Indians scoff at 'best offer'

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (UPI) — A Justice Department negotiator Saturday handed the government's "best offer" to leaders of the militant Indians occupying this historic Sioux settlement. A source close to the Indians termed it "ridiculous."

Harlington Wood, assistant attorney general for the civil division, drove to a roadblock a quarter mile from here and handed a manila envelope containing 12 copies of the proposal to leaders of the American Indian Movement (AIM) members and supporters who seized Wounded Knee at gunpoint Feb. 27. Wood made the proposal after consultations in Washington "at the highest level" in the Interior and Justice Departments, a government spokesman said. He gave no details on the proposal but said it "was not an ultimatum" and AIM leaders would have all the time they needed to consider it.

Several hours later a source close to the Indians who had read the proposal said, "It's ridiculous."

"It's a surrender and complete protection for the tribal council (restoration government) opposed by AIM leaders," the source said. AIM leaders indicated they would have no response to the offer before Sunday.

Wood turned over the proposal to AIM leader Dennis Banks and attorney Ramon Roubideaux at a prairie "checkpoint" maintained by the Indians, who are themselves surrounded by armed federal officers.

"First of all," Wood said, "I want to thank you for keeping the peace while I was gone. I've got this for you. This is the best I could do. I want you to take your time. If you want to see me again I'll come back at any time. It will be at your pleasure."

He shook hands with Banks. Then Banks, Roubideaux, Russell Means and other AIM leaders met in their living quarters to consider the offer. Means later indicated there would be no response from AIM until Sunday.

Europe, US talk trading

BRUSSELS (UPI) — With a new monetary agreement, the United States and Europe moved on Saturday to the potentially explosive issue of trade.

U.S. Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz spent an hour with Common Market President Francois-Xavier Ortoli and had lunch with Sir Christopher Soames, the Markets commissioner in charge of the world trade talks scheduled to open in September.

A Common Market communiqué said Ortoli and Shultz discussed not only the short-range monetary reforms which Shultz and 13 other finance ministers framed in Paris Friday, but the trade situation and the trade bill which the Nixon Administration is preparing for Congress. Shultz said he and Soames would also concentrate on trade.

European sources said Ortoli urged a "fair and balanced" trade bill, without protectionist overtones.

Shultz replied with a plea for an understanding attitude from Europe to keep the bill's passage through Congress from being even rougher than it is expected to be.

Reports from Washington have said the bill would give President Nixon authority not only to lower tariffs in the trade talks but also to raise them. The Europeans have said the talks cannot begin until Nixon has prior Congressional authority to strike a deal, but they fear the protectionist possibilities implied in the power to increase duties.

'today in brief'

Price freeze proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., said Saturday he will introduce legislation freezing all prices for one year.

Citing fluctuation of the dollar in foreign money markets, Reuss said "a firm freeze will signal to Europeans that Congress is determined to defend the dollar."

Rushmore sealed off

KEYSTONE, S.D. (UPI) — Access routes to Mount Rushmore National Monument were closed off Saturday after supporters of the Wounded Knee Indians announced plans for a demonstration at the memorial led by civil rights priest Rev. James Gropp.

S. Vlot camp shelled

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist artillerymen firing captured American-made howitzers bombarded a South Vietnamese camp north of Saigon Saturday night, military spokesmen said.

Five government soldiers were wounded at the Tong Le base camp, about 53 miles north of the capital, when 64 rounds of 105mm artillery and mortar fire pounded the area, the Saigon command reported.

Grudge said slaying cause

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (UPI) — A former lifeguard with a grudge against a teen-aged musician was charged Saturday with the shotgun slaying of the youth and his parents at their home.

Brent W. Bedeyan, 21, Mill Valley, was charged with killing Melvin J. Schallock, 61, his wife Ruth, 56, and their son Daniel, 19, a guitar player with a jazz-rock group. Bedeyan was arrested a day after the bodies were found.

Bomb blasts Irish pub

DUBLIN (UPI) — A bomb planted in a car exploded Saturday night outside a pub jammed with St. Patrick's Day celebrators in the village of Lifford, killing at least one man and injuring about 50 others, police said.

Police said the car, which had Northern Ireland license plates, was parked outside the pub and no warning was given.

Santarelli nominated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will name Donald E. Santarelli, an associate deputy attorney general, to head the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA), officials disclosed Saturday.

An administration spokesman said Santarelli, 35, of Hershey, Pa., would succeed Jerris Leonard, who resigned to enter private law practice.

50,000 Irish march

NEW YORK (UPI) — A thunderstorm with 50-mile an hour winds failed to dampen enthusiasm of an estimated 50,000 marchers in the 21th annual St. Patrick's Day parade here Saturday.

Lenaghan Gem PUC choice

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus announced Saturday that Robert Lenaghan, acting director of the Department of Administrative Services, is his choice as the next member of the Public Utilities Commission.

"I am appointing him to the Public Utilities Commission because the consumers of utility services in Idaho are entitled to representation of the PUC by a man who will staunchly defend their interests, a man who will do battle in the best interests of the people, not the big corporations," Andrus said.

"Lenaghan is fair, he is dedicated, he is honest, he is tough. As a member of the PUC he will give the people of Idaho outstanding representation," the governor said. Andrus said the role of the Department of Administrative Services has changed dramatically under the leadership and guidance of Lenaghan.

GOP's elect Blick

IDAHO FALLS — Benny G. Blick, Castleford, was elected president of the Idaho Young Republican League here Saturday.

Blick defeated Keith Long, Idaho Falls, in the race for the two-year term as head of the organization. The race was a highlight of the annual state convention which opened Friday.

The contest was the first for the top office in the organization since 1965 — the last time it met in Idaho Falls. Blick was also elected state chairman of the Young Republicans at the meeting.

The convention closed Saturday evening with a dinner honoring former Sen. Len B. Jordan, R-Idaho. The Young GOP's presented Jordan with a plaque recognizing his service to the party, state and nation.

Speaking at the dinner was A.W. (Tony) Naegle, Idaho Falls, former state chairman of the party.

Other officers elected at the convention were:

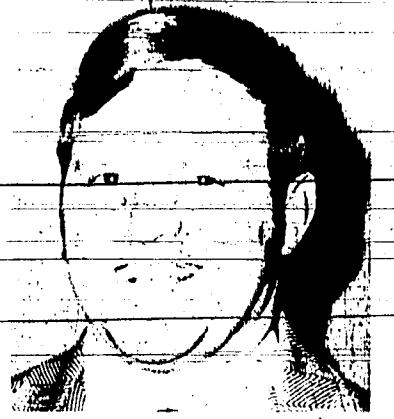

Gary Johnson, Boise, first vice president; Gordon Timothy, Rexburg, second vice president; Lee Staker, Idaho Falls, national committeeman; Susan Sander, Emmett, national committeewoman; John Gato, Buhl, treasurer.

In his acceptance speech, Blick said Republicans "have their work cut out for them" to defeat both Gov. Cecil D. Andrus and Sen. Frank Church in the next election.

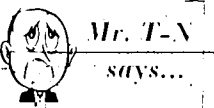

Former majority leader Terry Crapo told delegates with the election of 51 Republicans to the state legislature, conservative Republicanism has become the mainstream of Idaho politics.

Crapo called on the delegates to include in their efforts as a league attempts to reduce the size of government, increase responsibility of local government and eliminate the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

Anti-porno bill signed

BOISE (UPI) — To help stem the flow of obscene materials into Idaho, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus Friday signed into law a tough, new anti-pornography bill.

Andrus said he first proposed strengthening the Idaho law because the existing statute was not preventing obscene book stores and x-rated movie theaters

Waves of ex-POWs flying home

By United Press International Wave after wave of released American prisoners of war flew home from Clark Air Base in the Philippines Saturday to their tearful families and cheering countrymen — "the greatest people in the world."

"We've heard that there had been many changes in America since we've been gone and perhaps this is true," Col. John P. Flynn, 50, senior officer and overall American-POW commander in North Vietnam, told a departure crowd at Clark.

"But we know that you have not changed. You're still the greatest people in the world. God bless you. God bless our country. God bless our President."

As Flynn spoke — just before he and 55 other POWs left Clark in three giant C-141 flying hospitals — another 60 returned prisoners were arriving on the U.S. mainland.

One plane, headed for Andrews Air Force Base in Washington, was diverted by bad weather to Scott AFB, Ill. A crowd of 1,700 persons was already assembled when it got there.

At March AFB, Calif., Bobby Joe Keesee, the colorful soldier of fortune who astounded U.S. officials by turning up in a North Vietnamese prison, swept up the hem of the American flag and kissed it tearfully — as he had at Clark before leaving — then enfolded his teen-aged niece in a bear hug that swept her off her feet.

At Kennedy International Airport in New York, five POWs arrived in a booming windstorm, with the runway still gleaming from a heavy rain, to find 400 persons there, including dozens of friends, neighbors and relatives of Navy Lt. Charles P. Zubofski of Jamesport, N.Y., who had chartered two buses for the trip from nearby Long Island.

"It was a long trip to Hanoi but we knew it would be a round trip," Zubofski said.

"Thank God for our President and to all you wonderful people."

Navy Lt. Cmdr. John S. McCain III, son of Adm. John S. McCain, retired commander of all U.S. forces in the Pacific, arrived at Jacksonville, Fla., with a limp after nearly six years in a North Vietnamese camp to find his wife limping from a traffic accident and his son on crutches with a leg broken in a soccer match.

Cmdr. Peter V. Schoeffel of Naples, Fla., one of seven other POWs who flew to Florida with McCain after the initial stop at Maxwell AFB, told the Jacksonville crowd:

"In the last five years, the Communists tried to teach us Communism and in contrast we learned a lot about our country and the fine thing we call liberty.

"And if there is anything that I would like to impress on all of you, it's the importance of knowing and understanding the ideals of our country and our Constitution so we can all better preserve it and defend it — for it's the finest county in the world."

The 60 who preceded them in the U.S. arrived in their C-141s at the California and Illinois bases and at Maxwell AFB, Alabama, switching to other military planes for further flights to military installations and hospitals nearer their homes.

TV listing in 'Idaho'

Beginning today, Times-News daily television schedules will be grouped in the Sunday magazine, "Idaho."

The new magazine format is designed to be saved through the week for handy reference. In addition it permits publication of feature stories about TV programs and personalities of interest.

In order to avoid unnecessary duplication, the schedules will no longer be printed on weekdays.

Andrus vetoes stream channel, lake guards

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus Saturday vetoed a controversial bill designed to amend the state stream channel protection act.

At the same time the governor vetoed a measure which would have provided a statement of legislative intent concerning navigable lakes and encroachments and providing jurisdiction over the lakes by the state board of land commissioners.

(Related stories, p. 8, 9)

Andrus said in comments accompanying the veto the latter bill was passed by the legislature to insure regulation of lake alterations, which would have been withdrawn from the stream channel protection act had he approved the amendments.

Andrus called the amendments more "than a modest revision of law."

Police probe holdup try

TWIN FALLS — A lone gunman attempted to hold up the 7-11 Grocery store at Fliter Avenue and Washington Street about 10 p.m. Saturday.

Chief of Detectives Tim Qualls said at the scene that the gunman displayed a pistol but was apparently frightened away by an employee of the grocery store.

Qualls said no other details were available. Further investigation was continuing into Saturday.

No pollution suit rush seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A consumer group Saturday reported little evidence at the state level to support fears that federal courts would be swamped by cases if Congress gave citizens power to sue environmental polluters.

The Consumer Interests Foundation, a nonprofit research group, said only 50 suits were brought in the last two years in five of the six states which now have such laws. Information on the sixth state, Indiana, could not be obtained, it said.

Legislation pending in Congress, called the Environmental Protection Act of 1973, would permit a private citizen to sue other individuals, businesses or government agencies for impairing or degrading the environment. A plaintiff would have to show that he or she was "adversely affected" or able to "speak knowingly for the environmental values asserted in such a suit."

The foundation said it undertook the survey of state actions because the proposed federal law has been met with vigorous opposition from some lawmakers and judges who fear it might put an intolerable stress on an already overtaxed judicial system. The foundation said opponents appear to be echoing Chief Justice Warren E. Burger's warning in 1970 against "putting all the problems of pollution, of crowded cities, of consumer class actions and others in the federal courts."

The foundation is a research organization formed by Consumers' Union, the product testing and evaluation group which publishes "Consumer Reports" magazine.

Of the 50 suits brought in the six states, 33 were filed in Michigan where the first law involving citizen suits took effect in October, 1970. The rest were filed in Connecticut (17), Florida (3), Massachusetts (6), and Minnesota (7).

The foundation noted that federal law already provides for suits in some similar cases. It said the Clean Air Act of 1957, as amended in 1970, allows suits against violators of emission standards, but only three had been filed.

The National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 also provides for suits against projects which fail to consider their environmental impact, and 350 of those have been recorded.

Denver officer seeks sniper

Officers, snipers battle in Denver

DENVER (UPI) — Snipers firing from second story apartments Saturday sprayed bullets on police answering the call of an officer in trouble. The incident began when two officers, one of them a policeman, tried to make a disturbance arrest and the male officer was shot. One civilian was shot and killed during the earlier disturbance. Four police officers and three civilians were wounded. Eight others were injured in an explosion that ripped through one of the apartments during the pre-dawn battle.

Following the shootout, police discovered a large cache of weapons in one of the apartments. Thirty-seven persons were arrested after the disturbance in the predominantly Mexican-American east side of the city. Four of them were held for questioning in connection with the snipings and the cache of guns.

More than 30 high powered rifles, many with scopes, were recovered from the apartment, said Police Capt. Robert Shaughnessy. There also were snafed-off shotguns, many hand guns including .44-caliber magnums and hundreds of rounds of ammunition.

Police at the scene said they had no indication that the incident was racial in origin despite the presence of the militant "Crusade for Justice" headquarters.

It might have been an unfortunate incident brought about by unusual circumstances and a few isolated individuals," said City Councilman Elwin Caldwell. "It's too early to say there's been a breakdown."

The dead man was identified as Luis Martinez, 20, a member of the organization headed by Rudolph "Corky" Gonzales, also a La Raza Unida Party member. Martinez allegedly shot patrolman Steve Snyder as he tried to arrest another man and was shot by the critically wounded patrolman.

"I was here for most of it," said a resident who would not give his name. "I saw quite a bit of shooting. There were about 50 police cars and everybody was carrying automatic rifles."

The trouble started at about 1 a.m. when Snyder and his partner, Carol Hoag, answered a disturbance call. A crowd gathered and Snyder was shot.

Officers answering Officer Hoag's call for assistance were met with gunfire from the south end of the apartment. They returned fire and wounded one man later identified as a sniper.

An ambulance was fired on from the north end of the building a few minutes later. As police returned fire there was an explosion in one of the apartments. A man was arrested in that apartment, after he was found lying wounded on a shotgun.

A third volley sprayed police from across the street but no gunman was found.

Signup deadline measure rejected

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus Saturday vetoed the bill to close registrations nine days prior to elections on the basis the measure would make it more difficult for voters to get to the polls.

Andrus said the House bill takes away the opportunity to register for many who, because of harvest and work schedules, may be precluded from registering prior to the nine-day cutoff.

He said a spot check of several larger counties showed that thousands of registrations were made in the last few days before the registration deadline.

The governor said it is well-known that public interest in elections builds in the last few days before the election.

It is the duty of government to ease the path of the voter to the polling place, not to make it more difficult.

Contingency fund, city budget bills draw veto

BOISE (UPI) — A bill to establish a contingency fund and provide for appropriations from the fund was vetoed Saturday by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus.

The senate bill would have created a contingency fund of $5 million with $2.2 million from revenue sharing funds and $2.76 from the general fund.

In a message accompanying the veto, Andrus said there was a minor difference in revenue projections between the legislative and executive branches of government. By vetoing the bill, he said "we have not removed the availability of this money from legislative action."

He added it "simply remains in a free-balance status if the revenues accrue as projected. Should they not accrue and this bill were law, we would not be in a fiscally balanced situation."

The governor also exercised his veto power over a house bill that would have struck requirements for city ordinances appropriating funds to be filed with the Secretary of State.

He said the favorable features of the bill are far outweighed by a provision that departs from sound fiscal planning by permitting the opening and raising of a city budget practically at will.

He said present laws recognize that in cases of emergency budgets can be adjusted but the vetoed bill went "one step further" making the reopening and upward adjustment of budgets a matter of expediency when revenue windfalls occur.

It appears that this provision could preclude any hope of local level tax relief that might be expected from revenues coming from other than local sources," he said.

He said the inclusion of requirements which force city governments to comply with the provisions of the bill "amounts to an unneeded intrusion by the state into the affairs of local government and should not be allowed."

He also called penalties included for failure to comply with the bill's provisions "objectionable" and said they could lead to the disruption of the fiscal integrity of Idaho cities.

Documents reported missing

SHOSHONE — Lincoln County sheriff's officers are investigating the apparent disappearance of county records missing in the county assessor's office.

Lincoln County Assessor Sanford Connell said he reported the missing documents to Sheriff Bill Anderson earlier this month.

He said among the missing material was a sheet from the assessor's field book containing appraisal information and a card containing address information. The sheriff said the investigation is continuing.

Oil test proceeds at Parma

PARMA (UPI) — A Standard Oil drill used in a search for gas and oil near here has hit the 1,500 mark but still has more than 10,000 feet remaining.

The site was chosen by Standard last year after extensive surveys in the area located on property owned by the Highland Land and Livestock Co. six miles northeast of Parma.

Standard Oil official Jack Bird said Wednesday the operation is "looking real good."

For operating a motor vehicle in unsafe condition and with no valid safety sticker. The police report said the inside handles and the interior panel of the driver's door of the pickup were missing.

Damage to the front end of the pickup was estimated at $800. The truck is owned by William McClure, Twin Falls, who told police he had given Shelley permission to operate the vehicle at certain times.

Accident hurts two TF men

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls men were treated and released from Magic Valley Memorial Hospital late Friday night following an unusual accident on Locust Street South.

According to police department accident reports, Eugene W. Shelley, 26, Twin Falls was making a right hand turn from Osterloh Avenue on to Locust South about 11:30 p.m. Friday when the door on the driver's side of his pickup truck came open and Shelley fell into the street.

The pickup then veered off the right side of Locust Street, according to the report, and traveled about 150 feet before smashing into a tree in the yard at 657 Locust South.

Gail Wolf, 27, Twin Falls, a passenger in the pickup truck sustained minor injuries when the truck hit the tree. Shelley was given a citation

Students hold science fair

TWIN FALLS — Approximately 450 students at Robert Stuart Junior High School displayed their work in a science fair and industrial arts and crafts show Friday. Displays, set up in the school gymnasium, represented classwork for the school year, according to Keith Farnsworth, industrial arts instructor. Other advisors to the fair and display were teachers John Darrington, Herman Woebke, and Jack Allison.

Best of show in the science division was won by Gary Meier with his display on the Houle effect, the unusual property of rubber to convert heat energy to mechanical energy. Rick Sterling won best of show in the industrial arts division with his candle stand.

Runners up were Mike Messenger with a display on Fresh Water Fishing, fresh water lake, and Mike Osterhout who constructed a picnic table.

A photography display first place award was given to Dawn Wildman.

First place ribbons awarded in the science division were Teresa Tremblay, Hawaiian volcanoes; Timothy Baxter, fractional distillation of oil; Richard McClure, fundamentals of magnetism; Jeff Harting, measuring electrical energy; Kelly Hill, earthquakes; Curt Denn, bean blossom plants and fertilization.

Best of show

THIS CANDLE STAND made by Rick Sterling won best of show trophy at the industrial arts and crafts and science show Friday at Robert Stuart Junior High School.

400 apply for exams

TWIN FALLS — Over 400 applications have been received from residents of the Magic Valley for free screening examinations for head, neck and oral cancer at a special one-day clinic at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital on April 4.

According to James E. Rosenbaum, administrator, response to first Sunday's Times-News was so enthusiastic that no more applications can be accepted.

"We are very gratified by the interest shown by the public for this service," Rosenbaum said, "and are only sorry that the clinic will not be able to accommodate everyone who has applied."

"Since only a maximum of 325 persons can be examined during the clinic, a waiting list has been compiled of others who have applied," he said, "and these people will be notified if there are cancellations."

The project, which is being conducted as a demonstration by the Intermountain Regional Medical Program of Salt Lake City, with endorsement and participation of local medical and dental societies and the hospital, has been planned for a number of communities throughout the intermountain area to place emphasis on the need for early detection and treatment of cancer of the head, neck and mouth.

Europe this Summer!

(Why? Because for what it cost one person to jet Europe last Summer, two can jet this Summer!)

Last Summer it cost about $600 for a round-trip jet to Brussels.

That was out of New York.

This Summer you can jet to Brussels for about half that.

And that's out of Salt Lake!

That is also round-trip direct and coach class including meals. Now this offer is for air fare only... and we have 12 low priced optional land tours on top of that! But there's a catch—By law, you've gotta book 90 days in advance. So for an October jet you've gotta book by June and for an August jet you've gotta book by May and for a July jet you should be booking now. Quick! Call the travel expert below for your free color brochure with all the facts.

The Indians

"We are the original owners of this land," said Russell Means, a leader of AIM, the American Indian Movement, at the second battle of Wounded Knee, S.D. "For 400 years we have been trying to obtain justice from the white man," said one of the Indians demonstrating in front of the United Nations in New York.

man. What is true is simply that all of us, of whatever color or ancestral origin, are the common heirs of history, a history we had no part in making. Nothing that has gone before can be recalled or undone. If the past lies like a heavy burden, the only escape is by looking to the future.

Let the Indians speak to us as fellow Americans, which they are, with certain grievances and needs and dreams as Americans — not as aliens who would attempt to recapture something that is as irretrievably lost as the last, long-dead campfire on Manhattan.

Beware Of Success

Even after they win the battle for equality under the law, women's lib leaders may face a bigger battle in convincing women to take advantage of it. A study of student dropouts from the University of Texas, for example, found that while male students often leave college out of fear of failure, female students may drop out because of fear of success.

do men, according to a "manifesto" issued by Arthur R. Taylor, the new 37-year-old president of the Columbia Broadcasting System. But implementation of the policy requires "the fullest measure of attention and determination," he says.

Thus training programs to qualify for advancement are being made available within the company and outside it. A supervisory management course, which prepares employees for higher positions, is being expanded. A Career Inventory System will provide management with a record of every employee's qualifications, regardless of sex. Already, there are more than 1,100 women with the company in executive, professional, technical, sales and craft positions, out of a total of 2,100 employees. In 1964, women represented 10 per cent of the CBS professional staff. At the beginning of this year it was 23 per cent.

Malnutrition produces a retardation of mental and physical development of 10 to 25 per cent, thereby making it that much more difficult for a starving civilization to improve itself.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE:

Girls who try to be talking encyclopedias should remember that reference books are never taken out.

TO CHEW ON

Just to give you something to chew on this fine Sunday: The United States Department of Commerce reports Americans owed a total of $303.3 billion in mortgage debt on non-farm homes in 1971. A decade earlier the total debt was $134.4 billion. Some 61 per cent of homeowner properties — 20.1 million — were mortgaged. The average debt was $14,300 for a total of $227 billion. In 1960 about 57 per cent — or 15.8 million — homeowner properties were mortgaged for an outstanding debt of $117.2 billion, an average of $7,400 per property.

Of the 1971 total debt on homeowner properties, $223.8 billion was in first mortgages, averaging $11,000. The remaining $3.5 billion was in second and subsequent mortgages on one million homeowner properties. Now, as we hinted when we started this subject, you can lean back in your chair and read something else. Unless, of course, you still owe on your mortgage. In this case you can now realize you have a lot of company.

