Clouds of steam billow over the island of Vestmannaeyjar, Iceland, following the eruption of the Helgafell volcano. New streams of glowing lava rolled into the harbor Thursday raising the water temperature to 111 degrees Fahrenheit.

New lava menaces

VESTMANNAEYJAR, Iceland (UPI) — The ground burst open in several new places around the erupting Helgafell volcano Friday, spewing out new flows of lava. Officials said even bombing the fiery crater from the air may not be able to save the deserted town.

Rescue officials said the situation has taken a turn for the worse and new eruptions were expected at any time and could strike anywhere, even inside the town—once the prosperous fishing capital of Iceland.

The Icelandic government ordered everyone not directly connected with the rescue work to get off Heimsey Island, near the Iceland coast.

The few remaining islanders were told by radio to stay indoors because of poisonous sulphur gas fumes which give a suffocating feeling and cause coughing. Police, firemen and civil defense workers were issued gas masks.

The government, meeting in almost continuous emergency sessions since the volcano erupted Tuesday, warned turned down requests from the 5,500 evacuated islanders to be allowed to go back and save their personal belongings.

Bulldozers went to work in the threatened eastern part of the town, building walls from hardened lava to try to stem the glowing flow from more than 15 craters spurting fire, gas and ashes.

Ashes and lava lay knee-deep in the streets of Vestmannaeyjar and rescue workers could use only jeeps for transportation.

Outwardly the ghost town remained intact except for a dozen wooden houses gutted by fire. Most of the houses are concrete structures.

Disaster struck at the beginning on the all-important fishing season—fishing is Iceland's most important industry—and forced rescue workers to empty thousands of frozen fish filets from Iceland's biggest fish-crazing plants located on the island.

Unofficial reports estimated that the disaster has already cost Iceland—a nation of 200,000 people—about $140 million.

Rogers departs to usher peace

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers left early today for Paris to sign the Vietnam cease-fire agreement for the United States.

Before departing from Andrews Air Force base in suburban Maryland, Rogers boarded a military jetliner shortly after 8 a.m. EST, he told reporters that "this does usher in a generation of peace."

He recalled that fighting in the Middle East had ended with a cease-fire, and that the cease-fire has lasted for two and one-half years.

While in Paris, Rogers said he would confer with President Georges Pompidou to thank the French government for its help in the negotiations between the United States and North Vietnam.

By the time I return to the United States tomorrow night, the cease-fire will be in effect throughout Vietnam," Rogers said, adding that "we hope that this does usher in a generation of peace."

The secretary of state will represent the United States at ceremonies Saturday that will finalize the agreement worked out at the Paris peace talks and announced Tuesday night. Also signing the agreement that will bring a cease-fire to Vietnam at 7 p.m. EST Saturday will be the foreign ministers of North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong).

Rogers was accompanied by his wife. Among the officials traveling with him were Marshal Green, assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific affairs, Ambassador William J. Porter, who headed the final U.S. delegation to the peace talks; and Robert J. McCloskey, a special assistant to Rogers for public affairs.

Once the cease-fire goes into effect, the United States will have 60 days to withdraw its remaining military forces from South Vietnam.

Federal budget unveiled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon disclosed today that the federal budget for the next fiscal year will total $268 billion, and said he would discuss details in a radio address to the nation Sunday evening from the Florida White House.

The President gave the budget figure for the year starting next July 1 following a meeting with congressional leaders of both parties, and while greeting a group representing prisoner of war families.

Nixon also said the final budget figure for the current fiscal year will be $250 billion—the ceiling he demanded and one which has roused some members of Congress who feel the chief executive has infringed on legislative prerogatives in this area.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the President already had taped the 11-minute radio program on the budget which will be broadcast from Key Biscayne, Fla., at 6 p.m. EST Sunday.

The President briefed congressional leaders on his fiscal proposals before flying to his Florida retreat to spend the weekend working on his State of the Union message to Congress.

Meeting with reporters on Capitol Hill following the White House meeting, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and House Speaker Carl Albert said the actual budget figure for fiscal 1974 would be $268.7 billion, with an estimated deficit of $12 billion.

Mansfield said the deficit for the current fiscal year would be $25 billion.

Of the $268.7 billion overall figure for the next budget year, Mansfield said, $252 billion would be in fixed outlays not subject to adjustment.

Albert renewed congressional objections to the President's impoundment of funds to meet his budget goals.

Kellogg man new farm aide

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus Friday announced appointment of Wilson Kellogg, 60, Boise, a veteran federal and state agricultural inspector, as his new commissioner of agriculture.

Kellogg succeeds Oscar C. Arstein who resigned after pleading guilty to two counts of failure to file federal income tax returns.

Andrus announced his choice at a press conference during the annual meeting of the Idaho Press Association.

He said he was urged to appoint Kellogg, former state Sen. J. Burns Bent or William F. Whitton to the post. He said he chose Kellogg for two major reasons.

"First, I felt that I had the State Idaho Department of Agriculture simply did not have sufficient time to wait for a new man to familiarize himself thoroughly with the administrative procedures required to run that department efficiently in the best interests of Idaho's farmers and ranchers.

"Secondly, in the person of Mr. Kellogg, I have appointed a life-long Democrat who has had 38 years of experience with the Idaho and the US Departments of Agriculture," he said.

Reds kill 2 GIs

SAIGON (UPI) — Two Americans were killed today, perhaps the last to die in the Vietnam war with a cease-fire less than two days away, and U.S. jet fighter-bombers flew the heaviest raids in eight months against Communist targets in South Vietnam.

The Americans died in separate incidents. One, a U.S. Marine guard, died when Communist gunners fired 23 Soviet-built 122mm rockets into the big Bien Hoa Air Base near Saigon. And a U.S. observer was killed when his OH6 "Loach" observation helicopter crashed 100 miles east of Saigon.

UPI reporter Donald A. Davis reported from Bien Hoa that the Marine was doing guard duty on the flight line when "a rocket hit about 50 feet from him. It exploded before he could duck."

The attack also killed two Vietnamese and wounded 21 Americans, spokesmen told Davis. The spokesmen said six South Vietnamese were wounded but military sources put the figure at 34. Five additional rockets hit Vietnamese dwellings outside the base.

U.S. command spokesmen said cause of the helicopter crash that killed the American observer has not been determined but that an investigation has been ordered to find out if it was downed in combat or by accident. The spokesmen said the pilot of the chopper was only slightly wounded.

Davis said the Marine was standing up when the rocket struck, head and shoulders exposed, behind the red brick wall of a blockhouse. The bricks were chipped by shrapnel.

The identity of the two dead Americans was withheld until their families are notified.

Idaho finds more money

By RICHARD CHARNOCK

BOISE (UPI) — A revenue estimating committee has found another $2 million in general fund money to spend next year and a Senate committee chairman today said he has just the place to spend it.

Rep. Vernon F. Ravenscroft, R-Tuttle, chairman of a Joint Revenue Projection Committee, reported Thursday evening estimated revenue of $155.4 million for fiscal 1974.

To this, Ravenscroft added an estimated $1 million in carry-over from the current fiscal year — a surplus resulting from the governor's 1.9 per cent hold back — bringing the grand total to $156.4 million.

That is $2 million higher than Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' budget-balancing projection of $154.4 million for next year and a break-even finish for this one.

Chairman John Barker, R-Buhl, of the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee shook his head and grinned when he heard the Revenue Committee's prediction.

