N. Viet tells peace plan

PARIS (UPI) — North Vietnam disclosed today details of its own secret, nine-point Vietnam peace plan and accused President Nixon of "duplicitous" in disclosing details last week of secret Hanoi-Washington negotiations.

At a news conference, Nguyen Thanh Le, the press spokesman for the North Vietnamese delegation to the Vietnam peace talks, handed out to newsmen the nine-point program the Communists presented to U.S. Presidential Adviser Henry A. Kissinger in Paris last June 26, last year.

Nixon disclosed the meeting, one of 12 he said Kissinger had in Paris with Hanoi officials, in his nationwide speech on Vietnam last week.

A week later, President Nixon said, the Communists presented the Vietnam peace talks with another plan, this time of seven points, signed by the Viet Cong.

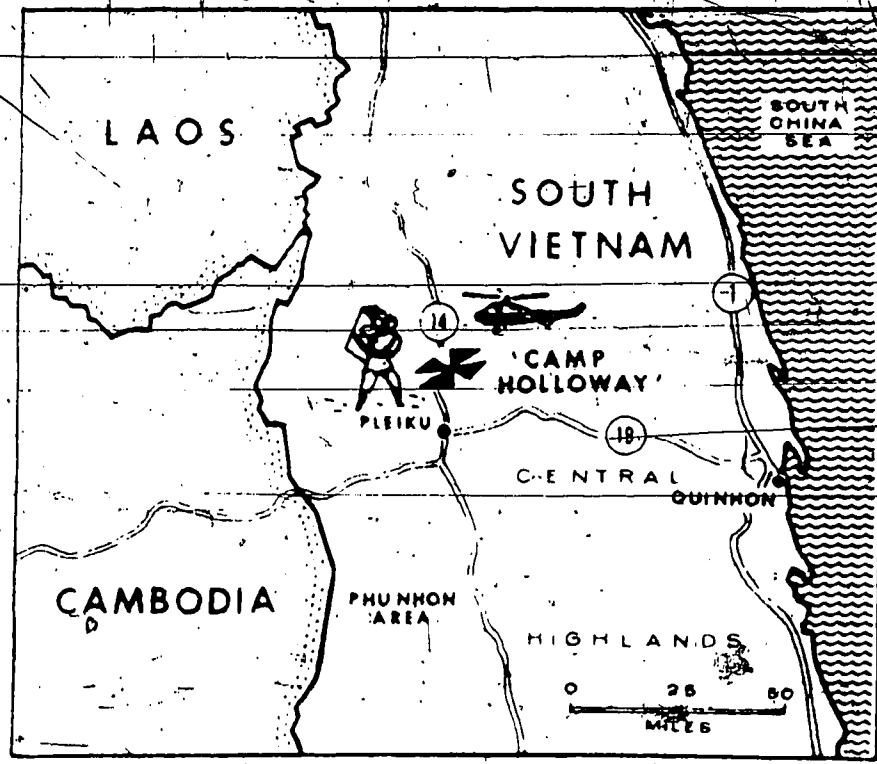

The North Vietnamese today also published what they said were the exchanges leading to the cancellation of a secret meeting scheduled for Nov. 20 between Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, a ranking member of the Hanoi politburo.

They said Kissinger called off the meeting the day before as serving no purpose because Tho was ill. Hanoi said their delegation leader to the talks, Xuan Thuy, was prepared to meet Kissinger instead.

In deciding now to unilaterally make public the substance of the private meetings between North Vietnam and the United States, the Nixon administration has further laid bare its duplicity, Le said.

This way of acting is aimed at deceiving world public opinion in the United States and the world, at serving Mr. Nixon's political objectives in this election and allowing him to pursue a Vietnamization of the war and not to serve the cause of peace as he claims.

The secret Hanoi plan called for the total withdrawal of all U.S. and allied forces before the end of 1971. It said release of military and civilian prisoners would be carried out in parallel and completed at the same time as the troop withdrawal.

Carry explosives

Senate asks tests on lunch feasibility

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Nutrition Committee said today that the government should run a test to determine whether every school child in the country could receive a free lunch.

It said the Agriculture Department should set up a pilot project in several sample areas around the country to determine the feasibility of such a universal lunch program.

Progress in reaching the hungry has generally been too little, too late, Assurance that all children receive at least one nutritional meal a day has not yet been attained, the committee said in its report.

It added that the concept of a universal school lunch will be at the center of debate on deficiencies in the present system.

Those who oppose the universal school lunch program do so because of its cost or because they feel that their role of feeding the child should not be taken away from the family by the state, it said.

Those who favor the program point out that adequate nutrition during childhood acts as preventive medicine—it reduces medical problems and the expenses necessary to correct them; it reduces dropout rates and disciplinary problems in school; and it teaches children proper eating habits, the report said.

The committee also recommended that Congress promptly increase special assistance funds to enable all needy children to receive free or cut-price lunches. It said 10 million children should be covered by the program.

Personnel lack delays Paul homes inspection

PAUL, Citing a lack of FHA personnel, a Paul homeowner said today there were no inspections made of his nine-month-old home during the construction period.

Richard Berkenmeier, spokesman for the home buyers in a small subdivision just north of Paul, said, "They were not neglectful because they wanted to be, but because they had to be."

He explained, "The local Farmers Home Administration office just doesn't have the personnel to do the job."

"I don't blame the local office as much as the Boise office," Berkenmeier said.

He said the FHA has only one housing inspector, Ozzie Schmidt, Pocatello, who covers a three-state area in addition to southern Idaho.

"How can one man keep track of as many as 70 new homes all under construction at the same time when he has to be in four states?" Berkenmeier asked.

Meanwhile plans were being made by the contractor, E-Z Homes, Rupert, to begin promised repairs on a number of the homes. A problem has come to light, the homeowners' spokesman said, with subcontractors who may be unable to immediately meet earlier commitments to repair the buildings.

A meeting is scheduled tonight between the contractor and a number of subcontractors to decide when workmen will be able to begin repairs in the Paul area.

Community Action Agency representatives and a Special Services Department representative from Boise, brought the condition to light last week following an inspection of about 25 new homes in the Paul area. The homes, built for low income families within the past year through FHA loans were alleged to be faulty and "falling apart."

U.S. bombers raid inside S. Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI) — American B-52 bombers carried out their heaviest raids inside South Vietnam in four months today. The South Vietnamese command reported its aircraft destroyed three North Vietnamese tanks as the pace of the war increased from the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) to the Mekong Delta.

Six waves of the Thailand-based B-52s hammered suspected North Vietnamese positions and dropped at least 540 tons of bombs in the attacks. Waves of B-52s hit infiltration routes near the former U.S. marine base at Khe Sanh and in the A Shau Valley, a guerrilla stronghold for 20 years.

The heaviest aerial bombardment was against the so-called base area 609 which takes in much of the border area where South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia come together in South Vietnam's Central Highlands. Base area 609 is another important Communist sanctuary.

Four waves of B-52s dropped at least 360 tons of bombs on the area, where the Communist tanks were sighted and attacked Sunday.

It was the most B-52 raids since Sept. 29, 1971 when there was heavy fighting near the Cambodian border.

The South Vietnamese command said four North Vietnamese tanks were sighted Sunday just inside South Vietnam. South Vietnamese A-1 Skyraiders — propeller-driven fighter-bombers — reported destroying three of the tanks.

The new B-52 strikes followed an unsuccessful attack against an American helicopter base Sunday by Viet Cong sappers who had explosives strapped to their nearly naked bodies.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. Army Chief of Staff, completed a weeklong inspection of Vietnam and Cambodia today.

Jerome robbery suspects held

BY CHARLOTTE BELLI, Times-News writer

JEROME — Three New York City youths were scheduled for arraignment in magistrate court here today on charges of armed robbery at Wall's Texaco Service station just west of here.

Jerome County Prosecutor Eugene Frederickson, identified the men as Robert Michael Nappie, 18; Darryl Leonard Ribb, 19, and a 17-year-old boy. The three were apprehended near Hammett in Elmore County at 2:30 a.m. today, just over an hour after the armed robbery was reported to Jerome City police and the Jerome County sheriff's office.

Gooding County Deputy Sheriff Bill Bunn was credited by Prosecutor Frederickson with their arrest with the aid of state, county and city officers of Jerome, Gooding and Elmore counties.

Frederickson said Gordon Walker, 23, Jerome, was on duty alone at Wall's Texaco near the Jerome Interchange on I-80 just west of town when the 1970 sedan carrying three persons drove in for gasoline. Walker told officers he filled their tank with gasoline and all three followed him into the station to pay for the purchase. Inside the building, he said they all drew guns and demanded all of the money from the cash register. He gave them $110 in cash, he said, and they tied him with electrical wiring and left.

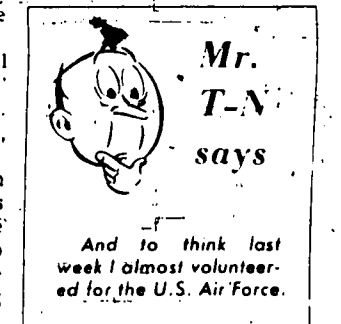

Shortly after they drove away, he was able to work his hands free and call officers with a description of the three suspects, their vehicle, license number and a report they had headed toward Boise. Deputy Bill Bunn said he was off duty at the time and joined other officers in a roadblock plan at a Stunker station in Bliss, he spotted their vehicle and turned around planning to go back and make the arrest. Bunn said they saw the police vehicle turn around and they sped off at a high rate of speed, heading west. Not wanting to stop them alone on the roadside, he radioed ahead for help and continued in pursuit. Bunn said as long as the three were traveling on the interstate they maintained a high rate of speed but slowed down on the narrower roadway beyond King Hill.

Officers Bill Boyer, Gooding County; Jim Finch, state police; Dale Bunn, Wendell police chief, and a King Hill city officer joined the pursuit.

Near Hammett, Bunn said, he was able to get around the suspects' vehicle and pull his own car across the road. He said he got out of his car and with his gun drawn ordered them to stop, but they whipped around his vehicle. The pursuit cars did the same and pulled the suspects to a halt just out of Hammett at about the same time two Elmore County vehicles arrived from the opposite direction.

Bunn said the three who call themselves "The Freaks Inc." surrendered without resistance. For-loaded guns, all revolvers, were found in the vehicle.

Officers said all money taken from the service station has been recovered. The three suspects were returned to Jerome and placed in the county jail pending arraignment.

No more draft until April 1

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird says there will be no draft calls through March, marking the longest planned break in conscription since the end of the Korean War.

"We're moving in the direction of an all-volunteer force worldwide during this first quarter of the year," Laird said Sunday when he revealed that there would be no draft calls in either February or March. No men were drafted in January. Laird cited three reasons for the decision to suspend the draft this quarter: Substantial pay increases effective Jan. 1, the slowing of the Vietnam War and congressional requirements to trim the Army by 70,000 men.

Since the Korean War ended, there never has been a no-draft quarter except for last summer when Selective Service expired before Congress completed action on the bill to extend it.

Laird was interviewed on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" Sunday.

Black Panthers join establishment

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Huey P. Newton says the Black Panthers are going to work within the system for social and economic advances for blacks, and he blames fugitive Eldridge Cleaver for losing community support with a "pick-up-the-gun-now" philosophy.

In his first interview since charges in the 1967 slaying of a policeman were dropped, Newton said Sunday that his future efforts would be geared toward "organizing the community."

Newton, 29, lashed out at Cleaver, the expelled Panther minister of defense, during a two-hour interview in his $650-a-month apartment overlooking scenic Lake Merritt.

Cleaver fled the country in 1968, three days before he was ordered to surrender to authorities in Oakland as a parole violator. He was last reported in Algiers, where he resigned his post with the Panthers.

Newton was freed in December when the district attorney's office decided a fourth trial in the slaying of officer John Frey would be fruitless. The decision came four days after a jury deadlocked 6-6 in Newton's third trial on voluntary manslaughter charges.

An earlier trial last year also resulted in a deadlocked panel. The first in 1968 ended in a guilty verdict which was overturned by an appellate court on grounds of judicial error.

Newton, the party cofounder, served 22 months in prison before the appellate court's ruling.

Newton said that while he was in prison and the party was under Cleaver, "the community turned off on my whole program."

He said Cleaver offered a choice between "either picking up the gun now and winning the revolution, or you are an Uncle Tom."

"In order to win you must participate whether it's electoral politics or the contradictions going on in the church," Newton said in a relaxed interview.

Newton, sipping whiskey at a long table, defended a recent agreement with a group of black businessmen that guaranteed contributions toward the party's activities. The pact ended months of Panther picketing at a liquor store owned by black businessman Bill Boyette, who said the tactic drove him to the verge of bankruptcy.

"They will get more customers and a tax writeoff," Newton said.

Newton said most of his time in the future would be geared toward getting out the vote.

The Panther leader said the drive currently was concentrated in Oakland and Berkeley, but would be "soon" extended to Chicago, New York, Atlanta, and other cities.

"We have 30 chapters and branches," he said, but refused to reveal the number of party members.

Olympic committee ousts skiing star

SAPPORO, Japan (UPI) — The International Olympic Committee (IOC) booted Austrian ski star Karl Schranz out of the winter games today for being a professional. The Austrian Olympic Committee said it would appeal the decision.

Schranz, at 33 the "old man" of alpine skiing, at first reacted with anger and threatened "to reveal a few things." He said "I can't be held up as a scapegoat for the IOC's vendetta against my sport. If I go, everyone will have to go."

Later in the day he apparently had calmed down and refused to discuss the matter with journalists.

IOC President Avery Brundage, who led the fight against professionalism in a supposedly amateur sport, said the ruling by a vote of 28-to-14 could not be appealed. But the Austrian committee said it would appeal at Tuesday's IOC meeting despite Brundage's statement.

Karl Heinz Klee, president of the Austrian committee, declined to say what would happen if their appeal was turned down. "All possibilities are open to us," he said, hinting that Austria might pull its entire team.

The IOC ruling on Schranz, who in his 18 years of international competition has won every major race but never an Olympic gold medal, said:

"That considering the activity and the influence of Karl Schranz in the field of international alpine ski competition and the manner in which he has permitted the use of his name and pin in commercial advertising in recent years, he will be declared ineligible to take part in the XI Olympic Winter Games."

