

New arms funds sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said today the Soviet Union had started a series of tests of sophisticated missiles, apparently since President Nixon's return from Moscow with a missile control agreement.

The Russian testing disclosed by Laird was not covered by the strategic arms limitation treaty Nixon signed in Moscow in May.

But Laird pointed to the new testing as underscoring his contention that U.S. spending in areas not covered by the treaty and other accords must increase by $1.3 billion this year.

The money he seeks is chiefly for a new strategic bomber and a new submarine system which would be put into service in the late 1970s.

"Peace cannot be bought cheaply," Laird told the Senate Armed Services Committee, meeting to consider Senate ratification of the arms treaty.

Laird touched on the new Soviet testing in only one paragraph of a prepared statement he read to the committee. He said:

"During the past several weeks, the Soviet Union has been conducting a series of tests involving new ballistic missile programs, including multiple warhead technology. In addition, continued testing of existing systems is moving ahead."

That change of language left unclear whether the Russians were testing a MRV (Multiple Re-entry Vehicle) or a MIRV (Multiple Independently Targetable Re-entry Vehicle).

In the case of MRVs, a single missile can carry several warheads to a target. With MIRVs, each of the multiple warheads can be aimed at a different target if desired.

The Soviets are known to have deployed MRVs in their huge SS9 missiles. But Soviet testing of a MIRV would be a new development.

The United States has MRVs in its Polaris submarines and Minuteman I missiles. It has completed testing of the MIRV and is deploying them in the new Poseidon submarine.

Maine winner

NOMINATED in Monday's Maine primary election was Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, 74, who is seeking a fifth term. Her opponent in November will be William D. Hathaway, 48. Sen. Smith maintained her traditional campaign style, speaking to small groups on weekends and attending to business in Washington, D. C., during the week. She defeated Robert A. G. Monks, millionaire industrialist, in the primary. (UPI)

Valley projects given panel OK

WASHINGTON Budget requests for two projects and one study in the Magic Valley have been approved by the House Appropriations Committee.

The funds are for the coming fiscal year. The bill has been sent to the House floor for action.

The bill includes $571,000 for a Bureau of Reclamation loan to the Salmon River Canal Co., Hollister.

The amount was requested by the company in the form of a loan. It would be used to improve the existing water distribution system of the firm with canal lining and other rehabilitation work. The amount does not involve the firm's request for construction of a new canal system to bring supplemental Snake River water to the project.

Also included in the appropriation bill is $105,000 allocated to the Bureau of Reclamation for a feasibility study of extension of the Mindoka Project, North Side Pumping Division.

The other area allocation includes $50,000 for a study by the Corps of Engineers for flood control in the Wood River area and tributaries.

The A and B Irrigation Co. of the Mindoka Project which pumps water from the Snake River and three ground water for irrigation could be expanded by 11,500 acres with little additional maintenance and labor costs, studies have indicated. About 20 years ago the installation of the pumping unit provided for 80,000 acres of land under cultivation through homestead entry.

The additional 11,500 acres, suitable for farming, is now being used for grazing. The Senate Interior Committee also has reported favorably on the feasibility study appropriation last year.

Among plans considered in the Wood River Area by resource planners for flood control are construction of a dam or dams, strengthening of the river bank and raising Magic Reservoir by 25 to 27 feet.

The largest single item in the House Appropriations Committee approved budget, for the 1973 fiscal year beginning July 1, was the $30.2 million Daveschak Dam appropriation. This will be for the continued construction of the major Idaho reclamation project now under way.

The committee also called for a $4.4 million allocation to the Corps of Army Engineers for continued construction of the Ririe Lake Flood Control Project in eastern Idaho.

Another $11.2 million was allocated to continue work on the lower Teton division of the Teton Basin Project and $13 million was earmarked for construction of the East Greenacres unit of the Rathdrum Prairie Project.

For those who want to welcome summer, it arrives in the Magic Valley at 12:05 a.m. Wednesday.

GOP unit sued in break-in WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien announced today a $1 million damage suit against the Committee to Re-elect the President and five men accused of breaking into Democratic Party headquarters.

O'Brien filed the suit in behalf of all Democratic voters in his capacity as party chairman. It cites civil rights laws protecting voting rights, charges invasion of privacy, and violations of the 1968 Safe Streets Act forbidding wire tapping by private parties.

"As far as I am personally concerned, there is certainly in every sense a clear line in this incident to the office of the President and therein developing a clear line to a news conference."

The suit named the committee, headed by former Attorney General John Mitchell, together with James W. McCord, a security officer for the committee who was one of those arrested early Saturday, and McCord's firm, McCord Associates Inc.

Also named were four other men arrested with McCord by police who said they found them in Democratic Party offices at the Watergate Office Building about 2:30 a.m. Saturday.

They are Bernard Barker, Eugenio R. Martinez, Frank Sturgis, and Virgilio R. Gonzales. All five men are now in the District of Columbia jail.

"We know that as of the moment of his arrest at gunpoint just 10 feet from where I stand Mr. McCord was in the pay of the committee for the re-election of the President, where he has an office, and of the Republican National Committee," McCord said.

"I am pleased to note that the Justice Department may take this case before a grand jury," O'Brien said.

Mac seeks NY votes

By United Press International

Sen. George S. McGovern hoped to pick up at least 200 more delegates today in the New York primary, last of the nation's 23 presidential tryouts.

But Sen. Edmund S. Muskie said the South Dakotans would have to "reassure a great many people" to win in November.

The expected 280 delegates would push McGovern's total to 1,300 delegates, only 209 short of a first ballot nomination July 12 at the Democratic National Convention in Miami Beach.

New York voters were choosing 248 delegates, with 30 more to be apportioned Saturday on the basis of the primary results.

Muskie, who pulled out of the primaries in April, reiterated today his contention that McGovern would have to modify several of his positions, especially on welfare reform, in order to win President Nixon's Nov. 7.

"He's going to have to reassure a great many people," Muskie said, adding that many Democratic leaders across the nation "are deeply concerned" they can't sell his positions.

Muskie said that during his own weeklong trip around the country, he had picked up 100 more delegates. He had about 170 before leaving the primaries.

Muskie denied that criticism by him and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey had hurt McGovern's chances if he is nominated to run against Nixon. "The competition has been good for him," Muskie said. "He's become a frontrunner as a result of competition."

He's being tested now on his positions.

"It is in a sense that competition forces a candidate whether it's McGovern, Humphrey or Muskie to shape his opinions to have broad appeal," Muskie said. "But serious questions (about McGovern) have been raised by people who need to be reassured."

Muskie was interviewed on the NBC-TV Today show.

Humphrey said Monday that while he would support McGovern if the South Dakotans won the nomination, McGovern would have to moderate his views, especially on tax reform and defense spending, or "my support won't be as effective."

Wiretapping said halted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department said today it has halted all wiretaps of suspected domestic subversives which were outlawed as unconstitutional Monday by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The department still must consider whether to drop charges against several leftist militants or hand over evidence obtained by wiretaps.

Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst ordered wiretaps halted shortly after the court issued its 8-0 opinion banning the administration's growing use of eavesdropping without a court order in the name of "domestic" security.

Kleindienst said further surveillance will be undertaken under procedures that comply with the court's opinion. The court ruled wiretapping does not fall under the 1968 Safe Streets Act. This apparently means there can be no further domestic security eavesdropping until Congress sets forth standards and particulars.

The Justice Department said there were nearly 100 wiretaps installed without a court order in 1971 and almost 50 so far this year. It did not say how many were against domestic and how many against foreign groups, a category unaffected by the ruling.

"The danger to political dissent is acute where the government attempts to act under so vague a concept as the power to protect domestic security," the court said in an opinion by Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., a Nixon appointee.

Justice William H. Rehnquist formerly the key administration spokesman for war-unrelated taps, did not participate.

"The price of lawful public dissent must not be in dread of subjection to an unchecked surveillance power," the Supreme Court said.

US-supported S. Viet units crush Red force

SAIGON (UPI) — A force of 3,300 South Vietnamese marines fought three sharp battles in Quang Tri Province today with tank-led North Vietnamese troops and destroyed 18 tanks with aid of some of the heaviest U.S. air and naval support of the war, front dispatches reported.

The marines were in the third day of a government drive to recapture the province which fell to the North Vietnamese May 1. President Nguyen Van Thieu announced plans Monday for a three-month campaign to recapture all lost territory.

The South Vietnamese had mighty support from B52s which flew a record 30 raids in South Vietnam, mostly in direct support of the marines, and attacked just north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) today for the 13th consecutive day, another record.

The fighting was fierce along a 13-mile front, with marines driving as far as five miles into Quang Tri, the only province to fall to the Communist offensive. They were driven back by tank-led Communist counterattacks, regrouped and attacked again and won back the lost territory.

UPI reporter Chad Huntley said in the first of today's battles a column of marines ran into a North Vietnamese regiment backed by tanks three miles north of the My Chan River, the principal defense line 22 miles north of Hue.

Huntley said the Communists, using a three-pronged counter-attack, pushed the marines back a half mile before running out of steam themselves. The marines then attacked again and regained the lost half mile.

Seven tanks were knocked out in that fight, mostly by U.S. aircraft and 7th Fleet ships. Casualties were not reported.

The second battle was four miles east of the town of Hai phong, where the marines fought a three-day battle with North Vietnamese troops. The marines then attacked again and regained the lost half mile.

The suit named the committee, headed by former Attorney General John Mitchell, together with James W. McCord, a security officer for the committee who was one of those arrested early Saturday, and McCord's firm, McCord Associates Inc.

Also named were four other men arrested with McCord by police who said they found them in Democratic Party offices at the Watergate Office Building about 2:30 a.m. Saturday.

Court revives old civil rights act

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court has breathed new life into an 1871 civil rights law by ruling that it may be invoked in a federal court to stop a state civil proceeding.

A concurring opinion by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger indicated that the new impetus may not in the final reckoning carry civil rights advocates very far. But they won the first round on Monday.

The law, originally enacted in 1866, was designed to protect the federal rights of newly freed slaves — rights that state courts in the South could not be counted on to uphold.

The statute says anyone who deprives another person of rights secured by the Constitution can be sued by him in federal court for redress.

The problem for the Supreme Court Monday was the extension of another law known as the federal anti-injunction statute, which bars U.S. courts from stopping state court proceedings "except as expressly authorized by an act of Congress."

Did Congress intend the civil rights act expressly to authorize federal intervention in state cases despite the anti-injunction statute?

In an opinion by Justice Potter Stewart, a seven-man court unanimously said yes.

"This court long ago recognized that federal injunctive relief against a state court proceeding can in some circumstances be essential to prevent great, immediate and irrevocable laws of a person's constitutional right," he said.

The test case did not concern race but was brought by Robert B. Mitchell, a Panama City bookseller, who had the contents of his shop seized by a sheriff under Florida's "Public Nuisance" law.

Talks start at Geneva

GENEVA (UPI) — The 25-nation disarmament conference resumed today with negotiations centered on a ban on chemical weapons.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union placed such a ban at the top of the conference agenda but officials from both sides said they do not expect any early agreement.

The conference, after a two-month recess which saw the SALT agreements signed in Moscow, will meet until September.

Both Western and Communist negotiators alike believe progress can be made on the chemicals issue but that any agreement this year is unlikely.

So far both the United States and Soviet Union have rejected the idea of a halfway agreement which would ban those chemical weapons of solely military value.

Arabs attack bus

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Arab guerrillas fired four bazooka rockets into a busload of holiday makers on the Lebanese border today in the first such incident in more than three months.

A military spokesman said two persons, both Israelis, were wounded, one of them seriously. They were part of a group of persons vacationing at a government-run guest house in Nazareth.

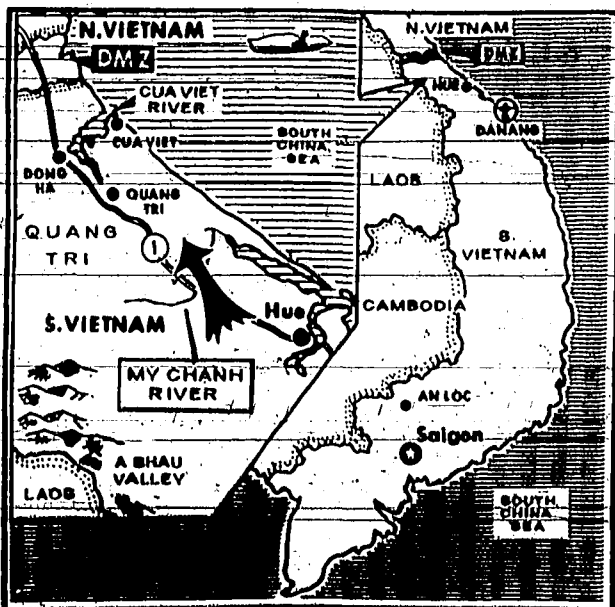

The spokesman said the attack came at 1 p.m. at the Jebel Ross section of the 50 mile Lebanese-Israeli cease-fire line.

