Viet counterattack spurs new Red drive

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. Marine helicopters ferried more than 1,000 South Vietnamese marines into Quang Tri province Saturday for the first counter-drive of the Communist offensive, but the North Vietnamese retaliated Sunday with an attack on the provincial capital of Kontum.

Two miles north and northwest of Kontum, 260 miles north of Saigon, field reports said. It was their first attack in strength against the city.

UPI reporter Mat Franjola reported from the Highlands that ground troops and missile-equipped U.S. helicopters teamed up to destroy 10 tanks, but Communist infantrymen pressed the attack on Kontum's inner defenses.

Military spokesmen said 125 Communists were slain in the first five hours of fighting at the city, now deserted by most of its civilian population.

Gem court orders Buhl case tried

BUHL—The Idaho State Supreme Court has reversed a district court order closing the Cascade Commodities plant in Buhl, and ordered the case to trial.

The decision of the supreme court announced Friday reverses the order of Fifth Judicial District Judge James M. Cunningham to close the Cascade Commodities rendering plant in Buhl.

The high court reinstated a temporary injunction which had ordered Cascade Commodities to cease producing offensive odors at the plant. In doing so, the court said the case is also remanded to the district court for trial at the earliest possible time.

Residents living near the Buhl rendering plant, formerly a packing plant owned by Mel Carter, brought court action to force the plant's rendering operation to cease emitting offensive odors which they said prevented them use of their lawns and backyards or patios in summertime and required they keep windows and doors tightly closed to prevent illness.

At the initial hearing, the plant owners admitted odors were offensive and agreed to take corrective steps. The owners essentially agreed to a temporary injunction ordering them to cease producing offensive odors.

Arguments before the court in Twin Falls earlier this year indicated the firm's attempts to correct the odors were ineffective. The plaintiffs asked for a second hearing to determine if the company was in contempt of the temporary injunction.

As a result of the second hearing, Judge Cunningham did not find the company in contempt, but ordered all rendering activities stopped.

Justices of the supreme court found this order too restrictive as the parties had previously stipulated that odors could be abated but not the entire operations of the plant.

In its opinion, the high court said the order was too restrictive and the company was not given notice the contempt hearing might also have led to the issuance of a new temporary injunction as required by civil procedure rules.

Sunshine victims all out

KELLOGG, Idaho (UPI)—Rescue crews Saturday brought out the last bodies of 91 victims from the Sunshine Silver Mine disaster, leaving the survivors with their grief and the prospect of weeks or months without paychecks.

Nine funerals were held Saturday, as this town of 3,500 persons tried to adjust to the tragedy.

The fire that swept the nation's richest silver mine last week wiped out nearly a fourth of the company's work force, and the loss to the monthly payroll of half a million dollars threatens the economy of Kellogg and nearby Wallace.

Some of the survivors said they never would return to the mine, which provides the chief source of revenue for the northern Idaho area.

The 110 men who escaped from below ground, and the rest of the mine's work force, faced the prospect of at least a two-month layoff until the mine can reopen. One union official, Lawrence I. Marshall, said it could be as long as a year and a half until normal operations resume.

DEMONSTRATORS concluded antiwar march in San Francisco Saturday with frolic in city's Civic Center pool. Temperature was in 80's at time. Most protests around nation on Saturday were conducted without violence. (UPI)

Anti-war demonstrators stage quiet protests

By United Press International
Antiwar demonstrators walked through city streets and held rallies across the nation Saturday, bringing to a peaceful close a week of sometimes turbulent demonstrations. An estimated 5,000 marched up Broadway in New York City and as many as 10,000 demonstrated in Minneapolis, Minn. Groups varying in size from a few hundred to a few thousand also held marches or rallies in Washington, Chicago, San Francisco, Denver, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Calif., Cleveland, Ohio, Portland, Ore., Pittsburgh, Atlanta and Houston.

In contrast to demonstrations earlier in the week, which centered mostly on college campuses, there were no clashes with police and few arrests.

There had been more than 2,500 persons arrested and scores of policemen and demonstrators injured since a flurry of protests sprang up Monday night against President Nixon's order to mine North Vietnam harbors and bomb supply routes.

San Francisco Sheriff Richard Hongisto told nearly 2,000 demonstrators at the Civic Center that President Nixon and California Gov. Ronald Reagan were committed to violence and bloodshed. I denounce them as warmongers, violent and hateful people pursuing violent and hateful politics internationally and domestically.

In Minneapolis, where three units of National Guardsmen were activated Wednesday to help control demonstrations at the University of Minnesota, 10,000 persons participated in a 10-mile march from the campus to the state capitol in adjacent St. Paul.

The New York marchers chanted antiwar slogans and carried placards denouncing "escalation" of the Vietnam War.

In Chicago, about 2,500 persons marched down State Street to a rally in Grant Park. The front ranks of marchers carried a coffin and the protesters walked silently to a drumbeat until they reached the center of the Loop area where they began chanting "Peace Now."

Between 1,500 and 2,000 protesters in Washington marched from a point near the White House to the Capitol.

Japan fire kills 118

TOKYO (UPI)—Searing flames and choking smoke roared through a department store late Saturday in Osaka, Japan's second largest city, trapping hostesses and customers in a cabaret on the top floor and killing and injuring more than 150 persons before firemen brought the blaze under control.

The inferno was the worst single fire disaster in Japan since World War II.

Authorities said that at least 118 persons were killed, including several who leaped from the seventh story of the building to escape the smoke and flames, and another 38 persons were injured.

The fire broke out about 10:30 p.m. (9:30 a.m. EDT) Saturday on the third floor in a supermarket and raced through the top four floors above. Clouds of heavy smoke enveloped the building and apparently suffocated many of the victims, authorities said.

Meteorite jars Moon

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—A meteorite slammed into the moon Saturday with the force of 100,000 tons of TNT, digging a football field size crater and perhaps unlocking the secrets of the lunar interior, Space Agency scientists said.

The force of the impact triggered signals lasting over three hours by the meteorite that landed "uncomfortably close" to a seismic station left by the Apollo 14 astronauts in 1971 in the Fra Mauro region. The collision was termed a rare event and may have sent vibrations ringing through the entire moon, said Dr. Gary Latham of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Lynwood float tops Music week parade

TWIN FALLS—The Lynwood Merchants float, depicting a class of children in a religious setting, captured top prize in the Music Week parade Saturday afternoon.

A panel of judges, including Mrs. J. Hill, Mrs. Marshall LeBaron and Ivan Skinner, judged the floats in several categories before the parade started from the Sears parking lot, to travel down Main Avenue through the mall.

Lynwood Merchants won first place in the commercial division, plus the Music Club trophy for "best of show."

Other first-place winners included the Magic Valley Country Music Association, first in floats entered by an organization; the Wapsu Indian Dancers, first in youth groups; and Lions Club, first for civic groups, and the Robert Stuart Junior High marching entry, first for "on-foot" groups.

Entrants included the Magichords, floats by a wide variety of groups and organizations, drill teams from Twin Falls High School, Buhl High School and Vera C. O'Leary Junior High, in addition to Robert Stuart.

Special guests in the parade included Anne Hagerman, Idaho Junior Miss, Rene LaGrone, Twin Falls Junior Miss, and officers of the sponsoring Twin Falls Music Club.

House panel schedules Salmon project hearing

TWIN FALLS—Several Magic Valley residents will testify Monday before a full House Interior Committee studying the Salmon Falls Division.

Part of the group of 14 has already left for Washington, D. C., where the hearing opens at 9 a.m. Monday.

A spokesman in the office of Twin Falls attorney Lloyd Webb, who represents the Salmon River Canal Co., said those attending will be Mr. and Mrs. Dale Messner, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Schnitzer, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Parrott, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Nelson, Lester McGregor, Leonard Peters and Mr. and Mrs. John Pastoor, all farmers on the Salmon Tract, and Mr. and Mrs. Webb.

Others expected to attend from Idaho are Robert Lee of the Idaho Water Resources Board; Keith Higginson, state water administrator; Ed Sullivan, regional director of the Bureau of Reclamation, and Allen McGregor, Bureau of Reclamation, all Boise.

A congressional subcommittee heard testimony in Twin Falls in March on the proposed project, which would bring water to 64,000 acres now unwatered or poorly watered. That hearing before the irrigation and reclamation subcommittee was another step toward final hearing before the full interior committee on the $52 million project.

Morris Huffman, manager of the Salmon River Canal Co. at Hollister, said the Monday hearing is the final hurdle before the project is submitted to the Bureau of the Budget.

He said he did not know how long the hearings would take, and had no indication about how long it would take for the committee to reach its decision.

The Senate already has approved the project.

TWIN FALLS — Leaders of 4-H clubs in Magic Valley who will be assisting with project judging during the late summer and fall fair season were given some pointers on judging Friday.

The 70 leaders and prospective county fair judges attended a district judges training session in the Holiday Inn under the direction of Carolyn Barnes, area 4-H specialist, Twin Falls.

Mrs. Barnes opened the session with a review of judges training needs followed by a discussion—the 4-H awards system by Blaine Lindford, district extension supervisor. Dorothy Hole, assistant 4-H leader, also addressed the group.

During the afternoon the leaders broke into groups to practice judge sewing, cooking and other projects. Leaders also met to discuss livestock, woodwork, gun safety and other projects and to discuss record books and judges scoring sheets.

Damages asked in TF suit

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls couple, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cutts, is asking $350,000 total damages in a personal injury suit filed in Fifth District Court. The suit was filed in connection with injuries suffered by their son.

E'Lon Cutts, a minor, suffered permanent injuries when a gun discharged in the basement of the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Stephens where several children were playing Nov. 21, 1971.

The suit names Mr. and Mrs. Stephens as defendants and asks $50,000 punitive damages and $300,000 general damages for the permanent injuries allegedly suffered by the Cutts youth. Plaintiffs charge the defendants with negligence in allowing the children to play in a room where a gun was kept.

Ricky Puschel, foster son of the Stephens, allegedly fired the gun causing injuries to the Cutts boy.

Legalizing of marijuana won't change opinion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse said Friday a survey showed that about three-fourths of the young people who have never tried marijuana would not use it even if it were legalized.

In a newly published index to its full report, the commission said most of those who have not experimented with the drug said they shied away from it because they feared physical or mental damage.

The commission, in its full report to President Nixon and Congress in March, concluded there was little proven danger of physical or psychological harm from experimental or intermittent use of marijuana. It estimated that 24 million Americans had tried marijuana at least once.

The new survey asked those ages 12 through 17 their reasons for not using it and 73 per cent said they would not use it under any circumstance. "Thus it appears that even if the current policy were changed so that marijuana use was either de-criminalized or legalized, and even if the drug became more freely available than it is now, the majority of individuals who have not used marijuana do not believe they are likely to initiate use," the commission said.

One-fifth of those interviewed said they feared arrest or jail and about the same percentage cited uncertainty about the drug's effects.

Many abstainers gave several reasons for not using it and 73 per cent said they would not use it under any circumstance. "Thus it appears that even if the current policy were changed so that marijuana use was either de-criminalized or legalized, and even if the drug became more freely available than it is now, the majority of individuals who have not used marijuana do not believe they are likely to initiate use," the commission said.

BACK HOE

WASHINGTON — Is Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, trying to change his feathers? Is the moderate hawk trying to become a moderate dove? Those questions present themselves in light of a recent letter Hansen and 16 other

"hawks" sent to President Nixon. In their letter, the 17 express their concern about the stepped-up strategic air bombing in North Vietnam and throughout Southeast Asia. At the same time, the 17 signers also suggest a new peace initiative aimed at high-level diplomacy in Moscow and the intervention of the United Nations. Significantly, few of the 17 signers has supported any of the "end-the-war" legislative attempts in past years, and almost all have been staunch supporters of the President throughout the Indochina conflict. Because their loyalty is time-proven, all 17 hope that the President and his advisors will pay more attention to their letter.

Dated May 5th, the letter said the 17 congressmen have "been of the opinion for some time that the United States involvement in the war for South Vietnam represented a foreign policy blunder, of tragic proportions and should, therefore, be brought to an orderly end as possible and at the earliest possible date."

The 17 reiterated their support for the President's Vietnamization program and commended President Nixon for reducing ground forces in South Vietnam from 549,000 (Jan. 1969) to 49,000 by July 1st of this year. They expressed their hope that the ground, air, and naval forces of South Vietnam would successfully repel the current North Vietnamese offensive.

"However, we wish to express to you our individually held concern over the use of high-level bombing attacks against targets in Southeast Asia not directly related to the need to blunt the current invasion of the South. Such strategic air support does not seem appropriate either in light of our Nation's past experience with such attacks, or in terms of potential tactical advantage," the Idaho Falls Republican and the 16 others wrote.

Hansen and the others pointed out to President Nixon the military and political risks of such bombing, "as well as the immense costs to the peoples of Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia." Said the letter, "in all these countries, there have been thousands of civilian casualties, and hundreds of thousands more are now refugees from their homes. Thus, we encourage you to forego such utilization of American air power in Indochina."

Despite their support for Vietnamization, the 17 expressed their concern about the future of the policy. "In light of our apparent, indefinite commitment of American air support to South Vietnamese ground forces, we do not see how even a near total "de-Americanization" of the ground war in Indochina can bring this conflict and its current carnage to an early end."

Hansen and the others also said they held little hope for success at the Paris peace talks.

So, the 17 Republicans recommended the president try a new approach. They wrote the President to "place high on the agenda for your upcoming talks with leaders of the Soviet Union the question of obtaining their cooperation in a new plan for peace."

The plan, as the 17 envision it, calls for the acceptance by both sides in Indochina of a "cease-fire-in-place," as of the date of the agreement, "with the simultaneous transfer of the political issues underlying the conflict to the United Nations."

Hansen and the others said that the past objections to intervention by the United Nations always centered on the fact that the People's Republic of China was not represented in the United Nations. Now that China is seated in the U.N., Hansen and his colleagues suggested a new peace initiative by the U.N. might stand a better chance of success.

"We do not know what result this suggestion, if it could be implemented, might produce. But, at the very least, it offers the people on both sides of the Indochina war a surcease from conflict and carnage. That result is eminently to be desired — by those people, by the people of the United States, and by the world; and so we trust that this suggestion is accepted in the same constructive sense it is offered," the letter concluded.

