Panel asks Dean immunity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Apparently satisfied that ousted presidential counsel John W. Dean has crucial information to share, the Senate Watergate committee agreed unanimously today to ask the courts to grant him partial immunity from prosecution for his testimony before the grand jury.

The committee, at its last scheduled meeting before opening televised public hearings Thursday, also voted unanimously to seek an immunity order for a mystery witness whose name has never before been mentioned publicly in connection with the scandal — Roy Sheppard.

Chairman Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., and Vice Chairman Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., refused to otherwise identify Sheppard or describe his role in the case.

The partial immunity grant for Dean would protect him from being prosecuted for anything he told the committee relating to the Watergate case.

It would not, however, shield him from prosecution for anything developed by prosecutors independent of the committee.

— although the legal aspects of such prosecution would become complicated once partial immunity had been granted. The committee's vote to seek an immunity order for Dean firmed up a tentative decision to do so reached last week.

At that time, Ervin and Baker said they would seek immunity for Dean if the committee felt he had vital information and they could get it no other way.

The 34-year-old Dean has been reported negotiating through his attorneys for a grant of immunity from federal prosecutors in exchange for testimony before the Watergate grand jury.

In an interview today with the Washington Star-News, Dean was quoted as saying he did not believe any testimony he gives would "bring down the President," as the Star-News' Mary McGarry phrased it.

Dean was quoted: "I am in space in the cosmos. Look at the power he has."

At another point, Dean was quoted: "I'm not out to get anyone, not the President, not Haldeman, not anyone. Haldeman is the hardest working, most devoted man I ever saw."

Philchman, though, is something else."

He referred to H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, whose resignations as Nixon's top two assistants were announced April 30, the same day as the President disclosed he had fired Dean.

Dean said in the interview that in spite of the "fantastic title" of counsel to the President, "I had no real weight. I was counsel to the President, but I didn't counsel the President."

Ervin said when asked about Sheppard: "He's just a witness the committee wants to interrogate whom we have been unable so far to interrogate."

One reliable source, however, said Sheppard is the unidentified employee of the Nixon campaign who according to court papers, hunted away and hid eight cartons of documents from the White House office of E. Howard Hunt Jr., who pleaded guilty to all charges against him in the June 17, 1972, burglary and bugging of Democratic headquarters at the Watergate building.

Judge declines probe post
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Judge Harold R. Tyler Jr., the top choice of Attorney General-designate Elliott L. Richardson to become the special Watergate prosecutor, said today he has turned down the job.
Tyler said in New York he told Richardson he thought it was inappropriate for a sitting judge to take on the responsibility — even though Richardson told him he was his No. 1 choice. (Earlier story, p. 4)

Gold price zooms upward
LONDON (UPI) — The price of gold shot up to $128.50 an ounce today in Paris, causing speculation about a possible third devaluation of the dollar as it slumped but other currencies gained.
In Washington, Peter Elanigan, assistant to the President for international economic affairs, told the Senate Banking Subcommittee Monday the gold price increase did not signal a further devaluation.

Skylab reported overheating
CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The power-short Skylab space station ran into serious new troubles today when it started overheating in orbit, raising new problems for the launch of its first three astronauts.
The crewmen, Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz, flew back to Houston to help flight planners attempt to salvage what they can from the mission. (Earlier story, p. 8)

Carnegie students protest visit
CARACAS (UPI) — Some 200 students protesting the visit of Secretary of State William P. Rogers clashed with police today. They burned tires in the street to halt traffic along Avenida Paez in the El Paraiso residential sector.
Police broke up the demonstrators. Rogers, on the third stop of an eight-nation swing through Latin America, did not see them.

Bruce starts Peking work
PEKING (UPI) — A U.S. liaison mission began work today under David K. E. Bruce, first American diplomat in Peking in 24 years.
Bruce arrived Monday and began work without ceremonies. He is expected to be received soon by Premier Chou En-lai. Bruce's office is in a diplomatic residential area in a Peking suburb.

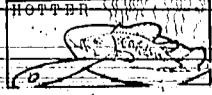

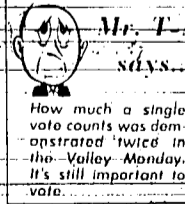

Bonn radicals' homes raided
BONN (UPI) — Police raided the dwellings of left-wing radicals in several cities today to smash an alleged effort by extremists to disrupt the visit of Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev, police sources said.
In Bonn, government sources disclosed Brezhnev will remain in the capital protected by thousands of security police and lodged in regal quarters for nearly all of his five-day visit. Brezhnev is scheduled to arrive Friday.

Cambodian cabinet chosen
PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Premier-designate in Tan chose a 21-man cabinet today to bring opposition political forces into the government of President Lon Nol in hopes of future peace in Cambodia. But the war continued and there was fighting 10 and 14 miles from the capital.

DECS delays grain orders
TWIN FALLS — Department of Environmental and Continuity officials said late Monday pollution compliance schedules would not be mailed to grain operations around the state for several more weeks.
A spokesman for the department had said the schedules, setting out plans for the firms to meet clean air standards by a certain date, had been mailed last Friday.

Lebanese concessions hinted
VIENNA (UPI) — Negotiators from East and West disagreed again Monday on the status of Soviet troops based in Hungary, a snag threatening to further delay talks on troop and arms reductions in Central Europe.

Hailey holds up referendum move

By TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News writer
HAILEY — A 145-signature petition requesting that the Hailey City Council pass an initiative and referendum ordinance was presented at the Hailey Council meeting Monday night.

The petition, presented by Robert W. Ward, Hailey, calls for a referendum on the McCulloch Properties, Inc. petition for annexation of a 650-acre development site.

Mayor Lawrence Heagle tabled action on the petition, but stated said it would be presented, with Wards approval, at tonight's city council public hearing on the annexation petition.

In a statement accompanying the petition, Ward said he is aware that under state law a referendum ordinance is not possible for 46 more days.

"But, on July 1 a referendum becomes a reality for Hailey and I assure you that a legally valid petition, containing well over the 48 required signatures, could easily be obtained," Ward said.

Ward said a "second distinct possibility is that if the proposal (McCulloch) is approved without benefit of a referendum vote, then the people of Hailey may initiate a referendum subsequent to July 1, thereby overturning the proposed annexation of the McCulloch property."

Ward appealed to the council to let the residents of Hailey "make this critical decision."

TF school vote today

TWIN FALLS — Polls will be open until 8 p.m. today to elect a trustee in Zone 1 of the Twin Falls School District.
Running for the three-year term are Frank DeLuca, director of Magic Valley Laboratory, and Kenneth Hodge, who operates his own garden-consultant service.

Incumbent John Wolfe, school board chairman, did not seek re-election.
Both candidates have said they favor kindergartens and also cite replacement of Washington grade school because of the traffic problems as top priority for the district.

Voting will be conducted at Street and Lincoln schools. Only residents of zone 1 may vote. The zone is bounded by Rock Creek, Fifth Street West, Main Avenue West to West Five Points, Addison Avenue and Locust Street.

Move north creates problems for TF

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Its rapid growth toward the Snake River Canyon poses serious problems for the City of Twin Falls:
— Will subdivisions and commercial centers detached from the city raise the cost of city services such as police and fire protection, sewage and water?
— Will rapid northward population movement with accompanying commercial centers draw business away from downtown Twin Falls where over $2 million has just been spent to maintain business there?
— Will the northward movement worsen the quickly deteriorating traffic situation along Blue Lakes Boulevard North? Can the beautiful north entrance to the city be preserved, or will it simply become a "North Strip" along a Las Vegas model?
— Will the northward movement draw people from the older residential areas downtown, hastening the decay of the mile-square original townsite? Will property values there begin falling rapidly with the exodus, eliminating most incentive for re-investment there? Will these residential areas, including some of the city's most beautiful, become a slum?
— Moreover, should the city and county hire a professional planner to try to make some sense out of the jumbled developmental patterns currently taking place?

Twin Falls City Manager Jean Milar agrees that the Interstate 80-US 93 junction on the Northside will eventually act as a "magnet" pulling "travel oriented activities into that area."
But he does not think either north rim development or scattered subdivisions now being planned along the south canyon rim will necessarily increase costs to city taxpayers. Contrary to predictions by some land use experts.
"If we wanted to annex a strip of land down to the airport or subdivisions by some "undefined" amount when residents from new developments visit the city to shop.

These are intangible things that you can't place some dollars on," he says.
Milar is not concerned that development moving toward the canyon rim, particularly on Blue Lakes Boulevard North, will detract from the downtown business area. The downtown renovation under Urban Renewal at a cost of about $2.7 million, had been intended to draw business back into the downtown area.

"We have a commercial business mix downtown that is well-balanced and can't be hurt unless a whole new duplication is built somewhere else that can better serve the public," Milar says.

"Our present downtown area is well-centered in our populated area. It has many advantages that you can't duplicate somewhere else."

"I can't imagine anyone building a well-mixed business development unless there is a warrant for it, and in that case it won't hurt the downtown," he says.
"Every merchant would like to have a waiting line in front of his cash register. That's the dream of every merchant. But it's unrealistic. It just isn't going to happen. If the downtown merchants stay competitive they'll do just fine."

Motor inn project starts in TF today

TWIN FALLS — Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new Rowday Inn in Twin Falls were conducted this morning.
Twin Falls Mayor John Christoffersen turned the first shovel of dirt with the assistance of the contractor, Neilson Construction Co., Twin Falls, which will build the $1.8 million motor inn. The new business will create more than 50 jobs in the area and pour more than $250,000 in annual payroll into the local economy.
The structure, located on Blue Lakes Boulevard North, will have 112 rooms, a coffee shop, a dining room, a lounge, a heated swimming pool, a health exercise room and a 300-seat convention center.
James Koufins, owner of Western Realty Co., which handled the land transaction between Idaho Corporation and John Brackenridge, the former land owner, said the Rowday Inn will attract more overnight travelers to Twin Falls.
Craig Neilson, of Neilson Construction Co., said construction should be completed by October.

Richfield trustee named on lone vote

RICHFIELD — The power of one vote was demonstrated here Tuesday when a school trustee running unopposed was elected by a single ballot.
Candidate Bruce Sorensen didn't vote for himself, either. The ballot was cast in Zone 4 by an 18-year-old high school senior, Supt. Nell Anderson said.
Dec Wolverton, area rancher and write-in candidate, defeated Jim Wellhausen — whose name was on the ballot — by a 10-5 margin in Zone 5. Wolverton replaces Ralph Riley Jr., who did not seek re-election.
Patrons approved a 7.10 year, 3 mill plant facility levy.
Sorensen was serving out a two-year unexpired term after being appointed to the board a year ago following a tie vote.

Building safety on rim queried

TWIN FALLS — Is the canyon rim safe for building?
This question has not been given public focus by either developers or zoning officials as plans are drawn up to build choice view homesites and commercial developments along the canyon's edge.
Consulting geologist L. J. Ettinger of Twin Falls thinks the safety factor "must be considered."
"I think a study ought to be made by a competent engineering geologist to determine exactly how stable and competent the rock is," he says. "The rock is solid but it can break and slough along various fractures. It does. You can go over there now and see where pieces of the rim have been sloughing off — anything from 5 to 20 feet wide."

Veteran shot, hostages freed

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — A psychologist who treated William H. Abernathy, 25, killed by FBI and sheriff's sharpshooters after holding a hostage atop an aviation fuel tank, said today that the Vietnam veteran was enraged because his ex-wife failed to meet him on Mother's day.

Dr. Loren Pankratz said the attorney for Abernathy's former wife, Nancy, 23, did not relay a message to her asking for a reconciliation meeting Sunday.

Abernathy was killed Monday as he descended from the tank behind his hostage. The FBI said lawmen shot him to protect the hostage and because he had threatened to throw up the tank which contained 840,000 gallons of volatile aviation fuel. The drama occurred at Portland International Airport.

Abernathy, a Navy veteran who served on the aircraft carrier Oriskany off Vietnam, had demanded to see Mrs. Abernathy and their two children. The mother and children were flown here from Bellingham, Wash., but they were not taken to the tank area.

Pankratz, of the Veterans Administration Hospital, said he would have considered it very dangerous to let Abernathy near his ex-wife. "At the end, my impression was that Abernathy was feeling helpless," he said. The psychologist had tried to talk the young man down from the tank.

Abernathy had been under treatment at the VA hospital for 2-1/2 months. Dr. Vincent Gaudin, also of the VA facility, said the patient felt very strongly about the sanctity of marriage.

