'Repairmen' catch Skylab

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The world's first astro-repairmen, promising "we fix anything," gunned their Apollo command ship in pursuit of the crippled Skylab today in a daring attempt to salvage the space station and make it liveable for nine men this year.

A brief burst from the spaceship's main engine two and one-half hours after launch switched the astronauts out of their initial orbit into a higher path to start the long rendezvous sequence.

"We're in very good shape," mission commander Charles "Pete" Conrad told mission control after confirming that the first chase maneuver went well. The astronauts then ate a brief lunch.

Conrad, space physician Joseph P. Kerwin and aeronautical engineer Paul J. Weitz were launched on time at 7 a.m. MDT and raced smoothly into orbit 10 minutes later.

The three astronauts-turned-repairmen quickly settled down their modified Apollo command ship and calculated the precise course changes required to rendezvous with the sun-scorched space lab at 2:37 p.m.

"The doctor did a magnificent job," Conrad said at one point, referring to navigation star sightings performed by Kerwin.

The astronauts worked with their three emergency sunshades to cool the overheated, eight-room Skylab and tools to try to clear debris from the station's golden skin. They also will attempt to pry open a jammed wing-like panel that converts sunlight into electricity.

Riding on their efforts was the fate of the $2.6 billion research program to put space to practical use for man on Earth.

One of the purposes of Skylab is to see how well man adapts to the lack of gravity in space for long periods. After one orbit, Conrad said, "Everyone up here is enjoying Zero G super."

Looking out the Apollo's windows, Conrad said he could see ahead of them the spent Saturn rocket stage that propelled them into orbit, "and it really makes a big plume when it vents."

"Skylab 11, Houston, we fix anything," cracked Conrad as the big rocket blasted away from Florida.

"Boy, is that a smooth ride," Conrad shouted as the rocket climbed out of sight into the clouds, its eight engines pushing it toward orbit and man's first space repair mission.

Skylab, damaged by a launch accident 11 days ago, was 750 miles to the northeast when the astronauts took off in pursuit in a modified Apollo command ship. The roomy house-in-space was 271 miles high and on its 145th orbit at the time.

The unprecedented repair operations will start tonight and the pilots will enter Skylab Saturday morning.

Dollar makes gains

LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. dollar strengthened on the European money markets today and gold prices dropped, reflecting renewed confidence in the American currency following the Washington announcement of the first foreign trade surplus in 19 months.

That announcement also brought a spectacular gain on the New York stock exchange Thursday, and the Dow-Jones industrial averages soared 29.42 points, the biggest gain in 21 months.

The dollar opened preholiday trading in London more than half a cent stronger against the British pound. In opening trading today it took $2.5365 to $2.5385 to buy a pound, compared with $2.546 at Thursday's close.

Gold, which closed unchanged Thursday at $109.75 an ounce, was quoted between $107 and $110 in initial trading today, with a median price of about $108.50.

At the morning fixing gold had plunged $5 an ounce to stand at $104.75.

Dealers described the market as "pretty active with turnover reasonable," largely in response to new proposals on gold put to an International Monetary Fund (IMF) committee in Washington this week.

Woman rescued

TWIN FALLS — A 23-year old Twin Falls man, apprehended by two concerned citizens Thursday night, has been charged with assault with intent to commit rape.

Twin Falls detective Captain Tim Qualls said a complaint has been signed against Daniel Ferguson, 23, Twin Falls, after he allegedly attacked an 18-year old Twin Falls woman as she got into her automobile on a parking lot in the 500 block of Main Avenue West at about 11:35 p.m. Thursday.

Qualls said two young men who live in a nearby apartment heard the woman scream and came to her assistance, pursuing and apprehending the suspect. When police, called by other residents of the area, arrived they found Ferguson in custody.

Qualls said the two young men, Day Christenson and Mark Warren, are to be commended for their assistance and willingness to get involved in someone else's problem.

Ferguson was scheduled for arraignment in Magistrate Court later today. Officers said the young victim was not injured.

Feast marks OAU anniversary
ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — Emperor Haile Selassie, flanked by kings and princes, presidents and prime ministers, presided from a canopied head table Thursday while liveried waiters served an eight-course meal to 1,500 guests.

Girls in grass skirts danced to bongo drums on the dais in front of guests, who ate off golden plates with gold knives and forks and seasoned their food from gold salt and pepper shakers.

The occasion was a dinner marking the 10th anniversary of the founding of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) and the scene was the imperial palace of the 80-year-old "Lion of Judah" and Emperor of Ethiopia.

Gem Youth Ranch heads quit jobs

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

RUPERT — In moves "not necessarily" related, Lee Childs and Dwayne Peterson will be replaced in their positions at the Idaho Youth Ranch, Rupert.