WASHINGTON — Demagoguery is an old and common practice in Congress, but the latest manifestation is in a class by itself. It graphically illustrates the shabby and hypocritical lengths to which certain virulent foes of the Vietnam conflict are willing to go to vent their ideological bias and vindictive opposition. On the basis of this dismal episode, they apparently draw the line at nothing — including the possible "hiding and abetting of the enemy." "Certainly, their antics seem strongly favored of that, as follows: At the height of the massive bombing of North Vietnam, which forced Hanoi to finally agree to a ceasefire, a clique of ultra-liberal House members sponsored a series of resolutions for the obvious purpose of thwarting the undermining US policy. Three of the resolutions directed the Secretary of Defense, and one directed the President to "furnish the House of Representatives within ten days after their adoption" highly secret military information whose disclosure unquestionably would be of inestimable value to Hanoi.

And here's the pay-off on this unctuous demagoguery: Weeks later, after the ceasefire was signed and publication of the data was of no consequence, not one of the sanctimoniously clamorous militants showed up at an Armed Services Committee hearing where a top Pentagon official produced the demanded data.

For more than an hour, Deputy Assistant Defense Secretary Dennis Doolin spread the details on the public record and answered fully the questions asked him by committee members. Then Rep. William Bray (Ind.), ranking Republican member and Silver Star-decorated World War II veteran, sharply spoke up:

"I am asking this question of the audience: Is Michael Harrington or any of the other sponsors of these resolutions in this room at this time? Evidently, they are not; no sponsor of these resolutions is in the room, and I call attention to that very revealing fact."

"As a conservative estimate," added Rep. Charles Gubser, R-Calif., "at $10 per manpower overhead and other costs, I would say this report we have just heard cost taxpayers about $10,000 — and not one of the sponsors of these resolutions demanding this information showed up to hear it. That tells a great deal about them and the real purpose of their scheme." The highly classified military information sought by the dove militants included: "Number of sorties flown by US military planes for bombing purposes over North Vietnam." "Tonnage of bombs and shells fired or dropped on North Vietnam." "Number and nomenclature of airplanes lost by the U.S. over North Vietnam or its territorial waters."

"Number of American men killed, wounded, captured and missing in action while participating in flights over North Vietnam." "Documents giving the best available estimates of casualties incurred by the North Vietnamese."

"Extent of damage to any and all facilities struck by bombs, including after action reports and such other data as is available to the Defense Department."

"Cost incurred by the United States as a result of all bombing and shelling carried on in and over North Vietnam during period December 17, 1972, through January 10, 1973."

Clearly, the purpose of this maneuver to obtain secret military intelligence was to use it to inflame US public sentiment to force abandonment of the massive bombing that brought the Communists to terms.

Ringleader of the leftist clique was Rep. Michael Harrington, 36-year-old radical Massachusetts Democrat, a highly vocal opponent of the Vietnam war, and inveterate carping critic of the military. A former member of the Armed Services Committee, he quit in frustration and shifted to the Foreign Affairs Committee — where he is faring no better.

ART BUCHWALD

FBI — Watergate

WASHINGTON — As a big fan of the FBI television show, I am waiting with bated breath for them to dramatize the role the FBI played in the Watergate bugging case. The script should go something like this:

Opening shot of Watergate. Voice-over: "In the early hours of June 17, 1972, five men broke into Democratic National Committee headquarters at the Watergate while two accomplices waited nervously across the street in the Howard Johnson Motel. All seven were arrested. The next morning at 8:30 Special Agent Lewis Erskine (played by Efrem Zimbalist Jr.) is called in by his superior, Arthur Ward. "Erskine, this is one of the toughest cases the FBI has ever had to work on. We have to find out who was behind the bugging of the Democratic National Committee headquarters at the Watergate. If these mad fiends are allowed to continue their wiretapping, it could destroy the United States of America forever."

"I'll get right on it." "We can't leave a stone unturned in rooting out these vicious criminal rats who would do anything to sabotage one of the major political parties in the country. Do you understand?" "We'll get them, sir."

ACT 2 Erskine and his assistant, Tom Colby, are questioning members of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President. A man is sitting there taking notes. "Who are you?" Erskine asks.

"I'm just sitting in to make sure they don't say anything that might reflect on the committee."

"Get out of here," Colby orders. The man answers, "I have this letter from the White House which says I can be present whenever one of our people is interrogated."

Erskine reads the letter. It's signed by Dwight Chapin, the President's appointment secretary. He turns to Colby. "Something is fishy here. We'd better talk to Chapin."

"You can't talk to Chapin unless John Dean, the President's legal counsel, is present," the man says. "What's Dean got to do with this?" "He's in charge of the President's investigation of the Watergate bugging." "Well, we'd better talk to Dean then. "You can't talk to Dean unless you get permission from H.R. Haldeman, the President's special assistant." "Then we'll talk to Haldeman." "You can't talk to Haldeman unless you speak to the acting director of the FBI, L. Patrick Gray."

"Wow," says Erskine, "this really is a tough case."

ACT 3 Erskine reports to his superior, Arthur Ward. "We think we have very interesting information. The Watergate case was part of a larger plan by the Committee for the Re-Election of the President to sabotage the Democrats. Hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash was raised by Maurice Stans, given to Hugh Sloan Jr., the treasurer, and dispensed through Herbert W. Kalmbach, the President's personal lawyer. The money was given to a Gordon Liddy and a Donald Segretti. The White House seems to be in this up to its ears.

"Good," says Ward. "Type up a copy of the report and send it to the White House immediately."

"But they're involved." "Exactly. And for that reason they should know what we've got on them."

"But we've never given our files to people involved in a crime before."

"Erskine, you've got a good future with the Bureau. Don't lose it by getting the acting director mad at you."

"I have to worry about my image. I want to speak to the acting director about this personally."

"You can't, Erskine." "Why not?"

"He's in Ohio making a nonpolitical speech for Mr. Nixon."

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Bell's Palsy

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the difference between Bell's palsy and tic douloureux? From what I read, the symptoms seem to be the same. — L.S.

Dear Doctor: My mother has Bell's palsy. Our doctor tells us that the only thing to do is keep warm, etc. We would like to know more about it. — M. B. Both ailments involve nerves in the face. "tic" involves the fifth cranial nerve; Bell's palsy the seventh or "facial" nerve. But the big difference so far as a patient is concerned is the pain. With "tic" this is extreme pain, which comes in periodic attacks.

With Bell's palsy, the problem is not pain, but rather paralysis of muscle in the face. This results in drooping of the eyelid and the corner of mouth. This droop is continuous, rather than coming in spasms, as does the pain of "tic."

"Tic" sometimes requires such drastic treatment as paralyzing or even cutting the affected nerve, although sometimes medication is sufficient. The pain is so sharp that the patient doesn't have to be argued into seeing a neurologist. Bell's palsy, on the other hand, doesn't cause the agony of "tic" and is more a problem of appearance than anything else. Saying that treatment is to "keep warm, etc." condenses too much into the "etc."

True, heat is important in permitting the paralyzed nerve to recover its normal function, but there are other important matters, depending on the particular case. Large doses of vitamin B are useful. Likewise it is important to maintain muscle tone. While the nerve is paralyzed, and without activity, muscles lose tone.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would tubal ligation in a woman of 40 automatically mean cessation of menstruation? Or symptoms of hormonal imbalance? Or neither? — Mrs. C. C.

Neither. But that does not rule out the chance that menopause (cessation of menstruation) might not, by coincidence, occur at the same time or shortly after the operation.

Iron Pants

Politicians and political pundits feed on confrontation. Hungry, they're foraging far afield.

But the predators can't get their teeth into Richard Nixon's iron pants.

Democrats on The Hill couldn't even find any newsworthy fault with this term's presidential appointees, confirmed each in turn without dissent.

Democrats tried to disagree with the President's curtailed budget — but the Muskies, Humphreys and Kennedys are finding it uncomfortable to urge spending which fellow Democrats Patman and Proxmire oppose.

So the statesmen and the scribes are unable to mount a charge that malleable, either.

The few who dared object to the terms of the Vietnamese cease-fire called Secretary of State William Rogers on the congressional carpet, hoping publicly to pin his handsome ear back.

Instead, and on nationwide TV, a long-dormant volcano erupted all over them. "You should be ashamed now to criticize the honorable peace for which we've all been praying and working!" he said.

And the planned partisan attack became a fiasco. "There's nothing dishonorable about partisan sparring; this weaknesses are exposed. But this President, unlike some predecessors, thrives on challenge, seems to enjoy it.

Congress has appropriated $14.7 billion which President Nixon says he is not going to spend.

Historically, members of Congress — both sides of the aisle — tax and spend because it's axiomatic that home folks on Election Day forget your deeds and remember your promises.

Through 1971 and 1972, less than 40 percent of the House and only 25 per cent of the Senate consistently resisted this red-link philosophy.

And most recent Presidents have gone along with it as the course of least resistance. Not this one.

The President considers his landslide of last year a mandate to hold spending and taxes down, and he aims to.

And in his favor, a new public enlightenment, much evident last November, is discrediting the old tax-and-spend political axiom.

Taxpayers voters are still the majority, and they have become aware that government has no money except theirs, that many desirable services some folks would like to have are not worth the cost plus "handling charges" it takes to pay for them.

BERRY'S WORLD

Next: Contraceptives At The Corner Grocery?

By O.A. (GUS) KELKER

Editor, Times-News

Depending on your age, social status, financial situation or whether you have your children raised, you could very well view today's discussion as knowledgeable or "X" rated.

So we will say right now that if things of a personal nature bother you — things like a discussion on having or not having children or dispensing birth control items nationwide or to anyone wanting them — then you had better stop right here and turn to another section of the newspaper.

But if you are not disturbed by all this talk — and action — on planned parenthood, on eliminating the possibility of unmarried teenage girls getting pregnant, on cutting the earth's population down to a zero growth rate and on making contraceptives as easy to buy as are cookies at a supermarket, then read on.

Eliminating the need of having children because you are "caught" is not anything new. The difference is that in earlier days such things were not discussed in public and, in fact, many people never heard of the idea. Today, all that is different. Publicity campaigns are underway full force throughout the world as the drive to get people to accept this concept of life gets really serious.

Someone — or lots of someones — have figured out that if population continues to gain there will come a day when everybody cannot be fed. This, of course, would be terrible. This theory is now being driven home in earnest and it is gaining favor. Why? A publicity drive, that's why.

One of the organizations backing the campaign is the International Planned Parenthood Federation which calls for — among other things — commercial distribution of contraceptives.

No longer — they hope — will it be necessary to go to the doctor to get the pill. You will be able to pick it up at the grocery store.

No longer will the subject be hush-hush. It will be right out in the open just like gum and candy bars and if you have the money you will be able to buy these contraceptives as easy as the gum or the candy. Age wouldn't really have much to do about it. It would be the desire for the product.

Those who would change the thoughts of the multitudes — at least some of them — contend that to be against distribution of contraceptives worldwide, and on an easy-to-get basis at retail outlets is to be living in the Victorian age. There is an increasing awareness, they say, that the non-clinical channels of contraceptive distribution can and should be expanded in nearly all countries. This is especially so in the developing countries.

There's no real reason for having to go through a medical clinic to planning association is working with an organization that sells condoms and other non-prescription contraceptives through the mail, through retail outlets like supermarkets and from own "Birds and Bees" shops. By ingenious advertising they have increased the sale of condoms and, besides preventing births, they have probably played a major role in the decline of venereal disease that has taken place in Sweden. June, 1972, for example, was "Condom month" in Sweden and the fact was widely advertised with large newspaper advertisements.

Hard to believe, isn't it?

In other countries armies of uniformed sales ladies sell condoms door to door to housewives. The manufacturers have exploited opportunities such as those by advances in packaging. There are colored condoms, condoms packaged to look like a cigarette package, boxes of candy or bottles of perfume. To unwrap a Japanese condom — said an advertisement — is an aesthetic experience in itself.

In India commercial distribution is underway, aided by many of the large and wealthy manufacturing and business concerns. In any railway station in India — or at any airport — you can purchase condoms right beside the ticket counter.

Officials of the US Agency for International Development report that oral contraceptives have amounted to slightly over half of all the contraceptive supplies from AID. The US Agency officials say that unfavorable publicity in 1968 and 1970 dampened the popularity of the pill, but only temporarily. While the evidence indicates that pills do occasionally cause thromboembolism or blood clots they say — new formulations with a reduced estrogen component have probably reduced this already small hazard which does not appear to have significant danger in tropical countries. Furthermore, evidence has been accumulating which suggests that the present oral contraceptives actually exert a protective effect against cancer and other tumors of the breast and reproductive organs.

An IPPF report they share the conviction which has been expressed in United Nations resolutions that family planning is a basic human right and that "the means to effectively practice family planning" should be made available to all individuals. They point to the open advertising of condoms in Sweden.

This idea of fertility control — of population control — is a big and broad subject. It's really more than meets the eye. For instance, this quote from the United Nations Industrial Development Organization:

"Industry and commerce are powerful forces which should not be overlooked in this effort. Since population increases need to be contained within reasonable limits and within reasonable boundaries in order to permit economic and industrial development in all fields to proceed and advance, industrial and commercial sectors should enter into an alliance with family planning and direct their skills where needed towards the goal of fertility control."

William H. Draper, Jr., chairman of the Victor-Bostrom Fund Committee for the IPPF puts it this way:

(1) I suggest that governments remove all import restrictions and all duties on contraceptives of all kinds.

(2) I suggest that governments remove all requirements for medical prescriptions for recognized brands of birth control pills.

(3) I suggest the International Planned Parenthood Federation offer to supply (free with transportation paid, recognized brands of birth control pills, foams and condoms to hospitals, health clinics, family planning associations and all other similar organizations in the private sector throughout the world, on the understanding that all such supplies would be distributed to the ultimate user, free or at some mutually acceptable price within the ability of the user to pay.

(4) I suggest that the United Nations Fund for Population Activities offer to supply recognized brands of birth control pills, foams and condoms free to governments in developing countries throughout the world, with a similar understanding as expressed in suggestion three.

Backers of these plans in the United States include people whose names are household words. Such as Marriner S. Eccles, Milton S. Eisenhower, J. Kenneth Galbraith, Lewis L. Strauss and Mrs. Albert D. Lasker — all among council members of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, Inc.

"So there is no doubt you will hear more — instead of less — about these proposals.

It might be that some are getting all "shook up" for nothing — because changes do come and many are not easy for one generation to take. Tomorrow's generations probably will — like they say — go to the supermarket instead of the medical clinic.

Comment

obtain* these things, they say. Doctors and nurses are expensive. The major costs of all clinical programs are for personnel, not for supplies. In some of the medically based U.S. domestic family planning programs, the cost of recruiting and looking after one acceptor for one year ($50 to $75) exceeds the entire annual per capita income of the poorer countries.

The commercial distribution of contraceptives is not only cheap, it is also convenient. Many communities the program backers say — appear to want to get their contraceptives the same way they get their vegetables — at the corner market.

Will it work? The IPPF people say that the Swedish family

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK

Reagan The Boy Has Disappeared

RALEIGH, N. C. — When Gov. Ronald Reagan of California swept into Washington for the recent governors' conference and unfurled plans for wholesale governmental retrenchment, a significant dissent came from boyish, first-year Gov. James E. Holshouser of North Carolina.

Reagan, preparing a last try for the presidency, urged his Republican colleagues not to pick up federal social services programs being dropped by President Nixon but to let them die, thereby rewarding taxpayers. Holshouser quietly disagreed, arguing a golden opportunity now exists for state government to assume new responsibility by taking over the federal programs.

In this — a other matters, Holshouser is a conspicuous upsterner swimmer in the new Republican South. While Southern Republicanism glistens with success by moving ever further to the right, Holshouser holds to the principle the party can triumph here with progressive policies and a broader political base encompassing both left and right. Considering the Republican reliance on the South for future presidential victories, the outcome of his fight for a moderate, non-racist party has important national implications.

These two faces of Southern Republicanism surfaced in North Carolina last fall. While Holshouser was scoring his stunning upset, the state was electing to the U.S. Senate a right-wing television commentator named Jesse Helms — an archetype of emergent Southern Republicanism so warmly embraced at the White House.

Typically, ex-Dixiecrat Holms in a recent convert to the Republican party and a rigid adherent of William F. Buckley. He was triumphant last November in the rural eastern counties where Gov. George E. Wallace built a landslide in the Democratic Presidential primary. The Helms constituency carries an unmistakable whiff of racism.

Holshouser, legate of a much older tradition, inherited his Republicanism this father was a U.S. attorney in Eisenhower days. At 38, he is a veteran ex-state legislator and long-time state party chairman. His election last November was won with a constituency spectacularly different from Helms' youth, school teachers, state civil servants, some labor leaders, even a smattering of blacks — with a surprising strength in the liberal Piedmont area.

Even so, many Democrats figured he would demand reduced taxes and curtailed spending from the governor's mansion. Instead, he immediately asked that the line be held on taxes temporarily. Although he is expected to yield to a heavily lobbied repeal of the soft drink tax, he is embarking on no Reaganite dismantling of governmental services.

Moreover, he is consciously appointing blacks and women to high state positions, has embarked on a massive reform of the state highway system and is refusing to purge the Civil Service for deserving Republican partisans. One result: muted praise from North Carolina liberal Democrats such as former Gov. Terry Sanford, now president of Duke University. Even now, however, there is sniping from the Republican right. Backstage tension between Holshouser and state Republican chairman Frank House is a graduate of right-wing Young Republican politics) is intensely and personally bitter. "Rouse has made life miserable," an intimate of the governor confides, and Holshouser privately read the riot act to this chairman last week.

Superficially at issue is Rouse's heavyhanded pursuit of state jobs for Republicans. In fact, however, House is close to James Gardner, leader of the party's right-wing whom Holshouser defeated in the 1972 primary. Rouse survived Holshouser's ouster attempt after the primary and, as viewed by the governor's inner circle, now represents the Gardner clique's continued opposition.

Elsewhere in the South, the Holshousers are losing to the Gardners. In neighboring Virginia, progressive Republican Gov. Linwood Holton leaves office next year with the party controlled by conservatives and converted byrd Democrats. Whereas Holton was crippled by supporting school busing, Holshouser is safely on record against it in a state where fierce opposition has changed to "smoldering resignation." Nevertheless, the leftward tilt of the Democratic party nationally is forcing rank-and-file conservatives into the Republican party, stacking the party deck against Holshouser's policies.

Holshouser wants the party to welcome Wallaceite Democrats but seeks center and left-of-center gains to maintain a balance. If this cannot be done in historically moderate North Carolina, it can be done nowhere in the South. And if it cannot be done in the region where Republican growth is most dynamic, the party could be pulled disastrously far to the right at a moment of unique opportunity.

chatter festivals. The amount of time, energy and money wasted on these affairs has to be colossal. Think of the comings and goings, the gallons of fuel consumed by the those guzzling black dinosaurs which transport the diplomats, the voling of booze downed in the name of preserving and extending the amenities.

Anyone who has ever attended one of these things either here or abroad knows, too, that the food tables always have a lush look. If you happen to be a fairly well-off middle class citizen given to having an occasional party at home, you know well what that costs. Imagine the price tag on a typical, large-scale diplomatic blow-out.

All this may sound a little like the 1950-style assaults, mostly by political conservatives, against the "striped-pants boys" in the State Department and the Foreign Service. The aim here, however, is not supercilious sniping at the irrelevant frivolities of the diplomatic arena. It is to suggest that the party-going phenomenon is symptomatic of deeper flaws in the ever-expanding field of diplomatic interchange.

For instance, our basic military alliance with Western Europe, NATO, has grown in two decades into a pretty luxurious bureaucracy. In the relatively new NATO headquarters in Brussels, we have a huge wing. Altogether, there are countless conference rooms, committees galore, soldiers and diplomats growl and comfortable in what seems the near-permanency of their jobs.

Diplomatic Party—A Rat Race

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The people I know in the US diplomatic service or in consistent contact with it are generally appalled, annoyed and bored stiff with the amount of party-giving and party-going that constitutes a veritable hallmark of life in the realms of diplomacy.

I can't speak for our ambassadors, career or otherwise. My links are with middle-echelon types — economic and political attaches, consuls, and the like.

Though their competence and hence their usefulness to this country abroad varies widely, they have passed severe tests and done much studying to get where they are. Mostly they are highly dedicated, serious-minded people who want to work.

It is no exaggeration to say that some are literally exhausted, in spirit if not in body, by the endless round of parties which are a built-in feature of their every foreign assignment — with some exceptions in certain Soviet-dominated Iron Curtain countries.

How long this furious party pace has been a custom I have no idea. I only know that I've been listening to complaints about it from people in the US Foreign Service for nearly two decades.

Obviously the blame for this phenomenon can't be laid principally at America's door. You can safely generalize and say that Europeans, particularly, are traditionally great lovers of ceremony. As Arthur Lewis Mumford long ago pointed out in his classic study of the development of

Where storms batter Dixie

Cold adds misery to Dixie's floods

By United Press International
Freezing temperatures and snow flurries added to the misery Saturday of thousands left homeless by tornadoes and the worst flooding to hit parts of the South in nearly a half century.

The Tennessee River fed by up to 11 inches of rain in some sectors rose to its highest levels in 40 years and drove an estimated 1,500 persons from their homes in North Alabama. Tennessee reported at least 2,000 other families displaced by flood waters, and Mississippi Gov. Bill Waller said damage in his state was being counted in the millions, with more than 1,600 homeless.

At least five deaths have been attributed to the flooding, but it may be weeks, and even months, before the full toll in terms of human life and property damage will be known.

Americans setting new smoking mark

Cambodia palace raid kills 20

PHNOM-PENH, Cambodia (UPI) — A small, propeller-driven fighter plane dropped two 250-pound bombs inside the grounds of the Cambodia presidential palace Saturday, killing and injuring dozens of persons in an early morning raid.

President Lon Nol declared a state of emergency. This attack was apparently the first step in turning control of Cambodia over to the military.

At least 20 persons were killed and 35 injured in the attack. The toll was expected to rise since many of the injured were seriously hurt.

The bombs hit a military barracks of the palace guard a few yards away from Lon Nol's residence inside the Chamcar Mon palace grounds, Lon Nol was not injured, the government said.

The Cambodian president, who took power on March 18, 1970, blamed the attack on Capt. So Potra, son-in-law of exiled leader Prince Norodom Sihanouk, who Lon Nol deposed.

Lon Nol said on national radio address after the attack that So Potra hijacked the American-built fighter for the raid. He called the attack a "clear attempt to kill me personally."

Lon Nol said he did not obtain the results the enemies expected. He said So Potra had slipped into Phnom Penh's Poehonting airport and hijacked the Cambodia Air Force T28.

The raid sent black smoke pluming over the capital as screaming soldiers, women and children, many of them wounded, fled into the streets. There was chaos in surrounding streets as firemen and military police rushed to the palace.

After the state of emergency was declared, Western diplomats said Lon Nol was free to turn over full control of the government to the military.

The president also suspended articles of the constitution providing for freedom of speech, freedom of association and freedom of the press, and inviolability of domicile.

The American embassy was cordoned off and put on full alert as the pilot of the plane circled Phnom Penh for an hour.

The pilot flew north and apparently escaped to rubber plantation country under Communist control. The Cambodian Air Force at first said it forced the pilot to land and arrested him. Later, the government said he had escaped. A third bomb was reported to have been dropped north of the city in a river.

The 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew that has been in effect for a year was extended to begin at 7 p.m.

Information Minister Kenn Reth said neither Lon Nol nor any members of the government were injured. "This was not a separate action," Kenn Reth said. "It was part of a subversive plan which the government cannot reveal at this time."

He charged that So Potra, third husband of Sihanouk's ballerina daughter Botum Bopha, was in league with a group of traitors and enemies who openly want to destroy the Cambodian Republic by creating turmoil in Phnom Penh.

Kennedy scores data denial

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy today said President Nixon's refusal to let a White House aide testify at a Senate hearing was "a travesty of the First Amendment and basic justice."

"He (Nixon) ought to allow John Dean to go before the Senate to answer all the serious questions raised about his handling of confidential FBI reports in the Watergate," Kennedy said.

The Massachusetts Democrat spoke before 3,200 high school editors attending the annual convention of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association meeting at the Americana Hotel.

Nixon, invoking executive privilege, announced earlier this week that he would not allow White House Counsel Dean to appear before the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings on the nomination of L. Patrick Gray as FBI director.