The end of the eight-hour ordeal on the tank came as Abernathy slowly descended life stairs. At least seven shots were fired at him from the law enforcement marksmen and five found their mark.

'Comic' record

MITCHELL Mobley, 18, shows his copy of the first Superman comic book which he recently purchased for $1,801.26, believed to be a record amount for a comic book. Mobley described the book as "the ultimate comic book," explaining that from the original edition of 500,000 in 1938 there were now only nine known copies in existence. (UPI)

Panel asks Dean shield

The Senate committee has obtained a half-dozen such orders already from Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica. It is generally accepted that a judge must grant such orders if requested, although Sirica is studying the matter.

Baker indicated Dean has already had preliminary interviews with the committee staff, providing the panel enough information "to proceed" with an immunity grant.

On Monday Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said testimony given to the Senate Armed Services Committee linked Dean, Ehrlichman and Haldeman and Ehrlichman as well as Dean. Symington said after hearing the closed-door testimony of Deputy CIA Director Vernon A. Walters.

Acting FBI Director William D. Ruckelshaus meanwhile announced that he recently recovered from Ehrlichman's White House office the records of wiretaps on newsmen and government officials during 1969-71.

Ehrlichman, who appeared before a federal grand jury Monday along with Haldeman, later told newsmen he simply put the wiretap records "away for safekeeping."

Other documents related to the Watergate scandal were turned over to U.S. District Court Monday by Dean, who had hidden them in a safe deposit box in Virginia, Dean had asked the court to take the documents, which he described as "more secret" than "top secret."

Cassia 'seniors' ask for county sponsorship

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

BURLEY — The Cassia County Senior Citizens asked the county commissioners Monday to take over sponsorship of its organization from the South Central Community Action Agency (SCCAA).

Although great strides had been made in developing the organization, representatives said, "our greatest handicap has been the SCCAA." The group told the commissioners that their bills, which are supposed to be paid through the SCCAA, have been delinquent and cooperation has been poor.

Senior citizens' groups in Jerome, Kimberly and Twin Falls have pulled away from the Community Action Program, they said, "and we want to be next."

If the center's own staff will "be the banker" and keep the books, commissioner Weldon Beck said, the commissioners would be willing to sponsor the group. But, said Beck, "our bookkeeper is swamped now."

The state has asked the group to get its own bookkeeper, the representatives said, and they were now in the process of hiring one.

Members of the group planned to travel to Boise Monday to talk with officials in the Idaho Office on Aging to work out the process of transferring sponsorship. Beck told them to request representatives from the office meet with the county commissioners about the change.

"I don't know of any group I'd rather work with," Beck said of the senior citizens.

The group said they are drawing up a federal grant at the present time. Last year the group received $14,000 in cash from the government and $4,000 in kind.

They are hoping to begin a nutrition program in the near future. Currently four out of eight districts in the state have the program, including Twin Falls, they said.

The center now serves one meal a week to senior citizens at a charge of 50 cents. The meal is subsidized through the federal funds. "I'm sure that meal on Friday is the only decent meal some of those people get all week," one of the representatives said.

They hope to expand the program to two or more meals a week.

Sen. Robert Saxvik, D-Burley, spoke on behalf of the Senior Citizen's later in the meeting. "By making the change of sponsorship, he said, "we are bringing government closer to home."

The bill which was passed in the last legislature making it possible for county commissioners to sponsor senior citizens groups "speaks to monitoring and giving advice," Saxvik said. The wording of the bill stresses "may" instead of "will" and doesn't tie the commissioners down, he said.

The commissioners agreed to pay up to $1 per family and to issue donated commodities to residents in emergency situations between distribution dates, following a discussion with William Murdock, from the Twin Falls office of Environmental and Community Services (ECS).

Currently, said Murdock, they can issue food between distribution dates, but the problem is the paperwork necessary to issue a few. People who move into the area between distribution dates need the food as soon as possible, he said. But commodities are not distributed to people passing through, Murdock said, only "to residents who have the facilities to use them." Most food distributed through the commodities program requires preparation.

The commissioners agreed to talk to the fair board about its policies governing the county western jamboree sponsored by the Burley Exchange Club each year the day before the county fair opens.

The club is not allowed to run concessions, yet is expected to clean up after the event, according to Exchange Club representative Andy Wilson. Wilson said the club had built new benches and a new stage for use at the fairgrounds at no charge to the fairboard.

MV cattlemen ask funds for probe

GOODING — Cattlemen in five Magic Valley counties are seeking $5,000 in county funds to hire a sheriff's deputy to investigate cattle rustling.

The livestockmen met Monday with commissioners in Gooding, Blaine, Camas, Lincoln and Elmore Counties to request the funds.

Charles Kast and Cliff Harris, area cattlemen, told the Gooding commissioners that, if the counties contributed $1,000 each, the federal government would add another $15,000 for the new deputy. Gooding sheriff Earl Brown said cattle rustling is one of the most serious problems in the county. He said over 50 head of cattle have been stolen in the past six months. Three calves were taken last week, he added.

The problem has been increasing since November, according to Brown, apparently because of the rise in meat prices.

Brown said he is not sure whether the rustling is being done by individuals or an organized ring. The cattle are often taken out of the county by the rustlers, making it difficult to track them, according to the sheriff.

Valley trustees hire principal

VALLEY SCHOOL — Valley school trustees have hired William Mitchell as high school principal for the ensuing year.

Supt. Tony Utterback said Mitchell has been with the system the past two years as a mathematics instructor.

Dr. Utterback said Valley High School has not had a high school principal for the past three years as principal duties have been shared by him and Arlyn Bodily, assistant superintendent.

Dr. Utterback retires at the end of this school year and Bodily has been named to replace him.

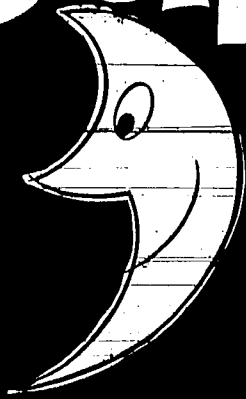

Mitchell attended the University of North Dakota, Grand Fork, transferring to Minot State College, Minot, N. D., to obtain his bachelor's degree in education.

He plans to attend Northern Arizona University, Flagstaff, this summer to obtain his master's degree.

No Letup In OEO Brickbats

WASHINGTON — There is no let-up in the barrage of brickbats battering OEO's highly controversial Legal Services program.

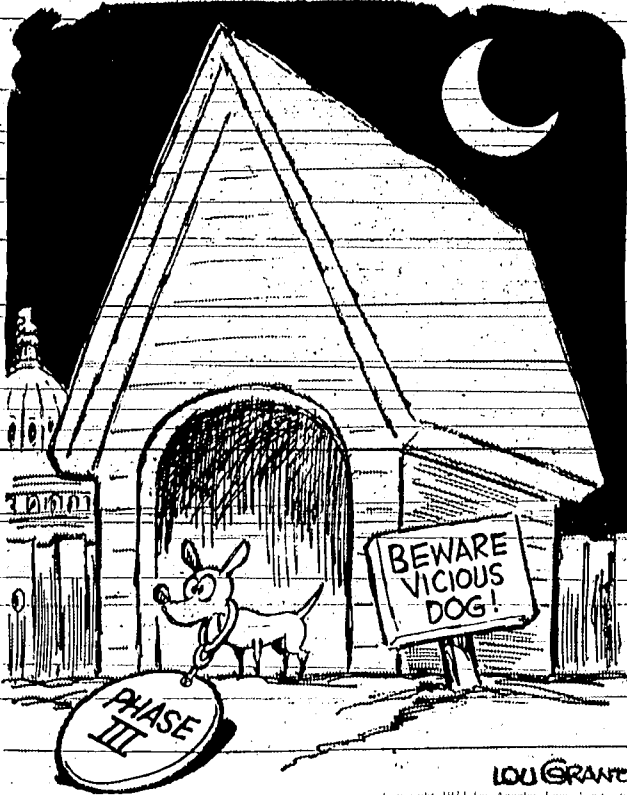

Accompanying this constant expansion in size, operations and expenditures has been a mounting chorus of irate complaints, protests and charges by local, state, judicial and other authorities.

"At a meeting yesterday, our local judges unanimously agreed to recommend that you do not award this $202,000 to the Legal Services organization."

to obtain important information, as follows: "Adequate data was not available to determine the actual number and types of cases; to measure achievements in program goals areas, and to compute the average cost of cases handled."

information on 5,003 cases handled by Legal Services during the 1971 program. We found that 582 cases (10 percent) reported annual incomes in excess of the income limitation. In another 232 cases we were unable to determine whether the income limitation had been adhered to because the necessary information was not recorded.

SON OF PHASE ONE AND TWO

Both add weightily to Legal Services' already top-heavy load of condemnation. Illustrative are a critical report by the General Accounting Office and a blistering letter by Judge John Niblack of the Marion, Ind., Circuit court.

Forcefully pointing out that the Indianapolis Legal Aid Society already is providing adequate legal services for the needy, Judge Niblack contends the $202,000 could be put to much better use than spending it for "duplicating" legal services, such as Boy Scouts for inner-city children.

"This is only one of a number of its serious adverse findings. Says the GAO: 'Some judges stated they had had problems with LSO attorneys. The problems pointed out by the judges were: courtroom disruptions, disrespectful behavior, falsification of documents, and attorneys who, in the opinion of the one judge, were militants interested only in battling the establishment.'"

The balance in another instance could not be determined because of inadequate records. Other examples of this failing include: records were not kept to identify deposits with the names of individuals making them; the same individual was responsible for accepting money from clients; making bank deposits, maintaining bookkeeping records and reconciling bank accounts; records of individual client deposits could not be reconciled with the deposit-control accounts."

"Our analysis of source documents and statistical reports," asserts GAO, "showed that reports were inaccurate and incomplete. Our tests of the intake and disposition forms showed that data in the statistical reports on accomplishments did not agree with the supporting intake and disposition forms."

impressive. He held McGovern by just 46 per cent to 37, and the tongues clucked. Careful post-game analysts think they can show at least one trick, a fake letter, hurt him in key Manchester.

The GAO study covered six states — California, Colorado, Minnesota, Montana, New York and Wisconsin — and Puerto Rico. In 1971, OEO allocated $8 million for Legal Services in these areas.

"OEO's Legal Services guidelines provide that OEO not give free legal services to individuals who can afford a private attorney. We examined financial existence. In brief, although GAO does not say so specifically, Legal Services has been just as loosely and sloppily run, wasteful and trouble-making as the notoriously scandal-ridden Community Action program — which is being dismantled after costing taxpayers more than $3 billion in its malodorous nine years' existence.

Arm Of Law

It was Boston's late Richard Cardinal Cushing who used to say, in reference to avowed non-Communists who nevertheless repeated the Communist line: "If it looks like a duck, waddles like a duck, and quacks like a duck, I call it a duck."

large dose of stupidity... People who use their badge for illegal purposes are worse than the criminals they seek.

At least one family in Winthrop, Mass., and two others in Collinsville, Ill., are today asking themselves a similar question.

Four of the agents in the Collinsville raids, he said, had been suspended and he promised compensation for any damage they did. One of the victims has filed suit for $100,000.

In Winthrop last January, 15 bearded, long-haired men waving guns and shouting obscenities suddenly invaded a home and proceeded to terrorize its occupants. In Collinsville on the evening of April 23, a similar group broke into a house and an apartment, again mouthing obscenities and brandishing weapons — and, charges one complainant, held a gun to his head and threatened to kill him.

It is questionable whether any amount of apologies or monetary compensation can erase the memories of those moments of terror in the minds of the three families, as well as others who have gone through similar experiences that have not made the headlines.

In all three cases, the invaders turned out to be federal, state and local narcotics agents who, acting on tips, had mistakenly broken into the wrong homes. In all three cases, they left without a word of apology.

What is more disturbing is that such raids are not illegal, though Mr. Ambrose seemed to imply that they were. They are made possible by the controversial "no-knock" provision of the 1970 Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act, which gives officials the right to enter premises with warrants without notice based on "probable cause" if there is reason to believe that evidence might be destroyed or someone's life or safety be endangered if notice were given.

The question is: If a man looks like a criminal, talks like a criminal, and acts like a criminal, what is he? And how much difference does it make if he carries a policeman's identification in his pocket?

It is a far more serious matter than "misguided zeal" in a good cause, as President Nixon remarked about the Watergate affair. If law enforcement officials make a practice of adopting the methods of crime in the name of fighting crime, and if innocent people get hurt in the process, the nation may eventually lose something far more precious than it will gain by the rounding up a few criminals.

