MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Both night.
Ironrunner George S. McGovern and challenger Hubert H. Humphrey ruled out Saturday any chance of compromise on the California delegate seating fight, ensuring a bitter floor fight when the convention opens Monday.

After a closed meeting with Democratic governors at the Fontainebleau Hotel, Humphrey said that the dispute over 271 California delegates crucial to McGovern's hopes must go to the convention floor Monday.

backing of McGovern's claim to the full California delegation.
Several of the governors said they hoped a compromise could be reached to avoid a bloodbath at the Democratic convention's opening session only two days away, but their doubts were underscored by Humphrey's adamant stand.

Asked if any compromise on California was possible, the party's unsuccessful 1968 nominee said: "I think a good compromise in California is 120 votes for McGovern and 106 for Humphrey."

Equally as adamant was McGovern. "There is no room for any compromise at all," he said as he arrived in the convention city to take personal command of his campaign fight.

"As far as I'm concerned the rule is clear on California and we will have to stick with the rules."
McGovern is fighting to regain the full 271-vote delegation he won in the June 6 primary, only to lose between 151 and 153 of them in the party Credentials Committee's decision last week. He lost his court fight for the full delegation Friday night when the Supreme Court ruled that the convention must decide the issue.

McGovern, to whom the California votes are crucial for a first ballot nomination, arrived an hour late aboard a chartered airliner after a storm-tossed flight from Washington.

drizzle, he declared that "the American people are hungry for some idealism," blunt talk and change in the political system, and that he was offering all three to the convention.

McGovern once briefly threatened to bolt the party when his winner-take-all triumph in California was overturned.
He said he would compromise on the Daley delegation, but "as far as I'm concerned the rule is clear on California and we will have to stick with the rules."

Andrus says Muskie right choice

BOISE (UPI)—Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, head of Idaho's Democratic delegation, will fly to Miami today with a strong conviction that Sen. Edmund Muskie is the man to beat President Nixon in November.

"If Sen. (George) McGovern doesn't win it on the first ballot, it may go for a long time," Andrus told United Press International Saturday.

Andrus, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and other Democratic leaders gave an early endorsement to Muskie. Since that time, Church has thrown his support to McGovern, but Andrus continued to support Muskie and will be in Miami as one of the state's three committed Muskie delegates.

The other two Muskie delegates include the governor's secretary, Jean Taylor, and Nolan Hancock, executive secretary of the state's Democratic Party.

"I would like to say that I am not anti-McGovern but I am pro-Muskie," Andrus said. He said he would support the winning candidate when the final decision is made and he was sure Idaho's delegation "would come home united."

The remainder of the state's 17-vote delegation includes four uncommitted votes, one for Hubert Humphrey, two Shirley Chisholm and seven for McGovern.

The alternates and regular delegates include three Blacks and three Chicanos. It is made up of 50 per cent women.

Andrus said if McGovern is nominated he will have to clarify some of his stands such as at what level he will maintain the country's security and welfare.

"Some of the statements that have been tied with McGovern were not made by him but by his supporters," Andrus said.

The governor said Muskie has the best chance of beating Nixon in November because the Maine Senator has been a "stable member" in politics and has been a former governor, a U.S. Senator and a Congressional leader.

"He is also from a large state with a small population," Andrus said.

Andrus feels Gov. George Wallace will be a key figure at the convention and he will be a factor along with Muskie and Humphrey delegates in nominating the presidential candidate if McGovern does not win on the first ballot.

Andrus said he didn't expect any problems at the Miami convention which begins officially Monday and said he was sure it would not be a recurrence of the 1968 Chicago meeting where police and demonstrators battled in the streets.

The governor said it would be a long shot if Sen. Edward Kennedy accepted the nomination, but if he did Andrus said he would find it easy to support Kennedy.

The Idaho delegation will join the Utah and Oregon delegations to Miami on a chartered plane.

Worms... ugghh!

More to come?

Daley group wins Demo seats

CHICAGO (UPI)—A Cook County judge Saturday enjoined a group challenging Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley and 58 of his followers for seats at the Democratic National Convention from attempting to take the seats when the convention opens Monday.

The injunction was issued by Judge Daniel A. Covelli in answer to an 11th hour move by Daley to get back seats awarded the challengers by the Democratic party credentials committee on a 71-61 vote eight days ago.

A Supreme Court ruling Friday night, staying an injunction by an Appeals Court against the Daley delegates from seeking further action in Illinois courts, paved the way for Saturday's ruling by Covelli.

If the challengers are ousted and replaced by the uncommitted Daley delegation, Sen. George S. McGovern would lose an estimated 41 first ballot votes in the 170-member Illinois delegation.

Covelli said he issued the injunction because the challengers, in contrast to Daley delegates, "were not elected according to Illinois statutes."

that point in the U.S. yet," the judge said.

The injunction will restrain the challengers "from attempting to gain seats in the national convention," which opens at Miami Beach Monday, Covelli said.

Covelli overturned four objections and issued the formal, written injunction several hours after his verbal order. He noted he could not stop the convention from voting to seat the challengers, "but if they (the challengers) accept those seats they'll have to answer to me."

He said he would not accept any plea that the challengers are in Florida and out of the jurisdiction of the Cook County court. He said they have heard about his order from the news media and that public notice is all that is required in this kind of an injunction. But, Covelli instructed attorneys to send telegrams of his order to the challenge group in Miami.

Attorneys for the challengers said they planned immediate appeal of the order to the State Court of Appeals and to the Illinois Supreme Court if necessary.

In Miami, challenge leader William Singer, a Chicago alderman, indicated the rebel group will take their convention seats as scheduled despite the risk of contempt of court citations in Cook County.

Wallace resumes campaign

MIAMI (UPI)—For the first time since arriving at the Democratic National Convention, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace made a brief but dramatic appearance Saturday night at a reception for delegates and said that he expects to be as active as any candidate seeking the presidential nomination.

Leaning forward from his wheelchair, Wallace told more than 3,000 persons that he expects his campaign to be in full swing now and he hopes that those delegates uncommitted or pledged to other candidates will join his team.

"Those among you who are uncommitted," he said in a strong voice, "I hope you decide to cast your vote for us. And if there are any delegates here pledged to other candidates maybe you will have a change of heart between now and the vote Wednesday night."

Wallace said he expects to be in the middle of the convention activities despite his paralysis that he suffered as a result of being shot by a would-be assassin in Maryland, on May 15.

"I plan to be as active as any candidate at this convention," he said.

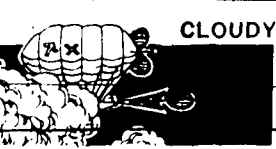

Wallace talked to the crowd for only about two minutes and was out of his room on the 20th floor of the Sheraton Four Ambassadors less than 15 minutes for the reception, held on the lobby floor of the same hotel.

Mr. T-N says

Burley's band and Stepperettes should be a hit with Calgary's Stampede crowd this week.

Beauty aid disclosure questioned

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Virginia H. Knauer, President Nixon's consumer adviser, Saturday asked 19 leading U.S. cosmetic firms Saturday to outline the steps they are taking to make public the ingredients of their beauty products as an aid to women with allergies.

Mrs. Knauer said several firms have started making such information available, either to retailers or directly to customers, but that many consumers still were not aware of it.

"To help get this information to consumers, I am writing to leading cosmetic manufacturers to ask their policies on disclosing ingredient information," she said.

Tax reform proposed

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—A group headed by Sen. Fred R. Harris, a former Democratic National party chairman, sought support Saturday for a proposal intended to close the tax "loopholes" for the rich.

Button-holing delegates in the plush hotels, the Harris group urged them to write a plan for comprehensive tax reform into the Democratic platform during the convention here.

Harris, who has passed up a race for re-election to the Senate from Oklahoma, said in a statement, "The ordinary taxpayer wants the rich off the welfare rolls. He wants them on the tax rolls so that his taxes can come down."

The group's proposed platform plank calls for taxation of all incomes—regardless of the source—at the same rate. This could eliminate special rates for capital gains, tax free on state and municipal bonds, and other forms of "sheltered" income.

The plan would eliminate all exemptions and deductions but would provide a tax credit "to replace, and fully compensate for, current personal income tax exemptions and deductions of benefit to the average taxpayer, such as home mortgage interest and medical deductions."

The plan calls for direct payments from the federal treasury to make up for tax subsidies, if they "are determined to serve a vital national interest."

Range fire spreads

HOLBROOK — A stubborn range fire burning in sagebrush and juniper near here had spread over 900 acres late Saturday and continued out of control.

Bureau of Land Management officials in Burley dispatched all available equipment and crews. They issued a call for assistance to the Sawtooth National Forest, Saturday evening.

Two Forest Service planes dropped five loads of chemical retardant before being called off by darkness. The Forest Service also sent the inter-regional fire crew and a helicopter and crew from Dee Hansen, Forest Service fire dispatcher, said the fire was reportedly burning in an extremely rough and inaccessible area which hampered control efforts. It was reportedly whipped into fingers running from the main fire in about six sections but winds were reported subsiding about 8 p.m.

Cause of the fire had not been determined although the area was overcast and might have resulted from lightning, officials said.

Location of the burn area was listed as 90 miles south and east of Burley, near the Utah-Idaho state line.

Filer OK's levy

By MARJORIE LIERMAN
Times-News Writer
FILER — Filer and Hollister school patrons passed a five-mill plant facilities levy Friday 185 to 34.

At Filer High School, the vote was 144 for the levy and 24 against. At Hollister it was 41 for with 10 against. A simple majority had been needed for passage.

The funds from the levy will be used for improvements and repairs over a period of five years.

the school district said he was pleased with election returns.

The five-mill levy means a net increase for district taxpayers of only 2.5 mills because the 2.5 mills the patrons are now paying for the Filer High School bonds will be eliminated in the coming year's tax levy.

A 20-year, $300,000 bond issue was retired this past December. According to Tom Turner, retiring superintendent, $250,000 of the amount was used to construct the high school addition and the remaining $50,000 had been used for repairs at the former Maroa, Central and Victory school buildings.

After consolidation of schools, the Maroa school was no longer used. Victory and Central were vacant after the new Filer elementary school was erected several years ago. The Victory school was torn down and the location is now the site of the Filer City Park.

Mrs. Cecil Brown served as election judge. She was assisted by Mrs. Edith Lammer and Mrs. Dan Kauffman.

Demo women set delegate record

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Almost three times as many women are delegates to this year's Democratic National Convention as in 1968. A record 36 per cent are women compared to only 13 per cent four years ago and also in 1964.

This also is a far cry from 1900, when the Democrats broke the ice by admitting the first woman delegate to their convention. She was Mrs. Elizabeth Conn of Utah and she made a seconding speech for the unsuccessful candidate for the nomination, William Jennings Bryan, at the Kansas City convention.

The new look of the 1972 convention also shows strides among other minorities, with youth making up 21 per cent of the delegates; blacks 15 per cent; Latinos 4 per cent, and Indians 1 per cent.

When the Republicans held their convention here Aug. 21-23, 29 per cent of the delegates will be women, compared to 17 per cent in 1968.

The National Women's Political Caucus—which celebrates its first birthday Monday, when the convention formally opens—is claiming credit for the big jump in women delegates.

The conventions have been feminized," said Elizabeth Carpenter, former press secretary to Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, who has been a driving force behind the women's caucus.

"The caucus has been a strong force in demanding a fairer proportion of the delegates," she said. "Since we are 53 per cent of the electorate, we aim for 50 per cent. We are still short of that goal but we are well on our way."

Democratic governors avoid 'bloody fight'

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Despite all the emphasis on reform to ensure an open convention, Democratic governors returned to the proverbial smoke-filled room Saturday to try to avoid a party-shattering floor fight.

But the major presidential contenders were having none of it.

This year the "back room" the party has been trying to avoid was the Champagne Room of the ornate Fontainebleau Hotel. Inside, 15 or more of the nation's Democratic governors huddled with the candidates in an attempt to avoid what Gov. John J. Gilligan of Ohio warned could be "a bloody fight."

They were trying to work out a compromise on the California and Illinois delegate seating challenges so that the convention could open Monday night without a bruising floor fight.

But both George S. McGovern and Hubert H. Humphrey refused to accept any compromise—at least as far as the crucial California dispute was concerned.

Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers was one of the instigators of the closed session of state chief executives.

Secret Service agents stood guard outside the wooden door, which opened barely a crack to let each arriving governor enter after he had walked the gauntlet of television lights and reporters' questions.

But the scene was almost comical because so few of the nation's governors were recognized.

"Who was that?" asked a big-eyed official party hostess after the lights and cameras had followed a distinguished looking man into The Champagne Room.

"A governor," replied a blonde cameraman, oblivious to further identification.

The lights blazed on one tall, handsome man who turned out to be a security guard while a short, undistinguished man in front of him was unnoticed. The first man was the governor.

Soviet buildup worries China

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Democratic and Republican leaders said Saturday after a visit to China that Peking was concerned about a Soviet arms buildup and a possible U.S. withdrawal from the Pacific and other regions.

Hale Boggs of Louisiana, the Democratic leader, said that in conversations with Premier Zhou En-lai and other officials, "there was specific concern, rather emphatically, with regard to the possibility of continued Soviet armament and American disarmament."

"As they put it, there are two superpowers — the United States and Russia — and if Russia becomes the greater superpower then much of the world is in difficulty."

Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the Republican leader, said: "Among high Chinese officials there was a great deal of interest shown in many questions asked about the sufficiency of our military capability and what our direction might be in the future with respect to the Defense Department funding and its programs."

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Democratic and Republican leaders said Saturday after a visit to China that Peking was concerned about a Soviet arms buildup and a possible U.S. withdrawal from the Pacific and other regions.

Hale Boggs of Louisiana, the Democratic leader, said that in conversations with Premier Zhou En-lai and other officials, "there was specific concern, rather emphatically, with regard to the possibility of continued Soviet armament and American disarmament."

"As they put it, there are two superpowers — the United States and Russia — and if Russia becomes the greater superpower then much of the world is in difficulty."

Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the Republican leader, said: "Among high Chinese officials there was a great deal of interest shown in many questions asked about the sufficiency of our military capability and what our direction might be in the future with respect to the Defense Department funding and its programs."

Democratic governors avoid 'bloody fight'

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Despite all the emphasis on reform to ensure an open convention, Democratic governors returned to the proverbial smoke-filled room Saturday to try to avoid a party-shattering floor fight.

But the major presidential contenders were having none of it.

This year the "back room" the party has been trying to avoid was the Champagne Room of the ornate Fontainebleau Hotel. Inside, 15 or more of the nation's Democratic governors huddled with the candidates in an attempt to avoid what Gov. John J. Gilligan of Ohio warned could be "a bloody fight."

They were trying to work out a compromise on the California and Illinois delegate seating challenges so that the convention could open Monday night without a bruising floor fight.

But both George S. McGovern and Hubert H. Humphrey refused to accept any compromise—at least as far as the crucial California dispute was concerned.

Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers was one of the instigators of the closed session of state chief executives.

Secret Service agents stood guard outside the wooden door, which opened barely a crack to let each arriving governor enter after he had walked the gauntlet of television lights and reporters' questions.

But the scene was almost comical because so few of the nation's governors were recognized.

"Who was that?" asked a big-eyed official party hostess after the lights and cameras had followed a distinguished looking man into The Champagne Room.

"A governor," replied a blonde cameraman, oblivious to further identification.

The lights blazed on one tall, handsome man who turned out to be a security guard while a short, undistinguished man in front of him was unnoticed. The first man was the governor.

Court settles BPW argument

TWIN FALLS — Disagreement between members of a Twin Falls women's club which erupted into court action has been settled, at least temporarily.

The district court summary judgment was granted to plaintiffs in the case Friday afternoon by Fifth Judicial District Judge Theron W. Ward.

A group of women who said they were the officially elected officers of the Twin Falls Business and Professional Women's Club brought action against another group of women who argued they were officers and refused to give up the club's charter, record books and finances.

Plaintiffs in the case were Doris Harper, president, and Betty Ainsworth, Faye Hoffman, LaVerna Rudolph, Frances Buhler and Marguerite Montgomery.

Defendants were Greta Smith, listed as president, and Vera Rauch, DeEtta Campbell, Shirley Kendrick and Alta Strong.

In the summary judgment signed by Judge Ward late Friday, he decreed the plaintiffs are the duly elected officers of the BPW club and as such are entitled to the club charter, books and bank accounts. They were also assessed costs of the case.

A counter complaint filed by the defendants, charging libel and slander, was ordered dismissed by Judge Ward.

Greta Smith said Saturday she thought it was the worst decision she had ever heard. She said it will probably be appealed. She said she could see no basis of justification for the judgment.

In arguments in the case, it was brought out by Douglas Kramer, attorney for the plaintiffs, the state and national levels of the BPW had reviewed the disagreement in the Twin Falls club and both had ruled in support of the plaintiffs.

Kramer, in seeking the summary judgment, warned the court a trial involving 11 angry women would test the court's composure.

During the controversy, the club's bank accounts were "frozen" by the bank with no drafts accepted on the accounts pending court settlement of the issue.

Defendants in the case had declined to turn over the club records in their possession in spite of letters of request and direction from the state and national organizations.

Filer man goes to Demo confab Markers unwanted

FILER — A.K. Reed, Filer, thinks the Democratic presidential nomination may be decided Monday night.

That's when the party's decisions on seating delegates will be made at the national convention at Miami Beach, Fla.

Reed will be at the convention, attending as an uncommitted delegate from Idaho.

Reed, accompanied by Mrs. Reed, was scheduled to leave Boise at noon today aboard a chartered airliner along with other members of the Idaho delegation. Delegates from Oregon and Utah will make the trip to Florida aboard the same plane.

Reed is one of three uncommitted alternate delegates to the convention, which will be the first he has attended.

"It looks like it is going to be a typical Democratic convention," Reed said. He referred to the frequency of floor fights over various matters which have occurred at many past party conventions.

Reed said he "doesn't know" who will come out with the party's nomination for president. He declined to comment concerning any possible personal preference since he is attending on an uncommitted basis.

A United Press International tabulation this past week showed that of Idaho's 17 delegates, three were uncommitted, eight were for Sen. George McGovern, one was for Sen. Hubert Humphrey, and none were for Gov. George Wallace. Others were divided among other lesser contenders for the nomination.

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Police are continuing investigation of an incident reported Thursday in Twin Falls.

Twin Falls Police said 20 metal gravemarkers were placed in two neat rows on the lawn of a residence on Blue Lakes Boulevard.

Police said it has been determined the grave markers were unused and had been discarded. They are continuing investigation in an attempt to determine who perpetrated the prank.

Hearing waived TF aide in drug case TF aide head of bar unit

TWIN FALLS — A preliminary hearing was waived and a plea of guilty entered Friday to a charge of delivering a controlled substance.

Steven Gibson, 21, Twin Falls, was among a group arrested last month in Twin Falls by the Twin Falls City-County Drug Control Unit.

He is charged with delivery of marijuana, a felony.

A pre-sentence investigation was requested and was granted by Judge Theron Ward of the Fifth Judicial District.

In other court action Friday, Ann Patricia Blake, 22, who had previously entered a plea of guilty to a charge of forgery, was sentenced to not more than 14 years in the state penitentiary. Execution of sentence was suspended by Judge Ward and Miss Blake was placed on two years probation.

Terms of the probation include that Miss Blake make restitution for the forged checks and that she discontinue associations with some of her former friends.

Todd Bly Crosser, 19, Twin Falls, was sentenced to five years in the state penitentiary on a charge of delivery of a controlled substance.

The court, however, suspended execution of the sentence and will retain jurisdiction for 120 days, during which time Crosser will be confined in the state prison.

A hearing on a motion to revoke probation for Mario Alberto Hernandez, Twin Falls, was continued until Wednesday to allow the defense to obtain a witness. Hernandez had been granted 18 months probation after serving a 120-day retained jurisdiction sentence in the state penitentiary on a charge of grand larceny.

The state contends that Hernandez violated his probation when he was found guilty last week of grand larceny in Cassia County.

Teddy: A Port In The Storm

WASHINGTON — The depth of the dilemma threatening the Democrats is best understood in the phenomenally transformed attitudes Southern and Border state leaders toward Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. "Ted Kennedy," a key Democrat in conservative Oklahoma told us, "is way ahead in this state today. It's amazing, but the Democrats here are looking to Kennedy as the savior of the party." What is true in Oklahoma is duplicated in state after state.

The sudden proliferation of party leaders who see salvation only in nominating the last of the Kennedy brothers is supremely ironic. Just months ago, many argued Kennedy and Chappaquiddick would kill the Democratic party in 1972.

What changed that was the rise of Sen. George McGovern and, within the last week, the deepening feeling that he spells disaster — but might yet be stopped. McGovern hurt himself badly inside the party with his intemperate reaction to the California credentials decision by threatening a third-party bolt. That credentials loss, in turn, reduced McGovern's first-ballot nomination prospects from 100 to 1 down to around 10 to 1.

Other reliable signs are mounting that if McGovern fails on the first two ballots, an overpowering demand for Kennedy is predictable. The irresistible pressure behind such a scenario is the conviction among Democrats of all persuasions that Kennedy alone could prevent a third-party movement if McGovern is stopped.

McGovernites reply angrily the nomination would be worthless to anybody else. But, counter beleaguered party regulars, that would not apply to Kennedy, because he — and he alone — could cut losses by unifying the party.

Kennedy gets every one off the hook, one Western liberal pledged to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, told us. The reason: Kennedy appeals to McGovern's militant cadres. His positions on the war, welfare and defense are scarcely distinguishable from McGovern's. Yet, Kennedy is totally acceptable to party professionals such as Daley who justifiably think McGovern's cadres want to run them out of the party.

That feeling emerged at 3:20 p.m. last Thursday in the office of Rep. William Mills of Arkansas. On an impulse, Mills reached into his pocket, extracted three nickels and offered Rep. Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois this bet: Mills' three nickels that Kennedy would be nominated against Rostenkowski's one that he would not.

It took Kennedy months of soul-searching before issuing his "Shermanesque" statement, and the reason goes to the heart of the problem. Kennedy did not feel such a statement would be credible coming from an elective politician.

Morever, the instinctive feeling across a broad spectrum of the party is that Kennedy could be compelled to accept the nomination despite his Shermanesque statement that "under no circumstances" would he run.

Teddy Kennedy, in short, has suddenly become the only port in the political hurricane now besetting the Democratic party. But would Kennedy accept if the convention drafts him?

Moments later, Mills was telling Rostenkowski's leader, Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, over the telephone that he was helping Daley fight the credentials challenge and that "Teddy is going to win" the nomination.

Indeed, Kennedy's inner conviction is that 1972 is not his year, that President Nixon starts far in front and that he genuinely wants to follow the fervent desires of his family that he not run. Yet, Mills' continuing promotion of Kennedy, and the dramatic metamorphosis among Democratic leaders show that his disavowal was not believed.

Then, with Brooklyn Democratic leader Meade Esposito on the line, Mills remarked: "Meade, get a room next to Ted Kennedy at Miami Beach if you want to get near the next President."

Mills has a large stake in a Kennedy nomination. If it happens, he is the only one who can possibly beat Nixon in November.

The compromise candidate is not at the convention. He has purposely stayed away so people would believe he was not interested in the nomination. O'Brien puts in a call to him. Everyone, in turn, gets on the phone and tells him he has to be the candidate.

And that's how Bobby Fischer, the U.S. chess champion, became the Democratic presidential nominee for 1972.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

A Chance

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Recently a friend lost a dear little boy after he drank cleaning fluid of some kind. Her doctor said, "If you had made him vomit right away, he might have stood half a chance."

Just how do you make a child (or adult) vomit? — Mrs. B.

Often there's dry mustard powder in the kitchen. A tablespoon of it in a cup of warm water usually will induce vomiting.

Speed is urgent in many poisonings, but doing the right thing and not the wrong thing can be just as important. Or more so.

Other methods are drinking a cup of soapsuds (not detergent), or a strong solution of salt or baking soda, or tickling the back of the throat with your finger.

Everybody — especially if there are small children in the household — should have the phone number of the Poison Control Center handy where it can't get lost.

In at least some communities the telephone operator can give the number in seconds. I just tried it.

