

Air, sea attacks rip Reds

SAIGON (UPI)—The United States today carried out heavy retaliatory air and naval bombardments of North Vietnam. In the south, four Communist divisions were reported moving into areas north and northwest of Saigon in the most serious threat to the capital since the 1968 Tet offensive.

Hanoi Radio said 10 American planes were shot down in the first hours of the bombing attack north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ).

UPI field reports said three F-4 Phantoms, an unidentified jet fighter plane and a HH-53 Super Jolly Green Giant rescue helicopter were known to have been shot down on both sides of the DMZ. The U.S. command reserved comment.

The field reports said two F-4s were downed north of the DMZ and that the third was shot down just north of Quang Tri City, 18 miles south of the DMZ, by the first missiles known to have been installed in South Vietnam. The HH-53 was shot down while trying to rescue the two pilots.

Military sources said four full divisions of 40,000 to 50,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were in Tay Ninh, Binh Long and Binh Duong Provinces just above Saigon and that heavy fighting was underway in regions 60 to 75 miles from Saigon. Some of the Communist troops moved in from Cambodia.

The U.S. command said the bombardment of North Vietnam by fleets of Air Force and U.S. Navy planes—up to 500 in all—and by five U.S. 7th Fleet destroyers equipped with missiles and five-inch rifles was in retaliation for the North Vietnamese invasion of South Vietnam.

The command said the strikes were being carried out because the invasion had endangered the lives of the diminishing American troops in South Vietnam. It was the first time since the 1968 bomb halt ordered by President Lyndon B. Johnson that the bombings were not called "protective reaction" strikes.

Military sources said Communist troops were closing in on three sides on the district town of Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon, and that casualties on both sides were "very heavy" as the outnumbered South Vietnamese fought back.

Thousands of Government troops formerly in the areas guarding Saigon were flown earlier to Quang Tri Province in the northern part of South Vietnam to stem the Communist invasion across the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) border, and the military sources said the defenders were outnumbered by a full division.

The II Corps Region (the 11 provinces surrounding Saigon) has no reserves left, one military source said. They are short on tactical air, short on helicopter redeployment and resupply aircraft and are getting no B-52 strikes. (The B-52s also have been concentrating on Quang Tri Province.)

The sources said government commanders in the II Corps region had appealed to the U.S. command for help. One American general also urged the high command to give more American air and artillery support to the beleaguered government troops.

Health plan due study

By HUGH DAVIS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Comprehensive health planning will have to wait in the Magic Valley. Backers of the idea got a cool reception Wednesday night.

Two dozen county commissioners, hospital administrators and a few interested citizens sat for three hours.

Then they voted to meet again May 24.

Falling even to muster a vote to set up a steering committee to set up a planning agency, backers of the idea had to be content with suggestions that participants "think about" nominees for a steering committee during the next month and a half.

The meeting at the College of Southern Idaho was called to see if Magic Valley might be interested in forming a comprehensive health planning agency.

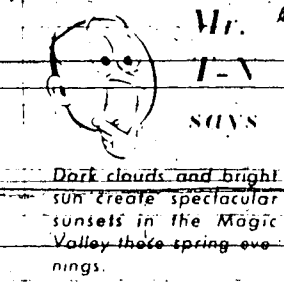

Two CHP administrators outlined the case for such an agency and asked those in attendance if this area had health needs that could be reviewed by a CHP agency.

Blaine Durrant, executive director of the Southeastern Center for Health Resource, explained the scope of a CHP agency.

Durrant said, "A comprehensive health planning agency is all-inclusive, it is concerned with the physical, mental and environmental health of all people in a particular area. It is concerned about the administration of all health facilities, services and manpower available to the people of that area."

Durrant opened the meeting to questions. Stuart Gwin, planner for the Idaho State Comprehensive Planning agency, was asked how the Magic Valley would go about applying for federal money to start an agency.

Jerome slates recall

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News writer

JEROME — No appeal of a ruling ordering a recall election is planned by the Jerome City Council.

The ruling was issued Tuesday by Fifth District Judge Theron Ward.

Lloyd Webb, Twin Falls attorney who joined with Jerome City Atty. Richard Seeley in representing the City Council in the court hearing, told the Times-News today he advised the council and Mayor Jack Russell the ruling could be appealed to the Idaho Supreme Court.

But the council said it would not appeal, Webb said.

"Unless the council has changed its mind since Tuesday, they felt at that time the matter had gone on long enough and they thought they would go ahead and order the election and let the chips fall where they would," Webb said.

He said the council has seven days from the time the order is signed to call a special election. It must be within 40 days of final certification of the order.

A representative of the office of S. A. Kolman, who appeared in behalf of citizens seeking recall of Councilmen Walter C. Bentzinger and Elwin Tinker, said papers should be mailed to the judge today for his signature.

Judge Ward Tuesday made permanent a writ of mandamus requiring the election be held. He denied a motion to quash the writ. The recall was sought by citizens angered by the council's refusal to rehire C. H. Puntney as police chief in January.

A recall movement spokesman said today it was not known whether the effort to recall Councilman S. M. (Shorty) Weeks would be revived in time for the election.

Private school help pledged

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — President Nixon said today that collapse of Catholic and other nonpublic schools would be catastrophic to the nation and pledged federal help to keep them operating.

Nixon renewed the pledge he made last summer to Catholic educators that he would work to save the financially beleaguered parochial school system. And for the first time, he said his long-promised education finance reform plan would include "specific measures to preserve the nonpublic schools system."

The President made the promise in a speech to some 10,000 nuns, teachers and priests attending the 69th annual convention of the National Catholic Education Conference, which heard more disquieting reports of the woes of Catholic education — with costs soaring and enrollment dropping.

He spoke coincidentally on the same day and in the same city where a three-judge federal panel today declared unconstitutional a Pennsylvania law providing for state reimbursement of parents of children attending nonpublic schools.

Nixon said collapse of nonpublic schools would be catastrophic from several standpoints but particularly to big city public school systems which would have to absorb a new load of students.

He added:

"For many Americans, allegiance to their nonpublic community schools is their strongest single tie to city life," he said. "If the schools should close, many of these families would abandon the city for the suburbs. This in turn would further worsen the racial isolation of our central cities — a development we must not permit."

The nation's private schools now educate 5.2 million children, with 4.1 million of them in Catholic schools. Church-affiliated schools enroll more than nine out of every 10 nonpublic students.

Almost all of them face a financial crisis of the first magnitude, Nixon said, adding that he was "irrevocably committed" to the proposition that "we must and will find ways" to provide help for them.

The President also touched briefly in his text on school busing, reviewing his recent proposals to Congress to declare a moratorium until the middle of next year on court busing decrees and to approve new legislation to curb excessive busing.

Nixon said:

"Heavy reliance on cross-city busing of school children has failed to meet either of its intended purposes — to promote quality education for all, and to end the racial isolation which we all agree must be ended. Instead, busing has disrupted and divided increasing numbers of schools and communities."

George Hansen sets Senate bid

TWIN FALLS — George Hansen will officially announce his candidacy for the United States Senate on April 25.

The former Second District Republican Congressman, seeking the Senate seat to be vacated by the retirement of Sen. Len Jordan, said "that particular day was picked because it has special significance." He did not elaborate further.

"I feel real good about the whole thing," Hansen said. "I have visited all parts of the state and conferred with scores of Republican party leaders. I can say that as of April 25 I will have my track shoes on and will be ready to go. Everything is set and campaign plans have been formalized. They will be announced in detail on the April 25 date."

Panel approves welfare update

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee voted Wednesday to liberalize the welfare system for the nation's aged, blind and disabled, in a move that would lift 4 million of them above the poverty level.

Adults in those categories now receive an average payment of $70 a month. They would be assured an income of $130 a month for single people and $185 for couples under the committee's unanimous action.

At an increase of $3.5 billion in federal welfare expenditures, this would add 4.3 million persons to the 3.1 million adults who now draw benefits from the states.

About 6.4 million persons on welfare live below the poverty line defined by the government as $2,100 a year for a single person and $2,640 for a couple. Two-thirds of them would be lifted above those levels under the committee's proposal.

Under its action a poor person would not lose welfare payments if he had $50 in income from Social Security and another $50 in earned income. But welfare payments would diminish if his income was above $100 a month. If he had $360 in monthly income, he would be ineligible for any welfare.

As the bill was drafted, the states, relieved of all expenditures for adults on welfare, would have the option of saving what they now spend or supplementing the basic federal payment.

A number of states now pay more than $130 a month. Recipients in those states would not benefit under the committee bill.

But an effort is expected in the Senate to compel states to supplement the federal payment.

The committee took no action, however, on a far more controversial aspect of the welfare reform bill proposed two years ago by President Nixon and passed in June by the House — the family assistance plan. It would guarantee $2,400 a year for a family of four on welfare.

If the head of the household works but earns less than $2,400, the federal government would make up the difference. Liberals hope to increase the $2,400 figure when the committee sends the bill to the Senate floor, but conservatives argue that approval of even the $2,400 guaranteed annual income would give those on welfare no incentive to find work.

Cong aides assail US bombing raids

PARIS (UPI) — The Viet Cong charged today that President Nixon "was starting the Vietnam war all over again" because of U.S. air and naval support for hard-pressed South Vietnamese forces. North Vietnam rejected U.S. charges it has invaded South Vietnam.

Viet Cong Foreign Minister Madame Nguyen Thi Binh told a news conference that the Communist aim "is to liberate South Vietnam" and said that the current week-old Communist offensive in the northern quarter of South Vietnam "is a step in that direction."

"President Nixon's policy of Vietnamization is collapsing," she said.

North Vietnam at nearly the same time rejected U.S. charges that it has invaded South Vietnam in violation of the 1954 Geneva Accords that ended the French Indochina war by dividing it into two parts.

The United States launched retaliatory air strikes against North Vietnam today on grounds Hanoi's forces had invaded South Vietnam and had "threatened" American lives there.

10 more Yanks die

SAIGON (UPI) — Ten Americans were killed during only the first two days of the current Communist offensive in South Vietnam, indicating that war casualties this week — and reported next week — will be even higher.

South Vietnamese troops suffered at least 466 dead and 1,073 wounded, the highest government casualty total since May, 1971, spokesmen said.

White Cloud mine ban draws Gem endorsement

TWIN FALLS — Sen. Frank Church apparently agrees with the White Clouds Task Force in asking that molybdenum mining in the White Clouds Mountains be stopped.

A spokesman in the Idaho Democrat's Washington office said Wednesday "The Senator has not seen the preliminary findings of the task force but plans action consistent with its recommendations."

Senator Church intends to introduce an amendment to the Sawtooth National Recreation Bill, which includes the White Clouds area, that would stop all future mining entry in that area.

Hearings on the Sawtooth bill are slated for April 12 and April 13 before the Senate Interior Committee.

Church's amendment would not affect existing mining operations in the White Cloud Mountains, but would stop any future mineral operations planned for the area.

The proposal would restrict all mining operations, including molybdenum extraction.

Church's spokesman said the Senator is hopeful the task force recommendations will be entered in testimony at the April 12 hearings.

Tuesday, the White Clouds Task Force, made up of several governmental agencies, released information calling for a curb on molybdenum mining.

The abstract report indicated there was a surplus of molybdenum in the country.

In the opinion of the task force, molybdenum mining should not be continued in the White Clouds area unless it can be proved the mineral is needed and that such mining would not cause "serious environmental problems."

Ex-German chief dies

BONN (UPI) — Former West German President Heinrich Lübke died today after a short illness, a government spokesman said. He was 77.

The white-haired Lübke, who served as president from 1959 to 1969, entered Bonn University Clinic last Thursday for emergency surgery to stop massive internal bleeding.

Doctors said at first he was making a successful recovery from the operation. However, he took a turn for the worse and on Sunday a medical bulletin described his condition as serious.

The Twin Falls chapter of the association will act as host for the two-day conclave.

The competition will pit girls and schools against each other in the operation of office machines and secretarial skills such as shorthand and business records management.

The evening hours of the conference are slated for speeches by visiting office education authorities and experts.

The opening address, "The World Today," will be given by Dr. James Taylor, CSI president. The talks will be directed to the various aspects of the secretarial profession. # Egypt cuts relations with Jordan Seen...

CAIRO (UPI) — The Egyptian government has decided to break off diplomatic relations with Jordan, the Middle East News Agency (MENA) said today.

An announcement by Information Minister Abdel Kader Hatem said "the breaking of diplomatic relations with Jordan has become one of the necessities of the battle."

Relations between Jordan and Egypt were discussed today at a cabinet meeting chaired by President Anwar Sadat and attended by Vice President Hussein Shafel and Hafez Ismail, the presidential adviser on national security.

Hatem said political relations with the Jordanian regime were brought up at today's cabinet session "after" it became clear that King Hussein's plan for a federal Jordan and another plan by Israeli Deputy Premier Yigal Allon are the same. Both these plans aim at executing the imperialist plan in the region. "Therefore, breaking off diplomatic relations with Jordan is one of the necessities of the battle—now that this imperialist scheme has become clear," Hatem said. Palestinian leaders had gathered in Cairo at the Arab League headquarters to discuss plans for unity of the guerrilla movement and to map out their opposition to the Hussein plan. Political sources said Sadat would address the group later today and it was thought possible he might announce a diplomatic break with Jordan at the time.

Church agrees on task force

Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, in a statement from Tokyo, Japan, where he is currently on a tour, said he was satisfied with the report, which he said substantiates his belief the best use of the White Clouds area is not open pit mining.

The governor said the report is a victory for Idaho's people who have overwhelmingly favored preservation of the high altitude, pristine White Cloud Mountains.

The report is an endorsement of his proposal for national park status for the high altitude regions of the Sawtooth-White Cloud and Boulder Mountains, Andrus said.

