Delay TF school bond vote, committee asks

TWIN FALLS — A delay in the proposed school bond issue election in Twin Falls has been recommended by the Citizens Committee for School District 411.

In a written proposal submitted to the district administration Thursday afternoon, the executive committee of the citizens group recommended Dec. 5 — a tentatively scheduled bond election date — be abandoned "until needs and priorities of the district are better understood."

The recommendation was one of several submitted to the school administration based on lengthy discussions at a Citizens Committee meeting two weeks ago.

Executive board members of the citizens group had planned to meet Oct. 10 in the regular school board meeting to submit recommendations but the board meeting had to be cancelled when it was learned too many board members were out of town and a quorum would not be present.

No meeting date has been set by the board and members have not had an opportunity to review the written recommendations submitted Thursday afternoon.

Camden Meyer, assistant superintendent, said Supt. George Staudacher is now attempting to call a board meeting, possibly Tuesday night prior to the 8 p.m. Citizens Committee meeting. Several board members are still out of town, Meyer said.

In addition to suggesting the bond issue election be delayed, the recommendations ask continuation of the Citizens Committee under direction of the executive committee. It is also suggested the citizens group continue to study, recommend and evaluate the needs of the district.

"This committee further recommends the administration continue to provide its valuable advice and information to the Citizens Committee and to all patrons of the school district, and that the study of the CTA Architects, Engineers and Planners be made available for wide distribution and study," the recommendation states.

The report reviews the progress of the committee since its organization Sept. 20 including the establishment of eight working committees to review and study the district's facilities and needs.

School district administrators had suggested the group submit a report by mid-October and work toward Dec. 5 as the date on which a bond issue election be held for not more than $3.3 million, the present bonding limits of the district.

The citizens committee was asked to determine which of the district's building needs be provided by the proposed bond issue.

As a result, the committee has held two discussion and report meetings, the last Oct. 3.

Executive committee members, summarizing the progress of the committee as a whole, listed five items as a summary of consensus of group opinion.

First and foremost priority of the district, the executive committee said, is the Happy Day School. This must be replaced, regardless of whether a bond issue is passed. A permanent residence type facility is recommended.

Second, the executive committee said, is the problem of the need for elementary school space. They urged immediate attention be given to this.

Thirdly, the committee said, in the absence of a definite plan by the Department of Highway regarding right of way at Washington School, it appears the committee members feel Washington should be retained for a reduced load of elementary classrooms or be retained for career type educational training facilities.

Fourth, the committee called for an "all encompassing" career education program. The committee suggested accepting the services of the College of Southern Idaho.

Oil reports stir Valley optimism

Cautious optimism seems to be the general attitude toward the possibility of oil and gas drilling in Magic Valley.

Harley Crippen, mayor of Gooding, said he had been called last week by Salt Lake City and New Mexico drillers, but did not know what companies, if any, they represented.

He said, "the city is all for it. If we can strike oil around Gooding, it would be wonderful."

A large percentage of the 150,000 acres in the Shoshone District of the Bureau of Land Management for which lease application has been made lies in Gooding County.

Ben Glauner, chairman of the Gooding County board of commissioners, said that there is "not enough information and it is too early to tell for sure. If it did materialize, it would be a boost to the area and I can see no reason for the county commission to oppose it."

"If it actually does materialize and drilling begins, I will have an oil rig in my back yard," said Eugene Soares, mayor of Wendell. He said, however, that it was "too early to tell" but he did not think the city would have any objections

"It will do some good for somebody and it will put waste land to some kind of use," Soares said.

In Cassia County, where lease rights already have been granted in the Strevell area, James Roper of the Burley City Council said "We are aware of the energy crisis and any discovery of gas and oil must be welcomed in that respect. From that standpoint, it has to be an exciting thing."

No quick peace

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott does not expect a settlement of the Indo-China war before election day but says peace may come before the presidential inauguration next Jan. 20.

Scott made the observation to a group of Pennsylvania reporters at his Senate office Thursday a few hours after he had met at the White House with President Nixon.

It was the most definitive comment any administration figure with access to the President made as Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's adviser for national security affairs, arrived back in Washington from Paris where he met repeatedly in secret talks with North Vietnamese negotiators.

The Democratic opposition in the election campaign took the Paris maneuverings with considerable skepticism.

Alert Hailey dog earns nickname

HAILEY — "Bobby" is a nine-year old Chesapeake whose nickname is "Wonder Dog." Early Thursday she earned the name, possibly saving several lives.

Bobby was sleeping in her usual place in the home of the Tom Northcott family, Hailey — on the floor of the bedroom of the sons, Jack, 13, and T. J., 14.

About 3 a.m., Northcott said, the dog began jumping on Jack's bed, a place she is not allowed. The sleepy boy told the dog several times to get off, and once pushed her to the floor. When he finally awakened, Jack found the closed room filled with smoke.

A high intensity lamp had been knocked to the floor, the youth discovered, and was burning a hole in the rug. The lamp was quickly unplugged and the smoldering rug extinguished.

Northcott said damage from the fire and smoke was minor.

Creeping interest attacked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The upward creep in interest rates has brought the second critical administration response in as many days.

In diplomatically tough language, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns said Thursday he hoped banks would be "increasingly mindful" that escalating interest rates could sabotage the government's economic stabilization program.

As an added incentive to toe the line, Burns said the administration's Committee on Interest and Dividends "would extend its surveillance to earnings of banks and other financial institutions."

On Wednesday, Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said that higher borrowing costs could choke off the current economic expansion.

Burns said he was most worried about the prime rate — the interest commercial banks charge their best customers — which has moved from 4 3/4 to 5 3/4 per cent in the past year and now is only 1 1/4 per cent below the level that existed when President Nixon laid on the economic controls program on Aug. 15, 1971.

There is "little indication," however, that this will mean significant increases on longer-term interest rates, such as those charged on mortgage and consumer loans.

Kissinger, Nixon confer on Vietnam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Just back from Paris and four days of private talks with Hanoi diplomats, Henry A. Kissinger met again today with President Nixon to discuss the prospects for Vietnam peace.

At the same time, Le Duc Tho, the chief North Vietnamese negotiator in the extraordinary Paris discussions, departed Paris for conferences of his own in Hanoi. Kissinger had nothing to say, on his return to Washington, about how things went in Paris but Tho said difficulties still remained.

Tho headed for Hanoi via Peking, with the remark to reporters that "there are many difficult things" left to solve before peace could come. Asked to elaborate on his discussions with Kissinger, he responded: "I have nothing to say."

Kissinger went directly to the White House Thursday night from Andrews Air Force Base to give Nixon an immediate, firsthand report on his efforts to break the war impasse. Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Gen. Alexander M. Haig, Kissinger's chief deputy who accompanied him to Paris, attended this morning's more lengthy conference in the Nixon family dining room. They sat around a table under an ornate chandelier and a brooding portrait of John Adams. A fire crackled in the fireplace.

Newsmen were allowed in the dining room briefly for photographs and while they were present, the four men chatted not about Kissinger and Haig's Paris trip but Nixon's campaign visit to Atlanta Thursday.

They also talked a bit about the World Series, opening Saturday in Cincinnati (Nixon told Rogers he wouldn't be able to make the opening game).

Jerome boy injured in crossing

JEROME — Mark Lamb, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Joe Lamb, Jerome, was treated and released at St. Benedict's Hospital after being struck by a car this morning.

Robert Lee Chapman, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Chapman, was driving south on Lincoln Street this morning when the Lamb boy left a marked crosswalk and darted diagonally across the street, stopping at the side of the street. Chapman did not see him and his car struck him with the right front bumper, knocking him to the pavement, according to the Jerome Police Department.

Chapman took the boy to the hospital where he was treated for head, shoulder and hip injuries.

Revenue sharing OK looms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate was ready today to give President Nixon his long-sought revenue sharing program, which will channel $30.1 billion in federal funds to the states and localities over the next five years.

But revenue sharing will be the only portion of a three-piece package of "must" legislation Nixon requested from the 92nd Congress when it convened in January, 1971. Congress—which is trying to adjourn at the end of this week—will not enact Nixon's welfare reform and government reorganization plans.

Thursday, the House gave final approval to the revenue sharing bill on a 256-110 roll call vote. The Senate is expected to approve it and send it to the White House for appropriate signing ceremonies.

According to figures announced earlier, the compromise measure provides Idaho $6.7 million, with $1.88 million going to Magic Valley counties and towns with more than 2,500 population.

In all, local governments in Idaho will receive $13.2 million.

A welfare reform bill approved by Nixon passed the House but was scrapped in the Senate in favor of a program that will test different approaches to welfare over the next four years.

The government reorganization plan, under which seven major agencies would have been merged into four, never got off the ground — even at committee levels — in either house.

The Treasury Department is geared to send checks to the 50 states and District of Columbia and some 38,000 localities before the month is out, as soon as Nixon signs the bill into law.

The first checks will total $2.6 billion covering the period Jan. 1, 1972, to June 30, 1972. Sharing checks for the next six months will go out in January.

A lump sum allotment goes to each state, with the state government keeping one third to spend as it sees fit and sending down the other two-thirds to its counties, cities, villages and townships where it has to be spent on items such as public safety, sewage plants and public transit systems.

Yank jets strike at Hanoi's edge

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. command sent F111A swing-wing fighter-bombers on raids only 10 miles from Hanoi Thursday night despite the controversy surrounding the bombing of the French and Algerian missions in the North Vietnamese capital, military spokesmen said today.

The command said the all-weather, radar-guided F111s bombed a missile factory 10 miles northeast of Hanoi then attacked other targets further north. Monsoons over much of North Vietnam again restricted the raids by more conventional U.S. warplanes but spokesmen in Saigon said "more than" 200 strikes were flown.

In ground action, Communist forces in South Vietnam overran the onetime U.S. Green Beret camp at Ben Het in the Central Highlands for the first time in the war after virtually destroying it with more than 1,500 rocket, mortar and artillery rounds, military sources said.

Viet Cong units also pressed a campaign north of Saigon into its second week today and clung to a string of hamlets north of the capital despite heavy bombing raids by South Vietnamese Air Force planes, field reports said.

The U.S. Command reported 12 B52 bomber missions around Saigon in the 24-hour period ending at noon today. The closest strikes to the capital were 27 miles northeast of the city, a communiqué said.

Six B52 missions were carried out over North Vietnam including two raids over the Mu Gia Pass, a major supply route connecting with the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos. Mu Gia is 75 miles northwest of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ).

U.S. spokesmen said an A1H Cobra helicopter gunship was shot down Thursday outside the rugged Que Son Valley on South Vietnam's upper coast. Although the chopper was destroyed, the two crewmen were rescued unharmed, spokesmen said.

The U.S. command also announced it was delaying the withdrawal of 170 American pilots and crewmen and the turnover to South Vietnam of the last 18 A37 Dragonfly jet bombers, apparently because of a renewed Communist threat in the Mekong Delta south of Saigon.

Military spokesmen said results of the F111 strikes on the Duc Thang missile assembly plant outside Hanoi "were not observed" because of the darkness and weather. The planes, which cost $15 million each, also attacked an ammunition dump 22 miles northwest of Hanoi along with an Army base, railroad causeway and military training center.

The Navy disclosed that the aircraft carrier Midway, whose jets may or may not have bombed the French and Algerian missions in Hanoi on Wednesday, left what the military calls Yankee Station in the Tonkin Gulf the following day for a "routine" port call.

About 500 defenders were at Ben Het, 280 miles north of Saigon near the triborder area of South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, when it fell Thursday. Military spokesmen said 140 of the men were spotted today by an observation plane southwest of the camp.

Military sources said at least nine South Vietnamese and eight dependents were killed and 18 others wounded in the fighting.

Nixon policy lauded

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda praised President Nixon's foreign policy today and said he looked a sure bet for reelection. It pictured Sen. George S. McGovern as a man constantly shifting his positions.

The newspaper's Washington correspondent, Boris Strelnikov, in a review of the presidential campaign so far, said despite an absence of enthusiasm among all American voters and a particular sense of disillusionment among Democrats and Republicans, "a vast majority of observers predict victory" for Nixon over McGovern.

"A primary reason for this is his known achievements in foreign policy," the correspondent said.

"First of all is Nixon's visit to Moscow when the basis of the present rapprochement was laid...this cooperation which developed now embraces a number of vital issues and favorably influences the American and Soviet peoples as well as the whole of mankind."

The report said public opinion polls recorded a sharp rise in Nixon's popularity even while his Moscow visit was in progress.

"The majority of local observers, representatives of business circles as well as common Americans believe that the conclusion of a trade treaty between the United States and the Soviet Union will also be chalked up as an asset for Nixon and the Republican party," Pravda said.

The correspondent said Nixon aides were crisscrossing the country concentrating on criticism of the McGovern proposals but avoiding "controversial and unsolved problems such as American aggression in Vietnam, price rises, unemployment and crime."

Flags for Navy

Navy day marked today

TWIN FALLS — Today is Navy Day, marking the 197th birthday of the United States Navy.

In Twin Falls the day was marked by placing of flags on Main Avenue and Shoshone Street.

Naval personnel and members of the Twin Falls Exchange Club met for a breakfast meeting prior to placing the flags.

The legislative birth of the U. S. Navy took place under the leadership of John Adams on Oct. 13, 1775, when Congress resolved that two vessels be fitted out for intercepting ships loaded with "warlike stores and other supplies for our enemies."

As the need for stronger naval forces became apparent, Congress decided upon a program of naval construction and in December of 1775, provision was made for 13 frigates. The modern nuclear Navy of today came from this beginning.

Navy Day brings to an end Navy Week, which was proclaimed by Gov. Cecil Andrus and Mayor John Christoffersen.

Expansion of commercial zoning proposed in TF

TWIN FALLS — County Planning and Zoning Board members have recommended expanding commercial zoning around the proposed K-Mart site just east of Twin Falls.

A request was submitted by property owners Glen Jenkins and Alvin Jenkins for extending the commercial zone for their property on Addison Avenue and Eastland Avenue to a total of 1,320 feet in depth.

The first 660 feet of the property is presently zoned for commercial for K-Mart use. This will allow the addition of other commercial establishments. This was one of several items to come before a public hearing Thursday night at the county courthouse.

Another zoning request was recommended for denial. This is the proposed zone change from agriculture to recreational on property owned by Robert Hamby near the town of Rock Creek. He had proposed building a small dirt auto race track. Board members asked the County to deny the request after hearing protests from adjoining property owners.