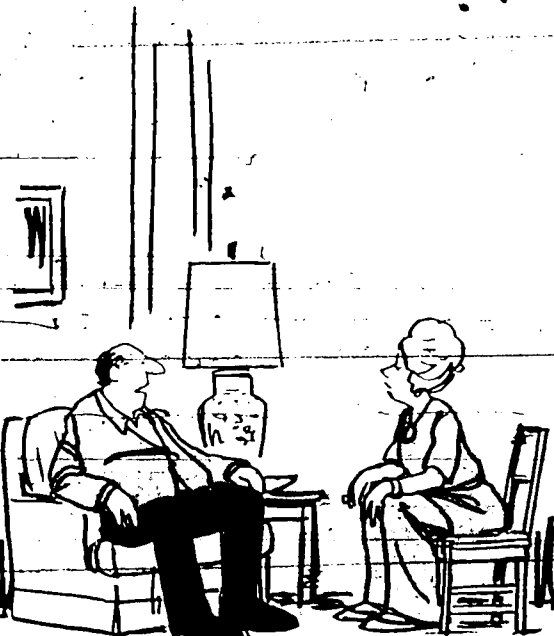

But in smaller communities that don't have their own Poison Control Centers, I don't know. There are different phone companies, too.

I should think it might be wise if the mayor, or town constable, or local doctor or somebody made sure that local operators had at their fingertips the number of the nearest Poison Control Center in a nearby city.

Likewise, vomiting is harmful

"In view of everything, how can you go on thinking Senator McGovern is a stalking horse for Gloria Steinem?"

We Are Gaining

The battle against inflation was joined in earnest about a year ago. The antidotes adopted during the period have been strong medicine, not without their bad side effects. But it is encouraging to learn from government statistics that the discomfort caused by controls and other strict measures may be paying off.

In the five years preceding 1971 weekly earnings of the non-farm worker increased by 12 per cent, or $18 a week. While the size of the pay check was growing, its spending power was not. Inflation consumed all of the added dollars.

Last year was much the same. A worker would have had to increase his income by about 4.5 per cent to stay even with inflation. Since last August, conditions have begun to change. Real spendable earnings — after taxes and inflation — have increased at an average annual rate of 6 per cent.

Averages, of course, mean some people are still not benefiting from the aid on prices and others are benefiting more. But the economy finally is showing signs of winning the battle against inflation. That is good news for everyone.

Genius And Shade

When cutting the lawn has become a chore to be avoided at all cost, then summer has arrived. The zip is gone, along with the nip of the morning breeze that ruffled the spring-time green. Now comes the lazy time when a man deserts his mower in midrow to loaf in the shade a while.

Our trouble is, we're not lazy enough to become real benefactors of mankind. Would an utterly lazy man plod meekly behind a chugging gadget that demands greater guidance than a push model? No, he'd toy around with radar.

Now we're getting somewhere. Let's roll back in a cushioned chair beneath our beach umbrella. There's pushbutton radar at our fingertips, and ice a tinkle in a tall and frosty glass. Out there in the summer sun the mower chugs on, its handle replaced by a tiny antenna. The slightest touch of the button sends it skirting round the rose bed. Nice but still not lazy enough.

This pushbutton engineering gets on a fellow's nerves.

What is needed is a modern successor to the old player piano roll to push the buttons. Then we can snooze, chat, read a book or even go fishing and leave everything to radar.

Now we're talking. Now we're really lazy. But there's a catch to it. We're much too lazy to rig up such a gadget, even if we knew how. Meanwhile that pesky lawn needs cutting again.

MR. SPECTATOR

Way Back When

Friends told us they were in the upper country — Stanley Basin and Sawtooth Valley — over the recent holiday.

What they said, of course, was that they were up there but there was very little room per camper. Reason was the crowds from here and there were out in force.

Which reminds us of a trip Mr. and Mrs. Spectator made to Redfish Lake in 1939. We wanted to take some scenic photographs of that area. We took along a picnic lunch. The road from Ketchum to Redfish Lake was all gravel. It went over Galena Summit at a different point than now — and it was steep and narrow and full of chuck holes.

But the point we want to bring out is that during that photographic expedition we were around the shores of Redfish all day. It must have been in September. We never saw another person at the lake all day.

Different than now — huh?

JUST ASK BEN

If you want to find out something real interesting have a little talk with Ben Mottern, of Rogerson Cafe fame. Ben and family just got back from a trip to Europe. The question? Ask him what transpired while he was in a sauna one day.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE:

Soon after purchasing a used car a man finds out how hard it is to drive a bargain.

PEOPLE ARE CAGED

A drive-through wildlife preserve scheduled to open this summer in West Milford, N. J., is representative of a new trend in zoos. Called Jungle Habitat, the preserve is the first of its kind in the northeastern United States and is designed to give the more than 1,500 animals and birds living there the freedom to roam at will in a natural environment. The 1,000-acre site consists of land features similar to those found in the wilds of Africa, the native homeland of many of the species.

By using only natural and hidden barriers to contain the preserve's wildlife and separate predators from their prey, what we've really created here is a "non-zoo," says R. Brian Hunt, president of the venture.

As in other such facilities visitors will be asked to remain within the safety of their "people cages" (their automobiles) in the extensive drive-through areas of the preserve. One of the main attractions will be the excitement of not knowing what animal will be waiting around the next curve on the trail. Eyeball-to-eyeball confrontations with lions, tigers and other beasts will not be uncommon.

People in cages and animals left free to roam. Animal lovers will agree that that's the way a zoo ought to be.

THE LAST HURRAH?

ART BUCHWALD

Convention Scenario

WASHINGTON — Everyone has his own scenario for this week's Democratic National Convention. The way things have been going with the party, one scenario has as much validity as the next. This is the one that I have written and if it comes true, remember, you read it here.

It is the fourth day of the convention and the Democrats have been unable to decide on a presidential candidate. The fight to seat delegations has taken up three days and those people who were ruled ineligible have refused to give up their seats to those who were officially designated as delegates to the convention.

Almost every state delegation has two people sitting in every chair. No one dares leave the floor for fear that someone will grab his seat.

When someone tries to speak he is hooted down by the opposition faction. Larry O'Brien, the chairman of the party, has the podium ringed with the National Guard so no one can grab the microphone.

The nomination speeches have not been heard, but the candidates have been nominated — McGovern, Humphrey, Wallace, Chisholm, Jackson and Muskie.

There have been no demonstrations for the candidates in the hall because everyone is afraid if he gets up and marches they won't let him back in his section again.

On the first ballot McGovern picked up 1,234 votes, well shy of the 1,509 he needed. The rest were split between the other candidates with the uncommitted refusing to vote for anyone.

The second and third ballot found no one budging. By the tenth ballot of Wednesday's all-night session, the convention was hopelessly deadlocked.

The state delegations caucused right on the floor, trying to get people to change their minds. But it was impossible.

On NBC, John Chancellor and David Brinkley became short-tempered and refused to talk to each other. Howard K. Smith and Harry Reasoner on ABC were also not speaking to each other, and on CBS, Walter Cronkite wasn't talking to himself.

It was obvious to everyone in and out of the convention hall that a compromise candidate had to be found — one who had not already been nominated.

But who? The Democratic Party leaders call a recess behind the podium. They argue and thrash it out for several hours. The only man whose name is proposed as the compromise candidate is a very famous, but controversial, figure on the American scene. He has announced many times that he is not a candidate for the Presidency or the Vice Presidency, and has said under no conditions would he accept a draft.

Yet, the leaders argue he is the one person who can save the party.

This young man, whose name had been associated with a very embarrassing incident, is a household word now. Because of the deadlock at the convention, he is the only one who can possibly beat Nixon in November.

The compromise candidate is not at the convention. He has purposely stayed away so people would believe he was not interested in the nomination. O'Brien puts in a call to him. Everyone, in turn, gets on the phone and tells him he has to be the candidate.

The compromise candidate speaks to George McGovern, Humphrey, Muskie and Wallace. They urge him to run. The candidate finally agrees to a draft and says he will take the next plane to Miami.

And that's how Bobby Fischer, the U.S. chess champion, became the Democratic presidential nominee for 1972.

ANDREW TULLY

Star Spangled

WASHINGTON — Listening to the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner" — usually in tape in this ersatz age — one must sympathize with the sports fans who rarely attempt to sing our national anthem.

Whatever the intent of Francis Scott Key, the "Banner" is meant to be played by a military band to the absolute silence of its audience. It is a march, not a song, and a ruddy good one. We should enjoy it, and thrill to it, as such.

To be sure, Key lifted the music from a British drinking song, "Anacreon in Heaven," composed by John Stafford Smith for the Anacreontic Society of London, named for the bibulous Greek bard, Anacreon. But British males are something else.

In a day when exhibitionistic professional pacifists sneer at the "Banner" as saber-rattling, it seems ironic that the march was a product of history's penchant for whimsy. After the burning of Washington by the British in August, 1814, two minor incidents combined to set the stage for the casual birth of the national anthem.

Aroused by the looting of some British stragglers, some folks in Upper Marlboro, Md., led by Dr. William Beanes, locked up six of the looters in a convenient jail. In retaliation, the British arrested Dr. Beanes and some others and whisked them off to their camp at a Baltimore tavern.

Benedict, MVD. Shortly the other prisoners were released, but Beanes was held for treason because he was a Scotsman.

Enter Francis Scott Key, an anti-war activist. He persuaded President James Madison to accredit him as a prisoner-of-war agent and together with one John S. Skinner proceeded to the British ship of war Tonnant. After some discussion, the British commanding general, Robert Ross, agreed to release Beanes.

But all three men were detained lest they spill to their countrymen plans for the British fleet's imminent move on Baltimore. On the night of Sept. 13, 1814, therefore, Key, Skinner and Beanes were aboard the Minden when the British fleet opened its bombardment of Fort M'Henry. They remained on deck all night.

Beanes complained he had difficulty seeing the flag because of the smoke of battle. At dawn's first light, he kept asking Key: "Is the flag still there?"

Key became irritable and his replies were snappish. Yet the scene, and the repeated question "Is the flag still there?" built emotion in his breast. He found himself scribbling notes on an envelope. That night, after the men had been released, Key composed "The Star Spangled Banner" in them off to their camp at a Baltimore tavern.

Crime—Justice Suggestions Could Bring Arguments

By O-A (Gus) KELKER
Editor, Times-News

These are times of change and suggestions for change. Often these suggestions are disturbing to many.

The findings of the Committee for Economic Development having to do with Reducing Crime and Assuring Justice could well set off a wave of opinion differences. It could approach the level reached by the report of the Commission on Population and the American Future. This report, by a blue ribbon panel, was discussed on this page in a two-part article last March. It called for such "shockers" as distribution of sex information to all — on the theory it would hold the population to a zero growth level — and legal abortions. That report was not carried by regular news sources until sometime after the report of the committee's findings in these columns.

Apparently such a situation is again possible because the report of the Committee for Economic Development has failed to make much of a press coverage. However the report is out and will be discussed in detail in today's coverage.

Actually the "Reducing Crime and Assuring Justice" report is a full statement by the research and policy committee of the CED. The Research and Policy Committee is composed of 60 trustees from among the 200 businessmen and educators who comprise the Committee for Economic Development. It is not government sponsored.

Crime Deeply Rooted In Our Social Ills

Right off the report contends that crime is deeply rooted in the social ills of our society.

Just what did the committee find? What recommendations do they make?

The CED called for a complete overhaul of the criminal justice system at the federal, state and local levels. They urged establishment of an independent Federal Authority to Ensure Justice, which would coordinate a nationwide fight against crime and provide generous financial support for properly reorganized state and local systems.

In a key recommendation, the nonpartisan group called on each state to create a strong, centralized department of justice to take over all criminal justice activities now performed by thousands of state and local agencies. Under the CED proposal, unified state-wide judicial systems would be established to operate all except the federal courts, while county and other local governments would be relieved of all obligations except maintenance of police forces and pretrial detentions.

In addition the committee set forth specific proposals for state and local action to revise the criminal codes and to improve the effectiveness of the police, correctional agencies, the courts and both prosecution and defense counsel. Included were recommendations that:

There Should Be No Private Handguns

(1) Major criminal sanctions should be imposed against private possession of handguns, which account for over half of all murders and almost all killings of police officers. The federal and state governments should be the sole owners of such weapons and should issue them on a temporary basis to authorized persons under carefully drawn regulations.

(2) Police should be better trained, better managed, and brought into closer harmony with the citizenry. The police departments should be restructured to place much greater emphasis on the suppression of serious offenses, narcotics abuse and organized crime.

(3) Correctional systems should be funded at substantially higher levels and should adopt more imaginative approaches to reverse what the Committee believes is "a debacle of major proportions in the nation's misguided and underfunded correctional efforts."

(4) Private, unorganized gambling should be legalized, and extensive experimentation should be undertaken with government operation of gambling arrangements. The Committee emphasized that these measures would deal a major blow to organized crime by depriving it of its main source of income.

(5) States should eliminate criminal penalties for the use of marijuana, which the Committee concluded is "nonaddictive and of doubtful danger," and establish commissions to revise state criminal codes more completely in conformance with "the present views of the American people concerning 'criminal' conduct."

To insure needed reforms at the state level, the new Federal Authority to Insure Justice would be authorized to contribute half of all state and local costs for police, prosecution, judicial and correctional agencies meeting prescribed standards. This proposal, it is pointed out, would cost the federal government about $5 billion a year, but much of the cost would be offset by lower state and local expenditures. This would be a possible form of revenue sharing.

Delays In Justice Are Just Too Long

Underlying the Committee's recommendations on court reform is its belief that the courts are the key to order with justice and that weakness in the court system "undermines the legitimacy of a democratic society." The Committee criticized the long delays of justice that result from the congestion of the court calendars.

It called for the adoption of modern management techniques in the courts and at the same time urged the creation of additional judgeships to permit immediate trial of all felony cases.

The Committee expressed deep concern over the role of partisan politics in the judicial system. It urged that partisan politics be removed from the process of selecting judges and prosecutors.

Contributing to court congestion, the panel found, is a scarcity of qualified prosecutors and defense counsel, leading to repeated case postponements. Combined with lack of sufficient judges, this creates heavy pressure for "plea bargaining" — negotiating between prosecution and defense resulting in a guilty plea by the defendant in return for substitution of a less serious charge by the prosecutor. Such bargaining is a "travesty on justice," the Committee held.

The Committee also found that the nation's correctional efforts suffer from an "appalling" degree of governmental apathy. Correctional expenditures are less than one-third those for police protection, while the police are called on to arrest over and over persons whose patterns of conduct have been worsened, not bettered, by "corrections."

The Committee recommended the replacement of obsolete prisons, oppressively managed, with decent facilities where opportunities for education, training and personal development are available under the guidance of qualified and sensitive staffs.

Although the cost of these changes may total well over $20,000 per inmate in construction alone, the report emphasized that these expenditures "must be placed in proper perspective and compared with the costs borne by society because of the tens of thousands of hardened and embittered career criminals among the 100,000 to 150,000 released from American prisons each year."

As to police, the Committee recommends the consolidation of local police forces into strong statewide or regional units. Strong, professional management will be required — and needed.

Statewide, Regional Police Units Needed

Among other things, the Committee called for an improved police attitude toward minority groups and the general public. Discriminatory police conduct and the use of excessive force must not be tolerated.

In calling for a federal agency, the Committee emphasized that it was "reluctant to propose a new federal agency" but could find "no acceptable alternative that would meet the urgent necessity." The Committee found that the Department of Justice lacks the essential jurisdiction in many fields and has not adequately coordinated the autonomous bureaus normally subordinate to it. Likewise, the "poor record" of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration "does not inspire confidence in the Department's capacity to give effective leadership to state-local law enforcement." And the Department of Justice is heavily politicized.

The committee called upon the business community in particular to take an active role in improving the administration of justice — not only because crime costs the business community an estimated $16 billion a year but because it "undermines the very basis of American society."

Businessmen were asked to "clean" their own houses and aid in the prosecution of criminal offenders, whether employees, company officers, customers or elements of organized crime. It urged business leaders to use their influence in support of needed reforms in the criminal justice system.

Supreme Court Ruling Will Change Credit Pattern

By O-A (Gus) KELKER

Editor, Times-News

A United States Supreme Court decision will have a significant effect on the consumer credit industry.

For all practical purposes the most effective of the creditor's collection tools — the surprise state seizure of goods in a debtor's possession — is a thing of the past. It came to an end in an early June decision of the Court in the case of Margarita Fuentes, et al. vs. Robert L. Shavin, attorney general of Florida.

Details of the decision were related in Twin Falls by Fred Decker, attorney, when he spoke to members of the Twin Falls Chapter of the International Credit Association, and later in an interview on the subject with the Times-News.

He is a member of the law firm of Parry, Robertson, Daly and Larson of Twin Falls. Decker said the decision was no surprise to lawyers because the high court in Shniadach v. Family Finance Corporation, decided in 1969, held a Wisconsin law unconstitutional which authorized a creditor to seize, with state assistance, the earnings of an alleged debtor while in the hands of the debtor's employer — but before any court determination of the validity of the creditor's claims.

In Shniadach, Decker said, the Court found that ex-parte seizure of a person's unpaid earnings was a violation of his right to "due process of law" guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution. The Court held: (1) A person whose rights (the right to receive wages earned) are to be affected by "state action" (seizure in this case) is entitled to be "heard"; (2) in order for a person to be heard, he must be notified of that opportunity; and (3) the right to "an opportunity to be heard" must be granted at a "meaningful time" and in a "meaningful manner."

Struck Down Decker pointed out that high courts in New York and California had beat the U.S. high court to the punch by striking down state laws authorizing secured creditors to seize goods in the hands of alleged debtors with state assistance prior to any court determination of the creditor's right to have the goods.

In Fuentes two judge federal courts had upheld the validity of Florida and Pennsylvania laws authorizing the surprise seizure of goods in the possession of alleged debtors without any notice or the proceedings to the alleged debtor.

In these cases, Decker said, a "writ of replevin" was issued by the clerk of the court authorizing and directing law enforcement officers to seize personal property in the hands of alleged debtors on demand of the alleged creditors. He said these laws allowed the issuance of "writs" ordering state officers to "seize goods simply upon the ex-parte application of another person who claimed a right to possess them."

Margarita Fuentes, a resident of Florida, had purchased a gas stove and service policy from Firestone Tire and Rubber Company under a conditional sale contract calling for monthly installments over a period of time.

A few months after purchasing the stove and service policy, Mrs. Fuentes purchased a stereophonic phonograph from Firestone under a similar contract. The total cost of the stove and stereo was about $500.00, plus an additional finance charge of over $100.00. Under the conditional sales contracts, Firestone had retained title to the merchandise, but Mrs. Fuentes was entitled to possession of the property unless and until she defaulted on her installment payments.

Mrs. Fuentes made her installment payments for more than a year, but then, with only about $200.00 remaining to be paid, a dispute developed between Mrs. Fuentes and Firestone over servicing of the stove. Firestone instituted an action in small claims court for repossession of the stove and stereo claiming that Mrs. Fuentes has refused to make her remaining payments.

Simultaneous with the filing of the Firestone law suit to collect the balance due on the conditional sales contracts, and before Mrs. Fuentes had been served with a summons to answer the complaint, Firestone obtained a "writ of replevin" ordering a sheriff to seize the disputed goods at once.

Under the Florida law, Firestone had only to fill in the blanks on the appropriate form documents and submit them to the clerk of the small claims court, who then issued a "writ of replevin" directing the sheriff to seize the personal property without notice to Mrs. Fuentes.

Later the same day, a local deputy sheriff and an agent of Firestone went to Mrs. Fuentes' home and took away the stove and stereo.

Shortly thereafter, Mrs. Fuentes instituted a law suit in Florida federal district court challenging the constitutionality of the Florida law authorizing Firestone to seize the goods without notice or an opportunity to Mrs. Fuentes to defend her right to possession of the goods. She claimed the Florida law denied her "due process of law" under the 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution. Mrs. Fuentes lost her suit in the United States Federal District Court in Florida.

Three of the people in Pennsylvania had purchased goods, including a bed, a table, and other household goods, under installment sales contracts similar to the one signed by Mrs. Fuentes. The sellers had obtained "writs of replevin" claiming the alleged debtors had fallen behind in their installment payments.

One Pennsylvania victim of the surprise seizure of goods,

Rosa Washington, had more bizarre circumstances to relate to the Supreme Court.

She had been divorced from her husband, a local deputy sheriff, and was engaged in a dispute with him over the custody of their son. Her former husband, being familiar with the routine forms used in replevin process, had obtained a writ that ordered the seizure of the boy's clothes, furniture and toys.

The Pennsylvania victims of the "replevin" law were unsuccessful in their suit as were the Florida people. Both the Florida and Pennsylvania federal courts upheld the constitutionality of the state's statutes.

Unlike the Florida law, the Pennsylvania law did not require the persons instituting replevin proceedings to sue the alleged debtors. None of the Pennsylvania debtors were ever sued in any court by their alleged creditors.

Under Pennsylvania law there was no requirement that the creditor ever give the person for whom goods are seized an opportunity for a hearing on the merits of the creditor's claims to possession of the goods. The most that was required to be filed is an affidavit of the value of the property to be seized. If the person who loses the goods is ever to get a post-seizure hearing, he must initiate a law suit himself in Pennsylvania.

In both Pennsylvania and Florida, the party from whom the property is seized must post a counter-bond within three days after seizure to regain the possession of the property and assert his claims to retain possession of the property.

The pre-judgment "replevin" laws of Pennsylvania and Florida are descended from the common law of England, some six centuries old, but they now bear little resemblance to the common law "writ of replevin" Replevin at common law was a remedy allowed for return of specific goods wrongfully taken or "distrained" typically, after a landlord ("the distrainor") has seized goods from a tenant ("the distrainee") to satisfy a debt allegedly owed.

If the tenant instituted a replevin action and posted a bond, the landlord could be ordered to return the property at once, pending a final judgment in the underlying dispute as to the debt of the tenant to the landlord.

However, the pre-judgment replevin of goods at common law did not follow from an entirely ex-parte process of pleading by the distrained. The distrainor could always stop the action of replevin by claiming to be owner of the goods.

The U.S. Supreme Court said only common denominator between present day replevin statutes and common law replevin was the fact that the ancient action authorized the seizure property before final judgment.

USE IS COMMON These laws are today commonly used by secured creditors to seize goods allegedly wrongfully detained — not wrongfully taken — by debtors. At common law, a creditor claiming a debt against a debtor secured by personal property could not seize the personal property prior to judgment by invoking the state power.

The court said common law provided some kind of notice and opportunity to be heard by the party then in possession of goods, and an official must have at least made a summary determination of the relative rights of the disputing parties before stepping into dispute and taking the goods from one in possession of the goods.

The question the United States Supreme Court had to decide was whether the 14th Amendment requirement of procedural due process derived from former Supreme Court decisions required that the parties in this case be given an opportunity for a hearing before the state authorized its agents to seize goods on the application of alleged creditors.

The Court said an opportunity to be heard was required, holding the alleged debtors had neither adequate notice or an opportunity to defend their possession of the goods before seizure by state officers acting under state authority.

The court, in reviewing the history of the due process requirements of the 14th Amendment, noted that the purpose of these requirements is to insure fair play to each individual, and more particularly, to protect an individual's use and possession of property from arbitrary encroachment to minimize unfair or mistaken seizures of property a danger that is especially great when the state seizes the goods simply upon the application and for the benefit of another private party.

The basic theory of the court was that when a person has an opportunity to speak up in his own defense and when the state must listen to what he has to say, unfair and mistaken deprivations of property interests will be prevented. It said no better instrument has been devised by man for arriving at truth and giving a person in jeopardy of serious loss (in this case of property rights) notice of the case against him and opportunity to meet it.

The court said in these replevin cases, that if the right to notice and a hearing is to serve its full purpose, then, it must be granted at a time when deprivation of the possession of the property can be prevented. A later hearing may return him his property.

COURT REFUSES The court refused to accept the argument that the wrong done can be undone. The court found the Pennsylvania and Florida pre-judgment replevin laws flew in the face of this constitutional principal and refused to accept the argument that the posting of a bond by the party seeking to seize goods, without notice and an opportunity to be heard, was any substitute for a prior hearing to test the validity of the claims of the party seeking to seize property.

The court found that the minimal deterrent effect of a bond requirement is, in a practical sense, no substitute for an informed evaluation by a neutral state official, nor was it any replacement for the right to a prior hearing that is the truly effective safeguard against arbitrary deprivation of property rights.

The court found that the states had abdicated state control over replevin procedures when it allowed private parties, serving their own private advantage, to unilaterally invoke state power to seize goods from another person. No state official participated in the decision to seek the writ, review the basis of the claim to the writ or evaluate the need for immediate seizure without notice and an opportunity to defend possession.

Those defending the state law argued that the language of the conditional sales contracts in these cases waived the constitutional rights, where the contracts provided "in the event of default of any payment or payments, seller at its option may take back the merchandise." These words were found in relatively small type in printed forms, unaccompanied by any explanation clarifying their meaning to the persons purchasing goods under the contracts.

