Heavy vote seen in Magic Valley

By DAVID ESPO Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Election officials are predicting heavy voting and the weatherman is forecasting afternoon rain showers, but moderate temperatures for today's elections.

Magic Valley voters will go to the polls in record numbers, if the election officials are correct, to elect a president and vice president, as well as senator, congressman, state legislators and county officials. Advance registration for the election has been heavy, according to a check of courthouse records across the Magic Valley, with Twin Falls County, the largest in the valley, registering a total of slightly over 23,000 voters. Spot checks of polling places this morning showed large voter turnouts were the order of the day.

In Blaine County, area of recent developments and an influx of young people, the registration for today's election is one-third over the registration for the 1970 gubernatorial and congressional elections. Valley wide, slightly over 60,000 people are registered to vote. While the race at the top of the election ballot is for the presidency, most Magic Valley observers are giving President Nixon and Vice President Spiro Agnew a whopping margin over Sen. George McGovern and Sargent Shriver. Polls taken in schools in Twin Falls point to a 70 per cent majority for the incumbent president.

With the presidential race in little apparent doubt, much of the attention has focused on a close race for the Senate seat being vacated by the retiring Sen. Len B. Jordan, a Republican.

Rep. James A. McClure, a Payette Republican, is locked in what many expect to be a razor close race with Democrat William E. Davis, president of Idaho State University on leave. American Party candidate Jean Stoddard, a Salmon housewife, is not expected to draw many votes in her first effort at election.

For the congressional seat now held by Rep. Orval Hansen, an Idaho Falls Republican, the two-term incumbent is not expected to have much difficulty winning another two years in Congress over Democratic challenger Willis Ludlow, a Pocatello minister, or John Thiebert, Twin Falls, American Party challenger.

In Twin Falls, a last minute flurry of charges and counter charges has focused attention on a race for the county commission, with incumbent Republican William Chancey seeking another term over opposition from Democrat Robert Geer, a Twin Falls barber.

In other county races that have drawn attention, Blaine County Sheriff Orville Drexler, a Democrat, faces a challenge from Ketchum (chief of Police Dennis Haynes).

Although most observers expect Drexler to win another term, Haynes has mounted an extensive campaign for the four-year sheriff's term.

The Mini-Cassia area has two of the closest races this election, both for seats in the state Senate. In district 21, including Minidoka, Blaine and part of (Continued on P. 11)

Huge turnout looms in US voting today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon seemed certain today to win four more years in the White House with a crushing defeat of George S. McGovern.

Rainy weather was reported in much of the nation, notably the Great Plains and the Southeast. Minneapolis and St. Paul reported heavy snow, their first of the season.

But, in a number of key states voter turnout was reported heavy, and adverse weather here and there was not expected to change estimates that 80 to 85 million Americans out of 140 million eligibles would vote. For the first time in most states, persons 18 to 21 were casting ballots.

All major polls predicted Nixon would win overwhelmingly, perhaps in one of the great landslides of American history.

As usual, Dixville Notch, a New Hampshire mountain hamlet, was first to report its presidential vote — 16 for Nixon and 3 for his Democratic opponent, McGovern commented: "I don't think that's a trend."

The President and Mrs. Nixon voted in an elementary school near their San Clemente, Calif., home. They planned to fly back to Washington for a family dinner at the White House where they will watch election returns tonight.

McGovern will await the returns at Sioux Falls, S.D., after voting at his childhood hometown, Mitchell, S.D.

Heavy voting was reported in Massachusetts, Ohio, Michigan, Cook County (Chicago), Pittsburgh, New York City, upstate New York, South Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, much of Virginia, Oklahoma, and much of Texas.

A large turnout was expected in Florida but light voting was forecast in Georgia. In New Jersey early balloting was light to moderate. Rhode Island, Connecticut, Maine, and Vermont reported heavy voting.

Federal observers were assigned to eight counties in Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi by the Justice Department to observe election procedures.

Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst announced the action, saying it was done under the 1965 Voting Rights Act aimed at assuring noninterference in voting by blacks.

Blaine permit ruling backed

Times-News writer
KETCHUM — A stormy public hearing. Four opposing attorneys and about 30 residents in contention.

But, in the end, the Ketchum City Council held the final decision Monday night.

Ending a hassle spanning two months and resulting in two civil suits, the council unanimously reaffirmed an earlier decision that a building permit issued to G and H Investments had been suspended until the plans met floor space requirements.

Councilwoman JoAnn Algiers abstained from voting because she holds a real estate license in the office of Russ Horn — a G and H partner. She temporarily took the chair for acting Mayor Vern McClellan, who cast a favorable vote with the council.

Following the meeting, attorney for G and H, Stephen W. Haller, said construction under the building permit will resume today because the questioned building plan had been revised and fell below the maximum allowable floor space.

The original suit, brought by the partnership of Horn and Bill Grant, concerned the council's decision on Sept. 26 to suspend the firm's building permit for eight apartment units in southeast Ketchum because with the inclusion of basement apartments, the building exceeded floor space requirements.

Search continues for missing youth

BUHL — No trace has been found of Randy Elsing, 16, Twin Falls, missing since this past weekend.

Elsing had been duck hunting with a friend three miles above Crystal Springs Crossing north of Buhl on the Snake River. He is presumed drowned.

Twin Falls County Sheriff Paul Corder said a massive search will be conducted today in an effort to find the boy's body. Corder said water flow at Milner Dam was cut Monday night in an effort to lower the river to aid searchers.

Corder said the water had dropped several feet this morning in the search area. The search by Gooding and Twin Falls County sheriff's officers will be aided by a National Guard helicopter and another helicopter provided by Reeder-Flying Service, Twin Falls.

Corder said portions of the river will be dragged from boats in hopes of finding the body. Corder said he can't understand at this point why portions of the kayak Elsing was hunting from have not been found.

David Malberg, Twin Falls, was hunting with Elsing at the time he disappeared. Malberg called law enforcement officers to the scene Saturday night when he couldn't locate Elsing.

Doors open

ON DUTY at Morningside School is 11-year-old Wendy Herr. She and other patrols held open the doors for adults coming to her school to vote. Wendy, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Carpenter, Twin Falls, said she was not yet cold, but expected to be cold "pretty soon."

Retail grocery prices level in 3rd quarter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retail food prices leveled off in the third quarter of 1972 after a sharp June-to-July jump. The Agriculture Department said today.

The figure was up 2.4 per cent from the second quarter, and cost was 4.9 per cent above a year earlier. Experts earlier had predicted that retail food costs might ease down in the late months of this year, and the average for 1972 could hold the average for 1971 as a whole to about 4.5 per cent above last year.

Compared with 1967, however, the increase was more dramatic. The third-quarter market basket cost was 22 per cent above the 1967 base. The retail food prices leveled off in the third quarter of 1972 after a sharp June-to-July jump. The Agriculture Department said today.

Hanoi scores US stand on treaty

By United Press International
North Vietnam said today that President Nixon's public requests for changes in the draft Vietnam peace treaty are "unreasonable and unrealistic."

But a Hanoi Radio broadcast stopped short of rejecting the American request for further discussions on the proposed peace pact.

Nixon, in a speech on the eve of the U.S. presidential election, repeated his assurances that a breakthrough had been achieved in the talks with the North Vietnamese government "which will lead to peace."

that will last. But I am completely confident that we will soon reach an agreement which will end the war in Vietnam."

The Hanoi Radio commentary said, "Everyone still remembers that in his Nov. 3 (campaign) speech, Nixon held a series of unreasonable and unyielding demands for the condition of the signing of a Vietnam peace accord."

Nixon said in that speech that he would never sign a treaty that "brought peace with dishonor." He said several linguistic ambiguities still had to be discussed with the North Vietnamese.

So far as is known, there have been no Washington-Hanoi meetings on the rewriting of one or more sections of the treaty, although Dr. Henry A. Kissinger called for another negotiating session at a news conference last Oct. 26.

The North Vietnamese radio blasted Nixon's delaying the signing of the proposed peace pact, saying that he had agreed it was "complete."

"With all the optimism it can gather, the White House is attempting to appease world-wide condemnation of the U.S. bad faith in the Vietnam negotiations and to mislead American public opinion" by insisting on further negotiations, the North Vietnamese statement said.

President Thieu has steadfastly refused to agree to a Vietnam War cease-fire unless the North Vietnamese troops are withdrawn.

Peron sets comeback

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Former President Juan D. Peron will return to Argentina Nov. 17 for an attempt to make a political comeback after almost two decades in exile, his personal delegate announced today.

The delegate, Hector J. Campora, confirmed earlier reports of the date of Peron's return in an announcement before the Justicialista Party council. The party, which was founded by Peron, has nominated him for president in elections scheduled next March to return Argentina to a constitutional democratic form of government.

Aides meet on talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin called on Secretary of State William P. Rogers Monday to discuss plans for the start of the European Security Conference in Helsinki Nov. 22. The conference will be attended by representatives of more than 30 Communist and Western nations.

No Windy Politics For Today

WASHINGTON — No politics today. No windy theorizing on the respective merits (or faults?) of the two Presidential candidates. The electorate deserves a day off to ponder a subject which fortunately falls under the label of light reading, with no cosmic overtones.

This would be the movement among our British cousins to do something about Buckingham Palace, home of the Royal Family, which as usual seems to be falling apart. Because it costs the British taxpayers about $400,000 a year to affix new bailing wire to the structure, voices have been heard suggesting that Queen Elizabeth II, Prince Philip et al move to a cozier and less costly billet.

Possibly because a female parent was wont to glide about the house humming "Rule Britannia!" to the growing disapproval of her Irish spouse, I have always had a more than casual interest in the care and feeding of Britain's divine right crowd. As some clients might attest, this dormant preoccupation usually is awakened — at a four-year interval, when a contest ensues for squatter's rights in the White House.

The reason is that our quadrantal hog killin' offers the opportunity to be patronizing of our kinfolk on their tight little isle, an opportunity I should not have dared indulge during Ma's lifetime. Snobbishly, I can suggest that since Buckingham Palace is a bit of an architectural arriviste it is inconsequential whether the Royal Family is moved to, say, Surrey, where they might be persuaded to launch a modest cottage industry and thereby earn part of their keep.

