

Benefit increase hikes payroll tax

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Payroll taxes would rise sharply next year to pay for a broad liberalization of Social Security and Medicare health insurance benefits under provisions approved Wednesday by the Senate Finance Committee.

The committee is expected to complete action on the measure today or Friday after approving other provisions replacing the welfare system with a "work-or-else" program. Senate debate may start next week.

Improvements approved Wednesday—many over the administration's opposition—call for providing some drugs to the elderly at a charge of $1 a prescription, raising pensions for widows by 17.5 per cent, providing Medicare coverage to the disabled and guaranteeing pensions of $200 a month to people who worked all their lives at poverty-level wages.

But $5 billion must be raised in additional taxes to pay for the changes and doing so will take a bigger chunk out of every worker's paycheck and increase the tax burden of employers, starting Jan. 1.

Well-paid workers will see withholding rise by $100 a year in 1973 and more in 1974. The maximum tax, paid by those earning $10,000, would go to $648 from its present $468. The tax had been scheduled to rise next year anyway, but not that sharply. In 1974, the tax would go to $720 for those who earn $12,000 or more.

Since Congress increased all benefits by 20 per cent this summer, effective Oct. 1, the new measure carries no across-the-board increase for the 28 million people who draw Social Security checks.

The new provisions would:

—Allow people over 65 covered by Medicare to buy drugs for the treatment of chronic, long-term diseases at a cost of $1 for each prescription.

—Raise from $1,000 to $2,400 the amount a pensioner could earn with no loss of his Social Security benefits. But 74 senators are co-sponsoring a bill to put that figure at $3,000.

—Extend Medicare coverage to pay the hospital and doctor bills of the disabled.

—Raise the minimum Social Security pension for persons who worked steadily at low wages to $200 a month. A person who worked for $50 a week for 30 years now is entitled to only about $153.

—Increase benefits by 1 per cent a year for every year a worker delays his retirement after reaching 65.

—Boost payments for the surviving spouses of pensioners. A widow, now entitled to 82.5 per cent of her late husband's payment, would get his full amount.

No GI's die

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. command said today there were no American soldiers killed in the Vietnam war last week.

It was the first time since the United States entered the ground war phase in Vietnam more than seven years ago that no American combat deaths were reported.

Last week's casualty toll of seven wounded and none killed is the lowest in the records of the U.S. command, which go back to Jan. 1, 1965. The last time there were no American deaths over a weekly period was March 1, 1965, when the United States officially entered the war.

Health district plans increase in spending

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

Times-News writer JEROME — Fifth District Health Board members presented a proposed $413,546 budget here Wednesday based on a $2.25 per capita county participation.

Dr. Wayne Carte, health district medical director, told the district board he is proposing this amount for the coming year compared to the $352,784 for the current year with a $1.66 per capita assessment.

County contributions would rise 38.5 per cent.

The $2.25 per capita assessment against all taxpayers in the eight-county area would bring in $231,720 to be augmented by state participation of $114,452 and other revenue from clinics, a family planning grant and Social and Rehabilitation Services reimbursement bringing the total to $413,546.

In the proposed budget based on this assessment, the administrator allowed $30,000 for building fund.

Two county commission members of the health board, William Chancey, Twin Falls, chairman, and John Clark, Burley, told the administrator and other board members they do not believe the majority of the counties favor an increase of about 25 per cent at this time.

"We know the building situation and other matters indicate more money is needed, but most of the commissioners seem to feel this is too much of an increase in one year's time," Clark said.

He was reporting on health discussions held on Tuesday during a district-wide county commissioner meeting.

Dr. Carte said if counties participated at the rate of $2 per capita the district would be able to have a $387,789 budget. At this rate of assessment, the counties would be paying $218,963 of the total budget.

Under the present $1.66 per capita rate, counties in the district provide $183,958.

The board was told by Chancey another $18,400 will be forthcoming this year from Twin Falls County due to the final ruling of the Idaho Supreme Court Wednesday, denying further appeal from the health district assessment.

Idaho court rules county must pay

TWIN FALLS — Taxpayers in Twin Falls County lost their final opportunity to reduce this year's public health costs in an Idaho Supreme Court ruling Wednesday.

County commissioners had asked the supreme court for an opportunity to re-argue their case against the South Central Idaho Health District over the current year's budget.

The request was denied by the court Wednesday during a week-long session in Twin Falls.

Commissioners were advised by the court to provide the $69,400 requested by the health district as the county's share of its present budget.

The county had budgeted $51,000, an increase over the $33,000 of last year, and asked the supreme court to review the matter and make a ruling.

Death-by-letters campaign spreads

By United Press International The death-by-mail campaign against Israeli diplomats spread today to Africa and the Israeli Embassy in Kinshasa, Zaire, the former Belgian Congo, said it had intercepted three of the explosive missives mailed from Holland. There was also a death threat against a rabbi in South Africa.

The explosive devices, so ordinary they can be sent in an letter, have been received in a number of cities of Europe, Tel Aviv, Montreal and New York. The first one in London killed an Israeli embassy official; the others have been detected before they could cause harm.

The letters have been attributed to the Arab Palestinian Black September terrorist group held responsible for the Munich massacre of 11 Israelis at the Olympic Games and a shootout in which five guerrillas and a German policeman were killed.

The new terror campaign has brought warnings from Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Deputy Premier Yigal Allon that the perpetrators must be liquidated.

Gem escapees singing 'Beale Street Blues'

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Two Elmore County jail escapees suspected of murder and repeated kidnap were captured Wednesday during a routine identity check at a pawn shop.

They were arrested where the Blues began, on Beale Street in Memphis.

continue driving them on in the Oregon car.

They later stopped and left Elsberry handcuffed to a fence along the road.

Apparently Rhoades and Shields proceeded to Montana, where they were suspects in the murder of Donald Kalberg near Miles City.

Kalberg was shot six times in a rest stop bathroom about 20 miles east of Forsyth, Mont. Officers speculated that he had tried to "make a stand" against the two fugitives.

After the two were captured,

Memphis police found murder victim Kalberg's credit cards and belongings in the car, along with the two .38 caliber pistols they allegedly took from officers in Mountain Home.

In Montana Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Uffelman, Dayville, Ore., said they felt "lucky to be alive" after crossing paths with Rhoades and Shields.

It was their 1972 model car the escapees commandeered north of Mountain Home and drove into Montana Sunday.

School building panel organizes

TWIN FALLS — About 80 people met in dimly-lit O'Leary auditorium Wednesday night to consider building needs of the Twin Falls School District.

The representatives of civic organizations and other interested persons organized themselves as a citizens' committee to review and suggest modifications of district-building plans. By unanimous vote, Gary Custer was elected chairman, with vice chairman Dan Slavin and secretary Mrs. Sue Pack.

Eight subcommittee chairmen were appointed by Custer, but committee membership was left to informal arrangement between chairmen and interested citizens. The date for the next committee meeting was left undecided, in mid-October.

The committee was asked to study a plan drafted by Supt. George Staudaher for construction of up to $3.3 million — the unused bonding capacity of the district. Staudaher's plan would give highest priority to:

1. Replacement of the traffic-plagued Washington Elementary School with a new elementary school to be built north of the Twin Falls High School.
2. Construction of four classrooms each at Harrison and Morningside schools. (Along with the new school, and after loss of Washington rooms, the district would see a net gain of 12 elementary rooms.)
3. Replacement of the Happy Day School, whose retarded students are now trained in a former dressing room at Lincoln Field.

Lower priority projects include:

- Construction of a vocational building at the high school.
- Four more rooms at Robert Stuart Junior High School.
- Three classrooms for the special education building at Robert Stuart Junior High.
- Extension of physical education facilities at Robert Stuart.

TB hospital plan explanation asked

GOODING — District 23 legislators have requested that the Idaho Land Board "reconsider and clarify their policy on use of the TB hospital."

Idaho Sen. Don Frederickson, D-Gooding; Rep. Earl Greenawald, R-Jerome, and Rep. Vernon P. Ravenscroft, R-Tuttle, made the request in a letter to Gordon Trombley, state land commissioner.

Last week the land board issued a statement concerning possible use of the state TB hospital at Gooding by the South Central District Health Department.

According to the legislators, the release was interpreted in this area as "an all or nothing decision which would rule out further consideration of the health district's use of the facility." In the letter, the legislators said the superintendent of the hospital told them the facility is constructed so it can be sectionalized to provide the extra heat, light and janitorial services for partial occupancy at nominal additional cost.

"According to the letter," rent paid by the health district could reduce the amount the legislature now appropriates for upkeep of the buildings and grounds.

The legislators said "It doesn't make sense for the state to be paying new rentals in the same general area in which it owns a building of this quality."

They were referring to a move of the South Central District Health Department from the Twin Falls City Hall to a new location next year.

US defense at 'front'

By United Press International
The contenders for the presidency brought their argument over defense policies to the forefront again today when advisers of Sen. George S. McGovern charged President Nixon is overspending for arms and still trying to play the role of world policeman.

Nixon's defense secretary, Melvin R. Laird, struck back immediately, describing a major 30-page campaign statement issued by McGovern's Panel on National Security as a "new white paper" that "endorses and muddles his white flag-surrender approach to national security."

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew anticipated the new round of debate when he said in St.

Louis Wednesday that McGovern's defense policies were "frightening" because they would leave the country with nuclear retaliation as its only course of action if it were attacked.

The McGovern panel, headed by former defense secretary Clark Clifford, charged that if Nixon's programs are continued they will lead to a $100 billion Pentagon budget by 1977. The Pentagon request for the current fiscal year is $70.5 billion.

McGovern's advisers said the administration had misused the recent nuclear arms limitation agreements "as a hunting license to step up the arms race."

School building panel organizes

Purchase of 10 acres of land south of the city as a future building site.
Custer suggested an additional item for consideration: kindergartens. According to Custer, "Kindergartens undoubtedly will be part of our school in the near future," and should be considered by the citizen committee.
One recent development that has clouded the prospect of the building project has been a decline in enrollment this year that had caught school officials by surprise.
According to assistant Supt. Camden Meyer, enrollment figures which were about 140 below last year at the beginning of the school year have risen to within 40 students of last year's peak.

According to Meyer, the enrollment may match last year's peak "at any time now."
Ed Peterson, representing school architects, CTA Architects, said proposed construction is needed even if there is no significant enrollment increase in order to reduce the number of students per classroom.
Despite this year's enrollment dip, Peterson projected an enrollment increase of "about five per cent a year" in the near future.
Peterson said the grounds at Lincoln, Washington and O'Leary schools were too small to meet state requirements for new construction.

He said the site size for the schools should be about 26 acres for O'Leary and 9-10 acres for Lincoln and Washington schools.
The architect had presented the district an earlier proposal for construction which differed in several major areas from Staudacher's report.
The CTA plan would call for removal of the old part of Lincoln school, built in 1908, and eventual replacement of the O'Leary Junior High School.

US Marine band sets TF concert

TWIN FALLS — The United States Marine Band will present two concerts in Twin Falls on Oct. 2.
A special matinee for students is set for the College of Southern Idaho Gymnasium at 1:30 p.m. An evening concert will be presented at 8 p.m. in the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium.
The appearance of the band, billed as "The President's Own," is under sponsorship of the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club.
Col. Albert Schoepper will direct the band's performance. The band appeared in Twin Falls about two years ago.
Ticket prices for the performance include $1 for the student matinee, and $2.50 for adult tickets for the evening concert.

Landfill job awarded

TWIN FALLS — A contract for a landfill, as well as the Black Bear site near Buhl for west end residents, and the Murtaugh Hansen landfill for east end use. County Commission Chairman William Chancey said the bid was the lowest of the four the county received several weeks ago in a bid opening.
Commissioner Merl Leonard said the county hopes the contractor will be able to take over the three sites as of Oct. 1, including the main area developed by the city of Twin Falls, and currently being operated by the city until the county could award a contract.
The contractor will trench and cover the collections of trash on a daily basis at each site.
Commissioners have been forced to assume new solid waste programs under tightened state health laws and will operate for the coming 12 months on somewhat of an experimental basis to determine what further facilities may be needed.

