Hebrew? Must be an Idahoan

By DWIGHT JENSEN
Special to the Times-News

MIAMI BEACH — The Idaho delegation held a routine caucus this morning and went to what they expected to be the routine opening session of the Republican National Convention.

Ornette Sinclair and Douglas Kramer, both Twin Falls, missed the caucus to attend a rules committee meeting.

They didn't miss much; the caucus was concerned with administrative matters, such as handing out floor tickets and making some routine appointments.

Republican National Committeeman David Little, Emmett, cautioned the delegates to "hang on to your floor passes for dear life" saying if they lost them they would be denied access to the convention floor and non-delegates might reproduce them for illegitimate use.

Little urged the delegation to refer to non-delegates as non-delegates. "Don't call them Vippies, hippies or demonstrators or anything like that," he said.

The Republican delegation, like Idaho's Democrats last month, are staying at the Caribbean Hotel, a kosher Jewish hotel about a mile from convention hall. Like the Democrats they must get used to the characteristics of Jewish life such as Nova Scotia salmon for breakfast, but no bacon.

The Jews at the hotel got their own surprise though. Rev. Walter Moffat, Kamiah, a Presbyterian minister and a Nez Perce Indian, conversed with them in Hebrew, a language he learned in the seminary. The idea of an American Indian speaking Hebrew surprised and appealed to Jewish vacationers.

Moffat attended an Indian caucus Sunday night and said that group wants to amend the platform by adding a plank opposing the termination of Indian reservations.

Idaho Gov. Jack Murphy, Idaho's delegation chairman, said this morning, "I would personally back such a plank."

The government should do nothing with Indian reservations without the voluntary consent of the Indian. That is a matter of a treaty obligation. We should not be initiating changes by statute," he said.

New disasters claim Koreans

SEOUL (UPI)—Huge mounds of rocks, mud and debris were piled high today at the scene of an avalanche set off by the torrents of rain which produced South Korea's worst floods in more than a half century.

Police said 375 persons had been killed, 81 were missing and 410 were injured in the floods throughout South Korea.

Rescue workers retrieved 13 more bodies today at the avalanche site in Pyongchang-dong, a northern sector of Seoul. Police said they brought to 87 the number of bodies that had been recovered following the avalanche and that more bodies were doubtlessly buried under the mud, the rocks and the debris.

The avalanche was the largest of 50 avalanches and mudslides touched off by the disastrous rains which pounded central South Korea Saturday. The rains were the worst in the 65 years the weather bureau has been making official observations, officials said.

The Pyongchang-dong landslide occurred when a rain-soaked slope of a mountain collapsed on the northern outskirts of Seoul. The mud, which broke down in torrential rains, picked up speed and snowballed, rolling down 800 yards and engulfing 13 earthen brick and wooden shanty houses clustered along the valley.

Mr. T-N says

The most excitement of the GOP convention will come when somebody drops a contact lens with an "abstrum-rending crash."

GOP film to laud 1st lady

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—The Republican convention spotlight will fall on Pat Nixon tonight for a unique tribute to the first lady from the delegates and the party they represent.

Mrs. Nixon worked up to her appearance by visiting various groups of delegates today. She was joined by daughters Julie Eisenhower and Tricia Cox in a round of appearances at state caucuses.

Tonight she will be singled out as no other first lady ever has been before a convention.

Mrs. Nixon is the star of a film to be shown in the bunting-draped convention hall tonight, and the special tribute will be narrated by Hollywood star James Stewart. The movie is made up of film clips of the first lady on her travels to Africa, China and Russia as well as her active life at the White House.

No word on peace progress

THURMONT, Md. (UPI)—President Nixon spent an active weekend discussing Vietnam policy with his national security adviser, Dr. Henry A. Kissinger.

The White House had no comment on the meetings Saturday and Sunday.

Kissinger flew to Camp David after arriving in Washington Saturday from talks last week in Paris with Hanoi's peace negotiator, Le Duc Tho, and in Saigon with South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Nixon and Kissinger were joined at dinner Sunday by Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who said in an interview appearing earlier in the day that he was "convinced" that the war would be settled before the Nov. 7 presidential election or "shortly thereafter."

The interview was granted to Knight Newspapers Inc., last Wednesday.

GOP plows under sprouts of dissent

By MIKE FEINSILBER

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Republicans swept aside the last voices of dissent on the opening day of their 30th presidential convention today, with a solid show of support for President Nixon.

Perhaps the last possibility of any personal opposition to Nixon's renomination for a second term—or to his Vietnam policy—was killed when the convention's Rules Committee voted three hours before the opening gavel not to seat a delegate from New Mexico representing liberal, antiwar Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of California.

McCloskey, who had mounted an unsuccessful campaign against Nixon in early primary elections, will still be entitled to one vote since he won 6 per cent of the New Mexico primary vote. But he will not be able to have his own representative nominate him—and thereby voice his antiwar views—or even to cast the vote for him.

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller went before the Ohio delegation to urge it and other urban states to support his plan that could give more proportionate delegate strength at the next convention than smaller rural areas would have.

His plan set off a lively debate. The Rules Committee sought to work out a compromise on the delegate strength question to prevent it from emerging on the floor and shifting the focus of attention away from Nixon's renomination. It reached no conclusion in a 2 1/2 hour morning session and recessed until later in the day.

John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's top domestic adviser, said the White House was staying clear of the delegate strength question. But he was somewhat critical of the tight control on dissent at the convention because, for one reason, he said it allowed McCloskey to "grandstand."

McCloskey's effort to seat his own delegate in place of one approved by the New Mexico state convention drew some support from younger members on the Rules panel, a development which he called the "first crack in the dike."

"Every young person who spoke up in my behalf has been told by the White House that his political career will be through," he told reporters. "No harm can come from this party having allowed itself dissent."

The Republican squabbling was mere shadow boxing, compared to the savage infighting between Democrats Hubert H. Humphrey and George S. McGovern which shook this tropical spit of land six weeks ago.

The White House worked to keep the feud backstage but the liberals threatened to carry it to the convention floor before the news-hungry eyes of television.

Antiwar veterans move in

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—They wanted a name that would say it all about this war they helped fight and have come to hate, so they called it "Operation Last Patrol."

The Vietnam Veterans Against the War came to Miami Beach Sunday on foot and in convoys of motorcycles, cars, vans, trucks—and even an old, yellow school bus.

Some of the protesters who came to demonstrate at the Republican National Convention were shirtless and others were clad in Army fatigues or other shreds of uniform. They chanted and whistled as they entered Flamingo Park, the gathering place for demonstrators.

They whistled the old Civil War song, "When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again," gave the clenched fist sign, and waved upside down American and right-side-up Viet Cong flags.

Protesters already in the park, who had sweltered under the August Florida sun over the weekend, responded, joining in as the veterans chanted "Ho, Ho, Ho Chi Minh, NLF is gonna win."

There were about 1,000 of the veterans and their supporters. Joining together for the final miles were three convoys of veterans, led by 300 to 400 marchers some of whom had tramped through Florida for eight days.

The lead car in one contingent was decorated with signs that said: "Welcome Vietnam veterans...defeat Richard Nixon and his greedy war profiteers" and signed "Veterans of World War I and II."

Tim Moore, Tampa, Fla., one of the coordinators for the "March Against Murder" which began eight days ago at Ft. Pierce, Fla., said the march began with about 30 participants and swelled to between 300 and 400 by the time it reached Miami Beach.

Plank could spur Idaho 'gold rush'

By RANDY LEBLANC

BOISE (UPI) — With the re-establishment of the right to privately owned gold in the Republican Party Platform, several of Idaho's now-defunct mines may relive the "boom years" of the 1860s.

The "Gold Plank" was included in the party platform at the suggestion of Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., who said, "The right of American citizens to buy, hold or sell gold should be re-established as soon as it is feasible." At present, miners are allowed to sell the valuable metal only to the government.

In Idaho, pure gold mining came to a standstill in 1942 with the federal gold closing order which shut down all gold mines, except those producing other metals valuable to America's war effort. Productive lode and open-pit mines like the Stibnite, Grunster and Talache in the orchard sections of Idaho and Clearwater counties had their elms sealed off indefinitely.

According to State Mine Inspector W. Carl Griner, gold mining in Idaho since World War II has been limited to low-grade ore from silver- and lead-mining operations in the state's northern panhandle.

"If private ownership and sale of gold were granted again, you don't know how many mine owners you'd make happy around Idaho," Griner said. "There are quite a few mines in the state that could be re-opened and productive within two or three years; but can you imagine another gold boom in 1972?" he added.

Ernest Oberbiller, 57, a mining engineer and owner of the Stibnite Mine near Yellow Pine, Idaho's biggest producer until 1942—said if most of the mines were re-opened, they could probably net as much as 250,000 ozs. of gold per year, nearly twice as much as was mined annually during the productive years of the late '30s. But he added it would take a guaranteed market price of at least $100 an oz. to interest mine owners in re-starting their operations.

"Back in the old days, you could get a digger or other labor for $5 a day. But now it costs upwards of $35," he said.

He said Idaho's gold mining rebirth would be "quite a bit bigger than other states" because quartz veins don't run as deep here.

"In California for instance, they flow four or five thousand feet underground," he said.

Oberbiller also said dredge and placer mining would not be restarted "simply because of the ecology issue — to much myd in the water."

Herecalled the Idaho gold rush of 1860 just after E. D. Pierce made the state's first gold discovery east of Orofino. Small communities began growing up around the mines, and the boom period of that first decade was responsible for many of northern Idaho's cities — Kellogg, Orofino and Coeur d'Alene to name a few.

"In those days, there was more claiming, drinking and rousing than there were good mines."

Black caucus fizzles

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Efforts to form a maverick black caucus at the Republican National Convention spluttered to a near standstill today.

A group led by Mayor Edward Bivens Jr. of Inkster, Mich., attempting to organize the 55 GOP black delegates and 84 alternates into a caucus independent of White House and official Republican leadership held two meetings Sunday, the second smaller than the first.

Mac Tours flood-hit Penn areas

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (UPI)—Sen. George S. McGovern, trying to steal some thunder from the Republicans at Miami Beach, began a five-day trip around the country today with a tour of flood-ravaged Pennsylvania.

McGovern, contending that the administration had been sluggish in responding to housing needs of devastated communities in the East, planned to inspect the damage here and in nearby Kingston. He will meet with angry Pennsylvanians who claim the federal government has been slow in meeting their needs.

In a statement issued on his departure from Washington National Airport, McGovern said the government must step up its efforts to help the flood victims.

"You don't have to tell a family that it's still living in a garage nine weeks after the flood, that their government is not doing enough," McGovern said.

He said it was up to the government to "match the determination of those who have been cut down with the compassion and resources necessary to put them back on their feet."

McGovern's earlier wrote to Wilkes-Barre City Manager Bernard J. Gallagher charging that the administration was "quick to bail out the Lockheed Corp. and the Penn Central Railroad, yet unwilling to serve the immediate needs of Pennsylvania's flood victims."

President Nixon signed a $1.6 billion bill Sunday at Camp David to provide aid to victims of tropical storm Agnes in the East and flood victims in South Dakota.

McGovern spent most of the weekend resting at his Washington home after predicting in an interview that President Nguyen Van Thieu would flee South Vietnam if the Democratic party captures the White House.

"I would expect Gen. Thieu and his cohorts to leave very quickly," said McGovern, adding that he would help arrange transportation for South Vietnamese government and military officials who wished to leave.

Starting the third week of his campaign, McGovern also planned to set foot in Illinois and Texas today as he struggled to narrow a large deficit in public-opinion polls in his race with Nixon.

Following an airport rally in Decatur, Ill., the Democratic nominee will fly to Austin, Tex., for a reunion Tuesday with former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Johnson, despite his bitter clash with McGovern over the Vietnam war when he was in the White House, endorsed McGovern last week.

Property tax cuts said Nixon's goal

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—President Nixon will seek to make possible a reduction in local property taxes of 50 per cent or more in a second term, his top domestic adviser said in an interview published today in the Miami Herald and other Knight newspapers.

John D. Ehrlichman, chief of the President's Domestic Council, said the revenue lost to local school districts by cuts in property taxes would be made up from the federal treasury with increases in federal taxes.

He said the federal government has "a stainless steel tax-raising machine" which "can raise lots of money."

"And we can take some of that money that we can raise and replace property tax money which is regressive with this federal money, so that nobody's taxes go up in the process," Ehrlichman said. "It's a redistribution of burden is about what it amounts to."

Under one plan under consideration, he said, the federal government would "create a pool of federal tax dollars" and offer it to the states on the condition they eliminate property taxes levied to support schools. He said this would result in a reduction of property taxes of at least 50 per cent.

