Dean to implicate Nixon

US computer lists bad drivers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The names of more than one million drivers whose licenses were revoked or suspended in 1972 are now listed in the government's bad-driver computer, according to the Transportation Department. State agencies feed the computer the names of persons losing licenses in each state. In return the states can "query" the computer to check the name of drivers suspected of having lost licenses in other states.

Treaty negotiation offered

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (UPI) — A letter from the White House was handed across a barbed wire fence Saturday to a feathered Indian mediator, Frank Fools Crow, one of the Oglala Sioux tribe chiefs. The letter promised a meeting with White House representatives if the militant Indians holding Wounded Knee, S.D., agreed to lay down their arms. The White House representatives would negotiate treaty issues, it said.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Newsweek magazine said Saturday former White House counsel John W. Dean is ready to testify that he can link President Nixon with the effort to cover up the Watergate bugging scandal.

The magazine said Dean has told investigators Nixon indicated to him on two occasions that he knew about the effort to hide the administration's connection with the burglary and bugging of the Democratic party's national headquarters.

The magazine said in its May 14 issue that Dean told investigators he was called into the Oval Office in the White House by then-chief of staff H. R. "Bob" Haldeman shortly after the first seven indictments in the Watergate burglaries were returned last September. In the office, he found Haldeman and the President "all grins."

The magazine reported Dean said that Haldeman and Nixon were pleased at the success of Dean's effort to keep the lid on, and because no one higher up in the administration had been indicted.

Dean quoted Nixon as saying, "Good job, John—Bob told me what a great job you've been doing." Newsweek said.

In December, Dean said, a lawyer for Watergate defendant E. Howard Hunt approached White House aide Charles Colson to say that "something had to be done" to avoid a long jail term for Hunt, according to Newsweek.

The magazine said Colson passed on the request to Dean and to John Ehrlichman, Nixon's domestic affairs chief who resigned Monday, along with Haldeman.

Dean said Ehrlichman answered "I'll check," according to Newsweek, and then walked into the Oval Office and returned with what he said was a promise by Nixon of executive clemency for Hunt. Ehrlichman told Colson to tell Hunt's lawyer that "everything is okay," but not to be "too specific," Newsweek reported Dean as saying.

A high administration source has denied both stories, Newsweek said.

In another development, the government's chief Watergate prosecutor said Saturday he would not resist a Senate investigation into allegations that the Justice Department had failed to pursue early indications of a coverup of high-level involvement in the bugging.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Earl J. Silbert commented on a report in The Washington Post that prosecutors received some evidence last year before the Watergate trial in January suggesting a "coverup of high-level involvement in the bugging of Democratic headquarters" at the Watergate.

Silbert said he would have "no objection" if the select Senate Watergate committee — now scheduled to begin public hearings in about two weeks — investigated the possibility of an unaggressive prosecution of the case.

Silbert and other government prosecutors maintained throughout the Watergate trial that there was no evidence of higher involvement or a wider campaign of political espionage and sabotage last year than that carried out by the seven bugging defendants who subsequently were convicted.

Paintings bring $13.2 million

NEW YORK (UPI) — A four-day auction of 294 paintings and sculptures ended Saturday with a world record sales of $13.2 million.

The works of art, mostly 19th and 20th century items, included works of Cezanne, Degas, Manet and Redon of the French Impressionist school. Others included 116 works of modern and contemporary artists.

Panel seeks violent cops

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City's new police commissioner, Donald F. Cawley, said Friday he will name a committee to sift out violence-prone policemen.

He said the panel would go through records of every policeman to find those who have repeatedly resorted to force. These could receive either psychiatric help or additional training, disciplinary action, reassignment or dismissal.

Black moves "beyond Panthers"

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — "I've gone beyond the Panther Party," was the surprising statement issued by Bobby Seale, co-founder of the black militant organization. Seale, who is campaigning in a runoff election for Oakland mayor, said "I see the name of the Black Panther party phasing out eventually to be replaced by a Democratic party structure on a broad-based grassroots community organization."

Rescuers seek man in deep well

By MARGE LIERMAN
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — Rescue workers expressed little hope Saturday for an unidentified welder located for over ten hours at the bottom of a 250-foot well shaft on a farm ten miles northwest of here.

But a group of over 36 rescuers, aided by auxiliary generators providing light and a field telephone system, continued to work into the night to raise the man to the earth's surface.

An early attempt to deliver oxygen to the man failed when a volunteer who lowered himself into the shaft reported it too narrow to permit the tanks and masks needed.

A second effort to lower the volunteer, identified as Vic Chittcock, to the well's bottom failed when he reportedly ran out of breathing air at the 180-foot level and had to be himself hoisted to the surface for oxygen.

The welder reportedly volunteered to be lowered into the well to try to repair a broken drill bit. Drilling work on the well, located on property owned by Anton Potuck, had been stalled for several days after the bit broke off from the drill.

The welder was reportedly attempting to weld a four-inch piece of iron to the detached bit, which it was hoped would enable the drillers to recover the bit and resume drilling.

Unconscious victim sighted

Chittcock reported to rescuers that he saw the man apparently unconscious, when he was lowered into the well.

The drilling company involved was reportedly George-Galley Well Drilling Co., Kimberly, which recruited the workers specifically for the job of repairing the bit at the bottom of the shaft.

When the man was lowered into the well early Saturday afternoon he was in a bucket supported by cable and was carrying a walkie-talkie set, as well as welding tools.

During the work, the men at the earth's surface lost voice communications with the man and called Twin Falls Sheriff's officers.

But sheriff's deputies reported the call didn't reach their office until between 3:30 and 4 p.m., at least two hours after the man was lowered into the well.

Women's suicide rate grows

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The stresses and strains of "liberation" and work are driving more California women to suicide, according to a state health department report.

The report said women's "drive for success and recognition has increased pressures and opened more possibilities for failure."

The 10-year study showed California's suicide rate climbed from 15.9 per 100,000 population in 1960 to 18.8 by 1970. The ratio of men to women's suicide was 1.7 to 1, the highest percentage of women suicide in the nation.

Malta girl killed while awaiting bus

MALTA — A Malta Kindergarten student was killed Friday and her brother hospitalized when a group of children ran into the path of an oncoming car south of Malta.

Teresa Teeter, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gay-Teeter, Malta, was killed instantly. Her brother, Randall, 8, was taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital Burley, where he is listed in serious condition.

The two children, their sister, Gay, and a cousin, Dale Teeter, were waiting at a school bus stop about one and one-half miles south of Malta about 8:30 a.m. The children apparently ran into the southbound lane of the highway for a better look when they saw a car approaching from the south. They moved back off the highway and then ran back onto the road without looking north.

The two children were struck by a car driven by Teresa Booth, 21, Malta. The Booth vehicle skidded several feet before impact and threw the children about 70 feet. Gay and Dale Teeter were not hit.

Miss Booth and the passengers in her vehicle escaped injury.

One day earlier, a Gooding man died in an accident 21 miles south of Bruneau.

Manuel Hlegary, about 41, Gooding, reportedly was killed when the water truck he was driving overturned when he swerved to avoid a dog.

Attempt rescue

RESCUE workers attempt to reach a man believed to be at the bottom of a 250-foot well northwest of Castleford Saturday afternoon. Repeated efforts to reach the unidentified victim had not been successful by late Saturday night. The drill reportedly had been welding a drilling bit deep in the well when he apparently lost consciousness at the bottom of the well. (Times-News photo by Marge Lierman)

'73 was year for teacher pay hikes

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — The year 1973 may well be remembered in Idaho educational circles as the "Year of the Teacher."

Propelled by a directive from this year's legislature, trustees in all but one of Magic Valley's 20 school districts either have approved or are contemplating salary raises.

They all generally follow the suggested guideline of a 10 per cent raise over a two-year period.

Top teacher pay in Magic Valley now exceeds $10,000 for a nine-month work contract.

Richfield is the only district in the valley not granting teacher pay scale increases this year. Richfield teachers still will get automatic increases based on length of service and educational requirements, as do teachers in other districts.

Supt. Neil Anderson of Richfield said trustees felt this was the year to improve teaching aids and supplies and make repairs on the school buildings, which, he said, have been neglected.

"They (the teachers) got a raise last year and we plan a better one next year," Anderson said.

Four districts, Blaine, and three of the smallest, Castleford, Blotch and Bliss, have not completed their teacher salary negotiations, but some salary raise is contemplated in each case, leaving 15 districts where next year's pay scales already established.

Magic Valley may not be typical of the situation throughout the state, however.

Wayne York, Idaho Education Association executive secretary, said this week in Boise that teacher salary negotiations are taking longer this year and he blamed "some district spokesmen for ignoring entirely the letter of intent of the 1973 legislature."

But trustees and administrators in Magic Valley claimed to be meeting the recommendation. Some districts, such as Twin Falls, gave as much as an 11 per cent raise this year where there was no raise last year. Others have given a percentage to total the suggested 10 per cent over two years.

Jorona trustees Tuesday night approved a seven per cent increase, plus increments. Supt. John Campbell said this will give starting teachers with no experience a beginning salary of $6,741 and a top pay scale of $9,437 for teachers with a master's degree plus 20 credits. Last year a 3.2 per cent raise was given.

Two districts, Shoshone and Pocatello, both are asking voters to approve an override levy Monday to assist with their financial obligations.

Shoshone plans a 10 per cent raise since there was no salary hike last year and Supt. Kenneth Crothers said trustees are carrying out the directive of the legislature.

This will give Shoshone teachers a beginning salary of $9,500 and the top scale, with 12 years experience, plus a master's degree and 10 hours, is $15,580. Monday's election is for a 2 1/2 million override levy.

Fairfield teachers will get a 9.5 per cent raise if voters approve a five mill levy override. Supt. Harold Stroud said with a $300 on the board raise given last year and with increments, teachers will receive about a 14 per cent increase over a three year period.

Starting salary in the Camas County district is $6,300 and the top salary is $9,794 for a master's degree, plus 16 hours and 15 years experience.

Hagerman has approved a 6.7 per cent increase, making the starting pay $8,500 and top pay scale, for 12 years experience, master's degree plus 18 credits, $9,336.

Rupert resident hurt in accident

RUPERT — A Rupert man was listed in good condition in Minidoka Memorial Hospital Saturday following a car and semi-truck accident Friday afternoon.

The accident occurred when Joseph Snyder, Caldwell, driving the semi south, stopped at the stop sign on the corner of 200-West and 50 South.

According to officers, Snyder then pulled into the intersection into the path of a car driven by Roy Torres, Rupert. The Torres car was traveling west and struck the left rear of the trailer.

Harrison Begay was a passenger in the Torres auto. He was admitted to the hospital with lacerations and abrasions.

The Torres vehicle was demolished and the trailer sustained $50 in damage.

The investigating officer was Bob Nevarez, Minidoka County deputy sheriff.

Snyder was cited for failure to yield.

MK earnings set record

BOISE (UPI) — The Morrison-Knudsen Co., Inc., Friday reported earnings for the first quarter of the year reached a record high.

Consolidated net income for the three months ending March 31 rose to $1,317,000 or 51 cents per share, the highest level of any first quarter in the company's history, said William H. Memmure, president.

The earnings figure is 144 percent above the opening quarter last year when the company reported a net income of $460,000.

Operating revenue for the period, however, was $80.2 million, down slightly from $91 million in the same period in 1972.

Utah judge bans parking tickets

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — U.S. District Court Judge Willis Ritter Friday ordered Salt Lake City to stop issuing and prosecuting parking tickets.

The temporary restraining order prevents the city from prosecuting any parking violations committed before the order, as well. A hearing was scheduled May 14 to determine if the order should be made permanent.

Compliance with the order has cleared Salt Lake City's 12 meter mads from the streets. It leaves motorists free to ignore parking meters and other regulations on parking, and city officials said, could cost several thousand dollars daily in lost fines and revenues.

Suit was brought against the city by Percy C. Gregson, who charged that the city's ordinance on parking violations is unconstitutional. He said the owner of an illegally parked vehicle is presumed guilty under the ordinance, while the U. S. Constitution says that innocence is presumed until guilt is proven.

Gregson also pointed to a 1952 Utah Supreme Court decision which struck down a similar ordinance in Ogden City.

However, the city attorney defending against the suit called it "absurd."

"The Judge refused to hear my arguments," Roger Cutler said, "but the matter is moot anyway. The ordinance being challenged was repealed by the city 30 days ago."

Cutler said that the city has long known of the Utah Supreme Court ruling in Ogden, and anticipating possible challenge, recently repealed the section of the ordinance in question.

"We rely on the common law rules of evidence and circumstantial evidence to prosecute parking violations and we don't need the ordinance anyway," said Cutler.

"Now Judge Ritter comes along and says we can't use any of our parking regulations," This, Cutler said, leaves motorists open to park in no parking zones, by hydrants, or elsewhere.

City officials said the daily take from parking tickets averages about $2,000, while parking meter revenues add another $1,400, to the treasury.

Meters will still be checked daily to collect any money put in them and to protect against vandalism. However, officials said they expect the amount of money in the meters to drop significantly.

Mayor F. J. Garn said the purpose of the parking ordinance and meters is to control traffic and provide automobile turnover to try to stimulate business in the downtown section.

If there is no traffic turnover, Garn said, business would be harmed, which would in turn erode the tax base.

Garn said that if the order is made permanent the city commission will probably have to hire more police officers and raise taxes.

Pickup of sod, rocks impossible

TWIN FALLS — City residents should be aware that sod, rocks, and building materials will not be picked up by garbage disposal contractors.

Joe Koon, city sanitation superintendent, said Friday that Parks and Sons, Twin Falls sanitation contractors, are "fining their contract with the city in an excellent manner," but that they are "unable according to that contract," to pick up such materials.

"The piling of such debris is a major problem in city alleys," Koon said, "and the city does not have available trucks for pickup."

Brush and tree limbs cut in lengths between three and five feet long and tied in bundles of less than 75 pounds will be picked up by the contractors, Koon said.

Residents may haul other debris without charge to the city's sanitary landfill seven and one-half miles south of East Five Points and one-half mile west, Koon said.

The Brush Off

American taxpayers largely ignored the political checkoff plan for financing presidential election campaigns. Less than three percent mailed in the special form attached to the income tax return designating one dollar of their payment for the 1976 presidential race...

Dominick and eight other Republican Senators have introduced a bill to repeal the plan. Probably the majority of taxpayers would support the repeal. Having sweated through those awful "simplified" income tax forms, and all the jargon such as "Part One of Schedule B," etc., the average taxpayer was doubtless delighted to find one he didn't have to fill out and could rejoice, saying "a plague on both your houses."

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia — The abrupt withdrawal by two successive brigades from embattled defensive positions here in defiance of orders is more evidence of the Cambodian army's shocking deterioration which now menaces President Nixon's grand design for Indochina.

With Cambodian Communist insurgents probing Phnom Penh's suburbs, the commander of the Cambodian Army (FANK) 51st Brigade suddenly ordered his troops to withdraw from Slem Reap eight miles south of here. The 16th Brigade replaced them, but it too was pulled out by its commander, who then refused to return. That followed two weeks during which FANK has all but disappeared as a fighting unit.

logistics sanctuary for a new Communist general offensive in South Vietnam, would sever the few remaining trails underpinning of the Paris peace agreement.

Most of this has been accomplished by Cambodian insurgents who last fall began taking over from North Vietnamese units. The present offensive is fought by nearly 40,000 insurgents with absolutely indispensable aid from some 3,500 North Vietnamese regulars — cadres, sappers, artillerymen, logistical troops. Hanoi-trained Cambodians control the insurgents politically. Overall direction, of course, is in Hanoi.

Although the Communist offensive is extraordinarily tenacious, it is not awesome in terms of the Indochina war. The heavy artillery, antiaircraft rockets and tanks sent by Hanoi to South Vietnam and Laos have not appeared here. Nor is there yet a genuine political-guerrilla apparatus in government-controlled territory (only 20 per cent of Cambodia but over 60 per cent of the population).

The reasons are many. Thanks to corruption and incompetence, many troops are not paid and refuse to fight. The FANK never recovered psychologically from the debacle of its atrociously planned November, 1971 offensive against North Vietnamese regulars. Many officers like the good life in their Phnom Penh villas while their troops face death in the field.

Moreover, Lon Nol's palace guard blocks any reform of the army. His notorious, immensely powerful young brother, Brig. Gen. Lon Non, is a disgrace as commander of the 3rd Division (which includes the non-combative 52nd and 15th Brigades). Another palace favorite, Brig. Gen. Ith Suong, ineptly commands the hopeless 1st Division, "abrogating the capital."

Sosphenes Fernandez, commanding general of the FANK. Sosphenes Fernandez tells friends that Lon Non's thugs recently made an unsuccessful effort to kidnap his daughter.

But at this writing, Lon Nol has not yet convened the Council of Four and his brother talks openly of national political ambitions. Prospects for reform are murky, the FANK deteriorates and Cambodia clings to independence from Hanoi only because of U.S. air power — a subject for a future column.

The TB Test

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Chest X-rays used to be required at work every year, but I changed jobs and skipped two years of X-rays. I went for a regular checkup recently, and since my X-rays over the years had been negative, it was suggested that I just take a skin test. I did, and to my dismay it showed positive. I took the X-ray then, but it again showed negative.

recently — within the last two years anyway. In that case, I would suggest you see your doctor with the idea of having antituberculosis medication as a precaution. If, on the other hand, you were exposed long ago but never had a skin test so you didn't know, then your years of negative chest X-rays would be pretty good evidence that you had overcome the germ in pretty good fashion and probably wouldn't need anti-TB medication now.

The Other Side

TWIN FALLS — Sen. James A. McClure appeared at a Republican dinner here a week ago Friday and gave a truly tough speech. He divided it into two parts, with the first emphasis falling on Watergate and the scandal that has developed around it, and the second part dealing with the Congress and the economy.

So the question can be seen in one of several ways. McClure's remarks were tough because they implied painful cuts in favorite programs, something no politician likes to have to tell the voters, and partisan because they suggested strongly that the Democrats, rather than the system, were solely responsible for the Congress's problems with the budget.

only federal judge thus far to sentence anyone to jail over Watergate, is generally given credit for his toughness in the case, something the president felt called upon to acknowledge in his television speech. It was Sirica, apparently, who kept the Nixon Administration prosecution diligent in its efforts against the Nixon reelection campaign defense.

Bill hits employers of aliens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has approved 297 to 62 a bill to prohibit employment of illegal aliens, despite arguments the legislation would discriminate against Americans of Mexican and Asian descent.

Sponsors of the measure, which was sent to the Senate Thursday, said the federal government spends $35 million each year to deport 500,000 aliens who are attracted to the United States for employment purposes. An estimated one to two million enter the United States illegally each year.

Rep. Joshua Ellberg, D-Pa., floor manager of the bill, said "employers are able to get illegal aliens to work harder, longer and often for less pay" because they will not complain for fear of being exposed to immigration authorities. He said some employers knowingly hire them, thus displacing Americans who would receive higher wages.

A similar bill passed the House 297 to 63 last September, but died in the Senate.

The bill was opposed by Texans, who said it would reduce the number of seasonal farm workers, and by business supporters who thought it would burden employers.

Another amendment, by Rep. Richard C. White, D-Tex., to restore a form of "Bracero" program whereby Mexicans could be brought across the border on a temporary basis to work, was defeated by voice vote.

Italian pair scales Everest

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — Two members of a 64-member Italian expedition Saturday reached the summit of Mt. Everest, the world's highest mountain, according to a message received by the Nepalese foreign office.

The message said Carlo Rinaldi, 31, and Mizuko Mirko, 28, reached the 29,024-foot summit at midday with two Sherpa guides accompanying them.

The Italians became the sixth expedition to climb the peak through the traditional South Col face, the same route used by earlier successful expeditions.

The foreign office identified the Sherpa guides as Lakpat Sherpa and Singhu Dmang.

The leader of the expedition, Guido Monzino, a banker from Milan, said in the message, "All members are well. This is our biggest victory as we have conquered the world's highest peak without any accident or losing any member."

Nixon retreats to ponder mess

GRAND CAY, BAHAMAS (UPI) — President Nixon, his administration still shaken by the burgeoning Watergate scandal, flew Saturday to this privately-owned island in the Bahamas to consider the overhaul of his White House staff.

He was confronted by new changes that one of his former assistants had directed a Pentagon papers break and that a former top aide had secreted confidential White House papers concerning the Watergate bugging.

Nixon, accompanied only by two longtime personal friends, (Hebe) Rebozo and television producer Paul Keyes, made the one hour and 25 minute helicopter flight from his Key Biscayne, Fla., compound to the island owned by Bronxville, N. S., industrialist Robert Abplanalp.

White House aides who remained in Key Biscayne turned aside all questions about the Watergate and related matters of espionage, sabotage and burglary.

Nixon stays at Abplanalp's bluff-top house, one of the few structures on the island.

Oil seeps toward N. Idaho creek

MURRAY, Idaho (UPI) — The Idaho Department of Environmental and Community Services says diesel oil from the ruptured pipeline near here is slowly seeping towards Pritchard Creek.

Mike McMasters of the Lewiston office said several dump wells have been sunk between the location of the ruptured Yellowstone Pipe Line Co. line and the creek. He said they show the oil is seeping towards the creek.

The oil is from a pipeline which burst Wednesday night, McMasters said, estimates of the amount of oil leaked now total between 200,000 and 250,000 gallons, rather than the earlier 15,000 gallons.

He said the situation is fairly serious, and if the oil reaches Pritchard Creek, it will be hard to control.

Mexican president intervenes to save kidnaped US envoy

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — President Luis Echeverria personally intervened Saturday in an effort to save the life of kidnaped U.S. Consul General Lawrence G. Leonhardt in Guadalajara, ordering fulfillment of all ransom demands issued by the political terrorists who abducted him at gymport.

The government began releasing 30 specified prisoners from jails in various cities of Mexico and bringing them to the capital, from where they will be flown to Cuba, as the kidnapers demanded.

The Cuban government already had confirmed a request from the Foreign Ministry that the 30 Mexican prisoners be admitted at Havana, a ministry spokesman said.

A list containing the names of the prisoners to be released was found in a mail box in downtown Guadalajara after a newspaper there, El Informador, had been advised of its location by an anonymous telephone call. The names on the list were relayed to federal authorities in the capital, and Echeverria ordered their immediate release.

Among them were seven convicted bank robbers in Chihuahua, 900 miles north of Mexico City and 150 miles south of the U.S. border city of El Paso, Tex.

The kidnapers warned in their initial communique that Leonhardt would be "executed" unless their demands were met.

