

Inaugural throng jams capital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thousands of celebrants poured into the capital today to participate in the festivities and hoopla surrounding the second inauguration of President Nixon.

The air was festive, with flags and bunting bedecking public buildings along the parade route and street vendors hawked huge buttons with Nixon's picture. One teenage girl who stopped to buy a Nixon picture wore a button that said: "Wendell Willkie, he is our salvation and hope."

The threat of antiwar demonstrations also hung over the inaugural and 3,000 soldiers and Marines were poised outside the city in event of trouble.

The President, confident he has secured a treaty for peace in Vietnam as his second term is about to begin, returned to Washington from Key Biscayne, Fla., Thursday night as the official inaugural festivities began.

Nixon spent several days in Florida working on the inaugural address he will deliver at 10 a.m. MST Saturday after he is sworn in at the Capitol. Aides indicated the President would assert the nation is on the brink of a just and lasting peace in Vietnam, and would stress a period of conciliation in the postwar period.

As many as 15,000 persons jammed the three floors of the Smithsonian Institution's Museum of History and Technology to shake the hand of Spiro T. Agnew at the special reception for the vice president which kicked off the four-day hoopla Thursday night.

Nixon arrived back in Washington too late to attend, but sent Mrs. Nixon and daughter Julie Eisenhower. His other daughter, Tricia Cox, who is in bed with the flu, could not make it.

After the Smithsonian reception, thousands more flocked to the Kennedy Center for "the Salute to the States," honoring state governors. Don Hoop Frank Sinatra and Pat Boone highlighted the salute, and tickets by special invitation only ranged from $25 to $100.

Today Nixon attends his first of the events, saying "thank you" to the ethnic Americans who helped build his landslide re-election victory in November. At his request, a special event, billed as "A Salute to America's Heritage," was instituted for the first time in the inaugural celebrations.

Co-hosts included Zsa Zsa Gabor, Sunny Davis Jr. and Lionel Hampton, but Davis was ill with the flu and was not expected to attend.

Later tonight are the inaugural concerts. Admission also is by invitation only, and the scheduled events for the Kennedy Center include an American Music Council, a Youth Concert, and the traditional Symphony Concert, featuring the Philadelphia Orchestra and pianist Van Cliburn.

But antiwar protesters, undeterred by rumors of an impending peace settlement in Vietnam, have begun a series of demonstrations they have dubbed "an immigration of conscience."

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., Thursday led a dozen other women in endorsing the weekend of protest activity, including a mass march and rally that is expected to draw "tens of thousands" of protesters.

The demonstrators called a press conference outside the White House today before attempting to present petitions demanding that Nixon sign the nine-point peace agreement negotiated with the North Vietnamese last October.

Scenic Gem areas due more study

TWIN FALLS — Five areas in the Sawtooth and neighboring Challis National Forests, including the White Cloud Mountains, have been selected for further wilderness study.

They are among 27 Idaho roadless forest areas listed by Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz and chief of the national forests, John R. McGuire Thursday in Washington, D.C.

Two public briefing sessions were conducted today at the Sawtooth National Forest office in Twin Falls to review the areas and answer questions about proposed wilderness studies.

Robert Hoag, Sawtooth recreation officer, said information including maps will be kept in the Sawtooth supervisor's office and persons interested may drop in and review the material and ask questions.

Areas selected for further study are the Pioneer Mountains, including some 73,000 acres of high jagged peaks and high lakes and located northeast of Sun Valley; the White Cloud Mountains, a large 220,000 acre area of spectacular high peaks and lakes; the Boulder Mountains, 55,000 acres, also including high country and the Smokey Mountains in the Sawtooth covering about 30,000 acres.

The fifth area is the Hansen Lakes region of 16,000 acres, actually in the Challis Forest but included in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area and adjacent to the Sawtooth Primitive Area.

A total of 19 areas in the Sawtooth were considered for future land use during hearings last March in Twin Falls. After review of the public testimony and information available on the areas, recommendations have been made by the Sawtooth supervisor, regional forester and now by the secretary of agriculture and chief of the US Forest Service.

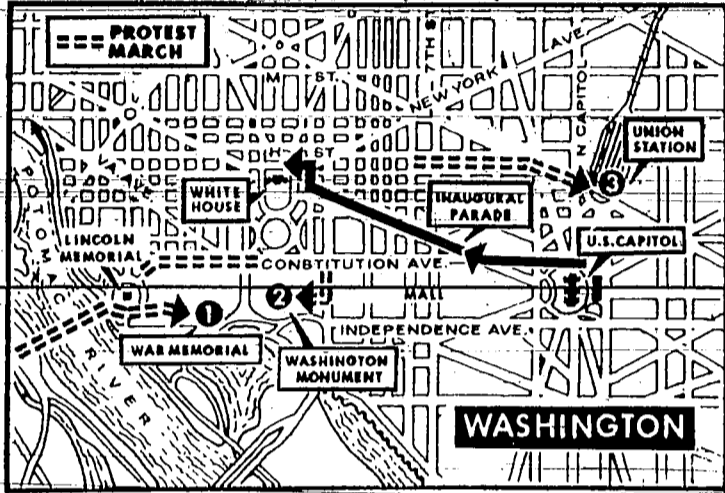

An official and final designation as wilderness areas would require action by the US Congress, following the studies and many additional public hearings, forest officials said in a briefing yesterday in Washington, D.C., forest and USDA officials reviewed 11 million acres of roadless area selected for further study.

Nationally there are 235 areas chosen for wilderness classification following further study. Most of these are located in western states.

Areas formally included in the wilderness system are protected from timber cutting and roads or other intrusion from man.

Roadless national forest areas not selected for study will also remain closed to lumbering or other development until environmental statements complying with legal guidelines have been filed.

Insurance limit asked

BOISE (UPI) — Members of the House Business Committee called for introduction today of legislation to restrict banks and other lending institutions in their sale of insurance.

Former Rep. Clyde Keithly, R-Nampa, an insurance man, urged introduction of the bill. He said he was concerned about the possibility of coercion on the part of the banks.

His proposal—for which he wants a full-scale public hearing—would limit lending institutions to sale of credit life, credit accident and health, and credit insurance indemnifying a creditor against a loss to a debtor's default.

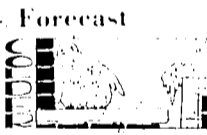

Keithly told the committee it appears the lending institutions are branching out far beyond such a limitation into sale of a full line of insurance.

State Insurance Commissioner Robert Hay, who endorsed the bill "wholeheartedly," said his department has begun an investigation of insurance activities by lending institutions.

When he protested on plain stationery—the bank would not listen to him, he said, but when he wrote the bank on the department stationery, he said, a vice president and an attorney showed up and assured him he could cancel the unwanted insurance.

"I would endorse that bill wholeheartedly," Hay said. "I know of one bank that has 26 persons licensed to sell full lines of insurance."

He cited a personal case of coercion to support Keithly's contentions. He said when he first joined the department as an examiner he used a line of credit at a local bank and subsequently was forced to take out life insurance.

US growth rate triple during '72

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Commerce Department estimated today that the Gross National Product, the value of the nation's output of goods and services, increased 9.7 per cent last year to $1,152.1 billion.

Stripped of inflation, the department's bureau of economic analysis said real growth was 6.5 per cent in 1972 from 1971.

The bureau said the rate of real growth last year nearly tripled over the 2.7 per cent in 1971.

The economy grew at an annual rate of 8.5 per cent in the fourth quarter, well ahead of the 6.3 per cent third quarter performance.

Inflation crept up by 2.7 per cent in the last quarter compared with 2.1 per cent in the previous three months.

The figures, compiled from a preliminary estimate of the nation's gross national product at year end, indicated the economy was moving faster than many observers had predicted. The report could mean that 1973 will be more expansive than previously estimated.

The fourth quarter increase was $31.8 billion.

Former envoy new GOP head

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George H.W. Bush, President Nixon's choice to lead the Republican Party organization in his second term, was formally elected GOP national chairman today succeeding Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas.

Bush, former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and a former two-time Texas congressman, was elected by the 162-member Republican National Committee which was summoned for an inaugural eve meeting to ratify Nixon's choice.

In the principal speech to the committee meeting, Virginia Gov. Linwood Holton said the party must break tradition and appeal to voters of the independent voters if it is to become the nation's majority party as it hopes.

Holton, chairman of the GOP Governors' Association, said, "Both parties should and must share a common concern — our two-party system is in danger of collapsing. More and more Americans are being turned off by politics. More and more Americans are calling themselves independents."

CSI library chief to quit

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The head of the library at the College of Southern Idaho announced Wednesday that he will resign at the end of the school year.

In a letter to CSI president Dr. James L. Taylor, Bruce Harrison said, "I have decided, after more than a year of consideration, that I will not renew my contract for 1973-1974."

Dr. Harrison, who is professor of sociology and dean of programs for the handicapped in addition to being head of the library science department, said he is leaving CSI to take a job in industry.

"It has been a matter of no small gratification to me," he wrote Taylor, "to have contributed to Magic Valley's community college — there is no better junior college than CSI."

Harrison said Thursday his decision to resign at the end of the year is not connected to criticism of the library which surfaced during the trustee board election campaigns in December.

Harrison said he decided last fall that he would resign at the end of this academic year.

"Before the election or anything, I finally decided I was going to do it," Harrison said. "Then they had all this smoke and I said 'With all this smoke going on it will make me look bad, I feel bad and look like I'm in defeat or retreat or something if I say I'm going to quit.'"

"There's no connection whatsoever between any criticism or anything else about this library with the fact that I resigned," Harrison emphasized. "Not a thing. Nothing."

Asked if he had been requested to resign by the CSI board, Harrison said that he had not. He said there was no connection between his resignation Wednesday and the resignation on Tuesday of assistant business manager Lloyd LeClair, who was asked by the board to resign.

DR. BRUCE HARRISON plans resignation

Aide asked to quit CSI post

Lloyd LeClair, who was also the assistant business manager of the college, had been employed at CSI since 1968.

LeClair said Thursday he thought he was a victim of circumstances. "But," he added, "most people who are asked to resign feel like they're a victim, unless they had been doing something wrong and knew it and got caught."

"I was doing what I thought was in the best interest of the college and the board didn't agree and asked me to resign and that was that."

LeClair said the differences between himself and the board were in matters of accounting procedure. "It wasn't my morals on the way I dressed or anything," he added.

LeClair's superior at CSI, business manager Herbert Van Slyke, said he also thought LeClair was a victim of circumstances. He said he had made it clear to the board that he did not think LeClair should have been asked to resign.

"He was my right hand man. I hated to lose him," Van Slyke said.

According to Van Slyke, there were differences of opinion with regard to procedures which the college's auditor, Robert Tullis of Huhl, felt were essential as opposed to ones which LeClair felt were essential.

"It was just whether you dig a ditch with a shovel or you dig it with a backhoe," Van Slyke said.

Neither LeClair or Van Slyke would discuss the exact nature of the disagreements.

"It would be a long drawn out process and might be more hurtful than helpful," LeClair said, adding that he had given consideration to bringing the college's auditor, Robert Tullis, into the open.

Van Slyke said the request for LeClair's resignation was a surprise move by the board. He said the board had not made it clear to LeClair that he would be asked to resign if he did not amend his procedures.

Van Slyke said it was not a matter of LeClair's competence. "None of this reflects in the least on his integrity, his industry or his loyalty to the institution," Van Slyke said.

John Hepworth, newly elected chairman of the CSI board of trustees, would say that the board "did what we felt should be done in the best interests of the college."

Open talks asked

HELSINKI (UPI) — Preparations for a European Security Conference were thrown into confusion and uncertainty today by a Soviet proposal that East-West troop cut talks be opened to any nation that wants to attend.

"We're all pretty confused and we're all pretty worried," some of the others might feel that the Russians had broken their word and pull out of the conference.

Neutral nations, which have been very active here, were reported to be the most worried even though the Soviet proposal would give them an equal status at the troop cut talks.

TF golfing panel proposed

TWIN FALLS — Because of the emphasis on golfing matters, the Twin Falls Recreation Commission has recommended a five-member golfing commission be established.

Mayor John Christoffersen has asked Councilman Tom Nelson, an ex-officio member of the recreation commission, and Dr. Steve Lincoln and Paul Oatyn to co-optimum members for the golf board.

Clyde Thomson, golf professional, will be a member of the new board.

Other recommendations of the city recreation commission include an overnight camping fee to be charged at Shoshone Falls. The commission members said very few places now offer free camping, and if $1 per vehicle is charged the city will be able to help pay for the security guard maintained in the park during the carping season.

City recreation commission members and City Council members have also approved an increase in fees for use of city swimming pools. Chad Browning, recreation director, said about 22,000 paid admissions were received by city pools last year, but pools continue to operate at a loss. An additional 10 cents per age group would bring in about $2,000 more annually.

The new schedule is 25 cents for swimmers 12 years of age and under, compared to 15 cents in 1972; 40 cents for those of 12 to 18 years of age, compared to 25 cents last year, and 75 cents for those 18 years of age and over, with the 1972 fees being 40 cents.

Councilman Nelson said by separating the regular recreation programs from golfing the commission will be better able to work toward a long range planning program of park development, and initiation of recreation programs.

He said the commission meetings have been taking most of the time for discussion of golf problems and matters pertaining to the golf course.

TF council starts work on budget

TWIN FALLS — City councilmen met Thursday for the first of several budget planning meetings they will hold in the next few weeks.

City Manager Jean Milar said the first meeting included a review of last year's expenditures compared to the anticipated revenue for 1973.

Council members indicated they would have very few additions or increases in the 1973 budget except for a cost of living salary increase and the normal purchase of new equipment to keep departments operating on a sound basis with replacement of aging vehicles and tools.

Milar said the city is planning now for the secondary sewage treatment plant, and will be completing the current contract for street reconstruction as well as starting a new street program in 1973.