Inevitably, Hansen's signing of this letter will open the GOP congressman to charges by his opponents, such as Pocatello's Willis Ludlow, a Democratic peace candidate, that earlier support of the President by Hansen help perpetuate the conflict and the carnage, but now that the war is obviously going badly, the two-term congressman is trying to waffle his way out.

A hawk trying to become a dove, perhaps.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Starving

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our 14-year-old son, joined his high school wrestling team. I think it is a fine sport but one thing bugs me.

He was a well-built lad, not overweight, always having proper exercise and food. He trains hard, but his coach is a fanatic on weight, and the boy had to lose several pounds.

This was not done with a proper diet, but by going hungry and in any way possible to get down a few pounds.

He is not doing well and he looks pale with red eyelids. I hate to do it, but my better judgment tells me to pull him out before he runs into real trouble.

Some of the boys on the team go for a couple of days without eating a thing, in order to qualify for a match. Would you please make some public comment on this? — W.F.

Is this public enough?

I think wrestling is a good sport, too, but NOT at the expense of proper nutrition. A low calorie diet with ample protein will give him strength and allow weight loss.

In my experience, most coaches have a sane regard for the health of their boys, but when a fanatic starves his boys, as this one is doing, he has just lost perspective on what life and coaching are all about.

I fervently hope that he develops some sense immediately.

If not, if it were my son, I would insist that he either ignore the coach's unwise instructions or quit the team — and most certainly inform the school authorities why.

BERRY'S WORLD

"You should have seen this one before it was stolen. It was the greatest!"

Mother

Mother's Day is more generally observed in the U.S. this year than ever. In a troubled world mother faces the task of molding men and women into citizens capable of solving the mounting problems that confront them.

Mother has much of the current environment against her. Influence seems to be more important than high standards. Americans are falling for the ancient oriental custom of "squeeze," the temptation to take a cut of everything that passes the gate. Materialism is the cult of the hour.

This generation's penchant for prodigality knows no limit. Children are being deprived of their rightful heritage by inflation, debt and wasteful use of the nation's natural resources. Political expediency follows the thought of the French king: "After me, the deluge."

Mother once had only the simple problems of a simple community, and community standards and discipline aided her in solving them. Trends today are national or international, and mass innovations are difficult to combat.

As mother succeeds, and she always has, she will have to her credit a splendid achievement — that of the building of character to leaven the mass.

Decay Cure

The inner city home ownership program is a multi-billion-dollar disaster for the federal government, but to real estate speculators and financial institutions it is a money tree harvested with little risk.

This is how one writer describes something which began with high hopes four years ago but has turned out to be one of the greatest boondoggles since farmers were paid to plow their crops under while millions went hungry.

On paper, it looked good. The idea was to encourage low-income families to buy homes instead of rent and at the same time to rehabilitate the decaying central cities. The incentives were very low down payments and federally guaranteed and sometimes subsidized mortgages.

There have been successes. Many families have moved into good homes they might never otherwise have owned.

But the successes have been outweighed by an accumulation of little horror stories — connivance between speculators and lending institutions, falsification of credit ratings, frightening homeowners in racially changing neighborhoods into panic sales, bribery of housing inspectors, applying cosmetic improvements to old houses and selling them at inflated prices to poor families who are then faced with impossible repair costs.

The result is that the Federal government has become the largest absentee slumlord in America.

George Romney, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, estimates that the Federal Housing Administration will have some $2.4 billion in lapsed mortgages.

"Congressionally mandated home ownership programs in the inner cities for the 'neediest' families not only are not working satisfactorily in certain cities," he admits, "they are clearly contributing to abandonment and decay."

All of which must give pause to anyone who believes that all that is needed to cure the nation's many social ills is money. Possibly the sheer weight of billions could do it. When all the speculators and cheats and frauds have raked off all they can, enough might be left to trickle down to the little people.

But surely there is a better way of doing things.

ART BUCHWALD

The Last Survivor

"This is the New Zealand Television Network. In a minute, we will bring you an exclusive interview with Hiram Potts who, as you all know, was found by our anthropologists in the Grand Canyon several weeks ago. Mr. Potts is believed to be the only living American left after the nuclear holocaust 10 years ago in 1972. It was believed at the time that everyone had been killed, but Mr. Potts somehow managed to survive and, according to our doctors, is in good health. Since his arrival in this country, he has been besieged by newspapermen and publishers, and this is the first eyewitness account as to what happened in those fateful days.

"Mr. Potts, could you tell us exactly what took place in 1972?"

"First, I'd like to say I didn't surrender to the Commies. I could have held out for years in the Grand Canyon and they never would have got me."

"Mr. Potts, there are no more Communists. They were all wiped out, too. As far as we know, New Zealand is one of the few countries that still exists in the world. Our people are now sailing around the globe trying to find out if there is anybody else alive. Now, tell us exactly what happened."

"I'm not really certain. I was on a camping trip, so all I know is what I heard on the radio. First, I heard President Nixon make a speech, and he said something about the honor of the United States being at stake."

"Where was the honor of the United States at stake?"

"In some place called Vietnam. You see, the President said we wouldn't have peace in the world unless we got an honorable peace in Vietnam."

"Then he said he was going to mine the Haiphong Harbor and it was up to the Russians to decide if they wanted peace or not. The Russkies had to understand a great power couldn't be humiliated."

"And what happened, Mr. Potts?"

"Then I heard the Russians announce they were for peace, too but they couldn't afford to be humiliated either. After that, the Red Chinese announced that they couldn't be humiliated because they were also a major power."

"Would you say then the reason the whole thing started was because none of the big powers could afford to be humiliated?"

"Something like that. Of course I don't understand all the things that go on in foreign affairs, but it seems to me that was the start of the whole thing. As I said, I was camping at the time in the Grand Canyon, and my radio wasn't working too good. I picked up occasional phrases like 'freedom for the South Vietnamese people,' and 'treachery in the peace talks in Paris.' And I heard someone say the only way we could have peace was to let the other side know we wouldn't back down. The Russkies were talking about supporting their North Vietnamese allies and warned if any of their ships were sunk, the United States would have to pay the consequences. And the Chinese said they wouldn't stand by and allow Hanoi to be defeated. It got all mixed up and I couldn't follow it."

"Then what happened?"

"Well, one day I heard a lot of explosions and I saw some mushroom clouds floating above me, but I didn't think anything of it. I turned on my radio but I couldn't get any station at all, so I figured my batteries had gone dead."

"When did you realize that you might have been the only survivor of the holocaust?"

"Maybe about five years ago. I couldn't find anybody in the canyon, and you usually see tourists in the spring and summertime. Then I put two and two together, and I figured something went wrong with the President's game plan. So, I decided to stay in the canyon and fight the Russkies from there. It's lucky your people spoke English or I would have shot them dead."

"Having had 10 years to think about it, how do you feel about everything now?"

"Well, I think Nixon made the right decision. He proved the United States couldn't be humiliated, and if he were running today, I'd probably vote for him."

PAUL HARVEY

Reagan-Taxes

California's Gov. Ronald Reagan has joined those of us urging that we reform our income tax system by throwing out the whole thing.

Don't let the proposals for a "value-added tax" fool you. There is a way to simplify our cumbersome tax procedures but this is not it.

Theoretically the "value-added tax" is paid by industry. Businesses would subtract expenses from sales and pay a percentage tax on the difference. Ha!

Industry pays no taxes, only people pay taxes.

When the National League of Cities surveyed "people," giving them a choice among property tax, income tax, auto tax, utility tax, sales tax, citizens of 12 major cities chose the sales tax as the one they "disliked least."

It's buried in the price of what they buy.

Politicians urging the value-added tax figure it enjoys a similar advantage: camouflage.

Politicians are understandably disinclined to "raise your taxes," instead they levy some new and different tax with some fancy-sounding name indicating it's a tax somebody else will pay.

But however they disguise it, you pay it. Combine the multiplicity of taxes, direct and indirect, and more than a third of your income goes to taxes. And this does not count the value of the hours you spend bookkeeping the whole thing?

There is a way to do away with cumbersome private bookkeeping and most costly government bookkeeping. The idea has been there all along, awaiting only the support of some heavyweight proponents.

Now Gov. Reagan is willing to give it his support.

A flat tax on everybody's gross income. And that is all. No deductions for anything. And no exceptions for anybody.

No loopholes and no dodges, no avoidance devices, no haggling, no accountants, no lawyers, no IRS agents, no W-2s, no 1040 forms, no proliferation of paperwork — x dollars come in, x percentage goes to the government.

You'd know precisely how much of each dollar is yours to spend.

Gov. Reagan fears there's no way to get it through Congress because "it's too uncomplicated."

Maybe, however, this year some presidential candidate who is long on ambition and short on ammunition might grab this ball and run with it.

Some of them talk vaguely of "reducing government extravagance and reducing taxes." Here's a way to do both, and, unlike most tax proposals, this is one any of us can understand.

More endorsements like Reagan's could help overcome resistance. Who's next who's willing really to simplify our tax system by throwing out the whole thing?

MR. SPECTATOR

Mother's Day

From my birth thru my childhood, Mother had such a Godly way... That it will live in memory, To be known as "Mother's Day."

There I lay on a fluffy pillow, snugly tucked in a little bed, Mother kneeling close beside me, Stroking my little sleepy head.

There was love in her spirit Or sometimes amusing beguile, Filling this heart with eternal love, And making her baby smile.

With all the kindness in her thoughts, Where the contentment spirit grows, In the Garden of Eden sanctuary, That only baby and mother knows.

There was sweetness in her heart, And no hardship too great to bear, In my most perfect immortal time, Where I lived and loved it there.

There is a mystic bond—I surmise That binds the two—God bestow—Of love, Hell's power can't separate, The only eternal love this world can know.

She rules her world with love, The after thought makes great men small, Guided by love from a spiritual force, With a mother's love that is Godly to all.

I passed to life's dreams—mortal— Guided with love and tender grace, Always this Angel watching over me, With smiles of happiness—an immortal face.

With kindly words and unselfish living, Such as great leaders cannot recall Between nations of selfishness and greed, Such mother's love means nothing at all.

I would like nations built with mother's love, To see nations and leaders bonded that way, Guided by God's love mother of all, And rule this world as "Mother's Day."

DOUBLE DECK ELEVATORS

It would seem that they've gone about as far as they can go in the elevator business, except maybe taking them higher and higher.

But there's a new wrinkle — the double-decked elevator, with two cars, one atop the other, in a single car frame.

Chicago, pioneer of the skyscraper, already has three big buildings with such elevators in use or under construction. The 56-story First International Building going up in Dallas will have the first double-deckers in the Southwest. Others are being installed in Boston and Toronto.

In Dallas, the Otis-built double-deck elevators will be grouped in four banks of six elevators each. Escalators will link the street floor and first basement levels, from which passengers will enter either the top or bottom cars, depending upon which upper floors they want to reach.

Major advantage of the new system is that a single shaft will be able to carry more passengers to more floors more quickly. Computers will be programmed to have an elevator answer calls on adjacent floors with a single stop. Less space taken up by elevator shafts also means more floor space can be used by occupants, or more of a building site can be developed as an open plaza.

NO WASTEBASKET

Newsmen who covered President Nixon's visit to China are still talking about how difficult — nay, impossible — it was to dispose of anything.

Wire service photographer Bill Achatz, for one, says he left a bottle of gin in his hotel room. "When I got to the airport, as we were leaving, a guy threaded his way through the crowd, tapped me on the shoulder and said 'You left this bottle back in your room.'"

"Someone else tried to get rid of a pair of old shoes and a couple of wire coat hangers at the hotel. They were delivered to him."

Maybe there's a clue here as to how the nation can solve some of its immense waste disposal problem — just require each of the several million visitors who come here every year to take back everything they brought in, plus an extra box or bag of our own junk.

Flight Rules Change Seen

By O. A. (GUS) KELKER
Editor, Times-News

Plans for upgrading flight rules — establishing higher standards for pilots and instructors — may mean hundreds of qualified fliers will have to quit taking to the wild blue because they will be unable to afford the added expense.

The announcement by government officials that a revision of Federal Aviation safer flying than exists now and, at the same time, will cause additional financial burdens on licensed pilots to the point where they will be unable to meet the requirements.

A "sketch" survey among Valley pilots shows they strongly favor a new requirement which would require a flight instructor's endorsement of a student pilot every 90 days and a check ride for all pilots at least every two years. Also favored is the requirement that every pilot must fly at least 24 hours every 12 months.

But some other planned changes in the laws of flying have birdmen of this area concerned. One is the contemplated mandatory requirement that all commercial pilots hold an instrument rating. Under this proposal a commercial pilot could only operate (and could not carry passengers for hire) a distance of 50 nautical miles from his or her base. There is some question as to whether a commercial license — without an instrument rating — would even permit that class pilot to carry passengers at all.

To gain an instrument rating would require some 40 hours of special flight training in addition to ground courses. The cost of such a program is placed at about $800.

To maintain an instrument rating a certain number of instrument flight hours are required each year. Pilots maintain that an instrument rating as such is of no value to any pilot who does not fly in "blind flying" weather.

Among student pilots, and those who would upgrade certificates they currently hold, many of the proposals are acceptable, including night flying experience, experience in the more complicated retractable landing gear planes and the upgrading of flight instructors.

In an interview at the Twin Falls City-County Airport, Harry Merrick, FAA designated pilot examiner and aviation accident counselor, detailed some of the proposed changes.

(1) A student pilot would be permitted to fly an airplane, without passengers, in furtherance of his business.

(2) An applicant for the private pilot or commercial certificate would need to have his logbook endorsed by a qualified instructor indicating that he has the knowledge required for the desired certificate before the actual test was taken.

(3) Flight time required for a commercial certificate would be raised from 200 to 250 hours, another 10 hours training in a complex aircraft and a mandatory instrument rating.

(4) The instructor would assume the full responsibility for the ground course and the flight course for every student.

(5) All pilots would take a flight check every two years, regardless of the number of hours flown, and at least 24 hours a year would have to be logged to maintain a license.

(6) Instructors would be required to train at least 10 applicants for a pilot certificate each year, and eight out of every 10 of these trainees would be required to pass the required tests — or at least 20 out of every 25.

(7) The instructor must have possessed a rating for at least two years and would be required to meet various other requirements in order to gain the "gold seal" rating which would permit him to function at a higher level of experience.

