Death penalty return sought

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress today to restore the death penalty for wartime treason, sabotage and espionage and for federal crimes such as hijacking and kidnapping in which a death results.

He also called for harsh, new mandatory penalties for narcotics violations. The President said this would sharply reduce the discretion of courts which he said had often become "an escape hatch for those who are responsible for the menace of drugs."

In the sixth installment of his written State of the Union report, Nixon also proposed a complete revision of the federal criminal code. Included is a restriction on the insanity defense which would permit acquittal only if a defendant did not know what he was doing.

The code revision also would alter penalties increasing some and reducing others — and would eliminate such obsolete crimes as interference with a carrier pigeon.

The President's plan would establish a two-tier trial in which following conviction for a possible capital crime, a separate hearing would be held for a defendant to determine whether death should be the penalty.

The death sentence would be mandatory if the jury determined that the crime was aggravated by creation of grave risk to the national security or to the life of another person, or by the killing of another person, or by other aggravating factors and was not reduced by a mitigating factor.

The death sentence would be prohibited if the jury found the existence of one or more mitigating factors such as youth of the defendant, mental incapacity or the commission of

Irish confirm Cosgrave

DUBLIN (UPI) — Liam Cosgrave took office as Ireland's new prime minister today after being voted into office, 72-70, by the Dail (Parliament). The vote was a formality and confirmed Cosgrave's victory in the Feb. 28 election.

Turkish election delayed

ANKARA (UPI) — Chairman Osman Sabit Avcit delayed for 24 hours today a fifth attempt by deadlocked lawmakers to elect a new president of Turkey.

Avcit, president of the lower chamber of Parliament and chairman of its joint session, said he postponed the resumption of balloting because a majority was not present due to a special senate meeting of which he had not been told in advance.

2 refuse to appear

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former FBI deputy director and a former employee of President Nixon's 1972 campaign declined to testify today at Senate hearings on the nomination of L. Patrick Gray as FBI director.

Refusing to appear were Thomas Bishop, who quit the FBI earlier this year, and Mrs. Judith Hoback, former assistant to the treasurer of the Committee for Re-Election of the President.

US pullout resumes

SAIGON (UPI) — The United States today resumed withdrawal of troops from South Vietnam, one day before the US Army ends its role in the Vietnam war.

The end of eight years of operation by the Military Assistance Command in Vietnam will leave 6,000 American troops still in Vietnam.

Blockade cinched tighter

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (UPI) — The government strengthened its blockade and Indians vowed to continue their armed occupation as the two sides cinched wits today for control of Wounded Knee, a tiny hamlet on this Ogala Sioux reservation.

The two sides agreed to another parley today to seek a peaceful solution, but government spokesmen left no doubt they intend to settle the matter one way or another.

The government strengthened the blockade of the village by moving in 15 armored personnel carriers and increasing manpower at roadblocks to 300. While terming the occupation an "insurrection," a government spokesman said there were no immediate plans to move in on the Indians.

Members of the American Indian Movement (AIM) vowed Tuesday not to lay down arms or quit their 15-day occupation of this armed encampment until the government responded favorably to demands to replace the elected Indian officials on the reservation.

Weapons remained silent for the new talks — the second session in two days.

CSI vo-ed building funds OK'd

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News writer

BOISE — The legislature approved $950,000 in first phase funding for a new vocational education building at the College of Southern Idaho Tuesday.

The action came in part of a $4.87 million appropriations for permanent building fund construction projects that passed both houses of the legislature during the session's final hours.

The measure cleared the House Monday night on a 64-4 vote and passed the Senate Tuesday on a 30-0 vote, one of the last measures to be considered.

The appropriations for the CSI building had not originally been included in the recommendations of the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council but were included in the priority list approved by the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee and sent to floor of the legislative houses.

CSI president James L. Taylor said today the college was "gratified" that the legislature acted affirmatively on the vocational education building.

"We have schematics for the building that have been done for two years, but we'll have to go back and redo these schematics because the original proposal was for a $2.1 million facility."

Taylor said the $950,000 allocated by the legislature would be used to construct a functioning facility which could later be added on to if further funds are appropriated by the legislature next year.

"We intend to go ahead with what we have and revamp our plans to be within the budget until further funds are appropriated," Taylor said.

He said what vocational programs will be given priority for location in the new building has not been discussed. "We'll have staff meetings starting next week and begin to set up a priority list," he said.

Taylor said he did not think the new building would mean expansion of CSI's vocational programs at this time. "We're working for that day when we will have housed on campus all of our educational activities."

Taylor said the action to approve building funds taken by the legislature, despite the fact no building funds were budgeted for in the governors' budget projections for this year, did not surprise him.

"I feel the entire legislature in Idaho is committed to the area vocational school concept," Taylor said. "I truly believe they feel they get as much mileage for their money as in any other facet of education in the state."

Taylor said he thought the appropriations were a victory for all the people of Magic Valley, not residents of Twin Falls and Jerome counties.

"The CSI area vocational education school was designated to serve all of the Magic Valley and this facility will enable us to meet more fully the vocational needs of the Magic Valley," Taylor said.

Hazelton approves sewer plant bonds

HAZELTON — Residents voted 49 to 27 in favor of a $35,000 bond issue for a sewer improvement project Tuesday.

There were 80 voting yes and 27 voting no.

The estimated cost of the sewer improvement project is $125,000. Of that amount, $92,500 is available from the US Environmental Protection Agency as a federal grant and about $18,500 from the state, leaving Hazelton's project costs at about $15,000.

Bonds not needed for construction of the improvement would not be sold, according to S. A. Kolman, attorney for the city. Kolman said the project includes construction of a treatment lagoon and improvement of the present sewer system.

Hazelton had been warned by the Idaho Department of Health that the present sewer system did not meet requirements and was advised to make immediate improvements.

Tax relief, education funds top '73 actions

BOISE (UPI) — Tax relief, funding of education and state regulation of abortions were listed as some of the top accomplishments of the first regular session of the 42nd Idaho Legislature which adjourned sine die Tuesday night.

Party leaders in both the House and Senate called the session "workmanlike" and "responsible."

The problem of abortion was faced squarely with the passage of a bill to bring the state law into conformity with the supreme court decision, Sen. Phil Batt, R-Wilder, Senate majority leader, said.

Rep. Melvin Hammond, D-Rexburg, minority leader in the House, listed the regulatory abortion law to offset the decision of the court as one of the top accomplishments of the session.

"The legislature accomplished full funding for the first time in a number of years of our public school foundation program," Senate Minority Leader John Evans, D-Malden, said.

"Therefore relieving the necessity of any increase in local property as this inflationary spiraling we seem to be in continues on."

House Majority Leader H. Ford Koch, R-Boise, listed the combination of the departments of environmental protection and health and social and rehabilitative services among top legislative accomplishments.

"This was the first step in governmental reorganization," he said.

"We handled the long standing problem of parks lands belonging to the endowment fund by arriving at a responsible arrangement beneficial both to parks and endowment lands," Koch said.

Idaho solons close session, head home

RICHARD CHARNOCK
BOISE (UPI) — Presiding officers gavelled the first regular session of the 42nd Idaho Legislature to final adjournment Tuesday evening after the lawmakers completed action on abortion and death penalty legislation.

House Speaker Wm. J. Lantieri, R-Hollister, pounded his final gavel of the session at 8:20 p.m. Gov. Jack Murphy adjourned the Senate also at 8:21 p.m.

Before bringing this session to a close the House killed by refusing to consider a $250,000 appropriation to begin first phase construction of a new governor's mansion.

Then leadership in both houses became concerned about a district judge's ruling that different land limits on the highways for different types of commercial vehicles was unconstitutional. Federal authorities warned the state the ultimate effect of this ruling could jeopardize 10 percent of the state's federal road desirable federal programs before they begin their second regular session.

Senators approved 29-5 and sent to the governor an amended bill to permit but regulate abortions, this version is written to reinstate the old anti-abortion law if it becomes constitutionally possible.

At the same time, the House put the finishing touches on one of two memorials passed by this legislature — asking congress to take immediate action on the abortion problem including a constitutional proposal.

House members gave their approval 52-8 to a bill reinstating the death penalty as a mandatory punishment for first-degree murder. This completed legislative action on the bill.

Both houses in their 55th session dwelt heavily on "law and order" legislation while approving a record $137.8 million general fund budget and $6.1 million in tax relief.

Included in the overall spending were $63.25 million for public schools, $36.09 million for colleges and universities and $1.8 million for junior colleges.

A major action was the $1.5 million down payment to the endowment funds on a 40-year, $15-million payment for endowment lands put into parks and recreation.

But if there was one area that preoccupied the legislators in their deliberations it was in the category of "law and order."

At the suggestion of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus they enacted a now and stronger anti-pornography law to meet guidelines established by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Concerned about mounting crime, they tried to make it a felony to carry a gun while committing certain crimes. The House softened the measure with amendments and when it returned to the Senate the principal sponsor allowed it to die in committee.

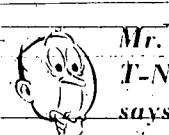

They made law and lascivious conduct with a minor a crime again and cracked down on prostitutes — making the oldest profession a misdemeanor.

At the suggestion of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus they enacted a

Amtrak passenger train cut planned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government has decided that only Amtrak passenger trains should be cut this year and that Amtrak should be given another two years to see if it can make a success of the rest of its system.

The Department of Transportation report on Amtrak to go to Congress Thursday, means that massive cutbacks will not take place as many had feared on July 1 when Amtrak is no longer required by law to continue service on all its original routes.

It is understood that the original staff report was watered down in the office of Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar and that the report is only mildly critical of Amtrak, its board of directors and the railroads that actually operate Amtrak trains. Most of the report's recommendations are also said to be general in nature.

According to sources who have seen the report, the major recommendation is that Amtrak, in the 22 months since it took over most of the nation's passenger train service, has not had enough time to show what it can do and should be given at least another two years.

The report also sets out for the first time a criteria for determining whether a train should be cut or maintained after a trial period. The major test would be whether the train loses more than 2 cents per passenger mile.

The recommended service cuts, which are not binding on Amtrak, are:

— The Chicago-Florida Floridian, which runs from Chicago through Indianapolis, Louisville, Nashville, Birmingham, Montgomery and Jacksonville, Fla., to Miami and St. Petersburg. Chicago-Florida service would then be provided on other existing trains via Richmond, Va.

— The New York-Kansas City National Limited, which runs from New York through North Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Pa., Pittsburgh, Columbus, Dayton, Indianapolis and St. Louis to Kansas City.

The Richmond-Newport News, Va. portion of the Chicago-Newport News train, leaving the train running Chicago-Richmond.

The Washington-Parkburg, W. Va., train, often called the "Harley Stagers Special" or "Harley's Hornet," because House Commerce Committee chairman Harley Stagers, D-W. Va., forced Amtrak to put the run on.

RAILROAD crews work to clear the track after 27 cars and two engines of an auto train derailed after colliding with a pulpwood truck. The truck driver was killed and 25 persons on the train injured. (UPI).

Affidavit, appeal filed in Rainbow Bridge case

By United Press International

An affidavit filed with an appeal Tuesday of U.S. Judge Willis W. Ritter's order that the waters of Lake Powell must be kept out of Rainbow Bridge National Monument states that a loss of $3 million in power sales will occur each year if the order stands.

The affidavit was prepared by David L. Crandall, regional director of the Bureau of Reclamation. Crandall filed the document with a notice of appeal by Secretary of the Interior

Rogers C.B. Morton and Bureau Commissioner Ellis L. Armstrong.

The appeal asks the judge to stay his order pending an appeal to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on the matter.

Morton, Armstrong, the states of Utah and Colorado and other concerns of the states were named as defendants in a suit by environmentalist groups which resulted in Ritter's Feb. 27 order.

Court admits 34 to bar

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court has ordered 34 more applicants admitted to the Idaho State Bar after a review of last fall's State Bar Exam.

Of the 86 applicants taking the test at Boise last August only 38 passed. More than half of those 48 who failed petitioned the court for a review of their tests, contending they were maliciously arbitrarily and capriciously denied admission to the bar.

A committee of three special masters appointed by the state's high court reviewed the test and filed a report.

Entering its order Tuesday, the court said it found that because of the inadequate grading process resulted in arbitrarily low grades on questions receiving failing scores.

Lumber charges made

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal trade commission Tuesday accused seven of the 10 biggest plywood companies of tampering with prices in the $1.2 billion softwood plywood industry.

The FTC issued a proposed complaint which said the companies had been charging their customers shipping rates from the Pacific Northwest, even though most of the plywood is manufactured in the south. It gave one example where a customer in New Orleans was charged freight weight equivalent to the distance to Portland, Ore., even though the plywood was shipped from Holden, La., just 60 miles away.

That particular customer was charged $764 even though the plywood was shipped by truck at an actual freight of $80, the FTC said.

Named in the proposed complaints were Boise Cascade Corp., Boise, Idaho; Champion International Corp., New York City; Georgia-Pacific Corp., Portland, Ore.; International Paper Co., New York; Vancouver Plywood Co. Inc., Florian, La.; Weyerhaeuser Co., Tacoma, Wash.; and Willamette Ind. Inc., Portland, Oregon.

Marxist Wins

Chile had a chance in the recent election of the Chamber of Deputies and half the Senate to reverse the Marxist policies of President Salvador Allende, who was elected more than two years ago with about one-third of the popular vote, but it chose to give Allende a stronger hand.

Now, Allende vows Chile will continue "advancing toward socialism, within the framework of law, pluralism, democracy and liberty." At the same time, he stresses, Chile's brand of socialism differs from that of other countries.

The differences are not apparent and the results are not promising. Chile's economic problems are overwhelming. Inflation zoomed last year to the highest rate in the world, something over 100 per cent.

Production of foodstuffs hit the skids in the wake of land reform. Government printing presses worked overtime to issue more paper money but commodities continued in short supply at over higher prices.

Allende has blamed most of the nation's economic woes on the United States, which shut off credit after Allende seized copper mines operated by U.S. companies.

Chile's devotion to constitutional government, supported by the military, may prevent new economic disasters on the rocky road to socialism. If not, the military may take over in Chile as it had done in so many other South American nations.

In any event, Chile's situation is likely to get worse before it gets better.

Fare Controversy

There is little justification for the incredible complexity of the present airline fare structure. Almost everyone, including the airlines, would benefit if the discounts and special offers were cut to the bare minimum, a step which would also reduce the "regular" fare, which few travelers but businessmen pay.

The situation has always been difficult, what with G.I.T.s, 22-45 day excursions, and peak-peak months. Now it is getting worse. There is a battle between Europe's government-owned airlines and the government-controlled airlines of the United States. The tourist, as usual, is caught in the middle.