The executive committee of the Youth Ranch released a statement Thursday announcing the "resignation" of Childs as executive director of the ranch and the "replacement" of Peterson, ranch director.

There was "a mutual agreement that I be replaced," Peterson said today.

Peterson said there were "certain stipulations I requested the board support in the (Youth Ranch) program which the board declined to support."

"They made the decision to replace me," he said.

Childs, who has worked at the ranch the past five years said Thursday he quit because he was "tired." He said, "I wanted to have more time with my family."

Peterson said Childs' resignation came "for about the same reason." He had made the same recommendations, Peterson said.

The Idaho Youth Ranch is a private charitable home for troubled boys northeast of Rupert.

During the past month the attorney general's office has been investigating the ranch due to child abuse charges, Peterson said.

Some of the staff had been using the paddle for disciplinary action and slapping on occasion, Peterson said.

The results of the investigation have not been received, Peterson said, and the investigation "had no bearing on Mr. Childs or my being released."

Peterson's job will be taken over by William Mitchell as of June 1. Peterson plans to continue as a social worker in southern Idaho, he said.

Childs said he and Peterson had worked closely together on Youth Ranch programs but the two moves were "not necessarily connected."

Childs said his major emphasis at the Youth Ranch had been intensive counseling and schooling. He tried to have a home type program, he said, rather than an institutionalized program.

Clyde Greenwell, director of the board, said Thursday "Mr. Childs has added development of the Ranch over the past five years. We owe a debt of gratitude to him for his contribution."

Thursday's statement said Mrs. Jilene Cole was appointed office manager for the Youth Ranch.

Summer fire danger high
SPOKANE (UPI) — The U.S. Forest Service said Thursday parts of the northwest may have a bad fire season this summer, unless they receive adequate rain during July and August.

Snowpacks in the northwest are lower than normal, reducing the amount of moisture in forests.

Israeli president sworn in JERUSALEM (UPI) — Russian-born Ephraim Katsir assumed office Thursday as the fourth president of Israel and told his countrymen the time is not yet ripe for the country to turn its swords into plowshares.

"As long as peace has not arrived," Katsir said, "we shall be forced to act as in the days of Nehemiah — the sword in one hand, the plowshare in the other."

Michigan arrest irks Indians
BAY MILLS, Mich. (UPI) — A dispute over a century-old Indian treaty Thursday brought 100 armed and angry Indians out for a show of force reminiscent of the occupation of Wounded Knee, S.D.

Chippewa spokesman Albert Leblanc said a meeting was expected later today to work out a solution to the problem, which flared up Wednesday when state police arrested two young Chippewas for fishing without a license.

The tribe has long been involved in a dispute with the state over its claim to unlimited hunting and fishing rights, which is based on a 19th century treaty with the federal government.

Ohio college opening delayed
YELLOW SPRING, Ohio (UPI) — Antioch College administrators today temporarily postponed an attempt to reopen campus buildings, shut down since April 20 by a student strike.

Marge Freed, director of public information for the college, said today's attempt was postponed because the administrators had to appear in court to testify at a hearing on a request by non-striking students to resume classes.

Rupert girl 'critical'

RUPERT — A 2-year-old Rupert girl was in critical condition at Mt. Hood Memorial today after she was struck by a car.

Jana Hanks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Hanks, ran from behind two parked cars into the path of a car driven by Sharon Blackman, 37, Rupert, about 12:30 p.m. Thursday two miles north of Rupert on Meridian Road.

According to Deputy Sheriff Bob Navarez, the driver tried to stop, but her car slid into the child. Investigation is continuing.

TF youth, 11, arrested after sales lot crash

TWIN FALLS — An 11-year-old Twin Falls youth was arrested for drunk driving and failed Thursday after a six-vehicle mishap on a sales lot.

City police today said there could be no driver's license suspension for the youth who is years away from being of driving age.

The unidentified youth was held in jail today pending further action under the Youth Rehabilitation Act.

Officers said the boy found a pickup truck with keys in it on the Magic Valley International sales lot at about 9:30 p.m. He decided to take a drive.

One problem was that he was too short to see out and reach the brake at the same time.

In attempting to drive off the lot he collided with four other vehicles, pushing one of them into a fifth, officers reported.

When booked at the police station, the young suspect was too short to reach the window counter of the booking area, officers said.

Narrow probe, Talmadge asks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., has urged fellow members of the Senate Watergate committee to narrow the focus of the hearing directly on the question of whether President Nixon was involved, an aide to Talmadge said today.

Talmadge made the proposal during a closed session of the committee Thursday morning preceding the fifth day of public, televised hearings, his assistant said. Talmadge was not available for immediate, direct comment.