In Magic Valley there are 440 pilots of various license level who would come under the proposed rule changes. Merrick said that it is important that all pilots understand the proposed changes. He said a complete list of all currently proposed changes to Part 61 is to be found in the Federal Register of March 23, 1972 (Vol. 37, No. 57). Copies of this register can be obtained for 20 cents each by writing the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington D. C. 20402.

Comments on the changes (Notice No. 72-91 Docket 11802) should be sent to the FAA Rules Docket, GC-24, 800 Independence Avenue, S. W., Washington D. C. 20591.

The deadline for comments, Merrick said, has been set for July 21.

Presidents Of Manifest Destiny

MARTIN VAN BUREN
Eighth President

(Administration: March 4, 1837 to March 3, 1841)

(Editor's Note: This series of background stories concerning Presidents of the United States is brought to Times-News readers as a public service. It will continue until all Presidents have been discussed.)

Secretary of State Martin Van Buren's adroitness in treating the "Eaton malaria" which infected Andrew Jackson's first Administration was directly responsible for making him President of the United States.

Before this tempest in a teacup spilled over on high-ranking government officials, Vice President John C. Calhoun had been considered heir-apparent to the Presidency. However, when Mrs. Calhoun took the lead in denying Peggy Eaton social acceptance, President Jackson dropped Calhoun for Van Buren when the foppish New Yorker, a widower and social gadfly, found it easy to be charming to the young and pretty wife of Jackson's secretary of war, John H. Eaton. Characteristically the switch was abrupt and final, for there were no grays in Jackson's emotional spectrum. Ill and depressed over his wife's recent death, the President wrote an unprecedented "political last will" in January, 1829, to make sure his wishes were known regarding his successor.

"Permit me to say here of Mr. Van Buren," Jackson wrote, "... that he is well qualified to fill the highest office in the gift of the people. I wish I could say as much for Mr. Calhoun." As state senator and attorney general of New York, United States senator and governor of New York, Van Buren's credentials were impressive.

A close winner over four Whig Party candidates in 1836, President Van Buren boasted in his inaugural address that the nation represented "an aggregate of human prosperity surely not elsewhere to be found." Two months later the Panic of 1837 enveloped the nation.

Banks closed, stores, offices and factories, shut down and angry, unemployed crowds roamed and rioted in city streets. Ironically, the man who had made Van Buren President had also paved the way for his political Armageddon for two major factors in the economic upheaval were Jackson's "Specie Circular" and the destruction of the Bank of the United States.

Every outstanding President has used a social, political or economic imbalance to stamp his personal brand on the history of his time. Van Buren had shock waves of unrest in both the depression and slavery issues, but he lacked the forceful personality to make political capital of them.

Granted, two of his proposals, an independent treasury and the issuance of treasury notes for money, were enacted into law by Congress, but his term was nearly over then. He opposed slavery, but this was as much of a political debit as asset. Like Hoover a century later, Van Buren was more a scapegoat than a culprit. Just as the credit-crazy, bullish stock market in Coolidge's Administration had paved the way for the so-called "Hoover depression," so had Jackson's Specie Circular, requiring payment for public lands in coin, foredoomed Van Buren's Administration to the Panic of 1837.

A small, vain, almost effeminate man, Martin Van Buren lacked both the principles and the personality to lead his own party or to reconcile the divisiveness which quickly developed once Andrew Jackson's firm hand was removed from the nation's helm. Some of the opposition to Van Buren was simply anti-Jackson backlash, but much of it centered around the President's evasiveness on the explosive issue of slavery.

Van Buren was unanimously chosen as the Democratic-Republican nominee in 1840, marking the second and last time he was to be accorded political unanimity. However, there was such a lack of agreement concerning second place on the ticket that no vice presidential nomination was made.

This not only implied dissension in the party by refusing to endorse incumbent Vice President Richard M. Johnson, but it also deprived the President of potential aid from a popular vote getter.

The Whigs, masterminded by the unscrupulous but able Thurlow Weed, made no such tactical blunder. Bypassing such party luminaries as Henry Clay and Daniel Webster, they chose the popular old Indian fighter William H. Harrison of Ohio to head the ticket, balancing it with John Tyler of Virginia, a Democrat turned Whig for the occasion.

In a campaign that resembled a mudslinging contest more than a presidential election, a whopping 78 per cent of newly eligible voters under amended franchise laws turned out to give Harrison a close popular but solid electoral college victory.

Van Buren's political astuteness and agility had earlier earned him the sobriquet "The Little Magician," a term a French traveler loosely translated as "The American Talleyrand," and his recent opponents had painted a picture of the eighth President as an overfed, haughty aristocrat who ate from gold spoons and rode the streets of Washington in an elegant coach-and-four attended by a liveried footman.

In a nation still plagued by joblessness, fear and hunger, this was not a pretty picture nor an entirely accurate one. But there was enough truth in the charges to prevent Van Buren from obtaining public office again, although he was strong contender for the Democratic nomination in 1844 and was the Free Soil Party's candidate in 1848.

ROBERT ALLEN

Leave It To George?

WASHINGTON — Sen. George McGovern's unexpected emergence as a Democratic frontrunner is causing widespread tremors of shock and alarm among party leaders and stalwarts.

The jarring possibility is dawning on them that they may find themselves encumbered with a Presidential standard bearer who is out-and-out ultra-leftist.

Deeply concerned Democratic officials and authorities throughout the country are discovering on close scrutiny that McGovern, instead of being the "new populist," as his propagandists are busily portraying him, is actually, in the words of Sen. Henry Jackson, the champion and spearhead of the "new extremism."

And to leave no doubt of exactly what he means by that scathing characterization, the veteran Washington state Senator adds:

"McGovern has become the spokesman of some of the most dangerous and destructive currents in American politics. The stark reality is that the extremism of the left is gaining ominous ground in the Democratic party. The main vehicle for this suicidal drift is the candidacy of McGovern."

"Although he has adopted the extremist rhetoric and position of the discredited campus radicals, polls show that most Americans are unaware of how far he has gone. I am convinced McGovern means what he says. That's the trouble. Because if this drift continues, the Democratic party will pay dearly in November."

This is unusually harsh talk for a liberal of Jackson's impeccable and long-standing record — 32 years in Congress, steadfast labor supporter, intimate of President Kennedy, his hand-picked choice for Democratic National Chairman. Whatever else Jackson may be charged with, he is not "an old guarder" or "Red biter."

So is bluntly branding McGovern as a dangerous radical and extremist, Jackson is not only publicly giving voice to his own profound concern but that of a wide spectrum of other equally disturbed Democratic leaders.

Highly significant, McGovern has so far carefully ignored these public blasts and growing backstage storm at his extremism.

inner advisers (all long-time Kennedys) have discussed this potentially explosive development a number of times — with widely divided counsel. Some have urged a head-on and defiant denunciation. Others have advised saying nothing — pointing out that the great mass of voters are unaware of the castigations, and most of the press is saying and doing nothing about them. Remarkably one McGovern lieutenant, "Why stir up the animals? If our opposition can't do it, why should we help them by calling attention to what they are howling about?"

In the face of this divided opinion, McGovern is marking time.

But revealingly indicative that the bare-knuckled hammering of Sen. Jackson and others is getting under McGovern's skin is the backstage pussyfooting and denying that his close henchmen are engaging in.

For example, Pierre Salinger, press secretary of President Kennedy, now a paid member of McGovern's campaign staff, is telephoning newsmen explaining and temporizing his boss's stand on school busing legalization of marijuana and abortions. As Salinger mellifluously expounds it, McGovern doesn't mean exactly what he might be understood to mean.

Maybe so. But Sen. Jackson is calling the turn on McGovern flatly and directly and hasn't been denied as yet.

One reason is — the South Dakotan can't deny it. The record is irrefutable.

That explains his tight-lipped silence in the face of the scaldingly provocative denunciations. Currently, he has only two courses, admit the potentially torpedoing accusations, or attempt to mumble and fling them as Salinger is trying to do behind-the-scenes.

But if McGovern should get the nomination, he would then be able to back-and-fill and hem-and-haw all over the place with little fear of being challenged within Democratic ranks because of the danger that would disastrously boomerang against state and local Democratic candidates. Throughout the country they would be under urgent compulsion to hold their peace because disunity could be ruinous for all of them.

At least that is the likely strategy to be expected of McGovern. It's largely self-evident. But so also is the record of extremism and radicalism he is expounding, what Sen. Jackson tersely labels "The McGovern Doctrine... that would be a disaster for the American people."

Following are key tenets of this ultra-leftist doctrine:

40-plus billion a year to be taken from taxpayers earning more than $8,000 and giving it to these making less than that. Also those making more than $50,000 a year to be required to pay 75 per cent of the amount above that in taxes.

Guaranteed annual income of $4,000 for family of four.

Slash the defense budget by $39 billion — approximately 45 per cent — at a time when Russia is greatly expanding its worldwide naval and air strength. Also cut the nation's armed forces by around 45 per cent — from 2.5 million to 1.7 million. To this end, McGovern would reduce U. S. Troops in Europe by one-half, and virtually entirely in the Far East. To all intents, he would junk the NATO alliance, and drastically modify U.S. ties with and in support of Israel.

Grant full amnesty to draft-dodgers, deserters and defectors.

"Reliberalize" the U. S. Supreme and other Federal courts.

Radically "reorganize" and "overhaul" the FBI, which McGovern has repeatedly attacked in extremist terms.

Illustration: Condemnation of the late director J. Edgar Hoover as a "menace to citizens."

Establish what in effect would be a distinct form of socialized medicine.

Internationally, pursue a generally isolationist policy, with a strong overtones of close diplomatic and trade ties with Russia, Red China and other Communist countries, including Cuba.

Addendum: As part of McGovern's strategy in California's crucial June 6 primary, he has launched a vigorous drive to win the considerable Chicano vote. A lot of money from Hollywood and other theatrical McGovern supporters is going into this campaign. A number of young Chicano activists are being added to McGovern's already big paid electioneering staff to round up votes among their people.

The inside word is that McGovern is earmarking $2 million for his California scramble, with at least $500,000 for television splurging. In Ohio, where he came in second, his campaign cost more than $300,000. Says one McGovern insider: "Easy come, easy go. We are getting a lot of money in, and we are spending it. Why not? That's paying off."

That Blind Spot

Editor, Times-News:

We implore those of you who are driving from north or south at Red Cap Corner to be especially cautious before pulling out into the four lane Kimberly Road. After you have stopped, look right, look left and then do it again. There is a blind spot in your windshield and it only takes an instant at that point for you not to see a car approaching.

Can you imagine what would happen if a truck loaded with twenty tons traveling at the legal speed of sixty miles an hour would do to you if you should pull out in front of him? Some of you have already done this and just barely missed being a statistic. We have seen this happen numerous times.

Would you believe on an average, there is a car using this intersection every two seconds and even more often in the morning and evening. It is surprising how quickly a car coming from the east traveling west is upon you at this intersection. Make doubly sure you have sufficient time to clear this intersection.

Also, remember that you should, in making a left hand turn, go first into the lane nearest you and when you are sure you are clear then go into the right hand lane. The biggest percentage of you driving this route swing to the far side the first time. Many times you cause an accident to the car approaching from the east, but you go on your merry way for evidently you aren't even aware of the grief you have caused. We want to enjoy our patio this summer, so please help us eliminate our near heart attacks and grief from accidents and near-accidents on our corner.

Museum

Editor, Times-News:

Have you been to the Twin Falls Museum this spring? More outside exhibits have been added and the basement of the museum has been made into attractive displays. I feel we have one of the cleanest and more informative museums in the state.

Did you know school children and youth organizations are admitted free of charge? Since April, 371 pupils have visited and 290 more have appointments for this month.

Memberships to the Twin Falls County Historical Society are only $1.50 a year. This entitles you to free admission to the museum, field trips and winter meetings. This money, plus donations are our main source of supporting the museum. We hope organizations will consider the museum for club projects, and people will leave memorials for the restoration and preservation of history. Any financial or material donations will be appreciated.

Lamb Story

Editor, Times-News:

Recently we were visitors at the "Ice Caves" off Highway 93.

While waiting for the tour to start, I observed four young men running down a lamb in the pasture adjoining the Ice Caves display building. Shortly thereafter, I overheard a girl relate to another girl "we got a lamb."

Am I wrong in concluding this lamb was taken illegally? If I am wrong, that is good. If I am not wrong then the ranchers should know that it isn't always the coyote that kills his lambs.

Prayer For Today

Dear God, today I learned all over again what a warm, wonderful feeling it gives one to receive unexpected praise. It made me wonder why I don't more often let people know that I notice a special quality they possess or a special effort they are making. Maybe I just don't take time to notice enough of the good things. Please help me to look for the good in others and remember to praise someone every day, for, as the Psalmist said, "Praise is comely."

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Republican National Chairman Robert Dole Saturday denounced what he called "an attempted media sabotage" of President Nixon's Vietnam policies and said "it could cost lives" of American GIs.

The Kansas senator told a loudly applauding convention of 900 California Republicans that the news media's "historic bias" on the war has given it a vested interest in our defeat.

Nuclear carrier Nimitz launched

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (UPI) — The nuclear carrier Chester W. Nimitz was launched Saturday with Admiral Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, proclaiming the $605.8 million vessel "the greatest ship in the world."

About 4,000 persons stood under fair skies as the 95,000-ton Nimitz, the nation's second nuclear carrier, slipped slowly into the James River at the Newport News Shipbuilding Yard. The Nimitz, named after the late fleet admiral, is expected to be completed by September, 1973.

Chemical curb due by agency

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency, acting on a federal task force report, said Saturday it would curb industrial discharges of PCBs, a DDT-like chemical used as a machinery coolant which has caused birth defects in laboratory rats.

The task force, representing eight federal agencies, recommended in a 181-page report that PCBs be "restricted to essential or nonreplaceable uses which involve minimal direct human exposure" but advised against an outright ban on the industrially valuable compounds.

The EPA said it would curb industrial discharges so that PCB levels in lakes and rivers do not exceed 0.01 parts per billion.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) already has proposed regulations designed to keep PCB's out of food.

Addison problems meet due

TWIN FALLS — City Manager Jean Milar said he is planning a meeting, probably early this week, to air problems of business firms on Addison Avenue West.