The International Air Travel Association, which is supposed to run the show, has little power because every member airline must agree to every fare before it can be offered. There is almost always a maverick last year it was Lufthansa, which results in the national agencies, such as the CAB, winding up being the enforcers.

A sticky point in this international fare battle is the APEX (advance purchase excursion) fare, the one that many airline advertisements have been promoting lately. The idea behind APEX is to allow regular airlines to compete with charter fares, particularly on the busy New York-London route. Under APEX, the traveler must make his reservation 90 days in advance and make a 25-percent deposit.

CAB has approved the Pan Am and TWA fares, but has ruled that the European airlines' fares are too low. The Europeans — particularly the British — believe the American fares are too high. It is possible, though unlikely, that the impasse could block all cut-rate fares for at least a short time after the current fare schedule expires on March 31.

Diagnosis

A plethora of recent views, suggestions and findings seems to point again to the need for some formula that would unite all segments of the American economy in holding the wage-price line while permitting the effects of an expanding economy to assert themselves. Prices that constantly creep upward, accompanied by local taxes that do likewise, only add up to a brake on prosperity.

An expanding store of the things that money can buy would bring back the law of supply and demand, with a lower cost of living following. As things are more and more money does not buy more and more goods. And there is the ever-present danger that inflation may get out of hand.

MR. SPECTATOR

Blasted Expectations

You can lay it onto the weather. Practically everyone we know was fooled.

The sun has been shining and all that. They had been sorting out the pile of fishing tackle they left in the storage space last fall. They had been through the trailers and campers and everything was in the proper place.

There was still lots of snow up north and out south but they ignored that because here in the valley the snow was missing.

Then came last Saturday night — and Sunday — and Monday and what happened? The thoughts of spring outings were put aside. The window shades on the trailers and the campers were drawn and the closet which contained the fishing equipment was all closed up again. Spring had disappeared and winter had returned. Now we (and they) have it all to do over again.

As we have said many times — there are some places in the old world where people are complaining of the heat!

FISHING

Speaking of fishing. Three years ago Mr. Spectator purchased two new spinning outfits. When he and Mrs. Spectator moved into a smaller home after selling the big one, he had seen fit to give all the fishing equipment away.

So, came the purchase of two new outfits — plus two fishing licenses. Well, on that season nothing was used. In fact, it was not even unwrapped.

Then came the next year. The progress was better. One pole was assembled and made ready to go. New licenses were purchased. But that's as far as it went. No fishing again.

Last summer there was no change. We take that back, there was a change. We didn't even buy licenses.

This coming summer? Your guess is as good as anyone's guess. Surely, though, there will be time to do something some summer.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE

When the time eventually comes that everyone has a Ph.D., the last garbage man will make a fortune.

WASHINGTON — We are again making mistakes which were responsible in considerable measure for the buildup of huge slums in our major cities. During the several decades in which farm workers, displaced by advancing technology in agriculture, migrated to urban centers in search of work. Talks with Agriculture Department officials indicate that "current technological advances insure that by 1975 this nation's farms will need 800,000 fewer workers than in 1968."

Some 200,000 of this reduction may be among migrant workers displaced by gains in the mechanized harvesting of fruit and vegetables. Here the expected impact will be most severe in Oregon, Michigan, North Carolina, California and Texas, involving such crops as grapes, tomatoes, beans and cherries.

Recent studies show that national, state and local governments have done poorly overall in setting up workable programs for retraining farm workers and in providing jobs through economic development.

Especially hard hit are migrant and seasonal farm workers, yet the General Accounting Office has found systematic coordinated plans have not been established by federal, state or local governments. Spot checks in seven crucial agricultural counties in California, Florida, Michigan, New York, Texas and Washington make clear why Mr. Nixon plans major surgery in manpower and other social programs sponsored by Washington.

The Office of Economic Opportunity funded adult basic education programs in two of the critical sample counties. According to an OEO evaluation report on one, farm workers were receiving very few measurable benefits. A report on the other said the program "had not significantly improved the employability of the participants."

An OEO vocational program in a third area (including parts of two counties) was more successful. Of the 60 graduates, 31 had found nonagricultural jobs at the time of the study. But the 31 was a drop in the bucket considering the thousands of migrant workers who will lose their jobs in the next few years in that area.

In one of the seven counties the Labor Department-funded farm labor offices had not attempted to determine the number of unemployed farm workers, had not impacted mechanization will have, had not started programs to help farm workers upgrade their occupational skills. The offices had referred "a few" farm workers to nonagricultural positions and training programs.

In three counties no federally funded manpower training programs existed specifically for the estimated 30,000 migrant and other seasonal farm workers. The manpower services of state labor offices consisted — primarily of referring agricultural workers to farm jobs.

In one county, out of 8,400 farm workers, 180 migrant and seasonal workers were placed in permanent nonfarm jobs in the year reviewed. In a second county, the state office enrolled only three farm workers in nonfarm training in 10 months. In the third county, 20 to 25 migrant and other seasonal workers were enrolled in general vocational training courses in 12 months. Spot checks indicate that in this county about 22 migrant and seasonal workers were placed in nonagricultural work in a nine-month period.

The Super Spies

WASHINGTON — Testimony by a Central Intelligence Agency analyst that U.S. military officials in Vietnam lied to the public about the strength of Communist forces during the late 1960s rang a bell at this desk because I have some knowledge I not expect on the subject.

That is to say, I suggested pretty much the same thing in a rather exhaustively researched book, "The Super Spies," in 1969 — and suffered (savored?) the wrath of the establishment for my pains.

Samuel A. Adams, a defense witness in the Pentagon Papers trial of Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony J. Russo, testified that in 1968 when Communist forces were increasing in Vietnam, often U.S. estimate released to the public were going down. Thus, said Adams, was done by "removing components" from the enemy's order of battle "to display the enemy as weaker than he actually was."

Adams implied that Gen. Earle E. Wheeler, then chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, then commander in Vietnam, were involved in the falsifications, which he described as "a result of political pressures."

I don't know about that. But, as my book relates in late 1967 and early 1968 almost every scrap of field intelligence was predicting a major Red offensive in late January of '68. This intelligence, of course, was verified by the Communists' terrifying Tet offensive of January-March.

Intelligence even correctly named the date the offensive would be launched — January 30. A captured enemy document stated that a "general offensive early in 1968" would emphasize attacks on enemy key units, cities and towns — and lines of communication.

Throughout December 1967, and the first weeks of January 1968, Communist documents were captured in Laos. They verified reports of native spies that Viet Cong agents and even soldiers in North Vietnamese uniforms were circulating openly in several cities, spreading the promise of "liberation." Again and again, these agents predicted that "the end" could come on January 30.

Just about that time, General Westmoreland and Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, our Saigon man, were in Washington running up the bill for the edification of Congress and the state-side press. Neither of them mentioned the Communist buildup or January 30.

What they told Congress and Washington newsmen was that the United States was winning the war, that it was steadily wearing down the enemy. They noted the decrease in the rate of infiltration of troops from Hanoi from a peak of 14,000 men in June 1966, to 5,000-6,000 a month. They said soldiers were deserting in increasing numbers from the Viet Cong, that supplies to the VC by sea had been seriously interrupted.

Indeed, Westmoreland predicted that the enemy mostly would use the coming Tet during the Tet holidays to build up and resupply his forces. He was preoccupied with the 40,000 enemy troops reportedly massed around the Marine strongpoint and Khe Sanh, and said everything pointed to a major battle there, with diversionary attacks in other areas.

Some Money?

First aid for the American dollar is not enough.

Our foreign involvement and our trade imbalance have flooded other nations with Yankee dollars, and all those other nations know to suggest is revaluation for us. U.S. Isn't anybody going to suggest that they pay us what they owe us?

Somebody is. I don't know how much money other countries owe us; apparently nobody does. My files say $138 billion.

Our House subcommittee on foreign operations set out two years ago to find out "and all they've found out is that it's something in excess of $46 billion."

If that were all, that's a pile of money.

While neighbor nations owe us that much, what's the big idea of them buying up gold, jewels and real estate in the United States because they mistrust our dollar — while at the same time neglecting to pay us what they owe us?

Arkansas Rep. Bill Alexander of that congressional subcommittee has persistently insisted that collection efforts be increased. They were. That committee's efforts were almost solely responsible for initiating diplomatic talks with Russia on this subject. But Russia agreed to pay only $722 million on a multibillion-dollar obligation, and, so far, has paid only $12 million. Well, the reader knows what happened — we almost lost the war during the Tet unpleasantness. Maybe the setback couldn't have been avoided, although I for one won't buy that argument. However, that isn't the point.

Samuel Adams, whose job was to analyze intelligence during the Vietnam War, has confirmed that the military and the White House lied to the people. What effect his testimony will have on the Ellsberg-Russo case is irrelevant in a broader context. But without joining up with defense counsel, I think Adams' testimony is important as one more reminder that much of what the American public was told about the military situation in Vietnam was at the most charitable — dangerous wishful thinking by the establishment.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Heart Problem

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain atrial fibrillation, what causes it, and what should be done to prevent its getting worse. Why is digoxin given for it? — K. L.

Fibrillation is a rapid, irregular type of heart action, as distinguished from a solid, regular beat. You could compare it to an old-fashioned pump. If you just rattle the pump handle back and forth rapidly, you use up your energy but you don't pump much water. Rather, a steady pump-pump-pump, with a full stroke each time, is what produces the water.

So with your heart. You want each heart beat to be a solid pumping action. If, instead, the heart muscle goes into a rapid flutter, little pumping action is produced for the amount of energy expended.

The "atrial" means this irregularity affects the upper chambers of the heart. Let this continue uncontrolled, and it can wear out the heart muscle, resulting in congestive heart failure. But generally it CAN be controlled.

Do not confuse fibrillation with the quite common "extra beat" which can result from too much coffee, tobacco, or other such causes. That's a matter of an occasional double beat or extra beat, but it isn't fibrillation.

Normally the impulse to beat originates in the upper part of the heart and is transmitted to chambers over special fibers. The heart beats in a regular, steady rhythm.

Atrial (or auricular) fibrillation results when the impulses to beat arise from some spot other than normal. It can occur with various types of heart disease — rheumatic fever, coronary heart disease, or overactive thyroid disease affecting the heart. These are the commonest but there are others, and sometimes even the exact cause cannot be pinpointed.

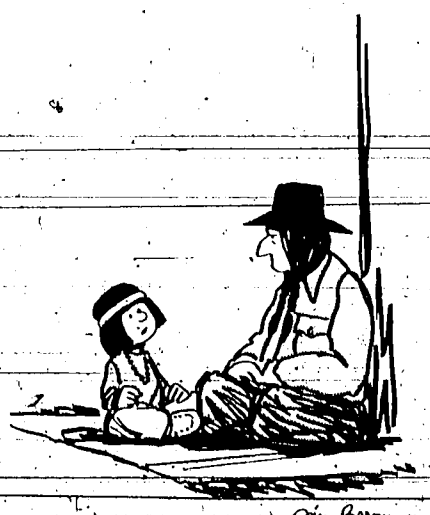

In any event, an electrocardiogram is essential for accurate diagnosis.

Different drugs are used to treat it, most often some form of digitalis, of which digoxin is one.

The digitalis stabilizes the heart rhythm and strengthens the contraction of the heart muscle. It brings on a steady, firm beat instead of that wasteful type of action. Digitalis is, of course, used for some other types of heart disease also.

Fibrillation, properly treated, is not a fatal heart problem. People live for years with it, provided, of course, proper medication is used to maintain strong, proper rhythm.

BERRY'S WORLD

"We come before the North Vietnamese: How come people aren't talking about spending billions of dollars to rebuild OUR nations?"

CAA aide charges misrepresentation

(Editor's note: This letter, written by Royal Slotten and sent to other members of the CAA board, was directed to Mrs. Joan Thomas, chairwoman of the South Central Community Action agency. A copy was given to the Times-News for publication.)

Madam Chairman: One of the most disappointing days of my life occurred on Feb. 19 when my car broke down in Seattle, Wash., causing Mr. Joe Pace, Mrs. Nancy Kreft, Mr. Al Reyes, Mr. Dave Medina and myself to miss plane connections for a trip to Washington, D. C., for talks with our Congressional representatives.

Even more disappointing, however, was Feb. 24, the day I returned home to read in the Times-News that the five of us had been accused by the Community Improvement association of "marching on Washington," implying that we had embarked on a trip for the purpose of violent demonstration.

Those charges and others in the story really hurt, especially after having donated many hundreds of hours of my personal time to SCCAA and CIA in attempting to help teach how poor people and rich people can and must work together within our system; must learn the procedures of parliamentary rule; and must study together how government of, by and for the people should operate.

Unfortunately, the whole CIA story which appeared in the Times-News on Feb. 20 grossly misinformed Magic Valley citizens.

The truth is that at no time was anyone thinking of some kind of violent demonstration. The National Community Development association organized a day of mobilization by poor people for talking to congressional representatives and attendance at a rally to listen to speakers. I worked hours and hours on my own testimony. A copy is enclosed. The truth is that four low income representatives went. I was the only non-low income person. When I discovered that a great deal of support had been shown from many different businesses and citizens in Magic Valley for the idea of this mobilization, I then volunteered to drive my car to Seattle to save air fare so that four, instead of just one or possibly two, low income representatives could go to Washington. I took vacation leave from my job. I insisted on paying my own fare from Seattle to Washington so that the donations made would be used to send as many low income persons as possible.

The truth is that both Mrs. Kreft and myself were in contact with Mr. Gary Kreft, CIA president, by telephone on Saturday, Feb. 17, asking his opinion as to who wanted to go. The truth is that each of the five of us who traveled to Seattle were urged by Mr. Bob Russell to present our own testimony to our Congressmen. Mr. Russell also urged any others interested to send testimony.

I point out the CIA misinformation not to condemn CIA nor any of its members. Rather, it is an attempt to clear the air of rumors, suspicion, of mistrust that has steadily grown between the CIA and SCCAA.

I urge the SCCAA board to continue educational and financial support for CIA. I challenge the CIA membership to stop its vicious and destructive attacks on the SCCAA board and individual members. In place of these destructive attacks I challenge the CIA membership to work with SCCAA in striving for survival of both organizations.

I apologize and express my sincere regrets that Mr. Pace, Mr. Reyes, Mrs. Kreft and Mr. Medina were denied a chance to visit our Congressmen in Washington, D. C., because my old VW bus gave up the ghost.

May I also explain that I learned a great deal more about the term disadvantaged. I have gone on many business and education trips, but always with expenses reimbursed and via regularly scheduled public transportation. I realize even more how disadvantaged the low income citizen is in traveling with older model cars, with extremely limited finances and being untrained and inexperienced. And so, this disastrous trip pointed out and further proved to me the importance and urgent need for continuing the office of Economic Opportunity and community action agencies such as SCCAA, to support the low income.

