Cutback hits Valley work

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

Burley The Idaho potato industry was hurt "much, much less" than any other by recent program cuts, Dr. A. M. Mullins said Friday. Dr. Mullins, University of Idaho College of Agriculture dean, explained the "unprecedented move" taken by the university's Board of Regents on April 6 cutting programs and eliminating positions. To members of the education and research subcommittee of the Idaho Potato Commission in Burley. Four extension positions in Southern Idaho have been eliminated as a result of the cutbacks, he said. A potato area specialist, a livestock area specialist, and an entomology position will be eliminated in Twin Falls and a foliar disease specialist position in Aberdeen will be terminated, Dr. Mullins told the group. Dr. Mullins said the move was necessary because the college's budget was $871,652 less than the $1.1 million that had been sought from the legislature. "This dollar crunch necessitated a critical reevaluation of our priorities and a reallocation of projected funds," Mullins said.

"I'm not pointing a finger at the legislature," he said. "I feel they were operating on the mandate they felt they had," he said. Asked about possible use of state contingency funds, Mullins said they could not be made available until the legislature acted next year. The funds were needed now, he said. Asked why, if the university received a 10 percent increase in funds, the College of Agriculture couldn't operate in a style fitting the state's income, Mullins said the college's budget was separate from that of the university. The College of Agriculture, he said, actually suffered a net decrease which, coupled with inflation, required cuts and reclassification in some programs so programs of higher priority could be continued. Mullins said the college had deficits of $323,000 in research and $96,000 in extension. The past few years, he said, they have been losing good professors to higher salaries at other universities. Consultations with each department head were made, he said, to determine where cuts could best be made. Cutbacks are being made in every department in the university, he said. (Continued on p. 21)

US Mideast target

MUSHROOMING CLOUD of smoke, resembling tornado funnels seen in U.S., hangs over Dison, Lebanon, Saturday as oil storage tanks burn. American owned Raffine Oil Co. tanks were set ablaze with explosives hours after Palestinian guerrillas called for liquidation of all American interest in Arab world. (UPI)

today in brief

No Canada election due
OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau Saturday said he will not call another federal election in the near future or abandon the helm of the Liberal government. Speaking to more than 1,000 delegates at the Ontario Provincial Liberal Convention, Trudeau said, "We are here to govern, and we are here to govern not only for this session but for other sessions, if the House of Commons lets us."

Hepatitis link found
WEST POINT, Pa. (UPI) — American and Costa Rican researchers engaged in a joint study have found a relationship between a hepatitis virus found in certain South American monkeys and serum hepatitis in humans, it was reported Saturday. The findings, published in the current issue of the proceedings of the Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine, represented the first identification of a specific virus demonstrably related to the human disease.

Thieu returns to Saigon
SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu returned Saturday from a "triumphant" world tour, saying that he and President Nixon had agreed that peace in South Vietnam is dependent on similar settlements with the Communists in Cambodia and Laos. Thieu also told the throng that gathered to welcome him at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport that the United States has promised to give South Vietnam "everything we need" for the post-war reconstruction of the country.

Indonesia may quit
JAKARTA (UPI) — Indonesia Saturday indicated that it may withdraw from the four-power International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS) in South Vietnam unless its members can be guaranteed safety against attack.

CIA won't lose role
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A high Central Intelligence Agency official predicted Saturday the Pentagon's Defense Intelligence Agency would not take over strategic intelligence functions "rightfully belonging to the CIA." The statement was in response to an Army Times article by Maj. Gen. Daniel O. Graham who wrote that strategic or policy-making intelligence decisions should be in military instead of civilian hands.

Statue recovered
SANTA FE, N. M. (UPI) — A ransom note written "in poor Italian" led to recovery Saturday of a priceless religious statue. Two teenagers were charged with the theft of the statue from St. Francis Cathedral in Santa Fe, March 18. Called La Conquistadora, it was reported recovered in "excellent shape" from an abandoned mine shaft.

Arabs push UN action on Israelis

By United Press International
The reason, he said, "is because all aggressions against the Palestinians are planned by the United States, and because the principal accused in any aggression is the United States. A self-styled guerrilla group which called itself the Lebanese Revolutionary Guard claimed credit for an attack early Saturday on an American owned oil tank farm near Sidon in Lebanon. But the official Palestinian news agency Wafa denied any such guerrilla organization existed and said leaflets containing the claim were distributed by American agents to mislead the public. Wafa said the attack on the oil tank farm near the south Lebanon port city actually was carried out by Israeli commandos and said it had alerted Lebanese authorities earlier to the presence of Israeli ships off the coast. Kaddous, who is known for his close connections with President Anwar Sadat, said in Saturday's edition the United States did not want the U.N. Security Council to meet and discuss the Israeli raid.

Spanish War vet, 99, dies

TWIN FALLS — Guy P. Sturgeon, 99, Pocatello, former Twin Falls resident and one of Idaho's three remaining veterans of the Spanish-American War, died Saturday in a Pocatello nursing home. After the destruction of the battleship Maine in Havana Harbor in 1898, Mr. Sturgeon resigned his position as an electrical engineer with the Western Electric Co. in Chicago and enlisted in the U.S. Navy. He served as a machinist mate on the USS Saturn. After the war he returned to work for Western Electric. In 1910 he moved to Twin Falls where he was a pioneer farmer when the Twin Falls tract was first opened to irrigated farming. Mr. Sturgeon also owned a farm at Jerome, retiring from farming in 1949. He moved to Pocatello in 1957. Funeral services will be in Memorial Park at 3 p.m. Tuesday. Obituary p. 2

B52s hit Red troop masses

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — American B52 bombers blasted Communist units massed within a 15-mile radius of Phnom Penh Sunday amid fears of an imminent Communist move on the Cambodian capital. Reports of 40 battalions with 12,000 troops surrounding Phnom Penh are grossly exaggerated, a Western military attaché said. "There are actually about 20,000 enemy troops in the immediate environs of the capital and from our intelligence reports they don't seem to be preparing for much more than a good sized rocket attack possibly followed up some kind of sapper action" — guerrilla explosive action. Priority targets for the 39th consecutive day of escalated American bombing in Cambodia were centered along the east bank of the Bassac river around the town of Anlong

Crash kills Bliss man in Elmore

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (UPI) — Two cars collided broadside nine miles east of Mountain Home early Saturday, killing Jimmy Robbins, 23, Bliss, the driver of one of the vehicles. State Police said the accident occurred shortly before 4 a.m. on U.S. 30. Officers said the driver of the other vehicle was John A. Shephard, 29, Boise. Earlier reports from Elmore County sheriff's officers that the accident was head-on collision between a car and a truck were incorrect, the police said.

Mitchell says testimony due

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell said Saturday after conferring with President Nixon that he expected White House aides to testify before the special Senate committee investigating the Watergate bugging case. Mitchell said he was himself eager to appear before the Senate committee headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., and that he was confident that any White House official "who has been remotely involved" would be authorized by Nixon to testify as well. Mitchell also predicted that the results of the Senate inquiry would not "hurt the presidency of the Republican Party" based on what he now knows about the Watergate case. He said he did not know all the facts that might be presented. Negotiations between the White House and the Ervin committee have been going on for some time, since, Nixon said he would invoke executive privilege to prevent any of his past or present aides from testifying under oath and in open session. "I think that you will find . . . that they will come to an accommodation where everybody in the White House who has been remotely involved will be testifying," Mitchell said. "I fully expect that." Mitchell, who has denied reports that he himself had any advance knowledge of the Watergate conspiracy, said "I think that everybody who's involved, or has been stated to be involved, will come forward and I don't think it will hurt the Presidency or the Republican party." Asked whether he thought other administration officials, including White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman, would "come clean" if they submitted to questioning, Mitchell replied, "I don't think there's any doubt that they will. There's no question about it. The White House, as I understand it, doesn't have anything to come clean about." The former attorney general, who left the Justice Department in March, 1972, to serve as Nixon's campaign manager until two weeks after the June 17 Watergate incident, said however that he was not certain all the evidence was heard during the trial of the Watergate Seven last January. "I don't know that because I'm not privy to all of the investigations," Mitchell said. (Continued on p. 12)

Costa Rica hit by Sioux

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — A major earthquake rocked this Central American country Saturday, knocking down houses in various rural towns and burying residents under falling debris. The Costa Rican Red Cross said at least 15 persons were reported killed in the quake zone in northwestern Guanacaste Province. As many as 100 were reported injured. Red Cross sources said the towns of Tilmar, Arenal and Rio Chiquita were the most seriously affected. They implied that if the Indian militants inside the village had not given up by that time, they will try to infiltrate their ranks and use harassment to drive them out.

Quake jars Malad area

MALAD, Idaho (UPI) — The earthquake that shook southeastern Idaho late last night was termed a "moderate tremor" by the National Earthquake Information Center. Center officials said the tremor, centered here, had a magnitude of 4.75 computed on the Richter scale. The first shock was felt at 11:36 p.m. The quake and aftershock awakened residents in Franklin and Oneida counties in Idaho and was felt in northern Box Elder and Cache counties in Utah. Officers at the Idaho State Police headquarters in Pocatello said they had reports of people feeling the quake from "all over the area, but we have none of any damage." Mrs. Kenneth Wharton, wife of the Oneida County sheriff, said the quake "shook her pretty good." The tremor was enough to awaken her but not enough to knock dishes out of her cupboard, she said. Mrs. Wharton said phone calls had come in from the community of Samaria, four miles southwest of here, saying the quake had also been felt there. Malad, in the southeastern part of Idaho, is 13 miles from the Utah State line. She said street lights remained on and from the people who had called her there had been no reports of damage, although there were queries on what the "rumbling" had been.

The Other Side

TWIN FALLS — The 1974 political campaign, which began the day after the 1972 political campaign ended, has begun to bloom in springtime Twin Falls.

Orriette Sinclair, Idaho's Republican national committeewoman and a Twin Falls resident, has sent out two press releases in past days. One of them sings the praises of newly elected Republican Senator James McClure and the other has somewhat less kind thoughts regarding Senator Frank Church, a Democrat who is going to try to get reelected in November, 1974.

Sen. McClure is going to be guest of honor at a GOP Party later this month, and the backers of it say its purpose isn't to raise money or anything, but just to honor McClure and have a good time. But then, they also say there is going to be a "Personality Readjustment Period" (no host) for an hour before dinner.

Sen. Church has started, for his own part, a springtime blizzard of press releases, designed to convince the local voters he doesn't want to force American ramps, men or men on anybody, and certainly wouldn't force abortions on hospitals which oppose them on religious grounds. Gov. Cecil D. Andrus visited Twin Falls last week, spoke to the local Kiwanis Club, and generally spread good cheer and kind words throughout the city.

He made an impressive trip into that part of the state that doesn't do much for most Democrats. The joke at Kiwanis was that Andrus, the first Post War Democrat to win the office in the state, was the best Democratic governor the Republicans ever elected.

In Twin Falls, that was literally true. Andrus chose his visit to the city to ace the appointment of Edward L. Benoit to the State Board of Education. Benoit is a Twin Falls Republican who supported Andrus during the 1970 campaign and the city's Kiwanis Club is composed of a large number of people who are and did the same thing.

Andrus lost Twin Falls County to former Gov. Don Samuelson by less than 1,000 votes in 1970. It was a staggering victory.

Two years later, Dr. William E. Davis was beaten by McClure in the senatorial race, by 4,500 votes countywide, while President Nixon was swamping Sen. George McGovern by about a 4-1 margin, and getting all 48 precincts.

That was a pair of close races, however, compared to the local cakewalks, where the Republicans moved back into the legislative seats with such ease that even some of the winners said they were embarrassed.

The two Democratic candidates for state senator in the county's legislative districts, for example, didn't get as many votes combined as did either of the two winners.

Sen. Richard High won a Senate seat in the legislature by a margin of 6600 to 1000, and while the spread was undoubtedly helped along by the Nixon landslide, it was still a heavier margin than McClure's, as lopsided as it became.

The state's executive secretary of the Democratic Party says that Twin Falls is a priority area for 1974, but a lot of people said that in 1972 and it turned into a disaster area more than anything else.

But Nolan Hanbeck, who is traveling nearly full time lately in an effort to get the party back onto its feet, says he is working on a number of computerized voter identification programs.

That is a tough thing in Twin Falls County, which has a central committee with at least a few vacancies, few young members and a penchant for having secret, unannounced meetings to choose a county commissioner. So the problem is a local party that is unmotivated and weak and a history of Republican lopsidedness.

Andrus escaped that in 1970, but still the inescapable feeling now is he would like to have in 1974, all those Republican Kiwanians in addition to a sound local Democratic organization.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D. Doctor says

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please discuss "an imbalance of uric acid" in the system. I was told this is not gout. Is it possible to recover from this, or is it something one must learn to live with? Please discuss diet. What of coffee and cola drinks? Do you have a booklet on this? — R. H. N.

"Imbalance" in this case can be translated into meaning that you have more than a normal amount of uric acid in the blood.

Some is normal, but about 90 per cent of patients with more than 9 milligrams per cent will eventually develop gouty arthritis — that is, "painful attacks of gout in the big toe or other joints."

However, there are instances — but not common — when the elevation of uric acid is due to a congenital defect — in certain enzyme systems having to do with uric acid metabolism. It may occur with other disorders such as diabetes, parathyroid disease, psoriasis or sarcoidosis. (Uric acid may also be elevated with stringent weight reduction.)

Likewise, high levels occur when taking diuretics of the thiazide type for certain kidney ailments. Persons with a high cholesterol level may also have an elevated uric acid level — it is thought that they may be candidates for coronary heart disease.

So it is quite possible, for various reasons, that you may have high uric acid but don't have gout — or don't have it yet. (Too much uric acid also can contribute to one type of kidney stones.)

To sum up, now that you know the situation, this is the time to start controlling it. Today there are drugs that limit the formation of uric acid and other drugs that accelerate its release from the body. Which is better to use depends on which gives the better results in a particular patient.

Diet is not a major element in reducing uric acid, but it is only good sense to mold your diet so as to help rather than harm your condition. Avoid high purine foods (including coffee).

Job Well Done

Joe McCollum resigned last week as a member of the State Board of Education. He served one five-year term and a small part of a second, long enough to help the board through a difficult transition stage over a period of the last several months.

He served as president for one of his more than five years on the board. During his term work was done on the Handbook of Student Rights and Responsibilities, a controversial but nevertheless valuable and important policy guideline that clearly establishes student rights and student responsibilities along side of administration and teacher rights and responsibilities.

It was also during McCollum's term that the board adopted a policy of meeting one month to discuss higher education questions before it and the following month to talk about public education. The result of that was to give each part of the board's responsibilities its own proper emphasis in the proper place.

McCollum was appointed to his position by former Gov. Don Samuelson. He was reappointed by Gov. Andrus. He did a good job, for the men who named him to the position and for the people he served.

Two Fallacies

There were at least two fallacies behind the recent meat boycott. One is the fact that prices cannot be arbitrarily forced down unless somewhere along the line from ranch to meat counter someone is gouging unconscionable profits from the American housewife's pocketbook.

Despite a lot of finger-pointing, that culprit remains unidentified. The other fallacy is simply that anything that discourages farmers from increasing production will accomplish just the opposite of lowering prices.

Though it is still too early to determine to what extent and how permanently the boycott drove prices down, an immediate result in some stockyards was a sharp rise in the auction price of steers, hogs and lambs — because a lot of farmers withheld their animals from the market in a counter-boycott.

Continually, of course, these animals will have to be brought to market, when the cost of feeding them begins to approach their sale value.

Far more important is the fact that if a boycott is successful in rolling back prices, or if Congress legislates them back, farmers will stop buying feeder cattle to raise. As one of them explains, it's like gambling. "You buy feeder cattle for 50 or 55 cents a pound, feed them one year or so and then have no idea what you might get for them."

If the farmer knows that it is going to be less than he's getting today, the ultimate result will be a smaller beef supply a year or two years hence. With demand increasing every year as it has, today's rocketing prices will look like bargains.

As for the warning by AFL-CIO President George Meany that wages will have to go up unless prices come down, a South Dakota rancher has a pretty good answer.

"The responsibility of holding down the cost of food is everybody's business," says Sheldon Cotton. "Higher food prices don't cause inflation. Inflation causes higher food prices. You can't have high wages and low food costs."

This is something Americans have not had to face before, thanks to agricultural productivity and a glut of surpluses.

Now the fat years are behind us and the lean years are upon us at least for a time.

Equal Elks

An Elks Club official raised a good point the other day about tax exemptions.

Philip West, a deputy grand ruler in the organization, who resides in Preston, wants to know why the Elks have been singled out to lose their tax exemptions under a recent Tax Commission ruling.

West wrote a letter to Tax Commission Chairman Don Loveland asking why the Elks were being singled out.

They should not be, West is correct about that. But the Tax Commission directive to county assessors last week ordered that all fraternal organizations which practice racially discriminatory membership policies lose their tax exemptions.

If the Elks are able to sign an affidavit saying they do not discriminate in that regard, they will keep their exemptions. If they are unable to sign the affidavit, they lose the exemption.

But the same is true for any organization which gets its exemption from the section of Idaho law, not only for the Elks.

West was right to question why the state was discriminating against the Elks. The state has no right to do that at all.

Kimberly Vote

Kimberly School District voters will have their opportunity early next month to realign their school board.

That is especially important to some of the voters in the town because of the angry charges and accusations that were made earlier in the year regarding alleged improprieties on the part of the board and administration.

The complaints, which were presented formally to the State Board of Education last winter, resulted in a two-man investigation and report to the Board the next time it met.

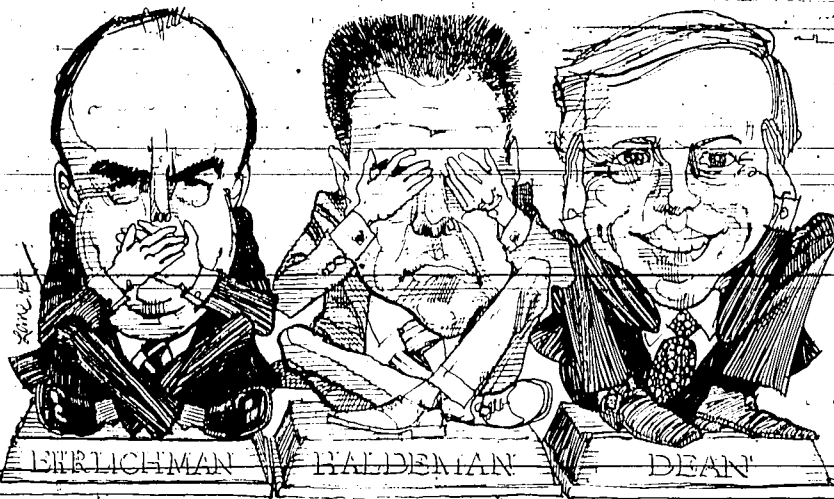

The clear result of the fact finding mission was that on balance the Kimberly School Board was acting within the law, and was conducting the business of running the schools in a manner consistent with established procedure.

There were a few instances in which the complaints were validated, but for the most part the two State Department of Education men who spent the time in Kimberly were satisfied.

For its part, the State Board will have a follow up study in September, to see that the local board continues to do its job properly.

But for Kimberly voters who are still upset, their chance comes in May.

Too Early For '76 Lineup

WASHINGTON (NEA) — When you tap politicians from many places in both parties these days, you quickly discover they aren't eager to talk much about the 1976 presidential race. They seem to sense that the American voter wants a respite from constant political clamor.

People got the idea, and they weren't far wrong, that there was almost no break between the 1960 and 1972 campaigns.

Almost exactly four years ago, in mid-April 1969, a sizable bunch of us political reporters went trouping after Sen. Edward Kennedy on a 1,000-mile, three-day swing through Alaska. The regular mentioned purpose was a Senate subcommittee inquiry into Eskimo and Indian poverty, but the real thing was, it was Kennedy's first major public outing since the assassination of his brother Robert the previous June.

The trip was one of the funniest adventures in recent political history, and yielded up a considerable tonnage of "Kennedy color." Later we trailed him to the South, to some eastern college campuses and other spots, all in the name of gauging him for the 1972 nomination.

Meantime, Sen. Edward Muskie for 1969's first six months dutifully pounded the Democratic banquet circuit, trying to capitalize on his popularity as Robert Humphrey's 1968 running mate. It did him little good, and he declared at mid-year he was bowing out to Kennedy.

Then, in late July, came the tragedy on the bridge at Chappaquiddick, which took Kennedy out and brought Muskie back in. Thereafter, things just went on and on.

It isn't like that this time. Kennedy will have some people traipsing after him when he goes to see Alabama's Gov. George Wallace July 4, but we won't need a 747 to carry the entourage. The word meantime is to lie low.

Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota, one of the regular mentioned-for 1976, is keeping quietly active. Friends of Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington say he's serious about another try, but they're just about the only ones discussing it.

On the Republican side, the steady political broadgrounds have all written their "whither Agnew" and "whither Connally" pieces, and there really isn't anything more to say until one of them does something visible and decisive. The only twist has been a little early surprise interest in the venerable vigorous Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

It isn't only the boredom of the electorate that's holding things back. In 1974, big gubernatorial races are at stake in Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and California. Nobody wants today to anger some needed party faction by plumping for a presidential candidate who may turn out to be divisive. That job is on the line this year in New Jersey, and those fellows never heard of the presidency.