For, in point of fact, Buckingham Palace's tradition as the official royal residence is not heavy enough to qualify it for preservation, either as habitation or national shrine. Its first royal occupants were Queen Victoria and Prince Albert, a circumstance which in history's context makes it almost as modern as a three-bedroom brick in a Midwestern suburb.

Indeed, our own White House is 37 years older than the palace, having been built in 1800, while the palace wasn't finished until 1837. It also may be argued that the mansion in which one of the candidates will hang his hat for the next four years has a much more genteel background. It was the first official building erected in the brand new U. S. capital, whereas Buckingham Palace started out in life as a rowdy amusement park.

That was back in the 1650s when James I tried to raise silkworms in a plot of land near St. James' Park and came a cropper. Disgusted with the slowdown tactics of his English silkworms, James sold the garden to a man-about-town named Lord Goring, who transformed it into an early-day Coney Island. In turn, the land was sold for $85,000 to Sir Charles Sheffield, a slightly illegal son of the Duke of Buckingham, who built a mansion thereon called Buckingham House.

It wasn't until 1761 that Mulberry Gardens came back into the Royal Family. King George III bought it as a "retreat," royal English for love nest. George liked girls. George IV hired an architect to rebuild the house at a cost of more than $3.5 million; but never got to live in it. Neither did his son, William IV, who thought it so ugly he offered to lease it to Parliament.

Victoria loved Buckingham Palace and she and Albert lived there happily every after after, except for the time Bert fell through the ice while skating, causing the Queen to sack several innocent equestrians.

A great deal more money has been sunk into the palace since George IV spent that first paltry $3.5 million. At last unofficial count, Buckingham had 690 rooms, including an armory-sized art gallery. It is valued at more than $50 million and its furnishings are said to be worth another $25 million. Among other baubles, the house accommodates glass doors at $30,000 each, gold plate at $60,000 per service, and a royal coach which set back the taxpayers $40,000 in the noninflation year 1762.

In recent years, Prince Philip has complained that the Royal Family (read the taxpayers) can't afford Buckingham Palace and perhaps should call a reliable mover and set up housekeeping in some nice modern flat. He's got something there. If royalty can't live in a real Old Place like the White House, it might as well settle for some new-fangled comfort.

Economic Weather

The state of the nation's economy is a political issue and subject to vastly different interpretations. Consider the facts which show mounting employment and rising pay scales. Wages and salaries, nationwide, increased by $4.2 billion in September on top of a $4.9 billion rise in August. Factory payrolls grew $1.8 billion in September.

Personal incomes of Americans in September ran at an annual rate of $945.7 billion, a jump of $5.7 billion above the August pace.

So much for George McGovern's complaint that the nation can't stand another four years of Nixon's "prosperity." No wonder no one seems to be listening when he prophesies doom.

Productivity in mine and mill is increasing. Automobiles are rolling off assembly lines at an annual rate of 8.5 million and somebody is buying them.

More people are employed than ever before in our history.

The balance of trade deficit is continuing but the big grain deal with Russia will help to the benefit of every American. Nixon said smaller sales of grain to China "only scratch the surface of an immense trade potential between our two countries."

Inflation has slowed and is less of a problem here now than in England, Europe, or South America.

And peace in Vietnam is at hand. American prisoners of war may be home for Christmas.

It's no surprise Nixon is expected to win big.

Next Time

Total figures are expected to show at least 95 million Americans were eligible to vote in today's election. This is 13 million more than the 1968 figure.

Most of the increase was in registration of voters under 21, who were eligible to vote in only one or two states in 1968.

How many of the 95 million actually voted will be known by tomorrow. But when 95 million are registered and potential voters, election officials have no alternative but to make preparations for an army of voters that size. Otherwise they could have been asking for trouble.

Never again in a presidential election will the number of potential voters sink below 100 million. Thus, 1976 will not only be America's sesquicentennial year, it will be the first time 100 million Americans have been eligible to vote for President. This has never occurred in a free election in any other country in the history of the world.

A Poet's Legacy

History has a way of softening a man's shortcomings in the light of his successes. For that reason future generations will recognize, perhaps more fully than did his contemporaries, the genius of Ezra Pound.

The Idaho native who spent most of his 87 years after 1908 in what amounted to a self-imposed exile overseas was the last of the great artists of what is generally known as "the modern era." It was during the years of the first quarter of this century that Pound not only knew but helped dozens of struggling writers and sculptors of that creative period.

Many of them went on to achieve lasting fame. Robert Frost, T. S. Eliot, D. H. Lawrence, James Joyce and Wyndham Lewis were among them. Ernest Hemingway and E. E. Cummings were others whose lives were touched by Pound.

Pound's infatuation with Mussolini and broadcasts in Italy during World War II brought a cry of outrage from the land of his birth. Charges of treason were made against him and only 12 years spent in a mental institution spared him a public trial.

The tempestuous and often sad life has ended, but the writings and literary influence of the poet are more durable. Perhaps now Pound's works can be re-examined in a calmer and more appreciative light.

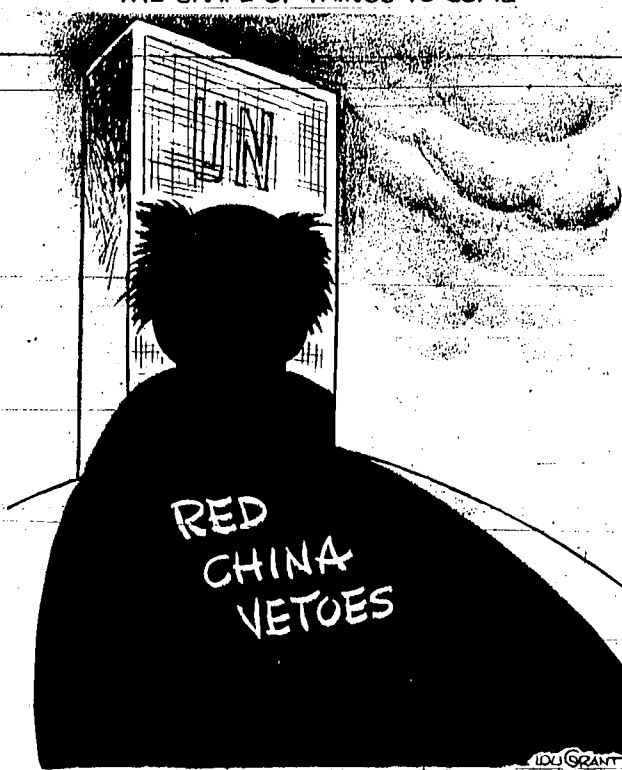

Pound, you remember, was born in Hailey.

Undecided Voter

WASHINGTON — It was Election Day and Stieglitz, who was undecided on how he was going to vote, woke up at 7 o'clock. His wife asked him what he wanted for breakfast.

"I don't know," Stieglitz said. "Do you want eggs or do you want cereal?"

"I like eggs," Stieglitz said, "but I also enjoy cereal."

"Well, what about pancakes?"

"I hadn't thought of pancakes," Stieglitz said. "That really does make the choice hard."

"Would you please make up your mind?" Stieglitz's wife asked.

"Let's see. Eggs, cereal or pancakes? You forgot waffles."

"Do you want waffles?"

"I don't think so."

Stieglitz's wife brought him a cup of coffee and a hard roll.

After breakfast they got into his car to go to the voting polls at the local public school.

"How are you going to get there?" Stieglitz's wife asked.

"If I go down Foxhall Road I'll run into a lot of traffic. But if I go down MacArthur Boulevard I'll hit a lot of lights."

"Do you want me to drive?" Stieglitz's wife asked.

"That's an interesting question," Stieglitz said. "I don't mind driving, yet if you drove I wouldn't have to decide which way I wanted to go to the public school. Yet I don't see why you should drive since it's my car. But then again, you've driven my car before. Of course you haven't driven it when we were going to vote."

"Oh, for heaven's sakes!" Stieglitz's wife screamed. "Will you go something?"

Stieglitz started the car.

As they arrived at the public school they discovered many other voters had arrived already — and Stieglitz had a difficult time finding a place to park.

"What about over there?" his wife suggested, pointing out a space next to the playground.

"It looks like a good spot," Stieglitz agreed. "But maybe after I park there somebody will park behind me and I'll have difficulty pulling out."

"Well, park over there behind the red car."

"I could park over there, but then I might be sorry I didn't park by the playground."

"What are you going to do?"

"I think I'll drive around the block a few times. Then someone will take one of the spots, and I'll have no choice but to take the other."

Stieglitz finally parked and he and his wife walked into the school. The lady behind the table gave Stieglitz a slip of paper. "You may go to any one of the three booths that are empty."

"Any one of the three?"

"Yes, they're all alike. It doesn't make any difference which one you vote in."

Stieglitz just stood there and stared.

"Please, sir," the lady said, "pull the lever or I'll split your skull!"

"Pull the lever?" Stieglitz asked. "Up or down?"

"Up or down?" Stieglitz asked. "Up or down?"

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

The Yawn

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You said there is a tube extending from the ear to the throat. Can this become stopped up, cause pressure to build up in the ear and cause one to be hard of hearing?

One doctor said I had a dead nerve and another said it was sinus, and he put those little windows he called them in, but that did not help.

I can yawn or work my jaws and relieve the pressure. I can hear reasonably well. Can this be corrected? By whom? — R.H.C.

That tube is the Eustachian tube, quite small, and its purpose is to keep the pressure equalized on both sides of the ear drums. If pressure builds up on one side, the ear drum cannot vibrate as freely, and hence cannot transmit sound vibrations as well.

You may, of course, have some nerve damage which would limit your hearing — but the fact that you hear reasonably well after yawning or working your jaws (swallowing also often helps) indicates that the nerve isn't completely "dead."

You do, evidently, have some off-and-on plugging of the Eustachian tubes. In fact, they may be partially closed, so that from time to time they become stopped up completely.

