TF withdrawal trims revenue

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — South-Central Idaho Health District board members learned Wednesday afternoon their annual revenue will be reduced by withdrawal of the city of Twin Falls from district services.

In a letter to the Department of Health fiscal officer, City Manager Jean Millar advised the city will no longer require the special services the district has been providing and as a result will not make the $13,000 annual contribution to the district.

Millar said today the city of Twin Falls has had an agreement with the health district to furnish inspection services and other assistance beyond what is normally furnished smaller cities.

He said changes have been made in state laws as to health inspection requirements, some of which officially designate the Department of Health as the responsible agency, and others revising inspection and nuisance investigation requirements.

Millar said the city council has taken a close look at the situation and is also streamlining some of the city ordinances to coincide with state laws.

It was felt by the council, he said, the city can save considerable money by paying the health district on a per call basis for the special services still needed.

With the discontinuation of city operation of the sanitary landfill, now a county facility, Millar said the city sanitation superintendent will have additional time and will be able to handle the sanitation inspections which do not require an environmentalist.

Millar said some of the services provided by the district included four inspections per year of milk processing plants within the city, inspections of mobile home and trailer court facilities, tuberculosis testing of food handlers, plumbing and sewer inspections.

The city no longer even has a plumbing inspector as such inspections are handled by the state and are provided for by state law.

Dr. Wayne Carter, medical director for the health district, said the district will not "fire anyone" as a result of the reduced revenue and work load, but will be able to better utilize the services of an additional employee.

He was asked by the health board members to meet with the city to negotiate a suitable fee schedule on special services as required by the city.

Mrs. Gwendolyn Krahn, Camas County, said this would then mean Twin Falls City's representative on the board of directors would no longer hold membership.

Dr. Stephen Lingle is an ex-officio member, representing the city.

Guides on pay weaken

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration concedes it is backing away from a flat 5.5 per cent per year guideline for wage increases in its program of voluntary wage-price controls.

A high official of the Cost of Living Council contended Wednesday that an announced guideline does more harm than good in holding down inflation because he said it tends to set a "floor" which every union wants to achieve or exceed.

The official spoke with several reporters, setting ground rules under which he was not to be named or quoted verbatim. He indicated displeasure with recent news reports that the administration was holding to its 5.5 per cent wage guideline in Phase III of economic stabilization.

Some unions, winding up long-term contracts, should be entitled to bigger wage increases than unions which recently had increases, but an inflexible guideline does not make this distinction, the official said.

dismissing seven charges and finding one impossible to determine.

The report also finds the official board policy manual "void in some critical areas" and in need of updating. But on two other charges dealing with administrative procedure, the board's actions were deemed sufficient.

The special two-man committee, Roy Truby and George Hunt, were sent to Kimberly last month after 46 persons complained in a petition at the February State Board of Education meeting about alleged violations by the Senators asking hostages' release

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (UPI)

Sens. George McGovern and James Abourezk of South Dakota were en route to the besieged hamlet of Wounded Knee today to confer with American Indian Movement (AIM) leaders about the release of 11 hostages being held in a small church.

A spokesman for McGovern said the senator had been in contact with Indian leaders during the night and received word that two of the hostages would be released immediately upon the arrival of the senators.

The senators were scheduled to arrive in an Air Force jet also carrying a small Justice Department contingent. The jet was reported small enough to be able to land at Wounded Knee and was expected to touch down at 8:30 a.m. MST.

About 300 militant Indians held the hostages in the church on the Pine Ridge reservation. The militants stormed the Wounded Knee Trading Post 14 miles from here late Tuesday night, taking artifacts, arms, ammunition, and hostages in-family which operated the post. "Either negotiate with us for meaningful results, positive results, or you're going to have to kill us and here at Wounded Knee is where it's going to have to happen," American Indian Movement leader Russell Means said Wednesday night in a telephone interview with CBS News.

The Indians demanded that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hold hearings on Indian treaties, that the Senate make a "full scale investigation" of government treatment of Indians, and that Democratic Sen. James Abourezk launch an inquiry into all Sioux reservations in South Dakota.

Abourezk said he was willing to negotiate with the militants, but only after the hostages were released.

Earlier Wednesday, the militants exchanged gunfire with federal officers and fired on automobiles and low-flying planes that dared within rifle or shotgun range.

Reds yield, release 148

SAIGON (UPI)

The Communists announced tonight they planned to release 142 more prisoners of war in Hanoi within the next 48 hours. Because of the lateness of the announcement, the actual release probably will take place Sunday (Saturday night, EST), a spokesman said.

(In Washington, The Defense Department said it had received a list of 106 names of POWs to be freed by North Vietnam and immediately started notifying next of kin.

Officials said they had not yet received a list of prisoners to be released by the Viet Cong.)

Col. Bui Tin, spokesman for the North Vietnamese delegation, said all but six were Americans. They include 106 Americans held in Hanoi, mostly fliers, and 26 U.S. soldiers, four U.S. civilians, two Thais, two West German civilians and two Filipinos held by the Viet Cong.

In principle, we are to release prisoners within 48 hours after we deliver the list," he said, "but it was 8 or 9 o'clock tonight before we delivered the list, so that would make the release at night, which would be very inconvenient." He said the release therefore probably would take place Sunday morning.

The last group freed by the Viet Cong was released in a jungled area 60 miles north of Saigon. There was no explanation why the Viet Cong prisoners had been taken to the North Vietnamese capital, but there had been delays and confusion over the release in South Vietnam.

Tin said a list of the prisoners' names was turned over to U.S. officials in Saigon about 8 p.m. (5 a.m. MST) following a lengthy meeting of the Joint Military Commission's subcommittee on captured persons.

The Communists acted after the United States demanded they stop stalling and after President Nixon instructed Secretary of State William P. Rogers in Paris to put the POW issue ahead of the 13-party conference called to guarantee peace in Vietnam.

The Communist pledge broke a two-day deadlock that threatened to scuttle the Vietnam ceasefire agreement. The United States had halted its troop withdrawal from Vietnam and pulled out the minesweepers sent in to clear mines from the harbor at Haiphong.

Negotiator

ON WAY TO Wounded Knee, S.D., to negotiate with militant Indians is Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., who said he would meet with group provided hostages are released. State's other Democrat senator, George McGovern, was also reported going to historic site on Pine Ridge Indian reservation. (UPI)

Vietnam plan wins approval

PARIS (UPI) — Foreign ministers, beaming with good will, convened in formal session today to initial a compromise nine-point plan that is supposed to guarantee a lasting peace in Vietnam.

U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers, smiling broadly and waving to cameramen, said as he entered the conference: "Things are good, things are good." He had boycotted the conference until he won a promise from Hanoi to continue the repatriation of U.S. prisoners of war.

The delegates from 11 nations, the Viet Cong and the United Nations resumed their work at 4:35 p.m. (9:35 a.m. MST) after the United States and North-Vietnam settled the POW dispute which had threatened to wreck the conference.

Communist Vietnamese sources said the ministers would initial a plan which would provide for reconvening of the 13-party conference if peace in Vietnam is jeopardized in future.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko boomed: "All is all right" as he climbed out of his Soviet Chalka limousine at the former Majestic Hotel—a one-time Nazi Gestapo headquarters—where the talks are taking place.

Most delegation heads expressed satisfaction about the agreement as they walked up the seven red-carpeted steps to the graystone building.

Reform dropped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today abandoned at least temporarily his search for major reform of the nation's welfare system because he said "the legislative outlook seems to preclude passage."

In the fourth of a series of State of the Union messages to Congress, Nixon renewed a pledge to propose a national health insurance plan and to recommend property tax relief for the elderly. But he did not spell out details of either plan.

"I am irreversibly committed as President before me have been and as I know each member of Congress is, to fulfilling the American dream for all Americans," Nixon said.

Prices keep right on rising

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prices of raw farm products rose 3 per cent to a record in the 30 days ending Feb. 15, the Agriculture Department reports, foreshadowing further rises in retail food prices.

The administration, however, reiterated Wednesday that it does not intend to control farm prices, as critics including AFL-CIO president George Meany have been demanding.

The Agriculture Department said beef cattle and hog prices led the increase in raw agricultural prices, both setting records. The so-called "raw," or unprocessed, products are not subject to federal price controls.

Soybeans also went to an alltime high. These and other gains were offset somewhat by declines for wheat, eggs and corn.

The raw food price increase followed a 5 per cent rise in the month ending Jan. 15 and meant raw farm prices were up 32 per cent over the mid-February level last year.

Rep. William J. Scherle, R-Iowa, said Wednesday that "reliable sources" had told him the White House was considering some form of control of raw farm products and might act momentarily.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren denied the report and reminded a newsmen that Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and John T. Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council are on public record as opposed to such control.

Scherle himself was against control: "Such a radical move would greatly impair the economy of Iowa, and jeopardize those who have the responsibility to feed America and the world,"

Earlier, Agriculture Department officials reported that the cost of the average American family's "food basket" for one year rose 2.7 per cent in January to $1,275. It said all of the increase went to higher prices paid to farmers, with the "take" of middle men such as food processors and wholesalers leading.

The administration's policy has been to try to increase domestic food production and encourage imports rather than control raw farm prices. Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has said such control would produce empty meat counters and result in food rationing. Meany has said union wage demands could be affected by rising food costs at a time when the government is trying to hold down the wage-price upward spiral.

Militant Indians demand palaver

(Continued from p. 1) — Two armored personnel carriers were brought into the Pine Ridge reservation, and heavily armed, helmeted federal marines held a cordon around the historic Oglala Sioux settlement the site where the Indian forefathers fell before the U.S. Cavalry 85 years ago in the massacre of Wounded Knee.

The first break in the hostilities came after Gilder, a spokesman for the militant Indians, said they were not in danger. They are not hostages; they are prisoners of war. They are in no danger from the Indian people. The only danger is if the federal troops attack their bullets are indiscriminate.

Means said. In Little Rock, Ark., Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the foreign relations committee, said he would comply with the Indians' demands for a review of Indian treaties, but said there was no record of any treaties having been submitted to the committee. "I'd be willing to do anything to help," Fulbright said.

