JEROME — A Buhl man was in "critical condition" late Saturday after he crashed his allegedly stolen car into a Jerome police car during a high-speed chase the wrong way on Interstate 80 near Jerome.

Two Jerome policemen leaped to safety moments before the flaming crash. Edward Allan Reinkens, 22, suffered a broken right leg and internal injuries when his vehicle struck the police car which had been set up as a roadblock one mile south of Jerome on Interstate 80.

Twin Falls police began chasing Reinkens after a patrolman allegedly observed him running a stop sign.

Twin Falls Chief of Detectives Tim Qualls would not disclose the route of the chase, but according to Jerome Chief of Police Howard DuBois, Twin Falls police began chasing the car north on Blue Lakes Blvd. N., reaching speeds exceeding 100 miles per hour.

Jerome police became involved after Reinkens turned east onto Interstate 80 and then spun around to head west down the eastbound lane of the highway.

A Jerome patrol car was dispatched to get in front of Reinkens to try to slow the car and give some warning to motorists that a chase was underway in the wrong direction on the Interstate.

The Jerome police unit headed east down I-80 with the intention of turning in front of Reinkens vehicle. Before the officers could turn around the speeding vehicle was on top of them, Chief DuBois said.

The two Jerome patrolmen, Donald Robinson and Ross Hutchinson, turned their car broadside across the highway and jumped out, just seconds before Reinkens' vehicle crashed into the patrol car, soared into the air and burst into flames.

Robinson and Hutchinson then pulled Reinkens from the flaming wreckage and raddled for an ambulance, according to DuBois. Their patrol car was demolished, but its radio was still in operation.

Reinkens was taken first to St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome and then transferred to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital in Twin Falls, where he underwent surgery.

DuBois said Reinkens could have gone around the patrol car. Instead, it appeared Reinkens deliberately smashed into the patrol car, Chief DuBois said.

Patrolman Don Robinson said that after Reinkens was pulled from the flaming wreckage of his vehicle, he said, "At least I got two of you pigs."

According to Idaho State Police corporal Bill Van Dyke there were 110 feet of skid marks at the scene. Van Dyke said the patrol car travelled 82 feet after it was struck and the vehicle driven by Reinkens travelled 72 feet.

Chief DuBois said that within his jurisdiction Reinkens would be charged with exceeding the speed limit, driving in the wrong lane, failure to stop, and "just about everything you can put in the book."

DuBois said the accident itself is not a violation. "It's unbelievable, he could have come out of it alive, even for a few minutes," DuBois said. "He just absolutely demolished both cars."

DuBois estimated the loss of the patrol car at $2,000, plus. Charges were also pending against Reinkens in Buhl. Buhl Chief of Police Dick Frazier said Reinkens would be charged Monday with two counts of burglary and one count of grand larceny.

Frazier alleged the car which Reinkens wrecked had been stolen from the Car City parking lot at 605 South Broadway in Buhl between 1 a.m. and 2:30 a.m. He said the car was stolen after the office at Car City was broken into and keys to all cars on the lot stolen.

Frazier also said Reinkens would be charged with breaking into Marv's Union 76, 657 South Broadway, Buhl, and taking about $25 and other goods allegedly recovered at the crash site.

According to Frazier,

Reinkens is on probation from Area and under obligation to the Seventh Judicial District Court, which set the terms of his probation, to undergo treatment at the Magic Valley Alcohol Rehabilitation Center in Twin Falls.

Reinkens had been living at the center for three weeks prior to the crash Saturday.

Harold Lyingston, manager of the Alcohol Center, said he had "no comment" at the present time when asked if Reinkens had given any indication in the last few days whether he was under stress.

W. L. Hove, operator of Hove Funeral Chapel in Jerome and also the ambulance service which carried Reinkens to the hospital, said Reinkens was non-committal in the ambulance.

At first Reinkens was in shock, Hove said then seemed to come out of it. Hove said Reinkens wouldn't give his name in the ambulance and later refused to give his name to doctors and nurses at the hospital.

Reinkens would not give his name in the ambulance and later refused to give his name to doctors and nurses at the hospital.

Controls to skip farmers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration hopes to clamp down on the food industry but not farmers in its effort to control spiraling grocery prices.

According to Treasury Secretary George P. Schultz, the administration hopes to set up a special wage stabilization board for the food industry to control rising food prices.

The food board would be patterned after the successful Construction Industry Stabilization Committee (CISC) which in the past two years has helped reduce the wage rates of hard-hat construction workers nearly to the prevailing pay scales for the economy as a whole.

The CISC was originated and directed by John T. Dunlop, who as the new director of the Cost of Living Council, would be in an ideal spot to oversee a similar effort in the food industry.

Schultz told a small group of reporters Friday that both union and management representatives have put forth the idea of a joint food industry wage board.

"We're quite ready to sit down and try to work it out," Schultz said.

In theory, a food industry stabilization board would help dampen grocery prices by holding down the wages of industry workers and thus reduce cost.

Coupled with the steps in recent weeks to boost food supplies such as lifting meat import quotas and boosting acreage allotments, it would be a further attempt by the administration to slow the rise in food prices without actually controlling the price farmers receive for their products.

Controls at the farm level, the administration argues, would inevitably lead to price rationing and black market profiteering and alienate the politically important farm vote.

Discussing the administration's Phase III economic program, Schultz said it would be a mistake to assume the economy had been decontrolled simply because voluntary wage-price guidelines have replaced the earlier system of rigid controls for all but a few inflationary trouble spots.

US jet bombs refugees

SAIGON (UPI) — A U.S. Navy A-1 Intruder jet mistakenly bombed a South Vietnamese refugee settlement 15 miles northwest of Da Nang Saturday, killing one civilian and injuring dozens others, allied headquarters reported.

The plane dropped a single 500-pound bomb, military sources said.

It was the second such accidental American bombing in the Da Nang area in a week. Last Monday five U.S. Air Force Navy and Marine jets accidentally bombed the Da Nang airfield itself, injuring 10 Americans and four Vietnamese.

In the meantime, military spokesmen said South Vietnamese 3rd Division infantrymen killed 98 Communist troops in an all-day battle Saturday four miles southwest of Que Son in the coastal highlands 345 miles north of Saigon.

The infantrymen were supported by aircraft and artillery. Five infantrymen were reported killed and 17 wounded.

Military spokesmen reported earlier that in the air war, South Vietnamese warplanes swept in behind heavy U.S. B-52 strikes 40 miles north of Saigon Friday and destroyed four Communist tanks.

Murder suspect suffers 'attack'

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — Juan V. Corona suffered a possible heart attack, casting doubt Saturday on the outcome of his trial on charges of killing 25 men in the nation's largest mass murder.

Despite the illness, the jury of 10 men and two women continued deliberations for the third day but was unable to reach a verdict. They have considered the case behind closed door for 23 hours.

The panel quit deliberations at 5 p.m. PST Saturday and asked for the day-off Sunday.

Attorneys were not certain whether prolonged confinement of Corona in a hospital might cause a mistrial.

Beaming envoy

OPTIMISTIC reports by Henry A. Kissinger on his return to the United States from Paris negotiations with North Vietnam prompted speculation that peace was nearer at hand. Story at right. (UPI)

Peace hopes rise

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger flew here from Paris Saturday for an unusual post-midnight meeting with President Nixon, raising new hopes that peace is near in Vietnam.

The North Vietnamese confirmed "progress" had been made in the talks, and Kissinger, before leaving Paris, said: "Special Adviser Le Duc Tho and I have just completed very extensive, very useful negotiations."

Tho, a member of the North Vietnamese Politburo, is Kissinger's counterpart in the top-level peace talks, which resumed following a halt of the bombing of the North. Both men emerged smiling and waving from their longest session of the week — a 7 1/2-hour meeting.

Adding fuel to speculation that peace might be near, Nixon also summoned to the post-midnight conference Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., Kissinger's deputy and the man who has served as the chief liaison between Washington and Saigon.

Haig, recently promoted to full general and named vice chief of staff of the Army, would be the likely envoy to present any proposed accord to South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu — a step that would precede any final agreement.

Despite Kissinger's late arrival at approximately 1 a.m., a helicopter stood by to fly him directly from Hinesfield Air Force Base, south of Miami, to the presidential compound.

U.S. officials, fearful of generating the kind of euphoria that gripped the nation following Kissinger's assertion last Oct. 26 that "peace was at hand," said a tentative agreement had not yet been signed.

This would appear to rule out an end to the fighting before Nixon's inauguration for his second term Jan. 20.

Russian Vietnam?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam believes Dr. Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's national security advisor, wants Soviet control of Indochina to create a threat to China.

In an interview published in the Jan. 20 issue of the New Republic, Thieu said he still hopes for peace in Vietnam, adding an agreement could come by the end of January. If it did not, he said, it was possible hostilities could continue for another three or four years.

Commenting on Kissinger's view of the significance of Vietnam for world affairs, Thieu said: "His strategic conception of the world is very simple: a Southeast Asia controlled by the Russians, or an Indochina controlled by the Russians, in order to control and contain China."

"Russians are less dangerous than the Chinese, so it is necessary to ask the Russians to contain the Chinese and to pose Indochina as a threat to the south of China."

He firmly restated South Vietnam's position that the North Vietnamese should remove all their troops from the South and recognize the existence of two Vietnams.

Home slipped

WINTHROP, Mass. (UPI) — The Pine family — 38-year-old Wilbur, his wife and their 16-year-old daughter, Melody — are still shaken by the memory of the moment when 15 armed men burst into their home without explanation and held them at gunpoint for a terror-filled quarter of an hour.

It was, as it turned out, a drug-riddled-by-planelothes state and local police from several towns. The problem was that after a 2 1/2-month investigation, they raided the wrong house.

The house they wanted was across the driveway from the Pines' residence. Not until they had left his home, Pine said, did the men identify themselves as police or say what they wanted.

It happened at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Pine, who had worked all night, was asleep upstairs and Mrs. Pine had just finished dressing when Melody looked out of the window and saw a man running toward the front door.

As she went to open it, the wooden door was smashed in. Simultaneously, the rear door also burst open in a spray of splinters and broken glass.

Mrs. Pine was confronted by 15 men with drawn guns in her living room. She and her daughter, who was home sick from school, were roughly pushed onto a couch and held at gunpoint while several men rushed upstairs.

"Oh, my God, they've come to kill us!" she thought. Melody had the same fear. She screamed, "You are going to kill us!" and jarred Pine out of his slumbers.

"I sat up in bed," he said Saturday. "There was a gun at my head and I heard someone say 'Don't move.' Five or six men, all armed, stood in his bedroom."

"Quite honestly, I thought my family and me were going to be killed," Pine said. "I kept thinking about Charles Manson and Sharon Tate and all those other things."

Although warned not to move, Pine said he jumped up anyway "and was pushed into the other bedroom and pinned against the window with my back to the intruders." He said he knew "there were five to eight guns pointed at my back."

After about 10 minutes, Pine said he sensed a change in the atmosphere.

"I turned around and there was surprise on their faces. They went into full retreat."

Study finds education bias remains

WASHINGTON—(UPI)—A special Senate committee report said Saturday that "education in this country is still for the most part segregated by race, economic and social class." It advocated busing and more federal money to help solve the problem.

Only eight of 15 members on the Select Committee on Equal Educational Opportunity approved the findings of a three-year study. But three of the dissenters agreed that federal spending for schools should be increased by several billion dollars.

"Our public education system has failed and continues to fail successive generations of children from disadvantaged and minority group backgrounds—millions of children who leave school years behind in achievement and without the skills, knowledge or motivation they need to succeed in life," the panel said in the final report.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., committee chairman, will use findings to back up legislation to provide massive general aid to public grade and high schools.

The report hit hardest at continued racial segregation in schools outside the South and lack of adequate funding to improve both school buildings and teaching efforts.

"The fact is," the report said, "that education in this country is still for the most part segregated by race, economic and social class. By any reasonable measure, except in the 11 Southern states (Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia), we have hardly begun the task of eliminating the segregation of minority group and disadvantaged students in our nation."

"By any standard of measurement there has been a pronounced reduction in black student isolation in the 11 Southern states during the past four school years," the report said. "During the same period, the change in the remaining states has been negligible."

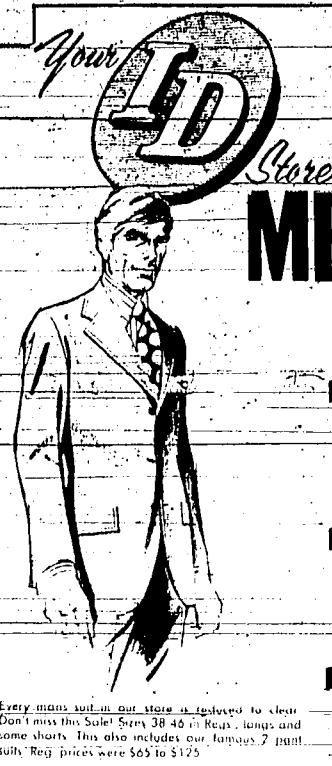

The majority opposed a proposed constitutional amendment to ban busing to achieve racial balance in schools and also administration bills defeated last year to order a moratorium on court-ordered busing.

In dissent, Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., commented:

"The report focuses with great emphasis and earnestness on the need for busing to achieve school integration while minimizing the disruptions and hardships imposed upon students, families, communities and school systems."

Opinion And Reality

Public opinion polls generally show a preponderance in favor of reduced government spending and lower taxes.

President. The truth is that Congress has handed power to the executive on a platter and ducked its own responsibilities to impose the taxes needed to fund extravagant programs.

Members of Congress read the polls but they are preparing for a test of strength with the President over a wide variety of spending programs and for an outright fight over some of Nixon's cuts...

Everyone knows there is far-flung waste and duplication in the sprawling bureaucracy. President Nixon, who is more aware of how bad the situation is than probably anyone else, has announced his determination to trim off the fat...

The reason is that the majority of opinion is general, not specific, and based in part on wishful thinking. Congressmen know that when specific cuts involve the areas they represent, there are powerful demands to leave them alone...

Those who do face the electorate in the next election and ensuing ones should be made aware that the majority means business and is capable of putting the national interests above local and regional pork barrels.

That is why they are willing to buck a President returned to office by a landslide vote and contend the issue is the power of Congress against the power of the

MR. SPECTATOR

A Terrible Thing

A terrible thing happened the other day on the way to work.

I met a friend at a downtown intersection. Apparently he felt good on that early morning because he ceremoniously bowed and tipped his hat for my benefit.

It was really sensational because at the time he tipped his hat, his hair piece came off with it.

In other words - let's not get greedy, men!

TODAY'S CHUCKLE: Husband to his wife, as she tried on a new dress: "Of course you can buy it, dear. I like the middle-aged look it gives you."

THAT COLD SEAT: We learn something new every day.

Latest thing is that a cold auto seat, the kind you encounter when you get into a parked car on a frigid winter morning, is more than unpleasant. It is injurious to your health and can lead to backaches, rheumatism or even kidney problems.

At least that's what experts connected with the writing of Baer's Agricultural Almanac, have to say. And the experts, in this particular case, come from Sweden, where it is so cold they ought to know what they are talking (or sitting) about.

Not only does a cold car seat cause aches and pains, it also lessens the driver's skill at the wheel, so they say. It brings a loss of judgment, a decline in the sense of feeling and a drop in precision of muscular activity.

One Swedish auto manufacturer provides electric heating for the seat through a wiring system activated when the ignition is turned on.

This sounds like something new, so far as Mr. Spectator is concerned. But, remembering back to the time when some of our older relatives had a horse and buggy, no electric seat was involved. What do you suppose they did - sit on the kitchen stove awhile before climbing into the wagon?

WASHINGTON - It didn't take long for the Senate to come up with an intriguing mystery. It happened the first day of the new session, and was pulled so quietly and smoothly that no one on the crowded floor or in the jam-packed galleries was aware of it.

and then what little was revealed merely deepened the mystery. It's a lengthy resolution to create a Special Committee on Determination of the National Emergency, proclaimed by President Truman on Dec. 16, 1950.