The court in its 4 to 3 decision (Justices Powell and Rehnquist did not participate), did not dictate to the states what type of notice and hearing were required, or even that a court hearing was required. The court merely held that a party must have the opportunity to be heard; before a state could seize goods, a final determination of the right to possession of the goods, the party in possession must have a notice and an opportunity to defend his possession. The nature and form of prior hearings required by the decision were left by the court to the legislatures of the states.

Decker said similar laws in Idaho, although not directly affected by the decision, will undoubtedly be questioned. Idaho's statutes are popularly known as "claim and delivery" laws. However, a similar law in California was struck down by the California Supreme Court on similar grounds to those used by the U.S. High Court to strike down the Florida and Pennsylvania laws.

IN CALIFORNIA He said a southern California Federal District Court had recently struck down this provision of the Uniform Commercial Code because it deprived debtors of possession of goods without "due process of law." Under it the creditor merely seized the property...the so-called "self help" remedy for creditors.

Decker said this remedy probably finds its most frequent application in automobile financing industry where the buyer who neglects to make his payments runs the risk of awakening one morning to find the creditor has secretly taken the car.

Decker said, although the repossession complained of in the California case were ostensibly private acts pursuant to contract, they were authorized by Section 9-503 of the Uniform Commercial Code in effect in California. Accordingly, he said the court found the repossession acts were made "under color of state law" and were found to be of sufficient state action to raise the "due process" constitutional question.

N. Viets drive back paratroops

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese paratroopers tried to probe Quang Tri city's walled citadel Saturday, but were driven back by Communist superbarbed wire and machine guns. The North Vietnamese stepped up their attacks around Hue, blowing up the largest Allied ammunition dump in the area.

Salon commanders said their troops had recaptured two-thirds of Quang Tri city, South Vietnam's northernmost provincial capital 432 miles north of Saigon. But they maintained the city would not be theirs until the Communists were routed from the 19th century citadel.

The U.S. command said the paratroopers in Quang Tri City got help from eight waves of B52 heavy bombers and 100 jet fighter-bombers that pounded Communist positions outside the city. The command said B52s had dropped a total of 9,075 tons of explosives on suspected Communist positions near Quang Tri city in the past 10 days.

In addition, the command said American planes flew 240 raids over North Vietnam Friday, concentrating their raids around Haiphong, North Vietnam's major port city. Pilots reported knocking out three bridges in the area, the command said.

In a delayed report, the command said three U.S. F4 Phantom jets went down over North Vietnam during the past week with all six crewmen listed as missing. Two of the Phantoms were shot over North Vietnam down by missile-firing MIG21s last Wednesday, and the other crashed last Monday from unknown causes.

A B52 en route to a combat mission over Vietnam crashed into the Pacific Ocean Saturday about 300 miles west of its base at Guam, the Air Force said, but all six crewmen bailed out and were spotted on life rafts by search planes.

Military spokesmen said the South Vietnamese reconnaissance unit that tried to scout the citadel in Quang Tri city made its way to the fortress' thick stone walls with no opposition, but then was spotted by North Vietnamese inside who forced it back with heavy gunfire.

Hanoi attitude said improving

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon's chief diplomatic strategist said Saturday it appeared Hanoi would take a new and more reasonable approach to negotiating an end to the Vietnam War when peace talks resume next Thursday.

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger told newsmen he expected Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's two top negotiators, would be in Paris for the talks and left open the possibility that he also would go to the French capital for secret negotiations.

Kissinger met with newsmen following a week-long review of the Vietnam situation with President Nixon at the Western White House. He said his chief deputy, Maj. Gen. Alexander Haig, had found during a fact-finding trip to South Vietnam last week that the communist offensive there had passed its peak and that the North Vietnamese do not now appear to have the capability to launch another such massive attack.

Kissinger said the period since President Nixon's Moscow summit had been one of intense diplomatic activity during which the United States had conveyed to Hanoi through direct and indirect contact that the time for serious negotiations was long overdue.

He said the United States was approaching the talks, which were broken off May 4th after North Vietnam launched a massive offensive in the south, with the idea of holding systematic discussions to find a just solution to the war.

He added: "We have some reason to believe that perhaps they will approach these negotiations in something like the same spirit, at least we have some reason to believe they have a new approach."

He said that while the U.S. side was prepared to discuss a comprehensive settlement of the Vietnam problem, the President thought the best approach would be to concentrate the negotiations on ending military hostilities and leave a political solution on the future of Vietnam to the North and South Vietnamese.

FULTON, Ky. (UPI)—The twin cities of Fulton, Ky., and South Fulton, Tenn., annually celebrate the Banana Festival with a giant banana pudding made to feed 10,000 persons. The festival celebrates the time trains stopped over in Fulton to ice down bananas being transported north before the days of refrigeration cars. The celebration this year is Aug. 17-19.

US airlines increase security precautions

By United Press International Major airlines Saturday began stepping up security precautions to comply with President Nixon's emergency order requiring strict anti-hijacking measures on all domestic commuter flights. The response to the President's order, issued Friday by the Federal Aviation Administration, ranged from "100 percent" security checks of all passengers and luggage at some airports to a good deal less than that at others.

Some carriers said all carry-on luggage would be screened and ticket agents warned passengers to expect delays; others said security would be tightened but declined to say how or when.

One spokesman for a major airline said he would like to comply with the President's order but said he wasn't sure what it meant or how to implement it if he did.

According to an FAA spokesman, the new rules state that all passengers must submit two pieces of identification and submit to body searches if warranted and that all carry-on luggage must be searched.

"In the long run you're going to see increased diligence in security by airlines but the White House is going to have to spell out what it means," said a spokesman for United Airlines.

No thaw due

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—AFL-CIO President George Meany came by rail Saturday for the Democratic National Convention and persistently brushed aside questions about organized labor's role in picking the party's nominee.

British break studied by Ulster Protestants

BELFAST (UPI)—A militant Protestant leader said Saturday Northern Ireland's Protestant majority will break Ulster's ties with Britain, if necessary, to preserve its British heritage and way of life.

The threat came as the death toll in three years of violence between Northern Ireland's Catholics and Protestant majority rose to 407.

Lawrence McKenna, 22, a Catholic shot from a passing car in Belfast's Lower Falls area Wednesday, died of his wounds Saturday. He was the 12th fatality since a cease-fire went into effect in Northern Ireland 12 days ago.

William Craig, leader of the militant Protestant Ulster Vanguard Movement, made the breakaway threat at a rally of 20,000 sympathizers in Motherwell, Scotland.

"We hope and pray it is possible the great British public will insist and that the government will accord us our rights, because we desire most earnestly to maintain the union," Craig said.

"But we must now say, and we mean it, that if this is not to be the case then we shall break with the union and we shall, through our own efforts, see that our British heritage and way of life is out of jeopardy," he said.

Craig said Britain's suspension of Ulster's parliament and imposition of direct rule March 24 had caused a breakdown of law and order requiring the Protestant majority to act. He said that unless Ulster regained its own parliament and government "we will take steps to establish a government with a constitution of our own making."

While Craig spoke in Scotland, Protestant militants in Belfast dismantled three newly-built street barricades but said another would stay up to create a sixth blockaded Protestant neighborhood.

Blast kills

BEIRUT (UPI)—Gassan Kanafani, a leader of the extremist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP), was assassinated Saturday when a powerful explosion blew his car to pieces.

His 14-year-old niece also was killed in the blast so powerful it split and partially melted Kanafani's handgun, scattered bits of metal and flesh over a wide area and left a foot deep hole in a concrete parking lot.

Ellsberg to trial Monday

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The long delayed trial of Daniel Ellsberg for theft of the Pentagon Papers gets underway Monday, more than a year after the publication of the documents dealing with the origins of the Vietnam War.

The 40-year-old former researcher for the Defense Department faces the possibility of a long prison term, as does codefendant Anthony J. Russo, if they are convicted by a jury of charges of espionage, theft of government property, and conspiracy.

The main points of the defense are expected to be that the 1940 espionage law under which they were indicted does not apply to their actions and that the removal of classified documents and disclosure to the news media is a common government practice.

Ellsberg had frankly admitted that he turned over sections of the secret study to the New York Times and other papers but, contrary to a widespread impression, the "leaking" of the Pentagon Papers is not an issue in the case.

The New York Times, which won a Pulitzer Prize this year for its handling of the documents in June, 1971, is not even mentioned in the indictment which deals only with Ellsberg's allegedly illegal removal and possession of them.

Sections of the papers, some of them still unpublished, are expected to be read to the jury by the prosecution in an attempt to show that their disclosing was or could be harmful to the national interests of the United States.

Pakistanis riot over language

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI)—Thousands of Pakistanis barricaded streets, ransacked stores and fought with police here Saturday after learning that the Sind provincial assembly had voted to make Sindhi the only official language in this area.

At least three persons were killed and more than 100 others injured as rioting continued on into the night.

President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto appealed for peace, and the government banned the public assembly of five or more persons throughout the city. Most of the rioters were Urdu-speaking Pakistanis, mainly refugees from India's Uttar Pradesh and Bihar states.

Woman supplies weapons

MOTHER of two children and divorcee, Mrs. Linda Vasquez, 26, said Saturday in Newark, Calif., she bought two handguns for "good friend" Michael Azmanoff a week before he and another Bulgarian refugee skyjacked a liner in California July 5. ## Solar shadow spreads around world Monday

By ROBERT M. COCKRUM
 United Press International
 A total eclipse of the sun will spread darkness across a narrow strip of Alaska and Canada Monday and cast its shadow over parts of the United States. The blackout will range from about 14 per cent in San Francisco to 90 per cent in Boston.

Scientists and amateur astrologers will be watching from land, sea and air as the moon's shadow blots out the sun. Experts warned that viewing should be done only indirectly to avoid permanent eye damage.

Starting at sunrise near Sakhalin Island north of Japan, the eclipse will travel eastward in a 113-mile-wide arc across the Sea of Okhotsk and the Peninsula of Kamchatka in eastern Siberia, the Bering Strait, northern Alaska and Canada, Hudson Bay and the Canadian Maritime Provinces to fade away before dusk in the North Atlantic at 5:03 p.m. EDT.

Although paths of totality cross the same location on earth once every 300 years as a rule, it will be the second total eclipse for the residents of Sheet Harbor, Nova Scotia, who also saw an eclipse on March 7, 1970.

On the East Coast of America, a partial eclipse will begin at 2:32 p.m. EDT, reach its height at 3:41 p.m. and end at 4:43 p.m. In San Francisco the maximum eclipse will be visible at 10:26 a.m. PDT.

Moving at 2,100 miles an hour, Monday's full eclipse will last longest—2 minutes and 36 seconds—in a remote region northwest of Hudson Bay and near the Arctic Circle.

Scientists will be searching for the planet Vulcan believed spotted between the sun and Mercury; checking on the shape of the sun's corona, the halo visible as the moon blocks out the body of the sun, which gives clues to the level and location of solar activity; looking for spicules—explosions of hot gases shot into space from the sun's boiling surface; and comparing the precise timing of the eclipse with their computations.

Mass slayer dies

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (UPI)—A security guard accused of the mass murder of six persons died Saturday, partially paralyzed and still unable to say anything that might explain the shooting spree he staged 17 days ago.

Edwin J. Grace, 33, died at the Cherry Hill Medical Center after his condition worsened in the early morning, Mrs. Elizabeth Bailey, assistant supervisor at the hospital said.

Doctors said the bullet from a self-inflicted wound still was lodged at the base of Grace's skull when he died. The wound left his right side paralyzed and prevented him from speaking.

Mind Your Money

Q—The Wig Corp. of America called me long-distance and told me of a wig sale. They said if the wig wasn't satisfactory it could be returned and the money refunded. I ordered one. The wig came c.o.d. and wasn't the color I ordered, so I mailed it back the next day.

They refused the wig and it was returned to me postage due. How can I get my money back? — Mrs. F.H.R., Green Ridge, Mo.

A—Wig Corp. of America's executive vice president, J.D. Apter, says they don't give refunds but will allow exchanges for unsatisfactory wigs: "if they are airmailed back within seven days of the date on the purchase invoice (the day the company sends them out) . . . in original condition."

That seems like an awfully short deadline for sending back a wig.

Apter says the wigs are only sold to professional beauty shops, barber shops and wig shops and "we try to give them a few days past-the deadline."

He also says that any potential customer who is not a professional hair stylist "should never buy a wig over the phone or through the mail."

The National Council of Better Business Bureaus says many complaints have been filed against Wig Corp. of America. WCA's Apter claims "These complaints are just a fraction of overall sales."

Elsewhere, the Post Office is shutting down a Philadelphia mail-order wig seller which tells potential customers that they "won a wig as a prize." Customers, the Post Office charges, end up paying as much as $16 for the wigs under the guise of "styling costs."

Q—We installed electric baseboard heaters. They scorched the draperies. Are they safe? Mrs. G.S., Morven, N.C.

A—The heaters are adjusted so they won't get hotter than 750 degrees. This is supposed to be safe but draperies should always be hung 4 to 6 inches above baseboard heat. The metal between the heater and carpeting gives protection. Electric baseboard heating is relatively inexpensive and simple to install but it has a high operating cost.

Q—I understand "sterilizing" half-and-half and whipping cream helps preserve the product but have you tasted the stuff? — Mrs. J.D.M., Pasadena, Calif.

A—I haven't tasted it, but some friends have. They say it's not bad when mixed with other ingredients in a recipe. The main advantage of "sterilized" dairy products is the fact you can keep them in a can on your shelf. You can store them for a long time.

If you can't get to the store very often or want some canned whipping cream on hand (versus the ersatz kind) to cover an emergency, then "sterilized" products are quite handy.

If you're sensitive to the taste don't use these products directly in coffee or on cereal.

Q—I've heard rumors that boil-in-bag foods develop harmful chemicals. — O.W.N., Worcester, Mass.

A—Food and Drug Administration officials say they have monitored the boil-in-bag products and have found no danger — either in the kits you buy to store food or in the regular packaged vegetables and entrees.

A while back there was a scare about "PCBs" (dangerous chemicals) found in cereals, macaroni and other dry packaged food products. The chemicals came from recycled paperboard packaging which has since been discontinued.

Muskie remains unscathed in candidate warfare

By STEVE GERSTEL

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—In the increasingly ugly warfare between Sens. George S. McGovern and Hubert H. Humphrey, Edmund S. Muskie strangely remains unscathed.

If Muskie has any chance at the Democratic presidential nomination, his above-the-battle posture could be the key.

With three days to go before the convention opens, the Maine senator has stayed aloof from the fratricidal feud. He speaks harshly of no one, and no one speaks harshly of him.

Muskie has about 200 delegate votes on the first ballot, far behind McGovern, Humphrey and Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama. Even a large share of the uncommitteds, a distinct possibility, would leave him trailing badly. Muskie—like all the other candidates—can do nothing about his campaign until and unless McGovern is stopped.

Analysis

The other candidates, including Muskie, informally have formed what Jack L. Chestnut, Humphrey's campaign manager, calls the "coalition majority." This coalition voted on the Credentials Committee to strip McGovern of 153 of his California delegates. The challenge was brought by California delegates pledged to Muskie, Humphrey, Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington and Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York. Yet, when the decision was announced, McGovern exploded in the harshest and angriest language he has yet used, at Humphrey and not the others. The California case, still simmering, became a McGovern-Humphrey brawl, complete with charges and countercharges. It was the culmination of increasing hostility between them.

Once fast friends and former neighbors, Humphrey and Mc-Govern no longer even speak to each other in the Senate chamber. As a result, Muskie has not been bloodied by the battle. To McGovern delegates, Humphrey is the villain. To Humphrey delegates, McGovern is the villain.

That could become a critical factor if McGovern cannot win the nomination and the national convention begins to look for a compromise candidate—a nominee who could, as best as possible under the circumstances, unite the party. McGovern delegates probably could never swallow their enmity and vote for Humphrey. They might be able to do so for Muskie.

Statehouse gardener pampers plants

Sunday, July 9, 1972 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 9

BY JANE DUNN
BOISE (UPI)—If you've happened to notice how beautiful the grounds around the Statehouse are this summer, it could be because the grounds foreman is trying some new things—like talking to the flowers.

"I know it sounds like insanity," says George Bousliman, "but I believe in it. It works. Years ago if you brought that up people would say you were crazy."

As a gardener who has been working for the state for 15 years, Bousliman says people have been experimenting with flowers, "using music and talking to them. I believe in gentleness with them—like feeding bedding plants with water gently. I do well that way."

He said plants respond to careful attention. "One year the best plants were on one side. I think the guy who planted them was doing some talking."

Not only are flowers sensitive, but so are the trees. "A lot of trees are like humans. They can be dying and you wouldn't know it," He said the Dutch elms are especially sensitive and must be sprayed again this year for Dutch elm beetle.

Bousliman and his 12-member grounds crew—several who are young people hired through the Department of Special Services, the Neighborhood Youth Program, Mainstream and the Public Employment Program (PEP)—are doing other things to make the Statehouse more attractive like planting 3,000 red, pink and white petunias, zinnias, marigolds, snapdragons and begonias at the street corners where people can enjoy them.

Not only must they look after the lawns, hedges, trees and flowers at the capitol, but they are responsible for the upkeep of a 10-square block area with the Capitol Mall, the armory near Fort Street and the governor's mansion. Five years ago Bousliman said, the two-square blocks of the Statehouse were their "only responsibility."

That takes a $60,000 yearly budget from the Department of Administrative Services appropriated to the building superintendent, according to Superintendent Thomas F. Payne.

"Administrative Services Director Robert Lenaghan is an admirer of the grounds and that helps in budget planning," Payne says.

Lenaghan commented although he is not a frustrated gardener, "I have a feeling for this building, that we are obligated to take care of it for our ancestors."

The special attention pays off. "The Statehouse is a showplace and we have to try to do extra good. We get a lot of compliments from people, tourists especially, and state officials," Bousliman said. "We even got a letter once from the state library thanking us for landscaping their building."

George likes the flowers the best, though, planning all through the winter for each spring planting. "I try to rotate the flowers like putting them on the traffic corners this year."

Next year we will use a different flower. It's like a woman at home. She doesn't like to look at the same drapes for 20 years."

The youngsters on the crew enjoy the work, even the weeding, he says, and that's because they are rotated from building to building and do different jobs.

"It doesn't get monotonous, that way and it makes a lot of difference. The kids have done exceptionally well this year."

He said, "I haven't found any who didn't like the job. If they like it, they like it. If they don't, they don't."

Fayne attributes the pleasure they get from the job as a "back-to-the-earth-approach. It's good for them."

There is one 18-year-old girl on the crew, the first girl to be hired in such a capacity, and who gets a lot of praise from her bosses.

"I think most women like gardening," Bousliman says, "and they are more patient than men—more patient. When we had one grouchy man working, the plants didn't do as good."

Whether it's using soil aid to cut down on irrigation time, intensive weeding or putting flowers at street corners for the benefit of passersby, they are doing something right to keep that showplace one of the city's main attractions.

Bousliman says he is asked for advice about gardening but says, "I'm like the old country doctor. I know a little of this and a little of that. But I don't know everything. I could garden a hundred years and I still wouldn't know everything."

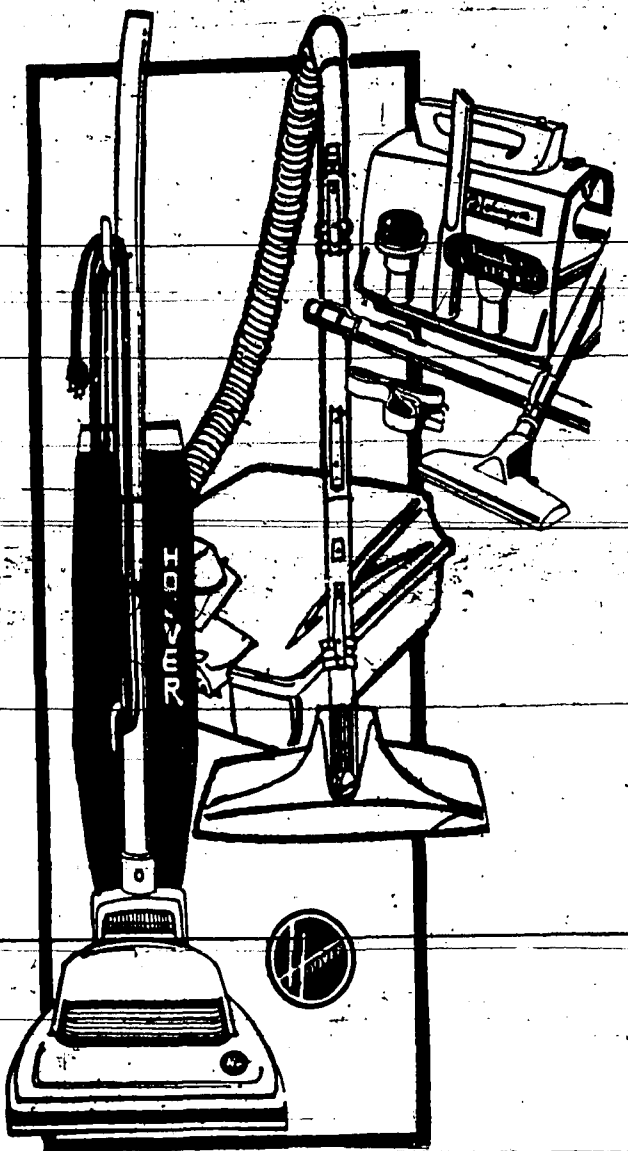

But he would never change jobs.

"I wish I'd started earlier than I did. I would never quit," he said.

Gem general fund deep in red

BOISE (UPI) — The state's general fund showed a blushing deficit of $2.4 million Friday for the 1971-72 fiscal year which ended June 30.

After days of anticipation, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus announced that preliminary figures showed there was a cash balance of $1.8 million in the general fund. He added, that encumbrances, outstanding bills and purchasing orders carried over to the present fiscal year totaled $4.2 million.

Andrus had earlier said that the carryover bills will have "a dramatic and traumatic impact on our state revenues" in the year ahead.

Friday, he said he would meet with legislative leaders in early August after July's revenues are at hand. He said at that time he would have enough information to project next year's deficit if any.

At that time, the governor said, he would determine if a special session of the legislature had to be called to raise revenues or cut spending.

"I'm not in favor of a tax increase," Andrus said. "And I don't think the people of the state are either."

Late Friday, a joint report by the treasurer's and auditor's offices verified the governor's $1.8 million cash figure.

A freeze was earlier put on the payment of state bills during June so the budget could be balanced at the end of the fiscal year.

requires that the general fund figures show up in the black at the end of the fiscal year.

Andrus—and the Republican-controlled legislature disagree on the projected revenues of the state and the lawmakers adopted a budget some $2 million higher than Andrus felt there was revenue to support.

The governor said Friday that his figures show that general fund revenues during the 1971-72 fiscal year came to $123.3 million while the legislature authorized $126.7 million in spending.

"If we don't have the money, we can't spend it," Andrus said.

He said without the revenue figures for July he could not project a deficit.

Board OK's money bids

SANDPOINT, Idaho (UPI) — A frustrated Idaho Board of Education Friday gave tentative approval to the fiscal 1973-74 general fund budget request for all agencies under its control, except for the four institutions of higher learning.

Board President M.T. Deaton, Pocatello, said he would arrange to meet with the heads of the four schools within the next two weeks. He added the meeting would seek to realign their respective budget requests after the state revenue picture has been clarified.

The four schools are the University of Idaho, Idaho State University, Boise State College and North Idaho College.

The board, faced with the uncertainty of a three per cent rollback in current funding, felt it was nearly impossible to project the schools' budgets.

Board members concluded their two-day session Friday afternoon aboard a private barge on Lake Pend Oreille.

Condie to seat on panel

HOLLISTER (UPI) — House Speaker William J. Lanting, R-Hollister, said Friday Preston Republican Rep. Angus Condie has been appointed to fill a vacancy on the Legislative Budget-Fiscal Committee.

Lanting said Condie would take the place vacated by Rep. Jenkin L. Palmer, R-Malad, who joined the State Tax Commission. Palmer was chairman of the budget-fiscal committee. Rep. William Roberts, R-Buhl, is now chairman.

Condie's appointment is effective immediately, Lanting said. He added he did not know when or if a vacancy on the appropriations committee — of which Palmer was chairman — would be filled.

Roberts is now chairman of the appropriations committee.

FB heads hear Gem officials

TWIN FALLS — Farm Bureau presidents from Magic Valley counties met here Friday for a briefing on current farm problems by state officials.