"Just Thursday afternoon I discussed with John Marks, commissioner of social and rehabilitation services) some of the implications of HRI and came up with a couple of million dollars more money needed here for public assistance," Barker said.

"Just when we get indications of more revenue we find implication of other needs that may require its use because of federal legislation and Idaho Supreme Court decisions," he said.

Ravenscroft said his committee expects to notify the members of the legislature of the revenue projections by formal resolution — probably on Monday.

Mr. T-N 'to rise'

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — There will be a dramatic increase in the number of abortions in the United States, the head of the American Medical Association predicted Thursday.

"The nation is very close to zero population growth now," said Dr. Charles A. Hoffman, "and with this latest action of the Supreme Court, we will see a great many more persons having abortions."

Hoffman said he personally opposed the Supreme Court's 7-2 ruling Monday which declared unconstitutional the abortion laws of Texas and Georgia.

Wander when the next Southern Idaho lava flow will occur?

Bad day

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — After the manager of the Minas Gerais Mercantile bank reported an anonymous holdup threat, police rushed extra guards there to keep an eye on the place.

While police waited Thursday, four bandits robbed the National Credit bank next door and got away with about $6,333

Russians ban yoga, bridge

MOSCOW (UPI) — Bridge, yoga, karate and musclebuilding exercises, Soviet sports officials decided, are ideologically unsound and socially harmful.

And as for women's soccer, forget it. It was banned because it stirs the kind of passions the Soviet Union considers unhealthy and is physically harmful in a country where women drive trucks and lay bricks.

With its indictments, the Soviet committee for physical sports and culture this week decreed that "youthful-athletic organizations can no longer engage in such activities.

It calls clubs for bridge playing "absolutely absurd."

It said karate is contrary to the Soviet system of physical upbringing.

It said yoga exercises do not serve the purpose of all-round development of men engaged in active work.

And it said muscle-building programs result in a "one-sided, unhealthy development of the organism."

"All it said, are ideologically unsound, socially harmful and 'alien to our society.'"

The newspaper, Sovetsky Sport, said Thursday such activities have been gaining in popularity in the Soviet Union, promoted by unscrupulous sports businessmen who speculate on a natural desire of Soviet man for physical perfection.

Of women's soccer, Sovetsky Sport said, "It is the conclusion of scientific and medical organizations that playing soccer is harmful to the female..."

Moreover it added, quoting the committee decree, "it arouses unhealthy heated passions."

The newspaper said bridge clubs have become popular in many cities, including even intercity and republic-wide competitions in Estonia and Lithuania.

It said promoters have organized large-scale contests of Soviet muscle men, and it denounced "the egotistic adoration of one's own figure" as anti-Soviet.

The sports committee, the newspaper said, also banned most participation by women in "sambo," a Soviet form of judo. Women can take up sambo to learn some basic principles of self-defense, the committee decreed, but they are barred from engaging in sambo contests.

Blow kills BSC prof

BOISE (UPI) — Dr. C. Wallace Gould, 64, a political science professor at Boise State College, died today of injuries he received in an assault.

Police said Gould was struck on the head with a wine bottle at his home Wednesday night.

Det. William Leslie said a 17-year-old juvenile was arrested following the incident and was scheduled to appear in juvenile court today. Delton Gilliland, chief deputy prosecutor juvenile court today, Delton Gilliland, chief deputy prosecutor for Ada County, said it is possible the youth could be charged as an adult.

Pregnant Belgian mare arrives at Nevada home

RENO, Nev. (UPI) Wilma, a pregnant Belgian mare rescued from the dinner tables of Europe, arrived at her new home in the American West Thursday and gave her soft-hearted owner a shock.

"She really looks kind of like an elephant," said Virgie Arden, who bought the 3,000-pound mare, sight unseen after reading of her impending doom in a Reno newspaper.

The heavyweight horse, six feet tall at the shoulder, was going to be slaughtered and sliced into steaks for Belgian dinner plates.

So far, the huge mare has cost Mrs. Arden and her husband about $3,000 but that doesn't include room and board during a two-week quarantine in New York, the shipping bill from Belgium to New York, and the insurance bill.

"My husband's not speaking to me," she said with a laugh.

"Do you realize how many steaks I'm going to be without to keep her from becoming a steak?"

During negotiations with the horse's owners in Antwerp, Mrs. Arden discovered Wilma was pregnant. Two for the price of one, she said.

Wilma's journey began Dec. 12 when she was loaded aboard a ship at Antwerp for the transatlantic voyage.

Facilities go to Viets

SAIGON (UPI) - The U.S. Command has quietly handed over to the South Vietnamese all of the buildings and equipment not scheduled for removal from the country, a military source said today.

The facilities include the Military Assistance Command, Vietnam's own vast "Pentagon East" headquarters, which was signed over to the U.S. Embassy, the source said.

Thousands of other structures and pieces of equipment throughout the country were turned over to South Vietnamese armed forces.

In Da Nang, UPI Correspondent Alan Dawson reported the U.S. Air Force's 20th Tactical Air Support Squadron, turned over all 20 of its 02 Skymaster twin engine forward air control (FAC) planes to the South Vietnamese Air Force. That left the squadron with only its OV10 Bronco FAC planes, which will be flown to Thailand.

AC-119 Stinger and Shadow gunships have already been signed over to the South Vietnamese Air Force, although crews operating the Stingers will not complete their U.S. Air Force training for another 45 days.

Dawson also reported that the U.S. Army's 11th Combat Aviation Group at Da Nang plans to put all its 25 helicopters into the air for a final combat patrol from 6 a.m. to 8 a.m. Sunday so that each of its air crews can make the final mission of the Vietnam War.

The U.S. had planned earlier to disarm its UH-1 Huey helicopters Saturday night for administrative missions after the 8 a.m. Sunday (7 p.m. EST Saturday) cease-fire. OH-6 Cayuse and OH-59 Kiowa light observation helicopters and AH-1 Cobra gunships are to be grounded after the cease-fire.

The morning combat patrol normally is made by two of the light observation helicopters. Sunday morning the patrol will consist of four of the "Loaches," a dozen Cobra gunships and nine Hueys, Dawson said.

Laos gets US air support

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) - Prime Minister Prince Souvanna Phouma reaffirmed today that U.S. bombing in Laos would continue if needed following the Vietnam cease-fire that goes into effect Sunday morning, Saigon time.

Souvanna told a news conference that he had an assurance to that effect from the United States but that he expected a cease-fire in Laos 15 days after the one in South Vietnam.

"As long as a cease-fire is not in effect in Laos and during the (Communist) offensive, we still need air support from the American air force," Souvanna said. "If a cease-fire is effective on the prescribed date, the support will cease."

"I think that the Paris agreement will be respected by all sides," he said.

"Today we are not in the same situation as in 1962 and 1963. The world is living now in an atmosphere of detente. The great powers are looking to coexist with each other. So, I think peace will be possible this time."

Returning to the subject of American bombing, Souvanna said cease-fire violations in Laos by North Vietnamese troops were prohibited under both the 1962 Geneva accords and the new Vietnam agreement.

"If there is any violation it will be a double violation," he said. "There will be sufficient reason to resort to U.S. bombing."

TF citizens group backs equal funds

TWIN FALLS — Members of a pro-school citizens coalition talked about funding Idaho schools Thursday night. As they talked they shivered in the O'Leary library where the heat had been turned down to save money.

The group voted to support specific legislation that would equalize distribution of state funds to schools and legislation to study reorganization of school districts.

