US aide quits probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst said today he has disqualified himself from further investigating the Watergate case. His announcement followed a report that a former presidential aide has acknowledged helping plan the bugging with John N. Mitchell and White House counsel John W. Dean.

Kleindienst said he made his decision Sunday, one day after Jeb Stuart Magruder, President Nixon's deputy campaign manager last year, is reported to have told federal prosecutors of his role in the bugging affair and to have named Mitchell and Dean as co-planners.

In another development, Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., a member of the special Senate committee investigating the Watergate episode, said a locked cabinet containing his records on the incident was found open this morning and that he assumed it had been broken into "unless these drawers sprang open by themselves."

The cabinet has a combination lock. Kleindienst, in a statement issued by the Justice Department, said he was advised Sunday "of information which relates to persons with whom I have had a close personal and professional relationship" and concluded "it would be entirely inappropriate for me to exercise control over the sensitive matters being developed by the Justice Department in connection with the Watergate investigation."

Magruder was expected to testify later today before the federal grand jury that indicted the Watergate Seven and which has been hearing more testimony in the case for several weeks.

The Post said one of its sources even predicted that Magruder's statements Saturday plus "other information developed by the prosecutors" might result in criminal indictment of Mitchell, who preceded Kleindienst as attorney general, and Dean, who conducted President Nixon's original investigation in the Watergate incident last August.

Nixon said Tuesday he had instructed all his aides, past or present, to testify if called before the Senate panel — reversing his policy on the question of executive privilege — and that he had been advised of "major developments" in the case since ordering a new investigation last month.

House rejects transit funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House today voted down, 215-190, a bill to allow portions of highway trust funds to be earmarked for urban mass transit projects. The sum of $700 million was sought from the $7 billion yearly fund.

US halts Viet mine-sweeping

WASHINGTON (UPI) — All mine clearing operations in North Vietnamese waters have been halted by the United States. The Pentagon said today the action was taken because the Communists have violated the spirit and the letter of the cease-fire agreement. American naval forces teaching North Vietnamese mine-clearing techniques were believed to have been withdrawn to Seventh Fleet ships in the Gulf of Tonkin.

Meany assails Teamsters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — AFL-CIO President George Meany assailed the Teamsters Union Wednesday of a "union busting" drive to wipe out the United Farm Workers. Meany charged the Teamsters with signing contracts with California grape growers and also pledged support for the farm workers. Teamster President Frank E. Fitzsimmons denied the charges and said his union was offering "a superior contract."

Postal contract talks open

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Postal Service opened contract talks today with four postal unions representing more than 500,000 workers. The post office asked for higher employee output to head off more rate increases.

Lapin air raids halted

VIENTIANE (UPI) — U.S. sources here said today American bombing halted Wednesday after two days of air strikes. But American planes struck for the 13th straight day in Cambodia and more fighting was reported throughout South Vietnam. Cambodian battles were continuing near Phnom Penh.

Darwin theory rejected

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The Tennessee Senate voted Wednesday to prohibit teaching Charles Darwin's theory of evolution as fact. Lawmakers took quick action, fearing television cameras might make them look like "barefoot Tennesseans."

CN resolution pending

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — After five days debate, Security Council sentiment is overwhelming for condemnation of Israel for its April 10 raid on Beirut, Lebanon, that reportedly took 12 lives. Diplomats sought today to draft a resolution that could escape a veto.

Dacca death toll over 270

DACCA (UPI) — A tornado Wednesday killed 272 residents, government sources estimated today. They said 2,000 persons were injured. Unofficial estimates placed the death toll at more than 500.

MV hospitals' plans win nod

BOISE — Two proposed hospital improvements in the Magic Valley have been approved by the Idaho Council for Health Facilities.

They include a 15 to 20 bed expansion at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, Twin Falls, expected to cost about $70,000, and a modernization program at St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome, for about $350,000.

Administrator James Rosenbaum said Magic Valley Memorial is awaiting official notification from the council before making final plans for the improvement. He said the hospital has about $70,000 to spend and is anxious to meet the critical need for additional bed space.

"However, we are also faced with some demands from the state to make other modernization revisions in the hospital to maintain required state standards which will cost about the same amount," he said.

Rosenbaum said he is hoping the letter also will include recommendations as to which of the two undertakings should come first. If no recommendations are offered, Rosenbaum said, the hospital will go ahead with the additional bed space, which requires some remodeling within the existing hospital, rather than an addition to the present building.

Approval of the Idaho Council for Health Facilities is now required before any public hospital facilities can be improved or expanded.

John Miller, assistant administrator at St. Benedict's Hospital, said much of the work proposed there will be to meet new and growing hospital standards required by the state.

(Related story, p. 15)

He said while no expansion of the building size is planned, the $350,000 will fund general remodeling and improvement. The out-patient area will be enlarged and improved.

Cassia auto wreck kills Californian

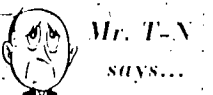

BOISE — A California man died Wednesday after a one-car collision about 14 miles southeast of Burley on Interstate 80N.

Memphis-Monten-Jr., 20, Inglewood, Calif., was pronounced dead at Cassia Memorial Hospital about 11:25 a.m. Mouton was a passenger in a car driven by his sister, Gail Mouton, 22, Portland Ore. She apparently fell asleep at the wheel, Idaho State Police said.

The southbound car apparently went onto the shoulder of the road near the Sweetser pass, turned back across the median and went off the road, overturning twice.

The car was demolished. The accident occurred about 6:30 a.m. Miss Mouton and Coretta Johnson, 22, Inglewood, another passenger, were released from Cassia Memorial Hospital after treatment for their injuries. Christopher Johnson, 2, another passenger, was listed in good condition at the hospital today.

US prices zoom 6% for quarter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pushed by sharply rising prices, the economy exploded in the first three months of this year and expanded at a rate unsurpassed since the inflation-plagued Korean War years, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the economy, as measured by the Gross National Product (GNP), rose at an annual rate of 14.3 per cent in the first quarter. Prices rose at a hefty 6 per cent, sharply higher than in the previous quarter and well above the administration's anti-inflation goal.

The first quarter increase, which totaled $40.6 billion, was the sharpest quarterly gain in GNP since a 14.7 per cent advance in early 1951 when the nation was in the midst of Korean War production.

The quarterly increase was equaled in the first three months of 1971 when the economy was rebounding from the effects of the General Motors' strike.

The GNP is the value of the nation's total output of goods and services and is the broadest measure of the health of the economy. Today's report was preliminary and will be revised next month when more figures are available.

But the initial report indicates that the economy is growing much faster than the administration wants and could be headed for a sharp downturn unless inflation is brought under control.

The first quarter increase brought GNP to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1,235.5 billion ($1.2 trillion). In the fourth quarter, GNP rose at an 11 per cent annual rate.

The department said "real", or non-inflated growth in the January-March period was 7.9 per cent, about the same pace as the last three months of 1972. But the 6 per cent inflation rate followed a 2.8 per cent rate in the three previous months, reflecting a sharp upsurge in prices across the economy since the first of the year.

Discounting the effects of pay increases for federal workers, which are included in the GNP inflation column, the price increase figure for the first quarter still was 5.5 per cent at an annual rate, well above the administration's 3 per cent 1973 forecast.

TWIN FALLS — The state of emergency that currently exists at the University of Idaho College of Agriculture may be reexamined in light of a meeting here Wednesday by key Idaho state legislators and some State Board of Education members.

The co-chairmen of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee and chairman of the Senate Health Education and Welfare Committee assured the board members at a two hour meeting the legislature intended to make up for the loss of federal funds through appropriations from a $5 million contingency fund.

The legislature approved the fund near the end of the session, but Gov. Cecil D. Andrus vetoed the measure.

Nevertheless, the state still has $5 million anticipated revenue not yet appropriated for the fiscal year beginning in July.

The assurance of the lawmakers came as they met with board members and staff of the Office of Higher Education to discuss recently announced cutbacks in jobs and research in agricultural research and the state's cooperative extension service as well as other matters.

Following the meeting, Dr. John Swartley, chairman of the State Board, praised the session, but said he was uncertain what the effect would be on the announced cutbacks.

Meeting in Moscow earlier this month, the board had declared a state of emergency at the college, permitting Dr. A. M. Mullins, dean, to announce the elimination of 10 research positions and 25 research projects in nine different fields.

Four of the staff jobs eliminated are in Twin Falls. Swartley said the indications would have to be discussed further in board committees before it is discussed at the May board meeting in Boise.

Banks jockeying for MV position

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Bank and Trust has filed a second application for a branch bank charter in Twin Falls.

At the same time Twin Falls Bank and Trust has indicated it may expand its operations into other communities, possibly through merger with a smaller bank.

The Pocatello-based Idaho Bank and Trust had its first application for a Twin Falls charter turned down last Friday by the Idaho Department of Finance.

ID and T president Grant Hickmore said Wednesday the bank will be submitting "much more detailed economic information" in connection with the second application.

Hickmore said economist Milton Mathews of the University of Utah is conducting a marketing study of the Twin Falls area to substantiate ID and T's contention that there is a need for further banking services in Twin Falls.

The study should be completed within a month, Hickmore said. He said the results will be sent to Finance Commissioner Tom McEldowney.

"We felt the statistical information we submitted would be sufficient," Hickmore said in reference to the bank's first application, "but obviously he (McEldowney) didn't feel that way."

Hickmore quoted a segment of the dental letter received from McEldowney's office as reading: "It is the conclusion of this department that the application does not present sufficient statistical and economic data to justify an additional branch banking office in Twin Falls."

The support data for the original application was based in part on a study showing population density and banking office ratios in Twin Falls as compared with other areas of Idaho, Hickmore said.

"We've used this same information and gone into other cities where the situation seemed similar and been very successful," he said.

Electric cars soon

DETROIT Inventor Robert Aronson plans to put his patented four-passenger electric car on the assembly line next fall in order to fill over 1,000 orders already on the books. Aronson feels that in 10 years half the cars in the United States will run on electricity. His X-144 Electricar, a $3,950 sedan built with an American Motors Gremlin body and powered by his patented lead cobalt batteries, costs only one cent per mile to run. Since there are no emissions from the Electricar, widespread use of the vehicle in Los Angeles and New York and other smoggy cities could solve air pollution problems, Aronson contends. (UPI)

Deputy, teenager escape gunman

NEW MEADOWS (UPI) — A deputy sheriff and a 14-year-old McCall girl were taken hostage by a gunman Wednesday but both escaped unharmed near New Meadows hours after a $1,000 ransom was paid by the family of the teen-ager.

The search for the suspect continued in the hills near here Wednesday night. Adams County Deputy Sheriff Keith Fish, who was forced into the suspect's car at gunpoint after he stopped his car on U.S. 95 near Council, managed to free himself after he was left with his hands and feet tied on an abandoned road near New Meadows.

A member of the girl's family told United Press International that $1,000 in small bills was paid to the suspect earlier Wednesday.

The suspect, who was described as about 40 years old and weighing 170 pounds and five-foot-ten, made the girl read a ransom note over the telephone demanding the money.

The family member said the meeting place for the delivery of the money was determined, "but it didn't work out that way."

She said the transfer of the money was made on a road between New Meadows and Higgins between noon and 1 p.m. Wednesday when the suspect forced the car off the road which was occupied by the mother of the girl and another daughter.

The girl, according to the family member, was abducted from McCall Tuesday night after the suspect impersonated a police officer and demanded the girl get into his car. He stopped a car carrying the girl, her older sister and their dates.

