Lean US government Nixon goal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, proclaiming the nation basically "sound, and full of promise," today renewed his call for leaner government and more reliance on the individual to make hard decisions at home and abroad.

Most difficult periods in our history without surrendering to despair and without dishonoring our ideals as a people.

State of the Union address. Nixon said the first part of the decade of the 70s has been good.

The President offered few details of his proposals for a government that could tax less and interfere less with the daily life of the people.

achieving without the will to succeed and the strength to sacrifice. Hard decisions must be made and we must stick by them.

credibility will remain intact, and with it, the world stability of which it is so indispensable a part.

Promoting economic growth. —Preserving and enhancing the environment. —Advancing health and education.

freedom for the individual American to earn a rightful place in his community —and for the states and localities to address their own needs in their own ways, in the light of their own priorities.

$2.07 million asked for CSI

By DAVID ESPO

BOISE — College of Southern Idaho president Dr. James Taylor asked the legislature Thursday for junior college academic funding of $2.07 million for the next year.

Taylor appeared before the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee to make the annual budget presentations for CSI and North Idaho College in Coeur d'Alene.

His proposals amounted to an increase of $700,000 over academic aid for the current year, and $630,000 more than Gov. Cecil D. Andrus requested in his executive budget.

In addition, the two schools want $1.32 million for vocational education, an increase over this year's $936,000.

CSI also renewed its request for $2.1 million for a vocational education building on campus, while North Idaho College asked for a supplemental appropriation of $170,000 to complete a General Sciences Building already authorized.

The request asked for the NIC money in general revenue sharing funds, which president Dr. Barry Schuler said met the approval of the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council.

CSI was granted $42,000 planning money for its construction by the 1971 legislature and Taylor told the lawmakers Thursday the preliminary work was finished and the college was awaiting the go-ahead to begin building.

Preliminary indications, however, are not favorable, since the recommendations of the advisory council to the governor and passed on by him to the legislature omit CSI's request.

Of the total academic aid requests, CSI would receive the greater proportion because of its size. The breakdowns include:

- College of Southern Idaho: $961,303, direct academic aid; $130,000 for nursing programs; $114,661 for the employment retirement fund; $1,016,120, vocational education; $2.1 million, vocational building;
- North Idaho College: $647,108, direct academic aid; $130,000; $89,000 retirement; $693,234, vocational education; $170,000 supplemental building request.

Taylor told the joint committee that the average cost per student has risen 27 per cent in the past four academic years from $1,036 in fiscal year 1970-71 to an estimated $1,337 for the coming fiscal year.

Jobless rate at 5 per cent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate dropped to 5 per cent in January, lowest since July, 1970, the government said today.

The decline was reported from a December level of 5.1 per cent in spite of a small drop in the number of persons with jobs, the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) said.

The December rate originally was reported as 5.2 per cent, but the BLS said an annual revision of its statistical base dropped it to 5.1 per cent.

President Nixon set a target two years ago of reducing unemployment to 4.5 per cent, revising that last year to a goal of 5 per cent by the end of 1972.

The actual number of jobless workers rose in January by more than half a million to 3.7 million. After seasonal adjustment, the jobless rolls declined from 4.5 million to 4.4 million.

The number of persons with jobs declined 1.3 million to 85.71 million but after seasonal adjustment the decline was set at only 300,000 to 86.9 million.

The unemployment rate was on 3.3 per cent when President Nixon began his first term four years ago, but it first a sharp rise in 1970 and hung at about 6 per cent from November, 1970, through last May before beginning to decline.

The BLS said unemployment rates showed little or no change in January for most groups of workers. Jobless rates were 3.3 per cent for adult men, 5.3 per cent for adult women, 4.6 per cent for married workers, 2.4 per cent for white men and 2.9 per cent for heads of households.

But the unemployment rate for teenagers dropped sharply from 15.7 per cent down to 14.3 per cent, lowest level in nearly three years. The rate for Negro workers edged down from 9.6 to 8.9 per cent after averaging 10 per cent all of last year.

The jobless rate for factory workers went up from 4.4 per cent in December to 5 per cent in January.

Shadow falls

PUNXSUTAWNY, Pa. (UPI) — Punxsutawney Phil climbed out of his underground home atop Gobbler's Knob as his sun rose today, saw his shadow and scurried back into his hole—a sure sign of six "more" weeks of winter weather.

The hundreds of persons turned out on a mild, cloudy morning to get first hand Phil's annual Groundhog Day weather prediction. The witnesses said the groundhog saw his shadow immediately an emerging from his winter burrow at 7:29 a.m. EST.

Had he not seen his shadow, that would have meant an early spring.

Phil's followers ignored the fact the current winter in these parts thus far has been exceptionally mild and springlike.

It rained most of the night, but Phil's fans began gathering on Gobbler's Knob before 6 a.m. Many of the adults were decked out in formal morning clothes and top hats. Scores of college and high school students came by bus from other communities in western Pennsylvania.

CAA backing withdrawn

TWIN FALLS — Community Improvement Association chairman Gary L. Kretz today announced withdrawal of support of the "administration" of the South Central Community Action Agency.

A letter from Kretz, which he said represents the feeling of the entire CIA membership, was read Thursday night by Rev. John Wallace, chairman of the Twin Falls County CAA board of directors, during the annual election meeting.

Kretz said the CIA still subscribes to the principles of the Community Action programs but not to the present administration.

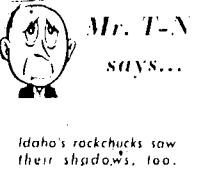

Robert Russell, director of the Tri-County CAA, said he had no comment on the letter at this time and had only heard it read but did not have a copy. He said it will be submitted Tuesday night to a meeting of the South Central CAA board meeting in Jerome. This includes representation from Twin Falls, Jerome and Cassia counties.

In the letter the CIA group, which represents low income families of Magic Valley, stressed basic with the theory and basic philosophies of the CIA to help low income people help themselves.

"These programs receive our highest endorsement and we shall support fully any such programs with this concept," the letter stated.

"As of Aug. 1, 1972, we have been unable to coordinate efforts with the present administration of SCCAA and the result has been near stagnation of our programs and goals," Kretz's letter stated. Russell took office Aug. 1, 1972.

CSI channel due on air in March

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — After four-and-a-half years of planning, the College of Southern Idaho may have an educational television transmitter relaying programs to Magic Valley residents by March.

CSI president Dr. James L. Taylor said Wednesday the school's TV installation has been "plunged" by numerous delays, some due to weather and some due to equipment, but should be operative by March 15.

The facilities will be limited to a 60-foot tower already in place on Jerome Butte and a 100-watt transmitter, Taylor said. The equipment will enable CSI to receive a signal from educational station KATD on the Boise State College campus and relay that signal to residents in Twin Falls and Jerome counties.

Taylor said the television programming will complement existing courses at CSI to some degree, but he sees the programming helping other classroom instruction more.

"In my opinion," Taylor said, "the system will be more advantageous to elementary and secondary schools than to CSI."

When completed, the CSI facilities will be part of one of three educational television systems currently operating in the state. CSI will extend the Boise State station's range. The other two educational stations are located on the Idaho State University campus and the University of Idaho campus.

Taylor said no plans are currently afoot for CSI to receive and relay from ISU or U of I.

Taylor has been working to get television facilities at CSI for several years, and more than once he has announced a date for the TV operations to begin only to run into red tape and other delays.

Taylor said Wednesday the biggest delay came in securing a construction permit from the Federal Communications Commission. This was finally granted last October, after a year-and-a-half of application and reapplication, Taylor said.

Taylor said the CSI facilities will be funded 95 per cent by industry funds and 5 per cent by college funds. He declined to disclose the industry funding until the transmitter is in operation.

Taylor said the installation of a translator and the necessary connections remains before the transmitter begins operation.

"We have not contracted this work," Taylor said, "it's being done on a lend-lease basis, working with voluntary help."

Taylor said the first translator donated to CSI proved too costly to adapt to CSI's needs. He said a new piece of equipment has been obtained but has to be reprogrammed to receive a single such as intended for CSI.

Fighting slackens

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese military spokesmen said today that there were no major actions under way anywhere in the country, the first time Saigon has officially reported a slackening in the post-truce action.

The South Vietnamese military command reported 200 violations of the cease-fire by Communists during the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today, a dozen more than in its last report Thursday.

But a spokesman said the level of fighting was subsiding. "No major actions are going on anywhere," a spokesman said. "Figures of enemy initiated incidents seem to show that activity is decreasing day after day."

The latest reported violations raised the post-truce total of 2,000.

The drop in the intensity of post-truce combat coincided with the arrival in the field of the first cease-fire supervisors from Canada, Indonesia, Poland and Hungary. But the cease-fire policing operation itself has not started.

The spokesman said fighting since the cease-fire has killed 3,338 Communist troops, 539 South Vietnamese soldiers and 17 civilians.

Truce supervisors meet

SAIGON (UPI) — The four-party Joint Military Commission (JMC), which is to arrange the release of American prisoners of war, held its first meeting today.

Heads of the four delegations — the United States, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong — met for four hours in a former U.S. Air Force building on Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airbase. They met under tight security and there was no statement about what progress they made, if any.

The JMC also is responsible for making arrangements for the cease-fire supervisory teams. Two dozen supervisors since Saigon for the first time since the cease-fire began last Sunday. They inspected future headquarters sites in three cities.

A Canadian member of the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS), Col. Keith MacGregor, said in Polku: "As soon as the JMC gives the word, my men can be here almost immediately."

Gem humanities unit meets

TWIN FALLS — Anyone interested is invited to attend a meeting of the Association for the Humanities in Idaho at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Shields Building at the College of Southern Idaho.

The group, an offshoot of the National Endowment for the Humanities established by Congress in 1965, is seeking grassroots opinion on problems facing Idaho citizens.

"We are really dedicated to finding the people who are never asked," said Rose Bowman, executive secretary of the state organization. "We are canvassing the state to find out what public policy issues are on the minds of the people."

The Idaho association is made up of 15 citizens from around the state. The Twin Falls member is Dr. Birdall N. Carle, pathologist at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Carle said the meeting Saturday is a searching out for ideas from which concrete proposals might develop. Members of the association will be at the meeting to explain to the public what the association is and what it is attempting to do, he said. He said the meeting will probably last until about 3 p.m. and a luncheon will be served.

Sessions will be in Rooms 101, 102, 103 and 115 of the Shields Building.

Mrs. Bowen said the state group is currently operating on a planning grant of $15,000 from the national endowment. She said the current opinion canvassing effort will result in a theme being chosen and then the state organization will apply for a $150,000 grant from the national endowment which will be granted to non-profit organizations in Idaho which submit viable proposals to explore the chosen theme.

Mrs. Bowen said state based programs such as this one in Idaho were started two years ago. Six states initiated programs at that time, she said. She said a process similar to that now being undertaken in Idaho resulted in the theme "Man and the Land" being chosen in Oregon.

Montana chose the theme "Political Power," she said.

Mrs. Bowen said the Idaho association cannot and does not take an advocacy position. She said once the current planning stage is completed the organization will be basically a funding agency for non-profit groups which submit proposals. She said the program is aimed at the problems and ideas of the adult population and not geared to students and professors.

The beauty of the whole program, Mrs. Bowen said, is its grassroots approach. "When has any agency gone out and asked, 'What would you like life to be like?'"

Mrs. Bowen said one meeting has been held in Moscow and at least 20 are planned around Idaho before a theme is chosen. She said the association is hopeful that out of the meeting in Twin Falls people will come forth who can help organize a meeting in the Burley-Rupert area and in the smaller communities in southern Idaho. She said the agency is getting more public response than it had planned.

TICKETS FOR Magic of Hawaii trip are received by Tom Barkell, assistant manager for King's, Inc., and Mrs. E. R. Nelson, Twin Falls, Route 1, from Wiley Dodds, Times-News advertising director. Mrs. Nelson was chosen to receive a trip for two to Hawaii Thursday.

Most TF County taxes collected

TWIN FALLS — County Treasurer and Tax Collector Ruth K. Jones said Thursday that 69.53 per cent of the county's real property taxes were collected by the Dec. 20 deadline.

According to Mrs. Jones, the total tax charge for 1972 was $6,500,613.94, of which $4,518,175.51 was collected by the Dec. 20 deadline. The outstanding balance of $1,982,438.43 is due by the June 20 deadline of the second collection period, as prescribed by Idaho Law.