In a special public hearing this past Monday night Clyde Lewis of the Dunes Motel told the City Council firms along the street are suffering a severe loss of business because of difficulty with teen-age drivers and other young people in the area.

Milar said he plans to meet with Police Chief Frank Barnett and City Attorney William Langley, both out of town this past week, to determine what can be done to give the residents and business owners of the area a course of action which will be legal and effective. He said the only recourse open to them now is to sign complaints and most are reluctant to do so or are unable to obtain sufficient identification of those causing trouble.

Lewis told the council young motorists use his parking area for a turn-around and then as they turn back toward the street park in his driveway blocking customers who would like to enter.

He said he has had no cooperation from police but was told officers must have assistance from the individual in the way of a signed complaint before they can make arrests involving matters occurring on private property.

Air safety dinner set

BOISE (UPI) — The 12th Annual Boise Area Safety Awards Banquet May 19 will be the kick-off event for the two-day Idaho Air Fair says Darrell Manning, director of the Department of Aeronautics.

He said residents of Twin Falls County must realize Twin Falls is the educational and medical center of the Magic Valley and on the threshold of a whole new development. Leonard said he is a strong advocate of the county council on planning and resources and on multi-county planning.

In the past he has served on highway, school and farm boards and committees. He was a former Filer Highway District chairman and vice president of the American Falls Reservoir District.

High bids for term in Senate

TWIN FALLS — Sen. Richard S. High, R-Twin Falls, announced Saturday he will seek re-election to the Idaho State Senate.

Sen. High will be seeking his fourth two-year term.

Sen. High is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and co-chairman of the Legislative Fiscal-Budget Committee.

He is a member of the Senate Resources and Environment Committee, the Multistate Tax Compact Advisory Committee and the Idaho American Revolution Bicentennial Commission.

Sen. High is a farmer and former business man. He is running in District 26 (formerly called District 23) which includes eastern Twin Falls County and most of Twin Falls City.

"It has been a privilege serving the people of my district and I hope I can serve them effectively in the future," High said.

Kimberly man draws drug term

TWIN FALLS — Orson Thompson, 20, Kimberly, was sentenced to a total of 16 years in the state penitentiary Friday on charges of sale of drugs.

Thomson, who appeared in Fifth District Court before Judge Theron Ward, is one of more than a dozen young men arrested in related cases since Jan. 31. He is one of those taken into custody in the initial roundup on Jan. 31.

Thomson was charged with four counts of illegal dispensation of drugs including marijuana and hashish and received a four-year sentence on each count. Two of the sentences are to run concurrently and two consecutively.

Pilot license meet set in T.F.

TWIN FALLS — Proposed changes in pilot certification will highlight a meeting in Twin Falls Wednesday night.

The session, featuring officials of the Federal Aviation Administration, will start at 8 p.m. at Room 117 of the College of Southern Idaho Shields Building. All area pilots are urged to attend.

Jack W. Van DeRiet, Boise, one of the officials, said the proposed changes in flight law involve such new rules as a flight check for all pilots every two years and a required minimum number of pilot hours every 12 months.

"Pilots should come to this meeting to discuss the proposals," he said. He added that density altitude in connection with summer flight would also be detailed.

Crash leaves bus mangled, 14 dead

Bus-truck crash kills 14

BEAN STATION, Tenn. (UPI)—A double-deck Greyhound bus, behind schedule and barreling along an East Tennessee mountain highway in the gloom of a wet dawn, slammed into a tractor trailer Saturday killing 14 persons and reducing the two vehicles to wads of twisted junk.

"It was a nightmare," said Mrs. Thea Jackson of Mobile, Ala., one of the 15 survivors of the accident, which happened at 5:45 a.m. EDT about 40 miles northeast of Knoxville on twisting, two-lane U.S. 11W. Mrs. Jackson, who was enroute to Beckley, W. Va., where her daughter is hospitalized with pneumonia, said she was asleep when the crash occurred and was awakened by a rap on the head. She said she heard a baby crying, the bus motor still running ... and then it was "panic."

The bus was split in two by the impact and the tractor-trailer, loaded with paste and vinyl floor covering, exploded in an inferno that melted much of the vehicle.

"People were lying everywhere," said state trooper David Burke Jr. Most of the dead were taken from the upper deck of the bus.

Although it had been raining throughout much of East Tennessee during the night, the rain did not hit here until about the time of the crash, and Burke said the road was "bone dry" at the time of the collision. Minutes later the skies opened up and the rescue work was done in the rain.

The highway patrol said the northbound bus was in the southbound lane when it met the truck, almost head on.

Five of the passengers aboard the bus were children. Three were killed, one was injured and one escaped virtually unharmed.

Greyhound said the bus was bound from Knoxville, Tenn., with stops at Roanoke, Va., and Washington, D.C. It had left Knoxville at 3:40 a.m. EDT, 10 minutes behind schedule, and was to have arrived in Roanoke at noon.

Authorities declined to speculate on the cause of the accident.

Tax reform delay told

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon has decided not to ask Congress for comprehensive tax reforms this election year despite Democratic demands, but will seek tax law changes next year if re-elected, his chief domestic adviser said Saturday.

The aide, John D. Ehrlichman, told reporters the President made the decision following a breakfast meeting Thursday with Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, and Rep. John Byrnes, the committee's ranking Republican.

Ehrlichman said Nixon had concluded that "it is not in the national interest or in the interest of taxpayers to consider changes in the tax code in the 1972 election year ... It was decided that it would be bad business to ask Congress to act in a political year."

Regarding tax reform proposals by some of the candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination, including Sens. George S. McGovern and Edmund S. Muskie and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, Ehrlichman said, "There are a lot of phony tax facts running around about the current tax system."

Ehrlichman did say, however, he believed taxes should be in issue in the election campaign and "it is important to spotlight it." He termed Nixon the "taxpayers' friend," saying he has tried to reduce "the little man's tax burden."

"I don't intend the issue should be taken out of the heat of the campaign," Ehrlichman said. "I just say a congressional vote should not be taken in an election year. National debate can only lead to good results. We have an affirmative obligation to go ahead."

Price control plan defended

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (UPI)—The chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, Herbert Stein, acknowledged Saturday that some companies probably would get "stuck" by the government's price controls. But overall he said, the system is fair to businessmen and healthy for the economy.

Stein met with reporters after speaking to the Business

Council, a semi-official government advisory group of about 200 top corporate executives, and he said members of the council had questioned him about the Price Commission's profit margin rule.

The rule allows a firm to increase profits by selling more goods, but places a ceiling on the amount it can earn by raising prices. The ceiling is tied to a base period—the average of the best two of the company's last three fiscal years.

"The profit margin ceiling will not hinder a big increase in total profits this year" and, despite the imposed limit, corporate profits should resemble those in a normal year of economic expansion, Stein said.

"I'm not going to say that some companies aren't going to get stuck ... some people are going to be unhappy (but) we have to look at the total effect."

HHH gains Wyoming support

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI)—Sen. Hubert Humphrey took a small but significant victory at the Wyoming State Democratic Convention Saturday when seven of the state's national convention delegates said they supported the Minnesota Democrat.

The 20 delegates, six uncommitted, showed their backing for Humphrey in a secret UPI poll.

Sen. George McGovern was endorsed by four delegates, and Sen. Edmund Muskie received two supporters and Rep. Teno Rappallo, D-Wyo., said he was momentarily behind the campaign of Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark.

McGovern forces were enlightened Saturday when delegates nominated their four final convention representatives from the floor.

Barbara Banister, a Casper black, and Linda Dover, a 25-year-old University of Wyoming student, were elected after announcing they favored the South Dakota legislator.

US support 'myth' hit

DENVER (UPI)—Representatives of 1.5 million American Baptists, bitterly divided over Vietnam policy, were told Saturday that it was time to scrap the "myth" of blind support for the nation's foreign and domestic programs.

Mrs. Mabel Martin, American Baptist Convention (ABC) representative to the United Nations, said the "myth" of my country, right or wrong, was outdated and ignored serious flaws in U.S. policy.

Mrs. Martin spoke less than 12 hours after 6,000 delegates to the annual ABC convention voted down a resolution which criticized President Nixon's blockade of North Vietnam harbors.

BONNIE TROWNSON — PHILLIP SMITH

award recipients

Wendell seniors receive awards

WENDELL — Bonnie Trownson and Phillip Smith are recipients of the Bausch Lomb Science Award of the Wendell High School.

Supt. Lawrence LaRue said the award is significant because it recognizes the seniors with the highest scholastic standing in science subjects, those who have shown the most aptitude and done the most outstanding work in the sciences.

Miss Trownson is the daughter of Wes Trownson and the late Bonnie Trownson. She is co-valedictorian of her class with a 4.0 grade point average. She has been a cheerleader throughout high school, a member of the National Honor Society, FHA, French Club, Pep Club and the Ski Club.

Philip Smith, 16, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith. He has scored the highest on the National Math Standardized Test in the Wendell High School for the past two years. This year he had the highest composite score and the highest percentile (98) in natural science of all seniors in the high school on the American College Test.

He is a member of the school French Club, the Business Club, is a four-year seminary graduate and expects to study chemistry at the University of Idaho.

Bronze medallions will be presented to the students during the annual high school awards assembly for their achievement.

Dietrich aides

DIETRICH — Den Durfee was returned to the Dietrich board of trustees unopposed and Leonard Rogers was named to fill the other board vacancy.

Results, announced today following an election canvass, show Durfee re-elected in Zone 5 and Rogers elected over Joseph Nishimoto in Zone 3. He will fill the unexpired term of Boyd Anderson who moved into another zone.

School trustees have granted a $10 per month salary increase for school bus drivers and authorized $6,000 for the purchase of office machines in the vocational business department.

Blue room rites scheduled Monday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pat Nixon will complete the major restoration on the state floor of the White House Monday with the formal unveiling of the newly decorated Blue Room.

A chief source of income for the renovation came from the sale of guidebooks by the White House Historical Association, which contributed $972,544 from 1962 to 1971.

Ensemble to play

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Percussion Ensemble will present its annual program Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the CSI auditorium.

The group is selected from five of his best private students by David Follingstad, music instructor at Valley High School.

Members are Mona Morrison, Steve High, Jay Ronk and Mickey Speers, all of Twin Falls; and Roger Iverson, Piler. The group is accompanied by flutist Barbara Harris, Twin Falls.

The group is finishing its third year, with most recent performances being the opening of National Music Week in Twin

Their repertoire includes a medley of Burt Bacharach tunes as recorded by the Carpenters.

Admission to the program is free, but donations to cover the cost of auditorium rental will be accepted. Follingstad wishes to thank the Twin Falls School District, Del Slaughter, music director, for the use of rehearsal facilities and equipment.

By Frank Schell

From F. H. Goding: Enclosed is a token I found with my metal detector.

I was interested in your Sunday article. I have a silver certificate, Series 1957B, $1 note, signature of Kathryn O'Hay Granahan.

I would appreciate knowing the value of a silver dollar I have with a date of 1879.

Answer: Thank you, very much for the medal you sent. It will go in my Idaho collection with the rest of the material I have. The 1957B-Granahan-Dillon note presently sells in crisp uncirculated condition for about $4. The buying price for this note, uncirculated, would be about $3.

There are four silver dollars for the year 1879. Philadelphia, Carson City, San Francisco and New Orleans. You mention no mintmark, so I will list prices on all four — in average condition and in very fine condition.

The Philadelphia, which was struck in over 14 million copies, sells from $2.15 to $3; the Carson City mintage 756,000, from $12.50 to $13.00; the San Francisco, from $2.15 to $3 (9 million struck); the New Orleans mintage almost 3 million, $2.15 to $3.50. These are Blue Book prices and about what a dealer will pay for the coins.

Thank you very much for writing.

From S. S. Buhl: I saw some $2 bills at a recent show which were selling for $5 each. Are they worth this much now, or was the dealer too high on his price? I have several I would like to sell for this price. Please tell me where I can take them to sell.

Answer: There are a lot of $2 bills — and the selling price depends upon the condition of the note, the date of issue, and the demand for them.

First — in order to command a premium, the note must be crisp and new, except in a few cases of scarce notes. Second — only the earlier issues bring high prices. Third — the later issues of $2 bills are priced at $5 at shows and places where the demand is liable to be high.

Most of the late issues can be bought for $3.50, brand new, and I would imagine you could do some "horse-trading" on this price.

For your information, The Woods-Mills note, of the 1928B Series is the scarcest of the small type of $2 notes, and you could get around $200 for an uncirculated copy. This is due to the fact that the quantity issued was small. Only one other $2 note approaches this one, the 1928A, which is worth about $50 uncirculated. Others of the earlier notes bring from $5 up to about $25.

Also, notes which have been folded or torn, or are dirty, bring much lower figures. Don't value your notes on the uncirculated price unless they are fully new. Any defect in the note brings the price down rapidly. For instance, the note of 1928B, valued around $200 uncirculated, drops to about $75 in a fine grade, and would bring much less than that in any lower grade.

Consequently, the $5 price you quoted would probably be for late date notes — possibly the 1963 or 1963A notes (the last ones printed) and would be, in my opinion, too high a figure to pay, unless you want one to show your friends, for a conversation piece.

Reading's fun for 4th grade puppeteers

TWIN FALLS — What started out as an aid to reading has ended in a group of skilled puppeteers. "The Peach Tree Players."

Ann Daily, fourth grade teacher at Bickel Elementary School, contrived one puppet show, "The Three Billy Goats," to help her children get more enjoyment from learning to read.

The show was such a hit that Miss Daily has put eight shows into "production" and now has a ninth in "rehearsal."

Besides the "Billy Goats," the children have performed "Jack and the Beanstalk," "Visit from Outer Space," "Punch and Judy and the Pie," "Spring Magic," "The Bear and the Honey Bucket," "Lazy Jack" and an Italian play, "The Cricket Hunt." "Cinderella" will be presented before the end of the term.

Miss Daily has constructed 40 puppets for the shows. They include hand puppets, stick puppets and glove puppets.

The children handling the puppets in each different play take their moving stage from room to room to perform for other classes at the school. The other class members and Miss Daily go on with their regular work while the show is "on the road."

The children made the scenes and properties to place in the cardboard box stage.

The children have become so engrossed in the puppets that many have made ones at home in addition to the ones provided at the school by Miss Daily.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

In one of the early rounds of the Vanderbilt, both teams reached four spades after identical bidding. Both Wests opened the six of diamonds and both declarers tried to cash three rounds of diamonds only to have East ruff the third lead.

