FIRST RETURNS in New Hampshire primary election from Dixville Notch are cited by Town Clerk Frederick Tillotson. He counted first ballots, cast shortly after midnight today, which gave leads to President Nixon and Democratic candidate Sen. Edmund Muskie. (UPI)

Federal judge names 'conduit' in ITT case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard M. McLaren testified today before a Senate subcommittee that he had acted as a "conduit" for an economic analysis that preceded settlement of an antitrust suit last year against International Telephone and Telegraph Co. (ITT).

But McLaren, now a federal judge in Chicago and then head of the Justice Department's antitrust division, told Senate investigators, "I exercised my best judgment, not prejudiced or influenced in any way." The billion-dollar case seeking to force ITT to divest itself of certain subsidiaries was settled out of court on McLaren's recommendation.

McLaren was recalled to the witness stand as the Senate Judiciary Committee continued hearings on charges by columnist Jack Anderson that the ITT settlement was linked to a contribution by the firm for the 1972 Republican National Convention.

The favorable analysis allowing ITT to retain Hartford Fire Insurance Co. was prepared by a New York economist, Richard J. Ramsden who acknowledged in interviews that he had dealt with McLaren. He formerly worked with McLaren as a "White House fellow."

Asked by the committee about the McLaren-Ramsden aspect of the case, McLaren said: "I still don't remember."

But it appears he requested McLaren to get Ramsden to make the report.

He subsequently said Ramsden submitted his report to McLaren, who forwarded it to him.

President repeats busing objections

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon reiterated today his objections to "busing" to bring about racial balance in schools but gave no indication of the remedy he favors.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford gave newsmen the account of Nixon's views following a two-hour breakfast meeting with congressional GOP leaders with the President.

"The President reiterated that he was not satisfied with the status quo but he didn't indicate what he will propose," Ford said. "The President will make his report after further consultation," the Michigan lawmaker added.

Ford and Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott were among 18 Republican senators and House members who attended the White House meeting.

Scott said the discussions were limited to domestic issues.

Ford predicted the House Ways and Means Committee would approve a revenue-sharing bill "somewhere in between" the President's plan and a rival proposal by the committee chairman, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark.

Repealer repeal sought

BOISE (UPI) — Would you believe a bill to repeal the criminal code repealer?

Well, the House Judiciary Committee today called for introduction of such a measure if it can persuade one of the privileged committees to toss it into the hopper.

After watching the repealer of the new criminal code slip through the house by one vote into the Senate and its eventual passage by that body, the Judiciary Committee decided perhaps it needed some "insurance" against the possibility of "no" criminal code.

House Speaker William J. French, R-Hollister, planned to sign the criminal code repealer today. After the senate president signs it the bill then will be sent to the governor.

The repealer of the new criminal code is supposed to be effective April 1. Between now and then — assuming the governor signs the repealer as expected — the legislature must patch together the old criminal code or a reasonable facsimile thereof and re-enact it.

Muskie, Nixon off to early NH lead

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — Awarded the title of leading contender almost two years ago, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine today faced the voters for the first time since he became a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. He was favored over his only serious challenger, Sen. George S. McGovern, in New Hampshire's inaugural 1972 primary.

Despite a lack of issues, an overpopulated field, the threat of snow and a prevailing apathy, the first-in-the-nation primary was expected to provide a preliminary indication of Democratic sentiment on a challenger for President Nixon.

Between 60,000 and 70,000 voters were expected to vote in the Democratic primary. In addition to Muskie and McGovern, the field included Sen. Vance Hartke of Indiana, Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles, and Ned Coll, 32, an anti-poverty worker from Connecticut who is constitutionally too young to serve as president.

In addition, there was a well-financed, smoothly organized write-in campaign for Rep. strictly on an antiwar platform.

William Mills of Arkansas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. An effort, repudiated in advance, to write in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts did not appear to have any impact.

President Nixon was an overwhelming favorite to win the Republican primary, although he was not expected to reach the 70 per cent majority he achieved in 1968. Some 100,000 GOP voters were expected to choose between Nixon, Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of California, running almost solely on an antiwar platform, and conservative Rep. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio, who accused the President of "selling out" Nationalist China on Nixon's recent trip to Peking.

The first returns early today from the village of Dixville Notch near the Canadian border gave the lead to Muskie and Nixon. Seventeen voters in the tiny hamlet cast their ballots at midnight, with all 11 Republican voters going for Nixon and five of the six Democrats voting for Muskie. The other Democratic vote went to McGovern, the South Dakota antiwar senator.

It was the first presidential preference primary since the voting age was lowered to 18, and also marked the first time the state's independent voters could participate in a primary.

Two factors that made the ultimate size of today's vote difficult to predict.

Drinks at 19?

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate State Affairs Committee sent to the floor without recommendation today legislation setting the age for consumption of beer, wine and alcohol at 19.

At the same time, the committee tabled three bills previously introduced which would have lowered the age to 18.

The 19-year-old age conforms with the senate amendment to the 18-year-old age of majority bill. The house, however, has refused to concur in the amendment which gave 18-year-olds all rights except use of alcohol, which was reserved for 19-year-olds, and a conference committee was named.

Sen. James Stojchiff, D-Sandpoint, said the conference committee has not yet met.

British, Maltese end talks

LONDON (UPI) — Britain today abandoned attempts to reach agreement on terms for keeping military bases in Malta. The government ordered the military pullout to go ahead and said it would be completed by the end of this month.

The British government took its stand after last-ditch talks in London with Maltese Premier Dom Mintoff broke down Monday night in deadlock over the price Britain must pay for its forces to remain on the Mediterranean island.

Mintoff was returning home today.

Britain and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) refused to budge from their "final offer" of $36.4 million. Prime Minister Edward Heath told Mintoff it would not be increased.

Mintoff continued to demand $46.8 million annual "rent" plus an additional one time payment of $13 million.

Gem income tax change sought

BOISE (UPI) — Revenue raisers and spenders moved closer to final action Monday, with introduction of an income tax rate adjustment and a move toward finalizing the proposed fiscal year 1973 general fund budget.

The House Revenue and Taxation Committee, on a party-line vote, agreed to introduce a bill bringing Idaho's tax code into conformance with the federal laws. The legislation would bring $5 million in general fund revenue next year, according to Chairman Allen Larsen, R-Blackfoot, but $4 million would be needed to replace the state's money lost in adopting the higher federal deductions.

Larsen said another bill is being prepared which would bring the state into conformity, pick up the money lost by the move, and bring in $2 million more for the general fund.

The rate adjustment is part of the budget-balancing proposal discussed over the weekend by Republicans in the Senate. They estimate the state will have $134 million from current sources, $1 million from the tax adjustment, $1.5 million from a two-cent-per-pack cigarette tax increase and $500,000 from a tax on pipe tobacco, to balance a $137 million budget.

BOISE (UPI) — A bill, authored primarily by state Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft, received endorsement of the Idaho Education Association Monday night. The bill would fund public schools 100 per cent at the state level.

At a Monday night hearing, educators and others told members of four committees the 100 per cent funding with state level monies would equalize educational opportunity of all the state's school children and relieve property taxes.

IEA Executive Secretary Wayne York, told the committee members that, of these bills on the agenda of the hearing, the Ravenscroft probably had the best chance of passage. He said his organization would endorse it.

The bill would distribute $102.3 million in state funds including $15.7 million of state-wide property tax, to the state's 115 school districts. Another six mills of property tax amounting to $6.7 million would be controlled and utilized at the district level, for a total of $109 million.

The bill would garner needed funds from a number of revenue sources including repeal of the inventory tax phase out, elimination of sales tax exemptions to bring in $8.4 million, and increases in cigarette, corporate income and personal income taxes. A real estate tax also would be assessed.

York said that the IEA felt that one measure — HB 644 — "was dearer to the hearts and closer to the philosophy of the committee" which has worked since the start of the session on the 100 per cent concept.

Application resubmitted for CSI TV transmitter

By RUTH MILLER Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The president of the College of Southern Idaho anticipates a ruling late this month on an application to the FCC for an educational television transmitter at CSI.

Dr. James L. Taylor said CSI has resubmitted an application for the school to operate a transmitter using KAJD at the Boise State College as its educational source.

The application was resubmitted, Dr. Taylor said, because it was evident CSI could not get federal funds in sufficient amounts to "come on stream with a full-blown station."

He said when CSI does get its transmitter set up, it will be simple to reapply and have funds assured by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for a complete station.

Dr. Taylor anticipates future development would cost about $200,000 if CSI originates its own programs.

Federal funding is not included in the first-phase transmitter, Dr. Taylor said.

With the transmitter, CSI would be able to re-transmit anything originating on either national television or KAJD.

Annexation approved by TF City Council

TWIN FALLS — Annexation of the Canyon Crest Subdivision No. 3 and the Kingsgate Subdivision was approved Monday night by the Twin Falls City Council. They are in the northeast area of the city.

The annexation ordinances were adopted under suspension of the rules on final reading following public hearing on proposed zoning of the areas. No protests were voiced or zoning and only the developers commented urging favorable action.

Both areas, being subdivided for homes, were zoned residential, low density. Both are in the vicinity of Eastland Drive and Park Avenue East.

After public hearing Monday night during the regular council meeting brought no comment from the public. This was a hearing on a proposed amendment to a proposed new city zoning ordinance. The only change, John Rosholt, Planning and Zoning Commission chairman said, was to create a commercial mall zone in which off-premises directional signs would be prohibited.

Council members placed the ordinance on third reading and final reading but took no action. A vote is expected at the next regular meeting.

