

Three battles fought

SAIGON (UPI) — Three major battles were reported today in South Vietnam where both the North and South Vietnamese were trying to grab as much land as possible before any cease-fire goes into effect, field reports said. There were heavy casualties on both sides and many civilians were killed.

In one of the major battles, the South Vietnamese backed by U.S. planes captured the war-battered town of Que Son on the central coast 345 miles northeast of Saigon and 30 miles south of Da Nang. A South Vietnamese spokesman said the 1,000-man attacking government force suffered "heavy casualties." Communist losses were reported as at least 81 dead.

In a second major fight the Communists struck back hard at the town of Hau Duc, 30 miles southwest of Que Son, and the battle took a heavy toll of civilians, field reports said. There were 95 civilians killed and wounded in addition to the military casualties, according to UPI reporter Edward Bassett.

The predawn battle left at least 29 Communists killed and South Vietnamese troops lost 15 dead and 20 wounded, military officers reported.

In the third major battle Saigon troops pushed into a Communist stronghold near An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, the first big clash of a South Vietnamese operation launched Aug. 19 to retake the vital Quan Lai airfield just east of the town. The two-day battle that ended today resulted in 194 Communists killed with government casualties placed at seven killed and 32 wounded.

The heavy fighting at Que Son and Hau Duc was significant because the towns are two points in the "Que Son triangle."

Seize offices

SEVERAL hundred Indians, demanding better treatment of their people, seized the offices of the Bureau of Indian Affairs Thursday and negotiated a temporary settlement with the Nixon administration allowing them to spend the night in the building. Here, one of the Indians uses an American flag as a cover. (UPI)

Indians take over bureau in capital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About 900 American Indians ended a 24-hour occupation of the Bureau of Indian Affairs today, winning a promise of White House consideration of their protest of a "trail of broken treaties" by Washington.

The Indians accepted an offer to move to an auditorium in another government building after a possibly violent confrontation with police was averted. Bradford Patterson, a White House aide, agreed Thursday night to respond in writing to demands drawn up by a coalition of representatives of more than 200 Indian tribes.

The 900 protesters were allowed to spend the night in the building in the 1900 block of Constitution Avenue, and many used the time to repair the damage caused during a forcible takeover shortly before Thursday's 5 p.m. EST daily closing of the building.

The protesters claimed they barricaded doors and windows of the six-story building as "purely a defensive action" because they feared police would be called "to remove us with their clubs."

A large number of police were on the scene when negotiations successfully avoided a showdown.

Russell Means, an Oglala Sioux and one of the spokesmen for the Indians, told reporters the Indians had feared for the safety of their women and children.

He said it was "unfortunate" that damage occurred to the building but he blamed it on the police and the fear of the Indians that the government would send them into the building with teargas and clubs. "We were willing to stay here to the point of death," Means said.

On Thursday, the BLS issued a somewhat more favorable economic report—from the administration's standpoint. It said wholesale prices slowed down last month, with the rate 0.2 per cent below September. In today's report, the BLS said the number of unemployed workers remained unchanged in October at 4.8 million, while the number of workers with jobs hit 82.5 million with the 260,000 increase.

October's rate same on jobless

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate remained unchanged in October at 5.5 per cent, but the number of persons with jobs went up 260,000, the government said today.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) of the Labor Department said the jobless rate showed no improvement despite the increase in employment. It explained that the higher number of jobs was offset by a continuing influx of new workers into the labor force.

October was the fifth consecutive month that unemployment had held at about 5.5 per cent after hovering around 6 per cent for 10 consecutive months. Coming four days before the presidential election, the report's possible impact on voters was difficult to assess.

While unemployment has fallen half a percentage point during the administration's Phase II economic controls, it is still far above the 4 per cent jobless rate target originally set by the White House.

On Thursday, the BLS issued a somewhat more favorable economic report—from the administration's standpoint. It said wholesale prices slowed down last month, with the rate 0.2 per cent below September.

In today's report, the BLS said the number of unemployed workers remained unchanged in October at 4.8 million, while the number of workers with jobs hit 82.5 million with the 260,000 increase.

Bellevue gets plan

By TERRY CAMPBELL, Times-News writer

BELLEVUE — Zoning has become a reality in Bellevue.

In a unanimous vote Thursday night the Bellevue City Council moved to adopt a proposed zoning ordinance formulated by the eleven-member city zoning committee.

The ordinance will become effective in January, 1973, following three successive council meetings.

The action follows about one and one-half years of work on the ordinance by the committee, a meeting last month between the committee and the council to revise the ordinance and a public hearing on the proposal Oct. 25.

During Thursday's meeting, Alderman John Pascoe said the main purpose of zoning was to provide protection and that the ordinance can be used as a base, with additions made as new situations arise.

apartment buildings to one unit per lot was to prevent congestion in the city, Patterson said. Under the eliminated section, he said, six units could be built on one lot but five surrounding lots would have to be provided for storage and playground area.

Mayor James Pigg said the provisions would defeat the intent of an apartment — to limit the resident's responsibility and obligation to maintain outside area.

Council members also agreed that provisions that adequate off-street parking be provided would eliminate possible problems. A second deleted section to limit building to not more than one third of a lot area, Patterson said, was to be used as a "guideline" for the development of the community.

Under standard plans for modular homes, including garage, floor space usually only totals 25 per cent of the lot area, he said.

Alderman Mike Ivie said that a property owner should be able to build as large a building as he wants as long as he meets setback requirements.

Pigg and Patterson will further review the ordinance and clarify certain sections. The new law will then be retyped and submitted for publication.

Major breakthrough claimed by Nixon

By United Press International
President Nixon said Thursday a "major breakthrough" has been achieved for an all-Indochina cease-fire but vowed he would approve a peace agreement only when all outstanding issues are resolved "not one day before."

Nixon said the breakthrough came in a private session between presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi diplomats who were needed to work out remaining obstacles. But Nguyen Vinh Vy, Hanoi's deputy delegate to the talks, said the Communists want the nine-point peace talks said that although "peace is near," Kissinger was at the White House today, however, reportedly awaiting word that Hanoi is prepared to hold another round of private talks. The New York Daily News in a copyrighted story today quoted a "very reliable source" in Washington as saying the presidential aide was expected to fly to Paris today for the session. White House officials said the dispatch was incorrect.

Nixon administration officials said today some regular North Vietnamese troops apparently have withdrawn from South Vietnam during the past weeks and cited this as evidence the peace formula worked out by Kissinger was still on the right track. The officials said intelligence reports from the area indicate that "at least" two regiments of North Vietnamese troops have "pulled out" of northern South Vietnam and there was some evidence that others may be preparing to leave.

The South Vietnamese delegation to the Paris talks said Thursday the presence of 14 North Vietnamese Army divisions in the South was the main roadblock to a cease-fire. Delegation spokesmen said Saigon would not agree to a cease-fire until the North troops are withdrawn.

Nixon, in a nationally televised campaign speech Thursday night, rejected any truce deadline that would "force us into an agreement which would be only a temporary truce and not a lasting peace."

Nixon takes vote trail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a hint that a Vietnam peace settlement is unlikely before the election — and accused by George S. McGovern of letting the chances for a cease-fire fall apart — President Nixon took to the campaign trail today on a three-state flying tour.

Even as Nixon was in the air headed for an airport rally in Chicago, his voice was bidding for votes in a nationwide paid political broadcast about health care. He taped the speech for airing on three radio networks before he left.

In the radio broadcast, Nixon defended his proposal for employer-supported medical insurance and criticized a McGovern-backed Democratic alternative. He said the Democratic national health insurance plan would cost "a staggering $91 billion each year."

In a television speech that blanketed the nation Thursday night, the President rejected any Vietnam deadline "to force us into an agreement which would be only a temporary truce and not a lasting peace." That, plus his insistence that all "ambiguities" be cleared up seemed to lessen the chances of any settlement before Tuesday's balloting.