According to Myles J. Ambrose, special assistant attorney general in charge of the Office for Drug Abuse Law Enforcement, "Drug people are the very vermin of humanity. Occasionally we must adapt their dress and tactics." He did, however, add that the agents involved in these affairs "seem to have been guilty of a

MR. SPECTATOR

Let's Pucker, Gals!

Good news for the lovers of the world: the kiss is not the common cold carrier one might have presumed. Medical science may not yet have figured out the direct cause of the most common of human maladies — that will not have been accomplished until an affective cure is presented.

543-4094 in Buhl. We have a Siamese mother cat, that has three kittens. We would like to find a nice home for them. Please call 733-1217 and ask for Terry.

But it is debunking an assortment of myths about the origin of the cold simply by trying them to determine if they will produce one. The results of some of those experiments were presented to the American Society of Microbiology at its meeting in Miami Beach.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE: You can be sure you have reached middle age when your weight lifting consists of merely standing up.

Dr. J. A. Peterson of the University of Wisconsin reported that sitting in a draft, wet-foot, fluctuations from extremes of warm and cold air all failed to produce common colds. So did kissing, which volunteers from the university stoically administered in the cause of science.

FISHING These are the days — both to fish and to get ready to fish. If you don't believe it is all that popular it must be because you are unable to see. Ever note the number of campers and vacation trailers parked in the area of the Richfield Canal up north? And do you know something. We believe a majority of the fishermen give their catch away!

Cold-free volunteers were parried with partners with colds and instructed to kiss for one and one-half minutes at a time. Only seven per cent of the volunteers caught colds. Even when cold viruses were applied to the nose and tongue, few of the volunteers caught cold.

FARM EXPORT SURGE That is not gold that is being grown in our wheat fields, but it is the next best thing in international trade. American agriculture exports are soaring — they have set six successive monthly records — and no end is in sight.

"Oral contact is a poor means of transmission," the researchers concluded. Whereupon a collective sigh of relief was heard on campus.

Part of the increased income earned by agricultural exports is in actual volume growth; part is in rising prices on the international scene, the same push showing up in U. S. stores. The next net affect, however, is a surprising improvement in the United States balance of payments.

My goodness! If Mr. Spectator had known this back when he was doing a lot of kissing with a lot of gals! But now — what's the difference. We'll settle for just a good, old cold.

March farm exports reached a new high of $1.4 billion, more than double the exports for the previous March. Agricultural exports reached $9 billion for the nine months ended in March, up nearly 50 per cent from the same period a year ago.

A West German firm has come up with a solution for people who always wanted to learn a foreign language but never had the time. The Starlight Tissue Company of Wittenhausen is marketing rolls of toilet paper with English lessons printed on them. The complete course consists of 26 lessons, one lesson per roll of paper, repeated after every sixth square of tissue. The packages are appropriately labeled "Lerne in Musse" — Learn at Leisure.

The dramatic improvement in sales of farm products was only partly predicted on the strength of the sales of grain to the Soviet Union. It is farther reaching than that, a good sign for both the economy, the dollar stability and our own Magic Valley.

Fate from war closes in on Cambodians

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Fate arising from a war the Cambodians never wanted is closing in on them from three sides.

On Thursday, May 17, Henry A. Kissinger is to meet with North Vietnam's chief negotiator, Le Duc Tho, in Paris on the subject of North Vietnamese violations of the ceasefire agreement for Indochina.

In Phnom Penh, Cambodia's capital, a four-man high political council is seeking some kind of accord within itself to rescue the country from the threat of imminent collapse to which it has been brought by the one-man rule of the half-paralyzed President Lon Nol, a man more concerned with history and astrology than with inflation and the corruption of his government.

So far as Cambodia was concerned, the vote involved only the comparatively minor sum of $25 million to cover the costs of Cambodian bombing to the end of June.

But for the first time in six years the House had voted against the administration's conduct of the war in Indochina and forecast an imminent showdown on the war-making powers of the presidency.

In Phnom Penh, U. S. pressure finally had persuaded President Lon Nol to ship off to Paris and the United States on a nebulous assignment his younger brother, Brig. Gen. Lon Non.

The United States blamed Lon Non for much of the corruption permeating the Cambodian

They were Sisowath Sirik Matak, a former premier; In Tam, a former interior minister; and Cheng Heng, a former chief of state.

But to save Cambodia and its proud Khmer population reduced through the centuries from 50 million to six million, the key rested with Hanol.

It is conceded in Cambodia, and even in Washington, that most if not all of the fighting against the Phnom Penh government is carried on by other Cambodians. But they are supplied and advised by North Vietnamese and the presence of some 40,000 Vietnamese holding downkey areas gives the insurgents mobility and the choice of targets.

Thus it is up to Hanol to decide whether the fighting is to end or continue.

government and for being the voice that had persuaded his brother to rid himself of the few men who might help to save the country.

Lon Non had made himself the strangman of the cabinet, in charge of police and intelligence operations and a swaggering commander of an infantry division.

In his place came three men who had participated in the beginning in the overthrow of the former chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Expansion OK'd

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus gave the go-ahead Monday for the personnel commission to continue expansion of the state in-service training program for state employees.

"Originally, initiated in March, 1972, as an experimental program, results from the program during its first year indicate it was well attended and well received," Andrus said.

Soviet ships snoop Red China coast defenses

TAIPEI (UPI) — A Soviet fleet of three to five warships sailed through the Formosa Strait Saturday in an apparent effort to spy on the Chinese Communist coastal defenses, authoritative sources said Monday.

The sources told UPI the Russian flotilla sailed along a route between 25 to 45 miles from the China Mainland when it passed through the 95-mile-wide strait in daylight.

The sources, who have access to military information, said the Russian naval patrol was composed of at least one destroyer, one escort destroyer and one submarine which was sailing on the surface.

They said two other Russian warships of unidentified types were also sighted with the fleet before it entered the strait from its northern end between Foochow on the mainland and Keelung in Taiwan. However, the two ships disappeared during the fleet's daylight passage through the 270-mile-long strait, they added.

This is the first time that any

Russian warships have appeared in the strait since 1949 when the Communists drove the Nationalist government to Taiwan.

CIA claims 'cover up' rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Armed Services Committee is expected to release new testimony today in which officials of the Central Intelligence Agency claim they were asked, and refused, to help cover up financial arrangements for the Watergate bugging conspiracy.

Acting Chairman Stuart Symington, D-Mo., called a news conference for 12:30 p.m. EDT at which he was expected to give details of contacts between the CIA and White House aides John W. Dean III, John Ehrlichman, and IL R. Halde-man.

Sources on a committee said closed-door testimony Monday from Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, deputy director of the CIA, indicated the White House sought the agency's help in covering up campaign contributions funneled into Mexican bank accounts. The funds wound up in the hands of the convicted Watergate conspirators.

Walters testified that the CIA immediately rejected the request.

The agency has already acknowledged that, on orders from the White House, it furnished a wig and other disguise paraphernalia for an investigation of alleged security leaks. The equipment was used in the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

But the new testimony from Walters, Symington said, indicated "there were other matters besides the Ellsberg case in which the White House involved the CIA."

What use the White House aides could have made in covering up the "laundered money" funneled through Mexico was not clear. The funds—more than $100,000—apparently were sent through Mexico in an attempt to disguise the identity of the contributors and were converted to checks later cashed by G. Gordon Liddy, one of the seven convicted Watergate conspirators.

Symington said Walters' testimony also demonstrated that Halde-man and Dean as well as Ehrlichman were "deeply involved" in the CIA-aided plot to spy on Ellsberg.

Considered for job

Watergate prosecutor selection guidelines set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General-designate Elliot L. Richardson and the Senate Judiciary Committee have hammered out rough guidelines on what the special Watergate prosecutor—who may be named today—would do and how he would do it.

Richardson said Monday the prosecutor would be selected from among four finalists: Warren M. Christopher, 37, deputy attorney general in the Johnson administration; William H. Erickson, 49, Colorado Supreme Court Justice; David H. Peck, 70, retired New York Supreme Court Justice, and Harold R. Tyler Jr., 51, U.S. District Court judge in New York.

If none of the four accepts, Richardson said, he will go to a list of 10 or 12 from which the four were chosen during the weekend.

After three days of confirmation hearings, which resume today, Richardson and committee members agreed the special prosecutor would assume authority over investigation of the Watergate bugging, all offenses arising out of the 1972 presidential campaign, including campaign financing, and the so-called White House "plumbing operation," which was established in 1971 at the time of the Pentagon Papers to plug news leaks.

"He in effect will assume authority over all of them," Richardson remarked Monday when Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., asked whether the prosecutor would examine Daniel Ellsberg's prosecution and the theft of Ellsberg's psychiatric files.

Richardson said the prosecutor would have authority over the preparation of indictments, the granting of immunity and the proceedings of grand juries.

Democratic senators have pressed Richardson closely on how much authority he would grant the prosecutor and how much he would retain for himself. They have contended that the prosecutor must have sufficient authority to remove doubt that Richardson, as a member of President Nixon's official family, was dictating the investigation.

Richardson revealed Monday that acting White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig and a second staffer, believed to be acting White House Counsel Leonard Garment, proposed to Richardson that he consider former Govs. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown of California and Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri for prosecution.

Richardson assured the senators that he would not select either man.

"Does it concern you that you have people down at the White House advising you on this matter?" Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., asked.

"I didn't feel I was being given any advice," Richardson said. "I saw nothing wrong in adding their names to a list that already was more than 100."

Nixon feared Hoover blackmail

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A former assistant to J. Edgar Hoover said wiretap files were moved to the White House because the late FBI director "was not of sound mind" and it was feared he might try to blackmail the President, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

"That fellow was a master blackmailer and he did it with considerable finesse, despite the deterioration of his mind," the Times quoted William C. Sullivan as saying.

Sullivan was assistant director of the FBI but fought with Hoover over the bureau's policies. Hoover forced him to retire in October, 1971. Sullivan is now director of the Office of National Narcotics Intelligence of the Department of Justice.

The FBI wiretap files found in a White House safe were never officially part of the bureau's records, Sullivan told the Times.

Hoover "told me to keep them myself and have them ready for him—available any time he wanted them. I had them in a file cabinet in my office, but they were never summarized or recorded in the FBI files," Sullivan said, according to the Times.

"Hoover wasn't of sound mind. Everybody who had anything to do with Hoover knew that he was no longer rational, he was doing the strangest things, like going into a rage," Sullivan said.

Sullivan told the Times that he and Assistant Attorney General Robert Mardian agreed that if Hoover kept the files when Sullivan retired Hoover might use them "for some ill conceived purpose."

"I don't specifically remember mentioning the President, but we certainly had the President in mind," Sullivan was quoted as saying.

Sullivan said that when John Mitchell, then the attorney general, learned Sullivan was retiring, Mitchell ordered him to turn the files over to Mardian, the Times said.

Hoover was concerned about being fired and wanted the wiretap records "to keep Mitchell and the others in line," Sullivan said.

"He always did things of that sort."

2 teachers save 32 students in bus fire

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Six teachers trapped in a burning bus with 32 sixth grade students broke out windows and shoved the children to safety Monday night, then saved themselves by climbing through flames set off when the bus collided head-on with a pickup truck.

The drivers of both vehicles were killed, but the rest escaped with minor injuries.

The collision occurred 20 miles south of Fresno on U.S. 41 as the bus returned from a class outing to Hearst Castle near Morro Bay. The California Highway Patrol said witnesses had reported seeing the pickup truck weaving shortly before the accident.

Because the bus had no emergency door, the teachers smashed out the windows. One teacher, Richard Noeman, then jumped through the flames, which were coming from the bottom of the bus, and caught many of the children as they jumped or were shoved through the windows.

All 32 children and one adult were taken to Valley Medical Center but only two had to be admitted and they were reported in satisfactory condition.

The drivers, both killed, were identified as Doyle A. Sims, 58, of Fresno, who was in the bus, and Donald W. House, 24, of Riverdale, who was in the pickup.

Sims was thrown from the bus by the impact, but House was pinned in his truck and burned to death, the Patrol said.

Kissinger aware of wiretapping

NEW YORK (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger has confirmed in detail for the first time his awareness, beginning in mid-1969, of the wiretapping that has been connected to the Watergate and Pentagon papers cases. The New York Times reported today.

The Times said that Kissinger, in an interview, confirmed he had seen summaries from several wiretaps placed in 1969 and 1970, but that he had not asked that they be installed nor had he specifically approved them in advance.