The group of about 30 persons, mostly educators with a sprinkling of representatives of other civic groups, heard reports on school financing from Wayne York, executive secretary of the Idaho Education Association and Buhl school Supt. Dan Mabe.

York said the prospects for "significant" increase in school funding — an increase of about $11 million for existing programs — is likely.

He urged the group "Don't be lulled into complacency. You can never be confident until the bill is signed."

He said Twin Falls County legislators were highly influential and urged the citizens coalition to contact them about pending legislation.

The group voted to support a bill which would provide for increased equalization of state funds for education, over the objections of two superintendents from Hanson and Kimberly districts.

Supts. Percy Christensen of Hanson and Clinton Bugg, Kimberly, said their districts could be hurt by the equalization.

Christensen said it would take a large increase in state funding to compensate for losses to his district from equalization. He estimated that an $11 million increase in statewide funding would leave his district only "about $2,000" increase, which he said would be eaten up by inflation.

He and Bugg said they could support a proposed study of reorganization of districts, and emphasized that such a study would show special problems facing districts involved.

After discussing whether or not the group had a future purpose, the coalition voted to hold a third meeting in a heated room at 8 p.m. Thursday. The location of the heated room would be announced later.

Drive launched to form agency to aid consumer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With an endorsement from Ralph Nader, three senators today launched a renewed drive to create an independent federal agency that would go to bat for the consumer.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., announced that he and Sens. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., would introduce legislation probably next week — to form an independent consumer protection agency.

Congress has refused to go along with the idea twice in the past three years. The last time was in 1972 when similar legislation passed the House but died in a Senate filibuster.

The agency would take the consumer's part before federal agencies such as the Food and Drug Administration, and the Federal Trade Commission, as well as in the federal courts.

The new legislation, in addition, would carry money to help finance state and local-level consumer activities.

"In my opinion," Nader said, "this bill is the most important piece of legislation ever to come before the U.S. Congress. The business lobbies dedicated to defeating the bill are already handballed and well organized."

Percy announced the proposed action during remarks prepared for delivery at the 1973 Consumer Assembly, an annual meeting sponsored by the Consumer Federation of America.

Percy told the meeting he did not force a filibuster this year because he hoped to win early consideration of the measure.

MV hospital in TF bulging at seams

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Memorial Hospital is bulging at the seams.

The highest bed occupancy rate in the 20-year-old hospital is currently being maintained.

As of today there were 119 patients in the adult and pediatric beds. With only 126 such beds available this is a 94.4 per cent occupancy and leaves the hospital wanting in case of an emergency which would send in a number of persons at one time.

Hospital officials report a hospital generally considers its capacity reached at 80 per cent occupancy, holding back 20 per cent of the beds for unexpected customers.

Magic Valley Memorial has been operating for some time at above the 80 per cent level.

In the January hospital board meeting, plans were discussed for "convecting some 'non-bed' space to bed space to provide an additional 20 hospital beds. This would require some building remodeling on the second floor and would then provide beds to meet present demands.

Long range hospital expansion plans are also under consideration by the board with a financing plan also under study.

Rotarun reports a total of 22 inches of snow with one inch of new snow this week. There is a snow floor on the road and snow tires are recommended.

All runs are packed. This weekend the area will be holding races for novice, intermediate and junior expert skiers.

Pomerelle expects to have the chairlift back in operation this weekend, pending final word from the US Forest Service late today. A telephone line to the resort is out of order and no condition report is available.

WASHINGTON — A series of smashing defeats for pragmatic young Republican Congressmen behind closed doors of the old guard-dominated House Republican Caucus has gravely deepened the depression brought on by haughty and inattentive treatment from President Nixon's Oval Office.

Those caucus decisions systematically cut off new blood from flowing into critical power slots, both on the Ways and Means Committee and on ranking Republican members on other committees. With the old guard in iron-fisted control of the Republican cloakroom, the most powerful figure shaping the party's posture there is almost unknown away from the Capitol's inner sanctum: 78-year-old Rep. Les Arends of Illinois, House minority whip since the third term of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The consequence is less ideological than tactical. Arends-style Republicanism, though indisputably conservative, is most concerned with maintaining the institutional status quo, especially the rigid seniority system. It seeks accommodations with the Democratic leadership and avoids confrontations with the White House. Not surprisingly, it has driven many ambitious young Republicans out of the House after a few terms of frustration.

Arends' dominance stems from control of the House Republican Committee, an unwieldy 46-member body which determines the party makeup on legislative committees. As a Congressman from Wisconsin and chairman of the House Republican Caucus, Melvin R. Laird championed the Republican Young Turks before moving to the Pentagon in 1969. Since then, Arends has been unchallenged.

In this year's secret sessions of the Committee on Committees, Arends disagreed with minority leader Gerald Ford of Michigan on some committee assignments and won out each time. But there was no opposition from Ford on the committee's biggest issue: a hotly contested vacancy on Ways and Means, the most important legislative committee in Congress.

The Young Turks were pushing Rep. William Steiger, 35, a moderate liberal from Wisconsin with a reputation for aggressiveness and skill during six years in the House. As Secretary of Defense, Laird vainly intervened in Steiger's behalf with old friends in Congress and even attempted unsuccessfully to break the White House neutrality.

Oil interests, generous contributors to Republicans, wanted a Texan (Rep. Bill Archer of Houston) and not Steiger. Arends rammed Archer home, privately suggesting that young Bill Steiger had moved a bit too much to the left since coming here.

Nobody could accuse Ohio's Rep. Clarence (Bud) Brown, Jr., 46, of left-wing deviationism, but he lost a bid for another opening on Ways and Means. Whatever their ideological disagreements, Steiger and Brown are both hard-hitting partisans who would challenge backscratching accommodations within the committee between Republicans and the masterful Democratic chairman, Wilbur D. Mills.

Our Cussedness

"You Won't Need This One Anymore, Dear."

The commune movement is not only still around, but some of these social experiments are discovering insights into human nature that have eluded philosophers and kings over the centuries.

For instance, a recent book about a five-year-old commune in Virginia called Twin Oaks explains that members are required to do full, equal shares of the necessary work.

Within that limit, however, they are free to choose the work they like. They work about 40 hours a week, usually spread over the full seven days.

(Assembly-line robots, eat your hearts out!)

Soon after its founding, the commune discovered the curious fact that previously desirable tasks, such as hoeing the garden, increasingly tended to be viewed as unpleasant and had to be assigned.

When one is assigned a job, he becomes "manager" of that job. "Our bylaws leave us free to change our form of government at any time," writes Kathleen Kinkade, author of the book. "I personally think Twin Oaks could survive under a variety of government systems... as long as the managerial system remained intact."

(Why didn't anybody invent bureaucracy before this?)

Instead of money, workers are issued labor credits. These vary with the desirability or undesirability of a job.

The more people who want to do a particular job, the less it "pays," and vice versa.

(Oppressive capitalist exploiters, take note.)

Each labor credit is worth an hour of free time. Vacations are paid for with surplus credits, which are accumulated by working more hours than are assigned.

Most members bog down in their work from time to time, but perk up after a vacation or a fresh approach or a change of job, writes Ms. Kinkade.

(Industrial psychologists, get your noses out of the textbooks!) As happens in the best-run communes, the snake has reared his head a couple of times in the person of members who refused to pull their weight.

One fellow was content to let his girl friend support him by doing her work and his, too. The other guy falsified his labor credit sheets (counterfeiting?).

When reasoning, threats and everything else failed to move these characters, they were simply asked to leave.