Such stoppages can come from various causes. There may be inflammation, and the swelling reduces or shuts off air flow through the tubes. You may have had an infection that left some scar tissue.

Since you evidently have some sinus trouble, that could very likely be part of the picture. Mucus can clog the throat end of the tubes.

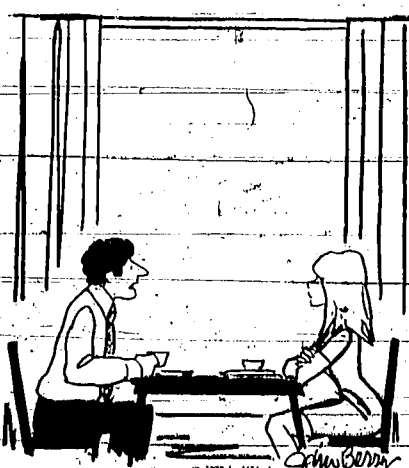

But don't lose track of the fact that your yawns help your hearing. The implication is that your trouble isn't too serious and can be helped. For one thing, the tubes often can be dilated. An ear-nose-throat specialist should be able to help you. Be sure to tell him your experience with the yawns.

In addition, the use of appropriate nose drops (the doctor can tell you just how to use them — the drops will get to the opening of the tubes) may help.

Drops containing ephedrine or an antihistamine decongestant could be helpful.

But I do, primarily, recommend that you tell your story to a nose-throat specialist.

BERRY'S WORLD

"It's time we stop worrying about Al MacGraw and Steve McQueen, and start thinking about US!"

Nixon sticks to 'game plan' during campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Like a veteran quarterback with a three touchdown lead, President Nixon "stuck to his political 'game plan' throughout his reelection campaign, refusing to permit the opposition to rattle him or force him into a mistake.

Nixon decided at the start of his final political race that he would emphasize his role as President, keep away from strident partisan attacks and minimize his personal campaign appearances.

Above all, the plan called for him to keep his rhetoric cool. Few people really thought he could do it. In 26 years as a professional politician—20 of them at or near the presidential level—Nixon acquired a reputation as an enthusiastic campaigner and a highly partisan Republican. As a stump speaker, he had an instinct for the jugular.

Could the man whom former President Lyndon B. Johnson once scored as "a chronic campaigner" ignore increasingly bitter partisan attacks from Democrat George McGovern? McGovern certainly did not think so.

Gary Hart, McGovern's campaign director, boasted in July that the Democratic nominee would start slowly in the public opinion polls but by October he would be coming on strong. At that point, Hart prophesied, Nixon would come out swinging. The McGovern camp believed that once Nixon abandoned the security of the White House and became an active campaigner, he would alienate enough voters to lose the election.

Analysis

But Nixon had decided long before to stay above the battle. Nixon visited only 16 states between the Republican National Convention and election day. He limited his campaign schedule to a rally or two a week, and some weeks he didn't campaign at all.

McGovern's hope of panicking Nixon with a strong advance in the public opinion polls failed. The Democrat then switched to an effort to goad Nixon onto the hustings by toughening his own rhetoric. McGovern called Nixon the most corrupt President in history. He said Nixon's policies were aggravating race tensions. And he finally said Nixon was playing politics in peace negotiations with North Vietnam.

But Nixon refused to take the bait. He never mentioned McGovern's name in public. From the President's campaign speeches—most of them broadcast by radio from the White House library at the Camp David "mountain retreat"—it appeared Nixon was running against some shadowy miscreant named "some" or "they."

Some want to weaken the nation militarily. Some wish to destroy its economy or the work ethic of its people. They even wanted to undermine the public's morals.

Nixon never offered a direct answer to direct McGovern's charges. The closest he ever came was at a news conference Oct. 5 in which the President both shrugged off the corruption accusations and offered a concise description of his own strategy.

"I have noted such charges," Nixon said. "I have noted that this administration has been charged with being the most corrupt in history. The President of the United States has been compared with Adolf Hitler. The policies of the U.S. government to prevent a Communist takeover by force in South Vietnam has been called the worst crime since the Nazi extermination of the Jews in Germany."

"Needless to say, some of my more partisan advisers feel that I should respond in kind," he said. "I shall not do so—not now, not throughout this campaign. I am not going to dignify such comments."

GOP dean Alf Landon sees McGovern loss

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) Alf Landon, former Kansas governor, unsuccessful presidential candidate, and now at 85 the elder statesman of the Republican Party, Monday said Sen. George McGovern would lose Tuesday's election because of "his wreckless rhetoric."

McGovern has charged the Nixon administration with corruption, favoritism to special interests and doubt on the issue of peace, but Landon said, "Sen. McGovern did not substantiate any of his charges." Asked if a Nixon victory over McGovern would be so wide as to set a record in American politics, Landon—who was swamped by Franklin Roosevelt in 1936, said, "It could very well do that."

Speaking slowly and choosing his words with precision, Landon praised Nixon as "a great president and a great world leader," and pointed specifically to Nixon's trips to China and Russia.

"Obviously," said Landon, "as Chou En-Lai said to a group of newspaper editors visiting in Peking, the President has changed the world in his foreign policy. The ramifications are carried almost weekly in the news."

"New relations being set up between Russia and Japan are a part of that. The two Koreas are on the verge of getting together in more normal relations. The same thing goes for the two Germanies. All over the world there's a new atmosphere of more normal relations in the face of the cold war."

Asked if all this could be attributed to Mr. Nixon's trips to Russia and China, Landon said, "I don't know what else you could attribute it to. Not only has he been around a lot, he has changed the world atmosphere, starting in February, 1969, when he first made the steps towards the more normal relations with China."

And in turn, that obviously is going to have a very material effect on our economy."

And in economic relations, Landon sees the key to an easing of world tensions among nations that have rattled missiles at one another regularly for the past 20 years.

"I've long thought, ever since 1961, when I started advocating the European economic committee, that commerce is a better answer to world peace than any other way I know of," said Landon, who after retiring from politics went into business and now has oil interests and is the owner of several radio stations.

Landon said he was confident that President Nixon would bring about a "generation of peace" in spite of the apparent snags that have developed in the settlement of the Vietnam war.

Missing in Alaska, solons on ballots

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Congressmen Hale Boggs and Nick Begich have been missing since their plane disappeared in Alaska Oct. 18, but the names of both will appear on ballots today.

Both men are expected to be re-elected—Boggs in his Louisiana district and Begich in Alaska.

Boggs, the House majority leader, was helping Begich campaign when their plane disappeared on a flight from Anchorage to Juneau. An extensive search has failed to find a trace of the missing aircraft.

Their fates remain undetermined, and their names cannot legally be removed from the ballots.

There is no precedent for the situation. Dead men have been elected to Congress before, among them Rep. Clem Miller, a California Democrat who was killed in a plane crash four weeks before the election. He was voted into office, but a special election chose his successor the following January.

But there is no proof Boggs and Begich are dead. They still are listed as missing. The problem will have to be sorted out after the election. If they are declared dead, the governors of their states will have to call new elections to fill the seats.

Kevin avoids welfare

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI)—Kevin Marshall, a hemophiliac whose family had been faced with going on welfare "to provide treatment for him, finally is assured of free treatments.

Gov. Milford J. Shapp announced Monday that the 19-year-old's parents need not pay for the $1,000-a-month treatments nor find donors to provide the necessary blood. In addition, the boy will be treated at the nearby Hershey Medical Center instead of 100 miles away.

The Marshalls appealed to the state after they had exhausted all private donations. They were told they must go on welfare to be eligible for help. But this meant Francis Marshall would have to quit his $7,800 a year job and support the five members of his family on the welfare check.

Told of the Marshall's plight, Shapp promised aid. At first he proposed enrolling Kevin in a state-federal program at Philadelphia Children's Hospital. But this meant the Marshalls would have to recruit nine people each week to give blood and drive 100 miles to Philadelphia.

Mrs. Marshall, who had been lining up blood donors since Kevin was five months old, said that proposal was "impossible."

Shapp, then, changed the order. Under the final agreement, Kevin need travel only 15 miles from his home in Suburban Camp Hill to the Hershey facility for treatments. Shapp said blood donations would be accepted by Red Cross chapters across the country and sent to Hershey.

Hijacker remains mystery

KEILSO, Wash. (UPI)—Human bones found in the area where hijacker "D.B. Cooper" bailed out of a jetliner with $200,000 last Thanksgiving turned out to be those of a missing hunter and not the elusive skyjacker.

The bones were found in the Cinnahop Park area of southwest Washington and authorities first thought they might be the remains of "Cooper," the name used by the hijacker.

But Monday sheriff's deputies identified the remains as those of James Annis, 16, Hockinson, who disappeared last November while hunting.

Russians celebrate revolution

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union marked the 55th anniversary of its Bolshevik Revolution today by parading well-known military hardware and declaring that international tensions are relaxing.

The 10-minute military display of rockets, tanks and guns through Red Square produced no surprises. The oratory from the tribune of Lenin's mausoleum was mild compared to past years and did not assail the United States or China by name.

"Thanks to the principled and flexible foreign policy of the Soviet Union and other Socialist states, as well as to the vigorous activities of progressive forces of the world, some relaxation of international tension has been achieved of late," said defense minister Marshal Andrei A. Grechko.

"However, aggressive imperialist forces are still active in the world," he said. "They stubbornly resist a relaxation of international tension and any peace-loving actions by the Soviet Union and other socialist countries, wage a shameful war in Indochina, prevent the settlement of the Middle East crisis, heat up and unleash armed conflicts.

"The Communist party and the Soviet government are making proper conclusions from this and are taking necessary steps towards the further strengthening of the country's defense capacity."

Western military experts said they found nothing new in the lineup of military hardware that rumbled across the cobblestoned square in a light snow flurry. It was the 100th military parade since the revolution.

The biggest weapon was again the SS9 ICBM, a 120-foot rocket capable of delivering a five-ton nuclear warhead to New York. It was first shown in 1967, the last year the Nov. 7 parade turned up any surprises.

The relatively mild military display and the absence of rocket-rattling in Grechko's speech reflected the current Soviet foreign policy of stressing European détente over military confrontation.