Councilman Winston Jones said he would like to delay action until he better understood the proposal, saying he had not been aware of the amendment until just before the hearing. Rosholt said the move would create a zone within a zone.

In the mall area, he said, all commercial general zone regulations would apply, with the addition of the directional sign restrictions applying to the mall area only.

City officials also approved an agreement with the golf professional for the 1972 season. The agreement with Clyde Thomsen is about the same as for the previous year. A profit and loss statement on golf course operations at the end of the year will be required for the first time.

Mayor John Christoffersen proclaimed March 19 through 25 Wildlife Week. The council also approved a curb cut application.

City's ordinances. They said old laws still on the books prohibit 50 feet of sidewalks or streets and prohibit dancing on Sunday.

The scouts, accompanied by their adviser Dick Machamer, said they had been studying the for Magic Valley Realty to revise access to the business on Blue Lakes Boulevard North. Gordon Crockett, realtor, said the proposal would give his firm additional parking. He said the major benefit would be to prevent traffic cutting through the lot to short-cut the intersection.

Councilmen approved a request of International Harvester for closing the alley behind the old Soper Building on Fourth Avenue West to allow for their new and expanded building program.

John Rosholt, attorney for the firm, said approval of all adjoining property owners had been obtained. He said should access be needed at a later time, it would be provided through the property.

Access to sewer and water lines would be required, the council informed the firm, in the event of problems.

It was suggested this be kept in mind in the building design as plans indicated the building would be erected over the lines.

James Barnhart, city treasurer and director of the water department, asked the city to consider some method of commercial-user deposits to guarantee collection of large water bills. He said, for example, Bertlo's Poultry, one of the largest users in the city, went out of business owing for about two months.

Northwest Poultry, the new firm at the same location, also discontinued operation with a two-month debt.

Councilmen suggested the city attorney review the matter and amend the city code to require deposits to protect the city in such matters.

Barnhart said of the total $600,000 water billing, only about $2,000 a year goes uncollected. He said there is presently a $7.50 connection fee which is designed primarily for residential areas and is not logical for commercial users.

Project hearing slated Saturday

TWIN FALLS — Testimony in support of the proposed Salmon Falls-Reclamation Project is being prepared by the Twin Falls County Commissioners.

A hearing on the project is set for March 11 in Rooms 117 and 118 of Shields Academic Building at the College of Southern Idaho. It will start at 9:30 a.m.

Commission Chairman W. L. (Bill) Chancey said the commissioners favor the project which would make Snake River water available to lands in the Salmon Tract and Cottonwood areas for irrigation purposes. Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, announced plans for the hearing last week.

The $46 million reclamation project would involve a canal from the vicinity of Milner through Twin Falls County to the Hollister area. Two pumping stations would also be required. Water would be provided for 64,000 acres.

Official City and County Newspaper
Published by Section 6010 Idaho Code, Thursday is hereby designated as the day of the week on which legal notices will be published. Published daily and Sunday, except Saturdays, at 132 Third Street West, Twin Falls, Idaho, 83301, by Magic Valley Newspapers, Inc. Entered as second class mail matter April 6, 1916, at the post office in Twin Falls, Idaho, 83301, under the act of March 3, 1879.

The Open Book

Idaho voters are watching with interest the disclosure of campaign spending by several candidates for national political office. They are wondering if state candidates will join in at some future date and let everyone now where they got the money to make the race.

The disclosure laws — and the trend to go that way — could well reduce the amount spent to gain political office, even in our state.

If open disclosure becomes the rule, it could prove slightly embarrassing to candidate and contributor alike. Particularly so in instances where a contributor hedges his bet by donating to more than one campaign, or in cases where conflict of interest might be charged.

Whatever hazards such disclosures might present to the honest candidate, they should be brought out into the open. It is dishonest to hide them under the umbrella of multitudinous committees or to include them in financial reports filed after the election.

As the new federal campaign financing law requires, candidates for federal offices are limited in spending to no more than 10 cents per voting age citizen in the district. Each candidate also must observe a ceiling on what he can spend for his own election. The figures are $50,000 for the presidency, $35,000 for the Senate and $25,000 for the House of Representatives.

In addition, all contributions of $100 or more must be filed with one of three offices — clerk of the House, secretary of the Senate or the General Accounting Office. Filing must be in sufficient time prior to the election for public scrutiny to be made.

Whether the new regulations will develop loopholes as wide as the old law did will depend upon the spirit with which they're observed. If enough candidates go beyond the letter of the law in revealing details of their contributions and expenditures, those who try subterfuges will draw bad light.

It is one of the truisms of American politics that the government has been losing the confidence of the people for some time. The manner in which some campaigns have been conducted — particularly the financial end of them — of course is only one of the reasons.

But a man who gives the impression of not being straightforward in his methods of seeking office is not making it easier for himself to gain public confidence after his goal has been achieved. Removing all doubt or suspicion from the start could prove as wise a campaign maneuver as insuring an adequate flow into the campaign coffers.

A word to the wise Idaho candidates should be sufficient.

Who's Listening?

An educator thinks a course in listening should be added to the school curriculum. The average high school student, he says, remembers only half of what he hears in the classroom, and in elementary grades retention runs as low as 21 percent.

Listening has become a lost art in modern society, and not only among the young. Ambrose Bierce tried to laugh it back to favor when he defined a bore as a person who insists on talking when you want him to listen. Living evidence of his failure can be found at any cocktail party.

MR. SPECTATOR

The Band Plays On!

What most men and women are up against emotionally was revealed in an analysis of letters to the editor of a syndicated column on effective living. Fear, loneliness, boredom and a feeling of inferiority were problems most often mentioned.

Fear comes first, the analysis shows. Fear of life rather than death. Fear of the unknown. Consciously or unconsciously fear grips most hearts day and night. Loneliness came next in emotional problems. It is far greater in the crowded centers of population than in rural areas. The impersonality of crowds wherein there is no familiar face is hard to take.

Then comes boredom — the terrible sameness of things both at home and at the job. Accentuating this is the realization that one will never have the experience of the brilliant and adventurous people we all hear or read about.

Finally, the sense of inferiority and inadequacy built into men and women during childhood by thoughtless or ignorant parents and teachers. Here is the mental fixation of people who have been terrorized and who belittle themselves.

If these are the true botherations of most people, then it must be said that the average man or woman deserves high tribute for courage.

For, obviously, most people stand up to these ills of the spirit amazingly well. They go on their various ways in spite of fears, of loneliness, of boredom and of the sense of insignificance, and live above them.

Band music — or stuff to think about!

Mr. Spectator would remind you of the fellow who was such a great success. He worked hard all his life, he saved his money, he never took trips or vacations and he never drank (liquor, that is) or smoked.

He always dressed a year or two behind the other fellows so far as fashion was concerned. He never joined a lodge or service organization.

When he died the other day he left an estate of $54,836.40 of which $54,830 was what he had inherited when his father died several years ago.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE

It's silly to worry about anything beyond your control — such as your wife. And you must also remember that the difference between kissing your sister and your gal friend is about 55 seconds.

WORDS OF PRAISE

Dear Mr. Spectator:

First of all thanks to the Times News for printing some of the ugly truth. Now that people see how some of God's creatures are being treated, perhaps they will do something about it.

Also a big cheer for the new humane society. I wish them all the luck in the world. I'm making a habit of putting at least five cents in each puppy bank I see.

Ronald Reagan's China Letter

WASHINGTON — A private letter written last summer by Gov. Ronald Reagan of California to reassure conservatives about the new right.

China policy is now being used to further undermine President Nixon's shaky standing on the

Reagan's personal letter of Aug. 24, obviously backed and perhaps inspired by the White House, informed conservatives that Mr. Nixon's trip to China did not endanger the Nationalist Chinese regime on Taiwan (Formosa) or its seat in the United Nations. That ill-starred prophecy today provides ammunition for Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio, Mr. Nixon's conservative challenger in Republican primaries, to assault the President's credibility.

"We have pretty well guaranteed the continuation of Taiwan in the United Nations," wrote Reagan, describing Mr. Nixon's efforts to save the Nationalists' seat. "At the same time, we are pretty sure the Red Chinese will not accept a seat under those terms... I hope you will be able to give the President your unqualified support."

Campaigning against the President, Ashbrook raises this point: if White House reassurances proved worthless last autumn when the UN voted to expel Taiwan and seat the Peking regime, what good are Presidential guarantees today?

In effect, then, the Reagan letter's hollow note six months later undercuts the Administration's present claim that Mr. Nixon made no real concessions on Taiwan during the Peking talks.

Ashbrook's arguments will not expand his vote significantly in Tuesday's New Hampshire balloting or subsequent primaries. But the White House fears the right-wing assault on the China policy might lose Mr. Nixon valuable campaign workers and financing — supplied in disproportionate numbers by the party's right wing, for his re-election campaign.

Ray C. Bliss, hounded out as Republican national chairman on President Nixon's personal orders three years ago, is now being wooed by campaign manager John Mitchell to serve as his liaison with state party organizations in the President's campaign.

Bliss, still a Republican national committeeman from Ohio but concentrating on his insurance business in Canton, Ohio, has had several confidential talks with Mitchell recently. Though embittered by his gratuitous sacking in the spring of 1969, Bliss has made clear to Mitchell he would very much like to get into the 1972 campaign.

Mitchell's courtship of Bliss is partly explained by increasing friction between the President's campaign apparatus and regular state party organizations, which feel bypassed in Mr. Nixon's re-election efforts. Bliss, with unequalled acceptability throughout the party, would serve as middleman.