Executive privilege protects White House staff from being forced to testify before Congress.

Dean conducted the White House investigation of the bugging of the Watergate offices of the Democratic National Committee. Several officials of Nixon's re-election campaign were implicated in the case.

Measure vetoed

BOISE (UPI) — A bill which would have made the state director of vocational education the executive officer of the State Board of Vocational Education was vetoed Saturday by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus because he said it preempted other legislation.

Andrus said another house bill established a special legislative commission to study state government and make recommendations for reorganization.

He said the bill he vetoed "preempts the work of the legislative commission in that it proposes a major organizational change in the Office of Education."

In addition, he said, the bill "would further fragment services to people by legislating division between the State Department of Education and the Department of Vocational Education."

Schmitz woos GOP support

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — American Party presidential candidate John Schmitz made a surprise visit Saturday to the Young Republican convention here.

Schmitz, who appeared on the ballot with Thomas J. Anderson in Idaho's general election in November, was invited to meet informally with the delegates and told them that although he was an independent he was "woolable" by the Republican Party.

The weather in southeast Idaho has limited the number of flights in and out of the city and some delegates and speakers who planned to attend the convention could not get there.

Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa had to cancel his scheduled appearance Saturday afternoon.

Delegates to the convention passed resolutions recommending continued trade with Red China and no more than America's share for support of the United Nations.

Filipino rebellion crushed

MANILA (UPI) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos visited trouble spots in the southern Philippines Saturday and reported that government forces had crushed Moslem-led Muslim secessionists.

A government announcement said the president visited four provinces in the Mindanao-Sulu region, home of the 3.5 million Filipino Moslems, about 500 miles south of Manila.

"Major fighting in Cotabato province alone since Feb. 26 has resulted in the deaths of 176 Moslem insurgents, 25 government troops and 27 civilians."

It was one of the president's rare out-of-town trips since he proclaimed martial law last Sept. 23 and his second to the south since December when violence flared in the area.

Marcos toured areas where troops had repulsed insurgents in attacks on government outposts during the past few days, the government said.

Evangelist hits racism

DURBAN, South Africa (UPI) — A multiracial crowd of 50,000 persons packed the new Kingsmead cricket stadium to overflow Saturday for American evangelist Billy Graham's first religious rally in South Africa.

Usual race-segregation regulations were lifted for the rally to permit whites and blacks to sit together — a South African concession to Graham's insistence he would speak only to integrated audiences.

Graham told the crowd his first crusade in South Africa is one of the highlights of his career. He said it is his hope that "hearts and minds and relationships" will be changed in the country as a result of it.

He made no specific mention of South Africa's racial policy. He said the question was not just a South African affair but was a problem throughout the world, and not least in America.

Church proposes geothermal search

WASHINGTON, D. C. — US Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Friday he will sponsor legislation to authorize a large scale federal and private investigation of developing Idaho's geothermal resources.

The geothermal research is part of a coordinated federal effort to develop new energy resources which would be authorized under the proposed legislation announced today by Church, Senate Interior Committee Chairman Henry Jackson of Washington and other senators.

"The western states," said Church, "have the geothermal resources to provide a substantial portion of future electrical energy demands. It has been estimated nearly 400,000 megawatts of electrical generating capacity based upon geothermal energy could be installed in the United States by the year 2000 if an active research and development effort were initiated."

This amount, the Idaho senator said, equals the nation's present installed generating capacity of all types.

Of all the areas suitable for geothermal energy production, Idaho has one of the largest potential geothermal fields, he said.

"The Snake River Plain is a recent volcanic area. Geothermal springs exist at many points. Very little active field exploration has been done," Church said. "But the evidence indicates there are hot rock formations close to the surface."

"Coupled with the water which is available in the Snake Plain aquifer, the heat energy from these formations would provide a major source of renewable, environmentally desirable electric energy for the Pacific northwest."

So far, said the senator, federal support to "unlock the geothermal potential in the western United States has been minimal."

The legislation sponsored by Church would establish a geothermal energy corporation. The corporation would provide up to 80 per cent federal financing for a joint federal-industry effort which would culminate full scale commercial-size geothermal facilities to produce electricity.

"The federal assistance," said Church, "would be adequate to overcome the risk of investment in the venture but the industrial partners would have a real voice in management commensurate with their financial participation."

Prison site bids slated

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Public works director Max Boesiger says more than $2.5 million in construction projects for the new penitentiary site south of Boise will be put under contract by June.

Bids will be opened April 12 for a new clinic and administration building.

Boesiger said bids on another $1.5 million worth of projects—a multi-purpose and industries building—will be opened before or during June.

Lenaghan wins PUC nomination

(Continued from p. 1) Interviewed on "Viewpoint," a television program to be broadcast at 11:30 a.m. today — Andrus said, "Here's a man who took seven or eight divisions of government; put them together, decreased the number of employees from 180 to, let's say 120, increased productivity and decreased cost."

He admitted Lenaghan is a "controversial figure." But he said he had to be "because you've got to have someone that's fair, honest and tough. That man fits that description and he's done an outstanding job there," Andrus said.

Lenaghan will replace J. Burns Beal, a Republican on the commission. The appointment will change the political makeup of the body to two Democrats and one Republican. There are reports that Andrus will appoint Beal elsewhere in state government.

Andrus said he has not decided who to put in charge of administrative services when Lenaghan leaves. He said he is looking at "several people with existing government."

"I'm not going to bring somebody in from outside," he said. "We'll move somebody up into that spot."

Meantime, Andrus said he will name State Aeronautics Director Darrell Manning to the government reorganization commission. He said any input from his administration will be channeled through Manning.

Under the law creating the commission, Andrus appoints two of the 14 members and the legislative leaders name the others. Andrus said his other appointee will be taken from the "private sector" but that he has not yet decided who that will be.

Manning has served in both houses of the legislature and is a former minority leader of the house of representatives. Andrus said the highway department cannot repair the road atop the American Falls Dam without additional money. He called it "the coward's way out" for the legislature to refuse to appropriate a requested $600,000 for the job and then pass a concurrent resolution.

Safety funds OK'd

BOISE (UPI) — In an unprecedented move, the Idaho Traffic Safety Commission has voted to furnish traffic safety funds to continue the Department of Law Enforcement's automation of records.

The move came Friday after the just-ended session of the Idaho Legislature failed to appropriate funds to continue the conversion of Idaho Driver License information to an automated system.

Members based their decision on the need of the court to receive accurate driver license background information as quickly as possible and the need for statistics available from an automated system.

Andrus vetoes stream guards

(Continued from p. 1) "It is a radical change in policy," the governor said. "The intent of the existing law, passed in 1971, is the protection of the streams and their environments, recognizing that they are a valuable public resource. This was a milestone in recognizing values of a majority of Idaho people."

There were a half-dozen bills introduced during the just-ended session of the legislature dealing with changes in the protection act.

One of the major complaints of the law is that people have to wait too long to get a permit to alter a stream channel. One of the measures introduced would have repealed the act outright.

"I am firmly convinced that the state's basic policy should be the protection of streams, and therefore the existing law is clearly better," Andrus said. He said the bill eliminated the language saying that streams and their environments should be protected.

He said in terms of philosophy, the bill was "a shortsighted attempt to upset the delicate balance between reasonable environmental protection and reasonable economic development."

The amendments would have lowered the time limit required to get a permit for alteration and would have separated lakes from stream channels.

Although the governor vetoed the "Lake Bill," he said there is merit in the view reflected by the legislature that jurisdiction over lakes should be located in a single agency.

"Presently, there is overlapping jurisdiction, since the state land board has constitutional and statutory authority over navigable lakes in Idaho, while the department of water administration exercises jurisdiction over lakes by virtue of the stream channel protection act," the governor said.

"I intend to urge the board to consider prompt adoption of rules and regulations and minimum standards concerning alterations of navigable lakes," the governor said.

During the session the house and senate resource committees appointed a special subcommittee to study the problems and the merits of the act. Many called the final bill a compromise between environmentalists and water users.

Electric suppliers nationwide join forces for research and development

A positive approach to the ENERGY CRISIS

Our nation is confronted with a serious energy crisis. Already causing grave problems in some areas, shortages of gas, oil and electricity are a continuing threat to many utilities and their customers. Since adequate energy supplies are critical to the economy as well as to our quality of life, the need to find substantial new sources of energy is urgent.

It's no time for halfway measures, and the task is far too big for any one company to undertake by itself. To duplicate efforts would be unpardonably wasteful. Recognizing this, the Edison Electric Institute has initiated an industry-wide research and development program. Public power suppliers, rural electrification and federal power interests have been invited to participate in the planning and funding.

As a first step, the thermal efficiency of nuclear reactors must be increased materially by developing the fast breeder reactor. To accomplish this, a demonstrator fast breeder is to be built near Oak Ridge, Tennessee, at an estimated cost of $700 million. With the project just getting under way, already ninety-eight investor-owned companies have pledged $215 million toward the cost.

Goals and priorities have been established for additional projects to explore potential energy sources. Some $61 million has been committed to general research in 1973. Total research and development costs are anticipated to exceed a billion dollars annually for the balance of this century.

Recognizing this constructive, industry-wide effort as a positive approach to the nation's energy crisis, Idaho Power Company commits its wholehearted support to the new research and development program.

While participating in longer-range, nationwide research and development, we are proceeding on schedule with the development of generating and transmission facilities which, barring unforeseen delays beyond our control, should assure our customers of an adequate supply of electric energy in the years ahead.

By LARRY HINSON

A few months ago, a fellow golfer was watching me putt when he suddenly asked, "What's wrong with your left arm, Larry?" It looks like compared to your right."

I looked up and told him exactly what was wrong with my arm and then I stopped. Funny, I thought, just a few years before if somebody had asked me a question like that it would have made me cry.

I guess it really began when I was a kid of five back in Candler, N. C. One night in bed I began to sweat. I kicked my blanket off and asked my mother for a glass of water. Then she noticed something. My left arm wouldn't move for the glass.

Mother, being a registered nurse, knew something was wrong. Mother and daddy got dressed and took me to the family doctor and later the hospital. I remember everyone telling me later that it was polio I had.

Mother refused to let polio ruin my life. Every night she'd sit on my bed and before I went to sleep she'd apply hot towels and massage my arm. She'd rub and rub, trying to put life back into the muscles. And, every night, while she massaged, she'd say softly over and over, "Jesus has the power to make you strong."

When I got to be 6½, all the rubbing in the world seemed to go down the drain. I was on our grade school playground when I tripped and fell. I landed smack on my left arm. I had broken my arm — the one with polio. Six weeks later I broke the same arm again.

The breaks were bad ones, causing the arm to wither badly. In school I took to wearing long sleeve shirts to conceal the arm, even in the hottest weather.

I got pretty good at camouflaging the arm until one day in high school in Douglas, Ga., when I was trying out for the basketball team. Instead of using my left hand for a certain shot — the natural thing to do — I used my right. I made the shot and, pleased, trotted back to the end of the court. Then, I heard a voice boom out, "Hey, Hinson," it went, "why don't you take that shriveled old left arm out of your pocket and start using it."

The gym went silent. My eyes watery and my heart pounding, I looked over and saw it was the coach. I felt the foot fall.

As I walked home that night after practice, I was still shuddering and wondering why the coach would do that to me. But, then I knew why he did it. I was still hiding.

God had given me two arms and yet I was only using one and half. I was at a loss as to what to do. Then, for some reason that I can't explain, those soft words of mother's came to me, "Jesus has the power to make you strong."

I repeated those words that I had since just pushed aside. I knew, like mother said, that power could be mine and I felt that to get it, I would have to stop being afraid and start doing something with the left club that day.

By the time summer came I had become a fanatic about golf. I would hit the Douglas course at sunrise and play late into the evening, sometimes even play by starlight. And, slowly, ever so slowly, my scores began to drop. The better my game got, the more my confidence seemed to rise. Short sleeve shirts had now become a part of my wardrobe.

When I began to shoot in the 60's regularly, I received a golf scholarship to East Tennessee State University. It was after I won a few college titles that someone suggested I think about becoming a touring professional.

No way, I thought. That would never happen to me.

I went back to East Tennessee and worked hard on my game. I played every kind of shot imaginable until my left arm throbbled. But it was a new kind of throbbing. A kind of swelling with pride.

When I did get a chance to join the tour, it wasn't easygoing at first. Like many rookies I flopped in my first few tournaments. Then, in the spring of 1969, I came into New Orleans feeling stronger than ever.

My drives were soaring and putts seemed to fall right in for me there. It was a great feeling, but it was more than winning the New Orleans Open. I had whipped my self-consciousness about an arm that I had once thought I would never be able to use.

I stopped worrying about my arm's size. It's kind of odd, but that arm has given me a lot of things: a golfing ability, confidence, self-respect and, most of all, a renewed faith in Christian power that ended my embarrassment.

arm. Digging up courage, I asked God to show me how to use it as much as my right one.

One day that year I was heading home from high school, my left arm tucked neatly in my jacket, when some friends asked me to join them for golf.

At the Douglas Golf and Country Club I was given some clubs which felt strange in my hands. I set a ball down in a tee and went to swing. The club flew out of my arm. My left arm was so weak and unused that I hadn't been able to hold on.

The next morning my left arm ached so much I could hardly raise it. I don't know why, but I decided to go back to

Linda Merry, DVM

Question: Our dog, a year old toy poodle, has one of the most horrible habits. What she does is she gets into the cat's litter box and picks up pieces of waste. She knows this is wrong (I think), because on the few occasions that she did it while I was around she was punished.

So, now she only does this ugly thing when we aren't home, usually immediately after we leave. She is wellfed so I can't imagine why she does this unless it's to gain attention.

Answer: That's kind of a distasteful way to gain attention. In medical terms your dog's "habit" is called coprophagy. Eating their own or another animal's feces is not really a habit or perversion as you may think. More often it is a dietary and hormonal deficiency that can be helped.

The dog has come a long way from the primarily meat diet he hunted for himself to the mainly grain diet his master pours out of a sauk.

Unfortunately his digestive system hasn't come as far, so dogs often suffer from carbohydrate digestive disturbances. Specifically, an amylase deficiency is usually at the base of coprophagy.

Amylase is produced primarily by the pancreas and after doing its work on carbohydrates passes out of the body, unchanged in form. Thus, the body has to continuously produce this enzyme to prevent the lack that leads to coprophagy.

Many dogs also suffer from hormone imbalances that give proteolytic and amylolytic enzyme lacks a push in the wrong direction. When you dog eats feces she is instinctively trying to conserve the amylase and enzymes she lacks.

Your poodle should make a trip to her veterinarian for pancreatic enzyme tests and a hormone balance check. From there she may find herself on a zippy new diet of papain (derived from the famous old pawpaw), squash or pumpkin, yeast derivatives, B vitamins, and raw liver, heart, lightly salted.

All of these foods are high in proteolytic enzymes to help replace her deficiencies.

For dogs eating their own stool, there is a product which can be added to the food. It gives the stool such an unpleasant taste that the dog will even disobey his instincts and leave it alone.

But it works only for the dog's own feces and it doesn't solve the deficiency that started the whole problem in the first place. After all, the dog is not deprived, merely deprived of some essential enzymes!

New envoy has 'stature'

By United Press International
 At the age of 75, David K.E. Bruce will assume the biggest assignment of a long and distinguished diplomatic career—that of the first American envoy to China.

President Nixon announced the appointment of the silver-haired native of Maryland Thursday. Nixon said he called Bruce from retirement to assume the task of further improving Sino-American relations because Bruce is a man of "great stature" and "great experience."

Bruce will run the American "mission" office in Peking. The White House said an advance team of about five persons would go to the Chinese capital about April 1 to make arrangements for the opening of the new mission.

Bruce is the only American to have served as ambassador to the three major powers of Western Europe—France, West Germany and Britain. He also served as Nixon's chief negotiator at the Paris talks on Vietnam.

In a diplomatic career that goes back to 1926, Bruce has proved himself to be a diplomat of the old school.

He defined his role in a 1961 magazine article: "The dictioary definition of diplomacy is the simplest and most accurate of all: Diplomacy is the management of international relations by negotiation. It is not a system of moral philosophy. It is rather the application of intelligence and tact to the conduct of official relations between the governments of independent states."

Bruce was born in Baltimore Feb. 12, 1898. His father was a U.S. senator from Maryland from 1923 to 1929. Bruce attended Princeton, the University of Virginia Law School and the University of Maryland Law School. He served in both the Maryland House of Delegates and the Virginia House of Delegates before joining the diplomatic corps.

His career also has seen him serve as undersecretary of state, assistant secretary of commerce, special U.S. observer at the European Defense Community and U.S. adviser to the European High Authority for Coal and Steel. He was a colonel in the Office of Strategic Services (OSS) during World War II.

Nixon has known Bruce since his days as vice president.

"When I look back over his (Bruce's) service," Nixon once said, "I can certainly subscribe to the fact that of all those we could describe as giants, he rates very, very high."

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth II opened a new London Bridge Friday to replace the one now in the Arizona desert. She said the new one "shows no sign of falling down."

"I have seen it from the best vantage point, the water," the Queen said of the new $12.75 million bridge. "I am glad to report that it shows no sign of falling down."

Behind the light-hearted occasion and the glitter of resplendent medieval ceremony lay a serious menace. Only eight days after two bomb attacks ripped her capital, the Queen was as heavily guarded as the any time in her reign.

Police sharpshooters hid on rooftops. Armed Scotland Yard detectives mingled with thousands of persons at the ceremony on the crisp, graceful new bridge.

Before the Queen wore pikemen and musketeers in medieval plate armor. Overhead were two police helicopters. "Recreators" from the Tower of London attired in the 16th-century scarlet uniforms with gold-lined the railings of her boat as she cruised down the Thames. More functional police boats surrounded it.

The Queen showed no awareness of the extraordinary precautions. After declaring the bridge open and unveiling a plaque—there was no ribbon to cut—she walked among her subjects for most of the bridge's length.

Clouds today but clearing Monday

Twin Falls, northside, Burley-Rupert area: Periods of light snow and gusty westerly winds. Cloudy through Sunday. Fair tonight and Monday. Not so cold Monday. Lows tonight 22 to 32. Highs today 40 and 45 to 55 Monday. Probability of precipitation 20 per cent today, 10 per cent tonight.

Camas Prairie, Halley and lower Wood River Valley: Periods of light snow this afternoon. Partly cloudy through Monday. Colder tonight. Lows tonight 5 to 15. Highs both days 32 to 42.

Synopsis: A Pacific weather front bringing light snow showers to southwestern valleys Saturday has now progressed into the southeastern sections of Idaho.

As the front passes off of southern Idaho, the rain will continue to snow in the eastern valleys. Precipitation amounts were light in central and western valleys. Pocatello received .18 inch of rain.

Another frontal system in the eastern Pacific will trail through the Gem State Sunday. This weather front is weak and only a few showers will be observed over the mountains. Generally fair conditions will return Monday as high pressure returns to the Pacific Northwest.

Daytime temperatures will be cool Sunday and begin to rebound Monday. Highs in the 40s Sunday and 45 to 55 Monday in southwest Idaho. Overnight lows in the 20s.

Ellsberg defense gets big setback

AIRMAN STANGER assigned

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The defense for Daniel Ellsberg at the Pentagon Papers trial Friday was barred from challenging the classification of the documents with arguments they were not really "top secret" and should not have been marked so.

The ruling by U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne was a setback to a major proposed line of defense strategy and could shorten the trial.

Ellsberg's lawyers called William G. Florence, a veteran of classification procedures in the U.S. Air Force, and started to ask his opinion as to whether the 18 volumes were properly classified "top secret."

All 18 were marked in that category which is defined in a presidential executive order as having possibly the gravest consequence to the national defense.

Judge Byrne summoned attorneys for both sides to a conference at the bench outside the hearing of the jury, the spectators or the news media.

Defense lawyers said Byrne informed them they could not challenge the "top secret" classification on grounds that the information by 1969 when Ellsberg took the papers no longer posed grave consequences.

Byrne said they could challenge classification only with witnesses who could show the papers were improperly marked "top secret" in the first place.

Glass shelter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Picnickers in Denver next summer will be sheltered by a pavilion built of recycled glass bricks and rubble from demolished buildings, says the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute (GCM).

These materials have been combined by the Colorado School of Mines Research Institute with small amounts of clay to make super-strong construction panels. The panels are being manufactured in a pilot plant at Golden, Colo., and the pavilion will be built in a Denver park to demonstrate their use. The shelter will be donated to the City of Denver.

Sylvia Sullivan dies in NY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sylvia Sullivan, the wife of entertainer-columnist Ed Sullivan, died early Friday morning in Mount Sinai Hospital, a spokesman for the family reported.

The spokesman said cause of death was not immediately determined. She was admitted to the hospital Saturday, he said.

The Sullivans, who were married April 28, 1930, for many years made their home in Delmonico's Hotel on Park avenue.

Mrs. Sullivan is survived by her husband, their daughter, Betty, wife of television producer Robert Precht, and five grandchildren.

Funeral services are scheduled for 10 a.m. Sunday in the Frank E. Campbell Funeral Home.

Yen for wine

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A wine boom is sweeping Japan as the eating habits of its young people are becoming westernized.

Haryu Matsubara, executive director of the Japan Trade Center here, said Japan offers a fine potential market for California wines because the nation's major wine producers have been unable to keep pace with domestic demands. At present, France, Algeria, West Germany, Italy and Bulgaria provide most of the wine imported by Japan.

Speech winner listed

TWIN FALLS — Virginia Bitzenburg was awarded the blue pencil for her speech "Before My Time" when the Twin Falls Toastmistress Club met Friday.

Other speakers were Delores Brancey, "Go Breaker," and Faye Hoffman, "Being Involved."

Judges were Eleanor Burkhardt, grammarian, and Charlotte Jones, general evaluator.

Marilyn Lanipe was named Toastmistress for the day and received the traveling trophy for the best performance of the day.

Virginia Eldredge and Virginia Bitzenburg were named co-chairmen of the Council, Speech contest scheduled for April 21 in Twin Falls. Other committee members are Barbara Fuller and Delores Silvers, decorations; Ollimae Armstrong and Veronica Detweiler, programs; and Virginia Bitzenburg, protocol.

Special guests were council officers: Mary Arrington, Lillian Jensen, Shirley Polvson and Dorothy Holton. Ellen Grant, council speech contest chairman, and Lena Stemmark were also guests.

Delores Silvers gave the invocation and pledge. Peggy Curry gave the welcome. Ollimae Armstrong was in charge of the table topics "Western Music." Barbara Fuller presented the education lesson on proper use of the pause. The red pencil also was awarded to Virginia Bitzenburg for the best table topic.

Air Force band tickets taken

TWIN FALLS — All available tickets for the US Air Force Band concert here April 1 have been distributed.

The band and the Singing Sergeants will appear at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium, sponsored by the Air Force Association.

Admission to the concert is free, but tickets were to be obtained by filling out a coupon in last Sunday's Times-News. Air Force Association officials said all the 1,000 tickets have been given away, but they request that any ticket holders who know they will be unable to attend the concert either return the tickets or give them to someone who can attend. Tickets may be returned to Post Office Box 926, Twin Falls, or taken to the US Air Force Recruiting Station, 134 Second Ave. E., Twin Falls, by the Friday before the concert.

Persons who do not have tickets but wish to attend the concert are asked to be at the CSI auditorium by 7:45 p.m. April 1 and if there are any vacant seats at this time, they will be admitted without tickets; ticket holders are asked to be in their seats by this time.

The band, and Singing Sergeants are considered the world's most travelled musical organization and have played to more than 25 million people in person.

Director is Col. Arnold D. Gabriel.

Archeologist paradise found

HONOLULU (UPI) — A tiny South Pacific island has become an archeologists' paradise.

Rare artifacts have turned up in the sand, throwing new light on the histories of ancient peoples.

Yoshiko H. Sinoto, the chief archeologist of Hawaii's Bishop Museum, came up with some surprising discoveries during his trips to remote Huahine-Nui island in Tahiti in French Polynesia.