Wednesday, Fish spotted the car carrying the suspect and the girl. Fish called for assistance but when his fellow officers arrived they found only the patrol car, with the flasher lights still going, and the microphone to the radio off the hook and lying on the floor of the vehicle.

Fish said he stopped the car and when he approached it he found himself "looking down the barrel of a gun — a mighty big one."

Fish said the suspect told him, "No funny business or you're both dead."

The deputy said he was tied up and forced into the back seat of the car and covered with an old sleeping bag. He said he remained in the back of the car for several hours.

Fish described the ordeal as "terrible" and one he did not want to experience again.

Law enforcement officials said two Idaho Army National Guard helicopters were used during the search Wednesday along with officers from the state and two counties. Adams County sheriff's deputies verified the ransom was paid earlier Wednesday.

Economy expands sharply

Both administration and private economists have warned that the economy may be overheating — and the GNP report would appear to confirm these fears. A fast-moving economy following a recession is fine. Then there's idle manpower and unused plant capacity ready to be put to work.

However, the economy has been expanding for about two years and much of the slack has disappeared. Shortages are developing, inventories are depleted, back orders are piling up and unemployment is edging down.

If the boom continues under these conditions, the shortages in manpower and goods will force wages, prices and interest rates higher still. Moves to counteract these forces, such as tightening the supply of money and credit — and perhaps imposing tough economic controls, could precipitate a sharp downturn in the economy, experts fear.

The GNP report was issued after the Senate began its Easter recess without coming to final grips with the issue of wage-price controls, scheduling a showdown on the subject for April 30.

Nixon proposes federal better communities act

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today sent Congress a $2.3 billion a year program designed to let towns and cities meet their own community problems without the excessive federal control that has been so frustrating to local governments.

The program, which the President called the "Better Communities Act," wants to begin July 1, 1974, was the first of four special revenue sharing proposals which Nixon plans to submit to Congress this year. It would scrap seven federal grant programs including urban renewal, Model Cities, neighborhood facilities, water and sewer grants, open space and historic preservation, rehabilitation loans and public facility loans. All these programs are administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Other HUD programs including housing and community planning, would not be affected by the act.

In a message to Congress on March 31, Nixon said that the program would permit communities to spend the funds "as they desire, to meet their community development needs."

Until the legislation becomes effective, funds already available will be used to maintain and support community development.

"The Better Communities Act is intended to replace inflexible and fragmented categorical grant-in-aid programs, and to reduce the excessive federal control that has been so frustrating to local government," Nixon said.

The legislation provides the funds allocated by a formula on the basis of need and will be turned over directly to local elected governments. The President said many communities not benefiting from present HUD programs would get funds under the new act. He said the formula would assure automatic annual funding to metropolitan cities and urban counties.

Nixon told Congress that his program would eliminate "federal-red tape and bureaucratic restrictions."

He said that as of June 30, 1973, the total unspent money in community development categorical programs already obligated to communities will be about $7.4 billion.

Artrain features six-car touring art exhibit

Artrain scheduled in TF

TWIN FALLS — Artrain, dubbed an "exciting touring adventure in the arts," will visit Twin Falls next month.

The train, a six-car touring art exhibit prepared by the Michigan Council for the Arts, will come to Idaho for the first time in May.

The Twin Falls visit is scheduled for May 11-14 and will coincide with the conclusion of National Music Week observance here.

Formed in May, 1971, by the Michigan Council for the Arts, with a supporting grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, Artrain is currently on a tour of eight western states.

The western tour is sponsored by the Federation of Rocky Mountain States and arts groups in the individual states. The Idaho State Commission on the Arts and Humanities is assisting in the project, as well as the Idaho Falls Jaycees.

Arrangements for the Twin Falls visit are being shared by the Magic Valley Art Guild, American Association of University Women and other individuals. Laver Steel, CSI art instructor, is chairman and Mary Walker, Twin Falls, member of the Idaho Arts Commission, is co-chairman.

All fifth and sixth grade students in Twin Falls will tour the mobile art train, which consists of three coaches, a studio car, a power generating car and an engine. The students will visit during school and the public is invited evenings.

The Artrain will be located on the Union Pacific tracks at Shoshone Street South at the site of the old depot. The train is over 400 feet long, and there is no engine. All movement is through courtesy of railroad lines throughout the country.

Pat Acree, Twin Falls, publicity chairman, said there is a traveling staff of eight persons who conduct tours of the exhibits. Each tour lasts 40 to 45 minutes, and 20 to 25 persons can begin a tour every 10 minutes.

Local guides act as hosts. The Artrain includes not only paintings of famous artists, such as the late Pablo Picasso, and cultural objects such as a mummy mask from the Ptolemaic period in the third century B.C., but will also include local artists who will be working in a variety of areas.

The train is equipped for ceramics, printing, jewelry making and weaving. Anyone interested in demonstrating these crafts on the Artrain is asked to call Mrs. Larry Curtis.

According to Peg Sass, Art guild committee members, the idea is for people to view work of old masters, then see local artists creating and have them think "perhaps this is something I could do, too."

Theme of the project is that art is not an artificial isolated segment of life, but part of the world about us, Ms. Acree said.

In addition to traditional paintings and cultural art objects, Artrain includes a section of "environmental design" featuring such things as plastic toys, household objects as well as holloware and woodware.

Audrey Howard is educational chairman for the Artrain visit, representing AAHW. Other committee members include June Haggard and Joan Burke, Art Guild, Cathy Jones, Jeff Hawthorne, Frances Watland and Ms. Sass.

The presentation was made by Mrs. Erma Flavel, school principal. Mrs. Bell will be retiring from teaching at the end of this school year after 20 years in the Clover Creek, Sand Springs, Hagerman and Richfield districts of Idaho.

New officers for the PTA for 1973-74 were installed at the meeting held in the Richfield school. Mrs. Wendell King will serve as new president, replacing Mrs. Jodey Parker. Other officers are Mrs. Dave Kennison, vice president; Mrs. Wendell Johnson, secretary; and Mrs. Charles Rutledge, treasurer. Mrs. Ralph Riley, Jr., district officer installed the new officials.

Pursuant to Section 40106 Idaho Code, Thursday is hereby designated as the day of the week on which legal notices will be published. Published daily and Sunday, except Saturday, at 132 Third Street West, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301; by Magic Valley Newspapers, Inc. Entered as second class mail matter April 8, 1919, at the post office in Twin Falls, Idaho 83301, under the act of March 8, 1879.

Interstates

American motorists are paying an estimated $76 billion for the 42,500-mile Interstate Highway System. However, the return on that investment will far outweigh the cost by the time the full mileage is open for travel around 1980.

According to the Highway Users Federation, total estimated benefits from Interstate travel, not including values for driver and passenger time saving, will be more than $107 billion by the late 1970s.

This breaks down as: $45.8 billion for operating cost savings (through better gas mileage, for example), $15.8 billion for accident cost savings (Interstate travel is twice as safe as other roads) and $45.4 billion of commercial time savings (based on $5.56 for each hour of truck operation).

If car and passenger time savings are assigned a modest value of $1.50 an hour, total user benefits from Interstate travel will amount to $274 billion by 1980 or so.

Now that last item suggests some rather intriguing figuring. If you assigned a still-modest figure of $3 an hour as the value of a driver's or passenger's time, you could up the savings of the Interstate System to $441 billion. Whose time isn't worth at least $3 an hour?

But then, what about the guy who really doesn't save any money by using the Interstate? We mean the fellow who wouldn't have taken a vacation so far from home, who wouldn't have covered so many miles and spent so much money on gasoline and auto repairs and recreation and meals and motels, if it hadn't been for that tempting wide-open road?

Or how about the commuter who wouldn't put so much wear and tear on his car driving between suburb and city, or maybe wouldn't drive at all, if it weren't for the availability of a freeway?

In all fairness, their expenses should be deducted from that $274 billion.

PLAY IT AGAIN, RICHARD

Wilson nor President Nixon showed enough interest in — you guessed it — "The root cause of crime," which he described as poverty and assorted social ills including slum neighborhoods, unemployment and lack of job opportunities. Wilson replied, "I'm not mildly; that Nixon didn't ask me to be mayor. He only asked me to be the chief of police."

Wilson might have informed Rangel that much of today's crime is a different package of goods from that of the bad old days when a man stole a buck to buy food. Indeed, he might have reminded Rangel of a situation existing in The Bronx, next-door neighbor to Rangel's district.

Poverty would seem to have nothing to do with what Bronx President Robert Abrams told a news conference was a "reign of terror" on the city's buses waged by gangs of youths, many of them high school students. Operating during the daylight hours from 2 to 7 p.m., these gangs have stripped women passengers, hijacked buses, and staged "Jesse James" holdups in which whole busloads of passengers were robbed.

More frightening, there is a vicious pattern to this reign of terror. A 62-year-old woman was kicked in the ribs by a teenage boy as she was leaving a bus.

A student was mugged and then thrown out of a bus window by his assailants. Three high-school girls were sexually molested by another gang while the bus driver sat by, helpless. The gangs, said Abrams, "seemed to enjoy the sight" when they forced women passengers to disrobe.

And that is why today's crime wave is different. There has emerged a pattern of sadism which has no "root cause" in deprivation. A criminal does not rape and disrobe women, throw a young boy out of a bus window and kick a 62-year-old woman in the ribs because he is poor. He does these things for kicks, not because he needs money.

Tales of beatings and torture have become commonplace in the nation's newspapers. As Rangel was prodding Chief Wilson, a grandmother in a Washington suburb was being savagely beaten and then strangled while she was baby-sitting with a 21-month-old grandson. The creeps have learned how to remove fingernails, the science of touching-lighted cigarettes to a victim's eyeballs, the careful mutilation of a female breast, a male's genitals. These are crimes committed because a boy was brought up in a ghetto?

Rangel and his ilk are talking destructive and cruel sophistry. None of our poor today is as poor as the immigrants who flooded into America in the late 18th and early 19th centuries. There were no billion-dollar welfare programs in that era; only poorhouses. Few immigrants could speak English, but there was no demand that classes in public schools be conducted in a foreign language. Slum conditions were appalling; none of the tenements had central heating, let alone TV sets, stereos and radios bought with welfare money.

Worse — from today's point of view — our forebears knew they had to work if work was available. No one suggested that a job paying $ dollars a week was inadequate for the head of a family and that the Federal government therefore must augment his wage with a handout to keep the family above the "poverty level." It seems strange that the poor of America's youth did not take out their frustrations by beating, raping and torturing the better-heeled.

Poverty is sad and an affront to man's dignity. But society has legislated to alleviate the lot of the underprivileged so that today's poor are rich in comparison to yesterday's. And yet in a country where no one had to steal to care, the broken record keeps echoing the fashionable squeal that poverty excuses crime. We have become a nation of nit-wits.

Abe Who?

With motherhood out of favor or at least under severe attack, it comes as sad news but not real surprise that another traditional American institution has fallen upon hard times.

This institution is Abraham Lincoln or to be exact, observances associated with the great man's birthday.

Each year for many years, the Lincoln National Insurance Co. has judged the best editorials and editorial cartoons about Lincoln that appeared in the public prints. During recent years, unfortunately, response to the contest steadily diminished to the point where the element of competition was almost entirely eliminated.

This year, for example, so few cartoons were submitted that each would have had to "place."

In the opinion of Mark E. Neely Jr., editor of the company's "Lincoln Lore," the establishing of "Presidents' Day" in February has had the effect of taking the focus from Lincoln's birthday as an event worthy of comment in itself and blurring it to cover both Lincoln and Washington.