The Mexican government will accede to the demands of the kidnapers of the U.S. consul-general because the essential thing is to protect his life," Echeverria said in a statement released by his office.

The kidnapers, who identified themselves as members of a political extremist organization, said in a communique issued after the abduction Friday night that Leonhardt "would be executed."

They also issued several other demands about publication and broadcast of their communique, which already were being fulfilled. An Interior Ministry spokesman said the kidnapers did not identify the prisoners whom they want released.

'Burger' standard asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department recommended Saturday that Americans be told whether a hamburger is all meat or part soybean.

The department proposed a new rule that would set standards for two types of meat patties and said the requirements would be the first governing protein content and percentage labeling of ingredients for meat and poultry products.

Under the proposal: A "meat patty" would have to be entirely ground meat and no more than 10 per cent fat, with appropriate seasonings. If labeled "beef" or "veal" patties, the meat would have to be beef or veal.

All other meat patty products would be called "patty with meat." They would have to have at least 60 per cent meat, of which only one third could be fat, but could contain such other filler ingredients as cereal and soybean products. The added ingredients would have to be listed by their percentages.

Additives would have to provide nearly as high a protein content as the all-meat patties.

The public will have a chance to comment on the proposed rule before it takes effect.

A department spokesman said the protein requirements for "patties with meat" could keep cadaverous, hospital and the like from giving diners "nutritiously deficient products...where they do not have access to labels or ingredient information."

Mideast bridge blasted

BEIRUT (UPI) — Saboteurs Saturday blew up a bridge near the port city of Sidon and new clashes were reported between the Lebanese army and Palestinian guerrillas near the Syrian border despite the ceasefire. But Beirut was quiet and authorities eased the around-the-clock curfew imposed Wednesday.

Palestinian guerrillas blamed the Jordanian intelligence agents for the attack on the span on the main coastal highway from Sidon on the Mediterranean about 25 miles south of Beirut. Two men, identified as Jordanians, were captured.

Meanwhile an army spokesman in Beirut said the Palestine Liberation Army (PLA) brigade that surged into Lebanon from Syria Thursday night to join the fighting had pulled back across the border.

The withdrawal of the estimated 4,000 to 5,000 guerrillas, and their tanks and artillery, eased fears that the clashes of the past week might erupt into a major conflict in the critical border area.

President Suleiman Franjeh and his aides met in his palace for several hours with Arab League Secretary General Mahmoud Riad, Hassan Sabry elKholi, a personal envoy of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, and Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam. Riad said it was imperative that a solution be worked out to prevent further clashes which he said only benefited Israel.

US envoy readies trip to assume China position

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ambassador David K. E. Bruce leaves "with the greatest anticipation" Sunday for Peking, where he will open a U.S. liaison office and a new chapter in Chinese-American relations.

"I'm not an expert on China and I don't want to comment on my mission," the respected, 75-year-old diplomat said Saturday in a telephone interview. "But I'm looking forward to this assignment with the greatest anticipation."

Bruce, his wife and his chief deputy, Alfred Jenkins, will fly to Hong Kong via Tokyo aboard a commercial airliner. After a brief visit to the U.S. consulate general in Hong Kong, the principal China-watching post of the United States, Bruce travels on to Peking a week later, and is to open the liaison office for official business about May 14.

It was not known when Bruce's Chinese counterpart, Huang Chen, Peking's former ambassador to France, will arrive in Washington to open the Chinese liaison office. An advance party headed by Chinese envoy Han Hku is operating out of temporary quarters at the Mayflower Hotel. The Chinese have set up teletype communications with the Chinese foreign ministry in Peking, where Hui formerly served, and are seeking permanent offices in Washington.

In the absence of formal diplomatic relations between Washington and Peking, the creation of reciprocal liaison offices was arranged last February during a visit to Peking by Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's chief foreign policy adviser.

Nixon called Bruce out of retirement for the Peking assignment. One of the most honored of American diplomats, Bruce is the only ambassador in U.S. history to have served in France, Germany and Britain, the three highest diplomatic posts in Western Europe.

Father protests on tower

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — A father clinging to a television tower 335 feet above downtown Des Moines Saturday, vowing to stay until his three children are released from the Polk County Juvenile Home.

Larry Wiese, 36, who moved his family there from Georgia a month ago, climbed to his perch on a triangular platform about halfway up the tower Friday night. He had some bread and water and a blanket. The Wiese children, Kathleen, 8, Daniel, 7, and Jabez, 5, were taken from Wiese and his wife, Wyoming, 28, earlier in the week after Juvenile Court authorities said they had not attended school for more than a year.

Wiese, his voice hoarse clearly for blocks, shouted to police and officials at the bottom of the tower that the family's religion prohibits eating certain foods served in public school. Mrs. Wiese said the family follows a Hebrew religion that bans eating pork or shortening.

'Choice' offered

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — A Peronist newspaper said Saturday President Alejandro Lanusse, head of the ruling military junta, had offered President-elect Hector J. Campora a choice of cooperation with the military or "civil war."

Mayoria, published by followers of former President Juan D. Peron, attributed the statement to Lanusse during his Thursday meeting with Campora in an "exclusive" account of the encounter obtained from the newspaper's "military sources."

According to Mayoria, Lanusse "eloquently referred to recent violent acts and added that in his judgement there were three alternatives: The government would be turned over to the elected officials after a national agreement with the armed forces, or there would be civil war before May 25, or civil war after May 25."

Water still high along Mississippi

By United Press International
The mighty Mississippi River stood above flood stage Saturday from the flatlands of Iowa to the bayous of Louisiana and farmers along the Mississippi delta were hauling catfish from fields where they normally would be planting cotton.

Many areas have been under water for weeks, but as in all things, the big river and its tributaries are in no hurry and officials predicted it likely would be a month or longer before the water drains off in some spots.

Hundreds of thousands of acres have been flooded during the river's seven week old rampage, and damage is being counted in the millions of dollars, although it will take months for officials to fully assess the loss and come up with a specific figure.

Much of the loss will be sustained by the farmer whose fortunes are tied directly to the rich river valley soil.

"I've given up on cotton and I'm working on soybeans. I might get half a crop of beans," said Rivas Carter, a Rolling Fork, Miss., farmer.

Another delta farmer noted the "water has really been shaking the catfish and the hullfrogs loose. They've caught about 800 pounds of catfish in one cotton field."

In Louisiana, weather officials said the worst flooding was yet to come and warned: "With the prospect of additional flooding on the Ouachita, Black and Lower Red Rivers, it is urged that all interests in Northeast and Central Louisiana continue on the alert. Receding of flood waters following the crest will be very slow."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government announced today a major reorganization of federal health activities including breaking up the leading health service agency into three separate units. HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said the Health Services and Mental Health Administration, which has a $2.7 billion budget for such programs as disease control, family planning and child and maternal health, would be reorganized for greater efficiency. More than 6,000 federal jobs will be cut from the administration's 27,000 member payroll by July, 1974. The National Institute of Mental Health, in what is regarded as a downgrading, will be transferred to the National Institutes of Health.

Demo pledge made good

Contest scheduled

By GEORGE PILANK

BOISE (UPI) — Three years ago Gov. Cecil D. Andrus made an inaugural pledge to "wage war" on the drinking driver. He has made the pledge good.

The Idaho Alcohol Emphasis Patrol has an arrest record this year which is enough to make the best drunk driver in the state shudder.

During the first three months of this year, the patrol—known as "ASAP"—among the drinking set—has arrested 376 intoxicated Idaho drivers and followed that with a 98 per cent conviction rate.

The 26-man patrol, which is funded under the Federal Alcohol Safety Action Project, made 107 alcohol related arrests during March compared with 310 arrests during the same month last year by all law enforcement agents in the state.

"It should be emphasized that the ASAP is not anti-drink," Lorin E. "Cotty" Lowry, project director, said. "It is rather aimed at the driver who at demonstrably unsafe blood alcohol levels wantonly chooses to operate a motor vehicle."

The Idaho Alcohol Action Project is one of 35 ASAP projects nationwide which is funded by the office of alcohol countermeasures of the national highway traffic safety administration. The $2.1 million, three-year grant began in July 1972. Idaho's program is unique in that it is a statewide program opposed to a local city or county effort.

The alcohol emphasis force, which is part of the Idaho State Police, has men and cars throughout the state. There are eight in the Lewiston, Couer d'Alene area, eight in the Boise area, and 10 in eastern Idaho, which includes five in Twin Falls, three in Pocatello, and two in Idaho Falls.

"They don't tell anyone where they are patrolling," Lowry said. "They patrol the road to Idaho City one week and may be in the McCall area the next."

Lowry said the force, which has been specially trained to detect and apprehend drunken drivers, makes a majority of its arrests between 11 p.m. and 2 a.m.

There have been some complaints since the force was put on the road last July, Lowry said, most of them coming from tavern owners. They say the special patrolmen lurk outside bars until closing time and then apprehend the customer.

"Not so, says Lowry. "They don't sit out there and wait," he said. "There are so many drunks on the road there is no need to sit and wait."

He said drivers should be the concern of every person in the state.

"You never know when the drunk will come down the road and hit you head-on and kill you," he said.

Although the number of deaths on Idaho highways is running above last year, Lowry said he is sure statistics will show that the emphasis patrol has lowered alcohol related deaths on the state's highways.

"What if they hadn't been patrolling?" he asked. "How many deaths would we have then?"

U.S. manufacturers produced more than 11.1 million cars, trucks and buses in 1972.

TWIN FALLS — The annual Plumbers and Pipefitters Apprenticeship Contest will be May 18-19 in the Plumber and Pipefitters Training Building, 171 Blue Lakes Blvd., Twin Falls. The contest is sponsored by the Idaho State Pipe Trades Association. There will be a dinner the evening of May 19 at the Holiday Inn. Lloyd Williams, Boise, state supervisor of the U.S. Labor Department's Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training will attend.

FDA recalls food products

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The

Food and Drug Administration announced Friday voluntary recall of an assortment of frozen mustard greens, canned tomatoes, and mushrooms.

Because of contamination with insects, sand and grass, the distributors recalled all lots of frozen chopped mustard greens, packaged by Southern Frozen Foods, Montezuma, Ore., and distributed principally in Tennessee, Georgia, Arkansas, Texas and Virginia by the Kroger Co., Cincinnati, the FDA said.

The FDA said all lots of the product were being recalled from retail shelves, but said the company could not estimate how many of the 10-ounce packages were involved.

The Kroger Co. voluntarily initiated the callback, the FDA said.

The FDA also announced a recall of 13,000 cases of canned tomatoes because of swollen and rusty cans. The tomatoes, labeled "finest peeled pear-shaped tomatoes in heavy puree, 28-ounce cans," were canned by Miles Citrus and Fruits Product Co., Nalariya, Israel, and distributed by First National Stores Inc., Somerville, Mass., in New England states as well as New Jersey and New York. The company, which voluntarily initiated the recall, said the swelling was caused by an unidentified slow-growing microorganism.

The FDA also announced that the Four-H Corp., Inlay City, Mich., was voluntarily recalling over 200 cases of canned mushrooms because of swollen cans. The FDA said the firm estimated only about 20 cases remained on the market. The mushrooms were labeled "Inlay Brand pieces and stems mushrooms," in four-ounce cans. The FDA said there was no indication yet what caused the swelling.

The mushrooms were distributed in Illinois and Michigan.

Fleet Predator The coyote, a member of the dog family, has a tail about three feet long, weighs 20 to 50 pounds and has a thick gray or tawny coat with white undersides. They prefer eating mice, rats, squirrels, gophers and other rodents which, uncontrolled, can devastate farms. Coyotes have been clocked running at more than 40 miles an hour.

Merry Pet

Linda Merry

Question: Please can you tell me how to stop a dog from digging? I finally got mine to leave a few patches of grass alone so now he's unearthing the water meter!

Answer: Lassie's owner says he has the solution. He has Lassie taught to dig on command. He orders her to dig in one corner of the yard until she reaches China and by then she has lost all interest.

However, he admits it's pretty difficult to teach a dog to dig on command and suggests that a more mundane approach is better for the average owner.

The two tin cans end-to-end with an inch or two of string. Turn the dog into the yard alone and do something that lets you peek out every few minutes. As soon as he begins excavating, fling the cans at him and shout for him to stop.

If he goes right back to work, or if, after being impressed initially, he decides the cans are not that threatening, rush into the yard, take him by the collar, haul him to the hole, point to it, then give him a good shaking and some choice words.

A week or two of that should convince a pupper much less your dog!

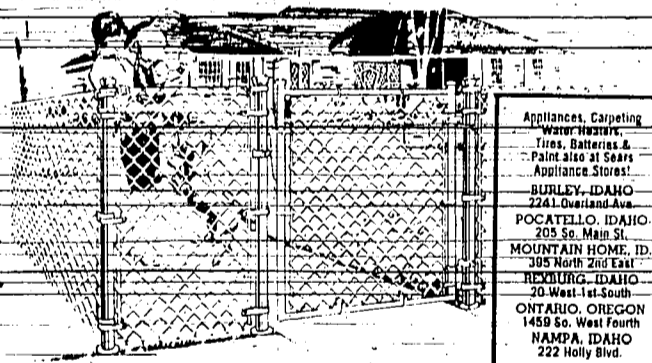

Question: We want a really unusual pet and are considering buying a margay. We don't have any children yet so there wouldn't be anyone to bother it. We'd like to know something about them and where we can get one?

Answer: "Okay, don't forget that you asked me. NO ONE has any business keeping a wild animal unless he's a zookeeper, biologist, or veterinarian with a sick friend. The margay is undependable at best, vicious at worst, and that's no slur on his character. The sale of these beautiful beasts to private individuals has resulted in some of the most horrendous tragedies imaginable — for the cats.

Most people have no idea what nutrition a wild cat needs, much less how to balance the ration. You have no children now, how about a year from now when the cat is grown, undependable, unadoptable, and the stork is nesting?

The cat will wind up being euthanized — unnecessarily — because he should never have been sold in the first place.

Hungary out of East-West talks

By STEVE KETTER
BRUSSELS (UPI) — The Western allies have given firm Soviet insistence that Hungary take no active part in East-West arms-out-talks, Western diplomats said Friday.

The diplomats said the "compromise" will enable exploratory talks on Mutual and Balanced Force Reductions (MBFR) to resume in Vienna, probably next week. The exploratory talks have been suspended since Jan. 31, the day they began over the Hungarian issue.

The reported Western concession would mean that the 39,000 Soviet soldiers in Hungary, plus Hungary's own troops, would be the only forces in central Europe not under debate when the talks begin.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) nations said MBFR should begin with troop withdrawals in Central Europe and all countries with troops stationed there—including the Soviet Union and the United States—should be represented.

The Soviets objected that this would affect all its troops abroad, while the United States would still have soldiers in Europe in countries like Italy and Spain.

The dispute was reportedly worked out in three months of quiet, private negotiations in Vienna embassies far away from the conference table in the Hofburg Palace.

The sources said that, when full scale exploratory talks resume, there will be 11 nations represented—the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, Canada, Belgium, the Netherlands, West Germany, Luxembourg, Poland, Czechoslovakia and East Germany—instead of the original 12. Hungary will join such nations as Norway and Turkey as a "flank" participant, with observer status only.

In return for the Western concession, the Soviets agreed to drop their request that Italy be included in the talks, the diplomats said.

In addition, they said, the Soviets agreed that the Hungarian question might be raised later. But the diplomats said there was little chance of this, and said no attempt would be made for at least two or three years.

If the exploratory talks succeed, full scale MBFR negotiations are expected to begin this autumn.

Sen. Long's body exhumed

HANNIBAL, Mo. (UPI) — Authorities today awaited the results of an autopsy on the body of former U.S. Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo.

The autopsy should confirm or deny reports that Long's death last Nov. 6 was caused by poisoned candy.

Long's body was exhumed from its Hannibal burial place late Thursday, but authorities said results of the tests may not be known for a week or more. The body was examined at a Hannibal hospital, then returned to its grave.

Long's widow, Florence S. Long, had given permission for the exhumation last week under certain conditions which she outlined to Thomas Osborne, Audrain County prosecuting attorney, who has taken over investigation of the reported poisoning.

The charge that Long was poisoned rather than having died from natural causes, as had been assumed at the time of his death, came from Long's secretary and companion, Ivelyn Dunlop. She told authorities last month that Long had received a box of candy shortly before his death and had told her "moments" before he died that he thought the candy had been poisoned.

J. O. Mudd, Pike County coroner, signed the death certificate at the time of Long's death, stating that the cause of death had been a stroke or "cerebral vascular accident." Mudd is not a physician.

Among the conditions that Mrs. Long set out when she

United Nation members say drug addiction up

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — U.N. members reported Thursday that general drug addiction is increasing around the world, even in poor countries, but that heroin use in the United States has declined for the first time in nine years.

France also reported a fall in heroin use, but said the use of marijuana and LSD was increasing.

"In the United States," said American spokesman Herbert R. Weisman, "the rate of new addiction to heroin has registered its first decline since 1944."

He attributed this to tougher measures taken by law enforcement agencies in combatting the drug traffic, sharp increases in drug seizures and to expanded treatment of addicts.

But as the special committee of the U.N. Economic and Social Council opened its discussion on narcotic drugs, a report showed growing use of drugs throughout the world. The report, by the International Narcotics Control Board, said the scope of drug abuse widened and became more complex in 1972.

"The most disturbing aspect," the report said, "has been the increasing resort to heroin, not only in the urban areas of industrialized countries, but also in developing countries, where it infects the younger members of the population."

However, the Board reported progress in international cooperation to combat drug dealing, especially in the main production areas in the Middle East, South and Southeast Asia.

Weisman said U.S. law enforcement agencies and other governments cooperating with them seized more than 800 tons of narcotic drugs in 1972, more than twice the amount confiscated in the previous year. He also said 16,000 traffickers had been arrested in 1972.

French delegate Andre Travers said that although heroin addiction fell, there still were about 20,000 addicts in his country, many of them using other drugs. Most of them, he said, were young urban residents.

Sir Harry Greenfield, the president of the narcotics board, said cocaine use apparently is increasing, especially in Latin America.

"The most significant recent trend in addition in general," he said, "is the tendency towards multi-drug abuse, which in some ways is the most serious of all forms of addiction, especially if combined with alcohol."

The United Nations created a special fund two years ago to finance switches in developing countries from such narcotic crops as poppies, the flower that is processed to become heroin, as well as other projects devoted to combatting the illicit drug traffic. So far, the fund has drawn $5.6 million in pledges.

He has appeared in the CSI productions of "The Lion in Winter," and "The King and I," and was seen in the lead role of "The Importance of Being Earnest." He also appeared in the Magic Valley Children's Theatre production "Pippi Longstocking," and the Dillettante production "Oliver Twist."

Haynes has had experience in set construction, lighting and costume, and is listed in "Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges, 1972-73."

Nevada adults 18

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Gov. Mike O'Callaghan Thursday signed bills to lower the age of adulthood to 18, cases except drinking and allow for abortions under certain conditions and set up guidelines for wiretapping by law-enforcement officers.

They were three of the more than 40 bills signed by the gov-

The lowering of the age of adulthood to 18 applies in all cases except drinking and gambling. The gambling industry and state officials had opposed reducing the age in these categories on grounds it would bring a rash of bad national publicity to the state.

TF woman drives truck

By DAVID WOODHEAD
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — Virginia Fahey, Twin Falls, has spent nearly three weeks working for the Clawson Construction as a 10-wheeler gravel truck driver.

Mrs. Fahey, the only woman employed by Clawson besides one secretary, began driving for the company in mid-April when she applied for a job.

She thought she might convince Clawson to let her become a flagman, but the only opening he had was for a driver.

He asked her if she could drive, an interview was arranged, Mrs. Fahey demonstrated her ability to handle a heavy truck, and she was hired.

Mrs. Fahey's experience with trucks goes back to her days of free-lance hauling with her own truck. Along with her husband, William, Twin Falls, she hauled hay, potatoes, and beets.

Later, after selling the truck, she began to drive for others. Her latest trucking job has been hauling potatoes for Clarence Edwards about two years ago. More recently, she was employed by Kleckman Bros. to drive a school bus one fall. As driver for Clawson Co., Mrs. Fahey hauls gravel from Hagerman to Wendell where the company is constructing a new hatchery.

Her day begins around 7 a.m. and concludes by 6 p.m. According to Mrs. Fahey, "I

Cross bearers arrested

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Forty-five members of the "Christ is the Answer" movement, arrested while dragging a giant wooden cross through the downtown gambling area, were arraigned in municipal court Thursday and ordered to stand trial next week.

Most of the 14 women and 31 men remained in jail and were unable to post the bond of $25 a person set by alternate municipal judge Jerry Kaufman.

The women, many attired in granny dresses and old fashioned boots, were told to appear for trial Tuesday. And the 31 men were ordered to appear in court Wednesday for trial.

The members of the "Christ is the Answer" group were arrested Wednesday night on charges of meeting on the streets without a permit. They were herded into paddy wagons after peaceful preaching and crusading in the downtown gambling area. At one point they dragged a 14-foot by 7-foot cross down the neon lighted "glitter gulch."

Blind girl learns to bake bread

BOISE (UPI) — Treasure Wikoff is blind, but she is one young lady who could teach grandma a lot about sewing and making bread, and grandpa about using power tools.

Miss Wikoff, 20, from Fruitvale, Idaho, is one of the 16 students in the orientation program directed by the Idaho Commission for the blind.

On a typical day, she spent part of her morning working on a dress. She cut the fabric with a specially marked pattern.

Sandwiches at lunch were made with bread she baked using a special health food recipe. In the afternoon she worked on a cheese press she is building in the industrial arts shop.

Through the orientation, Treasure said she found out how little she can depend on my eyes.

"She said she does not bump into things, walk into walls, when she is wearing the shades" but she does when she tries to rely on her vision instead of her newly learned skills.

"Through practice, you learn to use these ears," said teacher Jan Onvig. "You come up to a wall and you hear it — sounds are different when you get close to things."

Miss Onvig, who is herself blind, is the instructor for bachelor living and home economics.

Under her instruction, the students learn to cook, clean, iron and in general take care of a home.

"Losing sight does not mean losing mental capabilities," said Miss Onvig.

As she talked Miss Onvig sewed ties on new curtains for the model apartment.

"A person without sight is the same person," she said, "he just can't see — and that's a characteristic."

Paint plans foiled

DENVER (UPI) — The state has thrown another stumbling block in the artistic plans of two women who hoped to create a snow painting by dumping 600 pounds of dye from a helicopter.