One declarer discarded the seven of hearts and could not make his contract after East led a trump and West cashed the ace and led a second one.

Jack Blair of Tulsa, whose team went on to get to the finals, recovered by overruffing, leading the seven of hearts and letting it ride to East's queen.

East led a trump and West played ace and another, but Jack won in dummy and led the jack of hearts. East ducked and Jack discarded. West took his king and led a fourth diamond.

Jack ruffed in dummy and led the 10 of hearts. East held back his ace, but it did him no good since Jack discarded another club and continued hearts to wind up making his contract and gaining a valuable 13 IMPs.

The hand is interesting indeed as the best line of play would have been to win the first diamond and lead a heart at trick two, but the actual play of three rounds of diamonds would have been better had diamonds run three times.

When they failed to break nicely, Jack found a most ingenious way to recover.

What do you do now?

A—Bid one heart. If you re-spond one spade, you may lose the heart suit. This way, your partner can bid one spade if he holds four of them.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Since enough, your partner does bid one spade. What do you do now?

Answer Monday

Approximately 60 cents of every dollar on your hospital bill is used to pay wages and salaries.

Baptist banquet planned

Absolute equality for women in U.S. Air Force

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Brig. Gen. Jeanne M. Holm is the first Air Force woman to wear a general's star, but she almost didn't.

If she had had her way, she would be in the Army.

She served in the Women's Army Corps during World War II, and was discharged with the rank of captain. Congress decided the Army did not need women in peace time.

While she was enrolled in Lewis & Clark College at Portland, Ore., she heard from the Defense Department. If Congress should authorize permanent military service for women, would she be interested in returning?

She checked an affirmative response, "without paying much attention to the questionnaire."

But congressional approval came through, and almost immediately she was directed to take the required examination and then to report to the Pentagon. She borrowed enough money to drive across the country with another female recruit, sleeping in the car at night. "I was flat broke," she said.

She was sworn in to the military with no delay and sent for initial training to Ft. Lee, Va., where she discovered with dismay that the skirt of her World War II uniform was unfashionably short. So a large part of her first pay was spent on new uniforms.

The dust had just begun to settle when she once more heard from the Defense Department. "Welcome to the Air Force." That was how she learned that when she affirmed her wish to return to military service she inadvertently indicated the Air Force was her preference.

Women willing to enlist in military service then were hard to come by, and the Air Force was unwilling to release the captain. So she bought some new uniforms and reported for duty.

She has not regretted the switch, and she said young women apparently share her sentiments since they are showing increasing interest in Air Force careers. Travel is an important lure, she said, and the assurance of adequate pay, decent living and working conditions, and visible career opportunities are persuasive.

But Gen. Holm believes the prime attraction may be the absolute equality with men in jobs, promotion, and pay.

Episcopal women priests, bishops

WOLFEBORO, N.H. (UPI) —

The Episcopal Church of New Hampshire endorsed the ordination of women to be priests and bishops Saturday. A similar resolution was passed last week by the Episcopal Diocese of New York.

The resolution to allow women to enter the priesthood came by a two-to-one margin among the 250 delegates attending the 170th Diocesan convention. Both the New Hampshire and New York resolutions must be approved at the Episcopal Church's national convention next year in Louisville, Ky.

Miss Betty Washington, 21, of Conway, a descendant of President George Washington, has already been accepted at three Episcopal seminaries.

One woman delegate at the convention said the move was long overdue. "We're not stupid; we're capable of running the church," she said.

But another woman delegate, who voted against the resolution, said, "I hope these young women who want to be priests of the church have husbands at home who will do the wash."

Leaders elected

Mrs. Hovey heads Dilettante group

TWIN FALLS — Results of the election of Dilettante officers for 1972-1973 were released Friday.

Jean Hovey was elected president by acclamation. Completing the slate are Larry Christensen, vice president; Karen Dalton, secretary; Senneth Ward, treasurer; Liz Pierce, historian, and Tom Driscoll, three-year board member.

Members-at-large selected to complete the board included Joe King, Terri Wood, Diane Hickerson, Miriam Breckenridge, Mary Cook, Bob Latham and Rex Reed.

These officers will now undertake the task of selecting the musical production and key directorial posts for the show scheduled for spring, 1973.

This show will be the 15th consecutive Dilettante musical performed in the Magic Valley. The most recent production, "Guys and Dolls," was well received and, as in the past, every effort will be exerted to bring a good adaptation of the best of the New York musical theater.

Hints

Fabrics chosen for furniture and windows should be compatible in design (color, pattern and texture), also compatible in style with other furnishings and with the background of the room.

Sometimes a coffee cup will hold the same amount as a measuring cup. To test, fill a measuring cup with sugar. Pour the sugar into the coffee cup. If the sugar fills this cup, you can use it as a 1-cup measurement.

Before donating an old but working toaster or waffle iron to a charity for sale, clean it up. The clean old things move

In looking at laundry or dishwashing equipment, remember that those with a safety that shuts off a cycle when the door or lid is opened are best.

Serendipity

By Margie Morris

TWIN FALLS — I've never prided myself on my cooking.

The main reason, I think, is that being a really good cook takes so much time out of what is usually for me a busy day. I do maintain, however, that to be a passable cook one must only be able to read.

In spite of my cooking philosophy, I've become, since moving to Twin Falls, an exciting cook. Few Magic Valley cooks can have the kitchen experiences I've had and live to tell about it.

Nearly two years ago, we asked Harry Brown to dinner. Billye, his wife, was in Virginia and I had promised to prepare Harry's birthday dinner. I turned out a fine fried chicken dinner plus birthday cupcakes from the bakery. Having forgotten to prepare coffee, I apologetically placed the tea kettle on the stove for instant and returned to the table.

Minutes later the kettle began to whistle and seconds later, so did I. As I approached the stove, sparks shot out and hot bits of metal began flying around the kitchen. I immediately did what any other woman would do in the same situation: I began jumping up and down and screaming.

My husband dashed to the rescue of the stove, tea kettle and me. The burner and kettle had gaping holes. I only sustained frazzled nerves.

Our electrician assured me that we experienced a once-in-a-lifetime gas bubble in the electric element. Ah Ah . . . little did the electrician know that we would move and inherit a stove that didn't realize it was already had the "pleasure" of a once-in-a-lifetime happening.

Yes, it happened again — but with three minor differences. This time it was the oven element and the flying debris and sparks were enclosed; dinner was only half-baked and we had to eat at a restaurant; and this time, thank goodness, Harry wasn't here to watch my command performance in the kitchen.

If you ever come to dinner at our home, remember I said I was an exciting cook — not a good one!

WAC general endorses Nixon's move on Haiphong

NEW YORK (UPI) — The lady

with the star of the brigadier general's rank on her shoulders said of herself, "I've been described variously as the gentle general, the general who takes off her shoes when her feet hurt, and a female chauvinist pig."

The officer, laughing as she recalls this, is Brig. Gen. Mildred Carole Bailey, Director of the Women's Army Corps (WAC) since last August.

This May 14, the WAC observes its 30th birthday. In August, the general will celebrate her 30th year with the Tenth Army of the U.S. Army.

"I'm glad I never retired," said the head of a corps numbering 13,000 women. "I think now is the WAC's most challenging time since World War II."

"It's a time of change, to know when to act, when not to."

She endorses President Nixon's move to mine Haiphong harbor. "It is my personal opinion any other president would have had to make the same decision," she said. "I think he felt he did what we had to do in view of our commitments to the Free World." And he is her commander-in-chief.

I talked with General Bailey when she came to New York from her Washington, D.C. base to make a graduation talk to Army chaplains at Ft. Hamilton. She said the nation's move to an all-volunteer force was one which could succeed only if it has "full support of the American public."

What about the young militants, especially on campuses, who are demonstrating, holding sit-ins, are volatile and often violent in protest to America's role in Vietnam?

"I don't know," she said. "Not now, I don't. As I said, I think everything depends on the support of the American people."

The general is one of two women with that rank in the Army; the other brigadier is Lillian Dunlap, head of the Nurses Corps. Recently the Navy got into the feminist act by nominating a woman as an admiral and she said the Air Force also has nominated a woman for general's rank, heading its Nurses Corps.

General Bailey, talking about the effect of women's liberation, said its militants had loaded her desk with mail but there had been no "hammering on my door" on the issue of equal rights.

WAC's get the same pay anyway as their male counterparts and if someone says equality also should mean women going into combat she says, "I just point out that we have a U.S. law that prohibits us in the front lines. Congress would have to change the law."

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: My sister and her husband separated about three months ago. They have two children, 6 and 3. The father moved to a neighboring state (with another woman), but before he left, he promised the six-year-old that he would write to him.

Abby, that poor kid has been going to the mailbox looking for a letter every day since his father left and so far he hasn't received a line.

Would it be wrong of me to write a letter, making believe it was from the dad's father? I'd say something like, "The reason you haven't heard from me is because I've been so busy getting settled, then I wouldn't mention anything about writing again, so the little fellow wouldn't get his hopes up and expect another letter."

I know it would make my nephew very happy, and there would be no harm done.

What do you think, Abby?

AUNTIE

DEAR AUNTIE: I think you mean well, Auntie, but I'd advise against it. William Penn said: "A good end cannot sanctify evil means, nor must we ever do evil that good may come of it." I'm with William.

DEAR ABBY: This is my problem and you are my last resort:

Five months ago my father in law borrowed a large amount of money (for us anyway) because he said he wanted to get a divorce. At the time we didn't know that he was planning a big wedding and a two-week honeymoon in Mexico.

The unwritten agreement was that he would pay us back in 60 days. Well, it is now five months later and we have not seen one dime of our money.

My husband has been out of work and our baby has been sick off and on for the last couple of months, and we could sure use our money.

If my father in law didn't have the money, I could understand, but he seems to have money for furniture and house improvements. Any suggestions?

HOPEFUL

DEAR HOPEFUL: It's those "unwritten agreements" that are hard to hold people to. Talk to a lawyer. You may have given your father in law a much more generous wedding gift than you intended to.

DEAR ABBY: Larry and I are in our twenties and have been married for two years. We have been a happy couple up to this point except for one thing.

Last summer Larry started to bet on the horses, and ever since then he has been betting them regularly. He goes to school during the daytime, but he works a 4 p. m. to midnight shift. Right now he is off work with a broken leg (skiing) but he goes to BINGO every chance he gets.

The way Larry gambles we can't save anything. I work and do my part, but I can't carry the whole load.

If it weren't for Larry's gambling he would be a perfect husband. He doesn't drink or smoke and he is very respectable. He says he loves me and I come first, but I am beginning to wonder.

Have you any suggestions?

FIRST (AFTER GAMBLING)

DEAR FIRST: My guess is that Larry is a compulsive gambler, and unless he is willing to help himself, no one can help him. I can put him in touch with GAMBLERS ANONYMOUS if he can't find it listed in his telephone directory. I'm not a gambling woman, but it's eight to five they can help him. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I was raised a Lutheran but I am not a member of any church. I am presently engaged to a Catholic girl. She wants to be married in the Catholic church by a priest, but I do not.

After many discussions, neither one of us is willing to convert. We still love each other and feel that we could make a go of marriage in spite of the religious difference. What are the possibilities of a wedding?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: You could have a civil marriage which would be legal, but not recognized by the church. Unless your Catholic fiancée leaves her church (or persuades you to join it) I would say you are at a stalemate.

TF man displays paintings

TWIN FALLS — Lee M. Logan is the First Security Bank May Artist of the Month.

Some of his paintings are on display in the lobby of the bank. Logan was raised in Hobart, Okla., and knew members of the Kiowa Indian tribe. He was a boyhood friend of Chief Skinny Spotted Bird's nephew, Austin, and as a result was privileged to paint portraits of the chief, Austin and members of the tribe. These early portraits, painted around the council fires, were among Logan's early art efforts.

From 1919 through 1921, he studied at the Kansas City Art Institute under the tutelage of Charles Williams.

He moved west in 1924 and has since concentrated mostly on painting western landscapes, ranging from desert to mountains. Among his subjects are the Grand Tetons, Sun Valley and the nearby Stanley Basin country, the Oregon Coast and the Coachella Valley around Palm Springs.

Logan has paintings in homes in the states of Arizona, California and Oklahoma besides the many owned by Twin Falls residents.

CARPET ADVANTAGES

Today, no room is complete without the carpet treatment and its popularity is well justified. It not only is a great decorating tool but carpet's contribution to the quiet of the home alone makes it deserving of the gold-star treatment.

Carpet provides safety in many areas throughout a home, particularly on stairways, in bathrooms, kitchens and in any area where a fall could lead to injuries.

The durability of carpeting as well as ease of care, gives it a special spot in the home where the action is. And why not? No more back breaking chores of scrubbing, waxing and buffing. It's certainly more comfortable to walk on and it's far less fatiguing.

During winter it also helps to insulate your home and eliminate those cold floors.

Now it is the time to buy and install your carpet and at Volco, Inc., our personnel are well qualified to help you choose the correct carpet. They can also help with any decorating problems you may have.

Hints

Do not scour Teflon-coated cooking surfaces with steel wool, metal scouring pads or abrasives. These will damage the finish. Such cookware will release food particles and grease when put in hot sudsy water. Stubborn stains take soaking plus scrubbing with a plastic sponge.

One out of every seven persons in the U.S. — about 30 million — will be a hospital inpatient this year.

When selecting a vacation or travel wardrobe, think separates. Choose wash-and-wear pants, pantskirts and shirts to mix and match. If you plan to do any swimming, take at least two swimsuits and a coverup. For after five, fashions on the go range from short to long and it's wise to have both looks in your wardrobe.

To launder white shoelaces without tangling, put them into an old nylon stocking, tie it at both ends, and drop it into the washer with a white load.

Check washing instructions carefully when using small electrical cooking appliances, such as skillets and deep fryers. Some may be immersed in suds while others should be suds sponged and scrubbed, taking care not to wet the electrical connection.

American women misinformed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A study of 4,611 women between the ages of 15 and 19 has concluded that 46 per cent of all unmarried American women have had sexual intercourse by the time they reach 19.