"We are going to sign the agreement when the agreement is right; we are going to sign, without one day's delay," he said — of tentative proposals worked out with Hanoi.

After Nixon spoke Thursday night, Democrat McGovern, campaigning in Michigan, said the administration's peace plan is "falling apart." McGovern added that he was "highly skeptical the Nixon administration will ever restore peace to Indochina."

Clash looms on budget data

BOISE (UPI) — Budget information, or the lack of it, may have headed Gov. Cecil D. Andrus and the legislative budget and fiscal committee on yet another collision course.

In response to a request for budget information from the committee's fiscal officer, John Anderson, the executive budget office has told state agencies not to reply.

All executive branch agencies are reminded that they are not compelled to respond to requests for budget information other than from the budget director or his representatives," deputy Budget Director Lawrence C. Seale said in a memorandum Oct. 24.

"Policy statements and financial information related to fiscal 1974 budgets are to be directed to and subject to review by the budget director or governor before presentation to the legislature," the memorandum said.

Monks hold rites for Ezra Pound

VENICE, Italy (UPI) — Benedictine monks conducted a funeral for poet Ezra Pound today at a cathedral across the lagoon from St. Mark's Square.

Then his family and friends buried him on an island that is the final resting place of composer Igor Stravinsky and ballet pioneer Sergei Diaghilev.

About 120 persons attended the funeral in the church of San Giorgio Maggiore. Four black clad gondoliers then bore his simple wooden coffin to a black and gold gondola for the journey to San Michele Island. The casket bore a bronze crucifix.

Pound's daughter, Mary de Rachewiltz, and his longtime companion, Olga Rudge, were among the few family and friends who accompanied the body to a private burial.

One of Pound's oldest friends in Venice, Irish poet Peter Russell, said Pound was in "serene" spirits when he received friends at his bedside on his 87th birthday Monday.

Pound died Wednesday night of circulatory collapse following an intestinal blockage.

Family friends said today his body might eventually return to the United States, which he left in 1958 after his release from a Washington mental hospital where he spent 12 years in confinement as a result of his World War II broadcasts on behalf of Fascist dictator Benito Mussolini.

Friends said Pound expressed a wish in recent years to visit the United States.

He had returned home only three times after moving to Europe in 1908. One visit was involuntary — when authorities returned him from Italy to face treason charges stemming from his radio attacks on U.S. leaders and the allied war effort against Mussolini and Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler.

"I did not betray the United States," he said. "I never betrayed anyone."

Abbot Egidio Zaramella of the Abbey of San Giorgio, an old friend of Pound's, conducted the brief funeral service in Italian. The Rev. Victor Stanley, representative of the Anglican church in Venice, gave the final blessing in English.

There were no flowers in the church. A few wreaths stood outside the church, including one from the Faculty of Language and Literature at the Foreigners' University of Venice.

Poet's birthplace

EZRA POUND's birthplace is this modest home in Hanover. Only a few changes have been made in the home since the poet's birth in 1895. Since 1928 it has been the home of the Robert Home family. Pound, one of Hanley's leading sons, died Wednesday in Venice, Italy.

Uganda refugees arrive in N.Y.

NEW YORK (UPI)—With few possessions other than the clothes they wore, 82 Asians expelled by Uganda arrived in the United States Thursday night to take up a new life.

They were the vanguard of 1,000 stateless Asians the United States agreed to accept of the estimated 50,000 banished from the African nation by President Idi Amin.

The group, all English speaking, landed at Kennedy airport following a flight from Rome. Wrapped in overcoats, in some cases covering scars, they appeared overwhelmed by the crush of newsmen and officials on hand to welcome them.

"Although some remained impassive, most eventually smiled and the most repeated comment was: 'It's great to be here.'"

For Vrajulal Chag, 41, who was accompanied by his wife, son and daughter, the last few months in Uganda was "like being in hell. We had to be in our houses by 7 p.m. with all our curtains closed."

Dolly Nasser, 23, a nurse from Kampala, said her life during last few months in Uganda was "very frightening. We couldn't eat or sleep. By 7 p.m. we couldn't leave the house. It was unsafe for a girl in Kampala. There was a lot of rape."

Five of the 15 largest banks in the United States have their headquarters in California.

Spiro denies heckling staged by own party

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said Thursday there was no truth to Democratic claims that heckling at his speeches was staged by Republicans.

Later in the day, Agnew was again heckled by Democrats during a speech.

"I see we have the kids from the Romper Room and Captain Kangaroo again," Agnew said when about 20 persons in a crowd of 4,000 began shouting and blowing whistles during his speech at Cheyenne.

Frank Mankiewicz, George McGovern's political director, said earlier it appeared Republicans staged an incident in San Diego Wednesday during which Agnew compared hecklers to Nazi storm troopers.

Mankiewicz said the hecklers were so stereotyped they could have come from "central casting."

"These demonstrations were no more put up by me or anyone connected with the Nixon campaign than the demonstrations Mrs. Nixon has encountered in her travels," Agnew said in Los Angeles Thursday.

"Obviously there is an error on Mr. Mankiewicz' part. I can understand McGovern's campaign aides' desire to disown the rude and uncouth people. We have never said they were sent out by the McGovern campaign."

"I will say McGovern politics have encouraged this kind of support."

Nixon names donors

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon's re-election committee disclosed Thursday the President received $2.5 million in campaign contributions from seven wealthy contributors, nearly a quarter of a million from the dairy industry and $1,000 from a Watergate suspect.

The list of donors, produced under terms of an out-of-court partial settlement of a lawsuit, showed that between Jan. 1, 1971, and March 9, 1972, Nixon's campaign chest amassed over $1.9 million from 283 donors. The average contribution was about $17,000.

In all, there were 21 gifts of $50,000 or more, 11 of them $100,000 or more.

The money was part of the hitherto "secret" campaign fund of $10 million which the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President reported as "cash on hand" on April 7, when a now-law-look-offset. The law requires that all donors of $100 or more be publicly identified. The consent order was signed Wednesday by U.S. District Judge Joseph C. Waddy.

JAMES A. YOST
REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE, STATE SENATE

Vote For Yost!

Paid for by Organizing County Republican Central Committee. John Faulkner, Chairman

Lincoln opposes proposal

By WILLIAM G. HIGH, Times-News Managing Editor
TWIN FALLS — A co-chairman of the legislature's governmental reorganization committee Thursday said he opposes a constitutional amendment to limit the number of state agencies.

Rep. Ray Lincoln, R-Twin Falls, said the amendment could place all executive agencies directly under the control of the governor and under the control of "politics."

Lincoln, who supported the amendment in the legislature, said it would create "too much responsibility. I don't want government that responsive."

Lincoln admitted when questioned later, however, that the amendment made "no provision for placing agencies directly under the governor's thumb."

He said these supporters of the amendment asking for more responsibility, including the governor, were pushing for appointive "political" agency heads.

Lincoln's statements were made at Thursday's Twin Falls Kiwanis Club luncheon.

Appearing on the program with Lincoln was Twin Falls City Councilman Mike Gray, who agreed strongly in favor of the proposed amendment.

Gray said the proposed consolidation of the state's 268 agencies, commissions and boards into no more than 20 units would save money and provide the governor additional power to administer the executive agency programs, he said.

Gray argued that "the legislature as a political body and afraid to upset the applecart." Reluctant legislators would have "no excuse" if the voters gave a mandate for agency reorganization, he said.

Both Gray and Lincoln termed the measure non-partisan, with supporters and detractors splitting party lines on the issue.

Controversial proposal

Lincoln Thursday criticized Gov. Cecil Andrus' use of a National Guard airplane and crew to promote passage of a constitutional amendment.

Lincoln, co-chairman of a legislative committee for governmental reorganization, said the use of the airplane was "misused."