The task force studying the area "has not yet found any significant evidence to indicate that the area can be mined without seriously impairing the high quality environment," he said.

Andrus said the impact of the report may be one of the most significant developments in many years for long range protection of the Idaho salmon and steelhead fishery.

Robert E. Smylie, former governor and Republican candidate for the U. S. Senate, said in Pocatello the report is a major forward step in the long fight to preserve the White Clouds.

Several other special awards were given including honors to pilots who have completed from one to 20 years of safe flying. Warren Barry, Twin Falls, member of the Idaho Board of Aeronautics received a 21-year award.

Other special awards were Ed McCarty, Kimberly, the oldest safe pilot; Bill Powell, the "bushiest" bush pilot; Lloyd Shewmaker, Kimberly, the flyingest farmer, and L. James Koutnik, master of ceremonies for the dinner, the drinkingest pilot.

Devoted To The Citizens of Magic Valley

Thursday, April 6, 1972 AL Westergren, Publisher PHONE 733-0931

Official City and County Newspaper Member of Audit Bureau of Circulation and UPI
Pursuant to Section 40-108 Idaho Code, Thursday is hereby designated as the day of the week on which legal notices will be published. Published daily and Sunday, except Saturday, at 132 Third Street West, Twin Falls, Idaho 83401 by Magic Valley Newspapers, Inc. Entered as second class mail matter April 8, 1918, at the post office in Twin Falls, Idaho 83401, under the act of March 3, 1879.

About Taxes

The revolution is underway and it is for real. The protests are mounting in many sections of the nation and we anticipate that sooner than expected the vocal and action complaints will move into Magic Valley and into Idaho.

The revolution involves an organized move against more and more and higher and higher taxes. The organizations doing the protesting are made up mostly of individuals who are not usually found among people protesting. In fact, in many instances the "organizations" are only two or three individuals with the same thoughts. They are concerned.

That the concern is reaching into this area was shown the other evening when some 175 citizens of Twin Falls crowded into the Council Chambers to protest assessment against irrigation ditch use. This is only the beginning. Citizens are no longer accepting higher costs as inevitable.

The biggest protests are coming from the middle-age group and from those who have retired and who are now trying to live on fixed incomes. They would point out that "surviving" would probably be a better word to use rather than "living."

Proposed bond issues in Magic Valley do not fare well. Those in the know expect more proposals in the planning stage to be turned down when they come up for a vote. Right in Twin Falls an organized effort is underway to block a proposed bond issue calling for a new grade school and other improvements. Although it is admitted that the need is there these people look at the increased taxes which would result.

And so it goes. People want a lot of services which cost money. But many are now willing to cut down on services in order that taxes can be cut. In our area this downward current is only beginning.

We would predict the revolt against more taxes will gain followers.

New Laws

In one of the last acts before closing up shop until the next biennial session, the 1971 Wisconsin legislature presented that state's consumers with one of the most progressive credit reform laws ever introduced in the United States.

Among numerous provisions to go into effect in March 1973, posterity will call down most blessings upon the lawmakers for two major reforms.

One is a three-day cooling-off period for sales made in the home. This means that a housewife, for example, who is talked into signing a contract by a fast-talking salesman for something she really doesn't want or really can't afford, will be able to cancel the agreement by notifying the merchant within three working days.

Not only that, but the merchant must reclaim any of his property within 20 days or it becomes the property of the consumer, without any obligation to pay for it.

Another major section of the law essentially abolishes the ancient and notorious doctrine of "holder in due course."

Presently in Wisconsin, and most other states, a merchant may sell a note signed by the customer to a lending agency — the "holder in due course." The customer is legally responsible to the lending agency for payment of the installments on the note, but the lender is not responsible for any defects in the merchandise — TV set, refrigerator, or whatever.

There have been cases where people — usually the poor and unsophisticated — have been required to pay for merchandise an unscrupulous vendor never even delivered.

Under the Wisconsin reform, a consumer must be notified in writing by the creditor (seller) if the creditor is going to assign the right of debt collection to a lending agency, and the lending agency will be liable for all claims of defective merchandise for up to one year.

Legitimate businessmen, as well as consumers, should champion similar reforms in every state.

WASHINGTON — The failure of House conservatives, particularly Southern Democrats, to get behind President Nixon's proposed moratorium on school busing is deeply worrying Administration strategists.

Instead of the united conservative support the White House had bargained for, such key House Southern Democrats as Democratic Rep. Joe Waggoner, Jr., of Louisiana and Republican Rep. Fletcher Thompson of Georgia are bitterly complaining that Mr. Nixon's anti-busing program is too little and too late as a "Yankee relief measure," as Waggoner calls it.

A just-completed White House survey of pending desegregation cases, however, shows that the South would benefit more than any other geographic area if the President's proposed moratorium, banning new court-ordered busing, became law.

Out of 50 such cases, about 34 directly affect Southern school districts, including all but one of the 11 Southern states.

Presidential aides trying to build political backing for Mr. Nixon's moratorium are now emphasizing this point: that although Southern school districts where court-ordered busing is now taking place will get no relief, these 34 new districts may become targets of court-ordered busing soon if the moratorium fails.

Even if the Administration can make that argument stick, however, the President's moratorium is far from secure. For example, many Congressmen from South and North are rushing to add their names to the petition to discharge the proposed anti-busing Constitutional amendment, now buried in the House Judiciary Committee.

But even if the discharge petition eventually attracts the required 218 names, forcing the issue to the floor of the House, a Constitutional amendment to ban school busing for racial balance could not be ratified until long after the November election, if ever. What that means is that many Congressmen opposed to court-ordered busing see greater political gain in backing a plea in the sky Constitutional approach than in the more modest moratorium.

Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's top foreign policy adviser, gave an emphatic explanation when Congressmen and Senators demanded to know why Secretary of State William P. Rogers was excluded from the President's session with Mao Tse-tung, China's top politician.

Kissinger, who accompanied Mr. Nixon alone to the meeting with Mao, stated that it had been set up on the spur of the moment as a "ceremonial" handshake between Chairman Mao and Mr. Nixon.

A business session, Kissinger went on to say, was to be held later, with Rogers definitely present.

However, Kissinger said, the first meeting was suddenly transformed from a mere handshake into a business meeting that lasted one hour. That concluded the working session with Chairman Mao, obviating any second meeting.

Aspirin Smells

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Some years ago I read an article by a doctor who said that aspirin tablets which have a vinegar-like smell are old, and if used will do more harm than good. I wasn't too concerned then because I seldom used aspirin. Now, because of my arthritis I use at least 15 tablets a day.

With very few exceptions every bottle of aspirin I buy, whether the cheapest or not, has a vinegar-like smell. Will you give me your opinion? — Mrs. F.

Chemically, aspirin, which is acetylsalicylic acid, is related remotely to acetic acid in vinegar. It can, therefore, have a vinegary odor, even when fresh.

The odor can intensify with age, but this does not mean the tablets are spoiled.

Pharmacists say the way to tell when aspirin is spoiled is to note when a "frost" or powdery surface appears on the tablets.

This "frost" is acid crystals which can be very irritating. With the amount you are using, I would be very surprised if you keep any aspirin around long enough to reach this stage, unless you are buying it in enormous quantities — and I doubt that you are.

Don't worry about a faint vinegary odor; just watch the surface of the tablets for any sign of this "frost" to appear.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you list the foods to be avoided if one has a high cholesterol count and wishes to keep it normal? — Mrs. A. P.

You'll find such a list in my booklet, "Control Cholesterol Sensibly," but you'll also find that there's more to the cholesterol matter than merely avoiding certain foods. Best you send 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for the booklet if you are serious about getting your cholesterol down to a reasonable level.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Some friends and I were discussing pregnancy and one of the girls said she heard it was the female that determined the sex of a child because one ovary produces female eggs and the other produces male eggs, and the sex of the child depends on which ovary produced the eggs at the time of conception.

In high school biology I was taught it was the father who determined the sex of the child and the female's egg cells had

"Out" Officials

WASHINGTON — What amounts to a bloodless counterrevolution, apparently has taken place in China.

Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai are not affected.

But beneath this topmost level, there has been a comeback of some of the highest officials purged in the Cultural Revolution. This is reported in letters just arrived from Hong Kong citing a great deal of evidence from official sources.

Moreover, the resurgence of old timers extends so far down through the ranks and to so many provinces that in many respects it seems to mean a repudiation of the tumultuous Cultural Revolution, which had aimed at restructuring Mao's China.

Whatever the meaning, the current shifts seem to bring back into prominence the same group of men who ran the Communist party in the days of the Yenan caves 27 years ago.

Liu Shao-chi, Mao's disgraced former heir apparent, is still missing. So are Peng Te-huai and Lin Biao, Mao's latest chosen successor. Chen Yi is dead. But a heavy share of others castigated and disgraced in the Cultural Revolution are now being honored in public.

In China, official public honor and appearance at certain types of gathering are synonymous with power.

Former Marshal Chu Teh, once head of all the Chinese Communist armies, on Jan. 24 of this year appeared as head of the Standing Committee of the National Peoples Congress for the first time since 1966.

Former Marshals Nieh Jung-chen and Hsu Hsiangchien, vice-chairmen of the Chinese Communist party Central Military Affairs Committee, are back in sight with honor. So is former Central Committee member Liao Cheng-chih. Mao recently paid unusual honor to a former marshal and foreign minister, Chen Yi, who was disgraced after defending Liu Shao-chi.

(In the system which prevails in China, a man may be disgraced and ousted from his influence and power, but still keep his old titles and posts on paper, while not being allowed to carry out his duties. Liu Shao-chi, for example, though purged, has never been relieved of his title as president.)

As noted, the comeback extends down to the lowest levels. In those regions for which data is available, the reports indicate that more than 90 per cent of the old cadres at county level and below have been restored to their old or equal positions of local power and influence.

There are also reports that railway cadres removed in the Cultural Revolution, following Liu Shao-chi, are now also being restored to their posts.

A Suspicion

WASHINGTON — One should always approach with suspicion a book about people written by a psychologist. Man and boy, the professional student of the human animal has proved over the centuries that if it is possible to be wrong about, say, why a little boy eats like a pig, he will find a way.

Thus it is not surprising to discover that a professor of psychology at New York University named Daniel Yankelovich apparently has been sold a solid gold Brooklyn Bridge by the college students of this once-great nation. Yankelovich's book, "The Changing Values on Campus" (Pocket Books, $2.95), suggests that he has spent his time dreaming in an easy chair instead of conducting what the handout calls "five years of intensive interviews with students on campuses across the nation."

They saw Yankelovich coming, and had the shell game all set up. With straight face the poor man reports that "By overwhelming margins, students support such traditional views as these:

"Children should respect their parents" (87 per cent). "Society needs some legally-based authority in order to prevent chaos" (66 per cent). "Business is entitled to make a profit" (95 per cent).

"The right to private property is sacred" (69 per cent).

You understand, one does not doubt that Yankelovich is accurately reporting the them.

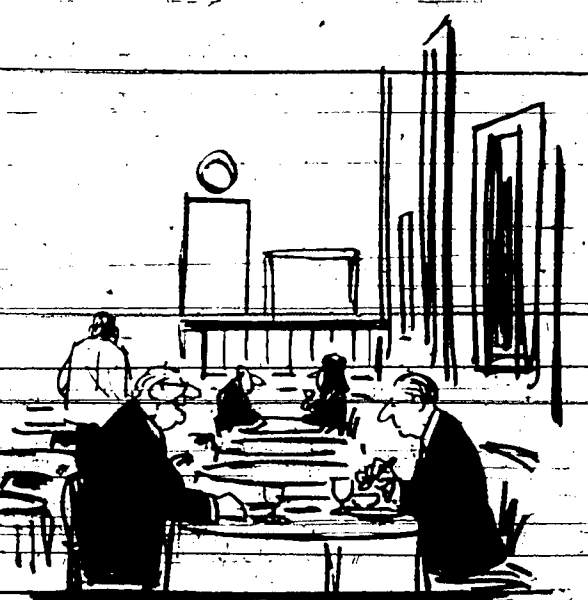

responses to his interrogations. But the reader is entitled to look with awe upon a researcher who apparently had never before encountered an opinion expressed with tongue firmly in cheek. To seriously report that college students "by overwhelming margins" cuddle such square thoughts about their elders and their elders' interests is to invite examination by a man in a white coat and possible restraint against self-harm.

I suppose there are still college students who respect their parents. But every study I have made suggests it is a patronizing, absent-minded kind of respect, bestowed on kindly folks whose intelligence is suspect and who therefore should be treated with a friendly contempt leavened with pity. After all, mamas and papas do exist, they do write checks and, anyway, patricide is illegal.

But no such stipulations govern the average college student's attitude toward cops, business and private property. If Yankelovich really believes his students' depositions that they "respect" such traditional institutions, he was born not yesterday but 20 years before that. Indeed, his findings smack more of the Congress of Vienna or a bad Dickens novel than the Campus USA, 1972.

College students may not zap cops as much as they did a few years ago, but they still hate them.

Really No Change

The years continue to move past but, really, things don't change very much. At least not the thinking along some lines.

For instance, we received a note from Mrs. Richard Johansen of Route Two, Gobbling, the other day. She told us that sometime ago she had the opportunity to see her grandfather's bankbook dated December, 1918, to August, 1922.

Inside the covers were pasted several clippings, all yellowed with age. She copied them to keep in her family's history album. She sent us a copy of one of the clippings and said that we might enjoy it.

Well, we did just that. And so we will share it with you. The bankbook was property of Richard Matheny and was on the Fremont County Savings Bank of Sidney, Iowa. Here is the copy of the clipping:

"In most any paper you pick up you will see something like this: 'The farmers need help; the farmers are bankrupt, someone is planning to loan the farmers money.' The farmers do not want help, nor do they want the rest of the world to think they are after

Harrisburg jury hung; seven freed

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — The vote was 10 to 2 for acquittal of the Harrisburg Seven in the deadlocked jury that was discharged because it could not reach a unanimous verdict on the charge of plotting to disrupt the government, a juror said today.

