SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese commanders sent hundreds of reserves back to Saigon Saturday to prepare for a possible attack in the wake of new Communist victories in the Central Highlands and the capture of a base 40 miles north of the capital.

The North Vietnamese captured a regimental headquarters at Dau Tieng north of the capital and artillery bases Delta and Yankee on "rocket ridge"—a razorback overlooking a valley and its bases defending the Central highlands at Dak To, Tan Canh and Ben Het.

U.S. B52s flew 18 missions against suspected Communist troop positions and staging areas in South Vietnam, including four raids within two miles of the battered provincial capital at An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon.

Communist gunners lobbed another 1,150 rocket, mortar and artillery shells into An Loc, the scene of some of the most bitter fighting of the current offensive.

Communist and South Vietnamese troops fought in the streets of An Loc, hurling themselves at each other, each refusing to quit," according to one officer.

South Vietnamese commanders pulled troops out of the Saigon area to fight on other fronts soon after the Communist drive started March 30.

Saturday they ordered troops from the central and northern regions and sent back to Saigon for a possible attack on the capital.

In the last few days, the Communists have skirted An Loc and moved down Highway 13 toward Saigon. The Saigon command said 22 Communists were killed near Chon Thanh, 40 miles north of Saigon. Communist tanks have twice been sighted in the area.

Communists have also seized 50 miles of Highway 1 in Cambodia—a vital link between Saigon and Phnom Penh.

Control of Highways 1 and 13 would give the Communists two safe supply lines into Cambodia and possible invasion routes for Saigon from the north and northwest. "I always thought Saigon was the major objective of any North Vietnamese push," said Maj. Gen. James Hollinsworth, senior U.S. adviser in the Saigon area.

Communist troops moved into Dau Tieng, a South Vietnamese regimental headquarters, and clashed with South Vietnamese troops who retreated to nearby Tri Tam.

Military spokesmen said the South Vietnamese killed 19 Communists in a fight one-half mile outside Dau Tieng.

Astronaut Duke loses ...

balance, falls ...

Moon rocks surprise

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Apollo 16's ambitious explorers roamed longer and climbed higher Saturday than man has ever gone in search of secrets to the moon's childhood.

But the material John W. Young and Charles M. Duke found in the battered mountain highlands seemed very different from what they went looking for, and scientists on earth were surprised.

The cratered, rocky highlands of Descartes also were so rugged they exacted a hard toll from their electric, buggy, Rover II lost a fender, a rear wheel drive became partly disabled, and the navigation system got knocked out — although engineers hoped it could be fixed.

During a record 7 hours, 23 minutes and 26 seconds outside their landing craft Orion, Young and Duke drove and climbed halfway up Stone Mountain—a peak rising 1,666 feet above their landing site on Cayley Plain. They were nearly a mile and a half higher than the spot to the northeast, as viewed from earth, where Apollo 11's Eagle landed three years ago.

For Young and Duke, the outing surpassed the 7 hour, 12 minute and 43 second record set last summer by Apollo 15 moonwalkers David R. Scott and James B. Irwin. It also beat by almost 13 minutes the length of the first Apollo 16 lunar excursion Friday.

But the two Apollo 16 explorers had to beg ground controllers to let them stay outside an extra 10 minutes and set their "world record."

While they walked and worked, fellow crewmate Thomas K. "Ken" Mattingly made history of his own aboard the command ship Casper. Orbiting more than 60 miles up, Mattingly got man's first glimpse of an ancient volcanic sea formed on the back side of the moon.

After Young and Duke returned to Orion, ground controllers gave them a "go" for a shortened excursion Sunday.

They estimated the astronauts added about 82 pounds of rocks to the 39 pounds they gathered during their first moonwalk. One of the new batch was a football-size white rock.

The two explorers drove their battered Rover II "like a camel" past yawning craters and up rocky, 20-degree slopes similar to California's Death Valley and the Nevada Atomic Test Site.

They also trudged through dusty terrain and at times crawled on their knees to inspect rocks and samples.

searching for volcanic mountain bedrock that dozed like hot molasses from the moon's interior as long as 4 billion years ago.

It was for just this type of material that the Apollo 16 landing site was selected after a controversial debate among scientists. But the stuff Young and Duke encountered appeared different.

"What we found here was pretty much a surprise," said scientist astronaut Anthony Foylad, capsule communicator during the walk. "It wasn't what the crew was briefed to expect."

Instead of a great deal of volcanic basalt which they expected, the astronauts reported finding large amounts of breccia—rocks compacted from fine particles.

Dr. Charles Berry reported after the walk that Young and Duke fared better Saturday than Friday, but said medical experts would work through the night to see if their sore, raw fingers—the price of working in stiff space gloves—could be helped.

Once back aboard the Orion, Young and Duke were cleared for a third and final excursion Sunday, this time an abbreviated five-hour trip to North Ray Crater, before blasting off the moon at 8:22 p.m. EST to rejoin Mattingly. Their total time on the lunar surface would be nearly 71 hours—only two short of their original plan.

If all goes well, Orion and Casper will dock again in lunar orbit late Sunday night and, firing the command ship's main engine, hurt themselves back toward earth Monday night. Splashdown 1,500 miles south of Honolulu in the Pacific is now set for 2:42 p.m. EST Thursday.

Thousands scorn war

By United Press International
Antiwar demonstrators by the tens of thousands turned out for rallies in major cities and several state capitols Saturday, the sixth straight day of protests against renewed United States bombing of North Vietnam.

More than 50,000 demonstrators marched two miles in pouring rain through the heart of Manhattan, carrying umbrellas along with their picket signs. Mayor John Lindsay issued a statement saying, "I join all Americans who on April 22 will speak out for peace."

Former Beatle John Lennon and his wife Yoko Ono were among the celebrities leading the demonstrators in the Lennon song, "Give Peace a Chance."

More than 30,000 persons filed into San Francisco's Kezar Stadium to hear speeches by actress Jane Fonda, black comedian Dick Gregory and Panther Leader Bobby Seale, then enjoyed free lemonade and a chance to throw darts at an image of President Nixon.

In Chicago, chill winds blew as 2,000 marched from the Civic Center Plaza to Grant Park. A group of 25 broke away toward the Conrad Hilton Hotel, scene of one of the worst clashes between protesters and police during the 1968 Democratic Convention, but police made them move on. One woman refused and was arrested.

Marchers moved 30 abreast along Wilshire Boulevard in Los Angeles. There was a tense moment when three dozen members of the Jewish Defense League taking part in the march were confronted by 30 brown-shirted American Nazis. Two young men were arrested.

Pair of I-80 crashes near Bliss injure 9

BY PEGGY CHU
Times-News Writer

BLISS — Two one-car accidents near here Friday night injured nine persons, one critically.

In critical condition in St. Alphonsus Hospital, Boise, was Melvin Johnson Jr., 7, Salt Lake City. He sustained head injuries when thrown from the auto involved in the second mishap. He was taken to the Boise hospital early Saturday from Gooding Memorial Hospital.

Also in the Boise hospital in fair condition with head injuries was Tommy Lindstrom, 4, Salt Lake City. He was hurt in the same accident, seven miles west of Bliss on Interstate 80N. It occurred about 10 p.m.

Idaho State Police Officer Jim Finch said the two boys were among four children thrown out of a westbound car driven by Melvin Johnson Sr., 33, Salt Lake City. It overturned after he lost control. Johnson and the other occupants of the car were listed in good condition at Gooding Memorial Hospital Saturday with cuts and bruises.

Others hurt in that wreck were Todd Lindstrom, 6, George Lindstrom, 11 and Mrs. Barbara Johnson, 28. Finch said Johnson's car was demolished.

About two hours earlier, three Mountain Home men were hurt when their westbound car left the interstate and overturned in the ditch. The car burst into flames but passing motorists halted and pulled the three from the car.

Wesley Brickhouse, 18, Howard Hebert, 18, and Ollie Hines, 30, were admitted to Gooding Memorial Hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises. They were released Saturday.

Finch and Gooding County sheriff's officers investigated the wreck. They said the car fire was put out by passing truckers who stopped to help. The car was destroyed. Identity of the driver was not immediately learned.

HHH forecasts Penn triumph

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey predicted Saturday he would win the April 25 Pennsylvania primary, get a plurality of delegates and carry a momentum into California, which he said would be the scene of the "big ultimate effort—the showdown."

Talking to a small group of newsmen while campaigning in suburban King of Prussia three days before the primary, Humphrey said, "I am going to win the presidential primary with a good vote" and added that "I think we ought to get a plurality of the delegates."

Humphrey, who has never won a presidential primary in his long political career, said it would be a "major victory" if he gets a majority of the 137 delegates to the Democratic national convention.

Humphrey and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie campaigned across the state despite heavy rain Saturday, seeking votes in the ghettos and in the middle income suburbs.

Muskie went into heavily populated Italian and black sections here to shake hands and mingle with the Saturday shopping crowd before flying to the Lehigh Valley area in eastern Pennsylvania for evening events.

He planned to cut short his Pennsylvania campaign Sunday for a previously unscheduled fling into Massachusetts, which also has its primary next Tuesday.

Humphrey said the primary was "very, very important" to him, and added "if I win I expect to go onto California which is the big ultimate effort, the showdown."

He said "whoever wins in that California primary, coming one month before the convention, is going to look awfully good—that's going to be a very psychological advantage."

At a country club in suburban Springfield, Muskie said the renewed bombing of North Vietnam "solves nothing"—and was a "return to Johnson policy already rejected by the people four years ago."

ADA backs McGovern

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 25th national convention of Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) lined up Saturday to give an unqualified endorsement to Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota for the Democratic presidential nomination.

A resolution endorsing McGovern goes to the convention floor Sunday from the political commission, which is composed of about 40 members, and its approval seemed highly likely. There may be a minority report from the same commission, endorsing McGovern,

TWIN FALLS — Rep. Samuel I. Devine, R-Ohio, said Saturday night Democratic presidential hopefuls who are "deep breathing" about Vietnam are confused as to who is the aggressor.

Speaking before Idaho Young Republicans and their guests at a dinner at the Elks Lodge, Devine said those quick to criticize the President for stepped up offensive action said nothing when North Vietnamese armies marched south.

North Vietnam, he said, was the aggressor and the bombings of the past week are one means of bringing the North Vietnamese to the negotiating table. The Ohio Congressman said President Nixon has his full support and that of other loyal Republicans in what he is doing to bring the situation in Vietnam to as rapid an end as possible.

"President Nixon has kept his promises and followed his proposal to the fullest extent," he said. "He is maintaining Vietnamization and is reducing American troops as promised."

Devine said the ITT investigation is a "trumped up issue by Democratic candidates who could find no real issues."

Speaking to the Idaho Young Republicans, Devine encouraged them to get involved in politics, as campaign workers and as office seekers. He said they are not a single segment of the Republican Party, but an important influence in all factions. The speaker said what the Republican party does in the future will depend on how well the young party members perform.

The dinner, with Jay Longeteig, Idaho YR vice president, as master of ceremonies, concluded a two-day convention in Twin Falls.

The New Freedom Singers, from Ricks College, Rexburg, provided entertainment.

Attacks opposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most of President Nixon's close advisers counseled him against bombing Hanoi and Haiphong because they feared it could cost him the November election, a high administration official says.

The official said Nixon decided to escalate the U.S. response to North Vietnam's Easter week offensive because the President was convinced he would not have a "viable foreign policy" unless he did.

"If I don't do what I should do to protect the future of this country then it is questionable whether I could have a viable foreign policy even if I were re-elected," the official quoted Nixon.

"If by doing what I think I must do, it means the election of someone else, then at least it will give him a chance to have a viable, credible foreign policy in his administration," Nixon was quoted as saying.

The official, who often is consulted by Nixon on major policy, discussed the President's decision-making process with a small group of newsmen. He spoke with the understanding ing he would not be named and would not be quoted directly although there could be direct quotation of remarks he attributed to Nixon.

Nixon was described as cool, calm, calculated and detached in reaching the decision to intensify the use of airpower to meet the Communist offensive.

Only one or two of Nixon's advisers advocated the course the President eventually chose, the official said. The rest advised against it.

After Nixon decided to do whatever is necessary to repel the North Vietnamese offensive, he set few limits on possible action.

Nixon was at the Camp David Md. retreat this week-end. He is scheduled to announce next week if the withdrawal of U. S. troops will continue.

PICKETING WAS given up by peace activists Friday in favor of a boyish game of "frisbee" at the CSI campus. Above are two "frisbee" playing students who had been carrying signs like the one propped against the tree. At left, after the young men spied the Times-News photographer, they picked up their signs and promenaded around the north lawn of the campus.

CSI has first confrontation

TWIN FALLS — To picket or not to picket.

That was the question at the College of Southern Idaho Friday.

There was anti-war picketing, eventually. But classes at the college weren't disrupted. It was carried out within a prescribed area, despite rain showers, but eventually a game of "frisbee" distracted several of those protesting increased bombing in Vietnam.

And ironically, the picketing and protest, was carried out, a few yards from the Fine Arts Center, where a "Rediscover America" program was in session.

The question of picketing or not picketing was raised during an hour long meeting Friday morning with CSI administrators. The group of students dispersed after Dr. James L. Taylor, college president, consented to limited picketing and laid down ground rules for the anti-war protest.

But when approval for the picketing was given, most of the 50 to 60 students at the meeting appeared to lose interest.

Only a handful of protestors appeared in the multi-use building and on the grounds toward the CSI tower, the area designated for the protests. Several students sat with signs in a sunken garden. Others, wearying of light rain, propped placards in a building hall.

After the showers ended, about a half dozen boys went to the north lawn, laid their "ban the bomb in Nam" signs on the grass or propped them against trees, and joined in the "frisbee" game.

During the Friday morning confrontation between administration and activists the first in the history of CSI — Dr. Taylor told the students if they overstepped bounds set, officers would be called in. He also made it clear that picketing was to be kept away from areas where classes might be disrupted.

The activists had asked that classes be shut down or that students not go to class in recognition of a nation-wide campus strike called in opposition to escalation of the war. Dr. Taylor told the students that under no circumstances would classes be dismissed for the day.

He said if students wanted to plan a demonstration in "concert" with the administration would cooperate with them as long as the educational process was not interrupted.

He said he, too, is bitterly opposed to the war and would hope the students would prepare a petition opposing it. He suggested copies of the petition or telegrams be sent to the Idaho Congressional delegation and to President Nixon.

Many students interviewed on campus said they are sympathetic to the anti-war group, but do not intend to picket or miss classes. They said they would be willing to sign petitions opposing Vietnam.

The student-administration confrontation which took place in the CSI Eagle's Nest in the student union area of the multi-use building was precedent setting in the history of CSI.

Dr. Taylor told the Times-News following the meeting that this was the first such talk he had had with students to resolve a "major confrontation." He said, however, the confrontation was needless.

Dr. Taylor said he is always willing to listen with an open mind when a group of students approaches him with a well thought out and well-planned proposal, but he would not call off classes or allow indiscriminate picketing at less than 24 hours' notice.

One student leaving the Eagle's Nest was heard to say, "I didn't know Dr. Taylor could be so understanding."

Hay lowdown

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Hay cut at an early stage of growth has a higher protein content than that harvested at a mature stage, according to pasture specialists at Texas A&M University.

The experts say harvesting young plants means lower yield per cutting, but that the total yields per year, in many cases, are just as high as if the crop had been allowed to grow tall.

Guard aides visit

JEROME — Two Idaho National Guard officials arrived by helicopter in Jerome Friday to address the high school student body.

The National Guard aircraft landed on the school's football field and was on display during the brief visit. Sgt. Terry M. Pierce and Sgt. Kelton O. Godfrey, Pocatello, explained to students the programs available through the Guard, and said graduates can meet their military requirements by enlisting with the National Guard.

A weapons display was also shown during the student body assembly. Pierce said the Jerome stop is part of a three-day promotional tour of Burley, Jerome and Hailey.

BOSTON (NEA) — Politics being what it is in Massachusetts, it shouldn't be surprising that the state's first real presidential primary has some curious aspects.

First, there's the ballot. With so many Democrats still running for the presidency, or trapped on the list because they withdrew too late, the names are a flood. With them, in some cases, go long slates of delegate candidates, district by district.

Add more slates for the people running for ward committees. The consequences of all this in paper are immense. Says one Boston politician:

"If you've got this huge wall you've always wanted to do something with, this would be it. Or, if you could get it plasticized, it would make a great poncho."

Then there are all these Democratic big shots running for delegate to the presidential nominating convention at Miami Beach on slates pledged to Sen. Edmund Muskie.

With rival Sen. George McGovern victorious in the Wisconsin primary and Muskie having trouble, things look a good deal tougher for the big shots than in earlier days when, in the words of an experienced Democrat, "Muskie was going through a grandmother's meadow to pick mushrooms."

Their roster is long: It includes Boston Mayor Kevin White, Attorney General Robert Quinn, Michael Dukakis (one of several Democratic aspirants for governor in 1974), U.S. Congressmen like Edward Boland and Michael Harrington (bidding for alternate), state representatives others.