The report, prepared for the President's Commission on Population Growth and the American Future, also said teen-age girls are misinformed about the time during their menstrual cycle when they are most likely to become pregnant, and that a solid majority of teen-age girls use contraceptives infrequently or not at all.

The survey concluded that nationwide 13.8 per cent of all unmarried girls have experienced intercourse by the age of 15. For age 16 the figure is 21.2 per cent; age 17 it rises to 26.6 per cent; 37.1 per cent at age 18 and 46.1 per cent at age 19.

Fancy That

By Norma Herzinger

TWIN FALLS — Find someone — and share it!

That statement could cover a multitude of sins, but, no matter what the subject, often times it is easier said than done. In this instance, however, I'm referring to "maturity," a word described by many, but attained by considerably fewer.

Theoretically, maturity is a natural transition. Yet, today's "synthetic" society denies individuals their full potential — especially when one can "survive" on hatred alone, or love, self-pity, possession, greed, jealousy, etc.

Is any one of these enough to constitute the word, "living," let alone to allow room to grow? Hopefully not. However, many people are content to go along day after day taking, but never contributing.

Sharon LaFray, Jerome County extension home economist, incorporated an article in her May newsletter which very adequately describes maturity. It contained, in part, "Maturity is the ability to control oneself and settle differences without violence or destruction; patience; the willingness to pass up immediate pleasure in favor of the long-term gain; and perseverance, the ability to sweat out a project or a situation in spite of opposition, and discouraging setbacks."

"Maturity is unselfishness — responding to the needs of others, often at the expense of one's own wishes or desires; the capacity to face unpleasantness and frustrations, discomfort and defeat, without complaint or collapse, and humility, being big enough to say 'I was wrong.' And, when right, the mature person need not say, 'I told you so.'"

"Maturity is the ability to make decisions and stand by them, because the immature spend their time exploring endless possibilities — then doing nothing."

"Maturity means dependability, keeping one's word, coming through in a crisis. The immature are masters of alibi — confused and disorganized. Their lives are a maze of broken promises, former friends, unfinished business and good intentions which never materialize."

How would it be?

Funds collected

MORE THAN $9,000 has been collected in this year's Twin Falls County Cancer Crusade. Here Mrs. Ron Licht presents the money to Harold O. Hove, Twin Falls Bank and Trust, who is in charge of the fund. Most of the money was collected in a two-day drive May 3-4.

TF youth to attend science program

TWIN FALLS — Richard Ruffing, a junior at Twin Falls High School, will participate in a six-week student science training program this summer at Moscow.

Ruffing was chosen in competition with hundreds of students from all over the United States for the program, which will be at the University of Idaho. He plans to major in science or mathematics.

Participants in the science training program will study solid state electronics, elementary particles, space science, environmental chemistry and number theory.

T.F., Butte take state girl titles

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls girls outlasted Sandpoint and Helen Walkley for the class A title and Butte ran off with B honors in the second annual girls track and field championships Saturday.

Twin Falls, defending A champion, had to beat Sandpoint in the mile relay to protect a one-point lead going into the event and won 35-33. Butte, scored 30 points in taking B honors while Glens Ferry nipped defending champion Shoshone 18-17 for the runner-up trophy.

This being only the second running of the event, just about all the events saw new records. And true to the prediction of Twin Falls Coach Lee Larsen, the national mile relay mark — this being only the second year of its running — took another battering. Twin Falls bettered the 4:27.3 thing by hitting 4:24 last week in regionals. But Saturday, Glens Ferry's team of Bernt, Messerly, Trail and Wicher, also bettered it at 4:26.4 and seconds later Wood River knocked 14 seconds off the published standard. Wendy Davis, Vickie Atup, Janice Vernon and Gretchen Thompson toured the track in 4:13.3.

Miss Walkley dominated the Class A field individually. She won the 100 yard dash in 11.3, the 220 in 25.7 and the long jump in 16-11 1/4, the later two being state records.

The Class A defending champions got about a split. Leslie Hamilton of Twin Falls showed her own high jump record up to 5-2 3/4 and tried for the "national record" of 5-6 1/2 without success. Miss Robertson of Capital repeated in the halfmile, but two and one-half seconds above her winning time last year and Miss Young of Capital got her second quarter-mile blue ribbon, again over last year's time.

Debbie Shepherd of Filer split in her quest for a double repeat. She finished third in the 100-yard dash but came on to win the 75 again. Shotput champion Rae Dene Bell, fouling on perhaps her best throw ever, fell to fourth place with Miss Moffett of Boise taking the title.

Top B division individual scorers were Miss Eastlick of Council who got all her team's points. Miss Williams of Teton picked up the 220 and 100-yard dash and placed second in the 75.

Defending B champions also had some trouble. Miss Cooper of Raft River went unplaced in the 100-yard dash. Miss Parsells of Kamiah moved from the half to the mile and won another title and Miss Gunter of Clearwater

But mission is completed

TOUGH HANDOFF is completed between Miss Freeman of Shoshone, falling to the track, and Miss Stimpson during class B state track meet Saturday. But the handoff kept the Indians' 880-yard relay team in contention and it went on to take the event.

23 teams open city loop year

A total of 23 teams competing in two divisions will begin the regular schedule of the Twin Falls Slowpitch Monday night, reports recreation director Chad Browning.

The schedule includes Monday, diamond one, 6:45 p.m., Lynwood Standard vs. Volkswagen; 8 p.m., Keebler Cookie vs. Cain's and Gallatin Valley vs. Culligan - Lavalie; diamond 2, 6:45, Stan's Chevron vs. Kimberly See, 8, Olympia vs. Haney Seed and 9:15, Theisen Motor vs. Bank and Trust.

Tuesday, diamond one, Culligan-Paris vs. Alley; Royal Lounge vs. Ford-Brake and Petroleum, and Coors-First Federal vs. Depot Grill; diamond two, Lynwood Standard vs. Culligan Lavalie, Independent Meat vs. Master Sheet Metal and Cain's vs. Pepsi-Cola.

Wednesday, diamond one, Depot Grill vs. Alley; Keebler Cookie vs. Haney; Coors-First Federal vs. Ford-Brake and Petroleum; diamond two, Independent vs. Stan's; Gallatin vs. Bank and Trust and Turf Club vs. Maxie's Pizza.

FILER SPRINT Debbie Shepherd bursts across the line for her second straight class A girls 75-yard dash title Saturday. Miss Shepherd, a double winner last year, placed third in the 100-yard dash and helped Filer finish in the top 10.

TF cops district title; Thompson sets record

The Twin Falls Bruins, gobbling up 20 of the 34 individual spots and all four relays for next week state finals, ran off with another district A-1 track title Friday night.

Coach Jerry Kleinkopf's Bruins, winning 12 of the 17 events, scored 100½ points while Burley getting good displays from a host of underclassmen, took second at 38 and Minico had 36½.

The results will make Twin Falls difficult to stop in its bid for a third straight state crown in Boise next week. The winning relay team, first two in field events and three in the eight individual track events, qualified for Boise Preliminaries will be run Friday afternoon with some distance and all the field events going Saturday morning and the finals Saturday afternoon at BSC stadium.

It was basically a night for underclassmen. Of the 20 individual spots collected by Twin Falls, only four went to seniors. The two Bruins sprint relays are all juniors with one senior on the mile relay and two in the medley.

The sprints were tight as predicted with Minico junior Roy Young winning the 100-yard dash in a blanket finish over Twin Falls' junior Bill Woodson and Burley senior Larry Bell. In the 220-yard dash, Bruin junior Brent Thompson was given an eyelash decision over Young with Woodson nipping Bell for the third state berth — sending the luckless Bell to the sidelines although he was second in state in the furlong last spring.

Burley sophomore Ken Harper served up the start of a possible dynasty in the low hurdles in another crowd pleaser. Over the sixth hurdle, Harper, Bruin junior Jeff Miller, Minico senior Toby Harding and Bruin senior Rick Spriggs were almost a dead heat. But Harper burst away at that point to win quite handily. The others finished that way with about 18 inches separating them.

Harding took the high hurdles convincingly with teammate Jones surprising by topping Burley junior Mike Sagers for second.

Twin Falls dominated the three longer relays but had to hustle to beat Burley in the quarter-mile event. In that one Bell moved up on Woodson in the final leg about a yard, but still needed six or seven feet at the end.

Things got sticky in the shotput where Bruin senior Mike Murray won with his first throw. But in the finals, Carl Bair of Minico, on his last throw moved into second with a best of 49-2 and Twin Falls junior Tony Kevan, having his best all-around day, zipped two feet over his previous best at 49-½.

Thompson, who ended up with four blue ribbons, set a record in winning the long jump at 22-¾, three fourths over the stranded set last year by Burley's Bob Jackson. But on his last jump of the day, senior Alan Conner, who had scratched problems throughout, sailed 23 feet, 5 inches — only to have a scratch of less than an inch kill that. Thompson went on to win the 220-yard dash and run on the winning quarter and half-mile relays.

Bruin junior Gary Sievers, leading a four-place Bruin sweep, tied the record in the half-mile at 1:57.7. Of added interest to Twin Falls was the repeat of Dave Sears, another junior, as two-mile champion in 10:21.5. Sears laid out of the sport about a month earlier in the season and it had become a question of time for his conditioning on his return. He placed fifth in state last year. One of the all-around solid athletes in Twin Falls wound up his at-home appearances. Darrell Groves won the mile in his best at 4:38.3 and anchored the medley for two blue ribbons. Burley's future hopes, in addition to Harper, also got a boost in the high jump where two freshmen, Brent Bodily and Lynes went one-two.

Starting a dynasty?

BURLEY SOPHOMORE Ken Harper stretches his lead over the field in the A-1 low hurdles in Friday's district. Bruins Jeff Miller, outside, and Rick Spriggs, inside, nipped Minico's Toby Harding for second and third and trips to state along with Harper.

Cosgriff, Edgar win golf title

Gordon Edgar and Charles Cosgriff defeated Jack Thelkeld and Dudley Driscoll 5 and 4 over the 36-hole final round Saturday to win the Blue Lakes men's spring best ball title.

Defending champions John Rosholt and Bill Crow salvaged consolation honors by defeating Ed Purves and Jim Purves.

In the first flight, George Kneeland and Bill Peters defeated Dick Cook and Dr. Charles Manners and Dr. Jack McNeese and Duane Schneberger won consolation by beating Bob Harvey and Merv Edson.

Harry Brown and Frank DeLuca will meet Jim Henry and Bob Siebel for the second flight title with Bob Hatting and Dan Megh, who dropped Bob Youree and Chuck Colner, already owning the consolation pin.

The third champions were Egon Kroll and Bert Larsen, who defeated Frank Feldman and Cliff Fallis.

Minico tops Twin Falls twice for district baseball crown

RUPERT — The Minico Spartans, behind the pitching of Tony Saras and some lusty hitting, swept a doubleheader Friday afternoon from Twin Falls to claim the district baseball title.

The Spartans, winning 3-1 and 10-2, will advance to the state tournament in Boise next week. Twin Falls' only chance with a 14-5 record, would be the invitation for the at-large berth.

The Spartans jumped off quickly against junior righthander Mike Anderson. Randy Hardman was hit by a pitch and Mike Tremaine followed with a two-run homer. The Spartans added their last run in the second when Tom Babcock was hit by a pitch and Hardman and DeeLynn Seamons delivered singles.

A bit of wildness let Twin Falls break Saras' shutout in the sixth. Mark Hanchey lived on an error, moving to third on Mike Fries' single. Saras then walked Dick Walker and Kevin Nelson to force the run home.

The Spartans didn't take much time to decide the second game, either, erupting in the first for four runs. Babcock and Tremaine walked around a sacrifice bunt with the first run scoring when Saras was safe on an error. Dennis Warburton plated another with a double and Rick Runyon's single sent across the last two.

Twin Falls cut the lead in half in the third when Hanchey and Fries opened with singles and Nelson walked to lead the bases. Walker's sacrifice got one run home and a bad throw let Fries in with the second.

But the Spartans started banging the ball in the fifth to end it under eight-run, five-inning rule. Babcock lived on an error and Hardman kept it alive with a fielder's choice that retired no one. After Seamons sacrificed the runners to second and third, Tremaine, Saras, Warburton and Runyon singled home a run each. Gary Friesen's sacrifice brought in another and the final run scored on Pat Warburton's hit.

Nelson was charged with the loss, pitching the first inning, while Tremaine took the victory.

Women, minorities' job chances best

NEW YORK (UPI) June graduates, especially women and students, from minority groups, have a better chance of getting a job than any time since 1968. But it's still a very tight job market.

That's the word from placement directors at 56 per cent of the 41 colleges and universities in 20 states surveyed by United Press International. About 32 per cent thought the job situation was the same or worse. Twelve per cent were undecided.

Comments ranged from mild optimism to utter despair.

"The response has been puny, frightening and grim," said a spokesman for West Virginia University. "There has been an upturn in most areas," said a University of Florida official. "Anyone who thinks employment is getting better is kidding himself," said a spokesman at Fordham University, New York.

Even though research by the College Placement Council at Bethlehem, Pa., a nonprofit organization, indicates the first upward movement in three years, the job picture in graduate schools is bleak.

Salaries offered average only about 2 per cent above last year, and that's hardly enough to discount inflationary forces.

"Business is showing a preference for bachelor's degrees over master's degrees because it can hire them cheaper," noted Joseph Kraeger of Fordham. "Their philosophy is, 'let 'em get their master's on the job'."

Graduates with technical skills (accounting, sales, health, some engineering) find jobs if their records and personalities stand scrutiny. Liberal arts students (teaching, journalism, the humanities) find the doors mostly closed.

Jerry Stowers, a May graduate with an engineering degree from Marshall University, West Virginia, ranked second in his class with a 3.8 average. He sent out 66 job applications. Only 10 companies bothered to answer. Eight said "sorry but nothing is available." He is considering a Navy career.

Then there is Fred Williams, a black with a 3.7 average in chemical engineering at the University of New Mexico. He had 16 job offers and chose an oil company. At San Francisco State College only two of the 200 students contacted by recruiters received job offers. Both were women.

In 1968, when the economy bubbled with prosperity and optimism, college students were pampered and pursued by corporate jets and high salaries. Practically anyone with a degree would get such attention as he picked and chose among the many job offers. All that has changed. Students are hustling, bowing and scraping for jobs today. They're pounding doors and accepting offers even though they may mean employment beneath skills and dreams.