The key government charge in the 11-week trial of the Rev. Philip F. Berrigan and six other activists against the Vietnam war was that they conspired in 1970 to kidnap presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, to blow up Washington heating ducts and to vandalize draft boards.

Lawrence Evans of Dillsburg, Pa., a supermarket owner, who was juror No. 8, said only he and another juror, a woman, held out to the end for conviction.

He said the jury was divided evenly at the start of deliberations last Thursday. Then, he said, the advocates of acquittal began to talk and four jurors who had been among the six voting guilty gradually switched into the camp voting innocent.

But finally, Wednesday afternoon, the nine-woman, three-man federal court jury reported it was hopelessly deadlocked on the main government charge.

A relative of another juror reported the panel felt the defense attorneys' cross-examination had seriously damaged the credibility of the chief prosecution witness, Boyd F. Douglas, an FBI informant.

He had served two terms in prison and been called an accomplished confidence man by the FBI itself.

Six of the Harrisburg Seven planned to get back into activism today with an antiwar demonstration at a defense plant 25 miles from here, the American Machine and Foundry plant at York, Pa.

"We will go to York tomorrow. We will go all over the world tomorrow. We will continue our antiwar work. We have not been frightened by the government," said Eghal Ahmad, a Pakistani scholar, the only one of the seven who is not a present or former cleric of the Roman Catholic left.

Negligence in Bergeson death

BOISE (UPI) — An eight-member coroner's jury has found negligent homicide existing in the Feb. 29 traffic death of F. W. (Bill) Bergeson, 51, Pocatello.

Bergeson was seeking the Republican nomination to the U.S. Senate at the time of his death. He died in a head-on crash near Boise on Interstate 80N.

The jury found the other car, driven by John Phillip Remaklus, 66, Bliss, was traveling east in a westbound lane at the time of the collision.

"We do not recommend prosecution," the verdict added.

Ada County Prosecutor James E. Risch said he plans to follow the recommendation.

Eight witnesses testified before the jury and Ada County Coroner E. D. Paris, presiding

LDS session opens

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — President Joseph Fielding Smith today opened the semi-annual general conference of the Mormon Church with a call to mankind to accept the teachings of Jesus Christ as the cure for the ills of the world.

"These are the last days," the white-haired, 95-year-old patriarch told the 10,000 delegates who represent more than 3 million members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints around the world who accept him as their modern prophet.

"They are days of trouble and sorrow and desolation," he said. "They are days when Satan dwells in the hearts of ungodly men, when iniquity abounds, and when the signs of the times are being shown forth."

"Our hope for peace, for temporal and spiritual prosperity, and for an eventual inheritance in the kingdom of God is found only in and through the restored gospel."

Smith's opening remarks came after the traditional hand-raising vote sustaining the church's general authorities in office.

April 6 was the date the church was founded in 1830.

The grand-nephew of church founder Joseph Smith urged that Mormons who have strayed to return to the fold, admonished the faithful to stay that way, and invited "all our Father's children everywhere to believe in Christ, to receive him as he is revealed by living prophets, and to join the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints."

Mixup may halt cigaret hike

BOISE (UPI) — A mixup in exactly where all nine cents will be the order which two bills were passed could result in the halting of the new law which puts two more cents per pack on the state cigaret tax.

Secretary of State Pete Conarrusa said Wednesday a problem has arisen concerning that bill and another which added a one-cent-per-carton cigaret tax increase to maintain a state tumor registry.

An attorney general's opinion will be sought on the matter which Conarrusa said "could be a cloud on both bills."

Both bills amend Idaho Code Chapter 63.

The tumor registry bill changes the present law of seven cents per pack to add one cent per carton needed to fund the registry. It has been signed into law by the governor.

The other bill changes the present seven-cent-per-pack tax to nine cents and spells out

8 die in Texas blast

DALLAS (UPI)—Eight persons were killed in a triple explosion and fire at a food processing plant Wednesday. Firemen said an unstable chemical used in preserving bread could have caused it.

Seven persons were injured, including one seriously. It was the worst explosion or fire in Dallas since 1946 when 10 persons died in a downtown hotel blast.

Fire Department spokesman Gene Myers said the explosion occurred near a storage area in the Pennwalt Corp. plant containing 15-20 tons of potassium bromate.

"That chemical is volatile and must be kept at a certain temperature and humidity," Myers said. He said the chemical was capable of causing such a blast, but the department has not officially determined the cause.

It took firemen eight hours to recover the bodies, which were buried under tons of rubble. Nineteen persons escaped the building after the first explosion. The eight victims remained inside the building when the second—and most intense—blast rocked the plant, shattering its walls and damaging seven buildings in the neighborhood.

J.C. Cannon, 23, who works across the street as a printer, and three other workers from neighboring buildings entered the food plant after the initial blast to try to rescue any survivors. The secondary explosion came just after they left, having carried out one woman.

"I was never so scared in my life after that second explosion," Cannon said. He said when he heard the first explosion, "I thought a truck had hit our building...it threw pieces of steel behind our building."

Cannon said he saw workers struggling to get out of the building. He said he heard the employees say others were still inside.

"Nobody was doing anything, so four of us decided to go in. We found a woman who was holding her head. She started falling, so I grabbed her and looked her out," the printer said. He said she said someone else was "back there."

"All we could see was twisted metal and walls mixed in with smoke. We didn't find anybody else or hear anyone," Cannon said.

Media monitor asked by blacks

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)—The Congressional Black Caucus, charging the mass media with distorting news events and excluding blacks from professional positions, called today for the formation of media watchdog committees to challenge these practices.

The committee would be formed by local black organizations to monitor the fairness of the media, challenge licenses, and file lawsuits where unfair practices are found, the caucus said in a position paper prepared for a Conference on National Priorities at Harvard University.

The caucus also proposed that there be greater black participation in the media, especially in professional positions and in agencies like the Federal Communications Commission which regulates the media.

About 600 political, professional and community leaders from around the nation are taking part in the three-day affair. In the communications paper, the caucus charged that the media is almost exclusively controlled by whites with black employment lowest in professional positions and highest in service and labor areas.

The caucus said the government has failed to live up to its mandate that all segments of the population be represented in media regulatory agencies.

In one of the other panels on unemployment—the caucus said the high unemployment rate, which is twice as great for blacks as for whites, is the most serious domestic problem facing the country.

The caucus said the government should create three million new jobs to assure that the unemployment rate falls to 2.5 per cent or less.

'Popeye' collects

NEW YORK (UPI)—Edward "Popeye" Egan, the narcotics detective turned actor who was dismissed from the New York City police force seven hours before he was to retire, can collect a $6,800 annual pension, a judge ruled Wednesday.

New York State Supreme Court Justice George Stark ruled that the police department—which has been at odds with Egan ever since his exploits were dramatized in the hit movie "The French Connection"—must pay Egan his pension.

Movie actor Donlevy dies

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Brian Donlevy, the jaunty, ne-man movie actor of three decades, died Wednesday. He was 69. The cause of his death was not immediately announced. A native of Ireland, Donlevy played rough-and-tumble roles on both sides of the law in most of his scores of pictures. His voice was coarse, his manner brusque but there was always a twinkle in his eye.

His two best-known films were "Beau Geste" (for which he was nominated for an Academy Award) and "What Price Glory."

Donlevy's forte was military pictures in which he generally portrayed a brass-bound officer or a blood-and-guts sergeant.

Before and during World War II, Donlevy became a fixture in war movies. They came naturally to the actor who was a bugler in World War I for General John J. Pershing in France.

His screen credits included: "The Great McGinty," "I Wanted Wings," "Jesse James," "Union Pacific," and "Wake Island."

Donlevy was brought to the United States as an infant and raised in Sheboygan Falls, Wis. He spent two years at the Naval Academy at Annapolis after serving his stint in World War I.

He quit the Academy to become an actor in New York. In his early years his only work was as a model for magazines, posing mostly for collar and cigarette advertising.

Suitably, his first acting role was the Broadway version of "What Price Glory," playing a corporal. He spent a dozen years on Broadway playing comedy, drama, farce and

Soviet premier visits in Iraq

BEIRUT (UPI)—Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin arrived in Iraq today for a visit Arab political sources said could lead to a significant extension of Moscow's influence in the Middle East and a treaty between the two nations Iraq has not been formally aligned with a major power for 14 years.

Baghdad Radio broadcast Kosygin's arrival live and said his plane landed at Baghdad Airport at 1:28 p.m. local time. The No. 2 man in the Kremlin, the highest-ranking Soviet official to visit Iraq since President Nikolai V. Podgorny held talks in Baghdad immediately after the 1967 Middle East war, officially was in the country for the inauguration of the new North Rumaila oilfield, begun in 1969 and developed with Soviet financial and technical assistance.

BLENDED WHISKEY • 86 PROOF • 65% GRAIN NEUTRAL SPIRITS ©1971 CALVERT DIST. CO. LOUISVILLE, KY

Why doesn't somebody else make a whiskey taste soft? It's a free country.

It took us many years, thousands of tests and millions of dollars to come up with a soft whiskey. To do it we had to break a lot of whiskey-making traditions. We think you'll find the end result was well worth it.

An 86 proof whiskey that's even soft enough to drink straight up. If somebody else wants to make a whiskey that tastes as soft as Calvert Extra, they'll have to do it the way we did. The hard way.

High wind in Vancouver kills 6

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — High winds, hoped to be through this southwest Washington city Wednesday, ravaging a shopping center and ripping apart an elementary school minutes before students were to return from lunch. Six persons died and 250 were injured.

Hundreds of children were returning to Peter X. Ogden Elementary School when hail and high winds hit the building. None of the children was killed, although about 100 were injured.

Jason Spicer, 10, a fourth grader, said, "It was raining bricks." The boy had a bandage over a head injury and told of being pinned under the falling bricks. But he was freed by two men and made his way to safety dodging around downed utility lines. Power and telephone lines in the area were blown down and Clark County Public Utility District officials estimated it would take most of today to restore service. Telephone communications between Vancouver and the outside were on an emergency basis.

The Coast Guard said the wind was a tornado, but the Weather Bureau said it could not confirm that description. Tornadoes are rare in the Pacific Northwest.

Vancouver's East Side bore the brunt of the storm. The wind smashed buildings and uprooted signs, then lifted up spare other vulnerable structures, only to land again and ravage stores and homes a few blocks away. The storm raked a wide area of northwest Oregon, but damage was not as extensive as in Vancouver. The wind was part of a series of storms which have buffeted the Northwest this week.

Mrs. Clifton Clevidence, 25, Vancouver, her daughter Denise, 5, and a one-week-old infant died when the six-inch concrete walls of a supermarket collapsed. Mrs. Wilbur Leroy Adams, Vancouver, and her son Brian Keith Adams, about 3, died in a Ware-Mart store and Sharon Graser, 30, was killed when the roof of a bowling alley collapsed.

Tom Pryor, state director of emergency services, said Clark County commissioners declared the county a disaster area.

Gov. Dan Evans followed with a similar pronouncement, opening the door to full disaster recovery effort by all of the state's departments and agencies, including mobilization of the National Guard for security purposes. The clock in the elementary school was knocked upside down on the remnants of a wall.

Atlanta storage tank explodes

ATLANTA (UPI) — A gas storage tank exploded today and spewed flames on surrounding homes in a northeastern suburb. Several lesser explosions followed the blast.

Police said one man was killed and an undetermined number of persons injured. Lt. W. C. Tullis of the Doraville Police Department said the dead man, not immediately identified, was believed to be a refinery employee.

Five injured were admitted at Northside Hospital, two of them in critical condition. Authorities immediately evacuated about 300 homes around the Triangle refinery in the community of Doraville.

The explosion about 5:30 a.m. EST shook homes as far as 10 miles away. Flames and smoke reared up to between 300 and 400 feet.

A helicopter operated by a television news crew hovering the scene reported that three storage tanks were in flames and four others were threatened by the heat.

California Demo victory sought

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern, buoyed by his Wisconsin primary victory, went after the nation's biggest bloc of Democratic delegates Wednesday night, repeating the theme that if elected he will have all U.S. troops out of Southeast Asia within 90 days.

McGovern new in California the morning after he led all other presidential contenders by winning 30 per cent of the Wisconsin Democratic vote.

Analysis of the Wisconsin results showed that McGovern ran well among people of all ages and classes. McGovern predicted the same appeal would give him victory in the crucial June 6 California primary.

The California primary is a winner-take-all event offering a prize of 271 delegates.

At a $25-a-plate dinner here attended by 1,500 people, McGovern stressed the Vietnam War issue at a time when the conflict has intensified with its most serious fighting since the 1968 Tet offensive.

Congress attacks AF C5A transport

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force's controversial C5A transport plane was under new attack in Congress today on the basis of a government report which says it is still beset by major deficiencies and is ready to fly only about half the time.

"It is clear from the report that the Air Force has bought a $60 million plane that is coming apart," said Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md. Long released a report on the C5A made by the General Accounting Office, the agency which monitors government spending for Congress.

Long said he hoped the House Appropriations Committee which asked for the report would move to "end the taxpayers' grief over this disastrous venture." He suggested the Pentagon should be made to cut back its C5A program and that the plane's manufacturer, Lockheed Aircraft Co., be made to absorb extra-contract costs.

Game warden killed by lion

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI)—A game warden in Wankie National Park, fighting with bare hands to protect his bride of 12 days, was fatally mauled Tuesday by a lioness who leaped into their cabin through an open window.

The warden, Len Harvey, 58, died from his injuries shortly after the attack. His diversion of the lioness, who first attacked Mrs. Harvey, enabled her to flee the cabin without suffering serious injury. She summoned two rangers living nearby and they also were mauled by the lioness before one of them shot and killed the animal.