Mrs. Jones said the largest single real property tax payment collected was $300,288.72 from Idaho Power Co. The smallest tax payment was for 19 cents and came from a single individual, Mrs. Jones said. She added that all collections have been computed and her books are in balance.

Mrs. Jones said her tax records show an unpaid balance of $38,023.26 due from 1971 real property taxes and $13,211.81 due from 1970 taxes. According to law, taxes must be delinquent for three years before the county can file for a tax deed on property.

Idaho law provides for a 2 per cent penalty and 8 per cent interest on overdue taxes. Mrs. Jones said unpaid taxes for the first half of 1972 are now delinquent. Her books are now open for payment, she added.

Mrs. Jones said that tax payments were heavy through the four week period beginning Nov. 27 and that mail payments were heavy through the final week of collection. Taxpayers who sent payments by mail, Mrs. Jones said, were mailed receipts some time ago. Anyone who has not received a receipt, she said, should contact the county treasurer's office.

Panel proposes Gem revamp bill

BOISE (UPI) — In a move that surprised nobody, the House State Affairs Committee Thursday called for introduction of its chairman's government reorganization proposal.

Republicans used their numerical strength on the committee to assure introduction of the bill by a strictly party-line vote. Their action followed another attempt on the floor by the Democrats to force Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' bill out of the committee.

Rep. Harold Snow, R-Moscow, yielding the committee chair to Rep. J. Vard Chaburn, R-Albion, while he put forth his proposal, said his bill is similar to Andrus'.

A principal difference is that Republicans would control the interim study commission under Snow's bill while the body would be bipartisan under Andrus' proposal.

Additionally, Snow's bill would require the governor to share in the executive reorganization project by appointing two members of the commission.

Andrus proposed a 12-member commission composed strictly of legislators — six from each house and evenly divided by political party. Snow proposes a 14-member commission with four Republicans and two Democrats from each house and two appointed by the Governor — giving the GOP an 8-6 edge.

Both bills call for a $140,000 appropriation from non-recurring federal revenue sharing funds. Snow's bill would put any leftover money back into the revenue sharing fund.

Andrus' commission would expire next Jan. 1. Snow's would expire when the commission submitted its final report to the governor and the legislature — a date that could coincide with the end of the legislators' terms in office.

Additionally, Snow's bill would give the commission subpoena power.

Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, questioned this provision. Snow said he put it there in case the commission had problems in getting cooperation or information from any state agency.

"As drafted its potential is to be highly partisan," Miss McDermott said. "This could be used for a witch hunt."

Snow agreed it could become a "witch hunt" — depending on who served on the commission.

Earlier in the day, Assistant Minority Leader Bruce Sweeney, D-Lewiston, tried to force the governor's bill out of the state affairs committee.

"If the intention of the powerful chairman of state affairs is to put the bill to rest it should be put to rest here," Sweeney said. "It should get a proper run on the floor."

But Chaburn defended the committee.

"It was in deference to the administration that we introduced the bill in the first place," Chaburn said.

"If we had held without introducing you couldn't arise here every morning... we know this exercise for what it is."

Awards given

First time winner due to make Hawaii visit

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. E. R. Nelson, Twin Falls, Route 1, became a contest winner for the first time Thursday.

She was selected to receive a holiday for two in Hawaii as a member of the Magic of Hawaii tour leaving Twin Falls Feb. 12.

She has never been to Hawaii before, either. So she and her husband — who will accompany her — will find the trip doubly enjoyable.

Mrs. Nelson's name was chosen from among thousands of entries in a contest sponsored by the Times-News and Twin Falls merchants as part of the annual Million Dollar Days sales promotion.

"You have to be kidding," was her reaction when she was informed that she was the contest winner by Wiley Dodds, advertising director for the Times-News.

Dodds presented Mrs. Nelson with tickets for the trip Thursday afternoon. He also presented Tom Barkell, assistant manager at King's, with tickets for two since he represented the store where the winning entry was deposited.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. Barkell attended a "farewell party" at the Rogerson Roundup Room Thursday evening for the 72 persons making the trip by jet airliner from Twin Falls to Hawaii via Los Angeles.

O. A. (Gus) Kelker, Times-News editor, and Mrs. Betty Kelker, representing Magic Carpet Travels, will lead the tour. They served as host and hostess for the party at the Rogerson.

Monday hearing probes audits of water board

By GEORGE FRANK
BOISE (UPI) — A special hearing will be held Monday morning which may get to the bottom of why the executive and legislative audits of the Idaho Water Resource Board were so different.

Considering the time the audits have consumed — floor debate and closed-floor talk — they may rank as a top issue during this session of the Idaho Legislature.

Rep. William Roberts, R-Buhl, co-chairman of the Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee, said Thursday that a committee hearing on the so-called "secret" audit conducted by the executive branch's Administrative Services will be held Monday at 8:30 a.m.

Roberts said Robert Lenaghan, acting director of Administrative Services, has been asked to appear along with the members of the team who conducted the management study.

The audit called for the consolidation of the IWRB and the Department of Water Administration, and was generally critical of former water resource Director Dr. Robert Lee. Lee resigned the position in January and joined a private irrigation company in southeast Idaho.

Lee will appear at the hearing Monday and may be given a chance to refute the report which he says bends on "character assassination."

The management study by administrative services was held confidential by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus until the Idaho Senate demanded a copy of the document.

Several days after the audit was made public, the Legislative Auditor's office presented a management study of the IWRB which generally praised the board and its director.

Roberts said he did not know if the hearing would deal with the comparison of the two studies.

"We're concerned with the management study of the Department of Administrative Services," Roberts said.

Burglary charges accuse 2 TF men

JEROME — Two Twin Falls men facing robbery and assault charges in Twin Falls were arraigned on additional charges of burglary here Thursday.

James (Skipper) Robinson, 23, and Paul J. Bjornson, 24, were arraigned in Jerome County Magistrate Court Thursday on charges of first degree burglary. Both requested preliminary hearings. Judge Russell C. Shaud set bond on the two at $3,000 apiece.

Bjornson and Robinson are accused of entering into the 88 Club one mile south of Jerome during the night on Nov. 14 with intent to commit the crime of larceny.

Judge Shaud did not set a date for preliminary hearings in the case. He did make arrangements for Phil Becker, Jerome County public defender, to represent the two men.

Bjornson and Robinson were arrested earlier by Twin Falls police in connection with the robbery of the Union Bus Depot on Nov. 20 and the shooting of bus station attendant Roy Gwinn.

Barber interrupted

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls barber had an interruption in his work Thursday afternoon.

A vehicle entered his shop. City police reported a vehicle driven by Larry W. Johnson, 21, Buhl, went through the front wall of a building at 285 Addison Ave. W. about 1 p.m. Thursday.

The driver, a diabetic, told officers he had taken insulin but had not eaten and apparently blacked out, losing control of his vehicle.

Johnson, a student at CSI, was not injured. Ken Greene, a barber whose shop is located in the building, was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital for treatment of minor injuries and released. He was knocked to the floor by the impact and one of the two barber chairs in the shop was knocked over, officers said.

Police cited Johnson with driving with an expired driver's license. Damage to the building was estimated at $1,000 and to the 1963 station wagon driven by Johnson at $500.

Firemen eye bargaining

By BONNIE JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — About 35 fire fighters from Idaho, Utah and Wyoming are meeting in Twin Falls today to review the finer points of collective bargaining.

A seminar sponsored by the International Association of Fire-Fighters will conclude this afternoon for fire fighters from the three-state area — Clare Harkins, Twin Falls, secretary-treasurer of the Idaho State Fire Fighters Council, said this is the first such seminar held in this area.

It is designed to help the fire fighter locals in procedure during negotiation sessions for contracts with municipalities and other public agencies.

"Working conditions of the fire fighters, said Jim Martinez, vice-president of the Seventh District are unique among workers. Most firemen work unusually long shifts per week, he said, and their jobs are the most hazardous because of continuous exposure to heavy smoke, fire and falling material.

In their efforts to improve working conditions, Martinez said, firemen consider safety measures as a prime need. For example, he said, Idaho has no fire marshal to enforce fire safety standards and the association is again backing legislation for such a position.

In Twin Falls, firemen work 56 hour weeks and frequently work in extremely unfavorable conditions and at any time of the day or night, Clare Harkins, secretary-treasurer of the Idaho Fire-Fighters Council, said.

Health and safety programs are of prime importance to fire fighters, he said.

Sessions opened Thursday morning in the Holiday Inn's Sawtooth room.

Speakers during the seminar include Dr. Ross Atwood, director of education, International Association of Fire-Fighters, Washington, D. C., and Joe O'Donnell, professor of Harvard trade union programs.

Speakers discussed pending and newly adopted legislation which will assist the fire fighting profession.

Pointing out the loss of life from fires — each year is around 12,000 persons, speakers said, this is more than the loss from polio during the peak of the disease.

In a meeting with President Nixon, the National Commission on Fire Prevention and Control, the President recognized the hazards of fire fighting and the need for more efforts toward control and prevention of fires.

In their seminar sessions here, fire fighters also emphasized the need to support

Nevada man draws term

TWIN FALLS — Danny Jay Garrett, 23, Elko, Nev., was sentenced to the custody of the Idaho State Board of Corrections for a period not to exceed five years Thursday.

Garrett appeared before Fifth District Court Judge James F. Cunningham for sentencing. He had pleaded guilty to a charge of receiving stolen property on Jan. 15.

Garrett was arrested Sept. 12 on a grand larceny charge in which it was alleged that he stole a three-wheel dune buggy type vehicle belonging to Danny Weaver, Buhl, on June 9, 1972. The grand larceny charge was reduced to receiving stolen property on Jan. 10.

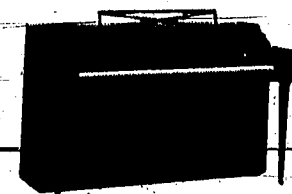

proposed legislation which will strengthen fire and building regulations aimed at reducing fire losses.

Conduct meeting

Connally To Replace Kissinger

WASHINGTON -- With the stage is set for another Dr. Henry Kissinger, long and tortuous quest for momentous "changing-of-the-guard" peace in Vietnam concluded, will step out as Assistant to the handling of the problem, and with his brick, no-nonsense manner, with the European officials and central bankers. Throughout the eventful deliberations, they were unquestionably strongly influenced by Connally's firm self-assurance and forthright plain talk.

Shoveling Snow

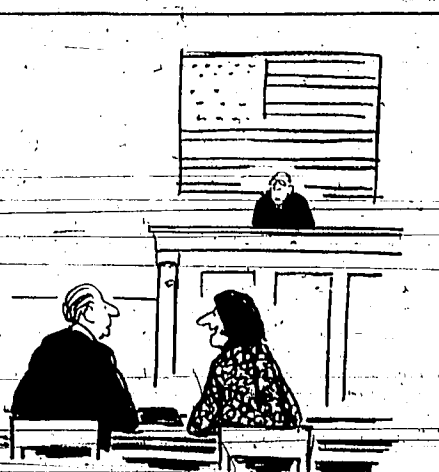

Dear Dr. Thosteson: After the last heavy snowstorm, I read that eight men died of heart attacks shoveling snow. Can you educate us guys in this area? Exactly what is it about shoveling that brings on a heart attack? How does it hit one? Does one get a warning first? Why is it so different from other exercising? -- H.W.

Under sudden, heavy strain, the heart chambers can enlarge a bit, the arteries become slightly elongated -- and narrowed just enough so circulation shuts off at one point or another.

Planet aneurysm (weak, bulgy place) may exist in the aorta, and rupture under the exertion. Or sometimes a diseased heart, under strain, may go into a disturbance of rhythm called fibrillation, and that can at times be fatal. Or a heart chamber can rupture.

Why when shoveling snow? Well, scraping off a light fall isn't very strenuous, but a wet snow can be quite heavy. One physicist estimated a shovelful of snow to weigh between 8 and 15 pounds. It depends on the size of the shovel, obviously, and the wetness of the snow. It takes a lot more energy to lift a shovelful, repeatedly, than to swing a golf club. Also there is a continuous strain, shovel after shovel.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Would you be teed-off if I plead guilty, like those dudes in the Watergate case?"

A Secret Peace?

You could hardly tell a dove from a hawk in Congress (and may we never need to use those terms again) when the Vietnam cease-fire was announced.

presidential peace. In the beginning, lacking the full information on which Lyndon B. Johnson based his fateful decisions, Congress could only trust his judgment as did the nation as a whole.

