US oil flows in Tapline

REINBUR (UPI) — Oil flowed without interruption today through a 750-mile long American-owned pipeline after unidentified saboteurs bombed the installation Monday for the second time in 48 hours.

"The pipeline was in no way damaged," said a spokesman for the Trans-Arabian Pipeline Co., which is called Tapline in the Middle East and which can carry 440,000 barrels of oil daily from Saudi Arabian oil fields through Jordan and Syria to its Lebanon terminal at Zahrani.

Oil sources said unknown saboteurs exploded dynamite charges under a section of the pipeline near the town of Nabatieh. The blasts, the sources said, caused "very minor damage" but no fire.

Armed men blew up and set fire to Tapline-owned oil storage tanks near Sidon, 16 miles from Nabatieh.

The fire lasted 14 hours and consumed more than 30,000 barrels of oil, but a company spokesman said pumping operations resumed Sunday, 16 hours after the explosions.

The identity of the armed men is still not known, although a new organization of Arab guerrillas said it carried out the raid. Other guerrilla groups denied this and blamed Israeli commandos. Israel also denied this.

There was no speculation about the bombers Monday. Nor did any Arab guerrillas claim responsibility.

Oil sources said the latest explosion blasted a 3-1/2-foot deep hole beneath the pipeline and slightly bent it.

Mississippi River hit by new flash flooding

VICKSBURG, Miss. (UPI) — More than five inches of rain fell on sections of Mississippi Monday, causing flash flooding inland from the flooded lowlands along the Mississippi River. About 100 persons fled their homes around Jackson where flooded streets forced the closing of four schools.

A spokesman for the U.S. Corps of Engineers said the deluge was not expected to have any major effect on backwater flooding in the Delta from the Yazoo River and its tributaries.

The Hylan Garden apartment complex in North Jackson apparently was one of the hardest hit. Dozens of families had to evacuate when water rose more than a foot in the two-story buildings.

Hundreds of families in a five-county area of the Delta north of Vicksburg were forced to leave their homes over the past few weeks because of backwater flooding. The Corps of Engineers said the rain probably would cause a slight rise on small rivers and streams, but that "it will just be that much extra water to run off."

The Mississippi River has shown little change in its level at Vicksburg, where it reached its highest level since 1937 last week. By Monday it had dropped one-tenth of a foot from a crest to 50.3 feet.

Upriver at St. Louis, new crests were predicted for this week on the flooding Missouri and Mississippi rivers as a result of heavy rainfall, but an Army Corps of Engineers spokesman said no serious flooding problems were expected. Two areas along the Mississippi that were being watched closely were Chouteau Island near Granite City, Ill., and Kaskaskia Island, about 60 miles south of St. Louis.

Nixon asks banks to hold interest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration Monday asked banks to voluntarily hold down interest rates on loans to homeowners, consumers, small businessmen and farmers. Nixon left the prime interest rate, which banks charge large businesses free to fluctuate.

The Committee on Interest and Dividends also asked banks to hold down their profit margins to the average of the best two of the past four calendar years.

It said mortgage loans and installment loans to consumers should be under voluntary "special restraint" so as to remain "relatively stable" even if other interest rates should go up.

The committee, headed by Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns, said this "dual" system, involving different standards for large business and other kinds of borrowers, will "afford small business borrowers protection against burdensome increases in interest rates, while at the same time providing a basis for a flexible structure of bank interest rates which is consistent with orderly economic growth."

"Rates charged by a commercial bank to small business and farm borrowers should remain at levels no higher than those prevailing on the date these criteria are issued unless an increase can be fully justified by increases in costs," the committee said.

"If increases in these rates occur, they are to be decidedly smaller, and are also to be made less frequently, than changes in rates on loans to large firms," the committee said.

It said that, since the economic stabilization program requires companies and workers alike "to forego for the sake of the general welfare some of the earnings that they might otherwise have realized, banks should accept similar restraints."

TF contract awarded to Utah firm

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Continental Bank and Trust Co., of Salt Lake City, was awarded a contract for purchase of $119,250 in local improvement district bonds by the City Council Monday night.

Twin Falls councilmen opened bids on the bonds of Local Improvement District 87 for street, curb, gutter and sidewalk improvements.

The Salt Lake City firm bid 5.35 per cent interest, the low rate offered in four bids. Other bidders were Burroughs and Smith, Boise, First Security Bank of Idaho and Grande Company, Seattle.

An ordinance covering sale of the bonds for the improvement district was adopted after it was read for more than 30 minutes by the city clerk. However, City Attorney William Langley held up the reading of a second ordinance of about the same length and covering District 88 for the current year's street program, questioning whether the necessary three-fourths of the council was present as required by law. Two of the seven council members, Paul Ostyn and Mike Gray, were absent.

An adjourned meeting will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. to act on the ordinance creating Local Improvement District 88.

The bonds for District 87 cover last year's street program which is now being completed. The total project represents about $484,000, of which bonds for participation by private property owners in the district amount to $119,250. In other business the council approved ordinance repealing the city food service sanitation ordinance and the U.S. Milk Code. Repeal of the ordinances is in keeping with withdrawal from the South Central Idaho Health District and the inspection services provided by the state agency. These will now be handled by the city sanitation officer.

Jim Ingalls, health department, said there will be some services the city cannot handle such as tuberculosis tests and environmental services. The city has been paying about $13,000 per year for participation in the Health District programs and will effect a saving, city officials say, by turning inspections over to city employees.

An agreement was approved by the council for use in future water line installations. The agreement form will be signed by developers and others requiring city water service for new construction and development.

Gem State Paper Co. was granted permission to enclose a concrete ramp and loading area which extends onto public right of way. As in other similar cases, the firm will be required to remove the structure at its own cost at such time as the right of way is needed.

John Massey was given permission to store building material on the city parking lot during construction of a new building between Pedersen's and Western Auto on Main Avenue East.

A building permit waiver was approved for the College of Southern Idaho for building of restrooms and concrete ramps to be used in conjunction with the State Vocational Rehabilitation Service. Approval was voted for an additional payroll deduction for city employees wishing full premium of cancer care insurance through the Association of Idaho Cities.

MIKE ROBERTSON ... places third ... DALE STEWART ... takes first

TF newsmen win Idaho Press awards for '72

BOISE — Times-News staff members captured three first-place awards, and two of three places in the feature pictures category of the Idaho Press Club awards for 1972.

Dale Stewart, city editor, placed first. Mike Robertson, staff writer and photographer, placed third in that category. Two other Times-News contributors received first-place awards at the club's annual awards dinner here: Dwight Jensen, special writer; and pet columnist Linda Merry were cited for their work.

Stewart's first place was for a photo-feature page, "Along the Trail." Robertson's third place award was for a color photo of a boy riding a horse on a merry-go-round.

Second place in that category went to Bob Lorrimer of the Idaho Statesman. He received three certificates were not announced on Friday evening during the awards program due to a mixup in the listings but were announced today by Press club officials.

Jensen was cited for the best sports feature, a Canadian Top

Toddywinker, and also received the second place award in spot news photography. He is a free lance writer and photographer from Pocatello and Boise who contributes to various Idaho newspapers including the Times-News.

Mrs. Merry, a practicing veterinarian from Pocatello, received first place for her column, "The Merry Pet," which appears in the Times-News and other newspapers.

Another Twin Falls newsmen, Rollie Monte of Radio Station KTFL, was cited for the best sports story on radio during 1972. This is the second successive year for Stewart to receive an award in the Idaho-wide competition. In 1971, he received second place in photo-feature competition.

Public hearings slated in TF

By DAVID ESPINO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County Commissioners are preparing to hold public hearings on proposed revenue sharing expenditures amounting to nearly $200,000.

The county has budgeted $412,000 that it must spend in the next 14 months, as well as an additional amount that will be budgeted next year.

The commissioners said Monday they would propose the following projects be funded:

- renovation of the county courthouse building, $66,000 including the replacement of nearly 100 windows, a cleaning for the outside of the courthouse and electrical rewiring of the four story structure;

- refurbishing the old county hospital, located on Addison Ave. West, for a cost of $12,000;

- remodeling an old county nurses home, on Addison Ave. West at an anticipated cost of $6,750;

- renovation of the county jail, located on the fourth story of the courthouse, to provide space for 24 juveniles, at a cost of $50,000. Also included in the plan is the construction of fire escapes as required by law, as well as a secured area for a nighttime attendant to monitor the jail and prisoners;

- a $57,000 improvement project for the water mains at the county fair grounds east of Filer, which the commissioners said could result in a $12,000 savings county-wide fire insurance premiums;

Commissioner Merl Leonard said a public hearing would be called for April 23 and 24 and said he expected bids could be called for by the early part of May.

He said the anticipated cost figures for the remodeling and refurbishing of the several buildings involved had been drawn up by unidentified professional companies in the area. He refused to identify them, however, saying that competitive bidding would be involved in the projects, and the firms might want to bid.

The estimate for work at the fairground, though, was put together by JUB Engineers, Leonard said, while Ivan Stone, a Twin Falls architect, has been preparing specifications for the jail renovation.

BOISE (UPI) — Milas Adkins, 41, Boise, is scheduled to stand trial April 23 on charges of first-degree murder in the March 10 fatal shooting of Vincent R. Delgado, also known as Carl Eng. Crowd large for TF concert

TWIN FALLS — Elementary school choir members from five Twin Falls schools drew a solid round of applause for their biannual concert Monday evening.

A near capacity audience filled the Twin Falls High School gymnasium stands for the performance by fifth- and sixth-grade pupils from Hickel, Harrison, Morningstar, Washington and Lincoln schools.

Directed by Mrs. Ernest Thiener and Mrs. Keith Turner, the concert mixed patriotic numbers, country and folk melodies, a tribute to Idaho, brotherhood, and several new and old swing tunes. Members of the choir also provided instrumental accompaniment for several numbers, and formed an orchestra directed by Ernest Moss for the concluding "World Anthem" by Beethoven.

Sprightly narration by Lynn Stosich and Scot Nass introduced the numbers on the program and added a few chuckles, as well. Other accompanists included Mrs. Carl Snow, piano; Moss, violin; E. A. Wolters, banjo; Mark Slaughter, trumpet; Mona Morrison, drums; Lavear Thornock, guitar; and Debbie Comer, flute and piccolo.

Effects of one comic song were heightened by display of large placards and flag drills highlighted the presentation of the American flag at the opening of the concert and the final production number.

Leader re-elected

TWIN FALLS — Annual dinner meeting for Magic Valley Symphony Orchestra members was held Monday night at the Rogerson Hotel Colonial Room.

Charles Hatchlife was re-elected president for a three-year term and Roger Grady was named vice president.

The annual financial report was given by Jean Sutcliff, Europe the past year, and is business manager. She reported it costs between $1,200 to $1,300 to put on the two concerts the group has given each year since it started in 1959.

Del Slaughter, director, discussed tentative plans for next year's season and members heard an informal travelogue from Hatchlife who has spent considerable time in Europe the past year, and is planning another trip to Spain.

Appointed

BOISE (UPI) — Howard T. Martin has been appointed acting Idaho District Director for the Internal Revenue Service. Martin, according to regional IRS Commissioner Homer O. Grossman, began his IRS career in 1956 as a revenue agent in Texas. Martin temporarily replaces Calvin Wright, who recently retired.

State employees get increase

By RICHARD CHARNOCK
BOISE (UPI) — Increases in per diem and mileage allowances for state employees won board of examiners' approval Tuesday, but proposed substitution of motor homes for motels was put off for a month. Implementing a law passed by the last legislature, the board authorized an increase in per diem to $10 out of state and $7.50 per day in-state from $7.50 and $6 respectively. Mileage was boosted to 12 cents per mile from 10. All three increases are to take effect as of July 1, the effective date of the new law. But while the board agreed to implement the higher travel allowances it looked askance at a proposal to let employees use camper trailers or motor homes in place of hotel and motel rooms.

Just prior to the official start of the board meeting Auditor Joe R. Williams, non-voting secretary to the board, said he has received a half-dozen requests in the past six months about allowances for motor homes or camper trailers.

"There isn't any policy on this," Williams told the board. "It's a new thing. It has come up in the last six months."

While Goy, Cecil D. Andrus and Attorney General W. Anthony Park said they could see some merit to the idea they also could see some potential for abuse.

TF Rodeway Inn building slated

TWIN FALLS — Construction of the proposed Rodeway Inn in Twin Falls is expected to begin within a short time, possibly a week.

J. James Koutnik, Western Realty, who handled the purchase of a 10-acre site for the motel said bids for construction were opened and exceeded estimates.

As a result, the firm has had to decide if the building should be redesigned, the financing increased or the project abandoned.

He said the firm apparently elected to increase the loan for construction and is nearing completion on negotiations. Koutnik said he understands a groundbreaking is planned in the near future. Land for the structure was purchased from John Breckenridge and is located just north of Bill Workman Ford Co. The Rodeway Inn has granted right of way for a road running from Blue Lakes Boulevard North between the Workman property and their own, and has agreed to pay its share of the roadway construction costs. Negotiations are still underway with Workman, city officials said.

WASHINGTON — We are a contrary people, perhaps even perverse. Louis Harris has just come up with another of his fascinating polls to support the point that Americans tend to be ambivalent on certain issues which would seem to call for general agreement.

Harris reports that 88 per cent of those interviewed took a negative view of President Nixon's efforts to reduce the cost of living. Yet the same folks voted by 66 to 27 that Nixon was doing a poor job of handling inflationary Federal expenditures. An earlier Gallup Poll showed that while 59 per cent agreed with Nixon that inflation cannot be controlled without drastic cuts in the Federal budget, the interviewees were opposed to the decision to eliminate the Office of Economic Opportunity; 46 to 39 per cent.

Explaining such contradictions takes some doing, but the temptation is irresistible to conclude that they are based on the public's desire to eat its cake and have it too. Everybody wants reduced government spending — with reservations.