Frank Rozich, director of the Colorado Water Pollution Control Division, said Thursday he had advised Deborah Sprenger, 21, and Susan Renschler, 23, that their plans would violate state water pollution standards.

He said not only would the proposed 300-acre project violate water pollution standards, but could cause an additional expense to treatment plants which had to process dye-contaminated water.

The artists said they are looking for private land for the project. They were denied permission to use Roosevelt National Forest by the U.S. Forest Service.

Rozich said the women would be open to a lawsuit if they reduced the quality of any stream.

DECS board meets formally next week

TWIN FALLS — The board of the Department of Environmental and Community Services will hold its first formal meeting here next week.

The new department was merged from the former Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services, Department of Environmental and Community Services and the State Youth Training Center in St. Anthony's.

The board meeting will be held May 9 and 10 at the Holiday Inn.

No agenda has yet been made public, but the board is expected to react to the recent appointments of four deputy regional administrators.

It is also anticipated that a discussion will be held on a policy on abortions. One spokesman in the department said Friday the position paper on "termination of pregnancy" has not been completed.

Mind Your Money

Choosing the right carpet color, fiber and weave is just half the battle. Getting a good purchase contract is the other half.

You should pick a carpet store by reputation. Local carpet cleaners often know who sells junk and who sells carpets that can stand the test of time.

Reputable carpet stores have seasonal sales with some good bargains but beware of schlock outfits that repeatedly trumpet, "Prices Slashed!"

Be sure to measure rooms yourself to get an idea of the number of square yards of carpeting you'll need. Remember, the rooms almost always require more carpeting than your measurements because carpeting doesn't come in exact sizes. It has to be cut to shape.

If the seller seems too far off in the measurements, it's a good idea to get another figure from a competitor.

Be careful with showroom colors. Most places use lighting that's different from the kind used in your home.

Get a large carpet sample and take it home to see how it looks under your own lighting conditions. To get a big enough sample to be useful, you might have to leave a deposit.

This sample might come in handy in case the seller tries to install carpeting that has a different color or inferior pile. You can compare it with a piece of remnant to make sure you're getting what you paid for.

As extra protection, ask if you can pay for your carpeting over a three-month period without interest. One-third down and the rest in monthly installments after installation.

This way, you can hold up payments for bargaining leverage. If something goes wrong, unfortunately, not many give this extra service.

When the estimate comes to your home — to take measurements, be sure to ask where the seams will go. Otherwise, they might be put in places that attract attention. It's also a good idea to ask if stairway edges are to be covered or left open. Specify what you want.

You should have these items in your contract:

- 1- Type of fiber by weight, type of weave and color (with code number).
- 2- Statement that carpet passes government flammability tests.
- 3- Exact yardage, price per yard, yardage and price for padding, installation fee and total contract price.

Tests cost around $50 to $60 and can be used as evidence in court. For more information, write U.S. Testing Co., 1419 Park Ave., Hoboken, N.J. 07030.

Keeping a carpet properly cleaned can lengthen its life. Richard N. Hopper, technical director, Aids International (represents professional carpet cleaners), says "Steam cleaning is the best way to really get all the dirt out."

Cleaners use lots of hot water and detergent — full steam then vacuum it out immediately. Shampoing with a rotary brush gets a carpet's surface clean but doesn't get out the deep-down dirt.

Professional cleaners say an upright vacuum cleaner is best for home-carpet maintenance. Here's a tip: Ask housekeeper services in local motels what kind of vacuum cleaner they use and which shop gives the best service.

Any promises or guarantees as to durability, color fastness and shrinkage.

Smooth as cake

FINISHED PRODUCT, smooth as cake frosting, is the canal behind the machine which moves along the canal pouring, smoothing and trimming the concrete as it goes.

Equipment cuts canal bank, then concretes it in same operation

By BONNIE JONES Times News Writer

HOLLISTER — An unusual piece of equipment, employed in the $1 million improvement project on the Salmon River Canal Co. system, is drawing considerable attention.

Now nearing completion, the project involves the concreting of more than 8,000 feet of canal and construction of a flume measuring about 2,000 feet.

Morris E. Huffman said the work began this spring and due to be finished in time to meet irrigation demands of company stockholders, required a rapid method of cutting and lining the canal area with concrete to prevent drops from drying before the canal could be open for water delivery.

As a result, a giant piece of equipment, which cuts a perfect canal bed in one operation, backs up and concretes and smooths it in another single operation, has been brought to the site by the contractor, Burgraff Construction Co., Idaho Falls, brought in the complicated equipment from Washington and assembled it at the site several weeks ago.

As it moves along the canal bed at about 1/2 mile an hour, it cuts out the "V" shaped canal, smoothing the sides and flattening the bottom. Guided by cables which keep it from veering even an inch or two, it then loads up with concrete and moves back over the smooth cut, spreading concrete like cake frosting along the sides and bottom in an exact thickness of about four inches. Huffman said the project has been delayed by snow, rain and cold weather but should be completed within a few days.

About 1,000 feet of canal are yet to be concreted and with most of the "bugs" out of the operation it is expected to move rapidly, with about four days needed to complete concrete work.

Also included in the approximately 11,000 foot canal lining program is 2,000 feet of concrete flume to carry the water through a small canyon. The new lining is being installed immediately below Salmon Dam.

Huffman said this section of old canal is extremely porous because of rock formations. In this area about an eight per cent loss of available water has been experienced. This will be eliminated by the concrete lining, he said.

The Salmon River Canal Co. stockholders voted for the project three years ago and will be paying for it through annual assessments over a period of years. In water short years, Huffman said, the work will mean a major difference to the water users. The rehabilitation project was made possible under the Small Loans Act, Huffman said.

Huffman said the canal company anticipates a good water delivery season this year with 100 percent of the water rights to be filled, in addition to a good carryover in the reservoir from last year, snow packs and water content were above normal on the watersheds serving the Salmon Tract.

Tours set at 3 dams

HELLS CANYON — Idaho Power Co. has announced a new, "set-time" schedule for public guided tours of Brownlee, Oxbow and Hells Canyon dams.

Operations superintendent Fred C. Stewart said tours now are conducted for one hour beginning at 11 a.m. at Brownlee, 1 p.m. at Hells Canyon and 3 p.m. at Oxbow. Visitors previously were admitted to the development's plants at any time from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

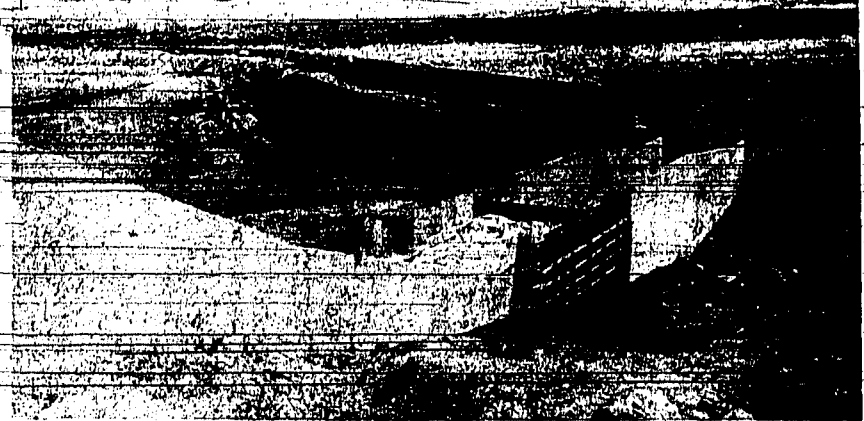

Fisherman fined

HAILEY — About 20 violations for fishing during a closed season have been issued in Blaine County in the past three weeks, according to a Fish and Game official.

Kirk Eberhardt, Halley district conservation officer, said the figure included both warning and citations. Eberhardt said the general state-wide opening of the season in May 26.

Areas presently open for fishing in Blaine County, he said, include the Richfield Canal; and Silver Creek below Priest campground, about one mile upstream from U.S. Highway 93 A. Mormon Reservoir in Camas County is also open, he said.

WE GOT HELP FROM MORLAN NELSON, WHO KNOWS ABOUT EAGLES.

Protection of eagles from electrocution is part of a program initiated by Idaho Power Company with counseling from world-famous eagle expert "Morley" Nelson. Nelson helped us identify which pole-top crossarms are preferred hunting perches for the giant birds, and used his trained eagles to test redesigned structures.

"Idaho Power is making remarkable progress in its eagle protection plan," Nelson said. "A far greater danger to the birds than electric lines are irresponsible shooters. I wish we could correct them as easily as we did the power poles."

Old cans dangerous

DARRELL HEIDER, county sanitation officer, inspects cans which contained weed spray which may spell danger. This pile of weed spray containers were discarded in an unauthorized dumping area along with other trash. Children playing in the area are in danger of contamination if they handle the cans with concentrated chemical residue inside, Heider said.

Old pesticide cans pose danger to human beings

TWIN FALLS — A highly dangerous situation exists in many remote desert areas of the county, warns Darrell Heider, county sanitation officer.

Modern pesticides are on the market for use in killing weeds, insects or other pests which are also lethal to humans. Heider said some of the chemicals, usually diluted with water when used as spray, leave residue in the containers which can cause serious injury or death if contacted by children or adults.

Heider said some of this chemical material attacks the roots of the plants by penetrating the root walls and can do the same thing to human skin.

Manufacturers of the material state on the label how the containers should be disposed of, Heider said. Most call for chopping open the cans with an axe and then burying them underground.

Instead, some users are simply dumping the cans in large numbers or one at a time in dump grounds or on public kind or sagebrush areas.

One such pile of containers was located recently by the county sanitation department near a desert road in Hagerman Valley. More than 20 five-gallon containers were discarded in an unauthorized dumping site. Labels on the containers indicate the cans should be buried. Heider said children playing in the desert area might use the cans for target practice or otherwise handle them, resulting in illness.

He urged people to properly dispose of these containers and suggests parents warn their children about playing with or handling any discarded spray containers, weed killer or insect or other pesticide material containers.

Some products call for rinsing out the containers before they are discarded. What to do with the water used is also a problem, Heider said.

Arab-Jew conflict 'undeclared war'

By GERARD LOUGHRAN

PARIS (UPI) — It is one of the great undeclared wars. "The Arabs cannot fight the Jews on their own territory, so they are fighting on ours," said a Western diplomat.

All over the world, but particularly in Europe, Palestinian guerrillas of the Black September movement now seek to sow death and violence and Israeli undercover agents work to frustrate them.

"The awful thing is we don't know what to do about it," the diplomat said. "Civilian targets are terribly vulnerable and there is a great temptation to cave in to terrorist demands for fear of reprisals."

"Any country which has a Palestinian guerrilla in jail faces the constant threat of further violence."

The "Other Battlefield" syndrome is a calculated policy by the Palestinians. Its aim is to keep the Palestinian cause alive before the eyes of the world.

Black September are the key words in the lexicon of urban terror.

The name comes from September, 1970, when King Hussein's army drove Palestinian guerrillas out of Jordan. Some waded the Jordan River and surrendered to the Israelis rather than face the tough Bedouin troops.

Black September was first heard of when four Palestinians claimed membership after assassinating Jordanian Premier Wasfi Tel Nov. 28, 1971, on the steps of a Cairo hotel.

In the 13 months since then, the list of operations which they have claimed or with which their name has been linked is extraordinary. It includes:

- Murders of 11 Israeli athletes and coaches at the Munich Olympics, two American diplomats and a Belgian in Khartoum, a Syrian journalist in Paris, Jordanians in Germany and alleged Israeli intelligence agents in Spain and Cyprus.
- Explosions at an Italian oil farm, a Dutch gas plant and aboard an Israeli ship in the United States.

- Hijacks of a Sabena aircraft to Israel and a Lufthansa plane to Zagreb.
- An attempt on the life of the Jordanian ambassador in London and an abortive attempt against Soviet Jews in Austria.
- The discovery of explosives at Rome airport and in a car in France.
- The seizure of an embassy in Bangkok and the failed attempt to seize government buildings in Jordan.

One of the most spectacular events came during the week of April 8. Palestinian guerrillas tried to hijack an El Al plane at Nicosia, Cyprus and simultaneously bombed the home of the Israeli ambassador. All but one were killed or captured.

The next day, Israeli commandos killed three top Palestinian leaders in the middle of Beirut.

Newsman freed on promise

BY WILLIAM F. WRIGHT
LONDON (UPI) — Rhodesian journalist Peter Niesewand said Friday the Rhodesian government released him from 7 days solitary confinement in exchange for a promise of silence.

"My freedom was at a price," Niesewand told a news conference on his arrival in London from Salisbury.

"I had to sign an undertaking that in return for a one-way ticket out of Rhodesia, which I had to pay for — I would not make any comment on the court hearings in connection with my case or refer in any way to the military situation in Rhodesia," the 28-year-old South African-born freelance journalist said.

Opportunities for fraud noted in common market

By JOHN BRACKEN

LONDON (UPI) — Since Britain joined the Common Market last January there has been a sudden upsurge of exports of food and Scotch whisky to the Vatican.

British customs officials see this not as evidence of riotous living in the Holy See but sharp dealing on the part of those wishing to cheat the Common Market's farm fund.

Most of the goods involved to the Vatican, they believe, will end up in Italy anyway. Since the Vatican is a sovereign state and not a Common Market member, a large number of food items "exported" there qualify for export refunds under the Common Agricultural Policy (CAP) regulations.

These "fake exports" from the Common Market are costing the Brussels-based farm fund tens of millions of dollars in illegal payments, and have become a "scandal," according to European Parliament members.

Last January, for example, a French court sent four men to jail for a total of nine years and levied customs penalties totaling $154 million.

The sign a West German, two Frenchmen and a Belgian had been working a clever fraud in corn. The grain was ostensibly consigned to Britain and Denmark, which at the time were not Common Market members, and export subsidies were paid on the shipments, which then found their way to West Germany.

Three years ago, customs officials at the German border became suspicious of a barge that was making frequent trips down the Rhine from France to the Low Countries.

The barge's cargo was butter. Under present CAP rules, due to be phased out in 1978, the owners of the cargo were entitled to a "compensatory payment" — the difference between butter prices in France and those prevailing in the countries of destination.

Millions of francs in payments were made before it was discovered they had been paid on the same cargo: the barge simply slipped back across the French border and represented itself at the frontier each time. Common Market officials believe they have now closed this loophole.

The farm fund presents a tempting target for the swindler. In fiscal 1972, some $1.25 million was refunded to Common Market exporters. Now that Britain has joined, this figure will climb sharply higher.

Customs officials in London point out that checking this kind of fraud presents formidable problems. For one thing, invoices do not have to accompany shipments — they can be presented up to two weeks later. And with international commerce running at such an enormous volume, trade would come to a standstill if every shipment was monitored.

Nevertheless, the Special Investigation Branch of Customs in London, which is charged with surveillance of the problem, is holding urgent consultations with its opposite numbers on the continent in an effort to clamp down on offenders.

It is going to take a great deal of patient work by the customs authorities before the Vatican's whisky "consumption" and other unexpected market "trends" of this type subside.

Medical record rifled

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon's medical records were rifled by burglars who broke into the office of his personal physician during the height of the 1972 presidential campaign, the Long Beach Independent-Press Telegram reported today.

Dr. John Lungren, who last examined the President in 1960 and now is his "medical consultant," said that although money was in plain view it was not taken by the intruders.

"I don't believe that any of the (Nixon) records were missing, but the papers were out of their chronological order and obviously scrutinized," Lungren said. "There is the supposition that they might have been photographed."

The Independent-Press Telegram's copyrighted story said the FBI copied comment on the case but that sources in the bureau felt the documents could have been photographed or hand copied.

"The records dated back to Nixon's days as vice president,

US quits news briefings

Plan activities

IN CHARGE OF SENIOR class activities beginning May 17, will be the current year officers of the graduating class of 1973. From left are Nancy Bonnett, secretary; Mike Sturgill, president; Brent Olmstead, vice president, and Terry Latham, treasurer.

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The U.S. Embassy discontinued its daily news briefings for Western correspondents Saturday, and a spokesman said the action was taken because of Cambodian government complaints about recent disclosures.

The embassy spokesman told newsmen the government of President Lon Nol has complained about recent information issued to newsmen by U.S. officials as factual accounts of developments in the Cambodian military situation.

As a result, the spokesman said, the embassy under Ambassador Emory C. Swank "had second thoughts" about the advisability of briefing Americans and other journalists on either the military or political situation here.

"It is the consensus of this embassy we will not have further briefings," he said, adding that the embassy believes that all future briefings should be given "by the Khmer Cambodian government."

One of the most recent reports concerned the route of two battalions of government troops Thursday from their position near Neak Luong, a Mekong river outpost 32 miles southeast of Phnom Penh. The report said attacking Cambodian rebels had used toxic gas, killed 90 government soldiers and led away 580 others as prisoners.

The incident was not reported in any of the news briefings given twice daily by the Cambodian military command.

The embassy spokesman, in response to a question, said there had been "no errors" in any recent briefings on the military situation issued through the U.S. embassy.

The government's daily briefings consist of a brief summary of latest military activities written in French and posted on a bulletin board outside the office of the information spokesman, Col. Am Rong.

The release rarely supplies vital information on military activity except to report overnight shelling attacks and relatively minor fights. Casualties seldom are reported. All dispatches filed by news correspondents by telegraph or telephone from Phnom Penh are subject to censorship by the government.

The embassy spokesman declined to discuss the crash Friday of a U.S. Air Force A7 Corsair jet into a populated area near Phnom Penh's Pochentong airport. He said queries about the crash should be submitted to the Pacific Command headquarters in Honolulu.

Skylab station starts new era

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The Skylab space station marks the beginning of a new era in the U.S. man spaceflight effort. The start of an earth orbital program that will proceed in two years to an unprecedented meeting of Americans and Russians in space. Then, three or four years later, comes the first flight of the revolutionary new orbital transport, called the space shuttle. The United States no longer plans to send men to the moon or beyond. The new focus of spaceflight is on earth orbit and the ways men can best capitalize on it. The flight of Apollo 17 last December completed the $25 billion lunar exploration project. It may be 15 or 20 years before Americans return to the moon. Despite great differences, Skylab project owes its life to Apollo. Its basic shell is a Saturn 1B rocket designed specifically to send men to the moon, and the project uses Apollo command ships to ferry crews up and back. The idea of using an empty rocket as an orbital house has been around since 1962. In 1965, well before the first Apollo had flown, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration was taking guardedly of experimenting with a Saturn stage that propelled itself into orbit. The concept grew into a definite project in 1966 as part of the new Apollo applications program, a broad effort to make the best use of Apollo hardware for a wide variety of jobs in space. The space agency then was thinking of flying the first empty Saturn stage in 1968. The plan then was to have Apollo astronauts dock with the rocket stage after it had used up its propellants to get into orbit. All that was needed to turn the rocket's huge hydrogen fuel tank into an "orbital workshop" was an airtight and associated oxygen pressurization gear. NASA planned to ferry 11 more astronauts up to the empty rocket stage and add a solar observatory to it. The idea was to slowly build a space station in orbit. The whole project was shelved in 1967 when three astronauts were killed in an Apollo spacecraft fire on the launch pad. The Space Lab effort wasn't revived until the Apollo 11 astronauts landed on the moon in 1969. When the project was resumed after the successful lunar landing, its basic concept was changed. Instead of outfitting a spent rocket to orbit, project officials decided to build the complete space station on the ground and launch it by a larger Saturn 5 rocket made available because of the early moon flight success. This greatly simplified the mission, reduced the risk and cost and significantly increased the lab's capabilities. In 1970, the assembly was named "Skylab" to, as NASA said, recognize and emphasize its role as an exploratory space station in the evolution of man's use of orbital flight for practical benefit.

Ousted youth sees changing times

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Adrian Cumming left the United States two years ago to do what his brother takes for granted today — grow his hair as long as he wanted to. He went to Australia at the age of 17 because school officials and the federal courts said his hair, which touched the top of his ears and the back of his shirt collar, was too long to allow him to class. Now that he's home again, Cumming is surprised how things have changed. He's glad to be back. "I was equally surprised when I came home two weeks ago and found my kid brother, Eric, a junior high student, peacefully going to school with hair to his shoulders," Cumming said Thursday. "I find a far more positive attitude in this country now than when I left. I don't know whether it's because the country has changed or I have changed or both."

Rotary engine to start revolution?

By ROBERT F. HUCKIORN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Can you start a revolution with something that goes "hmmmm" instead of "boing, boing, boing"? D. R. Brown thinks so. He claims that "by 1980, 50 per cent of all cars sold in the United States will be humming rather than boing."

The "hmmmm" sound Brown is talking about comes from the new rotary engine, the biggest thing to hit the auto industry since the assembly line, according to its backers.

The "boing" is the outdated sound of the piston engine, Brown said in an interview with UPI. Mazda is using the "hmmmm" and "boing" in broadcast commercials.

If you listen to Brown, the piston engine is on its way to the scrap heap. On the other hand, Henry Ford II, for one, doesn't think the rotary engine will replace the piston engine in his lifetime.

 Brown has an obvious vested interest in the rotary engine — he is general manager, USA, for Mazda, the Japanese-built car with the rotary engine, and the first of its kind on the American market.

When the car was introduced in 1971, American sales were a puny 20,000. Last year, they jumped to 57,850, and Brown expects to sell about 120,000 Mazdas in this country in 1973. By 1975, the sales will rise to 350,000 Brown predicts.

If it is nothing else, the rotary engine is radically different from its older brother, the piston engine. Invented by a German, Felix Wankel, the rotary engine has triangular-shaped rotors which revolve in an elliptical chamber, rather than pistons.

Simply put, the rotary engine goes round and round, the piston engine's movement is up and down.

 Because of its design, the rotary engine is lighter, smaller, quieter and cleaner than the piston engine. Mazda even met the 1975 auto pollution control standard, something the major U.S. manufacturers said they could not do.

If the rotary engine is so efficient why doesn't Detroit switch? The answer is that Detroit is moving into the field.

Rotary engine patents have been purchased and General Motors, the nation's largest automaker, is expected to be first offering the engine. It is planned for the 1975 Chevrolet Vega.

Despite optimistic predictions of some auto executives like Brown, Ford and others think the rotary revolution will be slower coming. Any switchover would take careful planning and would consume a long period of time, this argument runs.

For example, the rotary engine uses fewer parts. What effect would a changeover have on the multimillion dollar auto parts industry? Economic recession? Lower employment? Or would it create a new and even more profitable market?

The rotary engine could also lead to a revolutionary design change for cars. Since it is smaller and lighter, the shape of cars could be altered — with shorter hoods and sloping front ends.