While the former were perhaps not as brimming over as the latter with praise for President Nixon's steadfastness in pursuing a peace agreement that has a chance of working and lasting, both were united in their expressions of joy that the war has finally come to an end.

(Indeed, the American public still lacks that information and we are having a trial -- the "Pentagon Papers" trial -- over the revelation of some of the secret assessments and reports which led to our involvement in Vietnam.)

A pointed -- almost poignant -- comment was made by one congressman, however.

In the middle of the war, lacking solutions or a consensus on alternatives, Congress could only continue to support the President. Its repeal of the Tonkin Gulf resolution, which President Johnson had used as his authority to take whatever steps he considered necessary to meet North Vietnam's military threat to South Vietnam, was a symbolic gesture, changing neither the pattern nor the present.

"The President has been so secretive both about his warmaking and peacemaking," said Rep. James V. Stanton, Ohio Democrat, "that I and other members of Congress up until this time lack sufficient information to judge whether President Nixon has achieved a peace with honor, whatever he means by that word. We find ourselves in a situation where a very complicated war ends up in a highly complicated truce."

Finally, at the end, Congress was reduced almost to a position of impotence and futility, talking endlessly about voting a cut-off of war funds by this date or that date, yet fearful of undercutting President Nixon in the Paris negotiations.

"Now that reasons for secrecy no longer exist, as President Nixon himself asserted Tuesday night (Jan. 23), I would hope that he takes Congress into his confidence and seeks the legislative branch in efforts to maintain the peace."

Even now it may be asked what Congress can contribute, as Stanton hopes, to "efforts to maintain the peace." If it so much as debates a ban on any retaliatory use of U.S. air power in case the Communists break the peace, it will no doubt be accused of encouraging the very possibility of renewed aggression.

That, in a nutshell, pretty well sums up the role of Congress throughout the Vietnam War. It was an executive war, a presidential war, from beginning to end and Stanton has good reason to wonder if it is also going to be a

MR. SPECTATOR

Restraining The Rod

Every once in a while -- even in Twin Falls -- some teacher takes a swing at some student and then there is the usual argument. (We will probably get a complaint on saying this, but it happens every now and then).

CALORIE COUNTING

Calorie counting has become a national sport among middle-aged men. And women. Everyone seems to know what a calorie does, but few know what a calorie is.

Knowing some of the kids, we do not blame the teachers. That's one of the reasons, really, why Mr. Spectator could never be a public school instructor. We just haven't been in the habit of standing for any nonsense. But that's another story. Getting back to the classroom activity, we thought we would pass on to you what they do about things like this over in Britain -- and what Britain is doing about it.

It started in 1794 with a French chemist named Antoine Lavoisier whose experiments led to development of a standard measurement for a unit of heat -- a calorie. This unit represented, to Lavoisier, the amount of heat necessary to raise the temperature of one gram of water one degree centigrade.

As part of its strict disciplinary code to maintain order in the classroom, Britain long has observed a tradition of corporal punishment -- popularly called "caning" -- in its educational system. The punishment is applied by the teacher on the spot at his own discretion.

Then biochemists and nutritionists came on the scene because heat is a form of energy. Finally Wilbur Atwater designed a system for measuring the caloric value of foods. Dr. Atwater's "kilogram calories" are, to the world of nutrition, 1,000 times larger than Lavoisier's "small calories" and he gave the values used ever since in nutrition and calorie-counting.

Recent polls indicate overwhelming majorities of both teachers and parents approve of the system. Although a teachers' group has been organized to oppose capital punishment, its membership is a mere 700 out of 400,000 educators.

Calories represent little more than the energy-giving components of food. When one absorbs more than his energy requirements, the body stores them away for later use. Usually in rolls of fat, many try to hide.

Even so, "caning" has been abolished in the primary grades in Britain beginning in 1973. The older grades are not included in the ban. Teachers and school administrators are fighting the partial ban, on the grounds that it removes an effective disciplinary weapon from their hands.

Those who have tried to diet and know that it takes a deficit of 3,500 calories to lose one pound of body fat, will have scant sympathy for Lavoisier's ultimate fate. He was beheaded for his political activities.

The controversy is not a new one. Samuel Johnson referred to it nearly 200 years ago when he wrote "There is now less flogging in our great schools than formerly -- but then less is learned there, so that what the boys get at one end they lose at the other."

Rocky '76?

WASHINGTON (NEA) -- Talks with the state Republican officials, who were tapped in a kind of mini-survey, disclose surprising 1976 presidential interest in Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

leaders mention him, but few do so favorably. He is clearly anathema to the South, and there is an unmistakable undercurrent of animosity toward him in some northern places. The articulated complaints, too pushy, too transparently "on the make" for 1976, not loyal enough to Mr. Nixon.

His own state leaders say there is at least a 50 per cent chance he will run for a fifth term next year, and they think he could win it. Nobody seems terribly bothered by the fact that this hardy perennial would be 68 in 1976.

Asked about Percy, a Rockefeller man laughs and says, "He's in the position we used to be in."

Even in a reasonably conservative bastion like Illinois there is a lot of Rockefeller talk though the state has its own moderate presidential prospect, Sen. Charles Percy.

He's in the position we used to be in. With all this, I heard no forecasts of Rockefeller's nomination. The southern thing is still a handicap. And, up to now, Rocky sipeople never have shown the needed strategic skills at the national level.

A southern party leader doubts that Rocky would score heavily there -- against some conservative rival, but agrees with those in other regions that the governor is far more acceptable across-the-board than he used to be. Speaking for his own area, the southerner adds: "He's changed, and we've changed."

On paper, at least, the real edge today belongs to Vice President Spiro Agnew. Niggling stuff about him, not knowing state party people don't count for much. Most leaders I spoke to came with one who says:

What this man is talking about, of course, is Rockefeller's evident bent toward a more conservative stance, as been in his tough prescription for the drug problem, his fiscal caution, and his virtually total support of President Nixon. Mr. Nixon's capture of New York last fall with 59 per cent in the vote is remembered well. The genuine interest in Rocky is laid news for Percy. Most

He can correct that in a month's time if he wants to. Agnew's advisers think he wants to and will do so, but not too quickly, since there isn't much real interest yet. The fact about the state party setup is that a lot of the people are new, and nobody knows very many of them well.

Agnew's bigger problem is finding ways to measure himself satisfactorily against the magnitude of the presidency. As noted before, he needs carefully chosen, serious assignments, and must execute them well.

Idaho hunting 'gone,' Boise solon contends

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News writer
BOISE—Rep. John Reardon, D-Boise, told a House committee Thursday that hunting "as we have known it" in Idaho is gone.
He suggested the committee approve legislation setting a statewide opening date for deer and elk hunting and limit the season to 45 days.
But Rep. Ray Lincoln, R-Twin Falls, said if the legislature was going to get into the "game-management business," it didn't need the Fish and Game Commission.
A representative of the Fish and Game Department said the legislature had let the department handle big game management since it created the department over 30 years ago.

Rep. J. Ward Chatburn, R-Albion, committee chairman, said legislation such as Reardon discussed was "old hat," but none had ever been approved.
Reardon addressed the committee for several minutes near the end of its meeting, telling the members that a "new factor, man" had upset the "ecology" of game herds.
"In five years we will have 60 more deer or elk," he predicted.
While careful not to point the finger at Fish and Game Department Director Joseph Greenley, Reardon nonetheless said the department's own figures showed a decrease in the furd count over the last several years, as well as a decrease in the take during the hunting season.

Greenley admitted the animal population was down, although he said the Fish and Game commissioners were also aware and were prepared with "further action" this year.
Rep. Emery Hedlund, D-St. Maries, told Reardon the bill under discussion, which would set the opening of deer and elk season near the beginning of October, could lead to a "slaughter" in parts of northern Idaho.
Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft, R-Tuttle, told committee members, however, he had heard complaints from some sportsmen in southern Idaho, that staggered opening days made it possible to follow the migration of some herds.
The committee took no formal action on the bill, although further discussion is expected.
Reardon said later in the day he would not oppose a measure to ban certain types of hunting in the state for two years, although he is not preparing legislation that would accomplish that end.

In other action, the committee held further discussions on a proposal by Rep. Steve Anton, R-Rupert, that would increase the out of state bird hunting fee from $5 to $50.
Anton said the measure is aimed to decrease the "harassment" some landowners in Minidoka County experience from the large number of hunters.
He said earlier this week Oregon already had a fee of $50.
The committee also voted to print a bill that Department of Water Administration Keith Higginson said was needed in light of a recent state Supreme Court decision.
Higginson said a court decision had left watermasters in organized water districts without the authority to enforce established priorities for water rights.
Chatburn called the measure "important legislation."

Discrepancy in study, audit needs resolving

By DWIGHT JENSEN
Special to the Times-News
BOISE—Rep. William Roberts, R-Buhl, says the legislature "has to get to the bottom" of an apparent discrepancy between a management study of the Idaho Water Resource Board staff made by the executive branch of state government and an audit of the same staff by the legislative branch.

Each was hired by a Republican administration and were already on the job when Gov. Cecil Andrus was

The same management expert who scorned the Landeen-Ineck questions said Strahler and Woods should have given Lee a draft copy of their report before they sent it forward and allowed him to

Audit analyzed

But the discrepancy may be more apparent than real, and the bottom might be reached without much digging.

The management study reported a "near void" of leadership by former executive director Robert R. Lee, said morale on the professional staff was low, turnover was high, and the staff had become so involved in marginal projects that it was losing sight of its main job, drafting a state water plan. Lee, they said, was not communicating with his staff and was not cost-conscious.
The legislative audit found that morale was good, the staff was doing its job, and the professional staff liked Lee. It said the staff was doing only legitimate work, nothing marginal.

gave questionnaires to twelve professional staff members then employed and to four who had quit during the preceding ten months.
Others had also quit but had left the state and were not surveyed. By contrast, the Department of Water Administration had just only four professional employees in the preceding eight years.

Strahler and Woods say they did not give him a copy but did tell him their main findings and conclusions, and they say Lee argued with them. Lee says the conversation never took place.

The legislative audit was made by Charles Landeen and Ray Ineck. Both are certified public accountants. Landeen has been an accountant with a CPA firm, with the Idaho Power Company, and with the Boise Cascade Corporation.
He had worked for state government less than a year before making this audit. With him was Ineck, a 1971 Boise State College graduate who started working for state government just after graduation. Their expertise is in auditing financial records rather than in management study.

Landeen and Ineck interviewed the professional staff employees who were on the job in October and November, 1972. Almost half of them were on probation, meaning they could be fired without cause by Lee, because they were new on the job. A complaint in the Strahler-Woods survey was that Lee was hiring outsiders instead of promoting present staff members. The Landeen-Ineck survey included interviews with these new staff members.

The Strahler-Woods study says the law tells the board to write a water plan, but Lee was spending more of his time on water development. Landeen-Ineck said one sentence in the law says that Idaho's people need to have water developed, and that constitutes authority for the development projects, even though the sentence does not specify who is to do the developing.

An expert management analyst with years of experience and no interest in the Idaho case, he lives on the West Coast looked at a management questionnaire they had used and said, "This is on the idiot level. You could get an honest answer to every question from every employe and you still wouldn't know what was going on inside the organization."

The Strahler-Woods study contains anonymous comments critical of Lee. The Landeen-Ineck study contains anonymous comments praising Lee. The Strahler-Woods comments were made by professional staff employees who had worked with Lee on a daily basis. The Landeen-Ineck comments were made by 20 men, 15 living outside Idaho, who held political or Strahler and Woods made their study from April to August, 1972; Landeen and Ineck made theirs in September, October, and November. Strahler-Woods began making a management study. Landeen-Ineck began with a financial audit, and began asking management questions after press reports of the Strahler-

Bill supported

BOISE—State Superintendent of Public Instruction D. F. Engelking, appearing before the House Education Committee this week, said he supports a bill that would make his job non-partisan.
The president of the Idaho Association of School Superintendents, Otto Iszler of Wallace, also spoke in favor of the bill to take the office out of party politics.
If the measure passes, the state superintendent would be elected on the same kind of non-partisan ballot as the judges and supreme court justices in the state.