Perhaps more significant, this is by and large a compassionate country; the average citizen has never wanted to appear opposed to giving the poor a helping hand. Moreover, Nixon's dismantlement of the OEO has produced such a burst of wailing and teeth-grashing in Congress as to nourish a feeling of guilt on Main Street.

Yet, as Walter Lippmann recently observed in an interview with his biographer, Ronald Steel, the President has done well the distasteful and unpopular chore of junking welfare programs that haven't worked out. Helping the poor should be a high national priority, but the figures say that under Lyndon Johnson — and Nixon, too — altogether too much money has been spent to accomplish too little.

all want to save our own jobs, but those of us outside of government probably would prefer that more money go to the poor and less to those who administer relief.

At any rate, I have bought in Washington, too, long to learn over the loss of jobs by people in government agencies. A great majority of those who lose jobs when an agency's budget is cut back catch on with another agency because that's the way things are done around here. I know of one careerist who has bounced in and out of eight government jobs in the past three years without losing a day's pay.

Hypermarches

Europeans may steal a march on the United States — a "Hypermarches," to be exact.

According to international retail consultant Paul K. Halstead, a hypermarches — the word can be roughly translated as "superdupermarket" — could whip any American shopping center in a face-to-face competition.

A hypermarches is a self-service, mass-merchandising operation of about 100,000 square feet that combines a large supermarket and general merchandise under one roof.

What distinguishes a hypermarches from the American variety is an aggressive discounting policy and extensive use of containerized display to reduce handling costs. Also, with high volume and low overhead, management can afford to hire well-qualified store personnel.

There are more than 600 hypermarches in Europe now and within five years, predicts Halstead, the concept will be transplanted to the U.S.A. to compete with American shopping centers.

With Mercy

A new law in Libya provides for cutting off the right hand of felons convicted of stealing, and of the left foot for armed robbery.

But justice will be tempered with mercy, says the Hastings Center Report.

The law also permits the amputation to be done by a surgeon, using anesthetics.

MR. SPECTATOR

Quite A Gadget

We were all stretched out in bed in a Boise motel.

We were reading from the diary of a Covered Wagon pioneer who passed through the area where Twin Falls is now located. His passage was those many years back.

We were on a trip historical — gathering stories and pictures which will go to make up the annual Historical Section of the Times-News come about mid-June. We took a week, drove 1,200 miles to visit various sections of our great state and look at its history, and now we are back at the old post again.

But getting back to that "all stretched out" position at the motel in Boise.

We completed reading the diary — we had been through it at least three times — and were getting just a bit drowsy. So we put the diary on the bedside table. As we rolled over to turn off the bedside lamp, something caught our eye.

It was on the ceiling and it was one of those automatic fire sprinklers which activates itself, and sprays water over the entire room, once a certain temperature (like a real hot one during a fire) is reached.

How fortunate we thought to be able to sleep in such a nice place. If the place caught on fire while we were asleep, the sprinkler would be activated and we would get a nice shower — in bed, mind you — even before we woke up.

Nothing like being nice and clean when the firemen come in to carry you out!

Electronic News

Congress, courts and scribes are squabbling over rules and rights relating to news gathering and news reporting.

Editors wage unrelenting rear-guard defense of their prerogatives against internal dissenters and external critics — all of which tends to obscure the perspective.

As Madison Avenue might say it, "We've come a long way, baby."

Infants' electronic news fed itself on rip-and-read INS, AP and UP newspapers — a pabulum diet of news papier-mache.

Radio's early adolescence gave prominence to Upton Close, Gabriel Heatter and Walter Winchell, yet their godchildren remained copy boys delivering somebody else's boilerplate or parrots for the New York Times and/or the Chicago Tribune.

Electronic news began to develop a mind of its own under the impatient tutelage of I.V. Hattenborn, Elmer Davis, Ed Murrow.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war which is testing whether this media or any media so conceived and so dedicated can long endure.

I have been among the sometime critics of recent years who resented — and resisted — the increasing centralization of press and public information facilities.

I shared Mr. Agnew's belief that the networks listed "left." I did not share his fear that this represented some sinister international conspiracy, but was convinced instead that the lopsidedness resulted from nothing more mysterious than a wheel hub off center.

But this springtime of 1973 we are absorbing allegations of imperfection from several directions — from the rightists and the leftists, from the White House and the Congress and from some courts.

This intensely interested observer of the maturing of electronic news would invite a pause for applause.

In the networks and in almost 8,000 individual station operations around our nation there is a respect approaching reverence for the responsibility news gathering and news dissemination implies.

Perhaps prodding from the White House helped; certainly it hasn't hurt.

The conspicuous political consciences of AP and UPI are factors influencing the increasingly balanced spectrum.

But while we yet, perhaps necessarily, reflect a consumer appetite for blood, sex and scandal, in philosophy, sociology and politics there is less subtle, sinister, superimposition of somebody else's view on you than there has ever been.

Tomorrow? Who knows?

Hopefully, tomorrow — the Electronic media will mature to the degree that the printed press already has, taking pride in the factuality of its news and in the variety of its analytical observations.

"We've come a long way, baby. Today's industry leaders need only keep on doing what they're doing to ensure that the free press deserves to be."

ART BUCHWALD

Day Of Infamy

WASHINGTON — For a long time President Nixon complained that the Japanese were not buying enough from the United States and were causing a serious dent in our balance of payments.

He urged them to purchase more from us so he would not have to impose tariffs on Japanese goods imported to the United States. It could have been one of the President's major mistakes.

A secret meeting of the Japanese Imperial Economic Command was held in Tokyo last week.

The notorious Hoshi Hamamura, who is responsible for flooding the Western Hemisphere with tape recorders, told the gathering, "Honorable gentlemen, the glory of Japan is at stake. We have billions of dollars in our banks, and unless we spend them immediately we may be stuck with worthless paper."

Toshi Tojo, the architect of the Greater Wankel Engine Plan, said, "We have bought up all the lumber in the United States, as well as America's soybean crop for the next four years. Our agents have also put in a bid for their entire 1974 beef production."

Oki Moto, chief economic war planner, said, "My people have contracted for all the coal and steel produced in 1974 in the United States, as well as cotton, eggs, butter, cheese and nylon stockings."

This is all good, said the notorious Hoshi Hamamura, "but it is only a drop in the bucket. We must do more for the Empire."

Yoshi Suzuki, the militant Minister of Color Television Sets, said, "My agents are buying radium, glass, aluminum and cardboard cartons. The prices here skyrocketed in the United States and we have been credited personally with causing the greatest inflation in the United States since the Korean war."

Nashi Namura, the cruel Director of Culture, reported, "We have bought every painting we can get our hands on in the United States. Next week we will make a bid for the Metropolitan Museum of Art."

"You mean all the works?" someone asked.

"I mean the museum and all the works. We're going to bring it here, stone by stone and rebuild it next to the emperor's palace."

"Will they sell it?"

"Why not? The Met has sold everything else."

"Honorable gentlemen," said the notorious Hoshi Hamamura, "this accounts for only $220 billion. We still have $150 billion we're stuck with."

Kosi San, the evil Minister of Real Estate, said, "We have no choice. Gentlemen, we must buy Pearl Harbor!"

"Pearl Harbor?" everyone said.

"Yes. It would make a marvelous rest and recreation center for our loyal and industrious Japanese workers. I have the plans here. Once we own Pearl Harbor, land values will fall and we can get the rest of Hawaii for a song."

"But will the Americans sell Pearl Harbor?"

"We will make our bid on Dec. 7, a Sunday morning when everyone is sleeping. Our kamikaze contractors will build their hotels before anyone is alerted. By then the President will have no choice but to accept our check in Washington. Are we all agreed?"

"Banzai!" everyone shouted. "Let us drink to our next meeting in Hawaii at the Day of Infamy Hilton Hotel."

Consider an example of this profligacy. In one New England city, the Model Cities program created 105 jobs in a little less than two years. That's 52 to 53 jobs a year. The cost was $1.5-million, which comes out $28,000 per job. There are other examples too numerous to mention, but I believe it is safe to accept White House estimates that more than half of the taxpayers' funds has been spent on administration — mostly salaries of antipoverty workers.

That explains the picketing outside OEO headquarters here several weeks ago by antipoverty workers. There were the usual signs, but most of them demanded in effect: "SAVE OUR JOBS!" Well, we Richard Nixon's efforts to control the price spiral have been somewhat less than ingenious, to put it mildly. He has seemed determined to run the free marketplace down our throat at any cost. But the howls on Capitol Hill are proof that his program to reduce inflationary Federal spending is a step in the right direction.

With an affluent society on a buying spree, the one thing Nixon can do is restrain the Federal government's lavish disbursements.

Besides, the administration has not exactly sentenced the poor to the workhouse. Funds for so-called "Human resources" now constitute a bigger share of the budget than under any other recent President. It may even turn out that most of this money will go to those who need it, and not for management costs

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Hand Numbness

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have frequent numbness in my hands, sometimes greater in one but not necessarily in the same hand each time.

It also seems more pronounced in my thumb and first two fingers. Sometimes there is a dull ache near the elbow, other times near the wrist.

The numbness increases when I raise my hands or hold any vibrating item — lawn mower, steering wheel, etc. Many times I have to find a precise location for my arms in order to sleep without the numbness or aching.

I am in my middle fifties, active and otherwise in good health. Can this problem be lessened by exercise, diet or other means? — A. K.

Numbness of the type you describe (which is rather common at your age) could originate in the neck, and it often does.

The explanation: nerves leading down the arms to hands and fingers originate in the neck, where the nerve fibers emerge from the spine.

If pressure is exerted on these nerves in the neck it can distort the reaction of the nerves anywhere along the way — numbness in hands and fingers, sometimes pain or tingling in other areas between. In your case, elbows and wrists.

Arthritis in the neck is a possible cause — there has been some change in the size and shape of the bones in the neck of older people, and the neck of older people can be involved. Do you slouch and "lead with your chin?" If is possible, of course, for pressure off the nerve to be elsewhere, perhaps in the shoulder, but the neck is the first place to look, so X-rays are in order.

Since the numbness stops if you find the right way to place your arms when you sleep, that would indicate that there is enough room for the nerve fibers when you are in the right position.

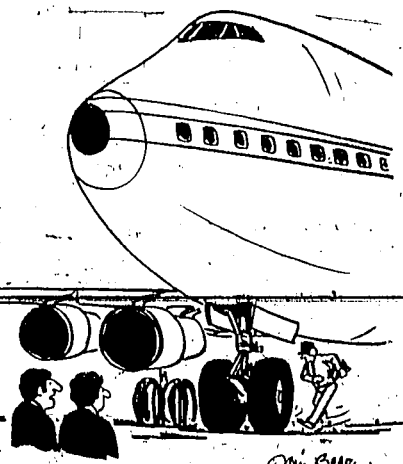

After X-rays, your doctor can suggest the proper course. Maybe improving posture will be sufficient. Perhaps you'll need something more. In many cases, periodic neck traction (which your doctor can show you how to do at home) keeps the neck bones separated enough so the nerve isn't put under pressure.

But diet and exercise won't help.

A very similar problem of numbness, but in the hands, can be what is known as the carpal tunnel syndrome. In that case, the nerves are under pressure in the "tunnel" in which they pass through the wrist. If so, just flexing your wrist for a minute or two will bring on the discomfort. Position of the arms is not the significant factor there. That trouble can be relieved by surgery, occasionally by other means.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

BERRY'S WORLD

Registration a problem in national elections

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Considering that no estimated 81 per cent of the eligible citizenry voted in the presidential election 97 years ago, it may be no exaggeration to call the 1972 turnout of 55.6 per cent "a national scandal."

That and similar characterizations of the voting behavior of Americans was used by senators recently in debate on a plan to promote a better turnout by establishing a national system of voter registration by postcard.

The idea behind the bill is that getting voters registered is at least half the job of getting them to vote and that a postcard-registration system would ease the process considerably.

Whether the merits of the postcard registration plan, it is hard to imagine that the United States will soon approach the voter turnout reached in the 1876 presidential election, not to speak of the 91 per cent turnout in West Germany or 92 per cent in France just last year.

But the available figures do seem to show that once a citizen is registered, he is more likely to vote than if he has to start from scratch. A table used in the postcard registration debate by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., illustrates this fact.

Last fall, there were 23 states where the turnout of citizens age 18 or older topped 60 per cent, a respectable figure for any American election. In every one of those states for which figures were available, the turnout of registered voters exceeded 70 per cent and it reached a phenomenal 88.5 per cent in Massachusetts.

Oddly, while Massachusetts was in the registered voters' top 10 in great numbers, its turnout of age-eligible citizens was 62.1 per cent, well below the 70.1 per cent in no-registration South Dakota and 69 per cent plus in North Dakota, Utah and Montana.

The same effect can be seen in low turnout states, most of them in the South. There were 10 states and the District of Columbia where the turnout of persons eligible by age to vote was below 50 per cent, and every one had substantially higher turnouts of registered voters. The prime example of this was in Kentucky, where only 48.4 per cent of citizens 18 or older voted, but where 73.3 per cent of registered voters actually cast ballots.

The sorriest record was turned in by the District of Columbia, where citizens vote only in presidential and school board elections, only 31.4 per cent of the age-eligible population and only 53.4 per cent of registered voters cast ballots.

Another argument goes to an entirely different point than the relative ease of registration—it is that both registration and actual voting are an index of citizen concern or alienation. The problem with that is the record—which does not explain why only 48.9 per cent of age-eligibles turned out for the hotly-contested 1948 Presidential election while 61.8 per cent voted in the runaway 1964 contest.

Chancellor emerges 'powerful'

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

"We in the Social Democratic party have no use for primitive 'anti' attitudes and especially not for anti-Americanism" — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, April 11, 1973.

In such a way Brandt stilled the strident voices of the young extreme left in his party who in recent days had added noisy anti-American demonstrations to their demands for nationalization of industry and West German withdrawal from NATO.

He advised those with Marxist leanings to find a home elsewhere.