US speeds aircraft delivery to Vietnam

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A speedup in delivery of aircraft to South Vietnam is designed to telescope into a few weeks a program of building up Saigon's air force that had been scheduled to run until the fall of 1973, Defense Department officials report.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry F. Friedman said Monday the Saigon regime should receive all but perhaps 100 to 150 of its previously scheduled deliveries of planes and helicopters before a peace settlement halts arms reinforcements.

As of Oct. 1, the South Vietnamese air force had received about 1,550 planes and helicopters. Friedman said the original Vietnamization plan called for building up the Saigon force to 2,100 planes and helicopters by autumn, 1973.

The spokesman would not say how many aircraft were involved in the speedup, but other officials acknowledged last week that they included about 120 F5 jet fighters—most of which are being borrowed from three other countries—and 32 C130 transport planes.

Pentagon officials ordered the speedup in late October when it appeared that a cease-fire was imminent.

The proposed Vietnam settlement would allow each side to replace existing arms on a one-for-one basis. However, neither would be allowed to increase the size of its forces.

Defense Department intelligence analysts believe the North Vietnamese also have started a hurried pre-peace-fire buildup. They said the communists were moving thousands of troops, scores of tanks and armored personnel carriers, artillery and ammunition into South Vietnam.

Friedheim said the United States could complete the reinforcement of the South Vietnamese air force within a few weeks, unless they are interrupted by a cease-fire.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird and other Pentagon officials have said the stepped up arms shipments were being made in hopes of enhancing the prospects for a negotiated peace and insuring stability in Southeast Asia after the fighting stops.

Bonanza canceled

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—"Bonanza," the second longest running television western series, honored survivor of the long-gone era when horse operas dominated the home screen, has been cancelled.

The seemingly interminable saga of Ben Cartwright and his sons, holding together a giant ranch on the shores of Lake Tahoe, will broadcast its last chapter in January, NBC announced Monday.

The show has run for 14 years. It may be the most widely syndicated television series ever made, airing in almost every country that broadcasts.

The show suffered a big loss this year with the sudden death of Dan Blocker, who played "Hoss" Cartwright, Ben's bearded, good hearted son.

A shift in time and stiffer competition finished off the show.

"I was frankly surprised the network decided to continue the show without Dan, I thought it would be over then," said Lorne Greene, who played the patriarch of the Ponderosa. "We all knew it would have to come to an end eventually, but I had no idea it would be this soon."

He was told Friday that he should attend a meeting Monday, Greene said, but was unable to make it. Monday he learned it was to announce that the episode now being filmed will be the last.

With the death of "Bonanza," only two westerns remain, the comparatively recent entry of "Alias Smith and Jones," and the daddy of them all —

"Gunsmoke," the longest running western, now in its 10th year. It appears safe, tucked up high in the ratings.

Getting the NBC axe with Bonanza were "The Bold Ones," "Rod Serling's Night Gallery," and "Banyon."

Replacing the venerable western will be an "NBC Tuesday Night Movie," the network announced.

The other original star of "Bonanza," Michael Landon, who in recent years has been writing and directing some episodes as well as playing "Little Joe," was not available for comment.

In its first decade "Bonanza" was a fixture in the top 10 rated shows, but it began to slip in the past few seasons.

With the loss of Blocker, the show was shifted from its traditional Sunday night time slot to Tuesday night ("with very little publicity about the change," complained Greene in looking back) where it ran into a barrage of hot competition: The new "Mann" series by the makers of the super-success "All in the Family," the popular "Hawaii Five-O," and ABC's Tuesday night movie.

High court won't hear desegregation cases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court refused Monday to intervene in four school desegregation cases, including one from Tennessee which local school officials argued went too far in requiring pre-dawn to after-dark busing.

The Court acted only a day before the presidential election where school busing has been a campaign issue in several states and was left unresolved by Congress despite President Nixon's policy of opposing busing for racial balance.

The Court gave no reason for a brief order refusing to hear an appeal of the school board for Nashville and Davidson County, Tenn. The order left standing a decision of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that upheld the busing plan ordered by a federal district court.

The court also refused: —To hear a challenge by a group of parents to a court-ordered busing plan for the Jefferson Parish, La., school system. —To take a school desegregation case which involved a busing moratorium law passed by Congress last June. The court refused to hear the appeal filed by the city school board of Bessemer, Ala.

Voting exclusion case to US court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court agreed today to examine a lower court ruling which excluded some two million blacks and Puerto Ricans in three populous New York counties from the protection of the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

A three-judge federal panel in the District of Columbia granted New York state's request for a declaratory judgment last April 13 that exempted the three counties from provisions of a 1970 amendment aimed at broadening the law beyond the South. The panel acted after Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst—certified through an assistant that he had "no reason to believe" any literary tests or devices had been used in the preceding 10 years in New York, Kings or Bronx counties to deny or abridge the right to vote on account of race or color.

The three-judge court also denied a motion for intervention by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) and five individuals. It acted in a brief order with no opinion. The Supreme Court will hear arguments in the case later this term and decide it by written opinion. Justice Thurgood Marshall, the only Negro member of the Court, did not participate in today's action.

The case originally was brought by the NAACP legal defense fund 14 years ago. The Bessemer case left standing new busing orders mandated July 11, 1972, for Bessemer high schools by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. It was the second time the high court had refused to hear the case. The Jefferson Parish case, which dates back to 1964, was an offshoot of an earlier busing case. The latest effort was brought by 14,000 parents of both races who said they had complied with earlier desegregation plans and contended that any racial identity to the schools that remained was caused by housing patterns, thus was "de facto" and could not be changed by court-ordered busing.

Parochial aid case on docket

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court agreed Monday to decide whether a New York law to provide $20-million of state aid to parochial schools is constitutional. A three-judge federal panel held last April that it wasn't.

New York officials argued in appealing the lower court ruling that the Supreme Court had never ruled on the question of whether a state which "imposes" administrative burdens upon nonpublic schools may also alleviate those burdens by reimbursing the schools for all or a part of the costs.

The Supreme Court will hear oral arguments in the case later in the term. The lower ruled that the law violated the separation of church and state doctrine of the federal Constitution.

The New York act would have allocated payments to nonpublic schools to finance acceptance tests, maintenance of attendance records, and other record keeping and exam services. In a 2-1 decision, the panel said it sympathized with "the serious financial problems directly facing the parochial schools" and, indirectly, the public. But it said the First Amendment guarantee of everyone's "right to worship as he chooses" must be "our guiding star". Seeking to overturn the lower court decision were New York State Comptroller Arthur Levitt and Education Commissioner Ewald B. Nyquist. They contended that under the terms of the state aid bill, "the aid involved is secular, neutral and nonideological".

MICHAEL FITZGIBBON, Shoshone minister, to state post

Shoshone minister resigns

SHOSHONE — The Rev. Michael Fitzgibbon, vicar of Christ Church Episcopal, Shoshone, has tendered his resignation effective the end of November.

He has accepted a position with the state of Idaho as substance abuse coordinator in the alcoholism program.

The Rev. Fitzgibbon said in his new position he will direct counseling programs for acute alcoholics. He will have offices in the State Hospital North at Orofino.

He states he will continue in ministerial duties in a limited capacity as a self-supporting clergyman.

He has been responsible for the Shoshone and Gooding churches for the past two and one-half years. A replacement for him has not been named from the church offices in Boise.

Interim water report scheduled for Burley

BURLEY — The Idaho Water Resource Board staff will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Ponderosa Inn to present an interim state water plan preliminary report.

Marshall Edson, information officer, said the meeting is designed to bring the state water planning program to local communities, so that interested people can take an active part in the decision making process.

The report provides data and information and suggests ways that Idaho's water and related land resources may be managed to meet future needs and desires of the people, Edson said.

The report is not a plan, but is a progress report to the people, the legislature and the executive branch. It presents a comprehensive overview of our resources on a statewide and regional basis, according to Edson.

He said, "Our staff has compiled information obtained from our water needs studies, water inventory, soils surveys, the Bear River reconnaissance study and our contribution to the Columbia-North Pacific and Great Basin framework studies."

The state water planning program is outlined and water resource uses, problems, needs and opportunities are discussed. Conclusions and recommendations are stated to provide opportunities for public reaction.

Edson emphasized that the meeting is not a "hearing" but will be informal in design to permit communication between those attending.

The program will feature a 24 minute film on Idaho's water resources calling attention to some of the problems and future needs.

Present status of state and federal planning efforts will be presented.

All interested persons are invited to the public information meeting, said Edson.

Reopen case, court asked

BOISE (UPI) — Counsel for Oliver B. Turner, Boise, urged the State Supreme Court to reopen the embezzlement case against the former Highway employee today on grounds he pleaded guilty under pressures.

Howard I. Manweiler, Boise, said Turner, a senior road auditor for the highway department when accused of obtaining money under false pretenses, said that "at the time he entered his plea he was obviously at the end of his psychological rope."

Turner was sentenced in August, 1970, to serve 14 years in state prison for 19 counts of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Lunches OK'd in next room

BOISE (UPI) — It's all right to serve lunch at the polls, an assistant secretary of state said Monday, but it should be served in a room separate from the balloting.

Ron Stephens said his office has received a number of calls recently about the time-honored practice of serving lunch at the polls in some of the rural areas.

He said in many cases in some of the more remote and sparsely settled precincts election day is an occasion for old friends and neighbors to get together and a lunch together is appropriate.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again — Anacin. Each year, doctors give over 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain? You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doc-

Ali predicts round

Ali predicts 8th round KO of lightweight Bob Foster

NEW YORK (UPI)—Muhammad Ali checked up on his next opponent by playing sports writer over the telephone Monday and then flatly predicted he would knock out lightweight champion Bob Foster in the eighth round when the two meet in Stateline, Nev., in two weeks.

"You talk, hit harder—harder than me—but all this talk about you knocking me out is crazy," Ali told Foster, who was calling from his Albuquerque, N.M., home. "They just hoping you land a big punch."

