Cassia's schools praised, scored

By LEE TREMAINE
Times-News Writer

BURLEY — Cassia County high school students deserve better than they are receiving in the county's schools, according to the Idaho Department of Education.

However, the district's teachers are, by and large, competent people, dedicated to doing the best job they can under the circumstances.

But the "circumstances" include substandard buildings, safety hazards and a lack of teaching materials.

An in-depth evaluation of Cassia County's four high schools, conducted in April by a 20-member team of experts, reveals strengths and weakness throughout the district. A lot of praise runs throughout the 100-page report for the district's teaching staff, coupled with a strong warning that there are faults to be corrected.

In one case, Beech High School, serious safety hazards are reported, including fire extinguishers that have not been checked for several years and lack of fire-safety training for students. The state evaluators warned that "this report will be submitted to the Idaho Health Department and the Idaho Labor Department."

Not all recommendations of the state department have been accepted by Cassia County school officials without criticism in return. Norman Hurst, supervisor of instruction for the district, said a covering letter to the administration from the state comments somewhat sarcastically that the district's policy manual still asks teachers to make certain that a U.S. flag and Bible are contained in each classroom.

"How out of date can you get?" is the state department's comment," Hurst said. "Frankly, we don't think we're 'out of date' in having a flag in each room." The comment from the state appeared to be directed more at the requirement that a flag be present than on the religious aspect, he explained.

"We will take a careful look at all the recommendations from the evaluation team before implementing them, though we do agree that many are undoubtedly valid," Hurst said. Principals of the four schools will work closely with their teaching staffs and with the school administration in studying the recommendations and planning their implementation.

The introduction to the evaluation comments boldly that "This is not the time to evaluate each program in each community and try to find what is good and what is bad. What is bad is too obvious to ignore."

"These young people deserve a comprehensive educational program. Their talents, abilities and desires are no different than other children and they should not continue to be educated in a confined, shallow, conventional program."

The resources of the school district — the business climate, the farm economy and the interest of the people — draw praise repeatedly.

Ex-Idaho finance head dies

MALAD — Griffith I. Jenkins, 82, Malad, former Idaho commissioner of finance, died Saturday afternoon of a heart attack at his home here. He served as Idaho commissioner of finance at two times during the late 1930's and early 1940's. He was a past president of J. N. Ireland Co. Malad banking firm.

Mr. Jenkins was a vice president and director of D. I. Evans Co., Albion banking firm, and a director of the Cassia National Bank, Burley.

He was born in 1890 and was married to Elizabeth Prosser in 1919 in Salt Lake City. She died in 1958. Surviving are a son, William, a brother, McKinley, and two granddaughters.

Arms policy battle looms in US Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An election-year struggle shaped up in the Senate Saturday over strategic arms policy in the wake of the Moscow Summit agreement on nuclear weapons control.

There was indication that members of the Senate Armed Service Committee would demand as the price for supporting ratification a congressional commitment to a range of new strategic weapons not covered by the Moscow treaty.

But senators pressing for a halt to the arms race are planning to resist any attempt to ram new weapons systems through Congress as the price for the treaty. They believe this may be the "strategy" of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and supporters in Congress.

The new weapons the Trident missile-firing submarine and the B1 bomber — could cost about $50 billion. These are qualitative improvements in the U. S. arsenal and thus are not covered by the treaty, which merely establishes numerical limits.

The annual military procurement bill containing funds for the B1 and the Trident is nearly ready for action in both chambers and almost certainly will come up in the Senate before the ratification.

Treaty critics may refuse to support ratification unless the Senate bends to the administration's will and appropriates $942 million to get the Trident started and another $445 million for the B1.

The critics will be in a powerful position to get their way. A two-thirds Senate vote is necessary for ratification, and thus 33 senators could hold it hostage.

The debate over the Safeguard antiballistic missile system may be renewed even though the treaty would limit the ABM to two installations. Many senators believe even one site would be a waste of money and may attempt to delete $1.4 billion sought by the administration for this project.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., who has fought the ABM, said he was reserving the option to oppose further expenditures — particularly for an ABM installation in the Washington, D.C., area to protect the national command authority.

Under the treaty, the United States could finish the Malmstrom site and the Washington, D.C., installation — but nothing more.

College aid bill may fail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Landmark legislation intended to provide much-needed financial aid for colleges and many of their students might fail its final test in Congress because of the intense controversy over busing of school children.

That test will come with a House vote, expected sometime in the week of June 5, on the compromise higher education authorization bill. It cleared the Senate Wednesday by a 63 to 15 margin with provisions aimed at delay of court-ordered busing subject to appeal and restricted use of federal funds for busing.

The measure was hammered out by a 32-member conference committee that wrestled with differing House and Senate versions in 20 meetings over nine weeks before reaching agreement at dawn on May 17.

Prospects for House approval were uncertain, causing Democratic leaders to put off action originally planned for June 1 so they could build support for the bill and counter attacks by civil rights groups. With liberals divided on the legislation, House leaders were counting on conservative members to follow their Senate counterparts.

Red forces slash at Kontum defense

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese ground troops launched a fresh attack on the northern edge of the Central Highlands city of Kontum before dawn Sunday, despite heavy pounding by nine waves of American B52 bombers during the night.

According to official figures, 195 North Vietnamese were killed in an attack Friday in the same area of Kontum and another 179 Communists died in an attack on an artillery base south of the city on the road to Pleiku. Government losses were listed as 27 killed and five wounded in the two attacks.

Tank-led troops fought through defenses around the northern part of Kontum Saturday and some 500 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong had infiltrated the city two days earlier. A total of 1,800 rounds of shell fire hit the city in the 36 hours ending at sunset Saturday.

Radio Hanoi said the defense lines around Kontum were annihilated and broken.

There were no fresh tank attacks reported but eight Communist tanks were reported destroyed Saturday, bringing the two-day total of tank kills to 18.

In a delayed report, the U.S. military spokesman said 42 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 159 wounded when Communists ambushed a 47-vehicle convoy evacuating wounded from the front around An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon.

A spokesman said the convoy was traveling south early Thursday toward the town of Tan Khai when Communists sprang the ambush. Five armored personnel carriers (APCs) were destroyed immediately, six more were demolished when their drivers ran off the road into a minefield and another five were blown up by the South Vietnamese after mechanical breakdowns.

In the air war, the U.S. command said American Phantom jets struck within 20 miles of the Chinese border in North Vietnam Friday, knocking out a vital railroad bridge and cutting a key railway.

The command said the jets used laser-guided "smart bombs" to destroy 6 of the 11 spans of the 1,500-foot-long Lang Gai bridge 60 miles northeast of Hanoi.

A North Vietnamese radio broadcast monitored in Tokyo said Communist gunners shot down two U.S. planes on raids over "populated areas" in Ninh Binh and Ha Tinh provinces and captured one American pilot.

Leningrad cheers

MOSCOW (UPI) — After five days of grueling negotiations, President Nixon toured the imperial capital of Leningrad Saturday, warned to the noisy welcome of thousands who poured into its rain-swept streets, and toasted his hopes for "a world of peace and friendship."

The President's face broke into broad smiles as he waved back at cheering crowds lining the heavily guarded route of his motorcade into the city for a one-day visit. Soviet troops and sailors holding back the throngs doffed their caps and smiled.

"My God!" exclaimed a Nixon aide. "Crowds!" Said Mrs. Nixon to her companions, "Wonderful, wonderful." It was the first outpouring of acclaim for the U.S. President by the Russian people since he arrived in their country last Monday, and Nixon immediately responded like a campaigner. Mrs. Nixon plucked petals from the bouquet of red roses she received at the airport welcome and handed them to Leningraders along the way.

White House aides said the crowd, standing four or five deep at some points, might have numbered in the hundreds of thousands. Girls in miniskirts and housewives with shopping bags jumped up and down behind guards at street corners, trying to catch a glimpse of the President as he rode past.

Mrs. Nixon disclosed Saturday that she witnessed her husband and Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, signing the arms control accords from behind a pillar in the Kremlin's Vladimir Hall.

U.S. Senate hopeful campaigns

TWIN FALLS — Attitudes of the young people toward the drug problem may provide the solution, William E. (Bud) Davis, Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate, said.

Campaigning in Magic Valley, Saturday the educator said he believes an all-out war must be declared on crime and the drug problem.

"We must obtain the assistance and the leadership of the youth themselves in the matter. Effective education programs on drug abuse are essential."

"Of course prevention is the only solution, but we need well trained persons to work in drug rehabilitation and we are in short supply of these people at this time," Davis said.

north Idaho and in the western part of the state the past several weeks, and leaves for Coeur d'Alene today.

An educator for the past 20 years, Davis said he favors a revision of school financing to take the burden from the property owner.

"Public education should be financed by one-third federal, one-third state and one-third local funds," he said.

Davis said under this program, federal funds should be appropriated to the states and then distributed to the various districts.

The Democratic hopefuls said he favors legislation to give the farmer a more equitable share of the consumer's high cost of purchasing food items.

Over the years, he said, the consumer has been paying more and more, but the farmer's return has remained at virtually the same level. The farmer's costs have risen more rapidly than his income, Davis said.

Diminishing numbers of family farms are sending more farm people into the cities where problems of insufficient jobs, pollution and other conditions are growing, he said.

"Not only is this situation resulting in a loss to rural areas, but it is a detriment to the urban areas as well," he said.

In other comments, Davis said he feels gun control legislation would not prevent the assassination of political leaders.

"The states should have the right to establish their own gun control measures. In states such as Idaho where guns are important in hunting recreation, there are very few incidents in which the gun can be given full blame for a death. It is different in Idaho than in the heavily populated cities of the country," he said.

Davis said the Vietnam War is still the number one issue with young and old and there can be no major effort toward domestic matters such as ecology and economy until it is settled.

DAVIS seeks seat

State and federal agencies must crack down on the traffic in hard drugs, he said. The enforcement and prosecution of drug matters have gone almost beyond the scope of local law enforcement capabilities, Davis said.

Davis, president of Idaho State University, Pocatello, is on leave without pay to campaign for the nomination as the Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by Sen. Len B. Jordan, R-Idaho.

He has been campaigning in

Consultant hits abuse of drugs

By TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News Writer

SUN VALLEY — Drugs are really not the problem. The problem arises when people use or misuse them.

That comment was made by Stan Olson, member of the Idaho Drug Abuse Education Team and consultant to the State Department of Education, during an interview with the Times-News.

Olson was one of the speakers during the annual meeting of the Idaho Health Association in Sun Valley. The three-day meeting ended Friday.

The seven-man drug abuse education team was formed in 1970 by the U.S. Office of Education. Olson said the team originally consisted of a housewife, a health official, mental health worker, law enforcement representative, youth representative, and a pharmacist.

Last summer, the team conducted a workshop in Burley for seven similar regional teams, organized within the state's health districts. Olson said the smaller teams have currently conducted 42 workshops in communities throughout their individual regions.

Stressing the positive, the workshops and education programs continually work to find out "what in each community turns people on" instead of using drugs, Olson said. Meaningful alternatives, such as hiking and other recreation, are explored and discussed.

The program also accents people and people problems — what people take a chemical to solve their problems — Olson said. Each regional team "haven't been locked into a program," he said. The team's work independently to discover the needs of its communities, whether the needs include halfway centers, recreation areas or other facilities.

Candidates must file on June 1-7

TWIN FALLS — Candidates planning to seek county offices must file nominating petitions between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. June 1-7.

The one week filing period is in effect for the Aug. 8 primary election, County Clerk Harold Lancaster reminded prospective candidates Friday.

Lancaster said only the county candidates file with their clerks and the state legislative hopefuls will file petitions with the secretary of state.

Lancaster also reminded voters if they have not filled out the new uniform voter registration cards they will not be registered for voting this fall.

The forms may be picked up at the clerk's office or voters should make certain those received by mail several months ago have been completed and returned.

In Twin Falls County, offices to be filled this year are two county commission seats, the offices of sheriff, prosecuting attorney, assessor and coroner, plus precinct committee chairmen posts.

Both incumbents, commissioners, Merl E. Leonard, Filer, from district 1, and William L. (Bill) Chancey from district 2, have announced they will seek re-election. Leonard is seeking a four-year term and Chancey a two-year term. Both are Republicans.

Incumbent Sheriff Paul Corder, also a Republican, is expected to run. He has taken out a nominating petition, Lancaster said, but he has made no formal announcement.

County Assessor Ron Taylor has not made an announcement but a petition has been taken out in his behalf. Also a Republican, he was appointed last fall when veteran assessor Clifford Thompson retired because of ill health. Because he was appointed, Taylor will have to seek re-election if he wishes to continue in office, and will have to run again in two years at the close of the regular term.

The offices of prosecuting attorney and county coroner are both two-year terms. Prosecutor Leon Smith has not taken out a petition and has not made an announcement but incumbent Cloyce Edwards, Coroner, has taken out a petition.

In addition, Lancaster said, a number of precinct committeeman petitions have been taken out by members of both parties. Legislative district chairmen, previously elected on the ballot, are now appointed.

Lancaster said there are a number of questions about new election laws. He plans to attend the State Auditors Association convention Tuesday through Thursday in McCall where discussions are scheduled on election procedure.

Lancaster is in charge of a workshop on court reform, jury selection and commissioner minutes during the three-day state meeting.

TWIN FALLS — Cattleman Ralph Olmstead, Twin Falls, announced today he will seek the District 25 Republican nomination for state representative.

A native of Twin Falls, Olmstead is a farmer and partner in the Olmstead Cattle Co., a cattle feeding operation southeast of the city.

Olmstead is running for the Eastern Twin Falls County District 25 seat to be vacated by Jack Claiborn, who will retire after six terms in the Idaho House.

The father of six children, Olmstead is a Republican precinct committeeman, has served five years, and is president of the Idaho Beef Council, and president of the Twin Falls Highway District, and is chairman of the transportation committee of the Twin Falls County Resource Planning and Development Organization.

Olmstead said the most pressing problem facing the Idaho Legislature is "financing education."

"We can do more with less, make better use of present facilities," he said.

Olmstead said Idaho is not ready for 100-per-cent state-supported education.

"I am for maintaining local government at all levels and making sure it is the type of government people can reach. I do not foresee sweeping changes. I think our local representation at the legislature has been good and I would like to follow that pattern," said Olmstead.

Olmstead was asked how he felt about the regional airport concept currently under study.

"We in the Magic Valley already have a regional airport. With the proposed equipment additions, we can land any type of airplane flying."

"The only difficulty with the Twin Falls airport is access. There should be a more direct route to the airport for those who live beyond Twin Falls."

Energy crisis topic in T.F.

TWIN FALLS — Ken W. Brill, executive vice president of Continental Oil Co., will be speaker at a valley-wide petroleum industry-public meeting here June 12.

J.G. (Jack) Tippet, state chairman of the Idaho Petroleum Council, said the event at the Turf Club starting at noon on that date, is expected to attract more industry people than any other session held in the Magic Valley.

Tippet, district sales manager for Texaco, recently moved here from Boise. He said the meeting will mark the first time such a session has been held anywhere other than Boise.

Brill, during his address, will discuss the energy crisis now facing the United States. In addition to petroleum-oriented officials, also attending will be city and county officials, business and civic leaders and others.

Assisting Tippet in arrangements is Henry (Mank) Woodall, former Idaho Petroleum Council chairman, and R.M. (Dick) Serpa, both of Twin Falls. O.A. (Gus) Kelker, editor, Times-News, will be master of ceremonies.

Two TF juveniles arrested for drugs

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls juveniles were taken into custody Friday night at the Dairy Queen Drive In on Addison Avenue West.

They were arrested by the Twin Falls County-City Drug Control unit.

In custody Saturday, on charges of possession of a controlled substance and possession of a controlled substance.

Tuesday night four others, two of them juveniles, were arrested for illegal possession and illegal manufacture of a controlled substance.

Joslin Field contract may be awarded June 5

TWIN FALLS — Contract award for taxiway, ramp and instrument landing area improvement and clearing work at Joslin Field is expected to be made June 5.

Four bids for the project were received and opened by city and county officials at the city hall Friday afternoon with Holmes Construction Co., Hazelton, apparent low bidder.

Holmes' bid was $319,822.29 for the project which will see the jet ramp and all taxiways at the field resurfaced and also the area cleared on the east end of the main runway where the instrument landing system will be installed by the federal government.

Other bidders were Bannock Construction Co., Pocatello, $427,347.50; Quinn Robbins Construction Co., Boise, $358,800, and Aslett Construction Co., Twin Falls, $334,450. After examination of the bids the officials said they all appeared in order and that no delay was anticipated in connection with the June 5 award.

Jean Milar, city manager, said work under the contract will start in June with completion planned by early fall. He said there will be no delay of Airwest jet flights, or of other flights, during the construction period.

Federal Aviation Administration officials have previously announced work on the instrument landing system (ILS) would also start in June with completion set for December.

The FAA is installing the landing system at no cost to the city and county other than clearing the area, which will be accomplished under the contract to be adopted June 5.

The FAA project calls for a federal expenditure of some $500,000. The ramp and taxiway project will be funded by about 55 per cent federal money and $30,000 from the Idaho Department of Aeronautics.

Milar said completion of the projects planned this year, together with the new runway project completed last year, will raise the local field to a full-jet status.

Final project to complete the upgrading of the city-county airport is seen in 1973 when the FAA is expected to authorize construction of a control tower here. This project, estimated to cost $400,000 would be completely financed by federal funds.

TF LID 87 bid below engineers' estimation

TWIN FALLS — Three bids, one of them below the engineers' estimate, were received Friday afternoon for street, curb and gutter improvements under Local Improvement District 87.

The apparent low bid was that of Neilsen and Co., Twin Falls, with a total bid of $484,278.25. Other bids were Peter Kiewit and Sons Co., Idaho Falls, $685,179.50, and Gibbons and Reed Construction, Ogden, Utah, $527,438.95.

The engineers' estimate for the total project is $495,992. Dale Ruedesel, engineer, said the bids are unusually complicated because they involve streets, sidewalks, curb and gutters, both new and reconstruction projects.

He said in some cases the property owners are paying part, contractors are paying all and the city is paying all or part, depending on the portion of the LID involved. Figures will be studied and compared, he said, and a recommendation made to the City Council.

It will probably be at least 40 days, City Manager Jean Milar said, before a bid can be let. Assessment rolls of the district must be prepared and submitted to the property owners and a hearing held on the rolls before a contract can be awarded.