Lately they've been having meetings to see what they could do to try to salvage the Muskie at-large and district delegate slates.

Somebody had the idea these party leaders ought to pool their valuable lists of key workers and get these people working at full tilt for the Muskie slates with all those fancy names. There was quick agreement on pooling. But so far not a single list has come out of anybody's side pocket. With three or four guys running for governor next time, to give with the lists would be like the Dallas Cowboys handing the Miami Dolphins their game plan on Super Bowl Day.

One Bostonian Democrat thinks the pooling might have worked if the Muskie managers had asked that the crucial lists be given to an out-of-state Muskie man to hold in political escrow.

"They could have told the guys here, 'Look, when it's over, you'll get your lists back. We'll send our man back to Nebraska, put him on a tractor, and you'll never hear of him again.'"

Since nothing so neat as that is happening, the big name types are bumping into each other. And saucy little rumors are afloat to the effect that the various governorship aspirants may be telling people to cast a "bullet vote."

In this case, with most of the name candidates on the 20-member at-large slate, that could mean casting all 20 votes for one man instead of spreading votes across the whole list.

You can hear the aspirant now, whispering to the voter: "Cast 20 for me. Pass it on."

interested in the problem my sons and I had.

After much discomfort for months, and eliminating this thing and that (cotton, nylon, acetate, rayon), we decided to stop using the detergent we had been using and washed all underclothing with soap flakes.

Lo and behold, all discomfort stopped — itching and all.

I sent a sample to the detergent company and they said that their tests "did not bear out my conclusions" and that I should send a larger sample.

By the time they responded, however, we had somehow disposed of the rest of the box which we had been saving to send to the Food & Drug people in Washington. — J.B.D.

Detergents do bother some people — some more than others. Some get around it by an extra rinsing. Quite possibly some won't find even the extra rinsing sufficient. But it's definitely worth trying.

However, the same answer applies here as in the preceding letter. Allergies are individual sensitivities, and the FDA doesn't think it wise to ban something because SOME people are allergic.

Trouble is, that way we'd have to ban almost everything.

Results Count

Demands made upon the teacher in the fabled one-room schoolhouse were many, but they cannot begin to compare with the complexities of modern education — not only in the "big cities" but even here in Twin Falls and other Magic Valley communities. Schools are no longer mere training grounds for the essentials in academic skills.

They may encompass a variety of responsibilities formerly not generally found in the classroom. Included are such subjects as driver training, sex education (in some schools, but soon in all of them), vocational preparation and an expanding list of social and academic counseling services.

To add further complexities to the task of education, the basic body of knowledge is far from static. If parents at times are confused by the mission of education and students sometimes are skeptical about the meaning of it all, it is the educator who most often finds himself the target of the community's approval or disapproval. In Twin Falls and in Burley this fact has been an issue more than once in recent months.

Education is evolving, as any discipline would under similarly unsettled conditions. One of the central facts which pops to the surface repeatedly is that the amount of money poured into the system does not always bear a direct relationship to the quality of education which emerges.

Above a certain minimum required for physical plants and services, the cost of education per pupil varies greatly from district to district. This fact is causing concern throughout Idaho. In fact it is one of the main reasons funding is moving more and more to complete state and federal levels. Actually, how the funds are used are more important than from where they are received.

Performance contracting by outside consultants in teaching methods is a relatively new and sometimes controversial product of the drive for newer and more productive methods of instructions. Several big city school systems over the nation are now involved in such a change.

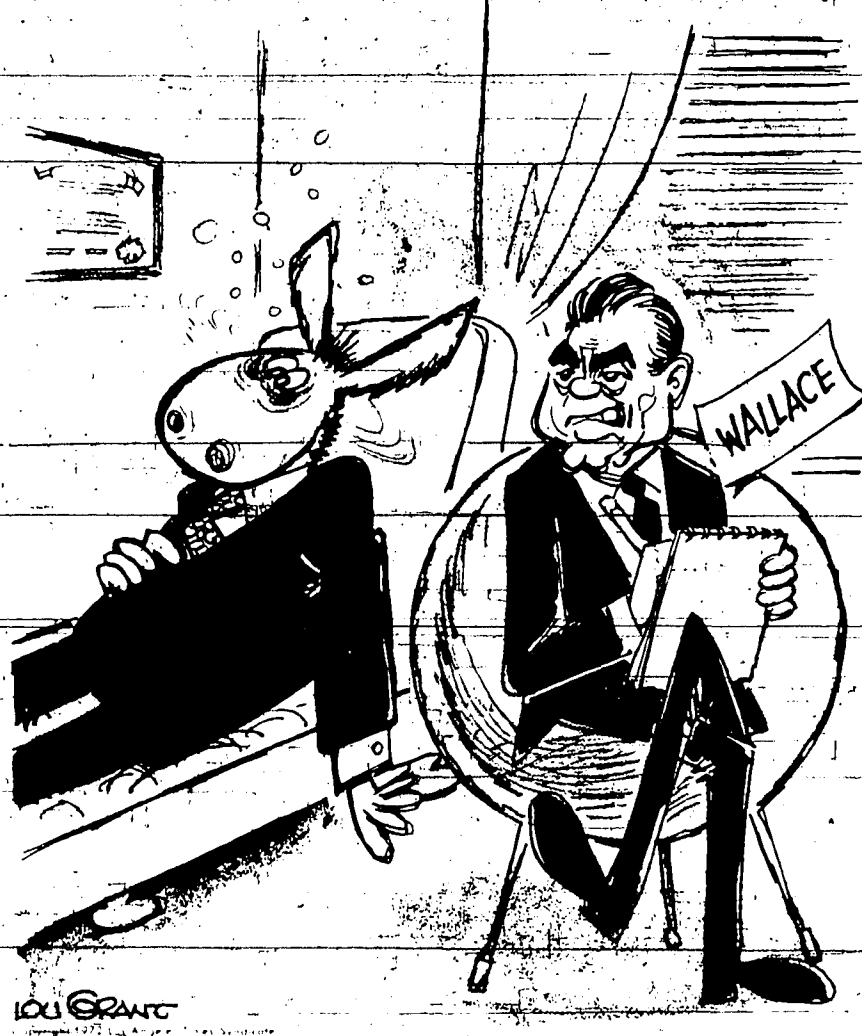

In Gary, Indiana, for instance, one elementary school which adopted performance contracting showed positive results by adopting procedures the formal school structure was unable to do.

Using the same per pupil expenditure of $925 per year, the consultants began by reducing the teaching staff by 10 and hiring qualified aides in the classrooms. The aides work for less.

The net effect, officials report, was to improve the adult to pupil ratio and expand the interaction between the two to the mutual benefit of both. Other changes were adopted, including departmentalization and permitting students to advance at their own speed. The officials reported noticeable learning improvements at no extra cost. Not all schools, of course, have responded to contract teaching equally well. In Idaho it is being looked into, but to date that is about the only step taken.

But the point of all this and other experiments is that it is the results that count. If the experiment doesn't work it can be changed.

Church Alone

WASHINGTON — Sen. Frank Church is the only member of the Idaho congressional delegation who questions the wisdom of recent American bombings around Hanoi and Haiphong in North Vietnam.

The other three members of the delegation, Sen. Len Jordan, Rep. James McClure, and Rep. Orval Hansen, all Republicans, expressed support this week for the escalation of the air war in Southeast Asia.

Church charged that bombing North Vietnam did not work for President Johnson and said he saw no reason why it would work for President Nixon. "If the massive application of American air and naval power is still necessary, after all these years, to shield the South against the North, when will we ever free American forces from the bondage of this war?" Church asked.

This particular offensive may be turned back. But other attacks will come as surely as leaves wither in the Fall. If Nixon's Vietnamization policy means continued reliance on American planes and ships, an end to our participation in the war is not even in sight," the Democratic senator added.

Sen. Jordan gave a surprisingly strong endorsement of the President's action despite the fact he has both privately and publicly expressed doubts about the course of the war for several years. "For sometime it has been my position that we have fulfilled our commitment to the people of Vietnam, that is we have trained and equipped the South Vietnamese army so that it can protect South Vietnam largely on its own," Jordan said.

The retiring Republican senator praised South Vietnam for holding the line against the recent North Vietnamese invasion and echoed the basic Administration line about the resumption of bombing in the North.

"While I have reservations about the renewed bombing, I do not think the outright aggression in the South should go unanswered. The American response should be of a limited nature and if nothing else should show that the imperialistic aims of the North Vietnamese government are not condoned by the American people," Jordan added, and renewed his pledge of support for President Nixon in his effort to end the war.

Both McClure and Hansen stressed the fact that North Vietnam's invasion of the South had necessitated the retaliatory strikes against Hanoi and Haiphong. The Payette GOP congressman said he was not wringing his hands over the bombing of Haiphong.

The provocation itself was very much public and must be recognized as high level politics — Communist-style," the senatorial candidate said.

Added McClure, "The Soviet Union has demonstrated no fear of stepping up support of the North Vietnamese, despite the fact that the summit meeting is only days away. It would be foolhardy for us to enter that meeting except from a demonstrated position of power. How much less our chances for meaningful talks would have been had we cowered at the thought of interrupting the enemy's determined effort to keep the war underway."

About Primaries

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It is known President Nixon is nearly as frustrated by the present presidential primary system as some of the Democrats involved.

He's gone to unusual lengths to back a highly-critical study of the primaries by close political adviser Robert Finch.

This is what Finch found: Primaries in 22 States, the District of Columbia and the Virgin Islands, represent 2,007 out of 3,016 votes at the Democratic convention and 802 out of 1,346 votes at the Republican Convention. The primaries bind delegates to follow the results of the presidential preference vote in only 13 states and D. C.

In New Hampshire, Nebraska and Pennsylvania, the delegates are only partially bound — usually for two convention ballots. In New York, Illinois, Ohio and New Jersey, the delegates are not bound at all. In California, the winner takes all.

This narrows the number of sure convention votes to be won in the primaries down to 1,001 for the Democrats and 395 for the Republicans — not nearly enough for one candidate to win either nomination.

Though John Kennedy and Mr. Nixon did position themselves for the nomination through "strong" primary showings, Theodore Roosevelt was refused the nomination after winning 11 of the 13 primaries he entered, including the contest in Howard Taft's home state of Ohio, thereby securing 278 delegates to Taft's 48.

In 1952, Sen. Estes Kefauver entered 15 out of 16 primaries and won 12. The convention nominated Adlai Stevenson who had not entered any.

In practice, presidential primaries have been effective as "sudden-death" candidate killers.

Wendell Willkie's 1944 defeat in Wisconsin ended his hopes for a comeback. Oregon cut down, Harold Stassen in 1948. In 1952, the New Hampshire primary badly damaged Sen. Robert Taft's presidential hopes. West Virginia hurt Sen. Hubert Humphrey sorely in 1960 and California seriously damaged Gov. Nelson Rockefeller in 1964.

With all this, what do the primary votes mean? A recent district court ruling upheld the right of cross-over voting in primaries. The results were seen in Illinois and Wisconsin.

On top of this the primaries vary so greatly from state to state that what happens in one state may have a meaning entirely different from that in another. What we have now amounts to 24 different sets of rules, players and stakes.

The primaries are not cheap. In 1968, the Democrats reportedly spent $25 million before the convention in Chicago. Democratic candidates this year, it is estimated, spent $6 million even before the New Hampshire polls opened.

Mr. Nixon has made it clear to the White House aides these past three years that he has a great personal ambition to bring greater order into our political and governmental systems before he leaves office.

Your daughter might be smart to try them.

Not For Us?

Ever feel like escaping from the treadmill of life for awhile and letting all the stresses and strains of modern civilization flow by without feeling you had to jump up and try to cope with each little problem?

Good, would be the comment of a Mexican psychologist and professor at the University of Mexico. He has made a study of the different ways Mexicans and North Americans face stresses. The doctor said he is convinced both cultures could learn something about facing the problems of life from the other.

While Americans believe in tackling a problem head-on and solving it on the spot, the average Mexican thrives on passive reaction to stress. In fact, passive resistance to strain has become something of a national virtue in Latin America.

He advocated that Americans adopt more of a "siesta" attitude and Mexicans become more concerned about the problems facing them. But the psychologist noted the dangers to health when either attitude is carried to extremes.

Americans have higher blood pressure than Latins, but Mexicans suffer from hypochondriasis — that is, a proficiency in imagining little aches and pains.

The professor can be presumed to be an authority on the attitudes of his fellow countrymen, and his observation of American life is consistent with that of most foreign observers. The average American is indeed an activist.

Not only are problems and work actively pursued with the zest of an athletic contest. But anyone who has watched an American family return from vacation knows what a trying time relaxation a la American can be. Americans do not enjoy leisure, they fight it.

An evening of relaxation in the back yard with the neighbors can include a fancy repast calling for at least two hours over a hot charcoal grill, followed by a series of amateur athletic games ranging from charades to a sandlot ball game.

But it might be fatal to the national image to change now. Far better to preserve the American reputation for high blood pressure, aggressive pursuit of minor and major obstacles alike, and a propensity for total mobility.

Americans wouldn't know how to act differently. Anyway, that's the best way to get things done.

That's what many people think — but Mr. Spectator will take the siesta.

A SUGGESTION

Dear Mr. Spectator: After reading of all the vandalism being done in the college and in the schools in Twin Falls, I might suggest a solution.

Let's add the "whipping post" as something offenders could be expected to receive. Just like the old days in New England. This might work effectively toward discouraging what has been going on.

Any Idea Where You Will Probably Live Longest?

By O.A. (GUS) KELKER
Editor, Times-News

A human born in the United States has a better chance of living to be 15 years old than one born in Canada. But if that same human passes the 15 year mark then the best place for a longer life is in Canada.

At ages under five, the death rate is 4.8 per thousand for white males in the United States, compared with 5.1 per 1,000 for males in Canada. Among females the difference is even greater. Moreover, for both boys and girls 5 to 14 years old, the United States rate is 19 per cent below that in Canada.

Three cause groups are largely responsible for Canada's adverse experience at the childhood ages. The rate for pneumonia and influenza is relatively high, particularly at ages under 5. At the same time relatively high mortality from other forms of accidents prevails in most areas of Canada.

At ages 15 and over the United States experiences the higher death rate. Among males the excess rises sharply from virtual equality at 15 to 24 years to a maximum of 18 per cent at ages 35 to 54, but after that declines almost as rapidly. Over this essentially adult period of life, the age-adjusted death rate is 13.8 per 1,000 in the United States — 10 per cent above the rate of 12.5 in Canada. Among females the United States disadvantage is not so marked. Nevertheless, the age-adjusted death rate at ages 15 and over for the United States is 7 per cent above that for Canada.

Diseases which account for more than half of all male and female deaths at ages 15 and over in the United States and Canada are the cardiovascular-renal diseases. For example, among males 15 and over, the age-adjusted death rate from arteriosclerotic heart disease is 501 per 100,000 in the United States or 14 per cent above the rate of 439 in Canada.

What about drugs as a cause of death? The latest statistical bulletin of Metropolitan Life says accidental poisoning by barbiturates and other drugs is on the rise. There has been a substantial increase since 1965 due primarily to a sharp rise in drug fatalities among adolescents and young adults. At ages 15 to 24 the death rate from this cause nearly tripled. At ages 25 to 34 the corresponding fatality rate rose by over 50 per cent. A relatively smaller increase of approximately a fifth was recorded in the 35-44 year age group. On the other hand there was a 12 per cent decrease for children under 5, and a more pronounced drop of about one-third in the rate for persons 45 to 64 years.

In 1965 less than half of all drug poisonings occurred among males. By 1968 (the last year with total tabulations) the proportion of male deaths from this cause had increased by about two thirds.

Much attention has recently been focused on the incidence and prevalence of drug abuse in the United States. Evidence of drug abuse — the taking of a deleterious quantity of any drug regularly over a considerable period of time — continues to mount. The number of drug abusers has been estimated to be in the millions. More and more persons of all ages and all classes — but especially teenagers — are taking drugs for purposes other than prescribed medical treatment.

Estimates derived from an intense study by the New York State Narcotic Addiction Control Commission, indicates that hundreds of thousands of people from all walks of life are now using a wide variety of potentially harmful drugs without prescriptions or medical supervision — for everything from obesity to nervousness.

It is scarcely surprising, then, to find a substantial rise in deaths due to drug abuse.