Military sources said only one of the rockets hit the bus, went through its side and buried itself in one of the seats without exploding.

Johnson claims rural economy 'drying up'

TWIN FALLS — A Democratic contender for the nomination to the U. S. Senate told Twin Falls Jaycees Monday night that rural communities in Idaho are "drying up."

Hyron Johnson, 34, Boise, seeking nomination to the post being vacated by Sen. Len B. Jordan, said in his travels throughout the state he has determined that 60 per cent of the people in the state are concerned about the shifting of population from rural to urban areas.

He said agriculture is a burning issue in the state and said that each year 100 Idaho farms go out of business. He said this is where farm subsidies should be paid to help maintain the family farm.

Johnson feels the overriding issue in campaign '72 is the economy. He said prices and wages have been frozen but nothing has been done about corporate profits. Since the price freeze, he said, there has been a 12 per cent increase in corporate profits.

On the question of taxes, Johnson said many people do not object to paying taxes, but question whether they are paying more than their fair share.

During a question and answer period Johnson said he opposes any form of federal gun control and has found nearly 100 per cent opposition to such an act from the people of Idaho.

Peavey scores boycott

RUPERT — State Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert, Monday said he hopes Idaho Democrats won't feel obliged to support a threatened boycott of Idaho potatoes.

Peavey referred to the resolution adopted at the Democratic convention Saturday at Sun Valley banning lettuce from the delegates' dinner table in deference to Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers boycott in Arizona and California.

Chavez has threatened a boycott of Idaho potatoes to protest the farm labor bill passed by the last legislature. The Democratic platform also calls for repeal of this law.

Family physician makes comeback

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The family doctor, who seemed to be going the way of the house call, is making a comeback in American medicine because his patients and peers have started to appreciate him.

And television's Marcus Welby also gets a little credit for the growth in both the number of general practitioners and the respect for them; a panel of family physicians told the American Medical Association today.

"I no longer feel that I'm the low man on the medical totem pole," said Dr. Sidney J. Kohle of Valley Stream, N.Y.

"People didn't realize how important the family doctor was because they could always get him," added Dr. Edward J. Kowalewski of Baltimore. "Things started changing when he wasn't there any more."

Gerald Egelson of Pearl River, N.Y., said television's kindly Dr. Marcus Welby had been one of the factors affecting the public's image of family practitioners.

The changing attitudes are also found at medical schools, where degrees in family doctoring were granted for the first time this spring, and at hospitals, where nonspecialists once again find themselves welcome, the panelists said.

The decline in general practitioners, started after World War II, when medical organizations, schools and patients started emphasizing specialization. The number dropped from 80,000 in 1947 to a low point of 50,000 in 1967. It has climbed back slowly to 64,000 doctors today, including 34,000 members of the American Academy of Family Physicians.

The pendulum swung too far," said Kowalewski. "The public and the medical profession now appreciate it although they were the ones who were to blame for the decline in family doctors."

Kohle said the problem was primarily one of pride in one's work.

"Our patients came to us for routine things, but they wouldn't leave it to us to decide if they needed a specialist," Kohle said. "They just went off by themselves."

"We felt inferior. Why would we want our sons and daughters and other youngsters to go into family medicine when we were treated that way? There were no family doctors on the medical school faculties. The specialists were the 'superior beings' in medicine."

Announcement of the meeting was made by Thomas C. Frye, president and chief executive. After staying overnight in Twin Falls they will meet in official session Thursday morning, confer with a small group of business men at luncheon and inspect the Twin Falls office that afternoon before returning to Boise.

"This is only the second time in 105 years that a board meeting has been held anywhere other than Boise," Frye said. "Our board felt that because of the great importance of the Magic Valley area to our operations, they wanted personally to visit and see the area, realizing it has been one of continued growth and development."

The Idaho First National is the oldest national bank in Idaho. It was established in Boise on March 10, 1867, under the National Banking Act of 1864. The charter Number 1668 — was the second to be issued to a bank west of the Rocky Mountains.

Branches of the institution were established in Idaho City and Silver City on July 25, 1867. These two branches were established to accommodate miners and during the first few years did more business than the parent institution at Boise. Idaho First National now serves 42 communities in the state with 56 branches. It employs 1,365 people with annual payroll in excess of $8.85 million. Total deposits as of Dec. 31, 1972, amounted to $565 million and loans as of this date were $352 million. The investment in real estate and equipment amounts to $12 million. Taxes paid last year were in excess of $3.5 million.

James S. Kinney, vice president-trusts of the bank and board member from Twin Falls, together with L. A. (Lyle) Frazier, senior vice-president, and Jack Ramsey, Twin Falls manager, will be hosts to the directors at a dinner Wednesday evening at the Blue Lakes Country Club.

Council airs zone amendment

BY BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An amendment of the present city zoning ordinance on curb, gutter and sidewalk requirement was called for Monday night by the Twin Falls City Council members. The action followed a study by Councilman Paul O'Leary, Tom Nelson and Stephen Lincoln on current needs for curb and gutter installation in view of the many requests for waiver of the requirement.

As proposed by the committee, new curb, gutter and sidewalk installations would not be required on residential modifications where an increase in living space is not more than 20 per cent and on commercial and industrial construction where the size of the main structure is not increased. The proposal would not require sidewalks in the industrial zone. Where 60 per cent or more of the surrounding area does not have curb gutter construction, and they will not be required. If the existing curb and gutter is in good condition and to an acceptable grade it need not be replaced.

The city engineer will also have the authority to defer construction if requested by another governmental agency having jurisdiction over the road or street in question. Allowances do not apply to new subdivisions within the city limits as these will continue to install curb, gutter and sidewalk as construction is started.

The new ordinance is subject to approval of the planning and zoning commission.

In other business the council authorized the mayor and city clerk to sign an agreement with Glenn Nelson for purchase of 12 acres of land at $12,000 at the east end of the city-county airport runway.

The mayor's signature was also authorized on a federal grant application for matching money in the amount of $199,000 for taxiway and apron improvements.

The city, county and state have provided $140,000 for the local project share. Dale Riedesel, engineer, said the money will be used to complete as much of the apron, taxiway and instrument landing system installation as possible.

Upgraded TF lighting system gets approval

TWIN FALLS — An upgraded lighting system in the east part of Twin Falls was approved Monday night by the City Council.

As outlined by George Michael, acting city manager, the system will cost the city about $97 more per month for power.

The proposal is for an area bordered by Main Avenue and Shoshone Street and running east to Eastland Avenue between Addison Avenue and Kimberly Road.

In the area, Michael said, present lights are old and inadequate. He said Idaho Power Co. has approved replacement of these with 7,000 lumen mercury vapor lights except on Second Avenue East and Blue Lakes Boulevard, where 18,000 lumen fixtures are proposed because of the additional traffic.

Michael said the plan would increase the total area's lighting from 108,000 lumens to 798,800 lumens and would increase the bill from $227.35 per month to $385.20 per month, but changes being made in the downtown area will reduce the monthly bills by $60 per month leaving a net increase of $27.85.

Paul O'Leary, city councilman, said he had not been able to attend council work sessions and would like time to study the proposal before voting for adoption. He said it would cost about $600 from this year's budget and he wanted to make sure the money is available.

In other business the City Council approved a water agreement with Joe McCollum for use of excess water in Blue Lakes area for Snake River Canyon near the city sewage treatment plant. The agreement provides the water not needed or used by the city may be utilized by McCollum but the city retains the right to increase its use to the full water right if needed.

Legal aid plan outlined

TWIN FALLS — A decision Monday by local attorneys may clear the way for legal aid to Magic Valley low-income people.

Representatives of the Twin Falls Bar Association decided yesterday to grant Western Idaho Legal Aid access to the Magic Valley.

The decision was necessary so no conflicts in the administration of free legal aid would arise between the two legal groups.

Mrs. Jeri Butler, chairman of the legal aid committee for the Community Improvement Association, reported the decision and said final approval of the measure rests with a legal aid board composed of two Western Idaho Legal Aid directors and two low-income representatives.

On Wednesday the CIA meets to review legal aid and discuss the institution of legal services to poor people in the area.

Mrs. Butler said a decision should be reached by the end of the week. She said she and three other committee members have just completed a tour and briefing session with WIIA in its Caldwell and Boise offices. The group was shown the process by which clients are chosen and what types of legal services are available. Mrs. Butler said legal assistance of this type involves any civil action that does not involve a jail sentence as a penalty.

The committee chairman said Wednesday's meeting was designed to inform association members of the status of the proposal and what steps must be taken next.

Should the board approve the institution of legal aid in the area, Western Idaho Legal Aid's jurisdiction would encompass the Fifth Judicial District.

Buhl man on probation

BUHL — A Buhl man was placed on probation Monday for failure to secure employment contributing to national health and safety in lieu of military service.

Larry Mathews Christwell was ordered by federal Judge J. Blaine Anderson in Boise to comply with a Twin Falls County Draft Board order.

The board ordered Christwell to work at a "humanitarian endeavor" such as is available at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital or a similar institution.

Judge Anderson suspended a three-year prison term and placed Christwell on three years probation.

Lincoln recreation petitions circulated

SHOSHONE — Petitions are being circulated in Lincoln County this week to secure the support of citizens in forming a Lincoln County Recreation District.

The petitions call for an election in conjunction with the primary election in August to set the district, if approved to call the vote, the petitions must carry 267 signatures of county electors.

When the necessary signatures are secured, the petitions will be presented to the county commissioners, who will then set the election.

Employees pay due

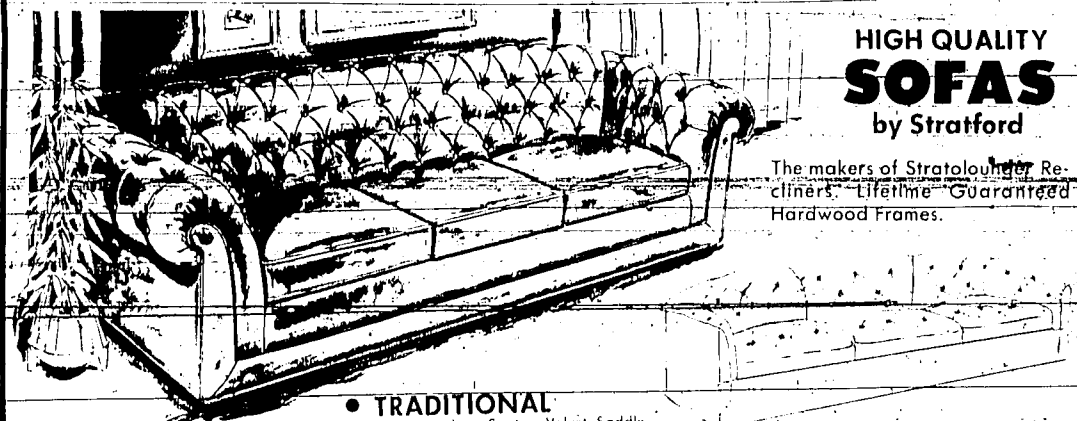

FILER — Idaho Trout Processors Co., Filer, was ordered by U.S. District Court in Boise Monday to pay employees a total of more than $11,100 plus $1,500 interest.

The money is allegedly owed for hours worked below the minimum rate of $1.60 prior to March, 1970.

The firm also was enjoined from paying less than $1.60 an hour in the future and further stipulations of the court order prohibits shipping merchandise in interstate commerce produced by employees paid less than the minimum under terms of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Muskie's Thinking

Senator Edmund Muskie made a lot of sense when he refused to jump on the bandwagon of Senator George McGovern with an endorsement for the Democratic presidential nomination, noting that no man could hand the South Dakota a "united party."

Muskie ignored predictions that he would hand the nomination to McGovern and said he remained in the running, although his hopes now must be only to be available in event of a deadlock.

These forecasters who now see a first ballot nomination for McGovern must have forgotten that it was not long ago when nearly every prediction was for a quick Muskie victory.

Governor George Wallace ranks second in delegate strength, another big upset for the pundits and must be reckoned with at the convention, along with Senator Hubert Humphrey, a strong third.

Another candidate, Representative Wilbur Mills, has predicted the convention will deadlock and turn to Senator Edward Kennedy, who is not a candidate, as a compromise draft choice.

However, McGovern is giving a great show of confidence in winning a runaway victory despite the opposition of most of the Democratic governors and the old party leaders.

