TWIN FALLS — Supt. George Staudaher today announced tentative plans for a far reaching school construction program involving a $4.7 million bond issue.

The plans, calling for construction of a new junior high school and two elementary buildings to replace present structures, hinge on offers by two business firms to purchase the present Lincoln and Washington grade schools.

Staudaher said he has a "firm verbal offer" for the Washington school and a tentative offer for the entire Lincoln school property, including the stadium.

One of the firms is a national business concern and the other is an Intermountain business, Staudaher said.

He stressed the traffic hazard at Washington School has long been a worry and the fire department is "extremely uncomfortable" about Lincoln school.

In addition, there have been reports of highway expansion at the Washington school intersection, which, if carried out, would further complicate the traffic hazard.

Staudaher said if the sale of the two schools is completed, he will formally ask the school trustees to approve the bond election at their June meeting. The election would be held in September.

He estimated about $800,000 would be realized from the sale of the two grade school properties.

Included in Staudaher's comprehensive construction plan: A new elementary building north of the high school to replace Washington school, at an estimated cost of $1.3 million. Replacement of the Lincoln grade school in a similar new building to be located on land the district already owns at Robert Stuart Junior High School.

Abandon and sell O'Leary Junior High School and build a new structure east of town. This building would have a 1,000 pupil capacity, with expansion up to 1,300 students.

The superintendent said he could not yet make any comment about site possibilities.

Building additional classrooms at Stuart Junior High School, including new physical education facilities.

Four new classrooms each at Harrison and Morningside schools. There are currently no provisions for change at Bleckel. (Continued on p. 13)

Still laughing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — James W. McCord Jr. may stand convicted of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping in the Watergate case, but apparently not even the prospect of up to 45 years in prison has dulled his sense of humor.

Toward the end of a lengthy session before a grand jury last week, the foreman asked him if he were planning to declare on his income tax some $30,000 he had just told them he received from the Watergate campaign for legal fees.

"I certainly will," he answered wryly. "I hope that's one mistake I don't make. I made a number of others."

Watergate papers destroyed by Gray

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray today said he had destroyed 100,000 pages of papers taken from the White House — one of the men who later pleaded guilty in the Watergate case.

Gray was said to have told Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen, now heading the Watergate investigation, that he did not know if the papers were related to the bugging conspiracy when he had them burned last year after getting them at a meeting with two top presidential aides, John D. Ehrlichman and John W. Dean III.

Gray was described in published reports as having informed Petersen of his action on April 16 — the day before President Nixon disclosed that he was making a fresh inquiry to find out who else might have been involved in the June 17 break-in at the Democratic Watergate offices.

Friends or associates of Gray were cited as the sources for the reports that Gray said the papers came from the office of E. Howard Hunt Jr. and that Gray received them on June 28, 1972 11 days after the Watergate incident.

The papers in question, reported first by the New York Daily News, included several copies of a memorandum dated July 1971.

—Fabricated State Department cables intended by Hunt to try to link President John F. Kennedy directly to the 1963 assassination of South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem.

—Material compiled by Hunt on the 1969 incident in which a woman died when a car driven by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy plunged into an inlet at Chappaquiddick Island in Massachusetts.

—Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., a member of the Senate's Watergate investigating committee, said the newspaper accounts of Gray's destruction of Hunt's files were "essentially correct." He said he based his opinion on personal meetings and telephone conversations he had with Gray Wednesday and Thursday.

Weicker, a close friend of Gray, said there was "no question in my mind that Pat Gray did not use good judgement in a variety of instances."

Hunt, a former White House consultant and an ex-CIA agent, pleaded guilty to all charges at the outset of the trial of the seven original Watergate defendants in January. Trial testimony showed that material from his White House office was removed shortly after his arrest, and most of it subsequently was turned over to the FBI.

US jets hit Red targets

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — U.S. jet fighters-bombers roared over Phnom Penh in almost nonstop day-and-night raids today against Communist targets across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh. The capital shuddered at the sound of the bombs, and sonic booms of the planes shattered windows.

The heavy bombing was in support of government forces trying to clear a three-mile area across the Mekong River from downtown Phnom Penh. At least 1,000 Cambodian troops were involved in the sweep against rebel infiltrators barely two miles from downtown Phnom Penh.

The first raids on this 51st consecutive day of American bombing were flown in early afternoon while thousands of people watched from the banks of the muddy, half-mile wide river as the planes flashed in through partly cloudy skies.

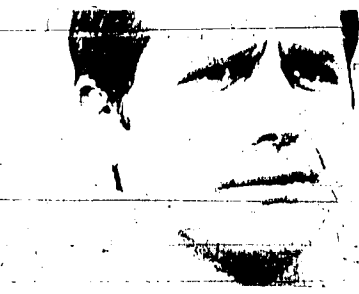

The raids halted temporarily when heavy rains lashed the area around the capital. The heavy air strikes resumed shortly before 7 p.m., with air force F4 Phantoms and the $15 million swampy F111s streaking through the night skies.

Jerome commissioners draw expenses

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News writer

JEROME — Jerome County commissioners receive $40 monthly expense checks from the county treasury, a check of courthouse records showed Thursday.

Checks on file in the office of the clerk show Commissioners Claude Bernard, John Van Orman and Milford Jones each received their $300 monthly salary for the month of March, in addition to the $40 for "expense."

The regular monthly salary was subject to withholdings for taxes and other expenses, but the $40 was paid in full, the checks show.

Mrs. Virginia Ricketts, county clerk, said the commissioners had been receiving the $40 monthly since January, 1970. But she said there was no formal resolution she could find in county records that inaugurated the system.

Prior to that time, she said the records showed the commissioners had submitted their actual expenses for reimbursement.

State law permits the commissioners to receive their annual salary raised by the recent state legislature to $3,600 from $3,200 for Jerome — plus "actual and necessary expenses during their term of office."

Commissioner John Van Orman said today the $40 was intended to cover all the commissioner's official expenses except for one trip to Boise for a state convention. "We usually plan to set up a budget" with enough money to cover the monthly checks plus one trip for the commissioners, he said.

Each commissioner receives $480 a year for expenses without tax withheld by the county, in addition to his salary of $3,600 a year, based on the $40 monthly.

The total cost to the taxpayers for expenses for their commissioners is $1,440.

Recent checks of records in the Twin Falls court house indicate the commissioners submit actual expense claims for their travels — including for their drives to and from work each day they are on county business.

The cost to the Twin Falls taxpayers thus far in 1973 has been $200, the records show.

In Jerome County, no other official, elected or appointed, receives the regular monthly expense check.

In Twin Falls County, no other official, either elected or appointed, receives reimbursement for their travels to and from home.

Commissioners in Twin Falls indicated this week they would continue to draw the reimbursement. They said state law requires them to live in different districts in the county and thus long distance travelling is unavoidable.

In Boise, the executive secretary of the Idaho Association of County Commissioners and Clerks declined comment on the Jerome County reimbursement system.

Dean Huntsman confirmed he had asked for an attorney general's opinion dealing with allowable commissioner expenses, and said he did not want to "interpret" the law on his own.

Cassia hospital funds approved

BURLEY — Officials from the Hill-Burton program gave final approval Wednesday to the new wing of the Cassia Memorial Hospital.

Huey R. Reed, chief of the health facilities construction section of the Department of Health, and David Shurtluff, state architect for the Hill-Burton program, a federal program for funding health facilities, toured the recently completed east wing.

The final payment of about $20,000 is expected from the federal government within a few weeks, according to hospital officials. About $419,000 will have been provided for construction by the government when this payment is received.

The total cost for the new wing, which includes eight intensive care rooms, four patient rooms and a day care room, will be about $1 million. About $350,000 of that was given by the LDS Church and another $5,000 through community donations. A county construction levy will pay the remainder of the cost.

Following the required audit of the project on Wednesday, the two officials along with Cassia county commissioners and the county clerk signed forms for the completion and acceptance of the project.

Japanese strike ends

TOKYO (UPI)—The government announced tonight agreement had been reached to end the most serious transportation strike in Japanese history—a walkout by more than three million railway workers.

leaders at the Diet (Parliament) building. The strike by some transportation unions, which had creepingly paralyzed Japan for most of the week and sparked bloody rioting in and around Tokyo, became almost total today with the brief walkout by more than three million national railway motormen and conductors.

Officials said it would take until at least Saturday to get all the trains running again. Today's strike brought rail services to a near standstill and left millions of commuters stranded in Tokyo, the world's largest city.

The government agreed to study the union's demands for full rights to strike later after a mediation board had fully weighed the issue.

Pat Acree, Twin Falls, publicity chairman for the project said it's jointly sponsored by the Magic Valley Art Guild, American Association of University Women and individuals.

The first car of the Artrain is called "A Vision of Creativity" and is divided into three sections. "Man Creates" uses a color slide review of the history of man's creativity executed on four screens flanked by mirrors.

The second section, "Cultural Landmarks," is a mirrored chamber containing art objects from other cultures.

as Egypt, Africa and the Orient. The third section, "Creative Motivators," is a corridor of flashing color transparencies of nature.

The second car, titled "A Vision of Man" also is divided into three sections. The first one, "The Innovators," presents a slide program on the pioneers of modern art and contains a miniature gallery with examples of these masters, all on loan from the Denver Art Museum.

The second section, "Man the Artist," displays in 3-D light boxes the concepts of point, plane, color, line, texture and mass. A film, "Art, the Mark of Man," discusses what a work of art is and how it is produced.

The third section "Art in Our Environment," will feature large, lighted color transparencies illustrating excellence in design and lighted mirrored wall cabinets display objects from everyday lives. A slide show, discusses man and his environment.

The third car has for its title "A Vision of Art" and is a gallery containing a collection of contemporary art, including crafts and western art.

The last car of the Artrain is a studio where artists from the Artrain staff and local artists demonstrate in a variety of areas. The train is equipped for ceramics, printing, jewelry making, and weaving. Visitors are invited to ask questions and view the creative process at first hand.

The train will be located on the Union Pacific tracks at Shoshone Street South at the site of the old depot. The public is invited to tour the cars and local guides will act as hosts.

Each tour lasts 40 to 45 minutes and 20 to 25 persons can begin a tour every 10 minutes, Mrs. Acree said. No admission is charged.

Judge outlines punishments

SALMON — Magistrate Judge William Puette this week outlined what juveniles who consume beer can expect in the way of punishment if they appear in his court.

They will be placed on six months probation, if first offenders, on the following terms:

They make a contribution of $15 to the Eastern Idaho Community Mental Health Center for purposes of alcohol treatment.

Their driver's license to be deposited with the court for 30 days.

They violate no federal, state, county or local laws. They consume no alcoholic beverages.

They be placed under a curfew of 10:30 p.m. from Sunday through Thursday nights and 12:30 a.m. on Friday and Saturday nights. They attend school regularly except for illness or other legitimate reason approved by the parent.