It is my recommendation that the funds donated for this unsuccessful trip be held, that our board and staff explain to the donors what happened, and that continued community support be sought so that low income citizens might again have an opportunity to speak to their congressmen in Washington, D. C., or in Idaho when they return. It is my understanding that another mobilization of poor people is planned in the near future, either in Idaho or Washington, D. C.

The mobilization of Feb. 20 is proof that the acting director of OEO is dead wrong. His claims that OEO community action programs have failed.

The mobilization is proof that OEO and community action agencies have shown many of the poor and disadvantaged that the way to solve problems is through the system, by learning how to get involved in politics where the power lies for making constructive change.

However, the current incident at Wounded Knee, S. D., is proof that OEO and community action workers and volunteers are needed to do further education on how to obtain political power through legal methods.

The mobilization of poor people on Feb. 20 is proof that the OEO acting director is dead wrong in charging that OEO and community action workers and volunteers are communist inspired. If anyone is guilty of using communist tactics it is the present OEO acting director himself in his frantic efforts to destroy OEO by illegal means and against the will of Congress and the people.

The latest polls show the American people are opposed to the elimination of OEO by a 16-39 per cent margin.

The mobilization and local support to send representatives to it are proof that disadvantaged and affluent Americans together are asking Congress for decisive action which will stop the illegal methods being used by the executive branch of the federal government in attempts to destroy OEO and SCCAA.

"I think this is really getting serious"

Jr. college action termed warning

By DAVID ESPO Times-News Writer

BOISE — The Senate's defeat of the junior college appropriations measure on the first go-around Monday was not so much a slap at junior colleges as it was a warning.

There is a persistent and growing conviction among some legislators that the statehouse that has been the state's educational system at all levels and brought it more directly under the control of the State Board of Education.

Junior colleges exist in a gray area between secondary schools and institutions of higher education, and combine academic programs that receive 40 per cent state funding with vocational education, which is largely federally supported.

Sen. Dick Smith, R-Hexburg, former head of the state Board of Education, said during the floor debate that he was afraid the state was moving down "Suicidal Road" with its piecemeal additions to its educational program, and said he was afraid it would eventually develop a mediocre educational system because it was unwilling to limit its support to a smaller number of institutions.

Sen. Vern Bransky, R-Boise, a member of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee, also voted against the bill, at least on the first time, because he said the State Board of Regents should assume control over the institutions.

Those remarks, coupled with Sen. Robert Saxvik, D-Burley, said, seem to summarize what a number of people are saying. Saxvik said he saw nothing wrong with junior colleges, but just felt that their appropriations, exceeding what the governor requested by $350,000, was too much.

There were other reasons the appropriations measure was defeated on the first round.

Some Democrats are angered by what they regard as the unfair distribution of funds, particularly building money, into southern Idaho, and saw an opportunity to embarrass Sen. Richard High, Twin Falls, co-chairman of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee.

They are particularly unhappy about the $950,000 request before the Senate to fund the first half of the CSI vocational education building this year, when the project wasn't given top priority by the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council or the State Board of Education.

But the defeat of the measure on the floor of the Senate can't be written off to an accumulation of grievances or partisan politics. Of the 17 senators who voted against the funding bill, the first time, 10 were Republicans.

Some of them are from Boise and fear, perhaps, of the long-term effect on Boise State College's state funding support of two state supported junior colleges.

One State Board of Education member, A. L. Alford, Lewiston, said at the last board meeting that junior colleges should receive state support at a level greater than they now receive, and thought they should come under the control of the state board as well.

So the defeat of the appropriations measure on the first vote Monday was not a warning that junior colleges are on their way out.

Edwards selected HEW aide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon announced Tuesday his selection of Charles E. Edwards, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration, to be assistant secretary for health in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Edwards, 49, will succeed Dr. Merlin K. DuVal Jr., who resigned last Dec. 15. Edwards had been head of the FDA, a branch of HEW, since Dec. 1, 1969. A native of Overton, Neb., he was vice president of a medical firm in Chicago before joining the government.

In other White House action,

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren declined to comment on reports of movement along the Ho Chi trail of troops and tanks, other than to say the United States was watching developments closely and was using every means of communication we have to express our views on this subject. He said the views were expressed to all parties to the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

Juice contents data ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) Tuesday ordered orange drink makers to start revealing just how much orange juice the products contain, and proposed a wide-ranging truth-in-labeling crackdown on frozen and packaged "dimmers."

The moves could bring about marked changes in the names and labels of many foods in a matter of months. "Hamburger Helper," for instance, would have to list right after the brand name that it contains noodles and gravy and that the buyer has to add hamburger to make it a main dish.

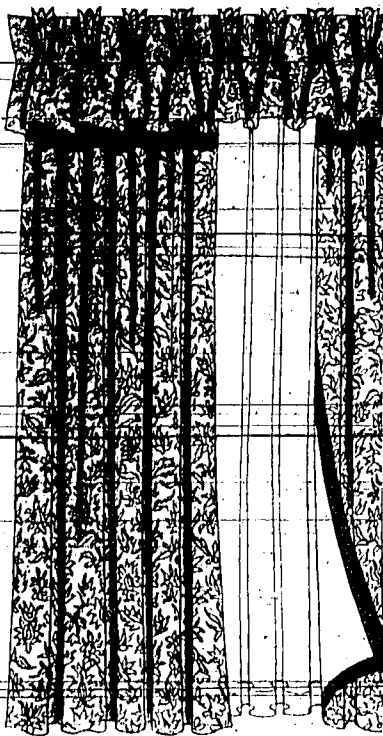

The FDA said its moves were only the beginning of a long-term campaign to make sure buyers know what they're buying, and to insure nutritional balance in the growing fast-food industry.

The orange juice rule, effective immediately, says that noncarbonated orange drinks containing more than 50 per cent but less than 100 per cent real orange juice must now be labeled "diluted orange juice beverage" or other descriptive name, followed by exactly how much orange juice to the nearest 5 per cent.

The mobilization and local support to send representatives to it are proof that disadvantaged and affluent Americans together are asking Congress for decisive action which will stop the illegal methods being used by the executive branch of the federal government in attempts to destroy OEO and SCCAA.

New abortion law questioned

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News writer

BOISE — The legislature completed work Tuesday on the state's new abortion law, but an assistant attorney general said later in the day there were "two things that bother me" about its constitutionality.

The measure was amended in the House with a "suicide clause" establishing a procedure for overturning the law automatically if new Supreme Court decisions on constitutional amendments make a return to the old law possible.

The old law, in force until the governor signs the measure approved Tuesday, prohibits most abortion operations. The measure which received final legislative approval places restrictions on abortions but allows them in accord with recent Supreme Court decisions. But the amendment added in the House said in part, "In the event that the states are again permitted to safeguard the lives of unborn infants before the 25th week of pregnancy as a result of the Supreme Court of the United States overruling the decisions announced on Jan. 22, 1973, or a constitutional amendment is approved, the governor shall upon his determination that such an event has occurred, make a proclamation declaring that the abortion measure is repealed and the old law reinstated in its place."

But Kent Taylor, of the attorney general's office, said the clause amounted to "conditional law," and the bill was "implicitly saying" it was not in full force and effect presently. Taylor, while emphasizing that he "really didn't have an opinion" on the constitutionality of the measure without researching the question, but said "we might have a separation of powers problem here in the governor performing a legislative act."

Taylor said he didn't anticipate investigating the measure unless the governor would ask him to.

The bill divides a woman's pregnancy into three trimesters, applying tougher restrictions on those seeking abortions in each successive trimester, and outlawing the operations in the third trimester unless they are necessary to save a woman's life.

Action asked

BOISE (UPI) — Another memorial on abortions went through the legislature Tuesday.

Earlier, both houses passed a memorial asking Congress to propose a constitutional amendment giving states the right once again to regulate or prohibit abortions. This one originated in the house.

Tuesday, the House approved $9.0 a Senate joint memorial which asks Congress to take, without delay, such action as necessary — including proposing a constitutional amendment — to preserve the right to life of unborn children and forestall a wholesale wave of abortions.

Bill approved

BOISE (UPI) — A Senate-amended bill which closes registration books nine days prior to an election won House approval 48-8 Tuesday and headed for the governor.

New law

(Special to the Times-News)

BOISE — Sen. Robert Saxvik, D-Burley, said Tuesday the state's new abortion law was drafted to protect "Idaho citizens, our physicians and hospitals."

The measure, drafted by a special subcommittee of the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee of which Saxvik is a member, regulates abortions as permitted by the recent decisions by the U.S. Supreme Court.

"The passage of SB 1184," Saxvik said in reference to the measure, "will restrict and regulate abortions in the state of Idaho the maximum extent permitted."

Saxvik continued, "to leave this session of the legislature without passage of a restrictive abortion law would in essence leave us with no abortion law, and a series of court tests and harassment of physicians and hospitals."

CSI vocational building funds win solons' OK

Also included in the appropriations bill passed was $1.8 million for phase one construction of a science education building at Boise State College, $300,000 for the law school at the University of Idaho, $405,000 for the Eastern Idaho Vocational School at Idaho Falls, $100,000 for a welding shop at Idaho State University, $170,000 for completion of a general science building at North Idaho College and $35,000 for repairs needed on the utility operations at Lewis-Clark State College.

Other projects included in the bill were a total of nearly $380,000 for Department of Environmental and Community Service projects, and $121,000 for the Department of Public Lands projects.

Other programs funded were $50,000 for the continuing work on the Capitol Mall in Boise near the Statehouse, $225,000 for cost overruns in ongoing construction programs and $278,000 as a fiscal year operating budget for the Department of Public Works.

The CSI building had first been requested several years ago, in the 1971 legislature approved $41,000 in planning money for the vocational education structure. The 1972 legislature, however, failed to appropriate any more funds, citing in part the pressing need for a new state penitentiary.

The joint committee's alteration of the recommendations made by the Permanent Building Fund Council had led to charges that committee members were ignoring state agencies in its work.

Sen. John Evans, D-Malden, Senate minority leader, appeared before the committee late in the session and accused it of ignoring the recommendations of the permanent building fund council and the State Board of Education.

But Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, co-chairman of the committee, said he

McClure proposes revision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, and 16 of his colleagues have proposed a revision of the Occupational Safety and Health Act. McClure said Tuesday their bill has six key provisions that include one to require the Labor Department to consider the economic impact of new safety and health standards. He said the bill attempts to balance two points of view: that adequate safety precautions are desirable, and that harassment of the nation's businessmen by an act cannot be tolerated.

McClure categorically denied the charges.

Idaho legislators adjourn session

The lawmakers, however, did make it easier for merchants to catch shoplifters. But a House bill to tighten the parole law so persons convicted of crime would serve longer sentences died in a Senate committee.

Confronted with the modern problem of air piracy, the legislators passed a law to punish such actions by life in prison. This bill, which originally contained a death sentence, also makes it a felony to unlawfully carry a firearm aboard a federally certified aircraft.

To stop malicious destruction of property they made the crime a felony if damage exceeds $1,000 and added a punishment of one to five years in prison and or a fine up to $5,000.

The legislators refused to lower to a misdemeanor from an indictable misdemeanor the crime of possessing marijuana — even though proponents said this would assist the courts.

Then they ordered peace officer training for new law enforcement officers during their first year on the job, gave board of correction personnel peace officer status at certain times and put the warden in charge of halting disturbances at the prison.

But they did not stop just with the peace officers. Because of criticism in the hustings they set up a modified Missouri Plan whereby district court magistrates must run for election on their records after the first two years in office and each four years thereafter.

This legislature drew the line, however, in some areas. It killed in committee a so-called "red tag" bill to make those convicted of drunken driving drive motor vehicles for one year with red license plates for one year.

And it crunched in committee bills to prohibit smoking at certain public meetings and prohibit beer drinking even by passengers in moving motor vehicles.

Told that minor traffic offenders should not be treated as criminals, the legislature removed jail penalties for certain offenses. This same bill, however, made it unlawful to report results of mandatory blood tests on the bodies of traffic victims.

Andrus again asked the legislature to fund public kindergartens. One bill got through the Senate only to die in the House. Die-hard tried another and the House killed that one, too.

Suggesting the time has come for school reorganization Andrus joined the Board of Education in asking for it. The House said "no."

Yet the lawmakers did come to grips with another problem, approving an increase to 20 per cent of assessed valuation from 15 per cent the bonding limits of high school districts.

Andrus asked for seven mills property tax relief and urged the legislature to put all the inventory tax relief money into the schools through the foundation formula.

Instead the legislature cut the school maintenance and operation levy by three mills and made up the $3.5 million lost to the schools through a state appropriation. The lawmakers also increased the property credit on income taxes to $15 from $10 for one year — providing $2.7 million more relief. The lawmakers tried to freeze at 17.6 per cent instead of 20 the total sales tax receipts returned to local government to replace the inventory tax. The measure failed.

Andrus called for merger of the Health and Welfare Departments, including the Youth Training Center, and the legislature agreed. He also asked for a 13-member bipartisan commission to begin reorganization of the executive branch and got a 14-member, GOP-controlled commission.

The governor proposed biennial budgeting, but the idea got nowhere.

However, Andrus' proposals for strengthening environmental protection laws did catch on and the legislature passed several bills — including one with a penalty of up to $300 per day for violating environmental or public health laws or regulations.

At one point, the legislature considered repealing the stream channel protection act of 1971. Later it amended the act to require economic as well as environmental considerations. It also passed a Lake Encroachment Act. The lawmakers strengthened the Surface Mining Act but killed a bill to help control urban sprawl. In the final hours they passed a bill to make it unlawful to sell or use motor vehicle muffler cutouts or bypasses.

Land use planning, urged by the governor, was put into an interim study committee.

Questions about returnable containers, senior citizens property tax relief and occupational safety and health legislation also ended up in interim committees for study.

An attempt to cut the gasoline tax back to 8 cents per gallon from 9 1/2 failed but a move to make the increases of last year retroactive to last April 1 as originally intended won approval.

Eastern Idaho legislators tried but failed to get an appropriation, as suggested by the governor, to repair the bridge atop the deteriorating American Falls Dam. So they did the next best thing — passed a concurrent resolution asking the highway department to fix the road anyway.

This legislature spoke out against big pay raises for government employees — especially at the state level. While it killed one proposal to limit increases to any state employee to $50 per month or $600 per year apparently as too stringent it also beat down pay increases for elected officials, judges and members of three key commissions.

With one or two exceptions most changes in election laws — including a May primary — went down the tube. The lawmakers did approve cutting off voter registration nine days prior to an election.

No-fault auto insurance legislation never got out of the Senate, although several bills were introduced and two made it as far as the floor.

