, who admitted feeling slighted by not having been picked to the all-league team."

Hayden Fry, of Southern Methodist, the West head man, said his players have "operated beautifully" in the short time they have been in camp.

Shrine players eat together

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)—Members of both the East and West Shrine teams sat down together for a traditional Christmas dinner Saturday after morning workouts.

The teams, preparing for their Dec. 31 battle at Candlestick Park, drilled in rainy weather but coaches of both units said they were pleased despite the muddy going.

Blacks leave Vandals Vikings feel Cowboys beat them at their own-type game

MOSCOW (UPI)—Two University of Idaho Vandal basketball players, citing their poor performance for the team, Thursday announced they were quitting the team.

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—The Minnesota Vikings quietly departed from their locker room Saturday, saying they were beaten at their own game—20-12 by the Dallas Cowboys.

"They played a perfect game," said split end Gene Washington, who caught four passes despite an injured foot which would require surgery next week. "They didn't make any mistakes."

"They did a better job," Grant said. "There is no question about it. We just couldn't overcome the fumble and two interceptions early in the game."

Sports FROM ALL ANGLES

By LARRY HOVEY

Times-News Sports Editor
Theories that a boy must be a stickout basketball player in high school to have any chance of proceeding farther are summarily destroyed by the case of Rick Sobers, College of Southern Idaho's fine freshman guard.

Sobers played only three games of high school basketball—all three as a freshman—but he didn't neglect his playground routine.

Sobers reports his high school playing career came to an end just after his third game. He and some others were caught in some high-jinks in the hallways and the jayvee coach kicked him off the team. Sobers declined to go out on his sophomore year since the same coach was handling the jayvees. As a junior, he transferred to DeWitt Clinton High School and in New York that means sitting out the full year regardless of the situation. (Idaho's rule covering that is two weeks residence by one or both parents or guardian).

"I wasn't interested in playing high school ball my senior year," Sobers says. "Mr. (Law) Schaffer told me not to worry that he would recommend me to a college someplace so I just didn't go out."

All of which supports the growing theory here that high school ball is merely a means of allowing a youngster to display what he learns on his own. Of course, we'll admit Sobers has special advantage provided by the Creator: He's 6-3, can jump with most 6-7 folks and is faster than 98 per cent of the 6-2 to 6-4 people in the world. And, let's not forget, he's got the shooting touch. Still, we'd bet he averaged four hours per day, winter and summer, playing on the asphalt somewhere.

Nominee for the "luckiest athlete of the year" could well go to... Erastus Jerome, engineer Roger Campbell, Campbell, who took a scholarship at Western Washington, sustained a knee injury in the opening minutes of his team's first game. The resulting lignment and cartilage damage required surgery Tuesday and he'll be recuperating for the next six weeks.

Western Washington is positioning its conference to save that year's eligibility for Campbell.

Sunday in a playoff game against the streaking Cleveland Browns.

Baltimore, the AFC's "wild card" team with the best second-place record, has been made a slight favorite despite its regular-season loss to Cleveland, the Browns' five straight victories, and an assertion by Cleveland quarterback Bill Nelsen that "we have something to prove."

"Our losing streak in the middle of the season convinced everybody that 'we weren't capable,' Nelsen said. "So now we have to prove a little differently."

The Browns turned their season around after a four-game losing streak, the longest in their history, and finished first in the AFC Central Division with a 9-5 record. Baltimore was 10-4 and second to Miami in the East.

A near-capacity crowd of 80,000 is expected for the game, which begins at 1 p.m. EST and will be nationally televised (NBC).

Until a week ago, the Colts seemed headed for the AFC's Eastern Division title and a first-round playoff game against Kansas City, but a final game, 21-17 upset loss to New England cost them first place and sent them here instead of to Kansas City.

Some cynics figured the Colts would have preferred it that way anyway, since Kansas City was considered the stronger opponent, but Coach Don McCafferty "dusted" the old cliché, "momentum," and said there was nothing pleasing about last week's defeat.

"You like to keep on winning," McCafferty said. "That's where you get your momentum. If we play like we did last Sunday, we're not gonna beat anybody."

The Browns beat the Colts 14-13 at Baltimore in the second game of the regular season but that game was so long ago neither side figures it means anything now.

"Both teams have forgotten even exactly what happened in the game, I'm sure," Nelsen said.

In 1968, Nelsen and the Browns also beat the Colts 30-20 during the regular season but Baltimore walloped Cleveland 34-0 in the playoffs on the way to its fateful date with Joe Namath in the Super Bowl.

Baltimore, whose four losses all were by a touchdown or less, hopes to have Norm Bulcheck back in its lineup after he missed last week's game because of a severely pulled hamstring muscle.

Bulcheck, who was injured in the Colts' 14-3 victory over Miami Dec. 11, led the team with 749 yards rushing and a 4.9 average.

If Bulcheck is not able to play, the Colts will start Tom Matte (607 yards) and rookie Don Nottingham (388), the next-to-last player chosen in last year's draft, as the backs.

Johnny Unitas, who rode the bench behind Earl Morrall early in the season as he recovered from an injury, finished the year with only three touchdown passes against eight interceptions—worst ratio of his career—but will make his sixth successive start at quarterback.

Unitas completed 92 of 178 passes for 942 yards during the season. Nelsen, on the other hand, completed 174 of 325 for the defense with getting the Browns into the playoffs.

"Defense wins football games nowadays," Nelsen said. "When they can play the way they did the last few weeks, and if I can keep the pressure off them by not turning the ball over too much, then we're capable of beating anyone."

Leroy Kelly (865 yards) and Bo Scott (600), whose combined for 19 touchdowns, will be in the Cleveland backfield.

Blues get 3rd coach of season

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—The St. Louis Blues made their second coaching change of the National Hockey League season Saturday when they replaced Bill McCrory with Al Arbour.

McCrory had been coach since Oct. 31, when he replaced Sid Abel, who had been coach for just 1 game. McCrory was offered a job in the Blues' organization, possibly Arbour's old job as assistant general manager, and was considering the offer.

McCrory started the season as coach of the Blues' farm club at Denver and had a 7-1 record before becoming coach at St. Louis. His record with the Blues, a team on which he was a player the past four seasons, was 7-14-4. The Blues were winless in their last eight games and had lost their last six.

Arbour, 39, who also played for the Blues, was also the Blues' coach for 50 games last season, and had a record of 21-15-14. In February of last season he returned to the ice as player and captain, and Scotty Bowman, now coach at Montreal, regained the coaching job.

Arbour became assistant general manager when Abel was hired as coach last May. Abel, now general manager, said, "Al has the experience, technique and the respect of the players to do a good job. We hope he will be our coach for a long time to come."

IN TROUBLE, Wendell's Kip Dennis (31) tries to unload a pass around the defensive entanglement of Jerome's Morris and an unidentified Tiger during play Thursday night. Morris slipped the ball out of bounds. Jerome won 54-40.

Jerome rips Wendell's press to collect 54-40 decision

JEROME — The Jerome Tigers feasted off the back end of Wendell's full-court press for the break-away points in the third quarter Thursday and coasted into a 54-40 non-conference victory.

Rockland outlasts Raft River

MALTA — The Rockland Bulldogs built up a six-point lead—with 40 seconds left Thursday night and outlasted the Raft River Trojans 52-51 in a game that was tied almost all the way. The Tigers took control of the backboards almost immediately—and behind the scoring of Randy Jobley and O'Toole jumped into a 16-5 lead. Fyke's bucket on the end of a fast break gave Jerome its biggest first-half lead at 18-7 and then both teams went cold in the second period.

Over the first five and one-half minutes, Wendell outscored Jerome 3-2 but finally in the closing seconds both teams hit a couple of time with Jerome leaving the floor with a 22-14 advantage.

In a game marred by innumerable turnovers, Jerome couldn't shake the Trojans during the first half but began pulling away immediately after Wendell went to his press. Both teams were hampered by poor shooting percentages through the first half with Wendell having the worst of it by 11 points until a zone defense completely bottled-up the Trojans.

Rockland managed an 18-12 lead late in the first period but Raft River came in immediately and from then on it saw-sawed until deep into the final quarter. Rockland made it 52-46 with just over 1:30 left and Raft River hit the next five points. The Trojans got the ball back with nine seconds remaining, but couldn't capitalize on the possession.

Raft River won the first game 47-45.

REACHING FOR EQUALITY

63-1 shot takes 'cap'

MIAMI (UPI)—French Corners, a 63-1 longshot, won the $30,800 Christmas Handicap at Tropical Park on Saturday by 1 1/2 lengths and filled some stockings with a $128,000 payoff.

The five-year old gelding completed the mile-and-70 yard test in 1:41 1/5.

The triumph, in addition to increasing French Corners' earnings for the year to $73,424, gave the faithful among the bettors a return of $128.00, $35.80 and $11.60. Handsome Kid paid $4.20 and Jet Hit, who finished 1 1/2 lengths back of Handsome Kid, showed up at $20.

Burley tops Declo wrestlers

DECLLO — The powerful Burley Bobcats defeated the Declo Hornets 41-10 in a dual wrestling match Thursday night.

Osterhout was pinned by Sandman; 167 pounds, Osterhout was pinned by Garrett; 185 pounds, K. Osterhout was decisioned by Beck, and heavyweight, T. Osterhout was decisioned by Jones.

North Carolina takes tourney

MADRID (UPI)—Fourth ranked North Carolina, led by the 15 points of Bobby Jones and George Karl, wound up the three-day Christmas tournament here Sunday undefeated as the tar heels turned real Madrid 83-77.

Redskins must fight letdown in 4th quarter

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—As coaches, George Allen and Dick Nolan are as different as they could be in philosophy but when their Washington Redskins and San Francisco 49ers meet in the NFL playoffs at Candlestick park Sunday fans will see two very similar teams in action.