One of the rangers, Colin Mathews, 23, related the bloody incident from a hospital where he and the other ranger, Willem De Beer, and Mrs. Harvey were being treated for their wounds.

"Goodness knows what made it (the lioness) do it, but it jumped through the window of the Harvey's hut and started attacking Mrs. Harvey," Mathews said Wednesday.

Harvey awoke to her screams and shielded her with his own body. Mrs. Harvey came screaming over to our hut shouting, "Lion in the house! Lion in the house!"

Harvey and game rangers resided in the Shapiban base camp in the park, 300 miles west of Salisbury. He and Mrs. Harvey were married March 23.

Mathews said he and De Beer, who is Mathews' stepfather, started generators to illuminate the camp, took two rifles from a storage hut and ran to Harvey's cabin.

Willem stuck his head inside the window, and the lioness swiped him across the face with her claws," Mathews said.

"He fired a shot into the room, although blood was pouring down his face and he couldn't see properly. The lioness then jumped out of the room on to Willem and mauled him."

"I couldn't get a shot away without hitting Willem, too, so I tried to get round for a side shot. But I tripped and dropped my rifle."

He said when he attempted to retrieve the weapon, the lioness turned on him.

"I was terrified when I saw the animal coming toward me," Mathews said. "I shoved my right hand into its mouth and grabbed the bottom jaw. I kept thinking, 'I wonder why it doesn't bite down and sever my hand.'"

"I kept pushing the mouth away from me. All this time the lioness was snarling and ripping its claws into my leg and buttock."

"Finally Willem was able to struggle to his feet, find my gun and get off three shots. Two hit the lioness, and one slammed into my wrist which was keeping the animal at bay."

The lioness felt dead.

Mathews said he and De Beer helped each other stagger back to their cabin. In the meantime, Mrs. De Beer had driven to the park's main camp to give the alarm.

A Rhodesian air force helicopter ferried the injured to the hospital.

A Rhodesian government statement said De Beer was in serious condition. Mathews and Mrs. Harvey were reported as satisfactory.

Muskie leads in pledged delegates

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Sen. Edmund S. Muskie still leads in number of pledged delegate votes to the Democratic National Convention, but Sen. George S. McGovern's victory in Wisconsin Tuesday closed the gap.

Illinois 14, Iowa 12, New Hampshire 4 1/2, Wisconsin 54.

Gov. George C. Wallace (75) — Florida 75.

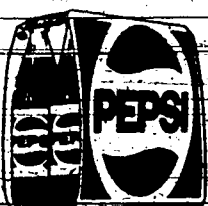

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (19) — Florida 6, Wisconsin 13.

Mayor John Lindsay (6) — Arizona 6.

Rep. Shirley Chisholm (5) — Georgia 5.

Rep. Wilbur Mills (1) — Georgia 1.

Illegal abortion tests state law

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI)—Dr. Jane Hodgson, an attractive blonde doctor who performed an illegal abortion on a young mother to test the constitutionality of Minnesota's restrictive abortion law, is awaiting a state Supreme Court ruling on whether she did right or wrong.

Meanwhile, she has given up her private practice and is serving temporarily as medical director of a family planning agency in Washington, D.C., commuting from her St. Paul home.

Dr. Hodgson said she is prepared for a long fight to change Minnesota's abortion law.

"It may take years," she said, "but we are on the way."

For her test case, which could send her to prison, she performed an abortion on a 24-year-old mother of two children. The mother, while in the fourth week of pregnancy, had gotten German measles, a condition that often causes birth defects.

Under state law, abortions may be performed only "to save the life of the mother."

Dr. Hodgson, wife of a physician and a leader in the abortion reform movement, said she actually hopes for an unfavorable ruling from the state Supreme Court so her case could be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

She said a "group of us had looked for a suitable case for a long time" to test the law. In the case of the mother with measles, she said, "We knew we had found an ideal subject, here was a documented case of German measles in the fourth week of pregnancy."

She said she had conferred with other doctors and then performed the abortion. Afterward, she notified authorities what she had done.

"I readily admitted breaking the law," she said. "It's really something I've wanted to do for a long time—to test the constitutionality of the Minnesota law."

Dr. Hodgson was convicted in Ramsey County District Court in November 1970, and her case was heard before the state Supreme Court Dec. 8, 1971. The law provides maximum penalties ranging from one year in the county jail to four years in prison. Dr. Hodgson was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail but the sentence was stayed and she was put on probation.

The main argument of her attorneys was that the law was an unwarranted interference in the relationship between a doctor and patient.

They argued that the law deprives "physicians of the right to administer medical care according to the highest standards of medical practice in violation of the 1st, 9th and 14th Amendments of the U.S. Constitution."

IT'S A FACT
by Steamway 793-6996
STEAM CARPET CLEANING
WILL NOT WEAR OUT YOUR CARPET

It was also argued that the law deprives a patient of the right to "marital and personal privacy" in determining the number and spacing of children.

The state's attorney said the law "is part of a comprehensive legal pattern, both judicial and legislative, for protecting the right to life and other interests of an unborn child."

Attempts have been made in the Minnesota legislature in recent years to reform the abortion laws but the efforts have been unsuccessful.

Three cities said vital to S. Viet

Editors note: The writer of the following analysis began a U.S. assignment early this year after two years of reporting the war in South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

By BARNEY SEIBERT, United Press International

Tran Van Don, then chairman of South Vietnam's Senate Defense Committee and a former general, once remarked, "There are three cities we must hold: Saigon, Da Nang and Hue."

"Saigon must be held because it is the capital and largest city; Da Nang because it is the second largest city and greatest port; Hue because of its emotional hold on the Vietnamese people."

The importance of Hue—Vietnam's old Imperial capital—was demonstrated by the fanatical month-long struggle for the city by the Communists during the 1968 Tet offensive.

Now the city is threatened once more.

South Vietnam's two northernmost provinces have other significance to the Communists—they regard them as an integral part of North Vietnam.

The North Vietnamese consider the people of Quang Tri Province—now almost completely under Communist control as a result of the current offensive—and Thua Thien Province—of which Hue is the capital—as Tonkinese; northerners.

North Vietnam has recruited members of its ruling Lao Dong party in only three provinces—and two of them are the northernmost provinces of Quang Tri and Thua Thien. It has left the recruiting in the other 41 provinces of South Vietnam to the political arm of the Viet Cong.

In the current offensive, the Communists may be faced with their own dilemma. In the history of their Chinese-style guerrilla warfare their tactic has been to hold only those areas easily held; the mountains, the jungles, the swamps, making lightning incursions into the open plains and cities and try to hold it.

Thus far, the North Vietnamese advance has been easy and if Hue falls, there may be an overwhelming temptation to try to hold it.

U. S. won't talk until battle ends

By STEWART HENSLEY, UPI Diplomatic Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI)—High administration officials say the United States will not agree to resume the Paris peace talks either publicly or secretly until the end of the fighting touched off by the new major North Vietnamese offensive across the demilitarized zone.

Even after the fighting ends, these officials say, Hanoi and the Viet Cong must meet the criteria Washington set for resuming talks when they were cancelled a couple of weeks ago. That is, the Communists must give the United States Saigon a definite indication that they are willing to undertake sincere and substantive negotiations and abandon use of the talks as a propaganda forum.

At the moment, the American conditions for resuming peace negotiations—admittedly—are somewhat academic. However, much will depend upon the outcome of the fighting, which top U.S. officials expect to reach greater proportions and spread to other fronts.

The traditional wisdom holds that no country can gain at a peace conference anything that it could not have achieved by continuing the struggle on the battlefield. This proposition appears particularly applicable to the current situation in Vietnam.

White House officials have been predicting since the first of the year a new offensive by Hanoi and the Viet Cong. They contended the Communist side wanted to try to "grab more real estate" to improve its bargaining position at the peace talks.

The United States and the Saigon government, for their part, are determined to try to repulse the new offensive in such a manner as to leave the North Vietnamese in a weaker bargaining position.

It is acknowledged that if the South Vietnamese, operating only with U.S. air support and no American ground troops, cave in before the Hanoi offensive, there will be little left for Washington and Saigon to negotiate about in Paris.

U.S. officials believe that the tide may turn in Quang Tri province once the North Vietnamese forces, which so far have been engaged by the largely inexperienced South Vietnamese 3rd Division, come to grips with the veteran 1st Division and American air power is brought to bear more fully as weather clears.

However, the Quang Tri area is not regarded in Washington as the major objective of the Communist drive. American authorities are watching the situation farther south where they believe three North Vietnamese divisions are preparing an attack on the central highlands where they outnumber the South Vietnamese now arrayed against them.

The territory lost to the Communists just below the demilitarized zone is not considered particularly important, although officials do not minimize the psychological effect. However, a successful North Vietnamese drive across the central highlands to the sea would cut South Vietnam in two and virtually diminish any belief that the Saigon government had attained the capability to defend itself, even with U.S. air power.

However, a successful North Vietnamese drive across the central highlands to the sea would cut South Vietnam in two and virtually diminish any belief that the Saigon government had attained the capability to defend itself, even with U.S. air power.

Thus, based on that scenario outlined by American officials, it appears clear that the resumption of peace talks in Paris will probably be delayed for a considerable time. And when they do come, the relative positions of the two sides may have changed considerably.

Ex-employees win judgment

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former employees of general telephone Co. who went into business for themselves won a $2.9 million court judgment Tuesday against their old firm. They had accused it of trying to stifle their independent effort.

The employees, who worked for a GT affiliate which published telephone directories, formed an agency—Ad Visor—which placed ads in the yellow pages for its clients and safeguarded them from "excessive charges," the suit said.

Ad Visor contended that the telephone company conspired to destroy its business, would not give it information and tried to discredit the agency with clients.

Jerome may get 13 acres

JEROME — The city of Jerome may soon gain 13 1/2 acres of residential property. A Marysville, Wash., firm Tuesday night asked the council to annex the land north of Jerome for a residential subdivision.

The firm, N.A.N. Inc., wants to develop lots for new homes in that area. N.A.N. vice-president Bill Driesel, Boise, told the council, the homes range from $18,000 to $21,000 in price and represent eight basic units with 48 plan variations.

Driesel said his company has purchased the land and may later offer some of the lots to other home builders for independent sale. Driesel said, by offering other builders lots, the home styles would vary and thus, eliminate the look-alike quality prevalent in many subdivisions.

The council had approved a preliminary plat for the subdivision at an earlier meeting. The request for annexation now goes to the Jerome Zoning Commission for study and recommendation.

Richfield Lions aid auto race

RICHFIELD — Richfield Lions Club members voted to donate $20 to the Idaho-Oregon Lions Club Benefit Auto Race to be held in Meridian April 8.

The action was taken in a regular meeting held Tuesday night in Richfield. Proceeds from the races will go to the Idaho-Oregon Lions Club Eyesight Foundation.

Funds are to be used toward the purchase of a mobile unit which will visit schools in the two state areas to check eyesight of pre-school children. The race is sponsored by the Meridian Lions Club and the Meridian Athletic Club.

Special guests of the meeting were members of the Boise Capitol Lions Club, Harvey Iverson, president; Jack Tennant, secretary, and Mike O'Leary. Marvin Webb reported on a recent meeting of the Northside Communities which he attended to discuss improvement of the road to Magic Reservoir.

Lions members voted to help Richfield's Earl Morrison Post, American Legion send Nick Hubsmith to Gem Boy's State, Boise. April 16 will be the next Lions Club meeting when plans will be made for charter night, May 6.

Aide will push for gas rating

SANDPOINT, Idaho (UPI) — Sen. James Stotcheff, D-Sandpoint, said today if re-elected to office he would try for the third time in 1973 to push for legislation to clarify gasoline octane rating requirements.

Stotcheff tried both in 1971 and again in 1972 to win approval of a measure which would, in effect, require gasoline to be rated by octane content.

The bill was held in the 1971 session because the Federal Trade Commission announced it had issued a similar rule on the federal level, but the FTC postponed implementation because it did not have the equipment to enforce the ruling.

In 1972, the Idaho bill was passed by the Senate but held in the House Transportation and Defense Committee. The FTC regulation was to have gone into effect March 15, but Federal District Court Judge Aubrey Robinson, Jr. issued a stay and ruled Tuesday the FTC did not have the authority to issue broad regulations on unfair trade practices against an entire industry.

Stotcheff said the section of the Idaho code regulating oil product content gives enforcement responsibility to the Department of Public Safety, which has never had anything to do with oil or gas in its history.

Chairmen include Dr. Richard Hagerman, business district; Mrs. Grant Zollinger, west Wendell; Mrs. Lora Brown, northeast Wendell; and Mrs. Earl Lowery, southeast Wendell.

Rural chairmen include Mrs. David Mink, Mountain View; Mrs. Essie McMan and Mrs. E. Andrews, West Point; Mrs. Frank Orth, Orchard Valley; and Mrs. Joe Doramus, Hillandale.

Funds for TIP program collected

GLENN'S FERRY — Funds for the Turn-In-A-Pusher (TIP) program in Elmore County are being collected by the Glenns Ferry Jaycees.

Jaycee George Bailey, project chairman, said each family is being asked for a donation of $1 per family member. "Everyone in the community should be concerned," he said, "not just those with children. Drug addicts often support their habits through theft, which can affect everyone."

Jaycees are distributing pamphlets they have prepared detailing the drug use problem and explaining the TIP program. The program is based on phone calls, which are kept confidential, from persons knowing of individuals selling illegal drugs. If the tip leads to an arrest and conviction, a committee of five meets to decide on the amount of the reward.

The Elmore County TIP telephone number is 587-4882. The telephone will be manned 24 hours a day.