Last year's ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment generated heated and emotional debate, leading up to a recall movement against one legislator.

Liquor legislation as usual came before both Houses. Senators killed a bill to establish special liquor licenses for convention centers while house tax-writers refused to consider trimming back the liquor surcharge. But bills to establish wine by the drink licenses and extend the liquor retailers' five per cent liquor discount to broken as well as unbroken case lots made it through.

Solon holds tax bill

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Maurice Clements, R-Nampa, pulled back into committee Tuesday a bill to restore the federal deduction on state income taxes, but warned he will try again to accomplish this task next year.

Because the measure carries about $3 million in tax relief and all the funds for tax relief have been used at this point, the leadership wanted the bill back in the Tax Committee.

Clements made the motion for unanimous consent. But he also made it clear he still wants the so-called "double deductibility" feature put back into the state income tax law.

He said a large portion of the population pay only a small part of the income tax. Eventually, he said, this will lead to the "destruction of our economic system as we know it."

"Individuals who find themselves taxed unrealistically in order to support people who will not help themselves will gradually tend to develop a defeatist attitude, and more and more people will join the ever-increasing rolls of people on unemployment, welfare and other similar programs," Clements said.

Clements said it is the middle income taxpayers who are vulnerable.

"If we are to maintain an economic system based on reward for effort and ability then we cannot continue to tax our people as we are now."

Interim officers selected

BOISE (UPI) — The 14-member legislative council Tuesday reappointed Sen. James Ellsworth, R-Leadore, and Rep. William J. Lanting, R-Hollister, as co-Chairman of the group.

The council, composed of seven members from both houses — directs interim legislative work and supervises the Legislative Council.

Lanting is speaker of the House and Ellsworth president pro tem of the Senate.

The Council also named Rep. Harold Snow, R-Moscow, as delegate to the Western Conference of the Council of State Governments.

Alternate members to the conference are Sens. David Bivens, R-Payette, and John Evans, D-Malad.

Applications increase

BOISE (UPI) — Applications for passports have flooded federal offices here this year, despite the devaluation of the dollar.

Frank N. Bell, U.S. District Court clerk, said the applications have created a logjam all the way through the issuing agency office in Seattle, although the devaluation will make vacations abroad costs increase as much as 20 per cent.

Bell said that with tourist applications running as high as 18 to 20 a day, it is taking two to three weeks for passport applications to be processed and returned.

IF man pleads innocent

BLACKFOOT, Idaho (UPI) — Rex Priest, 21, Idaho Falls, has entered a plea of innocent to a charge of involuntary manslaughter in connection with the traffic death of Lanny Barnett, 21, Shelley.

Priest entered the plea Monday in Seventh District Court. Barnett was killed when a car driven by Priest collided with a Greyhound Bus at a Shelley intersection March 3. Barnett was a passenger in the car.

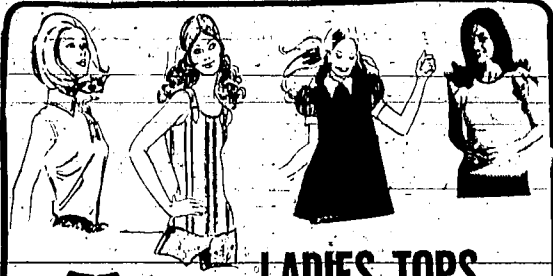

A trial date was to be set Wednesday for June. Priest was released on his own recognizance.

Andrus supports Idaho court in effort to gain more money

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News writer

BOISE — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said Tuesday he had "made it known to the court that I am not going to sit by and watch the judicial system of the state close down."

Andrus' remarks came in response to the action of the legislature in approving $46,500 in supplemental funds for the judiciary for the remainder of the fiscal year; but its refusal to appropriate an additional $47,000 the supreme court chief justice says is needed.

Chief Justice Charles Donaldson, appearing before the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee Monday, reiterated claims made in a letter last week that district court would have to be curtailed in 28 counties across the state because of a shortage of funds for travel of judges and court reporters.

Andrus said that there were a number of options available still to secure the money necessary to continue the courts in session.

Among them, he said, was his authority to declare an emergency and assign some of his emergency funds to the judiciary. In addition, he said, he thought the court, acting as a separate branch of government, could "issue an order against the state treasurer" for the money it needs to continue to work.

Another available source of income, Andrus said, would be to rescind the 1.0 per cent general fund spending holdback for the judiciary. But, he said, "I just right now don't see any way that the 1.9 per cent holdback could be released."

Andrus said he had to look at the total State Appropriations figure.

He said the revenue projections committee of the Republican-controlled legislature had forecast a $1.1 million surplus only if the holdback is continued in effect. Its figures show a $1 million deficit, he said, if the holdback is lifted.

Andrus also said the "court is going to cut every corner it can" to stretch the funds available to it. "I assume that after the court has assessed the situation we'll come up with a solution," the governor said.

Andrus said he had discussed the situation with court officials in the past several days. "When they start talking about the closing of district court around the state, laying off court reporters and in other words bringing a halt to a court of justice and a court of law, then it's everybody's responsibility to see that doesn't happen."

Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, co-chairman of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee, speaking on the floor of the Senate Tuesday, urged Andrus to lift the holdback for the judiciary, saying the money was needed for it.

But Andrus, while saying it was not his intent to debate the issue with High, said "with all of the financial information that we have today indicates that we will not release the holdback. Not that we will not, but that we cannot, if the budget is to be in balance at the end of the fiscal year."

10th longest

BOISE — The 1973 legislature has tied for the position of tenth-longest in Idaho history.

It ran 65 days. There were also 65-day sessions in 1899 and 1901.

Only nine legislatures have run longer than 65 days. Six of them have been in the past 11 years — 1963, 65, 67, 69, 71 and 72. The other three were 1890-91, 1931 and 1957.

Demos reject rebuttal bid

BOISE (UPI) — A move by Sen. J. Marsden Williams, R-Idaho Falls, to include a rebuttal of the former director of the Idaho Water Resource Board in the legislative journal was opposed strongly Monday by Democrats.

The rebuttal concerned a "secret audit" by the administration concerning the performance of the board and director Dr. Robert Lee. The report created controversy in the opening weeks of the legislature after Republicans demanded that the administration make the report public.

A hearing was later held on the report at which time Lee testified.

Williams said the legislature should not adjourn without giving Lee a chance to respond to the report which was highly critical of the former director. Williams then suggested that the rebuttal be "spread upon the pages of the journal."

Williams later withdrew his motion when it was opposed by Democrats.

Rules hit

BOISE (UPI) — A senate concurrent resolution rescinding amendments to Idaho's falconry regulations was approved 20-5 today by the Senate.

Senate Minority Leader John Evans, D-Malad, said he opposed the measure because the legislature did not confer with the State Fish and Game Department before deciding to reject the amendments.

The regulations set up a permit system for the sport. It states that the permits will be issued by the director of the fish and game department.

Death penalty OK

BOISE (UPI) — Without debate the House approved 52-8 and sent to the governor Tuesday a bill to reinstate the death penalty in Idaho for first-degree murder.

Originally approved by the House, the bill was amended in the Senate to do away with capital punishment — substituting life imprisonment. The move failed when the bill came up for a vote.

Then the Senate

reconsidered the bill, put back the death penalty for first degree murder and killing a person in the act of kidnapping and the measure passed.

Rep. Doyle Miner, R-St. Anthony, principal sponsor of the bill, told the House the bill still was a good one and recommended its passage. Senate changes took out from under first-degree murder deaths occurring during arson, rape, burglary, robbery and removed mayhem.

Seat declaration proposal killed

BOISE (UPI) — In the closing hour of the legislative session, the Idaho Senate Tuesday killed a measure which would have required candidates for the House of Representatives to declare which seat they are running for.

The measure earlier passed the House. The measure died when a motion to suspend the rules failed to gain a two-thirds majority. The measure was on the 10th order of business.

The Senate State Affairs Committee sent the bill to the floor Tuesday.

Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert, made the motion to suspend the rules so the Senate could vote on the measure. The vote was 16-18.

The measure would have required that house candidates specify who they were running against in each legislative district.

Judiciary funds OK'd during closing hours

(Special to the Times-News) BOISE — The legislature approved as one of its final acts Tuesday a supplemental appropriations of $46,500 for the judiciary for current fiscal year.

But in doing so, it denied a request from the supreme court chief justice for an additional $47,000 and set up a possible curtailment of district court in 28 of the state's 44 counties.

The Senate, which had held up the supplemental appropriations act for two and a half days, beat back an attempt led by Sen. Richard Egbert, D-Teton, and minority leader Sen. John Evans, D-Malad, to put the measure in the 14th order for amending and increasing the amount of money approved. The vote to amend the bill was 14-20.

The Senate then passed the measure appropriating the $46,500, 34-0. It later passed the House, 61-2.

Chief Justice Charles Donaldson, however, Monday told the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee that if $47,000 were not approved on top of the $46,500, district court judges and reporters travel would be cut off because of a lack of funds, curtailing district court in 28 counties.

In addition, supreme court sessions in Lewiston, Coeur d'Alene, Twin Falls and Pocatello would be canceled. He also said ten court reporters would be put on leave without pay status.

Egbert, in making his move to amend the measure, said the judiciary is "not just another state agency. This is a branch of government." Egbert also said the judiciary's spokesmen had "assured" the legislature the money wouldn't be spent unless needed.

But Sen. Walt Yarbrough, R-Grand View, said the information he had received was that the money already appropriated to the judiciary, along with the $46,500 approved supplement would be sufficient to allow the courts to continue to operate.

Tax relief, education funding top 42nd deeds

Both the Senate and the House passed a measure which would repay the endowment fund $15 million over a 40-year period for lands presently used by parks and recreation areas in the state but legally belong to the fund.

"I was somewhat disappointed that we did not move to fund the new state office building in the Capitol Mall as recommended by the governor," Evans said. "This is much needed and now will have to be postponed for some time."

But Evans said he was happy to see the Joint Finance and Appropriations committee allow the governor's recommendation for higher education.

"The contingency fund that was established for higher education will serve in case there is a need for additional funding to our universities," he said. "Vocational education received a good budget this session of the legislature and is of course much needed."

The legislature gave higher education a $400,000 contingency fund in addition to its overall budget. The fund could be used next fall if schools have higher enrollment than anticipated.

But said the legislature was able to provide "substantial tax relief."

He said it was also good to settle the question of the payment of the school endowment funds. Evans said sometime the legislature is going to have to face the problem of freezing the inventory phaseout funds going to local government.

"This money needs to be used to fund our public school education."

Hammond said "this has been one of the most enjoyable sessions of the legislature in my few years—primarily because of a lack of petty partisan bickering."

"The Republicans and the Democratic Party have both worked well for the best interest of the state," he said.

He said the parties did not agree on every issue. "But we have tried to be fair and above board on all issues."

Fund-cut try fails

BOISE (UPI) — House conservatives tried but failed to shoot down a $29.5 million appropriation for the Department of Environmental and Community Services Tuesday.

Rep. Ralph Glines, R-Nampa, told the House the appropriation was about $3 million too high. Then Rep. C. L. (Butch) Otter, R-Caldwell, moved to amend it.

Otter's motion failed 22-45.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: For 25 years I have been very close to a widower. I am divorced. This man owned considerable rental property, and I lived in one of his apartments. I paid rent like everybody else, but I cooked for him and helped him rent and clean apartments when tenants vacated them. I was a trouble-shooter for violations, inspectors, routine checks, etc.

He was close with his money and paid me nothing. I didn't demand anything because he often talked about "our future" when he would sell his property and we would retire together in Florida or Palm Springs. He was 75 and I am 72.

He had one 83-year-old brother with whom he was not friendly. Also some nieces and nephews. To make it short, this gentleman was recently found dead of a heart attack. I was called immediately since I am the only one he ever spoke of.

She's paid with hope

I heard he left no will, or any mention of me. A friend advised me to put in a claim for the work I did. I was not exactly a common-law wife, but I was more like a free maid, housekeeper, rental manager, and his best friend for 25 years. Do moral issues count in court? Or is it too much of a longshot? I don't want to make a fool of myself.

LOST OUT

DEAR LOST: Take the facts to a lawyer. And kids should be a lesson to others: get it in writing!

DEAR ABBY: My husband received a wedding invitation addressed to "Mr." only—no mention of his wife. The people who sent it have met me, so I can't imagine why they would exclude me. My husband doesn't work with either one of them, so it can't be a business friendship. (It was sent to our home.)

What really hurt me more than anything was the fact that my husband accepted the invitation!

Maybe I am stupid, but this has me puzzled. Do you think my husband should have accepted? MRS. NOBODY

DEAR MRS.: Had your husband asked if your name was left out on purpose or by mistake, he would have known whether to accept. He should have asked.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have a 10-month-old baby, and we've never had a sitter, but we wanted to go to a late party last Saturday night, so we asked my mother-in-law to sit for us. She seemed happy to do it, and we knew we could trust her with the baby.

When we got home, did she ever let us have it! She said I was a very poor housekeeper, from the condition of my refrigerator, cupboards and closets. Also, that I didn't do my laundry often enough from the looks of my stuffed clothes hampers. (Abby, I go to the laundromat twice a week.) Then she said we ought to be ashamed of ourselves for running up such big bills, and she named off some of them. She had actually snooped into our desk drawers and looked over our bills.

My husband just kept his eyes on the floor all the while she was talking, and I was too shocked and hurt to say a word.

I have lost all affection for her now. How should I act toward her in the future? HURT

DEAR HURT: I wouldn't ask her to sit again. In time, if she regrets her actions and tries to make amends, I'd go the 70 x 7 route.

Oswald & James Jacoby
A rubber bridge player could have no problem with today's hand. He would win the club lead and say to himself, "If trumps break 2-2, I will try to make seven, but if they don't break I will just draw trumps; concede a trick to the ace of hearts and take the small slam."

That is eminently correct in rubber bridge but duplicate is a different matter. When Phyllis (Mrs. Stanley Smith) of Detroit played it in the mixed pairs at the Michigan regional, she won the club lead, played her ace of spades, led a second spade to dummy's queen and stopped to think about seven. She finally decided to risk the play of a diamond from dummy on the theory that if East (who held the last trump) were void of diamonds he would almost surely have doubled six spades to get a diamond lead so she called for dummy's ace of diamonds.

West dropped the 10. Phyllis thought a white longer and led the king of diamonds. West's jack dropped and there were no more problems. She pulled the heart and two clubs on the diamonds and claimed seven.

The extra trick turned out to be worth two match points only, but she had taken virtually no risk and the top score helped Phyllis and her partner, Jim Zimmerman, of Cleveland, win the event in a photo finish.