Brundage, an 84-year-old Chicago millionaire who has headed the IOC since 1952, told a news conference Schranz was ineligible because of "the manner in which he has been acting for the past several years and for the statements he has made in the press since his arrival here."

Brundage did not elaborate on the statements purportedly made in the press but apparently was referring to remarks Schranz may have made that he was no more a professional than other top skier.

Schranz's fellow skiers almost without exception said the expulsion order was unfair. But in the Olympic Village where they are staying for the games being held Feb. 3-13, there was no talk of a mass walkout to support Schranz.

Bernhard Russi of Switzerland, reigning world ski champion, said, "This is the climax of the whole circus. It is impossible to punish only one skier. It is a paradox to disqualify only Karl because all the other leading exponents are on the same level."

Legislation strengthens commission

BOISE (UPI) — Legislation to strengthen the Idaho Human Rights Commission and to repeal birth control advertising restrictions has been endorsed by the Legislative Program Committee of the Idaho Division of the American Association of University Women.

The committee, composed of area representatives, met during the weekend to consider legislation now before this session of the Idaho Legislature.

Members of the committee also voted to actively oppose any efforts to abolish the Human Rights Commission.

The needs of education, a long-time concern of the association, were also discussed at the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brown discussing clothing styles. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cox watching young daughter ski. Mark Rosenbaum painting room in the church. Craig Day chasing dog. Robert Hoag and family enjoying day on the ski slopes. Mrs. Mill Horton trying to help her husband up after pushing him over in lift line. Zoe Ann Shaub watching her small son and daughter playing in snowbank. Mrs. Dave Armstrong explaining she has a willing babysitter. Shonnie Fenstermaker selling tickets at ski lift. Jim Munn talking about weekend traffic. Kenneth Shew giving away half a stick of gum. Kim Shewmaker, Kimberly, searing ski patrol parka. Mrs. Weaver Kimball taking children to movies. Dan Wilson trying to pay bill without money. Mary Dee Bonnett going for walk with "Molly". Mrs. Don Depew, Hansen, having lunch with small son. Amtrak, railroads engage in struggle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A routine audit of the railroads which are operating the Amtrak passenger train service has developed into a financial struggle that could mean millions of dollars to the winner.

At issue is exactly how much of the hundreds of services necessary to operate the passenger trains may be charged to Amtrak.

Under the Amtrak-railroad contract, Amtrak does not have to pay until at least July 1, 1973, any charges except "solely related costs" — direct out-of-pocket expenses for train and station operation. But in their haste to throw together a contract in time for the May 1, 1971, takeover of passenger service, Amtrak and railroad lawyers left many gray areas to be negotiated later.

Auditors from Amtrak and its accounting firm, Arthur Andersen & Co., have completed "test audits" for the first month of operation of four of the 13 lines operating Amtrak trains — the Santa Fe, the Penn. Central, the Seaboard Coast line and the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio.

Although results of the audits have not been fully compiled, government sources said the auditors believe the potential saving to Amtrak through correction of mistakes and overcharges, disputed service charges and elimination of inefficient practices will run into the millions. One projected figure mentioned frequently is $35 million a year.

The behind-the-scenes dispute is considered so sensitive that Amtrak officials will not allow the auditors to talk to newsmen. Railroad officials directly involved refuse to be quoted by name when discussing specifics.

Both sides privately express a certain distrust of the other with some Amtrak sources saying the railroads were "gouging" Amtrak with inflated charges, and some rail officials charging Amtrak with being "dishonest" in its efforts to cut costs.

Official spokesmen play down the audit as routine and necessary to efficient operation. An Amtrak spokesman said no Amtrak official had accused a railroad of wrongdoing.

Question...

Our son lost his life in Viet Nam. We would like to have his German wife make her home with us. Do we make application for her entry into the United States through military channels or the Immigration Service?

Answer...

In June 1968 the Congress extended the privilege of American citizenship to the surviving wife of any American serviceman previously deceased or who dies during a period of honorable service in an active duty status in the Armed Forces of the United States. The spouse must comply with certain provisions of the Immigration and Naturalization Act and must have been living in a marital union with the deceased serviceman. Your daughter-in-law may apply for naturalization as an American citizen without meeting any residence requirements.

The Armed Forces are required to return to the home of a deceased soldier or sailor an approved copy of the form of American Servicemen's Union. The service representative at her request, your son's wife and their children's effects may be transported to your home with the body. Please contact the American Red Cross for more detailed information.

Gem fund division redrafted

By RICHARD CHARNOCK
BOISE (UPI) — State Sen. Wayne Kidwell, R-Boise, is writing a new formula to distribute to counties and cities the estimated $20-million they receive from the state each year.

Kidwell, who hopes to put his proposal before the Local Government Committee within a week, said his bill would gather all inventory tax phase-out monies, inheritance tax receipts, surplus liquor funds and other monies now going to local government and put them into one fund.

Then, he said, these receipts would be distributed to the counties and cities of the state under a new, single formula rather than under the many and outmoded formulas now in use.

He said 75 per cent of the fund would go directly to these local units under a formula based on their population, sales taxes, property taxes and income taxes. He said 25 per cent would be retained for special projects.

Cities and counties needing special help for public health, environment, law enforcement or cultural and aesthetic projects then would apply to the joint local government committees of the legislature for money.

This joint committee then would apportion through state appropriations the remainder of the money in the special fund to the most needed and meritorious projects.

There are several state funds that go back to local units of government, Kidwell said, and they all go back on separate formulas.

Many of these formulas are completely outdated and many have become unfair, he said, citing as unfair the formula for distributing inventory tax phase-out funds as a case in point.

Some counties have enough money to operate on and some are literally starved, he said.

Some have to keep operating with worn-out equipment or run-down buildings and cannot afford to replace them.

Others need help to handle special projects such as Parks, art galleries or even sudden increases in crime, he said.

These could be helped by special appropriation from the 25 per cent of the monies held back and placed in a local assistance fund, he said.

At the same time the cities and counties still would be receiving 75 per cent of the monies intended for them but under a formula Kidwell believes would be more fair and up-to-date.

While he plans to offer his bill for introduction Kidwell has no illusions about it passing the legislature at this session. He does hope to start it moving, however.

I'm not overly optimistic at this time, he said. But I believe something has to be done in this area to help local units of government.

We treat them like step-children.

Old crow reappears in Gem Senate

By LINDY HIGH
BOISE (UPI) — Well, the crow finally flew back to the Senate chambers on the 19th legislative day, a little late for the 1972 session but just in time to catch the first bill to go down in defeat.

The Senate crow and its new counterpart in the House are given to the lawmaker sponsoring a defeated bill and are part of the tradition of the legislature.

And new "traditions" can spring up overnight when circumstances merit, eventually becoming part of the tales told by those who spend much time in the legislative chambers.

Sen. Arthur Murphy, D-Mullan, the veteran legislator of the upper chamber, said he can remember the senate crow back to 1957. The crow is given with a good deal of flourish and is accompanied by a dish of "eggs" for the unwelcome bird. It's not the original bird, of course, which hangs from the modern microphones at the Senator's desks. Murphy, the only legislator left who served in the 1937 session, said the old crow was "pretty badly beaten up" in earlier sessions.

The one now in use has been outfitted with new clothing, cowboy boots, by obliging high school pages.

Recently the senators have added an extra whallop to the crow passing. Both the sender and recipient must come up with a "spur-of-the-moment" poem marking the occasion.

The last senator to win the bird as the session closes keeps it until the next legislature begins. Actually, the black bird is turned over to Art Wilson, Senate secretary since 1961, who said the crow has its own special roosting box in his office.

The House has a newer crow but the style is the same. The House goes "at ease" while pages present the crow to the dejected representatives.

Other unwritten rules have been around for along time. No one is addressed by name. In the House a representative is referred to as "the gentleman" or "lady" from District 19" and in the Senate as "the good senator from District 23." Senate president pro tem debates and, in the House, representatives have been gavelled out of order for addressing a colleague by name.

How does a $1 1/4 Billion Bank keep a personal touch?

- By being a "hometown bank" in each of the 86 communities we serve. Altogether, First Security offers the convenience and personal touch of 412 offices from the Arizona border on the south to the Canadian border on the north.
- Because we chose to do business that way, over half a million people chose to do their banking business our way, making First Security the number one banking system in the Intermountain West.
- Number one in deposits. At year-end 1971, over 440,000 people and businesses had a billion and 53 million dollars in deposits in First Security Banks. With over a half a billion of these dollars in savings deposits, First Security is by far the largest savings institution in the Intermountain West.
- Number one in loans. Last year people came to us for an average of $5,700,000 in loans every business day. Loans for homes, farms, ranches, business and industry. Loans for household appliances and improvements, furniture and new cars. Loans to municipalities and governmental agencies.
- Number one in building the future. First Security is currently helping 14,056 students continue their college education. At year's end, student loans totaled $11,925,718.

- Number one in home financing, with our banks being responsible for over a half a billion dollars in real estate financing. Our efforts to supply low-cost housing were substantial too, through support of government programs. No wonder that the percentage of home ownership in Utah and Idaho is among the nation's highest.
- How can we be number one in all these areas? Because the 2,717 men and women of First Security are concerned and involved with each community they serve. Your savings. Your loan. Your checking account. They're all as important to us as they are to you.
- We're looking forward to another year of growth. Grow with us.

Fugitive captured in Utah

OGDEN (UPI) — A second fugitive from a southeastern Idaho jail was apprehended Friday without incident by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and Ogden City Police.

David Lee Griffith, 23, Salt Lake City, was arrested for unlawful flight across a state line to avoid prosecution. He and Glenn Edward Tharpe, 21, escaped from the Oneida County, Idaho, jail Jan. 12, 1972.

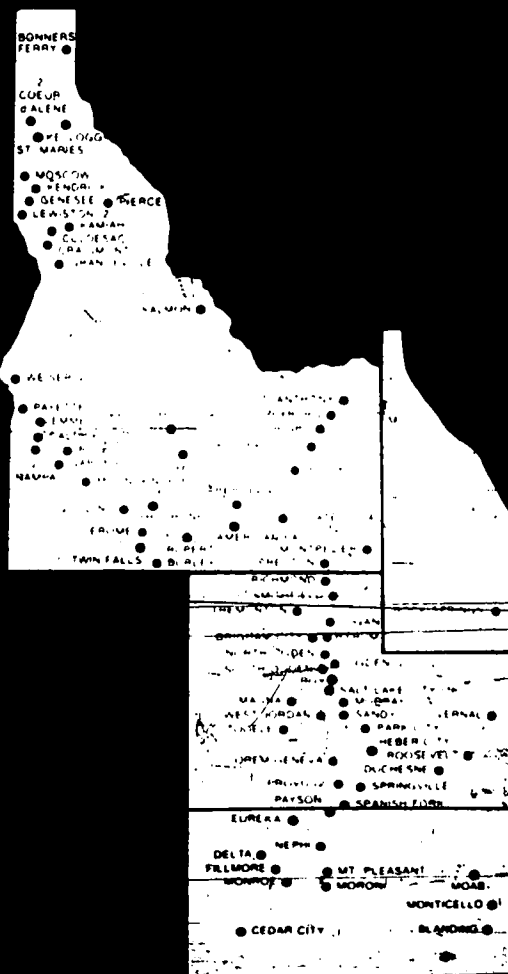

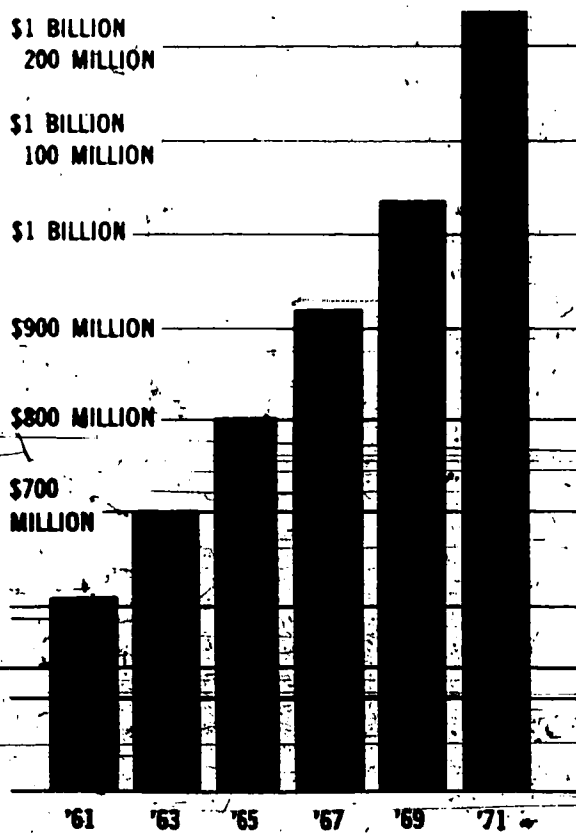

Russell P. Calame, FBI special agent in charge for Utah, said a complaint was filed and warrants issued at Pocatello, Idaho, charging the pair with unlawfully fleeing the state to avoid prosecution on burglary and theft charges.

Tharpe, who had been residing with Griffith in Salt Lake prior to their arrest in Malad City, Idaho, was arrested on the street in Salt Lake City by FBI agents on Jan. 19, 1972.

Both men have been remanded to the U.S. Marshall for Utah in lieu of bond. Tharpe had bond set at $10,000 while the U.S. Magistrate in Ogden set Griffith's bond at $5,000 Friday.

COMMENT

Of Greatness

(Christian Science Monitor)

Now that Britain and three other applicant nations have signed the treaty of accession to the European Common Market, the big question is: where does Europe go from here?

The search for the answer should begin without delay, even though there still are hurdles to be cleared before the six-nation economic community is officially expanded into a 10-nation one. In London Parliament has yet to pass the complex legislation which will enable Britain to join the community on Jan. 1, 1973. In the other three countries—Denmark, Norway, and the Republic of Ireland—referenda have to be held on the accession terms, and their results are by no means a foregone conclusion.

It is noteworthy that no euphoria over the building of Europe accompanied the historic step of signing the treaty of accession in Brussels on Jan. 22. Indeed, there is little evidence among the 10 nations concerned of a "European consciousness" or a sense of European identity.

This may be due in part to the fact that the statesmen themselves do not know at this stage where Europe is heading, nor are they agreed on the kind of Europe they want. Is it to be a political power in its own right, in addition to an economic power, ranking in status with the United States, the Soviet Union, China and possibly Japan? Or is it to remain a loose grouping of states based on a customs union and concerned almost solely with economic and monetary matters?

