Felt warns of FBI exodus ahead

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The FBI's number two man told the Times-News today the bureau's agents "will not be satisfied with anything less than a permanent director chosen from their own ranks."

W. Mark Felt, a former Twin Falls resident, who has been the FBI's second in command since May, 1972, said he plans to resign his post.

Felt warned in a telephone interview that retirements and resignations within the FBI "will go up drastically" if a political appointee is named as permanent head of the agency.

But Felt would not link his own resignation, announced last week, to such dissatisfaction. He said only that he is quitting for "personal reasons."

He said his resignation was not prompted by the appointment of William Ruckelshaus as acting director of the bureau.

Felt had served as acting bureau director for a few hours late this morning after the resignation of the time acting director E. Patrick Gray, resigned following his embarrassment in the Watergate investigation, and the time Ruckelshaus was appointed.

According to Time Magazine, Felt had not been notified prior to Ruckelshaus's appointment.

Felt confirmed he had signed a telegram to President Nixon last month in which he made "a strong recommendation" that Nixon appoint a permanent director from within the bureau.

Felt had been the senior FBI official to sign the telegram, along with 14 other top Washington bureau officials and all but one of the 60 special agents heading field offices.

The telegram apparently was ignored with Ruckelshaus's appointment.

"We have a leadership problem," Felt said today. Constant changes within the FBI have put it in a "state of limbo," he said. Felt said he is "a Hoover man and proud of it."

His letter of resignation confirms that view: It reads, in part: "It is my earnest hope that the standards of thoroughness, fairness, and impartiality that became the hallmark of the FBI during J. Edgar Hoover's 48 years as director will continue to be maintained, and that the FBI will remain a career service staffed at all levels by law enforcement professionals."

"The FBI has absolutely no apologies for the investigation that was conducted in the Watergate case," he said today.

He said the FBI's investigation had turned up evidence that convicted the seven original Watergate defendants.

"We broke the dam. They all started to talk" after they were brought to trial, according to Felt.

Felt agreed that the FBI took a "bum rap" because of blunders by Gray and the Department of Justice in the Watergate investigation. He said he has "no plans" in his immediate future, Felt said. He said he will continue to live in Virginia.

Thieu given cease-fire plan

SAIGON (UPI) — U. S. Presidential envoy William Sullivan brought President Nguyen Van Thieu a plan for making the four-month-old Vietnam cease-fire work and a map setting boundaries inside South Vietnam for the Communists and the government, informed sources said today.

The development came as the government reported a record low in Communist violations of the cease-fire and military sources reported the deaths of 13 persons in two air crashes, both from unknown causes. However, the military sources said there was some skirmishing only eight miles from Saigon.

Calley granted hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Court of Military Appeals will hear an appeal by Lt. William Calley on three of 30 points raised by his defense.

Calley will present an appeal to the tribunal on grounds an unfair trial resulted from pre-trial publicity, that what occurred at My Lai in Vietnam was manslaughter and not murder, and misleading instructions to the court-martial jury.

Gold trading quiets down

LONDON (UPI) — Trading in gold eased and the dollar was mixed in European money centers today.

Gold in London had a very quiet session with the metal quoted 25 cents higher at $109.75 an ounce at the morning fixing.

With the current price showing no big change on Wednesday's close, dealers of the opinion that gold had reached a new plateau.

Second Briton quits post

LONDON (UPI) — A second member of Prime Minister Edward Heath's government resigned today in the country's fast-spreading sex scandal.

The latest to resign was Earl Jellicoe, leader of the House of Lords and Lord Privy Seal, who admitted he had associated with prostitutes. His resignation came only 24 hours after that of Lord Lambton, 50, the parliamentary undersecretary for the Royal Air Force, who made a similar admission.

Schmitz rejoins Republicans

SANTA ANA, Calif. (UPI)

John Schmitz, American Independent Party 1972 presidential candidate, has returned to the Republican Party.

Schmitz said the GOP needs new leadership following Watergate. He is now a history professor at Santa Ana College.

Schmitz had sought a teaching post at the College of Southern Idaho but his application was denied.

US records trade surplus

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent announced today the United States registered a trade surplus in April of $193.6 million — its first in 18 months.

At a news conference, Dent said: "This is a constructive development from the standpoint of international markets." He cautioned however that "monthly figures are not necessarily indicative of longer trends."

The surplus was based on exports of $5,487,000,000, up 2 per cent from March, and imports of $5,293,000,000, down 2.6 per cent. Imports declined for the second consecutive month.

Leaking tank car lies amid wreckage

Wrecked tanker leaks

BURLEY — Firemen with foam equipment were standing by late this morning at the scene of a freight train derailment in which a 30,000 gallon propane tank car was punctured.

Union Pacific Railroad officials in Salt Lake City said the derailment near Starb's Ferry is under investigation and the cause is yet unknown. However, Cassia County Sheriff Ray Mitchell said he understood a switch had been left open following earlier switching, causing the train to leave the tracks.

Involved in the derailment were three diesel engines and nine railroad cars including the liquefied petroleum gas tank car. The 42-car train was westbound.

Burley Fire Department units answered the alarm about 5:15 a.m. Fire fighting equipment remained at the scene until 7:30 a.m. but no fire resulted.

The fire chief and several firemen remained at the scene and plans were being made to use foam units from the Burley department and from Twin Falls if necessary. Phil Heimer, fireman, said:

"He said fire equipment was pulled back to Burley when it appeared fire danger did not exist and to return the units to Burley in case of alarms there. Starb's Ferry is about four miles east of Burley."

line. Wes Soulier, assistant director of public relations for Union Pacific, Salt Lake City, said a large crane from Pocatello was en route to the scene to clear the tracks. He said traffic this time of year is light on the branch line but potato and fish shipments are moving daily.

Burley Fire Department reports indicated two homes in the area had been evacuated because of the continued escape of the gas. People were being kept from the area to make certain a cigarette or match did not ignite the gas, but firemen said there was no imminent danger except in the immediate vicinity of the leaking gas. Heimer said the gas fumes dispersed as soon as they left the tank, reducing the danger.

Soulier said the crew on the train would consist of the regular engineer, brakeman and two or three other crewmen. He said he did not know the name of the engineer or brakeman.

Firemen said they felt it was "pure luck" that a fire did not start immediately after the derailment and said the foam would be used during removal of the damaged cars.

Sheriff Mitchell said some of the cars were severely damaged while others appeared in fair condition.

Soulier said of the nine cars, three contained cement and five were empty sugar beet hopper cars. He had no estimate of damage.

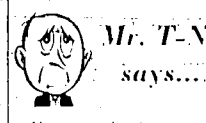

Burley measure OK

BURLEY — The new Burley zoning ordinance was adopted by the zoning commission after only five minutes of discussion during a public hearing Wednesday night.

About nine residents attended the meeting but only one protest was lodged against the proposed ordinance at this second hearing. Norman Dayley, owner of Quality Upholstery, requested that Block 123 on East Thirteenth Street and Hansen Avenue be zoned commercial.

The commission declined to rule on the request but said it would recommend the change to the Burley City Council, which now must rule on the ordinance before it is adopted.

The commission expects to present the ordinance to the council June 4.

Nixon might do well to consider Magic Valley's own Mark Fall to clean up Washington

Rate hiked

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chase Manhattan Bank today raised its interest rate for prime business loans to 7 1/4 per cent from 7 per cent.

The bank said the 7 per cent rate was out of line with what it had to pay for money and that the new rate was low in comparison with the general interest rate structure.

Child aid load drops

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Aid to Dependent Children public assistance program caseload has declined steadily in the Magic Valley region for the past eight months.

Statistics compiled by the Department of Environmental and Community Services (DECS) show a 21 per cent overall decline in the caseload for the ten-month period ending in April, with a 33 per cent decrease in the amount of money going out to recipients $146,000 in April, compared to $218,000 last July.

The trend displayed in the information is in contrast to a sharp increase in both caseload and cost of the program during late 1971 and early 1972. Information made public last fall had shown a 33 per cent increase in the programs from June, 1971 to March, 1972.

DECS Regional Eligibility Director Theo Murdock said Wednesday a series of measures was responsible for the recent decline. They include an administrative order last summer to alter the formula by which cash grants are calculated, reducing the total by about 10 per cent.

In addition, Murdock said, stronger efforts to recover delinquent child support payments and recovery of overpayment programs by the state have resulted in the reduction in the programs.

The figures made available Wednesday indicate a decline in nearly every area of the Magic Valley region. From July, 1972 to April, the Twin Falls local office has reported a decline in caseload of 151 families, 28 per cent; the Jerome office shows a 24 per cent reduction in caseload, while the office in Gooding, reporting for Gooding, Lincoln and Carma counties, showed a 37 per cent reduction.

Along among the offices, Halley figures show an increase of 14 per cent over the ten-month period. That represents a net increase of only three cases, though.

According to Murdock, the decline in the caseload had been expected because of the efforts made in that direction. But he acknowledged the decline had been slightly greater than he had expected, largely because of what he said was an improving employment market regionally. Murdock predicted the caseload would continue to drop slightly during the summer months and then rise again later in the year.

Skylab count smooth

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The countdown rolled along smoothly but engineers in Houston raced the clock today to modify three emergency Skylab sun shades and ship them to the launch site in time for a Friday morning liftoff of the three-man mission.

All three shades had been delivered to the Cape but were flown back to Houston when scientists discovered their nylon fabric might deteriorate under long exposure to solar radiation.

Launch crewmen said they could wait as late as midnight to stow the roof-sized shades in the already crammed cabin of the Apollo command module. A jet stood by in Houston to rush the awnings to Florida this afternoon.

The astronauts who must repair the damaged space station — Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz — waited patiently at the Cape and got their hair cut.

Project officials had already given them a go for takeoff at 7 a.m. MDT Friday to intercept their space station in orbit and attempt to shade it from the baking heat of the sun.

The officials said Skylab may have ripped metal, wires and rods hanging from its golden skin, but they expressed confidence the pilots could shade Skylab and cool its oven-like interior without undue risk.

Two more three-man crews are scheduled to live aboard Skylab for as long as 56 days each later this year. It was the duration of those missions that prompted the concern about the durability of the sunshade fabric.

"Additional data put forth the possibility the nylon could deteriorate under ultraviolet rays and the sun's heat," said a spokesman at the Johnson Space Center in Houston.

At the launch control center, test supervisor William H. Schick said the countdown was progressing smoothly on the 22-story space machine and "things are in good shape."

He said the sun shades had to be stowed in the Apollo before rocket fueling begins shortly after midnight.

The weather forecast remained good for the 7 a.m. MDT liftoff.

Bigfoot or fake?

Ape-man sighted hunters say

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Is it Bigfoot or some guy in a mocha, buggy gorilla suit? The elusive Bigfoot, legendary ape-man of the Pacific Northwest, was sighted and photographed, according to a group of professional creature hunters.

Actually, they say their photograph is of "Son of Bigfoot," a hairy teenage monster with silver gray fur and a mane rising like a Roman soldier's plume from the top of his neck to the top of his head.

That's what appears in the photograph by B-F Enterprises, a Santa Clara, Calif., corporation dedicated to the capture of a centuries-old legend.

The latest Bigfoot photo — there hasn't been one since 1967 — shows a monster sitting precariously on a rock two-thirds of the way up what is supposed to be a 500-foot chasm.

The location, say Tom Biscari, 24, and Gene Findley, 25, is "somewhere northeast of Spokane, Wash." They won't be more specific because "it'd be like a Bigfoot convention around there."

They are right about that. The hunt for Bigfoot is a growing hobby for weekenders.

and has become a full-time occupation for a handful of adventurers.

Indian stories started it all. They tell of eight-foot monsters rumbling around isolated areas of forest and jagged cliffs. Eighteen inch long footprints resembling a man's were left behind by these nocturnal beasts.

Bi-rare sightings have been recorded for more than 100 years. But Bigfoot has never been captured or killed by man, even though self-styled authorities believe more than one exists — probably a whole colony.

The photos were taken in late April by a partner in B-F Enterprises who was tipped by a rancher who said he had seen Bigfoot. The photographer discovered the monster, according to Biscari and Findley, about 20 minutes after sunrise sitting on a cliff. The photo was taken from about 280 yards away using a telephoto lens.

After he took about six pictures, the two said, the creature climbed down the cliff wall and moved out of sight in a fluid, upright motion.

The last purported photo of Bigfoot was taken in October, 1967, by rancher Roger Patterson near Bluff Creek, Wash.

Energy studies pushed

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Department of Water Administration and the U.S. Geological Survey will continue study of 25 geo-thermal areas in the state for possible energy development a 43-page report released Wednesday said.

The areas are concentrated in the southern half of the state with clusters in the southeastern corner of Idaho and the western part of the state in Washington, Boise, Gem and Valley counties.

Other study areas are included in Lemhi, Custer, Blaine, Camas, Cassia, Owyhee, Elmore, Fremont, Madison, Bonneville and Fremont counties.

The areas in the southeastern corner of the state includes potential "hot spots" in Oneida, Franklin, Caribou, Bannock, Bear Lake and Bingham counties.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, attending a question and answer session when the study was presented in Boise, said it will be up to the state to decide in the future how these and other geo-thermal springs and wells will be developed — either by private industry or public.

He said geo-thermal development may be a way for Idaho and the nation to bypass the energy problems it faces.

Two areas, one in Island Park and the other at Atomic City, have been chosen for further study but on the basis of geologic considerations only.

The study, conducted by the Department of Water Administration, took 12 months and cost $20,000.

Geologists from the department conducted samplings at 124 wells and springs during the study.

The report said there are at least 380 hot springs and wells throughout the central and southern parts of the state. It also noted that 30 per cent of the state has potential value for geo-thermal exploration.

Health district budget group approves plans

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Converting the old American Legion Hall in Twin Falls into a new South Central Health District offices was approved Wednesday.

The South Central Idaho Health District budget committee met Wednesday in Twin Falls and gave its approval to plans of Architect Ivan Stone.

Stone said renovation is expected to be completed within a cost of $85,000.

Plans call for changing some of the window design in connection with the reduced ceiling heights and giving the exterior of the building a modern look. The basic structure will not be altered. The entrance will be remodeled and two cloak rooms at the entrance will be made into public restrooms.

The main floor will be divided into office suites, including offices for the district director, assistant director and other personnel.

At the east of the entrance where the stage is now located, rental offices will be provided. This rental area had been intended for mental health offices but the District Mental Health group has not received appropriations for participation as yet, Dr. Wayne Carle, medical director, said.

On the main floor there will be a large waiting room and a multi-purpose room for Rod Gross blood drawings and health clinic work.

The basement will hold a laboratory and office space for laboratory workers.

Stone told the health officials he hopes to have complete specifications ready for bids by June 22. He said about six months would be required for construction, with building occupation by the first of the year, the date the district must vacate its quarters in the city hall.

Board OKs license plan

TWIN FALLS — A plan for a licensing system for all persons who install sub-surface sewage systems was approved Wednesday by the South Central Health District board.

The program has been under discussion for some time but has not been implemented. Dr. Carle said it should be ready soon to be put into effect. This will help protect home builders and owners from difficulties which result when the installations prove faulty.

