

Robbery suspect wounded

By MIKE ROBERTSON
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man was shot early today by Twin Falls police responding to a report of an armed robbery at Shelby's Market.

The man was identified by police as John Stanley Daley, 29. He was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital for surgical treatment of wounds in the abdomen and left arm. He was reported in critical condition late this morning.

Police Chief Frank Barnett said Daley was shot by officers outside of the store after they answered the robbery call at 2:47 a.m.

Barnett said Daley did not return the officers' fire. The money taken in the incident and a fully loaded weapon were recovered. The amount of money recovered was not released.

Daley was wielding a .22 caliber semi-automatic pistol when he confronted police, Barnett said.

Garn Kunder, night manager at Shelby's, related the alleged robbery to a KEEP radio newsman who was on the scene. "At 10 minutes to 3 a.m. a guy came in with a pillow case over his head and some eyeblack in it and a .22 pistol in his hand," Kunder said.

Kunder said the man stopped the maintenance man, pointed the gun at him and told him to have the manager come up front. The gunman said he would give him 10 seconds and then he would shoot him.

"So he called me up, he told me to get up front in a hurry so I came up front and saw him there and walked up to him and asked him what I could do for him."

"He told me he wanted the money and fast so he had me open the safe, but there was no money in the safe at night because we have it all taken out," Kunder said. "So I told him there was no money."

"He said he wanted the money out of the tills, so I proceeded to unlock all of the tills," Kunder said and the maintenance man then took all of the money out of the tills and put it in a sack for the robber. "After the sack was filled up he asked me if I had a key to the front door, and I said Yes I did, so he asked me as soon as he got out the front door to lock the door right behind him."

"Before Kunder and the armed man were going out the front door, Irvin Hildreth called the police. He was able to do this because the man did not know Hildreth was in the store. Hildreth is a store employee.

"As soon as he walked out the door, he pointed his gun at them — they told him to stop and to drop his gun," Kunder said.

"He didn't do it so I moved all the people back to the back of the store so if there was any shooting," he said.

In the store at the time of the incident were a shopper, Martell Garcia, employee Lester Knutson, Randy Roth, Ivan Hildreth and Ronald Johnson, in addition to Kunder and Irvin Hildreth.

Kunder instructed them to get back at least in the aisles if there was any shooting.

After the shooting the night manager went out and saw Daley on the ground.

"He must have been an amateur because he never asked for who else was in the store," Kunder said.

"It scared us because he was very unstable, and we didn't know if he would shoot us or not. We just tried to agree with everything he said and tried not to make him mad in any way," Kunder said.

In the shooting, three shots struck Daley. Several hit the Garcia car.

One other shot went south across Addison Avenue. East into a residence there. The bullet went through the front and screen door, through a wall inside the house and finally came to rest on the floor after hitting a metal cabinet.

The residents, who preferred to remain unidentified, said the bullet could have struck them if it had been struck about 2½ feet west of where it hit.

Shot hits home

A SHOT FIRED as Twin Falls police intercepted a robbery suspect fleeing Shelby's Market on Addison Avenue East left this bullet hole in a door of a nearby home. The slug went through the door, through an inside wall, and hit a metal cabinet before dropping to the floor.

Nixon asks monetary reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon called today for a thorough going reform of the world monetary system "which he said was needed to permit free and open world trade in an era of international peace."

In a prepared speech to an annual meeting of top free world bankers and financiers, Nixon said the United States would drive a hard but fair bargain in negotiating new money alignments.

"There must be a thoroughgoing reform of the world monetary system, to clear the path for the health competition of the future," Nixon said.

"We must see monetary reform as one vital part of a total reform of international economic affairs, an encompassing trade and investment opportunity as well."

Nixon's speech was viewed as the keynote of the five-day conference of free world directors of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank aimed at patching up the post-World War II system of exchange rates of currencies of the world's non-Communist economic giants.

Nixon said the United States wanted to see that American workers and businessmen "have a fair chance to compete for their share of the expanding trade between nations."

"A generation ago, we deliberately set out to help our former enemies as well as our weakened allies so that they could gain the economic strength which would enable them to compete with us in world markets," he said.

Although Nixon pledged U.S. support for monetary reform, he made it plain the U.S. would not agree to international changes that would damage this nation's domestic economy.

"We can all agree that the health of the world economy and the stability of the international economic system rest largely on the successful management of domestic economies," he said.

Some international officials, including IMF managing director Pierre-Paul Schweitzer have suggested that the United States boost its domestic interest rates.

"First," he said, "our endeavor will be to negotiate on offensive weapons. In so doing we shall seek to expand the scope of strategic offensive weapons included in the limitations and to establish an equitable balance in the major delivery systems."

Rogers said the Soviet-proposed European security conference "if it is carefully and constructively prepared, could play a crucial role."

He disclosed that Washington is preparing alternative approaches for the forthcoming resumption of talks with the Soviet Union on Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT).

MV revenue share about $1.87 million

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley's share of revenue sharing funds expected to begin arriving in October will be about $1.87 million for this year.

The formula for computing approximate shares to local units of government was issued by House Minority Leader Gerald Ford in a letter forwarded by Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho.

Ford's letter gave a formula by which "it is possible for localities to ascertain the approximate amount they would have received."

Exact revenue sharing figures are still locked in a conference report. Its release is expected shortly.

Final approval of the conference report's revenue sharing formula is expected quickly by both House and Senate, followed by assured signature by President Nixon. Magic Valley breakdown, according to Ford's formula, is as follows:

County Government
Blaine: $65,645
Camas: $16,951
Cassia: $132,881
Gooding: $136,084
Jerome: $109,495
Lincoln: $82,667
Minidoka: $227,853
Twin Falls: $331,241

The total for all county government is $1.08 million, over 60 per cent of the total to the Valley.

Cities over 2,500
Burley: $82,880
Gooding: $30,277
Jerome: $81,549
Rupert: $42,064
Buhl: $55,893
Twin Falls: $321,241

The total for cities over 2,500 population was $613,904, compared with $175,553 for cities below 2,500 population. No figures were immediately available for the smaller cities.

Under the compromise revenue sharing plan, the cities and counties would receive two-thirds of the state allocation, while state government would receive one-third.

The figures listed above would be for the 1972 calendar year.

Totals would be expected to rise slightly in following years under the compromise agreement.

Minidoka accident kills New Mexican

By GEORGIA LAYTON

RUPERT — Herman Jones, 19, Gallup, N. M., was killed in a one car accident Saturday evening near Rupert.

Two other Gallup residents, Hayes Jones, 22, and Dennis Jones, 17, and Ray McCray, 16, Rupert, were injured in the wreck.

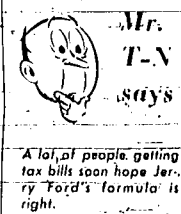

Hayes Jones was reported in good condition today at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and Dennis Jones was listed in good condition at Minidoka Memorial Hospital.

Minidoka County Sheriff's officers said a car driven south on the 400 East county road, went out of control and left the road, hitting an embankment and flipping in the air. The auto came to rest on its top across an irrigation ditch at 200 East, 1250 North of Rupert. The car was demolished.

McCray was admitted to Minidoka County Memorial Hospital for treatment of his injuries. He was released Sunday.

Sheriff Theo Johnson said Dan Poppleton of the Idaho Fish and Game Department assisted in the investigation.

Herman Jones' body was taken to Walk Mortuary, Rupert, where services are pending.

Anti-war vote may be close

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A close vote is expected this week when the Senate ballots for the third time on whether to end American involvement in Indochina.

In other Capitol Hill action during the next five days, the Senate will open debate on welfare reform and the House will decide whether to divert some highway trust funds into urban mass transit and vote on a large housing bill.

An effort will be made Tuesday to kill an amendment in a revised $15 billion foreign military aid bill which requires the withdrawal of American forces from Indochina within four months of enactment, if U.S. prisoners are released.

The Senate has approved that proposition twice this year by slim margins. The House refused to go along in one instance and the foreign military aid bill, to which the plan was attached, was killed by the Senate in the second instance.

A new arms aid bill, to which the latest anti-war attempt is attached, would authorize only two-thirds of the amount President Nixon sought.

Congressional leaders says the administration forces may have difficulty passing even the trimmed-down measure, with or without the end-of-war provision, because of strong feelings in Congress against selling or giving away U.S. weaponry abroad.

Ex-Camas probate judge dies at 88

FAIRFIELD — Howard B. (Muggs) Howland, 88, Fairfield, a former Elmore County commissioner and deputy sheriff, died Friday in the Blaine County Hospital.

In addition to being elected county commissioner and serving as deputy sheriff in Elmore County, he was also elected probate judge of Camas County in 1958. He held that position until January, 1971, when he retired.

He was born in 1883 in Illinois, moving to Idaho in 1905. He did surveying work for the Twin Falls Land and Irrigation Project until 1914, when he was employed by the U. S. Forest Service as a ranger.

Howland went into private business as a rancher in 1916, operating a ranch at Featherlyville until 1932.

He was married by Amy Bush May, who died in 1968. (Obituary, P. 2)

TOKYO (UPI) — Three U.S. pilots freed from prison in North Vietnam do not want to fly home with American military escorts, the Vietnam News Agency said today.

A VNA news dispatch from Hanoi mentioned in Tokyo said the pilots sent separate cables to President Nixon Saturday requesting that U.S. authorities refrain from interfering with their trip home.

The pilots were Maj. Edward K. Elias, of Valdosta, Ga., Navy Lt. (jg) Markham L. Gartley of Dandridge, Fla., and Navy Lt. (jg) Norris A. Charles.