He said billboards displayed throughout the state saying "Vote for SJR 132, Reduce State Government," involved "misrepresentation."

He said grouping state agencies into no more than 20 units would save money and provide the governor additional power to administer the executive agency programs, he said.

Gray argued that "the legislature as a political body and afraid to upset the applecart." Reluctant legislators would have "no excuse" if the voters gave a mandate for agency reorganization, he said.

Both Gray and Lincoln termed the measure non-partisan, with supporters and detractors splitting party lines on the issue.

Safety tips given

BURLEY — Safety tips for women alone on the streets were given at the Burley Business and Professional Women's meeting Wednesday.

Mrs. Charlotte Anderson, state safety chairman, said many women unknowingly invite trouble by their actions, attire and attitudes.

She advised traveling with a companion if possible when out at night and planning the route near light and people.

Other tips included being alert, locking car doors, screaming loudly in case of attack and jolting heel on the attackers' instep.

Andrus defends action, charges 'about face'

By BONNIE JONES, Times-News writer
BOJIE — Gov. Cecil Andrus today defended his support of Constitutional Amendment SJR 132 and said his critic, Rep. Ray Lincoln of Twin Falls, has done an about face on his own position.

In a service club address in Twin Falls Thursday, Lincoln spoke against the amendment to reduce the number of state agencies, and criticized Gov. Andrus for using the state's National Guard planes to promote the amendment in appearances around the state.

Gov. Andrus told the Times-News today Rep. Lincoln was one of the five members of a bipartisan committee of legislators that created the amendment but "had a political change of heart in recent days."

"For some reason Rep. Lincoln is now opposing the amendment he helped to create," the governor said.

Gov. Andrus said all of the Magic Valley legislators, both in the House and Senate, supported the amendment when it came up for a vote except Earl Greenawald, Jerome, and E. V. McMan, Ketchum.

As for use of the National Guard plane, the governor said he has used it and will continue to use it and other conveyances at his disposal when the nature of the trip is non-political.

He said the amendment is not a Republican or Democratic issue, but one of public information.

"It would be somewhat difficult to ride a horse around the state of Idaho and inform the people of the importance of the amendment and still conduct the duties of my office," the governor said.

"I do not use the National Guard plane for political meetings, but this is a non-partisan issue and it is important the people of Idaho understand it," he said.

Such a prohibition makes sense if you do not like lettuce. You do not like the Teamsters Union.

You do like Cesar Chavez. But it does not make much sense if you simply believe in bettering the lot of the wretched pickers should be allowed to join unions.

In the first place, lettuce workers are not the wretched of the earth. According to C. B. Christensen, director of California's Department of Agriculture, lettuce workers receive earnings ranging from $5.70 to $7.41 per hour. Pickers in California are the target of Chavez's secondary boycott, according to Christensen, "the highest wages of any farm workers in the United States and are also protected by nine of ten recommended labor laws, more than any other state."

Even Leroy F. Jurgens of the Washington Post, a journal of the generally regarded as a spokesman for agitators, admits that the lettuce worker "is in the economic elite among agricultural laborers" and "can make up to $12,000 in a good year."

People, how can life be sweet if the beknights lettuce picker is not allowed to unionize? To which the answer is that nearly 90 percent of the lettuce harvested in California is picked by union workers, according to that state's official statistics.

What then is the rub? Why does New York proclaim its aversion for the lowly vegetable before casting its 268 Democratic votes for McGovern, who has endorsed the boycott? Why does Teddy Kennedy (Ireland) do the same delegates with this same battle cry, "Greetings, Why does Patrick Kennedy, who does Patrick Kennedy of Washington, support the boycott in his labor contracts would give Chavez the right to say who works where and when in the fields. This is important to Chavez because it would shift power to UFW hiring halls, centering his political control over California's Chicenos."

Whether this means as much to the pickers as it does to Chavez is an open question. But his depth of concern for the workers is at least suspected when he realizes that to become effective, would not only damage the growers, but inflict severe hardships on the pickers — non-union Teamsters and members of his own UFW.

None of this is to imply that the Teamsters Union is a better and more responsible custodian of the fortunes of lettuce workers than the UFW. But it is to suggest that the issue is a complex one with rights and wrongs almost certainly on both sides, one which will not be solved when purchased through a haze of sentimentalism.

But then the Concerned People, seldom have the patience to sift through the claims and counterclaims, to try to separate appearance from reality. It is so much simpler and visceral more satisfying just to shout "Boycott lettuce!" while leaving it to Cesar Chavez, Archbishop O'Hoye and Teddy Kennedy to do your thinking for you.

Governor rapped for use of National Guard plane

TWIN FALLS — Rep. Ray Lincoln Thursday criticized Gov. Cecil Andrus' use of a National Guard airplane and crew to promote passage of a constitutional amendment.

Lincoln, co-chairman of a legislative committee for governmental reorganization, said the use of the airplane was "misused."

He said billboards displayed throughout the state saying "Vote for SJR 132, Reduce State Government," involved "misrepresentation."

He said grouping state agencies into no more than 20 units would save money and provide the governor additional power to administer the executive agency programs, he said.

Gray argued that "the legislature as a political body and afraid to upset the applecart." Reluctant legislators would have "no excuse" if the voters gave a mandate for agency reorganization, he said.

Both Gray and Lincoln termed the measure non-partisan, with supporters and detractors splitting party lines on the issue.

Andrus defends action, charges 'about face'

By BONNIE JONES, Times-News writer
BOJIE — Gov. Cecil Andrus today defended his support of Constitutional Amendment SJR 132 and said his critic, Rep. Ray Lincoln of Twin Falls, has done an about face on his own position.

In a service club address in Twin Falls Thursday, Lincoln spoke against the amendment to reduce the number of state agencies, and criticized Gov. Andrus for using the state's National Guard planes to promote the amendment in appearances around the state.

Gov. Andrus told the Times-News today Rep. Lincoln was one of the five members of a bipartisan committee of legislators that created the amendment but "had a political change of heart in recent days."

"For some reason Rep. Lincoln is now opposing the amendment he helped to create," the governor said.

Gov. Andrus said all of the Magic Valley legislators, both in the House and Senate, supported the amendment when it came up for a vote except Earl Greenawald, Jerome, and E. V. McMan, Ketchum.

As for use of the National Guard plane, the governor said he has used it and will continue to use it and other conveyances at his disposal when the nature of the trip is non-political.

He said the amendment is not a Republican or Democratic issue, but one of public information.

"It would be somewhat difficult to ride a horse around the state of Idaho and inform the people of the importance of the amendment and still conduct the duties of my office," the governor said.

"I do not use the National Guard plane for political meetings, but this is a non-partisan issue and it is important the people of Idaho understand it," he said.

Such a prohibition makes sense if you do not like lettuce. You do not like the Teamsters Union.

You do like Cesar Chavez. But it does not make much sense if you simply believe in bettering the lot of the wretched pickers should be allowed to join unions.

Commissioners defend hiring cook

TWIN FALLS — County Commissioners William L. Chancey and Merl E. Leonard today defended their hiring of a jail cook saying taxpayers will realize a saving.

The woman cook who has now taken over full responsibility of feeding an average of 30 to 35 prisoners per day is being paid $7,200 per year.

Several persons, including Bob Geer who opposes Chancey in the election Tuesday, have questioned the high salary.

This is more than is paid deputy sheriffs, Geer said, and more than other women employees of county offices receive, taxpayers have said.

Leonard said today Mrs. Opal Anderson Hallmark, Buhl, who has accepted the job, is being paid the prevailing wage.

"We checked extensively and find an experienced chef or cook is paid $2.50 per hour. For an eight-hour shift this comes to $20 per day," he said.

Mrs. Hallmark will be working seven days a week and probably longer than eight hours until relief help can be worked out, Leonard said.