(This unique solution, unfortunately, is not practical in the outside world, there being no other "outsider" nonproducers can be asked to leave for. Anyway, most unemployment is the fault of the lousy system Twin Oaks and other communes were designed to be alternatives for.)

Twin Oaks is determined to avoid the emergence of a privileged class which does less or has more than anybody else. This means the creation of "an entirely new culture" — noncompetitive and nonconsumerist.

Until this creation is realized, however, "it will be necessary for us to continue to legislate a rough equality," writes Ms. Kinkade.

"How come Mao Tse-tung never thought of that?")

Eventually, she believes, machinery and automation will handle all the undesirable jobs and make it so that nobody has to do any work he doesn't want to.

Then, presumably, everyone will sit around being equal.

(Now here is where Twin Oaks and the outside world are on converging paths — and the prospect gives the philosophers and the kings nightmares.)

ANDREW TULLY

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Kind Of Rays

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Years ago when a person had a cancer operation — the "treatment" afterward was called X-ray or radium treatment.

Then for years the treatment was called cobalt.

Recently I was told of someone who had cancer and then of an operation; that at first he was going to have radium, but now I'm told it will be an X-ray treatment.

Are radium, X-ray and cobalt all the same thing? If not, what's the difference? — A. R.

All three (and some others besides) are basically the same thing. They are all "gamma rays," but produced in different ways.

With radium, the rays are given off steadily by a quantity of radium. Therefore it is sometimes preferable to implant a small capsule of radium, and the rays from it bathe the surrounding tissues.

With X-ray, the rays are of the same nature — gamma rays — but produced by an X-ray tube. These rays are focussed on the appropriate tissues, and a strong dosage is given in a brief time, instead of having a lower intensity over a longer time, as with radium.

Cobalt again is a matter of gamma rays, but in this case the source is a pellet of cobalt which has been made radioactive by exposing it to a stream of neutrons in an atomic reactor. It throws off gamma rays continuously (just as radium does) but in vastly greater amounts.

With cobalt it is possible to focus the rays in a very sharp and intense beam. (Intensity of X-rays from tubes depends on how high a voltage can be used in the tube.)

In all cases, the gamma rays attack the sick (cancerous) tissues more vigorously than they do the healthy tissues, which of course is why they're used. Unfortunately they can do some damage to healthy tissues, too, so the goal is to apply as much radiation as possible to the cancer and as little as possible to other tissues.

Thus, sometimes radium can be implanted right at the site of the cancer (or at the site from which cancer has been removed, to destroy any cells that may remain).

Other times this is not possible or practicable, so X-ray or cobalt rays are used. They are not implanted; they are aimed right through the body, which means that healthy tissues will have to be exposed, also.

Sometimes a combination of methods can do more good than a single method.

Those are the best known sources of gamma rays, but there are others. Cesium provides a beam similar to cobalt. Or a variety of much weaker sources of radiation may be used for other purposes, one of them being radioactive iodine, which gives only a small amount of radiation and exhausts itself quite rapidly. But these are still very useful for some purposes, and without the dangers that are bound to accompany the very powerful sources of gamma rays.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was recently alarmed to discover I had become infested with "crabs" or pubic lice. A parasite quickly killed them, but do they infest only the ADULT pubic area? I was worried that my five-year-old child would catch them, but saw no signs. — D.A.N.

Eggs breed by fastening the eggs to hair shafts, so there is much less chance of a child of five developing a crop of them. It's one thing to get rid of one louse. It's another matter if they start multiplying. But as you now know, proper treatment will stop them in short order.

A Word Of Praise

We like to drizzle out words of praise every now and then. In this old world it is sometimes difficult to find the words — but we did.

A clipping, handed us by the backshop Oracle, did the trick. It read:

A real switch in channels was a recent policy change in production announced by Zenith Radio Corporation. Originally planning to transfer all of its color TV set production to an Asian country, as so many electronic manufacturers have done in recent years, Zenith president John J. Nevin recently proclaimed:

"The American worker is more productive than any we have in Asia. He might cost us more, but he'll out-perform anybody by a country mile."

The result will be a satisfactory testimony to the craftsmanship of the worker in this country, as from now on Zenith sets will carry the "Made In America" label.

The Back Patting

WASHINGTON — It is an exercise in sheer, wanton flummery the way White House and other administration officials go about patting themselves on the back for "solving" the heating oil shortage that closed schools, factories and churches in the Middle West.

To be sure, President Nixon finally got around — on January 17 — to suspending import quotas on heating oils for the next four months and raising crude oil import quotas for the rest of the year by 65 per cent. The question is why he waited so long, and there seems to be no answer to this question but an admission of outrageous administration dawdling.

The facts cannot be dismissed. Away back in March 1972, there was a startling decrease in the nation's stocks of heating oil. Both the White House and the Office of Emergency Planning acknowledged this situation and issued the by then shopworn warning that if something wasn't done the country would find itself in an "energy crisis."

"Something was not done. Nothing was done. So time passed and the consumption of fuel oil continued to increase; by the fall of 1972 it was running 13 per cent higher than in the previous year. Now mid-fall is when heating oil stocks generally, or supposedly, are in surplus to meet the winter's demand. No one seemed to notice, in official circles, that the oil companies in fact had 12 per cent less fuel oil in their tanks than in the fall of 1971.

Then we had Washington officialdom explaining that the reason for the heating oil shortage was that the Middle West had suffered from a lot of cold weather.

It boggles the mind. Cold weather is an annual occurrence for Midwesterners in the fall and winter. It is not an occasional phenomenon, but a fact of life, and plain people prepare for it in schools, factories, churches and homes.

Washington, however, acted as if this season's cold snap was a sudden and mischievous aberration of Nature: One half expected to hear Richard Nixon's house preacher, Billy Graham, explaining that the oil supply and distribution systems had broken down because we hadn't done enough praying.

Meanwhile, even as the administration was preening itself for lifting oil import quotas, we had the country's transport companies — warning the White House that the situation had better improve, fast. Eight trade associations said in a statement that if the fuel shortage continued they would have to curtail or even halt services.

Indeed, bus, truck and barge service already had been disrupted in most states east of the Rocky Mountains. Greyhound Bus Lines was down to an 11-day supply of fuel in Norfolk, nine days in Washington and six in New York. Oil distributors had cut deliveries to freight and passenger carriers as much as 40 per cent in the previous week. Aviation fuel was still short in New York, where Texaco had cut deliveries to five airlines by 30 per cent.

In recent months you and I have watched the emergence of a new literary art form — the bumper sticker.

Some theorize that the fad derives from the phase-out of roadside billboards; others call it a reflection of every man's desire to make his opinions heard.

Except for those slogans relating to recent political campaigns, the one bumper sticker seen on the most cars by the most people is this one: "Eat Lamb: 10 million coyotes can't be exterminated."

That one is not funny.

For animal lovers — far anybody of compassion — the shooting, trapping or poisoning of coyotes is akin to cruelty to a pet dog.

So, it was not difficult for persons concerned about this Western states' practice to get the President of the United States to outlaw it. He ordered a halt to the poisoning of predators on federal land and in many Western states more than 70 percent of all grazing land is federal land.

Sheepmen, now, they see predator control from another point of view. To them it is a lesser evil and a lesser cruelty than to allow an overpopulation of coyotes to attack sheep and lambs.

Buck Howland, whose family has raised sheep for most of a hundred years in Idaho, says in 1971 he lost 40 percent of his purebred flock to coyotes and dogs, putting him altogether out of business.

