

Salmon Falls project wins sub-panel nod

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A House subcommittee which conducted hearings in Twin Falls last March, approved Monday the proposed $62 million Salmon Falls irrigation project.

U.S. representatives Orval Hansen and James McClure, Idaho Republicans, said today the House Subcommittee on Irrigation and Reclamation approved the project which will now go before the full House Interior Committee.

Rep. McClure, a member of the irrigation subcommittee, said he will lend his full support to an effort for approval by the full committee.

On March 11, the subcommittee visited Twin Falls to conduct hearings in which state officials, county leaders, farmers and others urged approval of the project.

It would include a pumping station above Milner Dam to carry available Snake River water to the Salmon Tract and Milner-Cottonwood areas for supplemental irrigation. Included in the project and representing a large portion of the cost would be 47 miles of canal from the pump station to the lands where irrigation water would be delivered.

About 50,000 acres of land already under cultivation, but hampered by water shortages, would receive additional water.

About 45,000 acres of desert could be brought under cultivation for the first time under the project.

Rep. Hansen, chief sponsor of the proposed legislation which was drafted by the Idaho congressional delegation, said the approval by the subcommittee is a tribute to the untiring efforts of many Idaho citizens.

During hearings in Twin Falls in March, nearly all Twin Falls County state legislators testified in support of the proposed project.

Most of those testifying reported on the economic impact over a period of years not only for Twin Falls County but for the state of Idaho, where 64,000 acres of land put into full agricultural production.

The project would represent an investment of about $2,000 for each person in Twin Falls County. If approved and funded, it is expected to greatly increase the farm income in Twin Falls County.

Most of the land affected by the project is part of or adjacent to the Salmon Falls Tract which relies on the fluctuating water supply from Salmon Falls Creek.

Additional land on the eastern side of the county, now irrigated from underground wells that have experienced falling water tables, would receive extra water from the project.

The plan had nearly been scrapped when interest rates began to rise.

As interest rates and finance costs charged against reclamation projects rose, the project's benefit-cost ratio declined to below one. In such a case, total costs would exceed total benefits.

But members of the Idaho delegation were successful in drawing legislation in such a fashion that artificially low rates would be charged against the project — making it feasible on paper.

The costs of developing and maintaining the project would be paid largely through revenues to the Bonneville Power Administration, with about one-third of the cost coming from benefited landowners.

Mansfield backs cutoff proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said today he will back a Republican-sponsored amendment which would compel the United States to get out of Vietnam by cutting off funds.

The Montana Democrat said he would abandon his own antiwar amendment in order to support the proposal offered by Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Edward M. Brooke, R-Mass.

Both amendments are strongly opposed by the administration.

The Cooper-Brooke proposal would bar all U.S. military spending in Indochina at the end of our months, except as needed for the withdrawal of U.S. forces and contingent only on release of American war prisoners.

Mansfield's amendment would have expressed the sense of Congress that the war should be brought to a close, but would not have imposed a cutoff of funds.

Cooper originally offered a straightout proposal to cut off funds without mentioning prisoner release. Brooke succeeded in attaching the prisoner release as a pre-condition for the fund cutoff.

Mansfield said the Cooper-Brooke proposal was "the best available vehicle we have. It is superior to what I proposed."

But Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott disagreed.

"The right to negotiate the peace should not be taken away from the President and put in the hands of the Senate or Jane Fonda," Scott told reporters.

"I think the attempt of the Senate to gain a victory over the President is not contributing to peace or to expeditious legislating," he added.

The Senate killed a $1.8 billion foreign military aid bill Monday night, rather than passing it with the end-the-war amendment attached.

Brooke immediately announced he would offer the amendment to the $20.6 billion military procurement bill, now pending in the Senate.

The amendment would withdraw all U.S. forces "land, sea, and air" from Indochina four months after enactment if the POWs were released.

The strong coalition which put the amendment into the bill and resisted efforts to take it out, collapsed on the 48-42 vote on the foreign aid measure.

Strong supporters of antiwar legislation, including Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and Sen. J. William Fulbright, could not vote for the foreign aid bill although it included the amendment.

Sens. George S. McGovern and Thomas F. Eagleton, the Democrats' national ticket, missed the vote.

The foreign military assistance program appeared to be in jeopardy.

Wallace draft due?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three 1968 backers of George C. Wallace announced Tuesday a move to draft the Alabama governor as the presidential candidate on a third party ticket.

Tom Turnipseed, former campaign director for Wallace, predicted Wallace would accept the bid from the American Party which holds a nominating convention in Louisville Aug. 3-5.

In announcing formation of the draft Wallace committee, Turnipseed, a Columbia, S.C., attorney, said "We believe the American people want George Wallace to be their next President and he will be."

The American Party emerged from Wallace's third party effort in 1968 as an independent presidential candidate. But Wallace, crippled by an assassination attempt earlier this year, has said he has no interest in making another race.

New attack fells LBJ

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson was hospitalized Monday night when stricken with chest pains and nausea. But doctors said there was no indication he had suffered another heart attack.

"It may be several days before any definite conclusions can be drawn about the nature of his present illness," a Brooke Army Hospital bulletin said. "However, at 10 p.m. he was comfortable, in excellent spirits and his general condition was quite satisfactory."

LYNDON JOHNSON stricken

There have been no irregularities in the heart rhythm or blood pressure."

Johnson has suffered two heart attacks — a severe one in 1955 and a second one last April during a visit to his daughter Lynda and her husband Charles Robb in Charlottesville, Va.

He was hospitalized three weeks for treatment of his second heart attack, and had been scheduled to travel 60 miles from the LBJ Ranch today for a routine checkup.

Instead, the hospital said Johnson was flown to the hospital ahead of schedule when the pains and nausea occurred.

"He was flown to San Antonio by a private plane based at his ranch and was admitted to Brooke Hospital at 9:15 p.m. for observation," the statement said.

Dr. Robert L. North, chief of medicine at Brooke, was placed in charge of the case. Johnson has a hospital penthouse suite permanently at his disposal.

The 36th president was released from Brooke April 25 after recovering from the heart attack he suffered in Virginia, and has made several public appearances since then.

The most recent was last Saturday night when Johnson, tanned and sporting longish hair, attended a play at the LBJ State Park Auditorium in Stonewall, Tex., not far from his ranch.

Ulster weapons sought

BELFAST (UPI) — British troops keeping up pressure on Irish Republican Army (IRA) Provisionals today entered the Londonderry "no-go" Creggan area and searched Belfast Roman Catholic districts for suspects and weapons.

While the military moves were being made, Secretary of State William Whitelaw — the man who ordered the army's "get tough" policy — met with politicians to organize an anti-party conference on the province's future. Earlier, political sources said the British army had sent armored tank-like vehicles to Ulster in what could be a prelude to a full-scale invasion of the Londonderry "no-go" areas.

The sources said three of the lumbering vehicles — called tank supporters and unarmed but equipped with bulldozer blades — were secretly unloaded in Belfast this week and shuttled to an unknown site.

The disclosure came as violence flared anew throughout the province. Machinegun fire and bomb blasts killed at least one man and wounded several others during the night.

The dead man, apparently a civilian, was found shot in the head in Belfast by an army patrol, a British military spokesman said. He was the fourth person to die within 24 hours, raising Ulster's death toll to 473 killed in three years of sectarian strife.

Logging accident kills Hailey man

HAILEY — A Hailey man was killed Monday in a logging accident in Bear Lake County.

Pete Brown, 57, sustained fatal head injuries about 5:20 p.m. Monday when he was struck by a log and slammed against a tree.

Larry Lloyd, Bear Lake County deputy sheriff, said the victim and other members of his family were running a small logging operation about seven miles up Fish Haven Canyon near the small resort town of Fish Haven.

Lloyd said a logging truck was being loaded and that when a log was set onto the truck, it knocked another log off which struck Brown. Lloyd said Brown was dead at the scene of the accident.

The loggers were reportedly logging fire off a side hill for shipment to Utah. The logs were hauled to the bottom of the canyon for loading onto the truck.

Brown was reportedly standing about 15 feet away from the truck when the log rolled from it, Lloyd said.

The victim's body has been transferred to Bird Funeral Home, Hailey, where services are pending.

Paratroops recapture capital

SAIGON (UPI)—The Saigon command said today government paratroopers rushed unopposed into the stone-walled Quang Tri Citadel, recapturing the provincial capital held by the Communists for 86 days and sending North Vietnamese troops fleeing to safety toward the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ). However, field reports said the announcement was premature and there was still heavy fighting going on inside the city.

"The house-to-house fighting in Quang Tri continued today as in the past 12 days," one officer said.

Another indication the Communists were not ready to give up was a new Communist artillery attack on the ancient imperial capital—of Hue, 35 miles south of Quang Tri. Five civilians were wounded in the barrage.

Some officials have predicted the Communists will try to outflank the government column moving toward Quang Tri and launch a major attack on Hue, South Vietnam's third largest city located 400 miles north of Saigon.

The Communists were expected to put up a major fight for Quang Tri, the only South Vietnamese provincial capital ever controlled by the North Vietnamese. The Communists overran the city and the province on May 1, one month after the start of the current offensive.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu launched the counterattack against Communist forces in Quang Tri on June 28, sending 20,000 government troops north from Hue with orders to recapture the area by Sept. 19.

The Citadel, a 500-yard square stone structure dating back to the 19th century, was the core of Communist resistance in Quang Tri. North Vietnamese troops were well dug in inside the structure, depending on the thick walls and an elaborate bunker system to protect them from allied artillery and air power as well as a ground attack.

The Saigon command said elements of the 2,000-man paratrooper force ordered to recapture the structure got inside the walls through a hole blown by a laser-guided bomb from a U.S. fighter-bomber.

"We're in the Citadel and we're going to clear up every house and every hole," a paratrooper officer told a UPI correspondent at a command post just south of Quang Tri. "Our airborne entered the Citadel at Quang Tri at 10:20 today (10:20 p.m. EDT Monday) and we now control the city of Quang Tri," said Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, the official spokesman for the Saigon command.

The command said the North Vietnamese defenders fled to the west and the northwest along an escape route purposely left open by government troops.

However, other sources in Saigon and from the northern front said the paratroopers met heavy Communist fire when they tried to rush the Citadel.

Prospects dim for any cease-fire

SAIGON (UPI) — Prospects appear dim for any cease-fire in the Indochina conflict before the U.S. presidential election Nov. 7 despite the secret talks under way in Paris.

The war may even intensify before that date.

At least one well-informed U.S. military source believes the Communists will make another bid to capture the old imperial capital of Hue before mid-October.

A civilian expert on North Vietnam expects a wave of Communist terrorism in South Vietnam's cities, including Saigon, before the election. He also sees another attempt to capture An Loc.

Whatever they do, will be designed for maximum visibility," an American officer said. This, he believes, is the reason for the random repeated Communist shelling of Hue.

Optimists among the Hanoi watchers see a prospect for a cease-fire in Indochina next year. Pessimists among them believe the war will drag along for four or five more years.

But few American military or civilian officials in Vietnam expect any serious negotiations by the Communists until after the U.S. election.

The U.S. naval blockade and renewed bombing of North Vietnam may be pinching Hanoi but there is no sign of it yet on the battlefield. North Vietnamese troops have plentiful supplies and ammunition and are receiving replacements for some of the men they lose.

One prisoner of war told of making the trip from Hanoi to the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) in eight days late last month. He indicated that most of his 300-mile journey was by truck. Despite the intense bombing of roads and bridges, traffic still is moving in North Vietnam.

And some supplies are getting through the air and naval blockade into North Vietnam. Chinese freighters lying outside the ring of American mines around North Vietnam's harbors are being unloaded onto what the U.S. Navy calls "wiblics," a named derived from the acronym for "water borne logistics craft."

Destroyers have been attacking the "wiblics" and sinking some of them, but apparently not enough, since U.S. Marine AH-1 Sea Cobra helicopter gunships were assigned to the job for the first time recently.

Even without additional supplies there is no indication the North Vietnamese will be unable to sustain the present level of their battlefield activity through the U.S. election.

Supplies for the Communist offensive launched April 1 were already in place ahead of it. In Quang Tri and Thua Thien provinces the Communists are thought to be drawing on supply stocks in caches in the A Shau and Khe Sanh valleys.

Walks Death Valley

FURNACE CREEK RANCH, Calif. (UPI)—"I never want to see this place again. Never again. This is terrible."

Bill Emmerton bathed his blistered, bleeding feet in alcohol today, wincing from the pain.