He said the 1973 street improvement program, most of it handled through a Local Improvement District financing system, will be started early enough this year to be completed well within the construction period.

Milar said it appears the city now will have about 90 per cent external financing for the sewage treatment project which is better than had been anticipated during early planning stages.

He said it is expected an Environmental Protection Agency grant will be announced for the project prior to March 1, with design of the system, including service to the city of Kimberly, completed this summer and a contract let for construction to begin late in 1973.

The city must also purchase additional fire protection equipment for the airport this year to meet new standards. This, too, will be eligible for federal assistance, probably about 53 per cent of the total cost, he said.

Milar said the City Council is still considering possible uses for revenue-sharing money and will be selecting from a long list of needs, what they feel most critical at this time.

Included are such items as a new fire station, recreational improvements or assistance to the library board for library building plans.

TF man arrested in store holdup

TWIN FALLS — A 19-year-old Twin Falls man has been arrested on charges of armed robbery of the 7-11 store Jan. 12.

Capt. Tim Qualls, chief of detectives for the Twin Falls Police Department, said city police arrested Michael Alvin Herman, 19, following investigation of the robbery of the grocery store on Addison Avenue East and Locust Street.

Further investigation in the case, Qualls said, indicates involvement with one house burglary, one felony embezzlement, two automobile burglaries and two petty larcenies involving automobiles.

Qualls said most of the items from the burglaries and petty larcenies have been recovered. Further investigation is continuing, he said.

The suspect is in custody pending court appearance on robbery charges, officers said.

Zoning sessions planned

TWIN FALLS — Ed Woods, Twin Falls County zoning administrator, today encouraged real estate and mobile home court representatives to attend a series of zoning meetings.

Woods said meetings were conducted Monday night and Wednesday night with most of the persons attending being farm owners or operators.

He said no response has been heard from the mobile home park developers or real estate interests and most of the comments are against housing development including mobile home parks outside of city limits.

Another meeting will be held to discuss the proposed county-wide zoning ordinance Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the zoning office in the old hospital building. There will also be a meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the same office.

All county residents, interested in proposed zoning restrictions are asked to attend the meetings to hear a discussion of the new comprehensive zoning ordinance which the county zoning commission hopes to have ready for adoption in the near future.

CSI librarian plans to quit

Harrison said criticism of the CSI library has been based entirely and solely on absolute ignorance. The word is spelled 'ignorance.' No other word will substitute.

"I quit at this time," Harrison said, "because I figured I owed it to the college to give them that much time to look for another person. You just don't replace a good librarian like you replace somebody who teaches English 1A, I'll tell you that."

Harrison said he had gone as far at CSI as he felt he could go in his decision to resign was due to his personal requirements and professional advancement.

Harrison said a recent article in the Intermountain Observer which was critical of the library played no part in his decision.

Harrison said that he hoped the "people of Magic Valley would stand behind this college to a man, support it to a man and support its library which is the pulsating heart of this college. If you haven't got a library, you haven't got a college."

Reform Of The Welfare System

WASHINGTON — It is comforting to note that assorted members of Congress finally are saying that maybe the time has come for reform of the nation's welfare system.

Practically everybody else notably including those harassed souls who try to administer the dole in our big cities, decided long ago that Federal regulations made a sick joke of a system that in fiscal 1973 will cost the taxpayers $24-billion.

At any rate, although the Nixon-reforms were passed by the House they were talked to death in the Senate in two successive Congresses.

If indeed Congress now is prepared to tackle the problem seriously, we can all thank Rep. Martha Griffiths, D-Mich., a bonafide liberal, who has spent arduous years studying the situation.

pollician to understand. For example, the report said that if welfare recipients reported all changes in their income, as required, it is questionable whether welfare agencies could keep up with the paperwork.

Motivation

The government has added its official imprimatur to something we have been hearing a lot about lately under various catch phrases — "assembly line alienation," "boredom on the job," "blue-collar blues."

But it is not only the assembly line or blue collar worker who is dissatisfied, says the report, "Work in America," commissioned by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and written by a task force of university professors, research analysts and administration officials.

For example, if they had the chance to do it all over again, only 43 per cent of the white collar workers would follow the same career.

Another source warns that American business institutions will be in danger if they fail to pay attention to worker unrest.

"Alienated workers have cost companies billions of dollars in terms of absenteeism, poor work quality, high turnover and lower productivity," says management consultant Roy W. Walters.

If American products are to live up to the label "Made in the U.S.A.," the U.S. industrial complex must begin facing this very serious problem of worker motivation, says the American Society for Performance Improvement.

The society, which numbers some 1,176 business executives throughout the United States, is dedicated to "the improvement of American products and services through the improvement of people."

"The basic technique, it says, must be based on the fact that most workers want to perform well, but they must know how well they are doing and be recognized when they are doing well."

Indeed, more and more companies are beginning to face the problem. We are in a period of experimentation of "job redesign" — ranging from assembly lines where workers build an entire product rather than just tighten a few bolts, to letting workers share in decision-making that affects their own and the company's future.

At least one company has found that the old-fashioned "work ethic" is very much alive and well.

In hiring its personnel, Electronic Data Systems Corporation of Dallas does not utilize any complex battery of psychological tests. Qualities it considers more important than job skills include a sense of loyalty to country and family, high business ethics and a sense of fair play to one's fellow man.

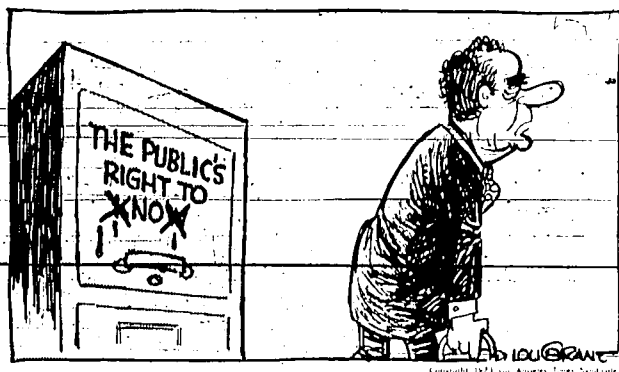

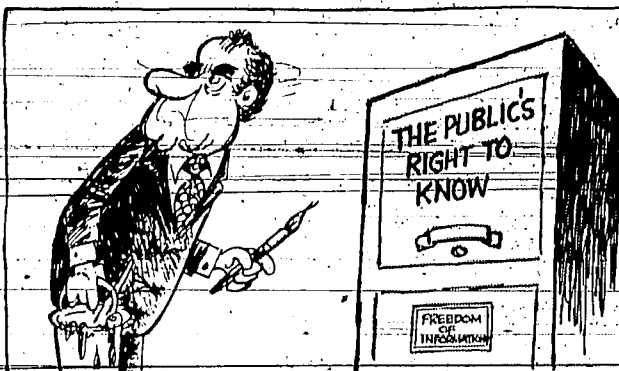

There is no seniority system at EDS. The best person gets the promotion. Every six months, each worker holds a two-way meeting with his superior in which the worker gets to speak his mind as freely as his superior.

There is also an open-door policy. The newest man can walk in on the chairman and the president, says the company. Management, in turn, makes a point of talking to the workers and learning their feelings.

In a highly competitive field, and engaged with a highly impersonal product computers — EDS has grown in 10 years from a three-man operation to a staff of more than 3,000 nationwide and claims that the secret to its success is the motivation of people.

"How we manage our human resources in the next decade will determine our very future as a nation," predicts consultant Walters.

Certainly the will to work has not been lost, he says. It has been killed, — or at least numbed — in millions of American workers under the guise of efficiency at a time when workers are better educated and more sensitive to issues than at any time in our history.

ART BUCHWALD

The Morning After

LOS ANGELES — The Super Bowl is over, but for those 12,000 of us from Washington, D. C., who traveled 3,000 miles to see it, the bitter memories still linger on.

First you have to understand what it's like to be here for Super Bowl weekend in Los Angeles.

Up until then, people in California thought those of us who lived in Washington, were small-town yokels who did nothing but raise taxes, waste billions of dollars and order bombing raids on Vietnam.

But when the Redskins won an opportunity to play in the Super Bowl, the image changed. Those of us who arrived on Thursday and Friday found ourselves feted as social lions. As fans of one of the teams to play in the greatest of all games, our phones never stopped ringing.

"Mr. Sinatra would like you for dinner."

"Dinah Shore wants you for tennis."

"Warren Beatty wishes to give a small party for you and your friends."

The Super Bowl does things to people, and Californians could not do enough for their Washington brothers.

It wasn't just the big people but also the little ones who treated the Washington fan with respect and awe. Taxi drivers forgot to turn on their meters, bellhops refused to take tips. In restaurants, if you identified yourself as a Redskin fan, they threw out a party of four in the middle of their meal and gave you their table.

It was heady stuff. But after all, we were of the same tribes as Billy Kilmer, Larry Brown and Chris Hanburger. We lived in the same town as George Allen and Roy Jefferson and Mike Bass. To Californians, we were the chosen people.

I remember the Saturday before the game saying to my wife, "Maybe we should move out here."

She agreed. "Californians are fine Americans. Where should we go to dinner tonight — the Charleston Heston's or the Burt Lancaster's?"

"Let's go to both," I said, "so we won't hurt anyone's feelings."

That's how it was up until game time. If you were from Washington, your cup kept running over.

But then on Sunday at exactly 3:30 p.m., Pacific time, our world fell apart. Our team had been defeated 14 to 7.

That night when we got back to the Beverly Wilshire Hotel, the atmosphere had changed. I first realized it when I asked the hotel operator if there were any messages for me and all she did was laugh.

I tried to call Frank, but he had gone to Palm Springs. Warren Beatty's answering service told us he was not only refusing calls, he wasn't even taking messages. Dinah's maid said Mrs. Shore could be reached by writing her at NBC.

The sword was out in Los Angeles that Washington people were losers.

There was nothing left to do but to return home. We packed and called a taxi and told him to take us to the L. A. airport.

"Where are you flying to?" he asked us as he turned onto the freeway.

"Washington."

He stopped the cab and made us get out. "Sorry," he said, "I just remembered I was off-duty."

As we stood on the freeway trying to hitch a ride to the airport, I kept yelling at the cars that passed us by. "For gosh sakes, we only lost by seven points!"

This spring we will launch into orbit about the earth a semipermanent home for spacemen. Crews will stay aboard for as long as 56 days to determine what happens to a man physically and psychologically — after a long period in zero gravity.

From space voyages of much shorter duration, our astronauts have returned significantly changed.

Neil Armstrong, the first man to walk on the moon, has become a semirecluse, refusing all of many lucrative and prestigious opportunities, preferring the role of an obscure engineering professor totally withdrawn from public life.

Buzz Aldrin, the second man on the moon, became despondent afterward. When the Air Force passed him over for the rank of brigadier general, he had to seek psychiatric help.

Two astronauts have been divorced.

Of the dozen men who have walked the moon, five have dropped out of the astronaut corps.

One has turned to evangelism. James Irwin pledged to devote the rest of his life to spreading "the good news of Christ."

Another has devoted himself to psychic studies. Ed Mitchell.

Dr. Charles Berry, physician to the astronauts, says, "It can't help but have some effect on their psyches."

Dr. Berry, who earlier delineated some of the several medical difficulties resulting from space flight, seems now more anxious about but to return home. We packed and called a taxi and told him to take us to the L. A. airport.

"Where are you flying to?" he asked us as he turned onto the freeway.

"Washington."

He stopped the cab and made us get out. "Sorry," he said, "I just remembered I was off-duty."

As we stood on the freeway trying to hitch a ride to the airport, I kept yelling at the cars that passed us by. "For gosh sakes, we only lost by seven points!"

psychological complications.

Though we've not yet had a report on the readaptation of our Apollo 17 crew, I remember Apollo 15 astronauts Scott and Worden recovered very slowly.

It was decided they may have been "overworked" during their voyage.

The Russians appeared to lose interest in manned space flight after three cosmonauts came down dead. The re-entry malfunction was mechanical but there is no way to know whether the physiological effects of 21 days of weightlessness contributed to "pilot error."

A Soviet scientist said, "Even if a living organism becomes accustomed to weightlessness quickly and well, the process of readapting appears to be extremely long and can be disastrous."

NASA is understandably reticent to publicly discuss negative side-effects of space exploration.

Some members of Congress seize any such reticence as evidence that we should back off.

More than anything else, that's what the Skylab project is all about.

Our technology has proved itself.

Engineers point to the perfection of the Apollo 17 mission as evidence we now can go anywhere.

The machines have been tested and they passed their test.

It's men who must be tested now, and it's the medical scientists who now have their fingers crossed.

Poison Centers

Dear Dr. Thosteson, You wrote about calling the nearest poison center if a child ate or drank something poisonous.

Well, at 7 o'clock one morning our one-and-a-half-year-old son walked in carrying a can of charcoal starter.

We could smell some on his breath but didn't think he actually drank any. I couldn't get hold of our doctor or his associate and called the poison control center. They said they were sorry, they couldn't give us any information or tell us what to do.

We finally got in touch with our doctor and it turned out fine.

But would you please tell me what good is the poison center in our town (Austin, Tex.) if they will not say a thing but "I'm sorry" when you need help? Mrs. J. T. Jr.

It's still a lot of use when a doctor needs to know what is in some product or another, from shoe polish to hair tonic, that some toddler has swallowed.

If he knows what's in it, he can do a lot more than he can if he has to work blind. So don't sell the center too short.

However, you and many other readers may profit by knowing that not all poison centers work the same way. Some supply information only to doctors.

At the other extreme, some centers guide people from the first phone call. What did the child (or adult) swallow? How much? How is he reacting?

Then they can say, "Get your doctor at once," or in many cases, "Go fast as you can to a hospital emergency room." Or if the case is obviously not serious, they tell what to do at home — saving time, trouble and money, if the matter doesn't require hospital care.

Some centers conduct repeated educational campaigns; others don't. Some are staffed with doctors or other trained personnel; some aren't.

