Fun for bikers

THRONGS OF YOUNGSTERS and bicycles eddied through Harmon Park Saturday at the annual Bicycle Rodeo, and most of the 600 participants found their way to the refreshment stand. More than 50 races, including one for police, were scheduled. Obstacle courses, safety inspections, and awarding of two bicycles highlighted the event. (Story, p. 19)

Skylab counts proceed

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — While the Skylab 1 astronauts relaxed in Houston, ground crewmen Saturday pushed the countdown with clock-like precision toward Monday's launch of the world's largest spaceship for 140 days of manned flight this year.

If the 118-foot-long space station reaches a good orbit and unfolds its intricate assembly normally, Charles "Pete" Conrad, Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz will be launched Tuesday to man the station for 28 days.

Skylab already is loaded with 2,100 pounds of canned, frozen and dried food, 6,000 pounds of water, 1,200 aspirin, more than 700 pieces of clothing and thousands of other items to support three crews for 29 weeks of flight around earth.

The second Skylab crew is scheduled to go up Aug. 8 for 56 days in space. The third Skylab crew is set for launch Nov. 9 to spend another 56 days in Skylab and close out the two-level, eight-room space base.

The objective of the $2.5 billion program is to push back the threshold of manned spaceflight capability and to amass medical, scientific and engineering information to help both men on earth and future men in space.

Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz took the Saturday off and relaxed in their special quarters at the Johnson Space Center in Houston. "They just lounged around and relaxed," a spokesman said.

The three pilots, all Navy officers, are scheduled to fly to the cape Sunday in their personal white T38 jet trainers, arriving at nearby Patrick Air Force Base at noon. They will watch Monday's launch with their wives from a secluded site three-fourths of a mile from the Saturn rocket hangar.

Launch operations manager Paul Donnelly reported that the dual countdowns for the flights of the unmanned Skylab and its first three crewmen were proceeding without a hitch.

Ride hot air

NINE BALLOONS of a group of 10 made successful crossings of Chesapeake Bay near Rock Hall, Md., Saturday, amazing residents of that town and surrounding area. Altitudes used for the crossing varied from near-water level to about 4,000 feet. This craft flown by Ralph Hall, Lexington, Mass., was among those making the trip safely. One landed in the water but the pilot was rescued. It was the first time hot air balloons crossed the bay. (UPI)

Fall injures Meridian boy

TWIN FALLS — Stuart Otis Welton, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Welton, Meridian, was listed in satisfactory condition late Saturday after falling over the rim of Snake River canyon.

County sheriff's officers said the boy fell about 20 feet, going over two rock ledges before hitting a sloping, dirt and rock section of the canyon wall where he came to rest.

The Welton family had gone to the Twin Falls gun range to shoot. The boy and an older brother were walking along the canyon rim north of the range when the younger youth fell. Officers said the boys were apparently trying to climb into the canyon to a roadway they could see from the top. The road serves the Twin Falls city sewage treatment plant and other canyon buildings.

Members of the family drove down the grade on the south side of the river to where the boy had fallen. They had to carry him back to their vehicle, from part way up the canyon wall.

Sheriff's officers received a call from a citizens band radio operator at the gun range about 12:30 p.m. asking for an ambulance.

Magic Valley Ambulance crews were able to drive into the canyon and pick up the injured youth at the family vehicle. Magic Valley Memorial Hospital officials said he suffered cuts, bruises, shock and a fractured hip.

TE man dies in Canada

TWIN FALLS — Jim Lash, owner and operator of the Military Inn, Twin Falls, was killed Saturday while on a fishing trip to Canada.

It was learned here Saturday night he died in Toledo, D. C. Royal Canadian Police there said late Saturday they were releasing no details of the death at this time.

Friends in Twin Falls said Lash had gone to Canada only recently to fish for salmon. Law enforcement officers in Twin Falls said they could not give any definite information on the death. He is survived by a son in Twin Falls and another son and daughter reportedly living out of the state.

Gray protested probe hindrance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Acting FBI Director T. Patrick Gray has testified he told President Nixon last July that White House aides were interfering with his Watergate investigation and that Nixon replied, "Pat, you just continue in the same thorough and aggressive manner." Senate sources said Saturday.

Nixon said in a nationwide television broadcast April 30 that he had received "repeated assurances" that no members of his administration were involved in Watergate, and that he believed them until March when new developments came to his attention.

Gray was interviewed by the staff of the Senate Watergate investigating committee late Friday and the sources gave this account of his testimony.

On July 6, 19 days after the break-in at the Democratic national headquarters in the Watergate complex, Gray said he called the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif., so that Nixon could "clear up the confusion" over the FBI investigation.

A half hour later, Gray said, Nixon called to congratulate him on handling an airline hijacking. Gray said he took the opportunity to give Nixon an "abbreviated version" of the problems he was encountering with White House aides. It was not known whether Gray identified them to Nixon.

In his testimony Friday, the sources said Gray mentioned White House domestic adviser John D. Ehrlichman and presidential counsel John W. Dean III among those who were interfering with the FBI's investigation.

Rupert cyclist struck, killed

RUPERT — Rupert police were searching Saturday night for an unidentified hit-and-run driver involved in an accident which claimed the life of a 15-year-old youth late Friday.

Minidoka County sheriff's officers said Scott William Ennis, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Ennis, Rupert, was killed about 9:30 p.m. Friday near his home. He was riding a bicycle when struck and injured.

While Ennis was lying in the street waiting for an ambulance, he was run over by a second vehicle.

Sheriff's Deputy Robert Nevarez said it would probably never be determined which impact proved fatal to Ennis.

Nevarez said witnesses at the scene of the first accident said they had covered the boy and were directing traffic around him when the second vehicle approached at a high speed and ran over him.

Nevarez said witnesses reported jumping out of the path of the second vehicle an instant before it struck Ennis. Nevarez said the first vehicle to strike Ennis was driven by Ignacio Mingo, 31, Rupert. He said Mingo was going east on Baseline and had dimmed his lights for a car approaching from the west when he saw the bicycle in front of him. Apparently, Mingo swerved left, Nevarez said, but too late to avoid striking Ennis.

Ennis was pronounced dead on arrival at Minidoka Memorial Hospital.

Mingo was taken to the hospital for treatment of shock.

Nevarez reported the accident occurred close to the Ennis home. He said the youth's mother called police to report the accident.

Rupert man succumbs

RUPERT — A Rupert man died Friday morning at St. Anthony Hospital in Pocatello from injuries sustained in a single car accident near Rupert Wednesday.

John Michael Cunningham, 22, Rupert, was taken to Pocatello early Wednesday morning suffering from head injuries. He died Friday morning at the hospital.

The accident occurred when a vehicle driven by Dale J. Hacking, 22, Rupert, failed to negotiate a curve three miles north and six miles east of Rupert on a county road about 12:05 a.m. Wednesday. The vehicle rolled over several times.

Hacking was listed in good condition at Minidoka Memorial Hospital, Rupert, on Saturday.

Canyon floor plan told

By GEORGE WILEY Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's richest man and his local partner have big plans for 400 acres of land down inside the Snake River Canyon immediately north of Twin Falls.

Joseph D. McCollum, Twin Falls, and his partner, Idaho potato and fertilizer magnate Jack Simplot, Boise, plan to construct a nine-hole golf course inside the canyon on land owned by McCollum.

After that, they plan to build condominiums adjacent to the fairways.

In the process, McCollum and Simplot expect to spend $1 million or more.

McCollum's property is the site of the old Taylor Orchard. There clustered apple trees dot the pasture where tons of wild asparagus sprout every spring.

Poplar-lined lanes, scattered boulders, fences of rusted wire and weathered cedar posts, untended ditches and a flower garden combine to give the place a natural but somewhat faded quality. The orchard has felt encroachments of the rimland civilization before. Just upwind the city of Twin Falls has built its sewage treatment plant, while overhead there is the silver intrusion of high-tension power transmission lines reaching down from towering canyon walls.

Fourth in a series

Closer at hand, a gravel-dredging operation is situated at the riverbank.

McCollum has owned all of the Taylor property for at least five years, and has owned part of it for more than a decade. Now he intends to move with machines onto this landscape to establish a new kind of order.

"We think we have a beautiful concept," McCollum says. "What we're gonna do is do nothing but improve on what Mother Nature put down here."

TF school trustee hopefuls favor kindergarten, cite traffic hazard

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News-Writer
TWIN FALLS — Both candidates in Tuesday's Twin Falls school trustee election favor kindergarten.

Frank DeLuca, Twin Falls laboratory technician and former board member, opposes Kenneth Hodge, 26, who operates his own custom garden service.

The position is for a three-year term in zone-1, which is bounded by Rock Creek, Fifth Street West, to Main West to West Five Points, Addison Avenue and Locust Street on the east.

Polls will be open from noon to 8 p.m. at Bickel and Lincoln schools. Only residents within zone 1 may vote.

Hodge, who is a graduate of Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H. said he believes children are capable of learning at a much earlier age than most adults expect them to and kindergarten "gets them going earlier."

The early years are most important in a child's development, he said.

Both men mentioned the traffic hazards around Washington school when asked their priorities of problems affecting the school district.

Hodge said "it (Washington school location) is not a good place for kids." He also is concerned about traffic on Second Avenue East and North, a one-way street.

He lives near Lincoln school and he says youths "drive by at 90 miles per hour."

Hodge worked for the Twin Falls Employment Service previous to operating his own business. He attended graduate school at Syracuse University, N.Y., and taught as a practicum toward his master's degree in secondary education. His A.B. degree is in psychology.

The young candidate he is very interested in education and familiar with education problems.

"I feel the school board can use young ideas and I hopefully would provide a stimulus," Hodge said.

DeLuca previously served five years on the school board, having been appointed to fill the unexpired term of Holly Severson who moved from the district. He then was elected to a subsequent full term.

The candidate grew up in New York where he attended kindergarten as a child. He feels they are beneficial and favors them but thinks funding in the local situation will have to come from the state level.

Local lot classes could be funded locally if the state funds are provided for other programs now paid for by local money, he said.

In discussing priorities in the proposed building program for the Twin Falls district, DeLuca feels replacement of Washington school is important because of the heavy traffic at the Five Points intersection.

He says he is open minded about improvements necessary at the various schools, noting that in several present locations do not meet state requirements for adequate land. The high school and Robert Stuart Junior High School are exceptions.

DeLuca feels a trustee should "consider all interests," in deciding priorities, noting the special interests of athletes, music and drama activities.

"I would like to be flexible," he said, and not necessarily be against it. He favors a "middle road" position.

Vocational training is an area DeLuca feels is most important and said he has been pleased by recent expansion of the school.

DeLuca has a B.S. degree from Hartwick College in New York, belongs to the Rotary Club, Presbyterian Church and is past president of Region IV of the School Trustees Association.

He has been in laboratory work since 1939, and is director of the Medical Center laboratory here.

Report: The Nixon Doctrine Fails

Devoted To The Citizens Of Magic Valley

Sunday May 13, 1973 AL Westergren, Publisher PHONE 733-0931

Official City and County Newspaper... Member of Audit Bureau of Circulation and UPI

Brightest Star

The newest and brightest star on the Washington scene is Elliot Richardson, the proper Bostonian whom President Nixon picked to ferret out the whole truth about the Watergate scandal and related developments.

Richardson has announced he will choose a special prosecutor, who will report only to him, to handle the investigation and prosecution and that he will have a free hand and all the help he needs.

This is reassuring to every American who wants the whole truth spread on the record, the guilty punished, and the innocent protected.

Emphasizing his independence, Richardson said he would make his selection only after he is confirmed as Attorney General. This is eminently proper, since he would lack official authority to act before his confirmation by the Senate.

Now if the Democrats, who control the Senate, want to press the investigation and see justice done with dispatch, they will lose little time in confirming Richardson. His qualifications are above reproach and he has twice been confirmed for previous cabinet posts, as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and of Defense.

Efforts to exploit Watergate for political advantage are a public disservice. The judicial system provides the proper forum and the business of government must move ahead, the sooner, the better.

Loose talk will continue. Witness Martha Mitchell's absurd statement that Nixon should resign. Witness Democratic talk of impeachment.

Democratic criticism of Nixon for failing to name a special prosecutor himself was premature, to say the least. The way in which President Nixon cleared the way for Richardson to name his own man independently carried the best assurance of the vigorous, prompt and total cleanup everyone wants.

Richardson must name a special prosecutor of unquestioned integrity and independence. As the Assistant Majority Leader of the Senate, Robert C. Bird of West Virginia, said: "The choice should be a man who is independent, who is totally detached from this administration, who has the courage, and strength and ability and the national reputation to do the job, and once the job is done, leave the people with the feeling there has been no whitewash."

That is precisely Richardson's goal.

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia — The Nixon Doctrine, falling here in its most critical test, is the victim of crippling restrictions imposed by Congress and a numbing hangover from the Vietnam War.

The congressional prohibition against U.S. military advisers dooms the Cambodian army (FANK) to inept leadership and steady deterioration. Washington's attempt to maintain a low profile here has permitted a comic opera Cambodian despotism with tragic consequences. Thus, as we reported earlier, Cambodian independence from Hanoi is maintained only by U.S. bombing, which Congress now threatens to end.

This suggests that the Nixon Doctrine, pledging help to any country willing to fight for its survival, is a dead letter when a Communist neighbor exports revolution. Ironically, while the memory of Vietnam bars a vigorous U.S. role here, turning Cambodia into a satellite of North Vietnam would threaten all the blood and treasure invested by the United States in South Vietnam.

The shackles were imposed by Congress shortly after the 1970 Cambodian incursion by U.S. troops: a ceiling of 200

U.S. officials in Cambodia and absolutely no military advisers. Nor are U.S. Army officers assigned to the embassy here serving as clandestine advisers.

These restrictions doom the FANK to perpetual incompetency and perhaps eventual destruction. Its officers, led by Prince Norodom Sihanouk before his fall in 1970 mainly for palace entertainment, are militarily illiterate.

They cannot control artillery fire or direct air support. With U.S. officers barred as ground observers for U.S. bombers, much of the massive bombing is wasted. The average FANK brigade commander doesn't know enough about tactics to lead a platoon of a foreign military attaché fold us.

Thus, the three years since the Cambodian war began have been wasted. Less than 1,000 professional U.S. advisers — perhaps CIA paramilitary experts with experience in Laos — might have transformed the FANK into irregular light infantry capable of confronting the Communist insurgents. Instead, the FANK, though better armed, is no better led than in 1970.

What's more, its will to fight has noticeably diminished thanks to Marshal Lon Nol's incredible regime — a falling due in part to U.S. attempts at keeping a low profile in Cambodia.

The proper role of Emory Swank, a skilled diplomat completing three trying years as U.S. ambassador to Cambodia, has never been clearly defined. Though much more than a conventional ambassador (he personally approves U.S. bombing in Cambodia) he was not vested with the proconsular authority of U.S. ambassadors in Laos.

Consequently, Swank had no clear mandate to do anything about Lon Nol surrounded by corruptionists and astrologers and isolated from both the people and the army. When the marshal last fell publicly ordered Cambodians to report to the police anybody purchasing a jack rabbit because of an imagined Communist plot to blow up fortifications with bobby-trapped hares, it should have been clear his connection with reality was tenuous.

It was clear enough to the U.S. embassy here but not to the parade of visiting generals and admirals from Washington and Honolulu. Rogally entertained at the palace, they sent back glowing reports on Lon Nol while some diplomatic and military officers here found their regular reporting censored.

Unbelievably, after the American experience of over 30 tragic years in the Orient, the Ching-Kai-shek syndrome is not dead. A carefully documented report to Washington of how Lon Nol's goon squads stole last year's presidential election was denatured by an attached rebuttal; later, a report on the marshal's seamy personal life was totally suppressed. Belated U.S. pressure on Lon Nol in early April to broaden his regime came when nearly all was lost.

Hanoi has no such problems. Prince Sihanouk and his Peking-based "government" are figureheads; Hanoi-trained Cambodian cadets are in charge. While the U.S. frittered away three years, North Vietnamese regulars were preparing Cambodian insurgents for the surprise offensive that began Jan. 27. The insurgents still go into battle with North Vietnamese advisers at their side. The 367th North Vietnamese sapper regiment, Hanoi's last foot soldiers actively fighting the FANK, is now training a successor Cambodian unit.

Consequently, Cambodia's "Civil War" is a Hanoi export; no true political insurgency has taken root among the easy-gok Cambodians. But with neither Lon Nol's feeble regime nor a shackled Nixon administration effectively responding to military pressure, prospects are poor that the Nixon Doctrine will preserve Cambodia's independence. The rest of Asia will note that failure.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Gaining Weight

Dear Dr. Thosteson: At the office today the topic of conversation was diets and gaining weight. One of the girls said if you were a cook, in a restaurant, you would gain weight because your body absorbed it from the cooking. I laughed and said it was probably from tasting the food. Which is right? — M. C.H.

Nobody ever got fat from smelling food, but smelling it can bring on a strong urge to taste it. You're right, of course.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: In an insurance report, the doctor listed "essential hypertension" in layman's language "essential means necessary."

Under what circumstances would hypertension, or high blood pressure, be "necessary" or is there a different medical definition of the term "essential"? I am confused. Mrs. S. K.

Essentially, your question is one of semantics, not medicine. Check a dictionary and you'll find that "necessary" is a secondary meaning. The original or primary meaning of "essential" is "of or pertaining to the essence of."

In medical dictionaries you'll also find "idiopathic" as a synonym, an idiopathic disease or condition being one that is there but we don't know what put it there.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Why do I have a clear yellowish secretion from my breasts? I am 48 years old and in good health. L. R.

The breasts are "secreting organs" — their purpose is to produce milk. In this case, chiefly milk. So a discharge such as you describe is not unusual in the 40s.

It is not, of course, normal, but it may or may not be a sign of anything seriously wrong. In the majority of instances the discharge is the result of cyst formation deeper in the breast, or in the accumulation of secretion from the many ducts in the breast.

While a clear or yellowish discharge in most instances results from non-malignant sources, one must take the trouble to make sure that it is non-malignant. Not cancer.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: The wise steps, therefore, are to have a specimen of the discharge examined for the presence of blood cells, and to have a Pap test run on the material, too. The Pap test having a high degree of reliability in detecting cancer cells if they are present.

Mammography (X-ray examination of the breast) is another means of detecting malignant growth. If a lump is present, it should be removed to determine its exact nature — is it malignant or benign?

The basic rule for avoiding serious breast trouble is to find out promptly whether any unusual symptom is dangerous.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Enclosed find 25 cents and a long, stamped, addressed envelope for your booklet or "The Way to Stop Constipation." I've heard that most anything white is the cause, such as bread, potatoes, rice, noodles, etc. Is this true? My sister has this trouble and eats a great deal of bread and those other foods. — Mrs. J.E. C.

No, such foods don't cause constipation. In fact, there are no foods that cause constipation. But a good many sufferers have the trouble because of things they DON'T eat. The colon needs a certain amount of bulk, or residue, to behave properly, and getting enough vegetable and fruit is one of several ways to get that necessary bulk.

High blood pressure can be controlled. To find out what causes high blood pressure and what can be done to treat it, get "Controlling Your Blood Pressure (Hypertension)" by Dr. Thosteson. To obtain a copy of this helpful booklet, write to him in care of this newspaper enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

BERRY'S WORLD

Maybe by escalating the Latin tuna war we can divert attention from the Watergate.

MR. SPECTATOR

Mother's Day

Comes Mother's Day, when a rose born to blush unseen blossoms forth with an orchidaceous price tag and store windows bloom with the perfect gift for mother: applied to everything from a bulldozer to a floor mop.

Hovering over all in unsuiting difference will be countless adaptations of a portrait titled by the artist, "An Arrangement in Black and Gray," but now universally known as "Whistler's Mother."