The available Metropolitan records show that among drug fatalities on insured lives, the following was true:

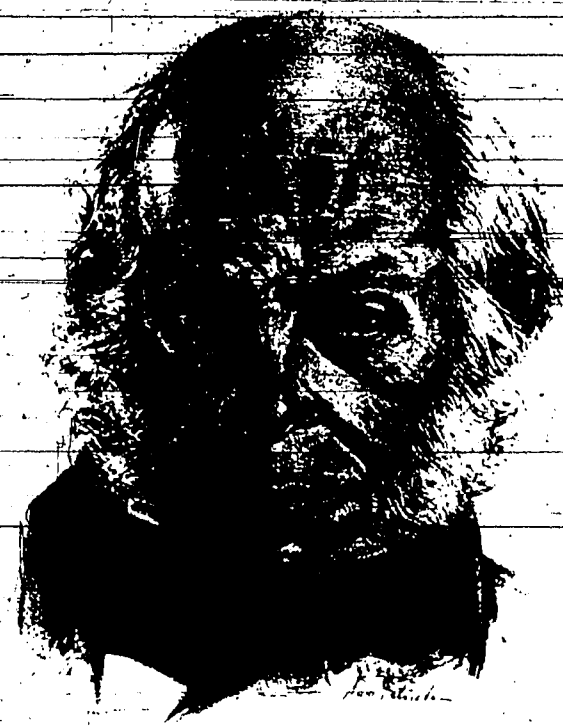

Of the 203 fatalities, 147 were male and 56 female. There were 3, all male, in the 5 to 14 year old age group; there were 94 males and 13 females in the 15 to 24 years old age group; there were 22 males and 8 females in the 25 to 34 year group; there were 11 males and 14 females in the 35 to 44 age group; there were 11 males and 20 females in the 45 to 64 age group and six males and one female in ages above that.

Thus males accounted for 72 per cent of the total deaths due to drugs. And almost two-thirds of the male deaths were in the age range 15 to 24, even though male policyholders at these ages comprised less than one fifth of all male policyholders.

Drug addiction was given as the cause on more than half the claims studied. Ninety-six of the drug involvement was by intravenous narcotics and 43 by barbiturates. There were two by aspirin and other salicylates.

The problem of drug addiction — habituation to the use of a drug, the deprivation of which gives rise to withdrawal symptoms and an irresistible impulse to take the drug again — has reached alarming proportions in many parts of the country, the records show. The number of narcotic addicts in this country has been estimated at 400,000 — and half of them are in New York City.

Presidents Of Manifest Destiny

John Q. Adams

Editor's note: This is one in a series of little known backgrounds of the Presidents of the United States. The series will be continued by the Times-News as a public service until all Presidents have been discussed.

Sixth President John Quincy Adams
(Administration: March 4, 1825-March 3, 1829)

When brilliant and dedicated John Quincy Adams became the nation's sixth Chief Executive, it marked the first and only time a son of a former President achieved that honor, the second time in 10 elections a native of Massachusetts had broken the hold of the "Virginia dynasty" on the Presidency and the third time in succession a secretary of state had moved up the political ladder to the White House.

The election of 1824 was unique in that, though there was only one party, the Democratic-Republican, there were four presidential and six vice-presidential candidates representing different factions of that party. Other political "firsts" were the nominations of favorite sons by state legislatures and the selection of presidential electors by popular vote.

A less salutary occurrence was the rebirth of secessionism, a tactic which had begun 28 years before against Adams' father and which had subsided during the last four elections. While Adams took no part in the vicious vilifying, the ridicule and slander hurt him. "To suffer without feeling is not in human nature," he wrote in his omniscient diary. "Yet a man qualified for the elective chief magistracy of 10 millions of people should be a man proof alike to prosperous and adverse fortune."

Still another blow to Adams' pride was the fact that he ran behind Andrew Jackson in both popular and electoral votes. Since Jackson lacked a majority, however, the issue was decided by the House of Representatives, where one of the eliminated candidates, Speaker Henry Clay, gave his support to Adams, making him the first minority President.

In his inaugural address, Adams publicly noted that he had gained the Presidency with "perhaps two-thirds of the people adverse to the actual result," and he admitted that he was "... deeply conscious of the prospect that I shall stand more and oftener in need of your indulgence."

The visionary program the President called for in his first annual message included the establishment of a national university, the financing of scientific expeditions, a uniform standard of weights and measures, creation of a Department of the Interior and the development of a sweeping project of internal improvements.

This far-reaching program was prophetic in theory but was delivered with a political ineptness that doomed it to failure. President Adams was not only recommending a strong federal program at a time when a powerful State's rights movement was under way, but he was so out of touch with political reality that he told his congressional audience that it would be shameful for them to be "palsied by the will of our constituents."

Adams was a political anachronism whose wisdom and patriotism were nullified by his pietism and stubbornness. He adamantly refused to play partisan politics, never belonged to a political party or any political faction and consequently never got a single major bill he wanted from Congress.

He was not unaware of his personality flaws. "I am, a man of reserved, cold, austere and forbidding manners," he confessed in his diary. "With a knowledge of the actual defect in my character, I have not the pliability to reform it."

Trounced in his bid for re-election by his nemesis Andrew Jackson, Adams wrote despairingly, "The sun of my life sets in the deepest gloom. But that of my country shines unclouded." He was only partly right, for two years later he was elected to Congress by the Anti-Masonic Party — a post he had not sought by a party he did not belong to.

John Quincy Adams served in that post for 18 years, his indomitable and finally successful fight against the "gag rule" on antislavery petitions forming a glorious chapter in the saga of human freedom. When he died in Congress Feb. 23, 1848, Sen. Thomas Hart Benton of Missouri voiced the perfect epitaph: "Where could death have found him," Sen. Benton asked, "but at the post of duty?"

Constitutional Authority

Editor, Times-News:

In a recent report, Congressman John G. Schmitz stated that our Founding Fathers never intended that federal courts should be a law unto themselves. They wrote into the Constitution a very specific and important limit on court power, Art. III, Sec. 2, which reads: "In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls and those in which a state shall be party, the Supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other cases mentioned, the Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction both as to law and fact, with such exceptions and under such regulations as the Congress shall make."

This particular provision of the Constitution applies not only to the Supreme Court, but also to other federal courts, since the lesser courts are established under the same authority that prescribes the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. This Constitutional authority vested in Congress was confirmed by the Supreme Court itself in the landmark case, never since challenged nor overturned, of Ex parte McCordle (1858). The legislative attorney for the Library of Congress has listed no less than 77 statutes in which Congress has used the power granted by Article III, Sec. 2 of the Constitution to limit or otherwise prescribe the jurisdiction of federal courts.

Because of this Constitutional authority vested in Congress, two bills of tremendous importance should be passed. These are:

1. H. R. 10614, now in the House Judiciary Committee, would take away the jurisdiction of the federal courts to order the bussing of public school children for purposes of racial balance.

2. H. R. 6501, a Bill to remove from the federal courts all cases involving welfare eligibility, drug abuse, pornography and obscenity, abortion, prayer and Bible reading in public schools and challenges two criminal convictions in state courts on the bases of pre-trial procedures by the state law enforcement offices.

Write to Congressman John G. Schmitz, as many members of the House Judiciary Committee as possible and urge their support of H. R. 10614 and H. R. 6501. Ask for immediate action on these two important Bills which re-state the powers and authority of Congress.

Killing Rodeo?

Editor, Times-News:

The sport of rodeo has existed since as early as 1872 when cowboys, reaching the end of a long cattle drive, would test their skills at bronc riding, calf roping and so forth. It has been, since then, one of the most popular sports in the United States and is growing in popularity in Australia and Canada. Thousands of people today have become involved in the sport of rodeo. However, it is in great danger of becoming outlawed today.

Many people seem to feel that rodeo is cruel to animals. However, this is very untrue. The horses and bulls used as bucking stock love to buck and where would they be if not in a string of rodeo stock? Probably in a can of dog or cat food.

Calf roping doesn't injure the calf and any way and is a daily ranch chore. Hundreds of calves are roped daily on cattle ranches without injury.

Rodeo stock is taken care of better than most ranch stock and each individual head works only a few minutes a year. There have been only a few animals injured in the past and then only in freak cases.

As one of the many involved in both rodeo and ranching, I feel that the sport of rodeo should be left alone. To those of you who oppose rodeo, I suggest that you get your facts straight before judging us.

Time Has Come

Editor, Times-News:

The time has come when I must speak up as a voting citizen of this state against the injustices of Governor Cecil Andrus.

Governor Andrus has gone too far! In the firing of Dr. Merrill Sharp as the Chairman of the State Board of Health, he has grossly offended our representative form of government. By so doing he has supported the fear of Dr. Sharp that we are returning to a political spoils system at the mercy of the governor in office.

As our government is designed, it is not intended that the views of one man should be the only ones represented, even if he is the governor. Differences of opinion should and must exist in the best interest of each citizen of this state. By reason of his election, the governor should not assume the power to remove all dissenting views from the offices of this state.

The citizens of Idaho must speak out before it is too late. Being governor does not give any man the corner on right opinions nor should it give him omnipotent powers to eliminate all those who have opposing political views from public office.

Call Me

Editor, Times-News:

Those people in the United States who know nothing about "rodeo" and have never been around it have no right going against "rodeo" until they know what it is all about.

What gets me is these same people all over the United States say it is cruel to animals. But it is just not true. All the rodeo stock I have been around has always been fed better than my own stock. And they only work about five minutes a year.

The flank strap that is used to cause the animal to buck is lined with sheepskin. Do you think these people who supply stock for a rodeo would harm the animals after paying say $1,500 for just one bull?

I would like to talk to the people who are against rodeo. I can be reached at telephone 733-7077.

Potatoes

Editor, Times-News:

I just finished preparing potatoes for dinner, from a sack labeled "Idaho U.S. 1 Nuggets of Gold Potatoes" 10 pounds net weight, 69 cents.

This sack of potatoes was purchased in a local market. I assume they obtained them from a wholesaler.

These potatoes were some of the most misshapen, miserable, tiny little things I have ever seen. None were over three and one-half inches long but the smallest was roughly the size of a golf ball and looked like it had been chewed by the family dog.

The awful part of the story is that this is the most recent in a long line of similar sacks of potatoes purchased by the shopper in various stores throughout Magic Valley.

I would like someone who knows to clarify once and for all just what constitutes a "U.S. Number 1 Idaho Potato." It seems a pity that a product which is nationally advertised cannot be obtained in the local stores of the state in which it is grown.

Inflation

Editor, Times-News:

Two reasons were given by economists for inflation. (1) High wages. (2) Large profits by business.

Wages are now frozen but profits are not.

So the force of price controls has never been better illustrated than by the zooming rise in the Wholesale Price Index. (Today's wholesale price increase is tomorrow's consumer price increase.)

In the six months prior to the Nixon wage-price (!) freeze, wholesale prices were steadily climbing at a 4.3 percent annual rate. This 4.8 percent annual rate continued throughout the wage-price (!) freeze period. Then came Phase II! With it came a 7.2 per-cent annual rate increase in wholesale prices. This was topped off in February with an unadjusted annual rate of 10.8 percent!

The Nixon administration calls this inflation control. I call it economic strip-mining.

Farewell, San Diego?

WASHINGTON — Bluffing or not, political agents of President Nixon are issuing an ultimatum to San Diego: become more cooperative or, even at this late date, we shall move the 1972 Republican National Convention to another city.

The Nixon men carefully avoid public statements. But private negotiations in San Diego indicate their patience is gone. Specifically at issue is whether the San Diego Arena can be ready by the Aug. 21 convention opening. Beyond that, Mr. Nixon's agents are fed up with what they regard as price-gouging obstructionism and lethargy in San Diego.

These sentiments are voiced on a level considerably higher in the Republican hierarchy than state Sen. Robert Knowles of Wisconsin, the convention coordinator. Indeed, Knowles' memorandum suggesting a possible new convention city was leaked to the press last week by high Republican officials without his knowledge.

That habitually secretive Nixon men would purposely expose dirty linen testifies to the seriousness of the situation. Unless they get satisfaction this week from the hitherto intractable arena owners, they warn immediate steps will be taken toward a new convention site — most likely Miami Beach, Fla.

where the Democrats meet in July, although a third unnamed city is under consideration.

Some knowledgeable Republican sources view all this as an elaborate bluff, contending the point of no return has been passed and not even Miami Beach could supply hotel space now.

Even so, an eleventh hour transfer would be welcomed by many Republican politicians, who now feel San Diego is linked — irrevocably, if unfairly — to the ITT affair. Nor would there be objections from Republican National Committee members who had San Diego rammed down their throats by the White House.

One reason for their objections was the expense to the party in getting San Diego ready for the convention. The figure has now climbed to an undisclosed $2.5 million, compared with $800,000 for 1968. The arena construction costs alone, $87,000 in 1968, now are at $854,000. Ever since San Diego was selected, the Nixon men feel, contractors and union leaders have been trying to milk the Republican party for every last cent.

choose between the embarrassment of Republican delegates crossing picket lines or sending off hundreds of them to commute from Los Angeles hotels.

But consideration of a new site did not really begin until Dick Herman, Republican national committeeman from Nebraska and vice chairman of the convention's arrangements committee, received a March 29 letter from San Diego contractor Stoddard Martin. In response to Herman's query, Martin estimated $220,000 to ready the arena in four weeks, but then added:

"We must caution you that even if the above money is available to do this work, we will still have a most difficult time trying to supply and keep enough manpower to do the job and be complete in time for the convention to open. We cannot guarantee completion in four weeks."

To obtain access to the arena to begin work June 1 (as requested by contractor Martin) would cost the Republicans up to $3,500 a day, an additional $150,000. But cost is secondary. The arena is booked for June and July, and its owners are refusing to let the Republicans have access then for any price.

Prayer For Today

We don't like to be servants, God. We'd rather give the orders than take them. But Jesus said, "Whosoever will be chief among you shall be servant of all." And He showed that no service was to be considered too lowly by washing the disciple's feet. Maybe we'd better take another look at the possibilities of serving. I guess the whole thing, though, is who we want to impress. Evidently, you are more impressed with how we serve our fellowmen than how much money or prestige we have.

Auto union eyes voting

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Flexing its political muscle, the 1.5-million-strong United Auto Workers Union opens its week-long constitutional convention Sunday with interest centered on Democratic presidential hopefuls.

While none of the candidates is scheduled to appear at the convention, all of them will be watching the mood of the more than 4,000 delegates, alternates and staff members closely as each is hoping for a good chunk of the blue-collar vote in the primaries and the later election.

The UAW, for its part, will be keeping a close eye on Tuesday's primaries in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, where Sens. Edmund Muskie, George McGovern and Hubert Humphrey are campaigning.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock personally endorsed Muskie months ago. The union's political arm—the Community Action Program—also has endorsed Muskie in Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Connecticut.

If Muskie's campaign falters again Tuesday, Humphrey's well-established ties with organized labor could very well win him a show of UAW support. The union supported Humphrey in the 1968 presidential election against Richard Nixon. McGovern's labor support thus far has been minimal.

Not to be discounted is Alabama's Gov. George Wallace. His consistent antibusing stand may win him broad support among urban workers, Democratic party officials fear.

As recently as last week, Wallace received money and enthusiastic backing from the members of two suburban Detroit UAW locals when he opened his campaign for Michigan's May 16 presidential primary.

UAW officials have launched an organized effort to keep Wallace from winning the Michigan primary.

The main union business on the agenda was the election of officers, which will take place Wednesday.

Spiro hits 'Demo war'

WESTFIELD, N.J. (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said Saturday that the Kennedy and Johnson administrations were able to reduce national unemployment only by sending U.S. troops to Vietnam and creating war jobs.

Long row over

ADVENTURER John Fairfax and companion Sylvia Cook smile after ending 8,000 mile row across Pacific Ocean from San Francisco to Australian resort near Brisbane. Trip took three days less than year. (UPI)

Slowdown continues

LONDON (UPI) — Militant railwaymen, defying court orders and their own unions, were causing lengthy delays, continued a slowdown Saturday that crippled train services in and around London.

Other regions of the state-owned British Railways report British new industrial relations acts.

Rowing 8,000 miles 'boring'

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI) — Adventurer John Fairfax and his girl friend Sylvia Cook, rowing 8,000 miles against fantastic odds, weathered two deadly cyclonic storms, a shortage of food, a shark bite and boredom, but they won.

Fairfax and the shapely Miss Cook, 31, came ashore Saturday at the Great Barrier Reef resort of Hayman Island, 586 miles northeast of Brisbane, after rowing their 35-foot fiberglass boat Britannia 11 across the Pacific.

The couple left San Francisco on April 25, 1971, and were believed lost in a devastating cyclone which lashed the Pacific and the Queensland coast last February.

"I estimate we traveled about 8,000 miles because of the circular route, the weather made us take instead of what would have been 6,500 miles from San Francisco to Sydney," Fairfax said.

Miss Cook did most of the rowing in the last stages of the voyage because of his injured hand, Fairfax said. "In the last month, she has rowed halfway across the Coral Sea on her own," he said, "and that's not bad going for anyone."

"I don't care if I never touch another oar," Fairfax said. Hayman Island Hotel manager Andre Maestraci said their first words were, "We'd like bacon and eggs for two."

"He would be an appalling husband," Miss Cook interjected. "Who was a husband who goes off on jaunts like this?"

An experienced rower, Fairfax, 33, successfully made a similar solo trip across the Atlantic in 10 months in 1969. But this time an encounter with a shark on March 21 left a six-inch gash on his right arm.