REP. RAVENSCROFT sets TF talk

GOP aide sets TF address

TWIN FALLS — Rep. Vernonscroft, R-Tuttle, will speak to Twin Falls Republican Women at the Turf Club Monday at 1 p.m.
A question period will follow his speech, "A Republic If You Can Keep It."
Businessmen and the general public are invited to attend the annual September membership meeting which will be a dessert luncheon.
Ravenscroft has been a member of the Idaho House of Representatives for 10 years, and is currently serving on the revenue and taxation committee. He also serves on the resource and conservation committees. He has previously served on the education and transportation committees.
Ravenscroft is a graduate of the University of Idaho with a bachelor's degree in forestry. He is a past member of the Sawtooth National Forest Advisory Council and is now a member and was a past regional officer in the Society of American Foresters. He was state chairman of the Idaho Landholder Sportsman Council, 1969-70.
He is the owner of the Pentapost Treating Co., Tuttle, and owns one and operates two irrigated farms. He now operates his business.
A former Democrat, Ravenscroft announced his affiliation with the Republican party at the Republican State Assembly in Boise in June.

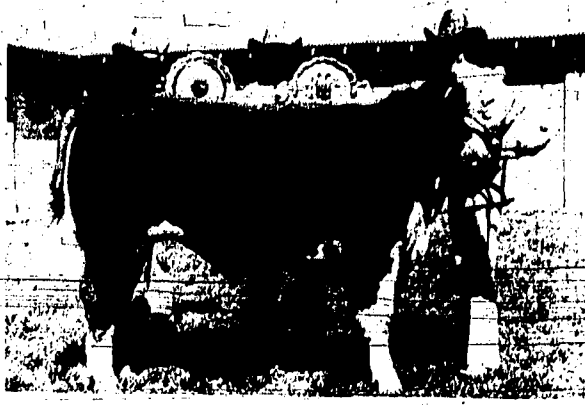

Fund loss in Owyhee confirmed

MURPHY, Idaho (UPI) — A detailed audit has confirmed reports last spring of a discrepancy of some $104,270 in funds of Owyhee County.
When a routine general audit indicated the money was missing last spring the county paid nearly $6,000 for a more detailed audit.
Findings released to commissioners last week confirmed the deficit.
Nobody seemed to know what happened to the money but county officials said the deficit absorbed in this year's budget from the surplus balance.

So this year when the bidding stopped on the Reserve Champion Steer, Swensen's Mkts. suddenly found they owned a champion — whether they can afford it or not. Well, the fact is that Swensen's Mkts. enjoy supporting the 4-H program in Magic Valley. The real champions in this 4-H program are the young men and women who work hard and take great pride in their accomplishments. NOTICE: CHADWICK'S RESERVE CHAMPION STEER WILL PROBABLY NEVER SEE THE INSIDE OF SWENSEN'S MKTS. Although Swensen's cold blooded butchers have cut up many a choice steer through the years, this one just seemed too nice to kill. Besides, it's a different story when you're standing there looking right into those big brown eyes. You could just tell the steer trusted us. So Swensen's were really relieved when Chadwick asked if they could take the prize steer to San Francisco to see if it could win another prize. (About all steers are good for is pulling covered wagons, or winning prizes, or else you've got to kill 'em and eat 'em.) BUT WAIT BEEFEATERS! DON'T DESPAIR! Swensen's Mkts. were there first after the 4-H Carcass Judging and Cutability contest at Independent Meat Co. and selected a number of the very finest highest grade choice carcasses which will be for sale at both Swensen's Markets this weekend.

Protestant Union Dim

Most Christians in the United States enjoy using the phrase "the churches ought to get together." You have heard it at garden parties, family cook-outs, and wedding receptions. Your man in the pew failed to thrive on the denominational differences (although he felt most comfortable with services at his "own church") and voiced his disapproval at the fracture of the whole Christian experience.

Yet the advent of COCU — Consultation on Church Union — as proposed by the late Bishop Pike and the very active Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, never reached the goals that many claimed to cherish. The aim, in 1960, was to form the Church of Christ Uniting. Main stream Protestantism was not for the merger concept. Evangelical and Pentecostal groups remained aloof, giving restrained, polite support. Yet more than a decade of discussion and debate has passed — and with it the mood for merger and union on a grand scale. The final crusher may have come this year when the United Presbyterian General Assembly asked its representatives to pull out of the Consultation on Church Union. With Pike gone and the United Presbyterians out, the ecumenical hopes for organic union are dim indeed. Those who want the larger perspective on the collapse of the church union should read the Augus "Christian Century" article by Methodist Dennis M. Campbell. He covers carefully the major forces behind the call for church union and then catalogues, in his view, the causes of change and disillusion.

He recalls that the climate of the late '50s was one of institutional strength for the churches, period of growth, building and strong Sunday attendance. How sharply those statistics have changed. Other reasons were current and valid: Pope John XXIII gave Christianity a new sunrise and the spirit of conciliation and reunion were soaring on a global scale. Dennis Campbell reminds us that Christians of every persuasion were challenged by the social and economic needs of mankind and felt that ecumenicity was a natural and logical response to these concerns.

Rev. Campbell cites these reasons for the sag in COCU:

Boredom ("The consultation has simply not dealt with issues that excite interest or enthusiasm");

Conflict ("Today... there is a split within the denominations about the nature and purpose of the church");

Black Involvement "Black consciousness has overtaken a host of black pastors and lay people" — these people fear a loss of identity and a loss of "the burning Spirit of the Lord."

Lastly and heavily:

Bureaucracy "Church structures tend to become self-serving, self-satisfied and self-perpetuating, using up unbelievable amounts of money on office space, communications and travel."

WASHINGTON — It is one of the ironies of the world we live in that the Communist countries may yet bail us out of our trade deficit mess.

Billings — Montana, an economist with the Department of Commerce, told me at lunch, the other day that the capitalist system now depends on how much goods the Soviet Union and Red China buy from us. And the Communist system depends on how much goods they can sell to us.

You would think both sides would hold out so the respective systems would fail. But that isn't how it's working.

Billings told me, "The Russians need us, and we need the Russians."

"But how can you do business with Communist S.O.B.s who are trying to impose their totalitarian methods on the freedom-loving countries of the world?" I asked.

"What's that got to do with the price of wheat?" Billings demanded.

"I'm not talking about the price of wheat. Everyone knows that the Soviet Union has promised to bury us."

"No country that makes a grain deal with the United States can be all bad," Billings said. "Of course we have ideological differences with the Communist bloc, but they can be overlooked providing the Soviets contribute to our gross national product. Great Britain isn't buying our wheat, France isn't buying our wheat, Italy isn't buying our wheat. And the United States needs bread."

"Bread?"

"Money. It is obvious that we can no longer depend on the freedom-loving countries of this world to buy the things that the United States manufactures so it can be the strongest capitalist country in the world. Therefore, our only choice is to find customers among the enslaved peoples of the globe who have been deprived by their system of the good things in life."

"That makes sense," I admitted.

"Who do you think saved the Boeing Aircraft Co. this year?"

"I know it wasn't the Mexicans," I said.

"It was the Red Chinese. They have just ordered $150 million worth of Boeing jet planes. The economy of the entire northwest part of the United States has been rejuvenated because of this order."

"But these planes will carry passengers around the world who don't think the way we do. Would we still consider them ruthless, aggressive international gangsters?"

Denmark thinks the way we do, but when is the last time they bought a Boeing 707?"

"I hear the Red Chinese also gave us an order for wheat."

"Exactly. And Canada, our closest neighbor and friend, won't even buy a box of Post-Tonettes from us."

"It sure is a crazy world," I said. "When you have to count on your enemies to keep your economy going."

"We don't consider anyone who buys wheat or planes from us an enemy. They may have their faults, but we like to think of them not as adversaries but as customers."

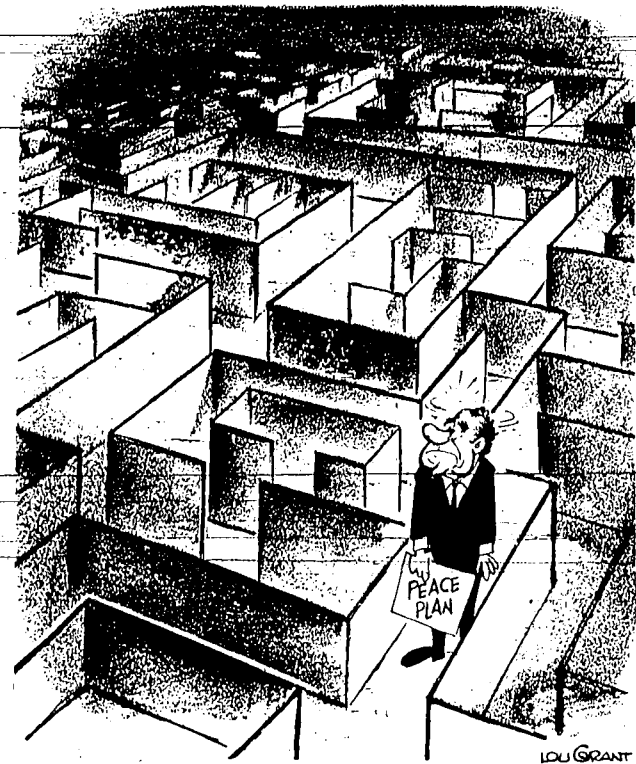

"Once you take a Soviet or a Red Chinese buyer to lunch, you find out they're really very nice people," Billings said.

"Say, a thought just occurred to me," I said. "I wonder what would happen if, at the next Paris peace talks meeting, the North Vietnamese offered to make a grain deal with us. Would we still consider them ruthless, aggressive international gangsters?"

Billings replied, "It would all depend on the financial terms of the deal."

"AND NOW MR. KISSINGER WILL EXPLAIN OUR PARIS POSITION... HENRY? HENRY?"

BRUCE BLOSSAT

Thin But Broad

WASHINGTON — Nearly every test of public sentiment shows President Nixon's support among American voters to be broad but quite thin. That gives Sen. George McGovern hope, and induces great caution among political forecasters. But should it?

The universal observation about Lyndon Johnson in 1964 was that he was the "great unloved candidate," whose support was a "mile wide and an inch deep." By contrast, GOP nominee Barry Goldwater had a dedicated following that would go through fire for him.

Well, in case you've forgotten, Johnson beat Goldwater by 16 million votes. He won all but five states and took six big ones by margins of more than a million votes each. No candidate in history has ever come close to equaling that part of his performance.

As for Richard Nixon, there's nothing new about his not being loved.

After he was nominated for president the first time in 1960 at Chicago, he held a pronounced lead over John F. Kennedy. It is common today to say he blew it. But the picture then was not nearly so sure for him as observers now imagine.

The University of Michigan's Survey Research Center, reporting in 1961 on a long series of poll samplings taken in the previous year's campaign, said that in mid-summer of 1960 there were an unusually high number of undecided voters — upwards of 30 per cent of those queried.

The center's researchers suggest two things. One, that Kennedy was still largely unknown to millions of Americans (a majority of them Democrats) until he was nominated in July. Two, that by mid-September most Protestant Democrats knew of him, knew also that he was a Catholic, and were in considerable torment about how to vote.

Nevertheless, said the center's experts, Kennedy in time began to make heavy inroads with the doubters. The poll findings indicated that from late September until election day, the undecided moved off the fence in a steady procession — in a ratio of two to one for Kennedy.

So, if these samplings are at all accurate, they mean the 1960 election was narrowly determined at the last moment by voters who were neither Mr. Nixon's nor Kennedy's to claim in midsummer.

In 1968, I did four major Republican convention delegate surveys in the months leading up to Mr. Nixon's second nomination. Looking back over these reports, I find repeated reference to evidence, in state after state, that Mr. Nixon's delegate support was loose or fluid or thin. His own chief delegate-hunters acknowledged that this was so.

Yet this did not prevent him from winning a convincing first ballot nomination at Miami Beach. He buried Governors Rockefeller and Reagan.