Why, what, wherefor? Sponsor of this curious proposal is Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, leading militant dove, zealous McGovern supporter, and a highly vocal and publicly-avid member of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Ordinarily, anything Church does is fanfaired by an accompanying press release or other publicity. But not this enigmatic resolution.

Church has hopefully tried to grease the skids for its speedy approval by having the resolution referred to the Foreign Relations Committee of which he is a ranking member; to which his good friend McGovern has just been added; and a majority of which is militantly dovish.

ART BUCHWALD

Where Is He?

WASHINGTON - One morning two weeks ago a White House aide walked into President Nixon's office, which is located on a mountain overlooking Camp David, and asked, "Where is the President?"

bedroom the last night you were there? Well, there was three of us, the President, the Old Nixon and myself. I was explaining to the President that the Paris talks were stalemated and peace was not at hand.

What are you standing there for? Start the bombing! And that's the last time you saw the President? The chief asked.

The man sitting behind the desk said, "I'm the President." The aide looked at him closely. "No, you're not. You're the Old Nixon. Where's the New Nixon?"

The chief of Secret Service said, "All right. I want a thorough search of all the rooms as well as the grounds. We've got to find the President before January 20th or else."

"(1) Consult and confer with the President and his advisers; (2) consider the problems which may arise as the result of terminating such national emergency; (3) consider what administrative or legislative actions might be necessary or desirable as the result of terminating such national emergency."

He's gone. He asked me to take over for him. I want 100 more raids on North Vietnam, cut the Health, Education and Welfare budget, scrap all public housing and let's not give any more aid to the farmers.

He didn't say anything. He just went over to the television set and started watching a football game.

The aide replied, pointing at the Old Nixon, "we'll have to swear him in as President."

Just a minute. What proof do you have that the President gave you his job? "Don't push me, hey," the Old Nixon said angrily. "I'll have you arrested for treason."

Then what happened? The Old Nixon said to me.

Off, my God," said another aide. "Who's going to tell Pat?"

On Judgment

I'm on a campus somewhere speaking and listening almost every week. Also Angel and I sit across the dinner table from the young generation every night that I'm home.

And the ratio for young women is similar. Judgment. Of all cases of venereal disease, 80 per cent are under 30.

And most drug users get hooked in high school. You can fly an airplane as a student pilot at 16. You have the benefit of quicker reflexes, keener eyesight, nimble wits.

I keep telling you the President went fishing after the election and he told me to take over. Now you're wasting my valuable time. I have some scores to settle with the press and television people.

There are 9 million alcoholics in the United States. A generation ago there were almost none under 21. In recent years, the statisticians have found it necessary to include figures on confirmed alcoholics down to the age of 12.

Crime: More than half of all major crimes are committed by persons under 21. In Chicago the No. 1 cause of death among school-agers is murder.

I believe it was just before the bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong. He was in his room and he seemed rather depressed.

Immature judgment is your only vulnerability. This fact is confirmed by automobile accident statistics. Last year there were 117 million registered drivers under 20.

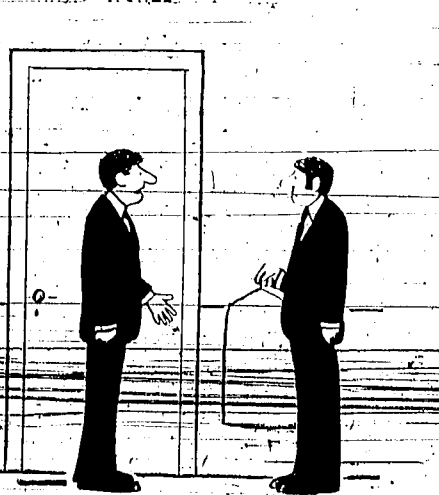

More than a third and almost half of them - 17 million - are divorcees. I guess that makes you superior intelligence might learn from these facts a recognition of your own weakness so that you could reflect in teen-age divorce statistics: -Of men who marry after age 21, 14 per cent divorce. -Of men who choose a bride quicker - yet worthless until divorce.

When was the last time you saw the President? The chief asked him.

I guess that makes you superior intelligence might learn from these facts a recognition of your own weakness so that you could reflect in teen-age divorce statistics: -Of men who marry after age 21, 14 per cent divorce. -Of men who choose a bride quicker - yet worthless until divorce.

What comes of this mysterious bondboggle remains to be seen.

Problem: Where Are We Going To Get The Energy?

BY O. A. (GUS) KELKER
Editor, Times-News

The American College Dictionary defines energy as the capacity or habit of vigorous activity or the actual exertion of power, operation or activity.

For most of us it fails to get that far down to the basics. Rather it means a dark room coming to life when you flip a switch, electricity or flame in a water heater, the surge forward when you depress the gas pedal on your auto, the action of the threshing machine.

Basically, energy divides into eight basic concepts. And with about two exceptions those "concepts" are available in one degree or another in Idaho — or can be made available at some future date.

The eight? Oil and natural gas, coal, nuclear power, hydroelectricity, synthetic fuels, geothermal power, ocean power and solar energy. Perhaps ocean power and oil and natural gas are the only ones not in Idaho.

With the energy lack fast increasing, the possibility all six of the available sources in Idaho will someday be utilized is not just an idle dream.

In Idaho, if you are an average householder, you use "X" number of kilowatt hours a month. Actually it is the energy equivalent of 40 full-time servants. For all this you pay about $16. You had at your command about 166 electrical appliances, not counting business machines or computers that affect your home life.

When you drive your car down the road at 70 miles an hour you use the energy equivalent of 1,500 slaves. The gasoline supplying this energy probably cost you about $2.

This modern society in which we live is based on the concept of letting machines do the heavy work, the hard work. Human exertion represents less than one percent of the energy in this country today.

More than 99 percent comes from machines — those used in mills, factories and plants in the generation of electricity, in transportation, in heating and cooling and in other ways.

Where does this energy come from? From sources including coal, waterpower, nuclear reactors (a small amount), and the largest part from petroleum — oil and natural gas.

Today petroleum accounts for 77 per cent of the total energy consumption. Coal accounts for 19 per cent and hydropower for less than 4 per cent. Nuclear power today accounts for less than one half of one per cent. By 1985 it should reach 17 per cent.

The more exotic sources — geothermal power, synthetic fuels, ocean power and solar power may ultimately become vital supplements.

A study of our present and proposed energy sources presents a sad picture. The technology to harness on a large scale such plentiful energy sources as solar energy and ocean power has not been found. It is not expected before the year 2000. Only recently did serious exploration for geothermal steam sources begin. Natural steam fields of commercial size are apparently limited to the western third of the United States.

A study of our present and proposed energy sources presents a sad picture. The technology to harness on a large scale such plentiful energy sources as solar energy and ocean power has not been found. It is not expected before the year 2000. Only recently did serious exploration for geothermal steam sources begin. Natural steam fields of commercial size are apparently limited to the western third of the United States.

We have almost run out of available dam sites for hydroelectric generation — and most of those left face a possible tied-up future, because of the ecology activity. Construction of nuclear power plants has been halted — again for environmental reasons.

And coal — here once more, although it is plentiful, its use has been scaled down by environmental controls.

So from now through 1985, and possibly through the end of the century, our greatest source of energy is expected to be petroleum. Exploration has been but sharply. Reasons: environmental and government controls.

In 12 years we are warned that our consumption of energy will be twice what it is today.

How do we stand today?

Oil and natural gas, as we pointed out, provides 77 per cent of the energy used. During 1971 we used more than 7,000 gallons of oil every second. That was three gallons a day for every man, woman and child in the nation. Each of us consumed — on the average — 300 cubic feet of natural gas every day. Today we no longer lead the world in proved petroleum reserves. Since 1967 we have become dependent on imported petroleum. By the end of 1971 one-quarter of our supply came from foreign sources.

Coal — without it electric utilities are in trouble. Regulations now making it impossible to burn coal casts a shadow on the future. Many people do not realize how serious this problem really is. We do not suffer from a shortage of coal (there is enough in Idaho to last the nation for scores of years) but we do suffer from restrictions which rule out its use. We might look ahead to the exotic but today it is coal that is available.

Nuclear power — it was going to give us everything. But it has been less than romantic. At first there was a spurt then came the environment controls and it fizzled. Right now there are only 26 nuclear power plants in the United States and there are 51 others under construction. It will gain in importance — in spite of controls — but even then the nation will need all the energy that can be made available and it cannot — and will not — be available from one source.

Hydroelectricity energy finds most of the dams in the western states. And possible sites are being tied up, some probably forever. Most hydroelectric projects supply power generation, flood control, recreation and irrigation. Despite all its advantages, hydroelectric power generation seems to have leveled off. It is expected to provide a smaller percentage of energy in years to come. A small, perhaps, but important share.

Synthetic fuels. Certain forms of unlikely elements — a grain of sand, a hunk of rock, garbage — produce "synthetic petroleum." Sometime in the future the synthetics could become important sources for the energy the nation will need — but experts estimate that ALL synthetics will provide less than one per cent of the requirements in 1985. Possibilities ahead for synthetic fuels? For sands, oil shale, organic waste.

Geothermal power might someday find Yellowstone Park's geysers harnessed for energy. Mostly, though, by drilling into geothermally active areas, natural steam can be directed into the blades of turbines to produce low-cost electricity. By 1985 this source is expected to relate to our needs about like nuclear power does today. The only producing field in the United States today is "The Geysers," an area in northern California. In a couple of years it will be developed enough to provide all power needs for one community — San Francisco. The rest of the nation? No answer.

Ocean power has a great potential if it could be harnessed. Many of the schemes to channel the ocean's energy into power production are feasible from an engineering standpoint. But construction costs would be so high — and so would production and transmission costs — that it would be impossible. The solution in the use of ocean power is not expected for decades.

Solar energy has been life-giving since man first appeared. It is already being used as a source of heat. What would be ideal, of course, would be to convert solar energy into electric power. Perhaps this source could sustain a highly-dependent world culture far beyond the few centuries of service projected for fossil fuels. Perhaps even better than nuclear power. Yet it's too early to be sure.

So where do we stand today? Well, who knows? Most of us on earth today will not live long enough to know what it will all come to. So why should we worry? We must leave something for the generations yet unborn to grow on.

With all the hue and cry against pollution it is difficult to stand firm on anything. Being for pollution is like being against love and marriage and motherhood.

Which will cause some to say — we've changed our views on love and marriage — and even on motherhood. So why not be against environment and all that goes with it?

It was a long time ago when an inventor announced he had the machine which eliminated smoke. He demonstrated it. It worked by eliminating smoke from in front of it by drawing in great clouds of it. But it spewed it out the other end.

Can this be the problem of the future? Who knows? Someday the switch may not be needed because there is no electricity, the match will not be needed because there is no fuel to set afire, and the gasoline engine will no longer pollute the air because there will be no gasoline.

Trying to figure all this out is a problem — but if you just can't find the energy to do it, why not turn on your TV? The big professional football game is on today. You might as well watch it while the TV set can find the energy to light up the tube.

Date Change Wrong

Editor, Times-News: The four calendar dates currently designated by Congress as a three-day holiday should be changed back to the original dates to correlate with the date set by that particular occurrence in history.

Action of the Legislature is most admirable in the sense that the law provides labor and management a three-day vacation, but the fact that the action is affecting education of our youngsters and creating confusion with historical dates is something which must be considered.

The argument is not in preventing labor from receiving a three-day holiday, but this should be accomplished without changing historical dates. Combining a holiday with a historical date results in insincere commemoration of the historical event and the holiday atmosphere takes precedence. Because of this factor, the historical date should be listed on the calendar on the actual date it occurred in history, and labor should be allowed selected three-day holidays without the inclusion of recognized historical calendar dates.

There's a great difference in a holiday and historical date. The holiday is becoming related to a "day off" and the other is related to an event in history. History must not be changed to merely provide labor a "day off." Historical dates were made by our forefathers through some special incident which had been recognized as important enough that these dates were entered on the calendar for special observance.

History should not be changed to satisfy a few people who desire a vacation. History was made to establish a great nation — not to establish a vacation. If this has become the dominant meaning of everything our country has stood for these many years, they possibly we are becoming a sick nation, and not the strong one intended by our forefathers who planted the pattern for the freedoms we enjoy — but somehow fail to appreciate today.

Action of Congress and the State Legislature has affected cities as well as education. Confusion has been such that some cities observed two separate days instead of the actual day of observance. Cemetery maintenance has become disorganized because of the confusion in which day to observe, and some persons this past year reportedly placed floral arrangements on graves up to three weeks ahead of Memorial Day. This creates problems for caretakers who are unable to water the grounds. Memorial Day was designed to be a day of memorial to the dead, but somehow it's developed into a "day for the living." With it becoming associated with a long weekend, the meaning of this day is forgotten and a vacation or fishing trip takes precedence. The dead remain forgotten.

One of the most serious complications resulting from this new law is with education of our youngsters, dealing with history and flag etiquette classes. The children are taught that an event in history occurred on a certain day, but when that event is listed as another day on the calendar and used as a long weekend holiday, the child becomes confused. And the adult becomes confused. Soon the real meaning of that event is removed.

This nation's history is full of good experience. We must guarantee that these experiences are not forgotten and mistakes in history are not repeated. This is the main purpose of history books and records, that we may benefit from mistakes made in the past. This is why we must not confuse historical happenings by changing dates on the calendar. History should remain true and the people must not become confused, especially our youth who will become the nation's next leaders. This valuable foundation must be established now for them.

Our country is being undermined little by little, and it's getting our young people to think now. Every year is a test and we're becoming tested more strongly every year. We must guard ourselves and our youth against a source which is attempting to destroy this great nation.

The flag code calls for flying the flag on designated days, yet the calendar says these events are to be observed on a Monday. The flag code is affected by this law because it wasn't changed by legislature to become a part of the new law.

Idaho has conducted an effective flag etiquette study course the past several years which has reached several thousand fifth grade students. This course, which has been approved by the Idaho Department of Education has proved its value with students, and made them more aware of the meaning of the flag and everything it represents. These students have continued to educate adults in proper flag etiquette.

But there have been many reasons this study has not been repeated, and these are the people who today are becoming disrespectful and tearing the flag to shreds, while at the same time crying "peace." Peace doesn't come from disrespect to this flag, it comes with proper education. Disrespect of the flag comes from people exercising "freedoms." Freedoms which had been earned by our forefathers. The freedoms of speech, press and freedoms of thought, and that, somehow people have also incorporated the theory that this also includes freedoms to destroy. But when we exercise the Freedom to Destroy, we end up destroying our freedom.

The red in the flag stands for courage, valor and strength; white conveys purity, light and peace; blue represents truth, loyalty and fidelity; stripes signify unity of purpose as exemplified by the 13 original states; and stars represent our 50 states dedicated to freedom and democracy.

Let's keep America strong. Keep history on the calendar and convince the legislature to move Washington's Birthday, Columbus Day, Memorial Day and Veteran's Day back to the calendar day they occurred. And most of all, let's not confuse education of our youth who need the truth more today than in any period of our history.

For if we ever lose faith in our God and loyalty to our country, then we have lost everything. So please help. Write or speak to your State Legislators.

Ravenscroft Answers

Editor, Times-News: I am glad Mr. A. K. Reed raised the question of equal tax ratio treatment in his letter that appeared in the Sunday, Dec. 31, issue of Times-News. This is a "broken record" issue which Governor Andrus has repeatedly presented to the Idaho Legislature, and one which he may bring back when that body convenes next week.

It is true that the 1967 Legislature said that tax rates should be equalized by 1992. This meant that assessed values on some forms of property had to come up and on other forms of property the values had to come down. It is also true that this action was necessitated by an Idaho Supreme Court ruling that decreed that this State could no longer assess utility property at twice the value imposed on other forms of property. Our Constitution does say that all taxes shall be levied equally.

The Legislature chose to phase the Court-ordered tax action over a period of time (finishing in 1992). If this action had been achieved all at once real property owners would have experienced a massive increase in their taxes. The utility companies, power companies, private water companies, telephone companies, and others would have received a large tax reduction. And the tax-base of many Idaho counties including Twin Falls, Jerome, Goshute, Elmore and Lincoln counties in this area would have been seriously changed (reduced) in a single year.