For the car owner, it could mean fewer repair bills since the rotary engine has fewer moving parts and therefore the life of the car would be extended, its backers claim.

The U.S. auto industry will make no major changeover until it is satisfied that all the questions are cleared up. Automakers see the rotary engine as only an interim step toward an eventually gas turbine engine, or a return to the electric car.

Burley zone law changed

BURLEY — The Burley Planning Commission has made five changes in the proposed zoning ordinance following public pressure.

The ordinance will be presented in the revised form at a public hearing at 8 p.m. May 27, at the city hall, according to Charles Skaggs, commission chairman.

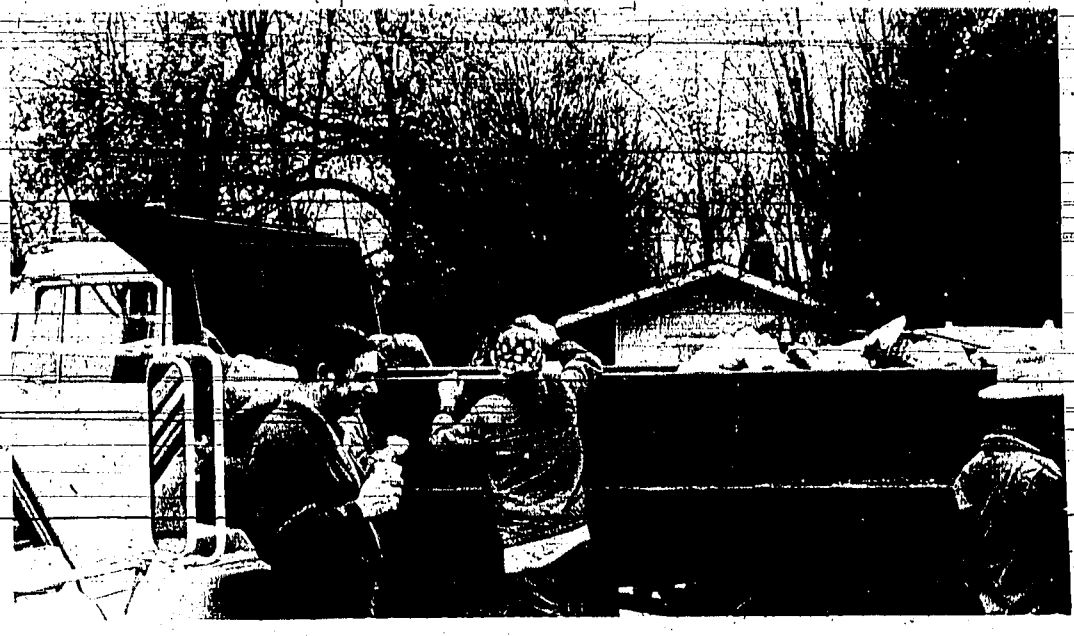

The zoning ordinance was first presented to the public at an open hearing April 27. The ordinance received much negative discussion. At another public meeting Thursday the opposition to the new ordinance was still firm.

The main opposition pertained to the northwestern and northeastern sections where residents wanted areas marked residential under the new zoning ordinance returned to commercial zoning areas as they had been under the old zoning ordinance.

Jerry Wyant presented a petition containing some 100 names asking that the ordinance be changed. After the public hearing the committee held an executive session and made the five changes.

The five areas affected by the change include the area west of Park Avenue and south of West Main, which includes Union Seed, freight depots and other commercial enterprises; the area between one-half block west of Miller, between west 14th Street, north one and two-thirds blocks toward West Main; one block west of the alley between Oakley and Miller, between west Ninth Street and North Fifth Street; the area of north Burley south of Emerson and Third Streets

KIMBERLY — All five Kimberly School Board members are faced with opposition in their bids for reelection.

One of those seeking election is a write-in candidate.

The election to be conducted from noon until 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Kimberly elementary school auditorium, is a result of rezoning of trustee districts in the city of Kimberly by the Idaho state department of education last year.

Early this year the school board faced a citizens complaint brought before the State Board of Education. At that time, a fact finding committee from the Idaho State department of education found 7 of the accusations in the complaint "not valid," and listed three violations of law. Since the committee report, the board has been updating the school policy manual, a step recommended by the committee.

Senior board member Holland Houfberg, Zone 3, said Friday, "I'm running because I have my children in the Kimberly schools and I've enjoyed the opportunity to serve."

Opposing Houfberg, Jeff Scott said that he is running "because of a hope to bring new insight and a fresher outlook to the board. My concerns do not run with any particular fact," he said. "I want to get involved with the community."

Gordon Curtis, write-in candidate for Zone 1, said, "I think it's time for a change in board membership. Because of the problems of this year, it would be better to start over with some new faces."

Candidate for Zone 6, Robert Kohn said, "I feel responsible citizens need to participate in community offices such as the school."

Zone 2 candidate James L. Wright said, "I think it's healthy for the school district to have more than one candidate to choose from."

William O. Lyda, seeking election in Zone 4, said, "I have children in the school and as a former teacher I understand the administration viewpoint as well as those of the teachers and parents. I feel I can make a meaningful contribution as a school board member."

Candidates, length of board terms and zones are: Zone 1, two years, incumbent Ron Ballard; write-in candidate, Gordon Curtis; Zone 2, present board chairman, Jack Claiborn Jr., James L. Wright; Zone 3, three years, incumbent Holland Houfberg, Jeff Scott; Zone 4, one year, incumbent Jack Shropshire, William O. Lyda, and George Nauman Jr.; Zone 5, one year, incumbent Johanna Brown and Robert Kohl.

Cleanup brigades scour several valley counties

TWIN FALLS Cleanup brigades in several Magic Valley counties worked Saturday morning to liberate the countryside of litter.

In Twin Falls County, an estimated 1250 persons worked on the annual Johnny Hopalong Day, moving out to all corners of the county at 8 a.m. and "putting together" at noon at a few spots for a free lunch.

Lincoln County school children were let out from school early in some areas Friday to get an early start on their cleanup in that county, and the work continued into Saturday. An estimated 300 people took part.

Cassia and Jerome counties also organized cleanup campaigns for the day.

In Twin Falls, county commissioner William L. Chamcey, organizer for the event, said workers policed litter from major roadways in the county, as well as scouring the Rock Creek Canyon, the city-county airport grounds, and the county fairgrounds near Piler.

Jerome residents went to work on the downtown and surrounding area. But an expected large turnout was minimized due to heavy rain showers in the morning.

Some elected officials were in evidence as Mayor J. A. (Jack) Russell, and commissioners John Van Orman and Jerome Chamber of Commerce President Vince Alberdi worked on Highway 79 from the city to the golf course.

Edeh and Hazelton area residents worked to clean up the Kasota as well as Greatview and Greenwood Park areas.

Organized clubs, school classes and city, county and federal agencies participated in the cleanup effort, in addition to individuals throughout the counties.

Two Burley men hurt in crash

BURLEY — Two Burley men are hospitalized at Cassia Memorial Hospital as the result of an early morning pickup truck accident west of Burley Saturday.

Michael E. Stephens, 26, Burley, is in the intensive care unit at the hospital and Michael Broadhead, about 26, Burley, is listed in serious condition.

Idaho State Patrolman rank Mogensen said the accident was reported about 5 a.m. although it may have happened an hour or two before that time.

Mogensen said, the driver, believed to be Stephens, apparently went to sleep and failed to negotiate a curve about 15 miles west of Burley on Interstate 80 near Ridgeway Road. They were traveling in the eastbound lane when their 1972 pickup left the highway on the curve, rolled end over end twice and rolled over sideways.

The officer said apparently both men were thrown out of the vehicle.

The men were employed by Elliotts, Inc., and had been working in the Hailey area and were delayed in coming home.

Mogensen said the pickup was torn apart and the seat belts were still in their original wrappers and had not been used. Both men suffered shock from lying injured near the highway for a period of time.

N-bombs lowered in Colorado well

MEEKER, Colo. (UPI) — Workers attached the last of three nuclear bombs to a string of pipe Saturday and began lowering them more than a mile beneath the surface of Colorado's Western Slope.

The atomic devices will be detonated simultaneously May 17 in an experiment designed to blast a cavern in tight rock formations as free as much as 20 billion cubic feet of natural gas.

"The third explosive is being assembled and going down now," said Frank Young, spokesman for CER Geonuclear Corp., a Las Vegas, Nev., firm which is co-sponsoring the test.

"Each of the explosives is 30 feet long with 120 feet of additional equipment," said Young.

Placement of the devices began Thursday. After they reach detonation level, the bore will be filled with 2,400 feet of concrete and 2,000 feet of water. The job should be completed by Wednesday.

The Colorado Water Pollution Control Commission Friday issued a permit for the blast. It requires the experiment 25 miles southwest of Meeker to be carried out in strict conformity to data the sponsors, including the Atomic Energy Commission, already has submitted.

The pollution control group has ordered weekly monitoring of surface and subsurface waters for signs of chemical and radioactive contamination. Officials expect none.

Kimberly warehouse damaged

KIMBERLY — Fire that apparently broke out in a lunchroom caused an estimated $150,000 damage in a warehouse here early Saturday morning.

The fire broke out at the Henry Produce Co., Kimberly, causing damage to the equipment and building as well as potatoes that were packaged and ready for shipment, according to Tim Henry, owner. There were no injuries reported.

Henry said the fire broke out in the lunchroom and restroom area of the warehouse, and speculated the cause was a gas heater that had been set too high.

But Twin Falls Sheriff Paul Corder said it appeared to him the cause of the fire was electrical wiring. Investigation is still continuing.

Firemen from the Kimberly and Mutual Fire Companies responded to the alarms, which went out about 5:45 a.m. Saturday.

Vote at Wendell

WENDELL — The Wendell School district trustee election is slated for Tuesday between noon and 7 p.m. in the Wendell High School library.

Robert Smith, Zone 2, and LaVar Peterson, Zone 4, are both seeking reelection. Smith is opposed by Fred Maltz. Election is unopposed. Terms in both zones are for three years.

Supt. Kenneth Black said including last year's raise, teachers there have averaged 12 per cent increase over the last two years.

Murtaugh teachers also have received a 12 per cent increase over a two-year period. This year's raise averaged nine per cent, making the base salary $6,540 and the top, with 11 years experience and 10 credits plus a master's degree, at $9,104.

Last year a $200 across the board increase was given, plus increments, making the 12 per cent Supt. Florin Hulso said, Wendell has just completed negotiations resulting in a 10 per cent hike on base salaries, ranging up to 13 per cent for the top of the pay scale. Beginning teachers will get $6,600 next year and the top pay is $9,763 for 15 years experience and 30 hours plus a master's degree.

Supt. Lawrence Laitus said this year trustees are trying to "put all our surplus into salaries without hurting the instructional program." Last year there was just a 1.00 increase on base pay.

Hansen's base salary will go from $6,000 to $6,250 and with fringe benefits, such as premiums on Blue Cross insurance for employees and their families, the "package" is considered worth $7,700, according to Supt. Percy Christensen. Top salary is $8,490 for teachers with five years of college.

Christensen said teachers had asked for the fringe benefits instead of larger salary increases this year, but that with their overall benefits they will receive "what the legislature suggested," averaging 11.9 per cent for two years.

Valley district teachers at Eden and Hazelton will receive a five per cent pay boost next year, and last year they received the same amount, plus increments.

Dr. Tom Utterback, superintendent, said this puts starting salaries at $6,615 and top salary at $9,203 for a master's degree, plus 30 hours and 13 years experience.

Pilar teachers received a 9.3 salary hike for next year and $150 last year, meeting the suggested 10 per cent in two years, Supt. Ray Baker said. Starting salary now is $6,375 while top salary in the district is $9,125 for teachers with master's degrees and 10 years experience.

Cassia school district teachers received an average seven per cent raise, with a 3.5 per cent hike last year, according to Mat Warr, business manager.

Under the new salary scale beginning teachers in Cassia County will get $6,300 while the top salary for sixth year of college under an approved program and 12 years experience is $10,206.

Gooding gave a seven per cent increase this spring, making starting salaries for next year $6,910 with the top of $9,308 for a master's degree with 15 years experience. Last year teachers received about a four per cent raise.

Mindok, one of the largest consolidated districts in the Magic Valley, has approved an 11.4 increase, making the starting salary $6,600 and the top for a master's degree plus 30 credits, at $10,230.

Teachers in the county-wide district received a 5.5 increase last year, said Doyle Tober, assistant superintendent.

Twin Falls teachers will receive an 11.3 raise next year, half of which is termed a "catch-up" from last year when no increases were given. Twin Falls starting salary is $6,735, while the top of the scale, for a master's degree and 17 years experience is $10,115.

Kimberly has increased its salaries 10 per cent on the beginning salaries raising them to $8,100. Teachers with a master's degree plus 45 extra credits will make $9,300 next year.

Last year teachers in the Kimberly district received $100 across the board raise, plus increments, said Supt. Clinton Bugg.

Buhl teachers also received a 10.1 per cent raise this year, but no increase was given in the district last year. Starting teachers will get $8,200 while the top pay scale is $9,351.

Of the districts where negotiations still are not completed, Mills trustees will be asked to approve a five per cent raise, making the base pay $6,095 and the top, with a master's degree, $8,000.

Blaine Supt. Ray Jefferson said he expects negotiations to be completed hopefully next week, while both Dietrich and Castleford boards are expected to approve their budgets at the May board meetings.

A warning to investors worried about INFLATION

Inflation has already slashed away nearly 2/3 of the dollar's 1940 purchasing power. William McChesney Martin Jr., former Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, warns: "We have engaged in fiscal stimulus which is so far in excess of any reasonable requirement that it borders on the irresponsible." Dr. Franz Pick, world-famous monetary authority, warns: "The U.S. dollar... has now entered the stage of terminal disease," and that bankruptcy is "inevitable." And Harry Browne, whose book HOW YOU CAN PROFIT FROM THE COMING DEVALUATION accurately predicted the first dollar devaluation in 37 years, and the record gold prices, warns: "The alternatives are narrowed to either runaway inflation or a full-scale depression."

Your Inflation Defense
You are NOT helpless in the face of onrushing monetary disaster. While inflation and recurring monetary crises are destroying the assets of less knowledgeable investors, you can secure your life savings. Even during runaway inflations and severe depressions, a few farsighted investors manage to prosper. And you could be among the prosperous few. Our new booklet, The Case for Silver—How to Protect Your Assets Against Inflation, by Louis E. Carabini, President of the Pacific Coast Coin Exchange, shows you:
• Why silver is a valued hedge against inflation—proven effective for nearly 2,000 years.
• 3 powerful forces at work today which are speeding America towards further monetary crises.

Agent insures antique vehicles

NEW YORK (UPI) — Insurance is one of the most specialized of all businesses and one of the more curious specialties is handled by an upper Darby, Pa., man named Robert Wallace. Wallace specializes in protection for antique and classic automobiles around the country and abroad. He insures thousands of vehicles which collectors and restorers pamper with loving care. Wallace created the J. C. Taylor Antique Auto Insurance Agency 10 years ago as a sideline to his regular insurance business. It now is practically a full time job. He places most of the policies with Zurich Insurance Co., a member of Zurich-American group. Wallace has insured antique cars for as much as $80,000—but most of the policies are for a few thousand dollars. "Nostalgia in motorism is spreading like oil on a garage floor," he told United Press International. "Antique and classic car collecting as a hobby is growing so fast that the supply of really good old cars is drying up." Nevertheless, Wallace doesn't believe antique and classic cars are necessarily good growth investments, nor does he believe many collectors look on them as good investments. On the contrary, he said, there is considerable hostility from dyed-in-the-wool antique auto buffs toward the speculators who drive prices up so high it makes the collecting prohibitively expensive for many. The highest price ever paid for classic autos is believed to be $240,000 for a pair of armored Mercedes-Benz cars once owned by Adolf Hitler. "The hobby is spreading so steadily that restoration shops are doing a big business," Wallace said. "Workshops churn out hand machine parts such as the oval radiator of the 1931 Buick or cooling fans for a 1907 Packard, or they rebuild old cars from the ground up, retinning or replacing engine parts and body parts." Pennsylvania appears to have a bigger proportion of antique buffs than any other state, Wallace said. The 1971 Pennsylvania floods resulted in $103,000 in damage claims to antique cars being filed with Wallace's agency. Other states heavy with antique auto buffs are California, Illinois, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Michigan and Florida.

Pacers tie series on 90-86 victory

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The Indiana Pacers evened their American Basketball Association Playoffs with the Kentucky Colonels at two games each with a 90-86 victory Saturday, taking a third period lead on a midcourt foul and never giving it up. Fighting off the problems of two previous games, the Pacers saw their front line in full operation in the final two periods.

Before a nationally televised audience, the Pacers resorted to the muscle of George McGinnis, who had 20 points, Darnell Hillman, who had 17, and Mel Daniels, who added 14 more. The Pacers led at all quarter stops, 29-22, 48-45, 74-70.

Perhaps the key play in the game came late in the third period. Rookie Don Buse converted a mid-court steal into a 72-70 Indiana lead and the Pacers never trailed again. Indiana operated under the tutelage of Gus Johnson in the last half as head Coach Bobby Leonard was tossed out by referee Joe Gushue at the halftime buzzer.

Artis Gilmore, who had dominated the series the last two games, had four fouls the first half and picked up his fifth at 9:31 of the third quarter. The 72 center wound up with just 18 points — and only six in the crucial last half.

Scoring for Indiana was well-balanced. Freddie Lewis added 15 and six assists and Donny Freeman chipped in 11. Roger Brown came off the bench for eight crucial minutes in the last half.

The contest was enlivened late in the first half when Freeman and Kentucky's Rick Mount got into a fight emptying both benches. Referees called a double foul with no shooting involved.

The series now goes to Louisville Tuesday and returns to Indianapolis Thursday.

LA faces problem of winning on road

NEW YORK (UPI) — Beaten soundly on their home court, the Los Angeles Lakers must figure out a way of stopping New York's "unlikely heroes" lest the Knicks take a 2-1 lead here in Sunday's pivotal game of the National Basketball Association finals.

Los Angeles is on solid ground when it matches starting teams with the Knicks but the foundation begins to weaken when reserves take over. Last Thursday night the Lakers were shaken on their world championship pedestal by the top-notch performances of New York reserves Phil Jackson and Dean Meminger, who contribed offense and defense to lead the Knicks to a 99-95 triumph. Certainly 6-foot-6 Knick guard Bill Bradley, who tallied 26 points, deserved a large share of the credit for New York's victory but he was not the man who really hurt the Lakers.

"You know who really hurt us?" said Los Angeles guard Jerry West after the loss, "Jackson. You expect a guy like Bradley to make the shots but you don't expect it as much from Jackson. He made some big plays for them."

California slips past Orioles 3-1

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Bob Oliver drove in two runs with a home run and a single to give the California Angels a 3-1 victory Saturday night over the Baltimore Orioles behind the two-hit pitching of Bill Singer.

Meminger's contribution was less spectacular but no less appreciated. The quick, 6-1 guard took over for starter Earl Monroe, who reinjured his hip when he crashed into Bill Bradley, after the Peeps got the Knicks going with 14 points in the first half. With Monroe out, the situation was ripe for a Knick letdown.

Digregorio and U.S. drop Soviets 83-75

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Providence's Ernie Digregorio bedeviled the standing room only crowd of 13,506 here Saturday night as his passes and shooting brought the United States to an 83-75 basketball win over the Soviet Union.

The Russians with 17 points and Ivan Dvornij added 11. The Russians put on a late charge but could get no closer than the final eight-point margin.

Cougar II joins millionaire club

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Stretch-running Cougar II became the 11th horse in thoroughbred racing to earn more than $1 million Saturday when he scored an easy victory in the sixth running of the $10,250 Century Handicap on the turf at Hollywood Park.

The winner carried top weight of 127 pounds and his time was slightly slower than the American record of 2:11 he set last year in winning the race with 126 pounds.

Irish trounce reserves 45-6

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Junior Tom Clements and senior Cliff Brown, battling it out for Notre Dame's first string quarterbacking job next fall, divided play-calling duties Saturday as the regulars rolled to a 45-6 victory over the reserves in a spring practice scrimmage.

Clements, who quarterbacked the regulars in the first half, connected on six of 10 throws for 108 yards and one touchdown.

Feuerbach breaks shotput record

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Al Feuerbach, a bronze medal winner at the 1972 Olympic Games, Saturday set a world record in the shot put of 71-7, breaking Randy Matson's mark that had stood for more than seven years.

Feuerbach's throw was 1 1/2 inches better than the 71-5 1/2 inches recorded by Randy Matson of Texas in April, 1967. Feuerbach, 21, set the record in his second throw of the heat in the San Jose National Invitational Track and Field meet at the San Jose State University campus.

Idaho State wins Beehive track meet

LOGAN, Utah (UPI) — Idaho State University trackmen won the Beehive Invitational four-night Saturday over 16 other Intermountain area teams, including host Utah State.

The Bengals scored 73 1/2 points to lead the field. Utah's Aggies were second with 59 points, while Weber State came up with 46 1/2 points for third place.

Dodgers overpower St. Louis by 11-3

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Willie Crawford hit a three-run homer in the first inning and Joe Ferguson doubled with the bases loaded in the second to start the Los Angeles Dodgers off to an 11-3 win over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday night.

The early inning outburst carried Tommy John to his third victory against two defeats as he scattered seven hits. St. Louis rookie Jim Bibby was touched for nine runs in 2-1/3 innings before Al Santorini took over to restore order in the second. The Dodgers collected 14 hits off the first two Cardinal hurlers.

Santo bats Cubs past Giants 7-4

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ron Santo drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly and a two-run homer Saturday and Jack Aker pitched out of a ninth-inning jam in leading the Chicago Cubs to a 7-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead into the eighth with starter Bart Hooton pitching a one-hitter and then erupted for four runs and a 5-0 lead.

Prentice, Rankin Share Raleigh lead

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Jo Ann Prentice and Judy Rankin, shot 70 and 72, respectively, Saturday to move into a tie for the lead in the LPGA Raleigh Golf Classic at one-over-par 145.

The two pros hold a one-stroke lead over Sandra Palmer and Kathy Whitworth going into Sunday's final round of the $30,000 tournament at the 6,300-yard Raleigh Country Club course.

Filer and Buhl name cage coaches

BUHL — Jerry Koester, an assistant at Idaho Falls, has agreed to terms with Buhl high school and will become head basketball coach of the Indians next year.