"It was not really the shark's fault—it was mine," he said. "I had speared a fish and the shark took it off my spear so I speared him and he did not like it, so had a go at me."

"I am going to need some surgery but the wound is not serious," he said.

Fairfax said he and Miss Cook, of Stoneleigh, England, did not suffer any illnesses on their journey but were very bored.

He said the boat, designed specially for the trip, had performed wonderfully.

"We had about 10 days of really bad weather with 40 knot winds and high waves on the fringe of two cyclones but never felt we were in danger," he said.

Drugs on Latin route

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An intelligence report by the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs (BNDD) revealed Saturday that most heroin now flowing into the United States comes from Europe via Latin America.

In 1967, 1968 and 1969 — the first years of the drug epidemic — most heroin was smuggled into the United States directly from Europe, particularly France, the report showed.

The report, a copy of which was obtained by UPI, traced the origins and routes of the illegal importation of heroin between 1967 and 1971 as revealed by BNDD seizures and raids.

BNDD Director John E. Ingersoll said in the report that the seizures demonstrate the ingenious methods that some smugglers have adopted.

In January, 1971, agents seized a batch of heroin that had been shipped from Puerto Rico concealed in boxes of frozen peas. But most frequently, the report said, the heroin smuggled into the country is hidden on the body of the smuggler.

And the next most frequent methods were use of suitcases with false bottoms or sides, and concealment on a vehicle.

The report covered the 70 seizures of heroin made by the BNDD during the five-year period. The number of seizures each year was about the same.

War foes rally

War protests continue

Vietnam Veterans Against the War bore a flag-draped casket, symbolic of all those who died in Indochina, through the rain of Washington, D.C., to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier Saturday. The veterans then laid a memorial wreath and carried the casket to the Pentagon. About 200 protesters staged an all-night sit-in at the University of Illinois student union at Urbana before leaving for Saturday's rally in Chicago. Students at Princeton University in New Jersey ended their sit-in at the Woodrow Wilson School for Public and International Affairs at 3 a.m. after 12 hours.

Running battles between police and demonstrators at the University of Texas-Austin campus ended shortly before dawn with at least 15 arrests. As many as 2,000 students tried to occupy the University's main building and stoned the Lyndon B. Johnson Memorial Library.

In many cities, police faced their sixth straight day of confrontation with protesters.

Police in Madison, Wis., reported that demonstrations by University of Wisconsin students and local residents since Monday already had cost $90,243 in police overtime and property damage. The police chief in Champaign, Ill., and two of his men were among the dozen injured in Friday's demonstration at the University of Illinois campus.

In Stanford, Calif., three demonstrators were injured Friday as riot-equipped Santa Clara County sheriff's deputies waded into a crowd trying to take over El Camino Real, the historic coast highway. Two police officers were injured by flying rocks.

At the University of Maryland, scene of the week's most violent confrontations, National Guardsmen and state troopers relieved College Park, Md., police Friday night, guardsmen were pelted with eggs, bottles and rocks. They made five arrests, including the Episcopal campus chaplain, the Rev. Wofford Smith.

Moon pilot scores first

SPACE CENTER, Houston —

(UPI)—Thomas K. "Ken" Mattingly, expecting his first child any day now, flew alone around the moon Saturday on what has been called the loneliest job in the world, but he caught a glimpse of his companions on the surface and scored a first of his own.

Mattingly, 38, who takes both science and music seriously, spent most of his waking hours in the command ship Casper either recording his impressions of the moon's surface or listening to rousing, recorded

From his vantage point, a little over 60 miles above the surface, Mattingly's observations led to some last-minute changes in the lunar exploration route that Charles M. Duke and John W. Young took on the ancient Descartes highlands.

And on Saturday, halfway through his nearly three-day exile, Mattingly, 38, created excitement among earth-bound geologists when he sighted ancient, frozen lava flows for the first time on the back side of the moon.

According to Capsule Communicator Tong England, Mattingly also saw a flash from the cratered landing region.

"He probably got a glimpse of you," England told Young and Duke.

"Ken," replied Duke, "that's us."

Mattingly's solo flight in the command ship Casper, which all three astronauts will ride back to earth, probably seemed longer because his wife, Elizabeth, is expecting their first child in early May.

He and the stork would not be running such a tight race to get to the Mattingly home in Nassau Bay, Tex., if Apollo 16's launch had not been delayed a month by trouble.

The command pilot's job has been dubbed "the loneliest job in the world" ever since a ground controller used the phrase to describe Michael Collins' assignment on the Apollo 11 flight that landed the first men on the lunar surface.

But Mattingly carried out his lonely job with enthusiasm and good humor.

"I tell you," he radioed mission controllers, "if you ever get a chance to look out this window, it's going to stand you on your ears."

"The earth shine is as spectacular as any of the other things, which is much to my surprise," Mattingly said.

Tuesday night, about 200,000 miles from home, Mattingly will take a walk in space. He must crawl out of the spaceship, attached to a tether, and retrieve valuable film canisters from an exterior compartment of Casper—which he named for the friendly ghost of cartoon fame.

"He told us repeatedly he's only going to describe what he sees and we'll have to make the interpretations," El Baz said. "Most of his comments are done on a tape recorder which will be studied after the mission."

TV limits scored by astro's folks

LANCASTER, S. C. (UPI)—The parents of astronaut Charles M. Duke Jr., complaining about the limited time the nation's television networks have devoted to the Apollo 16 mission, said Saturday they are flying to Houston to be at Mission Control.

"I've been really disappointed in the amount of coverage it (the flight) has been getting," Mrs. Willie Duke said. "We haven't seen them in the Rover. I just couldn't bear that so we will be leaving for Houston."

Mrs. Duke said they plan to watch further lunar activity with the astronaut's wife, Doty, at Mission Control.

Mrs. Duke said she thought "the coverage we have had has all been excellent but we just haven't had enough of it."

She described the mission as "wonderful" and said she felt everything was going well.

"The blastoff was just great when they began to clear the tower and you know they are really on the way, but I guess the high point so far was when they made a safe landing on the moon," she said.

Home burns, 5 die

DERMOTT, Ark. (UPI)—A 22-year-old mother and four children, including a one-week-old girl, burned to death Saturday when fire destroyed their frame home in this Southeast Arkansas town. Six other children escaped, but one was burned severely.

Eugene Farrell, assistant chief of the town's volunteer fire department, identified the victims as Mrs. Trane Mae Bailey, 22; Jo Ann Bailey, 12; Carolyn Bailey, 7; Dianne Bailey, 11 months, and one-week-old Alberta Bailey. The older two were stepchildren.

Farrell said cause of the fire had not been determined, but a coroner's jury and the Arkansas State Police were investigating.

The husband and father, Arthur Bailey Jr., told authorities he had left an open-faced gas heater on in the living room about 20 minutes before the fire broke out about daybreak.

Catherine Bailey, about 14, was the only one of the escaping children to suffer serious burns.

School funding to aid needy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—HEW Secretary Elliot L. Richardson said Saturday that with "effective management and enough money," President Nixon's proposed heavier use of special education funds for needy children can help them learn better even in segregated schools.

In a message to Congress March 17, Nixon proposed spending $2.5 billion in existing funds—an average of $300 on each needy child—for schools with a heavy concentration of poor children. The proposal accompanied Nixon's request for a moratorium on new court-ordered busing for desegregation purposes.

Richardson gave his views in releasing a 207-page report on "The Effectiveness of Compensatory Education" prepared by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW). The study concludes that although special education for needy children generally has not worked, it can be made to work along the lines proposed by Nixon.

"The probability, in my judgment... is that even in the case of the child who is disadvantaged in a school where all or substantially all the other children come from very poor homes, maybe it is an all-black school, the evidence still, I would say, points to the judgment that the focus of resources in helping these children will move their rate of progress up," Richardson said at a news conference.

Another spokesman asked, "Is it correct to say that your main point here is that compensatory education by itself helps even in racially isolated situations?"

"Yes," Richardson replied, "the racially isolated or economically isolated."

In a prepared statement, however, Richardson said: "Our program is not intended to promote 'separate but equal' education, as our critics persist in saying, and this analysis should certainly not be used to justify such a policy."

N. Viets 'earnest' on talks

PARIS (UPI)—Two U.S. congresswomen said Saturday their conversations with North Vietnamese and Viet Cong diplomats have convinced them the two delegations were "earnest" about their desire to resume the suspended peace talks.

Mrs. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., and Mrs. Patsy Mink, D-Hawaii, criticized the Nixon administration's suspension of the peace talks after discussions with Viet Cong, North Vietnamese and American diplomats on what had caused the stalemate.

Mrs. Abzug said upon leaving the U.S. Embassy she felt the reason was that "President Nixon doesn't want to get out of Vietnam." She remarked she always has been critical of the President's policies.

The two congresswomen have spent nearly three hours talking with Hayward Isham, deputy to chief negotiator William J. Porter. Earlier Saturday, they conferred at suburban Choisy-le-Roi with chief Hanoi negotiator Xuan Thuy. Friday, they had a long conversation and dinner with Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, Viet Cong foreign minister and negotiator.

farm about 4:27 p.m. to battle a fire in a straw and haystack, fire in a straw and haystack. When they arrived fire had also spread to a loafing shed and corral fences. The McCord farm is just northwest of Wendell.

Friends of McCord, whose father had just died, rallied to the cause with loaders, trucks and other equipment. They loaded about 35 to 40 tons of burning hay and straw and hauled it to an open field where it could be isolated and the fire extinguished.

The fire department remained at the site until 10:30 p.m. Once the burning material was removed, fire fighters were able to control the blaze with only scorching to the shed and corrals.

Loss of hay was estimated at about $1,200.

Favorite projects

Deaf and blind students create despite handicaps

(Editor's note: The pictures and story information were supplied to the Times-News by Mrs. Jim Faulkner, vocational arts and crafts teacher at the Idaho State School for the Deaf and Blind, Gooding.)

GOODING — Through art the deaf or blind child learns to discover, explore, select, give, arrange, compose, plan and evaluate, according to Mrs. Jim Faulkner.

She teaches the vocational arts and crafts class at the Idaho State School for the Deaf and Blind, Gooding. "These classes aid in developing hand-eye and hand-mind coordination," Mrs. Faulkner said.

"Art also serves as a release of pent-up emotions which are often found in the child with a partial communication or sensory block," she said. "The success in creating art and attaining goals give the child confidence in his ability and aids in his total growth."

Three boys from the department for the blind described their projects and the work that went into them. Gary Klamm, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Klamm, Paul, made plaster molds. The molds are made from boats, animals and picture frames for the "Old Master" prints they are studying in art appreciation.

"You put plaster in a mold, take it out, put it in again, paint it and you're finished," Gary said.

Bryan Garner, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Garner, Burley, said making egg carton baskets was his favorite project. Lots of colored string, knots and bows complete the baskets, he said.

Weaving reed baskets and mats is the favorite project of Randy Bloxham. "First cut up reeds to the right size, put them in water for three minutes; take them out and start weaving — under two, over two, repeat and then up one, and over one to make the sides," Randy suggested.

Deaf students Kristin Frei, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Frei, Ferdinand, Idaho, and Sam Weber, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Weber, Boise, both chose burlap pictures as the most fun of the year. In sign language they instructed, "First, pull out some strings to make a fringe, then paint on a butterfly or a bright green or red flower to complete."

A Malta deaf student, Jodi Rodocker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Rodocker, likes sagging bottles. She signed to Mrs. Faulkner that green bottles are needed which you melt in something, perhaps a kiln.

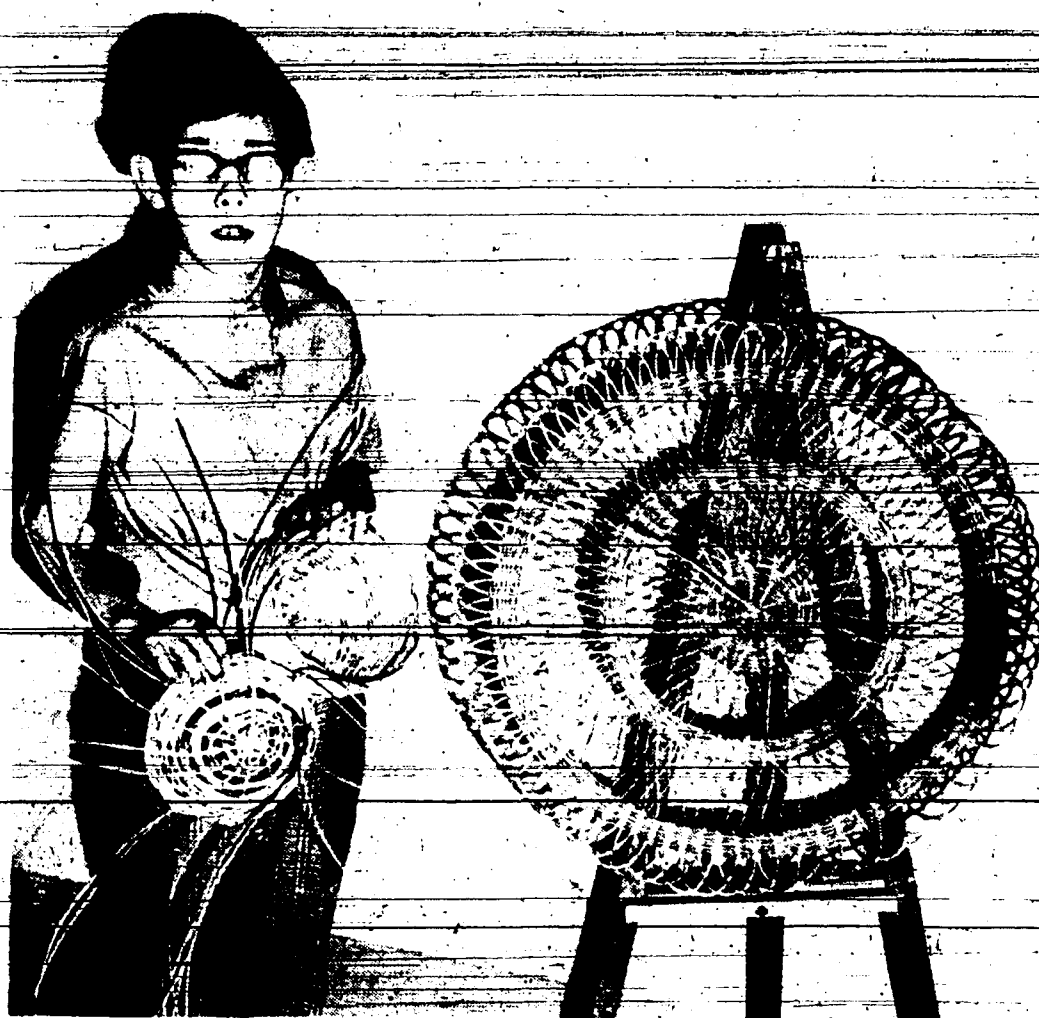

Seven-year-old Marlene Brown, who lives with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Jay Brown, Gooding, likes copper and driftwood sculptures best to make her project, she signed. "If you found some very sharp scissors and cut out a nice-looking butterfly or a fancy fish, you might glue it to a piece of driftwood."

Funny bottles

A DEAF STUDENT from Malta, Jodi Rodocker, likes funny, sagging bottles as her best project. Jodi is 6 years old and receives her instruction in sign language.

Basket weaving

WEAVING reed baskets and mats appealed to Randy Bloxham most. According to Randy, the best baskets can be made by cutting up the reeds first, putting them in water for three minutes, then take them out and start weaving.

Next general rank goes to AF woman

By NORMA HERZINGER
Times-News women's editor

WASHINGTON, D.C. — There will be another woman general in the near future.

This was one of the announcements made by Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird to members of the Defense Advisory Committee on Women in the Services (DACOWITS) during their semi-annual meeting in Washington, D.C.

The next woman general, making a total of six, will be E. Ann Hoefly, chief of the Air Force Nurse Corps. She is now a colonel. The promotion should come early this summer.

The first woman to receive the rank of general was Anna Mae Hayes, chief of the Army Nurse Corps, followed by Elizabeth Hoisington, director of the Women's Army Corps.

The third was Jeanne Holm, director of Women in the Air Force. Following her were Mildred C. Bailey, current director of the Women's Army Corps, and Lillian Dunlap, current chief of the Army Nurse Corps.

According to Secretary Laird, the next announcement should be that of a woman Navy admiral.

The committee, with headquarters at the Crystal City Marriott, welcomed 16 new members during the formal reception and dinner opening the spring meeting, hosted by Assistant Secretary of Defense Roger T. Kelley and Mrs. Kelley.

The business sessions opened at the Pentagon, with Gen. W.C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff, as keynote speaker, and included briefings from defense officials on legislative affairs, medical programs and manpower and reserve matters.

A panel of the directors of the women's components of the Armed Forces featured discussions prior to the subcommittee meetings. DACOWITS recommendations and suggestions to the Defense Department are designed to insure the effective use of women's capabilities and to maintain proper standards for their training, housing, health, recreation and general welfare.

