Nixon asks trading powers

Swiss crash kills 110

BASEL, Switzerland (UPI) — A British charter airliner circling for a second instrument landing attempt in fog and a blinding snowstorm crashed and exploded on a forested hill outside Basel today. British and Swiss officials said at least 110 of the 146 persons on board were killed.

The British consul in Basel, Ivan H. May, said there were "25 to 35 survivors at the most." The plane carried 139 passengers and seven crew.

The four-engine Vanguard turboprop aircraft, flying on instruments, missed its original approach from the north at Basel airport after a flight from Bristol, England.

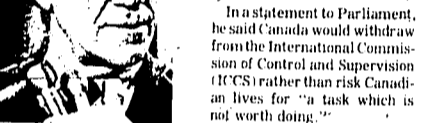

Panel OK's devaluation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House Banking subcommittee approved today legislation to officially devalue the dollar by 10 percent. The bill also contains an amendment to allow Americans to own gold once the international monetary situation settles down.

The bill would formally increase the price of gold from $38 to $42.22 an ounce.

Canada to quit ICES role

OTTAWA (UPI) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday Canada will withdraw from the Vietnam truce observer force at the end of June if the situation "does not improve very substantially."

In a statement to Parliament, he said Canada would withdraw from the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICES) rather than risk Canadian lives for "a task which is not worth doing."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon asked Congress today for sweeping powers to expand trade with Communist nations, negotiate new foreign trade agreements, and retaliate for unfair restrictions on American exports by other nations.

In a message to Congress outlining the first major U.S. trading reforms since the mid 60s, NIXON also proposed lighter restrictions on American-owned firms whose operations abroad are deemed to threaten employment at home.

The trade bill, Nixon said in a short broadcast statement, "can mean more jobs and better jobs for American workmen." He added, "It can help American consumers get more for their money."

Under the proposed legislation, most-favored nation treatment could be extended to the Soviet Union and China, putting their exports to this country in a competitive position with products of free world nations entering the U.S. market.

Nixon urged rejection of congressional moves to deny most-favored-nation status to the Soviet Union until it lifts an emigration tax on Soviet Jews wishing to emigrate to Israel.

"I do not believe that a policy of denying most-favored-nation treatment to Soviet exports is a proper or even effective way of dealing with this problem," Nixon said.

"Most favored nation" tariff treatment means a foreign trading partner can import its goods into the United States at the lowest existing legal tariff in this country.

Poland and Yugoslavia are the only Communist countries at present enjoying this status, which also extends to the free world countries with whom the U.S. is joined under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

The legislation would give Nixon power to decide when a trading nation appeared to be discriminating against American goods.

Truck, car collision near Buhl kills teacher

Crash kills TF teacher near Buhl

BUHL — A Twin Falls school teacher was killed this morning in a car-truck collision a mile east of here.

The victim, Mrs. William (Alberta) McCauley, 51, was pronounced dead of multiple injuries at the accident scene by County Coroner Cloyce Edwards.

Mrs. McCauley taught a third grade class at Lincoln School.

Edwards said she apparently died instantly and was pinned in the automobile after it collided with a 10-wheel potato truck.

County and state officers were investigating the accident which occurred at about 8 a.m. on U.S. Highway 30.

Mrs. McCauley, who resides at 248 Third Ave. W., had taken her husband to Buhl to work at one of the trout farms. She was returning to Twin Falls when the accident occurred, it was reported.

Bellevue council approves election

By TERRY CAMPBELL, Times News writer

BELLEVUE — The April 2 annual Bellevue City election has been validated by the City Council.

A unanimous vote to accept the election returns came during a special council meeting Monday night. Earlier that morning, a six man-Bellevue delegation went to Boise to consult state Atty. Gen. Anthony Park and Secretary of State Pete Coatsworth at the contested election.

The election was challenged on the grounds that under the city charter non-property taxpayers were not allowed to vote. Bellevue holds the last charter remaining in effect in Idaho.

A delegation member, Mayor James Pigg, said Monday night Park told the delegation the property tax qualification "tends as unconstitutional because of Supreme Court decisions."

However, Pigg said Park told the group that his statements were an opinion and only a court determination would constitute a final decision.

Park said the election was conducted in accordance with the charter and valid in that aspect. He recommended the property tax qualification for voting in the annual city elections be amended and up-dated to conform to the Supreme Court rulings.

Pigg said Park declined to give an opinion on voting in city bond elections.

The mayor said that State Rep. E. V. McMan, R-Keetchum, attended the Boise meeting and said he was willing to present a charter amendment request from the council to the next session of the legislature.

The Bellevue delegation included, in addition to Pigg, Aldermen John Pascoe, Duke Martin, George McKay, Joe Bergin and Halbert Hatch.

Also present during the consultation was an assistant attorney general, John V. Crouer.

Deadline extension asked

DETROIT (UPI) — United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock Monday urged the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to grant a one-year extension to the auto industry for meeting stringent 1975 emission control standards.

Woodcock also urged the agency to insist that the industry make an "absolute good faith effort" to comply with the standards if the extension is granted.

Dependents ordered out

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Diplomatic sources said today three foreign embassies, faced with dwindling supplies and a threatened Communist attack on Phnom Penh on Friday, have ordered all dependents temporarily out of the capital.

The sources said the evacuation of the British, Japanese and Israeli Embassies will be completed by Friday—the Buddhist New Year. They said the evacuation was prompted not only by security problems, but also because of shortages of fuel, power blackouts and a shrinking water supply.

Long boycott 'disaster'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's consumer affairs adviser says an indefinite meat boycott would be a "disaster."

Mrs. Virginia H. Knauer gave her view of the meat protest Monday in testimony before a Senate subcommittee studying food price increases.

Mrs. Knauer predicted that by the second half of the year meat prices would come down because there would be increased supplies.

Halg confers in Saigon

SAIGON (UPI) — Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., making a tour of Southeast Asia to study the worsening political and military situation in Cambodia for President Nixon, arrived today from Phnom Penh.

U.S. sources said Haig probably would return Wednesday to Phnom Penh before returning to the United States, an indication of the importance Nixon attached to the current crisis in Cambodia.

Truce flights halted

SAIGON (UPI) — The international truce supervising organization said today it is halting all of its helicopter flights indefinitely, apparently because of a helicopter downed Saturday over territory controlled by Communists.

Nine men, two of them Americans, died in the crash.

A spokesman read newsmen a one-sentence statement announcing the decision, but did not elaborate on the reasons.

Wage boost asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration proposed today to raise the federal minimum wage from $1.60 to $2.30 over a three-year period. This is more than administration backers in Congress have sought, but less than some Democrats have asked.

Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan presented the administration proposal before a House labor subcommittee.

Brennan, formerly a New building-trades-union official, had supported organized labor's drive last year for an immediate $2 increase. Congress could not agree on a bill and labor this year proposed going to $2.20 an hour in one year and eventually to $2.50 an hour without a stated time goal.

Brennan said the wage for employees covered by the law before 1966 should go to $1.90 on enactment, $2.10 a year later, $2.20 in 1975 and $2.30 in 1976.

Those covered after 1966 would go to $1.80 immediately, $2 a year later, $2.10 in 1975, $2.20 in 1976 and $2.30 in 1977. The bulk of the covered workers are in the pre-1966 group.

Brennan also urged that the $1.30-per-hour minimum wage for farm workers be increased to $1.50 immediately.

Idaho permits some DDT uses

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho has decided to move on its own — without federal approval — in allowing use of DDT on specified crops and pests, according to Agriculture Commissioner Wilson (Bill) Kellogg.

"We tried to get federal state permission to use the product on specified crops and pests," Kellogg said. "With no answer we decided we had to move on our own."

"We would question intrastate versus interstate authority," he said.

"The point is, producers must have working tools to produce crops and the nation needs food. The Department of Agriculture is supporting the producer, subject to regulation."

"We are backing up the producer and we are not hitting the consumer," he said.

Kellogg said he waited 40 days for the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in Washington, D. C., to grant or deny permission to use DDT in Idaho.

"If the EPA is against it, the state statute will have to be tested in court," Kellogg said.

Since DDT is approved for use under state law, he said, his department believes it is better to use it on selected crops that need it in the near future.

He said his agency acted on the ground there is no approved dump to get rid of DDT as some EPA officials unofficially have suggested.

Marine POW sees picture of funeral

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (UPI) — A Marine taken prisoner by the North Vietnamese found out he had erroneously been declared dead when another POW found a picture of his "funeral" in a news magazine.

Sgt. Donald L. Ridgeway, 23, of Houston, was reported killed in battle in 1968. Eight Marines, including a body thought to be that of Ridgeway, were buried at Jefferson Marine Barracks, Mo. "The first I knew of that, was when a fellow prisoner brought me a copy of a news magazine," Ridgeway told a news conference Monday. "He told me 'I saw your grave and a picture of a your family crying.'"

"I just looked at the magazine. It just happened. You never expect it to happen to you though."

Ridgeway said he intends to visit "his grave" because his friends are there.

He said he and 43 other men were on patrol near Khe Sanh when they got into a bloody battle with North Vietnamese regulars, a fight at close quarters with machine guns and hand grenades that turned to bloody, hand-to-hand killing.

Ridgeway said he was shot in the arm. Only two other Americans survived the battle, he said, but then the area was shelled by American artillery, showering them with shrapnel, and napalm was dropped on the site.

"I was able to brush them off (the napalm blobs) before they burned into me," he said.

The other two survivors died of their wounds, he said, and he passed out.

"I felt somebody pulling at my arm. A North Vietnamese soldier was taking off my watch." When the enemy soldier realized Ridgeway was still alive, he aimed his rifle at him. "I put my head down, waiting for death," Ridgeway said.

The North Vietnamese took him prisoner instead, he said. "They were the kindest North Vietnamese I was to meet."

In Hanoi, he said, interrogators told him he would get no medical treatment for his mangled, festering wounds "unless I answered military questions." He said he told them he was just a simple soldier and didn't know anything important.

Russo testifies in 'papers' trial

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Anthony Russo, weeping on the witness stand, said Monday he started down the road that eventually led to the Pentagon Papers trial when he began to empathize with the Viet Cong he interrogated for the Air Force.

Russo, on trial with Daniel Ellsberg in U.S. District Court, acknowledged he helped Ellsberg make copies of the secret Pentagon report on the war. His involvement was the upshot of a conversation with Ellsberg at a beach, Russo testified.

When he was still a researcher for the Rand Corp., Russo spent 18 months in Vietnam as the head of a team that interviewed scores of Viet Cong prisoners to study their motivation and morale, particularly as it was affected by bombing.

Russo described spending two days with one Communist who Russo said had been tortured for months by the South Vietnamese, but would not break.

"He was the strongest man I have ever met—his constitution and personality," Russo said. "He talked about the presence of the Americans in Vietnam, the goals of the independence movement, how the people in the villages felt, how his own village was attacked.

"He recited poetry and sang a song to me. We established a rapport. I came to know the Vietnamese."

Russo's voice broke. He held his head in his hands and wept. For almost a full minute he was unable to go on.

He slipped from a cup of water and looked up.

"As you see, even now when I think of it, it comes back to me."

He began to weep again. His wife, Catharine, sitting in the front row of spectators, bowed her head.

He learned that in many cases children picked up unexploded bombs and "took them home where they would go off and the entire family would be killed," Russo said.

"I sort of secretly hoped that when the Air Force saw how bad these antipersonnel weapons were they would stop using them, but I was very naive then. Instead they escalated their use until now more than a million tons of antipersonnel weapons have been dropped in Vietnam."

TF drill team in 3rd place

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls High School drill team placed third in the Intermountain Drill Team Contest large team division, Mrs. Chris Charlton, counselor, announced today.

The contest was April 7 in Idaho Falls and was attended by teams from schools in Idaho, Wyoming, Utah and Washington.

The Twin Falls High School entry was composed of 48 members selected from the total membership of 80 junior and senior girls. Teams competing in the large team division were made up of 20 or more girls from schools with 400 or more students.

Demos want Dean report on Watergate opened

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic National Committee has asked a judge to open up secret White House documents about the Watergate bugging case. GOP campaign officials, meanwhile, denied strongly they approved the bugging or paid "hush money" to the perpetrators.

The committee asked U.S. District Court Judge Charles R. Richey Monday to provide the report on the Watergate investigation done at President Nixon's request last summer by White House Counsel John W. Dean III.

The report has never been made public. Nixon said in August the investigation proved that no one then "presently employed" in the White House was involved in the break-in. But Dean has refused to let Nixon testify before a congressional committee about Watergate on grounds on executive privilege and the lawyer-client relationship.

Judge Richey set a hearing for Thursday on the motion, filed in the Democrats' $6.4 million civil damage suit against the Nixon campaign organization. The motion also seeks to give the committee access to FBI files, the grand jury minutes and Justice Department files.

Day of grace

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most of the country will get a day's grace this year in meeting the deadline for filing federal income tax returns, but residents of New York and New England will get an extra two days.

April 15, the traditional due date for filing returns, falls on Sunday this year. Because of this, the Internal Revenue Service has pushed back the filing deadline to Monday, April 16.

Residents of Massachusetts, New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine will have until April 17, because "Patriot's Day" falls on April 16 in Massachusetts, and the regional IRS office at Andover, Mass., will be closed for the observance.

Taxpayers living outside New York and New England must have their forms postmarked by midnight, April 16, to avoid paying a late filing charge.

Cleanup day meeting set

TWIN FALLS — County wide planning for the May 5 Johnny Horizon Day is scheduled in a public meeting at 8 p.m. tonight in the County Judicial Building.

County Commission Chairman William Chancey said representatives from all participating groups and agencies as well as the general public are urged to attend and help with coordination of the project.

On May 5, crews of volunteers including 4-H club members, Boy Scouts, civic and service groups, National Guard and Reserve units and community leaders will divide up the county and march against litter.

Several tons of trash, debris and litter will be collected from roadsides, public right-of-way, parks and public lands to make Twin Falls county a more attractive and cleaner place, Chancey said.

In the Tuesday night meeting area coordinators, district assignments and other appointments will be made and plans made for communication, transportation of workers and collections and other details discussed.

Worker honored

ONE OF MANY PTA workers honored for their services Monday night by the Twin Falls PTA Council was Eileen Day, who receives a framed certificate from Roy Roper, council president.

Recognition awards given by PTA council

TWIN FALLS — Recognition awards were presented to outstanding members at the final meeting of the Twin Falls PTA Council Monday night.

Carol Newcomb, Morningside president, honored Donna Scott, Mary Ann White, Washington president, honored Dee Roberts, and Darl Gleed, O'Leary president, presented the presentations at the O'Leary Junior High School and library.

Jack Muldoon received the recognition award from Robert Stuart Junior High School.

Special awards for their work with the PTA council went to Julia Campeau, Eileen Day, Mary Ann White, Keith Turner, Mayme Ruffing and Darleen Moore.

Jack Muldoon received the recognition award from Robert Stuart Junior High School.

Lunchon reservations for this event must be made by April 27 with Ms. Ruffing, 733-5231, conference registration chairman.

Presidents of the local PTA units were honored and in turn presented framed certificates to outstanding members in their groups.

Jack Muldoon received the recognition award from Robert Stuart Junior High School.

Mrs. E. D. Crockett, vice president of District 4 PTA, installed new council officers Monday night.