Oglala chief Dick Wilson, who AIM members sought to oust from his post last week, said the militants were armed with hunting rifles and ammunition taken in the takeover of the trading post and might have two machine guns. They possibly could hold out "for weeks," Wilson said.

Seventeen persons, Indians or AIM sympathizers, were arrested Wednesday when they attempted to flee through the cordon of officers.

Foreign dignitaries in Paris discuss Vietnam

- The 12 parties take note of and approve the Paris ceasefire agreement of Jan. 27 and its four protocols.
- Join the event of a violation of the accord threatening the unity, sovereignty and territorial integrity of Vietnam; the conference can be reconvened upon a joint request of North Vietnam and the United States or at the request of at least six signatories.
- The parties state that the Paris accord responds to the aspirations and fundamental rights of the Vietnamese people, that is the independence, sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity of Vietnam and the right of self-determination of the South Vietnamese people.
- The parties recognize that the agreement also responds to the earliest desires of all the countries of the world.
- The parties pledge to respect the Paris accord.
- The parties recognize solemnly the basic rights of the South Vietnamese people and call on all the countries of the world to respect the rights of the Vietnamese people.

—North Vietnam, South Vietnam, the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam (Viet Cong) and the United States may send, individually or collectively, reports from the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) to other signatories of the declaration. They may send reports also to another participants for his information.

—The parties pledge to respect the territorial integrity and sovereignty of Laos and Cambodia.

Both sides claim victory in Ireland

DUBLIN (UPI) — Both sides predicted victory today in Ireland's record Wednesday vote on a new 14-seat Dail (parliament). Political experts said the count would be close, and a computer projected based on only two returns predicted victory for Prime Minister Jack Lynch.

"I don't think there will be an in-between result," one government official said.

Experts predicted a tight finish between Lynch's Fianna Fail party and the coalition of opposition parties, Fianna Fail and Labor, led by Liam Cosgrave.

The first two results declared showed no change, with one incumbent from both Fianna Fail and Fine Gael elected. A computer projection, based on the first two results predicted a Lynch victory by 80 seats to 54 for the opposition coalition and 2 for independents.

Navy to pay Litton for helicopters

Seen...

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy has agreed to pay Litton Industries $140 million for the construction of 100 helicopters, a considerably less than the firm claims it is due for construction of 100 helicopters.

Litton denounced the action as unilateral and said it would appeal to the courts. It claimed the Navy was refusing to pay $108 million in claims the shipyard had submitted for excess costs.

The Navy declined to comment immediately on Litton's report.

Litton President Fred W. O'Green said in a statement, "The Navy's unilateral price is unreasonable and unrealistic and the company intends to aggressively seek an equitable settlement of this continuing dispute through any and all legal remedies if necessary."

Litton's statement did not make clear how much, if any, of the shipyard's claims the Navy had agreed to pay.

The ship, called the LHA, has run into heavy controversy in Congress because of the cost overruns and because Roy L. Ash, Litton's former president who negotiated the claims with the Navy last year, was subsequently named by President Nixon to be his budget director.

OCTOPUS

WASHINGTON — Sources close to Justice William O. Douglas categorically deny it. Some five years ago, a battery-powered heart pacemaker was implanted in Douglas's chest. At regular intervals, he returns there to be examined and have the device checked and recharged.

No military veteran, Douglas enjoys free medical care and treatment at Walter Reed as a VIP — paying only a nominal per diem bed-and-board service charge.

As a member of the Supreme Court, he gets $50,000 a year for life.

Outwardly, Douglas evinces no sign of being sick. On the bench, his face appears somewhat thinner and more drawn, but this may be due to medication of diabetes. On physician's orders he adheres to a musty regime to keep weight down.

One thing is certain about the leftist jurist: he will give up his militant crusading role on the tribunal only if seriously incapacitated — a stroke or other crippling impairment.

He will not voluntarily retire despite his advanced age and evident physical decline.

Several months ago, Douglas went out of his way to make that known when long-time congressional critics indicated intention to renew efforts to investigate his extra-judicial activities — particularly those involving his heading a foundation with Las Vegas gambling properties.

For this moonlighting job, from 1960 to 1969, he got $12,000 a year plus expenses.

Douglas defiantly put out word he would have considered retiring if McGovern had been elected, but emphatically not with President Nixon continuing in office.

The plan to seek another investigation of Douglas is waiting for House Democrats to finish their long-drawn-out so-called "reform of the rules." Congress has been in session two months, but this loudly-touted shake-up is still to be completed. One reason for the protracted delay is rank-and-file indifference and apathy.

Repeatedly, Democratic caucuses have had to be abandoned because of lack of quorums; not enough of the faithful bothered to show up.

Also, the rules changes so far adopted are inconsequential and of no real moment.

Aim of Rep. Joe Waggoner, D-La., leader of the proposed Douglas investigation, is the creation of a special bipartisan "commission" to study the various charges against the radical jurist's extra-judicial business activities and connections.

If justified by the findings of the probe, impeachment proceedings would be instituted.

Douglas hurriedly quit his lucrative moonlighting operations, particularly with the Parvin Foundation, after they came to light — following the forced resignation of his close liberal friend, Justice Abe Fortas, because of a highly irregular outside financial arrangement.

Mrs. Cathy Douglas, the jurist's 28-year-old fourth wife, is trying to get a job with the U.S. District Attorney in Washington. It pays $10,000.

The Food Bill

Your food bill is going up and probably will continue to rise for several months, but President Nixon believes his efforts to expand food supplies and to hold the line on federal spending and taxes will result in lower prices in the last six months of this year.

Obviously, freeing more acreage for cultivation and for grazing will have an effect on supplies only after the growing season.

U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates the increase in grocery bills at about 4.5 per cent, which would leave the American consumer still better off than a shopper in most other countries of the world.

Putting the brakes on government spending, Nixon said, "will do more than anything else to protect your family budget."

Retail food prices "zoomed upward in January at the fastest rate in nearly 20 years. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz said the increase was two to three per cent, and he blamed weather and transport shortages for wintertime seasonal rises.

Arthur F. Burns, Federal Reserve Board Chairman, suggested consumers might voluntarily try "one meatless day a week," and "will be just as well off" spending "less on meat and more on cheese." Some housewives said we've been doing that already.

Cattlemen were inclined to scoff at the idea. While wholesale food prices rose 18.7 per cent last year, the farmer got less than 40 per cent of any increase and many found themselves losing a treadmill race.

Burns, perhaps more at home discussing dollar devaluation before a Congressional committee, firmly opposed any further devaluation as a remedy for our foreign trade deficit. Instead, he urged strict discipline in government policies, restraint by business and labor, and warned excessive demands for goods, higher prices and higher wages could easily "touch off a new round of inflation."

We must raise productivity to the level where American goods regain their reputation for value in other countries.

This is far more basic than revaluing the currency. We must give value that is competitive or continue to fall behind our trade rivals.

ANDREW TULLY

Sardonic Snickers

WASHINGTON — You take your sardonic snickers where you find them. Today I am bemused by Sweden's Premier Olof Palme, who has discovered that the sale of sexual filth not only produces criminal violence but also is costing his government money.

Palme took time off from lambasting America the other day to endorse a campaign against the pornographic industry, which is to Sweden what the hamburger stand is to the U.S. Palme spoke, as it were, from his official pocketbook. It seems the proprietors of skin shows and the purveyors of dirty books are evading their taxes.

Olaf the Oracle took pains to explain he had not turned Cotton Mather. "We would not move on moral grounds," he told a press conference. "It's the criminality that's worrying."

In short, Palme's education has been furthered. He has become aware of a fact of life familiar to most statesmen and lawmakers for centuries, to wit, that when a nation permits the commercialization of naughtiness — whether it be prostitution or bootlegging booze — the industry shortly is taken over by the tycoons of crime. It is taken over because the demand for sin produces fat profits.

Well, Palme baby, better late than never. But there is irony in your awakening. Surely you could not have believed for all these years that the smut business was operated by archbishops, scoutmasters and stock brokers. Yet you went along with the anything-goes policy in freedom's name. Now you talk of "criminals." But the emphasis is on the state getting its piece of the action in the form of taxes.

Obviously money still talks in Sweden, as it did during World War II when that "neutral" nation made a fortune selling ball bearings to help run Hitler's war machine.

Meanwhile, Sweden is not alone in having second thoughts about the sex market. Denmark is cracking down on explicit "sex performances," thus risking its reputation as the capital of permissiveness. So are West Germany, France, Italy, Great Britain and Yugoslavia. Yugoslavia? Yes, Mr. Marko Tito let the troops have their way for a few years, but he has now decreed that the sexual revolution be converted into an "ideological instrument." Presumably, sex hall sexual exploitation is the same, namely apprehension over a new wave of criminality and a whopping increase in dope trafficking. Violent crimes are up in every Western European country and so is the number of drug addicts.

France, which for years gave the United States only token cooperation in halting the flow of heroin from its illicit laboratories, now has mounted a nationwide drive against dope pushers. French youth, it seems, have taken to the narcotic habit and addiction is now admittedly a national problem.

The impact of this trend toward more restraint in Europe could be substantial in the United States, although not necessarily in the interests of Puritanism. But if European governments are serious in cracking down on the underworld which has infiltrated the sex market, the big-time hoods and syndicates will have to find other means of financing their operations in the illicit drug trade.

Some U.S. Customs people claim that commercialized sex is where 90 per cent of the dope smugglers have earned their grubstakes in the past decade. If these creeps are driven out of the sin trade, officials here will be the first to celebrate.

Meanwhile, in Sweden et al, there goes another pet theory of the permissive crowd — that if you give people all the sex they want they'll eventually get bored and go back to barn-raising. To their chagrin, European governments have discovered they've created a Frankenstein of Big Business that has taken over dope pushing and scoffs at the tax collector.

BRUCE BLOSSAT

Herbert Klein

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If he keeps to his indicated plans, Herbert Klein, President Nixon's communications director, will be leaving his post before much more time has passed. The move will break a link that has been little understood in recent years.

Not many people in this capital realize that the roots of the present story go all the way back to 1960, when Klein served as Mr. Nixon's press secretary in his first campaign for the presidency, against John Kennedy.