The Republicans have a little added problem — the Watergate bugging case and assorted other 1972 shenanigans aimed at the Democrats. The new GOP national chairman, George Bush, finds that his main press-conference question wherever he goes, and road-company newsmen never lay off it.

This is not your perfect moment for pulling the card and unveiling a shining new candidacy for the White House.

There'll be a little stir over those mayoralty races this season in Los Angeles and New York, though in the latter case the job has sunk to the level of a door prize at a rigged bingo game. The candidates, all sound like designated pinch hitters.

So, all in all, it's a pretty good year for putting pictures of high-priced stocks on newspaper covers instead of exhibiting our "hot prospects" for 1976.

RAY CROMLEY VC Atrocities

WASHINGTON (NEA) — What is amazing is that so many are surprised by the torture inflicted on American prisoners of war by the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

Yet perhaps that surprise is not so strange after all. For some reason news reports have, by and large, underplayed the systematic atrocities in this war committed by the VC and the troops from Hanoi, except for major sensations as the mass murders and burials alive, as at Hue.

This reporter has looked over hundreds of photographs of the most horrible Communist atrocities, many with messages from the VC attached. He has seen few in print here.

Associates who have lived in contested territories blanch at what they have seen. The atrocities are made no less horrible by the knowledge that torture is as common throughout Southeast Asia as in Europe in the Middle Ages. There is the small girl, about four, who came walking home one day with both hands cut off and a sign around her neck warning her father, a hamlet chief, and his associates they could expect more of this if they persisted in opposing the Viet Cong.

There are the children of one village in the Mekong Delta who, friends of mine discovered with horror, had their fingers cut off to the stubs because their parents would not permit them to attend a Communist school.

There is a priest, from a Catholic church as I recall, whose body was found slit in half up and down, half nailed to the wall of the church, half to a fence some distance away.

There was the practice, common some years back, of the VC starting a ruckus outside a village, drawing the police out, then moving into the rear and systematically killing or torturing their wives

TF school talks planned

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls teachers' negotiations team will meet at 8 p.m. Monday night with negotiation representative of School District 411.

The meeting is a continuation of negotiations which resulted this month in the raising of teachers' salaries by 11.32 per cent.

According to Gordon Armstrong, member of the team, the group will continue its negotiations at the meeting with the request that teachers be allowed to use sick leave for emergencies. Teachers now receive one day sick leave per month, according to law, he said, and may use their three days personal leave for emergencies.

Armstrong said the team would ask for district payment of insurance premiums for teachers and their families. Teacher premiums only are now paid by the district.

"We think this will cost the district about $50,000 per year," he said.

Assistant school Supt. Camden Meyer said Friday that the district estimated the possible insurance coverage for employees of families at "closer to $60,000."

Individual coverage in the group plan costs about $16.35 per month, he said, and the family coverage would be about $41.65. The increase would have to cover all persons employed by the district, if granted, he said.

When asked if the team was considering asking for kindergartens and additional pay raises from available funds, Armstrong said, "We're not negotiating for kindergartens now. A lot of things have to be considered first. This is a statewide problem and separate from negotiations at this time."

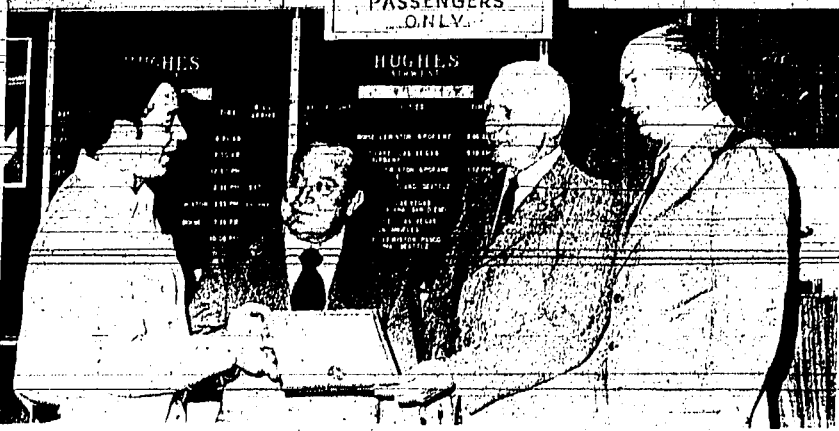

"The administration and the board have been completely honest with us about school financing," he said.

Stennis 'escapes'

STARKVILLE, Miss. (UPI) — Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., left his hospital bed Saturday, slipped out of Washington-unnounced and attended a class reunion at his alma mater, Mississippi State University.

It was his first public appearance since he critically wounded in a shooting more than 10 weeks ago outside his Washington home.

"Today represents a first for me," the 71-year-old senator told former classmates and friends who gave him a standing ovation when he showed up for the unpublicized visit to his alma mater.

Joslin Field gets FAA nod

TWIN FALLS — Joslin Field is the first airport in the state to qualify for an operating permit under new stringent federal laws.

The certificate was received by City Manager Jean Milar from C. B. Walk, Jr., director, northwest region, Federal Aviation Administration.

Qualification came of the basis of accident, safety and security programs now required of jet airports. Unless these requirements are met by May 21, such airports will be closed to scheduled airline traffic.

Throughout the nation there will be more than 30 major ports not able to meet requirements, including several in the western states, Walk said.

The operating certificate was presented to members of the Twin Falls City-County Airport board and now hangs in the field's terminal building. At the same time, Walk announced approval of Joslin Field's airport manual which was prepared by the airport commission and the city's engineering department.

In announcing the local field as the first to qualify in Idaho, Walk wrote that "your cooperation and efforts, along with those of Harry Merrick, airport manager, and members of the city, county and airport commissions who helped in this certification are appreciated. We wish you continued success and growth in the operation of the airport."

Joslin is one of five jet fields in the state. The others are Idaho Falls, Pocatello, Boise and Lewiston.

Merger penned

HAZELTON — Papers have been signed for the consolidation of the Adelaide No. 42 and the Hazelton No. 40 Hobekah lodges.

The announcement was made public today after the Adelaide group met in regular session Thursday evening in Hazelton.

There is still business pending, however, before the actual consolidation takes place. Meeting time and place for the new group has not been set.

Noble Grand Juanita Lander conducted the meeting.

Committee reports on the purchase of a new furnace for the lodge hall and of the consolidation were given.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Elmer Pycne.

The next meeting of the Hazelton group will be April 26.

TF man charged with theft

TWIN FALLS — Jesus Maria Turralba, 34, Twin Falls, was arrested by Twin Falls police Friday night on a charge of first degree burglary.

Turralba was arrested in connection with a burglary at La Casita restaurant last week.

Turralba was arrested about 11:45 p.m. Friday following an investigation by Twin Falls city detectives. He remained in jail Saturday in lieu of $2,000 bond.

Shoshone club meets

SHOSHONE — The O. K. Bridge Club met at the home of Mrs. Robert Haddock Thursday.

Out-of-club guests were Mrs. E. D. Aras, Mrs. Max Coffman and Mrs. Joe Barriochan.

Score prizes were won by Mrs. Joe Pangoaga, Mrs. Thomas Bellin and Mrs. William Thomason with Mrs. Beilla and Mrs. Roger Freeman taking traveling prizes.

Mrs. E. D. Saras won the guest prize.

Bridge winners told

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Friday Night Duplicate Bridge Club met at Episcopal Hall.

Winners include Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Hartruff; first; Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Wycoff, second; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Butcher, third; Mr. and Mrs. L.

JOSLIN FIELD Saturday became the first airport in the state to qualify for an operating permit under new federal safety, rescue and security regulations. The FAA certificate was received by Twin Falls City Manager Jean Milar; left, and presented to, from the right, City Councilman Winston Jones, Airport Commission Chairman Bill Powell, and County Commission Chairman William Chancey.

Release convicts, judge orders Navy

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A federal judge here has ordered the immediate release from Marine and Navy briggs of some 1,500 to 2,000 men convicted in summary courts-martial without being allowed lawyers.

U.S. District Court Judge David Wallis Friday ordered Navy Secretary John W. Warner, Chief of Naval Operations Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, and the Marine Commandant, Gen. Robert E. Cushman, to discontinue such summary courts-martial and to "instantaneously release" any men convicted.

Williams ruled that a summary proceedings in which a sole military officer acts as judge, jury, prosecutor and defense attorney, was illegal because it violated the right of the accused to counsel.

Solon blasts budget chief

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Saturday the administration's budget director, Roy Ash, evidently has not kept a promise to sell his 220,000 shares of stock in Litton Inc.

Split trials denied

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI) — A district judge Friday turned down a defense motion to split separate trials for two Athens, Tex., carnival workers charged with kidnaping and slaying a suburban Denver doughnut shop waitress in 1971.

The decision marked the second time that District Judge Daniel Shannon refused to sever the trials of Sherman McCrary, 47, and his son-in-law, Carl Taylor, 30. He turned down a similar motion in pre-trial hearings in March.

Shannon ordered attorneys back Saturday for a special session in an attempt to hurry up selection of jurors. Attorneys said they expected to process to tap over into next week.

McCrary and Taylor were both charged with kidnaping Leona Rose Looney, 20, from a Lakewood, Colo., doughnut shop. Her body was found three days later in a farm field in northern Colorado.

The two, suspected in a string of cross-country slayings from Florida to Utah, were indicted last year for the Looney slaying following testimony before a grand jury by Taylor's wife, Ginger McCrary Taylor, 22.

McCrary's wife, Carylon, originally was charged with kidnaping and murder but was allowed to plead guilty to a lesser charge of being an accessory before the trial began Monday.

TOPS club weighs in

GLENN'S FERRY — At the weekend of TOPS Thursday evening at Greer Hall, members showed a gain of 4½ pounds, a loss of 1½ pounds and one turtle.

KOPS had a loss of 2½ pounds and no gain.

Plans were made to have Mrs. Roy Marroch of King Hill as a guest for the next meeting, she will have charge of the program.

Mrs. Don Anderson was TOPPER of the week.

$11,544 awarded six TF families

TWIN FALLS — A 12-member Fifth Judicial District Court jury has awarded the plaintiffs $11,544.50 in damages in a suit against the city of Twin Falls.

The verdict returned Thursday, awards damages to six families whose homes suffered from a sewage backup in the Madison, Monroe and Jefferson Streets area May 31, 1972.

Charles Brumbach, representing the plaintiffs, argued negligence on the part of the city and said the city was aware of the condition which existed as to sewer line connections and a syphon in the area where the backup began, but had failed to take steps to correct it prior to the damage. The jury awarded separate amounts to each of the plaintiffs, depending on their testimony as to extent of damages.

Originally the plaintiffs asked for a total of $92,000 in damage to their homes and personal property; $120,000 in suffering, and $60,000 punitive damages.

Amounts awarded included $1,644.50 to Boyd Buchanan and family; $1,894, Stanley Carlson; $2,153, James Gage; Kenneth Gafey, $1,943.50; Jerry Cargill, $1,430.50, and Darrell L. Cardwell, $2,529.

Bert Larson represented the city in the trial.

Train mishap kills engineer; one hurt

rural station south of here Saturday, setting off a fire in a diesel engine and scattering boxcars like toys. The body of a train engineer was found in the burning wreckage.

The 6-40 a.m. accident occurred at the small community of Booth about 12 miles south of Richmond. The Fort Bend County sheriff's department said engineer F. D. Strain was killed and a brakeman injured.

Santa Fe supervisor Joe Scranlon said a 91-car freight train was on the main track and running parallel to Strain's 28-car train on a side track. The 28-car train, loaded with piggy-back cars hauling grocery goods, came off the side track and crashed into the 7th car on the passing train.

Diesel fuel on Strain's engine caught fire and a 20 cars derailed and scattered on the twisted track.

TF club meets

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Transmistress Club met Thursday at the Colonial House.

The theme of the meeting was "Woman to Woman" and was carried out in speeches and educational material.

Vice president Eileen Landmead conducted the business session. Table topics were led by Mrs. Ruby Box using telephone monologues as the title. The traveling trophy was won by Mrs. Vera Young.

Mrs. Greeta Smith's speech, "Chain Letter," won the blue pencil for the best speech of the evening.

VFW hosts official

GLENN'S FERRY — Mrs. Vel Facer, Pocatello, department president of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary, was a guest at the Thursday evening meeting.

Mrs. Facer was making her official visit to the local auxiliary. Plans were made for the Buddy-Poppy sale on May first. The president's report for the year was discussed. Cancer and cancer research is the project of the VFW Auxiliary year after year.

Because of the Danube River, Budapest, Hungary, although 850 miles from the Black Sea, is officially registered as a seaport.

IRA forms children's barricade

BELFAST (UPI) — The Irish Republican Army (IRA) used a line of young children as a barricade Saturday for a mortar attack on a British Army post in Belfast. In the town of Lisburn, gunmen sprayed a children's band with submachine gun fire, but injured no one.

Later Saturday night, soldiers wounded a gunman in a graveyard gun battle in Londonderry, the army said. The man was hit when an army patrol fired back at three snipers shooting at them as they dodged among the tombstones. The spokesman said the gunfire knocked down one of the snipers, but he was dragged away by his companions.

In the Lisburn incident, an army spokesman said the gunmen missed their targets and escaped in the confusion caused by the incident.

The reason for the Lisburn attack was not immediately known.

In yet another incident, a Protestant teen-ager was found shot to death in the toilet of a saloon, raising to 774 the number of reported victims of more than 3 1/2 years of sectarian violence.

None of the children used as a barricade in the Belfast attack was reported injured, nor did the mortar attack cause any reported damage or casualties in the army post.

"The kids formed a wall across the road in front of the army post," said an army spokesman, explaining the IRA mortar attack. "Behind them gunmen set up a mortar. They crawled along the ground behind the kids."

"Then, all the kids scattered, and the mortar opened up," the spokesman said. "Before we could return the fire or get out at them the kids were back across the road in a solid line."

"The terrorists dismantled the mortar and got away. We couldn't open fire for fear of hitting the kids, and when we brought out an armored car and drove toward them they didn't flinch."

IRS picketed

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Two dozen protesters stood in the rain and wind at the main Post Office Saturday with signs criticizing the Internal Revenue Service.

One sign read: "What's the difference between a thief and a tax collector?"

Another compared the IRS to Nazi Germany's Gestapo.

The group, gathered at the main entrance to the building, included students, housewives, businessmen and children.

Karl Bray, one of the demonstrators, said tax pressures aren't relieved a nationwide anti-tax movement could lead to mass arrests within a year.

US forms draw sweat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Millions of Americans still were sweating over their federal income tax returns this week-end in an effort to meet the Monday midnight deadline.

When the IRS last checked last Wednesday, only 57 million of an estimated 77 million taxpayers had filed their returns.

There was some evidence, however, that more persons than normal mailed their returns early, apparently because of the unusually large tax refunds.

The deadline for filing individual income tax returns this year is Monday, April 16, for most of the country and midnight Tuesday, April 17, for New York and New England residents.

In 1971, Congress revised the tax withholding tables, but many wage earners failed to ask their employers to increase the number of allowable exemptions. Thus, more money than necessary was withheld from their paychecks.

The result was faster refunds this year than in the past.

An IRS spokesman said the average refund check through last Wednesday was $145.95 compared to $250.95 at the same time last year.

Altogether, the government had sent back $12.6 billion to about 36 million taxpayers. That amount will increase substantially once the last minute filing crunch is over.

For those who cannot meet the deadline, the IRS again is offering an automatic two-month extension. Corporations already enjoy this privilege on their quarterly returns.

A taxpayer who needs the extra time should pickup a Form 4868 from an IRS office, fill in what he thinks he owes and mail the form along with a check for that amount to the IRS before the deadline.

But there is a catch. Any unpaid difference between the estimate and the amount actually due will be collected at 6 per cent annual interest.

Patman scores lobbying

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., urged President Nixon Saturday to disown reports that the White House is orchestrating a big business-bankers lobbying campaign to weaken House Democratic proposals for tough new economic controls.

Patman, chairman of the House Banking Committee and this year's chairman of the Joint House-Senate Economic Committee, said the success of any economic stabilization program depends on public confidence.

"I do not believe that this confidence is enhanced by reports of the administration locking arms with big business interests in an effort to beat down anti-inflation legislation sponsored in Congress," he said in a letter to Nixon.

"I sincerely and respectfully urge you to disown these lobbying campaigns before the House votes on the Economic Stabilization Act Monday."

Patman said the House takes up a bill sponsored chiefly by Patman with the blessing of the Democratic leadership which would roll back all prices and most interest rates to their March 16 levels, and would put a ceiling on rents as of their levels last Jan. 10.

Republicans and a small group of Democrats hope to approve instead a simple one-year extension of Nixon's economic controls authority, which expires April 30, before Congress begins its Easter Recess next Wednesday.

In his letter, Patman referred to an article in American Banker, a financial publication, which said the White House is "depending on business lobbies to help tune down" the Democratic bill.

He said he was disturbed by the report that "the White House is orchestrating a lobbying campaign by big business, real estate and banking interests against strengthening amendments" to the controls authority law.

"I do most sincerely question the use of the Executive Branch as a lobbying headquarters for outside business interests, interests which are already well-oiled and more than able to take care of their own lobbying campaigns without the assistance of tax-supported branches of government," he said.

"The effects of this combined White House-business-banker campaign are being felt on Capitol Hill," Patman added, saying his Banking Committee offices had been "literally besieged with telephone calls from various special interest groups."

Edwards, a long-standing opponent of Moffett Field, referred in a letter to the Navy Department to what he called "rather dangerous situation" and "nuisance" the air field causes.

"It is entirely possible Moffett could be shut down without harm to the Navy's program," the local congressman said.

Both planes involved in the collision a Navy P-3 Orion submarine patrol plane and a space agency Convair 990 flying laboratory were stationed at the base, which is shared by the Navy and NASA's Ames Research Center.

Shut port, Navy asked after crash

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (UPI) — Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., urged the Navy Saturday to close the suburban airport where two planes were trying to land when they collided in flight this week, killing 16 men.

Edwards, a long-standing opponent of Moffett Field, referred in a letter to the Navy Department to what he called "rather dangerous situation" and "nuisance" the air field causes.

"It is entirely possible Moffett could be shut down without harm to the Navy's program," the local congressman said.

Chinese repeat walkout

TOKYO (UPI) — Chinese delegates staged their third walkout in as many days Saturday at a meeting of the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East (ECAFE).

The latest Chinese walkout occurred when the South Vietnamese delegate, Letuan Anh, rose to address the commission. The Chinese returned after he had finished speaking.

Chief delegate An Chih-yuan and other members of the Chinese group had walked out of the meeting previously, on Thursday during the address of the Cambodian delegate and on Friday when the South Korean delegate spoke.

In his speech Thursday, the Chinese chief delegate said the representation of Cambodia, South Korean and South Vietnam in ECAFE was "illogical."

Demos file blank slate

RICHMOND, VA. (UPI) — The Virginia Democratic primary, which virtually took the place of the general election under the old Byrd machine, won't be held this year because of a lack of candidates.

As the Friday midnight filing deadline passed, not a single candidate had filed for governor, climaxing the collapse of the Democratic machine which dominated Virginia politics on all levels for nearly a half century.

The organization was built by the late Sen. Harry F. Byrd. Its downfall seemed imminent when his son, Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., ran and was re-elected in 1970 as an independent rather than face a possible loss in the Democratic primary.

GOPs flay Nixon

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — The Ripon Society, a liberal Republican group, Saturday accused President Nixon of ignoring his own party in favor of a "New Majority Party" epitomized by White House aide H.R. Haldeman.

In an editorial for its April 15th "Forum" newsletter, the GOP group said it was inviting the White House, "after it has cleaned up its internal problems" to rejoin the Republican Party.

The group blamed the New Majority Party for the "scandals that are now damaging the Republican Party," and said, "It is this New Majority Party, not the Republican Party, that is responsible for P.T. Venet and the indifference to integrity that pervades official statements from the White House."

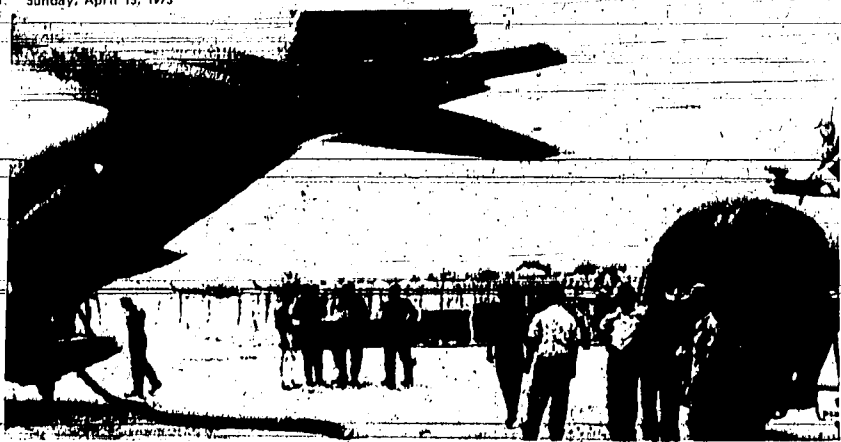

It added that Haldeman "more than any other presidential aide, epitomizes the condescending White House attitude toward the rest of the Republican Party."

Republican progressives have long felt locked out of the White House by the President's staff. But in the last year, that feeling has spread to most Republicans on Capitol Hill and indeed to most GOP state commitmen and governors. "That is why," said the editorial, "many Republicans are rooting for the axe of the Watergate scandal to fall on the head of H.R. Haldeman."