(beginning April 16) with Yugoslav President Tito. The two are in a unique position to reach authoritative conclusions on a number of subjects. In the Communist world Tito is an elder statesman close to but apart from the Warsaw nations of the Soviet bloc.

Brandt's own ostpolitik policies of close disarmament, security and the presence of U.S. troops in Germany but, perhaps more importantly, trade and monetary reform.

Then, with only about two weeks in between, Brandt himself will play host to Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev in Bonn.

Analysis

relations with the East permit them to assess knowledgeably future possibilities of European balanced troop reductions now being discussed in Vienna and European security under discussion in Helsinki.

The convention of the Social Democratic party then overwhelmingly endorsed the Brandt policies.

With the passing of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, the energetic West German chancellor has emerged as Western Europe's most influential statesman, in full control of the West German Bundestag at home and recognized abroad as a powerful spokesman not only for West Germany but for the whole West European community.

In coming weeks Brandt will be holding with other world leaders a series of meetings with possible far reaching consequences.

The first of these is a round of talks this week

Brandt is scheduled to visit Israel in June and may draw valuable insight on the Middle East conflict from Tito who generally has sympathized with the Arab side and has been close to Egypt's President Anwar Sadat.

Early in May Brandt journeys to Washington for talks with President Nixon.

These will center not only around matters of

The fact that Brezhnev has elected to visit Bonn ahead of his own scheduled visit to Washington in June is being interpreted as a tribute to Brandt and to the role he is expected to play in the emergence of a European community independent of both Moscow and Washington.

Economic contacts between the Soviet Union and West Germany have grown swiftly in recent months. The Soviets would welcome German aid in development of Siberian resources and are expected on the occasion of the Brezhnev visit to sign an agreement authorizing Luftansa, the German airline, to fly over Siberia to the Far East.

Rounding out Brandt's busy immediate schedule will be a meeting in June with French President Georges Pompidou to coordinate their policies on trade and monetary matters in preparation for negotiations with the United States.

Recovery hoped

STARKVILLE, Miss. (UPI)

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., says he hopes to be sufficiently recovered from gunshot wounds later this year to return fulltime to his legislative duties.

Stennis, 71, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, made a surprise visit to Mississippi State University Saturday for the golden class reunion of the class of '23.

It was his first public appearance and his first trip from Walter Reed Army Medical Center since he was shot and critically wounded in front of his Washington home 10 weeks ago.

"The doctor won't give me a date, but I'll be back before the summer's over," Stennis said when asked when he would return to work. "Before then I'll be doing some legislative work."

Stennis, life secretary of the class of 1923, returned to Walter Reed hospital following the visit.

A staunch opponent of gun control legislation, the senator said he had not given gun legislation much thought since the shooting. "We can do something about better legislation for the protection of the people," he said.

Symms hits cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Steyr Symms, R-Idaho, said Monday he is opposed to proposed price rollbacks.

On the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives, the Idaho Republican said, "There are basically only two ways of establishing prices — one is by free men, making free choices, in a free market. The only other alternative to this is price by decree enforced at the point of a gun."

He added, "Nowhere in the world are the prices of food as low, as reasonable in proportion to other prices, as they are in the United States."

He said the "real reason" for price rises is inflation caused by government spending and the subsequent decline in the value of the dollar.

Cambodia negotiations for peace said unlikely

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration said Monday there was no immediate prospect for negotiations to end the war in Cambodia, and refugee experts predicted mass starvation if it goes on much longer.

Arthur W. Hummel Jr., deputy assistant secretary of state for east Asian and Pacific affairs, foresaw no end to U.S. bombing and held out little hope that a settlement between rebel forces and the Cambodian government could be reached.

"I cannot in all honesty, with any confidence, in the very near future predict the beginning of such negotiations," Hummel told the Senate refugees subcommittee.

Administration witnesses contended economic conditions were tolerable in Cambodia, with food and essential commodities generally available.

"There have been no epidemics and on the whole people have been able to sustain themselves," Robert H. Nooter of the Agency for International Development told the subcommittee.

But two refugee experts who returned recently after extended contacts with Cambodian refugees said they found widespread hunger and turmoil among civilians.

Wells Klein, who led a study mission to Cambodia and other parts of Indochina for the subcommittee, warned that mass starvation was in prospect by mid-June.

"In two months, it is really going to break wide open," he said. "We will see refugees dropping off, dying by the hundreds and thousands."

Father Robert Charlebois, regional director of Catholic Relief Services, said the situation "defies description."

He said the Cambodian government is unprepared for even the basic social services to the refugees, and thousands were left in neglect.

"Vietnam, as bad or good as it was, at least had a social welfare structure," he said.

"In Cambodia there is not one piece of legislation relating to the rights of the child. There are even serious doubts among some members of government who is responsible for an orphan."

Charlebois said in one refugee camp he discovered an "emaciated woman with active leprosy" caring for 20 infants.

Nooter estimated there were 700,000 refugees in Cambodia, about half of them now living in Phnom Penh. A "large majority" of them have been able to care for themselves, he said, many of them moving with relatives and friends.

'Bigfoot' trap built in wilds

MEDFORD, Ore. (UPI) — Since 1968, Ron Olson has been searching for "Bigfoot," the legendary man-like hominid primate that supposedly roams the remote wilderness areas of the Pacific Northwest.

Olson, 30, says his challenge is to prove, by live capture, that "Bigfoot" exists, and to this end he has designed and built a trap—a sturdy, box-like affair with a 150-pound steel bar gate—in the Siskiyou Mountain range.

This is the place, Olson says, where an old miner, a recluse who lived alone for 50 years, told him about big hairy creatures that used to appear in a clearing across the canyon from his mine shaft and watch him work. More than 850 sightings of "Bigfoot" have been made since 1968.

In an attempt to re-create the situation, Olson, who is an investigator with an Eugene-based non-profit organization known as North American Wildlife Research, has hired a mountain man to live on the site, follow the same daily routine the miner followed, and maintain the trap and the electronic sensing devices that were placed last summer.

"There was something around all last fall," said the mountain man. "There were howls that carried up these canyons and bounced off the hills. It wasn't bear and it wasn't coyotes. My dog will howl at a coyote but when he heard this he was quiet. He just listened with the hair standing straight up on his back."

Once the big door of the trap catches down—a spring-mat one foot inside the door releases it—it bolts locks shut. "And nothing, not even Bigfoot, can break out," Olson said.

The frame of the trap is built of poles that are seven inches in diameter and sunk three feet into the ground. They are spliced together and spaced three feet apart. The siding is 2-by-12 planking.

Various kinds of bait are hung from the ceiling to attract the creature, or creatures, that are the object of the hunt.

Embassy opens

BERLIN (UPI) — Britain opened its embassy in East Berlin today but an ambassador will not be sent until the summer.

James Reeve, the British charge d'affaires, was received by East German deputy Foreign Minister Dr. Klaus Willerding.

British officials said an ambassador would not be sent until West Germany ratifies its basic treaty of reconciliation with East Germany in the summer.

"USE OUR CONVENIENT LAYAWAY PLAN"

Nixon wins triumph on controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon was reported today considering a new attempt to dampen inflation by tightening the price controls which he relaxed when he initiated his "Phase III" economic program Jan. 10.

Nixon apparently won a free hand to deal with the economy Monday when the House turned back a Democratic attempt to freeze prices and interest rates by legislation.

Instead, the House voted 293 to 114 to simply extend for one year starting April 30 Nixon's authority to impose wage-price controls. It was one of Nixon's greatest triumphs in the three-month-old 93rd Congress.

At the same time, a Treasury Department official said the administration was considering "modification" of the existing Phase III program, which has been widely criticized for allowing rapid inflation. The official said the decision "has not been made," but he noted some Republican economic policy-makers were arguing for a complete freeze on prices at current levels or a return to the more stringent Phase II controls.

Administration officials reportedly were worried about a gross national product report, scheduled for release Thursday, that would show both inflation and real economic growth rose at an annual rate of about seven per cent in the first quarter of 1973. This was considered a too rapid increase that could lead to stiff controls, tightening of the money supply and a subsequent recession.

Democrats who pushed for the congressional freeze were bitter about their Monday defeat. House Banking Committee Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., described the vote as a defeat for the American people.

"The big business, big banks, big real estate interests and the other special interests have done their jobs well," Patman said. "They have carried the ball for the White House, and I am sure they will be fully rewarded by more economic permissiveness, and the people will be punished by more high prices, high interest rates and high rents."

From the pattern of voting, it appeared that the old coalition of Republicans and southern and farm district Democrats revived itself for one afternoon. Even such staunch Democrats as Reps. Willard Mills, D-Ark., and George Mahon, D-Tex., voted consistently against tougher controls.

Overseas base closure asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense budget critics, following President Nixon's decision to close 274 job-producing military installations at home, demanded today that Nixon save more money by shutting down some of the 3,400 U.S. bases overseas.

Members of Congress who have been demanding cutbacks in the $79 billion military budget generally were unwilling to quarrel with Nixon's decision to save an estimated $1 billion a year by closing unneeded bases.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., whose state will lose an estimated 19,000 jobs through the closing of Boston Naval Shipyard and other facilities, said he did not feel the decision was a political slap at the only state to vote for Sen. George McGovern in the presidential election last November.

Rep. Michael Harrington, D-Mass., who also has been in the forefront of military cost critics, said it would be "the height of inconsistency" for him now to protest when economies are achieved.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said the closings "may be a blow to some local communities but it is in the public interest."

But Proxmire and Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said they hoped the action would cause Congress to take a new look at the expenditures for overseas bases.

"The overseas bases are even more expensive as they do not contribute to the domestic U.S. economy and in fact create an adverse balance of payments," Proxmire said.

Mansfield plans to continue pressing for withdrawal of U.S. forces from Europe.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said the 3,400 bases overseas cost the United States $30 billion.

United charged

CHICAGO (UPI) — The federal government filed suit in U. S. District Court Monday charging United Air Lines Inc. and five unions representing United employees, with "discriminating against blacks and women."

The suit charged that the airline and the unions discriminated in hiring and recruitment practices, "assigning white persons and males to jobs which offer better opportunities for training and advancement, while assigning blacks to less desirable jobs which include sky cap, maid and utility employees, stewardess office and sales jobs."

The suit said United promoted white employees to better-paying, non-supervisory positions while "failing and refusing to promote blacks with the same amount of seniority and qualifications to the same jobs."

It asked that the union and the airline be enjoined from continuing the alleged discriminatory practices.

Indians plead innocent

PIERRE, S.D. (UPI) — Two American Indian Movement (AIM) leaders pleaded innocent Monday to charges stemming from the AIM takeover and occupation of Wounded Knee. They said travel restrictions on them could prolong a settlement of the continuing occupation.

AIM leaders Russell Means and Clyde Bellecourt pleaded innocent to 11 charges contained in federal grand jury indictments connected with the Feb. 27 seizure and subsequent armed occupation of Wounded Knee.

Both were charged with the wounding of a U.S. Marshal

Lloyd Grimm, who was shot while on an inspection tour of federal roadblocks surrounding Wounded Knee, and the shooting of FBI agent Curtis Fitzgerald.

Means and Bellecourt also were charged with an assault on a third federal officer, FBI agent Joanne Pierce, and with burglary, larceny, arson, conspiracy and obstructing federal officers during civil disorder.

Agent Pierce was at a federal roadblock which was fired upon during one of the outbursts of gunfire last month, but she and other federal officers were not injured.

At an earlier bail bond hearing before U.S. Magistrate James Wilson, Means and Bellecourt were ordered to give the federal government at least 48 hours notice if they wanted to leave South Dakota. They were told they could not return to Wounded Knee, which still is occupied by AIM members, without prior arrangements with the Justice Department.

Means and Bellecourt said the restrictions on their travel violated their rights as American Indians. Means also warned, "If the federal government ever hopes to resolve the impasse at Wounded Knee I will have to return."

He also said the travel restrictions would "be robbing me of my right of proper defense and it would violate the spirit of why I agreed to come out of Wounded Knee."

Wilson, who set bond for Means and Bellecourt at $25,000 each, did not object when the two Indian leaders told him they had previous commitments to travel today. Means said he would be in Cleveland to raise funds for his defense and Bellecourt said he was due in New York, also to raise money for the defense.

Nixon welcomes Italian aide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti open talks today that are expected to stress economic and security matters.

Nixon scheduled a mid-morning welcome on the White House lawn for the Italian official, whose traveling party included three of Italy's leading financial officials.

This was taken as an indication of Andreotti's interest in international financial and economic questions, particularly international monetary reform.

The two leaders also are expected to discuss new tensions in the Middle East and the strategic situation in the Mediterranean. Andreotti was expected to stress his government's view that resumption of hostilities in the Middle East was a threat to peace more dangerous than the Vietnam war.

Tire makers try to justify claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The tire industry told the government today its advertising claims for safety, handling and durability are justified, and it submitted stacks of technical data and testimonials to try to prove it.

The information came from 18 tire manufacturers whose advertising statements had been called into question by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) as part of that agency's continuing effort to get various industries to substantiate their sales pitches.

By and large the tire makers refused to give ground; although in a few instances they declined to back up claims which they said were made by local dealers and were not part of their national advertising. Many relied on "unsolicited testimonials" from satisfied customers to back up their statements.

"I have always been a great critic but when I get results I am always happy to compliment," wrote William J. Krueger, police and fire chief of Amberly Village, Ohio, in telling R.E. Goodrich his three cruisers had run up 39,000 miles on their "Lifesaver Radials." He said they were good for another 10,000 miles.

Goodrich submitted Krueger's letter-plus one from D. W. Wakefield of Hurst, Tex., who claimed over 50,000 miles on his tires, and one from Jess Stopford Jr., Monessen, Pa., who said he got 30,000 miles and thought he would get 60,000 to 70,000.

The FTC had asked Goodrich to prove its claim that it was getting reports of "50,000, even 60,000" on its "Lifesaver radials."