Property owners participating in the district will have 15 years to pay their share of the curb and gutter installations and will also be given a "cut-off" day by which they may make the total payment if they prefer to go this route and save paying interest over the 15-year period.

Official City and County Newspaper
Pursuant to Section 60-108 Idaho Code, Thursday is hereby designated as the day of the week on which legal notices will be published. Published daily and Sunday, except Saturday, at 132 Third Street West, Twin Falls, Idaho, 83301, by Magic Valley Newspapers, Inc. Entered as second class mail matter April 8, 1918, at the post office in Twin Falls, Idaho, 83301, under the act of March 8, 1879.

Year Of Change

This could well be the year the Democrats—and the disgruntled Republicans—could pull the trick in Twin Falls county and capture one or more of the seats in the State Legislature.

With Jack Claiborn deciding not to run, the golden opportunity is offered. And, when it comes right down to it the other three legislative posts, now held by Republicans who are running again, cannot be considered on a shoo-in basis. All things must end and this might be the year.

But to win, the Democrats must come up with strong and well known candidates. If they fail to do this then they miff their chance. Both Vince Smazal and Governor Andrus have previously told the Times-News they will win at least one seat in this county. If they play their cards right they could well win more.

This is no time for the Democrats to back "just anyone." They must be choosy. There are several Democrats in this county capable of making a horse race out of it.

The question is, will they enter the race or will they sit back and, once more, enable the Republicans to win—more or less—by default?

Costly Flowers

Newspaper editorials, like the newspapers they appear in, are meant for instant consumption and ready disposal.

But if yesterday's newspapers provide the factual meat for today's history books, yesterday's editorials serve as a sort of subjective history. They are a retrospective mirror of the popular mood at a particular time, reflecting our awareness—or lack of awareness—of events and trends which combined to produce the world and national situations we find ourselves in today.

Exactly 10 years ago, on Memorial Day, 1962, one editorial writer noted that "in this year of peace, newly dead American soldiers claimed our tears."

That March, a plane carrying 93 servicemen to South Vietnam had vanished somewhere in the Pacific. And only a few weeks prior to that Memorial Day, two other soldiers had been killed in the jungle by guerrillas with the strange name of "Viet Cong."

"Relatively few men are involved in South Vietnam," said the writer. "There are not enough to arouse the concern of the American people. They are officially here to advise, not to fight. But some are dying."

The United States is not at war, he went on. Yet President Kennedy had just authorized the awarding of the Purple Heart to men wounded in the Vietnamese fighting.

The editorialist offered up a prayer on that Memorial Day in 1962 that there would be an early end to the conflict in South Vietnam, but that if it must continue, some lasting good would come of it.

Today we are still praying for an end to that conflict. Ten years ago, no one remotely conceived that it would surpass the Korean War in numbers of casualties and national treasury expended, that it would become the longest war in our history, that it would force the retirement of one president and be an albatross around the neck of his successor, that it would lead to civil disorder and riots in this country and the deaths of four young students, who were little children in 1962, on a beautiful campus 10,000 miles from Vietnam.

It has been a long and terrible ordeal for this nation. Yet it must end someday, and we can only repeat the prayer that some good will come of it and have faith that the nation will emerge better and stronger for having been through this trial.

The writer concluded his 1962 editorial with words which, regrettably, have only grown truer over the years:

"The flowers of Memorial Day are beautiful and sweet. They are costly beyond price, and sad beyond knowing."

MR. SPECTATOR

Love Those Pilots

Andy Morris, owner of the Dillon (Mont.) Flying Service, dropped us a note. It concerned a little yarn which involves a letter he had received and which was printed in the Dillon Daily Tribune.

So here goes:

Seems as though Morris received a paper written by a Parkview School sixth grader. The boy wants to be a pilot when he grows up. Why? Well, read on: "I want to be a pilot when I grow up because it's a fun job and easy to do. That's why there are so many pilots flying today."

"Pilots don't need much school, they just have to learn numbers so they can read instruments. I guess they should be able to read road maps so they won't be lost."

"Pilots should be brave so they won't be scared if it's foggy and they can't see, or if a wing or motor falls off they should stay calm so they'll know what to do. Pilots have to have good eyes to see through clouds and they can't be afraid of lightning or thunder because they are closer to them than we are."

"The salary pilots make is another thing I like. They make more money than they can spend. This is because most people think plane flying is dangerous except pilots don't know because they know how easy it is."

"There isn't much I don't like except girls like pilots and all the stewardesses want to marry pilots so they always have to chase them away so they don't bother them. I hope I don't get air sick because I get sick in a car and if I get air sick I couldn't be a pilot then I'd have to go to work."

ANDREW TULLY

The Pretty People Are Frantic

WASHINGTON—Vittles-wise, the pretty people are getting frantic around here. My contact with this set, an unfrocked newsman who one day discovered he could fry an egg and forthwith hired out as a gourmet at six figures a year, says if a hostess has never served peacock she's a drag and should be locked up lest she contaminate the Social Scene. Peacock, it turns out, is not for the latter-day Elsa Maxwell who still thinks in terms of Oysters Rockefeller and rare roast beef smothered with pork chops. One must be prepared to take certain pains.

First, you buy a peacock. This can be accomplished by anyone who owns or can borrow 50 bucks. For that investment, you get a plump young bird with tail feathers plucked from his old man or rich uncle because peacocks don't sprout plumage until they're eligible for Medicare. And, of course, the bird must be served in all its borrowed glory.

Then you take the peacock to an expert, probably French, to have it skinned. This costs only six dollars, which is cheap because peacock skinner are rare, temperamental and avaricious.

The stuffing is important. The chef of integrity will permit no ingredient costing less than $25 an ounce to wheedle its way into the Royal belly. Also, the peacock must be flanked on the roasting pan by at least six pheasants, a gesture to the changing times. In the old days, they used peasants. The pheasants (with an h, please) ideally should have been smothered to death by the embraces of a beautiful lingerie model.

After roasting, the peacock is dressed in his own feathers plus his relative's tail plumage. He then is carved into little pieces and served on chunks of bread blanketed with slices of smoked salmon. The pheasants are served on the side, on bread smeared with pate de foie gras. "What's it taste like?" I asked the man in my low fashion.

He fixed me with a pitying glance. "I don't suppose your palate would appreciate it," he said. "But for the benefit of the lower classes, peacock's flavor is akin to that of sturgeon."

"Oh fine," I said. "But why not buy several pounds of sturgeon and save dough?"

I don't know. I have become accustomed to automobiles that are constructed not to drive but to worship, and houses that my not be lived in, and hair cutting achieved without the employment of any sharp instrument, but there are days when I feel hungry. When Mama serves up a sirloin steak with a side order of chittlins, I want to eat the ruddy meal, not take its picture. To me, a bowl of chili is nourishment, not an object d'art.

Besides, cooking up a peacock merely to admire it seems to me a dirty trick on a bird that never did me any harm. Most peacocks I know are probably just as happy when they are not stuffed with truffles, caviar and one of Elizabeth Taylor's diamond rings.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

About Fungus

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you write about a fungus under the toenails? — Mrs. J. D.

Fungus, like moss in the shade, flourishes anywhere it finds conditions that suit it.

Fungus involvement of the nails usually can be traced to long-standing or recurrent fungus infections, such as various kinds of athlete's foot. The fungus, you see, thrives in a warm, moist climate, such as inside your shoes.

Once the fungus has invaded the nail and nail bed, there is no rapid way to drive it out.

A word of warning: first make certain that it is a fungus, and not psoriasis or some other skin disease. Scraping can reveal whether it really is a fungus.

The fungus yields in many cases to anti-fungal medications, of which griseofulvin is the best known. The kind of medication should be chosen to suit the type of fungus.

The medication must be continued for a long time, simply because the nails grow slowly, and the drug must be continued until the nail has grown out fully; otherwise some of the fungus will remain and begin to spread again. This obviously means a matter of quite a few months.

In some severe cases removal of a nail, or nails, with accompanying medication may be necessary.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do you have a 35-cent booklet on prevention and cure of gout? Mrs. C. K.

Well, there's no known way of preventing it or curing it, but in most cases it is quite possible to prevent it from bothering you. This is by keeping the uric acid level low in your blood, and this is primarily accomplished by medication.

You'll find the details in my booklet, "Gout, The Modern Way To Stop It." Send 25 cents (not 35 cents) and a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope to me in care of The Times-News.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do parakeets carry any diseases that a human can catch? We have had two die, and my wife and I are having some stomach trouble and wonder if there is a connection. — J. C.

Parrots, parakeets and some other birds are infamous for carrying psittacosis or "parrot fever" which can be transmitted to man.

If you have any of the birds left, have a veterinarian examine them.

And better have your doctor take a look at you and your wife. Psittacosis acts much like flu. A chest X-ray may show lung involvement.

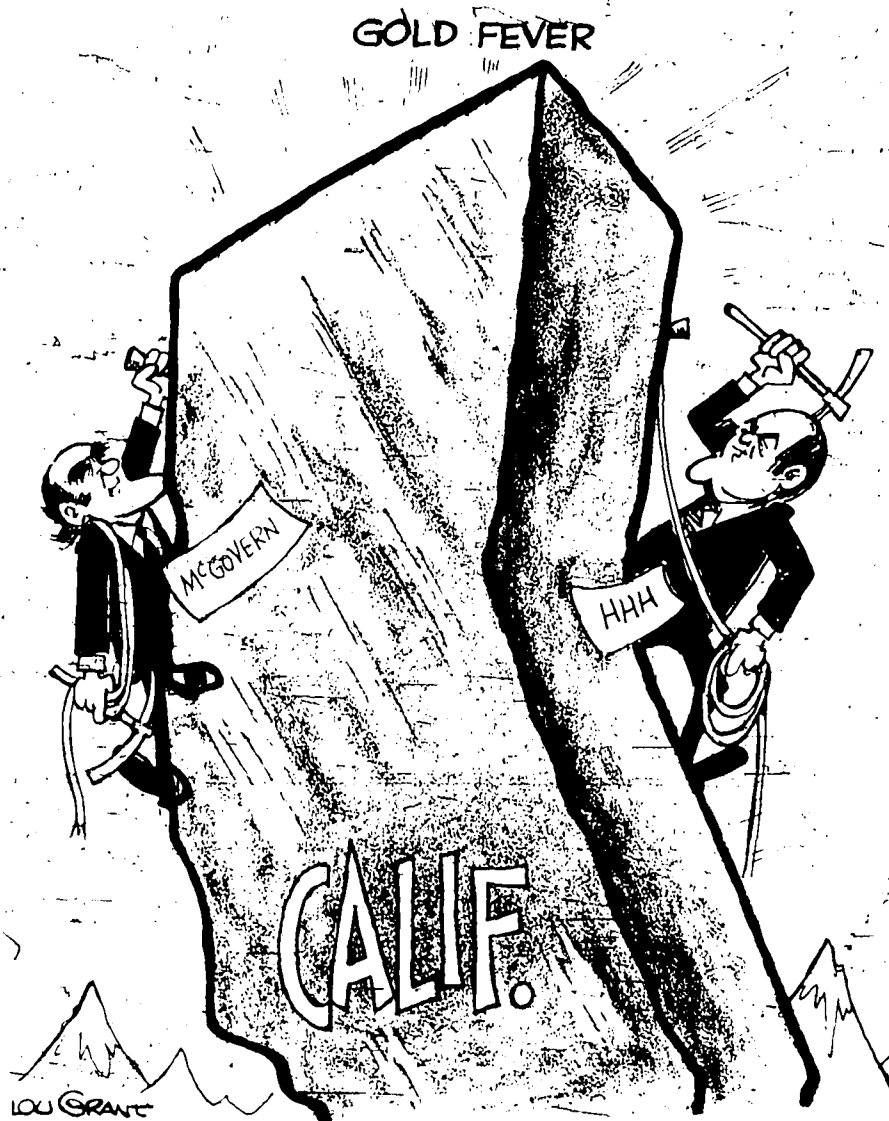

It is my understanding that birds sold through reliable channels are pretty well screened for psittacosis, but some may be — probably are — distributed or sold through irregular channels.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does egg white have any nutritional qualities? I am fond of this, and frequently make a sandwich of it. I don't like the yellow part as it leaves an odor. — J. M.

Egg white is primarily protein, representing about four grams, or 15 calories, plus a trace of calcium. So yes, it has nutritional value. In calories alone, it represents about 20 percent of a whole egg. Some people avoid the yolks as means of avoiding cholesterol.

Diverticulosis is a bulge in the digestive tract. To become more familiar with the subject, write for Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You," enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

PAUL HARVEY

It's Unregulated

Repeatedly in recent years you've heard Paul Harvey say that if he had another life to devote to another career he'd want it to be as stimulating and rewarding as broadcasting and telecasting have been.

He would probably choose the profession of medicine and would specialize in electrophysiology. The recent generation has sought a chemical cure for what ails us — a pill for every ill.

But we have an electric clock and we have barely begun to explore, understand and regulate the electricity which makes us tick.

Any high school biology student knows that our brain and our nerves and our muscles run on electricity. Yet we have little understanding of the circuits and the potential short circuits.

Many ethical medical men have been deterred from even discussing electrophysiology, fearful they'd be identified with any of a variety of quack-cure gadgets for which extravagant claims were made a few years ago.

Yet ethical medical men have adopted and proved the benefits of the pacemaker, heartbeat regulator, which employs electricity to extend human life.

And that is just the beginning. Without fanfare, medical scientists are now using electrical signals to the nervous system to kill pain, to put insomniacs to sleep, to relieve the pain of asthma and ulcers and lower high-blood pressure.

A recent issue of the Wall Street Journal described clinical application of electroanalgesia whereby light shocks to the spinal cord had already rescued hundreds of paraplegics, amputees and victims of cancer from prolonged and intensive pain. Unlike surgery or narcotics, electroanalgesia avoids any risk of addiction, destroys no tissue, relieves pain in a specific area and can be administered as needed.

At the University of Texas medical school they're experimenting with electrically induced sleep with "sometimes remarkable" results.

Our Navy is measuring electric brain waves in an effort to predetermine the performance potential of recruits.

The British Epilepsy Assn., defining epilepsy as "sort of an electrical storm in the brain," is researching ways and means by "bypassing the short circuit."

Electroanesthesia is another application of this new science in which engineers and doctors work in concert. Some experiments foresee a day when drugs and anesthetics, often themselves fatal, are abandoned — when the surgeon will place electrodes on a patient's head and with the flick of a switch "turn his consciousness off and on."

In Russia, Japan, India and Eastern Europe they have already performed more than 1,500 operations on humans using electroanesthesia.

It's easy in any new science to become overly enthusiastic, to expect it to provide a panacea for all the ills that flesh is heir to; this probably won't do that. But if your imagination is sufficiently elastic, you may anticipate improved control over many human ills, physical and emotional.

RAY CROMLEY

Those Ills

WASHINGTON (NEA) — South Vietnam's early May military defeats are rooted in Nguyen Van Thieu's one-man presidential race last year.

This election, in which all opposition was eliminated or eliminated itself, shocked many Americans. As things have turned out, it proved even more disastrous for Thieu himself.

There are signs the results eroded much of his confidence. Friends say he is not sure of himself or of his position, that he doesn't feel he knows where he stands. He isn't certain of his public backing or his strength. He is afraid of making enemies, particularly among men who might possibly be able to mount a coup, which means the military. Frequently he waits to act until his back is against the wall — as now.

Fourteen months ago this reporter was told by a Saigonese close to Thieu that he, Thieu, had made up his mind that 10 to 15 per cent of South Vietnam's generals, colonels and majors were so inefficient, corrupt or unaggressive in battle that they must be replaced.

Thieu was determined to act. But he didn't. He kept putting off the hard decision.

Yet the current military defeats, directly the result of incompetent generals, colonels and majors, illustrate how tragic Thieu's procrastination was.

According to word reaching this reporter, Thieu has again informed his friends that he is determined to go through with the purges. Hopefully these firings of incompetents will be carried out in depth. But don't count on it.

His friends say that in this crisis it will be easier for Thieu to act. He knows what he must do and that he can no longer delay. The problem is that Thieu may only half do the job. He may fire those generals he finds he must — as on the Quang Tri-Hue front — and a few more. Then grow cautious, saying that the middle of battle is no time to sack high officers.

He will be encouraged in that caution by all the relatives, friends, political sponsors and other patrons of these men.

In Vietnam, where family is so important, one man, even a president, requires a great deal of courage indeed to demote, or even to fail to promote a relative, especially a relative of his wife's family. Or to do the same for the family of an important associate or other key military or political figure.

There was a time when Thieu seemed to be gaining in confidence. American advisers, and even Vietnamese who were not on his side politically, were agreed he was starting to make strong and courageous decisions in the right direction. There was considerable agreement that he had the correct instincts in key areas — on elimination of political military officers, on wiping out corruption and on making the rough economic reforms necessary for progress.

"Excuse me! Do you have any expensive organically grown food you think Fili might like?"

About The Killers

Editor, Times-News:

Once again an American patriot has been shot in an attempted assassination and we cannot but recall and ponder the not too distant happenings of the past when another vicious murder stalked Robert Kennedy and cowardly shot him full of holes.

Many are the well meaning folks who feel sorry for these murderous cowards and think that something should be done to rehabilitate and help correct and once again put them back in society as some type of reformed murderer. As we all know even the high court judges of the state of California ruled recently that capital punishment should be outlawed because it was unusual and cruel and in doing so guaranteed that the man who planned the premeditated murder of Robert Kennedy would never have to pay with his life.

The California judges would have to give better reasons than those to convince me that they were showing any justice toward the people who had been murdered or to we who pay taxes for the protection of the law.

The FBI and our law enforcement people have in general done a commendable job in trying to protect the people of our nation from criminals of one type or another but after they deliver the criminal, the responsibility lies with some one else to decide the penalty. It could well be that the cowardly murderer who stalked George Wallace was heartened by the California decision realizing that it would perhaps set a precedent in other states and maybe in the nation.

It could have just given him a little more courage to know that in all probability he would not pay with his life. At any rate the tendency of leniency would have been a major factor in his decision. If he had known quite surely that he would be executed forthwith, it may not have happened. We all have mixed feeling about these things. Some say gun control legislation would do the job but I would be hard pressed to think of a less workable solution than gun control legislation. We could not control the guns in this country to the point of preventing crime in a hundred years.