Boise Republican hopes Kennedy 'will explain'

By United Press International
Among political speeches and other political cries, the chairman of the Ada County Republican central committee said today he hopes Sen. Edward Kennedy takes the opportunity to explain some of "his reversals...on his positions on Vietnam" while in Boise.

Robert L. Luville, chairman, noted that Kennedy advocated as late as 1965 that America stay in the war to "meet its commitment."
Luville said he questioned Kennedy because he supported the war when a Democrat was President, but did not when a Republican was in office.
Stumping Pocatello meanwhile, Democratic Senate nominee William E. "Bud" Davis said he was amused to hear that the League of Women Voters and Field and Stream Magazine were part of a "liberal coalition out to get" his opponent, James A. McClure.

"He has even told people to ignore Ralph Nader's report on Congress which hasn't been published yet."

Press meet ends

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—The Inter-American Press Association (IAPA) ended its annual convention today with a warning that newspapers of the Western Hemisphere are in a serious crisis because of "persecution and hostility" and said even in the United States "a certain uneasiness exists."

The 230 delegates prepared what some members described as the most pessimistic report in its 30-year history. The organization said a free press existed in only a handful of hemisphere countries.

Meanwhile, leftwing newsmen wound up their Communist-sponsored counter-convention with a scheduled march on the IAPA suburban hotel to protest what they called the association's "provocations."

The army said, however, that it would probably prohibit the demonstration during the state of emergency decreed in Santiago and 12 other provinces in efforts to halt a nationwide truckers' strike.

The IAPA report said the Western Hemisphere press "is passing through one of the worst crisis periods in its history. Journalists are being threatened by regimes that do not respect human rights."

Church scores changes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, chairman of the Senate Committee on Aging, says congressional revamping of the Older Americans Act should result in a major improvement of federal programs serving the elderly.

The Idaho senator has earlier called this year for upgrading of the Administration of Aging — the agency created in 1965 when the original act was passed.

"At long last," Church said, "the Administration on Aging will be rescued from its obscurity down deep within the bureaucracy of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and given a position of visibility and significance."

He said the House-Senate bill will establish new special impact programs which will focus on high priority problems, including transportation, housing, and improved social services for elderly handicapped persons.

Two sites considered on mansion

BOISE (UPI) — Two sites mentioned Thursday by a committee studying the location of a governor's mansion were the Boise Highlands and the site of the about-to-be razed State Penitentiary.

According to Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy, an ex-officio member of the State Legislature's Executive Mansion Committee, said both of the sites consider homesites in Boise.

"It's a matter of efficiency and practicality," Murphy said. "The mansion's two main functions are to provide in-residence living quarters and to have enough size for official public gatherings."

No time limit has been imposed on relocating the mansion, but Murphy said he hoped a governor could move in "within the next few years."

Meet set in Boise

BOISE — The Idaho Association of Educational Office Personnel will hold an organizational meeting Saturday at Boise State College.

Educational office workers — men and women throughout Idaho, have been invited to attend the meeting, according to Mary Cozine, program chairman.

A thought for the day: The Roman poet Virgil said, "A fickle and changeable thing is woman ever."

Why Hanoi Balks At Paris

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A look back to the 1964 Geneva conference on Vietnam helps explain why a Paris settlement is proving so difficult in 1972. Consider these draft notes on 1964 as gathered by a friend now studying that period:

France was in Geneva for one purpose: to get out of Indochina with the least possible embarrassment or appearance of capitulation. What it had to offer was removal of the French expeditionary force. The Viet Minh were in Geneva to arrange to become the rulers of all Vietnam. What they had to offer was permission for the French to withdraw in peace. The French interest thus was military, the Viet Minh interest political. The Viet Minh strategy was to insist that a political settlement be reached before a military cease-fire.

The Soviet and Chinese delegates persuaded the Viet Minh to drop this strategy and discuss a cease-fire and withdrawal of the French before a political settlement was arranged. This was a basic tactical error by the Viet Minh. It was a sell-out by the Soviet and Chinese, who had been dealing separately and secretly with France in pursuit of their own interests. The effect was to nullify their Vietnamese ally's bargaining position.

The cease-fire was arranged and the military issue settled. The moment this was achieved, French purpose had been served. France had what it came to the conference to get — and so grew indifferent to future Vietnam political arrangements.

The Viet Minh no longer had bargaining power. Having granted France what it wanted, a military cease-fire, it had nothing more to offer.

Two documents came out of the conference. One, dealing with military affairs, was explicit and detailed on the technicalities of the cease-fire and separation of contending forces. The second document — the Final Declaration of the Geneva Conference on the Problems of Restoring Peace to Indochina — was not a legal paper nor in precise judicial language, hence was unclear and vague in key paragraphs, perhaps deliberately so.

It was not signed by anyone and was denounced, even as it was being issued, by the South Vietnamese government which had refused to attend the conference.

Even as the conference ended, influential Communists such as Le Duan were describing the conference as snatching defeat out of the jaws of victory.

But hope that events might turn out favorably for North Vietnam was kept alive for a time by the constantly reiterated Chinese and Russian assessment of the Indochina scene: North Vietnam powerful, monolithic and victorious, the government in the South weak, divided and under the discredited and ineffectual Bao Dai.

It could only be a matter of time before the South collapsed. But the South proved more durable than anticipated. Gradually the North Vietnamese leaders realized that the passing time was cheating them out of the fruits of victory. On this realization, like a cancer, grew the belief they had been betrayed. The heat of immense moral outrage forged a determined resolve to have what they felt was their rightful heritage.

This determination, or obsession, was to guide the men who had been at Geneva and who charted the course of the next decade: Toward all outsiders, permanent distrust; toward indispensable allies — China and Russia — constant suspicion and a search for secret revenge.

Is it any wonder Moscow and Peking are finding it extremely difficult to pressure Hanoi into making peace in Paris?

Making A President

The next President and his running mate for vice-president of the United States will be elected when the presidential electors meet in the capitals of each of the states and the District of Columbia. It is they, not the candidates, who will be elected on Nov. 7.

Under the Constitution, they will be free to vote for whomever they please and their choice will not become a matter of legal record until the state ballots are opened at a joint session of Congress early in January.

There are many who regard the Electoral College as an anachronism. But unlike years when the popular vote for President was closely divided, or when a candidate obtained an Electoral College majority with only a minority of the popular vote, this time there is likely to be no revival of the demand for the Electoral College's abolition.

The method of choosing the President was one of the most difficult problems of the constitutional convention of 1787. One group favored election by Congress, another by the state legislators or governors, and a third by direct popular vote.

For reasons that were discussed exhaustively at Philadelphia and, after 185 years, still have the validity in the opinion of many political students, all these methods were rejected.

The Electoral College, in which each state is given as many electors as it has members in Congress, to be chosen as the state legislatures determine, was regarded by such authorities as Madison and Hamilton as a victory for those who had advocated direct election of the President.

The theory of some historians that the presidential electors were to make the choice according to their own will and best judgment is not supported by the declarations of the convention delegates.

They took it for granted the electors would reflect the views of the voters.

After the 1960 election a Senate Judiciary subcommittee held hearings on proposals to alter or abolish the Electoral College. The committee found no popular support for anything drastic.

Despite its shortcomings, the Electoral College seems destined to go on as now constituted. Long discussion has shown the impossibility of obtaining agreement on an alternative, or even on the need for an alternative. — OAK.

On Marriage

WASHINGTON — For the first time, it has been conclusively proved that the United States loses 34 million man-hours of work each week due to fights between husbands and wives.

Prof. Heinrich Applebaum of the Institute for Advanced Marital Development has just completed a study on marriage disputes and their effect on the gross national product.

"My study," Prof. Applebaum told me, "indicates that production is affected even more by domestic fights than alcoholism."

"How can that be?"

"For some reason, which we still have not been able to determine, the American wife prefers to start all fights with her husband at bedtime. These fights, which last on the average of two or three hours, prevent the man from getting any sleep. The next day he is completely useless at his job, causing accidents, grave errors in bookkeeping and making horrible decisions in a groggy state of mind."

"That's serious," I admitted.

"We suspected it all along," Applebaum said. "But now we have the data to back it up. This is a case history of a typical American couple in Detroit whom we followed through from dinner time one evening to lunch the next day."

"Saxby came home at 6 p.m., had a dry martini, watched the evening news and then shared delicious dinner with his wife and three children. After dinner he took a bath, read the evening paper and watched the Dean Martin Show. The wife did the dishes, called her mother, took her bath and read a chapter of 'The Godfather'."

"Mr. Saxby said, 'Good night, dear. I have an early meeting tomorrow — with some subcontractors to discuss a very important matter.'"

"Mrs. Saxby said, 'Good night, dear.'"

"Five minutes later Mrs. Saxby asked, 'Why don't you ever talk to me?'"

"Saxby who was just dozing off responded, 'Huh?'"

"You never talk to me any more. You have an awful lot to say to your friends, but you don't have anything to say to me."

"I talk to you," Saxby said, getting a good grip on his pillow. "We talk all the time."

"But you never say anything. You don't talk to your children, either. As far as we're concerned, you're just a boarder here."

"Saxby rolled over on his stomach. 'You're right, I should talk more to all of you. Good night, dear.'"

"That's typical of you," Mrs.

Saxby said, lighting a cigarette. "You think you can just end a discussion by saying I'm right. It doesn't wash any more. You won't even talk to me now."

"I'd love to talk to you," Saxby said, "but it's midnight and I have this meeting with the subcontractors tomorrow."

"Of course. Your work is so much more important than your home life. Why don't you just move into the office and forget about us?"

"Saxby started punching the pillow. 'Look, I tell you what. Why don't I come home early from work tomorrow and we'll discuss it then?'"

"I want to discuss it now. Tomorrow it might not bother me."

Worst Ever

The new United Nations building promises maximum security for everyone inside. The skyscraper they hope to complete in 1975 will provide every necessity for the diplomats and others who work there. They can work, confer, live, eat, shop and swim without leaving the premises.

But one major "insecurity" is overlooked. Builders are having second thoughts about "progress." The first international conference on high-rise building brought 570 engineers, architects, designers, builders, officials and skeptics of the humanities from 44 nations to Bethlehem, Pa. Lehigh, the host university, overflowed.

With overcrowded cities almost everywhere reaching upward for more growing room, many of these experts are anxious, fearful that our reach exceeds our grasp.

The concern of the delegation from France was mostly with aesthetic considerations. The Eiffel Tower is dwarfed and becoming obscured by skyscrapers, negating the historic architectural congruity of the once lovely city.

By decree the government of France has now limited the future buildings in the central zone to a height of 82 feet and is considering knocking the tops off some existing higher buildings.

A Tokyo builder reported comparable objection there to the towers which have begun to hide picturesque Mt. Fuji.

There were expressions of concern for the physiological effect on occupants of a high rise — vibration, swaying, acrophobia, claustrophobia.

Noted Chicago psychiatrist

The case history said the Saxbys stayed awake until 3 o'clock in the morning discussing not only why Saxby didn't talk to his wife but also an old girlfriend that Saxby had before he was married, a questionable joke Saxby had told at a dinner party the previous week, a poker game Saxby had gone to a year ago and the fact that he had missed his 17-year-old daughter's birthday party when she was 3 years old.

The next morning, according to the case history, Saxby was so sleepy he made a mistake on the subcontracting job, and three months later the Ford Motor Co. had to recall 1 million cars.

Dr. Bruno Bettelheim says, "What's functional is not necessarily beautiful, else Romanesque or Gothic cathedrals would have to look alike."

He says "architectural honesty is widely acclaimed because it saves money, but a warehouse may not be a suitable habitation for humans."

Then the pragmatic engineers presented their case for the prosecution. They said "glass houses on stilts" may be in. He says "architectural honesty is widely acclaimed because it saves money, but a warehouse may not be a suitable habitation for humans."

Then the pragmatic engineers presented their case for the prosecution. They said "glass houses on stilts" may be in. He says "architectural honesty is widely acclaimed because it saves money, but a warehouse may not be a suitable habitation for humans."

San Francisco, alone of all American cities, limits the height of all buildings. Over the bodies of 452 San Franciscans in April of 1906, that city learned to respect the unpredictable.

Most cities with no quake history don't worry about it. Chicago is presently completing the tallest commercial building in the world.

Yet public records are very inadequate, most date back less than 100 years.

And each year you hear of your own city's weather setting some "new record" for heat or cold or drought or rain or wind or snow or something. To predict tomorrow's construction on such limited records of nature's tantrums is a calculated gamble which at least some engineers are beginning to advise against.

Common Fungus

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My grandson, six weeks old, has suffered with a condition known as thrush or "white mouth" since birth. The doctor recommended a purple medicine which doesn't seem effective.

Can you tell me the cause of thrush, and if there is a more effective remedy? — Mrs. C. F. T.

Thrush is a mouth infection caused by a fungus, and it is not uncommon. The fungus is everywhere, and can occur in the cleanest of nurseries — although these days the ailment is reported to be decreasing in frequency.

Careful cleansing of the mother's breasts can help if the baby is breast-fed; bottle nipples should be cleaned as carefully in the case of bottle babies.

The "purple medicine" without question was a solution of gentian violet, which is the standard treatment for thrush and usually is effective within a few days. Thrush can recur, requiring repetition of the treatment.

In a case continuing for six weeks, one might suspect that a secondary infection is involved, and antibiotic treatment might be necessary if the secondary infection is of a bacterial nature.

Thrush is an ailment which affects the newborn or infants in the immediately following period; it must be assumed that in some cases the infection is acquired as baby moves through the birth canal.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A doctor in Colorado told me that sinus trouble and all types of headaches were caused by an allergy. What is your opinion on that? And please send your booklet, "You Can Stop Sinus Trouble," for which I enclose 25 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. — Mrs. C.R.S.

If the doctor said that SOME headaches and SOME cases of sinus trouble were caused by allergies, he'd have been entirely right. Are you sure that isn't the way he worded it?

Specifically, allergy can be extremely important to sinus sufferers, causing swelling of the tissues, irritation, heavy flow of mucus, and in such cases it is relatively fruitless to try other kinds of treatment rather than attacking the allergy.

Desensitization treatments can help; so can judicious use of antihistamines; but the real key to the problem in such cases is to find out what things touch off the allergies, and then make every effort to stay away from them.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Newsboys And Girls

Newspaperboy — and girl — Day on Saturday is observed in recognition of that little army of independent businessmen and businesswomen that brings your paper to your door.