"Companies can be more choosy now," said Stevan Sayre, assistant director of placement at the university of Delaware. Would-be professors who used to hold out for Yale and Harvard today are accepting spots at Podunk Community College, said a spokesman at Columbia University. "Companies coming on campus look for someone who will not require extensive on-job training, someone who will make a contribution much sooner," said Victor Lundquist, head of placement at Boston University.

Edward Darrow, assistant dean of the Ohio State college of Agriculture and Home Economics, summed up the new employment ballgame.

"Students now seem to be aware they must look sharp, think sharp and act sharp in contacts with employers. They're much more aware that a job means an opportunity to work rather than just an opportunity to draw a paycheck."

Graduates in accounting are most sought after, according to the UPI survey. After them, but not necessarily in this order, come the medical sciences, service-oriented areas (food, real estate, housing, travel and leisure time), specific business areas such as banking, retailing, insurance and sales. Nursing is strong. Chemical and mechanical engineers still find jobs. So do graduates with computer technology to offer.

Ranking first in the depressed areas of employment are liberal arts graduates. It's so bad many are picking alternative careers or accepting underemployment. "Teaching, in general, is a grim area. There appears to be a surplus of them," explained a spokesman at the University of Delaware.

Monday dinner for JA

TWIN FALLS — Junior Achievement organizations of Twin Falls will conclude this year with a dinner Monday at p.m. in the Turf Club.

Ray Rostron, chamber of commerce manager, will address the group with Ra Hanson as master of ceremonies.

This year's Junior Achievement program included 135 high school students from schools in Twin Falls, Filer and Kimberly. Junior Achievement is designed to give student experience and training in business by allowing them to form and operate their own businesses for one school year.

Program participants this year remodeled the basement of the American Legion Hall and used it for their manufacturing and sales headquarters.

Business firms of Twin Falls County, including utilities, assist in the program by sponsoring the student companies.

Gary Pridmore, Mountain Bell, has served as program manager for the past season. He announced the banquet program will feature presentation of "achiever awards to the outstanding salesmen, company and the program's leading individual." The Monday night banquet is open to all interested persons. Tickets for the banquet may be obtained at the door.

Fuel firm takes new gas name

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Humble Oil & Refining Co. will change its name and the name of its gasoline to "Exxon" effective Jan. 1, the firm announced Friday.

The brand name Exxon was chosen to replace three names now in use for Humble products — Esso, Enco and Humble. Exxon, a word company officials said was unusual because of its double x, was picked partially because it could be used in Humble enterprises internationally.

There were reasons the company could not use internationally the most common of the three brand names, Enco.

Ford auto sales rise

SALT LAKE CITY — Ford Division's new car sales in the Salt Lake City district in April continued to reach levels above last year.

R. E. Parr, the division's district sales manager, said sales totaled 1,759, an increase of 45 per cent above last April's 1,216.

Truck sales for the month climbed to 1,652, up 17 per cent from April, 1971.

Custom leather shop open

TWIN FALLS — "The Leatherman," a custom leather goods shop, has opened on Main Avenue East in Twin Falls. Mickey Joelson, the leather man, makes to order hats, coats, purses, shirts, vests and sandals in view of his customers. He also sells handcrafts and gifts including Indian and Persian jewelry and Danish rings.

The interior of the store is paneled with pine bark siding on both the walls and ceiling. Joelson came here from Toledo, Ohio, where he owned a leather goods store. He has been in the leatherwork business about four years. He said all the buckles and other hardware used in his leatherwork are specially cast, and all leather hand-stained and waxed there in the store.

The leather man said he has received over 30 orders for custom-made sandals, including many from older women who have difficulty finding shoes to fit anywhere else.

Now while you still can remember last winter, change your home to flameless electric heat. It uses only electricity, the clean energy, that adds nothing to the air, takes nothing from the air, for a cleaner home and a neater, nicer neighborhood. Younger Widow Grieves More

The younger the widow, the more greatly she grieves. Such are the findings of an Australian mental specialist named Dr. D. C. Maddison. This authority says further his three-year study of bereaved ladies indicates the rich widows are no happier about their plight than the penniless ones. The inheritances just don't help, says he.

Already reported that blondes do not tend to get gray-haired at as early an age as do brunettes. But failed to report that blondes do indeed tend to get facial wrinkles at an earlier age. Plastic surgeons say that operation known as the facelift is far more prevalent among the fair-haired light-skinned ladies.

MAJOR HOOPLE

Business opening in T.F.

TWIN FALLS — A business dealing in management of rental property in Magic Valley is opening in Twin Falls.

Dennis Smith, who is starting the company, said it will be known as D and D Rental Service.

Smith, who owns seven rentals himself, said he was prompted to start the business because of bad experiences he had as an absentee landlord.

Smith, who is now living in Jerome, said while working Alaska he was still renting his property in Magic Valley.

In the past two years, he estimates occupant-caused damage to his rentals at over $1,000.

As manager he would take over part or 100 per cent management of rentals.

He would keep running lists of rental property and people who are looking for rentals in the Magic Valley area.

Under the program as proposed, Smith would be responsible for any damage caused to a house by a renter he recommended.

Smith currently is talking to rental owners in Twin Falls and anyone wishing information about his service can call 733-2887. He plans to have a full-time office set up in Twin Falls in the near future.

Trophies awarded

TF Jaycees take honors at Idaho convention

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Jaycees came home from the state convention with several trophies presented for outstanding achievement during the past year.

The awards, announced today, included one to Dennis Vollmer, the Jaycee International senatorship award. It has been presented only one other time to a Twin Falls Jaycee. That was in 1969 when Darrell (Doc) Wolfe was the recipient.

To receive the award a Jaycee must be nominated by his chapter and then reviewed by the district president. The candidate is then reviewed by the state president, national president and international president.

The award is given to those who have contributed to Jaycee activities above and beyond the call of duty. Vollmer is employed by Gem State Paper and is a past president of the Twin Falls Jaycees and is past state director.

The Twin Falls chapter also received the project of the year award for their recycling center. The award is presented to the one chapter in the state whose project is judged the most outstanding and worthwhile. William Runty is project chairman.

Other awards won were the Ben Johnson Man-mile award to project chairman Robby Robinson for having led the chapter on more visitations and having traveled more miles than any other chapter in the state. The Twin Falls Jaycees traveled over 100,000 miles visiting other Jaycee chapters in Idaho and other states.

The recycling center also won the Twin Falls club the Robert A. Hogg Earth Award. The award, sponsored by the Rainier Brewing Co., is given for the most outstanding ecological project in the Northwest.

This was the first time the award has been given to an Idaho Jaycee chapter.

SPECIAL RECOGNITION was given to the Twin Falls Jaycees during the state convention in Boise. William Runty, left, holds the project of the year award and Dennis Vollmer, right, was awarded the JCI senatorship award.

Illinois ordered to return $3.9 million to cover 'mispending'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Office of Education, in the largest recall ever of federal funds intended for needy school children, Friday ordered Illinois to return $3.9 million to the federal Treasury to cover alleged mispending between 1965 and 1968.

The money allegedly was misspent by school districts in Chicago, the nation's third largest school system; Rockford and Marshall, and by the Illinois State Education Agency.

Robert R. Wheeler, associate commissioner for elementary and secondary education in the federal agency, said in a letter to Illinois School Superintendent Michael J. Bakalis that the recall amount is preliminary and that Bakalis has 30 days to provide additional information before the figure becomes final. The money allegedly was misspent under the Title I program of the 1965 Elementary and Secondary Education Act, which provides federal aid for special education for deprived children. Wheeler said the $3.9 million was used to pay unjustified salary increases to teachers; unauthorized or unwarranted overtime payments to janitors, principals and other school workers; to supplant state and local school funds in violation of administrative costs unrelated Title I rules, and to cover to Title I.

N. Viet attack unmask army

SAIGON (UPI)—On paper, South Vietnam's army is a fighting force of more than 1 million men outnumbering all Communist forces by at least four to one.

But the North Vietnamese offensive has unmasked Saigon's army as a front-line fighting force of about 120,000. The neat, pink-covered briefing book handed to official visitors to South Vietnam shows 1.2 million members of the armed forces.

In fact, half the men are members of the rag-tag militia, trained only to deal with local Viet Cong. And in the regular army there are seven rear-area soldiers for every infantryman.

The regular South Vietnamese army is divided into 11 infantry divisions and the smaller Marine, Ranger and paratroop divisions and groups.

Even the real strength of 120,000 troops is cut by casualties, leaves and the desertions that have plagued Saigon's army since the draft began years ago.

These troops face 11 North Vietnamese divisions and numerous separate North Vietnamese and Viet Cong regiments and battalions.

Because of the nature of the war, the Communists choose the battlefield. This means that since the North Vietnamese offensive began March 30, the South Vietnamese have been outnumbered at each front.

The myth of the million-man army has allowed the Communists to isolate government troops since the offensive began. The short battles have resulted in one entire province, 15 districts and more than 50 bases being overrun.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong began with guerrilla armies and over a period of years built up to main forces. The emphasis, however, has been on the infantry and there are few rear-area troops.

Episcopalian offerings aid miners

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Episcopalians Saturday voted to donate all offerings from convention services to the families of Kellogg miners. There are four services planned during the annual Diocese of Idaho convention in Twin Falls this weekend. Offerings received during those services will be sent to Kellogg to aid families of 91 miners who died in the Sunshine Mine.

In a resolution adopted by over 200 delegates Saturday morning, church members said this would be the most worthwhile cause they could support at this time and hoped other groups would also assist the grief-stricken families of the north Idaho community.

Friday night, Rev. Albert Allen, was formally installed as rector of the Church of the Ascension on Blue Lakes Boulevard in Twin Falls.

The Church of the Ascension is host church for the convention, which continues through today.

Other subjects expected to come before the convention delegates for action Sunday include a stand on the Vietnam War, which convention officials said could include some heated debate.

A dinner Saturday night in the Holiday Inn featured an address by Rt. Rev. William Spofford, bishop of the Diocese of Eastern Oregon. He is a former dean of the Episcopal Cathedral in Boise for many years.

Convention sessions begin today at 8 a.m. and conclude at noon. Two regular church services will be conducted at 10 a.m. In addition to the convention services in the Bishop Rhea auditorium, the Mother's Day services will be held on schedule in the church sanctuary with Bishop Spofford conducting the services.

In addition to final action on other convention resolutions, the delegates will select a 1973 convention site Sunday morning.

Inspect bike

RODNEY WALLER, age 12, confers with Idaho State Police officer Everett Waddell on the condition of young Rodney's bike during Saturday's Optimist Club bike rodeo at Harmon Park.

Bicycle event success

TWIN FALLS — Saturday's Optimist-sponsored bike "rodeo" was a smashing success — 1,300 youngsters, worth William Waller, chairman of the event for the Twin Falls Optimist Club, said more than twice as many bike riders turned out for the safety inspections and races in Harmon Park as did a year ago, and three times as many as in the first rodeo in 1970.

City, county and state police officers, along with fire department personnel, inspected bikes for the youngsters, giving each passing bike a sticker.

The young riders then participated in speed races and an obstacle course, with youngsters vying by age. Optimist Club members handed out blue, red and white ribbons to first, second and third place winners.

Following the races, fire department personnel sold licenses, where needed, and etched each owner's initials several places on his bike, to make identification easier in case of theft.

Free hot dogs and drinks, also handed out by the Optimists, completed the day for the enthusiastic bicyclists.

Cassia election eliminates issue

BURLEY — The three-part election scheduled for Monday in the Cassia County School District will continue as planned — but without the subdistricting question.

Trustees of the district, meeting on Friday morning, agreed to postpone the subdistricting poll until a later date, due to a protest and threatened court suit from a former board member.

Gone Sorensen told the board earlier this week that the required legal advertisements describing the area in the proposed subdistrict were erroneous. Sorensen said he was prepared to file a legal action in Fifth District Court to halt the subdistricting election if the board did not take action.

Insisting that he is not opposed to the idea, Sorensen said "I am in favor of a subdistrict, and I worked to get the petitions endorsed. However, the process must be legal from the beginning, so it could not be challenged after passage by the voters." Five school district trustees will be elected in Monday's voting, from among seven candidates. Three candidates are running unopposed in including board Chairman W. B. Whiteley, Oakley, in zone 1, seeking his fifth three-year term; Dr. A. Paul Brown, Burley, zone 2, and Alvin M. (Pat) Kelly, Burley, in zone 3. In zone 4, incumbent William F. Matthews is opposed by Dan Crane, Burley, and in zone 5, incumbent trustee Charles Ward, Malad, will face Brent J. Peterson of Coterrell.

All five seats on the board are up for election following the rezoning of the district a few months ago. Two incumbents, Norval Wildman, zone 2, and Albert Klink, zone 3, did not seek re-election.

Also on Monday's election ballot will be a five-mill maintenance and operations levy.

Polls will be open from 1 to 8 p.m. Voters must be at least 18 years old, but need not be property owners. Each voter will sign an oath that he is qualified as to residency and age.

Polls will be set up throughout the county:

Zone 1 — Burley High School, Oakley High School and Bean Growers Warehouse.

Zone 2 — Southwest elementary school.

Zone 3 — Burley Junior High school.

Zone 4 — Springdale elementary school, and Zone 5 — Declo City Hall, Hatt River High School, Albion elementary school and Almo elementary school.

Lincoln official declines to run

SHOSHONE — Nominees for five posts will be elected in Lincoln County during the Aug. 8 primary election. One of the office holders will not seek re-election.

The posts include commissioners in District 1 and District 2, sheriff, coroner, and prosecutor.

County Commissioner Burrell Williams, of district 1, said Saturday he will not seek re-election this year. He has held the post for 12 years.

Glenn L. Sorensen, Dietrich, a commissioner in district 3, is not up for re-election this year.

Commissioner C. Faye

Chatfield has not indicated whether or not he will seek re-election for a two year term in district 2.

Sheriff Thomas W. Conner, Prosecutor Howard E. Adkins and Dr. R.G. Neher, coroner, have not announced their intentions to seek re-election at this time. Declarations of candidacy must be filed with the secretary of state or county auditor between June 1 and June 7.

Anyone who wants the money should write the federation at 1412 16th St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036 within six months after conviction. A bounty hunter has to prove his information was of "substantial assistance" in convicting the eagle-killer.