The use of guns is a constitutional right, somehow it is a part of our way of life. It is a part of our heritage. Why should we give up this right because people who murder other people with guns are not prosecuted and executed to the point where the potential murderer will hesitate to kill someone.

The murderer probably has little respect for the life of his victim but in all cases he would do anything to save his own. Gun control makes good political talk but you could in the name of common sense write a book on good reasons why it would not work. It is rather common knowledge that in some of the smaller nations where assassinations are most common, the common people have hardly any guns. After all people cannot live together in a society as complex as ours without law and penalties must be applied to those who break the law in accordance to the degree of severity in which the law is broken. When a criminal plans and carries out the murder of another person, I see no legitimate reason why he should not pay the full price of all he has.

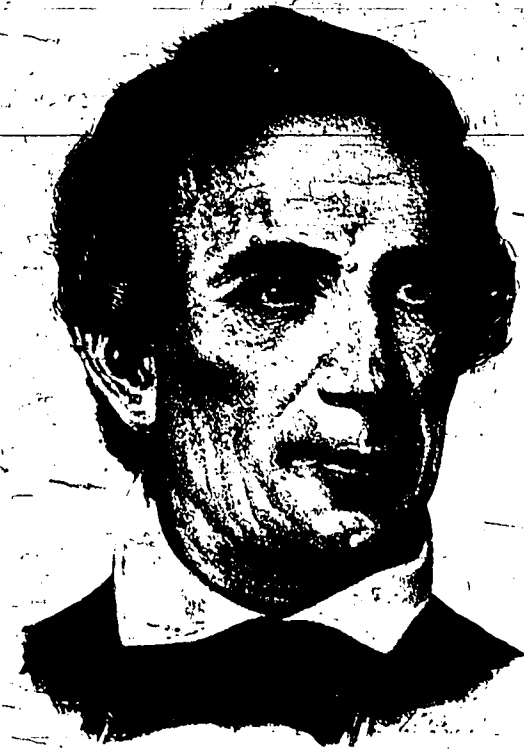

In the cases I have mentioned literally millions of people suffered and were caused to mourn and even our great nation could not avoid a certain amount of humiliation and embarrassment. The life of a criminal is a small price to pay for a murder he has committed and even though it may not help those he has harmed, surely it could very well prevent the next crime. The presidential primary elections are coming up again in California.

What effect will the no capital punishment law have in case still another cowardly assassin should be waiting? These murderers were not imbeciles. They were men who shrewdly planned their vicious act and carried it out to its climax of murder, whether these cases were conspiracies or whether they were just lone murderers is somewhat beside the point, the tendency has been entirely too much to protect the criminal. Why don't we kill our killers?

It might save the life of some one else or perhaps another American patriot.

Presidents Of Manifest Destiny

JOHN TYLER
Tenth President

Administration: April 6, 1841 — March 3, 1845

Read out of the Democratic Party because he refused to follow Jacksonian policies as a U.S. senator, and read out of the Whig Party for refusing to support that party's policies as Chief Executive, John Tyler became a President without a party and a politician without a future.

This characteristic spirit of independence, manifested at the age of 11 when he defied his tyrannical schoolmaster, continued without respite until his death 60 years later as a defiant delegate to the Confederate Provisional Congress.

Sixth oldest of eight children — he would have 14 by two wives — John Tyler graduated at 17 from William and Mary College, where his favorite subjects were ancient history, Shakespeare, music and poetry. A member of the Virginia House of Delegates at 21, the personable 6-footer was a congressman at 26, governor of his state at 34 and U.S. senator two years later.

A State's rights Democrat, Tyler was often at loggerheads with party leaders, and when Jackson removed federal deposits from the Bank of the United States by executive fiat, Tyler supported the resolution censuring the President for the action. Instructed by the Virginia Legislature to support a resolution to rescind the previous resolution, Tyler refused and resigned.

Out of the Senate and the Democratic Party, the irrepressible Virginian ran unsuccessfully for the Vice Presidency on the Whig ticket in 1835 with Hugh L. White of Tennessee, and again in 1839, riding to an easy victory on the "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too!" bandwagon.

After President William H. Harrison's inauguration, Tyler went home to Williamsburg to oversee his farm and enjoy his family. The Vice President was playing marbles with his children on the morning of April 5, 1841, when a government messenger galloped up to inform him that the President was dead.

Two questions were uppermost in the minds of the leaders of both political parties as John Tyler rode rapidly toward Washington: One, would he stand with the Whigs or the Democrats, and two, was he President or acting President, as many thought he should be including ex-President John Quincy Adams?

Publicly, Tyler set the record straight as to his title by taking the oath of office as President as soon as he reached the capital. Privately, he informed the Harrison Cabinet that decisions would not be made by majority vote, as had been done under his predecessor.

"I can never consent to be dictated to," Tyler told the Cabinet members. "I as President will be responsible for my Administration."

As to whether he was a Whig or a Democrat, John Tyler was a State's rights, pro-slavery, independent. Disregarding the fact that he was elected on the Whig ticket, Tyler time and again vetoed Whig bills for high tariffs and a national bank to replace the one killed by Andrew Jackson.

The Cabinet resigned, only Secretary of State Daniel Webster remaining long enough to complete the Webster-Ashburton Treaty fixing the disputed boundary between Maine and Canada. An abortive attempt was made to impeach the President, and cold epidemics were called "Tyler's gripe."

Now a politician without a party, Tyler tried to get the presidential nomination in 1844 by organizing a State's rights Democratic-Republican Party and campaigning on the issue of annexing Texas. But when the Democrats nominated Jackson's protégé, James K. Polk, who militantly favored Texas annexation, Tyler's hold card had been trumped and he withdrew.

Tyler held no political office until he became a member of the Virginia secessionist convention on the eve of the Civil War. Just prior to this he had been a leader in convening the ill-fated Peace Convention in Washington, and had been chosen its president. When this movement collapsed, Tyler advocated immediate secession by Virginia. He was a member of the Confederate Provisional Congress at his death.

Warmly defended by his supporters as "Honest John," Tyler was bitterly excoriated by his opponents as "Turncoat Tyler." Indeed, so vituperative was the Whig smear campaign that President Tyler was moved to declare, "I appeal to the vituperations of the present day to the impartial pen of history, in confidence that neither my motives nor my acts will bear the interpretation which for sinister motives has been put upon them."

There is no impartial pen of history, but John Tyler emerges today as a kindly, courteous man who obeyed the dictates of his own convictions rather than those of any group, and who stood by them with a frankness and courage matched by only one other President, the equally unpopular John Quincy Adams.

Even in death, John Tyler was treated with contempt by the government he had headed. No official notice was taken of his death by the Lincoln Administration, and a full half-century passed before Congress, during Taft's Presidency, appropriated $10,000 for a monument to honor him.

John Tyler's release from America's political purgatory, and his reincarnation from a nonperson to a person, is commemorated in marble in Hollywood Cemetery in Richmond, Virginia.

Editorial Challenged

Editor, Times-News:

The following is a letter sent to J. Robb Brady, editor of the Post-Register in Idaho Falls. It was requested that the letter also be published by the Times-News as a matter of public information.

Dear Sir:

A copy of your editorial published in the Twin Falls Times News has come to my attention. I would say that the references made to the proposed regional airport in this area as a means of justifying support of your million dollar bond election in Idaho Falls is deceptive and incorrect. So far, there has been only one regional airport election made under the present Idaho law, not many.

Last October, seven counties in the district voted on the proposal for a Southern Idaho Regional Airport, fully complying with the law finally amended for practical purposes by the 1971 session of the legislature. Five counties including Jerome, Gooding, Cassia, Minidoka and Lincoln approved the proposal. Twin Falls and Blaine counties defeated it. Even so, the counties approving the proposal represent 60 per cent of the population and 62 per cent of the valuation of the district. Would you say this election was a failure? If your June 6 bond election receives such a vote, do you plan to proceed with the expansion of your own airport?

Yes, we will admit that Twin Falls "jealously" held on to its concept of an isolated, inadequate site to serve this Valley. You were right on this statement, but contrary to your editorial it was the people outside of Twin Falls County who saw the advantage of a regional airport, just one more misstatement of fact.

The two situations, the Idaho Falls airport and the present Twin Falls City Airport are hardly similar in any respect. In the first place your airport site has convenient access and proximity adjacent to the Interstate Highway. It is adjacent to the mainline of the Union Pacific railroad to Montana. It is considerably more central in location. It has industrial complexes already functioning and active. What does the counterpart which you cite in Twin Falls have that compares? It is six miles south of the city. No Federal highway passes nearby.

There are no industrial complexes in use, let alone planned. Industrial planners who choose factory and plant sites want arterial transportation facilities nearby. The old Twin Falls port which you defend has none of these advantages. Would you say this was a fair comparison in asking your citizens to support your bond election on June 6?

If five counties and neighbors of your area had publicly rejected your airport and site and chosen another more centrally located would you still force this bond election on your own city and county? Would you still be as free to ask for federal funds which are public moneys provided by everyone and not just one city?

What do we have in Magic Valley? We have a tentative site located in the geographic center of our valley, in the center of the population where some 110,000 people reside. It is accessible to the Interstate Highway, actually touches its right-of-way. It is located alongside the Union Pacific Railroad cut-off line which is shorter than the mainline and enjoys mainline shipping advantages. The site allows industrial growth because it is on an arterial center, two federal highways, closer to Twin Falls city than the present port.

What has happened? A contract has been let and is in the final stages of processing whereby the Federal Aviation Administration and the Southern Idaho Regional Airport Authority will have a highly professional engineering firm survey the entire valley and make a final determination of the site for a valley airport. The firm is Barton, Stoddard, Mihollins and Higgins of Boise, Idaho, a subsidiary of Morrison-Knudsen. It specializes in airport site selection and construction all over the world. The survey will be completed by December 1, 1972. Previous professional surveys paid for and authorized by Twin Falls city and county designated the site which the present authority approved. The majority of the people of this Valley await the present "engineering study" findings.

In view of the facts which I have enumerated and herewith support with letters, news stories and data, there is much doubt that all cities can "go it alone" in providing multi-county air service. However, in the case of Idaho Falls at least the facts are greatly more favorable. But the prospect is most vague in Magic Valley. It was unfortunate that your comparison was inaccurate and was lacking of any similarity with our situation.

Leaders Grounded

WASHINGTON A recent story in the newspaper has upset my friend Flaxmeyer no end. He read that according to Sen. William Proxmire, the Defense Department has asked for almost a half-billion dollars to buy three 747 Boeing jets that would be used as an Advance Airborne National Command Post for the President of the United States and his top advisers in case of a nuclear attack.

According to the story, the planes will give the President and top officials an opportunity to take off before the enemy missiles strike and fly around in safety, pushing whatever buttons have to be pushed. The argument for these flying command posts is that our communications would be protected, no matter what the enemy hit on the ground.

When Flaxmeyer read the story he called me up immediately. "Don't get me wrong. I'm not against the Defense Department asking for a half-billion dollars for 747 jets. God knows it's a drop in the bucket compared to what we're spending now. But I do object to giving the President of the United States AND his advisers a chance to take off into the sky at the first sign of a nuclear attack."

"But," I protested, "it seems reasonable to me that the President should be able to conduct World War III from the air."

"Listen, one of the most important safeguards we have now is that the leaders of the nuclear powers know if we go, they go, too. If they have any chance of thinking they could be spared, they might make some very stupid decisions."

"Flaxmeyer," I said, "do you think the President of the United States would be influenced in his decisions by whether he survives a nuclear holocaust or not?"

"Maybe not consciously," he said, "but subconsciously he may figure he has nothing to lose. Look, I'm not talking just about the President of the United States. If we build three 747s as command posts, the Russians will equip three command Blyushins for their leaders. I say it's absolutely essential that the men who make the decisions to destroy the world know they have no chance of surviving the mischief they have cooked up."

"What do you suggest?" I asked. "The SALT agreement must have a clause written into it that neither side may build any airplanes that can be used as command posts for its leaders and top officials. Also, if the balloon goes up, the men who advised the leaders must be forbidden to leave Washington and Moscow. In fact, the language in the treaty must say that if war is declared, all U.S. advisers to the President must line up on Pennsylvania Avenue at attention, and all advisers to the Soviet leaders must line up in front of the Kremlin."

"The treaty should further state that the President and the Soviet leaders must remain in their respective offices until the last missile is fired."

"That's strong language," I told Flaxmeyer. "Wouldn't you rather have the President of the United States flying around making sure the Soviets are paid back for their infamy?" "No, sir! The only hope the little people have is that there will be no 747s and Blyushins to save the people who push the buttons."

"Let's forget World War III for a moment," I told Flaxmeyer. "If we ordered the planes, the half-billion dollars could do a lot for Boeing Aircraft in Seattle, Wash."

"I don't care. I say we scratch the order. I want to be sure if the mushroom cloud ever goes up, the President, his family and ALL his advisers are looking UP at it from the same angle as I am — and not DOWN on it from the friendly skies of United."

Prayer For Today

Forgive us for being such collectors, Dear God. We spend so money to buy, not only the things we need but everything we want as well. We seem to think our happiness in life depends upon an accumulation of material things. Help us to remember that you said, "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things which he possesseth." Help us to get our values straightened out so that we can find our real satisfactions on a higher plane.

Calley data suppressed

NEW YORK (UPI)—Lt. William Calley became temporarily insane under the stress of combat and could not have committed premeditated murder at My Lai, according to the secret data of a psychiatrist and two psychologists who examined Calley.

The data, suppressed at Calley's court-martial, rests now in a kind of legal limbo in an Army office. Only a special but unlikely legal motion or the intervention of President Nixon can get the information before the U.S. Army Court of Military Review which soon will determine Calley's fate. The psychiatrist wrote in the suppressed volume of data that a "killer instinct" clearly is part of Calley's "underlying psychotic and pre-psychotic state which he had before military service, during Vietnam and to this day."

The psychiatrist, Dr. Albert A. LaVerne of New York, a recognized forensic expert, said that he had submitted all the reports to military authorities in 1971 and again several weeks ago.

UPI obtained a copy of LaVerne's report and those of the two psychologists, all of which are bound in a 150-page volume titled "Suppressed Evidence in the Lt. William L. Calley Jr. Case."

LaVerne's diagnosis went on to say "it is imperative to emphasize that if Calley is ever released to society, he should be under close medical, and psychiatric surveillance for an unlimited period of time, during which he should be under psychiatric care and treatment."

Calley was found guilty in March, 1971 of first degree murder in the deaths of at least 22 civilians on March 16, 1968 at the South Vietnamese hamlet of My Lai. He was sentenced to life in prison, but that term was later reduced by Army Lt. Gen. A.O. Connor to 30 years. The case automatically went to the higher court of military review, where it rests now.

The Calley defense recently filed an appeal brief with the review court, seeking a mistrial on grounds of procedural irregularities that allegedly occurred in pretrial hearings and during the trial. Psychiatric considerations play no part in the appeal.

One of the civilian examiners, Dr. Arthur Weider, senior supervising psychologist at New York's Roosevelt Hospital, gave Calley a battery of psychodiagnostic tests, including the highly reliable Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory (MMPI).

The MMPI, based on computer analyses of 5-million case histories, said: "This patient's test results are suggestive of a serious psychiatric condition. Professional attention and evaluation are strongly recommended."

"The possibility of a psychotic or pre-psychotic condition must be considered," Weider added.

Weider also reported that his findings "reflect the psychopathology of a very serious personality and mental disorder which has the tendency to become full blown and uncontrollable under moderate to severe stress conditions such as may have existed at the My Lai atrocities. Under such circumstances, Lt. Calley was incapable of committing premeditated murder or intent to kill."

The other examiner, Dr. Eugene Stammeyer, a criminal psychology expert at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington, D.C., tested and interviewed Calley in January, 1971. He reported "it appears that disruptive emotions and anxiety states sometimes interfere with his (Calley's) intellectual and perceptual processes to such an extent as to reflect a potential for fleeting, unstable, transitive states where he may become so agitated and the flow of thought processes so rapid and fragmented as to defy description."

UP freight derailed at Parma

PARMA, Idaho (UPI) — Thirty cars of a 72-car Union Pacific freight train slipped from their tracks about five miles northwest of Parma Saturday at the Interstate Avenue crossing.

First reports said the wreckage burst into flames and that Parma firemen put out the blaze. A reporter who went to the scene, however, said he could see no evidence of a fire. There were no injuries.

A broken wheel from the train was found about one-half mile back of the point of derailment. Authorities said this may have caused the accident.

Union Pacific officials planned further investigation into the incident.

By late morning wreckage crews still were trying to clear the debris from the tracks. Canyon County Sheriff's deputies said the accident occurred about 1:30 a.m.

Hijack trial date set

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Richard E. McCoy, charged with the half-million-dollar sky-jacking of a United Air Lines jetliner in April, pleaded innocent Friday and was given a trial date.

McCoy, a 29-year-old helicopter pilot and skydiving enthusiast appeared before Chief U.S.

District Judge Willis W. Ritter, who ordered the suspect to stand trial beginning June 26.

McCoy, who was arrested at his home in Provo, Utah, two days after a skyjacker took $500,000 and bailed out near that city, smiled at relatives in the courtroom during his arraignment.

He is charged with air piracy and faces a maximum penalty of death.

In his arraignment proceedings, McCoy was declared mentally competent and capable of standing trial, following testimony by Dr. Eugene L. Bliss, Department of Psychiatry chairman, University of Utah.

The defendant had undergone a week of testing at the University Medical Center. The slightly built McCoy appeared in the same grey suit he wore in two previous court proceedings this month.

He is charged with the hijacking of a United flight over Grand Junction, Colo., April 7.

Suspects' appeal due before court

BOISE (UPI) — In its term beginning next Wednesday in Boise, the Idaho Supreme Court will hear eight cases, including a dispute over identification used in a Canyon County robbery case.

The term will last through June 2.

On Thursday, the court will hear the appeal of John Sadler, Nampa, and Ronald Sever, Boise, convicted in Third District Court of robbery.

During the trial the prosecution introduced into evidence identification of both men made by a witness at the police station, shortly after they were apprehended. The same witness identified the two in the courtroom.

The appellants contend the police station identification occurred in the absence of counsel and denied them their constitutional rights to an attorney at all critical stages of the prosecution was related to what they allege was an illegal police station identification.

On June 2, the court will hear an appeal by State Land Commissioner Gordon Trombley and the State Board of Land Commissioners from a Second District Court decision.