Taxpayers earning under $50,000—or perhaps much less—would wind up paying less in local and federal taxes than they now pay, Ehrlichman said.

GOP favors school prayers

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Republicans oppose racial busing and favor school prayers. They also would safeguard the right of responsible citizens to own and use guns for legitimate purposes including self defense.

The GOP positions on these as well as some other issues, as drafted by a platform committee for certain approval Tuesday by the party's national convention, contrast with stands taken by Democrats at their convention last month.

The Democrats defended busing as "another tool to accomplish desegregation." They declined to take a stand on school prayers, which have been barred by the Supreme Court as infringing on the first amendment. They endorsed legislation to ban the sale of cheap handguns or "Saturday night specials."

In a final segment of their platform, published Sunday, the Republicans commit themselves "to completing the process of ending de jure (legally imposed) segregation" in schools. "At the same time," their platform says, "we are irrevocably opposed to busing for racial balance... We regard it as unnecessary, counter-productive and wrong."

If antibusing laws, like those proposed by President Nixon, don't do the job, the Republicans say they favor a constitutional amendment to do it.

On school prayers, the Republicans stopped short of endorsing a constitutional amendment that has been proposed in Congress to overturn the Supreme Court's antiprayer ruling. However they said:

"We reaffirm our view that voluntary prayer should be freely permitted in public places—particularly by school children while attending public schools—provided that such prayers are not prepared or prescribed by the state or any of its political subdivisions and that no person's participation is coerced, thus preserving the traditional separation of church and state."

On guns, the Republicans support intensified efforts to bar criminal access to all weapons, including cheap, readily available handguns. At the same time they pledge to "safeguard the right of responsible citizens to collect, own and use firearms for legitimate purposes, including hunting, target shooting, and self defense."

Russian actions praised

PRAGUE (UPI)—The Czechoslovak Communist Party today thanked the Soviet Union for its armed intervention in Czechoslovakia four years ago.

"We appreciate the international assistance granted by the Soviet Union and our Allies in August, 1968, against the forces of counter-revolution," the party newspaper Rude Pravo said.

Twelve divisions of Russians soldiers and token detachments of East German, Polish, Hungarian and Bulgarian troops marched into Czechoslovakia just before midnight August 20, 1968, ending a period of liberalism led by former party leader Alexander Dubcek.

Warsaw Pact member Romania refused to take part in the invasion and later publicly condemned it.

"The defeat of the reactionary and right-wing forces at home and abroad after August, 1968, was and is being completed," Rude Pravo said.

A total of 46 liberals, including former aides of Dubcek, were convicted of subversion during the past month and sentenced to prison terms ranging from 18 months to six-and-a-half years.

Question...

I was separated but not divorced from my husband who died recently. Am I responsible for filing an income tax for him?

Answer...

If you have been filing jointly in the past and you are not divorced nor have you remarried you may reasonably be expected to file a joint return for the year in which your husband died.

You are entitled to receive any refund which may be payable as the result of overpayment of taxes. This cannot be paid to you without filing a return.

In its broadest aspect an income tax form is required to be filed and the tax paid by that person who inherited the income which created the tax liability.

Southern sweep GOP 1972 goal

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—The euphoria gripping Republicans here infects every region of the nation, and nowhere more than in the magnolia blossom dogleg from Virginia to Texas.

The GOP code word for 1972 is a sweep in the South.

Long a stepchild which could not be weaned from the Democratic party, the South appears on the verge of breaking with tradition, once and for all, and giving President Nixon all of its electoral votes.

Harry Dent, southerner in residence at the White House, openly asserts that the Republicans will have to make major goals to lose a southern state.

And Clarke Reed, who holds the title of chairman of the caucus of state Republican chairmen for the South, predicts the Nixon-Agnew ticket will sweep Dixie.

If the predictions come true, Nixon will crack long-held southern traditions. On the national level, Republicans have made inroads in the South but not on the scale the GOP envisions in 1972.

In 1968, Nixon carried Florida, Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina and South Carolina—no mean accomplishment for a Republican candidate. But he dropped Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Arkansas to George C. Wallace and Texas to Hubert H. Humphrey.

With Wallace paralyzed by a would-be assassin's bullet and unable to run again, Nixon expects this time to win the southern states he lost four years ago.

Tom Stagg, national committeeman from Louisiana, predicts that Nixon will get 60 per cent of the Wallace vote in his state. Reed claims that "most of the would-be Wallace vote" in the South generally will go to President Nixon.

That's all the edge Nixon needs.

Stagg and Reed dismiss John G. Schmitz, the lame duck California Republican congressman who has taken over as the standard bearer for Wallace's American Independent Party. Schmitz' impact on the vote, according to Stagg, is "not enough to wad a shotgun."

In three and one half years of his administration, Nixon has visited every southern state and—according to Dent, Reed, and Stagg—is popular with southern voters.

"He's the first president in my lifetime (Reed has gray hair) who has not been disliked or even despised," Reed said. "He has given fair and equal treatment to the South."

Nixon twice sought to name a southerner to the Supreme Court and was twice rebuffed. He has also taken the lead in stopping the busing of children to achieve school desegregation. The fact that the 1972 GOP platform omitted endorsement of right-to-work laws does not bother Reed.

"As much as they want to carry their states for Nixon, southern Republicans also want to establish what they call "a viable two-party system."

Agnew gets hero's welcome

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Four years ago he was Spiro T. Agnew. Now Vice President Agnew's name is a household word and he is back in Miami Beach to a hero's welcome.

Furthermore, a survey by the Miami Herald shows the outspoken vice president a clear favorite of 1972 Republican convention delegates for top spot on the party ticket in 1976.

Agnew was plainly delighted at the turnout of cheering supporters who greeted his arrival at Miami airport Sunday. And he said he was keeping his options open for the next presidential contest.

"Spiro is our hero!" shouted the welcoming group, including many young people, as Agnew deplaned with his wife Judy.

The former Maryland governor, who was an unknown figure nationally when presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon picked him as running mate here in 1968, admitted his pleasure both at his reception this time and at the report that more delegates by far favor him for the presidency next time than pick any other Republican prospect.

"This doesn't mean that I've decided to seek the presidency," Agnew told reporters. "But I'm keeping the options open."

The Herald's poll of convention delegates and alternates showed that 36 per cent of those responding currently feel that Agnew would make the best candidate four years from now.

Agnew sped from the airport to a round of visits with convention delegates and then holed up at a plush south Miami estate, owned by a businessman friend who moved into a hotel to make room.

Aides indicated he would be maintaining a low profile between now and Wednesday night when he, along with Nixon, will be accepting the convention's renomination.

Agnew in his arrival remarks took characteristic note of the announced plans by antiwar and other protest groups to disrupt the convention program.

"We are never going to consent to mob rule in the streets to bring change about," he said, to the applause of the welcoming throng. "We are going to continue to seek solid and constructive change in America. We are going to show the people of the United States that there can be one American."

Hotel front blocked by shoving SDS

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—"Keep the rich out!" spitting and shoving demonstrators shouted at Republicans arriving at Miami Beach's Fontainebleau Hotel for a $500-a-plate fund-raising dinner.

Mrs. Willard Marriott, wife of the multi-millionaire restaurant and motel chain owner, was furious.

"I had to climb a fence," she said.

The dinner Sunday night on the eve of the opening of the Republican National Convention raised $800,000 for GOP congressional candidates. The Republicans sold 1,600 tickets for the affair, but the diners had to run a gauntlet of about 500 antiwar protesters.

The demonstrators blocked Miami Beach's main street in front of the hotel for about a half hour before they were dispersed by club-swinging police.

John Wayne didn't have much trouble getting in. The 6-4 actor pushed his way through like a bulldozer.

But Anna Maria Alba, a buxom Beverly Hills, Calif.,

blonde, showed reporters the torn sleeve of her lace gown. "They want to kill me," said the Argentine-born cosmetic firm owner. "They called me a pig, a Nixon lover. They throw eggs on me. It's embarrassing."

Guilford Dudley, former ambassador to Panama and a self-described friend of President Nixon arrived in a Lincoln limousine.

"I guess that was a mistake," he said. "They jumped on top of the car and tried to rock it."

But Clare Boothe Luce, the former ambassador to Italy, wasn't stopped. She arrived on the arm of columnist William Buckley.

For their $500, the partygoers were served a dinner of melen, prime ribs of beef, asparagus tips, potatoes, Bibb lettuce salad and tomatoes, and frozen oranges served on a bed of coconut.

First Lady Pat Nixon, her two daughters, Julie Eisenhower and Tricia Cox; and Tricia's husband, Edward Cox, were the guests of honor.

TF police probe weekend break-ins

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls police are investigating a series of weekend break-ins today.

The First Christian Church on Shoshone Street was entered sometime Sunday afternoon or early evening, and an undetermined amount of money was taken. The thieves also entered several rooms, closets and supply areas and caused damage to the building in rummaging around the rooms, police said.

Officials also reported two windows broken at the Big O Tire Co. on Addison Avenue West in Twin Falls sometime between Saturday afternoon and early today.

Boise man disappears

NEW PLYMOUTH, Idaho (UPI)—A Boise man was still missing Sunday evening after he disappeared Saturday while swimming in the Payette River near here.

Police said Boyd Anderson, 21, was fishing with his wife and relatives when they decided to cross the river near Black Bridge about two miles north of here, to go swimming.

Anderson apparently tried to swim across the river and was half-way across when he disappeared. His wife said she saw him vanish from sight but was unable to help.

Payette County Sheriff Richard Hayes said a search with four divers and three crew boats failed to find Anderson.

Police probe thefts

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls police received five reports of burglary from automobiles over the weekend.

Saturday night a car belonging to Pat R. Grief, parked at his residence, was broken into and a stereo tape player and two tapes were taken.

Friday night Joe Cisneros reported someone had removed a stereo from his car while it was parked outside a dance.

In another incident, a car parked at the Holiday Inn was entered, with a tape box, tapes and several pieces of clothing belonging to a Provo, Utah, man removed Friday night.

A car parked at the D & G Automotive Co. was burglarized with a tape deck, tapes, a suitcase and its contents totalling $170 taken Friday night.

In the other incident over the weekend, Walter Mildon reported someone had removed a portable radio from a truck parked and left unlocked near Price Hardware Saturday.

Police are investigating the incident today.

COMMENT

Sorry Journalism

The Blade-Tribune
Oceanside, Cal.

Nationally syndicated newspaper columnist Jack Anderson's accusation against Sen. Thomas Eagleton is one of the poorest excuses for journalism the U. S. has witnessed in some time. Anderson charged Democratic vice presidential candidate Sen. Eagleton had a series of arrests in Missouri for drunk and reckless driving.

Sen. Eagleton vehemently denied the charges, and Anderson has since retracted the charges and issued an apology to Eagleton.

But the issue doesn't end there. Eagleton at the time was facing the intense pressures caused by his disclosure that he had undergone treatment for "nervous exhaustion" three times in the past.

Anderson's low blow added to the severity of the pressures on Eagleton, serving as the coup de grace in destroying his image.

What makes Anderson's charges so reprehensible is that they were based on the flimsiest of evidence — a report by a former official that he had seen what he thought were photocopies of traffic citations against Eagleton.

Anderson didn't make the charges in his normal fashion — his muckraking column which was started by Drew Pearson and used so effectively by Pearson to make false charges against political figures.

Anderson made his charges on a radio program. He later had the gall to say the story was "blown out of proportion."

Anderson's apologies and retraction of the charges will never make up for the harm they did to Sen. Thomas Eagleton.

They will also discredit Anderson's credibility for the next few years, for he has proven himself capable of shooting from the hip without proof.

A columnist who slings mud inevitably gets his hands dirty, and this time Anderson won't be able to wash his hands clean.

McGovern Debates

Lewiston Tribune
Sen. George McGovern says President Nixon is "taking the low road by remote control." He is referring to Mr. Nixon's use of Secretary of State William Rogers and Defense Secretary Melvin Laird to carry the fight to the Democrats.

The McGovern description fits, but whatever you call it, McGovern and Democratic vice presidential nominee Sargent Shriver are at a strategic disadvantage. McGovern and Shriver are forced to debate with and thereby virtually run against Rogers and Laird. Meanwhile, Mr. Nixon and Vice President Spiro Agnew are on the high road. Publicly the President and vice president are ignoring the opposition.

Thus Mr. Nixon is in an unusually strong strategic position in the campaign. Front-running incumbents normally ignore their opposition and avoid appearing to be on the defense for as long as possible. That is Mr. Nixon's position, but he has added another layer of disdain for the common fray. Agnew has been directed to soften his statement and strike a more positive pose.