(Related stories, p. 8)

The committee did not adopt the Talmadge proposal at the meeting, the Talmadge spokesman said, but did agree to one of his suggestions — that the pace of the hearings be accelerated where possible. It was announced at the outset of Thursday's public session that three more hearing days had been added June 5, 6 and 7.

A spokesman for Chairman Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., said Ervin disagreed with a Talmadge suggestion to reorder the planned schedule for hearing witnesses in order to concentrate on trying to resolve any questions about presidential involvement.

Ervin was said to feel a record should be developed gradually, first through testimony of lesser figures.

Talmadge has stressed in public statements that he knows nothing to indicate Nixon had anything to do with the Watergate plot.

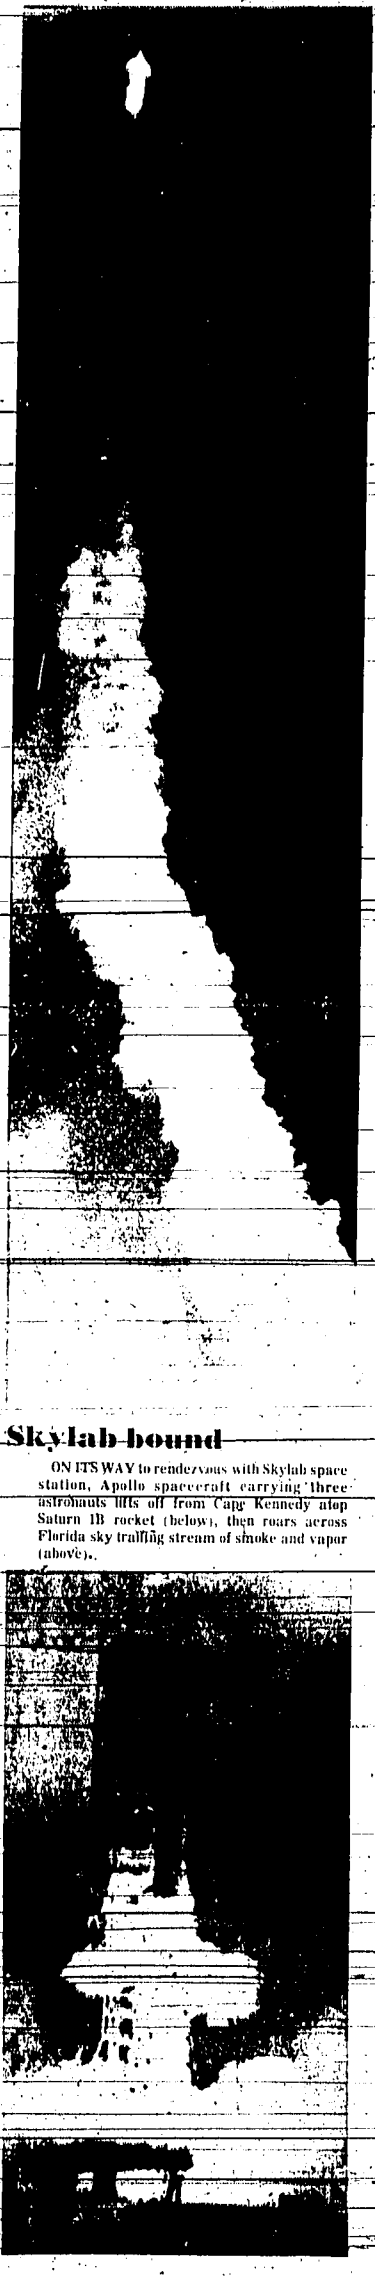

But the Talmadge aide, who asked not to be identified, said the senator was concerned over the danger of leaving an essential question unanswered.

Syndicated columnist Joseph Alsop first reported Talmadge's feelings, quoting the senator about the Senate investigation so far.

"You can't tell how long this thing is going to go on, any more than you can tell how long it will take to unroll a ball of string. But one thing, any damn fool can tell, it will be bad for the country — in fact, it can be really dangerous for the country — to go on much longer without knowing the truth about the President."

Talmadge's suggestion for calling other scheduled, top-name witnesses sooner than planned came as it was disclosed that a former Nixon aide, Jeb S. Magruder, had agreed to plead guilty as a member of the "criminal conspiracy" in the Watergate and to testify for the prosecution.

U.S. District Court sources said today Magruder was the person referred to Thursday by U.S. Attorney Harold Titus Jr. when he said an unnamed "key member" of the Watergate plot had agreed to testify without immunity. Titus said now indictments are expected to be handed down to the case.