They all serve a purpose. All are good. But the extent of service depends on how much financial support they have, and a variety of other factors.

Do they have a staff qualified to give direct advice? Or are they limited to a staff that can dig out reference material for physicians who need it?

Poison centers aren't federal agencies. They are local — although they have a network by which information can be fed into centralized files.

Centers are set up to suit the communities in which they are. How great is the need? In large cities there may be several dozen calls a day. In smaller communities there may be only a few emergencies in a week or a month.

MR. SPECTATOR

"I Have Feelings"

Out of the mouths of youngsters! Kari Thorne Graybill had a problem and so a letter to Mr. Spectator seemed the right way to let everyone know just what the problem was. We will publish her letter, hand-printed on school notebook paper, just as it was written. For your information the home address of the writer is 203 Van Buren Street in Twin Falls. Here goes:

"Dear People: "I'm seven years old and I have feelings.

"One very early morning my Mom woke me up and she said 'there's a sale downtown, we'll see about getting some shoes for you.' "I was all excited!

"Well, they didn't have kids' shoes. So I just stood there and waited. I thought I was out of the way. This salesman came out and shoved me with a shoebox.

"And that was rude of him. And it also hurt my feelings. I don't do that to grownups, so I think grownups should not do that to children."

WE NOTED IT Noticed a classified "ad" in the paper the other day. Offered alfalfa hay — at $1.35 a large bale. We thought hay always came by the ton nowadays. But we live and learn.

INFORMATION ASKED

We need information: For the second time in not too long the trash collection truck ran over the lid of our garbage can. Last time we bought a new can. This time we wonder if there is anyplace you can just buy lids? Can anyone help us?

The whole thing was reported to whoever answers the phone down at headquarters for the trash company and the "boss" was to call. Of course, he never did! Hence the lid plea.

A HANGING HEAD

Mr. Spectator hangs his head. The other day we discussed all the discomforts of sitting on a cold car seat — and opined that in the "old days" of the horse and buggy the people must have sat on the old wood-burning kitchen stove to get ready for a drive in winter.

Yesterday we received a letter from the Boring Hearing Aid Center in Buhi. The article was mentioned and Maybelle Boring commented that she makes a point of reading Mr. Spectator, pointing out that we really "hammered it up" when we wrote about the cold seats in today's cars.

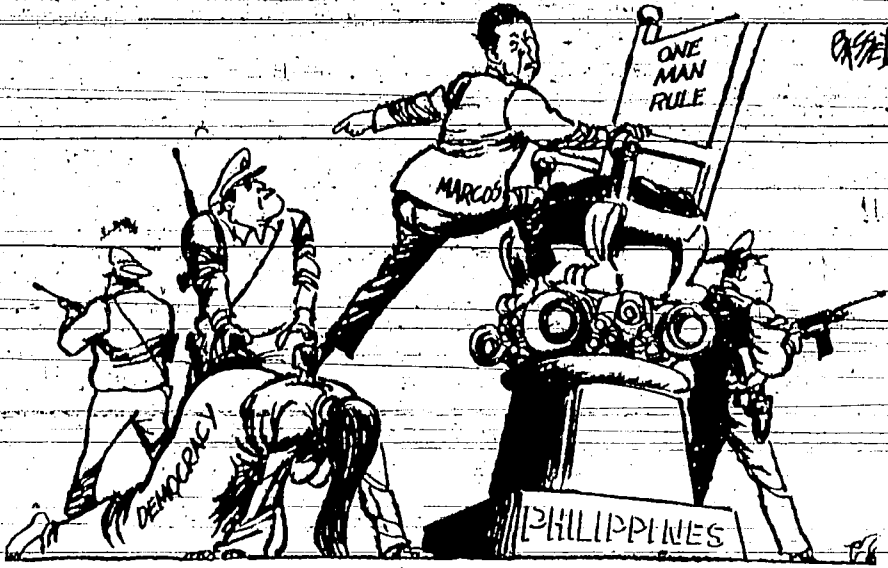

For the past two and one-half years, she wrote, they have handled 12-volt auto seat warmers. In fact, she said, they have even advertised in the Times-News.

She even offered to let us try one out if we came in — and promised we would have a choice of rare or well done.

Easter is very late this year, she commented, but added that it could still be a long, cold winter. So if your seat is cold, why not investigate?

Idaho 2nd in number on tax-free meet trip

By GEORGE FRANK
BOISE (UPI) — Idaho has tied for second place among Western states — beating populous California — in the number of legislators and state employees sent on a tax-paid trip last November. It was learned Thursday.

According to the official attendance list from the 1972 annual meeting of the Western Conference of the Council of State Governments, Idaho tied with Washington and Utah by sending 20 representatives.

The second place states were outdone only by the host state of Arizona. The meeting was in Tucson Nov. 10-22.

Other states sending representatives were Alaska, American Samoa, California, Colorado, Guam, Hawaii, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico and Oregon.

Myran Schlechte, Director of the legislative council, said Thursday the trip cost the state $3,815,000.

He said a breakdown shows $3,360,000 was paid for travel and other incidental expenses and $455 for registration fees.

California — which has a population and state government some 20 times larger than Idaho — sent 41 representatives to the meeting, none of whom was a legislator. Nevada, New Mexico, and Montana — which have comparable populations to Idaho — sent eight, three and six persons respectively.

Oregon, Idaho's neighboring state to the west, sent only five persons.

Schlechte was asked to confirm the names on the official attendance list published by the council following the annual meeting. After looking at the names, Schlechte said, "How would I know? I wasn't there."

At the time of the trip, Schlechte said so many legislators were planning to go to the conference because they serve on some of seven conference committees and have served on them the past two years.

Among the 20 attending, according to the attendance list, 13 were legislators and five of those were "name ducks."

Schlechte said he was not sure who paid for representatives who were not legislators or members of state legislative employees.

According to the summary publication of the council, the following persons attended:

Then Rep. Ernest Allen, R-Nampa; John C. Anderson, legislative fiscal officer; Jack Barnett, executive director, Idaho Water Users Association; John Bender, commissioner of the Department of Law Enforcement; Susan Bennion, research analyst, legislative council; Jo Ann Bensingjer, assistant to the speaker; Sen. Reed Budget, R-Soda Springs, and his wife; then Rep. Wilbert Cammack, D-Blackfoot, and his wife; Rep. J. Vard Chabrun, R-Albion, and his wife; William J. Dee, chairman of the board of corrections, and his wife; Sen. Richard Eligh, R-Twin Falls, and his wife; Sen. Richard Egbert, D-Tetonan and his wife; Rep. William J. Fanning, R-Hollister, and his wife; Rep. Ray Lincoln, R-Twin Falls, and his wife; then Rep. Helen McKinney, R-Salmon; then Sen. Neif J. Miller, D-Blackfoot; then Sen. Ray W. Rigby, D-Rexburg, and his wife; Rep. William Roberts, R-Buhl, and his wife; Rep. Harold Snow, R-Moscow, and his wife; and Mardner A. Wyman, senate staff.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The 300,000 square miles of the Louisiana Purchase cost the U.S. government $15 million — roughly two and one-half cents an acre.

Church appointed panel chairman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, was named chairman of the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee Thursday.

The subcommittee is the senior unit of the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee. The Idaho Democrat assumes the chairmanship as the result of 16 years of seniority on the committee and in the Senate.

As chairman, Church will have a key role in shaping any legislation on water and power to come before the senate for consideration.

"This subcommittee is vital to Idaho's life and destiny," Church said. "It must pass on all water and power legislation. I will hold the most advantageous seat in the Senate when it comes to protecting Idaho's water."

He warned that plans are shaping up for a legislative battle involving the future disposition of water resources in Idaho and the Pacific Northwest.

GOP 'rhetoric' assailed

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News Writer
BOISE — The state budget director Thursday accused some Republican legislators of resorting to "political rhetoric" to thwart property tax relief desired by Gov. Cecil Andrus.

D.E. (Skip) Chilberg said the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee "has all the power necessary to do anything they want. We fully expected political rhetoric regarding the budget."

Andrus proposes giving state property taxpayers a seven-mill reduction, and balancing the resulting losses to education with diversion of inventory phaseout money from both the state and county level. He said federal revenue sharing accruing to the local units of government would make up their losses.

The co-chairmen of the joint committee have both said in the past several days the governor's budget proposals would have to be set aside and the legislature would have to come up with its own recommendations.

They have also charged the budget book given the legislature was "worthless."

But Chilberg said the executive budget incorporated what the lawmakers had requested in conferences with his staff during the last year.

"We consulted with the legislature last year, and we've met with committee members. The discussions resulted in what they have. We are required by law to show certain things, we have complied with the law," he said.

Sen. Richard S. High, R-Twin Falls, co-chairman of the Finance Appropriations Committee, has charged that budget, containing line item entries, is difficult to follow. But Chilberg said line item budgeting is required by state law.

In response, Chilberg said, "no matter what the governor proposals are, the Republicans will criticize them."

Chilberg also scoffed at

Republican claims that the governor's tax proposals would result in a future reduction of revenue sharing to the state or local governments.

"What the revenue sharing law does state," the budget director said, "is that if the state reduces the average of assistance to all units, it would lose a like dollar amount."

"But I've discussed this with the treasury official administering the program, and they're treating schools like local units of governments."

Andrus' budget proposals are to divert $6.2 million in sale tax replacement money for the inventory phaseout tax to counties, requiring that they spend it on education.

In addition, he would take the remaining $7.5 million for public education from the state level.

Chilberg said the proposal by the governor was workable and could produce real tax relief since the local units of government would be able to make up the lost phaseout funds with revenue sharing.

Panel posts told

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said Thursday he was appointed ranking minority member of the Senate Interior Subcommittee on Public Lands.

McClure said he also received assignments to the Interior Subcommittee on Parks and Recreation and Indian Affairs.

Members of the Committee on Veterans Affairs have also named the Idaho Republican as ranking minority member of the House and Insurance Subcommittee, and he will also serve on the Readjustment, Education and Employment Subcommittee.

His subcommittee assignments in connection with his appointment to the Senate Committee on Public Works will be economic development, on which he will be the ranking minority member; air and water pollution; flood control rivers and harbors, and public buildings and grounds.

Crackdown proposed

BOISE (UPI) — A former legislator who believes she was defeated by use of spurious campaign literature asked for a crackdown Thursday on persons who circulate unsigned campaign materials.

Former Rep. Helen McKinney, R-Salmon, defeated in the last primary election, said her proposal is "no personal vendetta but to protect those who are courageous enough to run for office."

"Goodness knows," she told the House State Affairs Committee, "it's difficult enough to win an honest election."

Mrs. McKinney's proposal would make it a misdemeanor to publish, print or distribute election material that is not identified as to source.

Intern plan for seniors proposed

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, introduced Thursday a resolution to institute a senior citizen intern program in the House of Representatives.

This program is designed to give senior citizens the chance to study different programs and pending legislation directed to those over 65. Hansen said they would be able to view both houses of Congress in session and attend committee hearings.

"Through an intern program there is much to be gained from the improved two-way communication between senior citizens and their federal government," the Second District Republican said.

Free flow bill slated by Hansen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho Rep. Orval Hansen said Thursday he would introduce the Free Flow of Information Act, a bill to guarantee the First Amendment rights of newsmen and women to keep their sources of information confidential.

"This type of shield legislation is of the utmost importance," Hansen said. "In recent months, newsmen in all sections of the country have been subpoenaed by courts and other governmental bodies seeking confidential information and the source of that information."

He said the bill would assure the free and continued flow of information to the public.

major areas of legislation this year, according to its chairman, an Albion Republican.

Rep. J. Ward Chaburn, a veteran Albion representative, said the major emphasis during the early part of the session would be concerned with clarifying the controversial stream channel alteration law passed by the legislature a year ago.

The present law, Chaburn said, "is ambiguous and leaves a great deal to interpretation." He said the Department of Water Administration has written regulations clarifying their position, and the new legislation his committee will request will "let those affected by the law know what to expect. It would cut down on the time required to get a permit. Public agencies would know more."

Chaburn said the law passed a year ago was "too cumbersome to be practical from the standpoint of a person whose livelihood depends on it compared to a person who depends on it for recreation." At a joint legislative hearing Wednesday, the director of the Idaho Department of Water Administration, R. Keith Higginson, said he is receiving criticism from both sides of a debate about alterations governed under the current law from those saying the department is being too stringent and from those claiming leniency on the part of the staff approving alterations.

Pay limit asked

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. E. V. Melton, R-Ketchum, called for legislation Thursday to limit state employee pay increases to no more than $50 per month or $600 in any 12-month period.

Melton told the House State Affairs Committee he felt "there is great need for us to manage and administer some of these funds." Sometimes, he said, state employees receive as much as $2,000 to $3,000 per year increase in salary.

Although Melton had a bill ready for consideration he had no statement of purpose or fiscal impact note to go along with it. Chairman Harold Snow, R-Moscow, said the proposal will be held until those two items are ready to go along with it.

MV school districts

join push

BOISE — Magic Valley's three biggest school districts joined 13 others Thursday in forming an "action group" to support legislation favoring public schools.

Twin Falls, Cassia County and Minkola County school districts have agreed to join in the organization, which a spokesman said would not conflict with either the present state trustees association or state superintendents association.

"We are not a splinter group," according to Lowell Scott, Moridian school superintendent and chairman of the group, "rather we will be an additional force to support legislation we feel will be of benefit to Idaho school children."

The group's funding will be sponsored with five cents per average daily attendance from each district participating.

Andrus' budget plans GOP target in House

BOISE (UPI) — Republicans opened fire in the House Thursday on Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' budget proposals — especially his plan to put all the inventory tax phase-out monies into the schools.

Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft, R-Tuttle, chairman of a tax subcommittee on school funding and vice chairman of the full committee, said the proposal will work an undue hardship on other local units of government.