Those delivering the Times-News just have to be the cream of the crop. But it is not mere coincidence that many Americans prominent in business, professional, political and scientific circles utter words of praise of these boys and girls and what they are doing. Many of the people giving such praise were once delivering papers themselves.

Serving the public, often under unfavorable weather conditions, newspaperboys and girls already are applying classroom training to affairs of business.

They are learning the meaning of courtesy and service as they serve their customers, the newspaper readers of the Magic Valley — and of America. They know the meaning of integrity, diligence and dedication.

Newspapers over the land are proud of their carrier boys and girls and their patrons have reason to be grateful for the day-by-day service they perform.

ON OCTOBER

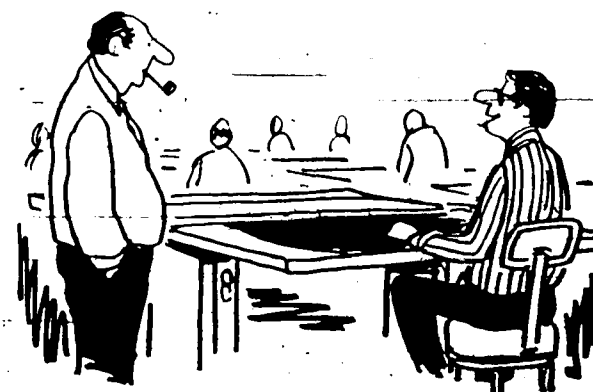

By tradition and practice October has become the leading month for fire prevention awareness. It is the time of year when safety drives are mounted, fire companies make their annual appeals and the public is urged to do itself a favor by undertaking its own fire prevention drive in the home.

Historically, October's position in the campaign seems to stem from the Great Chicago Fire, which occurred in the month. But there is another, more practical, reason for concentrating on this phase of home safety at this season of the year.

Fall is also traditionally house-cleaning time. The time to delve into all the postponed chores related to making the home a more enjoyable place of family activity. Cleaning out the closets while replacing seasonal clothing is a good idea. Going through accumulated boxes and storing in more orderly fashion or discarding items not really needed is part of good housekeeping.

Keeping in mind a few fire safety rules can make the task easier. Combustible materials call for special attention, especially if there are youngsters in the house.

A lawyer

may have delivered
your newspaper today

Newspaper route management: There's a future in it.

Or a doctor. Or an accountant.
Or president of the whole United States.

Of course, we're talking about the future—but a carrier is laying the groundwork for his future NOW. Because he is a carrier, he has the stuff that makes for success.

He's managing a business of his own. That's what a newspaper route is all about. He is learning the lessons of responsibility and promptness and courtesy. And how to make a profit.

That profit, chances are, he is banking away. To use when he will need it. For something important, like college and a professional career, perhaps. To become the lawyer who once delivered your newspaper, and learned a great deal while doing it.

So congratulate a future lawyer. Or future doctor. Or spaceman.

Congratulate him the next time he comes around to deliver or collect for your newspaper.

Idahoans hear hopefuls

By United Press International
Pocatello, Sandpoint, Priest River and Rigby were the hubs of Idaho's political action Thursday, as candidates took their campaigns to all four corners of the state.

Stumping Pocatello, Democratic Senate nominee William E. (Bud) Davis said he was amused to hear that the League of Women Voters and Field and Stream Magazine were part of a "liberal coalition out to get" his opponent, James A. McClure.

"It amuses me that Mr. McClure would attempt to lump such diverse groups as the League of Women Voters, Field and Stream Magazine and columnist Jack Anderson under a 'liberal' label in order to discredit the low ratings they've all given him," Davis said, referring to statements made by McClure at a candidates fair Oct. 9 at the University of Idaho.

"He has even told people to ignore Ralph Nader's report on Congress which hasn't been published yet."

Farther north in Priest River, meanwhile, Republican Senate candidate James A. McClure and campaign workers wound up the fourth day of their campaign swing through the state.

The three-week trip will take them from the U. S.-Canadian border to the Wyoming and Utah state lines.

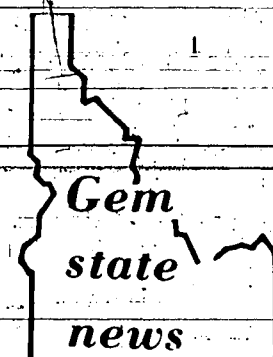

McClure said the factor most noticeable in decisions concerning withdrawal of national forest lands is the absence of information from those persons most directly involved.

"Idahoans were concerned about the environment long before it became politically popular elsewhere, but then, Idaho had a lot more to lose than other states," he said.

"The answer lies in striking a balance that will allow our sons and daughters to find jobs in Idaho while still being able to enjoy the natural beauty that we have here and to preserve that same beauty for the generations yet to come," McClure added.

Congressional candidate Ed Williams, in response to his opponent's proposal to selling off BLM lands to private enterprise, told a Sandpoint audience Thursday the lands are "a precious outdoor playground available to every citizen in the state."

"The Meridian Democrat said the public lands also provide wildlife and open spaces for unlimited recreation and livestock grazing, 'all for the benefit of everyone.'"

Aging bill gets nod

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church Thursday said that congressional revamping of the older Americans act could result in a major improvement of federal programs serving the elderly.

Church, chairman of the Senate Committee on Aging, has called earlier this year for upgrading of the Administration on Aging, the agency created in 1965 when the original older Americans act was passed.

Commenting on House-Senate conference committee approval of a new bill broadening, and extending that act, Church said:

"At long last, the Administration on Aging will be rescued from its obscurity down deep within the bureaucracy of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and given a position of visibility and significance."

Bax recommends decertification

BOISE (UPI) — The administrator of the Idaho Department of Environmental Protection and Health says he is "tired of being conned" and will recommend decertification of a Caldwell nursing home.

and the Social Security Administration of the center's refusal to cooperate, urging the federal agencies to decertify the health facility as a Medicaid and Medicare provider.

"I'm sick and tired of being conned," Dr. James Bax told a news conference in his office. "Everytime I go back to the center (Mountain View Caldwell Convalescent Center), I see things getting worse, even though the officials there tell me differently."

Last week, Bax sought injunctive relief in Third District Court against the home after filing a complaint listing some 50 instances of patient mistreatment.

Wednesday, the court continued the case indefinitely for further investigation.

Bax said he visited the center earlier this week, saying he saw elderly patients with festering bed sores from unchanged wet sheets.

"That did it. Their conditions, the smell, the lack of care — you wouldn't believe it," he said.

The Caldwell facility is owned and operated by Northwest Health Care, Inc., a California-based subsidiary of Flag Industries. The firm owns six nursing homes in Idaho.

Bax said Thursday he has notified the Department of Health, Education and Welfare

Hospitalized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eleanor McGovern was hospitalized with stomach pains in Washington Thursday night after campaigning in Frederick, Md., for her husband, Democratic presidential nominee George S. McGovern.

Mrs. McGovern's doctor, Dr. Lawn Thompson Jr., took her to Georgetown University Hospital for observation. He said today she was resting comfortably after what he described as stomach cramps and probably would be released later today.

A spokesman for Mrs. McGovern said she experienced pains before going to Frederick, 40 miles west of Washington, and the pains intensified after she attended a Democratic Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner. She has been conducting an intensive national campaign, separate from her husband's, in behalf of his White House candidacy.

Nixon feels victorious

WASHINGTON (UPI) — His spirits buoyed by a big and friendly crowd in Atlanta, President Nixon went back to his White House desk today more convinced than ever that although he enjoys campaigning, he can win this year without doing much of it.

"This sort of thing is enjoyable—the chance to see people—I'll do as much of it as I can," Nixon said Thursday after riding down Peachtree Street past a host of admirers. "But I want to be President first."

Nixon's political game plan for this is to stay above the partisan rough and tumble as much as possible, descending to the hustings just often enough to make sure no one forgets he is a candidate for re-election. His overwhelming lead in the public opinion polls indicates the strategy is working.

With his only campaign trip in two weeks behind him, Nixon turned to a White House schedule which included a private meeting with National Security Advisor Henry A. Kissinger and Secretary of State William P. Rogers to discuss Kissinger's five days of talks with North Vietnamese peace negotiators.

Nixon's campaign committee has purchased time for another nationwide radio speech this weekend.

Nixon's motorcade along Atlanta's famed Peachtree Street through a blizzard of shredded paper thrown from the windows of buildings produced by far the largest crowd to see the President since he began his formal re-election efforts.

The size of the throng is in question. A police captain estimated it at 700,000 and a fire department battalion commander put the figure at 500,000. Both estimates are probably far too high—the population of the entire Atlanta metropolitan area is just 1.4 million—but it seems certain that more than 100,000 persons lined the motorcade route.

The crowd was overwhelmingly friendly to the President despite a well organized group of hecklers who paraded with some of the most imaginative anti-Nixon placards seen so far. One sign read "Welcome President Harding" on one side and "Teapot Dome '72" on the other. Another sign read "You can fool all of the people some of the time, right Dick?"

Both the President's backers and his detractors were very well behaved. Most of them stayed behind a rope barricade and made no attempt to surge around his car. Nixon got out of the car just once to shake a few of the outstretched hands.

The President's only speech of the day was an invitation only gathering of about 250 Republican party workers and Nixon campaign officials from 10 southern states—Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Florida, North Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia. Nixon carried five of those states in 1968 while Alabama Gov. George Wallace won the other five. The President appears to be far ahead this year in all 10.

Nixon noted that Republicans once wrote off the South while Democrats took it for granted. Those days, he said, are gone for good. He could have added, although he chose not to, that in this year Democratic presidential nominee George S. McGovern has all but written off the South.

"The issues in the South are the same as in the rest of the country," Nixon said. "Did you know that busing is a much hotter issue today in Michigan than it is in Alabama?"

"This doesn't mean that people in Michigan are racist any more than people in Alabama," he said. "What people in both Michigan and Alabama want is a better education for their children and that better education will come in the school nearest their home and not clear across town."

up on efforts to pass this year a measure sharply restricting Senate anti-busing forces gave court ordered school busing.

Big crowds encouraging for McGovern

SEATTLE (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern feels "very encouraged" that he can complete a political miracle and defeat President Nixon, but his top strategists concede it will take a virtual sweep of the big electoral states in the North.

"We're all convinced we're on the way," McGovern said Thursday carrying his campaign from the East Coast to the West Coast. "I'm still the underdog but we're moving very fast now."

He added, "It's a real feeling. I'm very encouraged. The feeling, he said, was based on the record-breaking crowds that have met him in places like Erie, Pa., Boston, and Minneapolis.

"I think the evidence is there," he said. "If most people thought this was a futile effort, we wouldn't be able to fill those city squares time after time."

His strategists say, however, that McGovern is still a "long shot" and that everything has to come together in the final 3-12 weeks, especially in the states with the big chunks of electoral votes.

McGovern's private polls now show him an average 12 points behind Nixon in the eight states with the most electoral votes: California, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Texas and New Jersey. That figure is comparable to the 16 point average revealed by the most recent Harris survey.

Of these eight states, McGovern's best prospects are in California where the personal poll shows the two presidential candidates even. The poll indicates he is in the worst shape in Texas, although no percentage figure is given.

McGovern must carry New York state to win, according to the scenario, but he could lose one of the other eight big states and still defeat Nixon.

In addition, the McGovern camp is counting on such states as Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut in the northeast. McGovern has said that if Nixon takes those three New England states, the President is headed for a landslide.

The McGovern campaign is also looking at Minnesota and Wisconsin, with a long shot possibility in Iowa, Oregon and Washington are possibilities on the West Coast, along with California.

McGovern begins a three-day campaign today on the West Coast before heading for Texas for two days. He will campaign today in Seattle and in Portland, Ore., before heading for San Francisco, San Diego, and Los Angeles.

An aide pointed out that in 1968 Hubert H. Humphrey was even further behind Nixon at this stage of the campaign but came within a percentage point of winning when his campaign finally jelled in the last 10 days.

Had it not been for the Eagleton affair, the McGovern camp feels that the presidential race would now be a virtual deadlock.

McGovern said his campaign was now turning to its rewire point—state-wide telethons with the first one in Minneapolis Thursday night—and an elaboration of the issues through half-hour nationwide television programs.

Agnew quotes Humphrey attack

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Vice President Spiro Agnew said Thursday no critic of George McGovern has been more eloquent than fellow Democrat Sen. Hubert Humphrey in attacking McGovern's proposals on national defense.

Agnew said Humphrey himself has stated if McGovern were elected president, his proposals would result in idle factories, increased unemployment and dying communities.

Agnew said Humphrey had called McGovern's proposals "dangerous to the best interests of our national security."

The vice president spent the night in Oklahoma City during a campaign trip through the Southwest. Earlier Thursday he spoke in Roswell, N.M., where he pledged the administration's desire for Indian "self determination."

"Just as the President seeks to return power to state and local governments, he offers Indians the opportunity to exercise greater control over their own affairs," Agnew said at a downtown rally.

"The programs that this administration has designed to assist minorities have won common purpose—self-sufficiency," he said.

English uproar on immigration

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

BLACKPOOL, England (UPI) — It was pandemonium. Seldom had the likes of it been seen at a convention of Britain's normally well-mannered Conservative party.

"This government has broken its pledges on immigration," said Enoch Powell Thursday, gripping the lectern so hard his knuckles were white.

Powell, the maverick former Conservative government cabinet member who broke with Prime Minister Edward Heath over race and colored immigration, stood white-faced and defiant at the rostrum.

Above him on the platform Heath and his ministers sat grim and unsmiling.

From throughout the hall welled up waves of cheering, booing, catcalls and stamping.

A noisy group of Young Conservative Association members hung a banner from the balcony with the words: "A Promise Kept."

Middle-aged ladies in flowery hats applauded ecstatically.

Red-faced retired colonels bellowed "that's the stuff."

"Liar, boo," roared back Young Conservatives.

"It would take a braver man than me to get down among this crowd," remarked conference chairman William Harris.

Heath pursed his mouth — looking angry and flushed.

"The pledge to assist all those immigrants who wish to return home has been broken in a way that can only be described as cynical," Powell snapped. "The electors will not forgive a party which averts its gaze or a government which leaves its promises unfulfilled."

He stepped down to return to his seat. His supporters started an ovation. Anti-Powellites booed furiously.

It took Home Secretary Robert Carr to take the heat out of the meeting.