London sex scandal services set causes 2 to 'quit'

LONDON (UPI) — A member of Parliament called on Prime Minister Edward Heath today to deal immediately with "alarming" speculation arising from the resignations of two of his ministers that other high ranking persons including nobility are involved.

Scotland Yard said it is intensifying its investigation into the sex scandal that shook the Heath Government and led to the resignation of Lord Lambton, 50, undersecretary for the Royal Air Force, and Earl Jellicoe, 55, leader of the House of Lords and the Lord Privy Seal — a sinecure job that carries high cabinet rank.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said "the investigation is continuing — in fact, it is being intensified."

Rumors of further ramifications in the biggest British sex scandal in a decade swept Parliament and the British press and the name of at least one duke was being whispered as involved. James Wellbeloved, a Labor party member of Parliament, took note of that today and told newsmen:

"Alarming speculation about call girls is still rife in Whitehall" (the London government district).

"This is extremely grave and it must be dealt with immediately by Mr. Heath. If he does not act, even by issuing a holding statement of some sort, I will raise the matter again in Parliament."

He said he is "alarmed" that despite Heath's statement to Parliament Thursday that no other ministers are involved in the scandal, "there is still speculation of a serious nature."

"We must obviously wait for the police inquiry to be completed and for the Security Commission to report," Wellbeloved said. "But it is essential that the prime minister should speed the process, because this must now be his first priority."

Government sources said a security probe also will begin next week by the Security Commission, a high level body of senior civil servants and judges headed by Lord Diplock, a high court justice.

The Commission's hearings will be held in private, officials said.

Government sources said Heath has told aides it would be intolerable that he should start a "witch hunt" into the private lives of members of Parliament.

Heath flew to Edinburgh this morning to address the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland.

Leonov to lead '75 joint flight

MOSCOW (UPI) — The first man to walk in space, Col. Alexei A. Leonov, will lead the two-man Soviet crew in the 1975 joint American-Soviet space flight.

The news agency Tass said Thursday that Leonov and pilot-cosmonaut Valery N. Kubasov, both 38, will form the prime Soviet crew for the experiment. It also named six backup cosmonauts, four of them space rookies.

The three U.S. crewmen for the flight were announced in January and include Donald K. Slayton, the U.S. astronaut chief and the only one of the original seven astronauts who has never flown in space. Thomas Stafford, a veteran of four space flights, and Vance D. Brand, a civilian astronaut who is a space rookie.

Leonov became the first man to leave a spaceship and float freely in the vacuum of space.

It was during the March, 1965, flight of Voskhod 2 and millions of television viewers saw him "swimming" in space for 20 minutes at the end of a 16-foot cable.

Kubasov's only space venture was as flight engineer aboard the October, 1969, orbital journey of Soyuz 6.

The two-man Soviet crew of the flight will, if plans go according to schedule, blast off first with a three-man Apollo launch possibly up to five days later. The spaceships will link for as long as 10 hours, depending upon the timing of the launches.

The prime Soviet backup crew include space veterans Col. Anatoly Filipchenko, 45, who took part in a group flight of three spaceships as commander of Soyuz 7 in October, 1969, and Nikolai N. Rukavishnikov, 41, the test engineer aboard Soyuz 10 in April, 1971.

Progress reported

SHOSHONE — A progress report on development of the Sawtooth National Recreational area was given at the Northside Communities meeting Thursday night.

Frank Rowland, Hatley, forest ranger, and member of the National Recreational area staff, showed films and have the history of the area.

He said the salmon and trout plantings have been increased in streams and about 400 miles of trails improved through the primitive area. He also discussed regulations pertaining to campgrounds, mines, sheep and cattle use.

The speaker and his wife were introduced by Mark Koll, Wendell, program chairman. Claude E. Bowman, Rupert, president, said the group will not meet again until September.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry Costello were introduced as representatives from Dietrich. Community reports were given by delegates from Wendell, Gobling, Jerome, Rupert, Dietrich and Shoshone.

Farewell party held

TWIN FALLS — The Mary Davis Art Club held a farewell party for Mrs. Alma Requa Wednesday with a meeting at the home of Mrs. Elgin Wilson.

Mrs. Requa, a long time member, will be making her home in Boise with a daughter. Clara Walton gave a lesson in watercolor media in painting density and highlights of tree foliage.

Mrs. Myrtle Anderson demonstrated on painting on weathered wood. The June meeting will be at the Clara Walton home.

Campgrounds open for long weekend

TWIN FALLS — Camping in nearly all regions of the Sawtooth National Forest and Sawtooth National Recreation area will be available for the coming holiday weekend.

A campground report issued today by the Sawtooth Forest here shows only two campgrounds are still closed in the Redfish Lake area. These are Heyburn and Point campgrounds.