France and Britain are opposed to the concept of a supranational Europe and instead favor a confederation of sovereign states. But the latter would preclude Europe developing its own foreign and defense policies, including eventually nuclear defense.

As an economic entity the expanded 10-nation market will represent 257,242,000 people doing more than 40 per cent of the world's trade. If it becomes a political entity, too, the voice of such a community in international affairs will be a powerful and influential one.

The current lack of enthusiasm for the European ideal also may be due in part to the fact that on the whole the peoples of Western Europe are content as they are and feel no urge to venture into unknown paths. It is a truism that the trend toward unity is accentuated when there is pressure from outside challenges. Right now, with the Russians deliberately cultivating an atmosphere of detente in Europe, there is no such pressure to jolt Western Europe into forging closer political ties.

In the next 12 months before Britain's entry into Europe becomes a fact, it will be up to men like British Prime Minister Heath, French President Pompidou and West German Chancellor Brandt to arouse the vision of a united Europe and provide the spark that will ignite a European political will. They must also seek fresh ideas to impart a new impulsion to the economic integration of Europe, otherwise the community could all too easily settle back on its achievements hitherto and run the risk of enmeshing itself in a cumbersome bureaucracy.

The British and French leaders will meet next month. Then Mr. Heath will confer with Mr. Brandt, who will also be meeting with President Pompidou in Paris. These bilateral exchanges will provide the forum for an initial study of European goals and priorities.

Today Europe stands hesitantly on the threshold of a period of potential greatness in its history. What it needs now is the forward thrust to carry it over and beyond that threshold. It is a moment of immense opportunity for European statesmen—a moment for enlightened leadership.

The Game Laws

Idaho Falls Post-Register

Legislative recommendations by the Idaho Fish and Game Department deserves enactment.

The proposed legislation would formally classify bears as a game animal, permit recreational fishing licenses with Wyoming on Palisades reservoir, prohibit private zoos from having game animals in captivity, empower the game department to close game wintering areas to snowmobiles and prohibit carrying of guns and archery equipment on snowmobiles. It should be noted that the last session of the Idaho Legislature actually classified bear as a game animal, following the cougar, but it had been left out of the compiled code, and needs re-enactment.

Commenting on the snowmobile proposal, Joseph C. Greenley, department director, commented: "Most people just don't consider it to be sportsmanlike anyhow to hunt big game from snowmobiles. The deer is simply too helpless in deep snow, to allow a hunter to run it down with a motorized sled is not acceptable." Director Greenley admitted however that it may be possible for hunters to use snowmobiles to drive game animals to other waiting hunters, although he pointed out that present law prohibits harassment of game animals. It is questionable however, whether the present law would cover this situation and the new law should be specific enough to foreclose against such a practice.

And it goes without saying that a bill introduced in the Idaho Legislature placing a bounty on coyotes should be turned back. This proposal goes against the grain of research now under way to provide reasonable livestock protection without indiscriminate sacrifice of wildlife and dislocations in the wildlife chain by the present predator control system.

The Idaho Legislature should also be alert to cooperate with the game department in an emerging cooperative program with the federal land managing agencies to develop a more positive and thoroughgoing game, range restoration program.

WASHINGTON — Stanford University, which is not to be confused with those curious and chaotic "open admission" institutions which recently have befuddled the learning scene, has struck a blow for genuine academic freedom by dismissing an English instructor for fomenting violence on the campus last winter. H. Bruce Franklin, a self-proclaimed Maoist, was given the sack by Stanford's board of trustees in what President Richard Lyman properly described as "a difficult but essential effort to protect itself against destruction." Franklin was found guilty of leading a sit-in at the university's computer center and of urging a night rally to commit violence. There were, of course, the usual scuffles between police and dissenters when the verdict was announced. Those Lyman is right when he says the decision "will stand as a landmark." Given Stanford's example, there is at least a chance that other colleges and universities "will decide that their institutions were not founded to serve as playpens for adolescent terrorists commanded by wet-lipped little would-be Lenins and Hitlers. Academic freedom, after all, has nothing to do with social or political matters. It was not handed down from heaven, nor is it guaranteed by the Constitution. Instead, it is a right acquired from time and society to protect both academics and the public from outside interference with the academics' pursuit of truth through research and teaching. As Lyman noted, this right is not a license "to attack and bring to a halt" by disruption and violence the function of a university.

That is to say, academic freedom is a private thing guaranteed by a university or college—but applying only to a teacher's endeavors in his field of competence. A professor may be a Communist or a Nazi, but he may not use his academic sanctuary to politicize his subject or his students by violence or, for that matter, by any other means.

This has been forgotten or ignored, during the wild, shenanigans of the last decade. Radicals of the left and some of the right, have tried to turn educational institutions into social agencies and political mechanisms. They have compounded the felony by invading classrooms in violent attempts to force this professor or that college president to teach and administer their way or not at all.

Prof. H. Stuart Hughes of Harvard, himself a political dissenter, has sought to set these lunatics straight. The university, he said recently, "has no social goals whatever, whether of the right or of the left. Its sole commitment is to the advancement and sharing of knowledge. If you lose the ivory tower you've lost the university." Hughes ran for the U.S. Senate on an anti-war platform a couple of years ago.

From the conservative side, Prof. John Roche, of Brandeis University, agreed with Hughes in my kind of language: "I strongly oppose confusing colleges with settlement houses, psychiatric wards, or progressive kindergartens." He described as "malignantly intellectual" the notion that an educational institution is designed for group therapy or as a base for guerrilla warfare against society.

It seems to me certain Presidential candidates, especially in the Democratic Party, would find it profitable to ponder these statements and Stanford's action in booting out Franklin in their unceasing campaign to woo the "intellectual" and the college student, they try to identify with these groups by utterances best summed up in the cry, "Look Ma, I'm a rebel, too." Indeed, at Harvard, the peripatetic Teddy Kennedy was annoyed to find the students so placid.

They should read some history. The ineffable Hitler got some of his early, substantial support from the radicals who attacked academic freedom in the 1920's and 30's, and so did Lenin. In the manner of today's super-liberal professors and Nothing students, they then proceeded to the bloody task of making over the German and Russian educational systems into creatures of the state. In history's tradition, the radicals who helped foment the revolution were among the first shipped off to concentration camps.

GROUNDING?

ROBERT ALLEN

A Busing Law

WASHINGTON — One committee, made a stab at trying to separate the distinctly educational provisions of the bill from the anti-busing amendments. He appeared in the Senate to consider

Anti-busing legislation of some kind will definitely be enacted. It will either be a Constitutional amendment completely banning busing, particularly for racial reasons, or a statute designed to indirectly accomplish the same end, such as barring Federal funds for busing, or both.

Anti-busing as outstanding in the House is a bill introduced by Sen. James Buckley (R-N.Y.) which is currently in committee.

It proposes a party and national lines, section and regional, but it also includes a provision for racial factors. Two of the 10-member House Black caucus reportedly are privately in favor of some kind of restriction on busing on the sound ground that busing is not conducive to quality education.

Significantly, the usually militant Black caucus has taken no stand on this fiery issue so far.

Also noteworthy is that Black caucus members are not sending their children to Washington's costly, but dismally mediocre and mismanaged public schools. These children are sent to expensive private schools.

That includes the children of D.C. Delegate Walter Fauntroy, loudly vocal Black activist, and Mayor Walter Washington.

It also includes children of most of the white liberal legislators—foremost among them Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., Edmund Muskie, D-Me., and George McGovern, D-S.D.—a particularly vociferous champion of busing.

More than that, some liberals already are on record as voting for anti-busing measures.

A striking example is Rep. James O'Hara, D-Mich., a ranking member of the Education and Labor Committee and a top leader of the liberal bloc. Last November, under pressure from liberal Democrats, he voted for a series of anti-busing amendments which were written into the multi-billion dollar, higher education authorization bill.

That measure is now pending in the Senate, where efforts are underway to incorporate additional curbs on busing.

Last week, Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., chairman of the Education and Labor

Budget Hoax

WASHINGTON — President Richard Nixon, through a spokesman, said that the 1973 fiscal budget submitted to Congress was a forgery and he would not be with it.

The book, which was put together by George Shultz, Nixon's chief of staff, and Robert F. Kennedy, Jr., Nixon's assistant for domestic affairs, was a forgery, the spokesman said.

Shultz claimed this was the first time Mr. Nixon had authorized such a forgery and McGraw-Hill, which had published the book, had paid $50,000 for the rights to it.

The chief director said that Mr. Nixon had never authorized him to put out a budget and had never received any checks from McGraw-Hill and Life for the book.

Lawyers for Mr. Nixon said that the President had never authorized him to put out a budget and had never received any checks from McGraw-Hill and Life for the book.

Spokesmen at both McGraw-Hill and Life said they have handwritten documents from President Nixon attesting to the fact that the 1973 fiscal budget was authorized by him, and they planned to go ahead with printing it, no matter what Mr. Nixon's representatives said.

There are things in this budget, a spokesman for Life said, that only Mr. Nixon would know. Every page of it was initialed "RMN" and our handwriting experts insist that the writing corresponds to the President's.

Mr. Nixon's representatives, however, insist that the whole thing is a hoax. They insist that Mr. Nixon hasn't left Key Biscayne in six months and whenever Shultz talked to was not the president of the United States.

To further substantiate the charges that the budget was a forgery, Mr. Nixon's public relations people set up a telephone press conference call from the President's hide-out in Key Biscayne to seven reporters.

Shultz's wife is not a blonde nor does she speak with a German accent, but there are other people in the White House who do.

There are three theories making the rounds of Washington concerning the publication of the budget. Theory 1: The President agreed with George Shultz to write the budget message, but then his advisers got frightened and they decided to deny it. Theory 2: The budget is a hoax cooked up by the Democrats to defeat Mr. Nixon in 1972. Theory 3: Henry Kissinger made a secret trip to Geneva and bought a dress and a blonde wig at the airport.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Giving Water

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I hope you can settle a debate among some of us young mothers about giving plain water to infants and children.

From the first day home from the hospital, I gave my children water. Now, as tots, they drink it by the glass, and most of the time a glass of water and glass of milk at each meal. They have never been constipated and their general health is excellent.

Children at my friends' often suffer from constipation, but my friends contend that they don't believe in giving children water. I cannot seem to convince them that every living creature needs some water daily. Mrs. D.D.

I'd quit arguing with them, but also hope that their kids will manage some way to get enough water. The body is 80 per cent water.

It is perfectly true that all living things need water. Even plants, for as long as that. A human being deprived of water will die in a few days, but can usually survive starvation for several weeks.

To a lesser degree, inadequate water can cause all sorts of lesser troubles, and constipation is one of them.

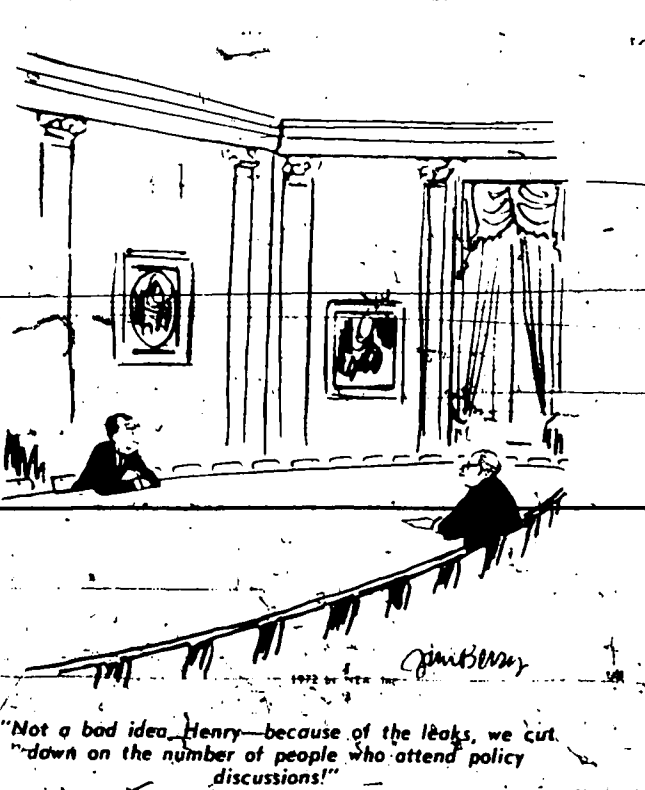

I certainly see no harm in giving water to infants and small children. Neither do I recommend forcing it. And water, as such, isn't the only water a person or baby gets. Milk contains a great deal of water. Fruits and vegetables are particularly high in water content and soups. Even meat contains more water than most folks realize.

When you let your child down, there is no better way to gauge the amount of water we need than our thirst and whether we shake the thirst with water, milk, soups, fruits or whatever. The important thing is to get enough, one way or another.

It is possible, of course, that the constipation of your friends' youngsters is from factors other than lack of water, although if I were in their shoes, I'd start at least give your suggestion a try.

As long as a child has no problem with urine control, there is no reason why he shouldn't have as much water as he wants. It will be good for him.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Not a bad idea, Henry—because of the leaks, we cut down on the number of people who attend policy discussions!"

Wage plan enactment sees light

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Continued that President Nixon's proposed guaranteed annual income plan is all but dead. Sen. Russel B. Long now sees a good chance for enacting his own plan to subsidize the income of the working poor.

Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, suggested that Nixon should be grateful for the abandonment of his welfare reform bill providing a $2,400 minimum income for a family of four.

"If we had passed that bill at that time (in 1970), Richard Nixon wouldn't have a prayer for re-election," the Louisiana Democrat said.

There would have been a revolution by now — everybody quitting work to go on welfare.

"If that had gone into effect, 30 per cent of the people in Louisiana would be standing in line to get on welfare and the other 70 per cent would have been standing in line to vote you out of office," he said.

Long was interviewed in the aftermath of the decision Friday by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., to abandon support for the guaranteed income concept in favor of a limited test in a few states "to see if this kind of scheme really works."

Long hopes for Ribicoff's support of at least a test of his own alternative plan.

Long's plan and Nixon's differ in one fundamental aspect.

Nixon would provide an income to every family, even if the head of the household refused a job. Long would boost the income of those who worked but still barely got by through tax rebates and wage supplements.