MR. AND MRS. LAWRENCE L. CARPENTER

MV couple says vows at Gooding

GOODING — Carolyn Boyer and Lawrence L. Carpenter exchanged wedding vows in a double ring ceremony Feb. 25. Rev. Edson Gilmore of the United Methodist Church, Gooding, performed the ceremony before an altar flanked with baskets of pink and white chrysanthemums and white candles.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Boyer, Gooding, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Carpenter, Shoshone.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an empire-styled gown of white peau de soie accented with lace medallions and pearls on the sleeves, neckline and front of the gown.

The long chapel train was also accented with lace. Her shoulder length bridal veil of white nylon illusion was held in place with a tiana of white crepe and lace trimmed with pearls and crystals.

She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

The bride's attendants were Mrs. Carolyn Warner, Mrs. Barbara Green, Boise; Mrs. Diane Butler, Bliss, and Mrs.

Vallejo Rost, Alvin Carpenter, Elba, brother of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were Darrell Boyer, brother of the bride; Darrell Bruesch, Boise, brother-in-law of the groom, and Bruce Carpenter, Shoshone, brother of the groom.

Darrell Boyer and Darrell Bruesch were candlelighters. Mrs. Sherry Kelso, Wendell, and Mrs. Stella Melsaughlin were in charge of the gift table at the reception following the ceremony and Mrs. Ann Grosshans, Twin Falls, registered the guests.

The four-tier wedding cake was decorated with white and pink roses and was topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom. Lighted pink tapers in crystal candelabra flanked the cake.

Serving the cake was Mrs. Carrie Smith and Mrs. Irma Harvey, Twin Falls. At the punch bowl was Mrs. Carolyn Brittain, Boise; Mrs. Lorene Bruesch served coffee.

The couple is at home south of Wendell where the bridegroom is engaged in dairying.

Contest winner

Special week

TWIN FALLS — The week of March 18 has been designated Camp Fire Birthday Week. The local observance of the week will begin Sunday when the girls are asked to wear their uniforms and attend the church of their choice. The annual Mother-Daughter Tea has been set for 7 p.m. March 29 at St. Edward's Parish Hall. A hat parade featuring hats made by the girls and a fashion show directed by Mrs. Nita Nelson with fashions from the Bon Marche children's department are planned.

All Blue Birds, Camp Fire, Horizon Club and Discovery Club girls and their mothers are invited to attend.

Campaign launched

TWIN FALLS — A group of Filo-women, known as the Young Mothers' Council, has launched a campaign to brighten hospital visits for small children.

The Mothers' Council this week launched a campaign to obtain toys for small children who must be confined to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital because of illness or injury.

Lois Anderson, president of the group, said this is the first of a continuing annual campaign. She explained ordinarily children are now allowed to bring toys to the hospital from their homes because of the danger of infection and contamination. As a result the hospital is always in need of toys that can be easily cleaned and sterilized.

A two-prong approach will be used by the club to acquire the necessary toys. First, Mrs. Anderson said, merchants in Twin Falls will be asked for donations of toys and games which are suitable for hospital use. To supplement those donated, a cooked food sale was held Saturday at Max's Clover Farm. Fairway Shopping Center, Filer. Funds will be used to purchase special items.

Hospital administrator, James Rosenbaum, said the hospital is pleased with the council's efforts.

"We know the hospital can be a frightening place to a child and a friendly toy can be very important in calming and reassuring the child," Rosenbaum said.

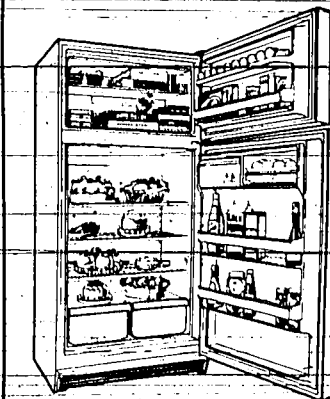

Valley plans game

VALLEY SCHOOLS — Valley Booster Club will sponsor a donkey basketball game at 8 p.m. March 23 at the Valley High School, according to Kenneth Beem, Hunt president.

Trained donkeys from the Burro Farm, Colfax, Calif., will be shipped in for the event that will see Booster Club members and school faculty members competing on the donkeys, Beem said.

Emcees set for jamboree, dance

TWIN FALLS — Holly Houburg and Marnie Shaw will serve as masters of ceremonies for the forthcoming Idaho Oldtime Fiddlers Jamboree and Dance. This third annual event, sponsored by the Twin Falls Chapter, American Red Cross, will be held Saturday at O'Leary Junior High School.

Since that time, their popularity has grown and they have been object of several television specials, one filmed in the Butler home, play regularly at the area rest homes, play once a month for a dance for the Bonneville Association for Retarded Children and go far and wide to attend and participate in shows.

This group has been the nucleus from which has sprung many other groups that are to be complimented on their fine work and fine image for the Idaho Oldtime Fiddlers Association. Another outstanding group of young people who also play at rest homes, hospitals, dances and benefits are Densil Marker's Wood River Junior Hammers from Challis will be featured.

These groups along with national championship fiddlers and many musicians from throughout Southern Idaho will participate in the program. The event is set from 7:30 to 11 p.m. in O'Leary's auditorium. There will be groups of the Idaho Oldtime Fiddlers playing for a dance in the school gymnasium from 8:30 to midnight. This annual event is open to the public and the Red Cross officials are inviting all who enjoy the Idaho Oldtime Fiddlers to attend. Tickets to the benefit are on sale at Garth's Music Store, Sav-Mor Drug Store, Penny Wise Drug, the Red Cross office and from Red Cross board members.

All proceeds will go to the Twin Falls Chapter, American Red Cross, for much needed equipment. This is the only such event in this part of the state this spring. The annual fiddlers contest for Idaho, usually held in Gooding, will be held in Lewiston April 28.

Civil suit filed

By TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — A $50,000 civil suit has been filed in Fifth District Court against the city of Ketchum over the alleged suspension of a building permit.

Listed as plaintiffs in the suit are Jerry G. Roberts and Dorothy Elaine Roberts, husband and wife; and Earl Chambers, their agent and contractor.

Defendants named include the city of Ketchum, the mayor of Ketchum, Kenneth Richey, the four members of the city council, and the city building inspector, John B. Jacoby.

The complaint states Mr. and Mrs. Roberts sold Lot 1, Block 2, Warm Springs Village subdivision and on Aug. 7, 1972, a building permit was issued the plaintiffs to construct a 10-unit apartment house on the property.

Prior to the issuance of the permit, the complaint states, an application was made May 27, 1972, and a fee of $100 was paid, which has been retained by the city.

The complaint states the city on Aug. 22, 1972, through the councilmen, adopted Ordinance 182, an amendment to Ordinance 85, rezoning the lot owned by the plaintiffs from "multiple family dwellings" use to "one two-family" dwelling.

After passage of the amendment the building inspector wrote "suspended" on the permit application, the complaint said.

The complaint says the lot was purchased by the plaintiffs for the purpose of constructing a 10-unit apartment building. Since the lot purchase, it states, the plaintiffs have expended the building permit fee; $710 for blue prints; drilled a well and constructed a pump house at about $2,000 cost; borrowed money to begin construction; paid $500 for services to date by Chambers; and other costs.

In the first count of action, the plaintiffs say they have established a non-conforming use on the property through preliminary work and construction planning and the use is not affected by the subsequent zoning amendment adopted by the Ketchum City Council.

Asked in the first count is permanent injunction enjoining and restraining the defendants from interfering with the construction of the building, "as authorized by the building permit."

A second count states the amendment of the zoning ordinance constituted an act of eminent domain and such a proceeding was conducted without due process of law.

That count seeks $50,000 in damages for "condemnation of property rights" of Mr. and Mrs. Roberts.

Also asked in the complaint are suit costs and such other relief as may appear equitable under the first count.

2 MH men injured

TWIN FALLS — Two Mountain Home men were seriously injured Tuesday morning when their car left the road and rolled over on Interstate 80 near the intersection of Highway 50.

In serious condition this morning at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital is William M. Thorp, 20, Mountain Home. Thorp suffered facial lacerations and a head injury in the accident.

Thorp was a passenger in the car, driven by Mark A. Mansfield, 20, a hospital attendant at the Mountain Home Air Force Base.

Mansfield received deep lacerations of the forehead, the inside lower lip, and the left elbow, according to Magic Valley Memorial officials. He also suffered extensive abrasions of the back.

Mansfield was transferred back to the Mountain Home Air Base hospital by an air force ambulance Tuesday. His condition is not critical, officials said.

Damages high in Berger farm fire.

Fire razes area farm

TWIN FALLS — An early morning fire today wiped out an estimated $200,000 in farm machinery and buildings at the Alex Schuler farm southwest of here.

Members of the family said the equipment was awaiting a two-day farm sale Mr. Schuler had scheduled for next week, and involved shop equipment, tools, almost every type of farm machinery and several vehicles.

The farm, located six miles south and just east of the junction of U.S. Highways 93 and 30, was engulfed in flames when firemen and equipment from the "Filer" Rural Fire Department and Twin Falls Mutual Fire Department arrived before daylight.

"It looked as though the whole farm was on fire," one fireman said.

Members of the family and neighbors said the fire was discovered about 4 a.m. and had completely engulfed the buildings just east of the home when firemen arrived. They could do little but contain the fire in the already burning equipment, buildings and hay stacks.

Bob Shuler said he believed the damage would "exceed $100,000" and a neighbor said it would probably exceed $200,000, saying he believed the shop alone represented a loss of $40,000.

Schuler said he believed his father had some insurance but probably not enough. He said his father had been working all winter to repair, paint and improve the tractors, combines, mowers, balers and other equipment to have them in top shape for the sale March 21 and 22.

Although firemen said they could not be sure, they believed the fire started in the shop or a nearby machine shed. It spread ahead of a strong west wind into three haystacks and through the long line of farm machinery, destroying everything but one machine shed and some corn.

Schuler said his father had sold all of the livestock earlier. The winds kept flames from reaching the home, but spread sparks to one haystack several hundred yards to the east of the main buildings. One garage and some gasoline pumps were also destroyed.

In the charred ruins were two fairly new trucks, one a pickup and another larger farm truck and at least five tractors including a large diesel unit which was being repaired in the shop.

Mr. Shuler's wife died last month and he was planning to move from the farm and retire following the sale. Young Schuler said the farm has been sold.

"The farm's hay and straw stacks including 700 tons of baled hay and 1,000 bales of straw were all destroyed except one small stack."

Mr. Schuler was home at the time but asleep and did not discover the fire until it was well under way, his son said.

Neighbor, Justin Mills, who lives east of the Schuler farm, said he awoke about 4 a.m. and at that time flames were shooting into the air.

TF aides okay 'boxcar' plan

TWIN FALLS — After soul searching and at least one loud sigh from Trustee Ruth Day, the Twin Falls School Board unanimously approved placing a railroad boxcar behind Robert Stuart Junior High School.

District Athletic Director Robert Donnelly told the reluctant trustees that the car would be a "foolproof" protection against vandals who threatened the expensive cushion used in the pole vaulting program.

"We're desperate," Donnelly said. The cushion cost $2,700. In comparison, he said, the boxcar would be donated by Union Pacific Railroad without cost to the district. Moving the car to the school would cost $250, he said.

He said the car could be painted to "camouflage" it, similar to another boxcar located inside Braln Stadium at the High School.

Donnelly said the junior high pole vaulting program would have to be halted if suitable storage facilities could not be arranged.

The trustees agreed that storage facilities were needed, but balked at the notion of a boxcar.

"Tell me, Bob, how can you really camouflage a boxcar. A boxcar is a boxcar," was the response of Dr. Howard Ronk, acting trustee chairman.

"We have a real nice looking school. A boxcar doesn't particularly lend itself to the decor," Ronk said.

Finally a suggestion was made by Larry Dunn from the audience, that the boxcar could be camouflaged by inexpensive siding and roofing. Usually, on the motion of Trustee Tom Kiely, the trustees unanimously approved placing the boxcar at the school, with the provision that the trustees would have to approve the specific location.

The board members agreed informally that some form of "beautification" of the boxcar should be undertaken in the future, but took no action on such a plan.

In other business the trustees:

Heard a presentation from Larry Dunn, representing Varsity Janitorial Services. Dunn told the board his firm could provide janitorial services for the school system at less cost than at present.

He estimated the service could save the district $1,000 a year for Morningside School alone.

The trustees took his offer under advisement.

Informally, rejected a request from Douglas Neville, representing American Income Life Insurance Co., who asked the district offer a "retiree insurance" plan to district employees, and permit employees to deduct the premium payments on a payroll deduction plan.

Supt. George Staudacher told the trustees that "we don't have any space on our machine" for additional deductions, and Dr. Ronk told Neville that the district's attorney had advised against such programs because the district would be acting as a "collecting agent."

Trustees approve classes

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls School Trustees, apparently embracing the "open school" concept, approved a series of adult classes to be conducted by Teacher Corps interns.

The classes, to be held on Thursday nights for two and one-half hours a night for six weeks, will be held at Bickel School, beginning April 5.

Classes involved will be introduction to guitar, first aid and safety including drug education, firearms safety, crocheting and a course for parents to help them understand the "new math" being taught their children.

The trustees gave unanimous approval to the program following a presentation by the lay coordinator for the teacher corps program, and the reigning Idaho mother of the year, Mrs. David McClusky, Twin Falls.

Mrs. McClusky introduced teacher corps interns and community advisors for the program.

According to Mrs. McClusky, the choice of courses to be offered was made following a survey of 500 persons living in the Bickel School neighborhood. She said the most often requested course was beginning guitar, which, along with the other course choices, was a surprise.

The teacher corps program is being conducted on an experimental basis at Bickel School, for a two-year term.

Acting trustee chairman Dr. Howard Ronk said he "would like to commend this group... doing wonderful work meeting the needs of the community."

After the two statements, Neville withdrew his request. Increased the fee charged for use of the O'Leary Auditorium to $50 per night from $25.

Approved a contract to hire Les Jones to farm about 26 acres of school district property. According to district business manager J. T. Anderson, the arrangement would cost the district $60 a year per acre. He said the land would be put into wheat, and that the district would have to pay for the seed.

Funding asked by CAA

By GEORGE WILLY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The planning committee of the South Central Community Action Agency approved three emergency funding applications Tuesday night.

The grant proposals, if approved by the Office of Economic Opportunity, will allow SCCAA to continue operations for six months beyond its current June 30 termination deadline and could mean full 12-month funding for the agency's family planning and senior citizen programs.

Although the OEO announced Monday that it will shut down all 10 of its regional offices throughout the nation on April 28, funding for some community programs is apparently available beyond that date and the SCCAA is seeking its share.