UN support requested for air piracy treaty

By BRUCE W. MUNN
UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers proposed today that the United Nations sponsor a new air hijacking treaty to protect diplomats and government officials and suspend air service to countries which do not punish or extradite hijackers or saboteurs.

Rogers, in a policy speech to the General Assembly, said this and a treaty on the "export of international terrorism" should be opened for signature before the current assembly ends in December.

The U.S. foreign policy chief submitted draft texts of such treaties for consideration by the 132-nation world parliament.

Rogers pointed to steps toward diplomatic reconciliation between the United States and the Soviet Union, Washington and Peking, the two Germanys, the two Koreans and a four-power agreement on access to Berlin as positive developments in 1972.

He said a step toward a more secure and more open Europe would be creation of a more stable military balance in Central Europe through mutual and balanced force reductions.

"We are currently in consultation with our Allies and we believe that exploratory talks on this subject could begin within several months," he said.

Rogers said the Soviet-proposed European security conference "if it is carefully and constructively prepared, could play a crucial role."

He disclosed that Washington is preparing alternative approaches for the forthcoming resumption of talks with the Soviet Union on Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT).

Lavish China fete honors Japan leader

PEKING (UPI) — Chinese Premier Chou En-lai hosted a lavish banquet tonight for Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, and used the occasion to remind his guest that the "unfortunate" past has not been forgotten but should serve as an incentive for achieving better relations between Japan and China.

Tanaka responded by pledging to normalize Sino-Japanese relations to "repent" for Japan's hostile history in China during which the Japanese army sought before the outbreak of World War II to capture the Chinese mainland.

Tanaka arrived today for a historic five-day visit that marked the first time a Japanese leader had been in China since the end of that war.

A Japanese spokesman described Tanaka's first conversations with Chou as "surprisingly frank and very useful."

Tonight's banquet took place in the Great Hall of the People, where Chou and Tanaka had earlier held their first session of discussions.

Midway through the banquet, Chou rose and walked to a stage where he said, according to an unofficial translation, "The Chinese cannot forget the unfortunate history over the last 100 years dating back to 1894. Both nations should look for a betterment in relations on the basis of the principle of equality and reciprocity in maintaining good neighborly relations."

Tanaka sat silently during Chou's remarks, using a fan to cool himself. Each time Chou paused for his remarks to be translated, Tanaka clapped his hands politely.

"After finishing his greetings, Chou circulated through the huge hall, exchanging toasts with the various Japanese guests. About 20 minutes later, Tanaka rose to respond to Chou's remarks."

"I have to admit the unfortunate history of the past and repent for Japan's actions," he said, according to an unofficial translation. "I also must admit there existed an unusual state of relations between our two countries, but I must make these negotiations successful and establish normalization of relations between Japan and China."

Tanaka added, however, that he intended to normalize Sino-Japanese relations "keeping in mind Japan's friendly relations" with other countries.

Chou nodded while Tanaka was speaking and led the Chinese in applauding his remarks each time they were translated.

The banquet was held against the backdrop of the two flags of Japan and China. White-coated waiters and waitresses circulated, serving food and wine to the scores of guests.

Cutting horse winners listed

TWIN FALLS — Idaho cutting horse champions for 1972 were announced today by Norma Aslett, president of the Idaho Cutting Horse Association.

Finals for the 1972 season were held Saturday at Jackpot, Nev., with an awards banquet Saturday night featuring presentation of three trophy saddles.

In the open cutting competition the saddle and award to Dean Kunz, Montpelier, riding Knobby Reed. His season's winnings totaled $674.65.

Second place winner was Alfred Hahn, Blackfoot, riding Jake's Bay Doll, with a season earning of $572.63, and third place went to David Gentry, Twin Falls, for Gibb's Mail Man. The horse, a consistent winner in cutting events in the west, died Friday of a liver ailment, but had accumulated enough earnings during the season to retain third place without competing in the Saturday contests.

The trophy saddle was donated by the Bank of Idaho. In the $250 novice class, Jack Gentry, Twin Falls, won the trophy saddle by overtaking a sizable lead on the basis of Saturday events only.

Gentry was riding Nippy's Gipsy, taking first place over Max Roberts, Mountain Home, riding Triple Run. Gentry's total earnings were $455.54 and Roberts, $417.

Third place went to Dade Parke, Nampa, riding El Peptone. He earned $225.02. The trophy saddle for the winner was donated by Cactus Pete's, Jackpot, Nev.

For the first time this year a saddle was offered in the beginner novice division. The ICHA donated a trophy saddle to the best novice, beginner, Taylor Brown, Kimberly, riding Pokey's Whimpy.

Second place in the division was won by Sylvan Williamson, Boise, riding Yucca Marion, and third place went to Norma Aslett, Twin Falls, riding Beggar's Peaches.

All second place winners received silver belt buckles donated by Montpelier merchants and third place winners were awarded belt buckles donated by Circle A Construction Co., Twin Falls.

Judging the Saturday finals were Duane Green, Goshen, Utah, and Don Clark, Georgetown, both National Cutting Horse Association approved judges.

While the Idaho cutting horse season is completed after some 18 contests and shows throughout the summer, winners of the various divisions will compete in November in Las Vegas, Nev., for the world cutting horse championships.

Mrs. Aslett was presented a silver belt buckle by members of the Idaho association for her work during the year in directing the organization.

A total of 63 riders and horses have participated in events, with 28 finalists in the Saturday event.

Question...

In 1965 I applied for a VA widow's pension and it was denied because I was ineligible. Since I am now unable to work may I reapply?

Answer...

You could have been ineligible for many reasons. The fact you are disabled now does not in itself make you eligible. If you were married to your veteran husband one year before his death and if your annual income is less than $2300 you may currently be eligible for a Veterans widow's pension.

Should you require the regular aid and attendance of another person or if you are a patient in a nursing home the pension you are otherwise entitled to receive will be increased by $50 each month.

Telephone our office and we will mail you the 1971 edition of the Veterans Fact Sheet which will give you all of this information.

McGovern scores GOP 'favoritism'

BILLINGS, Mont. (UPI) — Campaigning through the cattle, corn and wheat country that spawned American populism, Sen. George S. McGovern pictured the Nixon administration today as the servant of big business "sharks" and "hogs" who have victimized farmers and consumers alike.

Speaking at the Western States Water and Power conference here and a fund-raising dinner in Sioux Falls, S.D., Sunday night, the Democratic Presidential candidate lashed out at Republican favoritism for special interests "in callous disregard for the people."

The McGovern campaign, after a week spent prospecting for votes in the populous Eastern and mid-western industrial states, swung through the northern tier of farm states en route to the richest electoral prize of them all—California.

He was to speak next in Tacoma and Seattle, Wash., and then to turn south to San Francisco and Los Angeles before returning east in mid-week.

But he took full advantage of stops in country where the "sons of the wild jackass"—the populace once fought the railroad and the banks—to paint Nixon and his lieutenants as the chore boys of privileged wealth.

"You have to go back to the times of Warren G. Harding to find an administration so beholden to and dominated by big business as the one we have today," McGovern said in his speech prepared for Billings, where he arrived Sunday night in sub-freezing weather with snow flurries in the air.

The administration, he said, "has stopped public power development in its tracks, handed one preferment after another to the oil and coal and power giants, allowed pollution to run wild, encouraged monopoly and ignored the consumer."

And, charging the administration has helped big grain exporters make excess profits in wheat sales to Russia, he said "now these grain speculators want to crawl through a tax loophole that would exempt 50 per cent of their windfall profits from any tax at all."

sharks, they're hogs."

McGovern's appeal to voters in the prairie and Big Sky state contrasted with his approach of the last week in the industrial centers of the east and mid-west. There, he stressed "jobs for all who want to work" and tried hard to build a political fire under the Republicans on the issues of corruption and continued Vietnam bombing.

Again insisting he was going to win, McGovern for the first time said his own public opinion poll showing an upsurge in his popularity. Campaign aides produced a new national reading taken in mid-September that showed McGovern was moving up on Nixon. According to McGovern pollster, Patrick Caddell, the South Dakota senator had gained 12 or 13 percentage points on the president in three weeks leading the score as of last week at Nixon 56; McGovern 34, undecided 10 per cent.

Furthermore, the McGovern people said, Caddell's deeper interviewing showed that the undecided voters leaning 2 to 1 toward their candidate,

BOISE (UPI) — The President of Associated Taxpayers of Idaho says his group is not associated with a pamphlet ranking performance of members of the state legislature.

Gem aide blasts apathy toward aid

BOISE (UPI) — The commissioner of the Department of Social and Rehabilitative Services has criticized the "social apathy" on the part of both state bureaucracy and private rehabilitative groups concerning handicapped children.

Dr. John Marks, speaking at a luncheon Saturday of the Idaho Association of Retarded Children, down-state government's barriers in a joint effort to help handicapped children.

results in program delays, fund reallocations and general ignorance on the part of all.

"The private sector becomes frustrated in the face of bureaucracy and it feels helpless to do anything. Meanwhile, the ones who suffer are the handicapped kids," he said, adding that 16 per cent of Idaho's school children have been determined as having learning deficiencies.

Watergate impact low, party leaders agree

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic campaign chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien and Republican National Chairman Robert J. Dole agree the break-in at Democratic headquarters has failed to excite public interest.

But O'Brien Sunday accused the Justice Department of trying to "whitewash" the incident June 17 in which five men were caught with electronic gear and photographic equipment in the offices of the Democratic National Committee in Washington's Watergate office complex.

Criminal indictments since have been returned by a grand jury against two former White House aides and the five men arrested at the scene, who included the salaried chief of security of President Nixon's re-election committee.

Dole said he believed an attempt by Democrats to make a campaign issue out of the incident "hasn't had much impact." O'Brien, who was Democratic national chairman at the time of the break-in and now is chairman of Sen. George S. McGovern's campaign, agreed.