There are four subcommittees — community affairs, recruitment, living conditions and legislative matters. With the equal rights amendment nearing reality, opinions are varied even among a group of women.

One of the most controversial items to be presented to Laird by the group's chairman, Estelle M. Stacy, Douglas, Wyo., was introduced by the community affairs committee. It read, in part, "To support the President's goal of achieving and maintaining an all-volunteer force and in recognition of the trend for further utilization and integration of women in the volunteer Armed Forces, the committee recommends that the Department of Defense consider expanding the roles of DACOWITS to include concern for servicemen as well as women. And, that the statement of functions and responsibilities be revised to reflect this new emphasis.

If this suggestion is accepted by the secretary of defense, the next members appointed to the committee could be mostly men.

Recommendations from the other committees included measures to improve housing conditions for officers and enlisted personnel and to support high quality standards of enlistment and retention.

The field trip took the group to Walter Reed Army Medical Center, where members toured the facilities and visited with many of the Vietnam veterans, then to Ft. McClellan, Ala., to the WAC Training Center.

The welcome at the Anniston, Ala., airport was highly impressive. The official red carpet was rolled out and lined with pretty young woman Army officers, backed by the 14th Army Band, the only women's military band, and Col. Dorothea J. Garrison, WAC center commander.

During the tour, the DACOWITS visited the WAC basic training companies and classrooms, clerical training and officer classes at the U.S. WAC School, the WAC Band and the Edith Nourse Rogers Museum.

An officer was assigned to each member and military VIP during her stay at Ft. McClellan and members were escorted to lunch one day by enlisted members of WAC Center and WAC School, selected from geographic areas represented by DACOWITS members.

A review was held on the Gen. George C. Marshall Parade Ground in honor of the group, followed by a formal evening reception at Remington Hall attended by civic leaders from Anniston.

The Army's two women generals were among the military personnel accompanying the group to Ft. McClellan.

(Editor's note: — Included among DACOWITS members are doctors, professors, writers, television personalities and state legislators. Committee members are appointed by Secretary Laird for three-year terms. I am now serving my second year. Another Twin Falls woman, Mrs. John E. Hayes, served on the committee from 1961-64, acting the last half year as chairman.)

Women leaders

THE NEXT woman to achieve the rank of general will be E. Ann Hoefly, center, chief of the Air Force Nurse Corp. Among the others participating in the spring DACOWITS meeting in Washington, D.C., include, clockwise, from top left, Col. Frances Chaffin, Virginia; Helen Landstrom, Provo;

Roberta Barnes, Reno; Estelle Stacy, Douglas, Wyo.; Gen. Mildred Bailey; Gen. Jeanne Holm; Col. Jeanette J. Sustad; Catherine Ritchie and Dr. Angelyn A. Konugres, both Massachusetts; Gen. Bailey and Gen. Mildred Dunlap. (All photos by Norma Herzinger)

'Spirit of America' awakens one's pride

By NORMA HERZINGER
Times-News women's editor

WASHINGTON, D.C. — I don't know when I have felt more like an American or so proud of my heritage than I did here recently.

Being a member of the Defense Advisory Committee on Women in the Services, I was one of a select group privileged to attend "Spirit of America," presented at Ft. Myer, Va., by the U.S. Army Military District of Washington.

It featured the Third United States Infantry, "The Old Guard," and the U.S. Army Band, "Pershing's Own." "Spirit of America" is the annual contribution of the U.S. Army to the National Cherry Blossom Festival. This year marked the 12th annual presentation of the colorful pageant.

The presentation not only traced the history of the Army, but America itself. Through a series of tableaux, momentous events in our nation's long and glorious past were graphically and musically relived. It elaborated on our traditions and paid tribute to our country and those who have sacrificed that we might enjoy the many blessings of America.

As the story of our nation unfolded, one lone soldier started the presentation with "I am an American fighting man. I serve in the forces which guard our country and our way of life. I am the sum of all that have gone before me, and this is my story."

The dramatic presentation included realistic scenes from the Revolutionary War, War of 1812, Mexican War, Civil War, Indian Campaigns, Spanish-American War, World War I, World War II and the Korean and Vietnam wars.

The dramatizations were so real and the makeup so exact one would swear the real General Lee was surrendering his sword to General Grant, and the real Teddy Roosevelt was leading his troops into battle — to say nothing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur inspecting his troops and General Patton making his spectacular entrance.

The Old Guard, often referred to as "The President's Own," was another highlight of the presentation.

Their distinctive blue uniforms and professionalism familiar to most as they serve as the official Army Honor Guard and Escort for the President and are responsible for the conduct of all ceremonies held at the White House, the Pentagon and the various national memorials in the Washington area.

In addition, soldiers of The Old Guard maintain a faithful 24-hour vigil at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

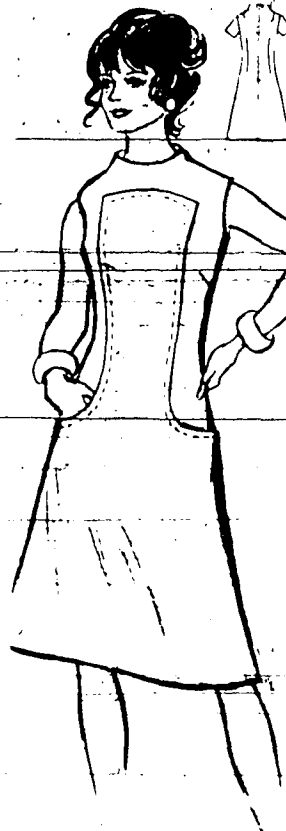

I was fortunate to be seated next to a "close friend," Col. Frances Chaffin, chief of WAC recruiting, who gave me extensive background as the various groups appeared, which made it even more interesting.

The expert handling of the 1903 Springfield rifles, fixed with chrome bayonets, by the U.S. Army Drill Team was spectacular, along with the Fife and Drum Corps, the Continental Color Team, the Caission Platoon, the U.S. Army Band, the U.S. Army Strings, the U.S. Army Chorus and the Herald Trumpets.

These groups include the nation's best as was obvious by the performance.

As the band presentation concluded the pageant, one could visualize in the music the sound and the color of important national ceremonies — the melancholy loneliness of "Taps" from a solitary bugler; the deep-throated throbs of field drums sounding off in echoing cadence over parade cheers — and, most of all, the plea for Americans to re-awaken to their proud heritage.

WHY CARPET?

Sometimes it's worth reminding ourselves of the many answers to that question. There are some very good reasons that go far beyond the basic purpose of esthetic appeal and luxurious appearance. Easier housekeeping, for instance. Vacuuming is a quick and easy way to have your rooms looking fresh and clean. No mopping, no scrubbing, no waxing or polishing chores to worry about with wall-to-wall carpets.

Quiet is another important plus. Carpets muffle the sounds of children playing or television blaring, even party sounds that would otherwise be nerve-shattering. Footsteps fade softly on carpets, and the sounds you want to hear — good conversation, music, entertainment — are more of a pleasure to enjoy.

Want more? There's extra warmth and insulation, beneficial to the whole family and especially to young children who like to play or read the paper spread out on the carpet. There's safety, without feet slipping or skidding on polished floors. And there's the foot comfort and reduction of fatigue for the woman who puts in long hours at home.

Good carpeting puts it all together — beauty, comfort, warmth, easy care and quiet — for a lot less than you might expect. Look over our carpet displays a wonderful world of color and texture that belongs in your home. For selection and savings, too, visit

TF woman to speak at club luncheon

TWIN FALLS — Guest speaker at the Monday meeting of the Twentieth Century Club of Twin Falls will be Mrs. Noma Creed.

Mrs. Creed, widow of Dr. J. Woodson Creed, is supervisor of elementary school libraries and director of the media center for Twin Falls School District No. 411. The meeting will be at 1 p.m. Monday at the Turf Club. She will speak on "The Wyeth Worlds," reviewing the life and work of three generations of one of the nation's best known artistic families. Illustrating her talk will be prints from Mrs. Creed's personal collection of Wyeth drawings, books, slides and film strips.

In 1966, then school Supt. Dr. Ernest Ragland obtained federal funding to upgrade service in the five elementary libraries. The project, which gained state-wide recognition, included placing a library aid in each of the schools under Mrs.

Creed's direction. In 1971 Supt. George Staudacher announced the opening of a media center for the school system. John Lawrence, Twin Falls High School, was instrumental in seeing that space for the center was made available adjacent to the high school library.

Through the center learning materials are shared among the schools and duplication of purchase of expensive items is cut to a minimum. Mrs. Creed said. The operation, utilizing several pieces of sophisticated equipment to produce visual aids for schools, is set up on a modest scale, Mrs. Creed said, but is still sufficient to help obtain accreditation by the Northwest Association.

For several years Mrs. Creed was active as a professional book reviewer. Her reviews were programs or presentation of condensed versions of books. At one time she offered eight or more titles to program chairmen, including best sellers in fiction and non-fiction, classics and biographies.

The audience enjoyment of the biographies led her to prepare programs on writers, artists and actors. The talks of artists were accompanied by displays of prints.

She later added plays and after two years of preparation added the "Top Ten on Broadway" and used theater programs, posters and taped musical excerpts to accent the presentations.

While traveling for a book jobber Mrs. Creed added high school students to her listeners.

Dr. and Mrs. Creed opened a book store in the Lynwood Shopping Center several years ago and she added children's books to her list. When working full time in the elementary schools she combined lessons in library with a quick telling of a story related to each grade's studies.

Philip Hal Sims may well have been the most colorful bridge player of all time as well as one of the best. One of his favorite expressions was, "We gave them the full treatment."

In today's hand, he and his favorite partner, the late Willard S. Karn, really gave South the full treatment.

Most Souths got to play and make four spades. A couple were set one trick at five. Hal not only doubled five spades, but he and Willard found the defense to beat the contract two tricks.

It actually wasn't too difficult Hal's king of clubs lead was normal enough. South won the trick, drew trumps with three leads, led the nine of hearts and let it ride to Karn's king.

Karn led back the deuce of clubs. Hal won the trick

A Lovelier You

GIVE THOUGHT TO LEGLINE

By Mary Sue Miller

Have you ever thought ahead to a new bathing suit? If your thighline has thickened, the thought is worth a whirl. Incoming summer suits are brief, briefer, briefest. A solution to a heavy or laced condition is found in this routine:

1. Lie back down with knees bent, soles of feet on floor and arms stretched out at shoulder level. Now briskly swing legs from side to side, so that sides of thighs slap floor and, with each change of direction, inner sides slap together. Be sure to keep legs relaxed and twist sharply in waist. Otherwise you won't work up sufficient momentum for slaps with snap. Start with 10 repeats, gradually increase to 20.

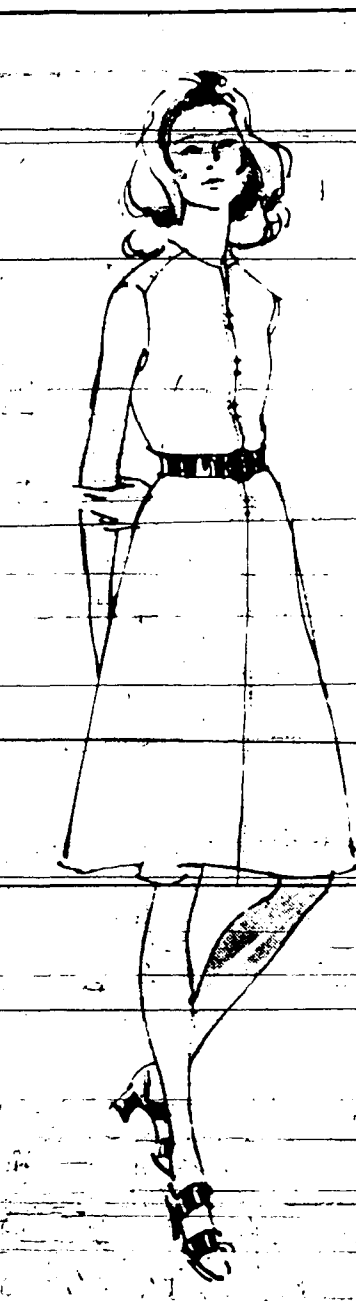

2. Stretch out on floor at right angles to a wall, so that feet press against it. Next push down hard with left foot and pull up hard in thigh muscles. Hold for 10 counts, relax and work with right leg. Repeat 5 to 10 times each side.

To aid and abet successful results, avoid sitting with the legs crossed as often as possible. Cross-legged positions pressure and bulge the thighline. Other positions are just as comfortable and perhaps more graceful. For example, place feet together on floor and swing them from the knees to one side. You've got a slimming pose.

LEGLINE TRIMMERS

If your individual problem is heavy legs, send for my new leaflet, LEGLINE TRIMMERS, which contains spot reducing exercises that will meet your individual needs, whether for thighs, knees, calves or ankles, or for contouring your entire legline. Write Mary Sue Miller in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and ten cents in coin.

Serendipity

By Margie Morris

TWIN FALLS — Wardrobe accessories are more important than ever before.

Most fashion authorities agree that when it is either impossible or impractical to buy a new dress or ensemble you can work wonders with accessories. Well-coordinated accessories can even become the focal point of a costume.

No other accessory in your wardrobe is more important than your handbag. More often than not it is the largest accessory in your wardrobe and should, therefore, not in any way detract. Every wardrobe should include a basic winter bag of leather or simulated material for daytime wear.

In summer your basic handbag may be white, bone or natural straw. Evening bags need not be expensive as they will not be subjected to hard use, but they must blend with the ensemble.

Novelty handbags are fun but require careful color coordination. Always make sure the size of your handbag is in proper proportion to your height and size.

Scarves, belts and artificial flowers can truly transform that favorite outfit and are available in a wide variety of sizes, shapes and colors.

Throw out all the rules formerly applied to wearing jewelry. Experiment, mix, match... be daring! The only thing to remember is that pearls are considered basic jewelry. From there, anything goes.

Jewelry need not match so long as it doesn't clash. Should you find that you tend to neglect wearing jewelry, try making jewelry the most important part of your attire and pick out the jewelry you'd like to wear and then pick out the appropriate outfit.

I believe cosmetics should fall under an accessory classification. Makeup should add to and not detract from the total look you present. Dramatic makeup should be for after five only.

Careful attention must be given to a regular skin care program. Foundations, rouge, eye color, lipstick, ... all are merely window dressing and can, in some instances, be harmful without taking the proper cleansing and moisturizing steps before hand.

You talk with your eyes and your lips and should give these two features special attention when applying makeup. Good eye makeup is difficult to apply and requires much practice.

Even if you prefer the fresh, scrubbed feeling of no makeup try a little eye makeup. Then, too, there is no end to the look you can achieve in lipstick application, particularly with the vast color range now available.

Take away basic garments and your total look is wholly dependent upon accessories... from the top of your head to the tip of your toes. Are you making the most of your accessories?

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK: Leisure is a beautiful garment, but it will not do for constant wear. — Anon.

DEAR ABBY: My husband folded the newspaper just right to be sure I read your column about the "cold wife." We both read your column faithfully, so now I am writing you a letter which I hope you'll print so I can fold the paper just right for HIM to read.

I am turned off in the bedroom because my husband smells like a brewery every night. I wouldn't begrudge him one or two beers to unwind every night, but Abby, he can drink 9 or 10!

The sour mash smell just gets me. I've even tried drinking a beer or two with him so I wouldn't smell it on him, but then I started thinking how we must smell to our children. Also, the beer started putting weight on me, so I quit.

My husband is a very intelligent man and he's fun to be with, but not when he's drinking. Maybe if he sees this in black and white he will realize what his beer is doing to our marriage. How come beer drinkers don't think they have a problem?

UP TO HERE IN SEATTLE

DEAR UP: Because they never multiply the alcoholic content of each bottle of beer by the number of bottles they consume.

DEAR ABBY: I had to laugh when I read the letter from "HURRICANE NANCY." She was mad because all the hurricanes are named after women.

Have you ever heard of a "himmicane?"

SMARTYANTS

DEAR SMARTYANTS: No. But that could be next on the list, come the feminist revolution.

DEAR ABBY: Anybody who writes an unsolicited letter announcing how "well adjusted" he is, in my opinion, is not well adjusted.

I refer to that Ph.D. who says unlike most of his contemporaries, he still kisses his parents, respects and shares their values, and enjoys living at home. Then he challenges the Freudians to tell him what's wrong with him.

My 25-year-old son and I have identical values; this is why his 10 or 12 weekends at home are such a joy. It has nothing to do with values. Differences in tastes, habits, work patterns, recreation, etc., is the issue. Should those of a man in his mid-20s and those of a woman nearing 60 be the same?

Before one can be an effective wage earner, husband, father or citizen, he must be a person in his own right, responsible for himself with an identity of his own. This identity is established by having one's own dwelling, cooking one's own meals, remembering to send out his own laundry as well as deciding whom to entertain and how, and deciding upon what direction his life shall take. The man who moves from Mummy's house to Wifey's has never achieved this side of his identity.