They include Barbara Fuller, Bickett president, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Romands; Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Leir, Lincoln president, who honored Mr. and Mrs. Larry Smith, Pat MacDonald and Judy Holland.

Subdivisions get first nod

TWIN FALLS — Preliminary approval was given plans of two proposed subdivisions by the Twin Falls City Planning and Zoning Commission Monday evening.

The action was taken during a "work session" lasting more than three hours. Chairman John Rosholt said both plans had been presented to the commission earlier, at which time suggestions in design were given to the developers. Approved were plans of the Jonathan Heights Subdivision, which lies south of the Kimberly Nurseries property, and the North by Northeast Subdivision, which covers about 3.5 acres between Kingsgate and Canyon Crest Subdivisions.

Application readied on airport

TWIN FALLS — An amended application for approximately $60,000 will be submitted to the Federal Aviation Agency for matching funds for fire, crash and rescue equipment at the city-county airport.

Rosholt said members of the commission worked over the draft form of the subdivision ordinance being prepared for further consideration by the commission later on. Most of the meeting was devoted to discussion of its provisions. Rosholt said he had asked members for their comments on the measure at this meeting.

City Manager Jean Millar said the city received preliminary approval of the grant in the amount of $55,000. Bids for the equipment have been opened and a decision is pending on one of the alternatives, but the two fire and crash trucks are expected to cost about $120,000, half of which the federal government will match.

Mrs. E. D. Crockett, vice president of District 4 PTA, installed new council officers Monday night.

Burglary probed

TWIN FALLS — A burglary of the offices of Dr. C. F. Wurster, 204 Fourth Ave. E., is under investigation today by Twin Falls city police.

Police Chief Frank Barnett said the building was entered sometime between 11 a.m. Sunday and 7:45 a.m. Monday when it was reported to officers.

He said an undetermined amount of drugs and some money are missing. Barnett said burglars forced open the front door to gain entry. Barnett said an inventory was being taken to determine the loss.

Program slated at Dietrich

DIETRICH — A pre-school skills screening program sponsored by the South Central Child Development Center will be conducted at the Dietrich school April 19.

A second session will be conducted at the Richfield School April 24. Both will begin at 9 a.m.

The program, which will be assisted by a public health nurse, is designed to determine whether or not children to be enrolled in the first grade for the 1973-74 school year have the necessary skills to accomplish first grade work. Vision, speech, hearing, vocabulary, pre-school achievement, conceptual development, digit span, draw-a-person, and motor ability will all be evaluated.

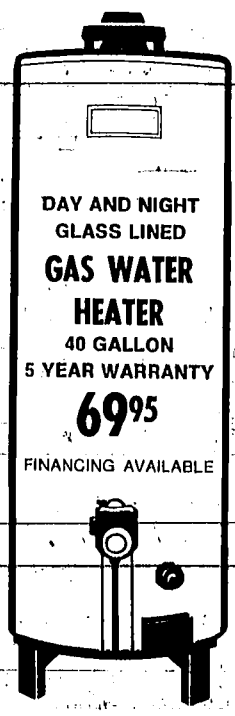

Parents of children who will be 6 years old before Oct. 15 are asked to call the superintendents of schools in Dietrich and Richfield to make appointments for screening.

The President's Unannounced Concern

WASHINGTON — The fact that H. R. (Bob) Haldeman, President Nixon's White House staff chief, went unannounced to Capitol Hill on March 28 and told a score of Republican Congressmen that he knows nothing whatever about the Watergate scandal may signal a long-overdue change in the White House Watergate game of unconcerned aloofness.

extremely welcome, far more was needed to end the dangerous split which is putting the White House on one side of the Watergate scandal and the rest of the Republican party on the other.

remodeled Holiday Inn will greatly increase the city's ability to draw conventions.

It will be even better news in three years, when the dangerous situation that now exists is alleviated with the brand new, $8 million four-lane bridge over the Snake River.

There is also a development planned for north of that interchange, although its specific nature is unclear at this time.

The department is already making plans for developing a major traffic interchange where there is currently none, at Blue Lakes Boulevard North and Pole Line Road in Twin Falls.

Already discussion is underway about how to improve county roads with city, county and state officials concerned with the problem of altering a system that has been basically unchanged for the last half century.

There is a Rodeway Inn planned for construction south of the interchange area. That combined with the newly expanded and withheld offerings to see what effect the buyers' strike would have and processors and retailers bought cautiously. So did many housewives.

The Wall St. Journal suggested a number of seafoods and printed on page one, normally devoted to business and finance, a recipe for mussels, relished by Frenchmen and largely ignored by Americans.

"A price ceiling may create problems," said one stockman, "but not more meat. And where's the floor."

The more fun-loving New York Daily News headlined: "Oh, Boy, Oh Beef Boycott," and printed a week's menus featuring such substitutes for meat as cheese souffle, fish sticks, curried eggs, eggplant parmigiana and clamburgers.

Texas cattle feeders telegraphed a Cleveland City Councilman, who authored a resolution for a boycott "to bring the meat industry to its knees," an invitation to share in the risks of investing in a typical feeder pen of 200 cattle. The telegram pointed out that if the price rose six cents a pound, the profit would be $10,500.00, and if it dropped six cents a pound, the loss would be $10,500.00. There was no laker.

In Nashville, kindergartens came up with ideas of their own, including barbecued chicken ribs.

In these times, fraught with couter-wailing, it's nice to see the return of that great American standby in adversity — a sense of humor.

Boycott leaders denounced President Nixon's ceiling on beef, pork and lamb prices as too little too late. Stockmen deplored the move as too much too soon.

WASHINGTON — The energy crisis has reached the point where it is quite possible that Americans will be asked to make great sacrifices to conserve the power we need to maintain the highest standard of living in the world.

shouted, "No way! The electric pencil sharpener is the key to the entire capitalist system. Do you know why the Russians are behind us in their schools? Because their students are still sharpening their pencils by hand. Besides, our gross national product depends on electric pencil sharpeners. It takes a Russian secretary a full minute to sharpen her pencil by the antiquated nonelectric method. Our secretaries can do it in 10 seconds. Gentleman, once you allow the Soviets to close the pencil sharpener gap, you can kiss our economy goodbye."

A group of wise old men met in Washington, D. C., last week to discuss what electrical appliances could be eliminated from the American home to guarantee an adequate energy supply for our future years.

The chairman said, "Then we're all in agreement that the electric pencil sharpener stays."

"Gentlemen, we are here today to discuss the elimination of certain electrical appliances from the American scene. The President has asked us to present him with a list of those appliances that will have to be sacrificed to conserve our power supplies. Are there any suggestions?"

"What about the electric can opener?"

"Absolutely essential. You can't ask an American citizen to open a can by hand. We'll have a revolution on our hands."

"I imagine that would go for electric orange juice squeezers also?"

"No President would be able to govern a people who have to squeeze oranges with their fingers. I would eliminate street lighting before I did away with electric orange juice squeezers."

"I know people can't live without electric blankets, but might we forbid the future manufacturing of electric bed vibrators — at least until the crisis is over?"

"Blat your tongue," someone shouted. "The bed vibrator is a priority item in this country, particularly for people with bad backs. I will resign from the commission if you take any action against the electric vibrator."

"Well, gentlemen, we still don't have a list for the President. Surely there is some electrical appliance that we can all agree is nonessential."

"The heated swimming pool?"

"Impossible. If Benjamin Franklin ever thought that someday we'd eliminate the heated swimming pool he never would have discovered electricity."

"Why don't we ban the electric pencil sharpener?"

"I have a suggestion as to how we would save some power," another wise man said. "Why don't we ban the electric pencil sharpener?"

There was dead silence. Finally a man

Wallace Command Test

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Gov. George Wallace gets his first real "test of fire" as an effective commander when the characteristically unruly Alabama legislature convenes in early May.

the lawmakers descend upon Montgomery. Many of them detest the Wallace staff people. Not the least of Wallace's problems when the confrontations begin in May is his evident lack of a formulated program. A recent study by the Southern Regional Council reviewing legislative prospects in the southern tier, left Alabama a big blank. State observers say there should be drawing-board plans for better health care and a lot of other social and economic needs.

the legislators withheld basic state appropriations to cause him and the state acute embarrassment. There is talk now that a bill may be offered proposing to allow a governor to retire at full pay — a broad hint to Wallace that he might find it wise and practical not to run again in 1974, as Alabama law permits.

Up to now, paralyzed from the waist down and in constant pain, he has had the benefit of all doubt. A Montgomery newspaper soon will publish a poll indicating an enormous reservoir of sympathy for him at home.

the lawmakers will be all over the lot, with special interests pressing their causes. In 1971, with Wallace just distracted, program and hard guidance, the lawmakers will be all over the lot, with special interests pressing their causes. In 1971, with Wallace just distracted, shows it does not pay to underestimate Wallace. But he will need every ounce of his gritty resolve from this May forward.

Influence Ebbs

WASHINGTON (NEA) — For a Umo, Moscow's gains in the Middle East and Africa made headlines. Local Communist parties were on the upswing in some nations. Communists moved into cabinet posts.

dynamic chief, the Syrian Communists gained some recognition by joining in the national Progressive Front. But there have since been severe government crackdowns.

New studies indicate the local Red boom was short lived. Where Communists have been appointed to high government posts they have had, on the whole, no appreciable influence in the cabinets.

Two men who had been members of the Egyptian Communist party before it was banned were moved into the Egyptian cabinet, but proved singularly ineffective. They were unable to keep President Sadat from throwing out the Soviet Military and have been unable to protect extreme leftists from arrest. Despite their presence, in fact, Sadat has cracked down heavily on Communist-leaning journalists, poets and miscellaneous intellectuals, along with other groups considered dangerous to the regime.

Even those governments still close to the Soviet Union have clamped down hard on the native Communist parties and their sympathizers. (Some Middle East and African nations, in fact, forbid or closely restrain all political groups except the one they favor.) Strikingly, in the lands where the Red parties have a good deal of free reign, they have lost about as many comrades through desertion as they've recruited.

In Lebanon, the Communist party is legal. But it appeals to few and its membership is stagnant. In Libya, the president openly opposes Communists politically and ideologically as being opposed to Islam.

Most prominent on his staff is his longtime friend, State Finance Director Taylor Hagdin. But no one looks upon Hagdin as Wallace's genuine surrogate. The view is the staff could not in any way exert the kind of command needed when the Communist party in Syria is in equally bad shape. Headed by a vigorous,

Heath's anti-inflation drive brings good news

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
British Prime Minister Edward Heath suddenly has been getting some unexpected good news in his Nixon-style campaign to curb British inflation.

entering its Phase II, thus enabling Heath to draw extensively on American experience.

Analysis

The good news has come in an apparent switch in sentiment among British labor which not only has fought the program but also the industrial relations law under which part of it has been enforced. The turn-about came in the surprising outcome of a vote by Britain's militant coal miners rejecting a strike against the government's ceiling on wage increases.

the government side, the Heath antiinflation program was by no means out of the woods. Like Nixon, the British prime minister had taken a step he had declared he never would take when he clamped a lid on wages and prices.

Rail financing compromise due

By ROBERT F. BUCKHOORN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — When business was bad, the joker in the firm could be counted on to dust off the old catch phrase: "Is this any way to run a railroad?"

On March 26, the Transportation Department barred a massive infusion of federal funds to save the railroads. But only two days earlier, the Interstate Commerce Commission called for a $500 million a year transportation tax to finance a program to overhaul the railroads.

Strikes against the Heath program this year among civil workers, gas workers, railroad engineers and hospital workers had led to fears of a repetition of the general strike of 1926. Coincident with the miners' vote and a loss of momentum among other protesters, Hugh Scanlon, hard-lining leader of the Amalgamated Union of Engineering Workers, suggested that the controversial industrial relations law might be amended rather than repealed.

Under a program instituted last November, Heath sought to limit wage increases to no more than 7 per cent; to permit only those increases in manufacturers' and retailers' prices equalling unavoidable new costs; to permit profit margins to go no higher than the average of the best two years in the last five; and to permit dividends to rise by no more than 5 per cent.

The question is apt. Six of the railroads—the Penn Central (the largest in the nation), Erie-Lackawanna, Boston and Maine, Reading, Central of New Jersey, Lehigh Valley—are now in bankruptcy.

The trustees of the Penn Central want immediate permission to drop 5,000 miles of track, and have told Congress it might take up to $800 million in federal aid to put the Penn Central into the black.

It was the first break in the heretofore unyielding opposition to the new law among militant labor leaders. Although a definite plus on

Analysis

Under a free enterprise system, the railroads theoretically should be liquidated unless they can get private refinancing. But there is no rush by bankers to put multimillions into the railroads when they already are the largest creditors of most of the bankrupt railroads.

What will be the end result? The only solution completely ruled out for time is operationalization. But with President Nixon holding fast to his position of "no bailout" for the railroads, and with some key members of Congress supporting an infusion of federal funds, a compromise is the obvious answer.

Most observers agree that the government will allow the 3,000 miles of track operated by the bankrupt railroads to shrink drastically, with smaller railroads vanishing as entities. Along with these changes will come some type of quasipublic organization, not unlike Amtrak, the corporation which now runs the nation's passenger trains.

That's risky. The Penn Central, for example, has 20,000 miles of track in the northeast, serving everyone from tomato farmers to steel plants. The economic consequences could be serious if the Penn Central disappeared and competing railroads picked up only the profitable routes.

Whatever the solution, it must come quickly. A federal court judge presiding over the bankruptcy of the Penn Central has served notice that the railroad must be liquidated unless the trustees can produce a plan for its profitable operation.

Gem books improve

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's general fund was $6.4 million healthier at the end of March this year than last, a joint report from the auditor and treasurer said today.

This year at the end of March the treasurer's balance was in the black for the first time since last August — reading $2,469,275. Compared with a personal checking account the auditor's balance represents the checkbook stubs and the treasurer's balance is the one the bank shows.

On March 31, 1972, the auditor's balance was $6,087,996 in the red. In addition, there were $3 million worth of outstanding tax notes.

The difference between the auditor's balance and the treasurer's balance at the end of March amounted to $6,147,001 in outstanding warrants.

Study scores emission controls

DETROIT (UPI) — An automotive air pollution study commissioned by General Motors for use by its executives contends the American public will "not willingly" accept the penalties involved in stringent emission controls.

GM experts, including research physicists, chemists, engineers, lawyers and public relations experts. It has been circulating since then within the giant corporation.

The group said there is a "growing realization on the part of the general public that automotive emissions have already peaked nationwide and are declining, and that automotive pollution is not significant in many localities."

except in those localities where automotive pollution is considered a serious problem, there probably will be an adverse reaction to the cost of such control systems.

Israeli attacks Beirut targets

By United Press International
Israeli commandos attacked Arab guerrilla targets in Beirut for the first time today and killed three top guerrilla leaders in their apartments. Israeli said the bold raid struck a "serious blow" to the Arab guerrilla movement.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli armed forces chief of staff said the raids came in retaliation for attacks Monday by Arab guerrillas on an El Al jet and the home of the Israeli ambassador to Cyprus.

Lt. Gen. David Elazar said the commandos, some of them dressed in civilian clothing, hit eight targets in Beirut and Sidon, 30 miles south. It was the boldest such raid in the long and bloody Middle East crisis since it took the Israelis almost to the heart of Beirut itself.