Secretariat avenges lone loss with derby victory

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Secretariat wiped out an embarrassing stain on his record and proved beyond a shadow of a doubt he's a bargain buy at $6 million by parlaying a dynamic burst of power and speed in the stretch to win the $198,000 Kentucky Derby by two and a half lengths Saturday in record time.

Padres nip Pirates in seventh

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Clarence Gaston singled in Johnny Grubbs from second base in the seventh inning to break a 5-5 tie and give San Diego Padres a 6-5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates behind the strong relief pitching of Vicente Romo.

The win was San Diego's first over the Pirates in San Diego stadium since July 23, 1971. Romo took over for starter Mike Coker in the fifth inning and finished out the game to get credit for his second win without a loss.

Grubbs opened the seventh inning with his third straight hit and after Leroy Lee fled out, Nate Colbert singled to move the rookie center fielder to second base.

Gaston then pounded losing pitcher Dock Ellis' first pitch into left field for the breaking hit and saddle the Pirates' left hander with his first loss in nine decisions against San Diego.

Ellis' season record was left at 1-2.

challenge archrival Shum, and then wear him down, after the pair rounded the final turn before the largest crowd in the history of Churchill Downs.

Some people, Pimlico's General Manager, Chick Lang, among them, had called Secretariat "the perfect horse."

A few, like his trainer "Frank" Pancho Martin, insisted Shum was better. The whole thing was settled in the stretch at Churchill Downs and it was Secretariat who had the muscle, the sinew and the final down-to-the-wire speed to get the job done.

He was backing up at the start and trailed the 12 other horses down the straightaway the first time, but he moved in front for the first time at the head of the stretch and streaked across the finish line in 1:59.40 to wipe out the previous Kentucky Derby record of two minutes flat set by Northern Dancer in 1964.

Thus did Secretariat accomplish three major things. He made everyone forget his upset defeat to Angle Light and Shum in the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct two weeks ago; he made trainer Lucien Laurin a winner two years in a row (Laurin trained Riva Ridge last year); and he also helped make it two in a row for Turcotte, who rode Riva Ridge a year ago.

The Meadow Stables' proud winner beat Shum thoroughly but did not disgrace Sigmund Sumner's second place finisher. Shum gave all he had and gave it generously and willingly under the urging of jockey Laffit Pincay Jr., but he simply was no match for the stronger, tougher Secretariat.

The crowd, which approached 140,000 and numbered at least 70,000 young people in the infield, making it look sometimes like another Woodstock, saw Secretariat languish 11th at the quarter-mile mark, then move up to sixth after a half-mile, fifth at three-quarters and second at the mile before finally going to the front in the stretch.

The fans roared their approval as Secretariat clearly illustrated his superiority over Shum, who was eight lengths ahead of Our Native at the finish of the grueling contest. Forego was fourth.

Secretariat carried the blue and white silks of Meadow Stables to its second straight triumph in the race every horseman dreams of winning only once.

Insofar as Laurin and Turcotte are concerned, only three other trainers and jockeys previously scored back-to-back Derby "doubles." Ben Jones saddled Citation and Ponder for their victories in 1948-49, Jones' son Jimmy did the same thing with Iron Liege and Tim Tam in 1957-58 and Leroy Dick Thompson had a pair of winners two years straight with Burgoo King and Brokers Tip 40 years ago in 1932-33.

Many derby records broken

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Secretariat's time of 1:59.40 for the 1 1/4-mile Kentucky Derby was not the only record set at Churchill Downs Saturday.

The crowd of 139,376 was the largest in the history of the race, topping the 130,564 in attendance last year. They bet $7,927,945 on the 10-race program, topping last year's total of $7,164,717, and the $3,284,962 they wagered on the Kentucky Derby itself was more than the $2,885,325 in 1972.

It was the first time in the 99-year history of the race that the same owner (Meadow Stable), jockey (Ron Turcotte) and trainer (Lucien Laurin) scored victories two years in a row.

And Secretariat was credited with the fastest final quarter mile ever—23.15 seconds, beating "Whirlaways"—24 seconds for the last part of the race.

Soda Springs man takes early lead in Buhl amateur tourney

BUHL — Mike Merrill of Soda Springs proved the only man in the 116-man field capable of lequalling par Saturday as he took the early in the annual Buhl amateur golf tournament.

Merrill will carry a one-shot lead over George Sweet of Parma into final day Sunday when the championship flight will play 27 holes. All other flights will settle their placements with 18 holes.

Twin Falls golfers were only a step behind. They included Don Hubert, Gary Jenkins, Dr. Ed Allison and Doyle Morrill.

Third flight leader was Ken McClain of Twin Falls who had the biggest lead Saturday night. His 82 gave him a two-stroke advantage over Bud McNealey of Buhl, Bob Hayden, Shorty Worman and Bob White, all at 84.

In the fourth flight, Vern Everett and Stan Jones were deadlocked at 89 while George Sazy had 90, Bob Weaver Sr. had 92 and Dave Monroe fired a 93.

Charlton stars as Bruins romp to fourth loop title

Coach Jerry Kleinkopf's Twin Falls Bruins, headed by senior Pat Charlton, struggled off the best of the Southern Idaho Conference could muster with plenty to spare Friday evening and sped to a fourth straight league track championship.

The Bruins, in a wind-blown meet without a double winner, scored a huge 90 points and suffered a couple of setbacks.

With the weatherman again betraying with a weird east wind that allowed only two records, Charlton, who was running for Bull last year, turned in the best efforts by beating the wind in the mile for a career best 4:30.7 and coming back with an anchor on the medley that ate up a 10-yard deficit and turned it into a 25-yard victory.

Twin Falls dominated the relays and would have won all four if not for a horrendous final exchange that took the Bruins out of a seven-yard lead and into second place by inches.

Lee pitches Sox past Twins

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Lehigh Bill Lee, making only the sixth start of his five-year career pitched 10 even innings and Reggie Smith had three hits and drove in two runs to lead the Boston Red Sox to a 4-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

without competition, Charlton missed the record only by a second.

Bruce Cooper went out in his series with Idaho Falls junior Harold Cook, Cooper taking the quarter-mile in 50.2, an inch sub-60 seconds without the win. Cooper also broke the mile relay into a big lead on the third leg and Cook ran the heck out of the anchor for Idaho Falls to take second ahead of third-place Borah, which had the best in-state time.

Bruce premier middle distanceman Gary Sievers was a picture of dejection as he again surveyed the wind-blown track. "I'll leave this high school without ever getting a decent record," said the youngster. "I don't feel right today and I'm not mentally ready. There's only two chances left for good weather track days.

"Probably the best day I'll see will be at Portland," he continued referring to the Rose Festival track meet June 9 which will pit the top two finishers in each state event from Idaho, Washington and Oregon.

The youngster went out on the track and turned the half in 2:00.7, three seconds off his best and about six under what he anticipates doing on a good day.

He also anchored the winning mile and 800-yard relays to wind up his "off" day.

The east wind meant the pole vaulters, long jumpers, triple jumpers, all sprints and hurdles went into it along with the finishes on all other races.

That was enough to kill the record deal.

Schroeder of Meridian seeded 6-6, a picture of consistency at that height this spring, to break the record of 6-9 1/2 set by Bernard Schell, Minne. two years ago.

The other came in the triple jump — a new event where Davenport of Nampa went 43 feet, 4 1/2 inches.

Twin Falls had a couple of setbacks but also some bright spots. Brent Thompson was nipped by an inch by Borah's Terry Hutt in the long jump, Thompson having step problems and getting only 21-3.

The loss in the quarter-mile relay also was a surprise, particularly with Highland winning it. But in a happier note, junior Terry Hillman got a personal best of 51-3 for third in the shotput.

Scott Hansen held in for third in the half mile and soph Gary Miller followed his 13-9 best of last week with 13-6 for third in the pole vault.

Thompson successfully defended his 220-yard dash title by a matter of maybe two inches, about half of what he had to spare last year. John Blake had trouble in the pole vault but finally came through with the victory.

Minico's Ron Bair, the favorite in the discus on his 167-foot throw last week, couldn't find the rhythm Friday and wound up fourth. Spartan Roy Young won a heat in the 100-yard dash qualifying in 10.1 but also wound up fourth in the finals.

Capital was the runner-up spot as Caldwell, the defending champion, and Highland were expected to be the chief competition.

In the end Twin Falls had 206, Capital 208, Caldwell 300, Nampa, head by medalist John Bell at one-over 60, 304, Minne. making its best showing of the season, 311, Highland 312, Idaho Falls 320, Pocatello 325, Boise 326, Borah 327, Meridian 334 and Skyline

By one-tenth of a second

BLANKET FINISH in the 440-yard relay found Highland's Larry Kemp getting home ahead of Twin Falls' Bill Woodson in lanes one and two. It was the only relay Twin Falls didn't win en route to a fourth straight Southern Idaho Conference track title.

PAT CHARLTON, Twin Falls distance ace, hits the tape in 4:30.7 and victory in the Southern Idaho Conference track meet Friday evening. Charlton also anchored the medley victory as the Bruins won their fourth straight loop-of-crown.

Bruins regain SIC golf crown

The Twin Falls Bruins jumped back into the Southern Idaho Conference golf championship after a one-year absence by defeating Capital and Caldwell in a tight 12-team field.

Coach Reed Pfeifferle's Bruins now have won five of the last six SIC crowns and are pointed toward a repeat of their state championship.

Capital was rather a surprise in the runner-up spot as Caldwell, the defending champion, and Highland were expected to be the chief competition.

Scoring for Twin Falls were Kevin Backlund 71, Gary Duncan 77, Moyle Wilson 79, and Bruce McNece 78.

Minico scorers were Bruce Neibaur 81, Brad Gill 77, Alan Goodman 75, and Jerry Call 78.

Off-track bets hit new record

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dozens of Off-Track Betting Offices here were packed by "wall-to-wall people," according to an OTB spokesman, for the 99th running of the Kentucky Derby Saturday and a record OTB handle in excess of $4 million was expected for the entire day.

Crampton shoots 67 to nab 4-shot lead on Wadkins in Houston open

TF splits with Boise, Borah; Minico drops doubleheader

HOUSTON (UPI) — Bruce Crampton (UPI) — Bruce Crampton pulled a super putting round and an unbelievable wedge shot on No. 17 into a five-rod par 7 Saturday to take a four-shot lead over Lanny Wadkins after three rounds of the $205,000 Houston Open.

Crampton, going for his third tournament victory for the year and a prize that would make him the leading money winner on the PGA tour, made five birdie putts ranging from 15 to 45 feet.

But perhaps Crampton's best shot of all came when he saved

Stockton, after going out in one-over 37, came back with three birdies on the back side. He two-putted the par-5 10th hole from 35 feet, sank a five-footer on No. 18 and rolled in a 35-footer on the final hole.

Amateur Ben Crenshaw, who began the day in a tie for second place with Wadkins and Rick Massengale, shot an even par 72 and fell into a tie for fourth with Leonard Thompson, who shot a 69 Saturday. They were deadlocked at four-under 212.

Crampton, paying little attention to the 26-mile-an-hour winds, sank birdie putts of 15 feet on the first and 15th holes, rammed home a 20-footer on No. 5, a 40-footer on No. 7 and a 45-footer on No. 8.

When Crampton made his back-to-back long putts on the seventh and eighth holes Wadkins shook his head in amazement and Crampton told Stockton he left the green.

"I can't believe it."

After making the par-saving wedge shot on No. 17, the usually stolid Crampton blew a kiss to the large gallery.

Wadkins, trying to win his second tournament in a row, sank birdie putts of eight feet on the first and fifth holes and two-putted from 30 feet for a birdie on No. 7. He played the last 11 holes in even par.

Crenshaw, a University of Texas star who is a favorite of the local gallery, made an 18-foot putt on No. 2 and a 10-footer on No. 11. But he double bogeyed the ninth hole when he hit his approach shot into a bunker, blasted out and three-putted from 35 feet.

"Thompson, a sophomore on

The Twin Falls Bruins split with Borah and Boise while Minico fell twice Saturday in the final high school baseball regular season.

Borah topped Twin Falls 3-0 and then rallied for the seventh and eighth holes when he hit a 215-yard three iron to within 12 feet of the cup and made the putt.

Former Masters champ Charles Coody led a group of home Tuesday in the opening five players tied for sixth at 215. The others were Lee Elder, RMI Funcher, Richard Crawford and Ed Sneed.

Losers play Wednesday and the meet will continue through conclusion Friday. All games will start at 3:30 p.m.

Borah went ahead of Twin Falls in the fourth inning when Toriorica opened with a base on balls, was wild pitching to second and scored on Ashing's hit. In the fifth, singles by Maisen and Trotter and doubles from Quinnery and Joe Adams netted two more runs.

In the second game, Boise scored first when Schwarz walked and came around on Kendall's double in the sixth. Maxwell singled and rolled in Larsen's two-base hit.

Twin Falls tied it in the first as Denny Wentworth opened with a double and Mike Garcia and Dick Walker followed with singles. After Boise scored in the sixth, Twin Falls came back into the lead when Garcia and Walker led-off with hits. After a force out, John Wunderlich squeezed in the tying run and then Ross Deahl delivered the decisive run with a hit.

Mike Anderson took the win for Twin Falls, fanning 1 and walking two.

NCAA wrestling with growing changes in college athletics

By CHARLIE SMITH
UPI Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — College athletics are undergoing tremendous change and nowhere is it more apparent than within the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

NCAA members are juggling themselves for a special convention to be held Aug. 27 in Chicago. What they will approve or disapprove at that meeting could have a wide-spread effect on amateur athletics for decades to come.

The NCAA Council last week formulated a proposal to restructure the NCAA, based down to its basics. The proposal will set up three divisions in all sports.

Division I will be made up of the large institutions—Notre Dame, Southern California, etc. Division II will be smaller state institutions. And Division III will be small liberal arts colleges.

The proposal will allow each school to select its division by self-determination, except in football. The Football Statistics and Classification Committee already has determined 121 universities will compete in Division I football.

In order for the proposal to be adopted in August, a two-thirds majority will be needed to alter the NCAA Constitution. After that, a simple majority will be needed on any one issue.

The proposal will allow each division to adopt its own bylaws, but they will be subject to review by the NCAA Council and may be reconsidered by a two-thirds vote of all delegates.

Persistence of the Division I football powers suddenly decide to increase the number of football grants to some astronomical number, such a plan may be rescinded by the membership with a two-third vote.

On the other hand, if Division III chooses to grant scholarships on a need basis, they may do so without forcing their will on the other divisions.

Part of the proposal will provide a restructuring of the NCAA Council and Executive Committee. Each of the eight NCAA districts will be reconstituted. The Council will be composed of eight vice-presidents from Division I and three each from Division II and III.

Lou Spry of the NCAA office in Kansas City served as secretary for the Special Committee on Reorganization. Ed Sherman, athletic director at Muskingum (Ohio) College, was chairman of the committee.

Spry says he believes there could be three main objections to the proposal as it stands.

"The structure of the Council and Executive Committee probably will be one," says Spry. "The smaller institutions will want more representation."

"Another objection probably will be the self-determination factor. A number of Division I schools feel there should be no self-determination. They would want as few as 70 or 80 schools in Division I.

"The third objection is mostly theoretical. Some people are not really in favor of permitting a division to establish its own bylaws," especially when it allows them to liberalize bylaws. But that may be mostly an idealistic objection and not a practical one."

The NCAA Convention in January turned down a two-divisor plan. Of the NCAA's 710 voting members, there were a record 442 votes cast on that proposal. The vote was 218 for, 224 against, leaving the proposal at 77 votes short of the two-thirds required for passage.

Spry thinks the new proposal, with some possible amendments, has a good chance of passage.

"The plus in this plan is that in January the idea advanced was for only two divisions," says Spry. "By coming up with three divisions, this plan has become immediately more palatable to a great many members. Now we have the possibility of each division controlling its own destiny in a little better."

"The problem of so many members with such diverse interests agreeing on restructuring is immense. But there seems to be a minimum of problems in the new proposal."

And it does seem to possess what every school is looking for: The ability to allow a big-time football school to fill a 75,000 seat stadium and a small college to keep a careful eye on its budget.

Chambliss, Cleveland edge A's

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Chris Chambliss drove in four runs with a two-run homer and a double Saturday night to spark the Cleveland Indians to a 6-5 victory over the Oakland A's.

Chambliss, who had driven in only four runs all season including two on opening day, hit a two-run homer in the second to give the Indians a 2-1 lead and belted a two-out, two-run double in the eighth to wipe out a 5-4 Oakland edge.

The lead changed hands four times before the A's went ahead 5-4 on a two-run triple by Ray Sessa off reliever Ray Lamb in the sixth.

With two out in the eighth, Oakland reliever Harold Knowles walked pinch-hitter John Ellis and Dave Duncan singled to left. Chambliss then followed with his game-winning double.

Monzon KO's foe in fifth

ROME (UPI) — World middleweight champion Carlos Monzon of Argentina scored a fifth-round knockout over American Ray Dato of Cincinnati in a non-title fight at the Rome Sports Palace Saturday night.

Monzon, who entered the ring only hours after hearing news of his elder brother's death in Argentina, pounded Dato with a series of right and left hooks to the body and head, dropping him in the middle of their scheduled 10-round fight.

"The first round was slow with neither fighter showing any blows. But, crowded on by a sympathetic crowd of several thousand, Monzon picked up in the second round and dominated the fight from then on."

He used a series of body blows to the stomach, chest and ribs to send Dato to the ropes in the second round and kept up the pressure until a hook to the chin sent Dato to the canvas in the fifth.

The fight, the first one for Monzon in six months, was billed as a warm-up for his June 2 title defense against Emile Griffith in Monte Carlo.

Monzon entered the ring at 163.4 pounds and with "grief in his heart" over the news of his brother Zacarias, being shot to death Friday in Santa Fe, Argentina, manager Amilcar Brusca said.

Brusca said he broke the news to Monzon shortly before the weigh-in earlier Saturday. "He (Monzon) will mount the ring with death in his heart because he greatly loved his brother," Brusca said.

IOC chief wants to admit China

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — Lord Killanin, chairman of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) said after the meeting of the European Olympic Committee today that he would like the IOC to accept China as a member of the International games.

"He said no decision had been reached in connection with any acceptance of China into the IOC."

The Soviet Delegation to the 32 national meeting presented a request that Moscow be placed in consideration as a candidate for hosting the 1980 Summer Olympic games.

The European Committee ended its two-day meeting on the feasibility of establishing European games similar to Asian and Latin American Games.

Divers seek Inca gold

QUITO, Ecuador (UPI) — Two American divers started a search Friday for the fabled treasure of Atahualpa, the last Inca emperor whose people paid a $4 million ransom for him in 1532 in gold and silver bullion.

The search, sponsored by the United Corp. of Atlanta, Ga., is the latest in a series of attempts to find — if it exists — a treasure legend says was buried with Atahualpa after his execution by the Spanish conqueror Francisco Pizarro.

Divers Chris Christiansen and Clint Provost said they would film the depths of the icy-lamangnis Mountain lakes, about 90 miles east of Quito, as the first step in the search.

The search centers on the lakes because it was there a 16th-century Roman Catholic priest said, that Incas buried their treasure after discovering the Spaniards had killed Atahualpa.

The priest, Vicetto de Valverde, also drew a map of the area.

The treasure, de Valverde said, was accumulated to pay more ransom for their emperor. The Incas already had paid $1 million in bullion when Pizarro ordered Atahualpa burned as a pagan.

For centuries, adventurers have looked without success for the treasure and many of them died in the cold, foggy area.

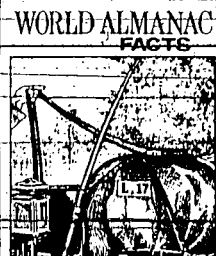

A Swede who formed a company three years ago and raised money from countrymen to finance a search for the treasure disappeared while trying to reach the lake area.

Christiansen and Provost said they would work underwater in an area situated in mountains 16,000 feet above sea level. Temperatures hover around freezing there and the area usually is shrouded in fog.

Joining them are five other men — an archeologist, cameraman, mountain climber, explorer and guide — plus 71 Ecuadorians to carry equipment and food. But most of them are present to film a documentary on the treasure legend rather than actually looking for it.

Originally, two other men planned to join the search, but both of them fell ill and were forced to turn back. One of them was James Mobley, an American, who was rescued by helicopter from a mountain top and flown to a Quito hospital.

Doctors said he was suffering from exhaustion.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

A legislator in northern West Germany recently proposed that horses have license tags attached to their harnesses for identification in case of accidents. However, the agricultural minister pleaded technical difficulties and added that he had never heard of a hit and run horse before.

The World Almanac notes that in the United States, there are approximately 10 million horses.

Something fishy here

LIVE OAK, Calif. (UPI) — Here's a fish story about that didn't get away — a 420-pound, nine-foot four-inch sturgeon.

"I thought it was a log," said angler Armand Beggett of Live Oak, who landed the fish this week near Grimes after a two-hour battle.

"I didn't believe it when I saw it come out of the water," he said. "It didn't give up for a while."

The fish was certified by warden ... of the State Fish and Game Department, who described it as a rod and reel record.

Beggett said he caught the monster on a 25-pound test the using sandline bait.

Nixon trip made Red trade easier

BUDAPEST, Hungary (UPI) — President Nixon's trip to Moscow made trading with the Soviet bloc easier, but it will take a long time before Communist and capitalist consumer markets are integrated, Western businessmen said today.

The President made joint industrial ventures between East and West possible, something practically unheard of before his visit, they said.

They made the remarks to UPI at a conference of 300 Western and Eastern businessmen called to give them an "ideal opportunity to do business and to trade (both ideas and goods)," according to the organizers.

Robert S. Leaf, president of Marsteller International, a U.S. public relations firm which has dealt extensively with Eastern Europe, said, "before President Nixon's visit there was practically no such thing as joint ventures between American and Communist countries."

A "joint venture" means a Western company builds a plant in a Communist country and markets its product in a third country. Conference sources said the Firestone Tire Co. has signed a new joint venture agreement with Romania.

As an example, he cited an alleged threat by the auto industry to shut down unless the 1975 anti-pollution standards were postponed. The EPA decision was based largely on fear that an assembly line shutdown would cause economic disruptions.

"It came down to brute economic force," Nader said.

Nader says tax auto makers for pollution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader suggested Friday that the auto industry be taxed for polluting the air.

Nader said the industry's failure to develop a pollution-free engine stemmed from a "managerial mentality" that says "we've got it made with the internal combustion engine and we aren't going to sell any more cars if we clean it up."