It will give the health department a means of keeping a record of all persons engaged in installing the systems. Present state laws require the health district environmentalists to make inspections and approve all septic tanks but some are already in place before the department learns of them.

Some are required to be replaced. The district will also require a list of recommendations as they pertain to subdivisions and mobile home parks in areas not served by municipal sewer systems.

William L. (Bill) Prince, board chairman, said it appears the zoning group need a uniform procedure with all requirements the same. Dr. Charles Parker, Jerome, said "The zoning people seem to be looking to us for regulations and standards and I think we should be setting them and making them available."

The regulations will be aimed toward prevention of saturation and contamination of water supplies, in rural areas. Board members paid tribute to Jim Logan, health entomologist for the district, who this year completes 25 years service with the department, most of it in this district.

It was announced mileage will be approved for Mrs. Gwendolyn Krahn, ex-officio member, who represents Camas county on the board. She does not have a vote but serves in ex-officio capacity at this time, because of the limited number of board positions.

When one of other counties is without official representation, mileage expenses will also be allowed that individual. There are nine health board members, selected on a population basis, including the ex-officio member.

The next board meeting will be held to coincide with opening of bids on renovation work.

Rebekahs give pin

FILER — Mrs. Rex Lancaster received her 25-year veteran's Jewel Tuesday evening at the Miriam Rebekah meeting in Filer.

The presentation of the pin was made by Mrs. Faye Hoffman, who had made Mrs. Lancaster's application into the lodge 25 years ago.

Donations were made to the Rebekah President's Home Furnishing Fund to help furnish the meditation room at the "Home on the Hill," Caldwell, and to the World Eye Bank.

Lodge members will go to Fairfield Saturday to put on a ceremony honoring chaplain of district No. 6. Joint memorial services will be held with the IOOE during the next regular meeting June 12.

53 graduated at Valley

VALLEY HIGH SCHOOL — The 53 graduating seniors of Valley High School were awarded diplomas in commencement exercises held in the school auditorium Wednesday night.

Honor awards and scholarships were presented to 15 honor students by Arlyn Bodily, assistant superintendent. Recipients included Janet Auferheide, Kenneth Bailey, Kathryn Black, John Bruns, David Grant, Scott Grant, Cindy Johnson, Susan Linder, Estelita Maldonado, Steven Meyerhoff, Melihah Nannan, Jerre Nelson, Hsieh Reitz, Joe Ritchie, and Cindy Schwartz.

Miss Schwartz delivered the valedictory address and admonished the graduates to "live for today and to think of dreams for tomorrow."

In doing so, she said, they must "have courage to do right, live each day to its fullest, and give service to others."

David Grant in his salutatory address urged his classmates to "discover yourselves, set goals, work toward those goals with diligence and success will be yours."

Dr. Thomas L. Utterback, superintendent, presented the class for graduation and Harold Grant, chairman of the school board, awarded the diplomas.

Grant also presented a plaque to Dr. Utterback in appreciation of unselfish service. Utterback is retiring after 11 years as superintendent.

Janet Auferheide and Cindy Mills played an organ and piano duet and Duane Porter sang a vocal number accompanied by Daryl, Daniel and David Stone on guitars. The invocation was offered by Rocky Hagan, 1972-73 student body president and the benediction was pronounced by Randy Christopherson, newly elected student body vice president.

The processional and recessional were played by the Valley High School band.

Lodge slates barbecue

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Loyal Order of Moose and their families have planned a barbecue and picnic for June 8 at Twin Falls Park.

Each family is asked to bring a covered dish and its own table service. Plans for the event were made at a meeting of the Women of the Moose Tuesday.

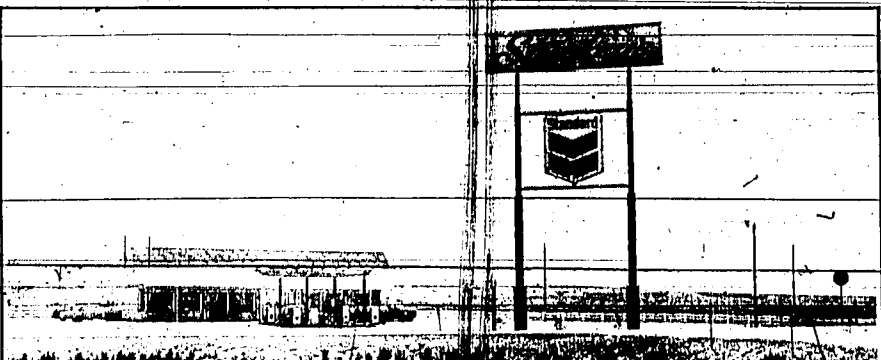

The Anniversary Day Dance May 12 was discussed. It celebrated 62 years of the Loyal Order of the Moose.

Mrs. Lewis Hoffman served as pro tem junior graduate regent. Mrs. Ralph Clark was pro tem pianist. Other pro tem officers were Mrs. Gary Crayen guide and Mrs. Doug Haltermann, assistant guide. New officers will be installed at 8:30 p.m. June 23 at the Moose Home. The next meeting is at 8:30 p.m. June 12.

A substitute

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Dr. D. M. Varman, a University of California professor, suggests the use of a desert shrub called jojoba as a substitute for whale oil.

The agronomist says the plant could be raised in dry climates and its oil could replace that of whales, which have been put on the protected list because they are an endangered species.

Ms. Movement

These are parlous times for newspapermen. Not only are reporters and publishers under pressure to reveal their sources or suppress information they believe the public is entitled to, they are feeling the impact of changes which society as a whole is experiencing.

This is particularly true in the field of women's liberation, and the attack is coming as much from within the ranks of journalism as without.

Several female staffers of the Boston Globe, for instance, recently wrote a letter to their editor charging the paper with denigrating women in both its editorial and advertising coverage.

They referred, among other things, to "the irrelevant use of the women's movement for a laugh grabber," "the use of women in photos for sex interest," "the extraneous insults accorded women either generally or as wives, mothers-in-law, etc.," "The use of 'girl' for 'woman,'" and "advertisements in the paper that clearly exploit women as sex objects."

Writing in Editor & Publisher, the newspapers' news magazine, Gena Corea noted a recent wire service story which described the president-elect of the American Association of Women Dentists as "petite and perky, blonde and beautiful, fragile and feminine."

To male reporters, a woman's marital status is considered relevant, though a man's is not, she charges. Thus one reporter wrote of Dita Beard, the lobbyist in the ITT affair, as "the 53-year-old divorcee."

"I have yet to read, Henry Kissinger, the 48-year-old divorcee who advises President Nixon," says Miss Corea.

Women are not only underrepresented on newspaper staffs but in their columns as well.

Citing a study made last summer of the frequency with which women's accomplishments are reported, she says, "When only seven per cent of newsmakers are women, we can conclude either that men do the important things in the world and/or that it is men who decide what the important things are."

To all of which charges, male newspapermen can only plead no contest and throw themselves on the mercy of the court of public opinion.

The women are right, of course. A woman's looks, marital status, number of children or relationship with her husband should have no place in a story in which none of these things is a relevant factor.

"And because they are right, their cause will eventually triumph. Eventually 'male chauvinist' reporters will learn to look at women simply as persons, and if they note a curve or flashing eye, they will keep such information to themselves."

Whether the male population at large can ever be trained to look at women simply as persons, or whether many women themselves desire such an eventuality, is something else.

WASHINGTON — A bachelor friend who spends most of his spare time with girls submits a casual survey which may tell more about the odds against the embattled Equal Rights Amendment than any poll the conscientious George Gallup could produce. "They don't talk about national issues anymore," he said of the numerous and varied members of his stable. "Even Watergate seems bore them after a few minutes."

"Why Can't Nixon Keep a Spic-and-Span Office Like We Do?"

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK

A Ticking Bomb

WASHINGTON — A scathing indictment of President Nixon's disastrous Phase III anti-inflation program, his economic advisers and his detachment from his own economic programs has been filed inside the President's Oval Office like a ticking time bomb for five weeks, bearing the signature of Mr. Nixon's chief economic spokesman during last year's presidential campaign.

The author is Canadian-born Dr. Pierre Rinfret, the noted New York-based private consulting economist who has intimate ties to both Mr. Nixon and his newest White House aide, John B. Connally. The April 12 attack on the "currently disastrous rate of inflation" was the result of a specific request from one-time chief domestic presidential aide John Ehrlichman.

In making the request, Ehrlichman spoke for Mr. Nixon himself. In answering it, Rinfret proposes a return to mandatory controls, sharp limits on profits and a temporary 15 per cent income tax boost for both corporations and individuals.

Rinfret, regarded by some establishment economists as an irrepressible Peck's bad boy of the occult art, was a key author of the highly praised Phase II, which he abruptly terminated last January. Rinfret refused to discuss his secret report with us beyond admitting his advice had been requested. His proposals, summing up in pungent language what many other economists are now starting to say, were made available to us by sources close to the White House.

By coincidence, the disclosure of Rinfret's tough new anti-inflation proposals — essential, he said, to avoid other dollar crises, a probable recession and a loss of so much "credibility" that the economy could become "almost unmanageable" — parallels the reemergence of Connally as a temporary White House aide in the Watergate disaster.

One of Mr. Nixon's first assignments for Connally (who spent Tuesday afternoon with the President) was to stop the current 10 per cent inflation rate on an annual, compounded basis. Connally's own proposals, building on his glittering success as author of the August 1971 wage-price freeze, are also expected to clash head-on with Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz's free-market bias against tough inflation controls.

Thus, Rinfret's support for an immediate return to what he calls the "mandatory program" of Phase II is one more heady signal that the White House may be ready to dump Shultz's largely voluntary program.

The heart of Rinfret's plan is his novel 15 per cent income tax scheme. Dubbed an "anti-inflation tax," it would be collected and immediately sequestered — not to be spent until inflation ended. Receipts from this tax would funnel into a special "escrow account," patterned after West Germany's anti-inflation tax system. Rinfret wrote the President: "The funds could be refunded... when adequate restraint on the economy had been exercised and when the refund would help expand economic activity."

2. To end the mishmash phony forecasting which come from Shultz, Herl Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, and Ash, head of the Office of Management and Budget, whose apparent ignorance about the true force of today's roaring inflation has become bad Washington joke.

3. To embargo the export short-supply commodities such as meat and chicken, oil and grains. Foreign buying told the President, is adding intolerably to the inflation spirals.

4. More conventional Rinfret wants even deeper spending cuts and more interventionist policy by Federal Reserve system; slow the supply of new money. He would limit price increases to 1.5 per cent and wage hikes to 5.5 per cent a year.

ROBERT ALLEN

The Leftists

WASHINGTON — The Democratic party's militant leftists are still in theropitching, still maneuvering and jangling for control.

Despite last year's crushing defeat of their radical presidential standard-bearer and a succession of internal rebuffs, the ultras are trying to put over a new party charter that would entrench their domination.

Erlowing is the scathing characterization of this proposal by Thomas Carroll, Louisville, Ky., lawyer, veteran party leader and member of the Charter Commission.

"This charter represents the greatest arrogation of a political party's procedures since Cromwell assumed power in England. It establishes a hierarchy which will result in a National Executive Committee of 22 persons controlling the Democratic party. This result is inevitable because of the procedures established which play directly into the hands of those who want party control rather than party participation by Democrats."

Nominal sponsor of this scheme is Rep. Donald Fraser, D-L. Minn., fervent McGovernite and long a forefront activist.

Vigorously supporting the plan is the Democratic Planning Group, New Left operation organized and backed by brass, chunky Alan Baron, and considerably financed by Stewart Mott, multi-millionaire "augur daddy" of leftist candidates and movements. The Fraser charter figured prominently at the Charter Commission's first public hearing in Des Moines, Iowa. Next meeting will be in Madison, Wis., May 30.

visibly involved."

At any rate, I am charmed to learn that at least one wench is dipping into Anita Loos' novel of the Twenties about the legendary Lorelei Lee, a blonde who proclaimed that diamonds were a girl's best friend. Lorelei may have thought Theodore Roosevelt was still President, but she was a real, bottled-in-bond feminine-type female, and the girl who willingly exposes herself to the Lorelei saga will not wind up playing linerbacker for the Washington Redskins.

In fact, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" remains a textbook

After tedious years devoted to making speeches about the latest Senate hearings on rivers and harbors bills, they're worrying about their mirrors, being caty about other women and wandering out loud how much it would cost some nice man to put them in a mink coat.

It is this male's conclusion that the female sex is going female again, having discovered that posing as men calls for too much homework on such questions as the national security aspects of the Pentagon Papers and John Connally's standing with Republican Party regulars. He reports that one girl, who used to joll about in blue jeans and dirty white sweater and read four chapters of Walter Lippmann's collected columns every night, recently was discovered stashed in a baby blue peignoir and curled up with a copy of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

If this is indeed a trend, it is good news. I do not suggest that the former weaker sex be barred from participation in discussions about devaluing the dollar but only that on occasion they say something strictly feminine about a friend's new dress. If possible, it would also be nice if ladies and other females occasionally put aside their concern over tax reform to bat their eyelashes in cuddly-kitten fashion at some presentable male.

At any rate, I am charmed to learn that at least one wench is dipping into Anita Loos' novel of the Twenties about the legendary Lorelei Lee, a blonde who proclaimed that diamonds were a girl's best friend. Lorelei may have thought Theodore Roosevelt was still President, but she was a real, bottled-in-bond feminine-type female, and the girl who willingly exposes herself to the Lorelei saga will not wind up playing linerbacker for the Washington Redskins.

In fact, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" remains a textbook

on how a female can get top dollar for her femaleness. Those critics who maintain that Lorelei was the prototypical dumb blonde are only partly right. They neglect to point out that when it came to what most ungloriously called business dealings, Lorelei was right up there with the first J. P. Morgan and certain honorary godfathers.

Lorelei's economic philosophy was best described in one of her many observations on life. "Kissing your hand may make you feel very good," she said, "but a diamond bracelet lasts forever." Her life was filled with men turned philanthropists by her eyelash-batting femininity, and although Miss Loos never filed an estimate of Lorelei's net worth, it was obvious Miss Lee would not end up in a breadline.

"So Mr. Sisman gave me quite a nice string of pearls," said Lorelei, "and he gave Dorothy a diamond pin..." No doubt today's Mr. Sismans are equally generous, but not toward females who speak in a basso profundo and run against Dick Daly for the proprietorship of Chicago.

Anita Loos put it in perspective for a New York Times reporter on her recent 80th birthday. Reminiscing about Lorelei, she remarked that today's girl could not be mentioned in the same breath because "she'd be up hustling, getting to a job... she certainly wouldn't have any champagne; there wouldn't be time for it..." The great majority of today's women are self-supporting. If they don't have a job they feel out of it."

Miss Loos also pointed a finger of blame. "The people I'm furious with are the women's liberationists," she said. "They keep getting up on soapboxes and proclaiming that women are brighter than men. That's true, but it should be kept quiet or it ruins the whole racket."