"I am inclined to agree with you that it has not ignited a cry of outrage in the country, and I think there is a reason for that," O'Brien said. "I think the American people have assumed that perhaps this is a type of activity that political parties and politicians traditionally engage in, and it was a matter of being caught in this instance. This is extremely unfortunate."

Dole and O'Brien were interviewed on ABC's Issues and Answers.

O'Brien said he believed the Justice Department "has done all it could to keep a cover on this, to slow the process, the judicial process."

"The Justice Department has refused to cooperate in any way in this matter," O'Brien said. "It is absolutely an attempt to whitewash."

But Dole disputed this, pointing out there had been seven indictments. He said this was "because of the Justice Department's investigation." He said McGovern had continued to bring up the subject because he was short of other issues.

"He runs around, races around the country, posturizing and agonizing and moralizing about the Watergate, but he wants the American people to forget that he is the same Senator McGovern who admired Daniel Ellsberg for stealing top secret papers from the Pentagon and turning them over to the New York Times," Dole said.

Nixon plans pair of campaign talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon plans to campaign for re-election on both coasts this week in an acceleration of his political activity.

On Tuesday, Nixon goes to New York to dedicate the opening of the American Museum of Immigration at the base of the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor. The ceremony is part of a National Parks Centennial celebration.

Later in the day he plans to address a Republican "Victory '72" fund-raising dinner in Manhattan.

On Wednesday, the President flies to California for GOP fund-raising dinners in San Francisco and Los Angeles. He plans to return to the White House Thursday.

Nixon went to Camp David Saturday after a Texas campaign swing that included a gala dinner and overnight stay at the ranch of former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally.

Nixon's wife Pat, and his assistant, H.R. Haldeman, accompanied him to the western Maryland retreat. They returned to the White House late Sunday.

Private schools at limit

CALDWELL (UPI) — Administrators of the state's major private colleges attending a Caldwell meeting agree that economic conditions are no longer as favorable for operating small private schools as in the past few years.

Warren Knox, College of Idaho president, said, "We've reached the place where our enrollment is static and our tuition is about as high as it can get."

All of the colleges have preliminary enrollments below average increases of the last few years. At Ricks and Northwest Nazarene, figures are less than last year's totals. Ricks enrolled just less than 5,000 students and NNC enrolled about 1,000, down from 1971.

Russians And Americans

Christian Science Monitor
As we write this the details of new and broader commercial relations between Russia and the United States are being reported but not yet officially confirmed. The official version may or may not accord entirely with the first reports from Russian sources. But enough is visible to show the broad outlines of a new American "grand design," entirely different from the one toward which John F. Kennedy was pointing some 10 years ago.

We have all known for some time that President Nixon was presiding over a revolution in American foreign policy. Just how revolutionary begins to be apparent when one compares the old Kennedy "grand design" with the new Kissinger "grand design" which is now emerging.

The thrust of American foreign policy during the Kennedy era was toward a lasting partnership between the United States and Western Europe. Fragments of it survive in continued American lip service to the idea of a closer union of the West European countries. This was the preliminary in the Kennedy "grand design" to the ultimate and climactic formal partnership of the United States and Canada with a unified Western Europe.

But there is no such thrust in Nixon-Kissinger foreign policy. Western Europe is nearly forgotten. The emphasis is on broader and deeper relations with Russia. Mr. Kissinger has just come home from Moscow with a new package which seems to look forward toward a day when scores of great American corporations will have their own offices in Moscow, their visiting executives living in an American-built hotel, and American engineers aiding in an industrial and economic revival of Russia.

Stability was to be achieved in the Kennedy "grand design" by the weight and power and influence of the North Atlantic community. It would overshadow the Russian community. Russia would be controlled by the superior weight of the U. S.-West Europe partnership with which Japan would be closely associated. It was the ultimate projection of the thinking which Winston Churchill evolved during and after World War II.

Henry Kissinger doesn't think like that. The pattern he is working out would build peace not on a coalition superior to Russia, but rather on a working partnership between the United States and Russia. It harkens back for its philosophy to the earliest days of the Russian revolution when American engineers swarmed over Russia helping them to lay the foundations for the modernization of the country. Herbert Hoover was among them.

Mr. Nixon talks of building "a generation of peace." It is a goal which at one time might conceivably have been won through the North Atlantic partnership of the Kennedy plan. It is a goal which Mr. Kissinger is now seeking through an entirely different approach. The Pentagon is still doing its calculations on the expectation of a war with Russia some day, but the White House is living in a different world and age.

A good working relationship between Russia and the United States seemed quite possible in the early days of the Russian revolution. So long as Lenin lived and ruled in Moscow the relationship was complex, active, and potentially close. The great freeze began with Stalin. Henry Kissinger is trying to revive what might have been had Stalin never existed.

We watch with fascination and mixed feelings. To us, the old Anglo-American relationship was more natural and comfortable. There is little room for that in the Kissinger "grand design."

On Revenue Sharing

The Post Register — Senators Len B. Jordan and Frank Church of Idaho made two cogent points on the revenue sharing legislation now in the last stages of approval in Congress.

Both Senators Church and Jordan made the critical point that revenue sharing, under President Nixon's plan and that highly amended plan now cruising through a joint conference committee, does not really share. It only adds to the tax burden.

The Congressional prescription, which drew nays from the two Idaho Senators, does not provide any "new revenue" for the states. It makes it necessary for the government to go out and get new tax monies to pay for it. The object of revenue sharing originally was to allow the states and local governments to get into those vacuums which they had abdicated all too long and into which the federal government had expanded its prerogatives. In the vacating, it would certainly seem, the federal government could also give up some of its taxing and expenditures. But this is not the case. The federal government is merely allocating more money to the states and local governments without giving up anything and without adequate provision for even tapping new fund sources. It is not, as the senators say, fiscally responsible. The federal government is only adding to its prodigious debt.

"What revenue does the federal government have to share?" Senator Church asks, "when the deficit this year alone approaches $25 billion. I will vote for revenue sharing when it is fiscally responsible."

Senator Jordan also pointed out significantly that:

"You do not get the most efficient government by divorcing the responsibility of taxing from the privilege of spending."

He also pointed out standards of uniformity need to be devised so that states and local governments not only identify needs and specific blueprints of accomplishment but qualify for the funds by reason of demonstrating that their per capita tax on the local level matches a prescribed standard. For example, he points out in making the latter point, New Jersey has the second highest per capita income in the nation but no income tax. The state, he noted, should not come to the federal government until it exhausts its own resources. Adequate and uniform standards of qualification and adequate and uniform standards of project development must accompany revenue sharing.

But the key point on revenue sharing, and the point that will only give it genuine status, was made by Senator Jordan when he emphasized that a proportionate share of the federal income taxes should be diverted to the states before the money goes to Washington. The tax sharing assignment should be done at the states, at the time of federal income taxing, in other words.

In this manner, the senator stressed, the money is left at home. And, he added, we should not take money out of Idaho to come to the rescue of Newark, N.J.

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK

Agnew's New Style

ST. LOUIS — At one point during President Nixon's campaign strategy session last week with top political aides, Vice President Spiro Agnew suddenly intervened with a word of warning.

The "theory of attack" against political enemies, he said with ponderous Agnewian deliberation, was all well and good. If properly handled, it undoubtedly kept the enemy off balance and on guard.

But, he went on with a thin smile, he had been down that road, and he knew how dangerous it could be. His advice to those less experienced than he: go slow, and make certain you have all the facts, because otherwise "the attack might blow up in your face."

Agnew himself, the purveyor of Nixon administration hot politics over the past three years, is now putting that advice to surprising good use, ambulating around the U. S. A. with a brand of "cool" campaigning in keeping with his pledge to practice a "new style" of politics. The contrast between the new Agnew and the scorching rhetoric of the Agnew of two years ago was particularly vivid when the Vice President set off on his first speaking tour from Washington on Tuesday (Sept. 19).

Two years ago, in a planeside ceremony at National Airport marking his 1970 campaign takeoff, Agnew set the tone of the disastrous Republican campaign for Congress with a torrid attack on the "disruptive radical and militant minority, the pampered prodigies of the radical liberals in the U. S. Senate" — including one Republican, ex-Sen. Charles Goodell of New York.

But in his planeside interview at that same place last Tuesday, he ducked several openings to attack the Democrats. Instead, he termed himself a unifying influence within the Republican party and explained Sen. George McGovern's assaults on President Nixon as a natural result of McGovern's desperate showing in the polls.

That set the new tone, except for minor departures, for his opening three-day campaign swing through the Midwest. He even had a nice word for the press, the despised villain in that earlier era, telling reporters here on Wednesday: "I don't think you fellows are so bad."

The Sinister Qaddafi

WASHINGTON — Two berserks are at the bottom of what is transpiring in strife and terror-wracked Uganda.

The voice is black racist President Idi Amin's, but the hands are the hands of Libya's fanatical Colonel Muammar Qaddafi.

A secret Qaddafi pledge of $50 million to back Amin's dictatorial rule triggered the whole series of xenophobic and barbarous events that have horrified the world — the disappearance and slaying of thousands of Ugandans; the sudden termination of relations with Israel, with whom Amin had been on warm terms; the equally abrupt expulsion of some 50,000 Asians, many of them born in Uganda, and the dispossession of their homes, businesses and other property; the manic message to UN Secretary General Waldheim copies of which were sent to Prime Minister Golda Meir and Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat glorifying Hitler's slaughter of 6 million Jews.

Qaddafi had a direct voice in all of these frenetic aberrations. They are his way of waging war against his two ferocious hates — Israel and Britain.