Emmerton, an Australian-born health food buff and physical endurance record-setter, had just finished a 115-mile walk across Death Valley late Monday night, covering the distance in "2 days, 15 hours and 1 minute," he said.

He claimed a record for walking across the storied desert, the lowest and often the hottest place in North America. If upheld, it can stand beside his record for running 130 miles across the valley in 1968, in three days of running and resting.

Cyclamate loss won in House

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Opponents called it a "boondoggle," but the House passed 177 to 170 Monday a bill to compensate bottlers, farmers and others who lost money in the 1969 ban on cyclamates.

The cost of the bill, which still must pass the Senate, was estimated at from $100 million to "many times that."

The legislation would authorize growers, manufacturers, packers and distributors of foods and drinks prepared with cyclamates to collect for direct and indirect losses resulting from the federal ban. Amounts would be determined by the U.S. Court of Claims.

Food and drink producers widely used cyclamic acid and its salts as a non-fattening sugar substitute until scientists found the additive caused urinary cancer in rats.

Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., headed opponents of the measure, who said the way would be opened for future claims whenever the government acts to protect public health.

Celler argued manufacturers using cyclamates had ample warning over several years that the sugar substitute might be found dangerous to health.

"This is a case where businessmen skated on thin ice," the Judiciary Committee chairman said. "They tumbled in. And now they are expecting the government to fish them out. This is a boondoggle."

Old-time celebration planned at Fairfield

FAIRFIELD — An old fashioned celebration including a pie eating contest, greased pole climb and beard growing contest is scheduled, Aug. 11-13 at Fairfield.

The three days are set aside for Fairfield's annual 4-H Fair and Celebration.

Although preparations for the best beard contest are well underway, chairman LeRoy Packham said beard growers can still sign up. The contest will be judged Aug. 13.

A horseshoe contest also will be Aug. 13 on the west side of the telephone company building. Al Glanders is chairman of the contest for which trophies will be awarded.

The chamber of commerce is in charge of a breakfast from 7 to 10 a.m. Aug. 13, reports Walt Tunous, chairman. He also said the Teen Club will be in charge of a small carnival near the Legion Hall.

The American Legion Auxiliary will have a hamburger stand set up on Aug. 12 and 13 and there will be a dance at the Legion Hall the night of the 12th.

The contest for the longest fish will start Aug. 5 and run through 6 p.m. Aug. 12. The fish must be caught during those days and must be registered at the Western Auto Store or Fairfield Drug. The two stores will award prizes for the longest fish caught by a person up to 12 years of age and to the person over 12 years of age.

Other events scheduled and their chairmen are greased pig contest, Jay Lee; greased pole climb, Ralph Gibbons; log falling and cutting, T. T. Wokersien; Tug of war, Wes Fields; pie eating contest, Sheriff Paul Cox, and street races, Gene Sullivan. The celebration committee reports a chairman is still needed for the arm wrestling contest.

A best bale of hay contest will be held Aug. 12 at the 4-H Fair. Three categories, alfalfa, alfalfa and grass mix, and straight grass, will be judged. The bales will be sold at the fat stock sale and the money donated to the 4-H fund.

Agricultural products should be taken to the Legion Hall on Aug. 10.

Big city mayors back Nixon revenue sharing proposals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today won support and praise for his revenue sharing proposals at a morning meeting with big city mayors and local government officials.

Nixon called the mayors to the White House for a briefing before they went to Capitol Hill to testify on revenue sharing legislation now before the Senate Finance Committee.

Mayor Lou Welch of Houston led reporters after the 45-minute session "there is no more urgent matter before Congress in its waning days that affects the lives of people in urban areas." A Democrat, Welch praised Nixon for his "leadership which has brought the legislation to a point where we believe it will be passed before Labor Day."

Mayor Sam Massell of Atlanta said the mayors — which included only three Republicans — "were all together in agreeing to support this legislation" as it appears before the Senate.

"We agreed to support it wholeheartedly and in unity," he added.

Massell said Nixon agreed to a non-artisan and non-political program "which could not be passed without the strong supports of Democrats."

Mrs. Gladys Spellman of Prince Georges County, Md., president of the National Association of Counties, said it was "an excellent meeting."

She said that Nixon had been "a great leader in revenue sharing — and this comes from a Democrat."

N. Viet buildup proceeds

PARIS (UPI) — The U.S. peace negotiating mission said today that while North Vietnam refused to accept a cease-fire, it was building up its military forces in the northernmost provinces of South Vietnam.

In a press statement, the American delegation said it had evidence that North Vietnam has increased the number of its divisions deployed in the South from 10 to 12 since April.

The other (Communist) side frequently refers to what it described as U.S. "responsibilities," the statement said. It referred to North Vietnamese and Viet Cong insistence that a cease-fire was impossible without a parallel agreement on South Vietnam's political future.

"It would be well if they considered their own responsibilities for sustaining and intensifying military operations in South Vietnam. Such operations have already resulted in enormous number of casualties and devastated towns in the South, and the prospect of this continuing must dismay international opinion."

Cemetery hit

BOISE (UPI) — Vandals knocked over 60 headstones and caused other damage over the weekend at the Dry Creek Cemetery here.

The vandals stole a typewriter and messed up a card file of gravesite owners. The damage was estimated at about $3,000.

Missing files were located scattered about the grounds. Deputy Ron Peters said some of the gravestones were broken when they were knocked over.

TF man arrested on drug warrant

TWIN FALLS — An 18-year-old Twin Falls man was arrested Monday and charged with illegal delivery and possession with intent to deliver a controlled substance.

Leon Smith, director of the Twin Falls City-County Drug Control Unit and prosecuting attorney, said David Dean Moorehead was arraigned on the charge before Judge Reed Maughan Monday morning.

The warrant had been outstanding since early June when about 20 area people were arrested in a county-wide crackdown on illegal drug traffic.

Demo speaks

TWIN FALLS — Democratic senatorial candidate Byron Johnson will speak today at the College of Southern Idaho.

Andrus officiates

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus officiated at grand opening ceremonies today for the Snake River Canyon United Campgrounds, USA.

According to Larry Anderson, owner of the 125-unit vacation facility, ceremonies began at 2 p.m. with the dedication and ribbon cutting by the governor, followed by an open house for the public.

The campground is located near Interstate 80, nine miles east of Twin Falls. It covers 10 acres.

Voter aid planned

COEUR D'ALENE — The League of Women Voters is publishing a primary election voter's guide, it was announced this weekend.

Meeting in Coeur d'Alene over the weekend, the league's state board announced the non-partisan literature would be available at chambers of commerce, county clerk offices, libraries, post offices and Indian agencies throughout the state.

The information will include registration and voting material, plus information on the candidates for U. S. congress.

2 TF men on panel

BOISE — Two Twin Falls men have been named to a statewide resource development panel.

Included among nine new members to the Human Resources Development Project under the Association of Idaho Cities are Paul Ostyn and

Theater entry probed

Roy Roper, owner of the theater, said thieves broke into the building sometime early Sunday morning, gaining access through a skylight.

He said they caused an estimate $300 to $500 damage in breaking doors, locks and casings, but obtained little of value from the building.

Thieves efforts to open the safe failed, Roper said.

Not So Old

There should be no surprise in it. Nostalgia is defined as a longing for things, persons or situations not present. It's the good old days, the past with the unpleasant washed out, a time when all the memories were merry.

But one way to get nostalgic is to wax it. Wax can mean the phonograph record and the phonograph record is showing that in the pop music business nostalgia can be mixed.

There was nostalgia in the gang gathering around the piano for "Down by the Old Mill Stream" and other airs of a proper atmosphere; there was nostalgia for the musicals of the Twenties, the Big Bands of the Thirties but now — and may the shade of Edison rest — there is nostalgia for the rock 'n' roll sounds of the Fifties.

There is no reason to doubt the authenticity of the report. It comes from radio stations which depend on income derived partly through the choice of their records.

Rock revival concerts, featuring Bill Haley and the Comets, Danny and the Juniors, all outfits like that, are playing regularly to large, enthusiastic audiences.

There has to be distaste to some at the thought of a couple in their mid-30s looking at each other during one of these get-togethers to murmur in unison, "our song." At the time rock first started assaulting ears those who said, "It can't last" gave it a month at the most. It just hasn't happened.

In the disc jockey business, the records are known as "golden oldies." Their popularity on radio programs has increased their intrinsic value to those who have held onto them. Just as a market grew for the classics in the early 78 rpm days of the phonograph, a market is growing for these records.

Several authorities in the field say that the records of the Fifties are popular now because contemporary songwriters have run out of ideas. Dick Clark, the 42-year-old perpetual musical messiah to the pre-teen and young teen, compared the present era to that just before the arrival of the Beatles.

He is waiting for the new sound. It would be too much to hope for silence, even in Twin Falls.

The Labyrinth

Role of the United States government in research activities has grown tremendously in the last 25 years, until today it is overwhelmingly the dominant force—both by demand and by contributions—but few persons know how extensive it really is.

Studies seem to be continuously underway to catalog the vast network of research laboratories wholly owned by the government, and redirect or eliminate activities which may have gone astray through lack of good management.

Not only does the government effectively control the future of many important scientific projects through its research efforts, but by monopolizing the talent and dollars available also effectively determines what private research — that portion not partially financed by government grants — will be able to do.

MR. SPECTATOR

Those Were The Days

Believe it? Dixie fried chicken (boneless) along with shoestring potatoes, hot biscuits and preserves all for only 25 cents. Well, it's true, and we have a copy of a Times-News advertisement just before New Year's Day of 1933 to prove it.

The "evidence" was sent along to us by John H. Rhoads, who lives at 514 North Ninth in Buhl. He also sent along a copy of the menu at Wray's Cafe, the eating place which was formerly in the downtown section about where Roper's is now located. It was also one of the best eating places in Twin Falls at that time.

Mr. Rhoads said he had read with interest stories we had printed in Mr. Spectator which involved other menu items and thought we would be interested in this one. Well, it was the menu in Wray's Cafe on New Year's Eve 1933—and we are interested. We know you will be—so we get on with some excerpts from it.

For instance—a crab meat cocktail or a lobster cocktail was 25 cents while a fruit cocktail was the same price. A chicken salad for 35 cents and a shrimp salad 40 cents with a potato salad going for 15 cents and a combination salad for 35 cents.

Sandwiches? A clubhouse was offered for 50 cents and a lettuce and tomato for 15 cents. A steak sandwich was 20 cents and a bacon and egg sandwich went for the same price. Cold beef, sausage, Denver, hamburger and fried ham were 15 cents each while a sardine sandwich was 20 cents. There was no extra charge for toasting.

A bowl of bread and milk was 15 cents and home made chili was 15 cents a bowl. Two fried eggs were 25 cents and any breakfast food with real cream was 15 cents.

Malted Milk was 10 cents and an egg malted milk 15 cents. Home made pie or cake was 10 cents a cut and a chocolate nut sundae was 10 cents. Pie with cheese was 15 cents. Orange or tomato juice was 10 cents and milk was five cents. American fried, french fried, hashed brown or shoe string potatoes were 10 cents an order.

Special T-Bone steak was 75 cents, the same price for a Tenderloin. A club steak was 65 cents and an order of fried Eastern oysters was 50 cents. Breaded veal cutlets were 30 cents, fried hamburger steak was 35 cents, pan fried liver and bacon and cottage fried pork chops with applesauce were 35 cents each.

So there you have it. Must have been a big event at Wray's on New Year's Eve 1933.

NICE KITTY

A gal we know went over to the Idaho First Drive-in bank lot the other day to get into her car. While adjusting her seat belt she heard the meow of a cat. It persisted, so she got out and looked under the car. No Cat! But she still heard it, so she opened the hood and there on the engine sat a kitten.

She took it off the engine, placed it over near a tree, closed the hood and got back in the car. While adjusting her seat belt she heard the meow again. Honking the horn did no good. So once again up comes the hood. The kitten was there. She lifted it out and put it by the tree again.

Back into the car, adjusting the seatbelt, and the meow again! Up comes the hood again. This time another lady just happened to pass and, seeing the problem, asked if she could hold the kitten while the gal we know got in the car again. This time she made it out of the lot, thanks to the kind and considerate lady who may be holding the kitten yet, so far as we know.

How do we know that such a fantastic story is true? The gal in the car was Mrs. Spectator!

Does McGovern Have Staff Control?

WASHINGTON — A telegram from Sen. George McGovern apologizing for an "unauthorized and ill-advised" letter sent to the National Association of Retail Grocers (NARG) over McGovern's signature is raising fresh questions about the Democratic Presidential nominee's control over his own staff. The telegram, dated June 23, started with this forthright apology: "The letter you received from my office under date of June 1 was unauthorized and ill-advised. I very much regret the concern it caused."