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Hexachlorophene

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Now that hexachlorophene has been determined as possibly brain damaging, what treatments for acne are left? Am I supposed to turn into a battle zone waiting for new medications?

I have severe acne and have been using medicated soaps, a complexion brush and good diet. Alcohol makes my skin dry but doesn't do much else.

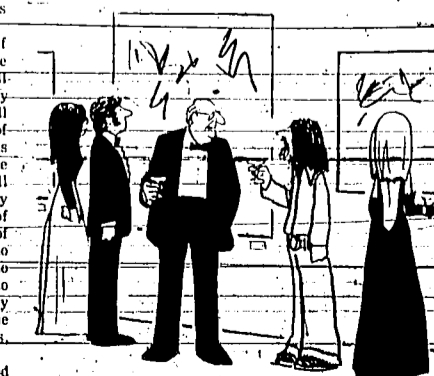

I get plenty of exercise but school is too tough for more than eight hours of sleep. I also find my diet difficult because everything is greasy.

Please suggest EVERY cure or aid I'm not trying now. We can't afford a dermatologist or psychiatrist which I've been told is necessary to end my problems. What effects do hexachlorophene have on the brain? M. T. I.

Unlimited use of hexachlorophene was banned because of fear of what might happen from its use in total body bathing of babies, but it hasn't been dismissed from use because it still has its values. Soaps containing it can be obtained by prescription and, for acne, it would not be used for the entire body, but rather for the affected areas. Likewise, thorough rinsing will do two things: first, the rinsing is necessary for best results with acne; second, it will remove any hexachlorophene remaining on the skin, to prevent possible absorption. There are other medicated soaps that do not contain hexachlorophene.

Of course, other antibacterial preparations may also be used — antibiotics of the tetracycline type are widely used. The antibiotics are used in small doses, and you must see your doctor (or a dermatologist) about this. Only occasional visits would be necessary, and I doubt if the expense would be as great as you fear.

I would doubt that you need a psychiatrist. Who said you did? When you ask for "every" other method of treating acne, that's a pretty big order. I do, however, suggest that you read my newly revised booklet, "Controlling Acne, Blackheads and Pimples."

Just between you and me, how does your stuff stack up with growth stocks?

Americans Abroad

Both the Kennedy administration and the Johnson administration mounted campaigns to get U. S. citizens to see America first and spend their money at home, in an effort to aid the U. S. balance of payments. Both campaigns were a flop.

Nothing stops American tourists from flocking to Europe. Stories of how they are taken for suckers wherever they go and separated from their money have no effect.

Perhaps it should be difficult to become unduly excited about this.

Tourist expenditures abroad represent only a small part of the nation's payments imbalance. The balance of payments deficit means there are more dollars flowing out of the U. S. than into it.

A new wrinkle cropped up in the news the other day, however. On the first day the price of gold topped $100 an ounce, American tourists were reported to be buying some of it. Since they could not bring it into this country, they had to dispose of it before returning and thus became speculators.

MR. SPECTATOR

Those Were The Days

The present is never like the past. Some preach that the past is dead so leave it alone — but we argue with that.

We were doing some thinking yesterday (we do just that, every once in awhile) and the name of August Joseph Donatelli came across our mind. He never liked the full name, so went (and goes) by the name Augie.

It was back in 1946 that we met him. It was in Jaycee Park when the Pioneer League team played here and it was his first year as an umpire. He is now with the National League and has been for the past 22 years.

But getting back to 1946. Things used to really happen in those days and someone dreamed up the idea of "Empire Appreciation Night." There were about 4,000 people in the stands and Donatelli was the plate umpire. Mr. Spectator was master of ceremonies for the event.

Among other things, we remember giving him a glass eye, awarded by one of the faithful fans. Another gave him a crutch.

But the highlight of the night came when our own J. Hill, the blind businessman-musician, came into view. I went over, greeted him — and his dog, of course, and we walked over to home plate.

I introduced J. to Mr. Donatelli. They shook hands and then Mr. Hill handed the umpire the dog's leash and, into the microphone, said the words which were famous for years and which brought down the house and left the umpire speechless — both at the same time!

"You need this dog more than I do," said Mr. Hill as he turned and walked back toward the stands.

GASSAVING

We had to drive to American Falls the other day and thought we would keep our speed down in order to save gasoline.

So, instead of the 70 miles an hour the Interstate permits most of the way (it's about 400 miles one way from here to American Falls) we traveled at an even 60 miles an hour.

What happened? By actual count there were 83 passenger cars, 19 semi-trucks and nine cars pulling camp trailers passed us. Come to think of it there were also three trucks with campers passing us.

Yes, the drive to conserve gas is being ignored.

GIVEAWAY DEPT.

We have three adorable black kittens that must be given away. They are housebroken and ready to be weaned. They are real cute. Please call 733-1217 in Twin Falls anytime Friday.

Rogers breaking trail for Nixon

Foreign News Commentary
By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Secretary of State William P. Rogers' eight-nation tour of Latin America has thrown into sharp relief not only the highs and lows of U.S. relations south of the border but also the contradictions among the nations of Latin America. The Rogers trip has been a low-key operation designed to assure Latin Americans that they have not been forgotten in the midst of other crises including Vietnam, the dollar problems and the question of peace in the Middle East.

Colombia is one of the few south American nations still adhering to the principle of a freely elected government.

Brazil is in its 10th year of a government which maintains a facade of democratic rule but which is in fact a military dictatorship. They are especially noteworthy because, under opposing political concepts, they are challenging each other for the most impressive gains to be found in South America.

For example: Brazil's population is about 100 million, Colombia's around 23 million.

Colombia's 1973 exports are expected to reach about $1 billion, an increase of about 25 per cent over last year.

Brazilian exports are expected to jump from just under $3 billion to about $3.5 billion this year.

Colombia's gross national product is expected to rise $1 billion to $4 billion for the year. Brazil's to rise $4 billion to $4.4 billion.

In Latin America, U.S. policy has run the extremes between the gunboat diplomacy of the days of Teddy Roosevelt and establishment of the Panama Canal to the Good Neighbor policy of Franklin D. Roosevelt and the Alliance for Progress initiated by John F. Kennedy.

Rogers' task has been to convince Latin Americans not only of U.S. interest but also to assure them the United States is on a new tack—what President Nixon has described as a "mature partnership."

In Mexico City, Rogers described it this way: "We do not favor the policy of paternalism. We favor the concept of equality."

So far, U.S. officials have been pleased by results of the Rogers visit. But among Latins the policies of more than 100 years are not forgotten overnight.

Analysis

Just as important, the Rogers assignment has been to break trail for a similar trip by President Nixon later in the year.

Prominently omitted from the Secretary of State's schedule were Panama and Chile.

In Panama, the United States is involved in a controversy over the future of the Panama Canal.

In Chile, the question is one of how to deal with the first freely elected Marxist government in the American hemisphere and its rush toward nationalization including seizure of millions of dollars worth of U.S.-owned property.

Both nations are examples of a growing sense of nationalism throughout Latin America.

High up in their importance on the Rogers tour were Colombia and Brazil.

US strengthening Iran

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States, increasingly aware of the strategic importance of Iran and its resources, is undertaking a program to help that country achieve a major increase in its military might.

The program will include, among other things, the dispatch to Iran of a large number of U.S. military advisers, in addition to the considerable contingent already there. The advisers are to train Iranian military personnel in the use of helicopters and other sophisticated equipment involved in a $2 billion sales agreement which the Shah of Iran quietly concluded with the United States last year.

The equipment, to be purchased through the Pentagon at preferential prices, will be delivered over a period of five years.

Turkey and Iraq. Uncertainty here over eventual Russian intentions in the area gives Iran increased importance in the eyes of U.S. officials, who consider the Shah's government a major element of stability in an otherwise uncertain situation.

Iranian oil could become of critical importance to the United States, Western Europe and Japan if the big oil-producing countries to the south and west of it ever go through with their threats to curtail supplies to the United States because of its pro-Israeli position. Although only 10 per cent of U.S. oil imports now come from Iran, U.S. officials say that within a few years the United States will be depending upon the Persian Gulf area for at least 25 per cent of its imported oil.

The motives impelling the Shah to increase his military strength are concerned with his uncertainty about the intentions of some of his neighbors.

U.S. officials who have recently conferred with the Shah say that he strongly suspects that Russia and India are conspiring to foment tribal uprisings in Pakistan with the objective of eventual dismemberment of that country.

And finally, the Shah must always be alert against the possibility that Arab guerrillas in nearby countries will move into his border area because of his friendly attitude toward Israel.

The Shah, once described by former Secretary of State Dean Rusk as one of the best informed world leaders, has so far been relatively successful in getting along with his Russian neighbor to the north. Russia recently constructed Iran's first steel mill, which is being paid for by natural gas piped to Russia from Iran.

Analysis

Developments during recent months have made both Iran, the third largest oil producer in the world, and the United States anxious to solidify an already amicable relationship.

The United States has two principal reasons for attaching more importance than ever to the continued existence of a strong government with adequate military forces in Iran:

—Iran occupies a critical strategic position in the oil-rich Persian Gulf. It has as its neighbors the Soviet Union, Afghanistan, Pakistan,

Reform backed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Orval Hansen announced Tuesday he has joined with other congressmen in introducing legislation to establish a bipartisan commission on political campaign reform.

The joint resolution calls for a commission composed of 17 members, including four members of the House and four senators, and the chairman of the two major political parties.

The commission would investigate all facets of the 1974 election process.

Bid opens to cut road toll

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has unveiled a plan called FARE — Fatal-Accident-Reduction-Enforcement — as a program, state officials hope will lower the number of traffic fatalities on Idaho roadways. The program will use intensified selective enforcement and surveillance on sections of the state's highways that have historically had a high accident rate. The anti-accident program will begin June 1 and continue through September. Andrus said the Idaho State Police will play the major role in the program under the direction of Lt. Richard Foote.

"The men have volunteered to spend their days off and vacation time to support the program," the Governor said. Andrus said the FARE troopers will aggressively enforce both moving and non-moving violations with special emphasis on speeding, driving while under the influence of alcohol or drugs, failure to yield the right of way and driving left of center. "Selective enforcement and surveillance will be exercised on U.S. 10 and I-90 in northern Idaho; U.S. 30, U.S. 20, I-80, State Highway 44 and State Highway 69 in Southwestern Idaho and U.S. 30 and U.S. 191 in southeastern Idaho. The National Highway Traffic-Safety Administration has apportioned $65,000 in federal funds for the Idaho program.

Richardson confirmed for post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate overwhelmingly confirmed Elliot Richardson as attorney general Wednesday despite some doubts his nominee for special Watergate prosecutor might not have enough freedom to fully investigate the scandal.

Interrupting special hearings on the Watergate case, the Senate voted 82-3 for Richardson after less than an hour's debate. The vote came during a three-hour meeting at the Justice Department between Archibald Cox, the Harvard professor appointed by Richardson last week as the Watergate prosecutor, and the current Watergate prosecution team: Cox was informed of the vote by telephone during the meeting.

Although the vote from Cox to begin working actively on the investigation, sources said.

Wednesday "It's going to be several more weeks before indictments come" because Cox will need time to read the federal grand jury findings. The grand jury has been working on the Watergate case for about 11 months.

The confirmation of Richardson, former defense secretary, also opens the way for President Nixon to nominate CIA Director James P. Schlesinger as defense secretary and move William B. Colby into Schlesinger's job. Richardson will take the oath of office later this week.

Despite the overwhelming confirmation vote, some senators said they still fear Richardson is too close to the administration to have ultimate authority over the Justice Department during its Watergate investigation.

Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Robert

C. Byrd, speaking for himself and other liberals on the Senate Judiciary Committee, said he voted for the confirmation with reluctance. The committee approved the nomination unanimously.

Byrd said he never questioned Richardson's personal integrity and would have supported him fully under different circumstances. But, he added, the appointment of Richardson in the midst of the Watergate scandal gives "every appearance of the administration investigating itself."

"It goes to the appearance that Mr. Richardson might conceivably participate in a cover-up," he said.

Byrd said he decided to go along with the nomination because "time is of the essence" and the Senate might receive "no better nomination" if Richardson were rejected.

Odds given

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder, well-known sporting odd-maker, has given the best odds against President Nixon being impeached. Snyder figures the odds are 1,000-to-1.

In response to a question, Snyder said the 200-to-1 odds against Nixon resigning, and finish his full term.

The odds against former Attorney General John Mitchell being convicted are 5-to-1, Snyder said.

2 antiwar lawmakers file suit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Two antiwar congressmen filed federal suits Wednesday asking the courts to declare U.S. military activities in Cambodia unconstitutional and to order their halt.

Reps. Ron V. Dellums and Fortney Stark Jr., both Democrats from the east side of San Francisco Bay, brought the nearly identical suits against the Secretaries of Defense, Air Force and Navy.

They asked the U.S. District Court to issue injunctions prohibiting the Pentagon from continuing "bombing of Cambodia or otherwise engaging in warfare in Cambodia." Stark's suit said the Cambodian bombing constituted "war" under terms of the U.S. Constitution.

'Botched up' job

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Watergate break-in was a botched-up job from the very beginning, as far as former New York City policeman Anthony Ulasiewicz is concerned.

Testifying before Senate investigators Wednesday, Ulasiewicz said:

"I'll tell you there was no retired man in the New York City Police Department who would become involved in a thing like that. And if he thought he had to for whatever reason it was, he wouldn't have walked in with an army; that's for sure."

Well then, he was asked, how would a retired New York cop have done it.

"He would have walked in like any decent common looking citizen, laid something in the right place, walked right out and that would have been the end of it for a long time."

Summary given on testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A summary of the testimony Wednesday before the Senate Watergate Committee.

Former White House aide John J. Caulfield, an ex-New York City policeman and a friend of Watergate conspirator James W. McCord Jr., testified he believed President Nixon "probably did know" that executive clemency was being offered through him to McCord; that he knew it was wrong to relay the offer but went ahead out of loyalty to Nixon; stood by his previous denial that he had ever invoked Nixon's name in offering McCord the presidential pardon if he would go silently to jail.

Gerald Alch, a Boston-law partner of P. Lee Bailey and McCord's first attorney, angrily denied McCord's claim that he had advised his client to seek to escape punishment by claiming Watergate was a CIA operation; that after McCord's conviction last January in connection with the Watergate break-in, McCord's new lawyer, Bernard Fensterwald, told him in a long-distance telephone call, "We are going to get the President of the United States." The allegation prompted McCord to storm from the hearing room but he returned 20 minutes later, labeled as "absurd and completely untrue" McCord's previous testimony that Alch had suggested McCord's records at CIA, where he worked for 19 years before his retirement, could be "doctored" to show he was still on active duty at the time of the June 17, 1972 Watergate break-in.

Anthony Ulasiewicz, another former New York City policeman who worked for a time at the White House, confirmed that his was the secret telephone voice which set up the meetings where Caulfield allegedly offered executive clemency to McCord.

Rebuttals cause havoc

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The bombshell accusations of convicted Watergate conspirator James W. McCord have spawned a series of rebuttals that threaten to sidetrack plans for an orderly Senate probe of the bugging scandal.