The case arose when Eldon Hutchins and Reynolds Allgood, both of Weippe, procured eight leases from the board in Clearwater County, but it was later determined part of the land was to be inundated by the Dworshak Dam pool.

Audit criticized

POCATELLO (UPI) — Luther Passmore, chairman of the Idaho Tax Commission, says lack of funds and the shortage of staff may be one of the reasons why his commission was looked upon critically by Legislative Auditor James Defenbach.

Defenbach released an audit Friday which said the commission, lacking standard employee guidelines and adequate audit capability, has been unable "to treat all Idaho taxpayers in an equitable and uniform manner."

Passmore did not refute the audit item by item, but discussed the ad valorem procedures cited in the audit. He explained that the commissioners had not had ample time to study the audit.

But he did say the audit was one-sided and over looked the progress made by the commission since 1967. He referred to the updating of the ad valorem assessing methods and the redefining of taxing district boundaries in the state.

"We have done this," he told members of the Budget and Fiscal Commission of the Idaho Legislature which met here Friday. "By increasing our staff by only one secretary and one clerk typist in the property tax division."

No ruling needed.

BOISE (UPI) — Chief Justice Henry McQuade of the Idaho Supreme Court says a special ruling by the Federal Pay Board will not be necessary to raise salaries of magistrates in Idaho.

McQuade informed fellow members of the high court in a memorandum he was so informed by the general counsel's office of the pay board.

He said that agency will not review the proposed pay hike — which for some magistrates could be as high as 50 per cent.

In 1934 the Gionne quintuplets were born near Callender, Ont.
In 1940 the evacuation of British, French and Belgian troops from Dunkerque, on the English Channel coast of France, began. When it was completed, 337,000 had reached Britain safely. More than 13,000 others were killed.

In 1955 director Albert Wheelhouse of the United Steelworkers predicted automation in factories would lead to a two-hour work day.

A thought for today: Spanish writer Miguel Cervantes said, "My honor is dearer to me than my life."

Laird halts US military projects under pact ban

By WARREN L. NELSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird Saturday ordered an immediate halt to all military projects banned under the Moscow summit's arms limitation agreements. Pentagon officials predicted only a nominal financial dividend.

"There will be savings, yes, but they'll buy crackers and milk, not filet mignon," quipped one official.

Laird ordered the Army to stop construction of the Safeguard antiballistic missile (ABM) site around Malmstrom Air Force Base in Montana and to end searches for sites around Warren AFB, Wyo. and White-man AFB, Mo.

In accord with the Moscow pact, he ordered the Army to proceed with plans for an ABM site around Washington, D.C., and to finish work at Grand Forks AFB, N.D., now about 80 per cent complete.

"We recognize that these actions will cause some temporary economic hardships," Laird said. "But the Department of Defense will do everything it can to help alleviate those hardships."

The treaty limits the Soviet Union and the United States to protecting their national capitals with 100 defensive ABM missiles and one of their offensive land-based launch sites with another 100 ABMs.

Whatever the savings, the officials said, the amount will not be big enough to eliminate or even to put a crimp in next year's budget deficit.

Much of the $1.5 billion budgeted for ABM next year still will be spent, officials said. Last February, Army Secretary Robert F. Froehke estimated that a four-site Safeguard program would cost $8 billion and a 12-site program $16.8 billion. Contracts for more than $4.5 billion have been awarded.

Officials said the cost figure for the two-site program probably would be between $5 billion and $7 billion and that savings would be spread over a half dozen years.

Just before the agreements were signed, Laird told reporters that the administration planned to forge ahead with its other strategic weapons programs.

"There will be no savings as far as the request for offensive strategic weapons which had been presented to the Congress," he said.

The pact, Laird noted, allows the Soviet Union to have one-third more offensive missiles than the United States. "It's essential, I think, when you view the numbers that are involved in the agreement, that the United States maintain a technological superiority position."

Although putting a ceiling on the number of land-based missiles and missile launching submarines that the Soviet Union and the United States can have, the agreement does not prohibit either nation from improving existing missiles and subs or even replacing them with more sophisticated versions.

In effect, this represented continuation of longstanding American policy. The United States finished building missile submarines and silos in 1967.

Ever since then, there have been 1,054 land-based missiles and 656 sea-based missiles.

These missiles have been and are being upgraded and the administration will maintain those programs unless Congress forces it to cut back.

Right now, more than half the land-based missiles are being replaced by newer Minuteman III missiles, each able to carry three warheads aimed at as many different targets.

The administration is converting 31 of the 41 Polaris submarines so that they can carry Poseidon missiles, each able to hold 14 multiple-targeted warheads. The administration also has asked for funds to build 10 Trident submarines to replace the 10 oldest Polaris submarines, which cannot be converted.

The accord does not cover long-range bombers, even though they are considered strategic weapons, and the administration intends to continue work on the B7 bomber as a replacement for the B52 and FB111 bombers in the Strategic Air Command.

McGovern proposes tax boost to finance income supplements

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — George McGovern as president would increase taxes by $30 billion for half of America's families to finance income supplements for the other half, according to a sweeping proposal outlined Saturday by the senator's top advisers.

Families of four with wages less than $12,000 would benefit. Those with higher earnings would pay more income taxes. The idea is to provide $1,000 payments for every man, woman and child and abolish what McGovern terms "the mess of welfare." The program would cost $60.5 billion.

McGovern's $1,000 income maintenance proposal is sure to be a major topic in the first of a series of three television debates Sunday between the senator and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, who are battling for California's 271 delegate votes in the June 6 primary. The pending debate was the major reason the South Dakota senator's advisers decided to spell out the program for the first time in detail on Saturday, one day before the two meet face-to-face on television.

Both senators devoted Saturday afternoon to honing up for the hour-long confrontation on CBS' "Face The Nation."

Humphrey, who celebrated his 61st birthday Saturday, scheduled a three-hour briefing geared toward California issues in his hotel suite. McGovern planned a session with advisers.

Campaigning was relatively sparse after a full week of vote stumping throughout the nation's most populous state.

Humphrey began his 61st birthday celebration by participating in the Garden Grove Strawberry Festival and later traveled to a surprise party at Disneyland.

Dismissing words of caution from the Secret Service, the former vice president rode in the front seat of a 1920 Diamond-T truck through Garden Grove's main thoroughfare lined on both sides with people.

"By God, I'm not going to let them (Secret Service) decide what I'm going to ride in," Humphrey said after agents had urged him to ride in his closed limousine.

Humphrey stood up most of the way, honking the horn, blowing kisses and waving. "Boy," he said, "this is really something, isn't it?"

McGovern dedicated the Helen Keller swimming pool near the black community of Watts and was splashed by Boy Scouts as they jumped in to officially open the ghetto recreational facility.

"The cost of operating the Vietnam War for one month would be enough to build a swimming pool of this kind in every neighborhood of California," McGovern told a mixed gathering of blacks, whites and Orientals.

Under McGovern's income maintenance proposal, persons with no earnings would receive the full $1,000 supplement—or $4,000 for a family of four. The supplements would decrease as incomes rose, up to $12,000. After that taxes would increase —ranging from $21 for average families in the $15,000 to $20,000 range to $815,000 for those earning more than $1 million. Van Okmer, a Brookings Institute economist service, privately as McGovern's chief economic adviser, said the program was subject to considerable change but this was the senator's present goal.

Navy plane missing

MONTEREY, Calif. (UPI)—No trace was found Saturday of a Navy patrol plane missing more than 24 hours with eight persons aboard.

A P3 Orion, equipped with sophisticated electronic equipment used in tracking submarines, disappeared Friday on a routine training flight out of Moffett Field Naval Air Station, Calif.

The four-engined craft was last heard from over Big Sur, a rugged coastal mountain range. It was in this area that the search was conducted by Navy, Coast Guard and Air Force planes.

Lacking flights, astros get gate

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — A reduced budget and an astronaut corps overflowing with men who will never make flights means those considering outside jobs or early retirement are "encouraged" to leave.

"We are getting through the program and have three times as many people as we need to fly the missions," Donald K. (Deke) Slayton, chief of flight crew operations.

Moon explorers James B. Irwin and Edgar D. Mitchell have announced plans to retire Aug. 1. "It's no secret we have too many astronauts," Irwin said.

Slayton said there are no forced retirements. "The people retire when they want to," he said.

Remaining are one Apollo and three Skylab missions. Slayton said the added joint American-Russian orbital flight doesn't change matters. Dropped were 25 lunar and 15 Skylab missions.

Freighter in tow

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UPI) — An ocean-going tug took a crippled Israeli cargo ship into tow off the Virginia Capes Saturday, while a helicopter removed crewmen injured in an explosion.

The Norfolk-based tug Cape Henry reached the Zim Tokyo before noon Saturday, and managed to get it in tow four hours later. A Coast Guard spokesman said the captain of the ship at first "was reluctant to put any crewman on the bow to accept the tow line" because of high seas, with waves up to 20 feet. The ship was being towed to Newport News, Va., and was expected to arrive Sunday morning.

The Zim Tokyo was rocked by an explosion Friday, which killed two persons. A third man is missing and believed overboard.

Three injured crewmen were picked up by a helicopter dispatched from Elizabeth City, N. C. The injured were taken to Portsmouth.

The Zim Tokyo originally carried a crew of 32.

Campus target of time bombs

NEW YORK (UPI)—Time-bombs exploded before dawn Saturday inside two Columbia University buildings which were targets last month of student protests over renewed bombing of North Vietnam.

No injuries were reported and damage was described as minor. Classes have ended for the year and there were few students on campus.

Police said one bomb went off at 1:45 a.m. EDT in a ninth floor seminar room of the new 15-story School of International Affairs (SIA) building. About 20 minutes later the second blew apart a sink closet in a ninth floor hallway of Pupin Hall, a 14-story building which houses the Physics Department.

Sgt. Ed Sullivan said a woman called Columbia security police at about the time of the SIA explosion, said two bombs had gone off and warned that three more had been planted at the Law School, Lowe Library and Philosophy Hall. The woman said "pig" and hung up, Sullivan said.

A search of the three other buildings failed to turn up any more bombs.

Big crowd protests

Youth killed

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UPI) — A teenager who had sneaked to within one fence of an underground nuclear weapons storage area at Kirtland Air Force Base was electrocuted Saturday by a high voltage fence.

An Air Force spokesman said the victim and a companion had penetrated past two barbed wire fences bearing lights warning signs in order to get to the restricted area in the old Manzano Base area of the Kirtland complex.

Thousands of black men and women marched down Washington's "embassy row" and past the State Department Saturday to protest alleged racism and colonialism in southern Africa.

The "African Liberation Day" march and a peaceful rally later at the Washington Monument grounds attracted a crowd estimated by police at nearly 10,000 and capped a three-day effort by organizers to make black Americans more aware of problems faced by blacks in Africa and U.S. policy there.

Bone, a Catholic enclave. The soldiers went into the area to investigate the bombing of a drugstore when the gunbattle broke out. A soldier was wounded first, then a doctor who tried to help the fallen trooper. Two bystanders and two gunmen were wounded in the ensuing gunfire.

Soon afterward, gunmen in a speeding car wounded three Catholic men on a downtown street.

Irish ask crackdown

BELFAST (UPI)—Bombing and shooting incidents killed one person and injured 16 others in Northern Ireland Saturday as thousands of Protestants marched through downtown Belfast demanding an immediate British crackdown on the illegal Irish Republican Army (IRA).

An estimated 15,000 to 20,000 Protestants took part in the march, many of them wearing Halloween masks to conceal their identity.

The protest parade went off without violence, but elsewhere in the city British troops investigating gunfire in the Catholic Andersonstown area found the bullet-riddled body of Gerald Duddy, 20.

He was the 341st person killed in Northern Ireland since British soldiers were sent into the province almost three years ago to mediate between warring Protestants and Catholics. Bombs ripped through two theaters as the Protestant marchers neared the center of the city.

Two policemen and William Christie, the Protestant lord mayor-designate of Belfast were injured by flying glass near one of the theaters in the Crumlin Road area. No injuries were reported in the other theater explosion in the Old Park Road district.

Six persons were wounded in a gunbattle between British soldiers and snipers in The

Leaders disagree on Vietnam, Mid-East

...selected

MOSCOW (UPI)—President Nixon and Leonid I. Brezhnev apparently have decided they cannot agree on Vietnam and the Middle East—the only areas of U.S.-Soviet relations that could provoke a military confrontation.

So under the carpet they go—the better—in Nixon and Brezhnev's apparent strategy, to allow both powers to do what is possible now to open an era of easier relations and goodwill between them.

The Russians say they are not simply thinking of today. They hope they are building the foundations of decades of peace with America.

There is a surprising lack of direct conflict between America and Russia.

It is China and not America which seeks 600,000 square miles of Soviet territory. There has been no U.S.-Soviet war. The millions of emigrants from this country have, in letters home to mother, Russia over the generations, built a reservoir of goodwill that Stalinist propaganda could not break. Josef Stalin himself, as well as V.I. Lenin, openly admired some things American—chiefly the new world's energy and efficiency.

The big problems between the giants lie in the area of their partners—America's Israel and South Vietnam, Russia's Egypt and North Vietnam.

Nixon and Brezhnev could cut off arms to their allies, but this would cost them credibility and face.

All the Russians I have talked to say one thing on Vietnam—the United States should go back to the Paris conference table and try to work it out there. We, the Russians, do not control the situation and we do not control Hanoi, they told me.

Diplomats consider this a credible position by the Soviets. They say the Soviets simply do not control Hanoi.

China is a silent partner in the Moscow summit. It is safe to say that even if Nixon and Brezhnev could come to some agreement on Vietnam or the Middle East, they would not make it public now. Anything the Russians do is criticized by Peking. And the United States has Saigon to worry about.

And it seems certain Nixon has not been able to convince the Russians that whatever he may have done in Peking was not anti-Russian. Who knows besides Nixon and his aides what may have happened in China. In the same vein, any agreement reached here on Vietnam, the Middle East and such would have to be tacit or, if explicit, unannounced.

So what has been going on here? Well, Nixon and Brezhnev have been trying to create a climate suited to the beginning of better times between the two superpowers.

Resort slated on Alcatraz

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) A hotel magnate wants to build a $25 million resort on two acres of Alcatraz Island.

James Stockton, president of the United States Hotel Corp., said in a letter to Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton that he wanted to lease the former federal prison property in San Francisco Bay on a 99-year basis at $100,000 a year.

He said the corporation would turn over to the government up to 10 per cent of the Alcatraz Towers Hotel annual earnings instead of the lease rate if the amount was higher.

Conservationist Alvin Duskin said he didn't think there's a chance in the world that this thing will get off the ground. The public outcry would be enormous.

Alcatraz is a very high visibility area and three million people see this place every day. It's part of their life," said Duskin, founder of a group opposing any commercial development on the island. "Alcatraz has become an emotional and important symbol of what happens when some developer wants to make a lot of money and a lot of the people don't want to see a piece of land ruined."

The Merry pet

By LINDA MERRY, D.V.M.

Question: Our kitty will soon be 7 months old. How will we be able to tell when she comes in heat?

Answer: In medical terminology the word pathognomonic means one sign or symptom upon which a whole diagnosis can be made. Few conditions really are pathognomonic but a cat in heat is. When your kitty falls in love you won't be able to miss the diagnosis.

Cats in heat call noisily or give repeated rolling meows. They hunch down with the back flattened and hindquarters elevated. The tail may be deflected to one side while "treading" movements are made with the hind feet. Some cats drool repeatedly.

Heat (or estrus) usually lasts from three to six days, but may last as long as ten days if the female is not mated. Most unmated cats will come back into heat every 15 to 21 days for three or four heat periods in mid-winter, late spring, and early fall. Some queens seem never to stop these repeated cycles unless they are bred or spayed.

Question: We have an older dog that had his permanent distemper shots as a puppy. Now someone says he needs "boosters." We're confused!

Answer: Ten years ago we hoped that distemper shots would be "good for life." Now we know that they unfortunately don't last that long. It is generally recommended that house dogs need a yearly booster. Dogs that roam the streets and are exposed to distemper may go a little longer before their immunity is lost. And dogs don't outgrow the danger of distemper either. I have seen dogs 17 and 18 years old die of distemper. So, there's really no such thing as a "permanent distemper shot."

Question: My son has a pet rabbit that's now 5 years old. How long do rabbits usually live?

Answer: Your son's rabbit is a senior citizen right now. Rabbits usually live 5 to 7 years.

If you have a question about your pet, send it to The Merry Pet column, care of the Times-News, Box 548, Twin Falls, Idaho, 83301.

Valley residents 'sold' on bidding for bargains

By HUGH DAVIS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The sign says, Furniture, Antiques and Junkque. The place is the weekly Tuesday auction at Harold Klaas Auction south of Jerome.

Each Tuesday, bargain-hunters, people in need of things for their homes or farms and a special breed of auction "nut" comes out to Klaas' auction to listen to Harold, for a 25 per cent commission, sell all manner and type of materials.

Scenes like Tuesday happen with regularity all over the Magic Valley, in Buhl, Twin Falls and wherever something is to be sold.

Folks bring in their "junk" and men like Harold sell it to grateful buyers who go home with yet another treasure.

Most of the articles sold at auctions still have a use and most folks buy the articles because they can find a use for them. Often, in the audience, there are a few shrewd antique dealers who pick up salable items to be resold later.

And, always, there are a few auction "nuts" who go to listen to the bids, make a few of their own and buy "stuff" they can't possibly use. They are a peculiar breed of human.

This reporter, rapidly acquiring the title of auction "nut," has been seasoned somewhat by watching the bidding and the type of articles sold.

One can usually see the "rookie" in the audience. He is one who raises his hand when the auctioneer says, "who will give me $5 to start off the bidding?" That night, the rookie came home with a chair he couldn't use nor had a place in his home for.

The "seasoned" bidder knows the auctioneer will ask a high starting price and relent to a lower starting price when no one responds. Then he watches the skilled auctioneer get the bid up to the original starting price and more often than not, above it.

Then, there is the friend who walks into the bidding arena and acknowledges a wave from a person across the room he recognizes. Suddenly, he finds himself the startled owner of a used saddle, a bargain at $26.50. One might classify this person as a minor leaguer in his first major season.

Auctioneers also recognize "the hold-out." He's the one who waits until everyone is through hoping to get a good buy. Most often, he is watching the bidders and not listening to the auctioneer.