Kissinger, President Nixon's adviser on national security, hinted last Saturday at a White House briefing that he had seen the summaries of the wiretaps, but he refused to answer further questions pending a report by acting FBI director William D. Ruckelshaus. Ruckelshaus made public his report Monday afternoon.

It was disclosed last week in Los Angeles that Pentagon papers defendant Dr. Daniel Ellsberg had been overheard speaking on a tapped phone of Dr. Morton H. Halperin. At the time, Halperin was a member of Kissinger's staff.

The Times said Kissinger declined to comment when asked whether he had taken any action when he discovered that Halperin's phone was being tapped.

Kissinger said, "The Times reported that he had conferred once or twice early in 1969 with the late J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI. He was quoted as saying he told Hoover of his 'very great concern' that national security information be fully safeguarded, but that he did not 'ask for any particular form of investigation or ask that any particular individual be investigated.'"

Pentagon officers resign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army Secretary Robert F. Froehke and Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans Jr. quit their jobs Monday night, adding to the turmoil in civilian jobs at the Pentagon.

Froehke's post will be filled by Howard H. "Bo" Calloway, a conservative former Republican congressman from Georgia. But no one has yet been named to replace Seamans.

Several Pentagon officials, like Froehke and Seamans, delayed leaving their jobs until a few months after Defense Secretary Elliot L. Richardson took over in order to help make a smooth transition.

SEC shaken by secret fund, grand jury query

WASHINGTON (UPI) — G. Bradford Cook, the articulate, youthful chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, today awaits a verdict from a Senate panel whether he acted independently of Watergate-type pressures or must fight to keep his job.

Cook, who is 36 and assumed his powerful post only 10 weeks ago, underwent nearly five hours of painstakingly detailed questioning Monday about allegations against him made by the New York grand jury which indicted former cabinet members John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans last week.

Both he and his chief questioner, the usually loquacious Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., would say nothing but "no comment" when they emerged shortly before 5 p.m. EDT.

Proxmire would not say whether he would demand Cook's resignation. Cook would not say whether he had offered it. Proxmire would not say when he would reach a verdict on whether to press the issue.

As chairman of the Senate appropriations subcommittee, which oversees the SEC's budget and ranking Democrat of the Senate Banking Committee, Proxmire probably has muscle enough to force Cook out.

Cook is accused of no crime, he was not indicted. But the grand jury said that last year, while serving as general counsel of the SEC and eager to become its chairman, he bowed to persuasion from Stans and deleted reference in a SEC lawsuit to a secret $200,000 cash contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

The money allegedly came from Robert L. Vesco, then in deep trouble with the SEC. He is one of 42 defendants accused by the commission of having "looted" $224 million from four mutual funds.

Stans was finance chairman of Nixon's campaign at the time.

Cook, the youngest man ever to head the SEC, told reporters that he was not yielding to pressure when he dropped "the infamous paragraph" from the SEC documents. He said the reference was dropped because it was unnecessary to make a case against the financier and was "sensational."

The grand jury's allegations have shaken the proudly independent and scandal-free SEC and the securities industry it regulates.

Proxmire and Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., were the only senators present to question Cook and his aides.

The question of Cook's dealings with Stans first arose before the subcommittee May 1. At that time, Cook testified he had discussed the matter with Stans only once—and only after the SEC case against Vesco had been filed.

ITT spokesman says charges 'ridiculous'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Raymond L. Dirks, the stock analyst who uncovered the Equity Funding scandal, said Monday he had been "hipped" by a journalist that International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. contributed $1 million to the committee to re-elect the President.

A spokesman for ITT called the charges "ridiculous" and categorically denied them. Dirks has been charged by the New York Stock Exchange with improperly advising his clients about rumors of Equity Funding's difficulties before telling regulatory agencies about it.

He did not identify the journalist who gave him the tip on ITT but said he had passed it on to the Stock Exchange because "I want to see what they do about it."

The Stock Exchange had no immediate comment.

Dirks made his announcement at a day-long seminar which he called to discuss his role in breaking the Equity Funding case.

Dirks, a senior vice president of Delafield & Childs, Inc., a Wall Street brokerage house, said both the Stock Exchange and the Securities & Exchange Commission had been lax in not discovering the facts on Equity themselves and had mishandled the matter after it broke.

Dirks received his first information that Equity Funding was fabricating insurance policies from Ronald H. Seerist, a former officer of two Equity Funding subsidiaries.

Equity Funding is now in bankruptcy and the object of an SEC investigation and at least two state investigations.

He said if he had gone to the Stock Exchange and the SEC first, "they would have told me to keep my mouth shut and done nothing and the stock would have continued to trade for several weeks."

"I checked out the facts and got the stock suspended long before anybody else could have."

Second probe opens

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — The second hearing in the disastrous Sunshine Mine fire last year opened Monday and then recessed almost immediately until later in the day.

The Department of the Interior is holding the hearing into the cause of the fire in the nation's largest and richest silver mine May 2, 1972.

Ninety-one miners were trapped underground in the fire. Cause of the blaze has never been pinpointed.

Last July 10-25, 52 witnesses testified at the initial hearing on the disaster.

At that hearing, it was determined that the Sunshine Mining Co., had been in compliance with existing mandatory safety standards on the day the fire broke out.

James Day, director of hearings and appeals for the Interior Department, said the hearing was reopened at the request of the company and the U.S. Steelworkers Union to hear testimony on the "bureau of mines report."

After about 7 minutes, Day recessed the hearing until the afternoon to allow attorneys for the State of Idaho and the Steelworkers Union to attend a pre-trial conference at Wallace on civil litigation resulting from the fire.

During a brief opening statement, Carl Burke, Boise, attorney for Sunshine, said he planned to present witnesses in limited areas and on limited topics pertaining to the report.

He said the witnesses would include employees, miners and some expert witnesses in the field of mine fires.

"We are here to try and obtain facts from all relevant sources that will enable Sunshine and other hard-rock mines to avoid this type of disaster from happening again," Burke said.

Khadafy accused

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said Monday Lybian President Moammar Khadafy was lying when he accused the United States of assassinating three Arabs in Lebanon.

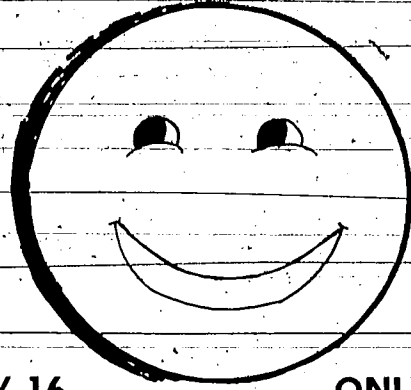

At the same time, the department said that at one time in 1970, the United States helped Khadafy retain his position by tipping him off that a group outside Lybia "was planning to overthrow the Lybian government."

A department press officer, Paul Hare, was asked to comment on charges by Khadafy in the course of a 5 1/2 hour news conference Sunday night in Tripoli.

The Lybian leader said American "troops" carried out an April 10 raid in Beirut, in which three Arabs were killed and said Israel "only provided a 'smoke screen' for the operation by claiming it had staged it."

Hare said, "We are surprised and deeply concerned by his propagating what has come to be known as the 'big lie', namely that the United States government was somehow involved in the Beirut raid."

Astronauts' launch postponed

Discuss problems

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — With their space station impaired in orbit by a power shortage, the Skylab-1 astronauts were ordered back to Houston today to help flight planners salvage as much science as possible from the $2.6 billion project.

The astronauts' launch up to the lab, originally set for today, was postponed to 11 a.m. EDT Sunday to give project officials more time to revise the mission plan.

Whether Charles "Pete" Conrad, Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Wertz will be able to spend a full 28 days in orbit as first planned depends on the results of a crash program now underway to see what can be done.

"We will spend the time from now until then developing a flight plan that will maximize our scientific return," said project director William C. Schneider.

The astronauts planned to begin their preparations for the reworked flight by working out in a Skylab trainer later today, simulating some of the changed operations they must carry out as a result of the problem.

"We have high hopes that we can stay up 28 days," Schneider said late Monday night. Earlier flight controllers said a full mission was impossible.

SkyLab's problem is that two of its six large wing-like solar panels failed to unfold 50 minutes after the spacecraft was launched into a 271-mile high orbit Monday. The four working panels, which convert sunlight into electricity, are able to produce only half of Skylab's normal power requirements.

The real nature of the solar wing deployment problem probably won't be known until the astronauts rendezvous with Skylab and inspect it before docking Sunday. Flight director Eugene Kranz said there is a slight chance the bump of the Apollo against Skylab at docking might dislodge the two panels.

Project officials have all but ruled out the possibility that the astronauts might be able to walk in space to try and fix the 27 by 31 foot panels.

The space brown-out meant there would not be enough electricity to operate all 89 experiments aboard Skylab.

"We have not determined how much of that activity we will be able to conduct," Schneider said. "But I think we are going to get quite a bit out of this."

The fate of two 56 day missions planned for the next two Skylab crews later this year remained in doubt, but it appeared that neither would be as long as planned. Schneider said it was possible two more 28 day missions might be conducted, but he said it was too early to fully assess the situation.

The current space endurance record of nearly 24 days was set by three Soviet cosmonauts in the Salyut 1 orbiting lab two years ago. They were killed in a spacecraft pressurization accident as they prepared to return to earth.

Russia launched a second Salyut last month, but like Skylab—it encountered difficulty in orbit and its crew was never launched. The ship later broke up.

The primary purpose of Skylab is to determine how well the human body can withstand the peculiarities of prolonged exposure to the lack of gravity in space.

Meteoroid shield causes problem

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — A meteoroid shield that was ripped off as the Skylab space station soared toward orbit appears to be responsible for the problem that delayed today's launch of the lab's first astronauts.

Two of six of Skylab's vital solar panels failed to unfold and the big space station was left with only half of the electrical power it should have. NASA officials said Monday night loss of the shield only 63 seconds into the space station's flight seems to be related to the failure of solar wings to unfold correctly. The wings soak up sunshine for conversion into electrical power.

"There is a definite interrelationship between the problems we had with the meteoroid shield and the problems we had with the wings," said chief flight director Eugene Kranz at the Johnson Space Center in Houston. "Right now we're reasonably certain that one contributed to the other."

Covers over the aluminum and glass panels, folded like an accordion on the outside of the big spaceship, should have been released 50 minutes into the flight. Small explosive charges on latches were to have fired, releasing the cover and allowing the wings to swing out.

Both of the faulty arrays were partially deployed, but it is not known if their aluminum covers popped off properly or not. Also still a mystery was how far out the panels were extending.

"We haven't obtained enough data to establish what per cent of the array is exposed," Kranz said. Engineers surmised that either the vibrations that shook Skylab as a giant Saturn 5 rocket thrust it off the launch pad, or gas trapped under the meteoroid shield, was responsible for the shield tearing off.

The shield was to protect the outer walls of the space laboratory from small particles floating in space that might cause small pinhole punctures.

SkyLab program manager William Schneider said here it is possible "but not probable" that a cosmonaut on one of the Skylab missions could attempt to yank the solar panels into position during a space walk.

Retirees honored

Court to consider train stop

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether railroad passengers could bring suit to stop discontinuance of a train under the 1970 law which created Amtrak, the government subsidized passenger service.

The test case, involving passenger runs in Georgia, could affect situations in various other areas. It will be heard next fall or winter and decided later by written opinion.

The U.S. Court of Appeals here on Jan. 5, 1973, ruled in favor of a group called The National Association of Railroad Passengers, an organization of railroad patrons. The National Railroad Passenger Corp. (Amtrak) appealed.

The suit stemmed from an announcement by the Central of Georgia Railway that it intended to discontinue the "Nancy Hanks" train between Savannah and Atlanta, and two other trains operating between Albany and Birmingham.

U.S. District Judge John H. Pratt dismissed the suit here May 5, 1971, on the ground that the passenger group had no standing to bring it. He was reversed by the Circuit Court, which ordered him to proceed with a trial.

The Justice Department, entering the case as a "friend of the court," said the lower court's ruling is likely to generate a great many lawsuits aimed at blocking "elimination of uneconomic or unneeded service."

This gave West a problem that he failed to solve. West shifted to the deuce of hearts and South had his nine tricks.

We have to give South some credit for putting on the bold front, but he would not have made his contract against an alert East.

An alert East would not have sent a boy-to-do-a-man's job and would have discarded the jack, not the nine of spades. It was easy to read that West's lead was fourth best so the jack could be spared. Once it hit the table West would have had no problem and would have promptly cashed his four spades.

Miss Requa, Clark exchange promise

TWIN FALLS — Debra V. Requa and Everett L. Clark were married May 5 in candle light rites at the United Methodist Church.