For two days the Senate Watergate Committee heard a careful, detailed account of McCord's post-Watergate activities. Now, those mentioned in his testimony are clamoring for time to explain their version.

Under the committee guidelines, persons maligned in testimony may request an opportunity to be heard. But sources said the committee is worried the plan to methodically uncover the bugging and alleged cover-up may be jeopardized by these rebuttals.

"We have a hearing to continue and we just can't get sidetracked," explained one source who is directing the probe.

One possible solution under consideration is to allow the submission of sworn testimony rather than have the committee listen for hours to prepared statements.

On Wednesday, the entire afternoon session was devoted to the reading of a prepared text by McCord's former attorney, Gerald Alch, who quoted McCord's current lawyer, Bernard Fensterwald, as saying "we are going after the President of the United States."

Mid-way through the statement, McCord surprised everyone at the hearing by returning to the room and asking that he and Fensterwald be permitted to rebut Alch. The afternoon session Tuesday also was dominated by the reading of a long prepared text by former White House aide John J. Caulfield, who repudiated several key points in McCord's testimony.

McCord, who blew the lid off the Watergate scandal last March by offering to name higher-ups, has been generally praised by the senators for the detail of his testimony.

But McCord's credibility has been challenged because of his claim that the President was aware of meetings in which Caulfield offered him executive clemency to remain silent.

Caulfield said he never told McCord the President was personally aware of the offer. He also denied ever telling McCord to keep silent if called before a grand jury or congressional committee.

Caulfield said he offered a "small piece of friendly advice" in suggesting the administration would take steps to defend itself if pressed; McCord said he took the statement as a personal threat.

McCord said Alch promised to arrange to have McCord's personnel records doctored to show he was still employed by the CIA at the time of the June 17 Watergate break-in. Alch denied the charge and former CIA chief James Schlesinger said no one ever raised the subject with him.

McCord called Alch a liar.

The statue of Christ the Redeemer on the Argentine-Chilean border symbolizes peace between the two countries.

CIA director denies cover-up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director James Schlesinger said Wednesday he was never asked to doctor the records of Watergate conspirator James W. McCord to make it appear McCord was a CIA agent when he helped burglarize Democratic headquarters.

McCord testified earlier this week that such record-changing had been proposed by his lawyer.

Schlesinger said the only contact he had with the Watergate affair after taking office as CIA Director in February was to reject a request from former Presidential counsel John Dean for the withdrawal of CIA materials related to the subject that had been sent to the Justice Department.

Schlesinger told reporters he had denied under oath before the Senate Armed Services Committee on May 11 — in a closed hearing — that he had participated in any way in the Watergate cover-up.

Schlesinger returned to the Armed Services Committee Wednesday for another round of closed hearings to discuss McCord's charges that the White House tried to blame the Watergate break-in on the CIA. McCord testified Tuesday that his former lawyer suggested last December "as the basis of my defense during the trial, the story that the Watergate operation was a CIA operation."

McCord, an ex-CIA agent, said the attorney, Gerald Alch, questioned whether McCord could "ostensibly have been recalled from retirement from

Honesty of aide queried

DELAWARE, Ohio (UPI) — Former Attorney General Richard Kleindienst Wednesday challenged the credibility of testimony by former CIA agent and Watergate conspirator James McCord to link President Nixon to the affair.

"If all you had was McCord you would not have one more conviction," said Kleindienst at a news conference prior to addressing the student body at Ohio Wesleyan University.

Kleindienst was also asked why President Nixon formed a special investigative unit to try and find administration leaks rather than ask the Justice Department for help.

"I don't know," was his reply. Kleindienst, who has two children enrolled at Ohio Wesleyan, said there would be some "great triumphs coming out of the investigation into the Watergate affair."

"One of the great accolades will be that the American justice system works with the great and powerful as well as with the humble and needy," he said. "It will impose a higher standard on American politics," he said.

Church predicts inflation rise

BOISE (UPI) — U.S. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, predicted inflation would continue to rise and said the nation must change if "the era of American primacy can endure."

Church steered away from the Watergate issue in a speech Wednesday at the forum luncheon of the Greater Boise Chamber of Commerce.

Church said the "defenseless will bear the brunt of the inflation, the unorganized worker, those on salaries which lag behind, the elderly," on fixed retirement incomes.

He said American products also will suffer from inflation as they become less competitive on the world market.

The Idaho Democrat said the U.S. for the first time in this century has a trade deficit.

He said the balance of payments for the nation "has reached hemorrhage proportions. No nation can stand an economic blood-letting of this proportion for long."

Church said in the confrontation between the President and Congress, Nixon has used the veto "like a sledgehammer" to enforce his control over the federal budget.

"Other presidents impounded appropriated funds, but did so in exceptional cases and as an extraordinary measure. President Nixon is impounding funds across the board as a means of enforcing his own spending priorities," he said.

Guard praised

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus flew to the training area south of Gowen Field Wednesday to visit Idaho and Montana guardmen in training south of Boise.

The governor was accompanied by Maj. Gen. George B. Bennett, Idaho Adjutant General, on the visit.

Andrus said he was impressed with the expertise shown by the Idaho guardmen and noted the Idaho Guard's reputation had encouraged other states to use the Gowen Field training facilities.

He said Rhode Island is looking into the use of the training facility for their aerial gunnery training.

Rogers at inauguration

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers flew into Argentina to attend a presidential inauguration, but found his Latin American hosts more immediately interested in the Watergate affair.

He told newsmen Wednesday before he left Brazil for Argentina, the seventh of eight visits in a 17-day Latin American tour, that the Watergate affair was not a "favorable development," but he predicted it would not damage

American image abroad. "It will not have any effect at all," Rogers told newsmen. "I don't want to leave the impression I think it is a favorable development. It will have some effects on the administration's relations with Congress on getting legislation passed on matters of foreign policy."

Rogers' arrival did not stir much excitement or interest. Many Argentines saw him as simply the head of one of the more than 60 foreign delegations attending the inauguration Friday of President Hector J. Campora.

He told an airport news conference: "We look forward to working cooperatively, frankly and on a basis of equality with your new government."

He did not specifically name Campora, a dedicated follower of exiled former president Juan D. Peron and an outspoken critic of U.S. economic and business policies in South America. He is Argentina's first civilian president in seven years.

U.S. officials accompanying Rogers said his schedule today was "fluid," which they said meant "uncertain." His official schedule for most of the day showed no engagements.

American sources said Rogers hoped to meet the foreign ministers of some of the Latin American countries not included on his tour, among them Ecuador, Uruguay, Bolivia, Chile and Panama.

Death toll climbs with collision

THORNTON (UPI) — A horse-motorcycle collision in Madison County and a delayed report of a fatality in Custer County boosted the Idaho traffic death toll Wednesday to 116. A year ago at the same date the toll was 91.

Dead are Dan Erickson, 16, Thornton, Idaho, and Paul Carlisle, 80, Mackay, Idaho. The Erickson youth died after his motorcycle ran into the rear of a horse ridden by his brother, Nolan Erickson, 25, also of Thornton. Madison County Sheriff Ford Smith said the accident occurred at 9:40 p.m. Tuesday on the Archer-Lyman highway 10 miles southeast of Rexburg, Idaho.

Idaho State Police said Carlisle was injured in a two-car accident Feb. 24 on U.S. 93 in Custer County. He died April 18. The driver of the second car involved in the mishap was Leonard Bradley, 45, Arco, Idaho.

College president resigns position

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — After eight years as president of the College of Idaho, Warren Knox has announced his resignation.

The announcement of his resignation was made Wednesday by Robert E. Smylie, Boise, chairman of the college's board of trustees. Smylie said the board had directed the chairman of the board and the president's council to take over administration and management of the college until a new president is hired. Knox has been president of the college since 1964.

Economy may cool, councilman says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For 40 days and 40 nights, inflation rained upon the land and prices rose higher and higher.

But in April, President Nixon's chief economist explained, "we sent out doves and they returned with little twigs" — slower increases in wholesale and retail prices and a surprising decline in the value of consumer purchases. "Now one twig doesn't make a forest," said the economist, but it suggests that "the waters of inflation may be receding and the big boom may be slowing down."

With this mixed bag of metaphor and economic statistics, Chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers told reporters Wednesday that the supercharged U.S. economy may be cooling off. Government and private economists generally agree that the economic growth rate of the first three months of 1973, which included high production, mounting shortages and near record inflation, cannot be sustained.

The problem for economic policy makers is to taper the boom into a healthy long run expansion without plunging the economy into a recession.

Scattered evidence from April, Stein said, "suggests that the rate of expansion will be declining to more tolerable levels."

Stein brushed aside reports that the administration's economic "machinery was paralyzed" by the Watergate affair, "like a rabbit hypnotized by a snake ..."

Gas 'tight' for holiday weekend

Gulf and Shell oil company spokesmen said Wednesday the problem of gasoline shortages is immediate; they're not sure they have enough gasoline for this Memorial Day holiday weekend.

"It's impossible to predict whether there will or won't be enough gas for the weekend," a Shell spokesman said.

"It's gonna be tight," a Gulf spokesman said. "Cross your fingers. There could be some spot shortages. We've been telling the public about the energy crisis three or four years, but they act like they don't believe us."

In Memphis, Tenn., five stations ran out of gasoline Wednesday. Three of the stations were operated by the Treasury stores—a J.C. Penney subsidiary—and two by Sears-Roebuck. Treasury officials tentatively say they will get more gas as of June 15. Sears says its stations will reopen with the June allocation on June 1.

Standard Oil Co. of California Wednesday eliminated trading stamps at company stations. "We felt it was a bad position to be taking promotion steps to increase gasoline sales at a time when we have a shortage."

John Spahn, the manager of a Chevron station in Honolulu, said he laid off two part-timers and one full-time worker. "By the end of the week, we may have to close until June 30 when we get our next allotment, and people say there's no shortage," Spahn said.

But Ralph Porcell of the Gasoline Retailers Association of Metropolitan Chicago is skeptical of reports of shortages. "It's a man-made shortage to force out the independent dealers who have been able to keep prices 3 to 7 cents a gallon lower than the major brand dealers," Porcell said. "The big companies want to knock the little guys down. The oil companies are trying to force the government to restore the depletion allowance they lost a few years ago. The companies are not performing for the best interests of the public."

Porcell said the major oil refineries were running "only up to 50 to 75 per cent capacity. They're intentionally holding down supplies to jack up prices. The government requested major oil companies to share their gasoline supplies with independents, but they refused."

But a spokesman for Standard Oil Co. of Indiana countered those arguments. "Our refineries are running well ahead of 1972," he said. "We're running at record levels of 97 per cent of capacity."

The spokesman said, "Definitely, a shortage exists around Chicago. The projections indicate supplies will get tighter as summer goes on. It looks like there will be problems with heating oil this winter, too."

In Springfield, Mass., Wednesday, Robert E. Majka cut gasoline prices at his Arco station, and posted a sign that read: "Gas sale. Lowest prices anywhere." The driver of a tanker truck from the local British Petroleum (BP) distributor drove in and wanted his 7,000-gallon delivery tank filled. Majka let him buy 1,000 gallons. "A customer's a customer," he shrugged.

Majka said his Arco distributor in New Haven, Conn., told him that despite widespread news of a gasoline shortage, the supply on the East coast is unlimited.

Beirut eases emergency

BEIRUT (UPI) — The government relaxed a state of emergency it proclaimed 17 days ago at the height of fighting between the army and Palestinian guerrillas, but left in force today a six-hour curfew in Beirut and other cities.

The decision to lift the emergency, which gave army commanders wide powers, came in a cabinet meeting Wednesday under the chairmanship of President Suleiman Franjeh. It was the first cabinet session since the emergency was declared.

But an army communique said the curfew will remain in force between midnight and 6 a.m. in Beirut and five other principal cities.

The daily 10-hour-long period of free movement was the longest since a curfew was enforced May 2 when fighting started between the army and the guerrillas. More than 250 persons died in the fighting, which essentially was fueled by a dispute over the future of Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon. "We have decided to cancel the state of emergency," Franjeh said. "This is a decision...we are confident is a wise measure."

The emergency will continue in the border region adjoining Israel, where it was imposed last September after an Israeli attack in the region.

Under the emergency, the army command assumed powers ranging from detention of citizens who threatened security to the imposing of censorship.

Franjeh told the cabinet that Lebanon did not intend to join the Palestinians but he said the country intended to apply Lebanese laws to all persons living in the country.

Premier Amin Hafez, who submitted and then withdrew his resignation during the crisis, said mutual confidence was the basis of relations between Lebanon and the Palestinians.

Celebration set for 680 POWs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A huge red and yellow striped tent was prepared on the South Lawn of the White House today for a gala celebration honoring 680 former POWs from the Vietnam war. A total of 1,300 guests were expected to attend the evening affair, which will include an hour of entertainment by many big-name Hollywood stars.

NIOC, consortium sign agreement

TEHRAN (UPI) — Iran and the Western oil consortium today signed a 25-year agreement ensuring the continued flow of Iranian oil to world markets and giving Iran full control over its own oil industry.

After months of negotiations, today's agreement was signed by the National Iran Oil Company (NIOC) and the British, Dutch, American and French members of the consortium.

"The agreement is unique and is designed to provide long-term stability and growth for Iran's oil industry as well as to ensure the flow of crude oil to markets supplied by the consortium," a communique said.

"Terms of the sale will ensure Iran will receive revenues not less than those which will accrue to other Persian gulf producing countries," it said.

NIOC director Reza Pahlavi told reporters: "This means that indeed Iran is now the master of its own oil industry as the shah (of Iran) called for."

The shah had demanded that Iran's oil production be raised and Iran be given full control of its own industry.

The new agreement replaces one signed in 1954 and must be ratified by the Iranian parliament, a move that was expected shortly.

Elementary awards

Filer students given honors

FILER — Citizen and athletic awards were among those presented to Filer Elementary School students at an assembly Tuesday morning.

The most improved citizen trophy went to Joyce Kay, and Craig Lincoln received the scholastic athlete of the year trophy. Named citizens of the year were Nina Sturgill and Jim Blitzenburg.

The most improved citizen is selected by a committee of seventh and eighth grade students at the school, assisted by several teachers. To compete for the scholastic athlete award, students must carry a high grade average and also be active in three different sports during eighth grade.

Mrs. Rufus Fields and Mrs. Tom Tverdy, two teachers who are retiring this year from teaching, were presented flowers and a cake from members of the fourth grade at the school. Serving on the committee were Sharon Kniefel, Cathy Elliott and Terry Onida.

Pat Mahoney and Terri McColm presented the Pop Club awards to cheerleaders. Receiving special mini-course reading awards from Mrs. Uletta Martin were Monte Marshall and Kent Knigge.

Special reading awards were presented by Mrs. Jerry Healy and Mrs. Alan Subker, teachers, to Terri McColm, Dawna Hanson and Alice Reed receiving physical education awards.

Bill Hoops, principal, presented perfect attendance awards to a large number of students.

The school will dismiss at 1 p.m. Friday. There will be a movie in the morning, followed by the traditional water fight at noon. There will be no hot lunches.