Nothing much changed for Mr. Nixon in the fall of 1968. There is no persuasive evidence that in the space of a few months he suddenly became the loved one. Nor, indeed, did he widen his support in the general electorate. But most of what he had stayed with him, thin or not.

The lesson in all this is obvious: Thinness of support is not necessarily crippling. Votes count whether they are thick or thin.

History suggests that George McGovern take less comfort from the shallowness of Mr. Nixon's backing, and worry more about the fact that it seems so broad. For, unless the President's thin crust is compressed within much narrower boundaries than prevail today, he will win in a sweep.

ROBERT ALLEN

Demo's Campaign

WASHINGTON — For a man seeking the highest office in the land, with its awesome responsibilities and inordinate strains and demands, Sen. McGovern's seeming inability to plan, organize and direct an effective and smooth-running campaign is sadder cause for the gravest doubts about the measure and caliber of his competence.

If the glib-talking South Dakota leftist can't put together and run an efficient and high-powered electioneering operation, the inescapable question arises: On what grounds is he qualified to run the country?

Certainly not on the basis of his chameleon record as the Democratic Presidential standard bearer.

It is two months since McGovern won the nomination, yet his campaign is still a fumbling, the bumbling mess, rent by internal wrangling and bickering, with no forceful leadership of decisive control, and waffling and wobbling with constantly shifting and juggling policies, tactics and loyalties. This inner chaos, turmoil, inconsistency and contradiction prevails not only in the top headquarters, but is to be found right in McGovern's own entourage and stumping operations. No day passes without its quota of bloopers and snafus.

To the country at large, this profoundly significant state of affairs is virtually unknown.

While the upheavals, wrangles and clanging antics of the main headquarters in Washington have been aired to some extent, the mishaps and misadventures afflicting McGovern's furious racing about the country have gone unnoticed for two reasons:

(1) He is whizzing around so fast that the newsmen covering him don't have the time to find out what is really going on, or (2) they do, to report it. (2) Privately, most of them are for him and, to put it bluntly, go out of their way to protect him.

Freedom To Leave

One of the basic rights, which Americans take for granted, yet which is nowhere directly mentioned in the Constitution or the Bill of Rights, is the right to travel abroad or to leave the country permanently.

It is not merely the rights of free speech and press, or the ultimate power of the ballot in the hands of the citizen, that distinguishes between democracies and totalitarian systems.

It is the right of any fed-up citizen to bug out for good and all any time he doesn't like the way the country is going or thinks he can find a better life somewhere else.

In a recent book on Vietnam war resisters who have fled to Canada, a number of the deserters or draft evaders remarked upon the ridiculous ease with which they crossed the border — as if this were one more proof of stupidity in Washington. It did not dawn on them that the very simplicity of foreign travel for Americans, particularly travel to our nearest neighbors, Canada and Mexico, undercut much of their allegations about U. S. "imperialism."

To be sure, dictatorships have often found it useful to rid themselves of dissidents or those they considered undesirable, but it has always been for a price. We have only to look to Cuba for a modern model.

There, until the Castro government found it convenient to stop further emigration, those who wished to leave had to place themselves on the list of "gusanos," or worms, and in a political and social limbo.

After many long months, those fortunate enough to be permitted aboard the one daily plane to Miami could take with them little more than the clothes on their backs. All their property and wealth had been confiscated by the government.

Much the same thing is happening in Russia today. Jews who are crazy enough to want to leave that other workers' paradise to emigrate to Israel have been required to pay an exit fee of nearly $1,000.

Now, on top of that, a new tax has been levied on Jews holding academic degrees, ranging from $5,400 for a teacher to $23,500 for a person with a university doctorate.

Whether the tax is seen as an effort to discourage an intellectual "brain drain" or as a form of vindictiveness or, along with the exit fee, as merely a source of revenue for the Soviet government makes little difference.

It is one more practice which separates the indecent governments of this world from the decent.

Draft Dodger Vote

Every little bit helps in an election campaign, too. Thus a group called Americans Abroad for McGovern is trying to enlist the draft-dodger vote in Canada, reports the National Observer.

That would amount to about 10,000 votes. The group is also wooing the non-draft-dodging American vote in Canada and hopes to win about 75 per cent of it. (According to the State Department, some 250,000 U.S. citizens are living and working north of the border.)

As for the draft dodgers, apparently all they have to do is swear that they intend to return to the United States some day to live in order to qualify for absentee ballots. The biggest job facing McGovern workers in Canada is convincing the expatriates they won't be arrested if they apply at a U.S. consulate.

Otherwise they figure their candidate "will inevitably" get the draft-dodger vote, says the Observer.

It's not exactly something to crow about.

Gem voters greet Pat

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — If the nation's first lady flew here Wednesday on behalf of her husband's campaign for reelection, her Idaho greeters didn't seem to be aware of it.

As Mrs. Nixon stepped off the plane and into a waiting limousine, the small airport crowd, bundled up against a chilly north wind, simply waved or raised placards saying "Welcome to Idaho Falls, Pat." A handful of signs calling for "four more years" and other campaign slogans were in evidence.

Even when she arrived at Republican Party headquarters, there was more handshaking and autograph signing than actual politicking. To commemorate her visit, Congressman Orval Hansen presented her with a diamond-encrusted gold pin in the shape of a potato.

Perhaps the most outward means of political expression during her two-hour visit to the city was acted out by First District congressional hopeful Steve Symms, who asked Hansen to give the first lady a shiny red apple, symbolic of his campaign.

Earlier, she dedicated a new Career Education Center at Idaho Falls High School, and told a predominantly school-age audience of about 8,000 that her husband had once praised the attitudes of Idaho youth as being "so great, so all-American."

ington, D.C., her husband and youngest daughter, Julie Elsenhower, recalled an earlier trip to Idaho and told her, "You won't find any longhairs here."

Referring to her plane ride from Yellowstone National Park, Wyo., Mrs. Nixon said, "When we flew in here today and I saw all that blue sky, I felt so refreshed."

The first lady seemed most at ease while shaking hands with crowds she encountered at her various stopping points. One woman at Fanning Field, whose eyes were gleaming after the opportunity of a quick over the fence-type chat with "the President's wife," asked her if her hand ever got tired of clasping so many others.

"No," answered the first lady. "I've developed quite a good grip after so many years of practice."

The biggest surprise of Mrs. Nixon's trip occurred when she asked to make an unscheduled stop at dedication ceremonies for the new Idaho Falls Senior Citizen Center.

There, she received an enthusiastic welcome from more than 200 elderly persons who invited her inside to inspect the new facility and listen to some "down home" country and western music played by members of the Idaho Old Time Fiddlers Association.

She nodded her head in time to the music and quipped, "I can't do a square dance too well, but I can do the hula."

Spock admits no election chance

BOISE (UPI) — Dr. Benjamin Spock admits frankly he has no chance of being elected this year.

But the baby doctor turned social critic said during a campaign stop here Wednesday that he was more interested in organizing a political party than winning votes this election.

Spock is the nominee of the Peace and Freedom Party in Idaho and of the Peoples Party in many other states.

He said Wednesday he hopes he can use his candidacy as a means of calling attention to his movement to restructure the fabric of American society and economy. Eventually, he said, his movement hopes to become a viable alternative to the policies offered by the present Republican and Democratic parties.

"Personalities may differ between the parties," he said, "but the course of our country remains the same."

"Our belief is that in the long run the Republican and Democratic parties will get together to oppose the more radical parties," he said.

"They're only concerned with getting into office," Spock said. "We're concerned with saving America."

Ballot change not foreseen

BOISE (UPI) — Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa told a meeting of county election officials Wednesday that there would be no changes in the way amendments to the state constitution will be listed on the Nov. 7 general election ballot.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus had earlier suggested in a letter to Cenarrusa that the amendments to be voted on be listed by proposition numbers, starting with one.

Presently they are listed by legislative numbers. Cenarrusa said the decision to change the numbering system on the ballot should be left up to the legislature.

Cenarrusa made his announcement at the meeting, which was called to work out the design and the content of the general election ballot.

County clerks, the League of Women Voters, state legislators and party officials were represented at the meeting at the statehouse.

Cenarrusa said his staff will make a determination of the form of the ballot and its content after reviewing the information received at Wednesday's meeting.

Queen hailed

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Hail to the Queen" is the title of a documentary of the Queen Mary tracing the great ocean liner from its blueprint stages through construction, launching, World War II adventure and final berth in Long Beach, Calif.

Kennedy to speak at Gem State fund raiser

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is scheduled to speak at a $25-per-plate luncheon on behalf of senatorial candidate William E. (Bud) Davis at Boise Oct. 13, the Idaho Statesman said today.

The newspaper said Kennedy will hold a news conference after the luncheon and then will make a public address from the statehouse steps before leaving Idaho.

Distrust caused by lack of voice

POCATELLO (UPI) — Willis Ludlow, Democratic candidate for Congress, says that the people's lack of a voice in the running of the government has caused the distrust found in the country.

In a speech given Tuesday night on the Idaho State University campus, Ludlow claimed that one of the main issues facing the people today is the lack of the citizen's right to have a say in the decisions of the country.

He said his opponent, Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, does not provide a voice for the people.

He said the congressman ignores the issues of today, while continuing to support Nixon's plans such as a national sales tax which would burden the lower and middle income families.

Uganda cracks down on critics of president

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI)—Uganda military police today arrested Chief Justice Benedict Kiwanuka, a former premier, in a government crackdown on critics of President Idi Amin.

The action came at a time when Uganda was embroiled in a dispute with neighboring Tanzania with each side making threats to invade the other.

In addition, Uganda military police attacked Sudan for intercepting five Libyan jet fighters carrying men and arms to Uganda for the conflict with Tanzania.

"The spokesman deprecates the attitude which has been adopted by a country like Sudan, which has all along been regarded as very friendly," the Uganda radio broadcast of the statement said.

Witnesses said Kiwanuka was seized at the High Court building in Kampala. They said his coat and necktie were taken away from him and he was led away in handcuffs.

Seizure of Chief Justice Kiwanuka followed recent denunciations by President Amin of "certain" high-ranking government officials in the Masaka area of southwest Uganda who allegedly opposed his government's policy.

Kiwanuka, a former Premier of Uganda, lives near Masaka. It was one of two areas attacked by the invasion force which crossed into Uganda Sunday from Tanzania.

Witnesses to Kiwanuka's seizure said the East African court of appeal, which began sitting shortly afterwards in the same building, adjourned "until further notification" when told of the arrest.

In a statement 10 days ago the National Defense Council charged unnamed high officials "still prefer to confuse the people while at the same time pretending to pledge their loyalty to the government."

Ugandan forces meanwhile mopped up the remains of the 1,500-man invasion force near the Tanzanian border. Amin ordered new air strikes into the neighboring country.

Amin said Wednesday night he was ordering the air strikes to forestall a fresh invasion by what he claimed was a 10,000-man force of Ugandan exiles and Tanzanian troops.

"We must stop them before they penetrate into Uganda and the only way to do it will be by striking at them before they enter the country," Radio Uganda quoted Amin as saying. (In Dar es Salaam, the Tanzanian capital, President Julius Nyerere said Tanzania would not tolerate any more bombing of its cities. He said further bombing could result in a change in his orders to the Tanzanian troops massed near the Ugandan border not to cross the frontier.)

Amin, in remarks during a memorial service for civilians and soldiers killed during the border fighting, said the northern Tanzania town of Bukoba had been a "staging base for the invasion."

Professor stabbed to death

NEW YORK (UPI)—Detectives early today arrested a 10-year-old boy in connection with the fatal stabbing of Columbia University law professor Wolfgang G. Friedmann.

Police identified the youth as Daniel Minges and said he was picked up at his home. Two other teen-aged youths also were being sought in connection with the Wednesday slaying.

Minges was taken to the West 100th Street stationhouse and booked on homicide charges.

Friedmann, 65, who had successfully fought off a gang of youths who attacked him in 1956, was killed near the university's Morningside Heights campus while trying to fight off three teen-aged attackers.

The international law professor, who fled Germany in the 1930s rather than live under the Nazi regime, was stabbed to death by one of the attackers as he struggled to keep them from taking his money.