Allen and Nolan regard themselves as defensive specialists, and that's as right as expected since both came up the ranks, so to speak, with defensive backgrounds. Nolan is a player for the New York Giants and Allen as defensive coach for George Halas at Chicago.

But there is the similarity between the two ends, although the Redskins and 49ers regard their respective defensive units as they key to success. Allen's coaching philosophy is to play with veterans because they make less mistakes. Nolan's idea is to blend veterans with youngsters but always be sure there is a young player ready to move in.

Naturally, Allen defends his philosophy, and Nolan thinks his is the right way to fame and riches. Since both are in the playoffs, you can't knock either approach, although Sunday's loser may have second thoughts.

The oddsmakers think the 49ers, who won the NFC west with a 9-5 record, will beat the 9-4-1 NFC east runnerup Redskins. So do a lot of other observers, simply because the San Francisco club probably is just a bit better on offense than Washington.

Also, these same observers believe Allen's old-hand defensive unit, called the "over the hill gang" will give ground in the late stages of Sunday's game. The Redskins have "lured" a bit in the fourth quarter season long and since this is the 21st game of the year for Allen's gang fatigue may set in even earlier.

Allen, of course, disagrees. "We aren't as old as some people think," he said. "Sure, we've given up a few points in the late stages of a few games, but so, too, have other younger teams. If I have my choice I'll go for the older, experienced player, especially on defense, every time."

Nolan thinks the way for his 49ers to beat the Redskins and go on to the NFC title game is to match Washington score for score in the early part of the game and then "blow them out" in the fourth quarter. "They start off fast and then they tail off after the intermission," Nolan said. His observation is backed by the statistics.

The Redskins have outscored the opposition 77-20 in the first quarter and 103-42 in the second, but in the third quarter they have been outscored 39-30 and in the fourth—the difference is even wider—83-60.

The 49ers also are a fast-starting club but they finish strong and their defensive unit seems to come on at the end rather than give ground. Offensively, it looks like an even match. The quarterbacks—John Brodie and Billy Kilmer—both are dropback passers who don't do anything fancy. Wide runners Larry Brown and Vic Washington are about even too. Brown has rushed for a little more than 900 yards while Washington has gone for a little more than 800. Ken Willard has an edge on Charlie Harraway for straightaway rushing.

U.S. in love with dingbat Edith Bunker

By VERNON SCOTT, UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The nation has fallen in love with a dingbat named Edith Bunker, the brittle-brained wife and mother of the top rated "All in the Family" television show — and so has Jean Stapleton.
 Miss Stapleton won the Emmy last year playing the foil to that eminent bigot Archie Bunker.
 Much as Jean loves the ineffectual Edith, she is fighting for her life.

"It's this way," Jean said, "I can't lose my own identity to Edith. Almost everywhere I go people expect me to sound and behave like Edith. Talk show hosts want me to appear in character."
 "If I resigned myself to becoming Edith in private life I might never be able to play another role convincingly for an audience."
 Jean, who is married to William Patch — producer-director of the Totem Pole Playhouse in Pennsylvania — enjoyed a distinguished career before "All in the Family." Among her hits are "Rhinoceros," "Funny Girl," "Come Back, Little Sheba," "Damn Yankees," and "Bells are Ringing."

 But it was dingbat Edith who brought her overwhelming recognition.
 "As a CBS executive said to me, 'This series isn't just a hit, it's an explosion,'" said Jean. She was sitting in her neatly furnished rented home in Westwood. Unlike Edith's house, everything was in place. "Edith is apathetic about housework," said Jean. "I've never known anyone exactly like her, but I've seen elements of Edith in many women."

 "She's guileless and innocent."

I'm sure she doesn't hear half a woman she is compassionate, the things Archie says to her. As independent and, not a bigot."

Idaho escapees caught at Nampa

setter, which also was in the vehicle, out of the car.

"They were going to take a vote on whether to let me out when they came across the police car."

A Meridian patrol car was approaching on the overpass over Interstate 80N — which leads to Nampa and the Oregon border — and the convict who was driving inadvertently turned into the officer's lane.

Meridian patrolman Larry E. Scarborough later told brother officers the convicts nearly hit him. When he saw they matched the description of the fugitives he tried unsuccessfully to ram them.

Then, Father Wilson said, the chase began.

With Scarborough in hot pursuit the convicts wheeled onto the Interstate and the driver floorboarded the vehicle toward Nampa.

"That police car changed the whole ball game," Father Wilson said, adding, "It was no fun going down the freeway at 110 miles an hour between two fleeing convicts."

"I was wondering if I was over going to see Kelly High again," he said.

The convicts decided to pull off the freeway and go into Nampa where they said they would abandon the car and split up. As they turned off at the first exit, however, a Nampa police car tried to ram them.

They dodged the prowler car and drove on into Nampa at high speed.

"I suggested to them that they stop as soon as they got to the overpass because the closest police car was about a block behind us," Father Wilson said. "I told them for a couple of seconds they would be out of view—and thanks be to God they split."

Officers managed at this point to grab Trujillo and Guzman. Below "got away." Authorities later reported a car stolen at Nampa. They believed Below took it and possibly headed for Oregon.

Trujillo and Guzman are to be arraigned in Boise Magistrate Court Monday on charges of kidnaping, grand larceny, felony escape, and assault with a deadly weapon. They are being held without bail in the Ada County Jail.

Father Wilson said the fugitives took his credit cards and $22 of the $27 he had in his wallet. He said he talked them into leaving him $5 to buy gas to get home — although he admitted later to UPI he had a full tank. He said they also returned his credit cards.

First place winner in TF yule-fighting contest

Rosemont display chosen contest winner

TWIN FALLS — Junior Walden, 924 Rosemont Drive, took top award in the annual Times-News and Idaho Power Co. Christmas lighting contest, it was announced Saturday.

Coming in second was Doug Hemingway, 566 Fillmore St., while Irene Meigs, 1410 Maple Avenue, was third and Dan S. Nielsen, 527 Folk was fourth. Honorable mentions went to Marian DeLuca, 120-Tenth-Avenue-North-and-D.W. Lambert, 244 Dubois.

Judges in the annual contest were Mrs. Vern (Lucille) Harmer, Mrs. Bill (Pat) Kahn and Mrs. Lloyd (Pat) Libert.

In making the announcement of the winners, Wes Coryell of the Idaho Power Co. and O.A. (Aus) Kelker of the Times-News, said judges took into consideration the fact high winds the evening of the judging tour could have had an effect on some of the displays. The judges also reported a number of outstanding displays in various sections of the city which were not entered in the contests.

As first award winner Walden will receive a check for $50. Second prize if $40, third is $25, fourth is $15 and the honorable mentions are worth $5 each, making a total of $150.

The checks will be mailed to the individuals this week.

Gooding school report slated

BOISE — The Idaho State Board of Education will consider a research report on the Gooding Deaf and Blind School during its January meeting in Boise.

The agenda includes a report from the Oregon College of Education during the Jan. 5-7 Board of Education meeting at the Office of Higher Education, 415 Idaho St., Boise.

Other items on the agenda include budget presentation; a "systems demonstration" by Dr. Frank Farmer; presentations by Idaho State University, Lewis-Clark State College, the University of Idaho and Boise State College.

The National Federation of the Blind will send a representative to confer with the board, and several teachers will discuss their requests for temporary emergency certification.

Man held following accident

TWIN FALLS — Sidney Joseph Brennan, 21, Twin Falls, was charged with being drunk on a public highway and obstructing an officer following reports of a one-car accident one and one half miles west of North Washington St., on the Pole Line Road about 9:40 p.m. Friday.

Officers said they received a call from James Reagan, who said a vehicle had been involved in an accident in front of his home on Pole Line Road and the driver left the scene.

Officers arrested Brennan walking along Pole Line Road, about a mile from the accident scene. Papers found at the scene carried the name of Brennan, officers said. Twin Falls County officers reported Brennan voiced threats and refused to cooperate when stopped. The vehicle appeared to have failed to negotiate a curve on the highway and skidded into the borrow pit, officers said.

Aiding Santa

SANTA'S HELPERS at the Twin Falls Fire Department have been busy repairing toys all summer with the help of the Good Will Club and the results — toys for needy children. Here Mrs. Clare Harkins, her husband, member of the fire department, Mimi and Tammy Harkins and Dean Jensen of the fire department from left, package gifts.

TF youth charged

TWIN FALLS — Harold Leiland Frazier, 19, Twin Falls, was charged with driving while intoxicated following an accident on the Shoshone Falls Road Friday night about 9:45 p.m.

Officers said his vehicle went out of control and tore out about 32 feet of fence and poles on property owned by O. K. Swenson. Damage to the vehicle owned by Bill Hughes, was estimated at $450. Chris Williams, 16, a passenger, suffered minor injuries.

Frazier was also charged with traveling too fast for road conditions.

Gooding youth fined

SHOSHONE — A gooding youth was fined $100 and sentenced to 60 days in the Lincoln County jail when he appeared before Magistrate C. M. Wilson.

Michael D. Daniels, 18, and a teen-age companion were apprehended in Shoshone last week and charged in connection with the theft of four tires from a vehicle.

Deputy Sheriff Bill Anderson said the teenager, a 16-year-old Twin Falls youth, was to have appeared in court Thursday. Anderson said the two were taken into custody while they were taking tires from a second vehicle owned by Mrs. Snow Coffin, Shoshone. Tires and wheels belonging to Herman Williams, Shoshone, were recovered during investigation.

Firemen brighten Yule for over 200 children

TWIN FALLS — More than 200 children in about 80 Twin Falls families had a brighter Christmas this year because of some special Santa's helpers from the Twin Falls Fire Department and Good Will Club.