That this painting has become a sentimental paradox in the light of artist James Abbott McNeill Whistler's constant denial of his birthplace — Lowell, Mass., 1834 — and his giving instead of St. Petersburg, Russia. His biography, "The Gentle Art of Making Enemies," contains only sketchy reference to his forebears other than his boast, his grandfather, Capt. John Whistler, U.S.A., built the original Forst Dearborn in 1803.

The portrait of his mother, regarded by the artist as one of his lesser works, has evoked some writing on Mrs. Whistler; but little can be learned about Whistler's father, who remains even today too anonymous to be used as a symbol for Father's Day.

Whistler's father, Maj. George Washington Whistler, was an Army engineer. He was commissioned in 1842 by Czar Nicholas I to build the railroad from St. Petersburg to Moscow. Maj. Whistler died in Russia in 1848 and is buried in Stonington, Conn.

Some persons regard the lack of a Whistler portrait of his sire as a tribute to all fathers: The old man died at his work and probably all his life he was too busy to "sit" for his picture.

to is concerned heavily with inflation despite Watergate and other headlines in the news. Inflation is a bread-and-butter issue people can relate to, he quoted one congressman as saying.

Food prices may have eased slightly because of seasonal factors but prices in other categories have not. If there has been any change in inflation, it has been merely in the rate of gain. And no such slowdown has become apparent to the average consumer.

An inflationary trend as comprehensive as the current one is difficult to bring under control. It is based on too many factors, plus a deep-rooted belief that prices will continue to rise.

HAVANA TOURISTS

In Havana, the tourist business received a shot in the arm when 30 cons arrived from Mexico and were given haven. This is believed to have been the largest group of tourists to arrive in Cuba in days. Whether they brought much to money is not clear, but Castro will take it.

These cons, sprung from Mexican jails by kidnapers, may soon have doubts that they improved their living standard by locating in Cuba. The Castro regime does not encourage free enterprise, and thus they will not be permitted to engage in their former activities as this would be regarded as competing with the government.

But Cuban officials no doubt were glad to see the tourists. Things have been a bit lonely on the island since the U.S. shut off the flights of aerial hijackers.

The Other Side

TWIN FALLS — There can be little serious question now that the Department of Environmental and Community Services is the new big-boy on state government's block.

The crucial problem facing it though, is to avoid being labeled a big bully while at the same time holding the state's big and ugly polluters to account with one hand and making sure that a broad range of health and welfare programs are delivered with the other.

The new department is a creation of the state legislature, requested by the governor. It has a budget of about $70 million, of which $25 million is in state general fund money. It has about 90 different programs, 12 divisions, seven regions, hundreds of employees and the authority to cut across a lot of lines around the state.

At this point, the agency seems to be running on a series of conflicting tensions. That was clear at the agency's board meeting in Twin Falls last week, when a two-day agenda was dispensed with in one day. It is clear in the press releases, clear in the fast pace that is being set by some and tolerated by others and clear in the slow organizational process that is building excitement with some people and only fatigue with others.

There are the Bax people, the Macka people, the health people, the welfare people, the environmental people. There are those who work in the state office in Boise and those who work with and know more intimately the seven regions and dozens of local offices.

There is, perhaps, most interestingly, the tension between the young and old. They are, in addition to being young, tough, bright, dedicated and idealistic. Their attitude is almost boyish enthusiasm at times, stemming from their obvious if overblown feeling that they are somehow on the cutting edge in Idaho government — and society participating everyday in the crucial decisions of state government. They share their sense of urgency and excitement and sense of wantip to invite everyone along for the fun ride.

Balanced against that, though, is the much less attractive arrogance that has no use for those who question intent or even results.

These men simply leave the impression that they haven't run up against anything yet that is unmovable, and their faith is such that they seem certain they won't.

There is a large group of older administrators, men who are characterized by their practical, one-step-at-a-time approach to the problems of state government. Unlike some of the others, they give the impression of having seen a lot of problems that won't yield acceptable solutions, even to the most resolute idealist.

It is a safe bet that no one of these tensions in itself is the key. It seems to be the tension itself, energy rather than conflict, that is running the new agency. That, of course, put administrator Dr. James A. Bax in a central position.

This job is to make it possible for all the tensions to coexist and to work together, to render from that process a department of people and programs that can provide services and clean up rivers and streams.

His technique right now seems to be along these lines. He is keeping everybody moving, everybody guessing, everybody thinking, and everybody working, and the toilers will shake out on their own.

A lot of people are watching to see what happens to the new big boy department in the next several months. They are watching the agency, the organization and the people. After all, the executive branch of state government has to be re-designed by 1975, and no one is throwing away molds yet, but then again, no one has begun to copy them, either.

Ellsberg plans suit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The attorney for Daniel Ellsberg said Saturday a damage suit would be filed in Washington against Nixon administration officials to recover part of the estimated $600,000 spent by the defense in the Pentagon Papers case.

But attorney Leonard Houdin said the suit presently did not include charging President Nixon in such a suit in conjunction with the burglary of Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office and wiretapping of Ellsberg's phone calls.

"Unless enough evidence can be produced to justify his being named, Mr. Nixon will not be included," Ellsberg, codefendant Anthony J. Russo, their wives, lawyers and staff held a press conference Saturday morning.

It followed a champagne victory party in Beverly Hills Friday night attended by about 300 persons, including nine jurors, after U.S. District Judge Milt Byrne dismissed all charges against Ellsberg and Russo on grounds of government misconduct.

The 42-year-old Ellsberg, referring to the party and his conversations with the jurors, said the defense now knew it would have had an outright acquittal if the case had gone to the jury.

Asked about his future plans, Ellsberg said he planned to spend a considerable period with his wife, Patricia, and then go back to "research, writing and reading."

"The press has performed most honorably in the past months," Ellsberg said. "Now the press is being joined by Congress and the courts to expose the misconduct of the executive branch."

Russo, 32, said he planned to spend a year writing a book. In the meantime, Russo said, he intended to work on a "national impeachment effort" against President Nixon.

Russo said he was flying to Chicago for a meeting to discuss that action to be attended by hundreds of people including Angela Davis, the Rev. Ralph Abernathy and leaders of the American Indian Movement.

Ellsberg was asked whether he would join such an impeachment movement.

"I've been thinking about Richard Nixon for several years," Ellsberg replied. "I thought enough about him. I hope never to think about him again."

Boudin said the proposed damage suit would be carefully put together and that he could not say when it would be filed. He said the civil action would be taken in the U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C.

Boudin said such a suit would require a hearing in which the defense intended to call persons implicated in what Judge Byrne characterized as violating "a sense of justice" in the prosecution of Ellsberg and Russo.

The attorney named no individuals but he had asked at the Pentagon Papers trial for the summoning of former Attorney General John Mitchell, White House aides John Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman, ousted presidential counsel John Dean, former FBI Acting Director Patrick Gray and a host of other Nixon aides.

Stan Scheinbaum, the defense fund raiser at whose home the victory party was held into the early morning hours, estimated that the case and the trial had cost $900,000. He said about $400,000 had been raised through contributions.

A poll of the jurors at their homes after the dismissal revealed that several favored acquittal and most of the others were "leaning" toward it.

In his brief remarks at the news conference, Ellsberg said there had been a victory but "the war is not over."

"There have been 145,000 tons of bombs dropped on Cambodia since the so-called cease fire more than was dropped on Japan in all of World War II," he said.

Thousands turned out. Brezhnev, accompanied by Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, flew to East Berlin to confer with Erich Honecker, first secretary of the East German Communist party, on his May 18-22 trip to West Germany.

Brezhnev cheered by Berlin crowds

BERLIN (UPI) — Cheering, flag-waving crowds Saturday gave Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, one of the warmest welcomes ever received in East Berlin.

Communist youth life and drum corps, beat bands, goose-stepping troops and crowds of spectators greeted Brezhnev on his arrival from Warsaw, where he spent 24 hours conferring with Polish leaders. The East German news service ADN said "hundreds of thousands" turned out. Brezhnev, accompanied by Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, flew to East Berlin to confer with Erich Honecker, first secretary of the East German Communist party, on his May 18-22 trip to West Germany.

Chief Pathet Lao negotiator, Saturday accused the U.S. and right-wing Lao elements of sabotaging the negotiations and implementation of the cease-fire, and demanded that the Laotian government resume weekly negotiation conferences.

The government broke off the weekly meetings a month ago, accusing the Pathet Lao of using them only for propaganda purposes. Secret high-level negotiations have continued through the weekly meetings have been suspended.

VIENTIANE (UPI) — Former Prime Minister Phou Sananikone, a hard-line right-winger and frequent critic of neutralist Prime Minister Prince Souvanna Phouma, was re-elected Saturday as speaker of the 60-member National Assembly.

Phou, 70, told the deputies he will do his best to pressure Souvanna into submitting to the assembly for ratification and approval of the cease-fire agreement signed with the Communist Pathet Lao on Feb. 21.

He said the assembly is not opposed to the agreement, but insists on its prerogatives and duties.

VD study under fire

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — A federal study in which black men suffering from syphilis were left untreated for more than 20 years after a cure for the disease was discovered was a racist violation of human rights, the Alabama Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights said Saturday.

The U.S. Public Health Service has canceled the project and offered free, lifetime medical care to the 114 survivors of the experiment, but the committee reported an official said normal treatment for syphilis in such advanced stages could endanger the lives of the men, most of whom are now over 70 years old.

Six hundred men took part in the study, which began more than 40 years ago. Most of them had contracted syphilis before the government project began; other uninfected men were included in the project as a "control group."

Aide lists payments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hugh W. Sloan Jr., President Nixon's former re-election treasurer, has testified he gave $600,000 in campaign funds to Nixon's personal lawyer and a White House aide for unknown purposes, according to court records.

"I can't imagine what any individual would be paid that amount of money personally for," Sloan said. "I think obviously there would be a secondary distribution of the funds."

Sloan made his statements in a pre-trial deposition for the Democrats' $6.4 million civil damage suit against the Committee to Re-elect the President. The case has grown out of the June 17 bugging of Democratic national headquarters in the Watergate complex.

Among these disbursements, he said, were:

- $350,000 in cash in a briefcase to Gordon Strachan, who recently resigned as general counsel for the U.S. Information Agency and who at the time was political liaison for then White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman. Sloan said the payment was made before the April 7 deadline and was approved by Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's personal lawyer.

$250,000 to Kalmbach, also prior to April 7 and often merely through receipts for contributions which Kalmbach said he had received. Kalmbach has told the FBI he paid between $30,000 and $40,000 to Donald H. Segretti, a California lawyer alleged to have played a key role in various acts of political espionage and sabotage against the Democrats last year.

$199,000 to G. Gordon Liddy, former White House aide, finance counsel for the re-election committee at the time, and later convicted in the Watergate "bugging." The amount included $83,000 approved by deputy campaign manager Jeb S. Magruder as part of Liddy's budget, and four Mexican checks totaling $89,000 dated April 5.

$100,000 to Herbert L. Porter, then in charge of the re-election committee's program of "surrogate" campaign speakers, including about $11,000 paid under Magruder's authorization after April 7.

$20,000 to Magruder in early 1972.

Scandal GOP threat

ATLANTA (UPI) — The newly-named chairman of the National Democratic Campaign Committee cautioned his party Saturday against over-stressing Watergate and said Democrats could not blame their shattering 1972 Presidential defeat on the cover-up of the scandal.

"I honestly think it would be a mistake to manipulate it (Watergate) in an overly partisan manner," the new chairman, Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia told UPI.

Carter said the depth of the scandal already poses a threat to Republican candidates at all levels and was causing some to disassociate themselves from President Nixon's administration.

But the governor said the Democrats' image with many voters was so distorted during the 1972 presidential campaign that he was not sure voters would have believed "the facts about Watergate even if they had been revealed."

Thus, he said, his party could not blame its showing on the cover-up.

Carter said Watergate will be fresh enough in voters' minds in 1974 to foment voter distrust of Republicans.

"Contrary to what was the case in 1972," he said, "I do not think the President and the White House will be an asset to Republicans around the country."

But the governor said the Democrats' image with many voters was so distorted during

Rogers starts swing

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers arrived Saturday to start an eight-nation mission through Latin America—the most extensive visit to the area by a secretary of state in 40 years.

He faced a busy weekend schedule in Mexico City that included talks with the highest Mexican officials on issues ranging from narcotics traffic to the salinity of the Colorado River.

Rogers was greeted at Mexico City airport by Foreign Secretary Emilio O. Rabasa.

Tight security prevailed and Rogers' scheduled of activities was kept secret until shortly before his arrival at 11:35 a.m. aboard a U.S. military jet from Washington.

The first thing Rogers did was to thank the Mexican government for obtaining the safe release of kidnapped U.S. consul general Terrence G. Leonard by guerrillas last Monday at Guadalajara.

"I convey the thanks of President Nixon and the thanks of the people of the United States to President (Luis) Echeverria and the Mexican people," Rogers said.

In his arrival statement, Rogers also stressed the "frankness" of U.S.-Mexican relations and said his Latin American tour "will be concerned with a relationship of realism, equality and equity between the United States and other members of the American community."

GOP chief sees gains

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican National Chairman George Bush told a GOP gathering Saturday that successful fund-raising indicated the Watergate scandal had not hurt the party.

"Because of Watergate, some individuals have lost," Bush said. "But the party is winning. This is a fact which cannot be overlooked. In spite of the doomsayers, life goes on; the party continues to grow."

Bush and other GOP leaders spoke at the third annual convention of the National Republican Heritage Groups Council, an organization of ethnic groups. More than 600 delegates and guests are attending a three-day session which ends Sunday.

Prof plans suit protesting firing

BOISE (UPI) — Trustees of Idaho State University refused Saturday to reconsider their dismissal of Dr. Rufus Lyman and the long-time biology professor said he will bring a civil rights suit against them.

Lyman appeared before the trustees, who also serve as regents of the University of Idaho and as the State Board of Education, at a brief hearing to seek a reversal of his dismissal.

When the board adjourned without a motion to reconsider, Lyman's attorney, Joseph N. De Raimes, Boulder, Colo., regional counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union, (ACLU) told newsmen Lyman will take his case to U.S. District Court.

De Raimes said the action will be filed just as soon as the papers can be prepared. He contended before the board that Lyman's constitutional rights were infringed upon by the board.

Lyman was fired by direct board action April 20. Since then all the board will say about his dismissal is that it acted under statutory authority and took the action in part because of a letter written to the ISU faculty affairs committee by Lyman April 16.

In this letter, directed to Dr. Kenneth Smith, chairman Lyman questioned undisclosed charges against him which the committee supposedly was investigating.

"I protest the inquisition without charges proposed by the faculty affairs committee in its meeting of April 13, 1973," the tenure professor wrote Smith.

"This procedure is illegal according to the university's own faculty handbook, is without academic precedent on this campus or anywhere else...and furthermore may prove damaging to my personal and professional reputation," he wrote.

In this letter Lyman pointed out that he had requested that those seeking information about him include a statement to the effect "that it would be wise for any person supplying derogatory material to be prepared to prove his allegations before a court of law."

When Lyman appeared before the board Saturday Edward Benoit, a new board member from Twin Falls and a lawyer in private life, asked Lyman if he wrote the letter in question. Lyman said he did.

Benoit then outlined the position of the board which was that it acted under statutory authority which supersedes the faculty handbook or policy manual. He said the action was taken for "cause" as required by law and was unanimous, direct board action.

Aide use checkout pledged

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho State Board of Education promised Friday to look into a complaint by the Idaho Education Association that unvetted personnel are being used as classroom teachers.

"A grave and serious problem is rapidly developing in Idaho and getting out of hand," a report signed by IEA Executive Secretary Wayne York said.

"We are concerned regarding certification requirements, standards of education and the quality of instruction in the classrooms because of the large number of adult volunteers and teachers' aides who are being used in the public schools in this state," York said.

The report said the association was not concerned with the proper use of these persons, but it said the problem is their use as replacements for certified classroom teachers.

York said the association would prefer a corrective action by the state department and the State Board of Education instead of legislation.

Andrus raps log exports

GRANGEVILLE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus told the North Idaho Chamber of Commerce Friday most of the lumber industry's problems are being created by insensitive, arbitrary federal bureaucracy.

Andrus said there should be a total embargo on log exports not only from the West Coast but the United States at large. And he said the allowable timber cut on federal forests should be increased.

"It is my hope that the federal government will wake up before it is too late that they will listen to concerned governors like myself, and concerned members of Congress such as Sen. (Frank) Church and to concerned industry people as well as concerned business men and merchants. Like you here today," he said.

"If not," he said, "the obvious end result is going to be fewer loggers working on hillside, fewer sawmills in valleys throughout the state, fewer employees carrying lunch buckets in all sizes of communities, less lumber production, less home building and finally, a simply devastating blow to this state's economy."

Discussing the problem involved in log exports, Andrus said the exportation of logs "is the same as exporting jobs from Idaho and that is something that I am not going to permit."

Body recovered

LEWISTON (UPI) — Searchers combing the rugged banks of the Snake River south of here Saturday recovered the body of Jack Bowman, 44, missing since April 23.

Nozperce County sheriff's deputies said Bowman's body was found along the river bank about 31 miles south of Lewiston about 8:30 a.m. Saturday.

Bowman had been missing for nearly three weeks when the boat he was piloting capsized and sank in the Innaha Rapids about 50 miles south of Lewiston. Seven others were aboard the boat and six were later pulled from the icy and swift current.

Bowman's cousin, Edward Williams, 44, former Idaho legislative leader, disappeared also and it is feared he drowned along with Bowman in the river. Deputies said they would continue scouring the river banks until Williams' body is found.

Solon duty pay differential OK

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's Board of Education approved in principle Saturday a proposed policy to pay higher education faculty members the difference between per diem and straight salary when serving in the legislature.

A. L. Alford Jr. Lewiston, told fellow board members he felt it was discrimination against university and college teachers to deprive them of their full pay for serving in the legislature.

He said he knows personally of one case where such a person had to take out a $1,500 loan to make ends meet. He called that discrimination against the lawmaker's family.

Closure produces protest

BOISE (UPI) — A Lewiston newsman Friday protested a State Board of Education move to close a portion of its meeting to discuss the recent dismissal of an Idaho State University professor.

The board moved into executive session Friday to discuss the recent dismissal of Dr. Rufus Lyman, an ISU biology professor with more than 20 years of tenure at the college.

Jay Shelledy, an education writer for the Lewiston Morning Tribune, protested the board's action, saying Lyman had become a public figure because of news coverage surrounding his dismissal.

Shelledy said Lyman's personality had been discussed in the news. The board met privately with ISU President William E. Davis and university attorneys.

Gem panel wins extended life

BOISE (UPI) — The State Board of Education Friday agreed to keep alive a controversial ad hoc committee on school district organization in Idaho.

The board instructed the committee — headed by Caldwell School District Supt. Jerry Evans — to prepare legislation on district organization and equalization of education to be introduced in the 1974 session of the state legislature.

"I don't think we were successful," Evans said of the package of bills submitted to the 1973 legislature. Only one of the five bills passed both houses and was signed into law.

The major measures concerning equalization, changes in the school fund formula and the creation of a statewide organization committee failed.

Evans told the board the committee got bogged down in a large school district small school district issue.

But he added equalization in education is not a matter between smaller and large school districts, but one that affects all school children in the state.

Following the meeting Evans said he was not optimistic about the legislation passing during the next session of the legislature.

"We will be dealing with the same people," he said of the lawmakers.

He recommended the composition of its ad hoc committee include members from the smaller school districts in the state. He also said the committee could use a "champion" in the house.

In the past, according to Evans, lawmakers voted against organization measures because they didn't understand them.

"Last session some voted against the bills because they understood them," he said.

Line plans eyed

TWIN FALLS — County commissioners met Friday with fair board members and representatives of the JUB engineering firm to discuss preliminary plans for new water main locations at the fairgrounds.

The water mains will provide for a $57,000 project for fire protection improvement at the fairgrounds, which in turn is part of a $147,000 revenue sharing fund to be used for improvements at the county facility this year.