"She is an experienced chef and as such is able to move in and take over the menu planning, ordering of supplies and the preparation of meals," he said.

As for a savings to taxpayers, Leonard said costs thus far indicate the monthly amount needed to feed prisoners can be reduced from between about $2,000 and $2,200 per month to about $1,500.

Leonard said the groceries will be purchased by the county at a discount and free of sales tax. At present about $900 per month is expected to cover grocery costs. This and the $450 salary of the cook would be $1,350.

In the past the meals were prepared and served by the sheriff's wife at a flat charge of 90 cents per meal. Prisoners are given two meals per day.

Sheriff Paul Corder said while his wife was handling the meal service, she purchased and paid for all grocery items used and hauled them to the courthouse in her private vehicle. The only cost to the county was the 90 cents per meal, he said, and this left little margin for profit.

Corder, asked for an estimate of an average monthly cost to the county, said between $1,500 and $2,000 with most of the monthly billings closer to $1,500.

Average jail population ranges from 30 to 35 inmates and with the Immigration Service bringing in large numbers of illegal aliens at times it reaches 50, Leonard said.

"It looks now like we can effect an overall saving of up to $4,000 per year," Chancey said.

He also explained the county called for catering bids and received no bids at all. By "Word of mouth" the county let it be known they needed a cook and it was possible to contact Mrs. Hallmark.

Both Leonard and Chancey said it is not easy to find a thoughtful experienced cook who is willing to work in the jail when area restaurants are constantly in need of cooks.

Leonard said the county is not planning to serve gourmet meals, but will serve adequate and nutritious meals and will meet federal and state standards.

He said the county is in no way critical of the services of Mrs. Corder and commissioners appreciate her long service and hard work.

"Some other counties in the state are using the method we are now using," Leonard said, "and they tell us it is possible to save money under such a plan."

The first rehearsal for the 1972 Community Christmas concert is scheduled for 3 p.m. Sunday at the Buhl First Christian Church.

The concert is sponsored by the Buhl Inter-Church council and will be under the direction of Loris Kingsford, Buhl High School choral director.

About 40 church and school choir members have expressed interest in the concert.

Rev. Wallace said the choir was a community activity and was not limited to church members. Youth from junior and senior high schools as well as adults will participate in the choir.

Two of the numbers to be performed are "Jesus Christ is Born Today" as arranged by Roy Ringwald who has arranged for the Fred Waring Band.

Rehearsals will be held at the Buhl church home for the Yeggy family.

The blaze was caused by a faulty wiring in the kitchen.

The Kimberly Fire Department was called to the scene about 1:30 p.m. Mrs. Yeggy said a friend stopped at the house, discovered the smoke and called the Yeggys who operate a car wash in Twin Falls.

A Union And The "Export Blues"

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Writings which do clear harm to vital U. S. ties with Japan. In newspaper advertisements and in "car cards" exhibited in New York City subways, the International Ladies Garment Workers Union has been warning against the alleged export of American jobs to Japan.

The underlying argument, of course, is that Japanese textile products "flood" the U. S. market and thereby deprive American garment workers of their jobs.

It has not escaped notice that there is no similar public complaint against the import of popular French and Italian fabrics. In consequence, the distinguished Wall Street Journal has seen fit, in a strong editorial, to blast the ILGWU advertisements as a thinly veiled exhibition of racism.

accepted now stiff quota limits on its textile output to the United States. In the first six months of 1972, Japan's textile shipments to us, as measured in square yards of goods, were off more than 17 per cent from the same period a year ago.

College Budgets

Ripple effects of the 26th Amendment to the U. S. Constitution granting the vote to 18-year-olds are beginning to be felt by state colleges and universities.

If the ripples become a flood, these institutions could stand to lose as much as $300 million in annual income — that is, if voting rights for 18-21-year-olds result in voiding nonresident tuition charges for out-of-state students.

This is the finding of a survey of nearly 400 public four-year colleges and universities — holding membership in the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges and in the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

"If adult status and voting rights for college-age citizens eliminate nonresident tuition charges in instance, has held that if a student is a state resident for one purpose, he or she should also be considered a resident for all other purposes.

A state court ruled in favor of two University of Connecticut students who sought a refund of the nonresident tuition differential because they were registered voters in Connecticut.

A new California law conferring legal adult status on 18-21-year-olds has been interpreted to mean that as of March 4, 1972, students could commence the durational resident requirement (one year) in order to establish legal residence for tuition purposes at state college and universities.

A one-year durational requirement for earning residency for tuition purposes in Minnesota was upheld in a U. S. Supreme Court decision.

Estimates by campus officials suggest that voter registration in the 1971-72 school year was light.

Carbone points out, however, that the figures are only rough estimates and do not take into account voter registration activities conducted during the summer scheduled for fall.

He urges that state colleges and universities begin searching for realistic alternatives to nonresident tuition while there is still time.

"If nonresident tuition is declared illegal," he says, "it is likely that the institutional response will be to increase the fees of all students to cover lost income.

"Clearly, this expediency would strike a telling blow to the low tuition principle upon which public higher education in America has been built. The cost to society would be far more than the additional dollars that students and their parents would be forced to pay."

Approximately 463,357 nonresident students were enrolled in the schools surveyed during the fall term in 1971. The total actual income from the tuition differential paid by these students was between $250 and $300 million.

The survey found that students are now being allowed to register and vote in their college communities in virtually every state. The central question for colleges and universities is whether or not nonresident students will use their new status as registered voters in a state as a basis for seeking reclassification as resident students.

Although in general such requests have been denied by school administrators, pending legislative and legal actions indicate that the question will likely be finally determined in the courtroom.

The Moon Scientist

The last man to set foot on the lunar surface in the Apollo exploration program also will be the first scientist to visit the Moon.

Harrison H. (Jack) Schmitt will be the 12th man and the first geologist to explore the Moon. As a minor footnote, he is also the first bachelor.

Astronauts who have gone to the Moon before were selected because of their expertise as pilots; they received scientific instruction while training as astronauts. With Schmitt, it was just the opposite. He was selected as an astronaut because of his scientific background and was one of the first group of six scientist-astronauts selected by NASA in June 1956. He is an expert at analyzing rocks and rock formations on Earth and was a pioneer in applying this skill to lunar exploration.

Schmitt, 37, had never piloted an airplane when he was selected as an astronaut. His first assignment was 53-weeks of flying instruction and he has now logged more than 1300 hours flying time.

Assigned to Apollo 17 as the lunar module pilot, Schmitt, commander Eugene A. Cernan and command module pilot Ronald E. Evans, are scheduled for launch on Dec. 10. Cernan and Schmitt will touch down on Dec. 11 in the Taurus-Littrow area of the Moon for three days of exploration. Evans, who remains in the command module, will conduct extensive scientific experiments and photographic tasks from the lunar orbit.

When asked what advantage there is in sending a scientist to the Moon, Schmitt replied in this manner:

"The main reason for sending a specialist to the Moon is that he has some experience which cannot be duplicated in a short period of training. In my case that is 10 years of geology training. I cannot say specifically what I can do that someone else cannot do. But I can apply my experience and observe geologic and other scientific features on the Moon. I think it will pay off to put someone with this experience on the Moon. I'm human enough to think that I can do a better job, at least in the area of scientific exploration."

Philosophizing on the last Apollo mission, Schmitt had this to say: "What we have done, what Apollo has done, has taken men from the environment in which they evolved and put them in an environment that is orders of magnitude different than any environment that life — which we know of — has ever existed.

"And so this has to be considered an evolutionary step. I think mankind will continue that evolution, will continue to explore and challenge himself on this frontier." "And so after Gagarin and Glenn and Armstrong, who were the equivalent of our early explorers of the American West, now the farmers and the ranchers and the miners will move into space, and start to use that space for practical purposes."