They comply with all parental orders; these to be supported by the court if required. They are to meet regularly with the youth rehabilitation counselor during the period of probation.

Judge Puette said the above actions can be expected for all "first offenders" regardless of any pressures which may be brought to bear. Repeat offenders will be given stiffer penalties, including jail sentences.

Forest cuts over-estimated

SALMON — A Forest Service official says it has become apparent that the annual allowable cut on some forests has been over-estimated in present timber management plans.

Vern Hamre, regional forester, Ogden, said this is apparent to the Forest Service and to many members of the timber industry.

"Areas have been included in the allowable cut calculations where technology is not available for adequate reforestation, where site productivity is so low that it is uneconomical to manage for commercial timber production, where the topography is so steep and the soil so fragile that we cannot log using present methods without permanent damage, and some areas which will probably be reserved from timber harvest because of wilderness classification," he said.

Hamre advised that with this new information the Forest Service will "revise its allowable cut calculations into categories."

He said there is a need to improve the salvage of timber dying from insects and disease and for better utilization of available timber.

A senior composition major at the college's department of music, she attended schools in Twin Falls and one semester at College of Southern Idaho prior to coming to BSC as a theory-composition major.

One of her compositions to be heard at the recital is her "String Quartet No. 1 (The Lark)" which won first prize recently in the National Federation of Music Clubs composition contest for Idaho and presently is competing for prizes at the national level.

SNAPPER V-21 or 18 mower

Where would you put the grass catcher...? if you were to design a mower. Between the handles, of course.

The Snapper V-21 or 18 lawn mowers do have the bag between the handles and it is 3 times larger. It bags your grass & vacuums your lawn while you mow. It is a many talented rotary that does much more than mow. It sucks up leaves and bags them; it blows off walks and driveways. It cleans both sides. See them now!

Questions Bubble

Alaska's oil-rich North Slope is going to be tapped. The question is not so much when but how.

That is, should the oil be piped across Alaska to the southern port of Valdez, and thence by tanker to the West Coast, as the oil companies want, or should it be transported wholly through pipelines across Alaska and Canada to the Midwest?

The answer will be up to Congress, and the forces on both sides are gearing up their arguments.

Not surprisingly, a number of midwestern senators and representatives favor the Canada route. What is surprising is that numerous environmentalists do, too. It is almost as if Canada did not have an environment to be concerned about, or a sovereign government that might have a say in the matter.

Points in favor of the Canada line include the facts that: (1) it would avoid areas of high earthquake hazard, (2) would avoid a marine leg, (3) would interfere less with caribou migrations and (4) might be combined with a gas line in a single corridor.

Also, it's argued that the Midwest needs oil more than the West Coast and that much of the oil delivered to the West Coast would only end up being shipped overseas, probably to Japan.

The administration, however, through Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton, has advised Congress that a trans-Alaska pipeline would best serve U.S. interests and that a Canadian route is "not desirable."

The Alaskan and Canadian routes are equal in terms of their effect on the land and on wildlife, says Morton, but any pipeline through Canada would involve more unavoidable environmental damages because it would be about four times as long.

"It would affect more wilderness, disrupt more wildlife habitat, cross almost twice as much permafrost and necessitate use of three or four times as much gravel that has to be dug from the earth and it would obviously use about four times as much land."

Moreover, he says, discussions that have been held with Canadian officials have made it clear that there are certain conditions the government of Canada would impose on any pipeline through Canada.

These are: (1) a majority of the equity interest in the line would have to be Canadian, (2) the management would have to be Canadian, (3) a major portion (at least 50 per cent) of the capacity of the line would have to be reserved for the transportation of Canadian oil to Canadian markets and (4) at all times preference would be given to Canadian-owned and controlled groups during the construction of the project and in supplying materials.

These are the major arguments pro and con that will have to be considered by Congress.

Whatever the decision may be, it can be said now with certainty that it is not going to satisfy everyone.

WASHINGTON — Amid all the furious furor and uproar over Watergate, one intriguing fact stands out — unnoticed but strikingly significant. This is the U.S. complete silence that now envelops the once equally torrid Democratic issue of tax reform.

Not long ago as shrilly in the limelight as Watergate, there hasn't been a peep about it for weeks. And there probably won't be until 1974 — another election year.

Do you recall the clamorously partisan agitation that featured such voter-luring arguments as plugging up loopholes, doing away with capital gains, and sundry other siren-like tax reforms. For months, it was noisily in the headlines and on the air morning, noon and night.

It was one of Sen. McGovern's principal electioneering spolia; it played a key role in his winning the Wisconsin primary which opened the way for his grabbing the presidential nomination. And early this month, Sens. Kennedy and Muskie (undeclared 1976 hopefuls) led ten Democratic colleagues in a carefully planned and orchestrated "tax colloquy" — to a virtually empty Senate.

With the exception of those who participated in this largely ghostwritten avvil chorus, not even fellow Democrats bothered to turn out for the 90 minutes of strictly partisan trading and fulminating. They had heard it many times before. They also will hear it many, many times, again especially next year when the tax issue will once more get blazing hot with the same showproud cast of political characters storming the hustings with sanctimonious and hypocritical haranguing and breath-beating.

Democratic tax reform clamor was phony in the 1972 election; it is phony this year; and it will be phony in the 1974 election.

Irrefutable evidence that this agitation is wholly partisan clutter and the Democrats really don't mean it is the following: The Democrats have decisive majorities in the Senate and House and firmly control the committees that write tax legislation. That is particularly true of the Ways and Means Committee where the party lineup is 15 Democrats, 10 Republicans. All the Democrats have to do to make good their vociferous rhetoric is to write a tax bill and report it out.

The Democrats have done nothing at all — and chairman Long has no intention of doing anything until, and if, the House acts. Which definitely won't be this year.

New Breeding

With beef prices soaring stateside and with meat in short supply worldwide, imagine the importance to a hungry world if next-generation steers each weighed an additional 500 pounds? and if each cow were to produce "hundreds" of offspring?

I can tell you it has been accomplished at least once in humans. Long-range implications are too obvious to require elaboration. In the centuries-old struggle, ever since the Nile Valley was rendered infertile by misuse, each generation has wondered where the food for the next generation would come from.

American agriculture has done most to increase productivity per acre and per animal. April 3 in Minneapolis was another milestone. And it is another American "first."

ART BUCHWALD

Don't Give Up

WASHINGTON — The Naval Court of Inquiry into the sinking of the SS Watergate was held in executive session here last week.

On the stand was Capt. Richard M. Nixon who commanded the ship at the time it went down.

Here is a partial transcript of the hearings which do not violate national security.

"Capt. Nixon, the SS Watergate sprang a leak on the morning of June 17, 1972. What did you do about it at the time?"

"I didn't think much of it. I was told by my executive officer that seven men had been fooling around in the shower room and the nozzle broke off."

"Did you order an investigation of the incident?"

"Yes, I did, and it was the most thorough investigation ever held on the high seas. I told my officers I wanted to know if anyone on my staff had anything to do with the leak. They reported back to me categorically that no one in the crew except for the seven men was involved in the incident. I accepted this as fact."

"Did you try to repair the damage at the time?"

"There was nothing to repair as far as I was concerned. The seven men were court-martialed and that was the end of it."

"But isn't it true that during the court-martial of the seven there were hints that other people were involved in the leak?"

"It was only hearsay. A captain has many enemies on a ship, and I was not about to put credence in a lot of gossip and rumor."

"Now, Capt. Nixon, since the leak was not repaired, the lower compartments of the ship began to flood. Didn't you feel at that time you should take some action?"

"I sent my people down to inspect the damage and they said the ship was completely dry below decks."

"You didn't go down to inspect the damage yourself?"

"I had to stay on the bridge. It is a mistake for a captain to know too much about what is going on in the crew's quarters. Besides, I had great faith in my officers and their ability to judge whether the ship was in jeopardy or not."

"Is it true that your communications officer Lt. Ronald Ziegler kept announcing over the loudspeaker that there was nothing wrong with the ship?"

"Yes, he did it on my orders."

"Then Lt. Ziegler hadn't gone below to inspect the damage either?"

"Not to my knowledge. We were getting continual reports from our legal officer, Lt. John Dean III, and he assured us that we were safe and our crew was clear."

"But didn't you get suspicious when the water rose to the main deck?"

"I didn't like it, but I didn't consider it my problem. I've been in storms before, six to be exact, and I've always been able to weather them. Besides, my staff told me not to pay any attention because the ship was built to withstand any kind of pressure."

"When did you decide that you were really in danger?"

"On March 21, 1973, I received some startling information from my officers that the leak did not come from a shower, but that we had really hit an iceberg."

"Then you decided to take action?"

"Yes, I went on the loudspeaker myself and said that anyone responsible for jitting the iceberg would be immediately removed from the crew."

"And when did you decide to abandon ship?"

"When the water got up to my hips and I noticed all my officers starting to take to the lifeboats."

"How did you feel about losing so many of your crew?"

"I felt bad about it, but by that time it was every man for himself."

Tremor Understanding

In the past the study of earthquakes has been largely centered on reporting quakes after they occurred, pinpointing locations and intensities. The National Center for Earthquake Research, located almost on top of the San Andreas Fault near Menlo Park, Calif., is coming close to predicting — and eventually possibly controlling — earthquakes.

Staff members have made their first prediction: a moderate quake at or near Hollister, Calif., sometime in the next several months. Earthquakes, of course, are not unknown on the West Coast, as files of squiggly lines on charts maintained by the NCEER readily reveal.

Out of that historical data have come some interesting observations. Such as the discovery that slight changes occur in magnetic properties in rocks when they are under pressure, as before a quake. Or the discovery that the Earth's surface tilts slightly before a major geologic event. Japanese and American scientists are exploring that phenomenon.

The Earth creep, sometimes in opposite directions along the San Andreas Fault, is another indicator of possible earthquake activity. A discovery of the effect increased water pressures have underground has led to experiments in controlling earthquake activity, so far successfully.

The NCEER is not yet prepared to say it can prevent major earthquakes, but that obviously is the direction of its efforts.

FISHY PROBE

Studying the memory capabilities of crabs, lobster and crayfish may not seem like the most enjoyable labor, but two staff members of the California Institute of Technology say it is simply a matter of starting at the beginning.

"A simple system like this needs to be known before you can go on to more complex organisms," explained Dr. Cornelis A. G. Wiersma. The "more complex organisms" would include human memory functions.

Crustaceans do possess memories which are remarkably acute although short-lived. They will recognize a change in position of an object in the vicinity even though the change is no more than one-sixteenth of an inch, but the retentive power lasts only about eight minutes.

In view of the crab's environment, that would seem to be time enough to decide to split the scene.

LOOKIT!

Shooting of husbands is declining, it is reported. But in a joint checking account a wife can still beat her husband to the draw.

NO MOWING

A healthy, lush lawn is one that is mowed lightly and not too often. Shearing to less than an inch and a half invites browning and burning because it prevents grass from absorbing the dew of night and earning morning. This is the advice of the head of a research laboratory.