If McGovern and Shriver appear to be getting to the administration, Mr. Nixon can always unleash Agnew, still leaving himself above the battle and not on the defensive. If the situation really worsened, the President could exercise the emergency measure of using the prestige of his office to put down directly the arguments of the opposition.

It is the measure of the task before McGovern and Shriver that, even if their criticism begins to be felt, they will only have succeeded in placing the vice president on the defensive and will still have the President to go. Meanwhile, they are debating with Laird and Rogers.

In the style of Mr. Nixon's favorite game, what is happening is similar to one football team playing its second string against the other team's first string and holding its own first string in reserve. The psychological disadvantage is as unnerving as the still-lopsided score. — B.H.

A High Price

Christian Science Monitor
It is right and proper that United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim should visit Peking. His journey there is the last of a series of visits he is making to the capitals of the five permanent members of the Security Council.

But the price he has apparently had to pay for getting an invitation to the People's Republic of China is too high.

China originally opposed the choice of Mr. Waldheim as U. Thant's successor. Whether or not because of this, the new Secretary-General has been carefully nurturing his relations with Peking ever since he took office last January.

As a first concession he endorsed U. Thant's expulsion from the UN of two correspondents of the Nationalist Chinese news agency, ignoring the vigorous protests of the UN press corps.

Then, in a more sweeping concession on the eve of his trip to Peking, Mr. Waldheim ordered the elimination of all reference to Taiwan from UN documents and publications. Even such standard reference works as the UN statistical yearbook will in future contain no mention of Nationalist China. In the years when Peking was excluded from the UN, the yearbook published what data it could about Communist China. Now it will deliberately ignore the existence of an independent country of 14 million people whose industrial growth rate in recent years has been second in Asia only to that of Japan. Does this mean that Mr. Waldheim has accepted the Communist argument that Taiwan is an integral part of China?

The crowning touch of absurdity is the removal from the walls of UN headquarters of a plaque recording that the "Republic of China" was the donor of a marble tablet engraved with sayings of Confucius.

We deplored the expulsion of the two Chinese newsmen at the time. We considered that they had every right to be present at the UN as representatives of the world's press. The latest measures taken at Peking's bidding are both petty and unrealistic.

The Republicans Are Nervous

WASHINGTON — It goes without saying that the Republicans, convening today in Miami Beach, again will attempt to identify themselves as representing the party of law and order. But there is some nervousness about the subject.

Crime has been reduced under the Nixon administration, but it remains a problem, especially in the big cities. Drug addiction is still high, despite the administration's far-reaching war against the dope merchants. Indeed, a Democratic Party which in 1968 seemed almost unaware of the violence that plagued the nation's streets, lately has made it one of the issues of the Presidential campaign.

The keynote of this switch was sounded by Vice Presidential candidate, Sargent Shriver, in his acceptance speech. He noted that "Millions of citizens of every race live every day under the silent oppression of violence. The new life within our cities is not the dream we saved and worked for; triple-locked doors, a dread of empty and dark streets, and fumbling noises at the door."

In this sticky situation, the Republicans have turned to the obvious. They are comparing Nixon's anti-crime record with that of his Democratic predecessors of the 60s, when crime and violence reached a peak unprecedented in the Republic's history. In so doing, Republican propagandists will gleefully run against an assortment of Democratic has-beens, while — in the words of Republican National Chairman Robert Dole — charging that George McGovern's "approach to crime is to order some more studies." Indeed, Dole is fond of picturing McGovern as standing on the wrong side of the problem. "Republicans are against criminals," says Dole. "McGovern bleeds for them."

Perhaps more to the point, Dole is asking if the people "want four more years of that reluctant cop, Ramsey Clark." His researchers have unearthed some statements uttered by Lyndon Johnson's Attorney General, now a member of the McGovern team, which suggest Clark's position on crime and violence was a touch tentative. For example, in 1968 when mugging, murders, rioting and looting were at their peak, Clark was saying that candidate Nixon was "exploiting" the law and order issue for partisan gain, and that the Republicans would "revert to repressiveness" to stop crime. Even today, when things are a little better, most Americans tend to feel that the only way to handle a mugger or murderer is to "repress" him.

research, I must conclude that Clark made some curious remarks — as the nation's chief law enforcement officer. "To show we intend to revert to repressiveness," he said, again in 1968, "is to invite disorder." This is tantamount to deposing that a cop should not arrest a rapist or a bank robber because it might lead to more rapes and more bank robberies.

Digging up old quotes ordinarily is ineffective. The voter properly is interested in today's cast of characters. Unfortunately for the McGovern-Shriver ticket, however, Clark in recent months has made himself extremely visible by his sympathetic attitude toward the North Vietnamese enemy, climaxed a couple of weeks ago by his visit to Hanoi and his charge that the U. S. had "purposely bombed" North Vietnamese dikes and inflicted horror on the civilian population.

Moreover, McGovern has described Clark as "the kind of a man" he'd like to see on the Supreme Court, or in his Cabinet. This might please the New Left, but it gives no aid and comfort to the Democratic position that Nixon should be unfrocked because he hasn't wiped out crime in America. With Clark on McGovern's side, the Republicans' job of convincing the electorate they are the party of law and order becomes a little easier.

Doctor Says

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have polycythemia. I have given gallons of blood to the Red Cross until I found out I have polycythemia. Now they will not take my blood. I have to go to a hospital and they charge $10 to take my blood and say it can't be used.

I have had doctors tell me they are wrong, that they do use the blood. Do you know of any place that could use it? — Mrs. W.H.

To my knowledge, blood from patients with polycythemia is not used for transfusions. It might be used under special circumstances, but these would be very rare cases.

Reason for not using polycythemic blood is very simple: the cause of the disease is not known in some cases. Therefore we don't know whether use of the blood could be harmful, and if we don't know, we play safe and don't use it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What foods contain zinc? I heard that it is effective in aiding memory. I am 65. — E.T.

Zinc is found in meat, cereals, nuts, peanut butter, seafoods, eggs, brewer's yeast, most fruits and vegetables. It's hard to avoid it, in fact.

But as to aiding memory, I have my doubts. Possibly a B-complex vitamin preparation might help, but I offer even that idea very gingerly.

Troubled with gout? To learn of new treatment for this cruel and painful disease, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper for a copy of his booklet, "Gout — The Modern Way to Stop It." Please enclose a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Shingles can be a painful disease! To receive a copy of Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "The Facts About Shingles," write to him in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 15 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Why is hair black, brown or red? How can a black-haired man have a red mustache? — C. R.

Well, it's a difference in the pigment, or coloring matter, but exactly why and how it works, aside from the usual workings of heredity, I can't explain.

So I can't explain why a man can have black hair and a red mustache, but I've known it to happen. In the most vivid example that I happened to know of, the man had jet black curly hair, a most definitely red mustache, and the very light complexion which redheads often have — and he sunburned like a redhead. He had two sons. Both had brown hair and whiskers, and reacted quite averagely to the sun.

Rent-A-Gun

WASHINGTON — The Senate passed a new gun-control bill, which some observers consider worse than no bill at all. Any serious attempt at handgun registration was gutted, and Senate gun-lovers even managed to repeal a 1968 gun law controlling the purchase of .2 rimfire ammunition.

After the Senate got finished with its work on the gun-control bill, I received a telephone call from my friend Bromley Hurts who told me he had a business proposition to discuss with me. I met him for lunch at a pistol range in Maryland.

"I think I've got a fantastic idea," he said. "I want to start a new business, called 'Hurts Rent-A-Gun.'"

"What on earth for?" I asked. "There are a lot of people in this country who only use a handgun once or twice a year, and they don't want to go to all the expense of buying one. So we'll rent them a gun for a day or two. By leasing a firearm from us, they won't have to tie up all their money."

"That makes sense," I admitted.

"Say a guy is away from home on a trip, and he doesn't want to carry his own gun with him. He can rent a gun from us and then return it when he's finished with his business."

"You could set up rent-a-gun counters at gas stations," I said excitedly.

"And we could have stores in town where someone could rent a gun to settle a bet," Hurts said.

"A lot of people would want to rent a gun for a domestic quarrel," I said.

"Right. Say a jealous husband suspects there is someone at home with his wife. He rents a pistol from us and tries to catch them in the act. If he discovers his wife is alone, he can't out the $50 it would have cost him to buy a gun."

"Don't forget about kids who want to play Russian roulette. They could pool their allowances and rent a gun for a couple of hours," I said.

"Our market surveys indicate," Hurts said, "that there are also a lot of kids who claim their parents don't listen to them. If they could rent a gun, they feel they could arrive at an understanding with their folks in no time."

"There's no end to the business," I said. "How would you charge for Hurts Rent-A-Gun?"

"There would be hourly rates, day rates and weekly rates, plus 10 cents for each bullet fired."

Our guns would be the latest models, and we would guarantee clean barrels and the latest safety devices. If a gun malfunctions through no fault of the user, we will give him another gun absolutely free."

"For many Americans it's a dream come true," I said.

"We've also made it possible for people to return the gun in another town. For example, if you rent a gun in Chicago and want to use it in Salt Lake City, you can drop it off there at no extra charge."

"Why didn't you start this before?"

"We wanted to see what happened with this gun-control legislation. We were pretty sure the Senate and the White House would not do anything about strong gun control, especially during an election year. But we didn't want to invest a lot of money until we were certain they would all chicken out."

In Trouble

WASHINGTON — If the Soviet Union does indeed buy a billion dollars worth of U.S. wheat and other farm products these next 12 months, Leonid Brezhnev could be in for some trouble at home.

Despite sizable American credits and the extraordinary rise in the value of Moscow's gold stocks this past year, these heavy agricultural purchases will force the U.S.S.R. to cut heavily into its hoarded gold reserves or slash back sharply on industrial expansion the next few years. The United States, Japan and other Western countries could come to the Soviet Union's rescue with sizable additional credits and investments not thus far announced. But in that event, Brezhnev and his administration would be in heavy debt politically, as well as economically, to the United States and President Nixon.

Cutting sharply into the gold stocks is a highly sensitive issue in the U.S.S.R., which Nikita Khrushchev leaned to his sorrow in a similar situation a number of years back. Worse yet, these huge grain purchases result from two agricultural failures in a row. The U.S.S.R. winter crop was miserable. The spring crop has been called a disaster.

Agricultural successes and failures are major emotional, political and economic issues in the Soviet Union. Khrushchev gambled with a mammoth long-shot Siberian agricultural development program to save himself from crop failure. But in the end, as suggested above, agricultural difficulties were a primary cause of his ouster from power.

Brezhnev will undoubtedly survive, where Khrushchev did not. Brezhnev has successfully downgraded the strongest of his opponents into key power spots.

Nevertheless, the price Brezhnev will pay in internal infighting is expected to be great. There will be strong criticism within the Politburo and the Central Committee of the way Brezhnev has handled agriculture and the economy. His remaining enemies in high places will go at him with vigor.

For this agricultural crisis comes on top of other Russian problems. Although the shift in Cairo may actually be to Russia's advantage, in that it gets the U.S.S.R. out of an expansive, exposed, no-win position, Brezhnev's handling of the Egyptian crisis gives added ammunition to his foes. Brezhnev will also most certainly draw fire within the party for his bungled handling of North Vietnam this past year, for growing problems in East Europe and for his inability to bring the open fight with China under some control.

To offset these failures, Brezhnev must pull a rather large rabbit out of his hat. Again, it seems likely that his best bet is some sort of an economic deal with the United States.

BERRY'S WORLD

Parking spaces Gem clout gauge

BOISE (UPI)—In Washington, D.C., political clout might be measured by the number of secretaries or office windows, but in Idaho's State Capitol it seems to be the number of parking spaces.

Over the years there has been a running battle between departments and individuals in state government to secure the 10 by 20-foot plots in designated

A majority of the 420 spaces in the surrounding four major parking lots — plus some smaller ones — are decorated with names, numbers or departments.

The last directive concerning who would be entitled to space was sent to department heads on Jan. 26, 1971, by the late Lloyd Cook who was then administrator of building services when an employee was transferred and brought it with him. Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa has three designated parking places for his employees and one for himself.

State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon says she has her own space in front of the statehouse right near the governor. Three of her employees have spaces.

The state auditor has six spots for 50 employees.

But in the Department of Environmental Protection and Health things are not so good. With 140 employees the department only has three parking places.

"There are nine division heads in the department who are making more than $15,000 and they don't have parking places," one health department employee said.

There are open spaces in some of the lots, but the are the ones furthest from the main office complex.

Another plan suggested by State Auditor Joe Williams would be to charge a small fee for parking and use the money to improve the existing facilities and build new one.

"I think all anyone has to do is drive around the capitol mall and you can see the parking problem," Max Boesiger, commissioner of public works, said.