If New York should give McGovern another decisive primary victory June 20, a lot of delegates might fall over themselves to abandon other candidates and get aboard the McGovern bandwagon, despite misgivings about his programs and his ability to defeat President Nixon.

Winning the election is the party's goal but not a few Democrats—consider Nixon probably unbeatable by any of their current crop of candidates. They seem to feel that if the Democratic nominee is to serve as a sacrificial lamb, why not let it be McGovern?

A good many others hold that the nominee will have at least the possibilities of election and that it would be a disaster if McGovern should become our next President.

One thing the nominee, whoever he is, can hardly hope to have is the hope of a united Democratic party.

Hit The Sack

Here's news of some sort. Marital status doesn't have much to do with how much sleep a person gets, at least according to a study made by a student at Michigan State University.

Gaines W. Wilson asked volunteer single and married students to keep records of their hours of sleep during the month of May, and also to note the degree of happiness or unhappiness they felt upon waking.

Ranked first for getting the most sleep were married women, followed by single men, followed by married men and, lastly, single women.

Wilson had hypothesized that married men and women sleep longer because of being more "settled and secure" whereas single students socialize and keep "rather late" hours.

That this was no slipshod study is shown by the fact that the married women slept an average of 7.72 hours (not 7.71 or 7.73) out of 24, single men 7.33, married men 7.29 and single women 7.22.

As for waking-up moods, these ranged between 3 and 5 on a happiness-unhappiness scale of 1 through 5, whatever that means. Daytime naps were not a significant factor in the overall picture, and it is not recorded whether most napping takes place inside or outside of classrooms.

MR. SPECTATOR

A Happy Combination

Our mind traveled back away the other day and we were thinking of the Gilbert and Sullivan productions which were the big hits when we were in high school. Hardly hear of them today.

But yesterday they were really something—and the school production of these light operas—called operettas—really brought out the crowd. In high school we once sang one of the leads in the one I liked best—called H.M.S. Pinafore. You guys and gals remember that one?

Of course there were many of them—like the Pirates of Penzance, the Mikado, Patience—just to name a few.

The combination of Sir William Gilbert and Sir Arthur Sullivan, who dreamed up the productions, was a happy combination. Sullivan wrote the music and Gilbert the words.

Sir Gilbert was born in 1836 in England and died there in 1911. He was a graduate of the University of London, became a civil servant and a lawyer. He didn't like what he was doing and turned to writing, starting on a small newspaper and magazine. When he was past 70 he was knighted. He died while trying to save a young woman—a stranger—from drowning. Sir Sullivan was also born in England in 1842 and died there in 1900. He was knighted by Queen Victoria in 1883. He wrote a lot of music but the operettas were the only pieces to really hang on down through the years.

And you might not remember this but he is well remembered in church circles for two songs he wrote. That is, you might not remember that he wrote them but you will never forget the songs.

What were they? "The Lost Chord" and "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

So there you have a glance back over your shoulder. Yes, there was something about Gilbert and Sullivan and H.M.S. Pinafore we will never forget.

Today's sophisticated youngsters in the schools just don't know what they are missing!

WASHINGTON — A mysterious meeting between President George Meany of the AFL-CIO and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has planted a seed of hope, no matter how unrealistic, inside big labor that the dreaded but seemingly inevitable political reality of Kennedy's nomination of Sen. George McGovern might yet be averted.

What was said between Meany and Kennedy at their meeting last month is shrouded in secrecy and conflicting reports. Meany candidly asked Kennedy to run for President to stop McGovern—and that, to Meany's amazement, Kennedy was noncommittal. This account has nourished wistful thinking among top labor leaders that McGovern can still be stopped.

The strange story reflects big labor's desperation more than political reality. Those closest to Kennedy are confident he has no intention to run for President, much less sabotage George McGovern.

Meany and close associates decided weeks ago that Ken-— Kennedy was the only alternative to McGovern. Although last year Meany was complaining privately about Kennedy's militant opposition to the Vietnam war, he now regards him as vastly preferable to McGovern, who would be the first Democratic Presidential candidate since the 1920s without intimate ties to organized labor.

There is no proof this was actually discussed between Kennedy and Meany. Indeed, Meany's top aides, out of ignorance or a desire for secrecy, deny knowledge of the meeting. In fact, however, the meeting was held at Meany's request late in May. Sources close to Kennedy claim the discussion involved issues, with no mention of Presidential politics—a most improbable omission. However, one knowledgeable AFL-CIO staffer has written a memorandum which gives this account of the conversation.

Meany stressed to Kennedy that McGovern was totally unacceptable to big labor. If McGovern was nominated, he predicted a battle over whether the AFL-CIO would endorse him. But even if an endorsement were voted by the AFL-CIO Executive Council, he made clear that George Meany—and presumably Meany's major allies—would not work for McGovern against President Nixon.

Although the pivotal California Democratic primary was then two weeks away, Meany told Kennedy that he had lost hope of a second nomination for Sen. Hubert Humphrey, labor's choice against McGovern in the primary elections. Only Ted Kennedy could stop McGovern, he said.

According to the memorandum, Kennedy did not say yes and did not say no. That account may be attributable to Kennedy's sometimes ambiguous articulation. In any event, Meany was pleasantly surprised that Kennedy did not reject his suggestion out of hand.

The report from the AFL-CIO staffer is that Meany confided this information to two key members of labor's inner circle—Lane Kirkland, AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer, and Joseph Beirne, president of the Communications Workers of America, enjoining strictest secrecy on both.

That top labor leaders look to Kennedy to stop McGovern tells much about their anti-McGovern sentiment. Kennedy shares most of McGovern's views on Vietnam, foreign policy and defense and space spending so strongly opposed by Meany and other labor leaders, many of them strongly and traditionally anti-Communist. There is little policy difference between Kennedy and McGovern.

Rather, the difference lies in personal relationships. Whereas big labor harbors grievances against McGovern dating back to the early 1960s, AFL-CIO contacts with Kennedy have been warm. So clearly is McGovern perceived as an enemy, that some labor leaders believe four more years of Richard Nixon might be the lesser of the two evils.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Swimming Pools

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We have been desirous of moving to an apartment building which has a pool, but it seems that all the places we visited had HEATED pools.

It is our contention that a heated pool is most unsanitary due to proliferation of staph germs and bacilli.

Also coming out of a heated pool into cooler air has caused many to get chilled and catch cold. Mrs. M. J.

Sorry, but I can't share your concern to any great extent.

Germs can lurk in swimming pools, but it depends to a large degree on how well the pool is maintained.

When enough money is spent to heat a pool, there isn't any excuse for not having a system which recirculates the water and chlorinates it adequately. In that case, the risk of infection is minimal.

Water can, however, be a hazard whether heated or not heated if proper standards of circulation and chlorination are not maintained.

As to chilling when you come out, why not do as many others do, keep a robe handy to put on until you get to the shower or dressing room? Speaking of showers, pool pollution is lessened if swimmers shower before going in. Some pool operators require that.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Enclosed is 25 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Please send me your booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps." Can you also tell me what causes ankles to swell? My daughter's do very often. She is 15. Mrs. L.

Excess fluid in the system is the usual cause of swollen ankles. If this occurs only around the time of the menstrual period (just before it) then reduction of her salt intake for 10 days or so before the period should help. She may also need a diuretic—a medication to promote loss of excess fluid.

If the swelling is more continuous, then explanation to see whether there is faulty circulation would be wise. Does she have varicose veins? That could be a factor.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is aerophagia and would you discuss it? Mrs. M. H.

I have, under its other name—air swallowing. It's a habit, not a disease, and a good many people have it.

It occurs mostly in fast eaters—gulpers—and people who talk a lot while they eat. They manage to swallow a certain amount of air until a fairish bubble of it accumulates in the stomach. They get rid of it with a lusty belch at some moment when the entrance to the stomach is open.

Many folks who complain of having a "gassy stomach" are aerophagics. Air swallowers. But they mistakenly blame it on "indigestion."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: There must be other women who are more worried about the unsightliness that the pain of varicose veins. My legs used to hurt but don't now. I still don't know how well stripping or injections would clear up the discoloration.—R. P.

You evidently refer to the bronzing or discoloration of the skin that can occur with varicose veins. This is usually in the lower third of the leg.

"He's Just Stirring Up a Lot of Dust!"

PAUL HARVEY

To Start Over

Election year reminders of our manifold problems, we shouldn't have to put up with all this extravagant government, clumsy mismanagement of social problems, diminished value of dollars and inexcusable involvement.

But history says the "outs" and their bandages will not cure our chronic ills. Might the United States undergo a major overhaul? Might we strip down, abolish the bureaucracy altogether and start over?

One man thinks we can and we must.

Big labor's George Meany is warning of "revolution." He says government's proposed arbitration of transportation labor disputes would be "a long step toward totalitarianism," would eventually lead to revolution. Industry spokesmen say if government does not avert these national tie-ups which menace the public interest, the result may be "revolution" totalitarianism.

Appears we're darned if we do and darned if we don't.

Now here comes a sober and substantial member of the Establishment proposing that we not try to solve all these complex problems—just wipe em out and start over.

Dennis Gabor is a dreamer. But he's also a Nobel prize winning physicist, inventor of three-dimensional photography.

He's not a wild-eyed overthrower. He's a quite, deliberate, contemplative overthrower.

Dr. Gabor believes we should "invent the future," instead of just letting it happen.

He concedes that our free industrial civilization with all its faults is far superior to most systems of the past, both in material success and in humanitarianism. But he says it's not likely to survive another generation.

Free people, abusing freedom, never keep it very long. Our nation, for example, was founded by men who believed in "doing unto others"; recent generations have learned to "do others."

Dr. Gabor says the free countries are about to be driven—fron without land from within into totalitarianism. He says when workers weary of work, eventually, somebody will force them to work.

He says when young people do not consider abridged freedom worth fighting for or consumerism worth working for, the end of the dynamically growing, production-oriented consumer society is in sight.

History says that we all want to be where we aren't. Workers think leisure is the answer. The idle want jobs. The prospering young see that money does not buy happiness, only to discover that poverty doesn't either.

Dr. Gabor wants us to accept this inevitable restiveness and "manage" the next transition; to give up "growing" as a personal or a national objective and seek to encourage, inspire, stimulate interest in service-oriented occupations.

This distinguished scientist would be the last to concede that he is recommending a religious revival, yet what he's really saying is that we should return now to "doing unto others."

WASHINGTON (NEA) The national Democratic party, in its 1972 drive for reforms to open up its processes, has been operating as a dominant agency sending a message "to the 50 state party organizations: At times it seems only dimly aware that the states have been sending messages right back.

We must presume that Democratic leaders in the states understood that the hectic 1968 national convention at Chicago decreed that nothing at all—no law or moral or ethical obligation—should take supremacy over a convention delegates' individual conscience.

Notwithstanding that rather startling message, a good many states in the intervening years proceeded to take action in exactly the opposite direction.

Much of this change is now embedded in new state law, though some is simply cast in altered state party rules.

To be specific, seven states which previously either had no presidential primary at all or had a nonbinding contest, adopted changes which made the results of their primaries binding—in the convention on all chosen delegates.

The District of Columbia followed suit, emulating Florida, Tennessee, North Carolina, Michigan, Maryland, Rhode Island and New Mexico.

In addition, Pennsylvania enacted a law authorizing state parties to establish rules which would permit delegate candidates to bind themselves to particular presidential choices if they wished.

If delegate candidates did so, they were to be legally bound. The Pennsylvania Democrats adopted such binding rules.

Furthermore, five states—Wisconsin, Massachusetts, Indiana, Oregon and California—retained the totally binding feature of their established primary laws.

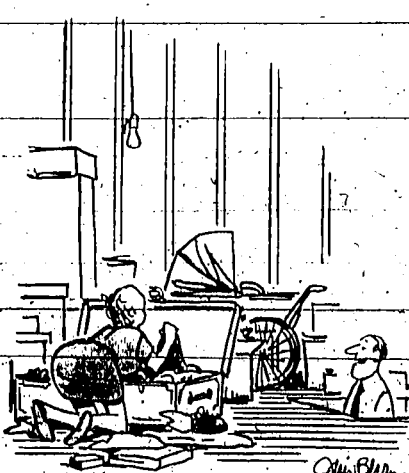

What does all this come to? It means that in 1972 some 12 states and the District of Columbia have laws binding all their chosen delegates to follow the results of their primaries. That means voting in the national convention according to preferences expressed for presidential nominees in balloting at the polls.

The number of delegates thus bound is a record high—984 of the total of 3,016 to be named to the July 10 Miami Beach convention.