The Money Draft

WASHINGTON — As the war comes to an agonizing, screeching halt, great minds are at work in this country trying to figure out a way we can avoid getting ourselves into such a mess again.

Many solutions have been offered. My favorite is the Haak Plan, suggested by Leo Haak of East Lansing, Mich.

Mr. Haak told me, "The reason the war lasted so long was that only the young people in this country were truly involved in Vietnam. While the rest of the country grew rich and fat, this small minority of the population, with no political clout, was shipped off to Indochina to hold back Communist aggression. This made it rather easy for the rest of the Americans to show no urgency to end the war."

"That's true," I said. "But what do you propose?" "The Haak Plan provides that if you draft young men to fight a future war, then you must also draft the money of the men too old to go, to pay for it."

"How would it work?" "When a man became 40 years old, he would register for a wealth draft. His peak earning years are from 40 to 53, just as the peak physical years of a young man are 18 to 26. A lottery would be held and the man would be assigned a number according to his birthday. Those with low numbers would have to turn over all their money to the government to finance the war.

"Those with high numbers could go about their lives just as young men with high draft numbers go about their business without fear of being called up."

"Would you have draft boards?" I asked. "Yes," Haak replied. "They would be composed of young men under the age of 26."

"Why young men?" I asked. "Well, you have older men sending off young men to die in a war, so you should have young men deciding who must give their money to pay for it. The draft board could give exemptions in hardship cases and deal with conscientious objectors."

"By conscientious objectors you mean those who refuse to give money to a war, because it's against their religion?" "Yes, exactly. If a man can prove he is a serious conscientious objector, we would let him donate his wealth to a hospital or an educational institution."

"What about men over 40 who would flee to Canada to avoid having their money drafted?" "The Haak Plan does not provide for amnesty. We think it's the patriotic duty of every American to proudly serve his country, if not with his body, then with his fortune."

"How much of his fortune?" "Everything," Haak said. "When we draft young men we ask them to give up everything, don't we?" "It sounds like a crazy plan," I said.

"No crazier than what we've been doing for 10 years. Had the Haak Plan been in effect when we first got into Vietnam, the hoys of the money draftees would have been heard from Maine to California. Picture, if

ANDREW TULLY

The Uplifter

WASHINGTON — To repeat, it's been a pathetically sordid campaign — and now the Great Uplifter, who was going to save our souls, has managed the impossible by making it worse.

Crouching in a metaphorical gutter, George McGovern has come very close to sounding like the Joe McCarthy of the Fifties in his charge that President Nixon needlessly prolonged the Vietnam War "for another four years purely to avoid criticism from the right-wing war hawks."

God knows Nixon has set no world records for moral tone with his gang of ratty political shysters, but as of this writing the Great Uplifter has gone even Nixon's lowliest sneak-thief one worse. It is one thing to declare that Nixon's Vietnam policy has been all wrong and in default of a campaign promise, but McGovern's charge has the foul quality of a candidate who has capitulated to desperation.

What McGovern has said is that Richard Nixon sacrificed 20,000 American lives for political gain — and I don't think the American public can be persuaded to believe that of any President, however nasty some of his husters may be. "Did you make all these sacrifices, Mr. Nixon, to save your own political face?" McGovern asked in a speech in Dayton, Ohio. Then he quoted the New York Post's columnist, Fote Hamill: "All those people died for the Committee to Reelect the President."

In his sleventh-hour attacks, McGovern can't even be consistent. He told a CBS television audience the terms of the peace negotiations now under way "appear to be exactly the same terms that the war could have been ended on four years ago. He also rejected the suggestion that he was exaggerating in saying that you will millions of well-dressed men in their 40s descending on Washington demanding the President and Congress to end the war. How long do you think any politician could survive if this country were drafting the entire wealth of its middle-age citizens?"

"Not very long," I admitted. Haak said, "Sending young people off to an undeclared war is a thing people don't like, but will put up with. But drafting the fortunes of the men who stay at home is something nobody in this country will tolerate for very long."

North Vietnam has not given a little in its negotiating position.

"I see no evidence of that at all," McGovern said. "What they've always indicated is that they would accept a coalition government involving elements of the Thieu regime." But in Philadelphia the day before, he told reporters the administration's peace negotiations had "been doomed to failure" because of "our refusal to break with General Thieu."

The most generous comment on that clincher is that perhaps no one in McGovern's little army of experts had informed him that Hanoi now has expressed a willingness to accept Thieu as one of the leaders of a temporary tripartite administration. To most people not running scared for President, that would sound like a rather big concession, a vital shift in a Communist position that had remained unchanged since 1968.

Even so, one might surmise on a spot of forgiveness for McGovern's heat-of-the-battle rhetoric if he had an alternative to the Nixon policy. His so-called "peace plan," however, consisted of outright surrender. He offered North Vietnam more than it has ever asked in his proposal to evacuate all American forces from Indochina and the withdrawal of all American equipment and material as well. McGovern is not satisfied to get out; he wants to make it impossible for the plain people of South Vietnam to defend themselves against an enemy that has never been mistaken for a Sunday School class.

Indeed, although McGovern bleeds daily for our prisoners of war, he would leave their fate to the hands of the enemy.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Legg-Perthes

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My 4-year-old son developed Legg-Perthes disease in the right hip over a year ago. He has been in a leg brace since except for a period from February to April. The doctor thought at the time it could come off because of the rapid healing.

Then fluid developed on his hip and he was put in traction in the hospital 11 days, and the brace went back on.

Now the doctor says it will have to stay on until fall and perhaps longer. My question: the few people I talk to who know anything about this disease (two to be exact) say there is an operation that can correct it.

When I mentioned it to my doctor (orthopedic), he said there was not. Please, what do you have to say about it?

Why does it affect more boys than girls? What is the cause? And why does it seem to happen to super-active children?" Mrs. R. L.

Legg-Perthes is a form of osteochondrosis — an interference with the blood supply to the bone, and in this case the bone just below the hip. A similar condition near the knee is called Osgood-Schlatter disease. And when, less often, it appears in other areas it takes on other names, equally hard for people to remember.

I'm rather surprised that you found even two people who professed to know about Legg-Perthes. I conscientiously write about these diseases a couple of times a year or oftener because a steady stream of letters comes from folks whose youngsters develop this disease I never heard of.

Anyway, there is necrosis and the bone in the affected area softens. Give it time and protection, and the circulation will resume and the bone will harden and be strong again.

But the bone, while weakened, MUST be protected or it will be damaged and deformed. That's the reason for the brace (Sometimes a cast or even a wheelchair, is ordered.) Time then cures the trouble, but there is no other way to do it, no way to hasten it.

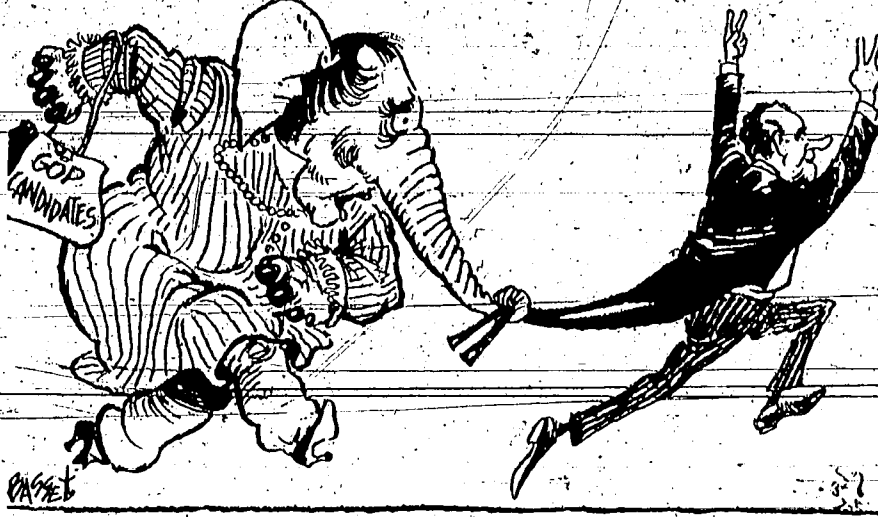

The people who told you about surgery were confused. There are cases in which the bone is damaged and surgery is necessary to do what repairing is possible — but that's not the same as being a cure for the disease.