Simplex Live Stock, Grandview, Idaho, reports it lost 4,000 ewes and lambs to coyotes during the past two years.

A Simplex manager says, "We can't operate any more," and Simplex has been one of that state's largest sheep operations.

The natural ecological cycle which tends to maintain wildlife population was interrupted when the jack rabbit population was depleted. With that link in the chain missing, coyotes turned their carnivorous appetites toward livestock.

Some environmentalists accuse sheepmen of exaggerating their losses to coyotes.

President Robert Thomas of the Idaho Wildlife Federation says there has not been a thorough study of animal losses. But the 2,000 member Idaho Wool Growers Assn. insists that the facts are in the figures: The number of sheep in Idaho next year, 600,000, will be the lowest in the history of that industry.

Life on earth, for man and beast, is perpetuated by four basic cycles — the nitrogen cycle, the carbon and oxygen cycle, the mineral cycle and the energy cycle.

The regeneration of each is a function we'd expected would continue forever. We imagined that, our feet rooted in the earth and our heads in the sun, we were indestructible.

Only recently has it become apparent that we are suspended in space by a fragile web of interdependent threads.

The broken ones are unendurable. The frayed ones may heal if we'll stop scratching off the acbs.

Budget, computer disagree

BOISE — Joint Finance Appropriations Committee efforts to set appropriations levels for dedicated fund agencies hit a snag Thursday when executive budget figures conflicted with state computer center figures.

Rep. Williams Robert, R-Buhl, committee co-chairman, said the committee staff was meeting with representatives of the budget department to determine the reasons for the conflicting figures.

Roberts said the committee would not be able to set appropriations levels for any of the 17 agencies originally set to be considered Thursday, and would delay its efforts until later in the session.

He said the legislators had requested extra budget information on the personnel costs for the first five agencies on the list to see how much money would be going for permanent staff raises and how much for the hiring of parttime help in the agencies.

The information that came back from the computer print-out, he said, was different than some of what was contained in the executive budget.

The committee had intended to consider a total of 37 dedicated fund agencies Thursday, a switch in plans from its original intention to continue with the round of 17 dedicated fund agencies Thursday, a switch in plans from its original intention to continue with the round of general fund agencies hearings. It had been holding since a week before the legislature convened.

Meat-eaters
LONDON (UPI) — Britons ate more meat in 1971 than ever before, according to figures from the Ministry of Agriculture.
It said meat consumption in 1971 was 132.51 pounds per capita, up 1.57 pounds per head from the 1970 figure. Britons ate less beef than before, but made up for that by eating more pork, mutton and lamb.

Saxvik measure advances

BOISE — The Senate Local Government committee has agreed to introduce and print a bill which, if passed, could give senior citizens groups an advantage in a Magic Valley dispute with Community Action Program agencies.
The bill, given to the committee by Sen. Robert Saxvik (D-Burley), would permit boards of county commissioners to receive federal money for senior citizens programs, pass it on to the senior citizens groups, and conduct audits and reviews of the way the money is used. That authority would permit such organizations to pass the OEO-sponsored CAP's.

Saxvik said the purpose of the legislation would be to get such groups "out from under the CAP agencies." He said the attorney general's office has advised him that such a bill would be needed to let senior citizens form separate corporations to carry out their cultural and recreational projects and have the money channeled to them through county government instead of CAP's.

He said the bill is backed by the Idaho Office of Aging.
"We've had a CAP agency in Twin Falls that's been in a constant state of upheaval," Saxvik told the committee, and as a result, senior citizens groups in the area "want the county to administer their money." He said members of such groups "have felt that the OEO people are trying to dictate to them how to run their program."
Saxvik said such groups in Jerome and in at least one other Magic Valley community have "broken away" from the CAP's.

Bill eyes numerous trustees

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee Thursday approved printing of legislation which would allow for enlarged school district boards of trustees in the event of consolidation of existing districts.
The proposed measure would enable the number of seats on the board to increase from the current maximum of five to a maximum of nine if the voting patrons of the now district approved the change.

The committee also gave a "do pass" recommendation to a measure which would change the annual meeting of school districts from June to July.
Also given "do pass" was a house joint memorial urging Congress to reexamine the distribution formula used for federal assistance funds in light of factors which increase administrative costs in a rural state such as Idaho.

Gooding school hearing delayed

BOISE — The Gooding State School budget presentation to a joint legislative committee was postponed Thursday until early February.
Edward Healy, director of the schools, was originally scheduled to appear before the Finance Appropriations Committee Thursday in its continuing round of budget hearings.

The committee's budget hearings were all postponed, however, so its members could set fiscal year appropriations from some dedicated fund sources, according to William Roberts, R-Buhl, co-chairman.
The executive budget prepared by Gov. Andrus for legislative consideration asked for a total budget of $972,109 for the fiscal year beginning in July for the school of which $894,271 would come from the state's general fund.

Lawyer referral begun

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — John M. Sharp, President of the Idaho State Bar, has announced formation of a statewide lawyer referral service sponsored by the bar.
Sharp said under the service persons wishing to consult a lawyer are given the name of one willing to talk with them. After an initial interview, if the lawyer is hired, he will charge his usual fee for professional services. The initial consultation fee is not to exceed $15 for the first half-hour, Sharp said.

TF recyclers oppose bottle cleanup bill

By DAVID ESPO Times-News writer

BOISE — The Twin Falls Jaycees president told a legislative public hearing Thursday night a bill banning non-returnable beverage containers would put his group's recycling center out of business.

He opposed the bill. Robert Becker testified at the public hearing the Jaycees had a $25,000 investment in the Twin Falls recycling center that was established last summer.
Becker was one of several persons testifying at the meeting to discuss the controversial bill which would require a deposit of 5 cents on beverage containers acceptable to only one manufacturer and 2 cents on "universal" containers.
The proposal was sponsored by Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert. Others who spoke at the hearing attacked the bill as a threat to the beverage industry which would lead to disruption of merchandising and distribution, contribute to a rise in the price of beer and soft drinks, and help put some small businesses out of business.

Others praised the bill as a pioneering effort in an anti-litter campaign needed to keep Idaho's roadsides and country free of disposable containers.
Becker said the Twin Falls Jaycees had "met the challenge of the litter problem by sticking their necks out to the tune of over $25,000" in liabilities.
The Jaycee recycling center in Twin Falls has processed 150,000 pounds of aluminum.

Program signup starts Feb. 5

TWIN FALLS — With sign-up in the 1973 wheat and feed grain programs due to open Feb. 5, Twin Falls County producers have many decisions to make, said Kent Kirk, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) county executive director. In these coming weeks, each producer with a wheat allotment or feed grain base must make his individual decisions on whether to participate in the programs; and, if so, what plans to choose among those that are offered. Kirk said.

"With the elimination of the set-aside requirement under the 1973 wheat program, a near 100 per cent sign-up of the over 1,700 wheat farms is expected," Kirk said.

Sign-up for the 1973 wheat and feed grain programs is scheduled Feb. 5 through March 15 at the county ASCS office, 1061-Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

Participants in the feed grain set-aside program will decide whether to sign up for the 30 per cent plan or the 15 per cent plan. Wheat producers must also determine whether they want to sign up for the optional additional set-aside plan.

These are the main program decisions a farmer will make, once he decides to be in one or more of the programs," Kirk said, "but his entire farm operating plan for the year is tied in with his decisions on farm program participation."

Substitution is continued in the 1973 farm programs, the ASC director pointed out. He explained that substitution means a producer may choose among the following crops — corn, grain sorghum, barley, wheat, soybeans — and still preserve his farm's base.