Prices lowered

CHAPPAQUA, N.Y. (UPI) — The publishers of Reader's Digest announced Tuesday that beginning with the magazine's July issue newsstand prices will be lowered from 60 cents to 50 cents.

The announcement made no mention of subscription rates.

In a statement, the magazine said the price drop "follows the steady growth in newsstand sales and reaffirms the Digest's traditional policy of providing its readers with the best in reading value."

Baldness cure here?

CHICAGO (UPI) — The physician who pioneered hair transplants says that within two years drugs may be available to prevent baldness.

Dr. Norman Orentreich, associate clinical professor of dermatology at New York University Medical Center, said Tuesday he is optimistic such drugs will be available because laboratory tests have proven drugs can retard balding.

"It is something I am certain we can do, probably in the next year or two and no longer than five years," Orentreich said.

He said the key to preventing baldness is knowledge, recently acquired, of how the male sex hormone, androgen, affects hair growth.

Orentreich, reporting at the American Medical Association's conference on hair growth, said, "Our preliminary clinical trials in humans also look encouraging."

Write-in vote elects trustee

BURLEY — "A lot of people who were not Chicano's voted for me," Saul Saldana said Tuesday. "And that has its significance."
Saldana, 42, was elected trustee of the Cassia County School District Monday on a write-in vote. He defeated incumbent Alvin M. (Pat) Kelly by 17 votes.
Saldana said his candidacy motivated a lot of Chicanos to come to the polls to vote. "I've been here 11 years and have never seen a Mexican-American run for anything," he said. "We need to get involved because it involves our children's education," he said.
Along with interested citizens, Saldana carried out a house to house campaign distributing leaflets and aired his views on the radio. Saldana said he visited every home in the zone and "that did the trick."

Although he did not base his campaign on the Chicano issue, "it did help," he said.
Saldana said he wanted to be a trustee so he could be involved in decisions being made in the schools. He has no specific programs to bring to the board but "will wait until the issues come up and then get involved."
He has a son graduating this year from Burley High School and two other children in school.

Hagerman land sold Tuesday

TWIN FALLS — Sale of 10 of an acre of land on Snake River in the Hagerman Valley area for $6,500 was transacted here Tuesday afternoon.
The sale was conducted in the district court chambers of the county judicial building by officials of the Idaho Department of Public Lands.
Purchaser of the small parcel of property was Dell D. Olson, Mountain Home. He paid cash for the land according to terms of the particular sale involved. James Mitchell, division chief of lands, Department of Public Lands, said the parcel of property which includes a small cabin and is directly on the river's edge, was being sold for the Fish and Game department, according to their requirements.

Mitchell said the land could not be sold for less than the appraised price which was $6,500. Only the one bid was submitted. He said the land is between Buhl and Hagerman and is between the new and old Owsley bridge sites.

Trustees returned

GLENN'S FERRY — Two incumbent trustees were returned to office on the Glenns Ferry school board in an election Tuesday.

TWIN FALLS — Beverly Hackney Ballet School will present "Ballet Ensemble" at 8 p.m. Friday at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium. Included in the program are "Les Jeune Filles" to music by Rossini; "Rose Et Moir" to Chere's waltz; "Lus Patneurs" set to Meyerbeer's score and "Scherzo" from Mahler's Fourth Symphony. The student won the first trick with dummy's ace of clubs and played the ace of trumps. West showed outrage at the student looking imploringly at the Professor, who was halting. Finding no encouragement in the Professor's countenance, the student led a second trump and fumbled his right. Then he led his last club.

West won the trick with the queen and led a spade. The student won with dummy's jack and tried to cash the jack of clubs. East ruffed and the student over-ruffed.

The student played on for some time, but eventually was one down.

OPEN FRIDAY 'TIL 9:00

DOWNTOWN ON THE MALL TWIN FALLS

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My mother, who is in her middle seventies, has made her home with us for nearly 20 years, since Dad died. She has her own room, and we built a private bathroom just for her.

Grandma enjoys "helping" around the house. She can't hear very well so she gets the phone messages all wrong. She can't see very well so when she mops or makes a bed, I do it over when she's not looking.

Grandma hasn't been in a grocery store in years so she has no idea how high groceries are. In fact, she hasn't spent any of her own money in years, which is what I'm getting at.

She draws around $200 a month, which she puts in the bank. The only checks she ever writes are for Christmas and birthday presents, and those are very modest, considering what Grandma is worth.

MR. AND MRS. EARL S. BUEL

Vickie Ulrich, Buel wed in TF

TWIN FALLS — Vickie Lynn Ulrich became the bride of Earl Stanley Buel in rites May 5 at Immanuel Lutheran Church, Twin Falls.

Rev. Donald Winterrowd performed the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Ulrich, Twin Falls. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Ed Buel, Murtaugh.

The bride wore a Bridal Original gown in handclip chintilly lace trimmed in scallops. A white satin bow accented the empire waistline. Her total look veil was held in place by a satin bow and swept into a chapel train of nylon illusion trimmed in scalloped chintilly lace imported from France.

She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and carnations accented with purple dried flowers and baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Renee Bragg. Bridesmaids were Mrs. John Fulgham, Twin Falls, cousin of the bride; Jenny Buel, Murtaugh, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Rod Johnson, Twin Falls. Bonnie Ulrich, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

Michael Buel, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Rowdy Blackwood, Myron Ulrich, brother of the bride, and Bill Tulle. Ushers were Kevin Coates and Rod Johnson. Wade Ulrich, nephew of the bride, was ringbearer.

The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony in the church parish hall. Shanna Ulrich, niece of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

Reception assistants were Mrs. Violet Taylor, Mrs. Hulda Ulrich, Mrs. Charles Johnson Jr. and Mrs. Francis Johnson.

Gifts were carried by Mike and Jeff Hohner, nephews of the bride.

Out of town guests included Carter Ball, Laramie, Wyo.; Mrs. Georgia Southern, Bloomington, Ind., and Lee Claymore, Ketchum.

The couple will reside in Twin Falls where the bride is employed by Mountain Bell Co. and the bridegroom is employed by Ace Hansen Chevrolet. The couple will move to Laramie, Wyo. later.

Kick in, grandma

She keeps telling us she's leaving everything to us—but we need some help now. Is there a way to ask Grandma to kick in with some loot without sounding grabby?

NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: Try this: "Grandma, the cost of living has gone up skyhigh these last 10 years, and it's still climbing. We could use a little money every month to help out the mustards. Do you think you could spare it?" If she asks how much you had in mind, tell her.

DEAR ABBY: The other morning while doing the dishes, my wedding ring came off. The water was running, and I didn't realize the ring was gone until it had already gone down the drain.

I called a plumber right away. He said the ring was already in the sewer and it couldn't be retrieved.

Abby, that was my husband's grandmother's wedding ring, and if he knew I was doing the dishes in it he would kill me. I bandaged up my hand and told him I had burned it. I can't go on wearing this bandage forever. Please tell me what to do.

BUTTERFINGERS

DEAR BUTTERFINGERS: Remove the bandage and tell your husband the truth. It's an unfortunate loss, but if that's the worst thing that ever happens to either one of you, you'll be lucky.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have reached a stalemate. We have been arguing about something unrelated to us, but which has become a sore point. For about three years we have observed a neighbor carrying on. (I'll call her "Mrs. X.")

We have seen Mrs. X and her children pack up the car during the summer months, pull out of the driveway, and minutes later a young woman pull into the driveway and stay with the husband for hours.

When Mrs. X attended night classes, we have seen this "friend" leave by the back door, creeping across the lawn just seconds before Mrs. X's car came down the road. My wife has also seen the husband and this woman dining out in local eating spots.

The problem: My wife wants to tell Mrs. X about these goings-on. Not to tip her off, but because she dislikes her. She says Mrs. X puts on airs and is always talking about how "happily married" she is, and how she has "trained her husband right," etc.

These neighbors will be moving in another month, and I have begged my wife to leave it alone.

I am turning to you because my wife reads your column daily, respects your opinion, and has agreed to abide by your opinion.

WEARY HUSBAND

DEAR WEARY: I say: "Leave it alone."

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FOUND A HUGE BOX OF PILLS IN SON'S CLOSET?": Ask your son what kind of pills they are, where he got them, and why? Also if he's taking them—if you get no answer, have the pills analyzed. Your doctor, pharmacist, or someone in your local drug rehabilitation center (or police station) can help you.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69766, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Conquers mountain

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — John Roskelley came home with frostbitten toes Tuesday, but said the hardest part of his conquest of 26,795-foot Mt. Dhaulagiri in the Himalayas was the nine days he spent in a sleeping bag.

"I boiled water to survive and waited out a 150-mile-an-hour monsoon wind," the wind-burned six-footer said from a wheelchair after being reunited with his wife.

"The temperature was 50 degrees below zero at Camp Number Four," he said.

The camp was located at the 24,600-foot level of the peak in central Nepal. Roskelley, 24, and Dr. Louis Reichardt, 30, Palo Alto, Calif., on May 12 became the first Americans to climb it.

"It was really frustrating," Roskelley said. "All you could do was survive, keep boiling water...and wait. The biggest event of the day was going to the bathroom."

"The challenge was half mental, half physical," he said. "I would get discouraged and wanted to quit many times. But I knew what was waiting—the achievement. It was a team effort—all the way. I just happened to be at the best spot when the weather broke."

Roskelley, Reichardt and their Sherpa guide Shamden reached the sixth highest peak in the world—conquered by Swiss and Japanese teams in 1956 and 1970—after three months.

They spent 40 minutes atop the mountain, placed U.S. and

climbs mountain

Nepalese flags on the peak, they returned to camp. On the way down, Roskelley discovered his feet were frozen. Guides carried him for three days down the mountain to a village where an evacuation plane picked him up.

The other 14 members of the American team are still on the mountain, Roskelley and Duennwald said they talked to team leader James Morrissey, Stockton, Calif., seven days ago and that other members of the group were planning an assault on the peak. Roskelley said he doubted they would make it this late in the year since the monsoon season is just approaching.

Skylab repair, safety foreseen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — NASA Administrator James C. Fletcher said Wednesday he is confident that repairs to Skylab can be carried out safely and the three-man crew will carry out a "nearly normal" 28-day scientific mission.

He told the Senate Aeronautical and Space Sciences Committee that a successful remedy for the overheating problem in the orbiting laboratory also should clear the way for two more crews to carry out their scheduled missions of 56 days each later this year.

With the first Skylab crewmen scheduled for launch from Cape Kennedy at 7:02 a.m. EDT Friday, Fletcher assured the committee: "There will be no relaxation of safety considerations in the conduct of the replanned Skylab mission. There is no more danger than they would have had anyway."

He also stressed that repairs to the laboratory to make it habitable will not add to the $2.5 billion cost of the project, and that only three of the 87 experiments scheduled for the initial mission will have to be "scrubbed" if the repair work succeeds.

Astronauts Charles Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Wertz will take along a choice of heat shields—one balloon-like, another shaped like an awning, the other resembling an umbrella—and choose the one best suited to shield the inside of the lab from the sun's rays.

"The plan is to have them repair the damage and then carry out a nearly normal 28-day mission," said Fletcher, head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Lincoln OKs four-county cattle force

SHOSHONE — Lincoln County Commissioners voted unanimously to join a four-county force to stem cattle rustling at a special meeting Wednesday night at the courthouse.

Gooding and Camas county commissioners had voted earlier to participate in the program.

Lincoln commission chairman Glenn E. Sorenson said if no more than three head of cattle were saved, it would more than justify the cost to the county for one session alone.

Gooding County Sheriff Earl Brown, who is coordinating the program said the money received would go through the county commissioners in each county. $15,000 in federal funds will be supplemented by $1,250 from each participating county.

Cattlemen present Wednesday night voted to pay 10 cents per head voluntary fee to help fund the program. The remainder of the amount for Lincoln County would be paid from the county budget.

Brown said the deputized men who will begin work June 1, will be equipped with pickup trucks, and have authority to stop vehicles, for legal search. He noted an increase in cattle rustling and said a major problem in the county is the loss of baby calves.

To date this year, he said about 37 head have been reported missing and believed to be stolen. He said one man reported 16 head of his cattle were stolen while he was attending church.

The two men to be hired will be working on a trial basis until Jan. 1, 1974. If the program proves successful, it will then be set up permanently.

Ketchum's new Holiday Inn open for business

$2 million inn opens in Ketchum

KETCHUM — Less than one year after groundbreaking ceremonies, Ketchum's new $2 million Holiday Inn is open for business.

The Inn was developed in conjunction with Sprenger Land Investment Co.'s Bigwood project north of Ketchum. The new inn is owned by Fraser Mortgage Co., Cleveland, Ohio, which also owns the Holiday Inn in Twin Falls.

According to innkeeper Lamar K. Tobias, the facility employs about 65 persons through its food and lodging services.

The inn provides 116 units and four suites — including a special room on the first floor for handicapped guests — contained on four floors, a restaurant, a coffee shop, two lounges, a beauty shop, gift shop, a small coin laundromat for guests and office space.

Tobias said the inn's swimming pool, two tennis courts, two saunas and whirlpool bath will be open about June 1.

Also by about June 1, Tobias said, guests will have use of a golf course, operated by Bigwood, at preferred rates. The nine-hole course has two tees on each hole, allowing play as an 18-hole course, with construction of another nine-holes planned.

Convention facilities include two rooms which each hold 75 persons and two 50 person rooms. Tobias said the four rooms can be opened up to serve about 35 persons.

Tobias said conventions booked for this summer include the U.S. Idaho reunion, the Idaho Office on Aging and several tours.

Within about one year, an additional 116 units may be constructed to allow the inn to accommodate larger conventions, Tobias said.

The Mining Co. Restaurant and Coffee Shop is operated by Coy Wood through the Sun Valley Food Service under a similar arrangement as the Twin Falls facilities. Restaurant manager is Larry Wilson.

Tobias said the coffee shop is presently open from 6 a.m. to 2 a.m., with a 24-hour service if demand warrants. Restaurant hours are 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. The Mining Co. lounge is open from 11 a.m. to 1 a.m.

The Claim Jumper Lounge on the lower level is open presently from noon to 8 p.m.

Cattle rustlers receive sentence

TWIN FALLS — Two Buhl area cattle rustlers have been sentenced to 14 years in the state prison on grand larceny charges, with the sentences, then suspended and 120 days jurisdiction retained by the Fifth District Court.

The men, William Elwin Brags III, 24, and Stephen R. Shakelford, 22, pleaded guilty to the Jan. 14 theft of cattle from the Larry Easterday ranch southwest of Buhl, and to butchering the cattle at their home.

In addition to serving the 120 days, the two will be on probation for six months following the sentences.

Susan Mendall, 22, also was originally charged in the same complaint but charges were dismissed against her when she testified for the state in the case.

Two others arrested by sheriff's officers in connection with the sale incident, Daryl Barigan and Russell Cooke, have entered pleas of innocent in district court and are awaiting trial.

$ earmarked

HOLLISTER — The Hollister city fathers now know where they can spend their revenue sharing funds — which amount to about $400.