He has therefore regrettably decided to drop the contest indefinitely.

PAUL HARVEY

Scholars Again?

Last semester is in and, added up, college and university students' grade averages are up.

Misbehavior is minimal. Such a few months ago campuses were torn and bleeding as students and some faculty demanded all sorts of reforms.

Now they have reformed. Students are scholars again?

The American Council on Education's survey of 527 colleges and universities confirms political opinions are moderating.

Two years ago 44 per cent considered themselves middle-road, last year 46 per cent, this year 58 per cent.

Three years ago only 6 per cent wanted to be lawyers or doctors, today 7 per cent and 8 per cent respectively.

The percentage of coeds interested in medical or health-related careers has doubled.

A third of the students are now working their way or partly with summertime jobs.

And half of the student agree that we now have bent over too far in protecting the rights of criminals.

Coincident with this statistical evidence, the agents who book talent for campuses are responding to a changing student appetite in entertainment.

Last year they wanted rock music and liberal speakers. This year they want classical music, conservative speakers and nostalgic I guess monster movies.

Booking agent Lucy Lapage of Royce Calkins says, "There seems to be a swing toward cultural things."

Agent Alison Vogel of Hufak says the trend toward culture and conservatism "is obvious."

And that's not all. Campus newspapers which turned radical in the Sixties are going straight.

At a dozen campuses, coast to coast, college editors confirm that they made a deliberate decision to step back from the inflammatory social problems. Today's front pages are more likely filled with articles relating to real estate, zoning disputes, faculty decisions.

And that's not all. The American Assn. of State Colleges and Universities queried 80 schools and found today's collegians "job and money conscious, preparing to join the Establishment."

Where a generation ago the big thing was to join VISTA or the Youth Corps, today's students seek jobs that pay money.

If the consensus can be categorized, there is less "do-your-own-thing" experimenting. And more acceptance of doing what experience and tradition decree to be the "right thing" if a society is to be orderly.

ART BUCHWALD

Summer '73

WASHINGTON — Daddy, tell me again what it was like in 1973 when anyone who wanted to could drive a car.

"I know you're not going to believe this, son, but all you had to do was drive up to a gas station and say to the attendant, 'Fill 'er up.' And you know what? He had to wipe your windshield, too, or you wouldn't buy any gas from him."

"Aw, come on Daddy, you're putting me on."

"I'm telling the truth, son. And not only that, but we used to have these big cars — three times the size of the ones you see now — with our doors and air conditioning and everything. Some of them put 10 miles to a gallon. I think there are some pictures of them in the encyclopedia here."

"Gosh, those were some cars."

"In those days you could drive your car to work or to the city all alone without violating the law. You'd see people in eight-passenger station wagons all by themselves."

"Is it true you could drive to the beach or to the mountains or a football game 100 miles away without getting a special pass from the Automobile Authority?"

"Yep. One time your mother and I drove all the way to Florida, and we didn't have to ask permission from a soul. We just went."

"What happened, Daddy?"

"Nobody really knows. People just kept using up gasoline and oil until there was none left. I remember '73 Detroit announced it had had its greatest year. Sold more big cars than any time in its history."

"But nobody bothered to tell Detroit there would be nothing to put in the big gas tanks. They said it wasn't their problem."

"It was really funny because in Washington they were arguing about automobile pollution and the emission standards for 1976 when, in fact, the problem solved itself. There was no fuel left to pollute anything."

"Why didn't Detroit build smaller cars that wouldn't use so much gasoline?"

"Because they said Americans wouldn't go for it. They said Americans had always had big cars, and they deserved big cars because big cars were what made America great."

Of course now they have no choice but to manufacture two-cylinder automobiles because that's the only kind of car Americans can afford. I mean when gas is selling for $9.50 a gallon and you've got rationing coupons, nobody in his right mind is going to make a four-cylinder car."

"Is that why we moved back to the city, because you couldn't drive to work any more?"

"Yep. We lived in the suburbs when you were very little, but when the country ran out of gasoline we had to move back here. Oh, I tried bicycling to work, but it was 40 miles each way and I was pretty pooped by the time I got home. So we came back. And it was curious because up until that time the blacks lived in the cities and the whites lived in the suburbs."

"Now, of course, all the whites live in the cities and the blacks live in the suburbs because that's the only housing the blacks can afford. The blacks didn't want to go to the suburbs, but the whites kept buying up the ghettos and the blacks had no choice. They're probably happier out there, anyway, living among their own kind."

"Who was to blame for our running out of gasoline?"

"Detroit blamed it on Ralph Nader, the President blamed it on Congress, the Arabs blamed it on Israel and the oil companies blamed it on the caribou in Alaska."

"It must have been fun living in 1970."

"It was. Do you know one time we drove 30 miles just to have a sirloin steak?"

"What's a steak?"

"Oh, the hell with it. It hurts too much to talk about it."

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

About Sex

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You once gave the address of the American Medical Association to which one might send for booklets concerning what your children should know about sex.

The booklet set was for various age groups and you also gave the cost of same. I sent for them and they were wonderful. However, I lent them to a friend some time ago and they were lost. Now I need them again and am at a loss as to where to send for them. Could you give me the address and cost again? Mrs. J. K.

The A.M.A. publishes quite a lot of material, so I'll give you code numbers for the booklets in the sex education series that you want.

"Approaching Adulthood," for either sex, ages 16 to 20. OP: 10.

"A Story About You," children in grades 4 through 6. OP: 13.

"Facts Aren't Enough," for adults who have to answer children's questions about sex and need some help. OP: 11.

"Finding Yourself" for boys and girls of about junior high school age. OP: 20.

Price is the same for each booklet, 40 cents, postpaid.

To avoid confusion, use both the title and the OP number. I have listed

Send requests to Order Section, American Medical Association, 535 North Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. 60610.

I'd considered doing a booklet of my own on sex education but gave it up because I felt it would have to be too long for practical purposes. The A.M.A., as you note, has different ones for different ages and purposes.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in this column whenever possible.

MR. SPECTATOR

A Fickle Friend

While you are reading this this evening or whenever take it slow and easy.

Where you come from or where you are going is, really, unimportant. What is important is that when you are a winner then you should remember that victory is a fickle friend — a borrowed thing.

At the top of the heap, being carried on the shoulders of the crowd, there is apparently nothing to really worry about because you have it made. But remember, victory is a fickle friend.

And so, with that thought, we will now continue on with today's column.

SHE LIKES US

Received a very nice letter from a Velma Thompson of 1336 Rhode Island St., San Francisco, California, 94107. She wrote, in part:

"On Feb. 28 as I was passing through Twin Falls I had the misfortune to have an accident on the outskirts of your town as I was driving to Wells, Nev. With that accident, really, my bad luck came to an end."

I was found by a member of your community, a Mr. O. K. Swenson, who talked to me and tried to keep me calm until Deputy Sheriff Buddy DeWeese arrived. Both of these men came to the hospital to see me and Mr. DeWeese extended many courtesies to members of my family as well as myself.

I was taken to Magic Valley.

Nixon bows, takes over in bug case

List sale hit

Cassia vote set May 21

Thursday, April 19, 1973 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 5

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In one sense, President Nixon bowed to a growing momentum from Congress, his colleagues in the Republican party and the nation when he finally addressed himself to the Watergate bugging case.

But in another sense, Nixon took charge of a situation that was careening out of his control in the courts and on Capitol Hill. For the time being, at least, the focus will be on what the White House does about what he called "major developments." This is to Nixon's advantage.

In his statement, Nixon did not pinpoint guilt in the Watergate case or related acts of political espionage or sabotage in the 1972 presidential campaign.

But he said he would suspend any White House aide who was indicted and fire anyone who was found guilty. And he acceded to demands of the Senate's select Watergate committee in ordering his aides to present open, sworn testimony in televised sessions for the nation itself to see and weigh.

This was a long step from what White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler dismissed a few days after the bugging of the Democratic National Committee as "a third-rate burglary." Uncounted times since then, Ziegler has spurned questions about Watergate as being inappropriate or even irresponsible journalism.

And it was a far cry from Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst's testimony before a Senate committee last week in which he carried executive privilege—the doctrine that Nixon himself has invoked to keep aides from testifying on the Watergate—to perhaps historic extremes.

Kleindienst said executive privilege applied to every one of the millions of federal employees, even in cases involving criminal matters. He also said that if Congress did not like it, it should impeach the President.

The momentum in the Watergate case came slowly. Sen. George S. McGovern, the Democratic presidential candidate, talked about "burglars in rubber gloves in the dark of the night with their electronic eavesdropping equipment" in speech after speech during the fall campaign. The election results indicated the people, for whatever reason, weren't listening.

But the watershed came when the conservative Republicans, the bulwark of Nixon's Capitol Hill support, began to express concern. Sens. John G. Tower of Texas, Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska and James L. Buckley of New York all unchallenged conservatives expressed doubts.

A fortnight ago, Sen. Barry Goldwater, author of "Conscience of a Conservative" and the 1964 Republican presidential candidate, unloaded his fears and criticisms. He said that across the country, people were beginning to think Nixon was "hiding, something or had something to hide."

This was a perhaps not coincidental paraphrase of Nixon's own remark to Senate Republican Leader Hugh D. Scott, "Hugh, I have nothing to hide, and you are authorized to say so in my name."

But the message got through, and Tuesday, Nixon spoke.

By continuing the tests the French government was showing a "deplorable indifference" to the people of the South Pacific region.

Murphy's statement was issued after a conference with Foreign Minister Michel Jobert in which the Australian sought to convince France to discontinue its atmospheric tests.

Keeping the family car in nearly showroom condition is a good idea. It will be worth more at trade-in time.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation to limit the sale or distribution of mailing lists by federal agencies was introduced Tuesday by Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho.

"The purpose of this bill is to establish reasonable rules governing the release of mailing lists — containing literally billions of names and addresses — maintained throughout the federal bureaucracy," Hansen said.

He said some agencies have been selling the lists for commercial gain which he considers an invasion of privacy.

"Balancing the public's right to know with an individual's right to privacy is admittedly a delicate task. My bill would in no way interfere with the Freedom of Information Act and it would prevent the substitution of government lists," he said.

BURLEY — May 21 was set for trustee elections and a five mill maintenance and operation override levy vote Tuesday night by the Cassia County school board.

The five mill levy, which must be put before the voters every year, has been historically accepted by Cassia County taxpayers. Last year the levy, which goes toward instructional fees such as teacher salaries, passed with 85 per cent of the vote.

Petitions for trustee positions are due May 2, 18 days in advance of the election.

Two positions will be open for election this spring; zone 3 in the eastern part of the city, now held by A. M. (Pat) Kelly and zone 4 in the Burley area north of the Third Lift Canal and south of the Overland Shopping Center held by Dan Crane.

To qualify for a trustee position an individual must reside within the district he or she wants to represent, but need not have school age children or be a property owner.

The school board set a public meeting for tonight at 8 p.m. in the Burley Junior High School auditorium to discuss the upcoming bond election Tuesday. Representatives from the school board and the administration as well as architect William Richardson will be there to discuss the proposal with voters.

Five years of teacher experience will be allowed for eight years of field experience for vocational educators, it was decided. Vocational education teachers have different certification qualifications than regular teachers because in the field experience is considered important.

The school boards, planning to hire a new electronics teacher this year for Burley High School.