The Libyan strongman is in constant and close touch with the black racist Uganda strongman. In addition to the promised $50 million subsidy, being paid Amin in monthly installments, he has also received a number of glittering personal gifts from Qaddafi, among them an expensive Italian automobile and some showy jewelry.

A fanatical Muslim, Qaddafi is unable to vent his venomous animosity of Israel because Libya is too distant and militarily too innocuous to strike directly at Israel. So he is viciously waging a jihad (holy war) by free-handed spending of Libya's $2.5 billion annual oil income to underwrite the Black September killers, the Al-Fatah and others who are enemies of Israel or willing to be for a price.

Against Britain, Qaddafi is warring vindictively in Libya and anywhere else he can get in a telling blow — such as the seizure of the British oil barriers. That still further infuriated Qaddafi, and led to his being a prime mover in Amin's sudden edict expelling the 50,000 Asians with British passports — imposing on Britain grievous economic, political and other hardships — and complications. Qaddafi has publicly gloated over this, and acclaimed Amin as a "mighty purifier of his country."

In waging these maniacal vendettas, Qaddafi is also bent on furthering his own consuming ambition to make himself top leader, of the Arabs and a dominating world figure. To intimidate, the bloodthirsty Libyan zealot rifles no bones that his dream is to out-Nasser Nasser.

With a $2.5 billion oil income and an unlimited supply of easy-to-buy accomplices, Qaddafi apparently believes he can realize his grandiose goal. Time will tell.

It is also running out on him and Amin.

Powerful forces in their countries are out to get both of them.

McGovern's Guidelines

WASHINGTON — Has George McGovern blown another one? Two days after he announced with considerable fanfare that he would abolish wage and price controls in favor of wage-profit "guidelines," George Gallup's indefatigable pollsters reported that 46 per cent of the public want stricter controls.

In short, while Main Street justifiably has concluded that President Nixon's fight against inflation has been a failure, McGovern in effect has decided they are too comprehensive. Talk about death wishes.

McGovern would replace Nixon's controls with a program that flopped in both the Kennedy and Johnson administrations. True, he would ask Congress for the power to reverse "flagrant violations," power Kennedy and Johnson didn't have, but anybody who has been around Washington longer than three days knows that's a lot of malarkey because the McGovern program also calls for a "review board" comprising representatives of labor, business and consumers.

That's 2 to 1 against the consumer, unless they've changed the arithmetic books. McGovern's argument is that it is necessary to concentrate on those wage and price increases "which contribute the most to inflation." His theory, fed him by Walter W. Heller, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under Kennedy, is that if wages won by big unions and prices set by big corporations are held down, the rest of the economy will have to follow suit.

Some theory. Big Labor and Big Business may be composed of gentle folk, always happiest among their flowers, but neither has ever set a record for altruism. They want theirs, always. Indeed, Lyndon Johnson abandoned the "jawboning" guidelines policy after several major wage settlements ignored the guidelines and the cost of living started going up.

Incidentally, Good George has left the impression that the guidelines were abandoned by Nixon, not Johnson. What he could have said in honesty was that during the 1968 campaign and for years afterward, Nixon spent much of his time assuring labor and business he would never impose controls. Nixon finally locked the barn door — with a lock any amateur could pick with a bent pin — after the horse was stolen.

That was McGovern's issue, and it was a good one because everybody but the merchants is wallowing about high prices. According to Gallup, "every indicator shows the economy to be the No. 1 domestic worry of the U. S. electorate," especially the high cost of living.

So McGovern offers a plan that is even weaker than the present controls system. Although prices continue to rise, at least the present Price Commission has come up with a fairly tough profit-margin rule which is putting some pressure on industry. Moreover, at this writing, McGovern has said nothing about asking Congress for stand-by authority to reimpose a freeze on prices and wages.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Doctor Says

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter, 11, is going through hell because of the shape of her nose. Children and grownups make remarks about it, and it is going to do too much harm to her. She is becoming withdrawn.

I believe plastic surgery could help her, but at what age? And whom do I consult? Her nose is very flat over the bridge.

Mrs. W. V.
Reconstructive or plastic surgery must be performed after growth has ceased. This means past puberty to around the late teens. Hence, age 11 is somewhat too early.

Whom to consult? Have your regular physician (or the county medical society) refer you to a qualified plastic surgeon. I would not put it off. Even though he may, and probably will, postpone the time of operation, he in all likelihood can help considerably in overcoming your daughter's psychological problems. After all, he's seen other patients with similar problems and seen them get over them.

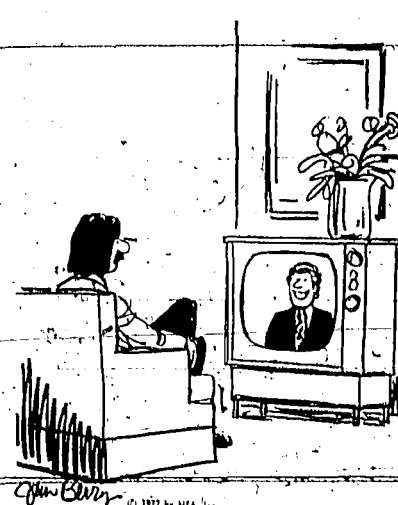

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How can you determine whether toys have lead in the paint? Is it possible that some wooden furniture has paint that contains lead, such as a baby's play pen? What's the wisest way to buy toys and furniture to avoid lead poisoning? — A. A.

For practical purposes, there's no need to worry about toys or furniture; the paints and varnishes don't need lead. The main danger of lead poisoning from paint is in older houses in which lead-based paint happened to be used indoors. Modern paint may be on top — but paint applied many years ago, and now covered by other coats, may contain lead. A small child chewing on the window ledges or whatever may get down to the older layers.

There is no reasonable way for you to test paint to see if it contains lead, but be suspicious of an old dwelling in which walls or woodwork have been covered with many layers of paint.

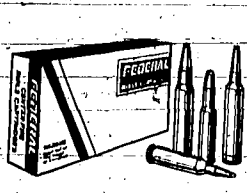

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am living in — and am interested in finding a doctor in a convenient location. I wonder if you could give me any assistance, either a list of names or an organization I could contact? — M. R. O.

Allies begin push

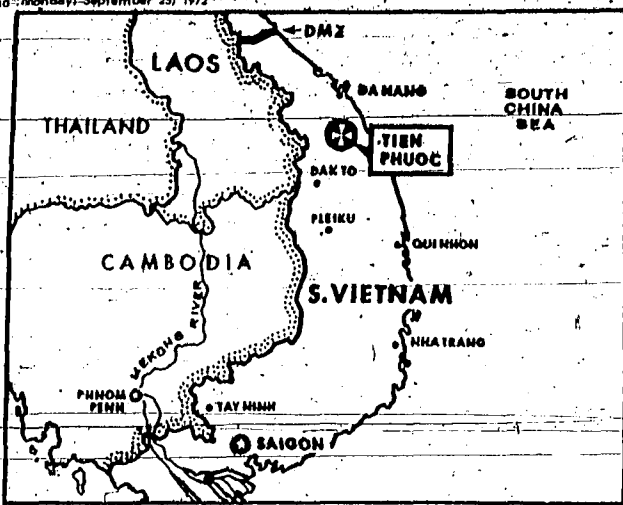

SAIGON (UPI)—Allied forces killed more than 150 Communists in central combat fighting and began a push to clear vital Highway 1 before the approaching rainy season cuts off key government outposts from resupply, field reports said today.

A U.S. Air Force C130 transport plane tried to parachute supplies today to one threatened outpost at Ba Tin, about 320 miles northeast of Saigon, but winds carried the cargo behind Communist lines, the reports said. But allied fighterbombers were credited with killing 35 Communist troops and knocking out five mortar and two antiaircraft positions outside the camp.

U.S. military sources said today American jets caught Communist units trying to move heavy 130mm artillery pieces to high ground Sunday in an attempt to shell reoccupied Quang Tri City and destroyed at least six of the big guns. One source said the U.S. airmen had advance word of the Communist move from prisoner interrogation and "other information. We were ready for them."

Most of the central combat action centered in Quang Ngai Province, where Ba Tin is located, but other weekend battles also erupted in Quang Tin to the north and Binh Dinh to the south, allied military communiques reported.

Heavy monsoon weather Sunday limited the United States to only 140 air strikes over North Vietnam, military spokesmen said, with all of the raids carried out in the lower panhandle region.

Tanzania accepts plan

By United Press International
Tanzania has accepted a plan to end nine days of fighting along its border with Uganda, Foreign Minister Omar Arsh Ghalib of Somalia said today.

President Idi Amin of Uganda welcomed the plan, but he ruled out peace until the Tanzanian government has withdrawn its forces from the border and ousted former Ugandan President Milton Obote - leaves Tanzania.

In Kampala, a Ugandan military spokesman said 37 more guerrillas have been killed in mopping up operations by Ugandan troops near the border town of Mutukula in Southwest Uganda.

The reported deaths would bring to 367 the number of invaders Ugandan forces say they have killed since a 1,500-man force moved into Uganda from Tanzania Sept. 17.

In Dar es Salaam Ghalib told newsmen Sunday that President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania had accepted a five-point peace plan proposed by President Mohamed Said Barre of Somalia. Ghalib gave no details of the plan.

But Amin said that unless Tanzanian and other hostile forces withdrew from the frontier he would order a "big air raid and a large-scale operation of the army and paratroopers to destroy them completely."

Amin said Nyerere would also have to expel Obote before there could be peace. Obote has been living in exile in Tanzania since Amin ousted him in a military coup last year.

A Ugandan military spokesman said the pro-Obote guerrilla invasion force has split into two warring tribal factions and was now "desperate due to lack of food."