He said there is a need to "get state people back into the mall," who are now scattered around Boise in office space rented by the state.

But he said when these employees return the "parking problem will become more acute."

There was a plan several years ago to build a five story elevated parking area near the State Office Building but it seemed to have died because of a lack of money.

But Boesiger says he is going to try and revive the idea by presenting the State Permanent Building Fund Board with a lease purchase plan.

Under the proposal the state could contract with someone to build the structure and then lease it from them for parking. Eventually the structure would revert to the state.

He said a structure for parking would cost well over a million dollars.

"He directed me to a secretary who keeps the parking records . . . later my name appeared . . . in front of my space."

parking lots scattered around the capitol mall.

There is a creeping possessiveness among the 800 employees to personalize the more than 400 parking spaces.

One secretary in the Statehouse described how it can be done.

"I used an open space in a state parking lot. I parked there every day. Then I noticed a name being painted on the parking stone two spaces away."

"Then a name appeared on the space next to mine and I decided I better do something before someone's name appeared on the space I was using. I asked the secretary next to me how she rated a personalized parking space and she told me who to see."

The secretary, who asked not to be identified, said she was told to go see the administrator of building services in order to put her name on the space.

"He directed me to a secretary who keeps the parking records. A time later, my name appeared on the block in front of my space," she said.

Another method of getting a parking space was termed by one employee as "pirating."

This act, maybe more fairly termed squatting, is accomplished by waiting until someone dies, is fired, gets sick or quits.

Then the employee can start using the space and hope that no one complains. If he is successful he can eventually call it his own — even though it may have the name of another person inscribed on the block.

Smith descendants set Nauvoo meeting in '73

NAUVOO, Ill. (UPI) — Descendants of the parents of Joseph Smith Jr., patriarch of the Mormon Church, Saturday capped their first family reunion in more than 125 years by voting to get together on a regular basis.

The 250 to 300 persons from more than half-a-dozen states, who gathered here Friday for the two-day reunion, voted to meet again next year and every two years thereafter.

A committee composed of descendants of Joseph Smith Jr., founder of the church, and his brothers, Hyrum and Samuel Smith, was formed to recommend a time and place for future reunions.

"It is really in a spirit of love and harmony that they met here," said Elder Ron Mitchell of Nauvoo of the reunion. "The love and harmony has increased since they began meeting."

The family reunion was the first since 1846, when the Mormons left Nauvoo, once the largest city in Illinois, on their famous 1,200-mile march westward under the leadership of Brigham Young to what was to become Salt Lake City.

Attending the reunion were descendants of Joseph Smith Sr. and Lucille Mack Smith. The couple had 11 children, including Joseph Smith Jr., recognized as the founder and first prophet of both the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Joseph Smith Jr. and Hyrum Smith were taken from a jail at Carthage, Ill., where they were being held in protective custody, and slain by a mob on June 27, 1844. The incident set the stage for the evacuation by most Mormons of Nauvoo and their trek westward.

As it did Friday, the temperature in this Mississippi river town in west central Illinois reached a muggy 95 degrees Saturday. The reunion guests met in lecture sessions at the airconditioned chapel and some braved the heat to examine the restored buildings of Nauvoo.

Buildings in the once thriving town, including the homes of Brigham Young and Joseph Smith Jr., are being restored under a continuing project sponsored by the Church. The town has been designated a national historical site by the National Park Service.

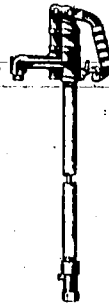

Nauvoo was a city of 20,000 when it served as Mormon headquarters. The town's population in the latest census was 1,047.

Agnew flourishes in role

By EUGENE V. RISHER
WASHINGTON (UPI)—When Richard Nixon said four years ago that his choice for vice president was named Agnew, millions asked "who?" No one does any more.

Since 1968, Agnew has indeed become the household word Nixon said then it would, but its meaning varies according to the household in which it is spoken.

Depending on your point of view, it could mean courageous and incisive or blundering and insensitive. Almost certainly it would mean forceful and unequivocal.

With the departure of Martha Mitchell from the national scene, Spiro Theodore Agnew can lay sole claim to being the most colorful and controversial figure in the official Nixon family.

He has generated substantial public interest in the usually obscure job of vice president and managed to flourish in a position that stifled such political pros as Lyndon B. Johnson and Hubert H. Humphrey. He has found his niche as the cutting edge of the Nixon White House.

As of the first of August, Agnew had traveled 566,597 miles since taking office. He had visited 27 countries, seven more than Nixon, and every state in the Union. He had made an average of three to four speeches a week, attended countless official and unofficial functions, enriched the Republican war chest and managed to outrage his critics, delight his supporters and bewilder some of his advisers.

Throughout it all, he has maintained an imperturbable calm, keeping his golf game in the low 90s with weekly outings and his waist-line under control with more frequent tennis matches.

At 53, Agnew is primed for another four years of defending the Nixon Administration's policies and lambasting its critics.

Agnew made his name by articulating in rich and memorable language the feelings of some that the country was going to hell in a hand-basket. He expresses the values, fears and prejudices of the self-made man who works comfortably within the system.

To some—including some prominent members of his own party—he is Archib Bunker with a dictionary, oblivious to the glaring deficiencies of a system that has plunged the nation into a meaningless war and effectively excluded broad segments of the population from a reasonable voice in government. To his fans, it is simply a case of "telling it like it is."

He has heaped invective on campus dissidents; "those tontoos exhibitionists who provoke more derision than fear," those "paranoids and cases of arrested development who have attempted to destroy our system of higher education."

He has damned cynics as "merchants of hate," as "parasites of passion," and as "ideological eunuchs whose most comfortable position is straddling the philosophical fence."

His targets at one time or another have been just about anybody who disagreed too sharply with the Nixon Administration's policies but he took on intellectuals and the media with special relish.

"A spirit of national masochism prevails, encouraged by an effete corps of impudent snobs who characterize themselves as intellectuals," he said in a speech in New Orleans.

When the predictable furore arose about such language from one in so high a position, Agnew responded:

"A little over a week ago, I took a rather unusual step for a vice president . . . I said something," he told an audience in Harrisburg, Pa. "Particularly, I said something that was predictably unpopular with the people who would like to run the country without the inconvenience of seeking public office. I criticized those who encouraged government by street carnival and suggested it was time to stop the carousel."

"It appears that by slaughtering a sacred cow, I triggered a holy war. I have no regrets. I do not intend to repudiate my beliefs, recant my words or run and hide."

He outraged the television networks by criticizing their "instant analysis" of the policy pronouncements the President made, setting off howls of protest about government interference in free editorial comment.

"Georgetown parlors" and generation gap.

"We are not in turmoil because of your testing," he told the graduating class at Ohio State University. "We are in trouble because my generation has apparently failed to define and defend either its achievements or its inheritance from past generations of Americans."

"A society which comes to fear its children is effete. A sniveling, hand-wringing power structure deserves the violent rebellion it encourages. If my generation doesn't stop cringing, yours will inherit a lawless society where emotion and muscle displace reason."

Agnew comes by his defense of the traditional values naturally. The son of a Greek immigrant, he worked his way through law school at night.

Ten years before Nixon pulled him from the relative obscurity of the Maryland governor's mansion, he was president of a Baltimore suburban PTA group, a normal civic duty for the father of four school-age children.

"the board rooms of New York" where the shapers of public opinion engaged in "intellectual incest" became special targets, and as he warned to his subject he began naming publications.

He coined such phrases as "radiclib" and saw academic communities as the haven for youthful protestors who shouted obscene derision in the streets.

"Let us not be naive enough to believe that there are no seeds of revolution in the rebellion that radical young people describe as 'the movement'. Let us be candid enough to face the fact that the spawning ground and sanctuary of 'the movement' is the American University. Few institutions are more vital to a free society; none is so susceptible to capture and destruction by the radical or criminal left," he said.

He did not limit his criticism to only one side of the

Draw agreed in 16th game

REYKJAVIK (UPI)—In the corridor Eytim Geller and Nikolai Krogius, two of world champion Boris Spassky's seconds, waited more than an hour in their raincoats. Inside the dark hall on the brightly lit stage, the champion and challenger Bobby Fischer played on and on.

"Are they crazy? It has been a dead draw since the 33rd move," Krogius said and glanced at the closed circuit television screen where the moves piled up.

Geller smiled and chatted with Larissa, Spassky's wife. He was not chain-smoking, a sure sign the champion was not in trouble.

Finally after the 60th move Fischer looked up from the board, nodded and offered his hand. Spassky pressed it and the 16th game in the $250,000 world chess championship ended in a draw.

Although Fischer picked up another half-point and inched closer to the 12.5 points he needs to win, grandmasters said the challenger's standard had fallen in the last couple of games.

"I don't know if Fischer is trying to play safe," said Icelandic grandmaster Fridrik Olafsson "but the score is even with a win each and four draws in the last six games. There was not much punch in his play today."

But what the 16th game lacked in excitement on the board, Fischer provided between the moves.

Three times the temperamental chess genius snapped out of his $470 swivel chair and stalked across the stage to German arbiter Lothar Schmid.

"First time Bobby complained about people coughing in the auditorium," Schmid said later.

"Then twice he demanded that I move the game to a private table tennis room backstage because of the noise. I refused and told him the noise level was not sufficiently high to warrant such a drastic move. There was no real disturbance."

Watching the record crowd of 3,000 persons filing out of the hall Schmid said "I think people were good today although I had to admonish a few during the game."

After each refusal Fischer shrugged and walked back to the table without pulling out the written protest, U.S. sources said he stuck in his pocket before going to the hall.

The Icelandic Chess Federation issued a statement during the game protesting being named coplaintiffs in a $ 1.75 million lawsuit movie producer Chester Fox filed against Fischer.

The statement, signed by the five committee members, said "we deeply regret that seeds of suspicion have been thrown against us and we are unable to explain how this happened. It has never been the slightest intention of the federation to sue Mr. Robert Fischer for huge amounts."

Fox, who returned from New York early Sunday, said: "All the legal aspects are in the hands of my lawyers. All I know is that Fischer has prevented me from fulfilling my exclusive contract with the federation by refusing to allow cameras into the hall."

The 17th game is scheduled for 1 p.m. EDT Tuesday with Spassky playing the white pieces and moving first.

Nixon veto comes at bad time

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said today that President Nixon's veto of an education bill came at a time when "American education is in deep trouble."

Nixon vetoed the $30.5 billion bill to fund the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare last week with a message that it was inflationary.

"The Nixon administration is not the friend of American education. It has always recommended too little, too late," said Humphrey in a speech prepared for the 56th annual convention of the American Federation of Teachers.

"American education is in deep trouble. There are nearly 20,000 experienced teachers without work and nearly 320,000 new teachers without jobs," Humphrey said.

He said some goals for the federal government should be to finance at least one third of public schools costs, a national collective bargaining law for teachers and federal standards and guarantees for teacher pension and retirement benefits.

US return likely

COMPTON, Calif. (UPI)—Fugitive Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver may return to the United States rather than remain in Algeria, which is clamping down on refugee radicals, according to Cleaver's wife.

"The life of Eldridge Cleaver is in danger. He has been threatened prior to this with a very bad fate," Kathleen Cleaver told newsmen during the weekend.

Cleaver fled the United States while free on bond on a charge of carrying a weapon, a violation of parole for earlier crimes, which included robbery and rape.

His departure set off a series of killings within the party. Police described them as the result of a bitter power struggle between followers of Cleaver and those of his former ally, Huey Newton, who took over the Panthers.

Mrs. Cleaver did not give details of her statement that Cleaver's life is in danger in Algeria, and said she was unsure when—and if—Cleaver would return.

"It depends on certain legal maneuvers in the United Nations and in the California courts and in the United States Supreme Court," she said.

The Algerian government has placed restrictions on the movements of the Black Panther exile colony there, she said, and the radicals who have hijacked airliners to Algeria in recent months have all been placed under arrest. Mrs. Cleaver said she was under house arrest until she left for the United States earlier this month.

Swim classes conducted for TF toddlers

By DICK HUGHES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A swimming class for children 6 1/2 months to 3 years old.

That's right! For the past two weeks eight youngsters have been participating in an "infant and toddler swim class." Sessions were held weekdays at Harry Barry Pool under the watchful eyes of instructors Cathy Murray and Mardo Eaton.

The program was under the direction of Chad Browning through the Twin Falls Recreation Department.

Goals of the two-week program were "to assist parents in learning how to make swimming a safe and enjoyable experience for the young child and to give the young child a head start in developing coordination of his body when in the water."

Each child was accompanied in the water by a parent or an adult close relative. "It's important that they learn with the parents because they'll be with the children later," said instructor Mardo Eaton.