County Commissioner Bill Wiseman said the Friday meeting was just a preliminary one to begin studies on location of the mains and to keep the commissioners abreast of what progress is being made.

"Where Your Buck Makes More Cents!!"
1115 BLUE LAKES BOULEVARD NORTH

Golf course, housing planned in Snake canyon

The first stage is the golf course. McCollum's original plan was to build a nine-hole course to tie in with the existing Blue Lakes Country Club nine-hole course immediately across the river and accessible by the old I-B Perrine bridge which now carries the city's main water line.

McCollum took his proposal to the country club, offering to donate 80 acres of greens, roughs, fairways and lakes in return for perpetual maintenance of the course and a delayed payback of the approximate $250,000 construction cost.

The Country Club has rejected the offer.

In a letter to all members, country club president and former Twin Falls Mayor, Egton Kroll wrote April 1:

"Many of you were aware of a proposal to construct a nine-hole golf course with home sites. (McCollum says home sites were not included in his proposal to Blue Lakes, although planned for a later date) on the south side of the river, across from the club.

"After much study, consideration and evaluation of the proposal, your board formally turned down the proposal."

Despite this, McCollum intends to go ahead with his golf course. "Basically, they need another nine holes and we're going to build another nine holes," he says. "Whether they would be interested or not is another question."

McCollum points out that a new board of directors and a new president will be installed soon at the club. The new president probably will be John Rosholt, current first vice president. He is also chairman of the city zoning commission and, as an attorney for McCollum drew up a water and sewage agreement with the city — involving the property.

McCollum admits he is playing a waiting game. "If it doesn't come to pass, I didn't play it right." He says he is content to let his "children and grandchildren" develop the property should his own plans go awry.

McCollum has set no date for construction of his golf course. His architect, Max Mueller, is still at work on design and engineering studies.

McCollum, apparently disappointed that Blue Lakes did not agree to his proposal, says the club would benefit by a $210,000 "gift" under his proposal — $80,000 in donated land and another $130,000 on the delay of interest on the construction costs.

"Nobody loves that club more than I do." He is himself a member of Blue Lakes.

McCollum said that one reason he approached the club, was that the club members would have access to the course over the already existing bridge, saving him from having to deal for the time being, with the ticklish question of access by road.

McCollum's long-range plans call for the development of condominiums and dwellings in and around the golf course fairways and along the river frontage.

To this end McCollum has already completed a legal agreement with the city of Twin Falls to transport water, for which he has a permit, from Alpheus Creek on the north side of the canyon through the city's waterline from the same source. With gravity feed, McCollum would require no pumping by the city.

The agreement further stipulates that if the city needed the line in full capacity, McCollum's water would be cut off.

A second part of the agreement requires that the city take over operation and maintenance of McCollum's water and sewer systems in the development once installed.

In return, McCollum grants rights-of-way and easements to the system and certain specified usage of McCollum's water system by the city in connection with the operation of the city sewage treatment plant adjacent to the property at the west.

The effect of McCollum's agreement with the city is to provide water along with water and sewer services to residents and users of his planned development. The city gains user fees, a monthly fee of $12 per cubic foot per second for McCollum's water transported through the city waterline, easements and use of McCollum's installations to conduct water to the sewage treatment plant.

"It's a damn good agreement for the city and for us when we get to that point," he says.

But before that point McCollum says, the existing access road into the canyon will have to be rebuilt.

As with the golf course, McCollum is waiting. He hopes to reach a compromise with one or more government agencies so that the estimated $200,000 cost of upgrading the road and the cost of maintaining it won't have to be borne by himself and Jack Simplot.

"My timetable is based on the assumption that public demand for access to that river will prevail," says McCollum. He admits he would like to see his access road go to public ownership and maintenance.

The land McCollum has allocated for his golf course development and residential structures comprises about 100 acres on the western half of his property. The eastern portion is mostly in rough pasture and rock. A portion of the river frontage, about 5 1/2 acres, is owned by Bob Davis of Colonial Concrete, who operates a sand dredging operation.

McCollum says plans for the eastern half of his property haven't jelled yet. "Every time I go up there I get a different idea."

On its eastern end McCollum's land borders a parcel of undeveloped land owned by the Bureau of Land Management which extends roughly a quarter mile west and a half mile east of the present Perrine Bridge.

McCollum would like to see this parcel retained in its wild state with a series of trails put through for hikers and fishermen. To this end, he is willing to donate, he says, four or five acres for a parking lot.

"I'd like to see the whole area left just like it is, including the last quarter mile of my own property," McCollum says. "We would just blend into what they (BLM) would do with theirs."

The BLM also owns land near the outfall of Rock Creek into the Snake River. Although this land is separated from McCollum's property by other privately owned tracts, the Taylor grade by which McCollum reaches his property is the only likely access to the area.

The Burley district of the BLM, which administers these parcels, is in the process of drawing up recommendations for their use.

BLM officials say since public lands in the canyon are not extensive, it is likely these tracts will be retained for public recreation, if access to them can be arranged. McCollum's road could provide that access well and is therefore a bargaining point.

Presently, the Taylor grade is maintained by the city of Twin Falls under an easement agreement with McCollum to allow the city to reach the sewage treatment plant.

Despite the public upkeep, public use is strongly discouraged.

Private property and no trespassing signs, some bearing skull and crossbones discourage travel.

At its upper end as it begins its descent into the canyon, the road is narrow allowing only single lane traffic. Old guard rails lean away from the grade. The road itself is littered with small rocks which have fallen from the cliffs above.

To widen this section would require blasting the canyon wall and, McCollum says "perhaps a few of John Breckenridge's lambing pens."

McCollum says he is in no hurry to undertake this task. He also is insistent the road in its present condition will not be opened to the public.

"There's no point in talking access down here unless the road is improved," McCollum says, "and for what I'm doing, I don't need it."

While McCollum is waiting for public pressure to mount to bring some government funding for road improvement, the BLM is completing its land use study.

Although McCollum governs the access, BLM officials are aware that McCollum will eventually need road improvements to complete his development plans. A waiting game.

As a further bargaining point, the BLM also owns about 10 acres of land in the middle of the eastern half of McCollum's property. McCollum has tried to claim or buy this land, so far without success.

McCollum says no one from the Bureau of Land Management or elsewhere has "made any approach about that access road." He did say the subject has been touched on in other dealings.

BLM really specialist Dell Waddoups, says the road has been discussed with McCollum. "We don't have a commitment to use it right now," says Waddoups. "We're working on one, but we don't have it."

While McCollum agrees he is interested in the BLM's plans, he says his development is in no way dependent upon BLM's use of its land.

"I'd like to think that our development could tie in with BLM development both east and west of us. Any innuendo that what I plan has anything to do with BLM plans is not correct. I've made every overture to BLM that I can. Now the only thing to do is to go ahead with my plans and see what comes up."

One possible answer to improvement of the access road, a very iffy one, suggested by BLM officials, would involve widening the road for the removal of the current Perrine

Memorial Bridge after the new one is in place.

The contractor, Allied Structural Steel Co., for the new bridge is also responsible for the demolition of the present bridge.

Highway department officials, BLM administrators and McCollum all say Allied plans to pontoon the dismantled steel down river to a point near the east end of McCollum's property and then haul it by truck out of the canyon up the Taylor grade.

McCollum said he received a request from the Indiana firm to haul the steel up the grade and has given permission to do so. He is skeptical that the road will have to be improved for this purpose. "I would suspect they could get up the grade," he said.

Spanish-Americans lag, US survey shows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — day. Americans of Spanish origin tend to be poorer, younger, in larger families and not so well educated as Americans of other ethnic backgrounds, according to U.S. Census Bureau data released Saturday.

The data, based on surveys in March, 1972, showed that the largest ethnic group in the United States is of English, Scottish or Welsh background. This group numbers about 29.5 million and accounts for about 14.4 per cent of the U.S. population.

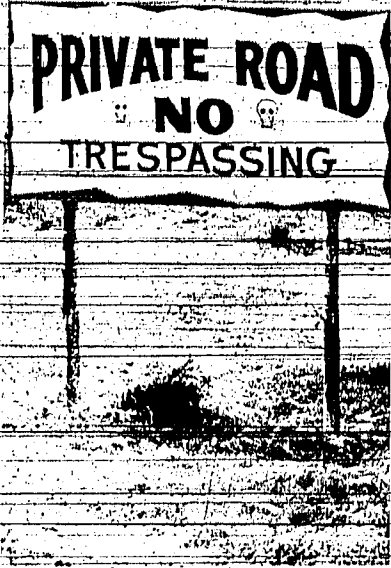

The German ethnic group is next in size with 25.5 million, 12.5 per cent of the population. There were 16.4 million Irish, 8 per cent of the population. The Spanish group numbers 9.2 million and includes those reporting Mexican; Puerto Rican, Cuban and Central or South American origin or other Spanish origin, according to the census data.

"Persons of Spanish origin on the average are quite young," the census data said. "The median age of persons of Spanish origin in 1972 was 20.1 years, considerably below the national average of 28 years."

More than one-third of the Spanish-origin Americans were under 14 years old in 1972.

"The families with a head of Spanish origin were larger than all families in the nation and they also had lower incomes than all families in the nation," the report said.

Golf course plans drawn

(Continued from p. 8) Whatever the final solution to improvement of the Taylor access, McCullum recognizes the public interest in access to the canyon.

"I think the public deserves access and I'll do anything I can on it, particularly with the property to the east and the west of me. . . I would like to see people enjoy what I enjoy."

"The one thing I don't want," said McCullum, "is thousands of people coming down a one-way road that is not safe, that is a private road, and that I could be held legally responsible for."

McCullum has presented a rough sketch of his plans to the county zoning commission. The commission has not yet acted on McCullum's proposals.

Noting that since his plans have become public he has had "a thousand people" call wanting to buy a lot, McCullum emphasizes that he is not going to do anything with his property "that we can do it right."

"We're not promoting anything," he says.

McCullum says the development will be "something different."

He says he plans to put power lines underground and to retain as much of the natural setting as possible. "We're going to leave everything here that we can save, and probably a lot more that we can't save."

He also plans to develop part of his property as a refuge for wildlife.

"I'm hoping to get some game birds (he has already released about two dozen chukkers) and get some habitat developed. If we can keep people from shooting around, we could have a little paradise down here."

McCullum says he acquired the Taylor property through circumstances of a long-standing relationship with the Taylor family.

"I kind of backed into this thing," he said, "but now that I'm in it, I love it."

McCullum describes his partnership with Simplot as a "joint venture, except that I have to do all the work and put up half the capital."

When the project is finished, Simplot and McCullum will own the results 50-50, including the land, McCullum says.

"Jack Simplot has been a great employer for me and partner at various times," says McCullum, "and I'm delighted to have him in on it. Personally, I think he's one of Idaho's greatest. He believes in people!"

Crowds view Artrain in TF

TWIN FALLS — Hundreds of Magic Valley residents have viewed cultural displays of the Artrain which remains here until 9 p.m. Monday.

Official opening of the Artrain displays took place Friday evening when Mrs. Cecil Andrus, wife of Idaho's governor, cut the ribbon following a tour, tea and brief program.

The train is open to the public today from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. and on Monday from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Previously announced times were incorrect.

School classes will be touring the train on Monday during school hours.

Mrs. Andrus, leading a tour of special city, county and state officials Friday, was also honored with a tea in the special train. She praised the Artrain as "something new in the way of cultural opportunity for Idahoans."

Mary Walker, master of ceremonies, introduced Mrs. Andrus and other dignitaries.

The Artrain, sponsored by the Federation of Rocky Mountain States Inc., is coming to the Gem State through the courtesy of the Idaho Commission on Arts and Humanities.

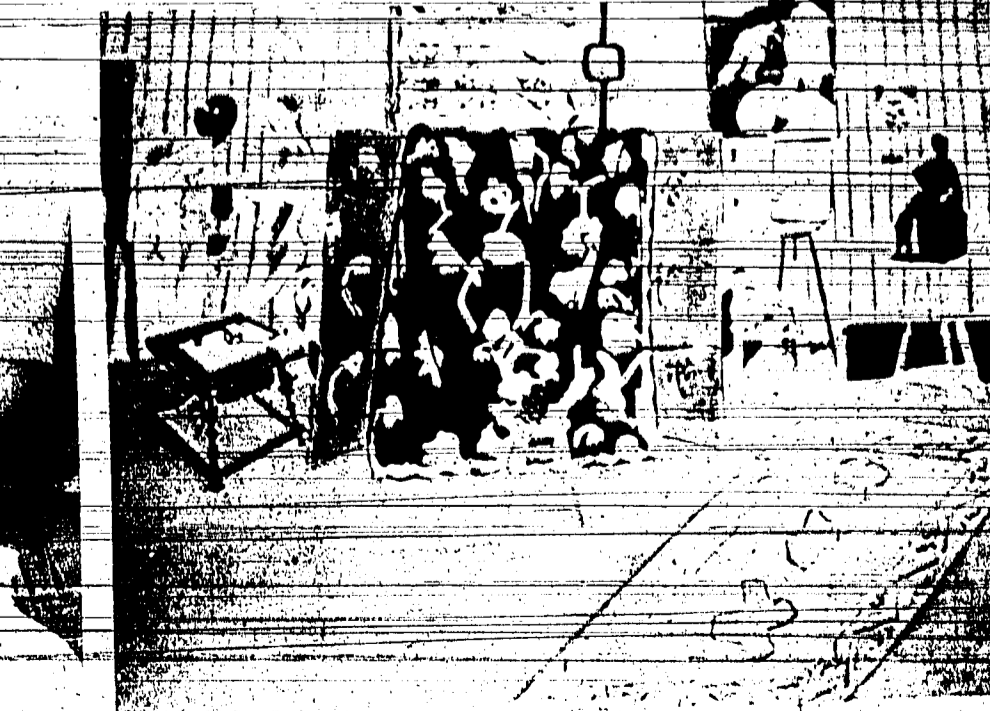

Other contributors to the special six-car train of art objects, displays and slide stories include the Michigan Council for Arts which created the Artrain; National Endowment for the Arts, Washington, D. C., providing grants to gather the materials and collections; and six western railroads which operate by moving the Artrain around the Rocky Mountain area.

The Union-Pacific Railroad is providing transportation for the special train in Idaho. It consists of six specially designed and built sound equipped cars with no engine and depends on available railroad engine for transportation between communities.

Stop?

Double trouble

Pedestrian vs. vehicle: and the winner is . . .

By JOCELYN CLOWARD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS: In a confrontation between pedestrian and vehicle in downtown Twin Falls, the pedestrian is often the loser.

Perhaps he is an endangered species, worthy of watching by reporter and photographer, to see what are his habits and migratory patterns. Does he dodge traffic and hope for safety, or does he stroll unconcernedly, letting traffic watch for him?

The assignment is difficult. It is hard to go to a sunny corner on a balmy day and watch traffic. One must work at it a long time, before returning to the newsroom.

In an automobile-pedestrian confrontation, who is the winner? Obviously the vehicle is heavier, more powerful, and will win in any collision situation. But can a pedestrian outrun an automobile, or is the old rule "the pedestrian has the right of way," an invalid one?

The Times-News observers clocked two 15 minute periods at Twin Falls intersections this week. In both places, the car was the winner.

At the intersection of Main and Shoshone Streets, 103 pedestrian crossings were observed (some of those were return trips.) Of those pedestrians contesting with vehicles, only 21 were stopped for, out of 52 who supposedly had the right of way, but were not noticed by automobiles and trucks. The vehicles tended to stop more often for more than one person. Of the 21 stops, for pedestrians in the crosswalk, 14 were for more than one person crossing at the same time.

The Times-News still opted to believe in the sanctity of the person of the pedestrian. The intersection of Third Street West with Second Avenue West between the Times News Building and the U. S. Post Office building was then watched for a fifteen minute period. There, unfortunately, the pedestrian lost identity against the one-way traffic.

Only 13 hardy walkers attempted to cross the three lanes of traffic. Of those, according to the crosswalk law, seven needed to be stopped for, but only one was noticed by passing motorists and allowed to cross without waiting for traffic to pass by. The automobile was winner, at least until the gas shortage gets worse.

Patterns worthy of note: Observations at such intersections are statistically inaccurate, but some generalizations can be drawn.

Pedestrians are often overwhelmed by trucks. In a five minute period 20 such vehicles pass by, two are loaded cattle trucks (in downtown Twin Falls?), three are milk trucks and one a diesel truck-trailer outfit. A wrecker hurries through. Fourteen telephone company trucks (believe it or not) are recorded in a longer period of time. Surely some must be the same ones coming through again. Why all through this particular intersection?

Species of pedestrian: What are styles and methods of crossing?

Hesitation at curb: Drivers don't see the hesitator. He blends into the background instinctively as he cringes backward from the curb.

Baldness in face of traffic: This breed looks neither to right nor left, but plunges toward the far side of the street. Traffic usually slows down for him.

The long distance runner: He begins a dash before leaving the shadow of the corner building, and runs across the theoretically empty roadway.

The mother: She often has a baby in stroller, sometimes in her arms, sometimes in tow. Strollers are hard to maneuver over the center strip. Escapo from traffic takes a few seconds more time. Attention is divided.

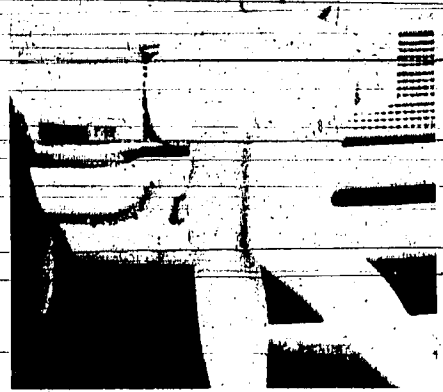

The meanderer: This one is sometimes feeble, sometimes absent minded. He forgets traffic and walks erratically. He often stumbles or curls, but is always safe, as motorists notice him. Moral: Be unpredictable, it attracts more attention.

Questions:
Which drivers stop for pedestrians?
No pattern discernible. Perhaps the afternoon is too pleasant. Drivers are not quick to stop, but are reasonably polite. No one is run down.

Why don't more people use bicycles? Cyclists observed are carefree, more mobile than automobile drivers, less vulnerable than pedestrians.

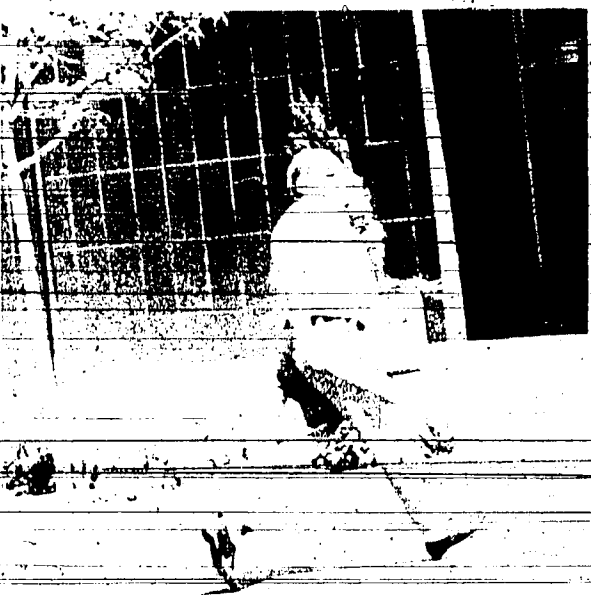

Why don't double parkers realize that they cause traffic problems? One car in the neck of the mall halfway in the traffic lane stops 10 cars.

Is it really true, or does it just seem that women driving sports cars through busy intersections drive them faster than men driving same?

School room display

THIS old-fashioned school room is one of the many complete displays at the Twin Falls County Historical Society Museum on Highway 30. Many new items have been added to the museum and to the buildings in the back which include a blacksmith shop, barn, complete house and large machinery building.