Two Israelis were killed and two others wounded in a combined paratroop, naval and air operation, he said. "This operation can be regarded as a retaliation," Elazar said, for guerrilla attacks on the El Al airliner and the home of the Israeli ambassador by 10 Arab guerrillas Monday in Nicosia.

He said the commandos spent between two and 2 1/2 hours on Lebanese soil, striking seven guerrilla targets in Beirut and a garage controlled by the Al Fatah guerrilla organization near Sidon.

The commandos, he said, killed Kamal Nasser, the spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization, and Al Fatah leaders Kamal Adwan and Mohammed Najjar, whose guerrilla unit was Abu Yusef, in their apartments on the second, third and sixth floors of two buildings.

"I believe this operation was a serious blow," Elazar said. "I believe the terrorist leaders have to realize our ability to fight them in every place." "We gave orders to all our forces to avoid any clashes with Lebanese soldiers and civilians," Elazar said, "but I know in some places, the Lebanese forces tried to interfere and they suffered some casualties."

In Beirut, witnesses and newsmen said at least 30 persons died in the Beirut area, but an official Lebanese statement listed only 11 dead, including two policemen, with another 10 wounded.

The raid came 12 hours after the Nicosia attacks, which left one Arab dead and three others wounded. There were no Israeli casualties in the two attacks.

The last Israeli raids into Lebanon came Feb. 21 when commandos hit guerrilla bases reportedly used in planning massacres at Lod airport and of Israeli athletes at the Olympic Games in Munich last year.

Eaten alive

BEIRA, Mozambique (UPI) — Port authorities said today they think the captain of a Greek tanker was eaten by sharks when he dived overboard in the Mozambique channel in an attempt to repair the propeller of his ship.

The 16,000-ton vessel was sailing from the Persian Gulf with a cargo of petroleum for U.S. ports. The captain reported a slow leak in the stern because of propeller damage, then crewmen said he dived overboard to see what he could do to fix it.

He did not surface and the ship continued toward Lourenco Marques.

British troops wound gunman in Belfast

BELFAST (UPI) — British troops shot and wounded a gunman today in central Belfast in the third almost identical incident in three days.

Troops on patrol in the heavily Roman Catholic Lower Falls Road area spotted two men armed with rifles, kneeling in firing position. The men started to run and the British troops opened fire. One was hit in the leg. Both were captured.

One gunman was killed Sunday in a similar incident at Armagh.

Opposes striking

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Postmaster General Elmer T. Knessen says his board of governors has decided to oppose legislation pending in Congress that would give postal workers the right to strike.

It is possible there will be a walkout of U.S. mailmen in mid-summer. The postal workers' contract expires July 20.

Knessen went Monday before a House Post Office subcommittee and told the congressmen he also opposes a separate bill that would give postal unions the right to form a union shop.

"There can be no doubt that a postal strike would have crippling consequences for the public welfare and the national economy," he said.

US House investigating last year's occupation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the confrontation at Wounded Knee still seemingly deadlocked, a House subcommittee today was looking into the week-long occupation last November of the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

The Indian Affairs subcommittee summoned Hank Adams and other leaders of the "Trail of Broken Treaties," the cross-country caravan of Indians which led to the seizure of BIA offices by several hundred Indians that resulted in some $2 million damage to the building.

Also on today's witness list was Charles Trimble, executive director of the National Congress of American Indians, a moderate group which opposed both the BIA raid and the Wounded Knee take-over in South Dakota.

At hearings by the subcommittee Monday, Indian leader Russell Means angered congressmen by announcing that militant Indians would defend Wounded Knee "with force of arms and loaded guns" if he could not meet immediately with White House officials.

So far Means has not gotten that meeting. The government refuses to meet until the Indians at Wounded Knee stack their arms. Means said they wouldn't do that until the meeting got under way.

The seizure of Wounded Knee by Indian militants was in the sixth week.

Means said he was running out of money and would head for South Dakota unless the deadlock over the meeting were broken. He told a news conference Monday that if no agreement was reached, Indians occupying Wounded Knee "will secure our borders and drive back the armored personnel carriers with force of arms and loaded guns."

Rep. James A. Haley, D-Idaho, told Means: "How do you figure that you have the perfect right, even as a member of this tribe, to go out and break the law? You're a bunch of hoodlums and have destroyed innocent people's property. As far as I'm concerned you should be in a federal penitentiary right now."

Means denied that the American Indian Movement (AIM) destroyed property, but said federal forces did.

McGovern charges neglect

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., charging the administration has neglected Vietnam veterans, Monday proposed a new GI bill of rights providing those men with assistance equal to that given World War II veterans.

The 1972 Democratic presidential candidate said Vietnam veterans returned to a nation that "scarcely noted their return."

McGovern told the Harry Golden lectureship at the University of North Carolina-Charlotte, that no more than 14 per cent of the Vietnam veterans with a high school education were taking advantage of educational benefits available to them because "the level of assistance is so low they can't afford it."

At least 60 per cent of the returning World War II veterans took advantage of the programs as did 42 per cent of those who returned from Korea, he said.

McGovern charged that President Nixon had asked Congress to retract $25 million set aside to help private universities admit and train the returning veterans.

The Nixon administration, he said, "has adamantly rejected plans for tuition loans or grants — despite the fact that educational costs have increased perhaps 300 per cent since World War II while GI educational benefits have increased by only a tenth as much."

IDAHO'S LARGEST STATE CHARTERED BANK
SERVING IDAHO WITH 30 OFFICES

This week, April 8-14 is Bank Week all over Idaho.

And all over Idaho, local banks have free packages of flower seeds for customers and visitors. It's Spring of course, and time to plant flowers for summer color. If you're not blessed with a green thumb, we also have booklets that tell you how to grow the flowers.

The flower seeds, by the way, are a reminder of the many ways banks are helping Idaho grow. Banks provide checking and savings accounts to help you manage your money more conveniently. But banks do much more to help the entire community. Banks help new industries and new businesses get started. Home, automobiles, vacations and education are some of the other things banks can make happen with loans.

Come in to any branch of Bank of Idaho today. Get your free flower seeds and booklet. And ask what we mean when we say "Banks Make It Happen."

China launches drive to boost crop yields

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A top-priority Chinese campaign to boost crop production following poor harvests last year appears to be off to a fairly good start, U.S. government analysts said in a report today.

The report said Chinese leaders had "mobilized" more than the usual number of peasants for spring farming work and allied operations. In addition, analysts noted, large numbers of urban workers, soldiers and Communist party officials have been "sent to the countryside" to aid in the spring campaign.

Researchers Frederick W. Crook and Sheldon K. Tsu of the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service (ERS), authors of the report, said that on the whole, "most winter crops seem to be doing fairly well, except in some areas of Szechwan and some northern provinces which are dryer than last year, and in some of the coastal provinces which have received heavy rains recently."

Crook and Tsu said the massive manpower thrown into spring farm work, which was begun earlier than usual, had put most farm activities ahead of schedule. However, they cautioned that the months of March, April and May "probably make up the most critical periods for both winter and spring-sown crops."

The Chinese concentration on crop-boosting campaigns this year follows a 1972 decline in production of grains, oilseeds, cotton and vegetable which led to an upswing in Chinese imports—including purchases of grain and cotton from the United States.

The ERS report said the official Chinese "anxiety" over spring farming work has been documented in a series of developments.

For example, Crook and Tsu noted, every spring in China brings a barrage of press articles urging mobilization for spring farming. But this year the articles appeared earlier than usual. Moreover, the researchers said, "twice as many reports of provincial-level conferences and newspaper editorials were found... from January 1 to March 15 as were found for a comparable period in 1972."

Gem water supply appears adequate

BOISE (UPI) — Water supply for the coming irrigation season will be adequate on streams with sufficient storage facilities, according to a report by the Soil Conservation Service.

The report said water shortages could occur on drainages with little or no storage and critical shortages on small, low elevation watersheds. Reservoir storage is good in all major irrigation reservoirs, the report said. However, the lack of spring precipitation may change the situation and prevent complete filling of some facilities due to early draw-down for irrigation.

In general, soil moisture is below normal throughout the state, although low elevation soils gained moisture slightly. Higher elevations remained the same.

Calving weights said key factor

MOSCOW (UPI) — A University of Idaho extension animal scientist says the number of pounds of calf produced per cow annually is the most important factor influencing income of cattlemen.

Morris Hemstrom said increasing the calf crop by 10 per cent is equal to a 50-pound increase in average weaning weight of the calf crop.

He said chances for a larger calf crop are improved by having cows gaining during breeding plus feeding them enough phosphorus.

Cattlemen should consider the cost of feeding cows as money well spent because in the long run, Hemstrom said, more calves may be produced.

He said, for example, if a calf averages two pounds of gain per day to weaning and each pound is valued at 50 cents, then for every day a cow calves late, the producer loses one dollar.

Gem milk matches '72 level

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho milk production during February amounted to 118 million pounds or about the same as last year, a federal-state agricultural report said Monday.

American cheese output at 2.22 million pounds was up five per cent from the previous February while creamery butter production at 1.74 million pounds, was down 13 per cent.

Ice cream production at 215,000 gallons was up 15 per cent from the previous February.

Idaho dairymen received an average of $1.48 per pound of milkfat used for American cheese during February or nine cents more than last year. For February, milk going into butter they got $1.41 per pound of milkfat — up eight cents from last year.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Snapping back at a butchers' union leader who urged President Nixon to jettison Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz Monday renewed his charge that restrictive labor practices are part of the reason for high meat prices.

He said he was not surprised by the demand of Patrick E. Gorman, secretary of the Butchers' Union, "because I've had the courage to put on the table some of the facts on retail prices."

Butz said he has been telling the public that some labor inefficiencies are built into the 57 cents of each retail food dollar which goes for processing and marketing.

"Obviously the head of the butchers' union doesn't like that kind of stuff," Butz said. He said he favored high wages for butchers, "but I'm talking about productivity."

In a news conference, Butz also disclosed the administration was activating a $100 million-a-year program of government-insured loans for rural sewer systems. He indicated it was part of an effort to strengthen GOP forces in a key House vote Tuesday on overriding a veto by Nixon last week of a bill calling for grants for rural water and sewage systems.

Butz said the new 5 per cent interest rural sewer loan program would be "a substantial factor" in persuading Congress to sustain the veto.

The vetoed bill directed Nixon to spend $120 million in grants by June 30 and up to $300 million annually in succeeding fiscal years.

Gorman had said Butz should be fired because of "divisive" statements on food prices and mistakes in forecasting them. Butz, renewing his production that rising output would bring prices down later this year, did not appear to fear, he was about to be dumped. He joked that if he were Gorman, "I suppose I'd want me canned too."

Lettuce strikes pledged by UFW

SALINAS, Calif. (UPI) — Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers vowed Sunday to launch strikes and boycotts of lettuce producers in the Salinas Valley in an attempt to gain representation of California's 250,000 field hands.

The action would increase the bitter rivalry between the UFW and the Teamsters Union with the harvesting of several crops ready to begin in a few weeks in the "Salad Bowl of the Nation."

UFW General Counsel Jerry Cohen says the Teamsters used "psychological terror" tactics in their drive to win control of the warm workers in the valley made famous by the novels of John Steinbeck.

Despite Chavez' efforts of the past several years, the Teamsters managed to sign up all but two of the Salinas Valley growers.

Chavez labeled the results as "sweetheart contracts" that forced the field hands into the rival union.

The UFW has a non-violence policy of non-violence in the drive to represent field hands. The AFL-CIO affiliate wants to replace farm labor contractors, who provide work gangs for a fee, with hiring halls.

However, the labor brokers signed a so-called "master contract" last month with the 2 million strong Teamsters, binding them and their 150,000 workers to the larger union.

Chavez led a five year grape boycott that ended in 1970 with major improvements in working conditions of laborers, many of whom come from Mexico and speak little English.

Lincoln payments totaled

SHOSHONE — The sum of $18,379 was paid by the Lincoln office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in 1972 in the Rural Environmental Assistance program.

This program shares costs with farmers to encourage improved soil and water conservation.

One hundred and thirty-one farms in Shoshone county received financial improvement within the county, at a cost-shares of $1,636; while five were in range seeding at $1386; two were in reservoir development, at $1,678 cost; one had an animal waste system project, at a cost of $600; and 100 were involved with weed control at a cost of $7,394.

Overall, the ASCS allocated funds in 1972 to 143 participating farms in their various programs. This was 41 per cent of the farms in the county that received assistance by the department while over the past five years a total of 61 per cent of the farms in the county have received assistance in one form or another, and acreage benefiting from cost-sharing in 1972 totaled 11,717.

Snow below normal

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — Snow depths are running about half normal for this time of year in the Spokane River drainage.

Tests taken recently by the Forest Service and the Soil Conservation Service showed that at Lookout Pass there was 58.8 inches of snow on the ground. Last year at this time there were 110.1 inches of snow on the mile-high snowcourse on the Idaho-Montana state line. Records showed the snow depths this year are the lowest since 1944 when 54.5 inches was reported at Lookout Pass at the end of March.

Officials said of the 10 snowcourses on the Spokane River drainage and Hayden Lake drainage in Northern Idaho, only half had enough snow on them to be measured.

Pea, lentil prices told

SPOKANE — The Pacific Northwest Pea Growers and Dealers Association of Spokane has released the weekly price report for the week ending April 4.

The summary shows prices this week, greens, 5.95; yellows, 6.00; blacks, 5.50, and lentils, 16.20. A year ago, greens, 3.40; yellows, 3.95; blacks, 3.00, and lentils, 9.75. All prices are quoted fresher run F.O.B. car at shipping point. Storage and handling charges should be deducted to arrive at net price to grower. All prices are based on U.S. No. 1 grade.

China buys Duroc hogs

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — China has agreed to purchase 5,000 Duroc hogs from Illinois, Gov. Daniel Walker announced today.

The deal will be the first such purchase from the United States and represents a breakthrough in opening the Chinese market to agricultural products, Walker told an agricultural breakfast for state legislators.

Walker did not disclose the price or other details of the sale. The 3,000 hogs are awaiting shipment to Peking. Agricultural experts said the hogs will be used for breeding purposes, to improve or modify Chinese strains of livestock.

Agency position said inadequate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho Sen. James McClure has tabled as "superficial and grossly inadequate" a U.S. Forest Service environmental impact statement on controlled burning in Idaho timberlands.

He made the charge in a letter to Regional Forester Steve Yurich, Missoula, Mont., in which he leveled questions he felt "went largely ignored in the impact study."

The statement was submitted by the Forest Service to justify yearly brush-burn of acreage of timberland in eastern Washington and Northern Idaho drainage areas to provide additional browse for Idaho's elk herd.

He said the forest service in the report could not decide what is and is not air pollution.

"In one section of their report, they say the proposed brush burning meets current air pollution standards," but later say clearly that it "constitutes air pollution," he said.

He said if the latter was true, he believes the federal government has a responsibility to live up to the same air pollution standards it enforces over the private sector.

Women's death boosts road toll

By United Press International — Separate traffic accidents Monday claimed the lives of Mrs. Florence L. Brewer, 51, Homedale, and Mrs. Esther Morgenege, 63, Pocatello.

Their deaths boost the Idaho traffic fatality toll to 68, compared with 56 on this date last year.