He, too, is startled to find he has purchased a set of unmatched golf clubs, left-handed, for $19.50, when he plunges in just ahead of the auctioneer's final declaration.

The ideal situation for the auctioneer is to find two persons in the audience who want the same article. The bidding begins with five or six people involved and soon evolves into a capitalistic struggle between the stubborn pair.

They are combatants, having forgotten both the article they are bidding on and the current bid. Sweat beads on their brows and their arms flail as if they are striking at one another.

Finally one is vanquished, he can take no more. More than likely, the "quitter" finally heard the bid and decided not to pay $97.50 for a gas range the auctioneer long ago described as "The front two burners work, the back right works only on low and a Bolt right there will keep the oven door on."

The "winner" has defeated his opponent on the auction floor, but after he pays for the range, he may have to enlist the help of the defeated to assist him in lugging the range out to the car.

For the "seasoned" bidder, there is one nemesis. That nemesis is the lady in the second row with the gaudy hat and lots of money.

The lady has come to the auction because she heard they had some really "quaint" items one could pick up "for a song." Her idea of "a song" is 50 cents more than whatever the last bid was. Of course, the "veteran" has set a limit on how much he or she wants to spend.

The lady bids 50 cents more than the veteran's limit and heaps the final agony on the veteran when, after she has bought the item, she turns to a friend and says, "Whatever in the world am I going to do with that old thing?"

For most folks, the auction is a stimulating place, standing there shoulder to shoulder with the best of buyers and sellers, bidding and almost bidding, bidding when you don't really have the money to bid and just possibly going home with something you want.

There is one type of person who doesn't enjoy the auction. He is the husband whose wife fractures his ribs with nudges and gentle calls to arms like, "Bid, you dummy, if you don't bid, I'll never speak to you again. I need that lamp." He doesn't bid and when he gets home, the ribs hurt but he may enjoy the silence, until the next auction.

Valley Living

A real buy.

THIS MUST be the kitchen that left the home. These cupboards, drawers and doors will be sold at auction and be fitted into another home.

Bidding stops

"ALL IN? Sold, number 106 for a dollar." Auctioneer Harold Klaas gets 25 per cent of the sale price and is among the many auctioneers in Magic Valley who make auction buying so exciting.

All occasion items

ONE COULD furnish a five-room house with the right bidding at the auction where everything from picture frames to pianos is available. Many auction goers go to the sale ahead of time to look over the items and know exactly what they want to bid on.

TF dance recital scheduled June 3

TWIN FALLS — A dance recital, sponsored by the Beverly Hackney Ballet School, will be presented at 8 p.m. June 3 at the CSI Fine Arts Center Auditorium.

Most of the work for this year's recital has been handled by students while Mrs. Hackney continued her education at the University of Utah for a semester. Her teaching assistant, Gail Young, has conducted classes and assisted in setting up most of the recital dances.

The scenery was created by student artists, Lark Kyles, Ann Turner, Bunnie Killen, Becky

Reddick, Vicki Rayborn, Maren Sande, Melody Youtz and Carol Covington.

The main program will consist of the ballet, "Les Sylphides," and selections from the "Nutcracker Suite."

In charge of publicity and tickets are Miss Killen, Miss Young, Miss Turner, Miss Kyles, Miss Wright, Marsha Brumbach, Donna Buchanan, Debbie Newell, Debbie Wiedenheft, Jane Vincent, Sandie Callen, Jolie Allred and Kathy Kiely.

Tickets for the recital are available through students or at the YM-YWCA.

Current Cues

By HELEN WALKER

TWIN FALLS — Modern kitchen equipment is so easy to keep clean that it is often caused by taking it for granted.

Sometimes spills and splashes aren't cleaned off right away or they are tackled with damaging abrasives which could result in permanent stains and scratches.

Take porcelain enamel, for example — actually, it is a highly durable glass fused on metal — and used for such varied equipment as the range, refrigerator linings, laundry equipment surfaces and sinks.

Its surface is smooth yet porous, and acid-resistant, but not acid-proof. This means that it is vital to wipe up any acidic spills such as vinegar, milk or fruit juice immediately, otherwise such stains may cause permanent dull spots.

If spills occur during cooking and the range top is hot, wipe with dry paper towels or dry cloth to avoid crazing or cracking the surface. When the surface is cool, wash with sudsy water using a cloth or sponge followed by a rinse. Avoid using an abrasive, because this can damage the glazed finish.

Instead, use a plastic or other non-abrasive "scrubber." Warm water and chlorine or perborate bleach diluted according to package instructions may help to remove stubborn stains.

In addition to such "first aid" measures, porcelain enamel surfaces require regular cleaning with plenty of warm suds and rinsed with clean water.

Frost-free refrigerators are a joy, but these appliances should be cleaned thoroughly a few times each year. Since there is no messy ice melting process it is easy. Unplug the refrigerator and turn the controls to "off," especially the signal arm of an automatic icemaker. Remove all food and protect the frozen items from thawing.

Remove parts such as the crispers, meat pans, shelves and light fixtures. Wash everything in warm sudsy water. Be sure to remove and wash the evaporating tray and air grill below the unit. To freshen, wash and rinse the inside of the refrigerator with soda water.

Replace all parts, plug into the outlet and reset the controls. To keep your refrigerator odor free, punch large holes in a plastic container and fill with a package of baking soda.

About once a week shake to expose a fresh layer of soda. When a sniff tells you the soda is saturated, it's time for a fresh supply.

An electric can opener cannot be immersed in water, but the cutting edge should be wiped clean after each use. Periodically the edge should be washed thoroughly to prevent food contamination.

On some models, the cutting wheel can be removed for cleaning. Rinse, dry and lubricate the blade lightly with vegetable oil. But read the instruction manual for your particular make and model.

And speaking of instruction manuals, most manufacturers make every effort to protect their reputation by providing top quality products and good instructions for their use.

In order to finish up our week of teacher's hands, we go back to Milton Work, the greatest authority on auction bridge. We have taken one of his auction hands and given it contract bidding.

In auction bridge, South would play at either two or three diamonds, depending on how far East and West bid, but the play would be the same.

Clubs are opened and continued and South ruffs the second one with a high trump. Work pointed out that this was completely safe, since neither opponent could hold more than four trumps.

Then declarer cashes two high diamonds and is delighted when his opponents both follow. Now the five of diamonds is an entry to dummy.

Doctor advises patients to 'make love—not fat'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Claiming that an active sex life helps keep people thin, a doctor specializing in weight control says he advises his patients to "make love, not fat."

Dr. Abraham I. Friedman, writing in the June issue of the Ladies Home Journal, contends that sexual intercourse is a quick way of burning up calories and can help a person lose-up to five pounds a month.

In the article titled "How Sex Can Keep You Thin," Friedman said most of his patients had sexual difficulties. "They were substituting food for sex or love," he said, and he had to "reverse the procedure and use sex in place of food."

"The results were gratifying," he said. Patients who formerly were unable to lose weight began to do so.

Fried, who said that for the past 25 years he has devoted his practice to weight control, declared he advised his patient to use sex to overcome emotional overeating, "to increase their sexual activity as much as possible. 'Make love, not fat,' was to be their motto."

He gave three reasons why patients lost weight while on his regimen:

—Increased energy expenditure: "It has been estimated that about 200 calories are expended during the average act of sexual intercourse."

—Effect on appetite-regulating centers of the brain. Some researchers believe the center of sexual response is located in the same area of the brain that contains the center of appetite control, "thus it is very likely that increased activity of one center (sex) may have dampening effect on the other (appetite)."

—Substitution of one basic need for another.

A Lovelier You

WHAT NOURISHES YOUR SKIN?

By Mary Sue Miller

Not so long ago, rich-face creams were believed to "nourish" the skin. And were sometimes labeled "skin food." All such terms were frowned upon by experts, for it was thought that the skin could not be penetrated through external applications.

We know now that various oils and moisturizers, along with certain vitamins and protein elements, do get beneath the skin's surface with beneficial results. Emphasis on humectants gains daily, as nature's moisture proves the plumping agent of firm, young-looking complexions.

When dermatology and cosmetology further develop their common ground, skin care — we may expect a vast increase in product efficacy. And a good thing, too — we live longer and skin has longer time to dry.

Still, owing to the very effectiveness of products at hand, we are apt to forget that the skin receives its vital sustenance from within. We must make a point of eating foods that promote our general welfare and the skin's welfare. Happily, these are one and the same.

Vitamins A and B complex, unsaturated oils, protein, non-calcium nourish the inner and outer girl. You get the works in daily servings of meat (liver, a must), fish, fowl, in cottage cheese, yellow and green vegetables, eggs, salad oils, raw fruits and milk.

Without endangering your weight, too.

LONDON (UPI)—Tom Yardley decided to go on a little jaunt to celebrate his 100th birthday.

So a week ago he slipped out of the Hazelhurst Old People's Home at Alderly Edge, 170 miles north of here, and hopped a bus to London.

Some of the sights he saw were pretty spicy.

"One afternoon I went to the pictures and saw a French film," he told a reporter Wednesday on his return home.

"It was full of nudes so I walked out in disgust after three hours."

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I answered some newspaper ads for domestic help. My qualifications: I like children. [In fact, I have a very nice, talented daughter, of 11.] I am able to teach tennis, swimming, have a pleasant disposition, can wash and iron and clean a house as well as anyone. I have high hygienic standards and know how to shop for food, prepare it, and serve it.

I can do odd jobs around the house, drive and fix the family car. I dress well, speak well, and make a good appearance. But when I apply for a job as a domestic, all I get is, "Are you kidding? My husband would never stand for it!" [I am a male.]

And women talk about sex discrimination! I have moral standards, and would never have anything other than a proper relationship with the lady of the house.

Isn't it unfair for women to complain that they are being discriminated against when they won't give a man a chance?

STANLEY IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR STANLEY: Before you write off the entire female population, give a few other women who are in need of domestic help a chance. If I were to publish your full name, you would need police protection.

DEAR ABBY: I would like for you to be the judge in this marital problem.

Recently I accidentally discovered that my wife of 14 years [two children] has been carrying on a prolonged affair with another man. When confronted with the evidence, she readily confessed, and she supposedly terminated the affair. However, she has been moody and depressed ever since, saying I did her a grave injustice, and family relations would have been better had I not interfered in her private life.

Just how much privacy is a married woman entitled to?

HER HUSBAND

DEAR HUSBAND: "Privacy" is one thing. Giving a mate "swimming" privileges is something else. When a husband [or wife] tolerates continued infidelity in marriage, it's the beginning of the end.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks from the male side of the species for saying fantasies are normal and nothing to be ashamed of. I have been married for years to a woman who was always either "too sick" or "too tired." Yet I love her very much. My flights of fantasy are a great help in filling the void. It's nice to know that I'm not a dirty old man.

DREAMER

DEAR DREAMER: When I made the statement, I anticipated being called a "dirty old lady." And I was.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is well-educated, talented, and hard working, but he has one habit which simply drives me up a wall! He chews gum almost constantly. And loudly! I have asked him [in private] to please stop, and sometimes he does. But when he is directing the choir, for instance, I can't very well say anything to him. And I shouldn't have to.

He's not old enough to be senile. And he's not rich enough to be eccentric. Don't tell me to correct him. He doesn't take criticism very well.

I really don't expect a solution to my problem, Abby. I just had to tell somebody how frustrating it is!

BURSTING IN BOZEMAN

DEAR BURSTING: I'll publish your letter. It may not help. But it can't hurt.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Serendipity

By Margie Morris

TWIN FALLS — In these hectic times, nostalgia plays an important part in our lives.

There are film festivals of old silent film favorites. Fashions from yesterday are "in." Television constantly brings back the good old times with the late show and the late, late show.

Recently an invitation to our son's school dance advised that in honor of the parents music from the "big band era" would be included in the program.

It is difficult to imagine that in years to come our children will look upon what's happening today as "the good old days." Let's take a little closer look at these good old days... will they bring forth the bittersweet memories of nostalgia 30 years from now?

It is impossible for me to believe that at some point in the future someone, somewhere will reflect fondly on the cacophonous sounds that today pass for music. Will "American Pie" be remembered along with such standards as "Stardust" and "Mood Indigo?"

People will surely chuckle when remembering that a mustache and beard were the only sure signs that the long-haired child lounging around the house was a boy. In my day, long-haired referred to Bach and Beethoven and not the latest hair style for an all-American young man.

The far-out motorcycle (chopper) of today will probably be a relic to our grandchildren. And what, pray tell, will take the place of NEW MATH?

Charles Lindbergh... Gen. MacArthur... Roy Rogers the Lone Ranger... I wonder who will replace these bigger-than-life heroes. Today we calmly accept the anti-hero without batting an eye. Hero... anti-hero... what is next?

Let's move to the domestic scene. What is on the horizon to make permanent press fabrics and TV dinners obsolete? So goes the broom, so goes the vacuum cleaner! The four-day work week, mandatory retirement at 55, pass for music, adopting the metric system — should these things become realities, will there be any time left for pondering over trivialities such as, "What ever happened to the good old 5 cent cigar?"

Don't apologize for liking soap operas

NEW YORK (UPI)—Don't apologize if you're hooked on daytime soap operas.

Jean Dalrymple says you're seeing some "marvelous" acting, even though the plots go on and on and on...

Miss Dalrymple, who's been a part of the theatrical world since her teens, praises the "soaps" although they "never end and always have the characters sitting down to talk things out over a cup of coffee."

"Sometimes," she laughs, "I think the coffee industry subsidizes the daytime dramas."

"I can tell you one thing," she continues, "I wouldn't be able to keep my laundry if she couldn't catch her favorites. She takes a tiny television set into the kitchen. She tells me what's happened, what's happening, and what's going to happen."

The small, blue-eyed blonde is producer emeritus at the New York City Center of Music and Drama which she helped to start in 1943. She's scheduling production of two new works for sometime this summer, one a light comedy, the other two one-act plays.

Broadway theater problems are many, she said, because today it takes so much money to stage anything: straight play or musical. "At least $150,000 just to put on a play," she said. "Cost of musicals goes far higher."

"Women have had to drive men to the theater."

"Of course," she said, "I have to generalize, but you can't drag a man to see a serious play. They say they see so much drama in real life. That's why they like the musicals."

Jean Dalrymple, a native of Morristown, N.J., has been a force in the world of performing arts since she was in her teens. Starting as an actress-writer-producer (of skits), she wrote a play produced by John Golden. But instead of playing the part she'd written for herself, she became Golden's production assistant.

Couple recites VOWS

TWIN FALLS — Linda Darlene Johnson and Von Dean Smith were married in a double ring ceremony May 12 at the Seventh Ward LDS Church.

Bishop William Toolson officiated.

The ceremony was performed before baskets of mixed orange pompons and chrysanthemums. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Johnson, Twin Falls, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Smith, Wendell.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose floor length gown of white patterned nylon over white peau de sole. The empire-waistline was accented with an orange ribbon. The gown featured lily point sleeves and a high neckline.

Her floor-length veil of white illusion and lace was borrowed from Mrs. James Spall, Twin Falls. She carried a petite cascade of white roses and orange tipped carnations with white ribbon and streamers.

Alice Kelso, Twin Falls, was maid of honor and Mrs. Jerry Olsen, Twin Falls, was matron of honor. Shirley Sommer, Linda Talley and Claudia Johnson, sister of the bride, all Twin Falls, were bridesmaids.

David Roberts, Twin Falls, served as best man. Ushers were Roger Johnson, Castleford, brother of the bride; LaRon Smith, Twin Falls, and Gene Smith, Wendell, both brothers of the bridegroom, and Hal Kelso, Eden.

Ann Lorraine Smith and Nancy Smith, both Wendell, sisters of the bridegroom, served as pianists and Jack Van Buren, Twin Falls, was soloist.

The couple was honored at a reception after the ceremony. They greeted guests standing under an archway of greenery and daisies.

MR. AND MRS. VON-D. SMITH

The bride's table was covered with a white tablecloth and centered with a four-tiered white cake decorated with nougats of fresh orange carnations and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom belonging to the bride's grandmother. The cake was flanked by crystal candleholders with orange candles.

The serving tables were covered with white net over white tablecloths and trimmed with orange bows. Two crystal punch bowls were used. The tables were centered with crystal candleholders holding orange candles and bouquets of orange roses and daisies.

Guest tables were covered with white cloths and centered with a large snifter decorated with orange net and floating orange Talisman roses, flanked by two small snifters each holding a white candle.

Mrs. Ray Alberdi, Twin Falls, was in charge of the guest book.

Mrs. Larry Hansen and Mrs. Bruce Williams, both Salt Lake City, sisters of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Gene Smith, Wendell, cared for gifts.

Cake was served by Mrs. Dan Johnson, Twin Falls, and Mrs. Roger Johnson, Castleford. Mrs. LaRon Smith, Twin Falls, served punch.

Mrs. Leonard Widrig, aunt of the bride, Kimberly, was in charge of the reception, assisted by Mrs. Arley Hutchinson, Buhl, aunt of the bride. The couple was honored at open house at the Wendell LDS Church May 13.

Special guests attending the wedding were Mrs. Maude Groves, grandmother of the bride, Twin Falls, and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Williams and family and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Hansen and family, all Salt Lake City. Other guests attended from Jerome, Salt Lake City, Eden and Wendell.

After a wedding trip to Salt Lake City, the couple will reside in Twin Falls, where the bride is employed by Mountain Bell Telephone Co. and the bridegroom by Me 'N' Ed's.

Fancy That

By Norma Herzinger

TWIN FALLS — Students and faculty members of Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School did a bang up job recently in their efforts to "bridge" the generation gap.

The Starlight Prom, which climaxed the 1971-72 school year, found students and parents together for an evening of dancing to the "big band era" type music of the White Rainbow group — and having a ball.

I could hardly believe my eyes as I walked into the O'Leary gym. It was elaborately decorated with a false crepe paper ceiling and side streamers with quartet tables encircling the dance floor.

The place was packed and the dance floor overflowing. Not just students dancing with students, but fathers dancing with daughters and mothers dancing with sons, teachers with students. It was great.

As the evening progressed I noticed when the slower dances were played, the students were doing what I would call a "bunny hug" type something. My first thought was the youngsters were entirely too young to be dancing that close — especially when it dawned on me I had a 14-year-old daughter out there dancing the same way.

But — after watching several dances I realized it was not the boyfriend-girlfriend type cuddling like I first thought — just their generation's style. Just like many of us remember the good old two-step — only we held each other differently.