Multiple use plan requested

RUPERT — The Rupert Wildlife Federation will oppose any change in the classification of — Duray — of — and Management Big Desert lands. The group designated president W. F. (Bill) Whitton to write a letter to the agency requesting that the land remain under a multiple use plan as it is now and not be changed to a limited access wilderness type area as is being proposed.

Idaho has enough tourist attractions, Whitton said, and the land shouldn't be structured for tourism. The federation said that the BLM had not properly advertised hearings on the Big Desert proposals, and that the meetings were being held in counties not included in the Big Desert area.

The Big Desert, which involves one million acres of public domain land, is included in parts of Minidoka, Blaine, Butte, Power and Bingham counties. The last hearing was held in Cassia County, according to Whitton, and the next is scheduled for Bonneville County.

The questionnaires sent out by the BLM concerning the proposal is too structured to allow any expression of opinion, Whitton said. The federation decided not to answer the questionnaire.

The federation also opposed the removal of trees from streetsides around the Minidoka County courthouse before a public hearing is held to allow residents to express their opinions.

All members signed a petition which has been circulating in Rupert for the last week, asking for a public hearing on the matter. Whitton presented the petition to the Rupert City Council Tuesday night.

By a unanimous vote, federation members chose to continue with the Rupert Wildlife Federation. In other action Theron Brown, Rupert, was appointed secretary of the local organization.

No women's lib in little league ball

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — The International Congress of Little League Baseball, Inc., rejected a proposal Tuesday to allow girls to play in the same league as boys.

The 330-30 vote came as the 12th annual Congress came to an end. But the delegates did approve a proposal to allow girls to compete against girls in the same age groupings, similar to the boys program, and that will be taken up by the rules committee at its October meeting in Williamsport, Pa.

In other action the Congress ruled that no league shall charge a registration fee and that any league doing so in the future could have its charter revoked.

Jerome firemen get pay

JEROME — Jerome councilmen Tuesday night approved a final plan for the city's firemen. The plan provides for a 10 percent increase in pay for the city's 10 firemen. The council's approval is subject to approval of City Engineer Bill Block.

Councilmen heard a proposal from Jim Valier, Pocatello, of the engineering firm of Hamilton and Valier, regarding a waste water systems survey. This survey is necessary as a prerequisite for applying for any future grants to improve the city sewer system, he said. The proposal will be turned over to the city engineer.

A new ordinance increasing pay for volunteer firemen was read for the first time. Firemen will receive $5 for all fire calls and $2 per hour for any additional time beyond the first two hours.

The ordinance provides $5 pay for false alarms if firemen have to unroll hose and search the building, and $1 for each classroom practice session and $2 for practice sessions outside the classroom where equipment is used.

Councilmen also approved a request from Mayor J. A. Russell to turn over to the City Zoning Commission the proposed ordinance governing placement of trailer homes in the city.

The ordinance, which has aroused considerable controversy, reportedly would allow no trailer homes in first class residential areas, while in second class residential areas it would allow the trailer homes already there to remain and the only new ones allowed would be the double expandable mobile homes in areas designated third class residential trailer homes would be allowed with little restriction.

About 35 mobile home owners met last Friday in Jerome to protest the ordinance. Councilmen also decided to turn irrigation water into ditches Monday.

Logging damages, says EPA

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — There is still too much evidence of improper logging practices damaging the environment, says an Environmental Protection Agency official. Hurlon C. Ray, assistant EPA regional administrator in Seattle, made the statement today in an address to the 28th annual Pacific Northwest Wood Products conference.

Ray said, "There must be a full-scale adoption of proper logging and land management practices by forest land owners and a logging industry which recognizes its responsibility to the citizens of the United States."

He said he felt the National Environmental Policy Act is the most significant piece of environmental legislation to date. "The worst thing the EPA could do for the forest industry is to be a bad regulator," Ray said. "For only through vigorous enforcement of the laws can we protect the interests of those who responsibly obey the law from damage caused by those who would ignore or subvert it."

Aide names 2 others in Watergate

The Post said Magruder had provided a first-hand account of a meeting in Mitchell's Justice Department office in February, 1972, "to discuss and approve the illegal electronic eavesdropping operation at the Watergate."

At the time, Mitchell was the nation's chief law enforcement officer as attorney general. He left that job in March last year to officially take over the reins of the Nixon re-election campaign. He quit as campaign manager July 1, two weeks after the Watergate break-in, saying he wanted to spend more time with his family.

According to the Post story, those attending the meeting were Mitchell, Magruder, Dean and G. Gordon Liddy, who at the time was finance counsel for the Nixon campaign and who later was one of the Watergate Seven convicted in January.

If true, Magruder's story would provide crucial corroboration for the hearsay testimony of Watergate conspirators James W. McCord Jr., McCord, who was security chief for the Nixon campaign, reportedly has told investigators that Liddy told him of such a meeting, though McCord has been unable to document it.

Liddy himself has refused to answer the grand jury's questions, earning himself a contempt sentence on top of the maximum 20 years in prison he received for the Watergate plot.

The Post said that the resignation of Dean as chief White House lawyer "is considered imminent" and that White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman "may also resign" because of recent Watergate developments.

Dean, 34, conducted a White House Watergate investigation last summer that prompted the President to announce Aug. 29 that "no one in this administration, presently employed" was involved in the incident.

But Tuesday Nixon told reporters he had ordered a new internal probe March 21 after "serious charges" had come to his attention and said he would fire any aide found guilty of criminal conduct.

Magruder, 38, was an aide to Haldeman before he moved over to CRP last year. After the election, he ran inaugural festivities and recently was named an assistant secretary of commerce.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Three women with knives attacked two young men Wednesday and stabbed one of them.

Jerry Harrod, 26, who was hospitalized, told police the women assaulted the men because he turned down their offer for a "date."

Army corrects discharge error

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Army, recognizing a 67-year-old mistake, gave Edward Warfield an honorable discharge Wednesday. He was one of 167 black soldiers automatically discharged because of "the Brownsville affair" in 1906.

The only other man charged in the affair and still known to be living, Dorsey W. Willis, of Minneapolis, collected his honorable discharge in February.

Warfield, now 82, got his honorable discharge in the office of Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., who has waged a campaign to clear the names of the soldiers.

"I feel grateful," said Warfield.

On Aug. 13, 1906, a band of men shot up Brownsville, a Texas city on the Mexican border and Gulf coast.

It was charged that they were members of three companies of black infantry stationed there in the segregated Army.

"I heard the shooting," Warfield said Wednesday. "I was in my quarters asleep. It seemed to be a pretty good way off."

Warfield and the other blacks were told that those guilty would have to surrender. When none did so, all 167 were ordered "discharged without honor" by President Theodore Roosevelt.

"The President just assumed that the men were guilty," Hawkins told Congress in March.

Industry backs Nixon's plan

President Nixon's long-awaited plan to solve the nation's energy crisis has been endorsed by industry officials but generally criticized by some Capitol Hill lawmakers and conservation groups.

"It is a giant step backward for mankind in relation to his environment," said David Brewer, president of the 20,000-member Friends of the Earth, a conservation group.

And Michael McCloskey, executive director of the 140,000-member Sierra Club, labeled Nixon's message to Congress Wednesday a "drain America first" policy.

The reaction was just as sharp at the Capitol where Rep. Mike McCormack, D-Wash., chairman of the House Energy subcommittee, called some of Nixon's proposals "unacceptable."

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., a strong proponent of a national energy policy, added that "the program outlined is long on rhetoric and overall is short on federal commitment."

Nixon's 80-page message outlined a series of drastic measures in hopes of avoiding the threat of a "genuine energy crisis."

Many industrial officials reacted favorably to the President's "new program." Some, however, reserved comment because they said time was needed to digest the many-faceted package.

Harry Bridges, president of Shell Oil Co., said in Dallas: "The President's energy message is a constructive step in encouraging development of the domestic oil industry. It is clear the President recognizes the energy problem and is moving forward forcefully with constructive solutions."

John Lichtblau, independent economist for the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, said in New York the important thing about Nixon's message is that "at last we again have a national oil import policy after muddling along for three years with quarterly or semiannual ad hoc arrangements that have made it impossible to plan ahead sensibly."

President E. Douglas Kenna of the National Association of Manufacturers said "The President has given the American people an extremely forthright appraisal of our current energy situation. He is to be commended for proposing such a realistic and responsible program."

Senate decision delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has started its Easter recess without coming to final grips with the issue of wage-price controls. It scheduled a showdown on that subject for April 30.

President Nixon's authority to control wages and prices expires April 30 unless Congress extends it.

The President is only partially using this authority now. He has put ceilings on meat prices, but most of the economy is covered by voluntary wage-price "guidelines."

There has been persistent speculation the President may soon impose some form of stronger controls. He met with his top economic advisers Wednesday. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said before the meeting that "options" were being discussed but that "the President has made no decision."

Separate bills to extend the President's basic wage-price authority for another year have passed the House and Senate, and a joint conference committee ironed out the differences between them.

But the Senate recessed Wednesday without passing the conference bill. Republicans tried to kill the bill on the Senate floor and substitute another — because they objected to several amendments, particularly one that would require big corporations to make public information they now give the government, in private concerning their price increases.

A Republican effort to recommit the bill to conference was defeated 31 to 35. Then the Senate recessed.

The House was meeting today but the conference bill cannot be passed by Congress until the Senate returns.

Bank rates go up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chemical Bank, the Marine Midland Bank of New York and Bankers Trust announced Wednesday a hike in their prime rate from 6 1/2 to 6 3/4 per cent.

The latest increase in the prime rate — that charged to top corporate borrowers — began Tuesday following new guidelines announced by the Nixon administration's Committee on Interest and Dividends. The interest rate for small corporate borrowers was left unchanged.

Among those raising rates Tuesday were Chase Manhattan and Manufacturers Hanover Trust of New York, and the First National Bank of Boston.

The federal guideline issued Monday urged banks keep the prime rate frozen for all commercial, agricultural and industrial customers with assets of less than $1 million and whose outstanding credit requirement does not include long term real estate mortgage debt.

Under the administration's ruling the prime rate for large businesses would move with money market rates, and the now small business prime rate would be steadier.

Houston rifleman hits 5, slays 3

HOUSTON (UPI) — A rifleman drove through a middle class neighborhood shooting at passers-by Wednesday, hitting five persons and killing three. An Army veteran who said he had been smoking marijuana and drinking beer gave a statement to police hours later.

There was an old woman standing in front of a house. I pulled up and stopped. I aimed at her neck and fired. She fell to the driveway. Larry Delon Casey, 21, said in a statement to police. Casey was charged with the slayings.

The dead were an elderly woman and two school girls walking home. The two wounded victims were children who were hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

Casey told police his father was killed in New York in 1970 by heroin addicts.

"I guess I had some revenge against society," he said. He told police he did not know any of the victims.

Two United Press International newsmen signed Casey's confession as legal witnesses.

Manned bombers may be replaced by robots

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Pentagon is considering the possibility of using pilotless planes to replace manned bombers, according to the current issue of Business Week.

The magazine said that a "high-level" Pentagon committee headed by Maj. Gen. John J. Burns was conducting a study of the so-called Remotely Piloted Vehicles (RPV) with a special task force composed of all Air Force commands.

Although the periodical noted that use of the RPVs was probably several years away, it said the robot planes "appear ready now to perform such missions as radar jamming, high-altitude photo reconnaissance, and strikes against ground and sea targets."

Business Week said the Air Force has contracted with Lockheed, Ryan, Northrop, E-Systems and Boeing for more sophisticated high-altitude and low-altitude prototypes.

