Beef prices up despite boycott

By United Press International
Housewives and consumer groups pledged to keep up the pressure with meat boycotts in protest against high prices across the nation, and there was some reflection of their stay-away tactics in markets for meat on the hoof today.

hog prices were slightly off at principal Midwest markets in early trading, dropping as much as $4 per hundred pounds at the big East St. Louis, Ill., market and at other Ill. markets as much as $3 at Peoria, Ill.

Meat packers, some of whom have decreased plant layoffs until the situation settles down, watched apprehensively for trends in beef marketing. But beef prices at the live level not included in the new price freeze edged $1 to $1.50 higher at principal markets.

The impact of the April Fools' week boycott of meat is already being felt, with packing houses laying off employees. More than 1,000 workers have been laid off at meat packing firms in the beef-rich Iowa-Nebraska area, and California packers laid off some employees and sent others on mandatory vacations.

Restaurant owners also were joining in the boycott. An ad in the New York Times placed by Restaurant Associates, which runs a chain of eating places, listed 13 restaurants offering reduced prices on meatless dishes. Their motto was, "Don't eat beef! Join us to fight against those ridiculous beef prices."

MV meat demand steady

TWIN FALLS — Increased demands for meat by retail outlets today prompted Independent Meat Co. to call workers back to their jobs after a one-day lay off.

At the same time, local retail outlets said they have seen no marked changes in meat buying, and it is too early to assess effects of the meat boycott.

Otto Florence Jr., president of Independent Meat, said today retail outlets' meat demands began increasing Friday and were up again today. As a result, all workers will be on the job Tuesday.

The plant, one of the largest in the state, employs about 100 workers. Florence said for the past month and a half the workers have been on the job on a curtailed basis. They have a guarantee of 36 hours per week, he said, and because of the lower demand for meat workers have been "kept busy" but some were working at other than their regular jobs.

Florence said his firm distributes meat to the Boise valley, eastern Idaho and the Magic Valley.

"I would say the Twin Falls area seems to be the least affected of any by the lower demand in meat," he said.

The pork market dropped considerably last week, he said, which probably accounts for part of the increase in demand at the packing plant level.

Independent Meat, a pioneer industry in this area, has never had a major lay-off and closure of packing operations before, Florence said, and this one was of extremely short nature.

Managers of several meat departments called by the Times-News this morning agreed it is too early to assess effects of the meat boycott.

Shelby's Market officials said there had been no discernible effect on meat sales so far and any effects of the boycott couldn't be assessed until later in the week.

Martin Martin, manager of Marty's Market, said weekend sales had been "pretty much as usual" and sales appeared to be up a bit this morning. He said he felt it was too early to say what effect the boycott might have.

"Beef sales have been a little slow for the past couple of weeks and pork sales have been off some. I think we have experienced effects from it during the past two weeks," said Chad Botkin, meat department manager at Buttery Foods. He said it is too early to tell what the effect of the boycott will be.

According to Leon M. Howe, meat market manager for Albertson's, business has been down some for the past three weeks. "Business was down yesterday, but not a great deal," Howe said.

Court won't hear pipeline appeal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court refused today to review a lower court ruling that has halted construction of a multi-million dollar oil pipeline through Alaska opposed by ecologists.

The high court rejected appeals by the federal government, Alaska and the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. from a Feb. 9 decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals here barring the Interior Department from issuing a permit for the 789-mile pipeline.

The circuit court said the width of the right-of-way exceeds the 50-foot limit in the 1920 Mineral Leasing Act.

Opponents of the project had urged the Supreme Court against involving itself in the dispute until Congress had looked into the situation. Several bills are now under consideration.

The chief opponents are the Wilderness Society, the Environmental Defense Fund, Inc., and Friends of the Earth. They told the court sufficient attention has not been given to routing both oil and gas through Canada.

Under the plan now proposed, hot crude oil would be piped from the Arctic north slope to Alaska's southern port of Valdez. It then would be loaded into tankers for transportation to west coast cities.

The oil industry insists that the pipeline is needed to bring oil from Alaska's northern area to the southern part of the state.

Opponents predicted fouling of Pacific waters along the West Coast and serious damage to the primitive Alaskan wilderness. They contended that the oil in any event is needed more in the Midwest and east, which would be the primary market under the Canadian plan.

FAA probing plane crash

ROGERSON — Investigation is continuing today in an early Sunday morning crash near here which killed a farmer, Magic Valley man and injured three others.

Dead is Gerald Duard Hill, 38, a passenger in the Piper Cherokee four-passenger plane Hill, now a resident of Meridian, formerly lived at Shoshone and Twin Falls.

Shirley Paul Cordeur said Hill was riding in the front seat of the plane and was still strapped in the crashed craft when officers arrived.

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration were scheduled to visit the site of the crash today, the sheriff said.

The crash occurred at 12:30 a.m. in a snow storm nine miles south and three-quarters of a mile east of Rogerson, about 10 minutes after the pilot and his passengers took off from the Jackpot, Nev. landing strip.

Pilot of the plane was Everett Schutte, 37, Meridian, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vern Schutte, reside in the Twin Falls area. Other passengers were identified as Thomas Berry Annau, 32, and his wife, Janet Annau, 29, both Boise.

Officers said they suffered minor injuries but were taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital by ambulance.

Mrs. Annau was to be released from the hospital sometime today. Annau suffered a fractured and dislocated shoulder and Schutte was treated for cuts and bruises. Both men were listed in satisfactory condition today.

Persons who saw the plane take off said it did so in a heavy snow storm and they wondered at the time why the pilot elected to fly in that type of weather.

Schutte told officers the plane began losing altitude and power shortly after he left Jackpot and he turned around, heading back south toward the landing strip when the plane hit a ridge. Officers said it hit and flipped over, demolishing the craft but the pilot and the two passengers in the rear seats were able to get the door open and get out of the craft.

Viet raids could resume

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Elliott L. Richardson (right) said Sunday U.S. mining of ports and bombing of North Vietnam could be resumed if Hanoi fails to abide by cease-fire provisions.

Richardson also said in a TV interview the U.S. is continuing its bombing campaign in Cambodia "to try to encourage" the Communists to observe the cease-fire in that country.

Dakota talks continue

PINE RIDGE, S. D. (UPI) — Negotiators in the Wounded Knee standoff were to meet again today in an effort to end the 34-day occupation of the hamlet by militant members of the American Indian Movement. There were also reports several AIM supporters carrying ammunition into the besieged hamlet had been arrested late Sunday.

S. Viets boycott meeting

SAIGON (UPI) — The South Vietnamese government will boycott meetings of the Joint Military Commission with the Viet Cong until Communist attacks on the outpost at Le Chau 50 miles north of Saigon, are halted.

More witnesses on list

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three more witnesses may be called to testify before the Senate Judiciary Committee this week before it takes a showdown vote on President Nixon's confirmation of L. Patrick Gray III as FBI director. Committee sources indicated the hearings could end this week and hinted the delay may be an invitation to the President to withdraw the nomination.

ITT head denies block

WASHINGTON (UPI) — ITT President Harold S. Geneen insisted today "his company" did not take any steps to block the election of Salvador Allende as president of Chile in 1970.

Geneen, in a prepared statement to a Senate subcommittee investigating allegations that International Telephone and Telegraph sought to prevent the Marxist Allende's election, denied ITT offered to finance any anti-Allende effort.

In the statement, Geneen also said ITT did not encourage any military coup to block Allende's election nor take any action to cause economic chaos in Chile. He declared:

"ITT did not take any steps to block the election of Salvador Allende as president of Chile."

He said, "all that ITT did was to present its views, concerns and ideas to various departments of the U.S. government. This is not only its right, but also its obligation."

"The right is a very important constitutional right, and I would hope that this committee would agree that it is not wrong for a citizen to try to approach government officials to discuss with them his problems and concerns, and to raise possible solutions consistent with government policies," Geneen said.

"In turn, the obligation to so petition the government arises because the management of my company has a direct obligation to the shareholders and to the employees to attempt to protect their interests."

Geneen said that a July 10, 1970, meeting he had with William V. Broe, refused to permit formal testimony by present and former aides. Nixon has said he would be willing to defend the policy in the courts.

Ervin renewed his threat to seek arrest for contempt of anyone who refuses to cooperate with the committee.

He said he felt the White House refusal to let aides testify was a "terrible disservice to the high office of the presidency."

Public testimony in the Watergate probe might be interesting, indeed, Sen Ervin players were young people. This was not the often-bored appearance of many military bands. They looked, with the harp and cello, and sounded highly symphonic. Taken integration was made by having one black band member, one black chorus member, and one female clarinetist who played last chair.

To a packed CSL Auditorium the United States Air Force Band performed Sunday night, in brilliant blue uniforms. The military band, flanked by fans even seated behind the band on the stage, was founded in 1942, making it the youngest of the military groups.

Compositions heard included an excellent transcription by Odnorof Offenbach's 'Orpheus in the Underworld,' featuring first rate clarinet, oboe, and particularly English Horn solos. The brass were featured in 'Festival Fanfare' by Roger Nixon. James Scott did a professional job as alto saxophone soloist on 'Introduction and Samba' by Whitney.

Jews Are Planning To March

WASHINGTON — The American Jewish community is now planning anti-Soviet demonstrations in every American city on the schedule of Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev during his state visit to the U.S. later this year — another instance of how the campaign for unhindered emigration of Soviet Jews is affecting President Nixon's foreign policy.

The likely result of anti-Brezhnev demonstrations — extreme embarrassment to President Nixon, returning Brezhnev's hospitality at the Moscow summit last May. The prospect might even threaten cancellation of the first visit here in 14 years of the Kremlin's top man. What impact — large or small — that might have on the U.S.-Soviet detente, the centerpiece of Mr. Nixon's foreign policy, is pure conjecture.

Confidential discussions about the shape and the force of such demonstrations have already been held in many cities, although leaders of the principal Jewish organization involved — the National Conference of Soviet Jewry — have made no decision to issue any public summons.

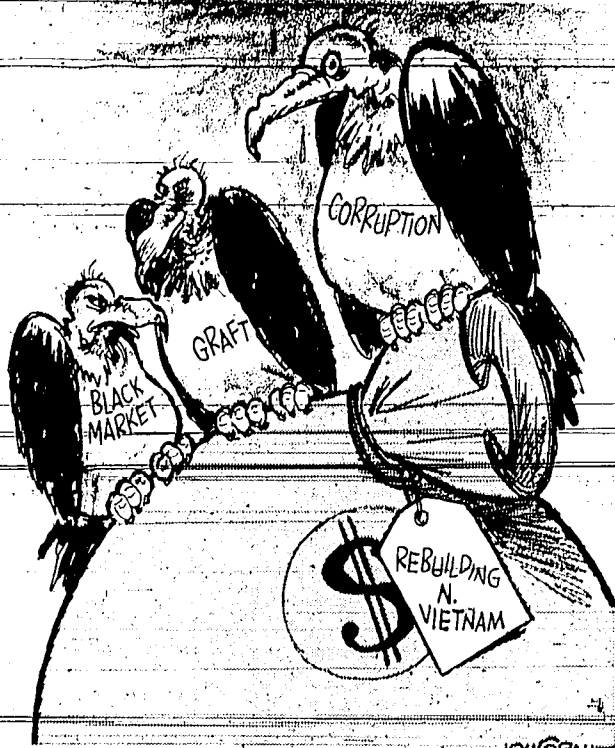

"This issue is out of the leaders' hands," one such leader told us. "It touches the inner heart and soul of every Jew who can remember the Nazi holocaust."

Part of this emotion, thoughtful American Jews say, is guilt retained by those who looked the other way 40 years ago when Adolf Hitler turned his terrible scourge on the Jews of Germany, culminating in the furnaces of Auschwitz and Buchenwald.

This searing memory is not limited to Jews. The ten U.S. clergymen protesting the emigration tax, who were denied entrance to the Soviet Union last month, consisted of nine Christians and only one rabbi and was headed by a Catholic priest, Rep. Robert F. Drinan of Massachusetts.

Even though political demonstrations against Brezhnev will probably develop spontaneously, leaders of the National Conference on Soviet Jewry are holding their meetings in New York and other cities to decide top-level strategy. Far more than the militant Jewish Defense League is involved here. Rather, the Conference, headed by New York businessman Richard Madais, has roots that go deep into Jewish synagogues throughout the country. The normal flow of day-to-day information about every aspect of the Soviet problem cross-fertilizes these roots, creating a powerful unanimity throughout the American Jewish community which transcends any leadership role.

A History Lesson

The Post-Register

It was impressive — the diverse panorama of the unfolding reach and quality of the LDS Church's Education system over the world.

But the salient impressions at this week's "look at the future" meeting at Ricks College were more personal. Dr. Henry B. Eyring, the perceptive and innovative new president of Ricks College, and Dr. M. F. Rigby of Rexburg, the college's indefatigable off-campus antidote for the impossible, were the provocative radiants. Together they reflected that indispensable dualism of campus leadership and off-campus supporter that make the exciting difference between an ordinary college and a college with a mission.

Dr. Eyring himself has resourcefully delineated the college's mission. Not only does he bring an abiding commitment to the college goal of permeating a God-consciousness in the students, but has implanted his remarkably diffuse educational background in several innovative projects. One such project says something telling about Dr. Eyring as well as the Church system. Intrigued at the potential of ordinary or below students, "the strugglers," in finding their confidence, Dr. Eyring established an experiment where four dedicated and skilled teachers worked intensively with 30 of these kinds of students. Besides the patiently insistent academic plying by the teachers, the project demanded a singular "working together" where students quite naturally learned the values and satisfaction of helping each other. Students began to find confidence in themselves and in relating to the campus. The achievements, while not finally tabulated, have been remarkable. And in the process, the students have a subtle intake of values and values are important at Ricks.

As Dr. Eyring said so well, Ricks is committed to the proposition of not only teaching the students vocational and academic skills but how to live in, how to measure and how to imprint their values on the bewildering world of the 20th century. The extra-mile faculty seeks to inculcate a wholeness of character and attitude in which students can make their critical life-choices from an unchanging, spiritually-laced premise. A Ricks student should know where he came from and where he is going, and what can stand accommodation in the world and what cannot. This kind of leavening makes for stability in a college world where a relentless God-erasing is elsewhere characteristic. Our rigid separation of church and state is itself indispensable, but one cannot argue that too often the state college graduate has become so unconsciously accustomed to putting God in a closet during his four years on the campus that graduation finds him or her with a purposeless vacuum. These have to seek out their spiritual bridges for themselves, later, or lose the awareness of man's fulfilling pilgrimage of challenge and response in salvation's mandate.