Constitution to legalize unequal taxation. It sounds attractive to suggest that the other fellow pay the taxes. Montana has such a system. The last statistics I saw on that State indicated that they had some 17 different property classifications. Every time their Legislature meets they are under pressure to change. The Montana system is a happy hunting ground for those who seek "favored treatment," also for those who want to "soak the other guy."

We should also remember that businesses in general and utilities in particular do not pay taxes; they merely collect them from the consuming public. They also take their handling charge for the collection service which they render. Unequal tax treatment is a sure way to turn away such industries as Kellwood and Tipperware.

I know personally that Kellwood carefully examined the Idaho tax attitude before they decided to locate in Twin Falls. They didn't want to invest their future in a state which permitted any group of taxpayers to be singled out for either favored or for punitive tax payments.

It is my philosophy that tax exemptions (upon application) should like care of legitimate hardship cases irrespective of the class of property involved. Idaho law is extremely liberal in defining those who can apply for property tax exemption. Those of us who can afford to pay should be treated as equally as possible in every way.

The past proposals made by Governor Andrus have been poorly conceived and they would have led to favored treatment for certain groups at the expense of all other property taxpayers in the State. Remember that farms should be on a par with other property owners. The power to tax is the power to destroy. Vernon F. Ravenscroft, State Rep., Dist. 23, Jerome, Lincoln, Counties

WASHINGTON — According to what may as well be called Tully's Law, the nation lives dangerously when it reflects a President by a landslide. Herbert Klein, communications director for Richard Nixon, has reminded us all of that fact of political life.

On "Meet the Press" the other day, Klein put it bluntly. Denouncing Congressional critics of the President's war policy, he reminded his listeners that the election had given Nixon "a very clear mandate to proceed the way he has on Vietnam," including of course the all-out bombing of Hanoi and environs.

See what I mean? Klein's assertion is not only arrogant but preposterous. In the first place, George McGovern probably couldn't have beaten my great-grandfather, and more important, the voters went to the polls last November virtually convinced that Richard Nixon was about to negotiate a peace settlement. They may have reelected Nixon for many other reasons, but I do not buy the proposition that they endorsed in advance the President's December decision to launch the most devastating bombing campaign of the war.

Nevertheless, by the very nature of the office he holds, a President's ego becomes enormously inflated. We saw that with Franklin D. Roosevelt and, to a lesser extent, with Lyndon Johnson. Give the man a landslide vote of confidence and he becomes convinced he can do any ruddy thing he pleases, short of running away to Peoria and living in sin with the second footman's wife.

In short, the Republic is safer when a President is returned to office in a squeaker. It puts him on notice that he is not the complete national hero and that, therefore, he must move that cautiously, lest the people through their representatives in Congress cut him down to size. It seems to me another Nixon aide, John D. Erlichman, was asking for just that sort of Congressional uprising when he defended Nixon's failure to consult with Congress before resuming the bombing. On the same TV program, Erlichman, Nixon's chief domestic adviser, was asked if it might not have been possible for the President to have talked on the phone with Sen. Mike Mansfield or Sen. Hugh Scott or House Speaker Carl Albert about the bombing. Erlichman said, "nope, it wasn't possible. Here again, it is a judgmental thing," he explained. "It is a question whether that would add anything to the success of the negotiations and, after all, that is what we have to look at, the ultimate outcome of this. It is simply not appropriate for a President to do things by committee."

Well, that's as may be. Both constitutionally — and by precedent — Congress is permitted the role of advising and consenting on urgent matters of foreign policy, and war is rather urgent. No one seriously proposes that any President share his role as Commander-in-Chief with a Congressional "committee," but logic and the exigencies of politics command that he at least inform Congressional leaders of his wartime strategies.

In his argument, Erlichman used Harry Truman's name in vain. He was off the track when he claimed that Truman acted alone when he dropped the atomic bomb on Japan; aid when he committed American troops to Korea. In fact, in both instances Truman told certain members of Congress, notably Michigan's Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, what he was going to do. He didn't seek their advice, but he didn't ignore them.

No. The Klein-Erlichman positions won't wash. The issue is not whether Nixon was right or wrong in using terror bombing to drag the North Vietnamese back to the peace table.

Idaho campaign disclosure asked

BOISE (UPI) — A bill to require persons running for state and legislative offices to disclose campaign spending and contributions was introduced in the Idaho State Senate Friday.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. James Stotcheff, D-Sandpoint, was earlier voted out of the Senate State Affairs Committee.

Stotcheff said that "in regard to anyone running for public office we ought to know how much he spent and who gave it to him."

Idaho does not have a financial disclosure law covering public office seekers.

Bill eyed on mental commitment

BOISE (UPI) — A major piece of legislation to stop commitment to state mental institutions of persons not mentally ill was proposed today to the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee.

Attorney Dale Higler, Boise, president of the Idaho Mental Health Association, said the bill would stop commitments to state hospitals of senile parents by their children.

He also said the proposed bill is designed to stop the involuntary commitments by police of undesirable persons in communities.

Committee members voted to have the legislation put into bill form for further consideration.

Higler said the proposal was put together by the mental health association and has involved two years of work.

"As a deputy prosecuting attorney in Canyon County, Higler said, he saw cases where persons were committed to the state mental hospital who did not belong there.

"I think this bill will cut commitments in half," he said. "Although there will be a greater cost for each commitment there will be fewer of them."

Forestry education fund asked

BOISE (UPI) — A lumber company owner told the Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee Saturday that additional money is needed at the University of Idaho's School of Forestry to train students to become the resource land managers of tomorrow.

Ted Hoff, president of the Hoff Lumber Co., Roxburg, testified before the committee concerning the state forestry budget.

He said the university's forestry school should be given at least an additional $100,000 to begin "a modest training" program to produce management and forest research specialists.

Ousted Gem narcotic agent claims misconduct common

POCATELLO (UPI) — A Pocatello Bureau of Narcotics and Drug Enforcement Agent who was fired—says other agents were more involved in an alleged misconduct incident than he was.

John T. Walsh was dismissed from the regional bureau of the Idaho Attorney General's office after an investigation into complaints of misconduct by undercover agents.

Walsh said Friday, "there are other agents I know of involved in misconduct. The incidents range from slashing of tires to the smashing of windshields and the breaking of a plate glass window."

Walsh said the incidents took place in Pocatello and Coeur d'Alene.

At a news conference Thursday in Boise, Attorney General Anthony Park said the investigation is nearly completed.

Two superiors in the Pocatello bureau were asked to resign and did so after the investigation commenced. Two other agents resigned to return to school and to take a job in another state.

Walsh said, "I think I got the short end of the stick. The only thing I did was puncture a few tires with ice picks," he added.

"I have been denied jobs because of this publicity. I think there are others more guilty than me."

He said he knew of other incidents of misconduct involving breaking and entering without a warrant, burglary and carrying illegal weapons.

"It's a messy deal and I don't think the Attorney General is getting all the questions answered."

Walsh said he punctured the tires after suspects under surveillance by the narcotics bureau made threats against him and his wife.

He said narcotics agents get more trouble from suspects than the regular police because of the nature of the work.

He said members of the drug culture "feel tricked. You get to know them, drink with them and then arrest one of them and they get sore."

He said, "the undercover work should be concentrated at the organized level to get the big dealers."

McClure to Interior

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, got his first wish Friday as he was appointed to the Senate Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs.

Idaho's Junior Senator had made no bones about his desire to get on the Senate Interior panel.

"It was my first choice," he said. "Because so many of the problems particular to Idaho come before it."

McClure had served six years on the House Interior Committee prior to his election to the senate last fall.

Quarrel erupts on aide pay bill

BOISE (UPI) — House members quarreled for 30 minutes over pay raises for hired help Friday before defeating a Senate proposal 15-53 and approving one of their own 69-0.

A concurrent resolution approved by the Senate proposed increasing pay for the director of public information in each house to $30 per day from $25, boosting the salary for secretaries of appropriations and finance to $25 per day from $22.50 and raising the pay of the Senate hostess to $20 per day from $17.50.

After this resolution was beaten the house received one to raise the pay of pages and messengers to $13.50 per day from $12 and leave all other attaches at the same pay rate as last year. This won approval and went to the Senate.

Rep. E. V. McMan, R-Ketchum, fired the opening shot at the senate resolution by asking why the pages and messengers did not get a pay raise under the proposal.

He reminded the House of the vote of the people last November and suggested they oppose wage increases for government employees.

Rep. Ray Lincoln, R-Twin Falls, joined McMan in his objection and urged the House kill the Senate resolution.

He wrote one of his own raising the pay of pages and messengers. In response to a question, Rep. J. Vard Chatburn, R-

Albion, chairman of the House Patronage Committee, pointed out the Senate hostess does the same work as the "house receptionist" yet the house attaché would get $2.50 less per day under the Senate proposal.

Solons react to Andrus budget

Applause, then barbs

GOV. CECH Andrus passes Sen. John M. Barker, R-Buhl, as he leaves the House chambers after his budget address Friday. After the applause was over, some legislators expressed doubt about some of the Governor's proposals. Story at right.

Ravenscroft chairs panel as part of GOP majority

By DWIGHT JENSEN
(Special to the Times-News)

BOISE — His switch in parties last year has had one very visible result for Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft, R-Tuttle.

He spent this week as chairman of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee.

Ravenscroft is a senior member of that committee, and respected as a knowledgeable member, but as a Democrat the chairmanship was beyond his reach because the Republicans are in the majority.

This week, with chairman Allan Larsen, R-Blackfoot, vacationing in the Bahamas, Ravenscroft — the newly-appointed assistant chairman — is in the driver's seat.

He has used his position to get the committee organized into subcommittees and off to a quick start. The work they do could result in some significant changes in Idaho tax policy.

Ravenscroft himself is chairing a special House-Senate Subcommittee on Revenue Projections.

Last year the legislature ground on and on partly because the governor and the lawmakers could not agree on how much revenue to expect over the next year.

This committee is supposed to come up with a figure that all the legislators, at least, will recognize as reliable.

There's already a controversy there, though. It has to do with interaccount billing, the practice of one department of state government charging another department for services rendered.

How much of the money involved in those transactions should be listed as income? To a specific department, it's all income. If a department of computer services does computer work for five other departments and charges them for it, Computer Services has more income. But when one looks at the entire picture, that's not the case.

Imagine four departments — printing, education, highways and health. Suppose the department of printing charges each of the others $10,000 a year for doing their printing.

Suppose health gets all its money from the general fund, highways gets all its money from special funds, and education gets half general fund money, half special fund money.

Any money going from health to printing really can't be counted as income to the general fund — the money came out of the general fund in the first place.

But the money going from highways to printing could be counted as general fund income, because it came out of gasoline tax money. The question would be, how much of the money spent by education for printing should be counted? Half? All? None?

Ravenscroft's subcommittee will try to write rules governing that situation as it applies to real state agencies.

The two Democrats on the subcommittee, Sen. Chick Blyden of Pocatello and Rep. Lester Hartvigsen of Malad, believe one thing wrong with last year's revenue projections was that too much interaccount billing money was listed as general fund income.

In Gov. Andrus's budget message, the chief executive did not list a separate revenue source for interaccount billing, but did list as sources a number of state agencies that bill other agencies for services.

Another subcommittee, this one chaired by Rep. Lloyd Dunn, R-Georgetown, will examine the sides ratio study being made by the Idaho Tax Commission. Ravenscroft says he is not satisfied with the way that study is being handled.

The purchaser of real estate might get a letter in the mail from the tax commission, asking him to answer questions about the purchase of the property. That's part of the study.

Ravenscroft explained that if a piece of property is purchased for $50,000, but is appraised at $40,000, by the county assessor and is assessed at $4,000, the assessor will say he is using a ten per cent ratio but the tax commission might conclude that he's using an eight percent ratio.

That could lead to a number of things, including changes in the amount of state money allocated to local school districts.

Ravenscroft said the problem is that the tax commission is using only purchase price in its study, while the assessor is required by law to consider other factors, including earning power of the property.

Moreover, the purchase price might not be a true reflection of the value of the property, because that price can be influenced by outside considerations. The subcommittee studying the study will attempt to come up with a better method.

There will again this year be a subcommittee working on public school funding. Last year, such a subcommittee came up with what was called a 900 per cent state support bill.

It wasn't really 100 per cent state support, and Ravenscroft said the legislation drafted by the subcommittee this year is likely to be even further from 100 per cent.

"We won't go that far," he said. "We'll try to come up with a simpler bill. We'll probably try to do half the job now and the other half when the U. S. Supreme Court tells us we have to."

The Supreme Court is hearing cases that will determine whether property tax income has to be equalized on a statewide basis for the public schools.

BOISE — Three Magic Valley men will play key roles in writing this year's budget legislation, and they had varied reactions to Gov. Cecil Andrus's budget message.

"Loosely reasoned" and "wildly optimistic" were terms applied to the message by Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

He said the governor was counting on a growth in the state's economy of at least 12 1/2 per cent.

"Most people are talking about seven or eight per cent growth," he said. "This is a 14.5 per cent growth based on his estimate of income last year, and 12.7 per cent based on the Senate's estimate."

"And we're projecting on the basis of one of the best economic years in our history. Can we really grow that much on top of such a good year? If last year had been a normal year, 12 1/2 per cent might not be a bad estimate."

He said he thinks education is "taking a whipping" under this budget, and suggested that retroactive revenue-sharing money be placed in the school endowment funds, not spent on construction.

"The penitentiary construction is already fully funded," he said.

Rep. William Roberts, R-Buhl, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, called the message "a refreshment of old ideas."

He said some of the governor's proposed increases for public schools is illusory, because if the amount of sales tax money sent to local government in lieu of inventory tax money is reduced by $7.5 million, as the governor recommended, the schools will lose $4 million of that.

Vernon Ravenscroft, R-Tuttle, acting chairman of the House Revenue and Taxation Subcommittee on Revenue Projections, said it is "entirely possible" that the governor is correct in his estimate that the present tax structure will bring in $154.5 million next year.

But if that is true, said Ravenscroft, there is no excuse for continuing the 1.9 per cent holdback of state spending this year. "That is unnecessary. What he is really doing is saving money now so he can pay for all this dramatic action next year."

Buhlman gets 12 months on holdup Office entered

TWIN FALLS — A Buhlman was sentenced to 12 months in the county jail Friday for his role in the Nov. 20 holdup of a Twin Falls bus station.

Robert Briggs was given a sentence of two years in the Idaho Board of Corrections by District Judge Theron Ward, who then commuted the sentence to 12 months in the county's detention facilities.

Briggs' conviction, on a charge of accessory to a robbery, came after he testified several days ago at a preliminary hearing for himself and two other accused men that the three of them participated in the robbery in which the station attendant was shot.

Briggs testified that his main role in the crime was to drive an automobile following the holdup.

Immediately following Briggs' preliminary hearing testimony, Twin Falls prosecutor Robert Galley asked that charges against him be reduced from robbery and assault with intent to commit murder to accessory to a robbery.

In pronouncing sentence Friday, Ward agreed to a request from the defendant's lawyer that Briggs remain in the custody of Twin Falls City until the charges against him, accused accomplices be tried.

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls psychiatrist reported to police that his office was broken into Thursday night and office equipment valued at about $1,200 was stolen.

Police are investigating.

Sniper buried

EMPORIA, Kan. — (UPI) — Mark "Jimmy" Essex, who died a sniper on a New Orleans rooftop a thousand miles from his Kansas home, was buried Saturday in the black community which gathered to bid its "Christian brother farewell."

Essex, 23, was killed by 40 bullets fired from police rifles last Sunday as he ran a suicidal sprint across the roof of the Downtown Howard Johnson's hotel. Six other persons were killed in the attacks, including three policemen.

Investigators have not been able to determine if Essex acted alone in his vendetta against whites. They are certain, from ballistics evidence, that bullets from his carbine killed at least two people.

"We are not here today to take issues," intoned the Rev. W.A. Chambers in his eulogy. "We are not here to blame. We are not here today to solve the problem. We are here today but our Christian brother farewell."