Chrysler plans control device

DETROIT (UPI)—Chrysler Corp. has announced two major steps toward equipping its 1975 models with catalytic converter emission control devices, including a multimillion dollar purchase from Russia.

Chrysler said Wednesday it has contracted through an international trading company to purchase 100,000 troy ounces of palladium, a metal akin to platinum, from the Soviet Union. Delivery was set for 1973.

Auto industry sources said the cost of palladium was "in the same ballpark" as platinum, which costs $130 per ounce. A troy ounce weighs 480 grains, compared with the 437 grains in the ordinary ounce.

Chrysler said it also signed an agreement with Universal Oil Products Co. of Des Plaines, Ill., to begin engineering work on a factory to produce catalytic converters—muffler-like devices containing chemicals to change exhaust gases into harmless carbon dioxide and water. The auto makers see the converters as the only way to meet stiff 1975 emission standards set by the federal government.

Palladium plays an active role in the chemical change of the harmful exhaust fumes into harmless substances, according to a Chrysler spokesman. He said the metal "is strictly to be used in the guts of the converter—palladium is the material through which the exhaust gases will pass to be chemically transformed."

General Motors, which makes up half the auto industry sales, is the only one of the big three auto makers still uncommitted to a catalytic device, though it is experimenting with several.

Chinese, Japanese meet set

TOKYO (UPI)—Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka will go to Peking Monday to reconcile Japan with China and end an estrangement that has lasted through 35 years of hot and cold war.

The historic change in Japan's foreign policy was officially announced today by both the Japanese and Chinese governments.

The move had been anticipated since Aug. 3 when Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira announced that Japan was ready to break diplomatic relations with the Nationalist-Chinese government on Taiwan in order to establish them with Peking.

The Nationalist Chinese foreign ministry on Taiwan said today that any agreement to be signed between Japan and Peking "shall be considered illegal and invalid" because "the government of the Republic of China (Taiwan) is the only lawful government of China."

Sour grapes

ROME (UPI)—Heavy rain is threatening to make this year's vintage one of Italy's worst in a long time, farming experts said today.

The Institute for Agricultural Market Research said weeks of frequent rain, low temperatures and morning fog have badly affected the quality of grapes now being harvested in much of Italy.

Wine growers in the Alessandria province of Piedmont, from which some of Italy's best wines come, said production there this year would be 160,000 tons, compared with 210,000 tons in 1971 and a record 272,000 in 1959.

Strange hump

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—A police customs agent, Manuel Martinez Valdez, thought the hump in a hunchbacked man looked strange because the man's body wasn't deformed in any other way.

When he felt something soft, he took the unidentified man aside, ordered him to remove his jacket and found a hidden four-pound packet of heroin.

Colorado labor unit scoffs

DENVER (UPI)—The Colorado Labor Council has scoffed at AFL-CIO President George Meany's order to suspend it and boot out all officers because they violated Meany's neutral political stand and endorsed George McGovern for President.

"We're going to hold our ground and operate independently in spite of any harassment from George Meany," said CLC President Herrick Roth. "We'll operate in exile if need be—and we refuse to turn over any of our records."

Roth filed suit in federal court Wednesday asking an injunction to keep Meany and the AFL-CIO from suspending the Colorado group. He said the hearing, will probably come next week.

Meany issued a terse statement from Washington earlier saying the Colorado group had endorsed the Democratic presidential nominee "in violation of AFL-CIO policy and refused to rescind its endorsement."

Thieu flies to Viet coast towns

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu, who just missed being hit by Communist artillery at Quang Tri City Wednesday, flew today to the central coast where Communist troops hours earlier attacked three district towns.

The president, on a two-day tour of the northern battlefront, visited the province capital of Quang Ngai City 318 miles northeast of Saigon. The Communists last weekend shifted the emphasis of their offensive to the region and heavy fighting has been under way south of Quang Ngai City for six days.

The U.S. command in Saigon announced today that no Americans were killed in Vietnam combat last week and that seven men were wounded. It was the lowest overall weekly casualty toll of the war for the United States.

Command spokesmen said monsoon weather limited air strikes to 210 Wednesday over North Vietnam. They said pilots destroyed 20 warehouses in the Thanh Hoa-Vinh area, 137 to 210 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ). The closest raid to Hanoi was 30 miles to the south where Navy pilots reported knocking out or damaging six buildings at the Lang Loc army installation.

A command spokesman said a Navy A7 Corsair jet developed engine trouble during the raids and crashed into the Tonkin Gulf. The pilot, Lt. Stanley F. Bloyer, 26, of Ripley, Ohio, parachuted into the sea within sight of two U.S. 7th Fleet vessels and was rescued unhurt within 10 minutes.

Thieu told UPI reporter Edward Bassett that government forces had "the situation in hand" despite the attacks earlier today on the three towns. He arrived from Da Nang with Lt. Gen. Ngo Quang Truong, the South Vietnamese commander in the five northernmost provinces known as Military Region I.

Communist troops staged an all-night assault on Ba To, 25 miles southwest of Quang Ngai City, and by dawn today had partially captured a government ranger compound in the district town, field reports said. A South Vietnamese spokesman said at least 403 Communists were killed in the fighting. He put government losses at eight dead and 36 wounded but reported no other details of the fighting.

The North Vietnamese earlier this week seized half of Ba To and bad weather Wednesday kept U.S. air support at a minimum for the battalion of about 650 rangers, their families and some artillerymen defending the former U.S. Green Beret camp there.

Military spokesmen in Saigon said the district town of Duc Pho, 15 miles east of Ba To, came under heavy shelling at dawn followed by a ground attack. The spokesmen said there were no immediate details of that battle.

The third fight flared near Tu Nghia, only six miles below Quang Ngai City, spokesmen said. They said that action left 26 Communist soldiers dead and reported government casualties of four wounded.

The district towns and other South Vietnamese positions threatened by Communist soldiers all are on or near Highway 1, the main north-south artery which once linked Saigon and Hanoi.

Judge in Corona case imposes 'gag' ruling

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — The judge at the murder trial of Juan V. Corona interrupted the eighth day of jury selection Wednesday to hand a written "gag" order to prosecutors, defense lawyers and reporters.

Superior Judge Richard Patton said attorneys could say "good morning" to reporters, but "there shall be no comment, inference, suggestion, statement or otherwise which in any way relates to this case or any aspect of it."

Patton has repeatedly warned both sides against violating a "gag rule" earlier handed down and has twice found defense attorney Richard E. Hawk in contempt of court in his chambers.

Questioning of jurors continues today with the original panel of 100 persons nearly exhausted. Each side has used only a few of the 20 peremptory challenges allowed both defense and prosecution.

Corona, 38, a farm labor contractor, has been in jail 16 months on charges of hooking to death 25 migrant farm workers and burying their bodies in orchards along the Feather River.

The prospective panel's first minority representative, Mrs. Tillie Jackson, a black unemployed school teacher, was dismissed by the prosecution Wednesday despite vigorous defense objections.

Hawk, whose client is a Mexican immigrant, said the dismissal was an act of "absolute white racism" by the prosecutor, G. Dave Teja.

Mock mission finished

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Three smiling astronauts emerged from a 20-foot partial space station mockup Wednesday and walked down a red carpet to a waiting crowd, ending a $3 million, 56-day simulation of three Skylab space missions planned for next year.

"Ochen-Khorash, 'throtte diver,'" Robert L. Crippen said. It was Russian for "Man, it's nice to get out of that place."

Crippen, Dr. William Thornton and Carol J. Bobko studied Russian during the simulation, a required subject for astronauts who hope to make the 1976 joint American-Russian spaceflight.

The dry-run test by the three astronauts was designed to give scientists insights into the physical effects of long periods in a high-oxygen atmosphere.

Crippen, Thornton and Bobko volunteered for the test to check medical experiments and equipment that will be aboard the actual Skylab. None of the three has ever flown in space before.

The last 36 days have not been alone," said Crippen, who grew a beard during the test. "But they haven't been as tough as I anticipated before the flight."

Bobko, also bearded, and Thornton told the crowd of about 750 space center employees that it was nice to be home, even though they never really left.

Cmdr. Charles P. "Pete" Conrad, the commander of the first actual Skylab planned for next April, also said a simulation he and his two crewmates walked through, recently taught them a lot about the correct procedures to follow in the actual flight.

On the move

NEW YORK (UPI) — Did your family eat dinner at home last night? Or did you go out for a pizza or hamburger?

Americans are on the move, and in some cases, the move is out of the family dining room into a commercial eating establishment. Dr. Ted Hartung, chairman of the Department of Food Science and Technology at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said Americans are eating out more.

Evades chair

THE ILLINOIS Supreme Court has ruled that Richard Speck, 41, sentenced to die in the electric chair five years ago for the murder of eight nurses, must be sentenced again and cannot be sentenced to death.

The court's decision came late Wednesday after Bradley W. Curtis, 26, testified that he saw a black man running from the scene of the slayings, but he was not Smith.

However, Curtis, who served

Teachers' strike on in Washington

By United Press International

Teachers in Washington, D.C., in defiance of their union leadership, continued to strike today while Philadelphia's 285,000 student school system was into its third week of immobilization despite an angry threat by Mayor Frank Rizzo.

Members of the District of Columbia School Board and Washington Teachers Union leaders hammered out an agreement during a marathon bargaining session which ended early Wednesday. The union membership, however, rejected the pact less than 12 hours later after branding the settlement "inadequate."

Dr. Hugh J. Scott, superintendent of the 148,000 student school system, said after the vote that the city's schools "will open and remain open" today. He said the strike was costing the city $200,000 a day.

An estimated 1,500 members of the 3,600 member union took part in the vote to reject the agreement. The city has 7,000 teachers in all.

Court-martial recesses

FT. ORD, Calif. (UPI) — The court-martial of Pvt. Billy D. Smith, 24, was in recess today after a prosecution witness said Smith was not the soldier he saw running from the "fragging" explosion which killed two officers in Vietnam.

Army officials said the Friday session of the trial was also canceled and added it would be reconvened "at the call of the presiding judge."

The interruption of the court-martial came late Wednesday after Bradley W. Curtis, 26, testified that he saw a black man running from the scene of the slayings, but he was not Smith.

However, Curtis, who served as an enlisted man with the officers—Capt. Randall L. Rigby and Sgt. Billy Willis.

The prosecution contended Rigby and Willis were the target of the grenade planted in the barracks.

Miller also said Smith's threats were not unusual among the soldiers in their unit.

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Nina Foch, star of many films and Broadway plays, has been signed by the Seattle Repertory Theater for a leading role in the Edward Albee drama, "All's Over," which will be one of the six productions of the 10th anniversary season which opens in October.

THE '73 FORDS ARE HERE.

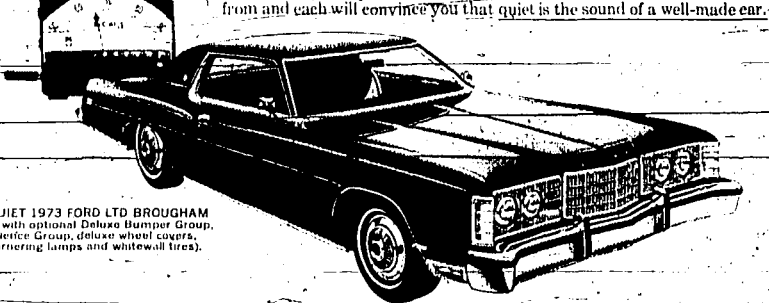

The airborne glider. 82 decibels at 60 mph.

At 60 mph a '73 Ford LTD rode quieter than an airborne glider.

On July 27, 1972, General Radio Co. tested a '73 LTD against an airborne glider. Both at 60 mph and with identical sound level meters. The result: the Ford was quieter. But the new LTD is more than just quiet. It is well made from its power front disc brakes, power steering and automatic transmission, standard equipment, to its luxurious, comfortable, roomy interior. There are 16 new Ford models to choose from and each will convince you that quiet is the sound of a well-made car.