They plan to use it all to help pay for replacement of the pump in the village well.

C. M. Lanting, city clerk, said the well will cost between $1,200 and $1,300, so the federal funds will cover about one-third of the expenditure.

Nader draws praise at Burley meet

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Ralph Nader drew praise and "quickie courses" in acupuncture drew blame at a day-long session on consumer education here Wednesday.

The Idaho Annual Health Conference covered topics ranging from nutritional labeling to health service delivery.

Idaho Attorney General W. Anthony Park opened the session with praise for consumerism. Park told about 130 members of the conference that public pressure from Ralph Nader's actions against General Motors spurred stricter state and federal consumer legislation.

Park said his office is able to bring "meaningful relief" to consumers under the Idaho Consumer Protection Act of 1971 and the Uniform Consumer Credit Code. The acts have given them much broader powers to bring action in the form of injunctions, investigative works, fines and even individual court actions, he said.

The main victims of consumer fraud are the older people, he said, who are lonely and ill.

Park said currently there is a group of people selling bottled mineral water which allegedly comes from the Great Salt Lake and can cure ailments ranging from hang-nails and ulcers to hangovers.

"This is a classic example" of the kinds of things these acts were meant to prevent, he said. His office is currently investigating the item.

Oliver Field, director of research for the American Medical Association, denounced "quickie" weekend classes in acupuncture being offered, often to chiropractors throughout the country. After the course, the individuals are told they are qualified in acupuncture.

It is currently against the law in most states to practice acupuncture unless certified.

Field said there are many people throughout the country claiming competence in the field of medicine who are merely barking people of their time and money and possibly health.

The new nutritional labeling will not be mandatory for most foods unless the product has had nutrients added to it or nutritional claims are made for it, James W. Swanson, told the group.

Swanson, regional food and drug director for region 10, said the new labeling has been checked for easy understanding by shoppers. The purpose of the labeling, he said, is to improve the nutritional listing and make the labels more meaningful.

"Every kind of environmental deterioration known to man can be found in the United States," William M. Hoffman, senior advisor to the Deputy Assistant Administrator for pesticides programs, he said.

Hoffman said the deterioration, "may not be the by-product, but instead, the main product of technical advancement." Pollution is a major problem in the United States today, he said.

The Environmental protection agency "has seized the initiative," he said, and is "bringing DDT and many other troublesome poisons under very stringent control."

Sidney E. Smith told the group he didn't believe the public perceives us (public health officials) as we perceive ourselves.

Smith, secretary of the department of Social and Health Services, Olympia Wash., said the public thinks of health officials as "stodgy, bureaucratic super-professionals."

Citizens protest

BOISE (UPI) — Box Springs, one of the last of Idaho's Thousand Springs near Hagerman to remain in its native state, is in danger of being developed, according to an announcement by Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho.

McClure said he had received expressions of concern at protests from several citizens in the area and was looking into the matter.

"For the past several years, I have been working on a plan that would preserve this unusual area," McClure said. "I have always felt that a balance can and should be found between development and preservation, and I am as much against over development as I am against needless preservation."

Escapes injury

CALDWELL (UPI) — Dale Thatcher, 50, Caldwell, apparently escaped serious injury Tuesday evening when his single-engine plane crashed near Highway 19 and Marsing Boulevard.

Thatcher was taken to Caldwell Memorial Hospital for observation. His condition was listed as fairly good.

Canyon County sheriff's officers said Thatcher was on a check ride testing his communications equipment when his plane apparently lost power as he tried to return to Caldwell Municipal Airport.

Jewelers to close

TWIN FALLS — Six Twin Falls jewelers will close their stores in observance of Memorial Day May 26, 27 and 28.

Charles Allen, Sterling Jewelry Co., said the closure is to give employees a three-hour holiday similar to employees of offices and other businesses.

Closing their doors for the three days will be Sterling Jewelry Co., Barton's Jewelry, Benno's Watch Repair, Mike Samac Jewelry, Herrett Jewelers and Twin Falls Jewelers.

Receives aid

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Shoshone and Hagerman school districts have received federal impact aid to education funds according to U.S. Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho.

Shoshone received $2,824 and Hagerman $2,055 in federal aid. They are among 11 Idaho school district receiving the funds. A total of $77,871 was released.

Ketchum, SV complete plan

KETCHUM — The Ketchum City Council and the Sun Valley water and sewer district board have completed agreement for improvement to the Ketchum-sewer treatment plant.

The agreement was completed during a meeting between the two groups Wednesday afternoon.

According to Ketchum city clerk Betty Coles, the two bodies agreed to have JUB Engineers, Boise, conduct the engineering for the project.

Advertising for construction bids is expected to start in July, with work to be completed by December 3, she said.

Planned as an interim measure prior to full plant expansion, the project is expected to cost about $180,000, according to Acting Ketchum Mayor Vern McClellan.

During a joint meeting in February, the council and district board approved a study to increase plant efficiency to be conducted by consulting engineers James M. Montgomery Co.

SOLIMAN AL-JABHAN
... visits in TF

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The head of the Saudi Arabian welfare system emphasized Tuesday the importance placed on family ties in his country as opposed to lack of such emphasis in the United States.

Soliman Al-Jabhan, Saudi Arabian Director of Social Welfare at the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare, was in Twin Falls Tuesday while touring the U.S. prior to resuming studies of the U.S. welfare system.

In a short interview with the Times-News, Al-Jabhan began by saying the Saudi Arabian welfare system performs more functions than its American counterpart.

"Here in the U.S. when you say 'welfare' it means money given to the poor people," said Al-Jabhan. "In Saudi Arabia when we say welfare — social welfare — it means community development, youth and all other aspects of social welfare. It's not only money, it's a training centers, juvenile delinquency programs ... it's very wide."

Al-Jabhan said the poor in the U.S. are

"completely different" from poor people outside the U.S. "The poor in the U.S. maybe have a car, a small house and a small income, but for example, the poor in India or Bangladesh are those who own nothing — completely."

The minister said the poor in Saudi Arabia are given a regular "salary," but he added that this applied normally to families in which the head of the household was dead or where the family had too many children to support.

"All the people there (in Saudi Arabia) are working and there is a chance to work for everybody. We don't have unemployment," he said.

Al-Jabhan characterized the difference in U.S. and Saudi Arabian systems as being in the emphasis put on the family unit.

"We support the family unit. We don't want to separate the family like you have here ... the mother, the father and the grandfather."

Al-Jabhan said that "senior citizens," for instance, were encouraged to remain with the family in Saudi Arabia and not placed in nursing homes, as they often are in the U.S.

"The family unit here is destroyed completely, completely, and this is due to the economic system that you live in ... This has destroyed the nice relations in the family as we saw it in the old days."

In the United States, Al-Jabhan said, people are too busy to have time for neighbors and family.

"You don't have time for your neighbor. You don't know if he needs help or if he has a problem because everybody is busy. It's good to work, really, but not to let this work destroy your life. You have to work, but at the same time not let this work destroy your morale, your center of life."

Al-Jabhan's presence in Twin Falls came to the attention of the Times-News after an Idaho State patrolman saw the New Jersey license plates on his car and stopped him as the Twin Falls Hospitality Association's "tourist of the day."

Al-Jabhan received a free night's lodging at the Apollo Inn and other gifts after being named tourist of the day.

He said he wanted to see both Shoshone falls and Twin falls.

MV DPA caseload declines steadily

Murdock said a new legal support office for DECS was helping bring the caseload down.

Paul Smith, the deputy attorney general who has been operating from his Twin Falls office since last January, has responsibility for welfare fraud prosecution, collection of child support payments owed women by their former husbands and collection of overpayment by the state delivery system.

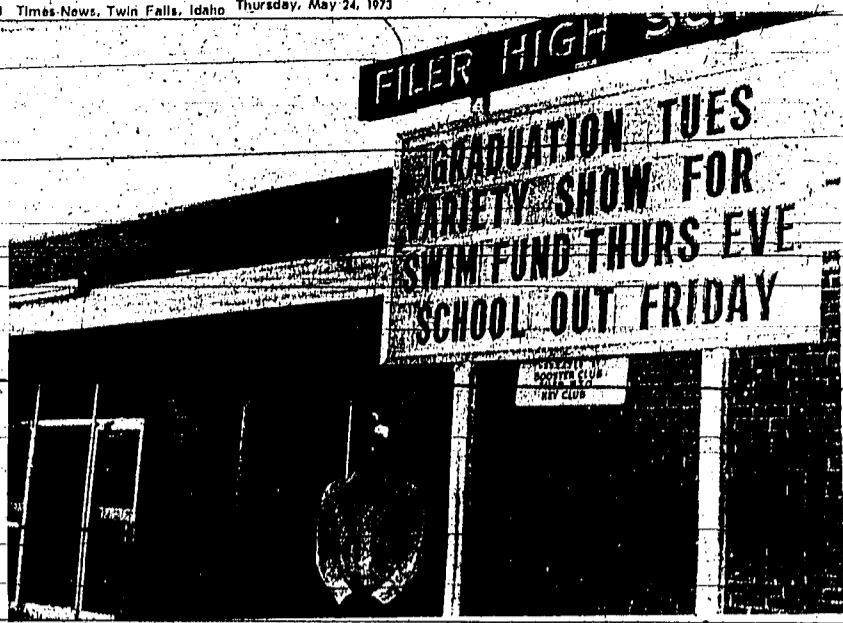

Murdock credited the presence of the office with reducing the cost of the ADC program in the area.

The figures released Wednesday indicate the largest drop in caseload between January and February. The caseload declined by 75 the first month the office was open. Murdock said the attorney general's office had taken in about $8,000 in the last month.

Other factors cited by Murdock for the caseload reduction include an administrative decision, made last year, to screen more closely applications for eligibility. In addition, he said, a federal regulation change had made acceptance of employment a condition for eligibility in most cases.

The figures made public Wednesday indicate the spread of caseload across the Magic Valley has remained the same in recent months.

Twin Falls accounts for 49 per cent of the total caseload, compared to 53 per cent last July, while the Mini-Cassia area accounts for 30 per cent at the current time, compared to its 28 per cent last year.

Pact completed

BEIRUT (UPI) — A Beirut weekly magazine said in its current issue that Saudi Arabia concluded a secret defense pact with Egypt during a visit to Cairo by Saudi King Faisal May 12-13. "The agreement automatically makes Saudi Arabia a confrontation state if fighting breaks out with Israel," the magazine Al Dnyar said. "Although the provisions of the pact will be kept secret," it said, "observers believe that it will introduce an important strategic and political development in the Middle East, since it strengthens Egypt's military capability and provides for highly important Saudi contributions and facilities."

There's only one trouble — not enough trees. "Supplies of certain species are getting scarce," said Robert Kennedy, a tree nurseryman. "The campaign is a very good one, but I don't think enough preparatory work was done. You cannot produce trees overnight."

Big Finnish fire destroys facility

HELSINKI (UPI) — The worst industrial fire in Finnish history engulfed the Esso oil storage facility at Kokkola, 325 miles northwest of here, today and raged out of control. Flames more than 300 yards and billowing black clouds of smoke blackened the sky. Fire officials said it was the worst industrial fire in Finnish history.

The fire destroyed six giant storage tanks and threatened 13 others, some belonging to other oil companies, a spokesman said. More than 100 firemen from 20 different fire departments fought the blaze. Officials ordered all residents in homes near the blaze evacuated.

HAGERMAN — Sgt. Charles R. Chick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd C. Chick, Hagerman, is a member of a unit which has earned the U.S. Air Force Communications Service Commander's Achievement Award for 1972. Sergeant Chick, a radio relay equipment repairman, is assigned at Tinker AFB, Okla., with the 3rd Mobile Communications Group which received the annual award for exceptional performance and professionalism throughout the year. The group, a completely mobile, self-sustaining unit, was specifically cited for testing a long-distance communications system utilizing the tropospheric scatter technique — that of bouncing ultra-high frequency signals back and forth off the earth's troposphere. Personnel were also commended for deploying teams on 500 occasions during the 192 presidential primaries and general election to provide communications required by Secret Service forces at each campaign stop and for their active domestic actions programs in the civilian communities surrounding Tinker. Sergeant Chick, a 1964 graduate of Hagerman High School, received his A.A. degree in 1970 from the College of Southern Idaho. His wife, Lorraine, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest N. Lytle of Route 2, Twin Falls.

Blue Lakes tourney will begin Friday

The annual Blue Lakes Country Club Invitational, with a full complement of 66 teams, will be held Friday and Saturday at the club facilities. New champions will be crowned in the two-man best ball affair as the defending titlists are not returning. The field is basically divided into one club member and a guest and they will compete in a best-ball only competition. Two-thirds of the handicap will be allowed. Merchandise prizes will be offered to low placers for the 18 hole scores of each day plus the aggregate 36-hole total.

Wood may be working with too much rest

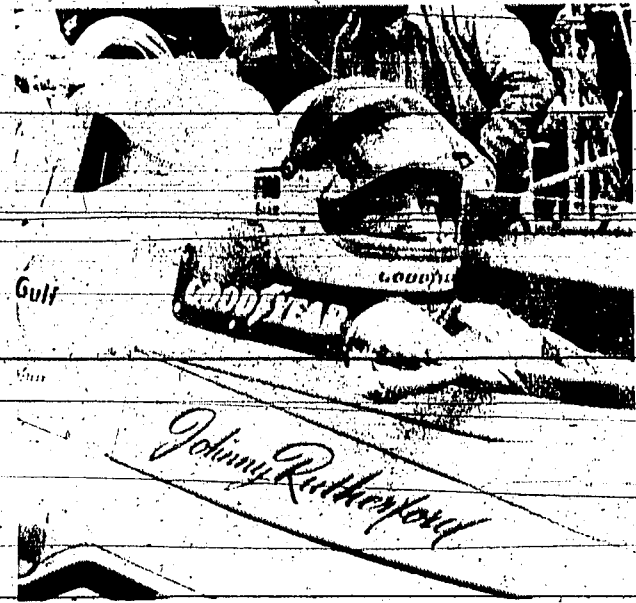

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wilbur Wood, the Chicago White Sox left-handed knuckler, might have unusual problems today trying to remain as the major league's winningest pitcher this season. He's had three days of rest. Wood will start for the Sox against Nolan Ryan, who pitched a no-hitter earlier this year for the California Angels, and he'll be trying for his 11th win this season. But perhaps he'll be out of the groove due to extra time off. Most of the time he pitches with two days' rest, and while this is regarded as an unfair burden by most pitchers, he welcomes the short time between games. "Two days of rest is plenty," he said. "I look forward to getting out there as often as possible. I think the short rest helps a breaking ball pitcher, and with two days off, I can stay in a pretty good groove. Once a week hurts a breaking ball pitcher." It might be stretching a point to declare Wood, who throws practically nothing but knucklers, a breaking ball pitcher. But he seems to thrive on the short breaks, partially because his pitches are comparatively slow, and he said, take nothing out of his arm. "After I pitch," he said, "I throw the second day on the side. That's when your arm feels worst, so I want to stretch it out. It feels pretty good on the third day, and I'm ready to go again."