Basic skills taught included breath holding, blowing bubbles, positions to be used by an adult to support a child in the water, kicking, pulling or paddling and jumping into the pool to an adult.

The youngsters also learned float positions, retrieving objects in the water, how to stand up after a fall in shallow water and pushing off the side and gliding to an adult. The "older and braver ones" also swam a short distance between two persons.

The program has worked "really well" according to Miss Eaton. "There have been no dropouts and they seem to have fun. At least they're not clinging to their parents anymore."

"We think they've really progressed," said Miss Murray. "And after a program like this, they do learn to swim a lot faster."

"This is the first program of its kind in Twin Falls and we'd like to see it continued," she added.

Participants in the class included Ann Wilmore and son, Burke, age 1 1/2; Nancy Smith and son, Jed, 2; Michaelene Yost and son, Matt, 3 1/2; Marilyn Swensen and daughter, Alicia, 15 months; Gina Ostyn and brother, Gabe, 2 1/2; Charm Bogle and son, Mathew, 3; Lita Bogle and daughter, Misti, 6 1/2 months; and Theresa Grace and daughter, Cori, 2.

A Lovelier You

YOUR FIGURE, FALL '72

By Mary Sue Miller

Have you been putting off until September the weight you should start taking off today? Do it or you'll be sorry. Fall fashions look lovelier than in many a season — on a lovely figure that is.

Here's an ideal regimen. It will lose up to 10 pounds for you in a month. Meanwhile you will see more glow in your skin and more sheen in your hair. For the foods that keep you trim are packed with the stuff of beauty and vim. To exemplify, a sample of reducing menus:

Breakfast: Citrus fruit or juice; boiled egg; slice of whole wheat toast lightly buttered; coffee or skim milk. Luncheon: Chicken bouillabaisse, shrimp marinated in tomato catsup, served on lettuce with sliced green pepper; 2 breadsticks.

apple slices topped with water-thin sharp cheese; tea with lemon.

Dinner: Vegetable juice cocktail; serving of roast lamb; steamed carrots; chilled celery hearts; thin sliced pound cake; demi-tasse. Now let's analyze the virtues of these menus. Surely there is nothing about them that smacks of starvation. Foods are varied and satisfying, yet well within the reducer's count of 1200 calories. Owing to their high-protein and vitamin content they make for general well-being.

You can easily pattern diversified and delicious low-cal meals from these menus. That way you just might form a habit of eating for slim, vigorous life style.

POCKET CALORIE COUNTER

Do you really know the calorie counts of the foods you eat? Our leaflet, POCKET CALORIE COUNTER, tells the score at a glance. It also gives a diet plan — a way to eat and slim. For your copy, write to Mary Sue Miller, care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 15 cents in coin.

Current Cues

By HELEN WALKER

TWIN FALLS — The fashion trend in appliances is going "mini."

With more confined living areas — condominiums, townhouses, high-rise apartments, mobile homes and vacation cottages — space is at a premium. Appliances are changing to meet the life styles of the 1970s. For today's mobile society, appliances need to be as adaptable as the people they are going to serve.

Traditional uses of interior space, furnishings and equipment are being revolutionized. Now appliances are being designed to meet the flexible needs of a family, rather than the system of a family adapting to the structural use of the appliance. The use of compact and portable appliances is on the rise.

Versatile, plug-in-anywhere, multi-purpose cooking appliances are made especially for this mobile society: electric skillets, which broil, bake, fry, roast and warm, yet are still attractive enough to be used on the table; rotisserie and toaster ovens — which adapt to many other uses; the sleek compact design of the portable microwave oven which can go anywhere and be plugged into any standard grounded outlet; compact electric ranges and range — sink — refrigerator combinations all are designed for tight living quarters.

The compact refrigerator fits easily and unobtrusively under a counter and fulfills the need for supplemental refrigerator storage in different areas of the home — family room — basement or game room. They are also popular for vacation homes, college dorms and single's rooms.

Compact freezers also serve as supplemental food storage areas. Ideal for the consumer who would like a freezer but does not need or have room for a standard size freezer. Compact freezer can be found in countertop, chest or upright models. The compact, portable dishwashers require no installation, they connect easily to the sink faucet. Some models come with cutting board or food warmer tops which create more working surface in a cramped kitchen.

For the consumer who has longed for a modern laundry but has lacked the space, the compact washers and dryers are the answer. Small enough to be concealed in a closet or stored neatly in the bathroom they are easy to use. They require no installation or special wiring. The washer can be connected directly to the sink faucet, and the dryer can be plugged into any regular outlet.

Some manufacturers have designed washer-dryer mates that can be mounted on casters for easy portability or stacked on top of each other on special racks for more compact storage. They can be easily used in small apartments, vacation and mobile homes.

For easy floor care, there is the compact vacuum cleaner. The vacuum and attachments are housed in a self-contained luggage-like case, and can be used for rugs, floors, upholstery, dusting and cleaning small crevices.

Even small water heaters can be strategically placed under counters, in closets, bathrooms and kitchens in order to provide hot water where and when it is needed.

The contemporary home presents a haven for the many compact appliances available today. Through their use, every inch of horizontal and vertical surface can be efficiently, aesthetically and functionally utilized. Make space work for you. Change it to suit your needs.

Whether you live in a single room, a cramped apartment, a small or mobile home, the flexible, multi-purpose, compact appliance readily adapts to the needs of every family living style.

Observation scene

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some observations on the American scene:

Sargent Shriver, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, once explained to a news panel show in which he participated that his unusual first name was a family name handed down.

Then Sargent Shriver went on to tell about one woman's reaction when he was named director of the Peace Corps. "I don't worry about it succeeding," she wrote, "so long as I know a sergeant is running it."

My sister spotted such an obvious bargain in a second hand store that she had to inquire although her household didn't need a second power lawn mower. The mower looked brand new and was priced at $39.95 when comparable mowers would go for $50 and up.

She asked the proprietor whether the mower had some unseen flaw. No, he said, a man had just come in with it for trade in. Asked why, the seller had answered, "It's too heavy for my wife to push."

The influx of women into news broadcasting and telecasting creates some identification problems among some of the lib-conscious males. Rita Sands, the rapid fire delivery woman on the all-news WCBS radio station in New York, was introduced the other morning by one of her masculine colleagues as, "Your next anchor person is ..."

But then the identity problem is spreading also to organizations' meetings, even to political conventions, and promises to be harder to resolve than the simple solution of "Ms" for either "Miss" or "Mrs."

The Democratic National conventioners in Miami Beach fretted whether to refer to a woman on the podium as "Madame chairman, chairwoman or chair person."

Oswald: "One of the most important things declarer should do is just to play carefully. It is surprising how many contracts will be saved by following this precept."

Jim: "South might well have raised his partner to two hearts instead of bidding one spade, but that is a matter of style and no one can really criticize that spade bid."

Oswald: "A four-heart contract would breeze in. Defending against four spades, West opens a diamond and three rounds of diamonds are played. South ruffs the third diamond and leads a low spade toward dummy."

Jim: "If West clutters up with the ace there will be no problem about the rest of the tricks, but West ducks."

Oswald: "Now it is about time for declarer to take a little care. If he leads a trump back to his king West will take his ace and lead a fourth diamond. There will be no way to keep East's trump 10 from taking the setting trick."

Jim: "There is an easy way to guard against this. South just enters his hand with a club and leads a low spade. West must play his ace and now South is waiting with the king of trumps to keep East's 10 from doing any damage."

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old girl, recently graduated from high school. I am planning on going on to college to become a mortician. When people ask me what I am going to be and I tell them, they about fall over.

Abby, I know that not many women want to be morticians, but you should hear some of the awful remarks people make when I tell them what I am going into. You wouldn't believe folks could be so mean and cruel. Some even laugh and ask me if I am kidding.

My mind is made up and I am not going to change it just because people think I'm weird, but I do wish you would tell them not to put down high school graduates who have selected unusual professions.

FUTURE LADY MORTICIAN

Friends' remarks bore her to death

DEAR FUTURE: There is no excuse for ridicule or rudeness. Hang in there. You could be the one to give them their last "putdown."

DEAR ABBY: A simple question: When people ask you how you are, do they really want to know?

DELLA

DEAR DELLA: Most people prefer a few cheery notes, not an organ recital.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this. It may save a marriage. I have a sweet, wonderful friend with a fabulous personality, but since her marriage not too many years ago, she has let herself go.

She has two children and has gained about 50 pounds. She never bothers to fix her hair and her clothes are a mess. Her home is not just untidy—it's filthy! Her husband is a good-looking man with an easy-going disposition. I know he tries to overlook his wife's appearance and sloppiness, but how long can a marriage last when day after day a husband comes home to a slob?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Some men, believe it or not, can overlook a lot where there are compensating qualities. Don't assume that if your friend reads this, it will "save" her marriage. The one for whom the advice is intended usually thinks it's for somebody else.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from "VICH"—the girl with the boyfriend who didn't know how to kiss.

Your advice was to tell him about the problem. Well, if she has the knowhow, it's not necessary for her to tell him—she can teach him without saying a word. Kissing is such a natural thing, it's surprising how quickly an inexperienced person learns if he has the right teacher.

Personally, I'd just as soon have an amateur so I can teach him to kiss to suit me.

Viet tanks close to DaNang

SAIGON (UPI)—The North Vietnamese have brought tanks into an area only 15 miles south of the big U.S. air base at Da Nang, the U.S. Command announced today. This move and the appearance of big Communist artillery pieces farther south posed new threats to Da Nang and the heavily populated coastal regions to the south.

Communist forces this weekend captured the district capital of Que Son, 25 miles southwest of Da Nang, and the nearby support base, Camp Ross, despite heavy U.S. air attacks. Today's announcement that tanks and 130 mm guns had been brought into the area for the first time emphasized the new danger there.

Loss of Que Son and Ross leaves only one major firebase, Baldy, between the southern Communist column and Da Nang where about 5,000 Americans are still stationed. U.S. fighter-bombers were attacking the tank formations and the big guns to ease the threat.

The U.S. Command said two of the big Soviet-built guns were knocked out by U.S. Air Force Phantom fighters 35 miles southwest of Da Nang and that another was damaged. The command reported erroneously earlier that the artillery pieces were seen only 18 miles from Da Nang, bringing it within range.

Pilots from the aircraft carrier USS Oriskany destroyed one 130 mm gun 30 miles southwest of Da Nang and South Vietnamese fighter-bombers hit another in the same area, bringing to six the number destroyed there this weekend. These are the same type of guns which have stalled the government drive to recapture Quang Tri City.

The South Vietnamese said ground fighting around Que Son died out today, but there were these other developments in the Indochina War:

—An assassin tried unsuccessfully today to kill Cambodian Prime Minister Son Ngoc Thanh with a bomb placed inside an old car in Phnom Penh. He escaped but four of his bodyguards were wounded.

—The South Vietnamese reported two weekend incidents killed 85 South Vietnamese civilians and wounded 72. In one, a bus struck a landmine on the road between Pleiku and Phu Nhon in the Central Highlands Sunday, killing 48 persons and injuring 42. In the second incident two helicopters, one full of refugees, collided Saturday near Kontum, also in the Central Highlands, killing 38 and wounding 42.

—South Vietnamese Rangers smashed through Communist bunker lines today and joined Cambodian troops trapped in the outskirts of Kompong Trabek, a town on Highway 147 miles southeast of Phnom Penh and 80 miles northwest of Saigon. The Communists have been trying to break through here to open new invasion routes into areas north and south of Saigon.

—The U.S. Command said pilots from the USS Saratoga struck half a mile from Halphong on Sunday, touching off fires and explosions at a military storage area and damaging an electrical transformer a mile away. Other U.S. planes concentrated on transportation while B52s struck the Dong Hoi area above the Demilitarized Zone in North Vietnam. The command reported 240 strikes against the North on Sunday.

—The fighting around Quang Tri City remained stalemated. North Vietnamese gunners hit South Vietnamese forces in the area with 2,100 rounds of rocket and artillery fire over the weekend while Allied planes tried to knock out the Communist guns. The Communists followed up the shelling with ground attacks but were driven off by marines who reported killing 54 and capturing four at a cost of five marines dead and 45 wounded.

Allied military spokesmen expressed belief the Communists may try to move the 130 mm guns closer to Da Nang.

Telescope hits orbit

By AL ROSSITER JR., UPI Space Writer

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—A space telescope named Copernicus rocketed smoothly into orbit today to give man his most powerful view into the universe and study the life and death of faraway stars.

The $82 million stargazer also may reveal some of early secrets of the universe and its instruments will zero in on the mysterious pulsars that emit X-rays at regular intervals like cosmic lighthouses.

Copernicus is the heaviest and one of the most complicated spacecraft ever launched. Scientists hope it will help revolutionize space astronomy.