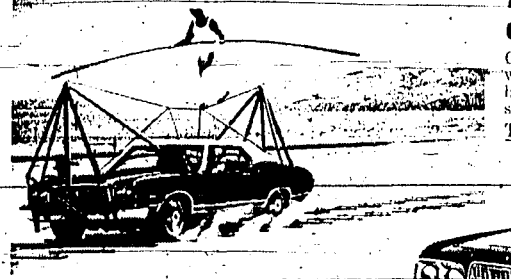

The '73 Ford LTD. 65 decibels at 60 mph. Quiet is the sound of a well-made car.

A '73 Torino rode so smooth, a high wire artist kept balance on a road of 2x4's.

Chances are you won't try to balance yourself on top of your new Torino. But, when you're riding inside, you'll still appreciate Torino's refined suspension—because it helps to cushion bumps, absorb road vibrations and reduce body sway. You feel solidly in control while you ride in comfort and luxury. The solid mid-size Torino. Smooth riding, strong and quiet.

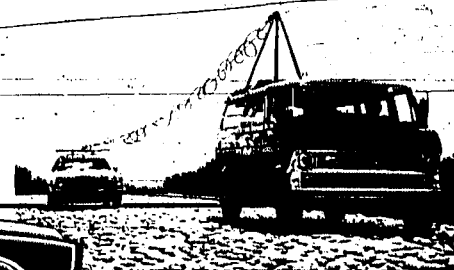

THE SOLID 1973 FORD TORINO BROUHAM (shown with optional front bumper guards, deluxe wheel covers and whitewall tires).

'73 Pinto: When you get back to basics, you get back to Ford.

Ford, the company that built the first basic, solid, reliable car seventy years ago—has built today's basic, solid reliable car: Pinto. It's become America's top-selling economy car for more reasons than economy. Here are some of those reasons: A 1,600 cc. engine developed and perfected in over 10 years of actual driving. Rack-and-pinion steering. Solid welded body, electrocoated to fight corrosion. 4-speed transmission—lubed for life. Everything we've learned in seventy years of car making—all the basics—we build into every Pinto Wagon, Runabout and Sedan. When you get back to basics, you get back to Pinto.

Deer Jerky
Cut meat across the grain as thinly as possible. Put about one cup of soy sauce in a bowl and toss strips of meat in it. Lay the meat on a piece of waxed paper and sprinkle with garlic salt, table salt and pepper. Arrange strips without touching and with salted side down on a wire rack. Sprinkle the top side with seasoning. Let stand for thirty minutes so flavor of seasonings is absorbed. Place the rack over a foil covered pan or cookie sheet. Place in a 175 degree oven for six hours. Turn the strips over and return to the oven for six hours more. Remove and store in a jar or can with a few holes punched in the top, away from moisture. To enhance the flavor, this jerky should be cured ten days.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of three children. A boy 9, and two daughters, 6 and 3. The two older ones are my natural children; Tammy, the youngest, we adopted when she was five days old. Believe me, when I tell you that I couldn't love Tammy more if she were my own flesh and blood. But she is my problem.

Tammy seems to be crazy about men! Any man, if a strange man smiles at her in the grocery store, Tammy will grab his hand and want to go with him. If a man comes to our home, whether she has ever seen him or not, Tammy wants to climb on his lap and kiss him. She makes a big hit with all the men because she is affectionate, but it worries me.

Do you think her real mother could have had this trait? We know that Tammy's mother was a runaway girl, and she had Tammy when she was 15. I can't help wondering if this aggressiveness with men could have been inherited from her mother? (Our older daughter, who is not adopted, is shy, and she won't go near a man unless she knows him very well.)

TWIN FALLS — Judge and Mrs. Joseph O. McDaniel, Elko, Nev., announce the engagement of their daughter, Susan, to Randy Houston.

Houston is the son of Thomas Houston, Westminster, Calif., and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Houston, Twin Falls. The couple plans a January wedding.

Miss McDaniel is a 1971 graduate of Elko High School and a graduate of Idaho State University—vocational training for secretaries. She presently is working at Area West and part time at Skaggs.

Houston was graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1970 and is attending Idaho State University, enrolled in law enforcement. He also is employed by ISU as a security guard at the mini dome.

souvenirs

MRS. JESSIE Danner, just returned from a year's stay in Peru, sits on a couch which has a back throw of Alpaca fur, typical for work of Peruvian natives. She is showing one of the arts she most admired — hand carved gourds.

Peruvian souvenirs shown at Shoshone Rebekah meet

SHOSHONE — Mrs. Jessie Danner, who spent the last year in Peru, will show souvenirs she brought home, at her first public appearance Tuesday night at Opal Rebekah Lodge.

Mrs. Danner was in Lima, Peru, with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Bryan. Bryan is a potato specialist for the United States government there and expects soon to accept employment with an international potato organization.

Handicraft of the souvenirs was noted by Mrs. Danner as an unusual "art" among people of that country.

This ranges in variety from fur work, rugs and coverlets from Apocaca and sheep's wool to tapestry woven from the Sierra sheep wool, netting cloth work, jewelry in intricate design of copper and silver, purses, basket weaving, ponchos, dolls and gourds.

Mrs. Danner said her son-in-law had identified and catalogued some 2,000 different varieties of potatoes there. She said the Peruvian potatoes come in almost any color and shape. Many times she said they ate six different varieties at a single meal.

Each family has their own woven potato bag, which is "not" for sale at any price. This, too, is woven by them, in their own design and color.

The hand carved gourd is one of her favorites. Miniature design and color show the individual talent of the artist.

We have changed a few cards around in Hand 29 of the nationwide Olympiad game so as to make sure that South gets to be declarer at three no-trump.

The contract is not one of the best we have ever seen but worse ones make every day and this one will make unless West is right on his toes.

South takes East's king of spades with his ace at trick one and enters dummy with a diamond in order to try the heart finesse. It loses and West is back on lead.

West assumes that South is sitting with the guarded jack of spades and some West players will make the mistake of trying a waiting lead. If they do they will be

LIPSTICK IS IN A BOTTLE!

By Mary Sue Miller

Lipstick lately has taken to new consistencies and containers. Almost as firm as a stick, lip rouge for fingertip application was introduced in little, screw-top pots.

Next, looking for all the world like felt-tipped pens, automatic twirled wavy ribbons of color through a brush to the lips.

Now... Lip Polish in a bottle, with everything going for it! Lip Polish has the properties of a creamy, moisturizing liquid. It imparts vibrant color with the high sheen of lip gloss, with the full-bodied coverage and the cling of a stick. The bottle is entirely toteable — 2 1/2" and plastic — in pocket or purse. A silver cap holds fast a built-in sable brush.

Application is in no way mechanically complicated or messy. You simply pull the cap off and the tapered sable brush comes up with the amount of Lip Polish that stays put. Won't clog, change color, spill over your lip line or into your purse.

The idea is a nod to girls on the run. For any lovely who desires a colorful, well-defined mouth this season to complement the well-groomed look in beauty, the neo-classic in fashion.

From glowing amber through sparkling rose to Ritz red, shades aim to enhance your personal coloring and your individual fashion palette. Polished as a candied apple and just as tempting, that's the way you'll look!

90th birthday celebration set

TWIN FALLS — Friends and relatives will honor the 90th birthday anniversary of Mrs. Stella Bice at an open house from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The event will be at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Eugene Dillon, 621 Buchanan St.

Mrs. Bice was born Sept. 25, 1882, in Osceola, Neb. She moved with her husband to Twin Falls in 1907. Prior to Mr. Bice's death in 1951 the couple owned and operated a farm southeast of Twin Falls.

Mrs. Bice is the mother of four children, Clifford M. Bice, Santa Maria, Calif.; Mrs. Harry (Anita) Torrens, Auburn, Wash.; Luther R. Bice, Nampa, and Mrs. Eugene (Colleen) Dillon, Twin Falls.

She has nine grandchildren and 24 great-grandchildren. A brother, Roy Her, lives at Osceola.

Burley programs set

BURLEY — Seven programs have been scheduled this year for the members of the Burley-Rupert-Knife-and-Fork Club, announce the club officers.

The first speaker of the season will be Ed Kenney on Oct. 14 and his topic will be "The Laughing — Singing America."

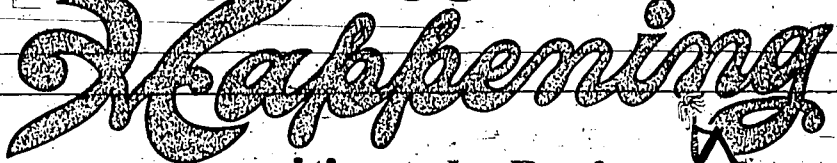

Other speakers and their topics are Kyuso Miyahara, Nov. 3, "A Love Story"; Dr. Donald Ebricht, Nov. 13, "Easy Travel"; Louis Bohmrich, Dec. 2, "International Cooperation"; Lute Jerstad, Jan. 8, "Americans on Everest"; Suxy

Sutton, Feb. 1, "Your Personality is Showing"; and Baron Hans De Meisa Teuffen, March 6, "How to Improve the Quality of Life Worldwide."

M. Alvin Kempton is serving the local club as president and Mack Crouch is secretary-treasurer.

Purpose of the club is to provide the membership with delightful and informative evenings during the fall, winter and early spring seasons, with excellent speakers, outstanding meals and an evening of fellowship, according to club officers.

County support asked on survey

JEROME — Commissioners received, hire 10 soil experts from eight Magic Valley counties meeting in Jerome Tuesday were asked to support a request for funding a statewide soil conservation survey.

Clarence Hedrick of the Twin Falls Soil Conservation Service, asked for the commissioners' support in obtaining funding from the state legislature for the survey.

The commissioners unanimously agreed to go on record in favor of the survey, and to formulate a resolution to formally endorse the program at the county commissioners' state convention next week.

Hedrick told commissioners the plan calls for survey and evaluation of land in Idaho for the best possible land usage. The SCS will, if the funding is received, hire 10 soil experts and a lab technician.

He said that 750,000 acres of land would be surveyed each year between now and 1985. The cost for 1973 will be $110,000; for 1974 and 1975, $134,000 each year, and from 1976 to 1985, $143,000 per year.

Hedrick said the survey in Jerome County is presently 20 per cent complete; Cassia County, 60 per cent; Twin Falls, 35-40 per cent, and Minidoka, complete except for the evaluation.

"We presently have seven million acres of land in Idaho completed on the survey with 32 million acres left to do," Hedrick said.

The commissioners appointed a committee to draft another resolution for the state convention requesting that the proceedings of local county commissioners' meetings not be published in full in the local newspapers, as is now required.

Several counties have tried to cut down on publishing their proceedings, but have been threatened with lawsuits and are now publishing them whole again.

Those present at Tuesday's meeting felt that the cost of publishing the commissioner's proceedings in full, (as legal notices), was far too high.

The food stamp program is still being abused, but progress has been made in correcting the problem by the committees which have been set up throughout the area for regulating the program, it was reported.

Device detects slicks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new airborne sensing device designed to detect oil slicks from one mile above the surface of the sea will soon join the Coast Guard's arsenal in the campaign against water pollution, Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe said Wednesday.

"This remarkable equipment will be able to pick up an oil spill covering less than 2,500 square feet from an altitude of 5,000 feet, night or day," he said.

Two scanners to be mounted on a fleet of Coast Guard planes will gauge differences in sea surface temperatures and will record ultraviolet reflections from an oil slick.

Oil can change the surface temperature of water by as much as four degrees centigrade. The temperature scanner, which will relay its information to a monitor inside the plane, is sensitive enough to record a temperature variation of two-tenths of a degree Centigrade, Volpe said.

The Coast Guard plans to equip six planes with the scanners starting early next year.

Oakley meet

OAKLEY — The Oakley Valley Improvement group will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. to continue discussion of the proposed Cassia County School bond issue.

Mrs. Lyne P. Boren, secretary-treasurer of the group, did not disclose the Oakley meeting site but did release four resolutions drafted by the group in a Sept. 14 meeting.