A special bonus is offered for a hole-in-one, Thelien Motor donating a 1973 Cougar which will be available to anyone lucky enough to score an ace during the moot. However, the car is worth well in excess of the USGA allowed $200 per tournament, so the individual happening to win it must then decide whether he will leave the car and keep his amateur status or turn pro and grab the keys. Social highlights will be a dinner-dance for couples Saturday night and a stag night Thursday.

Salmon fishing prospects bright as counts grow

This summer, salmon fishermen in the Gem State should see one of the best spring chinook salmon fishing seasons in a decade that has been marked by dwindling fish runs. The large salmon run currently is expected to be the Columbia and Snake Rivers prompted this encouraging news from the Fish and Game Department. A department spokesman said more than fifty thousand spring chinooks have been lotted over Ice Harbor Dam, the first one encountered by migrating fish on the Snake River. As of May 14, a total of 53,577 salmon had been passed over the dam compared to 41,834 by the same date in 1972, and 32,640 two years ago in 1971. River conditions have been called very good for fish passage with few delays encountered along the route. One of the "biggest" factors accounting for this large fish run is the lack of nitrogen supersaturation build-up in the spill areas below dams. In the past two or three years, thousands of inland bound salmon died from nitrogen poisoning. The problem has been avoided this year due to a comparatively low runoff from smaller Columbia Basin snowpacks.

Carrillo apologizes for attempt to switch cars

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Race car owner Fred Carrillo admitted Wednesday he attempted to disguise a Champ Carr Enterprises team car in one of the most controversial activities at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Montanan lands record fish

LEWISTOWN, Mont. (UPI)—Angler Lory Bramstetter, Denver, Colo., has hauled in a whopper of a paddlefish, the largest of the prehistoric-type fish in Montana.

The Montana State Fish and Game Department reported Wednesday that Bramstetter landed a 142 1/2-pound paddlefish in the Missouri River during the weekend.

The fish was six feet, five inches with a 41 1/2-inch girth. The world record for such a catch was 184 pounds.

The fish has a paddle-shaped snout and is related to the sturgeon. It is caught by fishermen using either treble hooks attached to lengths of chain or deep-sea equipment.

They said they attempted to pass off the "third" car in order to gain a spot in the 500-mile Memorial Day race.

Carrillo said, "I want to make it clearly understood that the team sponsor, Norris Industries, had no knowledge of my attempt to disguise the No. 34 car as the No. 31 car. I personally apologize for the great embarrassment I have caused for Norris Industries."

The California-based manufacturing company was sponsor of the Champ Carr team, headquartered at San Juan Capistrano. Champ Carr, of which Carrillo is president, brought three cars to the Speedway. The drivers were Posey and John Mahler of Bettendorf, Iowa. One car was a backup for the team.

Posey qualified No. 34 the first day of trials May 22 at an average of 187.921, which turned out to be the slowest of any car qualified.

Mahler was fired from the team after he failed twice to qualify the No. 35 car at a quick enough average.

At the last moment Sunday, Jim McEireath of Arlington, Tex., qualified the No. 35 car fast enough to become the 33rd and last car in the field.

Champ Carr officials then rolled the so-called No. 31 car to the line for a qualification run, but it never had a chance to attempt a time run.

USAC officials later claimed the No. 31 car was in reality the No. 34 car and the team attempted to misrepresent the car "by transferring serial numbers and decals."

Engines of the finely tuned racing cars, which have been silent since Sunday, were expected to roar to life Thursday for final practice before Monday's race.

San Diego slips past Los Angeles 4-3

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Fred Kendall blooped a single into leftfield to score John Grubb from second base with two out in the eighth inning and give the San Diego Padres a 4-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Kendall's hit came off Jim Brewer after the veteran reliever replaced Dodger starter Andy Messersmith, who had walked Grubb and Nate Colbert.

The Padres won on Kendall's second RBI of the game after the Padres scored twice in the bottom of the seventh on homers by Willie Crawford and Bill Russell to tie the game.

San Diego got its first two runs in the fourth when Leron Lee singled in Enzo Hernandez from third base and Lee came home on two wild pitches by Messersmith and Kendall's groundout.

Cubs nip Expos in 10 innings

MONTREAL (UPI)—Ken Rudolph and Don Kessinger in a run in the 10th inning. Wednesday night as the Chicago Cubs defeated the Montreal Expos, 4-2.

Expos' losing pitcher Tom Walker, 2-3, opened the inning by issuing walks to Jim Hickman and Ron Santo. Jose Cardenal bunted to the mound but Walker missed the ball, loading the bases. Rudolph's single to shallow right field pushed Hickman across the plate with the winning run and when Kessinger hit a sacrifice fly to deep center field, Santo scored.

Bill Bonham worked three innings of relief for the Cubs to earn his third win against no losses.

The Astros tied the score with two out in the ninth on a double by Jesus Alou and back-to-back triples by pinch-hitter Tommie Agee and Roger Metzger.

Denis Menke homered in the third inning to give the Reds a 1-0 lead and they added a second run in the fourth inning when Joe Morgan walked, stole second, went to third on a sacrifice and scored on a wild pitch.

DiGregorio balks at signing

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—The National Basketball Association Buffalo Braves cancelled Thursday's scheduled press conference Wednesday because "problems have arisen" in finalizing a contract with their number one draft choice, Ernie DiGregorio.

DiGregorio was scheduled to arrive in Buffalo Wednesday night and it was reported he would sign a multi-year pact with the NBA club Thursday.

A team spokesman, however, said DiGregorio would not be arriving as scheduled and there would be no further comment "until the problems are resolved."

Braves owner Paul Snyder told a Wednesday morning press conference that the team and the six-foot, star from Providence had reached an agreement in principle that DiGregorio had "accepted."

The Braves had originally scheduled a news conference to announce DiGregorio's signing on Tuesday but the little guard was involved in lengthy negotiations with the Colonels of the American Basketball Association.

The Colonels, now coached by former Providence Mentor Jack Mullaney, also drafted DiGregorio number one.

DiGregorio, a standout and leading scorer in the recent U.S.A.-U.S.S.R. series, averaged 24 points and rolled up 287 assists for the Providence Friars last season and led them to the semi-finals of the NCAA tournament last March.

Nicklaus favored to win at Atlanta; Player back

ATLANTA (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus went into today's opening round of the $150,000 Atlanta Golf Classic as the favorite on the simple reasoning that whenever the "Golden Bear" plays, he almost automatically becomes the man to beat.

"Of course Nicklaus doesn't win all the time; that would be asking too much, even for a man of his talent. But he's seldom out of contention. Nicklaus played in only nine of 20 previous tournaments this year and he has already won $146,000—an average of better than $10,000 per tournament.

In those nine outings, he posted three victories (Crosby, New Orleans, and the Tournament of Champions); tied for second in the Hope; tied for third in the Masters and was sixth at Los Angeles and in the Gleson at Inverary.

Today was Nicklaus' first tournament round since winning the Tournament of Champions on April 22.

"I find I play better golf when I space my tournaments out," said Nicklaus in explaining why he has skipped 11 tournaments so far this year.

"I feel that a golfer becomes stale when he plays week after week," he continued. "I play very little golf when I take a layoff. I mainly spend my time taking care of my business interests and fishing."

Nicklaus returned to the tour here this week to start tuning his game for the U.S. Open three weeks hence. Winner of 47 tournaments and more than $1.8 million in 11 years as a professional golfer, Nicklaus wants the U.S. Open to break his tie with the late Bobby

Jones for most "major" titles (13).

Nicklaus has plenty of competition here this week, including South African Gary Player who is making his 1973 U.S. debut after a prolonged layoff forced by an operation.

Player was second here last year, two strokes behind winner Bob Lunn, and third in each of the three previous Atlanta Classics.

Jones eyes offers of many teams

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Richard G. Phillips, a Philadelphia attorney representing former Milwaukee Bucks guard Wali Jones, said Wednesday night his client was "delighted" with his situation and anxious to play for another team.

The Bucks, after suspending Jones last December and then placing him on waivers, announced Tuesday a settlement had been reached and Jones was a free agent.

Phillips said other National Basketball Association teams and several in the American Basketball Association were interested in signing Jones.

"Several managers in the ABA have been in my office in Philadelphia attempting to sign Wali," Phillips said. "My feeling is that we'll head and see where Wali feels most comfortable."

The attorney, who represents a number of other top professional athletes, would not comment on the dispute between the 20-year-old Jones and the Bucks. Jones, a former star with Villanova and the Philadelphia 76ers, was suspended by the Bucks in December.

ACC hits latest NCAA idea

MYRTLE BEACH, S. C. (UPI) — An NCAA proposal that would give small colleges ultimate control over the athletic policies of major universities drew a sharp protest from the Atlantic Coast Conference Wednesday.

Commissioner Bob James said he had been directed by the conference's faculty representatives and athletic directors to protest the proposal at the NCAA's Aug. 6-8 convention in Chicago.

The provision is part of a reorganization of the sanctioning body's member schools, according to scope of athletic program, into three separate divisions.

The nation's athletic powerhouses will be lumped together by the shift. But James said the change would still permit the entire NCAA on a two-thirds vote to override the by-laws of any single division.

The protest came on the final day of the conference's three-day spring meeting during a 50-minute business session, one of the shortest in the 20-year history of the ACC.

Killebrew rallies Twins from 5-1 deficit into 8-6 victory

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Harmon Killebrew drove in three runs with two singles and a double as the Minnesota Twins rallied from a 5-1 deficit to defeat the Kansas City Royals 8-6 Wednesday night.

It was the first three-hit game of the season for Killebrew and the first time he has driven in more than two runs in one game this year.

The Twins, bunting 11 hits, have now won three straight and nine of their last 12 games.

The Royals, who collected 16 hits but left 14 runners on base, had a chance to tie the game in the seventh.

NY nips Tigers in last inning

DETROIT (UPI) — Matty Alou doubled with two out in the ninth inning to score Gene Michael from second Wednesday night and give the New York Yankees a 6-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Nine-game winner Joe Coleman, who has lost three, gave up a single to Michael to open the ninth. Michael was bunted to second by Horace Clarke before Alou smashed his double between Bill Freehan and first base to decide the game.

Error helps A's top Texas

OAKLAND (UPI) — Bill North singled home Rich McKinney from third base in the sixth inning following a costly throwing error by first baseman Bill Sudakis Wednesday night to give the Oakland A's an 8-6 victory over the Texas Rangers.

With the game tied 6-6 entering the sixth, leadoff batter McKinney bounced a single over the third baseman. Dick Green laid down a sacrifice bunt which Sudakis fielded but threw past the second baseman covering first as the runners raced to third and second.

North then lined a single to send home McKinney and Bert Campaneris lifted a sacrifice fly to score Green.

Joe Page sues Sport magazine

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Joe Page, a lefthanded relief pitcher for the New York Yankees from 1944 through 1950, filed a $1.5 million libel suit in federal court here against "Sport" magazine on grounds the publication damaged his reputation with an article that termed him a "drunkard, bawdy and braggart."

Page charged in his suit that he was libeled in a March 1973 issue of the magazine.

According to the complaint, Page said he was portrayed in the article as a man who has been completely unsuccessful since he left the Yankees in 1954.

The complaint quoted an article written by editor Dick Schnap as saying that Page, "now, mostly, he drinks" the complaint cited the quote as defamatory.

Sox rally in 7th to nip Cal

CHICAGO (UPI) — Carlos May's three-run homer capped a four-run seventh inning Wednesday night that gave the Chicago White Sox and reliever Terry Forster a 5-3 victory over the California Angels and Bill Singer.

May, troubled by a muscle strain in his left thigh which has allowed him to serve only as a designated hitter three times since May 12th, homered after consecutive singles by Ken Henderson, Dick Allen and Bill Melton produced one Chicago run. Rick Reichardt forced Melton and both Allen and Reichardt scored on May's fifth homer.

Lineup shift helps Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — Rico Petrocelli's two-run single highlighted a four-run fourth inning and Carl Yastrzemski collected three singles Wednesday night to give the Boston Red Sox a 5-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Manager Eddie Kasko shifted the batting position of eight of the nine men in his lineup in an attempt to end the Boston's season-long habit of stranding runners.

Erskine quits coaching job

ANDERSON, Ind. (UPI) — Carl Erskine, former big league pitching great, announced his retirement Wednesday after 12 years as baseball coach at Anderson College, where his teams won three Hoosier Conference titles.

Erskine, who said he would continue to have an active interest in the college athletic program, spent 12 years with the Dodgers, 10 of them in Brooklyn.

In 1953 he set a World Series single-game strikeout record of 14 that stood for 10 years.

Economist sees chance to eliminate subsidies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. this year has a chance "that should not be missed" to eliminate farm income subsidies and move toward a free-market agricultural system geared for free competition in world markets, a widely-known economist said Wednesday.

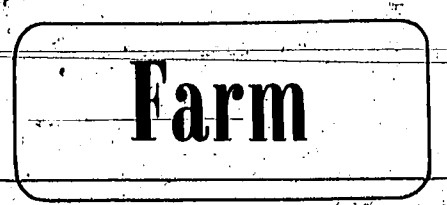

The proposal for major changes in U.S. farm support and trade policies, closely paralleling proposals offered by the administration, was announced by D. Gale Johnson, chairman of the Department of Economics at the University of Chicago.

Johnson's suggestions were detailed in a short book, "Farm Commodity Programs — An Opportunity For Change," published by the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research.

The book was scheduled for introduction at a news conference here today.

Johnson said a chance to reform farm programs has appeared this year because government farm support laws are due for renewal at the same time the U.S. is preparing to being — income subsidy payments would be eliminated. To help government hopes to get more liberal access for U.S. farm products abroad.

Because of this, Johnson said, there is a chance "to make changes that will benefit consumers and taxpayers and will have only limited adverse consequences to farm operators and hired farm workers. Most of the adverse consequences can be fairly fully compensated as part of a transition program."

"This opportunity should not be missed. There is not likely to be another equally propitious time during the present decade," Johnson said.

farmers adjust, they would be given temporary "transition" payments for about three years amounting to about $4.2 billion for wheat and feed grain producers and $2.4 billion for cotton farmers.

Temporary payments could also be made to dairy farmers who would lose part of their market because of increased imports. — A "standby" acreage retirement program would be set up allowing the government to pay farmers to retire acreage in years when "unusual conditions" have produced surplus stocks.

— Crop price support loans would be continued, but would be set below expected market levels.

— All import quotas and export subsidies on farm products should be repealed. And the president should be given power to negotiate reductions in barriers to agricultural trade. Johnson said that if these steps help persuade other countries to drop their own barriers, net U.S. farm exports could be boosted by $4 billion to $8 billion above levels possible under current conditions.

The Chicago economist said current farm programs are built around the same basic theory which has been used for farm aid since 1933 — an agreement that the government must adjust farm supply to keep prices at "acceptable" levels or, as an alternative, must make direct payments to farmers to maintain their income.

But the programs now "impose substantially greater costs on taxpayers and consumers than the benefits realized by farm families," Johnson said.