The 4,000-pound satellite was launched at 6:28 a.m. EDT and its Atlanta-Centaur rocket propelled it into orbit 12 minutes later. The last Orbiting Astronomical Observatory (OAO) was lost in 1970 when its nose fairing failed to separate, but the fairing fell away smoothly from today's satellite.

The Space Agency reported that Copernicus was in a flawless orbit 460 miles high. Once it separated from its spent rocket, the silvery satellite unfolded its two big wing-like solar panels and began what engineers called its "survival phase"—a critical 12 hours of careful checks to be sure the craft is safely stabilized.

"The flight appeared to be letter perfect," reported Daniel J. Shramo, Atlas-Centaur project manager at the Launch Control Center.

"It's a terribly exciting adventure into astronomy," said Dr. Lyman Spitzer, astronomer in charge of the satellite's main telescope. "We hope if the equipment works the way we expect it, we'll find all sorts of extremely exciting new things."

He said Copernicus's first astronomical observations would begin next week when all systems have been checked out.

The bat-like observatory was named after the 18th century Polish scientist who recognized in the 18th century that it was the sun and not the earth that was the center of what was then believed to be the universe.

Prison reforms urged

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Conceding it was "long past time for change," the president of the American Correctional Association (ACA) urged prison officials today to "restore confidence in our corrections system."

Maurice H. Sigler told more than 2,500 delegates from all 50 states and several foreign countries attending the 102nd annual convention it was "time to clear away traditional habits and take a hard second look at everything that we do."

"Our critics may have some of the facts wrong, and some of their assumptions certainly are wrong," he said. "But the thrust of what they are saying is correct. We know—all of us know—that corrections have not kept up with the times."

Sigler said the changes must come in five areas: attitudes towards the courts, the legal profession, the news media, the public and the corrections field itself.

Gale hits war gas storage

HONOLULU (UPI)—Johnston Island, storehouse of America's 13,000 tons of lethal war gas, was bombarded for six hours Sunday by Hurricane Celeste's towering waves and roaring winds.

A Navy reconnaissance plane flew over the atoll later in the day to evaluate the onslaught of 45-foot waves and 150 mile-per-hour winds that hit the top-secret military base.

The island's residents and 580 servicemen were evacuated before the storm lashed the 3,000-foot-long atoll located 800 miles southwest of Honolulu.

The reconnaissance plane did not land but reported to officials that it appeared there was "minimum" wind damage and no water damage.

"We have no reason to believe there are any extensive damages to equipment or facilities on the island," a spokesman said.

Photos were taken and after they were evaluated, further decisions will be made toward returning personnel, the spokesman said.

Residents of Johnston were evacuated to Honolulu because "to remain would be too great a risk."

Troop levels fall to 39,200 in war

SAIGON (UPI)—The number of American troops in South Vietnam fell to 39,200 last week, just 200 men above the level ordered by President Nixon for the end of the month, the U.S. command said today.

A spokesman said 3,200 troops were sent home during the week ending Aug. 17. The number of sailors, Marines, airmen and coast guardsmen did not change.

The drop from 42,400 Americans to 39,200 left 23,700 soldiers still stationed in South Vietnam. There are 2,200 sailors, 1,300 marines, 11,900 airmen and 100 coast guardsmen on bases inside the country and 39,000 sailors on 7th Fleet ships located on what the military terms "Yankee Station" off the coast.

Another 40,000 airmen are on duty in Thailand and 10,000 are stationed in Guam.

The peak American strength during the Vietnam War was 543,000 men in April, 1969. The current troop level inside South Vietnam is the lowest since 34,000 servicemen were stationed here on April 30, 1965, the command said.

'Snap' addiction up

TAIPEI (UPI)—A flourishing heroin-smuggling operation in Communist China has left nearly 14 times as many drug addicts in the United States as there were 10 years ago, according to a Nationalist Chinese government report.

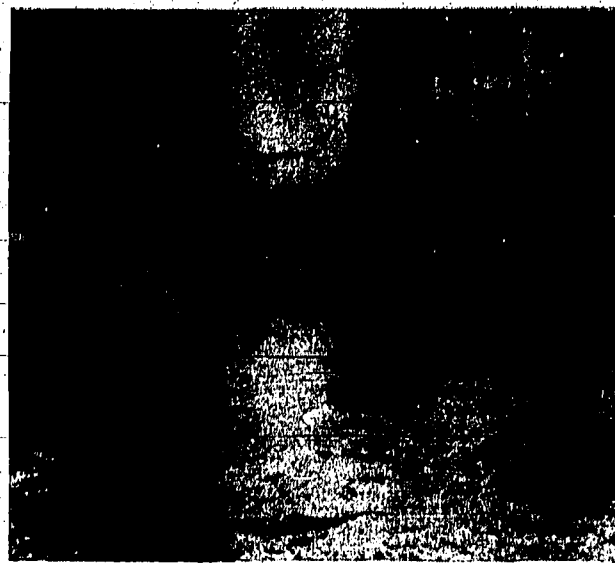

The Government Information Office (GIO) report published Sunday said Peking smuggles out of the country 10,000 tons of narcotics a year, netting $800 million in much needed foreign exchange.

Because of Peking's drug offensive, the GIO survey says, the number of heroin addicts in the United States jumped to 700,000 last year from 55,000 in 1960.

The report alleges China operates poppy farms totaling 1.5 million acres and 72 refineries scattered across the China mainland.

Centers of narcotics smuggling include Mukden, Tientsin, Shanghai, Canton, Nanning, Kunming, Lhasa and Tihua, the GIO survey said.

Vietims escape

DEATH TOLL today hit 375 in a flood in Seoul, South Korea, after an unprecedented heavy downpour dumped nearly 1.5 feet of rain in the central part of the country in less than 30 hours Saturday. Over 410 were injured and 81 missing in the flood. (UPI)

IRA threatens informers

BELFAST (UPI)—The Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) threatened today to shoot Roman Catholic informers dealing with British troops. The bodies of two civilian men were found in Belfast Sunday. Their deaths raised the fatality toll in three years of violence in Northern Ireland to 518, including 64 civilians murdered in the past five months.

Police said the body of an unidentified man found in a Protestant housing development in the Glenties Road district was so badly mutilated that only "thrill" killers could have done it.

"Whoever did him in must have been a psychopath," a police spokesman said. "Most of his bones had been broken and his body was just like jelly."

Police said the man had been shot through the head.

The body of James Neill, 44, a Protestant factory owner, was found in the Elswick Street area of the capital. Police said he had been shot twice in the head and covered with a green hood.

Andrus cuts

BARBED WIRE across the door of the new Cassia County Historical Society Museum at Burley is cut by Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus Saturday, concluding dedication ceremonies.

Museum dedicated

By GEORGIA LAYTON
Times-News writer.
BURLEY — The Cassia County Historical Society Museum was officially dedicated Saturday in a brief ceremony attended by about 200 persons.
Gov. Cecil D. Andrus spoke briefly, extending congratulations to the residents of Cassia County for their efforts in starting the museum and preserving history of the county for present and future generations.

Early-day barbed wire was stretched across the door of the museum building. Gov. Andrus snipped the wire with cutters to officially dedicate and open the museum.
The museum is located on the corner of Hiland Avenue and East Main street on the southeast corner of the county fairgrounds.

Three flag poles were dedicated in the museum yard by Rev. David Buzza in memory of the late Ted Kelsey. Raising the Idaho state flag, American flag and the county historical society flag were Sgt. Gill Vance, Sgt. Wayne Fisher, SFC Dennis Abrams, PO Brad Bradley, Lt. Jerry Benton, and Chief Harold Smith.

Robert Saxvik served as master of ceremonies. Glen Parke, president of the County Fair Board, and John Clark, chairman of the county commissioners, each spoke briefly.

Mrs. Shirley Clark, Albion, presented a check for $300 from the Albion Alumni Association to Al Dawson, president of the Cassia County Historical Society.

Telegrams were read from Rep. Orval Hansen and Sen. Frank Church who were unable to attend the dedication.
After the wire cutting at the door of the museum, those attending the dedication signed the guest book and toured the museum.

Gooding drags said "success"

GOODING — The first drag race at the Gooding County International Raceway Sunday was termed "a huge success" by the corporation president, Craig Muchow.
About 200 drivers entered the race and 300 spectators attended. Drivers came from Ontario, Ore., Caldwell, Boise, Jerome, Pocatello and Mountain Home Air Force Base as well as Twin Falls and Gooding.
Muchow said that there will be at least one more race this year but that some problems have to be ironed out first.
Before the next race, a return lane will be installed so that the races will proceed faster.

The official opening of the race track will be in June of 1973. Meanwhile, permanent bleachers and a tower will be installed. The track will be resurfaced and more equipment, including a speed computer, will be obtained for the site.
Muchow said the area lends itself to all types of racing and that a snowmobile race and a sports car slalom race are possible this year.
All of the drivers interviewed at the race said they felt the race track should be a success and that it was definitely needed in this area.

Sunday fire sears home at Shoshone

SHOSHONE — The Evan Guthrie home northwest of Shoshone received extensive damage when a fire broke out in the kitchen about 10:30 a.m. Sunday.
Mrs. Guthrie, who had just returned from the hospital and was staying in Shoshone, said there was no one home at the time. Guthrie and his sons were in the field baying.

A neighbor, Gilbert Kerner, called the Shoshone Fire Department after he went to the residence and discovered the fire. Neighbors quickly moved out the furniture and used a water hose on the blaze until the fire truck arrived.
Mrs. Guthrie said the kitchen was completely destroyed, and other rooms in the house and furniture severely damaged from smoke and steam. Origin of the fire was suspected to be the kitchen stove.

Accident cuts Filer phone line

FILER — Four families were without telephone service for several hours Saturday after a one-car accident at the junction of U. S. Highways 93 and 30.
The Filer Mutual Telephone Co. reported the loss of service lasted until the repairs were completed Sunday.

Charles Cunningham, company manager, said an unknown truck driver struck a telephone pole at the junction of the two highways, causing the disruption. The truck was reportedly last seen going south on U.S. 93, trailing wires.

Horse show opens 39th annual fair at Jerome

JEROME — Jerome County's 39th annual fair opened today with the Western Horse Show sponsored by the Jerome Junior Poise.
The 14th annual horse show marks the opening of a week of fair events, according to John Stelle, Jr., fair board chairman.
Stelle said the annual parade will be Wednesday at 4:30 p.m., moving through downtown Jerome and ending at the fairgrounds. He said immediately following the parade, the Jerome Art Guild will unveil a pictorial scene which will be placed over the 4-H Building.
In charge of this year's parade is LeRoy Weigle. Parade marshal will be Robert A. Bussiere, Tupperware's plant manager.
Stelle said John Ainsley, president of Tupperware International, had been scheduled to be parade marshal, but because of prior business commitments Ainsley will be unable to attend.

The theme of the parade this year is "Progress '72," with $250 to be awarded in parade prizes, including $50 for the best float.
Jack Moreley will serve as master of ceremonies for the parade.
Stelle said the 4-H style revue is scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday at the fairgrounds 4-H building.
Also on Tuesday night, all queen candidates, their parents and members of the fair board will attend a special dinner at Wood Cafe. The girls will be judged in the personality and appearance phases of the contest.
Stelle said two nights of rodeo will feature top riders. Bob Chambers will again announce the event, Stelle said a special attraction during the rodeo nights will be Neil Smith, a Roman rider. During the last night of the rodeo the fair queen will be crowned and presented a tiara and trophy.

Stelle said one of the changes in this year's program will be a 4-H awards program Friday night in the rodeo arena, followed by a performance by the Buttons and Bows Square Dance Club. In the past, trophies have been presented Saturday morning.
Also under the new plan, the round robin will be held Friday at 4 p.m. instead of Saturday morning, according to Stelle.
Saturday 4-H events will be confined to a tree identification contest, fat stock sale at noon at Producers Livestock Association, and a tractor driving contest.
Concluding the week long activities, will be a jamboree Saturday night by the Wood River Jamboree Club with several area riding clubs participating. There will also be a girls' goat tying contest, Saturday night, and Lana Brackenbury, former Miss Rodeo America, will be in charge of arrangements.

Stelle said that the Ray Cammack show will again set up a carnival Wednesday through Saturday.
Also included in this year's program will be a small animal farm open Wednesday through Saturday, located on the north side of the Dairy Barn, Stelle said. The farm is directed by Gerald Gries and Gordon Graham and will include a dairy cow and calf, beef cow and calf, horse and colt, ewe and lamb, goat and kid and sow and pig.
Stelle said there is no charge to visit the farm and parents and children are invited.