Expressed in terms of mills, he said, the 1972 inventory tax replacement monies for the city of Twin Falls amount to 12.9 mills.

He said if Andrus' plan is approved by the legislature — including the governor's recommended seven-mill cut in county school property taxes — Twin Falls citizens will lose six mills in taxes.

Ravenscroft said the 1972 receipts for other cities, expressed in mills, amount to 11.85 for Caldwell, 12.65 for Nampa and 4.4 mills for his own community of Tuttle.

Chairman Allan F. Larsen, R-Blackfoot, of the Revenue and Taxation Committee, also attacked the governor's plan in a floor speech. He called the governor's fiscal proposals "irresponsible."

Rep. Harold Reid, D-Craigmont, ranking Democrat on the tax committee, defended the governor.

"I think his proposals are very sound," Reid said. "It is very proper to analyze them but not put out remarks without factual information."

Minority leader Melvin Hammond, D-Heberburg, said there all kinds of figures "floating around this body." He said he has seen no evidence the governor's budget may cause an increase in local operating budgets.

Majority Leader H. Ferd Koch, R-Boise, said the comments from the house majority were intended to show the majority wanted to act

Action delayed

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate Transportation Committee today delayed action on a bill setting annual report dates for driver education courses because one member pointed out that the measure deleted the requirement of monthly reports.

Sen. J. Wilson Steen, R-Clenns Ferry, said the monthly reports are beneficial in keeping track of the amount of money spent in the programs offered in schools throughout the state.

Steen said he would check with school districts to find what impact the deletion would have.

Last year some school districts had to initiate limited driver training courses because schools statewide overspent the drivers' training budget in excess of $300,000.

Ravenscroft raps Andrus' proposals

BOISE — Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft, R-Tuttle, accused Gov. Cecil D. Andrus of "double talk" in a house speech Thursday.

He said the governor's program for property tax relief could actually lead to an increase in taxes at the local level.

Ravenscroft made his remarks during a floor debate over Andrus' tax proposals and their effect on local units of government and school districts. The debate was the first since early this week when the governor issued a clarification of his initial budget proposals, now a week old.

Andrus suggested an increase in the aid to education by diverting inventory phaseout, replacement funds through the state and county levels to schools, while providing a statewide seven-mill property tax reduction. He said the cities and counties could make up their lost funds with federal revenue sharing dollars.

Using figures he said were from the Associated Taxpayers of Idaho and the Idaho Department of Education, Ravenscroft said Andrus' proposals could mean an increased tax load of 12.9 mills for Twin Falls City property owners and 12.37 mills for property owners in Buhl.

The Tuttle Republican said "this is not tax relief, this is a tax shift. I think we need to pursue this most specifically. I am afraid the net effect is to impose a tax increase among home owners and senior citizens and the others the governor said he was helping."

In his speech, Ravenscroft made no mention of the amount of revenue sharing money going to specific local governments.

Youngest senator wins nod

BOISE — Idaho's youngest state senator successfully carried his first piece of legislation through the Senate Thursday morning.

Sen. James Yost, R-Wendell, at 21 the youngest man to occupy a senator's seat was the floor sponsor of a measure designed to correct an oversight in the revision of the state's criminal code in the past two years.

Senate Bill 1019 provides that the crime of lewd conduct with a minor or child under 16 is a felony.

Yost told the senate there is no provision in the current law for making lewd conduct with a child an illegal act. He said the measure was needed to "get the criminal code straight."

The bill passed, 29-0.

Outstanding ENTERTAINMENT TONIGHT IN THE GALA ROOM

SLOOPY and the RED BARONS

In show business since she scooted into the family act as an infant, the titian-haired one-girl family act has been in the spotlight her entire life. Although the vibrant young entertainment veteran doesn't pretend to be a singer she sells a song better than many big recording names, and her high-speed, mobile-hipped dancing is a high point in any Sloop session.

Tall Lee Dollar, of the Red Barons, a talented singer and musician, serves as the ideal foil for Sloop's antics.

Wendell chamber plans

LOWELL SHAFER
Wendell-chamber president

WENDELL — Encouraging new residents and businesses to move to Wendell will be the principal goal of the Wendell Chamber of Commerce in the coming year.

According to Lowell Shafer, newly elected president of the chamber, Wendell offers a small community with the professional services of a physician, optometrist, dentist and attorney, lower taxes and a good location near the interstate.

The chamber has already received queries from interested parties, Shafer said. A committee was formed last year and now activated to encourage any improvements needed in the city and to promote Wendell trade.

The chamber of commerce last week went on record as supporting the school district purchase of 40 acres for a future school site, according to Shafer. Shafer, 26, is manager of the Wendell branch of the Farmers National Bank and has lived in Wendell since July.

Wendell nursing home wing built

WENDELL — The construction of a new wing on the Wendell nursing home is scheduled for completion Feb.

The wing holds 12 new rooms of 23 beds, a nurses station and storage facilities.

Remodeling of the original structure and construction of the addition began last May at an approximate cost of $45,000, according to Pauline Degler, administrator.

In order to comply with new federal standards and the fire safety code a sprinkler system has been installed in the new wing, fire proofing has been installed between floors in the older area, three-hour fire resistant doors installed, and an auxiliary electrical plant provided.

In addition eight foot hallways have been constructed and the square footage per bed has been increased, she said.

The construction and remodeling has been contracted by the job.

8 researchers feign insanity

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Eight researchers who feigned insanity to get into mental hospitals said Wednesday that the staffs never recognized them as sane despite their normal behavior — once they were admitted.

The only people who caught on were the other patients in the 12 hospitals, reported David

L. Rosenhan, a professor of law and psychology at Stanford University who directed the project.

He said the eight "pseudopatients," five men and three women, spent an average of 19 days in the hospitals and were labeled as schizophrenics "in remission" when they got out.

Idaho flu on upswing

HOISE (UPI) — A health department official said the influenza outbreak in Idaho could be larger than epidemics in the past if the trend this year continues.

Dr. John Mather, director of preventive medicine in the Department of Health, said there were 76 cases of influenza reported the first week of January and 460 cases the second week. However, he said, the figures may not represent the true picture as many persons do not see a physician and some physicians do not report all the cases they do see.

Schools throughout the state reported increases in absenteeism and several area hospitals reported an increase in flu patients.

Soybean planting below estimates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soybean growers apparently do not yet intend to plant as much of the crop as the government feels is needed this year to help expand beef, pork and other livestock supplies for consumers, a grower survey shows.

The survey, measuring farmers' plans as of late December and early January, was made by the American Soybean Association (ASA) of Hudson, Iowa, and released to news agencies here. ASA officials said more than 1,000 growers, replying from a random sample of 2,000 queried, indicated they intended to boost acreage 4.3 per cent over 1972. This would produce planting of only about 48.4 million acres, far short of the Agriculture Department goal of over 52 million acres.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and top administration economic officials said this week that if a government survey scheduled today shows a prospective shortfall in soybean planting, they would revise 1973 seed grain control regulations to free more acreage for beans. ASA officials noted their survey return did not reflect changes this week in 1973 wheat planting rules.

TF fertilizer meet Tuesday

TWIN FALLS — A one-day training meeting for Idaho fertilizer personnel has been scheduled here, according to Wynne-Thiessen, University of Idaho extension soils specialist. The meeting will begin at 8:30 a.m. Jan. 24 at the Holiday Inn. Thiessen said the morning program at each meeting will be the same. Subjects to be discussed will be fertilizer sales alternatives under existing market conditions, use and value of soil testing, forage quality and animal nutrition, alfalfa fertilization and management, and yield, quality and economics of pasture fertilization. Afternoon speakers will discuss influence of nitrogen and water on potato yields and quality, fertilizing mint, soil fumigation and managing corn production.

Other subjects to be discussed will be state and federal fertilizer and pesticide regulations purpose and plans of the Idaho Agricultural Chemical Association, ecology and the environment, and the Occupational Safety and Health Act as it concerns fertilizer dealers.

Thiessen said the fertilizer training meetings are held each year to help Idaho commercial fertilizer industry fieldmen and salesmen become aware of new research findings and current industry information.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 70-year-old man and recently lost my wife after 49 years of a happy marriage. My loss was almost unbearable at first, but I faced reality and tried to live again.

My problem is this: I have proposed marriage to four widows, all near my age. They are receptive to a point, but all say there is no need for sex at my age.

I am a healthy man and had a good sex life with my wife until she died, so why should I be expected to forget about sex now?

What should I tell these ladies when they turn me down on this important part of life? I say sex is healthy and normal and adds to a happy marriage. Please advise me. NAMELESS, PLEASE

Cool it for a while

DEAR NAMELESS: Perhaps these ladies have turned you down because you appear to be preoccupied with sex. You say you "recently" lost your wife. Yet you have already proposed to four widows. Cool it. Surely there must be an eligible widow who will see things your way. But don't rush her.

DEAR ABBY: I am a teen-aged girl who has hairy legs. I don't see anything wrong with it because it is natural. My mother and older sisters say it looks ugly and if I don't shave my legs I will be the butt of guys' jokes, and besides it is not considered good grooming for a girl to go around with hair on her legs.

I don't see why society should dictate whether I should have hair on my legs. I think this is strictly a matter of my own choice.

NATURALLY HAIRY

DEAR HAIRY: It's your hair, your legs and your choice. If you choose to keep the hair on your legs, you will soon find out to whom it matters, and to whom it matters not. Since you like the natural look, I suggest you keep it.

DEAR ABBY: God help me, Abby, but I made the biggest, most stupid mistake of my life. I tried to steal a piece of costume jewelry from a store and was caught red-handed by a detective posing as another shopper. The foolish thing is, I could have bought it as I had the money. I don't know what came over me.

I was looked, and now I have a criminal record which I am afraid will follow me for the rest of my life.

How will this affect my future? I am planning to get married soon. Should I tell my fiancé? Will this affect my voting? Will I ever be able to get a passport? Can I hold a civil service job? Will my record follow me into another state? Please tell me everything! I am so sorry for what I did. I wish I could wake up and find it was all a bad dream. HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: Laws vary in different states. Talk to a lawyer and get the facts. I think you may be greatly relieved.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BROWNIE": Yes, give him another chance. Tell your husband you will meet him at the next Alcoholics Anonymous meeting, and afterwards you will talk about a reconciliation.

Problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 6708, L. A., Calif. 90049. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Today's hand is made up. We have given North the same cards he held yesterday but have given South a rather different no-trump holding. The bidding starts with North transferring to hearts and then bidding three clubs but at this point South realizes that his 16 high card points may be the perfect cards for a club slam.

He rebids three diamonds as a start of his slam campaign. North has no slam interest and just goes to three hearts. Whoroupon South bids three spades, his second cue bid.

North still has no slam interest but he does hold two five-card suits and bids four clubs, whereupon South takes him to six.

North isn't particularly happy but he is in the position of the pilot flying blind in the fog with one motor conked out. He has to make the best of it.

When dummy hits the table his worries are about over. The only problem would be if hearts broke 5-1. After winning the spade, he cashes dummy's ace of hearts, leads a heart to his king, ruffs a heart, leads a trump to his hand, ruffs another heart, draws trumps and winds up losing a diamond at the end.

Burley sets breakfast

BURLEY—Members of the Burley and Minico Jaycees will join in sponsoring the second annual Mini-Cassia-Mayors Prayer Breakfast Saturday.

The breakfast will be at 9 a.m. in the Ramada Inn, Burley, with mayors of surrounding towns and other governmental leaders of different faiths asked to attend.

Several have been selected to speak on "The Relationship of Government to God and God to Government."

Following the breakfast, the governmental leader guests will be presenting a special spiritual rally, a prayer session and worship service.

Jaycees of the two communities have urged all families of the area to attend the breakfast and the special events which follow. Reservations should be made by calling 436-1167 or 678-9668.

Steve B. Poreh is general chairman of this year's event. He said the Jaycees feel the prayer breakfast is well in keeping with their creed that God gives meaning and purpose to human life and that government should be of laws rather than of men.

Speech brings verbal clashes

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—A speech entitled "An Attack on Mormonism" by Dr. Fred Hagen at the University of Utah Tuesday night provoked cheers, shouting and repeated verbal clashes.

The university philosophy professor spoke as the guest of a forum entitled, "Twaddle of Speakers."

"I could not accept a cosmic racist bigot as a God," said Hagen, speaking on LDS Church policies regarding admission of blacks to the priesthood.

"The influence of the church," he said, extends to state government.

"The legislature tries to legislate manners; it deals with liquor laws, vasectomy and pornography. This is a clear infringement of religion on the individual."

Hagen was verbally attacked for many of his assertions by Dr. Clark Knowlton of the Sociology Department. Knowlton defended many church policies as understandable of a minority group.

At several points, the meeting of over 400 people broke into a verbal free-for-all, with proponents and opponents trying to shout one another down.

"Mormonism has become a state religion, a priestly religion and is no longer capable of change," contended Hagen.

He also denounced the attitude of "certain people here on campus who say we are abusing the academic freedom by criticizing the local 'peculiar institution.'"

Last October, university President Alfred E. Emery warned professors to refrain from needless social criticism.

TF to hold Sunday school convention

TWIN FALLS—An Old Book for a New Age, is the theme of the South Central Idaho Sunday School Convention Feb. 21 and 22 in Twin Falls.

The annual non-denominational meeting for Sunday school teachers will be conducted at the First Methodist Church.

William J. Boyd, president, announced today that Dr. John Mitchell, co-founder of Multnomah School of the Bible, Portland, Ore., will be the main speaker at the convention, which is planned for teachers of pre-school through adult classes.

Workshops will be included at the meeting. Special training for junior church is planned.

The Sunday school convention is funded by registration fees and is not affiliated with any other organization, Boyd said.

Annual church meet set

TWIN FALLS—The annual meeting of the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church of Twin Falls will be held Tuesday in the church dining room.