Mr. Nixon concluded then that not the least of his difficulties was that he got a "bad press." Anyone who remembers the range of emotional lament two years later after he lost the California governorship, will recall that press treatment of him was the central theme.

Nothing, he has done or said since that time suggests the President has warmed to the press or believes he is getting a fair shake. But Mr. Nixon is a learner, and he pays attention to criticism, even as he evidences his resentment of it.

There is no way to know to what extent he really accepts any personal responsibility for his troublesome experience in 1960 and 1962. But it is eminently clear from the record that he determined that in any future campaign things would be done differently.

accommodate to newsmen and capture their good will.

Whatever burden he took upon himself for the mishaps of 1960-62, it can also be said, however, that he did not choose to bear the whole load. He spread it around, and some of the blame was laid at Herb Klein's door. After all, it was he who was "handling" the press in Mr. Nixon's darkest hours.

I was told in 1968, on a confidential basis by a highly trustworthy source, that the President had decided very early that Klein never again would be his press secretary. I was told further that Mr. Nixon and certain aides searched some 11 months for a fitting candidate, before finally abandoning the "outside quest" and settling upon Ronald Ziegler, the present secretary.

For all his youth and evident inexperience, Ziegler's poised performance in that role during the campaign impressed Mr. Nixon. With maturity and four years' White House duty, Ziegler's skills in serving this particular president in the way he wants to be served have impressed nearly everybody — including dozens of skeptical newsmen.

At this point in the Klein story, a contradiction arises. I was informed that Mr. Nixon in 1968 had no particular wish to have Klein in his entourage at all, but out of old friendship took him aboard when Klein asked to join. Klein says flatly that Mr. Nixon's top aide, H. R. (Bob) Haig, came to him and told him the President wanted him.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Mothballs

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you tell me anything about mothballs? My neighbors are wonderful people but they have a "thing" about mothballs. Their house reeks of it. Their food tastes of it. Their clothes smell horrible.

I can't go there because twice I have been there for social gatherings and I was violently ill the next day.

Is it my imagination that I feel ill being near that smell, or can it be harmful living in or near it all the time? — A. S.

Some folks are easily made ill by strong or offensive odors — this may or may not be imagination at work.

However, mothballs can be poisonous if swallowed. They are one of the familiar types of child poisoning. Toddlers think they are "candy," and the consequences can be serious. Even fatal.

The active ingredient is naphthalene, a form of benzene, which is a hydrocarbon, and hydrocarbons (ranging from kerosene or gasoline to some of the more volatile ones) have to be treated with respect. They are dangerous.

How strong the fumes from the mothballs are in this home you describe, I can't say. The strength, as opposed to the sheer odor, would be the important question.

As you doubtless know, cleaning fluids and such materials have to be used in well-ventilated areas to be safe. If too much concentration of fumes from the mothballs accumulates, liver or kidneys could be affected, and there is a possibility of proper blood formation being disturbed. I am not implying that an occasional visit to the house would cause these serious types of trouble. It is more likely that it is the smell that bothers you.

However, I can't help taking a dim view of keeping a house so loaded with mothballs that the whole house smells so pungent. There could be, it seems to me, a chance of absorbing enough naphthalene over an extended period to cause some genuine physical damage.

And I'd certainly be worried about having such quantities of mothballs around if any young children ever visit. They are a real danger to small children.

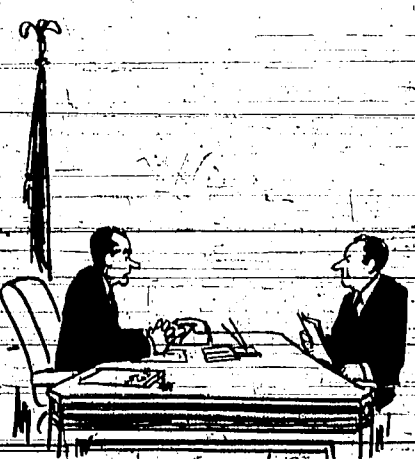

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 19 and have epilepsy. I was not born with it. It started when I was about 9, when I developed measles and encephalitis.

I am taking Dilantin and phenobarbital three times daily. Is epilepsy a curable disease or do the pills just help to control it? Is it possible to outgrow epilepsy? I get seizures when I get upset even though I take my medicine faithfully. — K. C.

Healthiest way to regard epilepsy is to assume that it is NOT curable. Only in rare cases does anyone "outgrow" it. So accept things the way they are.

Epilepsy is a drastic nuisance because of the convulsive seizures which occur as a result of certain changes in the brain; avoid the seizures and you've scored the important victory. The medications prevent — or ease — seizures. Learning not to get upset is important, too.

BERRY'S WORLD

"I want the word to go out to the executive branch: Henceloth, we shall have no more 'crises' only."

Achievement

American astronauts have done more to improve and implant the American image abroad than millions of dollars spent on "information" projects. That they were able to do so is due to the nature of the U.S. space effort.

The U. S. space program has proceeded on a very broad front of research and development. This country isn't in the space program solely for the spectacular shot, but for the enrichment of all related scientific knowledge.

This has often meant moving ahead slowly, while secondary projects were developed. It has often meant holding back the big display, while some small problem of importance to safety or certainty was worked out.

The public was kept informed. This promoted the kind of confidence which is generated only by a broad-gauge space program, the kind of scientific progress which regards the little things as just as important as the achievements which dazzle the eye.

That attitude accounts for the difference in the approach to space shots between the United States and Russia. It explains the secrecy in Moscow when one of theirs goes up, as well as the glaring publicity the U.S. permits.

MR. SPECTATOR

The Early Risers

Have you noticed — those of you who get up at that hour — that it is light enough now at 6:50 or so to walk outside without a flashlight? It's still dark at 6, of course.

Thought we would point this out because you lazy folks who never get up at those hours would not realize the sun is coming up earlier and spring is on the way — set to arrive on March 21.

A THOUGHT

All of the flurry over the right of a newsmen to keep his sources secret is beside the point.

We must point out that it will also help reporters who really do not have a source for their news. Rather they "dream" it up and print their own ideas under the borrowed term "usually reliable sources" or some such. As much as we hate to admit it, there are some reporters who do this. It will be interesting to see how it all works out.

Democrats rip Nixon economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In accusing Nixon of fostering inflation, Proxmire directed a Democratic, Sen. William Proxmire, Wednesday charged that the President Nixon, by fueling inflation, permitting excessive unemployment and allowing a further devaluation of the dollar in world trade.

The Wisconsin senator, vice chairman of the House-Senate Joint Economic Committee, was chosen by Democrats on Capitol Hill to reply to Nixon's radio address to the nation last week. The networks provided equal time.

"We vigorously protest the grave economic mistakes of the President that would do little about unemployment and are pushing us into an inflation that will cost your pocketbook dearly," said Proxmire.

Our answer is to cut inflationary military and foreign aid spending and channel some, but not all of these funds, into programs that will not only make for a more humane America, but a stronger country and one in which housing will be built, the unskilled labor trained and the food produced to hold down the prices you pay."

As an example of these "mistakes," Proxmire cited the first deficit in the balance of international trade in 80 years, unemployment higher than in other major industrial nations, and the second devaluation of the dollar.

He said the "mistaken and weak economic policies" that forces the administration to devalue are unfortunately not the end of the story. You and I as consumers face higher prices because of even more important blunders by the administration.

He said Nixon was proposing a $19 billion increase in federal spending during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1974, which, if approved by Congress, would mean another "mammoth federal deficit."

"What is stunning about this reckless $19 billion inflationary increase in spending is that it comes at the end of the war."

Tightrope for junior colleges

By DAVID ESPO

Times-News writer

BOISE — The state's two junior colleges may soon find themselves doing a tightrope walk through the state legislature.

The Joint Finance Appropriations Committee has approved a $1.8 million appropriation for the two schools for the coming year for academic support.

In addition, the state provides 100 per cent reimbursement for the vocational education at the College of Southern Idaho and North Idaho College.

That $1.8 million represents about 45 per cent of the total academic budget, according to SI president Dr. James Taylor, an increase from about 36 per cent this year. The two schools had asked for 50 per cent.

The co-chairmen of the joint committee, who are both from Twin Falls County, suggested several days ago that the legislature might be willing to provide up to 70 per cent funding in another few years.

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee today held for the second time this week a proposal which would increase statewide equalization of school funding.

Last Monday, the committee held the measure when Sen. Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, said the State Department of Education had not provided the committee with sufficient information.

Sen. Dick Smith, R-Rexburg, said today, however, that there was sufficient information, but one specific proposal in the measure was "very objectionable to many members of the Senate."

The proposal involves a change in the computation used to figure state funds that go to

Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, and Rep. William Roberts, R-Buhl, also said they thought it might be possible to "mesh" that level into law, thus assuring the two schools a high level of state support.

High pointed out that the state subsidized 100 per cent of vocational education and higher education.

Analysis

What he didn't point out was that the state also controls the institutions of higher education through the Board of Education. But Dr. Taylor, mindful of that, said that while he was "tremendously thrilled" at the level of funding the committee approved, he was also hopeful that it would not lead to a dilution of the "autonomy" of the community junior college district.

In other words, Taylor wants his cake and he wants to hand out the slices as well.

It is not unreasonable to expect that a legislature appropriating all the people's money in Idaho and funding junior colleges at 70 per cent of full support would insist that all the people — or their representatives — would control the schools. That would mean junior college control by the State Board of Education, or some other body, perhaps, a junior college state board of regents, yet to be created by some future legislature.

A move by the junior college officials to seek increased state support is not anything less than a basic policy decision. They realize that there is simply a critical point at which community junior colleges become state institutions.

Consider only one small area of local vs. statewide control: two members of the Idaho State University at Pocatello are members of the state legislature. According to them both, Rep. John Eyre and Sen. Chuck Bilyeu, they are on leave without pay during their stay in Boise. According to Bilyeu, his classes are being handled by a substitute teacher with the approval of the school's administration and the Board of Education. He is still a member of the faculty, even if on leave. But when members of the CSI faculty wanted to run for the legislature last year, the CSI board — secure as the Supreme Being of all of the College of Southern Idaho — said it was all right to run but not to win, because victory meant having to resign from the faculty.