Goodyear similarly sent in a stack of 30 letters from customers to back up its claim that its "Polyglas tire" was "long lasting." It also said a commercial for its "Custom Power Cushion Polyglas" tire, which the FTC had challenged, was never aired. It speculated the FTC had gotten hold of a script which was later killed.

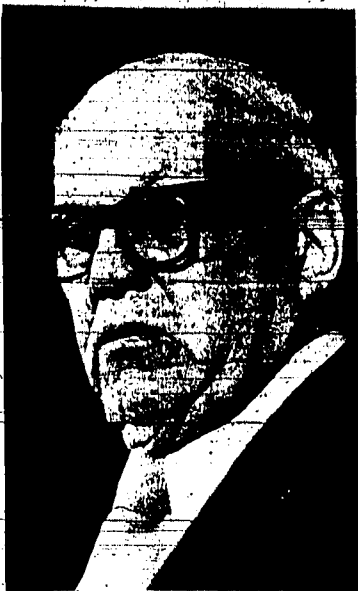

Both Goodrich and Goodyear had safety claims under challenge. Goodrich said its 1971 claim that drivers should buy "wide Strong Silverstone Custom" for a safe vacation was based on test results and the fact that its line, "and other new tires, are safer than worn tires which are on most consumers' cars."

The FTC has asked Goodyear to show how its "Sure Grip IV four-ply nylon cord snow tire with safety spikes" provided safety. The company responded:

"No claim is made in the referenced advertisement that the Sure Grip IV Tire provides safety. 'Safety Spike' is a trademark owned by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co."

It also submitted tests which claimed that studded tires in general are safer on ice and snow.

Uniroyal was asked to substantiate an ad which listed its "Fasttrack," "Laredo," "Fleet Master" and "Tiger Paw" tires and added "Safe tires save lives." The company said the latter phrase was added by a local dealer who was trying to "suggest that new tires are safer than worn ones and to prompt consumers to replace worn tires."

Ellsberg tells jury why he released documents

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Daniel Ellsberg released the Pentagon Papers, he told a jury Monday, because they contained no secrets and he thought the Vietnam War would never end until Congress and the American people realized that.

Ellsberg was to undergo cross-examination today.

"The President couldn't allow it to end in failure, so it wasn't going to end at all," Ellsberg said, testifying at his theft, conspiracy and espionage trial.

"A President is only human and he had the power to postpone the failure into the administration of his successor. That is what had been happening under former Presidents Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson."

The slight, graying former government consultant on national defense appeared exasperated at the opportunity to testify at the trial, stemming from his release of the documents to the news media. He took the classified studies from the Rand Corp. more than three years ago. Anthony Russo Jr. is a codefendant.

Ellsberg said he realized after reading the Pentagon Papers "that the lesson to be drawn was that the war wasn't going to end as long as the power to end it was limited to the executive branch."

Ellsberg said he believed it "couldn't hurt the United States to learn that the explanation for our failure was not, as I had believed when I came back from Vietnam, a combination of good intentions and bad information."

"The President had good information. His intentions are not that easy to defend."

He said he had concluded that "the war would not end until Congress shared with the President the responsibility to end it. They already had the information they needed, if they only realized that there were no secrets, no good reasons, hidden somewhere in the Pentagon Papers."

Prosecutor David Nissen objected to Ellsberg's authoring his motives, so the defense got around that by asking him if he believed that release of the documents would harm the United States.

Auto makers may appeal

DETROIT (UPI) — The U.S. auto industry will have to decide by the end of May if it will take its case against auto emissions standards back to the courts or Congress, Ford President Lee A. Iacocca said Monday.

"The next six weeks will be important, very important," he told newsmen during an informal discussion during the ninth birthday party for the company's Mustang.

Iacocca questioned whether meeting the emission standards originally set for 1975, but delayed one year, will be worth the added cost. That final few percentage points, he said, might add a great deal extra to the cost of a car.

"At some point, politicians will have to tune in to their constituents back home who'll have to pay for these cars," Iacocca said. "The guy in Montana who might have to pay an extra $300 to solve a problem that doesn't affect his area may not be too overjoyed."

Last week, when Environmental Protection Agency Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus delayed the 1975 standards and set interim emission levels, Ford Chairman Henry Ford II said he "went beyond the limits of practicality."

Environmentalists claimed Ruckelshaus had backed down to the auto industry.

But Iacocca said the government "still has our feet to the fire" to work on auto emissions.

EPA may control traffic

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The District of Columbia will propose strict controls over auto traffic in the nation's capital when it submits its plan later this week to meet the 1975 air quality standards established by the Environmental Protection Agency.

But it ran into an immediate roadblock Monday when Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel in asking for a two year delay in meeting the standards said martial law would have to be imposed to cut auto traffic to acceptable levels, partially because of EPA's decision last week to allow auto manufacturers a one year delay in meeting the 1975 air quality standards.

And Virginia Gov. Linwood Holton previously had asked for a two year delay in implementing some of the methods the district wants used to control air pollution caused by automobiles.

Nevertheless, Mayor Walter E. Washington said Monday night he was approving a plan drafted by the city's Environmental Services Department that calls for a 25 per cent decrease in auto traffic in the city, through the use of stiffer parking regulations and costs, an expansion of bus service and strict enforcement of auto exhaust emission standards.

The plan will be reviewed by EPA together with those submitted by governments in the Virginia and Maryland suburbs of Washington and unified into a regional air pollution control program.

Phone calls up

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — The dime phone call is about to go the way of the nickel cigar.

The Washington State Public Utilities Commission agreed Monday that Pacific Northwest Bell could charge 15 cents for pay telephone calls instead of the current 10 cents. The hike was included in a general rate increase for the phone company.

Belfast battles, mail bombs erupt

BELFAST (UPI) — A man was killed and two others wounded today in a gun battle in Belfast's Roman Catholic Ardoyne district.

And in Londonderry at least four letter bombs were mailed to policemen, introducing a new weapon into the violence of Northern Ireland. All were defused. Postoffices and mail boxes were being searched for other possible bombs.

The Belfast gun battle erupted between British paratroops and residents of the Catholic area. Army spokesmen had few details, but spokesmen at Mater Hospital said one dead and one wounded man were there, and the Royal Victoria hospital said it had admitted one man with gunshot wounds.

The dead man was the 77th victim of strife among Catholics, the province's majority Protestants and British security forces since August, 1969.

A gas station was wrecked early today in Portadown, 25 miles southwest of Belfast, by a bomb planted by three armed men.

Police spokesmen said four letter bombs were found and defused in Londonderry. All had been mailed locally Monday afternoon.

Nevada abortions permitted

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — The Nevada Assembly voted 29-10 Monday in favor of a bill to permit abortions in accordance with the recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling.

The measure, which goes to the Senate, passed after lengthy debate between those who said there was no choice and those who said their conscience would not permit them to vote for it.

The bill provides, abortions must be performed by a licensed physician in a hospital or approved medical facility, that advertising of abortion services be forbidden, and that abortions cannot be performed during the last three months of pregnancy, except to save the life of the woman.

Dr. Robert Broadbent, R-Reno, a physician, said defeat of the bill would not deter any Nevada woman from an abortion, since she could go to another state.

"It does not require anyone to have an abortion, nor compel any doctor to perform it," he said. "It guarantees to Nevada women they can have it in this state, under the best conditions."

Cambodia refugees to suffer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wells Klein, who led a study mission to Indochina for the Senate subcommittee on refugees, said Monday that refugees in Cambodia will be "dying by the hundreds and thousands" within two months.

However, Robert H. Nooter of the Agency for International Development told the subcommittee that, "There have been no epidemics and on the whole people have been able to sustain themselves."

Nooter estimated there were 700,000 refugees in Cambodia, about half of them now living in Phnom Penh. A "large majority" of them have been able to care for themselves, he said, many moving in with relatives and friends.

AFL-CIO President George Meany

Meany criticizes Nixon's policies

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — AFL-CIO President George Meany said Monday that President Nixon's economic policy is "a complete and miserable" failure.

In a speech to a labor convention, Meany said the President and his advisors are attempting to mislead the public about the state of the American economy.

"They have the same technique as the Communists," said Meany. "The technique of the Communists is, you never defend, you never talk about anything that went wrong, they never admit anything went wrong. This is the technique of the performers in Washington."

Meany said all three phases of the administration's economic stabilization plan are geared in favor of business and industry and against the worker.

"Up to now, the economic policies of this administration are a complete and miserable group of failures," he said.

"You can't control the wages of the worker, the consumer of this nation unless you control the prices of the things they buy," Meany said.

Meany criticized most of Nixon's advisors and cabinet members, especially Dr. Henry Kissinger. He called Kissinger a good diplomat but a bad economist, and blamed him for the U.S. wheat sale to the Soviet Union.

"I know him (Kissinger) very well and I like him," said Meany. "But I wouldn't trust him to go to the grocery to buy a loaf of bread for me."

DEAR ABBY: That Waterloo, Ia., man who shot and killed a poor little squirrel while the squirrel was eating from a bird-feeder should have been reported to the police.

In the first place, it's against the law to fire a gun within the city limits of Waterloo. And in the second place, it's against the law to hunt squirrels out of season—which is only a few weeks in the fall. And in the third place, I'll bet that man didn't have a hunting license in the first place.

I'm from Waterloo, so I should know.

'Corpse' snores

LONDON (UPI) — When the undertaker opened the coffin to prepare Mrs. Rose Hanover, 85, for embalming, he received the shock of his life. The "corpse" snored.

He called the police and an ambulance took Mrs. Hanover to a hospital where she was reported today in "much improved" condition.

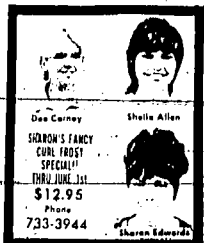

She collapsed in her London apartment last week and was certified dead by Dr. Alfred Beslau.

"By all the normal tests, breathing and heart, she appeared to be dead," he said. "These things happen."

After the doctor left, neighbors paid their last respects and Mrs. Hanover was placed in a coffin. Two hours later, the undertaker opened the coffin after he said he thought he heard strange noises.

Inside, he found Mrs. Hanover asleep and snoring.

Rick Markus is a staunch advocate of the almost indiscriminate use of the four-card major suit opening. Her statement is, "Whenever possible I open the bidding with one heart or one spade whether the suit has four or five cards."

Then she gives an example of a very successful use of an opening spade bid with a weak four-card suit.

The hand was supposedly playing in a pairs event. Her spade opening effectively stole the spade suit from her opponents and after South's three no-trump bid West couldn't lead a spade and led his long suit to collect six tricks in it right off the bat.

At all other tables South played in spades and made 12 tricks. Most were in game, a couple of pairs just got to a part score while some hardy souls actually bid the slam.

This hand certainly shows merit to the random four-card major suit opening. Five-card majors can produce just as devastating examples of bad results due to this type of opening.

We will continue to stand by our own theory which is to avoid four-card major openings as much as possible, but not to leave them entirely out of our bidding kit.

Act enables preservation

Historic iron

AN IRON BALCONY on the old warehouse to the Shoup Building (established by Idaho's first governor) in Salmon is photographed by Arthur Hart, director of the Idaho Historical Museum in Boise. From left, are John Caylor, member of the Idaho Historic Sites Review Board; David G. Ainsworth, board member, and Merle Wells, state historic preservation officer and historian of the Idaho Historical Society. The iron used in the balcony was imported from St. Louis, Mo., and dates back to the 1880's.

SALMON — There is a trend today against eliminating historic buildings and relics since the adoption by Congress in 1966 of a National Historic Sites Preservation Act.

Merle Wells, state historic preservation officer and historian of the Idaho Historical Society, noted the change, saying the act enables identification and protection of some of the historic buildings and places that are disappearing rapidly.

"Both the Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management have been very cooperative in identifying and preserving places of historic interest," he said.

"We already have more than 200 sites identified for the National Register of Historic Places maintained by the National Park Service and we have an additional state inventory of more than 4,000."

The official indicated the list is constantly being expanded and updated.

Wells visited in Salmon the past week, along with Arthur Hart, director of the Idaho Historical Museum, and John Caylor, member of the Idaho Historic Sites Review Board.

On their way to Salmon they inspected old buildings along the Salmon River, including some south of Ellis.

In Salmon, they were shown historic buildings by David G. Ainsworth, Salmon, a member of the Historic Sites Review Board.

Wells said the Idaho Historical Society is interested in these old buildings and log cabins which used to be very common but can't be found too much any more.

Being listed for the National Register of Historic Places are historic sites, buildings of historic or architectural interest and archeological sites.

"We have already listed in the Salmon area, Fort Lemhi, the charcoal kilns near Gilmore and are in the process of listing Gilmore, Leesport, Shoup, Ulysses and rock shelters below Shoup and at Birch Creek," Wells said.

The group photographed old buildings in Salmon including the Shoup Building, churches, including the Episcopal Church and the Herndon Hotel which was the Shenon Building.

Wells noted the Park Service maintains the national register for the protection of sites of historic interest from damage by federally financed projects or federal activities.

He said he was surprised at the number of old cabins along the Salmon River south of Salmon.

"We try to encourage the preservation of the ones that are left. Once they are gone there is no way to replace them."

"In the past federal agencies, such as the Forest Service, in the interest of protecting the forest and the public, had been getting rid of a lot of old cabins and other relics of pioneer days.

Shots intended for diplomat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A New Zealand diplomat said Monday that shots fired through a window of his home by a group of gunmen, identified as members of the Black September Palestinian guerrilla movement, apparently were intended for a Jordanian diplomat.

Gerald C. Hensley, charge d'affaires of the New Zealand embassy, said the shots were fired Sunday night into a bedroom occupied by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard J. Hensley. The bullets barely missed the couple, he said.

Hensley said the gunmen apparently thought they were shooting at a Jordanian diplomat, who previously owned the house in the city's northwest section. He said the Jordanian left the United States two years ago, but had purchased the house only recently.