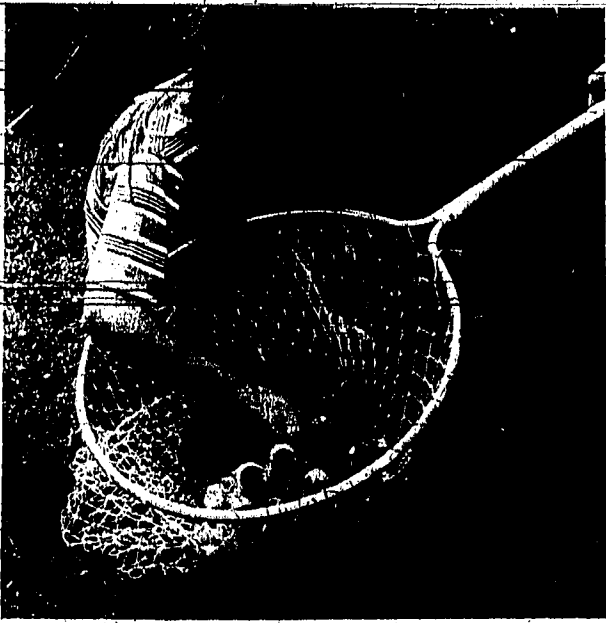

This is not the end of it. Counting in the altered Pennsylvania law and party rule, four states—including also Nebraska, New Hampshire and South Dakota—now allow delegate candidates to bind themselves to a presidential choice and make the binding legal if they choose that course. They represent 241 delegate votes.

Altogether, then 984 delegates must be legally bound and another 241 can be "if they choose" for a grand total of 1,225, well over a third of all convention delegates in 1972.

Gem Demo head supports O'Brien's FBI proposal

Idaho Political Roundup by United Press International
Idaho State Democratic Chairman Joe McCarter said Monday he fully supports Democratic National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien's call for an impartial FBI investigation into the attempted bugging of the Democratic National Committee headquarters in Washington, D.C.

McCarter said he feels that Attorney General Richard Kleindienst have "nothing whatsoever" to do with the investigation, and that it should be turned over to nonpartisan career officials of the FBI acceptable to O'Brien.

The state party official said it was "frightening" that an official of the Republican Party's official "Committee for the Re-election of the President" should be "caught red-handed" in the offices of the Democratic National Committee with sophisticated electronic eavesdropping and photographic equipment.

Around the state, Ed Williams, Democratic candidate for the First District congressional seat, said Monday in Boise that the filing of a property tax assessment suit by Republican congressional candidate Wayne Kidwell, was a "cheap political sham."

Williams added that the Idaho legislator has had ample opportunity to correct the inequities which he now says exist. Kidwell is Republican Majority Leader of the State Senate.

"If the senator was really interested in property tax equality, where was he when the assessment ration law was extended until 1982?" Williams asked.

Campaigning in the Pocatello area, Democratic Senate candidate Byron Johnson said the Idaho Democratic Party has proved it can accommodate diverse opinion and still retain unity.

Spanish accent featured

By RICHARD CHARNOCK
BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's new voter information pamphlet soon will have a Spanish accent.

In addition to the 75,000 English-language pamphlets now being distributed by county clerks, Secretary of State Pete T. Cenarrusa is preparing 15,000 more which are written in Spanish.

Aimed at assisting Spanish-speaking voters who have difficulty with English, these pamphlets will be ready for distribution in about a week to 10 days, Cenarrusa said.

"They will be of assistance in encouraging the Spanish-speaking voters in participating in the American system of free elections and voting procedures and these will encourage them to blend into the American system," Cenarrusa said.

Although there are some Spanish-speaking voters who grew up in Idaho, he said, many hail from other states — especially those in the southwest — and are not proficient in English.

Produced in cooperation with the League of Women Voters, the pamphlets were translated directly from the English versions by Mauricio Mixon, a faculty member at Idaho State University.

They will cost an estimated $390 and are being printed at state expense, Cenarrusa said. They will be distributed through the Migrant Workers Council and by officials in counties having a large Spanish-speaking population.

While they will be new to Idaho they are not unique, Cenarrusa said. Massachusetts, among other states, provides such pre-election materials to its Spanish-speaking minority, he said.

Cenarrusa said the bilingual voter information project began about two months ago in Idaho when a representative from the Justice Department in Washington, D.C., called on him at the behest of Sen. Frank Church.

Elections officer Ron Stephens said the project also was advocated by the League of Women Voters which subsequently helped arrange a translation of the English-language version.

Cenarrusa said the Spanish pamphlet will be identical in content to its English cousin right down to an election calendar.

At the present time, he said, his office plans to limit assistance to the Spanish-speaking voters to the pamphlet. But he said eventually his office will encourage posting of bilingual voting instructions at the polls as Massachusetts now is doing.

Gem survey shows few job openings

BOISE (UPI) — A survey by the Idaho School Trustees Association shows there will be few jobs opening this fall in public education and a lot of applications.

Alan Smith, executive secretary of the association, said the survey showed that 153 positions need to be filled this fall in grade schools and there are 4,638 applicants. The ration is even worse for high school openings with 5,846 teachers applying for 184 positions.

"It must be assumed that several persons applied at a number of schools," Smith said. "Also, it is probable that some teachers with a contract in one district still applied for jobs with other schools without announcing their plans."

He said about 70 per cent of the districts responded to the questionnaire mailed last spring.

Andrus alres space school

SUN VALLEY (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus told a gathering of newspaper editors here Monday that there is a "space school" in the offing for Idaho and other Rocky Mountain States.

Andrus, in a talk prepared for the Utah-Idaho-Spokane Associated Press meeting, said the applications technology satellite will bring a "new dimension" to education in those states.

"In the simplest terms, this new dimension means education via satellite television, receivable in the most remote mountain hamlet, desert crossroad, training urban center and metropolitan suburb," he said.

He said the new concept will be tried in the later part of 1973 when the National Aeronautics and Space Administration puts the ATTF into orbit.

U of I professor gets appointment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Roy E. Williams, professor of hydrology at the University of Idaho, has been appointed to the staff of the Bureau of Mines Office of University Relations as assistant to the chief.

The appointment will become effective Aug. 1.

Rep. James A. McClure said Williams has been assigned for one year under the Intergovernmental Personnel Act which permits temporary assignment of personnel between federal, state and local governments and institutions of higher education.

Gem aide plans travel

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's new health administrator, Dr. James Bax, 35, who took over as head of the state's Health Department Monday, said he will be traveling in the coming months and listening to health officials and lawmakers throughout Idaho.

"I don't see myself as a desk man," said Bax, a former commissioner of the Community Services Administration for the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare in Washington, D.C.

Bax will fill the position vacated by Dr. Terrell O. Carver who resigned from the post last winter.

Improvement of health services so they will be "working for the benefit of the people" will be principal concern, Bax said.

He said an informal meeting with the State Board of Health will be scheduled to discuss the new law which will change the Health Department July 1 to the Department of Environmental Protection and Health.

Passed by the last session of the legislature, the law will also expand the State Health Board to seven members from five.

"During the next couple of months I will be traveling and listening and learning," he said. He said he will meet with the heads of the six district health offices in the state.

'Pappy' Triche

Solon recants on segregation

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—When he led Louisiana's fight against court-ordered school desegregation 12 years ago, State Rep. Risley Claiborne "Pappy" Triche thought he was doing the right thing. Monday he said he realized he was wrong.

Triche stood up to speak for two bills designed to protect racial minorities from employment discrimination. But first he said he had to explain his change of heart.

"I know what some of you think. I know what some of the people outside the halls of this House are going to think. 'Oh, but listen to that segregationist. Isn't that the guy who offered all the segregation bills in 1960 and fought the battle to preserve segregation in our public school system?'"

"The only reply I can make to that, gentlemen, is that yes, that occurred. And at that time in the state of development of the history of our state we thought that we were correct. And now we find that we were wrong."

Triche, who represents the southern Louisiana bayou country around Napoleonville, said he retired from the legislature in 1968, ending a 13-year tenure with no plans to run again.

"But there's one thing that drove me back," he said. "I did not want to leave my children with the legacy that their daddy was a bigot and a racist."

"I am not a bigot and a racist. I want my family and my citizens and my friends and my constituents and the citizenry of this state to grow out of racism and bigotry."

"Let us join hands with all the people of this state, black and white, regardless of race, creed or color, for the advancement and betterment of our state and nation."

During the early 1960s, Triche was Gov. Jimmie Davis' floor leader when the Louisiana Legislature was called into a marathon special session in an attempt to ward off federal court orders to desegregate public schools.

During the current session of the legislature, Triche is the chief House floor leader for Gov. Edwin Edwards, who has made racial equality one of the policies of his administration.

Hurricane toll mounts

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (UPI)—Hurricane Agnes quickly fizzled in the tall pine country of the Florida Panhandle after it slammed inland from the Gulf of Mexico Monday, but it left an uncertain death toll in its path.

At least 13 persons died in Florida and Cuba from the storm. Authorities said an undetermined number of persons still was missing in the Okeechobee area, where tornadoes smashed six mobile home retirement parks.

Agnes, meanwhile, was blistering through South Georgia today with peak winds of 45 miles per hour, getting weaker as it moved further over land.

The National Hurricane Center in Miami said at midnight the storm was in the vicinity of Albany, Ga., moving north-northwest at 14 m.p.h.

The National Hurricane Center today also was watching a strong tropical depression 185 miles southwest of Bermuda which was threatening the finish of the Newport-to-Bermuda yacht race. Ocean race-gate warnings went into effect as the leaders of the 177-boat fleet, racing from Newport, R.I., were halted as they approached a 50-m.p.h. gusting wind, nearing the Bermuda finish line.

Agnes, the first hurricane of the 1972 season, killed six persons in Florida and seven in Cuba. But, for some fallen tree limbs and water damage, it did little property damage in the Florida Panhandle.

Panama City, with its huge resort beaches, escaped damage, although the beach hotels were emptied when tourists fled the onrushing storm Sunday. "We've had worse storms in winter," said Panama City Beach Mayor Dan Russell.

Union officers draw GOP bids

By DONALD FINLEY
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon's campaign strategists, hoping to woo labor leaders away from the Democrats, have invited top union officials to testify this week before a special labor task force preparing recommendations for the Republican Platform Committee.

Nixon's labor task force hearings Wednesday and Thursday came while signs increase that many labor leaders have strong reservations about Sen. George S. McGovern and might support Nixon or just sit out the November presidential election if McGovern gets the Democratic nomination.

The hearings will be conducted by Bernard Delury, a former construction worker recently hired as labor coordinator for the Committee for the Re-election of the President. Delury, 34, resigned as assistant industrial commissioner in the New York State Department of Labor to join the Nixon campaign staff.

Delury said he had invited AFL-CIO president George Meany and about 300 other labor leaders to present their ideas at the hearings, but a spokesman for Meany said the 77-year-old labor leader declined the invitation, preferring to present the AFL-CIO proposals directly to the GOP platform committee.

The spokesman said Meany had urged all AFL-CIO unions to boycott the task force hearings, but Delury said that so far about 40 labor officials said they planned to attend the sessions.

Meany, just back from a European trip, met Monday with his top political action aide, Alexander E. Barkan, reportedly to discuss the growing indications that McGovern will get the Democratic nomination and whether organized labor will support the Democratic ticket.

Meany and most other labor leaders have been strongly critical of the Nixon administration's economic and other domestic policies, but so far Meany has refused to formally call for Nixon's defeat, not wanting to close out his options until he sees who the Democrats will nominate.

McGovern's dovish stand on Vietnam and some of his other views don't sit well with Meany and other labor leaders. His nomination could make Nixon look more palatable to them.

be as effective.

While Humphrey softened his position on McGovern, the South Dakota senator speculated on the number of delegates he could win today in the New York primary, the last of 23 that began 14 weeks ago in New Hampshire.

McGovern, who has surged ahead of 10 other candidates since March 14, says he wants to win 200 of the 248 delegates elected today. Another 30 will be apportioned Saturday on the basis of the primary results.

Although McGovern holds a comfortable lead with 1,100 committed delegates to 400 for second-place Humphrey, observers said a failure to get the two-thirds he is expecting in New York could slow McGovern's drive.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, the frontrunner in March, blamed his decline on news media speculation about the percentage of the vote he would win in the early primaries.

McGovern's biggest challenger today was expected to be

Rep. Shirley Chisholm, who should win more than 30 delegates in her home state despite failing to get any in other primaries.

Humphrey has no states entered. Muskie hopes to pick up support from the Polish-American community in Buffalo.