"I'll flatten Foster like a saucer. You will not fall in seven. You will not fall in nine. You will fall in eight. Round eight."

"And what happens if I don't," asked Foster.

"Then you great," laughed Ali.

Muhammad can afford to laugh. He's getting $250,000 against 40 per cent of all receipts for the scheduled 12-round fight at the Sahara-Tahoe Hotel on Nov. 21. Foster will receive $125,000, his biggest payday in boxing.

But Foster does pose a problem for Ali, who has easily won all eight fights since his loss to heavyweight champ Joe Frazier in March of 1971. Foster packs dynamite in his left hand and that weapon has left many of his opponents quivering on the canvas.

But the last time Foster ventured out of his own division, he was the one left helpless on the floor after a savage assault by Frazier. That was two years ago and Foster has won eight straight since, including seven title defenses.

Cus D'Amato, who once handled Floyd Patterson and now has been working in Ali's camp in Deer Lake, Pa., is worried about Foster. "I take Foster a lot more seriously than you do," D'Amato told Ali. "He is very strong despite his weight and hits hard with either hand. His right hand is just as potent as his left. And he's smart. He's got a lot of tricks, and he's got a way of revealing the tricks in a most painful manner."

"You put on your pants the same way I do, and you have two hands just like I do," Foster told Ali. "So don't get in there and play around like you did with Jerry Quarry and the rest of them."

"Do you seriously think you can whip me?" asked Ali. "Me, Muhammad Ali?"

"I'm going to be trying," answered Foster.

"What's your weight gonna be?" asked Ali.

"Probably 175 or 180," shot back Foster.

"Soon as I see you I'm gonna know and you'll fall right over," kidded Ali.

"Who's your sparring partners?"

"I don't have any yet. I start training tomorrow," said Foster.

"Tomorrow," shouted Ali. "You better get ready right now. Start trying. I want you to be ready. You sound scared."

"Scared of who?"

"You know who."

"I'm not fighting Frazier this time, so what's to be scared of?" Foster said.

Disputed ABA game forfeited

NEW YORK (UPI)—Commissioner Robert Carlson of the American Basketball Association announced Monday that the controversial "foul game" between the Virginia Squires and Denver Rockets on Oct. 26 has been forfeited to the Squires.

The Squires "won" game 155-111 with the help of 74 free throws made when Denver Coach Alex Hannum instructed his players to foul any Virginia player attempting a shot.

Denver had 50 fouls and seven Rockets fouled out of the game.

Hannum said he was conducting an experiment because of what he called "the trend of pressure defense."

"I wanted to see how far you could go without hurting your team's chances," he said.

Wake Forest coach fired after loss

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI)—Head football coach Tom Harper of Wake Forest was fired Monday after losing the seventh consecutive game of his first season.

Dr. Gene Hooks, the university athletic director, said Harper would remain as head coach for the remaining three games on the schedule.

"Wake Forest has taken this action after extensive deliberation," said Hooks. "I'm sorry that it didn't work out."

Harper, promoted to the top spot last winter after Cal Stoll resigned to accept the head coaching job at Minnesota, had been unable to win a game since a season-opening victory over weak Davidson.

"I wish I had more of a chance and time to develop a football program at Wake Forest," said Harper.

He added, however, that he was not a resentful person and would do everything he could to help the Wake Forest program during the rest of his stay.

Harper served three years as defensive coordinator under Stoll. During that time Wake Forest won its only Atlantic Coast Conference football title.

The 1970 championship was nearly duplicated last year, but most of the players who had performed so successfully graduated and Harper was faced with a massive rebuilding job.

Nebraska ranks No. 2 in latest UPI grid ratings

NEW YORK (UPI)—The University of Nebraska juggernaut, methodically rolling over everyone in sight since its opening-season loss to UCLA, took another step closer to top of the United Press International Board of Coaches' Football Ratings today by passing Alabama into the No. 2 spot behind top-ranked Southern California.

The defending national champion Cornhuskers, who belted Colorado 33-10 last week at top of the United Press International Board of Coaches' Football Ratings today by passing Alabama into the No. 2 spot behind top-ranked Southern California.

ern California again picked up the vast majority of No. 1 nods (27) and 342 total points to easily pace the field for the eighth straight week.

Alabama, which plays unbeaten LSU Saturday in the year's first "Game of the Century" got a rude shock from the coaches before it even took the field—The Crimson Tide, coming off a 58-13 shellacking of Mississippi State, fell victim to the steady rise of Nebraska which has not—100-up—since opening day when it lost 28-23 to UCLA. Alabama wound up with 280 points and also got the remaining two first place votes.

The only other change in the top 10 (and this may also be a bad omen for Alabama) was at No. 6 where LSU switched places with Oklahoma after both had struggles last week. Oklahoma's potent running game managed just 20 points against Iowa State while LSU had to rely on a last second TD pass to edge Mississippi, 17-16.

Big Ten rivals Ohio State and Michigan remained 4-5 respectively while UCLA, Texas and Auburn completed the top 10.

As in previous weeks, voting was highly concentrated among the first seven teams and as a result, only ten other teams received votes this week. Penn

Harmon named top player

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—UCLA quarterback Mark Harmon, who ran for two touchdowns and threw for two more in the Bruins' 28-23 win over Stanford, today was named Pacific-8 offensive player of the week.

Conference executive director Miles Hallock said Harmon paced out Anthony Davis, USC tailback, and Steve Sweeney, a California receiver. Washington quarterback Mark Backman was also nominated.

Bill Armstrong, a California safety, Monday night was named defensive player of the week for intercepting two passes, making eight tackles and punting for a 47.4-yard average in the Bears' 31-12 win over Oregon Saturday.

Van Brocklin predicts title

ATLANTA (UPI)—Norm Van Brocklin stepped out of church Monday when he predicted the Atlanta Falcons would win their last six games and the NFC West.

"The team with 10 wins is going to win our division," said Van Brocklin the day after a 20-7 loss at Los Angeles dropped the Falcons to 4-4 and a game and a half behind the Rams.

"Win our last six? Yes," he said confidently, ignoring the fact that the Falcons have been beaten decisively the past two weeks and go against unbeaten Washington two weeks from now—to say nothing of a visit to San Francisco which whipped the Falcons, 49-14, in Atlanta.

"Our plight is to chase the Rams," said Van Brocklin. "We've got to keep winning and get them looking over their shoulder at us. No team has this division won yet. You never know what might happen to the other fellow. We have to take care of ourselves."

New Orleans Saints, 14-1 after a 37-6 loss to Minnesota. Atlanta beat the Saints 21-14 in New Orleans.

Quarterback Bob Berry was thrown for losses six times Sunday while attempting to pass and Van Brocklin blamed that on "a breakdown in our blocking in crucial situations."

"Actually, Bob did a tremendous job when you consider the pressure he was under," said Van Brocklin. "He was running away from the rush on many of his completions."

Berry hit on 11 of 20 passes for 164 yards but twice was intercepted just when it appeared he had the Falcons moving in for scores. He had a 68-yard touchdown pass called back when an official ruled he had crossed the scrimmage line before throwing.

Nicklaus stays first on list

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mike Hill, winner of the Texas Open last week, is a long way from breaking into the top 10 on the PGA money-win list, but his two stroke victory at San Antonio was worth $25,000 and moved him from 57th on the list to 33rd with earnings of $67,067.

Jack Nicklaus, who passed up the Texas event, is still first on the scale with $290,542 and Lee Trevino in second. Trevino finished second in Texas and won $14,300, giving him $214,805 for the year thus far.

Colts snap losing streak with 24-17 win over Pats

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI)—Bruce Laird recovered a fumble and returned a kickoff 73 yards to set up a pair of third quarter touchdowns Monday night as the Baltimore Colts snapped a four-game losing streak with a 24-17 victory over the New England Patriots in a National Football League game.

The Colts led 10-3 when they punted the ball away on the first series of plays in the second half, but Carl Garrett fumbled the return and Laird pounced on the ball at the New England 25.

Don Nottingham drove to the 23 on the next play and quarterback Marty Domres fired a strike into the end zone to Tom Mitchell for a 17-3 advantage at 3:36 of the third quarter.

The Patriots came back for a

Anti-olympic group hopeful

DENVER (UPI)—Boyed by a recent newspaper poll in their favor, anti-Olympic forces in Colorado Monday predicted victory when voters decide whether the state should spend any more money on the 1976 Winter Olympics Tuesday.

At issue is a proposed state constitutional amendment which, if passed, would cut off state money for the Olympics. Since federal appropriations for the Games are tied to state matching funds, a successful vote on the amendment would end Colorado's chance to host the sporting event.

A similar proposal, in the form of a city charter amendment, will confront Denver voters well. If passed, it would block the use of city funds.

The groundswell of opposition to the games began after the International Olympic Committee (IOC) designated Denver as the host city in May of 1970. Since then, opponents have raised serious questions on the environmental impact of the Games, their cost to the taxpayer and the competency of the Olympic promoters in Colorado.

On Sunday, the Denver Post published its final pre-election poll and it predicted the statewide anti-Olympic measure would pass with 57 per cent of the vote.

"The poll was a surprise," said Thomas Nussbaum, coordinator for Citizens for Colorado's Future (CCF), the group which collected 78,000 signatures to place the proposed amendment on the ballot.

"The people we've talked to just feel they were never asked if they wanted the Games," he said. "They are not necessarily opposed to the Games. They just want to be able to vote on the issue."

Rick Barry regains NBA touch

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rick Barry hasn't lost his NBA touch. Barry, a National Basketball Association scoring champion before leaving his talents to the rival ABA, is back in the senior circuit and winning games for the Golden State Warriors with his point making.

The 6-7 Barry, currently ranked 18th in scoring, is on a hot foul shooting streak with 39 straight free throws. The record is 55 consecutive foul shots set by Los Angeles Lakers Coach Bill Sharman as a member of the dynasty Boston Celtics in 1956.

Little Mike Archibald of the Kansas City-Omaha Kings tops the league in scoring with a 33.2 average and in assists with a 10.6 game average. Wilt Chamberlain of Los Angeles is first in field goal percentages on a 70.6 mark.