"That's the only explanation I can think of," he said. "New Zealand has a very low profile on Middle East matters. There should be no reason to attack a New Zealand diplomat."

The assailants scrawled a sign on the side of the house in red letters which read: "There will be a homeland for all or a homeland for none. Death to the Zionists and their functionaries. Black September Group."

Hensley said he wanted the incident publicized to inform the gunmen that the home no longer is occupied by the Jordanian diplomat. Police posted guards around the home after the 2 a.m. shooting.

Hensley said his parents visiting the United States for the first time, were sleeping and the shots missed them by about two feet. But apparently they were not shaken by the incident.

"My father was heartened by a bit of excitement," Hensley said. "After police arrived and rechecked everything out, he brushed the shattered glass off his bed and slept soundly."

Women effective

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., the youngest woman in Congress, says she hopes political party officials start realizing that women make effective and responsive candidates.

Miss Holtzman, 31, who graduated magna cum laude from Radcliffe and holds a law degree from Harvard, said Sunday she is not optimistic that this will happen.

"I hope the examples we've had in this Congress with five new women elected will encourage many party officials to realize the public is perfectly responsive to a woman candidate," she said in a UPI Washington Window interview.

"I'm not confident this will happen. I think the only women will get elected, is the way I got elected, outside the party structure."

To date, "most of the regular party organizations — Republican or Democrat — have failed to take notice of the many women or talent who are involved in politics," she said.

"Women in some ways make up the bedrock of our whole political organization — they're the ones who lick the stamps, write out the envelopes, hold the teas and canvass door to door, and get out the vote and yet the party structure generally ignores them."

Miss Holtzman gained her House seat last year when she upset Rep. Emmanuel Celler, a veteran of 50 years in Congress.

In a food and fitness report prepared for Blue Cross, anthropologist Margaret Mead says she feels one reason so many Americans are overweight is because we still plan our three meals a day in the same way they were planned centuries ago, as if they constituted all the food available to us.

Pirating criticized

BOISE (UPI) — State Auditor Joe R. Williams called today for a crackdown on pirating of personnel among state agencies.

In the past six months, Williams complained, the auditor's office has lost six employees — all persons difficult to replace. Although his own personnel are exempt from merit system coverage, he said, he pays them the Personnel Commission scale for the positions they hold.

Those who raided his staff, he said, have "changed their grade and rating and paid them more money than I can give them."

In addition to luring away his employees, Williams said, the "pirating" agencies failed to contact him in advance about their plans.

Mission removal costs $125,000

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — Structure renovation of the old Cataldo Mission will cost about $125,000 at the bare minimum, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said today.

Andrus made the remark in a speech prepared for delivery at a fund-raising luncheon for the Cataldo Mission restoration.

Both Andrus and Attorney General W. Anthony Park planned to attend the luncheon at the Athletic Roundtable but bad weather grounded their state plane in Boise. J. M. Neil, executive director of the bicentennial commission, planned to read a wire to the luncheon from Andrus in place of the governor's address.

Quoting Geoffrey Fairfax, a restoration architect for the bicentennial commission, Andrus said the mission is without doubt the "most important historic building in Idaho today."

"It is the oldest standing building in the state and is one of two buildings in Idaho that have been singled out by our federal government as national historic landmarks," Andrus quoted Fairfax.

He said the restoration of the mission is the first major bicentennial effort in Idaho. Funds raised for the project will be matched dollar for dollar by federal funds.

Initial efforts are directed at raising $50,000 toward restoration of the old mission.

"This project is one that can be as ambitious as the people of Idaho want it," Andrus said.

Mr. Fairfax has estimated that, at the bare minimum, structure renovation that must be done will cost about $125,000.

Kellogg gets grant

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton says the city of Kellogg, Idaho, will receive a $69,167 land and water conservation grant for a reclamation project.

Morton said the grant is to be matched with an equal amount of local funds to develop a park and playground on a 26-acre mine tailings deposit on the south fork of the Coeur d'Alene River. It will be adjacent to a new junior high school.

Last fall the Pitts were transferred to San Diego where she joined VF 124 and he began preparations to go to sea with Fighter Squadron 90 aboard the USS Constellation.

BOISE (UPI) — The University of Idaho will this week assume responsibility for the health and safety aspects of radioactive materials used on campus.

Twenty-one separate radio active material licenses previously issued to the university are now combined under one board authorization, with a faculty radiation safety committee in charge, according to A. L. Elgren, assistant administrator of the Department of Environmental and Community Services.

Radioactive materials are used on campus for a wide number of projects, including agriculture research, animal behavior studies, chemistry and physics projects.

Individual authorizations previously were provided by the Department of Environmental and Community Services. The department will continue to make periodic inspections of the new campus program.

When their obligated service to the Navy is fulfilled, the couple plan to make their home in Pittsview, Ala.

Controls needed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To keep air pollution under control some major U.S. cities will need long-term restrictions on automobiles, Environmental Protection Agency chief William D. Ruckelshaus said today.

But Ruckelshaus denied his decision to grant automakers a one-year delay in meeting the 1975 air pollution standard was a setback for clean air.

"The decision does not adversely affect air quality in any significant way," Ruckelshaus told a Senate subcommittee on Air and Water Pollution. Under law, the 1975 standards required the automakers to cut carbon monoxide and hydrocarbon emissions by 90 per cent of the 1970 level.

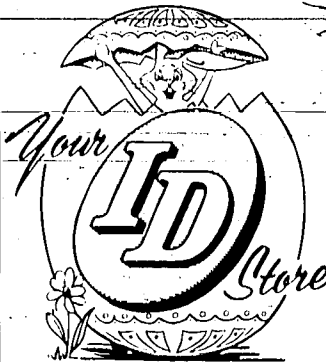

Last Wednesday Ruckelshaus granted the industry a one-year delay but said strict interim standards would be enforced including a requirement that catalytic converter pollution control devices be installed on all cars sold in California.

Even with the 1975 strict standards, Ruckelshaus said he expected about 12 metropolitan areas in the United States still would need "transportation control measures in 1985." But he gave no details on which areas would be affected.

"What we really should be working toward is transportation improvements — more efficient ways of moving people" around large metropolitan areas, he said.

Earlier, a Ralph Nader backed consumer group said General Motors dragged its feet in recalling 100,000 Cadillacs with potential steering failures.

Coffee prices stable

LONDON (UPI) — That cup of coffee shouldn't cost more for the time being.

That, at least, is what U.S. sources said today while studying the decision taken by a 62-nation organization that deals with much of the international coffee trade.

The sources said the decision taken Saturday to end a 10-year system of price supports for the green coffee bean should not immediately change the price the American housewife pays in the supermarket for the country's favorite breakfast beverage.

But sources at the International Coffee Council said the move may provoke a "coffee war" between the United States and the coffee growing countries.

The 62-nation Council, composed of countries that grow or buy coffee, agreed to strip the International Coffee Agreement of its market-intervention powers.

But countries that grow coffee defied a warning from the United States and said they would form their own marketing organization to buy surplus coffee from exporting nations and withhold it from the market—to support prevailing high prices.

"We have no alternative," said a delegate from a South American country as he slipped black coffee during a conference break.

John J. Ingersoll, chief of the U.S. State Department's Tropical Products Division, said any such action would undermine chances of negotiating a new coffee agreement that would include price-supporting machinery.

"Any producer action of that sort to manipulate the market," Ingersoll said, "would certainly very seriously prejudice prospects for any early negotiation of a new agreement."

South American countries accused the United States of high-handed dealing.

"It's like somebody kidnapping your child and demanding ransom with no assurance the child will be returned," one South American said. "They are telling us if we don't behave ourselves we will be sent to bed without our supper."

The Council's decision will extend the agreement for two years beyond its Sept. 30 expiration date.

NY man indicted

NEW YORK (UPI) — A New York man who owns a $200,000 home, a Mercedes-Benz and an original Picasso was held Monday as the "top man" of a cluster of narcotics rings selling up to $16 million worth of heroin a month.

Herbert Sperling, 35, was one of 90 persons indicted by federal and local grand juries over the weekend in what police called the most damaging blow ever dealt to narcotics trafficking in the New York City area.

Another of the 90 defendants was Sperling's 67-year-old mother Cecile, who was accused of keeping heroin and cash for him at her Manhattan apartment.

Prosecutors said Sperling lives in a $200,000 waterfront home on Long Island, owns two boats and a 1973 Mercedes-Benz and has a Picasso hanging in his living room.

Named as Sperling's right-hand man was Norman Goldstein, 70, of New York. His bail was set at $500,000.

Of the 90 persons named, 65 were arrested during the weekend in the New York area and in Detroit.

Federal and state officers said the defendants ran a loosely connected group of rings which could handle up to 220 pounds of heroin a week.

The operation was so enormous, they said, that its curtailment will cause "a severe shortage at the street level."

"Nothing has ever been done before which is more likely to cripple the narcotics traffic in this area," said New York Deputy Police Commissioner William F. McCarthy.

CSI building funds not available

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho President James L. Taylor told the board of trustees Monday night appropriated building funds would not be available this year.

Taylor said he had been in touch with Idaho Department of Public Works Commissioner Max Boesiger, who informed him all building funds were obligated for the 1973 fiscal year.

"We'll just have to wait for a go ahead," Taylor said in reference to $950,000 appropriated by the legislature last session for the first phase of a CSI vocational building on the main campus.

"As lucky as you've been about getting funds," board member Robert S. Blustock, Jr., began kiddingly before Taylor interrupted in the same vein that his fund raising efforts had not been a matter of luck.

In other business, the board of trustees approved a recommendation that the college establish 72 trustee scholarships, 40 to go to students in Twin Falls and Jerome counties and 32 to go to out-of-district students in Junior College Area 4, which includes Blaine, Camas, Cassia, Gooding, Lincoln and Minidoka counties.

Taylor told the board the scholarships will cost about $15,000 and will be similar to scholarships provided by other state-supported institutions. He said the scholarships, which will be awarded by committee, will be based primarily on scholastic achievement and activities.

The board also approved free tuition for area-four residents 65 years of age or older and approved calls for bids on a lawn mower and two ten-passenger vans.

Taylor recommended, and the board approved, the transfer of $3,000 from the college's maintenance and operation budget to support baseball and track this spring.

The board also approved the acceptance of bids on new accounting equipment to be used in the business office.

Taylor said the college hoped to purchase or lease a small computer to aid in accounting procedures. He estimated the equipment would cost "in excess of $25,000."

Karl Black, who was appointed business manager at CSI last month to replace retiring Herbert W. Van Slyke, was elected to the additional post of secretary-treasurer of the board. The board also accepted the resignations of two employees and approved the employment of five others.

In his monthly report, Taylor asked the board to recognize the "tremendous job" done by J. D. McCollum on the state board of education prior to his retirement last week. Taylor also commended students on student elections held last week. "I'm not sure the winners were elected," he joked, adding, "We feel the student elections were very good."

2 new areas annexed by TF City Council

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two new areas were annexed to Twin Falls Monday night by the city council.

The areas at the northwest and northeast corners of the city were both annexed as residential zoned property for development as housing areas. Twenty acres of land located at the corner of Falls Avenue and Washington Street, owned by Dave Armstrong, was annexed. The property is across from the College of Southern Idaho, and was annexed on recommendation of the Planning and Zoning Commission as residential, medium density.

The developer had asked for annexation of 20 acres of his 30-acre tract and the annexation request was then revised at the request of the council to include 30 acres. Monday night the council dropped the additional 10 acres after discussing the fact it is not planned for development at this time and is for sale.

The other annexation involves part of a 3.5 acre tract at Eastland Drive and Stadium Boulevard. It was annexed as residential, low density. Both annexation ordinances were approved on third and final reading under suspension of the rules.

A letter was received from Twin Falls West, asking annexation of 27.7 acres in the vicinity of the College of Southern Idaho and adjacent to present Twin Falls West housing development. The request was transferred to the Planning and Zoning Commission for public hearing and recommendation.

The city also approved a rate change on parking lot lease spaces. On recommendation of the Twin Falls Off-Street Parking Committee, the council adopted a three point program.

Rates for parking on mall parking lots were increased to $7.50 per month and on the Hinkley parking lot, formerly the Bill Workman auto lot north of Second Avenue East, to $6 per month. All fees were previously $5 per month.

The city also approved reserving two parking spaces near Shoshone Street on Main Avenue for handicapped persons.

The third recommendation approved will remove leased signs from 14 spaces on downtown parking lots to release these for public use as meters are available. Some used meters may be purchased for this purpose, Councilman Winston Jones, committee member, said.

Student gives talk

GLENNIS FERRY — Zalde Cavalcanti, Recife, Brazil, exchange student at the Glenns Ferry High School, gave a talk on Brazil at the Monday noon luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce.

Sheriff Earl Winters and Elmore County Clerk William Trail attended the luncheon at Hansen's Cafe, and discussed the bond election to be held on Tuesday, for a new jail facility for Elmore county.

The Chamber voted to donate $100 toward the 4th of July fireworks. It had considered helping with the cost of new Christmas street decorations, but the city of Glenns Ferry will assume full cost of the decorations.

Kimberly curfew

KIMBERLY — A new 10 p.m. curfew ordinance in Kimberly has not yet needed enforcing, police chief James Campbell said Monday.

"Things have been very quiet," Campbell said. "We have had quite a few calls from people telling us they approved of the curfew," he said.

The curfew for youths below age 18 was changed from midnight to 10 p.m. by the Kimberly City Council April 10.

Theft probed

TWIN FALLS — City police are investigating the theft of three guns from a parked automobile late Monday night.

Lennie and Lamont Manksie told officers their pickup truck was parked at the D.J. parking lot between 11:30 p.m. Monday and 1:35 a.m. today. During that time, they said, someone broke out a front window and removed two rifles and a shotgun valued at $174.

Blaine hears proposals

By TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News writer

HALLEY — Development of a comprehensive plan and joint city-county planning cooperation were among the recommendations for Blaine County during a planning workshop here.