There was good news for Muskie on a visit to Kentucky Monday. Gov. Wendell H. Ford said Kentucky's 37 uncommitted delegates would vote for Muskie.

NEW YORK (UPI)—A group of actors and actresses, distressed at the nightly influx of prostitutes into the Times Square area, urged Mayor John V. Lindsay Monday to set up a "red light" district elsewhere in the city.

Lee Grant, Peter Falk and Ruby Keeler were among those who added their signatures to the letter signed by Joan Hickett.

"It is not just our business that is suffering to the point of extinction, but please Mr. Mayor, it used to be called 'art,'" the letter said.

Alioto plans suit against US aides

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI)—Governor of California, Alioto, claiming Monday's federal court decision makes him the only elected official in the United States "with a certified record of purity," said he would file a malicious prosecution suit against former Attorney General John W. Mitchell and other officials.

U.S. District Judge Ray McNichols dismissed bribery, conspiracy and mail fraud charges against Alioto, former Washington state Attorney General John J. O'Connell and his former aide, George Faler.

The three defendants were indicted by a grand jury in Seattle.

But at Okeechobee, where tornadoes struck six mobile home retirement parks killing four persons and injuring 41 more, workers still were searching for the missing.

Three tornadoes destroyed about 60 planes and heavily damaged 60 homes around an airport in Brevard County on the Atlantic coast—home of the Kennedy Space Center. Sheriff Leigh Wilson estimated damage at $10 million, but there was only minor damage at the space center.

Another woman was killed by a tornado at Labelle, east of Lake Okeechobee.

No release for Wallace

SILVER SPRING, Md. (UPI)—Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace will not be moved until he recovers from surgery which removed a bullet lodged near his spine, according to his wife Cornelia.

Mrs. Wallace said Monday that the governor would not return to Alabama until he was given a release from Holy Cross Hospital. He was expected to attend the Democratic National Convention beginning July 10.

Wallace has been at Holy Cross since an assassination attempt May 15 during a political rally on the eve of the Maryland Democratic presidential primary.

Ad revenue increases

NEW YORK (UPI)—Newspaper advertising revenue rose 14.4 per cent in the first quarter of 1972, the Bureau of Advertising reported Monday.

Revenue was up $190 million from a year earlier, to $1.6 billion. Television and magazines each gained 8 per cent, the bureau said. Television made an estimated $82 million gain while magazine advertising revenue increased $20 million.

Of every dollar spent for advertising, 39.3 cents went to newspapers, 17.2 cents to television, 6.0 cents to magazines and 4.7 cents to radio.

GRAND VIEW—Cynthia A. Roemer, Grand View former Burley-Rupert resident, was married to Richard E. Beck in rites June 2 at the Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Roemer and the bridegroom is the son of Mary Lou Sheehan. Rev. William T. Ordway officiated at the double ring ceremony before a background setting of white gladioli and blue daisies.

The brides, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white pearl de soie satin with an overlay of re-embroidered Belgian lace. She carried a bouquet of white gladioli, white roses and baby's breath on her father's Bible entwined with her Catholic rosary. Her long cathedral veil was bordered with a train of pearls.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Sheila Catmull, Rupert. Brother of the bridegroom, Michael J. Beck, Boulder, Colo., served as best man.

Michelle Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Anderson, Grand View, was flower girl. Ringbearer was Robert Totorich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leandro Totorico, Mountain Home.

Special out-of-town guests included grandparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Welch, Hailey; godparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schodde, Heyburn; Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Schodde, Boise, and Vicki Ward, Boulder.

The cake was centered between two lighted candelabra entwined with flowers complementing the decor.

Carmen Totorica presided at the guest book. Mrs. Lynn Schodde served punch and wedding cake.

The newlyweds took a honeymoon trip to McCull and will reside in Mountain Home, where the bridegroom is employed at the Mountain Home Ford.

Sunburn treatment

CHICAGO (UPI) Ointments, wet compresses and soothing lotions are items helpful in treating a sunburn. A bland, cold cream or lightweight mineral oil may be applied, say health educators at the American Medical Association.

They add this word of caution about commercial sunburn medications: "These products contain ingredients which are intended to reduce pain, but which can cause allergic skin reactions in susceptible individuals."

Readers speak out on Bill's act

DEAR ABBY The mother who said her son put on an act in public, slurping, giggling, crossing his eyes and falling all over the place "like a retarded person" owes the retarded an apology.

My brother is a retarded mongoloid, and he never behaved any such way. In fact, his manners are far above most normal people.

I've also visited the State Hospital for Retarded in Fort Wayne, Ind., and I've never seen anything but politeness and good manners there.

YOUNG HOOSIER

DEAR ABBY I am writing for the Comparative Religions class of Thomasville High School, Thomasville, Ga.

We held an interesting discussion on the letter from the mother whose 16-year-old son, Bill, mimicked a mentally retarded person "to make people laugh" and his father was his best audience.

Our class consists of students from the 9th thru 12th grades, and we'd like for "Bill" to know how his peers feel about his behavior.

Bill needs help. He is trying desperately to get the attention which he never received as a child. A suggested cure would be for him to work with retarded children.

And as far as Bill's father is concerned, I think we all left class with a greater appreciation of our own.

A LETTER FROM GA

DEAR ABBY I am really angry about that teen-aged Canadian boy who acted like a nut on the street. I can't understand why his mother didn't hit him with the first thing handy.

One way to cure him would be to take him (and his father, who thought the performance was sidesplitting) on a tour of the nearest state mental hospital, including the back wards where they keep the most severely afflicted.

If that boy and his father were still laughing by the time they finished the tour, she should have them both committed.

ESTHER IN IOWA

DEAR ABBY Concerning that 16-year-old Canadian kid who put on a "retarded" act in public to get attention. My father said if that were his son he would give him a good boot in his Francis.

SECOND THE MOTHER IN OHIO

DEAR ABBY Who says Americans have lost their sense of humor? The letter from the mother whose son shakes, trembles, crosses his eyes, slurps and giggles and pretends to be "retarded," and whose father thinks it is hilarious, brightened the day for me.

The mother complains that Bill puts on this act while the family watches TV, and the father, conversed with laughter, is holding his sides.

No generation gap here! Wouldn't many a parent of a surly, long-haired lout who spends his time goodness knows where, doing heaven knows what and getting home who knows when, be glad to trade sons with Bill's parents?

WALTER IN ST. LOUIS

DEAR WALTER: I'm not so sure.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to invite "Bill," that normal 16-year-old boy, to visit the school my son attends. It's a special school for mentally retarded children. I'm sure Bill could pick up a few pointers for his "act"—that is if he didn't crack up after watching these conscientious teachers work for hours, and weeks and sometimes months trying to teach a full-grown child how to button a button or tie a shoelace.

Good vitamin source

SHOSHONE—"Cauliflower, a green vegetable that's mostly white, is a good source of calcium, vitamins A and C," says Mrs. Jean Annett, extension home economist.

This member of the cabbage family is good served raw on a relish plate, flowerets make scoops for dips or in a tossed salad. It can be cooked whole or broken into pieces, served as is or with cheese sauce.

Creamy white, compact heads are the ones to buy. If the leaves are still attached, good green color signifies freshness.

Cauliflower should be refrigerated in a plastic bag, and it should be used within four days for the best flavor and food value.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a floor-length gown of embroidered silk organza over delustered taffeta. It featured an empire-waistline and high neckline which were accented with crystals and seed pearls. Her full-length sleeves were gathered at the wrists, forming a ruffle. Her veil, which formed the train, was made of silk illusion, edged in wide lace and held in place with a beaded Juliet cap. She carried a shower cascade bouquet of white carnations, stephanotis, baby's breath and natural ivy greenery.

Susan Williams was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Tom (Cindy) White, Moscow, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. James (Geraldine) Watson, Twin Falls. Jerrie Flanary, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid.

The table was trimmed with yellow bows and white satin balls and centered with a three-tiered cake decorated with yellow daisies and topped with a small nosegay of fresh yellow cushion and white daisy pompons with natural greenery.

A round table covered in lace and satin was placed in the center of the room. Three angels held a fountain and yellow candles.

Quartet tables, covered with white satin over yellow and centered with white baskets of yellow roses, were arranged around the fountain.

A Lovelier You TEEN BOYS RATE TEEN DATES

By Mary Sue Miller

Usually a girl has to be a teen date to be a teen date. But one girl has been a teen date for a long time until she is a teen date.

According to poll by Mary Sue Miller, the most popular teen date is a girl who is a teen date.

The most popular teen date is a girl who is a teen date.

That is, if you keep up with local news, athletic events, movies, and today's world news, politics, new books, and games. Well, those are topics on the tongue of any teen date.

5. Avoid criticizing other girls. Be nice to all girls. 6. Have eyes only for him. A girl who is not considered a good date prospect by a boy is a girl who is not considered of his allowance. Make sure you only when asked. 6. Do have fun and show your appreciation. If you are bored, try not to show it. Remember, you do not have to accept distasteful company or go out with a boy a second time. But you will be observed by other boys and, by your actions and attitudes, come to rate as a date.

Demo plank represents majority

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (UPI)—Idaho's Democratic campaign platform expresses the opinions of the majority present when written and does not "handcuff" candidates, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said Monday.

Final position on the issues will be hammered out in each legislator's district by the candidates themselves as they campaign for public office and take their causes before the people, their friends and their neighbors," he said in a prepared statement.

The Democratic party has never tried to restrict the expression of any point of view," Andrus said. "On the other hand, the party professes were not intended to handcuff the party's candidates.

"Likewise, Democratic legislators have always been free to express their opinions and vote their convictions.

"An example is the opposition of myself and others to liberalization of the abortion laws," the governor said.

"Even in the convention discussion and votes on this social issue were handled in several ways: legislative action, a vote of the people.

"There was strong opposition to it but the majority prevailed," Andrus said. "All shades of opinion were presented pointing out that this is a social opinion and not a political one."

Andrus also chided the Republicans, saying "It is interesting to note that after 2½ hours of heated debate and two roll calls, the Republican Party, by a narrow three-vote margin admitted young people to their party."

However, the question was purely academic because the young people were in Sun Valley writing the platform for the Democrats," he said.

He said it was "refreshing and exciting to witness people from all walks of life and with opposing viewpoints meeting at the podium freely and often heatedly expressing their viewpoints."

"It was the greatest transfusion for a political party in the history of Idaho," the governor said.

Excess seen in 1973 spending

BOISE—Federal spending seems likely to exceed the $246.3 billion projected in the federal budget for fiscal 1973, according to a Tax Foundation, Inc., report.

The foundation noted current budget proposals signal a continued sharp rise in expenditure for the years ahead. New or expanded programs in the budget, estimated to cost $11 billion in fiscal 1973, would require outlays of almost three times that amount by fiscal 1977, the report said. "These and other factors should alert officials and taxpayers to the need for exercising greater discipline over federal expenditures," said Alfred Parker, executive director of the foundation.

"Loose control of government spending with resulting deficits is one of the chief causes of inflationary pressures that have brought the cost of living to new highs," he said.

McClure switches White Cloud stand

BOISE (UPI)—Congressman James McClure says he would support a "middle ground" on the question of allowing further mining claims in the Sawtooth White Clouds area, an issue now before Congress.

The House-approved Sawtooth bill would provide for a five-year moratorium on new mining claims while the Senate version calls for a permanent moratorium.

The Idaho Republican said he objected to the idea of permanent but added he would favor language making the moratorium temporary, and give the secretary of agriculture the authority to make it permanent only if a mineral study shows "no mineral value greatly in excess of what we already about."

McClure then said he favored including wilderness areas within the designated recreation area, rather than making them separate areas as in the house bill.

He said this was not the original language of the bill.

TF 4-H Club meets

TWIN FALLS—The Healthy Choke Cutters 4-H Club discussed two June projects at Monday's meeting at the home of Mrs. Dale Platt.

The club will sell tickets for the 4-H Club picnic June 23 in the Twin Parks Pavilion at the Filer fairgrounds. The members will sell cookies and assist in the club booth at the horse show Saturday and Sunday at the fairgrounds.

Tammy Steel presided at the meeting and Diane Murphy led in the 4-H pledge. Shelley Bartlett reported on the mother's tea. The group decided to order 4-H Club t-shirts for all members.

Miss Bartlett gave a demonstration on raw vegetables and their uses. Miss Murphy showed how to brush teeth properly and how to assemble the tooth model.

Miss Steel demonstrated how to measure correctly. Susan Blake gave a talk on the proper care of fingernails, and Nellie Hollibaugh demonstrated bias and straight grain of materials.

Laanne Platt, teen leader, showed a film on "How Foods Affect You," with Jeannine Webb and Miss Murphy serving as narrators. Miss Hollibaugh served refreshments.