Brainy monkeys

NEW YORK (UPI) — Contrary to common belief, man's brain is not the largest in the animal kingdom in comparison to his size. There are a number of monkeys, say the editors of Time-Life Books' new series, "The Emergence of Man," whose brains are much larger in proportion to their bodies than man's. Brain quality, not quantity, therefore helps explain man's ascendancy over other forms of life on earth, the editors say.

Antique buffs will enjoy new displays at museum

By MARJORIE LIJERMAN
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Take off a few hours some afternoon and visit the Twin Falls County Historical Society Museum on Highway 30 west of Twin Falls — you'll be glad you did.

If it's a "first time" for you, or if you are an antique buff and have been through the museum often, you will enjoy seeing the large display of Early American items and touring the neat and well-arranged buildings. New items are always being added.

Mrs. Harold Waggoner, custodian of the museum, said three times as many people went through the museum buildings during April this year compared to a year ago. May is school children's month and the custodians expect more than a thousand school children to view the displays. Schools make reservations for these tours in advance.

The museum is open each day except Saturday. It has a large rest and picnic area with tables and benches and shade trees.

The interior of the museum has been arranged into a number of rooms. The west section holds a large assortment of clothing including several lovely wedding gowns which came from Paris many years ago.

The center section holds artifacts and rocks, and the entrance is devoted to pictures and stories of the early settling of the Twin Falls Tract.

The east section contains a room with a number of old phonographs and music machines, and a school room which has been furnished with old school desks, maps, books, and a model of a school teacher.

A kitchen, which looks like a page from an old pioneer book, shows the crude appliances and utensils used in early days. After leaving the main building, tourists may take a leisurely stroll through an old blacksmith shop, several farm buildings, an early butcher shop and a small house completely furnished, on the west side and back of the large building.

A large metal building was added last year to house large pieces of machinery and equipment. Inside this building are an old steam engine, a Civil War cannon (donated by Ed Vogel, Buhl), several oldtime ice wagons formerly used in Twin Falls, and other interesting pieces of machinery.

Mrs. Carolee Parrott, worthy patron and Ted Smith, worthy patron, conducted the business meeting.

Reports were given by Mrs. Flossie McGregor, treasurer; Mrs. Susan Clark, secretary, annual report; Ted Smith, finance committee; Lloyd Nelson, attendance; and Mrs. Ruby Dean, sick and visiting committee.

to dummy with a heart to lead a second diamond. East would play the queen and our expert declarer would let East hold the trick. West would never get in and the contract would wrap up.

A really expert East would fail this play before it got started. He would review the bidding and see that South had to hold both ace and king of diamonds for his bid. He might also hold the jack in which case, East's queen would be worthless. Then he would see that if West held three diamonds to the jack and could gain the lead, West would set the contract.

After that it would be child's play for our top expert to discard his queen of diamonds to get out of his partner's way.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of holding two diamonds your partner has jumped to three diamonds. What do you do now?

on the freezer side (which isn't used as often as the refrigerator).

Allow enough space for a chest freezer lid to open completely between the freezer top and bottom of wall cabinets or shelves.

An automatic icemaker in the freezer or refrigerator requires a cold water line.

Because the refrigerator or freezer generates cold and a dishwasher produces heat and steam, these appliances should be separated by 3-inch insulated filler strip.

Do not place the refrigerator immediately next to the range.

Avoid putting the refrigerator, upright freezer, or wall oven in a corner, beside a wall or next to a line of cabinets. The refrigerator and freezer doors usually must open more than 90 degrees to remove contents and shelves.

It's easier to load, unload and clean the oven when there is space all around the open door.

These are for wearing with the dresses that are part of the look.

Abby

Abigail Van-Buren

DEAR ABBY: A long-time friend has been sharing my apartment during the week while working in the city. [We're both male.] He was returning to his country home and wife on weekends. This arrangement probably contributed to their present marital status — legal separation.

To my dismay, my roommate has invited his wife to occupy his vacant room at my apartment when he is out of town on frequent business trips.

The wife seems to thrive on this new urban atmosphere. She invites her country bumpkin friends as well as her new fellow-shrink patients for group therapy sessions in the apartment.

I am losing my mind over this arrangement. How do you feel about an estranged wife filling in as a roommate during her husband's absence? ANONYMOUS

Officers named

Bumpkin invasion

DEAR ANONYMOUS: I think your friend had a lot of gall offering his wife the use of YOUR apartment in his absence, and the wife has her nerve abusing the privilege. I also think you are a gutless wonder for permitting it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a senior in high school, 17, and pregnant. My boy friend and I love each other and we want to get married. Our problem is we can't find a minister who will marry us and we want to get married in a church.

Neither one of us belongs to a church, but we do believe in God. Abby, we have gone to three churches and the ministers there have refused to marry us because we don't belong to THEIR church. Since when does a church belong to the minister?

Please tell us where to go. We want to get married as soon as possible without causing our parents any more heartache than they'll naturally have when they find out about this. S. AND J.

DEAR S. AND J.: I am sure I can find a clergyman who will perform the ceremony, but you must let me know where you are and how I can contact you in the meantime. I suggest you tell your parents at once. No matter what you think, they are your best friends in time of trouble.

DEAR ABBY: After 25 years of gambling, losing a small fortune, then losing my wife and family because of it, I was ready to commit suicide. Then I joined GAMBLERS ANONYMOUS. It gave me a new lease on life.

My wife gave me another chance and I am happy to say that I will never bet another dollar on anything as long as I live. That's a big statement for a man to make who has bet horses, dogs, dice, cards, sports — you name it. I had money on it. I've begged, borrowed and mortgaged my soul to get money to gamble with. I've known people who have forged checks and embezzled hundreds of thousands of dollars to pay their losses and when they're even, they gamble more.

I wish every compulsive gambler in the world would attend just one GAMBLERS ANONYMOUS meeting. It could save his life. It saved mine.

CURED IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR CURED: I heard about GAMBLERS ANONYMOUS 10 years ago and, although I'm no gambler, I took a chance and attended some meetings anonymously in New York and Los Angeles to check them out. It was an inspiration to see cab drivers, stock brokers, school teachers, entertainers, businessmen, musicians, bartenders, and socialites all joined together to overcome a common enemy — the urge to gamble. For information about the G.A. meetings nearest you, write to P. O. Box 12173, Los Angeles, California 90017. You can't lose. It's free.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 89700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Couple repeats marriage vows

TWIN FALLS — Teresa Buster became the bride of David Webster in an evening candlelight service April 28 at Immanuel Lutheran Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Virgil Groves and Terri Buster, both Twin Falls; and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Webster, Filer.

Rev. Mr. Winterrodd performed the double ring ceremony before the altar which was decorated with two tapered baskets of white gladioli, pink chrysanthemums and aqua blue pompon chrysanthemums.

The aisle pews were trimmed with leather leaf greenery and white stephanotis tied with white bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a Bridal Original gown of French Chantilly lace designed with a fitted bodice, sabrine neckline and long lily point sleeves. The bouffant skirt was fashioned in tiers with the back tiers cascading into a chapel train.

Tiny iridescent sequins and seed pearls outlined the neckline and accented the edges of the ruffled tiers. A large organza bow was attached at the back waist line with long streamers flowing over the skirt back.

Her elbow-length veil of bridal illusion was held by a satin bandeau trimmed with lace and seed pearls. She carried an old fashioned bouquet of pink Elfe roses, pink carnations, white pompon chrysanthemums, baby's breath and hot pink star flowers.

She wore an opal necklace, a gift from the bridegroom.

The bridegroom carried a lace handkerchief, an heirloom of the family for 60 years, in his pocket.

Lori Buster, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Ike Heidemann, stepmother of the bride, and Mrs. Keith Stralberg, sister of the bridegroom.

Joe Webster, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Groomsman were Bob and Alan Webster, brothers of the bridegroom.

Ushers and candlelighters were Keith Stralberg, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Bruce Buster, brother of the bride.

Crist Fager, second cousin of the bridegroom, was flower girl and Darby Heidemann, nephew of the bride, was ringbearer.

Mrs. Ben Roberts was organist and Betsy Allen was soloist.

The couple was honored at a reception after the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church. Guests were registered by Claudia Johnson.

The bride's table was covered with a white brocade cloth with a white tulle overlay and a pink underskirt. Table decorations featured crystal ornaments, nothing pink candles.

The table was centered with a four-tier cake with four hearts forming the base. The cake was decorated with pink and light aqua lilies and sugar bells accented with light pink lacework.

It was topped with a cherub under an archway with bells. The base of the cake was encircled with leather leaf foliage and pink and aqua pompon chrysanthemums.

The front of the table was trimmed with a garland of leather-leaf foliage and aqua and pink pompon chrysanthemums. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Charles Robinson, Twin Falls.

Mrs. Elgin Wilson and Mrs. Del Johnson, aunts of the bride, cut and served the cake. Mrs. Alan Webster, sister-in-law of the bridegroom and Sharr Robinson served coffee and punch.

The quartet tables were covered with white damask, centered with milk glass goblets on a ring of blue net pink flowers and lighted by white tapers. The centerpieces were made by Mrs. Wilson, aunt of the bride.

Mrs. Brenda Groves cared for the gifts.

Mrs. Harold Ochsner was in charge of corsages.

The bride was honored at a pre-nuptial shower given by Mrs. George Kinzel and Mrs. C. G. Morrison, her co-workers. A miscellaneous shower was given by Mrs. Raymond Wright Jr., aunt of the bridegroom and by Mrs. Bill Marlow and Sandy Clark. A lingerie shower was given by Mrs. Ochsner.

After a short honeymoon trip, the couple will reside in Burley where the bridegroom is assistant manager of the M, H. King Co.

Idaho potato growers may not sign spud contracts

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Representatives of the Idaho Potato Growers Association say their members may not sign potatoes on the open market this year rather than sign what they say are "substandard" J. R. Simplot Co. contracts.

Meanwhile, a Simplot representative says the growers' association figures are incorrect, but won't elaborate.

IPG area coordinator Dwayne Skogsberg, who is also chairman of the group's Simplot bargaining committee, said contracts being offered by Simplot provide less return to growers than contracts being offered by other large processors.

"We're giving Simplot a chance to contract at a price comparable to the other processors," said Skogsberg. "If not, we may give him a chance to see what they do on the open market. He may steal them all, but I doubt it."

Skogsberg and local area IDG coordinator Tom McClain of Buhl said Simplot is offering $2.40 per hundredweight for number ones and $1.65 for number twos with a 75 per cent ceiling on number ones.

They also said dirt and bruise clauses in the Simplot contracts were being tightened from 15 per cent last year to 11 and 10 per cent respectively this year.

But Don Robertson, Simplot area field manager, Heyburn, said Friday the contract figures given by the IPG representatives were not correct, but he refused to correct them.

"We're offering out to the growers now and they'll all know what our offer is when we come around to them," Robertson said.

He said the Simplot firm did not wish to start a battle in the newspapers. Asked again to give the Simplot version of the contract figures, Robertson said, "We chose to go this route, so we'll stay that way."

Skogsberg and McClain say the IPG is asking $2.50 on number ones and $1.25 on number twos. They said a previous compromise offered to Simplot by the IPG called for $2.45 on number ones and $1.15 on number twos with a ten-ounce incentive on number ones.

This offer, they said, was rejected by Simplot and has since been withdrawn by the IPG at the members' request.

The representatives said the contract now being offered by Simplot would return less to growers than the 1970 Simplot contract.

"If we had the 1970 contract in 1973 it would yield more money than the 1973 proposal," McClain said.

McClain said the five-cent per hundred weight increase in the 1973 Simplot proposal over last year was more than offset by tightened dirt and bruise clauses.

"So, consequently the contract, in effect, is a worse contract than the one we had in 1970 and no improvement over the 1972 contract," he said.

Skogsberg and McClain said other potato processors such as Ore-Ida, Rogers Brothers, R. T. French, Sun Spico and Idaho Frozen Foods are offering growers a seven to nine per cent increase in base price this year with no changes in incentive clauses.

"They said these contracts offer a fairer return to the growers than does the Simplot proposal. The representatives said IPG members, who constitute two-thirds of potato farmers in Idaho, are bound by agreement not to sign Simplot contracts until the contracts are approved by the IPG.

"The farmer looks to Simplot to sell his potatoes, but not at a loss," said Skogsberg. "They are willing to sit around and wait and probably sell them open, and open potatoes are selling today at $1.75 scoop up."

Skogsberg and McClain emphasized that drastic increases in production costs to the farmer within the last 60 days have made the Simplot offer further unpalatable.

"Simplot perhaps could have negotiated the contract near the price that he is offering now 60 days ago," Skogsberg said, "before farmers became aware of the tremendous increases in the cost of production."

American Falls Dam can be replaced in 3 years

BOISE (UPI) — If all goes well the American Falls replacement dam can be built in the next 2 1/2 to 3 years, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said Friday.

Andrus told newsmen when he returned from Washington, D.C., he was quite "encouraged about prospects for getting the private venture under way soon — possibly as early as the first of the year."

"I've never seen the wheels of bureaucracy turn so fast as if they did it could be by the first of the year," Andrus said.

He led a delegation from Idaho to appear before the Senate interior subcommittee on water and power to speak up for the private project by the Idaho Power Company and speculators Thursday.

He said the fact that irrigators, environmentalists and other factions in Idaho all are behind the project enhances its chances.

He said the fact that Idaho Sen. Frank Church chairs the Senate subcommittee will not hurt the chances either.

Everyone is behind the proposal, Andrus said, because of the time element involved. If the Reclamation Bureau has to rebuild the dam, he said, it could take eight to 10 years.

"Everyone recognizes that time is the enemy," Andrus said.

He said irrigators in the Dietrich, Richfield, Gooding and Shoshone areas already are "hurting" and cannot wait that long for the water the replacement dam would provide now that the water level behind the present deteriorating structure cannot be raised to capacity.

"In all probability water will be short this year," Andrus said. "We could have a very acute year next year."

Beet crop delayed

PULLMAN (UPI) — Between 700-800 dairy scientists will attend the 68th annual meeting of the American Dairy Science Association at the University of Washington June 24-27.
Dr. Mel Ehlers, WSU dairy scientist and general chairman of the meeting, said activities will include technical sessions and business meetings. He said most technical sessions will involve the presentation of research results by scientists involved in milk production and milk processing activities.

RIVERTON, Wyo. (UPI) — An official of the Holly Sugar Co. said Thursday that weather permitting 50 per cent of the Fremont County sugar beet crop will be in the ground by this weekend.
Rod Follmar, Worldland agriculture manager for the company, said snow and heavy moisture has delayed planting in the area. He said, however, if the beets are in the ground within the next 10 days, an average crop can still be expected.

Follmar said there might be a slight reduction in acreage due to the recent severe weather. He said the reduction will probably be mostly in the Arapahoe area.

Farm bill helps milk prices

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The omnibus farm bill approved this past week by the Senate Agriculture Committee includes — in addition to headline-catching new programs for grains and cotton — significant new moves to strengthen milk prices.

In last-minute work on the measure, the committee added an amendment limiting dairy price supports for the current 1973-74 marketing year to 80 per cent of the 'fair earning power parity' price.

In a companion move, the panel approved an amendment limiting dairy product imports to 2 per cent of the total annual domestic consumption of milk.

Both amendments are expected to be opposed by the administration, which has set dairy supports for the current marketing year at the legal floor of 75 per cent of parity, and has been increasing dairy import quotas this year in an effort to counter food inflation for consumers.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, rejecting appeals for higher supports from dairy leaders and lawmakers, has set this year's milk support at $5.29 per hundredweight, or 75 per cent of parity.

Butz had gone a step further by asking Congress to remove, for future years, the legal barrier against setting supports below 75 per cent of parity.

The Senate Agriculture Committee amendment would push supports to roughly about $6.65 a hundredweight for the rest of the year ending March 31, equalling 80 per cent of parity, but would then allow supports in the following year to drop back to 75 per cent of parity.

In the import field, the capping imposed by the Senate bill would be above the amount of dairy foods imported last year, but below the amount expected to enter the country this year.

Dairy industry experts estimate that under current law, the import volume permitted by quotas is about 1.6 per cent of national consumption.

Top crop foreseen in wheat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Thursday estimated the 1973 winter wheat crop at a record 1,281,999,000 bushels, up 3-10 of 1 per cent from a December forecast and up 8 per cent from last year's crop.

The forecast, heartening to government officials who want record harvests to help soften inflationary pressures, was based on conditions as of May 1 and compares with the 1972 winter wheat crop of 1,188 billion bushels.

Spring wheat production this year has been tentatively forecast on the basis of planting surveys, at about 454 million bushels compared with 359 million bushels last year. Adding the potential 1973 spring-planted portion of the crop to the new winter wheat estimated would produce a record total all-wheat crop of 1,736 billion bushels compared with last year's harvest of 1,546 billion bushels.

The previous all-wheat record was the 1,618 billion bushel harvest of 1971.

Government farm planners had sought a big increase this year because massive sales to Russia and other foreign buyers sent wheat exports for the current marketing season to a record 1,150 billion bushels, biting deeply into reserve stocks and sending prices to the highest levels in years.

Noh tells Senate panel coyote numbers at peak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spokesman for western sheep growers told Congress Thursday that more coyotes are now roaming the west than ever before in history.

The alleged increase in the coyote population was reported by Laird Noh, chairman of the predatory animal committee of the National Wool Growers Association, in testimony before the Senate Environment Subcommittee.

Noh's testimony was backed up by Dr. Walter E. Howard, a University of California wildlife biologist.

The sheepmen are demanding that they again be allowed to use deadly poisons such as strychnine and compound 1080 to kill coyotes that prey on their sheep.

But a former Wyoming rancher, who is now with an environmentalist organization, said a government ban on the poisons should be continued.

Tom Garrett, wildlife director for Friends of the Earth, said poisoning had been "a failure" and urged sheepmen to return to their old practice of using sheepherders to guard their flocks.

"The federal government, having fostered the false hope that the coyote could be erased as a significant factor in the West, now has a responsibility to alleviate the hangover with which its control program left the sheep industry," he said. Garrett said the government should help solve a labor shortage that makes it difficult for ranchers to find sheepherders.

TF County slots at 4-H meet open

TWIN FALLS — Young 4-H Club members in Twin Falls County were reminded today of the annual Idaho 4-H Club Congress June 10-13 at the University of Idaho, in Moscow.

Donald Youtz, county extension agent, said all members 14 years of age or older are eligible to attend. Those wishing to participate should pick up registration forms at the county extension office and return them by Friday.

Several partial scholarships are available, sponsored by the Twin Falls Pomona Grange, the Twin Falls County Farm Bureau and the 4-H Council. Applications for the scholarships are available and due by Wednesday Youtz said.

The scholarship applications will be judged Wednesday afternoon by a committee of Mrs. Craig Dunlap, Pomona Grange; Mrs. Dick Stafford, Farm Bureau; Mrs. Patricia Maughan, extension home economist.

Pollard dies in Indianapolis crash

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Art Pollard, a veteran of 18 years in auto racing, crashed to a fiery death in a practice run Saturday for the Indianapolis "500."

Hours later, Texas Johnny Rutherford, who has yet to strike it rich at the Speedway, smashed all records to grab the pole position for the May 28 race.

But the death of Pollard, at 46 a grandfather and the oldest driver in the field, dominated the day. He died at Methodist Hospital slightly more than an hour after his brand new machine was hurled into the wall in the short south chute, burst into flames and became airborne.

Pollard, Medford, Ore., was lifted unconscious from his demolished Dan Gurney Eagle and died of flame inhalation and other injuries. It was the first death at the Speedway since last year when Jim Malloy of Denver was fatally injured in a practice accident.

Rutherford, who has never finished among the top 10 in nine previous Memorial Day races, whipped brisk winds and his competition for the No. 1 starting position in the million dollar race.