The church education system's steady expansion into 50 countries, extended to all races and places, has placed a critical burden on the church, however. The Ricks College meeting was called to explore how Ricks and its supporters could find more of a support base in its own service area. It was especially appropriate in this context that Dr. Rigby, the after-burner of many a Ricks campaign, was the honoree at the meeting. History has already chronicled the roles of Dr. Rigby and Delbert Taylor, Rexburg LDS stake leader, in turning around the decision of church authorities to move the college from Rexburg to Idaho Falls. Both in a face-to-face appeal to the church's presiding bishopric at a historic meeting at Rexburg and in numerous other briefs presented to numerous other church leaders, these two men gave such compelling and articulate presentations that the incipient "second thoughts" of the decision-makers finally gave way to a firm decision to stay in Madison County. Rarely has the church seen such an intense and incessant marshalling against a decision, which, for all practical purposes, had already been made. It said something about both the listenership of authority in the forums of the church as well as the indomitable dedication of these men to the college.

Dr. Rigby's honorarium last Tuesday night also extended to many other milestones of his unswerving devotion to college and community. As the "college doctor," he gave freely of his services to students who needed it. Down through the years, when the occasion called for a troubleshooter to get this project or that accomplished, they turned to Dr. Rigby. He never seemed to know that it couldn't be done.

His extraordinary gifts of persuasion and organization are directly and precisely matched to the sincerity and dedication he brought to his purpose... and the awareness by those he approached for help that this tireless and skilled physician had emptied himself out for too many causes to list. He is that touchstone of volunteerism that shapes history in a place, because history consistently had to give in to him.

Ricks College, as Dr. Neal Maxwell, commissioner of education for the Church, so effectively said, has a secure and bright future because of men like Dr. Rigby, the citizen-commando with so many civic beachheads behind him.

Smell In The Air

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. — From Chillicothe, Ohio, you drive south to Portsmouth, Ohio, then southeast to Ashland, Ky. before crossing another state line into Huntington. From Wheeling, W. Va., on a rough circle to Zanesville, Ohio, and then to Huntington, this is chemical country.

Farms, yes, and coal mining. But the smell that hangs in the air is produced by the Dows and the Union Carbides. People work hard for a living, rising early in the dark morning chill, and they know the true value of the dollar they earn, whatever the world's currency speculators think of it.

True, the dollar doesn't buy as much these days, and there is a cold fury about the high cost of living. Still, the dollar is valued because it doesn't come easily when it is the product of a man's sweat or the grinding boredom of a woman in a production line.

Thus, it should not be surprising, even to the sleek Washington bureaucrat to whom every town west of the Potomac is Hillsville, that most folks hereabouts think the United States is still spending too many of their dollars abroad, especially in a Europe they see as fat and ungrateful.

On a tour that started in Washington, 43 people — ranging from bank presidents to charwomen — were asked for comment on the demand of Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., that the U.S. bring home many of the 60,000 servicemen stationed around the world. An almost incredible 40 agreed with the Senate majority leader. Indeed, 31 said we should also cut the size of our armed forces.

Provincial neo-isolationism? Not at all. The 43 polled all agreed the U.S. should maintain its leadership of what's left of the free world. But as Claude Simonds of Portsmouth put it, "We can do it by smart diplomacy, like Nixon's trips to China and Russia. We don't need troops everywhere in the world to show how rich and tough we are."

Mostly, however, Claude Simonds' an auto mechanic, and the others were speaking from their pocketbook. As people who work hard for their dollars, they were appalled at Mansfield's expert estimate that it has cost $30-billion a year to maintain U.S. troops and facilities abroad. "Thirty Billion dollars a year," snapped Guglielmo Santalini, a Union Carbide worker in Wheeling. "That's what's wrong with the country."

That's why you gotta heck your right arm for a pound of stewing beef. They tell us don't spend so much money and we won't have inflation, and they spend $30-billion a year that way.

"They," of course, is Washington, an unpopular city with those interviewed. The disdain is nonpartisan. In one breath, Harry Wood of Ashland blasts the big spending of President Kennedy and Johnson. In the next, he says "We ought to pass a law making Nixon stay in the White House instead of running around like

Women Work?

Our country's weakness is its strength; we can't get together on anything. And in a republic, we don't have to.

Ethnic groups stick together in theory but not in practice. The most autonomous religions, in the United States, are black and fragmented.

If blacks could get together and stick together, they'd be a decisive force in American politics, but they are as disorganized as the rest of us. Now women seeking to assert themselves are encountering the most resistance from — women.

Early in February there was an event of historic significance in Houston, Texas, the first convention of the National Women's Political Caucus.

Founders hoped for a turnout of perhaps 500; more than 1,000 registered from 42 states. Liz Carpenter, who was White House press secretary for Lady Bird Johnson, keynoted the convention: "It's time for more women to seek public office."

During the last election, more women sought and won political office, 20 per cent more went to state legislatures, six more went to Congress. This, said Miss Carpenter, shows it can be done. "Enough success so that we like the taste. For long enough we've been working for women candidates. Now it's time to file and run and elect ourselves!"

The convention included workshops on lobbying, credit discrimination, rape, sexual privacy, welfare, divorce laws, women in prisons, how to pressure elected and appointed officials — but the primary thrust of the convention was to urge women candidates to run for public office. Even before the three-day convention concluded there was friction, fussing, hard feelings.

The elected chairperson, "Sissy" Farenthold, conceded that her first challenge would be to keep disgruntled factions from defecting. Women in industry were at first uncomfortable and frequently unwelcome as they are today in politics. Yet women who were less than 29 per cent of our work force 20 years ago comprise 37.4 per cent of it today; their number has doubled. Yet for all the progress they have made in business and the professions, women working for women compatibly remains rare.

Women hold 37.4 of all jobs, less than 2 per cent of managerial jobs, though industry is virtually forced by law to seek women for such jobs. Women workers are as "segregated" as relegated to subservience in business today as they were 30 years ago.

The President's Council of Economic Advisors advises that women lawyers, women car salesmen, women bosses are rejected by women.

Now might this holdover preference of women to be led by men (and Paul Harvey just kicked a cactus barefoot), might this tradition or whatever, this female reticence to accept the superiority of another female, might this snafu the opportunities for women in politics?

Betty Friedan, who helped launch Women's Lib a decade ago and remains one of its more responsible exponents, says such successors in the movement as Gloria Steinem and Bella Abzug imagine that "man is the enemy." He's not — woman is.

Mirror Writing

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am concerned about my grandson, going on 5 and learning to write. He starts his characters from the right and works to the left. When held up to a mirror they look all right.

My husband says he has heard of this and believes there is a name for it, but does not know the cure. A.W.P.

This is called — not surprisingly! — mirror writing. It is fairly common among youngsters who are learning to write but not a cause for any great concern. Reasonable care and patience in getting the youngster to write from left to right, true, but no cause for alarm or despair.

This odd trait is more common among left-handers than right-handed children but this is NOT reason to attempt to change the left-handedness.

Just why this trait develops is a bit problematical. Probably the most logical explanation is that a child, eager enough to learn to shape letters the right way, doesn't see any particular reason why he should do it from that side to this, instead of from this side to that. After all, don't some cultures favor a sequence from up to down instead of side to side? Anyway, when mirror-writing develops, it is important for parents and teachers to be patient in showing the youngster his error. Correct him but don't make a big fuss about it. As his writing skill improves, the mirror writing will disappear.

Pulling Our Legs?

Sawtooth Mountaineer — We read the re-printed editorial twice — we thought they were doing it tongue-in-cheek. But unfortunately it seems they were serious.

The editors of the Idaho State Journal (Pocatello) were clucking over the abuse being heaped on ranchers who had sold the wild horses rounded up recently in the state's central mountains.

Public indignation was particularly strong at that time, you will recall, when it was learned that some horses were spooked off a cliff to their death (probably by a helicopter) and the survivors had their nostrils stapled to keep them quiet after the round-up and en route to the dog food factory.

The editorial indicated the meanest thing you can do in that part of the state is to leave an animal without food for the winter, and that the horses in question were nearly starved when rounded up (from such animals, are we to believe, you can make dog food?). The line that stuck with us in that memorable editorial was in reference to the nostril-stapling. It read, "If that makes you queasy, just remember it's only a business and a knotholed horse, probably doesn't have much feeling anyhow."

We've read the editorial a fifth and sixth time and still must conclude the writer is serious. Incredible.

Incredible.

The Outlook Appraisal of Current Trends In Business and Finance

Food prices. Not even sex or taxes is getting more attention in conversation and commentary these days. They are "going through the roof," it is said. And indeed their upward march is sharp. They have jumped at retail some 33% since the middle of the last decade. But beyond the fact of the steep climb, the confusion and befuddlement is unlimited. The farmer is blamed. The "middle man" is blamed. The supermarket is blamed. And all wrongly. The basic forces behind the trend, it would seem, actually should be pretty obvious.

The prime pusher is something seldom mentioned in relation to food costs. It is simply the huge growth in the number of dollars American families have to spend on food and everything else. If food prices have indeed gone through the roof, the level of personal income is some twenty feet above the roof.

The table below traces the story of the official yardsticks used to measure both food prices and income. The retail food price index (1967 equals 100) is that prepared by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The per capita disposable personal income (after taxes) figures come from the Commerce Department. The 1965 starting point is used because that is about the time the current brisk inflation began. The 1972 figures are December for food and the final quarter for income.

Food Prices vs Income

Year	Food Prices	Per Capita Disp. Income
1965	94.4	$2,436
1966	99.1	2,604
1967	100.0	2,749
1968	103.6	2,945
1969	108.9	3,130
1970	114.9	3,366
1971	118.4	3,595
1972	126.0	3,954

What the official record since 1965 adds up to is:

Retail Food Prices: Up 33%.
Per Capita Income: Up 62%.

There is more to the big rise in income than individual wage increases—as sharp as these have been. Important, too, is the unprecedented gain in multiple paychecks within individual families. The leap in the number of women and teenagers on payrolls makes this clear. The paychecks of adult women are especially important.

Tabled below are Labor Department figures on employed women (20 years or older) and teenagers of both sexes. The country's population growth is included for comparison.

Women & Teenage Employment (Millions)

	1965	1972	Up
Women	22.6	28.1	24%
Teenagers	5.0	6.6	32%
Population	194.3	208.8	7%

With personal income dollars up nearly twice as much as food prices since the mid-1960's, is it surprising that the cost of eating is up as much as it is? Isn't it, rather, surprising that such a flood of buying power hasn't pushed it even higher? Only the gigantic food production capacity of the U.S. has kept this from happening.

The pace at which the well-heeled American public has swung to "better eating" (more meat) in recent years is amazing. From about 88 pounds in 1962, per capita consumption of beef has bounded upward to an estimated 118 pounds this year. That is a jump of some 34%. And the leap is not measured in dollar prices. It is pounds of beef on the plate.

This brings us to another and probably more potent pressure on food costs in the immediate past. People in Europe and Japan have grown more prosperous too. They, too, are "eating better." And they are reaching across the seas to the American garden for more nourishment.

The U.S. exports relatively little meat as such. But the foreigners are growing more animals of their own. And this is where the U.S. enters the picture.

Steers don't get fat on fresh air. Cows don't produce more milk and cheese on psychological contentment alone. Broiler chickens don't grow plump from eating grasshoppers. They need grain—all of them. Grain is really meat-by-the-bushel. And the feed grain flow overseas from the U.S. rises sharply.

Here are some corn export figures spanning the last decade. Not all destination countries are included, of course. So the ones given don't add up to the export total.

U.S. Exports of Corn (Millions of Bushels)

Destination	1959	1971
Belgium-Luxembourg	12.3	24.3
France	0.2	2.0
West Germany	17.7	45.5
Italy	0.4	47.3
Japan	7.3	116.1
Netherlands	34.1	89.5
All Countries	210.1	500.9

Foreign crop conditions cause yearly figures to fluctuate. But the trend is steeply up. The total was some 670 million bushels in one recent year. And the current year is the real whopper. It is projected at a billion bushels or more.

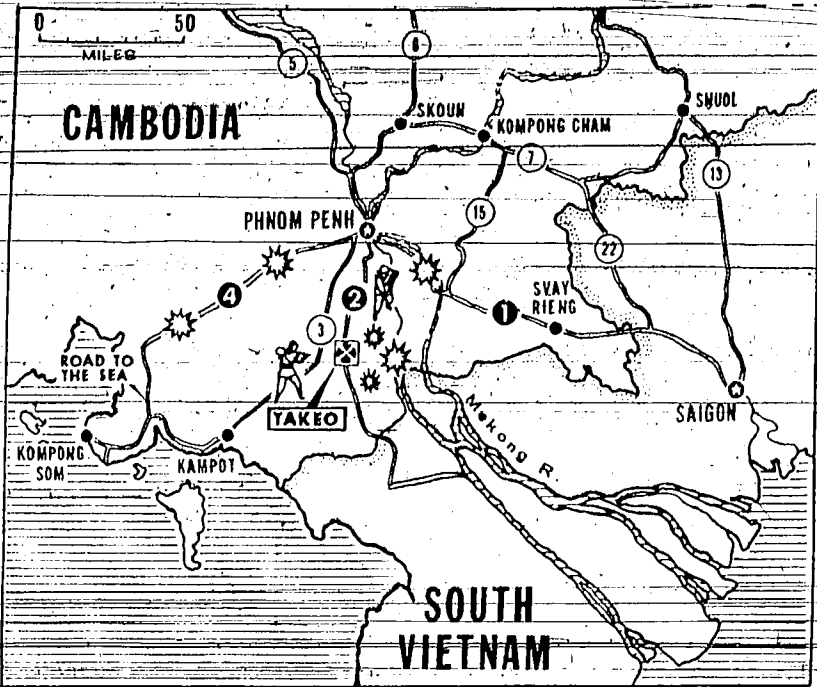

Or take soybeans. Soybean cake and meal is widely used in feed for dairy cattle and chickens. And the rise in exports of U.S. soybeans has been spectacular. Such exports came to 141 million bushels in 1959. This year they are expected to hit 475 million bushels, aided by a Latin American slump in production of fish meal (soybean meal substitutes for it).

Prices on feed grains, pressured by huge home-and-foreign demand, have naturally soared. Corn that brought $1.20 a bushel just a year ago is now around $1.60. Runaway soybeans have jumped from some $3.30 a bushel a year ago to the $6.65-a-bushel neighborhood today. And when feed grain prices rise, it follows as the night the day that prices on beef, pork, chickens, and eggs must do likewise.