Clare D. Harkins, of the fire department, took the supply of remodeled and refinished toys to his home this year for packaging because the department's sub station was in use. He solicited the help of his wife and interest of his two small children with members of the fire department dropping in to assist.

Toys were donated to the department during the year for repair and in some cases almost complete replacement.

Members of the Good Will Club, under the direction of Mrs. Lloyd F. Kelley, spent much of the past year making doll cloths, repairing broken dolls, curling their artificial hair and making them look like new. About 100 dolls were in the collection this year, all elaborately dressed and ready for their new "mothers."

The fire department annually participates in the community Christmas program to help needy families have food, clothing and toys at Christmas time.

Members of the department delivered the toys Friday with off-duty firemen using their personal vehicles for the project.

Tutors due in Heyburn aid plans

By DAVID ESPO Times-News Writer

HEYBURN — A new tutoring program in Heyburn, designed to "help school children with learning difficulties," hopes to be in full operation by early 1972.

Tom Bolton, a Vista volunteer for Cassia and Minidoka counties, is organizing the tutoring effort with the assistance of Minidoka school officials.

Boyd Earl, Heyburn elementary school principal, told the prospective tutors at a recent meeting he was "mighty grateful" for their concern for the county's school children.

"We need tutors more than we used to. People are so busy now," he told them.

The program is intended to provide assistance to about 10 elementary age children initially, according to Bolton, with hopes of a threefold expansion as soon as personnel can be located.

Only five prospective tutors turned out at the organizational meeting, though, and both Bolton and Earl acknowledge they need more workers if the program is to have the effect they want.

Hansen to visit Soviets

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Orval Hansen (R-Idaho) said Saturday he has been named to a Congressional delegation making a fact-finding visit to the Soviet Union this week during the Christmas adjournment period.

Hansen said he and six other members of his Select Education Subcommittee will arrive in Leningrad Tuesday to hold talks with officials of the Soviet Government and four educational institutions.

The group will visit English-language schools, technical institutes, universities, scientific research centers and educational television stations.

"We are also planning a meeting at the Institute for the Study of the U.S.A., the principal Soviet research center on American affairs," Hansen noted.

The delegation is scheduled to visit the cities of Leningrad, Moscow, Tashkent and Samarkand.

Hansen said he hopes to meet briefly with Soviet nuclear scientists involved in the breeder program, as well as those involved in fusion research. The Idaho Congressman is a member of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

Nixon calls top Briton

LONDON (UPI) — President Nixon telephoned Prime Minister Edward Heath from Washington Saturday to wish him a Merry Christmas, a government spokesman said.

The two leaders earlier this week met for two days of talks in Bermuda over Anglo-American relations and Britain's entry into the European Common Market.

Property tax deadline Monday

TWIN FALLS — Monday is the deadline for payment of personal property taxes for 1971, Ruth K. Jones, county treasurer, reminded county residents.

She said they must be paid in person at her office by 5 p.m. or by mail with a postmark no later than midnight.

Personal property taxes are levied on such items as mobile homes, improvements on leased lands, equities in state lands, farm and other machinery, tools, equipment, law libraries, furniture and fixtures.

A total personal property tax bill of $302,753.33 is expected to be collected by the deadline. Mrs. Jones said $184,000.51 had been collected as of Thursday evening, leaving $118,747.52 for the final day's collections.

State law provides payments not made by the Dec. 27 deadline require restraining warrants to be issued and turned over to the sheriff for collection.

Hazelton man found

JEROME — The body of a Hazelton man who had not been seen since Thanksgiving, has been found in his car north of Jerome.

Jerome County Sheriff James (Pat) Burns said Gene Race, 45, died of apparent suicide. He said the victim was found about 4:30 p.m. Thursday in a range area just south of the Jerome-Lincoln county line by two ranchers who were inspecting sheep grazing areas.

Burns said a hose had been run from the exhaust pipe of the car into the car. He said the victim's calendar watch had stopped on Nov. 31.

Outdoor sports

NO WHITE CHRISTMAS, but outdoor fun just the same for Kelley and Chad, who live near Eighth Avenue East and Ash St. They find the melted snow too wet for sledding, but just right for boating in flooded intersection.

Prisoners get usual Yule fare

TWIN FALLS — Traditional Christmas dinner, including turkey and trimmings, was set for prisoners at the Twin Falls County Jail yesterday.

Mrs. Paul Currier, wife of the sheriff and cook for the jail, said she prepared turkey, dressing, mashed potatoes and gravy, cranberry sauce and six large mince meat and pumpkin pies.

She started meal preparations Thursday for about 30 prisoners at the jail.

Irrigators organize

LABOR NEEDS for sprinkler irrigated farms will hopefully be filled through efforts of the Sprinkler Irrigators of Idaho, Inc., headed by Nell Weir, Hagerman, left; executive secretary, Lorene Mulder, and Vernon Clinton, right, head of the 20-80 Growers Association. Many farm owners are forced to use illegal aliens to do the work as other migrant and area workers will not accept this type of work, the farmers say.

Minidoka-farmers face 10-per cent fund cut

RUPERT.—Minidoka County farmers face a 10 per cent cut back in federal Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service funds, according to Leo Van Every, ASCS county official.

Van Every made the announcement to a group of county farmers meeting to adopt a list of programs to qualify for Rural Environmental Assistance Program funds. REAP, the successor to Agricultural figure for this year has been cut back to nearly $40,000.

Conservation Program, places its major emphasis on "preventing or abating environmental pollution."

Food firms twist movement

By WILLIAM B. MEAD. WASHINGTON (UPI)—The macaroni and citrus fruit industries have demonstrated how the consumer movement can be used to make corporate aims look like public service goals.

As a result, macaroni and orange juice manufacturers are embroiled in regulatory wrangles before the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), with the Consumer Federation of America (CFA) as an ally.

The macaroni story dates back two years, when the White House Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health urged that a protein-rich macaroni be developed.

General Foods Corp. came up with one containing double or quadruple the protein of standard macaroni. The product contains 30 per cent wheat, 30 per cent defatted soy flour and 40 per cent corn flour.

Macaroni, however, has an FDA "standard of identity," meaning that any product labeled "macaroni" must conform to a mandated recipe. The macaroni standard dictates mostly durum wheat, and no corn.

Citing the White House conference recommendation, General Foods petitioned the FDA for permission to call its product "golden elbow macaroni."

The macaroni makers ride in wrath. "Macaroni made from wheat and water has been called macaroni for 600 years, and we want to keep it that way," said Robert M. Green, executive secretary of the National Macaroni Manufacturers Association in Chicago. The association filed in opposition to General Foods' proposal.

Analysis. The citrus industry reached tentative agreement with the FDA last summer on labeling rules that would divide orange drinks into four categories according to juice content—less than 10 per cent, between 10 and 35 per cent, between 35 and 70 per cent, and 70 per cent or more.

If anything, the citrus industry has been even more adroit. For seven years, the FDA has been seeking labeling rules for diluted orange juice beverages, often called "orange blend," "orange juice drink" or "orange cocktail."

The citrus industry reached tentative agreement with the FDA last summer on labeling rules that would divide orange drinks into four categories according to juice content—less than 10 per cent, between 10 and 35 per cent, between 35 and 70 per cent, and 70 per cent or more.

But the citrus growers and the packers of pure orange juice saw an opportunity for even tougher labeling rules that would enhance their sales by making diluted and artificial orange drinks look bad. They petitioned the FDA to require that all diluted orange drinks be labeled, "diluted orange juice drink," with the percentage of juice content displayed in big letters.

Egg production up

BOISE — Egg production in Idaho during November totaled 17 million eggs, one million more than November, 1970, according to the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The average number of layers on hand during November, 921,000 was one per cent more than last year. The monthly rate of lay was 1,845 eggs per 100 layers.

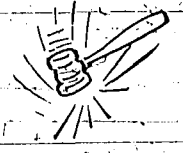

The nation's laying flock produced 5,017 million eggs during November, 2 per cent more than a year earlier, according to the crop reporting board. The number of layers averaged 326.7 million, one per cent below a year earlier.

which was down four per cent. Layers on hand Dec. 1 totaled 328.4 million, down 1 per cent from Dec. 1, 1970, but up 1 per cent from Nov. 1.

Rate of lay on Dec. 1 averaged 90.6 eggs per 100 layers, up 3 per cent from a year earlier and 1 per cent above Nov. 2, 1971. Year to year increases occurred in all regions except the west north central which declined 1 per cent.

On Dec. 1, pullets 3 months old and older, not of laying age, totaled 52.3 million, up 4 per cent from Dec. 1, 1970. Potential layers (hens and pullets of laying age plus pullets 3 months old and older not of laying age) totaled 380.7 million, only slightly below the same date a year earlier.

Spud promotion plans approved

BOISE — Advertising layouts and copy for spot-market promotion of stamped potatoes have been approved by the Idaho Potato Commission, according to Jack Allred, commission chairman.

The advertising agencies recommended newspaper advertising to announce the availability of branded potatoes and to inform the housewife that she can now be sure of getting potatoes grown in the state of Idaho.

At least two potato branding machines are now in operation in the state with others being manufactured and scheduled to be installed shippers' warehouses before the end of the current marketing season.

Advertising in major cities will be scheduled when the commission determines that sufficient supplies of stamped Idaho potatoes are available to make the program meaningful to the grocer and the consumer.

The Idaho potato stamping program is the result of long planning and trials of different machines, methods and stamping media over a period of 15 years. Industry emphasis has brought the program to the brink of reality and made possible the advertising of identified spuds, Allred said.