Annual meet set

TWIN FALLS — The annual stockholders meeting of the Federal Land Bank Association of Twin Falls has been scheduled for Feb. 5.

C. David Burgess, manager, said the meeting will begin at noon at the Turf Club.

Jay Felt, newly elected vice president of the Federal Land Bank of Spokane and formerly manager of the Twin Falls FLBA will be the speaker at the meeting. Registration for the meeting will begin at 11:15 a.m., Burgess said.

Gem crop yields under '71 levels

BOISE (UPI) — Crop production in Idaho during 1972 was five points below 1971, the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Wednesday, yet the second highest output of record.

The 1972 index of production at 199 compares with the record high 204 last year, and 195 in 1970.

The preliminary 1972 estimate of value of Idaho's important crops, excluding sugar beets, was $504,957,000, a new high. This represents a 19 per cent increase from 1971, the previous record.

The increased value of production was attributed to higher prices which were realized for all Idaho crops. The service said this more than offset the decrease in output of several important commodities.

'73 plantings up

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Idaho growers have indicated they plan to seed 760,000 acres of barley, two per cent more than 1972 plantings of 745,000 acres.

Spring wheat acreage is expected to total 280,000 acres compared to 293,000 acres last year. Combined with winter wheat seedings of 625,000 acres forecast in December, total wheat planted for harvest in 1973 is forecast at 1,205 million acres. This compared with 1,031 million for 1972.

Corn acreage planted for all purposes is expected total 104,000 acres, four per cent below the 108,000 planted in 1972.

Farmers intend to plant 81,000 acres of oats, up nine per cent from last year.

Gem meet set

TWIN FALLS — Tom Hovenden, secretary-manager of the Idaho Cattle Feeders Association, will address the annual meeting of the Idaho Livestock Production Credit Association here Feb. 2.

The meeting will begin at noon at the Holiday Inn, according to Ray Voyce, manager of the Boise based organization.

Hovenden will discuss livestock environmental regulations. The association specializes in livestock production loans to farmers and ranchers south of the Salmon River in Idaho and in part of Malheur County, Ore. During the past year, $3.8 million was loaned by the association, Voyce said.

Public demands environment key

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, newly designated the administration's top coordinator for natural resources and environmental policy, has warned farmers they cannot fight public pressure for more environmental protection. Farmers will have to learn to live with it, Butz said.

The agriculture secretary, in a speech prepared for delivery to a meeting of the National Wool Growers Association (NWGA), said that specific environmental issues will be settled in the future by what the general public demands. "The question will not get answered in terms of individual producer equity. Farmers need to understand that. The body politic equity — what the public consensus demands, even though some people get hurt — will be the deciding factor," Butz said.

One good case illustrating the new situation, Butz said, was the administration's action last year in banning the use of poisons for controlling coyotes which prey on sheep. The NWGA appealed Tuesday for modification of the ban, claiming that sheep losses were increasing. Butz, however, gave no indication in his prepared text that a change was contemplated.

The ban came as a move to protect the bold eagles and other species that prey on dead coyotes. The body politic decided to preserve the bald eagle. Public policy decided that we are not going to poison coyotes," Butz said.

Butz said, however, that the step to protect eagles also puts new urgency behind finding effective new methods to prevent coyotes from ravaging lambs and sheep. "Otherwise the public may eventually have to make a choice between lamb chops or hearing the howl of coyotes on rangelands," he said.

"This nation's livestock industry and consumers can no more afford to see a predator problem get out of hand than we can afford to see a conflagration, touched off by lightning, run wild and devastate precious forest land," Butz added.

The agriculture secretary, conceding that many leaders are concerned about rising food prices, predicted that farmers will boost food supplies to meet rising demand and renewed earlier appeals for public understanding of the fact that farm income is still lagging behind the earnings of non-farmers.

He joined the Bureau of Reclamation in 1946. In 1954 he was promoted to his present position.

Graham recalls LBJ's comment

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The recent years.

Rev. Billy Graham, who presides at today's burial of Lyndon B. Johnson, said the former chief executive often talked of his pending death but had no fear of it.

"I think he might have looked at it as a relief from the tremendous burdens and responsibilities with which he lived," Graham said Wednesday.

"We talked about death quite frequently," the evangelist said. "I don't think he was afraid of death, at least not in the recent years."

The evangelist said he once sat between President Nixon and Johnson in 1969 while they discussed the presidency.

"Then President Johnson said, 'The presidency is something you can't escape from. It's with you wherever you go. You have to be like a jackass in a hailstorm. You just sit there and take it.'"

Graham said Johnson "could use some earthy language. He didn't claim to be perfect. But in his heart and mind he believed in Christ."

'Human relationships' Relief Society theme

SHOSHONE — "Putting others before self is the basis for good human relationships," is the theme of the homemaking lesson for February in the LDS Relief Society.

The list of attitudes and manners is illustrated under "Public Performance", showing proper behavior of one serving the public and the one being served. "Thoughtless littering, abuse or careless misuse of public property are reprehensible," the manual points out. This is the continued approach to proper behavior from the January lesson on "Courtesy in Church."

The Ninth and Eleventh Articles of Faith of the LDS Church are emphasized during the spiritual living lessons in January and February. James E. Talmage's writings on the subject are encouraging women to apply the principle of agency by being tolerant.

"A challenge to 'Capture the teaching moment' with questions from children is issued to women in the Mother Training courses and discussion will center around "Your Child and the Outside World," "Parental Planning Meetings" need for "Love, Friendship and Achievement in the Growth of Personalities."

The February lesson deals with "Agency and Responsibility." The principle of agency is the basis for individual growth and development, the outline suggests.

The February Cultural Refinement lesson will feature musical excerpts from Wagner's "Tannhauser" and Biblical references to point out that through the example of Jesus Christ the love of God is our greatest strength against the forces of evil.

Lessons are held weekly in the various wards, in some instances two each week, day and evening to accommodate work schedules of members.

In Shoshone the lessons are at 10 a.m. each Tuesday at the church, except on work days when an all-day meeting begins at 10 a.m. and runs throughout the afternoon with a noon luncheon. Various handwork is learned by the women and items collected for sale at the annual bazaars.

Abigail Van Buron

DEAR ABBY: You get lots of letters from "football widows." How about putting in a good word for "soap opera widowers?"

Julia and I have been married three years. I used to call her every day on my lunch hour, and on my days off we used to go around and see the sights. On workdays I'd get off at 5 p.m. and come home to a clean house, smiling wife, and a good supper. Not anymore.

For the last five months I've been coming home to a messy house, a TV dinner and wife with a tear-stained face. The reason being she watches soap operas on TV all day long.

I can't even call her on my lunch hour because she's in the middle of one of those shows and she doesn't want to miss even two minutes of it to talk to me.

the fall of the nine of hearts and continue with the queen. Then after East showed out he would be able to finesse successfully against West's jack.

When the hand was played, South was a good player who was an avid reader of bridge literature. East was an expert and when East dropped the nine, good player South paused, reflected, and reflected some more.

There is a well known book play here—East holds four hearts to the jack and knows if he just plays low declarer will lead to the ace and find out about the trump situation.

South finally decided that East had made this false card, led to dummy's ace and went down one just like a beginner would have.