The meeting will begin with a potluck dinner at 6:30 p.m. A review of the year's business activities will follow with presentation of the proposed 1973 budget of $57,307 and other plans for 1973.

Rev. Robert Van Nest will speak Sunday at the regular 11 a.m. services on "Which Style of Commitment?"

Rev. Donald Gould

Missionary speaks at 2 churches

TWIN FALLS—Rev. Donald E. Gould, missionary to Paraguay, South America, will be guest speaker Sunday in two Twin Falls churches.

At 11 a.m. he will speak at the Faith Assembly of God Church. Rev. Clay Stephens invites the public to attend, as does Pastor L. I. LaMance of the First Assembly of God Church, where Gould will speak at 7:30 p.m.

Slides and curios of Paraguay will be featured in the special missionary services.

After a year of language study, Rev. Gould, his wife Lorene and their two sons will make their home in Asuncion, Paraguay. They attended Central Bible College, Springfield, Mo., and Northwest College of the Assemblies of God, Kirkland, Wash. Rev. Gould served as a U.S. Army chaplain's assistant for three years.

Appointees announced by Good Shepherd board

TWIN FALLS—New appointees were named at a past president honored at a dinner meeting of the Idaho Unit of the Good Shepherd executive board.

The group met at the Holiday Inn, Twin Falls, during which time Mrs. Arthur Kaster, Hagerman, past president of the group, was presented a gift on behalf of the unit from Mrs. Donald Schroeder, Buhl, new president.

New officers of the group include Mrs. Herman Martens, Eden, vice president; Mrs. Larry Schwarz, Hazelton, financial secretary, and Mrs. Edwin Brune, Murtagh, corresponding secretary.

Rev. T. D. Johnston, pastor of Clover and Peace Lutheran churches, was re-appointed pastoral adviser, and Mrs. Edwin Herman, Filer, was named membership chairman.

Mrs. Kaster will serve as publicity chairman and Mrs. Virgil Adams, Buhl; Mrs. Irvin Biers, Twin Falls, and Mrs. George Jasper, Buhl, project committee.

Other committees include Mrs. Herman Martens, Eden, and Mrs. Kenneth James, Twin Falls, bylaws; Mrs. Johnston; Mrs. Albert Brune, Hazelton, and Mrs. Clarence Degner, Kimberly, resolutions; Mrs. Albert Schroeder, Twin Falls, parliamentarian and historian, and Mrs. Delwin Butterfield, Twin Falls, hospitality and calendar chairman.

The annual meeting of the Good Shepherd Home directors will be March 13-15 in Terra Bella, Calif. The Idaho Auxiliary unit will meet March 26 at the home of Mrs. Butterfield with Mrs. Albert Brune as hostess.

The Idaho Auxiliary is a branch of the Good Shepherd Home Auxiliary, a non-profit organization affiliated with the Good Shepherd Lutheran Home of the West, a home for mentally handicapped children in Terra Bella.

The first unit of the Good Shepherd Home was completed in 1956, and in 1969 a 20-bed convalescent home in Apple Valley, Calif., was given to the home association. A third home in Cornelius, Ore., is now nearing completion.

The Good Shepherd Home Auxiliary includes members from 11 Western states, and the Idaho unit lists members from the entire state. A second group helping to "support" the association is the Parents Group.

Members of both organizations give material and financial aid to the home and help carry out a program designed to cultivate a missionary spirit and a definite commitment to active participation in attaining the projects proposed by the Good Shepherd Lutheran Home board of directors.

Mrs. Robert Adolf, Hagerman, serves as treasurer of the California auxiliary, and Mrs. Edwin Lierman, Filer, will serve on the nominating committee for the year.

The group can use gold and green stamps and books, General Mills coupons, discs and bands from MJB coffee and other coupons and stamps.

These may be sent to the members of the project committee, Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Jasper, Buhl, or Mrs. Irvin Biers, Twin Falls.

Jewish leaders worried over Key 73 influence

OF GOD AND MAN (Commentary)

By LOUIS CASSELL

United Press International

A year-long drive to win millions of new converts to Christianity is under way in America. Jews are apprehensive about it. They fear proselytizing of Jewish youth may be a major goal.

The nationwide campaign of Christian evangelism is known as Key 73. The 73 comes, of course, from the year-1973, while Key is taken from the name of a motel at Washington, D.C. where the campaign was planned.

It is an 'ecumenical' effort involving 150 Christian bodies. Although some Roman Catholic dioceses are participating, most of the 300,000 local churches taking part are affiliated with evangelical or fundamentalist branches of Protestantism.

Major Jewish organizations, already concerned about the number of Jewish young people who are joining the "Jesus movement," view Key 73 with undisguised anxiety.

Rabbi Marc Tanenbaum, director of inter-religious affairs of the American Jewish Committee, says Key 73 is a direct assault by Christians "on the honor, dignity and truth of Judaism."

Instead of trying to wean Jews away from their religion, Tanenbaum says, Christians would do better to aim their evangelistic efforts at "the domestic heathens who are baptized and Christian in name only."

"Surely it's logical to cultivate your own garden before undermining a garden cultivated by others," he says.

The Rev. Dr. Theodore A. Haedeke of St. Louis, executive director of Key 73, replied that the evangelistic effort will not be aimed at Jews any more than any other group. But neither will Jews be excluded, he added. Haedeke says he's sure that anyone should consider it an anti-Semitic act for Christians to attempt "in love" to tell Jews why they believe Jesus was the Messiah, whose coming was foretold in Hebrew prophecy.

Jews have been conditioned by history to view with alarm any concerted effort at conversion undertaken by Christians in a predominantly Christian country. They remember, only too well such episodes as the 15th Century Inquisition in which thousands of Sephardic Jews had to flee Spain to avoid forced conversion to the Catholic religion.

No Jewish leader seriously anticipates attempts at forced conversion in America, where the power of government is essential to an inquisition—is held "neutral" in matters of religion by strict language of the constitution.

Price asked on TF hall

TWIN FALLS — American Legion Post officers were asked Thursday to price the American Legion Hall for consideration by the South Central District Health Board.

Meeting with Frank Mogensen and Vern Hulbert, a committee of health board members and Dr. Wayne Carter, medical director for the district, suggested the legion set a price on the building and consider selling it outright to the health district for use as new health office and laboratory quarters.

They were also asked for a price based on allowing the legion to use portions of the building when they wish to hold meetings or special events, and other alternatives the legion might wish to propose.

Dr. Carter said this is one of the duties assigned to a three-man committee of County commissioners, including William L. Chimey, Twin Falls Commission chairman and chairman of the health board.

The committee met Monday night with the City Council and was granted a 90-day extension by the city for vacating present office space in the city hall.

Dr. Carter said this would be of little value as the department needs about a year to do any good toward providing a new building out of the 1974 budget.

The health district was asked a year ago to vacate present facilities by Jan. 1, 1974, giving the district two years to provide new facilities.

Counties in the district have been asked to budget $1 per capita from their revenue sharing funds toward construction of a health building.

Dr. Carter said he hopes if he can obtain assurance of these funds he will be able to get some matching Hill-Burton revenue for the project.

A building of 6,000 square feet of space is contemplated at a cost of about $150,000, Dr. Carter said.

Dr. Carter said seven of the eight counties in the district at one time indicated they would go along on such a plan.

Dr. Carter said building costs are increasing annually and if the district must wait until 1974 budget time for the revenue there will be no chance of getting matching money.

Completing a building and ready to move into it by April 1 of 1974.

Counties that have budgeted revenue sharing money this year will be able to simply not spend it or use it for other purposes if the building program is abandoned.

Dr. Carter said remodeling of the Legion Hall for a health center is still being considered as an alternative to a new building but he is hopeful the majority of the eight counties in the district will go ahead and allocate revenue sharing money so a permanent building can be constructed in 1973 for use by 1974.

Blaine program ahead of plan

By TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The Blaine County Schools Program and Facilities Study is progressing slightly ahead of schedule, according to study coordinator Walter Hoesel.

Under phase 1 of the study, assessment of community ambitions and expectations for the new school — Hoesel said work is continuing on a questionnaire interview process.

By the end of the week, about 80 per cent of the student body at the Wood River High School will have been interviewed.

Presently, faculty at the high school, Wood River Junior High School and the Carey school upper grade have filled out the questionnaire as well as about one-third of the parents at the high school.

The Northwestern University directed study toward a new high school began this fall after district trustees gave the go-ahead to the joint effort involving private, local and federal funds.

Originally planned as a three-year study, acting district Supt. Ray Jefferson said the board of trustees is studying the possibility of setting an earlier time schedule for both the study and the eventual completion date for the new school.

Jefferson said this reconsideration is being made because of rising construction costs and limited space at the Wood River High School.

Tonight, Hoesel said the study steering committee will formulate recommendations on special committees to be forwarded to the board of trustees and general study group for review.

With the first priority establishment of a committee to study projected population and growth areas, Hoesel said planned committees include architect selection, site selection, financial analysis, covering school operating and capital investment costs, and an instructional program.

Questions to be discussed by the steering committee will be organization of the committees, membership, responsibilities and target dates for assignment.

completion.

Hoesel said the next meeting of the general study group has been scheduled for Feb. 8. That group of about 50 persons consists of representatives from trustees, faculty, students, parents, business, local governmental groups and citizens at large, following general geographic lines within the district.

Hoesel said the thrust of the study is to "develop a process whereby everyone who has any concern with the district and the school can make their opinion known."

Persons with questions or comments may contact Hoesel's office at 788-2715.

Further phases of the study include an investigation of student needs, an implementation phase where new teaching methods gained from the study are tried out in existing facilities, and the final development of specifications for the school.

Charity options studied

RUPERT — Minidoka hospital board members took action Thursday on a federal law requiring charity allowances in the care of patients with poverty-level incomes.

The law applies only to those hospitals that have received federal aid under the Hill-Burton act, Minidoka Memorial Hospital got more than $100,000 under the program.

The charity options considered by Minidoka hospital officials included:

- Appropriating a sum equal to 10 per cent of the Hill-Burton benefits (approximately $40,000 or three per cent of the hospital's operating funds (about $27,000) for free care of poverty patients.
- Pledging to admit a reasonable number of low-income people into the hospital on a cost free or reduced rate basis.
- Claiming that free care is financially impossible and backing the claim up with open books that would be inspected by federal officials.
- Hospital administrator Ed Richardson said the last option would probably be allowed under only the most stringent conditions.
- The Minidoka board members chose the second option, adding that the policy has in fact been followed since the hospital opened.
- Board chairman Larry Duff said free care would probably be offered after "qualified" patients have been notified and have submitted a statement outlining their assets and income.

He said the only change from former policy would be the separating of charity and write-off cases.

Charity patients cannot be asked to pay their bills, while the write-offs can be requested but not forced to pay up.

The board members also made plans to lease or purchase portable X-ray machine. According to Richardson, there is "no choice" as to the replacement of the present machine due to its obsolescence and mechanical deficiencies.

The cost of a new machine was estimated at $14,000.

In other action, the hospital officials:

- Heard a report that a payment of approximately $5,600 is due as final payment of more than $25,000 to the Idaho Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services.
- The money represents a claimed overpayment to the hospital by the SRS in 1971 under Medicare provisions.
- Were told that Steven Dow, a New York native, will begin Monday as a permanent psychiatric social worker at the hospital.
- Set up a committee, comprised of board members William Strasser, Clark Cameron, and William Thomas, to study hospital employ salaries.
- Richardson recommended a cost-of-living increase for the workers to encourage the maintenance of quality personnel.
- Considered a tentative 1973 hospital budget of more than $800,000, including a projected 1 per cent boost in revenues.

Dr. Carter said the district health board will meet Wednesday in Jerome and the legion has been asked to present a report on whether or not they would sell the building and if so at what price so the matter can be considered in the Wednesday meeting.

Dr. Carter said this would be of little value as the department needs about a year to do any good toward providing a new building out of the 1974 budget.

Dedicated women

BOISE (UPI) — A member of the Joint Finance Appropriations committee Thursday asked the chairman of the Idaho Commission on Women's Rights if it has any programs studying the problems females are causing for men.

"Are you studying the problems women are causing for men — especially husbands?" Sen. Walter H. Yarbrough, R-Grand View, asked.

Chairman Marjorie Ruth Moon, state treasurer, did not answer.

Miss Moon appeared before the committee to explain the $6,000 commission budget for the coming 1973-74 fiscal year, which includes $1,200 for travel and $1,800 for current expenses.

"We are not a women's liberation group," Miss Moon said. "We are dedicated to women's problems."

Castleford aide resigns post

CASTLEFORD — Floyd Bowers, Castleford school superintendent the past 29 years, announced this week his retirement from education administration at the end of this school year.

Bowers, a member of the Buhl school staff for 13 years prior to becoming the Castleford Superintendent in the summer of 1944, plans to continue his residence in the Castleford area.

School district officials at Castleford have announced they are seeking applications, from qualified school administrators to fill the post and any communications should be directed to the chairman or clerk of the board at Castleford.

A graduate of Washington State at Pullman in 1911, Bowers was signed to be a teacher in the Buhl schools that year.

He was a football coach at Buhl for seven years before being named the principal, which position he held until going to Castleford as the superintendent.

Consideration asked on plan

BOISE (UPI) — A state official plans to ask the legislature to consider a proposal to have states keep 15 per cent of federal income taxes instead of sharing revenues.

Secretary of State Pete Conrara said Thursday the proposal was adopted by the Idaho Legislature as a memorial to Congress in 1950.

"It would put 15 per cent of revenue raised by federal income taxes into the general fund and that would be delivered to the state treasurer without going to Washington."

Forest areas under study

If all 235 areas proposed for study are included, it would double the present wilderness acreage in the country and reduce allowable cut timber production by 300 million board feet a year, Chief McGuire said this would be one of the prices paid for closing up the areas to preservation.

As part of the studies, Chief McGuire said, the US Geological Survey and Bureau of Mines will be looking into mineral resources in the study areas. Mining would be allowed in the proposed areas, he said.