TF livestock

Barrels get new use

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—One of the biggest upheavals in American distilling since the whisky rebellion and prohibition is taking place in used barrels in the heart of the bourbon country.
 Bourbon distilleries, long restricted to aging their product in new white oak barrels by federal law, have received permission to distill "light" whiskeys in their own cooperage. Several of the light whiskeys will be on the market early next year. But one already has made quite a splash.
 The first to appear on the marketplace in time for the holiday season is Brown-Forman's "Frost 60." The old-line Louisville distillery survived a court suit to get its product on the market first. This new product is aged in used bourbon barrels with a different wash than is used to create bourbon. It leaves the barrel with a light amber color, unlike robust hue of regular bourbon.

 After eight different distilling processes—three of them involving filtration—and a cut from high proof to 80 proof, Frost is ready for the bottle and a new type of American consumer.
 In taste, it is unlike anything on the marketplace today, although it resembles bourbon despite a crystal-clear appearance. One of its advantages—a local bartender called it a "bar a bottle"—is that it is a catalyst for a host of mixed drinks. Unlike bourbon, it can be used for Martinis, Daiquiris, Bloody Marys and other popular concoctions.

 The import in liquor sales surprised even veteran distillery executives. Roger Coleman, Brown-Forman's senior vice president for sales, said, "while Frost is not technically a light whiskey it is Brown-Forman's entry into the field of light whiskeys."

Nixon hails pact

LONDON (UPI)—President Nixon has hailed the Washington agreement to rebuild the free world's money system as "historic."
 Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, Anthony Barber, called it "realistic."
 Yet already there is talk in London that the British pound—falling only a few years ago but now among the world's strongest currencies—may be in trouble again in a year, or so.
 Under the Washington package deal, Britain topped the pound's value against the dollar by 8.6 per cent to a new $2.60 parity.

over from the 1967 devaluation. But Barber has found himself in trouble pressing this argument.
 Instead of its previous chronic international payments deficits, Britain is expected to show a surplus of more than one billion pounds ($2.8 billion) this year.
 It has been hard for Barber to plead poverty. Yet inflation in Britain is running at a 10-per-cent annual clip—highest in almost any Western country.

Sugar firm board votes dividends

SALT LAKE CITY — A regular quarterly dividend of 20 cents per share on common stock was declared Thursday by directors of Utah-Idaho Sugar Co.
 Rowland M. Cannon, president and chief executive officer, said the dividend on the firm's 2.32 million shares of common stock outstanding would be payable Jan. 31, 1972, to stockholders of record at the close of business on Jan. 6, 1972.
 Cannon said the board also authorized payment of 3 1/2 cents per share on the sugar company's 100,000 shares of Class A preferred stock.
 Utah-Idaho Sugar Co. is a major processor of beet sugar and also is engaged in the development and operation of diversified farming activities. Factories are located at Moses Lake and Toppenish, Wash., Idaho Falls, and Garland, Utah.

Firm names supervisor

BOISE — Ronald J. Way, Boise, has been named field supervisor for Red Steer Drive Inns in the Pocatello, Twin Falls, Mountain Home and Boise area, according to Grover Hawkins, company president.
 He will be responsible for training unit managers, operating personnel and maintaining required food standards in each of the drive inns, Hawkins said.

Idaho firm buys irrigation unit

BOISE — Sale of Ames Irrigation Service to Opel, Inc. of Boise, has been announced by the Rucker Co., a manufacturer of technical products and control systems and parent company of the irrigation firm.
 Opel will operate the acquired distribution branches under the name of Ames Irrigation Service at existing locations in California, Idaho and Washington. The distribution organization presently supplies the western agricultural market with irrigation equipment and systems.
 Opel Inc., a manufacturer of numerous agricultural components and equipment. The firm operated manufacturing facilities in Boise until its recent move to California.
 Opel Inc., announced that, at the present time, no managerial or personnel changes are contemplated. Ames Irrigation Service will continue to provide the same high level of service through adequate stocking and top caliber equipment. Idaho offices are located in Idaho Falls, Nampa, Twin Falls and Ashton.

Mind Your Money

BY PETER WEAVER
 "All aboard!"
 How long has it been since you've heard that familiar cry? Many, especially today's children, have never heard it. Spotted around the dwindling number of passenger terminals, however, there are a few outstanding trains that can still be heard.
 "They're trying to make a comeback, not as slick and quick transportation to compete with airline jets, but as luxurious land cruisers. A good train ride, complete with sleeping berth, dining car and club car convenience, can be a mini-vacation in itself.
 Unfortunately, really good trains are as scarce as dinosaur eggs — you have to hunt them out. Here are a few finds:
 FLORIDA SPECIAL: Running down the East Coast from New York to Florida, this train's splendid passenger pomp-pomping harkens back to the likes of Diamond Jim Brady and railroading's golden age.
 A sleeper from New York to Miami (or reverse) costs $112. "Stretch-out" coach seats cost $59. Fares are less as you pick up the train further down the line from the main terminal.
 Included in all prices are free champagne with dinner, fashion shows and first-run movies.
 SUPER CHIEF: The Santa Fe is one of the last of the big spenders as far as railroad passengers are concerned. On the Super Chief, which runs back and forth between Chicago and Los Angeles, you get outstanding food and miles of western scenery.
 Santa Fe also offers "train cruises" to New Mexico where you visit Indian villages, ranches and bask in Southwestern sun and hospitality. The price is $103 for a five-day cruise, $250 for seven days (meals, hotels included).
 AUTO-TRAIN: Starting this month, you can load your car and family onto a special Florida train which ends up at a terminal near Disney World. Your automobile is loaded onto a bi-level, enclosed railroad car at Lorton, Va., (near Washington, D.C.) and, as a passenger, you get a choice of coach or sleeper.

 One-way fare of $100 covers your car and four passengers. Bedrooms for two cost $40 extra and additional passengers cost $15 each. Extras include dinner, breakfast and movies during the 15-hour, overnight ride. There's even a "nightclub" bar.
 For more information, you can write: Auto-Train; 1801 K. St. N.W.; Washington, D. C. 20006
 AMTRAK: With the exception of Auto-Train, most passenger train service is now in the hands of Amtrak, a quasi-government company. Amtrak has agents in 340 cities and will offer a series of railroad tours for 1972.
 For example, on trips to Florida from East Coast or Midwestern terminals, plans are in the works to offer a rental car for one week at no charge (you buy the gasoline) if you purchase a minimum of two and a half fares (parents and one child).
 This will apparently be offered to compete with Auto-Train and is aimed at families who want to visit Disney World and then tour the rest of Florida by car.
 Amtrak is running a special train, The Floridian, from Chicago to Miami through the "horse country" of Kentucky and Tennessee (two nights and a day). There's also the Panama Limited from Chicago to New Orleans which is expected to get heavy booking during Mardi gras. Out West, the Daylight train, running between Oakland and Los Angeles offer outstanding coastal scenery.

POINSETTIA (S) Care: We want to talk about poinsettia care and scare.
 ...This plant has gained a reputation as a highly toxic and deadly plant. It is true that the latex in the plant has been deemed poisonous to cattle, horses and humans, and will cause dermatitis.
 ...Over three million plants are sold each year and we can't do away with them simply because they are toxic. Our best advice is: teach your children to stay away from them, just as you do furniture polish, bleaches and waxes.
 ...We are surrounded with countless poisonous plants but that doesn't mean we should eliminate them. Take for example, the rhododendron and azalea. Many or probably all of them contain a deadly poison, andromedotoxin. Primitive peoples were aware of the poisonous qualities and used the leaves to paralyze fish.
 ...In 401 B.C., the Greek military leader Xenophon nearly came to grief when his army became ill from eating honey produced from the nectar of rhododendron. Pompey in 67 B.C. met defeat against Mithridates because his soldiers became incapacitated to the same manner.
 ...Still worried about poisonous plants? Don't because if we took away all the poisonous plants you'd miss them, just as you'd miss the bleach, the rubbing alcohol (the other kind, too), the furniture polish and other toxic preparations lurking in our homes.
COLEUS AND DAYPLANTS:
 Why is it when you bring these plants indoors, the leaves drop (after turning brown) and before long the entire stems are naked?
 ...It's due to the shock these plants are subjected to. In the first place, the air is too hot and dry. This is a shock after the plants have been outdoors all summer and fall.
 ...Suggestion: Take tip cuttings and root them in plain tap water. These will grow into handsome plants and will not lose their foliage. Most home gardeners who try to grow the large parent plants indoors are disappointed.

WHITE FLIES ON HOUSE PLANTS:
 Recently we mentioned that the white fly is a tough pest to control. Here's a tip passed to us:
 "When I bring our plants in from outside, or take slips in the fall, I put the plants in an unused room. Then I hang one of the Vapona bug strips near the plants. No more white flies, none whatever. It even kills mealy bugs and aphids."
NOTE: This probably works fine in an unused room, but it's good to mention that these strips should not be used near food or in closed rooms where humans are.
FORCING DAFFODILS:
 Ever wonder why you can plant bulbs of paperwhite narcissus in a bowl of pebbles and have them blossom without any cold treatment? Here's the reason why:
 Paperwhite narcissus belongs to a different class of daffodils than the regular ones, and are known as Tazettas. They are natives of the warm Mediterranean. They are grown outdoors in mild climates of Florida, the Gulf Coast and the Pacific Coast. Since they are mild climate plants, the cold dormancy necessary for most narcissus is not required.