The mighty U.S. farm factory can produce more of both grain and meat. The problem heretofore has been to keep it from overproducing. Many unplanted acres are now due to go back into planting. But if the U.S. meat eating binge keeps up, and if foreign demand for U.S. meat-by-the-bushel keeps soaring, the U.S. farmer may have a run for his money to keep the cost-of-eating from going even higher.

Jury deadlocked London docks idle in kidnap trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The jury in the Rachel Magee kidnap-murder trial, fatigued by seven straight days of deliberations, said Sunday night it was deadlocked. The judge ordered it to keep working.

Magee was removed from the courtroom when he called Superior Court Judge Morton Colvin "a hypocrite son of a bitch" for failing to heed his request to have a court stenographer slow down in rereading 10 pages of testimony.

The panel of six women and six men was ordered to resume deliberations today. They received the case last Monday and have spent 50 hours in deliberations.

Magee, 34, a black who has spent the last 18 years in prison, is accused of killing a judge and kidnaping five hostages during a futile escape attempt at the Marin County Civic Center Aug. 7, 1970. Four persons, including the judge, died in the ensuing gun battle.

Black militant Angela Davis last year was acquitted of murder-kidnap in the same case. Defense attorney Robert Carrow accused Colvin of trying to "coerce" the jury.

"This court is not trying to coerce the jury in any way, shape or form," replied Colvin. Carrow asked how much longer the judge planned to keep the jury deliberating.

"I'll let you know in due course," said Colvin. Jury foreman Bernard Soares told Colvin the panel was "hopelessly deadlocked" 11-1 on the kidnaping complaint and 10-2 on the murder charge. There was no indication which way the majority was inclined.

Further deliberation is of no use, he said. One time as the jury was leaving the courtroom, Magee rose from his seat and shouted: "Hang on in there!"

Colvin cited a 1969 ruling by a California appeals court which allows a judge to use his own discretion in urging a jury to come up with a verdict. The judge said the three holdouts on the jury "should consider whether the doubt in their mind is a reasonable one and whether the opinion of their fellow jurors ought to be considered."

Defense attorneys said they would file a motion for immediate relief of the jury.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The field in Tuesday's nonpartisan primary election for mayor of the nation's third largest city has narrowed to four front-runners, including incumbent Sam Yorty, seeking an unprecedented fourth term.

There are 13 combatants in all. A majority of the total vote is needed to win election outright. If no one gets that much, the top two vote-getters hold a runoff.

None of the candidates was expected to get the majority needed to avert a runoff May 29.

The four front-runners are City Councilman Thomas Bradley, a black, who lost to Yorty four years ago and is seeking to become the city's first black chief executive. He is the probable top vote getter, according to public opinion polls.

Former Police Chief Thomas Reddin, once on the cover of Time Magazine as the leading chief of police in the nation, who turned television newscaster before running for office.

Jess Unruh, former state Assembly speaker and once known as the "Big Daddy" of California politics, who has promised to break ground on a fixed-rail rapid transit system in his first year as mayor if elected.

Yorty, the much-publicized "traveling mayor" who ran unsuccessfully for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972 and is running a low-keyed campaign on the platform that Los Angeles is the best run major city in the nation.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Residents of Managua awoke nearby volcano today for five strong earthquakes that shook the runs left by a destructive earlier quake in which 10,000 persons died.

The tremors Saturday shook down walls, caused some panic and left the city without electricity several hours.

But there were no reports of injuries. "The building danced like it was on rollers," said an employee of the downtown communications palace. The palace was one of a few downtown buildings left standing after an earthquake Dec. 20 killed 10,000 persons.

Retired Col. Carlos Silva said he was convinced the earthquakes were caused by the Santiago volcano, 20 miles east of Managua.

National Guardsmen were called in to help keep spectators out of the area. A gas main at the house was ruptured when the car struck the structure but the main was shut off a short time later.

One of the derailed cars struck an automobile and two cars blocked a street in the area.

LONDON (UPI) — Docks in London were idled today by a complex dispute over the second phase of the British government's wage control program.

Twenty-seven ships were idled by the dispute, involving 8,000 dock workers. The longshoremen objected to a wage agreement that fell within the limits set by Phase Two of the government's inflation controls. The second phase controls came into force Sunday.

Another thorn in the pay deal, the longshoremen insisted upon work rules which would mean more men working each ship. When the morning shift reported today the men were told rules were unacceptable. The men insisted and they were sent home without pay.

SEoul (UPI) — Two heavily armed U.S. Army soldiers barricaded themselves inside a Korean police guardbox for more than nine hours today, demanding honorable discharges from the Army, immunity from prosecution and transportation out of Korea.

The soldiers, Sp5 Michael McDonald, 25, of Oakland, Calif. and PFC Terry Hergert, 22, of St. Johns, Wash., surrendered to U.S. officials about 7:45 p.m. (5:45 a.m. EST) after two buddies convinced them to give up.

McDonald and Hergert took a small arsenal inside the police guardbox, including at least three light machine guns, two shotguns, two M16 rifles, two grenade launchers, three cases of grenades and a large store of ammunition.

Witnesses said they also had a supply of food. "They could have filled a delivery van," a witness said. Military spokesmen said the two gave up peacefully after two friends, PFCs Johnnie A. Dunn and Steven Zimmerman, pleaded with them to drop their demands and return to military control.

Their surrender ended a day of tense confrontation between the two soldiers and nearly 100 American and South Korean troops and policemen on Namsan Hill in Seoul.

Army spokesmen said no charges were filed immediately against the two soldiers, who first seized control of the police box at 10:30 a.m. They were stationed at Camp Humphreys, Pyongtaek, Korea, 35 miles south of Seoul.

The spokesman said three Korean policemen and five civilians also spent the day in the police box, but he said the Koreans were not held hostage.

Gen. D. V. Bennett, commander-in-chief of U.S. forces in Korea, came to the hill, but did not talk to the two soldiers. According to Korean police sources, McDonald and Hergert came to the police box at about 8:30 A.M. in an army truck loaded with the weapons.

CAIRO (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat flew to Libya today for talks with Libyan leader Muammar Khadafy and other officials in Tripoli.

Egypt gave no specific reason for the visit, which political sources said was expected to last one or two days. Sadat's visit to Libya was his first since January when he discussed with Khadafy plans for the proposed merger of the two countries, scheduled for September.

The two leaders also were expected to discuss the Arab-Israeli situation and affairs of the Federation of Arab Republics, of which Sadat is chairman. The federation comprises Egypt, Libya and Syria.

Last POW 'free man'

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (UPI) — Army Capt. Robert F. White went through the medical checks today that have paved the road home for 595 prisoners before him. The last-known American POW of the Vietnam war was "a free man again."

White was shepherded through an array of medical tests at the base hospital, a preliminary to his flight to the United States and reunion with his wife, which is expected Wednesday.

White, 32, of Newport News, Va., was pronounced in "satisfactory condition," hospital officials said, despite long terms of imprisonment in tiny jungle cages.

Officials said that White was kept on the move most of the time since his capture 3 1/2 years ago.

With Communist guards carefully watching him, he was loaded on foot and paddled in tiny sampans around the Mekong Delta right up to an hour before he finally was turned over to American authorities Sunday, sources said.

"I'm very happy to be a free man again," White said after his arrival here.

White was freed four days after the Communists had said they would turn loose all American war prisoners. Just why he was held so long was not clear.

An information officer who flew with White from Saigon to the Philippines, Navy Lt. Cmdr.

Jay Coupe, said White and his Communist guards were aware of the provisions of the Paris treaty that should have been released by March 28.

"He was very surprised to find out he was not on the POW list provided by the Viet Cong to the Americans after the Paris agreement," Coupe said.

Hospital sources said the worst part of White's captivity was the two years that followed the downing of his Army OV-10 Hawk electronics spy plane Nov. 15, 1969.

"He was kept in a cage," sources said. They described the series of one-man jungle jails as tiny, barred wooden enclosures, sometimes not big enough for the army floor to stretch his body to full length.

Treatment was harsh, food was poor and White often was tied up as well as locked in the cell, the sources said.

"About a year and a half ago, though, his conditions suddenly got better. There was no obvious reason for it," they said.

White suddenly was given the freedom of the Viet Cong camp during the day, and he seldom if ever was caged in his bamboo box again.

He stayed on the move, however, right up to the time of his release Sunday, for which he arrived three hours late because of the long walk from his last prison camp to the release point at Xon Thieu Village, 75 miles south of Saigon.

CAPT. W.E. WILBER ... conscience stricken

Anti-war sincerity admitted

NEW YORK (UPI) — A former prisoner of war who made propaganda broadcasts for Hanoi said Sunday he did not know if that was the reason he was treated well in prison, but that the broadcasts were sincere.

Navy Capt. Walter E. "Gene" Wilber of Virginia Beach, Va., said he had become convinced the U.S. policy in Vietnam was wrong.

"The pressure of conscience just required me to make some civic action," he said.

Wilber was asked by interviewer Mike Wallace on CBS TV's "Sixty Minutes" whether his good treatment by North Vietnamese guards might have been caused by his statements.

"Well, that's a very tough thing to state. And all I can say is that I am very sincere right now. I was very sincere then," he said.

The broadcast included a recording that Wilber acknowledged making for Radio Hanoi. In the recording he said, "A recent unification of the many anti-Vietnam war groups, along with millions of peace-loving citizens for an early end to the Vietnam war brought floods of joy into my heart."

Wilber said that after being shot down in June, 1968, he spent 20 months in solitary confinement where "I found out that when I had time to think about myself, where I was, what we were doing, I found out that my conscience bothered me."

All but one POW back in US

By United Press International
All but one of America's known prisoners of war were back in America today and the sole exception was free and preparing to go home.

The last group of former prisoners arrived Sunday at Travis Air Force Base, Calif., where 6,500 persons, the largest crowd in the short history of "Operation Homecoming," cheered.

The last ex-POW off the C-41 jet was Air Force Capt. Frank Lewis, 28, of Boston, whose wife, Wynne, and daughter, Kelly, waited at the end of a red-white-and-blue welcome mat.

Air Force Lt. Col. Louis H. Bernasconi, Northridge, Calif., spoke for the other men. "God bless each and every one of you. God bless our commander-in-chief, President Nixon. God bless these United States of America," he said.

From the crowd came an echo of voices singing "God Bless America."

The last prisoner released and the last known to have been held by the Communists was Army Capt. Robert T. White of Newport News, Va.

He was turned over to the Americans by the Viet Cong in the Mekong Delta Sunday, flown to Saigon and then to Clark Air Base in the Philippines. On hand at Clark to greet him was his wife, Judith.

White was the 566th prisoner of war the Communists have freed. The total included 561

American military men, 24 American civilians, two Thais, two Filipinos, two Canadians and two West Germans.

Until last Wednesday, it was not known that White was held prisoner. His release has raised faint hopes that some of the 1,300 Americans still listed as missing in action may be alive, especially in Laos. Official sources in Vientiane believe as many as 200 of the 300 U.S. pilots shot down over Laos may have survived their crashes.

The Operation Homecoming machinery at Clark is being cut back to a skeleton staff this week, but Gen. T. William G. Moore Jr., the commander of the reception center, said, "We have the capability of reassembling on very short notice the entire homecoming apparatus if we again need it."

Other released POWs went home, or close to home, Sunday for reunions with their relatives.

Air Force Lt. Col. William J.

Breckner, 39, Columbus, Ohio, was greeted by his wife, Cheryl, son William, 5, daughter Kristen, 3, and his father and stepmother at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio.

Canadian freed

COMOX, B.C. (UPI) — A Canadian missionary held prisoner for five months in Indochina says he was treated "badly" by his Communist captors who considered him "a collaborator with American imperialism."

Lloyd Dudley Oppel, 21, of Courtenay, B.C., returned to Canada late Sunday, four days after he was freed in Hanoi with the last group of repatriated American prisoners of war. He alighted from a Canadian forces aircraft here, about three miles from his home, carrying a small Canadian flag and embraced members of his family.

"It's good to be home," he said, clutching at the hand of his 10-year-old step-sister Marion, an Indian girl the Oppels adopted at birth.

Following a 10-minute news conference, Oppel was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital here for a bedside reunion with his mother, Mrs. Phyllis Oppel, 62.

Four medex help doctors in valley

TWIN FALLS — Four former military medical corpsmen are helping to relieve the physicians' workloads in Magic Valley now.

A project called Medex provided these men with special training at the University of Washington and prepared them to help over-worked doctors in rural communities.

Medex G. Jay Butler, who served in the Army medical corps during the Korean War, has been assisting Dr. Alden M. Packer and Dr. Robert Gwinner in Wood River Valley since August.

Butler is an R. N. and has worked for an Ogden pediatrician in addition to seven years with a pharmaceutical company.

Medex Michael Erkel is assisting Dr. Glen A. Hoss of Twin Falls. Erkel, 27, was a medic with the special forces in Vietnam for a year. He has an associate of arts degree in surgery and has worked as an operating room technician.

An Armed Forces medic for eight years, serving tours in Vietnam and Thailand, Medex Don Peter has been assisting Dr. Jon Wilmoth in Jerome for about a month. Peter, 26, formerly worked as a physician's assistant in the Midwest.

Retired Navy corpsman David Hallman, 40, has been assisting Dr. C. W. Collings in Buhl since last August. Hallman spent 17 of his 22 years of naval service aboard submarines, as the only medical representative on board.

All four men received training, paid for by the government, from the University of Washington, and all are in the "preceptor" phase of their training.

This phase, says Butler, is designed to ensure the Medex works with his physician as a unit. "It is important the doctor knows how the medex, as his agent, responds to his patients," he says. In his instance, he says, the goal would be that Dr. Packer, Dr. Gwinner and himself would react to the same symptoms and evidence with the same uniform and sound conclusions.

During the preceptor phase the medexes attend sessions in Washington every three months to update their medical education.

During training the men cover all normal medical systems, according to Butler, including physical examinations, emergency problems and care of the chronically ill.

They also studied such special topics as cardiology, infectious diseases, social patient adjustment, dermatology, orthopedics, casting, dental emergencies, and ENT, eye, ear, nose and throat.

Out of 3,500 veterans of medical work in the military 38 were selected for training for the Medex program, according to Erkel, and 13 were selected for interviews with physicians. Idaho has 11 medexes presently. There are some 250 medexes, mostly in the northwest.

The program, which takes its name from the French medicine extension, was conceived in 1968 by Dr. Richard Smith, a professor of health service at the University of Washington.

Smith had surveyed his state and found a serious imbalance between urban and rural medical services. Smith and the medical school launched the first medex demonstration in 1969 with 15 former medical corpsmen.

In a 1971 Washington survey of the results, eight doctors reported they were able to treat 40 to 50 per cent more patients than the year before because of the medex.