The don't-do-it plan may produce a scraggly look now and then, but this is better than having all that money for seed and fertilizer wind up as a dead waste.

And the beauty of the program is that it fits just fine into leisure time schedules that offer so many more pleasurable things than lawn-mowing.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

The Tail Bone

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it possible for the tailbone to become longer? Since my little girl was born 11 months ago my tailbone has been sensitive. When I sit on a hard surface (as in the bathtub) it becomes painful.

The doctor said it could be bruised, but otherwise he couldn't find anything wrong. He told me to sit on a pillow or to gain a little weight on my backside.

My husband and I have snowmobiled for two years. Could this be the reason? Do you have any idea what can be done? — Mrs. D. G.

Put aside the idea that the coccyx (or tailbone) has grown longer. That doesn't happen.

However, pain in that region is not what you'd call rare. Quite a lot of folks have to struggle through a bout of that.

The pain (called coccygodynia) most often results from spasm of the muscles attached to the tailbone, and that in turn ordinarily is the consequence of some injury or strain involving those muscles.

You've had this trouble since birth of the baby; it would be logical to assume that the muscles or related tissues were strained at that time. It happens sometimes in childbirth.

Most generally, the "treatment" you can do for yourself is the most effective way of gradually overcoming the trouble. It does, however, take time.

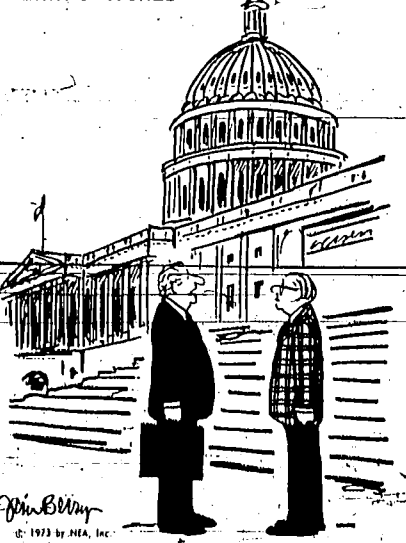

Spasm of the muscles can be relaxed by hot baths; in some cases physicians can massage the muscles — through the rectum.

For the sake of accuracy, I must point out that infection in the area of the rectum or of the genital area in women can account for the pain that affects the coccyx or tailbone.

Subduing the infection relieves the pain.

But since your doctor found no sign of such infection, that would not seem to be the source of the trouble in your case.

Health meet set in TF

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

JEROME — Plans were announced here Wednesday for a meeting of the South Central Idaho Health District Board and Dr. James Bax, director of the Idaho Department of Environmental and Community Services, May 8.

This meeting, at 7:30 p.m. in the Judicial Building in Twin Falls, will be followed by sessions May 9 and 10 of the State Board of Health in the Holiday Inn, Twin Falls. The public meeting will deal with reorganization of departments within the new Environmental and Community Services, according to William Chace, district board chairman.

District Administrator

Wayne Curie reported on a proposed cancer screening program for all persons. He said the health department should cooperate in the program and support local medical societies and American Cancer Society people where possible, but should not take an active part in the medical phase of the program.

Board members authorized sending two environmentalists to the National Boy Scout Jamboree in Farragut July 28 to Aug. 11. Each will go for one week. Other districts and the state will also be furnishing environmentalists to provide food inspections and sanitation regulations for the several thousand attending the Jamboree.

Dr. Curie also announced the Blaine County health office will be relocated as soon as county commissioners there can find a new site. He said the 1973 budget will apparently stretch despite the loss of $13,000 in anticipated revenue from the city of Twin Falls.

Dr. Curie also announced the Blaine County health office will be relocated as soon as county commissioners there can find a new site. He said the 1973 budget will apparently stretch despite the loss of $13,000 in anticipated revenue from the city of Twin Falls.

The city has withdrawn from the district programs and will furnish its own inspections except on liquor by the drink licenses, he said. He said the district expenses are running about $25,000 a month which will just about consume the available revenue.

Bar asks bug probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The New York City Bar Association, one of the largest and most prestigious groups of lawyers in the nation, urged President Nixon Thursday to put an independent lawyer in charge of the Watergate investigation.

Orville H. Schell Jr., president of the 10,000-member association, said in a letter released in Washington that many lawyers were "greatly concerned" about Justice Department control over efforts to get to the bottom of the June 17, 1972, break-in and bugging of the Democratic party's national headquarters at the Watergate building.

Thais given US weapons

BANGKOK (UPI) — Authoritative sources said Thursday the United States is providing weapons and other assistance to help Thailand set up a counter-insurgency militia similar to the Popular Force and Regional Force units it created in South Vietnam.

The sources said the local defense force—an expanded version of the present Village

Defense Organization (VDO)—would be centered initially in a four-province area of Thailand's impoverished northeast, where Communist guerrillas now control about 10 per cent of the villages.

Plans for the project have not been publicized by U.S. officials or the Thai government, partly to avoid criticism that the Communist insurgency situation in the country is only being aggravated by continued U.S. presence and involvement in Thailand.

The sources who outlined the project said it would be much smaller in scope than South Vietnam's militia force, which numbers in the hundreds of thousands. They said plans called for recruitment of between 7,000 and 15,000 villagers over the next five years. The long-range goal would be to have a self-defense unit in every village.

As the first step in the project, the sources said, the United States has made available more than 5,000 World War II and Korean War vintage weapons under its military aid program to Thailand for villagers who will be recruited into the VDO.

Sources here said the first weapons will be distributed in Nakhon Phanom province, a major insurgency area where the air base which houses the new U.S. military headquarters for Southeast Asia is located.

Some villagers would be organized into units in their own villages, corresponding to the Popular Force units of South Vietnam, while others would form "reaction forces" that would correspond to Regional Force units and be sent out from centers to respond to Communist attacks or movements.

The new units would widely expand the activities of present scattered village self-defense units and of hunter-killer teams, some of them trained by U.S. Green Berets, that are supposed to seek out and destroy Communist guerrillas.

There are believed to be about 1,500 well-armed guerrillas in Nakhon Phanom, Udorn, Kalasin and Sakon Nakhon provinces of the northeast, with perhaps double that number of support personnel and active sympathizers. U.S. military installations are located in three of the four provinces.

According to authoritative sources, the weapons being distributed include rifles, machine guns, and mortars collected by the United States from the Thai army when it was rearmed with M16 rifles and other new equipment over the past few years.

Distribution of the weapons which have been stored at a U.S. arsenal near its Udorn air base, will add about half a million dollars to this year's military aid program. Although so far not disclosed, U.S. military aid to Thailand this year is expected to be around $6 million.

ENFIELD, N.H. (UPI) — Donald Crute knew just what to do early today when he heard a crackling noise and found his garage on fire.

He jumped into his car, fortunately parked outside, drove to the fire station, got out the pumper and drove it home to extinguish the blaze.

Crute is the Enfield fire chief.

Land use hearings due in MV

BOISE (UPI) — Members of an interim land use planning committee of the legislature decided Thursday to conduct hearings throughout the state this summer before making any decisions on proposed legislation.

At the same time they agreed to use a starting point or guideline a bill introduced in the senate at the first regular session of the 42nd Legislature this past winter.

Although this bill, drafted by the State Planning and Community Affairs Agency, was introduced it never was acted upon and served as the springboard for creation of the interim committee.

Committee members voted to restrict their remaining meetings to 10 in number and said they will attempt to conduct two hearings a day while getting public input into the land use planning question.

Tentatively, they selected the Coeur d'Alene, Lewiston, Boise, Caldwell or Emmett, Magic Valley, Sun Valley, Ketchum, Soda Springs and Island Park areas for hearings.

Spending votes hit by aide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of Congress will have to stop voting in favor of spending but against taxes at every opportunity if the federal budget is ever going to get in shape, former Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler said Thursday.

"The well-known natural and traditional proclivity to vote for every appropriation, and against any increase in taxes or borrowing authority must be ended," said Fowler, a Democrat who served as treasury secretary during the Johnson administration.

Testifying before the Joint Economic Subcommittee on priorities and economy, he endorsed a proposal for far-reaching reform in the way Congress approaches its taxing and spending responsibilities.

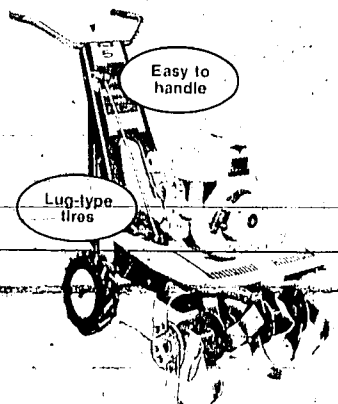

Under the plan, advanced a few weeks ago by a Joint Budget Committee after study since January, committees of the House and Senate would fix a ceiling on spending and then determine whether taxes would have to be raised or lowered to meet that ceiling. The committees also would decide whether a deficit was appropriate under prevailing economic conditions and, if so, what how large.

Only after total spending had been set by both houses would various appropriations be approved.

Also endorsing the concept Thursday was former Rep. John W. Byrnes, Wis., who was the ranking Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee before he retired from Congress in 1972.

To get control of the budget, Byrnes said, "Congress should begin work on it at least a year before the start of the fiscal year covered by that budget. Beyond that, he said, "establishing priorities and imposing restraints (on spending) ... involves saying 'no' to some groups seeking funding for what to them is ... essential."

Opinions differ at Boise forum

BOISE (UPI) — Authorities attending a National Interest Forum on energy in Boise had differing opinions Thursday as to whether the United States is really suffering from an energy crunch.

"We are already in the clutches of a massive energy crunch and no one is doing anything about it," John J. McElla, professor of chemical engineering at the University of Texas, said.

But Abraham Gerber, vice president of the National Economic Research Associates, Inc., New York City, said, "The circumstances in which we now find ourselves are not the result of an absolute shortage of energy resources."

He said the nation's energy resources are adequate to supply the country's needs for many decades and even centuries to come, even with present technology.

"To the extent that there is an energy crisis, it is self imposed or at least a short term crisis," Gerger said. "It is self-imposed largely by our efforts to achieve the environmental goals which have been formulated in response to the sudden awareness of environmental quality and without regard to the time which would be required for their attainment without imposing severe disincentives."

The comments were made at a forum presented by the University of Idaho and Washington State University. The two-day meet, which opened Thursday, is supported by the National Science Foundation.

McElla, who is the chairman of the National Air Quality Control Committee, told the group meeting at the Rodeway Inn that the energy shortage is being caused by "senseless, inflexible governmental regulations and fanatical demands of extreme environmentalists."

"I see no way to get out of this whole mess before the year 2000," he said. "We can alleviate the shortage slightly but only if we become reasonable about environmental demands."

He said the crunch can be slowed if the nation becomes sensible about encouraging U.S. businessmen to find new energy, to use coal on a much larger scale, along with nuclear energy, and encourage research and development of broad fronts to help find solutions.