"I reaffirm unequivocally that the government is determined to control immigration even more strongly. But it also is determined to honor to the full its obligations to the British Asians from Uganda," he said, referring to 50,000 Asians holding British passports and who have been expelled from the African nation.

Amid fresh uproar a resolution backing the government's immigration policies and its decision to give refuge to the Uganda Asians was passed by a large show-of-hands majority.

Diehard Powell supporters shouted for a roll call vote. But it went against them 1,721 to 736.

"That is as much as I could have hoped for," Powell said later.

Aleutian quake

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—A strong earthquake in the region of Fox Island in the Aleutian chain was recorded Thursday night by the University of California seismographic station in Berkeley.

The quake was recorded at 9:42 p.m. and registered 5.3 on the Richter scale of 10, a station spokesman said.

The quake was located in the vicinity of Fox Island, which is in the Aleutian chain of Alaska, he said.

Although the quake was described as "strong," the spokesman said it was not likely to have caused any serious damage.

COMMISSIONER OSWALD presents ideas

NY rebellion planned, state aide declares

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—State Corrections Commissioner Russell G. Oswald, who ordered the storming of Attica, says the rebellion there last year was carefully planned by inmates who hoped to set off a massive, nationwide revolution.

Oswald's statement, presented in a book released today which details Oswald's version of the riot, is in direct contradiction to the conclusion reached by the McKay Commission. That commission concluded after one year of study that the uprising in September, 1971, was spontaneous and there was no conspiracy among the inmates to riot.

In the 418-page book, "Attica My Story," published by Doubleday, Oswald defends his and the state's actions during the five-day rebellion which claimed 43 lives. All but a very few of the 32 prisoners and 11 hostages who died during the rebellion were killed when prison guards and state police stormed the prison on Oswald's orders.

Oswald said the rioting prisoners believed that, "if we reacted, then black and white crowds, especially youth, would riot in the cities and tie down the National Guard; the prisons might even be broken into from the outside as was the Bastille in the days of the French Revolution, and the blacks in the regular United States Army would be tested in their loyalties."

"What really happened at Attica was that they sounded a call for a revolution—and nobody came," he said.

Nixon aides to appear in trial

MIAMI (UPI)—Three of President Nixon's top money men—Maurice Stans, Kenneth Dahlberg and Hugh Sloan—were ordered Thursday to appear in the trial of Bernard L. Barker, one of the "Watergate five."

Criminal Court Judge Paul Baker signed extradition papers for the three Republicans, ordering them to appear as material witnesses in the Oct. 30 trial of Barker, a 55-year-old Cuban born Miami man accused of misusing his notary public seal on a $25,000 check.

Barker and four other men were arrested last June in connection with the break-in at the Democratic National headquarters in the Watergate apartment complex in Washington.

The extradition orders noted that the appearance of the three, all past or present officers in the Committee to Re-elect the President, could "not be secured voluntarily."

The order calls for Stans, Dahlberg and Sloan to be in Miami by 9 a.m. Oct. 26th for a pretrial conference.

"They will be needed for approximately 12 days unless sooner released by the court," Baker said in his order.

The 12 days would end Nov. 7th election day.

Barker is accused of using his notary public seal to fraudulently acknowledge Dahlberg's signature on a $25,000 cashiers check which was part of $108,000 in deposits that went through Barker's Miami bank account prior to the Watergate incident.

Israeli warning

By United Press International
Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir warned Thursday that Israel, despite what she called worldwide indifference, has no intention of letting Arab guerrilla terrorism against Israelis persist.

Addressing mourners at a Tel Aviv memorial service for the 11 members of the Israeli Olympic delegation killed by Palestinian guerrillas Sept. 5 in Munich, she said the days of shedding tears for Israeli targets of Arab terrorists may be numbered.

"We shall see to it that the lives of everyone of us, in every corner of the world, shall be safe," Mrs. Meir said.

Mohammed Hassanein Heikal, editor of Egypt's semi-official Al-Ahram newspaper, called today in Cairo for a new phase of Egyptian-Soviet relations based on "friendship and cooperation" and blamed the current rift between the two countries on the United States.

Heikal in his weekly column said the Cairo-Moscow tension was the fault of the United States, which, he claimed, blocked a Middle East peace settlement and pressured the Soviet Union into curtailing its arms shipments to Egypt.

Mrs. Meir said mankind has yet to understand that worldwide apathy toward guerrilla attacks on Israelis could lead to a situation where no one would be safe anywhere. "I hope now it understands," she said.

"Whoever looks indifferently when they kill Jews, when they hijack Israeli aircraft and think that thus it will end, makes a grave mistake," the prime minister said. "If they permit Arab murderers to think that the world remains indifferent when Israeli blood is spilled, the whole world becomes a no man's land."

Pennsylvania teachers end remaining strikes

By United Press International
New wage contracts were negotiated Thursday night in the last two remaining teacher strikes in Pennsylvania.

Approximately 160 public school teachers in the Clairton School District near here ratified a new three-year wage contract, and classes for the district's 3,000 students were to resume today.

A new two-year contract was agreed on by negotiators for the faculty and the board of trustees at the Philadelphia Community College.

The 220 faculty members, who went on strike five weeks ago, were to vote on the agreement during the weekend, and faculty negotiators said approval was likely. In that event, classes were to resume for the college's 6,000 students Monday or Tuesday.

In Conkhin, N.Y., a strike by members of the Susquehanna

Valley Teachers Association continued despite a court order. A union spokesman said picket lines were being manned at the district's schools, where officials attempted to conduct classes with substitute teachers and parents.

A temporary restraining order against the strike, which began last Friday, was issued Wednesday. More than 3,000 students were affected.

In Hempstead, N.Y., 270 teachers in the Roosevelt District on Long Island stayed off their jobs for the second straight day, ignoring a court order to return to work.

The New York disputes centered on wages. The Clairton teachers walked off the job Aug. 28. Details of their new agreement were not disclosed.

The Philadelphia settlement was announced by Judge Harry Takiff, who entered the negotiations after student groups filed for an injunction.

Rate hike sought

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. (ATT) plans to seek increases of 10 to 15 per cent in nationwide telephone rates over the next three or four years, a spokesman said Thursday.

He said rates will be increased by individual operating companies' local telephone companies, most of which are partially owned by ATT.

Increases would be sought, the spokesman said, in monthly telephone charges, long distance rates and installation charges, which may be more than doubled. He said existing charges of $15 to $25 may be increased to $40 to $45.

Bomb explodes

NETANYA, Israel (UPI)—A bomb apparently planted by Arab guerrillas exploded outside a crowded bank at this seaside resort today in the second such attack in Israel in two weeks. Police said no one was hurt.

First reports by witnesses said the bomb exploded inside the bank and injured several persons. Police erroneously announced that version before investigation.

Policemen raced to the scene and took dozens of Arabs into custody, including one who was attacked by bank customers following the explosion.

MANSFIELD, Ohio (UPI)—The main Fisher body stamping plant of General Motors Corp. was paralyzed here today at 12:01 a.m. (EDT) when 2,350 members of United Auto Workers Local 549 walked out in a dispute over work standards.

Continuation of the strike will result in the curtailment of nearly the entire automotive production throughout the corporation, and also affect many thousands of outside firms, a GM spokesman said.

Third-shift workers walked out after negotiators failed to reach agreement in a day-long bargaining session. The strike

DEAR ABBY: About that man who sang to his tomatoes. I can top that. I read poetry to my corn.

After planting the seeds for sweetcorn, I got out my Shakespeare, turned to Julius Caesar and improvised: "Sunshine, bumble bees and cornstalks lend me your ears."

And believe me, it works. If you wish, I will send you a picture of the corn as it is now, growing rapidly in a flower box on my front porch. I hope you won't think this is too corny to print. KERNEL SAM GUGGENHEIM, ROCHESTER, N. Y.

DEAR SAM: Never mind the picture. I'm a sucker for corn, so send me your ears?

The late Charles Lockett of St. Louis was one of the great players of the west in the 30s and 40s. His first appearance in the east occurred in 1934 when the late Ely Culbertson brought teams from over the country to New York to play in his Grand National championship.

Matches were at total points and Charley, sitting South, was playing against a couple of eastern experts.

Charley wanted to play a slam after his partner's raise to four hearts. He also saw little chance that he would get to play it. Those easterners weren't vulnerable and held the spades.

Charley thought some more and finally decided to charge them the limit if they wanted to defend. He jumped right to seven hearts.

West thought and thought and then thought a little more. Finally the pressure was too much. He sacrificed at seven spades.

The loss was only 700 points, four tricks.

The swing turned out to be considerable. At the other table South just went to five hearts. West and North passed and East bid five spades. South went to six hearts and this time East and West passed.

South was just where he wanted to be but six hearts didn't quite make. South had to lose a spade and a club.

Violence may end strike

FRESNO (UPI) — Farm Workers Union leader Cesar Chavez has been reported ready to call off a strike against White River Vineyards if violent incidents continue.

Union Vice President Dolores Huerta said Wednesday that Chavez, a professed pacifist, has been warning union members in the community of Poplar to stay non-violent or face expulsion from the union.

The seven-week-old strike has been marred by more than 200 arrests and numerous incidents of beatings, sniper fire and arson-caused blazes. The union has accused White River of "Ku Klux Klan tactics," while the firm has accused the union of "gestapo tactics."

Ballet enjoyed by large crowd

By TEDDY TAVENNER
Special to the Times-News
TWIN FALLS Wednesday evening the Ballet West fulfilled every promise of artistry and pleasure possible in such a youthful company.

The (SI Fine Arts Building was filled with a capacity audience which obviously enjoyed the entire performance.

The program began with Serenade, choreographed by George Dalanchaine. The troop understood and interpreted Dalanchaine's lyric quality and classical techniques well.

In true Dalanchaine style, he used his male dancers to display the beauty and poetry of the female dancers, without having them lose any of their strength and masculinity.

The youthful dancers were compelling in their concentration beautifully exquisite lifts and devotion to stylized tradition.

In lieu of an orchestra

Review

recorded music was used. It is too bad that Ballet West cannot have a live orchestra. We realize the cost would be prohibitive, but the tempo and dramatic assistance that can be given by an understanding and aware orchestra conductor could have helped the individual performance immeasurably.

However, there is no question that a symphonic recording is to be preferred over a bad or ill-rehearsed orchestra.

The Eternal Idol was the highlight of the evening. Michael Smuin's choreography drew inspiration from the sculptures of Rodin and featured Ballet West's stars, Janice James and Tomin Ruud. When the curtain opens, Miss James and Mr. Ruud appear as nude, beige-gold marble images within the larger marble mass typical of many of Rodin's works.

Michael Smuin's sensitive interpretation called for a beautiful fluid style. The Eternal Idol can be described as poetic, tender, warm, gentle — words associated with the turn of the century attitude toward love.

It has the enchantment of a true period piece. The production was made possible by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

In Pas de Dix George Dalanchaine gives the entire company the opportunity to display their particular abilities.

And each of the variations become progressively more intricate ending in the finale by the ensemble. Bruce Caldwell and Patricia Razow were especially outstanding among the entire troupe of well-disciplined, delightful dancers. The program, although charming, was not too challenging and needed a little more drama and excitement. According to the program put out by Ballet West, they have a large repertoire from which to choose. We were told that the stage did not have the proper facilities for a more encompassing ballet. This does not seem to be sufficient excuse when there are so many contemporary no-scenery ballets that depend upon dramatic ability and dynamic choreography that could have been included.

Maybe next time. It is impossible to estimate the tremendous impression the Ballet West company made upon the school children who attended the matinee performance. For this alone, the citizens of Magic Valley must be especially grateful to District 5 Junior Music Clubs for sponsoring and matching the funds given by the Arts and Humanities Commission for these two performances.

New well ordered for valley school

SPRINGDALE — A Health department official ordered a new water well drilled for Springdale Elementary School after he inspected the building and its facilities Thursday.

Allan Bierman, of the South Central District Health Department, Twin Falls, toured the school at the request of the Cassia County School Board.

The trustees wanted his recommendations concerning corrective action proposed at an emergency board meeting Wednesday evening. A resolution passed at the meeting called for the temporary tapping of an uncontaminated source of water for the school and for a new sewage disposal system to be built at a safe distance from the presently contaminated water well.

It was hoped that the relocation of the sewage system would allow the well to cleanse itself and eliminate the need for drilling another.

But, according to Supt. Harold Blauer, who accompanied Bierman, the health worker said a new well must be drilled outside the school building. The present well is located inside the school walls near the rear basement exit.

Bierman also stymied the school district's plans to pipe clean water to the school on a temporary basis from the nearby Springdale LDS Church. Blauer said Bierman's rejection of the plan was apparently the result of a new health code which demands above-ground water storage.

But an alternative was offered, according to Blauer, when Bierman said the school could temporarily station a water tank outside the building until the new well was completed. provided the tank water was checked and approved by the health department.

The tank water solution was used Tuesday by the school after the health department's condemnation of the well, but was discontinued when a health official informed Blauer that the water had not been tested.

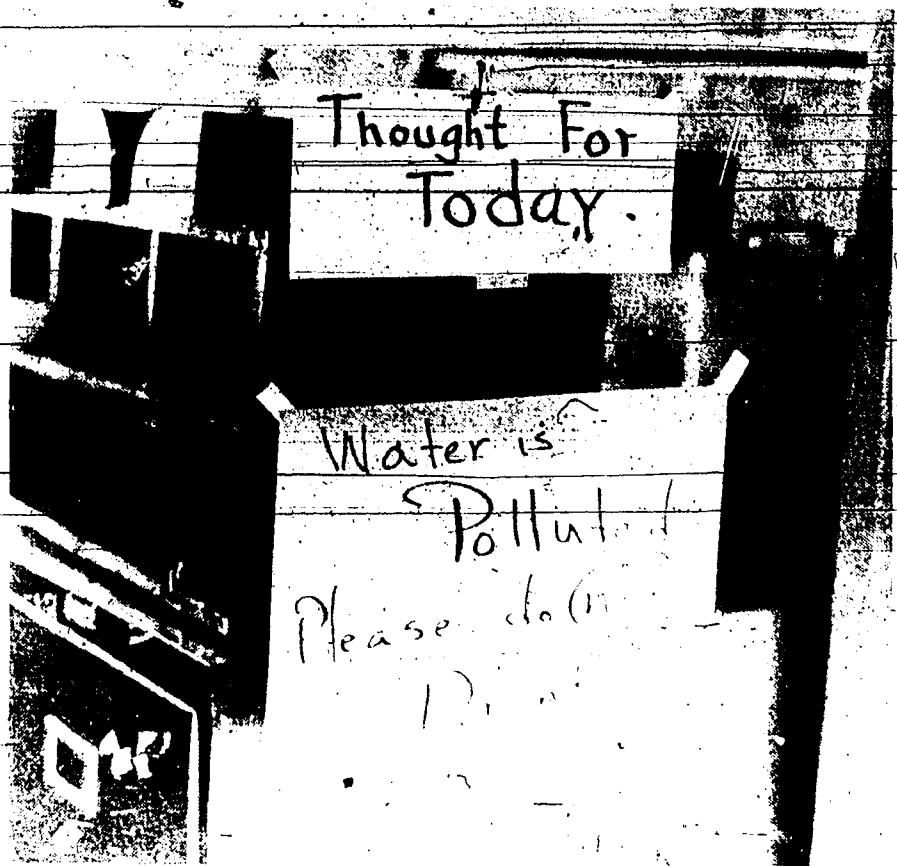

Bierman boosted hopes of reopening the school when he said sewage could be pumped from the school's basement restrooms and lunchroom to the new septic tank. The health department had formerly recommended moving the facilities upstairs to guard against sewage backup that had flooded basement floors. The state agency's letter condemning the water supply also mentioned the sewage backup and attributed it to high sub-surface water which reversed the flow of the sewage system.