Growth control said key to life quality

SUN VALLEY — If man wants quality living in his communities, he must put growth under control.
That comment was made Friday by Lyle M. Stanford, professor of biology at the College of Idaho, Caldwell. Stanford was the keynote speaker at an all-day conference on "The Dimensions of Growth in the Big Wood River Basin," held at Sun Valley by the C. of I.-Regional Studies Center.

The professor accented "the right dimension of planning" to obtain "humane" communities. However, describing himself as a "practicing pessimist in ecology," he said, "I'm just not sure that we can do it quick enough or responsibly enough."

Man has an enormous power to instantly disrupt natural communities, Stanford said, and "I am sadly reminded of the apparent and promised deterioration of Wood River as a natural ecological machine."
Stanford said many communities, such as Los Angeles, act as though they have escaped ecological control. "As a matter of fact, most community growth in America is headed in the same direction, when finally growth will kill many human values, if it does not kill the community itself," the professor said.
The maintenance of a quality community necessitates that disorder "outside and inside" be prevented and controlled, Stanford said. "Chaos, which is the product of bad planning, is almost exactly opposite from the best that man is capable of doing," he said.
Community building at its best, which he called "collective individual responsibility at its best," should be based on as many people as possible, who are studying, thinking, discussing, knowing and compromising as much as they can, Stanford said.
To determine goals for a community, concerned residents should ask "Why have people come to this community?" and "Why do they stay in this community?" Stanford said.

Depot plan introduced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, has introduced legislation providing for creative use of abandoned railroad depots in Idaho and other states.
Hansen's measure provides for acquisition by the National Endowment for the Arts of unused or underused passenger depots now owned by railroad companies.
It would make them available to cities and towns for cultural activities such as art galleries, libraries, musical and dramatic presentations.

Blaine livestock sale brings strong prices

CAREY — A large number of bidders insured good prices at the 4-H Club and FFA meat animal project sale Saturday at Carey.
During the event, which capped the three-day Blaine County Fair, 24 lamb and eight beef projects went to the highest bidder under the direction of auctioneers John Wert, Wendell, and Jim Messersmith, Jerome.

Netting $1.70 a pound was the grand champion lamb, owned by Debbie Green, Carey. It was purchased by Fred Laidlaw, Muldoon. The reserve grand champion, owned by Carol Peterson, Carey, was bought at $1.50 a pound by Russ Horn, Hailey.

In the beef classification, the grand champion Charolais-Angus cross of Cheryl Byington, Bellevue, went to the Golden Rule Store, Ketchum, at 80 cents a pound.
The reserve grand champion beef, owned by Lennie Eldredge, Carey, was purchased by the Sun Valley Co. at 77 cents a pound.
Prices for the other lambs ranged from 80 to 55 cents a pound; other beef went from 67 to 47½ cents a pound.
Lamb project owners from Carey included Clint Peterson, Scott Kirkland, Rick Peterson, Glenda Stocking, Cindy Peterson, Ty Justesen, Denise Peterson, Kent Arrien, Mike Kirkland, Bruce Peterson, Rick Reay, Laura Reay, Kirby Arrien, Rodney Peterson, Cindy Justesen, Cherie Reay, Doug Stocking and Jonnie Denman.

Other youngsters showing lamb projects were April Diabennett, Thelma Cloughon, Carma Diabennett and Mike Eakin, all Bellevue.
Beef project owners were Jim Cenarrusa, John Cenarrusa, Toni Barton, Jim Barton and Dennis Baird, all Carey, and Dan Eakin, Bellevue.
Project sale committee members were E. V. McHan, Ketchum, and John Peavey, Rupert. Fair board members working on sale were Jay Strode and Lee Eldredge.

AMONG SELLERS of meat animals at the sale during the Blaine County Fair in Carey Saturday was Debbie Green, Carey, who showed this grand champion lamb (above.) Buyers were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Laidlaw, Muldoon. Cheryl Byington, Bellevue (below), sold this grand champion steer to the Golden Rule Grocery, Ketchum. E. V. McHan made the purchase.

Anti-DWI drive may be illegal

GOODING, Idaho (UPI) — Gooding County Prosecuting Attorney Andrew F. James has charged that a federally financed program to aid "overloaded" prosecuting attorneys may be illegal under Idaho law.

James made his remarks in response to a letter sent to all county prosecutors and city attorneys from L. C. Lowry, director of the Alcohol Safety Action Project.
The letter stated, among other things, that a 26-man "alcohol emphasis patrol" is being added to the Idaho State Police Force to "bear down" on drunk drivers. It also said the project is prepared to pay up to $250 per case for handling the increased number of drunk driving citations expected.

James said the offer may be in violation of Idaho Code 31-2809 which prohibits "a prosecuting attorney from receiving any fee or reward for or on behalf of any prosecutor or other individual, for services in any prosecution or business to which it is his official duty to attend or discharge."

James' comments came in a letter to Gov. Cecil D. Andrus. In Twin Falls County, Prosecuting Atty. Leon Smith said he had no plans to make use of the funds available to the county.
He said there was a possibility the program was unconstitutional, since it afforded "unequal protection" to the persons charged with drunk driving crimes.
He said he would "absolutely not" use the $250 available for prosecution of the cases brought by the newly hired patrolmen.
"I will handle them like any other DWI (driving while intoxicated)" Smith said.

Financing device wins farm use

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A financing device long familiar to oil, gas and real estate interests is becoming increasingly attractive to investors hunting profit opportunities in agriculture, economists report.

The device is the "limited partnership" in which an outside investor buys a partnership share in a business, but is legally liable for potential losses only up to the amount of his original investment.

The limited partnership has become the chief legal device for attracting outside investor capital into farm and ranch ventures, Agriculture Department economist William H. Scofield reports.

Scofield and Prof. John A. Hopkins of Texas A and M University both noted the growth of the limited partnership scheme in separate articles published by the Agriculture Department here in the current issue of its "Agricultural Finance Review."

For individual investors, Hopkins wrote, the limited partnership is more effective than the corporation in providing a tax shelter.

This is because a limited partner in a beef breeding herd, for example, can use annual losses to reduce the tax due on his nonfarm income. If the breeding ranch were incorporated, however, a corporate shareholder could not use annual losses as an offset against his individual income from other sources.

The limited partnership's main attraction to the investor is that it "provides a direct conduit for tax deferral and pass-through of profits and losses," Scofield agreed.

"The partnership pays no taxes because profits and losses are allocated to each of the partners in proportion to their respective interests, and are reported on their individual returns. These tax features are not available to holders of common stock because a corporation is a taxable entity," Scofield said.

Scofield said surveys indicated that sales of limited partnership interests to raise money for commercial cattle feeding reached a "significant" scale in 1970 and 1971.

Investors buying partnerships in feeding ventures, the economist noted, do not get the same tax-shelter advantages as those who invest in breeding herds where losses can be written off in early years and profits converted into capital gains. But limited partnerships in feeding do provide a mechanism for tax-deferral from high to lower tax-bracket years.

"This is possible through prepayment of expenses for feed and possible buildup of capital invested in successive lots of cattle, which can postpone taxable income for several years," Scofield said.

Another attractive feature for limited partners in cattle feeding, Scofield added, is the chance to pyramid profits through "equity leverage." This means, simply, that the lead, or "general partner," running the operation and his limited partners may invest only $1 out of every $4 actually used in the feeding operation — the rest coming in loans from banks or other institutions.

This situation leaves the investors facing heavy losses if the cattle lose money, but in good times returns of 20 per cent or more on the equity investment are possible, Scofield said.

New Utah orchard problem

LOGAN, Utah (UPI) — Utah's troubled fruit growers have a new problem: the pear psylla.

The insect has been found in five northern counties — Cache, Box Elder, Weber, Davis and Salt Lake.

Reed S. Roberts, extension entomologist at Utah State University, said fruit growers are "seriously concerned since the pear psylla is considered to be the most serious insect pest of pears in the United States."

Roberts noted that fruit growers this spring had their crops severely damaged or destroyed by frosts. He said the threat of the insect, which was first found in Utah in Ogden three years ago, presents a new peril for the growers.

"The struggle to produce food is getting tougher in the land of plenty," Roberts said.

Hogs sell higher

BURLEY — Hogs sold 1.00 to 1.25 higher with all cattle steady at the Burley Livestock Commission Co. sale Aug. 17.

There were 251 head of cattle, 130 hogs and 37 sheep on a short run, due to fair-weather. There were 61 sellers and 41 buyers.

Wearer pigs sold 8.00-10.00; fat hogs, 28.00-29.00; sows 18.00-20.25; feeder lambs, 27.00-28.50; fat lambs 28.00-30.70; killer ewes 8.00-8.00; baby calves, 40.00-67.50; light Holstein heifer calves 130.00-147.50; light Holstein steer calves 140.00-161.00; light whiteface steer calves 46.00-49.20; whiteface heifer calves 42.00-44.75; whiteface feeder heifers, 34.00-37.50; common feeder steers 32.50-35.10; common feeder heifers 30.50-32.85; whiteface feeder steers 31.00-38.40; Holstein feeder steers, 32.00-34.50; Holstein milk cows and heifers by head, 280.00-385.00; feeder cows, 22.00-23.40; canner and cutter cows, 18.00-21.60; utility and commercial cows, 22.00-25.60; whiteface heiferettes, 27.00-29.30; feeder bulls 26.00-28.90.

Pesticide project transfer planned

BOISE (UPI) — Transfer of the state's pesticide project to the Department of Agriculture will become effective Sept. 1, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said.

The project, originally under the sponsorship of the Department of Environmental Protection and Health, is federally funded and one of only 14 in the United States. Its purpose, Andrus said, is to determine the effects of pesticides on the "total environment," including humans, livestock, wildlife, air, soil, water and food.

The governor said W. W. Benson will continue as project director, and will also head the Agriculture Department's laboratory.

More contaminated cattle livers found

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two more cattle livers contaminated with trace residue of a cancer-causing hormone have been found by agriculture department laboratories.

The findings of residues of diethylstilbestrol (DES) brought the number of such cases this year to 68. That represented 2.3 per cent of the 2,925 of cattle and sheep tested in 1972 in a random sampling program. The residue rate last year was only 0.5 per cent.

DES has been used for many years to promote rapid growth of cattle and sheep. But residues in food are banned because the hormone has been found to cause cancer when fed in large doses to laboratory animals.

Because of the increased residue findings this year, the Food and Drug Administration recently announced a ban on use of DES in livestock feeds after next Jan. 1.

Officials said, however, residues found recently were far smaller than the amounts proved dangerous and said the chemical can continue to be used in implant form pending completion of new tests.

The two new residue findings, announced Friday in steers from Nebraska and California, were confined to livers. As in all past cases, officials said no residues were found in meat from other parts of the animal.

In both new cases, officials added, producers of the animals had filed certificates certifying they had complied with federal regulations requiring withdrawal of DES from feed seven days before slaughter of the livestock.

The rattlesnake usually has two rattles, not one, for each year of its age.

Wheat allotment notices due in mail for TF growers soon

TWIN FALLS — Notices of 1973 wheat allotments and an explanation of the 1973 wheat set-aside program will be mailed soon to producers in Twin Falls County.

Carl Boyd, chairman of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, said all participants will set aside an acreage equal to 86 per cent of their farm domestic allotment, will earn wheat certificate payments based on their domestic allotment, and will be eligible for commodity credit corporation loans on wheat grown on participating farms.

An additional set-aside option also is offered, Boyd said. Contingent upon their 1972 wheat acreage producers may set aside an additional acreage up to 150 per cent of their domestic wheat allotment in return for a payment of 85 cents a bushel times established yield times acres of additional set-aside.

A producer who accepts the additional set-aside option also agrees to limit his production of 1973 wheat. The limitation is determined by the formula: 1972 spring and winter wheat planted acreage on the farm plus any 1972 additional set-aside, minus the 1973 additional set-aside.

"The big point to make at this time is what a wheat grower in the 1973 wheat program can go one of two ways:

"One — Maintain required set-aside and conserving base acreages with no limit on his wheat acreage."

"Two — Maintain required set-aside, additional set-aside, and conserving base acreages and limit his wheat acreage," the ASC committee chairman said. "He should check with the county ASCS office for full details."

A number of other important items are covered in the official explanation, including a reminder that 1973 is the year when a farmer who did not plant a program crop during the past two seasons can lose his allotment if he fails to plant for a third successive year.

Substitution provisions are spelled out. Soybeans, corn, grain sorghum and barley may be substituted for wheat to preserve allotment history.

"Then, too, I want to remind producers that set-aside acreage — both the required and any additional set-aside — must be of the same average quality as the other cropland on the farm," Boyd said.

Producers may ask for set-aside inspection and measurement service from the county ASCS office in order to assure themselves well ahead of the time that set-aside land is acceptable.