Although his primary mission was to launch the rebuilding of the only surviving Tahitian meeting house for the French government, construction workers dredging a pond for a new hotel contacted him when unusual looking clubs were dug up from the sand.

"The discovery was the most exciting thing that has happened to me in my life," said Sinoto, a Japanese archeologist from Tokyo.

"What the workers found were ancient artifacts, including a whale bone weapon known as a patu, that previously was known only in New Zealand," Sinoto said.

The patu, a Maori word meaning "to kill," has always been considered a classic weapon native to the Maori of New Zealand, dating from 1500 to 1600 A.D., Sinoto said.

There are still about 225,000 pure Maoris in New Zealand, but where they originally came from has been the subject of debate among archeologists, with different Pacific islands cited as their homeland.

A second patu was found, and Sinoto believes the findings are valuable evidence supporting his theory concerning the migration of many of the Tahitian people to New Zealand.

"Why do we find the patu on this island?" Sinoto asked.

The Tahitian patu appear to be an earlier form, indicating they may have been the forerunner of those developed by the Maori.

Others who broke tabus were probably forced to leave by the chiefs.

Their motivation for leaving Tahiti was probably mostly curiosity, Sinoto said, and others who broke tabus were probably forced to leave by the chiefs.

Q — I would like to sell three sealed liquor bottles that date back to 1900. Where can I find buyers? — Mrs. W.C.P., Wilkesboro, N.C.

A — There are old bottle clubs forming all over the country. Collecting old bottles is one of the fastest growing national pastimes.

For information on how to locate bottle collectors, you should write to Old Bottle Magazine, Bend, Ore. 97701. The magazine has a question-and-answer column and might put you in touch with a bottle club in your state.

Be sure to describe your bottles in detail, giving dates, colors and designs. The collectors are more interested in the actual bottle. The liquor isn't as important. Even so, you'd better check with your state liquor authorities before selling the bottles. You may need a permit.

Q — Does the government put out a list that rates nursing homes? — Mrs. D.W., Baldwin Park, Calif.

A — No, but the government does put out an excellent booklet on nursing homes that will help you rate them yourself.

It has a checklist which asks whether the nursing home has government certification (necessary for Medicare and Medicaid benefits), and whether the home has a state-licensed administrator, dietitian and licensed therapists.

The booklet tells you how to get lists of homes in your area. You can get a copy by sending 45 cents to Consumer Product Information, Public Documents Distribution Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Q — I would like to warn your readers about some problems I had with a home-remodeling contractor.

First, we didn't now we had to specify exactly what kind of wood was to be used. The contractor used unfinished plywood for our bookcases.

Second, we didn't know we had to specify each piece of work in writing. The contractor verbally agreed to do several items but didn't do them.

Third, we signed the "completion certificate" before all the work was done. The contractor promised to do it later. He never did. — Mrs. H. D., Kansas City, Mo.

A — Thanks for the warnings. Anyone buying home-remodeling work should try to make the contractor get an FHA-backed loan for the job (even if you don't need the loan). FHA gives considerable consumer protection on these loans. Never sign "completion certificate" until the work is properly done.

Q — I buy Tofu (soybean curd) at a health food store. The label states "no preservatives," but lists magnesium chloride. What's this? — M.K., Los Angeles, Calif.

A — Magnesium chloride is not a preservative. It is sometimes used as a buffering agent in soda water and, theoretically, it's being used in your health food as a mineral additive. It doesn't have much nutritional value, but it's harmless.

Take note: You can get two brutally frank booklets on how to buy "cash value" or "term" life insurance by sending $1 (for each) to Consumer News, 813 National Press Bldg., Washington, D.C. 20004.

They're written by the Pennsylvania insurance commissioner, Herbert Denenberg. Pennsylvania residents can get them free by writing Insurance Department, Harrisburg, Pa.

Q — Peter Weaver, welcomes questions from readers for possible use in his column. Please send letters to him in care of this newspaper.

Members fail in losing

KING HILL — Lois Clark was named Topper of the week by the TOPS club 129, but most members failed in their purpose of weight loss.

Club officials said Thursday two members showed loss in weight, but eight showed gain, with a net gain of 12 1/2 pounds. TOPS showed a one pound gain and no loss.

Mrs. Melvin Cody was named Topper and received the traveling prize for having won for three weeks. Mrs. Glenn McCleary was the winner in the quiz. Mrs. Don L. Anderson conducted the meeting as pro-tem for Mrs. Clifford Hansen.

Any guest or potential member is welcome to attend the TOPS meeting each Thursday at 7 p.m. at Greer Hall. Weigh-ins is from 6:30 to 7 p.m.

"Jean" part of current display

TWIN FALLS — Prints and drawings by George Brownlee, chairman of the art department at Alverno College, Milwaukee, Wis., are being displayed at the College of Southern Idaho.

The display is in the Fine Arts Building and the show will run through March 31.

Mr. Brownlee's background is varied. He taught at the University of Denver, Colorado State University and Governors State University before accepting his position at Alverno College.

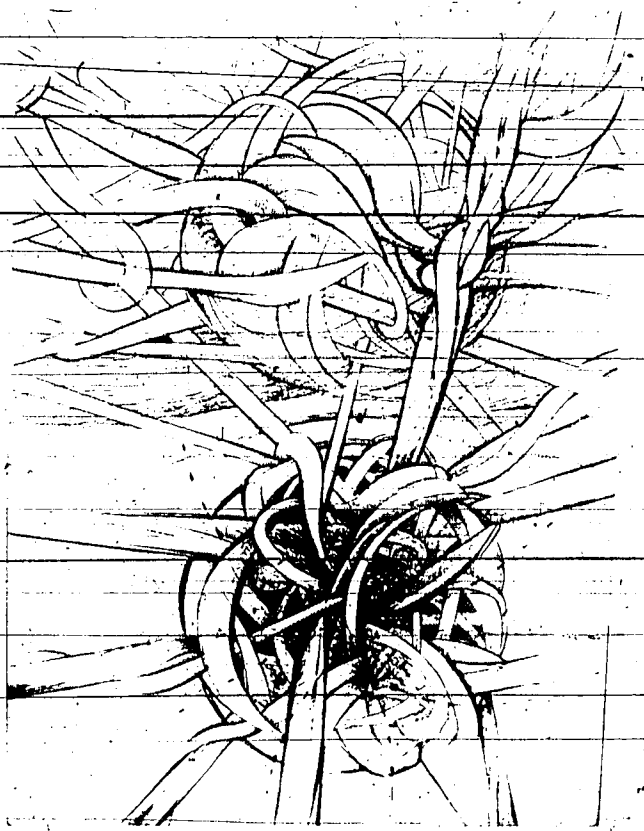

He has exhibited at the International Print Exhibition, Seattle Museum; Sixth National Print Exhibition, Athens, Ohio; Orange Coast College National Print Exhibition, Wichita Art Association, National Print Exhibition, Brooklyn Museum, National Black and White Print Exhibition, Manhattan, Kan., and the 16th Exhibition of Prints and Drawings, Dallas Museum.

In addition, Brownlee has had one show at the University of Colorado, the University of Arizona and Miami University. This is Brownlee's second one man show at the College of Southern Idaho.

The current display features examples of intaglio, engraving and etching processes as well as drawings and collages.

CAPT. LARRY CHESLEY ... celebrates in TF

TWIN FALLS — Capt. Larry Chesley celebrated seven of his birthday anniversaries at Robert Stuart Junior High school Thursday.

The 34-year-old Burley native was a prisoner-of-war in North Vietnam for nearly seven years. Robert Stuart's 150 eighth graders baked four cakes, created large poster birthday cards and filled in a scrapbook of memorabilia for a belated party that wrapped all seven of Chesley's last birthday celebrations into one.

The students also played musical hits of "the sensational 60's" in the classroom party. Chesley said the recordings took him back to his pre-POW life. Connie Francis' rendition of "Everybody's Somebody's Fool" was especially appreciated, he said.

The Air Force captain said he accepted the invitation to celebrate and speak at the school because each of the eighth graders had sent him welcome home letters after his release last month.

"I couldn't possible answer all the letters personally. This was the only way to thank them all," he said.

Eighth grade teacher Connie Lytle noted that she has worn a Larry Chesley POW bracelet for several years. She said at least 24 of her students also wore the wrist bands for other captives.

Commenting on the many events he missed during his long captivity, Chesley said he especially wants to see the motion picture "Dr. Zhivago." One of my favorite musical numbers is "Lara's Theme," he said.

Chesley "heard" the movie twice while he was a prisoner. His first "roommate" in North Vietnam had seen "Dr. Zhivago" and told him the story from memory, Chesley explained.

After the party, Chesley addressed the students in Robert Stuart's cafeteria auditorium.

The returned POW described his capture on April 16, 1966. He said his back was "twisted" (cracking a vertebra) when he ejected from his fighter plane 30 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone. The plane had been hit by ground fire. The North Vietnamese approached "from all points of the clock" when he hit the ground, he said. His captors, stripped him to his "LDS Temple garments" and white socks, Chesley said.

"Then I prayed to God that they would return my boots," he said, "because I knew I couldn't make it to the prison camp without them." The North Vietnamese handed the boots back soon after his prayer.

The trip to a Hanoi prison took 21 days, the officer said.

Much of the traveling was done in trucks or by foot.

Chesley said the POWs held classes in the prison camps. The teachings dealt with diverse subject areas, including skeet shooting and stock cars, he stated.

"We studied four foreign languages — French, Spanish, German and Russian," Chesley said. "I acquired a working vocabulary of between 5,000 and 7,000 words in French and Spanish," he added.

"Most of the men were interested in history. Second most popular was religion. I taught Sunday school for a year," Chesley said.

"But most of the prisoners came to the conclusion that English is the most important subject in school, according to Chesley. "And this isn't a paid commercial by your teachers," he said, responding to snickers in the student audience.

"Foreign languages were ranked second in scholastic importance because 'you can't learn a foreign language until you know your own language,'" Chesley said.

The uniformed officer stressed patriotism in his address. "Patriotism is something you must have in your heart — a deep feeling. Our flag is a symbol of that feeling."

"We were willing to give our lives for you students. If you are not willing to do the same, you may forfeit the freedoms that we fought for," Chesley said.

He lauded the students for their attitudes. "I have seen a radiance on your faces that I have not seen since I've been home. I believe this group has a very beautiful spirit about it."

Chesley fielded questions from the students after his talk. Asked what the meals were like in North Vietnam, he said the POW diets consisted largely of pumpkin soup, bread (in the cities) and rice (outside the cities).

"We sometimes got some pig fat, with the hair still on the skin," he added.

"The worst part was the repetition of food. We had pumpkin soup, from May through August. We ate twice a day — at about 10 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.," Chesley stated.

One of the students asked if he had ever given up hope, if he thought he would die in North Vietnam. Chesley said he had always kept faith in a "patriarchal blessing" bestowed on him by Alfred Knight, Burley, when he was 14 years old.

"The blessing was that if I was ever called into a conflict which I didn't like, I would be returned to my loved ones no matter what would come or go."

40th anniversary open house set

BUHL. — Mr. and Mrs. Marion Ambrose will be honored Saturday March 24, at an open house in observance of their 40th Wedding Anniversary.

The open house is scheduled for 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the Lincoln Courts Community Center.

Hosts for the event are the couple's five children and families, Mr. and Mrs. Jene Ambrose, and Mr. and Mrs. Jim (Elaine) Fitzsimmons, all Ogden, Utah; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Ambrose, Vancouver, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. Don Ambrose, Spokane, Wash., and Deena Ambrose, Linfield College, McMinnville, Ore.

Louise Childster and Marion Ambrose were married in March, 1933, at the home of her mother, Mrs. Hazel Kirkham. They have resided in Buhl all their married life. Ambrose owned and operated Ambrose Heating and Roofing. Mrs. Ambrose is the local agent for Modern Woodman of America. The couple have nine grandchildren.

All friends and relatives of the couple are invited to attend. The couple requests no gifts.

Special activities

Miss Depew heads club

TWIN FALLS. — Paula Depew was elected president of the Happy Go Lucky 4-H Club at its first regular meeting Thursday.

Teresa Meyerhoeffer, outgoing president, conducted the meeting. Christine Britt, teen leader, conducted the election.

Other newly elected officers are Teresa Meyerhoeffer, vice president; Shawna Pfefferle, secretary; Brenda Depew, treasurer; Susan Swafford, reporter; Lisa Pfefferle, song leader; Nancy Evans, prayer leader; and Janet High, sergeant-at-arms.

Following the election, a candlelight installation ceremony was conducted by Miss Britt.

Cooking record books were passed out and home assignments made.

Refreshments were served by Miss Britt. The next meeting is March 29.

3 honored

HANSEN. — Three members of Excelsior Social Club were honored at a luncheon Thursday afternoon in the Teton Room of the Holiday Inn. Honored were Mrs. Herman Thleme, 42 year member; Mrs. George Thompson, 36 year member, and Mrs. Clyde Poe, over 30 years membership. The organization was started in 1926. There are no charter members still attending meetings.

Camp Fire Girls Week brings special activities

TWIN FALLS. — March 18-24 has been designated national Camp Fire Girls Week celebrating the organization's 63rd year.

Twin Falls Camp Fire Girls are observing the week beginning with church attendance today. The groups will attend in groups or individually.

Other activities include skating parties and the annual Mother-Daughter Tea at 7 p.m. March 20 at St. Edward's Parish Hall.

Camp Fire Girls is an organization for all girls between the ages of 7 and 18. There are four program levels including Blue Birds, Camp Fire Girls, Junior Hi Girls and Horizon Club members. The program is oriented towards education as well as recreation, with programs geared to each individual's talents and interests. Each girl is encouraged to develop her greatest potential with good citizenship and unselfishness stressed.

The organization's motto is "Give Service" and the colors are red, white and blue.

On a local basis, the organization is built of small groups enabling the leaders to know and help each girl individually. Ceremonies and symbols of the program are being constantly updated to keep up with current needs.

The Camp Fire Girls insignia is crossed logs and a flame enclosed in a triangle. It symbolizes the hearth fire of the home and the campfire of the outdoors.

"Worship God, seek beauty, give service, pursue knowledge, be trustworthy, hold onto health, glorify work and be happy" is the Camp Fire Law.

The local organization has a camp available 40 miles south of Twin Falls. The camp, called Tawakani consists of cabins around a main dining lodge, a playing area and recreation hall at the base of Tawakani Mountain.

Camp activities include Camp Fire Girls out of door programs such as nature craft, woodlore, creative crafts, recreation, evening programs, outdoor cooking and overnight camp outs.

The Camp Fire Girls organization was founded by Dr. and Mrs. Luther-Halsey Bullock in 1910. They started a camp for girls on Lake Sebago, Maine, which was such a success they organized the permanent group.

Drugs, pregnancy queried

LOS ANGELES (UPI). — Many pregnant women are being given too many drugs by doctors—up to ten times more drugs than they need, including some that might cause birth defects, the chief of obstetrics at County-USC Medical Center said recently.

Dr. Edward J. Quilligan told the California Medical Association's annual meeting that some drugs must be given pregnant women in spite of the risks, but on the whole, doctors are largely ignoring the long-term effects of drugs on the unborn baby.

Quilligan said excessive amounts of vitamin C have been reported to interfere with a chemical process in the baby which can lead to jaundice. He said high doses of vitamin K can cause a form of mental retardation.

The obstetrician also gave a rundown of other drugs which he said could lead to birth defects or cause problems for the offspring years later.

Among them are:

Rosorpine, a drug taken to lower blood pressure and to tranquilize, which may interfere with the baby's ability to control its body temperature and to withstand stress.

Dilantin, a drug for treating epilepsy, which has been implicated in abnormal metabolism of folic acid, a vitamin needed by the fetus for normal development.

Diuretics, a class of drugs commonly given pregnant women to reduce excess fluid causing swollen ankles, which also may reduce oxygen to the fetus' brain.

Diethylstilbestrol, a hormone used in the past to prevent miscarriage, which can lead to cancer of the offspring's vagina many years after birth.

Former resident exchanges vows

WENDELL. — Nancy Alice Watson and Samuel Allen Wiswell were married Feb. 24 at Emmanuel Episcopal Church, Braintree, Mass.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Albert N. Hird, Braintree, Mass., and the late Ralph E. Watson, Jr. The bridegroom, a former Wendell resident, is the son of Mrs. Buford Allen, Idaho Falls, and the late Allen G. Wiswell.

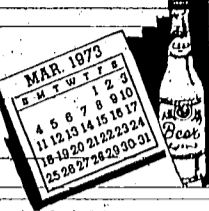

The bride is a graduate of Braintree High School, Braintree, Mass., and Juliet Gibson School of Retailing, Boston, Mass. The bridegroom was graduated from Idaho Falls High School, Idaho Falls, and attended Idaho State University. He served in the U.S. Navy and is now attending Colorado Aero-Tech School.

After a wedding trip to Denver, Colo., the couple reside in Denver.

Great fabrics

Great fabrics, a Davidow signature, appear throughout the Davidow spring collection. Colors combine excitingly for fashion that, while tuned to the times, are individual and distinctive.

The white, twisted rope-like strands of material in an egg albumen are simply concentrated bits of egg white and need not be removed before cooking.

Patient care discussion planned

MEDICAL and spiritual concern for the patient will be covered by a panel of speakers at a March 21 program of combined clergy and nurse association members. Speakers will include Elder Robert Crowley, LDS Sixth Ward; Mildred Inkeley, R.N., Magic Valley Memorial Hospital nursing staff, and Rev. Les Brown, Valley Christian Church, from left.

Panel planned

TWIN FALLS — A panel discussion involving nurses and clergymen will be held Wednesday in an effort by nurses to "open the door" to closer working relationship involving patient care.

According to Gigi Erdos, R. N., panel moderator, the discussion will be held at 8 p.m. at the College of Southern Idaho vocational building's mini-auditorium.

Panel members will be Rev. Cosmas White, OSB, CSI Catholic chaplain; Elder Robert Crowley of the LDS Sixth Ward; Rev. Herbert E. Morris of the First United Methodist Church; Rev. Les Brown of Valley Christian Church; Sister Virginia Gocknen, O.S.B., R. N., assistant director of nursing service at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital; Ruth Malone, R. N., director of nursing service at the hospital; and Mildred Inkeley, R. N., staff nurse at the hospital.

Nurses and clergymen are invited.

"We're trying to open the door of communication," Erdos said, "so when clergy comes into the hospital they are more welcome and better received."

"Sometimes the nurses aren't aware the clergy are there or that the patient has spiritual needs. This is an often neglected aspect."

She said other hospitals have put clergymen on the hospital "team" and found that approach "works well."

"What we are trying to do now is open the door and discuss problems," she said.

A Lovelier You

AVOCADO ON COSMETIC DIET

By Mary Sue Miller

Ecology buffs have a firm hold on cosmetics. Natural ingredients and colors are much in demand, especially by the young back-to-back nature set.

Once, when you asked a Lovelier if she would have an avocado at luncheon she would answer "Yes, thank you with shrimp filling." Ask the question today and she most likely replies, "In my best night cream, please."

Strawberry cleansing cream, wheat germ moisture cream, avocado night cream — countless natural ingredients have become a part of skin care treatments. The proteins, vitamins and polyunsaturated oils made available in this way to the skin's surface purport to have a salutary effect on that acts as a sort of adjunct to a beauty diet.

Makeup, not to be left behind, borrows the colors of fruits, flowers and trees for the freshest young look in many a spring. Just try lilac coloring stick on the lids and plum translucent lip and cheek glosses. Or leafy green on the lids and peach gloss on lips and cheeks. The first combination sets off light skin; the second lends glow to the brunt complexion.

To carry the scheme one step farther, there are nail glosses in wood-hued shades, sherry, mulberry, and rosewood — if a bit darker, very alive. Like springtime itself!

RELIEF FOR OILY SKIN

FOR OILY SKIN — After years of dry treatments and makeup, such special products as purples, blackheads and enlarged pores. For your copy, write to Mary Sue Miller in care of this new paper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 15 cents in coin to cover handling.

TF miss, Helms say vows

TWIN FALLS — Jon Helms and Tamra Roberts were married in an 8 p.m. candle ceremony at Immanuel Lutheran Church, Rev. Eugene Marks per-

MR. AND MRS. JON HELMS

Horsey surprise!

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Schoolteacher Edward Rooney thought he was dining on beef for the last three years, but his wife and nine children were feeding him horsemeat.

The truth emerged this week when Mrs. Rooney was pictured on the front page of the Portland newspaper, The Oregonian, buying at a market specializing in horsemeat. She said that eating horsemeat kept the family's grocery budget manageable in the face of skyrocketing meat prices.

Rooney said his 16-year-old daughter tried to hide the newspaper's front section but he finally got hold of it. He said the family secret was more a surprise than a shock and the more he thought about it, "the less I thought about it."

Rooney, however, has caught a lot of ribbing from his math students at Grant High School. "They call me things like 'Mr. Ho,' and the 'Galloping Gourmet,'" he quipped.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Berl Mays, Twin Falls, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Collins Helms, Twin Falls.

The bride wore a Bridal Original gown in a victorian style. The gown was made of nylon organza with acetate and nylon Chantilly lace at the sleeves, neckline and on the bodice. The three-tiered skirt featured a chapel train.

Her shoulder-length veil of bridal illusion was held by an iridescent crown. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, blue carnations, bachelor buttons and baby's breath.

Mrs. Virginia Tucker was matron of honor.

Jim Eiselein served as best man. Ushers were Mark Roberts and John Mays.

Tommy Fleming was ringbearer and Candy Willis was flower girl.

Soloist was Mrs. Becky Chandler and Bob Thompson served as organist.

The couple was honored at a reception after the ceremony in the church hall.

The four layer wedding cake was supported by four small heart-shaped cakes. The cake was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and streamers led from the top layer to small heart-shaped cakes which flanked the large cake.

Punch was served by Carolyn George. Mrs. Marie Timko cut and served cake.

Mrs. Betsy Hitt was in charge of the guest book. Shelly Sampson and Cheryl Metcalf were gift carriers.

Other reception assistants were members of the Immanuel Lutheran Church reception committee.

The bride is employed as a nurses aide at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom is serving in the US Air Force and is stationed at Hill Air Force Base, Utah. After a honeymoon trip to Sun Valley, the couple will reside at Hill Air Force Base.

Style show planned

Golf Association sets style show

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Ladies Golf Association annual luncheon and style show will be at 12:30 p.m. Friday at the Turf Club.

Those wanting to attend must make reservations by Wednesday by calling Florence Thomason, 733-3395; Nancy Zetarth, 733-7423, or Clyde's Pro Shop, 733-9721.

The event, which will kick off the golf season, will feature fashions from Clyde's Pro Shop, the Mayfair, the Bon Marche, the ID Store, Rogers, The Paris and Van's Department Store.

Those attending will also be given a preview of the schedule of golfing events for the season, including the beginners clinic, spring tournaments and valley invitational tournaments.

Shoshone C of C to promote boxing event

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone Chamber of Commerce will assist with promotion of the March 29 boxing event to be held at the high school.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A very beautiful Brazilian visitor to New York wanted to have her stay extended, so she sought the advice of a Wall Street attorney. She gave him $500 in advance and he made an appointment with her to discuss the problem on a Saturday afternoon at a friend's borrowed apartment. Shocked when she realized what was expected of her, she lady departed at once. She phoned the lawyer on Monday at his office and asked him to either make a serious effort to help her or to return her money. The lawyer promised to arrange an interview for her with an immigration official who would help her. Then he bluntly told her that her chances for extending her stay would be small unless she spent at least one night with this man.

Tricky lawyer

What recourse does this beautiful Brazilian woman have in such a predicament? HER FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Your friend is a beautiful Brazilian and if she doesn't tell that attorney that the Ethics Committee of the New York Bar Association would appreciate knowing how he practices law.