Were CSI under the control of the State Board of Education — and it is arguable that the local board acted to deprive individuals of their civil rights — it is doubtful it could have had the final say in the question. The state's two junior colleges receive more general fund money — everybody's money — than the great majority of the state's agencies. How long can the people of Twin Falls and Jerome counties dictate how other people's money should be spent? How long should they?

Proposal stalled

schools statewide. The committee voted to hold a proposal which would have included a repayment clause in the law which governs students receiving state education money through the western interstate commission on higher education.

Soviet leader plans US visit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—But the sources cautioned that failure of Congress to sign the Vietnam peace agreement, the United States and Soviet Union have begun discussing dates for a visit to this country by Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid Brezhnev, possibly in June. Diplomatic sources reported that Brezhnev would like his visit to the United States to be as productive as President Nixon's summit conference in Moscow last May.

'Strike-a-day'

LONDON (UPI)—A nationwide "strike-a-day" wave of walkouts spread today to automobile plants and hospitals with health officials warning that hospitals can guarantee treatment over the next 72 hours only in case of emergency.

In the town of Banstead, authorities said they would serve only one meal a day to the 1,000 patients in a mental hospital there. Health authorities said the feeding of patients elsewhere and handling hospital laundry posed the biggest problems during the strike.

The hospital strike involves 220,000 non-medical employees who, like thousands of other workers taking part in a week of agitation, are protesting the pay and price policies of Prime Minister Edward Heath. Workers are angered especially by a freeze on pay increases.

Demo governors withhold support

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Democratic governors voted today to withhold their support from the second installment of President Nixon's revenue sharing program until they have made their own analysis of the administration's new budget.

The Democrats, meeting in advance of the final session of the three-day National Governors' Conference, did not take a formal position on Nixon's spending freeze or social program reductions for the year ahead. But they decided to hire their own experts.

These advisers will check out details of Nixon's fiscal 1974 budget proposal before the governors make a final decision whether to support the President's request for a second stage special revenue sharing system.

Under special revenue sharing, hundreds of existing single-purpose federal aid programs would be consolidated into fewer than a half a dozen large grants to states and localities which will administer them.

Only Democratic governor who declined to authorize use of his name, said the action at the closed breakfast meeting was unanimous and was taken because many of the Democrats felt they had been shown by administration budget leaders what he called "a shell game" for.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The sentence William O. Woodbridge gets for bribery will depend on how much he tells a Senate subcommittee about military corruption, a federal judge said Tuesday.

Woodbridge, former sergeant major of the Army, the highest enlisted rank in the service, pleaded guilty to the charges Wednesday after 1 1/2 days of plea bargaining. He was accused of being part of a "Chi Chi Cosa Nostra" that made thousands of dollars from servicemen's clubs overseas through bribery, kickbacks, embezzlement, misloppes and other illegal stratagems.

U.S. District Court Judge Warren J. Ferguson said he would impose sentence April 30. The severity of the sentence he made clear will depend on Woodbridge's testifying "fully, openly and honestly" before the permanent investigations subcommittee on the Senate Committee on Government Operations.

When he appeared before the subcommittee in 1969, at the hearings that led to criminal charges in the scandal, Woodbridge invoked the Fifth

Lansky guilty

MIAMI (UPI)—The Justice Department has a special squad to keep tabs on Meyer Lansky, called "Strike Force 18." But until Wednesday neither it nor any other lawman had won a federal criminal conviction against the man some called the chief architect of organized crime in America.

That all changed Wednesday when after 4 hours and 9 minutes of deliberation a jury of eight women and four men—whom Judge James Lawrence King said carried "above and beyond" normal jury requirements—found Lansky guilty as charged of "serious" criminal contempt of a federal grand jury.

Plowing cost told

TWIN FALLS — Snow removal on the Rock Creek canyon road serving winter recreation in the South Hills cost $6,300 during 1972, Twin Falls Highway District Chairman Kenneth J. Poe reported today.

This constitutes a majority of the snow removal work of the district each winter as it is the only high elevation road in the district.

Poe said the district removes snow on the road leading to the Magic Mountain Ski Resort, the Diamond Field, Jack Snowmobile Area and winter play areas. Recreation seekers, spectators and the public in general use the road on a year around basis with heavy traffic on weekends.

Part of the costs, Poe said, are being defrayed through snowmobile license fees. The license fees are $5 per machine and 50 cents of each license going for snow and rescue and another 50 cents for law enforcement. The remaining $4 is returned to the agency in which the license is issued.

The county commissioners, working with the Magic Valley Snowmobile Club, provided $1,000 for graveling a parking lot for the snowmobile area year ago and this year provided $1,000 for snow removal.

Even though mild weather prevails, Highway District Director Floyd Dayley said plows were working on the road today in the upper canyon area. Poe said district records show at least one man worked about three days per week, and sometimes more, during the peak winter season, keeping the road open to the public. He said a rotary plow and a road grader patrol are used on the road when needed.

Most of the plowing is done on week days to avoid conflict with the heavy weekend traffic. In addition to maintaining the road for winter use, the district equipment clears parking lots for skiers, snowmobilers, and at the Penatemon picnic area where tubing and sledding are allowed.

Troubles ahead

BOISE (UPI) — A representative of the militant American Indian Movement says until white men stop creating the need for the AIM, they will continue to hear from Indians.

Joe Large, Denver, Director of the Regional Office of the AIM, was in Boise Wednesday to deliver a lecture at the Boise State College Annual American Indian Institute.

During his address Wednesday night, Large—a Shoshone-Arapaho Indian from the Wind River Reservation in Wyoming—who attended Idaho State University—said he lacked faith in the U.S. Government treaties with Indians, and lacked faith in the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

He said, "the AIM action at Wounded Knee, S.D., is the beginning of the time when Indians will no longer carry signs to Washington."

He said, "until the white man stops creating the need—through his racist actions—for the American Indian Movement, he will continue to hear from us."

No-fault bills beaten

Measure killed

Agency budgets set

BOISE (UPI) — The state commissioner of insurance says he will continue to work for no-fault insurance in Idaho even though the senate killed two such measures Wednesday. Robert Hay said following the vote, "I'm sorry it didn't pass. But I'm glad it did get out of committee and went to the floor of the senate for consideration."

The senate, after two hours and 10 minutes of debate, defeated one bill which closely resembles true no-fault, but would have allowed for court action in severe injuries due to car accidents.

That bill, which was carried on the floor by Sen. Edith Miller Klein, R-Boise, would have required that all medical costs regardless of extent or length of rehabilitation be paid. Sen. V. K. Brasse, R-Boise notified the Senate that he may reconsider the defeated measure but said later the chances "are dim."

The second bill, SB1140, was killed 10-24. It would have limited medical payments to $2,000 and beyond that an injured person could sue automobile accidents.

Hay said no-fault insurance would come to Idaho one way or the other and if the state didn't do it the federal government would.

Mrs. Klein, who spoke 45 minutes in behalf of 1029, said there is a great social need in the state for prompt and complete reimbursement of economic losses from automobile accidents.

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate Judiciary and Rules Committee Wednesday voted 6-3 to strike the death penalty clause in a House-passed bill on capital punishment, gutting the measure.

But committee chairman Sen. Edith Miller Klein, R-Boise, said later that a majority of the members met informally and reached agreement that the bill should be held in the committee, rescheduling its earlier action.

The House approved the measure earlier in the week 52-10 without opposition debate. The bill would reinstate the death penalty for first-degree murder.

BOISE (UPI) — The Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee Wednesday set budgets for some smaller general fund agencies but at the figures some smaller budgets set by the department of the committee Wednesday.

The department is the product of legislation which passed both houses to merge the Departments of Environmental Protection and Health, Social and Rehabilitative Services and the Youth Training Center.

Committee members agreed to hold the budget of the new Department until today while members had a chance to look at the figures.

Some smaller budgets set by the committee Wednesday:

- Public Utilities Commission, $46,000;
- Office of Higher Education, $257,000;
- Attorney General, $377,000;
- Judiciary, $2.6 million;
- Deaf and blind school, $982,000;
- Office of child development, $192,300.

'Miracle' effort slated

BOISE (UPI) — Those who believe in miracles are going to try again to get a kindergarten bill through this session of the 2nd Idaho Legislature.

By a vote of 9-2 Wednesday, the House Education Committee asked for introduction of a bill establishing a $2 million state appropriation for a kindergarten foundation program.

Chairman Kurt Johnson, R-Idaho Falls, will carry the bill today to the state affairs committee — one of those still privileged to introduce bills to seek introduction.

But even those who really want kindergartens admitted in the education committee that the hour indeed is late at this session and the chances of the bill are slim.

This bill, should it be introduced and printed, creates an equalization levy, which would function much as the public school equalization formula now does.

It also allows a district school board to levy up to 1.5 mills for kindergartens and requires an election if the levy would put the district over the 30-mill limit.

Relief try

BOISE (UPI) — A party-line 9-5 vote called for introduction Wednesday of a $3 million tax relief proposal to reinstate federal deductions on state income taxes.

That action, if approved by both houses of the legislature and the governor, would wipe out the tax changes accomplished last year at the insistence of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus.

The grazing of beef cattle on farms and ranches of California is the state's most widespread agricultural activity.

The governor's mansion at Frankfort, Ky., is styled after the Petit Trianon, Marie Antoinette's villa near Paris.

Commitment limited

BOISE (UPI) — The House Health and Welfare Committee sent to the floor with a favorable recommendation Wednesday a bill limiting involuntary commitment of persons to state mental hospitals.

Initiated in the senate, the bill won full support from the house committee. It should be placed on the debate calendar in the House by Friday under normal procedures.

"Marriage is fever in reverse; it starts with heat and ends with cold."

Stream act ruling goal

By DAVID ESPINO
Times-News Writer

BOISE. It might take an attorney general's opinion to get the new stream channel alteration act off dead center if it passes the legislature, according to State Water Administrator R. Keith Higginson, who was reconfirmed for a six-year term by the Senate Wednesday, said later in the day he would have to ask for an attorney general's ruling on what alterations would be allowed while new rules and regulations were being written by his department.