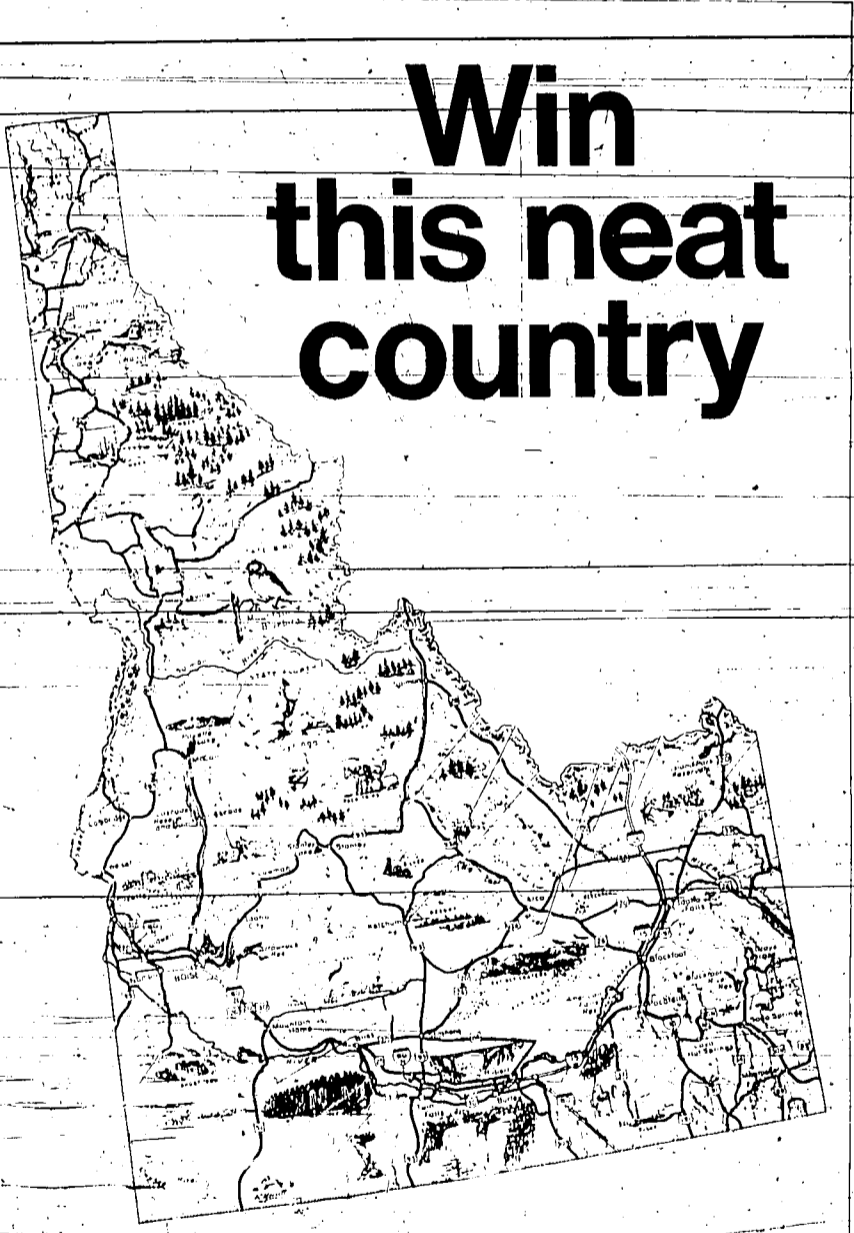

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Seven to trump is a better contract than seven hearts. There are 12 tricks in high cards and if you can make four heart tricks you are up to 15.

If you can't make four tricks there you may break the spades or develop some sort of squeeze.

Experts don't always reach the best contract but certainly seven hearts is reasonable.

An ordinary player would probably go down at seven hearts. He would play his king of trumps first and then lead a heart to dummy's ace. East would show out and there would be a losing trump trick.

A good player would note

DEAR ABBY: Since your reading audience is vast, may I pass on some advice that is valuable, yet possibly not well known? It is regarding burns.

Not too many years ago, a physician buried his hand, and immediately immersed it in ice water. He found that the pain left while it was in the ice water, but what surprised him even more was that there was no blistering, redness, ulceration, or scarring. He reported the incident, and now many doctors order immediate ice baths until they can get there. The results have been amazing.

Check this out with your medical experts if you have any doubts.

DEAR DOCTOR: I've been aware of the above discovery concerning burns for some time. But it won't hurt to remind folks to reach for an ice cube instead of the greasy stuff.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to comment on the letter signed "Right or Wrong" from the wife who was mad at her husband because he was too tired to mow the lawn then he went next door and worked on the roof of a neighbor's house. This neighbor was a cute young widow whom the wife described as a woman who never paid for anything "in cash."

When the wife saw her husband working on her neighbor's roof she went over and hit him a good one with the dust mop, and you said it was a draw between which one was right or wrong.

I don't think so. A woman should never hit a man unless she is prepared to be hit back. I have never hit my wife, but then she's never hit me, either.

Also, that wife should find out what it is the widow pays with and do likewise. After all, they both have the same equipment in the dark.

Board OK's milk agreement

JEROME — A reciprocal milk inspection agreement with the state of Utah was approved Wednesday afternoon by the South-Central Health District board of directors.

Meeting in Wood Cafe in Jerome, the group agreed to work with Utah officials in grade A milk inspections to the benefit of producers and consumers in both states.

Environmentalist James Fogarty told the board members

Utah has requested the agreement to facilitate milk shipments from Idaho to Utah. From this area, he said about seven tank loads of milk have gone to Utah in the past three weeks.

Utah restrictions are more stringent than those of Idaho, he said, with this area having little to lose.

About 9,000 head of dairy cattle have been added in Twin Falls County in the past year, he said, and this is a good outlet for the production. Utah milk, he said, is shipped into the Preston and southeastern Idaho areas, but little comes here.

The board also discussed a recommendation from Ingalls for a septic tank license or permit in which persons installing septic tanks would be required to obtain a permit in advance. No fee would be charged, he said, but it would give the department better control.

Many rural area builders are putting in the septic tanks and drain fields before they come to the attention of the department and many have to be removed and put in according to health standards at the expense of the builder.

Ingalls said no permit is required now although all such installations must meet the state board of health's code.

He also recommended individuals who pump out septic tanks be licensed or required to obtain permits to protect the home owner from "fly by night" type operators.

Clyde Petersen, Gooding, representing the board in a health district meeting last week, reported on plans for the state health district organization and efforts to obtain legislation to assist health districts in administering and financing operations.

Ed Woods, Twin Falls County zoning administrator, met with the board to discuss mutual problems the health department and county zoning administrators face in rural subdivision development.

He said the two must work closely together on regulations for wells and septic tank drain fields to protect water supplies.

Woods said the zoning officials are supporting legislation which would require a sewer district for all rural development involving 10 residential units or more. He urged the health district to join in supporting such legislation.

In county zoning, he said, lot size regulation is being adopted to help control such contamination. New county zoning regulations propose one-acre lots, he said, which is expected to draw opposition from builders.

Something must be done to prevent contamination of ground water sources in view of trends toward rural building and development, he said.

Social security agency takes on some welfare

(Fifth in a Series.)

By BRUCE HOSSAT
SEA Washington
Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — This year Congress acted with President Nixon's approval to give the Social Security Administration responsibility for part of the nation's welfare program. The new law is called "Title II" and covers the needy aged, blind and disabled.

The full federalizing of the program won't happen overnight. In fact, the change won't take effect until Jan. 1, 1974. In 1973, while Social Security lets ready to manage it, some $3 billion in the adult categories will go on getting aid from state and local agencies.