Driving an orange colored British made McLaren, similar to the car that carried Mark Donohue to his "500" triumph last year, Rutherford was one of four record smashers as 24 spots in the 33-car lineup were filled.

He had a best lap of 199.071 miles per hour around the famed 2.5-mile oval and his four-lap, 10-mile average was 198.413. His best lap was his third, just barely missing the coveted 200 miles per hour barrier which many rail birds thought would be broken.

Bobby Unser set the old record of 196.678 and 195.940 miles per hour, for one and four laps respectively, to win the pole spot last year. Unser also smashed his own marks late in the day in an unsuccessful attempt to retain the pole position. He will start in the No. 2 position.

Dave "Swede" Savage, competing here for only the second year, and Donohue also eclipsed Unser's 1972 records. Donohue will complete the three-car front line and Savage will start No. 4.

The field now averages 192.741 m.p.h., nearly eight miles faster than the first 24 cars last year. Qualifications continue Sunday and will be completed next weekend.

Savage, Santa Ana, Calif., electrified the huge throng estimated by police at between 250,000 and 300,000, by hurling his fire-engine red Eagle around the course at an average speed of 196.562 m.p.h. to become the first record setter.

His new marks lasted less than 90 minutes before Rutherford wiped them out as the day's 16th qualifier. Donohue, Newtown Square, Pa., also bettered Unser's old record, averaging 197.412 m.p.h. in a new Eagle.

Bobby Unser missed the Rutherford mark by 21 hundredths of a second at an average speed of 198.183 m.p.h. "I exceeded what I expected to by my wildest imagination," said Rutherford, but his record run was tempered by Pollard's death. Because of it, he said, he planned not to go "all out" for the record.

"But when you're out there, you think of nothing but driving," he explained. "I'm a race driver. It's a great feeling to be No. 1. I was surprised, but it was lots of fun."

Other qualifiers in order of their speeds were: Gary Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill., 195.599; Mario Andretti, Nazareth, Pa., 195.059; Steve Krisloff, Parsippany, N. J., 194.932; Al Unser, Albuquerque, N. Mex., 194.879; Jimmy Caruthers, Garden Grove, Calif., 194.217; Peter Revson, Redondo Beach, Calif., 192.666; Gordon Johncock, Franklin, Ind., 192.555; Bobby Allison, Hueytown, Ala., 192.300; Graham McTear, New Zealand, 192.031; Roger McCluskey, Tucson, Ariz., 191.928; Lloyd Rudy, Wichita Falls, Tex., 191.622; Bill Vukovich, Fresno, Calif., 191.103; Dave "Salt" Walther, Dayton, Ohio, 190.739; Jerry Grant, Irvine, Calif., 190.235.

Mel Kenyon, Lebanon, Ind., 190.225; Wally Dallenbach, East Brunswick, N. J., 190.194; Mike Mosley, Clermont, Ind., 189.753; David Hobbs, England, 189.454; A. J. Foyt, Houston, Tex., 188.927; and Sam Posey, San Juan Capistrano, Calif., 187.921. Allison and McTear qualified for their first "500" and all five former race winners contending made the lineup—the two Unser brothers, Donohue, Andretti and Foyt, a three-time winner.

Birds are both interesting and beneficial to have around your home and garden and this time of year, we have many people call the Fish and Game Department asking about ways to attract birds. First, let's look at some of the common birds you can expect to find in southern Idaho and their nesting habits which would indicate the type of nesting arrangement needed to attract them. Southern Idaho can be roughly divided into irrigated lands, desert sagebrush, urban and the foothill mountain areas, each of which have a different group of birds considerable overlap between some species.

The irrigated lands will commonly have red-wing black birds, Brewer's blackbirds, killdeers, meadow larks, robins, magpies, starlings, English Sparrows, swallows, pheasants and a variety of hawks and owls. The best way to attract some of these is to provide the proper nesting habitat, rather than some type of special nesting box. For example, on my irrigated place south of Jerome, red-wing black birds nest in my neighbor's dam in my neighbor's trees, the meadow larks and pheasants make a ground nest in relatively undisturbed grassy areas and the killdeers like open grass or bare ground near water for their churning and nesting location.

I also have either mallard or blue-winged teal ducks and Wilson's phalaropes near my farm pond. A barn swallow nested under the eaves in my carport last summer and an old building is an attractive nesting area for these extremely beneficial insect eating birds. I have placed a small tree and shrub planting made up of multiflora rose, Siberian Pen, yellow willow, honeysuckle, and Russian olive for additional attraction of all types of wildlife. Robins are not too common around my place, because of the present lack of trees or good-sized shrubs which provide the desired crotch of limbs in which to build a mud, hair and stick nest. All of the shrubs and trees I listed are available each year from your local County Agent for a nominal fee. You have to use them for a windbreak, shelterbelt, or wildlife planting such as pine to qualify for them. They are not provided for ornamental planting. It is too late to order trees this year, but interested people can contact their agent in late winter for an April shipment.

There are several artificial things I have done to attract birds. The first and most interesting has been to acquire two hummingbird feeders that I hung in front of my house windows. These commercial feeders, costing about $4.00 each, and you fill them with red colored, sugar water (1 part sugar to 4 parts water) on which the hummingbirds feed. I never see any hummingbirds, until I put these feeders out about this time of year and

Morgan leads at Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI) — Canadian John Morgan played it safe Saturday, shooting a one-under-par 70 to move into a one-stroke lead after three rounds of the $20,000 Shreveport Golf Classic.

Morgan was even par through the front nine and picked up one birdie coming in to take a 207 total through 54 holes, one stroke better than Bob Phillips and Mike Morely.

"I just played it safe on the front nine," Morgan said. "I was just trying to keep it in play."

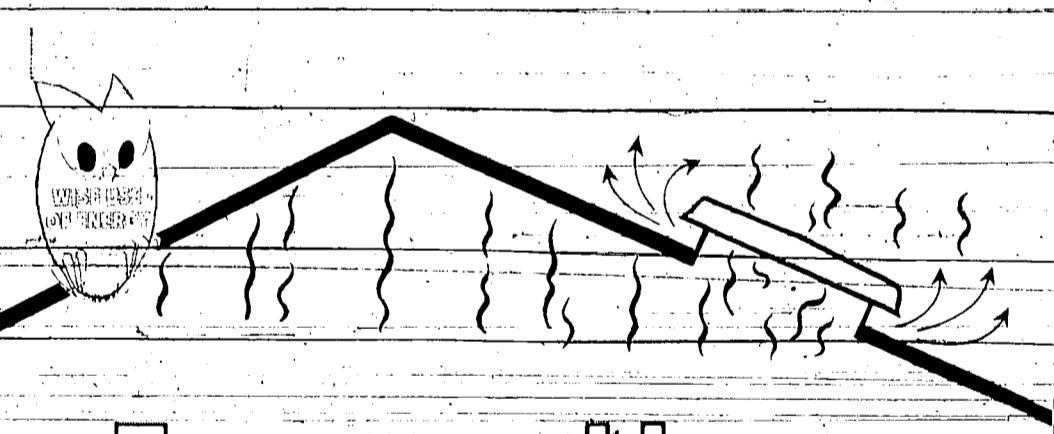

Second round leader Bruce Fleisher failed to follow Morgan's example on the front nine and lost four strokes to par.

then mysteriously they appear. Last year we had 6 different hummingbirds using our two feeders. They are fascinating creatures to watch and fiercely defend their territorial rights against other hummingbirds to feed at these stations.

Elickers and sparrow hawks both are cavity nesters and can be attracted by rough lumber nesting boxes 18" x 7" with a 2 1/2" diameter hole drilled in side near the top. Pheasants and other ground feeding birds can be attracted in the winter time by plantings of corn or sunflowers or placing feeding stations with corn near cover areas. Starlings are one of the pests about nesting areas, since they drive other birds out of nesting boxes and their territories.

Starlings are beneficial in the amount of insects they consume, but their bad habits of feeding in feed lots and driving other beneficial birds out of the area make them fair game year around as far as I am concerned.

Urban environments have a little different bird community, with more robins, English sparrows, starlings, house finches, wrens, and warblers. Good tree and shrub plantings of both conifers and deciduous plants are excellent habitat for these birds. Nesting boxes for additional attraction can be made in a variety of ways and placed on posts or in trees and shrubs. Any small boxes, gourds, or even tin cans with their ends opened slightly can be made to do with holes drilled in them from 1" to 1 1/4" in diameter. Bird baths also make the area more attractive and provide an interesting spot to observe or photograph birds. Those people interested in attracting blue birds in the urban or foothill mountain environment can place a 8" x 5" x 5" nesting box on a fence post or tree with a 1 1/4" hole drilled near the top for an entrance.

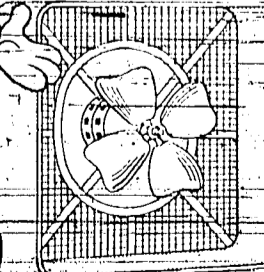

For a cool home

COOL THE ATTIC

ATTIC FANS LOWER LIVING AREA TEMPERATURES AND LIGHTEN AIR CONDITIONER LOADS

Heat building up in the attic can keep your home uncomfortably warm both day and night. The installation of an automatic electric ventilation fan can remove much of this built-up heat. Hot air is taken out rapidly, economically, automatically. A thermostat turns the fan on as temperatures rise, cuts it off as temperatures drop. Installation is simple, and moderate in cost. You can get full details from your electrical contractor or dealer.

Bruins edge Minico 1-0 in overtime session

The Twin Falls Bruins, behind nonchalant pitching of Mark Hanchev, nipped the rallying Minico Spartans 1-0 in the overtime game Friday afternoon to claim the district baseball championship and a trip to the state meet in Boise next weekend.

Minico, putting together two strong games, dropped the Bruins 2-1 in eight innings to force the playoff into extra session. The Bruins had dropped the Spartans 5-1 Wednesday to gain the finals with Minico coming back on a 10-0 decision over Burley.

Minico's first-game effort was nearly flawless as the Spartans took advantage of the clutch pitching of Steve Bradshaw and timely hitting to defeat the Bruins who blew several scoring chances.

But in the end, Hanchev, who had some chances to win the opener with his bat, did it with the aluminum (used to be wood) and his arm. In addition to pitching the shutout in the second, he scored the only run that came in the bottom of the sixth when he opened with a single, stole second, took third on a balk and then came in on a bounce to that finally had to be scored as an infield hit as the luckless Spartan shortstop looked to home and first too many times before making the final throw.

The first game was nearly as tight, the Spartans visiting a succession of key hits to the opposite field off loser Mike Anderson, who was unable to make his curve perform.

The Spartans, after closing off a bases-loaded first inning by Twin Falls, scored in the second when Ron Diest slapped a double and rode home on

Beating the throw

Walker's semi-liner fell in just ahead of Minico's leftfielder. Twin Falls biggest chance to end if in regulation came in the seventh on two opening walks but the Bruins then couldn't deliver.

In the top of the eighth, Tom Babcock stroked a long double to deep centerfield and came home with the decisive tally when Pat Warburton lined a single between first and second.

MAKING THE STRETCH, Twin Falls first baseman had to shift positions in an effort to make the catch of the throw and Minico's Tom Crist smiled across first base safely in district playoff action Friday. Minico won the first game 2-1, but lost the second and the district title to Twin Falls 1-0 in the nightcap.

Indiana drops Colonels and retains ABA crown

LOUISVILLE Ky. (UPI) — "This one was so sweet because it is so difficult to motivate a club to repeat as ultimate," Coach Bob Leonard said Saturday after his Indiana Pacers won their second straight American Basketball Association championship by defeating the Kentucky Colonels 88-81.

Leonard credited a "lot of good defense and rebounding" for his team's seven-game victory which made the Pacers the first ABA team to win three championships.

"Our two young forwards also did a tremendous job,"

Leonard said in praising the work of freshman pro Darnell Hillman and sophomore George McGinnis, named the Most Valuable Player in the series, topped Indiana in the championship game with 27 points, including 13 in the third quarter when the Pacers broke the game open.

Hillman was the leading rebounder in the game with 13, while holding Kentucky's leading scorer, Dan Issel, to 12 points.

"It's just too much," said McGinnis in the jubilant Indiana dressing room as he savored his second pro championship since leaving Indiana University after his sophomore season two years ago.

"We had the experience," McGinnis said. "We had been through this before and I thought we would win all along."

Leonard said he felt the third quarter, when Kentucky hit only 13 per cent and scored only 11 points after trailing by just one point at halftime, was the turning point of the game.

"All of a sudden they went stone cold and we just kept coming back at them," he said. "They didn't get the bounces and they didn't get the shooting."

Kentucky, after trailing most of the first half, went ahead of Indiana three times early in the third quarter but after Indiana took its final lead at 40-40, the Pacers outscored Kentucky 17-4 the rest of the quarter for a 58-52 lead going into the fourth quarter. The closest Kentucky could get after that was the final seven-point margin.

During the disastrous third quarter, Kentucky hit only three of 22 field goal attempts for 13.6 per cent and scored only 11 points.

Artis Gilmore led Kentucky with 19 points and Rick Mount, who fired in three threepoint field goals in the closing seconds, had 16.

Donnie Freeman had 15 points to support McGinnis for Indiana, with Fred Lewis chipping in 11 and reserve Roger Brown 10 for the winners.

Kentucky shot a cold 39 per cent from the field, managing to convert only 30 of 79 shots. Indiana hit on only 41.6 per cent (32 of 77) of its field goal attempts.

Seaver and Mets blank Pirates 6-0

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Tom Seaver hurled a two-hit shutout Saturday to give the New York Mets a 6-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Seaver retired the first eight batters before giving up a single to losing pitcher Bob Moose. The only other Pirates reaching base safely were Vic Davallillo via a sixth inning walk and Willie Stargold, whose seventh inning triple off the center field wall provided the only Pirate threat.

The Mets scored one run in the first inning when Wayne Garrett singled, moved to third on Felix Millan's single and scored when Cleon Jones hit into a double play.

In the Mets eighth, singles by Jones, Rusty Staub and Ed Kranepool and a double by Jim Gosger produced two more runs before Moose was lifted and reliever Jim Rooker came on to retire the side.

Milwaukee topples Tigers 6-2

DETROIT (UPI) — Jim Stinton pitched a six-hitter while John Felke and John Briggs keyed a four-run second and a two-run third with triples Saturday to enable the Milwaukee Brewers to defeat the Detroit Tigers, 6-2.

Stinton, 2-2, had Detroit tamed on three hits until Aurelio Rodriguez and Dick McAuliffe stroked back-to-back doubles in the eighth. Norm Cash had hit his fifth homer of the season with one out in the second inning.

Felke's triple drove in two runs in the second after George Scott had opened the inning with a single off loser Woody Fryman, 2-3. Briggs walked and Gorman Thomas singled Scott home before the triple.

Indians rap Boston for 18 hits

BOSTON (UPI) — Buddy Bell and Charlie Spikes paced an 18-hit attack with seven hits between them Saturday afternoon as the Cleveland Indians rapped the Boston Red Sox 10-2 behind Gaylord Perry's six-hit pitching.

Bell opened the game with a homer into the center field bleachers and started a string of four singles that gave the Indians two runs in the sixth inning. He also singled in the fourth and ninth and scored three times while going four-for-five at the plate.

Reuschel hurls Cubs past Phils

CHICAGO (UPI) — Don Kossinger's two-run single in the bottom of the fourth inning provided Rick Reuschel with all the help he needed as the Chicago right-hander beat the Philadelphia Phillies 3-1 on a five-hitter.

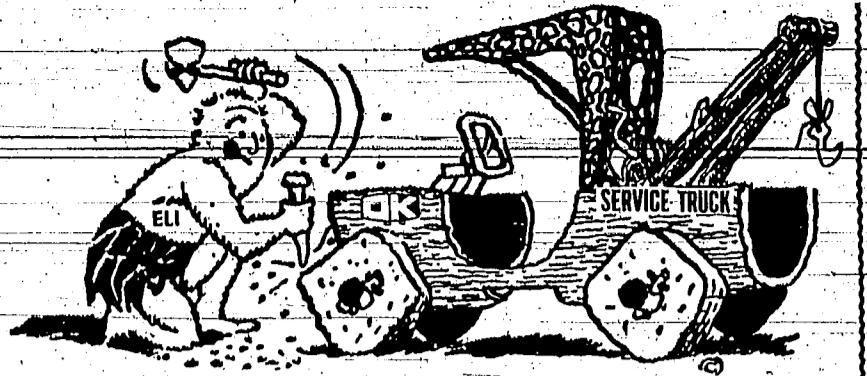

Reuschel, 3-2, walked three and struck out three and was tagged for an unearned run in the first inning.

Twin Falls dominated district track field

Records by Charlton and Sievers pace easy victory

Pat Charlton and Gary Sievers set individual records and the mile relay team clipped in with another Friday night when the Twin Falls Bruins ramped off with another fourth district track and field championship.

record assault, typing a mark set in 1963 by Doug Schow, as the Bruins were largely untested on the track. The results will send all four Twin Falls relay teams plus 22 individual to represent the Bruins when they try to make it four in a row in the state finals next week in Boise. None of the individual record breakers had any competition, pushing them to new marks as Charlton turned in a fine 4:24.5 in the mile to sideline the previous district and Twin Falls High School best of 4:31.0 set by Rob Sloan in 1969.

Sievers, after opening with a 56-second quarter, turned the half mile in 1:56.2 to shelve the mark he co-held with Jack Cooper, Twin Falls, at 1:57.7. The mile relay turned its truck in 3:26.6 against the previous record to 3:28.0 got by the Bruins in 1969 and Cooper's 50.3 in the open quarter tied Schow.

The depth advanced should give the Bruins a top-heavy chance to gain their fourth straight state crown. The top three in all individual running events, winning relay team and one-two finishers in the field competitions will move to the preliminaries in Boise next Friday. The finals will be run Saturday afternoon.

The Bruins took 14 of the 10 first places offered while Minico grabbed three and Burley one. Burley's lone win came in the high hurdles where Mike Sagers breezed home in 15.7. The Spartans went one-two in the high jump with Lauman and Virtue, Roy Young, and up and down sprinter, took the 100-yard dash and Ron and Carl Bair went one-two in the discus. Other than that it was all blue.

The Bruins went one-two-three in the 400-yard dash with Cooper, Mike Sturgill and Richard Warner; the mile with Charlton, Dave Sears and Doug Larson; the 800-yard run with Sievers, Scott Hansen and Hershberger, and the pole vault with John Blake, Gary Miller and Shafer. In fact, the Bruins took all four places in the latter two.

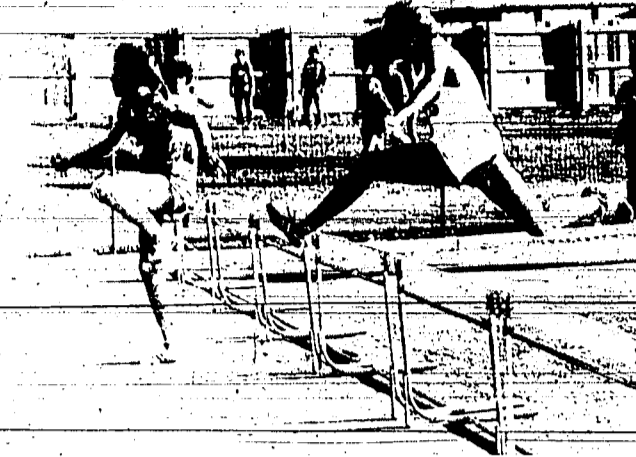

The upset came in the low hurdles where Jeff Miller, took the lead at the outset and led defending champion Ken Harper of Burley by a stride throughout the race. The 220-yard dash was a tight finish with Bill Woodson just outgunning Brent Thompson, and Young only another fraction behind.

Excepting the low hurdles it was a form night with Twin Falls unoppressed in the relays. The 100-yard dash saw Young avenge several defeats this season but he's never been far out of the top spot, even when finishing fourth. Abrego of Minico broke through in the two-mile for second place which up to that point had figured to go to the Bruins.