Notre Dame's Thurmond of Golden State heads the NBA rebounders with a 16.9 average through last Sunday's games.

Coach is puzzled over UCLA rating

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Coach Pepper Rodgers isn't claiming that UCLA should be rated No. 1 in the nation but he told the southern California football writers Monday he can't understand why Nebraska should be ranked above his Bruins.

"I don't think Nebraska rates being above us after we beat them," Rodgers said. "It looks like Nebraska has forgotten we played them. I realize it was the first game for their fine quarterback, David Humm, but people forget it was also the first Varsity Game for our quarterback, Mark Harmon."

Rodgers said he felt Harmon played his greatest game Saturday in the thrilling 28-23 victory over Stanford.

"There were a couple of key plays he made all by himself," Rodgers said. "On our final 75-yard drive, we took the football and used basic wishbone plays and Harmon finished it off with the touchdown."

Rodgers felt the Stanford game was similar in the way it evolved with the Nebraska contest in that his team had to stop its opponent when it was driving at the end.

Rodgers praised Stanford quarterback Mike Boryla as a great passer who had outstanding receivers making fine catches.

"But I would rather play a team that throws 50 times in a game like Stanford did than a ball control team like Michigan. A passing team give you a chance of getting the ball."

Rodgers said his team was not looking past Saturday's encounter with the University of Washington at Seattle to the game with University of Southern California the following week for the conference championship. He said the Bruins would hold nothing back against the Huskies, whom he termed a great defensive team.

Senior assistant coach Dave Levy of USC said the Trojans would take advantage of a bye this week with three days off before they began practicing for the UCLA game.

Schedule favors So. Cal

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The scheduling advantage is on the side of No. 1-rated University of Southern California this time when it meets UCLA for the Pacific-8 championship, says coach Pepper Rodgers of the Bruins.

Rodgers' UCLA team can't look ahead to the game that will decide the Rose Bowl bid No. 18 because it must first meet Washington, he told the Southern California Football Writers Monday.

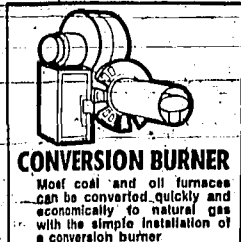

"Last year we had a bye before meeting USC and this year they have it," he said. "There's no question the week off helped us to play them to a tie."

"One disadvantage for us when an opponent has a week off is it gives them an extra week to defense our wishbone formation," Rodgers said.

Gas Heat

EFFICIENT • ECONOMICAL • ECOLOGICAL

Gas heat is truly "fresh air heat." A natural gas central heating system circulates fresh air throughout your home eliminating stuffiness and unpleasant household odors. And natural gas is kind to our environment. When it burns, only water vapor and carbon dioxide go up the chimney. Both are essential for plant growth.

CONVERSION BURNER

Most coal and oil furnaces can be converted quickly and economically to natural gas with the simple installation of a conversion burner.

WALL FURNACE

Here's the ideal way to heat a small home, a new addition or a remodeled area. It's easily installed, compact and efficient.

Heavy vote seen

Lincoln County, incumbent Rep. John Peavey, Rupert, has faced a stiff Democratic challenge from a young Rupert City councilman, William F. (Bill) Whitton.

The campaign has been heated, but until a few weeks ago, gave Whitton a chance. Most now agree, however, that he has cut deeply into Peavey's areas of strength, and some now predict a Whitton upset.

In Cassia County, Democrat State Senator Robert Saxvik, Burley, who won his first term in 1970, faces a strong challenge from a Burley physician, Dr. Charles Terhune.

Clarence Parr, a farmer seeking election as a Democrat to the state House of Representatives is given a chance of picking off one of the two Republican representatives seats in the district, either from Ernest Hale, R-Burley, or J. Vard Chatburn, a veteran Albion Republican legislator.

In Jerome County, the race for sheriff has drawn the most attention. Eliza Hall, Republican, Democrat Foley Asher and write-in candidates Paul Whaley, Howard DuBois and Jack Parrott, are all chasing the sheriff's badge.

Also in the Jerome area, district 23 incumbent legislators Vernon F. Ravenscroft, R-Tuttle, and Earl Greenawald, R-Jerome, are opposed by Anna Louise Robinson, a former Jerome schoolteacher, and former Gooding Mayor Leo Rice, both Democrats.

Rice has used extensive media advertising, including television spots and newspaper advertisements, in his effort to get back into political office, which he left in 1965 when he stepped down as mayor of Gooding.

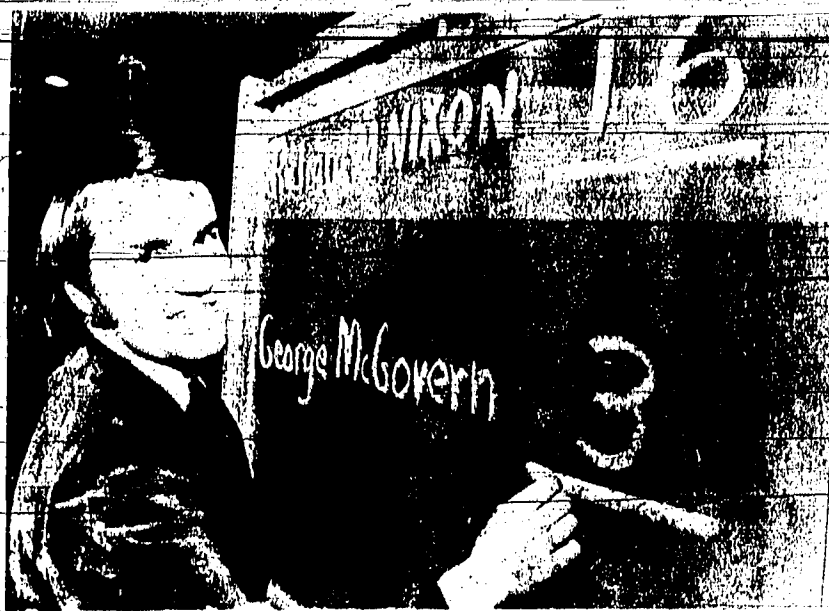

In the Twin Falls legislative races, A. K. (Aud) Reed is given an outside chance of upsetting either House Speaker William J. Lanting, R-Hollister, or William Roberts, R-Buhl.

In Lincoln County, a last minute write-in campaign by incumbent County Commissioner Burrell Williams has complicated a two-man race between Republican Ward Mills and Democrat William Kerner.

Williams, who announced earlier he would not seek re-election, is organizing a last minute attempt to return to office. Some observers attribute his activity to his failure to gain appointment as Lincoln County magistrate.

And in Blaine County, one election problem was solved earlier this week when Bruce Rathke announced he was a write-in candidate for coroner. No one else had filed in the race.

Aside from the elections, voters will also decide on nine constitutional amendment proposals. The one which has drawn the most public attention, including a personal campaign effort by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, would reorganize state government into a maximum of 20 state agencies.

City routes aired at Burley council

BURLEY — Chamber of commerce recommendations for alternate truck routes within the city were presented to the Burley City Council Monday evening.

Gary Asson, chamber representative, introduced graphic explanations of immediate and long range plans for relieving the downtown area of truck traffic.

The immediate plans call for trucks entering from the north on Overland Avenue and headed south or west to turn west on Railroad Avenue, then cross the railroad tracks on Occidental Avenue to continue west on Highway 30 or south on Park Avenue to 27th Street where they would turn east to rejoin Highway 27 and continue south.

Those trucks entering from the north and headed east would turn east on Eighth Street to Hiland Avenue then south to Highway 30.

The south to east route had trucks following Overland Avenue north and turning east on Main Street. All other trucks would follow the same routes with the exception of those entering from the west and south and headed north which would follow Occidental north to Eighth Street then turn east on reaching Overland.

Asson said long range plans included stop lights at Hiland East Main and Occidental West Main intersections. Improvement and extension of Third Street to connect with Occidental and Hiland in providing a future truck route and possible use of Washington road to provide a south route instead of Park Avenue.

Mayor Garis Robertson said the chamber plan would be considered at the next meeting of the city planning commission.

In other action the council: — Approved a subdivision plat for a 1740 trailer park on East 24th Street to the 300 feet east of Overland on the north side of the street.

Heard a report from Peale Sanitation Service concerning trash pickup complaints, all justified, complaints had been satisfied.

Heard an explanation of possible liability insurance coverage for the city from Dick Solomon of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Co.

Asked city attorney Bill Parsons to prepare an ordinance setting the basic citywide speed limit at 25 miles per hour.

Tabled a request by Don Taylor of the Mini-Cassia Search and Rescue unit for use of the city's half of a short wave radio base station.

Committed up to $450 for a Cassia County technical data study and report by the Soil Conservation Service.

Reservation service under way in Blaine

KETCHUM — A reservations placement service is available at the Ketchum-Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce office, Ketchum.

According to chamber manager Lloyd Curtis, the central reservations switchboard simplified the process of locating accommodations for out of town prospective visitors and has resulted in a "higher occupancy rate than ever before."

By calling one number, 726-4471, reservations may be made at any one of the nine participating motels and 10 condominiums in Ketchum as well as any facility in Sun Valley. This year the service will be expanded to include Elkhorn accommodations, Curtis said.

Usually, the caller is connected directly to the facility of his choice unless reservations are not available, than comparable lodging is located, Curtis said.

If a caller is unfamiliar with area accommodations, he will be connected to the facility that best meets his requirements.

A chart is posted next to the switchboard, listing what lodging is available for certain time periods.

The service is especially helpful for reservations during the Christmas season, when facilities run near capacity, Curtis said. During October, the switchboard placed about 100 persons for the winter season, with stays ranging from seven to 10 days, he said.

The switchboard has been operated for almost two years through the "Visitor's Bureau" and is open on a year-round basis.

MANNING the central reservations switchboard is Ketchum-Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce Manager Lloyd Curtis. By calling 726-4471, out-of-town visitors may arrange for accommodations in Ketchum, Sun Valley or Elkhorn.