By reducing the physician's patient load, Butler, for example, has freed one physician, on a rotating schedule to conduct office hours every Tuesday in Fairfield to meet that community's needs. Butler travels to Fairfield on Friday afternoons.

Following his year as a trainee to a preceptor-physician, the medex is certified and, by prior arrangement, is employed by his preceptor.

"I selected the doctor I would most like to go to if ill and decided Dr. Hoss most nearly fit that description," said Erkel.

The trained medex is equipped to relieve the physician of many routine tasks such as taking histories and doing routine physical examinations, simple X-ray diagnosis, suturing, minor surgery like the removal of cysts and moles, handling night calls, home visits and emergencies.

The medex always has the back up of a physician when needed.

"A medex must accept his own limitations and realize he is not a doctor but that many important functions can be performed by him in the medical field," says Erkel.

Idaho doctors are recognizing the value of the Medex program as an important and unique innovation in health care. Although the program is relatively new in Idaho it is expanding rapidly.

"The Wood River Valley's acceptance of the program has been remarkable," Butler said and noted the public's confidence in the program.

Referral to the medex is made by the patient's choice. As a requirement of the program the medex works at the direction and under the supervision of the physician.

Hallman, encouraged by the warm reception he has received from both patients and physicians, confidently predicts that the Medex program will continue to expand, bringing more and better care into areas of the United States which have been traditionally deprived of adequate numbers of medical doctors.

Hallman, a native of Colorado Springs, Colo., and his wife, Diane, reside in Buhl with their three children.

Butler, who said he became a medex because he "was most happy when being able to develop a relationship which would help the patient," lives in Hatley with his wife and three children.

Kiriberly is "just the right size town" for Erkel and his wife. He is an avid skier and hopes to make Idaho his permanent home.

Peter, as a senior medical specialist, was in charge of physical exams at a drug abuse center in Vietnam and served with the helicopter ambulance service. Now he and his wife live in Jerome.

They wanted to settle in a small community where they could enjoy outdoor recreation.

Book Review

By ARLAN CALL
Twin Falls Public Library

TWIN FALLS — Danny McGoorty was perhaps the last of the old-time professional three-cushion-billiards players in America.

He died of cancer in 1969, but as he lay dying he candidly talked of his life as a "billiard bum" with writer Robert Byrne.

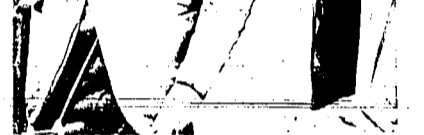

Byrne's book, "McGoorty" covers that colorful life with a degree of authenticity which will appeal some readers.

McGoorty spanned the "golden era" of billiards in America and speaks intimately of the personalities of Willie Hoppe, Minnesota Fats, Pat Albee, Alfredo de Oro, Walker Cochran, Harold Worst, Jake Schaefer, Masako Katsura, and dozens of other legendary billiards greats.

He was an out and out bum for a major portion of his gloomy life. He early showed signs of greatness when he played championship caliber billiards against the best professionals in the U.S. He also became an alcoholic and degenerate at a tender age and continued in that general vein for thirty years.

The fun of the book rests on McGoorty's abrasive, caustic, no-holds-barred humor — even while on his deathbed. Sample this reaction to choosing his "tweak": "I can remember waking up in a cheap hotel room one afternoon with a terrific hangover. I stared at the ceiling for a long time, and then said to myself, 'McGoorty, what you have turned out to be is a two-bit drunken pool hustler.' That didn't depress me at all. Listen, I was glad to have a profession!"

If you choose to read this book, be prepared to be shocked. Danny McGoorty lived a seamy life at the very bottom, and the high-low spots of that life are related in his own words. But behind the "coarseness, you'll sense a presiding satisfaction with his life which may give you pleasure — even while you sorrow at his great potential for success which was never realized.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thousands of trees grow in Brooklyn for Elizabeth Scholtz. Also other flora — in all, some 14,000 specimens of plant life over which she exercises her green thumb.

garden in the heart of an urban area — "the busiest 50 acres of this kind on earth," she says of the parent gardens in Brooklyn.

"We're dedicated to people," said Miss Scholtz, who's a native of Victoria, South Africa. There are children's and adult classes with some 70 courses scheduled in a year.

Miss Scholtz explained that the garden gets some support from New York City but the bulk comes from endowments, gifts and fees from its 5,000 members in every state and 20 foreign countries. Members receive the garden publications and may come to the special lectures. But all admission to the garden is free.

Miss Scholtz is the new director of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, the first woman to hold the post in the garden's 63-year history and one of the few women in directorial jobs in botanical gardens in the nation.

Research goes on in Brooklyn too, but what makes it the "busiest 50 acres" are the visitors, some 1.5 million a year who come from all over the world to look at and/or study.

In addition, there are more formal lectures on everything from the art of bonsai cultivation (the garden has a "fabulous" bonsai collection, she said) to plant hunting in the Himalayas.

DEAR ABBY: I hear they are trying to pass a law making it legal to let people die just by discontinuing treatment. They say it will be used so old people who are incurably sick won't have to linger and suffer after all hope for recovery is gone.

The thought of this is frightening. WHO will decide who is old enough and sick enough?

If you know anything about "euthanasia"—which in plain English means "mercy killing," please state your views.

CONCERNED IN MIAMI

DEAR CONCERNED: "Euthanasia" literally means "the good death," and I am all for it. I believe it is cruel and senseless to prolong life by artificial means when there is no hope for recovery.

The right to die with dignity should be everybody's right. The Euthanasia Education Council (whose meetings I have personally attended) in New York, has made available "A Living Will." It reads as follows:

"To My Family, My Physician, My Clergyman, My Lawyer—if the time comes when I can no longer take part in decisions for my own future, let this statement stand as the testament of my wishes:

"If there is no reasonable expectation of my recovery from physical or mental or spiritual disability, I (name) request that I be allowed to die and not be kept alive by artificial means or heroic measures. Death is as much a reality as birth, growth, maturity, and old age—it is the certainty. I do not fear death as much as I fear the indignity of deterioration, dependence, and hopeless pain. I ask that drugs be mercifully administered to me for terminal suffering even if they hasten the moment of death.

"This request is made while I am in good health and spirits. Altho this document is not legally binding, you who care for me will, I hope, feel morally bound to follow its mandates. I recognize it places a heavy burden of responsibility upon you, and it is with the intention of sharing that responsibility and of mitigating any feelings of guilt that this statement is made."

Sign document in the presence of witnesses, and give it to your family physician, attorney, and/or a member of your family. (Better yet, obtain three copies, and give each one a copy. I did).

"A Living Will" document may be obtained by writing to:

THE EUTHANASIA COUNCIL
250 W. 57th St.
New York, N. Y. 10019

The document is free, but since this is a nonprofit organization, donations from $1 and up are gratefully accepted. One woman sent $500 saying: "This is the most marvelous thing I've ever heard of!" I agree.

DEAR ABBY: Cigarette smoke makes me sick. Yet, if someone asks, "Do you mind if I smoke?" I find myself saying, "Not at all. Go ahead." Then I could kick myself. There must be a better way to handle this.

NO GUTS

DEAR NO GUTS: There is. The next time someone asks, "Do you mind if I smoke?" reply: "Not if you don't mind if I choke!"

DEAR ABBY: Randy and I both attend the University of Oregon and plan to be married sometime this summer. Randy has been writing our marriage service and he has one part in there I am not so sure of. He wants me to say, "I (my name) promise to love, cherish, and live in Oregon with this name) in sickness and in health, poverty and wealth, etc."

I love Oregon, too, Abby, and I'm afraid if he includes that in the marriage service, people will laugh, and I don't want anybody laughing during the marriage vows.

Should we leave it in?

ELSIE IN EUGENE

DEAR ELSIE: Tell Randy that living in Oregon is a privilege—not a duty, and to leave it out!

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90089. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Aide change end of era

By United Press International

The departure of Ellsworth C. Bunker as American ambassador to South Vietnam marks the end of an era, coinciding as it does with the withdrawal of the last American troops from Saigon.

Bunker, who will be 79 May 11, has served in Vietnam—his sixteenth ambassadorial post since 1951—for six years during which time he witnessed the climax of the U.S. military buildup in Vietnam, the Tet offensive of 1968 that helped turn it all around, and the pullout of the American expeditionary force.

Always the president's man, whether that president was Lyndon Johnson or Richard Nixon, Bunker embraced both the buildup and the withdrawal and saw no contradiction.

The buildup was necessary to protect the Vietnamese while they were getting organized. Once that happened, the withdrawal was just as necessary so that the South Vietnamese could stand on their own two feet. That was how Bunker saw it.

Bunker was widely criticized for being too soft on Vietnamese officials, and especially for letting President Nguyen Van Thieu have his own way. He was heavily criticized for not leaning harder on Thieu when the South Vietnamese president drove his rivals out of the 1971 presidential election and ran a one-man race winning with, according to official Saigon figures, 94.6 per cent of the vote.

Bunker's attitude, however, was summed up in a remark once attributed to him: "If Americans stop in and do something now, it's not progress. It's not progress if the Vietnamese do it."

A native of Yonkers, N.Y., and a 1916 graduate of Yale, Bunker went to work in the family sugar business and rose quickly to the top. He was an international business executive for more than 30 years before President Dwight Eisenhower appointed him to his first post as ambassador to Argentina in 1951.

Tall, courtly, white-haired and imperious, Bunker has a dry wit and, in private, an occasionally salty vocabulary. He still enjoys playing tennis and likes to sip a dry martini before dinner.

His first wife died in 1964. He has three children and 12 grandchildren. On Jan. 3, 1967, he married Carol Laiso, now 56, who then, as now, was U.S. ambassador to Nepal. They are the only ambassadorial couple in the world and only see each other on vacations and, occasionally, weekends.

Delegates from five Idaho Indian tribes will take part in the conference Wednesday through Friday.

Highway forces see victory near in stopping transit development

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pro-highway forces appear near victory in their bid to stop Congress from prying open the highway trust fund for mass transit development, breaking a 17-year tradition.

The outcome could hinge on a handful of votes in the House and, if the issue were decided today, the environmentalists and mass transit lobbyists who are pushing for a flexible trust fund concede they would lose.

The Senate already has voted 45 to 41 to allow states and cities to use up to $860 million of the $6 billion-a-year trust fund for new buses, subways and commuter rail lines. Since the vote was so narrow, there is almost no chance that a negative House vote could be overturned in a conference committee with the Senate.

The House aid act when a new federal aid highway bill reaches the floor, possibly by mid-April.

An amendment will be offered to permit use of the trust fund, financed by gasoline taxes, for mass transit as well as highways. Another amendment will be offered to allow states and cities to junk unwanted interstate highway segments and use the money for mass transit.

The resulting cash flow from the two amendments for mass transit would fall far short of the huge money needs of urban transit systems and its greatest effect would be on urban expressway construction.

Environmental groups and mass transit lobbyists say cities would no longer feel compelled either to build highways or lose millions of dollars in federal highway funds.

In opposition, construction companies, highway associations and others in the so-called "highway lobby" argue that there is not enough money in the highway trust fund now to satisfy the nation's highway needs, especially the need to upgrade older unsafe two-lane highways.

Both groups agree on one thing: a vote to crack the highway trust fund, no matter how small the amount, would be only the beginning of even bigger raids on the fund for mass transit.

The House Public Works

Committee almost certainly will vote this week not to break the fund or to allow interstate fund transfers, meaning that the final battle will be fought on the House floor.

The environmental mass transit group is pushing for House passage of the exact language in the Senate amendment so that the trust fund issue won't even be open to discussion in a conference committee.

Pro-highway congressmen and staff members of the House Public Works Committee are worried enough about the outcome to offer massive concessions on transit aid, as long as the money does not come from the trust fund.

When the committee begins work on the bill Tuesday, it is expected to double the authorized funding for mass transit through the Urban Mass Transit Administration.

Nixon criticized

PARIS (UPI) — North Vietnam said Saturday President Nixon's implied threats of U.S. retaliation if Hanoi fails to live up to the terms of the Vietnam peace agreement could only harm the United States and prevent peace in Indochina.

Nixon said in a nationwide television address Thursday that the leaders of North Vietnam should have no doubt as to the consequences if they fail to comply with the agreement.

Nixon did not specify what "consequences" might be imposed, but some diplomats have taken his words to imply that a renewal of bombing raids should not be ruled out.

"This kind of negotiating, far from giving positive results, can only harm the chances for peace and the United States themselves," said an editorial in the official Hanoi newspaper "Nhan Dan," circulated in Paris by the North Vietnamese delegation.

Trailer plans upset agency

PAGE, Ariz. (UPI) — Bulldozers have begun leveling ground for a private trailer park inside the boundaries of the Glen Canyon National Recreation Area, and the National Park Service isn't too happy about it.

"We have been trying to see if we can legally stop it," said Phil Iverson, director of the Park Service in Utah. "But I don't know if we can."

He said the land—54 acres inside the boundaries of the newly created recreation area—belongs to the state of Arizona, which has granted a lease to the Greenhaven Development Co.

Iverson said Greenhaven ultimately plans to develop 800 home and trailer sites on the land which overlooks Wahweap Bay on Lake Powell. The bulldozers started on the trailer park Friday.

"We have tried to exchange the land inside the recreation area for other federally owned land outside the area," the parks director said, "but in this case the state hasn't been very cooperative."

Iverson explained that the federal act which created Glen Canyon National Recreation Area surrounding Lake Powell provides that the Park Service can only acquire land by exchange or donation.

He said the Park Service objected to the land development inside the recreation area because it precludes an orderly planning of the whole area.

"There is also some question as to water for the development," Iverson said. "We have been told the Bureau of Reclamation that the single well which supplies water for the area is considered to be reservoir ground storage water which seeped into the sandstone from Lake Powell."

"If that is true," he said, "then the water for the subdivision will have to be subtracted from the total allotment of Lake Powell water which goes to Page, the Navajo Indian Tribe and the National Parks Facilities."

"We may not have enough water to provide public facilities if that happened," Iverson said.

Rider rescued from lions den

NEW YORK (UPI) — A tightrope bicyclist fell into a cage full of lions Saturday at the Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Circus, but a quick-thinking lion tamer rescued him—and the show went on.

The aerialist was not seriously injured. Aerialist Pio Nock, 52, dressed in a clown suit, had just completed bicycling across a high wire stretched about 20 feet above a cage containing about 15 "wild, jungle-tamed lions," and had arrived safely on the wooden platform.

"There was a cracking sound, the platform shook, and Nock fell with his bicycle and pole," said a spectator, Mrs. Marcia Wilson, who was watching the morning performance at Madison Square Garden with her husband and three children. "The crowd gasped—they were stunned."