By the time the federalizing does begin, Social Security authorities say that maybe another 1.5 million to 1.7 million adults eligible for such public assistance will have been lost out.

The program is being officially described as one of supplementary security income. It is a special Social Security, and won't be financed from Social Security payroll deductions collected in trust funds, but rather from general revenues.

Many of the needy aged 65 is the age qualification. Disabled, etc. happen also to be on Social Security rolls or enrolled for Medicare. But their federal welfare checks erating law is to assure $130 a month in income for an individual and $195 for a couple. Persons affected must remember that the program is supplementary; that the federal authorities will supply only those amounts needed to bring monthly income up to the stated levels; other sources of income will be figured in.

Nevertheless, the impending change will have an important standardizing effect. Presently there are vast differences among the states in amounts of aid paid to people in the adult categories. Eligibility rules vary; red tape abounds; there are more inequities and, in the President's words, some indignities (checks made on family budgets). The federal program aims at wiping all these out.

The President himself, and some others, think the 1973 U.S. take-over of the adult categories can be viewed as a step toward the more general welfare reform he and a host of others have proposed.

There is another aspect. For years, activist liberals in Congress and beyond have assailed the Social Security system as offering insulticient support to elderly beneficiaries at the low end of the income scale. They have tried often to set much higher minimum payments than even the updated Social Security program calls for, and urged getting the money from a general revenues rather than payroll taxes.

The "supplementary income" plan just adopted is a way of meeting these demands without seeming to convert Social Security into a welfare program and destroying its basic concept as "social insurance" — a system under which workers set some funds aside and their earnings draw various kinds of protective benefits equal to or exceeding their contributions.

The fact that the Social Security administration will run the supplementary adult program will not necessarily weaken this concept. As noted, the accounting and other record-keeping will be kept separate, and welfare checks issued by SSA will not be combined with payments under Social Security.

Casper goes six under to grab lead in Crosby

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Billy Casper, out of action nearly two months because of torn back muscles, took advantage of slow play because of rain Thursday to shoot a six-under par 68 and grab the first-round lead in the $105,000 Bing Crosby National Invitational by two strokes over Tom Weiskopf.

The 41-year-old Casper, golf's third-leading all-time money winner, made his 1973 debut the Crosby, fourth tourney of the year, and said had it not been for the slow play — it took six hours to play the round — he might not have shot as well as he did. His card at Cypress Point was a brilliant 33 and it included eight birds and only one bogey.

Arslanian quits

OGDEN, Utah (UPI) — Weber state college football coach Sark Arslanian announced his resignation Thursday to make himself available for other opportunities in coaching. Arslanian said he was currently negotiating for a similar job at another school and expected to accept a new job soon. However, he would not say which school. He was under consideration for the top post at the University of Nevada — Las Vegas. Weber officials said they would name a successor in the immediate future. Arslanian served as head coach at Weber for eight years, compiling a 50-26-2 record. His teams tied for the Big Sky conference title in 1965 and 1968. His 1972 Wildcat team posted a 5-5 mark.

Utah sees Olympics slipping

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — I hate to let go of this thing, Mayor E. J. Garn said. "I know we could do a better job housing the 1976 Winter Olympic Games than most areas. Garn and the Utah Olympic Steering Committee said they would not turn back in their bid to obtain the Games until at least next Tuesday. We plan to continue in our efforts to obtain a congressional appropriation — even though we're not optimistic at all at this time. We should have a final decision by Tuesday," he added. He said the Utah group would decide at that time whether to continue or withdraw from the competition leaving only three nations in the running. The Utah committee was seeking federal funding for the games and has asked Congress for $15.5 million. A similar amount had been appropriated by the U.S. House of Representatives for Denver promoters.

SEC chief blasts 1-year scholarship

ATLANTA (UPI) — Southeastern Conference Commissioner H. Boyd McWhorter Thursday called the recently adopted mandatory one-year athletic scholarship the most despicable legislation ever passed by the NCAA. And while McWhorter carefully skirted questions regarding a possible divorce of the so-called major colleges from the NCAA, the commissioner emphasized that a reorganization of the NCAA, putting the major colleges into their own voting division, is the most critical issue to face the NCAA.

Knicks hike home streak

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Knickerbockers, paced by Walt Frazier's 23 points, beat the Buffalo Braves 99-92 Thursday night for their 14th consecutive home-court victory in the National Basketball Association. The Knicks took a quick 9-0 lead to open the game, and were never headed. They led 33-29 at the end of the first quarter and 51-41 at halftime. In the third quarter, the Braves made a bid. With 7:50 in the quarter to play, they went on a 11-2 break, including 11 in a row, to pull within two points, 63-61. Bob McAdoo scored seven points and Bob Kauffman, who scored 20 points in the game, connected for four during the 11-2 streak. But the Knicks held a 69-64 edge as the last quarter began. Elmore Smith paced Buffalo with 21 points and Randy Smith had 18.

McWhorter, who presided over the second day of the SEC's three-day annual meeting, confirmed that he and other major conference heads would meet, probably in Chicago, on Feb. 17 to discuss proposed reorganization plans. The NCAA Council, in what McWhorter called "a courageous move," has called a special meeting in 6 to 10 days, before acting on any of the new NCAA regulations because conference bylaws require a three-week wait and it has been only two weeks since the NCAA met.

Houston ends Bucks' streak

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — The Houston Rockets, paced by Rudy Tomjanovich and Mike Newlin, snapped the Milwaukee Bucks' eight-game winning streak Thursday night, 129-125, despite Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 33 points. Newlin scored 12 points in the final period and finished the night with 24. Tomjanovich scored 29 for the Rockets. Houston rushed to an 18-point lead on a basket by Calvin Murphy with a little less than nine minutes left in the game. However, Bob Dandridge got hot for the Bucks and he and Abdul-Jabbar brought the Bucks to within five points at 124-119 with one minute left. Newlin hit a basket and four free throws in the remaining seconds to put the game out of reach and give new Coach John Egan his second victory in a row.

A-1 sets tourney format

The Twin Falls Bruins will host the Burley Bobcats Feb. 23 in the first game of the district A-1 basketball tournament with the winner traveling to Mimico the following night. That decision, which follows a format established years ago, was confirmed Thursday when the three A-1 schools sent representatives to the tournament meeting.

Under the format, the two losers will resume play March 1 with the first possible championship slated March 2. That will leave March 3 for a possible extra session. Again the A-1 schools will include asophomore preliminary to all games and crown a champion if possible. However, it will not be a pure tournament in that the sophomore participants will be the same as those meeting in the varsity final.

Los Angeles Rams acquired quarterback John Hadl of the San Diego Chargers in a trade Thursday for defensive end Coy Bacon and running back Bobby Thomas. "Roman Gabriel is a fine quarterback," said Carroll Rosenbloom, the Rams' owner, of his team's star quarterback who has a $200,000-a-year, no trade, no cut contract. "But he was injured much of the time last year and this was a move to shore up the position." Hadl, 32, was the Chargers' third round draft choice in 1961 after making All-America two years at the University of Kansas. He has completed 4,324 of 3,641 passes for 26,930 yards and the sixth highest total in AFL history. "Teams that consistently end up as champions are those which have good support at quarterback," Rosenbloom said. Rosenbloom's assistant, Don Klosterman, said the trade would give the Rams "depth at a very important position and definitely upgrades our football team."

But the pattern stops short of Lyndon B. Johnson. And it did not begin again with Mr. Nixon not so far, at any rate.