Rev. Herbert E. Morris conducted the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with baskets of white chrysanthemums accented with blue baby's breath and blue bows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Requa, Twin Falls. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Orville Clark, Jerome.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose an empire style dress of satin featuring a lace bodice. The center front of the dress was designed with a lace panel. The gown was made by Mrs. Clark, mother of the bridegroom.

Her elbow length veil was held by a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and blue carnations, accented with white baby's breath. Sharon Jorgensen was maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Mrs. Paul Best, Jerome.

Ron Kraus was best man. Groomsmen was Paul Best. Bob Miller and Larry Miller were ushers.

The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony.

The bride's table was centered with a three-tier cake topped with satin bells and decorated with light and dark blue roses. The cake was flanked by tapered. The table was covered with a white tulle overlay.

Mrs. James Requa, aunt of the bride, and the bride's mother, Mrs. Wayne Kinney, poured coffee. Mrs. Olen Clark, aunt of the bridegroom, poured punch.

Following a wedding trip to Ketchum, the couple resides at 264 Carney St., where the bridegroom is employed by RTP Concrete Co.

The bride was honored at two pre-nuptial showers given by Mrs. Charles Requa and Mrs. James Requa, aunts of the bride, and by Sharon Jorgensen, friend of the bride.

Coeur d'Alene miss, Lamb reveal plans

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Richey, Coeur d'Alene, announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret, to Brian K. Lamb. Lamb is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph J. Lamb, Twin Falls.

Miss Richey is a student at the University of Strasbourg, Strasbourg, France. Upon completion of her year abroad, she will graduate from Idaho State University, Pocatello, with a B.A. degree in French.

Lamb, who is currently traveling in Europe, is a Buhl High School graduate and received a B. S. degree in chemistry from Idaho State University last December.

After a September wedding, the couple will reside in Pasadena, Calif., where Lamb has accepted a graduate teaching assistantship at the California Institute of Technology. Miss Richey plans to seek a master's degree in French education.

Mini-Reviews

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Public Library officials have released mini-reviews of some of the new books recently received at the library.

"Robert, the Bruce," by Nigel Tranter. A tremendous story of both blood and fire, plus humor, laughter, color and beauty, faith and love.

"Do No Be Afraid" by Robin White. The story of a rare and beautiful family striving together to alleviate the suffering of one member.

"The Manipulated Man" by Esther Vilar. The author's intention is to place the blame for sexual inequality squarely where it belongs, on the shoulders of women themselves.

"Oklahoma Crude" by Marc Norman. The story of Lena Doyle and her desperate fight to bring in her oil well against overwhelming odds.

"The Mountain People" by Colin Turnbull. The author describes the slow death and destruction of a tribe of African hunters, whose social disintegration parallels in many ways that of our society.

"The Blammon Sailors" by Leonard Wibberly. Light-hearted family adventures — masculine and hearty.

"A Whale for the Killing" by Farley Mowatt. The dramatic story of Mowatt's struggle and failure to save the whale, nicknamed Moby Joe by a frivolous press.

"Soldier" by James T. Wooten. With candor, humor and gusto, this book presents the drama of an adventurous life.

"Inveighing We Will Go" by William Buckley. A collection of articles, columns and essays with a comment on almost everything of current interest.

Engagement revealed

GLENNIS FERRY — Mr. and Mrs. Paul Anderson, Glennis Ferry, announce the engagement of her daughter, Syann Janniger, to Rex McDonald. McDonald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cal McDonald, Salmon.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Would it be out of line to include the following note on a birthday card for my 12-year-old grandson?

"Dear Bobby, since you couldn't find time to thank me for my Christmas present, I couldn't find time to buy you a birthday present. Maybe next year? Have a happy birthday Love, Grandma"

Bobby's mother (my daughter in law) defends Bobby's sullen, ungracious behavior, and my son has little influence. The boy is bright but very selfish and spoiled.

Disappointed grandmother

I spend a lot of time, money, and thought on gifts for my only grandchild—not because I want his thanks, but because I love him dearly. But Abby, surely someone has to teach manners to children. Am I old fashioned? You may use this letter if you wish! Many grandparents are in the same boat. GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: You say you give your grandson gifts because you "dearly love" him not because you want thanks. But if you don't receive thanks you withhold the presents. This is loving dearly?

It's true, acknowledging gifts is a sign of good manners. But good manners have been known to cloak the absence of deeper feelings. Skip the gifts (and cards, too) and in a more loving and less punitive way, try to stress the importance of saying "thank you." If he's bright, he'll get the message.

DEAR ABBY: After 33 years of marriage, I believe I have discovered a cure for the common cold—sometimes known as the nagging wife. The I doubt that it ever has been tried, the best way to get a woman to shut her mouth is to cover it with kisses. HARRY O. LIBSON, N. Y. C.

DEAR HARRY: While your suggested cure is undoubtedly effective, it's extremely hazardous. It could lead to overpopulation.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to the airline pilot whose love life was suffering because his kids came home for lunch, etc., and seemed to be around at the wrong time—Tell him to try the following:

Buy a roll of pennies. Come home, and if the kids are there, take one penny out of the roll and keep it. Go out on the front lawn and scatter the rest of the pennies around and tell the kids not to come in the house until they find all 50 pennies. It's sneaky but effective. CONFIDENTIAL TO "SIXTEEN, BROKE AND SCARED": Information concerning treatment for VD does not go on any "record" that can be held against you. If you are broke, you will be treated anyway. Call your Public Health Department and make an appointment to be seen at once.

Problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Rapid growth northward creates problems for TF

Krengel's Hardware owner Joe Chok, a downtown booster of the urban renewal project, agrees that the downtown merchants will not be hurt if development in other areas is properly done.

Cilek says he sees no reason for northward expansion to pull business away from downtown.

"We'd all like to have no more competition, except more businesses attract more people and broaden our trade area."

"As long as this plan we're working with is getting bigger, I think it isn't hurting too much. Our mall has worked out pretty good."

"There are some problems with it, and hindsight is always 20-20, but as long as we keep the right competitive attitude downtown, it isn't going to hurt. Of course you've got the big financial institutions downtown."

"Business has been excellent."

One proposed development that could cause massive changes for Twin Falls is that proposed by Sierra Life Insurance Co.

Company president Fred Frazier proposes a gigantic commercial development on 122 acres fronting and west of Blue Lakes and north of the Twin Falls High School.

If completed it could cost in the vicinity of $200 million. But Frazier says he does not expect the development, which he said might draw people from Nevada and elsewhere, to be finished for 15 years.

One problem raised by the northward movement is traffic on Blue Lakes Boulevard. The boulevard already is clogged. Twin Falls Chief of Police Frank Barnett said recently the street has the worst accident rate of any thoroughfare in the State.

The 1967 Preliminary Plan adopted by the City of Twin Falls in connection with the downtown urban renewal project had recommended parks along Blue Lakes Boulevard to retain a "natural" entryway to the city.

N. rim raises chorus

TWIN FALLS — It sounds like a chorus:

"There's a lot more room for a park on the other side of the river." — John Blahon, Lynwood Development Co.

"There is still some public rim land on the Jerome side" — Jean Millar, Twin Falls City Manager.

"The north side of the rim is in public ownership" — John Rosholt, chairman Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission.

"How about attacking the north side of the canyon rim where there is still room to do something? We can put down grass or whatever we want over there" — Ed Woods, Twin Falls County zoning administrator.

They are looking to the north side because of the dim possibility of a greenbelt or parkway along the south Snake River Canyon rim north of Twin Falls because of high land costs and developments planned there.

While it is true that the north rim is in public ownership on both sides of the Perrine Bridge (about a half mile to the west and more than a mile to the east), the land is owned by the State Department of Public Lands and, as such, constitutes a special kind of public ownership.

The land board owns this land in lieu of original tracts taken over for national parks and forests. This land must, as must all the Land Board's holdings, be used to generate money — income — for the state's schools and a few other select institutions.

While Gordon C. Trombley, land board commissioner, says that nothing definite is planned for this rimland at the moment, he emphasizes that the land must be "managed for maximum income purposes."

To develop the north rim for a park or greenbelt the land would have to be purchased or leased from the land board by the park sponsoring public agency or agencies. It would not be free to the taxpayers of Twin Falls and Jerome counties.

Current county plans would zone Blue Lakes for commercial development all the way to the Perrine Bridge. City Manager Jean Millar says the 1967 plan has been followed only loosely.

"I can't say that the 1967 general plan has been specifically violated. I can say that adherence to the plan certainly is weak."

"Truly, one major deficiency in following the plan is that these parkways along Blue Lakes Boulevard North indicated have not been developed."

To overcome the Blue Lakes traffic problem, Millar and the city engineers are at work planning a system of highway belt routes around the city to draw traffic away from Blue Lakes.

"I think that this belt route system will come about within the next five years," Millar says. "It will take some real wise planning to make it happen, but I think the need is going to make it happen."

"Blue Lakes will only accommodate so much traffic, and when the traffic gets so distasteful for the public, they will sure as hell pick their own alternate routes. This is happening right now — people by passing Blue Lakes."

Millar says that if an additional lane were added to Blue Lakes to allow for left turns, the capacity of the street would be much increased. "But this is a U. S. Highway," he adds, "and the City has no authority or responsibility for that."

He says that the Highway Department currently is mapping the area to provide for planned improvements, including an interchange at Pole-Line Road.

To avert what they see as a haphazard, multi-agency, nonenforceable planning process currently operating on city and county levels a number of people are advocating the hiring of a professional planner in hopes of giving some overall direction to the painful process of growth.

"The City of Twin Falls has got a plan. Right there, that's a plan," says engineer Dale Riedesel of J-U-B, Inc., holding up the Twin Falls 1967 Preliminary General Plan.

"It isn't worth the paper it's printed on."

Riedesel calls the hiring of a professional planner "a must." "Any beautiful plan," he says, "whether it's Fasolino's plan, anybody else's plan — the city's, the county's or whether they hired New York City to develop them a plan — isn't worth the paper it's printed on unless there is a professional staff locally which can administer that plan and keep it going."

"I'm on the city planning and zoning commission and I'm a professional," Riedesel says, "but I can't devote the time it takes to see that a plan is implemented and kept going down the road. None of us on the planning and zoning commission can do it."

"All we can do is make recommendations based on facts based on a plan. We've

TF expansion across canyon 'inevitable'

TWIN FALLS — Expansion of the City of Twin Falls into Jerome County is "inevitable," according to Twin Falls County Commissioner Merl Leonard.

"We all know this, it's inevitable," Twin Falls City Manager Jean Millar agrees.

"Sometime in the future Twin Falls City will extend into Jerome County. I can't personally see this in the next 10 or 15 years, but farther away than that it could happen."

But, he cautions, "no one can predict what the future might hold many years from now." Commissioner Leonard says he feels "our commission is going to have to work with the Jerome County commissioners."

Leonard says the two commissions have never met as a body to discuss planning for the northside lands. He said current efforts in this regard were being conducted solely through each county's land use committee.

Leonard praises City Manager Millar for trying to bring the two counties together in planning for the northside. "Someone has to take the initiative," Leonard says. "Progress is here. You don't stand still."

Leonard referred to an effort by Millar to express the concern of Twin Falls City to the got two meetings a month and they are just filled to the brim with routine approvals or disapprovals.

"This is a full time job for a full time staff to keep up with the statistics, the growth, and keep working up future plans."

"The county plan or the city plan isn't going to be worth a damn unless they start getting professional people to advise them and keep advising them on the interpretation of it."

County Zoning Administrator Ed Woods also favors the hiring of a professional planner. He says the drawback is money.

Jerome commission on the possible effect of northside development on Twin Falls' water supply, along with a suggestion that joint planning be done professionally.

In a letter May 1 to the Jerome commissioners, Millar wrote:

"The City of Twin Falls is gravely concerned with the ultimate use of all lands north of the Snake River. Our source of water supply, as well as water for aqua culture activities and many private wells, is ground water north of the river."

"The lands can be used for many purposes... without adverse effects providing all wastes, including liquid, to save money, the county has established 12 volunteer resource planning and development committees to advise the county commissioners. The committees have no other authority.

The League of Women Voters recently suggested to county commissioners that they consider using revenue sharing funds to establish a professional planning unit, perhaps jointly with the city.

City Manager Jean Millar made the same proposal to the Commissioners, telling them that the city has $20,000 budgeted for planning this year which could be used to pay part of the cost of hiring a professional planner. So far, the county has failed to respond to Millar's suggestion.