Ripon called on the President to accept the leadership of the GOP and argued that this would require a change in the White House's attitude and solicitation of ideas from all segments of the party.

As the leader of the Republican Party, said Ripon, "Richard Nixon needs to develop a legislative and administrative program that will help build the GOP that will give the party the mandate from the people to exercise some responsible party government."

Cuts ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Cost of Living Council said Saturday it had ordered General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. dealers to make nearly $9.6 million in price cuts on automobile parts because of violations of the government's economic stabilization program.

The council said the rollbacks were ordered because the dealers raised prices on parts already in inventory after the Price Commission in December, 1971, granted increases of 2.5 per cent for GM and 3.1 per cent for Ford on new auto parts and accessories.

Under the commission's rules at the time, price increases could be applied only to new items and stock on hand had to be sold at the earlier price levels.

Coffee subsidy dropped

LONDON (UPI) — A 62-nation conference Saturday night approved a proposal backed by the United States and other industrialized nations to end a decade of price supports for the coffee-growing countries of Latin America, Africa and Asia.

A resolution to strip the 10-year-old International Coffee Agreement of its powers to control one of the world's most heavily traded commodities was approved by the treaty's council by unanimous consent. The resolution will extend the agreement beyond its Sept. 30 expiration date for two years but without its key machinery which enables it to control the amount of green coffee released to the world market and establish price ranges within which it is sold.

President Nixon, in a report to Congress earlier this year, acknowledged coffee's "large, often crucial role" as a source of foreign exchange for deve-

Ban still in force

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton said Saturday a decision allowing oil companies to "unitize" their operations off the coast of California does not mean the government has lifted a ban on drilling in that area.

Morton said there has been no change in policy on drilling in the Santa Barbara Channel since he suspended drilling in a 35-mile area in 1971. The channel was the scene of a major oil spill in 1969.

But Morton said President Nixon "will no doubt speak in some depth on the subject of offshore drilling in California and other continental shelf areas in his forthcoming energy message" to Congress next week.

Interior officials Friday authorized oil companies holding federal leases in the Santa Barbara channel to "unitize" 34 tracts.

Youth solons pass recycle measure

BOISE (UPI) — Members of the 1973 YMEA Youth Legislature passed a measure outlawing non-returnable beverage containers Saturday. The bill would require that every beverage container sold or offered for sale in Idaho have a refund value of not less than five cents except for reusable metal containers which would have a value of not less than two cents.

The measure was similar to a law enacted in Oregon last fall and nearly identical to one defeated earlier this year in the state senate.

Under the proposal, a dealer could not refuse to accept from a consumer any empty beverage container of the kind sold at the store or supermarket.

The measure would make violations of the act a misdemeanor and would also outlaw flip-top cans.

Youngsters from throughout the state were scheduled to finish up their business Saturday to end a two-day mock youth legislature in the Idaho Statehouse.

Members of the house and senate also passed a measure which would allow the advertising of contraceptive methods along with a bill requiring mandatory distribution of venereal disease information in the school system.

Other measures passed included one denying tax exemptions to any organization which limits membership because of race, creed or national origin and one authorizing state-operated lotteries.

A bill outlining the penalties for skyjacking passed both the house and the senate. The measure would make the death penalty mandatory for anyone convicted of such a crime.

The bill also would give airlines the right to search anyone who had purchased a ticket and intended to board the commercial aircraft.

Another mock bill, requiring that all magistrate judges be attorneys passed along with a controversial measure requiring welfare recipients to seek employment and jobs.

Twin Falls was represented by 34 delegates, including the lieutenant governor, Don Burdick. Among them were 10 representatives and a senator. The rest were assigned various duties as lobbyists, reporters, pages and assistants to various state officials.

On Friday, Scott Maratz, youth governor from Ashton, called for education reforms including abandonment of mandatory attendance in high school. Maratz said the change would make the educational system "less boring" and would give students "more responsibility in the school program."

He also recommended consolidation of school districts where feasible and spoke against legalization of marijuana.

Echevarria tours Leningrad

LENINGRAD (UPI) — Mexican President Luis Echevarria toured this Russian port city Saturday beneath banners calling for increased cooperation between his nation and the Soviet Union. Echevarria, currently on a world tour, came here from Moscow where he conferred Friday with Soviet government officials. He will return to Moscow Monday to continue the talks, then fly on to China on the last leg of his six-nation tour.

Postal terms traced

T. WALLESHAUPT
Idaho leader

TWIN FALLS — A look-at-contract negotiations was given Idaho American Postal Workers Union members here.

The organization conducted its annual convention at the Holiday Inn Friday and Saturday.

Guest speakers at a dinner Friday night included William Kaczor Jr., national APWU administrative aide, maintenance-craft, Washington, D.C., Willis Cadman, national vice-president, clerk craft, Wenatchee, Wash., and Ruthella Cadman, national treasurer, auxiliary, Wenatchee, Wash.

The APWU, with 350,000 members, is the largest postal union in the world, according to Kaczor. Its members represent four of the seven employe crafts in the U.S. Postal Service — motor vehicle employes, maintenance employes, special delivery messengers and postal clerks.

Kaczor said the APWU sits on a joint body, the Postal Coordinating Bargaining Committee, with three other postal unions in contract negotiations with the Postal Service.

Upcoming contract negotiations were the primary topic of Kaczor's speech. He said the union's two-year master contract will expire April 20. Salaries and fringe benefits will be prime points of negotiation, according to the official.

Legislation giving the union the right to strike and organize union shops will also be a "paramount demand" in the negotiations Kaczor said. The Postal Reorganization Act currently outlaws postal union strikes and shops.

Kaczor also discussed APWU merger talks with another union, the Communications Workers of America.

The APWU secured a $710 pay raise for members during the last contract negotiations, Kaczor said. A "compression of steps," reducing the time it takes to reach the top of the Postal Service pay scale from 21 years to 18 years, was also achieved the last contract, he added.

Defense by press required

BOISE (UPI) — Gerald Lubenow, San Francisco bureau chief for Newsweek, told Idaho newsmen Friday night that the press is under attack and it must free itself. "If the press is to remain free in the most fundamental sense, it must free itself," he said.

According to Lubenow the only way to do that is to report the news as the press perceives the news, not as it is "laddled out by government sources or spoon fed by special interests."

"There is no question that the press is under attack and that the administration is backing that attack," he said.

Lubenow spoke at the annual Idaho Press Club awards dinner.

He said journalism must take the initiative, not only in terms of reporting the news, "but more importantly in defining the issues."

He said it was unusual that newsmen were being barred from certain court procedures when the jury was composed of the most "ill-informed elements of the community."

Lubenow also criticized Vice President Spiro Agnew for his criticism of the press. "He is a man not to be taken lightly," he said. "He is a mouthpiece of the administration." He said Agnew has "as much respect for the first amendment as Karl Marx has for free enterprise."

Teachers threaten to strike

BOISE (UPI) — Members of the Boise Education Association have adopted a resolution calling for a teacher strike next year if the district does not meet salary demands, the Idaho Statesman said today.

Calling for a "no contract-no work" philosophy for Boise teachers, the resolution was contained on a flyer handed to teachers as they entered the meeting. It was adopted unanimously by 200 teachers attending the meeting, the newspaper said.

The resolution also called for the BEA to ratify the committee to negotiate the master contract for next year until the base salary for teachers is raised to $7,200 from $6,450 and other adjustments are made through the salary schedule.

Scientist tells laser's use in Venice

TWIN FALLS — "Venice is saved." This quotation from an Italian newspaper was given by Dr. John F. Asmus, final speaker in the Friday afternoon symposium on the uses of radiation in modern society at the Idaho Academy of Science at the College of Southern Idaho.

Dr. Asmus, of Science Applications, Inc., Albuquerque, N.M., described his "Venetian adventure" humorously. He talked about building a laser "from scratch" in a project in holography — a means of recording images, such as automobile prototypes, in three dimensions.

"We thought this concept might also be applied to preserving the images of famous works of art affected by deterioration," Dr. Asmus said.

He said of Venice, Italy, was founded around 300 A.D. on "salt marshes," and discussed environmental problems, including moisture and smog, which are destroying the city's world-renowned art works. Funds for their preservation and restoration have been hopelessly bogged down the the Italian parliament.

"While we worked on our holography project, using Vanolite statuary, we found the newspapers reporting that we had 'saved Venice' when it became known that we had used the laser to remove encrustation from statuary," Dr. Asmus said.

During Saturday sessions, academy members attended sectional meetings in archaeology, botany, chemistry, geology, physics, behavioral sciences, science education and zoology. A special regional studies symposium was conducted Saturday afternoon.

The symposium began with an avallation by Dr. R. M. Brugger, Abcojet Nuclear Co., on use of radiation fusion and fission in Idaho.

Dr. Brugger said, "It takes a great deal of engineering skill to produce a breeder reactor. We have the only one in the U.S. now in Arco at the National Reactor Testing Station."

"We have run tests at Arco," he said, "for prototypes of submarines and aircraft carriers. When we run a fast reactor, we need to know our limits," he said.

"We have found that nuclear fuel is less polluting than any other fuel," Dr. Brugger said.

The second symposium speaker, Dr. Cyril M. Slansky, Allied Chemical Corp., Idaho Falls, spoke on radioactive waste disposal and usage.

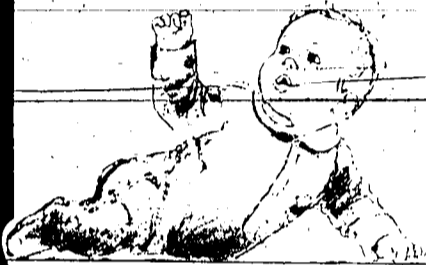

He said all radioactive waste should be disposed of with prime concern for man's safety. "We said all radioactive wastes should be placed in an 'interim' storage of 10 to 50 years in a fully retrievable form."

Over 500 new theatres built

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It's difficult to figure: fewer persons are seeing motion pictures than ever before, yet almost 500 new movie theaters were built in the past year.

The antiquated popcorn palaces of the 20s and 30s — which seated thousands — are victims of the wrecking ball. The new buildings are more intimate, comfortable and convenient.

"Boxoffice," a trade publication for motion pictures, surveyed all 50 states for a reading on the exhalation facet of films and produced some surprising facts.

There were approximately 18,000 theaters operating across the country in 1940, before television was loosed on the land. Today there are 14,000 theaters doing business. A loss of only 4,000.

This despite the fact attendance dropped from 80 million to 13 million.

Profits are difficult to calculate because ticket prices have more than doubled at most theaters over the past quarter century.

Clearly, theaters are a thriving business in most communities. National General Theaters sold the chain of 240 houses formerly the old Fox chain not long ago for $67.5 million. The chain netted $4.9 million in 1972.

Of the 14,000 theaters currently in operation, 6,000 are drive-ins. The large percentage of outdoor screens substantiates Boxoffice's observation that June, July and August are the months in which more people go to movies principally because school is out.

The term "screen" is used now more often than "theater" because of rush houring multi-auditoriums in a single building, showing two, three and four different films.

In 1972, 498 new theaters were built, many of them mini-theaters seating 400 persons or less. Multi-theaters represented a large percentage. Last year, 240 twin theaters were constructed, 42 triplexes, 42 quads and one five-plex.

Westwood, Calif., a suburb of Los Angeles in which UCLA is located now has 14 screens to accommodate the growing audience of young people on campus.

California led the rest of the states in number of new theaters, or screens, followed by New York and Illinois.

The survey indicated that large cities continue to pull the largest movie crowds while citizens in less populated areas are inclined to remain at home to watch the tube.

NEA head hits link to union

BOISE (UPI) — The president-elect of the powerful National Education Association told Idaho teachers Friday the NEA should not affiliate with the labor-oriented AFL-CIO.

President-elect Dr. Helen Wise's remarks brought applause from the more than 300 delegates attending the annual meeting of the Idaho Educational Association.

"With two million people we don't have to be affiliated," she said. "We can do anything we want."

She said 1973 will be the best year to decide whether the smaller American Federation of Teachers will take over the NEA.

"We can be hard-hitting and professional at the same time," Dr. Wise said. She added that it is up to the association to wake up the American public as to what is going on in education in the United States.

She said the NEA has been under attack by anti-union groups for the last decade and these attacks will increase.

"We are a powerful organization," she said. The question is how that power is going to be used.

New twist to rustling

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (UPI) — There was a cattle rustling with a new twist near this suburb of Washington Thursday.

Someone killed a black angus steer with two 30-inch arrows and butchered it on the spot before escaping with the hind quarters, containing the best cuts of beef.

Another steer was wounded by an arrow.

Maryland State police said the butchered steer was worth $1,000.

Error said crash cause

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (UPI) — The commander of the Navy's Pacific air fleet blamed human error Friday for the aerial collision of a space agency flying lab and a patrol plane which killed 16 men.

"Of course, someone made an error," Rear Adm. Herbert S. Ainsworth told newsmen as the Navy and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration opened a joint investigation into Thursday's crash about 30 miles south of San Francisco.

Ainsworth, commander of the Fleet Air Wing, Pacific said there was no indication of mechanical or aircraft failure. "We have to look to personnel."

Eleven men aboard the NASA Convair 990, outfitted as an aerial laboratory, and five Navy personnel aboard the P-3C Orion anti-submarine patrol plane died when the two aircraft plunged into the 12th fairway of Sunnyvale Municipal Golf Course and exploded in flames.

One crewman from the patrol plane, Navy PO 3c Bruce N. Malibert, Bakersfield, Calif., survived the crash with multiple injuries. Ainsworth said he may be able to shed light on the accident, but noted Malibert was still in critical condition.

The admiral declined to answer questions at a news conference on the exact sequence of events which led to the crash as the two planes approached Moffett Field, a joint Navy-NASA base, for landings. He said the chronology of the accident wouldn't be known until flight recorders and tapes of conversations between the planes and the Moffett tower were examined.

Eyewitnesses gave different accounts of the collision, some saying the bigger NASA plane settled down onto the tail of the two-engine Orion, others reporting that the Navy craft suddenly veered up into the bottom of the four-engine jet.

They said the planes then somersaulted in the air and hit the golf course in a "ball of fire." No golfers were hurt.

A space agency spokesman said one experimental scientist, John W. Yaskob of San Jose, Calif., was aboard the NASA jet, named "Galleon," along with seven technicians and three crew members.

The $6-million flying lab, which returned last month from a three-week joint study of the Bering Sea with Soviet scientists, was on a checkout flight for its one assignment: the recording of sea mammal migrations from the air.

Dr. Hans Mark, director of NASA's Ames Research Center, said loss of the laboratory and its operating team would have "a very serious effect" on various studies of terrain, geology, atmosphere and wildlife in which it was used.

Branding time sign of spring

It's roundup time

By ANN DAILY
Special to the Times-News
ROGERSON — In Magic Valley the branding, castrating and spraying of cattle is one sure sign of spring.

Throughout southern Idaho ranchers prepare their cattle before releasing them on the vast ranges for spring and summer grazing.

At Antelope Ranch, owned by Don and Duane Ramseyer, Ramseyer Cattle Co., approximately 1,000 cows, half with calves, were processed March 31. The cattle will eventually graze on 58,000 acres of private and Bureau of Land Management range.

The complex but efficient operation began with round-up early in the morning. The cattle were driven into the headquarters ranch near Rogerson and put into holding pens.

After the cows were separated from the calves, the branding, castrating and spraying were done simultaneously, finishing shortly before dark.

The calves were run through a chute to a tilting calf table for castrating and marking by Don Ramseyer, Bob Groves and Wiff Derricott. The chutes were handled by Mrs. Groves, Alan Moore, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Moore, and John Ramseyer, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Ramseyer.

After branding calves three months or older received a two-way vaccine against black leg and malignant edema. In the fall the whole herd is inoculated for vibriosis and leptospirosis before the bulls are returned. Four to nine month-old heifers are vaccinated against bangs throughout the year by veterinarians at the company's home ranch in Filer.

Don Ramseyer explained that branding was done three times a year, in the spring and in July and October, usually when the calf is about one month old. A small branding iron was made for the smaller calves as the brand grows with the calf. The cows drop their calves 10 months of the year. The bulls are removed from the herd from March 15 to May 15.

Thirty registered bulls service the herd, Ramseyer said the bulls are purchased at two years of age and that he leans toward Herefords. Angus bulls are used with first-calf heifers and are kept separate to join the herd in August. The company keeps 150 replacement heifers each year.

It is particularly important that all calves be branded this year, Ramseyer said, since area ranchers anticipate increased rustling because of high cattle prices.

He said it is difficult to prosecute such cases although ranchers know it is going on. Cattle owners plan to patrol their herds more closely and rely heavily on roving county deputies to help, he said.

Besides rustling, local ranchers contend with coyotes, Ramseyer remarked that he had lost eight calves to coyotes so far.

"The worst thing the government did was take away the 10-80 poison," Ramseyer said. Area ranchers hired an airplane and helicopter at $100 an hour to hunt the coyotes with fair results. Hunters averaged seven coyotes an hour by helicopter.

In a corral adjacent to the branding, cows were sprayed by Duane Ramseyer and Warren Fraley against ticks and lice. In the fall, cattle are treated for grubs.

After spring branding, the cattle are turned out north of the ranch and graze there, moving to China Mountain in the south during the summer. In fall they are returned to northern pastures and winter near the headquarters ranch.

Antelope Springs provides water for the cattle in winter, and 17 miles of plastic pipeline provides water in spring and fall months. Several springs are located on China Mountain and on the surrounding range for summer watering.

Ramseyer said the company was strictly a cow and calf operation. Calves are sold in the auction ring up to a year in age, usually January through April. Steers are preconditioned for feedlots at the Filer and Twin Falls ranches.

The Ramseyer Cattle Co. was started in 1957 by H. F. Ramseyer and his sons, Don and Duane.

Cows win over 'city slicker'

By ANN DAILY
Times-News writer

I have never considered myself particularly delicate.

However, after photographing the branding at Antelope Ranch I find myself counting contusions, abrasions and lacerations in alarming numbers.

It is an old, old story — city slicker versus cows. Cows win.

The day seemed to start well. The men rounded up the thousand odd head of cows accompanied by calves and headed for the gate. I sensed my best picture could be taken from the middle of the gate so I stood there. The cows didn't trample me. They looked at me and went another way. The men began yelling at me, but I couldn't hear what they were saying. Now I think that I was fortunate not to hear too clearly.

After the cows were rounded up the second time I stationed myself in the back of a pickup truck to photograph the herd coming into the barnyard. I obtained a dollar-sized bruise on one kneecap getting in the truck so I was dismayed to be ordered off when the cows turned back after seeing me.

Eventually the cows were returned to the barnyard and put into a holding pen ready for branding. I hid behind a tractor.

In the pen, I dropped to my knees to photograph a charming baby calf, only to look into the view finder and discover myself eyeball to eyeball with an intensely upset cow. It was early in the day, so I was rescued.

Moving to the branding area, I discovered the heretofore dry run had turned to knee-deep muck which required a certain dexterity to negotiate. I made it most of the way down the run, loaded with cameras, before I lost my overboot. I stood there on one foot like a flamingo until one of the few sympathetic people left drug me out.

Safely on dry ground again, I began to photograph the branding and spraying. Forgetting that a pole fence has many openings, I moved in close to shoot the spraying. According to the men, I can now look forward to a summer free of ticks and lice. Eventually I will get used to the smell.

After the pictures were taken, I was determined to take an active part in the branding to make up for my mistakes.

In attempting to climb the chute to the calf table, my feet slipped and I fell stomach down across it. I didn't really need those two last ribs. They were short anyway.

Straddling the chute, I was banded an electric cattle prod, a wicked-looking wand with charged prongs on one end. The calves did move faster when touched with it, and I noticed that one of the men branding worked considerably faster after he was accidently prodded.

The afternoon wore on and after having my knuckles crushed twice, I learned to keep my hands from between the calf table and the chute. Only once was I struck on the side of the head by the tilt table brace and I only touched the branding iron heater once.

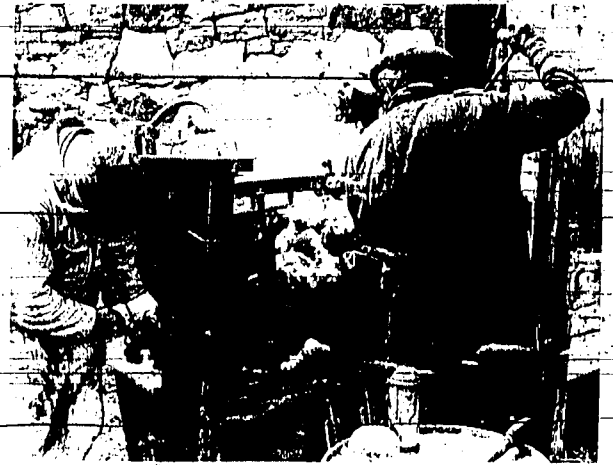

I bruised the other kneecap getting off the chute when the branding was concluded.

As I limped to the ranch house, people were actually smiling at me.

Maybe I'm tougher than I think.

Let me out of here!

Language changes noted

NEW YORK (UPI) — Noah Webster would have a hard time of it were he to return to life and start browsing through the 1973 dictionaries bearing his name. Language changes have left him far behind.