The 1973 act passed by the Senate 21-14 earlier in the week and now in the House Resource and Conservation Committee, gives the legislature the authority to approving the department's regulations.

If the legislature is not in session, however, the job falls to its appropriate committee to make the decision in the interim.

Higginson said that new rules and regulations being drafted to comply with the changes written into the proposed new law wouldn't be completed until the legislature had adjourned. He said he would ask for an interpretation from the attorney general as to what the effect of the section would be, adding that the question would be whether his department would have to prohibit all alterations while the rules were in limbo, or whether any changes in stream channels would be permissible.

Higginson said the department "will have as much work" from the new law as it did under the current one, although he said much of the work would deal with permit system, and under the category that required that the rules and regulations be "notified" of changes being made.

If the proposed law passes the House, he said, the only alterations that will fall under the permit system will be the construction of bridges and culverts over 25 inches, Higginson said.

He said that some aspects of the proposed new law are better than the existing statute administratively, while some aspects are weaker.

"The bill is workable," he said, adding that it "recognizes there are considerations other than fish and wildlife" in determining the propriety of stream channel alterations.

But he acknowledged that the proposals "weakened the hand of the court" in dealing with violators of the permit system.

Law enforcement said behind delay

Special to the Times-News
BOISE. The administrator of the Department of Water Administration said Wednesday he thought his Senate confirmation had been delayed because some people thought "we were being too vigorous in enforcement of state law."

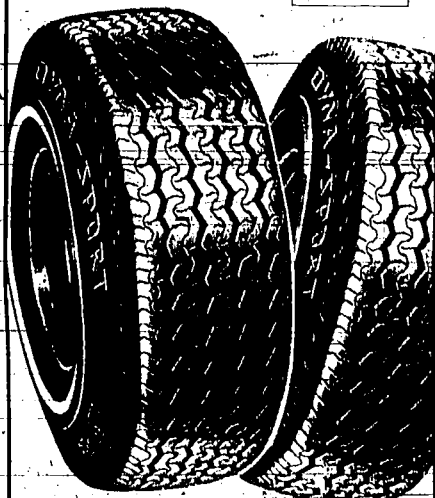

Keith Higginson, newly reconfirmed to a six-year term as administrator on an unanimous voice vote in the Senate earlier in the day, said his confirmation had been held in committee, because a number of people had some questions. "I don't know what they were," he said, "I never heard any direct questions."

Higginson's reappointment had been sent to the legislature in the early days of the session and held for several weeks before it reached the floor.

He said he thought some of the criticism stemmed from the 1971 stream channel protection act. An amended version of the law made it through the Senate Tuesday, one day before Higginson's confirmation.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-M. V. Nease Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My 29-year-old daughter recently divorced her husband. Bernice has a four-year-old son who is staying with me while his mother is off on a weekend trip. I just found out Bernice went on this trip with her boy friend, which is something I do not approve of. She has always been a respectable girl, and if this gets around, I'm afraid it will ruin her reputation and spoil her chances for marrying a nice man.

Mother's scheme

I am a 63-year-old widow. I own my own home and enjoy cooking and keeping house. More than anything else, I love my grandson and he loves staying with "Grandma." I could give him a wonderful home.

If I can obtain proof of my daughter's immoral conduct and prove her to be an unfit mother, what are my chances for gaining custody of my grandson?

CONCERNED GRANDMOTHER

DEAR CONCERNED: Are you concerned for your grandson or for yourself? I don't recommend pursuing your scheme. Your chances for gaining custody of your grandson are small, and should you lose, your daughter would probably never let you see him again.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a nice guy, but he has lousy grammar. My problem is that my oldest child is in the first grade, and even though I've corrected her when she talks like her father, she has picked up some of his bad habits.

I hate to hurt my husband's feelings by correcting him in front of the kid, but if I don't, I'm afraid she will sound like he does, which is pretty bad. I would appreciate your advice.

STUCK MOMMY

DEAR MOMMY: Keep correcting HER, and don't worry about your husband. The good Lord seems to look after children in such circumstances. How else can we explain those who were reared in homes by parents with "lousy" grammar but speak beautifully?

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column from a man who met an unwed mother. He said he had respect for her honesty and courage, and in his letter I found hope.

At this moment I am 18 years old, pregnant, and unmarried. My boy friend, also 18, pledged his undying love for me and told me if he got me pregnant, he would marry me. He was the first and only man who ever touched me, and we planned to be married in a year.

Well, when I told him I was pregnant, he found one reason after another to postpone our marriage. Then he said he wasn't sure he was the father, and he stopped calling and coming to see me. Now he's seeing another girl.

I'm too far along to do anything but have the baby now, but, thank God, my family is standing by me. I am praying for a healthy baby and I hope, some day I'll meet a man who won't hold this mistake against me.

Abby, please warn other girls who think they are in love to tell the boy that real love is protecting the girl and caring for her.

I don't want child support, and I don't want to see my boy friend punished. Now I can see him for what he really is, and I want nothing more to do with him. After I have the baby I plan to finish my education and start a new life far from here.

I never thought this could happen to me. If you think it will help some other girl, you may print this, but sign it SHATTERED DREAMS

DEAR SHATTERED: Thank you for telling your story. I'm sure your letter will be read and remembered by many. God bless you and good luck.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90089. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Jerome campaign begins today

JEROME — The Jerome Chapter of the American Red Cross started the annual fund raising drive in Jerome County today.

The drive is expected to last for two weeks. In charge of the annual event is Orin Shirts, county chairman. Dr. John Stelle III, newly appointed Jerome City chairman, and assisting the east end of the county will be Mrs. Irene Black, chairman for the Eden-Hazelton area.

Shirts said the goal for this year has been set at $5,000. "We have over 40 volunteers who will also be working on the drive. They will begin a door to door canvas to try and raise the funds. Service clubs and local businessmen will be contacted for their support," Shirts said.

He noted that in conjunction with the drive the Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Jerome at the Moose Hall from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. March 7.

Jerome's quota is 125 pints and we ask the cooperation of all Jerome residents to help us meet this quota," Shirts said. He noted the Red Cross collects only from volunteer donors and no charge is made for the blood itself. Those eligible to give blood must be between the age of 18 and 60.

"The bloodmobile is one of the major projects of the Red Cross and while a portion of hospital fees are returned to regional blood centers to offset part of the Red Cross expenses, the rest of the expenses are met with the money collected from the fund drive," Shirts said.

W. H. Halle—42 years at same location

TF man retires after 42 years in same location

By JOCELYN CLOWARD
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — "This has been my life, and I've loved every minute of it."

W. H. Halle retires this week from 42 years of management and service at Halle Conoco Service Station, 302 Shoshone St. W.

He began work at the station when he was 20 years old and selling hosiery, he said. "I met the Conoco district superintendent while calling lunch in Buhl," Halle reminisced, "and he hired me as relief man for a six weeks job at three stations."

"Only made $85 a month then, but through the years the company has been very good to me."

Halle was featured in the July, 1971, issue of the Conoco trade magazine. Today, which said of the Twin Falls dealer, "In the past few years, times have changed, but Harlan hasn't."

The usual renovations and changes didn't happen to the Shoshone station. "There wasn't room for building on," Halle said. "I didn't care, because I ran this alone. I've been on my own since World War II. This business has been good to me," he said. "I could have changed companies and moved out, but this is where I wanted to stay."

Halle became "full-time" lessee of the business Jan. 1, 1931, with $250, including money in the cash drawer. "I was lucky to make $100 a month then in depression years," he said.

Business improved in the late '30's and early '40's. "In fact, it was all I could do to take care of all the trade," he said. For the only time in his career, he had employees to help him.

There are many old fixtures and tools in the unchanged station building. Heat is distributed by an oil stove with stovepipe, and an outside lift is still operational. Halle has some of the tools he began work at the station with. One antique was made to turn petcocks on a Model T Ford to check the oil. "You stooped underneath to turn and if the oil ran out, you had plenty; if not, you were out," Halle said.

Still displayed in the station window are oil cans no longer in general use elsewhere which Halle has kept through the years.

"We used to have visible gas pumps where the gallons showed in the glass," Halle said. He also remembers five gallon crank pumps. "Actually," he said, "the main change in the station after all these years is the metered pumps we use now."

"I can even remember," he said, when gas was 22 cents a gallon.

The station property, now has been purchased by White Motor Co. for a new car display and customer parking. An adjoining building, Wilson Planing Mill, will also be demolished for the lot. Halle remembers the mill as once having a sign advertising Overland cars.

Halle has no particular retirement plans. He recalls that he used to bowl 34 or 35 years ago and that "five years ago, I locked up the station and went to Florida."

"I hope I can afford to buy gas when I retire," he said.

ling up dummy's long diamonds.

In the actual play Dave made an overbitch since East led a second heart.

Dave ruffed in dummy.

Then he played the king of trumps and led a diamond. East ducked and Dave was on lead. He pulled the last trumps while discarding two clubs from dummy. Then he went back to diamonds.

East held off until the third lead and then had to either lead a heart to allow Dave to discard the queen of clubs on his ace or a club away from his king.

ACARD Sense

By Oswald & James Jacoby

When the master point list was established in 1936 the late David Bruce was given the number one place. Dave was generally regarded as the best bidder of these early days and he was also quite a dummy player as may be seen from the way he handled this 4-3 trump fit in the 1935 Vanderbilt.

Dave's play at trick one is probably the first case of a classic coup. He refused to win the trick in order to retain trump control.

What's so unusual about that? Just look at the hand. Would you think of letting East hold the first trick?

After this unusual play East was helpless. There was no way to keep Dave from drawing trump and set.

The bidding has been:

West North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass 2 ♠
Pass 4 ♠ Pass

You, South, hold:

AKS4 VAQ63 02 AKQ107

What do you do now?

A—Bid four no-trump. You are going to six if your partner shows one ace.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

You bid four no-trump and your partner bids five hearts to show two aces. What do you do now?

Consideration should be given to the employment of an additional counselor if funds are available.

The report notes that the district's sole present counselor is responsible for 430 junior and senior high school students in addition to teaching two regular classes.