Giant Jerome spud cellar under construction

Simplot building cellar

JEROME — J. R. Simplot Co. has started construction of a huge potato storage cellar east of Jerome.

When completed, the facility will have a capacity of 500,000 hundredweight.

P. K. Harwood, spokesman for the company, said the building is scheduled for completion in August. It will be used for store potatoes from the 1973 crop for use at the company's processing plant, including one in the Heyburn area.

A request for rezoning of the 10.1 acre site a quarter mile south of the junction of Idaho Highway 25 and U. S. 93 has been filed with the Jerome County Planning and Zoning Commission.

Presented by William Seller, company representative, the request seeks zoning from Agricultural Zone A to Commercial Zone D. The commission approved the change subject to filing of a petition and legal description.

Seller told the commission a second storage cellar is contemplated for the site.

The structure will be of concrete and is similar to another cellar built by Simplot-near-Heyburn in 1972. Measuring 251 feet by 348 feet it will be 21 feet high and contain four compartments, each with a capacity of 125,000 hundredweight.

Harwood said temperature, air and humidity in the cellar will be held constant, permitting storage of potatoes for up to a year.

Butz drafts farm plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After months of issuing new farm policy proposals only in general terms, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has finally put his plans into detailed legislative drafts, according to government and Congressional spokesmen.

But officials said Butz's plan to phase out income supplement payments for major crops and to make other changes in current law — including elimination of floors under wool and milk supports — probably will not go to Congress in a single one-package bill.

Instead, Rep. Charles M. Pongue, R-Cal., predicted, the Butz proposals probably will be broken into segments affecting individual commodities and sent to House agriculture subcommittees, which next week will begin drafting separate sections of a new omnibus farm bill.

In the Senate, where the agriculture committee already has rejected Butz plan may be offered by sympathetic senators as substitutes when the issue reaches the Senate floor soon. One official said strategists currently are leaning against offering the complete Butz package for a single Senate vote.

The House Agriculture Committee's leaders, while promising to give "full consideration" to the Butz proposal, acted Tuesday to begin drafting their farm bill by using the Senate Agriculture Committee's new "target price" plan as a starting point.

That plan calls for setting fixed target prices for grains and cotton in each of the five years beginning in 1974. If market prices fell below the target, the government would make up the difference with payments to growers.

Administration officials have charged the plan could push costs to an average of $5.2 billion annually over the five years. House supporters of the idea said costs would be low if markets are strong, but conceded some compromises may be needed.

Under the Butz drafts, Congressional sources said the income supplement portion of current farm payments would be eliminated immediately for feed grains and in stages ending in 1977 for wheat and cotton.

Administration officials have said that while most of the payments now made to feed

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MAY 25, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Very confusing and difficult influences are in effect today and tonight, and you would certainly be wise to avoid getting a chip-on-the-shoulder attitude that most everyone is likely to be expressing now. Instead show you have understanding and compassion for whomever you meet who needs your help.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't think that others are imposing on you when it is only the conditions around you that are limiting. Lend a helping hand to those who have less than you. Talk some plan over with a prominent person you know.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't try to force a good friend to see things as you do, but give a chance to express self in own fashion. Avoid that party that could be a real bore. Do what pleases you the most in evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make the corrections that are necessary where career is concerned. Make sure you observe every law and regulation that applies to you. Being careful with your accounts improves your credit.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You think you have good ideas, but some phase of them could be very bad and you could lose a great deal by putting them in operation hastily. Stick to the tried and true. Steer clear of a troublemaker.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Use your best judgment instead of relying on intuition which is apt to be somewhat off now. Show more generosity with mate. Reach a far better understanding for the future.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Listen to that associate who is rather critical since it could be constructive criticism. That outside matter should be avoided as you do not understand all the facts. Do some studying tonight that is helpful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Now that you know exactly what your duties are, handle them in an even more correct fashion than you had thought possible. Give more attention to your diet. Avoid activities that may be injurious to your health.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You want to have pleasure but make certain you do not go beyond the norm and regret it later on. Make sure you get that hobby perfected. Save time for one who has a good plan to talk over with you. Advance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Postpone that talk with kin, or you could get into a big argument now. Know what the bone of contention is and quietly remove it. Evening is fine for light entertainment at home. Make it a musical evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have much shopping to do as well as appointments to keep today, so be sure you do not lose your pulse. Refer to changes in your hurry. Show you are an ingenious person. Don't be talkative.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Your monetary matters may be in a rather precarious position, so do something constructive about it now. Improve your property in some way and make it more attractive, valuable. Do something kind for a friend tonight.

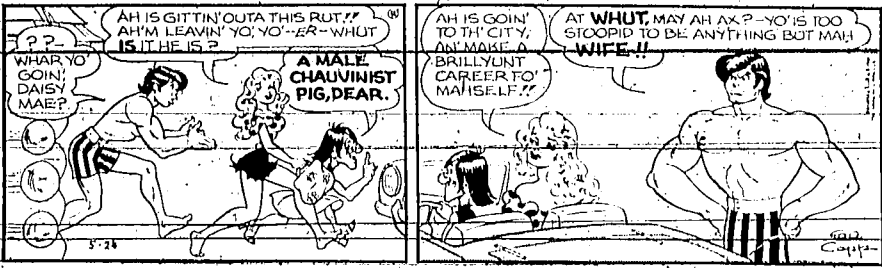

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study yourself well and see where you can make improvements, especially dietwise and healthwise. Accept invitations to group affairs and be sure you do not speak out of turn because of the confusion of conversations.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one of those delightful young people with a definite flair for the artistic, but should be taught early to strive for perfection instead of being happy with what is once done. Teach also awareness of modern trends so as to keep abreast or ahead of others. Much need for the right philosophy of life here. The field of religion could be very good. This child will need careful handling early, since the nature is highly sensitive.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

If you're going to propose matrimony, young fellow, just come right out with it, bang. Don't stammer, pause, or go errr. Such is today's advice from our Love and War man who says too many nervous-fellows flounder in this romantic moment. Their girlfriends finally are forced to do the proposing themselves. This is bad. Leave both the man and the woman oddly irked. Later, they wonder about it. Should I have? Would I have? Bad.

Those surveytakers also say that men are more regular newspaper readers than women. Just 81 per cent against 79 per cent. Death by electrocution for many years in this country was simply known as "electric sleep," reports our Language man. Young lady, your hair will tangle less, if you shampoo it in the shower rather than in the sink, remember that.

SOYBEAN SAUSAGE

Those Floridians now are eating soybean sausage. And liking it, reportedly. That's the current-est market. Florida, for said meat substitute. If it sells sufficiently, the makers intend to merchandise it nationwide. Point is one acre of land can only turn out about 80 pounds of meat in an animal, but it can produce maybe 500 pounds of the lardy make-believe.

Q "What's the bravest bird in the world?"
A: The great horned owl, some say. That's what you and I used to call a hoot owl. Still a matter of debate, however. The swan, cassowary and fighting cock must be candidates for this distinction, too, no?

COMMUNE

Tawanku partners, that's what they call themselves. Two married couples. Eating together, sleeping together, working together. This sort of family foursome is to be seen among the Quilla Indians of South America. The offspring, whatever their paternity, are legitimized. They with their two sets of parents become, in effect, a labor commune, splitting up the field work. They may not all live in the same hut. But they hang in there pretty close, daily and nightly. The sociology scholars characterize this particular extramarital routine among those natives as "unusually successful."

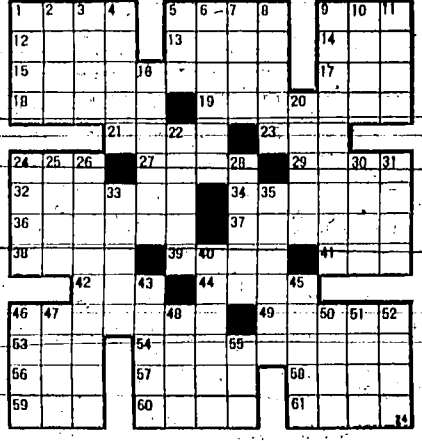

It's still widely believed that a lot of mothers on welfare have children on purpose to fatten up their relief checks. That's wrong, though. Latest study indicates 89 out of 100 didn't want the last child.

Our word "lady" comes from an Anglo Saxon word meaning "bread of bread."

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices edged ahead cautiously in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange Thursday.

Investor optimism ebbed in the face of mixed news developments, but reduced price levels made some issues attractive buys.

Shortly before noon, the Dow Jones industrial average had gained 3.09 to 808.11. Advances led declines, 645 to 473, of 1,527 stocks traded.

Two hour volume hit about 6,200,000 shares, compared to about 6,800,000 shares traded by noon Wednesday.

The Commerce Department reported the United States had its first trade surplus in 19 months this April, amounting to $190.3 million, compared to a deficit of $57.6 million in March.

New news of the surplus gave the sagging dollar a big boost in European currency markets.

But the announcements by many leading banks of a 1/4 point boost to 7 1/2 per cent in the prime lending rate was taken by Wall Street analysts as a bearish development. They said the "cost of doing business" would thereby go up.

Morton-Norwich was the most active, and lost 1/4 to 1 3/4 on 119,700 shares, including a 112,900 share block at 14 3/4.

Constal States Gas Producing Co. was second, off 1/2 at 12 1/2, on 99,400 shares, and Thokol Chemical Corp. was third, losing 1/2 to 12 1/4, on 55,000 shares.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange picked up ground on light trading. Tending the netives, TWA warrants were 1/2 higher at 11 1/2, on 24,100 traded.

Kaiser-Industries was second, off 1/4 at 4 1/4, on 20,200 shares. Bowmar Instruments followed, unchanged at 27 1/2, on 19,400 shares.

Gold mining stocks were hit by profit-taking. Dome Mines lost 2 1/4, ASA Ltd 2 1/2 and Campbell Red Lake 2.

Haecner-Waldorf lost 1/2 on the company reported net earnings for the first half ended on April 30 came to $1.71 a share, against $1.06 a share the same time last year.

Glamors were mixed. Avon Products jumped 3 1/2, and Polaroid 1 1/2, while ARA Services lost 1 1/2, and Corning-Glass 1.

Electronics and computers moved to higher ground, led by IBM up 2 1/4, Texas Instruments 1 1/4, and Sperry Rand 1 1/4.

Natoms rose 1 1/4; Phillips Petroleum 1 1/4, and Atlantic Richfield 1, among higher oils. Delta Airlines rose 1, leading the airlines higher.

Idaho firm increases fund plans

BOISE (UPI) — The Boise Cascade Corp. capital program for 1973 will be expanded from the previously announced $75 million to $115 million, the corporation president announced Tuesday.

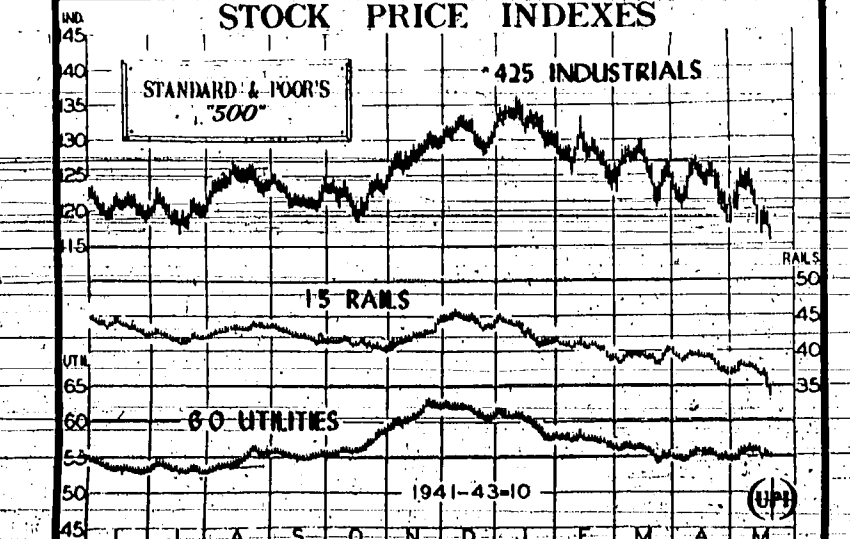

According to President John Fery the entire program will be funded from cash resources within the company and will not require the assumption of new debt.

He said the increase in this year's capital program will enable the company to take advantage of a number of investment opportunities offering excellent returns.

Mine talks stalled

SPOKANE (UPI) — Negotiations to reach a settlement in the 10-week-old Sunshine Mine strike have once again become deadlocked with no indication of either side budging.

Federal Mediator Henry Nichols said Tuesday he had been in touch with representatives of both the Sunshine Mine Co. and the United Steelworkers Union and neither indicated a desire to meet or change their positions.

Striking miners Saturday rejected a three-year contract proposal by a 92-03 vote. The miners had rejected an earlier contract proposal, sparking the March 11 walkout.

Nichols said he would remain in contact with both sides, but could see little chance of altering the situation at this time until "either party has indicated to us the desire to modify its position in some manner that would be beneficial to contract negotiations."

Company and union representatives met under the direction of Nichols earlier this month for several days drafting the latest contract proposal.

Hourly wages and cost of living benefits had been modified over the earlier company proposal rejected in March, but union officials said it was still not enough.

The Sunshine Mine near Kellogg, Idaho, had been open only about three months when the strike idled operations at the nation's largest and richest silver mine.

Prior to that time, the mine had been closed as a result of the May 2, 1972 fire which left 91 men dead.

Search hampered

LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI) — Authorities reported Tuesday the month-old search for Edward Williams, 44, was being hampered by high water on the Snake River, preventing search boats from combing the rugged banks for any signs of a body.

Williams, a former Idaho legislative leader, has been missing since April 23 when the boat he was aboard capsized and sank in the river about 50 miles south of here. He is feared drowned.

Williams' cousin, Jack Bowman, 44, was also missing in the river, but searchers recovered his body May 12. Six other aboard the boat reached safety at the time of the capsizing.

Nezperce County Sheriff's deputies said Tuesday the high water on the Snake has resulted in a great deal of driftwood and other debris floating downstream which could cause damage if it were to strike a boat.

Deputies said the floating debris has also caused several false alarms as searchers thought it to be Williams' body.

Authorities said they would continue the search until some trace of Williams is found or his body recovered from the swift Snake River.

They said they are centering their search downstream of Lewiston under the assumption that Williams' body was caught up on the bank but later was freed and floated downstream.

Americans sentenced

SEOUL, Korea (UPI) — A Seoul appeals court sentenced three Americans, two soldiers and a civilian, 15 1/2 years in prison each today on charges stemming from the $20 robbery and murder of a Korean cab driver.

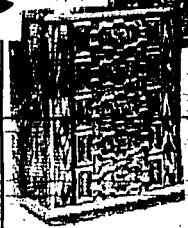

The three were Spac. 4 Robert E. Brockan, 23, of Meridian, Idaho, Sgt. Paul E. Zanecke, 25, of El Cajon, Calif., and Alexander J. Janicki Jr., whose home town was not disclosed.

The three men allegedly murdered a cab driver Chung JunKu, 29, robbed him and fled in the car in Tongducheon, 30 miles north of Seoul, on Aug. 4, 1971.