Mrs. Wilson said lion tamer Wolfgang Holzmaier, "acted instantaneously," first throwing sawdust on the fallen acrobat.

"Then," she said, "Holzmaier pushed one of the lions off a stool, threatened him with it, and pushed Pio Nock out of the cage."

Next was the lion act, Mrs. Wilson said, and "the lions performed flawlessly. The show went on—without missing a beat."

A spokesman for the circus, which opened a two-month run in New York last Tuesday, said Nock was taken to St. Clare's hospital. A hospital spokesman said Nock's injuries were not serious and listed him "fair" condition.

Nature savers set SV meet

SUN VALLEY — The Idaho chapter of the Nature Conservancy will hold its annual state meeting here on April 7 and 8.

Dr. Everett M. Woodman, national president of the organization, will be the featured speaker Saturday night. He brings a wide range of expertise to the position. He has been a college and university professor, a WW II naval officer, U.S. Information Service officer in India, consultant for the Ford Foundation, president of Colby Junior College in New Hampshire and national president of American Association of Junior Colleges.

Aware of man's relationship to the whole system of life and the natural balance of nature, he said, is in full concurrence with the goals of the Nature Conservancy.

The Nature Conservancy is the only national conservation organization whose resources are solely devoted to the preservation of ecologically and environmentally significant land.

It is non-profit, non-political and member-governed, and is financed entirely by contributions from the public, grants from foundations and nationwide membership dues.

It has 32 chapters in 23 states. The Idaho chapter was organized in 1965 and acquired its first preserve in 1967 — the Dautrich Memorial.

The group cooperates with many other private conservation organizations and with local, state and federal agencies. Special programs permit advance acquisition of land by the Conservancy for state and national parks, forests and wildlife refuges. It resells the land to governmental agencies when their appropriations come through.

In other situations, a natural area that is threatened by development or destruction is purchased with Conservancy funds.

Some 300,000 acres of forests, swamps, marshes, prairies, mountains, and beaches in 800 separate projects throughout the nation have been protected through the efforts of the Conservancy since 1934.

Membership nationally is approximately 30,000. The Idaho chapter has nearly 100 members. Chapter officers include Dr. Karl E. Holte, Pocatello, chairman; Mrs. Westerman-Whillock, Boise, vice chairman, and Mrs. Ardy L. Holte, Pocatello, secretary-treasurer.

G. Jon Rousell of the Portland northwest regional office, will also speak at the annual meeting. He will discuss Conservancy land acquisitions and options in the west.

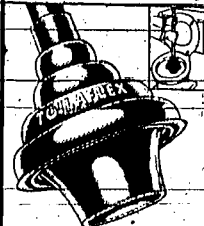

Other speakers will include William R. Meiners, Boise, who will discuss grazing in the west; Bruce Bowler, Boise attorney; Bill Platts, Boise, fisheries biologist with the U.S. Forest Service; Dr. Barry L. Koller, population biologist from Idaho State University, and representatives from the Idaho Fish and Game Department, Bureau of Sports Fisheries, the National Park Service and other state and national conservation organizations.

Registration for the event will be at 9 a.m. Saturday in the Challenger Inn promenade. For more information about the state meeting, contact Dr. Karl Holte in the biology department of Idaho State University.

Under Texas law, children attending kindergartens or day care centers must be immunized against whooping cough, polio, diphtheria, rubella, measles and tetanus.

Salmon resident makes tiny stove

SALMON — C.W. (Buzz) Jeppsen has constructed what may be the world's smallest stove.

The barrel shaped unit is only six inches tall by nine inches in length and can heat a camper with "ease," he said. Jeppsen completed one of the miniatures recently for the Lemhi County Historical Museum.

Retired now because of a recent heart attack, Jeppsen says the stove is built to burn bits of sagebrush, wood, coal, briquets, "anything you want."

"The stove is constructed of a section of wall casing with iron used for the legs. The front door is on hinges and there's a poker attached to the side.

An exhaust pipe from a car serves as the chimney.

Jeppsen, who was employed by White's Electronics, Sweet Home, Ore., for seven years, has produced ideas for several machines and equipment including a reverse gear for a snowmobile.

He's resided in the Sahibhn area most of his life. He has constructed eight of the miniature stoves and built 10 others of 12-inch size.

"The first one we put in our camper on a trip to Alaska and we were comfortable all the way," he commented.

Jeppsen, 33, says he produced the stove design from his own idea. When he's able he works in his shop at home.

The airman has been assigned to the technical training center as a feeder for specialized training in the administrative field.

Airman Clark attended Buhl High School.

Capt. LaVerne, R. Bernard, Shoshone, has joined the faculty of the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center following discharge from the Army.

He was stationed in St. Louis, Mo., at the Fifth Army Medical Laboratory where he served as chief of the virology and serology services and assistant chief of the department of microbiology.

Bernard has served in the Army since 1958. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bernard, Shoshone. Mrs. Laverne Bernard is employed as a typist in the Veterans Administration Hospital at Oklahoma City.

Parole officer named supervisor

TWIN FALLS — Floyd Higns, who has served in the Magic Valley as a probation and parole officer the past six years, has been named district supervisor.

His duties cover the fifth district and he is one of several new district supervisors to be appointed by the Idaho Probation and Parole Division. The supervisor posts are newly created.

Higns transferred to Twin Falls about one and one-half years ago from Burley and prior to joining the state as a probation and parole officer served 14 years with the Burley Police Department. At the time of his resignation he was chief of detectives there.

Others in the fifth district office include Robert Kroush and Ray Stewart, probation and parole officers, and a full-time secretary, Marsha Messner.

Dead eagle pilot sues woolgrowers

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — A federal judge Friday dismissed a suit challenging the right of a Burlington woman to hold a job as the first and only female guard in a maximum security prison for men in Iowa.

Mrs. Joan Wyatt's position was challenged in a suit filed by Ronald Brown, 31, an inmate at the state penitentiary at Fort Madison. Brown charged that Mrs. Wyatt's presence "inflames the passions" of prisoners who are "deprived of any female companionship."

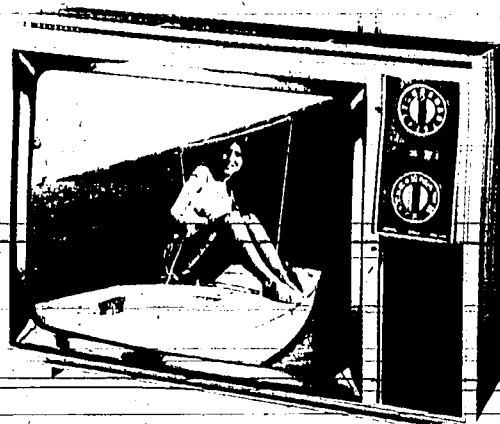

In addition, the suit charged that close contact with a woman guard subjected the prisoners to "cruel and unusual punishment."

Vogan alleged the association magazine published a letter by William Mau of Kemmerer, former association president, "implies that James Vogan has committed various and sundry misdeeds and that he is equated with a ridiculous cartoon character widely known as 'Snoopy' and is thereby ridiculed and demeaned." He also charged that Mau said Vogan was a prime candidate for "lar of the year award."

3-county CAA gets reprieve

TWIN FALLS — The South Central Community Action Agency, three months from the end of its life, has received a six-month reprieve from the federal government.

The anti-poverty agency has received nearly $81,000 in funding to continue its programs past July 1.

The office of Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, made the announcement Friday. At the same time, Hansen's office announced the Office on Economic Opportunity has made an award to the South Eastern Idaho Community Action Agency in Pocatello for $17,136.

enable the agency to maintain its existing administration and community work.

A one-year, $23,400 grant to continue selected citizens programs. The money is the amount the agency received for the current year, Russell said, and funds one director, an organizer and a part-time secretary and bookkeeper.

A $9,000 one-year family planning program grant, equal to the amount received this year.

Russell said the administration funds would be used to help local community groups seek outside sources of funding. He also said it would be used in part to help reduce administrative staff at the agency and to enable the anti-poverty administration that remained to seek outside sources for the CAA itself.

Despite weather

IN BETWEEN spells of chilly, damp weather, Magic Valley farmers are managing to carry on their usual field work in preparation for planting crops. One farmer (above) works down a field a short distance outside Hagerman. Another (bottom), burns dry grass and weeds from along an irrigation lateral and fence row at the edge of U.S. Highway 30 at the east edge of Hammett.

Lenaghan takes PUC post

BOISE (UPI) — Richard Lenaghan has gained a reputation around the Idaho Statehouse as being "tough, decisive and fair."

Today he will channel those characteristics into a new area after being the acting head of the state's administrative services for the last 27 months.

He takes over as a member of the state Public Utilities Commission replacing J. Burns Beal, a Republican.

"I intend to measure the decision I make on how best it benefits the consumer of public utilities," Lenaghan said.

The 53-year-old commissioner added that the PUC is a creation of government and the people to insure that such services under its authority are brought to the people properly. He said this will be the main thrust of his new job — to make sure the services are delivered properly.

of Lenaghan

Bob Lenaghan is fair, he is dedicated, he is honest, he is tough. The consumers of public utility services in Idaho are entitled to representation on the PUC by a man who will staunchly defend their interests and not the big corporations.

Lenaghan, who called his old job "a creator of frustrations" and a sometimes "hot spot," said he felt he was leaving the department in "good shape."

"Essentially, we have increased the services without an appreciable increase in the number of employees," Lenaghan said.

that it will be difficult to go wrong.

Asked about the criticism from some Republicans concerning his appointment, Lenaghan said it was the duty of the senate to investigate the governor's appointment.

Senate President Pro Tem James Ellsworth, R-Leadore, said the appointment was illegal because the governor did not make it while the Legislature was in session and later than the date outlined by law. Andrus made the announcement days after the Legislature adjourned sine die.

Harrah buys Idaho land

STANLEY (UPI) — For the past 18 months, Reno's William Harrah has been buying land in and around the small town of Stanley, northeast of Boise, although not for commercial uses, a spokesman said.

Custer County files show that Harrah, president of Harrah's Club, and a new corporation he formed earlier this year now own 14 1/2 lots in the town, population 47, and nearly 20 acres to the east.

Harrah's Club Vice President Lloyd Dyer has done some buying for Harrah here but said the millionaire is not planning to develop it — instead he wants it for "green belt protection."

Although Harrah has owned land in Stanley since 1949 — he has a house he uses for vacations — most town lots and outside acres were bought by him last year. Custer County officials said town lots are worth between $3,500 and $6,000.

Most recently, Harrah bought 4 1/2 lots in Stanley off state highway 21. The land was purchased by Stanharrah, a corporation he formed a few days before Jan. 9.

Stanley is the center of the New Sawtooth National Recreation Area. Most of Harrah's new land is outside city boundaries, but there is a chance it may be included in an annex plan the town council is considering.

The difference could be that under "NRA" regulations controlling development — not yet completed — land within city limits may have less restrictions than land outside the town.

Gem cattleman to hold steers

BOISE (UPI) — There will be at least one major cattle feeder in Idaho who will in a sense be boycotting the boycott on supermarket meat sales this week.

Ralph Harding, a former Congressman and owner of a large cattle feed lot near Blackfoot, said he will not send any of his 9,000 steers to slaughterhouses during the week.

The move is designed to combat a nationwide meat boycott planned for the week to protest the high cost of meat.

"We would be foolish to go to market when the housewives are not going to buy meat," Harding said.

managers say they will have to wait until later in the week to determine what effects the highly-publicized boycott will have on meat sales.

One group in Boise is planning a "meatless pot-luck" dinner this week. But the sponsors say the protest is not against the farmer or rancher, but against inflation.

Harding called the boycotting housewives "well-meaning, but uninformed people" who are trying to create an artificial surplus of beef, and therefore, bring the price down to an artificial low level.

Harding feels if enough feeders stop the flow of cattle to market, it will stop the "artificial buildup" of meat in the market place.

"We must not sit idly by and let uninformed politicians and misled housewives create a surplus of beef, when actually no surplus exists," Harding said.

"I don't think they will be successful. Everyone boycotting meat should also wear a sign, I am helping to destroy the small farmer and rancher of America," he concluded.

For the person who takes his place, Lenaghan leaves this advice:

"Pay attention to the plan which calls for better government and a government which is more responsive to the people if he keeps his eye on this

But Lenaghan feels the criticism is not wide spread.

He may be right. The chairman of the Senate State Affairs Committee, which confirms gubernatorial appointments, said Republicans should hold their remarks on the appointment until Lenaghan serves in the position.

Crash kills 1 near Rogerson

Cloyst Edwards, county coroner, said he pronounced Hill dead at the scene after his body was removed from the plane wreckage by officers and ambulance personnel. He said an autopsy was being performed today to determine the exact cause of death.

skidded about 183 feet, then jumped or bounced about 300 feet, hitting the ground again and skidding 105 feet when it jumped 75 feet and hit again, digging into the dirt and overturning. He said it appeared a wing hit the ground first.

The pilot walked three-quarters of a mile from the crash site to Highway 93 where he was able to get a ride into Jackpot. He notified a Nevada deputy who called Twin Falls authorities and then returned to the scene with the pilot. Officers here were notified about 4:30 a.m.

By the time they returned Mrs. Annau had also walked out and was on the highway. Tom Callen, on whose range the plane crashed, took officers to the scene in a four-wheel drive vehicle.

Jerome girl listed 'fair'

JEROME — Sandra Severson, 15, Jerome, is listed in fair condition today at St. Benedict's Hospital where she is being treated for injuries received in a tractor accident Saturday afternoon.

According to Eliza Hall, Jerome County sheriff, Miss Severson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Severson, was injured about 3:25 p.m. two miles east and one mile north of Jerome when the tractor she was driving hit a bridge abutment and flipped into an irrigation ditch. She was pinned beneath the tractor.

"Miss Severson was alone at the time of the accident and was pinned for a short time before Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hessler, Jerome, drove by and saw the tractor in the irrigation ditch. Mrs. Hessler called for help while her husband took a shovel and started to dig the girl free of the tractor," Hall said.

"The tractor sustained heavy damage and was removed from the ditch by wrecker, according to Hall.

Although he said he had not organized any movement among cattle feeders, Harding said he has received calls from feeders in Texas, Arizona and throughout Idaho.

"I think it would be a good idea for all feed lots to do this," Harding said. "It will combat an artificial surplus."

Although there are some signs of boycott activities in Idaho, most supermarket and store managers say they will have to wait until later in the week to determine what effects the highly-publicized boycott will have on meat sales.