Mrs. Brewer was injured about 4:25 p.m. in a two-car collision two miles north of Wilder on Highway 95. She died at 6:10 p.m. at Caldwell Memorial Hospital.

The driver of the other car, Mrs. Donna Hays-Bright, 23, Route 2, Wilder, was treated for injuries along with her two small children, and released.

The Morgenege woman died from injuries sustained in a one-car mishap on Interstate-15 nine miles north of Pocatello. She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Arthur, 67.

Idaho State Police said the car smashed into the Gay Mine Railroad overhead about 10:45 a.m. The woman died at Banock Memorial Hospital, where her husband was listed in serious condition.

First funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The state of Idaho received the first 1973 revenue sharing installment, $2,065,003.

The check received Monday covers the first three months of 1973 and represents Idaho's 1973 quarterly share of the massive $30 billion, five-year federal revenue sharing program passed by congress.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, who ordered that the check be placed in the hands of the state treasury and deposited in Idaho banks, said the new check brings the state's overall total of revenue sharing money to $8,947,228 received since the program was first started.

Taxpayers break

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The decision of the Overseas Private Investment Corp. not to pay ITT $92.5 million in claims "is a big break for the American taxpayer," a U.S. Senator said Monday.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on multinational corporations, made the statement after OPIC announced it would not honor the ITT insurance claim filed after Chile nationalized ITT's telephone operations in the Latin American country.

"Our recent hearings clearly demonstrate ITT conspired to intervene in the Chilean elections," Church said.

He noted that OPIC has determined ITT failed to comply with contractual obligations to OPIC.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old, reasonably attractive girl. I live at home and work in a large office.

How can I refuse a date without hurting the man's feelings, and at the same time keep him from asking me again? If I say "I'm busy," he asks me again, or worse yet he'll ask for my first free evening, then I am really stuck.

You see, I don't want to date anyone outside my own religion. I'm not that hung up on religion, but my parents are so much against it, I decided it would eliminate lots of arguments at home if I just dated men of my own faith. My parents have been wonderful to me and I don't consider it too big a sacrifice for me if it will make them happy.

So, how can I politely turn down a date without appearing rude, and at the same time discourage that fellow from asking me again?

THERESA

DEAR THERESA: What's wrong with telling him the truth?

DEAR ABBY: I'm married only four months to a fellow I'll call Mac and I've never been so miserable in my life.

Before we were married Mac was so sweet and kind, but he's changed now. Mac has beaten me on three different occasions, and I don't mean just a slap. He's knocked me around until I looked so bad I'm ashamed to go to classes. (We're both in college.)

The first time he beat me because I insisted we leave a party where he was drinking too much. He beat me again because while I was trying to study he had both the television and radio blaring away so he could listen to two games at once and I turned off the TV.

Yesterday Mac gave me the worst beating of all when I refused to give him the car keys because he always takes off and leaves me all day and half the night. (The car belongs to me. My parents gave it to me so I'd have transportation to and from school.)

What am I going to do, Abby? I'm all black and blue again and I can't go to school like this. My parents live near here but I can't go home to them because they were against my marrying Mac in the first place. When I begged Mac to go to a counselor with me to try to save our marriage he laughed in my face. Please help me.

ALL MESS'ED UP AT 20

DEAR ALL: Go home to your parents and admit that either you weren't ready for marriage, or you chose the wrong fellow. There is little hope of saving your marriage unless Mac cooperates, and he appears unwilling. A woman who beats a woman is sick. And a woman who beats a woman for repeated beatings is sicker.

DEAR ABBY: Recently when my sisters and I were faced with closing the house in which our parents had lived for many years, we came upon several boxes of old pictures and snapshots. Many were of friends our parents had known over the years, but whom we barely knew. We hated to destroy them, even tho they meant nothing to us, so we hit upon the idea of sending them to the families of those involved. In this way we contributed richly to the picture collections of many families. The letters of gratitude we received more than compensated for our efforts.

South's choice of a three-club rather than a two-spade response may look a trifle insane. Actually South was crazy like a fox and his bid led to a tremendous IMP swing in a team game.

He wound up in six no-trump and West opened the trump of hearts. It looked like a short suit lead so South decided that he could only count on four heart tricks. Adding that to five clubs and two aces came to just 11.

South thought awhile and led his jack of diamonds. West played low as did dummy and East was in with his king. East wasted no time returning a spade and South refused that finesse. Then he entered dummy with the king of clubs; discarded three spades on good hearts and ran off his clubs. The last club squeezed West in diamonds and spades and the slam wheeled in.

It would also have been made if East held the diamond queen since he would have squeezed in diamonds and hearts.

Why did this turn out to be a tremendous swing? It seems that at the other table South responded with two spades. South's next bid was four clubs so North did not get a chance to show club support and the final contract became six hearts.

It was tough luck to have to go down at six hearts, but it was even tougher luck to find that six no-trump had made at the other table.

CARD Sense

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♥
Pass	3 ♣	Pass	3 ♣

You, South, hold:

▲ K 8 5 ▼ Q J 7 4 ▲ A 2 ▼ K 9 6 5

What do you do now?

A—Bid three no-trump. Two no-trump would not be a force.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding one spade your partner has raised you to two hearts. What do you do now?

Book Review

By KAREN McCLUSKY
Twin Falls Public Library

It is unfair to typecast "The Other" as a common horror story. It is a beautifully constructed, taut, and macabre story. Thomas Tryon succeeds in creating a story that casts a subtly savage spell.

Never before have such commonplace surroundings been made to seem quite so dark and chillingly evil. This book is one mystery story that relates psychotic mannerisms to true-to-life situations, instead of bizarre events. It is a story that portrays the pleasing, lively, yet mysterious personality of a young boy.

With many conflicts involved in this book, the main one concerns a young boy's terror in facing the reality of his twin's sudden and exasperating death. Niles Perry is unwilling to accept that his twin, Holland is dead. Niles has re-created his twin, has conjured him up, so to speak, has resurrected him. The boy is in thrall to a cadaver, obsessed by a ghouliah inamorato; not a ghost, not a vision, but a living breathing thing of flesh and blood.

The whole plot of the story evolves around Niles and the soul of his dead brother, inhibiting Niles' mind.

Throughout the story, evidence that Niles was unaware of his schizophrenia is never really brought out in the open. This novel keeps the reader spellbound and on the edge of his seat at each thrill. At times, distasteful incidents occur, but the manner in which they are written lures one to dive deeper into the story.

The point of view expressed by the author is predominantly first person. The narrator of the novel appears to be an invalid in a nursing home but what a shock when the narrator is finally identified!

Mothers protest day care cutbacks

United Press International
 Many working mothers, including Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., are taking their children to the office today to protest cutbacks in federally-funded day care centers.

The main target of the hastily-organized, nationwide protest was the Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) building in Washington. Mothers and children traveled on buses from New York and New Jersey to take part in a rally outside the offices of HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, who proposed the cutbacks.

Other demonstrations were being held in New York, Chicago, Detroit and Philadelphia. And in Omaha, Neb., placard-carrying mothers and children were taking their protest to the city council.

Mrs. Schroeder was taking her daughter, Jamie, 2½, to work on Capitol Hill and possibly even onto the floor of the House.

Protesting mothers and children were asked to wear daisies—the symbol of the day. Mrs.

Schroeder said she would encourage her colleagues, both women and men, to wear daisies too. At HEW, the children were expected to pass out daisies they had made out of paper.

Mrs. Schroeder's daughter normally attends a private preschool nursery in Arlington, Va., while her mother is working. But many working mothers cannot afford such luxuries, according to the organizers of "Daisy Day."

They contend that the new HEW regulations, which Weinberger intends to issue by May 1, will force many working mothers to quit their jobs and go on welfare.

A spokesman for the Day Care and Child Development Council of America, which organized "Daisy Day," said it is directed at the government, not employers. Women were advised not to participate if their jobs would be threatened by taking their children to work.

"This is not a confrontation kind of thing," the spokesman said. "We are very, very angry. But we are not looking for trouble."

Dr. Samuel Mudd exonerated at last

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — Dr. Samuel Mudd's family can rest easy at last—at least in Maryland.

The state's General Assembly approved a resolution Monday night absolving Mudd, a southern Maryland physician, of any involvement in the murder of Abraham Lincoln in April of 1865.

Although he was convicted as a conspirator, the Maryland lawmakers said he "acted only as a physician not as a conspirator and was innocent of the assassination plot."

Mudd treated the leg of Lincoln's assassin, John Wilkes Booth. Booth broke the leg when he jumped from the presidential box onto the stage of Ford's Theater after shooting Lincoln.

The legislators, saying they wanted to clear the name of Mudd because of the suffering endured by his family through the years, approved the resolution without debate although there was some muffled laughter and raised eyebrows.

Seventeen Kitty Hawk sailors court martialed

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The Kitty Hawk court-martial ended Monday with a total of 17 sailors, all black, ordered punished.

Nine blacks and the one white defendant were freed.

In the windup of the court-martial that began in December, Capt. Hobby D. Bryant Monday imposed sentence on Airman Noel Smith, 19, of San Francisco, who was found guilty of assault and disrespect to an officer. Smith was fined $300, ordered confined at hard labor for 30 days and reduced to seaman recruit.

A race riot raged through the aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk last October as it steamed toward Vietnam from the Philippines. Crewmen said later that hostility between black and white sailors was aggravated by incidents ashore and the tensions broke into fighting when the crew was back at sea.

A congressional investigation placed the blame on blacks, saying groups of black sailors of low rank and education stormed through the ship, beating up any whites they encountered.

The ship's Marines fought the rioters. There were tense meetings between groups of black crewmen and the ship's captain and its executive officer, who is black and Indian, and who was credited by some crewmen with calming the fighting.

Forty-six crewmen were injured in the riot. Black groups protested against what they said was racial discrimination on the ship and in the Navy in promotions, job assignment and other areas. They protested that only blacks were brought up on charges. One white sailor was then charged.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People provided lawyers for black defendants facing court martial.

The congressional investigation said there was no proof of discrimination, and criticized the Navy for failing to maintain traditional discipline.

In the 22 courts-martial here, nine sailors were convicted, six pleaded guilty to lesser charges, four were acquitted—including the only white defendant—and charges were dropped against three.

Five crewmen were brought before courts-martial at sea. Two were convicted, one was acquitted and charges were dropped against two.

U of I seminar held for special tax districts

TWIN FALLS — Budgeting, levying taxes and the relationship to county government were among topics covered here Monday in a workshop for small taxing district representatives.

The one-day seminar for special taxing districts such as cemetery and irrigation, sewer or water districts, was one of five held throughout the state by the University of Idaho Bureau of Public Affairs Research.

Bruce Rickerson and James Weatherby, Moscow, representing the bureau, said the meetings are held to assist the small districts with better efficiency and effectiveness in their operations.

Rickerson said most are small and have a limited funds and frequently are unaware of provisions in state laws which work to their advantage.

Monday afternoon the seminar opened with a panel on budgeting in which county auditors, Harold Lancaster, Twin Falls, and August Bethke, Rupert, discussed county budgets and offered assistance on budgeting for the small districts. Bess Jenkins, Fremont County clerk, also participated in the panel.

Speaking on relationship to county governments were Glenn Sorenson, Lincoln County commissioner; Wayne Hollenbeck, Minidoka County commissioner; and Bethke.

Tax levying discussions were covered by William Chancey, Twin Falls County commissioner; John Van Orman, Jerome County commissioner and president of the Idaho Association of County Clerks and Commissioners; and Bess Jenkins.

Rickerson said the seminars are designed to help the districts, served by volunteer directors who may be in professions far removed from governmental matters, meet their day to day problems.

He said representatives of these small districts have asked for some type of assistance and guidance from the bureau, and from the county government organizations such as the Association of County Clerks and Commissioners and the Association of County Officials.

Twin Falls County Fair board sets major events

TWIN FALLS — Several major events are scheduled at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds in the next two months including the University of Idaho meat evaluation live judging contest April 27 and 28.

Twin Falls County Fair board members, meeting Monday in Twin Falls, heard a report on coming events and honored a retiring superintendent.

John Qualls, who has served as superintendent of the horse department for the county fair the past six years is retiring. He was presented a certificate of appreciation.

Fair board members said they regret the resignation and appreciate the effort he has put into building up horse exhibits in the past few years.

Tom Shouse, fair manager, said the live judging event sponsored by the University of Idaho will attract more than 10 colleges from throughout the west in judging live animals at the fairgrounds April 27 and judging carcasses of the animals April 28 at Independent Meat Co.

Other coming events include the May 5 Johnny Horizon Day, which includes a picnic luncheon served at the fairgrounds and an American Kennel Club-approved dog show on May 22.

There will be a collegiate rodeo for colleges of the district May 24, 25 and 26. College of Southern Idaho Rodeo Club members will direct the event. Dean Hartwig, Piler, is president.

On May 30 and 31 and June 1 and 2 the Fifth District High School Rodeo is to be held with the Piler Kiwanis Club as sponsors. The four-day event will be open to all high school rodeo contestants of South Central Idaho.

A Shrine Circus is planned for June 5 and the annual fair and rodeo will be Sept. 5-8.

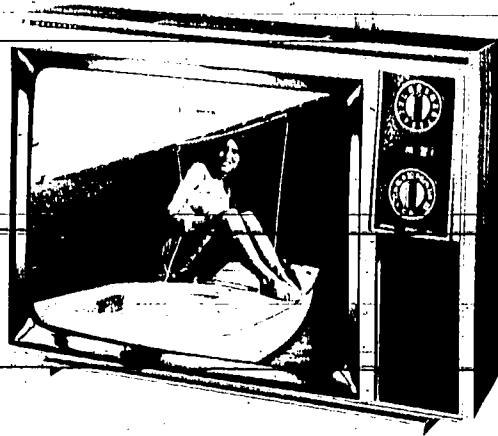

Shouse said the premium books are now being readied for the printers and plans are being made for the Standard of Perfection Polled Hereford Show, a national event in conjunction with the fair.

The board also approved purchase of 400 chairs for the grandstand.

ITT assets may become nationalized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chilean Foreign Minister Claudio Almeyda hinted broadly Monday that the remainder of International Telephone and Telegraph Company's holdings in Chile might be nationalized.

The present activities of ITT in Chile are in a very precarious position, Almeyda told a news conference.

He stopped short of saying that two hotels and a telephone equipment manufacturing company owned by ITT in Chile would be nationalized.

However, he said that "naturally the past activities of the firm ITT will be a term of reference we will take into account" if Chile decides to nationalize any sector of the economy in which ITT is still operating.

Chile nationalized the Chilean Telephone Company, a former ITT subsidiary, in September, 1971. Negotiations for compensation for ITT broke down after ITT international documents were published indicating the company wanted to prevent the election of Salvador Allende as president.

The Overseas Private Investment Corporation announced Monday it was turning down an ITT claim for $92.5 million in insurance because of the Chilean Telephone expropriation.

A spokesman for OPIC said the claim was turned down because ITT failed to comply with contractual obligations with OPIC — the U. S. government corporation that insures American firms against political risks for investment in developing countries.

Almeyda, commenting on recent Senate hearings on ITT Chilean involvements, said the investigation "seemed to show a connivance between an arm of the government of the United States and ITT to act for purposes that are unconstitutional in Chile and damaging to its sovereignty."