School funds hike proposed

BOISE—The Joint Finance Appropriations Committee heard a request Thursday that public school appropriations should go up $13 million over last year.
Wayne York made the statement before the committee, speaking for the Idaho Unified Education Council.
His request, however, included $1.6 million for kindergarten.
Included in the requests, York said, was $5.7 million earmarked for teacher salaries as well as $2.1 million for inflation, more teachers and increases in average daily attendance on a weighted basis.
York said that by 1973-74, many, many Idaho teachers will not have had a meaningful salary increase in four years. Meanwhile, inflation and teacher salaries in other states have climbed steadily upwards.

Sen. Ralph Yarbrough, R-Grandview, asked another spokesman for the group, Alan Smith, executive director of the Trustees Association, why the percentage of general fund budget, as well as its total appropriations, kept raising, but the state kept falling behind.
Smith replied it was due to inflation and increased demand for new programs, among other factors.

Peanut supports may face curbs

By BERNARD BRENNER

EPA aide address tonight

TWIN FALLS — Donald W. Moos, deputy regional administrator for Region X of the Environmental Protection Agency, will speak in Twin Falls tonight on "Agriculture and the Environment."

He will address the annual winter meeting of the Idaho Society of Rural Appraisers and Farm Managers at 8 p.m. at the Holiday Inn. The public is invited.

Society meetings began today. Members will hear Gray Reynolds, National Recreation Area Superintendent and Ken Pittner, NRA lands assistant. Sawtooth National Forest speak at 9 a.m. Saturday on the Sawtooth National Recreation Area.

TWIN FALLS — The market was active for fancy feeder steers and heifers at Twin Falls Livestock Commission Co. Wednesday.

Good to high choice steers sold 36.00-41.00; standard to low good, 26.00-38.00; utility steers, 23.00-36.00; fed Holstein steers, none; good to choice heifers, 26.00-30.50; standard to low good heifers, 34.00-37.00; utility heifers, 30.00-43.00; commercial and standard cows, 26.00-28.00; thirty cows, 23.00-26.50; canners and cutters, 20.00-23.50; commercial bulls, 33.00-37.00; utility bulls, 30.00-33.00; light bulls, 28.00-31.00.

Stockers and feeders — heavy feeder steers, 38.00-41.00; light feeder steers, 46.00-51.00; common quality steers, 36.00-39.00; Holstein steers, 35.00-46.00; poorer grade steers,

"The worst thing the government and the peanut industry could do is to kid ourselves that something does not have to 'give' in the peanut program in the years ahead," Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz warned industry leaders at a meeting here.

The problem behind Butz's warning is simple:

The government supports peanut prices under an old law which guarantees price protection at a fixed minimum level of a fixed minimum national allotment of 1.6 million acres.

Year by year, growers are increasing per-acre yields, so, year by year the volume of peanuts eligible for support has been growing. And since market growth has not been as fast as production gains, the amount of peanuts going under government support has been rising steadily.

Butz, speaking to his department's national peanut advisory committee, stopped short of any specific indication that he will ask this year for changes in the rigid support law which is forcing government costs up steadily but he left no doubt that changes are likely in the future.

The agriculture secretary said growers, basically, face a choice of three alternatives — lowering the minimum support price, reducing planting allotments, or rapidly increasing commercial sales of peanuts.

Agriculture Department officials who took part in the advisory committee meeting this week also reviewed a number of other potential steps toward halting the steady escalation in the cost of peanut supports.

No conclusions were reached, one participant stressed. But one of the ideas discussed was the possibility of a new peanut law modeled after the government's wheat support program.

Under such a program, peanut producers could be guaranteed a relatively high price for nuts used in domestic food markets. Beyond that, growers would be free to produce as much as they wanted, but price support would be offered only at a low level geared to world prices.

Agriculture Department officials also pointed out they have legal power to take several cost-cutting steps under existing law, including the right to refuse price support protection on peanuts found contaminated by a poisonous mold called aflatoxin.

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's senior senator will address the opening session of the Society for Range Management's annual meeting here Monday.

Sen Frank Church, D-Idaho, will discuss rangelands and politics at the Rodeway Inn.

About 1,000 persons are expected to attend the meeting. Technical sessions Tuesday through Friday will deal with the effects of ecological constraints and social conflicts on range management, livestock grazing on public lands, rangeland wild-life improvement, and range plant ecology.

Sessions also will cover satellite sensing of rangelands, rangeland watersheds, range plant toxicology, rangeland insects, range plant physiology and international range programs. Others scheduled to address the international organization include John R. McGuire, chief of the U. S. Forest Service; professor Lee A. Sharp, University of Idaho; Idaho Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa and Gray Reynolds, superintendent of the Sawtooth National Recreation Area.

TWELVE YEARS of country music jamborees for the Magic Valley Country Music Association have seen some changes: Here Gene Bosserman, left, who originated the events, and charter member Rudy Williamson, center, show newcomer Bob Clay some of the early day scrapbook items. The 12th annual event will be held Feb. 12, 13 and 14.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 29-year-old woman who has been married and divorced three times in the last 10 years. You will probably say what everybody else says when you find out I married and divorced the same man all three times. Our last divorce became final three weeks ago, and now Mike is begging me to marry him again. We have no children and we don't want any. I really love the guy, Abby, but the only time he is good to me is when we're divorced. Mike is a wonderful lover, but he's a rotten husband. When we're man and wife he drinks, runs around, and stays out late. I never know where he is or who he's with, which drives me up a wall.

3 strikes and out

If you knew how much we've spent on lawyers you would think we were out of our minds. I know there will never be any other man for me, but I know if I marry Mike again he'll go back to his old mean, abusive ways. Can you help me? THREE-TIME LOSER

DEAR LOSER: Three strikes and a man is OUT, no matter how good he pitches. Some men are great to date but not to mate, and Mike could be one of them.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 21, and she shares an apartment with another girl. Until she went to college she was very considerate, and since she was an only child we were a very close family.

Altho she was invited, she did not spend Christmas, Thanksgiving, Mother's Day, or Father's Day with us. She sent cards, but she spent those special days with her boy friend and his parents.

Naturally, I was upset, and when I confronted her she said there are 365 days a year to love us, and why should she give up these particular days? She says times have changed and I am square. Am I? VERY HURT

DEAR HURT: No, but don't make an issue of it. I can understand your being "hurt," but if you continue to make her feel guilty, you may see even less of her.

DEAR ABBY: My brother, Bob, was adopted by my family when he was a small baby. Bob is now over legal age, and was just informed that his real mother is an Indian living in Alaska and he is getting money from her oil rights.

Bob says it is all like a dream, because he never knew he was adopted. He is trying to make up his mind whether to go to Alaska to collect the money. He doesn't know what to say to his mother, who is still living, because he has always considered the mother who raised him his one and only mother.

Would you ask your readers how adopted children and real mothers feel after meeting each other after being separated for over 20 years? Is it a good experience or a bad one? NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: I would guess it's almost always a fearfully joyous reunion, but I'll ask. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: Here in Iowa the winters are pretty cold, so my sisters and I have made a habit of putting out food for the squirrels, birds, and rabbits. Today, we had an especially heavy snowfall so we put out a little extra food for the animals and birds.

Today, we saw a little squirrel who had been in our neighborhood for as long as we can remember go into a neighbor's yard and start to eat out of a bird feeder. Abby, this neighbor came out of his house with a shotgun and with one shot KILLED that little hungry squirrel while he was eating! It just made us sick.

Please print this and tell people if they don't want animals in their yard to just chase them away. You can't teach a dead animal anything. And for those of you who do help these little creatures in the winter when food is hard to come by, God bless you!

Love and peace to you, Abby. Please don't use our names, sign us, 18, 18 AND 18 IN WATERLOO.

DEAR 18, 18, AND 18: And love and peace to you, too! I'm sorry you won't allow me to disclose your names. You are three beautiful sisters.

February benefit jamboree planned

TWIN FALLS — Some of the musicians performing in the 12th annual Magic Valley Country Music Jamboree Feb. 12 can look back on the first such event with mixed emotions.

Gene Bosserman whose idea it was to make the events public benefits, said for a number of years the musicians met at homes around Magic Valley. "We got together every winter to play music for fun and to get acquainted with other musicians of the valley. Those were sort of jam sessions and all of the new musicians we had heard about were invited to attend," Bosserman recalls.

Within a short time there were too many musicians for a home and the music was keeping the neighbors awake. "We decided we should share our enjoyment of these jam sessions with country music fans and since we had to rent a hall, we had to have some income. A nominal charge was decided on and we rented the Filer High School Auditorium.

A Lovelier You

MID-WINTER TRAVEL AIDS

By Mary Sue Miller

Whether your destination is a snowy peak or under a coconut palm, there are a few basic beauty aids that should make the trip with you. As a start:

North or South, you need a sun screen and a sunburn spray — the one to prevent burning, the other to relieve that tight, tender feeling after a day on snow or water skis, for instance. Total Skin Care System kits form other indispensable, owing to matching products.

For the hair, a hair dressing, emollient and moisturizer, housed in a total size of unbreakable plastic containers.

Add a protein hair-dressing, labelled for men and women to guard against dry-outs and unmanageable "do's." When you want to pamper yourself, there's nothing like a mini-cosmetic airport, not much bigger than a compact, lighted by rechargeable batteries and housed in a pretty shell case.

For Winter Wonderlands, Bath Silk, trickled into a hot tub, relaxes muscles and soothes a wind-swept body. A hand cream, originally developed for Arctic fishermen, tends off chaps.

For the Palm Tree Set: Cold cream soap, shell pressed and offering secrets of the sea, plus moisturizing hand cream.

Be sure to take, along a sufficient supply of your favorite beautifiers, medications and first-aid remedies. All can be found wherever you go these days; be it as far as Isfahan. But why take time out to search?

Boise woman named TF bank artist

TWIN FALLS — Betty Lungren has been named First Security Bank's February Artist of the Month.

An exhibit of her paintings will be on display at the bank throughout the month.

Mrs. Lungren is a native of Boise and has been interested in all forms of art from an early age. She started drawing animals in pencil and crayon and then began working with water color and pastels. She later began to work in oils, the medium she likes best.

Mrs. Lungren is probably best known for her floral arrangements and design work in recent years. She has had several one-man showings and has studied with various local artists.

Her works have been hung by First Security Bank, Boise Blue Print, the Art Mart, St. Luke's Hospital and Sun Valley Lodge.

Missionary sets talks

BUHL — Rev. J. Raymond Mills, retired missionary, will be guest speaker at the First Christian Church in Buhl Wednesday.

He will speak to the combined groups of the Christian Women's Fellowship at 2 p.m. in the church Fellowship Hall and will address the general membership following a potluck dinner at the church Wednesday at 6:30 p.m.

Rev. and Mrs. Mills began work with Colegio Internacional in Paraguay in 1937. The two worked with the primary and secondary school program of the Christian Church and saw the need for a social center in one of the Paraguay slums. They developed such a center in Asuncion and called it Fellowship Mission. Here they provided library, playground, athletic, dramatic, cooking and sewing, kindergarten, literacy and other classes for residents of that area. They also provided medical and dental clinics and well-baby clinics and developed a special program for deaf mutes, later founding the first school for deaf and dumb in Paraguay.

In addition to addressing the Christian Church groups, Rev. Mills will speak to the Buhl Kiwanis Club Wednesday noon.

He also will speak at the Valley Christian Church, Twin Falls, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. He will discuss Church World Service, a project of the National Council of Churches.

On Friday he will speak to the Christian Women's Fellowship at 1 p.m. at the Jerome First Christian Church. At 7 p.m. a potluck dinner will be held at the Jerome Church honoring the missionary and a slide presentation is planned at 8 p.m. at the church. The public is invited.

Four chaplains abiding legacy

It is now 30 years since the Four Chaplains lost their lives on the troopship Dorchester. On the night of Feb. 3, 1943, four young clergymen gave up their lives to others as they plunged into the cold waters of the North Atlantic.

Although some 300 survivors were picked up by the convoy, at least that many or more went down with the torpedeed troopship off the coast of Greenland. The chaplains—two Protestants, a Catholic and a Jew—were George Lansing of Vermont, Alexander D. Goode of Pennsylvania, Clark V. Poling of New York and John P. Washington of New Jersey.

The details of their rendezvous with American history are most brief and poignant. Their ship was attacked by a German U-boat at 1 a.m. As men and boats abandoned ship, the chaplains assisted in directing and encouraging the personnel in the panic and confusion. When the lifebelt supply was depleted on deck (many of the younger soldiers had left theirs below in a wild scramble for the exits) the four chaplains took off their own and gave them to others leaving the ship. They were last seen by survivors, with their arms joined together, bowing in prayer. Moments later the Dorchester plunged to the bottom of the Atlantic.