Testifying before a Senate Commerce subcommittee, Nader criticized the government decision to grant the auto industry a one-year delay in meeting the 1975 exhaust emission standards and said now a tax should be provided on the excess of auto emissions over the original 1975 standards.

Last month, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) granted the industry an additional year to meet the 1975 standards, but set strict interim standards.

Nader also suggested a tax on gas consumption as a way of cutting pollution. The revenue, he said, could be used for a government-financed program to help develop less polluting engines.

Nader further argued that Congress must break up a "technological conspiracy" in the industry.

Bad shoring caused Utah overpass fall

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — An inspection by the Utah Industrial Commission Safety Division has concluded that faulty erection of tubular steel shoring was responsible for the collapse of a highway overpass Tuesday near Point-of-the-Mountain.

Martell Ellis, administrator of the Occupational Health and Safety Act, said the shoring was not erected according to manufacturer's specifications and consequently could not support the weight of the structure.

The shoring was manufactured by Superior Scaffold Co. and purchased by the contractor, W. W. Kley Construction Co., through Ken Savage Co. of Salt Lake City.

The population of California should reach 22 million by 1980.

Soviet Union steps up nerve war with China

BEIJING (DPA-UPI) — The Soviet Union is stepping up its war of nerves with China through massive troop reinforcements along the border, according to latest reports from diplomatic sources here.

Over the past few months the Soviets have added some 50,000 soldiers to their garrisons in their Asian republics and Mongolia, now totaling 45 divisions in that area, the sources said.

If the figures are correct, then more than one-third of all Soviet ground forces are stationed along the Chinese border, triple the amount at the time of the bloody border skirmishes in Ussuri in 1969.

The sources said they learned the Soviet Union also built five new atomic rocket launchers near the border, bringing their number to 19.

The Chinese, on the other hand, also show increased evidence of preparing for the Russian threat.

Gem program aides blind

Air charge set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Beginning May 12 many airline passengers will pay a surcharge of 25 cents per ticket to defray the cost of armed guards under the government's antihijacking program.

The Civil Aeronautics Board CAB approved the charge Thursday for United, Eastern, National, Trans World, Braniff and Allegheny airlines. It is in addition to a 3-cent per ticket surcharge approved in March for airport screening of baggage and passengers.

Other airlines are expected to ask for the new surcharge also.

"Devil's children" torture, kill youth

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Gus Gramatikos was smoking his cigarette in a long holder, watching the ocean crash against the sand outside his beach arcade, and talking about the boy he knew for three weeks before he was tortured to death.

"Those kind of people are nameless," said the man who had befriended a 17-year-old youth who fell victim to a satanic cult. "They come and they go and who knows who they are."

Michael Ross Cochran had worked for Gramatikos, making change for the pinball and pool table patrons, before he was lured to a nearby two-story brick house known as "The Roach Haven" among the kids who hang around Daytona's beachfront.

That was last weekend.

Cochran's mutilated body was found Wednesday in some woods near Osteen south of here. Police are holding seven youths, including two girls, on charges of first degree murder.

Police say Cochran was tortured and sacrificed on a makeshift altar by youthful black magic cultists who call themselves the "devil's children."

According to police, Cochran was chained, beaten, jabbed with broken bottles, probed with needles and finally clubbed with a pine log, possibly because he was suspected of being an informer.

In the boarding house at 27 North Grandview Ave., known as a "crash pad" for transient youths, they found an "altar room" in the basement with chains hanging from the walls, which were splashed with red and black paint and witchcraft symbols.

Among the seven charged with first degree murder were Cindy Black, 17, of Rexdale, Ont.; and Howard Waellus, 19, of Detroit, who went before county Judge Norton Josephson Thursday.

"I can't face saying anything to my mother," said Waellus, wearing long hair and an acrid fatigue jacket.

Miss Black, who had a Confederate flag sewn on the seat of her jeans, also said she didn't want her parents to know.

Cindy's parents, contacted in Rexdale, a Toronto suburb, said she was a good student before she took to running away from home and reading books about witchcraft.

"I told her people who believed that were mixed up," Mrs. Black said. "She didn't argue it too much. But she still had the book (on witchcraft) the last time she was home."

The judge set bond at $50,000 each for the two.

Also charged in the slaying are Kenneth Francis, 17, of Pope Air Force Base, N.C.; Charles M. Paige, 21, who gave the "Roach Haven" address as his home; Deborah Ann Shook, 22, of Washington, N.J.; John J. Colbert, 18, whom police said was a transient; and Steven Arthur Skages, 21, of Petersburg, Va.

Jean's summer

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jean Stapleton — Edith in "All In The Family" — will spend the summer appearing in stock productions of "Time of the Cuckoo" and "The Glass Menagerie" for husband Bill Putsch.

Selection asked for wise men

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The United States and Europe should appoint "two wise men" to size up their problems before negotiations begin on a new Atlantic Charter, Jean Monnet, the "father of Europe," said Friday.

"If this work is done, then the difficulties will be cut down to size, some of them will prove to be quite secondary and the necessary negotiations can be pursued in a changed climate," Monnet told newsmen after a meeting of his Action Committee for the United States of Europe.

Monnet, 81, is French by nationality and European by career. His action committee, acting as a pressure group, fostered the birth of the European Common Market and its growth since then, and he "wields" great persuasive authority in Europe.

On Friday, he appeared before newsmen at Common Market headquarters and, his voice hoarse with bronchitis and his green eyes blinking weakly in the television lights, urged America and Europe to "avoid recommitments."

He said Europe must "respond actively" to the Atlantic charter speech April 23 by presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, who called for a common approach to Western problems.

"There is no reason why they should not start now," he said, adding that the assessment should be finished before President Nixon's European trip next autumn.

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Commission for the Blind, through training and rehabilitation programs, in its first five years has more than doubled the number of blind persons in Idaho who read braille.

When the commission started in late 1967 there were fewer than 25 persons in the state who could read braille. The commission programs have increased that to 60.

But the commission, having outgrown its original quarters in a house across from the statehouse and relocated in the old St. Alphonsus Residence Hall, is not in danger of running out of work.

There are 650 known blind persons in the state and estimates based on population projects place the number of blind at 1,500 to 1,800 in Idaho.

"When people see the productivity of people coming out of the center and the jobs we get for them more people will want training," said Kenneth N. Hopkins, commissioner.

More than 50 persons have received commission training with 20 of them entering competitive employment and 14 going on to colleges or technical schools.

The trainees have taken jobs as x-ray technicians, auto mechanics and homemakers. One man is a carpenter-farmer-handyman, another is a foundry worker while a third works in a cement mix factory. One graduate of the training center is an assembly worker in a Maryland piano factory.

A woman graduate of the center works with the commission as a traveling teacher for blind persons who cannot attend the center for training.

The students at the center learn braille and touch typing for communication, cane travel for personal mobility and home management to take care of themselves and their families. They also have philosophy classes to learn to deal with the misconceptions society has about blindness.

The move to new quarters made possible expanding the center program to include living quarters for students and a model apartment for the home ec courses. The new facilities also include an industrial arts shop "with all the equipment a man would need to build things," Hopkins said.

The power tools are equipped with only the standard safety features installed at the manufacturers.

Hopkins and students stay at the center from three and a half to 12 months, with the average staying about seven months.

The cost for seven months of training in Idaho is about $4,800 which compares to the $15,700 per month cost for programs in other states.

Because it is a state commission, students pay for the training according to their financial abilities.

TF composer learns about copying intricacies

TF music teacher

MRS. FRANK FONDA, longtime Twin Falls music teacher of voice, piano and organ, enjoys her concert model organ in her living room. She has just completed copyright application forms for a vocal number she has composed.

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — A longtime Twin Falls music teacher is discovering the intricacies of copyrighting.

Mrs. Frank Fonda has composed an after-prayer response to be sung a cappella. The four-part voice arrangement is in process of being published, but the copyright aspect, she is learning, is more complicated than it first appears.

She says it entails seemingly endless filling out of forms and just when she thinks the task is done, she finds another detail is requested, but she completed the task this week.

For any potential copyright applicant, she advises the application is sent to the Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. Mrs. Fonda says a publishing firm in New England is interested in producing her work, once the legal details on the copyright are completed.

The composer, who has taught voice, piano and organ for 32 years, showed her interest in music early in life. She began teaching while in high school, which she completed at age 18.

She recalls her father told her, "If it's music that you want, music it will be," but he was determined she would have the best training available, which she feels she received at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.

She studied for two years with Dr. Minor C. Baldwin, London, concert organist of world-wide fame, and studied piano with Garwood and Oldberg, both of whom studied repeatedly in Europe. Her voice study has been with Prof. Grant Schafer, Knopp and Walter Allen Stillts.

A native of Whiteside County, near Sterling, Ill., where her father was a veterinarian, she completed work for her B.A. in three years at Northwestern University, where she has since received two honorary degrees.

Later she did post-graduate work toward a master's degree at both her alma mater and Columbia.

After her graduation from college, at the age of 19, she supervised music in the public schools in the Midwest for 17 years. She worked in Iowa, Wisconsin, Indiana and Minnesota and her last position before her marriage in 1937 was in the Tri-City area at Peru, Ill. During these years she taught private lessons in the evenings and she has continued private teaching in her home through the years.

After their marriage the couple came to Twin Falls when Mr. Fonda was detailed here as a resident engineer inspector for federal projects. She recalls they did not intend to stay, but 36 years later she is still enthusiastic about the area.

During her many years of teaching, Mrs. Fonda says she has stressed the structural side of music, such as harmony and counterpoint as well as instrumental and vocal composition.

She also exposes her students to transposing and ensemble playing as well as studying the form of the music over which they strive.

She has applied church and liturgical music with Prof. Arno Oldberg and Pastor Christian Lufkin of Vienna, Germany and later of Chicago. She has served as organist in several local churches.

She feels that getting students to analyze the so-called structural aspect of the notes, such as the chord formation, makes it easier for them to understand and memorize the pieces.

One of the greatest satisfactions she receives from her many years of working with music students in all three categories is the great number who continue their musical endeavors, let alone the knowledge she has helped create an interest which will net lifetime enjoyment.

There is never a holiday when she does not hear from some of her former students.

Mrs. Fonda has the rather rare talent, which is considered a natural gift, and cannot be taught, of possessing absolute pitch.

The importance music plays in her life is evident in her living room with its large concert model organ with two large tone cabinets and her Baldwin grand piano.

During our interview, she improvised at the organ, pleasing not only the writer, but getting rapt attention from her pet Pomeranian who is her constant companion especially since her husband's death.

The composer feels a deep debt to her parents for the quality education they provided for her in her chosen field although she said they were "conformists." Her mother sang and she said her parents were good listeners.

She said in looking back over her life she feels she has used the talents which God has given her to the best of her ability. Ho many pupils, as well as friends, will agree.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 24-year-old single girl and have my own apartment. When I go out on a date and we wind up the evening at a rather late hour, the fellow will start with, "Man, am I ever tired. You're lucky you don't have to drive clear across town to get home tonight."
I usually say something like, "I sure am," whereupon they feel snubbed and get even less subtle and start pressuring me to let them sleep on my couch, etc., etc.

Too tired for drive

Abby, that kind of situation makes me feel uncomfortable, but I really haven't hit upon a nice way of saying, "Sorry, but no." Then again I wonder what harm there would be in letting them sleep on my couch. I do feel sorry for them because they ARE tired, and it is a long drive across town. Can you help?

TURNING THEM OUT INTO THE COLD

DEAR TURNING: Don't let anyone get THAT tired. Before his indicator starts pointing toward a place to sleep, thank him for the lovely evening and turn 'n. Alone.

DEAR ABBY: My brother and his wife have six lovely children. The three oldest are young men, all over 21. The other three are girls in their teens.

My sister in law reminds me of some kind of insect I have read about. They eat their young.

She is constantly subjecting her children to the third degree. She even demands to know exactly what was said and done when any of her adult sons have been in the company of a female from 14 to 70 years of age. She goes thru their mail, wallets, purses, and she even listens in on their telephone conversations. (She brags about it.)

Don't say her husband should take a stand. He is afraid to open his mouth to her.

It is painful for me to see this possessive and dominating woman emasculate her sons and drive her daughters away from her. Is there anything I can do?

CONCERNED UNCLE

DEAR UNCLE: If she won't listen to her husband, she won't listen to you. But do offer your friendship and understanding to your niece and nephews. They need someone they can trust and respect.

DEAR ABBY: I am beginning to plan my wedding. Mother and I disagree on the list of wedding guests.

Mother says I must ask all my aunts, uncles, and cousins. This includes all my PARENTS' aunts, uncles, and cousins, too. And all their children! I could stumble over most of my parents' aunts, uncles, and cousins and not even know them. Why must I ask them to my wedding?

It is a small church and I have to consider the groom's family. If they were to invite as many from their side as we invited from our side, we couldn't all get into the church. This whole thing is making me very nervous. Please send me some advice before I elope and settle the matter.

NERVOUS BRIDE

DEAR NERVOUS: Use a little psychology and suggest that your mother use a little arithmetic: How many people will the church accommodate? The groom's side is entitled to half those seats. Naturally, the "immediate" relatives are on the top of the list. Exp off the list at the bottom. Now, wasn't that simple?

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, E. A., Calif. 90068. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Select swimwear now

TWIN FALLS — Right now is the best time to select your swim wear wardrobe.

This year the swim look is natural with few firm bra cups; most are styled with soft bras.

Some new swim wear ideas are:

Argyle plaid nylon knit with trim coverup with dolman sleeves, a bikini, a maillot, long skirt and abbreviated jumpsuit.

The tennis look suit with flared skirt in white birdseye print.

A patterned textured nylon knit in a dressy coverup, simple sun suit, a maillot, a bra dress, a jumpsuit, and a bikini with elegant long skirt.

black or red with white. Bikinis have a new look with halter tops, bold buckles and mingled colors. Ribs looks appear as do stripes, eyelet trim and smocks.

A beach accessory might be a cotton cheer shirt, a halter neckline snoodsweeper, or patterned pant with matching midriff.

SALMON — Tippy gets so lonesome he climbs ladders just to be with people. The dog belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Goodell, Rt. 1, Salmon.

"Tippy" learned to climb ladders just recently, turning up on top of a haystack from which Goodell was removing hay. The dog had climbed the same ladder as Goodell.

The Goodells said the dog became lonesome when their son, Randy, and daughter, Rena, went off to college last fall and left the animal without their companionship.

"The dog just can't stand to be left alone, so tags along everywhere we go," Mrs. Goodell explained.

When Goodell climbs atop the haystack the dog jumps up behind him.

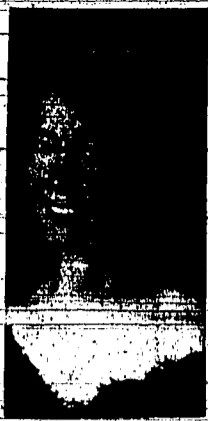

The past week, Goodell was assisting roofers put on new shingles on his house. It wasn't long before "Tippy" turned up beside him on the roof.

It's easier for the dog to climb up than climb down, but he's mastering that too. Generally he jumps from the haystack but had to have a little assistance getting off the roof.

Lately, "Tippy" has taken to riding the tractor with Goodell and is unhappy whenever he gets out of sight. The Goodells acquired "Tippy," a mongrel, as a pup from a neighbor three years ago.

All sorts of strange things happen in match point duplicate. West's three-diamond bid was the first oddity. He should have been really happy to let East play three clubs.

South should have been just as happy to let West struggle with three diamonds. It would have been a struggle and an unsuccessful one, but South couldn't let well enough alone. He bid three spades.

East doubled. West opened the king of hearts. A trump shift at this point or a heart continuation followed by a trump shift would have left South two tricks short of his doubled contract, but for reasons known only to himself West shifted to the queen of clubs.

East thought a white went up with his ace and led back a club for his partner to ruff. West's lead could only be explained as a singleton.

This looked like money from home to South. Could he make his contract after this help?

He thought a white and played out dummy's ace and six of trumps. He wanted to be able to discard one of dummy's diamonds on his king of clubs and felt he had to play two rounds of trumps for that play to work.

East rose with his king of trumps and could have settled South's hand by leading his last trump, but East had what he thought was a better idea. He led a diamond.

South rose with the ace, discarded a diamond on his king of clubs, cashed the diamond king, ruffed his last diamond—and made his impossible contract.

A Lovelier You

ABOUT DEPILATING LEGS

By Mary Sue Miller

As the weather warms, a lovely's fancy turns to sun suits and swim suits. The little nothings.

A bit of leg grooming obviously is in order. It begins with a stepped-up depilation program. Constant watchfulness is called for, because no method offers permanent results except electrolysis. And that's a bit of a deal for so extensive a territory as the legs.

As a rule, shaving makes a clean sweep of the legs in the shortest time. Electric and cordless shavers, designed for feminine use, have a pleasant and effective action. Applications of pre-shave lotion precede electric shaving. Of course you may use a safety razor, as long as the blade goes unrusty and the legs are prepared with a soapy lather or shaving cream. Try a minty one. Repetition depends on the rate of regrowth. It should take place the moment you appear.

Giving longer-lasting results, cream, liquid or spray chemical depilatories dissolve the hair shaft below the skin's surface. First use requires a patch test. The process takes about 15 minutes and may be repeated upon 1/8" regrowth.

Then there's waxing. It takes the most time and lasts the longest of the methods. Do-it-yourself kits are available at cosmetic counters. But for the inexperienced it's a salon operation. Re-waxing requires a workable growth at present. It is rumored, however, that new methods now in the laboratory stage may change all that.

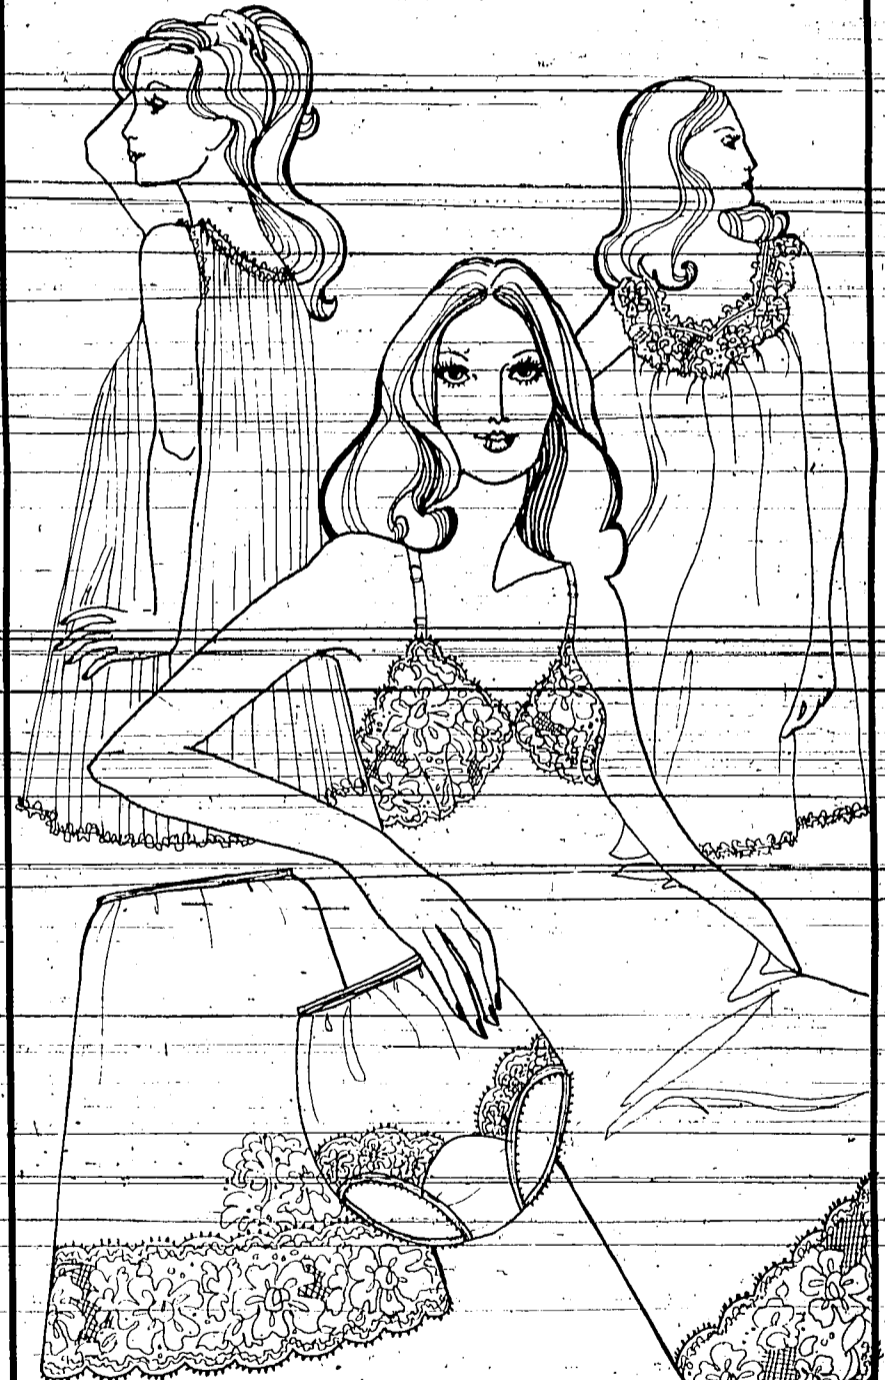

Anyhow, fuzz-free and lotion-full are the bywords of a summer leg.

STRICTLY PERSONAL

Everything you need to know about deodorants, anti-perspirants and depilatories is contained in my leaflet, STRICTLY PERSONAL. All doubts are cleared up about why, what, when and how to use these safeguards of femininity. For your copy, write to Mary Sue Miller in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 15 cents in coin.

Select for style mileage

TWIN FALLS — Whenever you're buying something this spring, ask yourself a question: Will this dress, skirt or whatever, dress up or down and go with almost anything I own?

Clothes that say yes to these questions will give you real fashion mileage.

To find them, look for a relaxed natural ease, clean simple lines, and good fabric.

Imagine buying a wool and rayon sweater set. Layer the cardigan casually over a vest and sporty polka dot dickey.

Button the cardigan over pale pants.

Add a blazer and white skirt with the vest to make the look sleek and easy.

Wear the vest alone for the sexy, bare, lots of skin look. Add a long skirt for the festive feeling.

Other items for the put-together look might include: The shirt jacket worn over ribbed pullover and blouse with striped pants.

The pants suit in white with a cardigan jacket over navy blue and white skirt.