Examples of what Webster would be up against run all through the eighth edition of Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary, published this April by G. & C. Merriam Company. Among its thousands of newly added words and terms are such as:

Bioinstrumentation and Lunar Excursion Module, acid rock, folk mass, noise pollution, biodegradable, slang out and bumper (drug cult terms), minicomputer, body shirt, Afro, sex in domino theory, cinemattze, fright wig, urbanology, ego trip.

Noah Webster might be able to figure out some of them, but what, for instance, would he make of Lunar Excursion Module or minicomputer? The man would think us all mad.

MISS WORTHINGTON engaged

Blaine girl to marry Gaumond

KETCHUM — Mrs. Jack Toothman, Ketchum, and Melvin Worthington, Twin Falls, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sandra Elhine Worthington, to G. Joseph Gaumond Jr.

Gaumond is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerrard Joseph Gaumond Sr., Salt Lake City, Utah.

Miss Worthington is a junior at Wood River High School. Gaumond is employed at Sun Valley Chevron and is a driver for Sun Valley ambulance.

Stokes given stipend

TWIN FALLS — Kenneth H. Stokes has been awarded a full four-year Nathan Cummings-Consolidated Foods Merit Scholarship to Oregon State University.

Stokes, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Stokes, is a graduate of Twin Falls High School. He plans major in food science and technology.

In high school he was a member in Sigma-Hi-V, German Club, Key Club, National Honor Society and Music Club. He was nominated for the NCTE English award and has played in the Magic Valley Symphony, the all-State Orchestra, and the local production of Bizet's opera, "Carmen."

He has been active in the scouting program as an Eagle Scout and holds the God and Country award.

Stokes is one of eight recipients of this year's Nathan Cummings' Consolidated Foods Merit Scholarships.

A FOUR YEAR scholarship to Oregon State University is presented to Kenneth H. Stokes, right, by L. W. "Vern" Routh, President of Idaho Frozen Foods. Stokes will study food science and technology at OSU.

Crusade kickoff slated

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been a widow for one year. I have been told often that I'm a nice looking woman and I don't look my age, which is 49.

Yesterday, a neighbor rang my bell as he had done a hundred times while my husband was alive, and asked if the coffeepot was on. He said his wife was shopping.

I made him welcome, but it didn't take me long to figure out he wanted more than coffee. He said: "It's too bad you live next door—the neighbors don't miss a thing. Now, if I could meet you somewhere..."

I looked out the window and said: "Oh, I think your wife just drove up, and she'll need your help with the groceries." Then I jumped up and opened the door.

Disturbed Widow

Abby, I like this man's wife very much, but I don't think I can ever be in her company without feeling guilty. I am a terrible actress. Must I move? I really don't think I am up to handling this.

A LADY ALONE

DEAR LADY: Why should you feel guilty? Go about your business as though it never happened. One of the differences between a man and a woman is the man's ability to forget such a rebuke. He has probably blocked it out already. I suggest you do the same.

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating an attractive gentleman who has a very annoying habit. He keeps looking at his watch every 15 minutes or so. What conclusions would you draw from this annoying habit?

REDHEAD

DEAR RED: I would conclude that he is eager to go somewhere. (Possibly home.)

DEAR ABBY: I am in the 8th grade but I'm very mature for my age. I've got a real big crush on this dude named Johnny who's a senior and hangs around with my older brother.

I am very good at expressing myself in poetry so I wrote six real neat poems telling Johnny how I felt about him, and I mailed them to him. I waited a whole week and never heard anything. I know he got them because I put my name and address on the envelope, and it never came back.

I finally couldn't stand it any more so I wrote Johnny a long letter explaining why I wrote the poems and telling him if he thought I was too young for love, I would settle for friendship but I just had to play some role in his life. I poured out my heart in that letter. I haven't heard a thing since, and now he doesn't even come to the house to see my brother.

I am going out of my mind wondering what he thinks of me. Should I call his mother and take her into my confidence and ask her what to do? I've talked it over with some of my friends but they're no help. I'll do anything you say to get him, Abby. Please help me.

SECRET LOVE

DEAR SECRET: Don't call Johnny's mother. Boys are inclined to avoid aggressive girls, so cool it for a few years. And the next time you feel like pouring your heart out in poetry or prose, go ahead—but don't mail it.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A.; Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope please.

TF school choirs set Monday event

TWIN FALLS — The combined elementary choirs of the Twin Falls School District will present a concert, Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Twin Falls High School gymnasium.

This event, in which over 600 fifth and sixth grades will participate, takes place only once every two years, according to Mrs. Ernest Theonor, vocal director.

Twenty girls, selected from the five elementary schools, comprise an honor guard and open the concert with a flag drill. The national and state colors will be presented by Eric Anderson and Mike Snodgrass, after which the choir will sing the Pledge of Allegiance. As a tribute to Idaho, the state song will be sung, accompanied by autoharps.

Musical selections range from songs of today such as "Black and White" and "Morning has Broken" to old folks songs exemplified in "Sourwood Mountain." LaVear Thornock and Mark Slaughter play electric guitars and E. Walters is banjo player.

A special favorite of the choir is "Annie Goody Gachy Gamma Toosan Aira Toosan Ova Samma Gamma Waecky Brown." Illustrations were done by Age Stilling and the number is accompanied by banjo and guitar.

One of the highlights of the evening is "World Anthem" by Beethoven, part of the famous "Ninth Symphony." Selected members from the elementary orchestras in each school will accompany the group and the honor guard will present colors of various nations.

Other selections to be presented include "Feelin' Evans and Parnes; "Johnny's My Boy," an African folk song with percussion accompaniment; "Somewhere a Child is Singing," Peter Dykeman; arranged for three-part harmony with violin, fluted by Ernest Moss, and play, played by Debbie Coiner.

They will also sing "Play A Simple Melody" by Irving Berlin, with drums being played by Mona Morrison; "Jamaican Farewell," a Caribbean folk melody, arranged for marimbas, Latin-American instruments and voices.

Zoe Ellen Rayborn and Robyn Snow are featured as soloists. "It Happened on July the Fourth features trumpet, played by Mark Slaughter and Piccolo, played by Debbie Coiner. The concluding number is Meredith Willson's "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You."

Announcers are Lynne Stosich and Scot Nass. Mrs. Carl Snow is pianist, Ernest Moss, elementary orchestra director and Mrs. Kelth Turner and Mrs. Ernest Theonor are directors of the choir.

Detective speaks at lodge meet

TWIN FALLS — Members and guests of Modern Woodmen of America, camp 10890, heard reports concerning drug abuse at their Thursday night meeting.

Detective W.A. Davis of the Twin Falls Police Department and pharmacist David Nelson showed a film and discussed drug problems.

Boy Scout Troop 141, Jerome, presented the flag and led the pledge of allegiance. Verna Sherrets won the adult door prize and Brian Thompson, Jerome, the junior prize. Richard Truscott, district representative, was the master of ceremonies.

Reader's Theatre at CSI slates satirical "Firebugs" April 19-21

TWIN FALLS The College of Southern Idaho drama department Reader's Theatre will present "The Firebugs" at 8:15 p.m. April 19-21.

The play will be given in the Cirque theatre of the Fine Arts Center.

Written by the Swiss playwright, Max Frisch, the play presents a satirical attack against complacency. Using dramatic techniques as old as allegory and as new as the Theatre of the Absurd, Frisch reveals the actions and attitudes of people confronted with a powerful enemy.

Gottlieb Biederman, a cautious German businessman, discovers that the two men who have entered his home unwitted are the arsonists who have already burned down much of the town. He and his wife, congeared only with saving themselves and their home, lodge them, feed them a sumptuous dinner, and provide them with all the matches they can possibly use — all of which serves only to postpone the inevitable holocaust.

The cast is made up of experienced readers who have appeared in at least one other Reader's Theatre production at CSI. Patrick Cunningham, Rupert, plays Gottlieb Biederman. He has appeared in "Love's Ladder," "A Man for all Seasons," and "Arms and the Man."

Robert Haynes, Hansen, portrays arsonist Sepp Schmitz and Michael Guillen, Twin Falls, plays arsonist Eisenring.

Babett Biederman's wife, is played by April Curtis, Twin Falls.

The Chorus consists of Dale Danichek, Twin Falls, Douglas Garland, Jerome, Tricia Elladgo, Twin Falls, and Betty Roper, Melba, Anna, the maid, is played by Sue Palmer, Maryland. The Palaceman and Phil are played by Jim Dietz, Twin Falls.

Since seating is limited to 90, purchase of tickets in advance is recommended. Reservations may be made by calling the student information desk at the college, 733-9554, ext. 231.

Review

TWIN FALLS — Officials of the Twin Falls public library have released mini-reviews for some of the new books recently received at the library.

"Eiger Sanction" by Trevanion. With superb satiric flair, the author traces the hair-raising adventures and misadventures.

"Nation of Strangers" by Vance Packard. This book deals with an urgent problem, the massive uprooting of our society, which is making us a nation of strangers.

"5000 Nights at the Opera" by Rudolph Bing. With wit, wit, style, sometimes with anger, Sir Rudolph takes the reader into the heady world of opera and into some backstage drama the audience never sees.

"The Fearful Master" by Edward Griffin. Thoroughly documented, this is a probing study of the United Nations. Awarded with apprehension by the liberals, and with anticipation by the conservatives.

"Wind in a Whirlwind" by Feral Egan. This book is about an Indian victory in the Nevada desert near Pyramid Lake in 1860.

"An Official Rose" by Iris Murdoch. Nine major characters in this story, from the elderly widower, Hugh, to his granddaughter, Miranda. All are looking for love.

"Cork Street Next to The Hatters" by Pamela H. Johnson. The final battles between Tom and the supporters of his literary Frankenstein's monster is memorably funny and uncomfortably credible.

"Suffer Little Ones" by James H. Ryan. A fictionalized account of a murder of a child by its parents. The conclusion of this novel will make you apprehensive and concerned about children.

"The Ballerinas: From the Court of Louis XIV to Pavlova" by Parmentia Miguel. A unique chronicle of the careers, personalities, lives, loves and times of the great dancers of this period.

"Feminism: The Essential Historical Writing" by Miriam Schneir. This richly diverse collection contains excerpts from the essential historical writings of feminism. A wide range collection which traces the crucial issues of women's oppression.

Honor roll told at Carey

Current Cues

In view of the concern regarding the safety of Microwave electronic ovens, the public should be aware of what measures have been taken by industry and government to assure the consumer that with proper use these appliances are safe for home and commercial use. All microwave ranges must allow a maximum emission level of 5 milliwatts, thereby providing a minimum safety factor of 20-40 times.

During an estimated 100 million hours of microwave oven use, there has never been an injury due to microwave exposure.

The standards established in 1971 by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare allow a maximum emission level of 5 milliwatts, thereby providing a minimum safety factor of 20-40 times.

All of the 15 brands of microwave ovens tested in the recent report, were well within the Federal Safety Standards. Scientific studies on the biologic effect of microwave ovens have indicated no danger of short-term or long-term effects from low level microwave emissions. The body does not store microwaves and this type of radiation does not damage tissue.

There are many sources of radiation, including radio, TV, infrared light, etc., and we are constantly exposed to these types of energy without harm.

Unless the oven has been misused or damaged the built in safety features make it impossible to operate the microwave oven when the door is open. It is important that you follow the manufacturer's directions in using and caring for your range.

If your microwave oven has been damaged or if you wish to have it checked, the State Department of Environmental Health, Education and Welfare (DECS) will check it for you with portable radiation equipment. Call the environmentalist at your local district health department.

Some electrical toys to be banned

CHICAGO Electrical toys not meeting new Food and Drug Administration regulations under the Child Protection and Toy Safety Amendments to the Hazardous Substances Act will be banned effective September 3rd, notes a Commerce Clearing House report.

These regulations also establish standards for the safety of electrical toys which are not banned.

The standards include requirements for special enclosures of parts which carry current or voltage so that children cannot open them with ordinary household tools, noted the report.

CUH'S CONSUMER PRODUCT SAFETY GUIDE.

Toys that have heat-generating devices must be clearly labeled "HOT" on or close to the heated surface. Electrical cords must be a minimum of five feet long, except for power transformers supplying reduced voltage for operating toys, and special plugs are required for the cords.

Maximum permissible heat dissipation for different types of materials is also specified, CUH reported.

All's well that ends well

It all started out as a simple photo publicizing San Francisco Mayor's 27th annual Easter Flower show this week, but boys will be boys! Instead of watering the flowers as planned, Scott Morris poured water on 4-year-old Lori Whitney, left. The result, predictably, was an immediate indignant howl from Lori, center. All ended well, however, as Scott mollified his friend with a hug and kiss. (UPI)

Women win right to fight bulls

MADRID (UPI)—Women have won a right Spanish men thought would remain theirs exclusive forever—the right to fight bulls.

The most masculine of bullfighters fell Wednesday when a Madrid labor court ruled that a buxom blonde aficionada called Angelita can become a full-fledged matador.

María de los Angeles "Angelita" Hernandez, 25, had appealed to the court after the Spanish bullfighters' union denied her a license on grounds of sex.

The court said it saw no reason to discriminate against women and ordered the union to issue her the license that qualifies her to face the bulls with a cape and sword.

"This is not just a personal triumph, but a triumph for women's rights in general," said Miss Hernandez, a police sergeant's daughter.

'Preemies' live in hushed, antiseptic white world

NEW YORK (UPI)—The place is a hospital nursery, but missing are the usual faint of little arms and legs in cribs and the cacophony of infant cries and howling filling the air.

Instead, it's a strangely hushed, antiseptic, little white world of tiny inhabitants who live in glass-enclosed structures in a setting of tubes, wires and electronic gadgets.

The place is the hospital's Premature Receiving Center, one of 15 such facilities in New York City, and its tenants, some of whom look so small they could fit in a shoe box with room to spare, are premature babies who weighed less than five-and-a-half pounds when they were born.

They lie quietly in their incubators; as if conserving what strength and energy they might have just to stay alive in a world they entered before their time.

That world, to the "preemies," poses problems and perils the full-term baby doesn't have to, or is better equipped to face.

They need extra warmth and oxygen. They must be handled with extreme care and fed with special formulas and techniques, by tube and sometimes even with only a medicine dropper. They have a tendency to be anemic and are more prone to disease and infection.

Unlike the babies who will go home when their mothers leave the hospital, they must stay until they have attained a weight of five and a half pounds and are otherwise in normal health.

Most of them will make it, but some won't, depending largely on how long their mothers were pregnant and how much they weighed at birth.

Now, however, their chances of survival are greater than ever about 85 per cent thanks to the premature center with its specially trained personnel and sophisticated equipment.

The results of that combination often are dramatic.

A 28-week baby (the normal term of pregnancy is considered about 40 weeks), only three hours old and weighing one pound, nine ounces, was brought to the Premature Receiving Center at the Flushing Hospital and Medical Center in Queens.

Early in her stay, the infant dropped to one pound, four ounces a weight at which the chance of survival is about 5 per cent. Even babies who weigh between three and four pounds have a mortality rate of about 60 to 70 per cent. The outlook was dim.

But after 89 days of special care, the baby went home, thriving, at five pounds, five and a half ounces, having set a record as the lightest surviving infant cared for at the Flushing nursery.

Electronic monitoring devices have done much to fan the flickering "glime of life in the 'preemie'.

Among the latest is a unique mattress that sounds an alarm and flashes a warning light if the baby stops breathing.

The apnea (suspension of breathing) monitoring system is "another valuable safeguard," said Dr. John DeHoff, chairman of pediatrics at Flushing Hospital.

"Sometimes," he said, "preemies" seem to forget to breathe, possibly because they are tired after their premature entry into the world. When that happens, a nurse's gentle movement of a baby's arm or leg often is sufficient to restore the regular pattern of breathing. But there are numerous other more serious respiratory difficulties which require instant attention when alarms are given.

During 1972, Dr. DeHoff said, 135 "preemies" were received at Flushing, of whom all but 14 survived.

Talking with doctors and nurses at a premature receiving center it becomes obvious that the human element plays as important a role as technology in tipping the scales in favor of the premature baby.

Magic Valley

Sunday, April 15, 1973

Representatives of the university and the College of Agriculture met in Boise to discuss the proposed cutbacks with the Agricultural Council 10 days before the final decision was made, he said. Only 17 of 40 council members were present for the meeting, Mullins said.

"I was disappointed in the turnout," he said, "but the decision had to be made."

Vernon B. Clinton, Rupert rancher, said he felt there was not enough advance notice of the Boise meeting, Clinton, who voiced the only real opposition to the move from the 18 people present, said, "I question the quality of the decision. You have cut the heart out of what is going on in the Magic Valley."

Mullins said he had been traveling throughout the state for the past year warning people that cuts of this sort were coming. "People just didn't realize the seriousness of the situation," he said.

Those present at the Agricultural Council meeting accepted the proposals, Mullins said, and they were then taken to the Board of Regents, which approved them.

The regents declared a "state of emergency," paving the way for the program terminations and reclassifications. Mullins said he doubted if such a move had ever been made in any university in the country.

Cuts were based on such factors as high cost per credit hour of instruction, programs operating in obsolete facilities, reduced contributions of an agricultural sector to the state's economy, and expertise insufficient to make a significant contribution.

Nine programs were terminated in foliar diseases, root diseases, viral diseases, general plant and soil nutrition, dairy product development, alfalfa insects, swine and poultry management and production, and dairy nutrition.

The entire Food Science Department, established only two years ago, was terminated. High priority programs in that department will be realigned in other departments.

Terminated also were 30 research projects, five full-time extension positions and six professional research positions.

Ten fiscal year appointment positions were reclassified to academic year appointments. This means these persons will not be employed all year but will be paid for only nine months of service rather than the present 11.

"There was no political consideration as we looked at these programs," Mullins said. "We had to make the decision in order to bring our programs into line with the resource allocation," he said.

"This is going to take a lot of understanding on the part of the people," he said.

The university feels the moves will strengthen the agricultural program," Mullins said.

By backing up the present extension people with technical assistance, we can provide a more efficient program, he said. The college plans to make greater use of the county agent, he said, and get more mileage from the extension agents.

The college of Agriculture, Mullins said, is postponing some needed plant outlays because of lack of funds. This could necessitate more cutbacks later, he said.

"The College of Agriculture is still in dire need of funds if it is going to serve the public," Mullins told the group.

TF jobs lost

TWIN FALLS — Two research and two extension positions from the University of Idaho are being terminated here as a result of "emergency" measures being taken. It was learned Friday.

John Kolar, associate research professor of agronomy; Fred Gilbert, area livestock extension specialist; Gene Carpenter, assistant research professor of entomology and Gene Reinhold, area extension potato specialist, all received notices of the termination of their positions this past week.

The two extension positions will be terminated June 30 and the two research positions will be terminated Dec. 31.

The action was taken April 6 by the Board of Regents at the request of Dr. A. M. Mullins, College of Agriculture dean. The dean said the 1973-74 budget was $874,652 less than had been sought from the legislature, necessitating the "unprecedented" action.

The regents declared a "state of emergency" paving the way for program terminations and reclassifications.

TF store closure upheld

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Judge Theron W. Ward, Fifth Judicial District Court, Friday afternoon continued a preliminary injunction against a Twin Falls adult book store.

He said the injunction will continue in effect until 20 days from the time the final papers were served in the case of the State of Idaho versus Frank Trafford, Denise Atkins, the Pussy Cat II, and owners of the building in which the store is located, Western Appraisal Co.

Judge Ward took the action following testimony during a hearing on a motion by the defense to dismiss charges of lewd and lascivious conduct against the store's owners and management.

Judge Ward said at the end of the 20 days, if additional issues have been raised by the defendants, another hearing will be scheduled and if not, the injunction will become permanent, prohibiting the firm from continuing business in Twin Falls.

During the Friday hearing a number of spectators sat through the court session. County Prob. Atty. Robert Crainy introduced exhibits and testimony concerning the type of articles, publications and photographs offered for sale in the adult bookstore.

Alfred J. May and Fred Plankey represent the defendants. The store, which opened in March, has been closed the past two weeks with the temporary injunction issued by the court following filing of a complaint by the county prosecutor.

Law enforcement officers testified Friday as to the type of articles and publications obtained at the store, saying in their opinions it is pornographic.

MV solons slate talks

TWIN FALLS — Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls and Rep. William Roberts, R-Buhl, will confer here Wednesday with the State Board of Regents to discuss the recent cutbacks made by the University of Idaho.

High and Roberts, co-chairmen of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee of the Idaho Legislature.

The meeting will be at 3:30 p.m. in the office of J. D. McCollum, former member of the Idaho Board of Education.

Roberts said he felt the action the university took in terminating four College of Agriculture positions in this area as well as cutbacks in programs at the university was "premature."

The legislature appropriated a "continuation budget" for the university said Roberts. The intention was to give the university enough funds to continue its present programs, he said.

"There is money in the contingency fund to keep these programs going if proposed cuts in federal funds come through," Roberts said. If this happens, the legislature will appropriate the funds during the next session, leaving the university six months of its fiscal year for their use, he said.

The positions being terminated are "important and vital research work" for an economy based on agriculture, Roberts said.

"I can't identify the emergency," High said. "Total appropriations represent an increase of over seven per cent more than they are operating on now. The state general fund portion is nearly a 10 per cent increase," he said.

High said the legislature anticipated problems such as the university cutback by setting up a $5 million contingency fund Gov. Cecil Andrus, later vetoed the emergency fund measure.