He believes that the conclusions of their investigations are serious and the government of Chile feels that the public opinion in both countries must issue the judgment. I don't want to prejudge the outcome," he said.

At the Senate hearings, some witnesses said ITT offered $1 million to the Central Intelligence Agency to help finance any anti-Allende campaign in Chile. The CIA, witnesses said, did not accept the offer.

Swindling charges

MARK TWAIN'S last manuscript has been donated to the University of California at Berkeley. The document details the author's charges that his secretary, Isabel Lyon, and business manager, Ralph W. Ashcroft, were conspiring to swindle him. (UPI)

Gem fund healthier than '72

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's general fund was $6.4 million healthier at the end of March this year than last, a joint report from the auditor and state Monday.

At the end of March, the auditor showed a red balance of $2.7 million in the fund. In addition there was $500,000 worth of outstanding tax anticipation notes.

On March 31, 1972, the auditor's balance was $6.65 million in the red. In addition, there were $3 million worth of outstanding tax notes.

His year at the end of March the treasurer's balance was in the black for the first time since last August — reading $2.47 million. Compared with a personal checking account the auditor's balance represents, the checkbook stubs and the treasurer's balance the one the bank shows.

Woman charged

KETCHUM — A Ketchum woman has been charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to manufacture, a felony.

Ramila Michael, 27, was arrested on a warrant Sunday morning in Ketchum by Ketchum Police Department officers. She has been released from the Blaine County jail on a $1,000 property bond.

Mark Twain's last work attacks two employes

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Mark Twain's last manuscript, a long and bitter attack against two of his employes, will be published for the first time by the University of California Press.

Frederick Anderson, editor of the Mark Twain papers project, said the "extraordinary" 400-page document was donated to the university by two of Twain's descendants.

Twain finished the manuscript about six months before his death in 1910 at the age of 71. It details in often colorful prose the author's charges that his secretary, Isabel Lyon, and his business manager, Ralph W. Ashcroft, were conspiring to swindle him.

As Twain put it in his foreword:

"There are three conspicuous characters in this true tale of mine, this queer & shabby & pitiful tale—to wit, a pair of degraded & sufficiently clumsy sharpers, & I the born ass, their easy victim."

The manuscript deals with events at Twain's home in Redding, Conn., in 1909 when he began to suspect Ashcroft and Miss Lyon of misusing family funds. Suddenly the couple married and went on a honeymoon to England.

Twain compares his situation, which he laments, with a fictional plot, but with the addition of "the priceless quality of authenticity."

Twain's anger at the incident is shown by a note he jotted on an envelope Ashcroft later sent him:

"Letter from a sniveling hypocrite—who is also a skunk & a professional liar. It is precious, it has no mate in polemic literature—don't let it get lost."

Anderson said that "no legal action was ever taken" in regard to Twain's charges.

"The author's falling health forced him to retreat after this final outburst in a life which was marked by business and legal entanglements and recriminations," he said.

The manuscript was donated by Mrs. Eugene Lada-Mocarski of Murray Hill, N.J., and Mrs. Bayard Scheffelin, Short Hills, N.J., who are granddaughters of Twain's brother-in-law.

The two women also gave 70 of Twain's letters last year to the university—the major center of research on the author. His last manuscript will be published as part of Twain's autobiographical dictations recorded between 1906 and 1909.

The manuscript was bought by the New York Public Library in 1970, but the sale was questioned—and later rescinded.

Bliss fire area told

By PEGGY CHU
Times-News writer

GOODING — A petition to create a Bliss Fire District was presented to the Gooding County commissioners Monday.

A public hearing will be conducted May 14 when those who do not want to be within the fire district may challenge the boundaries.

Following the hearing, an election will be held to decide whether the district shall be formed, according to Jack Varin, attorney who presented the petition.

He said "the creation of a fire district will increase taxes somewhat, but will decrease insurance costs."

Robert Bolte, chairman of the Gooding Planning Commission, met with the commissioners. He asked them to attend the planning to attend the planning commission meeting Wednesday night to hear discussion on proposed Hagerman subdivisions. He said soil surveys have been made at the location and they appear favorable.

He said "from what I read the planning commission has no power to approve or disapprove, but may only give advice. These subdivisions won't hurt anything but the next ones may. The county will need some stricter regulations."

Vivian Burden, county clerk, said "We're getting so many requests for licensing of stores, businesses and subdivisions in the county. I have to tell them that we don't have anything. The county has nothing like this. We only give out septic tank applications."

County commissioners are planning a revision of the revenue sharing budget. According to the county clerk not enough money was set up in the budget and there have been several requests by other agencies for some of the revenue sharing funds.

The county received about $130,000 in revenue sharing money in January when the budget was prepared. Only $99,000 of the total was included in the budget.

A hearing on a revised revenue sharing budget may be held in July.

In other action, the commission asked the county prosecutor to draw up an ordinance licensing ambulance operators in order to eliminate irresponsible operation of the service.

The county will advertise sale of a lot in Wendell at a minimum price of $500. Lot 16, Block 76 will be auctioned following advertisements.

The commissioners said no bids have been received on a 2 1/2 ton truck and a pickup truck the county desires to purchase. The deadline for submitting bids is April 16.

Signs of times

Wood River has slack season

SUN VALLEY — With the official conclusion of the winter season, the Wood River Valley quietly slips into the bi-annual event, aptly called the "slack season."

Sun Valley scored a successful 37th winter season as a previous record for usage of Mt. Baldy fell by the wayside.

Boosted by spectators at the National Free-Style Skiing Championships, a record total of 6,871 people on Baldy was set March 24. The figure surpasses a previous record of 5,301 set during the 1971 Christmas holiday season.

According to Sun Valley sports director, Don Anderson, 4,946 lift tickets were punched on March 24, with an additional estimated 725 skiers using their employee or season passes.

Highlights of the Sun Valley season, in addition to the skiing championships, included the Peggy Fleming Show, the filing of the Bing Crosby Christmas Special, the signing of the sister-city pact between Sun Valley and Yamanouchi Machi, Japan, the opening of Elkhorn at Sun Valley, and the opening of new shops on the Sun Valley Mall.

Several lifts on Baldy will remain open this week to provide an additional week of skiing.

The Sun Valley hotel and restaurant operations will reopen for the summer season on May 17, hosting the Idaho Innkeepers' Association convention.

The two red-and-white buses composing the Ketchum-Sun Valley Transit System also boasted a successful season. In its first winter season under the ownership and operation of the Ketchum-Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce, the system transported 33,385 fares, exceeding a target figure of 20,000 fares.

According to chamber manager Lloyd Curtis, last winter the system operated with leased buses and had 15,115 fares.

"As reflected in the overwhelming number of fares," Curtis said, "we were pleased that our transit service was so well received by residents and guests, becoming an established part of the community."

Karate meet set

TWIN FALLS — A karate tournament and clinic will be sponsored by the College of Southern Idaho Friday and Saturday.

Master of karate, Raymond Toboso, Hawaii, will conduct a kaji kumi karate clinic in the CSI physical education building from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. Friday. Kaji students and former students are welcome.

Hailey sets meet on school plans

HAILEY — Community educational concerns will be solicited at a series of three open-ended meetings, tonight (Tuesday) through Thursday in Hailey.

According to Walter Hoessel, on-site coordinator for the Blaine County Schools

Hoessel said, in a thorough orientation to the goals and methods of the needs assessment program, utilizing audio visual materials developed by the state department; and formal working sessions for small groups.

The groups will follow a procedure to identify and give priority to projected learner needs which they consider important, Hoessel said.

This initial step of the needs assessment program will concentrate on learner, he said, with subsequent steps to provide methods for determining solutions.

Program and Facility Study, the meetings are part of the State Department of Public Instruction Educational Needs Assessment Program.

Each meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Wood River High School. Hoessel said the public is invited to attend any one of the meetings.

Blaine chairman quits

HAILEY — William B. Mallory, Blaine County School Board chairman, resigned Monday night.

In a short statement, Mallory, Hailey, said serving as a board member, "had been a very pleasant experience," but cited increased time demands of his business.

"I don't feel I have the necessary time required in the next six to eight months which are so vitally important to the Blaine County Plant and Facility study and the ultimate goal of building a high school."

Mallory has served as trustee chairman for the past two years and, prior to that time, was a board clerk for 11 years. He said the resignation would necessitate an appointment of a new trustee by the board.

Set up at Jerome
JEROME — Don Daw, principal of Washington Elementary school, announced Monday that all prospective first graders must register this week.

Registration will be held this week at his Washington School office from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. Parents are reminded to bring birth certificates for all first graders.

Daw said children who will be six years of age on or before October 15 are eligible to enter the first grade for the fall term.

Youth charges pend
KETCHUM — Petitions are pending in Blaine County Magistrate Court, juvenile division, for two Hailey youths arrested Monday night in Ketchum.

According to Ketchum police department, both youths were arrested for petty larceny in connection with a theft of automobile parts from a parked vehicle.

The youths have been released to parental custody.

Geologists elect
POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Boise State College Geology Department chairman Dr. Kenneth Hollenbaugh has been elected president of the Idaho Association of Professional Geologists.

During the annual meeting here, F. G. Crosthwaite, Boise, a hydrologist with the U.S. Geological Survey, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Jay Valcareo, Idaho State; Samuel McNary, University of Idaho; and David S. Gardner, Boise State, received the 1973 awards.

Re-elected
SHOSHONE — Incumbent Waldo Jones was re-elected to the Shoshone School Board Monday.

Jones received 32 votes to 24 cast for Lanny Kulhanek.

Jones was elected to a new three year term on the board. His new term will begin with the May meeting.

Wendell sets levy vote on kindergarten

WENDELL — The Wendell school board will request a special levy of 2.15 mills to finance a kindergarten program for the 1973-74 school year.

Bill Cooper, representing 40 parents, met with the school board Monday night to request that the kindergarten program, which had been financed the last two years by the federal government, be continued. Government funds expire this spring making a special maintenance and operation levy necessary if the program is to continue.

The election will be May 1 and will raise $10,502 if a majority of the voters approve it.

Supt. Lawrence LaRue announced that the school will not request a five mill override for maintenance of the school curriculum. He said the five mill override has been approved for several years but that it will probably not be necessary this year because the school should be able to maintain its present curriculum with additional state funds.

He said this may change after teacher negotiations and budget preparation are completed.

May 7 is the date set for the Wendell budget hearing and May 8 has been set for the trustee election.

Trustees up for re-election are Robert Smith, zone 2 and LaVar Peterson, zone 4. Both terms will be for three years.

Nominating petitions must be filed with the school clerk by 4 p.m. on Apr. 20.

In other board action the number of credits required for graduation will be raised as a result of a survey of Magic Valley schools conducted by Will Spaulding, Wendell High School principal. Wendell High School presently requires 17 credits of graduation. The board approved an increase of three credits over the next three years.

The summer elementary migrant program will be offered again this year for grade school children of migrant workers.

Arlin Dennis, elementary school principal, outlined the program now in its fifth year for the trustees. Mathematics, arts and crafts, physical education, English and reading are offered.

The 1973-74 school calendar was approved. Classes will begin Aug. 27 and end May 24.

Support asked on Cassia vote

BURLEY — Attempting to "talk to people who can talk to people," Norman Hurst, Cassia County Instructional Director, asked the chamber's support Monday for the coming bond election.

"We have long since passed the need stage," Hurst said, "and we need to get into the action stage."

The $3.95 million bond proposal to be voted on April 24 includes funds for a new Burley Junior High School, a new Declo elementary school, new multi-purpose room at Raft River and "recycling" at the Burley Junior High School and Oakley High School.

Hurst said the bond could "provide a good educational program" and "cure some of the ills" in the schools.

Many favorable comments for the bond issue have been received from Burley as well as the outlying areas, Hurst said. The failure of the bond, he said, could come as before, because the people failed to vote.

Asked if the board had dropped the idea of a consolidated high school, Hurst said the board felt it should "back off on that right now."

The last two bond issues proposing a consolidated high school, he said, had failed. "This bond doesn't lock the school district into any one particular setup, Hurst said. The bond issue is to correct current educational needs, he said, and would preclude the possibility of a consolidated school at a later date.

No major bond issues can be passed, however, for another 10 years if this one succeeds.

"We need to correct what we can — it's been a long time since we've passed a bond here," Hurst told the group. The last bond issue was passed in 1959.

Brent Thomassen and Dorian Wheaton gave a slide presentation on the need for employee support for members of the National Guard and Army Reserve.

Jerome teacher salaries raised

JEROME — The Jerome School Board Monday night approved a $225 increase in the annual salary of all certified personnel.

The vote on the increase was 3 to 1 with trustee Jim Keith casting the only negative vote. Keith was in favor of a $300 increase for the 96 employees in the district.

The vote on the salaries was necessary as the schedule had been tabled since a special board meeting in March. The decision was necessary for completion of proposed budget for the district. The trustees set May 7 as the date for a public hearing on the 1973-74 school budget. The maintenance and operation figure in the budget is $1,168,785 but does not represent the total figure which will include federal moneys and other revenue sources, according to Supt. John B. Campbell.

Group plans health clinic for Cassia County

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

BURLEY — The recently formed Better Health for Magic Valley organization discussed its objectives with Cassia County commissioners Monday.

The group is attempting to organize a health clinic in the area to provide primary medical care for migrant workers, low-income people and minority groups.

Terry Reley, administrative assistant for Community Health Clinics, a non-profit organization operating clinics in the Treasure Valley, accompanied the group. Reley said the clinic would fulfill "the need for something in addition" to hospitals.

The clinics, he said, provide "an entry point" for people to get health care and to get channeled into the mainstream of available services. Reley stressed that health education is an important facet of the health clinic.

By teaching these people to stay healthy and by treating them in the early stages of illness, the clinics can save hospitals money in emergency room costs, according to Reley.

The clinics can overcome financial, language and personality barriers and by teaching the people to take care of themselves, can eliminate many problems, he said.

Robert Barton, administrator for Cassia Memorial Hospital, expressed concern that clinics cause a segregation of health care facilities and often provide care inferior to that of regular hospitals and doctor's offices.

Barton said the medical manpower in the area was already low and the formation of a clinic could fraught what is available.

And, Barton said, with the impending formulation of national health insurance, regular health care would be accessible to everyone.

"I'm interested in what this group is interested in, but not at the expense of the system," Barton said.

Earlier the commissioners decided to close the landfill near Jackson until a meeting could be held with residents of that area.

The landfill, which was opened last spring, is already filled. It was designated to serve about 50 families in the Jackson area, but, according to Commissioner Weldon Bekk, 80 per cent of the accumulation comes from residents of Mindoka County.

Following a tour of the landfill, the commissioners decided to temporarily close the fill. Everyone is susceptible to fines for dumping following this closure, they said.

The final decision on the future of the landfill will come at a community meeting, April 20.

May 5 was set for the BLM Johnny Horizon cleanup program in Cassia County. The program, in its third year, organizes cleanup campaigns in "heavy use" areas throughout the county.

Following the selection of local coordinators, an organizational meeting will be held April 16 and a general meeting will be held May 1.

Car dumping is still a major problem in the county the commissioners said. If dumped vehicles can be traced, they said, the owners will be fined.