In the Alturus Lake area, campgrounds remain closed to mid June because of improvement work being done there. All campgrounds along the Salmon River toward Challis are open and water is on. Campgrounds along State Highway 21 are open but water is not yet on. The three campgrounds at Stanley Lake are open. The road up Bear Valley is closed and the Cape Horn road is still closed. The road up Yankee Fork is open to Jordan Creek. Other side roads off U.S. Highway 93 are open for short distances only and campers are urged to use caution. Forest officials say snow is melted generally from the 7,000 foot elevation down.

In the Ketchum area the road is open up Warm Springs to Castle Creek only. Traffic is moving over Trail Creek Summit although it is muddy and narrow at the summit. Caution is urged.

Fishing is listed as good although the Salmon River is still muddy.

In the Fairfield area the road up Dollarhide is open as far as Carey Creek. All campgrounds in the Fairfield area are open although Pioneer has no water. On the Boise River south fork, the water is muddy and at a peak flow.

Some of Twin Falls' all campgrounds are open but water is not turned on. The road is open as far as Porcupine Springs Campground and the road from Rock Creek to Rogerson is now open. Goose Creek road is closed. The City of Rocks is accessible either from Almo or Oakley but no campgrounds south of Burley are open. They are open in the Malta area.

Woman's death said accidental

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — A coroner's jury says Canyon County Treasurer Zoe A. Shaffer, 46, died accidentally and her husband committed suicide April 25.

After deliberating for six hours the jury also said Thursday night that both deaths were caused by carbon monoxide poisoning. The couple were found dead in separate bedrooms of their home.

While the jury said Mrs. Shaffer's death was not caused by any criminal means of another person "but was accidental" it had more difficulty with the verdict in the death of Gerald J. Shaffer, 53.

An addendum to the verdict on his death said, "The jurors' hesitancy in reaching a verdict as to the death of Gerald Shaffer is caused by inconclusive evidence.

"The residence was not sufficiently secured to preserve evidence. Investigating procedures were not as immediate nor as extensive as they could have been.

"In spite of this, however, there is some evidence to indicate that Gerald Shaffer did commit those acts which resulted in his death."

Bomb explosions kill 2

BELFAST (UPI) — Bomb explosions in three Northern Irish towns killed two soldiers Thursday, wounded three other persons and destroyed an employment office. Bomb scares also emptied parts of downtown Belfast.

Army sources warned today that the Irish Republican Army (IRA) may launch its fiercest attacks in nearly four years of violence this weekend.

The sources said they feared the bomb blast Thursday that killed two soldiers at Cullaville near the border with the Irish Republic, may signal more attacks by the IRA, which said it was responsible for the Cullaville explosion.

"Our intelligence reports suggest the Provisional (wing of the) IRA in the coming weekend will prepare to throw everything at the security forces in an attempt to wreck the local government elections May 30," an army spokesman said.

So far, bombings and shootings involving Roman Catholics, Protestants and security forces have killed 804 persons, 186 of them regular troops.

The two victims Thursday died when they entered a booby-trapped house in Cullaville. The army identified them as Warrant Officer Ian Donald, 35, and Sgt. John Ferguson Wallace, 32.

Six soldiers have died in the past seven days, four of them killed when a booby-trapped car exploded in a hotel car park last Friday. During the same period, eight civilians have died.

Oil Power

Oil has long been a favorite commodity of power brokers, commercial as well as political.

It is the political aspects of oil which are likely to bring the most dramatic developments in the near future.

The Arab world and several Latin governments among the oil-producing states are aware of the political leverage at their command and are exerting it increasingly.

It will be difficult for oil consumers to counter these measures unless they can tap new sources of crude petroleum.

Interesting because of their political implications are two other potential sources of oil - Russia and China.

Russia has approached the United States for assistance in developing its Siberian fields, but while the U.S. considers what move to make Japan has signed up with the Soviet Union to invest about four billion rubles in Siberian oil development.

American oil men are negotiating with Peking about a joint effort to develop offshore reserves located off the East and Southeast coasts of China.

American interest in the Chinese project extends back at least to 1968, when preliminary surveys were made by the American oceanographic ship Hunt.

Brezhnev's Trip

Upcoming Washington visit of the Soviet Union's top official by itself is evidence of changing world conditions.

Brezhnev has not visited the United States previously. If this were primarily a social visit to return the President's visit to Moscow last year, it could be expected that the Soviet leader would spend more time sightseeing than his itinerary now calls for.

No specific agenda for the June 10 visit has been announced, but the two world leaders will have little difficulty finding important topics of discussion: The Middle East, European troop reduction, nuclear arms control, Soviet grain purchases and other trade matters and unsettled conditions in Asia all are topics of interest to both nations.