A proposed change of the sewage drain field from the rear to the front of the school was also approved by Bierman.

Blauer said he had contacted Amcor, Inc., Burley, concerning the purchase of a 3,000 gallon septic tank for the school. But, he said, the school district might construct the tank itself because the firm could not make delivery before Nov. 7.

Resuming classes at Springdale Monday will require a concerted effort, according to Blauer. He said every effort would be made to have a health department approved water tank at the school by that day.

Classes were called off Wednesday when the health agency disapproved the previous tank water used.

Daily notice

THE SPRINGDALE Elementary School, bottom picture, has been closed and a health department official has ordered a new water well drilled. A daily notice, shown at top, has been posted at the school warning against water contamination. According to Supt. Harold Blauer, every effort will be made to have the health department approved water tank at the school by Monday so classes can resume.

Ravenscroft speaks at Rupert rally

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Five term state representative Vernon Ravenscroft, R-Tuttle, gave the keynote speech at a Republican Red Carpet Rally Thursday evening at the Rupert Elks Club.

More than 300 people were introduced to the District 21 legislative candidates prior to Ravenscroft's address. Incumbent representatives Steven Antone, Rupert, and E. V. McHan, Ketchum, and incumbent senator John Peavey, Rupert, spoke briefly to the gathering and were highly praised by Ravenscroft in a preface to his talk.

Ravenscroft was a Democratic legislator for 10 years, but switched party affiliation in this election campaign. He ran in the 1970 gubernatorial race but was defeated in the primary by Gov. Cecil Andrus.

The new Republican picked the power structure changes of both political parties as his theme. Commenting on the Democratic party's efforts to adopt young voters into its ranks, Ravenscroft said the party had become fragmented by "well organized young dominants." He warned against attempts at pure democracy with no representatives accepting responsibility and "organized minorities resorting to mob rule."

Ravenscroft said the Republican party had changed but had maintained its unity in doing so. He pointed to the recently established policy of appointing an 18 to 25-year-old to the party's county and state central committees.

He called the young Republicans "responsible representatives."

Democratic senate candidate William (Bud) Davis came under fire when Ravenscroft quoted him as referring to reservoirs as "stagnant pools."

"We don't have any stability of flow on the Snake River," Ravenscroft said. "If we don't control the headwaters through the use of reservoirs."

He also blasted Davis' political presence of mind by pointing out that the Democrat had signed a lettuce boycott pledge "well knowing that grapes would come next and then potatoes."

"I think we would be very smart to return Davis to the leadership of Idaho State University, where he is a competent man," Ravenscroft added.

The Democratic welfare platform was a major target for Ravenscroft. The Democrats consider welfare "inalienable right" he charged, and "that it should be available to everyone from the cradle to the grave."

Concluding with a few lines from the Declaration of Independence Ravenscroft explained that for him the pursuit of happiness "doesn't guarantee welfare, but it does give us a chance to go out and try."

Hopefuls at Jerome talk

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News writer

JEROME — Jerome County candidates in the November General election Thursday night gave their qualifications and reasons for seeking election at a meet the candidate meeting.

The meeting, which was sparsely attended, and broadcast over a Jerome radio station, was sponsored by the Jerome County Farm Bureau. Each candidate was given five minutes in which to state his position. The speech portion of the meeting was followed by a question session.

Those in attendance included the five sheriff candidates, Howard DuBois, Jerome chief of police; Paul Whaley and Jack Parrott, who are seeking election as write-in candidates; Elsa Hall, Republican, and Foley Asher, Democrat. Also attending were John VanOrman, Republican and Keith Johansson, Democrat, county commission candidates; Virginia Ricketts, county clerk, and Eugene Fredericksen, prosecuting attorney, both of whom are unopposed in the election.

Chief DuBois briefly explained his proposal to combine the Jerome City Police and the sheriff's department into one law enforcement agency. He has received a great deal of support from the community, he said, but stressed for the plan to work it would need the support of both the county commission and the city council.

Parrott said he was not against the joint venture proposed by DuBois but questioned whether or not it would mean the taxpayers would have to supply a new building in which to house both departments.

Whaley spoke briefly on a 10-point program he has outlined to upgrade the sheriff's department, saying he feels a fully trained deputy force is needed. He said special emphasis in first aid training is needed.

Asher said he has not received financial help from anyone and thus has no favors to pay back. He said he intended to keep the present deputies on the payroll if he is elected.

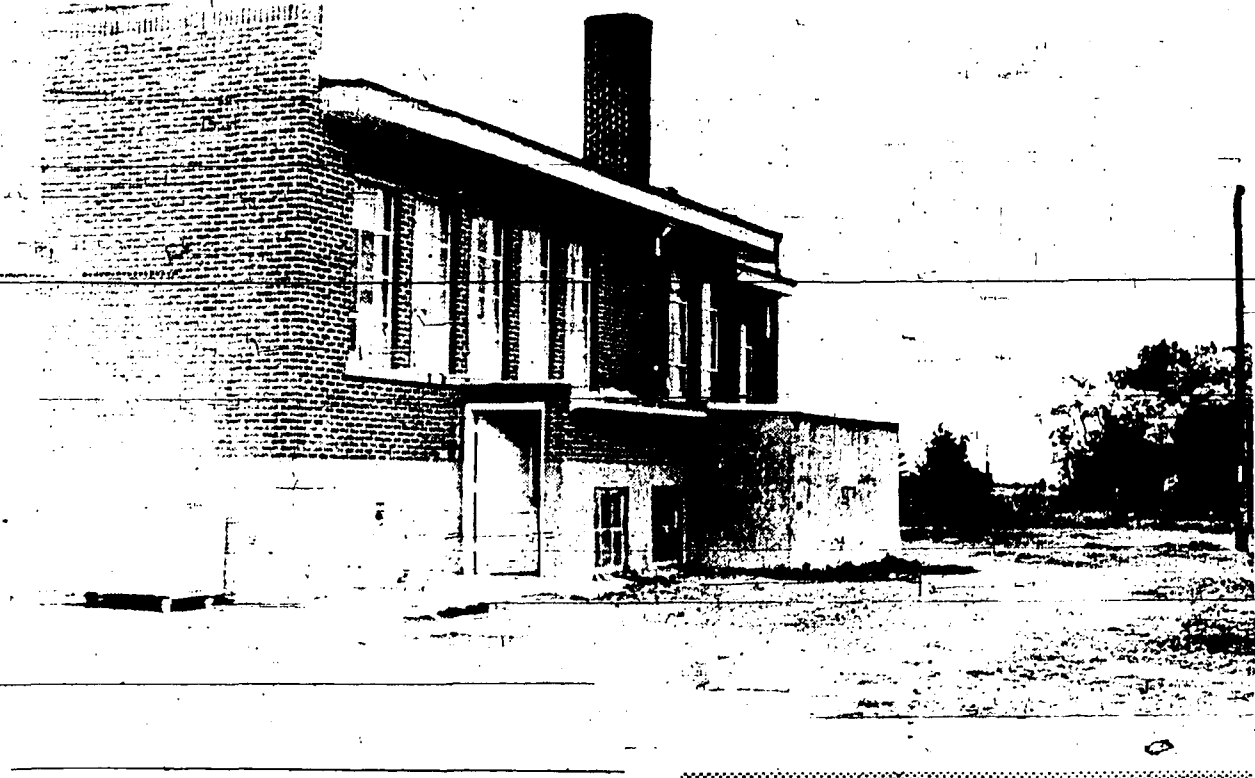

Hall also indicated he plans to keep the same force but said he would add an extra man and car to patrol the east end of the county. Both men said they feel the sheriff's office should be open on a 24 hour, seven day a week basis.

Johansson said his main reason for running is his feeling that the county commission should not be a three member board with all members from the same party. He asked why the expenses of the county commission have tripled in the last 10 years, and why receipts for commission expenditures are not required, as they are for other county employees.

Johansson said he did not feel the county should be spending money for expansion of the county airport when there is a possibility a regional airport will be built.

Van Orman pointed out that the county has, over the past year, enjoyed an improvement in its economic picture, with Tupperware and Moore Business Forms, Inc. moving into the area.

He said that the county has started a rural planning and development committee to aid in the orderly development of the county. He also said that agriculture is still the No. 1 industry in Idaho and that the commissioners are working to maintain an agricultural type of life in Jerome County.

Judge studying Fairfield case

GOODING — Magistrate Court Judge Charles Shaw has taken under advisement testimony of a preliminary hearing on kidnapping charges against a Fairfield father.

Marvin McGhee, Fairfield, was charged with kidnapping his own four-year-old daughter and taking her to the Yukon area during the past summer.

In a preliminary hearing in Gooding Thursday, the defense attorney, James May, asked for dismissal of the charges on grounds the father had acted in the best interests of the child and the child went voluntarily with her father.

The dismissal was denied and Judge Shaw asked for briefs to be filed by May within 15 days with answering briefs from Gooding prosecuting attorney Andrew James to follow.

Testimony in the preliminary hearing indicated four-year-old

Patty McGhee was visiting her father last July under visitation rights granted by the court when he took the child to the Yukon. Custody of the child was awarded her mother, now Christie Miller, with week-end visitation granted to the father. Testimony by defense witnesses stated the child begged not to be returned to the Miller family and that she had been mistreated by the mother and stepfather.

Prosecution witnesses denied this during rebuttal testimony.

Heyburn to buy new police car

HEYBURN — Heyburn's city Council agreed to purchase a new police car from Goode Motor Co., Rupert, after opening bids Wednesday evening.

The car dealer submitted a purchase figure of $2,318 with trade-in.

The city officials also voted to join the South Idaho Resource and Planning Development Association. The young four-county organization is dedicated to regional planning and is funded by the Idaho State Planning and Community Affairs Agency.

The council also granted permission to city building inspector Bill McClung for his issuance of a letter explaining building permits. McClung said several violations of an ordinance requiring permits and site inspections have occurred.

Approved an audit report by Neil King, a Burley certified public accountant.

GF school asks for truck bid

GLENN'S FERRY — The Glenns Ferry School Board Thursday authorized the superintendent and clerk to call for bids on a 1972 or 1973 half ton pickup truck.

The pickup will be purchased for school district use. Bids will be opened at a public meeting at 8 p.m. Nov. 9. Interested persons should call the office of Supt. George Powell for further information.

The board discussed the district's insurance coverage for fire and liability. No action was taken as the policies are not due for renewal at this time.

A career education meeting in Boise Oct. 24 was announced. Local businessmen as well as board members and the superintendent are being encouraged to attend. Anyone interested may contact the superintendent's officer for more information.

Trustees were also told of the trustee meeting in Boise Nov. 15, some of the trustees are considering attending.

Ketchum power service cut set

HAILEY — Idaho Power Co. said today that service to customers in the Ketchum-Sun Valley area will be interrupted Sunday in a planned outage lasting two hours.

Robert Vernon, Hailey district manager, said service now will be interrupted from 9 a.m. until 11 a.m. for necessary line work. Earlier, he said, the interruption was expected to last 10 hours.

The longer planned outage was for replacement of a three-pole transmission line tower damaged by a grass fire over the Labor Day weekend.

Vernon said the company's engineers have conceived a different method of repairing the damage which will minimize the time that the transmission line will be out of service.

The damaged tower is located West of Hailey on Idaho Power's 138,000-volt line supplying the Hailey, Ketchum and Wood River Substations.

3 large rattle snakes destroyed

SHOSHONE — Three large rattle snakes that were being held in a can in the southwest section of town have been destroyed by city police officers and neighbors in the area.

Concern over danger to small children in the area was voiced by several sets of parents after the snakes were found sitting in the opening doorway to a cellar at a vacant house.

Upon investigation, about 15 rattle snake lures were found in the house, stretched on boards.

Officers said evidently the young men who lived in the house this summer had been catching the snakes and skinning them, "perhaps they ate the meat", as it is favored by some people. The youths moved from the building several weeks ago and evidence of any food for the live snakes in the can was not evident, officers said.

Wendell starts project

WENDELL — Construction of the Wendell low cost senior citizen housing project began today.

Clyde Peterson, chairman of the Wendell Housing Authority, told the Wendell City Council Thursday night that the Farmers Home Administration has approved the necessary loan. Completion of the project is expected by the first of the year.

Peterson said sufficient applications have been received to fill all of the 12 units which will be built on one and one-half acres of land.

Volco Contractors, Jerome, were named contractors for construction of the housing project with a bid of $136,000. Total cost of the project is $156,000, compared to an estimate of $150,000 for the same project several months ago. The increase is due to rising construction costs and an increase in site costs.

The housing authority was planning to build on city property, but purchased private property after the city turned down appraisers' valuation of the land.

Peterson told the council the FHA said it cannot make any more loans to Wendell because of the inadequacy of the city's sewer and water systems.

"We need low cost and senior citizen housing badly. I will begin work on more with your approval, but this will require loans," Peterson said.

Mayor Eugene Soares told Peterson that there would be no improvement on the sewer and water situation until spring. He said city engineers are now mapping city property for the sewer lagoon site, but that it will be 30 to 60 days before city's requests for grants for the sewer project are reviewed.