"We're waiting to get up a meeting to get to that in depth with Joan," says Commissioner Merl Leonard. "We haven't by any stretch of the imagination closed the door. We're waiting to get in touch with the city."

City Zoning Commission Chairman John Rosholt also agrees that the hiring of a professional planner is necessary, but he puts the situation in a different perspective.

"What it comes down to right now is about 30 unpaid people at the city and county level trying to do the best we can," Rosholt says. "At the city we have two professional engineers and a registered landscape architect on the commission, and they provide basically some expertise at no cost, but basically I think eventually it's got to come down to a person who knows planning and zoning and who's working for you full time."

Rosholt is critical of the comprehensive plan designed by Idaho State University professor of architecture R. P. Fasolino (at a cost to the county of $8,000) on which the county is basing its upcoming zoning design.

"Fasolino, to my way of thinking, has just provided a vehicle whereby anybody could do just about anything they wanted to," he said. "I think he opens the door for a lot of continued strip development and other meaningless development which could be avoided."

gaseous and solid, are exported from the general area. "Certainly, any injection of wastes into the earth is not acceptable due to the great risk of water supply contamination. The pollution of ground water may not appear for several years but if the risk is allowed and pollution does appear, it is an irreversible process."

"The land use should be guided by professional planning with the acknowledgement that the Snake River Canyon is the only naturally scenic benefit that is common to South Central Idaho. This fine attribute should be best utilized for the enjoyment of the general public."

TF hospital board mulls pulls possible bond election

By BONNIE HAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The Magic Valley Hospital board is mulling a possible $2.75 million bond issue to pay for hospital expansion. Hospital trustees, meeting Monday night, agreed to hold a special meeting next Tuesday to consider a possible second election after administrator James Rosenbaum termed the hospital's financial situation "nearly impossible."

Rosenbaum said Cost of Living Council restriction on increases in hospital charges would hold hospital increases below the level of rising hospital cost.

"As I see it," he told the board, "unless we can break up the nationwide situation with the price-control board—we have no alternative but to issue bonds."

The only alternative, he said, would be "status quo medicine" in Twin Falls. He said the hospital could soon be operating with over 100 per cent occupancy.

Rosenbaum said the appeal of the local hospital on the requested two per cent rate increase is now in Washington, D. C., before the Internal Revenue people and some assistance has been obtained from U. S. Sen. James McClure.

Several board members said they only way to get relief from the situation may be "a lot of political pressure."

Robert Brackett, board chairman, asked members if they felt a proposed school bond election would spell defeat for a hospital bond issue. Several members said they felt taxpayers would not support both.

R. W. Pierce said if the board can show the public the need for the bond issue, come through with a reasonable rate increase which would mean little or no tax raises, the proposal would get the support of the people.

"I think some people thought when the price board turned down our two per cent (increase) if was good news, meaning only that hospital rates here would no go up. It might mean bad news in the way of a tax increase as we have no other way of keeping up with our higher operation costs," Pierce said.

Rosenbaum told the board the emergency measure to provide an additional 15 beds by remodeling the second floor of the hospital is now "out the window." He said now federal restrictions under the name of safety, will require any money available. This means such things as installing heavier doors rather than providing the much needed bed space.

Rosenbaum said hospitals are still forced to operate under Phase 2 restrictions of the wage and price control agency while those they do business with are given the opportunity to increase charges under Phase 3 limitations.

"We should either put everyone back under Phase 2 or let the hospitals join the rest of the economy," Rosenbaum said.

"At this moment if our dishwasher went out we could not replace it and that's only a $17,000 item," Rosenbaum told the board.

Fred Becker, attorney for the board, said the two per cent increase which has been turned down twice at the state level and is now in Washington D. C. on appeal, is just a token amount at this time as it would not be large enough to solve any of the hospital's real problems.

Dr. Ben Katz, president of the hospital medical staff, said the doctors are behind the board in their efforts for a bond issue if they decide to take this route.

Rosenbaum and now hospital controller, John L. Hayden, will prepare figures for the special meeting next Tuesday on the exact financial outlook of the hospital.

At the Tuesday meeting, Chairman Brackett said, the board should also be ready to select an architect in order to obtain estimates if it is decided to bond and go ahead with a building program.

Rosenbaum will also contact Washington, D. C. officials on Sen. McClure for a report on the appeal prior to the Tuesday meeting.

Hailey principal out

By TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News writer

HAILEY—Ernest Herringway Grade School Principal Sam Hazard will not be offered a contract next year.

The 3 to 1 vote not to reinstate Hazard came during a Blaine County trustee meeting Monday night.

Voting for the motion were trustees Glenn Stelma, Jane Kneeland and Dr. Art Richards. Trustee Leif Odmark cast the dissenting vote.

After the meeting, Ronda Hunt, board chairman, speaking on behalf of the board, said, "There is nothing personal between the board and Mr. Hazard whatsoever. It is just a situation of legality that the board had to resolve and as unpleasant as it was, there was nothing else we could do."

Hunt said that Hazard, who had been hired in 1971, had set up a program with Idaho State University toward certification as a standard elementary school teacher and administrator to be completed in 1975.

In essence, Hunt said, Hazard had contracted with ISU, the Idaho Department of Education and the Blaine-County school board, "in return for a letter of authorization" to teach and act as principal for the 1972-73 school year.

In February, Hazard changed his program to Northwestern University, prior to taking courses, at ISU and requested approval of the change from the Idaho Department of Education Certification division.

Hunt said a letter was sent to Hazard on March 20 by Dorcey Riggs, director of certification and related services.

In the letter, Riggs referred Hazard's request to the local school board. "We would not suppose we would act in their behalf as they are the agency that requested us to accept your program for certification," the letter stated.

As a result of that letter, Hunt said approval of the new program of study would require a letter from the board of trustees, stating an emergency exists and no other certified candidates are available to fill Hazard's position.

"The reason we are not re-hiring Hazard," Hunt said, "is because we do not have an approved program on file. We do not feel that we can ask for a letter of authority because we have other applicants."

AG asks molestation case drop

GOODING—The Idaho attorney general's office has recommended that charges of sexual molestation at the Idaho State School for the Deaf and Blind be dropped.

Paul Bird, assistant superintendent at the school, said today the charges brought by Wayne Gash, Troy, that his 7-year-old daughter had been molested, were found to be "unsubstantiated" and the attorney general's office has recommended to the Idaho Board of Education that the case be dismissed.

Bird also said the board is studying ways to provide assistance for the hard of hearing in the northern part of the state. Gash has petitioned the board to make the Whitepine School District in Troy assume responsibility for providing education for his handicapped daughter.

He has told the board he did not want to return the child to Gooding. The board sent a fact-finding committee to Troy and that group determined the school district was doing everything possible within its financial power to help the child.

The board voted to accept the attorney general's opinion and A. L. Alford, Lewiston, board member, was directed to personally contact Gash and explain the decision to him.

Filer trustee election today

FILER—In the Filer school trustee election today, only one unopposed candidate is running.

Incumbent Everett Andrews is the candidate for trustee in Zone 2. Polls are open from noon until 8 p.m. at Filer High School.

The district 1973-74 school budget hearing will also be conducted from 7 to 8 p.m. at the high school, according to Supt. Ray Baker.

Hagerman plats get final okay

GOODING—Gooding County commissioners approved the final plat for two subdivisions totaling 39 acres in Hagerman Valley Monday.

Paul Newton and Tom Schafer, Twin Falls, met with commissioners to present the plats. They said the plats comply with all sanitary regulations under state law and these lots too close to the water supply from springs will use a common drain field no closer than 200 feet to the water.

The roads have been widened from 30 to 50 feet to correspond with the county planning commission suggestion, Newton said. On site construction will be required and homes must be a minimum of $25,000, excluding the land and interior decoration.

In other business, commissioners decided to open bids next Monday for construction and repair work on the concession stand area under the grandstands at the county fairgrounds.

A contract for improvements in the woman's and 4-H building was awarded to Jordan Construction Co. at a cost of $17,031.

The commissioners instructed Vivian Burden, county clerk, to review the bonding procedures in other counties to see whether or not the county was under or over bonded.

George Saxton, Twin Falls, Idaho Tax Commission, met with the officials to discuss the reappraisal program.

2 out

HAILEY—Blaine County voters turned out two incumbents in Monday's school district trustee election.

In zone 4, incumbent Jane Kneeland was defeated by Dorothy Moore. Mark Patterson defeated incumbent Glenn Stelma in zone 2.

Northward growth problems face TF

"I think the Fasolino plan is one alternative, and it probably would be the alternative that would come to pass if the path of least resistance is followed. If somebody in city or county government at some time is not willing to stand up and be counted, I think the Fasolino plan is pretty realistic."

Miller is also critical of certain aspects of the Fasolino plan, although he characterizes it as being generally "good."

What Miller objects to is Fasolino's use of existing roads and streets as zone boundaries, which he says are "very poor boundaries between zones."

The reason is that if one side of a street is zoned to command higher land prices, then the courts could rule that the landowner on the other side is deprived of land value by the zoning, allow a variance and generally disrupt the whole zoning plan.

Miller argues that zone boundaries ought to be established along interior land ownership lines. "Establish this in advance, now, and it will hold for the future," he says. "The cause of the problem is a lack of zoning in the past, but that is no reason to compound it in the future."

Seattle firm seeks TF zone variance

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—"It is shoddy workmanship," said City Manager Jean Miller, referring to a housing project built in Twin Falls by N. A. N., Inc., Seattle.

The charges surfaced in a Twin Falls City Planning and Zoning Commission meeting called Monday for public comment on a zoning variance requested by N. A. N.

The Seattle firm needed a waiver of side yard setback requirements for several of its homes facing Nottingham Drive in the Kings Gate subdivision.

The houses were apparently misplaced on subdivision lots according to the approved plat, leaving some with as little as three feet in side yard space. Current city zoning laws require at least seven feet of side yard space.

Jim Madigan, a N. A. N. superintendent, was the only person supporting the variance.

In explaining the side yard mistake, he said, "All I can say is we were building so many (homes) at one time. Maintaining the yard setbacks was difficult when the house lot lines were not physically apparent, he suggested."

Miller said the mistake was "inexcusable. It is shoddy workmanship. I would suggest that the area be replatted rather than granting the variance. The integrity of the plat must be maintained."

Mike Gray, a city councilman and liaison to the zoning commission, took issue with Miller's remarks. "As city manager, I don't think you're in a position to call it (the N. A. N. development) shoddy workmanship."

Miller countered by explaining that he was speaking as a "private citizen concerned with the integrity of our zoning ordinances."

Reed Coulam, secretary of the zoning commission, confirmed that the variance request was the result of a "mistake on the part of the developer in his plans."

In formal discussion following the public hearing, zoning commissioner Jerry Shane said, "I'm opposed to shoddy placement of houses. There should be something we could do to slap their (N. A. N.'s) hand a little bit."

He also said it might be unfair to replat the subdivision and "punish all." If the area is replatted, lots in the area would be redrawn, taking land away from some to add to the underzoned side yards.

Miller said replating would still result in some non-conformity to the lot requirements. But it is necessary under variance rules, which state that variances may be granted only for the least possible nonconformity, according to Miller.

The zoners voted unanimously to require that N. A. N. "replat" the subdivision "to show the new location of houses on the lots." If the "replat" is approved, a new plat will be drawn and the zoners will consider a variance then.

Jim King announces retirement

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jim King, veteran guard of the Chicago Bulls, Monday announced his retirement from professional basketball and said he had accepted a post as coach and general manager with Athletes in Action, at Phoenix, Ariz.

The Phoenix group is associated with Athletes for Christ, and its basketball team, an amateur organization, will be playing a schedule against colleges in the southwest, the Bulls said.

King, 6-2, has played professional basketball for nine seasons, including appearances in 65 games for the Bulls last season, when he had a 4.2 average.

Originally selected from Los Angeles by the Bulls in the May 1, 1966, expansion draft, he was traded to San Francisco late the same year and ultimately returned to the Bulls from Cincinnati as a free agent in October, 1970.

Crampton still money leader

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tom Weiskopf, picking up $30,000 for his victory in the Colonial National Invitation, jumped from 24th to eighth on the Professional Golf Association money list, but Bruce Crampton, who blew the Colonial with a double bogey on the final hole, remains at the top with $167,551.

Weiskopf's earnings are now $64,722.

Jack Nicklaus is in second place with $146,064 and Lee Trevino is third with $126,288.