That "regret" is understandable, in view of the offensive language in the June 1 letter to Frank D. Register, executive director of NARG. Replying to Register's complaint about McGovern's support of the lettuce boycott, the letter scolded Register: "You should know, Mr. Register, that I have competent legal advice and you need not worry about me on that score."

McGovern obviously never read that language, and much more in the same vein, when he routinely signed the June 1 letter. But when NARG circulated it to 40 state grocer associations, representing 35,000 concerns with 110,000 independent grocery stores, complaints came pouring in.

That led to the complete reversal from hawkish to dovish line in the June 23 telegram. Praising independent grocers, McGovern called the "one of the last remaining bastions of private enterprise" and said the Federal government should "encourage" their economic stability.

Who composed the original letter, with its hints that retail grocers "were guilty of monopoly meat and other commodity pricing practices," is a secret locked in the files. But critics of McGovern's free-wheeling staff, including some of his staunchest party supporters, see an unhappy similarity in the care of the grocers and the much more important case of Lawrence F. O'Brien, who was eased out as Democratic national chairman by fast McGovern-staff footwork over McGovern's private wishes and best interests.

A post-convention meeting of Jewish delegates called by Sen. George McGovern's forces partially backfired when a top adviser, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, suggested that anti-McGovern Jewish Democrats are worried more about tax loopholes than Israel.

About 100 national convention delegates met at the Doral Hotel with two of McGovern's leading Jewish supporters: Howard Samuels, a 1974 aspirant for governor of New York, a Cleveland millionaire Howard Metzenbaum, 1970 Ohio Democratic Senatorial nominee.

But the star attraction was Ribicoff. In brief remarks, he offended non-McGovern delegates by claiming that Jewish opposition to McGovern stems from apprehension not about his Israeli position but about his tax reform.

OLD HAT

ANDREW TULLY

Ray Of Hope

(Editor's Note: Mr. Tully is on vacation. Today's column is written by Mrs. Jean Westwood, Democratic National Chairman.)

The question I am most frequently asked by the political reporters in my role as national chairman goes something like this:

"How can you hope to take on an incumbent President who has journeyed to Peking, to Moscow, and to so many other lands in quest of a generation of peace?"

Of course we applaud as do all Americans these efforts to attain international dialogue and understanding; indeed, we pray for their success.

But every time I pick up a newspaper or switch on the news and watch Mr. Nixon reviewing some honor guard somewhere, I cannot help but be reminded of those little pink slips you see around every office telephone — the little printed memos that say, "While you were out."

The desk in that Oval Office must be a foot thick with those slips each time our President chooses to return to his nation's capital from another glorious adventure abroad.

Mr. President, while you were out, we learned that more than 5 million Americans remain out of work.

Mr. President, while you were out, the price of food increased sharply over the previous month.

Mr. President, while you were out, federal housing programs have become a national scandal marked by fraud, inefficiency and incompetence — and your Secretary of Housing and Urban Development has confessed that his urban renewal programs are a failure and that HUD might have to wash its hands of 20 cities across the nation.

Mr. President, while you were out, Congress discovered that the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration was embezzled in scandal: mispent and unspent funds that never reached their planned targets. The Justice Department could only say that while crime is increasing, it's doing so more slowly.

Mr. President while you were out, we continued to impound more than $11 billion in Congressionally appropriated funds — including a billion dollars desperately needed to help the cities with housing and mass transit. You may, however, wish to release these funds at your discretion as are not covered by the campaign spending reform law.

I often think it must be a terrible disappointment to our President to discover that America — just as he left it — is awaiting him on every flight back to Andrews Air Force Base.

It is not simply a matter of Mr. Nixon's dramatic flair for international diplomacy subordinating the domestic crisis in America, although that is worrisome enough. It is that Mr. Nixon has chosen simply to ignore the American people as individuals, as human beings in their cities, suburbs, towns, and

Instead of openness we find concealment; instead of consultation we are handed Presidential proclamations; instead of encouraging popular participation in the decisions of government, we find the administration and the Republican Party continuing the practices of exclusion and exclusiveness, suppression and secrecy, that have been its hallmark for as long as we can remember.

It is a mark of terrible insecurity — and well it might be. For as Socrates said, "If a man does not know to what port he is sailing, then indeed any wind is unfavorable."

PAUL HARVEY

The Good 747

The British Concorde, the faster-than-sound next-generation airliner, has been flying around the world selling itself.

How does it feel, Americans, for us to be riding in the BACK seat?

Americans were stunned when an ill-advised Congress refused financing for a super-sonic airliner.

But our preoccupation with the passenger plane that got shot down before it ever took off has distracted our attention from a supreme achievement.

Though I try to deny any vestige of superstition, subconsciously it's there — trying to dissuade me from saying what I am about to say. The present queen of the skyway fleet — the Boeing 747 — is the first history-making new-generation airliner ever to fly 25 billion miles without a fatality.

A good year for commercial civil aviation was 1971; lower accident rate per 100,000 hours flown than any time in 11 years. But during the two-year lifetime of the 747 there were 102 commercial airline accidents, eight fatal ones, involving planes other than 747s.

Despite an unprecedented degree of electronic sophistication and structural innovations, the superliner kept flying with a most minimal number of modification bulletins and no fatalities. Meanwhile, this superplane was setting a host of new records — for passenger haulage per flight, gross weight lifted and so on.

These are days when what's wrong with civil aviation is getting investigated, spotlighted, headlined. But something excitingly "right" has been happening, also.

The 747 has lived up to our highest anticipation on safety, performance and direct operating costs.

Ten years ago when the 747 was first studied, airline traffic was growing at an average rate of 15 per cent per year. Anticipating the need to decongest skyways with larger planes carrying more seats each, Boeing timed this takeoff perfectly.

Today almost 200 747s are flying, all but 60 of them for United States airlines.

In more than a half-million flight hours these immense planes have carried 18 million passengers.

Six of those planes have flown more than 3 million miles each — 37 of them have flown more than 2.5 million. Each 747 now in use is in the air an average nine hours every day.

The cost per mile is 82 per cent more for this big bird, but the average passenger load has increased 230 per cent — so it is paying its way and then some. Those costs, by the way, precisely match Boeing's 1966 predictions.

Whatever air travel problems remain unresolved, it seemed appropriate to report today on the two-year shakeout of the good ship 747, the most reliable, most supersonic innovation in air transportation since the DC-3.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Anti T-B Drug

Dear Dr. Thosteson: As the result of a positive reaction to a tuberculin skin test, I have been advised to take a drug, isoniazid, for one year.

Although it is to be supplied to me without cost, I have heard some things about the drug that concern me. I would appreciate hearing from you. — T. G. W.

The positive tuberculin test signifies that you have been exposed to T. B. Now the goal is to make sure you don't develop an active case of the disease yourself.

Yes, side effects are possible with isoniazid. It is a powerful medication. But side effects are possible with virtually any medication you can name. (And a lot that you probably can't.)

The point is that the side effects occur primarily with large doses, so the thing to do is to observe the patient periodically to make sure that side effects don't start to develop.

The effectiveness of isoniazid as an anti-tuberculosis treatment has been well established. By all means go ahead with the treatment. Just take care to go in for checkups whenever you are told to.

Dear Doctor: If a person has a hiatal hernia, would they suffer a chest pains and severe stomach spasms and cramps, bringing on retching and nausea?

Sleeping in an upright position helps, but what foods and liquids are allowed in the problem. Can you help me? Mrs. V. P. H.

The symptoms are "all possible. In general, a hiatal hernia often closely resembles an ulcer in symptoms. Diet — a bland, non-irritating diet, just as for ulcers — is usually advisable.

If you have a hiatal hernia, then you'll find my booklet useful, "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It." Send 25 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for a copy.

But if you aren't sure whether you have hiatal hernia but are guessing from the symptoms, then by all means your first step is to have your doctor diagnose the situation.

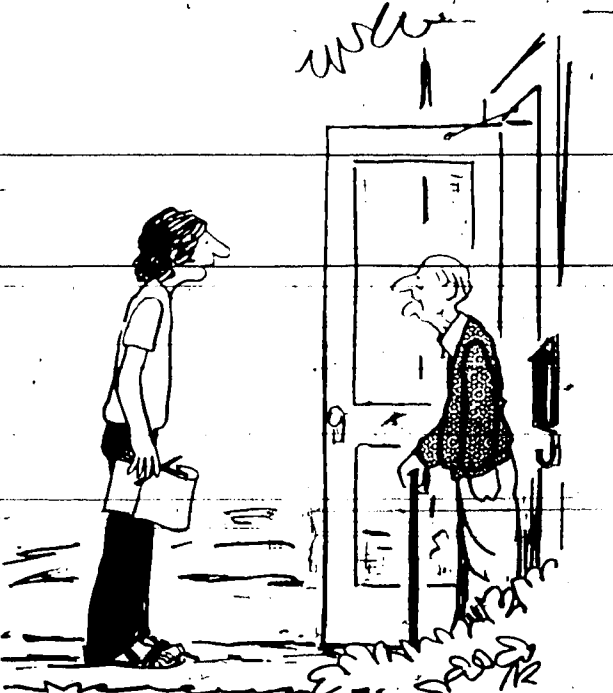

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What would you do with a child, going on 3, who refuses to be toilet trained? He has complete bladder control, but the moment I put him on his potty chair, he tenses up and will not go. As a result he is so constipated that he cannot go normally and a week passes without his bowels moving. We give him plenty of fruit juices, etc., but nothing helps. What would you suggest? — Mrs. G.

First, don't make a big issue of it in front of him. Second, he may, in the past, have had some rectal discomfort from a hard movement, and this would presumably continue now with his constipation.

So you might try an infant glycerin suppository every second or third day. This should provoke a soft movement. Perhaps not every time but at least some of the time.

If he gradually realizes that these movements are without discomfort, you may find the battle is won.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Oh, I'm sorry—I'm a McGovern volunteer working to get young voters registered!"

Nixon avoids debate

By United Press International
While Sen. George S. McGovern and administration leaders sparred from Washington to Alaska, the White House said President Nixon has no intentions of debating the Democratic presidential candidate.

McGovern at Custer, S.D., said Nixon's Vietnam policy of seeking release of U.S. prisoners by bombing North Vietnam was "the height of folly."

In Anchorage, Alaska, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew criticized McGovern's proposals for draft dodger amnesty and reform of marijuana possession laws.

Republican National Chairman Robert J. Dole said in Washington that McGovern has taken "consistent stands against governments friendly to the United States, and in strong favor of any government antagonistic to the United States."

With the first campaign salvos since Nixon tapped Agnew to complete the GOP ticket still ringing, the White House confirmed Monday that Nixon would not engage in debates.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told a White House news briefing that Nixon's campaign director, Clark MacGregor, was presenting the President's view "in an authoritative way" when he said last week that Nixon would not debate McGovern.

McGovern said Friday that he hoped Nixon, a long time "debater," would discuss the issues with him on the same platform. MacGregor responded that it would not happen.

McGovern was working out campaign strategy today at Custer with his running mate, Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri.

In other political developments, the Republican National Platform Committee named 14 persons to head seven subcommittees to draft specific planks for next month's convention and McGovern outlined his campaign team.

Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., Platform Committee chairman, said the general headings for the planks will be human concerns; human rights and responsibilities; building a greater prosperity; community and national development; agriculture and the environment; responsive government; and national security and foreign policy.

McGovern said Gary Hart would be his campaign manager; Frank Mankiewicz, political director; Henry Kimelman, national finance director; and Lawrence F. O'Brien, national campaign chairman.

McGovern said his wife Eleanor will have a "major role" and new Democratic national chairwoman Jean Westwood will be campaign overseer, with a special emphasis on women.

At his first news conference since winning the nomination, McGovern said, if elected, he would go to Hanoi to negotiate the release of prisoners if that was necessary.

"President Nixon, for three and a half years, has been begging Hanoi to release the prisoners and bombing at the same time. I don't think the two go together," McGovern said.

Dole said he was "puzzled" by McGovern's foreign policy proposals.

"The senator promises to withdraw support from Greece, thereby weakening the U.S. presence in the Mediterranean and jeopardizing the security of Israel, also a consistent McGovern goal," the GOP chairman said. "And seeks to extend recognition to countries such as Castro's communist Cuba. This stand is consonant with his strongly sympathetic posture toward the Communist government of Hanoi."