Caribou Forest mapped

OGDEN, UTAH—A map of the Caribou National Forest in southern Idaho will soon be available from the U. S. Forest Service.

The forest is presently being mapped by the Geomorphics Branch, Division of Engineering, and is the last in the Intermountain Region to be covered by the half inch to the mile, Class C series map.

Maps of the Cache National Forest and Wasatch National Forest may be purchased for $2 each from the Forest Service Map Sales Office, Room 3104, Federal Building, 324 25th St., Ogden, Utah, according to Regional Forester Vern Hamre, Ogden.

Will to negotiate may be stronger in Vietnam

By DANIEL F. GILMORE

SAIGON (UPI)—There is growing feeling in Saigon that the Communists have used up their Sunday punch in the spring offensive and the result may be more willingness to negotiate at the stalled Paris peace talks.

Military sources said the North Vietnamese appear to have lost their drive after crossing the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) from the North April 1, and are suffering under allied air and naval attacks and mining of North Vietnamese harbors.

"Right now, we have only small contacts, with no particular high density anywhere," a military source said of the ground fighting. But he cautioned that the North Vietnanese, who have confused the best strategists for a decade, might be:

—Reorganizing for something.

—Switching from large to small-scale warfare.

—Getting ready to "pack it up."

Analysis

Political sources were more cautious than the military.

They foresaw U.S. troop involvement in Vietnam, despite their steady withdrawal, continuing for the next four or five years "depending on the patience and mood of the U.S."

people in their world role."

As Hanoi is completely dependent on arms and financial aid from the Chinese and Russians, so is Saigon totally committed to military and economic aid from Washington.

"I don't know whether the American people have the patience to carry on for years," one source said. The forthcoming U.S. elections, he said, could "open a new ball game."

His prediction was that the North Vietnamese have taken a severe hammering, although "grievous losses" have been suffered on both sides.

Sew-sew

NEW YORK (UPI)—There are more sewing machines than bathtubs in the United States, according to an industry survey.

American home sewers are almost 50 million strong and many are in multiple-machine families because teenagers have taken on sewing as a hobby, says a survey by Swiss Bernina Sewing Center. The survey reported that, because of home economics classes, 90 per cent of the youngsters can sew and more than 25 per cent of them have their own sewing machines.

Forester transferred

OGDEN—Forest supervisor William O. (Bill) Deshler, Bridger, Wyo., has accepted a position in South America with the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations.

Deshler is a native of Butte, Mont., and a graduate of the University of Idaho. He was stationed in the Challis National Forest for a number of years.

according to Regional Forester Vern Hamre, Ogden, Utah.

Deshler's career began in the Boise National Forest in 1946 following a three year tour of duty with the U. S. Army. Hamre said Deshler's experience qualified him to help plan uses and protection of natural resources in the various South American countries.

Ketchum okays condominiums

BY TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — Seven building permits with a total value of about $700,000 were approved Monday night by the Ketchum City Council.

The issued permits included a $434,000-unit condominium on Third Avenue and Cottonwood Street; a $150,000-12 unit apartment on Main and Eighth and a $102,000 eight-unit condominium on Third and River.

Building inspector John Jacoby said that about $2 million in building permits have been issued so far this year compared to about $5 million during all of last year.

In other action Jacoby said legal problems with parking for the proposed Arctic Circle have been worked out.

An audience member asked what would happen if the portion of the adjacent Fourth Street was closed again this winter because of icy road conditions.

Acting City Atty. Robert St. Clair said the city has an obligation to keep the street open and in workable condition. He questioned whether the street could be closed again.

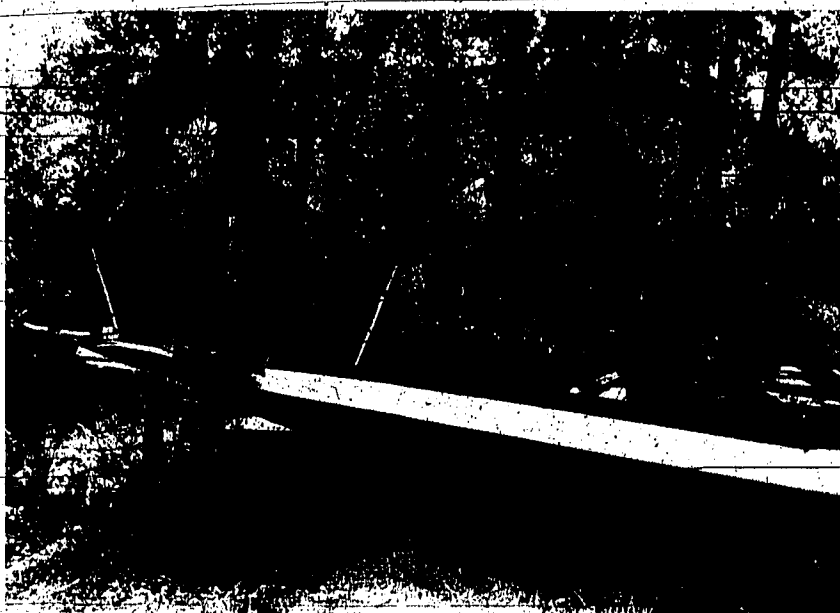

The council also approved a variance to International Village contingent on the approval of the city planning and zoning commission.

Rip Sewell, sales manager for the complex, said the variance to build up to the property line on one corner was required to ease parking and access.

Sewell said the development grounds at the base of the Warm Springs ski lift had been checked by a professional expert and U.S. Forest Service officials.

They recommended which pieces of the land should be built upon which required the rearrangement of the units.

The council accepted a proposal to purchase a $26,559 new road grader on a lease-purchase agreement.

Billboard downed

HIGH WINDS UP-ROOTED a large billboard along U. S. Highway 93 south of Bellevue, sometime Sunday. The massive sign was the largest billboard left standing in Blaine County after vandals with chain saws downed over 30 signs in the last year.

Work starts on Burley's new center

BY LEE TREMAINE
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Construction started today on a $1 million Skaggs-Albertson's shopping center on the east edge of Burley.

Howa Construction Co., Salt Lake City, is the prime contractor. The firm acquired a building permit Monday from Burley City Clerk Charles Shaddock for a fee of $1,181.50.

Temporary construction headquarters have been moved onto the site on East Main Street in a large semi-trailer.

The structure will cover 50,000 square feet. It will house Skaggs' Drug Center and Albertson's market. This is the first Skaggs store in Burley.

Completion of the shopping center is expected late this year. The building is designed with a Western motif, with a rock wall exterior and rough finish wood beams extending beyond the edge of the roof.

Unlike other businesses on East Main, the building will face east, with almost four acres of parking. A new street will be built between Main and 16th Street, to be called Pomerelle Street.

Burley hears complaints

By LEPAGE LAYTON
TIMES NEWS WRITER

BURLEY — Gene Hansen voiced several complaints about the Burley dog pound when the Burley City Council met Monday night.

Hansen, who represents the Twin Falls County Humane Society in the Burley-Tupert area, said he had received several complaints from residents of the city that too many dogs were being put in one enclosure in the pound, resulting in fights, with some dogs being killed.

He said complaints were also made that dogs were not being properly buried after disposal at the pound.

"The pound does not meet Humane Society rules in any way," Hansen said. He said the mode of disposal used by Burley officials did not meet humane specifications. The city disposes of unwanted dogs by using carbon monoxide gas.

Dr. Roy Thornburg, Burley veterinarian, said in his opinion the use of gas was better than administering shots to "put dogs to sleep."

He said the larger dogs had to be tranquilized before they could be handled by officials. By giving the dogs gas, they just quietly go to sleep and never wake up, he said.

Ken Barry, Burley police chief, reported during the month of May that 75 dogs were picked up in the city and only three were claimed by their owners.

Mayor Garis Robertson said city officials realized the problem with the dog pound, situation and new facilities for the pound are being planned.

In other business, Lloyd Hess requested approval for Addition Number 4 to the Suburban Park subdivision.

The subdivision is located between Highland and Bennett Avenue on East 18th Street. The council approved the request subject to the approval of Leon Bedke, city engineer.

The council also approved a trailer court application west of the Green Acres project. The court will be located within a mile of the Burley City limits.

The application was earlier approved by the Minidoka County Zoning and Planning Commission, but since the property was within the one mile limit of the city.

Hagerman elects trustee leader

BY WILMA LARSON
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — Dean Williams was elected chairman of the board of trustees for Hagerman School District No. 233 Monday night.

Vern Cox, a new board member, was named vice chairman at the reorganizational meeting. Alfred Sandy, incumbent, was elected treasurer and Mrs. Laura McNulty was named clerk.

The board took under consideration the possibility of offering industrial arts classes and office practice at the high school next year.

Further study will be needed before a definite decision can be made, Mrs. McNulty said.

Supt. Kenneth Black reported a vacancy for a cook in the school's hot lunch program. Mrs. Black, assistant cook for the past year, has resigned.

Applications for the position can be made through the superintendent's office.

The board agreed to hire a man for janitorial work at the grade school on either a full or part time basis to assist Henry Arterburn, who has been the only janitor for sweeping and general cleaning at the two school buildings. He has had parttime female help for these duties.

Interested persons may apply through the superintendent's office.

Use of a school bus to take PEA students to the state voting judging contest at Moscow this week was approved by the board.

In other business the board voted to let coal bids for two carloads of coal for the coming year and to continue the individualized prescribed instruction math program in the elementary school for another year.

Manned

SHOSHONE — The lookout station at Kimama was manned Monday, according to Michael Green, fire control officer for the Bureau of Land Management, Shoshone.

Notch Butte station has been open for about two weeks and Bell Mountain is expected to be manned within the next week.

Green said the fire season has been slow so far. There have been seven fires reported, but all were small and did little damage. One reported Monday in the King Hill area could not be located by crews.

The fire fighting crews are all in training prepared for the season, Green said. He does caution the public to be careful as the range is particularly dry and in a dangerous state.

Shoshone group adopts bylaws

SHOSHONE — Bylaws have been adopted and articles of incorporation prepared for filing for the Shoshone Development Corporation, Robert Miller, president, said today.

In moving to secure the organization to promote growth and development in the Shoshone area, the nine signatures of Shoshone business representatives put into effect the articles of incorporation, Miller said.

Those signing were Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Magoffin, William Ray Walker, Kenneth L. Blackburn, Myron D. Johnson, Wilson F. Churchman, Francis Bergin and Roger Maxwell.

In addition to these nine, other directors are Roy Hubert, Frank Dallas, E. R. Werry, Harold Thorne, Victor J. Bozzuto, Frank Stearns and Douglas H. Hansen.

Miller said the non-profit organization has more than 30 members.

One of the first projects will be a senior-citizens housing development, to be discussed at a meeting June 28.

The possibility of a historical museum for the area will also be placed high on the agenda of concerns, Miller said.

"Since Shoshone is about the oldest city in this part of the state and the area is rich in historical data, this aspect seems a proper place to start a project for community pride and tourist attraction," he said.

Minidoka woman files damage suit

TWIN FALLS — Damages totaling $375,750 are being asked by a Minidoka County woman and her two minor children.

The suit, filed in Fifth District Court here, asks $350,000 for the loss of the woman's husband and her children's father, Richard Hansen Sr., who was killed Nov. 8, 1971, in a traffic accident near the Heyburn interchange on Interstate 80-N in Minidoka County.

Mrs. Norene Hansen, Keri and Richard Hansen Jr., plaintiffs, also ask $25,000 general damages and $750 hospital and medical costs.

Defendants in the suit are W and W Transport Inc., Twin Falls; Ambrose Distributing Co., and the Montana Express Inc., both Wendell. A truck driven by Ray Wells, Twin Falls, and owned by the defendant firms, was involved in the accident which claimed the life of Hansen.

JEROME — The Jerome City Council will hold its regular meeting tonight at the city hall at 8 p.m.

The council is expected to act on the permanent appointment of Howard DuBois as chief of police. DuBois has been on a 90-day probation period since he was hired to replace C. H. Puntny.

3 valley youths elected

NAMPA — Three Magic Valley teen-agers were elected mayors of mythical cities Monday at Syringa Girls' State.

The three were among nine elected to head cities named after signs of the Zodiac.

Shonna Crost, Burley, was elected mayor of Aires; Karole Greenawalt, Gooding, mayor of Taurus, and Olly McDonald, Eden, mayor of Virgo.

Today the 276 girls will hold primary elections for county, state and legislative posts and conduct a non-partisan judicial election.

Lincoln vandalism probed

SHOSHONE — Lincoln County law officers are investigating vandalism to a hay baler on the Cal Bateman farm 10 miles northwest of Shoshone.