Soviet reticence of the past appears to be lifting under the impetus of its increasingly influential neighbor to the East and its internal agricultural and industrial problems.

Remember - it's Sunday on "Page 5."

TO THE ROAD

We've said it before, but we'll say it once more.

June 1 is traditionally the date that ushers in the summer tourist season although there are some 21 days left before summer officially gets here.

beating between now and fall. And if some of the national parks get through this summer intact, it may be because they called out the National Guard.

No one doubts that new records for numbers of persons accommodated will be set by all major tourist areas, and that facilities will be inadequate.

Entire areas of the country are dependent on tourism, winter and summer, to achieve a prosperous economy.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE:

The computer is a great invention. There are just as many mistakes as ever but they are nobody's fault.

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Three reports that President Nixon confounded John B. Connally by formally announcing his "informal" role as part-time adviser.

with the President some days ago at Key Biscayne. It is said to have been the understanding that he had agreed to serve him not only unofficially but also inconspicuously.

He is reported to have promised Mr. Nixon to be in Washington often enough, and long enough at a time, to be "physically available" for quiet, private consultation.

The nearest parallel was the way lawyers Abe Fortas, Clark Clifford and James H. Rowe served the late President Lyndon Johnson in the early days of his White House tenure.

excoriated the President for "moral blindness and arrogance" in bringing the big Texan into the fold in the thick of the Watergate mess.

Reform To Death

WASHINGTON - No wonder that famous former Democrat, John Connally, thinks he has a chance to be elected President as a Republican in 1976.

The reformers predictably include such leaders of the New Politics as Bella Abzug, assorted other women's libbers, gay activists and a smattering of amateur Boss Tweedes from the minorities.

George McGovern, who should know, has backed away from the so-called reform movement. As he told the Gridiron Club, "I opened the door to the Democratic Party and half the members walked out."

in off-the-cuff conversations with newsmen, Monagan is pleading for what he calls "a meaningful effort to make our former constituents, welcome in our party and have a personal stake in its success."

"There was plenty of discussion before and during the 1972 convention," Monagan wrote the Washington Post, but the result was that massive blocs of voters "felt they were no longer represented by the party structure and candidates presented to them in Miami and thereafter."

Fraser is clinging to "reform" for what he has called the "mind-stretching" experience it gives to previously underrepresented minorities.

Any nonpartisan, objective observer would advise the Democrats to go along with Bob Strauss, the new National Committee chairman.

RAY CROMLEY

Decisions

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Friends working on high policy papers on critical domestic defense and foreign economic problems tell me they are having an almost impossible time getting even simple decisions on anything which must be resolved at the White House.

When actions are finally taken, my informants say, they are often safe compromises. The President's message on energy, obviously one of this year's most crucial problems, was one such compromise.

The White House speech writers were forced to waffle - send up what White House associates privately call a weak and insufficient message to Capitol Hill.

The ousting or shifting of top officials within the White House and the Cabinet and the agencies have put men into these positions who, however able, must now take some time

Having this understanding of what he would be doing, Connally saw no need to detach himself from his law firm or from the several corporate boards on which he was serving.

The White House announcement changed all that, even though Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler made it clear the former Treasury secretary would serve without pay and have no "operational responsibilities."

Nevertheless, a storm broke over the conflict of interest issue. Critics rose to the attack. The nation's Republican governors, meeting in New York, sounded limp in their defense of the Connally situation.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Around And Around

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Every few months or so I go to bed feeling fine but, on awakening, as soon as my feet hit the floor I am dizzy and the whole room seems to go round and round.

I have asked my own doctor and also been to a hospital and two clinics, but after blood checks and other tests they could give me no answer.

You've been checked - evidently thoroughly for any health deficiency. In view of that, I would suggest postural hypotension (low blood pressure) as a likely explanation.

This is not as uncommon as you might think, and a good many people shrug it off.

When you are asleep, your body functions slow down. That includes your heart. Blood pressure is at low ebb.

It's a familiar experience to find a patient's blood pressure high in the later hours of the day, but find it low the first thing in the morning, and especially when the patient has just awakened.

So what happens when you've been asleep or resting? You wake up with your blood pressure substantially below what it will be as you become active.

If, at such a time, you suddenly stand up, your blood pressure does not instantly swoop up to a normal waking level. With this somewhat

If my sources are correct, then Connally seems clearly to have been crossed up by the President's decision to make their "consulting arrangement" public.

The presumption would have to be that Mr. Nixon, desperately eager to reassure the country he is cleaning house and surrounding himself with new men free of possible Watergate taint, and impressive in sturdy ability, could not resist using Connally for openly supportive purpose.