SCCAA executive director Bob G. Russell said he received a telephone call Tuesday morning from OEO regional officials in Seattle informing him that if SCCAA wished to seek funding beyond the June 30 date grant applications would have to be submitted by Friday.

Russell said the applications, if approved, could mean an additional $15,000 for SCCAA. "We probably won't get the whole $15,000," he told the planning committee, "but it doesn't hurt to ask for it."

Russell indicated that the situation within the OEO was highly unstable because of the impending closure and transfer of some programs to other agencies and that the requirements and procedures to be followed by SCCAA could change rapidly.

"If nothing changes, this is what we'll do," he said, indicating that the budget applications would be sent to Seattle by the Friday deadline, "but you can bet there will be some changes and we're going to have to adjust to them."

Even if the grants are approved, Russell said, SCCAA would still be in a position of phasing itself out as a federally funded agency but would have more time to seek various public or private fund sources for ongoing programs.

Russell said that if the grants are approved by the Seattle OEO office before it closes its doors April 28, the national headquarters could still rule against the funds.

Gooding teens face trial

GOODING — Four Gooding County teenagers will go to court April 4 on trial for possession of a controlled substance and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Mary Kay Burnum, 19; Lee Lynn Shobe, Kenneth Hurd and Earl Ray Retherford, all 19, were arraigned Monday before Magistrate Court Judge Charles Shaw. All pleaded innocent. Phil Becker, public defender, will represent Burnum, Shobe and Hurd while Severt Swenson has been retained to represent Retherford.

Also arrested at the time and on the same charge was Michael Ray Daniels, 19. Officers say he was in the military service at the time and has returned to his duty station in Japan.

Sheriff Earl Brown said a one year statute of limitations on a misdemeanor will probably expire before his return.

Bliss sets program

BLISS — Trustees of the Bliss school district have agreed to join eight other school districts in the special education program for handicapped children.

The school has been proposed for the old state tuberculosis hospital in Gooding in conjunction with the Child Development Center program headquartered in Twin Falls.

Trustees agreed to the nine-district proposal in a meeting Monday night. The board also accepted applications for a custodian position effective the end of the school year, and agreed to purchase a science table for the chemistry and physics classes for next year.

The Bliss senior class trip this year will be to Hawaii with 11 students and two chaperones leaving Thursday morning.

Boards re-appointed

GOODING — County boards were re-appointed at Monday's regular Gooding County commissioners meeting.

The hospital board members reappointed for three year terms include John Varin, Lee Wagner and Jerry Gerhke.

Members of the fair-board reappointed are Omar Schmidt, Mrs. George Badke, Bob Robinson, John LeMoine, Andrew F. James, Ed Koester and Walt Higgins.

A snowmobile board was appointed to make recommendations for snowmobile improvements by the county, since some of the fees from snowmobile licenses go into county funds. Members of the board are Ben Egeler, John Noble, and Earl Skidmore.

In other commission action bids for a base station for a 450 radio station for the sheriff's department were opened. Motorola submitted bids of $11,507 and $7,280. General Electric bids totaled $8,067 and $3,926.

The bids will not be accepted until Sheriff Earl Brown studies them and reports to the commission.

Hazelton issue passed

HAZELTON — The Hazelton City Council met Tuesday night following a successful sewer bond election to sign preliminary project papers.

The bond issue passed with 89 in favor and 27 against, according to Jackie Christofferson, city clerk.

The council voted to spend $2,000 of revenue sharing funds to install cement in major city irrigation ditches. They also voted to pay one-half of the cost of closing Fifth Street, with the highway district paying the remaining half and doing the work. The project is expected to be completed during the summer, Mrs. Christofferson said.

The council voted a 5 per cent wage increase retroactive to March 1 to city employees. Mrs. Christofferson and John L. Taylor, City Councilman Leonard Hamilton was granted a two to three month leave of absence.

GOP women elect

BLISS — New officers have been installed in the Snake River Valley Republican Women's Club.

Mrs. Bob Robinson was named president, Mrs. Janaye Williams, vice president, and Mrs. Gordon Dahlgren, secretary-treasurer.

Committee chairmen were also elected at the meeting in the home of Mrs. Jim Faulkner near Bliss. Mrs. Mary Glaser will head the program committee; Mrs. Carol Nicholson, membership; Mrs. Merle Leach, hospitality; Mrs. Lorna Faulkner, historian, and Mrs. Neva Krueger, reporter.

Mrs. Krueger said the group's next meeting is at the American Legion Hall, Hagerman, at 7 p.m. April 9.

2 Blaine code changes asked

HAILEY — Two proposed changes in agricultural provisions of the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Ordinance were submitted Tuesday to the county commissioners.

After discussing the proposals with planning and zoning administrator David L. Vhay, the commissioners decided to table the matters for further study and scheduled a second meeting with Vhay for March 20.

The first proposal would increase the present five-acre lot minimum in the A-1 exclusive agricultural zone to a 20-acre or 40-acre minimum.

Vhay said five acres cannot be defined as a "bona fide agricultural unit" and said, especially in the southern end of the county, A-1 zoned land has been sold as residential property, with a price above agricultural values. This practice, he said, creates tax assessment hardships for adjoining agricultural land.

A larger designation, Vhay said, would "preserve some of the agricultural land as agricultural land, which is the stated intention of the ordinance."

He said the county planning and zoning ordinance, written in the winter of 1970-71, complied with state regulations classifying property over five acres in size as being exempt from county subdivision regulations. In 1971 that section of state code was modified to allow the counties to adopt their own definition of subdivision in lieu of the state definition, he said.

The proposed change may include a residential use exemption, allowing five per cent of any land in the A-1 district under single or joint ownership to be developed for residential use.

Suggested stipulations for the exemption may include that such development conform to the requirements of the A-2 agricultural transition district or that the minimum lot size of such development shall be set at two and one-half or five acres and be restricted to single family use; the development shall conform to subdivision requirements as set forth in county ordinance section 71-3; or that at the time of title transfer or platting, the owner shall file an agreement with the clerk of the board excluding the remaining 95 per cent agricultural land under consideration from use of this exemption for a proposed period of 10 years.

A second proposed alteration in the agricultural provisions would change present A-3 recreation-agriculture district designations in the Magic Reservoir area and Stanley basin to A-1. Several access points at Magic would remain A-3 under the proposal.

Vhay said the A-3 zone denotes high intensity use which should be confined to specific access areas.

Kimberly board hears problems

By JOCELYN CLOWARD
Times News Writer

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly school board heard Monday night of the failure of the school system's gymnasium boiler.

"We almost lost the whole building," Supt. Clinton Bugg told members. Controls on the boiler system had failed, "sometime Sunday night," he said. Damages were estimated at $500 to $800 with probably cost to the board $400 for new controls after insurance payments. "These are the things its hard to budget for," chairman Jack Claiborn said.

During the meeting, the board heard several citizens attending compliment them for their administration of school affairs. Lloyd Shewmaker, referring to a citizens complaint brought in January before the State Board of Education against the Kimberly board, said, "It's a shame to elect officials and then start taking them apart."

Elias Lajla, one of those presenting the complaint, which resulted in a fact finding committee's visiting Kimberly school and reporting to the state board said, "Don't forget we rank 47th among the states in education. We have to work at bettering our system."

The board adopted several policies and procedures. "This is what the fact finding committee recommended," chairman Jack Claiborn said. "We're working to update our policies."

Those incorporated into district policy included:

— A procedure for presentation of complaints against school personnel. Grievances will be taken to an immediate supervisor, then to the superintendent of schools and from there, may be taken in writing to the school board. Individual board members hearing grievances are directed by the policy to refer them to the school administration. Employees will be advised of grievances against them and will be given the opportunity to present facts personally to the board with a third party moderator, present if necessary.

An agenda policy, whereby those who wish to be included on the board agenda will schedule themselves by Friday noon one week before the regular board meeting.

Duties of the superintendent of school, and chairman of the board were outlined in the adopted policies were those of legal counsel and board appointed committees.

Following an opinion by attorney Dan Slavin that board minutes are not binding on the board until accepted at a following meeting, the board adopted a policy of considering such minutes unavailable to the public until "such time as accepted."

Supt. Bugg presented a request for several district teachers to attend meetings in early April. The board granted permission for Mrs. Ella Hilverda to attend the Idaho Youth legislature with eight students in Boise; James Monroe, Mrs. Carol Hollifield and Galan DePew to attend an English teachers workshop in Pocatello; Mrs. Norma VanLeeuwen to attend an office occupations conference in Boise, and James Sorenson to attend an EPA state conference in Twin Falls.

Bugg was instructed to work with the Hansen district to find a way to send the special education class with instructor Linda Brown to the special olympics at Pocatello.

He was given permission to draw up specifications for a standard size school bus to be purchased by the district for the coming school year.

Bugg discussed guidance in the schools, and recommended that the board consider hiring a school psychologist.

New Gooding service set

GOODING — As of 8 p.m. Thursday, Leeper Mortuary and Thompson Chapel will no longer provide ambulance service for Gooding County.

Magic Valley Ambulance Service will take over and will offer ambulance service in both Gooding and Wendell.

Bob Higgins, a licensed practical nurse, will be manager. He has worked for the Magic Valley Ambulance Service in Twin Falls. The telephone number for the service will be 931-5870.

Magic Valley Ambulance Service will bring in its own vehicles and equipment.

New state and federal regulations have caused the "legal operation" to no longer be feasible. The former operators also cited the need to be on call 24 hours a day as a reason for discontinuing the service.

AEC aides to inspect uranium mill tailings

RIVERTON, Wyo. (UPI) — Two Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) officials are due in Riverton today to inspect uranium mill tailings abandoned by Susquehanna Western.

John Flora, director of the AEC regulatory division in Denver, and radiation specialist Herman Paas will make the inspection.

Flora said the commission has found no human health hazard from the tailings in the past and doesn't expect to find any during today's inspection. He said the trip is to insure there has been no change in the situation.

Susquehanna Western abandoned the pile when it closed its plant in 1963. Since then it has been a center of controversy because of possible radiation danger.

Flora said during the inspection today, direct gamma measurements will be taken, soil and water sampled and photographs along with visual observations of conditions.

Shriners draft fund club plan

TWIN FALLS — Plans for a $100-Million Club in the Magic Valley area were outlined Monday night by high officials of the El Korah Temple of Idaho.

A group of 30, including Potentate Carl Shaver and nearly his entire divan of officers, met with Twin Falls Shrine Club members for a dinner meeting in the Griggs Motel Idaho Room.

James Olson, Twin Falls, was named chairman of a $100-Million Club for this area. Purpose of the club is to guarantee funds for the operation of the Shrine children's hospitals and burn hospitals in the nation.

Shaver said there are 19 crippled children's hospitals and three special burn treatment centers maintained by Shrine clubs around the nation.

The proposal from the imperial potentate for operating the hospitals which handle many charity cases is to obtain a $100 cash donation or a pledge of $100 in the will of each Shrine Clubmember in the nation. This would mean Shriners would not need to appeal to over taxed merchants in their communities for funds to support the hospital programs.

Olson, vice president of the Twin Falls Shrine Club, said special events such as auctions, antique shows and Shrine cruises would continue to be sponsored to help with the financing, but hopefully once the $100-Million Club is operating no more merchant soliciting would be necessary. This is the first time the potentate and his divan of state officers have visited the Twin Falls club in a group.

Milar to transport meeting in Pullman

TWIN FALLS — City Manager Jean Milar will be in Pullman, Wash., Thursday to attend a transportation planning workshop.

The one-day workshop is part of the 24th Annual Road Builders' Conference. Milar said he will be attending only the one day program as it pertains more closely to transportation planning programs in Twin Falls.

He said he has officially named 1973 the year of planning in his work program scheduling and is sending as many department heads and employees to planning programs in their own fields as can be arranged.

Joe Koon, city sanitation and health officer, and James Bickhart, city treasurer, have just returned from planning conferences and airport manager Harry Morrick is in Texas for a manager training program.

Milar said he feels such programs are important if city employees and superintendents are to remain on top of new techniques so they can do the best possible job for the taxpayers of the city.

Hansen club elects

HANSEN — Mrs. Percy Christensen was elected leader of Tops 84 Club Monday night.

Mrs. Fred Howard was named co-leader; Mrs. J. Anita Cok, secretary, and Lena Bohrn, treasurer, was re-elected. Mrs. Paul Bowman was re-appointed weight recorder and Mrs. Bryson Vinyard assistant.

Mrs. Christensen announced there will be a meeting of retiring and new officers March 20. The meeting opened with an exercise song. Mrs. Ralph Simmons was the best loser and told her members for the week.

Installation of the new officers is scheduled for March 26. The new leader asked for membership expiration dates from each member. Miss Bohrn presented a report on the secrets of losing weight.

Almquist hired as TF football coach

By RICHARD G. HIGH
Times-News managing editor
TWIN FALLS — Dennis Almquist has been named by the Twin Falls School Trustees as Twin Falls High School head football coach.

At the same time, the trustees accepted the resignation of Almquist's chief rival for the promotion, Steve Buratto. Buratto has been picked as Boise State College's defensive secondary and outside linebacker, coach, subject to approval of the Boise State administration and the state board of education. Buratto's resignation is effective at the end of March. He will take his new post April 1.

Both men had been assistant football coaches under head coach Norin Thomas, who resigned earlier this year to take an administrative position at the high school.

Almquist had worked primarily with the offense in five years he was assistant coach. He came to Twin Falls in 1966. In addition to coaching, Almquist teaches Government classes at the high school. The new coach had been an honorable mention all-conference linebacker and offensive guard at the University of Idaho in 1962 and 1963 when the school was still in the Pacific Eight Conference. He was also the school's candidate for the Pop Warner award.

He was drafted by the San Francisco 49ers and played pre-season ball with them as a linebacker before being cut before the regular season. He then played with the Saskatchewan Rough Riders before becoming an assistant coach at Wallace High School for two years.

He had also returned to the U. of I. where he obtained his teacher's credentials on top of his B. S. in Forestry.

Almquist said Tuesday night that he was very happy and very excited about his being named for the new position.

The new head football coach said he received word of his appointment from the school board late Tuesday night. Almquist said he could not make any comment on whether Buratto's resignation had anything to do with the school board naming him to the position.

He said he actually did not know officially what other persons were up for the football coach position.

He said he was glad the trustees had the confidence in him they did to name him as head coach. Almquist said he will work hard to give his players a winning attitude.

Supt. George Staudacher told the trustees had no person in mind to replace Buratto in teaching four classes of French and one of Spanish after he leaves the school.

"I've only had one day on this," Staudacher told the trustees.

The Buratto resignation apparently coincided closely with the trustees' decision to hire Almquist.