Officials find 5 letter bombs

By United Press International
Syria's official newspaper suggested today that Israel, in search of an excuse to attack Arab guerrillas with global support, is behind the current wave of explosive parcels being mailed to Israeli officials around the world.

The latest such incident was reported today in Canberra, Australia, where post office detectives discovered five letter bombs with Amsterdam postmarks. Three of the letters were addressed to the Israeli Consulate in Sydney and two to the Israeli Embassy in Canberra, a post office spokesman said. None of the parcels exploded.

Reports by Arab newsmen reaching Cairo said four Israeli warplanes flew over the Nabatieh region of Lebanon today but were chased away by antiaircraft fire. They said the Israeli aircraft stayed in the area 30 minutes before retreating. The reports said villagers went to their air raid shelters during the flyover.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Beirut today denied reports that Maj. Richard Barratt, assistant military attache at the U.S. Embassy in Amman, might have defected to Syria.

Sacramento jet crash kills 22

By GEORGE SKELTON
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)
—A vintage jet fighter taking off at an air show smashed into a packed shopping center ice cream parlor Sunday, killing 22 persons, many of them youngsters attending a little league football celebration.

Another 16 persons were injured when the privately-owned F86 Sabrejet barreled across a highway, struck three vehicles and bounced in a "ball of fire" into Farrell's Ice Cream Parlour.

"I'm sorry...I'm sorry. Get the people out," growled Richard Bingham, 36, a Richmond, Calif., pilot of the plane. He was pulled from the wreckage while 200 screaming children and adults fought to escape flames that turned the Gay-90s style shop into an inferno.

Bingham escaped with some broken bones and a cut face from what was believed to be the worst disaster of this type ever to occur in the United States.

Sacramento County Coroner George L. Nilsen said 12 of the victims were youngsters, five boys and seven girls. Five women and five men were also killed.

He said at least two complete families were among the dead. A father, mother and two children made up one of the families.

The nose of the Korean War-era plane, one of America's first fighter jets being displayed across the street at Sacramento's Executive Airport, smashed into the parlor's Howard Hughes Room. A party was being held in the room for 20 youngsters from the Sacramento 49ers Little League football team.

Don McClusky, an employee, was filling salt shakers in the room when the plane hit.

After I picked myself up I grabbed five kids and broke a window and got them out," he said. "But by then the smoke and flames were too intense and I couldn't get back in."

Linda Fourby, 17, Sacramento, was in a car which the plane missed by 100 feet. She said she ran toward the "screaming and breaking glass" at Farrell's.

"People were saying 'get me out, get me out! Where's my kids?' Everybody was trying to help everybody."

Chairs were used to break windows and people poured from the doorways. One girl, Christie Klahn, 12, Stockton, Calif., said she helped a friend get out safely and tried to return but couldn't.

"I climbed over all sorts of stuff, maybe some of it was bodies," said the girl, whose father, Rubin Bacci, 35, was among those missing. One 10-year-old boy, Steve Martin, Sacramento, was later found safely crouched under a table in the party room.

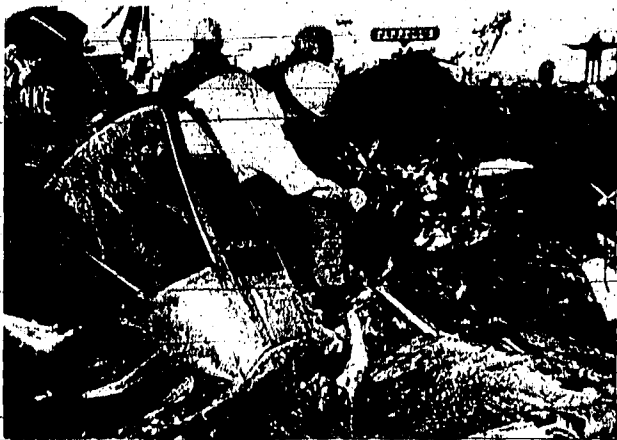

The plane, owned by Spectrum Air Services, which belongs to millionaire cosmetics manufacturer William Penn Patrick, hit one car on a highway and two in a parking lot and dragged them into the parlor.

Roger Lindberg, a newscaster for Sacramento station KXTV, said he witnessed the crash when he was leaving the air show.

"There was a power failure," he said. "The pilot dropped back to the runway, hit his brakes, then flipped up like a catapult onto Freepoint Boulevard where the plane exploded into a ball of fire and cartwheeled into Farrell's."

Clouds of dense smoke poured out of the colorfully decorated ice cream parlor, whose employees wear straw hats and with black and white uniforms and red, white and blue garters.

A passageway known as "The Bridge of Sighs" connects the Allegheny courthouse and county jail.

Disaster scene

RESCUE WORKERS examine an automobile containing trapped victims after it was pulled from inside an ice cream parlor. The car was shoved inside the Sacramento, Calif., parlor by a vintage jet after it crashed during an air show. Witnesses said at least two cars may have been shoved into the parlor where 22 people, mostly children, were killed. (UPI)

Air shows carry threat of death

By United Press International
Plane crashes and death—for pilots and spectators—are always a possibility at air shows.

In 1938, a military stunt plane crashed into a grandstand in Bogota, Colombia, killing 53 persons.

Four pilots flying World War II planes were killed in two separate collisions during a vintage airplane race at Cape May County Airport, N.J., on June 5, 1971.

Earlier this year, three persons were killed during "Transpo '72," a nine-day international air exposition at Dulles Airport near Washington, D.C. Maj. Joseph C. Howard, 32, Aboskie, N.C., was flying a Phantom F4E jet with the Air Force's precision flying team, the Thunderbirds, on June 5 with a crowd of 224,000 watching. Something went wrong with his plane and he bailed out. The plane crashed and exploded near the landing strip. Howard landed in the burning wreckage and was killed.

A few days earlier, aerial stuntman Robert Kennedy, 26, Escondido, Calif., was killed when he fell 400 feet from a kite. In another accident at the same air show, Hugh Alexander, 30, was killed when his plane collided with another plane in flight.

Last July 30 in Kinston, N.C., Lt. Cmdr. Donald Bentley, flight leader of the Navy's Blue Angels, blew a tire as his jet was landing before 30,000 spectators. Bentley stayed with the jet, swerving it away from the crowd and onto grass off the runway before he ejected. The jet then hit a parked truck. Bentley suffered only cuts and bruises and was credited by authorities with averting "a real tragedy."

The French air show at Le Bourget airport in Paris has been the scene of two accidents. The worst was in 1965 when an Italian training jet crashed into the parking area, killing the pilot and seven visitors.

Bomb damages Belfast hotel

By COLIN HAKER
BELFAST (UPI)—A bomb today heavily damaged the Russell Court Hotel, one of downtown Belfast's newest and most luxurious hotels.

No casualties were reported in the blast, which reduced the hotel's newly opened ground floor reception area to what was termed "a complete demolition job."

The explosion in the hotel's underground garage came only hours after the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) said it would continue its Northern Ireland bombing campaign despite political talks in England on the province's future.

Police said four armed men drove a television repair van into the hotel garage and told the staff there was a bomb inside triggered to go off in an hour. Police evacuated the building, partially opened early this year.

UNIPEL 27-12-0 this fall can make next spring a lot less hectic.

First, let's destroy a myth. With hay and pasture, fall-applied fertilizer doesn't lose its nutrient value over the winter months. You may in fact get earlier grass. But consider the other benefits of fall fertilization.

1. You're fertilizing when you have extra time which of course means more time for you in the spring when things really get hectic.

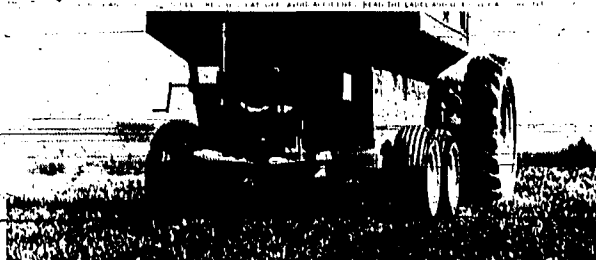

2. Fall-fertilization means earlier spring growth and your hay should have a higher nutrient value.

3. Fertilizing in the fall eliminates the problem of going into the fields in the spring when the ground may be soft and wet. You avoid unnecessary soil compaction.

4. Growers who wait until spring to fertilize often find their supplier sold out of the product they want.

So if fall fertilizing sounds like a good idea this year, you may want to consider ORTHO UNIPEL 27-12-0, a fertilizer specially recommended for this area. UNIPEL is ORTHO's uniform fertilizer pellet. Uniform in size, shape, weight and nutrient content for exceptionally easy calibration and even spreading. How about talking over UNIPEL and fall fertilizing with your ORTHO Dealer?

East may also hold the club queen, but you don't need a lot of club tricks. What you need is to play the right club now. You hop up with the king of clubs and it holds."

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I can certainly feel for that widow with dentures who is worried about how men would feel about a woman if they know she wore dentures. I am 34, divorced, and just got mine. I am well-adjusted in other areas, but I dread meeting a fellow I might like, and then having to tell him I wear dentures.

Your advice to keep her mouth shut won't help her much. If she becomes romantically involved with a man, I am sure they will do more than just hold hands, and he will surely learn the truth if they do any passionate kissing. I hope you hear from men telling you how they feel about a woman with dentures because this is my problem, too.

"G" IN BROOKLYN

Dentures tight

DEAR G: My dental consultants assure me that dentures can be made so realistically that their presence will be undetected during the most passionate kissing. (Unless you get a kiss that will cause you to drop your teeth, which is highly unlikely.) But please read on.

DEAR ABBY: In my 64 years I have never heard it suggested that a man's emotional responses to a woman might be affected by her wearing dentures!