When his committee ends hearings next month, Long plans to propose that people with earnings under $3,900, the federally defined poverty level, receive refunds of $400 a year in four installments, equal to the amount paid by themselves and their employers in Social Security taxes.

The worker would lose no retirement benefits and his tax payment would be furnished to the Social Security trust fund from government tax revenues.

More controversial is his plan to supplement through tax funds the wages of people with low incomes. A worker earning $120 an hour, for example, might receive an additional 40 cents for every hour worked.

No testimony has been taken on this plan, but organized labor is certain to object that it would amount to a subsidy to employers who pay low wages.

'Y' Week kick off slated

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley YMCA will join the national celebration of the 128th birthday of the "Y" during YMCA Week by kicking off its annual membership enrollment campaign Tuesday, Feb. 8, with a dinner meeting.

The 7 p.m. dinner is open to the public.

Honorary chairman of the YM-YWCA membership campaign is Judge James Cunningham and YMCA section leader is Rev. Herbert Morris.

The goal in this year's membership campaign, according to Rev. Morris, is to secure 391 new members and $4,400 in current operating income.

Team captains for the campaign include Ron Kieffle, Chuck Charlton, Leon Smith, Fred Decker, James DeGree, William Donnelly, Dr. Jack McNeese and Gary Baxter.

TF home entered

TWIN FALLS — Wayne Sanderson, 559 2nd Ave. N., told city police someone entered his home sometime Friday night or early Saturday morning and took several items valued at $199.

He said when he returned home he found the door to the front room of the home standing open.

State topics aired at Rupert chamber

RUPERT — Rupert Chamber of Commerce members discussed current legislative topics with state Sen. John Peavey and state Rep. Steve Antone during the Thursday luncheon meeting.

Pete Ford, chamber president, announced that chamber's meeting is slated for 10 a.m. Tuesday at the chamber office.

It was reported the Mary Cassia Women's Bowling Association will host the state Women's Bowling Tournament which will begin March 3 and run for nine weekends. Team bowling will be held at the Rupert Bowl, with singles and doubles rolled at the Y-Dell Bowl.

AN APPEAL for Humane Society Animal Shelter funds is being made by Bobbie Glasmann and her pet, Pee Wee, who originated in the Boise Humane Society Shelter about a year ago. Small red piggy banks will be located in Twin Falls business houses for the collection of small donations.

Funds needed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic House Leader Hale Boggs said Sunday revenue sharing is desperately needed by the big cities and predicted it will be enacted by Congress this year, though not in the form President Nixon proposed.

The Louisiana Democrat said he sees no reason to think the 92nd Congress at its second session cannot complete essential business prior to the Republican National Convention starting Aug. 21.

Including health care and revenue sharing, a reporter asked, "Will certainly revenue sharing be enacted?" Boggs replied, "I'm not prepared to make a statement on health care."

Boggs, in a UPI Washington Window interview, defended the record of the Congress' first session and predicted the second also will perform responsibly, assuming no major setbacks.

Spare tire taken in TF

TWIN FALLS — A spare tire was taken from a 1971 camper special truck and gasoline caps taken from four vehicles at the Bob Reese Motor Co. building Saturday night.

City police were continuing the investigation. Value of the items taken was estimated at $125.

TF homes studied

TWIN FALLS — The average Twin Falls house is a four-room dwelling occupied by three people, according to a study conducted by the U.S. Bureau of the Census in 1970.

The report says the average home in the city is occupied by its owner, who set a value of $14,000 on the building, and is equipped with complete plumbing facilities, a direct access kitchen, a telephone and a television set.

The report also lists a total of 409 dwelling vacancies in the city at the time the study was conducted, of which 69 were for sale and 180 for rent, with the balance being set aside for "occasional use" or "awaiting occupancy."

For houses not occupied by the owner, the average value is listed at $9,600.

$30,000 animal shelter drive set in TF County

TWIN FALLS — A drive to collect $30,000 for construction of a Humane Society Shelter for Twin Falls County has begun, Bobbie Glasmann, member of the Idaho Humane Society, announced Saturday.

The drive will, if successful, begin a Humane Society program in Twin Falls County to care for unwanted and abandoned animals and to provide residents an opportunity to obtain pets at a nominal cost.

Mrs. Glasmann has spearheaded the organization of a Humane Society in Twin Falls County with officers to be elected in a meeting in February.

She said an investigation has been conducted revealing a critical need for such a shelter in this area to assure the humane treatment and disposal if necessary, of unwanted and homeless animals.

Plans call for construction of a shelter for all types of animals somewhere outside the city limits here. Corals can be provided for horses, goats, sheep and the like. A building with indoor-outdoor kennels for dogs and indoor facilities for cats will also be provided.

Mrs. Glasmann said she is currently working with the city and county officials for approval of a Humane Society program. County commissioners have agreed to meet with the Bureau of Land Management on her behalf to ask for donation of or lease at a token figure of BLM land. About five acres would be needed, she said.

The shelter would operate with one fulltime director and two parttime employees. In addition to working with the city and county governments, the shelter would also cooperate with veterinarians in the area and for a fee would accept animals from other counties.

Efforts would be made to adopt out all of the animals not claimed by rightful owners. An ambulance service would be available for injured animals. The facility would replace the present dog pound which is now in the form of services paid for by the city and furnished by a local veterinarian.

Mrs. Glasmann said the new shelter would not compete with veterinarians in any way but would be available to them when needed.

One of the principal purposes of the society, Mrs. Glasmann said, is the prevention of cruelty to animals and the society would investigate reports of such cases.

Contributions have already been made by a number of businesses and individuals, Mrs. Glasmann said. These include the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, First Security Bank, Sears, Beth Wickham and the Times-News Ace Printing.

Individuals, organizations and groups are asked to make contributions by mail to Twin Falls County Humane Society, P.O. Box 986, Twin Falls.

Spill red piggy banks have also been donated by the First Federal Savings and Loan and are being distributed to businesses in Twin Falls for collection of coins.

Mrs. Glasmann said efforts are being made to pattern the Twin Falls shelter after the Boise shelter, which is ranked as one of the top 10 in the United States.

Hansen to address engineers confab

TWIN FALLS — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, will keynote the annual convention of the Idaho Society of Professional Engineers opening Thursday in Boise, Jean Milar, Twin Falls city manager, said Friday.

Hansen, a member of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, will discuss the role of the federal government in nuclear power. He is scheduled to speak at the beginning of a Friday afternoon session on nuclear power.

Elmer E. Gunnette of the American Institute of Steel Construction will speak Friday on "Remarkable Western Structures."

Milar said the meeting is scheduled for the Rodeway Inn in Boise Feb. 24, and 25. Attending as city delegates will be city engineer George Michael and Milar.

Several other engineers representing consulting and planning firms, industries and other municipalities and utilities in Magic Valley will be attending.

Ben Dibble, Western regional vice president of the National Society of Professional Engineers will address a breakfast meeting Saturday and at noon, engineers will hear a talk by Dwight S. Hoffman.

TF house rent low

TWIN FALLS — A study of housing conditions among the nine largest Idaho cities shows Twin Falls rental dwellings carry the lowest price tags.

The study compiled by the U.S. Census Bureau in 1970 lists the median contract rent of a Twin Falls house at $65 a month, the lowest for any Idaho city with a population of 10,000 or more. Idaho Falls tops the list with a rent asked of $91 a month.

The reported vacancy rate of Twin Falls rentals, 6.6 per cent, is the fourth among the cities listed.

The average cost of owner-occupied homes, according to the study, is $14,000, sixth on the list.

Of a total of 7,760 houses in the city, 3301 of them were built before 1939. From 1969 to March 1, 1970, 144 new homes were built.

LET'S FREEZE GOVERNMENT TOO!

A Message Addressed to the Governor of Idaho And Members of the Legislature

The current Federal program of controls and freezes is asking...

1. Working men and women to sacrifice by holding down wage demands.
2. Businessmen to sacrifice by holding down prices.

What sacrifices will state government make?

Government surely doesn't want to ask others to make sacrifices it isn't prepared to make itself. If any program to control inflation is to succeed, state government, too, must cut spending.

It is unfair to control the economic decisions of people — and let government spending run rampant. Government must do its part — it, too, must show self-discipline.

To halt inflation, government spending must be frozen — better yet — cut. Economic control's (and the results of inflation). Frozen or reduced spending is one sure way to reduce inflationary pressures.

As wage and price increases are stabilized, so too should state government be stabilized.

It is also time for all agencies of government to evaluate existing programs by their measurable results and get rid of deadwood programs that have a proven record of ineffectiveness.

If the citizens of Idaho must struggle under economic controls, then government should, in all equity, restrain its own actions, with emphasis on reduced spending.

It is time for government to cooperate with the taxpayer in this fight against inflation.

This advertisement is sponsored by the Idaho State Chamber of Commerce as a means of informing Idaho Citizens of the absolute need for reduced government spending.

'Survival'

PAUL PFAU, right, an instructor at LaSalle High School in Pasadena, Calif., pauses with his students during an unusual class project in Death Valley. Paul is teaching a class in "survival" at the school and what better place to practice what they have learned in making the 130-mile-long trek from Badwater to the Slopes of Mt. Whitney. The project is one of many undertaken by the school to bring its students into close contact with experts from many various fields. (UPI)

Belfast store bombed

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Three gunmen bombed a paint and hardware store in Belfast today, setting the building ablaze.

A fireman received serious injuries when a can of paint exploded in his face as he entered the store to battle the fire, police said.

Elsewhere in the capital thousands of persons halted traffic when they gathered to watch the funeral procession of a police constable who was shot and killed in a machine gun ambush Thursday.

Friends and members of the family of Constable David Montgomery, 20, attended a short service in Belfast's Donegal Square Methodist Church and then joined fellow policemen behind a police band in a slow march through the city to Roselawn cemetery.

Police Sgt. Peter Gilgun, 26, also died and a third policeman received leg wounds in the ambush on the car carrying Montgomery and other policemen in Londonderry.

Civil rights organizers called protest marches today and Sunday in defiance of a government ban on such processions. The ban was imposed in an effort to prevent clashes between marchers and security forces of violence between minority Roman Catholics and majority Protestants.

A ranking army officer also said British troops would choose when and where to stop any marches and take measures to avoid being lured into ambushes.

A 22-year-old Belfast policeman was killed in an ambush Friday when he drove into a gas station on the edge of the Roman Catholic Ardoyne district.

Pacemaker application received

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) said today it has received its first application for permission to implant nuclear-powered heart pacemakers in humans.

Battery-powered pacemakers, which supply electrical stimulation to flagging hearts, have been in use for years. But their energy source has to be replaced from time to time, requiring periodic chest surgery. The nuclear pacemaker would function for years without replacement surgery.

The license application, now under review, came from the Veterans Administration Hospital in Buffalo, N.Y. The hospital asked authorization to implant pacemakers in 10 to 20 patients "on an investigational basis." Atom-powered pacemakers have been implanted in animals since 1966 in extensive experimental work to develop a safe and reliable device.

The Buffalo project, if authorized, would mark the first implantation of such devices in humans in this country.

Meanwhile, the AEC is proceeding to develop other "heart assist devices" including a "fully implantable artificial heart" with a minimum life of 10 years.

Such devices get their energy from radioactive plutonium-238 which provides a source of heat which converts into electricity.

Machine may have 'written' Hughes book

NEW YORK (UPI) — The purported Howard Hughes autobiography that McGraw-Hill Book Co. paid $650,000 for may be based on material from a computer printout produced by the billionaire's aides instead of personal interviews, it was reported Sunday.

Both Time and Newsweek magazines and the CBS program "60 Minutes" said author Clifford Irving's book on Hughes may have been written from information contained in a computerized biographical printout ordered several years ago by Hughes Tool Co. executive Bill Gay.

Life magazine, which had planned to serialize the book, said Saturday. "The manuscript might be genuine Howard Hughes, but the material might not have reached Irving in the way he claimed."

Irving claims to have compiled the autobiography from the transcripts of a series of interviews with Hughes. But Hughes, in a telephone interview from his Bahamas retreat and through several spokesmen, has denied that he ever collaborated with Irving on the book, and said he received none of the McGraw-Hill money.

Meanwhile, Irving is scheduled to appear before county and federal grand juries today. But he is expected to seek a delay in order to brief his new

Russ navy base built in Egypt

LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet Union is building a large naval base on Egypt's Mediterranean coast between Alexandria and the Libyan border, diplomatic sources said Sunday.

The base at Marsa Matruh is being financed, built and controlled by the Soviets and should be completed by the middle of the year, the sources said. It will complement the growing air base facilities near Cairo and in other parts of the area.

Built in circumstances of great secrecy and under virtually sole Russian supervision, Marsa Matruh will, on present indications remain reserved chiefly for Soviet needs and use, away from the congested and exposed Alexandria port, the sources said.

Outsiders, including top level Egyptians were said to be kept out of the area.

The Soviets, who are sensitive to the phrase of "bases," as far as they are concerned prefer to speak of naval "facilities," insofar as they concede the Marsa Matruh development at all.

Parts of the port were understood ready for use, but completion is expected by mid-year and work is said to be hastened currently.

When completed, Marsa Matruh will be able to take sizeable Soviet warships and submarines, including nuclear subs. Repair and refueling facilities were said to be provided and a supply ship may be anchored specifically to look after submarines in need of repair or a change of crews.

Marsa Matruh should supplement the growing number of other "notably air" facilities Russia has been developing in Egypt and, more recently in Syria and southern Yemen.

Outdoes Houdini

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A chain and padlocked teen-age escape artist plunged into San Francisco Bay's 48-degree water Sunday and emerged freed 20 seconds later.

It took Harry Houdini 57 seconds to do a similar stunt in the same spot in 1907.

Geoffrey Hanson, 18, of nearby Orinda, performed the feat chained with 48 pounds of links and padlocks. About 2,000 persons watched from shore as he hopped from a cruiser into seven feet of water.

Houdini had sheriff's deputies fasten the chains 65 years ago. Hanson used his own assistants. The youth also had a life-line fastened to his waist and tiny floats attached to his trunks in case of an "emergency" or "super-emergency."

Rescue attempt

Two die in Reno slide

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Skier Felix Oroz smashed into a tree and hung on while snow thundered by him.