DEAR ABBY: I went out with a very attractive 23-year-old man. (I am 21.) On our first date he tried to make love to me but he didn't get very far. Then he told me he was sorry, but he just wanted to find out what kind of girl I was. He asked if I was a virgin, and I told him that was a personal question which was none of his business. But what bothers me the most is that I am, and I was ashamed to admit it. Is it so terrible to be 21 and still a virgin? ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: Good grief, not! What bothers me the most is that today so many people are ashamed of what they used to be proud of.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were married for four years and had one child. Then we separated and I met "Mr. X." Abby, I never know love-making could be so beautiful and fulfilling.

Because of the child we decided to give our marriage another chance, but I can't forget "Mr. X."

My husband's desires are much greater now than before, but he still leaves me unfulfilled and with a sick headache. I just can't tell him that as a lover, he is a failure. He just wouldn't understand. Now, I have a second lover who is very much like "Mr. X."

I want my marriage to succeed, Abby, but I am only 25 years old, and I don't want to seek out lovers and sneak around corners. I know that my own mother was never satisfied with one man. She had six children, and we all have different fathers, and it frightens me to think I may be following in my mother's footsteps.

I really want to have a good sex life with my husband, but he just isn't satisfying me. How can I get this across to him? FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Tell him! Tell him! A marriage counselor (or your own doctor) can help you by plain talk and recommended reading material. You, along with many others, may find that your happiness lies right under your eyes—back in your own backyard.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "F" IN ANSONIA, CONN: Don't believe that your fortune-teller can foresee the future. Even a clock that isn't working is right twice a day.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69706, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

overtrick. He dropped his queen of diamonds.

The false card was a typical rubber bridge play. In rubber bridge South would be most anxious for a diamond continuation so he could go about the business of collecting nine tricks. He wouldn't care a bit about a 10th.

It was also a correct play at match points. South did not think that many other North-South pairs would be playing three no-trump.

His analysis turned out to be correct. East fell for the false card and led back his jack of diamonds. South made his game and what turned out to be a top score.

ATLANTA (UPI)—When prices rose from $25 to $35 at an alleged house of prostitution, John M. Rothberg said he filed a complaint with the federal Wage and Price Control Board.

Rothberg, 24, told a municipal court hearing recently that he went to an apartment "approximately 10 times to have sex relations." When I first started going there the price was $25, and after 11 months of standing, the price was raised $10 to $35.

But Rothberg said to one of the Atlanta office of the Wage and Price Control Board would take his name because "they thought I was kidding." Rothberg testified at a 4 1/2-hour hearing into cases resulting from vice squad raids on the apartment.

THE IDAHO DEPARTMENT — ON THE MALL — TWIN FALLS

S. Idaho plan group elects

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News Writer

BURLEY — The South Idaho Resource Planning and Development Association (SIRPDA) held its annual meeting here Friday in the Ramada Inn.

More than 150 members of the four-county (Twin Falls, Cassia, Minidoka and Jerome) regional planning organization heard annual reports and a keynote address by Dr. John Eyre, director of the Graduate Research Institute at Idaho State University, Pocatello.

Jerome County commissioner John Van Orman opened the meeting with an announcement of SIRPDA officers elected in an executive board session Friday afternoon.

Garnett Kidd, West-Cassia Soil Conservation District agent, was re-elected chairman of the group, Les Morgan, Burley city councilman, took over as vice-chairman, and Wayne Hollenbeck, Minidoka County commissioner, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Van Orman also introduced the recently hired executive director of SIRPDA, Paul Kelly. Kelly replaces Eric Barnes, who resigned last month for health reasons.

Don Fredericksen, Gooding, represented the Wood River Council of Governments at the dinner meeting. The Wood River COG is another regional planning group comprised of Blaine, Camas, Lincoln and Gooding Counties.

The Wood River group has approved 40 projects since it organized in 1967, Fredericksen said. Eighteen of the projects have been completed.

Morgan presented the annual SIRPDA progress report to the assembly. He said the "top achievement" of the young organization last year was the opening of a central office in Twin Falls. The setting up of personnel policies, meetings with Magic Valley legislators, reorganization of the executive board and studies of regional solid waste and health problems were also major accomplishments of the year, he said.

The death last November of SIRPDA's first chairman, Heber Loughmiller, Twin Falls, was a heartfelt loss to the entire region, Morgan said.

Progress reports for Cassia, Jerome, Minidoka and Twin Falls Counties were given by Lloyd Hess, Alvin Chojnacky, Virgil Temple and William Chancey, respectively.

Forest Hymas, Jerome, reported the progress of the Land Use Coordinating Committee. The 50-member group is in the process of setting up land use goals for the four-county area, Hymas said.

Dr. Eyre addressed the needs and purposes of regional planning in his keynote speech. More than $900 million in federal grants were spent in Idaho last year, he said. "That amounts to more than four times the state budget this year," he added.

He cited the "vast network" of federal programs as reason enough for local governments to band together in planning; maximum use of available money. The more than 800 governmental units in Idaho make any other plan unfeasible, Eyre said.

"There is much confusion and not very much control," in a unit-by-unit spending policy, according to the educator.

He cited two approaches to wide-scale planning. He called one the "metronome" plan. The federal government is attempting to build control (with metronome regularity) of grant programs under this approach, he said.

President Nixon's decision to group several grants into special revenue sharing programs was conceived with control in mind, Eyre explained.

The other approach (and a better one in Eyre's estimation) is the "hourglass" plan. The concept of a wide range of federal money at the top which is funneled through a "narrow regulating neck" to the myriad of local governments at the bottom is what regional planning is all about, according to Eyre.

"The narrow neck in our system is the group of regional councils of governments," he stated.

The educator said local control would be maintained under the "hourglass" approach.

The initiation of "integrated" grants (one regional grant application that would fit the demands of many federal agencies) would undoubtedly strengthen the councils of government, Eyre said.

In closing, Eyre said Idaho State University is currently developing a short course for regional planners. He said the program would certify planners for work in Idaho.

Public involvement said goal of Blaine project

HAILEY — Broad based public involvement has been re-emphasized, as the goal of the Blaine County Schools Program and Facilities Study.

The assurance was made by Dean B. J. Chandler at the school board last week, which during a school study committee meeting Thursday night attended by about 80 committee members and interested residents.

The meeting began with comments and questions on a presentation by Dr. Paul Heuston, Ketchum, before the school board last week, which posed questions and concern on a wide variety of school issues.

During the Thursday meeting, Mrs. Edith Kincaid requested a statement of the philosophy of education of Northwestern University and said she felt the concern of the community was that Northwestern was "going to force us to have open classrooms and automation."

Dean Chandler said the university's educational philosophy was "whatever the faculty and student body say it is." He said it was determined by committee of elected representatives.

He said he favored "the grass roots approach" that "education ought to serve the interests and values of those people directly affected by it."

The dean said the purpose of the study from its inception was that "clear, long-ranged thinking was important before brick and mortar went into a building."

The school study was designed, with broad based committees, "in an effort to get all points of view in an honest straight forward dialogue."

On the type of program which will be derived from the study, Dean Chandler said, "What changes are to be made, are not for me to decide. I have no pet-curriculum notions for this community as I do not have any for my school."

Dr. Heuston, a member of the school study committee, said, "The spirit in which we entered this agreement was not on the study group per se."

He reiterated the presentation preface, stating, "We are not discussing personalities here this evening, rather we are concerned with differences in philosophy."

Dr. Heuston said the presentation concluded with an assurance to the board of continued cooperation in the study. He said the references in the presentation were many sided, including taxes and budgeting, and the presentation was not designed "in any way to obstruct, destruct or delay the study and what it is trying to accomplish."

The presentation also proposed "a more extensive question of what the school district can afford" for a new high school and curriculum, Dr. Heuston said.

"The board doesn't want to build a building on their own," Mallery said.

Trustee vote set at Shoshone

SHOSHONE — Petitions for persons seeking election at the annual trustee election for Shoshone school system must be filed by 5 p.m. Thursday.

The petitions must contain not less than five signatures and are to be filed with school board clerk, Mrs. Claude Chess.

The election, from 1 to 7 p.m. on April 9 at the high school building, calls for the election of one trustee for a three-year term for zone 5.

Incumbent Waldo Jones announces he will seek re-election, Kenneth Crothers said Friday.

Shoshone meet set

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone city budget will be adopted at a public hearing meeting set for 8 p.m. Thursday at the city hall.

Total anticipated expenses are set at $320,039.50.

The general fund section of the budget is expected to cost $47,177; the fire department $8,401.50; waterworks, $34,121; sewer, $51,698; streets and lights, $35,815.10; library, $3,755.50; recreation fund $2,307; and city ditch fund $3,417.

On the sewer construction account, $103,834 is set for payment of construction, $3,327 set in the swimming pool trust fund, capital construction, and federal revenue sharing funds expected to be expended total $29,645.

More Jeromites file for board

JEROME — The number of Jerome residents seeking election to the Jerome school district board of trustees continues to grow.

The most recent candidate for the April 24 election is Lyle Van Orman, 60, retired Jerome businessman. Van Orman, co-owner of Van Orman Hardware from 1949 to 1972, is seeking election in Zone 3.

Also filing nominating petitions for trustee positions were Don Allen, Zone 4; Darryl Wolfe, Zone 2; and Jack Thomason, Zone 5. Nominating petitions have been taken out by Mrs. Forrest (Cheryl) Hymas, Zone 4; William Hill, Zone 2; and Richard Johnson, Zone 1.

Only two members of the present board, William Keysey, Zone 1, and Gordon Hoffried, Zone 5, have stated they would seek re-election.

Trustee LeRoy Weiger, Zone 2, said he is still undecided.

Trustees Dale Viniv, Zone 3, and Jim Keith, Zone 4, have said they would not seek re-election.

Candidates for the trustee position must secure petitions from Warren Kays, clerk of the board. Each petition must be signed by at least five persons in the zone in which the candidate is seeking election and be filed with clerk 18 days prior to the election.

Trustee positions in Zones 1 and 2 are for three year terms, Zones 3 and 4, two year terms, and Zone 5, one year.

Expensive bull

FILER — The grand champion hereford bull was sold for $3,000 during the Idaho Cattleman's Spring Bull Sale Friday at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds.

The bull, cosigned by Naugle Hereford Ranch, Nampa, was purchased by Rockland Valley Ranches, Rockland. The reserve champion, cosigned by Ernest Olsen and sons, Logan, Utah, was purchased by Bill Maffett, built for $1,500. Leo D. Murdock and Sons, Blackfoot, paid $2,000 for a bull cosigned by Fisher Herefords, Salmon.

A total of 163 bulls were sold for $165,000, an average of $1,017.17 per bull.

A complete list of sale results will be in the Times-News on Monday.

Valley's debaters win honor

VALLEY HIGH SCHOOL — Dr. Tom Utterback, superintendent of Valley Schools, announced Friday that the Valley school open debate team took first place in competition at Nampa.

Taking the first place honors for Valley were Bryon Cridler and Terry McClaine. Second place went to Kimberly school.

Dr. Utterback noted that both teams will be competing in the state competition which will be held March 26 and 27 and will be hosted by Capital High School, Boise.

Other schools participating in the competition at Nampa included Parma, Fruitland, Melba, Wilder and Glens Ferry.

Blick said his principal goal is to lower the average age of the organization from 29 years of age by getting high school and college age people involved in the Young Republicans.

Then, he said, by the time they reach the age of 30 they would be ready to step into regular GOP political ranks and activities.

"I'd like to see the average age down lower than 25," Blick said. "I think we haven't used the younger people as efficiently as we should have in the past. The time to get them involved is when they are of high school and college age."

By involving younger party members at an early age, they are offered more opportunity for participation, he said.

A second principal objective will be to increase the membership of the Young Republicans, Blick said.

"It's been hard to get the kind of participation we want during the past year," he said, but attributed that to 1973 being an off year for election activities. "In another year, we'll have a much more active club statewide," Blick said.

Blick is a graduate of Castleford High School and the University of Idaho. During the Vietnam War, he was an Army reconnaissance pilot.

He is past chairman and vice chairman of the Twin Falls County Young Republicans, a past chairman of the Fifth District Young Republicans and served as chairman of the 1972 state convention in Twin Falls. He was also a delegate to the national young GOP leadership training conference in Washington, D. C.

Perrine bridge bid opening set

BOISE — Bids will be opened at 2 p.m. Tuesday for construction of the new Perrine Memorial Bridge.

Estimated cost of the 1,500 foot long bridge is $8.6 million.

The Idaho Highway Department will accept bids on the span, which will replace the present bridge. It will be built immediately east of the existing span which carries U.S. Highway 93 across the Snake River canyon.

Funds for the new bridge will come from federal highway appropriations and state highway money. Of the total, 78 percent will be federal funds and the rest will come from state sources.

Completion of the new bridge is anticipated in late 1975, according to highway department officials.

The main span of the steel arch bridge will be 993 feet long, with a rise of 210 feet. Including supporting structures, the roadway will be 480 feet above the Snake River.

Jerome physician moving to Midwest

JEROME — A longtime Jerome doctor has accepted a position with the new Veterans Hospital at Madison, Wis.

Dr. W. Carlye Small, who has been a doctor in Jerome for the past 36 years, said he has accepted the position with the Veterans Hospital and will be serving as an admitting and personal physician. The hospital is associated with the University of Wisconsin medical school.

Dr. Small said his reason for accepting the position was that he was looking for a slower pace or semi-retirement which the job will offer, and they will be near relatives. Mrs. Small has sisters residing in the area.

The physician and his wife, Betty, will be leaving some time this month. Dr. Small said he would not be in his office after Tuesday.

However, the office will remain open until March 31. He is to assume his new duties April 2.

Dr. Small came to Jerome in 1937. He is a member of the State Medical Society of Southeastern Idaho as well as the national College of Surgeons.

He served as president of the Jerome Rotary club in 1955 and is a member of the Jerome Country Club.

Idaho Migrant Council conducts TF training meet

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Regional council members of the Idaho Migrant Council met Friday and Saturday in Twin Falls for a series of training sessions.

According to Executive Director Humberto Fuentes, the sessions were to train IMC members from the state's four regions in the operation on the IMC, its staff functions and its adult education programs.

"The training is for the purpose of informing the board and the council on the IMC's responsibilities and obligations as representatives of the farm worker," Fuentes said.

He said the IMC is a federally sponsored, non-profit organization which provides educational and economic services for the farm worker.

Though presently operating under the Office of Economic Opportunity, the IMC, Fuentes said, may be transferred to the Department of Labor when the OEO closes in April. He said funds are currently being received from both the Department of Labor and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Programs sponsored by the IMC, Fuentes said, include seven day care centers in different parts of the state during the farm season, "right to read" classes to teach English to Spanish speaking adults, and four community health clinics, mostly in the Treasure Valley area, which IMC delegates funds but does not administer.

Fuentes said the IMC also has a grant from the Labor Department under the National Migrant Manpower Program through which training in vocational classes is provided for 80 Chicano students throughout the state, including students at CSI.

In Twin Falls, the IMC operates a "complex research center" in the former St. Edward's School building which serves as a coordinating agency for all farm workers in this area, Fuentes said.

Fuentes estimated there are about 40,000 Chicanos in Idaho, with an additional 15,000 to 25,000 migrant workers each season. He said official census figures are far under the actual Spanish speaking population due to a lack of communication.

Fuentes said the goal of the IMC is to improve economic and educational conditions for the Chicano population, which is settling down rapidly in communities as mechanization and other farm technology cuts into the work available for the migrant population.

"We're trying to get the farm workers out of the fields and get an educated base for the betterment of Chicanos, because field work is going to be gone in the next two or three years," said Dionicio Benavides, Twin Falls area coordinator for the IMC.

"We have to have political muscle working for us," said Fuentes. "To have that you have to have jobs, to get a job you have to have education, and what do you do if the educational system is screwing you?"

He said the drop-out rate for Chicano students nationally is about 80 percent. The student is being "forced out," he said, because the educational system is not being adapted to his language or his culture.

"We're just learning the system," said Fuentes. "We're communicating more than 10 years ago, more than five years ago, more than three years ago. Now we've got the tools to negotiate on a legal basis."

"We don't want just financial gains," said IMC Deputy Director Hector De Leon. "That's not what we're looking for. We're not as hung up on security as the Anglos are. We just want a chance to be treated equally and have control over our own destiny. As for an financial improvement, if we get some of it, that's fine. Otherwise, all we ask for is a fair chance. Nothing else."

Peronist victory in Argentina workers' triumph

Buenos Aires (UPI)—

The Peronist victory in Argentina clearly was a workers' triumph, but no one is sure yet what exactly that means. But all signs indicate that it will fall short of revolutionary. "Look around you," said one young Socialist, pointing to a young cafe crowd getting high on Peronist songs, coffee and their victory. "This could be a meeting of the (Communist) Youth International."

"Peron and Evita for a Socialist Argentina," was the chant, referring to the former dictator and his popular wife, who died in 1952.

In one of the capital's "Misery Village" slums, a sugar worker said before the election:

"Now I make 10 pesos per sack. When Campora wins, I'll make 20. Nobody told us that. We just know it."

Hector J. Campora, the candidate handpicked by former President Juan D. Peron did win, but it is unlikely that he will double everyone's salary. Nor is his platform aimed at socializing Argentina in the Chilean model—any more feasible.

Campora, who campaigned with the slogan "Campora in office, Peron in power," read a message Peron sent from exile in Madrid as his first act after becoming president-elect.

Peron's note was intended to calm tempers that flared in the campaign and it called on "all Argentines, friend and foe" to willed front.

Campora's second act was to visit the headquarters of the General Workers Confederation to "show solidarity with the workers." It was the workers and union men who put Campora into power after remembering the social advances gained under Peron. Campora said his first order of business, would be to "eliminate social injustice" in Argentina and strengthen "the rights of the workers."

Campora does not favor a total social revolution in Argentina, however.

Businessmen privately conceded that they preferred Campora over his closest rivals, the Radicals, who had shown a willingness to void private business contracts.

Campora is on record as saying that banking and foreign commerce will be nationalized, and that national savings will no longer finance foreign companies. But his platform invites foreign investment as long as it "fits into our plan of national economic liberation."

The Campora government's biggest economic problem will be inflation, which was about 60 per cent last year alone. The military government is also leaving it with a series of contracts for increased salaries, some as high as 50 per cent, skewed at the end of last year and the beginning of this year.

The bright side economically is the extraordinarily good year for cattle production experienced in 1972 and a prognosis for an even better year next year.

Since world prices for beef have remained high and Argentine ranchers over the past three years have resisted the temptation to cut into their breeding stock, the ranchers are expecting to export between $50 million and $1 billion next year.

Wheat and other grain crops increased last year and the "non-traditional goods" exports are the highest in Argentine history, leaving economic experts predicting a favorable balance of trade next year of $1.2 billion, more than double what total exports were in the 1960s.

In foreign policy, Campora has pledged to resume relations with Cuba, and to disregard the so-called "New York agreement" with Brazil governing the use of Parana River power and facilities. Campora's platform also describes the Organization of American States as a "tool of imperialism," but does not say Argentina will pull out.

The platform promises to "maintain" minimum salaries; insure that striking workers cannot be fired; extend social security benefits to all members of society, eliminate illiteracy and semi-illiteracy from the country, and institute new social legislation benefiting the working class.

The outgoing military leadership, meanwhile, drafted a series of "guidelines" for the new government, including a military presence in the new cabinet, a ban on any general amnesty for persons jailed on subversion charges, military control of the fight against subversion and the retention of judges appointed by the military.

Campora, who had the support of some leftist guerrilla groups, promised an amnesty during the campaign, but later modified his position to include decisions in individual cases by judges.

It is not known precisely what role will be played by Peron, 77, who was overthrown in 1955. Campora has said Peron must return to Argentina.

Parolee charged in rape

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — A prisoner who would have been paroled next Monday will stay in jail to face charges of raping a police department employee while he was on furlough to prepare for his release.

James L. Napper, 21, of Trenton, was detained Thursday on charges of raping the 20-year-old woman Jan. 15 on the final day of his three-day furlough.

The woman was attacked as she crossed a bridge on her way home from work.

CAPT. TRAXLER earns medals

BUHL — Army Capt. James H. Traxler has been awarded the meritorious service medal at Ent AFB, Colorado.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Traxler, Buhl.

The award provides recognition for a degree of exceptionally meritorious service falling between the standards of the Legion of Merit and the Army Commendation medal. Captain Traxler earned the award while assigned to Headquarters, Army Air Defense Command.

MALTA — Cadet Roger C. Neddo Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger C. Neddo, Malta, has been named to the superintendent's list at the US Air Force Academy.

Cadet Neddo, a member of the class of 1974, was selected for his outstanding achievement in both academics and military performance. He will be granted special privileges and wear a silver star and wreath designating the honor accorded him by the academy superintendent.

The cadet will be commissioned a second lieutenant and awarded a B.S. degree upon his graduation from the academy. He is a 1970 graduate of Raft River High School.

Soviets negotiate to buy Apollo spacesuits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union wants to buy spacesuits like those the Apollo astronauts wore on the moon, a U.S. computer company said Friday.

A spokesman for Intercontinental Computer Exchange Inc. of Washington, D. C., said negotiations have been going on for nearly a year, a contract probably will be signed within 30 to 60 days, and delivery could be completed this year.

A company statement approved by the U.S.S.R. State Committee for Science and Technology and the Institute for Medical Biological Problems of the U.S.S.R. Academy of Science said 10 of the suits were sought "for the specific purpose of conducting comparative studies in support of human factors technology."

The company spokesman, Bruce Ferguson, said the Soviets have given no specific indication how they plan to use the suits, which cost about $185,000 each and are made by ILC Industries Ltd., of Del.

The Russians were said to have emphasized during negotiations that their interest in the American spacesuits did not indicate any weakness or flaws in those worn by their own cosmonauts in orbital flight and spacewalks.

The Soviets asked for the kind of suits worn by the astronauts who landed and worked on the moon during the last three Apollo missions, rather than the simpler suit worn by command module pilots. They are not seeking the portable life support system PLS which supplies air and cooling water to the moonwalkers.

The computer company apparently was picked up by the Soviets for the spacesuit deal because they dealt with it 18 months ago in being the first U.S.-made third generation computers.

Ferguson said the price to the Soviets will depend on what extra equipment and servicing they need.

Mayan Indian treasure stolen

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two men were convicted Thursday of stealing archeological treasures including a highly valued 1,500 pound pillar from ruins of the Mayan Indian civilization in Central America.

Latin American governments have been trying for years to get the United States government to crack down on the smuggling of archeological artifacts; a multimillion-dollar illicit trade. U.S. collectors are the richest market for such items.

Clive Hollinshead, 48, Santa Fe Springs, Calif., and John B. Felt, 50, Mobile, Ala., were convicted in U.S. District Court of conspiracy and interstate transportation of stolen property and will be sentenced April 9.

They were found guilty of transporting artifacts stolen from Mayan ruins in Guatemala, British Honduras and other Central American countries, including the 1400-year-old pillar, called a stela, on which the symbols had been carved giving the dates of its erection and other events important to the Mayans.

The Guatemalan government has requested the return of the stolen.

N. Viet predicts war, blames US

By TRACY WOOD HANOI (UPI) — A leading North Vietnamese editor predicted today that the threat of war in South Vietnam "always will remain" until all the shooting stops.

In a lengthy interview with a group of U.S. journalists, Hoang Tung, editor of Nhan Dan (People's Daily), singled out South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu and the United States for blame in a number of alleged truce violations.

Tung placed partial blame on the United States for cease-fire violations in South Vietnam and criticized the U.S. Navy for alleged delays in mine sweeping operations in the north. He said only one mine had been detonated in Halphong harbor since clearing operations began shortly after the Jan. 28 cease-fire.

"They have destroyed exactly one, no more, no less," he said. "This is a great worry for us. All the entrances of our rivers have been mined. We have seen

At the moment, North Vietnam assumes the United States wants peace.

It, we know it and the American side also confirms it. "I do not think the United States is no longer able to control Nguyen Van Thieu," Tung added. "The continuance of these violations by Nguyen Van Thieu must have the tacit consent of the rulers of the United States. I think the state of things is very dangerous."

cans had "a lot of worry" with Thieu.

"So don't let yourselves be carried too far by Nguyen Van Thieu," he said.