By REV. DAVID POLING

Their spontaneous action sparked a wide response to the true meaning of brotherhood. Although they may have been divided by creed and theology, they were united in ministry to the troops and forever joined in death. They belonged together and became a living parable to millions who neglected the word "brotherhood" and could not yet spell "ecumenical."

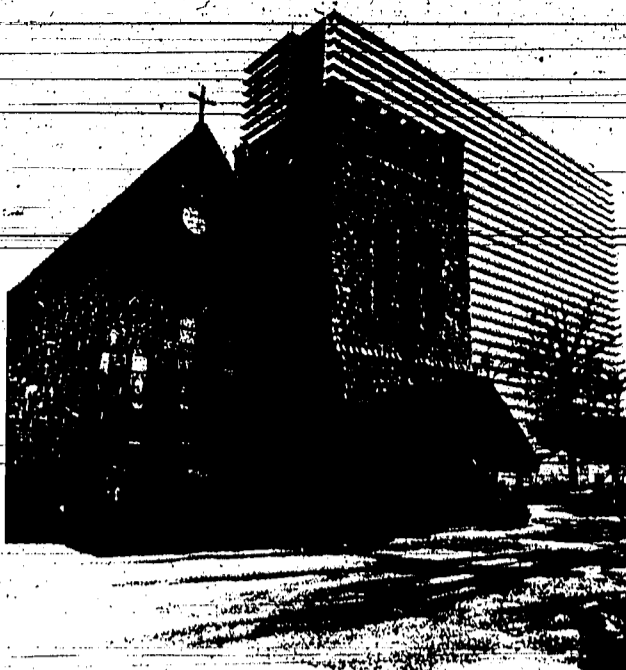

In the years after 1943, many honors and tributes have been offered in memory of the chaplains. A lovely chapel, in Philadelphia, a mountain in New Hampshire, a memorial library in another city—a swimming pool on Long Island. Congress voted the Distinguished Service Cross and later a commemorative stamp.

Yet a new appreciation for the Four Chaplains—as well as the devoted ministry of all clergymen—has come from the concerted efforts of the Christian International. They designated Jan. 28 each as National Clergy Week across the land; chapters of this service club honor pastors, priests, rabbis for their special vocation.

The National Observance was set for the Convention Center in Albuquerque, N.M. Under the guidance of national chairman Jack Dunn, the Civilians invested more than seven months time to creating a major event with two major goals: To honor clergymen of all faiths and to pay tribute to the Four Immortal Chaplains.

It is fitting that the first national observance should be held in Albuquerque, with Bart Starr of the Green Bay Packers as Honorary Chairman. For in the early 1960s, Franklin Swan suggested that the Civilians recognize the work and commitment of their local pastors and felt that Feb. 3, the Four Chaplains day, should be the time to mark the meaning of service. In the following years it became a national experience for Civilians—and this year a major event with participation by the Chief of Army Chaplains, Major Gen. Gerhard Hyatt and Chief of Navy Chaplains, Adm. Francis L. Garrett.

It seems that the last letter of Chaplain Poling to his congregation in Schenectady, N.Y. has been fulfilled: "Our goal is not to gratify our pride or our human desire. It is to hold high the right of our Saviour in a troubled and confused world."

Quartet to sing

TWIN FALLS — The Piney Woods Quartet, Jackson, Miss., will be appearing Sunday in the First Methodist Church in Twin Falls.

Rev. Herbert Morris said the quartet, composed of students at Piney Woods Country Life School, has appeared in Twin Falls previously. They will give a narration by Thomas Jefferson Pruitt.

Following the regular worship service at 11 a.m., a brief program of spiritual music will be presented by the guest artists. A coffee time will follow.

The Piney Woods Quartet is in the area under sponsorship of the National School Assemblies.

ELDER BENNETT
... LDS leader

Cassia E. Stake to meet

BURLEY — Elder William H. Bennett, assistant to the Council of Twelve, of the LDS Church will speak Feb. 10 and 11 in Declo.

Elder Bennett will address the two day conference of the Cassia-East Stake of the LDS Church.

Elder Bennett was formerly director of extension services at Utah State University, Logan, Utah, and has served as dean of the College of Agriculture and as associate professor of agronomy there.

In the conference program he will discuss the church welfare program. The conference will be held Feb. 10 and 11 with the general session at 10 a.m. Sunday in the stake center. Stake President Joseph A. Gillett, Declo, will preside.

Forum speaker

TWIN FALLS — Dr. Don Stephensen will be the forum speaker at the LDS Institute of Religion Friday at noon.

Professor at the College of Southern Idaho during the past three years, Dr. Stephensen will speak in one of a series of 13 Friday lectures. The public is invited to attend.

CSI deaf facilities meet set

TWIN FALLS — Vocational training facilities for deaf students at the College of Southern Idaho will be inspected Feb. 10 in a statewide meeting.

The Advisory Committee on the Program for the Deaf at CSI is sponsoring a one day conference and tour Feb. 10, open to the deaf community of Idaho and adjoining states.

A meeting will be held at 10 a.m. with a brief presentation on campus followed by a tour of facilities and training programs at the vocational building on Kimberly Road. The program is scheduled to continue through noon. Delegates are expected from Utah and Nevada as well as Idaho.

The program will be tied in with a Theatre of the Deaf presentation planned for the night of Feb. 10 at CSI.

School prayer termed emotional, divisive issue

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The Rev. Billy Graham's proposal for daily reading of the ten commandments in public schools reopens one of the most widely misunderstood and emotionally divisive issues in American public life.

The issue is not, as Graham and others sometimes suggest, whether children should be allowed to pray and read the bible in school. The Supreme Court has never raised any objection to voluntary private prayer in schools. And it has clearly allowed schools to offer objective courses in biblical literature.

The real question which Graham raised in a sermon Sunday at a White House religious service is whether an instrument of the state—the public schools—may be used to indoctrinate children in any particular religious belief or viewpoint.

The Constitution says government has no business promoting any religion or all religions. The Founding Fathers saw this as an essential safeguard. Graham suggested in his White House sermon that daily classroom recitation of the ten commandments would be approved by every Jew, Catholic and Protestant in America.

That was something of an understatement. Many Jews, Catholics and Protestants, in resolutions, petitions and public opinion polls, have gone on record in opposition to any role by the government in religious indoctrination.

Graham's own denomination, the Southern Baptist Convention, has been one of the most outspoken defenders of the constitutional ban on state involvement in religion.

Even if all Jews, Catholics and Protestants, favored reading the ten commandments in public classrooms, to do so would intrude on rights of Americans who adhere to some other faith—or to no faith. The Founding Fathers sought to avoid this when they wrote the Constitution.

The Supreme Court ruled 8-1 in 1962 that recital of an official state prayer by public school

Religious instruction in home most important

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

A child gets his most important religious instruction at home. It is very difficult for Sunday school or any other agency of the church to communicate Christian faith to boys and girls who haven't been exposed to it through family life.

All denominations agree on this. One denomination—the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-Day Saints—is doing something effective to help families fulfill their role in the religious nurture of children.

Every Monday, in some 350,000 Mormon homes around the world, parents and children join in observing "Family Home Evening."

The LDS Church annually distributes to all its families a handsomely illustrated manual, prepared by professional educators. It contains a year's supply of lessons, discussion starters, teaching games, visual aids and props to make it easy for any father to preside over a Family Home Evening.

A foreword emphasizes that these are merely suggestions. It's up to each Mormon family to plan its own home evenings, and the manual says they should be fun for all members of the family.

Those activities I have attended in Mormon homes were indeed fun. They included singing, guitar playing, and games, with refreshments at the end. The whole family always participates—from the oldest to the youngest. If any member has a grievance against any other member, or if there is a family decision to be made, Home Evening is the time to bring it up and thresh it out.

The most impressive aspect of a Mormon Family Home Evening, to an outsider observer, is the apparently natural, unselfconscious and willing way in which older teenagers participate. They don't get uptight over talking about God or prayer or moral problems in front of their parents and brothers and sisters because they've been doing it all their lives.

Mormon Home Evenings were inaugurated on a church-wide basis in 1915. Since 1965, the 9 million member church has given high priority to extending the practice into every Mormon home on a regular weekly basis.

Essential to the program is keeping Monday night sacrosanct for this purpose. No Mormon church is allowed to schedule any activity on a Monday evening. Any public school that offers Monday night competition to family home evening in a community that has a substantial number of Mormons is likely to get sharp complaints.

LDS President Harold B. Lee is a strong proponent of the home evening concept. He told a group of Mormon leaders recently that "the most important of the Lord's work will be that which we do within our own homes."

President Lee says family home evenings not only are an invaluable opportunity for religious instruction. They also serve to unite families, to bridge generation gaps, and to maintain communication between parents and children.

"When the home functions properly, much has been done to prevent problems from happening," the Mormon president told UPI. "So much that we do, both in the world and the church, is done to compensate for failures in the home. We have found family home evenings to be of great assistance to parents in fostering meaningful and close family relationships which help the home serve as a sanctuary from evil influences and as a source of strength to each family member."

Presbyterians report events

TWIN FALLS — Two special events have been announced for Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church, Twin Falls.

Boy Scout Sunday will be observed with Scouts from Troop 66 participating in the worship service at 11 a.m.

Rev. Robert Van Nest's sermon will be "I Will Do My Best" and special music is planned.

The College of Idaho choir will present a concert at the church at 4 p.m. Sunday. The choir will be guests at a 1 p.m. dinner held in the church dining room and sponsored by the Senior High Youth Group of the church.

The choir will present Bach's "Magnificat," a Renaissance "Mass" by Palestrina and Brahms' "Gypsy Songs."

Directed by Dr. James Garzard of the College of Idaho music department, the choir was selected early in November and members have been in rehearsal daily during the fall and winter college semesters preparing concert selections. In addition to the Brahms and Bach numbers, the choir's repertoire includes Berger's "Psalm 57" and selections from "Fiddler on the Roof."

No admission charge will be made for the afternoon concert but an offering will be taken during intermission to help defray the choir's travel expenses. The public is invited to attend.

TF stake conclave planned

TWIN FALLS — Bishop Vaughn J. Featherstone, second counselor in the presiding bishopric of the LDS Church, will address the Twin Falls Stake Conference Saturday and Sunday.

The conference session will be conducted at 10 a.m. Sunday in the stake center at 425 Maurice St. N. Lloyd A. Hamilton, stake president, said visitors are welcome to attend.

Bishop Featherstone has served as president of the Boise North Stake and was an executive for Albertson's, Inc. He has held his present post with the presiding bishopric since April, 1972.

Historical pageant at Shoshone

SHOSHONE — Slides and a tape recording of the Baptist Church historical pageant will be shown at 8 p.m. Sunday at the Shoshone Baptist Church. This pageant was written by Mrs. Luella Kinsey, member of the church, and was produced two years ago. It is the story of the Shoshone Baptist Church and an historical account of the area.

The public is invited. Refreshments will be served in the fellowship hall after the meeting.

16 indicted on drug smuggling

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ten Americans, five persons from India and a South Vietnamese were named Thursday in an indictment of what authorities said was an international ring which smuggled $2 million in heroin into the United States from Vietnam in military aircraft.

The indictment was returned in U.S. District Court Tuesday and suppressed until Thursday by acting Chief Federal Judge Richard B. Austin so agents could have more time to make arrests.

But only one defendant was in custody when the indictment was made public, and U.S. officials were reported negotiating with the South Vietnamese government for custody of others suspects in South Vietnam.

Agents said the drug was purchased in Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos and smuggled into the United States inside hollow television tubes. The heroin was flown into the United States through a series of military assistance command flights between South Vietnam and California, federal authorities said.

Authorities said the first arrested defendant, Richard J. Kuney, had agreed to cooperate with the government investigation.

The indictment charged that from December of 1971 to June of 1972, the defendants met periodically in South Vietnamese cities including Saigon, Vung Tau and Phu Cuong to plan bringing the heroin into the United States for distribution by major pushers.

The drug ring was first discovered last fall by Chicago police, when an informant said a large amount of heroin was being sold in suburban Elgin, Ill. Chicago police learned that the person dealing heroin in Elgin was linked to another who was arrested in Indianapolis, Ind.