 So, put some bulbs in a pot of pebbles, soil or water. Place enough water in bowl so about the lower half of bulbs will be covered. Place bulbs in window, or you can place in a dark closet until root growth is fairly well developed. After about two weeks the plants should be in full light.
NOTE: During the first few weeks, keep temperature around 60 degrees. If too high, growth will be tall, weak and flowering poor. Tall growth will need stakes for support. Discard bulbs after forcing. Paperwhites will not survive the winters if planted outdoors.
QUESTION OF THE WEEK:
D. R., Twin Falls:
 "May I tell you how we make our compost pile? I dig a trench in my garden, about five feet across and about 50 feet long. Then I take our leaves in fall, and pack them in the trench, pack them down solid. Then I take the dirt I throw out and cover the leaves, so there's a high mound of ground. By spring this will level off to the same level as my garden. I find by June the next year the leaves are all gone — rotted into the soil."
 Good idea, but I hope this job was done by a tractor. No need for digging a trench to get composted material. Just pile the leaves inside a blind made of cement blocks. Add clippings, table scraps, byproducts of pets, and within six or eight months, the material will be broken down to the point where it can be spread on the garden. Your idea is a good one but doesn't it bury a lot of back work?
 B. K. of Burley: "Please tell me how to grow a glloxinia? No matter how careful I am, I can't keep them alive. Do they have some sort of disease?"
 I think one of the big secrets of growing glloxinias is that the soil must be loose and humusy. Some commercial growers use a mixture of half leaf mold mixed with some sand.
 Glloxinias do not like large pots. Watering these plants can be tricky, and one reason for their dying off. Never moisten the woody foliage, as this may cause burn spots and rot. Glloxinias like a constantly moistened soil. Allowing the plants to go dry is apt to harm the tubers.
 Best temperature for glloxinias is around 65 to 70 degrees. They like a lot of light, but will not stand direct or burning sun. Too little light will cause them to grow spindly, or lots of foliage, but few or no flowers.

BLM promotes aide
 Boise — The appointment of Nolan F. Kell as assistant director for resources of the Department of Interior's Bureau of Land Management has been announced by BLM Director Burton W. Silcock.
 Kell has served as lands and minerals staff officer in the BLM Idaho office as well as being the land office manager in the slate office. He has also served the BLM in other posts.

When North ran to six diamonds, the Unlucky Expert did not have to double. He certainly could have passed and left things to his partner. Our old friend the Unlucky Expert had us cornered again.

He sat East and the bidding had gone as shown in the box. West had opened the king of spades. South trumped, cashed dummy's ace and queen of trumps, ruffed back to his hand with the last spade, drew trumps and eventually played West for three hearts to the queen to wind-up making his doubled slam.

The Unlucky Expert told us in several thousand, unhappy words how his partner should have passed the five-spade double. He pointed out that greed was a terrible

Death taboo topic in U.S.

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI)—What is the one experience that all people share against their will?

Death. But death remains a taboo subject, even among doctors. "It's easier to get people to talk about sex than about death," says Dr. Robert Janes, chief resident in psychiatry at Stanford University Hospital.

"Taboos on sex have fallen away, but to get people in general to talk about death is almost impossible."

Dr. Janes, 31, has found that patients dying in the hospital are often isolated by doctors, nurses, family and friends. Just when the dying desperately need to share their feelings, they are often moved to private rooms, with visiting privileges curtailed.

Doctors tell themselves they've "done all they can" for the dying patient, while family and friends rationalize that they "don't want to upset him" or that "he's too sick for visitors."

Actually, Dr. Janes explains, the physician is suffering a keen sense of professional defeat in the death of a patient. Family and friends are brought face to face with their own eventual end in the presence of death, he says.

To cope with these natural reactions and to give dying patients the moral support they need, Dr. Janes hopes to set up a seminar at Stanford Hospital to help doctors deal with the dying.

"Only a handful of medical schools in this country now have such a program," he says. "We would be teaching young doctors what psychology and psychiatry know about the problems of seriously ill and dying patients of all ages."

Theme of the proposed Stanford seminar would be listening when the dying patient wants to talk.

"People worry about not knowing what to say to the patient," Dr. Janes says. "But you don't have to say anything. Just be there."

When the patient asks directly about his illness or shows anxiety, the physician should be available to answer questions honestly without evading real issues.

Dr. Janes notes that many patients are not afraid of death itself, but of such things as pain, being helpless or of losing their children or ending their careers. Family and friends should be "receptive, interested and evocative" in discussing these concerns when the patient is ready, he says.

He stresses that visitors should take their cues from the patient and allow him to voice his fears when he feels able to do so.

Some dying patients become "models of courage and tenacity" for others in the hospital and should remain with other patients as long as possible, Dr. Janes says.

He feels that most people can adjust to the fact that their death is imminent and that this should not be kept from them.

The needs of dying patients have come into sharp focus as the setting of death has changed in this country. For the 2 million persons who will die in the United States this year, less than one-third will die outside a hospital.

"Fifty years ago people died at home where they couldn't be isolated, and people couldn't withdraw," Dr. Janes says. "Now they die at the hospital, which is an intimidating place."

"We must recognize death as an experience of life which demands its own kind of resolution," he says.

Boston first

CHICAGO (UPI)—Boston can claim a pioneering role in the interest of good taste—the kind that involves food.

The first incorporated cooking school in America, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, was organized in 1870 by the Women's Education Association of Boston.

The Boston Normal School of Cookery, the first in the east for training teachers in this subject, was founded in 1887.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—When you have so many records and do not know what to do with them, cut slots in the sides of old shoe boxes and put the records in the slots.—SUE © 1971 by NEA, Inc.

DEAR POLLY—When in a hurry and you'd like to bathe a small child and another a bit larger at the same time, but don't want to put them in the same water, put the smaller child's tub filled with water in the big tub. Then, fill the big tub with the required amount of water. There'll be room enough for the larger child to take his bath at the same time.—EVELYN

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—Never throw away old window shades. They make great drop cloths to catch drops as you paint. The shades stay flat, do not tear, and after use they can be rolled up for easy storage.—V. F.

DEAR POLLY—Our son, 4, sleeps on the lower level of his bunk bed. I put calendars or magazine pictures on the bottom of the upper bunk, so he can look up and see something more interesting than bedding. Animal pictures or even family photos could be put there—just be sure they are restful subjects.—CAROL

DEAR POLLY—When we moved into a new apartment I found I could not move my bed on the carpet. I put a magazine under each leg of the bed, and it moves much more easily.—MRS. V. M.

DEAR POLLY—When painting models or any small things it is easier to do a good job if the item is placed on a lazy Susan that has been well covered with paper. It can be turned without getting paint on yourself.—ERIC

DEAR POLLY—The new knit clothes are beautiful and comfortable, but they snag very easily—especially if you have a kitten. Never cut off a snagged thread, or it may run. Instead, poke the smallest-size crochet hook through the material from the underside, catch the loose thread and pull it through the cloth. This does not show, and the fabric will not run.—VIVIAN

DEAR POLLY—I find it a timesaver to keep an old nylon stocking near my bathroom sink. Sprinkle the sink with cleanser, and cleaning the sink and fixtures is a snap. Hang up after using, and the stocking dries quickly.—MISS MARY D.

DEAR POLLY—Those who do oil painting and find it difficult to stir the paint in its small container will find it less messy and easier to use a toothpick.—ANNA

Fruit Potholders
Large-size fruit potholders in easy crochet add a colorful touch to the kitchen. Pattern No. 5075 has full directions for strawberry and pineapple holders.

HUNGRY!

YOU WILL MAKE THE CALL, SI? THE KEVIN MARLINS?

OH, MY, YES!

WHAT A HUGE, DEAR, PERSON! BUT NO ONE WILL EVER BELIEVE THIS WHEN I TELL IT!

WHAT WAS THAT CALL? FROM THIS END IT SOUNDED WEIRD.

IT WAS WEIRD, SOME GAL, HALF-HYSTICAL, WAS JABBERING SOMETHING ABOUT A MONSTER WHO HAD SAVED HER BOBBY.

MY ESP TELLS ME THAT PEDRO IS INVOLVED--AND NEAR.

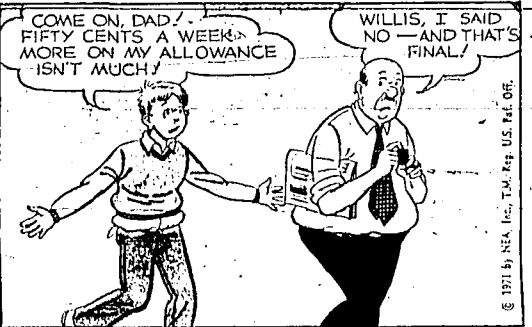

HE IS NEAR, AS I CAN HEAR HIM BELLOWING AND GUESS WHAT?

HE'S "HUNGRY!"

FOR ROSS HUNTER, movie producer
I have often read that "movies are a director's medium." Do you agree?—L. L. Smith, Chicago, Ill.

● It's a lot of hokey that movies are a director's medium. Directors come along after the fact. It's the producer who finds the story and buys it. He raises the money to finance the picture. He hires the writers and actors, and it's he who selects the director. Recently some producers have also taken over the creativity. They have made a friend of a star and found a story some place. They take the package to a distributor, then attempt to make a movie. The director means little. And as for the actors—there isn't a star in the world today who can guarantee a return at the box office. Not one.

FOR ROBERT YOUNG

Is there any chance you'll decide not to play Marcus Welby after this season?—Mrs. Joseph Weber, Kingston, N.Y.

● I'll continue working the Marcus Welby series as long as the show stays on the air. If I weren't working, I'd be a vegetable. This is both my vocation and my avocation, and I'm paid frightening sums of money for doing it. It's a most delightful situation.

FOR ARTHUR HAILEY, author

In your new book "Wheels" you talk about marijuana being used by workers in the automobile industry. Where did you get your information?—Walter E. Dillon, Washington, D.C.