KURT WALDHEIM
Moscow visitor

Waldheim, Bush discuss issue

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The United States has expressed satisfaction that U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim did not intend to lend credibility to North Vietnamese reports that U.S. planes are bombing North Vietnamese dikes.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush, sent by Washington to take up the issue with Waldheim, was asked if the incident would change the relationship between the U.S. government and the secretary general, said:

"Not if I have anything to do with it and I expect that I will."

The whole thing came up at a news conference Monday when Waldheim was asked about concern he had expressed in Moscow about possible bombing of dikes in North Vietnam. The nation's food supply is dependent largely on the dike system controlling the Red River.

"I said in Moscow that if those allegations were correct—and a number of reports came forth in this respect—I deeply deplored such bombings and appealed for a stop to them. Because if the dikes were destroyed, it would mean enormous disaster for the population of that area and I think we all wish that to be avoided."

"So again, I am deeply concerned about this. I can tell you—that through private unofficial channels also we were informed that the dikes are being bombed and we were informed also that even in cases where the dikes are not directly bombed, the nearby bombing causes cracking of the dams and that in this way, the result is the same as if the dikes were bombed directly."

Before sending Bush to speak with Waldheim, Secretary of State William P. Rogers charged in Washington that "these allegations are part of a carefully-planned campaign by the North Vietnamese and their supporters to give worldwide circulation to this falsehood. We cannot consider helpful any public statements giving further currency to these fourth-hand reports."

Bush spent an hour with Waldheim and said later the Secretary General had "made it clear he did not intend in any way to give credibility to these charges."

"I believe he intended to say that if it was going on, it ought to stop. This is an explanation the United States can accept."

The United States has always maintained that it has never intentionally bombed any dikes inside North Vietnam and that if any were hit it was accidental or because part of the dike system was located next to a military target.

Railroad merge plans aired

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—A plan to merge three bankrupt railroads into one carrier serving eastern Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey was proposed in U.S. District Court here Monday.

Trustees of the Lehigh Valley Railroad proposed a merger with the Reading and Central of New Jersey railroads, all of which are being reorganized under federal bankruptcy statutes. Lehigh trustees said the merger would eliminate substantial "duplication of operating facilities."

Trustees of all three railroads estimated earlier that payment of "fixed charges" would result in an operating loss of $27 million annually, while a merger would result in a break-even "annual savings of at least $27 million."

In addition, they said, the larger system would be attractive for a merger with the bankrupt Erie Lackawanna Railroad. While the trustees had no firm commitment from Erie Lackawanna officials the say "it could become one example of a railroad that could become significantly interested in becoming part of a larger system."

Peace talk set

VIENTIANE (UPI)—The Royal Lao Government, hoping to bring the Laotian Communists to the negotiating table, agreed Monday to discuss the Pathet Lao's five-point peace program, authoritative sources said.

The decision to officially reply to the Pathet Lao's peace program was made at a special cabinet meeting Monday presided over by Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma, sources said.

In his July 12 message to his half brother, Souvanna Phouma, Pathet Lao leader Prince Souphanouvong called for an urgent resumption of the suspended peace talks but demanded acceptance of their peace program which they issued two years ago, official sources said.

Delayed trial faces roadblock

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The much delayed Pentagon Papers trial today faced the possibility of another roadblock over a secret report of eavesdropping by federal agents.

Apparently only the judge and the Justice Department knew the details of the report. The judge indicated it was not aimed deliberately at trial figures, but was an unsought byproduct of another investigation.

Lawyers for the defendants, Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo, immediately demanded a hearing into the report.

After months devoted to pre-trial hearings, the trial is nearing the argument stage. A jury has been seated, and only selection of six alternate jurors remains before testimony can begin.

Another hearing could again delay the trial.

Apparently, the judge intended to decide whether or not to hold the hearing, by ruling on whether the eavesdropping might violate the privacy of the attorney-client relationship.

It has been well over a year since the Pentagon Papers, classified research into the Vietnam War, were printed in the New York Times and other newspapers.

Ellsberg and Russo have been charged with theft, conspiracy and espionage. They admit being behind the leak, but deny what they did was a criminal act.

Late Friday, the government filed an affidavit declaring there had been no electronic surveillance "except as may hereafter be disclosed to the court."

Defense attorneys objected to the affidavit Monday as too vague, and the judge then revealed that the government had already made a report, in the privacy of the judge's chambers.

The judge said someone associated with the defense in the trial had been overheard during electronic surveillance by federal agents. He would not say whether it was an attorney, consultant or employee.

Demos conduct strategy meet

CUSTER, S.D. (UPI)—Democratic presidential nominee Sen. George McGovern called in his running mate, Sen. Thomas Eagleton, for a one-day strategy session today—their first such meeting since the party's convention in Miami Beach.

Eagleton was due at McGovern's vacation retreat in the Black Hills for a round of meetings with the candidate and his staff and a 1:30 P.M. EDT news conference.

McGovern said he had nothing specific in mind to talk over with Eagleton but he wanted to "map out roughly what his role will be" in the campaign and to chart out areas where Eagleton could campaign most effectively.

Although the two candidates have basically similar ideological records, some differences in tone and language already have emerged. Eagleton, for instance, said he would not have declared—as McGovern did—that he would "beg" rather than "bomb Hanoi" for release of U.S. prisoners of war.

One of the jobs facing them was to develop mutually acceptable campaign themes that will keep them on the offensive against the Nixon administration.

At a news conference Monday, McGovern promised he would "run a campaign in which on every issue I call the record on Mr. Nixon." He singled out "inflation, unemployment, the war, secrecy in government and big business domination of this administration."

The latter was the issue McGovern hit the hardest Monday. He charged that the Republican administration had done special favors for big business giants such as the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. and Lockheed Corp.

McGovern challenged Nixon to publish the names of contributors to a $10 million campaign kitty for the Republicans. He said although he said he had no proof he believed that Lockheed and ITT would be among the names.

McGovern also sought to turn the tables on administration criticism of his proposal to beg for the release of POWs.

"You know what President Nixon has done," he said. "He's been begging Hanoi to release the prisoners and bombing at the same time. I don't think the two go together."

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Ramsey Clark, who served as President Lyndon B. Johnson's attorney general, will leave today on a two-week trip to North Vietnam.

Clark will travel in an international group that also will include citizens from Ireland, Denmark, France and Sweden.

Freeze device used

MOSCOW (UPI)—An internal freezing device was used in the Soviet's Venus 8 as it approached the searing surface of Earth's planetary neighbor, the government newspaper Izvestia said Monday.

Working on the principle that the colder the spacecraft could be maintained ahead of time, the longer it would last in the heat, Soviet scientists equipped Venus 8 with a special mechanism which could be controlled from Earth, the paper said.

With the spacecraft nearly 180 million miles away and speeding toward a soft landing on Venus Saturday, "ground controllers gave a special command to freeze the apparatus from inside," it said.

"The Venusian apparatus looked very much like an ice chest... whatever the thermal pressure, the heat is felt gradually."

It gave no details of the type of equipment involved but added, "ordinary cooling systems are no good because it is too hot."

The remarks were the first explanation how the craft managed to survive surface temperatures up to 887 degrees and an atmospheric pressure about 60 times that on earth for nearly an hour. The newspaper said the signal had disappeared, but that "earth had already received the necessary information."

Asked why the Soviets did not originally chill the equipment even more in an attempt to extend the 50 minute transmission time, Western sources reasoned lower temperatures might have damaged the equipment before it reached the hot atmosphere.

Experimental crop shows promise as stock feed

By MIKE ROBERTSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An experimental grain crop being grown near Twin Falls may prove a boon to farmers growing livestock feed.

The grain is "triticale," a cross between red wheat and rye.

The name, according to L. H. Haslam, general manager of Globe Feed and Seed Co., Twin Falls, is a combination of the Latin names of the two grains, Triticum and Secale.

A crop of triticale is being grown south of Twin Falls for the seed company by Don Glavin.

According to Haslam, the interesting thing about this year's crop is its unusual height. The plants are hitting the six foot high mark this year with almost no lodging, he claimed.

He said the lodging is low because the stalk is hearty and fairly thick.

Of interest to the livestock feeder, Haslam said is the fact that the grain is unusually high in available protein. He said it is finding increasing favor among cattle feeders for "green chop" and pasture feeding.

Last year, a crop grown by Glavin yielded about 103 bushels per acre as a grain crop after losing an estimated 20 per cent of the crop. A late May storm dropped three inches of snow on the grain.

Haslam said this year's crop looks even better than last year's, which reached a height of four feet.

He is especially excited about this year's crop because of its exceptional growth and potential for a second green chop cutting.

The grain can be planted either in the spring or fall. But if it is planted in the fall, the grower can pasture in the fall, pasture in the spring and then take green chop or harvest grain in the fall.

Haslam said, however, if the plant will grow the way this year's experimental crop has, green chop can be taken twice, with the first cutting early in the summer. If the crop is immediately fertilized and watered, another growth can be managed. The crop can be green chopped again in the fall.

Glavin's crop was seeded Sept. 15 after peas were taken off the land. The field was irrigated, disked and planted.

Haslam said the seeds germinated within five days. Glavin has irrigated the field seven times since this spring. He has also planted alfalfa in the field.

worked on that will stay green for 18 to 24 months.

A great amount of research is now being done on the plant in Oregon by Oregon State University, particularly Warren E. Kronstad, cereal's plant breeder.

"Potentially, triticale is great," Kronstad said. "However, it is not ready to go as a commercial crop today in the Pacific Northwest."

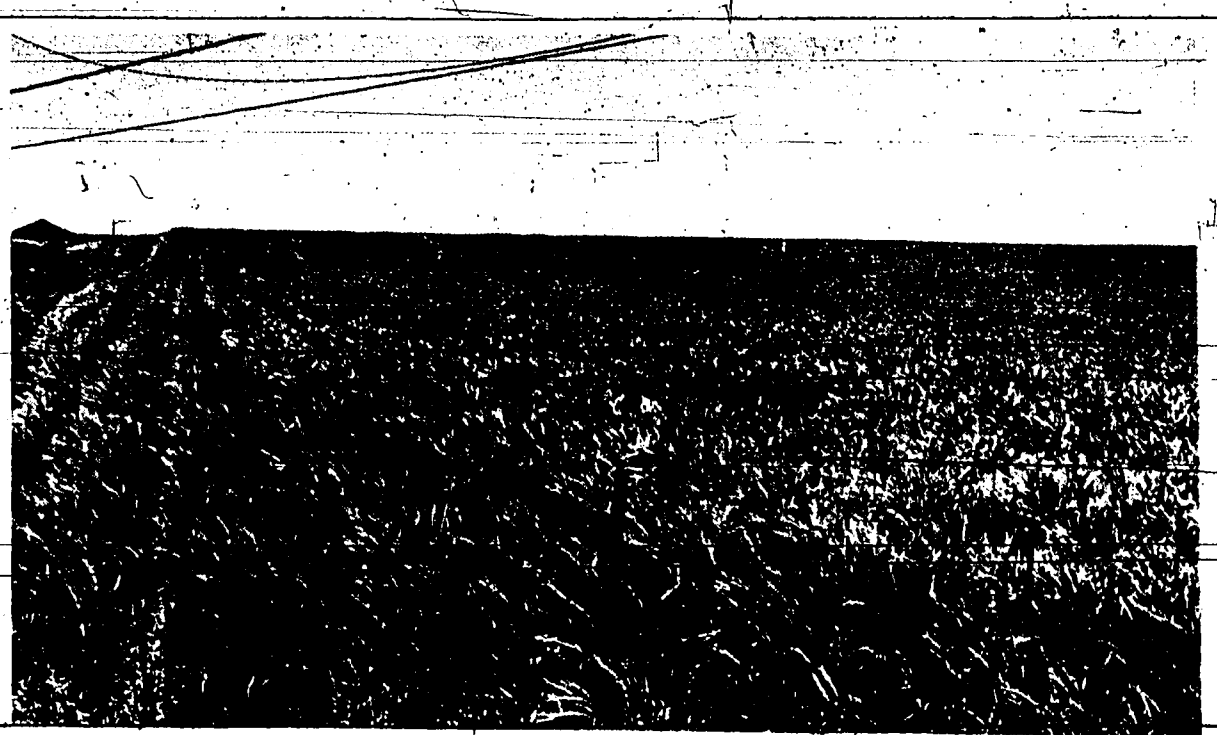

The type commercial crop he was referring to was for breakfast cereals or breads. It also does not make good milling flour.

This year 1,000 lines of 30 to 5 plants per line are being grown for tests around Pendleton and at the North Willamette Experiment station in Oregon.