The exact cause of these diseases is not known, but it is assumed that some injury is probably involved — which, if true, would explain why more boys than girls and why more active youngsters are more likely to have this trouble.

Trudeau holds reins

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau still held the reins of power today and he said his Liberals will continue to govern Canada as long as it was the will of the House of Commons.

The toll newsman Thursday the results of the election, which saw his 4-1-2 year majority mandate wiped out, showed many Canadians felt his government's past performance was "not satisfactory."

Trudeau added, however, he decided to remain in office and make an attempt to improve government policy because the vote did not "stress any clear degree of approval" for any other party.

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield said in a statement issued from his office that "Mr. Trudeau has made clear the arrogant desire of his government to hang on to power."

"He's treating the election results as simply another opinion poll in the hope he can somehow get away with it," Stanfield said.

New Democratic party leader David Lewis said he would support the Liberals if it introduced "some really progressive legislation." He added, however, "there is no deal and there will be no deal...I will be doing no bargaining with Mr. Trudeau."

Lewis, 63, said the NDP would "not be intimidated into accepting things we don't believe in merely to avoid an election but neither do we intend to obstruct parliament."

Latest unofficial election results showed the Conservatives and the Liberals each with 100 seats in the 264-seat House of Commons. The NDP have 30, the Social Credits 14 and there are two independents.

Informing a minority government, Trudeau will run the constant risk of being defeated on a non-confidence vote by the combined opposition majority in the house.

Trudeau said Thursday "the continued existence of my government will depend upon the will of the House of Commons."

He said parliament could not sit before Dec. 5 because recounts in close areas would not be completed until then, but he said he would risk Governor General Roland Michener to recall Parliament "as soon as is reasonably possible" after that date.

IRA faces power rivalry

BELFAST (UPI) — Political sources said today a power struggle has broken out among extremist leaders of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) and may have led to the arrest of several key militants by British troops.

The rivalry, the sources said, involves militant Provisional wing commanders rounded up and held in detention earlier and younger men who took over their positions while they were interned.

The army said it arrested 11 men late Wednesday in a crackdown on the guerrilla stronghold of Ardoyne in Belfast. One of the men, it said, was Leo Morgan, 24, a Provisional wing battalion commander.

Political sources said informers apparently told troops where the men were hiding.

In sporadic violence Thursday, a motorist died when an army armored car crashed into his automobile during a gunbattle in the Roman Catholic district of Lower Falls.

Police identified the motorist as Cecil Wylie, 45.

During the battle, sniper fire wounded two British soldiers.

introduce "a new element of rigidity in a situation which is otherwise evolving" towards a possible political settlement in Northern Ireland.

The army raid in Ardoyne was the third such roundup in two weeks and military spokesmen said the action had weakened the leadership of the Provisional wing. But military sources and spokesmen declined comment on reports a rivalry—and possible informers among the Provisionals—were helping British troops in the crackdown.

In Dublin, Irish Republic Premier Jack Lynch assailed the Britain's plans to hold a plebiscite in Northern Ireland early next year to decide whether the province should remain part of the United Kingdom.

Lynch told the Dail (parliament) that the results of the plebiscite were a "foregone conclusion" because he said the province's Protestant majority is certain to reject unification with the predominantly Catholic south.

Three men wanted on murder charges

MARTINEZ, Calif. (UPI) — Contra Costa County authorities said Thursday they were seeking three more men wanted on two counts of murder in connection with the discovery of bodies on a ranch owned by the Hell's Angels.

The three identified only as Paul F. Martin, Holton B. Crane and Richard A. Barker were the subjects of an all-points bulletin on two counts of murder.

Two members of the motorcycle club were already in custody. They were arrested earlier in the week after the discovery of the bodies buried in wells on a 153-acre ranch about 100 miles northwest of Martinez. Authorities hinted there may "possibly" be more arrests.

Arraigned on two counts of murder in Mt. Diablo Municipal Court were Edward "Junior" Carter, 24, and William J. Moran, 38, both of Richmond, Calif. William "Zorro" Mitten, 32, Alameda, Calif., and Chester M. "Festus" Green, 29, Richmond, were charged with being accessories to murder.

Carter and Moran were ordered held without bail while the other two men. Arraignment was set for Nov. 10.

The bodies—two men and a woman—were found late Monday and Tuesday after authorities acted on a tip. The farm was near the coastal community of Ukiah and had been purchased three years ago with Hell's Angel funds.

The California attorney general's office called the farm in rolling hills a "burying grounds" for the motorcycle club.

36 blood donors needed monthly

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Bonnie and Francis Marshall have found only two ways to keep their hemophiliac son Kevin alive—recruit 36 blood donors every month or go on welfare.

The Marshalls, who appealed to the state to keep them off welfare, were disappointed Thursday when they learned they must supply donors in exchange for free treatments for Kevin, 12.

"I know that's impossible," Mrs. Marshall said. "I've been begging blood for 11-12 years."

The donors also must travel 100 miles to Philadelphia Children's Hospital, which has agreed to supply the $1,000-a-month treatment.

"That means a $3 turnpike toll, lunch and gasoline," Mrs. Marshall said. "I can't get people to do that."

A spokesman for Gov. Milton Shapp said this was the only way the governor could find to fulfill his promise to help the boy. He said the governor's office already had lined up 11 "sure donors."

Shapp telephoned the Marshalls Wednesday when he learned of the problem. He reversed a decision by other state officials that Marshall would have to quit his $7,800-a-year job and accept welfare to get help for Kevin.

The governor enrolled Kevin in a special state-federal program for hemophiliacs at Philadelphia Children's Hospital, which waived its residency requirement.

But Mrs. Marshall did not learn about the donors until Thursday.

"Everything was so beautiful yesterday and now this," she said. "But I can't complain or they will say I'm not grateful."

Terry Dellmuth, Shapp's special assistant for human services, said the state will supply a case worker or public nurse to help the Marshalls recruit donors.

Labor leaders reject proposal

LONDON (UPI) — Labor leaders rejected Prime Minister Edward Heath's proposals Thursday for voluntary restraints on wages and prices, a move intended to combat soaring inflation. Political sources said Heath may impose a pay-price freeze shortly.

Heath called a cabinet meeting today to decide whether to impose statutory restraints and political sources said he would probably announce mandatory curbs Monday.

Foreign exchange dealers called Thursday for an immediate mandatory freeze on prices and incomes in order to stave off another run on the pound following the breakdown of the government's talks with labor and industry leaders on voluntary curbs.

Heath emerged from a seven-hour session with the two sides at his 10 Downing Street residence and told newsmen the Trades Union Congress (TUC) rejected his proposals for voluntary restraints.

"I am sorry to have to tell you that after I had put to everyone these proposals, and they had been considered by the CBI (Confederation of British Industries) and the TUC, the TUC said it did not consider they were a basis for negotiations," Heath said.

He declined to say whether the government would impose statutory restraints but he said he would inform parliament Monday what steps were decided at today's cabinet meeting.

"The government fully accepts its responsibilities and the cabinet will decide the action to be taken," Heath said.

WHY WON'T ORVAL HANSEN DEBATE WILLIS LUDLOW?

- Because Hansen doesn't want to talk about the national "value-added" sales tax?
- Because he has the financial resources to run a high-powered media campaign, and he thinks so little of the Idaho voters that he believes they will be swayed by commercial advertising?
- Because he would rather "give you the background on the issues" than discuss realities like rising prices, frozen wages, and his continuous support of an unjust, immoral war that could have been over four years ago?
- Because he is afraid to defend his vote to give away to the President power of the purse which the Constitution clearly gave to Congress?