In other city business, Councilman Harold Simerly announced a call for bids for graveling city streets and alleys by Dec. 1, at an estimated cost of $5,600. He also said construction of an addition to the fire house will begin soon.

According to Councilman Dale Gilbert, circulation of the Wendell library has doubled and more money is needed from the city.

It was decided that water meters will be removed if delinquent water bills are not paid in full. There will be a $2.50 service charge the first two times a meter has to be pulled and $25 for the third time.

Idaho day slated Nov. 5 at Washington cathedral

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The Washington Cathedral has begun an accelerated construction program to finish the interior of the cathedral by 1976, according to the Very Rev. Francis B. Sayre, Jr., dean.

In announcing the building program, Dean Sayre also said that the state of Idaho will be especially remembered in the morning service on Nov. 5 at the cathedral and the state flag will lead the procession of the choir and clergy.

Each year one Sunday is designated as Idaho Day at the Washington Cathedral and prayers are said for the welfare of Idaho and its citizens.

According to Dean Sayre, the plan to complete the cathedral has been undertaken to allow the cathedral to play a significant role in the bi-centennial celebration. The bi-centennial will not only mark the 200th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, but also 200 years of religious freedom in the United States. The completed interior of the cathedral will not only serve the many thousands who visit the cathedral annually but also the more than one million visitors expected in the bi-centennial year.

Support for the cathedral is given throughout the United States by the membership of the National Cathedral Association (NCA) which totals more than 8,000 and represents every state. The regional chairmen and local representatives throughout the country provide programs of slides, films and lectures about the cathedral to interested groups. NCA members keep informed of the cathedral's work through the quarterly magazine CATHEDRAL AGE, which they receive.

The Washington Cathedral, atop Mount Saint Alban, the highest ground in the nation's capital, dominates — together with the United States Capitol and the Washington Monument — the city's skyline. While it is the official seat of the Presiding Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church and of the Bishop of Washington, the cathedral serves all faiths and receives more than half a million worshippers and visitors each year.

Chartered by Congress in 1893 "for promotion of religion, education and charity," its foundation stone was laid in 1907 at a ceremony at which President Theodore Roosevelt spoke.

High Gothic in style, it is now more than two-thirds completed. In addition to its nave and north and south transept, it contains five chapels on the main floor and three crypt chapels below. When the final bay of the nave and the great west facade with twin towers are finished — hopefully by 1985 — the cathedral will be one of the largest in the world. Its carillon with a set of 53 bells is the third largest. The Washington Cathedral complex includes three schools for children and a graduate institution, the College of Preachers. Many citizens prominent in the life of our country are buried within its walls including President Woodrow Wilson, Admiral George Dewey, Secretaries of State Cordell Hull and Frank B. Kellogg, Ambassador Breckinridge Long and Melville E. Stone of the Associated Press. Funeral services for President Dwight D. Eisenhower were held in the Washington Cathedral March 31, 1969.

Although the cathedral brings the message of the spoken word, of music, song and ballet, of architectural beauty, stained glass and sculpture, of rare books, it receives no funds from the Episcopal Church or from the federal government. Gifts from individuals, families and organizations and NCA dues have enabled it to fulfill its ministry and to grow in influence as well as stone by stone.

Mrs. Philip Hoar of Glendale, Calif., chairwoman of the Anglican Women's Caucus, said, "The attempt to make women into priests is an insult to the feminine role implicit in creation."

She said the attempt "contributes to the confusion of sexual identity and the breakdown of family life throughout the world."

Religious labels said extremely misleading

By LOUIS CASSELS

United Press International President Nixon is a Quaker. Sen. George McGovern is a Methodist. That's what their official labels say.

But both labels are highly misleading.

Nixon's Quakerism is so dilute—especially on the key doctrine of pacifism—that it would not be recognizable to George Fox, founder of the Society of Friends.

McGovern's brand of Methodism would be equally baffling to John Wesley, founder of the Methodist movement.

Both Nixon and McGovern have been described publicly by clergy friends as "profoundly religious." This description was applied to Nixon by his unofficial White House pastor, the Rev. Billy Graham. It was applied to McGovern by Bishop James K. Armstrong of Aberdeen, S.D., head of the United Methodist Church in McGovern's home state.

Under questioning by this reporter, both Graham and Armstrong acknowledged they were using the term "religious" in somewhat elastic fashion. They were thinking, they said, of conscientious effort to apply Christian ethical precepts to practical problems of public life, rather than to any pronounced personal godliness.

Actually, neither Nixon nor McGovern is "religious" in the traditional sense of being deeply interested in religious doctrines and faithful in worship.

Although his much-publicized Sunday services in the East Room of the White House have created a widespread impression that Nixon is a regular church-goer, the truth is he attended church quite rarely before he was elected President. And since his election, his attendance at public worship (including the semiprivate White House services) has averaged less than once a month.

Although McGovern's father was a Wesleyan Methodist minister of rigorously fundamentalist faith, his son is a free-thinker in religion and persons close to him say he could not properly be described as a believer in orthodox Christian doctrine.

McGovern gave corroboration to this appraisal of his religious stance in a recent interview with the Rev. Charles P. Henderson Jr., assistant dean of the chapel at Princeton University, published in Commonweal Magazine.

Henderson reported that "despite the intense indoctrination" he received as a child, McGovern "began to doubt many of the fundamentalist doctrines of his father's religion."

"Even before he left home to fight in World War II he rejected the literal inerrancy of Scripture. He began to view the Bible as a work of great literature."

Catholic retreat slated

TWIN FALLS — Father Edward Spear, O.S.B., will conduct a three-day retreat for lay people of all ages Oct. 27, 28 and 29.

The retreat is sponsored by St. Benedict's Priory, Twin Falls. Father Spear, noted chaplain at the State Penitentiary, Salem, Ore., has worked with men behind bars for the last 20 years.

He has introduced several unique methods of rehabilitation that have resulted in commendations from the governor of Oregon. During the prison riots of 1970, it was Father Spear who served as liaison between warden and prisoners, effectively quelling disorders and bringing about a reconciliation between both parties.

The retreat will begin at 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 27, at the Priory with the opening conference followed by discussion. The weekend event will end at 11 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 29.

Reservations are available by writing to St. Benedict's Priory, Box 203, Twin Falls. Retreat attendance will be limited to the first 100 people who request and receive reservation confirmation.

No lodging or meals are necessary for the retreat. A sack lunch may be brought for Saturday's conference, if needed. Coffee will be available.

Traditional rivalries spice college schedule

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer
Ah, tradition! That old equalizer. The college football season is approaching the midway point in the season for many schools and the traditional games with age-old rivalries are beginning to crop up on the schedule, driving fear into the coaches of the heavily-favored clubs and stirring up excitement on the campuses of the underdogs who have had nothing to cheer about all season.

There is something about the traditional game that sets it apart from all the others on a team's schedule. It is the one played for "bragging rights," as Weeb Ewbank once stated about the Jets-Giants game, and pride is the motivating force. It is one day when desire can neutralize superior talent.

This week's schedule has a handful of traditional games in the offing in such places as Manhattan, Kan., Hanover, N.H., East Lansing, Mich., Los Angeles and Dallas, Texas.

The big one, of course, is in Dallas where second-ranked Oklahoma meets 11th-ranked Texas. The Sooners and the Longhorns have been meeting since 1900 and Texas holds a commanding 44-22-2 lead in the series. But the balance of power has shifted to Oklahoma and the Sooners, who walloped Texas 48-27 last year, are a 21-point choice to make it two in a row.

Oklahoma's offense is awesome. The Sooners are averaging 621 yards on total offense per game and it will take a super effort from Texas' young defensive squad to contain them. Both teams operate out of the wishbone T but Oklahoma has better offensive personnel and could run one up on the Longhorns.

The other traditional matchups Saturday are Kansas at Kansas State, Princeton at Dartmouth, Michigan State at Michigan and California at Southern California. The Kansas-Kansas State game, which has been contested since 1902, will pit two of the nation's leading passers against each other and should provide an exciting afternoon for the 45,000 fans at KSU Stadium. Kansas features junior Dave Jaynes, who currently ranks sixth in the nation in passing and fifth in total offense, while KSU has Dennis Morrison, who is 19th in the country in passing.

Princeton and Dartmouth have been playing since 1897 and Dartmouth holds a slight edge in the series, 26-22-3. Dartmouth has won the last two games and is a 13-point favorite to whip the Tigers, who have scored only seven total points in two games.

The Michigan-Michigan State game dates back to 1898 with Michigan enjoying the upperhand 39-20-5. Michigan is once again the stronger team, but Michigan State's defense gave both Southern California and Notre Dame a rough time before succumbing. Notre Dame couldn't run on the Spartans and the Wolverines don't figure to do much better. Michigan is a 13 1-2 point choice and probably wishes it weren't favored by that much.

Basketball Coach Jim Killingsworth gave a run down on prospects for the 1972-73 team. He noted the team will have better size than ever before, but said actual starting figures couldn't be pinpointed as yet since practice officially starts Sunday. Coach Killingsworth said the frosh recruitment was good this year and expects a strong yearling crew.

Ralston predicts net win

BUCHAREST, Romania (UPI) — U.S. non-playing captain Dennis Ralston said today his tennis team would win the Davis Cup despite world-wide predictions of a Romanian victory.

Romania has lost twice to the United States in Davis cup finals in 1969 and 1971 in America. But they were favored to win on home ground, mainly because of the splendid form of their top star, Ilie Nastase.

"I think we can beat them even here," Ralston said before the start of the three-day final at Bucharest's progresul tennis court today. The key match will be the doubles on Saturday, he added. "We will have to win the doubles to win the final."

Stan Smith the U.S. number one player, was to meet Nastase, 26, in the first single today followed by Tom Gorman's match with 33-year-old Romanian veteran Ion Tiriac.

ISU-Idaho game to be aired; kickoff time still uncertain

The Idaho-Idaho State football game Oct. 21 at the Minidome will be televised regionally — the only question now being the starting time. Milton "Dubby" Holt, ISU athletic director, told ISU boosters Thursday night ABC had confirmed airing of the game without blackout. The starting time will not be set until Saturday, pending results of a couple of games.

Holt said an ABC spokesman told him Thursday afternoon that if Texas made a respectable showing against Oklahoma Saturday, the Texas-Arkansas game would be nationally televised at 11:30 a.m. Mountain Time with the ISU-Idaho game going as the regional end of the doubleheader at 7:05 p.m. If Texas isn't considered a good representative, ABC will shift to Tennessee-Alabama for its national show. That is a night game and would require Idaho-Idaho to start at 2:20 p.m.

"We told them we could start anytime, day or night," Holt smiled. "It's worth $300,000 to the Big Sky Conference to be flexible."

ISU coach Bob Griffin said he believed the Bengals had proved themselves to be a good team and starting Saturday night the state would find out if it were a "great" team.

The Bengals host Montana, undefeated in the Big Sky, and along with Boise State and Montana State are in the running for the title.

"We feel that if we can hold Montana to two touchdowns or less and if our offensive line can perform like it did against Eastern Michigan (last week), we can win it," the coach said.

He added ISU was going into a frosh oriented football program rather than relying on junior college transfers. "We will make a run for every good Idaho football player," he promised. "We'd like to have all Idaho boys but we know that we probably can't get all of them. However, we'd rather have some out-of-state boys and win than all Idaho boys and lose," he concluded.

Basketball Coach Jim Killingsworth gave a run down on prospects for the 1972-73 team. He noted the team will have better size than ever before, but said actual starting figures couldn't be pinpointed as yet since practice officially starts Sunday. Coach Killingsworth said the frosh recruitment was good this year and expects a strong yearling crew.

BUCHAREST, Romania (UPI) — U.S. non-playing captain Dennis Ralston said today his tennis team would win the Davis Cup despite world-wide predictions of a Romanian victory.

Bengals gird for first league test

POCATELLO — "We have proved the last two weeks that we have a good football team," says Idaho State football coach Bob Griffin. "If we are a great football team Saturday will be the time to prove it."

Saturday's opponent, in the ASISU Minidome, will be Big Sky co-leader Montana. Game time is 7:30 p.m. The Grizzlies are 2-3 on the season, but both wins have been over league members, Weber State and Northern Arizona. Idaho State is 2-2 and UM will be the first Bengal conference opponent.

"Our kids remember the past three games with Montana," says Griffin. "We gave up a lot of points losing 45-35, 35-34, and 46-36. I figure it will be an emotional-type game. Montana has scored at will on us in the past and I hope our defense is up to the test. We think it's time to reverse the trend of the past three years."

The Grizzlies feature some strong runners, especially halfback Jim Olson, who has gained 344 yards for a 5.8 average. They figure he's better than Steve Caputo who twice went over 1000 season yards. Fullbacks Buddy Walsh, who ran for 114 yards and three TD's last year against ISU, and Jeff Hofmann are powerful runners with real speed.

Walsh was Big Sky Back of the Week last year for his destruction of ISU and Hofmann earned the honor this year after his four TD's against NAU.

Montana QB is sophomore Rock Svennungsen, who is protected by a massive line featuring 255-lb. offensive guard Barry Darrow, an All-American candidate. Griffin feels the key to stopping Montana's offense is pressuring the young signal-caller, but that may be easier said than done.

Montana's defense is, according to Griffin, "big and strong and much better than in the past. The defensive line is even bigger than Eastern Michigan's, if that's possible, and the linebackers are big and fast, especially 235-lb. middle backer Ron Rosenberg. The line gets blocked but doesn't stay blocked. They hustle, get up, and make the play. The secondary hasn't been tested yet, but in their past two games opponents have completed only one pass."

Griffin named off the award winners for the week after the 21-14 win over Eastern Michigan, but then singled out a pair of seniors for their fine play and the part they are playing in keeping ISU's morale high. "Mike Davis and Tim Pereira have been unsung players. They don't get the headlines, but their value to us is incalculable. Davis is our leading rusher and Pereira has teamed with several other defensive tackles to stop up our defensive middle against the run."

The award winners were Greg Mathis, defense (he intercepted two passes in the fourth quarter); Jim Witkowski, offensive back (he ran for 134 yards in 29 carries); the entire offensive line of Andy Barron, Brian Vertefeuille, John Roman, Tony Ramonas, and Pat Bonnett for the offensive line award; no award to the kicking game; and Jim Ingalls and Rick Armstrong on the scout team.