After 1972 feed trials, Kronstad said he will be able to assess the future of triticale in the northwest.

For the man-made cereal, triticale, Kronstad said the best is yet to come.

And if experimentation in the Magic Valley proves triticale to be a producer for a long period of time, it may someday become the largest feed crop in the area.

Tall crop

TRITICALE grain grown by Don Glavin, south of Twin Falls stands six feet high. For comparison, L. H. Haslam, Globe Feed and Seed, who is six feet, five inches tall stands in the crop.

Big yield

LARGE HEAD on triticale grain makes for high yields. The grain is a cross between wheat and rye. The grain is "green chopped" and used for livestock feed. The grain is high in protein.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A young man signed "Going Bald in Lakewood" wrote that he was losing his hair. You told him that early baldness was hereditary, and there was nothing he could do about it.

Well, I, too, came from a family of bald-headed men, but when I married in 1907, my wife noticed that I was starting to lose my hair, so she told me to soak my head in a strong salt water solution every time I washed my hair and it would stop my hair from falling out. Well, I did as she said, and I never lost any hair after that.

I was born Jan. 22, 1883, which makes me past 89 years old. I kept that wife for over 50 years and I use a salt water rinse faithfully to this day, and still have a full head of hair.

THE REV. D. E. FINLEY Jonesburg, Mo.

DEAR REVEREND FINLEY: Congratulations on both counts. Whether you kept your hair because of your wife, or kept that wife because of your hair is anybody's guess, but the salt water rinse is news to me. I have heard of wives telling their husbands to go soak their heads. But in SALT water?

DEAR ABBY: I have heard that an ex-convict is barred from holding public office. Is that true? Also, does he lose his right to vote?

I was convicted of a felony, and served my time. That was nine years ago. I am straight now, and nothing in this world could make me break the law again.

Thank you in advance for any information you can give me.

WONDERING IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR WONDERING: Thru the prompt and courteous cooperation of your very able senator, Edward W. Brooke, I have learned that the conviction of a felony in Massachusetts does not thereafter bar one from holding public office or voting.

However, an individual convicted of corrupt practices (or bribery) with regard to elections is barred from voting, and holding public office for three years.

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad you published that letter from a bride of four months who had never had sex. Usually people are too ashamed to talk about it, so they keep it to themselves.

I had the same experience, only I was a virgin for nearly five years! I was young and naive at the time and kept thinking it was my fault for not being able to turn my husband on.

By the time I realized that he could be to blame, I had such an inferiority complex I didn't care if I lived or died.

I went to my parish priest and he said, "Pray to God and everything will be all right."

Then I went to my Bishop. He said, "Threaten to leave him and maybe he will shape up. If he doesn't, you have grounds for an annulment in the Catholic church."

I went to a doctor. He said, "Insist that your husband seek professional help—medical and psychological. If he refuses, leave him."

That's what I did. (He refused to get help so I left him.)

Tell that virgin bride of four months to do what I did—only not to wait so long.

Do-it-yourself fashions shown

PARIS (UPI)—If you cannot afford Paris high fashion, now you can do it yourself.

Designer Jacques Esterel opened the 1972 fall-winter high fashion shows at the stroke of midnight today with allegedly easy-to-make styles for girls with little dressmakers or sewing machines at home.

The winter shows continue today with presentations for private clients; store buyers and press by designer Ted Lapidus, Louis Feraud, Paco Rabanne, Marc Bohan for the Christian Dior salon and Rosette Mett for the Torrente salon.

In a swipe at mass-produced ready-to-wear, Esterel said only those who wear perfect sizes can squeeze into factory-made clothes and "if you are too fat, too thin, too tall, too short, all hope must be abandoned."

Esterel, who each season thinks of some new gimmick for his usually unconventional shows, said Venus de Milo, Sophia Loren and Brigitte Bardot never could fit into ready-to-wear clothes and "44 per cent of women today are in the same position."

"Already in the United States 88 per cent of the girls can sew, 25 per cent have sewing machines and on the average each woman makes three dresses per year herself," announced Esterel at his show.

Esterel's idea of easy-to-make high fashion is a series of squares, triangles and rectangles that, buttoned on shoulders and the sides, form mini dresses worn over black tights or somehow turn into trousers, jackets or coats.

"Every woman has the need to do something herself," said Esterel with a wave at one of his mannequins parading by in an evening dress consisting of two black wool triangles buttoned down the side with a strap halter to hold them around the neck. But Esterel cutting such a dress of incredibly beautiful French wool might make it look quite different than the Kansas City milkman's wife trying to do it herself.

Another do-it-yourself number consisted of two squares of striped black-and-white satin with holes for the arms. They formed a jacket with pointed hemline over a long black satin skirt, but don't ask me how. It all looked rather Pierre Cardin.

Esterel also showed a more conventional winter collection in the current Paris trend of more fullness. Coats were fuller than usual with wider collars and wider sleeves, some were rather blousy with wide belts.

The currently popular classic look was evident in narrow skirts with narrow leather belts topped by tailored jackets and white shirts with long pointed collars.

Cocktail dresses were all mini with pointed triangle hemlines and plunging necklines. Even shoes followed the triangle idea, two pointed pieces of leather shooting over the instep from platform soles.

Pearls seem to be the one kind of jewelry that goes with every new fall and winter collection from New York designers. Most designers have chosen cultured pearls to accessorize their new fashions.

Big surprise!

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—"Nothing could be a bigger surprise than the simple kindness of people we have met ever since we left New York."

That was the reaction of a New York City cab driver who fulfilled the dream of a decade by driving his cab across the land so his family could "see this beautiful country and learn about the people of the United States."

Fortunato DiMarco, 44, a native of Palermo, Sicily, who came to the U.S. in 1950, saved for nine years so he could drive his big yellow 1970 Ford cab to the Golden Gate. With him came his wife, Anna, and their two sons, Dominic, 18, and John, 12.

"I never thought I would see such variety in my lifetime," DiMarco said Sunday. "The plains and the mountains—so many different kinds of mountains. After 20 years, we are finally seeing it," he said.

"In New York," when I pick up people from San Francisco, they always tell me to come here, to see their city. And they are very proud of this city, not like New York people," DiMarco said.

"It is a peaceful, beautiful country," said Mrs. DiMarco. "People are relaxed and happy about their lives. They smile and have a good time instead of rush, rush, rush like New York City. It's crazy in New York City."

DiMarco told of a citation put on his windshield by a Salt Lake City traffic policeman after he had left his cab too long in a parking zone. It wasn't a summons, but a note saying: "Welcome to Salt Lake City. You're overparked, but it's okay because you're a guest of ours."

"Can you imagine such a thing," exclaimed DiMarco. "Why, in New York you can get 10 summons in two minutes. And not a one of them to say 'welcome to anything.'"

Second World War style shoes shown

PARIS (UPI) — It's back to World War II and the platform-soled shoe with high heels.

For the second season, Paris shoe designers are pushing those shoes of the 40's that bring memories of Carmen Miranda and Ginger Rogers.

Emanuel Ungaro's collection during this week's winter fashion shows will include black patent leather shoes with towering, straight heels, fat platform soles and decorations of little shiny cherries.

Christian Dior's shoe collection includes a black satin evening shoe with rhinestones dotting the platform sole.

The Louis Feraud cocktail shoe has a platform sole and chunky high heels. The shoe is made of black patent leather and silver lame stripes with a bow of silver lame.

Even Christian Dior's daytime "sensible" shoes have a thin platform sole and lower chunky heels.

The new pumps range from the extremely chunky, bizarre heels of Ungaro to towering heels at Yves Saint Laurent or to the more conservative medium heels and thin platform soles at Louis Feraud. Philippe Venet is trying a spectator pump that has the platform sole and straight high heel.

Boots still are around, clinging to the leg up to the knee, again with high heels and platform soles.

COLOR COMES TO GRAY HAIR

By Mary Sue Miller

A Lovely writes: I want to restore some color to my gray hair. I have heard of dye products and processes that slowly darken gray hair. What are the pros and cons of such methods?

The Answer: The big plus for dyes that gradually darken gray locks is that changes go unnoticed and give the illusion of natural color restoration. The dyes, formulated of metallic salts, do not penetrate but coat the hair shaft and build up color slowly via daily application. Once the desired shade is achieved the product is used as needed to maintain it and cover new growth.

Other plusses: These dyes are simple and quick to use. And considered safe. Of course, like any other coloring product, this type must not be applied if blemishes are present on the scalp.

Now for the cons: After long usage, the hair may lose luster. Conditioning shampoos and rinses are thus advisable from the outset. Permanents and straighteners should be pre-tested carefully because the metallic coating may interfere.

At present, available shades are somewhat limited. The tendency is toward dark, deep hues. Well-spaced application could control intensity.

It seems the plusses outweigh the cons. Besides, if you don't like the effects as they accumulate, you can give the whole thing up before it's too late.

possible for Jim to try to develop the club suit and he must go after three diamond tricks.

He leads a diamond to dummy's queen at trick two. The queen holds and Jim's first thought is to continue with the ace. A little more thought shows that there is a better play at his disposal, provided that West does hold the king of diamonds.

Jim returns to his hand with the king of spades and leads the diamond jack.

This play would cost him an overtrick in case West had started with king and one. It makes no difference against any 3-3 break or if East started with a doubleton 10-spot but it brings home the contract against the actual holding of king-10-x-x in the West hand.

James Kauder, one of the top young west coast players, has produced a book called the Bridge Philosopher. It is a collection of 40 hands played by him in rubber bridge and duplicate games. Written in the first person, each hand shows some interesting feature of card play.

The general tenor is to encourage bridge players to think and while the book is rather advanced it is well worth reading by anyone who wants to get a first hand look at expert thinking.

Aides warn of cholera

ATLANTA (UPI)—The Federal Center for Disease Control has been quietly warning health officials that the dread disease cholera is slowly spreading westward from the Far East, and may reach the United States.

The CDC said there was "no immediate threat" to the United States, however, and "we don't feel it would get any kind of foothold" in this country because of its adequate sanitation and water supplies.

For the past year, the CDC has been quietly distributing an analysis of the status of cholera in the world to state health officers, epidemiologists and laboratory directors.

"More than one-half of the world's inhabitants now live in cholera-infected areas on three continents," the analysis warned.

The three routes of spread—by land, by sea and by air—make it practically impossible to prevent the introduction of infection to any part of the world, including the Western Hemisphere. Predictably, some cholera will find its way westward.

Cholera spreads most readily in "grossly unsanitary environments," the CDC said.

"There are vast areas in Latin America where highly susceptible populations are crowded together under such conditions. Even beaches at ocean resorts may be contain-mated by human sewage, especially in the warm, populous Caribbean area," the CDC said.

Cholera normally spreads overland between adjacent countries, the CDC said, and by water routes within a country and between distant countries.

"Air travel has now added a new dimension," the CDC warned, and said that was "probably how the disease was introduced into Guinea, West Africa, in 1970, and how sporadic cases have been imported into Ghana, Japan, Australia and England."

The CDC noted that millions of tourists, including many from America, travel in and out of the infected areas, and said "only four documented cases of cholera, none fatal, have occurred in American travelers."

"The risk is obviously so small that no one need cancel travel plans anywhere in the world because of it," the CDC said.

But the CDC said many other countries still require cholera vaccination for travelers.

The CDC also warned against over-reaction to cholera.

"As widely as the disease appears to be spread, the actual risk to American travelers and to the United States is quite small," the CDC said. But the agency said it was concerned that "through the lack of knowledge, inappropriate actions will be taken."

US still losing power

MOSCOW (UPI)—Former Federal Power Commission member John A. Carver warned Monday that the United States is "energy poor and getting poorer."

Carver, who resigned from the FPC last spring and will join the University of Denver Law School faculty in September, told the University of Idaho

Public Utilities Executive Course the U. S. contains one sixteenth of the world's population, but uses one third of the world's energy.

Carver, who has been serving as a consultant to the House Interior Committee, said while there is sufficient energy for foreseeable needs in terms of where we actually are and seem to be going "we are not energy rich."

He said the nation could face a real threat if foreign sources of energy supply are cut off "and it's more realistic not to be too optimistic."

He said the national energy policy seeks security of supply for the U. S. and an adequacy of supply for the free world.

"The U. S. wants to reduce its reliance on imports; assure a minimum cost to the consumer; deal fairly with producing and consuming countries; assure safety of workers, and encourage a policy of not wasting energy resources while protecting the environment."

He said there is general agreement over some steps which could be taken. "These include accelerating the rate of developing new supplies; encouraging research; giving more incentive for domestic exploration and development; and eventually assessing consumers the full cost of energy."