A footnote: Murray Chotiner, who usually pops up whenever Richard M. Nixon runs for office, is back again — but in a much less exalted role so far this time. Besides practicing law in Washington, Chotiner is on the fringes of the Nixon campaign, making plans to guard against cheating at the ballot box Nov. 7. Chotiner is a brilliant political tactician whose role in the 1968 campaign was larger than is generally realized, but he is also a publicly controversial figure and far from No. 1 on John Mitchell's list of favorites.

ANDREW TULLY

New Hampshire

WASHINGTON — In New Hampshire today, the action at hand is strictly New Hampshire's business. None among the horde of journalistic experts can guide the voter's hand as he marks his ballot in the Democratic Presidential primary.

But if it is a relief to know that the people of that rockbound state at last can do their own private thinking in that private little booth, it is yet permissible to hope they will vote for the man and not for the petty issue raised by the swingers of the media set. I trust Sen. Ed Muskie will be judged on his whole self and not be punished for defending his wife.

This is not by way of endorsing Muskie, but only to suggest that even a Presidential candidate has a few human rights. If Ed Muskie is to be penalized — in New Hampshire and elsewhere — because he broke down and wept over a printed attack on his wife, then the country is sicker than we feared.

On all sides, the sophisticates have announced smugly "It'll hurt him," about Muskie's outrage over a Women's Wear Daily piece that quoted Mrs. Muskie as suggesting on a campaign plane, "Let's tell some dirty jokes," and as admitting she smoked and took an occasional drink. I don't know whether this piece of Ladies-Room journalism is true. More important, I consider it wildly immaterial on a variety of counts, including the standards of good taste and the fact Mrs. Muskie is not running for President.

Actually, I find it hard to believe the dirty jokes. Quite Mrs. Muskie has been on too many campaigns to utter a boo-boo in the media's hearing, unless she was trying to be broadly facetious. Most of us know perfect ladies who have made similar remarks to express, left-handedly, their satirical scorn for such pastimes. And few voters will reject a candidate because his wife smokes or ingests a cocktail before dinner.

Moreover, I reject the argument of the "It'll hurt him" crowd because it is based on the belief that Americans have become too chic to understand a husband who stands up for his wife. Displaying emotion is considered in these circles to be too drop, gauche, not-with-it. One does not let one's feelings show even in behalf of one's family, does one?

One does — and even with political success. There are those experts who say the Kennedy-Johnson ticket would have lost Texas if that splendid square, Lyndon Johnson, had not come to Lady Bird's rescue when a boor attempted to bar her way into a Texas hotel during the 1960 campaign. Kennedy-Johnson carried Texas by only 46,000 votes out of more than two million ballots cast. Harry Truman was acclaimed nationwide when he wrote a belligerent letter to a music critic who had found his daughter's singing voice wanting.

Muskie's wrathful and tearful speech in his wife's defense undoubtedly will follow him across the country in the pre-convention hustling for votes. For Muskie, I think this will turn out to be an asset. The swingers in New York and Washington may continue their campaign of ridicule, but Presidents are nominated and elected to the north, west and south of these determinedly fashionable villages, and in those areas voters still cling to good manners. To be sure, it is always embarrassing to see a man cry, but only because most of us dislike being made to feel uncomfortable. However, even in these wild days, both sexes retain an understanding of and sympathy for honest rage, and that is what Muskie was showing in the snow of Manchester. And ironically, many of the very now femlibbers who sneer at Muskie's emotional outburst have been demanding for years that males be permitted to weep unashamed as a sign of sexual equality.

Finally, of course, there is the matter of relevance. If Muskie's breakdown did indeed fall short of the style demanded by the chichi mob, who cares? We're trying to elect a President, not the Führer of Beautiful People International.

PAUL HARVEY

We're Buried

Publisher Margaret Phillips of the Tunica, Miss., Times-Democrat had an interesting front-page column the other day. It was blank. Just blank space except for this footnote: "After finishing all the government reports due this month, there was not time left to do my own work."

It's everybody's problem. Let's say you and your wife own a small store — groceries and sundries. You have two part-time employees. Sounds like a good life. Not any more.

You and your wife file individual income tax returns plus a joint return. That's three separate tedious documents. Then there are eight state-estimated income tax forms to fill out — and our federal estimated income tax forms. You will file quarterly four state withholding tax forms and four federal FICA and withholding tax forms. And the four federal forms must have three depositaries, used once a month.

At the year-end you must file federal and state reconciliations of withheld taxes plus W-2 forms issued to all employees, plus the federal employment tax form with four depositaries.

Then you file your state sales tax return.

And you fill out your county inventory tax form.

That's the beginning. Now come the applications to the State Department of Revenue for a schedule B license tax on soft drinks and tobacco.

From the ABC Board you apply for permits to sell beer and wine and at the same time file schedule B taxes on those products.

From another agency you apply for a seed sales license. Then a federal beef and wine sales license. You'll need another permit to sell shotgun shells and must fill out a separate tax form for said item.

Next the county government must have an application for a beer and wine permit. Then four returns must be filed with the State Employment Security Commission.

You're not finished doing "government work"; there's still no time to tend to your own business.

For statistical purposes, six times a year you may be required to supply sales records to the Census Bureau — and to the Department of Agriculture a monthly report on prices paid by farmers for certain commodities.

On your delivery truck there are 12 monthly reports on fuel use and you'll need a state gas stamp. You must file a highway use tax report.

By the way, with most of these reports, forms and applications you also send in cash.

And you are subject to periodic audit and inspection by several state agencies and three federal agencies.

So one day, your back room filled with government men demanding that you produce and identify multitudinous back records, you say to your wife: "This is enough."

You put your grocery business up for sale, hope for a sucker, and go on welfare.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Contact Lenses

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For a year and a half I wore contact lenses without difficulty. Then I had to stop because my eyes became irritated. The doctor said he could see nothing wrong with my eyes, but his nurse asked me if I was taking birth control pills, as some of their patients had the same difficulty.

My trouble began about two months after I started the pill. The nurse said it had something to do with the fluid that the pill caused.

If so, is there any medication to restore the lost fluid in my eye so I can wear my contacts again? — Mrs. V. H.

"The pill" can cause fluid retention in the body. It bothers some women, doesn't bother others. But that doesn't mean that you have "lost fluid" in your eyes.

Furthermore, apparently it is not solely a matter of fluid retention that causes intolerance to your contact lenses. Exactly what it is, I couldn't say.

However, I would judge that you'll have to choose between the contacts and the pill — give up one or the other for the time being. As a far-out experiment, you might have your doctor try giving you a diuretic (to encourage loss of fluid in the system) and see whether that helps out, but remember, I offer that just as a guesswork suggestion and do not know whether it will be helpful at all. I don't know of any other medication that would be plausible.

As an alternative suggestion, perhaps you can wear your contacts occasionally, on special occasions such as parties, without distress. There again you'd have to try it on an experimental basis.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain what colitis is. What to do — medicine or diet? — J. F.

Strictly speaking, colitis is inflammation of the colon or large bowel, although the term is also applied, loosely, to other forms of nervous or irritable colon in which infection is not involved.

In general, both medication and diet are necessary, and sometimes other forms of treatment including even surgery in some cases.

It's a complicated situation, with a lot of variations possible, and I suggest that you send 25 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for my booklet, "Colitis and Kindred Complaints." It takes more than a single article to tell enough about colitis to be truly useful to you.

FBI informant testifies

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI)—Ramsay Clark, the former attorney general once called a "jolly fellow" by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, leads off today in cross-examination of a former convict who turned FBI informant against the Harrisburg Seven.

The government's star witness, Boyd F. Douglas Jr., ended six days of direct testimony Monday with the disclosure that it was not until after Hoover's Nov. 27, 1970, congressional testimony about an alleged plot by the seven antiwar activists that they began suspecting him.

Then, said the 31-year-old convicted forger, Sister Elizabeth McAllister became "quite paranoid" in accusing him of being a trusted member of the group who had informed the FBI of their plot to kidnap President Richard M. Nixon.

The Rev. Philip F. Berrigan and six other vigorous opponents of the Vietnam War are accused of plotting during most of 1970 to abduct President Nixon's foreign affairs adviser, dynamite the heating ducts of Washington federal buildings and vandalize draft boards.

Clark, one of seven defense attorneys, has sharply questioned in previous cross-examination the government's motive in "prosecuting the group. Six of them are present or former priests and nuns of the Roman Catholic faith."

Clark was attorney general in the Johnson administration.

When he criticized some FBI practices in a book after leaving office, Hoover called him a "jolly fellow."

Berrigan, the alleged leader of the group, was an inmate along with Douglas in Lewisburg Penitentiary that year. Douglas has testified he carried the written and oral messages in and out of prison for Berrigan dealing with the conspiracy.

He gave copies of all messages to the FBI, he testified, but the bureau turned down in October, 1970, the $50,000 price tag he put on his services. He said he got "several hundred" dollars for expenses and $1,500 for information delivered about a Rochester, N.Y., draft board raid.

China called to join meet

GENEVA (UPI)—Japan today called on China to join the Geneva disarmament conference as soon as possible so that genuine progress can be made on controlling nuclear weapons.

Japanese negotiator Masahiro Niisburi told the 25-nation conference it should work on ways to convince Peking to participate.

"Now that the government of the Peoples Republic of China has its seat in the United Nations, we wish to renew our call for them to participate at the earliest possible date in this committee which is closely associated with the United Nations and which is a major organ for disarmament negotiations," he said.

Niisburi said it is also time, now that the conference has been going on for 10 years, that France occupy its vacant seat.

Nuclear disarmament must be given priority at the conference, he said, with the most urgent issue being that of freezing all nuclear armaments at current levels.