The offensive backfield picture is even more cloudy now than before. Witkowski in his first varsity start gained 134 yards and Davis added 111. Rene Garnett, previously ISU's top rusher, is again healthy so what do you do with him. Freshman Kevin Crocker, who has played so well in spots, is out with a kidney bruise and Don Kelly has a broken arm. Freshman Louie Mitchell, who rolled for 173 yards in a JV game is being prepped to replace Crocker.

Foster and Ali meet on Nov. 24

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — Bragging Muhammad Ali and confident light heavyweight champion Bob Foster have signed contracts for a 12-round heavyweight bout Nov. 21.

Under agreements reached among the fighters' attorneys, Ali will receive a guarantee of $250,000 plus $10,000 in training expenses. Foster gets $125,000 plus $10,000 for training.

The bout, scheduled at the Sahara Tahoe Hotel, was okayed by Jack Davis, Nevada boxing commissioner. The fight is billed as a championship contest for the vacant North American Boxing Federation's heavyweight crown.

For the first time in more than 18 months and a string of successful matches, Ali predicted the outcome of his fight with Foster after signing the contract Thursday.

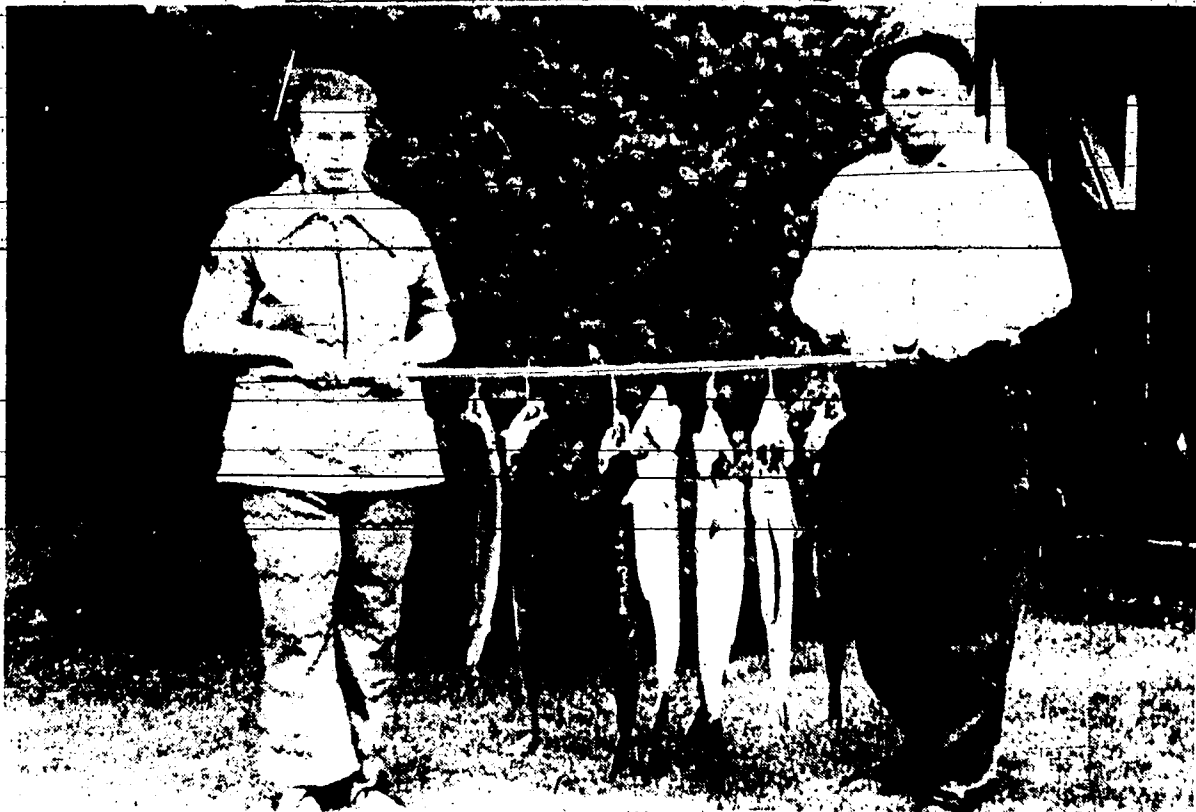

"I'll take him out in eight rounds," said Ali during a 40-minute monologue. Foster had little to say but told Ali, "I'll be in the ring as long as you will." Ali also said Foster is the best fighter he will have met since losing the title to Joe Frazier more than a year ago.

Cougars drop Virginia

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The Carolina Cougars, led by Billy Cunningham, held off a late rally by the Virginia Squires Thursday night to take a 123-115 win in a rugged season opener for both American Basketball Association clubs.

Virginia trailed by only two points, 113-111, with just over a minute and a half to go in the game, but three quick baskets by Gene Littles, Mack Calvin and Tom Owens pushed the game out of reach. Cunningham paced the Cougars with 28 points.

Virginia Coach Al Bianchi saw only first quarter action, as he was ejected in the second period after arguing with official Jerry Bannan.

Vandals entertain Northern Illinois

MOSCOW — The Idaho Vandals will return to friendly territory this week and host the Northern Illinois Huskies at the New Idaho Stadium in a 1:30 p.m. game Saturday.

The Huskies will be bringing a new "I" formation offense with one of the best fullbacks in the country in 225-pound Mark Kellar, and a speedy tailback, Byron Florence. The Huskies have an impressive 3-2 record with wins over Illinois State, Marshall and Xavier, and losses to Western Michigan and Wisconsin.

Idaho, with only an opening game victory over Ohio University, has losses to Weber, Montana State and Washington State.

The Vandals, however, have been having trouble at quarterback. They have been bringing along freshman Dave Comstock, a 6'2" 200-pounder from Pocatello, who threw a touchdown pass to Collie Mack for 45 yards against the WSU Cougars in the loss last Saturday.

Coach Don Robbins said the Vandals lost two starters in the WSU game and said Rick Seefried, Vandal quarterback who came back to throw one touchdown pass, re-injured his knee and will not play this week. Lloyd Grimsrud, veteran junior defensive tackle, will be out with a sprained knee as will veteran senior cornerback Kelly Courage who also has a bad knee.

Robbins said that in Kellar, the Huskies certainly have a talented runner, adding, "He has churned out 600 yards in five games and will be one tough player to stop with his great power."

Robbins said there were several outstanding players in the WSU game. Alofa Lue Tavaga won the defensive award for his 11 tackles, getting to the quarterback three times and general good defensive play. The offensive award winner was Comstock, the freshman quarterback who completed six of 14 passes for 115 yards and a touchdown for his first collegiate start.

Rozelle rule hit— by Halas

CHICAGO (UPI) — The National Football League's so-called "Rozelle Rule," long a target of disenchanted players, is under bitter attack today from a new source — club management.

George Halas, Jr., president of the Chicago Bears, says the deal which sent wide receiver Dick Gordon to Los Angeles Rams was "glaringly inequitable" and "bitterly disappointing."

And Halas hunted broadly it was possible NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle tipped the Rams in advance what it would cost them to sign Gordon, a former all-pro who had played out his option with Chicago to become a free agent.

"It was apparent that they were aware of something that was not a matter of knowledge to us," Halas charged.

Halas, the son of the Bears' feisty old founder and owner, said he had been trying for a few weeks to make a deal with the Rams for Gordon.

A's, Reds seek first series title in 30 years

CINCINNATI (UPI)—It has been a long drought for the two teams that begin the 1972 World Series Saturday.

The Cincinnati Reds were last in a World Series two years ago, but they have not managed to win one since 1940.

It goes back even further than that for the Oakland A's, who played in Philadelphia until 1954.

The A's have not been in a World Series since 1931. They lost it that year.

To hear the managers and players of the Reds and A's, it is clear both are convinced this will be their year.

"This team is the greatest," Sparky Anderson says of his Reds. "We have everything a great team must have—power, speed, good defense and tough pitching."

"We're ready to try the National League," was Dick Williams' rejoinder as he brought his club into Cincinnati Thursday night after a grinding five-game playoff series at Detroit.

The Reds' Anderson said he considers Oakland "an outstanding club—far and away the best club in that league."

Pete Rose, Reds' star leftfielder, said Oakland's wealth of righthanded pitchers should work to Cincinnati's advantage. "We do well against righthanders," he said.

The Reds planned to work out today at 10 a.m. (EDT) with the A's taking over at 1:30 p.m. to familiarize themselves with Riverfront Stadium.

Williams said he planned to start Ken Holtzman in the first game of the Series and then go with Jim "Catfish" Hunter on Sunday. Anderson was expected to announce today his starting pitchers, with Saturday a tossup between Gary Nolan and Jack Billingham.

The American League playoffs ended on a sour note for Vida Blue, who held the Tigers to three hits over the final four innings Thursday.

Blue complained that he was not told personally by Williams which game of the Series he was scheduled to pitch.

"He (Williams) told all the press and TV people who was pitching but he never told me," Blue said.

Williams said he plans to start Blue in the Series, "but I can't say when it will be."

Williams' main problem, however, was the condition of his top slugger, Reggie Jackson, who pulled a hamstring muscle in his left leg sliding into home in the second inning.

He said it would be known today whether the centerfield star would be available for the opening game, or any games of the Series.

But one bright spot in the Oakland picture was the return of ousted shortstop Bert Campaneris.

Campaneris was suspended from the playoffs after throwing a bat at a Detroit pitcher in the second game.

When queried about his eligibility, American League President Joe Cronin said Thursday: "I don't see why not."

The A's, when they were in Philadelphia, played in World Series in 1905, 1910, 1911, 1913, 1914, 1929, 1930 and 1931. They won the Series in 1910, 1911, 1913, 1929 and 1930.

The Reds played in 1919, 1939, 1940, 1961 and 1970, winning in 1919 and 1940.

After the weekend games here, the teams will travel to Oakland Monday and play games there Tuesday, Wednesday and if necessary, Thursday. Friday will be a traveling day.

If needed, the sixth and seventh games would be played in Cincinnati Saturday, Oct. 21, and Sunday, Oct. 22.

Blue opens, closes season in same temperament—angry

DETROIT (UPI)—The one man who should have been happiest, Vida Blue, wasn't.

It was Blue's finest moment of the season, his four innings of stout three-hit relief pitching which clinched the American League pennant for the Oakland A's Thursday in a 2-1 win over the Detroit Tigers.

It was a moment seemingly designed to erase the bitterness of a protracted spring holdout and a frustrating season that saw Blue wind up with a 6-10 record.

But Blue was unhappy. Unhappy about not starting a playoff game, not enchanted over his future with Oakland, and his impish sourness hurt John "Blue Moon" Odum.

"I'm disappointed," Blue said. "Not so much with my performance over the last two days as I am over the fact I thought I was going to start."

I just wanted to know if I

Howard and Tigers rail at officiating

DETROIT (UPI)—Frank Howard, the man who was not permitted to play, was mad, as were several of his Detroit Tiger teammates.

Howard, the first baseman-turned first base coach, was tossed out of Thursday's pennant-deciding contest with the Oakland A's for protesting an argument with umpire John Rice over a controversial call at first base—a decision which contributed to Oakland's second and winning run.

"His arguments with his wife last longer than the argument I had with him," the towering and outspoken Howard said.

Rice called George Hendrick safe on a fourth inning infield grounder, claiming first baseman Norm Cash's foot slipped off the bag when he reached for the throw from shortstop Dick McAuliffe. Hendrick proved to second on a sacrifice bunt and scored on Gene Tenace's single to left.

Rice's call was verified by the television instant replay camera, but the Tigers' complaint stemmed from the fact that umpires seldom cite first basemen for "cheating" when the throw obviously beats the runner.

Howard was tossed out after he walked out to the coaching box and began questioning Rice's call.

"The only thing I asked him when I came out there was if he (Cash) was off the bag," Howard said. "He said 'yeah.' And I told him we've been playing this game for 150 years and first basemen always cheat a little bit. But I'm not saying that Norm was cheating."

Outside of manager Billy Martin, who also was incensed by the call, Howard was the first to discuss the controversy. Cash, following an unusually long visit to the trainer's room, also had some thoughts on the matter.

"It was a routine play," said Cash, gritting his teeth between sentences. "We had the run by a step-and-a-half."

Fourteen years I've been playing this game and that's the first time that's happened to me," he said. "I have a tendency to keep my foot on the bag too long. It was a bad call and everybody knows it was a bad call. I hate to lose on a technical call that happens once in 10 years."

After cooling off somewhat, Cash conceded there were other factors in Detroit's failure to keep its season-long comeback going.

"We should have scored more runs," he observed with a smile.

Tony Taylor, the 36-year-old second baseman acquired from the Philadelphia Phillies last year, was the last man to bat for the Tigers this season. Like his earlier appearances at the plate, he failed to produce a hit.

Taylor slumping in the bench before his locker afterwards, said he thought this was the year after 34 years in baseball that he was going to make it to the World Series.

"I'm very very upset because all year I believed I was going to play in the World Series," the native of Cuba said in a low, broken English.

Once I had the chance in 1938, he said in a reference to his days with the Phillies. "We had 10 games to play and we lost nine."

But this year, I thought, I was going to make it.

Anderson says Reds will win

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Cincinnati Reds manager Sparky Anderson likes the looks of the Oakland Athletics, his team's opponent in the world series, which starts here Saturday, but he likes the looks of the Reds better.

"Oakland has an outstanding club," Anderson said after watching Oakland win the American League Pennant on television from his office.

"They definitely have a lot of talent," he said. "They're fast and away the best club in that league."

Our scouting reports indicate they have excellent pitching and they have a lot of young powerful hitters.

But, according to Sparky, Oakland isn't the best in baseball.

"This team (Reds) is the greatest," he said. "We have everything a great team must have—power, speed, good defense and tough pitching."

Reds' team captain Pete Rose sees one facet of the Oakland attack which may work in Cincinnati's favor. "Oakland has a lot of righthanded pitchers," he pointed out. "This should help our batters. We do well against righthanders."

Rose is convinced the Reds will win the series, and is quick to point out the differences between this team and the 1961 Reds who lost to Baltimore.

In 1961 we had problems," he said. "We had the power but some of our best pitchers were lame."

This year we have the good pitching, a lot of speed, great defense and we still have the power.

Thomas, Chargers negotiate

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—Duane Thomas was in town Thursday to talk contract with the San Diego Chargers, but not to talk with anybody else.

"I'm not ready to talk yet," Thomas told sports director Bob Sheridan of Miami radio station WGBS when Sheridan reached him in the hotel where the Chargers are staying while staying for the Sunday game against Miami in the Orange Bowl.