Dale Rockwood, Iona, Idaho, Farm Bureau president, and executive vice president Shepard Quate, Pocatello, conducted the district 3 meeting to report on current farm problems and Farm Bureau matters from the state and national levels.

Also participating were Bill Brown, marketing manager, Nyal Rydall, director of commodities, and Louis Tappan, research director of the legislative division. The meeting was at the Holiday Inn.

Rod Clifford, Pocatello, information officer, said new farm labor legislation was under discussion as was the Occupational Safety and Health Act as it pertains to the farm operator. Also attending was Bob Sexton, field representative of district 3.

Clifford said the meeting is a two-day event, designed to inform the area presidents on matters of national and state importance and to obtain views and suggestions from the county membership level for grass-root planning in the Farm Bureau organization. No policies were formulated in the briefing session.

Counties in the district include Twin Falls, Gooding, Cassia, Camas, Jerome, Minidoka, Lincoln and Blaine. District sessions are conducted semi-annually.

Only memories

For the most part, only the memories remain.

The hustle and bustle that was the gold and silver mining days in Sawtooth Valley is gone. So are Vienna, Sawtooth City and Eureka. Where hundreds of miners lived, fought, loved, worked and died — only the scars on the land remain.

There are, of course, a few deserted and tumbled down log cabins, a few trails, a few piles of rubbish here and there, a few cleared areas where once a community stood. But other than that it has all disappeared.

Even the old stage road which led from Sawtooth City to Eureka to Vienna, where a magnificent log hotel was located, and then over the mountains to Ketchum is now gone.

History buffs like Dr. George E. Brown and Ted Schiermeier — Twin Falls residents who have summer homes in that area — keep the legends alive. They tell again the stories of these storied communities.

There is the Sawtooth Cemetery — shared by Vienna and Sawtooth City — with well over 25 graves. There is the old bear trap — made by hand near Sawtooth City, and with a slaughter house nearby. The slaughter house is gone. The bear trap, constructed to keep the bears from destroying the domesticated animals, remains. There is the old assay cabin. There is the squat cabin which an unnamed trapper occupied near Eureka.

But more than that there is the quiet of the past.

Eureka on Alturas Creek is gone. Sawtooth City on Beaver Creek is gone. Vienna on Smiley Creek is gone.

Only the quiet and the dreams and those who sleep in the cemetery remain.

Damage suit filed in TF

TWIN FALLS — A $52,700 personal injury suit brought by Robert Constable as a result of an automobile accident has been filed in Fifth District Court.

Constable seeks damages from James Robert Samson, David and Sharon Gailbraith, also known as Sharon Milkweight and from John Doe, to be properly named when known.

Constable charges negligence on the part of Samson in driving a vehicle which struck Constable in a cross walk at Sixth Street and Second Avenue North, Twin Falls, March 8, 1972. The plaintiff charges he was severely injured and is entitled to $50,000 general damages plus $1,200 in lost wages and $1,500 in medical costs.

In another case, E.M. and Adah Rayborn are asking $10,000 general damages, $3,922.81 special damages and $1,000 medical expenses as the result of an accident Nov. 2, 1971, on Highway 74 at 2700 East in Twin Falls County. Named as defendant is Virginia Short, driver of a vehicle which collided with one operated by Rayborn.

A suit for $37,592.50 was filed by Ivan Maurice and Elaine Ann Crafton against Norman Vierstra as the result of an accident July 18, 1971, on Highway 30 immediately inside the Buhl City limits.

The plaintiffs seek $15,000 in loss of earnings and $20,000 for physical and mental suffering, plus medical costs. They charge negligent driving on the part of Henrietta Vierstra, minor daughter of the defendant.

Timber sale pacts stalled by order

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A temporary restraining order against new logging in identified roadless wilderness areas has forced the U.S. Forest Service to place an indefinite hold on the awarding of contracts in timber sales.

The court action is the result of a Sierra Club suit to stop all future logging in such areas. The order will hold until a hearing is held. The federal judge in Washington, D.C., who issued the restraining order has moved the hearing to San Francisco, Calif., and set the hearing for July 20.

The Forest Service will hold all advertised auctions, but contracts will not be awarded until the court decision has been rendered.

TF court decision said right

BOISE (UPI) — The State Supreme Court Friday affirmed a decision of Fifth District Court in Twin Falls that the court did not abuse its discretion in denying a Twin Falls woman alimony.

The appeal came from the Court of James M. Cunningham. The case involved Donald and Dahlia Glavin, who were married in 1946, and resided on a farm until 1970 when Mrs. Glavin sought a divorce.

The lower court granted the divorce, divided the community property and denied the wife's request for alimony.

Mrs. Glavin appealed the denial of alimony to the state's highest court.

Her plea was overruled in an opinion written by Chief Justice Henry F. McQuade.

Viet negotiator back to Paris

PARIS (UPI)—North Vietnam's chief negotiator is returning to Paris for next week's session of the Vietnam peace conference—the first in 10 weeks, a Hanoi official said Friday.

He said Xuan Thuy was currently in Peking on his way back to Paris. He would also pass through Moscow before arriving back at his post early next week, the official said.

Thuy left for home after President Nixon called off the weekly conference sessions May 4 and later ordered increased bombing and blockade of North Vietnam.

President Nixon said there was no point in going on with the weekly meetings at the time because he said, neither Hanoi nor the Viet Cong showed signs of wishing to negotiate seriously.

However in his June 29 news conference the President announced that the United States and South Vietnam would return to the conference table next Thursday and the Communist side had agreed to attend.

In reporting Thuy's imminent return, a Hanoi spokesman indicated there was no public change in the Communist position.

"The negotiations will be able to progress if the United States renounces their aggressive position, stop bombing and mining ports and abandon their neo-colonialist policy in South Vietnam and if they respond positively to the seven-point plan of the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam," the official said.

"On our side we will continue to show proof of a serious attitude and good will," he said.

Merry Pet

Linda Merry, DVM

Question: Do cats have hay fever? Our Siamese kitten has all the classic symptoms: sneezing, stuffy nose, runny eyes, but she is not sick (eats well, frisky, growing).

Can you give cats antihistamines?

Answer: Cats, dogs, guinea pigs, humans, and most of God's other creatures can be allergic. A stuffy nose looks about the same whether it's on the front end of a cat or a person, and you have described the other signs.

Allergies can be caused by such a myriad of things that it is often difficult or impossible to pinpoint the exact cause. Patch testing (as is done in humans) is seldom used in pets unless the allergy is extreme. When it is done and the allergen can be found, a series of desensitizing injections may be used.

These injections are effective about 50 per cent of the time and must be repeated yearly. That's even odds at best so it's more common to dispense with the testing and treat the symptoms with antihistamines and sometimes corticosteroids. We often find that allergies are seasonal and will vanish with the first hard freeze (only to reappear next spring).

I don't believe I'd just tag your kitten "allergic" though until she'd been checked. Pneumonitis and a few of the other respiratory viruses can masquerade quite well as "hay fever."

Question: My dog has an apparent intense itching and when not active will set and scratch vigorously for a prolonged period. He does this very frequently.

He is half Alaskan Malamute and half German Shepherd. He always goes with me when I ride my horse so gets quite hot in the summer and is constantly taking a dip in the nearest irrigation ditch. I have taken him to several veterinarians but have no answer to the cause of his excessive scratching.

I have never found a single flea on him either. Is it possible that he can be strongly allergic to various crops, weed seeds and sprays used in a farming area? He is also out in the fields a lot.

Answer: If your veterinarians have ruled out afflictions like liver disease, hormone imbalance, staphylococcal infection, and parasites, allergy moves to the top of the list.

Pollen from flowers, crops, weeds, dust, and sprays are all prime offenders. Ask your veterinarian about antihistamines. If the problem is allergic they should give the dog some relief.

Don't overlook that daily dip as another exposure to all sorts of malingering bacteria and fungi. Most irrigation ditches are notably short on pure Rocky Mountain spring water.

Why don't you try bathing him with a medicated shampoo when you get home from these excursions? And because daily dosing is drying, you'd better add a skin and coat conditioner to his food.

Allergies are itchy problems but once they're recognized they can usually be eased if not alleviated.

If you have a question about your pet, send it to The Merry Pet column, c/o Times-News, Box 548, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.

McClure talks in

Burley

BURLEY — James A. McClure, Republican candidate for U.S. Senator from Idaho, spoke in the Burley and Jerome-Minidoka area Thursday and Friday.

On Friday night, McClure spoke to a small group of East Jerome County residents at the Paul Werner home, near the Jerome-Minidoka County line. Thursday evening McClure spoke to his Mini-Cassia supporters at the Ponderosa Inn.

McClure answered questions about the high food prices and the welfare problems. He also spoke on the recent Social Security benefit boost, federal spending, Viet Nam, environment and education.

McClure was asked to clarify his voting record in Congress. He said he attended a "Vital meeting on zinc and other metal imports" in Europe last November and while he was absent from Congress nearly 10 percent of the total number of roll-call votes were recorded.

3 fires reported in area

BURLEY — Two fires in Twin Falls County near Hollister and another near the Utah-Idaho border burned Saturday with the larger one south of Burley still out of control late in the day.

Bureau of Land Management fire dispatch officials said range conditions are at the extreme level of the fire danger scale.

The fires near Hollister were reported at 1:30 p.m. and the first covered 60 acres before it was declared out by late afternoon. The second, which broke out in the same general area a bit later, covered 160 acres and was declared out about 5:30 p.m. One tanker crew remained at the scene for mop up.

At 3 p.m. the fire near Holbrook, 90 miles south and east of Burley near the Utah state line, was reported burning in sagebrush and juniper. It had covered about 300 acres by 5 p.m. and was still out of control. Two planes were sent to drop chemical retardant and four tanker crews were sent to the scene along with one shovel crew and one dozen crew.

Minidoka mayor adds new title

MINIDOKA — Minidoka's busy Mayor Dorothy Courtright, who is also secretary of the Minidoka County Zoning Board, has a new position — full-time "officer in charge" at the Minidoka Post Office.

Though not formally named to the postmaster's position yet, Mrs. Courtright has all the duties — and the worries — of the postmaster. The U.S. Postal Service's Board of Governors will make the formal appointment.

Mrs. Courtright succeeds Pearl Woods in the top spot — no new thing for "Mayor Dorothy," who has worked with Mrs. Woods as relief postmaster for the entire 23½ years of her tenure. Mrs. Courtright also worked at the post office for three years under the previous postmaster, Pearl Mason.

The new postal "boss" has served not only as the only distaff mayor of the city of Minidoka, but as the only mayor of either gender. The community, formerly termed a "village," became a city under state law in 1964 when other terminology was abolished.

Mrs. Courtright, then serving as chairman of the village board, was named mayor of the new "city" in 1964, serving continuously since that time.

Filer firm gets purchase offer

By MARJORIE LIERMAN
Times-News Writer

FILER — The Idaho Telephone Co., Homedale, has made an offer to purchase the Filer Mutual Telephone Co.

The Homedale company sent a letter to all subscribers and members of the Filer company offering to purchase the assets for $1 million in cash.

The Idaho Telephone Co. at Homedale is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Continental Telephone Co. of Bakersfield, Calif., the third largest telephone holding company in the nation.

The letter was the first indication of the offer to either officers or members of the Filer company, according to Merl Leonard, board member.

It included two reply cards, one addressed to the Filer officers asking for an election to be held before Aug. 18, and the other card to advise the Idaho Public Utilities Commission they had replied to the first card.

A preliminary response to the letter has been mailed to the 1,500 subscribers of the Filer Mutual Telephone Co., according to officials and a meeting is to be held in the near future to discuss the proposal and its effects with shareholders and interested persons.

The company at Filer serves Filer, Rogerson, Hollister and northern Nevada and lists over 500 members. Charles Cunningham is manager; C. L. Cedarholm, chairman; Ora Jones, vice chairman; Leonard, secretary-treasurer; Arnold Gier and Duane Ramseyer, directors.

Directors have stated their opposition to the purchase on the basis that the present mutual and non-profit structure presents advantages in lower cost with quality service for members and subscribers.

The directors said that in all cases where a small mutual independent telephone company has been absorbed by a larger organization, the rates have gone up without any commensurate improvement in services.

Change of ownership will also place regulation of rates under the jurisdiction of the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, directors said.

Ancient car

By MARJORIE LIERMAN
Times-News Writer

HOLLISTER — A 1911 Lozier car passing through Hollister and Berger Friday morning created a lot of interest on its way.

Mrs. Dick Parrott, who lives near Berger, said the ancient black open car passed her on Highway 93. It had an Illinois license and a man and woman as passenger.

The antique car later came through Hollister heading south. Mrs. "Dude" Henstock of the Henstock Store, said the car attracted lot of attention because the steering wheel was on the right hand side and because of the unusual noise the horn made.

Spectators said the car was going along at a good speed, presumably 45 or 50 miles per hour.

CofC meet planned

SHOSHONE — Chamber of commerce will meet at noon Tuesday at the Manhattan Cafe.

Fire chars two acres in Jerome

SHOSHONE — A range fire burned about two acres of land near Highway 93 a short distance north of the Perrine Bridge late Friday.

A three man crew controlled the fire before midnight, according to Michael Green, Bureau of Land Management information officer. The fire was reported about 10:45 p.m. Cause of the blaze, a quarter mile north of the bridge on the east side of the highway, was not determined.

The dinner will be under the direction of Mrs. R.K. Bendorf.

The parade will be presented in five divisions which will include organizational, riding groups, marching groups, old-time and commercial. Cash prizes and trophies will be presented winners in each of these divisions. A children's section will also be held.

Stock for the rodeo will be furnished from the Ralph Steven's rodeo string, Midvale, and by Wood's Ranch, Bliss.

Buckles or trophies will be presented in each rodeo event as well as pay-off money. The rodeo will feature a full schedule of events which will include bareback, saddlebronc, team roping, ribbon roping, wild cow race, bull riding, calf roping, cow milking and kids' calf-riding.

Burley band goes to Calgary event

BURLEY — Their ranks depleted by a near-tragedy, the Burley High School band and Stepperettes left Saturday for the Calgary Stampede.

The group departed about 6:30 a.m. for the Alberta, Canada, city, where they will march in a five mile long parade on Monday before a crowd predicted to number 1 million. On Wednesday, the band and marching unit will perform five musical selections during the Stampede program.

Two weeks ago, the band was reduced in numbers when a car plowed into its ranks during a practice session in preparation for the trip. About a score of members were injured, and several remained at home in addition to a few still hospitalized.

The group is travelling in three school buses. They stayed Saturday at Helena, Mont., and expect to reach Calgary late today.

On Friday, Jay Haskell of the Cassia National Bank presented Director Mike Chesley with a $3,600 check. It represented funds donated by individuals and organizations in Cassia and Minidoka counties following the accident. The drive was led by Sen. Robert Saxvik.

Earlier, band members earned $4,500 to finance the trip.

"I believe the group will make a great showing in Canada," Chesley said.

Band members who were not able to make the trip will receive special acknowledgement from the Calgary parade committee. Among them are Steven Woolstenhulme and Mike Brown, both patients at Cassia Memorial Hospital, and Debbie Flowers, a patient in the intensive care unit at Holy Cross Hospital in Salt Lake City.

The band will return to Burley late next week, traveling via Glacier and Yellowstone National parks.

Officers arrest 5 in Ketchum drug crackdown

Dixon and Claymore have been released on a reduced bond of $500 cash each. All the others are being held in the Blaine County Jail in lieu of $1,000 bond each.

Arraignments in Blaine County Magistrate Court for Dixon and Mr. and Mrs. Gerber have been continued until Monday in order that they may obtain attorneys.

Also set for Monday are arraignments for Meyers and Claymore.

According to Ketchum Police Chief Dennis Haynes the raids and arrests resulted from "continuing and intense" investigation through joint cooperation between the Ketchum Police Department and the office of Blaine County Prosecutor Stephen W. Boller.

Haynes said, "The raids over the last two days are only the beginning of a crackdown of drug abuse and the illegal growth of marijuana plants in Ketchum."

The department chief expressed concern over what he called the "continued and widespread" use of hallucinogenic drugs and the illegal growth, sale and consumption of marijuana.

Haynes said, "We hope the publicity of our department's recent raids, confiscations and arrests will be a deterrent to any future use of a controlled substance and the growth with intent to sell marijuana."

"Drugs are a problem in our community," Haynes said. "With leads and cooperation of several people with the Ketchum Police Department we are going to continue on an even greater basis to expose the residents of our area to that fact."

Shoshone club sponsors event

SHOSHONE — The Antique Festival Theatre, sponsored by the Shoshone Civic Club, will present a show at the Shoshone City Park on July 17.

The chamber of commerce will co-operate with the Civic Club for the event.

A free puppet show for children will be held at 4:30 p.m. and the main production, "Before The Flood" will begin at 8:30 p.m.

This is a comedy, a story of Noah and his family before the flood and his problems in getting his family and the animals all in the ark.

Tickets may be purchased from Mrs. Howard Hill, club president.

Proceeds will go to a community project, Mrs. Hill said. Twelve cast members will be performing, and facilities are solicited for the youths for overnight and breakfast. Anyone wishing to help may contact Mrs. Howard Adkins, housing chairman.

Mrs. Howard Johnson and Mrs. Kenneth Blackburn are chairmen of the dinner for the cast on Monday evening before the performance.

Shoshone board approves travel

SHOSHONE — School board members Friday night authorized the Shoshone High School coaching staff to attend a coaches clinic Aug. 7 through 11 in Sun Valley.

Attending will be Ed Sandy, Bill Closson and Dan Gillett. In other business, the board conducted interviews with two prospective teachers, but made no final decisions in filling the vacancies. The board plans to hire a part time sixth grade teacher and a remedial reading teacher for the elementary school.

Don Runberg and Ben Webb were named to represent the school board in a July 13 meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the Manhattan Cafe. Mayor Ellwood Werry asked the school board to send representation to a survey meeting held on a community wide basis. The survey was conducted a year ago covering community problems, including agricultural economy, business and industrial growth, education, employment, health and housing. Poverty, recreation, social problems, transportation and youth opportunities of the community are also surveyed.

The July 13 meeting has been called to evaluate the survey reports and discuss possible action.

Candidate campaigns in Gooding

GOODING — Cong. James McClure, R. Idaho, campaigning in Gooding County Friday for U.S. Senate nomination, said America's welfare system is obsolete and "growing like cancer."

McClure who hopes to be the Republican nominee for the Senate seat being vacated by Sen. Len B. Jordan, visited Gooding, Wendell and Hagerman. Accompanying him on the tour were, Vernon Ravenscroft, Tuttle and James Yost, seeking republican nominations as representative and senator in Idaho's state legislative District 23.

McClure said last year the United States spent $14.2 billion on welfare and the program has developed into a hodge podge of unrelated and often conflicting programs. Much of the money is wasted, he said.

The congressman said very little of the allocated money goes to help welfare recipients back on their feet and into the labor pool.

The present system, he said, must be abandoned in favor of a program which can provide absolute work requirements under which an able-bodied man risks loss of his benefits if he turns down any job offer.

Job training programs must be focused on skills in demand in the particular areas, he said.

Hagerman schedules Pioneer day July 22

HAGERMAN — A day full of events is scheduled for the annual Pioneer Day celebration to be held in Hagerman on July 22.

According to Bishop Floyd H. Marsh, general chairman, the queen's contest will be held at 9 a.m. and the parade at 11 a.m. A dinner will be served by the Hagerman Ward Relief Society in the air-conditioned cultural hall of the church directly across the street from the city park and rodeo arena. The rodeo will begin at 1:30 p.m. At 8 p.m. an evening's entertainment will be furnished by several groups of barber shop quartets from throughout Magic Valley and southern Idaho. There will be no charge for the evening event.

Committee chairmen were announced by Marsh at the meeting Thursday evening. Co-chairmen for the queen's contest are Blair and Barbara Hall, Bliss. Mrs. Hall announced entries are coming in for the contest and reported the candidates will be limited to eight this year.

Merthan Ellis was appointed parade chairman. He will be assisted by C.W. Choules and Jack Allen. Anyone wishing to enter the parade should contact one of these men prior to parade time. Ellis may be reached by calling 837-4823.

Linda Wood will be rodeo secretary with Rhonda Wood, Bliss, rodeo chairman.

A kids' animal scramble is planned again this year. The scramble, which will be under the direction of Ed Larson, will be held in two divisions for those children up to 7 years of age and for those from 8 through 12 years. Anyone wishing to donate animals may do so by contacting Larson.

Design of future

SPACE CRAFT of the future, this wingless rocket plane, went on display in Twin Falls Saturday at the Lynwood Shopping Center. ## Mets top L.A. to end skid

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Milner scored the decisive run on a wild pitch in the seventh inning and the New York Mets went on to score two insurance runs in the eighth Saturday to defeat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 4-1, and snap a three-game losing streak.

Milner scored on a wild pitch uncorked by Dodger relief pitcher Pete Mikkelsen and gave the Mets a 2-1 lead.

The Mets added two runs in the eighth as the Dodgers committed their third and fourth errors of the contest.

The Mets opened the scoring in the third when Duffy Dyer doubled, moved to third on an error and scored on a fielder's choice.

Harrelson qualifies

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (UPI) — Former major league baseball star Ken Harrelson was among those golfers Saturday who qualified for next week's British Open golf tournament.

Harrelson, who quit baseball last year to pursue a pro golf career, shot rounds of 68-70-138 at Gullane, which was only two strokes less than the top qualifier, South Africa's Tienie Britz. Britz led the way for the second year in a row.

The 27-year-old, who topped qualifiers at Hillside for last year's Open, took the $250 dollars with a 136 total at Gullane's par 71 course with rounds of 68-68.

He finished one shot ahead of Bruce Devlin, the 34-year-old Australian who has picked up $75,000 on the American circuit this season. Devlin's scores were 69-68.

At the other three qualifying tournaments, Australian Bob Shearer, Italy's Roberto Bernardini and Briton Andrew Brooks set the pace.

Shearer, a 24-year-old from Melbourne, shot 67-70 at the par 71 North Berwick "stretch" to edge Donald Swaelens of Belgium who carded 68-70 for 138.

Bernardini had a pair of 66's for 132 at Luffness' par 69 course while Brooks scored 67-65 at Gullane's No. 2 course, a par 70.

Hunter, who blanked California on two hits last Monday, was touched for only five hits by the Brewers while he stretched his record to 10-4 and posted his 18th career shutout.

N.Y. tips Twins on solo homer

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Bernie Allen's 11th, inning homer broke a scoreless deadlock as the New York Yankees grabbed a 1-0 victory from the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

Allen, a former Twin, was the first batter to face reliever and loser Wayne Granger after Bert Blyleven had dueling Mel Stottlemyre for 10 scoreless innings.

classie at Cherry Hill club.

Brewer, winner of the Masters tournament in 1967, came in with a 64-hole total of 205, eight under par. Lou Graham, Phil Rodgers and Bruce Crampton were three shots behind the leader at 208.

Dave Hill, co-leader with Graham after the second round, fired a two-over 73 and was deadlocked with Tommy Aaron at .09. First round leader Bunky Henry was bunched with Sam Adams, Bobby Mitchell and Bud Atlin at three-under par 210.

Defending Canadian Open champion Lee Trevino shot a one-under par 70 to put him at one-under, 212, for the tournament. George Knudson of Toronto paced the four remaining Canadians in the field with a 212 after three rounds.

Brewer, who was forced to withdraw from the Masters this year because of an ulcer ailment, finished with a three under 33 on the back nine after surviving a three bogey front nine with a par 35.

"I've been hitting the ball well lately," the somber-looking Brewer said. "I've been working on my putter quite a bit. I've taken the glove off the past three days and it's the first time I've ever shot without a glove."

Lanny Wadkins, of Winston-Salem, N.C., shot a 65

Saturday, equaling the course record set by Henry during Thursday's opening round. Wadkins said he "missed a lot of real makeable putts" in the round which he termed as "satisfactory."

"My long irons were real good," the rookie pro said. "I hit the ball real good today, real solid."

Henry, who came in with an even par 71, was four-under par for the first six holes until he ran into a double bogey on the par-four 7th. "That course is getting tougher each day," Henry said.

"I wonder where that 15-under is that everybody was saying was going to win the tournament," he added.

Raiders swap for 2 Saints

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders announced Saturday the acquisition of two New Orleans Saints, running back Dave Kopy and guard Hemi Proudhomme.

The exchange was made for an undisclosed future draft choice.

Kopy, 30, has played four years with the San Francisco Forty Niners, as well as with Detroit and Washington. Proudhomme, 30, has also played for Buffalo and Kansas City.