Then, Niisburi said, it is necessary to negotiate a ban on all nuclear tests to prevent present weapons being constantly improved.

Author, wife give testimony

NEW YORK (UPI)—Author Clifford Irving and his wife, Edith, testified before separate grand juries Monday about their roles in the controversial "autobiography" of reclusive Howard Hughes for which publishers McGraw-Hill paid $550,000.

Irving appeared before a federal grand jury. When he came out of the jury room he refused to comment on his testimony saying, "It would be injudicious."

At the same time his wife gave her testimony to the New York Grand Jury, signing a waiver of immunity before doing so. Under the waiver Mrs. Irving could not claim constitutional rights against self-incrimination as provided for by the Fifth Amendment.

The couple is expected to change places today with Irving appearing before the county grand jury and Mrs. Irving, along with Richard Siskind, Irving's collaborator on the book, testifying before the federal panel.

Mississippi hike launches campaign

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—Civil rights activist James L. Meredith set out Monday on the first leg of his planned 900-mile, 37-county hike through Mississippi to launch his campaign for the U.S. Senate.

On a previous march through the state in 1966, Meredith was slightly wounded when a white sniper fired three blasts of birdshot from a shotgun.

Meredith, 39, the first black to enroll at the University of Mississippi a decade ago, said the present "march" has the two-fold purpose of opening his Republican campaign for the seat now held by Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., and pushing a voter registration drive among young blacks.

Retirement

REP. WILLIAM M. COLMER, D-Miss., said he would retire in January. A veteran of 40 years in Congress, Colmer has served since 1967 as chairman of the House Rules Committee. His retirement is expected to end an era of conservative leadership on the powerful panel. (UPI)

Jury age queried

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The minimum age for serving on federal court juries would be lowered from 21 to 18 under a bill passed by the House by voice vote.

The bill, earlier had been passed by the Senate, but the House made minor changes, which sent the measure back to the Senate. The legislation also tightens jury qualification forms to prevent discrimination by race among jurors.

Measles increase

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Concerned by a fourfold increase in measles cases, the Los Angeles County health officer declared an official epidemic Monday and ordered special immunization clinics established.

Health officials warned that the measles epidemic could have serious consequences and urged parents to make sure their children were vaccinated.

Dr. Gerald Heldbreder, the county health officer, said 91 new cases were reported last week, bringing the total number of measles cases for the year to 290, four times as many as had been recorded by this date last year.

Academy expels 7 students

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI)—The Naval Academy Monday expelled seven Midshipmen, including two seniors, for smoking marijuana.

In addition to the seniors, due to have graduated in June, those dismissed included three juniors and two sophomores.

An Academy spokesman said the expulsions followed an investigation by Naval Intelligence of a report by a Midshipman that other students were using marijuana.

Touch of symbolism adds to Davis trial

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—A defense attorney put a touch of symbolism into the Angela Davis murder trial Monday when he removed the defendant's raspberry-colored shawl and handed it to a prospective juror.

"The presumption of innocence is the functional equivalent of this shawl. It protects...until guilt is proven," said chief defense attorney Howard Moore Jr.

The panelist, Mrs. Mary Borelli, then was accepted tentatively by both sides and joined two other women previously cleared in a second round of defense and prosecution questioning. The lengthy jury selection process continues today and could take more than a month.

James S. Messer, an air traffic controller, was being questioned on his attitudes toward communism when the court recessed for the day.

Mrs. Borelli, a housewife whose husband works for the Space Agency, was seated just before the noon recess. Earlier Monday after the trial, Angela Davis, a young department store clerk and wife of a Stanford University graduate, also was tentatively accepted. They joined Mrs. Peter Ruth, 29, a housewife and mother of three.

Miss Davis, 28, a former UCLA instructor and avowed Communist, is charged with buying some of the guns used in a Marin County courtroom escape attempt and shooting in 1970 in which a judge and three kidnappers died.

Moore told prospective jurors Monday that "one of the prosecution witnesses will be unable to walk," apparently referring to Assistant Marin County District Attorney Gary W. Thomas, who was permanently paralyzed in the episode.

He asked if the panel's sympathy for him would "cause you to be more willing to believe that witness more than any other?"

Arrested

NEW YORK Times reporter Earl Caldwell was arrested Monday after sheriff's officers said they found marijuana in a briefcase he was carrying into the Angela Davis trial. (UPI)

Women's Lib takes setback

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court ruled Monday that a state has the authority to require a wife to assume her husband's surname at the time of marriage.

Dealing a setback to the women's liberation movement, the high court made the ruling in a one-sentence order affirming a decision made Sept. 28 by a three-judge federal panel in Alabama.

The case arose over an Alabama driver license controversy.

Wendy Forbush married Ronald P. Carver of Anniston, Ala., Sept. 21, 1970, and they agreed she would continue to use her maiden name in her personal and business dealings in an effort "to demonstrate the equality of contract and commitment that they felt in their marriage."

But Calhoun County officials told Miss Forbush when she applied for a driver's license, the license must be issued in her married name, citing a 35-year-old state policy. The courts upheld the county authorities.

Spain apartment blast kills 28

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI)—Police estimated today that 28 persons were killed in a blast that wrecked a 10-story luxury apartment building but said they had no explanation what caused the explosion.

A gas company spokesman discounted early police theories that the blast was caused by a gas leak.

Police today reported the toll stood at 18 confirmed dead, about a dozen persons missing and presumed dead, and two injured. No definite figure was available on the number of persons who were inside the 10 apartments, destroyed by the blast.

Witnesses said the blast early Monday appeared to have originated in a four-story apartment of one of the buildings, three wings, sending wreckage cascading down into the street and on a parking lot.

Early today, rescuers were still digging through the rubble but have given up hope of finding survivors. They were using bulldozers to flatten the debris.

Negotiations continue

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Hard coal industry representatives and the United Mine Workers union will continue negotiating sessions "on a regular basis" in an effort to agree on a new contract before a March 31 deadline.

The talks opened at UMW headquarters here Monday. The contract covers about 6,000 anthracite coal miners in northeastern Pennsylvania and 14,000 retired miners. The UMW is seeking substantial increases in wages and pension benefits.

Martial law lifting set

KARACHI (UPI)—President of Pakistan (PPP) reached an 11-point agreement with Khan Abdul Wali Khan, leader of the lifted Aug. 14 pulled Pakistan from its worst political crisis since the birth of Bangladesh.

Bhutto made the announcement in a nationwide address over Radio Pakistan after reaching an accord with leaders of two major political parties on issues that have threatened to sweep the nation into another civil war.

The announcement marked the end of almost 14 years of military rule in Pakistan since former President Mohammad Ayub Khan took power in a coup and declared martial law on Oct. 7, 1959.

Bhutto's ruling People's party of Pakistan (PPP) reached an 11-point agreement with Khan Abdul Wali Khan, leader of the pro-Moscow National Awami party, and Maulana Maududi, chief of the religious Jama'atul Ulama Islam, in Rawalpindi after three days of crucial talks on political differences.

The agreement included the summoning of the national assembly for a period of three days beginning April 14 to prepare an interim constitution, to pass a vote of confidence in the government and to approve continuation of martial law until Aug. 14.

Bhutto said he needed to continue martial law to implement basic reforms.

they walked with christ

by David Poling

HIS NAME WAS LEGION.

Violent and uncontrolled people suffering from mental disorders were frequently chained in Biblical times. When they became too dangerous to their families, they were often banished from the community and lived among the graveyards and tombs. One such maniac was called Legion—no fetters or chains could hold him and he was driven out of town to range wildly through the tombs of the countryside called Gerasene.

Here he encountered Jesus, and called Him by name. Some trace of sanity and some higher level of coherence helped him to recognize the famous prophet and healer. When asked his name, he replied "Legion" because like the Roman army of that classification there were so many (6,000) evil spirits within his being. In a spectacular demonstration of spiritual power, Jesus called out the evil forces and sent them into a herd of swine that went crashing over the hillside and drowned in a lake. Most of the citizens faulted Jesus for the loss of livestock, almost angry that Legion was now clothed and in his right mind, visiting with Christ.

Wedding etiquette answers given

NEW YORK (UPI)—Does the bride-to-be have to spend a fortune for her wedding dress? Should she take anyone with her to shop? Is it wrong to buy the gown she falls in love with at first sight? Here are some answers from the Bridal and Bridesmaids Apparel Association (BBAA):

—Price for beautiful, well-made wedding dresses range from $70 to $1,000 or more. The important thing is fit and a gown that pleases the bride.

—Three's a crowd when shopping for a wedding dress. Don't go alone but take just one other person, preferably mother or sister or best friend. Get from that person an honest opinion about the dress that catches your fancy. More than one companion adds confusion and doubt.

—At gown shopping, don't wear the same hairstyle you plan for the wedding. It will help when judging the gown and selecting the headpiece. You'll see the total look. Wear shoes with the same height heels as wedding shoes to insure gown's length will be fitted perfectly.

—Falling in love with the first gown is okay, but, just to be sure, try on one more. The more you look, the greater the chance confusion will set in.

—Many girls say they are going to lose weight for the wedding. They want this to be taken into consideration when having the gown fitted. A bad idea. At final fitting time, invariably she has not lost weight; experience has shown.

A Lovelier You

A CASE OF SPRING FEVER

By Mary Sue Miller

What's your brand of work strain? Stiff shoulders and neck, aching back, sore feet and legs, tired eyes, exhausted voice? At the end of winter all such ailments seem to grow a bit more severe.

All you want to do is sit in a spot of sun and laze.