"Much of the research is centered on how to land the craft," the magazine said. "Current recovery methods, by parachute and helicopter

Code unconstitutional

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A U.S. appeals court ruled Wednesday that two articles of the Code of Military Justice "conduct unbecoming an officer" and "conduct of a nature to bring discredit upon the armed forces" were unconstitutional because of their vagueness.

The decision by the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals came in the case of Dr. Howard B. Levy, a former Army officer who refused in 1966 to train Vietnam-bound medics because he opposed the war. His refusal was one of the first protests against the war from within the military.

The court also ordered Levy retried on a third charge — his conviction at a 1967 court martial

Montana suit dismissed

BILLINGS, Mont. (UPI) — District Judge L. C. Gulbrandson Wednesday dismissed a case by an unnamed Billings couple seeking to rule Montana's abortion law unconstitutional.

The suit had been filed on behalf of a "John" and "Jane Doe" by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Casey said he went home and got his mother's bolt action .22 caliber rifle after having a fight with his girlfriend, Yvonne Ellis, 19. He said he had smoked four marijuana cigarettes and drank a six-pack of beer.

"Me and Yvonne had just had some arguments. I guess I went out of my head for a few minutes," Casey said.

"I drove into a neighborhood and fired at the first person I saw (the woman)," he said. "Then I saw a kid on a bicycle, pulling into a driveway. I was about 75 yards away when I stopped the car. I fired one time and she fell dead. I do not remember shooting anyone else."

During questioning, Casey also confessed to the February shooting death of Dorothy J. Young, a clerk in an all-night drive-in grocery.

"I had just robbed her and was leaving the store when I heard what sounded like her cocking back the hammer on a pistol. I was in the doorway and spun around and fired instantly and hit her in the chest."

retrieval, have a five per cent failure rate. The Air Force wants to cut this to one per cent," the magazine said.

"The robot planes would be flown by bomber or fighter pilots seated on the ground at a console just as if they were in the planes and flying on instruments. Or the planes could be flown by a pilot at a console in a second airplane out of the line of enemy fire," Business Week said.

In Vietnam drones were used on selected photo reconnaissance, strike and radar jamming missions, "with promise of great success," the magazine added.

Business Week said the robot plane development could mark "the beginning of a revolution in air war." It continued "though many high-ranking pilots resent the notion of a robot Air Force, many others contend it is inevitable. They foresee fleets of unmanned bombers, for example, by the end of this decade."

for refusing to obey the command of a superior officer.

In a 58-page opinion by Judge Ruggiero Aldisert, the court said, "Our conclusion that Articles 134 and 134 (the two articles it ruled unconstitutional) fail to set forth satisfactory standards of conduct leads to the inescapable corollary that enforcement of these articles is to varying degrees arbitrary and discriminatory."

"The articles were enacted in 1775 and stemmed from the English articles of war of 1688, Aldisert said.

"After nearly 300 years, the incredible similarity between the language of the present articles and the forerunners is astonishing," he said.

Point cadets cheat

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI) — Four West Point cadets have been found guilty of cheating in their studies, a spokesman for the U.S. Military Academy said Wednesday. The Cadet Honor Committee is investigating other possible violations of the honor code, he said.

Sources have indicated that as many as 80 cadets may eventually be asked to resign for cheating, the Middletown, N.Y. Times Herald-Record reported.

A. Patrick Dionne, public information officer for West Point, said, "I have no way of knowing exact numbers, but that is not a figure I can accept," when he was asked if 80 cadets may be involved.

The honor committee, composed of 12 cadets, Monday night unanimously found the four guilty, Dionne said. He said an instructor's report sparked the investigation.

Dionne said the committee operated in secret, and he therefore knew few details. However, the cheating was "in the academic area," he said.

The last major cheating scandal at West Point was in the 1950s, when 95 cadets resigned. Each year, said Dionne, between 30 and 60 of the academy's 4,000 cadets violate the honor code, adopted in the early 1800s.

The code says a cadet "will not lie, cheat or steal, nor tolerate those who do."

Bill would end Asia war

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Antiwar members of Congress restless over continued U.S. military involvement in Southeast Asia, have initiated moves to stop it by both legislation and court action.

Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., introduced a bill Wednesday that would prevent the administration from spending any funds to support U.S. military forces "in or over or from off the shores" of North or South Vietnam, Laos, or Cambodia, unless authorized by Congress.

And Rep. Jonathan B. Bingham, D-N.Y., introduced legislation to cut off funds for military operations in Cambodia, Laos and Vietnam.

Bingham said the joint resolution he offered was needed to restore Congress' constitutional prerogatives and end "a presidential war that has no constitutional or statutory basis."

"It is essential that we should seize every opportunity to restrain the President from continuing a war solely on the basis of his own say so," Bingham said.

Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., filed suit in U.S. District Court in New York challenging President Nixon's right to continue military operations in Cambodia without congressional approval.

She asked an "immediate judgment" because of the "emergency nature" of the case and urged U.S. bombing was in violation of the Constitution because "Cambodia constitutes a new action with no congressional authorization whatsoever."

The United States continued bombing Cambodia after the Vietnam cease-fire and this week bombed again in Laos in response to what administration officials said were Communist cease-fire violations. Officials indicated the bombing in Laos was halted Wednesday.

Ellsberg defense concludes today

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The defense of Daniel Ellsberg in the Pentagon Papers trial concludes today, with Ellsberg expressing confidence in the jury.

In his concluding testimony, Ellsberg said the papers uncovered possible grounds for a Suernberg-style war crimes trial of American leaders.

The final witness for the defense was to be Richard Falk, Princeton University professor of international law who has long contended that the war in Vietnam was illegal.

The trial was expected to go to the jury next week.

"I like this jury," Ellsberg said on the courthouse steps Wednesday after concluding three days on the witness stand.

"I like looking at them face to face, and I got the feeling they were listening to what I said. I'll abide by what they decide."

Ellsberg and Anthony Russo Jr. are on trial on charges of theft, conspiracy and espionage for actions they took in making public the classified Pentagon study on the origins of the Vietnam war.

Ellsberg in his concluding testimony said the Pentagon Papers revealed that U.S. officials engaged in "a conspiracy to secretly plan and wage an aggressive war against North Vietnam...a country with which we were not at war."

Colorado to permit underground N-bomb

DENVER (UPI) — The Colorado Water Pollution Control Commission has voted unanimously to issue a permit for the 90-kiloton Project Rio Blanco near Meeker.

The experiment tentatively is scheduled for mid-May. The simultaneous detonation of three 30-kiloton devices deep underground is designed to free natural gas reservoirs.

ing commission chairman, said the decision will be made later on what to do with the radioactive water. It may be burned along with the gas, stored in containers or injected into the earth.

Lewis said Gov. John Love had ruled out releasing the water into the atmosphere.

Lack of tolerance, brotherhood tragedy of mankind

By MILTON W. SMITH
Santa Barbara, Calif.

On the Panhandle of Texas where I was a cowhand on the Halter Ranch when I was just a sprout, tolerance was something we just took for granted.

It was a way of life, a built-in self-preservation philosophy. We took our dependency upon one another as a matter of course without making any big deal about it.

I remember the time the "point" of an outfit came riding into the ranch late one afternoon. He was the most tired, dusty cowboy I had ever seen. His pony wasn't in much better shape.

A point is a lone rider who lays out the route ahead of a herd traveling across country. Come close to nightfall and he picks out a likely looking ranch where the stock can be bunched for the night and the men and horses bedded down. The Halter S was where the men and stock from the Double S would bed down for the night.

The point pulled up and waited on his horse until Clyde Semmonds, the boss of our outfit, greeted him. The cowpoke said, "Hi, my name's Wilson — Sam Wilson — and I'm riding point for the Double S — Southwest of Portales. We're on our way home and there's more'n a thousand head of dogies due here in about three hours."

Clyde said, "Turn your pony into the corral and come in and eat." Then he turned to us and said to clear the south pasture of our stock and figure eight the grass around the water hole with bundles of high-gear and sorghum cane.

We saw the dust of the oncoming herd on the trail rising long before we heard the shouts of the men and the complaining lowing of the cattle as they pushed along. This was the signal for Wilson to unwind himself where he had been stretched out on the floor relaxing, remount and ride back to the herd to guide them to the pasture that Clyde had made available.

There were seven of those Double S boys and they put away about 15 pounds or more of beef.

After supper we gassed and lied to one another just like guys in other walks of life.

I told some stories about Clyde. He glared at me while the boys near bust their sides laughing. Then Clyde grinned and told some more stories on me when I had first come on the ranch as a tenderfoot.

Soon the stories were thin and heads began to nod in the warm room until one by one we headed for our bunks and bedrolls.

Long before sunup we reluctantly crawled out of our blankets, readying the start of a big day.

The sun came up like it always did, the early morning light seeping into the bunkhouse. Suddenly the boys from the double S quieted down. In fact, they stopped dead still and waited until their trail boss was finished with what he was doing at the windows.

I'm sure no one knew what was going on with the trail boss, but I had seen this ritual many times in New York. You see, the trail boss was called Mister David. I never knew what his first name was because everyone just called him Mister David.

He was wrapping leather thongs around his bare left arm and looping another set of them around his neck, settling a leather band around his forehead. Then he draped a silk shawl with fringes at the ends around his neck, put on his big ten-gallon hat and began moving his lips in prayer.

Mr. David was a Jew, and his religion required that he pray for guidance and wisdom of decision for the events of the new day dawning — and thanking God for His mercy, begging forgiveness for his sins.

No one criticized him and no one made any jokes about something they didn't understand. They just waited with respect until he was finished and then we all trooped into the kitchen for breakfast.

Here was an example of tolerance and brotherhood that transcended empty canned sermons like so many hollow drum thumpings on a still night on the prairie.

Though I didn't realize it then, I know now that the tragedy of mankind is that too many of us can't achieve the compassion of these simple men of the soil, nor do we remember the teaching of the Great One who knew humility in so many places.

Land board told to hear public

BOISE (UPI) — State Sen. Ivan Hanson, R-Coeur d'Alene, has urged the State Land Board to conduct public hearings before adopting emergency lake encroachment regulations.

Secretary of State Peter T. Cenarrusa today gave newsmen a copy of a letter written to him by Hanson urging the people be heard before any action is taken.

Twice last week the Land Board looked at proposed emergency regulations and put off adoption of them until certain revisions were made in them. The revised proposal is to be taken up at a special meeting still to be announced.

The proposed emergency rules for navigational aid permits on navigable lakes in Idaho has caused considerable concern to many people in this area," Hanson wrote Cenarrusa.

"They have expressed a desire to give valuable input to these regulations and would like to have a public hearing prior to any adoption."

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband owns a very successful business. He is a devoted, faithful husband and a wonderful father. All my friends think I'm the luckiest woman in the world. I would be, if it weren't for the fact that I am terrified that my husband will go to prison for income tax evasion.

He hasn't paid any taxes in six years. At first he really didn't have the money at tax time. The next year he put off filing until it was too late. The third year he didn't need an excuse. Now he says he knows plenty of others who don't pay any taxes, so why should he?

Taxing situation

I have talked to him until I'm blue in the face. Now he refuses to even discuss it.

Abby: I am worried sick that with the new computer system they will soon catch up with him. What can I do?

JANE DOE

DEAR JANE: If you can't talk some sense into his head, confide in your lawyer and ask him to. If he "fesses up, the penalty will be considerably lighter than if the feds catch him.