"We never thought we'd have any trouble," said Oroz, 44, who later helped searchers find the buried bodies of his two companions.

The avalanche survivor and two 16-year-old Reno youths ignored warning signs at Mt. Rose ski resort Saturday. They cut across a slope of loose snow onto a dangerous cornice and apparently triggered the snow-slide, said resort manager John Pardon.

Richard Lyon and Steve Brown were killed when snow tumbled 800 feet down the slope. Two other youths were partially buried by the slide but were able to dig themselves out.

Oroz, who suffered shock and bruises, helped the ski patrol and Washoe County sheriff's deputies probe the snow for the two victims. They were found 90 minutes later.

Russ plead innocent to fish violations

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — Three Soviet fishing fleet officers have pleaded innocent to federal criminal charges of violating U.S. fishing waters in the Bering Sea.

Standing side by side in U.S. District Court Friday, each responded "not guilty" in Russian to the charges read by Judge James A. Von Der Heydt. Their pleas were translated into English by Vice Consul Albert Androshev of the Soviet Embassy at Washington, D.C., who served as their interpreter.

The judge granted the request of defense attorney James Wanamaker to delay further court action until Feb. 2 and said the defendants would continue to remain free in the custody of Androshev.

The three Russians are accused of unlawful fisheries support activities within the 12-mile offshore fisheries sanctuary claimed by the United States.

Rights activist arrested in NY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Civil rights activist Bayard Rustin, director of the A. Philip Randolph Institute, was arrested Sunday night for carrying a cane sword and was booked on a felony charge.

Rustin, 59, an assistant to the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., was picked up on West 42nd Street carrying a two-foot-long bamboo walking stick that contained a concealed 17-inch sword, police said.

Possession of a cane sword is a misdemeanor unless the defendant has a prior criminal record, according to police. In that case the charge becomes a felony. Rustin has several convictions stemming from civil rights activities and served 28 months in a federal prison for refusing to accept military induction during World War II.

Rustin became director of the institute, a civil rights organization, in 1966. A Quaker, he also has served as executive director of the War Resisters League.

Rustin took part in his first civil rights demonstration in 1947 in a challenge to segregated bus seating in North Carolina. He was arrested at that time and served 22 days on a chain gang.

Court chambers evoke comments

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — The huge cube of a modernistic courtroom in the federal building here has a cool-man color scheme that has been described variously as muddled yellow ochre, raw umber, muted chartreuse, tired algae, and millpond seum.

The entire ceiling is a light bulb — big, square, adjoining glass panes behind which is fluorescence so powerful that you seem to be sitting inside a box built on light, an effulgence that brings life to the soft green of the wall-to-wall deep pile carpet.

Yet such is the veer and jump implicit in the presence exuded by the seven defendants that you hardly notice the color for the charisma. The Harrisburg seven trial begins its second week of jury-picking Monday. The possible panel so far is two-to-one female.

The antiwar activist defendants are the Rev. Philip F. Berrigan, 49, a Josephite priest of commanding stature with a John Wayne face who spearheaded the anti-Vietnam war drive in the Catholic Church; Sister Elizabeth McAlister, 32; a nun of the Sacred Heart of Mary; the Revs. Joseph Wenderoth, 36, and Neil McLaughlin, 31; Anthony and Mary Scoblick, 31 and 33, a former priest and nun who married; and Egal Ahmad, 40, a Moslem Pakistani scholar.

Yet for all this religious rank, they are known and are commonly called, in corridor talk, Phil, Liz, Joe, Neil, Tony, Mary and Eq.

Eq is the most gregarious, talkative, and take-charge one — in the absence of Berrigan, who spends his out-of-court hours in prison. The defendants usually hold a press conference after court, and such is the dominance of Ahmad that one reporter remarked: "We seem to spend our evenings behind the Eq Qbal."

Berrigan is the bellwether in the alleged plot to publicize the antiwar cause by kidnapping Henry A. Kissinger, bombing federal building heating ducts in Washington, and vandalizing draft boards in nine states.

The jury prospects are parading too slowly through the stand-to-sit federal judge R. Dixon Herman. A man of uncommon equanimity, he grew a bit testy Friday and told the attorneys to step it up. Only 25 of the 46 prospects he wants had been passed as possible jurors by Friday's close, and the task will consume all this week.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks were mostly lower as trading rounded mid-session Monday. Turnover was fairly heavy.

Despite general optimism about the economic outlook, there was little fresh news to encourage investors. Most analysts suggested the market was giving way to profit taking, which influenced trading early last week in the wake of the market's spectacular rise since Thanksgiving.

Some analysts remarked that the resumption of profit taking indicated the market had further to go on the downside even though they believed the long term trend of the market is basically upward.

Advances held a small lead over declines, but popular averages pointed lower. A three-hour volume of 11,410,000 shares compared with 16,250,000 shares traded at a comparable period last Friday. Tasty Furniture, one of the day's softest spots, tumbled more than 12 points following a report on the Dow Jones news service that trading in Levitz was being investigated by the New York State Attorney General's office.

Heavily traded Mohawk Data Sciences fell more than 3. A Wall Street Journal story suggested the firm's third quarter would be disappointing. Steels surrendered fractions. Motors and chemicals were narrowly mixed.

Polaroid lost a point, but Superior Oil rose 3 1/2. Winnebago Industries 1 1/2.

Cloudy, chance of snow showers

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley-Rupert area. Cloudy tonight and Tuesday with chance of scattered snow showers. Not so cold tonight. Highs days 20s. Lows tonight 10 to 20. Outlook for Wednesday, clearing and colder.

Central Idaho mountains south of Salmon River. Cloudy tonight and Tuesday with snow showers. Windy at times. Warmer tonight. Highs days upper teens and 20s. Lows tonight 2 to 12. Outlook for Wednesday, partly cloudy with chance of snow showers, and colder.

Snake River Valley of Southeastern Idaho, and zero to about 10 above zero in the Magic and Treasure Valleys, of southern Idaho. A storm system is developing in British Columbia and will move rapidly southward over Southern Idaho tonight. This means increasing cloudiness throughout southern Idaho with mostly cloudy skies prevailing tonight and Tuesday. There will be scattered snow showers over the mountains of central Idaho late this afternoon with these showers spreading southward over southern Idaho and extreme eastern Oregon tonight and Tuesday. The amount of moisture is limited, however, and most of the snow showers will be confined to mountain areas and extreme southeastern Idaho.

The cloud cover tonight will prevent radiational cooling, so minimums Tuesday morning will average 10 degrees higher than this morning. A clearing trend is expected on Wednesday except for southeastern Idaho, where scattered snow showers will remain. At the same time colder nights will return.

Hughes Airwest earnings hiked

SAN FRANCISCO—Hughes Airwest today reported sharp financial improvements on all fronts during 1971 in spite of a depressed economy in the West, the lowest growth rate for the domestic airline industry in 10 years and a strike in the final weeks of December. The airline reported it slashed its net loss more than 75 per cent to $2.9 million from $11.8 million in 1970. Net loss in 1969 was $20.4 million. Operating loss was cut nearly 80 per cent but revenues were up more than 14 per cent. The mechanics union strike during the holiday season affected our 1971 performance and, if it continues, may prevent us from edging into the black for the first time during 1972. Irving F. Tague, vice president and general manager, said. The report represents a dramatic financial turnaround that has improved progressively since Hughes Air Corp. management took over the airline in April, 1970. Revenues jumped to $96.4 million in 1971 compared with $80.1 million in 1970, and $74.1 million in 1969. Operating loss dropped to $4.4 million compared with $6.7 million in 1970 and $20.4 million in 1969. Operating expenses increased about 10 per cent to $97.8 million compared with $95.9 million in 1970. In 1969 it was $89.3 million. Tague said major cost-cutting steps taken in 1971 included capturing a larger share of competitive markets lost by the predecessor airline, Air West, in 1969 and 1968. These included gains from Santa Ana, Ontario and Burbank to Las Vegas and to Phoenix. In addition, Mexico traffic more than tripled since the addition of Guadalajara to La Paz, Mazatlan and Puerto Vallarta in the airline's expanding route structure, he said. The mechanics strike on Dec. 15, joined by union pilots in an illegal refusal to work, will affect the airline's 1972 performance, Tague said. He said the early 1972 schedule included increases in DC-9 and E-27 available seat miles, departures and block hours by doubling flights into Mexico, new jet service to Palm Springs, and special flights to ski resorts from San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle and Portland. These plans were abandoned due to the strike. It will be a costly and slow process to regain the momentum and recapture our traffic potential, Tague said. The union leaders of the striking mechanics and aircraft cleaners have refused a company offer increasing wages and benefits by 16.2 per cent. In the Ninth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Los Angeles, the Air Line Pilots Association must prove why it should not be held in contempt of a court order to refrain from a concerted refusal to work.

Successful Investing

By ROGER E. SPEAR
Q—I would like to sell some stock but am not certain of the proper procedure for signing. Should I stock certificates be sent by regular mail?—R. J. A—There are two commonly used methods of endorsing and mailing stock certificates. Perhaps the safest way is to use a form called a stock power which your broker will be glad to furnish. The stock power is endorsed exactly as your name appears on the stock certificate and is mailed to your broker. Your stock certificate, however, remains unsigned and is mailed in a separate envelope. In this case regular mail suffices. If you endorse the back of the stock certificate then you should use registered mail. Remember your signature should match your name as it appears on the face of the certificate. You must sign on the line below the date line. Your broker's firm name should be entered between the words "appoint" and "attorney to." If you carefully follow either of these methods you should have no problems. Q—Do you have any information on Standard Fabrics? The stock price is down to $3.50 from $24 about 18 months ago. M. M. A—The $24 price you mention was prior to a 50 per cent stock dividend and is equal to 15 1/2 on the basis of current capitalization of 782,785 shares. This small Midwestern fabric converter had sales of $5 million and per share net of 17 cents in the first nine months of the year ended Oct. 31. Volume gained 66 per cent year-to-year with net rising 35 per cent. Growth has been keeping pace with the increase in home sewing. Standard's principal market, a new plant was opened in Toronto to cover the Canadian retail textile market. Company does a good business in warp knit fabrics. Although full year fiscal 1971 results have not been reported, sales of $7 million and a profit of at least 20 cents are expected. As of Oct. 31, 1970 current asset ratio was 1.4 to 1 with no long-term debt. At recent levels, this OTC stock has appeal for highly speculative accounts. Meat inspectors willing to report

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Federal meat inspectors have shown an incredible, amazing willingness to report unsanitary plant practices and lax Agriculture Department enforcement, a consumer newsletter editor said Friday. Harris Wellford, who works for Ralph Nader's Center for the Study of Responsive Law, said nearly 400 of the 1,000 inspectors offered the publication at $3 a year had subscribed. He said nearly all the subscribers enclosed an item or two about what they had encountered. "Virtually every one has his little horror story to tell," he said. "The response has been incredible." The first issue of the newsletter, eventually to be offered to all government food inspectors, contained the statement: "This newsletter for the first time opens a direct line of communication between the meat and poultry inspectors and the consumer. Its goal is to provide a voice for the inspector which will not be muffled by politics and conflict of interest at the regional or Washington level."

Golda would end breach with Russia

TEL AVIV (UPI)—Prime Minister Golda Meir said Saturday she would like to see the resumption of diplomatic relations between Israel and the Soviet Union, which were severed in the wake of the 1967 Middle East War.

"But the Russians are too deeply involved in the conflict between us and our (Arab) neighbors," she said in a radio interview.

She said the issue is not linked to Jewish emigration to Israel.

"There can be aliya (immigration) with diplomatic ties, there can be diplomatic ties without aliya. If the choice is ours, I would prefer the former," she said.

The prime minister voiced the hope Israel would not be the subject of compromise during President Nixon's planned trips to both Moscow and Peking. She said Mainland China may already be a political supporter of the Arabs along with the Soviet Union.

"China, too, would like to win a place for herself in the Arab world," she said. "Naturally we are sensitive about what is to become of us" during Nixon's talks in Peking and Moscow.

Mrs. Meir also said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat might have avoided the present student unrest in Cairo had he sought peace with Israel six months ago instead of declaring 1971 would be the year of decision in the Middle East.

"It was construed by the whole world, and certainly by the Egyptian people, as meaning: There will be either peace or war by the end of the year," she said.

Mrs. Meir said it seemed unlikely now an outright peace settlement between Israel and Egypt could be reached. "What matters is the possibility to reach some agreement, preferably a final agreement, but this seems to be considered unlikely," she said.

Referring to the American initiative for a special agreement to reopen the Suez Canal, closed since the June 1967 war, Mrs. Meir said the United States must act only as a go-between the two sides, and not become directly involved.

Reformer drops welfare effort

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., Friday angrily abandoned his drive for passage of a welfare reform program this year, charging that President Nixon doesn't really believe in it. Ribicoff, leader of liberal efforts to improve on Nixon's proposals to guarantee every needy family a minimum annual income, recommended instead a small pilot project to see if the approach "really works."

Ribicoff, the Kennedy administration's secretary of health, education and welfare (HEW) said it would be "impossible" to put the family assistance program into effect nationwide by Nixon's target of July 1, 1973, "without having one God-awful snarl-and tying this nation in knots."

"I'm trying to salvage something out of this," he said at a Senate Finance Committee hearing on the legislation. "The idea is good. But the President doesn't really believe in it. In heart, he didn't believe it was right. I think the pilot program is worth trying."

He accused the administration of torpedoing legislation two years ago that would have set up pilot programs and faulted Nixon for asking for $450 million this year to phase in a nationwide system "when we don't even know if it's going to work."

The $5.5 billion welfare reform bill, which twice has passed the House, would guarantee a needy family of four a minimum income of $2,400 a year.

Teamster boss trial to begin

ATLANTA (UPI)—Teamster Union boss Edward Partin of Louisiana, who was a key government witness in James Hoffa's conviction for jury tampering, goes on trial here Monday on charges of criminal conspiracy and extortion.

His first trial last summer in Butte, Mont., lasted four weeks, but the jury could not reach a verdict after hearing 67 witnesses.

Partin was indicted in 1969 in New Orleans for scheming to use strongarm tactics to monopolize the concrete business in Baton Rouge, La. The trial was moved to Montana after defense attorneys asked for a change of venue.

The second trial was shifted to Atlanta on another defense motion because, the attorneys said, many of the witnesses were from the south.