Ketchum ends permit hassle

After subsequent court hearing, Fifth District Judge Charles Scoggin denied the plaintiffs' request for a temporary restraining order against the city, but directed the council to grant the firm a full hearing, giving the firm "a right to offer testimony to uphold its position."

At the Oct. 30th council hearing no action could be taken beyond recording of testimony because a quorum was not present. Only councilmen Glenn Brannen and Vern McClellan attended.

A further suit was heard in court Thursday brought by attorneys George Kneeland and James Donart, representing intervenors in the case, adjacent land owners, Mrs. Kneeland and Tony Raebler.

Judge Scoggin did not rule on a new plaintiffs' request that G and H and Ketchum City building inspector, John Jacoby, be held in contempt of court for causing confusion to begin pursuant to "the original building permit without complying with the requirements of the court's decision" for a full hearing.

Stating the Oct. 30 meeting did not meet the legal requirements of his order, Judge Scoggin reiterated his decision that a full hearing be conducted before the council.

At Monday's meeting Raebler said if the building permit was granted "from here on in we will have nothing but a mess in town because the law doesn't mean anything."

Outlining dates of action on the case and the start of building, Raebler said "if people go against the city zoning commission and council, disobey a court order (to stop construction) ... go against the new zoning, I would call them outlaws."

Resident J. D. Pace said in Horn's and Grant's submitted of the original building plan "it is my firm belief they were trying to put something over on the city."

Another resident, Edward Scott, said in the case "private agreements were made behind doors," court orders were defied, and a clear conflict of interest was ignored.

In his opinion, Scott said, the intent of Grant and Horn was to load the property with as many paying bodies as possible.

He said because City Attorney Willis Benjamen had previously represented G and H, Benjamin made weak ineffective attempts to protect the city.

In rebuttal Benjamin said the day after the permit was suspended he contacted every party involved and all consented to his representing the city.

Donart, representing the intervenors, argued the permit had been revoked, not suspended, and the new plan for five apartment be submitted under the recently passed new zoning ordinance, allowing only one duplex per lot.

Boiler argued that G and H had a vested right to the building permit and it be issued under city ordinances existing at the time the original permit was issued.

Picabo man gets grassman honors

BOISE — Manager of the Lava Lake Ranch, Nick Purdy, Picabo, has been named overall "Grassman of the Year."

The award was given during the 42nd annual Idaho Chamber of Commerce meeting in Boise Monday.

Purdy was South Central Idaho district winner in the annual competition. According to Hugh Hough, Idaho Power Co., grassman program chairman, there were 22 county winners in the contest this year, the 22nd annual competition.

The selection is made on the basis of four topics, utilization of grass, alfalfa, livestock, land and the man himself. Hough explained. "Purpose of the award is primarily to recognize good farming practices being used in Idaho."

Purdy was specifically cited for development of water needs on his ranch, which he had previously been faced with excessive water runoff and later summer water shortages. By using vegetation to control water runoff, enlarging an existing lake and using sprinkler irrigation for recycling of water he was able to solve these problems.

Other district winners included LeRoy Henderson, Nez Perce, northern; Oscar Field, Grand View, southwest, and Walt Diamond, Montpelier, southeast.

Bickel PTO plans meet with PTA aides

TWIN FALLS — The newly formed Bickel School Parent-Teacher Organization (PTO) members voted Monday night to hold a special meeting to hear representatives of the rival PTA.

Mrs. Floyd Kisting, Dietrich, immediate past president of the State Parent Teachers Association (PTA) which was replaced by the PTO, had asked to speak at Monday night's PTO meeting.

PTO members voted instead to invite Mrs. Kisting to a special meeting to present her views.

No date has been set for the meeting.

In other business, the Bickel PTO installed new student patrols. Twin Falls Policeman Clifford Sharp administered the patrol oath and explained the duties.

Mrs. Arthur Brown of the League of Women Voters discussed nine constitutional amendments on the ballot and answered questions.

Gooding students ask for pollution control

By PEGGY CHU
Times-News writer

GOODING — Environment conscious high school students and the Gooding City Council began measures to clean up air pollution over Gooding.

The action was taken at Monday night's council meeting.

Mark Olsh, Gooding High School senior and spokesman for the group meeting with the council, told the City Council the burning of trash and leaves is polluting the atmosphere and endangering the environment.

The high school group asked that a city ordinance be adopted to curb air pollution and that the present burning ordinance be enforced.

Mayor Harley Crippen asked the city attorney to write to the Idaho Environmental Protection Agency and request a copy of the state ordinance. The city will adopt that ordinance. City Clerk George Silva read a letter from the EPA suggesting a city ordinance and local enforcement of ordinances prohibiting open burning. No burning is allowed where garbage pickup is available.

The letter said the agency realized there might be a hardship for smaller towns, so a two week cleanup period in the spring and fall will allow burning.

The council recommended that leaves not be burned, but placed in the alleys for pickup by the city dump trucks. The leaves will be collected even if they are not bagged.

Illegal burning at the city garbage dump was discussed. Filing of those caught starting fires there was considered. The student group offered to patrol the area, periodically and to assist with cleanup work.

Six Gooding bar owners and Dan Kelley of the liquor law enforcement met with the City Council to discuss the Idaho law requiring catering permits for parties serving liquor.

Jack Varin, assistant city attorney, told the group a catering permit costing $20 must be obtained from the city and a licensed bar owner must be retained to cater the party and serve the liquor.

Mayor Harley Crippen told the council about a resolution requesting an Army Corps of Engineers study of the Little Wood River for possible flood control.

He said dams and bypasses on the river would be required. The resolution was signed by the cities of Gooding and Shoshone and by the counties of Lincoln and Gooding.

Bob Eckles presented a progress report on the city basketball program, saying there are eight teams with 80 players participating.

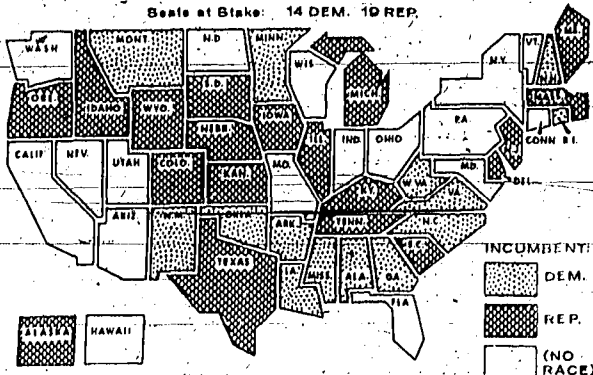

MANNING the central reservations switchboard is Ketchum-Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce Manager Lloyd Curtis. By calling 726-4471, out-of-town visitors may arrange for accommodations in Ketchum, Sun Valley or Elkhorn.

Service vote may turn tide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time, the serviceman's vote may influence the outcome of balloting in local elections due to new laws around the country.

For years servicemen were treated as outlanders by the localities around their bases and stations, but in 1970 the Supreme Court ruled that the states could not keep certain federal employees from voting. While servicemen were not specifically covered by the ruling, the Pentagon says most states now are permitting troops to register much as many college students can register in the voting district that encompasses their campus. Another boost to the turnout of voters in uniform is the easing of residence requirements. Many states required six months or more residence for voters, but the period now has been dropped to 30 days in most places.

Of 25.6 million men and women in the 18-25 age group who never have been eligible to vote in a Presidential election before, about 2.2 million are in uniform.

In 1968 only about four out of 10 servicemen of voting age actually voted — compared with six out of 10 civilians. The poor turnout was to a great extent the result of laws which made it difficult for highly mobile servicemen to qualify to vote. The changes in these laws — plus the 18-year-old vote — should substantially increase the serviceman's vote this year. The military has gone to great lengths to get the men to vote. By Sept. 15 a voting officer in every unit was required to have passed out red-striped post cards to every man, for use in obtaining absentee ballots. Posters, pamphlets and speeches have been used to persuade servicemen to exercise their voting rights.

Nixon, McGovern amass large estates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and Democratic presidential hopeful George McGovern often recall their humble beginnings, but over the years both men have amassed substantial estates.

McGovern's net assets are in excess of $271,600 and the White House lists the President's net worth at $765,118.

The Nixon estate at San Clemente, Calif., and his Key Biscayne, Fla., home are valued at $809,747 on which the President owes mortgages of $18,038. If Nixon's mortgage liabilities are not included, his assets total $1,283,256.

McGovern rents an apartment in Mitchell, S.D., and owns a $110,000 Japanese-decor home in Washington and a $85,000 summer house in St. Michaels, Md., near Chesapeake Bay.

Nixon is the nation's highest paid civil servant and the first President to earn $200,000 annually. He also receives $50,000 in expense money. Congress raised the presidential pay level from $100,000 between the time he was elected in 1968 and his inauguration in 1969.

As a senator, McGovern earned $42,500 but in 1971 he also received $38,200 from speaking and writing fees. His income from a $62,000 blind trust administered by Henry Kimolman, chairman of McGovern's campaign finances, totaled $4,200.

McGovern, who led other Democratic presidential candidates in releasing a statement of his assets in early 1972, also earned $4,200 in 1971 from interest on savings and rents.

His liabilities include a $47,000 mortgage on the Washington, D.C., home and a $24,600 mortgage on the St. Michaels residence. His other assets as listed in a financial statement for the end of 1971 are:

Checking and savings accounts, $52,800; $5,800 due of a $15,000 personal loan to the Democratic Party Reform

Commission; investment in rental property, $10,000; part interest in an Aberdeen, S.D. residence inherited from his mother, $5,000; furniture in his Mitchell apartment, $1,500; personal property including cars, jewelry and clothing, $10,000; equity in Civil Service Federal Retirement Program, $31,100.

Controls balance backed

BOISE (UPI) — A panel moderator at the annual Idaho Chamber of Commerce meeting called Monday for more meaningful dialogue between industry and state government to achieve the proper balance for natural resource development.

"It's getting to the point where environmental controls are running through the legislature, the courts and the corporate board rooms," said Dr. Richard K. Hart, director of the Center for Business and Economic Research at Boise State College.