A V-neck jacket in plaid with contrasting pants and ribbed turtleneck.

Judges selected

THREE Twin Falls women who belong to the two Toastmasters clubs in the city will serve as judges for the annual Roaders' Digest Boy Scout speaking contest at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Scout Service Center. The judges from Jell include Eleanor Burkhardt and Virginia Eldridge of the Twin Falls Toastmasters club and Mary Sharp, Magic club.

Meatless menus requested

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dried beans and peas were bellringers during the April local boycott, apparently because of an undesired reputation as fattening food.

The central office of the city Health Department's Nutrition Bureau was deluged with phone calls from New Yorkers seeking not only low-cost meatless menus but also reassurance that they wouldn't gain weight on a diet using dried legumes as meat substitutes.

Nutritionist Barbara Premo said the central office usually receives about 100 requests a week for diet and menu advice. The number jumped to 1,000 the week of the boycott and most asked about the starchy bean business.

In an interview, Miss Premo added that a lot of callers seemed surprised to learn that money-saving meat substitutes were better for them than the meat they had been eating.

The calorie news was equally good. The bureau's chart for many common varieties of food lists an average of only 113 calories for a 1/2-cup serving of cooked dried beans or peas, compared with an average of 240 calories for a 3-ounce serving of beef, ham or lamb, or even 165 calories average for a 3-ounce serving of such lower meats as veal, liver and chicken.

A 1/2-cup serving of dried legumes also has about the same average calorie count as 1/2 cup of potato, another vegetable whose fattening image is undesired. One small ear of corn or a 1/2-cup serving of rice or peas is in the same class, she added.

"The vegetables aren't fattening—it's the butter and gravy you put on them as well as the amount you eat."

Miss Premo cautioned against relying on dried beans alone for protein because their protein content is partial, and should be supplemented with higher quality ones such as skim milk, cottage cheese, part skim ricotta cheese, chicken or fish.

"You could sprinkle cheese on beans or cook them with fish or chicken," she said. "Add cabbage salad, a slice of whole grain or enriched bread, and fresh fruit for a meal that costs less than 50 cents serving at today's prices."

A 1/2-cup serving of cabbage, before dressing is added, averages only 10 calories. A whole cup of asparagus, lettuce or chlorey averages the same.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

Babies that weigh less than 5.5 pounds at birth grow up to be slightly less intelligent than heavier infants. Or such be the claim of a team of Scottish scientists who studied the statistics on 11,000 people in the city of Aberdeen.

Your heart and mine tend to beat slower when we lie down, that's true. But an elephant's heart beats about 20 per cent slower when said elephant is standing up.

On the job, that's where the single girl is most likely to meet a future matrimonial mate, surveys show. In fact, 44 out of every 100 wives first encountered their husbands at work.

Am asked what sort of wages the Pony-Express riders earned about 5 cents a mile. Added up to maybe $4 per day. One child in every 10 is either a half or a full orphan.

CRIME TRAIN

Time somebody made a movie of the "high" express train from West Germany to Yugoslavia. A crime spree, that one. Robbery, rape and murder in the Austrian Alps. Police don't patrol it, correspondents say. Passengers are usually well-heeled, if not rich. As night comes on, caddy clack, hoodlums work the compartments, taking the cash, leaving the bruised and bloody.

Q "Isn't it a fact that every person known to be at least 100 years old has been married?" A Not quite. About one out of every 50 such citizens is either a lifelong bachelor or spinster.

If you are an average taxpayer, sir, bear in mind you contribute $20 a year to help pay for the government's birth control operation, all right?

KLEPTOMANIA

True kleptomania is relatively rare, no doubt you know. But when it does occur in a man, it tends to compel him to steal not everything he can get his hands on, but only one type of object. Male kleptos specialize, usually. Watch-watches. Or monkey wrenches. Or pocket knives. Most peculiar.

Certain New Guinea tribesmen—the latmulis, to be specific regard a woman who can't cry on command to be handicapped. Those latmul girls are trained, in fact, to cry at a given signal.

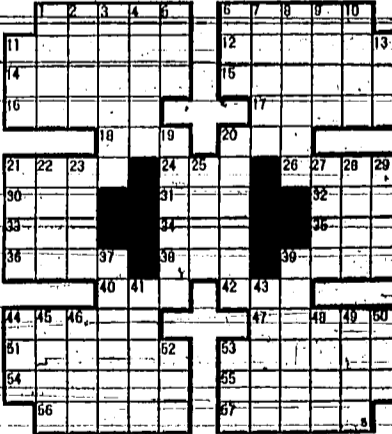

Tricky beast, the skunk. Doesn't much care for the taste of caterpillar hair. So it rolls that luzzy critter on the ground until all the hair is worn off before eating it.

Why girls remain ticklish until a later age than do boys I can't explain, but Wayne State University researchers insist such be the case.

Commissioners' mileage?

Question: Do you think the Twin Falls County commissioners should be given mileage to and from work while their employees are not.

Harold Arthan:
I don't really know because they don't have to live in town. Perhaps they should be paid mileage, but not if the county employees aren't.

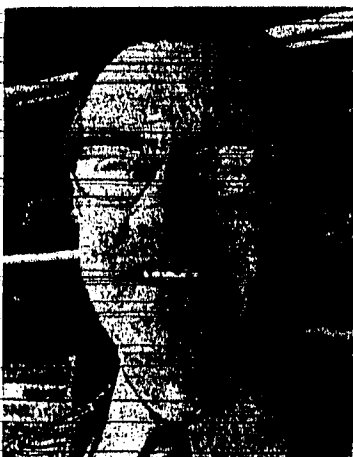

Burt Hulsh:
I'd never thought about it, but I don't see why not. The travel to and from work is part of the job for them. They do a good service to the county.

Vance Petersen:
Of course not. I don't get paid mileage to and from work. For business purposes, I think it's all right, but not for that.

Mrs. Jewel Chandler:
No, I don't think so. My husband is a salesman and he doesn't get mileage to and from work. Why should they. They shouldn't get more than the average worker.

Rev. James Hughes:
I think it's questionable in terms of what is allowed for other county employees. One of my reasons is that there would only be a minority of workers who would get this. Very few people are reimbursed for traveling to and from work.

Mrs. Bill Reed:
I really don't think so. Their employees probably work for less. Why shouldn't they receive mileage if the commissioners do. They should be reimbursed too.

'Artrain' cultural visit nears

Mayor beautifies

TWIN FALLS MAYOR John Christoffersen plants shrubbery to beautify the old Union Pacific depot site for the arrival of the Artrain Friday. Any group interested in caring for the shrubbery as a project during the train's stay in Twin Falls is asked to call 733-6000.

Display readied

JAMES CHUPA READIES a pottery display and demonstration for the Artrain studio. He will work with slab and thrown pottery, using an electric potter's wheel. Area artists will demonstrate for those touring the train. Tours are planned at ten minute intervals, from 6 p.m. May 11 until the train's departure, May 14.

TWIN FALLS — The Artrain, a national cultural display will be in Twin Falls May 11-14.

The public is invited to tour the traveling creative museum and demonstration center at Union Pacific tracks on Shoshone Street South at the site of the recently moved UP depot.

Local artists will display their works and demonstrate arts and crafts techniques from one section of the train which serves as a studio. Visitors to the demonstrations may view the artist at work and will be invited to discuss techniques and media with them.

No admission will be charged for the 40 minute tours planned for each 10 minutes during the days that the Artrain is in Twin Falls, according to Mrs. Pat Aeree, area publicity chairman for the project which is sponsored by the Magic Valley Art Guild, the American Association of University Women, and private individuals.

Mrs. Cecil Andrus, honorary Idaho state chairman of the exhibit will join city officials and Twin Falls Artrain committee members in a tour of the train and a reception in her honor at 4 p.m. Friday. The tour will be conducted by Frances Watland, chairman, and members of the Twin Falls Art Guild.

At 6 p.m. Friday, Mrs. Andrus will cut the ribbon opening the Artrain to the public. The Twin Falls High School stage band will play for the event.

The Artrain includes four sections: "A Vision of Creativity," with a slide review of the history of man's creative efforts, a chamber of art objects from several cultures and a border of flashing color transparencies of nature; "A Vision of Man" includes a slide program and gallery on pioneering in modern art, art concepts in visual display and color transparencies illustrating design and environmental objects, the "Vision of Art" car of the train is a gallery of contemporary art, western art and crafts."

Local artists who will participate in Artrain demonstrations are: pottery, Marcelle Purker, James Chupa, James Winder, William Brady, Diane and Aldrich Bowler, Cheryl Herr; weaving, Peggy Sass, Lorraine Reese, Castleford, Gloria Hamm, Buhl; Macrae, Chupa, Lorna Anderson, Buhl; Carolyn Bowler, Fairfield; Joann Burke, Joann Holloway.

Julie makes big 'jump'

Famed archer Fred Bear stalks elk in Montana, outdoorsman Lee Wulff goes channel bass fishing and actress Julie Newmar makes her first parachute jump on the ABC's "The American Sportsman," hosted by Curt Gowdy today.

The color cameras will follow Fred Bear, who has hunted all over the globe — including the great African elephant — with bow and arrow.

Accompanying Bear will be teenager Mike Mason of Grayling, Mich. As they stalk a herd of elk on a prairie in Montana, Bear passes on his knowledge of this ancient art of hunting to another generation of outdoorsmen.

The elk, which Bear feels is one of the most beautiful trophies in the world, roamed the prairie until the advance of man forced it to seek refuge in the forest.

Thanks to Montana's game and fish department, the elk have been returned to the prairie under the protection of the department and are now thriving.

"American Sportsman" accompanies outdoorsman Lee Wulff to Wreck Island, just off Virginia's east shore, near the town of Oyster. Traveling with Wulff to the island will be "Sports Afield" magazine's salt water fishing editor, Tom Paugh.

Another segment features actress Julie Newmar, who became interested in sky diving when she appeared in a motion picture with a sky diving sequence that she wasn't permitted to participate in because of contractual technicalities. She enthusiastically watched a stunt girl play her role. Since then, she has had a growing desire to make a jump.

A member of an athletic family (her father was a football coach at Los Angeles, City College), Miss Newmar looks forward to her first dive and feels absolutely no fear at the prospect of jumping from a plane.

In Glendale, Calif., Bob Sinclair, a jump master at Paraclete Associates, teaches Miss Newmar the techniques of falling, landing, exiting and pulling the risers (which direct the parachute to the drop zone), and the capabilities of the equipment.

After on-the-ground training, Miss Newmar makes a static-line jump and is "talked down" via ground radio. Her first jump is executed flawlessly, and she explains her lack of fear with a unique philosophy.

For her, the air into which she plummets is energy — a positive force she likens to a giant mattress. If one does what is technically correct, without trying to fight this energy, the air will serve as a support. She simply lets go, confident that she has mastered enough technique and that the energy she falls into will take care of the rest.

Monkey business at the wedding

It was not that the groomsmen was up to mischief, but Jim and Ladonna Davis' marriage ceremony three years ago was sheer monkey business. Their chimpanzee Mow, now age six, was a member of the wedding.

The Davises, who live in West Covina, Calif., and are rearing Mow, who won't be mature until age 10, with love, attention and pride, are part of the panorama on "It Takes a Lot of Love," a special depicting the love between people and pets, to be broadcast Thursday, May 3, on the CBS Television Network.

Asked if the prospect of living with Mow might have dissuaded Ladonna from marriage, Davis replied that instead of throwing a monkey wrench into their plans, the chimpanzee was a deciding factor in the marriage.

"I had had Mow for two years before I proposed, and Ladonna and I had known one another 11 years," Davis said. "So she was well acquainted with Mow, and she discovered she liked chimps. Since a chimp is an expensive purchase, she decided that if she were going to have one she'd have to marry me."

"Raising Mow is really fun and gratifying, but once in a while, it gives you a funny feeling," Davis said. "For example, in certain communities I must put a leash on him. This doesn't bother Mow, but it bothers me in the same way it would bother any father to have to put a leash on his kid."

Special report:

Will Canada become the US water well?

By DAVID COHEN

TORONTO (UPI) — There is flooding along the Great Lakes shorelines this spring, but less than a decade ago these same shorelines were bare and dry.

The 1960s brought a time of drought along the Great Lakes and the northeast region of the United States. People spoke about a "water crisis" just as today they speak of an "energy crisis."

The Great Lakes had plunged to their lowest levels since the 1890s after four successive years of sparse rainfall.

There were reports of Great Lakes ships having to reduce their cargoes up to 60 per cent to avoid running aground.

Large buildings shut off air conditioners to conserve hydro-electricity. Some swimming pools closed and fountains were turned off.

In New York, restaurants stopped serving the customary glass of water with meals, unless specifically asked; closing of taverns and streets was restricted; people even were asked to flush their toilets less often.

"Save water, shower with a friend," was a slogan of the time.

And the water shortages were not confined to the northeastern United States.

In the fast-developing Southwest noises were being heard about future water needs. California and Arizona squabbled in the courts over rights to the already over-developed Colorado River.

Although both U.S. and Canadian environmentalists argued that the "water crisis" was more myth than reality, having to do more with pollution than shortages, schemes began to appear to provide more water for the Great Lakes region and the southwestern United States.

Little is heard of the "water crisis" today. Other artists have succeeded it. The Great Lakes now are approaching their highest levels of the 20th century instead of their lowest and even some of the more ardent water import advocates in the U.S. Southwest have export to the United States their aim, became the order of the day.

'The thing to do, it was reasoned, was to turn these rivers around and bring them south where their water could be put to better use than running into the Arctic Ocean'

Low levels on the Great Lakes, for example, prompted interest in the "Great Replenishment and Northern Development (GRAND) Canal" scheme. Proposed by Sudbury, Ont., engineer Thomas W. Kierans, the GRAND Canal plan was to recycle rivers flowing into James Bay southward by building a massive reservoir in the bay.

The GRAND Canal had a $100 million price tag and a 40-year construction schedule.

A similarly massive scheme was proposed for northern Manitoba. Something called the Magnum Canal Plan was conceived to divert the water of the Liard River across the Prairies for moderated their views. Yet the water issue between the United States and Canada remains unsettled.

Just recently there appeared here a book with a title that asked an old question, "Canada's Water: For Sale?"

Canadian National James Luxer, in another book, "The Energy Poker Game," says water is next in what he calls the "sell-out" of Canadian resources to the United States.

A group calling itself "Dam the Dams" claims federal-provincial studies of northern Ontario waters constitute "the gravest possible threat" to lakes and rivers in the area and the people who live near them.

And in the United States, the voices of water-import still speak.

Sen. Frank Moss of Utah, for example, in a speech a year ago, asked that an option be kept open to undertake one of the biggest and costliest projects ever conceived by man, the North American Water and Power Alliance plan NAWAPA, which was first proposed in 1964.

This is not to say, however, that the water issue has not changed. It has, shaped by new trends in public thinking.

Canada is a water-rich country with 291,571 square miles of fresh water.

Particularly attractive in the thirsty '60s were its great northward flowing rivers—the Yukon, the MacKenzie, the Churchill. In the East, the mighty rivers that empty into both Hudson Bay and James Bay also drew attention.

It was thought by some that these waters were going to waste and some people still think so. The thing to do, it was reasoned, was to turn these rivers around and bring them south where their water could be put to better use than running into the Arctic Ocean.

Massive diversion schemes, with water-eventual channeling into the Missouri River.

But the plan to end all plans was NAWAPA, the brainchild of the Ralph M. Parsons Company of Los Angeles.

NAWAPA's aim was to move 100 million acre feet (an acre of land covered by a foot of water) of water each year from Alaska and seven Canadian provinces to 33 of the United States and Mexico.

American vitality, decadence eyed in 'abundant life' special

Altaïr Cooke, summing up his personal history of the United States in the 13th and final episode of "America," says that "the race is on between (the nation's) decadence and its vitality." But, he adds, he does not believe that the country "is going to sit back and let the worst happen."

Entitled "The — More Abundant Life," the final chapter in the 13-part Xerox series will be televised Tuesday evening, May 8, over the NBC Television Network. Xerox Corporation plans to rebroadcast the "America" series next fall at an earlier evening time period.

After having taken viewers to hundreds of locations in this country and abroad to present his history, Cooke makes his final statement in the study of his New York apartment. This is what he says:

"A wise historian usually stops 20 or 30 years before his own time because, like the rest of us, he can't see the wood for the trees. But I have tried in this program to say something about American civilization today because what is fiercely in dispute between the communist and the non-communist nations is the quality and staying power of American civilization.

"Every other country scorns American materialism while striving to match it. Envy obviously has something to do with it, but there is a true basis for this debate and it is whether America is in its ascendancy or its decline.

"I myself think I recognize several of the symptoms that Edward Gibbon saw so acutely in the decline of Rome, which arise not from external enemies but from inside the country itself: a love of show and luxury; a widening gap between the very rich and the very poor; the exercise of military might in places remote from the centers of power; an obsession with sex, frankness in the arts masquerading as originality, and enthusiasm pretending to creativeness; and a general desire to live off the state, whether it's a junkie on welfare or a government-subsidized airline.

"In a word, the idea that Washington — Big Daddy — will provide.

"Yet I have tried to show that the original institutions of this country still have great vitality. Much of the turmoil here springs from the energy of people who are trying to apply those institutions to forgotten minorities.

"Now, as for our rage to believe that we've found the secret of liberty — in general permissiveness from the cradle, I can only recall the saying of a wise Frenchman, 'Liberty is the luxury of self-discipline.' And historically those people who did not discipline themselves had it thrust on them from the outside.

"That's why the usual cycle of great nations has been, first: a powerful tyranny broken by revolt; the introduction of liberty; the abuse of liberty; and back to tyranny again.

"As I see it in this country, a land of the most persistent idealism and blandest cynicism, the race is on between its decadence and its vitality.

Canada's water . . .

Sen. Moss had NAWAPA in mind when he spoke of keeping options open last year. He estimated Canada's contribution to what he called the "put and take" nature of the plan would be between 40 to 60 per cent of the total water in it.

NAWAPA was nothing less than awesome in the man-made works that it contemplated: six dams at least 1,500 feet high, the largest of which would be 1,700 feet, twice the height of any existing dam in the world, plus numerous other smaller dams, canals and reservoirs all over the continent.

A reservoir would be built in British Columbia's Rock Mountain Trench 500 miles long—16 times as large as any North American man-made lake.

NAWAPA proposed to fulfill the dream of North America's first white explorers—a Northwest passage. Part of the scheme was a shipping canal crossing the prairies from the Great Lakes, with the possibility of going right to Vancouver.

And all this for $100 billion. The NAWAPA planners said the project would pay for itself in 50 years.

The late Gen. A.C.L. McNaughton, leader of Canadian forces in World War II and one of the pioneers in Canadian water development, called NAWAPA a "monstrous concept" in a 1966 speech.

'Suddenly, all the forces that had been building against water-export to the United States solidified . . .

"Not only (is this so) in terms of the physical magnitude," he said, "but also in another and more sinister sense, in that the promoters of NAWAPA would displace Canadian sovereignty over the national waters of Canada and substitute (for it) a diabolical thesis that all waters of North America become a shared resource . . . for the benefit of the Midwest and Southwest regions of the United States."

McNaughton had also been a critic of the Columbia River Treaty, a controversial power agreement between the Canadian Federal Government, British Columbia and the United States.

The treaty called for three dams to be built in Canada and one in the United States.

Canada got $273.3 million for the power the dams provided in the United States; $68.3 million in flood control benefits, and $112 million in accrued interest and other benefits in the years after the treaty was signed.

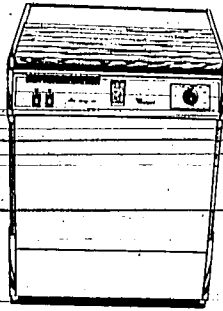

McNaughton called this a sellout. He said Canada should have asked for $2.65 billion over 30 years.

Toronto economist Ian Watt Higgins valued the water Canada stored behind the treaty dams for the year 1966 in U.S. dollars and came up with the figure of $620 million.

Apparently, after the Columbia River agreement, the Parsons Company had marked Canadians as a people who set little value on water. J.S. Cram has remarked in his book, "Water: Canadian Needs and Resources."

Foster kids shown love

By JOGELYN CLOWARD
Times-News writer

BUHL. — "Some of the children haven't had any love before they get here."

Foster parents Lamar and Amy Ethel Orton, Buhl, have taken in 19 children in need of homes over a period of 11 years. They have also housed six children for short "emergency" periods when care was needed for them.

"We've found that taking in the kids keeps us young and loving," Mrs. Orton said.

The Ortons live in a farm home west of Buhl. The house has many windows and a large yard. It is restful, with family treasures used as furniture and decor. They are farmers, milk cows and raise some beef.

"This is a good place to have children," Mrs. Orton said. "They all love to be outdoors."

"We have to watch the little ones, though," Orton said, pointing out a ditch being moved outside the yard.

"We try to treat all of the children as though they were our own," he said. "We celebrate birthdays and Christmas. We have always given the presents ourselves until this year when the department began giving us an allowance for that."

"We receive $70 a month for caring for a child," he said. "We do have our own meat and garden produce, so that helps. I suppose a family in town might spend even more than that."

"We always wanted more children," Mrs. Orton said. "About 12 years ago, we learned of a girl we might adopt. Things just didn't work out, so we went to the public assistance office in Twin Falls and they asked if we would become foster parents."

The Ortons now have sisters, 8 and 10, in their home as foster children. "They keep hoping to be adopted out," Mrs. Orton said. "They have five brothers and sisters. It's really rough on them."

"All of the children but one baby boy have been girls," she said. "Our family was still at home when we started and we had only room for girls."

"They have all had interesting personalities," she said. "They're all good kids."

"Nearly all of the children have been unusually hungry when they came," Orton said. "They stay that way for a month or two. They eat a lot for awhile."

"Almost all of the children who have come to us have never been taught to mind," Mrs. Orton said. "Their parents haven't cared or haven't been able to discipline them. We had one 4 year old girl who, no matter what we told her, answered 'no'. But within a week, she was very sweet."

Some adjust in a day

"Some of the babies adjust to us in a day," she said. "The older children it takes longer. We got one baby that the case worker said she had never seen smile before she came to us."

"Some of the children will stay right at my elbow most of the time," Mrs. Orton said. "Some are more restless and like to be outside. Most of the older girls have liked to help feed the calves and do other chores. Most of them like the animals."

"We've had some babies that have been afraid of men," Orton said. "Most of them are very sweet children. Once in awhile you get a child with problems."