Out for year

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago White Sox pennant hopes received a severe jolt Saturday when it was learned that slugging third baseman Bill Melton would be lost for the season.

Melton, the American League's home run champion in 1971 who was 27 on Friday, will be operated on for a herniated disc next week according to club officials.

Melton, who had been sidelined June 23rd of this season, suffered an injury last January while working on his patio in his Gulfport, Miss. home. Melton was working on a ladder when he suddenly lost his balance and landed on his back.

Peterson anxious to start coaching

KERRVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Coach Bill Peterson, restless since last winter to start his rookie season as a professional coach, Thursday opens the Houston Oilers summer training camp.

"I am looking forward to it," the former Rice University coach said. "We are going to build a winner."

Peterson, who replaced the ousted Ed Hughes, said 36 rookies and 19 veterans would report for physicals Thursday and start the first of two-a-day practices Friday. The remaining veterans on the team which finished 4-9-1 in 1971 report July 18.

Peterson, 48, will be without his first round draft choice, defensive end Greg Sampson. The 6-5 12, 256 pound Stanford product signed Friday for between $75,000 and $100,000 and is training in Chicago for the College All-Star game.

Sophomore quarterbacks Dan Pastorini and Lynn Dickey will battle fifth-year man Charley Johnson for the starting role, and the receivers corps join the rookies this week at the Schreiner Institute. Peterson isn't worried about his starting quarterback.

"Finding a starting center and coming up with depth at offensive tackle appears to be our major problem areas," he said.

"Developing mental toughness and forgetting the past will be a big problem, but we feel that we have some excellent players on this team despite the question marks."

Peterson was unsure if offensive tackle Walt Suggs will give up his Conroe, Tex., construction business.

Richey, Borowsky gain net finals

BRETTON WOODS, N.H. (UPI) — Cliff Richey used his superior knowledge of clay courts Saturday to defeat fourth-seeded Arthur Ashe to move into the finals of the $25,000 Bretton Woods International tennis tournament.

Richey plays Sunday in the finals against Jeff Borowsky, whose effortless style, masked a campaign to defeat Bob Carmichael of Australia, 7-6, 6-4.

Richey, who also defeated top-seeded Rod Laver, bested Ashe 6-2, 6-4. The game was almost over when Ashe appeared to reach over the net for a volley. The umpire ruled it a legal game.

After the game, Richey was proud of his service in a primarily defensive game. "I didn't do a lot of crazy things," he said.

"I didn't attack spectacularly, but I played good defense. I thought I did well with my serve." Richey said his victory was primarily due with to his experience with taver.

The Mt. Washington play courts were used for the tournament, because the world championship players had been banned from playing from here.

"Arthur doesn't have the knack of playing on clay," Richey said. "I don't want you to say I am knocking him, but clay is not Arthur's best surface. I do think he is better on a faster surface."

"That's true," said Ashe. "I think I am better on grass, or indoors."

The emotional support of the crowd switched from Ashe to Richey who has been described by Ashe as one of the "fastest men in the game."

Indians edge Kansas City 2-1

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Ray Fosse singled home Graig Nettles and Alex Johnson scored on a throwing error by Amos Otis Saturday to give the Cleveland Indians a 2-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

With one out in the second, Nettles walked and raced to third on a single by Johnson. Fosse followed with a single to center scoring Nettles, and Johnson scored when Otis' throw to third went in to the Royals dugout.

N.Y. tips Twins on solo homer

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—Bernie Allen's 11th inning homer broke a scoreless deadlock as the New York Yankees grabbed a 1-0 victory from the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

Allen, a former Twin, was the first batter to face reliever and loser Wayne Granger after Bert Blyleven had dueling Mel Stottlemyre for 10 scoreless innings.

classic at Cherry Hill club. Brewer, winner of the Masters tournament in 1967, came in with a 54-hole total of 205, eight under par. Lou Graham, Phil Rogers and Bruce Crampton were three shots behind the leader at 208.

Dave Hill, co-leader with Graham after the second round, fired a two-over 73 and was deadlocked with Tommy Aaron at .09. First round leader Bunky Henry was bunched with Sam Adams, Bobby Mitchell and Bud Allin at three-under par 210.

Defending Canadian Open champion Lee Trevino shot a one-under par 70 to put him at one-under, 212, for the tournament. George Knudson of Toronto paced the four remaining Canadians in the field with a 212 after three rounds.

Brewer, who was forced to withdraw from the Masters this year because of an ulcer ailment, finished with a three under 33 on the back nine after surviving a three bogie front nine with a par 33.

"I've been hitting the ball well lately," the somber-looking Brewer said. "I've been working on my putter quite a bit. I've taken the glove off the past three days and it's the first time I've ever shot without a glove."

Lanny Wadkins, of Winston-Salem, N.C., shot a 65

Saturday, equalling the course record set by Henry during Thursday's opening round. Wadkins said he "missed a lot of real makeable putts" in the round which he termed as "satisfactory."

"My long irons were real good," the rookie pro said. "I hit the ball real good today, real solid."

Henry, who came in with an even par 71, was four-under par for the first six holes until he ran into a double bogey on the par-four 7th. "That course is getting tougher each day," Henry said.

"I wonder where that 15-under is that everybody was saying was going to win the tournament," he added.

Raiders swap for 2 Saints

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—The Oakland Raiders announced Saturday the acquisition of two New Orleans Saints running backs Dave Kopay and guard Heml Proudhomme.

The exchange was made for an undisclosed future draft choice.

Kopay, 30, has played four years with the San Francisco Forty Niners, as well as with Detroit and Washington. Proudhomme, 30, has also played for Buffalo and Kansas City.

Out for year

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago White Sox pennant hopes received a severe jolt Saturday when it was learned that slugging third baseman Bill Melton would be lost for the season.

Melton, the American League's home-run champion in 1971 who was 27 on Friday, will be operated on for a herniated disc next week according to club officials.

Melton, who had been sidelined June 23rd of this season, suffered an injury last January while working on his patio in his Gulfport, Miss. home. Melton was working on a ladder when he suddenly lost his balance and landed on his back.

Peterson anxious to start coaching

KERRVILLE, Tex. (UPI)—Coach Bill Peterson, restless since last winter to start his rookie season as a professional coach, Thursday opens the Houston Oilers summer training camp.

"I am looking forward to it," the former Rice University coach said. "We are going to build a winner."

Peterson, who replaced the ousted Ed Hughes, said 36 rookies and 19 veterans would report for physicals Thursday and start the first of two-a-day practices Friday. The remaining veterans on the team which finished 4-9-1 in 1971 report July 18.

Peterson, 48, will be without his first round draft choice, defensive end Greg Sampson. The 6-5 122, 256 pound Stanford product signed Friday for between $75,000 and $100,000 and is training in Chicago for the College All-Star game.

Sophomore-quarterbacks Dan Pastorini and Lynn Dickey will battle fifth-year man Charley Johnson for the starting role, and the receivers corps join the rookies this week at the Schreiner Institute. Peterson isn't worried about his starting quarterback.

"Finding a starting center and coming up with depth at offensive tackle appears to be our major problem areas," he said.

"Developing mental toughness and forgetting the past will be a big problem, but we feel that we have some excellent players on this team despite the question marks."

Peterson was unsure if offensive tackle Walt Suggs will give up his Conroe, Tex., construction business.

Richey, Borowsky gain net finals

BRETTON WOODS, N.H. (UPI)—Cliff Richey used his superior knowledge of clay courts Saturday to defeat fourth-seeded Arthur Ashe to move into the finals of the $25,000 Bretton Woods International tennis tournament.

Richey plays Sunday in the finals against Jeff Borowsky, whose effortless style, masked a campaign to defeat Bob Carmichael of Australia, 7-6, 6-4.

Richey, who also defeated top-seeded Rod Laver, bested Ashe 6-2, 6-4. The game was almost over when Ashe appeared to reach over the net for a volley. The umpire ruled it a legal game.

After the game, Richey was proud of his service in a primarily defensive game. "I didn't do a lot of crazy things," he said.

"I didn't attack spectacularly, but I played good defense. I thought I did well with my serve." Richey said his victory was primarily due to his experience with Laver.

The Mt. Washington play courts were used for the tournament, because the world championship players had been banned from playing from there.

"Arthur doesn't have the knack of playing on clay," Richey said. "I don't want you to say I am knocking him, but clay is not Arthur's best surface. I do think he is better on a faster surface."

"That's true," said Ashe. "I think I am better on grass, or indoors."

The emotional support of the crowd switched from Ashe to Richey who has been described by Ashe as one of the "fastest men in the game."

Indians edge Kansas City 2-1

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Ray Fosse singled home Graig Nettles and Alex Johnson scored on a throwing error by Amos-Otis Saturday to give the Cleveland Indians a 2-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

With one out in the second, Nettles walked and raced to third on a single by Johnson. Fosse followed with a single to center scoring Nettles and Johnson scored when Otis' throw to third went in to the Royals dugout.

Ryun wins 1,500 meters, Matson ousted

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—Jim Ryun won his Olympic berth by taking the 1,500 meter run in 3:41.5 at the U.S. Olympic Trials and Field Trials Saturday night, but world record holder Randy Matson failed to qualify in the shotput and probably is finished as an active competitor.

Matson finished fourth in the Trials final behind George Woods, Al Feuerbach and Brian Oldfield and thus failed to win a third consecutive Olympic berth.

Upset with himself following his surprising setback, the 27-year-old Pampa, Tex., strongman said he couldn't get fired up for the competition and "when you can't win it, it's time to quit and look on something else."

"I would have liked to go to the Olympics, but you have to be very lucky to win," Matson said. "I was lucky in 1968."

In Saturday's last final, Arnie Robinson won the long jump with a leap of 26-4 3/4. Randy Williams finished second at 26-4 and Preston Carrington was third, also at 26-4. Williams gained second because his next best jump was better than Carrington's—26-3 1/2 to 25-7 1/4.

Matson's failure to gain a trip to Munich was the biggest surprise of this year's Trials. He is the world record holder at 71-51-2 and also has the four longest throws ever.

Matson, a former Texas A&M star, became a world class shot putter in 1964 when he won the Olympic silver medal in Tokyo. From there, he went on to amass the longest throws in history in the event and capped it by winning the gold medal at Mexico City in 1968.

Coming into this year's trials, Matson worked hard perfecting his technique and said he felt confident of winning another Olympic berth. But the man who turned him back wound up being Oldfield, a flamboyant strongman who surprised everyone with a 68-9 3/4 throw in Friday's qualifying.

Oldfield, 27, a graduate of Middle Tennessee State, stands 6-5 and weighs 275.

Matson's series in the final went 63-4 3/4, 66-10 1/2, 67-5 3/4, 66-0, 63-11 1/4 and a final throw of 67-3 1/4, which was a little more than seven inches short of Oldfield's best.

While the first three were being congratulated, Matson walked quietly off the field. But before he could make it out of the stadium, he was grabbed by a television sportscaster for an interview.

While his winning time Saturday was well off his world record of 3:31.1, Ryun had little trouble winning once he grabbed the lead. Coming into the final 100 meters, he was a good 10 yards ahead of Wottle of Bowling Green State University and Wheeler, who seemed content to finish second and third and win Olympic berths.

World record holder Pat Matzdorf, seemingly recovered from a damaging heel injury that almost dashed his Olympic hopes, was among 15 high jumpers clearing the qualifying height of 16-10 3/4 earlier in the program.

Following Ryun's victory, AAU champ Chuck Smith won the 200-meter final in 20.4 with Larry Burton of Purdue second in 20.5 and Larry Black of North Carolina Central third in 20.6.

Smith, a former Occidental star, fell far short of the world record, but he had a full stride on Burton and Black at the wire.

Burton, the NCAA champ, proved a big surprise because this is his first year of competition in track. A split end on the Boilermaker football team, Burton tried track on the advice of a friend and participated in his first meet ever last Jan. 28.

Matzdorf, who took the world record to an almost unbelievable 7-6 1/4 a year ago in the U.S. vs. World All Stars meet at Berkeley, Calif., cleared the mandatory height on his second try.

Matzdorf had set the 1972 Olympics as his one big goal in life and seemed a cinch to win a berth for the Olympic Games until he suffered a bone chip in the heel earlier this year while spiking himself.

Pat kept on trying to come back and then gave up until a couple of weeks ago when he started to jump again. He cleared 7-2 3/4, fourth best in the world this year, and decided to give the trials a good try.

Others who cleared the mandatory qualifying height and advanced to the high jump final Sunday along with Matzdorf were Chris Dunn, Gene Stoner, Raymond Lisey, Ronnie Lee Jourdan, Tim Heikkila, Dwight Stones, Dennis Adams, Michael Bernard, Gene White, Rick Fletcher, Edmund Clarke, John Radetich, Jerry Culp and Rinaldo Brown, a 1968 Olympian.

Among those highly regarded who didn't advance were NCAA champ Tom Woods of Oregon State and Barry Schur of the Mid America Track Club.

Meanwhile, for the third time since the trials started, officials reinstated competitors whom they originally disqualified. First it was sprinter Ivory Crockett in a sprint heat, then it was Jere Van Dyk in a qualifying heat of the 1,500 and now it's Howell Michael in the semifinals of the 1,500.

Michael won the third semifinal heat of the metric mile Friday night in the good time of 3:43.2, but officials, after viewing video tape of the race, set the Marine down for impeding Reginald McAfee, who finished second. Michael was dropped to last with Duncan MacDonald moving up to second and Clifford West, the man Van Dyk interfered with Thursday, getting the third and final spot for Saturday's final.

However, the Olympic Rules Committee met again Saturday morning, viewed film of the race and then decided that Michael, who brushed elbows with McAfee on the final bend, was not guilty of an intentional foul.

Strangely, though, in the revised order of finish for the semifinal heat in question, they placed McAfee first, Michael second and MacDonald third. West remained fourth but that advanced him to the final anyway, making it a 12-man final.

field for the windup in which Jim Ryun and Dave Wottle are the big favorites.

Also advancing to the finals were fourth place finishers Joe Savage from the first heat and Witte Eastman of Hayward State from the second heat, thus setting up a more ideal 12-man field instead of the original format of a nine man final.

Hill Circus wins stakes

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI)—Hill Circus, a star in England as a 3-year-old, raced to her first American stakes victory Saturday as she captured the seventh running of the $64,000 Beverly Hills Handicap for fillies and mares on the turf at Hollywood Park.

The heavily favored Typecast faltered under top weight of 127 pounds and was edged out for second by Manta, the defending champion in the race.

Hill Circus, carrying 115 pounds, raced the 1 1/8 mile in the excellent time of 2:13 1/5 to win by 10 lengths under the handling of master jockey Bill Shoemaker. It was the 568th stakes victory for alltime riding champion Shoemaker.

Nielsen's, Royal advance to slowpitch meet semi-finals

Pre-tourney favored Nielsen's Van Lines of Boise and dark horse Royal Lounge of Twin Falls battled into the championship semi-finals of the Twin Falls slowpitch tournament Saturday.

The only two undefeated teams will meet in the opener when the tournament resumes play at 1 p.m. Sunday at Harmon Park. The winner gets the rest of the day off, advancing to the 8:15 p.m. finals while the loser of that one and four other teams battle to eliminate each other.

Nielsen's jumped heavily on Depot Grill of Twin Falls which played poor defensively throughout. The Boise crew scored four runs without an out to open the game and generally dominated. It wasn't until the seventh inning that Depot Grill came up with any kind of hitting but by then Boise had a 12-6 decision wrapped up.

In the other quarterfinal, Royal Lounge stunned league leading Coors-First Federal 11-10 using a six-run fifth inning to overcome an early deficit. In other games, Coors-First

Three tie for lead in tourney

HORSHAM, Pa. (UPI)—Jo Ann Prentice of Oneonta, Fla., sank six birdie putts Saturday to move into a tie with Sandra Haynie and Sandra Palmer with 142 totals after the second round in the George Washington Ladies Golf Classic.

Miss Prentice scored a three-under-par 35-35—70 for a share of the lead in the 54-hole match which concludes Sunday. First prize in the 1972 tournament is worth $4,500.

Miss Haynie, of Dallas, scored a 36-36—72, one under par, to go with her 70 from Friday. Miss Palmer, of Fort Worth, Tex., also has a two-day total of 70-72 after shooting a 35-37 the second day.

An eight-foot putt which hung on the lip of the cup, on the 18th green cost Miss Haynie a one-stroke lead in the tournament.

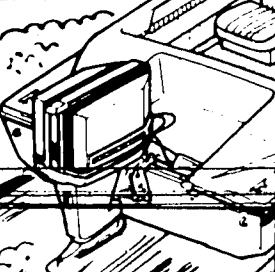

"I would have been a lot happier had that putt gone in the 18th cup," she said later. One stroke behind the leading trio were three more girls who were tied with totals of 143. They were Betsy Cullen of Tulsa with rounds of 70 and 73, Cathy Cornelius of Phoenix with a 74-69 total and Gerda Boykin of Conroe, Tex., with a total of 71-72.

Jane Blalock, the defending champion from Cape Cod, Mass., was alone in third place at 145 after rounds of 72 and 73. The lowest score in the second round was a five-under-par 68 by Kathy Ahern of Denton, Tex. She moved all the way up from a 78 Friday into a four-way tie at 146.

Kathy, the Ladies Professional Golf Association champion, scored six birdies and had three of them on the final three holes with putts of 5, 4 and 15 feet.

The second day of play at the Hidden Springs Country Club was interrupted for an hour by rain.

Coldest Spot Is Sunniest

"One out of every 11 single persons takes a spouse who has been previously married," reported that famous fact finder Louis T. Dublin.

PECULIARLY, the coldest place on earth year-round, the South Pole, is also that place which receives the most sunlight year-round.

A RECENT set of weight tables shows the average woman in her 20s weighs 186 pounds, in her 30s, 133 pounds, in her 40s, 140 pounds. That sound about right?

THAT BRIDE who insists her gentleman friend likewise wear a wedding band is apt to be the jealous type. Or so contends a student of matrimonial matters. The woman usually pretends to regard the double ring ceremony simply as a romantic gesture, he says. Actually, she wants that old boys ring to stand out as a warning to predatory females.

IF YOU weigh just about 40 times as much as your brain, sir, you're average.

IN ONE place or another around this world, each day of the week is said to be the Sabbath.

NO. 3 on the American Kennel Club's list of most popular dogs now is the beagle.

WHERE WERE you in 1939, if anywhere? Come on, you recall that was the year of the "Beer Barrel Polka," "I'll Never Smile Again" and "South of the Border." It was also the year the first paying passenger crossed the Atlantic by plane.

DEATH Again am asked which killed the more people in this country in the depths of the Great Depression, starvation or suicide.

Monkey stolen

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — When a burglar forced open a kitchen window and made off with $1,000 worth of jewelry and silverware from Mrs. Violet Larson's home, he also took Jocko, a 12-year-old brown and white male monkey.

Like most monkeys, Jocko has "very strong teeth and he'll bite," Mrs. Larson said Wednesday. He can be "very unfriendly" to strangers.

And a certain amount of unfriendliness may be inspired by his diet. For Jocko "hates bananas," Mrs. Larson said.

Flameless electric heat is today's answer to drafts and discomfort, dirt and inconvenience due to inefficient, outmoded heating methods. Take a vacation from winter heating problems by changing your home now to the comfort and cleanliness of carefree electric heat.

Choose from several practical and efficient types. You can get full information and planning assistance at your local Idaho Power office.

In this area, electric heating is an "off-peak" service from Idaho Power's system because our yearly peak occurs on a hot summer day, usually in July.

Electric heating does not require added generators—it uses generating capacity already in existence to meet summer demands for air conditioning and irrigation pumping.

Monkey 'home'

Vatican gives edict over rites

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The Vatican said Friday that Protestants and Orthodox can receive communion in Roman Catholic churches in cases of need.

They must first declare they share Catholic faith in the Eucharist, but they do not have to accept other Catholic beliefs such as the supremacy and infallibility of the Pope, a Vatican document said.

The Eucharist is the sacrament in which, Catholics believe, bread and wine is turned into the body and blood of Jesus and distributed among the faithful.

Until now non-Catholics have been allowed to receive communion only in the direst need—usually when they were on their deathbed and no minister of their own church was available.

Some liberal Catholic priests, however, have turned a blind eye to Vatican rulings by giving communion to all who asked for it.

From now on, individual bishops will be able to decide on a case-by-case basis which non-Catholics are to be admitted to communion.

Friday's document said non-Catholics who have no means of going to a church of their own can receive communion. This would include those who live in predominantly Catholic areas, or prisoners and people living under persecution, for example, the document said.

However, they can only be admitted as individuals, not as groups; and they must ask for communion of their own accord.

Cassia ram given for August sale

BURLEY — A Panama ram donated by the Rich Sheep Co. Burley, will be sold during the 57th annual National Ram Sale Aug. 23-24 in Salt Lake City.

Proceeds from the sale of the ram will help sponsor a trip to New York City next January in the Make It Yourself With Wool contest. The contest is held each year in conjunction with the annual convention of the National Wool Growers Association, set this year for Jan. 22-25 in Washington, D.C.

Other breeds among the 745 rams and ewes consigned for the sale include Suffolks, Hampshires, Suffolk Hampshire crossbreds, Columbias, Rambouillets, Rambouillet-Columbia crossbreds, Targhees and Finn-sheep.

The two-day sale will open Aug. 23 at the Utah State Fairgrounds at 6 p.m. with an all-breed stud ewe, registered ewe and stud ram sale. Registered rams and range rams will be sold on Aug. 24, beginning at 9 a.m.

Auctioneer will be Col. Dean Parker.

TF farm payments exceed $1 million

TWIN FALLS — About 1,500 farmers in Twin Falls County are scheduled to receive farm set-aside payments totaling over $1 million dollars in 1972.

Kent Kirk, county executive director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said nationwide about 750,000 cotton, feed grain and wheat producers were mailed $850 million in expedited preliminary payments in time for the checks to arrive in producers' hands on July 1.

Payments under the set-aside programs are made to farmers who agree to set aside part of their land from production in order to meet a national objective of balancing supply and demand in certain commodities. These payments help to offset the loss of returns from cropland that otherwise would be used for income-yielding production and on which the farmer is obliged to continue to pay taxes and apply needed conservation steps, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Payments to producers are limited to $55,000 per person for each of three crops, feed grain, wheat and cotton, under the Agricultural Act of 1970. Total 1972 farm set-aside program payment in Twin Falls County are expected to be about $1.5 million.

Feed grain producers in the nation ultimately will receive about $1.9 billion, cotton producers about $825 million, and wheat producers about $1 billion.

Preliminary payments to wheat producers are limited by law to 75 per cent of final payments. Final certificate payments will be made after Dec. 1. Feed grain and cotton farmers may or may not get a final payment, depending on market conditions.

Publicity funds OK due for USDA from Senate

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Barring a completely unexpected reversal in the Senate, Congress will raise the Agriculture Department's budget by upwards of $1 million for expanded efforts to explain the importance of a "healthy agriculture" to the nonfarming public.

The extra money was included in the Agriculture Department spending bill, approved recently by the House, for the fiscal year which began July 1.

The administration had requested $2.4 million for the department's office of information, unchanged for the last fiscal year. But the house voted to provide nearly $3.5 million.

Senate sources predicted today that all or nearly all the $1.1 million increase would be approved when Senators act on the appropriation bill soon.

The extra money was steered through the house by Rep. Jamie L. Whitten, D-Miss., chairman of the House Agricultural Subcommittee. Whitten is convinced that the 95 per cent of the American people who do not live on farms now care little about agriculture — and that this lack of understanding could lead to steps which would boomerang against both consumers and farmers.

Without a better understanding, a report produced under Whitten's guidance by the appropriations committee claimed, urban interests "might inadvertently take action relating to agriculture that is harmful to themselves and to the remaining few who produce food and fiber for the nation."

"There seems to be little understanding that a financially healthy agriculture is essential to the overall economy, and that agricultural return on investment has dropped drastically. Coupled with this is an equally serious misunderstanding of agriculture programs of soil, water and timber conservation," the report added.

The report did not specify what harmful moves the panel feared the nonfarming public might support. Whitten, however, has long been fearful that environmental enthusiasts will force abandonment of many chemicals and land-treatment techniques, leading to higher-cost farming and higher-cost food.

Before putting the extra $1 million into the farm spending bill, Whitten conferred with Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and the Agriculture Department information director, Claude W. Gifford. Gifford told the Congressmen the new funds could be channeled into a wide range of projects including print, broadcast and exhibit materials tailored specifically for specific urban groups including minorities and youth.

Other new steps may include a series of "pilot" programs testing new information methods to promote rural development, environment protection and nutrition.