A banner attached to one of the floral displays in St. James Baptist Church read "Power to the People."

Monk sparked

CHICAGO (UPI) — The next time you lift a glass of the bubbly, you might toast Dom Perignon, a blind Benedictine monk of the late 17th century.

It was he who invented champagne. According to Encyclopaedia Britannica, Perignon added the bubbles to wine by taking fermented wine from the tank and allowing it to ferment a second time in the bottle. It's still done that way.

Talk about conserving energy!

ENERGY-SAVING TIP:

HOW MUCH DOES A LEAKING FAUCET LOSE?***

- 30 drops per minute 54 gallons per month
- 60 drops per minute 113 gallons per month
- 120 drops per minute 237 gallons per month
- 1/2-inch drip 1014 gallons per month
- 1 1/2-inch drip 2202 gallons per month

The way to conserve energy is to use it wisely, not waste it. People enjoy more cleanliness, comfort and sanitation because of the generous use of hot water. Electric water heaters have no energy-wasting chimney. All of the heat goes into the water. Packed with insulation, they have no match for efficiency.

Because there is no flame, electric water heating takes nothing from the air, adds nothing to the air... yours for a nicer environment, indoors and out. We can be glad we live in an area where clean electric energy is abundant and that modern electric appliances conserve it to the utmost.

Navy donates items

TWIN FALLS — The U.S. Navy is promoting athletic involvement of different groups throughout the Magic Valley.

According to Twin Falls area recruiter Dennis Abrams, the Navy has donated six basketballs to groups with athletic programs. Two each have been given to the Twin Falls Police Athletic Association, Twin Falls YMCA and Sea Scouts post in Burley.

Abrams said the Navy is trying to become involved in the community and donating the basketballs is its way of promoting physical fitness.

Not beyond promoting the Navy, the basketballs are Navy blue and yellow, marked with "Go Navy" and "Fly Navy" in bright letters.

Abrams said the Navy recruiters and other Armed Forces recruiters in Twin Falls have formed a basketball team and plan to play the Twin Falls Police Department sometime in the future.

Boosts athletics

SIX BASKETBALLS have been donated by the US Navy Recruiting Service, Twin Falls, to area athletic groups. Receiving one of two balls given to the Twin Falls Police Athletic Association is Jim Milden, left, from recruiter Dennis Abrams.

Merry Pet

Linda Merry, DVM

Question: I have heard that sometimes a cat will "suck a person's breath" while he sleeps, thus causing death. Here is a story I was told years ago.

A man lived alone with his cat. One morning the man was found dead in his bed, suspecting the cat, they put the cat in the room with the man and closed the door, after attaching a string to the man's wrist and running it out thru the keyhole of the door.

Watching the cat while someone pulled the string to move the man's hand as though alive, they saw the cat instantly leap upon the man's chest and put its nose to the man's nose.

That forgotten this story until my little granddaughter came to visit me with her pet cat, which she insisted on having sleep with her. For a few nights all was well — the cat slept at the foot of the bed.

Then one night, I found the cat sleeping close to the girl's face. I took him away, but soon he was right back again. The third time I took him away and that time I spanked him. It did no good.

As soon as I was settled in my bed again, he crept right back to the girl's face. (She was sleeping all this time.) Then I took the cat and shut it in a room by itself. Each night after the girl was asleep, I took the cat away.

One night I fell asleep and when I awakened the cat was sleeping with its nose tucked under the girl's cheek. Now I am sure the cat is locked in another room before I go to sleep.

Please let me know what you think of all this, and especially about the "sucking the breath" business?

Answer: Stuff and nonsense. I believe this breath sucking bit is a hang over from Salem days. But you're certainly not alone in at least half-way believing the superstition.

The theory won't hold air under scientific scrutiny. A cat would need a mouth large enough to cover the intended victim's nose and mouth at the same time.

Any common cold sufferer can tell you about "open mouth breathing"; shut off the nasal passages and the mouth takes over.

Next the cat will require a lung capacity a little greater than his prey. After all, he's got to put all that air he sucks up somewhere.

A young adult man breathes in and out a volume of 500 ml. (that's about the size of a pint jar) 12 to 20 times a minute. In addition, he keeps another 1000 ml. (two pints) of air in his lungs at all times.

So, I now picture our cat looking like a gigantic suction cup attached to a two-foot-long bellows.

I rather think the simplest theory is the best — the cat loves your granddaughter and wants to be close to her. I don't think he'd harm her in any way as long as he's healthy, but he can be taught to sleep at the foot of the bed.

His bedtime merely need send him sailing to the foot of the bed — everytime he gets above knee level for four or five nights. He'll learn to sleep there but he may still investigate the sleeper's movements now and again.

The cat's curiosity is NOT an old wives tale.

As for the other story, Heavenly Days! If you saw a dead man waving, wouldn't YOU investigate?

If you have a question about your pet, send it to The Merry Pet column, in care of the Times-News.

Relaxation of wage-price controls draws mixed reaction from leaders

The business, labor and academic worlds are so far from agreeing on the relaxation of wage-price controls with mixed reaction.

There was enthusiasm from some large corporations, caution from others. Food industry officials expressed concern that food controls were not relaxed.

On Wall Street the initial response to the President's Thursday announcement was enthusiastic, and the Dow Jones industrial average ran up over 14 points. But there were many expressions of uncertainty as to how much new freedom of Phase III program will allow. After the initial upsurge, stock prices backed off sharply. The Dow finished at 1,051.70, up 5.64.

In Detroit, General Motors Corp. said it was "pleased" with the President's action and would voluntarily reconsider price increases planned for 1973 cars. A spokesman said General Motors would withdraw temporarily a request to the Price Commission for a $107 per car increase.

American Motors president William D. Laneburg said: "We are pleased that the president has taken this step toward voluntary controls."

There were, however, many statements of caution from business. Loif Olson, chief economist of the First National City Bank in New York, said: "The big mistake being made by many is that they now think controls are off. In fact, price and wage controls still are formidable."

Tilford Gaines, chief economist at the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., New York, said: "It seems the shift from mandatory to voluntary controls is more apparent than real. Things will be voluntary so long as everyone does what's expected."

The National Association of Food Chains said it was "deeply concerned" that food controls are continuing.

AFI-CIO President George Meany, who led the five labor members off the Pay Board last year, saying it was stacked against labor, called the new action "a step in the right direction" and said labor now would cooperate.

But Meany's support was not unqualified. He reserved judgment to see how the controls work out. Teamster President Frank Fitzsimmons, a Nixon supporter, was the only labor leader expressing unqualified support.

Floyd E. Smith, president of the Machinists Union, which had supported Democrat George S. McGovern for president, called Phase III "a step in the right direction" but went on to urge Congress to abolish all wage and price controls when the present legislative authority expires April 30.

It was clear that labor's reaction ultimately would depend on whether prices go up faster than wages under the new program.

One economist, Dr. Ernest Randa, of the University of Utah, predicted retail prices will rise. But Edward Meyers, senior economist for McGraw-Hill, the business publishing complex, said "We don't look for any big upsurge in prices at this point."

LEMMING RIVER, jammed with ice, flooded into a residential area of Salmon during the week, forcing seven families to evacuate their homes. The flood left water in and around 12 homes in the north section of the city, covered 150 acres of pasture land and closed a major city street, North St. Charles.

Improvements for snowmobiles

FAIRFIELD — Snowmobilers will find some improvements in the Fairfield area this winter as a result of combined efforts by the county, highway district and individuals.

and was donated by Gaylund Gooling, for the construction of a snowmobile parking area. Camas County road crews surfaced and graded the parking area with funds from the snowmachine registration fund.

Parking will accommodate 60 cars and trailers if the vehicles are parked in an orderly fashion on the north and south edges of the lot.

Snow Ranger Rex O'Neil, Fairfield ranger district, said the area is located six miles north of Fairfield and will provide a better opportunity for snowmobilers to enjoy the surrounding snow country.

A registration sheet is provided at the area and persons are asked to sign as they check in and to designate the general area in which they plan to travel to avoid lost, and missing snowmobilers and to aid in a search in the event of mechanical breakdown.

Small orange and black signs have been placed around the area and on trails to help snowmobilers in the event of bad weather or a "white out."

Areas prone to avalanches have also been marked and snowmobilers are asked to stay out of all steep canyons or other areas during avalanche dangers.

Guide need cited

POCATELLO (UPI) — An Idaho Falls school district special education teacher says a uniform state curriculum guide for teaching handicapped students in Special Education is needed in Idaho.

Mrs. Jean Bell made the statement during a recent teachers' meeting in Pocatello at Idaho State University. She was part of an advisory panel for the associate special education instructional materials center at the ISU College of Education.

"Such a guide would prevent the repetition of material," she said. "We need a basic special education curriculum for the handicapped student."

Solon finds tax fund falls short

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Vernon Rovenscroft, R-Tuttle, said Saturday the law passed at the end of the legislature last year eliminating double deductibility on income taxes has not brought in more money to this state as anticipated.

"It was anticipated that the changes would bring in additional money, but the net effect is that it is going to bring in the same amount of money as the previous law," said the chairman of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee on the Television Network of Idaho's "Viewpoint" program.

He said the new law has shifted tax liability from lower income individuals to higher income persons, "but as far as the income projections, there is no change."

Rovenscroft appeared on the program with Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, co-chairman of the Finance and Appropriations Committee.

High, asked if he thought Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' proposed $169.9 million budget presented to the legislature Friday would get serious consideration from the Republican majority, he said, "I have a feeling, particularly with regard to revenue sharing funds, that there is some disappointment in the recommendations."

To balance his general fund budget Andrus proposed using $8 million in federal revenue sharing funds and $7.8 million in inventory tax phase-out monies now going to local units. He said local units could make up the loss in inventory monies through their own federal revenue sharing.

High was quoted Friday saying education is taking a "whipping" regarding the governor's proposals, and said Saturday, "If you consider that although the governor is recommending a lot of money to public schools — $70.6 million — he is taking away a lot of revenue from other sources."

He continued, "His recommendations for a public school program will not increase teachers' salaries, but will supply provide for a cost of living increase on supplies, plus regular teacher longevity increases."

High said $10 million in non-recurring revenue sharing money should be put in the school endowment fund to improve the future ongoing public school program.

Rovenscroft said legislative committees are working on the 100 per cent state funding of public schools concept, but they need more background to make a decision.

First shipment

WILLARD CRUMROY, left, employee of the Twin Falls Jaycees, and Bill Runty, project chairman, were among a crew of Jaycee members working Saturday and today to fill the first boxcar to be shipped from the Twin Falls recycling center. The boxcar, containing 60,000 pounds of cans, is expected to be shipped from

Twin Falls Monday to Lister, Ala., to a smelting plant operated by Reynolds Aluminum Co. Runty said the Twin Falls recycling center is the largest in the world operated by a civic organization, the rest being maintained by beverage companies or metal producing firms.

Liberal unit asks Vietnam fund cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress ends it, nor will Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) called Sunday for a cutoff of Vietnam War funds as the "first order of business" in the 93rd Congress.

Then Congress should get on to tax reform, health care and a long list of other domestic legislation, the liberal group said.

The program, released by ADA National Chairman Alard Lowenstein, called the need for attention to the conflict in Indochina "tragic," but said "it seems ever more clear that the war will not end unless Congress ends it, nor will innovative domestic programs be enacted unless Congress initiates them."

ADA called tax reform the essential element to finance "massive federal spending on education, health, child care, housing, mass transit, environmental control and other pressing matters." Its proposals included more progressive income tax rates — "which take less from those at the bottom of the income ladder and more from those at the top."

Land use meet set at Hailey

HAILEY — Land use policy will be discussed during a series of public meetings scheduled in Blaine County, Wednesday and Thursday.

The meetings will be conducted by Neil Sampson, director, land use policy project, Idaho Planning and Community Affairs Agency.

The purpose will be to acquaint the public with the objectives of the land use policy project, to point out the need for a state land use policy and to assist those working on the project to get a feel for the public opinion regarding the need, type and scope of a potential land use policy for Idaho.

An interview with Sampson has been scheduled for 10:30 a.m. Wednesday at KSKJ radio, with a phone-in question and answer period to follow; a no-host luncheon has been set for the Hiawatha Hotel, Hailey, at noon; a meeting will be conducted at 3 p.m. at the Carey School, and a meeting has been set for 8 p.m. at the Hemingway School, Ketchum.

Thursday, Sampson will present the same program at the Wood River High School, Hailey, at 8:45 p.m.

Sponsors of the meetings include the Blaine County commissioners, Blaine Soil Conservation District, Hailey Chamber of Commerce, Ketchum-Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce, Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission, Wood River Roundtable and the Sawtooth Board of Realtors.

Not true

BELLEVUE — Nobody was more surprised to hear that the Bellevue grade school had been closed last week than school principal Claude Ballard.

Despite a wire story stating the school was closed Thursday and Friday because of an over 25 per cent absentee rate from the flu, Ballard said Saturday that the school was open both days and it was "not experiencing any difficulty at all."

Ballard said absenteeism never went over 20 per cent last week with the peak seemingly coming about mid-week. By Friday, the absenteeism was down to an about normal nine per cent, he said.

TF man heads range society group

By CHARLOTTE BELL, Times-News Writer

JEROME — Ivan R. Thornton, Twin Falls, U.S. Forest Service official, assumed the presidency Friday night of the southern chapter of Idaho Society of Range Management.

Other officers included president elect, Louis A. Logos, Shoshone, Bureau of Land Management; secretary, Keith Tweedie, Twin Falls; U.S.F.S. and councilman, Roy Brackett, Twin Falls rancher and livestock producer.

Retiring president, Clair Baldwin, Ketchum, principal assistant forest ranger, presented Nick Purdy, Picabo, with the society's award, given to a non-member of the society for his outstanding individual achievement in range management.

Members attending included individuals from the forest service and BLM, who are interested in grazing resources for domestic livestock and wildlife on federal and state land, as well as many private ranchers who want to develop good range husbandry on their private land.

Guest speaker at the annual business meeting and banquet was Robert Murray, range scientist with the Intermountain Forest and Range Experiment Station, Boise.

Murray presented a color slide on cheat grass range management, which covered a 10-year cooperative study between forest service, BLM, and private ranchers whose livestock graze near Glenn Ferry.

Murray told the group that the study involved both vegetative and livestock responses to various management practices of cheat grass range.

"The maintenance or improvement of cheat grass range and efficient use of vegetation is an important goal of range management," Murray said.

He noted that one of the many objectives of the research program is to measure livestock gains and grazing capacity on cheat grass range.

Murray said that yearling cattle gained weight satisfactorily on the range

Jerome to make budget changes

JEROME — The Jerome County commissioners will meet Monday to make changes in a tentative budget for 1973.

County clerk Virginia Ricketts said the commissioners met most of last week in an effort to adopt a tentative budget and felt they had arrived at one Thursday.

"I received a call Friday morning from the commissioners, who informed me they plan to meet again Monday to take a second look at some of the categories in the budget," Mrs. Ricketts said.

No figures were available, but reports indicate that it will contain a moderate increase over last year's budget of $488,317.

The sheriff's budget will reflect a large increase over last year due to the purchase of a new patrol car for Sheriff Elan Hall, plus the addition of another deputy, James Laswell.

Hall has requested another car and deputy as well as new equipment for his department to be included in this year's budget, according to informed sources.

Valley Briefs

KING HILL — Installation of church officers of the King Hill United Presbyterian Church were scheduled this morning at 10 a.m. with Rev. Edward Bawden in charge. The officers of the United Presbyterian Women's organization will also be installed.

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Chapter No. 425, American Association of Retired Persons will meet at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the IOOF Hall. Slides of Nicaragua will be shown and a talk on Social Security will be given.

Hailey youth cited

BELLEVUE — A Hailey youth was cited for driving while intoxicated after an "one-vehicle accident north of Bellevue early Friday morning."

According to a Blaine County sheriff's deputy, cited was Tim C. Thompson, 18. Following the accident, he was taken by ambulance to the Blaine County Hospital where he was treated for cuts and abrasions and released.