If the mother of our young Ph.D. really loves her son, she will kick him out. And Freud has nothing to do with it.

MOTHER

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote to you saying her brother was not hired for jobs because he had an arrest record—even tho the charges were dropped.

Well, the same applies when a person has at one time been in a psychiatric institution for treatment, even tho that person may have entered voluntarily. It is held against them whenever they seek employment. This only serves to discourage anyone who feels he needs psychiatric help from seeking it.

Isn't it a violation of a person's civil rights when he's asked this sort of question in applying for a job?

WANTS TO KNOW

DEAR WANTS: Yes.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 67700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Blanket finish

Crofts, Ward lead W.R. to 4-way win

BUHL.—Kim Crofts and Kirk Ward accounted for five first places Friday afternoon when the Wood River Wolverines took a four-way track victory. But probably the big feat of the day came in the discus where Buhl sophomore Brent Watson uncorked a 158-foot, 1-inch throw.

Wood River amassed 94 points while Buhl had 74, Gooding 49 and Filer 26. Times generally were well off on the sharp-cornered, 340-yard Buhl Track.

Crofts, coming off an injury sustained on the Wood River senior sneak, won both hurdles and came back to win the 220-yard dash. Ward turned in a pair of fine times for the track.

Conditions, winning the mile in 4:41.1 with a couple strides to spare on Buhl junior Pat Charlton. But his best probably was a 10:07 in the two mile. Gooding's Gary Correll joined in the double winner class with a victory in the high jump and his best of the year 54 feet, one-half inch, in the shotput. He also placed second behind Watson in the discus.

Raft River's girls collect southside sub-district title

MURTAUGH.—The Raft River girls dominated the track events Thursday afternoon to win the southside sub-district competition. But more important in the meet was qualifying for next week's district competition. The top three, including relays, in each event advance toward district in the second step of a trip that will result in the state runoffs in Twin Falls next month.

Raft River piled up 64½ points while Castleford had 34, Hansen 37, Hagerman and Kimberly 31 each. Murtaugh 18 and Declo 4½.

Only wins by Miss Puscheck of Castleford in the hurdles and 440-yard dash kept Raft River from a sweep of individual track events. Hagerman participated in the southside although originally lined up for the northside runoff but Valley, which didn't attend the southside event, will take its place Tuesday when the northside girls run at Wendell.

Flynn doubles as Devils take meet

MURTAUGH.—John Flynn scored two field events firsts and a second Thursday to lead Murtaugh to a four-way open track victory. Flynn won the discus and high jump and placed second in the shotput as Murtaugh scored 89 points to nip Hansen by three. Castleford had 54 and Hagerman 34.

Jim Hopkins took two firsts for Hansen, getting a season best of 21-1½ in the long jump and winning the century. Castleford's Severa picked up both distances and a sophomore, Schultz, won the quartermile, anchored two winning relay teams and placed second in the high jump.

The four schools plus Declo, Oakley and Raft River will meet at Murtaugh Friday to determine the Magic Valley Conference champion.

Burley wins meet; sprint duel split

BURLEY.—The Burley Bobcats won a four-way track victory Friday during a meet that saw a split in the anticipated sprint duel and the battle in the hurdles called off due to injury.

The Bobcats scored 67½ points while Blackfoot had 54½, Madison 33 and Minico 24. The sprint duel saw Mimco's Roy Young and Burley's Larry Bell split, Young taking the 100-yard dash by a tenth second and Bell coming back to win the 220-yard dash. The low hurdle confrontation between Burley sophomore Halper, who won it on the straightaway in a good 20.3, and Mimco's Toby Harding, who had a 20-flat last week, didn't come off. Harding was injured during the week when struck by a length of telephone pole being positioned by a crane. Harding escaped with a badly bruised thigh but the layoff this close to district and conference competition dims the Spartan senior's state title hopes somewhat. Burley freshman Brent Bodily won the high jump at 5-10½, the first time he's been under six feet.

Blackfoot's Brent Bodily won the high jump at 5-10½, the first time he's been under six feet.

Twin Falls wins only 2 events in Boise relays

BOISE.—The Twin Falls Bruins won two relays and placed second in four others Saturday night in their first confrontation with the powers of the Western division of the Southern Idaho Conference. However, had team scores been kept, Capital's Eagles, winning six events, would have had the title.

Coach Jerry Kleinkopf, who went without a couple regulars in the relays and didn't have manpower enough to enter the hurdles, discus and high jump events, still wasn't displeased. The two-mile relay team, Randy Meldon, Hershberger, Darrell Groves and Gary Sievers each running a half-mile, ran off with that event by 70 yards. The other win came in the 440-yard relay, Gary Scott, Brent Olmstead, Brent Thompson and Bill Woodson, turning the course in 44 flat.

The Bruins had another chance in the 880-yard relay, leading by five or six yards until they dropped the baton on the 1st handoff. Borah also was disqualified in that event, giving Capital, a pretty well beaten third, the win. Another loss in the medley came by an eyelash, Groves making up perhaps 20 yards but being nipped at the wire by Boise. Both were given a 3:44.0 time. The Bruins' mile relay team turned in its best at 3:28.7, but lost by about seven yards to Boise.

Among things of happy note for the Bruins, senior pole vaulter John Blake cleared 13 feet to place second among individuals in the relay won by Capital and Alan Conner sailed 2 feet in the long jump, but lost to Nampa's Baker at 22-10. Jim Kennedy, running his first mile in the distance medley, was clocked in 4:42 in his split and will now double for the Bruins who are hurting in the distances.

SPORTS

FROM ALL ANGLES

By LARRY HOVEY

Times-News Sports Editor

Praise is always nice to hear. Praise for Twin Falls, College of Southern Idaho and Coach Jerry Hale sought us out last week. Dale Brown, newly appointed head basketball coach at Louisiana State University, who came to this area as assistant at Utah State and Washington State, made a special point of getting his message across while in Twin Falls Thursday trying to woo Vic Kelly to his new school.

"I get into the ghettos and into the black communities a lot," Brown opened. "It's amazing. Something like drums. But no matter where I go and mention College of Southern Idaho, Coach Hale or Twin Falls, I always get a positive reaction. Never a negative. This speaks well for the entire community."

Brown continued by noting statisticians had established that if the total population of the United States was crammed into Long Island, they would not be as "crowded as it is in Harlem tonight."

"The Bedford-Stuyvesant area is even more crowded," Brown went on. "So when you consider that every boy who has played at CSI and gone back saying nothing but positive things about Twin Falls and CSI, the entire community is doing a great job of respecting human dignity."

"Coach Hale has done and is doing a tremendous job, not just on the court but in helping the boys straighten out their perspective. But it has to go deeper than Coach Hale," Coach Brown said. "The town itself has to be doing a good job. I'm sure you have bigots and prejudiced people around who wouldn't care if a black kid ever got inside the city limits. But everyone gives the boys a chance to be liked for themselves."

"I think this is paying off both ways. You're getting a better caliber of athlete, both on and off the floor and better students, boys who fit in and are smart enough to see the way things can be. And these same boys are going back with the knowledge and experience that things aren't like they've been told..." by the malecontents.

Vic Kelly visited the University of Southern California last weekend and he reports there wasn't much down there not to like. "They've got a 6-11 man back on the varsity and two 6-10 men coming up from the freshman team — and they can play," said Kelly. Kelly lost a little interest in Hawaii when he noted a plethora of returning guards there. How about USC? Well, he sums up as objectively as possible "They have one guard returning who can't play very well, another who can't penetrate and doesn't pass well. Then there's another one who's a pretty good player."

Summation, from this angle, USC has a berth available so far as Vic can see.

But it isn't cut and dried. "I've still got a couple other places to visit (LSU for one) and then I'm going back to the city (New York) for a couple of weeks after school is out. I'll do a lot of thinking during that time and make up my mind when I come back here" (to help Coach Jerry Hale with his June basketball clinic). Kelly says.

Meanwhile, Dan Dressen and Gene Stroebel, the other two sophomore starters off this year's CSI team, have been getting a few letters and both plan to visit Oklahoma Baptist, which is efforting to get into the big time basketball circles — and was nearly there a couple of years ago. Several intermountain area schools have talked to the twosome.

On the local recruiting scene, Gooding's Gary Correll, as good an athlete as there is in the state, probably signed his letter-of-intent of Boise State Saturday. We say probably because Gary said Friday he "would make a decision Saturday — and that's the same day he was scheduled to visit the Bronco staff in Boise. Correll said he didn't particularly like the set up at Hawaii, except he liked the environment. He also said most schools talked football to him, although several, including Boise State, said they would want him to try basketball, too."

College of Southern Idaho signed Mark Heaps of Buhl Friday and Tom Sapp of Kimberly will attend the local junior college next year. Both played in the all-star game last month.

BSC also signed Ron Emry, the record-breaking rusher in the SIC from Capital. But if the truth were known, there are several who still consider Emry's speed suspect — about 10.5 in the 100. Everyone is impressed with his broken field ability but the break-away speed was something else. We should have the answer to that before long.

For the most part Boise State did a good recruiting job in Boise, getting four of the regarded good ones. Idaho got one and ISU one. But the one considered best, a Borah tackle, escaped to Washington. Weber got Charlie Grant, Caldwell, and Oregon State Cantlon, Caldwell.

Nicklaus fires 67 for 2-shot Mony open lead

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (UPI)—Jack Nicklaus, trailing by five strokes at the halfway mark, shot a five-under-par 67 Saturday to take a two-shot lead after three rounds of the $185,000 MONY Tournament of Champions.

With one round to go Sunday for the $33,000 first prize, Nicklaus was eight under par. His 54-hole total of 208 gave him a likely springboard for his fourth Tournament of Champions title.

Two strokes back at 210 was Lee Trevino who had a third round 68 and was tied with Bobby Mitchell, the little known pro from Danville, Va., who had a two-over-par 74. Par for La Costa Country Club's 7,114-yard tight layout is 36-36-72.

Mitchell led by four strokes at the halfway mark with rounds of 71-65-138. Nicklaus had 70-71 for 141 after 36 holes. Trevino's earlier rounds were 75-67.

"I'm satisfied with the way I'm playing," said Nicklaus calmly after his third round 35-32-67, a card on which he had six birdies and one bogey. "I had the ball close to the hole most of the day except on the back nine."

Nicklaus' longest birdie putt was a 35-footer on the 10th hole. Mitchell who complained that he thought he deserved more publicity had to scramble for his third round 74.

"I'm still in there," he said with a smile. He was a bit wild from the tee and went out in 38. On the back nine he slipped to five under par for the tournament but put together birdies at the 14th and 15th hole to go seven under. He took a fourth bogey on No. 18.

Mitchell's birdie putt on the 14th was a net 40-footer. The one on 15 was only a two-footer.

"I'm not in bad shape," he said. "I missed some short putts for bogeys. The one I missed on the 11th was four feet but I'm not discouraged." Trevino had five birdies and one bogey on his third-round card. He was hitting his iron shots well and his longest birdie putt was an 18-footer on the 11th hole.

"I'm going out and hit a few balls," he said after the round. "I may have to shoot a 66 tomorrow if I want to beat Nicklaus."

Trevino spent three hours on the practice tee after his first round 75, concentrating on iron shots.

Tied for fourth behind Trevino and Mitchell and four back of Nicklaus at 212 were Jerry Heard with a third round 72 and Dave Hill with a 70.

Bruce Crampton, who was seven under on the back nine, lost four shots to par when he took a double bogey and two single bogeys on the last three holes for a 71 and 213.

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (UPI)—Third round scores in the 72-hole $185,000 MONY Tournament of Champions: Jack Nicklaus 71 71 67—208; Lee Trevino 75 67 68—210; Bobby Mitchell 71 65 74—210; Dave Hill 71 71 70—212; Jerry Heard 70 72 71—213; Tom Weiskopf 74 70 71—215; Bob Goody 75 70 71—216; Ben Rosburg 73 74 68—215; Roger Blomgren 75 65 70—217; Dale Stockton 74 74 68—218; Arnold Palmer 74 74 70—218; Dewell Weaver 75 73 70—218; Hubert Green 68 74 74—218.

Shaw has lead in Tallahassee open

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—Happy go lucky Bob Shaw overcame rain and a double bogey which could have been worse to shoot a 66 Saturday and take the third round lead of the $75,000 Tallahassee Open.

Two strokes behind Shaw, who has a three-round 11 under par 205, were Leonard Thompson and Art Wall.

Thompson, a tour rookie from North Myrtle Beach, S.C., has been among the leaders since the tournament began. Wall, a 48-year-old former Masters champion, sank a 35-foot eagle putt on the 506-yard 17th hole to move quickly into contention. Bunched three strokes behind the leader at 208 were Allen Miller, Larry Hinson, Rod Funseth, Fred Marti, John Mahaffey and Ken Still.

Funseth and Wall matched Shaw's 68 total Saturday but the best round came from young Ras Allen who shot a 67 before the rains came.

Shaw had just hit his first tee shot when a thunderstorm hit the 7,124-yard Killbuck Country Club course where the pros had been busting par under clear skies for two days. Shaw waited out the hour and 43 minute storm in a radio booth joking with the announcer and then, proceeded to birdie the first three holes.

He shot par until the 206-yard par three eighth where he had a double bogey five after driving his tee shot deep into the woods.

Quack wins Cal derby

ALBANY, Calif. (UPI)—Alltime winning jockey Willie Shoemaker guided Quack during a stirring stretch run Saturday to take the $119,400 California Derby by two lengths at Golden Gate Fields.

Despite the upset over a mile and an eighth, Quack won't be running in this year's Kentucky Derby. The son of T.V. Lark did not start as a two year old last year and was such a late developer he was not named to the Kentucky Derby when nominations closed in February.

It isn't raining rain.

It's raining violets.

Great song. It isn't very real but it expresses our dream — an idyllic world. Occasionally we must wake though, and come back to the real life of the real world — and a day's work.

There's a correlation here. The rain is reality. The violets... a romantic dream.

We are reminded of those who insist, quite vocally, that more and more of our forests should remain untouched, unimproved, uninvaded, unavailable to most people. All the cliches are there. The pristine beauty. Primeval nooks... last remaining area and so on: They say that to take it all away from the majority of people and to lock it up, is best.

It isn't. That's a romantic dream. The rain of violets — it doesn't improve the forest and it doesn't help people.

A locked up forest deteriorates. It wastes wood, badly needed by a growing population. Where access is difficult, such as in Wilderness Areas, the natural threats of insects, disease and fire are the greatest killers of trees, bar none. Wasted trees.

Our already large Wilderness System and Primitive Areas are used by fewer than one-half of one percent of our people. Over 15 million acres of it. No vehicles. No roads. No jobs. The classic "no, no."

Today's healthiest forests, and most used by the majority of people, are the professionally managed ones. They give you needed wood products, recreation, payrolls and other benefits because they're accessible. You can drive into them. They're working forests. They have aesthetic beauty. They're productive to people, towns, industry. They're growing, renewable forests and under today's forest management practices they can last forever.

They're the real forests where it rains real rain. Not the romance of violets... and wilderness.

Go ahead. Smell the violets. Love them.

But let's look to real rain and real working forests for reality like jobs and recreation.

Agency counters complaints

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration farm officials are mobilizing their nationwide network of state and county farm program offices to help counter complaints about high food prices.

The move came this week with distribution by the Agriculture Department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service of an "info memo" titled: "Background Information: Food Prices and the Farmer."

The memo was sent to state ASCS offices which were expected to redistribute it to 2,920 county offices. A covering note informed officials that "any part of this material may be used by state and county offices in speeches, interviews, broadcasts, newsletters, news releases, correspondence and comment."

The memo was compiled primarily from material used earlier by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and other administration officials in speeches and statements designed to counter demands for ceilings on food and farm prices.

Starting with the theme that "farm prices for food are not high," the memo goes on to assert that "food is one of the most reasonable buys available" and points out that retail food prices historically have not risen as fast as other prices.

"Production of farm food is a competitive business, and this keeps margins low," the memo claims. It adds that farm meat prices fluctuate with supply and demand conditions, and "if you deflate present beef prices in line with today's cheaper dollars, today's beef prices are far below the level of 20 years ago."

Also the memo points out that while farm costs have risen sharply, farm prices for foods have risen only 6 per cent in 20 years while the investment needed in farming has doubled and retail food prices have risen 43 per cent.

William Cummings, director of information for the ASCS, said the price "background" was sent to the agency's network of offices to answer repeated requests from farmers and our own people.

"This is simply factual information which has not been available in some places," Cummings said in an interview.

Farm labor subject of Monday TF meet

Exports expand to cows

CHEYENNE (UPI) — A move which started as an interest in exporting lambs to Japan has apparently expanded to include cattle.

Don Brunk, executive director of the Wyoming Department of Economic Planning and Development, said Thursday he received a letter from a Japanese spokesman expressing an interest in shipping some young calves to Japan.