One series of tests might be aimed at getting the farm story told effectively by building it into special programs for urban schoolchildren. This could involve anything from traveling exhibits to science projects and farm zoos, Gifford said in a memorandum.

The House Appropriations Committee, in another significant step, transferred the budget for Gifford's office of information into the fund for the office of the secretary of agriculture.

Green Thumb

George Abrams

Several readers have asked us why their healthy walnut trees set fruit which drops when about half an inch in size, instead of maturing.

First, consider age of trees. Young trees are not expected to bear many fruits until 8 or 10 years of age. With the Persian walnut (such as the Carpathian strain) sometimes the pollen (male element) is shed too late or too early or that the flowers which bear the pollen do not form at all, hence no nut set.

The lack of catkins (flowers) is often seen in young trees but as the tree matures both types of male and female flowers are produced in satisfactory quantity.

Suggestion: If your problem is that the male flowers mature before the pistils (female) are receptive, then you might try collecting from another friend some fresh catkins next spring. A branch of catkins can be held at room temperature (about 70 degrees), when the pollen starts to shed readily. It can be sifted through a fine screen or double thickness cheese cloth producing practically pure pollen. It can be stored in a home refrigerator at 32 to 36 degrees.

This pollen concentrate can be dispersed in a wind or by using a fan through your tree. The fan acts like wind or bees. Some nut growers handle the pollination problem by collecting the male catkins and tying them in bunches.

These are hung in the nut trees. Bees and wind will carry the pollen to female flowers and you should get a good fruit crop. Of course, it's too late to do anything now, but spring is the time to be thinking about this.

SAVE YOUR CORN: If raccoons have been feasting on your corn each year, try this hint: "Don't think I believe in witchcraft, but I use rope to keep out raccoons. Measure off a length of rope (about clothesline weight) large enough to surround your corn patch. Soak this rope in creosote wood preservative for two days. Use an old metal dispan or other large pan for this. Remove rope from creosote and let it dry until all liquid is evaporated.

"Then put metal stakes or wooden stakes about 18 inches high at intervals around your corn patch. String the creosoted rope on each stake so it's 12 to 15 inches off the ground and all around the patch. An old farmer told me this method and I've passed it on to others who swear it works for them too!"

CRAB APPLE BUTTER: Since you're bound to have a good crop of crabapples this fall, here's a good recipe for making crab-apple butter.

Two pounds of crab apple, 3 cups sugar, wash and core the fruit. Cover with water. Cover and simmer until fruit is soft. Rub through sieve. Add sugar.

Boil slowly until thick. Stir often while boiling. Pour in glasses and put layer of paraffin over top, making sure it goes to the sides all around the glass, to seal out air.

BEES, WASPS AND HORNETS: More people die each year from bee stings than from poisonous snake bites. A lot of these "so-called" bee stings are really not from bees, but from hornets, yellow jackets, polisters, as well as from bees.

Honeybees, bumblebees and yellow jackets are the main culprits, although stinging insects include wasps and hornets. In some people, a wasp sting can result in severe illness, especially if the victim has a history of hay fever, asthma or other allergy.

Hornets, polisters, and mud daubers build nests above ground. You see nests of mud daubers under eaves and porch roofs and behind shutters. They do not nest in trees or shrubbery. Yellow jackets usually build their nests in the ground and sometimes above ground.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: F. R. of King Hill: "We have several shrubs around our home and would like to start more by cuttings. Is it possible to start them this way now?"

You can start several shrubs by cuttings or "slips." These include such favorites as roses, blueberries, boxwood, olenader, weigela, dogwood, forsythia, privet, viburnum, deutzia, willow, euonymus, holly, barberry, azalea, lilac, to name a few.

All you do is take cuttings 4 to 6 inches long and insert them in a box of clean moist sand in a cold frame. The secret for rooting these hardwood cuttings is to keep them moist and to keep the humidity high around them. For rooting a few cuttings you can use a covered aquarium, a flower pot inside another larger one, or you can use a cold frame with a plastic sheet over it. Keep these in a shaded spot, such as on the north side of a building.

Many old timers like to use plain sand, although some use a mixture of one part sand and one part peatmoss, mixed together. Perlite and Vermiculite are sterile materials being used for rooting most plants.

The cuttings should be nice and plump, not from excessively vigorous shoots, or from thin weak growth. Make the cut with a sharp knife, close to a node or joint. Strip off leaves on lower half of cutting. You can use a rooting hormone available in garden stores. Just dip the base into the powder and insert the cutting into your favorite rooting material.

Cuttings can be placed close together. Water well after insertion and then cover with a plastic sheet to maintain humidity. NOTE: If cuttings are kept in full sun will be cooked. Check cuttings from time to time and after they have rooted, gradually remove the cover.

S. R. of Naples: "Here's a method I believe to be the nearest perfect to hold tomatoes in color and flavor by freezing. Simply pick when desired ripeness is attained, wash in cold water, filling plastic bags (I used bread wrappers) with as many as it either will hold or which you want for a sauce. To use, immediately upon removal hold under hot water and it will explode and simply peel off the skin with your fingers. Color and flavor is great!"

300 attend dual program

Unique program

RUPERT — Summertime is a busy time for nearly 300 youngsters attending the dual kindergarten-summer session at East Minico Junior High School.

Day-long activities are scheduled on several levels for the two groups of youngsters — 97 children of migrant families enrolled in the migrant school and 175 or more pre-schoolers attending the regular summer kindergarten session, sponsored by the Minidoka County School District.

Two veteran educators of the school district direct the two sessions. Boyd Earl, principal of Heyburn Elementary School, is in charge of the kindergarten, and Gene Snapp, a Rupert principal, directs the migrant classes.

The two sessions envision somewhat different roles in the educational process. The migrant school enrolls children of migrant families, most of whom have attended the first grade, but including some pre-schoolers, Snapp said.

"We try to help improve the youngsters' self-image in our classwork," he explained. Many of the migrant children move around the country continually, rarely attending the same school two years in a row. Their education is often scanty and lacks continuity. As a result, their self-esteem suffers severely."

Teachers seek to introduce the English alphabet first of all, as many of the youngsters cannot speak English with any ease. Simple reading games are to instill a love of reading and of learning, while playtime is to help the students, both migrants and kindergarten students, learn to get along together.

The kindergarten students, by and large, have few problems in their relations with their summertime guests, Snapp said. Little prejudice is felt by either group.

All migrant youngsters participate in a flag-raising ceremony every morning, with two students helping to raise the U.S. flag on the pole in front of the school. With the help of a record player, the students and their teachers then sing a patriotic song, such as "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

In the kindergarten session, preschoolers from throughout Minidoka County are given their first taste of schoolwork with traditional pre-reading lessons, accompanied by learning games and activities.

All youngsters are served a morning snack of juice, milk and a "cereal product," bread or a cookie, as prescribed by the federal Hot Lunch Program.

Federal funds pay for the meal, as long as it is balanced according to the standards. In previous years, the students were served juice and a cookie courtesy of the school district, this year, by adding the milk, Uncle Sam will pick up the tab.

At noon, the usual hot-lunch menu is served to all youngsters. Classes run from 8:30 a.m. to mid-afternoon.

School district buses run a network of routes throughout the country to bring the youngsters in and take them home at the end of the day.

Registration for both sessions is continuing to increase daily, with both the migrant classes and kindergarten running at near-record levels, according to the principals.

MRS. KATHY Nielson, a kindergarten teacher at Rupert, works with a youngster learning to make the figure 10, during a lesson taught by team leader Esther Whiting. Teachers work in teams in the unique kindergarten program to give youngsters their first taste of school work.

Terri Churchman, Schmidt say vows

SHOSHONE — Terri Ann Churchman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Churchman, Shoshone, became the bride of Robert F. Schmidt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schmidt, Nez Perce, June 24.

The double ring ceremony was solemnized at a Nuptial Mass celebrated at St. Peter's Catholic Church, Shoshone, with the Rev. Father Kevin McArdle officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of taupe d'soie with an overlay of embroidered silk organza, fitted bodice with an empire waistline and a full skirt falling into a chapel train.

The gown was finished with long sleeves and cuffs embroidered with rhinestones and seed pearls. Her veil was shoulder-length of nylon illusion held by a circlet of embroidered organza with rhinestones and pearls. The dress and veil were fashioned by Mrs. Jane Pagoga, Shoshone.

The bridal bouquet was of pink and white feathered carnations, centered with pink roses and trailing pink streamers. She wore a pearl necklace belonging to her late grandmother, Mrs. W.B. Churchman.

After the Mass, the bride presented her bouquet to the Virgin Mary while her three sisters sang.

Maid of honor was Stacie Churchman, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Leslie and Cathy Churchman, sisters of the bride.

Best man was Richard Jacob, Nez Perce, and ushers were Daniel Everett, Shoshone, and David Boss, Hollister.

All four boys were Dan Churchman, brother-of-the-bride, and Ted Pagoga. Ringbearer was David Churchman, the bride's brother, and the flower girl was Victoria Last, Jerome.

A reception was held at the Blue Lakes County Club, where Patricia Baumann attended the guest book and Ann Dreeman and Sue Neher attended the gift.

Wife eats own words

DETROIT (UPI)—Mrs. Gloria Judge, 24, testified in court that her husband beat her never thinking the day would come that she'd eat her words.

But no sooner had she shown her husband a court order enjoining him from further beatings than he forced her to eat the whole thing.

When she finished the last morsel of the 5-by-8 inch document, he beat her up again.

The husband, Clifton, 34, was fined $100 by a recorder's court judge after he pleaded guilty to assault and battery.

Hints

To keep picnic clothes anchored on a table, stitch a pocket across each corner and place a stone in each one.

Make use of the wheelbarrow when entertaining in the yard. Clean it out, line with foil and fill with ice. Then add bottled or canned drinks or fresh fruits or salads on plates. The huge ice tray will keep things cool and crisp.

"Pretty good wasn't it," he asked. "I would be down at five hearts."

"Brilliant, but probably unsuccessful," was our comment. We turned out to be right.

The bidding started the same way at the other table but West bid a cheery five hearts over South's four spades. North caught in the swing of things went right to five spades and West doubled when the bidding got back to him.

West also opened the ace of clubs but did not risk the underlead in hearts and only set five spades one trick, but did score 100 points instead of 50.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

We were watching our old friend the unlucky expert play in a team match when he picked up the West hand.

The bidding started out tamely but all of a sudden South jumped to four spades and he was faced with a real problem. Should he bid five hearts and risk the probable penalty or should he pass and try to beat four spades?

He decided on the latter course and passed as did North and East. Then he played his ace of clubs and positively beamed when he saw dummy hit the table with one heart and no ace of spades.

At trick two he carefully underled his ace-queen of hearts. East produced the jack and led back a club for our friend to ruff.

He still was sure of the king of trumps and gleefully chalked up 50 points on

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Two martinis and my Manny will give a perfect stranger the shirt off his back. I have seen him take off the necktie he was wearing and force it on a man just because he said it was pretty.

Manny has given away pens and pencils (not cheap ones either), cufflinks, tie tacks, sunglasses—you name it, he's given it away when he's pickled. Not only that, but Manny makes promises and plans with people he'd never make while he's sober. I hate to butt in and treat him like a child, but I don't like to see him act that way when I know he'll regret it in the morning.

DEAR WIFE: There's no help for the man who refuses to help himself. When Manny feels the pinch in his pocketbook, he'll start watching his martinis and his mouth.

DEAR ABBY: I am not a celebrity, but I have an unlisted telephone number because I value my privacy. I am not a snob. I've given my number to everyone whose calls I welcome.

Abby, I am amazed at the nerve (not to mention the idiocy) of people who resort to all sorts of devious methods to obtain someone's private telephone number, and then call him up to ask him a favor! Don't they know they have alienated that person right off the bat?

Please print this to let people know that if they are not given a person's unlisted telephone number, they should accept the obvious.

UNLISTED IN L. A.

DEAR UNLISTED: Amen.

DEAR ABBY: After three children and six grandchildren we find it necessary to get married. I have just learned that when I die, the woman with whom I have lived for many, many years will not be able to draw Social Security because she has never worked, and Indiana doesn't recognize common law marriages.

We are not yet old enough for Social Security, but we're close to it. Is there a state where we can go to get married quietly?

IN A PICKLE IN INDIANA

DEAR IN: For current and authoritative information, consult an Indiana lawyer, or an Indiana clergyman.

DEAR ABBY: I travel for a living, and therefore eat out a lot. Many is the time I've seen waitresses run their legs off trying to give good service, and when the customer leaves he leaves the tip under the coffee saucer or somewhere on the table. Most people don't realize that the table is usually cleared by a bus boy, or another waitress, and the one who earned the tip never sees it.

So please be a pal, Abby, and tell people not to leave tips on tables, but to give it to the one who earned it.

PRACTICE WHAT I PREACH

DEAR PRACTICE: Thanks for the tip.

Fancy That

By Norma Herzinger

TWIN FALLS—Until very recently I thought avocados were just for guacamole.

But a recent release for the California Avocado Advisory Board tells of avocado beauty aids that can easily be made at home.

As an introduction into the world of homemade beauty aids the board is introducing "The Fresh Avocado Beauty Book" which includes shampoos, masques, astringents, hair conditioners, moisturizing skin creams and cleaners.

Readers interested in what mother nature has to offer in the world of beauty might like to try their hands whipping up special formulas taken from the book.

They sound a bit messy, but the results could be rewarding.

Try this Avocado Facial Masque.

Mash a quarter of a ripe peeled avocado to a smooth cream (use a fork, blender or sieve, adding a little water if desired, to create a luxurious smooth cream.)

Using fingers, smooth the rich avocado cream all over the face and neck.

Lie down and relax for approximately 15 minutes while the avocado's 11 vitamins and 17 minerals revitalize your complexion.

Rinse with tepid water. For a refreshing finale, pat face sparkling fresh with Lemon Astringent. It's just pure strained juice from one-half lemon! Stored in the refrigerator it makes skin feel extra tingly clean when used icy cold.

Next try exotic avocado's natural beauty treatment for locks.

AVOCADO HAIR CONDITIONER

Just blend until smooth one-half a peeled avocado and a little water. (If you'd like, use a blender or sieve to help create a creamy mixture.)

Work the vitamin-rich cream conditioner into the scalp and damaged ends of hair. Then, with wide toothed comb, comb through hair so that every strand becomes silkened with fruit oil.

After 10 minutes, rinse with clear water. The avocado dissolves quickly in water. Your hair will be clean, conditioned and luxuriously glossed.

Some already-made, ordinary cosmetics can be enriched to extraordinary levels when combined with fresh ingredients at home, according to the book. One such example is this creamy moisture-giving mix.

EMERALD NIGHT CREAM
To make this rich, jewel-colored cream, work a bit of avocado, about the size of a strawberry, to a buttery consistency in the palm of your hand. Next, take an equal amount of an already prepared moisturizing cream and blend it with the creamed avocado.

Apply this super, vitamin-enriched moisturizing night cream to face and neck areas, massaging it in gently with fingertips or with an avocado pit. Remove cream after 20 minutes, or if desired, let its richness feed your skin all night.

So as not to waste one bit of the avocado, save its peel and use it for smoothing rough skin.

ROUGH SKIN SMOOTHER
Scrape the inside of the avocado peel clean of any meat. It will feel slightly abrasive and oily to the touch. Cup the peel over heels and elbows wherever skin is rough and rub until silky-smooth.

The book containing more homemade beauty tips is available in the produce department of most food markets.

Book Review

By ELAINE NESBITT
Twin Falls Public Library
TWIN FALLS — Richard Harris is a would-be novelist who works for a foundation in B.J. Chute's "The Story of a Small Life."

His job is to help people who live on the decaying streets of New York. How many times does he wish he could just leave his job, and surrender the responsibility to Father Bailey. He wishes to be free of Mig, who's "hard and sharp"—a boy of 17, sustaining himself by living just outside the law and with a little help from the foundation and Father Bailey. "He, Mig, knew exactly what to do—buy her a bottle of cheap wine and take her back to her own doorway to drink it. He slipped two neat fingers inside the purse and felt folding money."

Anna loved Mig with the blind faithfulness of a little animal for an incomprehensible master. "Doggedly, he propped her up. He left once more and went to stand in the street, looking up and down and praying in a rage for some kind of a miracle to happen, for Anna's Jesus, Mary and Joseph to be of some use."

"He carried her as far as the glass door. There were lights behind it, and people coming and going, and suddenly, reaching out from somewhere, there were a great many hands."

The small life never flowers—it is the symbol of Mig and Anna's birthright of withered potential and even of Richard Harris himself.

This is a beautiful book that eschews the current clichés of realism, violence and sexuality. I recommend it to you.

Grandma, the moonshiner

MOSCOW (UPI)—What's in the milk jug, grandma? Why, officer, that's just a little something I brewed up for grandpa's funeral feast.

Nice old ladies like Anna Mikhailovna Sapryshina—alias "Grannie Furundichikha"—in the home-made whiskey trade—used to disarm snooping policemen with lines like that. But no more, because the heat is on.

The law and the press are out to break up one of Russia's oldest cottage industries—the home distilleries that contribute mightily to the national problem of drunkenness.

Official press reports say the raiders are ransacking many a rustic kitchen and smashing many a crock of bathtub vodka or the Russian white lightning

"Old women just aren't that harmless, although they do not drink much moonshine themselves," said Kaluga district party chief Pyotr Silayev in a current newspaper report about distillery raids.

"Statistics show that the majority of defendants on trial for home-brewing in our district were old-age pensioners," and mostly women.

"There are men engaged in moonshining," the full report in Tuesday's issue of Sovetskaya Rossiya newspaper said. "But men mostly just drink the stuff, they don't make it."

Grandmother—"Babushka"—

is a revered institution in Russian life, part folk heroine and part household sage who raises millions of Soviet children while mom and dad work.

Alas, says Sovetskaya Rossiya, its reporter joined a series of recent raids in the Moscow region and found that the hand behind the still all too often was grandma's.

One rush brought the raiders into the kitchen of Anna Sapryshina, alias "Grannie Furundichikha," in a village near the town of Kaluga.

"What's the matter, sons," said Anna as fire inspector Yur Novikov poked his nose into a milk can and sniffed white lightning.

"Well, dear sons, I'm getting ready to observe my son's funeral feast and that's all I have," the newspaper quoted Anna as saying. "You know, I only have a small pension so please don't take my name."

Investigation showed Anna was chief tavern-keeper to the construction gang at work across the street from her cottage.

The newspaper detailed other cases of grandmothers caught at their capers and said the "funeral feast" story was a favorite dodge.

The still-smashing campaign is part of a new nationwide crackdown against drunkenness. The new laws make moonshining the worst offense of all, ordering up to three years imprisonment for a first offender who sells his product and up to five years for a second offender.

Correct use of pesticides

SHOSHONE — "The season for insects is here and with it comes the annual outdoor use of pesticides," Mrs. Jean Annett, county home agent, said Friday.

She suggests storing pesticides in their original containers, out of reach of children and pets, also away from food.

"Use a pesticide only when there is no danger of drift to other areas. Keep your nose out of the way of pesticide spray or dust and avoid prolonged inhalation of a pesticide," she points out.

Miss Sellers, Wilcox wed

GLENN'S FERRY — Victoria Glenn Sellers and Lt. Stephen Fredrick Wilcox were married in rites June 24 at the Veteran's Memorial Hall in Glenn's Ferry.

The ceremony was performed before the altar, cross and candelabra from the Glenn's Ferry Methodist Church by Rev. Edward Bawden.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Sellers, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mayo Wilcox, all of Glenn's Ferry.

The hall was decorated with baskets of pink and lilac gladioli, carnations, pom poms and baby's breath. Lavender candles were used in the candelabra.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of Chantilly lace with a fitted waistline, full hoop skirt with a train, long sleeves with ruffled cuffs and a low cut neckline.

She wore a long veil over her train with a mantilla shoulder length veil over it.

Mrs. Karma Faye Pierce, Mountain Home, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Richard Starkey, Seattle, Wash.; Roxane Lewis, Malad, and Dana Tisana Seller, sister of the bride.

Set cleanliness rules for summer

JEROME — Summertime and the livin' is easy — the meals more casual.

But the rules and regulations for cleanliness in food preparation and storage must be more stringently enforced because warm weather and picnics, camping and cookouts are the potential ingredients for growth of stomachache bacteria, according to Sharon LaFray, Jerome County extension home economist.

Food poisoning occurs much more frequently in the summer months. The bacteria that cause food poisoning (some 1,500 varieties) are everywhere — in the air, on people, pets, plants and all non-sterile objects. It's an interesting fact that under favorable conditions, bacteria can double their population every 15 minutes, she said.

The symptoms of stomachache, cramps, vomiting, or diarrhea can last from a few hours to a few days. Often the cause is attributed to things other than bacteria invasion via food because the bacteria are not readily detected.

The food may look, smell and taste delicious and still be the culprit carrier. It is the multiplying of the microbe that creates illness and cleanliness that inhibits growth.

Bacteria spread can be controlled by (1) scrupulous cleanliness on the part of food handlers; (2) good sanitation in the kitchen; (3) not letting food stand at room temperature for long periods or be on the left over list for long, and (4) attention to the temperature to which food is cooked and stored.

Making habits of cleanliness measures will make you a better, safer cook. Heading the list is hand washing, according to the economist.

Wash hands with soap and water before handling food — and again, if you go away and come back to your food preparations — especially after using the toilet.

It is important to wash after handling raw meat, poultry or eggs, before working with other food. And of course, everyone should protect himself by washing before sitting down to a meal — or grabbing a snack on the run.

In the common-sense category, food should never be allowed to come in contact with open sores or abrasions. And pet dishes, aquariums and what-have-you should not be washed in the kitchen sink.

If the kitchen sink is necessary, it and adjacent areas should be carefully scoured before making a meal or snack. Flies, notorious contamination carriers, must be "dome-in."

It's a good idea to color-key sponges for specific uses, such as, a counter wiping, dishwashing. And do toss them into the washing machine often, she said.

Welfare leader named 11th LDS church chief

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Harold B. Lee, 73, a former city councilman and the first director of the LDS welfare program in the depression-ridden 30s, today was named 11th president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The Council of the Twelve Apostles, which began fasting and praying at 8 a.m., deliberated more than three hours before placing the mantle of "prophet seer and revelator" upon Lee to succeed Joseph Fielding Smith, 95, who was buried Thursday.

Lee, in 1941 the youngest man in modern church history to be named as an apostle, will be assisted by N. Eldon Tanner, 74, as first counselor in the First Presidency and Marion G. Romney, 74, as second counselor.

Although initially known for his success in the church's welfare program, which he directed, Lee has been the first counselor in the First Presidency and President of the Council of the Twelve Apostles.

He became first counselor to Joseph Fielding Smith on Jan. 23, 1970, and from that time until the present has been one of the church's most articulate spokesmen.

A Republican while serving on the city commission, Lee's political future was considered so promising before he turned in to active church work that he was considered as a GOP gubernatorial candidate in 1936.

Lee, described as a "religious conservative" by LDS commentators, has called for respect for law and order and leadership.

"A moment's reflection," he said in April at a church general conference, "will help you to see that when one sets himself up to make his own rules and presumes to know no law but his own, he is but echoing the plan of Satan, who sought to ascend God's throne, as it were, in being the judge of all that rules mankind, and the world."

Lee said Thursday, during the Smith funeral, the Lord had inspired him with confidence.

"I have received a special witness these past few days," he said. "I have no fear. I knew my wishes—but I wanted to know what the Lord wanted. 'I will attempt to follow in the footsteps of this beloved leader of our church.'"

Born on March 28, 1899, in Clifton, Idaho, Lee came into national prominence in the 1930s as managing director of the unique welfare program designed to take Mormons off government relief rolls.

He had been appointed to the Salt Lake City Commission Dec. 1, 1932, and won re-election the following year after serving as a missionary in the Western States from 1920 to 1922.

When authorities of the Mormon faith decided, upon "divine inspiration," to set up the welfare program, he was asked to resign from the commission in order to devote full-time to the welfare program and to remove any taint of politics from its administration.

Lee took the infant welfare system on Jan. 1, 1937, and built it into a remarkable success through the contribution of time and funds by more prosperous Mormons to aid "unfortunate" members of the LDS faith.

He directed, among other things, operation of "Bishop's Warehouses" in all parts of the Mormon world where huge quantities of all commodities were stored for use when needed by system or in the face of natural disaster.

On April 8, 1941, Lee was named as a member of the Council of the Twelve Apostles to succeed Reed Smoot, a former U.S. senator and an apostle for 40 years who had died two months earlier.