The accident, in which Thompson's vehicle collided with a power pole, caused an about two hour power outage in Bellevue and areas south.

The deputy said Thompson was traveling south on U.S. Highway 93, one-half mile north of Bellevue, about 12:05 a.m. Friday. Thompson failed to negotiate a curve and collided with the pole, located on the east side of the highway, the deputy said.

Thompson's 1965 pickup truck was totally demolished and about $500 in damage was done to Idaho Power Co. equipment.

2 injured in Elmore accident

KING HILL — Two persons were listed in satisfactory condition Saturday from injuries received in an accident near King Hill Thursday night.

Mrs. Wallace Ruberry, 58, Glenns Ferry, is in Elmore Memorial Hospital, Mountain Home, and David Jones, 23, Olympia, Wash., was transferred from the Elmore hospital to St. Alphonsus Hospital, Boise.

The two were hurt when the vehicles they were driving collided head on one quarter mile east of here on Highway 30 as Jones was attempting to pass a cattle truck.

Award set for Jan. 20

TWIN FALLS — A Seventh-Day Adventist Community Service Award to Dr. James L. Taylor, will be presented Saturday, Jan. 20, at 11 a.m. services.

The Friday Times-News erroneously listed scheduled services for today.

The award to the president of the College of Southern Idaho will be presented by Pastor S. G. Francisco, and is for his efforts to bring higher education to communities of Magic Valley.

Presentation of the award is in observance of the Annual Community Relations Day observed by Seventh-Day Adventists around the world.

FHA names Rupert family farm family of year

RUPERT — The Blair Spaulding family, Rupert, has been named the Magic Valley Farm Family of the Year by the Farmer's Home Administration.

The family was nominated for the honor by the Paul YHA district and will now be eligible for state and national honors.

The regional award was based on the Spauldings' wise use of FHA financial assistance in bettering their farm lives.

According to Blair Spaulding, they moved to the Rupert area in 1956 after living in Blackfoot and Rexburg. They were among the homesteaders of the North Side project and presently live in a two-bedroom home at 725 North and 300 West.

They cleared and harvested 150 acres of land during the first fall and have purchased another 130 acres since then. They rented 160 acres of best ground this past year.

Spauldings' farming operation also includes 60 acres of potatoes, with the remainder in hay and grain. He maintains approximately 80 head of feeder cattle on pasture and drylot feeding each year.

During their first year as homesteaders, Spaulding and a neighbor hauled timbers from the Stanley Basin area for construction of a large potato cellar.

In addition to their home, they have since built a machine shop, four grain storage facilities, two loafing sheds and a barn.

FHA assisted the Spauldings with real-estate loans for purchase and development purposes and provided operating loans for seven years. Spaulding has now graduated to other sources of financing.

The Spauldings are parents of four sons, all married, and one daughter, who is a sophomore at Minico High School.

Green Thumb

George Abraham

Home grown tomatoes: To many, the year 1972 was a bad one for good tomatoes.

Some areas were tomatoless — plenty of vines, no fruit, and if there was fruit, it tasted watery.

Weather played "tricks" on tomatoes, and a good many gardeners moaned "why can't we have tomatoes with that good old-fashioned taste?"

You can still raise such tomatoes in your backyard, but it's difficult to buy good tomatoes in stores.

Canned tomatoes are "rubbery" and the tubed tomatoes lack flavor — all the more reason why you should grow and can your own tomatoes.

Tomato breeders, as you may have heard, have devoted their efforts for tough, machine-harvestable tomatoes and the accent has not been on flavor. One food editor states that today's redesigned tomatoes are "tasteless, hideous and repulsive" — another way of saying that flavor has taken a back seat lately.

Tomatoes are available the year-round, raised, in warm climates and shipped thousands of miles. To stand this voyage, they have to have tough skins.

They are picked green, depriving them of the chance to vine-ripen, a stage which allows the sugars and acids to move from the leaves into the fruit.

Picking them green robs them of their natural flavor. Tomatoes picked green and artificially ripened have less vitamins A and C than those ripened on the vine.

Green tomatoes are then exposed to ethylene gas, which "ripens" or transforms the hard green fruit into what looks like a chin-trickling tomato (which it isn't).

So, if you're not satisfied with the fresh-market tomato, plan on growing your own in 1973. You can can and freeze them for year-round use. And those you pick from your own vines will taste like the way tomatoes should.

We still have good varieties on the market but the only way you can enjoy their fruits is to grow your own. We'll have more on tomato culture later.

Flowering maples: One of the best house plants around is the so-called "flowering maple" or Chinese bellflower or "parlor maple."

It's not a maple, but gets its name from its maple-like leaf. Abutilon comes in many varieties, some with colors of pendulous blossoms of yellow, white or pink and petals attractively veined.

You can sow seed and get all the plants you need for you and your friends.

Culture: Flowering maple is apt to get tall if you don't prune the plants.

A fast grower, it needs repotting at least once a year. Does best in sunny window and in a mixture of one-third each of sand, peat and loam. Keep the soil uniformly moistened.

Abutilon prefers plenty of fresh air and a bright light or even full sun — although it will tolerate the reduced light and drier conditions of the average living room.

You get continuous flowering if the plant is kept pinched back to induce bri branching. Variegated leaved varieties are grown mainly for the showy foliage.

Start new plants from tip cuttings and root them in sand any time, or use perlite plus peat. The only trouble this plant gets is red spider mite, but you can keep this pest down by spraying the foliage from time to time.

Incidentally, there's a dwarf flowering maple which starts blooming when about three inches high. Full growth is attained when plant is 18 inches high.

Butterfly snapdragons: Did you notice something different about your snapdragon blossoms last year? Your snaps didn't have the "snapper" — instead they probably looked like a butterfly, and that's what the new types are called.

I can't say they are any prettier than the normal flowered snapdragon, but they are different. The flowers are flattened or opened displaying more of each of the petal's color.

There's a single and a double, or azalea flowered snapdragon which are readily showy. All snaps are started from seed sown in a mixture of sand and peat, or vermiculite.

Greenhouse operators get maximum results if they expose their snap seed to light during germination. They sow seed in a loose mixture and press it lightly into surface of soil, without covering.

Strangely, this is one of those seeds which does better if started in light, rather than darkness.

If you want plants for setting outdoors in May, sow seed from Feb. 1 to about Feb. 25. When plants are showing three or four sets of leaves, give them a pinch, while they are nice and soft. This forces out new shoots and gives you a bushy plant.

After that grow them in a cool window or a cold-frame. Don't let them go dry as it causes them to get hard or "woody," as florists say.

Question of the week - D. E. of King Hill: "I read your column consistently but have never seen an answer to my problem. I have a dwarf Clapp Best pear tree that I put in about eight years ago. It is a good bearer, but the fruit never ripens, regardless of the picking time, or storage time."

"The pears just rot in storage. I'm considering pulling it out because I get good fruit from another 'bartlett' (non-dwarf) pear and another dwarf Clapp nearby."

"Should I pull the tree up and replace it with a dwarf McIntosh apple or some other fruit?"

"It sounds to me as if the dwarf Clapp Best which does not ripen is not the true variety, and perhaps after eight years it might better be cut out."

"There are many opportunities for mix-ups in the nursery business, buds that do not grow, trees which get thrown in the wrong bin, etc., and although most nurserymen try their best to make sure there are no errors, some do occur."

We've checked with several fruit men and none believe that the root stock would be responsible for this pear not ripening. It's much more likely that you've gotten a tree which is not true to name, and I wouldn't fool with it any longer, replace it with another dwarf fruit of some sort.

B. H. of Naples: "We have been growing our own impatiens (sultana) and while we cannot see any bugs on the leaves, we note they are turning yellow and dropping off. Also, there are tiny waxy crystals or droplets on the edges of the leaves and stems. What can I do to save these plants?"

Yellowing can be due to red spider mites, which also cause the leaves to become stippled. Wash the foliage with soap suds once or twice a week as spider mites cannot tolerate moisture. Also, if the plants are poorly drained or overwatered, leaves will turn yellow and drop. The "waxy" droplets you see along the edges of leaves is a natural condition. The plants give off water and the process leaves a residue of sugar crystals, plus salts absorbed by the plants.

Tour highlight

Last call for Hawaiian tour

TWIN FALLS — It's the "last call" for Magic Valley residents wishing to sign on for the annual Times-News Magic of Hawaii winter tour.

This year's journey to four of the Hawaiian Islands, leaving Twin Falls by jet Feb. 12, has proven to be the most popular of all tours.

Any space available, or additional space obtainable, will go on a first come, first served basis.

Betty Kelker, tour hostess and travel consultant for Magic Carpet Travels, said the number of guests this year is expected to total 20 more than any previous trip.

"Any available space will now go on a first come, first served basis," she said. "We will make every effort to accommodate all who want to go. Those signed now, of course, are assured of airplane and hotel space. Above this number, signups will be accepted if space is available."

Tour members will visit the islands of Maui, Hawaii, Kauai and Oahu. Ground-tours have been arranged on each island and are included in the basic price of $575, based on two sharing hotel rooms.

This price includes round trip jet fare from Twin Falls and return and also such "extras" as the Pearl Harbor cruise in Honolulu and a dinner and program at the famed Polynesian Cultural Center.

Points of interest will be viewed on all islands visited.

The 10-day winter adventure tour members will spend the first night at Hilo, on the Island of Hawaii, after the morning departure from the Twin Falls City-County Airport.

The last four nights of the trip will be in Honolulu at the Reef Hotel, on famed Waikiki Beach. The departure for the mainland, by way of Los Angeles, will see a day-light return to Twin Falls, arriving at 1 p.m. on Feb. 23. The flight to the islands will also be by way of Los Angeles.

O.A. Kelker, editor, Times-News, will serve as host for the newspaper, assisting Mrs. Kelker in tour details throughout the jaunt.

Curtailment seen

By United Press International

A spokesman for the Association of American Railroads said Friday train service could be curtailed soon if there is not a break in the nationwide fuel shortage.

The railroad spokesman said in Washington there was no "serious" disruption in train service yet, but if the shortage continues there could be reduced train speeds, curtailed services on some branch lines and maybe something "even more serious."

He said most oil suppliers had cut back the amount given to railroads to the level of a year ago even though railroad fuel needs are running about 10 per cent above a year ago. The increase is due in a big degree to the movement of the Russian grain shipment, he said.

Menswear course set for Jan. 17

TWIN FALLS — A menswear course will be taught at the College of Southern Idaho beginning Jan. 17.

The class will present techniques for sewing men's fashions at home. Concepts of good styling through fabric, color and pattern selection for sewing pants, jackets and ties will be stressed.

Areas of particular emphasis are inner construction materials, measuring, linings and the best choice of notions and thread.

Snow depths, water reported

BOISE — Snow depths and water content around the state show wide variety and no specific pattern, Soil Conservation Service officials report.

In the northern watersheds, snowpack is well below normal, with snow courses reporting as little as 27 per cent of average on the Palouse drainage and up to 78 per cent of normal on the Clearwater.

Across southern Idaho accumulation of snow north of the Snake River averages about 60 per cent of normal on the Salmon River and up to 110 per cent of normal on the Teton. Big Wood River, on the other hand, is down to 73 per cent of normal.

Drainages south of the Snake River are generally above normal with 105 per cent of normal on the Owyhee River up to 152 per cent of normal on the Salmon Falls Creek drainages. Great Basin drainages have a near normal snow pack.

Soil moisture conditions also vary greatly around the state and are below normal at low and high elevations and near normal in the central elevations.

Carryover storage in irrigation reservoirs is excellent, reflecting a heavy run-off during the past two seasons.

Gary W. Nutt, state conservationist, said some of the Magic Valley reports on percentages of water content last year and over the 1953 to 67 average include:

Big Wood River, 53 per cent of last year and 73 per cent of average; Raft River, 59 per cent of last year and 112 per cent of average; Salmon Falls Creek, 69 per cent of last year and 152 per cent of average; Bruneau River, 74 per cent of last year, 150 per cent of average and Camas-Beaver creeks, 40 per cent of last year and 89 per cent of average.

Reservoir reports around the state show substantial storage retained and the Snake River flow is higher than a year ago.

Jackson Lake contains 619,000 acre feet with 622,700 last year at this time. Palisades Reservoir contains 979,200 acre feet compared to 913,000 last year.

Island Park Reservoir has 87,200 acre feet with 86,700 of last year. American Falls Reservoir contains 1.6 million acre feet now and held 1.3 million a year ago while Lake Walcott reports 51,800 acre feet and had 56,000 last year.

Snake River at Minidoka is measured at 7,500 second feet compared to 7,030 last year and at Milner is 9,200 second feet with 7,440 measured at the same time a year ago.

10 years service

Research center recognizes two

KIMBERLY — Mrs. Irma Boyd and Dr. James L. Wright have been presented special service awards at the Snake River Conservation Research Center.

Mrs. Boyd received a pin and certificate for 20 years service with the U.S. government.

She has worked for the Department of Commerce at Washington, D.C.; Department of Army at Tokyo, Japan; Treasury Department and Department of Defense at Tacoma, Wash., and the Department of Agriculture in Twin Falls before coming to the research center.

She has been with the USDA Agricultural Research Service since March, 1971, and serves as secretary to the central director, Mrs. Boyd has received three awards for outstanding performance during her government service.

Dr. Wright was recognized for 10 years of service. He has been with the SRCRC since 1965. Dr. Wright has worked on the effects of climate and plant environment on crop growth, moisture use and yield.

He received his formal education at Utah State University and Cornell University. He has received commendation for the contributions in helping to develop computer scheduled irrigation since being at the Snake River Conservation Research Center.

Dr. Marvin E. Jensen, center director, presented the awards.

Windbreak plantings available

JEROME — Jerome County extension agent Wilmer Priest today reminded farmers and ranchers that nursery trees are now available.

Priest said his office has order blanks for the 1972 nursery trees on hand. He noted that the trees should be ordered before March 1.

Both annual and evergreen trees are available. Trees are mother nature's outdoor air conditioners. If hot searing summer winds, raw wintery blasts, or soil blowing are a problem on a farm, tree windbreaks can help, Priest said.

He explained that well-planned windbreaks for fields and crops, buildings, livestock, orchard and garden will not only benefit wildlife but also the farmer and also increase the value of the farm.

Priest noted that the Idaho Crop Improvement Association has recently published the list of the 1972 seed potato growers. "This list gives the grower's name, acreage and field readings on the 1972 crop."

Community plan class to open

TWIN FALLS — "Introduction to Community Education" is a new course being offered at the College of Southern Idaho for the first time.

Marvin Glascock said the course deals with such practical matters as organization and administration of community wide educational support groups.

It should be of interest to all persons who are interested in educational programs in the community or in supporting such facilities as libraries, public schools, religious groups and others.

Glascock said the course will cover recruiting, adult participation, program development and evaluation, teacher preparation, adult learning characteristics and special community education projects.

Courses are being held each Tuesday night from 7 to 10 p.m. with three credits given for those completing it. The class is held in the Shields Building on the campus.

1972 citrus crop hurt by freeze

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Freezing temperatures last month caused $51 million in damages to the California agriculture industry, including a $42.7 million loss to what was expected to be a record 1972 citrus crop, state officials have reported.

State Agriculture Director C. B. Christensen said a county-by-county survey of the damage caused by the freeze in early December showed 26 per cent of the citrus crop was lost.

Christensen said the heaviest citrus damage came in the San Joaquin Valley, where growers reported $11.4 million in losses. Tulare, Fresno, and Kern counties alone made up $1.1 million of the San Joaquin Valley damage total.

Most of the remaining $1.3 million in citrus damages occurred in the Sacramento Valley, Christensen said. He said the report showed most citrus crops in Southern California escaped serious damage.

A spokesman for the Agriculture Department's Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, which conducted the survey, said estimates for the 1972 citrus crop now have been reduced.

He said the forecast for the navel orange crop was dropped to 21 million boxes, 6 per cent below the 1972 production. Before the freeze hit, the navel orange estimate was 27 million boxes, 21 per cent above 1971.