"We would like to contact some parties who might be able to offer us some calves of under 300 kilos (660 pounds) in 300 to 500 head lots," Morio Ito, San Francisco branch manager of Toshioku Ltd., wrote.

Bill Hovey, a spokesman for the State Department of Agriculture said the letter indicated the Japanese were sincere in their interest to buy Wyoming products.

IF YOUR youngster stumps you by asking why the sea looks blue, fret not. The science boys still argue over that. Some say the color is just a reflection from the sky. Others insist dissolved copper salts make the blue.

QUERY "What, pray, is the sausage-and-jerky generation?"

A. That's those over 65, once most particularly distinguished by strength of teeth and breath. Ages 25 to 65 cover the hotdog-and-hamburger generation, marked by mustard. Under 25 is the pizza-and-taco generation, the hot sauce crowd. And despite an earlier promise to the contrary, must mention that next generation most probably will be the kangaroo-burger bunch, garish as yet unknown.

PECULIAR that the respiration experts not yet have discovered why yawns can so readily be induced by suggestion. But they haven't. Still, yawns definitely are contagious. I yawn, just making mention of it. You will, too, before you finish this column, count on it, and your eyes will sparkle.

CHINA BEANS

First U. S. ambassador to the People's Republic of China, if such there be, certainly should be selected from the ranks of southern gentlemen. Who else could appreciate that quite common dish there called china beans known hereabouts as blackeyed peas?

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, APRIL 23, 1972

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening for you to make a special point to do whatever work you have agreed to do and not argue with anyone at all about whether specific items are to be done by yourself or another. Get everything about you in perfect condition to clear decks for future action.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handle whatever chores are pressing early, then attend services you find helpful. Do something "later" also to improve your health. Show others you are a thoughtful and conscientious person.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Out to those places early where you can find the pleasure that has been missing in your life for some time. Take mate along with you and show your affection, loyalty. Forget distressing ideas and thoughts — they are only the result of the strange mood you are in.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) An excellent day to show kin that you love and appreciate them. Express the devotion and kindness you seldom have time for. Clear up any misunderstandings at home, too. Forget that feeling of boredom.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can do some Sunday shopping early and then keep an appointment or two that is helpful to you in some way. Clear up personal correspondence that is gathering dust on your desk. Plan that short trip now.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good day to make out checks for bills you owe, as well as do small repair work around the house. Organize budget better. Forget about spending more money and try to economize. Stick to the tried and true.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Instead of feeling sorry for yourself, improve your appearance and show good friends how much you appreciate them. Not a good day to make new friends. Await a better time for this.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Meditation can now lead you into a better way of life than you have been following of late. This will bring you more happiness and success in the future. Use good judgment instead of relying on hunches which may be wrong today, p.m.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Although friends are slightly demanding, try to please them for the sake of the friendship, which can be improved considerably thereby. Today's personal desires can change by tomorrow, so don't try to push them. Think.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You want to blow your top over some public or career matters, but you had better calm down and find out where you might have been in error first. Then come to a perfect understanding with others. Avoid wear and tear on your nerves.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make sure you do know where you are headed before you go off half-cocked pursuing something you do not really want. Get your facts and figures straight. Listen to what a newcomer has to say, but do not follow blindly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't let all that work ahead of you floor you, but sit down with a good adviser and plan it wisely so it becomes easy. Your mate is not in a good mood, so be patient and kind. Get busy at your favorite hobby in p.m.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use tact in finding out what is expected of you by others and then be willing to concede a point here and there so there is harmony, understanding. Do not permit one who opposes you to mow you down. Use wisdom.

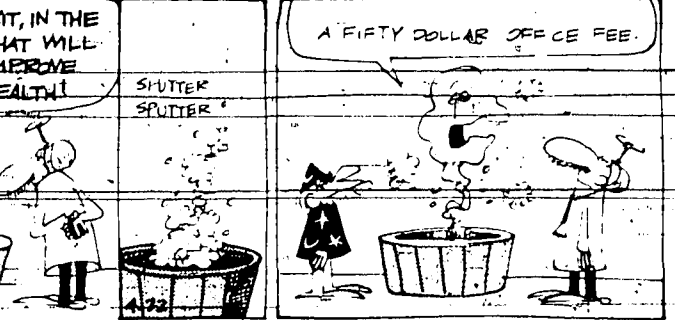

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one of those delightful young people who likes to work out details to the nth degree. This could prove irksome to others not so inclined, so teach early to first stick to the main points of anything, then go into detail if the situation warrants it. Then the chart becomes more successful than that of most. Teach to put wit and humor into this rather austere life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Oregon chief asks regional commission

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon has called for passage of legislation to permit establishment of other regional commissions patterned after the Appalachian Commission created by congress in 1965. Such "landmark" legislation, he said Thursday, would provide better coordination not only among the states but between the states and the federal government in solving regional problems.

McCall, testifying before a senate public works subcommittee, said he was pleased that the pending legislation would permit regional commissions to include parts of states as well as whole states.

McCall said this would permit western Montana to be included in a Pacific Northwest Regional Commission.

McCall, a Republican, said he and governors of other states had agreed in 1970 to seek creation of a commission to encompass Alaska, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and at least western Montana.

Last year, he said, he had received a "negative" reply to the proposal when he wrote to then commerce secretary Maurice Stans to ask whether it would be acceptable to the commerce department.

This year, McCall said, the governors' hopes were "somewhat revived" when vice president Agnew invited states to form so-called title V commissions on a whole-state basis.

He said the governors then "regretfully" dropped Montana from their plans and decided a three-state commission was "better than no commission at all."

Time for living

By ROGERS FRANKLIN

I have five letters here telling me what cheapskates men are. While I'm chuckling, I'm also wondering if any men I know belong in this category. If so, chums, how did you get there?

The letters are from women, widowed or unmarried, who've been going out dating only to discover that their gallant escorts ought to have been dropped in the woodpile.

Like the women, I've been a victim on occasion, finding myself at lunch or dinner with a fellow who disappears at sight of the waiter's check. But I've never had the wild experiences these ladies soberly tell me can happen every day.

For instance, one woman sat at home waiting for her new gentleman friend to show up for dinner. He was bringing the dinner, he proudly told her. You bet he brought it — two hot dogs and one order of french fries in a little bag.

Another woman went to dinner with an ex-banker. They'd arrived a bit late and the buffet was closing for the evening before the banker could beat it back for second helpings. He blew his stack and so upbraided the restaurant that she fled into the night, too embarrassed to remain.

And there's the gent who was invited to a home dinner a widow cooked. He ate with gusto, then requested a doggie-bag so he could take the rest of the food home.

The Case of the Invisible Wallet would stump even Perry, Mason. A man and his date step up to the boxoffice to buy tickets for a show and Whoom! Zowie! Bam! he "forgot" his wallet and she digs into hers to pay for the tickets.

This same character seems to have the habit also of forgetting where he parked his car, other women testify. He shows up waving his hands helplessly... so she puts both of them into her car and takes the wheel to get where they're going.

Another true experience from the ladies: driving over to pick up a gent to go to dinner, only to be told he eats early and has had his dinner... he'll therefore buy her a milkshake. The last of the big spenders.

There's Maggie I heard from, booked for a night's spree by a handsome older man considered a top catch. Wherever they went, Maggie had to dig into her pocketbook for the dollars. "I never pay," he loftily assured her when she tried to voice a weak protest.

Or take the widower on their street who's developed a bloodhound scent, writes a Colorado woman. "I think he stands outside and sniffs the air, then comes zooming into the house with the most tempting aroma — mine, it seems."

Or take the super-gallant hombre who doesn't even bother to escort a lady home — he merely heaves her into a bus and vanishes.

And there's the tall divorced man (three times) who invites a female into a bar for a companionable drink (several for him, says this letter) — and relaxes aloofly until she shells out enough to bail them out.

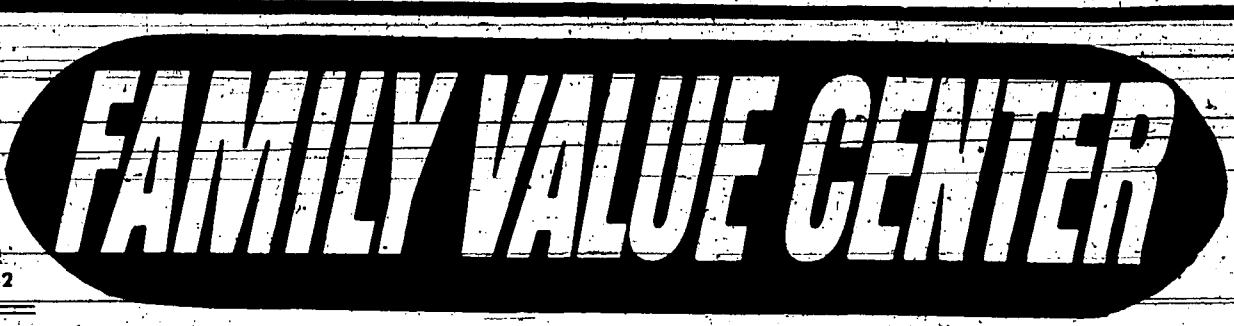

Have any of your pals enjoyed similar unexpected adventures?

Don't misunderstand: I'm all for "Dutch-treat"—these days it's permissible, logical, and often the only way two people can share each other's company without painfully overtaxing the man's finances.

Frankly, I can hardly believe these stories sent to me. Yet of course I do believe them: We men don't necessarily wear a halo round our head just because we're men. Or do we?

Question from Mrs. L.G. Twin Falls: I have a 1929 nickel and a 1944 Liberty dime. I would like to know the value of the dime and the nickel.

The nickel is in very good condition but the dime isn't. How would I go about selling them?

Answer: The 1929 Buffalo nickel sells from 10 cents up to $1.25 — depending upon condition. The 1944 Mercury dime is worth about 11 cents in "very fine" condition — it is not a scarce coin. For grading and to see if these coins will bring more than face value, you might try the coin shop in Twin Falls. The owner, Howard Kinsfather, will tell you if the coins have extra value.

From A.T. Burley: What can you tell me about the United States 20 cent piece? I would like to know the value of an 1876 20 cent piece.

Answer: Unless you can tell me the grading of your coin it is not possible to give you an accurate value. The 20 cent piece was struck in 1875 and until 1878, but the 1877 and 1878 coins are proof only — that is, they were not struck for circulation.

The 1876 coin, which you have presently sells from about $15 up to about $35 — but again, the grade makes the difference in price. The 1877 proof coin was struck in only 510 pieces, and the 1878 in 600 — hence they are scarce and would bring several hundred dollars, if in new condition.

The 20 cent piece was an experiment, but the average citizen did not like the coin, since it was so similar in design and size to the quarter then circulating that it was often mistaken for that coin.

Incidentally, Carson City was supposed to have struck over 10,000 of these coins in 1876, but today only about 10 are known. They are extremely rare, and valuable.

From B.W. Burley: I have a coin the size of a half dollar. It is in very nice condition. On one side is a man dressed in old-fashioned clothes, holding a gun. Around him is the legend "United States of America, Patriot Half Dollar."

On the other side is what looks like a fort, or block house, and the words "Lexington Concord Sesquicentennial" and the dates 1875-1925. Under the building, it says "Old Belfrey, Lexington." Is this a coin? What is it, and what is its value?

Answer: You have a United States Commemorative half dollar, struck for the Sesquicentennial. This is a United States coin, not a commemorative struck locally, and its value is from $6.50 to $13, depending upon condition.

The last U.S. commemorative was struck in 1954, and showed the heads of Booker T. Washington and George Carver. Since that date, no commemorative half-dollars have been struck by the government. All government coinage has the denomination and date on it.

From G.G. Twin Falls: I recently found a 1930 Lincoln penny and a 1936 Lincoln penny. Are these coins valuable? Also, I have a nickel with a Liberty head on it and on the back is "V." Is this valuable?

Answer: The 1930 and 1936 Lincoln cents have no particular value. If they are uncirculated, you may be able to get something for them, but in circulated condition they are worth no more than face value.

Most of the Liberty Head Nickels are worth about six cents to 15 cents, in average circulated condition. You do not give the date, so I cannot give you a price on the coin.

Questions on coins and currency should be sent to The Money Box, c/o The Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.

Chamber at Rupert honors physician

RUPERT The Rupert Chamber of Commerce Thursday paid tribute to the late Dr. O. A. Moellmer, Rupert physician for 32 years.

Pete Ford, chamber president, asked that all businesses in Rupert close Friday for one hour during the funeral for Dr. Moellmer. All members observed a moment of silence in his memory.

The speaker for the noon luncheon in the Elks Lodge was Estima Ferrura, an 18-year-old exchange student at Minico High School from Gojana, Brazil.

She talked about the customs and economics in her country, saying Brazil is now forging ahead in all phases of its economy.

She said she comes from a city of 150,000 south of Brazilia, the capital city. She studied English four years in school in Brazil but said living with English-speaking people helps her very much to become fluent.

Miss Ferrura intends to graduate from Minico High School this spring, and then attend a university in Brazil, because it is much cheaper for her to attend school in her own country.

Speaker for the next chamber luncheon will be Atty. Bill Goodman of Rupert, who will explain the making of wills.

Georgia governor visits Americana

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI)—Seventy-eight miles from this industrial metropolis sits a city called "Americana." There, on rolling hills of sugar cane and cotton, lie the graves of U.S. Southern immigrants who left their home states rather than live under reconstruction after the Civil War.

The Protestant cemetery lies about five miles from Americana. A Confederate flag, the bars and stars, flutters atop a white obelisk stamped with 96 names.

Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter made a brief helicopter hop to the cemetery Wednesday on his Latin American tour. "It makes me feel at home, seeing so many familiar names and faces," he said.

He was greeted by about 30 descendants of the 200 families who came to Brazil from the American South. Among those greeting him was Judith Knight Jones, who gave him a book she wrote on the migration entitled "Soldado Deucansa" (soldier rest).

The book tells how the founder of the American colony in Americana, Col. William Hutchinson Norris, brought the pioneers to Brazil and was received by Emperor Dom Pedro II, who recommended that they buy land. The rolling hills of red earth were fertile and reminded them of Dixie. They agreed to buy.

One of the descendants, Irma Alberta Mathews, 62, said Brazilians before the immigration had already named the town Americana in honor of the North Americans who introduced the plow, the sewing machine and butter-making to the region. Her sister, Sara Belle, 64, added, "at first we were a closed colony. Every-body married within and did not mix with the local population. You can consider us all relatives."

The cemetery has simple tombstones, scattered among tropical flowers and trees. Most of the inscriptions are short and in English.

Americana is now an industrialized city of 66,000 inhabitants noted for its textiles and aguardiente, or unrefined rum. Carter, at the end of his short visit, placed the foundation stone for a museum in the colony to be built at the front of the cemetery. It will contain, among other things, an old sewing machine, rocking chairs and Confederate uniforms.

Funds planned

BOISE (UPI) — There is a "very good possibility" the state housing authority which begins its existence July 1 will get off the ground with federal funds, Glenn Nichols said Thursday.

Nichols, director of the state plan, for community affairs agency, said the federation of Rocky Mountain States has agreed to bring the head of the Utah Housing Authority to Idaho for a week during May to discuss federal funds which may be available.

Wendell petitions checked

WENDELL — Nominating petitions for three candidates for the school trustee post in zone 3 of the Wendell School District were being checked Friday.

The petitions were filed prior to the Thursday evening deadline on behalf of Tom Harley, Vard McMan and Ervine Rast, all farmers in the West Point district.

They are seeking the post-vacated by John Newbrough, incumbent who is not seeking re-election.

School officials said this is an unusual amount of interest from the West Point area. In previous years candidates have run unopposed.

Signatures on the petitions are being checked for sufficient qualified electors.

TF hearing set on street plans

TWIN FALLS — Property owners involved in a proposed $500,000 street reconstruction Local Improvement District for this summer may voice views at 11:30 a.m. Monday in the City Hall auditorium.

A public hearing on LID 87, designed to provide the city's largest street reconstruction project ever, will be held in the city hall with officials of JUD Engineers Inc. and city officials attending.

George Michael, city engineer, said the district is proposed to cover ten major streets or portions of these streets providing all can be covered with available funds. The hearing will cover all proposed projects and depending on engineers' cost estimates the district will include as many as possible.

Michael said plans are to also include some new construction for which the city and sub-dividers will pay. This will make the contract more attractive to bidding firms, he said.

Michael estimated details will be complete in time to let a contract by the end of May and begin construction in June, completing the projects by October.

Other street projects include Shoshone Street from Second Avenue North and East to Sixth Avenue North and East; Martin Street between Addison Avenue and Heyburn Avenue; Sunrise Boulevard from Heyburn Avenue to Shoup; Locust Street from Heyburn Avenue to Kimberly Road, and Locust Street South from Kimberly Road to Gem Avenue.