Currently there is a wrecking firm in the area that will tow cars away for $5 a car. Jim Dobson, owner, plans to bring a crusher into the area after he has over 100 cars, according to the commissioners.

A proposed milk farm in the Declo area has brought protests from area residents, according to Gerald Hurst of the health department. A petition is circulating against the farm, Hurst said.

Hurst and Alex Schaeffer of the Water Pollution Control Board, discussed with the board the possibility of zoning the area heavy industrial so some control could be exercised over land use there.

The commissioners referred them to the county zoning board, which is in the process of completing a county zoning ordinance. George Granata Jr. was sworn in as deputy prosecuting attorney for Cassia County. Granata, with the firm of Church, Church and Snow, graduated from St. Mary's University School of Law in San Antonio, Tex., last May and moved to Burley in July.

As deputy prosecuting attorney, he will handle misdemeanors and some juvenile cases, Granata said. This is the first time in several years Cassia County has had a deputy prosecuting attorney.

At an auction of public land, Mary Rennie, Burley, bought for $260 the county property at 828 Schoodo. The approximately 50 x 125 feet property included a house and forest.

Aaron fires 68 to win

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Tommy Aaron, best known for a career of second place finishes and his scorecard error that decided this tournament five years ago, shot a four-under-par 68 Monday to win the Masters by one stroke.

Aaron, winner of only one tournament in this country in a dozen years on the PGA tour—compared to 14 second place finishes, birdied two short par 5 holes on the back nine at Augusta National to slip past J.C. Snead and Peter Oosterhuis and earn the traditional green coat of Masters champions.

Sitting in a television interview room awaiting the victory ceremony, Aaron saw Snead sink a pressure-filled putt on the 17th green to stay alive.

Then, Snead's putt for a birdie on the final green, which would have forced a playoff Tuesday, barely slipped by the hole as a big grin came over the face of Aaron, a native Georgian, and his happy fans began to cheer.

Aaron, who had earlier rounds of 68, 73 and 74, finished with a five-under-par 283 total for 72 holes.

Snead, the 31-year-old nephew of Sam Snead—a three-time winner of this title, shot a two-under par-70 and finished second with 284.

There was a three-way tie for third at 285 among defending champion Jack Nicklaus, Jim Jamieson and British longshot Oosterhuis who began the final day with a three stroke lead.

Nicklaus, coming up with too little, too late, matched the best round of the tournament with a six-under-par 66 Monday. Jamieson had a 71 and Oosterhuis 74.

The victory was worth $30,000 in cash to Aaron, 36, but its biggest value to him, aside from whatever endorsements he may earn, could be to erase the stigma hanging over him since the 1968 Masters.

That time Aaron was the playing partner and scorekeeper for Roberto de Vicenzo in the final round and Aaron wrote down a "4" for de Vicenzo instead of the three he actually made at the 17th hole.

De Vicenzo signed the incorrect card, was stuck with the higher score, and lost the title by one stroke to Bob Goulby.

This time Aaron started his round with three straight birdies, added another at the eighth hole and made the turn in four under-par 32.

With the crowd cheering him on at the turn, Aaron made his only brief slip of the day. He bogeyed both the 10th and 11th holes, and fell two shots behind Snead.

But Snead dropped back into a tie at the 155-yard 12th hole when his tee shot hit short of the green, rolled back into a pond, and he suffered a double-bogey five.

Then only the decisive par-five holes, the 13th and the 15th—where Nicklaus saw his hopes vanish a day earlier when he took an eight—remained as strong birdie chances.

Aaron got them both. Snead got only one. That was the difference. Snead came close to making several long putts but the only one that dropped was to save a par at No. 17.

Johnny Miller, Aaron's playing partner who suffered a two-stroke penalty on the final hole for illegally touching his ball, and Goulby tied for fifth place with even-par 288 totals following a 73 and 74, respectively.

Bruce Devlin and Japan's Masashi "Jumbo" Ozaki were at 289 and 1967 winner Gay Brewer, Gardner Dickinson, Chi Chi Rodriguez and Don January finished at 291.

Aaron, whose career earnings of $638,364 placed him

17th on the all-time list before the Masters, had only the championships of the 1970 Atlanta Classic and the 1960 Canadian Open—then considered an "unofficial" event—to show for his career before Monday.

Four times he lost titles in playoffs, but until this year, when he took a month off from the tour because of his wife's serious illness, he still had been a consistent moneywinner with his repeated high finishes.

In each of the last five years, Aaron earned more than $70,000 on the tour, capped by a high of $118,924 in 1972.

In the first three months of this year's tour, Aaron played in eight tournaments, won $10,221 and ranked 84th on the money list. His best finish was a fourth-place tie at the Phoenix Open where he shot a final-round 64.

Oosterhuis, awakened at 3:45 a.m. by a phone call from a well-meaning fan in England, started off as if he could make good his bid to become only the second foreign winner of the Masters.

He recovered from sprayed drives to par the first two holes, then hit a wedge to within three feet of the pin and birdied No. 3. But that was his last birdie until it was too late.

The young Briton missed the green at the par-three fourth hole and took a bogey, got another when he hit his approach into a bunker at No. 7, and a third at No. 11. His last chance vanished when he took four from the side of the 15th green.

Nicklaus, who had a 77-Friday and a 73 in Sunday's rain-delayed third round, produced eight birdies Monday but fell short by the margin of his two bogeys—at the 4th and 14th holes.

"I gave it my best shot," said Jack, who went into a near-victory dance when he rolled in a 30-foot putt for his last birdie at No. 18.

Arnold-Palmer finished far down the list at 295 while a 70 Monday. Lee Trevino shot his third straight 75 and was at 299.

SLIPPING INTO THE Masters green coat is Tommy Aaron as defending champion Jack Nicklaus presents it to him. Aaron shot a final round 68 for a 283 total and a one-stroke victory over J. C. Snead. (UPI Telephoto).

Rodriguez is happy with Aaron's victory

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — It isn't often one professional golfer cheers for another.

This time one did. "I'm glad he won," said Chi Chi Rodriguez, referring to Tommy Aaron, the new Masters champ.

"People say he chokes up all the time and they don't know what they're talking about. They don't know he's worried about his wife, who isn't well."

The choke-up label came from all of Aaron's second-place finishes on the tour, 14 in 12 years. Aaron always has pointed out Jack Nicklaus has finished second more than 30 times in his career, but nobody really listens.

Aaron looked a little shell-shocked Monday after firing his final round four-under-par 68 and then having to sit around for nearly an hour before becoming the official title winner when J.C. Snead, the 31-year-old nephew of 60-year-old Sam Snead, failed to sink a birdie putt on the final hole.

His curly-hair askew and a glazed look in his eyes, Aaron eventually managed a mild smile when he was acknowledged the winner and one of the first persons he spoke about was his wife, Jimmy, who stayed back home in Gainesville, Fla., and watched the Masters on television.

"It is difficult for me to put into words what this victory means to me," said the 36-year-old Aaron, who has won only one tournament before in this country, the Atlanta Classic three years ago.

"It means a lot to my friends and a lot to my wife watching on TV."

Next to Jack Nicklaus, no other golfer on the Augusta National course has more people cheering for him during Monday's final round than did hometown boy Aaron.

"Atta way to go, Tommy, baby!" they urged him on when he picked up his fourth birdie of the day on the eighth hole. Every time he sank a long putt, they roared, and any time he missed one, they groaned.

Aaron, playing together with lanky, blond Johnny Miller, heard them.

"Sometimes they cheer so much for you, you get a little too excited," he said. "There were a couple times out there I had to calm myself down."

Aaron, who needed a final round four-under 68 to edge Snead, was playing in his 11th Masters. He's best remembered for the one five days ago when, keeping partner Roberto de Vicenzo's score, he put down a 4 on the 17th hole instead of a 3. De Vicenzo unwittingly confirmed the mistake, and that cost the Argentinian the title.

Ironically, there was another scoring foul-up on the 18th Monday involving Miller, but Aaron had absolutely nothing to do with it.

Miller's second shot on the 18th landed near a paper cup and when a spectator pulled the cup away, the ball rolled downhill.

Miller tried to replace it, then though he saw it begin rolling again, so touched it a second time drawing a two-stroke penalty that upset him.

"Tommy Aaron had nothing at all to do with it," explained Miller later. "He had other things on his mind and he was minding his own business for which I don't blame him one bit."

Arnold-Palmer finished far down the list at 295 while a 70 Monday. Lee Trevino shot his third straight 75 and was at 299.

New Masters champ

Nicklaus makes super bid for title

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus came up short Monday in his bid to become the first golfer ever to win 14 major championships—but no one can say he didn't give it a good try.

Nicklaus, who needs only one more major title to surpass the record the late Bobby Jones set 43 years ago with his "grand slam," fired a 6-under-par 66 in the final round of the Masters after starting the day eight strokes off the lead.

But Tommy Aaron, four strokes ahead of the "Golden Bear" when the final round began, finished two strokes ahead of him by shooting a closing 68 that gave the Georgian his first major title.

"You always feel you have a chance until you are too far back to win," said Nicklaus who has won the Masters four times. "But then, watching in the press interview room as Aaron putted the 70th hole to stay two strokes ahead of him, he added quietly, "It looks like I might be too far back now."

Nicklaus, who had a disappointing 77 in Friday's second round when he went bogey-bogey on the double-bogey 17th hole stretch and then took a triple bogey on the par five 15th hole Sunday, said he told his caddy before the round began, "I need a 65 today to win."

Nicklaus said he knew he had to gamble if he was to have any chance of winning. "When you are eight strokes back you have to go for it and hope the rest of the field falls back,"

Nicklaus was asked if he was nervous. "I didn't have time for nerves today," Nicklaus replied. "I was too busy trying to put the ball in the hole."

Nicklaus had eight birdies Monday, but also had two bogies, the second because he three-putted the 68th green. "There was no excuse for that," he snorted. "When you reach the green in two, there's no reason for not at least making your par."

But Nicklaus added that he was pleased with his closing round, especially after his showing in the two previous rounds.

This golf course allows you to gamble if you want to, but it penalizes you if you make a mistake," said Nicklaus. "That's what happened to me at 15 Sunday. I gambled and that apparently cost me the tournament."

The putter that treated Nicklaus so shabbily on Friday turned true Monday. He sank a 30-footer on the final green and made three other putts of 18 feet or more.

"I made some pretty good par putts too," grinned Nicklaus who went into a victory-type dance on the final hole when his long putt rolled in. "It was a good day. I gave it my best shot. I gave away too much earlier. That 15th hole Sunday did me in."

Nicklaus was a little bit upset because Masters officials had the "course watered down Sunday night, even though it was the longest previous ly by rain, especially a Saturday downpour that layed the third round a day."

"If they hadn't watered the fairways and the greens, an even par (288) probably would have won here this year," said Nicklaus, who finished with a 3-under-par 285. "The course was slower than I expected. I don't know why they felt they had to water it."

"Nicklaus' next try for that 14th major title will come June 14-17 when he plays in the U.S. Open in Oakland, Pa.

What are your plans now? he was asked. "All I've got planned at this moment," Nicklaus replied, "is to watch the final holes of this tournament."

Snead blows tournament

Carolina forward honored

NEW YORK (UPI) — Billy Cunningham, Carolina Cougar forward and one-time scourge of the NBA, Monday was named most valuable player of the American Basketball Association in his first season with the league.

Cunningham was a four-time National Basketball Association All-Star choice with Philadelphia before signing with the Cougars and leading them to the ABA's Eastern Division championship. For his efforts, Cunningham was named on 44 of the 58 ballots cast by sports writers and television broadcasters in the 10 league cities.

Julius Erving, Virginia's "Dr. J," was a distant second with seven votes. George McGinnis of Indiana collected three votes and one each went to Joe Caldwell of Carolina, Artis Gilmore of Kentucky and teammates Willie Wise and Ron Boone of Utah.

Cunningham was the ABA's fourth leading scorer this season with a 24.1 average.

Lee Trevino ends Masters with complaints, griping

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — It started differently, but it ended the same for Lee Trevino at the Masters.

Just a week ago Trevino showed-up here saying he was going to cut out the baloney and concentrate on the golf and insisted he could win.

By the time he finished his final round Monday, Trevino had abandoned his promise to be a good boy. He was griping about the Augusta National course and threatening not to come back again.

Trevino shot a final-round 75 Monday for an 11-over-par 299 total. He hurriedly signed autographs and left the course, explaining he had to catch a plane and he was "a day late and a dollar short."

Asked by a friend if he was going to stop by the press tent, Trevino shot back, "Are you kidding? I'm through here."

Trevino was the object of barbs by a couple of fellow pros who couldn't understand what he was mad about.

"Shucks," said Bob Goulby, "he should be a favorite here every year. He should play well here. This should be his type of course."

Goulby, who won the 1968 Masters when Roberto de Vicenzo signed an incorrect scorecard and who usually plays well here, said Trevino is off-base in complaining his "low-ball" swing hampers him at Augusta.

"I don't understand this high-ball, low-ball stuff," Goulby said. "I don't hit a high ball."

"The key to playing this course is the par-five holes, and that's where you need the good, short wedge game. That's Trevino's game. He should be right there every year."

It was observed that perhaps Trevino, who boycotted this tournament in 1970 and 1971, had gotten so carried away listening to himself talk, he was too psyched out to play here.

"That might be," Goulby said. "This thing got out of proportion and I think he just followed up on it."

At that point, Jack Nicklaus—who has won four Masters although he had some problems this year—walked into the clubhouse and Goulby pressed the question on the "golden bear."

"Don't you think Lee should be able to play this course?" Goulby asked Nicklaus.

"He ought to," Jack said. "He's too good a player not to be able to play here."

"You can't tell me that from 1950 to 1964 Arnold (Palmer), the Masters winner in 1958, 1960, 1962 and 1964 hit the ball high," Nicklaus said.

"Arnold never hit a high shot in his life until maybe '65 or '66."

Trevino has not finished better than 23rd in four Masters appearances.

Cleveland nips New York 3-1

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three off-season acquisitions, Rusty Torres, designated hitter John Ellis and pitcher Brent Strom, helped the Cleveland Indians defeat New York, 3-1, Monday as the Yankees opened their last season in Yankee Stadium until 1976.

Strom, a 24-year-old southpaw traded to Cleveland by the New York Mets for Phil Hennigan, limited the Yanks to eight hits and struck out six as he gained his first major league victory. He walked two batters.

Ellis, a former Yankee, drove in the winning run for Cleveland with a single in the sixth inning.

Torres, another former Yankee, tied the game 1-1 in the third when he stroked a ground rule double into the left field stands to drive in Buddy Bell from third. Bell took third on a groundout after walking and moving to second on starter Fritz Peterson's wild pitch.

Singles by Chris Chambliss and Ellis and an error by former Indian Graig Nettles gave Cleveland a 2-1 lead in the sixth and chased Peterson. Lindy McDaniel relieved and retired the side.

Cleveland picked up an insurance run in the ninth inning.

when José Cardenas and Torres lines back-to-back doubles off McDaniel.

New York took a 1-0 lead in the second when Felipe Alou doubled down the left field line, advanced to third on Strom's wild pitch and scored on Thurman Munson's sacrifice fly.

Peterson absorbed the loss in his first start and the Yankees have now lost four straight starting off the 1973 season. The victory was Cleveland's second in three games.