Jury selection could take several days.

A Baton Rouge concrete producer, Ted F. Dunham Jr., was accused of being a co-conspirator in the scheme and was convicted last year. He received a one-year sentence and he and three of his companions were fined $160,000.

Partin, 46, heads Baton Rouge local No. 5 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Partin and Dunham were accused of forcing contractors to deal with Dunham's firms by threatening strikes, work stoppages and labor violence.

A government witness, Wade McClanahan, said he solved problems for Partin by shootings, beatings, threats and sabotage.

According to the defense, Partin had no hand in acts of violence. He, acted only in connection with legitimate union grievances, they said.

Mahalia burial slated Tuesday

CHICAGO (UPI)—The funeral of Mahalia Jackson will be held on Chicago's South Side Tuesday and she will be buried in her native New Orleans, La.

The Rev. Leon Jenkins, pastor of the Greater Salem Baptist Church in Chicago, said today visitation services for the late gospel singer would begin Monday night.

He said Miss Jackson would be taken from the Branch Funeral Home to the church Monday, and the funeral would be held Tuesday morning. Jenkins said Mayor Richard J. Daley had suggested Miss Jackson's body be held in state at McCormick Place rather than the church on Monday night, but such plans were not settled.

Miss Jackson, 60, died Thursday in Little Company of Mary Hospital in Evergreen Park after surgery for a heart condition.

Commission okays phone price hike

BOISE — Idaho Public Utilities Commission members have authorized Gem State Utilities Corp. to increase telephone rates in Richfield, Bruneau and Grand View.

The ruling was announced in Boise this week following public hearings late last year in the communities involved. Gem State Utilities Corp. is authorized to provide telephone service to some 600 subscribers through three exchanges in Bruneau, Grand View and Richfield.

In addition to the rate increase in these three communities, the firm also asked

Group opposing park clarified

TWIN FALLS — Several organizations which call themselves "conservation" groups have announced their stand in opposition to a national park in the Sawtooth Mountain region.

A news report carried in the Times-News Thursday on the approval of the Sawtooth National Recreation Area bill in the House stated "conservation" groups have called for a national park.

Larry Drexler, spokesman for the Magic Valley Trail Machine Association said it is the "preservation" groups which are calling for a national

TWIN FALLS — The Senior Citizen Shopping Bus, sponsored by the Lynwood Shopping Center, will operate on Wednesday.

The bus will follow this departure schedule of locations and times: Pioneer Square, 9:30 a.m.; Just A Mere Inn, 9:40 a.m.; Colonial Apartment, 9:45 a.m.; Heritage Manor, 9:55 a.m.; Sunview Courts, 10:05 a.m.; Duvall Courts, 10:10 a.m.; Terry Courts, 10:15 a.m.; Washington Courts, 10:20 a.m.

A luncheon will be served at the Senior Citizen Center, the former St. Edward's School, following the shopping tour.

Those not participating in the shopping tour are invited to attend the luncheon at 12 noon.

CSI 'watchdog' agency possible

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho President James L. Taylor said today he would be "most willing to explore" the establishment of a consumer watchdog agency at the college.

Idaho Attorney General W. Anthony Park, in a speech last week in Twin Falls, said he would "encourage" the creation of a consumer protection agency at the school. There is already one such office, located at Idaho State University in Pocatello, and the attorney

Builder defends home construction

RUPERT — The builder of the controversial FHA-financed homes in the Mini-Cassia area today defended the construction of the homes against what he termed "the many charges, innuendoes and smears directed through the news media."

Philip Bare, owner of E-Z Homes, the general contractor for the houses, in a statement, said the "real losers" in the controversy are "people who need FHA-financed homes."

Bare defended the suppliers of materials and workmanship, local firms, saying "all of these are qualified and respected men in businesses of the area and all these people stand behind their work."

for a higher rate in the Owyhee, Nev., and Riddle and Grasmere areas. This request was denied by the PUC.

In the hearings held before the PUC, the applicant testified rates charged for the communication service had not increased since 1958, while operating and maintenance costs had climbed greatly during that time.

Increase requests by the applicant were based on meeting cost of construction work now in progress and included the telephone plant in service, less depreciation reserve, plus the construction in the amount of $675,291.

Minidoka blood drawing Tuesday

RUPERT — The Red Cross Bloodmobile will make its regular quarterly visit Tuesday from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Civic Auditorium for Minidoka County. The quota is 125 pints.

Lois Meeter needs 20 pints of blood replaced, according to Mrs. Dottie Burton, county blood chairman. Others needing replacement blood are David M. Burns, 17 pints, and Glen L. Bagley, eight pints. Bagley had open heart surgery Jan. 17 in the LDS Hospital, Salt Lake City.

It is the obligation of the recipients and their families to obtain replacement blood and gamma globulin they received, said Mrs. Burton.

Minidoka County residents have used 168 pints of blood since the last bloodmobile visit. Sixty were used at the local hospital, and 108 at hospitals outside the area, said Mrs. Burton, and there is still gamma replacement needed.

There is no charge to the patient for blood used, but there is a charge for labor and administration costs made by the hospital where the blood is used, said Mrs. Burton.

This charge includes costs of typing and cross matching the blood and other necessary laboratory work since each unit of blood a patient receives must be cross matched to insure compatibility, she added. Without donated blood each pint of blood would cost the patient another $35 to $50 if it had to be purchased.

Persons between the ages of 18-65 are eligible to donate blood. Anyone who has a history of hepatitis (infectious jaundice) at any time in the past is automatically excluded. Persons who have had malaria or a history of heart trouble are not accepted donors.

Anyone with diabetes is acceptable if the disease is controlled by diet alone, but if the patient requires medication for control, he or she should not donate blood. A prospective donor with allergies is excluded only if the allergic symptoms are currently present.

Persons are advised to eat their regular meal at the regular time but should avoid fatty foods.

Residents who are in the need of blood replacement are urged to telephone Mrs. Burton, giving the person's name and number of pints of blood for replacement prior to the Tuesday Red Cross Bloodmobile visit.

Hagerman school vote Wednesday

HAGERMAN — Area residents will go to the polls Feb. 2 to vote on rezoning of School District No. 233.

The rezoning has been done to meet federal requirements of one-man, one-vote concept. The rezoning, which has been completed recently by school trustees, has been approved by the state board of education.

Polls, which will be set up at the Prince Memorial gymnasium, Gooding County residents and at the office at Upper Salmon Falls Power Plant for Twin Falls County residents, will be open from noon to 8 p.m. for all eligible voters.

All five zones within the district have been changed, according to Supt. Kenneth Black, to give more equal representation.

Using local terms, descriptions of the newly proposed zones are:

Zone 1, all of former zones 1 and 2, presently represented by Dean Williams and Gene Turner, trustees, and the area beneath the rim from the Justice Grade north to the Malad River and west to Highway 30.

Zone 2, the area from the Malad River between Highway 30 and the Snake River south to township of Hagerman, and south under the rim from Justice Grade to the Tupper Grade road, west to the city limits.

Zone 3, that part of town on the west side of Highway 30 and the farming area from town to the Snake River, and the east part of town from the north limits to the first valley south of Main Street.

Zone 4, the southwest portion of the valley, between Highway 30 and the Snake River from south of town, south of the State Fish Hatchery road, and all of the school district in Twin Falls County.

Zone 5, the area between Highway 30 and the valley rim from town to the State Fish Hatchery road; and that portion of town east of Highway 30 from the first alley south of Main Street to the south.

Current school trustees are Dean Williams, zone 1; Gene Turner, zone 2; Alfred Sandy, zone 3; Frank Henslee, zone 4, and Louis Koopman, zone 5.

If the proposed rezoning is accepted by the residents, zones 1 and 2 will become zone 1; current zone 3 will be zone 5; current zone 5 will be zone 2, both with adjustments in zone lines and zone 4 will remain zone 4.

The newly proposed zone 3 will not be represented by any of the present trustees as this proposed zone is made up of the revision of the other zones.

Further information about the zoning changes and the election can be obtained by calling the office of Supt. Black where maps and detailed information are available.

Cassia hospital gets respirator

BURLEY — A positive pressure respirator has been given to the Cassia Memorial Hospital, Con McCombs, hospital board member, said Saturday.

He said the new equipment, which will be installed for use in the emergency room and also be available for out-patient use, costs about $650. The donor wishes to remain anonymous, the official said.

The respirator operates on either air or oxygen and is equipped with a pump, making it usable wherever there is an electric outlet. It gives relief and often saves lives of persons with breathing difficulties, such as those with bronchitis, asthma and emphysema, McCombs said.

Dr. James Annett, on externist service at the hospital for 10 weeks, also pointed out the respirator delivers medication and aerosols directly to the lungs, bringing immediate relief.

The new equipment was received by Dr. Annett and Lori Anderson, RN, supervisor of the outpatient department.

Addresses are needed for Ruth Cryder Bray, Alene Dunn Freeling, Carl Frazelle, Alfred Giese, Lillian Johnson, Geraldine Kidd, Joyce Larkin, Harley Miller, Julu Fern Osborne, McClure and Bryant Wall.

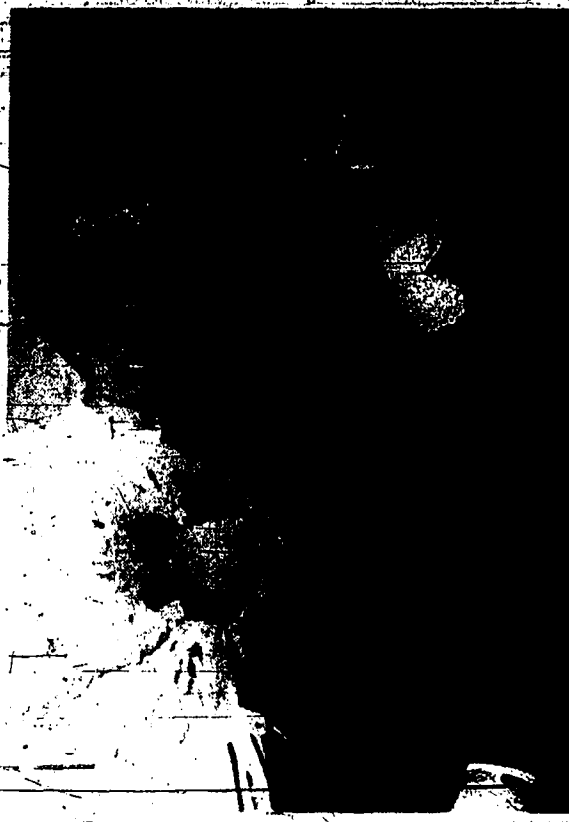

Valley man receives appointment

HAGERMAN — A former Hagerman resident has recently been appointed to the staff of the optometric center of the New York State College of Optometry according to college officials.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Jolley, Hagerman, have received the announcement of the appointment of their son, Jerry L. Jolley, to the office of assistant director for planning, evaluation and community relations at the optometric center of New York. His duties include the planning of new satellite programs in the metropolitan area, especially optometric inclusion in existing community health programs and the establishment of new community optometric programs.

In addition, Dr. Jolley has been named instructor in public health at the new state college of optometry, State University of New York. This semester he is teaching a course to 80 students in the college's special program for practicing optometrists.

A native of Hagerman, Dr. Jolley was graduated from Hagerman High School, received his O.D. degree from Pacific University's College of Optometry and a masters degree in public health from the University of North Carolina.

KIMBERLY — Janet Kay Butler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Butler, Kimberly, became the bride of Keith Douglas Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant W. Carlson, Hansen, in an evening candlelight service Jan. 17 at the Kimberly United Methodist church.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Delbert P. Remaley.

Mrs. Harriet Denton was organist. Tall baskets of pink chrysanthemums flanked the wedding party for the ceremony. Brass candelabra holding pink tapers and decorated with small pink chrysanthemums and greenery completed the setting.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white floor-length crepe gown, fashioned with an empire waistline and long full sleeves with cuffs at the wrists. Appliques of lace woven with pink ribbon extended down the front of the gown as well as across the bodice and upper sleeves. A shoulder-length, three-tiered veil of bridal illusion was held by a seed pearl crown. The gown was designed by the bride and made by Mrs. Robert Presnell.

The bride carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations, deep red roses and lilies of the valley, enhanced with pink streamers. She also carried a white lace-trimmed handkerchief carried by the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Anna Hollifield, on her wedding day Jan. 6, 1916.

Lana Butler, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Theresa Presnell, cousin of the bride, and Christine Watt, Twin Falls, cousin of the bridegroom.

Morgan Stanger served as best man. Groomsman were Davis Lamdon, Twin Falls, and Dean Wyan, Kendrick, Ushers were Tom Billington, Twin Falls, Terry Pearson, Buhl, and Robert Martin, Wenatchee, Wash.

Taper lighters were Jody Perkins and Jerry Clements, cousins of the bride. Jamie Perkins was flower girl and Tony Clements was ringbearer.

In charge of gifts were Mrs. Wanda Presnell, Mrs. Carl Peterson, aunts of the bride, and Nancy Miller, Twin Falls. Gifts were received by Robin Perkins, Lee Ann Clements, McCulley Clements and Shelly Presnell, cousins of the bride. Ginny Poppewell, Buhl, cousin of the bridegroom, was in charge of the guest book.

Boys' look

Watch for the country-city effect in boys' clothing for fall of '72. The look, says the Boys' and Young Men's Apparel Manufacturing Association, is handsome, not tricky; more tailored. The two-button, single-breasted suit is shaped but not extreme, still has wide lapels. The choice of accessories gives it either the country or the city look. Many will have matching vests.

Over 40? You can still think young," says Purdue University's Wallace Denton, professor of child development and family life.

Ketchum library book use boosted

KETCHUM — Book circulation at the Ketchum Community Library boosted almost 4,000 books in 1971 over 1970, according to Mrs. Daniel Hart, librarian.

Mrs. Hart told the annual meeting of the board of directors of the Ketchum-Sun Valley Community Library Association that the biggest jump came in adult book circulation. About 2,000 more adult books were circulated in 1971, she said. Circulation of adult non-fiction books nearly doubled.

The librarian's report followed the board's annual election of officers and board members. Mrs. G. Robert Ackerman was named executive chairman. She succeeds past chairman, Mrs. George Kneeland. The remaining officers elected to the executive board include Mrs. Glenn Cooper, vice chairman; Mrs. Michael Malo, recording secretary; Mrs. Edmund Dumke, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Rene Meyer, treasurer.