I refer to your column in the Columbus Citizen: If that woman signed "Feeling Low" is concerned lest the man in whom she is interested would find her less attractive if he knew she wore dentures, she should put him to the test as soon as possible. If there is a remote chance that his attitude proves to be as she fears, the sooner she finds out what a jerk he is, the better. Yours truly,

WARREN CHADBOURNE, GROVE CITY, O.

DEAR WARREN: Your letter will bring joy to the hearts of many a lady who smiles thru her dentures. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: That letter about dentures took me back to when I courted my second wife. She told me she had something to "confess" before we married. Then she said, "I wear false teeth, dear."

I replied, "That's all right, sweetheart. So do I." Then she smiled and said, "Yours are obvious, and before we're married I think you ought to fix yourself up with some that don't creak." [P.S. I did]. GRAMPS

DEAR ABBY: You told that widow with dentures that the man who marries her should be glad he won't have any more dental bills to pay. Whooa, girl.

Even her dentures may fit perfectly now, mechanical teeth do wear out. And one's mouth and jaw formation changes, requiring new dentures. Theoretically dentures should be changed every five years—like an automobile, to adjust to muscle changes. And don't forget breakage!

DEAR ABBY: Some lady wanted to know how men felt about women who wore false teeth. I have had lots of experience along that line as I am 80 years old and have had five wives. (Four died and one divorced me.) The last four had false teeth when I married them and I didn't think a thing of it. I am going with a lady right now who has false teeth, and it doesn't make any difference to me. I really think I prefer women with false teeth because they talk less.

"HAVE FALSES (TEETH), TOO"

DEAR ABBY: Tell the gal who's sensitive about her dentures not to worry. They won't keep the guys away. I married one with china clippers and a padded bra because I thought all the rest of her was real. Too late I found out she was also false-hearted. That blew it!

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69766, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

THE ACCESSORIZED ANKLE

By Mary Sue Miller

A Lively asks: What kind of stockings should I wear with new evening pants? Mine are light beige crepe, cut with fullness that increases to wide at the ankle. To wear with them, I selected gold metallic flats. The pants flip up because of the width. The flats glitter and catch the eye. This leaves a surprising gap at the ankles.

The Answer: Pants Partner panty-stockings can solve the problem. The combination offers a sheer panty stocking 21 denier nylon legs that fits like skin and promises durability. The powered spandex panty slims and tucks hips and tummy for comfortable control so important with pants.

Colors aim to coordinate with fall and winter fashion shades: Camel, Flannel Gray, Frost, Brick, Dark Red, as well as Purple, Gold, Royal, Black, Navy, Brown, Hunter Green.

With beige pants try Frost (an off-white) stockings. The partnership possibilities are limitless. Black with black creates a femme fatale effect. Gray pants and camel hose spell out classic.

Knee-highs are available too. The newest styling is a sleek, all-season opaque in nylon anti-static nylon flat chings to your leg, and your pants. A sandal foot lets you switch from closed to open shoes, from day to evening hours.

Presto, the gap is closed, the ankles accessorized.

Suspension of council aired

DENVER (UPI) — Whether the AFL-CIO suspension of the Colorado Labor Council (CLC) and all of its officers is valid or not is expected to be decided next week by U.S. Dist. Judge Fred M. Winner. Attorneys for the Colorado labor group asked the court for an injunction against AFL-CIO President George Meany after they learned Meany had ordered the suspension Wednesday. Herick Roth, president of the CLC, said he and his officers intended to "conduct business as usual until the court hears the case." AFL-CIO attorneys indicated they, too, would await the decision, although perhaps a counter-action could be filed. The labor infighting erupted when the CLC endorsed Sen. George McGovern against Meany's orders to AFL-CIO members to take a neutral position in the presidential campaign. Meany's order to withdraw the endorsement also was ignored. Roth said either McGovern or his running mate, Sargent Shriver, was expected to address a CLC state convention still being planned for Oct. 4-5 in Denver. About 300 delegates were expected to attend the convention and CLC officials predicted "at that convention we will get the support of the rank and file."

Spock suggests minimum incomes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Benjamin Spock, presidential candidate of the People's Party, Friday proposed the establishment of minimum incomes for neighborhoods. Spock, former pediatrician and author of the best-selling "Baby and Child Care," made the proposal in another of a series of position papers he has issued outlining his party's platform. "A guaranteed income for our neighborhoods—accompanied by a minimum income for the poor and a maximum income for the affluent—would go a long way toward upgrading the quality of America's communities," Spock said. Spock said that "we have all been led to believe that city neighborhoods could not survive were it not for the gifts of welfare given them by the benign, liberal politicians. "Nothing could be further from the truth," he said. Poor neighborhoods, Spock said, pay out more than they receive back. He cited a survey of one of Washington, D.C.'s poorest neighborhoods—that showed "the people there pay out at least $40 million in all forms of taxations, licenses and contributions to social insurance. "The amount they get back—in terms of welfare, public safety, services, schools, streets and so forth, is around $34 million," he said. Spock said "the catch" was that the defense budget, the space program and other expenditures "from which these neighborhoods do not directly benefit" are lumped into the equation.

Agency promotes Idaho as winter tourist paradise

BOISE (UPI) — A smiling skier racing downhill on a fluffy white potato is just one of the gimmicks in a new program to lure winter visitors to the state. "For too many years, Idaho has meant Potatoes and Sun Valley to everyone outside the state," said Lloyd Howe, secretary of the State Department of Commerce and Development. His office has already begun a wider-reaching publicity campaign to show off the state as a winter tourist paradise. Films, posters and more comprehensive travel brochures have been sent all over the west. "The whole scheme is to fill up beds in winter as well as summer," he said. "We've never really had any trouble with the summer tourist season." He said a small group will travel to Los Angeles and San Francisco to show next month with a short film promoting Idaho's slopes as well as other winter sports. Howe called Autumn season Idaho's "transition period," and said the three month interval between Labor Day and Thanksgiving gives his department time to "collect our thoughts and bull ahead with our winter promotion programs."

Bennett's name still on ballot

By DAVID ESPRO, Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Golden Bennett's name will be on the November ballot "unless he dies."

Twin Falls County Clerk Harold Lancaster, the county's chief election official, said today he had mailed the candidates' names for the fall general elections to a Boise printing firm, and Bennett's name would be included in the Democratic slot for prosecuting attorney.

Bennett, who will oppose Republican Robert Galley in November for prosecutor, had said publicly several weeks ago he wished to withdraw his name from the race.

His stated desire raised eyebrows locally, coming as it did with a verbal slap at the local Democratic organization for "tacitly" excluding him from decision making.

Lancaster responded to Bennett's request for withdrawal by directing the candidate to notify county chairman of the party, Vincent Smazal, who would in turn notify Lancaster officially.

Smazal said today he hadn't received the letter until Saturday morning, and Lancaster said today it was too late to make any further additions or deletions from the ballot.

Smazal also said the party would welcome Bennett's candidacy, and would provide support for the race.

But a spokesman for Bennett said the candidate would not campaign for his own election, a position consistent, he said, with Bennett's stated desire not to be a candidate.

Bennett had originally withdrawn his candidacy, he said in an open letter to Lancaster, because after his poor primary showing, he felt "the voters of Twin Falls County are apparently more than happy with the present law enforcement practices and administration."

He received slightly over 1,100 votes in the August primary, compared to Galley's total of over 6,800.

But Bennett's request for exclusion from the ballot previously in the campaign had raised other problems, according to election officials. They said the state's new election laws make no provision for a candidate to withdraw his candidacy.

Aside from the muddled prosecuting attorney's race, Lancaster said the other names to be listed on the ballot included incumbent Republicans William Chancey and Merl Leonard for county commissioners; with Robert Geer the sole Democrat running; Ronald Taylor, Republican, unopposed for election as county assessor; Cloyce Edwards, incumbent Republican unopposed for coroner, and incumbent Republican Paul Corder, unopposed for sheriff of the county.

Lancaster said close to 100 ballot strips would be printed for insertion into the county voting machines, as well as paper absentee ballots and samples for voter education.

He said it would be two weeks before the printing work is done and the voting machines in the county could be programmed.

Bliss equalization vote on tap today

BLISS — Bliss voters will decide on a school trustee rezoning proposal today. Voting will be at the school cafeteria from 2-8 p.m.

The proposal is to equalize each of the five trustee districts. If accepted, one trustee will lose his seat and one new trustee will be appointed.

If the rezoning plan passes, district 3 would include trustees Sterling Bray and Doran Butler, one of whom would have to step down.

A new trustee would be appointed for district 2. Trustees Charlene Stroud, Charles Wilkins and Sam Bishop Jr. would continue to serve until May elections.

The proposed district alteration would decrease the sizes of districts 1, 3 and 5, and would extend district 2. Each district would then include about 95 residents.

SIC members told to avoid 'building walls'

By TERRY CAMPBELL, Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — Avoidance of "building walls" around each community was urged Saturday by Scott Brown, a specialist for community development.

The representative of the University of Idaho Cooperative Extension Service, who works in the eight Magic Valley counties, spoke before the South Idaho Chamber of Commerce meeting in Sun Valley.

Also speaking was Sen. Don Fredericksen, Gooding, chairman of the Wood River Resource Area Council of Governments.

Stressing citizen involvement and participation in community development, Brown said one way to achieve the goal is through citizen organizations such as the chamber group.

In Magic Valley, Brown said, "should be a process of economic and social growth or regression, directed and in keeping with the wishes of the majority of the residents."

Toward community development, "for economy of effort and maximum effectiveness it makes sense to work within the smallest possible community (unit) to control an internal situation," Brown said.

The area specialist said when external influences are involved, resulting in the lack of internal control, promotion of community development is best served by seeking the largest community unit.