Other alternatives such as rationing use of energy cause more debate," he said.

He said the country could be self-sufficient in its energy production, "but only at a great cost. An acceleration of domestic energy production would only hasten the day when the domestic resources run out."

Carver was the first featured speaker of the program, which runs through Aug. 3 and is being conducted for executives of investor-owned utility companies.

Buffalo barbecue, pony express racing highlight fete at Oakley

By GEORGIA LAYTON
Times-News writer

OAKLEY — A buffalo barbecue and a 25-mile pony express race were among highlights of the annual Oakley Pioneer Day celebration which ended today.

The Sunrise Salute by the American Legion Monday morning was the signal for the event to begin. About 600 persons attended the chuck wagon breakfast which was directed by the Oakley Chamber of Commerce.

At noon about 900 persons filed through the serving lines for the beef barbecue and this year buffalo meat was added.

The Clark family prepared some 700 pounds of beef. The barbecue was donated by W. B. Whiteley. The barbecue was sponsored by the Cassia Stake Presidency.

Rodeo fans were found at the rodeo grounds in the afternoon where the gymkhana was in full operation.

The Pioneer Day program was held in the afternoon at the Cassia Stakehouse with David Haight, Salt Lake City, Utah, former Oakley resident and Assistant to the 12 Apostles, was the guest speaker. The Oakley choir sang several selections.

As evening drew near the parade formed at the American Legion on the east edge of town. Leading the parade was Mayor Nathan Tanner and Ray Robinson, chief of police at Oakley.

The colors were carried on horseback and floats were entered by several of the LDS

Church Wards along with floats by VFW groups, organizations and businesses.

Marching groups included the Oakley Hi-Lites, Murtaugh Devillettes, Declo Strifgerettes and Burley Bobcadettes.

Mounted groups were reigning rodeo queens from Cassia and Minidoka counties. Reigning queen for Oakley Pioneer Days is Charlyce Bench, 20, Oakley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bench.

The Oakley Annies, a newly formed all women's riding group, displayed their horsemanship as they rode the parade route. Also riding in the parade was the Minidoka Wranglers, also on all women's group.

The Idaho Rangers staged a shootout. Those who were shot were carried off the street in the "Black Marlin" an early day hearse.

Several political candidates also were in the parade.

John Clark was announcer for the parade. The final day of celebrations began with team roping this morning.

The 25-mile pony express race will begin at 7 p.m. today in front of the grandstand at the rodeo grounds. Each team has five horses and may have one or more riders. Each horse runs two and one-half miles on a dirt track. There is a purse of $1,000 for first place team; $400 for second and $200 for third. A fourth place of $100 is paid if there are six or more teams entered.

The EIRA approved rodeo produced by Jake Pope will be held again tonight.

Minidoka County to get mental health services

By LEE TREMAINE
Times-News Writer

RUPERT — Minidoka County will have the services of a full-time resident mental health counselor Aug. 1, under agreement with the Gateway Mental Health Center of Pocatello.

The Minidoka County Commission ratified a one-year agreement with Gateway during its Monday meeting, providing for counseling treatment and other mental health services at an estimated annual cost of $2,000. The sum will be payable on a monthly basis of $167.

The resolution incorporating the agreement notes that a regional mental health program now in the planning stages may be several years away from realization. The current agreement was designed to fill the gap in the interim.

The county will work with the Gateway Center, operated by the Idaho Department of Environmental Protection and Health, to provide services both in Minidoka County and the Pocatello facility.

The resident counselor, to be appointed by Gateway, will be furnished with office space and equipment in Minidoka Memorial Hospital by the county. Patients who can pay the set charges of $30 for a psychiatric evaluation and $15 for each treatment session will be asked to pay the charges.

Indigents and others on low incomes will receive these services with the county making the payments out of the $2,000 annual assessment. Income criteria of the Idaho Department of Social and Rehabilitative Services, formerly the Department of Public Assistance, will be used to determine payment levels by low-income persons.

The agreement also provides that "all services" of Gateway will be provided in Minidoka County at least one day each month, or oftener if required by Gateway personnel.

In addition, Minidoka County residents may travel to Pocatello for counseling and other services at Gateway, at no additional cost to the county.

The services at the Pocatello unit will cost slightly less — $20 for an evaluation $10 for each session.

Records of all clients treated at Gateway or in Minidoka County will be audited periodically, to determine if the county is receiving sufficient assistance, as well as to uncover any fraudulent claims from persons residing outside the county.

A major portion of the services to be provided under the agreement is expected to involve court-ordered evaluations of youth and others to be sentenced according to the compact. These services will include in-patient (in the hospital) and the out-patient treatment, psychiatric counseling and treatment of mental disturbances.

Should the region 5 mental health compact plan be put into effect, the new agreement would provide for nullification of the arrangement between the county and Gateway without penalty.

BURLEY — Five men are seeking seats on the Regional Airport Authority, and the man who has said for months he wouldn't run has changed his mind.

Nominating petitions have been filed for Dr. Lawrence Ruebel, Dr. Jack Adams, both Jerome, and Robert E. Fields, Gooding, as well as for George Falkner, Rupert, and current authority chairman, George Forschler, Burley.

Adams, Ruebel and Fields will vie for a single seat in Legislative District 23, while Falkner is unopposed in District 21 and Forschler is without opposition in District 26.

Forschler, who is currently chairman of the interim board, campaigned for creation of the authority last year, saying he would refuse election to the authority if it were created. He changed his mind, he said, only after other board members had prevailed on him.

Voters in Cassia, Minidoka, Camas, Gooding and Jerome counties will elect their trustees in the Aug. 8 state primary.

Forschler said today in Burley two Twin Falls men now on the interim board would be asked to serve the new authority in an advisory capacity later this fall. Harry LeMoine and Barton Sonners would represent the largest county in the region, even though Twin Falls voters defeated the authority issue in a vote last fall.

Neither man was available for comment today.

Haystack burns near King Hill

KING HILL — A stack of first cutting hay on the Hugh Sugg ranch south of King Hill burned Sunday evening.

Origin of the fire is not known, but corrals and feed boxes on the west side of the stack burned before it reached the stack. At least 1,300 bales of new hay and 100 of old hay were in the stack.

Three nearby workers were able to save a few bales at the east end of the stack. The Glenns Ferry fire truck fought the fire.

Allen Thompson bladed a line around the fire area.

Mr. and Mrs. Sugg did not have any insurance on the hay.

Elkhorn project tour Wednesday

SUN VALLEY — Elkhorn and new Sun Valley developments will be toured Wednesday by the Wood River Resource Area Council of Governments.

According to Council Chairman Don G. Fredericksen two buses will leave from Gooding about 1 p.m., stopping in Shoshone and Fairfield.

Pick up points in Blaine County have also been arranged.

The tour will also feature a stop at the National Recreation Area Administration Office south of Ketchum. The tour is expected to be conducted from 3 to 4:30 p.m. It will be followed by a business meeting and dinner at the Wood River Campground north of the North Fork Store.

Fredericksen said under discussion at the business meeting will be a status review of the comprehensive four-county regional planning report; the regional solid waste management and comprehensive health and transportation planning and the Resource Conservation and Development protection plan.

No horse racing

GLENN'S FERRY — There will not be pari-mutuel horse racing this year at the Elmore County Fair, Aug. 10-12.

The announcement was made by the Elmore County Fair Board on the basis of a recent ruling by the state attorney general that counties cannot use tax revenues to support pari-mutuel horse racing. The law forbids such races.

In place of racing, the fair board will hold open class barrel racing, pole bending, flag racing, ring racing, roping, team roping, trailer races, rescue racing and many other events both nights at the fair between 4-6 p.m.

There will be no admission fee, but purses will be awarded. Those wishing to participate in these activities should notify Bud Allen, King Hill; Dave Owen, Glenns Ferry; or Verne Gillespie or Charles Hoagland in Mountain Home.

The board looks for a number of entries in these classifications.

Workshops set Aug. 8,9

GOODING — Wood River flood-control plans will be aired Aug. 8-9 at workshops in Gooding and Hailey.

The workshops are sponsored by the Wood River Resource Area Council of Governments in conjunction with the Army Corps of Engineers.

The workshops will be held at the Gooding County Courthouse on Aug. 8, and Aug. 9 at the Blaine County Courthouse. Both meetings will be at 7:30 p.m.

Alternatives in water resources management were proposed at the workshops held in July 1971 at Gooding and Hailey. These second workshops will discuss results of preliminary studies of the alternatives.

According to a corps of engineers statement, study results show that reservoir storage in the upper basin, above Ketchum, cannot be economically justified. Flood protection on several reaches of the Big Wood River, in and near Ketchum and Hailey, may be economically feasible, however.

In the lower basin, increasing storage capacities of existing reservoirs is not justifiable, because of the high costs and lack of dependable water supply.

Two flood control alternatives in the Gooding-Shoshone area appear economically attractive. One consists of bypass channels and river channel work, a plan first suggested in 1968. The other involves diversion of Little Wood River flood flows into the lava beds.

There are several variations of this alternative, including some diversions that would provide flood protection to farmlands in the Carey-Silver Creek reach of the Little Wood River.

A brochure describing results of preliminary studies has been mailed to interested citizens. Additional copies may be obtained from the Wood River Resource Area, Resource Conservation and Development Project Office, 307 Main Street, Gooding, or from the U.S. Soil Conservation Service in Hailey.

Workshop discussions will help select alternatives, if any, that may warrant additional study. All of the economically feasible schemes require local sponsorship and cost-sharing. Local governments will be required to express interest in sponsoring such a plan if additional studies are to be made by the Corps of Engineers.

Citizens are urged to attend and participate in the workshop meetings. Results of discussions will help decide direction of future corps studies in the basin.

Chef John Clark prepares to serve buffalo meat

Bob Gibson, Jim Palmer will start all-star game

ATLANTA (UPI)—Big Bob Gibson, a fireballing righthander who has won 11 straight games but wasn't especially overjoyed about being picked for Tuesday's All-Star game, and Jim Palmer, who pitched Baltimore to three straight American League titles, were named Monday as the starters for the midsummer baseball classic.

National League manager Danny Murtaugh, the former Pittsburgh skipper, discounted reports that the 36-year-old Gibson (11-5) was a reluctant All-Star and said he'd "like to get two or three innings out of him" and added he was uncertain which of his other eight pitchers he would follow with.

American League manager

Earl Weaver of Baltimore picked his own righthander Palmer (13-4) over 17-game winner Mickey Lolich of Detroit and Gaylord Perry of Cleveland (16-8) but said he'd use both after Palmer completed his turn.

Weaver was full of surprises Monday. He had earlier named Bert Campaneris of Oakland to replace injured Luis Aparicio of Boston at shortstop. But Monday Weaver announced that his own rookie shortstop Bobby Grich, a last-minute addition to the team, would be the American League starter Tuesday night.

Weaver said Grich's .291 batting average and "the fact that he has done everything for me (that is for the Orioles) earned him a starting role."

Murtaugh and Weaver Monday announced their starting lineups for Tuesday night.

The National League will lead off with second baseman Joe Morgan, who was traded this year from Houston to Cincinnati. Pittsburgh outfielder Roberto Clemente, making his 12th All-Star appearance, will bat second and Atlanta's Hank Aaron, appearing in his 23rd All-Star game, will bat third.

Clemente, normally a right fielder, will be in center and Aaron, who has been playing first base for the Braves, will be in right.

Pittsburgh outfielder Willie Stargell will bat in the No. 4 spot for the National League followed by Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench, first baseman Lee May of Houston, third baseman Joe Torre of St. Louis, shortstop Donnie Kessinger of Chicago and Gibson.

Weaver has second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota leading off for the American League. Bobby Murcer of the Yankees will bat second and play centerfield. Reggie Jackson of Oakland will be in right and bat third and Chicago's Dick Allen, who played for the National League in four previous All-Star games, will be at first and bat fourth.

Leftfielder Carl Yastrzemski of Boston bats fifth followed by Grich, third baseman Brooks Robinson, also of Baltimore, catcher Bill Freehan of Detroit and Palmer.

Tuesday's game is the 43rd renewal of All-Star play but it is the first such game ever held in the southland. The game is scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m. EDT. It will be nationally televised, including locally.

A standing room only crowd of more than 53,000 is expected. The game was a sellout two days after tickets went on public sale and more than 20,000 ticket requests had to be turned down.

Gibson, who won his 11th straight here Friday night when he beat the Atlanta Braves 2-1, said that he felt regular season play was more important than All-Star play and indicated he wasn't happy about having to miss his regular turn Thursday (against Montreal).