As an interesting sidelight, the word is that Connally at Key Biscayne had reportedly turned down all offers of Cabinet or other official administration posts before he agreed to make himself available as an unpaid consultant.

His unofficial role naturally gives Connally more freedom as a brand new Republican to move about and build party stature for a presumed 1976 presidential bid.

reduced pressure, you don't push as much blood up to your head (and brain). The result can be this transient dizziness, and the room spins.

For a person in ordinary good health, this is not harmful, not a sign of something going wrong healthwise. The only risk is that you might stumble and fall.

What to do about it? Don't get panicky. Just learn how to get up in the morning. Lie still for a minute or so. That is, stay lying down but flex muscles in your arms and legs and any other muscles over which you have voluntary control.

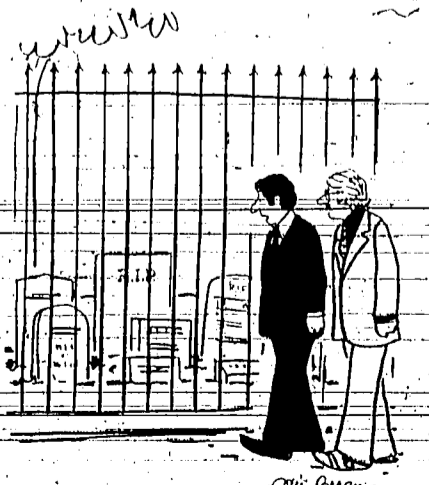

If need be (try it and find out) then sit on the edge of the bed for another minute. Scratch your head to get arms moving. Give your blood a chance to start circulating, and you should have no more dizzy spells.

There are, of course, other causes of dizzy spells, but they don't as a rule occur, as they do with you, ONLY when your feet hit the floor after lying down or sleeping.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My sister has to go to the hospital every month for tests to see how low her hemoglobin is, and if it is low she has to have a transfusion. She has had tests of her bone marrow and they claim it does not make red cells. What causes this?

M.I. W. From what you tell me, presumably it would be aplastic anemia. Several causes are known: damage to the marrow from a variety of poisons, some powerful medicines, too much X-ray. But often no specific cause can be pinpointed.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Well - they don't have to worry any more about our using more than 17 million barrels of oil every day!"

'Candidate' escorted out

'Presidential' bidder ejected from hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Watergate hearings were interrupted Thursday by a young man in a neat blue suit who stood at the rear of the room, waved his arms in a "V" sign and shouted, "My name is Ed Kelley and I'm announcing for the presidency of the United States."

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., chairman of the select investigating committee, gaveled for order as Capitol policemen hustled the spectator outside. "The chair will announce this is not a political forum for the announcing of candidates," Ervin said with a grin.

Police also removed a woman, identified later as Judith Vadnai, 43, of West Orange, N.J., who also stood and shouted something about the presidency about the same time. She and Kelley, 21, of Yuba City, Calif., were released after questioning.

A policeman escorted both to the sidewalk outside the Senate Office Building and said: "You will not attend the Watergate hearings ever again."

Kelley told reporters he was a student at an unidentified university and a political independent who believed that "anyone who takes a good, hard look at the Watergate affair" would recognize the need for changes in government policy, "right here, at home first before anywhere else."

Mrs. Vadnai said she wanted to tell the Ervin committee that "no matter what new charges are brought out, the President's name is tainted." The committee, she said, should cut the hearings short and confront the President directly with the question, "Richard Milhous Nixon, are you guilty?"

Mrs. Vadnai was ejected after a similar disruption Jan. 9 during a Senate Armed Services Committee hearing on Elliot L. Richardson's nomination to be attorney general.

The demonstrators, who said they had never seen each other before, began yelling a half hour after the morning session of the hearings began, just as committee counsel Sam Dash had completed questioning Gerald Aich, former lawyer for Watergate conspirator James W. McCord Jr.

POW's applaud Nixon's vow to guard secrets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon Thursday told cheering former prisoners of war that he was determined to protect the nation's classified documents from people who steal secrets and publish them in the newspaper.

"Had we not had that kind of secrecy... you men would still be in Hanoi," the President told the POWs in a half-hour-long speech preceding a gala White House dinner honoring the former POWs and their families.

Echoing the national security section of his explanation earlier this week of the Watergate affair, the President said without secrecy his administration would have been unable to have negotiated an end to the War in Vietnam and arms control agreement with the Soviet Union or new contacts with China.

"I say it is time to stop making heroes out of those people who steal secrets and publish them in the newspapers," Nixon said.

His audience, most of them in uniform but a few in civilian clothes, rose spontaneously and gave him a standing ovation.