"At the moment, North Vietnam is assuming the United States wants peace," he said. "We want to establish normal relations with the United States. That is, non-intervention of each country in each other's affairs. We have no means of intervening in your affairs. We want to have diplomatic, commercial and cultural relations with the United States, of course on equal footing."

Of alleged cease-fire violations, Tung said, the United States would be placed in a "very difficult situation" if the violations go on.

"If there is no cease-fire in South Vietnam," Tung said, "there always will remain the threat that war will break out.

Dean urges suspension of strip mine controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The dean of the University of Arizona College of Mines urged Congress Friday to suspend consideration of federal strip mining control legislation until overall national economic goals can be assessed.

"Our nation's security and the quality of life of its people are far more fragile than the disturbance of the small fraction of the nation's land area which is occupied by mining, and far more irreversible," said Dr. William H. Dresher.

Dresher's testimony, on the fourth day of hearings before a Senate Interior Subcommittee, brought this stern response from Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., the chairman.

"I'm worried ... that you have completely closed your eyes to the abuses that have occurred."

"I am mindful of what the mining industry has done to the eastern part of the United States and is about to do to the western part of the United States unless we do something to control it. There are people that are scared to death all over the western states."

Bid opening set for jail

TWIN FALLS—Bid opening for remodeling of the Twin Falls county jail is tentatively scheduled for early in April. Merl Leonard, county commissioner and planning and zoning representative, has unanimously approved a plan for preparation of specifications and advertising for bids as soon as possible. Leonard said this will probably mean a bid opening about the second week in April. Plans have been under way for remodeling work since last November when Sheriff Paul Corder and his wife vacated the apartment adjoining the present jail. A jail break in which prisoners removed a section of water pipe, causing extensive water damage to ceilings, floors and walls of the four-story building delayed the remodeling work. Plans call for lining walls with steel and installing attached steel bunks in the apartment area to provide 12 male and 12 female juvenile cells in a separate area. At present there are no juvenile facilities in the county jail. Sheriff Paul Corder said the remodeling program will increase the jail capacity to about 60 inmates, depending on the numbers of men, women and juveniles among the groups. The present capacity is about 55, depending again on numbers of women and juveniles housed at one time. Leonard said plans also call for the construction of a small security area in which a jailer or attendant could be on duty during nighttime hours to report any illness or other problems among prisoners or to report disturbances. State laws now make the sheriff and county commissioners responsible for all prisoners within the county. New legislation also specifies the method and type of facilities for housing juveniles with present Twin Falls county facilities totally inadequate, Leonard said. Meeting with the commissioners were mayors of Kimberly, Buhl and Filer and officials from Twin Falls.

Hen on 23rd leg

GERTRUDE THE HEN is passed from Harry Stevens (left), president of the Winnemucca, Nev., Kiwanis Club; to Jack Muldoon (right), president of the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club, on the 23rd leg of her trip from Fairfield, Calif., to Montreal for the 1973 Kiwanis International convention in June. Muldoon said Gertrude will be taken to Boise Tuesday for presentation to Nell Small, district governor of the service organization. The hen left California in October, 1972. At center is Steve Willer, immediate past president of the Winnemucca club and a former Buhl resident.

Idaho man beaten, robbed

MOAB, Utah (UPI)—A Lewiston, Idaho, serviceman returning home from military duty was found wandering along Interstate 70 near Green River, Utah, Thursday night, after being severely beaten and robbed of his van type truck. Three Indianapolis, Ind., teenagers were arrested in a Green River cafe and charged with car theft and assault with intent to commit murder. The serviceman, John McKean, 25, told the Utah Highway Patrol he had picked up three hitchhikers in Colorado. McKean said the suspects forced him to stop, beat him up and took his van. The van was later found overturned on the freeway.

members followed footprints leading from the van and the three suspects were arrested early Friday morning. The three 17-year old youths are being held in the Moab jail. McKean was in a Moab hospital in satisfactory condition suffering severe head lacerations.

Poor robbed

GULFPORT, Miss. (UPI)—A Salvation Army district headquarters office was robbed of $60 Wednesday by a knife-wielding bandit who fled in a late model Cadillac. Harrison County authorities arrested Joseph Leon Mitchell, 34, of Jenks, Okla., hours later in a Gulfport lounge and charged him with the robbery.

Sharing project Sunday

TWIN FALLS—A mud-filled ruin is all that is left of a neat Pennsylvania home in Wilkes-Barre.

A desperate farmer in upper New York state surveys the damage to his land where top soil and crops have been stripped away, together with his life savings.

These and countless other examples of material loss and tragedy throughout the world will be aided Sunday when major Protestant denominations observe the One Great Hour of Sharing.

The annual interdenominational project is used, among other things, to counsel families who must piece their broken lives together again, or help toward finding shelter or medical aid for those now in need.

At the Twin Falls Presbyterian church a film will be shown at the 11 a.m. worship service Sunday in connection with the One Great Hour of Sharing.

Rev. Van Nest will continue with his third Lenten sermon based on the Beatitudes.

Club hears lesson on creativity

TWIN FALLS—Mrs. Ernest Hiers conducted an extension lesson on creative activities for pre-schoolers at a meeting of the Country Pals Club Thursday.

The meeting was at the home of Mrs. Harry Sharp, who reported on the extension council meeting and announced the district extension council meeting in Gooding April 24.

Mrs. Don Hine gave the current events report, telling about Larry Chesley's talk at Robert Stuart Junior High School about his experiences in Vietnam.

Mrs. Sharp reported on new ideas, including safety pin boards, strang beads and nardsy figurines made of cardboard and scraps of material.

Mrs. Maurice Allen won the white elephant gift.

Mrs. Sharp told members there will be a Twin Falls Canning Kitchen meeting Wednesday at the Idaho Power Auditorium.

London flu epidemic brings death to 2,200

ATLANTA (UPI)—The nationwide mortality curve for the London flu is expected to fall below the epidemic level this week for the first time in more than two months.

The National Center for Disease Control said Thursday the number of pneumonia and influenza deaths during the winter surpassed last year's Hong Kong flu epidemic which lasted seven weeks and claimed 20,000 lives. Current death-totals for the London flu, or A-England variety, are 2,200 fatalities during the nine-week epidemic period.

Robert Rubin, NCDC, epidemiologist, said the influenza bug is on the wane, although still above the epidemic threshold in the west north-central and east south-central regions.

Rubin said this year's outbreak, for which there was no specific vaccine, was surpassed only by the Hong Kong assault in 1968-69, when 27,900 people died in a 14-week period. Scientists are hopeful a vaccine can be put on the market by next winter's flu season to combat the English variety. Rubin said a spraytype nasal vaccine should be ready for field trials next year.

East overpowers West stars 70-52

The East rallied under the scoring of Craig Hopworth of Minico and Mike Sorenson of Shoshone to take a 70-52 victory over an ailing West in Friday's East-West All-Star game at CSI.

The West failed to match the shooting depth of the East, as Bob Durham carried a snappy 23 of the West's 52 points. West pushed hard throughout the game, but failed to overcome the East height advantage as Hopworth and Tracy Neilsen blitzed the West team.

Both teams displayed poor half control in the opening moments of the game as they yo-yoed the ball back and forth, trading bucket for bucket. Late in the first period of play a Charlie Brown to Durham combination developed, with Brown showing some of his better rebounding and Durham having one of his hot shooting nights.

The East retallied early in the second quarter with an effective man to man defense which proved crippling during the entirety of the game for the West.

Minico's wheelhorse, Hopworth, turned out a fine offensive first half to guide the East to an early lead over the West — one the West never challenged seriously.

The rebounding of Burley's Neilsen and defensive moves of Spartan, Val Christensen, hussled the West and began to show its effect by the end of the half as West trailed East 29-25.

In the opening moments of the second half the East's lead became even more convincing as its defense tightened and the offense began to thrash at the West.

Durham continued his fine offensive push, hitting well from the field, but failed to rally the West into a winning effort. The West failed to keep pace with the confident East, and by the end of the third began to show signs of further weakening as Durham tired.

An ailing West seemed unable to stop the efforts of the East as Mike Sagers of Burley, Rick Nelson of Kimberly and Mike Sorenson of Shoshone began pounding the backboards, much to West's dismay.

By the end of the third, the East was well on its way to an All-Star victory as the West gave way to a seven-point lead on the part of the East.

Ball control was still a deciding factor with the West as they seemed to have trouble even into the fourth period of play.

A dying West pushed hard as the teams went into the final period of the game, but by that time the contest seemed to be in the hands of the confident East.

With 1:50 left on the clock the East had advanced to a 13-point margin over the West.

Going into the final seconds a Christensen steal proved good as Sorenson went in for two. Neilsen crippled a West effort to come back. Allen Stevenson managed a final goal for the West, only to have the East reply with Don Bedke of Oakley and Sagers on two as the clock ran out with the East taking a convincing 70-52 victory from the West.

Jim Colbert holds lead in Jacksonville event

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Spunky Jim Colbert, fighting fierce winds, trees, palmetto bushes and mounding pressure, shot a 71 to open a two-stroke lead on a fading field Saturday after 64 holes of the $130,000 Jacksonville Open.

Colbert, a 5-foot-9 Kansas State graduate, had a three-round total of 70-65-71-206, 10-under par.

There was a three-way tie at eight-under par 208 among burly Jim Wiechers of Napa, Calif., veteran Dan Sikes of Jacksonville and Nashville's Lou Graham who went into Saturday's round tied with Colbert.

Wiechers and Sikes were among those who tied for the day's best round with two under scores of 70.

"Anybody who shot under 75 today had a helluva round," Colbert cracked afterward in reference to the winds that gusting up to 45 miles per hour over the 7,088-yard Deerwood Country Club course.

Wiechers said the wind was unbelievable. Today 70 or 71 was a great round.

"It was one of the most trying rounds I have ever played," said the 42-year-old Sikes.

Sobors, snafed as evidenced by Jack Nicklaus' 76 which dropped him well back in the field with a one over par total of 213. Chi Chi Rodriguez was an 80 and Gardner Dickinson, John Jacobs and Dow Finsterwald all added to 77s.

Johnny Miller, the skinny 25-year-old San Franciscan was alone in fifth place with a 68-72-91-209 total. Next was Homero Blancas of Houston who had a 74 Saturday for 210. There was a five-way tie for seventh at 211 among Bruce Crampton, Doug Sanders, Steve Melnyk, Don Massengale and Frank Beard. Colbert scored his leading margin on the fourth hole when he holed out a shot from the trap for an eagle three. It was the same trap from which he holed out for a birdie Friday.

"It was just my routine eagle," said Colbert, who twice hit into the trees and once into thick palmetto bushes. He had to settle for bogeys on two of the holes but on one he threaded an iron shot between two trees from 150 yards out to save his par.

Graham, who bogeyed the last hole after pulling over with Colbert on the 16th, said "I can't complain about my round under these conditions, and that's for sure." Wiechers said that anybody in the top 10 could win the tournament "if this wind keeps up."

Defending champion Tony Jacklin had a 70 Saturday as did Hubie Green, and they closed in on the field at the 213 mark, three-under par.

The steady Crampton, winner of two tournaments this year, enters Sunday's round five strokes behind but far from out of contention.

Wiechers, 29, said he thought if he could sink a few putts he would take it all.

"I've gotten 10 birdies on the par fives, but I really haven't sunk any putts," he said. "If the law of averages just catches up with me and I sink two or three I have a good chance."

Among the many disasters Saturday, little Red Curl was alone in fifth place with a 68-72-91-209 total. Next was Homero Blancas of Houston who had a 74 Saturday for 210. There was a five-way tie for seventh at 211 among Bruce Crampton, Doug

Rangers owner says no trade

POMPA NO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Bob Short, owner of the Texas Rangers, completely spiked a report Saturday that pitcher Vida Blue had been traded to his club by the Oakland Athletics.

"Oh, no. Not again," said Short when questioned about the published report.

Short said that Blue "has not been dealt to this club and, what's more, I refuse to speculate about players who are unsigned."

Blue and Oakland owner Charles O. Finley are still hashing over the pitcher's contract demands.

"There has been no deal between me and Charley Finley," Short said. "From what I understand, Finley is out in Oakland, serving as grand marshal at a St. Patrick's Day parade." Then he added, with a chuckle, "and who would pick St. Patrick's Day to make a baseball deal."

Finley, reported in Oakland, also laughingly denied the latest Vida Blue trade report.

"There's not a word of truth to it," Finley said. "If they built a hotel to house all the runners about my sports teams, it would be one of the biggest in the world."

Finley was staying at an Oakland hotel while in the Bay Area for a meeting with the unhappy players of his California Golden Seals hockey team and to serve as grand marshal of the St. Patrick's Day parade in San Francisco on Sunday.

In Phoenix, Ariz., where the A's played the San Francisco Giants in an exhibition tilt, manager Dick Williams and Oakland club officials also denied the report. They said Blue was still scheduled to pitch for the A's Tuesday.

Dick Weber wins Ebonite tourney

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — Dick Weber, with a scorching nine strikes, defeated Norm Meyers 279-216 in the title game of the $30,000 Ebonite Open Bowling Tournament Saturday.

It was the second time in the last three years the two St. Louis, Mo., veterans had fought it out in a Professional Bowlers' Association championship here. Weber beat Meyers in the 1971 Buckeye Open.

Saturday's four-match wind-up, culminating in the finale of four days of competition here with Nelson Burton Jr., also of St. Louis, defeating Dick Ritger, of Hartford, Wis., 815-233. Ernie Schlegel, of Newburg, N.Y., defeated Burton 236-226. Weber then defeated Schlegel 205-173.

In the championship game, both Weber and Meyers opened with a spare. Meyers followed with strikes in the second and fourth frames, but was unable to put together a string of strikes until late in the game.

Weber followed his first frame spare with nine straight pocket hits.

Weber collected $10,000 for the win, his first in over two years. Meyers earned $6,000 for second spot, followed by Schlegel with $4,000, Burton $3,000, and Ritger $2,500.

Records broken in weightlifting

YORK, Pa. (UPI) — Two AAU collegiate records were broken Saturday during the first round of the national collegiate weightlifting championships at Park College.

Joel Widdel of the University of Northern Iowa won the bantamweight class with a lift of 465 pounds, bettering the old AAU mark by 30 pounds.

In featherweight competition, Florida Tech's John Byrd also won with a lift of 465 pounds, topping the previous record by five pounds.

The flyweight division went to Philip Chin of Franklin & Marshall, who hoisted 310 pounds.

Runners-up in the three weight classes were Edward Trempier, Santa Clara University, 350, bantamweight; Guy Harding, Hudson Valley Community College, 405, featherweight; and Andrew Pnizuk, University of University of Delaware, 280, flyweight.

Nearly 100 participants from 53 colleges competed in the meet, which ends Sunday.

Tohill remains critical

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Doctors at John Peter Smith Hospital said Saturday Texas Christian University football coach Billy Tohill would be given intensive care through the weekend for injuries he suffered in an auto crash last week.

Tohill, 33, was still in critical condition and was on a liquid diet. He talked again with his family and assistant coaches.

"Through the weekend Coach Tohill's condition will continue to be listed as critical primarily because of injuries to his chest, pelvis and right ankle and foot," said Dr. Charles A. Crenshaw.

"Coach Tohill's body functions are normal and he continues to make satisfactory progress since early this morning. He has been on a liquid diet of fruit juices, jello and bouillon."

Tohill became TCU coach when Jim Pittman died of a heart attack 10 months ago. He suffered facial lacerations, compound fractures of the face, rib fractures, a crushed pelvis and fractures of the wrist and ankle in the crash early Wednesday.

BOSTON (UPI) — Second period goals by John Danby and Tom Williams coupled with goalie Bruce Landon's first shutout of the year powered the New England Whalers to a 4-0 victory over the Philadelphia Blazers Saturday in a World Hockey Association game.

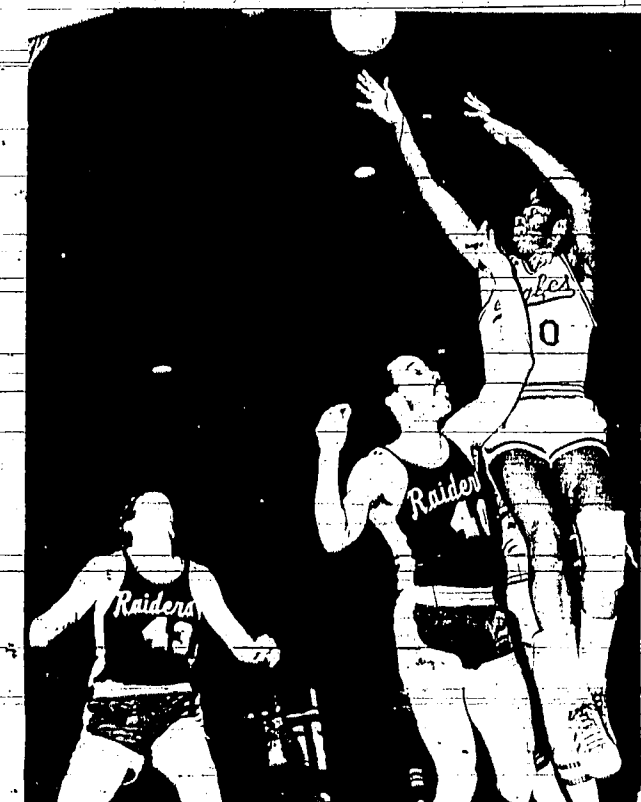

CSI returns home after 89-87 loss

HUTCHINSON — "We had some disappointments. But all in all we had some good points. We can't forget the pluses," said CSI Coach Jerry Hale just moments after his Golden Eagles had been knocked from the national junior college tournament Friday afternoon.

and should be able to continue their careers at other schools. Our freshmen came in and performed quite well. Ron Fryson played every minute of every game. We had a lot of pluses," he continued.

Mo., and had led almost all the way and a couple of times in the first half by 13 points.

rebound keeping possession with Three Rivers and the Eagles didn't get a last chance for a tie.

Scoring over top

CSI's Ron Fryson goes over Three River's Lennie McFerrin for two of his 26 points in Friday's action in the national junior college tournament. Three Rivers eliminated the Eagles 89-87.

Fryson and Volmut got most of the points as CSI moved ahead 29-16 but then Edwards and Copeland hit twice each from the outside and Three Rivers flurried back while CSI ran into a dry spell.

Three Rivers trimmed that 13-point bulge to 31-26 and later cut it to three. Then Fryson, Volmut and Darrell Groves hit to send CSI ahead 51-44 at intermission.

Willie Williams, having a fine day, rolled inside for a crumple to extend that to nine after the second half tip but then CSI went into a four-minute scoring lapse.

Edwards, Copeland and Johnson gunned Three Rivers back and with 13:36 left the Missouri team had its first lead. Fryson hit twice and Groves once to send CSI back on top by five and over the next 11 minutes CSI looked like it was going to outlast the rally although Rick Sobers was on the bench with four fouls.

CSI's best hopes sparked about four minutes from the end when Williams and Groves extended the lead to 83-77 but with 2:51 left, Edwards and Beckening hit back-to-back Three Rivers buckets. Sobers replied for CSI but Edwards and Johnson, both on rebound shots, sent Three Rivers up 86-85.

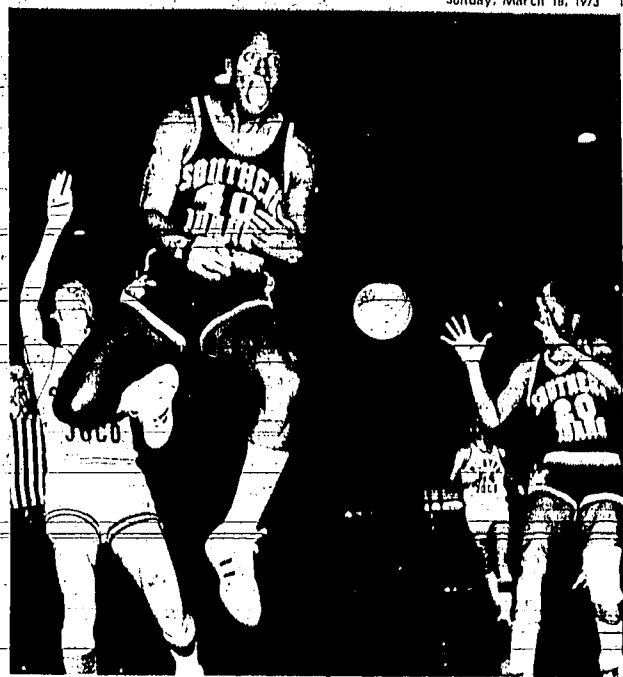

CSI missed a crumple, but got the rebound and Fryson established the last CSI lead. Then a pair of offensive fouls took possession away from the Eagles and Three Rivers nailed it down from the line.

Once again the Eagles had trouble getting to the free throw line and were hit by a succession of traveling and offensive charging calls. Three Rivers, hitting the boards much harder, had few underneath fouls called.

CSI received only a "participation" trophy from this tournament, marking the first time they haven't placed in the top eight. It was also the first time CSI didn't participate the last day of the meet.

The game was tied 54-54 at halftime, but the Stars built a lead of as much as eight points in the third quarter and as much as 10 points in the fourth quarter.

The Squires were handicapped by the absence of Julius Erving, the ABA's leading scorer, who sat out the game with a bruised back.

Sped on his way

ASSIST-PASS is made by CSI's Rick Sobers who appears to have been booted out of the gymnasium by an unidentified Platte JC player. Sobers' pass found Ron Fryson for an easy two-pointer as CSI won 79-67.

Cavaliers defeat Buffalo 114-97

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Cleveland dissipated a 28-point lead, but the reserves, led by Barry Clemens, got the clutch baskets and the Cavaliers went on to a 114-97 NBA victory over the Buffalo Braves Saturday night.

The Cavaliers mounted a 41-16 first quarter assault, widened the gap to 28 points late in the second quarter and led by 66-44 at halftime. But the Braves, directed by Elmore Smith, rookie Bob McAdoo and Bob Kauffman, stormed to within eight points, 78-70, with 2:24 left in the third quarter.

Utah widens division lead

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Paced by Jimmy Jones' 27 points, the Utah Stars beat the Virginia Squires 112-103 Saturday night to stretch their American Basketball Association Western Division lead to four games over Indiana.

The game was tied 54-54 at halftime, but the Stars built a lead of as much as eight points in the third quarter and as much as 10 points in the fourth quarter.

Cougars hand Memphis defeat

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — The Carolina Cougars got 21 points out of Joe Caldwell, Steve Jones and Billy Cunningham to break a four-game losing streak and hand the Memphis Tams their 12th straight loss, 121-108, Saturday night.

The Cougars, who led almost the entire game, had to fight off a fourth period Tams rally to regain a two and a half game lead over the Kentucky race for the regular season ABA Eastern Division championship.

Pistons slip by Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — John Mengelt hit a game-high 29 points, including 13 straight, and Dave Bing got the clinching basket with 10 seconds to go Saturday night to give the Detroit Pistons a 99-97 victory over the Chicago Bulls in a National Basketball Association game.

Mengelt got the last point of the first period for the Pistons and then hit the first 12 of the second period to help Detroit grab a 35-29 lead after the score had been tied at 22-22.

From all angles

By Larry Hovey

One of the continuing frustrations in watching a national junior college basketball tournament is the use of the "traveling" call by the officials.

They all seem to have good credentials. Big Eight, Big Ten, Missouri Valley, ECAC, etc. But they use that traveling call as the catch all for everything.

Now you can commit mayhem, even murder, under the boards. Sometimes it's called, usually it isn't, fall into a man holding the ball and knocking him off balance and its an even bet the resulting call is going to be traveling.

It is very inconsistent. For instance, in Friday afternoon's game, Darrell Groves drove for a bucket. As he passed a Three River's man reached out and grabbed his arm. This caused Darrell to hit the ball with the ball as he brought it up. That was the only thing we could discern that was different from a routine before-the-game layup. Traveling was called. Sometimes they let you catch the ball in a two-step motion. Sometimes not. Late in the game, Vince Volmut, on a Groves feed, caught the ball on the baseline, took two steps and scored, traveling was the call. Steve Swanson made a fine stepover move for a crumple. No points, walking.