He said he was an environmentalist, but there must be "trade-offs for the best of society."

Frank M. Warren, president of the Portland Gas and Electric Co., Portland, Ore., said the problem is not one of an "immediate energy crisis," but rather a "crisis of decision."

"If people will make balanced reasonable decisions based on facts and logic we can do the job that needs to be done."

Warren added that there is enough private and public money available to solve the energy crisis.

Wood River competition

SIZING UP THE competition for Saturday's Wood River District Scout-O-Rama Pinewood Derby run-off are Steve Nagues, left, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Nagues, Bellevue, and Wade Ehrmantraut, right, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ehrmantraut, Bellevue.

'Grand Prix' set in Hailey

HAILEY — The Wood River District Scout-O-Rama may score a first Saturday in Hailey with a Pinewood "grand prix." According to event chairman, Dick Nagues, Bellevue, this year's Scout-O-Rama will feature a district-wide Pinewood Derby run-off.

"machines" are expected to battle for the title of district champion, Nagues said, including Cub Scouts from Shoshone, Dietrich, Richfield, Carey, Ketchum, Hailey and Bellevue.

The grand derby will be conducted in conjunction with the Scout-O-Rama hours, 3 to 8 p.m. Saturday at the Wood River District Scout Center. Finals will be run toward the end of the evening, Nagues said.

Scout skills and crafts will also be depicted at the event, with booths and demonstrations to include first aid, finger printing, knot tying and conservation, Nagues said.

Boise contracts in limbo

BOISE (UPI) — Boise Education Association and School District negotiating teams Thursday announced they reached an impasse in contract discussions and are seeking outside assistance.

Jack White, executive director of the Boise Education Association, said the negotiators have contacted the federal mediation and conciliation service to provide a mediator to assist in resolving the disputes.

He said it is "up to them when they can make available to us a person."

He said there is no deadline for the settlement although a settlement must be reached before contracts can go out for next year.

Idaho camping fees increased

BOISE (UPI) — The fees for camping in Idaho state recreational areas was increased Thursday by the Idaho Park and Recreation Board.

The board also decided to charge out-of-state campers an additional $1 for using the park areas.

The fee for primitive areas will remain the same, $2 per night.

The fees for improved sites will increase from $2 to $3, while camping sites with water and electricity for campers will go from $2.50 to $3.50. Those areas with sewers, water and electricity will increase from $3 to $4.

Board members at the same time agreed to try out a reservation policy for the state's two most-visited parks, Ponderosa State Park near McCall, and Indian Creek State Park near Priest Lake.

The reservation will cost $1 and must be made two weeks in advance. The first night camping fee will be required as a deposit.

The board was also informed Thursday a woman would like to will the Department Pearl Island in Pend Oreille Lake.

Energy dilemma aired by McClure

BOISE (UPI) — U.S. Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, warned Thursday night that "in our impending energy crisis, the nation is facing its most dangerous domestic challenge since the great depression."

"We must realize," he said, "that if we don't control our immediate energy dilemma, we will pay dearly in the future when our nation might well face an energy crisis over which we have no possible control."

Speaking before the National Energy Forum, meeting in Boise, McClure said, "we cannot ignore the possibility that very soon we must make some extremely painful choices among our national goals."

"And we cannot afford to reject the alternatives some experts are offering — that our nation will be forced to trade environmental goals for economic survival," he said. "If they are right, then, there is really no choice."

McClure, who has been in the forefront of national efforts to deal with the energy crisis, served as chairman of the U.S. House of Representatives Republican Task Force on Energy and Resources.

Wyoming trial set

CASPER, Wyo. (UPI) — Rancher Herman Werner will go on trial in federal court Oct. 29 in connection with the killing of over 300 eagles in Wyoming.

Federal Judge Ewing T. Kerr of Cheyenne will preside over the jury trial of the 80-year-old Casper rancher who is charged in connection with the killing of 365 golden eagles, seven Canadian geese and three bald eagles between November, 1970, and January, 1971.

Search continues

LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI) — Nezperce County Sheriff's deputies and volunteers were back on the Snake River today in search of the bodies of two men missing and feared drowned south of here.

Authorities hold out little hope Edward Williams, 44, and his cousin, Jack Bowman, 41, are still alive after leaping into the river along with six others when the boat they were aboard capsized and sank Monday afternoon 50 miles south of here.

The six others were later pulled from the river a few miles downstream from the Imnaha Rapids where the incident occurred. However, searchers have yet to find any trace of Williams or Bowman.

Authorities said Thursday night they would continue the search for the two along the rugged banks of the Snake until at least Saturday, but have little hope of finding the two alive.

Deputies said Thursday they found more debris from the boat in two coves on the Snake, and said they would drag them in an effort to locate the bodies. The Snake River in this area passes swiftly between sheer rock walls and authorities have said for this reason it is doubted Williams, a former Idaho state official and now project director with the Pacific Northwest Regional Commission, and Bowman, who was piloting the boat when it capsized, could have survived.

"They said even if the two had made it to the shore, they would not have been able even to get a handhold to pull themselves out. The two were not wearing lifejackets when the incident occurred.

About five sheriff's deputies and 20 volunteers were involved in the search Thursday and again today.

The search is mainly being carried on with the use of power boats, but some aircraft are still involved.

Gas shortage good for major brand stations

By United Press International
An oil industry spokesman said Thursday the nation was "on the brink" of gasoline rationing amid charges by independent service stations and some state officials that distributors were using the fuel shortage to put them out of business for the benefit of their own retail outlets.

It is eliminating so-called "mavericks" in the business who indulge in price cutting," he said. "I believe when this crunch is over there will be at least one-third less non-branded stations in operation and those remaining will be better independents."

Service Station Dealer, an industry periodical. In an interview published in the May edition of Intellectual Digest, John G. McLean, Chairman of Continental Oil Co., said the United States is on the brink of gas rationing. He also said a long-term fuel shortage could be averted if consumers were willing to pay higher prices. Independents were angry and were placing the blame for their predicament squarely on the shoulders of the major producers. William Bradley, president of the Independent Oil Producers Assn., in Taft, Calif., said "we can't prove it, but you can be damn sure it's a fact. All of us feel we're being squeezed out." In the New York suburb of Elmont, independent Alfred Pellenne put looks on his station's 16 pumps Tuesday night and placed a sign on a window apologizing to his customers. The sign said his distributor, Crown Central Petroleum of Baltimore, had stopped supplying him.

The claims of the independents were substantiated to some extent by a spokesman for the Illinois Gasoline Dealers Association (IGDA) who said the shortage is the "best" thing that's happened to the major branded stations in the past 20 years.

Two dismaying developments—price increases and rationing—were possibly in store for consumers, especially small businesses and automobile-oriented householders.

Robert Jacobs, IGDA executive director said the shortage "whether caused by accident or design," was stabilizing the market.

Buhl church schedules observance

BUHL — Mark Goff, a freshman at Northwest Christian College, Eugene, Ore., will be the guest speaker Sunday at the Buhl First Christian Church, in the annual observance of "NCC Day."

Goff graduated from Buhl High School in 1972. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goff, who live northeast of Buhl.

Northwest Christian College is a four-year college sponsored by the Christian Church. Its primary task is to train men and women for the various aspects of the ministry. However, many who do not plan on the ministry take courses at N.C.C. in order to be better lay persons in their local congregations.

"NCC Day" is an annual event among the Christian churches of the northwest. Students go to the churches in Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho and Utah to tell the story of the college. The theme for this year is "Go Tell."

Chandeliers shook in Honolulu City Hall and the receptionist for a 10th-floor revolving restaurant said "The building was shaking tremendously and we didn't know what to do. Things were really moving up here."

A resident of a 40-story apartment said the structure was "rattling" as if it would fall down.

Tall buildings swayed and occupants fled to the street in Honolulu, 200 miles away.

An old plantation house was flattened but the people inside escaped with a few scratches.

The force of the quake split a 1,200-foot concrete pier at Hilo harbor from end to end.

Two skyscrapers—200 miles from its center shook Hawaii's major islands Thursday leveling one building, causing landslides and injuring at least 11 people.

The quake, which registered 6.2 on the Richter scale, was the strongest to hit the islands since 1951 when a tidal wave followed.

The earthquake ocean centered in the Pacific Ocean about 12 miles northeast of the island of Hawaii, the largest in the chain of islands that makes up the 50th state.

Six school children suffered minor injuries on Hawaii and extensive structural damage forced the closing of four schools.

The town of Hilo was hardest hit. One building collapsed, water mains broke, walls cracked, plate glass shattered and stock rolled off store shelves.

Glen Shirota, 20, was trapped in the rubble of the two-story building but was pulled to safety within minutes and was reported in satisfactory condition.

Gordon Morse was standing in front of the Hilo post office when "the street began to undulate and heave."

"All traffic came to a grinding halt," Morse said. "Moving cars couldn't keep their course and began to

River fight futile

By United Press International
The Mississippi River stood at its highest level in history at St. Louis today and continued to edge upward, straining dikes and levees and leaving workers embroiled in what appeared to be a futile battle.

There was a feeling of hopelessness among volunteers who fought against the rising river, attempting to prevent the collapse of remaining levees along the river.

"All we're really doing is retreating," said a rescue worker in Arnold, Mo., where floodwaters engulfed about 400 homes.

Damage estimates reached $100 million in the eight-state area from Iowa to Louisiana and officials said the final figure could approach $1 billion.

Mississippi Gov. Bill Waller estimated damage in his state at $120 million.

The latest outbreak of flooding has been blamed for at least eight deaths. Earlier this month, the river climbed over its banks along the same path, killing some 20 persons.

The Mississippi climbed to 42.02 feet Thursday night—12 feet above flood stage. The level was higher than a record dating back to 1785, when French fur trappers measured the river's level.

Upstream from St. Louis, at a point where the huge river stretches into a lake with a girth of 10 miles.

"At times people seem to be losing their minds ... they're just in so much of a hurry," said a Civil Defense worker at St. Charles, Mo., where the last of some 2,000 families left their homes Thursday as the river surged forward with record crests.

The unstoppable river rolled over its banks from Iowa to Louisiana, covering hundreds of thousands of acres of farmlands with its muddy floodwaters and ruining cotton, soybean and sugar cane crops.

'Papers' judge angry

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An angry federal judge delayed the almost completed testimony in the Pentagon Papers trial Thursday, upbraiding the prosecution for yet another failure to reveal evidence to the defense.

Such incidents have been a running issue in the trial. The defense has asked for a mistrial on that basis. The judge sanctioned the government for one incident by forbidding the Justice Department to present any evidence on one of the espionage counts against Daniel Ellsberg, in effect dismissing the charge.

U.S. District Judge Matt Byrne, appearing more irritated than on previous such occasions, told prosecutors Thursday that they should get the Air Force to fly the necessary documents here from Washington if necessary.