DEAR ABBY: Listen to this. A friend of mine is pregnant and some of her friends are getting together to give her a baby shower. This woman is 44 years old, soon to be 45, and she has six children and is a grandmother to boot. Her oldest is 23 and her youngest is 12. I say it's ridiculous to give a shower for a woman this age. Some of my friends disagree with me. What do you say? A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: I see nothing ridiculous about it. On the contrary, I can't think of anyone who could use the lift more.

DEAR ABBY: The letter about "Jane," who was convinced that she should take care of her elderly father has haunted me.

I am 60, and God forbid that any of my children should ever have to "take care" of me. I want my children to remember me as a strong person who is capable of taking care of himself. I never want to live with any of my children. It would present all kinds of problems and I'd feel guilty.

Just give me a room in a good clean nursing home where I can have my own corner, forget responsibility and can be served without feeling that I'm imposing. I don't want to worry about illnesses, family quarrels, or the grandchildren's grades. I've been thru all that. Give me peace.

Don't forget me, tho. Call and write now and then. And invite me for Sunday dinner occasionally. Let me entertain you in my room. But please, don't try to "take care" of me. Let me retain some dignity in my old age.

GETTING THERE

DEAR ABBY: You goofed when you referred to the marriage of the 40-year-old nurse to a 22-year-old man as a "May-December" marriage. It's scarcely September for us gals in our forties.

ALSO THERE IN CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90066. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hints

The move to color on the tennis courts is seen in a Tennis Whites plunkit tank top. It comes in yellow, orchid, blue, or traditional white. Meant for wearing with back-wrapped tennis skirt. Wash 'n wear, of course.

The new Rudi Gernreich collection for Harmon Knitwear is primarily a group of easy daytimes for public wear, pared down to the simplest shapes. "Mostly the items consist of separate components that can be put together at random," Gernreich says. "The parts are interchangeable and rely for distinctiveness on the use of color or fabric and pattern. I have used geometries widely—that is, giant checks with inserted sections of gingham checks; awning stripes with inserted strips of mattress ticking stripes; diagonally bisected inserted slashes of color against another color. In other words, I haven't wanted these clothes to scream 'Rudi Gernreich' but to fuse in a distinctive way with whatever the wearer herself intends." See?

Monot charms are designed with clever easy-to-attach snap rings. They can be moved from beloved bracelets to neck chains and ropes with the greatest of ease.

hearts, not two spades. The chance that spades would become the final contract was very small; the chance that the spade bid would misinform partner was tremendous.

Now look how simple the bidding would be after the immediate heart raise. South could bid four clubs but there would be little need for wasting any time.

South's hand would be perfect for a five no-trump grand slam force. This expert bid invented 40 years ago by Ely Culbertson asks partner to bid seven with two of the three top trump honors. North has them and would bid it.

A—We would bid six hearts. Your partners may have the right hand to make it. In any event you won't be hurt badly and might be saving an adverse slam.

'Organic' lesson presented

FILER — Syringa Home Extension Club members heard a lesson on organic foods and gardening Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Craig Dunlap.

Mrs. Clinton Dougherty was assistant hostess. Mrs. Marie Welby, club president, will be a visiting delegate at the Home Extension District meeting April 24 in Gooding.

Mrs. Joe Krepek reported that members are to help make name tags for the meeting in Gooding. Mrs. Howard Mills will take pre-registrations until Thursday. Mrs. Jim Herrett reported she had represented the club in the Best Cooks contest.

The Home Extension council meeting will be May 14 in the Filer Grange Hall with the theme "Being Around the World." Foreign foods will be featured in potluck style.

An Easter dessert was served and several members presented current events.

Mrs. Harvey Maxson will host the May 15 meeting, assisted by Mrs. R. J. Bennett.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is a hand which Rixi Markus played in a mere six hearts. Seven hearts which made easily is clearly the correct contract and Rixi is entirely correct when she blames her partner for failure to reach the grand slam.

Rixi feels that her partner could well have afforded to use Blackwood and then place the contract in the grand slam, but she also suggests something that we believe is one of the most important features of correct bidding opposite a strong hand.

She points out that North should have responded three

Rebekahs schedule supper

TWIN FALLS — A cornbread and bean supper with pinochle is planned for 6:30 p.m. Saturday at the IOOF Hall, members of Primrose Rebekah Lodge No. 76 were told Tuesday.

Rebekahs, Odd Fellows, their families and friends are urged to attend.

Noble grand Mrs. Betty Dameron honored the warden, Mrs. Barbara Davis, and presented her with a birthstone ring.

It was announced that the luncheon served to the Northwestern Association netted the lodge a profit of $53.

Mrs. Cloreen Heck, vice grand, commemorated the 154th anniversary of Odd Fellowship and Mrs. Lorna Hughes was introduced to the lodge as a new associate member.

Those present were entertained by Mrs. Joyce Kelly, Mrs. Alice Bowman, Mrs. Adeline Graebert and Mrs. Thelma Mellin and Mrs. Marjorie Benedict singing several songs. An excerpt from "The Messiah" was presented to the group by Mrs. Helen Allen accompanied by Mrs. Mary Howell.

The program was concluded with a piano solo by Mrs. Faye Hoffman introduced by Mrs. Martha Smith. Mrs. Hoffman and Mrs. Smith were co-chairmen of the program committee.

The dining room was decorated in an Easter theme with bunnies and Easter lilies. The refreshments committee included Mrs. Elsie Ashcraft, chairman; Mrs. Ann Martin, and Mrs. Graebert.

So-Journey Club elects

TWIN FALLS — So-Journey Club elected officers Tuesday during a luncheon meeting.

Mrs. Lois Hansen is president; Mrs. Sudi Moore, vice president; Mrs. Rose Ward, secretary; Mrs. Em Cunningham, treasurer, and Mrs. Fae Schuler, historian. They will be installed at the May 15 meeting at the Colonial House.

Dye Easter eggs

MRS. ANNA DAVIS, Vera C. O'Leary home economics instructor, and students, Linda Martin, left, and Sue Engel, dye Easter eggs for the annual hunt at 10 a.m. Saturday. The hunt, sponsored by the Exchange Club, will be in Twin Falls City Park instead of Harmon Park as announced earlier. Mrs. Davis' classes are preparing about 170 dozen eggs for the event, which will include divisions for those under 3, 4 to 5, 6 to 7 and 8 and 9.

Dinner held

JEROME — Members of Jerome Barracks and Auxiliary Veterans of World War I met for a potluck dinner at the Jerome American Legion Hall Tuesday.

Separate business meetings were conducted by Jack Smith, commander, and LaRue Smith, auxiliary president.

A donation was voted to the Boise Veteran's Hospital.

Members played cards and games during the afternoon and had a light supper.

The next meeting will be at 1 p.m. May 15, at the Legion Hall.

Out of season clothes should be stored in cool, dry areas. Warm, moist or humid areas are ideal environments for mildew — especially if any starch is left in the fabric.

Jerome plans fund-raising campaign for hospital

JEROME — Plans for a fund raising campaign to provide $350,000 for expansion and modernization of St. Benedict's Hospital were announced today.

At a special news conference by Charlie Marshall, president of St. Benedict's Hospital Foundation, he said the $350,000, part of "Project I" will be used for enlarging and modernizing the emergency room, a new and larger X-ray area and expanding the laboratory facilities.

"We will also enlarge the waiting room, educational and administrative offices, doctors and nurses locker room and remodel the nurses station plus install a fire sprinkling system in the long term care unit," Marshall said.

Marshall stated that "this is the first appeal to the public by St. Benedict's Hospital in over 20 years and with the growth of the area served by St. Benedict's 'Project I' is a must."

Marshall announced that Rev. John N. Garbrandt has accepted the general chairmanship of "Project I" for St. Benedict's. Rev. Garbrandt will organize and coordinate the efforts of a volunteer organization that will seek three-year pledges to finance the project.

Rev. Garbrandt said "The full support of the communities served by the hospital is necessary for the success of the project. Our volunteer organization will be working to help the area residents to better health facilities."

Leon Felder, administrator of the hospital, said that St. Benedict's was constructed in 1952. "The plant remains basically the same with only small internal changes. In 1961, because Jerome County did not provide any long term or extended care service, our long term care unit was built. It, too, remains basically the same," Felder said.

He explained that in the 21 years St. Benedict's has served the area the communities have not been asked for financial support in the form of a fund drive.

"The Idaho Corporation of Benedictine Sisters have provided the major equipment replacement that has taken place," Felder said.

He pointed out that unlike Twin Falls, Gooding, Rupert and other area hospitals, St. Benedict's does not receive tax money for maintenance, up-keep and equipment replacement.

"Expansion, modernization or meeting all the codes is paid for, either out of general operations, borrowed funds, or through gifts. Federal funds are not available, with various governmental agencies trying to reduce the amounts they originally assumed for in the care of patients."

"This had an even greater detrimental effect than the public realizes. There is no such thing as 'free service' as we have heard from HEW for several months. Someone has to pay," Felder said.

Felder said the project calls for internal remodeling only. "No additional beds or space are planned for at this time. It is our feeling that better utilization of the space we now have in our building will enhance our capabilities to deliver high quality health care," Felder said.

"Our remodeling calls for the expansion of our laboratory, radiology and emergency departments, primarily. However, in any internal remodeling the nursing theory comes into play."

"If you expand in one area you must provide space for what you have displaced. Our plan is programmed to take several months so there will be no interruptions of vital services," Felder said.

He explained that the Mother House, (Idaho Corporation of Benedictine Sisters) is now building a new convent for the sisters who work and live at the hospital.

"The house is being built on the land just west of the long term care unit. The area vacated by the sisters, which is the first floor under the O.B. wing, will be remodeled to accommodate all administrative offices, medical records department, conference room, class room, library and general storage area."

"When this phase is completed, sometime in June, the wing located in the front part of the building now being used by these services will be vacated except for the business office and the laboratory, radiology and emergency room will be expanded to fill these areas," Felder said.

Sawtooth employees meet

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS

Environmental aspects of the Sawtooth wilderness were outlined by Ernie Day, Boise, in closing sessions of the annual meeting of Sawtooth National Forest employees here Wednesday.

The two-day meeting featured reports on activities in each of the ranger districts of the forest, and election of employee officers.

Bob Whittaker, Twin Falls, administrative assistant, was named vice president and president-elect of the employees organization. Carol Jones, also of the supervisor's office, moved up to the office of president succeeding Bill Williams, Twin Falls.

Others elected are Joanne Jarvis, Burley, field representative, and Barbara Brauh, Hailey, field representative.

Ernie Day, member of the National Wildlife Federation board of directors and active in the Idaho association, told the Sawtooth administrators and employees he, as an environmentalist, is satisfied with the present Sawtooth wilderness regulations.

"We have ended a nine year battle for the wilderness act and now have changed the primitive classification to wilderness for greater preservation and protection of the outstanding area," he said.

"Legally we have the best wilderness area in the United States," he said. "The Sawtooth National Recreation Area has stronger mining restrictions than most high mountain country," he said.

Day said he hoped those in charge of "my favorite wilderness" will continue the careful administration they have been maintaining.

"How do you replace a wilderness?" he asked, in stressing the importance of preserving what wilderness areas remain in the country. Day said it would have been hard to believe 20 years ago that permits would be needed to make the boat trip down rugged Salmon River Middle Fork area.

"We might some day have to control wilderness area use by permits," he warned.

Forest Supervisor Edwin A. Fournier opened the two day meeting in the Holiday Inn Tuesday, continuing the sessions Wednesday.