The Yanks will not be playing in their Stadium the next two years while it undergoes a $27.9-million face lift.

San Francisco edges San Diego

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Lefthander Ron Bryant, picking up where he left off last year, went the distance on a four-hitter Monday and Chris Speier drove in the deciding run on a fifth-inning homer in leading the San Francisco Giants to a 2-1 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Bryant, who led the Giants' pitching staff in 1972 with 14 victories, retired 12 of the last 13 batters in a row to gain the win in San Francisco's 1973 home opener.

Speier decided the game with his homer. The Giants collected only six hits, but they put two of them together in the third for their other run. Bobby Bonds and Tito Fuentes hit back-to-back doubles for the tally.

The Padres scored their only run in the opening inning and it was unearned.

Erno Hernandez opened the game with a rap to third which Jim Hart booted for an error. Singles by Leroy Lee and Nito Colbert brought him around for the only run.

Mike Caldwell started for the Padres and left in the seventh for a pinch-hitter. He gave up three of San Francisco's runs and both runs and suffered the defeat.

Bryant struck out six and walked three and did not give up a hit after Dave Roberts opened the fourth with a single.

Atlanta rebounds from early defeat

BOSTON (UPI) — For awhile nobody thought the Atlanta Boston series would last more than four games. How could the Hawks survive after those first two games?

But there they are, the Atlanta Hawks and Boston Celtics, heading into game No. 5 of their National Basketball Association playoff series in a surprising 2-2 deadlock. The game is set for Wednesday night at Boston Garden.

The two teams will play in Atlanta on Friday night and, if a seventh game is necessary, return here Sunday afternoon.

The Celtics got some good news Monday when guard Don Chaney reported that he'd be ready to take a full shift Wednesday night.

Chaney was on the court for only eight minutes in Sunday's game, the longest he has played since suffering a pulled groin muscle in the final minute of the last regular season game.

Chaney worked out with the team Monday morning.

The two teams will play in Atlanta on Friday night and, if a seventh game is necessary, return here Sunday afternoon.

"This team has pride," Atlanta Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said after Sunday's 97-94 win evened the series.

Fitzsimmons is the kind of guy who likes to think of his team as the underdog. "We're playing against the best team in basketball," he says over and over.

Then he whips this line on you: "Don't sell us short. We go to Boston to play the Celtics again on Wednesday. They're going to be super. But the people there better be careful because we might turn out to be the ones that are super."

The Hawks will be out to break a precedent Wednesday night. Boston has not lost more than two games in a row all season.

The Celtics, meanwhile, are taking the Hawks more seriously than they did a few games ago.

"There's three games left," Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn said Monday. "Two of the games are in Boston, so we've got the edge. But the games are played on the court, not in the papers. Who do we blame if we don't win?"

Dallas club relocated

NEW YORK (UPI) — The trustees of the American Basketball Association unanimously approved Monday the relocation of the Dallas franchise to San Antonio, Texas, under the management and control of a San Antonio group of businessmen, Commissioner Robert Carlson announced. The team will play next season in the 10,000-seat San Antonio Convention Center Arena. The San Antonio businessmen include Art Burdick, Angelo Drossos, B. J.

McCombs and John Schaefer. Approval was granted at a special trustees' meeting in Chicago. Originally, it was announced that the Dallas franchise might shift to New Jersey for next year, but this fell through.

save $20.
COMPETITIVELY PRICED AT YOUR TORO DEALER

Toro reveals the 7 secrets of a well-engineered mower

1. It must be designed for safety. Toro pioneered the use of rear toe guards and side stone deflectors. Toro tests incessantly for safety.
2. It must be durable. Toro mowers are engineered for simplicity. The fewer moving parts, the less there is to go wrong.
3. It must start reliably. Toro's "Key-Electric" models start with a key. Pull-start models start with minimum effort.
4. It must handle easily. Toro mowers are lightweight. Self-propelled models have front-wheel drive, which makes turning effortless.
5. Its blade must cut clean. Toro's blade has a "sail" that whips grass upright for a clean cut. At its center is an anti-scalping cup to help prevent gouging.
6. It mustn't clog on clippings. Toro's "Wind-Tunnel" housing creates a powerful vacuum suction to whisk away clippings. With the bag, you don't have to rake.
7. It must be easy to maintain. A Toro mower is engineered for easy home-maintenance. Oil drains easily; blade sharpens with a file. Toro parts and workmanship are guaranteed for a year, transportation costs excluded.

Rosewall defeats Stolle for win

HOUSTON (UPI) — Defending world champion Ken Rosewall won his first tournament of the year and vaulted to the top of the standings of his tennis tour Monday with a 3-6, 6-2, 7-5 victory over Fred Stolle.

The victory in the $50,000 River Oaks Tournament practically clinched a spot for the 38-year-old Australian in the $100,000 finals of the World Championship Tennis where Rosewall will defend his title.

Stolle, who has defeated his countryman only once in 21 meetings and never won a WCT tournament, parlayed an over-powering serve to an easy victory in the 23-minute first set. But Rosewall broke Stolle for the first time in the fourth game of the second set when the 6-3 Australian double faulted.

"I was quite happy after a while that I could get some of his serves back," Rosewall said. "It gave me confidence. He didn't serve inter quite as well as he did the first set and a half."

The key point in the third set was a court shot by Rosewall that allowed him to break Stolle and even the match at 4-4. Stolle, who double faulted twice to start the game, was at the net and ready to put the point away when it nicked the net and bounced over his racket.

"I was sitting right on that bloody volley and it hit the net and went right over my racket," Stolle said. "That's the way the mud flops, I guess."

Rosewall became the eighth person to win a tournament in Group B of the WCT tour this year. No one has won more than one.

The victory gave Rosewall, who was in fifth place before the River Oaks tournament began, 32 points. Marty Riessen of the United States is in second with 32 points.

The top four in the point standings from Group B will meet the top four in Group A next month in Dallas for the WCT championship.

Rosewall's triumph over Stolle earned him $10,000, which gives him $32,000 in winnings this year. Stolle picked up $5,000 for second place. Stolle also picked up seven WCT points but he has only 14 for the year and has virtually no chance of making it into the finals.

Group B plays in the Cleveland Classic this week.

When the darkness fell, Charley's $20.00 steelhead-salmon rod and $50.00 salt water type reel was inexplicably tangled in a tall pine tree. My reel smoked and sang as a passing heifer stepped on the tip of my rod, breaking it. "Yes, tell it like it was."

"We were fishing the River Styx, low on the Dante Mountains, a stream mangled by nearly everyone, most recently dressed out by the Charon Clear-Cut & Logging Co. — a place Charley had found by reading the graffiti on the walls of the men's room in the Nimrod Tavern."

Returning to magazine fantasy: "Awake at six next morning and rolled out of the warm sleeping bag and found Charley already busy with a grill full of eggs and fried steelhead trout. After the meal and a quiet pipe, we reached the stream with the thrush's call and, after baiting up, took an old ironhead on the first cast. By noon our arms were aching with fatigue, having caught and released several limits because we already had our possession limit of two fish apiece."

The truth would go something like this: "Up at six, awakened by the stumblings of a rabid coon, I chattered out of my rain-soaked sleeping bag and found Charley in the cab of the pickup, drinking beer and eating a candy bar and telling me to go to hell. After a brief fist fight in the mud, we reached the stream in time to match our heartburn with the roar of the muddy torrent."

"While ineptly repairing my rod with a roll of adhesive tape, a diabolical teenager drove his trail-bike over our tackle boxes and received a beer can into his crash helmet as a reward."

Aparicio's son is threatened

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Red Sox star Luis Aparicio said Monday a gang of extortionists has threatened to kidnap his 15-year-old son in Venezuela if they are not paid off.

Aparicio, who resides during the off-season in Maracibo, Venezuela, said his wife received the threatening telephone calls at their home about a week ago.

"I've been in close contact with my family," Aparicio said after going through an hour-long workout with the team at Fenway Park. "I've talked to them every day by telephone. "I talked to the chief of police (in Maracibo) about an hour ago," Aparicio said. "He told me everything is taken care of. My son, Luis, is under pretty good guard now."

"They promise me he is safe," the veteran shortstop said. "He is under guard 24 hours a day. They say it is not necessary for me to go home."

Aparicio said his wife had received several phone calls in which the callers threatened to kidnap young Luis. "If we don't pay them some money," he did not say how much money the extortionists sought.

"I got the okay from the club to go home any time I think I'm needed," Aparicio said. "But with the assurances I've received from the police I don't think that's necessary."

Aparicio said the police "don't know who is doing it or why they're doing it, outside of the money." He said he had no idea who might be responsible for the extortion attempt.

"My son is 15 years old," Aparicio said. "I'm not only worried about him, but I worry about everybody. I've got four more at home."

Rodgers begins jail sentence

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers began serving a 30-day jail sentence Monday night for driving on a suspended license.

The jailer at the Lancaster County-Lincoln City Jail said Rodgers, 21, was placed in a cellblock at 6:35 CST with 13 other inmates.

Rodgers' attorney David C. Pierson has said he will seek permission Tuesday to have Rodgers placed in a work-release program in Douglas County to work as a counselor at Boys Town near Omaha.

The University of Nebraska All-America was arrested Feb. 23, 1972 for failing to stop at a red light in Lincoln.

Outdoor writers urged to tell it like it is

By JIM HUMBARD
 Idaho Fish-Game Department

Among the earnings of fallen New Year's Resolutions, one remains unscathed — if scrawled note, "Tell it like it is!"

It's amusing to thumb through some of the magazines to see what they are saying about hunting and fishing — and how they are saying it. Almost all outdoor writers come up with the same reason, to enhance the possibility of getting an editor to accept the piece for publication. This has more to do with writing style, story tone, point of view and the like than truth, which is relative anyway.

For example, the author of a piece on early spring steelhead fishing might lead off as follows:

"Brilliant as horizontal flame, the late evening sky offered promises of a warmer day tomorrow as the wily searun steelhead trout softly bumped the Sammy's Special, baited with a gob of worms, and the reel smoked and sang as Charley set the hook and the heavy fish dived for the bottom.

"We were fishing the Froemethen River, high in the Allegorphan—Mountains—a stream veritably unfouled since mountain man Hugh Glass dressed out a bear on the banks — a secret place Charley had found in reading the diary of the late Chief Cumshaw . . ."

Okay, that last New Year's Resolution about telling it like it is would be signed, except this author has been a spoon piece trying to make a point by parodying some of the serious writing in the magazines. Glossy photos, some even in "living" color; two guys gloating over corn-mealed slabs of steelhead trout and not another human being for hundreds of miles. No mention of mosquitoes, tick fever and cold, unseasonable rain or even snow showers. Early spring steelhead fishing often can be very much like duck hunting; cold, miserable weather, the kind that keeps most people close to their own fireside.

Better the truth: "Dark as the stygian mists of hell, the sky blacked out at 5:30 p.m. and we knew we were in for another week of rain and snow."

When the darkness fell, Charley's $20.00 steelhead-salmon rod and $50.00 salt water type reel was inexplicably tangled in a tall pine tree. My reel smoked and sang as a passing heifer stepped on the tip of my rod, breaking it. "Yes, tell it like it was."

Astros defeat Dodgers 4-1

HOUSTON (UPI) — Southpaw Jerry Reuss pitched a five hitter and drove in the winning run with a two-out single in the eighth inning to spark the Houston Astros to a 4-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers in their home opener Monday night.

Reuss' hit, a one-bounce line drive off shortstop Bill Russell, drove in Doug Rader to break a 1-1 tie. Rader walked to lead off the inning, moved to second on a sacrifice by Larry Howard and took third on Roger Metzger's long fly to center.

Manager Leo Durocher elected to let Reuss hit for himself and he came through with the single. Jim Wynn hit his second homer of the season into the second deck in leftfield to make it 4-1.

Wynn scored the Astros' first run when he singled to lead off the game, stole second, moved to third on an error and came home as Cesar Cedeno hit into a doubleplay.

The only run off Reuss came in the seventh on a single by Ken McMullen, a two-base throwing error by Cedeno, and a single by pinch hitter Steve Garvey.

HOUSTON (UPI) — An angry Larry Costello says the Milwaukee Bucks need top efforts from all of their players if they're going to win their first round playoff series with Golden State.

The series was knotted at two games each after Golden State clipped the Bucks, 102-97, at Oakland Saturday night. The teams resume the playoffs Tuesday night at the University of Wisconsin Fieldhouse in Madison.

The Bucks were to have gone to Madison by bus Monday for a workout, but had to postpone the journey until Tuesday morning because of heavy snow.

Costello made it plain he was upset with the play of Kareem Abdul Jabbar and Bobby Dandridge Saturday.

"You can't win with four men playing, or with three. Some guys played hard, others were just going through the motions."

"We certainly didn't deserve to win," Costello said.

The Bucks coach said Oscar Robertson had a good game, Curtis Perry did a great job on the boards and Lucius Allen gave "us a good effort."

No mention of Dandridge or Jabbar, and for good reason. In the first half, Dandridge went scoreless and Jabbar sank one of 10 shots and picked off only three rebounds.

HOUSTON (UPI) — The New Orleans Saints signed running back Howard Stevens of Louisville, Ky. Monday and traded an undisclosed future draft choice to the Detroit Lions for linebacker Adrian Young.

Young, a 6-1, 232-pound five-year veteran of the National Football League, spent his first four seasons with the Philadelphia Eagles who chose him first in the 1968 draft. The Lions acquired Young as a free agent last season and he played 10 games for them in 1972.

He was co-captain of the 1967 Southern California national championship team.

Stevens was the Saints' 16th round choice this year.

Late rally lets Reds top Atlanta

Atlanta scored four runs in the top of the ninth inning with the help of Bobby Tolan's tie-breaking single and a two-run single by Tony Perez and then held on as Atlanta rallied for three runs in the bottom of the inning before reliever Pedro Borbon preserved an 8-7 win Monday evening.

Catcher Johnny Bench hit a two-run homer for the Reds and put aside the Reds' doubts about his throwing arm following off season surgery by nipping two runners going to second.

With the score tied 4-4, opened the ninth with a single. Pete Rose attempted a sacrifice bunt and the throw to second failed to get Gagliano. Tolan followed with an RBI single and Bench was walked. A single by Perez brought in two more runs and Cesar Geronimo scored Bench on a sacrifice fly.

Atlanta scored three runs in the bottom of the inning when rookie Rod Gilbreath singled and Dusty Baker was safe on an error. Mike Lum singled driving in two runs and Dave Johnson was safe on an error. Johnny Oates then singled driving home Lum.

Indian diplomat assumes charge of embattled Himalayan kingdom

NEW DELHI (UPI) — An experienced Indian diplomat leaves for the embattled Himalayan kingdom of Sikkim Tuesday to take over administration of the country at the request of the Sikkimese king. A spokesman for Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government told the Indian parliament Monday that India will "make every effort to ensure the interests of the people there and secure and safeguard their progress toward political stability and economic prosperity."