"The burden on the government cannot be waived at the cost of the rights of the defendants," Byrne said. "The thing that concerns me is what other documents you haven't found."

Under law and a pretrial order by the judge, the Justice Department is required to turn over to attorneys for Ellsberg and Anthony Russo reports of pre-trial interviews with prospective witnesses and material from government files that would help show Ellsberg and Russo innocent.

Thursday's incident involved material from the government's investigation of security safeguards at the Rand Corp. think tank, begun after Ellsberg admitted he copied the Pentagon Papers while working there.

Evangelist sets Wood R. crusade

HATLEY — Three area churches have joined forces for a nine-day Wood River Evangelistic Crusade.

According to a news release from Barbara Kriley, publicity aide of the event, the crusade has been scheduled for May 5 to 13 in Hatley.

Public meetings will be conducted at the old National Guard Armory, May 7 to 12, with Rev. Paul Winkler as visiting evangelist. Use of the facility was donated to the crusade by Keith Bird, Hatley.

The release said the remaining three days will be home and church visitation days and that youth teams will carry the message to all area homes and churches.

The crusade plans resulted from three months of meetings by representatives of the Assembly of God and the community Baptist churches, Hatley, and the Bellevue Community Church. The idea began at a meeting of Baptist youth who then sought support from the other churches.

The release said the crusade is designed as Wood River Valley's contribution to Key 73, a concerted evangelistic effort by many churches in the U.S. to "take Christ to all Americans in 1973."

According to Tom Thompson, youth crusade chairman who is also coordinating the local effort with other area Key 73 operations, "We're trying to turn on the whole Wood River Valley to Jesus."

Other members of the planning committee are: chairman, Rev. Everett Berrey; recorder, Patti Litinger; Rev. Loyd Moore, Rev. Don Kunkel and a number of other youths and adults.

Rev. Winkler, Arvada, Colo., is a native of Twin Falls and pastored a Shoshone church for several years before moving to Arvada.

New Baptist parsonage in Shoshone

Clinger home donated to Shoshone Baptists

SHOSHONE — The First Baptist Church, Shoshone, again has a parsonage.

For many years the church has been without such an abode, but was recipient of a gift this past week to fill this need.

The five children of the late Mrs. Erma Driskell gave the church a home for the church pastor.

Location of the home is North Alta and East Fourth streets, just one block from the New Baptist Church. The house on this property was built by the Driskell children's grandfather, the late E. L. Clinger.

Clinger was by trade a carpenter. He was a veteran of the Spanish American War with rank of captain. He had served Lincoln County as a probate judge and was postmaster for Shoshone for many years prior to his death.

With his wife, Monnie, and children, Erma and Fred, he moved to Shoshone from Rochester, Ind., in 1909.

The Carey Act Land opening at that time was bringing in people from all parts of the country and housing in Shoshone was at a premium. It was a bustling booming frontier town at the time. The only farms then were those along the Big and Little Wood Rivers. The Java Rock First Baptist Church was quite new.

Mr. Clinger purchased lots where the Fred Clinger house now stands and the family spent the first two winters in a tent while he built their first home. Later he purchased the land across the street, which since has been the "home place" of the Clinger and Driskell families.

The Driskell children recall that they, their mother and grandmother had all affiliated with the Shoshone First Baptist Church and in appreciation of that fact, presented the original home to the church.

In presenting the gift, the family members noted it was a memorial to "mother, Erma Driskell; grandmother, Monnie Clinger; grandfather, Ernest L. Clinger; and Aunt Elizabeth Clinger."

Substantial

The term "substantial year," meaning a leave of absence every seventh year, came from the Old Testament. The Jews directed that every seventh year the agricultural land should be allowed to lie fallow or to rest on the seventh year.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am divorced with an 8-month-old son, Timmy. Last weekend my boy friend invited me to go to Las Vegas with him, so I left Timmy with a friend I'll call Carol. Carol has no children of her own, but she has practically raised her younger brothers and sisters so I thought my baby would be in good hands.

When I came home and went to pick up Timmy, I was shocked and heartsick. He was all bruised and black and blue. I asked Carol what happened to him, and she said he fell off a chair. Abby, he can hardly sit up, and what would an 8-month-old child be doing on a chair? He looked as if he had been beaten.

I took Timmy home, and now he cries all the time and seems so weak and unhappy. What should I do? Carol won't admit to having beaten him, if that's what she did. I'm so nervous and upset and have no one to talk to. Help me.

YOUNG MOTHER

Injured child

DEAR MOTHER: Take the baby to a pediatrician for a thorough examination to determine whether he has suffered internal injuries. You could file charges against Carol for abusing your child, but you would have to prove it, which would be virtually impossible. Next time, leave your baby only with one you are sure you can trust.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for six years and have two children. My problem is a husband who never likes to go out, and I do.

Well, one evening my husband's brother came over with his wife. The brother wanted to go out, but his wife didn't. The wife herself suggested that HE take me. My husband told me to go ahead, so I went. I hadn't been out in such a long time I jumped at the chance. We went dancing and goofing around, and had a good time. We got home around midnight.

I asked a couple of my friends what they thought of this and one said, "You're lucky to have such an understanding husband."

Another said, "Any man who lets his wife go out with another man can't love her. He must be seeing another woman."

What is your opinion? And do you see anything wrong with what I did?

BEWILDERED

DEAR BEE: I'd agree with the first friend. [P. S. An occasional night out with your brother in law is all right, but don't make a habit of it.]

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I had a child out of wedlock. Because I was pregnant, unable to work, and unmarried, I filed for public aid. After the baby came I was advised to file a paternity suit against Roy, the baby's father. Roy admitted paternity, and the court ordered him to pay me child support every month, which he does.

Roy is marrying a girl who lives about 50 miles away. He says his fiancée knows nothing about the child and he has no intentions of telling her. I think he should. The child carries Roy's last name and if anything should happen to me, he would have to take the child. Roy is 30 years old, makes a very good living, and this will be his first marriage.

Would I be out of line to let Roy's fiancée know about our child? If I were in her place, I'd want someone to tell me.

CONSIDERING IT

DEAR CONSIDERING: Tell Roy he is unrealistic, unfair, and kidding himself if he thinks he can keep this illegitimate child a secret from his wife forever. I would not tell the girl, but I would advise you to urge Roy to before the wedding.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FED UP IN ASHLAND": If you are "fed up" with people who always drag their kids along to adult parties, don't invite people who always drag their kids along to adult parties.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69760, L. A., Calif. 90089. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Stamp allotment, diet cost gap widens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The gap between the government's food stamp allotment for needy families and the escalating cost of the "economy diet plan" is designed to cover widened again this month.

Unless retail food prices stop rising soon, the Agriculture Department probably will have to consider another boost in stamp grants for the year beginning July 1, a top official said today.

Currently, food stamp allotments provide $112 worth of stamps monthly for a family of four. Officials recently announced the allotments would rise to $116 for the year beginning July 1.

But the cost of feeding a family of four under the "economy plan" developed by Department nutritionists — which is used as the standard for setting food stamp allocations — has risen well above the allotment. When the current $112 figure took effect last July 1, the cost of a diet based on the economy plan was already up to $114.30. By last month, propelled by the superheated food price rises of the past few months, the cost of the economy diet had risen to roughly $125, or about $13 greater than the current monthly allotment. Even if food price increases stop immediately, the cost of the diet in July would be $9 a month more than the pending $116 allocation.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Clayton Youtter said in an interview the Agriculture Department has no current plans to increase the monthly stamp allotment.

"We're really hopeful that food prices will level off and even decline. And if that happens, the gap will narrow," Youtter said. "But if these recent food price trends continued, it probably would be necessary to reappraise the situation."

He refused to speculate on how big the prospective gap between allotments and food costs would have to be to trigger a restudy of the allotment level. But a $10 a month gap for a family-of-four would certainly be considered "major," Youtter said.

Food stamp law does not specifically tie stamp allocations to the economy diet plan. But the Agriculture Department uses the plan as its payment base because debate on the legislation indicated "congressional intent" for that policy.

The economy diet program is one of four family feeding plans for which Agriculture Department economists and nutritionists regularly calculate costs. Each of the four plans, running from a high-cost "liberal" diet down to the lowest-cost "economy" plan, is designed to provide fully adequate nutrition through with different selections of foods.

A current department leaflet providing a week's sample menus for a family of four based on the economy plan includes the following mainmeal dinner dishes:

Sunday — baked beans; Monday — creamed chicken; Tuesday — chili con carne; Wednesday — frankfurters; Thursday — fried liver and onions; Friday — oven-fried fish fillet; Saturday — macaroni and cheese.

A shopping list provided for the menu includes no steaks, roasts or other high-cost cuts. Protein-group foods on the list include half pounds of hamburger, bologna, kidney beans, navy beans and peanut butter, one pound of frankfurters, one pound of beef liver, one pound of fish fillet, one three-pound chicken, and one 28-ounce can of pork and beans.

A department nutritionist, Mrs. Betty Peterkin, said in an interview the agency has no prepared menu guides for feeding a family of four for less than the current cost of the economy plan suggestions.

"A good and nutritionally adequate diet could be developed at an even lower cost," Mrs. Peterkin said. But this would have to be done by serving even less meat, poultry and fish than the limited selection included in the economy plan and replacing them with cheaper items.

The nutritionist said a publication entitled "Your Money's Worth in Foods," used as an aid in planning low-cost diets, is currently being revised and will be available in several weeks. This pamphlet shows shoppers how to select least-cost alternatives in all major food groups, Mrs. Peterkin said.

Quakes halted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) said Wednesday that field tests in western Colorado indicated earthquakes could be halted by draining underground fault areas of water.

"Essentially, we have found that numerous small tremors can be halted by the withdrawal of water and, conversely, tremors can be triggered by the injection of water," said USGS seismologist C. B. Heaton.

Field tests and the field tests that began in 1970 outside Rangely, Colo., were successful but that it might be years before scientists would be able to ward off major earthquakes.

Storms, floods reduce US beef crop slightly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Last winter's storms and a series of spring rainstorms and floods may have cut potential 1973 beef production by about 1 per cent, a cattle industry spokesman said today.

W. C. McMillan, executive vice president of the American National Cattlemen's Association (ANCA), said in an interview he thinks total beef production this year now may run about 2 per cent above 1972. But the gain might have reached about 3 per cent if cattlemen had escaped the heavy weather losses of the past six months, he said.

Administration officials have been hoping for increased production of both beef and pork to help dampen food inflation.

McMillan said the losses took two forms — death losses in animals ranging from young calves to feedlot steers which may have reached 250,000 head — and "phantom losses" in feedlots where animals which might normally have gained 2.5 pounds or more per day were put down because of bad weather.

McMillan said some of the lost production of recent months may be recouped as weather conditions improve. In parts of Kansas and Oklahoma, for example, he said, cattlemen had to remove young "stocker" animals from wheat pasture last fall because it was too wet. But many of those same ranchers now have good grass pastures and will use them to bring the delayed-growth animals up to the 750-800 pound weights at which they will be sold to feedlots for final fattening, the ANCA official said.