Moreover, the trustees did not invoke the customary financial penalties on Buratto, which are usually levied when a teacher abruptly resigns for reasons other than health.

Tourney rescheduled

FILER — The 16th Annual Magic Valley Outlaw Basketball Tournament has been postponed one week because of illness and to avoid conflict with the high school All-star game.

The games, which were originally slated to begin today, have been rescheduled to be played next Wednesday, March 21.

Lee Bartlett, tournament manager said there are still some available team openings. He said interested teams can enter by contacting him at 733-2126. The tournament is played at the Filer High School gym.

Tournaments in the past have provided basketball fans an opportunity to see former area high school and college players play in tough "outlaw" competition.

College finals open

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (UPI) — The eight-team finals of the NCAA College Division basketball tourney open in Roberts Municipal Stadium Wednesday, with the key quarter-finals game pitting defending champion Roanoke, Va., against three-time winner Kentucky Wesleyan.

The eight-team finals was determined in regional eliminations last week. The lineup also features Akron, Ohio, runner-up to Roanoke last year, and Coe of Iowa, unbeaten in 24 starts.

California at Riverside opens the annual post-season tourney in an afternoon game with Brackport State of New York, followed by Akron against Tennessee State.

Wednesday night's schedule opens with Roanoke vs Kentucky Wesleyan, followed by Assumption of Massachusetts against Coe.

The Kentucky Panthers won the tourney in 1966 and again in 1968 and 1969 and carry a 21-6 record. Roanoke, which beat Akron last year for the title, is 23-5.

The Californians are 23-4. Brackport is 23-4. Akron 22-4. Tennessee State 20-7, and Assumption 23-7.

FAIRFIELD — Twenty-eight youngsters, ranging in age from 13 to 18 completed here Sunday in the First Annual Wheeler Trophy ski race.

Pete Blick, Twin Falls, won in the boys' division for racers 16 to 18 years of age with a time of 59.7 over the 2.3 mile slalom course.

East rates as favorite in MV All-star contest

The east, holding a good height advantage, rates as the favorite for the second annual Magic Valley All-star basketball game Friday night at the College of Southern Idaho gymnasium.

Craig Hepworth of Minico and Tracy Nielsen of Burley give coach Neal Wyat the two biggest men by four inches over anything the west will have. Coach Fred Trenkle replies with five men 6-4 or 6-3 but his hopes for a victory will rest on the rebounding of 6-4 Bob Durham and teammate Charlie Browne, 6-3, both of whom are excellent leapers. Matt Croner, 6-4 of Camas County, also is a better than average jumper.

Other than at the center spot, the teams seem pretty well matched. The east has three good offensive guards in Val Christensen of Minico, Don Hedke of Oakley, and Mike Sorenson of Shoshone. The west's guards are more defensive oriented although they can score. These include Lynn Reese of Castleford, Jim Hurst of Wood River, Logan Parker of Jerome and Al Stevenson of Wendell.

The west's forward line, although Nielsen probably will see action there since he played the position as an underclassman, will have Steve Bowers, 6-2 top scorer from Richfield; Rick Nelson, a 3-Kimberly forward who had a string of three games at nearly 100 points; Les Rietz, 6-4 from Valley who is more comfortable under the basket; and Sager, 6-4 of Burley who has always been a forward. Murtough's Rick Denney, 5-11, has played both guard and forward during his career and from quarter to quarter.

Durham and Browne have always played forward for Twin Falls as has Roger Clubb, 6-2 of Jerome, the South Central Idaho Conference's leading scorer. Doyle Rodgers, 6-4 of Gooding, provides Coach Trenkle with some lineup variances since he has played everywhere and led the SCIC in rebounding.

The game will be played in 10 minute quarters. The only stipulation is that a man-to-man defense must be used at all times. This sets up the one-on-one plays that are necessary for all-star games to be interesting and highly contested. All players selected will play but there is no fast rule governing the amount of time each will be in the game. This was established to allow coaches to maintain hot combinations or vary them as he feels necessary.

Tickets for the game are available throughout the Magic Valley, priced $1.75 for adults and $1.25 for students.

In Twin Falls tickets are on sale at the Hogerson Coffee Shop and Newton's Sport Center, Bank of Idaho in Jerome, Richfield, Gooding, Ketchum, Hailey and Burley; Idaho State Bank in Hagerman; Grosse Drug in Shoshone; Idaho First National Bank in Wendell; R & R Cafe in Buhl; and the First Security Bank in Rupert.

8 teams advance in NAIA tourney

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri Southern overcame a 10-point deficit Tuesday night and upset sixth-seeded Fairmont (W. Va.) State, 70-63, in the first round of the NAIA Basketball Tournament.

Missouri Southern trailed, 61-51 with 9½ minutes to play, but Fairmont collapsed, scoring only two points the rest of the way. John Thomas, who scored 18 points, led the Lions' comeback with seven straight points for a 62-61 lead with 5:34 remaining. Craig Kuerian hit four free throws down the stretch as Missouri Southern won going away.

No. 1-ranked college power Sam Houston (Tex.) State slammed outmanned Warburg (Iowa) into submission Tuesday night and the top-seeded Bearcats blazed to an 88-62 in a first-round victory.

Sam Houston intimidated Warburg from the start and blocked 16 shots, eight in each half. In addition, Warburg benefited from six goal-tending calls.

The Bearcats roared to a 25-6 lead in the first 12 minutes and Warburg didn't score its tenth point until there were less than six minutes left in the half.

Sam Houston, which won its 28th game without a loss, led at halftime, 47-20. Mike Newell scored 17 points and James Lister added 16 for Sam Houston, while J. D. Gardner had 20 for Warburg.

Xavier (Ia.) pulled away from Marist (N.Y.) early in the second half Tuesday night to register an 81-65 victory, also in the first round.

Xavier outscored Marist 23-6 in the first 8½ minutes of the second half, turning a 46-32 halftime margin into an insurmountable 59-38 advantage. Bruce Seals led the gold rush with 30 points while Mike Harte was high for the Red Foxes with 25.

In the last two day games, Tom Jones sparked a 10-point spree early in the second half that led fourth-seeded Wisconsin-Green Bay, 95-85; Dallas (Tex.) Baptist, 77-66; and eighth-seeded Maryland-Eastern Shore shot 110 times en route to a 114-107 victory over Eastern Montana.

South Carolina State lost a 12 point lead in the opening minutes of the second half, but rallied behind Curtis McLendon's clutch shooting in the final minutes to take an 82-71 win over Hastings College of Nebraska in Tuesday's first round. NATA Basketball Tournament.

Quinnipiac College, Conn., led by the scoring and playmaking of Bob Vacca won over Quichita Baptist of Arkansas, 79-66, in Tuesday's first game.

South Carolina State could manage only six points in the first eight minutes of the second half, falling behind Hastings, 52-51 after leading 45-33 at half.

Vehicles tear up canal road

Vehicles are tearing up the road along Richfield Canal due to melting snow and frost leaving the ground at this time of year.

This creates an added maintenance cost to the Big Wood Canal Co. The Canal Co. is providing access to the fishermen and it would be helpful to refrain from driving on this road until it dries out.

But the Bulldogs rallied behind McLendon's eight points in the final 3:39 of play, to catch and then pass Hastings.

Kip Keino turns pro

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Kip Keino, who won two gold medals in the Olympics, expects to find a much better life win money than medals as one of the stars of the new professional track and field circuit.

"Would you rather live in a good place or get a gold medal?" Keino parried in an interview Tuesday, and then answered his own question, "I think it's the best thing to get money."

Keino was in Portland to promote a pro meet to be held indoors at the Memorial Coliseum March 30.

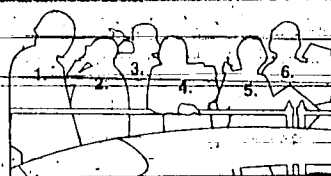

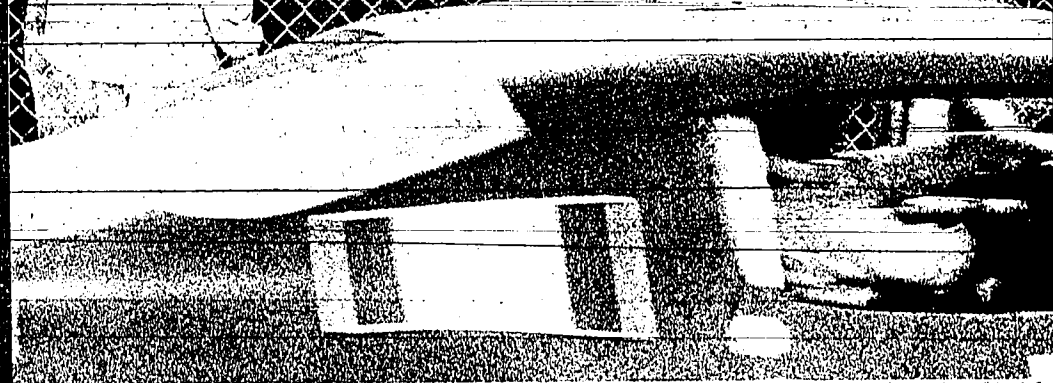

The former Kenya policeman said, "As an amateur you run for pleasure and so forth," he said, "but a professional does not do so for pleasure, any running is a business. Time is money. You have to take it serious."

Keino, who was Olympic 1,500 meter champion in 1968 and triple jumper gold medal winner in 1972, said he expected to see a "lot of records" set by the pros.

"I think this will put a lot of pressure on," he said, "of running for money. If you win you get $500 and a bonus of $300 for a record."

Keino described Oregon's premiere distance runner Steve Prefontaine as "very tough," but that while Prefontaine had the potential to become the best distance runner in the world, he had to learn to cope with the different type of competition provided by European runners.

Can you spot the Camel Filters smoker?

Here at the Speedway everybody has a gimmick... almost everybody. Try picking the one who doesn't go along.

1. Nope. He's "Third Turn" Abanian. Has been in 263 races. Gimmick: always loses control on third turn where Bubbles Fickler stands (see #5 below). He doesn't smoke. His car does. 2. No. Second-Hand Sam Shick used car dealer. Gimmick: buys what's left of Abanian's cars. Smokes "preowned" cigars. 3. Hardly. He's Reggie J. Van Phynque II. Gimmick: filthy rich. Wears cashmere foulcees. Smokes double-vented cigarette. 4. Right. He likes his racing without fat-out fads or gimmicks. Wants his cigarette that way, too. Camel Filters. Honest, no-nonsense. Fine tobacco. Easy and good tasting. 5. Bubbles Fickler, racing groupie. Gimmick: 18 stopwatches... with Mickey Mouse hands. Smokes Fellinis. 6. Fellini. Just a $219.40 cash down payment and $67.98 a month for 36 months.

If you're not too good at math, that works out to a deferred payment price of $2667.28 which includes a finance charge at an ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE of 14.99%.

Along the way, you get a little financial help from the car.

It uses about 5 pints of oil instead of 5.

It doesn't need antifreeze because the engine's air cooled.

And although it does need gas, it doesn't need much of it. Usually a gallon every 26 miles or so.

Mercer drops CSI 70-68 in overtime

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News sports editor
HUTCHINSON, Kan. — Connie White hit an 18-foot jumpshot off the baseline as the final horn sounded in overtime Tuesday afternoon as Mercer College edged the College of Southern Idaho 70-68 in the National Junior College Tournament.

White's field goal negated a rally by CSI in the final four minutes which saw them throw the game into overtime and lead twice before falling to their afternoon-long nemesis, turnovers.

The Eagles were tight throughout the ball game, but particularly in the first 10 minutes of the second half when Mercer moved ahead by nine points.

Dick Sobers started CSI back with four minutes remaining and the Eagles trailing 52-52. He hit six points and Darrell Groves added two more to cut the deficit to 61-60 but Sobers fouled out in the process of giving White a three-point play with under a minute left.

Ron Fryson hit CSI's first free throws of the afternoon, and Williams' free throws with seconds left tied the game 64-64.

In the overtime, CSI led twice, both times on points from Williams, but White tied the game 68-68 with a 1-20 left.

CSI then held the ball for 52 seconds before giving up possession on a bad pass. Mercer wore the clock to six seconds, then called time out. They handled the ball four times before White let go with the winner.

White and Jerotne Young were the chief tormentors of CSI, with an occasional assist from Melvin Weldon. Young hit 14 of his 20 points in the first 15 minutes and CSI then switched to a zone defense.

At that point, White became unstoppable on the offensive boards as he picked rebounds for 10 points, his last one at the buzzer giving Mercer a 35-34 half-time lead.

CSI had stayed in contention on the 11 points of Fryson, plus the early outside shooting of Sobers. But as the second half began, Mercer pulled away, with Weldon and Young shooting them ahead 47-40.

The Eagles, still hampered by turnovers, stayed five to seven points back until White's field goal opened up the largest lead at 55-46. CSI reduced it only two points over the next six minutes, before Sobers started the Eagles back.

CSI was hit with 26 turnovers, which negated their 44 per cent field goal shooting. The Eagles were perfect at the foul line, but shot only six times.

CSI now advances in the consolation bracket against Platte Junior College of Columbus, Neb., which was defeated 89-77 by Uster, N. Y.

1972 NJCAA Champion gets win

HUTCHINSON, KAN. (UPI) — Defending champion Vincennes, Ind., raced away from McLennan of Waco, Tex., in the second half Tuesday night for an 87-70 victory in the first round of the National Junior College Basketball Tournament.

The tall Indiana club found the game early in the second half and led as much as 20 points midway in the period. McLennan, which was close until the first four minutes after intermission, trailed 47-40 at halftime. Earth Frost and Phil Spence led Vincennes with 23 and 21 points while Mark Lapa hit 19 for McLennan.

Oney, Ill. produced 61 per cent shooting accuracy Tuesday to drop Dixie College of St. George, Utah, 85-71 in the first round of the tournament. Oney, which knocked out number one ranked Wright of Chicago in the Region 4 finals for this event, moved steadily to a 13-36 halftime advantage and was never headed.

College of New York went on a 15 point scoring binge late in the game Tuesday to tie an 89-77 victory over Platte, Neb. in its first round game.