Some people call it spring fever, but you know it's fatigue from a long stretch of work. Most working women, and that certainly includes homemakers, are subject to the stress of muscular aches and pains.

Where aches develop, of course depends on the nature of the occupation. In every instance, however, strains can be relieved.

To ease a tense neck and shoulders, sit erect; drop head back and slowly roll it from side to side, 10 to 20 times. Now, holding chin parallel to the floor, pull shoulders down, slowly circle them from front to back 10 times, then let them drop relaxed. Repeat as needed.

To soothe an aching back, feet on legs, first stand with back pressed flat against wall, knees slightly bent and weight on balls of feet. Next, leading with head, slowly curl spine until only hips touch wall; by reversing tactics, come back to starting position. Repeat 5 to 10 times. Lastly, sit on edge of straight chair with legs stretched out; curl toes and rotate feet in lazy circles—both directions 20 or so times.

Tired eyes respond to cupping. Simply close eyes and cup them with hands. To restore voice, drop jaw, breathe deeply and sing "ah" on exhalations. Sit straight and breathe deeper all the time, and you could avoid many a grain.

Mobile home park owners like total electric living

FLAMELESS ELECTRIC LIVING FOR A NEATER, CLEANER WORLD

"There are many advantages in total electric living," say Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, owners of Floating Feather mobile home park near Boise. "Getting one combined heating-utility bill instead of two is a real convenience. Our electric furnace heat is comfortable as well as being nice and clean. And even with heavy use, our electric water heater never runs out of hot water."

"We built our park to meet the needs of total electric homes, including underground wiring," say the Stewarts. "All a new all-electric resident has to do is connect to one of our new underground pedestals and he's in business."

CSI meets North Idaho in regional finals tonight

College of Southern Idaho and the North Idaho JC Cardinals swept easily into the finals of the regional 18 junior college tournament Monday night and will play for the one spot in the national tournament Tuesday night.

CSI, which ended seventh in the national rankings, demolished Southwestern Community College of Coos Bay, Ore., the Oregon state JC champion, 112-75 after North Idaho brushed off Umpqua of Roseburg, Ore., 102-61.

The two Oregon teams will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the CSI gymnasium for the consolation prize with the championship battle starting at 9 p.m. It will be only the second meeting of the year between CSI and North Idaho. CSI defeated the Cardinals by 12 points during the regular season and the other, slanted in Coeur d'Alene, was wiped out by the airline strike just before the holidays and was never rescheduled.

In that one meeting, CSI never was able to pile up the prohibitive leads it was used to doing during the season. And North Idaho played without 6-3 guard Terry Volles, who Coach Rollo Williams calls the mainspring in his Cardinal attack. Volles played sparingly Monday night as the Cardinals didn't need him and Coach Williams didn't wish to take a chance on re-injuring his star's knee.

CSI opened hot and quickly rolled to an 8-0 lead and extended that to 15-3 with all the starters getting in on the scoring. The Eagles were ahead 26-7 after seven minutes of play but over the next three minutes Southwestern came back a trifle and reduced the margin to 14. Then Gene Strobel hit a field goal and Vic Kelly picked up two quick buckets on a steal and a fast break.

Kelly and Strobel kept the scoring up as CSI moved ahead 40-18 and at halftime was counting at 62-30.

Southwestern picked up its scoring jump in the second half, hitting well at times from the outside. But it was never able to get closer than 24.

The first game went along the same line. North Idaho took complete control of the offensive boards where Bob Jacobs and Eddie McCall picked up a lot of their points. North Idaho burst ahead 21-9 in the first nine minutes with Jacobs providing eight of the tallies. Umpqua steeled for a moment with Jamie Pyles, Kyle

Big ten hears player appeal

CHICAGO (UPI)—Big Ten faculty representatives heard an appeal Monday on behalf of suspended University of Minnesota basketball players Ron Behagen and Corky Taylor. No decision was reached.

Marcus Plant, interim chairman of the faculty group, told reporters they heard all the evidence attorneys for the players and for the university had to produce.

Hole-in-one

Betty Davis scored the second hole-in-one of her golfing career Sunday at the Blue Lakes Country Club Course.

Mrs. Davis used a four-iron to turn the trick on the 150-yard, par three, sixth green. Witnessing the feat were her husband, John Davis, and Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Skeem.

Drag racers plan session

A meeting has been announced for all area drag racers and fans at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Holiday Inn in Twin Falls according to Harold Turvey, Magic Valley advisor for the National Hot Rod Association.

Included on the agenda will be clarification of race dates for all Northwest NHRA drag strips, discussion of new class rules for 1972.

Plan tourney

The Blue Lakes Ladies Golf Association is planning its kick-off brunch at 11 a.m. Thursday. President Ruth Skeem is planning a tournament, weather permitting. All golfers are urged to attend.

Headed for a fall

SPUN AROUND, College of Southern Idaho's Rick Sobers lets go with a back-hand pass toward teammate Dan Dressen (52) after being thwarted on a drive by Southwestern, Ore., player Pat Towne. CSI topped Southwestern 112-75 and will meet North Idaho JC in the regional finals here tonight.

Nicklaus wins rain-delayed Doral-Eastern golf tourney

MIAMI (UPI)—Jack Nicklaus broke out with birdies on the 15th and 16th holes Monday for a two-under-par 70 to win the rain-delayed, $150,000 Doral-Eastern Open Golf tournament and move to the top of the list of golf's all-time money winners.

Nicklaus played par for the first 14 holes, staying even with Lee Trevino, with whom he was tied going into Monday's final round.

But the Golden Bear added the birdies that gave him a 12-under-par total of 276 for the tournament, two strokes better than Trevino and Bob Rosburg, who tied for second.

Trevino shot an even-par 72 Monday and Rosburg flashed into contention with a four-under-par 68. Both had four-round totals of 278, 10 under.

Another stroke back was ageless Sam Snead, who shot a par 72 Monday for a 279.

The $30,000 first-prize check gives Nicklaus a career money total of $1,477,200.80, passing Arnold Palmer by $8,000. Palmer sat out the Doral tournament.

It was Nicklaus's 30th victory in 10 years on the tour. It also boosted his winnings this year to $14,400.00 tops on the tour. Trevino bogeyed the 14th hole by going in a sand trap and birdied the 15th with a 15-foot putt for a two.

"I left everything on the mouth, hanging on the lip," Trevino complained. "I guess it was the pressure. I was trying too hard to make them go in."

Nicklaus had shot himself into contention in the rain-plagued tournament by firing a record third round 64 Sunday.

"But this wasn't anything like yesterday," he said of his round Monday which gave him his second tour win of the year.

He said he played cautiously at the beginning as he parred the first 14 holes. "I knew I was staying in there and I felt that the birdies would come," he said.

"What I was doing was waiting for my opportunity and it paid off," he said.

Nicklaus's birdie on the 15th came on a 20-foot putt from the right fringe of the green. On the 16th he blasted a sand wedge to seven feet from the cup and holed the putt.

The only green Nicklaus missed all day was the seventh, where he drove into the rough, hit his second shot into a sand trap, blasted to two feet and then holed the putt to save his par four.

Nicklaus said scores were higher in the final round because the wind kicked up and changed direction and because temperatures cooled off.

Tigers nip Nampa for state berth

TWIN FALLS—The Idaho Falls Tigers outlasted the Nampa Bulldogs 63-62 Monday night after leading by 13 points with only two minutes left in the game. Idaho Falls will advance to the A-1 state basketball tournament beginning in Pocatello Wednesday.

The two teams finished in third place in their respective district tournaments. Idaho Falls, the fourth regional team, will meet Moscow at 7:30 p.m. in the midstate Wednesday.

Idaho Falls held a comfortable margin until the two minute mark when Nampa began to score and the Tiger stall proved ineffective. Nell scored a basketball to cut the Tiger margin to 11 points, then Weldenbach scored a bucket and a free throw to bring the Bulldogs within eight at 60-52. Nell scored a pair of free throws as the Bulldogs only trailed by six with about a minute and a half remaining.

Weldenbach then fouled out. He finished the night as the top scorer for Nampa with 20 points. Jim Harrington made a free throw for the Tigers for a 61-52 margin, then Jo Hansen added another. With 45 seconds left Nell scored two points and Markus added another basket as the Bulldogs pulled within four points at 62-58.

Idaho Falls lost possession of the ball and Nell scored to bring Nampa within two. Nampa was then forced to foul with four seconds left and Hansen converted a free throw for a three-point Idaho Falls lead. Markus scored a basket for the Bulldogs but was unable to draw the foul that could have forced the game into an overtime.

During the last two minutes Idaho Falls only scored three points while the Bulldogs were scoring 15 points.

Idaho Falls held a narrow lead at the end of the first quarter and was on top 24-20 at the half.

In the third quarter Weldenbach brought the Bulldogs within four midway through the quarter before Idaho Falls started to widen its lead to a 13-point spread by the close of the third quarter.

Idaho Falls made 21 free throws to only 12 for the Bulldogs. Harrington led Idaho Falls scorers with 22 points.

Idaho Falls 63: 1st 15, 2nd 18, 3rd 15, 4th 15. Nampa 62: 1st 12, 2nd 18, 3rd 15, 4th 17. Points: Harrington 22, Weldenbach 15, Markus 10, Nell 10, Hansen 6, Smith 2. Rebounds: Harrington 10, Weldenbach 8, Markus 6, Nell 4, Hansen 2, Smith 1. Fouls: Harrington 4, Weldenbach 3, Markus 2, Nell 2, Hansen 1, Smith 1. Free Throws: Harrington 10-12, Weldenbach 4-5, Markus 4-5, Nell 2-2, Hansen 1-1, Smith 0-0. Total Fouls: 24-20.