Apparently this incident took place sometime Monday night. Deputy Sheriff Bill Anderson said the battery was stolen, the fire caps, twine, oil, filters and other parts of the baler were strewn around a field.

Investigation is also continuing by Lincoln County law officers into the theft of about $25 worth of drugs from the Grosse Drug store. The loss of the drugs was noted Saturday evening.

Gooding citizens protest sidewalk

GOODING — Several Seventh Avenue homeowners attended the Gooding City Council to protest installation of a six-foot wide sidewalk leading to the high school.

The group of 15 residents told the council that many of them already have sidewalks that they don't want to tear out in order to install the new walk recommended by city engineer Wendell Smith. "The proposed walk would have to be paid for by the residents."

Severt Swenson, attorney for some members of the group, questioned the need for the walk asking what proof there is that the walk would be used by high school students if it is installed.

Councilman Earl Greenawalt said the reason for the walk is to keep kids from getting killed. He said we can't make them walk on it once it is installed, but it should be there for their safety, noting that Seventh Avenue is a narrow street with heavy traffic.

Swenson said most of the protests came from those with sidewalks in good condition, noting that residents were willing to make needed repairs and perform maintenance.

Councilman Don Simis said the council could meet with the engineer to find out if the five foot walks are permissible and whether those presently in use would be acceptable if repaired. The council moved to hold such a meeting to reconsider the plans.

The general consensus of the protesters was that if the sidewalk must be installed as a public necessity, let all the public pay for it.

Brent Brocksome, Larry Taggard, and Bob Eckles met with the council to request that the city determine what the width and depth of the road in the Rice subdivision should be.

Brocksome said that when his house was first built it was level with the road, but that the city has hauled in additional gravel so that the roads and other houses being built are higher than his home. Taggard said that he wants to install a lawn, but can't because he doesn't know where the road is supposed to be.

Mary Ellen Hall met with the council to request more baseball diamonds and said there are several fathers willing to donate the time to make one.

Mayor Harley Crippen told Mrs. Hall that the school is currently building two baseball diamonds.

She also said that a woman who is an ex-junior Olympic diver and racer has offered to coach diving and racing free of charge. The mayor instructed Valdo Gray, councilman in charge of recreation, to look into the matter.

In other council action, plans of the West View subdivision, consisting of six lots owned by Rice Motor Co., were accepted, the city transferred $5,000 from the sewer department to the water department and a stop sign was authorized at the corner of 5th and Montana.

Meet set at Burley

BURLEY — The American Party will stage its Idaho state convention at the Ramada Inn here Saturday with the Cassia and Minidoka county units as hosts.

John Steinbacher, editor of the Anaheim Bulletin, Orange, Calif., will be the keynote speaker at the convention which will also feature American Party presidential candidate Richard B. Kay.

Mrs. Wayne Belnap, state committee woman, said Steinbacher has written five books, written a family and school column, all of which have given him national recognition.

In 1968, Steinbacher worked with Walter Winchell in the Sirhan-Sirhan case and from that came the book, "The Man, The Mysterious, The Murder." He has also written scripts for motion pictures and his latest book, "Bitter Harvest," tells the story of California grape-growers and their problems with Cesar Chavez.

Local convention arrangements are being handled by Mrs. Belnap and Mrs. Joyce Carnahan.

Nomination OK probable

BY HERNARD DRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's nomination of Earl L. Butz as agriculture secretary last winter, partly on the basis of Butz's past ties to agribusiness firms, indicate they will make no effort to block Senate confirmation of Butz as assistant secretary.

Farm and Congressional sources indicated the decision not to challenge Brundhaver was largely tactical.

After the sharp fight against Butz, the new agriculture secretary's popularity with many farmers jumped when he publicly defended gains in cattle prices. As a result, some Senators who opposed him were left holding an embarrassing bag, and few would be likely to join a new fight against another Nixon farm nominee, one Senate farm bloc aide said.

Senate reaction to Brundhaver's nomination to succeed Clarence D. Palmby has been so quiet, in fact, that the Senate Agriculture Committee plans to act on the nomination Wednesday without the formality of a public hearing.

Brundhaver, 40, is like Butz a land grant university-trained agricultural economist with extensive background in farm program studies and administration.

In 1969 he joined the administration as associate administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), which handles federal farm support and production control programs.

Inside the agriculture department, Brundhaver had been closely identified along with Palmby — with the development and operation of the flexible surplus control system for major crops introduced in 1970 farm law.

FDA plans check of residue rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration has decided to reexamine its five-month-old rules designed to counter residues of a livestock growth hormone in cattle and sheep liveweight.

Public hearings will be held on the increasing problem, FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards said Friday, so that the agency can make "the correct decisions" about further use of the synthetic hormone DES (diethylstilbestrol).

The rules went into effect Jan. 8 compelling livestock breeders to certify that they have discontinued use of feed containing DES seven days before their cattle and sheep are slaughtered. The time is needed so the chemical can be excreted. Since the rules went into effect, government inspectors have found residues in 19.9 per cent of the livestock tested, compared with 0.5 per cent before the rules were imposed. Edwards indicated Friday that DES is being used illegally. He added that there is no evidence so far that it "cannot be used safely and effectively," he said the government was not convinced that a total ban on DES was the answer.

Court says baseball is immune on antitrust law

Reaction predictable on baseball decision

Cepeda is reinstated with club

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the third time in half a century, the Supreme Court ruled Monday that professional baseball is immune from antitrust law. The 5-3 vote also rejected player Curt Flood's challenge of the controversial reserve clause.

The majority opinion by Justice Harry A. Blackmun conceded organized baseball is now a "big business" engaged in interstate commerce but said the antitrust exemption "rests on a recognition and an acceptance of baseball's unique characteristics and needs."

Blackmun also stressed that Congress has shown no serious inclination to subject the sport to antitrust laws since the Court first ruled on baseball's exempt status in 1922.

He commented: "The court has concluded that Congress has yet had no intention to subject baseball's reserve system to the reach of the antitrust statutes. This obviously has been deemed to be something other than mere congressional silence and passivity."

"If there is any inconsistency or illogic in all this, it is an inconsistency and illogic of long standing that is to be remedied by the Congress and not by this court."

Justices William O. Douglas, Thurgood Marshall and William J. Brennan dissented. Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. took no part in the decision.

The challenge to baseball — the only pro sport enjoying antitrust immunity — was the most serious since the court affirmed its original decision in a 1953 case.

Flood, a former St. Louis Cardinal star, refused to report to the Philadelphia Phillies after a 1970 off-season trade and then brought a damage suit against the two major leagues on grounds of violating both federal and state antitrust laws.

He charged specifically that the reserve clause which binds a player to a club year after year until traded or sold amounted to slavery. His lawyers also cited the recently imposed baseball draft which ties young high-school graduates or college players to the team which selects them.

Flood, who went to Europe after playing briefly with the Washington Senators in 1971, lost his case at both the federal district and appeals court level. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger concurred with Blackmun's ruling in a separate opinion but said he had "grave reservations."

"Courts are not the forum in which this tangled web ought to be unraveled," he wrote. "The least undesirable course now is to let it rest with Congress; it is time Congress acted to solve this problem."

Douglas asserted in dissent that the antitrust exemption "is a derelict in the stream of law that we, its creator, should remove."

"Baseball is today big business that is packaged with beer, with broadcasting and with other industries," he added.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players' Association, seized on the court's emphasis on the role of Congress in the situation.

"We feel confident that the Congress will accept the court's clear indication to act in this matter and we will be cooperating fully with the Congress to achieve that result," he said.

American League President Joe Cronin said he was "very pleased" with the outcome and added: "The reserve clause preserves the absolute integrity of the game, equalizes the competition and gives each club the opportunity to promote its very expensive player development program."

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reaction from figures close to the baseball came swiftly and predictably Monday concerning the U.S. Supreme Court's refusal to act against baseball's anti-trust exemption and its controversial reserve clause.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players' Association and a staunch critic of what Justice Harry A. Blackmun termed in his majority opinion an "aberration" from usual anti-trust legislation enjoyed by baseball, called upon Congress to correct the situation.

"Like all other pro sports under the safeguard of the anti-trust laws," Miller said, "the present state of the law is an 'aberration' that should be corrected by the Congress. We feel confident that the Congress will accept the court's clear indication to act in this matter and we will be cooperating fully with the Congress to achieve that result."

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, whose position usually finds him in disagreement with

Miller, applauded the court's decision, saying: "I think the decision is constructive in its recognition that baseball has developed its present structure in reliance on past court decisions."

"The decision opens the way for renewed collective bargaining on the reserve system after the 1972 season, I am confident," Kuhn continued. "That the players and the clubs are in the best position to determine for themselves what the form of the reserve clause should be and that they will both take a most responsible view of their respective obligations to the public and to the game."

In Boston, American League president Joe Cronin also said he was pleased with the court's action in the case which was initiated by former St. Louis Cardinal star Curt Flood.

"I am very pleased," Cronin said. "I never felt the terms of the uniform players' contract or the assignment of my contract detracted from human dignity."

ATLANTA (UPI) — Orlando Cepeda, suspended Saturday when he stalked out in a huff because he wasn't listed in the starting lineup, was reinstated Monday by the Atlanta Braves.

Eddie Robinson, the Braves recently appointed director of player personnel, said the hard-hitting (.333) first baseman met with him and Braves manager Lam Harris Monday and talked over their problem.

"I am pleased to announce that everything has been resolved," said Robinson when he announced the reinstatement.

4-hitter lets Expos blank Reds

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Bill Stoneman outdueled Jack Billingham Monday night in pitching a four-hitter that gave the Montreal Expos a 2-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Stoneman's victory was his sixth of the season against five defeats and his second shutout.

The Expos broke a scoreless tie in the seventh inning when Ron Fairly, who opened the inning with a double to left, scored on Tim Lincecum's bases-loaded sacrifice fly.

Billingham, who suffered his seventh loss against four victories, departed in the eighth inning after one-out singles by Mike Jorgensen and Tim McCarver put runners on first and third.

A sacrifice fly by pinch-hitter Ron Woods scored Jorgensen with the Expos' second run.

Rain halts record try

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Bob Gibson, seeking to become the winningest pitcher in St. Louis history, was stopped by rain for the second time Monday night when the Cardinals' contest with San Diego was called after two innings with no score.

Gibson has 218 victories in his career with St. Louis. In his last start, he was leading, 1-0, in the top of the fourth inning against Los Angeles when rain forced cancellation.

Curt Flood loses case

Joe DiMaggio thinks court rule is proper

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Joe DiMaggio makes a good witness, maybe the perfect one.

He has no axe to grind.

He lived under the present reserve clause 16 years with the New York Yankees and had his salary battles with the front office the same as anybody else so he doesn't figure to be against the players.

He has no official connection with baseball now and you don't see any of the owners knocking his door down to employ him so you can't put him away as any kind of "owners' man" either.

Yet, Joe DiMaggio feels the Supreme Court made the right call.

"I'm happy the Court ruled in favor of baseball," he says.

"Why? Simply because I wouldn't care to see any one club corral all or most of the playing talent. I don't think that would be right, and I'm sure in the long run it would have to hurt baseball."

"You take what's happening in Japan now. I'm talking about the Tokyo Giants. They win every year. It's pretty simple. They've got the money; they get all the talent. I like our rules, the draft and all that, much better."

In essence, Joe DiMaggio is right.

That happens to be the way I feel, anyway.

Had the Supreme Court gone the other way and upheld Curt Flood's challenge of the reserve clause, I don't necessarily think complete chaos would have followed, but I'm reasonably sure there would have been some disorder, and if there is one thing baseball doesn't need right now it's any more disorder.

I have never heard a single player ever say he felt the reserve clause should be eliminated completely. Most say they feel it should be revised some way.

But in what way? Ah, there's the rub!

Justice Harry A. Blackmun, who wrote the opinion upholding the controversial clause, went back and noted the Supreme Court had granted baseball antitrust exemption twice before during the past 50 years.

Blackmun made a special point of saying this exemption rests on a recognition and an acceptance of baseball's unique characteristics and needs. He also said the Court was reluctant to overturn those earlier decisions "when Congress, by its positive inaction, has allowed those decisions to stand for so long and, far beyond mere inference and implication, has clearly evinced a desire not to disapprove them legislatively."

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger agreed with Blackmun's ruling in an opinion of his own but said he had "grave reservations."

Naturally, Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Major League Players' Association, jumped on that and said he felt confident that the Congress will accept the Court's clear indication to act in this matter.

For one thing, the Court cannot instruct Congress to act, it can merely suggest, and there certainly is no guarantee Congress ever will.