Speaking of the two-step. The kids were prepared for that, too. Just to show how much they wanted this dance to be a success — dancing instructions were given during the PE classes a couple of weeks before the dance — learning just that — the two-step.

They also reviewed etiquette rules in their social studies classes so proper introductions could be made between students, teachers and parents — and — bulletins were distributed daily to the home rooms on various aspects of the dance.

This was one of the very few functions I've seen in a long time that incorporated the help of the entire school instead of just the usual few that do all the work. The typing classes were in charge of preparing the invitation letters for the parents; the art class made the decorations and the shop class made the bridge for the entrance.

According to Norman (Duke) Wiseman, O'Leary vice principal, the dance was held for a good social evening for all concerned and to help educate the young people about dance etiquette and to give the youngsters, parents and teachers a chance to do something together.

"I feel it was a great learning experience for the students," Wiseman commented after the dance, "and we feel it's the best dance we've sponsored."

FLOOR FASHIONS

Thinking of color schemes for your home? What color should the Carpet be? Bright and bold, or traditional, something more pastel and soft? Much of the decision may depend on the type of person you are, temperament wise. Many persons have a color or a group of colors they love, and stick to year in, year out.

For example, some dark eyed women with olive complexions like intense colors, where a blonde may go for lighter tones which may be on the subdued side.

more colorful furnishings. For the formal type of social gatherings, a more subtle scheme is advised.

The color of a carpet should set the mood of a room. For a den a softer, more subdued look may be wanted, but for a play room, sparkling with huge blocks of basic colors, a bright, inviting carpet color is needed.

Whatever the color you like, when you need carpet you will find a wide selection here at

The illustration is a collage of leisure activities. At the top left, a woman's face is shown next to a large tennis racket. Below her, a man's face is partially visible. To his right, a woman holds a golf club. Further right, a man in a baseball cap smiles. A woman in the center holds a camera. The background is filled with smaller vignettes: people swimming in a pool, a person fishing from a pier, a family camping under a tent, a car driving on a road, and various other outdoor sports and relaxation scenes. The style is a bold, graphic line drawing.

Strain into a cocktail glass, and top with a foam of egg whites, and what do you have?

A "Kool Banana," that's what.
Also, the winning drink in a contest for the best original cocktail creation in the Southern California segment of a contest sponsored by the United States Bartenders Guild. ## Grant received

POCATELLO — Idaho State University's Summer Theatre '72 has received a supplementary grant from the Idaho Commission on the Arts and Humanities.

According to Dr. Allen Blomquist, associate professor of speech and drama, the grant will allow the theater to perform in several communities in the state during the last week of July and the early part of August. He said that communities interested in performances by the summer theater group should contact him at the ISU Speech and Drama Department.

The group has scheduled four plays for the summer season in Pocatello. The first, "Poor Richard," by Jean Kerr opens June 20. Other plays will include "The Glass Menagerie" by Tennessee Williams; "Private Lives" by Noel Coward, and "Private Ear, the Public Eye" by Pettey Shaffer. Each play will open on a Tuesday.

Avoid pollution inside home

NEW YORK (UPI) — The air windows open and a fan inside the average home is more polluted than the air blowing when using products outdoors, says Dr. Igho H. Kornbluh, head of the Department of Physical Medicine, University of Pennsylvania. He added that indoor air pollutants include the vapors from household cleaners and polishes, washing woodwork, tile and glass surfaces. Dry soda on a damp sponge makes an effective scouring powder or polish for chrome and stainless steel.

Clear Lakes on opening day: Operation Charlie Tuna

Bring your own rock if you come early

Fishing pressure up for opening day

That's a limit

SUBMARINE type trout are displayed by Dave Peterson, Jerome. Peterson caught the 10 pounder and a fellow fisherman grabbed the 7-pounder, which the party agreed put up the best fight at Clear Lakes. They were boat fishing.

Magic back as top producer

Magic Reservoir returned pressure was well up from a year ago in the opening of Idaho's general fishing season Saturday.

Totally about 8,000 persons participated in the openings, as surveyed by air from the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

Regional fish biologist Bob Bell said fishermen generally found water and weather conditions the best in several years. Streams ranged from fairly clear to clear and reservoirs were in good water condition. Mackey Reservoir was at its clearest for opening day in several years.

Magic Reservoir was yielding fish in the near-pound size, bringing a caution to anglers concerning the weight limit. The pressure arose on Magic from 443 cars last year to 665 Saturday and from 100 boats to 249.

However, there was a definite pattern in hot spots. Myrtle Point was slow, success picking up somewhat farther up the west bank. On the east bank, success was considerably better.

The breakdown by areas include:

Magic Reservoir west side, 98 anglers, 373 rainbow, 273 hours, 1.4 fish per hour.

East side, 188 anglers, 655 rainbow, 19 coho, one eastern brook, 637 hours and 1.1 fish per hour.

Hagerman refuse, 214 anglers, 413 trout, 210 hours and 1.9 fish per hour (Bass and blue gill fishing was only fair. One six-pound trout checked by Officer Ted Chu and a few more in the three-four pound class). (Continued on Page 18)

Worth the trip

ANNUAL VISITORS, from left, Ron Ray, Bob Ray and Dan Ray, Olympia, Wash., display their morning catches at Clear Lakes Saturday. "We heard in Olympia from people coming through 'if you want to catch trout, go to Buhl, Idaho.' This is our sixth straight opening day here and its worth the 750 miles," Ray reports.

Lemhi get first Chinook

SALMON, (UPI) Estimated at 25 pounds, the first Chinook salmon of the season went through the Lemhi River weir near Hayden Creek this week.

Last year, the salmon count on the Lemhi was 835.

Apparently the last of the steelhead run returning to the Pahsimeroi River facilities has been tallied for the season. The steelhead count was just over 4,500.

Landowner closes creek

BELLEVUE — The portion of Loving Creek south of Highway 68 will be closed to all fishing until July 1, according to Ken Worthington, one of the property owners of that area.

He said the land was closed to prevent overuse by fishermen before the rest of the area is opened for fishing July 1.

Kingsborough batters Golden Eagles 10-2

New York Club closes game out in 7 innings

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. — Kingsborough College of Brooklyn, N.Y., used wildness to fashion an early lead, then erupted in a rash of hits to drop

College of Southern Idaho 10-2 in the opening round of the junior college world series Saturday night.

CSI took a momentary 2-1 lead in the third inning but a combination of walks and wild pitches took that away and Kingsborough ended it in the seventh inning on the eight-run lead after seven innings rule.

Kingsborough advances to the quarterfinals against defending champion Mesa College, Ariz., in the feature Sunday night after CSI plays Merrimac of St. Louis in a loser-out game. The other quarter-finalists sends Columbia, Tenn., 10-2 winner over Mantee, Fla., against No. 1 ranked San Jacinto, Tex., which mauled St. Claire, Mich., 13-1. Mesa defeated Merrimac 13-8 in the other first-day game.

CSI righthander Curt Barron, apparently okay after having trouble with muscle spasms in his throwing arm, wasn't hit hard by the Lions but couldn't find the strike zone. He walked three men but escaped in the first inning. In the second, a walk to Bob Cartuski, a sacrifice and Bill O'Conner's single sent Kingsborough ahead.

In the top of the third, Barron and Bob Leise opened with hits. Jim Dunsmore plated Barron on a bunt and Vic Wells' single brought Leise home with the go-ahead run.

But Kingsborough took charge in the fourth. Ben Churcherilla drew a walk and after a sacrifice, came home on Bob Daniels hit. Bob Gentile followed with another hit that sent Daniels to third base. On the same play, CSI trapped Gentile off base, but Barron threw into centerfield trying to pick him off at second base and Daniels romped in.

Barron's control left completely in the fifth as he walked Kanuski and wild pitched him into scoring position. That came on Cartuski's single. Cartuski then stole second and came around on two wild pitches.

Kingsborough added another in the sixth off reliever Jack Rowberry on three straight hits, then wound it up in the seventh when Daniels, Gentile, Tony Jonas, and Patuski came up with singles and CSI chipped in with a throwing error.

Stanton bats Cal past K.C.

ANAHEIM (UPI)—Lee Stanton collected two doubles to drive in a run and score another Saturday night as the California Angels defeated the Kansas City Royals 4-2.

Though he had to struggle in the ninth when Kansas City scored a run, Rick Clark went all the way, limiting the Royals to six hits to even his record to 4-1. It was his first complete game of the year.

The loss dropped Kansas City into the American League West cellar, seven percentage points behind the Angels.

Ex-Angel Tom Murphy took the loss in his first start of the year. The righthander gave up five hits and two of the runs in his seven innings, but four of the hits were for extra bases.

Crowded but quiet

MYRTLE POINT on Magic Reservoir received its usual large gathering of fishermen Saturday but proved the slowest producer in the impoundment. However, the quality of the fish and action in other parts of the reservoir marked it one of the best for the 1972 general season opening day.

Ryun says he's hurt, won't run

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI)—World-record holder Jim Ryun unexpectedly sat in the stadium and watched the running of the 880 of the United States Track and Field Federation meet Saturday night.

The former University of Kansas great, who holds the world standard of 1:34.8, had been warming up on the infield and his name was announced for lane six as the runners were introduced.

The 9,600 fans, many of whom had turned out to see the world record holder for the first time since his high school days in Wichita, became quiet as the runners rounded the track without Ryun and without explanation.

Following the race, won by Ken Sparks of the University of Chicago Track Club in 1:49.3, Ryun said, "I strained my leg on the wet track last night. I decided it was best not to press it."

Rain fell on the artificial track about four hours before the running of the half-mile heats Friday night. One sprinter fell during a race and some jumpers had difficulty with slick footing.

Ryun posted the best qualifying time of the three heats.

"It's not serious," he said. "But it has been bothering me and I decided I'd better not run. I've got too much ahead of me."

Ken Swenson, who qualified for the half-mile, also withdrew in the finals. He was bothered by a pulled achilles tendon.

Big 10 tables redshirt idea

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI)—The Big Ten voted Saturday to postpone consideration of a rule change which would allow member schools to grant athletes an extra year of eligibility.

Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke said faculty representatives voted to set aside a proposal to "red-shirt" athletes. The policy change, already in effect in other major conferences, was fought by Big-Ten football coaches and athletic directors.

The "red shirt" or "five-year" rule would enable an athlete to engage in varsity sports for five years instead of the four now permitted in the Big Ten.

Duke told a news conference that the faculty representatives felt the proposal "needed additional study of the over-all ramifications" involved.

Hole-in-one

Cliff Smith, after chasing the rarity for years, scored the first hole-in-one of his golfing career at Twin Falls Municipal course Friday.

Playing with Bert Bollinger, Dale Smith and Gilbert, Smith converted the ace on the par three, 160-yard 14th hole with a five iron. It was the first of the year at the city links.

Kentuckian collects Argonaut

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI)—Kentuckian scored a mild surprise victory Saturday in the 31st running of the $55,000 Argonaut Stakes for 3-year-olds at Hollywood Park as the heavily-favored Quack finished fourth.

The race was marred a few yards out of the gate when Bicker stumbled and threw jockey Jerry Lambert to the turf but the rider got to his feet and refused to be taken from the track in an ambulance. He walked away.

Kentuckian, in capturing the Argonaut, scored his first stakes triumph although he was highly regarded enough to have been entered in the Kentucky Derby in which he finished tenth.

D.B. Carm finished second while Woodland Pines was third and Quack fourth in the field of eight.

Kentuckian raced the 1 1-16 miles on the grass course in the excellent time of 1:41.45, just four fifths of a second off the stakes record set last year by Violator.

Kentuckian was sent off at odds of 3-1 and paid $8.40, $4.60 and $3.20. D.B. Carm paid $10.00 and $5.40 and Woodland Pines returned $5.40.

Then jockey Jorge Tejera brought him to the outside as Solar Salute, Woodland Pines and D.B. Carm staged a head and head duel with Quack coming up on the inside. But in the run for the wire, Kentuckian responded to urging and gradually pulled away to win by a half length.

Penn cops first IC4A track win

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Pennsylvania won its first IC4A Track and Field championship in 52 years Saturday as it scored 53 points to finish far ahead of the other 64 schools competing in the 96th annual version of the meet.

The Quakers won six of 20 events during the two-day meet, including a double victory by sophomore Bruce Collins in the 440-yard hurdles in 50.9 seconds and the 220-yard sprint in 21.2 seconds.

Penn State came in second with 40 points, while Pittsburgh, bolstered by the double win of Bill Rey in the long and triple jump's, was third with 25 points.

Rey had a distance of 50 feet, 8 1-4 inches in the triple jump and 25 feet, 1 1-4 inches in the long jump.

Injured plagued Villanova, the defending champion, could muster only 23 points for a fourth-place finish, half a point ahead of Navy.

Penn's first place winners Saturday other than Collins were Tom Blair in the pole vault with 16 feet, 4 inches, equaling the meet record; Bob Childs in the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 8:49.0 and a win in the 440 relay in 41.1 seconds.

On Friday, Junior-Fred De Palma gave Penn the javelin title with a throw of 233 feet, 11 inches.

The meet was marked by two records with Chris Dunn of Colgate winning the high jump at 7 feet, 2 inches to erase John Thomas' mark of 7 feet, 1 1-2 inches set in 1960. The six-mile run record of 27:54.3 was set Friday by Penn State's Greg Fredericks.

Lunn and Player charge past Nicklaus for lead

ATLANTA (UPI)—Big Bob Lunn, appearing to be snapping out of a six-month slump, and little Gary Player, making his first U.S. appearance in seven weeks, both charged past Jack Nicklaus Saturday to share the third round lead in the Atlanta Golf Classic at 10-under-par 206.

Lunn, who won this tournament four years ago but who has finished no higher than 25th so far this year, started the day one stroke behind Nicklaus then-leading pace and Player was two strokes back.

But while Lunn was shooting an erratic 1-under-par 71 and Player a 2-under-par 70 Saturday, Nicklaus, using the Classic as a tuneup for the U.S. Open, skied to a 75-11 strokes higher than Friday when he tied the course record.

Nicklaus dropped back to a tie for sixth place as Lunn and Player finished the round two strokes ahead of Lou Graham (71), Dave Hill (69) and Tom Weiskopf (69) and three ahead of Nicklaus and Kermit Zarley (71).

Lunn had a three-stroke lead after 10 holes Saturday but lost two of those strokes with a double-bogey at the par five 11th and Player caught up on the final hole when he hit the pin on the fly and left himself an easy two-foot birdie putt.

"I thought I really had it going until I took that double bogey," Lunn said sadly. "That took something out of me."

On that hole, Lunn put his drive in the left rough, hit his next shot barely 40 yards into the rough again and then put his third shot into a bunker. He flew out of the bunker over the green and when he finally got on, he two-putted.

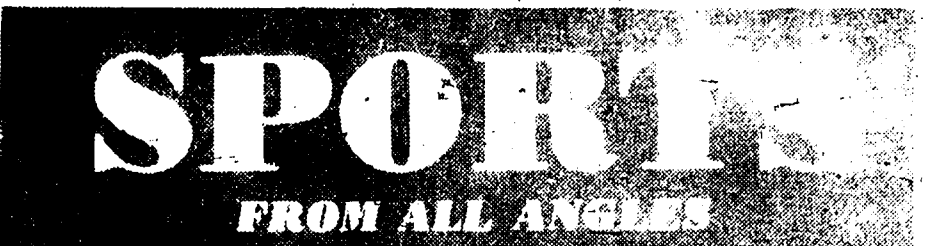

Player said he thought his approach shot at the final hole had gone in. The South African was in the same twosome with Nicklaus and said he "really enjoyed it" since Nicklaus continued to encourage him even while having troubles himself.

Player placed an eight-iron shot just two feet from the hole at the par 3 sixth hole and sank "a tough, curling" 25 footer at No. 8. "It wasn't possible to putt better than I did today," he said. "I sank a lot of putts seven feet or longer for most of my pars."

Nicklaus, who hadn't played for four weeks and who was out last week with flu, showed signs of being tired Saturday in his six-bogey, three-birdie round. He got into most of his trouble on the back nine where he took four bogeys—three of them in a four-hole span.

Nicklaus blamed his putting for his 75. "I missed eight putts I really feel I should have made," he said. "If I had made them all I would have had a 67 and even half of them would have given me a 71. I really didn't play as badly overall, as my score indicates."

Homero Blancas was alone in eighth place at the end of the third round with a 73-210. Next, at 211, were Tommy Aaron (71), Gay Brewer (with his second straight 68), Jim Colbert (also 68) and Labron Harris (71).

By LARRY HOVEY

Times-News sports editor

It isn't often that one athlete participates on five state championship teams during a high school career.

And at Twin Falls, it might go down as an all-time record.

But Bruin graduate Darrell Groves was a solid contributor to all five title teams plus the one that placed second.

As a sophomore, Darrell ran on the second place state cross country team for Coach Jerry Kleinkopf and since then neither he nor the coach picked up any kind of state trophy but gold.

Groves provided points in all the state matches and, indeed, it was his second place finish—bolstered minutes later by junior Bruce Cooper's quartermile win—that picked Twin Falls off a certain defeat and into its third straight state crown.

Groves is one of those rarities, a solid athlete who can produce in any sport. He broke into the basketball starting five in his junior year and went on as a senior to captain the team and earn all-Magic Valley honors and participate in the first all-star game. In fact, Groves was captain all three teams he played on this year.

With the track season over, the youngster will turn out for Legion Baseball, where he will pitch and play infield. He plays baseball well enough to be offered a baseball scholarship to CSI.

He didn't play football, but Bruin Coach Norm Thomas firmly believes it could have been his best sport. "I think he would have been an outstanding defensive corner or safety," Coach Thomas says.

Darrell was voted the Hank Powers trophy for the outstanding senior athlete in Twin Falls High School this year and it's tough to match his record.

Through most of the praise he just smiles, and when asked how it feels to win nothing but state championships, he smiled a bit broader. "If it wasn't for that basketball, I wouldn't know what that losing was all about," he laughs.

It is rather surprising to find a man capable of playing both spring sports to choose track, particularly the distances. The difference in the amount of work is incomparable.

In track, for Coach Kleinkopf, a runner gets two tough workouts per week day and once in a while on Saturdays. Indeed, the Bruins have been known to run a canal bank to while away a Sunday afternoon, too. And when you're running the mile, you get more work than anyone else.

"I don't really know why I decided on track over baseball," Groves says. "I guess it was because I got to know Coach Kleinkopf first in cross country. I just wanted to run for him."