At that time Lee, at 42, was the youngest man in modern church history to achieve so high a post. Even though the youngest member of the council, his youth at that time made eventual ascension to the presidency likely.

Lee attended the Onella Stake Academy, 1912-1916, and Albion State Normal College, which later was merged with the Idaho State University, receiving a teacher's certificate in 1917.

He became principal of an Idaho school at the age of 17, and after further study at the University of Utah, he became a principal in the Granite School District in Salt Lake City, 1923-28.

Lee turned to business in 1928 to become Intermountain manager for the Foundation Press, Inc., but as stake president he became interested in welfare work.

Prior to his call to the directorship of the welfare system, Lee caught the eye of church authorities through his organization of a bishop's storehouse early in 1932 to care for the needy and unemployed of a bishop's storehouse early in 1932 to care for the needy and unemployed of the church within his stake.

Lee, one of six children who grew up on the family farm, married Fern Lucinda Tanner in 1923. She died in 1962. He married Freda Joan Jensen the following year.

He has one living daughter. Another daughter died in 1966. The Lees have 10 grandchildren.

LDS President Lee

Marion Romney new LDS head

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Marion G. Romney, 74, the new second counselor in the First Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has been associated with the church's unique welfare plan almost since its inception.

Romney, born in Colonia Juarez, Mexico, of American parents, was named assistant managing director of the church-wide program to assist the man who is now the president of the church, Harold B. Lee, in June of 1941.

From June of 1959 until May of 1963, he served as general chairman, and is now an adviser to the welfare committee.

Romney attended schools in Mexico until 1912 when revolutionary activities forced his parents, George S. and Artemesia Redd Romney, to flee the country, leaving their property behind.

A few years later, his father was made president of Ricks

Junior College in Rexburg, Idaho, and Romney graduated from the school in 1920. He graduated from the University of Utah with a bachelor of science degree and took a law degree there in 1926.

Romney also served a term in the state legislature from 1935-1936.

He filled a mission for the church in Australia 1920-23, and became an Assistant to the Council of the Twelve in 1941.

Romney became an apostle of the church in October of 1951 where his duties were to supervise the missionary program in the Asian Missions.

He is married to the former Ida Jensen and the father of two sons, Richard J. and George J. Romney.

He is related to Housing and Urban Development Secretary George Romney and a second cousin to Utah Attorney General Vernon B. Romney.

Counselor served 3 presidents

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — N. Eldon Tanner, the new first counselor in the LDS Church, marks service today under his third president in the First Presidency.

Tanner, 74, a former industrial and political leader in West Canada, served as a counselor to the late Presidents David O. McKay and Joseph Fielding Smith.

Born in Salt Lake City on May 9, 1898, Tanner's family moved to Alberta, Canada, when he was three years old. He presided over the Calgary stake of the church from 1953 until 1960 when he was made an officer of the church in Salt Lake City.

He served as speaker of the Alberta Legislature and was appointed minister of lands and mines in the provincial cabinet.

Tanner also served as provincial commissioner of the Boy Scouts Association in 1948. From 1953-58, he was president of Merrill Petroleum, Ltd., and a director of the Toronto Dominion Bank of Canada. He later became president of the Trans-Canada Pipe Line, from which he retired in 1958.

Tanner became an American citizen on May 2, 1968. He is married and the father of five daughters.

POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Whenever shirts with a button-down collar are too tight in the chest or the sleeves are too short, I make dummies out of them. I cut the collar out with extra material to the shoulders and down as far as needed in the front and back. I hem the edges and wear these under sweaters.—KRISSEY

DEAR POLLY—If your boots are too tight around the upper part of your leg and hard to zip, slip a playing card between your skin and the zipper. Work the card up as you zip and you will not get pinched by the zipper.—CHARLOTTE

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—My pointer concerns "tacking" those baby quilts some of you may be making. After marking four inch squares with a pencil I set my sewing machine button-holer to bar tack and do the tacking with this. This makes a good sturdy tack that can be done very quickly.—MARIE

DEAR POLLY—When children's stuffed animals no longer take well to soap and water cleaning, cover them with a thick layer of starch. After it is thoroughly dry remove the starch with a very stiff brush. Dirt and grease will come right off with it.—MRS. R. M.

DEAR POLLY—My family still love cheese sandwiches and cheeseburgers, so I buy the ready sliced three-pound loaves of cheese. To keep it conveniently unwrapped and yet protected from drying out I drop the loaf, open end first, into a clean half gallon waxed milk carton and close the carton top securely. Even my youngest can help himself and not be scolded for letting the cheese dry out.—MRS. G. T. K.

DEAR POLLY—Since I fitted the blankets at the bottom corners, my bed practically makes itself. Try it—it's easy to do.—MRS. B. J. B.

DEAR POLLY—I live in an apartment and no matter how carefully I opened the bedroom closet's sliding doors, they were apt to hit the wall. FOR ROUBEN MAMOULIAN, film director

You made the first color feature film, "Becky Sharp," in 1935. How was that different from making color films today? —Allen Roberts, Lansing, Mich.

● There's no comparison. We had a huge camera—about four times the size of other cameras—with four strips of film in it. We photographed the scenes simultaneously in yellow, blue, red and black-and-white. Then we superimposed the strips in the lab. Sometimes when the scene came on, the curtains were red and the roses were green. But there was one big advantage—you could correct it. Today's process is cheaper, but you can't make fine corrections. Movies today just don't hold a candle to those early color films—they're so much inferior.

FOR F. LEE BAILEY, attorney

What kind of psychological treatment, if any, is the Boston Strangler receiving? —Kenneth Raynor, Wallace, N.C.

● None to speak of. Although he is seen from time to time by a psychiatrist, he has never received any of the intensive research study that might enable us to learn what caused him to act as he did, and how others might be prevented from following this kind of conduct.

FOR SONNY BONO of the "Sonny & Cher" show

How long have you been singing? What were your reactions when you learned you were to have your very own show? —Sher Marris, Key West, Fla.

● I started singing in the late '50's, but only to audition the songs I wrote. In 1964, Cher and I began singing professionally. When we learned we were to have our own show, we were, to say the least, ecstatic. We felt that if a television network believed we could have universal appeal, all our efforts had been realized.

FOR DR. A. HAMBLIN LETTON, President, American Cancer Society

How many Americans who have had cancer are alive and cured? —J. Allen, Bloomington, Ind.

● Presently, there are 1,500,000 Americans cured of cancer. Today we are saving one-third of cancer victims. The figure could be one-half if everyone had an annual health checkup and took prompt action on warning signals. Uterine cancer is 81 percent curable if it is caught early and hasn't spread. Colon-rectum cancer is 69 percent curable if it hasn't spread.

FOR JOAN BAEZ

How far would you go to effect social change? —G. E. Boca Raton, Fla.

● If the question is as simple as it looks, then the answer is equally simple: All the way. I live my life as a pacifist anarchist. "All the way" means that although I will never kill for the things I so desperately want, for all I can tell, I am ready to die for them.

FOR MARIO PUZO, author of "The Godfather"

How did you get the inside information you used in writing "The Godfather"? You've said many times that you never met a gangster prior to writing the book. —Larry D. Marshall, Muncie, Ind.

● Most of my research consisted of reading and studying the combined volumes of Senate hearings on narcotics and gambling. These total some 40 volumes.

FOR POLLY BERGEN, actress, beauty expert

I have terrible bags under my eyes. Is there any way to overcome this problem? —J. Thomas, Green Bay, Wis.

● Usually, lines on the side of the face and in the cheek (which I have) and bags under the eyes are inherited. This does not mean you should not use moisturizing treatment. It only indicates that eventually you will probably have the same problems—but to a much lesser degree if you are careful now—that your parents had.

FOR ROMANA BANUELOS, Treasurer of the United States

On the back of all five-dollar bills is a secret number, 372, hidden in the bushes on the left. Can you tell me why? —Michael DeLeano, Reno, Nev.

● There are no secret numbers on the back of a five-dollar bill. What some people mistake to be the number 372 is merely shading used by the engraver to give the bushes a more natural appearance.

FOR JOHN GLENN, former astronaut

Why do you feel the critics of our space program are attacking in the wrong direction? —J. Lang, Lansing, Mich.

● They view it as a race for the moon between the Russians and the Americans. And now that we've won the race, they think the program should be ended. The program must continue to further present research and knowledge. We don't know what we're going to find out there. But the payoff can come in many different ways—new energy sources, control of weather and earth resources analysis.

FOR DAVID OGILVY, author and advertising executive

You've said you read 34 magazines every month. Approximately how much time do you devote to each magazine? —S. E. Edises, Reno, Nev.

● I used to read 34 magazines every month, but I found that it didn't leave me enough time to read books. Today I read only 12 magazines, and it takes me about 12 hours a month. Perhaps because I'm in advertising, I read the ads in magazines more than the editorials. If this shocks you, I remind you that Jefferson read only one newspaper—and that's more for the advertisements than the news. Anyway, I spend a lot more time reading than watching television.

Now That We Know How Perishable Marriage Is:

Five Ways to Solve Husband-Wife Problems Before They Arise

By Norman Lobsenz

A few weeks ago I asked a friend celebrating his ninth wedding anniversary how he felt about the institution of marriage after all those years. "Fine!" he said enthusiastically. Then, after a moment's hesitation, he added, "Except that it's so dully."

Every husband and wife past the newlywed stage is familiar with that feeling. Living in much the same routine with the same person all day, every day, year after year, tends to create small frictions that erode the glamour of wedded bliss. Add the normal stresses of earning a living, raising children, coping with emotional and physical crises, and it's no wonder people talk about the "seven year itch," that deadline by which even the best of spouses is due to get somewhat restive.

Some years ago, marriage counselor Dr. Paul Popenoe surveyed 20,000 couples. Of those wed for more than five years, almost half said they were "not happy." More recently, a study by Prof. Eleanore B. Luckey, president of the National Council on Family Relations, showed that the longer two people were married, the less favorably each viewed the other. Indeed, virtually every sociological survey finds that marital happiness decreases with the passage of time.

Must marriages grow stale? Or can a couple take steps to keep the normal tensions and the routine differences of opinion from escalating into serious marital troubles? The answer, according to counseling experts, lies in what we might call "preventive maintenance" for marriage—taking positive steps that will prevent minor stresses from turning into major problems.

The first step, according to famed minister and counselor Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, is to accept the fact that some degree of boredom, and even conflict, is normal in any marriage. "The stresses change as you move through the years together," he says, "but the important thing is to show the intelligence, courage and unselfishness" to keep them from infecting the healthy, rewarding aspects of a marriage.

"One wife despairingly told the interviewers: 'Sometimes I daydream of meeting my husband in disguise and staying up all night talking to him. If we could just talk as two human beings—we could mean something to each other again.'"

The first step . . . is to accept the fact that some degree of boredom, and even conflict, is normal in any marriage.

Ray Solovinsky

This is, of course, easier said than done. But here are five things every couple can do to help keep their marriage rewarding.

1 Seek out and try to fulfill each other's emotional needs. Simply put, this is the quality of being alert and "open" to your spouse's feelings. For example, one woman I know has become an expert at judging her husband's mood when he comes home from work. "I try to tell from the way he says hello, even from the way he takes off his coat or puts down the evening paper, whether he's had a bad day or a good one. If it looks like it was a bad day, I give him some time alone, to shuck off the pressures, to relax a bit. This has saved us a lot of unnecessary squabbles over the years."

A husband, married for six years, told me his system for judging when the burden of house and children is getting to be a strain for his wife. "She's a morning type—one of those people who pop out of bed bright-eyed and cheerful, ready to cope with everything. So when I notice that she's getting grumpy at breakfast for no obvious reason, I know it's time to give her a day to herself. That's when I say, 'I'll take the kids this Saturday, hon, and you go downtown to shop and get your hair done.' She appreciates the fact that I offer her the change of scenery so she doesn't have to ask me to do it."

We all know couples who have this special ability to anticipate each other's feelings; not all the time, perhaps, but often enough. What's involved in this awareness? Nothing more magical than the essence of love—being sensitive to the other's moods, and being big enough to accommodate yourself to them. Most important, it keeps tensions from reaching the explosion point. And it helps to prevent you from falling into the trap of taking your spouse for granted.

2 Be open to the idea of change. We're used to the fact that most things in our lives—jobs, homes, children—go through changes. But many couples tend to think marriage itself is inflexible, immune to change. They assume that what once was so will always be so, and therefore they fail to make any allowances for growth, or even for passing whims.

On the simplest level, for example, a woman may continue to serve a particular meal that her husband once liked without realizing that his taste has developed. Where once he was satisfied with filet of sole, he may now want to try trout or abalone. I confess to having given my wife the same kind of earrings for her birthday for many years, until she finally said, "Haven't you noticed I don't wear that style anymore?"

"There never was a marriage that could not have ended in failure, nor a marriage that could not be made a success."

This quality, which some counselors call "emotional flexibility," is far more significant when it deals with such things as goals and attitudes. One couple, in their early forties, came close to a break-up when the wife refused to take seriously her husband's plan to quit his good job as a supervisor in a chemical plant and take a less-remunerative but more interesting post teaching chemistry in college. Not able to understand that his ideas about what he wanted to do with his life had changed, she accused him of "ruining" their life for a "crazy whim." Eventually she did realize how important this move was to him, and, because she trusted his love for her, agreed to go along with the plan. He, in turn, agreed to give it up if, after a year, it was not working out as he hoped.

Similarly, some couples attribute feelings to each other that no longer exist. A man stopped asking his wife to join him on an occasional business trip after she always said she had to stay home with the children. He failed to realize, as time passed, that the youngsters had grown to an age where they could take care of themselves for a few days, and that his wife now wanted to be asked to go along.

Some people think that being "flexible" means "giving in" or "giving up." But actually, says family counselor Dr. Louis Ormont, "it means the ability to realize that the person you are married to today is not entirely the same man or woman you wed a few years ago. And since marriage is an opportunity for growth, neither are you yourself the same person you were then."

3 Be aware of what you have together. In a way, this is the other side of the coin of flexibility. It's a realization of the long-term unchanging values in a marriage. "It's like taking an inventory of your marital assets," one counselor said. Children are born and grow up, men advance in their work, women turn houses into homes, gardens flower—yet a man and wife are so close to all of this they scarcely realize what they have achieved in their marriage.

Inventory taking comes in many forms. It can be a quiet evening's conversation; a tour through the years via the family photograph album; a rummaging in the attic that turns up mementos of vacation trips. On the other hand, inventory taking can be more formal. Some counselors suggest that couples write down lists—each making his own separate accounting—of what they like about each other, or of the things that they enjoy doing together. Frequently, such lists are longer than either spouse expected them to be.

Moreover, this kind of exploration of your joint past can lead to progress. Friends of mine recently spent an evening going through their address books. The books were filled with names of "friends" they hadn't seen or talked to in years; some had moved away, others had just "grown" away. My friends decided to do a weeding job, culling out the names of those with whom they no longer had anything in common, and saving the names of the few they were still close to. Then they deliberately cultivated new friends—at work, in the community, at church. Within a few months they had a much more rewarding social life.

4 Communicate openly and freely. A frank exchange of feelings and ideas is vital, of course, both in exploring new avenues in marriage and in reconnoitering old ones. But just talking to each other—keeping open the lines of daily conversation—is important in heading off marital difficulties. Studies of verbal communication in marriage made at Cornell University revealed that "satisfying talk is as important as a satisfying sexual relationship in making a marriage work."

The Cornell research showed that husband-wife conversation is at its peak during the first year of marriage. Then it declines sharply after children come—both in amount and in the satisfaction it provides. What conversation exists becomes concerned mainly with such problems as the children's behavior, financial squeezes, appliances that don't work. One wife despairingly told the interviewers: "Sometimes I daydream of meeting my husband in disguise and staying up all night talking to him. If we could just talk—as two human beings—we could mean something to each other again."

5 Seek counseling before problems get out of hand. Most couples make the mistake of waiting until their marital problems threaten to overwhelm them before they seek counseling. Yet when a couple arrive in a counselor's office with a "crisis" situation, it's often too late for him to do much about it.

Early counseling does more than nip domestic conflicts in the bud. It reveals a willingness on the part of both spouses to work at their relationship. As author Kathleen Norris once wrote: "There never was a marriage that could not have ended in failure, nor a marriage that could not be made a success."

But perhaps the most effective "preventive maintenance" for marriage was suggested to couples some years ago by a wise counselor named Alexander Magoun. "Sometime during every week," he said, "each should stop to listen to the other in the kitchen, on the stairs, and then ask himself what life would be like without the other. Empty?"

Marriage may be "so daily," but it is only when this "daily-ness" stops that we realize how rewarding it can be.

Collectors' Classics

Beef Stroganoff has become one of the most imitated—and, often, adulterated—recipes in the history of cookery. What follows is a true, rich-tasting Stroganoff, derived from the original 19-century Russian recipe.

BEEF STROGANOFF

- 2 lbs. boneless sirloin, 1-inch thick, partially frozen
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 2 teaspoons dry mustard
- 6 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 8 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 cups thinly sliced onions
- 1/4 teaspoon sugar
- 1 lb. mushrooms, sliced, or 3 cans (8-oz. size) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 can (10 1/2 ozs.) beef bouillon, undiluted
- 1 pt. sour cream
- 1/4 cup thinly sliced green onions

1. Using a very sharp knife, slice meat in 1/4-inch-thick pieces, cut in half lengthwise, to make strips approximately 3 inches long, 1/2-inch wide and 1/4-inch thick.
2. On large sheet of foil or waxed paper combine salt, pepper and dry mustard. Toss meat strips in this seasoning mixture, coating well. Set aside.
3. In large skillet heat 2 tablespoons vegetable oil and 1 tablespoon butter until butter is melted. Add onions and sugar, sauté over medium heat 5-8 minutes, until onions are golden-brown.
4. Remove onions from skillet, set aside.
5. In same skillet, heat 1 tablespoon vegetable oil and 1 tablespoon butter until butter is melted. Add mushrooms, sauté about 3-5 minutes, stirring frequently.
6. Spoon mushrooms and any pan juices into a bowl, set aside. (Steps 1 through 6 can be done ahead.)
7. About 20 minutes before serving, in large skillet heat 2 tablespoons vegetable oil and 2 tablespoons butter until hot, but not smoking.

8. Add about 1/3 of seasoned meat strips to skillet. Sauté over high heat, stirring frequently to brown evenly. Object is to really sear meat on both sides, leaving center medium rare.
9. Remove meat from skillet when browned, put in bowl, cover.

10. Continue browning meat strips 1/3 at a time until all are browned. Add additional vegetable oil and butter to skillet as necessary. Spoon all browned meat into bowl, cover.
11. Stir flour into 3 tablespoons pan drippings in skillet. (If no pan drippings remain, use 3

- tablespoons butter or margarine, heat until melted.)
12. Gradually stir bouillon into flour-fat mixture. Use a wire whisk to insure smoothness. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly with wire whisk.
13. Away from heat, gradually add sour cream to bouillon mixture, stirring with wire whisk until smoothly blended. Heat gently just to boiling point.
14. Quickly stir in sautéed onions, mushrooms and beef strips. Heat covered over low heat 5-7 minutes, until heated through. Taste sauce for correct finished seasoning.
15. Spoon into shallow elegant casserole or chafing dish. Sprinkle surface with green onions if desired. Makes 6 servings

The margarine that spreads half again as far.

Get the pound of margarine that spreads like a pound and a half. Whipped Parkay. Kraft whips Parkay to make it soft and fluffy. So a pound spreads half again as far. Try Whipped Parkay Margarine with country-fresh flavor. Six sticks to the pound, or in extra deep cups.

Whipped Parkay.

HINTS FOR SUCCESSFUL STROGANOFF

1. It is easier to cut meat into thin strips when it is partially frozen, and less blood is lost.
2. Note that the recipe can be prepared through Step 6 ahead of time. This is recommended.
3. Sour cream is added at the end of preparation and heated over low heat to prevent curdling.
4. The dish can be frozen and then reheated, covered, over simmering water. However, the flavor of the sauce changes somewhat after freezing and is less piquant.
5. To improve flavor after freezing, stir in additional 1/4 cup sour cream and 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce just before serving.

Can you see what's wrong with this asparagus?

This asparagus is below Del Monte Brand standards. Look at the buds.
They've separated from the tip of the spear. This indicates the asparagus is tough—lacks flavor.

The more you know about asparagus,
the better for Del Monte!

HOMEMADE JAM MADE EASY.

That's right.

To put up a mouth-watering jam, jelly, or preserve you don't have to put up with all the cooking, sealing, and messiness that used to go along with it.

Take Strawberry jam. Now all you need to make it are fresh, ripe strawberries, sugar, lemon juice, and Certo®. (A half bottle will help you make about 5½ cups of jam. Just follow the quick and easy recipe you'll find with many others tucked behind every Certo label.)

And all you do is crush the strawberries, mix everything, and stir for three minutes. You don't even have to cook.

Then put it all in any tight-lidded food container, pint-size or smaller, and let stand till it sets.

Pop it into the refrigerator, and that's that.

As fruity and natural-tasting a homemade jam as ever mellowed a cracker.

And what you don't plan on serving within three weeks, you can freeze.

When it thaws, it'll still have the same fresh-fruit flavor it had the day you made yourself a jam.

Without jamming up your home.

Now making homemade jam is as simple as mixing fruit, sugar, and Certo.

Liza in a cooking scene from "Cabaret." Her incurable sweet tooth is "a throwback to my early days in the theater."

By Liza Minnelli, as told to Helen Dorsey

I've always loved good food, but good food to me is "comfort food": hamburgers heaped high with lots of junk, chocolate sodas, baked potatoes with mounds of sour cream, butter and seasonings. Comfort food's anything that makes you feel comfortable while you're eating it. I love savory foods, like Hungarian goulash or the highly spiced food from Yugoslavia. But I've also got an incurable sweet tooth. Maybe that's a throwback to my early days in the theater when we gobbled up Hershey bars for quick energy!

If I'm giving a party, my favorite way of entertaining's a buffet. I might start with something like Gazpacho. But only give your guests a little taste, enough to whet their taste buds. And for the main course, perhaps a meal-in-one — potted veal surrounded with a garnish of vegetables. For a finisher, I love to have chocolate soufflé — you can make it in advance and it's easy — or else a Grand Marnier soufflé.

My mother, you know, was really a terrific cook. She used to love to cook anything from shepherd's pie to chocolate soufflés to big pot roasts. It was like a Pillsbury Bake-Off when we all got into the kitchen! But now, cooking's become such a hobby, I find I can't have any one in the kitchen with me. I function best there alone.

3. Beat egg yolks until thick; add vanilla (or Grand Marnier). Continue beating until smooth and creamy.
4. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Gradually add sugar. Fold egg-yolk and chocolate mixtures into egg whites. Fold egg mixture lightly into lightly greased 6-cup soufflé cup (previously roll granulated sugar around buttered soufflé cup to coat sides and bottom of pan, then knock out excess sugar).
5. Set soufflé cup in shallow pan containing 1 inch hot water. Bake in preheated 350°F. oven for 1 hr.
6. Serve hot, with well-chilled sweetened whipped cream (sweeten slightly with sugar or few drops of Grand Marnier) or vanilla sauce. Decorate with shaved bitter chocolate.

Makes 4 servings

AFTERTHOUGHTS: If Grand Marnier is used to flavor soufflé, cut back on sugar.

Do You Know What Tricks Your Memory Plays?

True or False: How well you remember things depends on whether you're sitting, standing or lying down. (See number 6.)

By John E. Gibson

Everything you do, think or feel is silently recorded on the invisible microfilm of memory. Much of the "footage" is available for instant replay, but some sequences are stored out of our everyday reach, in the innermost recesses of the mind. In this True or False quiz, we take a look at the fascinating mechanism that has been called "the receptacle of all knowledge" — the memory.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. It isn't accident or chance that causes you to remember some things and forget others.
2. How pleasant your memories are depends on how old you are.
3. Your inability to remember may be due to what you're forgetting to eat.
4. You can't remember as well when you're cold.
5. Alcohol stimulates your memory processes.
6. How well you remember things depends on whether you're sitting, standing or lying down.

ANSWERS

1. True. Psychological studies at the University of Michigan have shown that "People aren't haphazard about the things they remember. They remember the things they care about." It's further pointed out that what a person remembers about another person, and the way he remembers it, is a strong indication of their relationship.

2. True—according to studies at Washington University on a random selection of 143 men and women ranging in age from 20 to 60 and over. It was found that the memories of all the persons were more pleasant than unpleasant; but that after age 40, more and more unpleasant memories tended to be recalled.