The only one who ever really keeps urging it to is Marvin Miller. For its part, the general public seems satisfied with the way things are in baseball or simply doesn't care.

Which leaves only baseball's hierarchy headed by Bowie Kuhn, the commissioner of the game.

Bowie Kuhn, my friends, is a very relieved customer today. So are a number of other baseball people who kept worrying the Supreme Court would go the other way.

I'm pleased it didn't because if I want to see Hank Aaron, Johnny Bench, Roberto Clemente, Billy Williams, Tom Seaver, Bob Gibson, Joe Torre, Pete Rose, Willie Mays, Sam McDowell and Ferguson Jenkins all on the same team I'll go to the All-Star Game.

Which brings me back to Joe DiMaggio.

"Under the present set-up," he says, "I still think a ballplayer can make a pretty decent living out there, reserve clause and all."

Of course he can. So can the owners, and I mean all of them, even those who cry. They should quit crying. So should the players.

I'm with Joe DiMaggio. I'm glad the Court ruled the way it did.

Player seeks support for challenge

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Catcher Ted Simmons of the St. Louis Cardinals said Monday he would seek the support of the major league baseball players' union for a court challenge of baseball's renewal clause.

Simmons revealed his plan shortly after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that professional baseball is immune from the anti-trust law in rejecting Curt Flood's challenge of the controversial reserve clause.

The renewal clause was invoked by the Cardinals management when Simmons failed to come to terms this spring.

"I'd hate to do it again," he said, referring to a season without having a signed contract.

Under the renewal clause, a ballplayer may be summoned to camp without the necessity of signing. It must be invoked between March 1 and March 11, which the Cardinals did in Simmons' case.

Simmons said if he is forced to play again under the clause, "there's only one way to go as far as I'm concerned."

The way, he said, is that of a suit to test the legality of the contract provision.

Before he considers legal action, Simmons said, he would seek support of the Major League Players' Association executive board, which backed Flood in his suit against the reserve clause.

The Cardinals offered Simmons a $7,500 pay boost over last year to $25,000, but he been holding out for $30,000.

"I want to sign my contract," he said. "Being a free agent is not my intention right now. If my contract is renewed again, I'd have reason to take action."

Homers propel Red Sox to victory over Texas

BOSTON (UPI) — Reggie Smith slammed two home runs and Rico Petrocelli and Danny Cater hit one each Monday night as the Boston Red Sox smothered the Texas Rangers, 12-0, behind the three-hit pitching of Sonny Siebert.

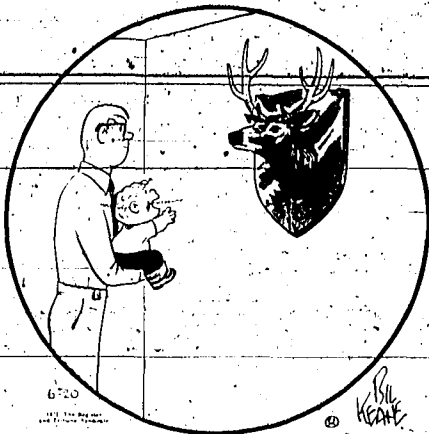

Smith unloaded a drive into the Boston bullpen in right field with Carl Yastrzemski aboard for a 2-0 lead in the first inning. His seventh-inning blast went into the Texas bullpen, scoring Siebert and Luis Aparicio, who had doubled home Carlton Fisk, to start a four-run outburst.

Smith also opened the fifth with a single and scored when Petrocelli and Cater hammered back-to-back homers to left field.

Boston got two runs in the second inning as Fisk singled, Siebert was hit by a pitch and Harper doubled off the left

Most Juniors Object To It

Mister, how do you feel about giving your son the same name as your own, thus designating him as a Junior? Pollsters put that query to a blizable batch of boys so named. About half said they detested the notion. A fourth said they didn't mind being called Junior, but they probably wouldn't name their own sons in honor of themselves. The final fourth liked the idea, said they figured Juniors enjoy advantages.

UNDER THE LAW — In Whitesville, Del., a girl who proposes matrimony to a man commits that of "fours" called "disorderly conduct."

STILL CLAIM — In Indian tribe ever used the word "wigwam." That was white man's slang. What the Indians said was "wetumuck" meaning "at home."

AMONG 3 year olds in nursery schools, it's reported, a testy little argument crops up on an average of once every five minutes.

MATRESS — Harder the mattress, the more often you turn over in your sleep. Average man has about 2,900 square inches of skin surface. Maybe 20 percent is pressed against the mattress, restricting circulation. If the mattress is hard, the compression is great. On a medium mattress, you'll turn over about 40 times a night. On a hard mattress, about 60 times.

Q. "IF I were planning a trip to investigate the seigneur of ology among the natives of Haiti, what should I take with me?"

A. So you're trying to trap me, are you? Take a frying pan. That's the study of eggs.

A. That's the average first marriage age of the young ladies. Actually, more girls marry at age 18 than at any other age. Tricky, those statistics.

STAMPS — Since Abraham Lincoln, please note, every president who has died in office has been memorialized by a stamp.

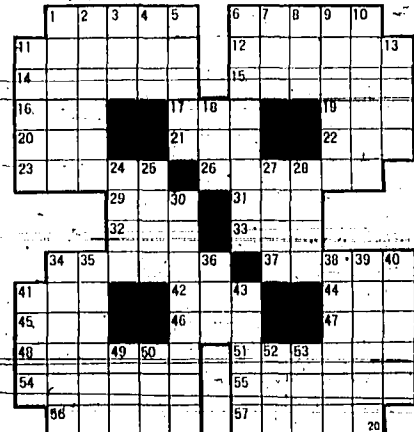

DID I tell you a grown ostrich can peer over an eight-foot fence? If it stands on its little tippy toes.

IT ALSO has been proved you get more dental cavities in the spring than in the fall, normally. Moose are mentally ill. Not all moose necessarily, but many, even most may be. Such is the claim of an experienced Alaskan. He contends all seasoned hunters in the North country are aware of this common moose insanity. What puzzles them, he says, is how the deranged moose have survived.

Labor Law. If there are problems with it, I would suggest possible amendments, but not total repeal," he said.

The District 21 candidate said he was in agreement with the planks in the platform calling for "effective means to solve the problems which affect our schools and establishment of a population planning commission with a social demographer and population biologists to develop environmental impact statements for each county."

Albion homecoming slated for July 1

ALBION — Homecoming events are being planned for July 1 on the Albion Campus by alumni association officers.

Keith Amende, Joy Cagle and Shirley Clark, officers of the Albion State Normal, Southern Idaho College of Education Alumni Association, are making the arrangements.

Registration and coffee hour will begin at 11 a.m. July 1 on the campus. Lunch will be served at 12:30 p.m. and the business meeting will be held after lunch.

Amende reminds all alumni that last year in the business meeting the 200 in attendance voted to drop all names from the 1,800 mailing list who do not respond to correspondence this year and who do not send in their dues.

Headline for replying to the letters is June 24, according to Amende. Anyone knowing of members of the alumni who are not on the mailing list are asked to get in touch with one of the officers at Albion.

Also last year the group voted to prepare a display for the Cassia County Historical Society Museum showing the history of the college at Albion.

Anyone with material to donate to this permanent display is asked to bring the material to the homecoming and business session this year.

Awards to be given will be the same as last year.

This was the crux of an agreement between Rupert and Minidoka County officials, approved recently by the Rupert City Council.

The program for the joint operation was drawn up by representatives of the city and county for presentation to the council and county commission.

The council agreed on a rate schedule proposed by the commission, allowing the city to utilize the landfill in a dual operation, effective at the end of the current year.

Under the agreement, the present city landfill will remain the property of the city, but it will be closed and covered when the joint arrangement takes effect. The county landfill north of Paul will continue to be used by both city and county residents until it is filled, when another site will be located.

New state and federal solid-waste regulations are adding a greater financial burden to both county and city governments, according to Rupert Mayor Wendell Johnson, making a joint operation the only economical way.

A two-mill tax levy, now assessed county residents for operation of the county landfill, will be added to the City of Rupert next year. In addition, all persons using the landfill will be charged a fee of $1.50 per ton, or $3 per flatbed load, for dumping at the site.

Presently, county residents in the vicinity of the city landfill may dump garbage and trash at no charge, under an agreement between the city and county. County commissioners have agreed that a fee will be necessary, despite the levy, to balance outgo and income.

Each person is to mark his own belongings for items are easy to misplace. All bedrolls are to be tied tight.

If additional information is needed 4-H leaders or parents may phone the Cassia County Agent's office.

Meet gains major goals

By ROBERT MUSEL
STOCKHOLM (UPI) — The shape of a new and better world emerged today from the mass of documents assembled at the first U.N. conference on the human environment—but few of the departing delegates dared guess when it might become reality.

Most of them appeared to concur with the American view that the conference had shown the way to diminish pollution, preserve the environment and raise the living standards of developing countries, but now it was up to individual governments to take the necessary action.

Russell E. Train, chairman of the American delegation, returned to the United States with his group to begin the process that he said would include many meetings with business and government leaders to explain the 106 recommendations and the 25 principles approved by the gathering.

The politics that provoked a crisis over the principles in the declaration of the human environment, notably China's effort to brand the United States a polluter of the environment because of Vietnam, receded today in the realization that the 110-nation conference had achieved all its major objectives in 12 days of what future generations might regard as historic discussion.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India, in Sweden on a state visit, and others cautioned that it was a long way from the comfortable surroundings of the buildings in which the 1,500 delegates and their advisers met to the Asian peasant whose interest in clean air and water is far less than in something to eat and somewhere better to live.

Since implementation of the proposals would require massive injections of funds, Mrs. Gandhi's attitude was that India, while it welcomed the results of the conference, would wait and see whether these materialized before pronouncing it more than a qualified success. This echoed the feelings of a number of other developing countries. The secretariat of the conference produced a summing up which said it was sending forward to the U.N. General Assembly the basis for decisions "that will enable the community of nations to act together in a manner consistent with the Earth's physical interdependence."

"The results of two weeks of intensive work at the conference the first such worldwide gathering on the subject ever held," it said, "are set out in three documents: Recommendations for an action plan to tackle the planet's environmental ills, a resolution outlining a scheme for new United Nations machinery including an environmental fund to focus international efforts on these problems, and a declaration on the human environment containing the principles which the nations assembled at Stockholm believe should guide them in the years ahead."

The 106 recommendations cover "such broad areas as protection of other living beings, control over contamination from man-made pollutants, management of natural resources, improvement of cities and other settlements and cooperation among nations to save and enhance their common heritage—for example, the unique and fascinating beauty spots of the world. Taken together they constitute what is known as "an action plan for the environment."

Its most impressive component is called "Earthwatch," a global monitoring system whose satellites would watch the great ecosystems such as the oceans and the forests and provide, among other things, an early warning system against natural disasters which might have saved countless lives had it been functioning at the time of the Bay of Bengal hurricane in 1970.

4-H demonstrations given

DECLO — Demonstrations were given Monday during the Cassia 4-H Club meeting at the home of Mrs. Jean Glaesemann.

Shelley Glaesemann gave a demonstration on arranging flowers. A demonstration on polishing silver was presented by Teresa Gould.

Kelley Crane demonstrated making oatmeal cookies which later were served as refreshments.

The business session was conducted by Darlene Graves, president.

For recreation the 11 members played games outside.

Pulled flaps said crash cause

LONDON (UPI) — The crash of a British European Airways (BEA) Trident jetliner which killed 118 persons shortly after takeoff from London's Heathrow Airport was caused by premature retraction of its wing flaps, Aerospace Minister Michael Heseltine said Monday.

Heseltine told the British Parliament the plane's electronic flight recorder showed its wing flaps retracted while the three-engine craft was climbing under automatic pilot less than two minutes after takeoff Sunday on a flight to Brussels.

It was the worst airline disaster in British history.

Flaps extend from the leading and trailing edges of a plane's wings during takeoff and landing to provide greater lift at relatively slow airspeeds.

Heseltine said the flight recorder showed the Trident's pilot, Capt. Stanley Key, switched off the automatic pilot and tried manual control in a vain attempt to save the plane when the flaps retracted.

He said the plane had reached an altitude of 1,750 feet and was climbing at a speed of 184 miles per hour when the leading edge droop (flap) mechanism started to retract and the aircraft entered a stalling regime.

The aerospace minister said experts calculated the plane would have had to have been traveling at 205 miles per hour to overcome the effects of the malfunctioning flap.

Heseltine disputed aviation experts who conjectured the pilot may have brought on the stall by cutting back his engine power to meet anti-noise regulations.

"Indications were that any noise abatement procedures would have been completed at a lower altitude," he said.