In the White Cloud Mountains, a controversy of long standing involves the proposed development of open pit mining of molybdenum resources.

The White Cloud Mountains provide an important watershed for the main Salmon River and East Fork of the Salmon River. Wildlife habitat including bighorn sheep, mountain goat, elk, deer and other animals is also provided in the area.

About 9,470 sheep and 442 cattle graze in the area. Part of the White Cloud area is in the Challis Forest and nearly all of its lies within the National Recreation Area.

The Boulder area is an important recreation area including winter helicopter ski touring with summer activities including hiking or riding trails to high lakes. Big game also abounds in the Boulders and hunting is popular in the fall.

Grazing is provided for 9,000 sheep and 127 cattle with an estimated 200 million board feet of commercial timber in the area. Much of this area lies in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area. There has been some mining activity in past years.

The Pioneer Mountain area, located east of Ketchum, forms the headquarters of three major rivers, the Big Wood, Little Wood and Big Lost River. Some of the peaks extend to 12,000 feet.

Wildlife includes antelope, elk, black bear, rocky mountain goats and other big game. Some mining activities have been established and grazing provides for 24,000 sheep and 450 cattle with timber resources totaling 300 million board feet.

The Smokey Mountains, located west of Ketchum and north of Fairfield for the headwaters of the Salmon and Big Wood rivers and the South Fork of the Boise River. There are at least a dozen peaks in excess of 10,000 feet elevation. Recreation use is largely hunting, fishing, trail-eying and hiking.

There are about 11,000 sheep and 124 cattle grazing in the area and 280 million board feet of timber on about 30,000 acres.

The company's assets increased from $929,699.50 in 1971 to $1,055,033.14 in 1972, according to Leonard. He said the company is showing a favorable and steady growth and is constantly trying to improve and upgrade its service to subscribers.

The basic rates for service were lowered 50 cents per month last September, making them probably the lowest of any individual company in the area, Leonard said.

Plans for this year include burial of all major truck cables and making one or two party service available to all subscribers. Cost of this project is estimated at approximately $27,000 to $29,000.

During the re-organization meeting following the regular meeting, Cedarholm was re-elected president, Jones vice president and Leonard secretary treasurer.

Arnold Gier and Duane Ramseyer are hold-over directors. The staff of employees for the company will remain the same, Leonard said.

Filer re-elects two incumbents

FILER — Incumbents Ora Jones, Hollister and H. L. Cedarholm, Filer, were re-elected directors of the Filer Mutual Telephone Co. Thursday.

At the election, held during the annual company meeting in the telephone office, Jones received 238 votes and Cedarholm 141. A third contestant, Steve Kohntopp, garnered 97 votes.

Approximately 40 members attended the meeting and heard a financial report given by Mrs. Helen Cannon, certified public accountant, and the manager's report by C. M. Cunningham.

A question and answer period was conducted for the members to discuss company, business and future policies. The company shows a six per cent 112 person increase in subscribers according to Merl Leonard, secretary treasurer.

In 1971 subscribers were 1,751, and this increase in 1972 to 1,863. Of these subscribers, 1,532 are in the Filer area, 115 in Hollister, and 216 in Nevada, Leonard said.

Drop in egg prices slated in MV

By MIKE ROBERTSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Egg prices are due to drop in the Magic Valley in the next few weeks.

Vernon Cox, Moore Egg Farm, Hagerman, said egg prices have already dropped three cents this week after the drastic increase a few weeks ago.

He said prices will probably drop another six to 10 cents in the next few weeks.

Moore Egg Farm is a part of Olson Brothers Inc., the largest egg producing firm in the United States. They have producers throughout the country, he said.

Cox was quoting a drop in wholesale prices, but said the drop would also be reflected by a drop in retail prices.

The dramatic increase of almost double egg prices was induced by several bad situations compounding each other, Cox said. Basically it was the law of supply and demand causing the price to go up.

There was a low supply of eggs. The supply was low for several reasons, Cox said.

mainly, loss of egg producers through bankruptcy. He said there are a lot of empty chicken houses in large egg producing areas.

With a large number of producers, the supply of eggs was great, causing low prices, and losses to the supplier, thus bankruptcy.

Compounding the decrease in egg supply from loss of egg producers, was the Newcastle disease wiping out several million chickens in California.

The Newcastle disease is a virus that causes a high rate of mortality in chickens.

Cox said the price increase wasn't caused by this loss, but compounded by it. He said all chickens in the Olson Brothers operation are inoculated against the disease. They lost no chickens.

The sharp drop in temperatures this winter hurt also, Cox said.

The price of chicken feed also has a great bearing on the increase of egg prices, Cox said. All protein feeds such as soybean meal, has doubled.

"The cost of feed grains has gone up 30 per cent," he said.

The guidelines followed by egg producers for wholesale egg prices come from the US Department of Agriculture, Cox said, and are used nationally.

Most all of the eggs supplied to local retailers in the Magic Valley from Olson Brothers are locally produced. Cox said very few are shipped in to be sold through these outlets.

Albertson's, Buttray, Foods and Shelby's in Twin Falls all get their eggs from Olson.

These three retail outlets said they all expected their egg prices to go down as the wholesale prices drop.

Coroy Griss, Buttray's store manager in Twin Falls, said he hopes the prices go down soon. He said the retailer can actually make more money by selling eggs at a lower price, when the wholesale prices are low.

Jerry Swensen of Swensen's food stores in Twin Falls said his eggs are produced locally by a couple of individual suppliers.

Swensen said the cold spell did cause his suppliers to have fewer eggs but they did not have any chicken disease problems.

He said the prices at which he gets eggs are competitive to the larger companies, because prices generally are set nationally or locally.

Swensen said his egg prices have gone down some this week and probably will drop again in the next few weeks.

Other retailers agreed that the prices in the store will drop as the supply increases.

Simplot employees honored

BURLEY — Fifty employees and retirees of the R. Simplot Co. were honored for their long service to the firm in ceremonies here Wednesday night.

The company's founder and president, J. R. Simplot, a Burley native, took a personal role in presenting service awards to George Schrenk, a 20-year veteran with the Heyburn plant; Edna Morrell, Blackfoot; Jean Pons, from the Heyburn branch; and Art Schenk of the Burley processing unit, all 25-year employees, and E. H. Brucks, Aberdeen, who has worked 30 years for the firm.

Fifteen year awards were presented to Jay Glorfield, Willard Moore, Frances Staker, Ray Wilson and William Winter, all from the Burley plant, and Jim Gallegos, Isola Granbury Geneva Lobusch, William Miller, Ray Short, Darold Staker, Verlon Sutton and Glen Weeks from the Heyburn branch.

Honors were also accorded 18 workers who had reached the ten year mark and 14 retirees were recognized.

Simplot prefaced the awards with comments on the company's growth and potential and recollections of his youth in Cassia County.

"We're the General Motors of the potato industry," he said. "And we're proud of the people that have built the company."

He described the birth of the plant enterprise, including the discovery of phosphite near the Port Hall reservation that still supports a major portion of the firm's fertilizer division.

The work ethic and the untapped business potential of undeveloped countries were the objects of much of the executive's address.

"You can only take the happiness you've had in your job with you," Simplot said. "Go out and take a shot at the world. Be the best in your chosen field."

He cited Brazil as a country that has only scratched the surface as a world producer and consumer.

Jean Pons presented a plaque to Simplot naming him as an honorary member of the Declo Fire Department. The business chief contributed $700 to the fire fighters in 1967 for the purchase of a fire siren.

Funds for promotion approved

BOISE (UPI) — A $34,000 summer advertising budget for the promotion of the Gem state has been approved by the Advisory Council of the Department of Commerce and Development.

Council Chairman Alex Creek, Idaho Falls, said Thursday the budget presented by the Belcher-Wehrn Advertising Agency of Boise was okayed along with summer advertising proposals for seven magazines and eight newspapers in major population centers of the nation.

In other business J. Joyd Howe, Executive Director of the Department of Commerce and Development reported to the council that 3,000 Boy Scouts are expected to attend the Boy Scout Jamboree at Farragut State Park this summer, in addition to 25,000 other visitors.

He said $2.6 million in revenue to the state is anticipated.

Separate tax returns advantageous in 8 community property states

(Note: This is a special for use in only the eight community property states.)

By RAY DE CRANE
In 12 states it is almost universally true that married couples should file joint federal income tax returns. For them, that is the most economical way to file.

In the eight Community Property states — Arizona, California, Idaho, Louisiana, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas and Washington — there could be a distinct advantage in filing separate returns.

This is particularly true in states which have their own state income tax and where it is required that taxpayers file the state returns in the same fashion as they file their federal returns.

Since state income taxes generally have a graduated rate, it is cheaper to file two returns at a lower rate than a joint return at a high rate. (Even in many non-Community Property states, many married taxpayers are now filing separate federal returns and paying a higher tax than they would on a joint return in order to make this up and more on the savings in filing separate state tax returns.)

In your state and in the other seven Community Property states a husband and wife may each report one-half of their total community income on their separate returns. Income earned by the spouses through their efforts or investments after marriage are generally considered to be community income. Similarly, income derived from property acquired after marriage is community income. But property acquired by either before marriage remains separate property, not subject to community property treatment.

Community income is treated as if 50 per cent of it had been earned by each of the marriage partners. Deductions paid for from community income may be treated on a 50-50 basis by each person on separate returns.

Savings could occur where medical expenses are a factor where the full dividend exclusion could be claimed on separate returns, even though one of the spouses earned 50 per cent by each spouse, each may meet the prior earned income test and file a separate Retirement Income Credit schedule. In this way they could gain a possible 50 per cent higher Retirement Income Credit.

One-half of the husband's withholding tax credit may be applied against the wife's income tax in a Community Property state. There is no such apportionment of the withholding tax in the other 42 states.

One major change in the tax law that greatly liberalizes deduction opportunities creates a word of caution. The child and dependent care deduction for this year can be as great as $400 a month. But it can only be claimed on the joint return of a married couple.

Since community income is

had no independent dividend income and in the claiming of the retirement income credit.

Cooperation promised

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While the Watergate trial is bogged down in controversy over admissibility of certain testimony, Senate Democrats have been promised administration cooperation in their own inquiry.

Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst told a group of reporters Thursday that the planned hearings headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., were "a good thing." He said investigators would be given access to all FBI information on the case.

The trial in U.S. District Court of two remaining defendants out of seven originally indicted in the June 17 break-in and bugging of Democratic national headquarters became stalled while a federal appeals court considered objections to use of certain wiretap testimony. A lawyer for five persons whose conversations were monitored and transcribed while taps were on some telephones at Democratic headquarters asked that certain private matters — which they felt were not relevant to the trial — be stricken as evidence.

Boise State surprises Bengals in last minute

BOISE (UPI) — A 20-foot jump shot by Boise State senior Steve Clifford with 37 seconds remaining in the ball game spelled the difference as the Broncos upset Idaho State University 64-63 Thursday night.

Clifford, who made his presence known in the second half, put in six of seven attempts from the field late in the game to help spark the Bronco win. Boise State is now 1-2 in the Big Sky conference and 6-8 on the season while the Bengals are 2-1 and 10-3 respectively.

The Broncos win made new Head Coach "Bus" Connor's debut a happy one, particularly since he is a graduate of ISU. Boise State held a slim 32-31 halftime lead, but the Bengals jumped off to as much as a nine-point lead in the second half with 12:39 left in the game. BSC tied it up at 68-all on driving lay-in by senior Greg Bunn with 4:50 remaining. A hook shot by Bengal Ev Popma put ISU back into the lead 60-58 but — Bronco — forward — Booker Brown hit a 21-0 foot jumper to tie it again with just 4:25 remaining.

After a steal, Bronco Bob McCollum drove for two to give his team the lead and then ISU's

New snow reported

TWIN FALLS — All areas report new snow for the weekend with conditions at most resorts made to order.

Snow short areas to the north have received additional snow this week to bring their slopes to peak shape.

Sun Valley reported 33 inches total depth at the top of Baldy Mountain Thursday morning with five inches of new snow and the snow continuing heavy.

There were 31 inches at the roundhouse and 24 inches on the valley floor. Temperatures ranged from a high of 24 Wednesday to 34 Thursday with a minimum of 12.

Roads in the area are good with some snow fall.

Soldier Mountain reports a total of 18 inches of new snow during the week to bring depths to 50 inches at the top of ski runs and a packed base of 30 inches.

Roads there are plowed and in good condition and skiing is listed as excellent.

Major Mountain reports five inches of new snow on a hard packed base for excellent skiing. Total depths continue in the 40 to 50 inch bracket with snow settled a week ago by warm temperatures. New snow is dry powder.

The area is open Friday, Saturday and Sunday with bus service on Saturday and Sunday mornings. Snow tires or chains are required on the canyon road.

Pomerelle reports a foot of new snow in the past week with total depths now at 24 inches at the bottom and 60 inches at the top of ski slopes. Rope tows are running and the resort plans to have the chair lift in operation Saturday and Sunday.

The road is good but snow tires or chains are advised.

No report was available from Rotarun although the Bailey area has also received new snow during the week.

Snowmobiling conditions were also unavailable this week.

Sox sign Cepeda to pinch hit

BOSTON (UPI) — Orlando Cepeda, an old Ted Williams fan who "always wanted to play in Boston," was signed by the Red Sox Thursday to fill the designated hitter role the club had opposed.

Cepeda, 35, told a news conference his left knee was "in good shape" after a cartilage operation: "I feel like I want to play every day," he said. "I'll be trying to get into shape so I can play every day."

Cepeda joined the exclusive 2,000 hit club in 1970. Three years earlier he had hit .325 for the St. Louis Cardinals and drove in 111 runs to become the first unanimous choice as most valuable player in the history of the National League.

Cepeda broke into major league baseball in 1958 with the San Francisco Giants. He was a unanimous choice as rookie of the year after slugging 25 home runs and compiling a .312 batting average.