● From many sources, including high-level management. There was too much consistency in all the reports not to believe it. Management seems to accept it, provided it doesn't interfere with efficiency. The same with drinking on the job. You see empty beer cans around the plants.

FOR REP. SHIRLEY CHISHOLM, New York City

Do you get more mail for or against sexual equality? Have you ever known a happily married woman to be interested in Women's Lib?—A. S. Johnson, Flint, Mich.

● My mail seems about 500 to 1 in favor of equality for women. It has been my experience that being happily married has little to do with a woman's interest in the women's rights movement. The majority of the issues the women are concerned about involve situations outside the home.

FOR LANA WOOD, actress and sister of Natalie Wood

I understand you're about to be married. Is it your first? How old are you?—W. Smith, Lansing, Mich.

● It's my fourth, and I'm 25. Most divorcees my age in Hollywood have an anti-Establishment philosophy against marriage. Obviously, I don't. Each time I marry, it's a commitment for life.

FOR YUL BRYNNER

My friend and I have an argument about your hair. She says you are bald; I say you shave your head. Who is right?—N. Jones, San Diego, Calif.

● You are. When I was doing "The King and I," Irene Sharaff, who was the costume designer, finished all the costumes, then looked me over and said, "Something is missing." My head was wrong. She asked me whether I would be willing to shave off my hair, and I said yes. I liked the result, found it a comfortable way to wear it and have kept it that way ever since.

FOR KATHY WHITWORTH, leading moneymaker in women's professional golf

There has been talk to the effect that the women's Lib Movement has helped the women's pro-golfers. Agree?—William M. Connelly, North Haven, Conn.

● Although I don't buy everything about Women's Lib, it has helped us. It's put more of a spotlight on women. Also, women golfers don't seem like such freaks any more. Golfing has become just as acceptable a career for women as designing or journalism.

FOR GEORGE KENNEDY, star of "Sarge"

Do you feel your role as a priest will affect your private life?—Linda Wiseman, Lancaster, N.Y.

● I'm afraid that some time I'll be in a bar somewhere getting smashed, and some little old lady will shake her finger and shout at me for behaving in an un priestly manner. Who needs that kind of identity?

FOR O. J. SIMPSON, football star

Some writers have been reporting that you will play out your option with the Buffalo Bills so that you will be free to sign with a team in your native California. True?—Randy White, Grand Island, N. Y.

● I wonder how they figure that's possible when my contract runs through next season, and I'm bound by the option clause for 1973 as well. It beats me how these rumors get started.

FOR HAROLD S. MOHLER, president of the Hershey Co.

For years the Hershey Co. did not advertise its product. Were you forced to take the step by competitors?—Mrs. E. Salay, Hoebling, N.J.

● Not exactly. We believe that products manufactured by our company, whether under the Hershey or Reese label, will benefit from the use of advertising because today young people—who are the big candy eaters—are exposed to and influenced by advertising to a greater extent than ever before. Also, most outlets through which candy is sold today are of the self-service type. We think advertising can help us influence consumers before they get to the self-service shelf by reflecting our company's image.

Judy decided to give her brother's heart away—

The Greatest Gift—One Human

■ As Betty Anick was lifted into an ambulance in front of her small, gray house in a Milwaukee suburb three years ago, she looked back. "My father built that house," she remembers now. "I grew up in it and raised my own children in it. That house was home to me . . . and I knew I would never see it again. I knew I was dying."

■ When Judy Rigden answered the phone that October night three years ago, she was told that her brother lay dying of irreversible brain damage after a street scuffle. "At the hospital, they told me they were keeping him alive with an artificial breathing machine," she remembers. "They said I should go close to the bed and shout his name. I yelled, 'Bobby, Bobby,' but he never woke up."

Heart And Its Two Owners

By Charles and Bonnie Remsberg

"When they told me we might have a heart donor, I couldn't believe it," Betty Anick says. "It was like a bomb thrown into our family. The priest came to give me the stick vial of our church, and I asked him whether he was sure the transplant was all right with our religion. I felt so bad to think that someone had to die so that I might live. The priest told me not to worry, that the Man Upstairs decides these things."

Judy Rigiden recalls that doctors first asked her for permission to transplant one of her brother's kidneys to a young girl patient. "I said, 'Yes,' right away because I knew that he would have given her the kidney even if he was going to recover. That's the kind of man he was."

"Then they said, 'Would you donate his heart to a woman who is dying? I put my hand over my mouth and said, 'Oh, no.' Then, out in the hospital corridor, my husband Eddie put his arms around me. 'Why not give her the heart?' he said."

"When they told me the donor's sister wanted to meet me, I was frantic. I didn't know what to say," Betty says. "My doctor said, 'Don't worry. The right words will come.'"

"I wanted to see her for myself before I gave the permission," Judy remembers. "I wanted to be sure she was a real person, not just an experiment. They told me she was a wife and mother, but I wanted to meet her, to see for myself."

"When Judy walked into my room, she looked as though she had been crying her eyes out," says Betty. "She took my hand, and I just said, 'God bless you.'"

On October 21, 1968, 49-year-old Betty Anick, who had suffered for more than 10 years with progressive heart failure, became the first Midwest woman recipient of a heart transplant. Since then, controversy has swirled around the surgical procedure. Recently, heart transplants have come in for tremendous criticism, in both medical and lay circles. Critics charge that surgeons have performed too many, too soon. Stories of agonized suffering throughout the tortured last few months of heart recipients' lives have given something of a "bad name" to the operation that seemed once to offer so much hope.

Of 176 persons who have received new hearts since 1968, only 25 are still alive. Yet, as Betty Anick, who recently celebrated the third anniversary of her transplanted heart, puts it, "Sure I'm living on borrowed time, but then, so is everybody. And I've had three years with my family that I wouldn't have had. My cup runneth over."

Although she agrees that some heart transplants were done too hastily and that a long hard look needs to be taken at all the procedures connected with the surgery, Betty Anick, who went off to the hospital to die three years ago, now bowls, swims, golfs, cleans her house, plays with her grandchildren, cooks for company and savors the love of her husband because the healthy heart of 30-year-old Robert Buelow was transplanted into her body.

Because of the unusual success of Mrs. Anick's surgery, attributed by most observers to the amazingly close tissue match between donor and recipient, her case offers science a unique opportunity to study the psychological as well as physical after-effects of heart transplants.

Of these after-effects, one of the most intriguing to those who know her is the affectionate bond she has developed with Judy Rigiden, sister of the donor. "I call her my little sister, now," Betty says. "If it hadn't been for Judy's 'yes,' I wouldn't be here today."

Paint-factory worker Robert

Buelow was a big, healthy man, six-foot-four, 225 pounds. He and his older sister Judy were close, "so very close," she says. They had shared an unhappy childhood, had been deserted by their mother, and Judy had always looked out for Bobby in addition to mothering her own daughters, ages 14, 12, 10, nine and two. A bachelor, Bobby lived with the Rigidens, paying especial attention to his young nieces. "He would bring home Swiss cheese and potato chips, and they'd sit around snacking and watching television," Judy says.

He spent many of his evenings with girl friends, others in bars. There were occasional all-night dice games from which he would bring his sister beautiful ornamental bottles and other prizes. "Everybody liked Bobby," Judy recalls. "He was the kind of guy who was always ready to help somebody."

At two a.m. on October 20, 1968, Buelow's car was stopped at an intersection by several teenagers playing a prank. As police reconstructed the incident, Buelow climbed out to ask the young men to get out of the way. One of the teen-agers interpreted his movements as threatening, and threw a punch that knocked Buelow to the pavement, where his head struck the curb.

"They know right away at the hospital that the brain damage was irreparable," Judy says. "There was simply no way he could recover." He died the next day.

A young man came up to Judy at the funeral, after she had made an agonized and highly publicized decision to give the heart to Betty Anick. He introduced himself as a friend of Robert's and recalled an evening they had spent together discussing the subject of organ transplants, then in the news. "When I die," the man quoted Bob as saying, "my sister can give away everything from the top of my head to my toes."

Each Memorial Day and each October 21, Judy and Betty go to the cemetery to decorate Bobby's grave. Together, they lay a big spray of flowers on a stone which reads, "Robert Buelow... Wisconsin's First Heart-Donor." "I had that put on the stone," Judy says, "because I figured seeing it there might encourage somebody else."

Mrs. John Anick had already been a semi-invalid for 10 years when she suffered her first coronary embolism. "I used to go to sleep wondering, 'Will this be the night? Will I wake up tomorrow?'" she remembers. "I had so much to live for. A wonderful husband, two marvelous sons and six grandchildren. I knew I was dying, but I wasn't ready."

She gave her prized white poodle to her mother, visiting from Florida, "because I wanted Pamper to have a good home after I was gone." Betty marvels at her mother who, throughout that immensely trying period, never cried in front of her. "I don't know how she did it," she says. "Imagine what it must be like to know your child is dying!"

Her husband, too, she says, displayed monumental courage. John Anick, a factory maintenance worker, is himself a heart-patient pioneer. Doctors recently installed his ninth pacemaker, a device that changes the heart with periodic bursts of electrical energy. It was he who suggested to the doctors at Milwaukee's St. Luke's Hospital Cardiac Research Center that they perform a transplant on his wife. "Oh, there were many tears shed that day, I can tell you," Betty says.

For five weeks, Betty waited at St. Luke's for an appropriate donor. No possible donations were refused by the donors' families, and two other donors had unmatching tissue types. When Robert Buelow's heart became available, Betty was quickly readied for the six-hour operation, performed by Dr. Durward Lepley.

Doctors agree that the factor that spelled success for Betty Anick's operation was the closely matched tissue type she shared with the donor. "They told me we might have been twins, so close was the match," she says.