Harding called the boycotting housewives "well-meaning, but uninformed people" who are trying to create an artificial surplus of beef, and therefore, bring the price down to an artificial low level.

Harding feels if enough feeders stop the flow of cattle to market, it will stop the "artificial buildup" of meat in the market place.

"We must not sit idly by and let uninformed politicians and misled housewives create a surplus of beef, when actually no surplus exists," Harding said.

"I don't think they will be successful. Everyone boycotting meat should also wear a sign, I am helping to destroy the small farmer and rancher of America," he concluded.

POW confined at 'Heartbreak Hotel'

BOISE (UPI) — Capt. John H. Nasmyth spent 6 1/2 years in Hanoi's "Heartbreak Hotel," but less than one minute of that time did he taste freedom from fear on North Vietnamese soil.

"It was my 35th mission over North Vietnam when my F4C Phantom jet was hit by a SAM (surface to air missile) about 25 miles north of Hanoi," the Air Force captain and former POW recalled in a newspaper interview.

He will always possess rugged scars from shrapnel which "broke his right arm several inches above the wrist — as well as signs of many minor wounds received in his arms and legs.

"They used medical treatment in attempts to make deals with all the POWs," he explained. "They tell you they will give you treatment when you are ready to give them information."

Nasmyth is an alumnus of the University of Idaho and was "adopted" by the students at the Moscow schools in attempts to draw attention to those who were prisoners of war or missing in action.

He was in Boise Saturday for a reunion of fellow brothers of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, which he joined while enroute to a 1962 degree in psychology at the University.

Nasmyth said nearly every man shot down over North Vietnam and imprisoned found he could eventually be forced to do anything his captors wanted.

The 32-year-old captain reported he was submitted to the same types of torture already discussed by many POWs speaking out across the nation.

"They would tie my wrists and ankles so tight with ropes and straps I would be drawn together like a pretzel — and every 10 minutes they'd tighten them tighter," he explained. "Sometimes the ropes were so tight on some men it would pull arms from the socket — and all the time the guards would be beating you."

During Saturday's taping of a viewpoint program to be seen today on KTVB-TV, Nasmyth noted he still gets annoyed when people tell him the POWs "looked so much better" than had been expected.

"Pants and shirts can cover a great deal," he added. "Beneath those clothes many men have horrible scars and deformed bodies."

Nasmyth said he is convinced that the anti-war movement in the United States was a major factor in prolonging his stay in northern prison camps.

Visits by peace delegates became a trigger for increased torture for some men to produce the ironic statements of humane treatment which could be shown to those people.

"And although they never came to our camp, it had a demoralizing effect to hear tapes by Jane Fonda and Ramsey Clark spouting the same Communist propaganda we had heard for years," he said.

A native of San Gabriel, Calif., Nasmyth said his present plans are to leave the military in July and work for the following few months in the MIA program.

Kidnapping charged

KETCHUM (UPI) — Bernard E. Taylor, 28, Buena Park, Calif., was charged with second degree kidnaping Sunday after police said he abducted his three-year-old son from a Ketchum yard.

Police said little Joshua Taylor was playing in the front yard of the mother's home about 11:30 A.M. when Taylor took him and drove away. Bernard and Susan Taylor had been divorced.

Taylor was later arrested in Jerome by state police and a Jerome County Deputy Sheriff. He had driven the distance with his second wife, Angie, and the boy. The man was brought back to Blaine County on a warrant.

Only Taylor was charged in the incident and he was scheduled to appear in Magistrate Court today before Judge V.K. Jeppesen. No bond was set.

Lincoln meet set

SHOSHONE — A special Lincoln County Planning Commission meeting will be held at 1:30 p.m. on Wednesday at the courthouse, Shoshone.

Dave Whay, planning administrator for Blaine County Planning Commission, will be the speaker.

City and county officials are specifically urged to attend and all interested persons are invited.

Astronauts visit SV

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (UPI) — Apollo 17 Astronaut Ronald Evans took his first lessons on skis Sunday and said it's like beginning flight training.

"You're apprehensive, but you know that you have control of yourself," said Commander Evans, visiting Sun Valley with fellow astronauts Capt. Eugene Cernan and Dr. Harrison Schmitt.

The trio was in Boise Friday and addressed school students and civic groups.

Commenting on the resort area, Cernan said, "The area of the moon we landed on had mountains four times as high as the ones in Sun Valley. And we had no point of reference to determine size and distance."

The astronauts were scheduled to visit area schools today before leaving for Helena, Mont., on their 10-week nationwide tour.

DAV meet slated

TWIN FALLS — Ken Smith and Ray Borders, both Boise, national services officers for the Disabled American Veterans, will meet with Twin Falls members April 19.

The two men will meet with veterans and widows of veterans to explain benefits available to them. The meeting will give members an opportunity to apply for those benefits in which they are entitled, according to Johnnie York, chapter commander.

Suit filed at Boise

BOISE (UPI) — The United Steelworkers of America has filed suit in U.S. District Court here asking that its contract with Sunshine Mining Co. be enforced with regard to vacation pay provisions.

The union and Local 5089 alleged the company refused to provide about 300 striking employees with earned vacations since work stopped due to the strike March 11.

The suit asks the court to enforce the right of Steelworker employees to paid vacations, and for an injunction against Sunshine's alleged refusal to go along with the contract.

Cambodians shun bombs by digging

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Civilians are taking the advice of Communist guerrillas and burrowing into the ground to escape the devastating effects of U.S. bombing raids on Cambodia.

Despite their efforts, however, they are increasingly found among the victims of the only major war still being waged in Indochina.

Refugees swarming into the capital from target areas report dozens of villages, both east and southeast of Phnom Penh, have been destroyed and as much as half their populations killed or maimed in the current bombing raids by U.S. Air Force B52 Stratofortresses and F111 tactical fighter-bombers.

International Relief officials manning refugee camps in Phnom Penh estimated that nearly 10,000 refugees have fled to the capital since the intensified American raids began about three weeks ago.

Many others were reported to have moved deeper into the Communist-occupied areas, which cover 80 per cent of the entire country.

The relief officials were reluctant to speculate on the number of civilian casualties caused by the bombings because on-site inspection was impossible.

"There could be 10,000 dead or there could be only a few hundred," said one official. "But if you want an educated guess based on what we have heard from the refugees, I'd say that no fewer than 3,000 civilians have been killed in this area in the past three weeks."

The current Communist offensive is the biggest one ever launched in Cambodia and is continuing to advance after three months.

Western military sources said the United States initially was reluctant to bomb within the Phnom-Penh environs because of the high population density of the area. The Americans relented, the sources said, when intelligence reports indicated Communist plans for a full-scale attack on the capital itself.

In the early phase of the offensive, American air support was confined to B52 strikes against Communist concentrations in the outlying provinces and to missions by tactical jets in heavy combat areas in southern Cambodia.

But as the Communists have begun overwhelming government defenses along major supply routes leading into the capital—placing a virtual stranglehold on Phnom Penh—the planes have been raiding ever closer to the city.

One young woman, living in a village 10 miles east of Phnom Penh, credited her survival in the raids to the advice of the Communist guerrillas. They told her to dig a bunker beneath her house, to sleep there at night and go there when the planes came during the day.

Gordon Nicholas and invention

Stockman invents cattle waterer

By MARILYN ELLIOTT Times-News Writer RUPERT — "I think he is a genius," says Eva Nicholas of her husband Gordon.

Gordon Nicholas, Norland, invented a new automatic stock waterer last fall when his old one broke. "I couldn't find one that suited me," he explains.

He came in and told me he was going to have to buy a new one — maybe an electric one — says Mrs. Nicholas. "I told him to make his own. And he went out and made one," she says proudly.

Nicholas' invention solves a couple of recurring problems for stockmen. The tank and water pipe are so constructed that they won't freeze in winter and the valve is above water for easier repair.

In the past, according to Nicholas, the only solutions to the freezing problem were to trudge out to the trough nearly every day all winter and break up the ice or to buy an electrically heated stock waterer.

Unfortunately, he said, the electrically heated waterer was known to kill the stock. Apparently the cattle would chew the wiring and get electrocuted, Nicholas said.

Nicholas has applied for a patent on his invention and until the patent comes through has been advised not to disclose the exact details of the waterer. The pipe, however, is insulated and placed in such a manner that the water doesn't freeze.

"This waterer is trouble free," Nicholas says. "You just put it in and never bother to look at it — it never did freeze this winter," he said.

The valve is above water and, something like the mechanism of a toilet, keeps the water in the trough at a constant level. And because of the utilization of warm ground air, the valve does not freeze.

"In the old waterers the valve is under water, and if they get a leak, they can't fix it," Nicholas said. "And if the power goes off, he says, 'the water level in those old troughs goes down,' and the cattle are left without water."

Nicholas constructed his water from a regular 250-gallon galvanized tank from which he water a hundred head of cattle. "If the power goes off, he said, 'I've always got 250 gallons for the cattle to drink from.'"

The tank, according to Nicholas, is light and easy to move. The concrete types, he says, are built into the ground and can't be moved. When they develop a leak, they have to be abandoned, he added.

Nicholas says he is swamped with orders for his invention from Tremonton where above water valves are required for grade A milk. His is the only stock waterer with the valve set above water except the electric type, according to Nicholas.

He has contracts in both Burley and Rupert for construction of the tanks and says, "A Kansas outfit that makes tanks is interested in the plans." But Nicholas isn't giving out the plans until the patent is secured.

"I thought for sure somebody else would have invented one before me," Nicholas says, but as far as he knows, he is the first. "The idea seemed a simple and practical solution for Nicholas, who is amazed that no one had done it before."

Now, after 15 years of braving winter weather to break the ice in his frozen tanks, Gordon Nicholas can rest warmly knowing the cattle are not without water. And knowing it is all due to a little work and practical thinking.

And a little help from his wife. "They have to have encouragement, you know," she says.

Crop disaster causes some Soviet rationing

MOSCOW (UPI) — Beef, butter and potatoes are in short supply in parts of southern Russia, travelers said Saturday.

One state-run meat shop in a city on the Volga river had only pigs heads for sale, they said. Butter, potatoes, cabbages and carrots were periodically unavailable and there was evidence of some rationing of bread, potatoes and butter, they said.

The Soviet Union suffered its worst crop disaster of the century last year. The outlook for 1973 remains uncertain. Official spokesmen have confirmed there has been some rationing of such staples as potatoes, butter and other milk products.

The travelers said there was no evidence of hoarding and the supply situation was far from a crisis stage.

They said local authorities were aware of the problems and were trying to ease them by increasing supplies of more readily available foodstuffs such as fish, cucumbers and lemons.

The most obvious shortage, the travelers said, was beef. Several restaurants in the Volga area were able to offer only chicken and fish, they said.

Official meat production figures for January and February showed beef down 10 per cent from the same period in 1972, indicating farmers hit by fodder shortages were not slaughtering cattle as rapidly as expected. In Moscow, traditionally the best-supplied of all major Soviet cities, beef remained easily available although the quality was generally mediocre.

Soviet officials have recently stepped up criticism of bad agricultural management in an effort to recoup some of 1972's losses during the current year.

Vasily I. Konopov, first secretary of the Moscow region committee of the Communist party, complained that poor milk production and cattle breeding in the greater Moscow area has created a "tense situation."

He said milk production per cow during January and February was down 3.6 per cent from last year's figures.

He accused farm managers of failing to use new equipment properly and spending too much time in their offices instead of out in the fields.

Gem court plans bar exam studies

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court Friday announced the appointment of a special committee to review and recommend changes in the existing rules, procedures and grading standards for the Idaho bar examination.

The committee is composed of lawyers practicing law in all areas of Idaho.

Justice Robert E. Bakes will chair the committee. It is expected to hold its first meeting within the next week.

Members of the committee will include former Gov. Robert E. Smylie of Idaho; Dean Menard, dean of the University of Idaho Law School; and two former presidents of the Idaho State Bar, Edward Benoit of Twin Falls and Alden Hull of Wallace.

Greek charges brutality

COLOGNE, Germany (UPI) — Nobel Prize-winning author Heinrich Boell accused Greek authorities today of using police methods against a fellow writer during recent student unrest in Athens.

Boell, 55, signed a statement alleging that police beat up Jean Coutscheras, president of the Greek chapter of the International writers' organization PEN. Boell, who won the 1972 Nobel Literature prize for his contribution to the revival of German literature after World War II, is PEN's West German president.

"The statement said Coutscheras 'was beaten in the most brutal way. He was kicked when he was already lying on the ground.'"

Demonstrations may upset Brezhnev visit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet and American diplomats said Saturday trade and security problems could upset tentative plans for Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev to visit the United States in June.

The major problem, according to the diplomats, is whether Congress will grant the Russians preferential status or most favored nation MFN treatment — as called for in the Soviet-American trade agreement last October.

They said the security question, which has received less public attention, is based on fears of possible unpleasant or insulting demonstrations by some Jewish groups.

Soviet diplomats in New York and Washington have been harassed severely in recent years by protesters demanding an end to restrictions on Soviet Jews who want to leave the country. The Russians note that many members of the Jewish Defense League, who were charged with these incidents, have not been brought to trial.

Brezhnev accepted an invitation to come to the United States during President Nixon's visit to Moscow last May. Soviet and American officials later agreed privately that Brezhnev would come in June, although no specific date was set.

The administration now is maneuvering with Congress in an effort to win passage of most-favored-nation trading treatment for Russia. Such action could increase trade between the two superpowers dramatically.

Kenneth Rush, deputy secretary of state, said told a foreign policy seminar at the State Department last Thursday that he was "optimistic" the measure would pass. His remarks were the first clear signal by the administration that the trading matter was being pushed towards a conclusion.

A large number of senators and congressmen have said they will oppose the trade agreement as long as the Soviet government does not permit Jews to emigrate freely.

In the last several weeks, however, the Soviet government has indicated willingness to wave or even disregard the high exit taxes.

US prices below foreign nations

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON—(UPI)—American consumers groaning about rising food prices have not been pitched as hard as shoppers in most other countries, the Agriculture Department claimed today.

If sirloin steak at $1.69 a pound or more seems high, the article said, consider the situation in Japan where sliced Kobe beef for sukiyaki has been selling up to $17.40 a pound. "Obviously not everyone pays these (Japanese) prices and per capita consumption of meat is far below that in the United States," the article noted.

The report said the rate of increase in U.S. food prices last year, 4.3 per cent, was the second smallest among 10 "developed" countries including Canada, Japan, Austria, Finland, Ireland, Norway, Spain, Sweden and Great Britain.

Prices have skyrocketed in the early part of this year in the United States, but the article added that other countries have been facing the same problem, including Britain, where rising food costs helped spur nationwide strikes recently.