3. True. If you find yourself chronically forgetting things you ought to remember, it may be that you're forgetting to include enough protein and vitamins in your diet. Scientists at the University of Palermo com-

less, with a short attention span, and made an extremely poor showing on memory tests. When a well-balanced diet was substituted for the inadequate one, the restless symptoms diminished markedly, and the ability to remember improved considerably.

4. True. University of California studies have shown that chilling temperatures impair our recall abilities. Tests showed that one effect of exposure to cold conditions was "the loss of short-term memory, which made it easy to forget relatively simple instructions."

5. False—according to the findings of a recent study which showed that over a 45-minute period, after only a moderate amount of alcohol was consumed by subjects, scores on memory tests were found to systematically decrease. The investigators observe that their findings "may help to explain the chatter observed at cocktail parties, with participants jumping from one topic to another because they forgot what they were talking about, where they were in the conversation, or what the other person said."

6. True. Psychological studies show that your mental faculties and the way they function are definitely affected by your body position. And experiments at the University of Kansas have demonstrated that different kinds of memories are stimulated by different body positions. So if there's something you're having difficulty trying to recall — a face, a place, an experience, or whatever — and nothing results while you're either sitting or standing, then try lying down on the job. Take science's word for it, each body position has a definite effect on your "mental set" and the selective manner in which imprisoned memories are released from their storehouse in the brain. Other studies have shown that the lying-down position is best for recalling memories of long ago.

Sports Mini-Profile

DAVE McNALLY:

Is He Ready to Join the Pitching Immortals?

Big-league pitchers are supposed to be temperamental prima donnas—but not Dave McNally, ace left-hander for the Baltimore Orioles. He was in pain 90 percent of last season due to elbow trouble, yet uncomplainingly compiled a 21-5 record, the best won-lost percentage in the majors. He expects to win 20 games again this year for the fifth straight year, which would put him in the same class as immortals Walter Johnson and Lefty Grove (the only AL pitchers to win 20 games for five straight years or more).... McNally's outstanding pitching has brought him into the $100,000-a-year bracket. "He's worth every cent," says Oriole pitching coach George Bamberger. "Nobody in baseball has worked as hard as he has. He never pouts or moans no matter how he's hurting. If he has a run of bad luck, he just shrugs it off. There are pitchers who are faster and maybe have better curve balls, but the difference is McNally knows exactly how to use what he has." ... A native of Billings, Mont., McNally got his start playing for an American Legion team. He was signed by the Oriole organization to a bonus contract in 1960 and made his debut as a major leaguer in 1962 with a two-hit shutout. Persistent arm trouble threatened his career, but he steered himself to succeed, arm trouble or no. He and his wife Jean are the parents of a son and two daughters.—By Barry Abramson

The Doctor Lets You In

Setting the Record

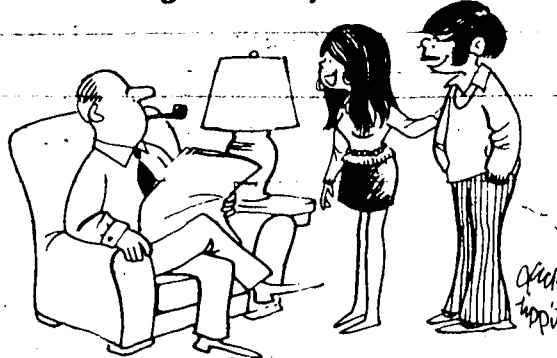

—Straight About Diabetes

There is presently an intramural medical squabble over the effectiveness of oral anti-diabetic drugs. But the public need not worry, for these reasons: First, oral drugs are used only for mild cases. The effectiveness of insulin in all severe diabetics is undisputed. Through proper use of insulin, the diabetic coma in severe cases is a thing of the past. Second, all doctors agree on the essential measures to be taken with those marginal or "adult-onset" diabetics. In these patients, and in all people with a slight tendency toward high blood sugar, the first and foremost therapy is weight reduction and a crisply defined dietary regimen. If their disease progresses, they too may require insulin. ... Diabetes is a chronic disease of blood vessels, with progressive damage done to all the organs. Blindness, kidney failure and severe heart disease can result. If you have blood relatives with diabetes, or are found at routine exams to have high blood sugar, make sure you and your doctor carefully watch your diet and decide what medicine is needed.—By John J. Secondi, M.D.

The Diet Watch

Why "Sun Worshipers"

And "Snow Bunnies"

Should Diet Differently

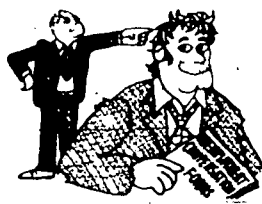

Dieters can reasonably consider adjusting their diets according to the season, adding or subtracting calories. If you're an inactive, hibernating type in winter, who, when summer comes, goes in for active sports like swimming, bicycling, tennis—or even walking, which most people don't habitually do in winter—you can deservedly allow yourself a few calorie-high pleasures (just so long as you switch back later). Conversely, if you're lazy in summer but are a winter skier or otherwise active in the cold weather, adjust your calories accordingly. Any seasonal indulgence can include some of those tempting foods you would ordinarily feel conscience stricken about eating (like an ice-cream cone in summer or a pizza in winter). Also, a seasonal diet change can give you a big boost psychologically.—By Harriet La Barre

Jobmanship

Don't Abuse Your Unemployment Benefits

Can you deliberately get yourself fired in order to collect unemployment benefits? A worker in South Dakota tried it recently and ended up with a legal case. "The state owes me my unemployment compensation," the worker insisted. "I was fired for being incompetent." His former employer fought the worker's claim. The employer said, "This man worked well for six months. Then suddenly he began coming in unshaved, sloppy and late. His attitude became unpleasant and he began to make many mistakes on his job. Also, his supervisor actually heard him telling a co-worker, 'I'm going to make the company fire me so I can collect unemployment.' " The South Dakota commission decided against the worker (S.D. Comm. Dec. No. 2073-C-250). It was not proper, the commission ruled, for the worker to act in such a way as to cause his employer to discharge him. The worker therefore was not eligible and could not collect unemployment-insurance benefits.—By S. R. Redford

Celebrity Soapbox

RODNEY DANGERFIELD:

"Respect? I Can Get It for You Wholesale!"

"Too many people don't know how to get respect," says comedian Rodney Dangerfield, in a switch from his comic lament, "I don't get no respect." Rodney says: "One way to get respect is to be seen with a pretty girl. Another is to always be busy. People respect you when you are busy. Even if you are doing nothing, tell people that you've canceled all your appointments because you must catch up on your reading. ... It's also important to live in a nice neighborhood, and to look good. This means keeping your weight down. I think I've figured out the best way to look thin. Hang out with fat people. Another thing: Don't borrow money from people. If you have to borrow money, borrow from a bank. If your payment is late, you get notices like 'please' or 'perhaps we crossed in the mail'—but not disrespect. It's also important to be a nice guy. If you aren't, then you don't deserve any respect."—By William Wolf

People and You

Why Some Women Refuse To Admit They're Sick

Husbands: If your family doesn't have any relatives that you can depend on for help when you're in trouble, you should keep a special watch on your wife's health. Although your family may have good friends, a scientific survey has discovered that in 93 percent of the cases where a mother was ill, relatives were the only ones who came to the aid of the family. Women are well aware of this. And as a result, women, especially those who have preschool children, very often pay no attention to their symptoms of illness if they have no relative to turn to in a health emergency. It's not a question of heroism. It's a simple, practical problem. "How can I be sick? Who will take care of the children?" is a genuine dilemma for them. Almost three quarters of the women (71 percent) who know that there is no relative to take over may hesitate to go to a doctor. Mothers who don't have helpful relatives may even endanger their permanent health by refusing to admit that they are sick!—By Shirley Sloan Fader

Here's how to Lose up to 10 Pounds in only 10 days with Grapefruit-Plus Diet and Reducing Plan

By Elizabeth Louise

FORT LAUDERDALE, FLORIDA (Special Report)—From this Gold Coast city comes word of the GRAPEFRUIT PLUS Diet and Reducing Plan. No long waiting. This natural plan is so fast, it actually starts working in 24 hours—even while you sleep! Practically any normal, overweight reader may lose up to 10 pounds in only 10 days, by following the simple instructions given.

NO DRUGS TO TAKE

No nauseating pills or medicines. No hazardous sports or painful exercises. Best of all, you never suffer from cruel starvation jitters. Incredible, yet so true: you choose from scores of luscious, satisfying meals. You start with tangy grapefruit, then go on to body building meats, poultry, sea foods. You enjoy farm-fresh fruit, vegetables, eggs and dairy foods. Plus certain especially chosen tidbits—savory, scrumptious snacks! Munch all you want of these selected goodies—day or night—with regular meals or between meals.

EAT WELL—YET LOSE DANGEROUS FAT

Lose weight faster than you ever dreamed possible! Reduce up to 10 pounds in 10 days with this pure, natural GRAPEFRUIT PLUS method. Yes—plus natural, not synthetic vitamins. PLUS natural Vitamin C—the precious ingredient acclaimed by doctors, dieticians and world-famous scientists. No doubt about it—this natural plan sure does work—because it utilizes the right combination of pure, natural foods plus natural body activity to cause accumulated body fat to disappear!

RESHAPES YOUR BODY

This sure-fire plan actually transforms your figure, day after day. One morning you'll wake up to a wonderful surprise! Your mirror will reveal a glamorous new you—a leaner, more alluring body. Suddenly you're more limber and lithe—aglow with youthful sex appeal. Thousands of persons have already used this dual Natural Plan to reduce. Why don't you try also? Simply follow the delicious diet and special instructions. That's all! You will be rewarded with thrilling results. As it ejects excess fat out of your body, this natural combination method also helps you conquer that tired, sluggish, 'old age' feeling due to overweight.

WHY STARVATION DIETS FAIL TO WORK

Faddish starvation diets and painful exercises are doomed to failure. They are against nature itself. Your body rebels. Your will crumbles and unattractive fat returns—pound after pound. Now-at-last, here's a combination plan that never starves you. You never skip a meal. You indulge in full course breakfasts, lunches, dinners. You get an astonishing variety of tasty foods. But because you use the right combination of pure, natural foods, you expel the accumulated fat fast!

HOW DOES IT WORK?

After years of sluggish habits and the wrong eating combination, your body becomes a storehouse for excess fat. This fat becomes lodged in arms, thighs, buttocks, midriff, etc. You look older and even feel older. By simply eating the RIGHT COMBINATION of foods, your body burns up this excess fat, much as the motor in your car burns up fuel—to provide it energy. Exactly how quickly you can reduce pounds and inches depends on your body build and metabolism, your present overweight and daily activities, etc. But, no matter how overweight you are now, you may actually lose up to 10 pounds or even MORE in 10 short days—by faithfully following this great natural plan:

ERASE OLD AGE LOOKS

Eventually this tasty GRAPEFRUIT PLUS diet certainly makes those unsightly bulges and awkward pot belly vanish—even if certain other "grapefruit" diets have failed before. It's truly NATURE'S OWN METHOD. No pills. No medicines. No costly fad foods. In fact, everything you need can be found at your local food market. You're never starved. You eat your fill from a huge selection of pure, healthful foods. You're shown how to speed up the fat burning process by augmenting normal body activity thus helping to increase body energy, vitality and muscular tone.

KEEP IT OFF ALL YEAR LONG

This natural Grapefruit Diet and Reducing Plan will be mailed to any interested reader. Write promptly and also receive a "FULL YEAR MAINTENANCE GUIDE." ## star profile

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

Bill Holden At 53: "You're Wrong If You Think I've Got It Made!"

I still remember that night in London when I last saw Bill Holden. At the time, few stars could demand more money per film than Bill. He had accumulated a fortune with his business ventures (his investment in "The Bridge Over the River Kwai" alone will continue at $50,000 a year until he's an estimated 110 years of age). He had homes in Switzerland, Hong Kong, Palm Springs and Africa. He had done just about everything he had ever wanted to do, and his marriage to Ardis (actress Brenda Marshall) was still in good shape. He was proud of her daughter Virginia and their sons Peter and Scott. In short, he was a man who had everything. Everything except something to live for....

Thirteen years have passed. Bill has managed to cover thousands more miles around the globe, get involved in more business ventures, divorce Ardis, become a grandfather through his stepdaughter Virginia, and see his sons turn into men and become involved in show business. And again the question arises: What is left for William Holden?

To find out, I stopped by for a visit with Bill while he was viewing his latest film, "The Revengers," in Hollywood.

I was surprised to learn that Bill was working not just to keep his hand in the business, but because he needed the money! "My books are open any time, if you think I've got it made!" Holden scoffed. He didn't go into details, but it seems some of his business enterprises were less than totally successful and his divorce settlement cost him a small fortune.

"I'm not singing a sad song," he said. "It's just a fact that I'm not that well off anymore. Moreover, I've come around to not wanting to be rich. All I ask is to break even. And I usually don't even do that! Luckily I get pictures to do. People still seem to like to watch me. Then I take the money and sink it right back in over there." ("Over there" is the 60-room Mount Kenya Safari Club in which Holden has a major interest.)

Holden insists he no longer needs marriage

"For me, marriage was just a phase—and I grew out of it. It was just a natural ending of a way of life that society dictated. Don't get me wrong, I approve of the institution of marriage when it suits a time and a need: raising a family, building a life. But we've done that. It's over."

For Bill, life has always been a series of "phases." Even as we talked, it was happening. The eminent marine scientist Jacques Cousteau had invited Bill to join him and a few other ecologists in developing an island some 200 miles north of New Guinea into a 3,500-acre sanctuary for endangered birds.

"For me, marriage was just a phase—and I grew out of it. . . I approve of the institution of marriage—when it suits a time and a need: raising a family, building a life. But we've done that. It's over."

"Hopefully we'll build new flocks so that they won't become extinct—just as I am trying to do with wild animals in Africa," Bill said.

Actually, concedes Bill, it is possible that he was always gearing himself toward this struggle to save wildlife. "I was a Boy Scout, and when you take it seriously, as I did, you can't help but be affected. You learn to cherish all wildlife."

Undoubtedly, Bill Holden has come a long way from the 24-year-old youth who shot to stardom with his first appearance on the screen in "Golden Boy." He's mellowed.

"When I was a little boy, I thought life was made up of two parts—youth and old age. As I got older, I added a middle part called work. Then I came around to thinking there were four divisions, because middle age was in there too. And now, at 53...." Bill Holden paused, ran a hand through his still-thick but graying hair, and chuckled. "Well, now I kind of hate to think about dividing it into any more pieces!"

I didn't want to lose him, so I lost 59 pounds.

By Shirley Gallagher—as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

I really had something to be sober about at 160 pounds. I had tremendous arms and a great big sit down.

Ever go to a company picnic and find that you've got competition? Well, I did. I looked at those petite girls my husband works with and I suddenly saw myself as I was: the fat wife. That's when I turned into 160 pounds of fear and jealousy.

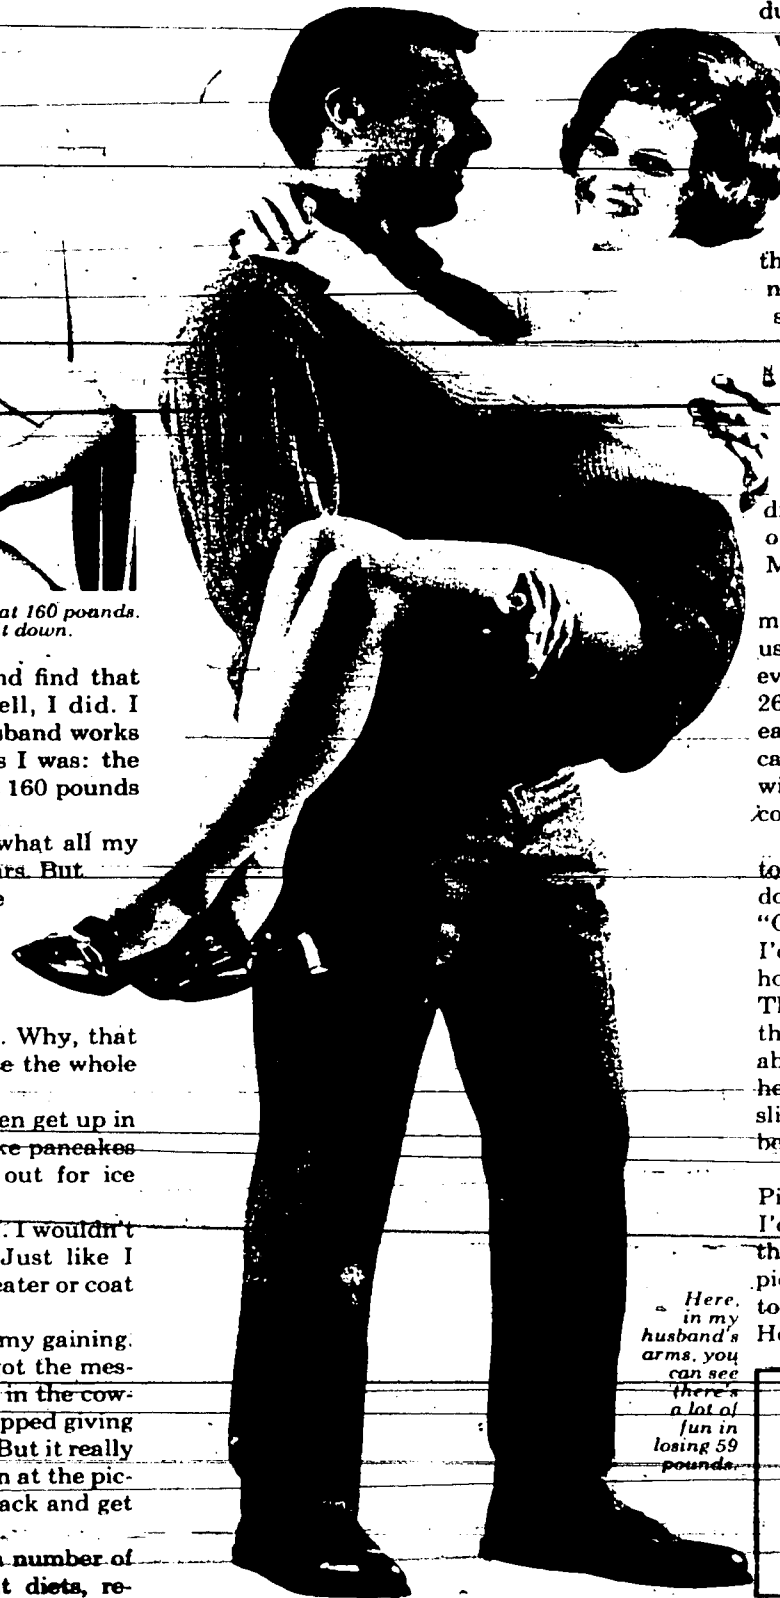

It wasn't as if I hadn't known what all my eating was doing to me over the years. But I had always loved to cook and bake and Larry could put it away without gaining. Some husbands are like that. Me? I just blossomed out — on submarine sandwiches, pizzas, pies, cakes, and homemade cookies. Why, that fellow on television who said, "I ate the whole thing!" had nothing on me.

Sometimes Larry and I would even get up in the middle of the night and I'd make pancakes or we'd hop into the car and go out for ice cream. I wasn't pregnant, either.

Next day, though, I'd hate myself. I wouldn't even stand in front of a mirror. Just like I wouldn't go to church without a sweater or coat on to hide my heavy arms.

Larry never said anything about my gaining. He didn't want to hurt me. But I got the message another way. When he saw me in the cow-size clothes I had to buy, he just stopped giving me compliments. That crushed me. But it really took those slender, attractive women at the picnic to convince me a wife can't sit back and get fat. Not if she wants to hold her own.

I had tried to reduce, of course, a number of times with liquid meals, grapefruit diets, reducing pills, skimmed milk. But they didn't work for me, especially the liquids. I needed something to chew on.

Thank goodness I'd read those stories of people who had taken those reducing-plan candies, Ayds®. I finally decided to try them, so I went to the drugstore and bought the plain chocolate fudge kind. I carefully read the direction folder in the box and learned that Ayds contain vitamins and minerals, but no drugs. That made me feel even better about starting the Ayds plan.

At breakfast, I took a couple of Ayds with tea—you can have any hot drink—about 15 minutes before eating. Cereal or an egg and toast for me. At lunch, I'd take my Ayds and tea again and have soup, sometimes a sandwich or a lettuce and tomato salad. Then at dinner, Ayds and tea again and a small portion of whatever the rest of the family was having. Meat loaf, corn, even some mashed potatoes.

I'll tell you, those Ayds really helped curb my appetite. They taste so good, too, that I used to eat a couple in the afternoon and in the evening, watching television. They contain only 26 calories apiece, which was much better than eating a slice of my own homemade "Wacky" cake. This is covered in chocolate and layered with cherry pie filling. Yet as delicious as it is, I could give it up for Ayds.

The plan worked beautifully for me. I began to lose pound after pound. Each time I went down, I'd run out of the bathroom and say: "Come look. I've lost again!" Well, by the time I'd come down to 101 pounds, everybody in my hometown, York, Pennsylvania, was looking. That's when the truth really comes out. Like this friend of mine. I used to complain to her about being fat. But she'd say: "Oh, you're not heavy." Comforting words. But now that I'm slim, she introduces me this way: "Would you believe that Shirley was once pudgy?"

Larry, of course, is just as proud as he can be. Picks me up these days like I'm one of the kids. I'd never let him attempt it when I was fat. But that's all changed now, just like the company picnic was entirely different this year. Thanks to the Ayds plan, I heard someone say: "Wow! Here comes Larry and his 'new' wife."

Latest craze: radio headsets

Add a granny skirt, antennae and wheels to those usual bits of sugar and spice and everything nice, and you've got a strangely ladylike New York member of the younger set deeply absorbed in her radio set. We don't know whether she's listening to rock, opera, or the latest news, but we do know we can expect to see more of these no-

The postcard Christmas card is slated for a comeback. Originating in 1843, the postcard was the first known Christmas card, say the Hallmark greeting-card people. It's back because today's people see the no-envelope trend as a happy one ecology-wise. This year look for more self-envelope greeting cards, cards made from recycled paper, and cards that live on because they work overtime as tree decorations or posters—all ecology pluses.

Most of the time a batter gets beamed, "It's his fault," contends Dodger pitching instructor and former Chicago White Sox ace Bob Shaw (in "Pitching," Viking, $10). "It's almost impossible to hit the hitter in the head. . . . Hitters who crowd the plate or stick their heads over the plate generally get hit more often. Pitch inside to move the hitter away from the plate—brush him back! Good hitters have the courage to 'stand in,' and hitters with less intestinal fortitude aren't playing in the big leagues. Many pitchers fail because they're afraid they might injure a hitter. Forget the hitter, let him take care of himself. Aside from extraordinary ability, the thing that may get you by is your aggressiveness, meanness, yes, your hatred for the hitter."

SHIRLEY JONES,
"PARTRIDGE" MOTHER
Only child: good deal or bad?

Growing up as an only child has advantages and disadvantages, opines only-child Shirley Jones, now the "mother" on ABC-TV's "Partridge Family." An advantage, she says, is that the only child "never has to compete, everything is there without having to be shared. So an only child develops self-confidence. But in the competitive adult world, that's a disadvantage. I find I never want anything enough to fight for it—I don't know how. Anger is slow—not worth it. In acting, anger is the most difficult emotion for me to play. And I hated the aloneness of being an only child."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

Biting Remark

By Richard Armour

I suddenly bit something very hard,
And to tell you the honest truth
I thought that a filling had fallen out
Or perhaps I had lost a tooth.

Thoughts flashed through my mind of the dentist's chair
And his sharp-pointed probe and his drill.

Even worse, as my terror now gripped me tight,

Were thoughts of the dentist's bill. . . .

Now I know the relief of a man

Spared from noose or descending ax.
What I'd crunched was a fragment of walnut shell,
And so I give thanks and relax.

The loud snoring of the children's new stepfather was the occasion of much comment and joking.

One morning at the breakfast table when the teasing was a little stronger than usual, my five-year-old son blurted out, "I don't know what everybody sees in this snoring. I tried it once, and it's hard work."

I want to show you something."

THE ASSEMBLY LINE

I know assembly lines work hard
And labor just for me.
So I can buy some shiny thing,
With a ten-year guarantee.
What I would like to know sometime
(Now just kick this about)

The meek little man approached a policeman on a street corner. "Excuse me, officer," he said, "but I've been waiting for my wife for over an hour. Would you be kind enough to order me to move on?"

"Ah, these Americans!" exclaimed an Italian. "Where have they not been?"