The good thing about being a model is a glowing kind of natural look. No put-ons. As their pictures attest, the girls certainly do achieve their goal. How it's done is no secret. The girls tell all to anyone who asks.

Fresh air, sleep and a balanced diet are basic to accomplishment. Next comes the cleansing rites for skin and hair. Before either skin or hair glows it must be freed of oil from the scalp and grime from the air. What's more, face cloths, towels, brushes, and combs — all the tools of cleanliness — must be spanking fresh.

To care for any special problems, special treatments are indicated. A protective cream or fluid for daylong use rates as a necessity for every skin.

With the basics in work, you just naturally begin to glow naturally. Even so you may wish for greater gleam and gloss. Well, that's easily come by.

Two glosses for both cheeks and lips, housed in small compacts, turn the trick. Colors are interchangeable and, for variety, mixable. You smooth on the gloss with the fingertips. It has a slip-like silk, not like stickum. And this texture gives a clean shine that feels as great as it looks.

Sir Lancelot du Lac, the best bridge player at King Arthur's square table as well as the best knight, felt that he had more than enough to jump to game even though he knew that his partner, Galahad, the Pure, was apt to have raised on nothing but faith in the ability of the peerless knight to play the dummy.

Galahad put down the dummy and Lancelot saw that there really was no play for his contract. The wily Mordred had opened a club right up to Lancelot's ace queen. That was certainly a pleasant start but it wasn't going to be enough. Lancelot would have to knock out the ace of hearts and Mordred would surely attack the diamond suit and set the hand with three diamond tricks. Lancelot saw all this in less time than it would take him to parry a sword thrust. He also saw a possible way to make the contract. It all depended on which club Agravaire sitting East would play. Agravaire played the jack and Lancelot was ready. He won the trick with the ace, not the queen. Then he drew trumps and led his king of hearts. Mordred was on lead with the ace, and fell right into the trap. Agravaire held the club queen. Clearly it was most important to put him on lead.

Mordred led a low club and the peerless one had won another rubber.

DEAR ABBY: We have two fine sons, 13 and 16. The 13-year-old is very large for his age, and unfortunately, the 16-year-old is extremely small for his age.

When we introduce them to friends, some will ask, "Are they twins?" Others just assume that the smaller one is the younger one, and I know the older boy is hurt and embarrassed. When it's possible to do so, we tip-off our friends in advance so they don't make that mistake when they meet the boys, but when we're not able to, I can see the hurt in the older boy's eyes.

Will you please print this in your column so thoughtless people will not make that mistake. You'd rate a big thanks from a lot of little fellows. Thank you A MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: It's done. But don't be overprotective. You'll not be able to run interference for the smaller boy all his life. Little fellows often compensate by trying harder, and therefore make it big, in spite of their size.

DEAR ABBY: I am the wife of the ex-Marine whose old girl friend, "Semper Fidelis," wrote, asking you if she should try to get in touch with him after all these years. She said altho she hadn't seen him since 1944, she still felt the same about him, and if he happened to be single (as she was), maybe they could pick up where they left off.

Please tell her she would be doing me a big favor if she would take this ex-Marine back. He hasn't changed much. He's lost a few teeth, a lot of hair, and most of his zip. But to make up for his losses, I'll throw in the 30 pounds he's gained, all his debts, and his mother.

DEAR WIFE: Don't be too hopeful.

DEAR ABBY: The best belly laugh I've had in years came from two of your letters. The first from "Practically Untouched in Tulsa" complaining that her husband had made love to her only five times since Jan. 1, 1970. [You advised her to see a lawyer.] The second letter, signed "Anonymous Attorney," said that you would have earned the undying gratitude of the nation's judges had you advised her to see a judge instead, as judges had fewer social contacts than lawyers.

Your readers might like to know that in St. Louis County we had a case where the woman did exactly that. The resulting criminal trial of the judge was widely reported in daily installments that nearly destroyed the ratings of the soap operas on television. Eventually the whole affair acquired a name, taken from the town where the trial was held—"Clayton Place."

Blaine project continues

HAILEY — After a legal problem has been cleared, work continues on the Starr Bridge over the Wood River.

Monday, the tractor working in the river bed rerouted water into a new channel north of the bridge. Blaine County officials had planned to divert water away from the bridge so that new footings can be installed.

County Commissioner Jack Bennett said he was unaware Monday that work was in violation of the Idaho Stream Protection Act. The law requires project officials to obtain clearance from the Department of Water Administration, Boise, 60 days prior to construction work within the river.

After notification of the legal problem by Idaho Fish and Game officers, the county sought and Wednesday received an emergency waiver from the Idaho Water Department. Bennett said the bridge had to be fixed or it would be lost.

Bennett said Wednesday that work within the river has been completed. Inadvertently, when the river channel was changed, gravel and silt flowed under the bridge, filling a four-foot deep undercutting around footings on the north end, he said.

A retaining wall on the north end will be strengthened, Bennett said, and crews will excavate behind the footings and reinforce the supports.

Jerome sheriff field 5

JEROME — A fifth candidate has announced for the nomination for Jerome County sheriff in the August primary.

Elza Hall, 46, announced today he will be seeking the Republican nomination for the office.

He was born in West Plains, Mo., and has lived in the Magic Valley for the past 26 years. A veteran of World War II, he served in the field artillery.

Hall served two years in the Buhl Police Department and four years as a captain with the Jerome department.

He has attended FBI-sponsored police schools.

Hall is employed at Ida Gem Dairy, Inc. He is married and has one daughter.

He will have competition from Boyd Rydall, James R. Laswell and Jack Parrott, who are seeking the Republican nomination. Paul Whaley is running as an independent candidate.

Hall said he had no announcement to make at this time as to any changes he might make in the operation of the department.

Developments on river worry board in Blaine

By LARRY CAMPBELL

HAILEY — High density subdivisions fronting on waterways is causing concern to the Blaine County Planning and Zoning board.

The board has given preliminary approval to John's Meadow, a planned use development containing about 26 quarter-acre homesites. The 24-acre subdivision is located south of Ketchum between Bald Mountain and the Wood River.

During Tuesday's hearing, letters were read from local officials which posed avalanche and flood problems. In its decision, the board stipulated that two lots which are within an avalanche zone be replaced with a recreational area.

Planning officials also requested that homesite bordering on the river be moved further west and be replaced with a common use area.

Further stipulations included that a low-ground area in the center of the proposed subdivision be filled in to prevent flooding, and that all the roads within the plat be forever maintained by the subdivision's homeowner's association.

Developers had planned to construct 30-foot wide roads, which were below the county snow removal requirements of 60 feet. Planning and zoning administrator David Vhay recommended that policies on high density developments fronting on waterways be established. During discussions, Tuesday, three such developments were proposed.

He showed pictures of condominiums bordering on Warm Springs. He said the river will meander and that eventually, to protect property Warm Springs may have to be contained in a "concrete sluice."

Kirk Eberhard, Hailey, Idaho Fish and Game district conservation officer, recommended that the board study any future development along the Wood River, especially within the flood plain. When the river is straightened out to prevent flooding, fish resting ponds are destroyed, he said.

Robert Caywood, part owner of John's Meadow, said the development "had nothing to do with altering the river."

Dennis Froeming, Hailey, soil conservation service officer, said that flooding within the area "has been a frequent event." A forest service letter stated "two prominent avalanche slopes funnel on to the subdivision site."

Caywood said he had "walked the site" and hadn't seen anything which indicates an avalanche or flooding problems. Developers said they would provide their own water and sewage facilities and would maintain the natural vegetation and gravel configurations.

Rupert solves bid situation

RUPERT — The Rupert City Council solved a unique bidding situation in an unorthodox way Tuesday night.

All three bids, admittedly "unofficial" and not received through a bid call, were identical.

Elmer Schenk, Rupert electrical department supervisor, brought in the bids from General Electric, Westinghouse and Columbia Electric Co., all Boise, to the council Tuesday night.

Schenk said he needed the equipment, huge transformers, as soon as possible.

He contacted the three principal suppliers on his own asking for bids without consulting the council.

State law requires any political subdivisions, including cities and school districts, to call for public bidding when purchasing more than $2,500 worth of equipment at one time in order to give all potential suppliers an equal chance.

After discussion the council agreed, over strenuous objections from councilman Bill Whitton, to authorize Schenk to purchase the transformers from General Electric. The purchase, however, was to be made "one at a time" rather than by contract, thus eliminating the need for a bid call.

The three suppliers each bid $1,291 for each of the three transformers, bringing total purchase price to $3,873.

Whitton voted against the motion to authorize the purchase, charging that the council was deliberately circumventing state law in doing so.

Gooding needs matching funds

GOODING — Wood River Resource Area planners were told $78,000 in federal matching funds is needed to solve the four-county area solid waste disposal crisis.

Bob O'Harra, Boise, International Engineering Co. representative, told the Wood River Resource Area and the Resource Conservation and Development Committee at a meeting in Gooding Wednesday the funds are required to complete a disposal program.

He told the group that landfill disposal would be the first step, but that recycling is the long range answer to many of the area's problems.

If such a program is approved, work would begin in 1973.

O'Harra is assisting the resource conservation and development committee in submitting an application for funds from the Environmental Protection Agency.

Floyd O. Kisting, Dietrich, was named chairman of the science-environment-research-education committee of the Wood River Resource Area and Resource Conservation and Development Committee by Don Fredericksen, chairman of the group.

BURLEY — The familiar office secretary is no more.

Today, according to the Idaho Personnel Commission, the term "secretary" conveys little meaning. Under the new job classification concept, an office worker can be a senior clerk-typist, a junior clerk-typist or any one of a number of other classifications, depending on skills.

Two members of the commission, Richard Hutchison, state personnel analyst, and Ray Vertrees,

Brands identify 2 cattle owners

SHOSHONE — Owners of two of the fly infested dead cattle found about three miles east of Shoshone in Little Wood River were identified through brands.

Sheriff Thomas W. Connor and Deputy Bill Anderson said today identity of the brand on the other seven carcasses was not recognizable, due to deterioration.

Owners of the carcasses will be notified today by certified mail to remove them, Deputy Anderson said.

Identification of the animals' ownership was done Wednesday afternoon by the sheriff's office: public health inspector, Robert L. Amoureux, Jerome, state brand inspector, Stan Bartlett, Shoshone, and Reid Newby, chairman of the water quality commission committee for Idaho Water Users' Association, and water master of Big and Little Wood Rivers.

Newby said, "This is beyond a doubt the worst health hazard I have seen in the 16 years I have been working with water in Idaho."

Anderson said a total of 13 head of dead cattle has been discovered or seen in the Little Wood River Channel near Shoshone. As yet officers have only been able to inspect about seven of these. Two others reported just west of the city limits will be checked soon.

Amoureux said state law allows "reasonable" time for removal of the animals and probably a 24-hour period will be set after the owner is notified. However, he said this may not be "practical" in view of condition of the carcasses.

Amoureux said the re-enactment of the old criminal code in Idaho gave means of control of such a problem, which controls for both live animals that are a nuisance and dead animals. During time the recently repealed criminal code was in effect, there was no means of control.

Newby said he had notified the executive director of the Idaho Water Users Association, Jack Barnett, of the gravity of the situation in Shoshone area.

Sanford Connell, Lincoln County Assessor told the Times-News Wednesday that he had counted seven or eight head of dead cattle along the channel of Big Wood River that runs adjacent to his ranch in the northeast section of Shoshone.

He said in his opinion the "dead animal" problem in the river is worse this spring than usual. He expressed concern over flies and odor as well as contamination of water.

Amoureux said the only proper and lawful way to dispose of dead animals is to dig a grave and bury them, or to notify the hide and tallow company and pay to have them removed.

Lincoln County physician R. G. Neher has warned against swimming in the river until assurance is given it is not contaminated. He expressed concern over a possible outbreak of typhoid and salmonella organisms through contamination of the stream.

Law officers said they will begin a crack down campaign on future similar incidents.

Valley legislators talk to TF league on session

TWIN FALLS — Seven Magic Valley legislators told Twin Falls League of Women Voters their views of the 41st session of the Idaho Legislature Wednesday night.

The seven were guests of the league during a legislative wrap-up meeting in the Colonial House. All legislators of the valley had been invited to attend as well as league members, their husbands and other guests.

Finances were discussed by Sen. Richard High, Twin Falls, chairman of the Finance and Appropriation Committee. He said of the $10 million increase in the new budget, $7 million goes for education.

A raise in taxes, he said, was the only means of meeting costs. Too many areas, he said, had to be funded and the legislators had no alternative but to find a means of paying the cost.

Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft, Gooding County, discussed activities of the Resource and Conservation Committee. He said he believes a supreme court test will be required to determine the validity of the joint venture of the Swan Falls and Guffey project.

Sen. High also pointed to the state's action to provide a means of matching federal grants to help cities construct sewage treatment plants as a major accomplishment of the legislature.

Sen. John Barker Buhl, chairman of the Senate Health Education and Welfare Committee, said his committee has one of the major responsibilities since nearly 87 per cent of the general fund budget is allocated by this group.

The committee was instrumental in getting more restrictions on state welfare programs, he said, to help eliminate fraud. He mentioned a pending bill before the U. S. Senate which would give 60 per cent federal, 25 per cent state and 15 per cent city funding on sewage treatment facilities in cities.

Rep. William Roberts, Buhl, member of the transportation and defense committee, discussed the gasoline tax increase. He said this provides a means of assisting various governmental agencies, including cities in meeting the high cost of street and highway construction and maintenance.

Rep. William Lanting, Twin Falls, speaker of the house, said he believes the Legislative Council, of which he is a member, should make a thorough study during the coming year of the proposed 100 per cent state funding for education.

Opposition to the Swan Falls-Guffey project was expressed by Sen. John Peavey, Rupert. He said he felt the measure should not have passed because it leaves no future options and constitutes a complete lockup of the resources.