To see just what consumers here and abroad are up against, the Agriculture Department's Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS) said it sent agents here and in 11 foreign cities out to check local supermarket prices in mid-March.

They found, among other things, that sirloin steak was selling in a supermarket here at $1.69 a pound compared with $2.45 in Brussels; $1.68 in London, $2.79 in Rome and $1.68 in Ottawa.

Shoppers in Brasilia, capital of Brazil, were buying T-bone steak for 85 cents a pound. But in Tokyo, beef loin was priced at $11.00 a pound, T-bone steak at $3.57, and ground beef ranged from $1.70 to $3.40.

The FAS agents reported they found pork loin selling here at $1.29 a pound compared to $1.20 in Brasilia, $1.19 in London, $1.75-$2.90 in Rome and $2.55 in Tokyo.

Broiler-fryer chickens, which have shown sharp increases in the U.S. recently, were found at 65 cents a pound in one Washington market. In other capitals similar chickens were bringing 62 cents in Bonn, 37 cents in Brasilia, 66 cents in Brussels, 47 cents in London, 64 cents in Paris, 63 to 71 cents in Rome, $1 in Stockholm, 48 cents in The Hague, and $1.67 in Tokyo.

Prices for white bread, according to the survey, included 91 cents here, 33 cents in Bonn, 21 cents in Brussels, 40 cents in Copenhagen, 79 cents in Paris, 23 cents in Rome and 40 cents in Stockholm.

Lincoln payment reports listed

SHOSHONE — Summary of program payments through the Shoshone office, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office, shows $710,315.22 in payments and loans for 1972.

In the annual report of this agency's activity through the Shoshone office, the breakdown shows $18,379.50 for rural environmental assistance programs; $4,007.10 for cropland adjustment programs; $95,520.23 for sugar beet programs; $132,450.48 for wool programs; $49,102.91 for loan programs; $358,714. for wheat set-aside programs; $59,488 for feed grain programs and $1,585, bookkeeping indemnity programs. James Pate, county executive director, said "the local economy receives a big boost from the various farm programs."

"Consumers are generally and specifically those who sell machinery, gasoline, oil, seed, feed, fertilizers, chemicals, credit and other goods or services benefitting from agricultural products."

"About two thirds of the consumer's cost for farm products go to pay for services of those who handle the products after they leave the farm," Pate said.

McClure, Butz meet

WASHINGTON—(UPI)—Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho Friday met with the Secretary of Agriculture to discuss the economic impact of the President's decision to ask Congress for immediate authority to suspend import tariffs on certain commodities.

McClure said he expressed his concern to Secretary Earl Butz that whatever action was to be taken would be made with the full consciousness of its impact on domestic industry.

McClure said under no circumstances must a policy be adopted that is going to kill industries.

Ceiling on prices 'disappoints' ANCA

DENVER, Colo. — Directors of the American National Cattlemen's Association are "disappointed" in President Nixon's order placing price ceilings on beef.

The action was taken at a special meeting of the board Friday.

John Trotman, president of the ANCA, said in speaking for the board, "We deeply regret that the President felt it necessary to move away from the free market system which has enabled American cattlemen to produce ever increasing record levels of beef."

Trotman said, "However, in the best tradition of American cattlemen we will do our best to make the new program work."

Trotman predicted that the ceiling would dampen the enthusiasm with which cattlemen have responded to consumer desires for ample quantities of high quality beef.

"This ceiling on the price of beef certainly won't produce a single additional pound of beef. It actually will have the opposite effect. The artificial ceiling will depress the economic incentive for cattlemen to continue to expand their herds. Production could dip, and prices could go even higher over the long pull," Trotman said.

"The ANCA feels that beef price ceilings, boycotts and protein substitutes are not the real solution to the food price problem," Trotman said.

"The problem goes deeper into all parts of inflation, which has probably hit cattle producers harder than anyone. All American must be fairly compensated for its productivity. We need to get back to the traditional philosophy that a good hour's work deserves a fair hour's wages," he said.

Trotman called for a curb on government spending and a more financially sound approach be taken toward the federal budget.

New malting barley seed available now

MOSCOW — Seed of Klages, a new malting barley, is now available to farmers through regular sources for the 1973 crop year, according to Dr. Lucas Calpouzos, head of the University of Idaho Plant and Soil Sciences Department.

A $1 million annual premium, possibly more, has been estimated for Idaho farmers who grow Klages since malting barley usually brings a premium over feed grain, Calpouzos explained. Estimates place total annual market value of Idaho-grown Klages as high as $5 to $6 million, Calpouzos said.

Klages was developed by Durrell Wessenberg, U.S. Department of Agriculture plant breeder and University of Idaho affiliate faculty member, assisted by Ralph Hayes, USDA technician. They are stationed at the UI Aberdeen branch experiment station.

Cooperating in the development of Klages was H. C. McKay, superintendent of the UI Tetonia branch experiment station.

Klages is a two-row, midseason, white-kernelled, spring malting barley with good straw strength, test weight, and kernel weight when grown under irrigation. It is slightly superior to Proline in lodging resistance under irrigation.

On 1972 trials, Klages exceeded average yields of Proline, Vanguard and Shabet by 3.6, 4.5 and 5.1 per cent respectively.

Price told

SHOSHONE — Officials of the Lincoln County Marketing Association said the price of wool sold by that organization should have been $1.1872 per pound.

LAMAR, Colo. (UPI) — A Lamar, Colo., cattleman, upset with statements by the Cleveland city council that ranchers and farmers were overpaid, Friday invited councilman Basil Russo and five colleagues to spend a week on a ranch.

Jim Sniff said he was upset with statements made by Russo Tuesday. Sniff said council action was "designed to bring the meat industry to its knees."

Sniff telegraphed Russo offering to pay the transportation of Russo and five other councilmen to Lamar, "the way we travel," and to pay the groups expenses "while you work along with several farmers and ranchers for seven days. We work weekends as well."

Monroe-led N.Y. drills Baltimore

NEW YORK (UPI)—Earl Monroe scored 32 points against his old teammates, including nine early in the third quarter, as the New York Knicks routed the Baltimore Bullets 123-103, Sunday, to take a 2-0 lead in their NBA Eastern Conference opening round playoffs.

The Knicks were leading 87-81, shortly after the start of the final period when Monroe and Walt Frazier hit for 11 straight points to give New York a 100-85 margin and the Bullets never recovered.

Frazier scored 47 points, giving the New York backcourt tandem 59 for the game. Monroe and Frazier combined for 48 in New York's first game victory over Baltimore. Phil Chenier led Baltimore with 27 points. Elvin Hayes had 23 and Mike Riordan netted 20 for the Bullets.

The ability of Monroe and Frazier to get Baltimore "see Archie Clark in foul trouble, added the New York cause. Clark drew his fifth personal foul in the third quarter when he fouled Monroe and was logged with his game disqualifying sixth foul, induced by Frazier with 3:34 left in the game.

New York held leads of 17 points early in the game but twice Baltimore cut into that margin. A 17-point spurt by Monroe and Frazier late in the third quarter carried New York to an 85-74 lead, but seven straight points by Chenier cut that margin to six, 87-81.

A 12-2 spurt in the first quarter was a signal of the Knicks' power. Willis Reed, who scored 16 points for the team, hit for three baskets during that streak. Dace DeBusschere, held to five points in the first game, bombed away at long range for seven field goals in the opening half as, New York took a 58-47 lead. DeBusschere finished the game with 22 points.

Doctor repairs Muhammad Ali

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The doctor who performed the surgery on Muhammad Ali's fractured jaw said Sunday that "I personally don't understand how he could have gone 11 rounds with that much pain."

Dr. Gary Manchester, who performed a 1 1/2-hour operation Saturday night to wire Ali's broken left jaw together, quoted the former heavyweight champion as saying before the surgery:

"I couldn't fight. I couldn't move my head because of the pain. He (Ken Norton) won the fight. I'm just sorry I couldn't fight."

Manchester said he hoped to keep Ali 31 at Clarendon General Hospital here for "four or five days."

Norton, Ali's conqueror Saturday, visited the former heavyweight champion Sunday afternoon.

Manchester said the fracture was not a "clean break" as reported earlier. The fracture occurred in the first round of the 12-round fight.

Owners begin meeting

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI)—Expansion, rules changes and future Super and Pro Bowl sites will be the key items under consideration when National Football League owners open their annual meeting Monday.

The 26 club owners will discuss the possibility of future expansion from the league's present 26-team setup, but no formal presentations from cities will be heard. Miami, New Orleans and Los Angeles will make presentations for Super Bowl IX, which will be played in January, 1975. Next January's Super Bowl is scheduled for Houston.

Final decision on a Super Bowl site is expected late Tuesday afternoon.

Birmingham, Ala., and Jacksonville, Fla., will make presentations for the 1974 Pro Bowl. The 1974 Pro Bowl will be played in Kansas City's Arrowhead Stadium.

Birmingham, Ala. (UPI)—The Golden State Warriors subdued the loss of their fiery and the furious charge of the Milwaukee Bucks to post a 92-82 victory Sunday afternoon and even their best-of-seven playoff series at one game apiece.

Cazzie Russell replaced Barry when the all-star Warrior forward sprained an ankle just two minutes after the started and led Golden State to the win with 25 points.

Tennis sensation scores easy win

NEW YORK (UPI)—America's 18-year-old sensation Chris Evert crushed West Germany's Katka Ebbinghaus with machine-like precision, 6-0, 6-1 to score her third professional triumph in the $30,000 Lady Gotham Tennis Classic Sunday.

The victory, which was worth $10,000 to the Fort Lauderdale resident, enabled her to move to the lead of the USLTA Women's money list.

Miss Evert was in complete command throughout the first set, spraying shots with pinpoint accuracy to both corners near the baseline and keeping the 22-year-old native of Munich out of position.

Only in the last frame of the first set was Chris threatened that game went to three twice and Miss Evert finally won when the shot, which was intended to be deep but the net and trickled over for the set point.

But the closeness of that game was an indication of what was to follow. Mrs. Ebbinghaus broke Miss Evert's service to take the first game, won the second game easily and then won two of the next three games to a 4-1 lead.

The normally cool Miss Evert seemed rattled for the first time in the match. Disgusted by her sudden loss of control, she slapped a loose ball off the court, accidentally hitting a judge. But the youngster completely regained her composure, smiled and apologized to the judge. The incident seemed to settle Chris down. She proceeded to tie the match at 4-4 and then on her own service surged ahead 5-4.

Smith is winner over Laver

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Stan Smith broke service at five against top-seeded Rod Laver in the final game of the championship match Sunday to win the $10,000 top prize of the Hall of Fame Tennis Classic, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4.

Smith's victory gave him a 2-2 record against the Australian in World Championship Tennis play this season and was his second victory over Laver in two weeks. Smith defeated Laver last week at Atlanta.

The two men, between them, have won six of the seven tournaments on the WCT "A" circuit so far this year.

In the final game of Sunday's match before a near-sellout crowd at Kiel Auditorium, Smith returned a backhand just out of Laver's reach to win the first point, and Laver lost the next three points on a double fault and two wide shots.

Smith's Tom Boone is filling in for one of the Stars, "not at full speed," Boone said.

"I used to be the sixth man," Boone said. "I'd come in to rotate the team to get us doing what we should be doing. Now I try to get us going right from the start."

Ben Crenshaw wins title

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Defending NCAA title Ben Crenshaw shot a two-under par 70 Sunday to win the individual title of the seventh Morris Williams Intercollegiate Golf Tournament by three strokes and then immediately took off for Augusta, Ga., and the Masters.

Crenshaw, in defending his title, also led Texas to a repeat win. The Longhorns fired an 866 over 54 holes, four shots better than Houston's 870.

Pacers defeat Denver 106-93

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Freddie Lewis led the charge with 40 points Sunday as the Indiana Pacers overpowered the Denver Rockets in the final period for a 106-93 victory and a two-game lead in their ABA Western Division playoff series.

The Pacers tossed in three three-point goals in the deciding final stanza, one each by Lewis, Roger Brown and Billy Keller. Keller's three-pointer tied the score for the ninth and final time at 78-81 and Brown's free throw then gave the Pacers the final lead.

The best-of-seven series continues at Denver Tuesday night. The fourth game will also be played at Denver Thursday before the series return here, if necessary.

The Pacers, trailing at the first three stops, nearly doubled the score on Denver in the final period, 33-17, to make it two in a row over the Rockets, who lost three top front court players in the final period.

Utah Stars host San Diego tonight

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—The American Basketball Association Western Division champion Utah Stars host San Diego's Conquistadors Monday night in the opening game of a best-of-seven, first round playoff.

Boone said, "I think we can get by San Diego, but a lot depends on how our injured guys do."

Winner of the series goes against the Indiana-Denver rivalry and represents the ABA West in the post-season championship.

The Stars have the home court edge against San Diego, and if they win, they will keep their home advantage in the final Western Division playoff after capturing the regular season title with a 55-29 record.

Utah's home mark this year is 47-2, best ever in the ABA, breaking Denver's 36-5 standard set in 1969-70. The Stars haven't lost in the Salt Palace since Feb. 10, winning their last 17 straight at home, including two against San Diego.

But the Conquistadors, only the second expansion club in pro basketball history to qualify for a playoff berth in their first year, know the Stars are not invincible.

It was one hell of a ride," said Petty. When the engine blew, the car went sideways in front of Buddy. He pushed me up on the wall. I thought for a minute I was going out of the track."

The only other serious accident occurred after 275 miles when Larry Smith slammed into the wall on the backstretch in his Mercury. Smith was able to continue in the race after extensive time by the pits.

Among the pre-race favorites, Pete Hamilton dropped out after only 67 miles, and a burned piston in his Plymouth took him out of the race.

Cale flat-topped at the first of the race, said Allison. "I couldn't keep up. I saw Pearson coming up on me fast but I couldn't do anything about it."

Veteran Infilanapolis driver A.J. Fox dropped out after 345 miles when his Chevrolet began overheating.

Casper, Graham tied for Greensboro lead

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Billy Casper and Lou Graham, both still hungry for a fourth victory this year, tied for the lead of the rain-delayed third round of Greater Greensboro Open Sunday, posting 14-under-par 299 totals over the muddy, Sedgfield Country Club course.

They left a host of others within reach of the $12,000 first place money, to be awarded after Monday's final round.

Graham, who last won at the 1972 Loggitt and Myers Open, another North Carolina event, posted a 67 while Casper, the second round leader, carded a 68.

Officials had hoped to play both of the last two rounds Sunday after Saturday's wash-out. However, the thunderstorms which rumbled across the 7,021 yard par 71 course Saturday night left the course too wet for play Sunday morning, allowing only a two-starting single round in the afternoon.