The group, she said, voted to petition the county school board to create an Oakley sub-district; to seek legal advice concerning the legality of the proposed school bond in relation to the subdistricts already created by the vote of the people; to suggest recall proceedings in four of the school trustee positions, and to contest the bond on the grounds consolidation violates religious beliefs.

Mrs. Boren's release also said those at the Sept. 14 meeting unanimously opposed consolidation but agreed to help the schools in any other way possible.

Mrs. Boren said she invited public comment. Persons may call her at 882-3490.

Pay hike okayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pay Board has approved second-year wage increases for about 40,000 aerospace industry workers, a board spokesman announced Wednesday.

The board's decision, previously reported by some of those affected, includes a wage package for union workers at five big aerospace companies.

In another decision, the Pay Board approved a 5 per cent wage boost for 340,000 railroad workers covered by a United Transportation Union contract, announced Wednesday.

Approval of the pay hike, which takes effect Oct. 1, was contingent on the board's satisfaction that work rule changes proposed by the union

Competition Tuesday

Punt, pass, kick contest slated

TWIN FALLS — Young athletes from 8 to 13 years of age are being encouraged to enter the annual Punt, Pass and Kick contest.

Chad Browning, city recreation director, said Twin Falls youngsters may obtain an entry blank at city hall, or may register at 6 p.m. Tuesday at Bruin Field when the Twin Falls contest will be held.

The national contest is sponsored by the Ford Motor Co. dealers and there is no cost or purchase obligation for youngsters entering the competition.

Seven-year-olds who will reach their 8th birthday by Jan. 21 may compete and a 13-year-old who becomes 14 on or before Jan. 21 will not be eligible.

There are six levels of competition — local, zone, district, area, division and national.

Local winners will receive trophies in each age group and the winners will be eligible to compete in zone competition.

Each boy will compete in three events — punting, passing and kicking with the use of a kicking tee. Judges will score the contestants. Sneakers (tennis shoes) are recommended for competition on the local level and are required for district, area, division and national contests.

FRIDAY IS THE DAY OF THE CAT. SEE ALL THE NEW 73's AT YOUR LINCOLN-MERCURY DEALER.

Starting today, there's a complete line of smart, new, better built cars at the sign of the cat.

Not shown: Mercury Monterey, the medium-priced car that's built better to ride better. And Capri, the sexy European.

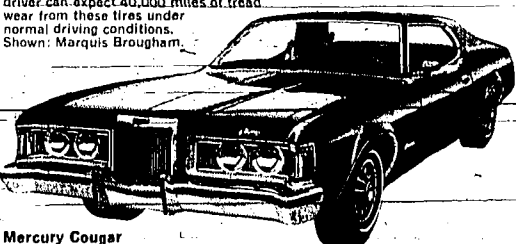

See a whole new family of wagons, too, the kind only Mercury could build. It all happens today. "The Day of the Cat."

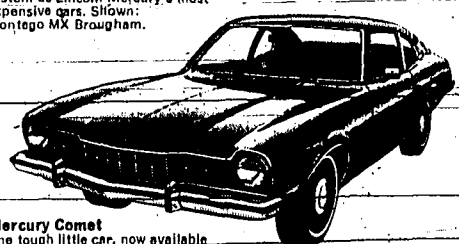

Mercury Marquis
Completely restyled. Steel-belted radials standard. Tests show that the average driver can expect 40,000 miles of tread wear from these tires under normal driving conditions. Shown: Marquis Brougham.

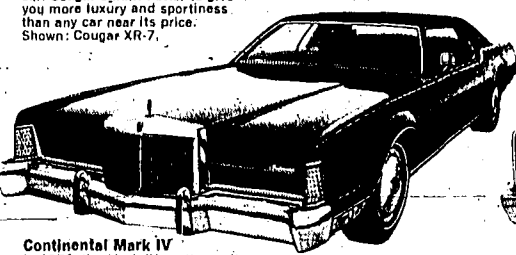

Mercury Montego
Personal size, but with the luxurious ride of a big car. Uses same type suspension system as Lincoln-Mercury's most expensive cars. Shown: Montego MX Brougham.

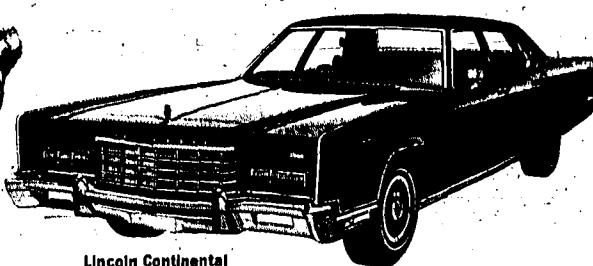

Mercury Cougar
The cat is not like anybody else's car. Cougar's built better to give you more luxury and sportiness than any car near its price. Shown: Cougar XR-7.

Mercury Comet
One tough little car, now available with fine car options usually found only in expensive cars. Comet. Built better to last longer.

Continental Mark IV
In 1973, the Mark IV continues its tradition of offering as standard equipment many luxury features, including Sure-Track anti-skid braking and 6-way Twin Comfort Lounge Seats.

Lincoln Continental
Designed to ride and handle even better than our '72s. Which, in a test, rode and handled even better than the other make of luxury car. It is a very good year.

All Mercurys illustrated with optional whitewalls and bumper rub strip. Lincoln Continental shown with optional wheel covers and vinyl roof. 1973 cars must meet Federal emissions standards before sale.

Elmore hunted nabbed

"He said they forced him to drive to Chicago, Detroit and Nashville," said Dolan. "Then they decided to go to California and stopped here to pawn a wrist watch which was apparently stolen from the murdered man in Montana. The watch had Kalberg's initials on it."

The two detectives said they noticed Batton's car parked on Beale Street, the street where the blues were originated by W. C. Handy, and decided to make a routine check since they were from out of town.

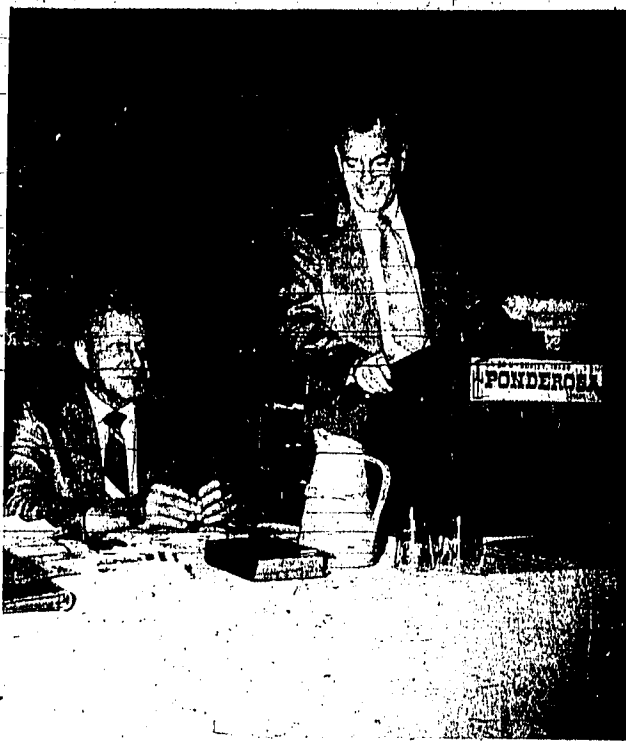

"Batton and Shields were in the pawn shop and Rhodes was out in the car," said Batton.

When the officers noticed that Batton was very nervous, and began to question the men, Shields made a break for the door. McMillan followed him.

"I was right behind him and we were right at the corner of the car when the man inside (Rhodes) drew a pistol and held it on me," said McMillan.

"I also had my pistol out and I sort of had his buddy as a shield—so I told him, 'Drop that gun or I'll kill you.'"

"He hesitated a minute and I told him the second time and he dropped the gun."

GOP meet slated at Jerome

JEROME — Members of the Jerome County Republican Central Committee will meet tonight at 8 p.m. in the IOOF Hall in Hazelton.

Clair Ricketts, chairman, said the group will make plans for the county's part in a statewide "blitz" precinct registration campaign. The campaign will be held Sept. 30.

He said a get-acquainted program to be sponsored by the Jerome County Republican Women's Club will be at 2 p.m. Friday in Wood Cafe.

A full slate of Republican candidates will be present, he said. All interested persons are urged to attend and meet the candidates.

Labor's octane rating unbalanced, Huntley says

SUN VALLEY — The dinner pail can not be filled at the expense of other segments of the economy, according to former television commentator, Chet Huntley.

Huntley, chairman of the board of Big Sky Montana, Inc., spoke Tuesday at the concluding luncheon of the Northwest Electric Light and Power Association convention at Sun Valley.

"The octane rating in favor of organized labor is out of balance," Huntley said.

Labor is instrumental in elections, it has one of the largest lobbies in Washington, D. C., as well as in the state capitals and is the only part of the economy that is comparatively free from restraints, he said.

In the late 1960s, Huntley said, labor "chose" to break through the wage-price guidelines. In consequence, he said he laid the blame for the country's current inflationary ills "at the door of labor."

Terming himself "not anti-labor, but certainly anti-some labor leadership," he said that profits are rising once again to the point where a showdown with labor is possible.

Speaking about Nixon's wage and price freeze, Huntley said that it constituted the first time the federal government took such a step in a non-emergency.

However, Huntley said "The free economy was not all that free but it will never be free again."

All controls have been rescinded, precedents exist that the government can do it again, he said.

On the subject of the election, the former commentator said that polls indicated that Nixon has a two to one lead.

"If the landslide develops, I believe Nixon will possess the opportunity" afforded few presidents "to bring this nation back on course," Huntley said.

He said that Nixon has "performed a kind of modern day miracle in welding his party together," but Jan. 20, 1973, will decide whether Nixon "will lead rather than control the country," Huntley said.

On the race issue Huntley said

"We have done more to purge racism than any other country in the world."

He cautioned "to wipe the slate clean" instead of following the conviction that the white world owes the black people some form of "retroactive compensation to right the 300-year-old wrong."

Wendell okays housing option

WENDELL — Wendell Housing Authority and Housing Association members voted Tuesday their approval of an option purchase for a low cost senior citizen housing site.

Farmers Home Administration approval was given at the meeting by Willard Stevenson, FHA state administrator, and Dell Taylor, local administrator.

The 60-day option papers held by the Wendell Housing Association were signed Wednesday. The site, behind Leeper Mortuary, will be appraised by the FHA.

The Wendell Housing Authority is the governing body for the project, and the housing association is the party to whom the FHA loan will be made. The same directors will serve on both boards.

At the Tuesday night meeting Clyde Peterson and Charles Freeman were elected to three-year terms as chairmen. Phillip Becker was elected director for a two-year term, and Charles Miller, director for one year.

Larry Peterson, secretary-treasurer, resigned, and Charles Iretson was elected to that position for a two-year term.

The senior citizen low cost housing project was originally to be constructed on city property, according to director Clyde Peterson. When the city did not accept appraised values of the proposed site, the Wendell Housing Authority decided to look for a new site, he said.

Peterson said construction of the housing project could begin in 30 days. The rising cost of construction is not too great. Otherwise, it will be necessary to revise the loan, he said.

Now bids are currently being prepared by Volco Inc., the original contractor selected for the housing project.

Multiple use urged for Timmerman Hill BLM unit

By MELBA THORNE
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — Multiple-use was recommended for the Timmerman Hills Bureau of Land Management planning unit during a public meeting Wednesday night at the Lincoln County Courthouse.

O'Dell Frandsen, manager of the Shoshone district BLM, said the meeting was called specifically to plan future use of the unit by securing opinions from the general public.

Livestock grazing was listed as the major business use of the land, with the outstanding game habitat and recreation facilities also listed as valuable assets.

Larry Bardsley, Timmerman Hill BLM manager, and his assistant Louis Logosz, showed maps of the topography and reported on current uses.

Robert Authenrieth, Jerome, of the Idaho Fish and Game Department, reported data from recent game use survey.

A total of 115,500 acres of federal land is involved, 26 miles long and 15 miles wide. There are six grazing allotments; five cattle allotments to accommodate a 2,400 cattle graze, and one large sheep allotment covering 45,000 acres to accommodate 22,000 sheep.