Provides service

COMPUTERIZED record transfer of Mexican migrant children is quickly made throughout Magic Valley on a teletype terminal at Valley High School. Here, Dava Schutte sends out information on a transferring student to his new school.

Teletype terminal aids Valley migrant pupils

HAZELTON — A teletype terminal located at Valley High School is providing "a tremendous service to migratory people."

Dr. Tom Utterback, superintendent of the school, said the Valley system, one of five in the Northwest, provides data on Mexican-American migrant children and white migrant children to schools from Glens Ferry to eastern Magic Valley.

Every Mexican migratory child in the United States is registered in the Uniform Migrant Student Record Transfer System whose "brain bank" is located in Little Rock, Ark.

By being able to quickly transfer correct names, ages, health records, address of origin, grade in school and grade transcripts, the system makes transition from one school to another much easier for the migrants.

Aptitudes, abilities and particular interests or proficiencies of the children also are transmitted on the system.

Dr. Utterback said the system has presented no problem and "it's working beautifully." He feels migrant children have been neglected "too long" and this is one service which schools can perform in making school moved easier for the children.

He said it has been evident in the past few years that migrant children at Valley High School and the grade schools in Eden and Hazelton are "better prepared" than in the past.

The three schools in the Eden-Hazelton area consistently have a migrant enrollment of about 80 students. There are another 25-30 who are classified as white migrants or underprivileged students.

The school system, Dr. Utterback said, has shown a great interest in migrant students for the past eight years. He said this, coupled with Valley High School's central location in the Magic Valley is probably responsible for its selection as a teletype terminal site two years ago.

Some students entering schools in the area served by the Valley terminal come to school with no records at all or only partial records. Through the teletype system, Valley High School can transmit complete records to schools in a matter of hours.

The system is especially valuable to students whose parents speak no English, Dr. Utterback said.

He said the system has not yet been expanded to other classifications of migrant children, such as students whose parents are in the armed forces, because these children generally have complete records.

Closure of Almo school protested

By LePAGE LAYTON
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Cassia School Trustees said they would take under advisement the request of 35 people from Almo to reconsider the decision closing the Almo school.

But the trustees refused to vote on the issue at their meeting Tuesday night in the presence of the delegation from Almo.

Spokesman for the group, Doris Tracy of Almo, told the trustees that it was erroneously reported that the Almo school is the oldest in the county. The present school was built in 1944, at a cost of about $18,000, she said, soon after the original school burned down.

The teachers take care of the 39 students in grades 1 through 9. Mrs. Tracy said a total of 55 students would have to be bused to Malta, including high school students already attending the Malta school, should the Almo school be closed.

She protested that busing would take three hours a day in bad weather, too long for small children.

Mrs. Tracy said that two of the four students at Malta High School with a 4.0 grade average are from Almo, and that about one-third of the students with grade averages from 3.5 to 3.9 came from the Almo school.

She asked the trustees to state their reasons for closing the school.

Chairman W. B. Whiteley said that it was mainly for economic reasons. The per-pupil cost at Malta is about $427 per school year compared to $758 per pupil required to keep the Almo school operating.

Whiteley said the salaries of two teachers, maintenance of the building and hot lunches amounting to $18,000-$20,000 would be saved.

Norman Hurst, assistant school superintendent, said a study of kindergarten enrollment showed the number of students in Almo is decreasing and will continue to decrease.

Whiteley told the delegation a large bus could pick up all 55 Almo students and take them directly to Malta without the present stops made in the Elba and Conner Creek areas.

A separate bus would be sent to that area. The total busing time would be only two hours, he said.

After the Almo group left, the trustees counted the votes of the bond election a week ago. Two votes were declared ineligible. The final tally was 2,279 yes votes and 2,024 no votes.

The trustees voted to send two delegates to the National Association of Secondary School Principals meeting in Anaheim, Calif., March 18-22. The two are Hurst and Merrill Robinson, principal at Declo school.

A budget hearing date is set for the regular meeting March 20. The election of trustees and vote on a $1 mill maintenance levy for the schools was set for May 15.

BURLEY — Ten persons escaped a fire early Monday that destroyed the Robert Buck home at 400 West 50 North.

Seven children and three adults living at the home managed to escape without injury.

Buck told firemen he and his wife had been attempting to start their car in the garage. Buck was pouring gasoline into the carburetor as his wife attempted to start the car.

The gas exploded, igniting the garage.

Buck said his partially-insured home was valued at $32,000.

A pickup truck parked near the garage was destroyed, as well as two motorcycles and lawn mowers and tools inside the garage.

Family members were quickly provided clothing and temporary shelter by neighbors.

Help oldsters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, chairman for the Senate Special Committee on Aging, today introduced amendments designed to make improvements in the economic security of older Americans.

He called for:

- A 20 per cent increase in Social Security benefits, effective in June.
- An income supplement system which would use the Social Security Administration to mail monthly checks to lift all older Americans out of poverty.

TF council split on tax

Council members who supported the addition said it would be placed in the proposed budget which can be cut but not increased following the public hearing.

Mayor John Christoffersen said the public will have an opportunity to discuss the matter on March 20 during the public hearing and if the expenditure draws opposition it can be eliminated from the final budget.

Councilman Michael Gray and Nelson suggested the city's current subdivision ordinance be reviewed with plans to update it to meet current trends in housing developments. Nelson said the open space provision should be considered along with underground utility lines and other improved building stipulations.

Gray and Councilman Jones suggested the city work with the county in a uniform regulation on condominium and high-rise building regulations to be ready for such structures if and when they are proposed for the city and adjacent areas.

Council members denied a request from G. D. Berry, 160 Buchanan St., for variance under the city sanitation fee schedule. He requested the city discontinue charging him a sanitation fee because of commercial operations from his residential property. He said he would prefer to burn and haul his own trash and garbage.

The area in question is adjacent to the Pioneer Trailer Court and is needed to provide a uniform width of Locust Street, one of several designated for immediate improvement from formation of a Local Improvement District.

L.E. Clapp ex-Idaho aide, dies

ST. HELENA, Calif. (UPI) — Louis E. Clapp, 62, former secretary of state and chairman of the Idaho Board of Corrections, died Sunday in St. Helena, Calif.

Servicely will be held Wednesday at Summers, Funeral Home.

Clapp married Margaret Tobins in 1932 in Boise. He was associated with law enforcement in Idaho from 1937 to 1944.

That year he was appointed warden of the Idaho State Penitentiary.

He was named chairman of the State Board of Corrections in 1947 and retired from both positions in 1965.

He was appointed secretary of state in 1965.

TF parking area open near mall

TWIN FALLS — Shoppers in the downtown area of Twin Falls are now able to park on the off-street lot behind the J. C. Penney Co. store.

Evan Robertson, Urban Renewal Agency executive director, said the large lot has been leveled and graveled and can now be used for parking.

He said paving will be completed as soon as weather permits. Until that time no meters or bumper blocks will be in place.

Persons using the lots will be responsible for orderly parking, he said.

On Wednesday, work will begin on resurfacing the lot behind the Idaho Department Store. These are two of the largest off-street parking lots scheduled for reconstruction under the current phase of the downtown improvement program, he said.

Officials of Parks and Sons, Sun City, Ariz., which was awarded the low bid contract last week for garbage pickup within the county, signed the contract with the county commissioners. Rick Parks, one of the sons in the firm, said pickups will begin April 1.

Vealton Teal, of Teal Sanitation Service, Burley, low bidder last week on operation of the county landfill, also signed a contract with the commissioners. Work at the landfill has been underway for some time and will continue, he said.

Commissioners toured pickup sites with Louis Martindale and Dale Waddups, Bureau of Land Management officials.

The request for funds from the Regional Airport Board has been received by the commissioners, but no action was taken.

The commissioners will next meet at 10 a.m. Monday.

Ketchum adopts budget for '72

BY TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — A tentative 1972 budget of $245,116 was set by the Ketchum City Council Monday night.

The figure is 9.6 per cent higher than 1971 expenditures. Additional revenues in 1972 over last year are expected to total about $24,000.

Five out of nine departments showed budgetary increases over 1971 expenditures. The miscellaneous account had the greatest increase, reflecting a $31,000 budgeted payback of last year's borrowing.

The recreation and animal control and shelter budgets were each increased about $2,000.

The 1972 budget for building, housing and protective inspections was about $1,000 higher because of increased salaries. The sanitation account showed a slight increase over 1971 expenditures of $975.

A $20,000 budgetary cut was made in the road and street fund. Total salaries were increased about $2,000, but maintenance allocations were decreased by about $3,000.

The major decrease — about $18,000 — was under 1971 expenditures, was anticipated 1972 general fund revenue — has dropped about $15,000 from last year, despite an expected $37,000 increase in anticipated general property tax revenue.

The loss was mainly attributed to a $60,000 decrease in funds from tax anticipation notes and a 1971 transfer of funds from the construction account.

Plans for subdivision given Gooding council

By PEGGY CHU
Times-News writer

GOODING — Tentative plans for a six home subdivision were submitted to the Gooding City Council Monday evening by Leo Rice.

Rice said he would obtain additional information and submit an official plat at a later date.

The council agreed to increase the train speeds from 30 miles per hour to 45 miles per hour within the city limits after meeting with Union Pacific officials.

A public hearing was held on the removal of a dilapidated building on South Main Street.

Following testimony from Grange officials and property owners, the council agreed the building was a fire hazard and it should be removed within 30 days.

Gene Larsen, owner, must dispose of the building within the 30-day period, or the city will file suit in district court, the councilmen said.