An addition counselor, the report notes, could eliminate or deal with disciplinary problems before they reach the upper reaches of the administration, one reason for the allegations brought by the patrons.

The report also calls for the establishment of "community advisory committees" to help develop communications between the district officials and community at large. It asks for a "planned program of public relations immediately."

The charges made by the district patrons last month included accusing the board of handling "minor discipline problems" rather than allowing the professional administrators handle them. But the report says that "due process has generally been followed."

It recommends, in addition, that a policy be established limiting the authority of the administrator to handing out a three-day suspension, with expulsion authority residing with the board.

TWIN FALLS — A Nevada man remained in fair condition this morning at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital following an accident Wednesday morning in which he was severely burned by an exploding camper stove.

Big W. Fox, 51, Elko, was taken to the hospital by ambulance Wednesday after a gas stove in his camper exploded when he tried to light it.

Sheriff Paul Corder said this morning that Fox was camping in the Shoshone Falls campground when the accident occurred. He said Fox managed to drive his camper to the top of the canyon and slump against the horn until nearby residents called for help.

Planning experts convene in TF

TWIN FALLS — Planning and zoning experts and government officials began meeting this morning at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital following a single car accident.

Mrs. Thompson suffered head and chest injuries when the vehicle she was driving left Highway 30 about three miles west of Twin Falls and rolled over into a field.

Sheriff's officers said the woman was traveling west and was alone in the late model vehicle which was heavily loaded with clothing and other personal effects. It appeared the vehicle drifted to the left and the driver pulled it back to the right side of the highway too quickly, losing control and causing it to go into a nearby field where it rolled over at least twice.

The accident occurred about 5 p.m. She was taken to the hospital by ambulance.

welcomed the group at 9:30 a.m. with a team of planning experts from the University of Colorado taking over to conduct the workshop sessions.

The program will continue through Friday. Brown said representatives of Blackfoot and Coeur d'Alene attended a similar session at the University of Colorado several years ago and were able to return to their communities to help establish planning committees.

We hope to teach the local planners in two days what they would require several years to learn through experience on planning boards, Brown said.

Corrugated steel outbuilding destroyed

Fire rips Kimberly building

KIMBERLY — Fire destroyed a new corrugated steel outbuilding at the Royal Manufacturing Co. plant northwest of Kimberly Wednesday afternoon.

Regal General Manager Lyle Frazier said the fire started about 3:15 p.m. when a workman's blowtorch set off urethane insulation which had just been sprayed in the building.

The fire also severely damaged a urethane spraying truck which was parked against the back of the building, Frazier said.

Frazier said the building was in the last stages of construction when the fire occurred. He said workers were cutting holes in a steel door with a torch when heat from the torch caught the insulation on fire. Frazier said the insulating material burned slowly but the workmen had nothing to put the fire out with and either an acetylene or an oxygen tank, or both, near the site of the blaze exploded, shooting flames throughout the structure.

Frazier said there were no injuries in the blaze. He estimated damage at about $50,000, including damage to the urethane pumping truck. Asked if insurance would cover the damage, he said "We hope so."

Frazier said the building was scheduled to be used as a mechanic and maintenance shop. He said Regal would probably rebuild the structure as it was badly needed, but he added that nothing would be planned before settling insurance claims on the destroyed structure.

Edwin Gill, chief of the Kimberly Fire department, which handled the blaze, said his men were at the blaze for about an hour. He said the building was nearly destroyed by the time firemen got to the scene. Gill said no firemen were injured or suffered inhalation of fumes. One truck responded to the call.

ND woman reported critical

TWIN FALLS — Velma C. Thompson, 50, Fargo, N. D., was reported in critical condition today at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital following a single car accident.

Mrs. Thompson suffered head and chest injuries when the vehicle she was driving left Highway 30 about three miles west of Twin Falls and rolled over into a field.

Sheriff's officers said the woman was traveling west and was alone in the late model vehicle which was heavily loaded with clothing and other personal effects. It appeared the vehicle drifted to the left and the driver pulled it back to the right side of the highway too quickly, losing control and causing it to go into a nearby field where it rolled over at least twice.

The accident occurred about 5 p.m. She was taken to the hospital by ambulance.

Gooding school budget raised

Special to the Times-News

BOISE — The Joint Finance Appropriation Committee reopened the general fund budget for the Gooding State School for the Deaf and Blind Wednesday, raising it to the status quo level for the year beginning July 1.

The move came after Edward Reay, superintendent, told several lawmakers privately that the budget the committee initially approved could lead to severe cutbacks in operations.

The committee's new recommended figure is $982,500, compared to $894,000 approved last weekend.

Reay said in an interview earlier in the day that teachers at the school would have to work next year at this year's wages if the legislature had adopted the earlier figure, which was Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' recommended funding level.

A 1982-83 appropriation would be an increase of about $125,000 over the current year's general fund spending for the school.

Reay said that in addition to the salary squeeze the original funding level approved by the committee would provide books and materials for a new statewide itinerant teaching program for the visually handicapped but wouldn't permit the school to hire two teachers needed to staff the program.

The status quo budget, he said, included salaries for two teacher positions.

Wood River COG pursues projects

By PEGGY CHU
Times-News writer

GOODING — The Wood River Resource Area Council of Governments decided to pursue projects ranging from clean engine school buses to development of a grape industry in southern Idaho.

The Council of Governments (COG) approved 10 programs at its annual meeting Wednesday night.

The COG unanimously reelected chairman Don Frederickson of Gooding, along with C. W. Gardner, Hailey, Blaine County commissioner, vice chairman, and Clyde Peterson, Wendell, secretary.

The 10 programs adopted by the COG would include:

- Authorization to lend staff assistance to the Gooding Senior Citizens Center. The assistance would be for help in obtaining grants for the center.
- Authorization for the COG to develop a study of flood protection alternatives for the Big and Little Wood River areas. The scope of the effort is expected to take several months.
- Authorization for the COG to act as an intermediary in negotiations for trading state land for federal land as part of the Pilot Land Exchange Program. The land trades which involves mostly range land, would be intended to make state lands more manageable or suitable.
- Involvement in the Three Mile Creek Watershed Development program. This would call for the COG to plan for watershed improvements affecting about 26,000 acres on Three Mile Creek in Camas County.

Authorization for the COG staff to assist Ketchum in obtaining grants for development of its city park.

Authorization for the council to assist the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission to develop a land use plan involving land along the lower Big Wood River. The COG staff to plan for improvements in the existing Little Wood River Canal System supplying Carey with water.

Authorized staff work involving the Gooding recreation complex.

Authorized the COG staff to consider conducting a feasibility study of an "urban transit" system for the Wood River Valley. The proposed system would involve running steam locomotives along the now unused Union Pacific tracks from Shoshone to Ketchum and the connector to Fairfield. Supporters of the plan say it would serve as a replacement of nine schoolbuses and would be a tourist attraction.

Authorized involvement in a project to urge Gooding area farmers to consider grapes as a crop. The project would involve investigating the feasibility of establishing European grape varieties for wine in the area.

In other action, the COG heard a report from Frederickson that the $78,000 application for a federal grant for study of solid waste management would not be funded.

Joint Blaine project okayed

By TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — A joint engineering project to develop a plan of action to increase efficiency of the Ketchum Sewage treatment plant was authorized Wednesday.

The authorization came during a meeting between the Ketchum city council and the Sun Valley sewer and water district board, called to discuss the plant which is shared on a cooperative basis between the cities of Ketchum and Sun Valley.

The project will be conducted by JUB Engineers, the consulting engineering firm for the city of Ketchum; CH2M, consultants for the sewer and water district, both Boise and the firm of James A. Montgomery Consulting Engineers Inc., San Francisco, a specialist firm hired by the district; John Sammerly of the Montgomery firm was designated as project manager.

Ketchum Mayor Kenneth Ritchey requested the project begin immediately and the engineers' recommendations be solidified into one plan of action within about one month.

Discussed during the meeting was a de-rating of the plant by the state Department of Environmental Protection and Health from the plant's designed hydraulic peak capacity of 2.25 million gallons per day to 1.25 million gallons about the present operating level — in order to meet water quality standards.

In consequence, Ketchum presently has a building moratorium in effect, disallowing any additional sewer hookups.

P. G. (Bud) Simon, Sun Valley sewer and water district board president, said the first priority was to bring "the plant up to its designed capacity, eliminating the de-rated level the state has imposed," and second, steps toward plant expansion.

Simon presented a preliminary report made by the Montgomery firm, containing eight recommendations to increase plant efficiency, including increased training for plant personnel and added plant equipment.

Simon said the report questioned the accuracy of the flow meter readings both at the plant and on the Sun Valley tap line. District manager G. Robert Ackerman said the report indicated, during high volume periods, that Ketchum and Sun Valley roughly contribute equally to the plant.

Simon said the district was willing after accurate flow ratings are established to renegotiate the contract between the two cities to convert the sharing of plant costs, maintenance and operation from an equivalent collection basis to flow rate, on 50-50 basis if indicated.

During February under the present system based on equivalent connections, Ketchum's paid share of cost was 68 per cent and Sun Valley's 32 per cent.

Also present at the meeting were Les Jankow, plant manager; Harold Cox, and William Briggs, JUB Engineers; Roy Taylor, CH2M; Alan Coleman, president of Sun Valley Co. Inc. and Jack Marshall, manager of Elk Horn.

Health board approves purchase of TF site

By RONNIE JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — South Central Idaho Health District board members voted unanimously here Wednesday afternoon to follow the recommendations of their site committee for purchase of the American Legion Hall in Twin Falls.

The building, purchased at a price of $22,500, will be remodeled to provide space for the district's headquarters including administration, clinic and laboratory facilities. It will replace the space now rented in the Twin Falls City Hall which must be vacated at the request of the city by April 1, 1974.

Dr. Wayne Carter, medical director, said the next step will be to ask the architect to complete plans for remodeling and to call for bids.

A second motion by the board stipulated all eight counties of the district should participate in the awarding of a contract. Dr. Carter said if one or more of the counties would act as contracting agent it would not be necessary to involve the state and time and red tape could be saved.