Looking at CSI's offer of baseball, he again has second thoughts. "It all depends on how I do this year (in Legion ball)," he says. "If I have what I consider to be a good year I might go along with them. But right now I think I'd rather run for them."

But its definite that he'll play basketball for the Eagles. He doesn't say so, but one can imagine how he'd like to get a gold trophy there, too.

Still on the track subject, junior Gary Sievers raised a lot of eyebrows at the state meet. But one has the feeling it was more for his anchor leg on the mile relay which won the meet for Twin Falls rather than his very fine windy, wet 1:58.6 time in the halfmile victory.

Sievers, like Groves, presents a lot of problems for the Twin Falls coaching staff. He was a heckuva end in frosh football and a slick basketball guard. But once in high school, he gave up the "glamor" sports and went to cross country and track. He presents problems there.

Sievers very probably is Twin Falls best man in the 220, 440, 880, perhaps mile and the hurdles. He'd be no worse than second best in the pole vault. What he'd high and long jump remains moot. Now consider that in this light, his classmates include the SIC 220-yard champion, the state quartermile champ and the runner-up in the state mile. Just what do you, as his coach, propose to do with him?

His secret is speed and dedication. "I have never had a boy as talented and as dedicated," says Coach Kleinkopf. "He has the speed and is willing to work for his conditioning. He is still rather small and immature physically. People talk about him running 1:52 next year. I don't know if he will, if for no other reason than we will be calling on him to do several things for us. But with his maturity he'll get stamina and endurance. I think he will break 1:50 in college."

speechless after the state meet.

"What do you say to a boy who has just run a 1:58.6 halfmile and a 50 flat quarter in a wind and rainstorm to win the state meet and then come up to you in all sincerity and ask 'did I look okay?'" Coach Kleinkopf asks. "I couldn't think of anything. I just looked at him and said 'fine.'"

Rambling around: Quite a change can be expected from the expected in next year's state A-1 basketball pockets of strength. It appeared that Twin Falls and Borah were building to a power struggle. Now you can throw in a couple more.

All but one of the seven or eight Spokane schools have dropped interscholastic athletics due to the money pinch. So Coeur d'Alene, which returns its three inside men from this year's state runner-up team, has two guards moving in, one said to be the best in Spokane last year. Lewiston for sure and a couple of other North Idaho towns probably will get some of the overflow.

It is said the one school that will continue in sports has had 80 lettermen transfers this spring, which creates a bigger problem. When and where ever that coach calls to line up a football or basketball game for next year, the answer is a steady and irrevocable "no."

Word around is that Jerome High School will probably climb to the 800 student figure and A-1 classification within three years.

At the same time, there seems to be a move underway to let schools in the 800-1,000 group to declare itself A-1 or A-2, which has the inherent flaw of giving schools the opportunity to pick its years as the good athlete cycles wax and wane.

Raft River, which was up to the A-3 count, apparently will drop back under the 125 count next fall and remain A-4.

Next year's junior college regional basketball tournament will be played in Coeur d'Alene, hosted by North Idaho which came up with the $3,000 guarantee. That is provided North Idaho earns the right to participate. If not, the site will go between Ricks and CSI on the regular season record basis of this year.

The 1973-74 JC regional winner will have to go to Arizona for a playoff before advancing to the nationals.

CSI's basketball fortunes took a tumble when 6-6 soph-to-be forward Steve Swanson, Bole, got his greetings from Uncle Sam. He was like fourth in the birthday lottery.

Swanson has joined the National Guard and starts his six-month active duty the first, meaning he wouldn't be available to CSI. Since the young giant joined the Boise-stationed guard unit, he has decided to enroll at BSC for the second semester.

"That really hurts us," Coach Jerry Hale says. "Steve was really coming along for us... starting to get half mean on defense and on on the boards. We were counting on him a lot. I doubt we'll be able to replace him."

Interesting in the field of recruiting for CSI how the reputation hurts. Coach Hale went after several likely Idaho boys, some still after, but the surprise is how many say "I don't think I can play 'big time' junior college basketball" and go elsewhere. Even more surprising, some of these self-deprecators have since signed with four-year colleges and universities.

In the last chance department, Coach Hale's basketball clinics will open June 5 and so far he has about 100 Magic Valley boys signed up for the two sessions. Assisting coach Hale will be Don Haynes, Twin Falls coach; sophomore grads Eugene Stoebe and Vic Kelly, and frosh center Vince Volmut.

The piece de resistance come June 10 and 12 when Nate Archibald, Cincinnati Royals guard, the NBA's No. 2 scorer and No. 1 assist man, will be on hand for instruction. No too bad for $30 per week.

Instructors will be kept to about one per five players. "Each boy will get three hours a day and I guarantee you he'll learn as much as he can assimilate and get as tired as he would in a daylong clinic," Coach Hale promises.

One other thing we've got to mention. It didn't hurt our feelings at all to take the picture of the three Magic Valley schools, Wendell, Wood River and Twin Falls, standing in Boise last week, emblematic of track supremacy in all three classes. Nor did it bother us to learn that this district also had won the golf title and placed second in baseball.

With the cross country and basketball victories earned earlier, in addition to girls track, this year ranks second only to the vintage year of 1969-70 as fourth district's all-time finest.

Hilliard promoted by IB&T

BURLEY — Robert D. Hilliard has been promoted from assistant vice president to manager of the Idaho Bank and Trust Co. Burley office.

J. Grant Bickmore, president of Idaho Bank and Trust, said the promotion is effective June 1. Reed Starley, manager of the Burley branch for the past 20 years, will retain the title of senior vice president.

Hilliard's extensive agricultural background in the Burley-Paul area will afford a smooth transition as Reed Starley begins to share some of his bank duties at Burley," said Bickmore. "The value of competent people within the organization can't be stressed enough. We're optimistic about a solid and continuing growth of the bank in the Burley-Rupert area under Hilliard's stewardship," he added.

Hilliard joined IB and T as agricultural field representative in the Burley-Paul area a dozen years ago and has been active in various agricultural associations including Idaho Cattlemen's, Cattle Feeders' Wool Growers, 4-H, and FFA. In addition, he has been active in both the Burley and Rupert chambers of commerce, having served on the Rupert board and also having worked on many projects including "Grassman," "Outstanding Farmer of the Year," and fat stock sale. He is also a member of the Cassia County Mounted Sheriff's Posse.

Subsequent to graduating from Pocatello High School, and prior to becoming manager of Hilliard Farms and Livestock Co. (in which he still maintains an active interest) in 1946, Hilliard spent three years in the U.S. Navy. He served in the Atlantic, Pacific, Mediterranean, Middle East and Far East theaters of war.

Hilliard graduated from Idaho State University with a degree in business economics and physical education in 1950. Before joining IB and T in 1960, Bob coached high school teams at Hailey, Wallace and Twin Falls. He was elected to ISU's Sports Hall of Fame in 1964. Still retaining his interest in sports, Hilliard is presently active in Little League football and is a certified ski instructor.

Money Box

By Frank Schell

From A. B.C., Buhl: I found a lapel pin—slightly smaller than a penny, with a real nice Indian Head on it. The jeweler who looked at it said it was real old—he could tell from the mounting on the back. Across the top it says "SONS OF OHADI." That is Idaho, spelled backwards. Do you know if there was any such club or organization, and if it has collector value?

Answer: You have us completely stumped on this one. I have never heard of any such organization in Idaho. Perhaps some of our readers will be able to help us out. If I hear from anyone on this, will surely let you know. In the meantime, you might write to the State Historical Society, in Boise. Perhaps they can help.

From T.A., Buhl: I have a round, green token I would like to know about. I think it is plastic, and it is a little bigger than a quarter. One side says "Murphy Dome Gold" and on the other side is a large "25c." I would certainly like to know about this and what value it has, if any.

Answer: You will find the token listed as No. 248A, in Curto's "Military Tokens of the United States." The token comes from the Murphy Dome Base, an aircraft and radar warning site in Alaska, near Fairbanks. It is a PX token, good for 25 cents in trade. At present this token sells for about $2, if brand new. It is a fairly scarce item.

From N. N., Twin Falls: I have a small coin which looks like it is made from gold. There is an eagle on one side, holding a ribbon in its beak, a wreath below. Around the eagle are the words, "Estados Unidos, Mexicanos." The other side has a wreath on it, and in the center

the words "Dos Pesos."

This is a small coin, smaller than a dime, and appears in real nice condition. Above the words "Dos Pesos" is the date 1920. What can you tell me about this coin. Does it have collector value?

Answer: You have a 2-peso coin of Mexico, and if genuine, it is indeed made of gold. This particular series was minted from 1919 through 1948. The value of the coin to a collector would be between $5 and $10, depending upon its condition. If gold, the coin should weigh 1.666 grams.

From T.D., Twin Falls: I have a large copper coin which I cannot find out about. On one side it has what looks like a bouquet of flowers and around this is the inscription: "Agriculture & Commerce" and below it, "Bas Canada." The other side has a wreath, with the word "Token" above it. In the wreath are the words "Un Sou" and below it the word "Montreal." This is undoubtedly from Canada, but I cannot find out anything about it. Would you know its value and what it is?

Answer: You have what is known as a "Bouquet Sou," in Canada. The Bank of Montreal struck tokens to use as change, and these "bouquet Sou's" are actually imitations of the real token. Most of them (and there are many varieties) were struck in the United States, on order from Canadians. They were popular with the French people about 1837, because they were worded in French.

Aide pledges ecological emphasis

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's new state health administrator pledged Friday a "big emphasis" on the environment and a growth of community level health offerings in his new job, which he assumes June 19.

Dr. James A. Bax, 35, has been appointed by the State Board of Health as administrator of the Health Department until July 1. At that time, the agency will become the Department of Environmental Protection and Health and as an appointee of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus Bax will be administrator.

Currently Bax is commissioner of the Community Services Administration of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington D.C.

Bax will be the first administrator for environmental protection and health, created by the 1972 legislature. "I sincerely believe this (Idaho) is one of the last frontiers," he said. "If we can't keep the air clean and the water clean then this whole national effort is going to fall flat on its face."

Bax said as an administrator directly responsible to the governor he would work with the increased board of health, but added, "the governor is my boss. He's going to be held responsible for what is done or not done."

He said the board — increased from five to seven members effective July 1 — is a "very valuable tool" and said one of the first tasks will be to delineate clear lines of responsibility.

He said it is not certain yet who has responsibility for what but said the board appears to have veto power over policy decisions made by the administrator.

He said his agency will be a "wide open department with you all having direct access to what is going on" and said one of the first moves would be to meet with citizens and health experts to get a sense of direction for the agency. He said he would also meet with legislators to see what they had in mind by creating the Department of Environmental Protection and Health.

He said he favored the community level approach to health offerings.

"Generally speaking when people are sent to an institution from a community there's some indication the problems are not being met on the community level."

But, he said, Idaho will continue to have institutions because there are some problems which cannot be handled locally.

He said he chose to make the move to Idaho because it had a "beautiful environment to protect" and because he was convinced "that if anything is really going to happen in government it is going to happen in state government" because the federal level is often "too divorced."

"Since our change to electric heat —

... when we set the thermostat at 70 degrees, the thermometer registers 70 degrees."

"Before we changed to electric heat it was not possible to control the temperature in our home," says Mr. Nolthenius. "We had a single heat source and couldn't set an exact temperature. When the weather was cold, so were we."

"Since our change to electric heat we can set the thermostat at 70 degrees and the thermometer registers 70 degrees. And in the spring and fall when we want just a little heat, we don't have to over-heat in order to get it. Electric heat is very comfortable," says Mr. Nolthenius. "We should have made the change sooner."

Green Thumb

by George Abraham

Home gardeners are asking if dwarf or standard trees should be planted in the backyard.

If you've got a postage-stamp size garden or backyard, grow the dwarf trees. They give you full size fruit and bear a lot sooner than the standard varieties. Dwarf trees produce fruit as large or larger than standard trees. They bear crops two to three years after planting, against five to ten years for the standard trees.

Big advantage: a mature dwarf tree can be harvested with a small step ladder. They also take one-third the space of a standard tree. Dwarf fruit trees cost a little more but don't let this discourage you.

Do you have a hankering for the old apple varieties such as pound sweet, snow apple (Fameuse) or golden russet? Some nurseries are bringing back these oldies and they are available in semi-dwarf forms.

NOTE: If you're going to plant any type of fruit tree, be sure to place some kind of wrap around it to keep rodents out. One of the best tree guards we've seen is one made of coiled vinyl plastic 26 inches high. It takes seconds to install and never needs to be removed. These guards expand as the trunk grows, so don't let your young fruit trees become victims of rodents, lawn mower injury, winter sun or wind scald.

These guards cost about 60 cents each and are used by commercial growers. Other barriers can be made of wire screen, aluminum foil or a wire cylinder placed round the tree.

SENSITIVE PLANT — An item that fascinates kids is the mimosa or sensitive plant. This is the one that folds its leaves when touched. Seed has a hard coat over it, but if you soak seed overnight in warm water, then sow in pot of sand and peat, they'll germinate in four or five days.

After the plants are two inches high, they can be potted in a 1-3 each mix of sand, peat and loam. Grow them in a bright window. When plants reach a height of 15 to 18 inches they produce marble-size, purple blossoms.

If you don't want the plant to produce seed, cut off the spent blossom. Sensitive plants grow fast and you may have to cut the tips back half to induce new growth at the bottom of the stems.

PETUNIA TROUBLES: If you plant petunias in the same spot each year, you may have problems. A wilt disease builds up in some soils, causing the petunia leaves to look sick at the bottom, becoming wilted, a bit yellowish and finally completely drying up.

About the only control for this is to plant petunias in a different spot, or trying growing other annuals until the disease burns itself out. Items like marigolds, salvia, zinnias, calendulas, snaps, coleus, day plants, should thrive in a spot where petunias succumb.

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: S.E. of Burley: "I have two 'spreading yews' put in three or four years ago. One of the trees is doing beautifully, while the other remains stunted. I wonder if one is taking all the strength from the other. Also, will it do any harm to clip the top out of the evergreens?"

First, I'd take a look at the soil of the stunted tree to see if grubs are present. Something may be eating the roots, causing the slackened growth. If present, dust diazinon or sevin around the base of the tree and water it in. There's no possibility of one tree sapping the strength from the other.

Perhaps one has been getting more nutrients or moisture, causing it to fare better. It may have suffered a greater shock at transplanting time, causing it to take off much slower than the other tree. Perhaps the slow grower was planted in a spot where the builder happened to dump some surplus plaster, cement, or other material.

I would work the soil loose around the tree, add some liquid plant food, and water it in.

As for cutting the top out of evergreens, generally speaking you can do the job any time.

A.D. of Twin Falls: "I have a Christmas cactus in a six-inch pot. It bloomed lovely at Christmas time. After the flowers were gone, it sent out a few new leaves. Then the last of February it started to bud again, and to date I have about 20 nice buds coming along real well. Is this unusual, and will I be denied blossoms when next Christmas rolls around?"

Christmas cactus often act in strange ways, as yours has done. They quite often bloom heavily around Christmas and when the flowers are gone, new growth comes out, along with a new crop of blossoms. As for next year's show, don't worry. Your plant is good and healthy, and with the good care you give it, lots of blossoms can be forecast for Christmas.

Don't forget to rest your Christmas cactus in summer. Some people place them in a cool bedroom, others set them outdoors. They need watering during the summer.

Poinsettia and Christmas cactus are two flowering plants which need special care if they are to bloom in the home. Both plants set flower buds under short day conditions.

That is, when they are exposed to long, continuous dark night periods such as occur naturally from mid-October on. If the dark period is interrupted by light for only a short time, the plants will NOT set buds. Thus, if you want poinsettias and Christmas cactus to flower indoors, you must place them where they have absolute darkness from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m. daily, starting around Oct. 20 and continuing for a minimum of 40 days.

You can do this by covering the plants with a black cloth each night.

REMEMBER: reading lamps or street lights are sufficient to interrupt the dark period and prevent flowering.

MIKE MORRISON of Buhl, shown here riding high at last year's State High School Rodeo, will be one of about 170 contestants this week at the Fifth District High School Rodeo at Filer. Performances are at 8 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds.

175 high school youths to enter rodeo at Filer

FILER — Nearly 100 per cent participation from the 175 members of the Fifth District High School Rodeo Association is expected this week at the district rodeo at Filer.

The rodeo opens Wednesday night for a four-night stand at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds.

Leroy Johnson, Gooding, president of the fifth district association, said about 170 entrants are expected.

Performances will be at 8 p.m. nightly, with the queen to be crowned prior to the Saturday night performances and event and all-around winners to be named following that performance.

The top four cowboys or cowgirls in each event will be eligible to compete at the State High School Rodeo June 15, 16 and 17 at Burley.

The Filer Kiwanis Club is sponsoring the fifth district rodeo and will host a breakfast for queen candidates at 9 a.m. Friday at the Methodist Church in Filer.

Johnson said about 15 queen contestants will compete for the queen's crown.

The first go-around of barrel racing will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday; goat tying at 1 p.m. Wednesday, and pole bending at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

The second go-around of these events will be held during the night performances, Johnson said.

Cowcutting will be at 10 a.m. Saturday for both boys and girls.

Other events will be saddle bronc riding, bareback riding, bull riding, steer wrestling and roping for boys, breakaway roping for girls.

Horseman's competition for queen contestants will be at 1 p.m. Friday at the arena.

Saddles will be awarded to the all-around cowboy and cowgirl and $50 gift certificates will go to the all-around runners-up. The top three places in each event will receive trophy buckles.

This year a trophy will go to the school team with the most points for display in the school's trophy case.

C and R Rodeo, Kingman, Ariz., will be stockproducer.

Church raps guaranteed income plan at Burley

BURLEY — Sen. Frank Church told the Burley "working mothers" Thursday that a guaranteed annual income would only increase welfare problems throughout the United States.

Sen. Church conferred with the Working Mothers Committee and the Cassia County commission in answer to a request from the group for a conference on welfare abuses. Though the meeting was reportedly "private," it was conducted in a local newspaper office.

The committee, whose members insist on anonymity, cited several welfare abuses in food stamps and in provisions that allegedly "encourage" women to remain at home and avoid seeking work.

County Commissioner J. Weldon Beck told the group that recent increases in food-stamp processing costs require the county to budget more for the program than was budgeted for earlier food programs.