Agriculture Department experts, who have been making their own survey of the situation, have issued no new forecasts of 1973 beef production which they put in a February statement at 2 to 4 per cent above 1972. But one official said it appears that weather losses will "temper" production gains for the rest of this year and well into 1974.

However, the expert added, agriculture specialists still believe heavy marketings of cattle this summer will push prices "somewhat below" current levels.

McMillan said another factor threatening hopes for lower meat prices late this year is the fact that grain producers in many Midwest and Southern areas are late in planting corn because of floods and waterlogged soils. If target grain production fails to reach the higher targets set by administration officials, McMillan said, the resulting high feed prices could damp down expected expansion of pork and poultry.

Consumer demand key to prices

SPOKANE (UPI) — Washington State's new agriculture director blames the current rapid rise in food prices on inflation and increased consumer demand.

Stewart Bledsoe, at an address Wednesday night before the American Marketing Association, said the increase in food prices was long overdue.

Bledsoe said, "For the past 20 years wages for Americans have increased by 216 per cent while farm wages rose only 11 per cent."

He said the country is experiencing a "catchup" in farm product prices.

"Had these food prices risen earlier, the country would have been spared the inflationary pressures of the past few years," he said.

The agriculture director said he was sympathetic toward the concern of American consumers over sudden rises in food prices but said they must realize they are paying less of a percentage of their income for food now than they did 20 years ago.

Bike use urged

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Some congressmen urged Americans Thursday to help beat a predicted gasoline shortage by using bicycles instead of their cars wherever possible.

In a statement which they said represented the views of about three dozen members, Reps. Peter Peyser, R-N.Y., and Edward I. Koch, D-N.Y., said if 2 or 3 per cent of the public switched from cars to bikes, there would be no gas shortage this summer. "There is a need to accept the bicycle as an integral component of a balanced transportation system," they said.

Should fathers be permitted in delivery room?

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Should a prospective father be able to share the experience of the baby's birth with the mother? This is a question being considered at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and also in several other area hospitals.

Only Blaine County and Sun Valley hospitals in the eight-county Magic Valley area permit fathers in the room during actual delivery. Others have policies which permit the father in the labor room but ban him to the waiting room during delivery. Although officials at Sun Valley Hospital say there have been no problems created here by the policy which has been in effect for several years, other hospitals say they feel problems could be created.

One of the Twin Falls obstetricians who supports the theory said he has suggested Magic Valley Memorial change its policy. He said large hospitals in most major cities do permit fathers in the delivery room under specific conditions and regulations. Only about 30 per cent of the fathers, he said, take advantage of the opportunity.

The doctor said the father would not be there as a "spectator" or to "watch a baby being born." His purpose there is to be with the mother and to share in the experience of the birth.

The doctor, who asked his name not be used, said such a policy should make the privilege of being in the delivery room open only to fathers who have completed the six classes in pre-natal training now offered by the American Red Cross at the hospital.

These classes, he said, not only satisfying curiosity about birth by showing films and answering questions, but also prepare the father and mother for what will occur before and during birth.

He said the father would sit at the mother's head and see only the draped body until the baby is born and would be in the delivery room only during about three to five minutes.

In the event of any complication, he would be immediately asked to leave and if any amniocentesis were contemplated by the doctor or, if during labor the father demonstrated his emotions were not suitable to the occasion, the physician would not permit him in the delivery room.

James Rosenbaum, administrator of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, said he has about five or six written requests on file from fathers asking for a policy change. Rosenbaum said legal aspects of the situation are currently being checked by hospital attorneys.

Action on the requests was tabled by the hospital medical staff, Rosenbaum said. When a recommendation is made by the doctors and the legal opinion available, any policy change would have to be voted by the hospital board, Rosenbaum said.

The present policy of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital permits fathers to remain with the mother in the labor room but not in the delivery room.

Both Cassia Memorial and Minidoka Memorial hospitals say their policies prohibit fathers in the delivery rooms and they have not considered policy changes. Ann Christian, secretary to the administrator of Cassia Memorial, said the policy has been in effect for some time and no change is contemplated.

Gooding and Jerome hospitals also say no fathers are allowed in delivery rooms. Leon Felder, St. Benedict's Hospital, administrator, said the policy there was set by the hospital board on recommendation of the medical staff.

He said he knows of only one request for such permission but added interests are changing and the matter might require further consideration at some future time.

Blaine County Hospital leaves the decision to the physician and father. Officials say when a physician feels the father should be present there is no hospital policy prohibiting it.

Several doctors indicate they feel the decision should be made by the physician rather than the hospital.

The Twin Falls doctor, spokesman for those supporting the policy change at Magic Valley Memorial, said obstetricians who attended a recent meeting with the medical staff voted five to four in favor of the policy change.

A survey conducted by the director of nurses at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and covering 24 hospitals in Idaho where 100 or more births are recorded each year shows eight hospitals permit fathers in the delivery room and 11 do not. Four did not respond.

Hospitals permitting fathers in the delivery room include Caldwell Memorial, Clearwater Valley Hospital in Orofino, Mountain Home Air Force Base Hospital, Madson Memorial in Rexburg, Mercy Medical Center in Nampa, Banner General in Sandpoint, West Shoshone General in Kellogg and Barnock Memorial, Pocatello.

Those that do not are Kootenai Memorial, Coeur d'Alene; Sacred Heart, Idaho Falls; St. Benedict's, Jerome; Bingham Memorial, Blackfoot; East Shoshone Hospital, Silvertown; Grangeville General Hospital; Minidoka Memorial; Elmore Memorial Hospital, Mountain Home; Gooding County Memorial; Walter Know Memorial, Emmett; Cassia Memorial, Burley, and St. Joseph's in Lewiston except under special request and with doctor and administrator's permission, based on the individual case.

Levy vote set May 7 in Shoshone

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone school district has set May 7 for a special levy election asking for 2.5 mills additional levy for maintenance and operation.

Supt. Kenneth Crothers said the election was necessitated because current available funds simply would not maintain even the present program and the mandate from the legislature requires a 10 per cent increase in salary for teachers. Crothers said no raises were given for the 1972-73 school year.

The board had to face the choice of eliminating some of the current program or having the special levy election to finance the called for salary increase.

He said the legislature did substantially increase the state appropriation for schools, but the Shoshone district's portion did not increase in proportion due to average daily attendance figures.

The past session of the legislature enacted a law reducing the levying capacity of school districts for maintenance and operation from 30 mills to 27 mills, Crothers said.

If the levy election passes, the total school levy will be 36.4 mills, he said. The current year, he said, is computed to be 36.95, for the special maintenance and operation levies may only be approved for one year at a time, he said.

The polls will be open from noon until 7 p.m. at the high school building.

Gem Youth Ranch builds security

RUPERT — Building confidence is the main objective of the Idaho Youth Ranch, ranch teachers and counselors told the Rupert Chamber of Commerce Thursday.

Social worker Wendy Miller, housefather Don Pratt and vocational education teacher Curt Atwood each explained their jobs and objectives to chamber members.

Mrs. Miller said the ranch attempted to help boys, who may be mild-delinquent, pre-delinquent or neglected youths, with their home and school problems.

"Very surprisingly" most ninth-graders at the ranch read at the second grade level when they arrive, she said.

Counseling is done on a one to one basis, she said. In addition to the individual counseling at the ranch, case workers work with the boys' families so the boy's adjustments to home life will be easier, she said.

The boys are referred to the ranch by agencies such as Social and Rehabilitative Services and the Youth Rehabilitation offices. Before acceptance the boys must have an interview and 30-day trial period. The ranch program is not always suited to the needs of a specific individual, Mrs. Miller said.

Although the average stay is about 14½ months, Mrs. Miller said, it can range from one month to three years. The ranch dislikes keeping boys three years, she said, because they can become too dependent on the people and the situation.

Currently the ranch houses boys mainly from the Nampa-Boise area and the Pocatello-Blackfoot area, according to Mrs. Miller. Most of the referrals come from these areas, she said.

Nine boys from the ranch attend regular school sessions, Mrs. Miller said. This gives them the chance to make friends in the community and learn to function in normal society.

Pratt deals with the younger boys, mainly the 10-13 age group, and said he tries to build their self-confidence through frequent trips to town and giving them responsible jobs at the ranch.

"They're really not bad boys," he said, and they "really come along with a little encouragement."

Staudaher tells building plans

Those additions would give the district room for kindergarten, Staudaher said, noting he is "not against kindergartens, but he has had no place to put them."

With the replacement of the two schools and four-room additions to two others there would be space in each of the elementary buildings for kindergarten classes, the superintendent said.

He reiterated his belief that it was important for kindergarten children to be able to attend classes in the school where they will go to first grade.

He currently is completing a survey of boundary lines and where pupils live in each of the five elementary school areas, with plans to re-adjust school population in each of the zones to free one room in Bickel school also.

Staudaher also said he will work with the citizens committee which last year proposed a bond issue for $3.3 million and then withdraw the plans.

Reduced bond indebtedness in the district now allows for asking for the larger amount, Staudaher said.

"I feel the people of Twin Falls are proud of their schools and the planned construction program will be of great benefit," Staudaher said.

7 seek posts Only one

HAILEY — Seven candidates are seeking the two Blaine County trustee positions to be filled May 14.

Four candidates have filed petitions for the zone 1 post, including incumbent Jane Kneeland, Susan Kellest, Dorothy Moore, and Jack Brown.

In zone 2 incumbent Glenn Stelma will be challenged by Edith Kinucan and Mark Patterson.

Both open trustee positions are three year terms.

The trustee election will be conducted May 14 from noon to 7 p.m.

The zone 2 polling place will be in the Bellevue Elementary School. Polling for Zone 1 will be conducted at the Ernest Hemingway Elementary School, Ketchum.

TWIN FALLS — There is only one official candidate for election to the Twin Falls School board with the filing deadline only hours away.

District clerk J. T. Anderson said today the single candidate to return nomination papers to his office was Frank DeLuca, a former board member.

Two other petitions have been taken up by prospective candidates, he said, but none had been returned by this morning.

The deadline for filing is 5 p.m.

Gooding County planning discussed

GOODING — Ray Mickelson, Idaho Planning and Community Affairs Agency, Boise, met with the Gooding County Planning Commission Thursday night to discuss a county comprehensive plan.

He told the commission "involvement" and recognition by the county commission and incorporated cities as well as the planning commission is necessary in order to implement a land use plan.

Mickelson suggested interim zoning ordinances could be adopted in order to control development until a county plan is ready. He said interim regulations should not be arbitrary and should be within the bounds of the county comprehensive plan.

A technical review committee could be established, he said, to review subdivisions prior to the planning commission and county commission consideration.

Mickelson said he would support public hearings before the planning commission approves subdivisions although there is no provision in the Idaho Code for a hearing. He said a neighborhood association is an effective means of establishing local input in the planning structure.