William Chancey, board chairman, and member of the site committee, told other board members his group had already agreed this was the most logical site of several under consideration and had paid $500 "earnest money" to the American Legion.

Before the final vote, Dr. Charles Parker, Jerome, suggested the board consider the advisability of building a new building because of the lack of parking facilities.

He estimated if land were donated, a new building could be built for about $120,000 to $128,000, saving a building in Jerome of quality construction is being built for about $11 per square foot which would be well below the health building estimates.

Dr. Carter said architect and contractor estimates indicate a new building could be erected for just over $120,000 providing about 6,400 square feet of space, or just enough to meet present needs.

The Legion hall remodeling estimates, including carpeting in the main areas of use are about $80,000 and the district would have 10,600 square feet of space and room for the mental health agency and for future expansion which needed.

Chancey said Twin Falls County has money available to close the purchase agreement for the building. He said other counties will be asked to budget or provide their share of the purchase and remodeling cost as work then begin as soon as possible.

He said seven of the eight counties have indicated they are ready to go ahead on funding the new facilities and the eighth is expected to make arrangements for its share.

Dr. Carter asked the counties to budget the equivalent of $1 per capita of their total population. He said this would provide about $102,000 and the entire budgeted amount would probably not be spent and unused amounts could be retained by the counties.

The district's budget committee, consisting of the chairmen of each county commission, will be asked to meet with the health board March 19 to approve financing plans for the new district headquarters. The meeting will be held at 2 p.m. in the Jerome county courthouse.

Board members also approved the services of architect Ivan Stone at a cost of $3,700 for remodeling designs.

Declo water and sewage plant aired in report

DECLO — A water and sewer plant for Declo area residents is included in a report presented to Cassia County Commissioners.

The report was a part of a "Comprehensive Rural Water and Sewerage Planning Study," for Cassia County, compiled by the Idaho Water Resource Board and funded by the Farmers Home Administration. Following is the summary for Declo of conclusions recommendations and cost estimates.

The almost new domestic water system is available to all residents of the community. Although the central system is available, a large number of residents (approximately 30 per cent) obtain domestic water from individual wells. These wells are throughout the community. Quality of construction is unknown as no investigation was made.

Two recommendations for improvements were made: First, eliminate as many of the deadend connections as possible, particularly in the southwest part of town. It was proposed that these improvements be delayed until such time that development was sufficient to justify them.

Second and most important item is the need for additional fire fighting capability. In order to provide this capability it is recommended that a 178,000 gallon ground-level storage reservoir be constructed. It is also recommended that residents not connected to the water system be encouraged to do so.

Sewage disposal is through individual septic tanks and drainfields or cesspools. The city has contracted with the engineering firm of Smith and Jewell to prepare a preliminary engineering report for a central system.

Recommendations include a sewage collection system for the entire community; a raw sewage lift station to pump into a conventional three stage sewage lagoon equipped with aeration facilities. It is proposed that the lagoon be located adjacent to Marsh Creek.

Based upon the present water service charge required for payment on outstanding bond issues, 30-year revenue bonds at 6 per cent interest for the proposed sewerage system, 100 equivalent connections, and an annual cost of $5,000 for operation and maintenance, the combined monthly water and sewer service charge for a typical user would be approximately $11.30.

Couple defrauded

TWIN FALLS — An elderly couple was defrauded of about $1,200 Tuesday afternoon by bogus TV antenna repairmen.

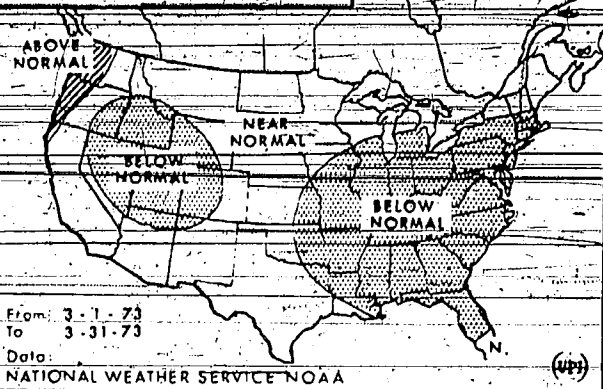

Sheriff Paul Corder said this morning that Mr. and Mrs. Martin N. Knudson were told by three men who approached them at their rural residence just south of Hollister that the television antenna on their house was faulty and could cause a house fire in an electrical storm.

Corder said the men agreed to install a ground line for the couple and did in fact run a round, webbed aluminum cable from the antenna to the ground. The men then convinced the couple to give them two signed blank checks in payment.

The checks were later filled out for $865 and $365 respectively and cashed, Corder said. He said the investigation is continuing.

Corder said he did not know how Mr. and Mrs. Knudson were persuaded to sign separate blank checks.

Farm program end damage evaluated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Immediate abolition of all government farm programs would produce a dramatic plunge in farm income and drive "many" marginal operators off the land, an Agriculture Department study predicts.

But contrary to a widely-held belief that the small farmer would be hurt worst by a farm income skid, the study prepared for the Senate Agriculture Committee contends big commercial-scale farmers would suffer more than smaller operators.

"Small farms with less than $5,000 in annual sales would be the least affected. This is largely because operators of these small farms derive so large a share of their income from nonfarm sources," explained the report submitted by Don Paarlberg, the agriculture department's director of economics.

For consumers, the report indicated, abolition of farm programs could bring a series of boom-and-bust price cycles. The report, drafted at the request of Chairman Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., of the Senate Agriculture Committee, was a partial answer to Talmadge's query about what would happen if "all price support and acreage adjustment payments were discontinued," Paarlberg said. The study was limited to the impact on feed grains, wheat, cotton and soybeans; he said the implications of abandoning supports were abolished but it programs for rice, peanuts, tobacco and dairy products would be covered in a later report.

The study is not an analysis of the effect of President Nixon's new farm proposals, which would discontinue income supplement payments on major crops but would retain surplus controls, crop support loans and land retirement programs.

Talmadge asked for the report on a complete wipe-out of farm programs, however, to lay out the impact of proposals which he said were being made by many urban newspapers. Paarlberg's report did not offer any specific dollar estimates of farm income if all supports were abolished but it said:

"In the first year of no program, corn prices (which averaged $1.30 a bushel in mid-January) probably would drop below $1 a bushel, with other feed grains and wheat prices (comparably). Soybean prices (over $6 a bushel recently) would be expected to fall below $3 a bushel.

"With continued strong demand, however, soybean prices would be expected to rebound to well above $3 a bushel after a few years. Cotton prices might be in the range of 25 to 27 cents per pound."

The report added: "Complete removal of all production restraints and price supports in 1974 might cause substantial increases in production, sharp drops in farm product prices, and even greater drops in net farm incomes in the immediate years after removal of controls."

"The result would be an increased economic squeeze on most farmers, with possible failure or withdrawal of many marginal farms."

Price jump cause told

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — A Washington State University poultry specialist has given three reasons for the large jump in egg prices the past two months.

Dr. D.K. Andrews blamed the jump in egg prices to a cutback in egg-producing flocks due to previous low prices, higher feed costs and a disease problem in the flocks of several large California producers.

Andrews said the price of a dozen eggs, as any housewife can testify, has jumped 30 cents in two months.

Weber's late rally tops Utags

OGDEN (UPI) — Fifteenth-ranked Weber State put on a 12-point scoring exhibition and played perfect defense during the final five minutes Wednesday to close its regular season with a 75-67 win over in-state rival Utah State.

The victory was the Wildcats' 12th straight and gave them a 20-6 record for the season. They now go to the NCAA west quarterfinals at Logan, March 10.

USC trailed through most of the first half, and finally went to the locker room with a narrow 39-37 intermission lead.

Utah State moved ahead as soon as it hit the floor after the half, and the lead seesawed back and forth until late in the game.

The Aggies led 49-63 with 5:30 remaining when Weber State came alive.

Weber continued to hold the Aggies scoreless as it rolled up 12 points, closing the four-point gap and putting eight points ahead.

Three seniors scored in double figures to pace the Weber state win. Rich Cooper led with 17 points and 13 rebounds, followed by Brady Small with 15 points and Greg Soter with 13.

Jim Boatwright, Rupert and USC was the game's high scorer with 19 Aggies Bol-

Allen shows up for opening practice

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Dick Allen, reporting on the first day of spring training for the first time since his rookie 1964 season, was greeted by his teammates with a burst of optimism and confidence when he marched into the Chicago White Sox dressing room Wednesday, a day after signing a record three-year, $700,000 contract.

The way manager Chuck Tanner and the White Sox see it, they have "signed" a three-year contract with Allen to play in the World Series.

"The signing of that contract means Allen is going to be with us for the next three years," said catcher Ed Herrmann.

"The club is young and strong and we know this means that sometime in the next three years Allen will lead us to the world championship."

"I told him this is the last team he's going to play for," chortled Tanner. "He's with us. If he goes, we're going with him."

Other players, as well as director of player personnel Roland Hemond, echoed those thoughts in a club house which was absolutely flying high with enthusiasm.

"There wasn't a trace of resentment over the size of Allen's contract. The mood was of unrestrained optimism, for the team's pennant chances plus a long range view that the new break-through Allen has achieved through the salary ceiling will filter down in competitive and financial benefits to other members of the organization."

Tanner broke whatever ice might have existed at the meeting which preceded the White Sox' first workout.

"Now," he said, "looking directly at Allen, 'if there is anybody in this club house who doesn't know how to handle himself in spring training, let me tell you how it is done.'"

About a half dozen players who were looking at Allen in something akin to awe broke out into giggles and Allen himself laughed at the manager's needle.

"The White Sox are happy to play Allen this contract," said Hemond. "This is the kind of superstar this organization wants. We're going to win a world championship and Allen is going to lead us to it. Remember how they used to call the Yankees the Bronx Bombers? Well, they're going to be calling us the Chicago Bombers."

"We'll beat Oakland this year," said Herrmann. "With Mike Andrews, Ken Henderson, Allen, Carlos May and Bill Melton batting in the No. 2 to No. 6 slots, we're going to have the most powerful hitting team in the league. Allen might hit 50 or even 60 homers, Melton will be good for 30 to 32, and we'll have two or three other players in the lineup who hit more than 20 homers."