Former champ is favored

BANGKOK (UPI) — Former world champion Chatchai Chionoi of Thailand is odds-on favorite to win the world boxing association flyweight title for a third time when he meets former European Champion Fritz Chervet of Switzerland Thursday at the Kittikachorn Stadium 15 miles east of Bangkok.

It will be a classical contest of slugger (Chatchai) versus boxer (Chervet), with the madly partisan Thai fans expecting their boy to rack up his 36th professional knock-out.

Both boxers are 30 years old, and both are taking this world title chance seriously. It could be the last for the loser. The two men were born on opposite sides of the world within nine days of each other in October 1942.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Steve Williams, a sophomore at San Diego State, was rated Monday as the future "world's fastest human" by University of Southern California Coach Vern Wolfe and UCLA Coach Jim Bush.

"I think Steve will run nine seconds flat this year," said Wolfe at the Southern California Track Writers Association meeting.

In commenting on Williams' record-tying 9.1 effort in the 100-yard dash Saturday in the West Coast Relays at Fresno.

"He was sensational in that race," Wolfe said. "I think he might do nine flat in one of the following three meets—Bakersfield Classic, the California Relays at Modesto or the Von's Classic at the Coliseum."

"The way he annihilated the field at Fresno," said Bush, "there's no question that he's our top sprinter for the next couple of years. He reminds me of John Carlos when he was at his peak."

"He's for real," commented Ralph Higgins, ex-Oklahoma State coach and now head of the U.S. Army team. "He's most impressive. What else can you say?"

Bobby Riggs has new challenger

HILTON HEAD, S. C. (UPI) — Billy Jean King took up the gauntlet from beaten Margaret Court Monday and challenged Bobby Riggs to another "tennis battle of the sexes."

"I just got back from Japan and didn't get to see the match between Margaret and Bobby," said Mrs. King, "but, from what I read, it was just awful."

The 55-year-old Riggs beat Mrs. Court, 6-2, 6-1 by using lobs and placements to force her into numerous miscues.

"Before, I kept out of it, but I'm ready to challenge him now," said Mrs. King. "I want to play him here on my home court at Hilton Head. I'll put up $5,000 and the club here will put up $5,000.00."

She'd like to play him in July.

"The fans were really cheated by Sunday's mismatch. I understand Margaret played just terrible," said Mrs. King. "I think I can beat him. I know one thing, I won't do worse than Margaret did. I think it's awful."

Mrs. King, who this past week won the first women's professional tennis tournament ever held in Japan, said she feels that she has "more to prove" now that Riggs has beaten Mrs. Court.

"I thrive on pressure more than Margaret," she said. "I'd just like to have my chance. I'm not too happy about what happened."

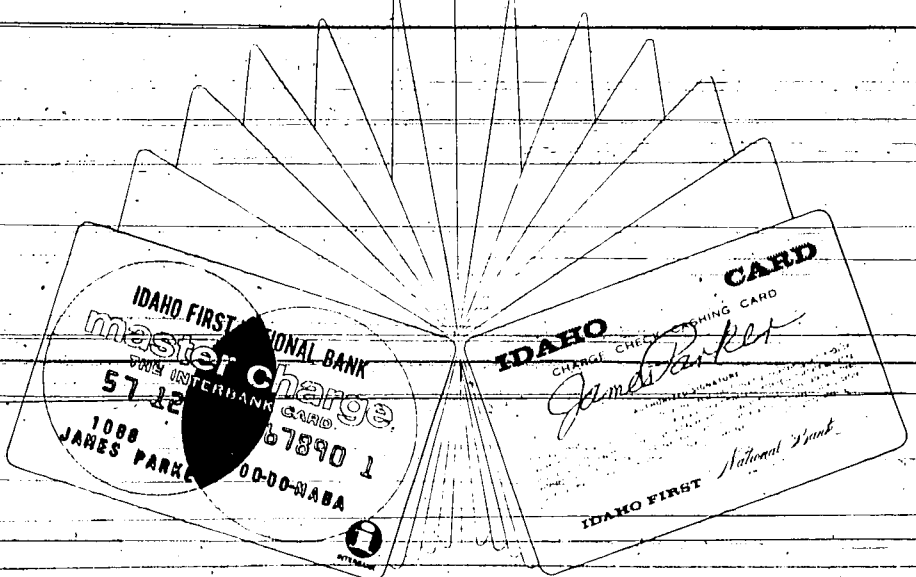

Mrs. King said she feels the outcome of the Riggs-Court match gives the public a poor impression of the difference between men's and women's tournament.

Cepeda lifts Red Sox past Orioles in 11th

BOSTON (UPI) — Designated hitter Orlando Cepeda singled home Mario Guerrero with one out in the 11th inning Monday night to give the Boston Red Sox a 1-0 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Guerrero beat out an infield hit to start the 11th and, after a sacrifice bunt by Carl Yastrzemski, losing pitcher, Bob Raydon intentionally walked Roggie Smith. Cepeda, then lined a single to left-center.

The victory went to Bob Bolin, who pitched the last two innings after Bill Lee stopped the Orioles on five singles through nine innings. It was the seventh time in 31 games this season Baltimore has been shut out.

Doyle Alexander pitched the first 10 innings for Baltimore, allowing only four hits and not permitting a runner past second base.

The Orioles made the most serious early scoring threats in the third and fourth innings.

Mark Belanger opened the 11th with a walk, took second on a sacrifice bunt by Merv Rettenmund and moved to third on a single to left by Bobby Grich, but Tommy Davis ended the inning by grounding into a double play.

Atlanta unloads Bob Berry to Minnesota Vikings

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Falcons, already on record as needing a change at quarterback, unloaded five-year starter Bob Berry Monday and picked up little-used quarterback Bob Lee from the Minnesota Vikings.

The deal, initiated by Falcons coach and general manager Norm Brocklin, involved signing as free agents Lee and linebacker Lonnie Warwick who had played out their options with the Vikings and giving the Vikings Berry and Atlanta's No. 1 choice for next winter's college draft as compensation.

Van Brocklin hedged on Lee's role with the Falcons but it is believed that he will be used primarily as a punter with Atlanta's starting quarterback being second-year man Pat Sullivan who saw very little play as a rookie after winning the Heisman Trophy at Auburn in 1971.

"We felt we had to make a change at the quarterback position," said Van Brocklin. "We plan to look at Sullivan, Lee, (Dick) Shiner and (John) Madoya. We feel we have the boys who are going to be adequate quarterbacks for us."

Berry did almost all the quarterbacking for the Falcons last fall during a 7-7 season. Sullivan completed only 3 of 19 passes; Shiner, an 11-year veteran who was formerly the backup quarterback, stayed on the taxi squad, and Madoya is a rookie from the University of Louisville.

"The big question mark on our football club is the quarterback position," Van Brocklin recently quoted in a Falcons prospectus. "Since the Falcons have progressed past the expansion stage, the only way to judge a quarterback is by asking, can he win the championship or can he not?"

Van Brocklin went on to say, in the prospectus, "We consider Pat (Sullivan) to be a strong candidate for the No. 1 job at quarterback."

Lee, a four-year veteran who threw only six passes last fall as backup quarterback for Frank

Tarkenton, said Monday that he played out his option at Minnesota because "I didn't see where I had any future playing behind Tarkenton."

Berry began his career with the Vikings when Van Brocklin was coaching there and now finds himself in the same position he was in during the 1965-66-67 seasons when he played "little" for the Vikings.

Warwick, a 240-pound eight-year veteran, said Monday he played out his option with the Vikings, "because I couldn't work out a contract."

Atlanta topples Houston Astros

HOUSTON (UPI) — Mike Lum drove in four runs with a bases-loaded double and a home run Monday night to spark the Atlanta Braves to a 7-1 victory over the Houston Astros.

Lum's double climaxed a five-run seventh inning and his homer, his first of the season, was a solo blast to open the ninth.

Winning pitcher Carl Morton, batting only 156, started the seventh inning rally with a walk off reliever Jim Crawford. Ralph Garr sacrificed him to second and was safe when first baseman Lee May fumbled his bunt for an error and both runners moved up on Johnny Oates' sacrifice.

Darrell Evans grounded to Tommy Helms at second and Morton scored when catcher Johnny Edwards dropped Helms' throw for another error. Hank Aaron walked to load the bases and Dusty Baker was batted by reliever Jim Ray to force in the second run.

Then Lum sliced his double into the left-field corner to knock in three more.

California nips Kansas City 3-2

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Pinch-hitter Tom McCraw delivered a two-out, run-scoring single in the 10th inning Monday night, giving the California Angels a 3-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

McCraw's hit broke up a pitching duel between Bill Singer, 6-1, who struck out 10 in going the distance, and Dick Drago, 3-3.

Jim Spencer and Rudy Meoli ripped singles after two were out to put runners on first and third before McCraw singled sharply to left on a 3-2 pitch from Drago. Drago had retired 13 straight batters before Spencer's single.

Frank Robinson slapped a two-run homer in the fourth, his fifth of the season and his first at Royal Stadium, the 31st major league park he has humored in to give the Angels their two runs.

The Royals scored in the third when Steve Hovley walked, went to second on Amos Otis' single and scored on a single by John Mayberry. Lou Piniella cracked a solo homer, his second of the year, in the fourth, tying the game at 2-2.

If you've ever had second thoughts about the brand of cigarette you smoke, here's a quick way to find out if it really delivers what you want.

These five simple tests will tell you a lot about quality, freshness, and taste.

And if you make these tests with a Winston, they'll tell you why Winston smokers can point to their brand and say, "How good it is!"

Big inning lets Phillies top Cards

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies collected six hits and a walk for six runs in the fourth inning Monday night to earn a 10-5 victory over St. Louis and sink the Cardinals deeper into last place in the National League East.

One-out singles by Greg Luzinski, Tom Hutton and Mike Schmidt—who had three hits and drove in three runs in the game—produced the first run of the big inning.

Larry Bowa's sacrifice drove in the second run and winning pitcher Ken Brett singled for the third run. A walk to Cesar Torres loaded the bases, Mike Anderson's two-run single and a run-scoring single by Willie Montanez completed the inning.

Brett, who evened his record at 1-1, allowed six hits, striking out three and walking one in seven innings.

St. Louis scored twice in the sixth when Mike Tyson reached second on a two-base error by Montanez and scored on Luis Melendez' single. Melendez advanced to second on a passed ball and scored on Joe Torre's base hit.

The Cardinals added three runs in the eighth on three singles, a walk and a two-run double by Jose Cruz.

Indians defeat Milwaukee 2-1

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — John Lowenstein scored the first run of the game in the second inning and doubled in the decisive run in the sixth Monday night as the Cleveland Indians beat the Milwaukee Brewers 2-1.

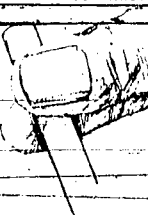

Despite the loss, the Brewers remained tied for the lead in American League East standings with a 14-16 record.

Test #1 Sniff It

Take a whiff of the tobacco. Does it smell rich and fresh and appealing? If your cigarette is Winston, you'll recognize the aroma of costly Vintage Leaf Tobaccos. Winston chooses the most nearly perfect leaves money can buy. Then we age these rare tobaccos in wooden casks. We do it for the same reason you'd age a fine wine. Aging makes our tobaccos mellow and brings out that extra dimension of natural goodness.

Test #2 Feel It

Roll the cigarette in your hand. Pinch it slightly. Does it feel stale? A cigarette that's been waiting in a warehouse, or on a shelf, can lose some of its freshness. And some of its taste. But, because Winston sells so fast, every pack comes to you fresh. The fact is, on any given day, Winston is likely to be the freshest cigarette your money can buy.

Test #3 Take a puff... before lighting

Take a puff—without lighting it. That's a good way to learn about the tobacco and the filter. If you can taste the tobaccos without lighting up, you know there's richness up front. And that the filter doesn't get in the way of the taste. Winston's exclusive Filter-Blend, a top secret blend of different tobaccos, works with Winston's modern white filter to deliver satisfying taste in every puff.

Test #4 Light It

Does it burn evenly? Here's a critical test of the way your cigarette is made. A cigarette rolled fresh, packed full and made with care will burn evenly, draw easily, Winston always does. How does your brand shape up?

Test #5 Smoke It

What could be simpler? That's the real test of a cigarette. Can it deliver good taste and real satisfaction every time you light up? Winston can. Ask a Winston smoker. Any time. He'll tell you in four simple words: How good it is.

Benefits equalized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In what appeared to be a landmark decision in favor of women's rights, the Supreme Court today ruled 5-4 that women members of the armed forces are entitled to dependent's benefits on the same basis as men.