Winds, hail batter MV

High winds, rain and hail whipped through the Magic Valley Friday afternoon, causing "freakish" damage in many areas.

The windstorm killed a cow and destroyed a cattle shed at the farm of Max Danos, south of Filer.

Danos said the storm hit his place about 3 p.m. Friday, lifting the roof off a cattle shelter and scattering tin over his yard. A milk cow was killed by a falling pole.

Cows have an instinct to seek shelter during a storm, Danos said, instead of heading for an open pasture or clearing out of the way of falling debris.

Danos said the storm brought some rain and hail.

The wind also uprooted a large pine tree near the Jay Cobb house west of Filer.

In Eden, hailstones measuring one-half inch in diameter fell in a strip of Jerome County about 2:30 p.m. Friday.

The hail lasted 10 to 15 minutes, leaving mounds of hail and slush. Hail was still visible on the ground at 4 p.m.

Mrs. Gene Lalo, wife of the Eden mayor, reported that lightning caused the town fire alarm to go off twice. Eugene Kemmer of the Hunt project said hailstones there were the size of marbles.

John Shobe, who lives six miles west of Eden, said the storm brought "an uncommon amount of hail for this part of the county."

Wendell Tarbet said it would probably be the middle of next week before beet ground would be dry enough to work. Crops were not up enough to be damaged by the storm.

Paul due funds

PAUL — Congressman Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, announced Saturday that the Farmers Home Administration has approved a loan of $10,000 to the City of Paul to complete funding needed for improvement of its sewage disposal system.

The loan, combined with assistance from the Environmental Protection Agency and the State of Idaho, will enable Paul to add a waste treatment lagoon to its present system.

Hansen stated that the loan will be provided in terms of 40 years for repayment at 5 per cent interest under the rural community facilities program.

Tot sign-up set at Eden school

EDEN — Registration is scheduled Thursday at the Eden school for all children in the Valley School District who will enter the first grade this fall.

Easter vacation at noon Thursday and will not have to report back to school until the morning of April 24.

Jerome orders emblem

JEROME — Jerome County commissioners have passed an ordinance making it mandatory that all mobile homes display an emblem or sticker showing they have been assessed.

The emblem or sticker will be issued by the county assessor and shall be furnished at county cost to the owner or occupant of an assessed mobile home.

"The emblem or sticker must be visible from the public roadway.

The ordinance went into effect April 2 and provides that it shall be unlawful and punishable as a misdemeanor by fine of not more than $300 or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed six months, or both, for any person to occupy or own a mobile home in Jerome County without complying with the new ordinance.

Fund drive set for Lincoln pool

SHOSHONE — A fund-raising drive will be conducted April 19 for the Lincoln County swimming pool project.

The drive has been set because of information received from the Idaho Parks and Recreation Department indicating that proposed presidential cutbacks in federal programs may place federal participating funds in question if local participation lags.

The Rotary Club will sponsor the all-out door-to-door fund raising project, Myron D. Johnson, committee chairman, said.

It is hoped that through this effort to gain necessary pledges, the project may be presented to the Technical Assistance Advisory Commission in May.

The Idaho State Parks and Recreation board wants assurance that the recreation district has at least 60 per cent of its share of the project cost and reports on hand before approval is made.

Plans are also made for a no-host dinner at 5:30 p.m. at the Legion Hall, prior to the drive set for 7 p.m.

The pool fund has increased to about $12,435. It is estimated that another $12,000 will be needed in funds and pledges before May 4, Johnson said. Profit from the recent boxing meet was $1,584.40.

The pool, as planned, would be 75 by 32 feet with both a one meter and three meter board. It will be three feet deep at the shallow end and 10 feet at the deep end with girls and boys dressing rooms and eight foot high link fence.

A spectator area is planned adjacent to the pool outside the fence.

Bike, car mishap injures TF boy

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls boy was treated and released from Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital Friday afternoon after he was struck by a car while riding his bicycle.

According to police accident reports, Darrell Chris Borlase, 9, was crossing on his bicycle from the northbound to the southbound lane in the 700 block of Filer Avenue East when he was struck by a car driven by Carl Frederick Kobel, 63, Twin Falls, which was traveling south on Filer.

Apparently, Kobel did not see the youngster until the impact.

No citations were issued. The boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Borlase, 475 Buchanan, Twin Falls.

Preserve trees, Rupert aide asks

RUPERT — Rupert Councilman W. P. (Bill) Whitton collected nearly 200 signatures on a "Petition to Save the Trees" here Friday morning.

Two weeks ago, the Rupert City Council voted to allow removal of the trees lining Eighth and Seventh streets on the courthouse square. Whitton cast the only opposing vote.

People are always cutting down trees and never replacing them, Whitton said.

By widening Eighth Street, Whitton said, the city will create a traffic bottleneck. Widening a block of the street without changing the rest would cause traffic problems, he said.

"People around here didn't have a chance to know what was happening," Whitton said. The petition requests further hearings because, said Whitton, there has been no public hearing.

When the decision was made at the City Council meeting, Councilman George McDonald and Clark Cameron stressed the need for more parking facilities and easing of traffic problems in the area.

Problems were expected to increase with the completion of the new city-county law enforcement building in mid-summer.

Councilman Bill Strasser, who first spoke out against the loss of the trees, voted for their removal at the meeting. "I guess we've got to have progress," he said.

The petition in part says, "to remove the trees will destroy a beautiful landmark of the county. We feel the additional parking is not needed at this time since there is to be a county parking lot in the near future to adequately handle the parking problems."

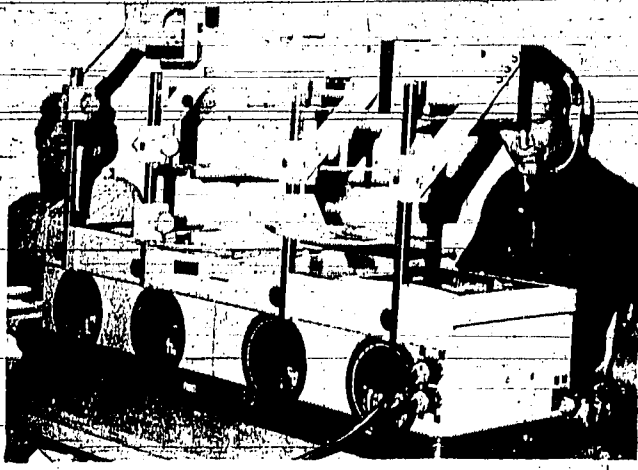

Whitton hopes to present the petition, which asks for a public hearing on the issue, to the city council at its regular meeting Tuesday.

Warning issued

SHOSHONE — Vandalsism at the Shoshone Post office the past few weeks has sparked warnings from postal officials.

Post master Bill Haux said if the vandalism continues it will be necessary to close the building at 4 p.m. and on holidays and Sundays.

Simulator aids 'indoor' fire fights

Conditions simulated

FOUR OVERHEAD projectors with large 8 by 10 transparencies are operated by Bill Williams, Sawtooth National Forest fire control technician to simulate changing fire conditions. Jim Reid, helicopter operator at left, observes.

TWIN FALLS — Sawtooth National Forest personnel are now fighting fires "indoors" with the aid of a "fire simulator."

The simulator, resembles a movie theater and projects large photo slides of flaming forest areas through a screen.

Four overhead projectors can expand the flames and change the simulated fire conditions.

Phil Cloward, fire control officer, and Bill Williams, fire control technician, who direct the operation, say the method is highly effective and far less costly than practical experience in the field.

"The fire simulator training program costs about $1,500 a day for a group of 30 trainees," Cloward said, "and it could run as high as $100,000 a day on the actual fire lines."

In a briefing at the start of the simulation exercise, the fire fighters are given the location and other preliminary information generally available at the time a fire is reported. The area is then flashed on the screen to show terrain. Additional overlay projections put the fire on the mountain side or other indicated site.

Emphasis in fire fighting is on bringing the fire under control while it is still small.

"There are times when this is not possible and we find ourselves fighting an out-of-control fire. We simulated this in the recent training session and the crews accepted the situation and brought in needed equipment and manpower to bring it under control on schedule," Williams said.

The training session just completed involved a simulated fire in High Creek on the Fairfield district and another by Lake Fork Springs on the Burley district.

As the fire progresses, the simulator team feeds information to the men being trained in control work. They change wind, weather, temperature and other conditions with the fire flaring up, spreading, smoke or starting new fingers on the screen.

The fire fighters, working at

'Fire' spreads

INDOOR FIRE fighters, Dave Kimpton, Tom Farr and Mel Sanderson, from left, observe the fire spreading up canyon on a screen and take action on paper. Their orders and decisions are later evaluated in a critique session to determine effective control.

their desks and on paper only, order equipment, men and new tactics as needed.

A recent simulated fire on Lake Fork Springs was scheduled to be out after burning 650 acres of timber and brush. The efforts of the crews were so effective that it could have been extinguished after burning only 600 acres, Cloward said.

Men fighting the simulated fires become so involved that they react as though actually in the field, Williams said. This makes the exercise a good psychological test as well as one of general knowledge and know-how, he added.

Those receiving the training are rangers, assistant rangers, fire control officers, dispatchers and others expected to serve in administrative capacities should a fire occur in their area of the forest.

The hand crews and similar workers do not attend as they would be under the direction of the administrative division in any fire.

Cloward said the fire simulators are used nationally and he feels they are the best training available at the cost.

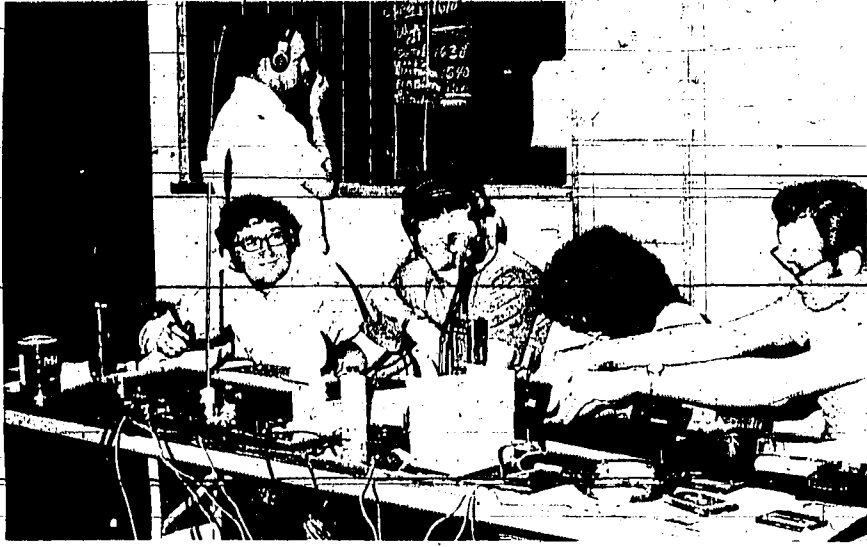

They are expensive, he said, but they pay big dividends. Last year there were 68 fires on the Sawtooth National Forest but they covered only 193 acres, indicating all were under control in the earliest stages.

Cloward said the fire fighters must take other things into consideration which are also introduced through the simulator training.

"Sometimes it may be better for the protection of resources to use two hand crews and take a little longer than put a loader on a steep, fragile slope," he said.

He said these and other techniques used by the trainees are evaluated, in critique sessions which follow each simulation training program and every fire.

One factor training cannot alleviate is the cause of fires. The highest cause is still man's carelessness, Cloward said.

HEW survey shows lag in desegregation progress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government released figures Thursday showing that school desegregation slowed since 1970 compared with the preceding two-year period.

In 11 Southern states, 44.4 per cent of the region's 3.1 million black pupils were attending predominantly white schools last fall, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) reported Thursday in its third national survey on the subject. This was an increase from 39.1 per cent in 1970.

The increase compared with the figures from 1968, when 18.4 per cent of the schools were desegregated, to 1970, when 39.1 per cent were desegregated.

The figures showed that 9.2 per cent of the South's black pupils attended 100 per cent minority schools last fall. That compared with 14.1 per cent in 1970 and 68 per cent in 1968. The Southern figures covered Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

"A similar pattern of marked increase between 1968 and 1970, with continuing but lesser gains in later years, is shown for the six border states and the District of Columbia," HEW said. These states are Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, Oklahoma and West Virginia.

In 11 Northern and Western states, HEW reported "slight progress" in shifting black pupils to majority white schools during the last two years.

It said that throughout the continental United States 36.8 per cent of the 6.6 million black pupils are in predominantly white schools, up from 33.1 per cent in 1970 and 24.1 per cent in 1968.

Nearly 2.5 million black pupils attended majority white schools last fall, an increase of nearly 1 million since the first survey in 1968 and an increase of 222,733 since the fall of 1970.

"We believe that further progress toward the elimination of racial isolation in public schools can best be made by the federal government continuing to work with local officials, as the President has often said, in a spirit of cooperation rather than coercion," HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said. The survey covered school districts with enrollments of 3,000 or more. All districts desegregating voluntarily or under court order and a sampling of smaller districts in Hawaii was not included.

Chinese listen to USSR criticism

TOKYO (UPI) — Chinese delegates boycotted a speech by South Korea, but sat and listened to criticism of China from the Soviet Union at today's session of the Economic Conference for Asia and the Far East (ECAFE).

An Chih-yuan, leader of the 14-man Chinese delegation, rose from his seat and stalked from the meeting room at the Tokyo Prince Hotel when Korean Foreign Minister Kim ByongShik was recognized.

Three other members of the Chinese delegation wearing charcoal gray Mao-style uniforms followed An from the hall. The four were the only members of the Chinese delegation in the room at the time.

They returned when Kim finished his speech. The South Korean foreign minister did not refer to the Chinese.

It was China's second walk-out in two days at the 29th general meeting of ECAFE, the United Nations' regional arm in the Far East.

Thursday, An led his delegation in a walkout from a policy speech by the American-aided Lon Nol government of Cambodia.

To the surprise of many observers, An and his band of Chinese Foreign Ministry officials sat quietly through the Soviet speech. On Thursday, China had accused the Soviets of seeking "hegemony" in Asia, through Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid Brezhnev's Asian collective security program.

"We have a proverb in Russia that he who speaks into the wind might have to wipe his own face," Soviet delegation leader A.F. Nesterenko said.

Without mentioning the Chinese by name, Nesterenko said that "only a sick imagination can have the idea" that Brezhnev's proposal was aimed at Soviet domination of Asia.

Scores of news photographers in the hall were braced for a third Chinese walkout, but it never came.

S. Viets, France to upgrade relations

(SAIGON (UPI) — The Foreign Ministry said today South Vietnam and France will upgrade their diplomatic relations to the ambassadorial level, bringing official ties between the two countries to their highest peak since 1965.

France announced a similar upgrading of relations earlier this week with North Vietnam but today's announcement means virtual recognition of President Nguyen Van Thieu's regime as the governing power in South Vietnam. It apparently rejects Viet Cong claims to represent the South Vietnamese people.

"The government of the Republic of Vietnam and the government of the French Republic, in a desire to develop the friendly relations between the Vietnamese and the French peoples, have decided to re-establish diplomatic relations as of April 13, 1973, and to exchange ambassadors between the two countries," the ministry said.

South Vietnamese and French relations took a downward turn in 1965 when the late President Charles de Gaulle advocated neutrality for all Indochina—the equivalent at the time of a pro-Communist stance.

JEAN MARSHALL honored

Question: I have two dogs and they both love hamburger raw. Is it all right to feed a little to them?

Answer: Why not? I know several people who seem to be thriving on steak tartare. I often find that raw hamburger gives dogs worms. I'd like to point out that it takes a worm or its egg to produce another worm, kind of like rabbits, chickens, or guinea pigs. Almost all the meat you buy in a store is federally inspected. If it's fit for human consumption it ought to be safe for a dog.

Question: Our 9-year-old rat terrier puts up such a fight when we trim her top nails. She has arthritis and it hurts to hold her foot to trim the nails. She is a house dog so they grow pretty fast.

Answer: There might be several reasons why he's licking you. 1. He may like the salt on your skin. 2. He could have tonsillitis, a problem very common in poodles. 3. He may just be the kissing sort. You'll have to cool his ardor by firmly discouraging him every time he snuggles you and putting him down or away from you briefly. He should soon get the idea to cool it if he wants your company.

Can dogs be declawed like cats and tigers or is there something that can be put on like on calves hoofs? I would appreciate an answer.

Answer: I would certainly be opposed to removing a dog's claws, for anything but a darned good medical reason. The dog's nails are not retractable like the cat's and their removal is a major amputation with alteration of bone structure in the foot.

Neither would I recommend the "dehorning" creams sometimes used on calves. I think there's an easier way. Why don't you simply take the dog to your veterinarian and let him prescribe a tranquilizer which would be safe for the dog whenever a pedicure is in order?

Question: I have a problem. I have a sweet little poodle 2 years old. I can't stop him from wanting to lick a person all the time. He will stop for a while when you scold him, but in a short time it's the same thing again. He is lovable and wants to be near you all the time. How can I break him?

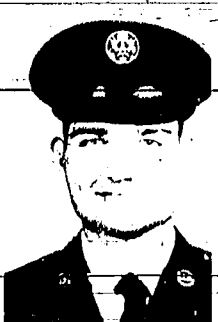

Answer: I would certainly be opposed to removing a dog's claws, for anything but a darned good medical reason. The dog's nails are not retractable like the cat's and their removal is a major amputation with alteration of bone structure in the foot.

Why overeat?

NEW YORK (UPI) — What makes people overeat? Nutritionists say there is no simple, single reason. But one authority, Dr. Morton Glenn says, "some dieters feel a psychological need for self-punishment." In a Food and Fitness booklet put out by Blue Cross he explains his view. "These people are annoyed with themselves and may express their anger by doing something to hurt themselves."

Boise man has new mobility

BOISE (UPI) — It's 47 inches long, weighs a little more than 300 pounds, goes only 10 miles per hour — but it means the world to Chief Deputy Attorney General Clarence "Clancy" Suter.

The rig, affectionately called the "bug" by some and the "miniature dune buggy" by others around the Idaho Statehouse, may not sound all that exciting. But to Suter it means continued employment. "It's a whole new ball game," Suter 40, said with a smile. "If it wasn't for the machine I would have quit my job."

mobility and most of all his walk he considered quitting his job. "In one of the last issues of Life Magazine there was a picture of Gov. George Wallace riding a small cart," Suter said. "I contacted a friend of mine to see if such a thing was available."

His friend, who is familiar with such items, put Suter in touch with the Everest Jennings Co., which produces the Mark 20 — a motorized wheel chair that looks more like a small golf cart.

On Feb. 19 the machine arrived in Boise and Suter began a new life of mobility. Just this week he made his first trip from the Statehouse to a downtown bank. Such a trip must be mapped out ahead of time to make certain there are no high curbs in the way.

"I admit I have become a hater of curbs," Suter said. Each day a member of the statehouse maintenance crew delivers the small cart to the state parking lot and removes the key. A short time later Suter arrives in his car and, using a duplicate key, starts the machine which is powered by two car batteries.

The trip into the Statehouse is easy and the cart is driven into an elevator and to his second floor office.

Little man made it to big leagues

By CALVIN MURPHY
Houston, Texas

It was just before I entered my sophomore year at Norwalk, Conn., High School that I somehow realized I wasn't going to grow much taller. And it really hurt.

You see, from age 15, basketball was my one love. In fact, I felt that if I was going to achieve anything in life besides being just another black kid hanging around the block, it would come from basketball.

I was the smallest of six kids in our family but I figured someday I would sprout up. The older I got though, the less I grew. I felt short-changed.

Certainly I had been prepared for it. When I started playing organized basketball at 9, I was barely 4 feet tall. I stuck with it because I just had to compete.

Our family was not well-off financially and I knew that basketball, as unlikely as it seemed, would have to be my route to college. When my friends learned I was serious about trying out for the high school team, their reaction was, "Man, you're going to get killed. You're just too tiny."

Their remarks stung me so much that one day during the summer before I entered the tenth grade, I went and talked to an old friend of mine, the Rev. James Leath at our family's Bethel AME Church. Over the years he and I had gotten together many times.

Now, as I walked in to see him, feeling very sorry for myself and deciding I was too small to do anything, he talked to me about God. Rev. Leath told me not to mope, but to pray. "Pray to God not to gain inches, Calvin," he said, "but pray to make the most of what you've got."

I thought that and then took stock of myself. I wasn't big, that was for sure, but I knew I had good speed and my ball-handling moves were about average.

Perhaps, I thought, if I worked on this quickness, my size would not be so important. I began to picture in my mind the way I would use my speed to get by taller players.

By the time school opened, I had a spot on the high school team. I amazed myself more when I went on to become all-state three years and make an all-America team in my senior year.

All during those three years I never quit building up my best points.

My high school success led to an athletic scholarship at Niagara University in upstate New York. Many mornings during those four college years I would get up early while others slept and work out on my own in the school gym.

In my senior year the San Diego Rockets of the National Basketball Association picked me on the second round of the professional draft.

My dream was approaching but suddenly I began to see that it was far from reality. I was now a full-grown 5 foot 9.

At the start of that summer I had second thoughts about the whole thing. Would I be the biggest bust ever? Then, Rev. Leath's words came back to me one day: "Make the most of what you've got."

I went out and practiced like I never had before. And always, I concentrated on my quickness and moves with the ball.

For all my work though, I was in an unfamiliar and depressing place — the bench — when the season began. Then, after about two weeks, my big moment came.