Designed to discuss issues presently being examined in the county, guests at Saturday's meeting include Donald E. Knickrehm, and assistant state attorney general, Neal Sampson, and Robert Wise, state planning officer.

Inclusion of Camas County in such planning workshops. "A lot of issues and problems are going to be the same. It is doubtful that you can separate" the two counties, he said.

Speaking in favor of a comprehensive plan, Knickrehm said planning was an evolving process. Through a continuing study process, he said the county can look at all its needs, determine future direction, and possibly rethink past decisions.

Knickrehm said the process would insure that the county and the planning and zoning commission base their decisions on the best data available and develop a "concrete basis to make decisions."

Sampson said counties "never seem to be able to forecast the types of things which will happen."

He said he felt that Blaine County had the best planning and zoning ordinance that exists in any rural county in the state. However, he said land use law is developing so fast, "a considerable new set of ground rules" can presently be taken into consideration.

Wise discussed several joint city-county planning projects within the state. "Unless the county and cities plan together, each will inherit the same problems," he said.

Knickrehm said a joint planning effort would retain existing planning and zoning commission lines of jurisdiction, but would enable a city to have access to a planning staff through joint participation with the county and other area cities.

Minidoka airs teachers pay

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

RUPERT — A new teachers salary schedule with a base figure of $6,500 was proposed by superintendent Dr. Darrell Hatfield at a meeting with Minidoka County teachers this afternoon.

The teachers originally asked for a base of $6,700, giving them an average increase of over 11 percent. Dr. Hatfield's proposal provides for an average increase of about 9.8 per cent, with $200 increments each year. With fringe benefits included, he said, the average increase would be about 11.4 per cent.

Dr. Hatfield's proposal would follow the same format as the proposals the teachers originally presented, except with a lower starting salary. The top figure, said Dr. Hatfield, would be over $10,000. "This schedule 'would' be within the figures we have budgeted at this point," he said.

Lee Merrill, head of the teachers' salary committee, proposed a schedule revised from the earlier proposal with a base salary of $6,000. The proposal would be an increase of $232,256 in instructional salaries, he said.

Because two of the twelve months included in the salary schedule will come under the next year's budget, Merrill said, the increase in dollar amount would be within the budget. "It wouldn't leave any extra money," Merrill said.

Doyle Lowder, assistant superintendent, said the proposal would be "stretching it pretty thin" by anticipating revenues for the next year.

Hatfield proposed the $6,500 base salary "to give a little more freedom to move."

Final decisions on the salary schedule will be made at a special school board meeting Monday night.

Teachers see no changes

The assistant superintendent said a rough estimate of the total cost involved for the extended family coverage was between $57,000 to $60,000 and with the recent salary raise of 11.32 per cent, there "isn't money left to do anything else."

He said the negotiation team will be willing to meet again later, but no definite time was set and there was general agreement that if, as time goes on, money should be available, the extended coverage could be brought up again.

No action was taken on the other issue presented by the teachers, regarding adjustment in sick leave. Meyer said it was concluded that further study is needed before any changes can be made about the teachers' "didn't have enough to go on."

Each teacher now is entitled to nine days sick leave per year, an increase of one day from previous years. The number of sick leave days is set by the legislature, Meyer said.

Teachers also may accumulate up to 90 days over their career. This is also set by the state, but a local school board can increase, but not decrease, the number.

Teachers also can now take several days at a time, Meyer said.

The teachers were represented by Gordon Armstrong, John Darrington and Doris Williams, while Meyer and trustees, Dr. Howard Rank and John Wolfe represented the administration.

Trestle repair slated

TWIN FALLS — A railroad trestle damaged by fire in March will be repaired, a Union Pacific Railroad spokesman said Monday.

The trestle, located about seven miles southwest of Twin Falls, is closed to travel because the railroad considers it unsafe. As a result, trains cannot operate over the line linking Twin Falls and Wells, Nev., beyond that point.

William Hendricks, UP traffic representative in Twin Falls, said Monday materials are on order to repair the wooden trestle and some have been received here. The work will require use of a pile driver, which has been requested, he said.

A bridge repair crew will be required to do the work, but there has been no indication when it will arrive in Twin Falls.

Hendricks said a work order for the project has been issued by the road.

The trestle was damaged when a grass fire along the canal banks nearby spread to the wooden structure.

Traffic over the Twin Falls-Wells branch was light in the weeks prior to the trestle being damaged, with only a few trains moving to serve elevators at Berger, Hollister and Amsterdam.

In January, the UP dropped scheduled service on the line. Instead, train service would be provided when requested by shippers along the line.

Hollister water supply dwindles

FILER — Hollister will be without water for several days.

The motor on the pump which furnishes water for the town was burned out sometime Monday morning, city officials said.

Most residents were warned about the dwindling water supply to permit them to store enough for a day or two.

Hollister mayor, Charles Shepherd said tanks full of water probably will be hauled to the town for people to get with buckets for drinking purposes. Ranchers in the area who have their own wells will be able to supply water for some people until the well pump is again working.

The pump, situated six miles east of Hollister, was installed five years ago, Shepherd said.

Water flows downhill into the Hollister water system.

Shepherd said he did not know how long it would take to repair the pump.

Should a new pump have to be procured, it could take from three to seven days before the well would be operating, he said.

Hollister schools were dismissed Tuesday until the pump is repaired, according to Howard Kinsfather, principal.

An emergency supply supplied the school with enough water for Monday. Students will be notified when classes at Hollister will again resume. The school buses in the area will run as usual to transport students who come to Filer to school.

Gooding school budget approved

GOODING — The Gooding school board approved a proposed budget of $708,286 for the 1973-74 school year at a regular meeting Monday night.

The total budget shows an increase of $67,673 over last year's total budget figure of $620,613.

The total revenue projection for this year's budget is $775,499, compared to last year's figure of $608,649. General fund revenue from school district taxes this year is set at $268,147 compared to $239,851 last year. This includes sales tax money, distributed through the county.

Other local income totals $7,000 compared to $5,000 last year. State and county foundation programs funding total $432,602 compared to $340,640. Other programs total $6,750 compared to $7,150 last year.

A breakdown of major budget items shows a decrease of $19,000 in the amount budgeted for administrative salaries because the district did not budget for a school psychologist for the 1973-74 year.

The total budgeted for administrative salaries is $23,334 compared to $33,288. Other administrative expense is set at $7,600 compared to $7,000 last year.

Instructional salaries are budgeted at $372,389 compared to $416,669 last year. The increase includes a seven per cent pay increase this year, as well as fringe benefits and two extra teachers. Other instructional expense is set at $27,775 compared to $22,550.

Pupil transportation expense increased due to a new bus contract. It is set at $52,500 for 1973-74 compared to $48,946 last year.

Supt. James Muscat said that other increases in the budget are due to increased costs.

Operation of plant salaries was set at $33,405 compared to $27,810 last year. Plant operation expenditures were set at $37,093 compared to $21,000 last year. Plant maintenance expenditures will be $26,250 compared to $21,000.

Fixed charges showed a decrease for 1973-74. They were set at $12,140 compared to $15,400. Capital outlay was budgeted at $15,800 compared to $4,200 last year.

Review of bids asked in Gooding

GOODING — Marvin Pierson met with the Gooding City Council Monday night to request that the bids for the sidewalk to the new high school be reviewed.

Pierson said "bidding requirements were not followed and that his bid and that of Clark and Becker should be reconsidered."

At the April 3 council meeting, the Clark and Becker bid of $4,340 was accepted by the council.

Mayor Harley Crippen told Pierson that the bid of Clark and Becker will still be accepted and that the matter is closed.

The council discussed changing the number of polling places in the city. It was agreed that the polling places will not be decreased and the city will continue to operate two polls.

Tom Yates, Joplin, Mo., met with the council to discuss work on the city's spare water tank. Yates said that the tank was in exceptionally good condition and could not be replaced at present for less than $75,000-$80,000. He estimated a cost of $7,360 for the necessary work to put the tank back into service if needed. The council took the matter under advisement.

Councilman Don Sims announced that the city will call for bids for a police car and told the council the fire department will purchase a

Olympian Anderson wins Boston event

By GIL PETERS
UPI Sports Writer

BOSTON (UPI) — Olympian Jon Anderson, son of the mayor of Eugene, Ore., topped the last six miles uncontested Monday in an unseasonable heat to run away with the 77th Boston Marathon in a time of 2:16:03.

Anderson, 23, a conscientious objector who ran in the 10,000-meter race in the 1972 Munich Olympics, caught defending champion Olavi Suomalainen of Finland on the second of three brutal hills 19 miles into the race.

Suomalainen, 26, who won last year in a time of 2:15:39, developed a cramp in the right side coming up the hill but managed to finish third. Tom Fleming of William Paterson College was second in 2:17:46, followed by Suomalainen in 2:18:21.

Jackeline Hansen, of California State University, won the women's division, placing 326th in the field. Last year's winner, Nina Kuscsik of Huntington Station, N.Y., was second.

Anderson was the first American to win the marathon since 1908 when Amby-Dufford of Wesleyan University took the laurel wreath.

Anderson, who finished five minutes and 33 seconds off the record of 2:10:30 set in 1970 by Ron Hill of England, appeared undrained by the 77 degree temperature and cruised the last quarter of the race unchallenged. "I seem to run well in the heat," said Anderson, a Cornell University graduate who now works as an orderly in a San Francisco hospital where he was assigned after gaining his conscientious objector status. "This is my best time."

Anderson, after freshening up from his victory, threw off the laurel wreath that is symbolic of victory and picked up the phone to call his wife at their San Mateo, Calif., home. But she was not in, so he called his parents in Eugene.

"Ma, I won, can you believe it?" Anderson yelled over the phone. "I just feel great, I can't believe it."

Suomalainen couldn't believe the heat. The defending champion said it was the first time in his racing career that he had developed a cramp. "It happens," he said through an interpreter. "This time it happened to me. Next time it could be him."

Anderson ran a clever race, holding 150 yards behind early leader Lutz Philipp for the first half of the race in a cluster of runners that included Suomalainen and Fleming.

But Philipp burned himself out in the heat and wilted at the halfway mark as Fleming made his bid. Within two miles Suomalainen made his kick to take the lead only to be slowed to a trot by the cramp a short time later.

Anderson ran as if he were flattening out the hills. "I kept trying to figure out where Heartbreak Hill (the third and longest incline) was," Anderson said. "All I could think of the last couple of miles was that I won the damn thing."

Anderson was not considered a threat going into the race but he has been an underdog before. Last year he finished third in the Olympic 10,000-meter trial in his native city. He called that finish "the biggest race of my life," even more prestigious than the marathon victory, which topped his best previous time by eight minutes.

WINNER OF THE 77th running of the Boston Marathon on Monday is Jon Anderson, 21 (4), son of the mayor of Eugene, Ore., as he puts his arm around Olavi Suomalainen of Finland, last year's winner who came in third. Suomalainen developed a cramp in his right side running up the Newton, Mass., hills. Anderson's winning time was 2:16:03. (UPI Telephoto).

Marathon winner found his way around quickly on treacherous Boston course

By WALTER F. ROCHE

BOSTON (UPI) — For a guy who never saw the treacherous Boston Marathon course before running it Monday, Jon Anderson found his way around in a hurry.

Anderson finished the 26-mile, 385-yard hill-plagued course in 2:16:03, eight minutes faster than he had ever run that distance before. "I run my best races in the heat," said the 23-year-old son of the mayor of Eugene, Ore.

Anderson said his only other glimpse of the marathon course came when, "I took the trolley out to Boston College for the relays (while an undergraduate at Cornell University) but that's all I saw."

In fact Anderson said he wasn't sure that he had reached famed Heartbreak Hill until he was past it. "I kept trying to figure out where it was," he said. "It's not steep and it's not long. It's just where it is."

The downhill portions of the three inclines bothered the runner as much as the uphill segments.

"Going downhill is really rough too; it's the pounding that really gets me in the thighs. It's not the wind."

Anderson, a lanky strider who now lives with his wife in San Mateo, Calif., said he paced himself conservatively and drank just a little water along the way.

Only a few weeks before the race, he said, he had become depressed and had considered dropping out. "I called my dad and he convinced me the race was important and worth running. So I went ahead," Anderson said.

Right after the race, Anderson called his parents at their Eugene, Ore., home and yelled, "Ma, I won! Can you believe it?" Anderson had called his wife, Yvonne, first, but she was not at home.

The young victor, a 1971 Cornell graduate, who majored in economics, was running in his fourth marathon. He appeared in the 1972 Munich Olympics as a 10,000-meter contestant but finished poorly.

After graduation, Anderson was granted conscientious objector status and was assigned to work on a kitchen orderly in a hospital near his home.

"There's a Stanford graduate in industrial engineering washing pots and pans right alongside of me," he said.

Jackie Hansen defeats favorite for victory

BOSTON (UPI) — Jackie Hansen trained two years for the Boston Marathon and Monday it paid off when she outran 13 other women, including the highly touted favorite, Nina Kuscsik, the defending champion of the women's division.

Miss Kuscsik, of Huntington Station, N.Y., finished second among the women.

"It makes you feel so good," said Miss Hansen. "I trained for this for two years."

She felt so good, she said, "tonight I'm going to have a pepperoni pizza and a root beer freeze."

Miss Hansen, who finished 326th in the field of 1,384 with a time of 3:06:26, said the only thing she was afraid of in the race was the heat.

"Every marathon runner fears the sun," said the 24-year-old senior English major from Granada Hills, Calif. "But when I got within two miles of the finish, I knew I could make it. Everyone was cheering me on. Boston people are so good to you."

Although she attends California State University-Northridge, she said she had to train for the race "with the boys at Valley Junior College."

"I don't think a woman could ever win this race. The men have been doing this for so long," she said. "The best man could never be beaten, even by the best woman."

The Boston race was Miss Hansen's second marathon. She won the recent Culver City Marathon, which she said, "was a lot better."