Marries 'dream' girl

NAGOYA, Japan (UPI) — Shuji Yokoi married the old-fashioned girl he wanted today while 15 other couples waited their turn to exchange vows.

Yokoi, 57, returned home almost a year ago, a national hero after two hunters on Guam captured him—and ended the longest hunt of all by Japanese soldiers who did not know or did not acknowledge that World War II was over.

He said he wanted to get married, but not to one of the modern Japanese girls in their miniskirts and makeup. Then friends arranged a nodding with Mihoko Hatahira, 44, a spinster from the old Japanese capital of Kyoto.

Yokoi married her today at a Shinto shrine worshipped by Japanese as a symbol of victory.

Yokoi and his bride stood in front of an altar of Atsuta Jingu, a shrine in a forest near Nagoya, 180 miles southwest of Tokyo.

The couple stood in front of a priest, sipped sake three times —the bridegroom first and followed by his bride. He then read a written statement saying he and his wife will live together until death separates them.

The wedding was witnessed by about 40 members of the Yokoi and Hatahira families. After the wedding, the couple left for Yokoi's home outside Nagoya, where he introduced his wife to neighbors. Then they returned to the hall for a reception, attended by more than 150 guests.

Won't trim!

MIAMI (UPI) — Police Chief Bernard Garrigue (Fred Danny Zell Thursday because the award winning policeman refused to trim his mustache and hair. Garrigue said Zell was fired for "insubordinate conduct in failing to comply with a lawful and reasonable order given to him by his superior officers."

Zell, 26, Miami's 1969 "outstanding officer," said he will look for another job while Attorney Paul Pollack appeals the case to the Civil Service Board.

"What does his hair and mustache have to do with how he protects our homes and families," Pollack asked.

One to spare for ICC

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interstate Commerce Commission now has 12 members, but only 11 seats.

The 66-year-old agency, which regulates buses, trains and trucks, is caught in a political quagmire which has created more commissioners than the law allows.

Under the ICC Act, the commission is legally entitled to 11 members, appointed to seven-year terms at $30,000 a year. The law also says that no more than a bare majority of the commission members can be members of any one party.

But things went awry when ICC Commissioner John Busch, a Democrat, whose wife is the secretary of the Democratic National Committee, indicated he may not move out of his office.

Busch got balky when President Nixon Wednesday named two recess appointments to the ICC. One is Rodolfo Montejano, a 34-year-old California lawyer, who will succeed Commissioner Laurence K. Walrath, a Florida Democrat, who retired.

Nixon also appointed Alfred

MacFarland of Tennessee to the seat occupied by Busch, whose term officially expired in December, 1971, but who has been serving until a successor is appointed, as the law says he may.

The law also says that an ICC commissioner should be appointed by the President but with the approval of the Senate. Something MacFarland doesn't have since he is a recess appointment.

Busch, who says he was making no immediate plans to move out of his office at the commission, put it this way:

I understand that no precedent can be found for a recess appointee taking the oath of office while another commissioner holds the seat."

Gem GOP complains over flier on Demo candidate

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's Republican State Central Committee has filed a complaint with the Fair Campaign Practices Committee, Inc., against a flier being circulated in behalf of Ed Williams.

Larry Jackson, executive director of the committee, told a news conference today the flier being circulated on behalf of the Democratic congressional candidate contains "gross and blatant distortion of Steve Symms' position on public lands."

He said a study of Symms' statements in the First District congressional campaign lends no credence to contentions Symms favors release of "some 12-million acres of public land" to private ownership.

"Mr. Symms does advocate a multiple-use land management program and would like to see desert entry for agriculture development continued," Jackson said. "He is concerned about the appropriation of water and the use of water that desert entry requires."

He pointed out that Idaho water is being sought by other states in the west.

Help in program

HELPING students in the motor development program at Lincoln-Grade school in Shoshone are Dixie Baker and Marisa Blackburn. Jimmy Annett is in front.

Motor development class

SHOSHONE — Thirty-six children in Shoshone elementary school take a 30-minute daily motor development program class.

Principal Jack D. Bowlin said most of the students are first and second graders, with a few from the third and fourth grades.

The classes are to help the children increase motor skills, involving listening, following directions, self discipline, response, fine concepts, and control of the body in locomotive activity as well as rhythm.

Children who appeared to need the program were selected from the older classes, Bowlin said.

Stations used for the class include jumping board, which helps the child develop balance and flexibility of response; the fold-O-gym, to increase freedom to move in grace and ease, timing, building small and large muscles; the stunts-on-mats area where skill is developed in controlling the body in simple locomotor activities; chalk-board activities; directional orientation, and stepping stones area where vision and movement skills are coordinated.

The balance beams are used to help develop a loose, adaptable total body pattern, and the ocular pursuits (visual activities) involve eye movement, head movement and establish and maintain patterns in various sensory and motor areas.

Assisting with the program, besides Bowlin, are older students and some of the mothers of children enrolled. The class meets at noon each school day, and will run for 12 weeks. After children are tested at that time, the course may be continued a few more weeks for those who need it.

DEAR ABBY: Twelve years ago my lover and I came to the United States from Italy. We married one year later, and now have three children, all born in this country.

Without meaning to boast, I should tell you I am considered a very beautiful woman. My husband is a typical Italian—jealous and suspicious. He is also a fool as I want only him.

My husband became an American citizen four years ago, but he never applied for citizenship for me. Now each time we have a fight he jumps on me like a tiger and says I should not give him any trouble or he will send me back to Italy. I am sick of hearing that.

Here is a hand played about 40 years ago. West was Mike Gottlieb, one of the very best players at that early day. Mike would still be a good player except for one thing: He quit bridge in 1937 and hasn't played since.

Mike was an active bidder and famous for making close business doubles. His theory was that if you didn't double them they could get away with a lot of overbidding.

A second part of Mike's theory was that if there was a defense to beat a contract he would find it.

Mike had a lot of aces, but his double of four spades had to be a distinct gamble. He opened the king of hearts and doubled over dummy for a full two seconds. Mike was always a fast player and a two-second study was a real hassle for him.

Then he shifted to the king of trumps. South took his ace and led the ace and king of clubs.

Mike ruffed, and cashed the queen of trumps for the third defensive trick.

South was able to ruff one small club in dummy but had to lose the other one to East's jack.

Looks elementary when you see it, but we wonder if many players would sacrifice a sure trump trick the way Mike did when he led the king.

Can he actually send me back? If I divorce this tiger, will I have to return to Italy? Please answer in your column only as my husband always gets the mail before me.

TIGER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: This information may well defang and declaw your tiger. As an alien who has lived in the U. S. for five years, you may apply for citizenship yourself.

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago my brother in law started making indecent advances to two of my married sisters. He'd come around when he knew their husbands were at work.

Things got so bad they couldn't handle him, so they finally told their husbands, who put the fear of the Lord in George. Now that problem is taken care of, but here's another. George's wife cannot understand why she and George are now excluded from family get-togethers, and she is beginning to ask questions. What should be done?

ONE OF THE FAMILY

DEAR ONE—George's wife should be told that the excluded brother in law had a "little falling out" with those families. And if she insists upon further details, tell her to ask George. In other words, "Let George do it."

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old woman with a problem. I have a six-year-old son and have been divorced for four years. I have lived with my parents since my divorce and pay room and board.

Three months ago I started dating a very nice 33-year-old man who has never been married. I've known him for three years.

This man has his own apartment, and altho he comes here to pick me up when we go on a date, he also has me and my son over to dinner at his place. I have also gone there for dinner alone during the week.

Abby, I have never gone to bed with him, or any other man, but my ex-husband and I know right from wrong. If I wanted to I could go to a motel as well as to his apartment.