We were playing the Chicago Bulls. Halfway in the game I was sent in. I gulped as I looked up at the opposing line-up. They seemed like sequoias.

I was stunted as the ball landed in my hands. I nervously came down court only to be face to face with the Bulls' towering center. Suddenly I found myself scooting past his bido, leaving him flat-footed. Up I went toward the basket with the ball. Two points!

The big center looked down at me stunned. I finished the game with 17 points.

Soon after that, I became a regular. Giants like Wilt Chamberlain and Lew Alcindor found they couldn't ignore me on the court. Much to my pleasure I had also won the respect of my teammates. They began looking for me to score points in clutch situations.

Much of my boyhood dream has already come true, but I find myself with a strong desire still — to go back to Norwalk and work with underprivileged black kids.

There's a special kind of young person there that I'm interested in — the one who feels he can't be somebody because he's got a disadvantage, a lack of size or lack of something else.

I know I can help him because he's the guy I used to be — before I learned to stop wishing for something I didn't have and, thanking God for what I did have, concentrated on making the most of it.

BURLEY — The annual Burley Chamber of Commerce banquet will go "speakerless" this year.

The dinner, set for Thursday at 7:15 p.m. at the Ponderosa Inn, will feature singer-entertainer Danny O'Neil and the Johnny Lister Trio of Sun Valley.

O'Neil began as a boy soprano on WWI radio in New Orleans, later branching out to several radio series, some television and recording work and entertaining.

Early in 1968 O'Neil recorded an updated version of "Danny Boy" which was well received throughout the country.

Dayan says guerrillas will be attacked first

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said Friday Israel has adopted a new policy of striking at Arab guerrillas before they can attack rather than waiting to retaliate.

He told a television interviewer that the armed forces will not necessarily confine their targets to guerrilla objectives but may strike at countries that harbor and encourage them.

Dayan was responding to questions about Tuesday's raid into Lebanon, where Israeli commandos killed three top guerrilla leaders. He called the strike "exceptionally successful."

Announcing the adoption of a policy of launching preemptive strikes against the guerrillas, Dayan said:

"In the future, Israel will act against the terrorists or organizations, insofar as it is possible, rather than in response to terrorist attacks. "There could well be future cases in which Israel would have to act against a country as a country because of its responsibility for acts of terrorism."

He added that "we cannot take Lebanon of its responsibility as a state for the acts of the terrorists who conduct their operations from its territory, and we do not intend solely to act against the terrorists personally, as we did in the last raid on Beirut."

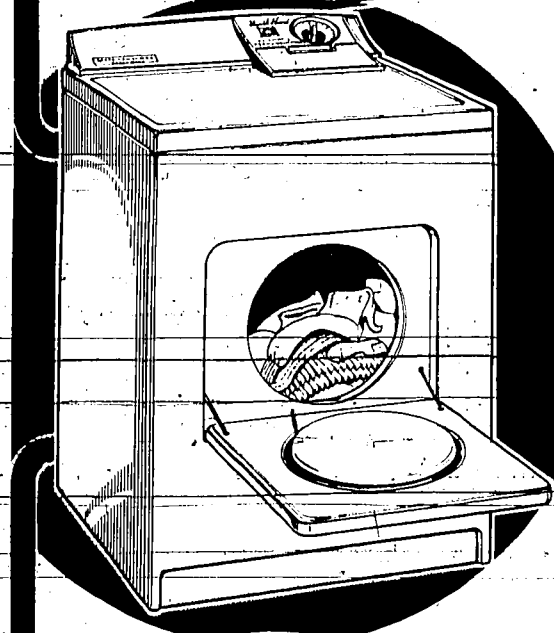

While acknowledging that documents captured in Beirut had led to the arrests of guerrilla suspects in Israel and Israel-held territory, Dayan said he could not confirm that attacks planned for Israel's 25th anniversary party had been thwarted.

"This should worry the Arab leaders in the territories who see themselves as the actual loaders of this public," he said.

Skylab space station ready for final check

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The Skylab space station will be moved from its assembly building to the launch pad Monday to start final preparations for the beginning of America's next manned spaceflight project May 14.

The orbiting laboratory, as roomy as a small house, is mounted on the two-stage Saturn 5 rocket that will propel it into a 270-mile high orbit.

The whole assembly, 334 feet tall and weighing 560,000 pounds, will be moved upright the 3 1/2 miles to the ocean-side firing site by a massive, eight-tread tractor.

Skylab is to be launched unmanned at 1:30 p.m. EDT May 14. Its first crew, astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz, will take off at 1 p.m. the next day in a modified Apollo command ship.

The astronauts will not be here to watch the rollout because they are scheduled to undergo a physical examination Monday morning at the Johnson Space Center in Houston. In the afternoon, they will practice checking out earth resources observation equipment in a Skylab trainer and then the pilots are to receive a materials flammability briefing in Houston Monday night.

A crowd of spaceport workers and several congressmen is expected to be on hand to watch the black and white space machine begin its six-hour transfer at 7 a.m. EST.

The Skylab astronauts' Saturn 1B rocket is already on its launch site, Pad B, 8,715 feet from Skylab's concrete takeoff apron at Pad "A" of Complex 39.

Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz plan to live and work aboard Skylab for 28 days, returning to earth June 12 in the command module that carried them into orbit. A second crew is to be launched Aug. 8 to spend 58 days in Skylab and a third crew will take off Nov. 9 for the second and final 56-day mission. Skylab will be abandoned in orbit after the last pilots leave Jan. 4.

As soon as Skylab reaches the firing pad Monday, engineers will put it through a brief series of tests and then prepare for fueling operations.

More than 200,000 gallons of high-grade kerosene are scheduled to be pumped into the first stage of the Saturn 5 rocket on April 27. Then the space machine will be put through its final prelaunch test, a countdown rehearsal set to start April 29.

A similar countdown test is scheduled to begin April 29 on the 224-foot rocket and spacecraft combination that will launch the Conrad crew. The actual countdown for both Skylab and the astronauts' ferry ship are set to start May 9.

Project plans for year set

SALMON — Marie Mahaffey has made up her mind about a 4-H veterinary science project this year.

She's going to raise 4-H lambs to show at the Lemhi County Fair and will milk a goat named "Goatie" to feed three of her lambs.

"Goatie" recently gave birth to triplets, two males and a female, but they will be given away, "all to good homes."

Besides a source of supply for milk, "Goatie" also is used for practice in goat tying events at rodeos which Marie participates in.

Marie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Mahaffey.

Potato use gains listed

BOISE — Potatoes processed in Idaho from July, 1972, through March, 1973, totaled 35,937,000 million hundredweight, up 515,000 cwt from the same period a year ago.

The information is contained in a report issued by the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, Boise.

According to the report, of the total processed, 32,630,000 cwt. were Idaho grown potatoes and 3,289,000 cwt. were produced in other states.

Potatoes from the 1972 crop processed in selected major processing states — Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, Idaho, Washington and Oregon — through March 31, 1973, amounted to 21,296,000 cwt., compared with 21,169,000 cwt. for the same period a year earlier.

Stocks of all potatoes held by growers, dealers and processors in Idaho on April 1 totaled 27 million cwt.

Disappearance of the 1972 crop through the end of March was 21.8 million cwt. This is the first estimate of April 1 stocks so comparative stocks and disappearance data for other years are not available.

Growers, local dealers and processors in the fall producing areas hold an estimated 57.5 million cwt. of potatoes in storage April 1.

Disappearance from the 1972 fall crop of 234.1 million cwt., from harvest to April 1 was 176.6 million cwt. Disappearance during March was 25.5 million cwt. In February disappearance totaled 23.6 million and in January 26.2 million cwt.

Processing usage of potatoes from the 1972 crop to April 1, 1973, in Maine, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Michigan, Minnesota and North Dakota totaled 71.8 million cwt., compared with 71.2 million cwt. for the corresponding period last year.

KIELLOGG, Idaho (UPI) — compared to an average flow of The U.S. Geological Survey reports the flows of many of the streams in the area are dropping rather than increasing with the usual surge of spring runoff.

The Coeur d'Alene river at Enayville is running at 1,290 cubic feet or about half its normal flow, and it is dropping. The St. Joe River at Calder is running 1,350 cubic feet as USGS officials said Coeur d'Alene Lake storage is also well below the normal for this time of year. The St. Maries is also reported below normal flow by the survey.

Detroit drills Cleveland 8-2

DETROIT (UPI) — Jim Perry, backed by Gates Brown's three-run double, pitched a seven-inning and returned 13 batters in a row at one point to make his first start for the Detroit Tigers in an 8-2 conquest of the Cleveland Indians.

Perry, acquired in spring training from the Minnesota Twins for a minor-league pitcher, took a four-hit shutout into the ninth inning but gave up a single to designated hitter John Ellis, a double to Charlie Spikes, and a single to Dave Duncan. Brown's three-run double clinched a four-run fifth and Aurelio Rodriguez led off the sixth with his first home run of the year as Detroit broke out for ten hits in its best offensive performance of the young season. The Tigers were hitting .156 before entering the game.

Cleveland got single hits in each of the first three innings but didn't get its fourth until Jerry Kenney opened the eighth with a ground single up the middle.

Reds shutout San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Johnny Bench's fourth inning solo homer and last-inning relief help allowed Roger Nelson to pitch the Cincinnati Reds to a 9-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants Saturday, ending San Francisco's five-game winning streak.

McCoovey and a single by Pete Rose. The hit extended Rose's batting streak to eight games.

The Cincinnati infield reeled off three double plays to help Nelson out of budding jams with Dave Rader twice hitting into inning-ending twin killings.

Nelson, who came to the Reds from Kansas City in a winter trade, scattered seven hits before he was relieved with two out in the ninth as he gained his first victory in the National League.

Singles by Tito Fuentes and Chris Speier with two out in the ninth chased Nelson and veteran reliever Clay Carroll came on to get the save. He pitched Willie McCoovey to fill the bases but then got Ed Goodson on a tap back to the box to end the game.

Baltimore trounces Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Doyle Alexander pitched a five-hitter and Earl Williams drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single to lead the Baltimore Orioles to a 5-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday.

The victory was the fifth in six games for Baltimore.

Royals shutout White Sox 3-0

CHICAGO (UPI) — Southpaw Paul Spittorff gave up only second inning single to Mike Andrews and a ninth inning single to John Jeter Saturday as he hurled the red-hot Kansas City Royals to a 3-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Wood's second wild pitch of the inning and scored on a single by John Mayberry.

Many would dispute Motta's description of Bulls play

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — There are many who would dispute Chicago Bulls coach Dick Motta's description of his team's style of play, which has lately been compared with football and hockey in the amount of contact involved.

"We didn't change our name," Motta said. "We just executed better and Jerry Sloan helped at forward."

Another man who was all over the court was guard Norm Van Lier, who had a career-high playoff performance of his own with 26 points and 10 steals. Van Lier also held the team's leading scorer, to four points.

Former Red Wings coach will speak

DETROIT (UPI) — Johnny Wilson has called a Monday press conference to "reveal some of my feelings" while the Detroit Red Wings conduct their search for his successor as coach of the "National Hockey League team."

"Whoever gets the job, I wish him well," Wilson said without comment Saturday when contacted by UPI. "Coaching is a tough job and he'll have his hands full."

Wilson was fired Friday by the club's General Manager Ned Harkness and owned Bruce Norris, making him the fifth coach with a "long-term handshake" for the job to be vacated since 1963.

Greatest moment in baseball history may come when Aaron sets homer mark

NEW YORK (UPI) — Summon baseball's heroes of the past to recreate the great moments in the game's history and such tableaux as the following would flash before us again.

Aaron, 39, of Mobile, Ala., and continue to play as long as he has a realistic shot at setting the new record.

"Game conditions determine whether or not you swing for homers," says Aaron. "I must admit, however, that I started to swing more consciously for homers last season than ever before in my career. I have a chance to top the most respected record on the baseball books and I'd be foolish not to try to do it."

"I originally thought I would retire at the end of the 1973 season," he now admits. But it would be ridiculous to retire if I needed a dozen or so homers to set a new mark. I'll keep trying as long as I have a reasonable chance."

Blessed with a phlegmatic personality as well as his physical talents, Aaron shrugs off the pressure built up by the fans and the news media. It may be recalled that Maris was deeply affected by such pressure in 1961, withdrew more and more from the fans and news media and retired prematurely at the end of the 1966 World Series.

"The fans and the news media are okay and I get along with them pretty good," Aaron says. "For every fan rooting against me, there's one rooting for me. And the news media just has to understand that I can't say 'yes' to every request. Like everybody else I need some time to myself."

Montreal slips by Pirates

MONTREAL (UPI) — Tim Lincecum and Ron Fairly homered in the eighth inning as the Montreal Expos erupted for five runs Saturday afternoon to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates in their home opener.

The original home opener of Friday, was postponed because of cold weather forcing the Expos to open their local 1973 season one day late.

Montreal trailed 3-1 going into the eighth inning when Lincecum tied the score 3-3 after Ron Hunt tied off with a single. Fairly then followed with his one out homer off Pirates' loser Nelson Briles, who dropped his first decision of the year.

Al Oliver dropped Ken Singleton's hard drive to centerfield and was charged with an error as Singleton went all the way to third base and then scored.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

"I'm tired of Billy bein' the oldest. Why couldn't God have done ME first?"

A mama porpoise in search of her strayed offspring makes a noise unlike any she ever makes otherwise. Half the citizens over age 60 wear full dentures. It's a sad fact that two-out-of-three youngsters in the U.S. cannot read. Perhaps you didn't realize 17 out of every 20 wigs sold hereabouts are imported. Figure 12 percent of all major surgical operations—the most common of same, in fact—are for hernia.

Center of the surveyor's world is a small marker just 3.6 inches in diameter on the privately owned Meadors Ranch in north central Kansas. That's point zero. At least, it is to the National Ocean Survey, formerly called U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey. All bench marks and boundaries relate to it, or—When the old boy with the transit shows you where your property line falls, he's really telling you just how your place is situated in relation to that spot in Kansas.

FEET HURT
—That physical complaint most commonly voiced by citizens nationwide, according to the pollsters, has to do with their hurting feet.

Largest land animal native to Antarctica is a wingless little beast something like a housefly with a tooth of an inch long.

Also bear in mind, please, it was in Fort Wayne, Ind., where in 1893 the first baseball game was played under electric lights.

And 18-year-old girl in good physical condition ought to be able to execute a standing broadjump of at least 6-foot-7-inches. Such was the claim of the President's Council on Physical Fitness. Try it, young lady.

SMOOTH TONGUES
Wolves have smooth tongues. Credit that peculiarity to the numerous legends about wolves that bring up human babies in the wilderlands. A mama wolf, washing such an infant, wouldn't hurt it, the lion's boys contend. But the tongues of lions and tigers are so rough they would injure a youngster's tender skin. So that's why you hear no legends about big cats that raise human babies.

This wall plate bore a picture of Martha and George Washington. Remember it? A highly prized collector's item a generation ago, it was you saw it all over. Suddenly, requests for it in the souvenir shops abruptly stopped. Why? Nobody knows.

Circle Aug. 31, 1973, on your calendar, suggests baseball star Paul Richards. That's when Henry Aaron, providing he stays healthy, will beat Babe Ruth's homerun career record of 717.

Horoscope

Carroll Righter

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, APRIL 15, 1973
GENERAL TENDENCIES: One of your best days in a long while to use the oncoming Full Moon's influence—to get together with every person or association of importance to you. Reach a new agreement on joint aims and rules to be observed in your future alliance. Full speed ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20) Those plans you have made with another can now be most beneficial. State your aims. Situations arise that show you your true position with others. Get a good night's rest.

TALURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you talk over with fellow workers the work ahead of you, you can coordinate your energies more wisely. Good friends who have been helpful to you can now certainly appreciate favors from you. Avoid one who is troublesome.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get in touch with good friends who really understand you and who can help you reach a fine understanding. You are able to gain personal aims that have been difficult before. Avoid one who bickers.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can get into that civic work now, even if it is Sunday, that is vital and can bring you much acclaim as well. Do charitable work also. Add appreciably to your image.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) After doing whatever intrigues you, attend service, be off to see good friends and relatives and enjoy the social side of life. Some new associate can give you the information you need now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Your actions today can certainly help improve your financial position far into the future, so start thinking along such lines early. Get your home more attractive, clean and orderly. Take it easy in p.m.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get into the social whirl and make the new contacts that are worthwhile; enjoy the company of those you have known for some time. You understand better how to gain your finest aims. Grow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Whatever work you do now along civic lines can bring fine results later. Contact bigwigs you know. Make sure you do not break any rules and regulations that apply to you. Become a pillar of your community.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Springtime brings fine new ideas that are most inspiring and you can get a whole new set of activities started. Get busy meeting right people socially. Avoid one who is not very friendly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Your strong intuition can be most helpful to you in carrying through with plans you have started, so use them. Get along better with all types of persons—learning can be most happy with mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Situations arise that will be helpful in coming to better terms with others, so handle them wisely. Make the right plans now for that trip you have in mind. Show others you are not selfish.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Go over your record books even if it is Sunday, and try to get everything clear in your mind before you contact others concerned tomorrow. Impress mate with the fact that you are very happy and want to continue the relationship.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY—he or she will be one of those young people who can become a real bigwig in life provided the finest academic education is given to the opportunities ahead will be recognized and seized at the right time. There can be much happiness in dealing with others as well as in marriage, for there is a very understanding nature here. Sports are a natural. Religion is important also for guidance.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

"Wouldn't that beige go well in the family room?"

This question of color often dominates the way a family buys carpeting, yet it's the worst possible way to go about the job. The color may look great in the family room now, but in a couple of years after the drubbing it gets from the children, you may need a new carpet.

What's often overlooked is the fact that some carpets are made to take heavy wear and some are not. To get the best carpeting for your money, you should try to imitate professional buyers. Some suggestions:

1 - Specifications should be carefully listed. For example, how long do you plan to live in the home? If you'll only be there a few years, why waste money on expensive, wall-to-wall carpeting you can't take with you?

Will the carpet be in a heavy traffic area? Will it be exposed to the dirt and abuse of young children? Will the carpet be in family or dining rooms where spills are likely?

These are some of the key questions that should be answered in your specification list.

2 - Pick the fiber to match your needs. Nylon is the toughest and is one of the least expensive. It's best used in family rooms and children's rooms (especially boys).

The drawbacks: Nylon raises considerable static electricity and may need more frequent cleaning because it tends to pick up dirt. However, it's one of the easiest fibers to clean.

Acrylic fibers (Acrilan, Crestan, Orion) has a rich feel and looks somewhat like wool. Prices for wool carpets have gone out of sight. It's hard to soil acrylic carpeting, and stains are easy to remove.

On the negative side, it's not as tough as nylon and is more expensive. Also, acrylics sometimes suffer from browning stains that come up from moistened backing. These stains are easy to remove but are annoying. Best places for acrylic are living rooms, dining rooms, adult bedrooms. Polyester fibers (Kodel, Dacron, Fortrel, Eneron) have bright, clear colors with a rich look. They don't stain easily and are easy to clean.

Negatives: The bright colors tend to show dirt, and the yarn isn't as long-lasting as nylon or acrylic. Polyesters sometimes tend to pill or fuzz up.

Olefin such as Herculon and Marvex are inexpensive, resist stains exceptionally well and are easy to clean. For this reason, they're best used in kitchens.

The negatives: Olefins suffer somewhat from pilling and fuzzing and have a low melting point. A quick scrape of a leather heel can cause enough friction to form a thin, burn line.

3 - A carpet's weave can also decide its use. Shag weave carpets are not good for heavy traffic areas because they tend to mat down. Closely woven, short-pile shags hide dirt well and are good for children's bedrooms and family rooms. Don't get the longer, looser woven shags. They're a nightmare to maintain.

Plush weave carpets show colors well and have a rich texture, but they have "shading" problems (like rubbing velvet the wrong way). They're best used in low-traffic areas such as formal living rooms and adult bedrooms.

Level loop weave can take hard wear and is good for kitchens and family rooms. Random-Shear combines loop and cut pile which helps hide dirt. The high-low loop style is a variation that's good for medium traffic areas such as dining or living rooms when there's no family room.

Closely woven, dense weaves with a twist in each pile strand will last the longest. If you can easily see the backing when you twist a piece of carpet, the pile is too sparse and won't last long.

Chinese leader 'rehabilitated'

HONG KONG (UPI) — Teng Siao-ping, disgraced former Chinese Communist party secretary general, is alive and well and, according to Peking reports, back as a deputy prime minister.

Now probably about age 73, Teng turned up Thursday at a state banquet given by Premier Chou En-lai in Peking. The official New China News Agency said he has been rehabilitated as deputy prime minister.

He was a victim of the "cultural revolution" that swept China in the 1960s and was denounced by Chairman Mao Tse-tung for "dereliction" of duty along with President Liu Shao-chi, who has not been seen since 1966.

At the time of his downfall, Teng was accused of "reactionary, revisionist counter-revolutionary policies" and charged by the Peking newspaper Tung Fang Hung ("The East Is Red") of spending too much time playing bridge at a club in Peking.

He played for up to eight hours a day, the newspaper said, only taking time out to put his "stinking" signature to documents.

A Peking dispatch from the West German news agency DPA quoted a Chinese source Thursday as saying "notwithstanding Teng's bad errors in the past, Chairman Mao Tse-tung wants to give every man who recognizes his mistakes a second chance. Mao believes Teng has understood his errors."