Rep. Earl Greenawalt, Jerome, said two legislative actions were especially gratifying. He said he was glad to see the proposed probate code postponed for another year. The requirement of a simple majority vote to pass bond issues involving sewer and water only, is also a good bill, Greenawalt said.

Health planning gets cool reception at meet

Gwin said a CHP agency can be financially supported by a federal grant.

Fifty per cent of the organizational cost would come from the U. S. and the other half from local revenue sources. The local participation could be further divided into 25 per cent "cold, hard cash" and the remaining portion, through "in-kind services."

"In kind services," said Gwin, "is the donating of time, manpower or facilities by area residents and could be counted as part of the local support requirement by the federal government."

According to Gwin, an agency would have to be made up of 51 per cent health care "consumers" and the rest "providers."

One question from the audience asked if a CHP agency would have any authority.

Gwin said, "The agency has no clout at all, no binding authority. It would make recommendations only. It is hoped such recommendations from respected members of the community would have some influence on the administration of health services."

Four of the six health districts in the state now have CHP agencies, the latest came about early in 1972 in southeastern Idaho. The Magic Valley and Idaho Falls district do not have an agency.

Durrant then asked if there might be a need for a CHP agency in the Magic Valley. There was no response.

The group finally came up with a partial list of problems for possible review by the proposed agency.

"One" priority, supplied by Durrant, would assign the duty of reviewing grant applications to the agency.

Other areas for consideration were control of venereal disease, major hospital facilities, access to health care, mental health, health manpower, the avoiding of duplication of health services, the high-cost of health care and environmental health.

When asked if a major hospital was a need, Durrant said, "Actually, that means the centralization of major health facilities. There are already six hospitals in the Magic Valley. Comprehensive Health Planning could have avoided the duplication of hospitals 25 years ago."

Durrant was asked if a CHP agency could draft "certificate of need" legislation asking for another hospital.

"Yes," said Durrant, "It is conceivable that a CHP could do that. It could at least make recommendations to that effect and the disposition of the suggestion would be in the hands of local officials."

Term 'secretary' now meaningless

BY LEE TREMAINE

Times-News writer

BURLEY — The familiar office secretary is no more.

Today, according to the Idaho Personnel Commission, the term "secretary" conveys little meaning. Under the new job classification concept, an office worker can be a senior clerk-typist, a junior clerk-typist or any one of a number of other classifications, depending on skills.

Two members of the commission, Richard Hutchison, state personnel analyst, and Ray Vertrees, discussed a proposed survey of city and county employees with civic leaders Wednesday afternoon at the Ponderosa Inn.

Hutchison explained that the IPC has received a $60,000 federal grant for comprehensive, career survey of state employees and a separate survey of all city and county workers.

Each employee will be asked to complete a detailed questionnaire on his job, describing his duties and his salary. His department head will then be asked to comment on the employee's accuracy in his description and to add other details if needed.

The surveys will be tabulated by the IPC this summer, and the data will be released to civic officials early next year, as a guide for setting wages and for job descriptions. The survey will cover 20 Idaho communities and 22 counties, covering about 85 per cent of the state's civic employees.

The IPC has prepared 4,000 questionnaires on the basis of an average of one city employee for every 150 residents, and one county employee for each 350 county residents.

The IPC tabulations will suggest job classification titles for civic officials. Each employee will be grouped with other employees holding similar jobs. Jobs and salaries can then be compared easily.

The IPC officials scheduled further meetings with civic officials, asking to meet with city and county spokesmen along with their department heads to explain the project. The meetings are scheduled in Twin Falls on May 2, Burley on May 3, in Rupert the same afternoon and in Jerome May 17.

BURLEY — The Cassia County Historical Society will show a film at 8 p.m. Friday in the conference room of the Idaho Bank and Trust.

The colored film is entitled "The First Road West" and describes the Oregon Trail winding across the nation. The public is invited to view the film, announced Al Dawson, president of the historical society.

Wendell plans school survey

WENDELL — Wendell School District plans to survey the community of Wendell to find out what citizens feel is needed in local schools.

Supt. Lawrence LaRue said a questionnaire will be sent to a random sampling of parents, students and educators of the town in order to find out how citizens feel about the effectiveness of Wendell schools.

LaRue has appointed a "Needs Assessment" committee to review and evaluate the information gathered. When the data has been collected, the committee will then work up a priority list of community concerns, which may later become operational goals of the school district.

While the questionnaires are being disseminated and collected, LaRue plans to hold public conferences sometime in May. The survey will start sometime later this month.

The public conferences will provide local school patrons to air their opinions, positive or negative, before the assessment group and school officials.

LaRue said the survey is being conducted in cooperation with the State Board of Education.

LaRue will chair the assessment group and work with the following committee members: Frank Orth, school board member; Lance Worley, high school teacher; Dale Tilley, counselor; Tom Vaughn, elementary school teacher; George Ambrose, student; Will Spalding, high school principal; Jim Jax, junior high teacher; Arlin Dennis, elementary principal, and three community members, Lucille Campbell, Sarah Bitterli and Thelma Bailey.

Handling stray dogs arouses ire at Jerome City Council meeting

JEROME — The Jerome City Council has received complaints against the local police for the manner in which stray dogs are disposed of.

Councilman Marshall Everheart said at Tuesday night's council meeting he has heard complaints that stray dogs without owners or homes are being by the police.

Police Chief Howard Dubois said he has checked into the possibility of Jerome acquiring a carbon monoxide chamber as an alternative method of destroying dogs.

Dubois said the Idaho Veterinarian Association recommends the monoxide chamber as one of the more humane methods of handling stray or sick animals.

In other council business involving police, Councilman Everheart said a portion of the remodeling of the Jerome Police Department has been completed and a new teletype machine installed. Police dispatcher began training for use of the machine Wednesday.

Also in the complaint department, the council heard from Andy Anderson, who wanted to know why the Carey Subdivision had not yet been paved. Anderson, the developer of the subdivision, said it was his understanding the city had not budgeted money to complete the paving.

Anderson said last year's council indicated they would pave the streets in the division and wanted to know why paving is being delayed.

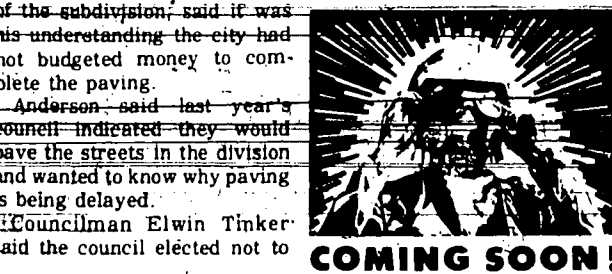

Councilman Elwin Tinker said the council elected not to pave that area because of severe winter weather conditions and because there may not yet be enough population settlement in the area to warrant pavement at this time.

Farm group sets nationwide tour

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI FARM EDITOR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Worried by the way many consumers have reacted to higher food prices this year, a farm group has announced plans to send four farmers on a 10-day nationwide tour to try to respond to that concern.

Spokesmen for the National Agricultural Institute said the four producers would try to tell their story in interviews, TV and radio appearances, and to the greatest extent possible in face-to-face meetings with consumers.

Starting with an appearance at a news conference here April 18, spokesmen said the farmer group would go to Chicago on April 19; Los Angeles April 20; Houston, Texas April 21; Atlanta, Ga., April 22-23; New York, April 24-25; and Boston April 26.

The touring group will include cotton farmer J. S. Francis Jr., of Peoria, Ariz., vice chairman of the board of the sponsoring group; wheat grower Eugene Moos of Edwall, Wash., president of the National Association of Wheat Growers; Thurman Gaskill of Corwith, Iowa, a corn-hog-soybean producer and vice chairman of the Iowa Agricultural Promotion Board; and cattleman John Barringer, Memphis, Tenn.

NAT officials said they hoped the tour would be followed by a series of other moves for "face to face communication" between farmers and consumers in other major population centers. The first tour will begin shortly after several scheduled administration and congressional hearings on food price problems here this month.

Spokesmen said Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., and Chairman George Mahon, D-Tex., of the House Appropriations Committee will join the farmers in the news conference here launching the tour.

F. L. Hatcher, Lamar, Colo., NAT board chairman, added in a statement announcing the plan that the group did not intend to "lecture" consumers or "chide them for their failure to properly appreciate us." And, he said, the farmers did not intend to try to blame middlemen for boosting the cost of food as it moves from the farm to consumer tables.

"The objective is to find out what's on the consumer's mind and to try to respond to that concern," Hatcher said.

"We are all aware that the food price issue is becoming a highly emotional one. It would serve no useful purpose whatever to capitalize on the situation by attempting to fix the blame for cost increases on non-producer segments of the overall industry," Hatcher said.

He also said the farmers wanted to stay out of political crossfire and did not plan to "reflect in any way" on either the administration or its opponents.

Earth Week '72 events planned

BOISE (UPI) — The National Wildlife Federation and its Idaho affiliate will join thousands of schools and communities throughout the state and nation during the week of April 17 through 23rd to celebrate Earth Week '72.

As was the case last year, the federation and other environmental groups are urging participation during the week at the community level. Local and statewide groups should "utilize" their own resources and establish their own priorities on environmental matters.

Since the environmental issue has come of age, earth week can provide an opportunity for all to learn something about their environment.

Global pollution concerns are especially timely in 1972 in view of the national wildlife federation's "United Nations for Bio-survival," an international symposium to be held in conjunction with the United Nations conference on Human Environment in Stockholm, June 10 through 12, 1972.

Agriculture Department inspectors today were to set up roadblocks in an effort to confine the disease to Southern California on Wednesday.

Forty military veterinarians, Army and Air Force officers, arrived Tuesday to join the 250 federal and state animal health inspectors already working to halt the epidemic of Asian Newcastle disease, which does not threaten humans but affects poultry and pet birds.

Another 160 military men who will help gas to death infected flocks, and inoculate healthy birds were expected later this week.

A spokesman for the federal state task force said the epidemic has already cost poultry farmers $3.5 million, and the figure could go higher. Poultry industry spokesmen said they were losing $3 million a week.

The disease has been discovered in 67 flocks of chickens and turkeys, numbering more than 1.9 million birds.

Political heat not withering Secretary Butz

He's ridden the beef price issue to make himself a hero to farmers, and it has been effective. A Democratic speaking of Republican Agriculture Secretary Earl I. Butz.

By BERNARD BRENNER WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housewives write him nasty letters. An administration official accuses him of damaging the fight against inflation. Some Democrats complain because he talks aggressively about higher farm income but refuses to raise supports for grains and milk.

But Agriculture Secretary Earl I. Butz shows no signs of withering in the political heat generated by rising retail food prices. He feels he's doing just what President Nixon hired him for last December — speaking out for the interests of farmers who, as Butz says, are still underpaid in spite of prospects for record net income this year.

When Butz took office, many farm belt Republicans were looking nervously at fears of farm vote losses in the 1972 elections. Now Butz believes the picture has changed — and even some of his Democratic critics privately agree with him.

He's ridden the beef price issue to make himself a hero to farmers, and it has been effective. "one Democratic farm adviser said.

Butz, in an interview with UPI, predicted President Nixon's farm-belt vote this year would be "as good as, or better than," his strength in 1968.

Ironically, Butz said, he has been able to help improve the state of farm opinion partly because of Democratic critics. They made him a newsworthy public figure when they fought his confirmation in the Senate last fall on grounds his ties to agribusiness corporations showed he lacked sympathy for "family farmers."

"The very people on the (Capitol) Hill who tried to cut me up for their own political purposes have given me a platform," said Butz, one of the most visible and talkative agriculture chiefs.

The 62-year-old former Purdue University dean jumped on the convenient "platform" for a series of speeches to farm groups across the nation which drew increasing attention from city media as food prices especially meat prices escalated.

"It's about time," Butz told one audience after live cattle prices pushed up to break a two-decade-old record.

"As a consumer," he told another farm group, "I understand that profitable prices for cattlemen provide the best way to insure a good supply of the better cuts of beef that I prefer."

"The economy has grown leaving farm prices in the lurch," Butz said in another speech. "Farmers have a lot of catching up to do, and I mean to see that they have a fair chance."

But not everybody, even in the administration, sees it entirely that way. C. Jackson Grayson, chairman of the Price Commission, recently publicly took issue with Butz' championing of higher farm prices, saying he was hurting the battle against inflation.

Grayson said no so-called special segment — farmers or organized labor — should benefit more than another. Butz was undeterred. In a subsequent interview on the public broadcast network, Butz observed: "When Mr. Nixon asked me to take this job, if he gave me any one single commission, it was to raise the incomes of rural people. And in the short run, I guess the way you raise the incomes of rural people is to pay them for what they're doing. And they're just getting back to the point here they've got a little black ink in their operation now. They've been in the red so long that I'm delighted to see them in the black here."

'The very people on the Hill who tried to cut me up for their own political purposes have given me a platform...'

standing heat

when he was spending 'like a drunken sailor.'

When beef prices became an issue and he began warning against ceilings, he said he would fight "like a wounded steer" against meat price controls.

Farmers, Butz says, have responded to this kind of talk warmly. He said he is now getting a critical mail from farmers, and is getting friendly letters from some members of the National Farmers Union and National Farmers Organization — two groups which made a hot fight against his confirmation.

At the Capitol, Butz' track record so far has included success in his biggest test: With the help of Southern Democrats, Butz persuaded the Senate Agriculture Committee earlier this year to kill a House-passed bill to raise grain supports 25 per cent.

Butz said he continues opposed to an increase in grain supports which he contends would have disastrous effects on farm programs.

'Farmers have a lot of catching up to do and I mean to see that they have a fair chance.'

As for food price ceilings, he thinks they are impractical, especially on perishables, because they can't be used without rationing, and he doubts they will be used.

Also, we've passed the big bulge in food prices," he says. Cattle are already heading down.