Chi-Chi Rodriguez, the slightly-built Puerto Rican, was two strokes off the pace with 201 after posting a 67 Sunday.

Doug Sanders and Rod Finseth were another stroke back while veteran Sam Snead, an eight-time winner here, was grouped with George Knudson and Mike Hill at 10 under.

Both Casper and Graham opened Sunday's rounds with birdies on the first hole and added others on the sixth and ninth; Graham briefly moved ahead of Casper when the second round leader bogeyed on the first hole of the back nine, but Casper evened it out again on the 14th hole by picking up another stroke.

Graham also had a birdie on par 4 13th hole when he tapped it in from five feet away.

Both Graham and Casper lamented the poor putting conditions, but Graham said that the "course wasn't bad at all."

"I like the position I'm in," Graham said, but added that "a lot of people have a chance to win tomorrow. I think I've got a pretty good shot at it."

Casper said that despite his bogey, he was playing better than he had in two years.

"I'm very happy with the way everything happened," he said, adding that the morning deluge had given him time to rest.

"I enjoy the slow play, it gives me a chance to meditate," he said with a chuckle.

Snead, who's now 60 years-old, said Graham was definitely the man to beat.

Asked what his chances were, he said, "If I can beat Graham I win the tournament."

A 68 round by Leo Elder, leaving him 9-under, for the first three days, did little to help his already battered hopes of becoming the first black golfer in the Masters, for which he needs a GGO win.

An estimated 40,000 fans tramped to Sedgfield despite the rain that was still falling Sunday morning. Many had to summon wreckers to pull their cars from muddy parking areas at the end of the day. A loud cheer rang out shortly before noon when the flag was placed on the first green, signifying the beginning of the delayed round.

Betsy Cullen captures prize

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Betsy Cullen fought off a bad case of the mitters and a strong charge by Betty Burdette Sunday for a two-stroke victory in the $30,000 Akamo Open Ladies Golf Tournament.

Miss Cullen fired a three-over par 76 on the final 18 holes to finish at one under par 218 and claim the $4,500 first prize.

Miss Burdette, who charged to a one-stroke lead midway through the final round, bogeyed the 17th and 18th holes to finish at 71 and a three-day total 230. Her second place finish was worth $3,400.

Sandra Palmer finished third with a 221 total over the par 73, 6,221-yard Woodlake Country Club course.

Sportswriter attempts guess at final baseball results

NEW YORK (UPI) — A few weeks in spring training's Florida sun can do odd things to a man like making him think he can pitch in April how the major league pennant races will end in September.

It's something the palefaces who stayed up North expect of the sports writers with the beautiful suns, however, so without further ado, here's how the races will look when the last putout of the season has been made on September 30.

National League East: 1. Pittsburgh Pirates, 2. New York Mets, 3. Chicago Cubs, 4. St. Louis Cardinals, 5. Montreal Expos, 6. Philadelphia Phillies.

National League West: 1. Houston Astros, 2. Cincinnati Reds, 3. Los Angeles Dodgers, 4. Atlanta Braves, 5. San Francisco Giants, 6. San Diego Padres.

American League East: 1. New York Yankees, 2. Boston Red Sox, 3. Baltimore Orioles, 4. Detroit Tigers, 5. Cleveland Indians, 6. Milwaukee Brewers.

American League West: 1. Chicago White Sox, 2. Oakland Athletics, 3. California Angels, 4. Minnesota Twins, 5. Kansas City Royals, 6. Texas Rangers.

And here's why:

The Pirates will get straightened away when Marry Sanguillen is returned to his regular catching position. They will miss the late Roberto Clemente but have the hitting depth to win without him. The Mets will be stronger with Rusty Staub playing a full season and Felix Millan and Bud Harrelson giving them an outstanding double play combination. The Mets were 8-6 over the Pirates in their 1972 season series and can beat them in a clutch series. The Cubs will play about the same as they have the last three seasons. The Expos will be improved and could finish fourth if the Cardinals don't hit any better than they did last season. The Phillies just haven't got enough strengths to make a move toward contention even with Steve Carlton starting every fourth game.

It is just not realistic to favor a team over a six-month tournament which has as many pitching questionmarks as the Reds. The Astros have a brilliant young star in Cesar Cedeno, a batting order which scored more runs than any other team in the league last season and a manager in Leo Durocher who is at his best in this sort of situation. Remember that the Reds finished fourth in 1971, and last both World Series in which they have played in the last three years. The Dodgers, Braves and Giants are all in varied states of transition and aren't likely to be contenders. The Padres still have all the weaknesses of newly-formed expansion teams.

A four-team race with the Yankees, Red Sox, Orioles and Tigers finishing under a blanket of seven or eight games. An argument can be made to pick the first four in any sequence but the feeling here is that Lee MacPhail's patient rebuilding program will pay off, that the Red Sox missed their chance last season, that the Orioles will still have serious offensive problems this season and that the Tigers just can't be expected to win out two years in a row in this closely-matched situation. The Indians and Brewers appear to have improved themselves with winter trades but can't make it into contention.

For all their defensive and possible pitching problems, the White Sox are by far the strongest offensive club in the league. The defending world champion Athletics, with the best pitching in the league, will make a gallant run but be beaten by a team with more guns. The Angels, Twins and Royals will finish only a few games apart but quite a distance behind the White Sox and Athletics. Ranger fans can expect a season of experimentation. The Rangers will still be trying to resolve problems in August that other teams solved in March.

The playoffs and the World Series?

The Pirates will beat the Astros in the NL playoffs and the White Sox will beat the Yankees in the AL playoffs. Then the White Sox will beat the Pirates in a World Series which will be long remembered for its slugging.

Sounds crazy? Blame it on the Florida sun.

slowly recovered, finally cutting the Boston advantage to 11-40 with 27:22 remaining in the second quarter.

But Haylicek poured in another eight points, and the Celtics ripped off 11 straight for a 61-41 advantage 1:10 before the half ended.

Boston led 99-81 after three quarters and the Hawks were unable to close the gap to less than 40 points in the second half.

Haylicek got a standing ovation from the crowd of 11,907 when he took a pass from Dave Cowens for an easy layup and his record setting 52nd point with 7:11 left in the game.

He sank a pair of free throws a minute later.

Jo Jo White added 34 points to the Boston attack while Lou Hudson paced Atlanta with 28.

Pete Maravich, Herd Callahan and Bellamy scored 16 apiece for Atlanta.

Boston tops Atlanta as Haylicek hits 54

BOSTON (UPI) — John Haylicek poured in a record 54 points Sunday night while the Boston Celtics rolled over the Atlanta Hawks, 134-109, in the opening game of the National Basketball Association quarterfinal playoffs.

Haylicek broke the old Boston playoff scoring record of 57 points set by Sam Jones in '67.

His 30 points in the first half broke the old team record of 29, also set by Jones and his 11 field goals in the opening half snapped the Celtics' record in that department.

The Celtics ripped the game open in the opening moments of play as Haylicek, popping it in from a variety of angles, scored the first eight points of the game and Boston raced off to a 16-0 lead against the record Hawks in the first 10 minutes.

Walt Bellamy gave Atlanta its first basket of the night on a layup with 7:10 left in the opening period and the Hawks

Walton shares honors

NEW YORK (UPI) — UCLA's Bill Walton, who turned down a chance to join the National Basketball Association next season as a hardship case, shared top honors with Ed Ratleff of Long Beach State today in voting by NBA coaches for their 1973 College All-America team.

Walton and Ratleff, repeaters from last year's team, each collected 16 votes from the coaches who were asked to pick the nation's five best college players without regard to position, class or future professional potential.

Others named to the first team were Doug Collins of Illinois State with 15 points, David Thompson of North Carolina State, 10, and Jim Brewer of Minnesota, 9. Thompson is the only sophomore on the squad.

Virginia defeats Kentucky 109-94

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Julius Erving's 41 points and rookie George Gervin's 12-point outburst in the fourth quarter Sunday night carried the Virginia Squires to a 109-94 victory over the Kentucky Colonels and evened their American Basketball Association playoff series at one win apiece.

Behind 80-76 at the end of three quarters, Virginia stopped the Colonels cold in the final period with just 14 points and rolled on to take the lead at 81-82 on a basket by Gervin.

The best of seven series now shifts to Virginia for the next two games before returning to Louisville next Saturday. The next game is scheduled Tuesday night at Norfolk, Va.

Gervin, going all the way at guard in a revamped Virginia line-up, tipped in the basket that tied the score 82-82 before his field goal put the Squires on top for good.

The Squires held Kentucky to its lowest fourth quarter total this season after the Colonels had dominated most of the action.

Dan Issel, who drilled 43 points in the opening game Friday night, led the Colonels Sunday night with 35 points. Teammate Rick Mount scored 19 points and Artis Gilmore 15.

Erving was backed by "Big Jim" Fawks with 27 points and 11 rebounds, while Gervin wound up with 25.

Kerry Melville wins tournament

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Kerry Melville, Melbourne, Australia, defeated Nancy Ritchey Gunter, Lake Livingston, Tex., 6-3, 6-3, Sunday to win the $25,000 — Virginia — Sims — tennis tournament.

In a pro-semy playoff for third place, Rosemary Casals of San Francisco defeated Valerie Ziegenfuss, San Diego, 6-5.

Mrs. Gunter, 30, won the loss in the finals match and elected to receive, thinking Miss Melville, 25, had not had time to warm up. The strategy backfired and it was Mrs. Gunter who had trouble with her serve in both sets.

Miss Melville broke Mrs. Gunter's serve three times in the first set and was ahead 4-3 in the second when Mrs. Gunter lost her serve.

In the championship doubles match, Pam Teeguarden, Los Angeles, and Jan Nowbury, In Jolla, Calif., took the $1,800 prize with a 3-6, 7-6, 7-5 win over Karen Krantzke of Australia and Betty Stove of The Netherlands.

Miss Melville earned $6,000 on her first pro singles win. Mrs. Gunter received $3,000, Miss Casals $1,000 and Miss Ziegenfuss $1,050.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 3, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES A day when you have much charm and are able to impress others with the quickness of your mind and your ability to find the answers needed to put in motion a fascinating plan. Be more open-minded in dealing with any problems.

ARIES (Mar 21 to Apr 19) Talk over with others how best they can fit into the picture for the future for you. You can express your charm at the social tonight. Dress nicely and make headway easily. Be poised.

TAURUS (Apr 20 to May 20) You can plan secretly with others and the future will be brighter, but don't confide in anyone. Study those plans confidentially with the right persons. Avoid a troublemaker.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Attend those social functions that can bring you advancement in a refined way. Entertain and please the persons you like. Handle only important business affairs now. Go to bed early tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Find a better system for handling promises you have made to outsiders, and gain the acclaim of powerful persons. Know what your true ambition is and take steps in such directions.

LEO (July 22 to Aug 21) Contact out-of-towners who have the know-how for helping you to advance. New friends enter your life and can help you become more successful. Impress them with your intellect. Relax tonight.

VIRGO (Aug 22 to Sept 22) You are anxious to get into the many duties ahead of you, so be efficient in so doing. Your mate is highly romantic at this time, so make the most of this. Avoid one who likes to argue.

LIBRA (Sept 23 to Oct 22) If you want to have greater rapport with one who means a great deal to you, be more willing to back this person in whatever the aims are. Accept invitations that can be beneficial to you.

SCORPIO (Oct 23 to Nov 21) A new outlook where your own work is concerned can bring about greater success with it now. Go on a shopping spree for new clothing that can make you look more charming to others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22 to Dec 21) Ideal day for the amusements that you like so much with congenials. Buy a nice gift for the one you love and get good results. You like to be happy and this is the right day for that.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22 to Jan 20) If you try to be more thoughtful of kin and please them, you get better results. Do some entertaining that brings the right people into your home. Think constructively.

AQUARIUS (Jan 21 to Feb 19) Contact those persons who can help you to live a more successful and happy life. Take care of transportation matters that are important now. You are thinking cleverly now.

PISCES (Feb 20 to Mar 20) You want more monetary security. This can be achieved by right actions now. Clever advisers have good ideas for your advancement. Make sure you are practical in all that you do.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one of those young people who can handle emergencies cheerfully and with precision. Success can be attained in pioneering activities. Teach early to finish whatever task is started, and then this becomes a most successful life, with much prosperity and happiness. Give good spiritual training. Sports are fine.

What's What

E. M. Boyd

Rare is the Seasoned Citizen who can name the first singing cowboy of the movies. John Wayne says he was the fellow. "I finally convinced my producer he ought to find somebody else who could at least carry a tune," says Wayne. "My successor was Gene Autry."

Get it right? Old Paul Rovere didn't shout "The British are coming!" What he shouted was "The Regulars are coming!" Did I tell you the feet of most eagles are bright yellow? Those two ailments the medical quacks most favor for their phony cure of pills are said to be cancer and arthritis. Average volume of poetry sells 2,000 copies; that's all. Do you know what the cryptids and wallas on chickens are for? To keep their cool. Chickens do not perspire. The daily little rascals.

LATER MARRIAGE

Most heterosexuals aren't marrying as young as they did 10 years ago. Ninth-graders are women. Latest census figures show that. Specifically, there are 5 per cent more bachelors under age 35 now than a decade ago, and 8 per cent more unwed women under 35. The population watchers can't explain the why of this, although some observers credit The Pill.

No, no, cries the National Headquarters of the American Red Cross, the Salvation Army contributes no funds to the Red Cross, as previously reported. My misstatement! Apologies.

Another oddball word with opposite meanings is "stems." As in "A torquetum stems the flow of blood which stems from a ruptured vessel." Any others?

QUERY FROM CLIENT

Where does a hippopotamus feed, underwater or on the land? On the land. At night. Pretty efficient grazer, the hippo can polish off more than 50 pounds dry weight of grass on any given night. Cattlemen, please note. It crops close, too. As closely as a sheep.

Experiments show a rocking motion induces sleep in grown-ups as well as in babies. So the bed makers say they intend to put out cradles for adults, particularly for insomniacs. Consider that, sir. If you find it hard to doze off at night, why not purchase such a bed? Possibly you could get your wife to toter you gently to sleep, humming "Rockabye Baby" softly. With the night light on.

Am asked to name the first American novel that was "The Power of Sympathy." Written in 1789 by one William Hill Brown. Was all about seduction, incest, abduction, rape and suicide. Certainly not the pattern, didn't it?

Claim is poison ivy doesn't affect newborn babies, newly arrived foreign immigrants and Eskimos at first exposure, although they do become susceptible shortly thereafter. Could this be true?