Player representatives vote to approve three-year pact

MIAMI (UPI) — Player representatives of 22 of the 24 major league baseball teams voted unanimously Wednesday to recommend approval of a new three-year agreement with the owners which includes a provision for salary arbitration next year.

The provision states that any club or any player with two or more years of major league service may submit any salary dispute to binding arbitration.

"We're very pleased with this agreement, especially the arbitration clause," said Chicago Cubs pitcher Milt Pappas. "It gives us a weapon we've never had before."

The contract now goes to the members of the players association, who will vote before the current contract runs out March 31.

Marvin Miller, chief negotiator for the players, said he expected no difficulty in getting the contract ratified. Miller briefed player representatives on the contract during a two-hour session Wednesday.

The new agreement does not include any settlement of the reserve clause issue, although it outlines the differences and opinions on the two sides.

Miller said the Players Association would continue to fight for the elimination, or at least modification, of the reserve clause.

Other clauses in the contract include:

An increase in minimum salary from $13,500 to $15,000 in 1973 and 1974 and $18,000 in 1975.

A hike in the minimum World Series winning share to $20,000 from $15,000, per player.

A provision that a 10-year major league veteran who spends the last five years with the same team cannot be traded or sold without his consent, and a player with five or more years in the big leagues could not be sent to a minor league team without his consent.

A ban on two-night double-headers on "getaway" days.

An increase in the spring training daily meal allowance from $16.50 to $18.

The contract also included a new pension plan, which increases payments to retired players to $36 per month for each of their first 10 years in the majors and $24 per month for each of the next 10 years.

Miller said this amounted to a 20 per cent increase over the 1969 agreement.

The meeting of the player representatives took place in the Miami Airport Inn a few blocks from Miami International Airport. Many of the player representatives had just arrived in Florida to attend spring training, which officially opens Thursday.

Baltimore and Oakland were not represented at the meeting because of travel difficulties, Miller said.

Miller credited the players and their representatives for their part in the negotiations.

Richfield claims trip to state tourney

'Skins test Camas for other berth

GOODING — The Richfield Tigers, getting a closing eight-point spark from Toby Dayley, dropped the Camas County Musers 63-56 to clinch a berth in the state A-4 tournament.

The Tigers, getting their first victory over the Musers in three tries, thus advance to the fourth district A-4 finals Friday night and await a challenger from Thursday night's Camas County Gooding State game. Gooding State, in a surprisingly easy test, eliminated Dietrich 56-31 Wednesday.

Actually, the position caused a lot of misery for Camas County which had won 14 straight games. Dave Jones, a 6-3 junior, held the position for just over three quarters and threw in 11 points. But he also anchored Richfield's rebounding. After he fouled out, Dayley, who has seen little action this year due to knee problems after starting last year, worked the baseline for the clinching eight points. It was Dayley's baseline drive for a triple that sent Richfield ahead to stay at 55-53 with 1:23 remaining.

The game was closer than the score indicated as Richfield scored seven points in the last 37 seconds and Camas County only two. In fact, after being tied with 1:25 left, Richfield broke into a nine-point advantage.

Camas County has its own problems with fouls. Rolland Weeks, 6-5, and Matt Croner, 6-4, who at times took the boards completely away from Richfield, had three fouls each in the first period — two each of the silly variety. They sat out most of the second period, part of the third and Croner went out with 3:17 left. It was the edge Richfield needed to win it.

Basically it was a two-point ball game. Camas County was led by more than two while Richfield had a more comfortable advantage three times.

Their biggest of the first half was four points and they had that going into the third period. While Alfred then hit two long shots to open the last half and Browne jumped in to make it 36-28. Then Richfield missed five shots on one trip down the floor and that broke the magic for a while. Weeks, Croner and Geisler brought Camas County back to a 30-38 lead with 2:39 left and it was tied going into the last period.

Richfield survived a missed shot at the wrong basket to open the last period but Jones hit twice and Musher Layne Osborne once in a low two minutes. After Dayley made his appearance with a bucket, the teams waxed hot and traded two buckets each in 38 seconds. Richfield came out of that with a four-point lead but Weeks, on the other end of the boards, got one for the Musers and Croner tied it from the line with 3:36 remaining.

Dayley untied it a minute later and Croner went to the sideline. Brown's free throws with 55 seconds left made it 56-53 before Osborne gave Camas County its last hope with a free throw.

Alfred replied with two from the line and then got away for a fast-break crippler — that ended up being a three-point play. Steve Powers hit another as the Tigers went to 63-54 and hardly cared that Stroud got the last points for Camas.

In the first game, Gooding State had things very easy as Dietrich was ice cold and, with Gary McCowan out with pneumonia, without its usual leadership at the point. But the Redskins took just about every phase of the game away from the Blue Devils and during the decisive part of the contest out-rebounded Dietrich badly.

Gooding State, now within one game of getting to state and its pre-season goal, mounted a 20-point lead by intermission and Dietrich was never able to get closer than 15 in the third period before the Redskins ran away again.

Trail Blazers figure it's 50-50 Walton will turn pro

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — A Portland Trail Blazers official, who figures it's a 50-50 prospect, UCLA center Bill Walton will seek "hardship status" to turn professional, said Tuesday the club had the money to pay for the star Brigham.

"Yes, we could afford Walton if he became available," said Stu Inman, Blazers director of player personnel, at the weekly meeting of the Oregon Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association.

However, Inman doesn't believe Walton will be a hard one to negotiate with.

"I have the feeling that Walton is the type of fellow who, if he decides to skip his last season of eligibility, will do it quickly and without a lot of Thompson of North Carolina State.

"If Thompson was available, we'd take him," he said.

He mentioned other possible hardship cases, including Raymond Lewis of Los Angeles State, Marvin Barnes of Providence and Campy Russell of Michigan.

Inman believes that if Walton does not apply to become professional, there will be no center drafted in the first round.

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course will be open for play on regular greens Saturday to begin the 1973 season.

According to Clyde Thomsen, course professional, cups will be set in the regular greens and spikes may be worn by golfers.

No price figures have been set for season tickets or daily green fees by the city council, Thomsen said.

The proshop and snack bar will also be open for golfers Saturday. Friday the proshop and driving range will be open to golfers who want to practice before beginning regular play Saturday.

What three personality traits do you figure the best salesmen have in common? University of Chicago scholars say they've found out, and their findings, I think, weren't predictable. Most top salesmen, they report, marry early, handle their own checkbooks, and quickly cash a cash cushion in savings. Interesting, if true. In general, the researchers say, these characteristics seem to describe a fellow who runs a little but scared right from the outset.

YOUNG LADY are you sufficiently liberated to ask some handsome stranger to go out with you for dinner? When a national magazine recently put that query to 11,000 lady readers, just 61 per cent said yes, they wouldn't hesitate. Remarkable! And 15 per cent actually said they'd be perfectly willing to suggest a little more than that, downright physical romance, if they felt so inclined. Our stage and screen myth is appalled.

PERSONAL QUERY

Q "Folks, did you ever quit smoking? And if so, how?" A Once. For nine days. Substituted candy. The lady friend found it curious that I kept printing the wrappers out with my foot. At any rate, managed it they by postponing the first cigarette each successive day by one hour. Took about a dozen days to stop. It worked. Intend to try it again shortly.

WHY BLACKS develop far fewer brain tumors than whites is another medical mystery, doctors say. HOW CITIZENS realize the homicide rate is now 30 per cent lower than it was in 1933, the robbery rate 30 per cent lower. SCIENTIST studies repeatedly indicate that introverts seem to be better able to hold their liquor than extroverts. DID I CALL that lagoon Klondike prospector Sweetwater Bill Gates? Yes, that He was known as Swiftwater Bill. MORE PEOPLE eat squid worldwide every day than eat claims against the shrimp put together.

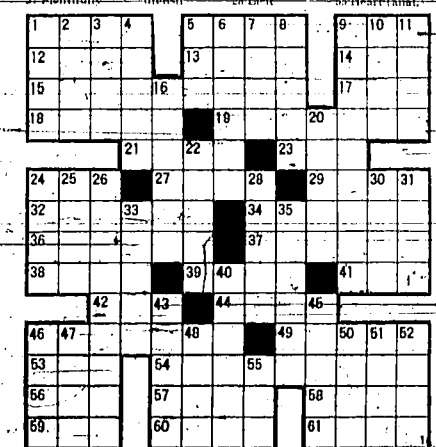

TALL PEOPLE

Any woman over 5 feet-10 inches tall should be allowed a special federal income tax exemption. Likewise a man over 6 feet-4 inches tall. Why? I suspect they need custom-made clothes and they can more than make up for it. That's not my contention. It's the claim of Werner Schneider, a 6-foot-10-inch policeman in Frankfurt, West Germany. He has founded a tall peoples club there to lobby for a tax break.

DID YOU ASK about the cost of health care? It's about just 40 cents goes to hospitals, 23 cents to doctors, 12 cents to drugs, 10 cents to dentists and related professions, 4 cents to nursing homes and 8 cents to other. What's other?

SWENSEN'S FARM SALE!!

ANNOUNCING ...

Grand OPENING OF SWENSEN'S PAUL, IDAHO

This is not a sale of farm implements, dairy cows or last years' hay crop; but a sale of all kinds of Farm Fresh packaged and Fresh Produce designed to emphasize the opening of Swensen's NEW Magic Market at the agricultural crossroads of the West... PAUL, IDAHO!

193 LITTLE ELVES (elfs? — Maybe elfins ...) have been frantically scurrying hither and thither, back and forth across the countryside gathering up a whole bunch of WONDERFUL MONEY SAVING SPECIALS FOR THE GRAND OPENING of our New Store.

FORMERLY
JAY'S FOOD TOWN

Meet RICHARD SWENSEN, the manager of our newest, nicest store. Richard is not necessarily the nicest Swensen, but then, none of the Swensons were ever known to win any selections. The oldest Swensen (Sherm, head of the clan) sort of wanted to be the manager, but he was too busy co-signing loans for the younger Swensons. We considered sending the best looking, smartest Swensen, but none of the wives could agree about this... So Richard ended up going to Paul.