Bill Webb, regional supervisor, Idaho Fish and Game Department, spoke Tuesday on working relationships between the two agencies.

Larry Weeks, ranger on the Fairfield district, served as chairman of the event. District ranger reports were given by Weeks, Bill Price, Burley; Lewis Munson, Twin Falls, and Tom Farr, Ketchum.

Gray Reynolds, superintendent of the Sawtooth National Recreation Area, reported on activities in the SNRA.

Others participating in the program included Don Wilson, branch chief in charge of personnel placement, Ogden regional office, speaking on personnel situations; Bill Williams, forest welfare committee report; Bob Whittaker, forest goals; Fred Baugh, range improvements; Robert Hoag, wilderness study areas.

Tom Pestotnik, solid waste programs and pollution abatement; Pat Kennedy, landscaping; Bob Wise, state planning and community affairs committee, community and federal land planning, and Art Selin, a presentation on briefing by Chief of Forests John McGuire and Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz.

2nd application filed by bank

McEldowney said Idaho Bank and Trust "didn't prove the need" for a fifth bank operation in Twin Falls in the first application it submitted. He said an independent investigation conducted by his office also failed to show a need for another Twin Falls bank.

"There may be something going on down there that we don't know about," McEldowney said. He said IB and T would have to make a "stronger case" for a charter in its second application. "We gave them several months to get more information," he said. "They were hanging their hat on the original application."

McEldowney said a protest filed by Twin Falls Bank and Trust played a role.

He said the TFB and T protest argued, in addition to lack of need, that the granting of another Twin Falls charter could force TFB and T to concentrate too heavily on home office competition and prevent it from possibly becoming a fifth Idaho banking chain.

Curtis Eaton, president of Twin Falls Bank and Trust, agreed that his bank has "given some formal thought to expanding our sphere of influence," but he said the bank's primary concern at this time is to remodel its present facilities to better serve the Twin Falls area.

"For the immediate future, projects on the drawing board will occupy most of our time and energy," Eaton said.

Asked to outline the arguments in TFB and T's protest with regard to developing a fifth banking chain, Eaton said "We pointed out the viability of a strong local institution being able to extend its sphere of influence in Southern Idaho. You have to maintain a strong base operation in order to even consider expanding into other areas."

Eaton said expansion of TFB and T's operations into other communities is "being given serious consideration." He said the bank at one time considered extending operations to Jerome, "but the applications of the two banks (Sawtooth Bank and Trust and Idaho First National) for Jerome charters have precluded serious direct consideration at this time."

Eaton said a merger between TFB and T and a smaller bank was a possibility, but he said that no specific merger was under consideration. He also said that merger had not been discussed with a smaller bank. He ruled out the possibility of a merger with a larger bank.

Asked if Twin Falls Bank and Trust would file a protest on Idaho Bank and Trust's second application for a Twin Falls charter, Eaton said he had "no comment at this time."

"If we had not had the protest," McEldowney said, "we probably would have come to the same conclusion as far as there not being a demonstrated need at this time."

Kimberly man asks hearing

TWIN FALLS — Ronald George Hoffas, 37, Kimberly, requested a preliminary hearing Wednesday when he appeared in Magistrate Court on charges of manufacture of a controlled substance.

The court set bond at $10,000 and remanded Hoffas to the custody of the Twin Falls Sheriff pending a preliminary hearing. Hoffas was taken into custody late Tuesday night by Twin Falls City police at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital where he was taken by ambulance earlier in the day.

Kimberly Police Chief James Campbell said he was called to the man's apartment by a friend who found him unconscious. In the apartment, the officer said, were a number of containers of pills and capsules which he and county officers confiscated.

These were taken to a state laboratory in Boise Wednesday afternoon for analysis. Sheriff Paul Corder said he expects a report later today or Friday. It is estimated between $2,500 and $3,000 in drugs and marijuana were in the apartment.

Rupert tree action delayed

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

RUPERT — No action was taken Tuesday night on petitions containing nearly 700 signatures requesting a public hearing concerning removal of the trees near the county courthouse.

The petitions were presented by W. F. (Bill) Whitton, who cast the only opposing vote when the Rupert City Council approved the removal of the trees in order to widen streets and improve parking at a meeting several weeks ago.

Whitton had about 400 signatures on the petition which he had been circulating the past week, and said that another 250 had been taken from his car earlier in the day. A petition drawn up by East Minico Junior High School students asking that the trees be left alone for environmental reasons, had about 270 signatures.

In a discussion following the regular city council meeting, Mayor Wendell Johnson said there would be no public meeting held concerning the trees, although the proposed "lid" in the area would be discussed with the residents.

Whitton said a total of about 30 trees would be lost due to the expansion of the jail and the widening of the streets.

"I'm very concerned personally," Whitton said, because no effort had been made to satisfy the public

Commissioners mileage pattern mixed

TWIN FALLS — County commissioners generally charge the public for their drive to work, according to a statewide spokesman for county commissioners.

At the same time, other county employees pay their own way, according to Donn Huntsman, executive secretary of the Idaho Association of County Commissioners and Clerks.

A Times-News survey of Magic Valley counties Wednesday showed that mileage for the trip to work and home again is paid commissioners in five of eight counties. Employees get similar assistance in none of them.

Additionally, a check of three populous counties showed that no commissioners receive mileage to and from work.

In Magic Valley, commissioners in Twin Falls, Cassia, Gooding, Blaine and Camas counties can ride to work at public expense — unlike their employees.

Checks of populous Ada County (Boise), Bonneville County (Idaho Falls) and Bannock County (Pocatello) showed that none permits commissioners to charge mileage to and from work.

Under Idaho law, both county commissioners and their employees are authorized to charge the public for "actual and necessary" expenses. When county officials use their own car for county business, they are entitled to claim 10 cents per mile. The claims are approved by the commissioners.

But despite the identical wording of statutes on mileage, some commissioners give themselves mileage to and from work while denying it to other county employees.

According to Huntsman, "This is the way it has been interpreted by county attorneys."

Huntsman cited a case in which a county commissioner was killed in a highway mishap between his home and the county seat, in which the court ruled the commissioner to be on county business.

He said he knew of no state attorney general's opinion on the matter.

Additionally, Huntsman said, "What happened when the law was first written was the commissioners all lived out in rural areas. Quite often a rural county commissioner did business on the way to the office, often check roads on the way to the office. This is a common occurrence in many counties."

The question of the variance between pay policy for commissioners and their employees "has come up before," Huntsman said. "I don't know why there should be a different interpretation."

Huntsman said differing policies of pay for commissioners and other county employees "is a source of friction between commissioners and employees."

When asked why state officials are not paid mileage to and from work but commissioners are in some counties, Huntsman agreed that the counties involved had made a "more liberal interpretation" of the statutes than the state officials had.

Discuss programs

Job cutback review possible

Mollins, who did not attend Wednesday's meeting here, said recently the cutbacks were necessary for the strengthening of the overall program. He said that the "continuation budget" the legislature had appropriated was not actually sufficient to continue the programs that were in existence.

The legislators told the board members, however, that there had been a separate appropriations made out of revenue sharing funds for capital outlay in the programs in addition to the clear legislative intent of replacing lost federal funds through the contingency fund money.

The lawmakers said they would ask the Legislative Council for a public expression of their intent regarding the $5 million, however.

They blamed a lack of a communications for failure to make clear the intent during the 65-day session.

Attending the meeting, which took place at a Twin Falls country club, were Joint Finance Appropriations Committee co-chairmen Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, Rep. William Roberts, R-Buhl, chairman of the Senate HEW Committee, as well as board members Swartley, a Boise physician, Edward L. Benoit, a Twin Falls lawyer, and Joe McCollum a Twin Falls business executive who recently resigned from the board. Also present were members of the office of Higher Education.

Bruins romp to victory in Hank Powers carnival

Twin Falls' powerful Bruins romped to another Hank Powers invitational Wednesday afternoon as the weatherman again blessed area tracksters with nothing but wind.

The Bruins, who have lost only one meet since winning state three and one-half years ago, piled up 11 first places, including all four relays. They backed the firsts with seconds in several events and wound up with 123 points. Jerome had 45, Burley 35, Wood River 32, Mountain 31 and Buhl 21.

There were no double winners in the six-team event but several close duels and the continuing, probably last meeting, rivalry between Pat Charlton, late of Buhl and now Twin Falls, and Wood River's Rich Ward in the mile run.

It was the first time Ward and Charlton met head-to-head since tying for the A-2 state crown last year. They ran against each other just Saturday in Boise: with Charlton winning, but that was on the anchor of a relay. This time Ward held the lead until the fourth-lap run when Charlton took over and pulled steadily away to win by 20 yards. Ward came back to win the two mile while Charlton wound up by anchoring the Bruin medley to victory.

The 100-yard dash was close, Roy Young of Minico getting the official decision from the judges over Bill Woodson of Twin Falls. It was a wind-aided 9.9 clocking. But Woodson got revenge in the 220-yard dash, nipping teammate Brent Thompson while Young came in third.

Burley junior long hurdler Ken Harper had to fight off a closing surge by Bruin Jeff Miller to win his specialty in 20.2. It was run on the straightaways.

Two underclassmen notched their best efforts thus far with Buhl's Brent Watson getting 146-7 in the discus, tops for the year — and Twin Falls sophomore Gary Miller making 134-6 in the pole vault for the first time in competition.

Team scoring: Twin Falls 123, Jerome 45, Burley 35, Wood River 32, Mountain 31, Buhl 21.

Wildcats use field power to collect own invitational

FILER — The Filer Wildcats proved ungracious hosts Wednesday afternoon and behind weight double winner John Courtney won their own invitational — a wind blown affair.

The Wildcats used their depth to amass 85 points while Wendell used its first place punch of Kip Deagle and Alan Stevenson to finish second at 61½. Glenns Ferry had 45, Gooding State 33, Gooding 31½, and Wood River jayvees 28.

Filer was shut out only in the mile run, where Gooding State reaped the point harvest with Steve McCally and John Hunter going one-two. The Wildcats were toughest in the field events, taking five of the six first places and going two-three-four in the one that eluded them — the long jump.

Dennis took three first places, both hurdles and the 100-yard dash and the long jump plus anchoring a couple of winning relays to keep Wendell in the running.

Team scoring: Filer 85, Wendell 61½, Glenns Ferry 45, Gooding State 33, Gooding 31½, Wood River 28.

Bruins benefit from shutoff pitching, beat Tigers twice

MOUNTAIN HOME — The Twin Falls Bruins combined lusty hitting with shutout pitching Wednesday afternoon and rolled to a doubleheader sweep of the Mountain Home Tigers.

Mike Anderson fired a two-batter and fanned 12 in the five-inning opener which the Bruins won 13-0. Four pitchers, including senior veteran John

Mtn. Home girls take SCIC crown

GOODING — The Mountain Home girls spring a surprise in the sports and ran off with the girls track and field title for the South Central Idaho Conference Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Lee provided the surprises as she defeated Miss Vernon of Wood River in the 220-yard dash and Debbie Shepherd of Filer in the 100-yard dash during the wind-blown day.

Miss Spreier of Buhl upset Miss Shepherd in the long jump with a 15-foot, 4-inch leap.

Team scoring: Mountain Home 45, Wood River 30, Buhl 21, Gooding 15, Filer 10, Burley 5.

Wunderlich making his first appearance since knee surgery, halted the Tigers 7-0 in the second game on one hit.