Mrs. Clifford Bentley, chairman of the nominating committee, presented a slate of five proposed new members to the board for their consideration. All five were elected unanimously and included Mrs. Robert Neeley, Mrs. Samuel Hazard, Mrs. William F. Norris, Mrs. Philip Ritzau and Mrs. Wynnefred Harmon.

Another group of board members were re-elected for a two-year term. They include Mrs. Rene Meyer, Mrs. Clifford Bentley, Mrs. Clara Spiegel, Mrs. L. S. Bill, Mrs. Leif Odmark, Mrs. Louis Mallane, Mrs. Betty Chalfonte, Mrs. Gerald Sidwell and Mrs. Jim Glenn.

After the election, Mrs. Robert Neeley, chairman of the Gold Mine committee, said that proceeds from the thrift shop, the main supporter of the library, more than doubled in 1971.

Story hour attendance for the spring session tripled, Mrs. Louis Mallane, chairman of the story hour committee, told the board. She requested the board consider scheduling weekly story hours in 1972.

Yearly reports were presented by committee heads. Mrs. Clifford Bentley and Mrs. Michael Malo, co-chairman of the librarians committee; Mrs. Leif Odmark, ways and means; Mrs. Gerald Sidwell, publicity and Mrs. Donald Atkinson, Tour of Homes.

Also in her annual report, Mrs. Hart said about 1,200 books were added to the collection in 1971, compared to 850 in 1970. In 1970, two records were purchased by the library. Mrs. Hart said last year 124 records were added to the collection.

Mrs. Hart said 17 new periodicals, representing a wide range of interests, were acquired by the library last year.

1-week heart fund drive scheduled in February

TWIN FALLS — Heart Association volunteers will launch a one-week fund drive Feb. 14 thru 20.

County chairman, Mrs. Richard Brizee, Twin Falls, said the workers will begin collecting contributions on St. Valentine's Day and hope to cover the entire county in the one week's effort.

Co-chairmen have been selected for various divisions of the drive and are being named in each community of the county to assist Edd Bossard will be special events chairman and Gary Fay, chairman of the business district solicitations. Fay said this year the residential and rural areas will be covered first with the business districts covered in a follow-up program.

Heart Fund does not receive United Fund assistance, Mrs. Brizee said, because it represents a "health" organization rather than a charity or service group.

Research and new developments, some of them financed through the Heart Fund, have resulted in a marked reduction in the nation's killer, heart disease, she said. She said the American Heart Association estimates 51,000 Americans are alive today who would have been heart disease victims through projection of the 1950 death rate from heart and blood vessel diseases.

Much is yet to be done in the field of heart transplant surgery and in research to help prevent premature heart attacks that kill about 160,000 Americans under 65 years of age each year.

Part of the funds are also used for public education to let the public know the living habits which will protect them from heart attacks.

DEAR ABBY: What has happened to you? You used to encourage married couples to do everything within their power to save their marriages. Lately, you give the impression that divorce could be the answer for some couples. Why?

DEAR READER: Because I think it's more important to save people than marriages. And in some cases, in an effort to save the marriage, people have destroyed themselves.

DEAR ABBY: Our 7-year-old printed the following letter to Santa: "Dear Santa, all I want for Christmas is for my Mommy to quit smoking because I love her very much and don't want her to die. If you bought more toys for me please give them to some other little boy because all I want is a Mommy who doesn't cough anymore and doesn't get nervous when she can't find a cigarette butt. Thank you."

His Mommy cried when she read it. But she's still smoking. Sign me "Billy's father" or more appropriately, "DISGUSTED."

DEAR DISGUSTED: Mommy's hooked. If she really wants to kick the habit, she can, but she'll need encouragement and understanding, not contempt.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 years old and I have four big problems. A big nose, two big ears that stick out, and hair that is very thin.

I like to wear my hair straight and plain, but I have to keep brushing it all the time because if I don't, my ears stick out.

I am very self-conscious about my nose, too, especially with these big ears of mine. Can you help me, Abby? I hope so because the rest of me is okay. FUNNY-LOOKING GIRL.

DEAR GIRL: Excessive brushing makes hair oilier, so easy with the hairbrush. Also, if your hair has some curl to it, it wouldn't be so "thin" and your ears wouldn't stick out.

In a few years you can put your nose (and possibly your ears, too) in the hands of a plastic surgeon, so cheer up, Honey.

DEAR ABBY: That letter from a nosy neighbor who wants to know if it's normal for a boy who's in the 8th grade to kiss his mother goodbye every morning, sounds like my neighbor. Please inform her that all my sons, ranging in age from 5 to 21, kiss me goodbye in the morning. I'm sure I don't know where they get such "abnormal" ideas. From their father, I guess, who's been doing it for 22 years.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 6770, Los Angeles, Cal. 90060. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

A Lovelier You

GET THIN, WEIGH IN

By Mary Sue Miller

It's time to get serious about your weight. If you're not losing weight, you're not doing it right. Here are some tips to help you get started.

1. Eat less. You don't need to starve, but you do need to eat less. Cut out sugary drinks, fatty foods, and anything that's not good for you.

2. Exercise more. You don't need to run a marathon, but you do need to move. Walk, swim, or do any kind of exercise that gets your heart rate up.

3. Drink more water. Water is essential for your body. It helps you burn fat and keeps you hydrated. Aim for at least 8 glasses a day.

4. Get enough sleep. Sleep is important for your metabolism. If you're not getting enough sleep, your body will hold onto fat.

5. Be patient. Losing weight takes time. Don't expect overnight results. Stick to your plan and you'll see progress.

Now for your Fast Day's Menu. The count is approximately 1200 calories. Foods are balanced to provide energy and maintain health. The only permissible substitution is broiled meat or fish at dinner in a like amount. Breakfast: Half grapefruit, sweetened as desired with 2 tsp honey. 2 slices toast, 1 dietetic bread lightly buttered, hot beverage no sugar.

Luncheon: Grilled beefsteak. Open-face grilled cheddar cheese sandwich with 1 slice bread, 1 slice apple, 1 slice cold unsweetened orange. Dinner: Baked broast of chicken; 8 asparagus stalks, lemon garnish, radishes and celery; lime jello, with skim milk as desired, demitasse. Between meals: One pint of skim milk per day.

Tomorrow: How To Exercise And Like It. SECRETS OF A LOVELY FIGURE. What's our figure problem? To achieve total attractiveness and for my booklet, SECRETS OF A LOVELY FIGURE. It contains easy ways to reduce weight and proportions; to overcome grooming problems, such as fuz, freckles and blemishes; to move with grace and poise. For your copy, write to Mary Sue Miller in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin.

had two no-trump, it fails miserably in a most important requirement — preparation for the opening lead.

Jim: South found that out quickly. West opened the queen of hearts. South covered with dummy's king. East plunked on the ace and the defense had five tricks before South could gain the lead.

Oswald: I can imagine South's wails of anguish. He must have pointed out that at West held the ace of hearts or if any other suit had been led, he would have scored game and rubber.

Jim: He sure did. What he didn't point out was that if he had responded two clubs then North would bid two no-trump and it wouldn't matter where the ace of hearts was or what was led.

Oswald: Losing bridge players like to complain about their bad luck. Luck does play a major part in your results in any one session. However, in the long run luck tends to even out and it is the skill factor that determines the winners and losers.

Jim: One class of players who suffer from this "hard luck" is the one who rushes to bid no-trump when his holding calls for some other bid. Here is a good example.

Oswald: With 14 high-card points the South hand meets one requirement for a two no-trump response. Unfortunately for the man who

Visitors attend Lincoln meeting

RICHFIELD — Distinguished visitors were welcomed by Mrs. A. G. Biswell to Richfield Chapter No. 72, Order of Eastern Star, Thursday night.

They were Mrs. Ruby Dean, Hollister, worthy matron of Chapter 74; Mrs. Marion Langdon, worthy matron of Magic Chapter 72, Twin Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Claude Allen, worthy matron and worthy patron of Hagerman Valley Chapter 74. Three members of the Bethany Lodge number 23, Hailey also were welcomed.

Mrs. Biswell and Clarence Lemmon, worthy patron, presided over the business meeting where plans were made for a visit of Mrs. Laura Callender, Cascade, worthy grand matron of Idaho OES. She will make her official visit to the lodge on Feb. 14.

A school of instruction will be held at 1:30 p.m. and at 6:30 p.m. a dinner will be held at the Richfield Methodist Church.

Those wanting reservations should call either Mrs. Lemmon or Mrs. Biswell.

Mrs. Iva Trowbridge will handle table decorations for the dinner and Mrs. Biswell will be in charge of decorations at the refreshment table after the meeting.

Members of the dinner committee are Mrs. Edward Schisler, Mrs. Pricilla Pridmore, Clifford Conner and Clarence Lemmon.

Note was made that Mrs. Biswell and her husband attended meeting at Star of the West, Chapter 35, Wendell, and Magic Chapter 82, Twin Falls.

Invitations to attend visitation meetings of the worthy grand matron were received from Cosmopolitan Chapter 36, Gooding; Feb. 2, E-da-Ho Chapter 77, Paul, Feb. 1, and visits for friendship night at Filer and Magic Chapters on Feb. 5 and 21, respectively.

At the Feb. 10 meeting in Richfield, a Valentine party will be held.

Farrest Armstrong and John Lemmon will be in charge of arrangements for the Valentine party. Refreshment committee will be Mrs. Schisler and Birk Albert.

Mrs. Pridmore was hostess for the meeting Thursday.

ONE DISH MEAL

Fill a large casserole dish half full of sliced potatoes. Slice six carrots thinly on top of the potatoes. Slice large white onions thinly to cover the potatoes and carrots. Sprinkle salt and a little pepper between each layer.

Cut bacon slices to cover all the vegetables. Fill the dish half full of water and cover with foil. Bake 45 minutes at 400 degrees.

Remove foil and let the bacon brown another 15 minutes, cooking one hour all together.

The Times-News will pay $5 each week for Magic Valley Favorites. If you have a favorite recipe, just mail it to the Recipe Department, Women's Page, Editor. The recipe becomes the property of the Times-News and cannot be returned.

Harney outlasts Irwin for San Diego victory

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Veteran Paul Harney, playing steadily if not spectacularly, while young Hale Irwin faltered, won his first tournament in seven years Sunday when he closed with a two-under-par 70 for a one-stroke victory in the $150,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open.

The 26-year-old Irwin, who led Harney by a stroke after three rounds, threatened to make a runaway when he shot a three-under-par 33 on the front nine at Torrey Pines.

But Irwin, a former University of California defensive back who turned pro in 1968, bogied three holes on the back nine and wound up with an even-par 72 and $17,100 instead of a winner's purse of $30,000.

Bruce Crampton shot a 72 to finish alone in fourth place at 10-under 278, a stroke ahead of Tucson Open champ Miller Barber, George Knudson, Dave Eichelberger and Bert Yancey.

Harney, whose last tour victory was in the Los Angeles open in 1965, trailed by three strokes after playing the first nine in one-under-par 35.

Both he and Irwin bogied the 10th hole but from there in, Harney parred six holes and birdied two, including the 18th, to finish with a 72-hole score of 13-under 273.

Irwin was ahead by a stroke when he three-putted the 15th hole for a bogey, his second putting the cup and rolling away. That left him tied with Harvey and he had a chance to force the fourth straight playoff on the tour on the final hole but his 15-foot try for a birdy was short.

Gardner Dickinson shot a final round 68 to grab third place and $10,650 with a 72-hole score of 11-under 277.

Barber shot a 67, Knudson a 68, Eichelberger 69 and Yancey a two-under 70.

The 280 group, eight under par, was made up of John Lofz, Hornero Blanca's, Labron Harris, Phil Rodgers, Bob Murphy and Bobby Mitchell.

Jack Nicklaus shot a final round 72 and finished back in the pack at 285, a spot also shared by Japan's Takashi Murakami who skied to a final-round 76.

Lee Trevino, the 1971 PGA player of the year and second leading money winner behind Nicklaus, was even farther back at 290, four over par.

Last year, Harney played in 15 tournaments and finished 91st on the money list with $23,661. Harney played at Los Angeles, the Crosby and Tucson previously this year and picked up $2,749, so he already has banked $32,749 this year.

Harney quit the tour early in 1963 to become a club pro and in recent years he has been connected with Pleasant Valley, in Sutton, Mass.

Wintering conditions for big game change often in Idaho

Some deer and elk are eating green grass and bedding down on snow-free slopes while other big game animals are on the bare edge of survival because of long cold snaps and deep snows, the Idaho Fish and Game Department said today.

It all depends on what you are talking about and when and where. Big game wintering conditions often change from day to day, even hour to hour.

In Hells Canyon of the Snake River, the Salmon River below Riggins, the Little Weiser River, and even bare south-facing slopes above the North Fork of the Clearwater River are greening up. Other places have deep snows and severe cold and big game animals are in trouble.

Department workers reported at mid-week that deer and elk are beginning to pull out into bare slopes, utilizing grasses for 1,000 feet or so above the river in the Race Creek area near Riggins. There is some green-up of the grass and much bare ground at lower elevations in the McCall Region. In the Council District there are many bare spots in the Little Weiser and Hells Canyon area, and deer are scattered.

New storms, strong winds and extremely cold temperatures brought winter to the panhandle region again at a time when generally speaking moderate temperatures had reduced the snow pack and the serious wintering and game problems existed. Most lower ranges had snow depths under two feet, but another night of one inches of snow came down. The upper Council of Idaho drainage is the most critical for game animals.

At this time, before the last storm, rain and moderating weather in the Bonners Ferry area helped the game and the low areas were free of snow. Some emergency feeding still provided to deer and elk of the Middle Fork of the Payette River and the upper end of the South Fork of the Payette River. Elsewhere in the drainage winter conditions are greatly improved. In spite of some good weather, the game still have a lot of winter ahead. Conditions may change, and dry, with new snow, below normal cold or a combination of both. Field personnel are monitoring the situation daily and provide emergency feed as needed.

For example, 15 inches of new snow fell at Fairfield recently with below zero temperatures in the Sun Valley-Ketchum area. But the winter so far has been milder than the last three winters. Deer Creek lay about two feet of snow but no game problems and on there creek snow has removed about 10 to 12 inches and is available as forage for the animals again. In the eastern region, severe conditions are faced by wintering animals.