With the weatherman finally blessing the field with respectable weather, it was unfortunate that no one was available to press Sievers and Charlton. They pushed themselves to the records with Charlton particularly inspired with a 56-second final quarter when the field was already far behind.

Sievers, who was seeking a 1:54 clocking, found no competition after the first 220-yard dash and pushed himself to the new mark. Similarly, Cooper, the defending state champion who has been under 50 seconds, went most of the way without pressure.

One other record had to be set and Dennis Moynihan, a sophomore, got it for the Bruins with a 41-3/4 triple jump. It is the first time the event has been offered.

Over the last hurdle

UPSET WINNER Jeff Miller steps over the last hurdle and heads for the tape in unseating defending champion Ken Harper of Burley in the low hurdle Friday night in the district A-1 meet. Miller took about his lead in the dash to the first hurdle and held it.

Sprint champion

DETERMINED ROY YOUNG of Minico nipped Twin Falls' Bill Woodson for the district A-1 100-yard dash title Friday night by an eyelash while Bruin Brent Thompson, behind Young, was third. All three advance to next week's state preliminaries at Boise.

Jockey wins L.A. handicap for fifth consecutive running

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI)—Jockey Don Pierce captured the $50,000 added Los Angeles Handicap for the fifth straight time Saturday when he brought Soft Victory from far off the pace to a half-length win.

The heavily-favored Crusading was a driving second while Diplomatic Agent finished fourth in the field of seven.

Soft Victory raced the seven furlongs in the good time of 1:21 but far slower than the world record set last year by Triple Bend which was ridden to a mark of 1:19.45 by Pierce.

Northern Arizona sweeps ISU series

POCATELLO (UPI)—Northern Arizona concluded a three-game sweep over the Idaho State Bengals Saturday winning the final game, 7-5, in extra innings and coming from behind to take the nightcap, 14-9.

The Lumberjacks tallied two runs in the top of the ninth, inning to win the opener. Warren Strube had an RBI single and another run tallied on losing pitcher Mike Havens' wild pitch.

First baseman Jim Mac Casland collected three hits for the Lumberjacks. NAU rallied from a 7-4 deficit to claim second game with Mac Casland driving in four runs and Eldon Dallas knocking in three.

Outfitters seek boat facilities

SALMON (UPI)—Members of the Idaho Outfitters and Guides Association say they would like the forest service to establish boat launching facilities on the Salmon River to handle those tourists taking trips on the river.

NAU clinched the southern division Big-Sky conference baseball title with a 6-4 win over ISU Friday.

Midway down the stretch it became a two-horse race between the winner and Crusading with Pierce bringing Soft Victory through for his half-length win.

T.F. golfers cop district

BURLEY—Burley's Bill Spencer took medalist honors but the Twin Falls Bruins rolled to another district golf championship Friday afternoon. Spencer covered his home course in a par-quelling 71 as the Bobcats took second place, 11 strokes behind Twin Falls, winning 303 total. Minico scored 336.

Scorers were—Twin Falls, Gary Duncan 75, Kevin Packard 78, Bruce McNea 76 and Lance Undhjem 74; Burley, Spencer 71, Doug Hogan 82, Dale Williams 70 and Paul Jackson 80, and Minico, Alan Goodman and Brad Coll 85; Bruce Nelbaur 77 and Jerry Coll 81.

Montreal outlasts Cards 3-1

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Ken Singleton singled home two runs for the Montreal Expos Saturday night and Mike Marshall's two-hit relief performance over the final 3-2-3 innings preserved a 3-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Williams clocks 9.1, 100-yard dash in highlight of meet

PRESNO (UPI)—Steve Williams of the San Diego Track Club streaked to a world record time of 9.1 in the 100-yard dash Saturday night at the 48th West Coast Relays.

Jackpot air race completed

JACKPOT—Respective overall winners in the annual Lander, Wyo., to Jackpot, Nev., air race Saturday were Vince Kiroi, Jackson, Wyo.; Fritz Seranton, Powell, Wyo.; and James Edge, Broomfield, Colo.

Friday as temperatures in the mid 90s helped the sprinters and field athletes but tired the distance men. In the 400 yard hurdles Saturday, Jim Bolding of the Pacific Coast Club picked up a win in the open class at 51.0 followed by Wes Williams of the San Diego Track Club at 52.1. Cal Polly Pomona won the team, title in the college division, amassing 41 points, followed by Cal State Northridge with 34, Fresno State with 24, University of Nevada at Reno with 22 and U.S. International with 19 points.

Shot putter Al Feuerbach of the Pacific Coast Club failed in an effort to eclipse his week-old world mark of 71-7 set May 5 at the San Jose Invitational. Feuerbach only managed a 69-11 1/4 which topped his old meet mark of 69-0 set last year. In the discus, Olympian Jay Silvester narrowly edged John Powell of the Pacific Coast Club. Silvester's toss of 203-9 bested Powell's 202-4 but was far off Silvester's world record of 224-5 set in 1968. In the 5000 meter run, Mike Wagenback of the East Los Angeles Track Club coasted to a slow 14:28.7 victory followed by Peter Fredriksson of U.S. International University at 14:35.6. Six meet records in the high school and college divisions fell.

Dellinger honored

Jerry Dellinger, longtime Magic Valley and Idaho high school coach, will be honored by the National High School Athletic Coaches Association for "outstanding achievement."

Dellinger, currently employed at Idaho State University, will receive the seventh district honor at a testimonial dinner in Jackson, Hole, Wyo., June 20.

Dellinger coaches at Rupert and Jerome high schools in Magic Valley and had great success in both football and basketball at Jerome in the late 40s and 1950s. He left Jerome to become head football coach at Nampa High School and then accepted a coaching position at Idaho State. Currently he is an assistant to the president.

Jerome regains district A-2 track crown

Thackeray, Hillier double for Tigers

The Jerome Tigers, behind double winners Ron Hillier and Jim Thackeray, boomed into the fourth district A-2 track championship with enough to spare to be considered a threat in next week's state runoff.

Getting the top three places in the 440-yard dash and low hurdles, plus staying just about everywhere else, the Tigers amassed 104 points while Wood River was second at 86. Buhl and Filer shared third at 48 and Gooding was back at 10.

The top three individual track places, best two in the field events and one-two relay teams advance to the state runoffs with preliminaries Friday night and finals Saturday.

Thackeray won both hurdles and placed second in the 100-yard dash while Hillier, disappointed his quarter-mile time didn't best the A-10s, took that event plus the 220-yard dash.

The A-2 field provided a couple of surprises and disappointments. Filer's Bob Hansing, leading almost from the start, won the two-mile in a good 9:59 while pre-race favorite Rick Ward of Wood River slipped to third.

Teammate Monty Brothwell, who seconded Ward in the mile, got both runner-up spots in the long distances. Jerome fell a stung in the long events where Steve Keith labored in taking third in the mile and then collapsed and fell while attempting the two-mile.

The feature of the day came in the half where Jerome's Johnson and Kevin Swiger of Wood River fought tooth and nail throughout with Johnson hanging on to win the lunge to the tape in a near photo finish.

Swiger also gave a guttural cry in trying to pull Wood River's mile-relay team out of third and into second but couldn't bring it off.

The Tigers grabbed nine first places and will send 15 individuals plus three relay teams to the state finals. Wood River, the defending state champion, will have nine individuals and one relay at state. Buhl, which could be building again, had five individuals and four relays while Filer, in its best quality display for a while, had three firsts and three seconds.

In the field events, defending state champion Toby Walgamott, Jerome, continued to spring away from his mid-season lethargy with a 57-foot, one-half inch effort in the shotput. Buhl junior Brent Watson uncoupled for a fine 159-2 1/2 victory in the discus.

Hansing's two-mile victory, the second time in two-years the youngster has shown his strong suit, ruined Ward's bid to double for the second straight time in district. However, Ward kept alive his hopes to repeat at Boise next week.

Team scoring — Jerome 104; Wood River 86; Buhl and Filer 48; Gooding 10. High hurdles — Thackeray, J. Davis, P. G. Shaw, W.R. Schilling, J. 157. 880-yard relay — Jerome (Paterson, Johnson, Camp, Reed), Buhl, Filer, Gooding, 1:31.9. 100 yard dash — Chaffield, Buhl, J.

Rankin ties record to take meet lead

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — Oncoming Judy Rankin tamed the tough Pine-Ridge course with a record-tying 67 Saturday to grab the second round lead in the $30,000 Lady Carling Open golf tournament.

Rallying from an opening day 75, Mrs. Rankin, who won the Raleigh Classic last week, shot 6-under par golf to go three strokes ahead of runnerup Chako Higuchi of Japan.

Miss Higuchi had a 71 Saturday for a 145 total. First round leader Kathy Cornelius, who led with a 70 Friday, slumped to a 77 and was alone at 147 behind the trio led at 146 of Renee Powell, Sandra Haynie and defending champion Carol Mann.

Miss Mann, the hometown favorite, rebounded from a first-round 76 with a 70 Saturday.

She won the event last year with a 210 total.

"I'm definitely back in the game now," said Miss Mann. "But I feel it will take another 69 or 70 in the last round to win."

Mrs. Rankin, now eighth on the 1973 money winning list, could move into the sixth spot in the earnings standings with a victory in Sunday's final round.

Mrs. Rankin's red-hot 67 tied a course record established by Shirley Englbom in 1970 and tied by Miss Mann last year.

Knotted at 148, six strokes behind Mrs. Rankin's 142 total, was the quartet of Robyn Dummett, Jan Ferraris, Sandra Palmer and Kathy Ahern. Bunched at 149 was LPGA lending money winner Kathy Whitworth and four others.

Lyle feels he's proved worth in decisioning Peralta in 10

DENVER (UPI) — Sixth-ranked heavyweight Ron Lyle, who said he had to prove he wasn't finished, scored a unanimous 10-round victory over Gregorio Peralta Saturday night.

Lyle won the match 49-45 on the card of official Danny Loos, 58-53 according to Ray Keech's card, and 48-45 from referee Joe Ullmer.

"After I lost to Jerry Quarry in Madison Square Garden (in February) some people thought I was through," said the 31-year-old Lyle, who now owns a 21-1 record. "Peralta is one of the best and my win over him proves I have plenty left."

The 38-year-old Peralta, is the winning active heavyweight in the world with a 91-9-8 record. He appeared to be on his way down several times but was able to come back with solid punches on all but one occasion.

In the fifth round, Lyle caught fire with 30 seconds left and peppered Peralta with lefts and rights to the head sending the Argentine boxer into the ropes. The bell saved Peralta.

In preliminary matches, former Olympic heavyweight Danne Bobick pounded at the midsection of Jim Williams for a technical knockout at 1:43 of the fifth round and lightweight Larry Bonds, a two-time Golden Gloves champion, made his professional debut with a unanimous four-round decision over Andy Sanchez of San Antonio, Tex.

Referee Keech stopped the Bobick fight after Williams' trainers frantically waved a white towel for 20 seconds.

Bonds, who used deadly left jabs and hooks to do away with Sanchez, had been scheduled to meet Mike Ramirez of San Antonio in the four-round match, but Ramirez was injured in a car accident enroute to Denver Friday.

Bobick, the two-time all-Navy and former national AAU heavyweight champion, was content to merely work on the fat midsection of 6 foot, 234-pound Williams during the first four rounds.

But Bobick began pushing Williams off in the fifth round and fighting from a distance to finish the worn-out Omaha boxer.

Williams had several punches in the fourth round which could have been knockout blows, but both times when he got Bobick on the ropes, he was so exhausted all he could do was lean on his opponent.

College of Southern Idaho, getting the performance of the season from Ron Estes, dropped Ricks 5-0 Friday afternoon to claim the right to host the region 18 baseball playoff here next weekend.

BYU crowns 6 individuals in becoming WAC track champion

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — Brigham Young University, with six individual titles, captured the 1973 Western Athletic Conference track and field championships Saturday.

Odom wins first for Athletics

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Designated hitter Deron Johnson singled twice and scored both times he reached base Saturday night in helping the struggling John "Blue Moon" Odom win his first game of the season as the Oakland A's scored a 4-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

It was the fourth win in a row for the A's and the fourth straight loss for Texas. Odom had lost five games without a win until Saturday's victory and held on just long enough to pick up the victory.

SF beats Dodgers on bad throw

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Bobby Bonds, who made two spectacular plays in the field, doubled and scored the winning run in the bottom of the ninth on a throwing error by second baseman Dave Lopes Saturday to give the San Francisco Giants a 5-4 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Ed Goodson's sacrifice fly in the seventh scored Bonds, who had singled and stolen third, with the tying run. It was on Goodson's smash wide of first that Lopes threw the ball away attempting to get a force at second with one out and the bases loaded in the ninth.

The victory went to lefty Ron Bryant, the last of five San Francisco pitchers who worked just one-third of an inning. It was Bryant's fourth triumph in seven decisions while George Culver, who gave up Bonds' double leading off the ninth, suffered the loss, his second in three decisions.

Willie McCovey hit his ninth home run for the first San Francisco run while Dave Hunter's single and a double by Tito Fuentes drove in the other San Francisco runs.

The Dodgers tied the score at 2-2 off starter Jim Willoughby in the third on a walk to Ron Cey, a double by Bill Russell, a sacrifice fly by Lopes and a single by Bill Buckner.

The Oregon teams aren't known as yet since the top four teams are currently in a divisional playoff and will send the one-two teams. In the season, Clackamas and Linn-Benton were 12-6 and are expected to be the representatives.

Ricks jumped ahead of CSI and Rubio 2-0 in the first inning and never trailed in winning the opener. CSI came up with two in the top of the seventh but couldn't get they tying run in.

In the second game it was a matter of Estes. He walked one, gave up two scratch singles and fanned nine. Until the bottom of the seventh, Ricks didn't have a man on as second base. By then Estes was consisting of the 3-0 lead.

CSI took the lead in the fourth when Ralph Bollinger, aboard on a fielder's choice, stole second and scored on Jim Dunsmore's single. Dunsmore ignited a four-run sixth-inning when he led off with a homer. John Wilson followed with a single and Darrel Groves beat out a hit for Wilson.

Wilson scampered in on Roy Kinnam's hit and Groves scored while Estes was grounding into a fielder's choice. Bob Estes' long double then brought Estes around.

Atlanta (UPI) — Mike Lum drove in four runs with a double and a pair of singles and Dave Johnson drove in three more with a homer and a single Saturday night, helping the Atlanta Braves to their largest scoring total of the season in a 14-2 victory over the San Diego Padres.

The Braves wrapped the game up early by cranking for five runs in the third inning and six more in the fourth.

San Diego (UPI) — Gary Cramer gave BYU its only title Friday with an 8-55 WAC record in the steeplechase. Earlier in the week, Raimo Pihl got the Cougars going toward the crown as he led three teammates to a top-four sweep in the decathlon.

Arizona State finished well by taking the mile and 400 relays. Maurice Peoples anchored the 3-10.4 mile relay and won the 440 dash in 46.8. Peoples was top performer for the Sun Devils.

Arizona's top point men were Robert Joseph, who won the high jump at 6-11 and Bruce Hawkinson, who took the juvenile with a 260-9 heave.

UTEP picked up three firsts. Fernando DeLaCruz edged Baltimore on 12 hits.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bobby Murcer and Celerino Sanchez cracked two-run homers to back rookie George Medich's first major league shutout Saturday as the New York Yankees unleashed a 12-hit attack to beat the Baltimore Orioles 9-0 in the nationally televised game.

Murcer's homer, his fifth, was an opposite field drive that just made it into the left field seats to cap a three-run third inning.

Crampton holds 3-shot Colonial lead

Blitzing Bruce Crampton, six shots in front of the field at one point, cooled off over the back nine Saturday to shoot a one-under 68 and salvage a three-shot lead over Leo Elders and Tom Weiskopf with one round to play in the Colonial Invitational.

Crampton, winner of three tournaments this year, the tour's leading money winner and only $55,000 short of $1 million, shot his tenth straight round of par golf or better in quest of his second straight triumph.

He destroyed the front nine of the testy 7,142-yard, par-70 Colonial Country Club course, requiring only 31 strokes and building a six-shot lead.

But Crampton slumped on the incoming nine as his string of 129 holes without a three-putt green was broken when he took three to get down from the front edge of the 16th.

Despite Crampton's sluge, the course allowed only six golfers to shoot under-par figures for three rounds.

Elders fired a 69 Saturday to stand at three-under 207 and Weiskopf shot a 70 for a 207.

Tied for fourth were Mason Rudolph, Lou Graham and Jerry Heard. Heard shot a 70, Graham a 71 and Rudolph a 67, the best round of the day, which turned cool after two days of 90-degree temperatures.

Crampton opened the day with birdies on the first two holes, dropping a 15 footer on the par 5 first hole and a 112 footer on the second. After scrambling pars on the fourth and sixth holes he dropped in putts of seven and nine feet on the seventh and ninth holes to make the turn in 31.

Crampton made his first bogey of the day on the long 11th hole, but when he birdied the 12th it appeared he was rolling again. But then the wheels came off.

The Australian found a fairway bunker at the 14th and came up short of the green from where he failed to get it up and down. He three putted the 16th, ending a stretch of non-three putt greens dating back to the 12th hole of the Byron Nelson Classic two tour stops ago.

And on the final hole he pushed his tee shot into the crowd, hit his approach shot into a bunker and had to be anted with a bogey.

Elders missed a chance to move into second place all by himself when, for the second straight day, he missed a short putt to bogey the 18th.

Weiskopf, who started out the day two shots behind Crampton, stended himself after a poor front nine to birdie the 11th and 14th holes and jump back in contention.

Post at Caldwell for Halley aide

HAILEY — Robert L. Vernon, Halley district manager for Idaho Power Co., has been named manager of the firm's Caldwell district. C.V. Macaw, who has worked for the utility in other southern Idaho posts, will supervise operations in the Halley district until a successor for Vernon is named. E. E. Haroldson, division manager, said. Vernon served in various marketing posts at Boise, Jerome and Twin Falls before being appointed Halley district manager in July, 1966. In that time, the utility's service load has jumped by about 21,000 kilowatts and the number of customers has nearly doubled.

Auto rules clashes due

By EDWARD S. LECITZIN
UPI Auto Writer
DETROIT (UPI) — The decision by the U.S. automakers not to challenge the interim 1975 standards for automotive emissions in court won't prevent further legal battles against the Environmental Protective Agency. The four auto companies had until Friday to begin judicial proceedings on that month's decision by the EPA establishing a double set of emission standards—one for California and another for the other 49 states. But the EPA has yet to set new test procedures for 1975. There may be new legal battles when these test procedures are spelled out. But, based on the current test procedures, EPA Deputy Administrator Erick Stork earlier this week said there is "a high degree of confidence that the automakers can meet the 1975 standards, in some cases without a catalytic converter, based on the 1973 test." "It is not correct to say any 1973 model cars have met the 1975 standards because between now and 1975 there will be a change in the test procedure," Stork said. General Motors said the time is too short now to wait for the outcome of further time-consuming legal proceedings, even though the interim standards still are stricter than the company believes are necessary to clean up the nation's air. GM President Edward N. Cole, in a letter to Robert W. Fric, acting administrator of the EPA, said work on emission control systems for 1975 models must begin immediately to have as much assurance as possible that they can meet the EPA certification requirements. The interim standards for 1975 call for an 83 per cent reduction of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide emissions from pre-1968 uncontrolled vehicles. The original standards had called for 95 per cent reduction of hydrocarbons and a 96 per cent reduction of carbon monoxide emissions. In California in 1975, both emissions must be reduced by 90 per cent from pre-1968 vehicles—something that can be accomplished only with costly catalytic converters, the automakers contend. At the Ford Motor Co. annual meeting Thursday, chairman Henry Ford II said the interim standards probably can be met in California with the muffler-like devices using platinum and palladium catalysts. But, he said the converters probably will be necessary on some engines in the other 49 states and some engines may disappear completely because they can't meet the standards.