Only one graze road crosses the area, which also includes railroad utility lines, sanitary landfill, snowmobile, and motorcycle trails and hunting and fishing areas. These assets "bring this section to light as one of the biggest and potentially greatest spots in the state," Logosz said.

Excessive use of the Richfield Canal road by fishermen was noted as a big upkeep problem to the Big Wood Canal Co., with a possible solution being a cooperative upkeep program between the canal company, the BLM and the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

In the Pico Hills, deer range runs three miles in depth, eight to ten miles long and handles 300-900 deer each winter. There are 30-50 head of antelope in this area also.

Due to sage grouse mating and nesting in the Pico Hills, too much use of roads and trails by motorcycles and snowmobiles might be a problem in the future.

However, under average weather conditions and poor roads at this time, the vehicle use is not considered a problem now, according to landowners.

There are about 800 cocks and 2,500 hens counted during the spring in this mating area. During the hunting season this fall, Authenrieth said, the fish and game count showed 1,000-1,500 bird kill.

In a specific economic survey taken, the impact on this area would be $62,097. This figure comes from the survey in which hunters were asked how far they traveled, computed at 12 cents per mile, cost of arms, ammunition, meals and groceries. The bird harvest averaged 1.2 birds per hunter in this section.

A previously unmentioned source of wealth in the area was noted by an old-timer who said there are nine varieties of precious stones in rich deposits from the Richfield Canal north to U.S. 93 alternate, and in the old Indian campgrounds in the Pico Hills.

Rockhounds present at the meeting requested that the area not be closed to the public or developed to cover up these deposits.

Authenrieth said the sage grouse in this area are quite unique in that they do not migrate more than six to seven miles in a whole year. The hens are choosing a large sagebrush with limbs about eight inches from the ground as protection.

The grouse are using a lot of sagebrush in the winter for food, Authenrieth said.

Bardsley said the inventory of use and potential, along with public recommendations, will now be considered in detail for future planning use by the Bureau of Land Management.

Second hung jury on Burley trial

BURLEY — For the second time a hung jury was declared in a trial of Danny Lewis of Declo, charged with grand larceny, cattle rustling.

Information was submitted to the jury at 3:45 p.m. following instructions by District Judge Sherman Bellwood. The deadlock was announced at 6 p.m. Wednesday.

Witnesses called Wednesday for the prosecution were Frank Rasmussen, Burley; Arden Wicklo, Albion, and Cassia County Sheriff Ray Mitchell.

Defense witnesses testifying Wednesday were Wickel and Wayne Lewis, Jr., Declo, father of the defendant. The trial started Tuesday.

Jurors were Nancy Wright, Richard White, Marjorie Bradshaw, Carl Parks, Delmar Hobbs, Bill Tonger, Rapne

Oman, Doyle Warnock, Juanita Cox, Alta Gee, Duane Hansen and Barbara Mabey.

A previous trial for Lewis on the same charge last April in the Fifth Judicial District Court at Burley also ended in a hung jury. A new trial will be set as soon as there is an opening in the court calendar.

Lewis was charged after a two-car accident Sept. 6, 1971, on the Albion Hill, in which Randy Tremayne and DeWayne Bailey, both Albion, and drivers of the two cars, were killed. Lewis was a passenger in the Bailey car.

A stolen calf belonging to Frank Rasmussen was found in the Bailey vehicle.

Prosecutor for the case was Gordon Nielson. Dean Klopfer was the attorney for Lewis.

Richfield slates homecoming Friday

RICHFIELD — Homecoming activities are slated for Friday at Richfield High School.

Action gets underway at 1 p.m. with a parade down Main Street, followed by the traditional football game at 2 p.m.

The homecoming queen will be crowned during halftime of the game which will be a contest between the Richfield Tigers and Dietrich Blue Devils.

Vying for the queen title will be Shelley Sorenson and Carrie English, both freshmen; Debbie Robinson and Mickie English, sophomores; Cheryl Hiatt and Debbi Uribe, juniors; Brenda Johnson and Joanne Riley, seniors.

An alumni tea will follow the game at the school cafeteria. All alumni and friends are invited.

The climax of the festivities will be the homecoming dance in the gymnasium beginning at 9 p.m. Live music for the dance will be by the "Valley Boys" from Eden.

Health board given budget

Board members voted to invite the budget committee, comprised of the county commission chairmen from the eight counties, to attend the Oct. 25 meeting. At that time they will discuss a suitable basis for raising county revenue for 1973.

Twin Falls County commissioners who took the assessment requirements to the supreme court last year and lost still object to such a high assessment against the heavily populated counties.

He said he feels the $2.25 figure, which would mean a health budget of $94,066 in Twin Falls County, is out of line. This year the county's share is $69,400 including the $18,400 paid under order of the supreme court.

In 1971 the county paid $34,118. Chancy said this is almost triple in a three year period if the $2.25 per capita assessment is ordered.

Other counties and their shares at the various assessments include Blaine, $12,935 at $2.25; $11,498 at $2 and $9,543 at $1.66; Camas, $1,638, $1,456 and $1,298, in the same order; Cassia, $39,268, $34,034 and $28,248; Gooding, $19,451, $17,279, and $14,351.

Jerome, $23,069, $20,506 and $17,020; Lincoln, $6,878, $5,114 and $5,075; Minidoka, $35,595, $31,462 and $26,112.

Total amounts contributed by all counties would be $179,958 at the $1.66 per rate; $231,720 at the $2.25 and $205,953 at the $2 per capita.

Dr. Carte said under the proposed $2.25 per capita budget the district would have $7,215 for board expenses; $47,307 for administration including $35,827 for salaries; $176,668 for physical health of which $122,162 would go for salaries; $119,942 for environmental services; $5,542 for unmatched venereal disease clinic service; $30,480, family planning, $5,392 for the emergency employment, and $30,000 for the building fund, for a grand total of $419,546.

Clark told the board he had hoped for a resolution or recommendation from the Tuesday night county commission's district meeting in Jerome, but instead the commissioners named a committee of himself, Chancy and Ben Glauner, Minidoka County, to study the proposed rate of assessments for public health and make a recommendation to district members.

Rice undecided

GOODING — Leo Rice, former Gooding mayor, told the Times-News today he is still undecided whether to run for state representative in Legislative District 23.

Rice said "I don't know. Some people are trying to get me to run."

When asked who some people were, he said "several people from Jerome and Gooding and all over, but I haven't made up my mind yet."

Gooding restores fire engine

By PEGGY CHU
Times-News writer

GOODING — "Gooding is one of the few cities in the country that still has its original fire-fighting equipment."

George Anderson, Gooding fire chief, made the comment as he polished the Model T fire truck which has taken 18 months of 1,500-1,600 hours work to restore.

The truck was purchased in September of 1922 from the Watrous Co. of St. Paul, Minn.

According to newspaper accounts at the time, the truck was the first of its kind in Idaho and so "liberal terms" were allowed the city. The truck cost $3,530 and the city had five years in which to pay.

The company sent a factory representative to Gooding to assemble the apparatus and demonstrate the truck to the council and representatives of other cities who came to Gooding to witness it.

The truck came equipped with two chemical tanks, chemical hose, ladders and lanterns. A solid brass pump was removed from the fire engine during World War II and sold for scrap.

Anderson said the fire department cannot locate another pump like it, and even if one was found the cost would be prohibitive.

The city discontinued the use of the truck sometime in the mid '40s and it was put in storage.

According to Anderson the old fire engine was the most efficient vehicle built for its time.

The Gooding Fire Department was started in 1908 with 13 volunteer firemen. There is one known living member of the original crew, Judge Doran Sutphen, Gooding.

At the time the department was organized the city fire equipment consisted of a man-drawn hose reel which was used from 1908 to 1922. The department still has the reel, which has been restored, and two fire hats from 1908.

Restoration of the fire truck included removal of all the old paint and repainting, rebuilding the engine and transmission, installing a new bed and floor boards, purchasing new tires and reupholstering.

The old seat was originally covered in cloth-backed leather and has been replaced with black simulated leather.

The restoration cost the city $600. Anderson said the Model T fire engine will be used for parades and exhibited. If a Gooding County Historical Society building is constructed within the city the fire department will loan the engine for display, he said.

The present Gooding Fire Department of 15 men owns three trucks, both city and rural. The last fire truck was purchased in 1968 at a cost of $22,400 without the fire hose.

"The old truck runs beautifully and would do a good job fighting fires today, if you discounted the fact that its top speed was only 25 m.p.h.," the fire chief said.

How politicians maintain stamina on road

BOISE (UPI) — Politicians and government officials who take long road trips have secrets on how to keep sustained power and stamina. Some believe in vitamin pills and others profess that a short nap in the afternoon will do the trick.

But Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus believes in a large breakfast.

His first meal of the day consists of sausage, two eggs, hash brown potatoes, milk and a cup of coffee. When the governor is on the road he makes sure he eats a big breakfast because many times there is no stop for lunch.

"When you're on the road, lunch is often missed," Andrus' press secretary John Hough says. But he added that if lunch is on the schedule Andrus will eat a hot beef sandwich cold style and a "big glass of milk."

"I've never met a man with more endurance," Hough said of Andrus. "He always looks fresh even late at night after a long day."

Stamina is one of the factors that Andrus' staff takes into consideration when they are making a "tight schedule" for the governor.

The past five days were a good example of what Hough calls an "Above average" schedule for Andrus.

Hough said it took about 25 hours to prepare the schedule for the governor.

Last Saturday's schedule went like this:

7:30 — Leave Boise airport via light plane for Idaho Falls.

9:30 — Arrive Idaho Falls airport — ground transportation provided.

10 — Child Development Center — Speech to the Idaho TORCH organization.

11:20 — Leave Idaho Falls for Pocatello airport in light plane.

12 — Luncheon at the Pocatello airport with dignitaries preceding the airport facility dedication.

2 — Airport dedication — Remarks needed during the ceremony. Governor briefed on background material en route for informal comments.

4 — Television taping — one-half hour.

6:30 — Social hour which precedes the fundraising dinner. 7 — Fund raising dinner for 10 counties — main speaker.

Sunday the governor was up at 7:15 a.m. to leave Idaho Falls for Hailey, and, following a short speech before the Idaho Retailers group and a private meeting, Andrus was off for Orofino in a light plane and was met at the Orofino airport by his wife, Carol.

On Tuesday, the governor was back in Boise for an appearance before the Idaho Board of Examiners and an Indian ceremony at the statehouse, and then was on the road again for McCall. He could not fly because of bad weather. He was scheduled for a luncheon with the Masons at Shore Lodge.

Tuesday afternoon he took off by plane to St. Anthony where ground transportation was provided to drive him to Yellowstone National Park for a ceremony attended by Pat Nixon.

That afternoon the governor attended a barbecue and then back to the Old Faithful Inn.

Wednesday, the governor was on a series of panels which began at 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. He left Yellowstone following a speech and arrived in Idaho Falls in time for a 2 p.m. appearance at the Senior Citizens Center.

The governor left Idaho Falls for Boise at 5 p.m.

Hough said when the schedule is being made up for an extended trip the staff has to take into consideration the governor's workload when he returns to the statehouse. By the way the governor will be off again Saturday for Ricks College Homecoming parade in Rexburg.

Mice population factor isolated

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Scientists have isolated a mystery chemical that triggers population explosions in lemmings and meadow mice.

Prof. Norman C. Negus of the University of Utah said that further research may find a way to control population growth in other mammals, including humans.

He said in an interview Tuesday that the unidentified chemical, found in green plants, has only recently been extracted by a crude process of using acetone and ether. That leaves many impurities in the final product.

As yet without a name, the chemical works by suppressing a second substance, melatonin, which ordinarily inhibits reproduction. The effect is to cancel the end of the breeding season normally caused by the shorter days of the winter season in a number of mammal species.

"The only thing we've found out about it yet is that it's not an estrogenic substance," Negus said. He said the unidentified chemical shows results in as short a time as 24 hours, as opposed to the week to 10 days needed for estrogens to step up reproduction rates.