The Valencia orange crop estimate was reduced to 21 million boxes, the same as 1971. Earlier, it had been projected to be 25 million boxes, 19 per cent above 1971.

The spokesman said the freeze damage also prompted a reduction in the lemon crop forecast from 17 million boxes, still 14 per cent larger than 1971, to 15.5 million boxes. He said there was no change in earlier estimates for grapefruit and tangerines.

About half of the remaining navel orange crop in the San Joaquin Valley was damaged by the freeze and will not meet fresh market standards. He said some of the fruit was totally lost but that most will be salvaged for by-products.

Bruins bow to Highland, Idaho Falls

POCATELLO — The Highland Rams overpowered the Twin Falls Bruins badly in the third quarter Saturday night and ran off with a 59-39 victory that effectively ended Twin Falls conference title hopes. The Bruins were downed by Idaho Falls, which was 3-6, by 53-46 Friday night.

Highland used free throws to stay ahead of the Bruins in the first half but in the third quarter the Rams outscored Twin Falls 16-10 to mount a 43-25 margin and that was it.

For the second night Twin Falls couldn't score and shot less than 30 per cent.

Highland assumed the lead early as, ahead 4-3, it scored nine straight points. Early in the second period the Rams moved ahead by 11. Bob Durham then brought Twin Falls back to within two at 23-21 but that was it. Highland hit six points to close the half and then took off in the third quarter. At intermission Twin Falls had outscored Highland 10-6 from the field.

Highland also won the first game 50-43.

Friday night, Idaho Falls, riding timely hot streaks by Roger Howberry and Dale Baldwin, downed the Bruins 53-46 and didn't trail from late in the first period doing it.

Twin Falls bumped out to a 4-0 lead and then died in its

Globetrotters set Thursday appearance in Twin Falls

The 1973 edition of the fabulous Harlem Globetrotters will bring their action-packed and fun-filled form of basketball magic to Twin Falls High School on Thursday.

The Globetrotters, who have thrilled and entertained more than 71 million people in their 46 year history, will meet the Washington Nationals.

The world famous Globetrotter warm-up circle will come to life at 7:30 p.m. Basketball fans from 89 countries and virtually every city in America have marvelled at the hilarious antics of the Trotters, and the team's popularity has understandably sky-rocketed in recent seasons. "Our attendance continues to increase as more and more people find out why the Trotters are the world's most popular form of family entertainment," says Globetrotter president Stan Greeson.

One reason for the rise in popularity is the weekly animated cartoon series seen Sunday mornings on CBS television. The show is the top-rated children's program on the air, and is currently seen by viewers in more than 20 countries.

"Including the foreign showings, we have estimated that more than one billion people watched the Globetrotter cartoon show last year," says Greeson.

Colleges suspend 1.6 recruit rule

CHICAGO (UPI) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association Saturday threw out its controversial 1.6 rule and substituted a requirement that athletes be eligible for competition and financial aid must finish high school with a C average or attain satisfactory grades in junior college.

The NCAA convention also imposed national limits on the number of grants which may be offered to athletes, but voted down proposals to make need a factor in the amount of assistance permitted and a proposal for a standard form in which athletes may receive and accept offers of aid.

The 1.6 rule was eliminated by a vote of 204-167, after a ruling had been made that some of the other legislative proposals concerning the rule would be taken up.

The convention passed by a voice vote a proposal from the Pacific Eight Conference requiring the C average for high school students and then accepted suggestions from the Pacific Coast Athletic Association allowing individual institutions to determine eligibility on the basis of advancement by the athlete toward a degree and to permit junior college students to become eligible for aid and competition by presenting grade averages of 2.25 for a minimum of a year and a half in junior college, or 2.5 for one year.

The 2.5 figure would fall midway between a C and a B letter grade.

Raft River outlasts Hagerman

MALTA — The Raft River Trojans opened up an eight-point lead late in the game and outlasted the Hagerman Pirates 40-36 Friday night.

It was a dogfight over the early part of the last period but with three minutes left Raft River opened up an eight-point advantage and Hagerman couldn't catch up.

Hagerman won the first game, 44-43.

Jerome topples Indians

JEROME — Logan Packer scored 20 points in the first half to lead the Jerome Tigers past the Buhl Indians 75-51 Saturday night.

Jones shakes putting woes to lead by Phoenix by 2 shots

PHOENIX (UPI) — Former national collegiate champion Grier Jones, despite having trouble with his putter, moved into a two-stroke lead Saturday after three rounds of the $150,000 Phoenix Open.

One stroke behind Sneed was comeback after a cancer operation, was in fourth place at 202 after the day's best Veteran Gene Littler, making a round, a 64.

Packer finished the night with 22 points. Jerome led early in the game and was on top 33-21 at the intermission.

Jones carded a 31-35-66 over the par 35-35-70 Arizona Country Club course to overtake J.C. Sneed, whom he trailed by three strokes after two rounds.

The Tigers held a commanding lead throughout the second half. Jerome shot 33 out of 71 attempts from the field while the Indians converted 19 out of 56 from the field.

The 26-year-old Jones was not disappointed, despite missing 12 putts from within 15 feet.

They just kicked the heck out of us," Shula has admitted.

"I was hitting my irons real solid, especially on the back nine," said Jones. "I hit irons at the flag all day that's a great feeling."

Allen, in contrast, is coaching a title game for the first time in his seven-year head coaching career.

"Everyone misses short putts once in a while," he said. "I putted well in the first round, but just didn't today."

FTC plans to publicize supermarket price lists

Mind Your Money

Peter Weaver

Q — In comparing prices of children's vitamins, I found Flintstone's brand selling 60 tablets for $2.29. A large chain store sells their own brand for $2.29 but you get 465 tablets. The ingredients are the same but the manufacturer is not listed on the chain-store label.

Why should I pay seven times more for one brand than another? Are there quality factors involved? If I buy 465 tablets, will they lose their potency while being stored many months? — Mrs. D. B. Buffalo, N. Y.

A — According to an official of the American Pharmaceutical Association (pharmacists), the quality is probably the same. In fact the vitamins might even be made by the same company. If you store vitamins in a relatively cool, dry place out of direct sun or fluorescent light, they can remain potent up to years.

Unless your pediatrician has specifically prescribed vitamins for your children, it's not wise to just hand them out at meals. They may not need them and you'll be wasting your money.

Q — Is it legal for a business to charge a customer 1 percent a month or 12 percent a year service charge on past due accounts that have gone over the 30-day limit? Don't you have to sign an agreement for them to charge interest? — M. L., Eden, N. Y.

A — If you are making monthly payments that include a finance charge, any additional interest charged if the account becomes delinquent (or you fail to make minimum monthly payments) must be disclosed to you in writing.

If you're making four or more payments, the account also comes under Truth in Lending regulations and you must be warned of any possible late payment charge in writing.

This "disclosure" is required under the Truth in Lending Law. The rate of interest charged is regulated by your state.

For a free explanation of the Truth in Lending Law, called "What You Ought to Know About Regulation Z," write to: Federal Trade Commission; Division of Consumer Credit; Washington, D. C. 20580.

Q — We are interested in finding out the facts about the Foster Parents Plan. Do the children really get the benefit of the money we send? Are the letters, pictures and background information on the up and up? — Mrs. P. D., Alton, Ill.

A — According to the National Information Bureau, which investigates charities for major donors, Foster Parents Plan really does "adopt" a child (Usually an entire family) and serves as a translator.

Some of your money does get to the child or family, but a considerable amount goes into paying for the plans' advertising and promotion and, of course, all those translators and personalized mail transactions have to be paid for.

If you or your organization plan fairly sizable charitable gifts, it's a good idea to join the National Information Bureau.

For an annual fee of $15, you can get unbiased answers to questions about specific charities and you get a newsletter that evaluates various charities.

For more information, write: National Information Bureau; 305 East 45th St.; New York, N. Y. 10017.

Q — What is the significance of the USDA seal on dairy and egg products? — Mrs. J.E.J. Lawrence; Kan.

A — The US Department of Agriculture (USDA) grading system for food quality is strictly voluntary for local producers when interstate commerce is not involved. The seal means the food processors' plants and products have been periodically inspected and graded.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Under a plan being readied by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) it may be possible for food shoppers in a number of cities later this year to find out which supermarket really does have the "lowest prices in town."

The FTC hopes to be able to put out lists, twice every month, showing the prices various big chain stores are charging for commonly purchased food items. The lists, based on actual surveys of food shelves, would name brands and would be different in each city or area covered. If announcing the proposal, which the FTC will study for the next 60 days before trying it on an experimental basis, the agency said it was a response to the sudden growth of discount supermarkets.

Robert Pitofsky, director of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection, said some cities have three, four or even five stores all claiming to have the "lowest prices in town."

"We somehow think they can't all be right," he said. The phenomenon is part of an explosion of aggressive discount claims, by food marketers," he added. Most of the details—such as how many cities and what food items will be surveyed—are still to be worked out. The FTC said it was possible the initial effort would be limited to cities where it has field offices, about 1) or 12 in number.

The lists would be designed to teach the public as soon as possible after they are collected, Pitofsky said, through news media distribution.

The stores would be notified one month in advance that they are being surveyed, but they would not know the exact date on which the FTC would come through collecting its list of prices.

If a store lowered its prices after getting the one-month notice, Pitofsky said, then the consumer would benefit anyway.

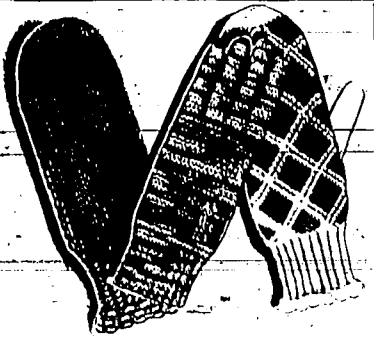

If the list showed that stores were guilty of false advertising, he added, then the FTC would prosecute the retailers involved.

A similar system has operated in the state of Hawaii since 1969, Pitofsky said, although he had no data on how well it was working.

70 per cent of TF taxes paid

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County taxpayers paid 70 per cent of their annual property tax in their December payments, a check of the county records showed this week.

According to figures available in the office of county treasurer Ruth K. Jones, tax payments amounting to $4,510,175 were mailed in to the office by the Dec. 20 deadline, out of $6,500,013 owed for the entire year.

Those taxpayers who didn't pay their full year taxes by the Dec. 20 deadline have until June 20 to make their second-half payments.

State law provides for two payments of individual property taxes, although property owners may remit their entire year's payment at the first payment deadline.

Mrs. Jones also released figures this week showing that taxpayers in the county had mailed in $334,466 in personal property tax payments for the year, leaving $14,515 unpaid.

Nominees sought

Idaho economic outlook good

BOISE — The economic outlook in Idaho for 1973 is similar to that in the nation with increases in production, employment, personal income and trade.

This is the report of the quarterly First Security Bank News Letter, according to Kenneth J. Newman, vice president and manager of the bank's Twin Falls office.

The publication is edited by Dr. Elroy Nelson, First Security Corp. vice president and economist.

Total employment in November was reported at 299,100. This was an increase of 7,500 for the month over a year earlier and is rather typical of the pattern throughout the year.

Employment in agriculture has continued to decline with further mechanization on the farm. The decrease in 1972 was almost 1,500. Nonagricultural wage and salary employment by November had increased by 9,400 or 4.2 per cent above a year ago. Manufacturing employment was 1,400 jobs higher.

Mining and railroad employment were both down. The civilian labor force was reported as 314,200 — an increase of 8,200 in the year.

Unemployment at 15,100 was up slightly with 5.4 per cent unemployed.

Construction contracts in 1973 should be approximately the same or slightly lower than in 1972, the News Letter states. Total construction was $262 million or 83 per cent above a year earlier. There was an increase of six per cent in the number of dwelling units and 17 per cent in value.

New additions to Idaho's manufacturing were of major significance in 1972. Included were some newer and expanded potato and dairy products, but also lumber mills, mobile homes and miscellaneous industries.

Production should increase or equal that of 1972 in most segments of industry and the lumber outlook continues generally good with near maximum production anticipated.

Total personal income for 1972 is estimated at $2,750 billion for an increase of $230 million or almost 10 per cent over 1971.

JEROME — Dr. Steven J. Dixon, son of John Dixon, Wendell, and Mrs. Larry Valdez, Jerome, is entering the practice of veterinary medicine in the Jerome area.

Dr. Dixon graduated from Wendell High School in 1959 and from the college of veterinary medicine at Washington State University in Pullman in June 1967.

He spent the last four years working in southern Idaho for the Bureau of Animal Industry, disease eradication division.

Dr. Dixon is now in practice with Dr. Jerry Jackson. He says that the Animal Medical Center being constructed south of Jerome is in its final stages of construction and is now open for business.

1972 growth excellent

BOISE — As the old year ended and the New Year began, there were reasons for celebration and real growth in 1972 was excellent. It was reported this week by an intermountain region financial institution.

The economic year in review is reported in a special feature of the quarterly First Security News Letter, according to Kenneth J. Newman, vice president and manager of the bank's Twin Falls branch. The publication is edited by Dr. Elroy Nelson, First Security vice president and economist.

According to First Security, the outlook in 1973 is also excellent, despite concern that expansion might be too much, too soon.

As in 1972, which recorded a slowdown in the rate of inflation, a decline in unemployment, but substantial increases in employment, real personal income, production and trade, the new year looks equally bright and will follow along the same lines.

There is, however, some concern associated with fiscal patterns. There is the question of whether or not the federal government spending program can be held within reasonable limits. Additional problems include alternative means of controlling inflation.

Industrial production in November was approximately 10 per cent above last year, on the Federal Reserve Board's Index of Industrial Production.

Unemployment declined from 6 to 5.2 per cent of the labor force, which is estimated at 67 million. Employment increased, and as of November, was 31 per cent above a year ago.

Based in masses of statistical data, the general conclusion must be that the government's wage and price control programs have been successful, the report said. The rate of inflation has slowed and for the year is below that of any other major nation. The increase of average wages has also slowed down at less than 6.6 per cent under newly negotiated contracts.

Construction in the past two years has exceeded all previous records, especially in residential construction. This has resulted in a significant impact on the economic upswing because of direct impacts on demand for many building materials. Total new construction for all segments passed the $100-billion level to more than $122 billion in 1972. The housing boom of 1971-72 changed the trend of the previous fifteen years. New dwellings increased from 25 per cent of total construction in the 1966-70 period to almost 40 per cent of major significance, is the fact that approximately 40 per cent of the new units started were for multiple-family housing. New housing starts for 1973 will probably approach those of the year just ended.

A considerable gain in retail sales is expected in 1973. Retail sales at $39 billion by November represented an increase of 17 per cent above a year ago.

Personal income rose 10 per cent because consumer prices had increased at a much slower rate and sales were approximately 6-7 per cent higher. At the beginning of 1973 consumer confidence is at relatively high

The meeting will feature a workshop on table topics.

Gem state fertilizer use down

BOISE — Idaho farmers used 160,100 tons of primary fertilizer nutrients — nitrogen, phosphorus, acid and potash — for the year ending June 30, 1972.

According to the Idaho State Department of Agriculture and Livestock Reporting Service, the combined total of these three nutrients was five per cent less than the previous year.

But phosphorus and potash registered declines of 12 and seven per cent, respectively. Nationally, total application of the three primary nutrients was for practical purposes, unchanged from the level of the previous year.

In all western states, Idaho continues to rank third in consumption of primary fertilizer nutrients. Only California and Washington utilize a greater amount.

Nationally, the greatest consumption of fertilizer is in the Midwest.

Third Army phased out

By United Press International
The 3rd Army, which suffered crushing blows in the final stages of World War II, is being phased out.

Led by Gen. George S. Patton, fondly called "Old Blood and Guts" by the press, the 3rd Army had 41 divisions—almost half the number that existed in the U.S. Army—as it drove to and across the Rhine. Under Patton, an outspoken and controversial military mastermind, the 3rd saw continuous campaigns from Aug. 1, 1944, until 45 days, making the dash across France, joining in the Battle of the Bulge, and then crossing the Rhine, crucial bastion of the Third Reich's last stand.