When federal authorities learned heroin was crossing state lines, they entered the case, they said. One agent said the heroin was "the best he had ever seen" and was prepared for distribution in Chicago, Des Plaines and Elgin, Ill., Indianapolis, Phoenix, Ariz., and New York City.

Kuney was arrested after he sold four grams of the drug to undercover agents in a motel near La Grange, Ill., Oct. 19.

Special tax school sponsored by IRS

TWIN FALLS — In connection with the Internal Revenue Service sponsored "VITA" program (voluntary income tax assistance) a special training program has been announced.

A one-day income tax preparation course is available to any group or qualified participant willing to donate their services at no cost in helping others complete income tax returns.

Persons interested in the training program should contact Phil Mulcurny, Twin Falls IRS office, 548 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. in the Lynwood Shopping Center. Classes will then be arranged for any group of sufficient numbers to warrant the time of an instructor.

Qualified participant would be a member of any church, club or association, willing to assist and able to be available to help minority groups, handicapped persons, old or poor persons prepare their returns.

Good skiing predicted

New snow reported for ski resorts in valley

TWIN FALLS — New snow ranging from a trace to seven inches of powder is reported by various ski areas this week, indicating excellent skiing in all resorts.

Pomerelle has received six inches of new snow and all facilities are in operation. Total depths now range to 60 inches of un-packed snow at the top of the runs and a 26 inch packed base at the lodge. Road conditions are good but snow tires or chains are required. The resort reports sunny weather with temperatures from 30 to 35 degrees. The area is operating seven days per week.

Magic Mountain reports seven inches of new powder with lifts operating Friday through Sunday. Total depths range between 50 and 58 inches and all major runs are machine packed. Powder is available on outlying runs. Buses serve Magic Mountain Saturday and Sunday from Newtons at 9 a.m. Snow tires or chains are required.

Soldier Mountain received four inches of new powder this week with depths ranging up to 60 inches on un-packed areas at the top of ski runs. A packed base of 30 to 33 inches covers all runs. The resort reports all runs are open and most are packed with plans announced for junior ski races, open to all racing prospects on Feb. 11. Interested persons should call 764-2260. The road to Soldier Mountain is good but snow tires are recommended. Graded Length Method ski instructions are available at the resort at all times.

Sun Valley lists a trace of new snow with 35 inches at the top of Baldy and 38 inches at the Tondhouse and 24 inches on the floor. Some icy spots are reported on the road but in general roads are bare and dry. All runs and bowls are open and temperatures were up to 30 degrees Thursday.

Rotary has two inches of new snow with some icy patches on the road. The resort has a 24 inch base and is open for day skiing on weekends and for night skiing each Tuesday and Thursday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Snowmobiling is listed as good in the Hailey area and very good in Fairfield, Ketchum and the South Hills.

Autopsy performed on 2,000-year-old mummy

DETROIT (UPI) — Medical researchers Thursday performed an autopsy on a 2,000-year-old mummy, digging through 10 layers of linen, resin and balm wrappings to find its organs remarkably well preserved.

However, members of the research team could not immediately agree on the sex of their subject, initially thought to be a woman of high social standing. Further investigation was expected to clarify the matter.

Not only were organs found to be in exceptionally good condition, said Wayne State University physiologist Robin A. Barraco, but the doctors also discovered a large blood vessel intact—the aorta.

"This is the first time we've ever seen a blood vessel in a mummy," he said.

What made this finding unusual, Barraco said, is that blood vessels were not included in the mummification process and therefore deteriorated a short time after death. In this case, he said, injected into the thoracic cavity of the subject after death also preserved the aorta, the large artery which pumps blood from the heart through the lungs.

Autopsies have been performed on mummies before, but in most cases the subjects had not been well preserved—often because others had conducted research on the bodies before-hand.

"Nobody has ever been in this mummy during the 2,000 years since death," he said. "This is the first time we've ever had a crack at a mummy that nobody's touched."

The research team, which included Smithsonian Institution anthropologist Aidan Cockburn and Dr. Theodore A. Reyman, a Detroit histologist, also located the incision in the body through which organs were removed to be mummified and wrapped.

"That's how well preserved this mummy was," said Barraco.

The doctors are researching the evolution of infectious disease and hope to perform autopsies on more mummies in years to come in an effort to explain the cause of such ailments and aid in their treatment and cure.

Their main goal in Thursday's operation was to establish a set technique for autopsies of this kind.

Tom and Clarence Louis have an energetic, solid sound and a vitality that wins quick rapport with the audience. Their repertoire ranges from rock 'n' roll to blues, ballads, spirituals, and their native Calypso. Born in Bermuda, the brothers became U.S. citizens when they enlisted in the American armed forces. Their familiarity with two cultures, allows them to select and perform the best of both.

In addition to singing great, they dance as well, providing a versatile, polished show. They are seasoned performers with rich and vibrant voices. Tom ranges smoothly from falsetto tenor to a rich deep baritone and Clarence makes use of a full, warm bass-baritone to round out their sound into something compelling and powerful.

They prepared to entertain by studying drama, dancing and voice in both Bermuda and New York. They have appeared on the famous Merv Griffin, Johnny Carson and Steve Allen television shows and on the Playboy Club circuit. They also made a state department USO tour of the Vietnam bases.

Burley man files suit over ambulance contract

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

RUPERT—Minidoka County commissioners and a Twin Falls ambulance owner are named as defendants in a civil suit filed here by Roger Porter, Burley.

Porter is the president of Western Ambulance, Inc., a Burley firm. He also serves as the Cassia County coroner, an office he assumed this year.

The suit asks that a contract for ambulance service in Minidoka County recently signed by the commissioners and Cloyce Edwards, Twin Falls, be declared "null and void." Edwards is the owner of Magic Valley Ambulance Service, Twin Falls, and is providing the service to Minidoka and Cassia Counties through a locally based firm, Mini-Cassia Ambulance Service.

Porter had submitted a bid for the Minidoka ambulance contract but was turned down in favor of Edwards.

Porter's complaint states that he was "informed" that Edwards entered into "an agreement with some or all of the commissioners" prior to the call for bids. The "arrangement" provided terms by which Edwards' firm "would be allowed" the ambulance contract for the county, according to the complaint.

The call for bids was "a mere subterfuge," Porter states in the complaint, and was used by the commissioners "to comply with the form of legal procedure... while all the time they full well knew and planned to grant said contract" to Edwards' firm "without regard to the amount of the other bids offered."

Porter's Western Ambulance Service received a $600 per month subsidy from Minidoka County last year. The commissioners stopped the support on Dec. 1. Commission chairman Wayne Hollenbeck said the cut-off was the result of "inadequate service" from Western.

The county then called for bids on a one-year contract for ambulance service. Western had submitted the only bid by the Jan. 8 opening date. But the commissioners said the $1,050 per month figure submitted was too high and decided to call for bids again.

The next bid opening came on Jan. 22. Three ambulance companies submitted bids, including Western for $300 per month, Mini-Cassia Ambulance Service, $700 per month, and Ambulance Service of Oceanside, Calif., $1,000 per month. The commissioners deliberated for several days before awarding the contract to Mini-Cassia (Edwards' firm) on Jan. 26.

The county officials had requested a financial statement from Western after the Jan. 22 opening. Minidoka Pres. Atty. Robert Nielsen sent a letter to Porter, asking for a financial statement "showing all assets and liabilities" of Western Ambulance.

The letter said submission of the statement was necessary "before the commissioners can accept your bid." It also said, "While the bid of $300 per month is reasonable, the county is understandably concerned about your ability to provide the services required... due to your failure to comply with the terms of the (previous) ambulance service contract (the $600 per month subsidy)."

According to Hollenbeck, Porter "refused to provide" the statement. The next lowest bid, Edwards' $700 figure, was then accepted.

Hollenbeck said other factors also determined the commissioners' decision. Western's bid did not include a certificate of liability insurance and a guarantee that at least one ambulance would be located in Rupert, as required by the contract, the county official said. The other two bidders provided the documents, he stated.

Concerning the county's requests for a financial statement, Porter's suit claims "the demand... was inconsistent with the requirements and specifications for bids and no such demand was made by (the commissioners) upon the other bidders for said contract."

In addition to asking that the court declare the present ambulance contract void, the suit requests that the contract be transferred to Porter and that costs and "other relief" connected with the suit be granted him. James Annes, Burley, is listed as Porter's attorney.

Commenting on Porter's charges that the commissioners "planned" to award the contract to Edwards, Hollenbeck said, "There are no grounds for that kind of feeling. There were no plans and there was no conspiracy. They (the charges) are false as far as we're concerned."

Fifth District Judge Sherman Bellwood disqualified himself Wednesday in the disposition of the case. He requested another district judge be appointed.

Virus free spud seed aired in TF

TWIN FALLS — "In a few years we will have a better seed potato for you," Dr. Richard Ohms told potato industry people here Thursday.

Dr. Ohms was one of several speakers discussing new developments in the potato industry at the annual area potato school sponsored by the University of Idaho Extension Service.

About 175 people involved in the potato industry attended or participated in the potato school at the Holiday Inn. The school ran two days, Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

The pathogen free, or virus free seed is coming thing in the Idaho potato industry, he said. Dr. Ohms, U of I extension potato specialist, said the virus free seed could produce a greater yield and show great visual plant response. In other words the plants would be healthier and would look healthier.

He said the breakthrough of the virus free potato came from a team of scientists at the Canadian Research Center. Dr. Ohms said the scientists have developed a pure disease free seed through a special heat treatment in the meristem of a growing potato plant. The treatment has eradicated all potato viruses including ring rot, black leg and virus X.

The trick now is increasing the number of disease free seeds and then getting it into production, Dr. Ohms said. The University of Idaho experiment station at Teton and several large Idaho seed growers had their seed treated and are now producing disease free seed, Ohms said.

It will be quite awhile before the pathogen free seed will be increased sufficiently to be commercially available to farmers, however.

Dr. Harry Fenwick, U of I extension plant pathologist, Moscow, told the group diseases in the potato field must be kept low enough to tolerate them, but some can't just be tolerated and must be prevented from being introduced into a farmer's field.

Four strains of disease that could cause the potato farmer major problems were discussed by Dr. Fenwick.

Three of the diseases — ring rot, verticillium wilt, nematode, Dr. Fenwick said, are difficult to eradicate, if not impossible. He said the bacteria disease, ring rot, once in an area is always around and is difficult to eradicate. He said they can double in population about every 30 minutes.

When ring rot is diagnosed in a field, it is too late to do anything about them that year. Dr. Fenwick said there is no chemical that will kill them.

He said ring rot bacterium attacks the vascular ring of the tuber. Preventing the disease from entering the field is the best way to avoid ring rot, he said.

Verticillium wilt, which is commonly known as early dying, is another disease that cannot be eradicated and there is no chemical that will kill this fungus. It can't be destroyed but only kept to a tolerable level through different methods.

The third disease is difficult to eradicate is nematode, Dr. Fenwick said. This disease is not widespread. He said the disease causes a bumpy potato unusable by the consumer or processor. Prevention and sanitation is the only control for this disease.

The one serious potato disease that can be controlled is early blight, he said. Early blight attacks and destroys the leaf or food manufacturing area, killing the plant. It can be controlled with chemicals, he said.

Also on Thursday's program was Richard Max, livestock, Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, Boise. He discussed the why of crop reports and the surveys used to make these forecasts. "The reports are the basic facts of agriculture," he said.

Petiole analysis, or tissue testing to give the nutritional status of the potato plant, was explained by Dr. Preston Jones, U of I Soil Scientist.

He said the tests are used to determine the amount of nutrients in the potato and to compare to what the normal level at that time should be.

TWIN FALLS — Harold Livingston, manager of the Magic Valley Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center, 130 7th Ave. E. Twin Falls, is not himself a former alcoholic.

An article appearing in the Times-News, Jan. 12, erroneously stated, on the basis of a press release, that Livingston was a former alcoholic. Livingston is an ordained Christian minister and a certified psychological counselor. He is the first manager of the Rehabilitation Center not to have been a former alcoholic.

Bellevue council hears future plans for US 93

BELLEVUE — A one-way highway couplet through Bellevue is not a possibility in the foreseeable future, according to a state highway engineer.

Everett Kidner, Shoshone highway district, and Doug Myhre, consulting engineer on a highway corridor environmental impact study, updated the Bellevue City Council on department of highway plans for U.S. Highway 93 Thursday evening.

The plan presently calls for using the existing corridor with options under consideration mainly for routes through cities.