Estrogens stimulate reproduction through the female gonads, while the mystery substance goes through the pineal gland.

"If we can identify additional chemicals which affect the pineal gland it may become simple to regulate fertility in both male and female mammals," he said. "Without altering sex drive, we could either stimulate or shut down reproduction for any length of time."

No experiments have yet been done on humans.

The mystery chemical only appears in plants that have been trimmed or dropped so they never reach the flowering stage, Negus said.

"This is something that has evolved," he said. "It's a mechanism by which they (the mice) can gauge the favorableness of food environments."

"When they respond to the signals which apparently come from plants, their tendency is to overpopulate. Once they overpopulate they tend to move into crop areas. When they multiply near wheat, they'll move in and eat it."

Lincoln ends Resigns post hopper plan

SHOSHONE — The 1972 Lincoln County Grasshopper control program is being closed at an overall cost of 60 cents per acre, Ivan C. Hopkins, County Extension Agent said today.

Lincoln County Commissioners met in a special session Monday evening with farmers who had questions concerning the program and had expressed some dissatisfaction with the way it had been handled.

About 100 farmers participated in the program. Only a small per cent of these met at the meeting.

Hopkins said a total 425,000 acres had been sprayed in the county at a total cost $10,500.80. Included in this was 356,231 acres of federal land; 10,580 private crop land; 10,329 state land and 29,011 private rangeland.

Originally the anticipated cost was set at 60 cents per acre for irrigated land, 30 cents per acre for dry land. Hopkins said the 60 cents per acre settlement was allowed in as much as there was about one third less cost on each. The U.S. Department of Agriculture administered for the program though the actual spraying was through a private contractor.

It was a cooperative venture federal, state and private land owners with Lincoln County government coordinating the program.

These farmers who met Monday night had withheld payment for their share of the spraying costs but after an explanation of the program the binding contract, and position of Lincoln County in the matter, they agreed to make payment, Hopkins said.

Resigns post

BOISE (UPI) — Robert L. Mercer, Shelley, has resigned as vice chairman of the Idaho Potato Commission effective Oct. 1 to take an out of state executive post.

Mercer, vice chairman since July, is moving to Denver where he will become administrative secretary for the new National Potato Promotion Board.

Harvest slowed by wet weather

BOISE (UPI) — Wet weather slowed grain, bean and hay harvesting in Idaho last week, a federal crop report said today.

Many potato farmers are spraying and beating potato vines in preparation for harvest because there have been no killing frosts to date, the report said.

"Potato digging is in the early stages in east Idaho and about 20 per cent complete in the southwest," the report said.

Onion harvesting is about half finished and conditions have been nearly ideal except for a period early last week.

Cutting silage corn is going ahead in southern Idaho. Alfalfa seed combining has been slow and about 20 per cent of the crop is now threshed.

Apple harvesting is gaining momentum in the southwestern area where nearly 10 per cent of the crop has been picked.

Agriculture marketing team urges chopping down outdated fruit trees

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A special Agriculture Department marketing team has proposed a program of government subsidies to help boost apple prices by paying farmers to chop down trees of "outdated" varieties and trees which produce low-quality fruit.

The team also has proposed legislation under which growers could try to improve prices by restricting sales of low-grade and small-size apples.

Both proposals were included in an "Apple Marketing Report" prepared by the team appointed early this year by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and publicly unveiled by the Agriculture Department Tuesday in a meeting with apple industry officials.

Butz praised the report as offering a starting point for needed changes in the industry, which has complained of poor returns in recent years. But he cautiously avoided immediate endorsement of any of the specific proposals listed by the marketing team.

The agriculture secretary said what's needed now is a decision on which of the many proposals to adopt. He said he was calling for suggestions from his own aides and from all segments of the apple industry and from consumers, as well.

"Such feedback will be very important in determining the actions that we will take," Butz said.

Among the recommendations listed in the detailed, 108-page report were:

— Consideration of a "tree removal" program under which growers would bid for government payments on cutting down "outdated varieties, old standard trees, producing poor quality fruit and trees serving only as hosts for disease and insects."

Passage of legislation under which all apple producing areas would be eligible to adopt federal marketing orders which are now allowed only in some of the nation's producing regions.

The team recommended that apple industry leaders consider using such orders to set minimum grade, size and quality rules for apples in both the fresh and processing markets, to develop promotion programs and to set up mandatory inspection for both fresh and processed apples.

— Adoption of legislation under which the government would move more rapidly and more effectively to counter-act both actual damage from low-priced apple imports and the threat of potential damage.

— Adoption of legislation in 13 states to reduce "confusion in trading" by eliminating state grades for apples.

Other priority recommendations included proposals to change federal grade standards in order to improve the quality of apples on retail counters and suggestions for research to produce better packaging methods.

CSI plays ISU in baseball opener

College of Southern Idaho's Golden Eagles will kickoff their fall baseball season by entertaining the Idaho State Bengals in a doubleheader at 2 p.m. Friday at Jaycee Park.

Coach Bob Banfield said the Eagles will play 13 games this fall, giving area collegiate coaches a good idea of what to plan on for the spring.

The remainder of the schedule includes Sept. 26, CSI at Pocatello (doubleheader); Sept. 29, Boise State at CSI (doubleheader, 2 p.m.); Sept. 30, Utah Tech at CSI (tripleheader, noon); Oct. 3, CSI at Boise State (doubleheader, 2 p.m.); and Oct. 7, CSI at Treasure Valley

(doubleheader, 2 p.m.). Coach Banfield, who took the Eagles to the national finals last spring, believes this team is considerably better. "We've improved our pitching a lot with Rubino, Estes, Kevin Nelson and Dennis Warburton to go along with returners Curt Barron and Ralph Bollinger," he said. "Our defense will be better and our speed in the outfield should make that a lot better. Our only real problem may be at catcher where Canan is our only experienced man. He'll probably be backed by Mark Hanchey or Mike Tremayne although both are much more experienced as infielders."

NBA upholds Bucks' draft of Erving

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The National Basketball Association Board of Governors upheld Commissioner Walter Kennedy Wednesday and voted rights to controversial star Julius Erving belong to the Milwaukee Bucks.

Erving signed with the American Basketball Association Virginia Squires before his college class graduated, a move frowned upon by the NBA. Later, he jumped leagues and was signed by the Atlanta Hawks, but Milwaukee held draft rights to him.

The Bucks, exercising their rights under a rarely-used portion of the NBA constitution, brought charges against the Hawks before the Board of Governors, which ruled in Milwaukee's favor. It takes at least a vote of 12 members for approval and Kennedy indicated Milwaukee received "at least that many although the vote was not unanimous."

Kennedy said he told the Hawks at the time they signed Erving that it was his feeling they were in error.

Mauch and Expos rail at Cardenal

CHICAGO (UPI) — Cooler heads apparently prevented a confrontation Wednesday when Mahager Gene Mauch and most of his Montreal Expos team marched to the Chicago clubhouse following the game between the Expos and the Cubs.

Mauch and his players were upset about something Jose Cardenal of the Cubs either said or did. Cardenal, who has complained about knockdown pitches from the Expos, was brushed back once Wednesday, then tipped his cap toward the Montreal dugout after scoring a run.

The Cubs won the game, 6-2, behind Milt Pappas, who picked up his 200th major league victory.

"I thought he (Mauch) was coming here to congratulate Pappas," said Manager Whitey Lockman of the Cubs, who could not figure out why the Expos were headed to the Chicago clubhouse, since Montreal's clubhouse was in the opposite direction.

"They've been throwing at me for four years," claimed Cardenal.

Cardenal insisted he did not say anything to provoke Mauch, and Mauch refused to shed any light on the incident.

"I won't tell you anything about it," Mauch told writers afterward and he kept his word. "It's my business."

When the writers suggested they would like to hear both sides of the story, Mauch said, "I know how I feel and that's all I care about."

"I don't care if you get any side at all," Mauch said. "It's not for you guys, it's for me."

T.F. men cop titles in Wyoming

Stan and Don Williams, both Twin Falls, took first places over the weekend in Wyoming's state championship TT motorcycle races.

Stan Williams took first in the 125cc class and third in the sweepstakes while Don Williams won the open class and was third in the sweeps. Bill Rudolph, Paul, was third in the 125 expert class and Marty Miller, Jerome, was second in the 100 and third in the 250cc classes.

The men are expected to participate in the Wheeler Motorcycle Club of Jerome's TT scrambles Sunday at the track located four miles east and five north of Jerome.

Eight events will be held with racing all afternoon. Time trials are set for 11 a.m. with racing to start at 12:30 p.m. The events include 80cc mini-cycle, 80-100 cc mini-cycle (age limit 12 years), powder puff, sweepstakes, 100cc, 125 cc, 250 cc and open class.

Delta Offers Both

Put in a new Delco and never put in a washer again.

The new Delco faucet by Delta does away with the biggest single trouble maker, the faucet washer. The revolutionary Delco rotating cylinder valve works without washers. It shears water off instead of squeezing it off. And that means no more washers to crush, tear or replace. So say goodbye to old washer headaches.

Delco by Delta Faucet is here.

Rae-led USC tests Illinois

By GARY KALE

UPI SPORTS WRITER

Top-ranked Southern California has a Rue of sunshine that could bring an early Rose bloom to the post-season football classic.

Mike Rae, impressive as the nation's No. 3 man in total offense, guided the Trojans to victories over Arkansas and Oregon State and should easily make Illinois his third victim Saturday. Rae has gained 588 yards in two games, including 517 by passing.

Southern Cal has played only one Pacific Eight Conference game in its bid to secure a Rose Bowl berth, but that contest was a 51-6 demolishing of Oregon St.

No. 2 Oklahoma, only four points back of the Trojans in this week's ratings, scored 49 points in its opening game win over Utah State as the Sooners demonstrated a powerful ground game that picked up 412 yards. The running of Greg Pruitt and the development of freshman Kerry Jackson into an outstanding quarterback should take care of Oregon this weekend.

Third-ranked Colorado, again picked to battle Oklahoma and Nebraska for the Big Eight Conference title, takes on a non-league opponent for the third straight week in Saturday's confrontation with Minnesota. The Buffaloes routed Cincinnati last week as Charlie Davis and Joe Duenas each scored two touchdowns.

BE SURE TO COME IN TODAY AND SEE THE NUMBER 1 LINE OF AUTOMOBILES AND TRUCKS FOR 1973

Showing Will Run Thru The Rest Of This Week!

HIGHMID-LEVEL The all-new Chevrolet Monte Carlo is among the most changed of all seven Chevrolet car lines in 1973. Featuring beautifully sculptured side and rear quarter metal panels and an optional standard of open top vinyl roof the Monte Carlo is a styling classic. Many months of top-level design and precision engineering work have given the Monte Carlo handling and roadability said to equal or surpass that of Europe's most expensive personal touring car.

NEW CHEVROLET NAME PLATE A distinctive European flavor both in styling and handling and roadability, highlights the new Chevrolet Laguna which is available in two and four door pillar hardtop models and four door station wagon models. Upgrade into part resistant front bumper "grille" with single unit power beam lamps are highlights of the Laguna. There is more interior roomness front and rear, and 2.5 cubic feet of additional luggage space.

1973 CHEVROLET FLEETSIDE CHEVYENNE SUPER PICKUP WITH DUAL REAR WHEELS. Completely restyled and redesigned, the 1973 Chevrolet pickup has special features for truck camper use. A new dual rear wheel option for one ton models greatly improves stability, load capacity and all road traction. Other improvements include high style interiors, powered cab ventilation, new rear leaf spring suspension, improved cooling, a higher powered optional engine and outside fuel tank.

1973 CHEVROLET FLEETSIDE CHEVYENNE SUPER PICKUP - Completely restyled and with extensive chassis redesign, the 1973 Chevrolet pickup line features many improvements in appearance, durability, and comfort for both commercial and personal transportation. Highlights are curved side windows, powered cab ventilation, new leaf spring rear suspension, increased cooling capacity, a larger available engine, outside fuel tank, easier servicing, and highly styled interiors.