Gibson also predicted that there would be a lot of home runs hit in Atlanta Stadium Tuesday although he doubted that there would be as many as last year, when the teams hit six in Detroit in the American League's 6-4 victory.

The National League holds a 23-18-1 edge in All-Star game competition but has really dominated the game in recent years, having won 12 of the last 14.

Fans like two-point conversion

DETROIT (UPI)—Eighty per cent of the pro football fans who answered questions in a survey by the Weekly Football News favor changing the rules in favor of the optional two-point conversion.

The two-point conversion exists in college ball and was considered at a recent National Football League owners meeting, but failed to gain the 20 votes required for passage.

Of the readers who answered the survey, 74 per cent favored a longer season with elimination of some pre-season games, according to the newspaper.

Just 46 per cent of the fans feel gambling on pro football should be legalized, while 43 per cent opposed it. Eleven per cent expressed uncertainty. The readers thought that 24-50 per cent of the fans bet on games.

On the season ticket package plan, which requires mandatory purchase of pre-season game tickets, 75 per cent called it unfair, 15 per cent fair and 10 per cent were undecided.

When asked to name the man who has done the most for pro football, 20 per cent named commissioner Pete Rozelle, 13 per cent Vince Lombardi, and 9 per cent George Halas. Lamar Hunt received 3 per cent, Joe Namath 2 per cent and others 8 per cent.

National pastime is losing proposition for makers of major league baseballs

PHOENIX, Ariz. — (NEA) — And all the time you thought a baseball was as American as apple pie. Why, it's not even American anymore.

Major league baseballs are now being manufactured outside the continental United States. In Haiti, to be exact.

That's because Spalding, the sole supplier for both the American and National Leagues since time immemorial, has been losing more than $200,000 a year for the prestige of fabricating championship baseballs.

This was revealed to me exclusively in an atmosphere as hush-hush as an NFL pledge.

"Bleep the prestige," said Duke Ziller, super salesman of Spalding balls for the last 17 years, as he hauled cartons of Haitian-made, spheroids out of his car next to the ball park.

They're experimental baseballs which have been shipped surreptitiously into spring training games to see if the ball players notice any difference.

Last year, already, baseballs were produced in Puerto Rico and rising costs even there have forced them deeper into the Caribbean. No longer can the company afford to have little old ladies in Chicopee, Mass., ancestral home of the baseball, meticulously stitching horse-dish covers with red thread.

Two years ago, Spalding was absorbed by Quorum, an industrial conglomerate which is more tuned in to profit-and-loss statements than to the glory of manufacturing baseballs. Headquarters has been much more impressed by the escalating market for tennis balls.

Secretly, they say, they wouldn't even mind dropping the whole baseball bit, except that Spalding's contract as the exclusive maker of major league balls has six more years to run.

Here are the cold figures behind the making of a baseball:

The manufacturing cost for a dozen baseballs of big league caliber is $23. They've never been able to mechanize the stitching process — it's still done laboriously by hand.

Each major league team pays only $22 a dozen, or a dollar below cost. "The more we sell," Ziller shook his head, "the more we lose."

An average of 1,200 dozen baseballs annually is used by each of the 24 teams in the major leagues (for lazy mathematicians, that's a total of 345,600 baseballs).

Now get this — each team gets the first 350 dozen baseballs free from Spalding, which in return gets the "prestige" of making them. At the domestic manufacturing cost, that totals up to a "gift" of $193,200.

"The baseball people," said Ziller, who was once a minor league executive, "have to wake up. They're living in today's world. People don't give a bleep if we make championship baseballs. They want to know how much it costs."

And so to Haiti with a cheaper labor market. A direct appeal is also being made to A.L. President Joe Cronin and N.L. President Chub Feeney to amend the current contract.

Ironically, the other major manufacturers of baseballs — Wilson, Rawlings and MacGregor — do better than Spalding in this area because they're not giving away that huge chunk of free baseballs, even if they can't brag that Henry Aaron's whaling away at Babe Ruth's home run record with their product.

Owners say trade will build team for future

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI)—The two catchers, sent to the minors by the Texas Rangers criticized the team's "youth movement" Monday but the club's owner and manager said the latest move builds the team for the future.

The Rangers sent catchers Hal King and Ken Suarez along with lefthanded pitcher Jan Dukes and second baseman Lennie Randle to their Triple A farm team in Denver and recalled catcher Bill Fahey, utility infielder Tom Ragland and shortstop Jim Mason from Denver.

Fahey is considered the team's No. 1 prospect in the minors. Owner Bob Short and manager Ted Williams said the move was to get more youngsters on the major league roster to build for the future.

That youth movement is their hangup," King said. "It'll be five years before they win at the rate they're going. They don't have anyone who can hit the ball out of the infield and they send me down."

King's batting average this year is .180, the fifth lowest on the team not counting the pitchers.

"You'll need more luck than I will, you're staying here," Suarez told his teammates as he left the club. "They talk about the major leagues, well, this isn't it."

The Rangers are, currently mired in last place in the American League West. The only teams to have won less games than the Rangers this year are the Milwaukee Brewers, Philadelphia Phillies and San Diego Padres.

Short held a news conference during the weekend to say he was sticking by the youth plan even though Williams didn't appear too anxious to play the younger ballplayers. The statement was the first sign of a major difference of opinion since the infamous McLean deal when Short dealt pitcher Joe Coleman and infielders Auerilio

Rodriguez and Eddie Brinkman to Detroit for pitcher Dennis McLain.

On Saturday Coleman pitched a 6-2 win over Texas. Rodriguez homered and Brinkman contributed sparking defensive play against the Rangers.

"It was our consensus after an all day meeting that the club needed shaking up," Williams said after the King Suarez move was announced.

"It had to be done. None of us were satisfied with the way we were going. It's our collective opinion that these moves are best for us."

"Fahey is our best prospect," Williams said. "Ragland's a solid defensive player at second, short and third. He might not hit for a real high average, but he fields well and has become a good clutch hitter. He hit only 242 at Denver but he hit six homers and drove in 36 runs."

Mason has major league potential," Williams said. "He can be a good shortstop, and we haven't ruled him out as a possible third baseman."

Fahey, 22, hit .261 for Denver with one home run, 24 RBIs, four doubles and four triples. Mason, 21, hit .273 at Denver with 21 doubles, three triples, five home runs and 27 RBIs.

Coach likes rooks in all-star camp

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI)—Jerry Tubbs, the Dallas Cowboys' coach who oversees the linebacking corps, said Monday that he is satisfied with the deal that sent Tom Stuncie to New Orleans. But he sure wishes two prospects now with the College All-Stars were in the Cowboys camp.

The Cowboys, the reigning professional football champs, will play the All-Stars Friday night in Chicago.

The Cowboys have three excellent veteran linebackers in Lee Roy Jordan, Chuck Howley and Dave Edwards. D.D. Lewis backs up Jordan, there's Lee Roy Caffey and that's about it.

The four rookies trying to make the team and who are in camp are Chuck Zapiec of Penn State, Tim Kearney of Northern Michigan, Ralph Coleman of North Carolina A&T and Mixon Robinson of Georgia.

The two prospects with the All-Stars who will report to camp after Friday's game are John Babinecz and Mike Keller.

Tubbs said of the four rookies in camp that Coleman "looks to have more raw physical ability than anyone. But he's been a linebacker only one year."

Coleman, in maybe two or three years, has the potential to be not only good but better than that," Tubbs said. "Then you have one of the others who might step in this year and do a better job."

Stuncie, who played only two games last year and asked to be played more this year or traded, was sent to the New Orleans Saints for a draft choice. Coach Tom Landry said he would have preferred a player instead of a draft pick but that he wasn't unhappy with the deal.

"Sure, I'd like to have a player with knowledge of our system but they're hard to find," Landry said. "From Tom's (Stuncie) standpoint, his whole objective was to be a starter. As far as I know he'll be a starter and we did all right too."

"New Orleans has several guys who did not report, so their needs were much greater," Landry said. "There were no hard feelings on our part or Tom's. I never object when a guy's been working three or four years and never been able to break in."

Tubbs said Lewis "was the best linebacker on the field during Saturday's scrimmage." He also said Caffey "is doing pretty good but I wish Babinecz and Keller were in camp because it would help us make a judgment."

Jim Nance is traded to Eagles

AMHERST, Mass. (UPI)—New England Patriot fullback Jim Nance, who set the single-season rushing record in the old American Football League, was traded Monday to the Philadelphia Eagles.

The Patriots received an undisclosed 1973 draft choice for Nance, who is in his eighth year in professional football.

Nance, who carried the ball only 129 times last year while the Patriots relied on the passing of Jim Plunkett, rushed for 1,458 yards in 1966 with the Patriots to set the season record in the AFL. His career total of 5,323 yards makes him the 11th-leading rusher in the history of the National Football League.

Upton Bell, general manager of the Patriots, said in announcing the trade, "Jim had expressed an interest in being traded to a team where he could carry the ball 15 or 20 times a game. I worked on a deal with several teams, and after lengthy negotiations we decided to accept Philadelphia's offer."

The 6-foot, 240-pound Nance was an All American fullback at Syracuse University. He was selected by the Patriots on the 19th round of the AFL draft in 1965.

Nance had one other 1,000-yard rushing season — 1,216 yards in 1967. But last year he accumulated only 463 yards on the ground, his lowest total since his rookie season in 1965. Nance will report Tuesday to the Eagles' training camp in Reading, Pa.

Observers give Fischer edge in Spassky match

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI)—International grand masters said Monday on the eve of the seventh game that American challenger Bobby Fischer now has a distinct advantage over Boris Spassky in their match for the world chess championship.

They marveled at Fischer's 41-move victory over the Russian champion Sunday in the sixth game of the match. The victory was the American's second decisive triumph in a row and gave him the lead for the first time in match points 3 1-25 to 2-1-2.

The seventh game of the match was scheduled for 1 p.m. EDT Tuesday in Reykjavik's auditorium. Spassky will play white pieces, moving first.

An Argentine grand master, Miguel Najdorf, who predicted Fischer's victory Sunday at the 27th move, said the 29-year-old American is now in a "position to take the championship by a rout. Others tended to agree."

"Spassky is on the run," Najdorf told newsmen Monday. "Imagine the world champion reduced to shuffling wooden on the board."

Meanwhile, television producers awaited the arrival of Fischer's lawyer, Paul Marshall, from New York for more negotiations on whether the television cameras that disturb Fischer may be reinstalled in the 3,000-seat auditorium to film the remaining games.

Chet Forte, an American Broadcasting Co. (ABC) producer in charge of the filming, said Marshall should arrive here by Tuesday morning "to iron out a few minor snags."

"We are ready to go but cannot risk Bobby staging another walk-out if we force his hand," Forte told newsmen.

The Icelandic organizers of the match said Sunday they would cancel their $125,000 television agreement with ABC and movie director Chester Fox of New York if Fischer had not made up his mind to allow filming of the games by Tuesday.

The cameras were removed after Fischer boycotted the second game, which he lost by forfeit, and played the third game, which he won, in a backstage room in the auditorium rather than face the "evil eye" of the cameras, as he told aides.

Although the mood was glum in the Russian camp, referee Lothar Schmid of West Germany said Spassky had agreed to Fischer's demand issued Sunday that a wooden playing board be substituted for the artisan-made marble board currently in use.

"Naturally Boris is not very happy, but he's the perfect gentlemen," Schmid said, explaining he had conferred with Spassky early Monday in the Russian's hotel suite. "When I showed him Fischer's written request for a new board he agreed at once."

Fischer dined Monday night with friends, including the Catholic priest who serves as his second, the Rev. William Lombardy, before he retired to a new villa the match organizers have placed at his disposal in suburban Reykjavik.

Fred Cramer, another aide of the challenger and a vice president of the International Chess Federation, said Fischer has been pleased with his playing here.

"He knew all the time he could whip Spassky," Cramer said. "That was why he was in no hurry to come over and kept on protesting until conditions were perfect."

Jens Enevoldsen, the Danish international master and chess author, described Fischer's play as "a cat and mouse game."

"First he used a new opening in Sunday's game, which apparently caught Spassky by surprise," Enevoldsen said. "Then he used a variation invented by a Russian grand master and Spassky had no answer."

Chinook season will end

Anglers are reminded by the Idaho Fish and Game Department that some chinook salmon fishing in the uppermost reaches of the main Salmon River and its tributaries (see regulations) closed July 15 and the remainder of the chinook salmon season ends in all state waters where they occur July 31.