Mrs. Orton remembered that one child had stolen as a method to gain attention and friends.

"It's a real hardship to give them up when the time comes," Mrs. Orton said. "Especially hard when we've taken care of a baby for six months or a year."

"Many people don't take foster children because they think it would be too hard to say goodbye to them. Maybe some have thought us heartless," Orton said, but we've shed many tears. It is rough to know that we may never see them again.

"They didn't ever ~~try~~ let us know where the children were going," he said. "Sometimes now the foster parents are able to see the children."

"Poor little kids," he said. "When we've put them in the car to leave for other homes, we've all cried."

One adopting family took one of the babies for a day and then called to ask if they could keep her instead of bringing her back for one last night with us.

It's a real hardship to give them up when the time comes. When we've put them in the car to leave for other homes, we've all cried.

We've seen what a change a little love and good food does.

Not enough foster homes to go around

TWIN FALLS. — "We always want more foster homes."

Mrs. Erna Shropshire and Mrs. Erna Hill, Region V case workers with Environmental and Community Services, explained the foster parent program.

The two work with foster parent licensing, crisis intervention and child welfare services in an eight-county Magic Valley area.

"We have 101 licensed full-time foster homes in the area," Mrs. Hill said, "and we always need more. Right now we have 11 children placed in these homes. Some periods are more critical than others and we never know when we'll need more places."

"Most homes don't have more than six foster children in addition to their own children," she said.

"Our real need is homes for teen-agers," Mrs. Shropshire said. "We also often need homes for handicapped children. Many of these are being returned from the state hospital at Nampa to receive help from the Child Development Center here."

"It is not our function to remove children from a home," Mrs. Shropshire said. "We always try to leave children in the home. We want to keep the family together. Sometimes placements are voluntary," she said, "and sometimes we have legal custody to an indeterminate period, or guardianship for a long term, with possible adoption as an end result."

"The children we see," Mrs. Hill said, "are often in need of medical attention. In fact, sometimes they have been referred to us for that reason: from school health nurses or concerned neighbors."

"Usually people don't come to us voluntarily," she said. "Quite the reverse is true."

"We get many referrals from interested and concerned citizens," Mrs. Shropshire said, "and from schools, hospitals, police and the courts. We might have a mother hospitalized who needs care for her children or a case of real neglect where the parents are unable or unwilling to provide for the child. Malnutrition may be involved. Sometimes people are living in tents or out of cars. We might have a case of real abuse referred by a doctor."

"Our department provides all of the necessities for board and room, medical and dental bills, and clothing expenses," Mrs. Hill said. "We have more resources in health facilities and community resources available now."

"We're always available to the foster parents and the child, and we try to arrange visits between the children and their natural parents," Mrs. Shropshire said.

"Children don't show their emotions as much as you might think they would," she said. "It's really difficult to know a child in a short time. It would be ideal to place children in a short term shelter house such as Harbor House, our only big resource."

"We could get acquainted with them better before placing them," she said. "We need to be able to suit the child to the home."

"Foster parents need to have time and space, and want to give of themselves," Mrs. Shropshire said. "The job is very rewarding. Helping someone gives great satisfaction and also has many problems."

"When we place a child, we often don't know if it will be just for a few days or for longer," Mrs. Hill said.

A Foster parents group was organized in Twin Falls last July, Mrs. Shropshire said. They meet at 8 p.m. on the second Monday of each month at the Twin Falls Child Development Center.

There, foster parents may exchange ideas and problem solutions in addition to hearing experts discuss the problems of raising such children.

"This helps the foster parents become more self-sufficient," Mrs. Shropshire said. Mrs. Richard Sampson is president of the foster parents group, Mrs. Dale Christ is program chairman and Mrs. Ivan Miners, secretary.

"When we place a child," Mrs. Shropshire said, "we often don't know if it will be just for a few days or for longer. Foster parents do become very attached to the children, but they also have to help the child to be strong enough and happy enough to leave."

TWIN FALLS — The special child is often in need of a home. James (Billy) Williams is the foster son of Richard and Ellen Jordan.

Billy is 6 years old and came to the Jordans from another foster home. He "loves the outdoors, no matter what the weather," Mrs. Jordan said, "likes horses and other animals, and has a beautiful personality." Billy is mongrel.

As a retarded child Billy is one of many who are difficult to place for adoption and foster homes.

"We have really enjoyed working with Billy," Mrs. Jordan said. "We got him three months ago and he adjusted beautifully. We worried about how our two girls age 13 and 14 would react to a total stranger not belonging to the family. We wondered if he could fit in without too many problems, and if he could enjoy what we enjoy, and if we could enjoy him.

"His previous foster parents did a beautiful job," she said. "He's a regular gentleman. It doesn't take much to keep him happy. The girls treat him like a brother. They take him horseback riding and for walks."

some sort of acreage."

"I've done babysitting all my life," Mrs. Jordan said. "I like to have children around and I'm lonely with our girls in school all the time. I went to get a day care license," she said, "and ended up registering for the foster parents' licensing.

"I have a little nephew about the same age as Billy who is mongrel," she said. "So I'm familiar with the problems."

"We were looking for a normal foster son to be a companion to Billy and to help him," she said. "If we do, they would both go to the Child Development Center until they were 7 and then to Happy Day School."

"At the Child Development Center," she said, "Billy is learning about cutting and coloring. He learned to ride a tricycle there and they teach him how to jump and play and talk. He goes for three hours each weekday for eight weeks.

"I can't tell yet all of the problems I'm going to have," Mrs. Jordan said. "Billy is with us for an indefinite amount of time. He might stay until I become unable to care for him or until it might be wise to send him away for a better education.

"We've loved Billy," she said. "All that is needed to take in children is a fairly large home and a love of children."

Johnny enjoys new lifestyle

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Johnny Carson is enjoying an entirely new life style as he begins his second year of telecasting his "Tonight Show" from California instead of New York.

In place of a fashionable apartment in Manhattan, Johnny lives in a large, rambling Bel Air mansion with swimming pool.

Each morning he enjoys hitting some tennis balls against the garage for exercise, a treat that was denied him in New York. He admits it would have bought a place with a tennis court except that it would have attracted friends and relatives from far corners of the world. "Life is a little more relaxed here," he says. "You have to be careful you don't become apathetic."

There's little chance of Carson turning loafer.

He drives to NBC's Burbank studios five days a week at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The trip takes him about 20 minutes, or the same time it took to cover one-tenth that distance in Manhattan by cab.

Once at the studio he studies the rundown of the show, checks on the guests, lines up future guests with his staff, confers with his writers and works on his monologue. He also goes through important mail.

He tapes his show from 6-7:30 p.m. with a live audience, most of whom are people on vacation or Hollywood visitors. Carson says if he taped his audience in the afternoon the people might be less sophisticated.

If Carson looks splendidly tailored it is not impossible he is wearing his own line of clothes.

He initiated Johnny Carson Apparel three years ago. His suits and sports jackets and shirts are sold at 1,500 retail stores across the country—and doing well.

Carson is home in plenty of time for dinner, which sometimes is cooked by his wife, Joanna. But there is plenty of help in their new-home-which, curiously, is somewhat more formal than most Southern California homes.

It gives the appearance of a New York apartment, with a few antiques here and there.

"In California anything over 10 years old is an antique," Johnny says, grinning.

The house includes a projection room where Johnny frequently entertains six to a dozen friends. After dinner they troop to the projection room for the latest pictures.

Law enforcement roles scrutinized

"Crimewatch," with distinguished author Truman Capote conducting in-depth interviews with a panel of experts in law enforcement, will be presented on "ABC Wide-World-of-Entertainment," Tuesday.

The first of a two-part program, "Crimewatch" will focus on men who have spent their lives as policemen. Among Capote's guests are several of the nation's "super cops." They are:

David Toma, detective from Newark, N.J., an expert in disguises whose real-life adventures will be dramatized in a new series, "Toma," on the ABC Television Network this fall.

David Greenberg and Robert Hantz, a pair of detectives from the New York City Police Department, who have been tagged "Batman and Robin" because of their unusual methods of police procedure.

Joseph Wambaugh, officer with the Los Angeles Police Department and writer of best-selling novels "The New Confessions" and "The Blue Knight", who describes policemen as "the nation's minority in blue."

Capote also interviews retired San Francisco detective Jack Webb, rookie cop Ken Garrett, and Charles Rogovin, lawyer and ex-president of the Police Foundation. Joining the group for a round-table discussion will be Dr. Morton Bard, a psychologist who deals with the problems of men in law enforcement.

Capote and his guests will also explore the myths and legends of police work. Drawing on their own experiences and insights, the panel paints a detailed picture of a policeman's life in today's society.

"Crimewatch" is an Alan Landsburg production with Alan Landsburg as executive producer. Lawrence Sawadoff is producer and Howard Lipstone is executive in charge of production. Lawrence Einhorn directs the two-part program.

In 1965, when concern was high in both the United States and Canada over distribution of their water resources, then Canadian Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson said water resources were "a continental and international problem."

"We have to be careful not to alienate this resource without taking care of our own needs," Pearson said, "and we will be discussing this with the United States who are very anxious to work out arrangements by which some of our water resources are moved down south. This can be as important as exporting wheat and oil."

The man who was later to become minister of environment, Jack Davis, called a plan for diversion of the Yukon, MacKenzie and the Athabasca rivers "an inspiring conception" in 1964.

And as late as 1970, Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau was saying about water export: "I don't want to be a dog in the manger about this (water export). But if people are not going to use it, can't we sell it for good hard cash?"

In June, 1970, Davis told a Liberal Party policy convention that Canada was in danger of missing a good bet by not considering exporting water to the United States.

But, suddenly, all the forces that had been building against water-export to the United States solidified in Ottawa, and in October, 1970, Davis issued four "iron-clad rules." They were:

- Don't export water to the U.S.A. (because you'll never be able to cut off the flow).
- Don't divert whole rivers from one river basin to the next.
- Don't regulate water flow in such a way as to jeopardize other renewable resources in the area.
- Don't sacrifice trees, fish, wildlife and other living things for the production of power or the protection of real estate unless absolutely necessary.

"If we apply these rules," Davis said, "we will say an emphatic 'no' to the diversion of Canadian waters, in bulk, to the U.S.A."

Richard Boeking, the Vancouver television producer who wrote the book, "Canada's Water: For Sale?" says:

"Many people have traveled an environmental road to Damascus in recent years, and it seems that with respect to water, Mr. Davis trod that path in the summer of 1970."

Over the past few years, evidence has accumulated to suggest some very serious drawbacks...to the building of dams.

Davis was not alone on that road: Edward Kuiper, a professor of hydrological engineering at the University of Manitoba, is in fact the author of a paper titled "Road to Damascus." Briefly, it tells of his conversion from being one of the country's most ardent advocates of water diversion plans to being one of diversion's most bitter enemies.

In the mid-60s Kuiper, as a consultant to Manitoba Hydro, was sold on the idea of diverting the Churchill River into the Nelson via southern Indian Lake for hydro power. He wanted to raise this lake, which is important to the livelihood of Indians in the area, by 30 feet.

Soon after, however, he joined a study of this diversion from a social and ecological viewpoint.

"We tried to visualize the dead trees around the lake, the decaying vegetation, the floating debris, the inundated beaches and the Indians without a livelihood," he wrote in his paper. "And we were horrified by these visions. We asked: is this absolutely necessary? And the answer was: No."

Over the past few years, evidence has accumulated to suggest some very serious drawbacks—ecological, economic and human—to the building of dams for water diversion.

The famous Aswan Dam in Egypt, which was to have irrigated 1.3 million acres and control flooding, has had mixed notices.

It has affected the fertility of the farmlands of the Nile, since the enriching silt of the river is trapped behind the dam in Lake Nasser.

The dam has also contributed to the rapid spread of the disease, bilharzia, which Vancouver's Boeking says "sometimes kills but more often condemns its victims to a life of pain and exhaustion."

What is more, a great deal of the acreage the Aswan was to have irrigated was found unsuitable for it.

And in Canada there are the remarkable consequences of the Bennett Dam in British Columbia on the Peace River.

Built in 1968, the dam soon produced some unexpected side effects 700 miles away in northern Alberta on the Peace Athabasca Delta.

Before the dam was closed, the Peace flooded the delta each summer, providing an important breeding area for ducks and a key link in the four major North American flyways for migratory birds.

Scale vast

As United States engineers cast an eager eye northward to plan for diversions of vast amounts of Canadian water to the thirsty US southwest and midwest, the Canadians find themselves split at the prospect.

Water from Canada . . .

But with the dam in place, water levels in the delta and on nearby Lake Athabasca dropped—as much as five feet on the lake.

Perched basins, vital for breeding ducks, dried up. Muskrat trappers in the area saw their catch go from 30,000 pelts in 1960-69 to 8,000 in 1970-71. Increased dredging was needed on Lake Athabasca, at a cost of $130,000.

A 1972 report on the delta said "water, and developments of any nature thereupon, can no longer be viewed in splendid isolation from its inter-relationship with other aspects of environmental management."

It urged new federal laws "in which total environmental management would take place."

Along with this greater insight into the effects of water development there has also come increased knowledge about Canada's northern rivers and their relationship to the delicate Arctic environment.

These rivers, which are so big a part of existing diversion plans, have been shown to be far less reliable in terms of flow than their southern counterparts. Flows for most of the year tend to be comparatively low except during sudden and heavy spring runoffs.

Some authorities suggest that large-scale diversion of the flow of Canadian rivers, to provide water for the United States, could dangerously upset the ecological balance of the continent.

Dr. J. P. Bruce, director of the Canada Center for Inland Waters, says major river diversions could increase the salinity of Arctic seawater. This in turn, he notes, would melt Arctic ice, and the resulting open water would mean increased water vapor and snowfall on land areas of the continent.

Scientists believe such a process, should it take place, could lead to a new ice age.

An article that might have influenced Canadian government thinking on water export was in July, 1970, by Trevor Lloyd, a McGill University geologist. He wrote that the impression that Canada's northern waters might be of use elsewhere was "misleading."

"Precipitation over much of the north is low, although evaporation is also low, and the permafrost beneath prevents the water from draining away," he said. "While information is still incomplete, it suggests that the northern water reserves can contribute little or nothing for export southward."

Another assumption being questioned is the U.S.A.'s "need" for Canadian water, especially in the southwestern United States.

Paul Ehrlich, a Stanford University biologist and zero population exponent, says, "There are many, many ecological reasons not to bring in Canadian water. For one thing, the thing that is short and limiting population in the Pacific southwest at the moment is air, not water."

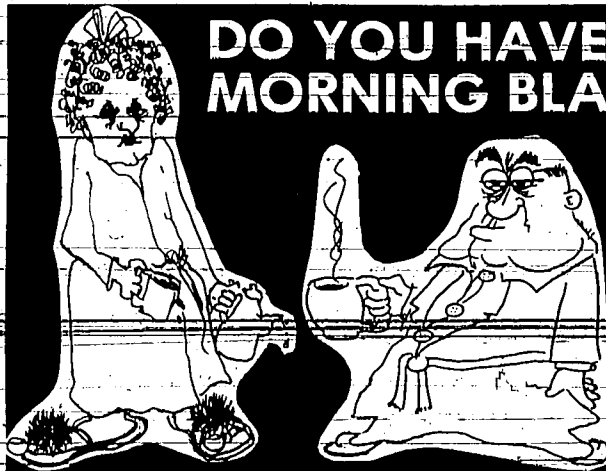

"Anybody who has visited the Los Angeles area," he says, "knows that the last thing in the world it needs is water so they can have more people and more industry. To want more people there you have to be stark, raving mad."

In his book, Richard Becking says that 90 per cent of the water used in the arid southwestern states is for irrigating agriculture. He says many of these crops are surplus and subsidized commodities, while others could and have been grown elsewhere.

In his book "Canada's Water: For Sale?" Becking quotes University of Washington economist James Crutchfield: "The urge to move vast amounts of water over vast distances ignores the distinct possibility that it would be cheaper and more effective for water-short regions to specialize in economic activities that require little water."

Rich Johnson, executive director of the Central Arizona Project Association, does not exactly echo these sentiments, but he does see

Green Thumb: The Black Walnuts

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

We've been asked what causes the kernels of home grown black walnuts to be inferior or lack quality.

H.F. Stoke, a nut grower from Roanoke, Va., has some good reasons listed in the "Nutshell," bulletin of the Northern Nut Growers Association, an excellent organization to join if you're a nut grower.

Stoke explains that while a nut shell has reached full size, it is far from mature. The shell makes no further growth after a certain size.

Inside, the cavity is filled with a balloonlike structure called a pellicle resembling a water bag — it's filled with a liquid as fluid as water and it ultimately becomes the kernel if fully developed.

Any thing that interferes with the development, such as disease, scarcity of leaves, poor soil or extreme drought, will cause imperfect kernels. Any branch having more nuts than leaves can handle, will have inferior nuts.

Nut trees produce heavily one year, lightly or none the next year. Any nuts produced in an "off crop year" may be less well filled than those produced in an "on crop year."

Insects such as the shuck worm, walnut husk maggot and the codling moth can cause nuts to drop and lack maturity.

Infestations by these worms before the shells of the nuts have become hard cause the nuts to drop.

Infestations taking place after the nut shells have become hard do not cause the nuts to drop. These late infested nuts may be poorly filled because the insect "grubs" mine the hulls or shucks, cutting off the conducting tissues that transport food materials to the kernel.

The bulletin ends thusly: "This country needs a family tree producing more lumber and fewer nuts.

I didn't think it could be done, but several readers have had good luck getting their coffee to bear coffee berries. One coffee tree is 42 inches tall and has produced red berries. The coffee tree pollinator itself, without benefit of any other tree nearby.

Lily of the Nile, also called the blue African lily or blue lily of the Nile, the Agapanthus lilies, a winter rest, a temperature around 50 degrees now, and more or less a dry soil.

If you're going to repot yours before setting outdoors in summer, plant the tuberous root stocks just beneath the soil surface, so the crown is just sticking up at the surface. During the summer, keep in a sunny spot, and water it regularly.

for market production.

Home gardeners know that corseted tomatoes are good and fat, and free from blemishes. Cages are even being used for greenhouse tomatoes in some states.

Why do gardeners like caged tomatoes? The wire supports keep vines upright. The fruit ripens more uniformly than staked or ground tomatoes, with less green-shoulder and fewer sunscald defects.

Yields of caged plants are as great as yields of mulched plants, and those grown on cultivated soil. Tests show you get 10 percent fewer cull fruit from caged plants than from the staked, soil-grown, or mulched plants. Caging also reduces ground spotting and increases the amount of No. 1 fruit.

Not every variety seems peatmoss and sand is good for covering roots of above plants. If you want to make the soil even more acid, add sulfate of ammonia at the rate of one ounce for each year of age of the plants up to 7 or 8 years. Compost which has been limed shouldn't be used for acid-loving plants.

QUESTION BOX
Question of the week: D. E. of Twin Falls: "A friend of mine raised some good potatoes last year. Some were in tubs and some were in the ground. He got over a bushel from one dozen seed potatoes. Why don't more people raise their own potatoes?"

You ask a good question. We used to tell our readers not to waste space on raising Irish potatoes, but more and more have written to tell us they do raise their own.

We've raised potatoes in half barrels and trained them up a wire corset, just as you do tomato vines. To raise seven bushels of potatoes you have to plant about 30 or 40 pounds of "seed pieces" (potatoes cut with "eyes" or sprouts).

Plant a few spuds in among evergreens or a row of them in back of the annual or perennial bed. Potatoes like a well drained soil, and one not too acid nor one too sweet. Order some certified seed from a seedman, or contact a commercial grower.

Plant seed pieces about 18 inches apart and about three or four inches deep. These can be small potatoes from one to two ounces in weight and planted whole.

Larger potatoes can be cut into blocky pieces about one and one-half ounces. Be sure there is one "eye" (bud) on each piece.

You might like to try some red skinned varieties such as Red Pontiac, having shallow eyes and white flesh.

All about black walnuts, even the inferior home-grown variety.

Feed every three or four weeks using a liquid plant food. If yours is overcrowded, I'd repot it this spring.

A reader has a grapefruit plant started from a seed. It is 6 feet high, has nice leaves on, but she wonders if it can be pruned back?

Yes, I'd cut the top back, even though it makes the stem look rather bare. Pruning the grapefruit is good for the plant, otherwise it will continue to grow into a "bean pole."

The best time to trim the height of a grapefruit, avocado and other tropical items is when they are small.

Home gardeners have given commercial growers an idea — grow tomatoes in wire cages or corsets. The difficulty of getting skilled labor to trim, prune, tie and stake tomatoes may make wire cages feasible suited to cages. The early variety known as New Yorker doesn't grow upright in the cages but rather tends to grow out through the sides, at least that's been the experience in our own corset tests.

Home gardeners, whether you have a postage-stamp garden or not, should take advantage of corsets for growing tomatoes. You'll even have better luck if you not only cage your tomatoes, but mulch them with plastic and straw, sawdust, woodchips, etc.

If you're going to grow acid-lovers such as azalea, rhododendrons, blue hydrangeas or blueberries, your number one job is to work all the peatmoss, rotted leaves or compost you can get into the soil.

A mixture of one-third each soil, rotted oak leaves or Canada's water?

Arizona's 750,000 acres of irrigated land being eliminated by the year 2000 because of urban expansion.

He says the state's current water needs are being met by the Central Arizona Project, passed by Congress in 1968, and sees its long-term needs being provided by the importation of desalted sea water from the Gulf of California.

"The point is that water needs must be directly related to the cost of providing water," Bocking said. "Perhaps three quarts of water per person are required each day for survival—beyond that point, water needs must be related to the cost of providing them."

In Canada at the moment, the whole question of "need" has to do with water power. Specifically, does Canada—or for that matter Manitoba and Quebec—need the Churchill River diversion to the Nelson and the controversial James Bay Project?

Both projects have been given the go ahead despite heavy opposition to them in Manitoba and Quebec. Cree Indians have taken the Quebec government to court over the James Bay Project. Canadian Indian spokesmen say that James Bay could bring on another Wounded Knee in this country since the lives and livelihoods of 6,000 Cree Indians in northwestern Quebec are in jeopardy.

Likewise, the livelihood of Indians in the southern Indian Lake area are endangered by the Churchill diversion scheme, which would raise the level of the lake by 10 feet.

Both projects were given the go ahead without the completion of environmental studies; in Quebec these are only about to begin.

What eventual diversion of water there may be, or whether Canada will go into the "water export" business, no one can yet foretell with certainty. The only certainty is that the last words have not been said, nor the last projects laid to rest.