The differences between subdivision regulations and zoning regulations were outlined. Mickelson said subdivision regulations can be adopted without a county plan but should determine subdivision standards, such as street width, utilities, access, sewer and water installations and similar items.

Zoning regulations should determine land usage and should not be implemented until after a county plan is adopted.

In other business, Mike

Reed, chairman of the committee to study Bureau of Land Management parcels within the county, filed a report.

He suggested land parcels not needed by the BLM either be released to private industry, decided for agricultural use or preserved for a wildlife habitat as in the case of land bordering the canyon rim.

The planning commission will send the suggestions to the BLM.

Review slated

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Congressman Orval Hanson (R-Idaho) has been informed by the National Park Service that plans are going to be reviewed for expanding the Craters of the Moon National Monument.

Hansen said that a team from the National Park Service headed by Dave Morris, Denver, will be at the site from April 30 through May 9 deciding what facilities and expansions will be needed.

Interested citizens can contact Paul Fritz, superintendent at the monument, concerning the expansion study.

Cleanup Week set

FILER — April 30 to May 4 has been designated Cleanup Week in the Filer area, according to Mayor Dan Kauffman.

The cleanup time has been set to coincide with the Twin Falls County Johnny Horizon project.

Mayor Kauffman urged all Filer residents to make plans for disposing of the winter accumulation of trash and junk.

During the week city trucks will haul all regular trash plus additional solid waste such as tree limbs and trunks which have been cut to the proper size for handling.

All wastes to be hauled away by city workmen must be kept on the owner's property until pickup of the trash. Solid waste and trash must not be placed in alleyways prior to pickup.

Classes under way

TWIN FALLS — Contestants from eight universities are in Twin Falls today and Saturday attending the annual Northwest Meat Evaluation contest at Independent Meat Co. facilities.

Classes at the contest include judging of beef, pork, and lamb for market capabilities, breeding, and carcass. Director is John C. Miller, University of Idaho extension meat specialist, Caldwell.

The contest is sponsored by the University of Idaho and Washington State University, and includes 82 representatives from the sponsoring schools and New Mexico State University, Brigham Young University, Utah State University, the University of Montana, the University of Wyoming and Oregon State University.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices opened higher Friday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The early gain was a continuation of Thursday's rally sparked by the hopes President would map out some inflation strategy this weekend.

Shortly after the opening bell, the widely watched Dow Jones industrial average gained 1.36 to 839.12. Advancing issues topped declines, 156 to 95, of the 373 issues on the tape.

The stock market bounced back from its three straight days of losses Thursday spurred on partially by word President Nixon will meet this weekend with his economic advisers.

In the economic news, a published report says First National City Bank will review its prime rate and may raise it to 7 per cent soon.

Canada fuel prices rise

TORONTO (UPI) — Imperial Oil announced Wednesday the recent hike in the cost of imported crude oil has forced the company to increase the prices of its principal products in western Canada. The company's posted prices for ENSO gasoline, diesel, heating and turbo fuels and asphalt have been increased one cent a gallon, Imperial chairman W. O. Twants said. Canada's five western provinces are supplied with crude oil from Alberta and Saskatchewan, while the five eastern provinces import their crude from the Midwest and Venezuela.

It is going to try to develop this resource, he said his agency's studies have pinpointed 26 areas in southern Idaho with good geothermal potential. Rutledge urged the committee to act before leaving Boise this week. He said in order for federal consideration of funds for fiscal 1975 it must make its request by May 20 at the latest.

Utah stars hope to start Russian tour with thud

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—The Utah collegiate all-stars try tonight to stall the Russian basketball "steamroller" before it builds up momentum for its other seven games in the United States.

The Soviet machine arrived here three players short, but still has enough manpower to be the favorite in the game in the University of Utah special events center.

USSR coach Vladimir Kandrashin said three of his players didn't make the trip. "They stayed in Russia because they were tired from other competition and also overtrained," he said.

Utah all-star co-coaches Bill Foster and Gene Visscher aren't planning to be a pushover for the 1972 Olympic champions.

"We may have trouble beating them," said Foster, who is head coach at the University of Utah, "but they'll know they've had a game."

Visscher, who coached Weber State to its sixth straight Big Sky conference title this year, said, "We know they can be beat. We're more worried about how our guys will react to them. If we can score on them early, I think it will give us the lift we need to beat them."

Foster said his squad will try to pull a repeat of a 1971, 91-91, win over the Russians by another team of Utah collegiate all-stars.

But one of his players thinks that win over the Russians may work against the Utah squad.

Utah guard Eddie Trail said, "We know about the win, but so do they. That may make them eager to win here. They're just like anybody else—they hate to lose."

Trail said the Utah team will go out fast. "We'll try to run away from them. If we both keep up a fast pace, somebody's got to give in. We just hope it's them."

Both coaches admitted the Russians are probably too disciplined and meticulous for the Utah team to play a control-style game against them.

"We can't let them get set up on defense and we've got to harass and press them on offense," Foster said. "If we can break down their game plan and keep ours going, we'll get them."

Joining Trail on the team of players—virtually unknown outside of the intermountain area—are 11 other men from four other Utah schools.

They are 6-9 center Doug Tate and guard Willie Hawes from Westminster; 6-8 center Jay Bunker, 6-5 forward Brian Ambrozich and guard Doug Richards from Brigham Young; 6-5 forward Riley Wimberly and guard Brady Small from Weber State; and Utah State players 6-7 Bob Lauritski and 6-8 Jim Boatwright at forwards, 6-10 center Lafayette Love and Ken Thompson at guard.

"These guys are in good shape," Visscher said. "If we can keep the game going, maybe the elevation here will work in our favor."

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI)—The New York Nets signed Kevin Loughery, a former St. John's star, to a five-year coach contract Thursday for an estimated $35,000 a season.

Loughery, who quit as coach of Philadelphia in the National Basketball Association in a surprise move, said he never had a written or verbal contract with the 76ers and decided to take the Nets coaching job because of the security of a long-term contract.

Negotiations were rapidly developed in the span of a week. Roy Boe, owner of the American Basketball Association team, made contact last Friday with Larry Fleischer, Loughery's attorney and lawyer for the NBA Players Association.

Fleischer spoke with Loughery at last Sunday's New York-Boston playoff game at Madison Square Garden and they met Monday for further talks. Boe said it took three hours to complete the agreement.

Loughery named Pairings set for best ball tourney

Pairings and tee-off times for the opening round of the second annual Twin Falls' two-man best ball tournament are announced by host Professional Clyde Thomssen.

Thomssen said a few berths still are available in the tournament and post entries will be accepted Saturday afternoon.

The weatherman held out the promise of a good weather weekend with only a "chance of showers."

The pairings include:

Group A: 11 AM, L. Stark, D. Ruff and J. Worthley; N. Burger; 11:30 AM, D. Hooper, B. Bassler and W. L. Johnson; 12:30 PM, W. E. ...

Aaron's hat boosts gate

NEW YORK (UPI)—Hank Aaron's chase of the legendary Babe Ruth in the all-time home run derby may help major league baseball establishments record in the process, as attendance around both the American and National leagues continue to show marked increases.

Major league attendance, sparked by a record opening day turnout of 445,965, appears to be heading for the 30-million season plateau for the first time in history.

Opening day crowds this season exceeded the strike retarded figure of 1072 by 15 per cent and the 1971 record total by two per cent.

Wendell, G.F. cop track wins

WENDELL. Glennis Ferry and Wendell won divisions of a junior high track meet Thursday afternoon.

The Glennis Ferry boys scored 61 points to top Wendell at 54½ and Valley at 29½. The Wendell girls defeated Valley's girls 65-31.

Bies beats 32-MPH wind for 65 to lead in Nelson Classic

DALLAS (UPI)—Don Bies, who skipped all the tournaments in Florida this year because he does not like to play in the wind, shot a five-under 65 through gusts of 32 mph on an hour Thursday and, aided by a saved off putter, took a two-stroke first round lead in the $150,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

Lee Trevino, who usually loves to play in the wind, saw his hopes of becoming golf's fourth $1 million winner crushed for this week at least by surrendering to shoulder problems and skying to a 79.

Bies, using a putter he cut short with a hacksaw four days ago, turned in one of the best putting rounds of his career and capped it with a 40-foot he rolled in from off the green on the final hole to jump in front of Australian David Graham and Texas Roy Pace.

"A 65 is a heck of a round," said 69-shooter Tom Weiskopf, who, like most of his competitors, found it hard to believe someone could have shot five-under in the midst of the high winds and afternoon rains which swept the 6,932-yard, par 35-35-70 Preston Trail Golf Club course.

Graham and Pace each had 67½ while at 68 came Jack Massengale, Bob Murphy and Bruce Devlin.

Along with Weiskopf as one under par where Bob Hosburg, George Johnson, Jerry Walter and ...

than three feet, shot a one-over 71.

"You go out on a day like today just trying to make a lot of pars," said Bies, who has yet to win a tournament in more than a decade of trying. "We don't get much wind in the northwest (Bies is a native of Seattle). I never play in Florida where they have a lot of wind, so I just didn't play there this year."

"But, conditions today here were a lot like they are in Florida."

Bies ran in six birdie putts ranging from six feet to the 40-foot mark in the first ten holes around. The magic came with a putter he saved off Sunday.

"I normally use a 36 inch putter but I decided to cut three inches off one. I thought if my arms could hang straighter I could hit the putts firmer. It worked today."

Trevino, however, had nothing working for him as he recorded a 10-over 45 on the back nine.

Monroe padded for Friday night game

NEW YORK (UPI)—Earl Monroe was fitted with special hip pads to give the Knick guard more mobility as New York went after the playoff clincher tonight against the Boston Celtics.

The Knicks were hoping to wrap up the best-of-seven National Basketball Association series in Boston Wednesday night, but John Havlicek fought off the pain of an aching shoulder and gave the Celtics the psychological lift they needed. Havlicek scored 10 points in Boston's 98-97 victory that cut New York's lead to 3-2.

"John did more things than the Knicks expected," said Boston center Dave Cowens, who was outstanding with a 32-point contribution. "He definitely surprised them and I think it had a mental effect on them. John took it to them and they couldn't take advantage of him defensively."

Havlicek's shoulder injury is getting better each day. Don Chaney said Hondo was only 70 per cent effective Wednesday. "If Havlicek recovers more use of his right arm, the Knicks could be in deeper trouble."

The Knicks' offense sputtered again, but New York rallied in the thrilling finish and almost pulled out the victory. Bill Bradley's jumper with 16 seconds remaining gave the Knicks a brief 97-96 lead, but Paul Silas' two foul shots with seven seconds left made Boston a winner.

Walt Frazier echoed the Knicks' feelings when he said the team wasn't dejected over the loss.

"There was no gloom on the way here," said Frazier after scoring a New York high of 21 points. "We thought we had a good shot at winning it Wednesday, but we made some mistakes and the game got out of hand. But we're confident. We know what we can do against this club."