Before the last storm, rain and moderating weather in the Bonners Ferry area helped the game and the low areas were free of snow. Some emergency feeding still provided to deer and elk of the Middle Fork of the Payette River and the upper end of the South Fork of the Payette River. Elsewhere in the drainage winter conditions are greatly improved. In spite of some good weather, the game still have a lot of winter ahead. Conditions may change, and dry, with new snow, below normal cold or a combination of both. Field personnel are monitoring the situation daily and provide emergency feed as needed.

Weather in the Upper Snake region has been great and extremely cold. Emergency feeding is still necessary at Iron Triangle and Victor Angle, where forage plants are unavailable for the most part. Although some new snow has fallen, ridges and slopes from Challis downstream have bared up somewhat. Stanley recently reported heavy snow and blizzard conditions, and snow over the rest of the region reported most of the settling and melting that occurred on Jan. 28. Deer continue to hold their own on the road in the North Fork district and along the Snake River, up the Lemhi. Game animals also are dropping out the bottoms of the East Fork. No serious wintering problems are faced by wintering animals.

Brundage attacks winter olympics

SAPPORO (UPI)—International Olympic Committee chairman Avery Brundage Sunday attacked two of his pet states, the Winter Games and skiing, in his opening address to the 2nd International olympic committee in Sapporo.

The four-day opening ceremony was attended by Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko, the royal couple having braved icy winds, blizzards to fly to Sapporo by jetliner from Tokyo.

Brundage, in his three-page opening address, said today the Olympic Winter Games are far from universal they are monopolized by only a dozen countries, and they are difficult to keep amateur.

The winter tourist business is so important to some countries that their ski teams have literally become almost government departments and are subsidized accordingly. This is not sport. They can only be given to large communities which can afford the enormous expense and they are more likely to be a set of world championships than Olympic Games.

Brundage talked about recent attacks by ecologists who deplore the damaged surrounding and by taxpayers who resent the expenses of preparing a site. This was a reference to the problem facing the organizers of Denver who

Leaders play in cage action

In the continuing "crucial" series of the Magic Valley conference's perils of being a leader series, the Declo Hornets will travel to Castleford and one of them must drop out of the league lead and, for about the fourth straight week, the myriad battles of Magic Valley co-leaders—once again there are four of them—highlight a midweek schedule.

While Declo is at Castleford, Kimberly will be at Murtaugh, Oakley at Hagerman, Raft River at Hansen, Carey at Bliss and Camas County at Blumrock.

Right now, its Hagerman, Castleford, Declo and Murtaugh who are tied for the Magic Valley lead with two losses each. Castleford won the first meeting against Declo on Larry Reese's halfcourt desperation shot from midcourt as the final buzzer sounded. Of the two games Declo has lost in the league, they've been no worse than tied going into the final five seconds.

Oakley confused the situation Friday night by applying a last-second loss to Declo and now would like to scramble Hagerman's plans. The Pirates are hopeful of getting well, a week of the flu having weakened the club and two starters who weren't sick-picked up leg injuries.

Raft River and Hansen are in the also-ran position in the Magic Valley league and both are aching for a win.

In a non-league game, the Murtaugh Red Devils appear to need 69 points since they've twice bowed to Kimberly so far and each time the Bulldogs did it with 68—at 68-67 and 68-61.

On the Northside conference, pace-setting Camas County repays a trip to Blumrock, a change in the schedule, which will leave the Musers idle on Feb. 18. The Musers coasted home with an easy win Saturday night against the Raiders, who have been stripped of half the team for disciplinary reasons.

Carey will be at Bliss in the second conference clash, Carey having won the first meeting 62-41.

Havlicek paces Celts past 76ers

BOSTON (UPI)—John Havlicek scored 33 points Sunday to lead the Boston Celtics to an easy 130-114 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers despite a scorching 41-point performance by Billy Cunningham.

The victory left the Celtics, who played the second half without a coach, five games ahead of the second place New York Knicks in the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division race.

The 76ers, paced by the red hot Cunningham kept pace with the Celtics for the first two periods, trailing only 56-51 at the end of two periods.

But Dave Cowens, who finished with 27 points, sank seven shots without a miss and Havlicek added 11 of his 41 points in the third quarter as Boston put the game out of reach, outscoring the 76ers 41-30 to make it 99-86.

Cunningham hit on 15 of 22 shots from the floor for a 21 per cent shooting average.

Walker shoots Bulls to win

CHICAGO (UPI)—Chet Walker scored 29 points Sunday afternoon to lead the Chicago Bulls to a 109-99 victory over the Detroit Pistons in a National Basketball Association game.

It was the seventh win in the last eight games for the Bulls and the eighth loss in the last nine for the Pistons, whose losing streak was extended to five games.

The Bulls won on a second half comeback as they poured in 160 points in the final 24 minutes while limiting the Pistons to 49. Detroit had a nine-point edge after one quarter and a 50-49 margin at the half.

Thomas is arrested on drug possession

GREENVILLE, Tex. (UPI)—Duane Thomas, whose silent treatment to the press gained him more publicity than the running talents which helped bring the Dallas Cowboys their first world championship, was arrested early Sunday and charged with possession of marijuana.

Thomas, 24, and his younger brother Burton were stopped on this North Texas town when the car they were driving was mistaken for one believed stolen from a Dallas car lot Jan. 11.

The car was not stolen. Thomas said it was a courtesy car loaned him by a car dealer in Dallas.

Arresting officers Norman Gray, a deputy sheriff in Hunt County, and W. E. Jeter, a state highway patrolman, said when they stopped the 1972 Pontiac, they detected the odor of marijuana.

They said a small quantity of marijuana about the amount that would fill two matchboxes was found in the car.

Thomas and his brother were charged with possession of marijuana before County Judge Gene Gaudin and were jailed in lieu of $5,000 bond.

A spokesman for the sheriff's department said he understood bond money was being brought from Dallas to secure the brothers' release.

Dallas Cowboy officials, including General Manager Tex Schramm, after a hurried conference, said the club would have no statement concerning the incident.

A club spokesman declined to say if it was the club which would provide bond money.

Thomas' sophomore season with the Cowboys was a tempestuous one from the first. He got into a salary dispute with the club and then, in a news conference which came after his teammates had already reported to training camp, Thomas called coach Tom Landry a "plastic man" because of his supposed lack of emotion and called Schramm a liar.

That disagreement was patched up through the help of former Cleveland Brown running star Jim Brown, and Thomas began playing for Dallas again in the fourth game of the regular season.

But Thomas, although his performance on the field more than matched his outstanding rookie year, refused to give interviews to the press.

Thomas' lack of cooperation with the media gained more publicity during the week preceding the Cowboys' Super Bowl joust with Miami than the game did itself.

Thomas' future with the Dallas Cowboys, even before Sunday's incident, was in doubt.

A spokesman for the Hunt County sheriff's office in Greenville, about 50 miles northeast of Dallas, said the local police received a call from Dallas police early Sunday.

They said they believed a stolen Pontiac was being driven on Interstate Highway 30 in the direction of Greenville. The spokesman said. They said the car had been spotted by a car dealer who said he thought the car was the same one that had been stolen from his lot earlier this month. It had a dealer's license tag on it.

Late shot lets Bucks nip Bullets

COLLEGE PARK (UPI)—Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 19 points, but it was Elvin Hayes' breakaway lay up with seven seconds left that led the Milwaukee Bucks to their 10th straight victory over the Baltimore Bullets, 114-112 Sunday afternoon. The Bucks victory, their 43rd of the year, snapped a four game Bullets winning streak.

After Clark led Bullets with 24 points, but missed a lay up with 11 seconds left and the scored tied 110-110.

Jabbar jammed a layup six seconds later to make it 112-110 and Dave Stallworth of the Bullets missed from the corner on a jumper. McGlocklin picked off the rebound and drove the length of the court to score.

The Bucks got 22 points from Bob Dawidgale and 18 apiece from Oscar Robertson and Lucius Allen. Jack Martin chipped in 21 for Baltimore and Wes Unseld, who outplayed Jabbar the first half, added 18 points 20 rebounds.

Equals record

BERLIN (UPI)—Rita Schmidt of East Germany equalled the world's unofficial best indoor high jump record for women Sunday by leaping 6 feet 1-3/4 inches in the 16th International Indoor Sports Festival in East Berlin.

Thamark equalled the record set by Austria's Ilona Gusenbauer. Rita Schmidt's leap also bettered the old East German best indoor performance by Rita Gildmeister by a half inch.

Pacific upsets Long Beach St.

STOCKTON, Calif. (UPI)—University of Pacific used a balanced scoring attack to upset fourth-ranked Long Beach State 104-86 Sunday for the Tigers 34th consecutive victory at home.

Pacific hit a scorching 59 per cent of its shots in the first half in handing the 49ers only their second loss of the season in 18 outings. UOP had all five starters in double figures.

Frei accepts Denver job

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—Former Oregon head football coach Jerry Frei, said Saturday, he has accepted a coaching job with the Denver Broncos of the National Football League.

Frei said he will be in charge of the Broncos' offensive line under newly appointed head coach John Ralston.

Frei, who resigned as head coach at Oregon 10 days ago, said he will report to Denver Feb. 13.

Frei said he had not thought about coaching in the professional ranks until Ralston called him shortly after he resigned.

"I thought there would be a lot of things about professional football I wouldn't like. And I was wrong," Frei said. "I like the people, and the place. I have great faith in John (Ralston), and a lot of respect which I learned the hard way."

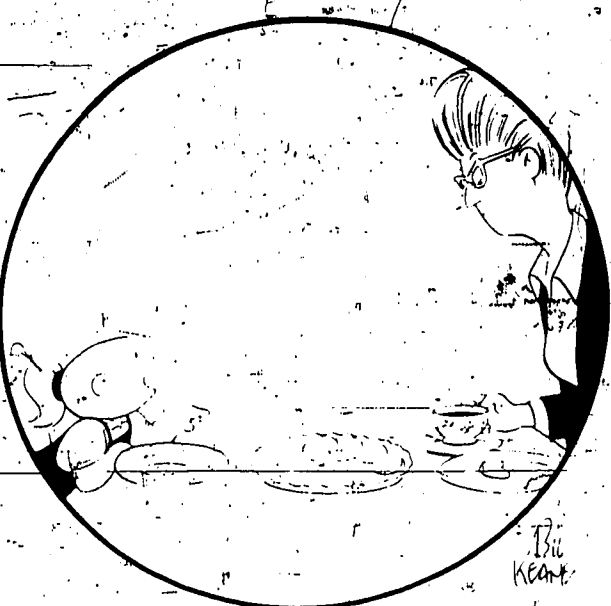

Bills have first pick in draft

NEW YORK (UPI)—Representatives of the 26 National Football League clubs will begin assembling in New York Monday for the annual college player draft, which starts Tuesday at 10 a.m. EST at the Marriott Essex House.

The Buffalo Bills, who finished with the worst record in the NFL, 1-13, will have the No. 1 pick, with the rest of the order determined by inverting the final standings. Ties were broken by a coin flip and teams involved in ties will alternate every round.

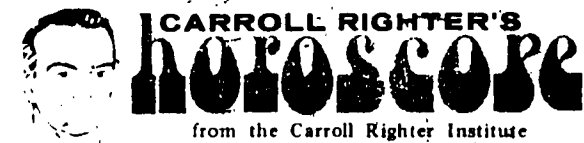

A total of 442 players, all of whom have completed their college eligibility, will be taken during the 17-round session, which will last two days. A 15-minute time limit is in effect for the first two rounds with the subsequent 15 rounds limited to five minutes per pick.

FAMILY CIRCUS

"It's a good thing Billy and Jeffy aren't here 'cause they'd eat up all the cookies. Can I have some more, Grandma?"

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1972

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You may have minor delays and stumbling blocks in the path of your progress, but this is nothing to worry about. You can turn out to be a successful day by putting your finest efforts in whatever you are doing. Show that you have faith. Use more kindness and courtesy when dealing with your fellow men. Your ambitions are particularly high at present.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You may be under the wrong impression as to your real position with associates, so double check and make sure. Being extremely careful in writing checks can save money for you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You need a better way to handle routine work so that you have more leisure time. Confer with experts who know all the shortcuts. Attend a social gathering tonight and have fun!

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have to start early and delve into the work ahead of you so that you please higher-ups and gain what you want and need. Show that you think clearly. Relax with mate tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You are able to have delightful talks with friends today. Something very good can come of this. An evening spent among your favorite books can be most enlightening.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Your desire to please good friends in some way should be followed through, so that you gain more goodwill in the days ahead. Remember: "A friend in need is a friend indeed."

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) An excellent day to buy or sell with astuteness and fairness, thereby resulting in satisfaction on all sides. Show that you practice what you preach. Have fun tonight!

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You think that you can now overlook your responsibilities and go off on a tangent, but this could make it more difficult to handle later on. Show that you have wisdom.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are so intent on getting your own way now that you could easily antagonize allies and cause much trouble. Instead, show that you are a fair and just person. Use reason.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have confidential affairs that need to be handled in a conscientious fashion. Use your finest tact. Engage in the social fun you like in the evening. Take mate along.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have made some fascinating friends of late, but make sure not to annoy them with affairs they are not interested in. Put them into the right category. Take it easy tonight!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are interested in something of a civic nature and this is a fine day to pursue such activities and get excellent results. Making the right contacts can help you in the future.

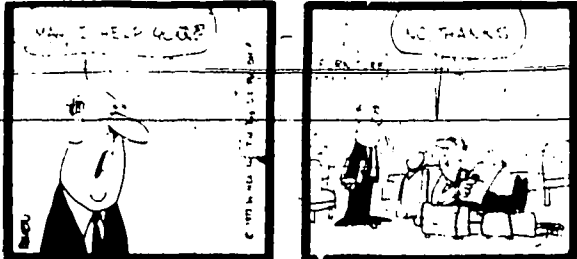

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have some excellent ideas, but some persons may try to discourage you. Don't let this deter you from going ahead with them. Show your Piscean ingenuity. Relax tonight!

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY He or she will be one of those children who is a human dynamo and will want away at any cost. This could be annoying. However, be patient. Be sure to give religious training early in life and express love. Then the child here becomes successful.