Two organizations — each representing four-county areas — currently involved in planning activities are the Wood River Resource Area and the Southern Idaho Resource Planning and Development Association.

Citing the example of the eight-county regional library district, Brown said the textbook reasons for the existence of these regional organizations include economy of joint purchasing, exchange of ideas, joint effort on common problems, access to state and federal programs denied individually, technical assistance and political muscle.

In urging support for the WRRRA and the SIRPADA, Brown said, "Highways don't stop at the city and county boundaries. Administration of state and federal programs listen to eight counties speaking in unison, where one county might go unheard."

The area specialist said, "Chambers of commerce that ignore regional factors are missing a bet. You are in a position to have a big voice in regional planning."

Fall frost brings gold leaves to Bald Mountain

Gooding man files for post

GOODING — Leo Rice, former Gooding mayor and an automobile agency owner, filed late Friday in Boise for the Democratic candidacy for state representative in district 23.

Rice, who drove to Boise to handle the filing personally with the office of secretary of state, said he decided on the final hour filing because he believes competition is good for the legislative office seekers.

Others who have filed for the two representative posts in district 23 include Vernon Ravenscroft, who this year changed to the GOP ticket, and incumbent Earl Greenawalt, R-Jerome, and Anne Robinson, Jerome Democrat, a new candidate this year.

In the senate race from the same district are incumbent Sen. Don Fredericksen, D-Gooding, and James Yost, Wendell Republican.

Yost said "I am not opposed to Fredericksen. I am only running in opposition to him. I am not dissatisfied with him, but I think I can do a better job if elected."

Rice commented Saturday, "I don't think it is right for a candidate to run unopposed. Maybe if they think they may be beaten they will do a better job if elected."

Access road asked

GOODING — Wood River Resource Area Council of Governments members will discuss the Magic Reservoir access road Wednesday night.

The group will meet in the Gooding County Courthouse to continue discussion of improving the west entrance road to the recreational area. Residents of the eight surrounding counties are urged to attend.

Another meeting will be held Oct. 4 at 8 p.m. to continue discussion and planning.

Jerome valuation up $1.2 million

JEROME (UPI) — Jerome County Auditor Virginia Ricketts reported growth in the area is reflected in an estimated $1.2 million rise in valuation of property for taxing purposes.

She has certified the 1972 tax levies to the Idaho Tax Commission before tax notices can be prepared.

Mrs. Ricketts said the county valuation is $21.5 million. The subsequent land trailer rolls for the previous year amounted to $116,771, and if that figure remains constant, she said the county's total valuation for this year will be near the $21.6 million mark. That compares to approximately $20.4 million for the previous period.

Valuation for Jerome, real land and personal property and including last year's subsequent trailer house rolls, rose to $3.2 million from $2.9 million.

Economic program asked in Lincoln

SHOSHONE (UPI) — Lincoln County commissioners have been asked to proceed with plans to qualify the county for participation in a program to designate the area to receive economic development aid.

Robert Miller, speaking on behalf of the board of directors for the county development corporation, made the request during a recent meeting in Shoshone.

George Green, Boise, of the U. S. Department of Commerce economic development administration, explained agency workings.

He said county commissioners must request the county be designated for aid, then appoint a committee to prepare an economic development plan.

Under the program, he said, the county could get up to 50 per cent in grants to help with projects to improve the area's economy.

There are 136 designated areas in the nation qualified to receive this assistance, Green added, including three in Idaho.

TF man injured

KETCHUM — A Twin Falls man suffered minor injuries in a truck accident Sunday night north of Ketchum.

Charles J. Helfrecht, 51, was held overnight for observation at Moritz Community Hospital. He suffered facial abrasions and a possible rib injury.

Blaine County officers said the driver was traveling south on U. S. Highway 93 near Lake Creek about 7:30 p.m. His pickup truck swerved off the right side of the highway traveling 294 feet in the right hand ditch, crossed the highway, traveling another 120 feet on the roadway, spun around and entered the left ditch, coming to rest 195 feet from the roadway.

No citation was issued.

Gooding senior citizens to elect

GOODING — A potluck supper will be at 6 p.m. today to elect a senior citizen advisory board in Gooding County.

The meeting will be in the War Memorial Hall. Marlene Lee, director of the Gooding Senior Citizen Center, asked for representation from all parts of the county for the election.

Thursday at 9 a.m. a field trip to Boise is planned for senior citizens of the county. The trip will include a tour of the capitol building, historical museum, zoo or art gallery. There is no charge for the excursion but those attending should bring a sack lunch.

Transportation will be provided by the National Guard and the group returns to Gooding at 5 p.m.

Court reverses petition dismissal

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court Friday reversed a district court order dismissing a Filer couple's petition for review.

Raymond and Mary Williams had sought review of a determination by the Idaho Highway Department denying them relocation benefits as provided by the Idaho Highway Relocation Assistance Act of 1969.

As grounds for the petition's dismissal, the district court had concluded it had no jurisdiction to conduct such a review since the Williamses had failed to exhaust their "administrative remedies."

The couple operates Seddon's Meat Processing Co. in Filer. To allow for the rerouting of U. S. Highway 30, the site of the slaughtering plant was condemned by the state, forcing the Williamses to build a new facility in order to continue their business.

The forced relocation prompted the couple to seek relocation assistance as allowed under a state law.

Tax boost favored

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Jerry Creed, Democratic candidate for the state House of Representatives from District 25, said she would favor a sales tax increase of one half of one per cent to support expanded public programs.

The Times-News had incorrectly reported Saturday she would favor an increase of five cents.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1972

GENERAL TENDENCIES—This is a good day for energy and ingenuity in handling details which are vital to your welfare and to that material feeling of success and well-being that is vital to your peace of mind. Take the time to go over those accounts, both due and receivable, and get them behind you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study that work ahead of you carefully and see what part of it requires more time and diligent effort and schedule hours wisely. Taking the health measures necessary is important. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Once your important work is done, get out to the social and make big headway, mixing business with pleasure and coming out the winner. Show appreciation for one who truly loves you. Don't take him or her so for granted.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan how to be more efficient at your regular work and how to have more rapport with kin in the future. Delve right into the essentials of life and forget the ephemeral for now. Think logically.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Doing something thoughtful for good friends shows how much you really appreciate them. Repay social obligations charmingly. You can make new friends of real worth who can open doors of opportunity for you in the future.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Others need the benefit of your practical thinking and ideas, so be sure to help them when asked to do so. Some group affair you attend can bring you fine opportunities for the days ahead. Dress in good taste.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can get out to new sites and meet people who can give you the information you need at this time. Extend your rights. Study data, ideas well before you put them aside as being worthless. Show that you are clever.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) You can keep all of those promises you have made and find out what good friends expect of you, too, and please them. Mate or attachment can be most affectionate now. Make the evening a happy one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You can quickly reach a far better understanding with associates today, provided you contact them early and discuss what is uppermost on your mind. You can turn an opponent into a good friend now. Use diplomacy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study well all those tasks ahead of you and then get at them in a most diligent and progressive fashion. A little time for shopping for the clothing you need is wise. Don't forget the basic garments.

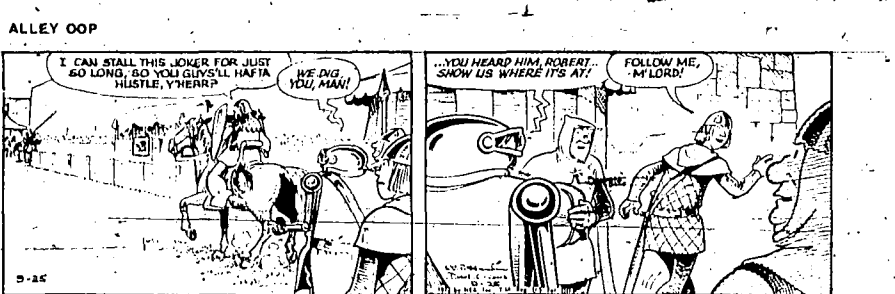

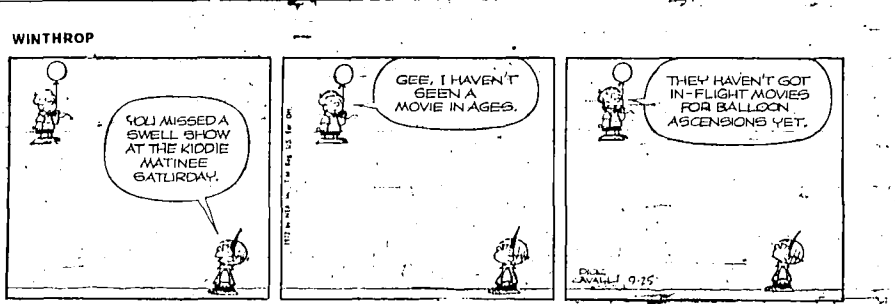

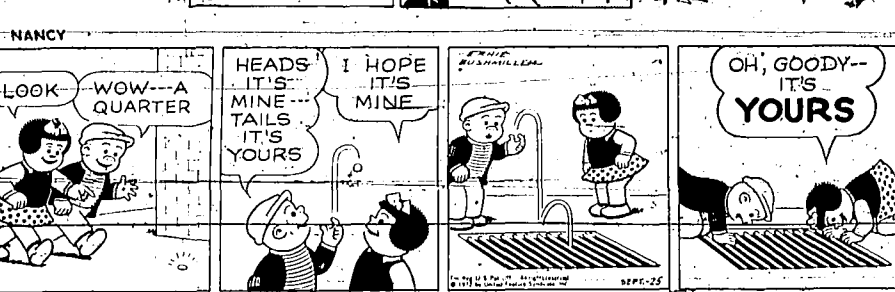

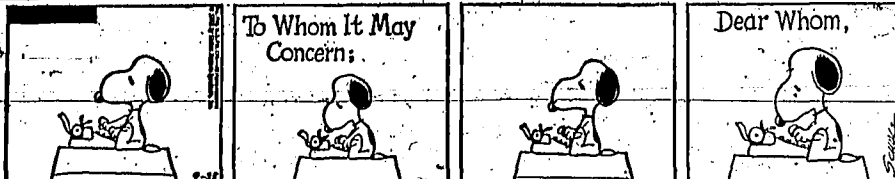

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) The planets are favorable for having a delightful time at social affairs or amusements of all kinds today. Set up appointments early for such. State that plan to attachment and get the cooperation you want for it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Have a frank talk with those at home and come to a better understanding with them, increase harmony in that important realm of your existence. Discuss money matters, too, that are vital now. Handle the business matters connected with them well.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Find the right sources of data that will give you the information you want and need for some important project you have in mind. Then talk it over with others. Combine forces so you have early success.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY—he or she will be one of those interesting young people who early understands business and other activities of a practical nature so that a secure life will be uppermost in this mind and since there is a flair for cooperation here, upon reaching maturity your offspring will already be well fixed. Give as time, an ethical and spiritual training as you can, and a business administration course which will be most helpful. A sense of humor here.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