Four justices held that women should be classified the same as blacks, legally speaking, when they challenge state and federal laws which discriminate against them. The fifth justice, Potter Stewart, appeared to agree but did not join the Court's opinion.

However, the other justices cited a previous Court ruling which involved a women's rights issue in handling Air Force Lt. Sharon Frontier the victory in her court fight to obtain benefits for her husband Joseph, a student at Huntington College in Montgomery, Ala.

Traditionally, state and federal laws which divide Americans into classes for one purpose or another are considered valid by the Supreme Court unless the classification is "arbitrary" or not related to the purpose of the statute.

But the Court has carved out exceptions to this general attitude in the case of blacks and aliens. Laws removing public benefits from blacks are subject to a so-called "strict scrutiny" test in the high Court and cannot pass muster without overwhelming evidence as to their necessity.

Women's rights advocates have long been trying to get the Court to add sex to race and alien status as a "suspect" classification. Today they seemed to have succeeded with help from Stewart, who appended a cryptic concurrence.

Chief Justice Warren, Burger and Justices Lewis F. Powell and Harry A. Blackmun dissented, on the broad constitutional issue chiefly on the ground that the Equal Rights Amendment is now up for ratification by the states. Twenty-nine have ratified it out of the necessary 38.

In the Frontier case, only Justice William H. Rehnquist dissented from the view that she was entitled to full benefits for her husband.

The concurring justices relied on a 1971 decision in an Ohio case that when two individuals are otherwise entitled to appointment as administrator of an estate, the male applicant may not be preferred over the female.

A married man in the armed services gets housing and medical allowances automatically, whether or not he actually supports his wife. But the 6,000 women in "service" have had to prove they contributed more than half of their husbands' support.

In other major actions, the Court agreed to review a decision in a Chicago gambling case which limits the extent of wiretapping authority granted to police in a so-called "strict scrutiny" test in the high Court and cannot pass muster without overwhelming evidence as to their necessity.

Agreed to decide whether conscientious objectors who carry out civilian duties in time of war are entitled to veterans' educational benefits that cities cannot impose curfews on jet plane takeoffs from their airports.

AEC to set blast for gas deposits

DENVER (UPI) — A Colorado district judge today gave the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) permission to set off an underground nuclear blast in western Colorado on Thursday to free natural gas deposits.

Environmentalists had argued that the detonations could poison the drinking water of 27 million Americans.

Judge Henry E. Santo based his decision on a claim by CEI Geophysical Corp. of Las Vegas, Nev., that preblast studies proved Project Rio Blanco would not cause dangerous levels of radioactivity to escape above ground.

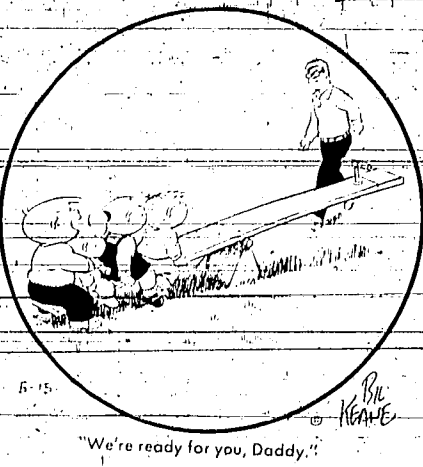

Opponents in three days of hearings last week had argued that the radioactivity might seep into the Colorado river for much of the Southwest.

Don Peters, an attorney for the environmentalists, said the decision "wasn't really a surprise. We hope to decide by Tuesday sometime whether we are going to appeal."

Santo refused to order a temporary halt to the blast-set appeal. He also said he could not overrule the Water Pollution Control Commission's findings.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 16, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Tonight's full moon brings much activity of a fixed nature. You would be wise to decide on the best outlets available to you and concentrate upon making headway. Put your financial plans in order for today's outstanding influence.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Handle all association and personal matters in a most intelligent way. Be sure to pay an important bill. A different attitude toward an associate can bring far better results.

TAUROS (Apr. 20 to May 20): You have to be very careful now in dealing with others, especially where allies are concerned. Trying to force others to do what you want could meet with stiff resistance. Use diplomacy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Plan your time more carefully so that you can get more accomplished. See what you can do to become a more vibrant person. Avoid one who does not give you the respect you deserve.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Make plans of what you want to do away from your home, in business or pleasure, and all goes smoothly. Put your finest talents in the right channels. Show that you are thoughtful.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 23): Don't bring up any tickish subjects at home or a big argument could result. Use tact and give compliments if deserved. Make sure you pay a bill that has been long overdue. Relax tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Obtain appliances that will help make your regular work more precise, easier and more profitable. A good day to handle important correspondence, be it business or private. Be wise.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): You have many practical affairs to attend to and should waste no time in doing so. Study your property and see how to make it more comfortable and valuable. Avoid one who wastes your time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21): Your relationship with associates should be improved today by your concentration upon them. Stop trying to show dominance over others and strive for more harmony. Avoid an argument.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Know your own limitations and be sure to do your regular duties well. Seek the aid of a specialist to help you on a problem. Avoid one who is a negative thinker. Show devotion to mate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Think over how best your friends can fit into your ideas for the future and don't be afraid to use them. More attention and generosity for mate is wise. Come to a better understanding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You have to handle a personal project yourself without depending on others, if you want it done right. Don't take any risks where family or higher-ups are concerned. Safeguard security.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Others will give ideas that will be most helpful to you in the future, so put them in operation. Make new and interesting acquaintances and enrich your life in many ways. Be conscientious.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY: he or she will be one of those delightful young people whose life will be full of changes, so give training that will prepare for such ideal career for business in foreign countries. Teach the importance of idealism, otherwise this becomes a materialistic life and much happiness could be lost.

The Stars imply that you are not completely in charge of your life is largely up to YOU!

OUT OUR WAY

REX MORGAN

What's What

L. M. Boyd

Consider the wife who is contemplating divorce. Worst thing she can do is move out of the house. Unless it's just too dangerous to stick around. Then, under the law, such mitigation. But if she merely walks off the property even though not under physical threat, she might lose her legal claim to alimony, jointly held assets, whatever. Our Love and War man got the foregoing counsel from a lady lawyer with pursed lips and real squinty eyes.

Bear in mind, there's no "hic" in the pronunciation of "vehicula." Only thing I can tell you about that great English theologian Joseph Priestley is he invented carbonated water. Last ice cream, toothpaste and ink also among those numerous Commodities processed with seaweed.

Indiana down around the lower tip of South America used to wear enormous boots stuffed with grass. That's why that area is known as Patagonia. Comes from the Spanish word for "big foot."

UNSKILLED

Now seems as good a time as any to carp acrimoniously about that nameless jargon merchant who first employed the meaningless terms "skilled," "semi-skilled," and "unskilled." To categorize working folk I know a man who does not much else but dig holes in the ground with a shovel. For a septic tank outfit "Unskilled," he he recently saw the old boy excavate by hand a cavity five feet in diameter at least three feet deep in approximately 15 minutes. Try that, ah. Then, regard that lady typist in Seattle. Semi-skilled, I believe. At last report she was board member, vice president and comptroller, the company's key officer. Finally, must mention, too, an attorney-acquaintance of bygone years. Altogether skilled, the record shows. But he wound up in the pen for peddling pills, pot and pornography.

FATTENING

Wasn't it Helen Rowland who said, "All the things I really like to do are either immoral, illegal or fattening?" A. That was Alexander. Wellcott. Helen. Rowland said. From the day on which she weighed 140; the chief excitement of a woman's life consists in spotting women who are fatter than she is.

What's the "Onager" species? A. A sort of donkey that looks like a cross between a sabre and a mule. Understand these are only about 100 of them.

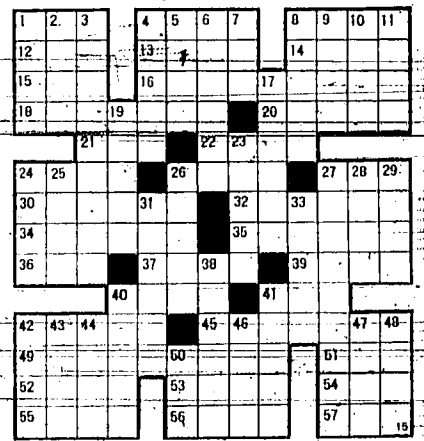

Most common skin disease known to man is the herpes zoster otherwise termed the lever blister.

In the ancient Dutch lingo, the words "verloren hoop" meant lost hand; a body of men selected to perform a perilous service, usually as scouts at the head of a marching column. Our Language man says such be where we get that fairly common expression "loftorn hope."

MAJOR HOOPLE

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened lower in moderately active trading on the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday. Shortly after the opening bell, the Dow Jones Industrial average had slipped 0.75 to 909.02. Declines were ahead of advances by better than a one, of 597 stocks were the ticker. On Monday, the entire list took a severe beating in sluggish trading. The Dow plunged 18.20 to 909.89, the average's steepest decline in almost three years.

With no direct news developments to account for the list's poor performance, brokers pointed to a general deepening of psychological malaise on the part of investors, irritated by a weakening dollar in overseas markets, soaring gold prices, and as one analyst put it, "one big credibility gap" as the Watergate story continues to unfold.

Ziegler backs Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler reiterated Monday denials that President Nixon had any knowledge of the bugging of the Watergate or efforts to cover it up.

Ziegler, however, declined under-repeated questions by reporters to issue a flat denial of a Newsweek magazine report that former White House counsel John W. Dean never made an investigation and report of the Watergate which Nixon attributed to him last August.

Ziegler said the White House would stand on remarks Nixon made in a televised speech April 30 in which he said he had been misled by members of his staff until last March into thinking the Watergate was far more serious than he now considers it.

Ziegler declined to vouch similarly for a Nixon statement Aug. 29 that Dean had conducted an investigation of the Watergate affair and had issued a report exonerating all persons then employed by the administration.

Ziegler noted that Nixon had said April 30 his previous statements were based on information available at the time they were made and that some of that information now appeared to be incorrect.

In his meeting with reporters, Ziegler expressed concern that public hearings by the Senate's special Watergate committee might prejudice "due process of law as it relates to grand jury proceedings." However, Ziegler disowned a remark by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz that the committee chairman, Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., was "a publicity seeking senator" and that the probe was a political investigation.

"He was speaking on his own," Ziegler said of Butz's remark in Charlotte, N.C. "I'm not going to agree with the characterization of the chairman. I'm not going to characterize the chairman." Ziegler added: "Without referring to Secretary Butz, there has been considerable concern of the impact of the committee hearings on the due process of law as it relates to the grand jury proceedings."

Asked if the committee's sessions should be postponed until the judicial process is completed Ziegler said, "I don't think it's for me to offer a solution to that."

Spending up in '73

BOISE (UPI) — State agencies have spent a total of $518,765,546 so far this fiscal year — $58,598,226 from the general fund, Auditor Joe R. Williams reported today.

Williams said the remaining $460,157,319 came from special funds.

This compared with total expenditures of $397,609,772 by this time last year, including $36,386,599 from the general fund, and $341,223,172 from special funds.

Workshops scheduled

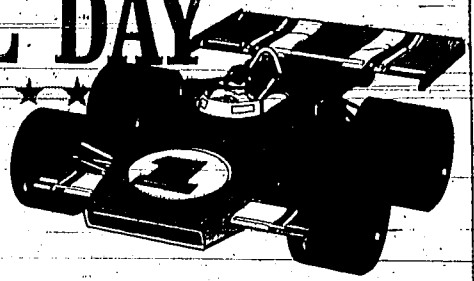

BOISE (UPI) — Beginning Tuesday, the state auditor's office will hold seven workshops for state employees this week on the new accounting system which goes into effect July 1.

Auditor Joe R. Williams said Monday that the Friday session will concern a new fiscal manual — first to be published by his office since 1943.

He said the new system — which ties into the financial management information reporting (FMIR) system sought by the legislature calls for new codings, new procedures and new forms.

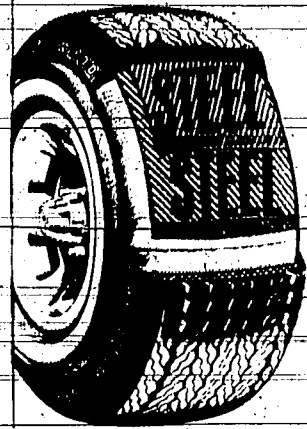

There will be two workshops each day Tuesday through Thursday and one meeting on Friday to explain the system and its attendant fiscal manual.