Any mishandling of the ball at all and its traveling. Two men battling for a loose ball and ping-ponging it. Usually, the man winding up in possession is called for walking.

Little was called there. But never -- and we mean never -- was a tip-in made from behind allowed. That always got a foul.

These same young high-rising forwards killed CSI throughout the tournament. The Eagles lost 22 points on the offensive boards during the last game alone. And Connie White of Mercer made 12 points on follow shots in the last six minutes of the first half of that opening game overtime loss. Although the Eagles were taller, they weren't quick enough, often enough to keep them screened and sometimes when they did, the ball was taken over their heads.

Perhaps the most unusual part of this year's tournament is that CSI lost games it quite often was back there. In the first loss to Mercer, we were impressed by the coaching of Howie Landa. With the exception of the man from Ferris, Va., it appeared about the only time that we've seen Coach Jerry Hale tied by the guy sitting on the other side of the scorers table.

Those two made lots of moves throughout the game and in given situations. In cases like these, we long ago decided that Coach Hale was going to win them all. Landa had the countermove each time. Coach Hale was unjustly harsh on himself when he criticized his coaching for losing that one. It ballooned down to one pass -- a bad one -- when CSI made the play too early.

The loss Friday was traceable simply to a couple of things and calls on the court that couldn't have been directed from the bench. For the most part we feel that teams showing up at Hutchinson are comprised of two categories. Either the team has tremendous talent and little coaching or adequate talent and excellent coach. Much more of the former, however. This year, the tournament didn't have the dazzling group of individuals but we felt by and large the on-the-court discipline and sideline strategy was better than we've seen.

Play the thing next week, and a lot of other things would happen. Hutchinson had the best material and Vincennes was impressive. We didn't see Mercer bent them (being on the long bus ride home) and really don't know how unless Vincennes wins off its game.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, MARCH 18, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's Full Moon is excellent for giving you a greater insight into the philosophy of life and school of thought that is most satisfactory to you, also, a better understanding of other persons and their aims. You have the chance now to get your surroundings in the pink of condition, so make this an active time.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A bigwig is observing how you are treating others, so be kind and at your best today! Plan to meet bigwig's expectations in the future also. Show you are an intelligent, hard-working person.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have the inspiration now to gain your fondest aspirations and have a happy time at such work as well. Try to assist others who have problems and hardly know what to do about them. Show you really care about them.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can handle home affairs easily and in an intelligent fashion now. Add to the harmony there at this time. Plan how to manage responsibilities that have bothered you for some time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get out to places where you can secure right data and be with persons who help you gain your highest aims. Have a good time with friends you like and admire. Do not neglect clever relatives.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) By imagining and planning for greater prosperity now, you can realize just that in the near future. Consult with a financial expert and get the right advice, help. Show you are an able and ambitious person.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) Fine day for the social when you can make an excellent impression on bigwigs and those who can be very important in your life. Attend that fine big affair, but make sure you dress beautifully. Converse well, also.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Think along very philosophical lines today and put your life on a more satisfying and inspiring plane. Use your intuitive faculties for they are most accurate. Get the right results with everyone.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Good day to get in touch with friends with whom you can have greater rapport and mutual benefits. Much sociability can bring new friends into your life who are most worthwhile. Be charming.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do those things that can bring you the goodwill of higher-ups and government officials. Show you are a philanthropist. Avoid one who is jealous of you and drive with utmost care.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good day to contact persons of true wisdom and learn a great deal from them, get the advice you need. Some new associate can give you the support for your plans you want. Take it easy tonight and get to bed early.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Sit quietly by yourself while and let your intuitive perceptions go to work for you, and you know how to take care of problems well. Cement better relations with closest tie. Be kind but firm.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Sit down with an associate or one who opposes you and talk over how to get along much better in the future. Then get out for recreation or to make a better name for yourself with the public in general. Read some in p.m.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one of those delightful young people who likes to look after his or her health and will have much energy and fine wholesome ideas that can lead to big success during the lifetime. However, you must teach early not to express ideas unless asked for, since this could alienate others whose ideas are far from lofty. Any of the highest professions are fine here depending on the strongest interest, which could be the religious side of life.

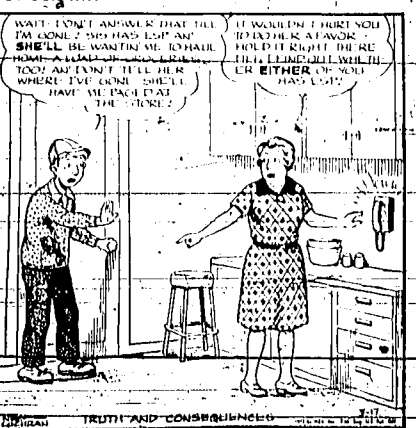

"The Stars Impel, they do not compel". What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

What's What

L. M. Boyd

That scalping was the invention of the white man, not the Indian, has been reported. Less widely known is the claim that North American Indians did not actually ever "bury the hatchet" until white merchants dreamed up that notion. In order, some historians say, to sell more tomahawks. Later, as replacements, that's dubious.

SOME MUSICIANS who play the drums for a living do indeed eventually get a little hard of hearing, that's true. Likewise, some of the brass section boys. But in reply to a client, must report there's no record that any piano player ever suffered such solely because of the noise.

Q. "WHAT'S the difference between a dipsomaniac and a polydipsiac?" A. A dipsomaniac gives in to an uncontrollable craving for liquor. A polydipsiac is just flatout thirsty almost all the time for whatever's wet.

FEDERAL FARMING For more than 50 years the Soviet government has tried to raise farm output to certain levels, but has failed. For just about 40 years, the U.S. government has tried to get farm output to certain levels, but likewise has failed. Eventually, somebody is apt to conclude that governments don't know how to farm, what?

LITTLE BETTER than half of all the men aged 20 to 24 in this country are single. Just 53.8 per cent, to be precise. Believe I already mentioned that less than a third of all the girls that age are single. Exactly 32.8 per cent. This set of facts implies a statistical handicap of remaining bachelors in their early 20s. So those who do succeed in bring up girlfriends are to be congratulated, suggests our Love and War man.

WHEN TO SAVE No youngster should be required to save money until the age of 12. Or thereabouts. Age 8 is too young. That's the dam of a scholar who says his studies prove that financial guidance doesn't take before the teen years.

IN THE UNITED STATES, the oil consumption runs three gallons a day for every man, woman and child. In China, it's six gallons a year.

WHY IS IT WOMEN find it more difficult to give up smoking? And why are they more likely to go back to the habit? A survey of more than 1,000 smokers indicates the foregoing to be the case. Can you explain it?

WHO REMEMBERS Oscar Wini? Nobody, nobody. He was the obscure reporter on the old New York World who invented the first crossword puzzle. This comes up because an authoritative client insists the crossword puzzle was first devised in 1924. That's when it zoomed to popularity nationwide. True enough. But it was 11 years earlier that Oscar actually created the first "sudoku" puzzle, printing it in the World on Dec. 21, 1911. Nobody much noticed.

HURRY!!
YOU CAN STILL GET A NEW DATSUN 510 AT THE OLD PRICE.

The dollar has been devalued. But if you act right now you can still save big on a Datsun 510. For a limited time all the 510's are at the old low price. There's never been a better time to find out about Datsun's high performance car. The Datsun 510 2-Door Sedan again has beaten the more expensive imports to win its second 2.5 Trans-Am championship.

And its powerful 1600 cc overhead cam engine is still economy minded enough to give you up to 25 miles to the gallon. Other features it shares with more expensive machines include fully independent suspension, safety front disc brakes and bucket seats. Test drive the Datsun 510 with 4-speed stick or optional 3-speed automatic soon. There's never been a better time than now to save.

Food prices

Complete TV-Programs March 18-24

QUESTION: "What do you think should be done about rising food prices? Would you be in favor of price controls?"

Rik Elde, Twin Falls:
"If I was in a position where I could, I'd put a price freeze on them. Because it's too expensive for a good piece of hamburger it's going to be one dollar a pound. That's too much. If I was there I'd go out and buy a side of beef. That's what we do.
"When my mom and dad were kids, you could get a popsicle for five cents, now they cost a dime. We used to barbecue steak a lot, now it's hard to barbecue hamburger. My mom and dad both work, and it's still hard. Food prices are just out of hand."

Mrs. Howard Arrington, Twin Falls:
"I have a different situation. I live out on a farm and raise a great deal of the food we eat. I think people should cut out the middle man. A person should be as self-sufficient as possible. Can, freeze, dry — preserve anything you can for yourself.
"I feel that there should be some sort of price controls, but don't ask me what. I'm trying to get a year's supply of staples so if anything drastic happens I won't be dependent on the grocer, but what I use, I have to replace at inflated prices."

Craig Baker, Oakley:
"I think there should be stabilized incomes. Food costs seem to be going up but I haven't seen increases in income to compensate for it. They've definitely skyrocketed out of proportion.
"Cattle prices are probably a little higher than they ought to be. I can remember when a guy could buy a good bred heifer for $250; not it's $500. Machinery, seed — all that has skyrocketed, too.
"I think we're definitely headed for something that order (price controls). Anytime you have to go anywhere to buy anything, it's just out of proportion."

Norman Elquist, Oakley:
"I don't know. I think the middle man's getting it all. Somewhere between the grower and the market is where the trouble is, because the grower sure isn't getting his share.
"No, I definitely don't think so (farmer getting too much). There's too many fingers in between the grocer and the market. They're getting a fair price for some things, maybe, but it's their turn.
"I'd have to study things out a little further before I'd comment on that (price controls)."

Mrs. Byrle Carr, Twin Falls:
"It seems to me there's been more than a logical amount of increase in some things. The increase has been unreasonable certainly on the basis of salaries, but I'm not an authority. I wonder if anybody knows a solution.
"Another thing that bothers me is having to spend so much money on a beautiful store. Stores are in competition to have a better looking place all the time — then we pay for it, don't we?
"I'm in favor of controlling the increase, so it doesn't increase so fast.
"The solution is just don't eat so much."

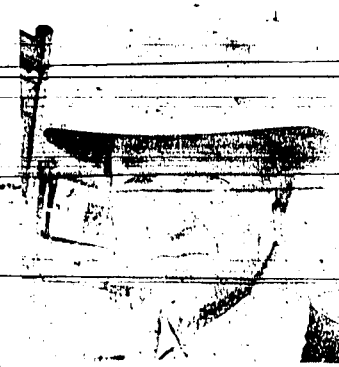

Carol Koch, Twin Falls:
"I think we ought to go down to the humane society and get over our qualms about eating cat meat. We've got an overpopulation of cats in this community anyway.
"I'll have all of the cats in the community dropped in my yard.
"I don't know where you start eliminating costs. The farmers aren't making that much money, the middle men aren't making a lot of money, and the grocers are always saying they're not making money. It's not the farmer who is being paid too much; it's the canal company and the fertilizer companies."

Edd Bossard, Twin Falls:
"I don't know if anything can be done. It's not good, I'll tell you, for the working man. Prices are terrible. I think the effect of food prices will show up in other areas of our economy. High prices keep people from buying other items.
"To me phase I was good, phase II was terrible and now there's no control to phase III. I really think we're going to see the time when things are rationed. Wages aren't keeping up with the cost of living at all.
"Yes, yes, I sure would (be in favor of price controls). I think it's the only way to stop this inflation."

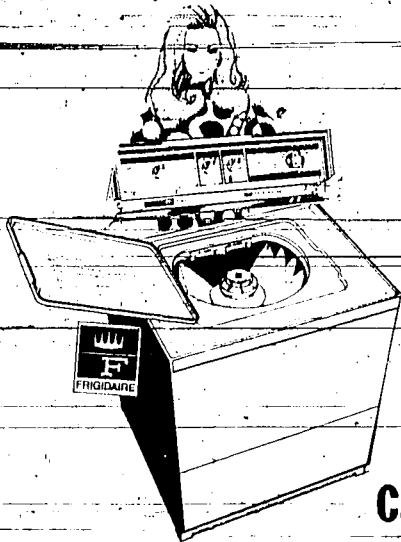

Irving Bennett, Twin Falls:
"Well, I'll tell you, if the farmers would ship the goods to the area where the people eat the food instead of sending them through all those handlers, prices wouldn't be so high.
"The farmers aren't getting so much, it's the handlers and the unions. Everybody takes a bite of the dollar. That's the way it is with everything. That's the whole story right there."

Frigidaire re-invents and General Motors

The Washer and ★ Dryer

Everything is new and re-invented, from top to bottom

The only washer & dryer that are new and revolutionary in the industry.

If you are determined to be happy with another make which probably hasn't made an improvement in many, many years, then don't take time to read any more. If you would like to know more about the completely re-invented Revolutionary Washer READ ON

FIRST. — How would you like a washer which will never require a service man to come to your home? This could very easily happen with a New Frigidaire. If, by chance, there was a failure due to anything in the control panel, simply remove 2 small screws, lift it off the washer or dryer, unplug it (like a small appliance) and bring it to our shop. We'll fix it while you wait. If there is need for repair, other than control panel, simply remove two screws and lift off front panel of washer or dryer, which will reveal every moving part. Remember there is no gear case, no gears, and no oil necessary. You should be able to detect anything that isn't working properly, and in most cases you (or at least the man of the house) should be able to take care of the problem.

SECOND — Frigidaire has a 5 year warranty on Rolleromatic transmission, electric motor and pump and Cain's take care of washer or dryer for 2 full years FREE.

Carload Prices — Big Trades — Delayed Payments

Here's how simple it is to use the Re-invented Washer

1-18 Start with the biggest load you've got. Sort your laundry exactly as you would with a conventional washer. And don't worry about load size. The Frigidaire Jet Action 1-18 washer and its companion dryer can handle from one piece to 18 pounds with ease.

Put your detergent, bleach, and other laundry aids in the automatic underwater dispenser. It's beneath the measuring cup cap on top the Jet Cone Agitator.

Set the infinite water level control at any point from Mini to Maxi, depending on the size of your load. You'll get the right water level automatically.

Set the controls for a perfect wash. Set wash and rinse water temperatures (or the Proof-Proof automatic Fabrics Selector on models so equipped). Select the desired wash time. The Timer is calibrated in both minutes and degree of soil. Pull the Timer, and you're on your way!

Now relax. Immediately, the Jet Circle Spray Fill and Rinse System starts drenching the clothes. 12 pressurized water jets spray down from around the top of the tub, to get clothes wet before agitation begins.

Jet Action Agitation takes it from there. As agitation begins, diluted detergent and laundry aids enter the tub. The bladeless up and down action keeps clothes underwater. They plunge deep, circulating, turning top-to-bottom, over and over. The agitation is tough on dirt, but so gentle, even apron strings seldom angle.

The most thorough rinse you can get. After agitation, during spin, the Jet Circle Spray System sprays excess suds off the laundry. Another spray fills the tub for deep rinse agitation. Then again during the final spin, the Jet Circle Spray gives a just-to-be-sure rinse, and clothes are spun dry.

The fastest spin on any automatic washer. Exclusive Rapidry 630/650 Spin Speed whirls out water. The finished load is lighter and almost dry. Many pieces can be ironed right from the washer.

Then to the Frigidaire Flowing Heat 1-18 Dryer for a fast finish. Faster because it will dry any load the washer will wash. Because the large opening (240 sq. in.) makes it easier to load and unload. "Sorting Fingers" separate clothes as they tumble. And Flowing Heat leaves them sunshine fresh. Permanent Press Care, of course.

Teala Bellini: A life with music

By JOCELYN CLOWARD
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — "I wouldn't give up my teaching for anything."

Mrs. Teala Bellini, well known Twin Falls musician and music educator this year is observing her 60th year of music teaching. She talked this week of her great love for music, her career, and her philosophy of teaching.

"I'm very strict with my students," she said, "but I also have excellent rapport with all of them. Seeing a young person come to you and grow is magnificent. I've never felt the generation-gap or had a personality clash with a student. I love to work with teenagers, and sometimes a 4 year old can begin the piano if he will work," she said.

"Seven or 8 years is a good age for beginners."

"I don't keep students if they don't work," she said, "parents should see the importance of practice, and help their children."

"Some students say they would like to make a career of the piano," Mrs. Bellini says, "but that is hard; one must practice five or six hours a day. Right now, I have only 45 students, and I can't take any new ones. My youngest student is an eighth grader, and I have 10 students who are themselves piano teachers and very much concerned with their students."

"I have several who plan to become music educators, and some who play for their own pleasure. Two of my current young students are excellent," she said. "Martin Wright, Murtaugh and Mark Neiwith, Kimberly, have good chances for success in music careers," she said.

"I don't think you can say, I'm going to teach a certain thing this week," she said. "I try to suit the book to the student. Runs for instance should be beautiful, clear, and sparkling, yet each student learns this in a different way. For example, I teach scales in 13 or 15 different ways because each student is different and needs individual help. A student needs to be taught alone. I once had a theory class, but stopped it. Now I have my own theory notebooks, with correlated manuscripts for each student. I write in these notebooks on my own time, not on the student's time," she said.

"Another thing," she said, "an interpretation must sound like the person playing it. If two of my students are playing the same piece, I see to it that they don't play in the same way."

Mrs. Bellini came to Twin Falls after spending her early years in the New England states and some years in California. When 14 years old, she took her first class with 15 students, "some older than I was," said said. She did her teaching on weekends, while attending school. In 1916 she began her work with the Julius Hart School of Music, now known as the Hart College of the Performing Arts, University of Hartford.

"The Hart school was much better than the public schools," she said. "Mr. Hart was a strict supervisor. We were trained according to the very strict German conservatory method. Nothing was slipshod. He kept a close watch on the education of his students."

Mrs. Bellini mentioned also her early training with Dora Trafton Nye and Wyllys Waterman. She studied harmony with Ernest Bloch. She then made her New York concert debut at Aeolian Hall in 1920, and gave concerts throughout the New England States and New York. "From 1916 through 1921 she was on the Hart faculty."

While in California, after moving there with her family for her father's health, Mrs. Bellini gave concerts and was on the faculty of St. Mary's Academy during 1920 and 1926. She had her own studio, which "I despised because of having to trot back and forth," and when she and her husband moved to Twin Falls in 1944, she established a studio in her home.

"We came to Twin Falls from California," she said, "when my husband's health suffered from the sea level climate. He had met someone from here, and here we came."

Mr. Bellini's hobby is machinery; he established the B and B farm repairs shop in Jerome, and is now retired, with hobby shop at his home. The Bellinis celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in September, 1972.

"I knew no one when we came to Twin Falls," Mrs. Bellini said. "The Twentieth Century Club launched me. I played for them, and then the students came."

"I've found more talent here than in California — better workers," she said.

"Twin Falls is not a very big place," she said. "I am so pleased with the Magic Valley Symphony and its fine director Del Slaughter. When I gave my first concert here, I was told that the audience would not appreciate Bach, that he was too advanced for them. I played Bach anyway and received many calls. Next year I played more Bach. I've never had trouble with an audience," she said, "no trouble with audiences being disrespectful."

Mrs. Bellini has given about 12 concerts in Magic Valley, Pocatello and Boise for community projects. "From the age of 4," she said, "I always wanted to be a concert pianist. My mother and father were very musical; mother sang, and father played the English concertina which was very unusual."

"My husband's family were music lovers too. They had the best of music in the home. He is an excellent critic."

Mrs. Bellini's daughter, Mrs. Nick Percin, lives in Twin Falls and also is a piano teacher. Her grandson, Tony Parrell, plays first trumpet for Ray Charles and has recently returned from a six month tour.

Mrs. Bellini's home reflects her personality and that of her husband, Robert. Two pianos dominate the music room, one a 61-year old Mason and Hamlin grand, almost 6'10", bought "directly from the factory," and a Baldwin grand.

A music library, including Groves Musical Dictionary, is placed under a group of pastels, "willed to me" of Mozart, Liszt, and Wagner.

Many objets d-art are found at the home. "I have so many things that belonged to my mother and my grandmother," Mrs. Bellini said. "My husband has made many things too. She showed a grandfather clock constructed by Bellini, her teapot and pitcher collection, some authentic Wedgwood china, and cranberry glass. A silver loving cup "200 years old," and a teapot "about 190" are prominently displayed in a china cupboard. A sixteen year old cat sleeps by an antique carved teakwood lamp with a lampshade recovered by Bellini when the original deteriorated.

Mrs. Bellini, while being photographed played a lovely sparkling piece, "Valse Courante" by Lachmaire; "That's out of print," she said.

"You can't even buy it."

She is now working with the newly formed Magic Valley Choral on Easter selections from George Friderick Handel's "Messiah" as accompanist.

"Such beautiful music," she said. "I hope for a good chorus. We've done 'The Messiah' seven or eight times here; I was privileged to accompany for John Smallman, an internationally known choral conductor with the Los Angeles Oratorical Society."

She plans soon a concerto recital for April or May with "about six students." "I will do second piano," she said.

Mrs. Bellini has won many honors including listings in "Who's Who of Music and the Dance of California and the West," "Who's Who of American Women," 1959, and subsequent editions, "Who's Who of the West," and the "Dictionary of International Biography."

In 1961 she was elected a Life Fellow of the International Institute of Arts and Letters, Zurich, Switzerland, and in 1964 she was elected a member of the International Platform Association.

She is a charter member of the Twin Falls Soroptimist Club, an honorary life member of the Twin Falls Music Club, and a member of the Twin Falls Episcopal Church of the Ascension.

A witty, educated and handsome woman, Mrs. Bellini carries a heavy schedule.

"I teach all morning, and practice every day," she said. "I feel even now that I must practice."

She plays with the Bellini Trio, begun "for fun about ten years ago. We started playing for about 40 of our friends two or three times a year," she said.

Mrs. Henry Coiner plays cello in the group, and Mrs. Del Slaughter violin. "I did not name the trio after myself," Mrs. Bellini said.

To eat or not to eat—opinions on rising food costs and price controls

"Benefacts"

BOISE — Sometimes the consumer has little insight into the facts behind rising food costs. Associated Food Stores, Inc., Boise division distributors, said this week in "Benefacts," a regularly distributed announcement to its grocery customers, that grocers have continually reduced their operating expenses over the years, and that rising food costs today are simply a reflection of increased product costs.

"It's not very popular to be a grocer," "Benefacts" said, in an article entitled "Prices spiral upward — who's to blame?" "Rising prices of basic farm commodities," it said, are traceable "directly to the consumer demand for those products." Demand is at an all time high, the article said.

Commodities discussed included:

Wheat: General Mills was paying $1.88 per bushel for farmers' wheat on Sept. 1, 1971, and $2.22 per bushel on Sept. 1, 1972. On Jan. 2, 1973, the price paid had advanced to $2.98 per bushel.

Soybeans: From which vegetable oil, margarine, and many other products are made advanced from $.09 per pound last fall to $.14 on today's market.

Eggs: wholesale cost on extra large eggs last September was .35 per dozen. This morning that item cost .60 per dozen. That's a 71 per cent increase over Sept. 1 prices.

Meat and by-products: Live cattle sold at Omaha last week were a record $45.25 per hundredweight — about $7 more than a year ago. In Chicago, choice beef was a record $.67 per pound — $.20 higher than three months ago. Broiler chickens cost the wholesaler over $.49 today — and are $.20 per pound higher than a year ago. Live hogs were bringing $39.60 per hundredweight this week 8 in September, $30 per hundredweight.

"Benefacts" also discussed the recent devaluation of the dollar in terms of food prices and export demands. "A devaluation increases other countries' ability to buy from us, and, therefore, increases our exports. Increased exports raise the demand and reduce the supply of goods. Recent exports of corn and wheat to Russia allowed brain prices to overcome depressed conditions brought about by the tremendous surpluses we have maintained for many years.

Bill Bower

Food Man

TWIN FALLS — Nobody is realizing a profit because of spiraling costs.