The architectural planning firm has offices in Boise and Nampa. Smallwood grew up and attended schools in the Twin Falls area. He is a graduate of the University of Idaho and has been with Thompson and Kolbo for five years. TWIN FALLS — Robert L. Willis, service manager for Bill Workman Ford, Inc., will receive a silver medallion plaque from the Facts and customer service divisions of Ford Motor Co. The award is presented on the basis of customer service, sales and management ability, according to company officials. BOISE — Three Magic Valley branch managers attended a meeting of Bank of Idaho officials here this past week. Attending were Phillip E. Davies, manager of the Gooding branch; Maurice Clifton, Twin Falls; and Michael P. Sullivan, Jerome. The bank opened a branch in Heyburn on Friday.

Idaho wells slated

BOISE (UPI) — Although Idaho is considered "a high risk potential" a California oil company is willing to drill two miles deep in hopes of discovering oil. Donald L. Ziegler, chief geologist for Standard Oil Co. of California's Western Operations, told a press conference he is in Idaho to inspect the exploratory drilling operation near Parma. He said the company is interested in an area 50 miles wide, running from Ontario, Ore., to Hagerman, Idaho. He said the area once was covered by Lake Payette and has a potential oil reservoir. Ziegler said the company is willing to drill to a depth of 12,500 feet in hopes of finding oil near Parma. When they reach that point they will have to make another management decision to go deeper if they fail to find anything.

Dividend declared

PORTLAND, Ore. — A 20 cent annual cash dividend, payable in two equal semi-annual installments has been approved by directors of Jostana-Pacific Corporation. H. A. Merlo, president of the lumber, plywood, pulp and building products firm, said first quarter earnings included a sales gain of 80.7 per cent, net income gain of 131.6 per cent and earnings per share of $1.10, compared to 51 cents. The first dividend will be declared at the July, 1973, meeting of the board of directors.

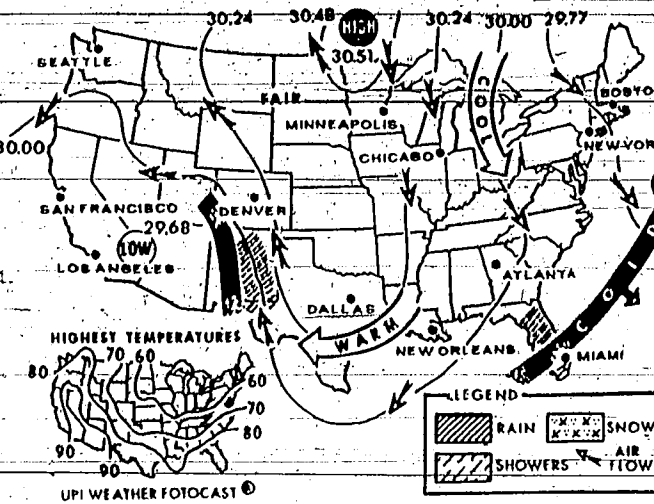

BC stock pays off

BOISE — Directors of Boise Cascade Corporation have declared a second quarter dividend of 75 cents per share. The dividend, on the company's 45 cumulative convertible preferred stock, Series A, is payable Aug. 1 to shareholders of record on July 6. A total of $991.9 million in residential building contracts were awarded in the 11 Western states, during March, 14 per cent more than during the same month in 1972.

FTC hints suits loom

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A top Federal Trade Commission official said Friday the FTC is studying possible antitrust action against the nation's major oil companies because they may have contributed to the gasoline shortage. Alan S. Ward, director of the FTC's Bureau of Competition, said an investigation into competition among the oil companies "strongly suggests that major company control of refinery capacity and pipelines has contributed in a major way" to the current gasoline shortage. Ward, testifying before the Senate Banking Committee, said the FTC investigation also indicates that such control by big oil firms "constitutes a primary competitive problem in the oil industry." He stressed he was speaking only for his bureau and not for the full commission which he said "has not determined that competition among oil companies has been restrained by any individual company or by a group of companies." Ward said he has scheduled hearings on the gas shortage beginning May 21 and will question the nation's top oil company executives. "The FTC director warned that any substantial weakening of the independent sector of the oil industry would be "disastrous for competition." LEGAL NOTICE

Building total gain reported

LOS ANGELES — Strong gains in all three major construction categories pushed the level of contracting in the 11 Western states to $1.85 billion in March. That is a 20 per cent increase from the comparable year-ago month, the F. W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co., said. "The March contracting surge proved to be a big one in seasonally-adjusted terms as well," said George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist for Dodge. "A 15 per cent February-to-March gain put the Western region at a new high when measured on this basis." After three months, the cumulative value of total construction in the West stands $4.56 billion ahead of 1972's first quarter by 12 per cent. The value of contracts for nonresidential building in the Western region reached $607.61 million during March, 20 per cent above a year ago. "Stores and industrial plants, the two components that are forecast to pace the nonresidential total all through 1973, turned in sharp gains during March," Christie said. "Hospitals and public buildings were also strong during the month but office contracting, and the educational component trended lower," he said. At the end of the first quarter the cumulative nonresidential total stands at $1.42 billion, above the year-ago quarter by 21 per cent.

The same month in 1972. "Both houses and apartments trended higher in March," reported Christie "as the growing concern about over-building has not, as yet, begun to worry the Western home builder." First quarter cumulative figures show the value of Western housing, at $2.32 billion, above the year-ago period by 11 per cent. Nonbuilding construction contracts awarded in the 11 Western states during March totaled $251.00 million, a 21 per cent gain. Strong gains in highway contracting and a sharp boost in sewer and water facilities pushed the region higher during the month. Utility construction was off sharply this month, routing last month's strong gain. At the end of three months the cumulative value of nonbuilding in the region stands at $830.36 million 3 per cent above 1972's opening quarter.

Top honor for Burks

JEROME — Douglas P. Burks, son of Mrs. Sam Burks, Jerome, has been honored by the Milwaukee Chapter of the American Marketing Association at its "marketing man of the year." Burks, a vice president of J. I. Case and general manager of the Wasau-based Drott Manufacturing Co., was selected because of his achievements in marketing. Drott, under his guidance, has continued to grow despite difficult conditions in the nation's economy, association officials said.

2 reasons why the price of SILVER may rise steeply

Two powerful forces are at work today which make a steep rise in the price of silver seem inevitable. First, the demand for silver surpassed new production for each of the last 20 years. And for each of the last 11 years the demand for silver surpassed new production by more than 100 million ounces. This excess of demand over supply is exerting a strong, steady upward pressure on the price of silver. During the 1960s the price of silver rose 95%. Second, soaring federal budget deficits, record balance of payments deficits, and 37 years of inflation have brought the dollar to the brink of collapse. Harry Browne, whose book How You Can Profit from the Coming Devaluation accurately predicted the first dollar devaluation in 37 years, and the record gold prices, warns: "The alternatives are narrowed to either runaway inflation or a full-scale depression." For nearly 2,600 years, since the first silver coinage, knowledgeable investors have turned to silver for financial protection—because silver generally performs well in bad times. For instance, between 1932 and 1935—the depths of the Great Depression—the price of silver more than tripled. Our new booklet, The Case for Silver—How to Protect Your Assets Against Inflation, by Louis E. Carabini, President of the Pacific Coast Coin Exchange, shows you:

- 3 reasons why the dollar must be devalued again
- How silver protects your assets against inflation and monetary crises
- Why the peculiar nature of the supply and demand for silver makes silver gains for silver seem inevitable—regardless of monetary crises
- 2 common mistakes in silver investing—and how to avoid them
- Why we believe a high silver investment in the Pacific Coast Coin Exchange Protected Margin Account in silver coins is your best, most reliable hedge against inflation in existence

REX MORGAN

What's What

L. M. Boyd

If you're age 51, sir, you were born the same year the first cake of dry ice was created. Was a time in Brainerd, Minn., when every grown male resident by law had to grow a beard, I'm told. What, you don't know who first called San Francisco's Golden Gate by that name? Sir Francis Drake was the poetic fellow.

Any young fellow, who bunked with another of his kind in the same room at school in England generations ago, was referred to as a "chamber fellow." And our Linguo man says it was a slang contraction of this unwieldy term that gave us our word "chum."

More songs were written about this fellow, next to Jesus, than about anyone else in history. Can you name him? All right, Charles A. Lindbergh.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS

- Q "Do any of our U.S. Senators still dip snuff?"
- A Know of none. Should be noted the snuff boxes in the Senate chamber are still kept filled, though.
- Q "If you cut all the fins off a fish, could it still swim?"
- A "Superbly."
- Q "Who's taller, actor Jim Arness or his brother actor Peter Graves?"
- A Arness by three inches.
- Q "What was the average age at death of prehistoric man?"
- A About 33 years 6 months, some scientists calculate.
- Q "How come a lawyer in court always talks about some crime committed 'on or about' a certain date even when he knows exactly the date of the crime?"
- A "Because none of the facts in any case are held to be true until the court itself determines them to be so."

FLOWER TALK

Would you recognize that blossom known as the China aster? Not would I. In the language of flowers, when sent to somebody as a gift, it's said to mean, "I'll consider your offer." The yellow rose is supposed to signify, "You're unfaithful." And the pink carnation says, "I'll never forget you."

There are also more sewing machines in this country than bathtubs. That bulge in the barrel is what gives it such strength. Typical ratio of rooster to hens on a farm is one to 10.

Some experienced woodsmen claim a hiker's back pack should weigh no more than a fifth of the hiker's weight. At least not until said hiker gets fairly well seasoned on the trails.

Come, come, surely you've heard of that famous English navigator Capt. Matthew Flinders—Only man in the history of the world who alone named a continent! Australia.

Specifically, exactly 27 per cent of the girls who marry as teenagers get divorced within 20 years. Census Bureau studies show.

Watergate's effect?

Question: Will Watergate change your voting habits? Has it undercut your faith in good government?

NANCY WHITE: "It's really hard to say. Other administrations have had scandals too, such as Teapot Dome, the Bobby Baker scandal, and Chappaquiddick. It seems as though these things keep happening."

ED SCHELL: "No, not at all. It's my opinion that this kind of thing has been going on between political parties for a long time. Not just at the national level either, but locally, too. The thing that bothered me was that they wouldn't own up to it when they got caught. It's blown everything out of proportion."

CLYDE M. LOWRY: "No, I've been out of town and need to catch up on my reading, but this won't affect my voting. I believe that people will still have confidence in Nixon and in the administration."

LINDA SMITH: "I wouldn't know what to say. I think it's confusing to everyone. If we don't have faith in the President, I really don't know what the country will come to."

JOHN R. GENTRY: "No. Absolutely not. Just because a bunch of politicians go get themselves in trouble, that doesn't change my outlook. If they want to spy on each other, that's their business."

JAMES HODGDON: "I don't think it will change my faith in the government, because I think the truth will come forth. I hope we'll know the truth at the end so that we can judge what to do in the future."

Theatre's grant aids TF schools

By BART QUESNELL

Special to the Times-News
Twin Falls Children's Theatre, under the 10 year reign of director-producer Mrs. Gene Sturgill, has received $3,300 in matching funds to spread theater into Vern C. O'Leary Junior High and Harrison Elementary schools. Observing that other state children's programs were steadily receiving monies from the Idaho Commission on Arts and Humanities, Mrs. Sturgill decided her own program might have a chance to be subsidized.

The Children's Theatre, as only a sponsor for monies received, will itself receive none of the allocated monies.

Those 31 programs that were chosen were judged primarily on "the ability of applicants to enrich the community and state, and to involve concerned persons as participants as well as audiences." Commission Chairman Arthur L. Troutner said.

She presented to the commission her "Living Experience in Drama" program approved by School District 411 Supt. George Staudaher to work within the junior high and elementary school.

"The theater group came up with $4,580 in assets including lighting fixtures, dimmers, lightboard, wiring cable, costumes and other materials. The commission matched part of the assets plus janitorial costs, and the time Mrs. Sturgill will be spending.

Mrs. Sturgill asked for only $3,430 from the commission however.

"I wanted it to pass," she said. "I didn't want them to think I was greedy so I didn't ask for more."

On the junior high level she will train two or three groups of young people with the sole aim of becoming a performing artists will be invited into the classes to instruct in the art of costuming, scenic design and make-up.

Only the upper grades on the elementary level will be trained. These children will be involved in Reader's Theatre troupe. They will perform several times during the year for the school children in the area, doing different skits and improvisations.

Most of the performances will be in the round. These students will be trained in mime, voice characterization and improvisation. Guest and creative drama. A workshop will be held with teachers to show them how drama can be integrated into the other subjects as a means of learning.

"Instead of students viewing plays, they will be presenting them and acquiring the benefit of participation," Mrs. Sturgill said.

She will take the program into the schools for a year working with approximately 60 students daily.

"I've created a job for myself doing what needs to be done," she said. "I remember when I was in grade school and we had nothing like this and a lot of youngsters missed out on any drama experience."

The result of her program is not to turn out majors, she explained but to develop creativity in mind and body.

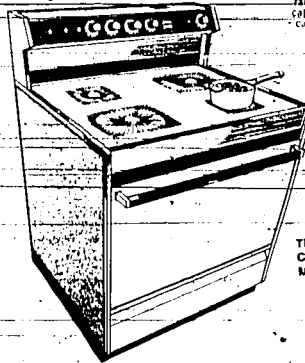

"These students deserve more than just entertainment. They are too often regarded as only capable of being a passive audience. It's time they were involved in personally expressing themselves creatively and dramatically."

CBS news plans repeat of major documentaries

"CBS News Retrospective," was a special 12-week series of some of the best-known and most influential documentaries produced by CBS News during the 1950s and 1960s. It will be broadcast on the CBS Television Network on Sundays (8 p.m.—7 p.m. MDT) beginning July 8 and continuing through Sept. 30, announced Bill Leonard, CBS News senior vice president and director of public affairs broadcasts.

Revenge escapee's goal in 'FBI' tale

The teleplay by Gerald Sanford was directed by Earl Bellamy.

Joint production battles cost rise

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — Some of the most important programs now being made for television are co-productions by companies in different countries combining to meet the ever rising costs. Francis Essex, one of Britain's leading television experts, believes this is a good trend for the industry on both sides of the Atlantic providing it is not forgotten that local programming is also an important part of television fare. Essex, who is production controller for Associated Television (ATV), spoke at the 13th annual International Television Festival of Monte Carlo, sponsored by Prince Rainier, into the daily run of big specials from a score of countries he dropped two programs — one on angling, one on gardening — which created a stir though they cost only $3,300 each.

Essex said, "Technical know-how has long since overcome the language barrier in television and I can visualize major international programs being screened simultaneously at peak viewing hours in several countries. But the specialized program for smaller numbers of viewers must still be provided or networks will lose their own particular national flavor."

later next season. "CBS News Retrospective," with Correspondent John Hart as host, will present a selection of CBS News' pioneering and best-remembered broadcasts, including SEE IT NOW: "McCarthy" (1954), "Harvest of Shame" (1960), "Don't Count the Candles" (1967), "The Tenement" (1967), "The Mystery of Stonehenge" (1965) OF BLACK AMERICA: "Black History: Lost, Stolen or Strayed" (1968), SEE IT NOW: "Milo Radulovich" (1953), "The Silent Spring of Rachel Carson" (1963), "Stravinsky" (1966), and THE GREAT AMERICAN NOVEL: "Babbitt" and "The Grapes of Wrath" (1968). "The CBS News Retrospective" series," said Leonard, "is inspired by the highly successful retrospective of CBS News broadcasts that was held at Lincoln Center in New York in November, 1971, under the sponsorship of the Film Society of Lincoln Center, Inc. "At Lincoln Center, the retrospective was obviously confined to a limited audience, and we now have the opportunity to offer many of these same broadcasts to the largest possible audience. "All of the broadcasts to be seen on the series are important for one reason or another."

30 seconds is a long time

By PATRICIA KOZA - SOUTH LYON, Mich. (UPI)

— Every time Marian La Bohn hears the ticking of a clock or the click of an automobile turn signal, she silently and automatically begins counting to 30.

As she counts off the seconds, her mind creates the image of four helicopters carrying two dozen Army Special Forces troops at treetop height over the Laotian jungle—and then only three.

The helicopter that never came back carried her son.

Sgt. Gary R. La Bohn, 30, is one of more than 1,328 servicemen listed as missing in action whose families do not know if they are alive or dead. For most of them, the Jan. 28 cease-fire in Vietnam has brought fresh hope, mingled with the knowledge that the agony is not over.

About 300 Americans were downed over Laos. Official sources in Vientiane, the nation's capital, believe 200 of these may have survived and 100 "should have."

On Nov. 30, 1968, the Army told Mrs. La Bohn her son, a communications specialist with the Green Berets, was shot down in "denied territory" and was listed as missing in action. She was told further information—including what country he was downed over—was classified.

"I didn't hear anything for three months after the incident," she recalls. "Then in March the Army Board of Review said the helicopter was downed by ground fire; it exploded and burned. That sounds very final, doesn't it?"

"But there was a lapse of 30 seconds between the time they were hit and the explosion, and those were highly trained men."

"Often when I stop at a light I listen to the click of the turn signal. I figure the clicks are about one second apart. And I think of all the things I could do in 30 seconds."

"I could do a lot in 30 seconds."

An active, cheerful woman of 65, Mrs. La Bohn has geared almost her entire existence toward trying to learn more of her son's fate. Her efforts include seven trips to Washington, constant contact with the military and a close watch on all news coming out of Southeast Asia.

In addition, many of South

Lyon's 2,600 residents and people in neighboring communities set in the rolling farm and horse breeding country 40 miles west of Detroit have written thousands of letters to American and Laotian officials, and have held prayer vigils and rallies.

Although she rejoiced with the families of freed prisoners of war, Mrs. La Bohn said, "It is important for people to be aware it is not all over yet. The war is over but the MIA issue is just beginning."

The constant search for even the smallest details has meant a continuing cycle of hope—and crushing disappointment.

From poring over maps and talking to other POW-MIA families over the years, she became convinced her son was shot down over Laos. A month ago, the Army confirmed it. She said she has been promised papers certifying that information, but has not yet received them.

The firm belief that Gary is in Laos—or even that he is alive—is not shared by his father, Haven H. La Bohn of Sarasota, Fla., who was divorced from Mrs. La Bohn about a year before his son was shot down.

"I have no information other than he was shot down in 'denied territory,'" he said.

"Anyhow, we're all hoping. We haven't given up hope, but we're trying to be realistic about it."

Gary's 27-year-old sister, Mrs. Lou Ann Hall of Westland, a Detroit suburb, shares her mother's hopes. A petite blonde with an engaging smile, Mrs. Hall works closely with her mother in trying to learn more about her brother.

"We get all excited and built up. Also when they announced the cease-fire. And then we find there's more waiting. Then came the cease-fire in Laos, so that gave us hope again. It's been up and down, up and down. How long do we have to wait?"

"I have a great deal of hope. I feel sure he's alive. But I feel helpless because I can't do anything about it."

The other member of the immediate family is David, 33, of Las Vegas, Nev.

A Marine and Air Force veteran, he is the most outspoken about the inability to get information on his brother.

"My biggest beef is they're not telling us anything," he said. "They send us a monthly form letter" saying "nothing new" and "hang on, sports fans." "I've tried to call everywhere I could, even the White House, but they totally isolate themselves."

"I'd just like somebody to write me and say 'Dear Dave, your brother disappeared at blank latitude and longitude. If they'd only give me something I could believe.'"

"The government has led my mother up and down the narrow path. They give her hope and then crash her against the rocks."

Mrs. La Bohn said she received a call one evening early in March from Claude Stacks of Memphis, Tenn., father of Capt. Raymond Stacks, who piloted the helicopter which carried La Bohn. He said he had gotten word Raymond was on a list released by Hanoi of prisoners held in Laos.