Auto goes into rail near river

JEROME — Geraldine K. Heaton, 33, Jerome, escaped injury when her car careened through a guardrail and down an embankment into rocks near Snake River Canyon Saturday.

State Patrolman Everett Waddell charged Miss Heaton with driving while intoxicated. He said her car swerved to the left side of the highway as she approached the Perrine Memorial Bridge from the north and struck a guardrail.

It then headed down the embankment, traveling about 20 down and coming to rest on its wheels on a pile of rocks. The vehicle was demolished, officers said, but the driver, apparently alone in the automobile, escaped with bruises.

Twin Falls County officers assisted with the accident, several hundred feet north of the Perrine Bridge, on the east side of U. S. Highway 93.

Wendell to vote

WENDELL — A meeting to discuss the upcoming bond election is planned Monday night at 8 p.m. in the Wendell High School gymnasium.

The meeting is to give patrons a chance to ask questions concerning the addition to the junior high school, purchase of a site for the new gymnasium and construction of the gymnasium, according to Supl. Lawrence LaRue.

Architects for the new building will be present as well as the fiscal agent to discuss cost and financing. The meeting will be conducted by Murlen Lancaster and Richard Eaton, co-chairmen of the Citizen's Committee.

The bond election for the new building and addition will be Friday.

Working mothers set Cassia confab

BURLEY — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, has announced plans to meet with the Working Mothers Committee Saturday with the place to be announced.

The meeting will be open to the public.

The working mothers, in April, requested a public meeting with Sen. Frank Church, Rep. James McClure and Hansen, to discuss the abuse and misuses of welfare in Cassia County.

Earlier this week, Rep. McClure notified the group he would meet with them in private and determine if a public meeting was necessary.

Senator Church last week indicated he would meet privately with the women to discuss the situation, and also would, after hearing information, would determine the status of the open hearing meeting.

The five working mothers launched their campaign by meeting with the Cassia County Commission, who in turn called the department of public assistance to the commission chambers and following several hours of questions with unsatisfactory answers, the women decided to call in their congressmen.

Station robbed at Richfield

RICHFIELD — Authorities are investigating the Friday morning robbery of the Ross Chevrolet Station in Richfield.

Ross Swainston owner, said more than $300 in change and credit cards were taken from the station sometime early Friday morning.

Swainston said whoever broke into the station came in through a window in the back shop and took the entire cash drawer and its contents. The owner said the credit cards, change and keys to the station were in the stolen drawer.

The robbery was discovered by Swainston's sons, Ross Wyn and Gary Swainston as they passed by the station at 5:50 a.m. Friday. The door of the station was standing open and they called the police and Swainston.

Investigating officer, Deputy Bill Anderson, said the cash drawer and the station keys were recovered beside the road 3 1/2 miles east of Shoshone. The keys have been returned to Swainston and the drawer is being examined for possible fingerprints.

Owner Swainston said this was the second break in of the month. He did not report the first one because nothing was taken from the premises. A window was broken in the first incident.

Solon in Elmore asks re-election

GLENN'S FERRY — A.W. Joslyn, a veteran of 19 years service in the Idaho Legislature, will seek to return to the house of representatives.

Joslyn, a Democrat, would represent legislative district 22, including Elmore and Camas counties. He served five terms as representative from Elmore County, leaving after the 1970 elections.

He is currently a member of the Governor's Advisory Council for Comprehensive Health Planning, and is chairman of a subcommittee studying health facilities. Joslyn is also a member of the district Health Planning, and is chairman of a subcommittee studying health facilities. Joslyn is also a member of the district Health Department board of trustees, and is chairman of the Elmore County Council for the Aging.

In a campaign statement, Joslyn said "It is my policy to create legislation in order to solve people's problems. These are problems that are taken directly to a legislator by individuals."

"I find there is no better way to keep state government close to the people than to be available to them and get their views on issues."

Joslyn works as a Union Pacific Railroad engineer between Glenns Ferry and Huntington, Ore. He is married and has three children.

Hansen to vote Monday

HANSEN — Voters of the Hansen School District will go to the polls Monday from noon to 8 p.m. to elect three trustees and decide on a three-mill maintenance and operation levy.

Threemen are seeking the trustee position in zone 1. They are incumbent Harold Miller Jr., opposed for the five-year term by George Golay and Elmer Cook.

In zone 2, Cecil Sanger, incumbent, is running unopposed for a three-year term.

E. D. Crockett, Rock Creek area, also an incumbent, is unopposed in his bid for re-election for zone 5. He was named a year ago to fill the vacancy left by Jim Epperson who moved from the community and one year remains of the term.

Patrons from all zones will vote in the Hansen school house.

Hailey man hurt in crash

KETCHUM — A Hailey man remained hospitalized Saturday with a leg injury after a motorcycle-dog collision early Friday morning in Ketchum.

Garth L. Bowen, 30, was taken to Sun Valley Hospital with abrasions and injuries to his right leg and knee. He is expected to remain in the hospital for two weeks.

According to Ketchum police, Bowen was traveling north on a motorcycle on Main Street near the intersection of River Street about 8 a.m. Friday.

Bowen said a dog ran across the street in front of his motorcycle and he was unable to avoid the collision.

About $50 damage was done to the front of the motorcycle. The dog left the scene of the accident under its own power.

New look for CSI

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho multi-purpose building has a new look again.

A crew from Buhl Glass and Paint Co. installed the new glass on the west side of the building Saturday, in preparation for today's commencement ceremonies.

Vandals smashed nearly all the nine-by-five-foot glass panes on the ground floor of the building several weeks ago.

Gary Meter, owner of Buhl Glass and Paint, said removing the shattered panes of glass was extremely difficult. One workman suffered cuts from the sharp edges of the glass, and another pane shattered into extremely dangerous shards when it was removed.

No clues have been reported on the identity of the vandals.

Smoke damage

FUMES IGNITED Saturday afternoon while gasoline was being used to clean a garage floor in this four-plex owned by Clifton Smallwood at Locust Street and Elizabeth Boulevard. Damage resulted to the garage walls, ceiling and the exterior wall of the apartment with some smoke damage inside the building.

Court upholds decision on Burley fire injury

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's Supreme Court affirmed a fifth district court decision Friday which held the residents of a burning house were not required to give warning danger to someone who entered the home.

The case arose in 1969 when the home of Reid Barlow, Burley, caught fire. Barlow's sister, Sherry Baker, lived next door and she entered the home to help salvage furniture.

While she was inside the ceiling above her collapsed and she was seriously burned. She and her husband, Leland C. Baker, sued Barlow for failing to warn her of the dangerous condition which caused her injury.

The district court dismissed the suit on the basis that she knew the house was burning when she entered and must have known it was dangerous. The Bakers appealed to the supreme court, arguing she did not know how much danger was involved while Barlow knew of the fire's location and nature.

But the high court unanimously ruled the district court was correct because under the circumstances Barlow as not subject to a duty to warn.

In another action the high court, reversing a fifth district court order, held under the applicable section of the Idaho uniform commercial credit code and general contract law principles there need not be direct benefit to the signer of a promissory note if as part of the action there is an obligation assumed by the one to whom the note is to be paid.

Out-of-doors becomes classroom for fourth grade students at Ketchum

SUN VALLEY — Awareness of the changing natural environment was stressed during an "outdoor classroom" for gradeschoolers Thursday.

About 50 Ernest Hemingway School fourth grade students participated in the three-hour field trip along Trail Creek north of Sun Valley, which included study of beaver ponds, wildlife and the effects of erosion and avalanches.

Sponsored by the Sun Valley Creative Arts Center, the trek was part of a series of three field trips this spring as well as a planned six-year student art and environmental program.

Instructors included Clair Baldwin, Ketchum Ranger District; Ken and Edith Kinucan, Bellevue; and assistant Mrs. Walter Handy, Ketchum.

Mrs. Kinucan said the Wood River Valley was "fantastically" suited for environmental studies because of its proximity of numerous biotic communities.

In specific field trips, students can study pond and stream ecology and mountain meadow as well as sagebrush communities, she said.

During Thursday's session, instructors concentrated on how beaver ponds progressively change over a period of years until a meadow is formed.

Meadows at different stages of development were studied — from the initial stage of the influx of silt from wind and water erosion and decayed pond plant life, to eventual filling in of the pond and to final establishment of larger plant life such as trees.

Students were encouraged to note the variety and types of wildlife in the area by close observation of animal burrows, signs, in actual sightings of ducks, red wing blackbirds and frogs.

Throughout the trip, instructors stressed that students leave the area as natural as possible and the wildlife undisturbed.

Each group was allowed to take only a limited amount of frog eggs from the ponds in order that the frog population would remain constant.

Next week fifth graders will be taken on the same field trip. After the trips students will create art projects, expressing their feelings about the natural life they had viewed.

Future plans include similar environmental study trips for all grades of the Ernest Hemingway School with the possibility of the program's expansion to include Bellevue elementary students.

City police were called to the hospital at about midnight when Motts was brought in for emergency treatment by a group of companions, the city police report showed.

Officers were continuing the investigation Saturday.

Workshop on drama held at college

TWIN FALLS — The proper use of theatrical makeup is an intricate science in itself, according to Irene Corey.

Mrs. Corey, a theatrical expert with world-wide acclaim, told an audience of drama instructors and students Saturday at the College of Southern Idaho that a "picture morgue" of facial types would help in applying theatrical makeup. She advised students of the theatre to clip magazine and newspaper photos showing faces of people of all ages, particularly if comparisons of the same person at different ages are possible.

Using two slide projectors simultaneously, Mrs. Corey presented slides of faces of people at different ages, including two photos of the teacher, Mr. Scopes, involved in the famed evolution trial. One photo showed the teacher as a young man; the other, posed identically, showed him as a man in his 80s. Both were clipped from magazines, then photographed by Mrs. Corey for her lecture.

The elderly Scopes had a seamed, wrinkled face, Mrs. Corey pointed out. Makeup artists could utilize such a photo in making up an actor as an elderly man.

Mrs. Corey and her husband Orlin presented a series of discussions on theatrical subjects during the two-day Interpretation Theatre Alliance at CSI. Students from high schools and colleges, including Twin Falls High School and CSI, presented dramatic sketches during the seminar.

Colleges participating in the session included Eastern Montana College, Billings; Montana College of Idaho at Caldwell; Whitworth College, Spokane, Wash.; Seattle Pacific College; the University of Montana, Missoula; Temple Buell College, Denver, Colo.; Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah; Northern Colorado University, Greeley; Weber State, Ogden; and Utah State University, Logan.

Also participating were Highland High School, Pocatello, and Skyline High, Idaho Falls, and the Antique Festival Theatre, Buhl.

Pomona grange hears candidate

BUHL — Agriculture can gain a fair voice in government if its components work together, Republican Senate Candidate George Hansen said Saturday.

Hansen addressed the Twin Falls Pomona Grange here after campaign visits with Vietnam War veterans, new voters and women voters.

"Farmers can change their circumstances if they are willing to assume the challenge," Hansen said. He said at least one U.S. Senator should be on the agriculture committee and that western rural residents are not being heard when decisions are made regarding plant, animal and geographic conditions peculiar to Idaho and other western states.

Addressing Vietnam veterans from the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls, Hansen said he believes President Nixon's strong stand is meeting with success in the war zone and in diplomatic circles. But, he said, stiffened terms given to North Vietnam for ending American military pressure could lead to a situation in which a Communist coalition government could take over South Vietnam.

"This would mean that after a sacrifice of nearly 60,000 American lives, not to mention the burden carried by the South Vietnamese, the outcome would be the same as if we had never entered the war," he said.

Art class slated in Buhl park

BUHL — Art classes sponsored by the Buhl Art Guild and featuring Novella Lazeros, Twin Falls, will be held Wednesday in the Buhl City Park.

The class is open to Buhl Art Guild members and all other interested artists. Classes will begin at 9:30 a.m. and continue through 3 p.m. with members to meet at the home of Mrs. Lillian Voeller. Persons interested in enrolling are asked to contact Mrs. Voeller. Artists should bring their own material, notebooks for taking notes and a sack lunch.

New officers of the Buhl Art Guild were announced Saturday. They include Mrs. Georgia Kuander, president; Mrs. Etta Patton, vice president; Mrs. Lillian Voeller secretary; Irene Poci, treasurer, and Doris Brannen, historian.

Mrs. Leona Christmore is displaying her paintings in the Buhl office of Mountain Bell Telephone Co. during May. The June display will be by Mrs. Ivory Duffy. Other members are displaying paintings in the Buhl Library.

The Merry Pet

BY LINDA MERRY, D.V.M.

Question: Our dog is a small pomeranian. She came in heat for the first time last week and we didn't want her bred this time since she's so young.

I have been careful but yesterday the neighbor's black lab sailed right over our five foot fence and mated with her. I'm worried that she won't be able to have the puppies but we don't want her spayed. Is there anything we can do now besides build the fence higher?

Answer: There are two surefire preventions for pregnancy: abstinence and hysterectomy (spaying). The fence was too low for the one and the other's undesirable in this case, so I'll have to suggest mismanaging, or abortion, injections.

Termination of pregnancy by chemotherapeutic agents is based on preventing implantation of the fertilized ova in the uterine wall. It takes two to five days for the ova to travel down the fallopian tubes to the uterus. The use of the correct hormones before or during this time prevents the egg from implanting in the uterus where it can receive the nourishment necessary for growth.

All of which sounds good, but there are a couple of drawbacks. Mismating is not 100 per cent effective. Some dogs will still carry the pups.

Often though, even if the pregnancy is not terminated the size of the litter is reduced. Most people still think that one puppy by a traveling salesman is better than 10 or 12. And secondly, heat is usually prolonged by a week to 10 days. The dog can be bred again during this time so you're really only back where you began. You've got to build that fence higher or keep the dog out of temptation's way in the house for another 10 days.

I cannot tell you exactly when your veterinarian will choose to give the injections since different doctors may have different methods of giving these substances.

Some doctors prefer to inject the dog as soon as is practical after breeding, others like to wait two to five days. All of us agree, however, that the longer the procedure is prolonged after five days, the less effective it becomes.

After two weeks you might as well prepare the bassinet! If you have a question about your pet, send it to The Merry Pet column, care of the Times-News, Box 548, Twin Falls, Idaho, 83301.