Consider citizens who crave at least nine hours sleep a night as opposed to those who get by niftily on only six. Man for man, the nine-hourer is far more apt to be the sensitive worrier. The six-hour dozer is inclined to be the unruffled sales personality. Or so scholarly investigation indicates.

TO The professional horologist lately, I'm told, it's an accurate timepiece if it neither gains nor loses any more than one second every 6,000 years. Men, synchronize your Mickey Mice. What's referred to here is the atomic clock.

A STUDENT of psychology in California says he has taught bears how to play basketball. Certainly would like to see them. Make great rebounders, imagine. But this trainer's pastime is not so whimsical. Claims he intends to program such beasts eventually to handle stoop labor. Pick cucumbers, maybe, what not.

QUERIES
Q. "Was there a real Count Dracula?"
A. So it's said. In the Middle Ages. Nothing extraordinary about his canine teeth. History records he had a nasty temper, however.

Q. "DO mama pigeons really give milk?"
A. They do. And papa pigeons top.

Q. "WHEN newlyweds leave the church, on which side of the groom does the bride walk?"
A. She's supposed to cling to his left arm and leave his right arm free to beat off the covetous savages. That's the tradition.

LOVE AND WAR
Please note this statement. "Usually find what men talk about more interesting than what women talk about." The foregoing was shown to 120,000 women who were asked to comment. Fifty per cent agreed. Forty per cent didn't. Clearly, a large majority of women prefer masculine over feminine companionship.

SCHOLARS with Ph.D.'s at Harvard don't use the title "Dr." To do so there is considered unhip.

NO SIR, don't want to go to Jamaica. An honored guest there sometimes is served a plate of crickets, still.

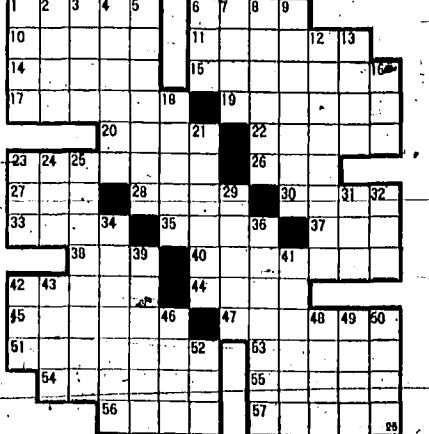

IN LONDON, a batch of businessmen whose names are colors—like Brown, Gray, Green, White—organized a luncheon group they call the "Rainbow Club." Do you know any candidates for honorary membership? US wants IMF chief to resign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of the International Monetary Fund (IMF), Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, confirmed Saturday that the United States is after his resignation.

But he told a news conference prior to the opening of the IMF's annual meeting that he had no intention of immediately stepping down as managing director of the fund, a post he has held since 1963.

The IMF, a sort of financial United Nations headquartered in Washington, has played the center role in keeping order among the various national currencies since it was founded in 1944. The decision to devalue the dollar resulted from discussions at last year's meeting.

No such headline-grabbing actions are expected this time. Instead, the 124 finance ministers and their accompanying delegations are pushing for long-range reform that would make future traumatic currency revaluations unnecessary.

Schweitzer's vision of how to achieve that reform has at times conflicted with the views of the Nixon administration and has led to his current out-of-favor status.

"There is no use denying that the U.S. authorities took negative views of my continued employment. It is not true that I have tendered my resignation at the present time," Schweitzer told reporters.

Attacks planned on fair

BONN (UPI) — Arab guerrillas have planned attacks against the world's largest book fair which opens next week in Frankfurt, the Hesse state Interior Ministry said Saturday.

"We received information last week that Arab terrorists were planning actions against the Israeli and American exhibitions at the Frankfurt International Book Fair," an Interior Ministry spokesman said.

"Frankfurt police have organized special security measures to prevent such attacks," the spokesman said. "We hope nothing happens."

The annual Frankfurt Book Fair, a showcase for book publishers and authors from around the world, has often been the target of student demonstrations and extremist protests.

In 1968 police used water cannon, tear gas and truncheons against 1,000 demonstrators protesting the award of a peace prize to Senegal President Leopold Senghor.

At that time, Daniel "Danny the Red" Cohn-Bendit, one of the ringleaders of the May 1968 student revolt in Paris, tried to storm the St. Paul's church where the award ceremony took place. He and hundreds of other students were beaten back by club-wielding police.

32 orphans flown from Viet city

DUC PHO, Vietnam (UPI) — Thirty-two orphans, most of them infants, were flown by U.S. and South Vietnamese helicopters out of this besieged town today, their clothes muddled from dodging Communist mortar shells.

The first of the helicopters, a U.S. Army UH1 Huey, took eight babies, a small boy, and two girls in the care of a Roman Catholic nun to Quang Ngai City, 20 miles northwest of Duc Pho. They will be quartered in an orphanage at Quang Ngai City, the provincial capital.

Helicopter crewmen said they had to fly over the South China Sea, then cut inland below tree-top level to avoid Communist anti-aircraft fire during the orphan airlift from this area 60 miles below Da Nang.

Military sources said the children were being moved from Duc Pho because they lacked proper, safe quarters there while the district town along Highway 1 is under pressure from a North Vietnamese regiment within a mile to the north and west.

One of the orphans, a small girl clad in black pajama trousers and a muddled white blouse, said she got dirty when they had to dodge Communist mortar fire while awaiting the choppers at the district compound helipad. The area around the helipad was pocked by shell craters.

Aboard the first helicopter, the nun, calm and serene in black robe and white cassock, sat next to the gunner on the left side of the aircraft, holding a baby. A little girl in a pink dress sat on the outside on the right side, watched over by the

Idaho ballot to have 5 choices

BOISE (UPI) — Five political groups will be represented on the November ballot in Idaho, as Secretary of State Pete T. Cennarrusa Friday certified the Peace and Freedom Party as having complied with state election laws.

The five parties appearing on Nov. 7 are: Republicans, Democrats, Socialist Workers Party, American Party and the Peace and Freedom Party.

Reached by phone in Hailey, Cennarrusa also told deputy Secretary of State Jerry Hill that Geraldine Tipton, a legislative candidate from District 18, would be allowed to switch parties and still appear on the ballot. She had earlier requested to change from the Democratic to the Peace and Freedom Party.

Dr. Benjamin Spock, the baby doctor turned social activist, is teaming with Julius Hobson of Washington, D.C., as the Peace and Freedom Party's presidential ticket.

Meanwhile, six more residents, including three American Party candidates from district 28, filed candidacy papers Friday for the state legislature.

Filing with the Secretary of State's office were Mrs. G. W. Creed of Twin Falls, a Democrat for the House from district 25; Gary Mason of St. Anthony, an American Party hopeful for the House from district 28; Elmo Seeley of Chester, an American for the Senate from district 28; Markly Chase of Ashton, American for the House from district 28; Rosalie Nadeau of Boise, a Democrat for the House from district 18.

Soviet embassy defends tax on emigrating Jews

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite mounting criticism, the Soviet Embassy in Washington is vigorously defending the new Russian tax under which educated Jews and other emigrants must pay up to $30,000 to leave the Soviet Union.

Embassy officials were circulating a three-page defense of the tax, which was adopted Aug. 3 allegedly to stem the Soviet "brain-drain." The government claimed it was nondiscriminatory in that it applied to all educated persons seeking to leave for a capitalist country.

The tax, which has been denounced by the Israeli government and American Jewish organizations as a form of ransom, establishes a pattern of fees to compensate the Soviet government for education. The fees range from $5,000 to $30,000 depending on the kind of free education which an emigrant received.

The Soviet embassy statement said:

"The principal purpose of the decree is to save public funds and to protect the rights of these citizens who wish to study and work in the Soviet Union. The decree on the reimbursement of state costs of education applies to everyone — irrespective of nationality — who leaves the Soviet Union permanently to live in a capitalist country."

"As for the standards of international law regulating human rights, it should be pointed out that a sovereign state is fully entitled to introduce restrictions it considers necessary on the emigration of its citizens to other countries."

Soviet diplomats, in private conversations, were making similar arguments.

Criticism has been growing in the United States from groups such as the American Jewish Committee and the Union of Councils for Soviet Jews.

Congressmen are being urged to speak out against the tax, and to vote against the administration's efforts to get Congress to approve "most favored nation status" for Russia. Such status would allow Soviet trade with the United States on the same terms as