My parents think it is a disgrace that I am seen coming and going from his apartment. I never stay later than 11 p. m. and never go there before 8 p. m.

He is a wonderful man who likes to cook for himself and me, and I think it could develop into something serious.

How can I make my parents understand I am doing nothing wrong? They are on me all the time about it.

HAD IT AT HOME

DEAR HAD IT: If you are telling Mike it is about I think you are! Perhaps you should consider moving from your parents' home. With your present setup, your chances for remarriage are greatly reduced.

Aide optimistic

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The Episcopal Church, badly hit during the past five years by losses of membership and financial support, seems now to be coming out of its slump.

That is the "cautiously optimistic" appraisal of its presiding bishop, the Rt. Rev. John E. Hines.

Hines, who recently announced his intention to retire in May, 1974, is slumping the country like a presidential candidate, trying to reopen lines of communication with laymen and clergy who are perplexed or angry about some of the new directions the Episcopal Church has taken under his leadership.

In a recent talk with this reporter, he said the main bone of contention is the so-called "special program" under which his administration provides funds, with few if any strings attached, to non-church organizations seeking a better break for blacks, Indians, chicanos and other "oppressed minorities."

"There has been polarization of the church over this," Hines conceded. "Some Episcopalian feel the church at the national level has become a social work agency instead of proclaiming the gospel."

He said he also has been accused of funneling church money into "avowedly revolutionary" organizations.

"That's not true," he said. "We do finance some quite militant groups, but our policy forbids funding any group that preaches violence as a method of social change."

Scorpions once claimed as many as seven lives a year in Arizona.

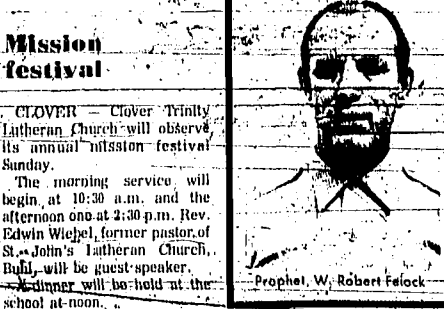

One-sixth of the earth's surface is covered by the Atlantic Ocean, which holds 85 million cubic miles of water.

Brose said, "This is a unique opportunity for our members to understand the message of the Bible as well as the historical account as it happened in time. Study of God's word always results in spiritual growth for those involved. The Bethel program should make a vast impact on the congregation."

Opening for Springdale school delayed again

SPRINGDALE — Cassin School officials have backed up another week in their estimates of a reopening date for Springdale Elementary School.

The school's 211 pupils, who have been to Declo and Burley teaching sites since Oct. 16, will probably re-enter the building Nov. 13, according to Supt. Harold Blauer.

Robert Larsen, supervisor of the school district's buildings and grounds, estimated last week that classes would resume Monday.

Blauer said the delay was not unexpected in view of the several unknown factors inherent in drilling water wells and constructing sewage systems.

Springdale Elementary was closed Oct. 11 after the South Central District Health Department, Twin Falls, found intestinal bacteria in the water supply.

The health department later ordered the school district to drill a new well and install a new sewage system, claiming the close proximity of the two was the cause of the contaminated water.

Rex Weech, a school-hired well driller, had reached a depth of 235 feet by Oct. 21 and expected to drill only another 50 feet in reaching a water supply that would meet both culinary and irrigation needs.

But the required aquifer was deeper than anticipated and Weech had to drill to a depth of 400 feet.

Although drilling operations will be completed today, Larsen said a submersible water pump must be purchased and installed.

The sewage system, built by the school district, is near completion and should be operational by Wednesday or Thursday, according to Larsen.

Blauer said school desks and equipment will be returned to Springdale during the weekend prior to the school's reopening. Gerald Hurst, district supervising environmentalist for the health department, called the new Springdale facilities "quite suitable" after an inspection Thursday.

Vandals damage tractor

HAILLEY — Continuing acts of vandalism at the Ohio Gulch landfill may result in higher operating costs, according to Blaine County Commissioner Jack Bennett.

Wednesday night unknown vandals smashed all the windows of a county-owned tractor parked at the landfill site north of Hailey.

Terming the vandalism "senseless," Bennett said the county taxpayers will "directly suffer" from such actions as well as the recent series of unauthorized burnings at the trash pit.

The landfill is kept open 24 hours a day for public convenience and is operated on a set budget, he said.

If similar incidents occur, the commissioner said, the county will be faced with additional expenditures resulting in an increased mill levy to replace damaged equipment and for site protection.

Alternatives may include locking the landfill at night, charging a dumping fee or posting a 24-hour guard, Bennett said. Currently, the county sheriff's department conducts spot patrols of the area.

Vandals apparently used rocks and a poker to smash the windows on the tractor, which was parked in a shed. Rough estimate of the damage has been set at $250.

Investigation is continuing through the sheriff's department.

Blaine trial slated

HAILLEY — A Fifth District Court trial has been set for Dec. 19 for Barry W. Shipman, 19, Bellevue, charged with two counts of first degree burglary.

In previous court action, Shipman pleaded not guilty to a prior charge of involuntary manslaughter and trial on that charge was scheduled for Jan. 9.

The involuntary manslaughter action was made in connection with a July 16 automobile accident which resulted in the death of James E. Stricker, 17, Hailey.

Shipman pleaded not guilty to the first degree burglary charges in district court Thursday. They stem from a June 20 larceny at Sawtooth Cycle Sales and a July 14 larceny at the House of Sight and Sound, both Hailey firms.

Idaho film producers num

(Editors note: This is the last of six dispatches about motion pictures produced for Idaho state agencies.)

By RICHARD CHARNOCK and GEORGE FRANK

BOISE (UPI) — This may come as a surprise to state officials who order production of motion pictures but there are several independent, highly-regarded film producers in Idaho.

Contrary to the belief that the non-profit Multi-Media Service Foundation, Inc., was the only outfit that could make a movie at a reasonable price it appears there are at least four other such producers.

One of them has been in business since 1939 in Boise, his made films for Idaho and Montana State agencies and has produced original material.

Another is regarded by his colleagues as one of the best producers of sponsored films in the western United States. He also lives and operates in Boise.

Operators of these businesses have varying viewpoints on whether film orders should be put out to bid. But some of them believe the state may have paid out too much in federal monies for films it has ordered in the past year.

George Oliver Smith, operator of Film Originals—a company he founded in 1939 while at the College of Idaho—thinks the $900 per minute paid by a couple of agencies is a bit high.

Unless there are unusual exceptions, especially a lot of travel connected with a film he believes a good job can be done for a lot less than that.

(A spokesman for Multi-Media said its $900 per minute price includes travel.)

Smith's company has made a number of films for the state—including a 55-minute centennial film produced for the Department of Commerce and Development in 1962 for under $20,000.

He also has made films for the Department of Aeronautics and Fish and Game and he told UPI he was ahead of what state agencies now seem to be spending for informational films.

"We got $720 (per screen minute) from the State of Montana once," he said. "We considered this big money."

Smith, as do the other Idaho-based film producers with whom UPI spoke or inquired about, does most of his work-barring travel to locations out of state—right in Idaho.

"Ninety-five per cent of our work is done right here with Idaho people," Smith said. "The only reason we go to Los Angeles is because that's where the printers are and where they put the soundtracks together."

He said he has used every type of equipment, except a videotape machine, owns a lot of equipment and leases what he does not have when he finds a need for it. He said other outfits also do this.

About the only thing he does outside of Idaho, he said; is printing and interlocking.

Smith said he and his film producers with whom UPI spoke, Welch of Boise, who started his own production company in Idaho four years ago, is considering sponsored film production.

State officials familiar with the men corroborated the high quality of the state may be paying for its information, thinks there should be in the field, whether it can produce system to produce "How do you work