In his National League career he topped the 300 mark nine times, drove in more than 100 runs on five occasions and hit 30 or more home runs five times.

Cepeda remained with the Giants until 1966 when he was traded to the Cincinnati Reds.

Sadecki. He went to the Atlanta Braves in 1969 for Joe Torre and moved to the American League last summer when he was claimed on waivers by the Oakland Athletics.

Frazier finishes pre-fight drills, Foreman still working

KINGSTON, Jamaica (UPI) — The contrast between Joe Frazier, the champion, and George Foreman, the challenger, is beautiful. Just beautiful.

Frazier, his chin buried in his broad chest, never cracked a smile, just went about his business Thursday, working just 20 minutes for his little fight at the National Stadium Monday night.

No sparring for Frazier, just shadow boxing, some bag work and calisthenics. Frazier, who hasn't been very impressive in his last two defenses against Terry Daniels and Ron Standt, has worked extremely hard for his fight against the undefeated Foreman. He's already worked 143 rounds and he seems satisfied that that's enough.

"That's it," said Frazier, after he completed his day's work. "I'm finished with boxing. I feel like I'm in top shape. I'm ready."

Foreman has been saying he's ready for days. In fact, George's manager, Dick Sadler, says all this training business is a lot of nonsense. "I was prepared before we came," said Sadler. "All my work was done at home."

Idaho slates money talks

MOSCOW (UPI) — The University of Idaho administration has announced that the university's faculty will receive detailed information concerning the cost of the university's intercollegiate athletic program prior to a general faculty meeting scheduled next week.

About 90 faculty and staff members protested during the Christmas holidays that the university had not given them adequate information concerning athletic finances. Some of the members claimed the athletic spending was increasing while their salaries were not.

Rich Glover given Lombardi trophy

HOUSTON (UPI) — Rich Glover, the Nebraska middle guard with the sleepy eyes and wide-awake reflexes, was awarded the Vince Lombardi Trophy Thursday night as the outstanding lineman in college football in 1972.

Glover, a 6-2, 234-pound, two-time all-America, won over three other finalists: Texas tackle Jerry Sisnor, Oklahoma center Tom Brahaney and Alabama guard John Hannah. The award was presented to Glover at a $100-a-plate dinner, featuring an address by California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Glover, who led Nebraska to national championships during his sophomore and junior years and to a romp over Notre Dame in this year's Orange Bowl, said he considered the award the highlight of his college career. Glover previously won the Outland Trophy as the nation's top interior lineman, but he said the Lombardi Trophy has more prestige.

Glover said the best game he ever played was against Oklahoma in 1971 when the Cornhuskers clinched their second consecutive national championship. Glover said he intended to play middle linebacker in the pros and expected to become an all-pro during his second season.

Walt Patulski of Notre Dame won the award last year and Jim Stillyngon of Ohio State won in 1971, the first year of the award.

Utes rally past Utah State 76-74

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utes guard Eddie Trail scored the final three points of the game to give the Utes a 76-74 win over independent Utah State Thursday night.

Trail, directing the offense, had 19 points in the game, and freshman center Mike Sojournier topped the Utah defense with 22 rebounds and added 16 points.

The Utes were aided when Utah State forward Bob Lauriski fouled out. The 6-7 Lauriski left the game with 24 points and 2:24 remaining.

N. Arizona drops Weber

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI) — Northern Arizona University took the lead for good midway through the first half and held on Thursday night for a 69-63 victory over Weber State College.

"Nervous? No I'm not nervous," said Foreman Wednesday. "But if I'm supposed to get nervous, I guess I will."

Foreman became a prophet on Thursday.

"I want it to hurry up. I'm gonna make a lot of money. I'm gonna knock Joe Frazier out, or beat him. I want to get it on."

So, both men want to get it on. But it seems that George Foreman wants to get the whole thing over with. Maybe it's not just coincidence that Foreman mentioned the money first and then the knockout of Frazier as the two things he'd like to have right now.

He knows he's going to get that $375,000 guarantee.

The score was tied five times in the first 10 minutes and the Wildcats took the lead twice in the next two minutes before it's not just coincidence that Northern Arizona went ahead to 4-9. Weber State fell to 2-1 in conference play and 4-5 on the season.

Gerald Jeffery tied the score at 14-14 for NAU and 40 seconds later, Charles Flemmons put the Lumberjacks ahead for good, 16-14, on a 20-foot jumper.

Most valuable

BOSTON (UPI) — Bobby Orr of the Bruins, winner of the Hart Memorial Trophy as the National Hockey League's most valuable player during the 1971-72 season, is the first player to win the award three years in a row. Orr also won the Norris Memorial Trophy as the league's best defenseman for the fifth straight year.

Boston's Orr, who led the Bruins to national championships during his sophomore and junior years and to a romp over Notre Dame in this year's Orange Bowl, said he considered the award the highlight of his college career. Glover previously won the Outland Trophy as the nation's top interior lineman, but he said the Lombardi Trophy has more prestige.

The trophy is a 45-pound block of granite mounted on a silver pedestal. The trophy symbolizes Lombard's early fame as a member of the Fordham line which was called the "seven blocks of granite."

Frank Leahy, Lombard's line coach at Fordham and former head coach at Notre Dame, was chairman of the 66-member selection committee of coaches, sportswriters and sportscasters who picked Glover.

"It's a great award," Glover said. "It's the only really top honor given to linemen. I really wanted to win it."

Brahaney, who faced Glover three times, said he was the best defensive player he ever met.

"He's the best defensive player in the country," Brahaney said. "We had to double-team him 90 per cent of the time."

Glover said the best game he ever played was against Oklahoma in 1971 when the Cornhuskers clinched their second consecutive national championship. Glover said he intended to play middle linebacker in the pros and expected to become an all-pro during his second season.

Walt Patulski of Notre Dame won the award last year and Jim Stillyngon of Ohio State won in 1971, the first year of the award.

Montgomery nabs tourney lead at five-under-par

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Jack Montgomery grabbed the first day lead in the $150,000 Dean Martin-Tucson Open golf tournament Thursday with a sizzling five-under-par 67. The 31-year-old Texas pro needed only 29 putts after bagging four birdies and an eagle for a one-stroke lead over the 143-man field in the race for the $30,000 first prize.

Alone in second was Millur Barber, the defending champ, who shot a four-under-par 68. In with 69 were Tommy Mehlman, Bob Murphy, Frank Beard, Los Angeles Open champ Rod Forest, George Nixon and Forest Fezler.

Brock inks rich pact with Cards

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Lou Brock has signed his 1973 contract for an estimated $120,000, the St. Louis Cardinals announced Thursday night. Brock, a fixture in left field, is one of three Cardinals who will be making more than $100,000 this coming season. Bob Gibson has signed for $160,000, and Joe Torre is in the second year of a two-year contract calling for $150,000 this season.

The Cardinals also announced the signings of pitcher Rick Wise, catcher Tim Lincecum, pitcher Al Santorini and infielder Bob Fenwick.

Brock hit .311, seventh-best average in the National League, last season and recorded his 2,000th hit Sept. 30.

He led the National League in stolen bases for the sixth time in the last seven seasons with 63 and matched Ty Cobb's record of eight seasons with 50 or more steals. Brock's 565 stolen bases in his career are more than any other active player.

Wise, obtained before last season in the trade that sent Steve Carlton to Philadelphia, had a 16-16 record and 3.11 earned-run average.

NFL Cards tap college coach

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Don Coryell, head football coach at San Diego State University for 12 years after having replaced George Allen at Whittier College earlier in his career, was named head coach of the St. Louis football Cardinals Thursday.

Coryell had a 10-1 record at San Diego State last season and posted a 104-19-2 record over the 12 years. Coryell succeeds Bob Holloway, fired Dec. 18, the day after the Cardinals ended their second straight 4-9-1 season. Holloway had one year remaining on a three-year contract.

Buffalo wins after buzzer

ATLANTA (UPI) — Hutch Komives was fouled rebounding at the final buzzer and calmly sank two free throws after the game was over to give Buffalo a 127-125 victory over the Atlanta Hawks Thursday night. A pair of free throws by George Trapp with 22 seconds left had given Atlanta a tie and Buffalo played for the last shot, which Randy Smith missed. Komives was fouled going after the rebound.

Squires drop Denver 116-110

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Julius Erving's 36 points led the Virginia Squires to a 116-110 victory over the Denver Rockets in an American Basketball League game Thursday night. Although Virginia led by 10 points several times the Rockets kept the game tight, closing to within two points early in the fourth quarter after briefly leading during the third. But Bernie Williams' hot outside shooting, including a three-point basket, with five minutes left, kept Virginia on top.

clubs in the closet for three weeks," he said. "I'm driving the ball better now than I have in some time." Montgomery echoed the other pros in criticizing the Tucson National course's greens. "The greens are so hard," he said, "that the ball just pops on them."

Recent cold weather has made the huge greens, which

Otto enjoys 12th all-star visit

DALLAS (UPI) — Jim Otto is always easy to spot on the football field.

First of all he is the guy who stands over the football just before everything dissolves into chaos and for another thing he is the only player going who has two big "zeros" on his jersey.

And, although the Oakland center will be just one of 80 all-stars on the field Sunday in the NFL Pro Bowl Game, Otto will have a special distinction.

This will be the 12th all-star game in which he has played, and none of the other 79 players who will be in action Sunday have been in that many. The closest to Otto's record is Merlin Olsen, the Los Angeles Rams defensive tackle, who will be playing in his tenth all-star contest.

"Being in so many does leave you with a feeling of sameness," said Otto, "but it sure isn't getting old. I sincerely enjoy it and still feel it is a great honor."

Otto went to the Oakland Raiders in the first year of the American Football League

Vandals face WSU and Oregon State

MOSCOW — Washington State and Oregon State, two northern division Pac-8 schools, will furnish the opposition for the Idaho Vandals in a big weekend of basketball slated for Memorial Gymnasium.

The Cougars of Washington State will provide the action on Friday, and the very strong Oregon State Beavers will back them up with a Saturday showing.

The Vandals, down in the mouth after losing two road games over the past weekend to Seattle Pacific and Puget Sound, hope to get untracked and back to the form which saw them defeat the Cougars 68-53 in their first meeting in December at Pullman.

Since that time, the Vandals took an extended holiday break and returned to action on Jan. 5, and have scored two wins and three losses.

The Cougars, showing rapid improvement, won two games in the Far West Classic at Portland during the vacation period. This return match will be one of the best for Memorial Gymnasium in some time.

The Vandals have had their shooting problems lately and in their last game hit only 24 percent of their field goals and were held to a total of only 36 points. Coach Wayne Anderson said he was looking for a lot of improvement in this department and added he was not at all happy with the performance of his team in the past weekend series.

"Our offense is based on getting the good shots and, of course, hitting a good percentage of these shots. This has not been accomplished and it has hurt our performance. We have been rebounding well, staying even with our opponents, and I feel that we have been getting the good shots. We must improve and when we do show that improvement, we are going to win some games," Anderson said.

The Vandals have dropped from a 41 per cent shooting team to 38 per cent in the past three games, but their opponents have also dropped from 42 per cent to a 40 per cent mark. The opponents have been getting many more trips to the charity line and are hitting 66 per cent of their free-throws while the Vandals converted only 63 per cent.

"With two strong teams like Washington State and Oregon State hitting us back to back, we must show a lot of improvement and if we can work out some of our shooting problems by Friday night, I feel we will give the fans a good show in these two games," Anderson said.

Pre-journey favorite Leo Trevino shot a two-under-par 70. The two-time winner of the tournament said he was satisfied with his game after a poor start this year.

"It's the first time I've broken par this year," he said. Trevino, who won more than $200,000 last year, failed to make the cut at Los Angeles two weeks ago and did not play at Phoenix last week. Sitting with Trevino at 70 were George Archer, Leonard Thompson, Dick Lotz, Kermit Zarley, Phoenix Open champ Bruce Crampton and Dave Hill.

The temperature for the first day of play ranged in the mid-60s under clear skies. But the weatherman said rains could be expected for Friday's play on the par, 36-36-72, 7,300 yard course.

Due to darkness one threesome—Ed Sacad, Jim Marshall and Ron Reif—was unable to finish play on the 18th hole and will resume there Friday when the field will be cut to the low 70 and ties.

WILLIE HUMES, one of the nation's leading scorers as an Idaho State player, will lead a strong AAU team against College of Southern Idaho in a benefit game at 8 p.m. Monday in the Golden Eagle gymnasium.

CSI faces tough AAU team Monday

College of Southern Idaho, facing a pair of games at North Idaho JC this weekend, will play Taco Bandido, an AAU team from Pocatello, in a benefit exhibition at 8 p.m. Monday in the Golden Eagle gymnasium. The Eagles, now ranked fifth in the nation, split with the Pocatello team last year. Proceeds of the game will go to the Shrine charities.

Pocatello boasts several ex-star off-Big Sky teams of recent years. The most impressive is Willie Humes, 6-2 guard and brother of erstwhile CSI star Howard Humes, who was second in the nation in scoring his senior year at Idaho State.

With Humes will be DeWitt Walton, 6-9 Idaho State alum; Tony Ioane, 6-3 ISU alum, who was an all-conference pick as a sophomore; Gus Chapman, 6-8, who started three years with Weber State and toured with the Olympic team in 1972; Eddie Tillman, 6-4, who now is coaching in Utah but played three years at Weber; Rick Nielsen, 6-2, a Minico grad who played three years of basketball at Weber and then finished up his eligibility in football well enough to be drafted by Washington Redskins; John Fronz, 6-8, who starred at center for two years for University of Oregon; Jim Blaisdell, 6-0, CSI track coach, and Darrin Larsen, 9-0, Weber State player and coach of the team.

"This is probably an imposing group as we'll meet this year," says Coach Jerry Hale. "They have much better size than we do. But the thing that makes you leery of them is their depth. Generally you can plan on outlasting an AAU team simply because they don't get in the practice time or get into good physical condition. With that many on the bench who are good players, they can keep fresh people in the game most of the time."