Earlier, a team spokesman said the enigmatic running back traded to San Diego by Dallas had met Wednesday with Chargers coach Harland Sware, but that there was nothing to report on the talks.

Asked if Thomas was still in town, the spokesman said, "That's questionable. We haven't seen him around."

It was after this that Sheridan reached him.

On Wednesday, two other reporters met Thomas in the lobby of the hotel and one asked the player, "What brought you here?"

"An airplane," said Thomas without cracking a smile. Thomas reportedly is seeking a three-year, $300,000 contract with the Chargers and the team is offering him a $210,000 deal.

Oilers plan NFL protest

HOUSTON (UPI)—The Houston Oilers said Thursday Oakland Raiders managing partner Al Davis had flagrantly violated a league rule by allowing taxi squad players on the bench during this week's game.

A formal complaint to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle would be filed, according to John Breen, Oilers general manager.

"He defies us every year," Breen said. "The rule is you get 15-bench passes per game for your coaches, trainer, doctor and what have you. He brings his cab team—seven boys in civilian clothes that can't play—and they're not allowed on the bench."

Oakland crushed Houston 34-0 last Monday night.

"I told him he may not have them there and he had them there anyway," Breen said. "And this time I took pictures of the people on the bench."

Minnesota Vikings

The Vikings were the team that was supposed to take it all in the National Football League this season, especially after they obtained quarterback Fran Tarkenton from the New York Giants during the off-season. Tarkenton, one of the top quarterbacks in NFL annals, was supposed to give the Vikings the necessary leadership to carry them to the title.

Things haven't quite worked out that way so far, however. The Vikings have lost three of their first four games and trail both Green Bay and Detroit by two games in the NFC's Central Division.

It hasn't really been Tarkenton's fault. Fran currently ranks third in the NFC in passing, has thrown for six touchdowns and been intercepted just four times in 92 attempts. Moreover, the Vikings' troubles rest with the defensive front four. Once the scourge of the NFL, the Vikings' front line has sacked the quarterback only four times this season.

The Vikings must right themselves quickly or face being relegated to an also-ran role in the Central Division. They couldn't ask for a better opponent to get well against than the Denver Broncos, whom they meet this Sunday at Minnesota in an inter-conference game.

The Broncos also have lost three of their first four and have been outscored 120-78 by the opposition. Denver's air attack is weak but the Broncos do have one of the league's top runners in Floyd Little, the defending NFL rushing champion. If the Vikings, who are a 10-point favorite, can stop the run than they should have little trouble in handling the Broncos.

In other Sunday games, San Diego visits Miami, Cincinnati is at Kansas City, Dallas at Baltimore, Washington at St. Louis, Buffalo at Oakland, Los Angeles at Philadelphia, Houston at Pittsburgh, the New York Jets at New England, the New York Giants at San Francisco, Atlanta at New Orleans and Chicago at Cleveland.

Green Bay is at Detroit in the Monday night nationally televised game.

Miami, the league's only undefeated team at 4-0, has another tough opponent in San Diego, which has posted a 2-1 record to date. The Dolphins, who have beaten Minnesota and the Jets for successive weeks, stopped Tarkenton two weeks ago and contained Joe Namath last week. Now they have a double threat to stop in quarterback John Hadl and running back Mike Garrett.

Hadl, one of the league's top passers, has gotten off to a slow start with only two TD passes to date but had a good game last week against Baltimore with 12 completions in 20 attempts for 148 yards. Garrett, on the other hand, is the AFC's leading rusher with 388 yards and he has gone over 100 yards in his last two outings.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, OCT. 14, 1972

GENERAL TENDENCIES: By smiling and showing you are willing to be of service to others, you can make this a successful day and evening. Daytime is best for positive and constructive actions on your part. The evening is likely to bring you some confusion, so don't make decisions in p.m.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Any outside duties you may have should be handled from the standpoint of cooperation and then you get right results. Improve your credit by paying that bill on time now. Don't try to lord it over others so much.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have some fine ideas but require added information from others, so be sure you get it in a cooperative way. Make certain you understand every clause of any contracts you make. Do not lose time with time-wasters.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you contact experts early, you know better how to handle pressures that are confusing right now. Do not criticize mate but give encouragement needed. Reach a far better understanding.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If you do some entertaining of associates today, you find you cement far better relations with them. Remain poised during some possible upset where the public is concerned. Think logically.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get busy early improving your appearance so you are at your best and feel sure of yourself with others. Then get those dull duties behind you that are nonetheless important. Avoid one who likes to downgrade you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are in the mood for a good time and should follow along such lines so you feel and look happier. Take mate along with you and reach a better understanding. Don't forget to pay that bill first, though.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) It is important that you take care of those family affairs very wisely and tactfully today. Make your home a haven of rest, comfort and joy so that others are happy there. Do not criticize so much.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Taking short trips is fine for whatever reason, but be sure you drive with utmost care, especially on the highways and byways. Make sure you shop for the week ahead and save time. Fun at home in p.m.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can add to waning funds by spending little now. Then investigate some new outlet that will be helpful. Make your home more smooth running and comfortable. Enjoy it more yourself thereby, too.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Although you may have anxieties, be sure to smile and not make others feel unhappy. Spend some time getting appearance improved before you sally forth socially later in the day. Make an excellent impression on others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A good day to plan good times with those who are congenial and you truly like for the weeks ahead. Then sit down with an expert and get the facts you need to gain your ambitions. Do not argue.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You should enlarge the circle of your good friends now since this can mean advancement for you in the future. Know what your real aims are and take steps in right direction to attain them. Don't permit lesser persons to deter you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY - he or she will be one of those charming young people who is poised and cool, who will objectively study what is wanted and make the right practical plans to attain aims, and build a solid foundation to the life early. Give the right training while young to bring out the good business sense inherent here. Be a model for your child to follow, and provide early for the higher education your son, daughter should have. This is important early.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

What do these flowers have in common? The sweet pea, lantana, hyacinth, morning glory, lily of the valley, iris, fox glove, wisteria, mountain laurel, Easter lily, yew and rhododendron. Some portion of each is deadly poison, that's the denominator.

THAT MORE than half the U. S. presidents served in the military. You probably know. But can you name the only three who were career Army men? Wait, you're right about Eisenhower and Grant. But did you forget Taylor? Likewise.

HERE'S ANOTHER notion to while away the time at stop lights. Tick off words that begin and end with the same two letters. Like perscope, for one. Or enliven, for another.

QUERIES
Q "How many topless, bottomless female dancers in Los Angeles?"
A About 1,200. I'm told they have their own guild.

Q "THE United States is about 10 times as big as Vietnam, no?"
A About 28 times as big, in fact.

Q "WHAT state did you say has the most lakes?"
A Florida. With about 30,000.

WAS NONE other than that articulate Los Angeles Bill Kennedy who compared the late TV movies to turn-of-the-century, either early American or old English.

ACCORDING to the Bible, woman was the last thing God made," said the great, Alexandre Dumas.

must have been a Saturday night. Clearly, he was tired."

ALBANIANS rarely get headaches, it's claimed. They don't even have a word for headache. Aspirin is regarded there as a terribly dangerous drug.

BEAUTY
"If you think you're beautiful, you move like a beautiful person," contends that eminent authority Margaret Meade. She cites the Polynesians. They're not all that handsome, really. But they saw nobody but themselves for so many hundreds of years, they think they're, rather dandy. So everybody else thinks so, too. Something to it, maybe.

MANY IS the mother who may yell at this report, but medical science has proved a woman's skin is not as stretchable as a man's.

DO YOU realize that if all the 9,000 golf courses in this country were patched together, they'd make a spread bigger than Rhode Island?

IF YOU want to know the extent of your parakeet's vocabulary, put a mirror in front of it. Most likely at the sight of its reflection, it will go full bore into its jibber-jabber.

Boise wife charged in death

BOISE (UPI) — A Boise woman has been charged with first degree murder in the shooting death of her husband here Wednesday night.

Ada County Prosecuting Attorney James Risch said Louise Linton, 51, will be arraigned today in magistrate court. She is accused of shooting her husband Tony Linton, 48, Boise, in the head.

Attendants at St. Alphonsus Hospital said Linton died at 2:04 a.m. from a .22 caliber bullet wound near the left temple. He was rushed to the hospital at about 9:00 p.m. Wednesday.

Risch and police declined to release any more details about the incident, saying only that an investigation is continuing.

Hansen appointed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressman Orval Hansen has been appointed one of five House members on a House-Senate conference committee charged with shaping final legislation to improve services for the nation's elderly.

Hansen was named by House Speaker Carl Albert to help iron out differences between House and Senate versions of a measure aimed at strengthening the Older Americans Act.

Jordans lead seal campaign

BOISE — Sen. and Mrs. Len Jordan will serve as honorary co-chairmen for the 1972 Idaho Christmas Seal Campaign.

The announcement was made by Pat Carr, Boise, executive director of the Idaho Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, which conducts the Christmas Seal fund raising effort.

"We are honored that the Senator and his wife are actively assisting in our appeal for support in the battle against TB, emphysema, and other respiratory diseases," Carr said.

The Christmas Seal campaign began 58 years ago in Idaho when a customer asked for the Seals at a Boise department store. The proprietor, Henry L. Falk, obtained some from New York and sold them to his customers.

The following year, in 1915, the National Tuberculosis Association capitalizing on the interest created formed the Idaho Anti-Tuberculosis Association and conducted the first mail campaign to fund the organization.

Today the Christmas Seal

Organization consists of hundreds of volunteers and a small paid staff. Its chief activity is the education of Idaho's citizens in matters of respiratory health.

"You might say we are a citizen's advocate for better health," Carr stated.

The TB Association has enlarged its original goals to include control of respiratory disease and programs against causative factors. "That is why we have a strong program in air pollution control and in anti-smoking," she noted.

But the Christmas Seal Organization is still very much concerned about tuberculosis in Idaho. The last few years have actually seen a slight rise in the incidence of tuberculosis in the Gem state.

"We want to see it completely eradicated," Carr said, "we're not satisfied with control of the disease at minimal levels."

Because of the increased activity and responsibility of the Christmas Seal Organization and the increased costs of operation, the needs of the organization have gone up.

Textbook Negro treatment OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Four years ago, New York teacher Irving Sloan gave failing grades to most school textbooks on their treatment of Negroes in American history. He said they pictured blacks as inferiors who made few if any contributions to building the nation.

But Sloan said Tuesday tremendous progress has been made since 1968, and that he now feels most elementary and high school history textbooks do a "first-rate job" of presenting a fair and factual account of black history in the United States.

"We do note and criticize a few of the texts in this survey for failing to integrate much of the black American material into what we call a 'natural flow' of the text," Sloan said in an updated version of his study on "The Negro in Modern American History Textbooks." In other words, he said, material on Negroes is often lumped together in "segregated sections" rather than being integrated throughout the text. "But even in these instances, the information is in the text," he said. "Beyond that, however, there are some texts which have achieved near perfection—a fully integrated American history textbook."

Sloan, who is white, discussed his revised text with reporters at a news conference at headquarters of the American Federation of Teachers which sponsored the study. Sloan studied 19 elementary and high school textbooks but did not examine college level texts.

"The new texts can be characterized as avoiding stereotyped presentations concerning black Americans," concluded Sloan, a social studies teacher at a Scarsdale, N.Y., junior high school.

While his 1968 study said some textbooks "still cling to the romanticized versions of the happy slave life," his new study said some texts "have the courage to offer value statements" on the evils of slavery.

One example, he said, was a book which said "slavery was evil because it denied that men who were slaves also were human beings" and "since only Negroes were made slaves, racial prejudice developed as slavery grew."

Also, whereas most former texts portrayed Negro and white reconstructionists as evil, "virtually all of the current texts reflect the revisionist scholarship which argues that there were many positive contributions made by the and their leaders, black and reconstructionist governments white," Sloan said.

Trip to South America challenge to Cenarrusa

BOISE (UPI) — Secretary of State Pete T. Cenarrusa says his trip to Central and South America is "anything but a vacation," that it has turned out to be a lot of work with a tight schedule.

But in a letter to United Press International from Caracas, Venezuela, the Idaho official said he has found his journey "educational, informational and challenging."

Cenarrusa, accompanied by his wife, is visiting Mexico, Bolivia and Venezuela and the Basque communities in those countries. His itinerary is taking him to the capitals of those countries and to interviews with the presidents and other officials.

A clipping Cenarrusa sent from the English-language "The Daily Journal" of Caracas said he was there "particularly to take part in ceremonies commemorating the 36th anniversary of the constitution of the Basque government, still functioning in Paris after 35 years of exile."

"Calls on the president of the Republic, important government officials and political leaders are likewise a part of his schedule," the newspaper story said.

Cenarrusa, who is traveling at his own expense, said he and his wife have met a "great many kind and wonderful people." He said everyone has been helpful to them.

Simon Bolivar was a Basque who liberated Venezuela, Bolivia, Ecuador, Colombia and Peru from the Spanish empire," Cenarrusa noted in his letter. "He is thought of here as an Abraham Lincoln and George Washington combined."

"In the Latin American countries history shows that the Spaniards were conquistadors and the Basques were liberators," he added. "It was a Basque who got independence for Mexico, 'Iturbide' after the conquest by 'Hernando Cortez,' a Spaniard."

Cenarrusa planned to leave Caracas on Wednesday for Colombia. He said it "looks like we will have to extend our trip a couple of days."

Nobel prize winner glad his field now recognized

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dr. Gerald Edelman, co-winner of the Nobel Prize in medicine for his work in immunology, said today he was "very joyous" that his field of research has finally achieved wide recognition.

"I don't want to be stuffy about it but I'm very glad indeed, the importance of immunology to medicine is recognized," Edelman, 43, a professor at the Rockefeller University, told a news conference.

"A science that started out as a kind of vaccination procedure has come to grow to be a very fundamental one," he said. "I'm feeling very joyous this morning."

Edelman, the 10th Nobel Prize winner associated with Rockefeller University, said he learned he would share the $100,000 prize through "a somewhat distant communication from my wife telling me to wake up. She had heard it on the radio."

"At that time of morning (8 a.m.) I'm usually in a metaphysical state."

Edelman said that winning the honor was "not a complete surprise" because a number of persons had spoken to him about the possibility.

But he added, "Those are the kind of things you don't think about, otherwise you suffer—anxiety, hysteria."