Persons testified that children had been playing in the building, the windows were broken out and the floors were grease-soaked.

Earl Kelly, manager of the city airport, told the council he could install new doors in the hangar for $921 by doing the work himself. Mayor Harley Clippert referred the matter to Valdo Grey, councilman in charge of the department.

Amendment filed over Jerome recall petition

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News writer

JEROME — An amended petition for writ of mandamus calling for a recall election of Jerome councilman was filed by the petitioners, Monday.

The document was filed in Fifth District Court.

The original writ filed by Victor Haines, Dewey Cavin, Bill Cannedy, Raymond H. Alwood and Robert Myers, was to force the Jerome City Council to set a date for a recall election or to show cause why the date has not been set.

The amended petition adds the names of Jack Russell, mayor of Jerome, and Marshall Everheart, S. N. Weeks, Elwin L. Tinker and Walter C. Bentzinger, councilmen, as additional party defendants to an earlier petition, asking for the recall election.

In response to the stated reasons for demanding recall, Tinker and Bentzinger said they have never deliberately ignored any mandate of the people of Jerome concerning the reappointment of C. H. Puntney as police chief or otherwise.

In voting against the reappointment of Puntney, the councilmen said they exercised the duty imposed on them by law as councilmen of Jerome and exercised their best judgment as to the suitability of Puntney as police chief.

"They also said they believed and still believe that Puntney is not a suitable chief of police because he refuses to properly discharge the duties of his office, refuses to cooperate in the administration of city business and inadequately attends to police business.

The councilmen also said Puntney was an appointed officer who served at the will of the council and had no right to any particular job from the city.

They further said he had no right to any formal hearing upon the question of reappointment. It was the considered belief of the councilmen in their vote of Jan.

that other persons could better discharge the job as chief of police than could Puntney.

Civil rights same in all countries

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Outspoken Catholic activist Father James Groppe sees civil rights problems as being essentially the same in the United States, Vietnam and Ireland.

The Milwaukee priest, here to speak to a Gonzaga student mock political convention, said that increased voter registration, an end to the Indochina War, and the ouster of President Nixon were his three current goals.

"The Nixon Administration is doing nothing for the disenfranchised in America, the U.S. and Nixon are doing nothing for the Vietnamese in their country, and the British don't belong in Ireland," he said.

The Milwaukee priest, here to speak to a Gonzaga student mock political convention, said that increased voter registration, an end to the Indochina War, and the ouster of President Nixon were his three current goals.

"The Nixon Administration is doing nothing for the disenfranchised in America, the U.S. and Nixon are doing nothing for the Vietnamese in their country, and the British don't belong in Ireland," he said.

The ordinance specifies that the city may from time to time grant an exclusive contract for the operation of the municipal refuse collection and disposal service.

This is the first formal step in the procedure leading to an eventual bid call for trash collection service, Parsons said, but further action will be required by the council on the bid call.

Burley presently collects part of the city's refuse, allowing a private hauler, Vealton Teal, to contract with businessmen for commercial hauling.

The council has considered setting up a franchise operation under which a single contract hauler would serve both residential and commercial users.

The new ordinance sets a fee of $3-per-month for residential service, $3-per-unit for multiple-family dwellings in the residential area, and establishes a fee schedule for commercial service based on the number of containers and number of pickups per week.

Fees range from $3.50 per month for one container and two pickups to $28.50 for six containers and six pickups.

Fees for mechanical dumping of containers will range from $10 for the one-cubic-yard container picked up weekly to $40.50 per month for the three-yard container dumped six times each week.

Other provisions of the trash-collection ordinance:

- Open burning "of any kind within the city" is prohibited except with a permit issued "in accordance with state and federal regulations";
- Incinerators are "prohibited and will not be emptied";
- All residents of the city must participate in the trash-collection service, and will be billed at the applicable rate.

The single exception would be where "no service is rendered by the city or its contractor" in isolated sections of the city, should such sections exist.

Though the ordinance does not specify that plastic bags shall be used for residential garbage, Mayor Garla Robertson said Monday night that he believed the work of the collectors would be made much easier if all trash were contained in plastic bags.

In other action, the council discussed proposed development of a new subdivision south of Burley with the developer, Ralph Bezel. A number of questions from the Burley Zoning Commission on provision of utilities, including sewer service, was discussed at length.

Bezel asked the city to voice "intent" to participate in the project by agreeing to incorporate the subdivision sewage outflow into the city system when necessary.

On a suggestion from Parsons that a formal vote was needed, the council agreed unanimously to accept the area's sewage "when feasible."

The formal agreement was necessary to help the subdivision gain necessary financial backing, Bezel said.

Recodification package okayed

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate State Affairs Committee gave a do-pass recommendation to two of three bills which form a package to recodify the personnel commission laws.

The two bills which went out for debate include one giving the budget director some control over state employee positions and one defining which state employees shall be exempt from the commission.

The third bill sent to the committee is one done at the request of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee. It completely recodifies the person of commission laws.

The basic defensive signal is the play of an unnecessarily high card to show strength or at least to ask your partner to lead that suit to you. This is the basic use of this high-card play.

Suppose it is clear to your partner that you can't want him to lead this particular suit. Then what does a high-card play mean?

It doesn't mean that you are wasting some spots for the sheer joy of wasting them.

It may be a suit preference signal to ask your partner to lead a high-ranking suit as spades or hearts instead of a low-ranking suit such as clubs or diamonds but it is far more likely that you are starting a high-low play to show that you hold an even number of cards in the suit.

South played dummy's 10 of spades at trick one. He hoped it would hold but East produced the king. South let it hold but had to win the spade continuation. Then he led a diamond.

West ducked. He could see all those potential diamond winners if he rose with the ace. South won in dummy while East dropped the four. South returned to his hand with a club and led his last diamond.

If West had ducked this also, South would have romped off with his contract, but West had no problem at all. He took his ace and cleared the spade suit.

East had played his lowest diamond the first time. This showed an odd number of cards in the suit so West knew that South had started with just two diamonds.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner continues to one no-trump. What do you do now?

Answer Tomorrow

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 23 years, and have five children. The youngest is 13.

He has had other women over the years but nothing he couldn't stop. I thought that he was thru running around when I found out he had a full-time girl friend. He wanted a separation and moved out.

I was so miserable and lonely, I called him up and told him if he would come home he could write his own ticket.

He came home, has been here for two weeks, and I am more miserable than ever because he visits his girl friend every other day.

Abby, I can't live up to my agreement. I love my husband and don't want to lose him. He says if he moves out again it will be for good.

I have tried to make our sex life extra good and his home life extra pleasant since he's been back, but I get so depressed when he goes out. What should I do?

ALONE AGAIN

DEAR ALONE: That "ticket" you let him write entitles him to a free out-of-this-world trip, which could last a lifetime. Only you can decide if you are more miserable with this setup than you were without him, and act accordingly. In the meanwhile he's having his cake and eating it, too. And he'll be lucky if all that cake doesn't kill him.

DEAR ABBY: I recently read an interesting letter in your column about shoplifting.

One woman said she would not report a shoplifter if she saw one because unless she could provide evidence to support her accusation, she could be sued for slander. Abby, this is true but only if the accusation is made publicly.

However, if someone reports a shoplifter to a store employee or the security guard, there is never a problem of "involvement."

Stores can stay in business only if they operate at a profit, and in order to make up for what the shoplifters steal prices are climbing higher and higher. In plain language, it is the honest shopper who pays for all the stuff shoplifters steal.

I wish people would take their heads out of the sand and realize WHY all shoplifters should be reported.

MISSOURIAN

DEAR MISSOURIAN: In addition to which, the one with his head in the sand is in an ideal position to be kicked in the rear!

DEAR ABBY: The letter about those people in Hartford, who allowed their big slobbering dog to dominate an otherwise elegant dinner party, struck a familiar note.

I happen to be a dog lover, too, and own two oversized Irish Setters. My dogs are welcome to roam around inside my home most of the time. This I consider my business.

Fortunately I have enough sense to realize that not everyone loves dogs. Indeed I am aware that some people don't care for dogs at all. And some are even terrified of them, so when I entertain guests, my dogs are kept out of sight.

No one enjoys being met at his car by a barking, excited animal—not to mention sharing his dinner with it.

Animals require responsibility, and their presence in many instances requires judgment, which unfortunately, is too rarely used.

And by the way, this goes for children, too!

DOG LOVER WITH HUMAN FRIENDS

DEAR LOVER: I'll bet you have more human friends than most dog lovers.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market retreated at the midway point Tuesday, as investors cashed in on sharp gains made recently. Trading was heavy.

Shortly before 1:15 p.m., the Dow Jones Industrial average, which had been ahead more than a point at the outset, was down 5.40 to 944.69. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dropped 0.16 to 108.61.

Three-hour turnover totaled 14,480,000 shares, compared with 12,540,000 traded during the corresponding period Monday. Declines overtook advances, 753 to 656, among the 1,081 issues traded. Advances had been ahead earlier.

One victim of the profit taking was Rite-Aid, down 6 1/2. The issue had advanced 24 points in recent sessions, including 9 Monday, after announcing a 3-for-1 stock split and plans to increase the dividend.

Kroger, which reported higher fourth-quarter and yearly earnings added 2 1/2. It opened after a delay at 115 1/4, up 3. Also stronger were Gulf, Mobil & Ohio Railroad, 3/4, and Illinois Central, 1/2, after the Interstate Commerce Commission cleared the way for them to merge.

Steels, motors, chemicals and oils were mixed. DuPont, a big gainer recently, dropped 2 1/2 in the chemicals. Superior Oil rose 1 1/2 in the oils.