In residential areas, property owners will participate in the total cost by providing curb and gutter costs with the city carrying the street resurfacing costs. Commercial property owners will pay for curb, gutter and street reconstruction

Appropriation low for air pollution

BOISE (UPI) — The state director of air pollution control says his commission's budget for next year is so low it may be inviting federal control.

$480,000 for air pollution control efforts by 1975. He said his commission asked for a budget of 30 cents per person next year, including the anticipated federal grant.

At Eugene said an annual expenditure of 25 cents per person generally is considered an absolute minimum for state air pollution control programs. He said the $67,000 appropriated by the legislature is less than 10 cents per person.

It is clearly the intent of congress, as expressed by present federal law, that the states assume the primary role in dealing with their own air pollution problems, he said.

The law provides that the federal government get involved only as a last resort—in case the states fail, he said. But he said there is a possibility the federal government will take over air pollution control efforts in this state eventually.

A federal support grant may raise this to 18 cents per person, he said, but still would put it below the recommended minimum expenditure.

Eugene said a federal study recommended Idaho spend about 68 cents per year or

Sen. Muskie woos both minority and majority

BY STEVE GIBSTEL
PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—In the day-to-day quest for the Democratic presidential nomination in a crowded field of candidates, no voters can be overlooked.

With this in mind, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine Thursday went after the votes of the majority and the minority—the women and the blacks.

On a rainy spring day in Philadelphia, Muskie put in back-to-back appearances with a group of not-so-militant women in a fashionable residential area and a panel of not-so-militant blacks in the ghetto.

Overall, the low-key approach of Muskie came off well, but in each rendition, one thing he said did not sit well.

He started first with what was billed as a "rap session" with women activists in the Germantown section of Philadelphia, fielding the questions easily as he sat in an overcrowded, noisy combination community center-school.

Muskie gave all the right answers—the responses the ladies wanted to hear—on ratification of the constitutional amendment giving women equal rights; equality in hiring and promotion of women in private industry; the resistance of the old-time politicians to letting women become delegates to political conventions, and the need of child day care centers so women can enter the labor force.

Then a young girl (certainly of draft age) and dressed in a multicolored jumper, broke in and asked Muskie whether he favored the drafting of young women, side by side with young men.

"I'll give you a human reaction, my reaction," Muskie said in a slow, low voice.

He can't see a woman fighting in the trenches to save my life. There was a distinct hiss from the crowd, which for one moment, stilled the slamming of the door, the chatter of young children and the conversation of the media.

"It's nothing based on logic or reason," Muskie said forcefully. "It's just the way I feel."

"I can only give you my gut reaction."

Politely applauded by the women, Muskie took his car—van—from the suburbs to the ghetto for another "rap session," this time with the executive committee of the Black Political Forum of Philadelphia.

Once again, speaking slowly and in a low voice, Muskie gave the replies which moved those gathered around him at a table to nod their assent. Welfare, housing, busing.

Then he was asked, "How many blacks do you have on your senate staff?"

Muskie replied, "I don't know off hand, but a black is director of one of my important subcommittees."

"Do you mind giving us his name?" Muskie was asked.

With a pained and puzzled expression, Muskie turned to his aides, who, in loud tones, told him the name—Charley Davenport.

HEYBURN — Parents of prospective first-graders in Minidoka County are urged to return questionnaires concerning summer kindergarten to Heyburn School Principal Boyd Earl.

Earl, director for the 1972 session, said fewer than 25 percent of the questionnaires, concerning parents' preference about the duration of the program and the length of daily sessions, have been returned. They were sent to parents early this month. Parents wishing more information should call Earl at 678-2400.

The responses so far indicate a preference for the four-week kindergarten, said Earl. The Monday through Friday sessions would last from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. with a free mid-day meal provided by the school lunch department.

The alternate plan would run for six weeks with students dismissed at 11:30 each day. The kindergarten is scheduled to begin June 5 at East Minico Junior High School in Rupert. All costs of the program are covered under a government title grant.

IDEAS FOR AN IMPORTANT PART OF YOUR HOME

WHAT MAKES A STORE REPUTABLE?

Every successful business is based upon public confidence and good will. These things cannot be bought. They must be earned.

The public knows that certain stores are recognized as "reputable" and others are not.

And what is the secret in this important thing which every store wants a good reputation? It is many things. It is reflected in everything the owner and his employees do in their business dealings and even in their civic and social activities.

It is the way the phone is answered. It is created by the type of advertising a firm does by the service given to customers. By the manner complaints are handled. By the courteous and helpful attention given to customers by everyone from the sales people to the delivery men by those little things "above and beyond the call of duty" which every customer remembers and every good business man tries to do.

And, of course, it is the big things — good merchandise, fair prices, and integrity. You just can't beat this combination.

Boy Scouts display their skills

SCOUTS FROM the Southside District of the Snake River Area Council held their annual Scout-O-Rama Saturday at Twin Falls High School. Hundreds of Scouts set up dozens of displays for the enjoyment of parents and other spectators. Displays included Cub Pack No. 65's ecology basketball shoot, advertised at far left by Kevin Breckenmeier, son of Mrs. Carol Breckenmeier; an outdoor camp set up near the high school entrance, at center, and Doug Meyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Meyer, of Scout Troop 9, intent over spawing a board. Also displayed in front of the school was a wooden tower and an unusual suspended flagpole flying the U. S., Idaho and Scout banners.

In Zone 1, Gene Turner, Dean Williams, both incumbents, and Richard Dalton have filed. Zone 2 candidates include Louis Koopman, who is running for re-election, and Richard Uppiano.

In the new Zone 3, Vernon J. Cox and Don Hulme are candidates. Ronald Boyer and Verl Bell are running in Zone 4. Frank Henslee is not running for re-election. In Zone 5 are Allred Sandy, incumbent, and Jerry Jasper.

2 Camas hopefuls ask posts

FAIRFIELD Two candidates are unopposed for the Camas County School District election May 8.

Patrons will also vote on a five mill levy at the same election. Kenneth Peck has filed a petition for the Blaine Zone 3. The incumbent, Mrs. Ben Krahn, is not seeking re-election. Incumbent LeRoy Packham is seeking re-election in Zone 4.

A public meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. May 1 at the school to discuss the school budget and the five mill levy school officials say is necessary to make the budget operative.

Jerome trustee post attracts 2

JEROME Two candidates are running for the District 1 trustee position in the Jerome School Board.

Voters will elect a trustee on May 16 to succeed Clare Fife, present office holder, who has announced he will not be a candidate for re-election.

Newest office seeker is Emmett Merkley, 34, a Jerome County farmer and owner of the Farm Equipment Exchange of Idaho. He has resided in Jerome four years, coming from Mesa, Ariz. He is the father of eight children.

William A. Kersey Jr., previously filed his nominating position for the one vacancy on the school board. He is an epidemiologist with the Idaho Department of Health and a real estate sales agent.

Kersey said he will not be a "yes-man" and will not be a passive board member.

Both men are entering the election with the hope of joining the board currently under fire over the issue of eliminating the old Lincoln Elementary School and providing an addition to the Jefferson Elementary.

Voter signup big project for GOP

BY BONNIE JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS Voter registration is the number one project for Young Republicans. Phyllis McGrath, national Young Republican secretary, said here Saturday.

Mrs. McGrath keynoted the Saturday morning session of the Idaho Young Republican convention at the Holiday Inn. She emphasized the importance of all levels of the Republican Party working together and predicted a strong campaign in support of the President and vice president this fall will more strongly unite the party.

Nothing is automatic. It has to be done "by people," Mrs. McGrath said in discussing the 1972 campaign. "Politics are like that and we have to find the right people who want to take on the job."

Mrs. McGrath said the Young Republicans are the right people with ambition and enthusiasm and will do much for the party in the 1972 elections.

The Greeley, Colo., woman, who hopes to be elected to the Colorado legislature, said the Young Republicans are organizing a strong program for the election year. Membership is the major factor at this time.

"Not only will a good membership drive swell the ranks of the Young Republicans, but it will provide a wider basis for new ideas in the party," she said.

The National Young Republicans are working closely with state and county units and will assist in any way possible, she said. The six major officers of the national organization have been on tour since election, she said, available at all state Young Republican conventions and for other speaking engagements.

Saturday morning sessions opened for about 75 Young Republicans with Kimber Ricks, Rexburg, serving as convention chairman.

College Young Republicans under leadership of Chairman Gary Chase met in separate sessions and with the YR's. The group sponsored and gained approval of a resolution asking one delegate in each state's Republican Convention delegation be under 26 years of age.

Andrus rapped at GOP confab

TWIN FALLS State Rep. Larry Jackson, R-Boise, criticized the efforts of Gov. Ted Andrus in a luncheon address before Idaho Young Republicans here Saturday.

He said the state will have two and one-half more years under Democratic leadership and warned Gov. Andrus will do all in his power to influence the 1972 elections.

The high spending requests of the governor, Jackson said, represent an attempt to make the Republican majority legislature look bad and to force the Republican lawmakers to increase the personal and corporation taxes to meet the high cost of government.

Jackson said he was disappointed in the veto of the original farm labor bill which would have provided workers an opportunity to disagree and negotiate with their employers. He said the substitute bill was a "poor compromise at best."

Farmers and farm laborers were unhappy with the compromise and they will register their feelings again at the polls this fall, Jackson predicted.

The luncheon speaker, a member of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee, said he did not support the governor's budget request but must share the blame along with the Republicans who did.

Jackson warned the Young Republicans the party is not as well unified in Idaho as it should be. He said "without better organization, unity and hard work, the Republicans cannot hope for the victories they so badly need in 1972."

Priority goals, he said, are to maintain the Republican majority on the legislature this year and to elect a Republican governor in 1974 to lead them.

Jackson said it is not encouraging but reports indicate 60 per cent of the 18 to 20 year old voters who will go to the polls this fall are Democrats. This, coupled with the fact the nation wide average is already 60 per cent for the opposing party, spells hard work by all portions of the party this year.

Most important party work is that done in the precinct where a party takes root and grows," he said.

The citizens of Idaho and the nation know what they want and what must be done to correct the most urgent problems we face. It is high time public officials and politicians stop catering to the demands of special interest groups and lead such an effort. George Hansen, candidate for the U. S. Senate nomination said.

Robert Smylie, Boise, candidate for the U. S. Senate nomination, was the first of several candidates to address the delegates. Speaking Saturday morning, he called for a unified effort on the part of all Republican party members to support the re-election of President Nixon.

The former Idaho governor said he welcomes the large field of competition for the Senate post being vacated by Sen. Len Jordan. This gives the voters a better selection and gives candidates a better opportunity to compare the issues, he said.

Gem credit union meets at Burley

BURLEY Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy asked credit union officials and members to look beyond their present financial duties and seek solutions for growing area problems.

Murphy was guest speaker at Friday night's dinner at the Idaho Credit Union League convention at the Ponderosa Inn here. More than 500 members and officials of credit unions throughout Idaho met Friday and Saturday for the annual league conference.

Marion Gregory, a spokesman for the national credit union organization, CUNA, Inc., opened the convention Friday morning with a call to action in all phases of life.

Murphy said the independent sector of American society represents an enormous unused capacity for public problem solving and one that desperately needs nurturing. In the last generation, Murphy said when problems requiring public attention emerged, responsibility for their solution moved to Washington, D.C.

"Time has told us that there is no such thing in any federal agency as a simple problem and a simple solution," he said. By keeping these activities at home, "we keep the problems minimized, the solutions simplified," said Murphy.

Gregory, speaking on "apathy" in America, today, asked his listeners to take action against the evils that beset America, saying the "majority of Americans seem to be content to stay in the background, and maintain a lack of interest, concern or involvement action-type involvement, not a superficial coffee-break discussion type of involvement that's soon forgotten."

During a panel discussion Friday morning, Tom McElowney, Idaho state commissioner of finance, and Ray Cooley, credit union examiner in the state office, discussed the new credit union law recently enacted by the Legislature.

Sidney Eisenberg, National Credit Union Administration, and John Rhoads, a federal credit union examiner, discussed the role of federally chartered credit unions with their members.

Other speakers Friday included Archie Cameron of CUNA, Inc., who discussed job classifications and personnel policies; Herbert L. Schmidley, a spokesman for the national CUNA Supply; and Ermit Jerome, Boise, a League consultant, who reviewed communications and promotion of credit unions.

Valley school vote set Tuesday

EDEN HAZELTON Valley School District patrons will vote Tuesday on continuing a 2.5 mill school plant facility reserve fund levy.

If passed the levy will be used for improvement of existing Valley schools and for possible construction of new buildings, according to Dr. Thomas Tutterback, superintendent.

Voters in Zones 2 and 4 will also select three-year term board members in the Tuesday election. Herman Martens, presently representing Zone 2, is seeking re-election and no other candidate has announced for the position.

In Zone 4, John Hohnhorst, incumbent, is not a candidate for re-election. Three candidates have announced for the office. They are Howard Red Sellers, Arthur Baisch and Forrest Johnson.

Eligible voters in the levy election are residents of the district for 30 more days, who are 18 years of age.

Board members will be selected by voters of their own zones only. Polls open in the Valley High School at 1 p.m. - 7 p.m.

Shoshone meet

SHOSHONE All mothers interested in Shoshone having a municipal swimming pool are asked to meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Manhattan cafe.

Myron Johnson, chairman of the Rotary club swimming pool committee, states that information is being gathered and the Rotary club committee will meet with the FHA representative to study the pool plans.

To be considered are probable costs, location, ownership of land, operating costs. Other Rotary club committee members are Ray Walker and Roy Hubert.

Candidate unopposed in Blaine

HAILEY Incumbent Leif Odmark will run unopposed for the open Zone 5 trustee position in the Blaine County School District.

According to school board clerk, Mrs. Jo Bowman, Odmark was the only candidate to file a nominating petition for the three-year post by Thursday's deadline.

Polling for zone residents only, will be conducted from 12 to 8 p.m. May 8, at the Ernest Hemingway Grade School.

Boundaries of Zone 5 include all of Warm Springs and Sun Valley; the area north of the Bitterroot entry road; all the area north and east of the continuation of Sun Valley Road and Third Street to the intersection of the Union Pacific Railroad tracks; and the area east of the track intersection and Third Avenue.

Residents who have questions about the zone boundaries should call the administration office, Hailey.

Chamber meets Tuesday

SHOSHONE Chamber of Commerce will meet at noon Tuesday at the Manhattan cafe.

Politicking in T.F.

State Young Republican chief talks

TWIN FALLS "We can be proud of the Republican accomplishments of the past year and should be able to tell the Republican story with pride," Kimber Ricks, Idaho Young Republican chairman, said here Saturday.

He addressed delegates in closing business sessions of the 1972 Idaho Young Republican Convention at the Holiday Inn. Ricks said attendance at the 1972 convention was not overwhelming and shows the group has much work ahead in the coming year. The convention accomplished much considering there are no major issues this year were and no officer elections on the convention agenda, he said.

He urged Young Republicans to accept as a primary objective in the current year building up participation not only in their own organization but in the party as a whole.

Invitations for the 1973 convention were extended by delegates from the Madison County Young Republicans and Ricks College with sessions to be held in Idaho Falls, and from Canyon County and College of Idaho for sessions at the College of Idaho, Caldwell.

Convention sessions included a workshop on "Media in the Republican Campaign" conducted by Rod Clifford, Idaho State University.

Candidates who addressed the YR's briefly during Saturday sessions included Senate hopefuls Robert Smylie, George Hansen, and Rep. James McClure.

McClure stressed the principles for which the Republican Party has stood are equally important in the coming campaign with the issues. He urged the young party leaders hold fast to these principles as the future policy makers and as future elected office holders.

First District Congressional candidates Robert Purcell, Lewiston, and Steve Symms, Canyon County, also spoke. Purcell said the Young Republicans cannot be considered a separate faction of the party, but rather part of the overall strength. He urged they give not just lip service, but active help in getting more youth involved in Republicanism.

ISU gives teacher interns

Art show and tea at CSI today

POCATELLO (UPI) — Idaho State University is offering 35 elementary teaching internships in schools in 10 locations through a federally supported program called the Teacher Corps.

The program offers free college tuition for two years, leading to a bachelor's degree and teacher certification in elementary education, with a $90 per week stipend and $15 per week for each dependent.

Schools participating in the internship program are at Twin Falls, Piler, Burley, Minidoka, Arco, American Falls, Pocatello, Blackfoot, Idaho Falls and Preston.

The purpose of the Teacher Corps program is to prepare teachers for educationally disadvantaged students in rural schools. Interested persons may write or call for applications from Dr. Herbert Smith, College of Education, ISU, Pocatello, telephone 236-2689. May 12 is the deadline for filing applications.

Successful applicants will be announced during the third week of May. Those selected will meet at ISU July 17 to begin a six-week orientation course that will include classes in the philosophy and objectives of the program.

Trainees will commence internships in schools assigned on Aug. 24. They will work under supervision while continuing course work toward an elementary education degree and teacher certification.

Those eligible to apply for the traineeships are persons who have accrued from 60 to 105 college credit, only 14 of which may be in education.