Teng was secretary general of the party's Central Committee, a post since abolished, and secretary of the then all-powerful Standing Committee of the party's Politburo when he fell. He was a vice premier as well.

It was Teng who accompanied Mao to Moscow in 1957 for talks with the late Nikita Khrushchev. In May 1958, Teng was named as a "close comrade-in-arms" of Mao, about the highest accolade any leader can receive.

Adult bookstore?

QUESTION: Do you think an adult bookstore should be allowed to operate in Twin Falls? Do you think the closure of such stores is an infringement upon personal freedom?

C. H. Eriksen, Twin Falls:
"No, absolutely not. I don't think there's anything wrong with closing down obscene literature and things like that. I don't think they've got any right to push that onto the children."

"I can't answer that. I don't know if they should be allowed to legally. I don't think it would benefit anyone. I think it's a detriment to them as far as that goes."

Riley Burton, Twin Falls:
"I feel fundamentals of free press and free speech are absolutely basic to our society, but I think somewhere there is a limit. My feeling is -- and I think the courts have pretty well come to this conclusion -- that if there is no redeeming social value to it, they can limit it."

"It's a very difficult question because once you close down one bookstore, where do you stop? My idea of pornography may not be someone else's idea of pornography."

"Before I'd go around limiting freedom of speech, I'd want to make sure it was of some value to the community in general."

Walter Milton, Twin Falls:
"Well, personally I don't believe in those kind of books. They're there for those who want them and there for those who want to leave them alone. I'm against those books. I don't think they should be allowed at all."

"No, I don't think so, I think they ought to be outlawed myself."

Gilbert Russell, Twin Falls:
"You bet I do. I feel if people work for their money they've got a right to spend it any way they see fit. It's up to people at their own discretion, if they like that sort of thing. The same bookstore is open in Boise. I don't know why it can't be open here."

"Yes, I do. If I wanted to go in there, I feel I should have the right to. It's really nobody's business but my own."

Rich Butler, Twin Falls:
"Yes. If people want to go into it, they will; if they don't, they won't. It's not hurting anybody as far as I'm concerned."

"Right. Quite a bit so. The people that don't even want it are going to stay away from it anyway. People aren't going to buy anything they don't want."

"It makes me feel limited as a citizen. We're supposed to be living in a free country and yet this guy can't run a business. If he can make a go of it, people must want it. Freedom doesn't seem like freedom if they can close this shop."

Rudolf Barchas, Twin Falls:
"Yes. I don't believe in restrictions of First Amendment rights. In closing the Passycat II the court exercised extreme powers because the bookstore was not given its day in court, and this in effect amounted to a prior restraint on freedom of the press."

"My feeling is that if a person finds it offensive, he shouldn't go in. I wonder if violence in movies isn't a lot more offensive."

Valley man writes priest's 'love letters'

By DAVID HORSMAN

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Three years ago Herb McCabe was a Roman Catholic priest and Sandy Weinrich was a young widow. They were both "ready for a relationship."

Today they are man and wife and will soon move to Herb's first parish. He is now a Lutheran minister.

The story of their courtship, recorded in letters and poems dating from Dec. 29, 1969, will be available in bookstores next month.

Minnesota with a degree in dental hygiene. In 1963 she married Donald Weinrich, a dental student who later set up practice in Rochester, Minnesota. She worked with her husband for nearly two years before he contracted leukemia. He died in 1968.

Sandy decided to "make a break" in an attempt to get a "fresh start" in life. She sold her home in Minnesota and moved to Denver, Colo., where she worked and enjoyed the state's outdoor recreation.

Herb and Sandy first met the priesthood was not a disillusionment with it," he said. "It was because I wanted to fulfill my life in ways that I was not permitted as a Catholic priest."

"My prime interest in leaving was not in order to get married. Marriage was a consideration, perhaps a secondary or third consideration.

"But I think the primary consideration was that I wanted to have an opportunity to direct my life myself and have a broader scope of activity in teaching, in writing and in just exploring various aspects of life without having to answer to superiors for each move I made."

"Very often when I wanted to do things," he explained, "I was not permitted to because of my vow of obedience and my superiors' feelings that I would be a detriment in other areas."

"I had an inclination toward more independence and freedom," he said.

The former priest holds no grudges against the Roman Catholic Church. In fact, he considers Catholicism and his new faith, Lutheranism, quite compatible. "I have never officially left the Roman Catholic Church, nor do I feel it is necessary to declare in any formal way that I am no longer a Roman Catholic," he said.

The "Church of Christ encompasses all Christian denominations," he said, and allows a wide variance of specific beliefs. He said the Lutheran and Roman Catholic Churches are especially close in theological aspects, including the three major creeds — baptism, the Lord's Supper and the ministry.

Asked his opinion of celibacy as required in the Catholic priesthood, Herb said, "I would encourage the Roman Catholic Church to keep celibacy because a priest who wants to get married can join another denomination."

He said the ecumenical movement bringing churches closer together will allow a priest to leave Catholicism and still maintain his Christian beliefs.

"Rather than the priest insisting that the Roman Catholic Church change its whole attitude, the only requirement is that he change his attitude and find fulfillment in another denomination that is still strongly Christian and still closely related to his basic Catholic training and beliefs."

The McCabes are currently living in Denver, where Herb has been doing supply work as a vicar while awaiting final word on his candidacy for the Lutheran ministry.

His mother recently confirmed that he has been accepted into the ministry, but deferred to Herb when asked where his new parish is located. The special love shared by Herb and Sandy will undoubtedly contribute to their success in every calling.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb McCabe

Two publishing houses, Concordia and Pyramid, will release the book concurrently under the titles of "Love Letters of Herb and Sandy McCabe" and "Love Letters of a Priest," respectively.

Herb, 37, was born in Wendell and raised in Twin Falls.

After graduating from St. Edwards elementary school and attending one year at Twin Falls Junior High School, Herb entered the seminary of the Redemptorist Fathers and Brothers in Oakland, Calif. He was ordained a priest at age 26.

After ordination, he acted as vocation and public relations director for his Catholic order in Oakland. Two years later he was sent to Loyola University, Los Angeles, where he earned a master's degree in communication arts.

During later work at the Catholic archdiocese in San Francisco, Herb first considered the possibility of "at least taking a leave of absence from the priesthood." He subsequently requested the leave and was sent to Tucson, Ariz., where he was employed by the University of Arizona as a teacher, writer, director and producer in the radio and television department.

Sandy was born in Fargo, North Dakota. She graduated from the University of Christmas Day in 1969 at a ski resort, ironically named Purgatory, near Durango, Colo.

Herb came up and stuttered a little opening, Sandy said. She later wrote her mother that she had had "a third of a date" with Herb, who also escorted two of Sandy's friends during the weekend of skiing.

Herb was the first to write after the two separated. He wrote a "burn-burner" of a letter, according to Sandy, that opens the book of their correspondence. From Dec. 29, 1969 until June 12, 1971, when they were married, their relationship was carried on primarily through "zip-coded intimacies" — both humorous and serious — about the people they met, their faiths (Sandy is a devout Missouri Synod Lutheran) and their convictions.

They did see each other during the courtship. Sandy visited her grandmother in Tucson and Herb made return visits to Denver, where he lived in Sandy's house while she stayed with girlfriends.

The dispensation from Rome allowing Herb to leave the priesthood came only a week and a half prior to his marriage in 1971. His petition for dispensation had taken nearly two years for approval.

Meanings featured on 'wish'

"Make A Wish," ABC News' entertaining and informative children's television series, delves into the many meanings and associations of the words "sand" and "ear" Sunday.

On the program host Tom Chapin sings and plays the "Make A Wish" theme song plus two original musical compositions about the subject words.

he could be a sand castle, a sand dune, a sand box, a sand lot, a sand bar or even a love letter in the sand.

It could be the Sahara Desert, on which the Egyptian pharaohs once built the Great Pyramids.

The sands of time have certainly shifted since the pyramids were built, and over the years man's architecture has been changed and refined as well.

For a look at the relationship of architecture to geology, "Make A Wish" takes youthful viewers to Cosanti in Scottsdale, Ariz., to meet with Paolo Soleri, one of the great architects of the 20th-century, who explains the concept behind his "Nuclear City."

Finally, Tom remembers that if he were sand, he could also be a sandwich, a mouth-watering treat invented by the Earl of Sandwich back in 1769.

Turning his attention to ear, the series host reels off a string of possibilities: If he were a car, he could be made in Detroit, which would mean he would probably be a sedan, a convertible, a coupe or a limousine.

A STAR without a car seems unusual, but it's true of Cicely Tyson, who pauses on a bike ride in New York's Central Park. Her performance in the film "Sounder" put her way up.

Beatle special Monday

Paul McCartney's father and stepmother will be seen with the former Beatle in Paul's first television special, "James Paul McCartney," on the ABC Television Network Monday.

Paul and his wife Linda took over the Chelsea Reach-pub at New Brighton, near Liverpool, for scenes with old friends who knew Paul long before he achieved international fame.

"I've got nearly 40 relatives living in the area," claims Paul, "and the number increases yearly." When the news got around that Paul was hosting a television party, the crowd trying to get into the pub was so large that the police and 15 bouncers were needed to control them.

Old friends and relatives had been invited, but there was an additional surprise for Paul when Gerry Marsden of Gerry and the Pacemakers, another musician who had helped to establish the famous "Mersey sound" of the '60s, turned up.

Rhino loses survival bid

CHICAGO (UPI) — The rhino is losing his fight for survival. There can be no doubt, according to Encyclopedia Britannica, that this group of perissodactyls is about to disappear forever.

The family rhinocerotidae, which has survived for 30 million years, has been reduced to five species, all in danger of extermination.

In former geologic periods, rhinoceroses inhabited both the Eastern and Western hemispheres but now are restricted to tropical Africa and Asia.

Broadcast journalism fellowship planned

ABC News has established a fellowship program in broadcast journalism for Asian journalists at the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism, it was announced today by Elmer W. Lower, President of ABC News.

The ABC News Memorial Fellowship, Mr. Lower said, honors the memory of two dedicated ABC News Saigon cameramen, Terence Khoo and Sam Kai Faye, who were killed July 20, 1972, while on assignment covering a pitched battle during the Vietnam war.

Announcing the establishment of the fellowship, Mr. Lower said, Terry Khoo and Sam Kai Faye rendered outstanding, loyal and courageous service to the ABC News Saigon bureau for nearly seven years, often under the most hazardous conditions.

"It is ABC's hope that this fellowship in their memory, providing the opportunity for Asian journalists to study at one of the world's finest universities, will encourage more newsmen of their caliber to enter the field of broadcast journalism.

'Fire Chariot'

Firefighters get 'tribute'

By KEN FRANCKLING

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The fatherly gleam in Roger Majorowicz' eyes is the only thing in his studio that comes close to outshining his mirror-polished bronze tribute to the lore and history of fire engines. Working on-and-off for a year in an old stone warehouse, the head of the Sculpture Department at the Maryland Institute College of Art created "Fire Chariot," a one ton, 12-foot high sculpture that represents 150 years of fire engine history in Baltimore.

The almost-completed work, which Majorowicz describes as "mechanical with humanistic and figurative ideas," will be mounted in front of a new fire house-pumping station downtown.

"If you look hard and are crazy enough to believe it, that's where imagination comes in—it appears that the chariot is coming around the Bromo Seltzer Tower (an adjacent landmark) out of the station and heading for the street," he said.

The work was paid for through a Baltimore law mandating that one per cent of all city building construction funds go for art. Ninety per cent of the art allocations go for original works for city public schools.

The piece centers around a watertank—smoke swirling out the top—a globe and an American eagle. All are adapted for the horse-drawn American La France Steamer of 1916, according to Majorowicz, a sculptor for 12 of his 42 years.

Delving into the history of the fire regimes at the Fire Museum of Maryland, he also found an emblem of three naked ladies on the 1819 Jeffries-Nuttall, a hand-drawn pumper.

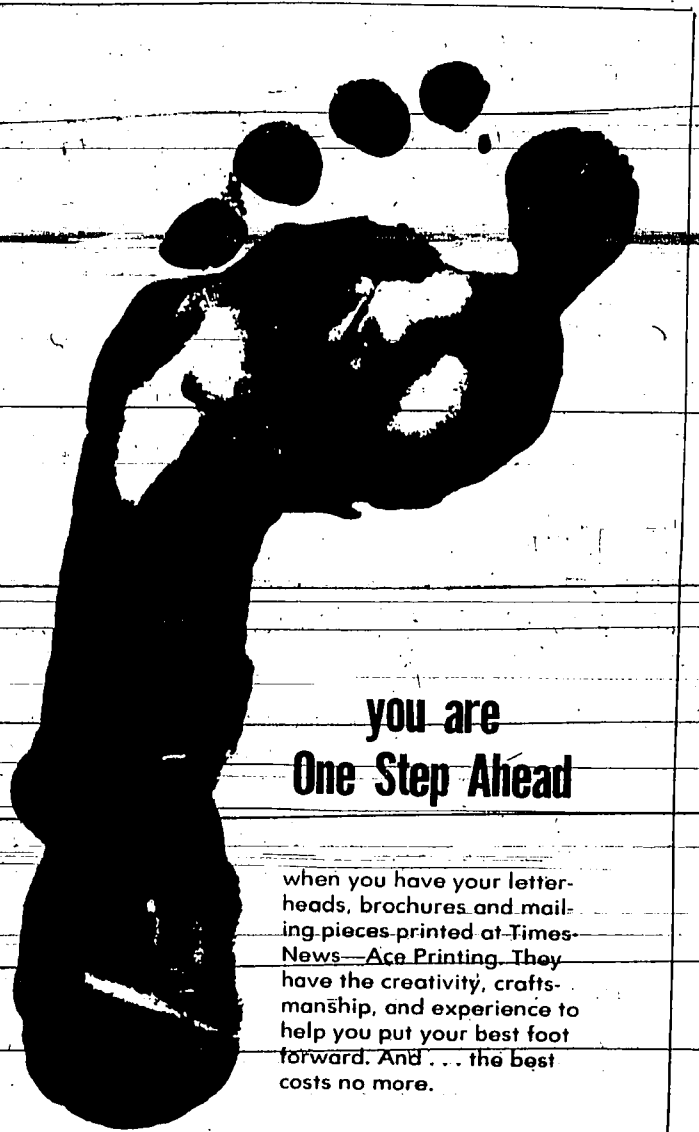

The honeycomb grill on the front of the work comes from a steam-driven Seagrave. The hose connector on the front is from a 1917 Ahrens-Fox.

"It's the exciting image of a fire truck rushing down the street with the men's coats flapping."

Realizing how children love to climb, he kept the kids in mind with a saddle-type seat fashioned between the steam tank and the wing.

The sculptor and assistants put 2,000 man-hours into "Fire Chariot." Majorowicz will get $10,000 from the city but said the work cost him $12,800 to build.

Anti-pollution devices idle in Poland

By HOWARD A. TYNER

WARSAW (UPI) — Clouds of choking, slate-gray dust mushroom from the factory's twin chimneys, then drift down to form a thick, chalky layer on nearby apartments, streets, lawns and people.

Inside the factory—a cement works not far from Warsaw—stands nearly a million dollars worth of dust elimination equipment, enough to reduce the noxious clouds almost to nothing.

Yet the anti-pollution devices remain idle. Plant officials are unwilling or unable to find someone to run them. Sometimes they just don't bother to switch them on.

Problems like that—lack of properly trained personnel, improper use of machinery, lack of interest outside specialist circles—torment Polish environmentalists who are trying to prod this country into the age of ecology.

"The ideas, the concepts are understood, the equipment sometimes is even there," one Western expert told UPI. "But while Poland is ready for pollution control, it is not clear whether pollution control is ready for Poland."

Pollution is an immense problem here. One third of the country's water supply is too dirty for any use. The Odra and Nysa rivers are biologically dead. The Vistula is heavily contaminated.

Sewage disposal plants are in such short supply that neither Warsaw nor 1042 Poland's too largest cities—have any at all. As a result, about 500,000 cubic meters of raw sewage from Warsaw alone is dumped into the Vistula every day.

Factories in the populous Silesian coal-steel region around Krakow, Katowice and Wroclaw spew tons of industrial waste into rivers and belch clouds of eye-stinging smoke into the air.

"Take the worst level of air pollution in the world and the Katowice area will be very close to it," was how Prof. Wlodzimierz Michajlow, an environmental expert at the Polish Academy of Sciences, described it.

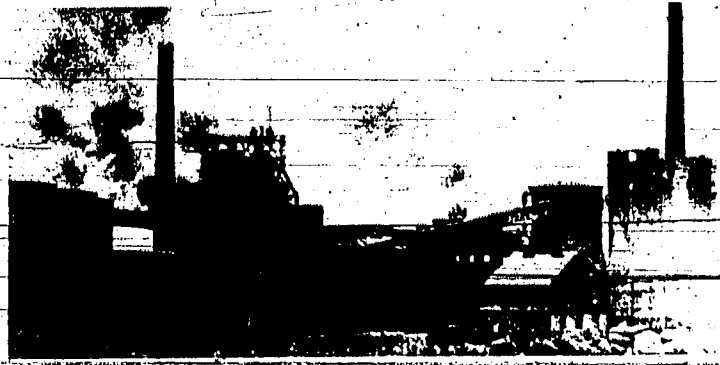

So bad is the Katowice air that construction workers building a 300-foot high suspension bridge recently had to be brought down from their perch every 40 minutes to breathe fresh oxygen.

But Poland has not ignored environmental problems. Last year the government launched a pollution control program many Western experts said was the best in Eastern Europe.

A Ministry for Regional Planning and Environmental Protection was set up in April, 1972, and given a 17 billion zloty ($800 million) budget for the next five years. Only half that much money was spent on environment in the 1967-72 period.

The use of DDT was banned last summer. Plans were announced for construction of 800 sewage treatment plants by 1976. Parliament began action to codify and strengthen anti-pollution legislation. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) gave Poland a $2 million grant for the study of pollution problems.

But concrete results have been slow. Change often is anathema to Poland's sluggish bureaucracy. Production quotas must be met. Allocations for anti-pollution equipment are hard to come by.

Computer dating goes to the dogs

NEW YORK (UPI). — As you might have anticipated, a computer is finally going to the dogs.

Quite literally. This is no debacle, it's a business.

Is your dog an easy-going, unhaughty, home-happy, music-tolerating, good-bone-loving (to chew on), obedient, friendly, courteous, kind, goofy sort of insouciant Saul? Of course.

So why not find a mate to match these elements of character, idiosyncrasy, and temper output? So that the offspring will be just right.

A dog's life nowadays is edgy with such refinements as dog hotels, dog cemeteries, and dog psychiatrists. It remained for Marc R. Rapke, a young entrepreneur, to come up with the dandy idea of hooking a computer to the canine libido. It had to come a doggy databank, which is also a dating bank.

Rapke, who is winding up work on a master's degree in business administration, was subjected in college to a mass-mail solicitation by a computer dating service. Rapke had worked with computers as a former physics major and in his business courses, and so the idea was born. Why not start a dog computer mating service? Rapke got financial backing and has started the Canine Mating Service Bureau here. Right now he's working on building up a registration file of dogs, their personalities, size, coloring, blood line, unusual characteristics, eccentricities, and general temperament.

The profit for Rapke is in providing the service and charging $15 for owners of male dogs to register and $5 for females.

"This will be a combination computer dating service, personnel service, and mail order business," Rapke said. "We will facilitate the operations aspect. Instead of people going and looking at other dogs, we have our cards."

"You know what you're getting before you meet the other dog. The buck stops for us at referring, putting them together. The owners, and the dogs, take it from there."

One of the sparks that set off the new business came when Rapke took a look at the dog explosion in the country. The population has tripled in 16 years. In 1957, he says, there were about 13 million dogs in the United States, 4 to 5 million of them purebred. Now the estimate is 36 million, about 12 million of them purebred.

The concept of the Canine Mating Service Bureau is as a match-up service for the owners of pedigreed dogs. But there is, there seems, a resurgence of popularity of the mixed breed.

"Particularly, now, we see this return to the mutt," Rapke said. "A lot of people have this infatuation with the mongrel. The most popular right now is the cockapoo."

A cockapoo, of course, is half cocker spaniel and half poodle. A huapoo (pronounced wai-poo) is a cross between a Chihuahua and a poodle. And you can go on into peekapoo (Pekinese and poodle) and probably even a pirschep (Doberman pinscher and German shepherd).

Why the doggy population explosion? Certain social factors.

"A lot of people are lonely, more people have more disposable income, and many are afraid of crime and want a dog for protection."

"This is where the computer comes in. Suppose you are infatuated with chihuahuas but still are afraid of crime. You tell the computer your problem, let it choose mates, and come up with a ferociouschihuahua.

Device 'sniffs' hijacker

MEMPHIS (UPI). — A scientist at Stanford Research Institute has developed a method of detecting hidden explosives that could spot potential skyjackers without a physical search.

Dr. Sidney Benson, who was awarded a patent for the invention, said the suitcase-sized device could detect minute traces of explosives clinging to a small container or to the chamber of a gun that had once been discharged. It would also detect residues of explosives on a person's body or clothing many days after he had come in contact with the explosive.

Benson envisions his device being linked to a type of vacuum cleaning system to check boarding passengers. A vacuum hose would be passed over the clothes, skin and hair of each passenger and the air sample would be fed to a device to detect the presence of nitric oxides, common components of most explosives.