Despite rapidly dropping waters, the rate of catch by fishermen last week was down somewhat from the previous week. Evan Parrish, Riggins, Rapid River hatchery superintendent, disclosed that about one-third of the spring chinook observed through the counting facility at the last dam on the Snake River were products of the Rapid River program. Another seven to eight percent of fish counted past the last dam on the Snake River were hatched in artificial hatching channels in the Clearwater River system.

Jerry Mallet, anadromous fishery supervisor, says that the result is a somewhat smaller run of "wild" chinook salmon in the Salmon River drainage than was expected.

Parrish called the program this year of transporting jack salmon and some surplus adult salmon to the river from Hazard Creek downstream for fishing successful, adding that there have been a few problems.

"Sanitary facilities were inadequate when large numbers of fishermen concentrated in the area," Parrish declared, "and littering also was a problem." The salmon run has passed its peak in the Little Salmon River and very few surplus salmon will be available for stocking, resulting in fishing success the rest of the month being down.

Joe Namath starts practice

TAKING A SNAP from a teammate is Joe Namath, star quarterback of the N. Y. Jets during practice session at the Jets' camp in Hempstead, N. Y., Monday. Namath arrived a week late in camp but he had been given permission to arrive late for "personal reasons."

He emphasized during a press conference at the camp that he will not play in any exhibition games until he signs a contract. (UPI Telephoto).

Man not encouraged to help with Idaho's baby wild game

By TED CHU
Conservation Officer
Idaho Fish and Game Department—Gooding, Idaho

This is the time of the year when young wild animals of all types are starting to leave the safety of their dens or nests and make their first forays into the big world they must learn to survive in. They face many perils at this time; however, one which they should not have to cope with is the "helping" hand of well intentioned but uninformed man. Baby wild animals are extremely appealing, and when found alone, the temptation is often great to assume that they are lost or abandoned, and therefore, should be taken home and cared for. This is very rarely the actual case, and in addition, possession in captivity of any of Idaho's protected or game species is illegal.

Maternal instinct in animals is very strong, and they don't often abandon their young. When a young animal is found by itself, this merely means that its parents are off searching for food or that they have been frightened off and are watching anxiously from a nearby place of concealment. When the danger is past, they will return to care for their young.

Young of unprotected species are often taken home when found to become "pets." Unfortunately, or maybe fortunately, wild animals rarely make good pets. They require special care, special foods, and more time and attention than most people can give them. The sequence of events facing a young wild animal brought home to be a pet is easy to predict. For a short time, he will receive too much attention; a constant petting and handling, examination by all friends and neighbors, and frequent thrusting of the wrong kinds of food into his face. Then he must overcome a period of abandonment as he becomes no longer an object of interest, in fact he is now a burden. No one wants to feed him or clean his cage. If he is "lucky" enough to live to adulthood, then he will probably be released to a zoo or to the backyard where he will spend the rest of his days pacing the front of his cage or the end of his chain. He may also end up being returned to the wild where he will last only a short time since he has never learned to fend for himself.

If after reading this you are still determined that you should have a wild animal for a pet, please ask yourself these questions first: (1) Are you willing and able to spend a great deal of time with this pet, getting him accustomed to you and frequently supplying him with some of his natural food? (2) Do you live far enough out of town so that you can allow the animal to run free? (Wild animals are never happy in a cage.) (3) Are you willing to care for this pet throughout his natural lifespan which may be several years? (4) Is the animal you have your eye on of a species, sex, and age that may possibly make a good pet? For example, male coyote pups occasionally make good pets; however, they must be obtained before they open their eyes for the first time. Some animals can become dangerous as they get older and there have been a number of people in Idaho attacked and harmed by so-called pet deer, and elk after a year or so in captivity. If you cannot give a definite "yes" answer to the above questions then you should not try to take on a wild animal pet.

Unless you know for certain that a baby animal's parents have been killed, please leave it alone. Locally we are very lucky in having high densities of breeding hawks, owls, and eagles all of which are protected by law.

Namath arrives in Jets camp

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI)—Joe Namath, football's answer to Bobby Fischer, is in the New York Jets' camp and plans to practice with the team.

But Namath emphasized Monday that he will not play in any exhibition games until he signs his contract.

Namath arrived a week late in camp Sunday but he was given permission to arrive late for "personal reasons."

The Jets' controversial quarterback seemed to be in a conciliatory mood and gave the indication that he is hopeful of signing a contract with the club.

"I'm here because it's my job," he said, "I want to prepare for the season just like everyone else—I'm ready to play. I don't want to leave the Jets."

Namath, who has been throwing in a kids' camp in Vermont for the last month, seems to be in good shape and looked good in Tuesday morning's practice.

Namath's knees are in good shape but the nerve in his foot still bothers him a bit.

Namath has been injured most of the last two seasons and the Jets have been out of contention in his absence.

The Jets won't worry if Namath misses the first two or three exhibition games because the entire exhibition season would be a grind for his knees.

Last year was one of the few seasons when he was ready to go from the first exhibition game. Ironically, he was injured in that first game when he was blocked by Paul Naumoff of the Detroit Lions.

Cards, all-stars hold scrimmage

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (UPI)—The St. Louis Cardinals and College All-Stars each combined for a touchdown pass in a brief scrimmage at the Cardinals' training camp Monday.

The workout consisted entirely of pass offense and defense, part of which included live hitting on the line of scrimmage.

The All-Stars, using Jerry Tagge and Van Brownson of Nebraska and Pat Sullivan of Auburn at quarterback, completed 15 of 30 passes, two going to wide receiver Bobby Moore, the Cardinals' No. 1 draft choice.

Cardinal Coach Bob Hollway employed five quarterbacks, frontliners Jim Hart, Pete Beathard and Gary Cuzzo, reserve Tim Van Galder and rookie Mike Franks, who completed a total of 13 of 37 passes with four interceptions.

Cuzzo, who was four of 12, hit tight end Jackie Smith for the Cardinals' TD. Hart was four of eight, Beathard two of eight and Van Galder was three of seven. The All-Stars' touchdown was a Brownson pass to Eldridge Sall.

Hollway noted there was some progress made by his team, which was starting its second week of practice. "I thought our pass protection was good, despite the fact it was our first scrimmage," he said.

"Considering we used three different units, our overall defense wasn't bad either," he added.

Also playing for the All-Stars Monday was linebacker Mark Arneson, the Cardinals' second-round draft choice. He and Moore will join the team Saturday following the All-Star game with the Dallas Cowboys Friday night.

Gilbert is first in pro-am event

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—While Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino drew most of the spectators, Bob Shaw and Gibby Gilbert walked off with most of the prize money Monday in the seventh annual Columbus Pro-Am Golf Tournament.

Gilbert shot a four-under-par 34-33-67 over the 6,460-yard, par 71 Scioto Country Club Course, two strokes better than Homero Blancas and Ed Sneed, and picked up the top money.

The team led by Shaw, who had a one-over 72, came in with a best ball 59, 12 shots under par, to capture the team title over a trio of other squads headed by Jim Jamieson, Chuck Courtney and Lee Bonse.

Nicklaus, playing on the course where he started his meteoric rise to golfing stardom, managed only a three-over-par 74, one shot more than Trevino, but played in a group which included comedian Bob Hope. Nicklaus could have found it a bit hard to concentrate.

Trevino, who complained about the huge gallery which swarmed around him every time he made his way from one green to the next tee, went out in three-under 33, but staggered on the back side and wound up with a five over 40 for his 73.

Tom Weiskopf, another Columbus resident, was the only other golfer under par, a 70, while pars were carded by five others including Jamieson, Jim Gerring, Lou Graham, John Schroeder and Rick Jones, who took low amateur honors.

A total of 57 teams teed off, starting at 8 a.m., and a late afternoon thunderstorm which lasted almost an hour pushed the windup of the event back to almost 8:30 p.m.

From here, most of the touring pros will be going to Liongor, Pa., for the National Four-Ball Tournament which starts Thursday. Nicklaus and Bob Hope will go to Cincinnati Tuesday to participate in an exhibition for the benefit of that city's Bob Hope House, a home for teenage boys in need of guidance and a health environment.

Kahili II captures Chicago yacht race

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (UPI)—Kahili II, riding what her skipper called "a beautiful slot of wind," won both the section one and division one honors in the Chicago-Mackinac yacht race Monday.

The blue-hulled boat, owned by Frank Zurn of Erie, Pa., finished with an elapsed time of 35:57.

"It was a downhill slide all the way," Zurn said. "We lost sight of the big ships Sunday morning and we were worried until we saw the Windigo around the Macitou Islands."

"As we approached the islands, we picked up a beautiful slot of wind. I figured it would carry us through and it did," he said.

Sassy, the first boat to cross the finish line, was declared second in section one—the class for the largest boats—with a corrected time of 36:1604.

The Sassy's skipper, Russell "Dutch" Schmidt of Grosse Pointe, Mich., said, "It was a beautiful race with good wind. We did everything we could think of to win except hold Sunday church services on the foredeck."

Bonaventure V, owned by W. Bernard Herman of Toronto, Canada, placed third in section one with a corrected time of 36:4365.

First-place honors in section two, which was also part of division one, went to Siren Song, owned by Joseph S. Wright of Chicago, in a corrected time of 37:4953. Dazy 88, owned by Murphy Wiedrick of Detroit, was second in 37:5519 and Honey, owned by Paul Eggert of Spring Lake, Mich., was third in 37:7126.

The winner of division two was Omega, the Milwaukee-based red yacht owned by John W. Cremer, which also came in first in section four. Its time was 44:2612, compared to winner of section three, Erica, owned by Lester R. Grohe of Chicago, which finished in 44:3327.

Second place in section three went to Andrea, owned by Robert P. Knight of Chicago, in 44:8678, and third was Charming III, owned by Joseph F. J. Schoendorf of Milwaukee, in 44:9004.

Contagious of Toledo, Ohio, owned by Dr. James Morman, came in first in section five in 46:9042. Second was Pled Piper, owned by Richard Jennings of Chicago in 48:8063, and third went to Fever, owned by Harry Kostoff of Sarnia, Canada, in 48:8700.

The results of the sixth, seventh and eighth sections were not expected to be in before early Tuesday, after the smaller yachts cross the finish line. No overall winner was to be declared in this year's event.

A—The 1946 OTC price range

for Tobin Packing (now NYSE)

stock was $27-$24, unadjusted for the 5-for-1 split called in 1947. Adjusting for the split, the average price per share is $5.10.

Hence, even at currently depressed quotes, you have a healthy profit in Tobin shares which I suggest you lock in now.

The company omitted its longstanding dividend payment

this year amid red ink operations in the most recent quarter. High hog prices, brought about by reduced hog supply, were largely responsible for the 26 cents a share deficit recorded in the April 29 period. With little improvement expected during the remainder of the fiscal year, shares of this premium meat packer lack appeal.

Bicycle 'rodeo' held at Rupert

RUPERT—Nearly two dozen energetic young bicyclists wove their way carefully through an intricate obstacle course to demonstrate their skills Saturday morning in the annual Jaycees bike rodeo.

Members of the Rupert Jaycees inspected the youngsters' bikes for safety features and equipment, then timed the riders as they negotiated the course, which included "gates" of tin cans, slalom-style, for the riders to maneuver between; a horizontal ladder to shake them up a bit; a narrow board for riding on top of; and a barricade forcing the riders to "dismount," and wheel, drag or carry their bikes underneath before continuing.

At the end of the course, an inclined ramp gave the riders a flying sendoff toward the finish line.

Following the "gymkhana," the young riders sped through a race course around the parking lot, timed by the Jaycees.

Each bicyclist received a certificate that his (or her) bicycle had been inspected according to the specified method, and had been found safe. Trophies were also given to the winners in the various events.

Jaycees participating in the event were Ed McClellan, Jaycee president, Mel Birdwell, Don Dickson and John Urbach.

A motorist drove into the parking lot and stopped. When the Jaycees asked the unidentified young driver to park elsewhere, he backed up, aimed at the white chalk lines and squealed off in a smoke of burning rubber.

His efforts were in vain, however, as the car merely smeared up some of the lines but did not erase them. Rupert police were notified and kept a lookout during the rest of the bike rodeo.

There's always a spoilsport. Saturday morning, as the Rupert Jaycees were preparing for the annual bicycle inspections and derby, a young motorist thought he'd get into the act — only with a car instead of a bike.

The Jaycees had chalked a winding course on the parking lot at the municipal swimming pool to give the youngsters a chance to demonstrate their skills in maneuvering their bikes.