One option for Bellevue, in addition to the continuing two-way traffic on Main Street would be to route one-way traffic on the street and utilize the railroad right-of-way for a second lane hinging on whether or not the railroad is abandoned and the property available.

Kidner told the council, "Current projections indicate that Bellevue will not need the couplet."

However, he said, traffic demands which may be generated by the Sawtooth National Recreation Area and the Big Wood Development are still unknown.

In response to a question from the council on the type of highway plan Kidner said, "We have never thought of full control of access or of a freeway at all."

The engineer said speed limits could be reduced to 35 miles per hour through towns with stop lights installed if warranted.

In other business before the council, Don Kunkel said some senior citizens have stopped walking to the post office and stores because of the dog problem in town.

Mayor James Pigg said, "Right now our hands are tied with the lack of facilities to handle it."

He said hopefully by spring of summer the county dog shelter will be established enabling the council to put a dog control ordinance into effect.

In the previous meeting the council stated owners of dogs that have bitten persons will be informed to keep the dog restrained on their own property.

If the dog is subsequently found off the property it will be destroyed by the city, he said. Alderman John Pascoe advised Kunkel that any resident who has a complaint about a specific dog may submit the complaint in writing to the council for action.

Also during Thursday's meeting, Gary McStay, co-owner of the Lava Center Laundromat, notified the council he will install a burglar alarm at the facility and the alarm will be a siren type going off every five seconds in the event of a burglary.

10-man group studies stream protection act

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News writer

BOISE — A special 10-man House - Senate joint subcommittee studying possible amendments to the stream channel protection act wants to go back to the beginning before trying to change the 1971 law.

The subcommittee, meeting for the first time Thursday afternoon, agreed to read over copies of the original act section by section in an effort to determine its intent.

Two weeks ago, Keith Higginson, director of the Department of Water Administration, told a committee he was unsure about whether the bill was aimed at preventing or permitting stream channel alterations.

Six amendatory pieces of legislation have been proposed in the current session of the legislature including one that would repeal the law and one that would transfer authority for granting stream channel alteration permits from the Department of Water Administration to individual county commissions.

The 10-member subcommittee also wants to see the rules and regulations developed by the state to deal with permit requests. One copy of a 55 page set of regulations was thrown down on the table

Thursday by Rep. D. E. (Bud) Lewis, R-Lewiston. He labeled it a "disgrace to the State of Idaho."

Lewis said after the meeting regulations were contradictory and meant that 45,000 acres of private farm land near Lewiston as well as the city airport were covered under the act.

The 1971 law has been the center of controversy with several lawmakers claiming its scope has been broadened by an attorney general's opinion and its administration thwarted by the job being done by the Department of Water Administration.

Sen. J. Wilson Steen, R-Glenns Ferry, said last week the attorney general's opinion which held that lakes were covered by the law was "false."

Steen, serving as subcommittee co-chairman, with Rep. Clifford Scoresby, R-Tonawalla, said the group will establish the intent of the 1971 law and then move on to define "stream," "high water mark."

Cassia elects 2 for 3-county CAA

BURLEY — Joan Thomas and Pablo Fuentes, both Burley, were elected here Wednesday as Cassia County's low income representatives on the tri-county Community Action Agency board.

Three other Burley residents were chosen to represent the low income group on the county-level Community Action Program board. They include David Medina, Walter Roberts and Alice Seamons. Medina and Roberts will also act as alternates for Thomas and Fuentes on the tri-county board.

Two representatives each from Cassia County's elected officials and organizations will be selected in the near future, according to Robert Rodriguez, CAA community organizer. The counties of Cassia, Twin Falls and Jerome send six representatives each to sit on the tri-county committee.

According to a recently adopted CAA by-law, the low income and elected official members work together to choose the civic organizations that will have representation. Rodriguez said the Idaho Migrant Council and the Cassia County Welfare Mothers have expressed interest in Cassia County representation.

Burley police probe robbery

BURLEY — Burley police are investigating the third armed robbery in the Burley area in the past 45 days.

The robbery occurred at about 5:30 a.m. Thursday at the Overland car wash, when a gun pointing bandit took $45 from Mrs. Sherry Baker, attendant. The incident was the second at the car wash. Another gas station was also hit, according to police.

Mrs. Baker said, "I didn't see him walk up. I looked up and he was standing there with a gun, wearing a mask. I opened the cash register for some change and he said 'Just the paper.'"

Mrs. Baker was able to signal to Burley policeman Allan Smith who was driving by Overland Car Wash at the time of the holdup. He saw the robber running down an alley and chased him.

Asked if she intended to remain employed at the car wash, Mrs. Baker said, "No way. I quit today. Once was bad, twice is just too much."

Jim Lynch, Burley, owner of the car wash, said he had considered closing the night shift at the facility in view of the recent holdups. He said Thursday, "I guess we won't close up after all."

Pete Rodriguez, Burley detective, said officer Smith told him the robber ran east through an alley behind the car wash and jumped a fence. Smith last saw the holdup man when he was at the northwest corner of King's Warehouse. Smith fired at least one shot at him.

Rodriguez said that although the man fell he got up and ran away and Rodriguez said he didn't think the man had been hit.

Man faces check case

TWIN FALLS — Charles F. Sierer, 27, was bound over to Fifth District Court Thursday on a charge of issuing a check without sufficient funds in the bank.

Sierer appeared before Magistrate Russell C. Shaud. An additional charge of forgery against Sierer was dismissed. Judge Shaud also reduced bail for Sierer from $4,000 to $2,000. Sierer is accused of passing a false and forged check to Safeway Food Stores for $45 on April 17, 1971. A warrant for his arrest was issued July 7, 1971, but he was not arrested until Jan. 24 when a Twin Falls patrolman stopped his car on a traffic violation.

An attorney from the public defender's office has been appointed to defend Sierer on the check charge. Sierer remains in the Twin Falls County Jail.

Gem VD cases increase

HAILLEY — "Business is good and it's getting better" all the time.

Normally, that would be welcome news. But the topic under discussion was gonorrhea treatment clinics and the man who made the statement was Dr. Wayne B. Carte, medical director of the South Central Idaho Health District.

Dr. Carte spoke Wednesday evening before the Wood River Resource Council of governments.

In 1972, Dr. Carte said Idaho had about 2,000 reported gonorrhea cases. However, he said only about one out of five cases are reported by the attending physician to the health department.

The medical director said about 95 per cent of the cases involve persons between the ages of 14 and 25, with a projected infection rate in the age group as one out of every 20 persons.

Of the four counties in the resource area — Blaine, Camas, Gooding and Lincoln — Dr. Carte said one county had an above average number of cases, one was below average and the remaining two had about an average number of cases.

"The fact is that we have a marked increase in gonorrhea over the last five years," Dr. Carte said. The only disease more prevalent, he said, was upper viral respiratory infections, which includes colds and flu.

The district medical director said the situation had caused the opening of three additional VD clinics during the past year and one-half. Treatment costs about $125 per patient, he said.

Causes of the increased infection rate among younger people may be added mobility and more prevalent sexual activity, Dr. Carte said.

"There is no answer to how to slow the rate down," Dr. Carte said. One solution may be to promote parental control, making parents more responsible for their children's actions, he said.

A major problem in combating gonorrhea was the disease's short incubation period, which ranges from three to seven days, Dr. Carte said.

"We are always 10 to 30 days behind time," he said.

The medical director cited the tracing of one case chain, involving about 45 days, which led to 52 contacts, 35 positive cases and encompassing five counties, three states and two overseas countries.

Three share Hawaiian lead at four under 68

HONOLULU (UPI) — Veterans George Archer and Gay Brewer and young Tom Watson shot four under par 68s in tropical gusts Thursday to share the first round lead in the $200,000 Hawaiian Open. The three won instantly first at the 36-hole Wai'ale'ale Country Club course, got off to a poor start by bogeying the first two holes. But he birdied four the next seven holes he played, two of them with 20 foot putts, and forged into contention. On the front side, the 33-year-old native of Gilroy, Calif., added birds on the first and eighth holes, to complete his round of 34-34-68.

L.A. Rams acquire Baltimore's Logan

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams, who dealt away three veteran players for late-round draft choices Wednesday, changed tactics Thursday to acquire defensive back Jerry Logan from the Baltimore Colts.

In another development, new Rams coach Chuck Knox announced that he would retain two assistant coaches from Tommy Prothro's staff, and hire four or five new assistants.

Baltimore traded Logan, a 10-year veteran who played in the 1971 and 1972 Pro Bowls for an undisclosed choice in next year's NFL player draft. Logan was drafted out of West Texas State in 1963. He became a regular late in his rookie year and played in every game since. Logan has 36 career interceptions, and he intercepted six passes last season.

The Rams traded veteran cornerback Clancy Williams and linebacker John Pergine to the Washington Redskins and linebacker Jim Purnell to the Oakland Raiders Wednesday for extra picks in the 11th, 13th and 15th rounds. They then selected wide receiver Willie Jackson of Florida, defensive end Curt Matter of Washington and linebacker Clinton Spearman of Michigan.

Archer, who has been working hard to correct problems with his driver, said the 20 to 25 mile an hour winds bothered him "quite a bit." He said he has been changing his position with the driver.

"It's been a bad time for a long time, the driver and me. I reached the point where I was easing into the ball instead of accelerating."

Brewer found himself in two sandtraps but salvaged both holes. On the par 4 first hole, he blasted out to within a foot of the cup for a birdie. Then on the par 3 fourth, he blasted out of a trap to within six feet to salvage a par.

Brewer, who won the first Hawaiian Open in 1965, had five birdies — on the first hole, the eighth, where he sank a 20 foot putt, the 13th where he sank a 15' footer, the 15th by dropping a 30 foot putt, and the 16th.

"I've been playing well the last eight months," he said after his round. "But he admitted he was surprised that he was the leading scorer."

"I thought a 66 or 67 would be on top," he said.

Brewer also said he was using a new shaft made of, it was learned, graphite steel which is used in the manufacture of the F111's. He said it was a lot stronger.

"There are about only 10 of them (pros) using it on the tour," he said. "It drives a lot straighter and further."

Watson, a 23-year-old graduate of Stanford who is in his second year on the tour, said he started off in the "right frame of mind" with a birdie.

"It's always great to start with a birdie. The last two weeks I started with a three putt," he said.

Watson birdied the first hole, the third with a 40-foot putt, the fourth when he got on the green in two strokes, the 16th and the 18th where he canned a 10 foot putt.

Winner to head 74 Jets

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Jets today announced that Charley Winner would succeed his father-in-law, Weeb Ewbank, as head coach after the 1973 season — but left open the question of whether Ewbank would stay on as general manager or retire completely.

Phil Isehn, president of the Jets, said he had made the decision himself on Winner.

"I did my homework and selected Charley Winner on the basis of his background," Isehn said. "Charley will assist Weeb in 1973 and will serve as head coach in 1974, '75 and '76. I thought this was the best operation, in orderly transition."

"Charley's been offered opportunities before and he's turned them down. He wanted to come to New York. He's a local boy and he wanted to come back."

Asked if Winner was also to become general manager, Isehn said, "We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

Ewbank, who has been the only coach the Jets have had since their organization after the demise of the old Titans in 1963, announced the day after the season ended that he would step down as coach following the 1973 campaign.

"You can't realize how thrilled I am by becoming part of the sports scene in New York," Winner said. "This is a great organization. I was raised in Somerville, N.J., just across the river, and I always felt New York was the greatest sport city in the world."

"Where else can you have two stadiums close together and people trying to get in both on a Sunday afternoon and being turned away?"

Winner said the fact that Ewbank is his father-in-law was of great concern to him and held back his decision for awhile. "I didn't make up my mind until yesterday," he said. "I had two opportunities in football but I felt this was where I wanted to coach. I want to be my own coach. That's the big point. I'm my own coach, not Weeb's coach. I've had experience with three great coaches in my career, Weeb, Don Shula and George Allen," Winner added. "I had a winning record at St. Louis despite the fact I didn't have a guy like Joe Namath to run the club. I'm looking forward to the opportunity. It's a thrill to be in New York. As far as I'm concerned this is really the big leagues."

How long does it take to "construct" a stream? Idaho streams are the product of some 7,500 years of evolution following the most recent glacial period. Man, with the help of heavy equipment in a stream, can turn the evolutionary clock back 7,500 years in a matter of hours.