For the present at least, Butz views his relations with Congress as "excellent." In recent weeks, he said, about 15 Republican congressional candidates have asked to have pictures taken with him for campaign purposes, and others have asked him to join them in "TV shorts."

Or the 1960's," Butz replied, in reference to former Orville Freeman, secretary during a Democratic White House reign.

Despite some misgivings by critics who warn there could be surplus crops of wheat and feed grains and low farm prices at election time, Butz told UPI he thinks prices will be "substantially higher than last fall... far more politically acceptable than it was last fall." But he's not ruling out possible problems. "You're never out of the woods in this job," he said.

Union opens anti-GOP drive

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — With prayers, singing and a candlelight vigil, the United Farm Workers Union launched its anti-Republican campaign at the Washington state capitol Tuesday.

About 30 demonstrators placed a 20-foot-long banner reading, "Why do Republicans hate farm workers?" on the capitol lawn near the office of Gov. Dan Evans, a Republican.

Union leader Cesar Chavez last month criticized a suit filed by the National Labor Relations Board to end secondary boycotts as a move by the Republican Party to destroy his union. The secondary boycott has been Chavez' most effective weapon in his efforts to get contracts with growers.

Union attorneys agreed Monday to a court order issued in Fresno, Calif., to suspend a boycott of nine wineries. The NLRB agreed to hold up prosecution of the suit.

But a union spokesman, Marshall Ganz, said Tuesday the union would continue "non-secondary" aspects of the wine boycott, such as asking consumers not to buy non-union produced wine.

Another spokesman said the Olympia protest was brought to Evans' doorstep in hopes that high-ranking Republicans would ask President Nixon to support the farm workers.

Ganz said the union is not actively engaged in secondary boycotts now. "Our whole operation at this time is aimed at the Republican operation," he said.

De Castro said that the Police Act of 1966 reads: "Members of the local police agency shall not be suspended or removed except upon written complaint filed under oath with the local board of investigators."

Growers choose delegates

BURLEY — Potato growers from eight Magic Valley counties met Tuesday night to choose four persons to serve on the National Potato Research and Promotion Board.

Twin Falls, Cassia, Minidoka, Jerome, Lincoln, Gooding, Camas and Blaine counties were represented at the meeting held at the Ponderosa Inn, Burley.

Selected to serve were Clarence Parr, Burley, director of the National Potato Council; Tom McLane, Buhl, district 5 president of Potato Growers of Idaho; W. B. Whiteley, Oakley, director of the National Potato Council; and Jack Allred, Murtaugh, chairman of the Idaho Potato Commission.

About 100 potato growers attended the meeting which was conducted by John Coop of the USDA Northwest Marketing Field Office, Portland, Ore.

Other Idaho members of the board will be chosen at Caldwell, Rexburg and Pocatello.

Potato producers recently approved, in nationwide referendum, a research promotion plan to improve and expand markets for potatoes. A state is allowed one member on the board for each five million hundredweight potato production.

Ky. nabs first playoff victory

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI)—Walt Simon and Artis Gilmore each scored 25 points to lead Kentucky to a 105-99 victory over the New York Nets Wednesday night and reduce the Colonels' deficit in the American Basketball Association's Eastern playoffs to 2-1.

Simon, who once played for the Nets, came off the bench to score 12 points in the second quarter, giving Kentucky a 53-50 lead at halftime. In the third period, the Colonels increased their lead to 86-76 mainly on Gilmore's rebounding and his offensive contribution of 10 points.

The Nets still trailed 101-92, with five and a half minutes to play but pulled to within four points at 102-98 with 2:11 left. However, they scored only one more point the rest of the game and it was Simon who insured Kentucky's victory by hitting a jump shot with 46 seconds left.

Thousands honor Gil Hodges

Gil Hodges

NEW YORK (UPI)—The aging "Flatbush Faithful" and the younger Met fans came by the thousands Wednesday to pay their final respects to baseball great Gil Hodges.

The hie of mourners reached around the block where Our Lady Help of Christians Church held the remains of Hodges, who collapsed and died Sunday in Florida.

Moving silently and orderly, at about 60 persons a minute, the file moved into the small church, and it was estimated that 7,500 would move past the altar before the doors were closed at 5 p.m.

Police and Bob Smith, the recording secretary of the parish Holy Name Society believed that the throng that would gather Wednesday evening from 7 p.m. on would be even greater.

People began assembling in the late morning, although the body was not due to arrive at the church until 1 p.m. After the family came at 1:30, a short private service was held, and the first non-family members were permitted to enter the church at 2:20.

The funeral mass on Thursday at 11 a.m. will be celebrated with Bishop Francis Mugavero, priests from the parish and priests close to Gil and his family participating. The homily will be preached by Father Charles E. Curley, Our Lady Help of Christians pastor.

The police contingent around the church Wednesday consisted of a captain, a sergeant and 20 patrolmen.

Canadiens fall to N.Y. 3-2

NEW YORK (UPI)—Captain Vic Hadfield scored his second goal of the game with 7:17 left to play to give the New York Rangers a 3-2 victory over Montreal, Canadiens Wednesday night in the opening game of their Stanley Cup quarter-final series.

Hawks 3, Penguins 1

CHICAGO (UPI)—Pit Martin and Jim Pappin combined for three goals Wednesday night to give the Chicago Black Hawks a 3-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins in the first game of their best of seven series in the Stanley Cup playoff quarter-finals.

Stars 3, Blues 0

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—Veteran Dean Prentice scored two goals for the Minnesota North Stars while 42-year-old Gump Worsley recorded a shutout to give the Minnesota North Stars a 3-0 win over the St. Louis Blues in the first game of the best of seven Stanley Cup quarter finals Wednesday night.

Boston 5, Leafs 0

BOSTON (UPI)—Phil Esposito hammered in two goals in the closing minutes of the second period Wednesday night and Gerry Cheevers registered his fourth career playoff shutout as the Boston Bruins whipped the Toronto Maple Leafs 5-0 in the opening game of their National Hockey League playoff series.

New car, diamond ring—he's basketball's new millionaire

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Bid David Brent is back in town sporting a long, black luxury car, a $1,000 diamond ring with the initials "D.B." and the other finery one expects on a millionaire basketball player.

The auto has a long silver chain draped over the rear-view mirror with a round medallion on the end which says "Peace."

And Brent appears to have found peace of mind after ending months of speculation over whether he would give up his last two years of eligibility at Jacksonville University to sign a pro contract.

"I couldn't wait," explained the 7-foot Brent. "What if the two leagues merge next year? Then, they would have the bargaining power and not me."

Brent, 19, said he was surprised at the $1.1 million contract he received from the American Basketball Association's Memphis Pros after a disappointing season in which he was severely hampered by a broken bone in his leg.

Told his agent had quoted the contract at $1.1 million over the next five years with $250,000 deferred income until age 25 plus a $50,000 bonus and a car, Brent said the figures "are exactly right."

Brent said the most important thing about the contract is that he is now able to provide for his family.

"Nobody really knows the situation my family is in," he said. "My mother lives with my grandmother and grandfather and three children. They're living on welfare (in St. Louis) and that's the reason they had to come first."

"Coach (Tom) Wasdin realized and understands the situation and I'm very grateful for that," he said.

UNDEFEATED Allen Gibbs of Twin Falls steps across the finish line just ahead of Eller's Randy Lammers to win the quarter-mile in the Jerome Invitational Wednesday afternoon

Brent said he sent his mother and grandmother $1,000 each for Easter and he gave his grandfather an orange colored sports car with "The Judge" written on the side. It was the car he was driving before he got his present car.

"I am sure nothing will ever come up like jumping leagues like some of the players have," he added. "My contract is safe."

Brent said the only thing he regretted was not being able to give all I could" for Jacksonville University because

NCAA sues McDaniels and ABA

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association filed a $385,763 suit Wednesday against former Western Kentucky star Jim McDaniels, the American Basketball Association and agent Norman Blass.

former Villanova star Howard Porter on Feb. 23. McDaniels led Western Kentucky to a third-place finish in the 1971 NCAA tournament. McDaniels, the American Basketball Association and agent Norman Blass, vacated its place and was required to refund its tournament receipts of $66,318.

The NCAA's suit against McDaniels contends that he signed an undated contract with Blass in October, 1970, "for use of his exclusive services as a professional basketball player in and for the ABA."

Nicklaus begins first step toward grand slam

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—It was Jack Nicklaus, dreaming of professional golf's first "grand slam," against the world today in the opening round of the Masters, first of this year's four most prestigious tournaments.

Nicklaus, the all-time leading money winner although he is only 32 years old and been out on the pro tour for only a decade, already is the only golfer to win all four at least twice each. So, as he once asked, "Except for the slam, what is there left to do?"

Nicklaus, who by winning here this week would tie Arnold Palmer's record of four Masters championships, was scheduled to tee off at 12:03 p.m. EST in a twosome with Eddie Pearce, the Wake Forest student from Tampa, Fla., who finished second in the U.S. Amateur.

Although Nicklaus has not won the Masters since 1966 when he became the first back-to-back champion, he is the odds-on favorite to win here this year.

"When you talk about favorites you have to start with Jack," said 1970 Masters champion Billy Casper who has a 10:32 a.m. tee time. "The Augusta National is playing 25 yards per hole longer this year because of the lush fairways and the greens are the fastest I've ever seen them here.

"You put those two factors together and you have to come up with Nicklaus as the man with the game to finish on top."

Although the greens are tightening fast, both Nicklaus and Palmer have complained about them being infected by Poa annua grass which is expected, especially by afternoon, to create small humps and prevent putts from rolling as accurately as normal.

Palmer, who won his fourth Masters crown back in 1961, is regarded to have an improved chance to beat Nicklaus this week thanks to his new contact lenses (for near sightedness) which enabled him to come within a late triple-bogey of winning last week at Greensboro, N.C.

Palmer, long the darling of Masters fans, tees off at 12:59 p.m.

Lee Trevino, the man who beat Nicklaus in a playoff to win the U.S. Open and then went on to succeed Nicklaus as British Open champ, rated today as having the best chance among the other 84 golfers in the starting Masters field to best Nicklaus again during the next four days.

Trevino, who tees off at 11 a.m. with Tommy Aaron, best known here for writing down a wrong score for Roberto de Vicenzo in 1968, boycotted the previous two Masters because he claimed his game wasn't suited to the hilly, 6,980-yard course.

But Trevino, who since has learned to hit a higher drive admitted that his skipping the Masters "was a mistake" and announced he was "returning here to win."

Deadlock continues in baseball strike

NEW YORK (UPI)—With talks at a stalemate and no new negotiations in the pension dispute even scheduled, the baseball strike entered its fifth day Wednesday which was supposed to be the first day of the 1972 season.

In the absence of negotiations, the owners—who reportedly were divided in their meeting in Chicago Tuesday night—took different positions.

In Kansas City, Ewing Kauffman, the owner of the Royals, said that if the strike isn't settled within seven days, the players will have to go through spring training again and they'll go through it with no salary.

In Chicago, president John W. Allen of the White Sox permitted the players to work out at White Sox park and 17 of them showed up at the field Wednesday to take him up on the offer.

There were reports that a minority of the owners at Tuesday night's meeting wanted to make a new offer to the players. But the hardliners, whose spokesman Gusie Busch of the St. Louis Cardinals refuses to offer "another damn cent," are still in the majority.

Kauffman, speaking at a Kansas City Advertising & Sales executives club, said, "I think we can pressure them into taking another vote. What do they have to lose?"

All the teams voted overwhelmingly in favor of a strike last Friday—in Dallas, the players representatives voted 47-0 with one player abstaining for an immediate strike.

The players claim the money for the pension fund isn't the only issue. They feel the owners are now trying to break the union because of their dislike for Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Major League Players Association.

As things stand, the players offered to accept the owners' last money offer if they could also use what they claim is a "surplus" money in the pension fund.

The owners, claiming that arbitration is another indication the owners are trying to break the union, the owners reply they're already offering over $5 million a year to the Association and there is no vendetta involved.

Kauffman said the players "have a perfect right to strike" but he insisted they were "damn fools" to do it.

receive a reply. A spokesman in Miller's office said he went from Cincinnati to Baltimore on Wednesday and wasn't expected in his office until early Wednesday evening.

The players have also offered to have any "prominent" third party who is not associated with either side arbitrate the dispute. The owners have also turned this suggestion down.

Rondon to be ready for Foster fight

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—It doesn't bother manager Felix Zabala that light heavyweight champion Vicente Rondon looks lousy in his training. When the bell rings for the real thing, says Zabala, Rondon will be ready.

"For all his fights he's like that. He's training like he always does," said Zabala as Rondon rolled around the training ring at Miami Beach's Fifth Street gym trading blows with a sparring partner.

"I tell him, work hard, throw punches, but he doesn't like it," Zabala sighed. "But what can I say. He's won 21 fights in a row. When the bell rings, he comes to fight."

The bell will ring at 10:30 p.m. EST Friday for Rondon to mix it with Bob Foster for undisputed claim on the light heavy crown. Rondon is World Boxing Association title-holder and Foster—who was dethroned by the WBA for not defending the title—is recognized by four states as the World Boxing Council champ.

Even Angelo Dundee, a prominent trainer-manager who trained Gomez Brennan for a fight with Rondon last October, observed that the Venezuelan battler "looks lousy, just like he did for the Brennan fight."

But that might not be such bad news for Rondon fans. Brennan lost to the South American in a 13-round technical knockout.

Utah cops third win at Dallas

DALLAS (UPI)—The Utah Stars fought off a late Dallas Chaparral rally for a 96-89 victory Wednesday and their third straight win in their American Basketball Association Western Division playoff series.

After trailing by as many as 15 points the Chaps tied the score at 85-85 with 3:25 remaining. Then Utah's Jimmy Jones hit an eight-foot jumper and Merv Jackson added a free throw and a long jump shot to snuff out the Chap rally.