Twin Falls decided both games in the first inning. In the opener the Bruins scored for seven hits and nine runs. Mark Hanchey and Mike Gabien opened with doubles with Denny Wentworth walking and Dick Walker hitting an error. Gary Irish drove in double with a double and Anderson sent two more in with another two-bagger. Charles Browne singled and Ross Deahl walked to force Hanchey came up for the second time and unloaded a two-run single. Gabien followed with a sacrifice fly and Wentworth sent the ninth run home with another hit.

Deahl took the slugging honors in the fourth inning when he belted a solo homer.

In the second game, Twin Falls scored four first-inning runs. Bob Woods started it with a hit and moved up on Wentworth's sacrifice. Bruce Bird singled and Browne delivered a two-run double. After Davila and Lee walked to load the bases, Greenup sent the final two runs home with a single.

Gabriel's summer job off due to legal ills

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Negotiations aimed at allowing veteran Los Angeles quarterback Roman Gabriel to play summer football with a Las Vegas minor league team were broken off Wednesday because of legal obstacles.

A joint statement released by Gabriel's attorney, Ed Masry, and former pro football star Eddie LeBaron, counsel for the Las Vegas Casinos, said the negotiations were mutually terminated.

Gabriel, who still has two years remaining on a contract with the Rams, has asked to be traded to the Washington Redskins and his future in the NFL apparently was a major factor in the negotiations with the Casinos.

He had been offered a reported $100,000 to play an eight-game schedule.

Sooners forfeit games

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Oklahoma Sooners, the nation's second-ranked football team last year, Wednesday forfeited their Sugar Bowl victory and eight other 1972 games because high school transcripts of quarterback Kerry Jackson and another freshman were altered.

Jackson, the Sooners' first black quarterback, had been expected to start for Oklahoma next season. Bill he and center Mike Phillips, both recruited from Ball high school in Galveston, Tex., were ruled ineligible for the upcoming football year.

Athletic Director Wade Walker, in announcing the school's decision, also said assistant coach Bill Michaels had resigned after admitting knowledge of the incident.

Officials of the Big Eight Conference, which initiated the investigation, had no comment on possible penalties against the Sooners.

The NCAA's committee on infractions said it would "definitely" review the recruiting violations.

"It has been verified by conference officials that the transcripts of both Jackson and Phillips have been tampered with."

Camas gals claim loop track title

GOODING — The Camas County girls used their depth and superiority in the relays Wednesday afternoon to claim the Northside Conference track and field championships.

In an abbreviated boys event, Camas County defeated Carey, Richfield and Bliss. Gooding State and Rimbuck boys participated in other meets.

The Musher girls scored only five first places including three relays and those were almost equaled by Miss Susana of Rimbuck who had four firsts. But Camas County scored heavily in nearly all the events.

Miss Hubsmitth was a double winner for Richfield, taking the long jump and halfmile.

Girls

100-yard dash: Camas, 16.5; Gooding, 17.5; Carey, 18.5; Richfield, 19.5; Bliss, 20.5; Rimbuck, 21.5.

Bonds' 11th-inning homer pins 6th loss on Braves

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Bobby Bonds lined his third homer of the season with one out in the bottom of the 11th inning Wednesday to give the San Francisco Giants a 4-3 victory over Atlanta and extend the Braves' losing streak to six games.

Giants' catcher Dave Rader made an incredible unassisted double play in the top of the 11th to kill an Atlanta rally and set the stage for Bonds' winning blast.

Sonny Jackson opened the Atlanta 11th with a single to right and was safe on second when Giants' second baseman Tito Fuentes bobbled a potential double play grounder by Johnny Gates.

House, attempting to sacrifice the runners along, popped the ball up about five feet and just behind the plate.

Athletics nip Royals 7-6 on Tenace's two-run HR in ninth

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Gene Tenace slammed a two-run homer in the ninth inning Wednesday night to carry the Oakland A's to a 7-6 victory over Kansas City and snap the Royals' four game winning streak.

After Reggie Jackson led off the ninth with a single, Sal Bando strep out and Tenace slammed his third homer of the season off loser Bruce Dill.

Canlon-Tenace, who was the World Series hero with four homers, now has three this season. Last year he hit only five.

Oakland won 7-6 on Tenace's two-run homer in the ninth.

Allen bats Sox past Rangers

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dick Allen batted in four runs with a homer and a double Wednesday to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 6-5 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Allen's first homer came in the first inning off Texas' pitcher.

Chicago won 6-5 on Allen's four-run homer in the first.

Robinson's belt tips Minnesota

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Frank Robinson slammed a 400-foot home run into the left field stands in the eighth inning with the game tied 2-2 to lift the California Angels to a 3-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins Wednesday.

Robinson's home run came off Twins' pitcher.

California won 3-2 on Robinson's home run in the eighth.

Detroit evens Boston record

BOSTON (UPI) — Al Kaline, Willie Horton and Ed Brinkman all tagged homers Wednesday afternoon to power the Detroit Tigers to 7-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox behind the five-hit pitching of Jim Perry.

Detroit won 7-1 on Kaline's home run in the fifth.

and the Expos cut short a ninth-inning Philadelphia comeback to edge the Phillies.

Philadelphia won 2-1 on Stargell's home run in the ninth.

Stargell, Bues batter Cards

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Willie Stargell drove in four runs with a single and his third home run in eight games to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night.

Stargell's home run came off Cardinals' pitcher.

Brewers blank Cleveland 4-0

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Don Money drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single to highlight a three-run ninth inning Wednesday afternoon and spark the Milwaukee Brewers to a 4-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Money's single came off Indians' pitcher.

Yanks rally to drop Orioles

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Thurmond Munson and Felipe Alou belted two-run homers to highlight a live-run ninth inning Wednesday night as the New York Yankees came from behind to beat the Baltimore Orioles 7-4.

Yankees won 7-4 on Munson's home run in the ninth.

Buckey hit by detached retina

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — North Carolina State athletic officials said Wednesday it will probably be three months before doctors can say whether quarterback Dave Buckey can ever play football again.

Buckey was hit in the eye during a game.

Finley sells hockey team

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — The Columbus Golden Seals, doormats of the International Hockey League the past two years, were sold Wednesday by Charles O. Finley to Albert Savell, a Columbus financier.

Finley's team was struggling.

76ers continue role as losers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Even though the Philadelphia 76ers have not played a game for nearly a month, they still are providing proof that they are the worst team in pro basketball history.

Record-setting losers on the court, the 76ers became losers off it, too, when their refusal to leave well enough alone cost them a first round draft choice Wednesday.

The National Basketball Association's board of governors, after a nine-hour meeting, returned to the Seattle Super-Sonics their first pick—the No. 1 choice in the entire draft.

Hutt accepts Boise grant

BOISE (UPI) — Terry Hutt, 5-11, 170 pound wide receiver for the Borah high school Lions of Boise has signed a national letter of intent to attend Boise State next fall.

The announcement was made Wednesday by Bronco head football coach Tony Knap.

Hutt, brother of Boise State wide receiver Don Hutt, was an all Southern Idaho Conference selection last year in football.

Astros belt Dodgers 7-2

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Southpaw Jerry Reuss fired a four-hitter and Rob Watson drove in three runs on two singles and a bases-loaded walk Wednesday night as the Houston Astros broke out of a slump and trounced the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-2.

Astros won 7-2 on Watson's home run in the fifth.

McAdoo named NBA rookie of year

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Bob McAdoo, who had to make a difficult adjustment from center to forward in his first season with the Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association, today (Thursday) was named NBA Rookie of the Year.

The 6-6, McAdoo, who averaged 17.8 points a game in his first season as a pro, received 12.8 of the possible 17 votes. Closest to him was Portland's Lloyd Neal who received 3.7 points.

The Greensboro, N.C. native, contacted by telephone at his home, said he felt he was "selected because of playing time, I guess. I got to play more than a lot of other rookies."

N.Y. hands Boston worst playoff loss

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walt Frazier scored 24 points, Dave DeBusschere tallied 19 and Phil Jackson hit 7 for 7 from the floor Wednesday night as the New York Knicks defeated Boston 129-96 to hand the Celtics their worst loss in 216 playoff games and even this Eastern Conference semifinal round at 1-1.

The Knicks, losers by 26 points in the opener last Sunday, put up a masterful defense that completely shut out the Celtics firepower. The 33 points deficit Boston suffered was its worst in the NBA since the 140-116 loss in a playoff game to Philadelphia in 1967.

John Havlicek led Boston with 21 points and Jao White had 15. The two had combined for 50 points in last Sunday's 134-108 Boston victory.

The Knicks, leading 66-48 early in the third quarter, were not content with an 18-point lead and ran off 16 straight points for an 82-48 margin. The Celtics were a beaten ball club at that point.

New York had trouble with Boston's backcourt men in the opener, but this time Frazier and Earl Monroe picked up the Celtics guards deep in Boston territory. New York made Boston work for its points as it

NHL cuts merge talk with WHA

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bruce Norris, chairman of the National Hockey League Board of Governors, proposed to the group Wednesday that the league officially disassociate itself from talks held recently with the World Hockey Association, and that such discussions regarding a possible merger not be renewed.

Norris, introducing his resolution during a meeting of the Board, was referring to an unofficial meeting initiated earlier this month by Bill Jennings, president of the New York Rangers, and attended by several representatives of the NHL and WHA.

These discussions were completely unofficial and all participants of the NHL understood that they were not authorized by the NHL.

Knicks strategy switch, held Boston center Dave Cowens to two points in the first half. Cowens got into foul trouble with three personals in the second quarter and the Knicks opened the game when Henry Finkel replaced the Redhead in the pivot.

New York quickly ran off eight straight points in a span of 1:17, with Willis Reed hitting three baskets and Jackson scoring on a short jumper.

Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn quickly returned Cowens to the game but the damage was apparent as New York led 46-28.

The Knicks hit 53.3 percent of their floor shots as they led 60-42 at intermission.

The third game of the series will be played in Boston Friday night with the fourth game here Sunday afternoon.

Carolina breezes past Kentucky

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Billy Cunningham and Mark Calvin staggered the Kentucky Colonels Wednesday night and substitute Ed Manning put them away as the Carolina Cougars romped to a 102-91 victory to level their American Basketball Association playoff series at two wins apiece.

Cunningham scored 32 points and Calvin 23 while generating a blistering fast break that demolished the Colonels in the fourth game of their best-of-seven Eastern Division series.

The fifth game will be in Greensboro, N.C., Friday night with the sixth scheduled here Saturday.

Manning came off the bench to ignite a flurry of 11 straight points in the last quarter when Carolina cracked the game open at 91-72. He fired in seven points with Tom Owens and the sixth will be nationally televised at Indianapolis Saturday afternoon.

Wise, who pumped in 28 points, second only to Jimmy Jones' 31, gave the Stars their final lead and neither team was able to score in the last 58 seconds as Utah snapped Indiana's 18-game home winning streak.

The Pacers gained possession with 17 seconds left, but were unable to score. With four seconds remaining, a jump ball was called and Indiana controlled with Don Freeman's shot at the buzzer falling short.

George McGinnis, the league's second leading scorer, tossed in 36 points for game-high honors, but Indiana never led by more than five points. For that matter, Utah also was unable to gain a sizeable lead.

The score was tied 14 times.

Steve Jones getting two points apiece during the spree.

Carolina smothered Artis Gilmore, Kentucky's 7-foot-2 giant, limiting the league's leading rebounder to just nine rebounds and a mere six points.

Without the spectacular outside shooting of reserve Wendell Hatcher, the Colonels would have been embarrassed by the outcome. Hatcher fired in 22 points.