Luggage could be batch-processed in a similar manner, Benson said, either indirectly as it passed along a conveyor belt or by sampling the air of the baggage room before items were moved to the aircraft.

The scientist said the detection device would cost about $2,000 to mass produce.

Buhl likes kindergartens

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News writer

BUHL — "If we didn't have kindergarten we would have to gear down our entire primary curriculum."

This opinion of Buhl school Supt. Dan Mabe is perhaps the most impressive comment on Buhl's public school kindergarten.

About 95 per cent of the youngsters living in the district attend . . .

It is one of the few school districts in Magic Valley to operate a kindergarten as part of the public schools.

Wendell, too, is completing its second year of kindergarten classes. They were financed through the federal Public Employees Program which is being terminated. Wendell trustees are now asking for a 2.15 mill levy to continue the classes also.

But Buhl is the only Valley community to have operated kindergarten continuously for seven years as part of the school district program. The classes have been financed through Federal Title I funds of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, which was designed to provide local school districts with compensatory educational programs for disadvantaged pupils.

Although the Buhl kindergarten classes are not compulsory, about 95 per cent of the youngsters living in the district attend, according to records of Mrs. Lucille Heyer, elementary school curriculum supervisor and one of the most enthusiastic backers of the program.

The superintendent's belief that if the 5-year-olds do not have the "boost" from kindergarten experience, first grade teachers will have to begin teaching at a lower level, plus the voluntary attendance record indicate the high degree of acceptance the classes enjoy in this community.

The Buhl district also has used Title I funds for other things, such as a physical fitness program, teacher aides and food service to disadvantaged children, but administrators, along in Magic Valley, apparently were convinced that kindergarten is a valid "compensatory educational program" for lower income children.

But the benefits apparently are not limited to disadvantaged children.

"If middle and upper income children also gain from such classes funded to help the lower level group, this does not bother me," says Supt. Mabe.

The Buhl administrator was at Meridian when Title I funds became available in 1965 and said they were put to use in that school system also for kindergartens.

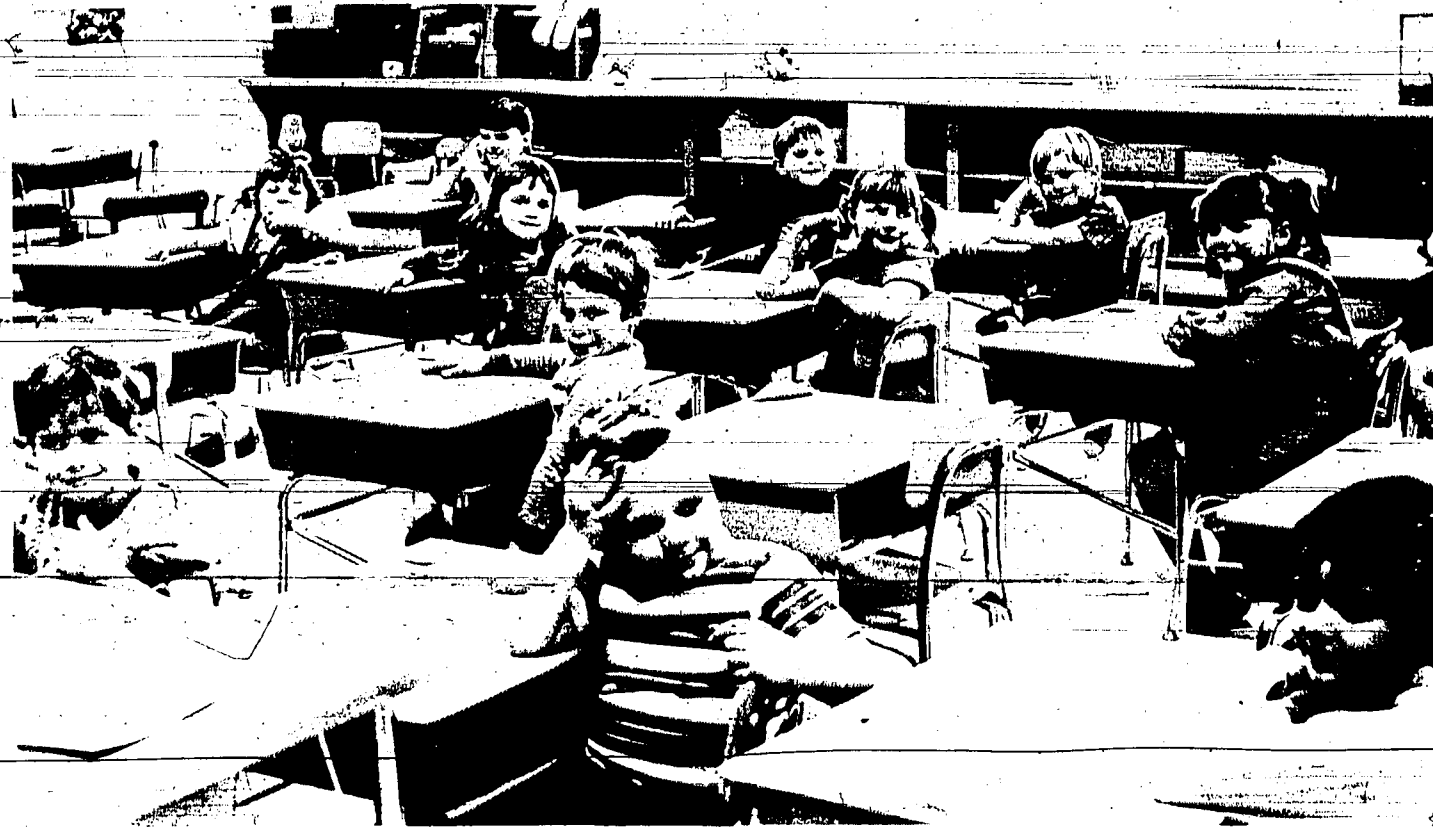

Much of the credit for the launching of the kindergarten as an integral part of the public school system in Buhl goes to Rex Engelking, superintendent at that time who was "sold" on the idea.

One obstacle to kindergartens — lack of space — also was no trouble for Buhl. The district's new elementary building, now about 11 years old, had two classrooms empty and waiting for the pre-school tots.

And there was little reason for faculty members to oppose the plan since the funding was from federal money and not from general district funds usually used for salaries.

Commenting on teacher opposition to kindergartens when they fear it will mean dividing regular budgeted district funds, Supt. Mabe said he had "no intention of taking kindergarten money from teacher's salaries."

So with these two major hurdles — which in many school districts effectively block any implementation of kindergarten classes — removed, the Buhl classes began in January, 1966.

What are the results? "First grade teachers now spend up to six weeks less time preparing their students in the readiness program, leaving that much more time for actual learning," Mrs. Heyer says.

The other elementary faculty members favor the kindergarten because they recognize that the heaviest curriculum is in the first grade.

This means, Mrs. Heyer says, the first grader is faced with more change and adjustment than in any other grade in school. He has to learn how to follow directions, get along with his peers, develop work study habits as well as acceptable social behavior.

So, when there is no kindergarten available, children have to have time to learn most of these things in the first grade, the supervisor says, leaving less time for academic progress.

The first semester of the Buhl kindergarten has what the supervisor terms a "typical kind of orientation program" geared to listening and development of auditory perception. The children play games and have activities where they learn to listen and follow directions.

Then in the second semester the formal reading and arithmetic readiness instruction begins. Children are expected to know the sound of letters of the alphabet and be able to write numerals from 1 to 10 and have a working concept of these figures.

Since there are no public standards for these private schools, they can be of either good or bad quality. But the primary objection is that their curriculum is not always related to that of the public school.

Out of the four rooms of first graders at Buhl, two with the top students can begin immediately with formal reading. This would be impossible without the kindergarten, Mrs. Heyer says.

A third room has extended reading readiness while the fourth first grade room, usually including migrant and non-kindergarten children, must spend considerably more time before tackling reading.

There are two kindergarten classes. The morning class runs from 9 to 11:30 a.m. while the afternoon session is from 1 to 3:30 p.m. Both classes have a milk break and sometimes light lunch. Children living in the country who attend the morning class may ride to school on the bus and their parents pick them up at noon, while the "afternoon" children must be brought to school, but can return home via the school bus.

Parents are given their preference as to whether their children will attend morning or afternoon classes, Mrs. Heyer said.

The yearly kindergarten enrollment over the years has averaged about 85, Mrs. Heyer said. There have been only two to five youngsters known to live in the community at the time who have not been enrolled.

The school recruits its kindergarten students, Mrs. Heyer says, in about the same way any elementary school publicizes spring enrollment for next fall's first graders.

Registration slips are sent home with all elementary students and a meeting called for all parents who have kindergarten age children, where they fill out enrollment cards and are given information on the program.

Children also can be enrolled later up til the time the classes begin, Mrs. Heyer said.

She emphasized the excellent response from parents, recalling one time some years ago when it was thought federal funding might be cut. At that time parents indicated they would be willing to pay some or all of the expenses necessary to keep the program going.

Mrs. Heyer is worried now about funding for the kindergarten next year, but Supt. Mabe feels confident the classes will be able to continue. He is exploring all avenues and trustees have discussed possibility of asking for a one-mill levy.

While this would not in itself pay for the kindergarten the superintendent feels with this additional local money, he would be able to manage.

Buhl will lose about $9,000 next year from the Public Employees Program which is being terminated in August, but, like other districts in Idaho will receive considerably more state funding. Kindergarten Teachers were paid from the PEP program.

The Buhl kindergarten classes have varied in length, from five to seven months, depending upon the amount of money available. Supt. Mabe says he is undecided about what is the ideal length of time kindergarten classes should be in session.

"Some say 100 days is good, others 170 days are better," Supt. Mabe said. "In Buhl we have begun along in October or November, as soon as we knew the money was available."

But whatever their length, nearly everyone involved in the Buhl kindergarten program seems to agree it is a good thing for the school pupils and teachers like.

One problem in starting kindergarten in Idaho school districts is sometimes posed by the long establishment of one or more private kindergartens in a community. Buhl had only one small private class of about 18 pupils.

Since there are no public standards for these private schools, they can be of either good or bad quality. But the primary objection is that their curriculum is not always related to that of the public school.

Supt. Mabe said he has no quarrel with private enterprise if it can do the job in this field, but "would like to have my finger on what is taught" so that the kindergarten program can be dovetailed into the primary grade curriculum.

He also thinks it is very important to hold kindergarten classes in the same building where the children will attend first grade, so they become used to the facilities.

Holding kindergarten classes in a church or some other building outside of the regular school loses part of the value, the official feels.

But, despite the fact next year's financial situation is not entirely clear, it seems apparent that kindergarten has proven its worth in this community and undoubtedly will remain an established part of the school system.

Half the first graders begin immediately with formal reading

Green Thumb

George Abrams

These metal coffee cans that are ordinarily discarded are wonderful for growing tomatoes. They can be used in two ways:

1. Cut top and bottom out of cans. When the tomato is set in the ground, place the can over the plant, leaving about 4 inches above the ground.

Next, place a wooden stake INSIDE the can at the time of planting. The can keeps out slugs and cutworms.

Do not put the stake on outside as the slug will climb up the stake. For some reason, they won't climb up the metal can.

Another advantage of using the cans: Plants can be set out early and if weather turns cold, simply put the plastic top on the can, and you have a miniature hotbed to keep plant safe from frost.

You cut a hole in the top of plastic and slide it over the stake.

2. Some gardeners cut the bottom out, and slip the plastic "top" over the bottom. The cans are filled with good potting soil to within an inch or two from the top. Seeds are planted and when plants are large enough for outdoor planting, the rest is simple.

You dig a hole in the ground, about 12 inches across and a foot deep. Slip the plastic lid off the bottom and gently push the plants out the bottom, into the soil.

As a safeguard against cutworms, you can push the can down into the earth, leaving 3 or 4 inches sticking out. Gardeners tell us that the cans hold moisture to the plant, unlike peat pots which tend to dry out.

In fall, coffee cans can be crushed for recycling or used again next year.

A reader who likes beet wine passes his recipe for making it: Wash four pounds of beets, cut as quickly as possible into small pieces, put into cold water, allowing four pounds to the gallon.

Boil until tender and all color is extracted, strain, and to every gallon of liquid add three pounds of sugar, the juice of a lemon, a small piece of ginger root, and a few cloves, plus a handful of raisins to each gallon.

Stir well until sugar dissolved and when cold, place in cask, adding a piece of toasted bread covered with yeast. Bung tightly when fermentation ceases.

A reader tells us he planted squash seeds under a plastic ice cream container which serves as a tiny greenhouse. Then he removes the "hothouse" and trains his vines to climb or run on a wooden fence.

In between the squash plants he raises lettuce, kohlrabi, radishes and beets, taking good advantage of the small space he has.

Good idea! We hope to hear more from our gardening friends. Send your tips along so other readers can share them.

If you make your own sauerkraut or buy it, here's a recipe for a wonderful chocolate sauerkraut cake: 2 1/2 cups flour, 1 tsp. baking soda, 1 tsp. baking powder, 1 1/2 cups sugar, two thirds cup shortening, 3 eggs, 1 1/2 tsp. vanilla, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1/2 cup cocoa, 1 cup water and 1/2 cup sauerkraut chopped and drained.

Sift together flour, baking soda and baking powder; set aside. Cream sugar and shortening, add eggs, mix well. Then add vanilla, salt and cocoa. Mix well.

Alternately add flour mixture and water. Add fruit. Bake on greased or floured pan.

Eight inch square pans, 375 degrees or 45 minutes. Thirteen inch by nine inch pan, 375 degrees for 35 minutes.

If you spray your trees and shrubs with a pesticide, and it rains, will it wash it off? Once a spray mixture containing insecticides with a spreader-sticker has thoroughly dried on the foliage it can for all practical purposes be considered irremovable.

You probably wonder how long it takes foliage to dry. This depends on how thorough you spray, plus weather conditions. If you spray, put enough on up to the point of runoff from the leaves. If this is done on a dry, sunny slightly windy day, foliage could dry in one-half hour.

If done on a cloudy, still, humid day, it takes several hours for foliage to dry. So, if it rains hard after you spray, before foliage can dry, the pesticide will wash off.

But if it rains hard after the material has dried on foliage, the pesticide is effective against insects.

I once had a problem with bean beetles - until 22 years ago! I started planting soybeans in companion with snap and lima beans and have had good control since.

Soybeans have 37 per cent protein in them, and we think it's a good substitute for meat. I might add for ease of hulling ripe soy beans, drop them in a pan of boiling water for 2 to 5 minutes, then immediately chill in ice water, then proceed to hull them.

China tombs found

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP
UPI Senior Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The name of Prince Liu Sheng will become as familiar as that of King Tut when Peking sends abroad in May the fruits of its post-war archeological binge designed to give the New China a pride in its past.

The discovery of the rock-hewn tombs of Liu Sheng, brother of Han Dynasty Emperor Wu Ti (141-87 B.C.), and his consort, Tou Wan, in 1968 in Hopei province was only a rumor in Western scientific circles until last year. They were said to be the first Chinese imperial burials of antiquity to be found intact, just as Tutankhamen's tomb was the only undisturbed pharaonic burial found in Egypt.

The extent of the tombs riches now has been disclosed in the first Chinese published, English language art book to be distributed in the United States since World War II. "New Archeological Finds in China" (Great Wall Press, Hazelwood, Mo.) lists 2,800 funerary objects which were buried with the jade-encased bodies of Liu Sheng and Tou Wan.

Color photographs of the Liu

Sheng treasures indicate they are of equal artistic merit to the furnishings of Tut's tomb, but Western experts will get a chance to judge for themselves when an exhibit of 380 archeological finds spanning 5,000 years of Chinese cultural history opens next month in Paris.

The show travels later this year to London, then in 1974 to Washington, New York, and possibly several other American cities. Peking will send the prize nuggets of its recent digs including the dust of Princess Tou Wan herself shrouded in what looks like a modern apres-ski suit.

Since China's ambitious program of road, railroad and dam building began in 1949, all peasants, workers and members of the People's Liberation Army (PLA) have been given rudimentary training in how to spot accidentally unearthed artifacts. This network of "spotters" has led to many important excavations by professional archaeologists, who enlist the aid of the masses, especially PLA personnel, in the heavy work involved.

PLA soldiers, who later received "Certificates of Commendation," noticed two piles of rock chips at the base of Lingshan Mountain, indications of old excavations further up the rock face, and reported them to authorities. The Institute of Archeology authorized a dig. It took two months to break through stone walls and dynamite an iron wall that sealed the entrance to palatial underground tombs that make Tut's look like a walk-in closet.

Lancaster sets 'Lawgiver' series

Burt Lancaster as Moses in "The Lawgiver," six major one-hour dramas based on the Book of Exodus, will be presented next season on CBS. According to Robert D. Wood, President of the Network, "Presenting Burt Lancaster in 'The Lawgiver,' continues our policy of bringing to audiences important mini-series of the calibre of 'Leonardo da Vinci' in 1972 and 'The Six Wives of Henry VIII' in 1971.

Involving the talents of some of the greatest creative artists in the world today, 'The Lawgiver' promises to be a television event of major importance.

The series, which will be filmed on location in Israel and other areas in the Middle East, will be a co-production of RAI Television and Associated Television Corporation Limited of London. Filming begins in July, and should take about six months.

Scripts and adaptations have been written by Vittorio Bonicelli, who was nominated for an Academy Award for his screenplay of "The Garden of the Finzi Continis," and Anthony Burgess, the British novelist whose works include "A Clockwork Orange."

Burt Lancaster will be joined in the six dramas of "The Lawgiver" by major guest stars, to be announced at a later date. The films will be directed by Gianfranco de Biasio, whose credits include "The Terrorist" and "La Bette."

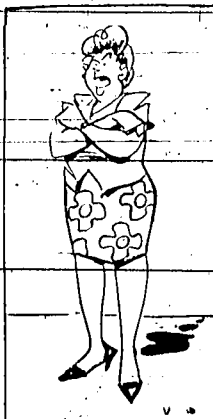

Director-of-photography will be Giuseppe Rotunno, who has received three Oscar nominations. "Garnal Knowledge," "Fellini's Satyricon" and "Fellini's Rome" are among his films.

Vincenzo Labella, winner of the Golden David Award and the Silver Ribbon, among many others, will produce "The Lawgiver." He has produced such feature films as "The Sicilian Clan" and "Michelangelo."

'People' sing on Thursday

"Up With People" performers collect welcome mats - and theirs may well be the largest and most diverse collection in the world.

Last year alone, the youngsters who make up the three traveling casts of this unique education-entertainment aggregation were guests in the homes of 11,000 families in 32 different states and nine foreign countries.

Wherever they go - and they "go" constantly, giving up to 100 performances in a year and logging some 20,000 miles - they live in private homes in the communities where they entertain.

with families in the Albuquerque-Santa Fe areas.

Says Ralph Colwell, production director for the group: "This highly personal interrelationship with communities and countries is an important dimension of our overall objective in Up With People - to combine academics, through mobile education and world travel, with relevant social involvement."

Most families in each city are recruited by advance representatives of the troupe in a variety of ways, including announcements in churches, schools and civic groups, newspaper and broadcast appeals and the aid of local sponsors. The host program is entirely voluntary.

Many lasting friendships have been formed between youngsters and their host families, and people who have offered this special kind of hospitality are warm in their praise of the unusual program.

"If these two boys are representative of the young people who will eventually run this country, it is in very good hands," wrote an Oklahoma hostess.

A Colorado mother reported an unexpected bonus from the experience: "The boys were able to communicate with our boys and made a very good impression on them," she said.

"Since then, our 16-year-old twin boys have returned to school after dropping out for a semester."

From Quebec, Canada, a host couple paid this touching tribute: "We have six children. One more does not make less in the purse, and so much more in the heart. Next year we won't take one but three guests."

Musical 'Oklahoma' set Friday

As everyone everywhere in the civilized world can tell you, the corn—in the Richard Rodgers-Oscar Hammerstein II musical classic "Oklahoma!" is high as an elephant's eye.

If anyone is unfamiliar with this lyric of "Oh, What a Beautiful Mornin'," he hasn't been listening to some of the great American standard songs over the past 30 years.

The corn will be on the screen in all its towering glory for the film version of "Oklahoma!" which will be seen as a special two-and-a-half hour presentation on "The CBS Friday Night Movies" Friday in color on CBS.

Growing the kind of maize that the show's creators wanted for the movie version of their classic play proved to be considerably more difficult than merely singing about it. Faced with the problem, one that the average farmer never dreams of, was an agricultural expert, Edward B. Clark, of Carmen, Ariz.

When Arthur Hornblow Jr., producer of the film, hired Clark, it was with the stipulation that the October-maturing corn be at the peak of its growth by July 14, a date designated months before as the start of the shooting schedule.

When filming began, Clark had met his deadline. The wheat was ready for harvest, and the corn — at about $8.95 an ear — was "as high as an elephant's eye," which eliminated any necessity for changing the lyric to "as low as an elephant's toe."

Never before had a field of corn been grown as it was that summer in the San Rafael Valley, near Nogales, Ariz., an area picked for the filming because it met more requirements than any location scouted in the musical title state itself.

Agriculturist Clark's handiwork took the form of 2,100 stalks in 14 neat rows, each three feet apart. Hand-planted, hand-fed and hand-watered, the corn reached the skyscraping height of 16 feet — four-and-a-half feet taller than average.