Willie Wise and Zelmo Beatty led the Utah scoring with 26 and 24 points each. Jones added 16 points and played excellent defense the Chap's Donnie Freeman.

Although Freeman rallied to score 22 points, he was held to only two points in the first half.

ABA scoffs at raid rumors

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI)—Carolina Cougar President Carl Scheer Wednesday labeled "preposterous" the suggestion that the Cougars had tapped an ABA "war chest" to offer a $2 million contract to Nate Thurmond of the NBA's Golden State Warriors.

There is no league war chest," Scheer said and denied that the Cougars had made any offer to the NBA star whose current contract expires this year.

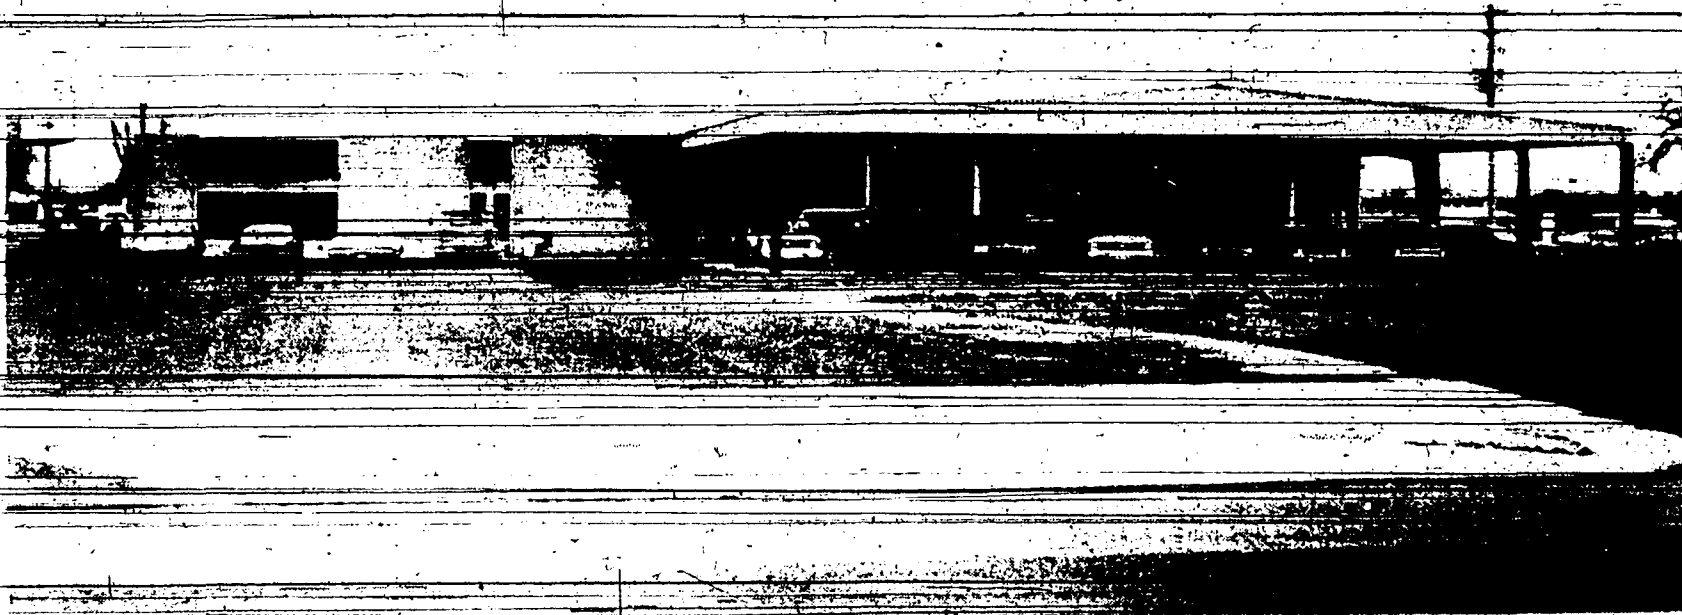

"Certainly we'd like to have Thurmond, but we have not made him an offer," he said following a report to that effect by Thurmond's financial advisor, Bob Bartels.

"If he (Thurmond) wants to talk to us after the playoffs he's welcome to," Scheer noted.

Surprising Jerome snaps TF track winning streak at 25

JEROME — The Jerome Tigers pulled off one of the major surprises of the year Wednesday afternoon by winning their own J-Club invitational and snapping the Twin Falls track winning streak at 25 straight.

LARRY BELL of Burley picks up the first of two sprint victories in the J-Club invitational Wednesday. Bell nips Twin Falls' Bill Woodson here and edged Bruin Brent Thompson by a foot in the 220-yard dash.

The Tigers, showing fine depth and strength in the hurdles nipped the Bruins 85 to 84 1/2. Twin Falls hadn't lost a track meet since the 1969 state finals. Burley, headed by Larry Bell and Harper, took third with 68 points while Twin Falls and Kimberly 19 1/2.

The turning point of the meet, therefore, hung on the 880-yard relay where Twin Falls was defeated. However, the Bruins dropped the baton on the second exchange and by the time Twin Falls had retrieved it, Jerome was out of reach and nailing down the first that meant a difference of four points.

Jerome showed good early foot, picking up 20 points in the hurdles, and stayed well ahead until Twin Falls blitzed back with a one-two-three-five finish in the 880-yard run for 14 points. Jerome reclaimed the lead on McIntyre's victory in the two mile with Twin Falls getting back on top by taking the mile relay. The always last event, the pole vault, then saw Dale Boughman of Jerome flip Bruin John Blake on fewer misses for the first place and bonus points to clinch it.

"At first I was very upset," said Twin Falls coach Jerry Kleinkopf, who actually was cousins since his cousin, Karl Kleinkopf, of Jerome head coach. "But our performances weren't that bad all things considered. The only thing was we didn't enter enough events. It also helps to know that we lost to a team that spends a lot of hours working each day."

The meet provided some previews for the rest of the year. Burley senior Larry Bell emerged as the sprint leader in the early rounds as he nipped Twin Falls' Brent Thompson and Bill Woodson in the 100-yard dash and Thompson by an eyelash in the 220-yard dash. Burley's Harper also showed well, the sophomore taking the low hurdles handily and third in the 220-yard dash, just a tenth-second away from first.

Gooding State has first victory ever

GOODING — For probably the first time in the school's history, the Gooding State Redskins took a team track victory Wednesday and doubled its flavor by winning the Northside Conference track and field championship at the same time. Headed by McCalley's four first places, the Redskins piled up 86 1/2 points while Richfield had 69, Camas County 67 1/2, Carey 44, and Bliss 13. The Richfield girls grabbed the district title with a title one and one-half point decision over Camas County, 84 1/2-43. Well back in third spot was Carey at 21 1/2 with Gooding State and Bliss tied at 17.

McCalley took the two distance events, won the high jump and ran a leg in the winning medley relay quartet. Hollins picked up double wins for the Redskins in the weights. The other double winner in the meet was Richfield's Hubsmith who won the long jump and 220-yard dash.

The Hubsmith name was equally prominent on the girls side of the competition, as Miss Hubsmith grabbed two individual firsts and a second and ran on a winning relay team. She took the longer two dashes and placed second in the long jump, then started the winning mile relay. Miss Pate of Camas County won the 75-yard dash and hurdles to take two firsts for Camas County and Richfield had another double winner in Miss Jones who took the weight events.

Drink Inspires Romantic Urge

A distiller in Belluno, Italy, makes a liqueur from asparagus which he claims incites that old romantic urge. And another distiller in Merida, Yucatan, makes a liqueur from watercress which he contends does likewise. So reports that most knowledgeable expert on romantic urges, Los Angeles Chet L. Switch. MAYBE YOU didn't know Canada has more lakes than all the rest of the nations put together. MISTER, if you can't hang onto your cash, maybe what you suffer from is chrematophobia, the morbid dread of money.

AS FOR french-fried potatoes, it was the Belgians, not the French, who first devised that delicacy, please note.

VACATION

What time of year do you take your vacation, if any? Pollsters say 51 per cent of the citizens go in the summer, 10 per cent in the winter, 22 per cent in the fall, and 17 per cent in the spring.

IT'S ALSO known that the men of New England have slightly smaller heads than the men elsewhere nationwide while the men of the Deep South have slightly larger heads. And the hat makers ship their sizes accordingly.

A. The horse, long or short.

APRIL

How do you account for the fact so many literary geniuses have been born in April? Just to name a few: Edmund Rostand, Hans Christian Andersen, Emile Zola, Washington Irving, Robert E. Sherwood, Algernon Swinburne, William Wordsworth, Henry James, Anatole France, Charlotte Bronte, Henry Fielding, Edward Gibbon. And even, it's believed, William Shakespeare.

THE HARD fact, it's true that among every 100 citizens now listed as unemployed, 42 are men, 33 are women and 25 are teenagers.

POSSIBLY you would be interested to learn of the report that "Cosmopolitan" Editor Helen Gurley Brown always goes to bed in her ship. And possibly you wouldn't.

YOU'VE STAYED in a hotel. No doubt a motel, too. Maybe even a boathel. But have you ever stayed in a "lolel"? Imagine so. It's what the Dutch call a hotel with a helicopter pad on the roof.

Witness tells

Tells story
A KEY WITNESS against Angela Davis, Martin County Asst. District Atty. Gary Thomas, who was paralyzed from the waist down in the 1970 Marin shootout, grimaces as he is helped into his wheelchair by sheriff's deputies as he arrived at the courtroom to testify at the trial. (UPI)

Witness tells about shooting

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—and I saw Jonathan Jackson had a revolver in his hand, Thomas said. He put his hand on the window and I heard a shot. Then I heard one or two more shots. Jackson pulled his hand back in and looked at it and there was blood on the inside of his wrist.

"When I saw that I immediately turned and looked at Judge Haley. I saw his face. He was alive. In the next instant I saw the right side of his face slowly pulling away from his skull. The sawed-off shotgun was held by Rachel Magee."

"As if in slow motion, all the outer appearance of his face moved away from the right side of his head."

"I turned and took the gun that was in Jonathan Jackson's hand. I fired a shot in his direction, at least one, maybe two."

"James McClain was moving to the left. I shot him in the back and turned and fired once at Christmas. Then I shot Rachel Magee in the chest once. He was still moving and I started to shoot him again and the gun clicked and I yelled out stop firing, please, please stop firing."

"At the same time, I felt a sharp pain in the back, my legs gave way and I crumpled down."

Prosecutor Albert W. Harris Jr. asked about his injuries.

"Something like one inch of my spinal cord was shot away and I am paralyzed from the waist down," Thomas said.

Defense attorney, Lou Branton, on cross-examination, immediately drew from Thomas the fact that he was not shot by one of the convicts.

The jury at the Angela Davis trial listened breathlessly Wednesday as Thomas, 34, an assistant district attorney, testified from a wheelchair about the "bloody events at the San Rafael courthouse on Aug. 7, 1970, in which he himself was paralyzed for life."

Four deputies who were in the courtroom corridor during the incident, and two Los Angeles dealers from whom Miss Davis allegedly bought the guns used in the shootings, were to testify today.

Thomas said he had regarded Judge Harold Haley as "almost a saint." The sight of Haley's head half torn away by a shotgun made him abandon regard for his own safety and open fire over the heads of three terrified women hostages.

Miss Davis, who is charged with conspiring in the Marin County intrusion in hopes of freeing "Sofiedad" brother, George Jackson, listened impassively as Thomas described what happened in the yellow getaway van.

Thomas said that Jonathan Jackson, 17, brother of George Jackson, was in the driver's seat. San Quentin convict James McClain was in the passenger seat in front. Rachel Magee was holding a sawed-off shotgun under Haley's chin and William Christmas was in the back.

Pay Board more effective now

By MATHIS CHAZANOV
SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The sole business representative on the new seven-man Pay Board Wednesday said he feels it will be easier to regulate wage increases now that the representatives of organized labor have walked out.

"It's becoming increasingly effective," Rocco Siciliano said. "There was a great deal of confusion, anger and strife at the beginning and we're over that now even though the union members have withdrawn."

"We can still function with the guidelines laid down before."

Siciliano, president of the TI Corporation of Los Angeles, spoke with newsmen at the University of Utah, where he was attending a meeting of the school's advisory council.

The former undersecretary of labor in the Eisenhower Administration said he feels fewer wage increases above the 6.6 per cent guideline will be allowed in the future.

"Initially you'll have a bulge where the initial contracts will be instituting changes our economy needs for balance," he said.

"I don't think we should feel ourselves here, because we're not talking about a freeze now. Once we get over the hump of the big agreements then they'll have to get in line."

He said the board's move to cut from 20.8 per cent to

Leaders meet for conclave

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Some 600 political, professional and community leaders from across the nation gathered at Harvard University Wednesday for a three-day conference on national priorities sponsored by the Congressional Black Caucus.

The conference organized around separate workshop forums on six domestic issues, is expected to provide an informal working program for the Black Caucus, which is composed of the 13 black members of the House of Representatives.

Two members of the caucus have prepared position papers for each of the six forums—communications, employment, education, law and justice, housing and health. The first three forums will be held Thursday and the other three on Friday.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., the only black in the U.S. Senate, was host at a cocktail party for caucus members and other conference participants Wednesday night.

A dinner at the Harvard Faculty Club preceded the party.

The conference is sponsored by Harvard's Kennedy Institute of Politics in conjunction with the Boston Globe, Chicago Sun-Times, Louisville Courier-Journal, Philadelphia Bulletin and the Gannett Newspapers.

Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, a caucus member, Prof. Ernest R. May of Harvard, and Robert Taylor, president of the Bulletin, will deliver opening remarks to the participants Thursday morning before the group breaks into panel discussions.