"We all have a strong feeling that if we can find out about one man on that helicopter, we will know about all of the men," she said.

Mrs. La Bohn called her Army assistance officer, Maj. Romayne Schroder of Ann Arbor, and asked him to check with the Pentagon.

"I sat up by the phone all night and waited," she said. "I finally got a call at 8 a.m. "It was all a mistake."

Actress' private life reverses series role

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Audra Lindley could holler in the middle of Hollywood Boulevard and no one would recognize her as the frizzy-haired, apple-brained Amy Fitzgerald of "Bridget Loves Bernie."

Audra is the overprotective, enormously wealthy, not-too-bright mother in the weekly CBS series. She is none of those things in private life.

The comedienne is the wife of actor James Whitmore. They met in New York rehearsing the play, "The Chic Life," in 1969, and were married in July, 1971.

Between them the couple has eight children by previous marriages, but only one, Audra's son Burt, 19, lives at home.

Opposing view gains TV time

MEXICO CITY. (UPI) — Mexicans have been surprised lately to see anti-government programming on prime time in national television, paid for by the government.

That has not always been the style of the Mexican post-revolutionary government, which has been rigidly controlled by one large political party for 40 years.

Now, every two weeks, in a new innovation called "Political Dialogue," Mexico's three opposition parties are each given 10 minutes of prime TV time to voice their views. The time is provided free by the government. Even the production costs are paid for by the government.

In the first such program, broadcast in early April, the National Action Party (PAN) called the powerful PRI party and the government it runs "A fraud." It accused the government of violence and repression. All costs were paid for by the government.

Six such programs — 40 minutes each, 10 minutes for each registered political party — will be broadcast before the national congressional elections next July.

The four parties include, of course, the Republican Revolutionary Institutional Party (PRI), which has run the country under different names for 40 years.

The programs wouldn't have been possible if the PRI didn't want them. They were written into a new election law proposed by President Luis Echeverria, who is a PRI member. They were also passed by both houses of congress, in which there is not one non-PRI elected member. (The three opposition parties have representatives in the lower house, but they are not popularly elected and they do not threaten the PRI majority).

Opposition parties — the PAN, the People's Socialist Party (PPS) and the Authentic Party of the Mexican Revolution (PARM) — have never had much political success. Of the 35,000 elected officials in Mexico, the PAN says, all but 35 are PRI members.

Announcing the new programs, Interior Secretary Mario Moya Palencia detailed the PRI's efforts to liven Mexican elections. Mexican democracy is not perfect," he said, "But it can be perfected and we are trying to perfect it."

Along with the television programs the new election laws have given youths the right to vote at 18 and lowered the age of office eligibility.

The government has also been conducting a nationwide mass media campaign to register potential voters. At last count nearly 23 million of a potential 26 million voters had registered.

Arnoldo Martinez Verdugo, first secretary of the Mexican Communist Party, claims government repression has kept his group off the official registries. He also refused, however, to say how many members the party actually has.

Four of them seat themselves around a rough-hewn table about three-foot square with a formica top worn so smooth its once flowery design is nearly obliterated. Someone dumps out 28 little rectangular-shaped black blocks with white dots.

Doc Gunter pulls out a package of Red Man chewing tobacco and shoves a wad into his left cheek. It bulges out like a toothache.

"Mix 'em up, Jeff," he says.

The elderly men of Crabapple are about to start another game of dominoes.

Seated around the table in addition to Gunter, who at 48 is the youngest of the group, are Walker E. "Jeff" Jeffords, 65; Ethel Chambers, 75; and Fred Devore, 68. They are the foursome for this game that started at high noon on a rainy spring day. Leon Bates, 61, is the solitary onlooker.

This particular game of dominoes is the first of the day and it lasts for 2 1/2 hours. Another one usually starts a little later in the afternoon.

Playing dominoes is one of the traditions of Crabapple, a tiny crossroads community almost lost among the gently rolling green pastureland of north Fulton County, 25 miles from Atlanta.

Young actor's nerve pays off

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It takes nerve for a 17-year-old kid with four movies to his credit to tell John Wayne how a scene should be played, but Gary Grimes is a nervy youngster.

He still shakes his head in wonderment at his courage.

"John Wayne was a movie star long before I was born," the youthful actor said. "You can imagine how scared I was of meeting him."

Gary wears spectacles, smokes nervously, wears his hair long and is of political persuasion altogether different from Wayne's. Prior to working with Big Duke in "Cahill, United States Marshal," Gary starred in "Summer of '42," "The Culppepper Cattle Company" and "Class of '44."

"The first day we met on the set I avoided using his name because everyone else was calling him 'Duke,'" Gary recalled.

"But he was so helpful and friendly that it wasn't long before I addressed him as Duke myself. Boy, is he impressive! His presence just flows into a room."

"I'm more in awe of him than anyone I've worked with. I thought I'd learn something about acting from him. What I did learn was consideration of other actors on the set."

Wayne might have picked up a tip or two on audacity from Gary.

Near the end of the film Gary discovered that the character he plays would be brushed off with small regard for his trespasses.

"I thought the guy I was playing shouldn't be let off so easily," Gary explained. "So I made a suggestion to our director, Andy McLaglen, that we change a key scene."

"He thought about it and decided I should tell Duke about it in my own words. I was scared to death. So both of us approached Duke."

"He listened carefully to what I had to say and then nodded his head. Duke thought it would work very well and that's the way we shot the scene. I was really grateful to him for that."

Grimes lit up a cigarette, still a bit unstrung. He relaxed by doing a better than average impression of Wayne's voice.

"I'd like to have as long a career as Duke," he said. "What actor wouldn't? But I'm a realist. I never fantasized I'd be in movies — maybe a television series. Yet here I am, working in four pictures in less than three years."

"I know I lead a different life than most guys 17. But I don't want to put all the emphasis on my career. When it ends, I don't want to be devastated. That's when people flip out."

Gary still lives at home with his mother in Burbank, Calif. He hopes to save enough money to buy a home — and maybe a small ranch — along the California coast north of San Francisco.

"I drive an old car that is the same age as I am," he said. "My values are pretty much the same as when I became an actor. I don't want a big house and I'm trying to stay away from materialistic things."

Creativity aids band 'feel'

By BERT QUESNELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Creative involvement is what first year band director, Rich Thorne, uses to get eighth grade O'Leary musicians to "feel" what they play.

One band period was spent playing with a ouija board. In another period students were blindfolded and left to wander through the junior high listening to the school.

No tools that musical creativity flows more freely when the ties of strict discipline are removed.

At the beginning of the semester each student draws up a contract with Thorne as to what he feels he can accomplish. When the semester is completed Thorne talks individually with his pupils and each student chooses his own grade for the semester.

Thorne has yet to give a grade to any student.

"It's their grade not mine," he said. "They always have the option to change their contract up to the last day of the semester."

Students have accepted this system and grade themselves honestly according to Thorne. Some have given themselves a 'D' because they knew their work was no better than that, he says.

The new instructor has set down four principles which he applies to teaching: 1) Listen 2) Perform 3) Compose 4) Discuss.

He believes too much emphasis on performing alone can cheat a student from acquiring an appreciation of music and sound in particular.

As a result of his experiences with strict disciplinarians starting in the fifth grade, he has developed his own teaching methods.

"I can't ever remember making a decision or musical judgement on my own back then," he said.

"I want students to start coping with change and think for themselves. If they want to correct me they can. I do try to see to it that kids are continually watching the conductor. I demand they preserve the speaker's right and others' rights when anyone is talking, and I try to get them to listen.

Discipline is all dependent on the individual, Thorne says.

"I don't have authority," he said. "Authority is power. I don't have power."

After graduating from Idaho Falls High School, he attended the University of Idaho where he received his B. M. in music education. He'll return this summer to receive his M. M. in education.

Since being hired at Twin Falls, Thorne has started High School and Jr. High jazz stage bands, and a group called the "Manual Flute" made up of musicians from O'Leary, Robert Stuart and the High School.

He also directs the high school marching band and three orchestras and three bands on his regular schedule.

He doesn't force music into his eighth graders. When the eighth grade band receives new material Thorne will run through it once with the players or until they know it so they can play it reasonably well.

After that, the rehearsal is primarily student-run, including directing the band, with which students take turns.

"It's theirs to direct, it's theirs to play, it's theirs to arrange, it's their grade," Thorne says.

Thorne remembers the men he hated to call "Mister." So first semester he challenged his students on the point.

"I imagine you people haven't been habit-stricken," he told them.

They all said no.

"Okay, you've called me Mr. Thorne all this time, so I want you to start calling me Rich."

For the first time all year they started raising their hands when they wanted to ask a question instead of blurting out Mr. Thorne. They couldn't accept that change the first week. Some made a cautious effort however.

"The first kid that tried it," Thorne continued, "was going out the door. He was going to say goodnight Rich and in his anxiety fell over a chair. But he got it out. Now there's quite a few who say, hey, Mr. Rich."

The right atmosphere is importance to living and feeling all that sound has to offer and the band room has taken on a completely new environment.

Posters hang on walls, doors and the ceiling, and artistic endeavors are spread throughout the entire room.

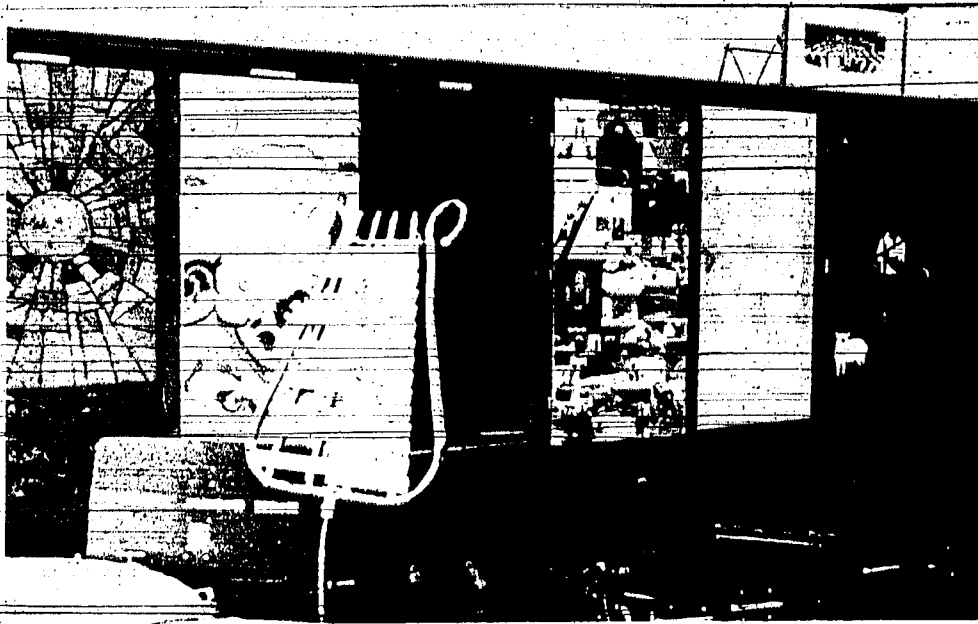

Students are stacking scraps of carpet to cover the floor next year and are bringing egg cartons to school in an attempt to soundproof the music practice room.

The plastic shells will shield noise effectively and produce a decorum unmatched in most orchestra halls.

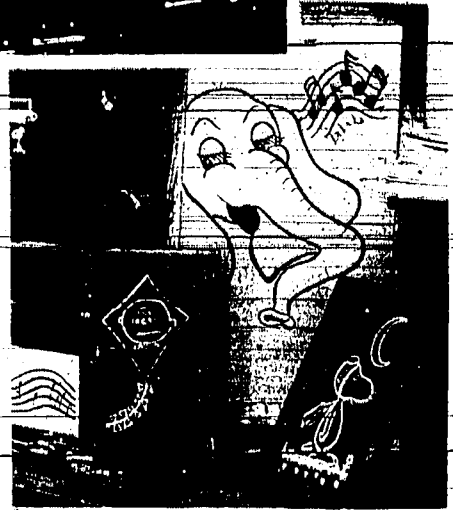

Different decor

EGG CARTONS which will be used to soundproof band room at Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School are carried by Rich Thorne, eighth grade band director, who employs creative approach to instruction of classes.

Artistic endeavors enliven O'Leary band room

Through non-verbal communication, kids learned a lot about other people . . . many kids learned they weren't very observant and weren't watching what was going on.

aware and eager to listen to the sounds around them."

Often, Thorne combines one of his classes with Bob Klus, language arts instructor for the eighth and ninth grades. The latest experiment involved both classes.

Thorne told the students he had a task for them but he couldn't say what it was. He laid a lid and a flap from several of the egg cartons students had brought him on a podium and stepped back to watch the reaction.

Many of the students sat about destroying egg cartons. Those students who knew of the soundproofing scheme cut lids and flaps and tried to salvage many of the cartons other students were destroying.

"Through non-verbal communication kids learned a lot about other people," Thorne says. "The experiment was to see what kids would do. I wanted them to cut the lids and flaps off the cartons. Many kids learned they weren't very observant and weren't watching what was going on."

Thorne says his classes next year will be more structured and planned. This was a testing year he said.

He awaits next year eagerly to see how much freedom can be allowed in a classroom situation and how much the students will react to the strain of thinking for themselves.

The principal at O'Leary has gone along with Thorne.

"Carl Snow has been extremely cooperative," Thorne said. "He is taking an interest and is helping me. I had to get his consent to do any of it, of course, but he hasn't gotten in my way ever."

Students take trips to the park to listen to sounds frequently. Snow never has stopped them, Thorne says.

"Listening Day" is set up once a week. Students bring records into the classroom and everyone puts his feet up, relaxes and just listens.

"So many kids have little opportunity to listen to all kinds of music," Thorne said. "This is an opportunity to sit down and relax. It's a good chance for them to learn there's more than they think to listening to music."

Thorne also is attempting to show his students that music is not dependent solely on standard musical instruments.

Among priorities for next year's budget is a synthesizer capable of producing sound different from any instrument. Also on the list are cassette players so students can take home and record sounds—formerly impossible to capture in class.

"Bathroom, kitchen and living room sounds are great," Thorne said. "This makes students

Newer movies help drop bars

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The new frankness in television shows was helped along by the increased number of earthy, adult movies visible on the home screen.

These motion pictures began to move in on video because the supply of older films, with more traditional values, was running short. Some of these films were being rerun to death.

This meant that broadcasters had to depend more and more on the newer supply of movies, with their contemporary outlooks, values and subject matter.

Some of these motion pictures were seen on local stations. Some were shown at odd hours, often late at night. A few of the films got on the networks, where the law of supply and demand was also working its way on programmers looking for new movies.

All of these factors combined to condition televiewers for more frank material and attitudes on the home screen. And this conditioning was important to the networks because it meant that newer outlooks could be used in regular television shows.

Furthermore, since broadcasters were increasingly interested in younger, urban audience — who presumably have more money to spend on advertised products, and like to spend it — the more contemporary films, and video shows, were part of the pattern desired by television.

Now, as the trend escalates, all of the adult material that the newer, televised movies made possible in video shows is making it inevitable for viewers to be conditioned for even, earlier motion pictures on the home screen.

This doesn't mean the floodgates are wide open. Far from it. Television is still basically conservative in its social outlook. For instance,

CBS-TV shied away from putting on the rock festival movie "Woodstock," which it had announced for this season, but which eventually made network executives nervous because of some explicit language and visual material.

Then there was the movie "The Damned," which CBS-TV put on its late-night motion picture series last year. By the time the network got finished editing the film for airing to the mass home audience, you could, as has been said, have called it "The Darned."

On the other hand, CBS-TV finally did put on Richard Brooks' film "In Cold Blood" with only minor deletions after he refused to budge in his firm rights to have approval over the way it would be seen.

And on May 24, CBS-TV will present Michelangelo Antonioni's contemporary movie "Blow-Up," starring Vanessa Redgrave and David Hemmings, although, no matter what network officials say, you always have to hold your breath a little before seeing now an "adult" motion picture actually is offered on the home screen.

"Blow-Up" is about half a dozen years old. A lot has happened to television — and its audience — in those years.

Eye-opener back when.

RIVALS IN LOVE are William Holden (left) and David Niven, who star in story of two friends in love with same girl in "The Moon Is Blue" on CBS Thursday night movies. Black and white film created stir with certain passages when first screened in early 1950's.

Many letters bring facts

By PATRICIA KOZA
SOUTH LYON, Mich. (UPI)
— In February, 1971, the Jaycees in Warren, Mich., launched a letter-writing campaign on behalf of two native sons listed as missing in action in Southeast Asia.

More than 44,000 letters went to the Pentagon, the State Department, Congressmen and the President, asking about the fate of Army CWO Michael O'Connor and Army S. Sgt. John Sexton.

It transpired that Sexton was listed as MIA only because of a bureaucratic snafu. In October, 1971, the Viet Cong released him from a prisoner-of-war camp.

O'Connor, a helicopter pilot shot down in 1968, showed up on one of the POW lists released by Hanoi. He returned home to a jubilant welcome in March.

"The city of Warren," he said, "is unique because both of its (missing) men have come back."

Sexton's case prompted Melvin Laird, then secretary of defense, to order that the families of men listed as missing in action have access to all their files.

And both cases have renewed the hopes of the families of 53 MIAs from Michigan.

William Harler of Warren, a suburb of Detroit, who heads the joint efforts of the Jaycees and the Michigan Prisoner of War Committee, said similar letter writing programs already have been set up for 16 of the state's MIAs. Jaycees in six other states have contacted him then begun similar programs, he said.

"This is not a political

'MIA' returns

GREETING FRIENDS and neighbors at home in Warren, Mich., is Army Sgt. John Sexton Jr., once listed as missing in action. More than 44,000 letters to Pentagon, state department, Congressmen and President were needed to straighten out bureaucratic bungle which listed him among MIAs. (UPI) thing," he said. "This is merely a request for an answer to a humane question."

Jaycee groups also have started flooding the offices of Congressmen and the President with postcards bearing sketches of the MIAs. Shary Aument, an artist from Kalamazoo, Mich., drew the sketches—100 of them, both MIAs and POWs—from photographs.

Private citizens distribute the sketches in packets of 10 pre-addressed postcards. Eventually, the plan is to have such packets for all the state's MIAs.

Since January, Harler said 500 letters have been mailed each week to Prince Suthanouvong, head of the Communist Pathet Lao in Laos, asking for information about Gary La Bohn, a Green Beret from South Lyon, Mich., who was shot down over the Laotian jungle in November, 1968. So far, there has been no reply, but the letter writing will go on until there is, Harler said.

Surprise party sabotage target

When the faculty and students at Walt Whitman High plan a surprise party for Mr. Kaufman, celebrating his 15th year as principal, a disgruntled athlete attempts to sabotage the festivities in "Fifteen Years and What Do You Get?" on the ABC Television Network's "Room 222" Friday.

New dentist target for Marcia's crush

Marcia gets a crush on her new dentist in "Love and the Older Man", on the ABC Television Network's "The Brady Bunch" Friday.

Dr. Vogel, the new family dentist, is the subject of Marcia's daydreams after she meets him. She believes that her feeling is returned when she misinterprets his interest in her as a babysitter in this repeat episode.

Robert Reed stars as Mike

Brady, Florence Henderson as Carol and Ann B. Davis as Alice, their housekeeper.

The Brady kids are Maureen McCormick as Marcia, Eve Plumb as Jan, Susan Olsen as Cindy, Barry Williams as Greg, Christopher Knight as Peter and Mike Lookinland as Bobby. Others in the cast are Dr. Vogel, Don Brit Reid, minister, Allen Joseph.

George Tyne directed the script by Martin A. Ragaway.

Ends reign

TANYA WILSON, Honolulu, reigning Miss USA, will crown Miss USA 1973 in final of Miss USA Beauty Pageant, to be broadcast live from New York City Saturday night on CBS television network.