"If pollution controls are too stringent, before long it will result in higher taxes for citizens, higher prices for the consumer and lower profits for shareholders," he told the group's 48th annual congress here.

Hart said business and industry in the nation forked out more than $3 billion last year for pollution control measures due to the last two years' thrust toward the environmental issue.

"And a revisionist movement has begun to take shape in reaction to the new controls," he said.

Poo-hoo school grades

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—Grades offer few benefits to either teacher or student. So says Stanford C. Erickson, director of the University of Michigan Center for Research on Learning and Teaching.

He believes the major function of grades is to provide information to prospective employers, graduate schools, and other sources completely removed from the classroom. In a report, he challenged both the validity of grades as accurate indicators of achievement and the school's right to furnish them to outside sources.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My beautiful 27-year-old daughter (I'll call her Mary) tried to take her life. This is the third time she took an overdose of sleeping pills.

Mary is married and has two small children, but she has been separated from her husband for four months. Mary got involved with a married man, and her husband found out about it and left her.

When Mary takes these pills she calls up her husband and tells him what she has done, and he comes over and rushes her to the hospital to have her stomach washed out.

I am so afraid if she tries it again he won't get there in time to save her, and that will be the end of my beautiful daughter. Please tell me what I can do to help her.

A Lovelier You

GLIDE, DON'T STRIDE

By Mary Sue Miller

You have heard it said that diamonds are a girl's best friend. But those gems come in second when you wear evening clothes. The grace of your figure and movement is the premier accessory.

Slumped posture or a shipshod walk downgrades one's dress and figure, however lovely they may be. Worse, gauche carriage threatens your poise and personality appeal. The walk to strive for is a glide — you do not seem to touch the ground, but rather walk on air. Here's the way to take the steps:

1. Pull up tall, with feet together and knees slightly flexed. Easy does it, never strain or stiffen. Step out by lifting left foot a fraction off floor and moving foot forward — toes pointing straight ahead; let major action flow from hip joint.

2. Place foot lightly on floor, one pace ahead of right foot. Heel and toe should touch surface almost simultaneously, to avoid heel clunk and toe plop. For balance "grip" floor with toes. Follow up with right foot.

3. As you continue walking, add these skills: Keep feet moving on two imaginary parallel lines that run two inches apart. Let arms fall relaxed, close to sides, or carry an evening purse in one hand at waist level.

4. Work throughout for light steps and for perfect rhythm. To test your aptitude, listen to the sound of your steps on a linoleum-covered or bare wood floor. You can pat yourself on the back when the beat falls evenly in a waltz-time glide, and almost soundlessly.

LEGLINE TRIMMERS If your individual problem is heavy legs, send for my new leg-line LEGLINE TRIMMERS, which contain spot reducing exercise that will meet your individual needs, whether for thighs, knees, calves or ankles, or for contouring your entire legline. West was an honest man. His remark clearly indicated that he held four trumps to the queen-jack. It also told South that he could make his contract if West held the right distribution.

South won the diamond. Lashed one trump and the other high diamond to discard one club from dummy. Thuffed a diamond in dummy and played three rounds of hearts to discard his own last diamond, followed by three rounds of clubs. South had to ruff the last club while unfortunate West was following suit.

Everyone was down to three cards. South led a low trump and West won with an honor and had to lead the suit back and give South the last two tricks.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will be one of those interesting young people who will be so enamored with the past that it will be difficult for your offspring to accept the changes that the present and the future might bring. # State budgets climb, reorganization or not

By DWIGHT JENSEN
Special to the Times-News
BOISE—Since the state of Colorado underwent reorganization four years ago, its general fund budget has increased 89.6 per cent.

Since the state of Florida underwent reorganization four years ago, its general fund budget has increased 66.6 per cent.

In those same four years, Idaho, without reorganization, has seen a 55 per cent increase in its general fund budget.

Wisconsin, with a reorganized government, has seen a 69.6 per cent budget increase in those four years. In the six years since reorganization took effect in Madison, that state's budget has increased 120 per cent.

Before reorganization, Wisconsin had 25,000 full-time classified state employees. Now it has 32,300.

Before reorganization, Florida had 57,000 state employees. Now it has 70,000.

So Gov. Cecil Andrus may have been on shaky ground last week when he toured the state by National Guard airplane and said that the passage of S. J. R. 132, which calls for reorganization of Idaho state

One of those two is from Wisconsin (up 120 per cent in six years); the other is from Florida (up 66.6 per cent in four years).

Andrus cited Montana as an example of cost reductions through reorganization. So much money has been saved there, he said, that Gov. Forrest Anderson is going to be able to recommend a 75 per cent reduction in the income tax surcharge to the next Montana legislature.

In Helena, though, officials have a somewhat different tale to tell. Three men in the auditor's office agree that it's impossible to demonstrate through the state's fiscal records that reorganization has saved any money.

"Ask 100 people and you'll get 100 different answers," one said. Both proponents and opponents of reorganization in Montana say it's too new to tell about costs—the most recent departmental reorganization occurred only six weeks ago, and the first one less than two years ago.

The current biennial budget for Montana is $186 million. Gov. Anderson intends to ask the next legislature for a legislation, also adopted a 40 per cent surcharge on the state income tax. That law provided that in 1973 the surcharge would drop to 10 per cent. So the 75 per cent reduction to be recommended by Anderson has already been enacted into law, and taxes before reorganization.

In addition, Montana will

'Reorganization was to streamline government, not save dollars.' — John Matthews, Colorado benefit from $18 million in revenue sharing income, according to Director of Administration Doyle Saxby, which will make up more than half the income lost by the tax cut.

The state of Michigan underwent reorganization in the 1963-65 biennium, following adoption of a new constitution. Since then the Michigan sales tax has increased and Michigan has adopted an income tax, which it did not have at the time of reorganization.

Officials in Michigan say the rate of increase spending has accelerated since reorganization, although they point out that the state was in a recession before 1963 and has been in a growth period since, so that also affects the picture.

Here is a sampling of comments from state officials who deal with fiscal matters and who have been through the experience of state government reorganization:

Tony Lavelle, deputy director of the budget, Minnesota: "The purpose of reorganization is to consolidate like agencies. We have reorganized our Department of Public Safety and it has had no fiscal effect. We are starting to see some savings but they are not from reorganization. They're coming because we sent a team of management analysts in there to change their methods of doing business. Generally, reorganization would not cause a reduction in the cost of doing business."

Larry Powers, Senate Fiscal Agency, Michigan: "It would be almost impossible for you to have a reduction in cost. The best you can hope for is to reduce the amount of increase." Terry Rhodes, analyst, Legislative Fiscal Bureau, Wisconsin: "I would be hard put to try to trace any great amount of savings. Most expenditures are in uncontrolled, non-negotiable areas, such as education and welfare. You could argue that money was more efficiently used, but not that you needed less money.

"It's hard to pinpoint any savings after reorganization here except in one or two departments, and they would probably have cut costs anyway because of data processing. Even then, the savings get gobbled up because they say, 'We have this extra money; let's do this.'"

"You would think that combining accounting and budgeting activities and implementing other efficiencies and economies would cut costs. The problem is that it takes an exceptional administrator to turn positions back. He says, 'I've renamed these positions and redesignated their duties.' It comes down to that mythical thing of saying, 'We've saved money because we haven't asked for what we would have asked for.'"

Rhodes summarized: "If someone came to me and said, 'Do we want to reorganize because we have to save money,' I would have to say there are other ways for the Governor and the legislature to go about that without going through reorganization. If you say, 'We need to reorganize in order to help simplify government,' that does make some difference."

Rhodes was the one state official who had reservations about other aspects of state government reorganization. Most of them praised it because they said it simplifies government, makes it easier for citizens to deal with, gives more power to the Governor, increases responsiveness and the like. Rhodes was not opposed to reorganization, but said it is not all good.

He said that after reorganization, a great many agencies are consolidated into one. This does not always reduce the number of funds, he said, and it does make it more likely that details that were visible before become obscured in the mass. The result, he said, can be "a lot of clouds and smoke screens" and more difficulty in finding out exactly what some particular agency is doing and how it is spending its money.

Other comments: Gene Petrone, in the Colorado executive department's Budget Division: "I don't think that becoming more effective results in cutting the cost. My judgment is that reorganization did not reduce the cost of government in Colorado. The implication is that by consolidating government we somehow reduce the cost of government. I don't think that happens, and if it does it's not significant."

Colorado's Gov. Lave is one of those who has told Gov. Andrus he can use his endorsement in promoting reorganization of Idaho state government through adoption of S.J. R. 132, office said. "That Deputy Auditor John Matthews of Colorado says reorganization in that state have not reduced the number of added another level of people working."

management "and probably has added some cost." He said there are now about 10 new executive directors receiving $25,000 a year or more. "It was not sold on the basis of cost-cutting," he said. "Reorganization was to streamline government, not to save dollars."

Andrus is also quoting Vice President Agnew as saying that reorganization has been good for Maryland. Analyst Odell Smith in the Maryland legislature's Fiscal Service office said: "That reorganization does not cut costs is a fair statement. We have not reduced the number of people working."

'Reorganization is to consolidate like agencies . . . reorganization would not cause a reduction in the cost of doing business.' — Tony LaVelle, Minnesota government, would save money for the state.

Earlier in the campaign, Andrus had said S. J. R. 132 would not be sold on the claim that it would cut costs. Instead, he said, the argument would be that it would make government more responsive, easier for the public to understand and to deal with, and more efficient.

Had he stayed with only those arguments, he would be saying what most state officials interviewed by the Times-News who have had experience with state government are saying. But almost to a man, those same officials say it doesn't cut costs — and the two who say they think it reduces costs say they have no figures to prove it.

budget of $212 million, not a decrease. That picture is complicated, though, by the fact that Montana is making some changes in the method of financing capital construction and in the method of accounting for legislative costs, so it is hard to get an exact picture of the change.

(One usual result of reorganization, according to students of government, and one of the reasons it is sometimes attempted, is that it makes it difficult to draw comparisons between a new administration and an old administration.)

As to the tax reduction: The 1971 Montana legislature, which adopted reorganization