Rails, airlines and aircraft moved irregularly. Burlington Northern advanced 1 1/2 in the rails and Trans-World Airlines 1 1/2 in this group.

Admiral and Fairchild Camera were point-sized losers in the mixed electronics and computers.

Polaroid, Wrigley and Walt Disney (ex-dividend) surrendered around 2 points each. Bausch & Lomb lost 3. Point-sized losers included American Research & Development and Loews Corp.

Cricket Sings Only of Love

"O cricket is to cricket den, and ant for ant doth long."

Theocritus about? A study by University of Florida cricket specialist indicates said cricket only knows three tunes: All love songs, of a sort. Lyrics of the first, in effect, say: "Hello, honey, I'm yours." Of the second, so to speak: "Forgot that fellow you're with, baby, and come away with me." And of the third, as it were: "Get away, you rascal, this little flower of feminine pulchritude is mine." Something like that, anyway. You get it. HERE CLAIMS a scholar there's no other one word in English that rhymes with lemon. Can't believe it. Realize no other one word rhymes with silver. Or spirit. Or chimney. Or window. Or carpet. Or orange. But lemon?

IT IS with regret, although not much, that I must report the historical fact that the legendary Wyatt Earp took sizable kickbacks from the redlight district dames of Dodge City, Kan.

Q. "Didn't the first honeybees come over to this country on the Mayflower?"

A. Shortly thereafter. Indians called them "the white man's flies."

Q. "DO MAMA seals have their babies in the water or on the land?"

A. Depends on whether those mama seals have ears. Wait, it's true, hear? Seals with ears frequently give birth on land; seals without ears, in the water, always.

IF THE pollsters are accurate in their latest surveys, more husbands than wives wish they had married other matrimonial mates. This sad fact is said to be showing up more clearly now that some states are permitting no-fault divorces based on irreconcilable differences. Larger numbers of disconsolate husbands of late are hiring attorneys first. They must be Sagittarius husbands. Impatient. Determined. A little reckless.

NEIGHBOR

Even now, there are those who think it's significant that the word "neighbor" started out as a contraction of "the boor who lives right to us."

THE CALIFORNIAN asks the highest number of capital convicts executed nationwide in any one year. Was 199. In 1935, ONLY ONE catout of two has its own dinner dish, and to say,

Thai scene similar to S. Vietnam

LOM SAK, Thailand (UPI) — The scene at this forward operations base for Thailand's 2nd army is starkly similar to the allied buildup in the Central Highlands of South Vietnam six years ago.

The generals who run Thailand pledge that it will never become another Vietnam. But in some ways it already has.

There are no hordes of North Vietnamese invaders in Thailand and the few American advisers here maintain a very low profile.

But the Thais have begun to fight the Communist insurgents in North Thailand the American way—with the largest military operation ever mounted on Thai soil.

Operation Phu Kwang is a search-and-destroy foray in which Thai forces totaling 8,000 or more have as their target an estimated 500 Meo tribesmen with Sino-Thai leadership of Communist persuasion.

This base is about 300 miles north of Bangkok and the operational area for Phu Kwang, which translates "mountain obstacle," covers three mountainous provinces and borders the part of Laos that knifes down into north Thailand.

The heaviest fighting centers around the rugged Hin Long Kha plateau where an estimated 100 Meos are fighting desperately to hold onto their jungle operational base, which is continually pounded by Thai artillery and air strikes.

After six weeks of fighting, government forces have lost about 30 dead and killed an estimated 200 Meos.

Analysis

The operation has some striking similarities to earlier ones in Vietnam.

For example, the government cannot produce an actual body count because most of the Meos were killed by artillery and air strikes rather than in fire fights. For this reason, enemy casualty figures are as suspect as they were in Vietnam six years ago.

The Thais are using tactics learned from their American advisers, many of whom learned their own tactics in Vietnam. For example, the Thais have used helicopters to drop small units onto the edge of the plateau. They came under heavy fire and were withdrawn.

The Thais are using an army that calls for large amounts of ammunition and expensive helicopters. To a great extent, this army was paid for with American dollars as well as advised by U.S. soldiers.

But the Meos, considering the "many thousands" of villagers the Thai command admits support them, are not so outnumbered and handicapped as it might appear.

Throughout the fighting, they have been able to rearm themselves with food and ammunition hauled onto the plateau by back-packs and mules. The Thai command says there is some evidence that the Meos have used elephants to bring supplies down from Laos.

Operation Phu Kwang in some ways looks strikingly similar to the big operations mounted by the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division in the Central Highlands of Vietnam in the mid-1960s.

Only time will tell if Phu Kwang will be more successful but there are indications that it may work in Thailand.

For one thing, the insurgent force here is much smaller than the North Vietnamese that had to be dealt with in the Vietnam highlands.

The Thais and their American advisers believe that it is possible not only to neutralize insurgent strongholds such as the Hin Long Kha plateau, but to establish government control there.

Tiny's in trouble

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tiny Tim's two-year marriage is on the rocks, but the falsetto-voiced singer says Miss Vicki "is still my sweet angel."

The entertainer revealed Monday he has filed for a legal separation. He blamed the couple's troubles on his wife's desire for a modeling career and the fact that "basically, I'm broke."

1972 draft down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — draft was made possible by continued success in the U. S. effort to turn fighting in Vietnam over to the South Vietnamese.

"In the second quarter of this year, draft calls will average 5,000 per month—a draft call of 15,000 for April, May and June," Laird said.

There were no draft calls for the first three months this year. Laird said the reduction in the

Onweiler wins printing fight

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. William Onweiler, R-Boise, won a floor fight Monday to force the House to print his bill to pay 100 per cent of public school instructional costs from the state level.

After losing similar attempts on Friday and Saturday Onweiler forced the House to read in full all bills up for final consideration by objecting to waiver of the constitutional requirement on bill reading.

Monday, the Printing Committee sent the bill back to the floor with a recommendation it not be printed and Onweiler offered a counter motion that the measure be printed.

He won 37-28 just in time to have the bill considered with two Revenue and Taxation Committee bills on the same subject at a Monday night public hearing.

Had he failed to get the bill printed it would, in effect, have been dead, Speaker William J. Lantieri, R-Hollister, ruled.

In asking the House to print his bill Onweiler apologized for his "obstructionism" of last week. He said such a tactic was not new to the House "but I'm awfully sorry I had to do it."

Onweiler told the House his bill contains $46 million worth of property tax relief—shifting those taxes to state level liquor profits, forest revenues, sales, cigarette and income taxes.

"But, he said, 'It does not increase the burden on the low income taxpayer, the fixed income taxpayer or the elderly taxpayers.'

Instead, he said, its net effect is to offer such persons a tax reduction.

Insurance measure snagged in house

BOISE (UPI) — A bill to require liability insurance before registration and licensing of an automobile ran into trouble on the house floor Monday and was sidetracked for amendment.

Rep. Clyde Keithly, R-Nampa, floor sponsor, asked the bill be put into committee of the whole when he discovered it did not contain certain material it was supposed to contain.

Even before Keithly made his move, however, serious questions were raised about the bill.

Rep. John Molyneux, D-

Coeur d'Alene, said he wondered whether it will "force all of the bad risks on liability insurance and double our insurance rates."

While he felt Molyneux had a point, Rep. John Hearndon, R-Boise, said the real problem is one of enforcement.

Rep. Jack Kennebeck, R-Boise, an insurance agent, said he opposes the bill because he feels "it's going to cost people who buy insurance more money."

He said there will be a "hidden cost" of underwriting for those motorists who do not intend to keep the insurance.

Driver training bill given okay

BOISE (UPI) — To make driver training self-supporting, the House passed 61-2 and sent to the Senate today a bill raising fees for driver's and chauffeur's licenses and driver education.

Rep. William Roberts, R-Bath, told the House that each year since driver training was begun the legislature has had to make a supplemental appropriation for the program.

He said this tap on the general fund now amounts to between $200,000 and $250,000 per year and appears to be growing annually.

To offset this, he said, this bill would raise the fees for driver training to $12 from $3, chauffeur's licenses to $9 from $3, and driver's licenses to $7 from $6. It also would set up a continuing driver training fund.

"We do have a good driver training program in the State of Idaho and it's important we keep it," Roberts said.

Solon questions interest conflict

BOISE (UPI) — In a letter to the U. S. Attorney General, Sen. Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, has questioned an alleged "conflict of interest" of participants in the Snake River dam situation.

Budge said copies of his letter were being sent to the anti-trust division of the U. S. Justice Department, the division of the Internal Revenue Service in charge of granting tax exemption bonds, the Federal Power Commission and Idaho's congressional delegation.

But, he said, "a conflict of interest" between the Idaho

Water Resource Board, the Idaho Power Company and International Engineering Company on grounds—

International Engineering is a completely owned subsidiary with interlocking officers of Morrison-Knudsen Company.

"Morrison-Knudsen has built all the Snake River dams for Idaho Power since the end of World War II, including the three in Hells Canyon."

And "the IWRB employed International Engineering as its sole engineering advisors on the Swan Falls Project."

Pantsuits okayed

BLACKFOOT, Idaho (UPI) — Seventh District Judge Arnold Doobe Monday ruled that the Shelley School District did not have the right to prohibit girls from wearing pantsuits and pants to school.

The judges ruling followed final arguments today. Testimony in the case was heard several weeks ago from parents of students who brought the action against the district.

The judge said students could not be prevented from wearing pants so long as the apparel was a matter of "uncleanliness or interfered with other legitimate functions of the school district to maintain discipline or foster education."