Money Box

Frank Schell

From B. E. L., Twin Falls: I have a piece of paper money I would like some information on. It is printed on a poor grade of paper — flimsy, so I would judge it is a counterfeit. There is a man's head in an oval in the center.

Answer: This is a piece of Citizen's Bank of Tomsblinn. In each upper corner is the number 20. On the left of the man's picture is an oblong with "XX" in it and on the right an oblong with a "20" in it.

On the left lower part of the note is a man sitting on some kind of chest and on the right lower corner a woman in an old fashioned dress.

Can you give any information about this note?

Answer: You have a piece of Confederate currency probably genuine if it is printed on the flimsy paper you describe.

This note was issued in Louisville to finance the Civil War. Its value now is about $2 if in Very Fine condition.

From T. N., Burley: I have a piece of what looks like silver. There is a man's head enclosed in a circle on one side. Around the head are these words: "Leopold I Roi des Belges" and the date below, with a star on each side of it, is 1860.

The other side has a lion in a circle standing up and pawing the air and around this the words "L'Union Fait La Force." At the bottom, between two stars, "20 CS."

Where is this coin from and what is its value?

Answer: The coin is standard issue of Belgium struck during the reign of Leopold the First, who was king from 1835 to 1865. The coin is not silver, it is made from nickel.

It is obsolete, we would have no monetary value but is worth 50 cents, collector value, if in Very Fine condition. It is not a source coin.

From D. D., Twin Falls: I have quite a few Silver Certificates which I would like to cash. Can you tell me where I can do this? On the front it says "One Silver Dollar." These notes are dated 1957.

Answer: You are about three years late. You can spend them if they are still legal tender, or the banks will take them, but you cannot get silver for them.

They were called in a few years ago and you can no longer get silver dollars for them.

Sorry. If they are in absolutely uncirculated condition, that is, brand new, you might get $1.50 for them, but they must be new, with no folds or creases. There are many of them around.

From F. T., Twin Falls: I have a copper coin which I have had a long time and would like to know about. It is very old — dated 1767.

One side has a shield, with what looks like two lions facing each other and above them a crown. Around are some funny words "Indio Est Spes Nostra."

On the back of the coin a large "V" with a letter "O" on one side and a letter "C" on the other, and the date below that.

Answer: Your coin is from the Netherlands East Indies. The "VOC" stand for Vereenigde Oostindische Compagnie — the Netherlands United East India Co.

This was a private trading company which had a monopoly in East India until 1799, when the Netherlands government took over control.

The coin is obsolete, but has a collector value of about 75 cents, if in Very Fine condition.

(Questions on coins and currency should be sent to The Money Box, c/o The Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.)

Public TV fights move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Public Broadcasting Service, which has been critical of some PBS programming, particularly in the public affairs area, where it claimed biased and unbalanced reports were being presented.

But Robert E. Schenkkan, president of KLRN-TV, in Austin, Tex., and chairman of the PBS board, said it appeared the "decision will not be acceptable to the licensees," if indeed CPB wants to assume control for all national public programming.

He criticized CPB for reaching its decision without consultation with the nation's public TV stations and added, "I expect we will have a special meeting of the PBS board of directors in the very near future to deal with this matter."

Hartford N. Gunn Jr., PBS president, said the matter was far from settled. "Ultimately," he added, "the stations, the corporation and probably Congress will have to resolve the issues."

Men's hair styling shop opens

TWIN FALLS — Men who want something besides just a hair cut no longer need sneak into women's beauty shops. The new trend in men's hair styling shops has resulted in the latest business establishment in Twin Falls, Juan's Heads and Threads, 1703 Addison Ave. E. Located in the historic old Keverin home, one of the first homes erected on Addison Avenue East, the shop is exclusive for men, and will be utilizing the black and red decor of the Copy Cat fabric shop, the previous business to operate there.

Juan Menchaca said the men's hair styling shop will give men an opportunity to get out of the beauty shops which is not the most desirable situation for either the men or the women. "Many men, he said, contact him at home at night asking he or his wife to style their hair without their having to go to the women's beauty shop. Others, he said, have the heretofore private domain of the ladies and invade the beauty shops for the kind of hair styling they wish.

The old Keverin home will feature a toupee shop on the second floor, with hair styling, cutting, manicuring and oven shoe shining provided in other areas.

Four stations for men's hair styling will be established on the main floor with a shampoo area and other facilities.

Each station has a black metal canopy, wrought iron light fixture and other masculine decor. Chairs are in red to match carpeting of red and gold.

Menchaca said other features will probably be later added in the shop. Hair stylists, most of them women, will be employed in the new shop. All are graduates of Juan's College of Hair Design, another he operates.

Menchaca said he plans to have the business open six days per week and evenings by appointment.

The new men's hair styling shop is now open on a limited basis with new equipment arriving daily.

Exclusively men

LONGER HAIR for men requires some special attention and Juan Menchaca, seated, and J. H. Scholes, standing, will be entering to the hair fashion needs of the male population in the new Heads and Threads men's hair styling salon on Addison Avenue East. Located in the old Keverin home, the business is exclusive for men.

Allowance for dependents $750

By RAY DE CRANE
(Sixth in a Series.)

The allowance for dependents on this year's return is at the new high mark of $750 each.

The question of who is a dependent for tax purposes is simple in most cases, extremely sticky in others. Perhaps some of these observations will help you in determining if you are eligible to make a dependency claim.

A child born to you any time during the year entitles you to a full year's dependency credit. A dependent who dies during the year is still claimed for a full year. There is no pro-rating in the case of birth or death; the credit is for the full 12 months.

For tax purposes, a child includes not only a natural child, but also stepchildren, adopted children and even foster children, if they lived in your home for the entire year.

As long as you provide more than half the support of your child, there is no ceiling on his or her income provided the child is under the age of 19 on Dec. 31, 1972 or was a student for at least part of five months in 1972. While the income test does not apply here, the requirement that you furnish chief support still remains.

An important turning point comes at age 19. Now the income test of $750 becomes effective. But here again, there is an exception if the child is attending school for at least five months a year. Forget the income, but still be prepared to show you furnished chief support.

A few practical examples will show how it all works. Your son or daughter graduated from high school last June. The child did not go to college but went to work and remained at home. The child earned $4,500 last year and spent it all. You received $1,000 of the earnings and estimate it cost you an additional $750 to maintain him.

Can you claim a dependency credit? You can't. The working child furnished more than half of his total support himself.

Now assume the same child went on to college in 1972 and earned $2,500 in part-time and summer wages. After payment of state and federal income taxes, plus Social Security taxes, $2,300 remained. The youngster deposited $1,500 in a savings account and spent the remaining $800. You paid $1,500 in tuition for the September to January period and paid another $500 in support. Now can you obtain a dependency credit?

You can. Your total support of $2,000 exceeds the child's contribution of $800, even though it is a smaller sum than the child earned.

What is support? It consists of money furnished for food, clothing, shelter, education, medical care, allowances, the cost of gifts and other goods furnished.

money spent for haircuts, music lessons and the like.

Support does not include the purchase of capital items, such as a car, motorcycle, or motor bike. If you bought a car for your son or daughter do not include its cost as part of your support. Similarly, if your son bought a car with his own funds, the cost is not considered a part of the funds he furnished in his own support.

No tax cut this year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress may reform the tax system this year but not enough to justify a general tax cut. Chairman Russell B. Long of the Senate Finance Committee said Friday.

Civil warriors

FRANKLIN, Ohio (UPI) — Confederate raiders made many sorties across the Mason-Dixon line during the Civil War, reaching their northernmost point on the outskirts of Franklin, some 30 miles north of Cincinnati.

and come back to the Capitol." The head of the tax-writing committee made his comments in a television interview taped for showing on stations in his home state of Louisiana. He suggested that tax reform should be aimed at millionaires who manage to take advantage of "loophole" provisions in the tax code to avoid all federal taxes or to pay very little.

"Where we find that people are able to make a large amount of money and pay little or no taxes we are going to find ways to increase their taxes," the senator said.

"My guess is that we have reduced the number of people who could get away with that kind of thing by about 80 percent. Now we will go add the 20 percent who are still getting away with some of that sort of thing." Reflecting the view of his state's oil and gas industry, Long suggested the energy shortage results from "short-sighted policies" which forced gas prices to one-third of their justified levels and from the activities of "our environmentalist friends" who "have stopped all the drilling out in the Gulf of Mexico on new leases."

TWIN FALLS The white frame passenger station which served Twin Falls for several decades hasn't reached the end of the line.

It hasn't served passenger traffic on the Union Pacific's line through here for several years and for almost a year hasn't even been used as a freight station.

In a few weeks it will become a recreation hall at Nat-Soo-Pah resort near Hollister. That is the plan for the remaining portion of the building, according to the current owner, Gary Robbins, Twin Falls.

Robbins is owner of the resort and camping area.

He purchased the building from Eugene Morrow, Twin Falls, who bought it from the Union Pacific in 1972. At that time, the railroad moved its agency across Shoshone Street to the building formerly occupied by Intermountain Bean Co.

Before the depot is moved, about 130 feet of the structure — freight rooms and storage space will be torn off one end. The remaining portion will be cut in half and moved in mid-February.

Robbins said the depot will be used as a recreation hall for parties and meetings. He said he hopes that the fireplace in the old waiting room can be moved without damage.

When the old depot reaches Nat-Soo-Pah, it will be placed near the picnic and camping area north of the swimming pool.

Robbins said the purchase and relocation of the depot is part of a plan to renovate the resort area. Additional painting and remodeling are planned, along with construction of a baseball diamond.

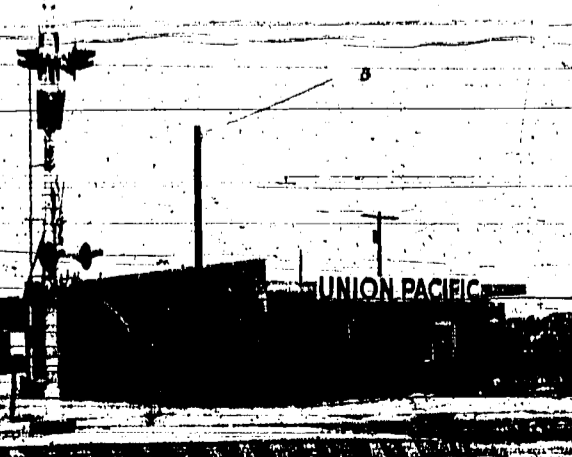

The frame structure is the second station to be constructed by the rail line in Twin Falls since the track reached the town. The first was torn down many years ago.

Within the past two years the old freight house — located about a block east of the one-time passenger station on Minidoka Avenue — was razed.

Old west comes to life

DAVID WOODHEAD

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For 27½ years Earl McAdams has made his profession that of a freeman. But ever since he's been able to manipulate a pair of scissors, in Billings, Mont., where he was born 61 years ago, his hobby has called more attention to his activities than his vocation could ever hope to.

Currently working with wax, he sculpts western and nature scenes.

The process begins, once the idea for a new project is imagined, with wire stick-figure facsimiles of the finalized model. To these supports, or armatures, as they are called, are added, from a 10-pound block of wax, strips softened by boiling water in winter or sunlight in summer.

Adapted by the artist's adept hands and watchful eyes, dental tools and miscellaneous McAdams paraphernalia spread out on a kitchen table give life to the wax.

And bit by bit the pattern takes shape — eventually appearing, about a month after conception, as the image the artist intended.

On occasion, Earl has had the opportunity to find handcrafters who can make molds for his creations and cast bronze replicas differing from the originals only in weight and temper.

The bronze model makes his skillful sculpturing something that will last literally forever.

This knack Earl displays for fashioning life-like forms from so much wax and wire, began when he found school time to amuse himself and his friends with scissor-painting silhouettes.

Equipped only with scissors and paper he'd cut a picture of anything anyone fancied. Just by looking at whatever was to be cut he could nip its likeness on the paper in a matter of minutes.

During Christmas time his yule-tide outlines adorned his classroom walls and when less artistically inclined teachers weren't after him to spend more time with his studios, he developed a talent that naturally led to the discovery of clay sculpture.

Abandoning scissor-painting, or at least momentarily trying of it, he experimented first with gumbo and later with clay or whatever mud-like material he found handy to satisfy his sculpturing wants.

The transition proved gratifying and soon Earl was working exclusively with clay, consistently exceeding his past endeavors until ultimately he perfected a style he may well be proud to exhibit.

As he added more and more single-piece figures to his collection he explored new possibilities of sculpturing and found that he could bake his forms in an oven to transform them into ceramic knick-knack decorations.

This latest advancement to his art, however, made his work much too brittle for practicality. Often the slightest touch would lay to waste hours of creativity and effort. And all chance of altering the statues was lost once they were baked.

The problems outweighed the benefits of clay to the point at which the next step to his hobby necessarily became an answer to ceramic hassle and permanence.

The solution presented itself when a friend made him a gift of a lump of wax to be dalled with in whatever manner seemed most appropriate.

Earl shaped it into what became the first in a series of sculptured scenes and figures.

The wax lent itself much easier to molding, it could continually be worked upon when new approaches were considered, and its only real menace was the direct sunlight.

So now Earl makes all his projects of wax construction. The step-by-step succession of techniques and types of materials has probably come to an end. The wax work is most likely the final form his artistry will take.

The collective result is a whole gallery of brown characters, animals and their natural combinations.

And although the settings have found their way to exhibitions in Taos, N. M.; Jackson Hole, Wyo.; Herrett's Museum in Twin Falls, and briefly at the Filer Fairgrounds, they appear continually at their birthplace at Earl's home at 387 Gardner Ave., Twin Falls.

Their creator welcomes anyone to stop by and see them. Last year, in fact, over 100 visitors gathered to recognize his talent in one month alone. Earl never tires of fascinating his guests with his three-dimension panorama of the west.

EARL McAdams displays two of his unusual wax sculptures. His sculptures, western and nature scenes, take on many sizes and shapes and the collective result of his hobby is a whole gallery of characters, animals and their natural combinations.

Vocational students

TWO OF the students participating in the electric appliance repair course through the new vocational education program are Kathy Davis and Chandee Bjornn, both Twin Falls.

HS students participate in CSI Vo-Ed program

By JOCELYN CLOWARD
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — A new vocational education program in Magic Valley is currently providing services for 188 students from seven area high schools.

The vocational exploration and experimentation course with instructors using College of Southern Idaho facilities is open to all area schools.

Students participating during fall semester are from Castleford, Jerome, Filer, Hansen, Wendell, Murtaugh and the Idaho State Deaf and Blind School, Gooding.

A variety of classes is available to students who can enroll in auto body, auto mechanics, child care, aide, drafting, electric appliance repair, farm diesel, food service, law enforcement, fashion merchandising, health occupations, office occupations, business management, radio and TV, refrigeration and air conditioning, small engines and welding.

Coordinator of the program is Skip Avril, Wendell. He recruits high school seniors through school counselors. They then attend the courses under the direction of Orval Bradley, director of the CSI Vocational School, and Neil V. Cross, assistant director.

Seventeen full time CSI staff instructors and one registered nurse work with the students who attend from 1 to 3 p.m. on school days.

"Students sometimes don't know what they want to do in life, and we are often too critical of their efforts to select occupations," Avril said. "The vocational exploration and experimentation course gives students a chance to see and participate in occupations some of which they had not previously considered," he said.

The program is funded by state and federal money under a grant shared by participating districts. The grant is administered through the Wendell School District where Avril's office is located, and is operational for one year. It will probably be extended for a second year, according to Avril.

A slide series showing the courses in action is now available to service organizations for explanation and promotion of the vocational program, Avril said.

"We hope to keep the area communities and school systems involved in this type of program," he said.

"There is currently a great need for increased vocational education opportunities for our young people, and we would like to continue with this series," Avril added.

Auto skills

TWO MURTAUGH students, Bill Graff, left, and Casey Anderson, try their skills in the auto body class. The new vocational education program is providing services for 88 students from seven-area high schools.