Bill Bower, assistant manager of Buttrely Foods, Twin Falls, said in an interview, "People think the store is raising prices when in reality, we are still on the price freeze. We can't make any more gross markup on any item than when the freeze went into effect in August, 1970."

"At that time," he said, "we went through the store for prices on every item, and we still use those prices as our base price for markup percentages."

"Farmers prices are not frozen," he said. "They can go as high as the market price carries them. We have to watch our prices. We're checked carefully by the government."

"We've tried to keep a record on produce," Bower said, "and maintain the same price guidelines as for other items. Because the price of produce fluctuates, the Times-News price survey taken each month is unfair. A once a week price check, particularly for produce, would show the true price of graded items such as lettuce, tomatoes, and other produce and meats. Then the survey would be more valid," he said.

"We're careful now to be selective with our ad items," Bower said. "The public doesn't want cheap stuff, but it will buy meat helpers, less well known brands, national brands on special, and our private brand when it can get a good price."

"We don't advertise any luxury items now," he said. "We try to advertise good prices on items people use up every week such as soap, eggs, margarine, and bathroom tissue."

"Often," he said, "we sell our ad items below cost to get the customer to come in. However, we have to be careful. Below cost, the more you sell, the more you lose."

If we stop such practices. Not raising crops is crazy. Now we need wheat and the demand is exceeding the supply," he said.

"I know farmers don't get rich," he said. "I grew up on a farm. It's only the big farmer who gets the money," he said.

When talking about grocery selling as a competition Bower said, "Anybody who says 'I've the lowest prices in town' is lying."

They may appear lower on some items, but on a total of nine items in a cereal section, for example, he said, "They'll come out about the same."

"Buttrely's thinks one item has gone up a ridiculous amount, Bower said, "We will hold our percentage down or else, people won't buy anyway."

"To help our customers with the problem of rising prices," he said, we look for specials ourselves. We get deal allowances on selected items from our Boise warehouse. We also get from them a weekly bulletin on prices with listings for old prices, new prices, retail prices and profit margins. We have to watch all prices carefully, too," he said.

"We're careful now to be selective with our ad items," Bower said. "The public doesn't want cheap stuff, but it will buy meat helpers, less well known brands, national brands on special, and our private brand when it can get a good price."

"We don't advertise any luxury items now," he said. "We try to advertise good prices on items people use up every week such as soap, eggs, margarine, and bathroom tissue."

"Often," he said, "we sell our ad items below cost to get the customer to come in. However, we have to be careful. Below cost, the more you sell, the more you lose."

Joyce Molyneux

Housewife

TWIN FALLS — "We eat very well."

Mrs. Joyce Molyneux, housewife, part-time Twin Falls housewife, part-time employe and mother of four children, discussed this week her solutions to rising food prices.

"You just have to take time to cook," she said. "My husband and I grow a vegetable garden. We have a lot of tomatoes and strawberries, for instance, and can freeze a lot of our food."

"It does take some time to plan. I make up menus before I go to the store," she said, "and try to adapt the specials. I make a list from the menus, and then I try to stick to the list. I keep the menus on cards for use another time."

"Once a month, I buy something by the case on a special, unless my other bills make this impossible," she said.

"I bake my own bread. We used to go to the day old bread store, but their prices have gone up, too. Anyway," she said, "I've found that one slice of home made bread is more filling than two slices from the bakery."

"We don't buy any prepared foods," Mrs. Molyneux said. "I make almost everything from scratch. It's not too hard to begin dinner while getting breakfast. I often set jello then, or make a dessert."

"We buy beef by the half or whole and supplement it with specials on pork or string beans for instance. We use casseroles and a lot of round steak."

"You just have to take time to cook the less expensive meats," she said.

"I've found that it costs less for children to take hot lunch at school," she said. "When I try to pack lunches, we always have to run to the store. I don't find that useful. In fact it's expensive," she said. "We do pack lunches for family trips such as skiing."

"Also, it's not usually economical to drive across town just to save a few cents on a special. I stick with two stores, use several different brands, and have found a less expensive flour which I like. I'm familiar with those stores and have my list in shelf order," she said. "A change-of-shelving arrangement annoys me when I shop because I depend on my knowledge of the store."

"It doesn't always pay to buy large economy sizes," she said. "I take my teenage son to help figure prices per pound sometimes. Usually, though, I don't take my family shopping; they keep putting extras into the basket."

"Never go to the grocery store hungry," she said.

"If I watch prices, I can usually adjust," Mrs. Molyneux said. "For instance, when eggs were very expensive we ate more pancakes and waffles."

"Sometimes because of other bills, we have to cut down on food in some way. Right now I've eliminated things like potato chips and graham crackers. The kids pop popcorn instead."

"Still," she said, "if prices go up high on things we really like, I buy them and cut out something else."

"I think a lot of those who complain about prices the most are those who buy a lot of prepared and instant foods," she said. "Also, it's not just food. You buy other things in a grocery store."

"There are a lot of things to do," she said. "You can buy potatoes in a 100 pound lot and share them with a friend. If fresh fruits are high, use canned. I read everything I can on buying and preparing food. It does take time."

MILNER "The farmer has to be an optimist, but I'm not so sure we can sit back too much longer."

Howard Conrad, Milner farmer, when interviewed this week talked about farming attitudes and problems. Conrad began farming in 1954, and considers his farming operation "diversified more than the average." He, his wife and two daughters have 4,000 acres of land under irrigation and grow several crops annually including sugar beets, dry beans, barley, wheat, potatoes, corn and peas, and run a stock cow and calf operation.

"My costs are well established," Conrad said, "as are those of any farmer — fertilizer, labor, seed, machinery and taxes."

"There's a lot of talk of price controls for farmers," Conrad said. "Those who talk the loudest are not interested in the welfare of the farmer, nor in his future. We need to be concerned for the future supply and source of food. The consumer who criticizes farming profits — if there is a profit — is not concerned about the future price of food."

"Nobody," he said, "was concerned for the farmer when farm machinery jumped in cost two or three times per year before the price freeze."

"The consumer," Conrad said, "should consider price controls on items bought at grocery stores, which are not food. Much of the complaint about food bills includes non-food items."

"Let me also give you an example of produce markup," he said. "He pointed out a recent Times-News grocery ad for Idaho potatoes at 78 cents per 10-pound bag. "During no time in the marketing season," he said, "did the farmer receive more than 3 cents per point. The retailer should be embarrassed," he said. "That locally produced potatoes with very little transportation have been marked up 250 per cent."

He explained the reasons for the markup as being increased costs of labor, transportation and cost of retail advertising.

"If the consumer were willing to forego advertising and packaging," Conrad said, "his costs would drop."

He said, "Many people are in favor of the elimination of government support for farmers. However, no major industry is without such support, either by contract or subsidy. The taxpayer doesn't realize that the best supports are those which help the farmer to stay in business."

"I personally think the farmer might be better off without subsidies," Conrad said. "But people should realize that without them, food costs would increase and family size farms would be eliminated."

"The market is the farmer's important determination for margin of profit," Conrad said. "We grow 75 per cent of our crops on the open market, not contracted. That market," he said, "will sometimes fluctuate as much as 150 to 200 per cent. No retail store or manufacturer could survive the same percentage of fluctuation."

"One year our potato harvest devaluated 300 per cent in 150 days after the crop was produced and in storage," Conrad said. "We have to have a better margin of profit than that to survive."

"It hasn't been unusual, he said, "for us to sell at least one of our crops at below production costs; that's why we have to be diversified." Farmers are forced to become larger.

"Dry beans have been a reliable crop for us," Conrad said. "Beans sell eight months out of the year. Advanced technology helps us keep the cost of beans down. We have better seed and more efficient and economical harvesting techniques. We've been able to stay in the bean business and not increase the price of the product; pinto beans were selling at $8 per hundredweight when I first started farming 18 years ago, and they're still selling for that," he said.

"Really what farmers need are controls for minimum margin of profit," Conrad said. "We shouldn't be forced to go under a certain percentage."

"Farmers operate with cost analysis now, to determine minimum profit margin. Most will not produce loss crops for more than one year. I've eliminated two crops; fresh corn and peas, and I'm considering not growing sugar beets this year," Conrad said.

"The beet crop has a low profit margin. The government has put minimum wage standards on the beet industry; foreign imports have held the market down, and sugar cane is allowed to be competitive. We can't make a profit."

"That's important to this area," Conrad said. "Sugar is one of the largest money crops around here — the loss would be felt. The sugar companies pay several hundred thousand dollars to growers; that money goes to banks and accounts payable."

"There isn't a business in the valley that doesn't get a percentage," Conrad said.

"Everyone gets a share, but we don't make enough profit to make the crop attractive anymore."

Protests result in postponement of drama

Following is the text of a telegram sent to stations affiliated with the CBS Television Network by Robert D. Wood, President:

The second of a series of television productions made for the CBS Television Network by the New York Shakespeare Festival under the direction of Joseph Papp — an adaptation of "Sticks and Bones," award-winning Broadway drama — was previewed twice for you and the managements of our other affiliated stations. As you know, the play deals in compelling, allegorical terms with the callous reception of an American veteran returning blinded from war.

Most of us agree that the production is a serious, concerned and powerful tragedy of some of the uglier aspects of human nature as revealed in a highly imaginative contemporary story. In light of recent developments, however, many of us both at the Network and among the stations are now convinced that its presentation on the air at this time might be unnecessarily abrasive to the feelings of millions of Americans whose lives or attention are at the moment emotionally dominated by the returning POWs and other veterans who have suffered the ravages of war.

Never has there been a greater or more serious and responsible sense of concern expressed by our affiliates about a projected program and the timing of its broadcast. It is the conclusion of the CBS Television Network, therefore, that the broadcast of "Sticks and Bones" should be postponed and broadcast at a later date, to be announced, when the context of its showing will be less distressing and its possible application to actual events less immediate.

Many critics and other representatives of the press have already seen the program and reviews in two national news magazines have already appeared. We think that more of the press and civic leaders, particularly at the community level, should see it and we urge you to invite them to another closed circuit preview on Wednesday, March 7, at 4:45 p.m. EST, because we believe that this drama by David Hare has great creative integrity and that the basis of our decision to postpone its broadcast ought to be fully and widely understood.

Is newspaper route management for you?

The only birds that can drink by suction are pigeons.

Talk it over with your dad

Your father knows about business. And a newspaper route is a business of your own. Which is why some of our most successful carriers work closely with their dads... in managing their routes and in taking care of their profits. Yes, you will find your father's counsel and advice can make a newspaper route even more profitable for you. The best way to start is to talk it over with him now. And then give us a call... there may be a route available to you in your neighborhood. Lock it down!

 7-8 (ABC) — Harve Presnell and Donald O'Connor are tonight's guests on THE JULIE ANDREWS HOUR.

Armchair Detective filming is underway

"Chant of Silence," the first of three 90-minute "Armchair Detective" dramas to be presented on the ABC Television Network's multi-formatted late-night series, "ABC Wide World of Entertainment," began production today (6) at the Mater Dolorosa retreat house in Sierra Madre, Calif.

The initial drama is about a skyjacker-murderer who parachutes to safety and poses as a novice monk in an isolated New Mexico monastery.

Heading the search for the skyjacker and the $300,000 payoff is a state police officer masquerading as a visiting bishop. A desperate game of wits develops with the lawman wondering if he can deceive the monks long enough to find and expose the killer before further harm comes to the peaceful monastery.

The cast includes Stovo Forrest, Anne Francis, John McLiam, Clu Gulager and Rafael Campos, with Joaquin Martinez, Don Keifer, Michael Hinn and Mike Rowan.

The entire production will be video-taped on location in Sierra Madre.

Written by Mark Rogers, the teleplay is being directed by William Graham. Executive producer of the Stonehenge Metromedia production for the ABC Television Network is Dick Berg. Producer is Lynn Stalmaster and associate producers are John Ireland and Robert Papazian.

Workshops

NEW YORK (UPI) — A sheltered workshop helps disabled persons. The workshops were developed to meet the need for special facilities in which disabled men and women can be prepared for work in regular industries. For those unable to meet the demands of competitive employment the workshop may provide extended employment where the disabled may produce according to their capabilities. There are more than 1,000 sheltered workshops in America.

FBI program

Four young criminal organization members, headed by Edward Haynes, plan to take over by assassinating the boss and his two main captains in "Night of the Long Knives" on the ABC Television Network's "The FBI" Sunday, March 25.

The coup is to take place on the day Edward Haynes is marrying the daughter of the boss, Arnold Faber. The FBI has nebulous clues that a large-scale waste is in the making, and Inspector Erskine goes undercover as a caterer.

Ercin Zumbalst Jr. stars as Inspector Lewis Erskine. Co-starring are Philip Abbott as Arthur Ward, assistant to the bureau director, and William Reynolds as Agent Tom Colby. Guest-starring are Alex Cord as Edward Haynes and Frank De Kova as Arnold Faber.

Teamplay for NBA basketball is the real name of the game

They are just names on the screen to most people. You see them at the end of the NBA Game-of-the-Week. Chris Schenkel or Keith Jackson, the play-by-play announcers, will thank Bill Russell, their expert commentary associate and the names will start showing on the screen.

Two of the credits belong to Geoff Mason and Don Ohlmeyer, producers of the show that ABC brings to an estimated 20,000,000 viewers every week. Mason and Ohlmeyer are responsible for coordinating the activities of many people.

"I work with people who know more about pro basketball and production than anyone," says Mason, a 32-year-old graduate of Duke University who has been with ABC for five years. "At ABC, we are required to know a lot about a lot of sports. On Sundays, we have to cover a basketball game better than the average guy sees it."

It happens on Sundays but starts long before then. Sometimes as early as three months before the game. "If we have not done a game in a certain arena for a while," explains Mason, "then we have to go in and look the place over. We have to familiarize ourselves with the physical setup."

Murdock Gang featured as CBS Tuesday movie

Flamboyant criminal attorney Jim Murdock, disbarred after serving time in prison, calls on the unusual skills of his staff of exconvicts when he is hired by a multi-millionaire to find an embezzling bookkeeper in "Murdock's Gang," starring Alex Drier, on "The New CBS Tuesday Night Movies," Tuesday, March 20 on the CBS Television Network. Guest stars are Janet Leigh, Murray Hamilton, William Dampier, Harold Gould and Don Knight.

While trying to clear his own name of a trumped-up perjury conviction, the high-living Murdock (Drier) discovers that his onetime girl friend, Laura Talbot (Miss Leigh), is married to his client, Harold Talbot (Hamilton), one of the world's richest men.

Drawn into the moneyed life style of the Talbots, Murdock uncovers a trail of murder, suicide, blackmail and double-dealing that provides a grueling test of his crime-solving skills.

Featured as his unorthodox aides are Walter Burke, Colby Chester, Donna Benz, Norman Alden, Ed Bernard, Charles Dieckp and David Morick.

"Murdock's Gang" was produced by Edward H. Feldman and directed by

That is an important part of the operation because it involves camera locations and electrical layouts. "We have to figure out where we want the cameras and then discuss it with the team," says Mason.

In general, the production crew is quite familiar with most arenas, so there is little need for a refresher course. At no time is anything taken for granted. Mistakes aren't tolerated. That is why the producer works out a routine in much the manner of a coach preparing his team for a game.

The ABC team normally consists of a producer, director, associate director, production assistant, five cameramen and two announcers — Russell and Schenkel or Jackson. With the introduction of regional telecasts this season, the announcing staff has been expanded to four whenever the network handles two games on a Sunday.

The production team is based in New York but the staffers, like the announcers, can be arriving in the NBA city from anywhere in the world. Jackson may be handling a truck meet in California on Saturday and be scheduled to be the play-by-play announcer for the NBA game originating from Boston the next day. "I did a bowling show in California," recalls Jackson.

"I caught a 4:45 to Chicago, then rented a car to drive to Milwaukee." Routine travel.

Announcers must be at the site of the game by midnight the night before. "We have not fussed yet," says Ohlmeyer, crossing his fingers. By the time Russell and Jackson, for example, arrive in town, the production people have done their work.

"We get into a city about three days before a game," explains Ohlmeyer, who at 27 ranks as the youngest of ABC's young staff of producers.

"There are two large mobile units we have to park. One is the control room and the other houses slow-motion and video equipment. Two technicians and either Geoff or I — whoever is producing the game that Sunday — go over the lighting situation and the engineers begin laying the cables."

By Sunday morning, the announcers have arrived and the producer and the rest of his staff gather for a strategy meeting. "We go over the format," says Mason. "We discuss the running order, what's going to happen at half-time and try to anticipate any problems that might arise."

Replays are a vital part of every sports production at ABC. "We have no restrictions," says Mason, meaning the NBA has not instructed the production staff to be careful about possibly embarrassing the officials with replays.

"We use a replay when it has some significance, not to show whether an official has made the right call," Mason points out. Sometimes it comes out that way and Russell and Jackson or Schenkel are free to say what they want.

There has been a strange effect on replays this season because of the new rule that restricts foul shooting. "The producer would use the delay while the teams lined up for the free throw to show a replay. 'I'd say we've lost about 40 percent of our replay time," says Mason. "Maybe the replays will be better because we'll have to be more selective."

Just a few of the things to think about when you watch the next edition of "NBA Basketball." Those names that roll on the screen at the end represent some important behind-the-scenes teamplay.

The Green Thumb: To Eat Marigolds?

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
Instant tan: Eat marigolds?
 A reader asks: "If they can feed marigold blossoms to chickens to give chickens and eggs an attractive gold sheen why won't it work on people?"

It probably would produce instant sūntan if you ate enough blossoms. A friend of ours had a mania for carrots and ate so many his skin turned orange.

You'll be interested to know that a Mexican marigold grower raises 7,500 acres of marigolds and he has 3,000 men and women to hand cut the flowers, according to a recent story in Southern Florist and Nurseryman.

From the marigolds he makes a natural dye which when mixed with poultry feed, gives the skin of chickens an attractive golden color and enhances the color of egg yolks.

This year, according to the story, he will gross more than $3 million from the production of 6,000 tons of marigold dye. The Rockefeller Foundation has found that the dye does result in yellower yolks and golden-birds, and there's a good chance it'll be used to produce instant sūntan.

Arkansas poultry producers have been using the marigold dye as it promotes sales of both chickens and eggs there. The Japanese import the dye to produce a special golden trout.

The Burpee Seed has been offering $10,000 to anyone who will produce a white marigold. If weather conditions are just right, you can see flashes of light shooting from one marigold flower to another.

This happens in an evening, toward dusk. Even nasturtium leaves sometimes become luminous. Can anyone account for this luminosity?

Meanwhile, if you like scrambled eggs and marigolds, try this: Chop a few marigold flowers and have ready for the required number of poached eggs.

While they are cooking, sprinkle with the flowers and a bit of nutmeg and pepper and salt to taste.

Then fry some bread, which has first been soaked in milk, serve eggs on top garnished with powdered marigolds and fried parsley. The marigolds might make your day brighter.

Purple passion plant: Gynura, the plant with the exotic name of purple passion flower, is a conversation piece because of its handsome color. It produces yellow daisies, but the real show is the vivid purple leaves.

Plant does well in semi-shaded or sunny window. Soil should be humusy (one part each of sand, peat and loam). Gynura is fragile and tends to grow crooked unless staked or trained on a wire coat hanger. Pinch the top back to make plant bushier. Purple passion or velvet plant goes into flowering and semi-dormant stage in winter.

To prevent spindliness, keep it staked and pinched back. Root the tips in water. Aphids or plant lice get on Gynura. Wash them off in the bathtub.

Italian pole beans: When it comes to pole beans everyone thinks of Kentucky Wonder. If you want a different pole bean try the Romano, an Italian pole bean. Vines are medium-size and are not strong climbers. The five inch pods are broad and flat, medium green at snap stage, and have a tinge of red streaking at shell stage. Seed is round and buff, and has good quality.

Sink poles in ground and plant five or six beans around each, and thin to the three strongest plants. Or plant seed in a row along a fence or trellis, thinning to about eight inches apart.

Coffee tree: If your coffee tree has brown spots on edge of leaves, probably you're overwatering it. Keep soil moist, but not soggy. Syringe the leaves every few days. The coffee tree likes semishade, or diffused sunlight. NOT DIRECT SUN.

It can stand a temperature anywhere from 40 to 80 degrees and still grow. Every three months feed it with a weak solution of a well-balanced water-soluble plant fertilizer such as 23-19-17.

Coffee tree is apt to get tall, although it will branch out on its own. If it gets out of bounds, prune back shoots just above a leaf joint.

We've never been able to get ours to flower indoors. Has any reader been fortunate enough to get the fragrant white flowers and red berries?

Save orange peelings? I've been asked if orange and grapefruit skins are too acid for the compost pile? Should they be saved?

Yes! Many people grind them up in a blender and toss the grindings onto the compost pile. It's not necessary to grind them though, because citrus wastes are most easily composted.

No danger to the soil due to acidity, oils or resins found in the skins. Orange skins and those of grapefruit are richer in nitrogen if skins are thick. They contain high amounts of potash and phosphorus. Banana skins, potato peels, coffee grounds, egg shells, etc. are all valuable and should be used on the compost.

Spray for ornate gardeners: A reader writes: "We raise all our vegetables organically. For a good spray, take flour, cayenne pepper and cut up some garlic cloves. Mix well and let stand couple days. When dew is on or after a rain, sprinkle this mixture on plants. You have to judge the flour by the amount of plants you have."

Garlic planted near plants keeps bugs away. We have garlic in our rose beds and in fall we dig up the plants and use them. More to plant in spring.

QUESTION BOX

Question of the week: F. R. of Twin Falls: "Last fall I put our leaves between a leaf chopper and into plastic bags. The leaves are still dry and I'm wondering how to use them. Are they worth anything in the soil?"

Yes, a ton of them is worth about $10 in nutrient value, but the real thing is organic matter—the backbone of a good soil. I would take the leaves out of the bags and scatter them on the garden or in the compost bin.

Let the snow and rains soak them up so they'll break down faster. You can rototill them into the soil as soon as it's workable. Nothing beats organic matter for loosening up a clay soil, or tightening up a sandy one.

Frederick Pierce is new ABC-TV officer

Frederick S. Pierce, Vice President in charge of Planning and Development for ABC Television, has been named to the additional position of Assistant to the President, it was announced today by Walter A. Schwartz, President of ABC Television.

"It is with a great deal of pleasure that I announce these expanded responsibilities for Fred Pierce," Mr. Schwartz said. "While continuing in his present position, Mr. Pierce now also will assist me in all facets of the television division. His long association with ABC and his wealth of knowledge of television will help insure the continued growth and success of the ABC television Division."

Mr. Pierce has been Vice President in charge of Planning and Development for ABC Television since July 1972.

Earlier, he had been Vice President in charge of Planning and Assistant to the President of the ABC Television Network since March 1970, and prior to that had served as Vice President, Planning, for the television network since November 1968. From 1964 to 1968 he was Vice President and National Director of Sales for the television network.

Mr. Pierce joined ABC in 1956 and, after serving as an analyst in the television network Research Department, was promoted to Supervisor of Audience Measurements in 1957 and Manager of Audience Measurements the following year.

In 1961 he became Director of Research, and the following year assumed added responsibilities as Director of Research and Sales Development. He was named Director of Sales Planning and Sales Development in April 1962, and was elected Vice President in February 1964.

Before joining ABC Mr. Pierce was associated with Benjamin Harrow & Son, certified public accountants. He was graduated from the Bernard Baruch School of Business Administration of the College of the City of New York. He served with the U.S. combat engineers in the Korean war. He is a member of the board of directors of the Advertising Research Foundation.

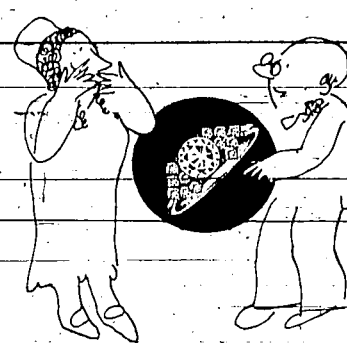

Mr. Pierce, his wife, Marion, and their children, Richard, Keith and Linda, reside in Hartsdale, N.Y.