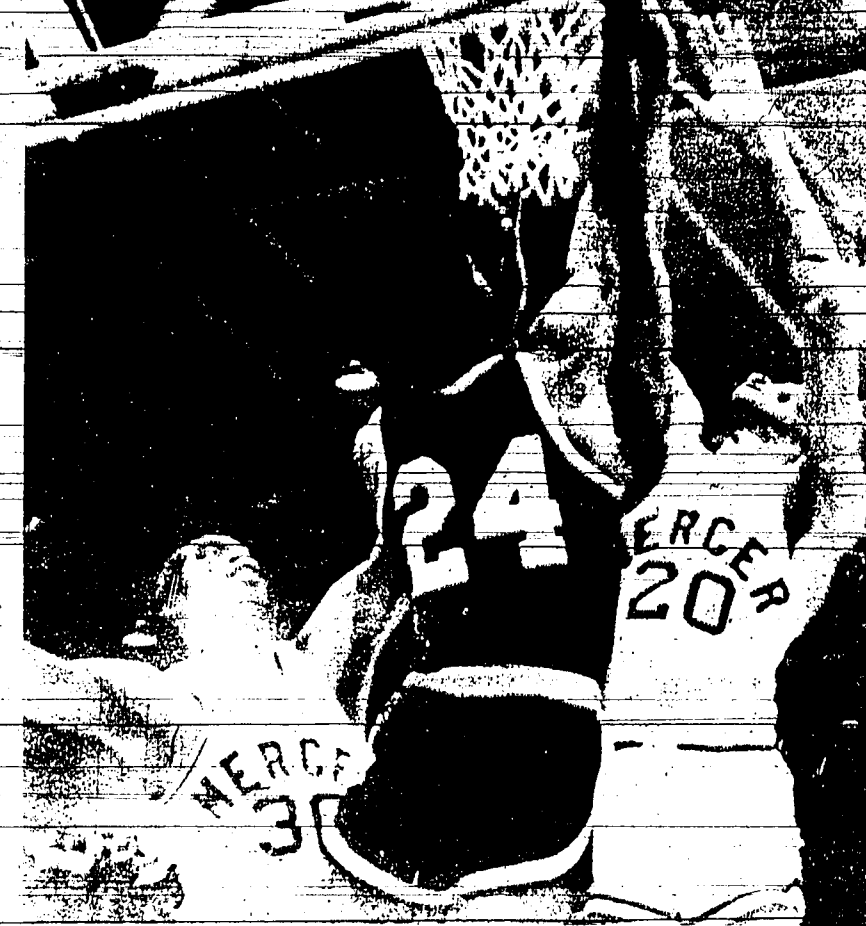

Roger Rome connected on one of two free throws after the buzzer to give Dalton, Ga., an 83-82 over Rivers College of Poplar Bluff, Mo., in another close NJCAA playoff game Tuesday.

With the score tied 82-82, Rome missed a shot at the buzzer but was fouled. He missed the first free throw, but connected on the second to win the game.

Walton leads All-Americans, Behagen named to third team

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — Three returnees from last year's squad, led by top vote-getter Bill Walton of UCLA, highlight the 1972-73 United Press International All-American team.

Walton, a 6-foot-11 senior, joins 6-6 senior Ed Ratleff of Long Beach State and 6-1 senior Dwight Lamar of Southwestern Louisiana as holdovers from last year's All-American team. Rounding out the first five are sophomore David Thompson of North Carolina State and 6-5 senior Doug Collins of Illinois State.

Walton, the player most responsible for the Bruins going undefeated in regular season play for a second straight year, missed by only one point of being a unanimous choice for the team. The big redhead got 388 points out of a possible 390 in balloting conducted of 195 sports writers and sportscasters from across the nation.

Voters were asked to select a first and a second team with two points being awarded to a player named to the first unit and one point given for second team mention.

Keith Wilkes of UCLA heads the second team and is joined by Tom McMillen of Maryland, Jim Brewer of Minnesota, Ernie DiGregorio of Providence and Kevin Joyce of South Carolina.

The third team consists of Allan Hornsby of Ohio State, Tom Burleson of North Carolina State, Bill Schaeffer of St. John's (N.Y.), Ron Behagen of Minnesota and Marvin Barnes of Providence.

Walton, the top pro prospect in college circles, even though he still has a year of eligibility remaining, averaged 19.8 points and 17 rebounds per game this year while leading the Bruins through a 26-0 campaign. He was most devastating on defense, though, as his tremendous agility and shot-blocking ability completely took away opponents' inside game.

Ratleff was the sparkling for Long Beach State for the second successive year and helped get the 49ers into the NCAA tournament. A fine playmaker and solid rebounder, he scored at a 23.3 clip while splitting his time between forward and guard.

Lamar, the nation's leading scorer a year ago, slipped a bit this season but still managed to average just under 30 points a game while leading the Cajuns to an NCAA tournament berth. The talented guard, known as "Bo" to his teammates, is considered one of the nation's best outside shooters.

Thompson, a quick catlike guard with moves reminiscent of Jerry West, was the main reason the Wolfpack went undefeated in 27 regular season games.

Demise of track clubs near with pro circuit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Tom Jennings, coach-manager of the powerful Pacific Coast Track Club, Tuesday predicted the demise of club teams in professional track and field is successful.

I hope professional track is successful," Jennings told the Southern California Track Writers Association. "Three of my outstanding athletes — pole vaulter Steve Smith and shot putters Al Feuerbach and George Woods, want to wait a while to see if pro track can draw big crowds before signing."

It won't be the end of the world for me if they should sign at some future date. I have a lot of other things I can do.

But I wouldn't stay with club track unless I could work with the best.

Smith is the holder of the world indoor pole vault record at 14-07. Woods and Feuerbach are two of only four men who have surpassed the 70-foot mark. Feuerbach has a best of 70-7 1/2 and Woods has done 70-1 1/2.

Controversial John Carlos, who was a participant in the black glove incident at the 1968 Mexico City Olympics, has signed to run in the official professional track opener Saturday night, March 24, at the Sports Arena.

The announcement that he will run in the 60-yard dash was made jointly by Carlos and Jack Butelish, vice president of the International Track Association.

Carlos will run against an all-star field composed of Warren Balderson, new world indoor record holder for 100 meters at 10.2, Jim Hines, 1968 gold medalist at 100 meters; Jean-Louis Ravellmantosa of Madagascar, day-care-old veteran Mel Pender, and Jim Green.

World mile record holder Jim Ryan, who will run against Kap Keino of Kenya and Tom Von Boden at 1,600 meters, in the March 24th meet, said he wasn't happy running against the power light.

I lost $250 because the power light beat me," said Ryan in discussing his solo race against the light in the "pro" preview meet 10 days ago in Bregello, Idaho. "I felt ridiculous chasing a light around the track rather than a man."

The appearance of Randy Williams in the Q'S-Russian indoor dual track meet at Richmond, Va., this weekend is still in doubt, said Ken Matsutani, assistant CSI track coach. I don't want to get involved in the issue, but the newsman never said I'd be the one to plug in the 1972 Munich Olympics at 18, is poked in one indoor meet this winter. The best time of 2:08.4 in the national AAC championships in New York is the second longest indoor mark behind Bob Beamon's world record of 2:02.7.

USC will face Arizona State, Brigham Young and New Mexico in a quadrangular meet Saturday night in Tempe, Ariz.

Durocher fined $250

HOUSTON, Fla. (UPI) — Lee Durocher, manager of the Houston Astros, was fined $250 Tuesday by National League president Chub Peeney for "interference with a Players' Association meeting," but said he "would resign" before he paid the fine.

The incident for which Durocher was fined occurred Monday in Pompano Beach, Fla., when the 66-year old manager interrupted a meeting between Players' Association executive director Marvin Miller and the Astros. Durocher claimed the meeting was extending into scheduled practice time.

"I said pardon me, Mr. Miller, it's time for us to do our hitting," Durocher said he told the players' representative Monday. "It's 11:30 and we hit at 11:40."

Durocher, appearing extremely upset about the fine, said "it really did surprise me to get a wire without a call."

SCIC All-stars

JEROME — Jerome and Gooding have each placed three players on the South Central Conference All-Conference team. Conference Basketball coaches picked the 10 man team Monday.

The team consists of eight seniors and two juniors. Wood River topped two on the team and Buhl and Filer each had one.

Team members from Jerome are Logan Parker, Roger Clubb, and Cole Johnson; Gooding, Doyle Rogers, Larry Patterson, and Ron Wilde; Wood River, Paul Nelson and John Hoenby; Buhl, Brent Watson and Filer, Don Davis.

Watson and Patterson were the two juniors named to the squad.

the expectancy began to fade a little. It seemed that there was some new experience which told me that God was near.

And He seemed to be close to me in unexpected revelations of His beauty. As we gazed at the moon itself, I sensed its barrenness and its loneliness. But then as we made our landing approach, that feeling disappeared entirely.

We touched down on the plain of Hadley, near the Apennine Mountains. And once again, standing there next to the lunar module, I sensed the nearness of God.

Perhaps our greatest preflight concern, from the geologists' viewpoint, had been the question of the moon dust. For we wanted to pick up many different samples of rock hoping that one would be the almost pure white plagioclase that scientists back home had told us to be on the moon.

This mineral, they suspected, was going to be Genesis Rock.

But how could we see through the thick layers of moon dust that covered everything? Perhaps the most important prayer of all was to petition God to allow us, somehow, to find a sample of Genesis Rock in spite of the dust.

On our extravehicular activity drives we stopped often to examine the rocks we were constantly passing. Dave Scott knocked off the top and sides of one large block, but it was clearly not plagioclase.

We also found chunks of volcanic rock with large bubbles in them where gas had formed while the shock was hardening, this wasn't a playlockup either.

Through all of this, I never lost the feeling the closeness of God. "Please, Lord," I prayed "help us have a rewarding exploration."

Dave and I took the rover once again across the lunar surface, leaving our tracks behind us. We came to a crater, old and badly mounded — millions of years' bombardment by meteorites. We dismounted and here at Sp. Crater we started our exploration across the dust.

Add there it was.

Dave and I saw it at almost exactly the same time.

Incredibly, one peculiar-looking rock sat in the middle of that crater on a sort of pedestal, almost as if a hand were holding it up to us.

Even before we reached out to pick up the rock we realized that it was quite different from anything else we had seen.

Slowly, Dave picked the rock up off the pedestal and turned it over. The underside was pure 'white'.

"I guess we've found it," Dave's voice, up and controlled, came to me over my earphone.

With a sense of awe we carried the sample back to the L.M. Our mission was complete.

How was it possible — in an environment where no wind blew, no rain washed — how was it possible for Genesis Rock to have been shown to us with no disguising cover of dust?

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MARCH 15, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are thinking big and want to become big now, but some unexpected obstacles may loom in your path that require a switch in methods if you are to be able to contend with them wisely. However, these changes produce in time a better set of circumstances for you to operate under. Maintain your cool.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You want to have fun, but there may be obstacles in your path today so wait until tomorrow. An associate may be somewhat demanding, but this is necessary. Evening is fine for radio listening or TV viewing.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listen to views of kin that you were not able to understand before, but do not show resentment. The ideas of others also have to be considered intelligently. Don't scold a close tie who could be your best friend as well.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Much care in motion of all kinds is necessary today and tonight, especially when driving on highways and byways. Make sure you spend wisely and well, and count your change; keep wallet in safe pocket.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't spend or invest too quickly, or you will surely regret it later on. Try to add to bank account instead of taking more out of it, and if you do not have one, start one. Cultivate conservatism.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't be forceful with others in order to get your own way; or you can only make enemies and accomplish very little. Use a wiser psychology. Steer clear of social activities tonight where big arguments might start.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Not a good day to contact advisers who are either too busy or not in good form, so wait for a better day for such. Get as much information as you can on your own. Work with vim and vigor, and get ahead.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Listen to the advice which a good and dynamic friend can give you now, and follow it implicitly. Social activities can prove to be very beneficial to your interests. Dress in fine style.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) State your aims and goals to influential persons and gain their advice and support, since it is impossible for you to work alone. Make sure you pay that important bill you have procrastinated about for so long. Improve your credit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You want to expand and can do so if you contact the right key people now. Once you have the right data, you can make plans for travel, or for changes. Home is your best bet in p.m.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try to comprehend better what key persons in your scheme of things are doing and then you can coordinate your mutual efforts more intelligently. Endeavor to please mate more, also. Make it a fifty-fifty proposition.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make the right arrangements with a conservative associate who has fine ideas, and you both benefit. Show generosity with one who opposes you and you reach a fine understanding. Stop being so belligerent.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Getting home beautified, or office modernized can make life and work easier and more pleasant and your health improves. Give a co-worker a boost and enjoy more harmonious relations; speed up production.

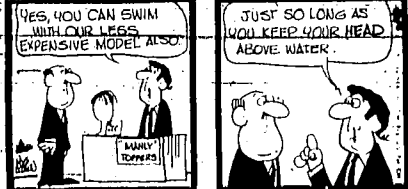

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young people who is full of generosity and big ideas, but who needs encouragement and praise when doing something especially worthy in order to make a big success in life, since there is much sensitivity in this nature.

The fine talents could be stunted if not given the proper credit. If this is done and care is paid to diet, which is important, then there can be real fame in this chart, plus a happy married life.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

"Woman, as most of us know her, is largely a product of deception and disguise from her tatted toenails up." So said Dr. Ralph S. Banay, fiercely. "As she stands before her mirror in her foundation garment, she feels it necessary not to improve on nature but to disguise it. A man's shaving may be justified as a cultural consideration, but can we say as much for a woman's attachment to artificial eyelashes and fingernails?" This fellow also said women are more inclined to criminality than men, women tend to hunger for revenge, and women demand an unreasonable and obsequious deference from men. That's harsh, Dr. Banay. Too harsh.

NO, SIR; you cannot copyright a musical composition created by a computer. AS FAR AS NEW PIANOS go, only one in every 25 these days is a grand. BUSINESSMEN in Yugoslavia routinely schedule their first appointments for the day at 7 a.m.

QUERY FROM A CLIENT

Q: "Where'd we get the phrase 'to get down to brass tacks'?"

A: Didn't explain that. Dr. goods counter years ago had brass tacks pounded into their rear ends at one inch, one foot, and one yard intervals. Clerks measured cloth from bolts against such tacks. Mostly, those clerks just held up the material, but when the customer was ready to buy, according to the custom, it was time to say, "Let's get down to the brass tacks."

IDEAL NUMBER of members in any carpool is said to be five. Not only matches the work days of the week, but the size of the cars most usually, too. Am told, however, most five-driver carpools work better when each of said drivers pilot a week at a time instead of changing daily. That way, a driver gets a month's vacation every so often.

MARRIAGE ODDS

He's 24 years old and still single, but chances run nine out of 10 he'll get married someday. She's 24 years old and still single, but chances only run eight out of 10 she'll get married someday. Why this discrepancy?

ANOTHER ODD FACT about that fierce pig known as the peccary is it has four toes on its front feet, but only three on its hind feet.

REMEMBER, just about twice as many men as women routinely get up before 6 a.m.

YES, I'VE TOLD a tattooed man is more likely than an untattooed man to have a bad record, statistically. But it's not true that this tattooed man is more likely to have a record of psychiatric treatment. Studies indicate there is no significant percentage of tattooed men in the mental wards.