The game is co-sponsored by the Twin Falls Rotary and Knights of Columbus with the Shrine cripple children's hospital in Salt Lake City taking the proceeds. Both teams are donating their time and expenses.

There is a tremendous potential benefit for wildlife in the Set-Aside Program funded by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service if it were set up with the proper conservation practices and for a longer period of years than presently conducted in Idaho.

These "set-aside" acres involve land on which the farmer is being paid not to produce wheat or feed grains. At present they are retired for only one year and can have practices from summer fallowed ground, grazed pasture, or some type of plantings on them.

There were 599,939 acres of this land in Idaho during 1972 and every county in the state participated in the program. If this large acreage contained the proper cover to prevent soil erosion and the plant species needed by wildlife, it could increase our wildlife populations significantly in Idaho. This is about evenly divided between dryland and irrigated farms.

There is a move afoot to change the direction of this program at a National level and the following is a direct quote from the Wildlife-Met-Institute concerning the needed adjustments: "Recommendations have been made to develop the wildlife potential of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Set-Aside Program according to the Wildlife Management Institute. Maynard M. Nelson of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and Dr. Keith W. Harmon of the WMI recommended relatively small program changes that would greatly enhance wildlife and other public benefits.

In a paper presented to the International Association of Game, Fish and Conservation Commissioners, Nelson and Harmon stated that cropland diversion programs have wildlife potential that is "vast almost beyond comprehension." But, the failure of USDA to require protective cover crops on diverted acres in the Set-Aside Program is a basic roadblock.

Under this program, USDA pays landowners not to produce surplus crops. There is no regulation, however, requiring cover crops to be planted on the retired land. The lack of cover crops is caused also by short term contracts required by USDA. If a farmer doesn't know whether he will be paid for not growing crops on the land next year, he is reluctant to spend the money necessary to establish good ground cover. He may have to plow it under the next spring.

The result of inadequate regulations and short term contracts is millions of acres laying fallow during the summer months without adequate plant cover. Soil erodes and wildlife succumbs to the lack of food and cover.

Gun safety course Monday in Jerome

BOISE — The Idaho Fish and Game Department and National Rifle Association are cooperating in a training course for gun safety instructors.

Dave Gaskill, Manager of the Training Dept. of the NRA in Washington, D.C., will be in the Magic Valley on January 22nd to teach the course at the Jerome Armory from 7:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m.

Those persons interested in attending and becoming a certified gun safety instructor are asked to be at the Armory by 6:30 p.m. so the session can begin promptly. This workshop is one of six being held in Idaho for gun safety instructors.

The Idaho Fish and Game Department personnel will continue their regular gun safety training in the schools as in past years but hope to utilize NRA gun safety instructors to furnish additional training for those students wishing to become certified as safe hunters.

Duck season ends

BOISE — Saturday is the last day of duck hunting in the entire state of Idaho.

The last areas open are the Columbia Basin mallard counties in the Panhandle and southwest and southeastern parts of state.

Duck hunting has remained fair to good on open water areas and field feeding spots, even though there was some movement of ducks during the severe cold weather of December and January.

The Saturday closure which is contrary to the usual Sunday closing for hunting and fishing seasons in Idaho is due to the "brackets" established by the federal agency that administers waterfowl programs.

January 20 was the last date allowed for duck hunting this year.

Count made

IDAHO WATERFOWL CONCENTRATION areas were counted last week during the annual midwinter waterfowl inventory, a cooperative effort by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Idaho Fish and Game Department. Ducks and geese are settling back on concentration areas following the record cold snap in December and the waterfowl inventory is expected to show an average number of birds. Photo of Lake Lowell in southwestern Idaho was taken earlier this fall.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JANUARY 20, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES A day to pick up ideas and ideals you had in the past but may have temporarily neglected to put in motion because of other pressures. Be sure you let influential persons not usually available during the busy week know about them, however, and get their backing. Also line for pleasure, romance, new activities.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you study that new project wisely, you may find that this is a good day to put it in operation to your benefit. Join with mate later for a good time. Show generosity.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Fine day for making your dwelling more delightful and charming, so get busy at that early. Consult with family first to win their enthusiasm. Back their ideas, and have true harmony.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get busy running errands, shopping, getting in touch with friends and relatives and make this a happy and most active day, p.m. Handle transportation matters well, also. Try not to get to bed too late tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make those improvements to any property you may have that will add to its value, comfort, beauty. Get a better budget set up, also. Evening excellent for the social side of life.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Fine day for taking the health treatments you need as well as for visiting your barber or beauty shop. Then go to the excellent social affairs that will be most enjoyable. Plan to meet that important personality.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Sit down in the privacy of your study and figure out how to improve your life in some way so you have more success and happiness in the future. Evening is fine for quiet romance. Show you are a serious person.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You like to entertain people and this is just the right day for that; you get splendid results from the business standpoint. State your aims to others. You get excellent and fast response.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Stop procrastinating about doing that civic work and get good results just at this time. Take care of that credit affair efficiently and feel better. Get rid of that habit of spending too much money on the wrong people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Good day for research work at the library, taking a short trip for a good purpose, shopping, etc. Get the facts you need. Being more open-minded is best now if you want to make headway.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get debtors and creditors satisfied and come to better understanding with associates in a.m. Then off to the fun places with mate, have more rapport. You have been rather thoughtless of mate lately.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Listen carefully to what associate has to suggest so you reach a far better understanding for the days ahead. You can win over that opponent by complimenting him or her. Avoid the use of temper. Reason is the keynote.

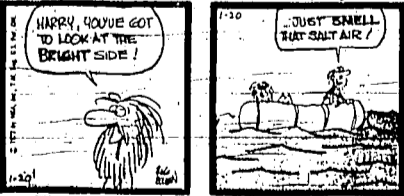

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan how to get your routine career work done better and faster and use more imagination for best results. Get in touch with a co-worker and show you are more willing to cooperate in the future. Out to the social in p.m.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one of those delightful young people who has a very high regard for self and if you encourage your child to bring out the best in him or her there can certainly be a fine personage emerging in this most fascinating chart. Give as good an education as you can afford and slant it toward the cultural, the scientific, the legal, but be sure to give fine religious training early in life during the formative period, when the soul is most receptive.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

What's What

Pollsters talked to a batch of divorced women? Two out of 10 said they had planned all their children. Five out of 10 said they'd planned none of their youngsters. Almost but not quite three out of 10 said they had conceived their first baby before the wedding.

ODDS YOUR FEET, if any, bite exactly the same imprint as any body else's foot--that's only one in a million. AGE 4 and age 10, that's when youngsters tend to be most susceptible to nightmares, according to the sleep researchers. JUST ABOUT one out of every 10 Americans never but never catches cold, the fortunate soul.

JUST INVESTED a pedestrian horn and would like to know what you think of the notion. About the size of a flashlight. Works something like an Aerosol can. Say you're romping across an intersection when some rate driver leans on his horn. You rip out this device, push the button, and it honks back, even louder. Go on, laugh. They laughed at the hula hoop, too.

QUICK QUIRIES

- Q. "How many movies has Henry Fonda made?"
A. Figure about 70.
- Q. "EVER ANY" traffic jams in Russia?"
A. Not yet.
- Q. "AS TO HEIGHT," where does Niagara Falls rank among the world's waterfalls?"
A. It's No. 68.
- Q. "WHAT'S a bandneck?"
A. A marsupial. Looks like a rabbit.
- Q. "HOW OLD was Paul Revere when he made that ride?"
A. Just 40.
- Q. "CAN a cat catch cold?"
A. Certainly can. Vets call it pneumonitis. Not thought dangerous. Not is it transmittable to people.

FACIAL CHARACTERISTICS

Those various claims that your facial characteristics show something about your personality don't usually hold up. I mean, men with jutting chins are not necessarily stubborn, and women with close-set eyes are not necessarily timid. But it has been noted by researchers that girls with mouths slightly larger than average do indeed tend to be good natured, affectionate, sympathetic and sincere. Why? It's a mystery. The contention is that such girls also generally require exceedingly strong masculine partners.

All-star cast

Premiere showing at SV Sunday to aid students

SUN VALLEY — Sun Valley will be the scene of an unusual world movie premiere Sunday. Filmed on location at Bonanza, Idaho, and Louie's Restaurant in Ketchum, "Bonanza Bank Bust" is the creation of Ted Cutler and Kevin Swigert, two Wood River High School students.

Proceeds from the showing will benefit the Wood River Scholarship Fund and annual Citizenship Awards.

The premiere has been scheduled for 8 p.m. Sunday in the Linnelicht Room of the Sun Valley Inn and will be preceded by an invitational no-host cocktail hour.

The 14-minute, 16 mm. film centers around "the robber brothers" Cutler and Swigert and their attempt to establish themselves as legends in the Old West.

The all-star cast drawn from the Wood River student body includes Nina Heuston as the heroine, Tony Jefferson as the sheriff, Scott Sproule as the banker and the saloon keeper, and Kim Laragan as the saloon girl and the lady at the bank.

7 persons methodically slain in Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seven persons, including five children, were methodically slain Thursday at an expensive Washington home purchased by basketball superstar Kareem Abdul-Jabbar as a spiritual center for his Muslim sect.

Three children were found drowned in an upstairs bathtub. Two other children and two adults were shot to death in an apparent execution-style slaying. In addition, police said two women in their 20s were wounded. Bibi Khaalis was listed in critical condition at Freedmen's Hospital while Aline Khaalis was in satisfactory condition. Both had been shot several times, police said.

At least four men seen fleeing from the home were being sought. Both the victims and the suspects were black. Police and neighbors said the killings, apparently committed in execution style since no signs of struggle were reported to have been found, occurred sometime prior to 4:30 p.m. EST when one of the home's occupants returned from a shopping trip and heard a commotion inside.

Leary returns to jail again

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Timothy Leary, the LSD messiah who escaped from prison and was hunted in Europe and Asia for 20 months, returned Thursday smiling and laughing to a California jail cell.

He faces his old prison term and a host of new drug charges. About 30 of Leary's followers were scattered in the crowd that gathered to watch him arrested on his return Thursday from Kabul, Afghanistan.

Leary was accompanied from Afghanistan by the U.S. narcotics agent who sighted him there, and by a pretty blonde, apparently in her mid 20s, who identified herself only as Joanna Harcourt-Smith of London.

Burley rider wins

BENVER (UPI) — Bill Peterson, Burley, won the bull riding event Wednesday in the National Stock Show rodeo.

Peterson scored 66 points, edging Buddy Mays, San Saba, Tex., by one point for first place in the event.

What's your name? Leary replied. Turn around. You know the procedure, replied the agent, and handcuffed the 51-year-old former Harvard faculty member.

Sorority project will aid shut-ins

TWIN FALLS — Sigma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Wednesday at the home of Kay Denton.

Evelyn Arnhart gave the cultural "Eden was a Garden." One of the projects for the shut-ins at a local rest home. The charity project will be a donation to Merle Stubbard at the Easter Seal Clinic.

Judy Brooks will be honored as queen of Sigma Chapter at the Feb. 17 Valentine dance. Refreshments were served by Marlene Nelson and Kay Denton.

Nicaraguan quake toll listed

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — A total of 4,000 to 6,000 persons died and property damage was $845 million in the Dec. 23 earthquake that destroyed most of the Nicaraguan capital, the Central American Institute of Administration said Thursday.

The institute, in a preliminary report on the quake's effects, also said more than 20,000 persons were injured and 250,000 left homeless. The exact death toll possibly will never be known because many victims were buried under tons of rubble, and their bodies may never be found.

Simultaneous with the release of the institute's report, the Nicaraguan Red Cross issued an appeal for more tents to house thousands of earthquake refugees still without shelter.

Jorge Cardenas, president of the Nicaraguan Red Cross, said more than 5,000 tent dwellings have been set up but more still are needed for the refugees who are scattered along roads leading out of Managua.

Gen. Anastasio Somoza, chief of the National Guard, recently said food and medical needs have been met since the quake but housing was still needed.

The official estimate of casualties and damage was prepared by the research institute, which is located outside the city.

In addition to the casualties and damage estimate, the institute said the earthquake affected an area of 10 square miles.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — A total of 4,000 to 6,000 persons died and property damage was $845 million in the Dec. 23 earthquake that destroyed most of the Nicaraguan capital, the Central American Institute of Administration said Thursday.

The institute, in a preliminary report on the quake's effects, also said more than 20,000 persons were injured and 250,000 left homeless. The exact death toll possibly will never be known because many victims were buried under tons of rubble, and their bodies may never be found.

Simultaneous with the release of the institute's report, the Nicaraguan Red Cross issued an appeal for more tents to house thousands of earthquake refugees still without shelter.

Jorge Cardenas, president of the Nicaraguan Red Cross, said more than 5,000 tent dwellings have been set up but more still are needed for the refugees who are scattered along roads leading out of Managua.

Gen. Anastasio Somoza, chief of the National Guard, recently said food and medical needs have been met since the quake but housing was still needed.

The official estimate of casualties and damage was prepared by the research institute, which is located outside the city.

In addition to the casualties and damage estimate, the institute said the earthquake affected an area of 10 square miles.

Exchange Clubs to set crime campaign

TWIN FALLS — Exchange Clubs around the country will launch a crime prevention campaign beginning Feb. 11, to call attention to the high cost of crime.

During the campaign, the 26th annual Exchange Clubs will be attempting to alert fellow citizens to steps they can take to prevent or discourage robberies and burglaries.

Bill Miller, president of the Twin Falls Exchange Club, said crime costs Americans about $4 billion a year and if the Exchange Clubs can reduce this even a small amount there will be more money for more beneficial purposes.

In recent years, Miller said, crime has actually shown a decrease in cities of 100,000 population or more. He said Exchange Club members hope their efforts have helped in some way.