The Chogyal and his queen, former New York socialite Hope Cooke, were reported by U.S. embassy officials in New Delhi to be safe inside the royal palace. B.S. Das, formerly the Indian representative in the Himalayan kingdom of Bhutan, will leave for Gangtok, the Sikkimese capital, as chief administrator of Sikkim. Das, commissioner for the Delhi municipal corporation, was dispatched to Gangtok in response to a request from the Chogyal. Sikkim asked India last week to use its troops stationed in the strategic kingdom between India and China to put down the uprising and to take over administration of the country. Kazi Lendup Dorji, president of the Joint Action Council which revolted against the Chogyal, announced in Gangtok Monday that the "principle of the current phase" of agitation for electoral and administrative reforms in Sikkim. This announcement followed talks by rebel leaders and Indian officials in Sikkim. The rebel leaders issued a petition in which they said "all our efforts with the Chogyal for a reasonable settlement of our demands have failed and therefore it is not possible for us to hold talks directly with him or his emissaries any longer."

The petition asked the Indian government to "guarantee our democratic rights." It also asked that the principle of man-one-vote replace the complex communal voting system now used in Sikkim.

He was a unique artist and a tireless worker, whose extraordinary personality made him a leader and inspiration for artists for more than 70 years. Casals, who has lived in Puerto Rico since 1956, said he had met Picasso twice, the first time in Barcelona and again briefly in Paris. Both men fled Spain during the Civil War because of their pro-republic sentiments, but Casals remained a Democrat while Picasso moved to the left politically and became a Communist. Casals opted to move to the New World while Picasso remained in the Old.

Additional water source suggested for Jerome

(Editor's note: This is the fifth in a series of articles dealing with a report compiled by the Idaho Water Resource Board on water and sewer needs of Hazelton, Eden and Jerome.) JEROME — An additional water supply source and provision of a standby power source are recommended improvements to the Jerome water system. The recommendations are among several contained in a report prepared by the Idaho Water Resource Board. Also recommended is construction of two ground level reservoirs with booster pumps. As with most rural communities in Idaho, Jerome has not experienced any population growth until recently. There was a decline after 1960. However, with the addition of two new industries, Jerome's population trend reversed, as can be verified by the large number of new homes built in the past two years. Records of the original central water system which served the city of Jerome are sketchy and it is, therefore, difficult to accurately describe its history. It was reported that the original system was established shortly after founding the village in 1907 by the Jerome Water Co. The original source was from a well located at the site of the present elevated reservoir. A reciprocating pump delivered the water to the well where Jerome citizens filled their buckets. Jerome had no distribution system until private concerns purchased the well and laid a wood stave pipe distribution system. One section of steel pipe laid in 1918 is reportedly still in good condition. Under private ownership three more wells and all of the present storage facilities were constructed prior to 1930. In 1940 all of the reciprocating pumps were replaced with submersible types, two of which are in operation now. In 1956, Jerome purchased the water system and made extensive repairs to the deteriorated system. All of the wood stave pipe was replaced in addition to drilling two 10-inch diameter wells about 20 feet apart on Tenth Avenue East, between Buchanan Street and Cleveland Street. The last major improvement to the central water system was in 1972 when a 200 H.P. deep turbine pump replaced one of the submersible pumps. The report states the present sources of supply and the water storage facility are inadequate to provide the future community with sufficient fire protection during periods of peak day consumption. A total flow of 8,050 gallons per minute would be required and the present system would allow only 4,360 gpm. The city does maintain the original 100,000 gallon ground level storage tank for fire purposes. The report says it is regulated by manually opening a valve with the water boosted into the distribution system by a small pump. With such an arrangement, the report states, it is doubtful that the use of this storage for fire protection would be available for all emergencies and was not figured into the amount of water available. The report says if there was a power outage during such a major fire demand, at least half of the well supply would be lost and the flow from the storage in conjunction with the other well supply would be approximately 2,400 gpm. This is inadequate and indicates the need for increasing the amount of storage and/or providing the well sources with standby power facilities the report said. All existing wells and related pumping equipment are reported to be in good condition. The physical and chemical quality of the water is also reported to be good. Two minor chemical deficiencies are a lack of fluorine and an excessive water hardness. The biological quality of the water also is reportedly good. At the present time, the water supplied from the five wells is treated with chlorine before being pumped into the water system. No contact time is permitted in storage units. As a result, the city must adjust the chlorine feed to a low level to avoid taste and odor complaints. A health department evaluation of Jerome's source and/or system listed the system as provisional pending two modifications — an increase in the rate of chlorination and the holding of chlorinated water before distribution. In the past, Jerome has recognized the importance of maintaining a fluorine residual in the water supply for optimum dental health. However, the fluoridation treatment is not presently functioning. The 60-year old elevated storage tank is reported to be in fair condition and no major repairs or improvements appear to be needed. If the city provided a program of regular maintenance on this storage facility, it should be able to be utilized for several

Everyone for this course

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — If all final exams were like the one for a new course at American International College, the dropout rate would probably disappear. And it might be assumed that students would get into their homework with a bit more gusto. The course offers three credits in wine appreciation. Dean Clinton M. Bowen of AIC Evening College said Monday the classes, beginning Sept. 10, will be held in the faculty dining room for 14 consecutive Monday evenings. Plans are to limit the enrollment to 45, but if enough applications are received the class could be expanded. Coordinating the course will be Profs. Paul E. Provost and Robert T. Märkel, who said the course will consist of a consumer-oriented survey of the world's major wines and vineyard regions. Each class will have a lecture, discussion and wine-tasting session. Dean Bowen said the course has been designed for both the amateur and the "serious student." Some applicants are expected from the wine industry, including package store operators and salesmen. "For the novice it will offer a broad introduction to the wines of the world tailored to his interests as a consumer," the dean said. "The more knowledgeable wine drinker will have an opportunity to broaden his experience through the exploration of fine wines from lesser-known regions," he said. But it's the final exams that sound most interesting. On the final night of the course, students will be blindfolded and asked to identify and evaluate various types of wine. As the AIC spokesman said, "Where."

Livery stable still in Ocala, Florida

OCALA, Fla. (UPI) — Every town once had a livery stable, where a man could leave his horse for food and shelter while he dined at the local hotel or dealt a few hands of five card stud at the neighborhood saloon. Ocala still does. Well, it's not exactly a livery stable in the old sense of the word, but it serves the same purpose. Except the old days a stable was the place for a lady. It was a hangout for men, where they could spit tobacco and cuss and swap knives. Ocala's horse hotel is run by a widow and her daughters and it's called a motel, not a stable. "It's just like you went into a motel and rented a room," said Mrs. Mildred Nelson, a registered nurse who operates the place since her husband died in 1968. "Most of the time those that are just overnighting bring their own feed. We furnish a stall and water."

helping Mrs. Nelson with the chores is her 19-year-old daughter, Jill, a former state rodeo queen who is attending Central Florida Community College and hopes to be a veterinarian. They live in a modest mobile home on the back side of the pasture. A married daughter, Mrs. William Hay, lives nearby and also helps, along with a son, Jim, who shoes horses at stud farms in the area.

Generator readied at Dworshak

DWORSHAK, Idaho (UPI) — The first generator at the Dworshak Dam is scheduled to begin operation this month, bringing the giant dam on the north fork of the Clearwater River in North Central Idaho up to 400,000 kilowatts of power production. The Army Corps of Engineers said the second generator, a 90,000-kilowatt unit, went into production last week at the dam, which stretches 712 feet from bedrock to its crest. The first generator, another 90,000-kilowatt unit, began producing power March 1. The Corps said the third generator, rated at 220,000 kilowatts capacity, was scheduled to begin operation within the next two weeks.

Two California specialists, meanwhile, say that they have patients who suffer asthmatic attacks when they take aspirin. Transactions is the journal of the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology.

Deaf parents hear their girl sing 'with heart'

By MURIEL GREENSPON

The last notes of a woman's voice hang in the air. A kettle drum's muffled rises to a throbbing four. My heart quickens. For this is my cue to walk on stage in my debut as mezzo-soprano in "The Consul."

"They" thousand people sit expectantly in the red-cushioned seats of New York City Opera. But in the dark towering wings I hesitate.

Out in row D in seats 112 and 113 sit two dear people. I know their seat numbers for I got the tickets myself. Their names are Edward and Ruth Greenspon, my father and mother.

For them my heart is breaking. They have come all the way from Detroit for my debut.

But they will not hear me sing.

They never have nor will they ever hear me sing. For both mom and dad have been completely deaf since childhood. They live in a soundless world which the strongest hearing aid cannot penetrate.

They were able to have only one child. But the love that bonded the three of us nourished our little family so it blossomed into gaiety and excitement. I was their ears. And they were my encouragement.

But, oh, dear God, why couldn't I have been blessed with a talent for art so I could paint them my appreciation for the life and love they've given me? Every child wants to lay a gift at their parent's feet.

This denial seared me as a teenager when I'd sing for my mother's B'nai B'rith. The ladies would ask for "My Yiddishe Mamma," but I would always stand behind my mother while I sang it. For I knew that if I saw her face I would cry.

And dad. He worked so hard to get the piano when I could hardly reach its keys. When I had learned to play, he would rest his hand on the polished mahogany to feel the vibrations. And for a moment a light would flicker in his eyes.

And yet I knew that God had given me this talent. He made it clear to me when I was 13. I had been stricken with peritonitis. The doctors had lost hope, but I returned.

When well, I had the strong sense that God had a purpose for my life. He had given me a talent and it was my responsibility to use it.

Endless hours of study and practice intensified into college. Then came auditions and leaving home for New York, where for a time I literally sang for my supper.

And all the while, mom and dad encouraged me with letters. They had always helped me. Even their very deafness helped my acting ability. For what I couldn't tell them by voice, I would "say" through facial and body expressions.

Finally, after years of small roles and understudying, I got the leading role of the mother in "The Consul."

That was why my parents had come to New York.

Oh, mom and dad, was it wrong to bring you here? Would it only thrust the knife of disappointment deeper?

Aunt Herma had accompanied them. We had had a little party last night. Mother had made a beautiful needlepoint purse and had burst into tears when she gave it to me.

Now, as I walk to the stage I whisper, "Oh, please God, in some way let them know."

"The Consul" is a moving, poignant opera about a family in tribulation. In it my son's baby dies and as I sit alone on the stage holding the tiny body, I sing an aria about old people who bury the dead and wait to die themselves.

"But," I conclude in song, "I believe that God receives with kindness the empty-handed traveler." And I think about those two who sit so near and

Lenten guideposts

The opera reached its climax in a last crescendo. And the audience was on its feet applauding.

Later I sat in my dressing room, heavy with the scent of roses. I heard the door open and Aunt Herma telling me how wonderful I was.

I heard Mom and Dad behind her and could hardly turn from my dressing table. I was afraid to look at their faces; to see the nodding and beaming for something I knew they had no way of experiencing.

And then my father's hand rested on my shoulder, and I could smell my mother's perfume as she leaned down to clas me. I turned and looked into their eyes. For an instant I could not believe what I saw. They knew. Somehow they knew. It was shining in their faces, that unmistakable look of pride as if they had heard me!

"You were so fine, dolly," they said, tears streaking their faces.

For the rest of the evening I floated in an exhilaration of disbelief and thankfulness. And then I beckoned my aunt to a corner.

"Tell me," I asked, "how did they...?" I couldn't say anymore.

Aunt Herma's eyes shone with understanding and she took my hand.

"They did," Muriel, they heard you. And you know how? When you finished, your mom and dad turned and looked into the faces of all the people around them. And in those faces, they saw the joy their little girl gives to others, the gift she brings to the world.

"No, Muriel, people can't always hear with the ears. But sometimes God helps them hear with the heart."

Dance workshop held at Rupert

RUPERT — Over one hundred Magic Valley dance students participated Saturday in a workshop conducted by Ballet Folk of Moscow.

The troupe, Idaho's first professional ballet company, gave classes in addition to a performance Friday night in Burley.

The group is sponsored by the Idaho Commission on the Arts and Humanities and the Magic Valley Dance Teachers' Association. It is directed by Carl Patrick and his wife, Jennette Allyn, who instructed the advanced ballet, point and jazz sections of the workshop.

She has danced in the San Francisco and Pacific ballet companies, and has taught at the San Francisco Conservatory of Ballet and Theatre-Arts, San Francisco State College, and at Gonzaga University, Spokane, Wash. She is currently on the extension staff at the University of Idaho.

Intermediate and beginning ballet classes were instructed by Marilyn Gilkeson, Paula Jo Brantner and Patricia Moehner. Miss Gilkeson was formerly with Robert Joffrey and American Ballet Theatre before joining Ballet Folk.

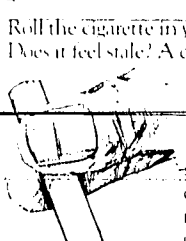

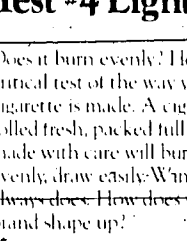

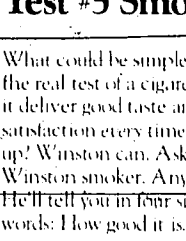

Miss Brantner, a Boisean, came to Ballet Folk from Ballet West, and Miss Moehner comes from Seattle where she danced with the Cornish Ballet.

Richard G. Jackson assisted Miss Allyn with the jazz class as well as teaching modern ballet. Jackson is a native of Coeur d'Alene, and received his early training at the Rambert School of Ballet, Royal Ballet School of London, and the Martha Graham Studio, New York. He is now director of the Lewiston Dance Studio and an instructor of dance at Lewis-Clark State College.

Can your cigarette pass these 5 simple tests?

If you've ever had second thoughts about the brand of cigarette you smoke, here's a quick way to find out if it really delivers what you want.

These five simple tests will tell you a lot about quality, freshness, and taste. And if you make these tests with a Winston, they'll tell you why Winston smokers can point to their brand and say, "How good it is!"

<h3>Test #1 Sniff It</h3>  Take a whiff of the tobacco. Does it smell rich and fresh and appealing? If your cigarette is Winston, you'll recognize the aroma of costly Vintage Leaf Tobacco. Winston chooses the most nearly perfect leaves money can buy. Then we age these rare tobaccos in wooden casks. We do it for the same reason you'd age a fine wine. Aging makes our tobaccos mellow and brings out that extra dimension of natural goodness.	<h3>Test #2 Feel It</h3>  Roll the cigarette in your hand. Pinch it slightly. Does it feel stale? A cigarette that's been waiting in a warehouse, or on a shelf, can lose some of its freshness. And some of its taste. But, because Winston sells so fast, every pack comes to you fresh. The fact is, on any given day, Winston is likely to be the freshest cigarette your money can buy.	<h3>Test #3 Take a puff... before lighting</h3>  Take a puff — without lighting it. That's a good way to tell about the tobacco and the filter. If you can taste the tobacco without lighting up, you know there's richness up front. And that the filter doesn't get in the way of the taste. Winston's exclusive Filter Blend, a top-secret blend of different tobaccos, works with Winston's modern white filter to deliver satisfying taste in every puff.
<h3>Test #4 Light It</h3>  Does it burn evenly? Here's a critical test of the way your cigarette is made. A cigarette rolled fresh, packed full and made with care will burn evenly, draw easily. Winston always does. How does your brand shape up?	<h3>Test #5 Smoke It</h3>  What could be simpler? That's the real test of a cigarette. Can it deliver good taste and real satisfaction every time you light up? Winston can. Ask a Winston smoker. Any time. He'll tell you in four simple words: How good it is.

Ask a Winston smoker. He'll tell you HOW GOOD IT IS.