Chest-pain shelves Trevino

DALLAS (UPI)—Lee Trevino, close to becoming only the fourth man in golf history to win $1 million, suffered shoulder and chest pains through one of his most agonizing rounds Thursday and was taken to a doctor.

"That's the worst ever," Trevino said. "Even when I was 8 years old I don't remember shooting a 45 for nine holes."

Trevino said his shoulder and chest began to ache during the second nine holes of his opening round of the Byron Nelson Golf Classic, and immediately after his round he was driven to a doctor.

The usually talkative Trevino was two under par through the first seven holes over the Preston Trail Golf Club Course Thursday when things began to go wrong.

Trevino missed a par putt of less than three feet on the par-3 eighth and then missed a short birdie putt on the ninth.

From there things turned to total disaster.

Trevino double bogeyed the par-4 10th hole, and bogeyed the next four holes before finally getting a par on the short par-5 13th.

He then knocked his second shot in the water on the par-4 10th as rains began to fall and he recorded a double bogey there.

Coin Preference

Silver dollars long have been popular in the American west. Nickels remain the most favored coins in Baltimore, while quarter-dollars are most sought after in the state of New York.

Jess' four firsts pace Rimrock win

GOODING — Jess won all three sprints and the long jump Thursday afternoon as the Rimrock Raiders bade goodbye to the Northside Conference by claiming the loop, track and field title.

Rimrock, which has grown to A-3 basketball status, and is affiliating with a league in the Boise Valley next year, scored 73 points while Gooding State, in its best showing of the spring, took second at 71. Cunas County had 61-2-3, Carey 41-1-3, Richfield 32 and Bliss 1.

Jess' best effort came in the 220-yard dash which he turned in 22.8. Teammate Smith was a triple winner, taking both hurdles and the high jump.

Gooding State's Steve McCalley, who has accepted a track scholarship at College of Southern Idaho, turned in a fine time in linking two victories, shifted to the half-mile, he clocked 2:01 flat and came back with a solid 4:32.7 in the mile run.

McCalley added a second in the high jump.

His teammate, John Hunter, still coming back from a hamstring pull, took the two-mile in his boat of the spring, 10:05.4. Russ Hollins of Gooding State got off a season best of 40.9 in the shotput and also grabbed the discus at a sulphur 122.

My Gallant, who had won only once in seven starts this year, to the victory in 1:49.3 on a fast track. My Gallant paid $31.20, $15.80 and $8.00.

Our Native returned $7.20 and $4.20 while the dead heat Impeccuous and Warbucks paid $3.20.

My Gallant picked up $37,765 for the win, almost as much as he had won in his $48,000 career. Arthur I. Appleton, Chicago electronic company executive.

Prep men changed transcript

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — Two Ball High School staff members changed the transcript of Oklahoma football star Kerry Jackson at the request of an Oklahoma assistant coach, School Superintendent Bill Douglas said Thursday.

He said he would recommend at a school board meeting Wednesday "appropriate action" to be taken against the two staff members, but Douglas did not say what his recommendations would be.

"Consider this a very serious infraction," Douglas said. "It is the only case that we know of where it has happened to a Ball High School student, and we spot-checked records five years back."

He said the fury of competitive recruiting is no justification for the transcript change.

"It appears that the mistakes that have been made were mistakes of the heart and not of the head because of overzealous professionals attempting to help a boy. This does not justify it, nor has it been condoned," Douglas said.

ABC to air Liberty Bowl

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The Liberty Bowl signed a five-year, $1 million-plus contract with the American Broadcasters Co. Thursday to televise the post-season football classic from Memphis.

The signing came in the wake of two tightly fought Liberty engagements the past two years and a switch to Monday night viewing.

The pact calls for ABC to pay $200,000 for televising the Liberty Bowl this coming Dec. 17 and again next year and for $200,000 "negotiable upward" in each of the following three years.

Nate Thurmond hospitalized

Boxer collapses after defeat

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Isaac Quintas of Mexico City collapsed after he lost a 10-round decision to unboned Renato Garcia of Santiago, Chile, Thursday night and was taken unconscious to a hospital.

The 150-pound Quintas suffered a concussion, according to Dr. Bernard Schwartz, who said it could be serious.

Quintas and Garcia, 148 1/2, staggered each other in almost every round of the bloody and bruising 10-round fight, but neither went down. Both suffered cuts over their right eyes and Quintas' eye was closed at the end of the fight. Garcia appeared to have suffered a broken nose.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 28, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES: day and evening to get at all of the small chores that take time but bring little joy, but that have to be done before you are able to go forward to the soon-to-be opportunities.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get at all those small accumulated chores that have to be done sometime and get them behind you quickly. Schedule fun for evening. Make sure you help one who has been a good friend in the past.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Much work is needed on that personal plan you have if you want to be a success. Look into that plan a pal has that can prove to be very good. Labor late into the evening, if necessary.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you put real effort into it, you find you gain the information you need just at this time. If you bolster the ego of a higher-up who needs loyalty right now, you get fine benefits later. Try to retire early in p.m.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) Get information you need so you can push a plan through in a most efficient way. Do what persons of wisdom suggest and forget all that emotionalism. Do not act on impulse.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23) Attempt to get all of your obligations met to the best of your ability. Some particular kindness to mate can bring fine results. Try to make your life easier in some way so you can enjoy it more.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) Get busy doing whatever will please those who are vital to your welfare, insure your position for the future. Do work on that important job that crops up. A nice person you know can do you a big favor.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) Add the bric a brac, furniture, or whatever will make your surroundings far more attractive and comfortable. Take the health treatments you feel will make you more dynamic. Show more spunk at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) You can handle recreational affairs very wisely now after you get your regular work done. Buy a nice present for one who is in real trouble, not feeling well, and bring cheer.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find out what is wrong at home and right it, even if you have to forego some pleasure. Plan to have a sturdier foundation for the future. The evening is best spent at home with family. Have fun.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get that problem solved nicely during the day that has been difficult to do before. Make your home more attractive and scrupulously clean. The evening is fine for enjoying hobbies with friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Put your energy into improving your property and making it more valuable now. Find some way to add to present income. Make sure some person is not working against you while you think just the opposite.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Do some remodeling today that could make you happier. Evening is then fine for entertaining or going out with friends. You can be happier than you have been for a long time. Avoid one who is boring.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young people with much sensitivity who should be encouraged to get out of that subjective mood and to solve problems objectively. Ideal chart for professions that require precision and handling of details. Make sure to compliment for any particularly fine work that is done to strengthen your child's ego. Give the sports that build up the physique and develop courage to meet life's problems wisely. Send to right schools.

"The Stars' impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Speedy speech has long been a desirable characteristic for news announcers. So why the men still outnumber the women in said profession is most mysterious. Studies show the average woman utters 173 syllables per minute when talking while the average man emits a mere 150.

No, the Chinese didn't invent wallpaper, as so frequently reported. They dreamed up decorative paper, all right. But it was the Europeans who first pasted same on walls.

See that hitchhiker's thumb? If you wager its print is on file at the FBI, odds are you'll win the bet.

Gourmets insist it's a mistake to drink wine with any sort of egg dish.

THE ZODIAC

Stargazers contend the Gemini citizen also has a lucky color. Yellow. And a lucky number, too. Five. Appropriate Gemini names for boys, they claim, are Harry, Douglas, Thomas, Luke, Nicholas and James. Gemini girls apply named are Helen, Beatrice, Fay, Vanessa, Sonya, Ella and Candace.

So you thought Joe Namath was that athlete most widely regarded as the social fellow in sports, did you? That's wrong, evidently. When readers of a national magazine were queried in the matter, they credited race car driver Peter Revson with that distinction. Johnny Bench, Terry Bradshaw and Rod Gilbert, in that order, also got fistfuls of votes.

If you want to enliven the conversation with some biblical scholar, ask said sage to tell you the name of Jesus' grandfather on His mortal father's side. Matthew says Jacob. Luke says Hali.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS

- Q "Don't more men than women buy liquor at package stores?"
A. Somewhat more. But women buy 45 per cent of it.
Q "How long is a marathon race supposed to be?"
A. Usually 26-miles-plus-385 yards.
Q "Did Cleopatra wear a wig?"
A. She did. It was made out of rope. Ugly thing.

A baby daughter is more apt to show jealousy toward a younger brother or sister than is a baby son. That's what the child experts now say. Interesting. Do you have both an older sister and an older brother? If so, which one gave you the roughest time? Most souls so queried will say the older sister.

When you examine the statistics, you may conclude just about the only way a woman can get to be a college president is to become a nun. Only 1 per cent of such executives are female, and almost all of them are running Catholic schools.

To baby boys, the world is a playground. To baby girls, it is either a ho or sho, but rather as an it. Infants there aren't named until after the three-months mark.

WRRCG reports made

SHOSHONE — Reports on current projects within the Wood River Resource Council of Governments area were given here Wednesday.

Randy Rice, Boise, Idaho Parks and Recreation Department, outlined programs being carried out within the four county area at this time and listed those that may be available through his department in the coming year. He said funds for the fiscal year-1974 will be cut by one-third.

City parks in Ketchum, Gooding and Wendell are presently receiving aid through his department with their overall improvement plans partially funded at this time.

The four counties within the Wood River Resource area are Camas, Blaine, Lincoln and Gooding. Rice asked for an inventory of needs.

A report by Jack Bennett, Blaine County commissioner, was given on plans to begin improvement on the West Magic Reservoir road within two weeks.

The state parks board was asked to assist with financing the overall West Magic Reservoir project. The Idaho Fish and Game Department is also being solicited to prepare an environmental impact statement on this road.

Bennett said the initial work to be done by Blaine County within its area of the road will be straightening the curves through the cotton wood areas improving the blind curve area where two men were killed about 18 months ago.

Camas and Lincoln counties will be asked to assist with the road work, Bennett said. West Magic Reservoir road winds in and out of the three county area, with the majority of the 10 mile section being in Camas County.

G. J. Price, Gooding, WRRCG coordinator, was asked to serve as Magic road project coordinator.

District health board to review office plans

JEROME — Members of the budget committee of the South Central Idaho Health District board will meet May 23 at 10 a.m. with the architect to review plans for new health offices.

Ivan Stone, architect, is expected to have plans for remodeling of the old American Legion Hall complete by that time and be able to provide cost estimates.

The district health department has purchased the building and plans to remodel it for office, clinic and laboratory facilities prior to next January when the department must vacate present space in the Twin Falls City Hall.

The board also voted unanimously to give district medical director, Dr. Wayne Carte, a salary increase. The increase is from $21,538 now being paid to $22,008, or about five per cent. This is the amount given most county employees in the Magic Valley area this year, board members said.

Dr. Carte was employed as medical director two years ago at $20,500 and was told at that time he would be considered for an increase last year and again at this time.

Health board members will hold their next regular meeting May 23 at 2 p.m. in Jerome.