Sen. Church, commenting on President Nixon's welfare reform legislation, said "I am opposed to the President's proposal that every family have a guaranteed income. As bad as welfare abuses are now, and as many as we have on welfare, we just haven't seen anything yet if we begin to guarantee an income to every family."

Termining the idea "the most radical proposal I've ever encountered in welfare," Church warned that "once you start down that road there is no stopping. Then it becomes political. Every year the bidding goes on and it will be which party or which candidate can out-bid the other for increasing the amount."

"Once you start, that's it," Church said. "Once you put it in the political mainstream, then it's going to be $1,600, then $2,200, then $3,600. There'll never be enough."

Another aspect of the legislation, providing for welfare subsidy of "sub-standard" wages, drew the Senator's fire. Such a subsidy would destroy the incentive of employers to raise their wages to a "decent level," requiring the taxpayers to make up the difference, he charged.

Another bill, now in the Senate, would "take the viewpoint that the government should be the employer at the last resort. If a person is qualified but can't find a job, then the government would furnish the job."

Then, the Senator said, once a person is working, he would have the incentive to increase his pay by qualifying for and obtaining a better position.

"I like this approach," Church added. "This is the type of bill I will support."

Minidoka farmers ask relief in yearly floods

RUPERT — Two Minidoka County farmers have asked county commissioners to help them get relief from annual flooding from drain water of the A and B Irrigation project.

Bill Schorzman and Henry Rickert stated their land had been damaged and had depreciated in value during the ten years the irrigation project has been operating.

County Commission Chairman Wayne Hollenbeck acknowledged the flooding was a problem, and said the commission has contacted the A and B Irrigation District and the Soil Conservation Service.

Hollenbeck said a study by the two agencies is close to completion of the feasibility of a contour canal around the edges of the North Side Project to carry drainage into the Snake River.

"I think we will work out something satisfactory to them (Schorzman and Rickert) before too long," Hollenbeck said.

Runoff from the irrigation project drains into Captholley Lake, which is adjacent to the property owned by the two farmers, according to Alex Roemer, a member of the county commission who was appointed by Hollenbeck to check into relief for the flood victims.

Roemer said others in the area get flooded also, but not as severely. "Mostly silt comes down and ruins the fences," Roemer said. "Those two people have a legitimate gripe."

Schorzman had said his land is not salable because of the flooding, and he objects to paying taxes on a base value of $600 an acre when he claims the land is now worth only $250 an acre.

Both farmers said in addition to the land damage, fences were destroyed this past spring when the heavy runoff froze. Rickert said he had a field of winter grain destroyed by the ice and had to replant it after the water went down.

Rickert said in past years he had raised cattle on his property, but because of the destruction of his fences and pasture year after year, he had to give up cattle work.

Schorzman said he has about 70 acres damaged by flooding. Rickert has 80 acres caught in the annual runoffs.

Rickert said he has asked the SCS to help get his land back in shape and was told nothing could be done about it.

TF memorial services Monday

TWIN FALLS — Memorial Day services Monday at 11 a.m. in Sunset Memorial Park will honor the dead of all wars with dedication of a new veterans memorial monument.

Members of the Twin Falls Civil Air Patrol Cadet Squadron will conduct services in the city park on Shoshone Street. At 11 a.m. the cadets will march in formation, with color guard leading, to the Vietnam Memorial in the city park.

Here they will place a wreath in memory of the Vietnam servicemen. Lt. Col. Eugene Tjarks, squadron chaplain, will give the invocation and cadet Lt. Sandra Hammond will play taps. The squadron members will then march in formation to the World War I Memorial where a similar ceremony will be held.

Frank Mogensen, commander of the Twin Falls American Legion, said the dedication speaker will be William Wiseman, Hansen, chairman of the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital board.

Mogensen will speak briefly of the history of the veterans memorial and the contributions of Sierra Life Insurance Co. in making the new memorial possible. He will also introduce the speaker.

Taps will be performed by Doug Machamer and Scott Herzinger, Boy Scouts. The public is invited to attend the 11 a.m. ceremony.

For most area residents Monday will be a holiday. Stores, with only a few exceptions, will close for the two-day holiday. All business offices, banking institutions, state, city, county and federal offices will be closed.

Many residents will be away from home, opening the fishing season on their favorite stream, or camping in scenic mountain areas. Forest service officials have warned many high elevation areas are still blocked by snow or muddy roads and persons going into the mountains should check carefully on road conditions.

Law enforcement officers will have no holiday. Most will be working full shifts in view of the heavy holiday traffic anticipated.

Capt. Dean Bennett, Idaho State Police, Twin Falls, urged motorists to allow plenty of time for their trips and especially for the return home because of anticipated heavy traffic.

He said too often holiday fun ends in tragedy on the highways because of an overtired driver or one who failed to heed the caution of drinking and driving.

Cassia school study gives praise, criticism

The countryside and the communities indicate an industrious and skillful ability to use the natural resources in a most worthwhile and progressive manner. The evidence of extreme pride and concern are all too easily identified in the farms, homes, businesses and churches," notes the introduction.

However, the school district's "lethargies" must be "shaken off" by the administrators in order to develop a program which the children of Idaho's "pioneer families" need and desire.

Repeating the caution that "it is not the time to find isolated problems or fault responsibilities," the evaluators emphasize that "it is the time to put to rest the suspicions and differences and take a positive forward step and plan together for a greater common purpose."

Francis H. Rist of the Idaho Department of Education served as chairman of the evaluation committee, which included Dr. LaVerne Marcum, chairman of the department of education at Idaho State University, and Dr. Orson J. Bowler, Preston school superintendent, as well as three educators from neighboring Minidoka County: Glen Maughan, Minico High School principal; Anna Matthews, senior counselor at the high school, and Keith Merrill, a high school faculty member.

Wendell High School principal Willard Spalding; Bill Bowman, Boise State College, and Melba Barnett of Highland High School, Pocatello, also assisted. Other evaluators, each in a particular educational specialty, included Bert Burda, state elementary music supervisor, and Dr. A.D. Luke, Dorsey S. Riggs, Orville Reddington, Terry Bastian, Richard Kay, John Briggs, Ronald Dent, Elmer Hunt and Ruth Seydel, all of the state department, and Janet Latham, vocational education department.

Each specialist surveyed the four high school programs in his or her specialty during the comprehensive evaluation; then the team met as a whole to compare notes and draft the final evaluation report.

The Idaho Department of Education continually surveys high schools throughout the state, with the goal of completing an in-depth evaluation for each school district each 10 years, according to Rist.

Merger announced for Burley bank

BURLEY — Directors of the Cassia National Bank, Burley, and Bank of Idaho, Boise, have agreed upon a merger, subject to governmental approval.

Harlan B. Jensen, president of the Cassia National Bank, and Joseph Bianco, chairman of the board, Bank of Idaho, announced merger plans Friday. Formal approval will be required from the Federal Reserve Board and the Idaho Commissioner of Finance, as well as by shareholders of both institutions.

An unconfirmed report in Burley indicates the Bank of Idaho may build a larger financial institution in downtown Burley, replacing the present Cassia National Bank building.

The Cassia National Bank, founded in 1922 by L.L. Evans, American Falls, W.F. Kasiska, Pocatello, and F.W. Sargatz, Arco, operates two branches in Burley and a branch at Lava Hot Springs, and has received approval to open a branch in Heyburn.

Cassia National lists resources of $18.6 million and deposits totaling $13.7 million. The Bank of Idaho, Idaho's largest state-chartered bank, lists assets totaling $227 million and deposits of $200 million. The Bank of Idaho is affiliated with Western Bancorporation, a holding company with aggregate assets over $13 billion.

Commenting on the merger proposal, Jensen said "The directors of Cassia National Bank are gratified that our institution will become part of Idaho's largest state-chartered banking system. The Bank of Idaho is an aggressive growing bank with the kind of banking philosophy that is compatible with the goals of our customers."

Public relations hit

BURLEY — The Cassia County School District is "weak" on public relations, according to an Idaho Department of Education survey.

"There is no planned school-community relations program either on the top administrative level or in the local school districts," declares the 100-page evaluation report, released this past week.

"Nevertheless, there is some awareness of the need for such a program and a token effort is being made by the superintendent and the local high school principals."

Since the schools are by and large the center of activity in the smaller towns of Pocatello, Oakley and Raft River, "there is a general awareness of 'what's going on' at the schools by local residents. However, much of this contact is of a surface or superficial nature, dealing only in social or athletic functions."

"Another factor which tends to overcome the usual school-community gap is the fact these communities are predominantly of one religion and consequently close-knit."

All high schools in the district "could reap considerably more benefits through favorable publicity if they had someone on the staff with the time and ability to develop more news stories and feature articles," the report says. "This is particularly true of Burley, with its larger population and wider communications gap between patrons and schools."

While "the line of communications between the superintendent's office and the principals appears to be open and effective," this is largely of an informal nature, "leading to a degree of frustration on the part of the principals."

The report also states that though all the schools have student newspapers, the faculty advisers "are poorly qualified, and this is reflected in the mediocrity of the papers." In addition, "coverage of school news by correspondents is sketchy and infrequent."

Burley High School, particularly, is "woefully negligent in its relationship with the (student) paper."

Finally, though "the local school board has good rapport with the press," a "lack of unity on the board" leads to "confusion on the part of the public as to board direction and consensus."

Ceremony set

BURLEY — The old Burley Fire Bell will be dedicated in a public ceremony at 2 p.m. Tuesday on the lawn at city hall.

The old fire bell was on the roof of the city hall for many years. Some time ago it was removed by a huge crane and placed on the ground at city hall.

Burley Exchange Club members painted the bell and have had it mounted as a freedom memorial shrine on the lawn.

Scheduled speakers at the ceremony will be Mayor Garris Robertson and Frank Redfield, an early day member of the Burley Fire Department.

Hagerman farm sold

HAGERMAN — The Bar-S Ranch near Hagerman has been sold to the Northern Land and Cattle Co.

The sale was announced Friday by Northern, who acquired the property from Hill City-Bliss Corp for slightly less than $500,000.

Northern Land and Cattle is an Idaho corporation with offices in Kimberly and San Francisco, Calif.

Corporation secretary Gerwin Woodland, Eden, will manage the Bar-S Ranch which is a cow-calf operation.

Northern corporate officers, D.L. Berger, president, and J.C. Hawley, vice president, both San Francisco, said the company plans to expand operations in the Gem State.

Needs assessment set for Cassia schools soon

BURLEY — The Cassia County School District will conduct a comprehensive "needs assessment" with the help of the state this fall.

Norman Hurst, supervisor of instruction for the district, said the survey, to determine all present and future "needs" of the district, and to suggest remedies, is the direct outgrowth of the in-depth survey of the district's four high schools The Idaho Department of Education will cooperate in the survey, Hurst said.

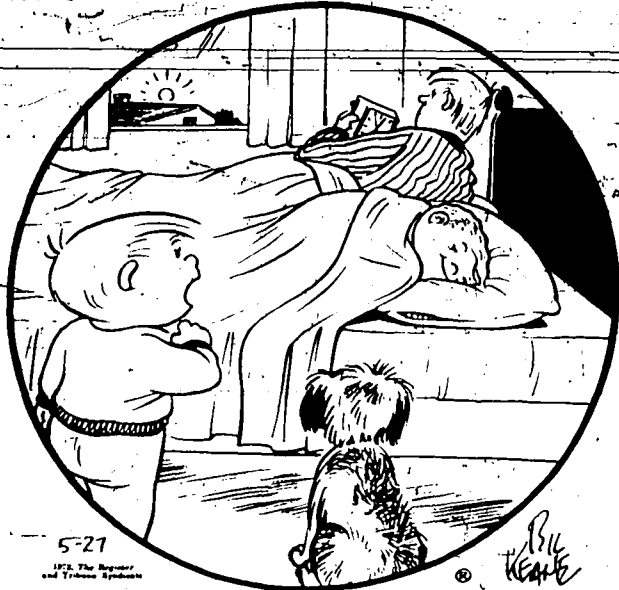

In reviewing the district's philosophy and objectives, the evaluation team recommended the needs assessment as the first priority. In addition, an overall philosophy of education "The process must involve patrons, students, staff and administration," the evaluators say.

In developing this philosophy, however, "it is recommended that the participants start fresh and not revise old statements of the present philosophy or quotes from a text." This philosophy must "reflect the community's real goals" and be stated in the language of the community, and contain what the citizens of the community want for their children.

More stories on the Cassia school survey are planned in the Times-News.

and a statement of objectives should be developed for the entire district, and separately, for each school.

Women Recall All Proposals

Most any young lady knows exactly how many matrimonial proposals she has received. But rare is the amorous fellow who can tell you how many times he has been turned down. A student of mental matters cites the foregoing to prove you and I only remember what we want to remember, only forget what we want to forget. In this vein, it is his contention that most middleaged salesmen cannot recall their exact waist measurements, the details of their romantic adventures on the road, or how many jobs they've quit.

AT last report, the fellow was in the Illinois State pen at Joliet. What he did was scatter numerous deposit slips, imprinted with his name and account number, around the counters of a Chicago bank, that's all. The strategy of evil genius. Brainless computers did the rest. Swift depositors blindly plucked up those forms and channeled about $25,000 into his account. He dashed in daily to withdraw cash to feed poor relatives. The tactics of benevolent stupidity. Lawmen said whoa.

QUERIES

Q. "Among tongue twisters, what's the hardest phrase of all to repeat?"
A. I nominate "toy boat." Try it. Thrice.

Q. "WHAT proportion of the grownups nationwide now drink beer or booze or both?"
A. Exactly 71.1 percent. Which is, pritnear, three out of four.

NOTE: It's claimed in print that the American Indian lacks a sense of humor. Hogwash! What about that Clallam Indian who recently reported three generations of Puget Sound chiefs have been named, respectively, "Thunderbird," "Gray Eagle" and "Seven-Forty-Seven"? What about that

West Texas Indian who recently charged the town of Muleshoe had gentled down so much it ought to be renamed "Jennyslipper"?

MEAT

Mister, you eat your weight in meat over the course of a year. If average. But consider the praying mantis. That beast puts away its weight in animal matter over the course of a single day. At least.

IN Stockholm, I'm told, a puzzled wife can call up the telephone company's information operator to find out what's a good buy for dinner on any given day and how to cook it. A routine service.

A FRUIT farmer claims he at last has figured out how to save his crops from the birds. Rigs his orchard with stereophonic speakers to play intermittent tape recordings of owl hoots and weasel squeaks.

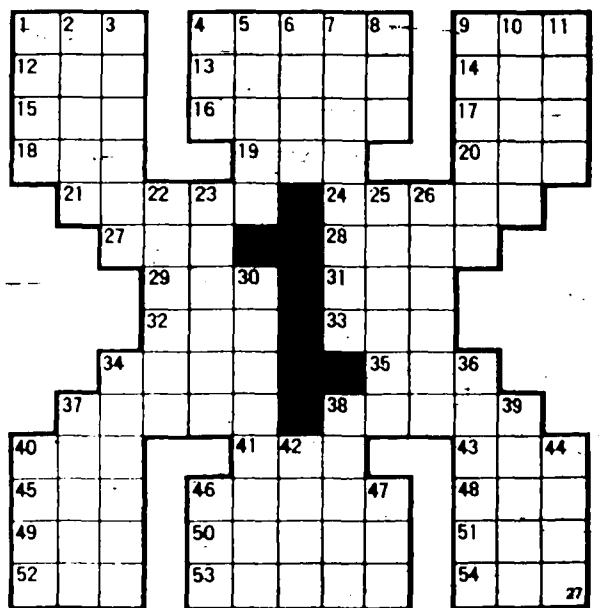

EXACTLY 70 years ago even when this country was far more countrified than that tidied employees on the grounds of the Baltimore Castle in Asheville, N. C., outnumbered the employees in the entire U. S. Department of Agriculture.

An invitation to sixty-seven Idaho families to share in the future of Elkhorn at Sun Valley.

During the past few months, you've probably read or heard about Elkhorn at Sun Valley. This totally new resort and recreation community is being created by subsidiary companies of the Johns-Manville Corporation and the Sun Valley Company. Ultimately, Elkhorn could represent an investment, now estimated, as exceeding $36,000,000.

But of greater importance is Elkhorn's concept. It recognizes today's needs and concerns for our tomorrows.

And it has translated that recognition into a sensitive and sensible plan for Elkhorn at Sun Valley. A plan designed for a harmonious relationship between the world of nature and that of man.

This is Elkhorn's distinguishing hallmark. Evidence? Of Elkhorn's 2300 acre expanse, 1900 will remain as natural or open space. Permanently.

As a result, new qualities of environment, life-styles and opportunities will become available to the families who choose Elkhorn as their personal way of life.

Today at Elkhorn

First announcement of Elkhorn's concept and master plan was made last December. Today, Elkhorn at Sun Valley is becoming a reality.

Within the past 30 days, $1,662,000 in contracts have been awarded towards the initial development of our golf course (designed by Robert Trent Jones), the new Village of Elkhorn, the systems of roadways and utilities—and the first homesites in Elkhorn's Twin Creeks area.

Twin Creeks in Elkhorn

This is the first offering of homesites in Elkhorn at Sun Valley. Sixty-seven individually planned sites are now available and this offering is being made initially only to Idaho families.

The setting is Elkhorn's Twin Creeks area. An open meadowland, it is traversed by two meandering streams with sweeping views of the valley and the surrounding mountains.

To preserve these views for their owners, each homesite has been carefully surveyed to describe the limitations on size and height of future homes erected on each site.

As related to the planning, location, environmental qualities and physical improvements of each homesite, we believe this offering represents a truly exceptional value. All homesites will include full underground utilities—natural gas, power, telephone and television cable. Additionally, water and sewer lines will serve each site together with paved, all-weather roads.

The 67 homesites range from approximately 7,000 square feet to 3.6 acres. They are priced from $10,000 to $45,000.

But of most significance is the fact that Twin Creeks is an integral part of Elkhorn at Sun Valley's master plan, and as such, it is covered by the plan's protective covenants and restrictions.

As an owner, you are thus assured that the quality and distinctive character of your investment will be maintained.

The Opportunity

We believe that Idahoans who are familiar with the history and area of the Sun Valley region will be quick to recognize that this offering of homesites in Twin Creeks is an outstanding opportunity.

We invite your interest, and suggest your early response either for additional information or for an appointment to view Elkhorn's Twin Creeks and its homesites.