Drafting class

CAROL LaJouhette, Twin Falls, is interested in the drafting class. Skip Avril, Wendell, is coordinator for the vocational education program, with the courses under the direction of Orval Bradley, director of the CSI Vocational School, and Neil V. Cross, assistant director.

Sculptures bring old west to life

And when he moves outside in summer to make his carport his workshop, his callers have occasion to actually watch the wax become statuesque things of beauty.

The future holds in store the one-improvement Earl can make on his wax figures. If he can find the right person he'd like to have him make molds for all his carvings.

The wax originals are not for sale, but the castings would be. And while bronze would, no doubt, be too expensive in some cases, depending on the weight of each cast, the entire idea of molds is more of another step in Earl McAdams' art than it is simply a commercial attempt to make money.

If no one is to be found to help him out, even this process may be left to his hand. And even from there the possibilities of something like this never really limit themselves.

"But whether any profit ever comes of all this, Earl continues to have fun and lose himself for hours in his hobby. Now and then he'll take time to cut another scissor-painting or just sketch awhile and remember how much pleasure he's had with his art.

"Then something will occur to him and off he'll rush to workshop of wax adding still another touch to his latest attempt to picture an idea.

Mini reviews

TWIN FALLS Twin Falls Public Library officials have released mini-reviews for some of the new books recently received by the library.

"The Good Light" by Karl Bjarnhof. With tenderness and realism, with moments of fine, free humor, the "Good Light" tells the story in simple beauty what it is to live among the blind.

"The Case For Optimism" by Janet Dillet Freeman. "Who is living this life if it is not you and I?" There is much in American life today that is need of repair and responsible action, but there is even more which gives cause for optimism, especially when today's life styles are compared with those of our parents and grandparents.

"Sachajawa" by Harold P. Howard. In this book, the product of years of intensive research, the author presents a colorful account of Sachajawa's journey with Lewis and Clark and an objective evaluation of the varying acronyms of her later years.

"From Conception to Birth" by Roberts Rugh. "This book with its superb photographs and its lucid descriptions of fetal growth is for anyone who is awed by the mystery of life's beginnings."

"The Potentates" by Ben B. Seligman. In this fascinating panoramic history, a noted economist traces American business and businessmen from the Colonial period to the present.

"Savior, Savior Hold My Hand" by Thomas Price. The author tells what he found in the ghetto after he returned from a seven-year prison term. This is a blunt, painful, absorbing, moving story.

"The Unintentional Senator" by Grace Jordan. A follow-up of "Home Below Hell's Canyon." It covers Len Jordan from his sheep ranch to his never-intended years in the US Senate.

"Green Darkness" by Anya Seton. A story of great love, in which mysticism, suspense and mystery form a web of good and evil forces that stretch from 16th Century England to England of today.

"Forever Flowering" by Vasily Grassman. This extraordinary novel presents a transcendent vision of what it meant to be a Russian throughout Russia's history, and above all since October, 1917.

"Convention, M. D." by Frank Slaughter. Combining all his skills as a writer with his expert knowledge of medical technology.

Net worth

GENOA, Italy (UPI) — A housewife's work is worth $6.72 a day, a court ruled Thursday in a landmark decision.

The court ordered an insurance company to repay Annunziata Faret at Unil Faret for traffic injuries that confined her to bed for three months. It said the rate of $2.52 a day usually paid by insurance companies was lower than a maid's salary although a housewife works longer hours.

Current Cues

By HELEN WALKER

TWIN FALLS — The operating efficiency of your heating system is an important factor influencing the amount of energy required to keep your home comfortable.

Different types of heating equipment require different care. To keep it in peak operating order you should know what type of system you have and how to care for it.

Hydronic systems (hot water) vacuum baseboard or radiator units regularly. Lubricate the circulator once a year.

Forced-air system most forced-air furnaces have filters. Check filters once a month (clogged filters reduce comfort levels and require the furnace to run more frequently). Non-washable filters should be changed twice during the winter and more often if they appear clogged.

Washable filters should be removed, washed with warm soapy water, treated and replaced. Disposable filters can usually be replaced with washable filters.

Lubricate the blower and motor each year. A periodic check by a qualified service technician is recommended.

Heat Pump — clean filters, oil motors and clean the face of the condenser coil regularly. Don't plant or place anything within four feet of the discharge end nor within two feet of the intake end of the condensing unit.

Periodic checks for the proper output and refrigerant charge is advised.

Baseboard units — require little or no maintenance other than vacuuming regularly.

Ceiling Cable — no maintenance required.

You can increase your own personal comfort, reduce energy costs and serve overall national interest if you:

Weather strip and caulk around all windows and doors. If you feel cold air coming around a door or window you know that the opening or its framing is leaking air.

Install storm doors and storm windows or insulating glass. These will cut the heat loss from your home and the investment will pay for itself within a few years, and thereafter return an annual dividend to you.

Install overhead and sidewall insulation. Adequate insulation will greatly increase the comfort of your home both winter and summer, and it, too, will pay for itself in energy saved.

With adequate insulation, properly weather stripped storm windows and storm doors and wisely selected heating and control units you can reduce the energy needed for heating and cooling your home and increase your personal comfort.

Couple weds

TWIN FALLS — Gloria Jean Merrell and Robert Arthur Ostrander were married in Dec. 23 rites in the Chapel of the Resurrection, St. Michael's Episcopal Cathedral, Boise.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean J. Merrell, Meridian, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. St. Ostrander, Twin Falls.

Mrs. Beverly Pitkin, Bowling Green, Ohio, was matron of honor. William E. Ostrander, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

After a short honeymoon, the couple resides at 1201 N. 10th St., Boise.

A Lovelier You RASH MATCHES NAIL POLISH

By Mary Sue Miller

Sensitivity to nail polish is among the more common cosmetic allergies. It seldom shows up on the hands. Known as a contact dermatitis, the allergy appears where the nail tips touch the skin. These symptoms most often are found on the face, usually around the eyes and mouth. But any part of the body may be affected if the skin is hypersensitive.

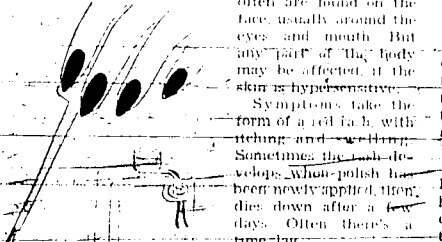

Symptoms take the form of a red rash, with itching and swelling. Sometimes the rash develops when polish has been newly applied, then dies down after a few days. Often there's a time lag.

Owing to the hypersensitive habits of polish allergy, it is hard to pin down. Leaving off any time lag.

sort of nail cosmetic for several weeks is a good way to test your reaction. If you suspect that you harbor this particular sensitivity.

At one time the only solution to the allergy was to leave off polish altogether. But specialists in hypodermic cosmetics have created and improved beautiful enamels, base, and top coats, which can be tolerated by a majority of women allergic to standard formulas.

With a trend toward deeper shades of polish, a trend already seen on many party hands, it's comforting to know that red nails can be worn without a matching rash.

LOVELIER HANDS

Do you have a hand problem? Read for LOVELIER HANDS a booklet that covers every step in your quest for hand beauty. It tells how to keep the skin and nails groomed; how to overcome weak nails, polish chips, discolored knuckles, prominent veins, wrinkles; how to use the hands with dignified grace. For your copy, write to Mary Sue Miller in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope, and 20 cents in coin.

Girls get top 'bill'

TWIN FALLS — They are not necessarily a women's lib group, yet they will be getting equal time and equal billing during a forthcoming benefit.

The Country Sweethearts, an all-girl western band, will be among those featured during the Southern Idaho Country Music Jamboree Monday and Tuesday.

An all-girl group has never participated in the jamboree before although more and more Magic Valley women are seen in the music field each year. As a matter of fact last year's jamboree saw at least one woman participating in each group but one.

Members of the Country Sweethearts are Susan Honk, Filer, steel guitar; Karen Jones, Filer, plays bass and sings harmony; Linda Wells, Buhl, singer; Donya Hoch, Filer, plays drums and sings harmony; Candy Freeman, rhythm guitar player and singer, and Kathy Trankle, Shoshone, rhythm guitar player and singer.

Most of the women play with other groups, but have combined their talents for the two-night jamboree performances set for 8 p.m. at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Center.

Some tickets are still available at Magic Valley music stores. Tickets can also be obtained from any participating musician; from the CSI Rodeo Club, who is assisting with ticket sales, and at the door the night of performances.

Net proceeds will go to Mrs. Charlie (Alton) Crane, the Salvation Army and the CSI Rodeo Club.

Others donating their time and talent for the benefit include Bobby Jones and the Hits and Misses featuring Kathy; the Misfits and Wanda; the Walden Brothers and Linda; Ray Crumbliss and the Saints with Pennie; the McBride Brothers from Boise; the Freemans; George Serr and the Shadow, and Allan Devries playing the "Nashville Sound."

Officers for the Southern Idaho Country Music Association include Gary Moore, president; Junior Walden, vice president, and Bill Freeman, secretary-treasurer.

Book Review

By ELAINE NESBITT
Twin Falls Public Library
TWIN FALLS — By chance Peter found the diary of his great uncle written in 1902.

"I want to get it down right away, what it was I saw. He was a muckle great ape. Tall, he could have been almost 7 feet, I reckon, and covered all over with coarse hair. His face was the skin to scab the devil.

"The skull a sort of grey-white, the forehead sloping back in ridges like a ploughed field, and the jaw enormous and full of most awful great teeth."

"This is the story told in 'The Mountain at the Bottom of the Sea' by Tar Cameron.

"Peter meets Professor McBride, an eccentric, irascible old man who has been ostracized for believing in the missing link. He and Peter combine forces for an expedition to the Chilean coast.

They are joined by Eric Westerman, a renowned geologist who has always wanted to find Vulcan (Vedman; Corbella, a young Chilean, who is a competent mountain climber, and by Christina de Garcia, a beautiful Chilean woman.

It was to be a dreadful, horrendous expedition into the land of the Nedra. The descriptions are so vivid you can feel the blast of the volcano and hear the roar of the river.

"The river twisted and turned, disappeared into Stygian whirlpools and was joined by tributaries so hot we couldn't set foot in them, at the end of some particularly hair-raising crawl we would often find ourselves brought up short by an impenetrable barrier.

"And imagine, finally, the mouth of the passage where we were standing opening out about halfway up the fumarole, so that above us was 300 feet of rock reaching for the sky, and below us 200 feet of rock plunging sheer into the lava. All this our eyes took in at a glance.

"It wasn't until we studied the fumarole section by section that we spotted the track; the narrow ledge, cut into the rock, which went spiralling up from the end of our passage to the top of the cliffs, an escape route for those with strong nerves and a head for heights.

This is a tale of classic adventure at its finest and will keep you awake from start to finish. Really good escape reading.

Play bridge

TWIN FALLS — Supervised bridge playing will be held at the YWCA each Monday at 1 p.m. beginning Jan. 22.

Mrs. Herb Burgess will be the supervisor. Anyone planning to participate is asked to call Mrs. Burgess, 733-4759, or the YWCA, 733-4384.

AAUW plans meet Tuesday in TF

will be Mrs. Ruth Day, member of the Twin Falls School Board, and John Coleman, CSI trustee. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Other informative programs which will be open to the public, are planned by the AAUW. The programs will be on the part Idaho school law plays in solving school problems.

Tuesday's meeting will be followed by a no-host dessert and coffee hour.

The next meeting is Jan. 24 at the home of Mrs. Ray Maxfield.

TWIN FALLS — Bowl and Blossom Club will meet at Nona Verano's home, 261 Harrison St., at 3 p.m. Wednesday. The program will be on vegetable arrangements.

Hollister OES Chapter meets

HOLLISTER — Hollister Chapter No. 47, Order of Eastern Star, met in regular session Thursday at the Hollister Masonic Temple.

Worthy patron and worthy matron, Mr. and Mrs. Ray

Clark, presided at the meeting. The organization voted to serve the past master's banquet on Jan. 27.

The ESPARL committee announced it would have a cake walk at the February meeting.

All birthdays were celebrated with an addenda and each person was presented a gift by the worthy matron.

Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Smith.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JANUARY 14, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An excellent day for you to study the working details of all branches of life, whether they be spiritual, mental, emotional and/or physical—Organize them so you waste less time, energy and money in the days ahead. Consult an expert if in doubt about anything. Keep calm and contented.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can elevate your thoughts to greater things now by making plans to increase your abundance. Study your budget and make allowances for rising prices. Stop worrying and relax at home tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take those treatments that make you more attractive before getting together with those who mean a great deal to you—then the social hours bring excellent results. Stay on that you have power.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Some time spent in meditation can bring forth the intuitive faculties that are so helpful to you in dealing with others. Make plans to improve methods of handling regular routines. Relax tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Talking seriously with your friends shows you what your position is with them and how much they will cooperate with you. State your ideas clearly. Take time to plan the future more wisely.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 23) Getting together with clever persons who are experts in inspirational, scientific or educational fields is wise. Do research work that is helpful to your progress. Make this an interesting day.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) Your intuition is working fine now and you can use it to get ahead faster, especially in personal matters. A show of true devotion to mate is important now. Avoid one who is belligerent.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) If you come through with promises made to others and insist they do the same with you, all works out fine for you today. Try to cooperate more with mate. Avoid one who is a well-known troublemaker.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) Arrange a meeting with associates and work out a plan for more success in the future. You can reconcile with one who has been unfriendly of late. This person is important to your future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) An ideal day to show others how much you appreciate their loyalty and favors of the past, and how much you want them to take part in your future. Take health treatments you need. Avoid gossip.

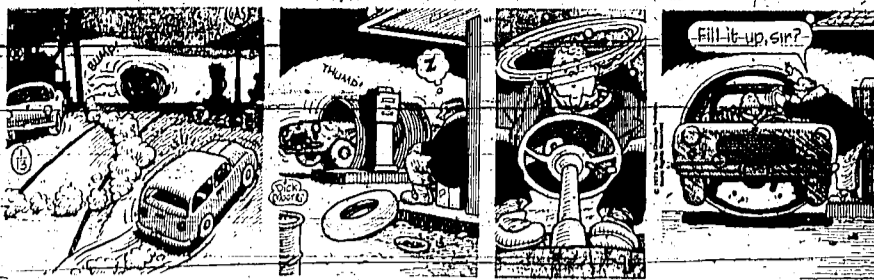

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Attend the services that uplift your spirits and see individuals who are also inspiring. You can make the future brighter for yourself. Take time for romance in the afternoon and evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make your home more charming and comfortable so you can entertain in the evening and have a delightful time. Strive for more harmony with kin. Show that you are a kind and thoughtful person.

PISCIS (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) It is important you attend the services of your choice and become more inspired than you have been for some time. Then call on friends and relations and come to a better understanding. Be wise.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young people that everyone will love and want to spoil, so be sure to teach to work for whatever is desired and then this becomes a successful and happy child. The field of engineering, banking and entertainment are especially fine here, although writing, medicine and nursing are also good. Religion is a must here. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS

Q "Name the only town in the world ever to be air-conditioned."

A You must mean Rio de Janeiro. In 1924, a high hill known as the Morro de Costello was blocked from the sea. So workmen hauled it off in wagons. That little feat dropped the city's summer temperature by more than five degrees.

Q "WHAT was the most common name of all for motion picture theaters?"

A Can only come up with the eight most common names, Ironic, Majestic, Princess, Rialto, Ritz, Royal, State and Strand. Will check further.

Q "ISNT the Britannica the biggest encyclopedia ever compiled?"

A Not by any means. The Ming Emperor Wang Lo of old China got his scholars to put one out 15 times bigger than the Britannica.

WORKING MOTHERS

What the scholars up in Michigan wanted to find out recently was how well mothers and dads seemed to be getting along with their teenage children. They checked out 2,000 youngsters. And they concluded that the most harmonious adolescent-parent relationships occurred in families in which the mothers worked somewhere for wages up to 32 hours each week.

YOU'VE LADY, if you wear bifocals in Bermuda, the police there will give you a green ticket. If you wear hair curlers downtown, they'll give you an orange ticket.