She is coached by Lasse Tabors, the fourth man to run the mile in under four minutes. Tabors fled to the U.S. after the 1956 Hungarian Revolution.

"The whole town chipped in to send me here," she said. "They raised over $300 in a month through bottle drives and cosmetic sales."

She is the daughter of Herbert and Dene Hansen.

John Wilson tells about Wings job

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (UPI) — John Wilson wishes the next coach of the Detroit Red Wings well.

"I don't think any coach in existence could go through the strain I went through here in Detroit," Wilson said Monday in his farewell to the club that fired him last Friday after nearly two seasons as its coach.

"They wanted a yes man as a coach," he said, adding the front office tandem of General Manager Ned Harkness and Vice President Jim Bishop was "taking pot shots at me all the time."

"Those two got their turn in front of media microphones today at a news conference the Red Wings have scheduled to answer criticism that they weren't available for comment after firing Wilson.

"Mr. Bishop and Mr. Norris (Bunce, the team's owner), they wanted to coach the team," Wilson said. "If I had stayed in that kind of a situation I would have become a door opener."

"I wasn't Gordie Howe as a player but I felt qualified to coach," said Wilson, who revealed that during the season he quit once, was later fired, and said he would have quit during the summer even if he had been rehired.

"They (Harkness and Bishop) have been in existence three years and they haven't made the playoffs," Wilson said. "I'll match my record against theirs any time."

Wilson was hired to replace Doug Mackay when Detroit was 3-8 early in the 1971-72 season and the Red Wings responded to his stern training methods by winning 30-27-10 for a 33-35-10 overall record.

Last season the Red Wings were 37-29-12 but missed the playoffs for the third straight year and sixth time in the last seven seasons enough to fire Wilson, Harkness said.

"They wanted me to bench some outstanding players," Wilson said. "But quite frankly, we didn't have that many outstanding players. There's a tendency to oversell the players here."

"I don't think the Red Wings have to search too far for a coach," Wilson said, sweating from the television lights. "He's right in the building. Jim Bishop should be the coach."

He said the Red Wings only invited retired superstar Howie in "one or two times" for advice.

"Gordie has accumulated more knowledge in his little finger than anybody in the entire building. In fact, I think he's responsible for every brick in the building," Wilson said.

"I don't know how much trouble I'll have getting a job," Wilson said. "I'll be a hot potato after this."

Hitting powers Tigers past Sox

BOSTON (UPI) — Two four run explosions, the second highlighted by Willie Horton's first home run of the season, powered the Detroit Tigers to a 9-7 victory over the Boston Red Sox Monday in the traditional Patriot's day morning game.

All eight runs were charged to Boston starter and loser Marty Pattin, who lasted 3 2-3 innings after waiting nine days to make his second pitching appearance of the season.

The Tigers pounded Pattin for 10 hits, five of them coming in the first inning. Dick McAuliffe led off the game with a bunt single and after two outs, Norm Cash and Gates Brown singled around an error by Smith in centerfield for two runs. Horton was hit by a pitch and Aurelio Rodriguez and Mickey Stanley each singled in a run.

fourth by Horton's homer, which came after consecutive doubles by Al Kaline and Cash and an intentional walk to Gates Brown.

The ninth Detroit run came on Tony Taylor's home run off left-hander Bill Lee in the eighth inning.

All eight runs were charged to Boston starter and loser Marty Pattin, who lasted 3 2-3 innings after waiting nine days to make his second pitching appearance of the season.

Baltimore manager charged

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — Earl Weaver, the manager of the Baltimore Orioles, was charged with drunken driving and malicious destruction of property Monday after he allegedly kicked a door and fender of a Maryland State police car.

A spokesman for the state police said Weaver and his wife were stopped on the Baltimore Beltway near the Loch Raven Blvd. exit in Towson by State Trooper James C. Slocum after he spotted Weaver's car weaving from lane to lane.

Weaver was charged with drunken driving and failing to stay within a single lane. Police said he refused to take a breathalyzer test.

The police spokesman also said that Weaver said some "unpleasant things" to officer Slocum and kicked the right front door and fender of the patrol car, causing an estimated $50 damage.

He was taken before a commissioner in Towson and released on $500 bond, pending trial May 21 in District Court.

Wynn named player of week

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Jimmy Wynn of the Houston Astros Monday was named the first Player of the Week for the National League's 1973 season.

League president Charles S. Feeney said the honor was for Wynn's six home runs and the 10 runs driven in during the 11 games while in the lead-off position from opening day on April 6 through last Sunday.

Eight of the left fielder's hits were for extra bases, and in addition to the six homers he collected a triple and a double.

Wynn's 15 hits in 48 at bats give him an average of .313

Kentucky director suspended

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — The president of the University of Kentucky said Monday the director of the athletic-tutoring program at the school has been suspended from his duties pending further investigation of a case involving Kentucky quarterback James "Dinky" McKay.

Dr. Otis Singletary said an investigation had confirmed there was improper administration of the tutoring program in the McKay case and ordered Ronald Allen removed as program administrator pending further investigation.

The UK president also directed the dismissal of a student assistant in the program, William Crissey.

Singletary said an investigation established that Allen obtained materials prepared by a UK coach to be used by McKay, Kentucky's first-string quarterback last season, in a history correspondence course last summer.

The coed, Mary Oldiges of Camp Springs, Ky., said she was paid $50 for doing a term paper and 13 homework assignments for McKay in the course.

Field for Indy 500 increasing

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Twelve more entries, including three from Dan Gurney and two from three-time winner A. J. Foyt, were announced Monday to increase the field for the Indianapolis "500" auto race to 74.

Speedway officials said about a half dozen additional entries, all postmarked before the midnight April 15 deadline, were expected for the 57th running on May 28.

Gurney's All-American Racers of Santa Ana, Calif., will again feature Bobby Unser and Jerry Grant. They will drive new Eagles powered by Drake-Offenhauser turbo-charged engines.

Gurney also entered a backup machine, another new Eagle. Foyt entered two new Coyotes equipped with V8 engines he now owns.

Two cars were entered by Grant King Racers of Indianapolis, one for Steve Krisiloff, Parsippany, N.J., and the other without a driver.

A turbo-charged Offenhauser was entered by Washington Championship Racers, Inc., for Tom Sieva, a rookie from Sprague, Wash.

Kentucky topples Carolina Cougars

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Dan Isaac, with 19 points, and Artis Gilmore, with 19, restored the Kentucky Colonels' inside scoring punch Monday night and they whipped the Carolina Cougars 108-94 to take a 2-1 lead in their ABA Eastern Division final playoff series.

The Colonels slowed Carolina down and used their muscle inside to average a 125-105 shellacking Saturday when the Cougars minimized their inside game.

Billy Cunningham, a one-man gang for Carolina Saturday, was no significant factor as the Colonels limited him to 14 points.

The fourth game of the series will be played here Wednesday night before the teams return to Greensboro, N.C., Friday night for game No. 5 in the best-of-seven series.

The Colonels struck for nine straight points early in the first quarter to grab a 12-4 lead and Carolina never got closer than five points the rest of the way.

Kentucky benefitted from a superb relief performance by unheralded substitute Ron Thomas, who collected 15 points and 10 rebounds as well as helping out in defending Cunningham.

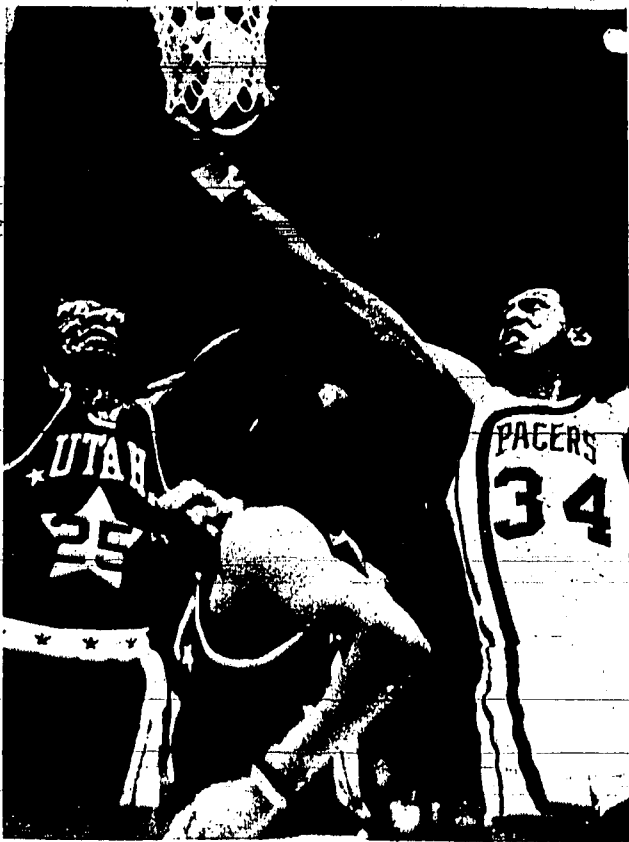

With Cunningham pretty effectively stymied, the Cougars had to rely on center Tom Owens for their biggest scoring output and he finished with 17 points. Mack Calvin contributed 16 points and Joe Caldwell 12 points and seven assists for Carolina.

Isaac appeared to get a big psychological lift from the return to action of Louie Dampier for the first time in 11 games. Dampier, who had been sidelined with a cracked bone in his left foot, scored nine points and handed out three assists in his 11 minutes of action.

The Colonels ruled the trackboards with a 61-50 margin in rebounds.

Flyers are confident about playoff tilt with Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Philadelphia Flyers, buoyed by their overtime defeat of the Montreal Canadiens in the opener of their semi-final Stanley cup series, are confident they can dent the Canadiens' pride a second time.

The Flyers, who felled the Canadiens 5-4 here Saturday, meet Montreal here again Tuesday for the second game of their best-of-seven series.

Flyers center Rick MacLeish, who got the biggest goal of his career when he swiped the puck off Canadiens' Frank Mahovlich's stick and winged it past Ken Dryden at 2:56 of the overtime period, was certain the Flyers will prove the first win wasn't a fluke.

"As long as we can stay with their skaters, we'll win," MacLeish said.

"We did that on Saturday and we'll do it again in the other games of this series," he said.

Although most experts forecast a rough opening game because of the Flyers' regular season record of 1756 minutes in penalties, both clubs stuck to hockey and Montreal coach Scotty Bowman does not look for anything different in the second contest.

"I don't expect the Flyers to start fighting for no reason at all," Bowman said.

"All these reports of the fighting between our two teams were exaggerated. There were actually only two fights in the five games we played against them during the regular season."

The Montreal coach was more concerned over the way his team has performed in this year's playoffs against both Buffalo, whom they defeated in the quarter finals in four games out of six, and the Flyers.

"I'm disappointed in the goals against us and we'll have to improve in that department in the next game," Bowman said, without pointing a finger at anyone in particular.

"I look for a faster game on Tuesday. Saturday night both clubs looked tired because of the tremendous strain over the past 10 days. But now with a few days off between games both clubs will be well rested for the rest of the series," he said.

Asked if he felt losing the home leg advantage would make a difference, Bowman answered: "We lost on home ice in the other series, too; so it won't make any difference."

"Our forwards have just been wasting too much time passing the puck instead of shooting. But this will improve, too," he said.

Record holder predicts mark for member of track club

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "If he can correct his form, Steve Williams can run the 220 in 16.1," John Smith, holder of the world 440-yard dash record, told the Southern California track writers Monday.

"He will run sub 20 seconds this year anyway," the former UCLA star continued. "Steve wobbles all over the track when he runs and still did 49.8 last year."

Williams, 19, from Brooklyn, N.Y., ran as a freshman at the University of Texas-Ft. Paso last year but has transferred to San Diego State where he will be eligible for the 1964 track season. He currently is competing for the San Diego track club.

At the Trojan Invitational here last weekend, he won his sections of the 100 and 200 in 9.6 and 21.2, respectively, despite a strong headwind. He also clocked 46.4 in his leg of the mile relay, which the San Diego team won in the year's best clocking—3:06.0.

Smith said he was satisfied with his performance in taking second behind Maurice Peoples of Arizona State in the 440. Peoples won by two yards in 45.9. Smith was timed in 46.2.

University of Southern California coaches Vern Wolfe and Ken Matsuda said they planned to go ahead with the Trojan Invitational next year despite the small attendance of 2,151 at the Coliseum Saturday.

Wolfe announced that Olympic long jump gold medalist Randy Williams would return to action next Saturday after a month's layoff due to a leg injury. He plans to run Williams in both sprints as well as entering him in the long jump in a Pacific-8 dual meet against Stanford.

Wolfe said he plans to do a lot of experimenting and will run Don Quarrie in the 440 relay and the open 440 and move half-miler James Baxter up to the mile.

Xavier position filled

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Former University of Cincinnati head basketball coach Tay Baker ended several days of speculation Monday when he became the new head basketball coach at Xavier University.

Baker, a native of Hamilton, Ohio, resigned his post at UC two years ago after compiling a 125-60 record in seven seasons.

A UC graduate and former Bearcat basketball player, Baker told a news conference he had no misgivings about becoming the head coach at UC's cross-town rival.

"I left a good job, I know that," Baker said. "I feel very strongly about UC, but that has no effect on my position here (Xavier). I have another job to do now."

Baker succeeds Dick Campbell who resigned last month after the Musketeers posted a 3-23 season, the worst in Xavier's basketball history.

Baker played on the Bearcat basketball teams of 1948-49-50, and served as assistant to Ed Jucker when UC traveled to the NCAA finals three years in succession, winning the national title in 1961 and 1962.

Favorite prepares for derby

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secretariat, the horse being touted as an almost certain Triple Crown winner in some corners, takes his final workout Tuesday morning for Saturday's mile and an eighth Wood Memorial, his last test before shipping to Kentucky for the May 5 Kentucky Derby.

As usual, clockers galore will be on hand to see just what the son of Bold Ruler will do this time.

Ron Turcotte, who will ride the horse Saturday and in the Derby, Preakness and Belmont, will be aboard as usual for the training spin.