On Betty's first day out of intensive care after surgery, she had a visitor. Judy Rigiden walked into the room and burst into tears. "They were tears of joy," Judy says. "When I saw her before the operation, she looked so bad I didn't think she could possibly make it."

"I knew I'd make it," Betty says. "The day after that first Christmas, I sent my husband out to buy some decorations marked down to half price. I knew I'd be around the next year to enjoy them."

Today Betty spends much of her time visiting cardiac patients at St. Luke's. "You should follow her around that hospital," Judy says. "The people are scared. They're afraid they're dying. She walks in and the place bursts with sunshine."

Although she has grown close to Judy and the Rigiden family, Betty is anxious that people not think she has mysteriously taken on Robert Buelow's life or personality because she carries his heart. "This is Betty," she says, tapping her chest. "I'm Betty. I tell my children we've lived to see a miracle." □

For the first time ... the expert who teaches DOCTORS how to CURE with HYPNOTISM helps YOU unleash explosive powers you've kept "chained up" since babyhood!

Are You Ready To Use SELF-HYPNOTISM To Make Life Give YOU What You Want!

Now, at last, the world-famous expert who teaches doctors and psychiatrists MEDICAL HYPNOSIS has prepared the master work of his life on SELF HYPNOTISM

The Ins and Outs Of Naming Your Baby

What's in a name?

For one thing, the power to main your child

Most parents put a good deal of time and thought into the selection of a name for their newborn child. However, the experts say when choosing a name for a baby, the only consideration should be the welfare of the child.

Cute names may fit the baby but could be a milestone around his neck when he reaches adulthood and decides to run for judge. Names commonly used for both sexes can be embarrassing for boys. And "nob-spellings" add the burden of having to spell the name for every new-found acquaintance throughout his life.

Unusual names can oftentimes be the underlying factor behind severe personality and emotional disturbances. Two Chicago psychologists, Dr. Arthur A. Hartman and Dr. Robert C. Nicolay, recently took a large sampling of unusual and different names from a court psychiatric clinic files and compared them with an equal number of more popular names like —, Mary, John, George, Jean—drawn from the same source. Their findings showed that there were more than four times as many psychotic individuals in the group with the unusual names.

Garland's was an extreme case. His parents named him Garland because they wanted him to be an outstanding, unique person. But Garland was not. His name made him the object of ridicule to his playmates. To prove his manliness, he constantly picked fights. His emotional conflicts became worse as he approached adulthood. A few months after entering college, he attempted suicide. The reason he gave: "I hate my name."

On the other side of the coin, in thumbing through "Who's Who," we find the appearance of a relatively high proportion of unusual names—Edsel (Ford), Dwight (Eisenhower), Sargent (Shriver), to name a few. Does this indicate these individuals found their names to be an advantage? Or does it mean, as Doctor Hartman suggests, that they "also possessed strong personalities and welcomed the challenge their unusual names imposed, striving harder to make good?"

There are a few accepted rules to be followed if you want to achieve euphony in naming a child. They are:

1. If your family name has two or three syllables, the first and middle name should have one and two syllables—in either order (James Albert Masterson or Albert James Masterson).

2. A mother's maiden name, used as a middle name, can have an elegant effect, especially if the name is one such as Cartier, Brooke, Worthington, or the like. However, an atlas can be an excellent name source for that middle name of eloquent distinction—Marlton, Lewellen and—(for-girls)—the perfectly lovely Savannah.

3. When the family name has only one syllable, the two preceding names should have two and three syllables in either order (Judith Melanie Brown or Melanie Judith Brown).

4. If your family name is accented on the last syllable, a first name similarly accented will be euphonic (Marie Doucette).

5. Family names starting with a vowel should not be preceded by a name which ends with a vowel (Anna Anderson). Likewise with overlapping consonants (Ruth Thorpe).

6. To get a lovely, melodic effect, try repeating the name out loud. You will find some combinations of sounds are quite harsh, and too many s's or c's come out all hives (Cecile Sanderson).

7. Repeated syllables, or rhyming should also be avoided (William Williams, Kathleen Breen).

8. Finally, for your child's sake, the name should be easy to spell and pronounce, should not evoke unpleasant nicknames, should produce initials of a pleasant pattern, should not create confusion or be so odd as to evoke constant comment, and it should designate the bearer's sex clearly. □

WILL YOU SMOKE MY NEW KIND OF PIPE

30 Days at my Risk?

All I want is your name
so I can write and tell you why I'm willing to send you my pipe for 30 days smoking without a cent of risk on your part.

By E. A. Carey

My new pipe is not a new model, not a new style, not a new gadget, not an improvement on old style pipe. It is the first pipe in the world to use an entirely new principle for giving unadulterated pleasure to pipe smokers.

I've been a pipe smoker for 30 years, always looking for the ideal pipe—buying all the disappointing gadgets, and never finding a single, solitary pipe that would smoke hour after hour, day after day, without bitterness, bite, or sludge.

With considerable doubt, I decided to work out something for myself. After months of experimenting and scores of disappointments, suddenly, almost by accident, I discovered how to harness four great natural laws to give me everything I wanted in a pipe. It didn't require any "breaking in." From the first puff it smoked cool—it smoked mild. It smoked right down to the last bit of tobacco without bite. It never has to be "roasted." AND it never has to be cleaned! Yet it is utterly impossible for goo or sludge to reach your tongue, because my invention dissipates the goo as it forms!

You might expect all this to require a complicated mechanical gadget, but when you see it, the most surprising thing will be that I've done all this in a pipe that looks like any of the finest conventional pipes. The claims I could make for this principle in tobacco enjoyment are so spectacular that no pipe smoker would believe them. So, since "seeing is believing," I also say "smoking is convincing" and I want to send you one Carey Pipe to smoke 30 days at my risk. At the end of that time, if you are willing to give up your Carey Pipe, simply break it to bits—and return it to me—the trial has cost you nothing.

Please send me your name to-day. The coupon or a postal card will do. I'll send you absolutely free my complete trial offer so you can decide for yourself whether or not my pipe-smoking friends are right when they say the Carey Pipe is the greatest smoking invention ever patented. Send your name and mailing address to me today. As one pipe smoker to another, I'll guarantee you the surprise of your life. Free. Write:

COOKBOOK/By Melanie DeProff

Stuck for what to feed the gang New Year's Eve? Our suggestion: pick one of the casseroles below and serve it with hot brandied fruit, sliced pumpernickel, celery heart, and olives, and hot coffee. Happy New Year!

Casseroles for Midnight Suppers

Saucy Tomato-Bean Casserole Superb features three kinds of canned beans mixed and heated with packaged chili seasoning mix, cheese, and canned tomato sauce.

SAUCY TOMATO-BEAN CASSEROLE SUPERB

- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- ½ cup chopped green pepper
- 2 cans (8 oz. each) or 1 can (15 oz.) tomato sauce with tomato bits
- 1 pkg. (1¼ oz.) chili, chili dog, or sloppy joe seasoning mix
- 1 can (16 or 17 oz.) lima beans, drained
- 1 can (15½ oz.) red kidney beans, drained
- 1 can (16 oz.) cut green beans, drained
- 1 cup (4 oz.) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese

1. Heat the vegetable oil in a large skillet. Add onion and green pepper; cook, stirring occasionally, until crisp-tender.
2. Mix in all remaining ingredients, in order, except ¼ cup of the cheese.
3. Turn into a 1½-qt. casserole and sprinkle with remaining ¼ cup of cheese.
4. Set in a 350°F. oven about 35 min., or until thoroughly heated.

About 8 servings

GVPSY RICE WREATHED IN BRUSSELS SPROUTS

- 2 pkgs. (10 oz. each) frozen Brussels sprouts, cooked and drained
- ½ cup olive oil
- 2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
- 1 clove garlic, minced

- 1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
  - 1 tablespoon lemon juice
  - 1 cup uncooked long-grain white rice
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - 1 small bay leaf
  - ½ teaspoon crushed saffron threads
  - 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
  - 2½ cups cold water
  - 1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen peas and carrots, cooked and drained
  - ½ cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
  - 2 hard-cooked eggs, coarsely chopped
  - 1 tablespoon white wine vinegar
  - ¼ teaspoon salt
  - ¼ teaspoon pepper
1. Mix olive oil, 2 tablespoons wine vinegar, garlic, lemon peel, and juice in a large bowl. Add the hot Brussels sprouts and toss lightly to coat. Set aside, tossing occasionally.
  2. Meanwhile, put rice, salt, bay leaf, saffron threads, butter or margarine, and water in a large, heavy saucepan; stir with a fork. Bring to boiling, stirring occasionally. Reduce heat, cover, and simmer about 30 min., or until rice is tender and the cooking liquid is absorbed.
  3. Discard bay leaf. Stir in the remaining ingredients, mixing lightly.
  4. Turn rice mixture into a 2-qt. shallow casserole; wreath with the marinated Brussels sprouts. Drizzle remaining marinade over sprouts.
  5. Set the casserole in a 350°F. oven about 20 to 25 min., or until thoroughly heated. 8 servings

A Comedian Gets Serious: "Why I Want to Get Married"

"Listen not to the Mia Farrow's and Julie Christies and Laimie Kazans who carry the rebel banner by flaunting their men and not their rings: I know these types of girls very well, and let me tell you: they are more married and need more to be married than they'd care to have their liberated-followers know."

By Marty Ingels
Especially for Family Weekly

I'm 35 years old, tall, wealthy, ambitious, and I live in the "beautiful people" capital of the world. Still, I'm a helpless cripple when it comes to the most basic masculine endeavor: finding a lady to get old with.

"What's the problem?" you ask. "He's probably one of those Hollywood weirdos looking for some freaky arrangement."