Stock sold

JEROME — Three registered Milking Shorthorns have been sold by two Jerome residents.

Lloyd and Edie Munson, Winnemucca, Nev., have purchased two junior yearling heifers from Martin R. Lee and Richard R. Lee.

Richard Lee has also sold a bull calf to M. L. Leidig, Bliss. A record of the transfer of ownership of the animals has been made by the American Milking Shorthorn Society, Springfield, Mo.

Mind Your Money

Last year we spent more than $70 billion on medical bills trying to stay alive and healthy. In 1950 we spent $12 billion.

Now, hear this: In the same time period — 1950 to 1971 — American male longevity (remaining expected lifetime of 20-year-old men) dropped from 11th place in world standings to near 40th place.

It's not that our men are dying much earlier, it's the fact that we are standing still while much of the rest of the world is progressing.

When we spend so much money on medicine, why are we in such poor shape? Dr. Jean Mayer, Harvard University nutritionist, says: "Cardiovascular disease — accounting for half the deaths in the 40- to 60-year range — depresses our international standing."

Dr. Mayer believes "we have returned to the days of the great pandemics, when a fourth or half of the population died of one disease."

In a report, "Diet and Coronary Heart Disease," the American Health Foundation backs up Dr. Mayer with the grim warning: "An epidemic has struck."

So what can we do about it, other than wring our hands? Some of us have inherited family traits that tend to lead toward heart disease. Not much we can do about that except recognize the traits and be more careful. Some of us smoke too much and we can do something about that. Stop smoking.

We can also shift our emphasis on the kind of food we eat. Without making great, painful dietary changes, we can cut down on the fatty foods and the sugary foods we eat.

According to the American Heart Association, if we do this, we can lower our blood cholesterol and triglyceride levels. Too much of these blood substances may lead to heart disease.

I'm not going into how this blood chemistry works. You can get an excellent explanation with some tips on a better diet by visiting or writing your local American Heart Association chapter. Ask for the pamphlet, "The Way to a Man's Heart." It's must reading.

You can also ask for, "Recipes — for Fat-Controlled, Low-Cholesterol Meals," another booklet which shows how to cut down on saturated fat foods while increasing the use of polyunsaturated liquid oils (corn, safflower, soybean and others).

You can get another, much fuller, recipe booklet, "Diets to Live By," from Anderson Clayton Foods; W. L. Clayton Research Center; 3333 North Central Expressway; Richardson, Tex. 75080. It costs $1 and shows in great detail how to improve your "P-S Ratio" (increasing polyunsaturated fats while decreasing saturated fats). My local heart association chapter recommended it.

The big question most of us ask is who needs to worry — just men over 40? At first, most doctors thought blood cholesterol levels were the sole worry of older men. Now, according to Dr. Simeon Margolis, heart specialist at Johns Hopkins University Hospital, "We're finding it in young boys, even infants."

He suggests that parents, at some early stage in a child's life, "have a doctor order a serum cholesterol blood test. Children should be screened for abnormal lipid (cholesterol and triglycerides) levels so that treatment can be initiated before irreversible vascular changes occur."

You can get an informative little booklet, "The Prevention of Heart Disease Begins in Childhood," by writing Fleischmann's Margarine; Box 46F; Mount Vernon, N. Y. 10550. My heart association chapter recommended it.

Women? Unless they've inherited a tendency toward high cholesterol levels, most women are protected from it by female hormones. Up to around age 50 that is. Then they have the same dietary problems as men.

As you may have guessed, I have been through the heart disease worry myself. I've been checked and I've had my children checked. One son and I were found to have tendencies toward higher cholesterol levels. We're making changes — not dramatic ones — in how we eat.

Yellowstone geyser char

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — One of the world's most volatile geyser basins in Yellowstone National Park has shown some unexplained changes in its configuration and features recently.

Naturalists from the National Park Service first noted the unusual activity in Norris Geyser Basin about Aug. 10. The geyser is a famous attraction at the 100-year old park.

Among the latest changes in the basin is a change in water colors and an increase in bubbling action.

Two other features suddenly appeared overnight. A two-foot mud pot at Congress Pool appeared giving tourists the first chance to see a mud pot in the Norris visitor area. Another suddenly-appearing feature is a hot spring pool adjacent to Mud-dy Sucker.

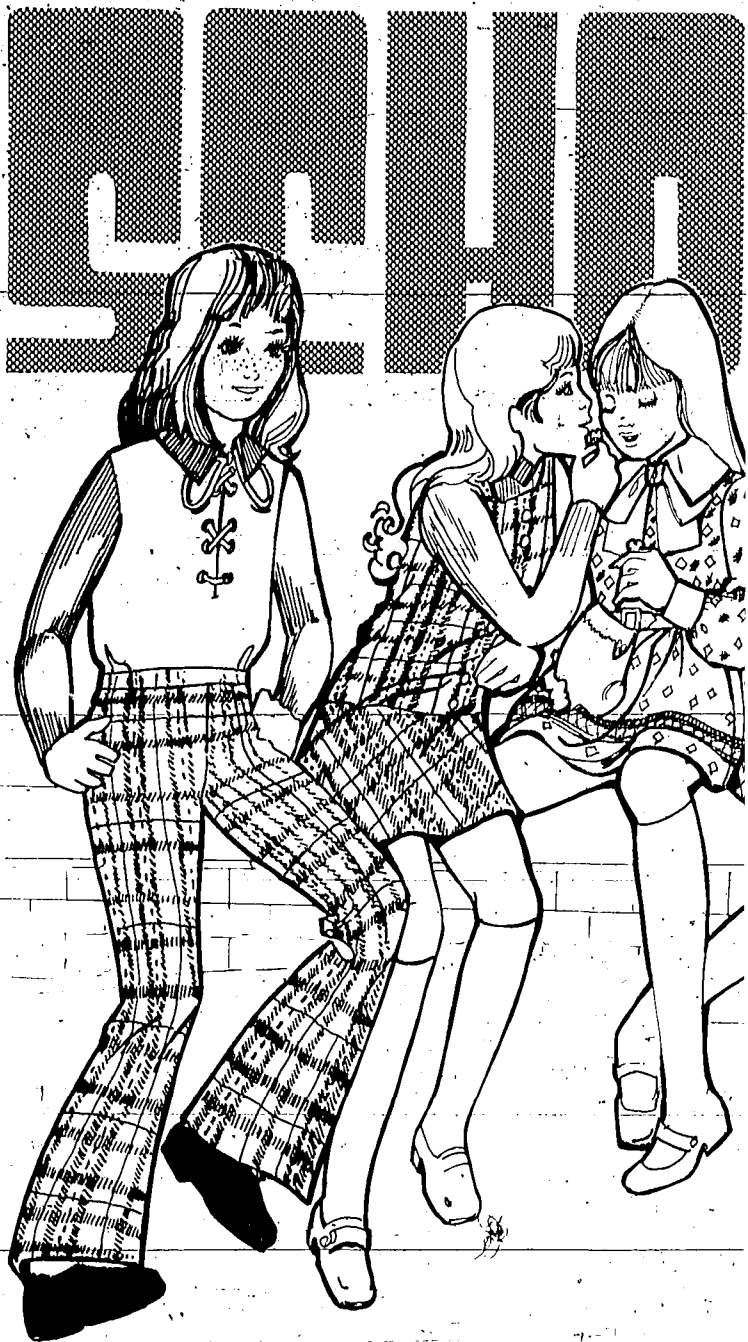

Geologists have no explanation for the sudden changes. They said changes this drastic have occurred only one other time since the 1959 Hebgen Lake earthquake.

Well-known geyser Old Faithful, about 30 miles from Norris, has not been disturbed by whatever changes ring beneath face.

Several of the features were cally in the Hel quake. The first brought an av that damped th to form Quake persons camp the park along er died during

Yasuhiro enjoys stay at Daw home, Hansen

By DOROTHEA STEELSMITH
Times-News writer

HANSEN Yasuhiro Shinozaki started home Saturday after a three-week visit at the home of the Kenneth Daw family here.

The 12-year-old boy was among 22 Japanese youths visiting homes in the Magic Valley. He is from Yokosuka, but before he returns there he will — along with the rest of the 150 visitors to the northwest — have seen such natural and scenic wonders as Coeur d'Alene Lake, Yellowstone and Glacier national parks.

Although Yasuhiro's command of English was limited mostly to single words or brief phrases, he was able to communicate with his hosts through pantomime or with noises.

Mr. and Mrs. Daw and their sons — Charles, Kurt, Chris and Craig — took their Oriental visitor to several Idaho ghost towns such as Sawtooth City, Custer and Idaho City. They also visited points of interest in Boise, where he was extremely interested in the bear, buffalo and deer at the zoo.

Other points of interest visited were the South Hills — where Yasuhiro observed from close range a wild deer — Shoshone Falls, Craters of the Moon and the Ice Caves.

When the Daw boys took him to a rodeo at the Cassia County Fair, Yasuhiro couldn't say "rodeo" but instead made exaggerated motions depicting the Lone Ranger and sang the theme song of that program to indicate he was happy about seeing a rodeo complete with horses and cowboys.

In return, he taught the Daw boys Japanese songs and games.

Yasuhiro noticed the difference in height between his "foster father" and his real father, who is head of the ministry of construction in the province in which the family lives.

"My Japanese mother, small. My American mother, small. My Japanese father, so," he said, indicating respective heights with his hands. "But my American father — " Here, he looked upward and put his hands up as far as possible, to indicate Daw's height of 6 feet, 3 inches.

Oyer to assist in Shoshone practice

SHOSHONE — Dr. Frederick R. Oyer will be assisting Dr. R. G. Neher in his medical practice for about 30 days. Dr. Neher announces.

Dr. Oyer, a native of Shoshone, is the son of the late Ray E. and Freda Oyer. He has recently been discharged from the U. S. Air Force.

After his tenure with Dr. Neher, he will report to Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., to take up residency.

Dr. Oyer is planning to specialize in orthopedic surgery while at the clinic.

He is a graduate of Shoshone High School, the University of Idaho and received his medical degree from Northwestern University, Chicago, Ill. His wife and two children are with him in Shoshone this month.

Jaycees cooperate in fire program

GLENN'S FERRY — The Glenns Ferry Jaycees are cooperating with the Department of Public Lands in support of the "Keep Idaho Green" Program.

This area is not exempt from range fires — one of the greatest appliers of the countryside. The Bruneau Desert area is in the news regularly, at this time of year, with range fires burning hundreds of acres at a time.

Glenns Ferry "Keep Idaho Green" chairman, Cecil Irving, urges those going into that area hunting arrowheads and rabbits, to be extremely cautious with cigarettes and campfires.

Efforts by the Jaycees in the Keep Idaho Green (KIG) campaign have included placement of containers at various points throughout the area, displaying a street banner for the 4th of July and at the fair, having a booth at the fair with a "Break That Match" posters, and litter bags, and Smokey the Bear promotions.

They distributed pamphlets and other material during Independence Day and at the Elmore County Fair. Study also has been given to placement of posters in the community and the possibility of painting "Keep Idaho Green" on First Street in Glenns Ferry and at the Three-Idaho State Park.

The KIG program is a statewide effort between the Department of Public Lands and the Idaho Jaycees.

Kindergarten to start at Shoshone

SHOSHONE — Mrs. Ruth Struchen announces that her kindergarten classes will begin on Aug. 28, the same day public school opens.

The classes for her kindergarten will again be at the Baptist Church, from 9 to 11 a.m. each school day.

Any parents who have children who would like them to attend may contact her as soon as possible regarding registration. Her telephone number is 886-7593.

Hot lunch fees rise at Hagerman

GOODING — Students in Gooding County will be using conservation textbooks this year donated by the Gooding Soil Conservation District.

The books, "People and Their Environment," are teachers' curriculum guides to conservation education which is being promoted by the national council of State Garden Clubs and National Association of Conservation Districts, ladies auxiliary.

The books were presented to Sterling Bray, chairman of the Bliss school board; Lawrence LaRue, Wendell school superintendent; James Muscat, Gooding school superintendent, and Kenneth Black, Hagerman superintendent, by the Gooding SCD in memory of Sam Simis, former SCD board member.

Conservation books donated at Gooding

HAGERMAN — Hot lunch fees at Hagerman schools have increased this year, according to Supt. Kenneth Black.

Lunches will cost 30 cents for elementary students and 35 cents for junior and senior high students.

Other fees for the 1972-73 school year will include a $1 book deposit for grades schoolers and a $4 charge for junior and senior high pupils.

A voluntary fee of $1.50 will be charged for supplies for grade

J.S. Blind rental charges will be $10 with a $2 refund if instruments are returned in good condition, Black said.