"He's a dream to be around," says Turcotte of Secretariat. "He's willing to do anything you ask him to."

Turcotte recalled with a grin the colt's first training effort at Belmont after he had shipped in from Florida, where he hadn't raced, saving his three-year-old debut for Aqueduct's Bay Shore.

"Mr. Laurin (trainer Lucien Laurin) told me to let him roll that day," the jockey recalled.

In Florida, Secretariat had been taking long workouts, so Laurin decided to sharpen him up by letting him go. And go he did, clocking three furlongs in a dazzling 32.3 seconds as clockers gasped.

Secretariat's prime rival in the mile and an eighth Wood will be Santa Anita Derby winner, Sham, who has been pronounced "ready" by trainer Frank Martin.

Player arrives for tourney

TOKYO (UPI) — Gary Player arrived Monday from South Africa to compete in the Chunichi Crowns golf tournament which begins April 26 at Nagoya.

Player, the defending PGA champion and the only foreigner ever to win the Masters, said he was completely recovered from surgery he underwent in February which prevented him from competing in the Masters for the first time in 17 years.

In his last tournament appearance in Japan, in May, 1972, Player came from behind to win the Japan Air Lines open in nearby Chiba prefecture.

Player departed by train for Osaka Monday night and will go to Nagoya next Monday to practice at the Nagoya Golf Club's Wago course for the Chunichi Crowns tournament.

The defending champion is Australia's Peter Thomson, five-time British Open champion.

High school star overcomes odds to tie vaulting mark

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Wisconsin's long, rugged winters, sparse indoor facilities and relatively small population aren't conducive to the building of prep track stars.

That's why Madison West High School's Kim Scott, who tied the national prep indoor pole vault record last month, is considered an anomaly.

Scott, a 5-foot-10, 140-pound senior, sailed over the crossbar at 16-feet-3 1/2 inches during a local meet to tie the California Paul Wilson's indoor mark and he became the first Wisconsin high school student to ever hold a national track and field record, even though he only had a share of it.

But he joined such illustrious company as Jim Ryun, Randy Matson, Herb Washington and dozens of others who shone in their high school track days.

On his second try at the Madison-West relay, he brushed the bar with his chin. It shook but stayed up.

"I thought seriously that the bar was going down," he said. "Then I realized it was going to stay and I jumped out of the pit."

Scott's coach, Don Loker, said he picked up a "vast amount of knowledge" at the 1972 Olympics in Munich, which he attended with his father, a physician.

Scott and his father filmed the pole vaulters and then studied the films when they returned to America.

"But Kim was going real well before he went there," said Loker, adding that the youth has a good chance at the national interscholastic outdoor record of 16 feet 7 inches set by Casey Carrigan of Orting, Wash., and Robert Pollard of Los Angeles Senior in 1969.

The indoor record is another story and the chances apparently are finished that Scott will hold it alone. Since he tied the mark he participated in three meets—the final three of the indoor season—and his best effort was 15 feet 8 1/2 inches.

So he has set his sights on the national outdoor mark, which Loker thinks might be attainable.

"Scott's weather is decent. He's the best pole vaulter I've had here," Loker said.

Yanks purchase Jim Ray Hart

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Yankees Monday purchased veteran third baseman Jim Ray Hart from the San Francisco Giants for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Hart, who was 0-for-3 at the time of his purchase, will be used by the Yankees as a right-handed, designated hitter.

Hampered by injuries the past few seasons, Hart appeared in 24 games for the Giants last year, batting .304 with five home runs. He spent most of '72 with the Giants' Phoenix farm club, however, where he batted .323 with 18 homers and 77 runs batted in, before being recalled by the parent club.

Donnie Freeman added 29 points and Roger Brown picked up 22 for Indiana.

Utah took the lead in the first period and had a 50-47 spread at the half. But Indiana spurred midway in the third period and

Some goat units get aerial units

Mountain goats try to find cover under a rock, ledge, fir tree or in a cave whenever the sound of low flying aircraft alerts them. They are hard for observers to see at this time of year against a snow background. Fish and Game Department workers who make trend counts say that goats are the only big game species which occupy essentially the same habitat they did 100 years or more ago.

Already living at the top of the world, there is no higher place for mountain goats to go, no place of retreat to avoid collision with the activities of man. For example, Frank DeShon, Idaho Falls assistant regional game manager in the Upper Snake, commented that he observed six billy goats at 10,500 feet, belly deep in snow during a recent flight at the head of the East Fork of the Salmon River and Germania Creek.

He found 40 adult goats and 25 year-old kids at about 8,500 feet on the south side of the White Cloud Mountains. Sixteen other goats were observed. Also reported were one bighorn sheep, one cougar and one golden eagle. As winter comes, mountain goats sometimes increase their elevation to reach available food on windswept ridges and sometimes they migrate to somewhat lower areas; but mostly they stay where they are, summer and winter. Food is the key to the short migration of goats.

In a separate flight over the four goat wintering areas north of Ellis (unit 37-A) Lonn Kuck, goat research biologist for the Salmon Region, observed 13 adult goats and 21 kids. This count was higher than the 117 found last year.

Jerry Thiessen, and Dale Turnipseed, regional game managers stationed at Boise and Jerome, respectively, made goat trend counts in the headwaters of the Middle Fork of the Boise River, generally from Atlanta upstream; the upper North Fork of the Boise and the upper South Fork of the Payette rivers. They also flew potential goat areas such as Dog Mountain, Trinity Mountain and ridges between Trinity and Steel Mountain. Thiessen disclosed that much of this country was flown in fixed-winged planes in 1958 and 1960. A helicopter was used for the recent trend counts. He summarized as follows: 72 goats observed in 1958; 82 goats counted in 1960; and 100 goats tallied in 1973.

About 20 of the 100 goats were classified as kids, indicating that production in these units is good.

Sam McNeill, Lewiston game manager, recently flew selected goat areas of the upper North Fork of the Clearwater River, most of the Lochsa River and selected areas of the Selway. He counted 160 adult goats and 31 kids. These areas were part of Unit 10, all of Unit 12 and part of Unit 17. He also observed 8 bears just out of hibernation, including one sow bear with two cubs. Flying time was 36 hours.

Maverick tennis tour attempting settlement

HOUSTON, (UPI) — The players on the maverick Virginia Slims women's tennis tour have offered to pay a general sanction fee to an attempt to make peace with the established tennis federations, Gladys Heldman, director of the tour, said Monday.

Mrs. Heldman said executives of Philip Morris, sponsors of the Virginia Slims tour, offered last week to pay a $20,000 sanction fee to the United States Lawn Tennis Association (USLTA). She said this is about 2.5 per cent of the tour's total prize money, which is about $800,000 this year.

"The men pros pay a sanction fee of 1 per cent," Mrs. Heldman said.

Mrs. Heldman said she hoped the USLTA would accept this fee and sanction the women's tour.

The International Lawn Tennis Federation (ILTF) issued an ultimatum to the women at a meeting in Lucerne, Switzerland, Sunday, saying they could not play in any unsanctioned tournaments without being suspended by the ILTF and its national associations, including the USLTA. This means the women could not play at Wimbledon, Forest Hills, the French Open and the cup matches if their Virginia Slims tour is not sanctioned.

The women under contract to the Virginia Slims tour include most of the top players in the world and feature Margaret Court and Billie Jean King. Mrs. King was one of the organizers of the tour.

If the USLTA and the ILTF reject the sanction fee offer, Mrs. Heldman said the women will vote Tuesday at Jacksonville, Fla., whether to remain with the Virginia Slims tour.

"Whatever they do is wrong," Mrs. Heldman said. "They will have to break their contract with Virginia Slims, which is legal and binding, or they will be suspended by the ILTF."

"I feel it is a dreadful thing to do to the young players," Mrs. Heldman said. "How 11 men can bar 68 women without allowing one of the women to be present or any player to be present is astonishing."

"It's so frustrating because it's not only the girls that get hurt," Mrs. Heldman said. "But it's all the European events that will be clobbered by this. All the spectators want to see Margaret Court, Francoise Durr, Kerry Melville, Billie Jean and the rest of them. It also will make a shambles of the Bonne Bell and Wightman Cups."

"My personal opinion is that most USLTA people would not be in agreement with the Lucerne decision and would think that our offer should be considered to settle everything peacefully," Mrs. Heldman said.

Black Hawks face crucial NHL game

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Chicago Black Hawks, knowing they must win at least one game here, get their first chance Tuesday night when they take on the New York Rangers in the third game of their Stanley Cup semifinal playoff series.

The Rangers definitely had the home ice edge, as the series' site switched to New York for games three and four, after having gained a split of the opening two contests in Chicago. However, Chicago coach Emile Francis was looking for his players to rebound from Sunday's 5-4 setback when the Hawks got two goals each from Pat Stapleton and Dennis Hull.

In the process of Sunday's loss, Francis switched goalies, sending out Gilles Villeneuve to replace Ed Giacomin after the opening period in which the Hawks denied Giacomin for their first three tallies within a six minute span.

"I was just trying to change it around," said Francis. "Often you make a switch in goaltenders and it gives your team a lift."

Francis refused to divulge his starting goalies for game No. 3 but it obviously mattered little to Hull.

"I know they're equal," said Hull after Sunday's game. "I knew they certainly weren't giving up on Giacomin. Everybody has an off day, if that's what he was having. Sometimes changing goaltenders gets a team going. But who really knows? Maybe if they left Giacomin in they might have won."

Giacomin sparked the Rangers to their opening round, five game wipeout of Boston and in the first six playoff games he had allowed a total of only 11 goals. However, in Giacomin's favor, was the fact two of the Hawks' goals Sunday came off deflections by Ranger defenseman.

"You can't blame Eddie," said Ranger captain Vic Hadfield. "Not on deflections. Chicago played well, got the breaks on the first two goals, but worked hard enough to earn the breaks."

Chicago will be without the services of defenseman Keith Magnuson who suffered a broken jaw and lost several teeth when he dove to block a shot by Brad Park and wound up taking the puck on his jaw. However, a Hawks spokesman said the red-haired battler would be fitted with a protective mask and might return for Sunday's fifth game in Chicago.

Magnuson rests fractured jaw

Royals are happy with start

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — "We've got great spirit, we've got guys who believe in themselves."

That's the way Kansas City Manager Jack McKeon is talking these days.

He has reason to since his Royals have jumped to a 7-2 start and a two-game lead in the field in the American League West.

"The little things we're doing have added up to big things," McKeon said Monday. "When you're doing all the little things, you're scoring a lot of runs."

The Royals, under McKeon's direction, went back to fundamentals in spring training. The rookie manager, with 15 years in the minor leagues behind him, believes games are won on the home plate.

As a result, the Royals are hitting to the right side, bunting and doing everything possible to move runners into scoring position. They've scored 68 runs in nine games, an average of 7 1/2.

McKeon recently was being interviewed on television when his questioner said, "You really don't expect to score seven runs a game, do you?"

"Why not?" retorted McKeon. "You'll have to prove to me that we can't. There's no reason to believe we can't score like that."

Valdes displayed a devastating right hand and continuously had Booker in trouble through the early going of the scheduled 10-rounder.

Valdes, of Columbia, floored Booker midway through the fifth round with a vicious right cross. Booker, of Oakland, Calif., took the mandatory eight count from referee Barney Felix, but offered no further defense against his South American opponent and the fight was finally stopped at the 2:12 mark of the round.

Valdes, who won his 15th straight fight, and scored his 45th victory against 10 losses and two draws, battered Booker at will for nearly 90 seconds after the knockdown before Felix finally stopped the mismatch.

It was the 28th knockout for Valdes who was looking for a bout against fellow South American and middleweight champion Carlos Monzon. Valdes is currently ranked third among all middleweight challengers.

Tulane position filled

SALEM, Va. (UPI) — Roanoke College basketball coach Charlie Moir announced his resignation Monday, saying he will take the coaching job at Tulane University.

Moir, who led the Maroons to an "NCAA" college division championship and was named college division coach of the year in 1972, compiled a 133-44 record in his six years at Roanoke College. His 1973 team made it to the semifinals of the college division championship, but lost in the first round.

Roanoke officials said they have already started looking for a successor to Moir and assistant coach Don Brown, who will accompany Moir to Tulane. Dean Edward W. Lautenschlager said he accepted the resignation "with extreme regret."

Moir, 43, came to the Maroons from Virginia Tech, where he was an assistant. He was a standout athlete at Appalachian State in Boone, N.C., in both basketball and baseball.

Museum to open

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Kentucky has decided to provide a museum at the Kentucky National Guard Arsenal here so visitors can enjoy a trove of memorabilia acquired since pioneer days.

Designed primarily to be a panorama of Kentucky military history, the exhibits at the arsenal will include military weapons, soldiers' uniforms, battle flags, drums and even Daniel Boone's famed long rifle. The 123-year-old arsenal is expected to begin its new function as a museum this June.

HOPING THE BLACK Hawks are number one is Chicago's Keith Magnuson as he rests in Hennrich Hospital in Chicago after having his jaw wired. The scrappy defenseman had his jaw fractured when hit squarely by a puck off a slapshot during semi-final playoff game Sunday. (UPI Telephoto).

Plans outlined for gun center

CORCORAN, IDAHO (UPI) — The immediate past president of the National Rifle Association says the organization plans to build a national shooting sports center along the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains.

Fred M. Hakenjos, who retires May 1 after two years at the helm of the more than one-million member organization, told the Idaho Rifle and Pistol Association meeting Saturday night tentative plans call for the facility to be built near Raton, N. M.

"We have taken a 90-day option on about 30,000 acres was ceded forest land suitable for the NRA to practice some of the types of wildlife conservation projects it wants to try" and the remainder was flat range land needed for competitive shooting programs.

"For the past many years we have held our national shooting championships at Camp Perry, Ohio," Hakenjos said. "However, in the past several years the Ohio National Guard has fallen down on maintenance of the camp and the ranges."