A year ago I'd have punched you in the mouth for that. But now I'm beginning to think what I'm looking for is a "freaky arrangement." Because what I'm looking for is "love"—and that seems to be pretty far out now.

What are the qualifications I demand, but which today's girl finds insurmountable? She must love the sound of the garbage disposal as much as the sound of roulette wheels and opening nights; she must sit as perfectly on my rug with a cheese pizza as gracing the Miss America ramp; she must feel like only half a person when she is alone; she must know that the world is where we are—wherever we are; she must look forward to the prospect of motherhood; and she must feel the need for a home.

Sound simple? Well, I might as well be asking for the original Queen of Sheba. For cryin' out loud, what's happened? Have women finally "Libbed" themselves out of men?

I may be the only guy I know in the new "emancipated" society who still believes in the traditional marital structure. But I do. First it, I need it. I need to feel as much in love on the floor with the Sunday paper as I did in bed the night before. With all the poetic dreams of a "happily ever after," I yearn for a "past" with someone—to talk about, to grow from, to look back on from that "ever after." I scream for all those "funny wifely things"; that tinkering in the other room, those little pink bottles on the bathroom shelf, even finding those long hairs in the sink!

In my opinion, everyone

Ingels, whose own marriage ended after nine years in Hollywood, finds that being a "swinging single" isn't so glamorous after all. "Everyone wants to be Frank Sinatra," he confesses. "I want to be Perry Como!"

should be married. I can almost hear the Hollywood Commandos marching on my house with flaming harpoons—but it's true.

Do you know how much wasted, useless time is spent on "first dates"? Saying the same things, asking the same questions, playing the same games, then starting all over again next Saturday night? (I have actually gotten to the point where I have mimeographed the list of dumb "filler" facts covered on the first two dates: "I was born in _____; I graduated _____; My astrological sign is _____," etc. . . . etc. I send it to newly-scheduled ladies with a note: "The following list of trivial data will cover the small-talk normally covered in two initial meetings—thereby making this Saturday night our third date.")

When you're struggling for survival in the social jungle that people call the "swinging singles," you never really accomplish very much elsewhere. It is not until a man has successfully found a partner that he can relax and channel his full energies into the stuff that counts and lasts. I am convinced that the real dangers are slain by men who have a lasting woman to slay them for.

Many people keep from getting married because they are terrified of themselves, of the possibility they won't be able to cut it when the mascara wears off and the sun comes up. They shake with fear at the thought of "commitment," so they avoid it by building and hiding behind convenient rationales about past experiences: "I was hurt once," "Nobody's gonna do that to me again," etc., etc. In this way, we become so busy "defending" ourselves, we don't realize the harm we are doing each other! And through it all, there's the incredible, hollow sound of all of us screaming for love and marriage and family and permanence and security and peace—none of which starts without "commitment."

I am tired of living among all the promiscuous people. I am tired of the discotheque free-for-all and the social market-place and the sexual scorecard. I am tired of the feeling I'll be too old for the ladies in the "field"; indeed, I am tired of the field itself! I don't want to hear one more set of directions on how to get to one more girl's apartment or to see one more anxious mother "waiting up." I'm tired of being "fixed up." I want to be "fixed."

Marriage stock today is way, way down—and we have only ourselves to blame. Why? Because we have made it so easy to be unmarried that we have done away with the advantages of marriage. We have created such succulently available temptations that we have destroyed even many of those marriages which would have been happy. Marriage is "out?" Wrong. If marriage is "out," we are "out." If we have come to replacing the truth of one relationship with the mirage of many relationships, we have nothing to live for.

Listen not to the Mia Farrow's and Julie Christies and Laimie Kazans who carry the rebel banner by flaunting their men and not their rings. I know these types of girls' very well, and let me tell you: they are more married and need more to be married than they'd care to have their "liberated" followers know. Award not the label of "lover" to the man who loves a new one each night, but to the man who loves his own love every night.

"Marriage's dead?" Nonsense! Society has never needed marriage more.

AMAZING NEW $1.98 ART OFFER!

8 Beautiful Paintings Reproduced in Authentic Full Color For Your Home

Faithful Reproductions of Original Paintings by Arthur Singer

Add Lovely and Lively Color to Any Room with these Beautiful Prints of Birds and Flowers, Ready to Frame

All 8 Large Prints Only $1.98

We are proud to offer Family Weekly readers this handsome set of decorator bird prints. These prints, illustrating flowers and birds adopted by a number of states as their official emblems, are faithful reproductions by Arthur Singer, one of the nation's foremost wildlife artists. Every one in this beautiful series is a collector's item, suitable for framing. In magnificent full-color on 9 1/4 x 12 1/2" heavy stock, these bird prints add a lovely, lively touch to any room in your home. You'll find everything from the black-capped chickadee of Maine and Massachusetts to the ruffed grouse, ring-necked pheasant and California quail of Pennsylvania, South Dakota, and California. Use them singly or in groupings in living room, family room, children's room, or kitchen. They also make wonderful material to cut out for decoupage to use on trays, boxes, and painted furniture. For years, thousands of these sets have been sold for $2.98, but now we are able to offer them at a sensationally new low price of only $1.98 plus 35¢ for postage and handling. A new walnut finish frame with a two inch mat displays bird print beautifully and is sold singly (no glass) for only $3.98 each.

OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED THIS SEASON

Supply is limited at this price and we urge you to order your set now while the supply lasts. To avoid disappointment, fill out coupon and mail at once. This offer will not be repeated this season in Family Weekly.

What in the World!

COLONEL SANDERS
Sound advice to oldsters

For a lesson in elderly ingenuity, it would be hard to find a better teacher than Colonel Harland Sanders, 81, of Kentucky Fried Chicken fame. At 65, Sanders was a man who had held a number of jobs and had failed at most of them. Then he parlayed a Social Security check for $105 into two million dollars. Recently Colonel Sanders expressed his advice to over-65 people: "Even if one can afford it, don't think of retirement as a time to loaf. Plan it, not as a deprivation, but as a wonderful opportunity. Get up every morning wanting to do something. Seek variety, develop original ideas, don't let the minutes rust away." Colonel Sanders still gets a Social Security check—$225 now—but he gives it to charity.

Can it be true that singles are mentally healthier—but don't live as long? So says science. According to a recent Government study, never-married people are mentally and emotionally healthier than married people! Physically, however, it's another story. The death rate for single men is more than double that of married men in the 24 to 34 age group, and the difference increases as men get older. For women of all ages, the mortality rate is almost double for singles than what it is for wives.

Suppose you were a kid, and your father "knew absolutely everything you did." Such was the case with Edgar and Hugh Cayce, sons of the famous psychic Edgar Cayce. Papa's reputed clairvoyance was said to be 85-percent accurate. When Edgar, Jr., was a pre-teen-ager in Selma, Ala., he would often sneak away for a swim with the other kids in the forbidden, treacherous Alabama River. "I ignored my father's warnings," he told us recently. "One day he startled me by showing up at the exact 'secret' spot where I was about to dive in. 'I intend to frighten you so you will never disobey again!' he told me." Now the brothers have written a book, "The Outer Limits of Edgar Cayce's Power" (Harper & Row $4.95)

A KISS FROM CLEO

Any girl should feel honored

The girl in this picture, Jackie Cooke, is not afraid of mice. Not of this mouse, anyhow. She and brother Peter are the proud owners of Cleo, who had just been voted "Supreme Champion Mouse" at an animal show. And that award is nothing to turn your nose up at—Cleo's cash value shot up from approximately nothing to about five dollars.

If you're like most people, you're probably under the impression that the older a bottle of wine is, the better and more valuable it is. Correction: it may be more valuable, but it is certainly not better. As a matter of fact, those rare old vintages dating back to the 1800's may be barely drinkable. To prove that old wines are really risky investments, and that good young wines are better, a group of wine connoisseurs in New York recently opened a well-kept bottle of Chateau Langoa-Barton, 1887. First problem: the cork stopper immediately crumbled to the touch of the corkscrew and fell inside the bottle. When the tasters had finally finished gazing, sniffing and swishing the stuff around in their mouths, the "fine old Bordeaux" (estimated to be worth $1,000) was pronounced...well, putrid.

Quips & Quotes

GETTING THE BRAKES

By Richard Armour

The brakes on my car are so good, "I could stop on a dime," I have said. Of course at the speed I drive I would need The dime quite a distance ahead.

A golfer hit a new ball into the lake, another new ball out of bounds onto a highway and another new ball out into the woods.

"Why don't you use an old ball?" asked the caddy.

"Replied the golfer sadly, 'I've never had an old ball'—

At the beginning of the school year our nine year old chose a red shirt from a catalog and wouldn't rent until it arrived and was hung in his closet. When the shirt had been in his closet for two weeks, we finally asked him why he wasn't wearing it, particularly since he had made such a fuss about getting that particular shirt.

Said he: "Well, my art teacher told me that red is a warm color. I'm saving the shirt for a cold day, when it will keep me nice and warm."

We know a fellow who is so timid, the only thing he defies is description.

—Val Peters

A young preacher, bent on mastering the pulpit oratory of great speakers before him, was in his study having a trial run of the following Sunday's sermon. An old parishioner came to pay a visit and heard the ranting and roaring.

"Good gracious!" exclaimed the lady to the preacher's wife at the door. "Whatever is that?"

"Don't mind him," replied the wife. "He's only practicing what he preaches." —Dorothea Kent

OOPS, I FORGOT THE . . .

On my weekly trip to the grocery store I always take with me A perfect, meticulous stopping list Complete from A to Z.

I buzz through the aisles So sure of myself, And totally at my ease; All other shoppers so envy me And my system that works like a breeze.

When I arrive home, I quickly unload All the marvelous treasures I've bought, And within seconds I begin next week's list!

Of all of the things I forgot!