Up until July 1, 1971, Idaho stream channels were at the mercy of anyone who wished to sweep them out with a bulldozer, straighten them, or fill them with rocks and car bodies. That date heralded the inception of the Idaho Stream Protection Act.

The declared purpose of the Stream Protection Act passed by the 1971 Idaho Legislature was that stream channels and their environments be protected for fish and wildlife habitat, aquatic life, recreation, aesthetic beauty, and water quality. Individuals or agencies planning stream channel modification must now file application through the Idaho Department of Water Administration.

The application is also reviewed by the Fish and Game Department, Department of Environmental Protection and Health, and Department of Lands. This allows modification, if necessary, of the applicant's plans in order to minimize the environmental impacts and potential hazards to downstream property owners.

During the first 18 months the Act has been in force, the Department of Water Administration has approved applications for 1,141 stream alterations and denied 22 for safety or environmental reasons. Emergency waivers during floods were given in 31 instances.

Seventy-one percent of the applications were filed by federal, state and county agencies; 28 percent by private individuals, and 1 percent by flood control districts. Highway and timber road construction were involved in 70 percent of the stream alterations, other construction 22 percent, and flood control projects 8 percent.

There recently has been a move afoot in Idaho to either amend or repeal the Stream Protection Act passed by the 1971 Idaho Legislature. This act requires that anyone other than irrigators or water users (such as fish hatchery operators) working at a point of diversion is required to obtain a permit from the Department of Water Administration before going ahead with work in a stream channel in Idaho.

The Idaho Fish and Game Department feels this is a nebulous law and protects the interests of the fishermen, prevents pollution and helps to avoid damage to other people living below the point of stream work. However, many persons wishing to work in a streambed are concerned that the law contains too much red tape and contains too many restrictions.

Why did people become concerned with stream protection and regulation of channel alterations? Some began to recognize that stream channel straightening and bulldozing of streams were accelerating and aggravating flood problems for their neighbors downstream.

A statewide inventory by the Fish and Game Department on 1,138 miles of 45 major streams showed that 434 miles or 38 percent of the streams surveyed had been physically altered by highway and railroad construction, mining and flood control.

Extensive sampling was done to compare differences in fish production between natural and altered stream channels. Undisturbed stream sections were found to produce from 1 1/2 to 112 times more pounds of game fish than sections which had been physically altered.

On the average, stream channel disturbance reduced fish production of the affected area by 87 percent. Evidence in Idaho and other states has shown that fish production may not recover in these areas even in 55 years after alteration.

Thomas's new Colts will force passes

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Joe Thomas says next season will be an even bigger one for the running back but that with the players he drafted this week the Baltimore Colts will be able to force the pass.

The Baltimore general manager, Thomas, who built the Minnesota and Miami teams through the football draft and astute trading, said Thursday the college players drafted by the Colts this week are as good as any he has ever chosen.

"We went for the big tall linemen and this was a good year for them — everybody is going to run next year, to try to jam the ball through the line and I think we got the people to stop the run and force the pass," he said.

Eight of the Colt draft picks are offensive and defensive linemen, including two Thomas thinks will play regularly from the start, Syracuse's Joe Ehrmann and Miami's Mike Barnes, both defensive linemen.

He also said that quarterback Bert Jones, the Louisiana State star the Colts got in the first round, Tennessee linebacker

Jamie Hollek and Nebraska fullback Bill Olds might also step into starting jobs.

Thomas said he will name a new head coach for the Colts "by the middle of next week."

He said he will be choosing from three or four current assistant coaches with various NFL teams.

Thomas was also critical of the Houston Oilers for revealing that he had discussed the possibility of trading defensive end Bubba Smith to them for their first round draft choice.

"People talking trades just don't do things like that," he said. "It upsets players who may never be traded but whose names have been thrown in as lures."

However, Thomas said, "Yes, if I get the right price I would trade Bubba, the same as any other guy on our team." He said he had discussed trading Smith and the Colts number one draft choice to Houston for their first pick in the draft.

Houston, however, mixed it.

Jacklighting illegal

Idaho Fish and Game law is simple and direct on the perennial question of jacklighting.

Hawley Hill, chief of enforcement, quotes the relevant portion of Section 36-1301 of the Idaho Code as follows:

It shall be a misdemeanor to hunt, take, kill or attempt to kill any game with the aid of a spotlight, flashlight or artificial light of any kind.

He noted that the only exception to the provisions of 36-1301 apply where the headlights of a motor vehicle, operated and proceeding in a normal manner, on any highway or roadway incidentally cast a headlight upon such game animal on or adjacent to such a highway or roadway and there is no intent or attempt to locate such animal.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Much discussion with interesting friends and acquaintances is the best way to make this a banner day. Almost everyone's thinking of new ways to get what they want and are also willing to lend a helping hand to those toward whom they have a friendly feeling. Accept the unexpected and be somewhat dramatic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can easily work out those new ideas with close friends and get the right results now you want. Use diplomacy. Get out to social functions in p.m. that are helpful to you, make you happier.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Show loyalty to those in high position with whom you agree and prove you are a fine citizen. Express those civic ideas you have that can be most helpful. Avoid one who is a big hypocrite.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are able to expand present activities, so make arrangements now to travel, have discussions with others. State your aims clearly. You can take steps that help you live along more lofty lines.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can delve right into all those duties for which you have had little time of late. Show your finest talents to mate and get right results. Avoid some situation that seems dangerous.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan how to reach a better understanding today with associates with whom you have had some recent dispute. You have to be more broadminded to get right results. Try not to get yourself deeply in debt.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Complete work you were unable to finish during busy week and get cooperation of associates or co-workers. A new kind of treatment is fine for improving your health. This could give you a new lease on life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take time out for amusements that will get you out of the slough of despondency today. Bring mate along for best results. You can do some entertaining at home also and show off your nice place.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day to spend at home making the improvements there that are necessary and having more comfort, beauty in the future. Do some entertaining in p.m. Bring only congenials together.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Fine day to communicate better with people you like and show them more affection, how much you do admire them. Quickly get those tasks done that you have little time for during busy work week. Think constructively.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Think more about finances now and plan to save more in the future, or get that now-project operating that adds to income. Follow your intuitions, since they are accurate. Relax at books in p.m.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get in touch with good friends, exchange ideas, and make better plans for the future. Put more happiness into your life. See what you can do to improve your wardrobe and personal appearance.

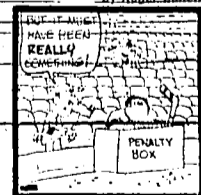

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Sit down with an expert and make the plans now for the expansion you have in mind for the future. You can take advantage of fine opportunities ahead. Try to please your mate more and really understand this person.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those born humanitarians who will want to help people at large and it would be wise to slant the education along lines of the ministry, medicine, or other service professions, including politics. Permit to have as fine a social life as possible early so your youngster will understand others. A study of psychology, psychiatry would be fine, also. Plan now to pay for the education desirable in this chart.

What's What

When their marriages break up, divorced wives tend to give one or more of these seven reasons: 1. "My husband was unfaithful." 2. "We were always quarreling." 3. "He isn't the man I married." 4. "We were badly adjusted sexually." 5. "His mother was always making trouble." 6. "We constantly fought about money." 7. "We couldn't agree about how to bring up the children." So says a renowned authority on the matter. But he says further these excuses are bogus. More probably to blame, it's averred, is that ailment known as matrimonial monotony. Our Love and War man concurs.

YOU'LL BE understood by any Frenchman in Paris when you say "le hotdog" or "le sandwich" or "le sweater" or "le pib" or "le drugstore." Likewise when you say "un cocktail" or "un floor show." And certainly, too, when you say baby, gangster, snob, fair play, pickpocket or glamour girl.

WHICH DO YOU prefer, hotdogs or pickles? Doesn't matter, statistically the average American eats an equal amount of each. About eight pounds a year, to be specific.

ONLY ABOUT HALF of the lady college professors ever get married.

THE PIPE SMOKER
No gentleman who smokes a pipe should omit from his collection of trivia this observation by Dr. Joseph Peck. "In times of stress, resort to man's substitute for the tranquilizing pastime of chewing a cud. Light your pipe. Cigarettes, which are stimulants, won't give you the desired effect, but no man can hurry into anything while smoking a pipe. The Indians found that out around the council fires."

WHAT DID these men have in common? Writer Edgar Allan Poe, painter James Whistler, artist Peter Hurd, politician Ralph Yarborough and that I SD cultist Timothy Leary West Point dropouts, all.

QUERIES FROM CLUES
Q "How many wars has the United States fought beginning with the Revolution?"
A Just 30.

Q "How often is the bed linen changed in the White House?"
A Daily.

Q "ARE any of the Hawaiian Islands privately owned?"
A Two. Nihaui is a cattle ranch. Lanai is a pineapple plantation.

Q "WHAT'S the cost to train a German Shepherd for sentry duty in Vietnam?"
A About $6,000 per pup.

Q "I SAY HALF the college students in the country own typewriters."
A Better than that, three out of four.

Names of 10 Americans held in Laos released

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Communists Thursday acknowledged holding seven living American servicemen, including four previously considered missing in action, along with three U.S. civilians, as prisoners of war in Laos. The small number came as a disappointment to Defense Department officials, some of whom had hoped up to 60 men might be listed.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said the Laotian list, unlike earlier rosters of POWs in North and South Vietnam, made no mention of other captives who died in prison. He indicated the United States will press for word whether any POWs in Laos are still to survive.

The new list raised to 562 the number of U.S. servicemen officially identified by the Communists as living POWs scheduled to be set free before March 28. North Vietnamese officials in Paris handed the Laotian list to their U.S. counterparts Thursday morning (Washington time) and it was telegraphed to the POW command post in the Pentagon. Defense officials relayed the civilian names to the State Department.

The Pentagon said the seven servicemen identified were:

- Air Force Lt. Col. Walter M. Stuecher, previously listed as a POW.
- Air Force Capt. Stephen G. Long, previously listed as a POW.
- Navy Lt. Henry J. Bedinger, previously listed as a POW.
- Air Force Maj. Edward W. Leonard Jr., previously missing in action.
- Air Force Maj. Norbert A. Gotner, previously missing in action. American missionary from Springlake, N. J., who was working with an organization called Christian Missions in Many Lands. He was captured Oct. 28, 1972.

—Lloyd Dudley Oppel, 20, a Canadian missionary striving with the same organization and where his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth E. Bedinger, is state coordinator for a nationwide association of POW and MIA families.

—Ernest Cary Bruce, 42, an American civilian pilot captured May 21, 1965, who was employed by a contract airline.

—Samuel Allen Mattox, 21, an American missionary from Springlake, N. J., who was working with an organization called Christian Missions in Many Lands. He was captured Oct. 28, 1972.

Jets fly more US men out

SAIGON (UPI) — Six chartered airliners flew about 1,200 American servicemen home from Vietnam Thursday, dropping American troop strength below 20,000, the U.S. command said.

Since the Vietnam cease-fire agreement was signed on Saturday, more than 4,000 Americans have been withdrawn.

Command spokesmen also said that the 900-man U.S. Marine fighter-bomber unit at Bien Hoa airbase, 14 miles northeast of Saigon, had "almost completely gone" by late Thursday.

The spokesmen indicated that withdrawals would continue at the rate of roughly 1,000 per day until all but a handful of administrative troops have left. Until Thursday, the rate of withdrawal had been about 400 per day.

It is expected that nearly all U.S. forces will have left Vietnam by March 14, two weeks before the final deadline for American withdrawal stipulated by the Vietnam peace accord.

Marines' team sets CSI visit

TWIN FALLS — The Marine Corps officer selection team will visit the College of Southern Idaho campus Feb. 9.

The purpose of the visit is to discuss student military obligations, provide information on various Marine Corps officer training programs, interview and test interested students.

All students who want to begin military obligation while completing a college education, should meet the officer selection team in the Multi-Use building lobby between 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m., according to the Salt Lake City Marine Corps selection office.

Groundhog vanishes from zoo

CHICAGO (UPI) — Lincoln Park Zoo reported it might have to cancel Friday's planned Groundhog Day observance because its resident groundhog was missing. "I think the pressure got to him," said zoo director Lester Fisher. "With Chicago's weather so confusing, I think he just took the easy way out and went into hiding."

Newsprint price hike announced

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Crown Zellerbach announced that effective Thursday the price of 32-pound standard newsprint will rise by $5 to $168 a ton. The company cited increased costs of manufacture and delivery for the increase that it said is within economic stabilization guidelines.