The President did not say whether he was referring to Daniel Ellsberg, who gave the Pentagon Papers to the New York Times and other newspapers, former White House counsel John W. Dean III, who placed a classified internal plan in a safe deposit box where it ultimately could become public, or to someone else.

The reaction of the returned prisoners was obviously a tonic to the President, who has been buffeted in recent days by the Watergate scandal.

When the President entered the auditorium, he received a minute and a half standing ovation. He responded by smiling broadly gesturing with a thumbs up sign and with his familiar two-handed "V" from the campaign trail.

In his speech, when the White House said he polished during an overnight stay at Camp David, the President also vowed to resist proposed cuts in the defense budget and suggestions that the nation unilaterally withdraw its troops from Europe.

"America must maintain its strength to play a role between the great powers and among the great powers—to play a role for peace," Nixon said.

"Let us keep our defenses up—oh, take the fat off where it exists—but keep them up," he said. "Let us be sure that if we go down, the other side goes down."

But the President seemed to reserve his most emotional words for government secrecy.

"If a document is classified, keep it classified," he said.

The President said he was not concerned about "every little dribble here and there." But he said he was concerned over possible leaks of "highly classified documents" which could include the nation's bargaining strategy for its upcoming arms control talks with the Soviet Union.

"They don't tell us their's — they don't have any problem keeping secrets," Nixon said.

Although the President stressed his concern for maintaining government secrets which he said Tuesday had led him to authorize taps of the telephones of some White House staff members from 1969 to 1971, a key component of his explanation of the Watergate affair, the President did not allude to the scandal in his remarks to the former POWs.

Shale undamaged

RIO BLANCO, Colo. (UPI) — Preliminary data from last week's underground nuclear blast in western Colorado shows it did not damage the vast oil shale deposits in the area, scientists said Wednesday.

"Preliminary data indicates that the (shock) effect at the well extended more than 150 feet but less than 600 feet down," Dr. Charles Williams of the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) said.

The Project Rio Blanco detonation—equal to 90,000 tons of TNT—was designed to create a cavity more than a mile underground and free natural gas trapped in the tight sandstone formations.

Oil industry officials claimed the May 17 experiment might have damaged the shale which is seen as a future energy source. A spokesman for the shale interests said it really would be months before it could be proven the deposits were not harmed.

Environmentalists fought a losing court battle trying to halt the blast. They feared contamination of air and water supplies. The AEC said no increases in radiation levels have been detected.

Gov. John A. Love has said there would be no further such tests unless Colorado residents support them, possibly in a referendum.

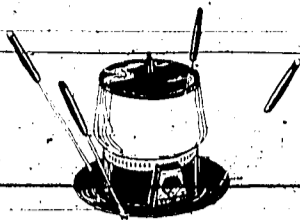

Queen draws US subsidy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth II is a beneficiary under the "US program of subsidy payments to farmers for not growing crops," Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., said Wednesday.

He said the money was paid to Delta Pine Land Co., which owns a 2,500-acre farm in Bolivar County, Miss. Delta, he said, is a subsidiary of Courtauld's Ltd. of London, in which the royal family is listed as the largest investor.

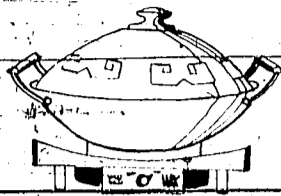

"I am glad to see that the Agriculture Department's programs are fit for a queen, but it's the American taxpayer who is getting crowned — in his pocketbook," said Conte.

Seven notes found on dead man

W.O. MILLS found dead

EASTON, Md. (UPI) — Rep. William O. Mills, R-Md., had seven mysterious notes in his pocket when he was found dead of an apparently self-inflicted shotgun wound Thursday morning.

Mills' death came five days after he was accused of receiving a secret $25,000 campaign contribution from the Nixon re-election organization in 1971, and one of the notes was reported to say the cause of his death was the disgrace of the scandal.

Sources close to the investigation called the notes "suicide notes" but they were in the possession of local authorities who refused to acknowledge their existence.

The Washington Post reported Friday the note said "I've done nothing wrong but there is no way I can prove it. This is the only way out."

Sources said at least one of the notes was addressed to his constituents. The Post said it alluded to "an impending scandal" but sources in the investigation said all the notes had been impounded by the state's attorney and put away so that their contents could not be immediately disclosed.

Local authorities would not call the death of the popular congressman a suicide outright, but they did say no foul play was suspected and called the gunshot wound "apparently self-inflicted."

Mills, 48, was elected in 1971 to fill out the unexpired term of Rogers C. B. Morton who was appointed Interior Secretary. Mills had been Morton's administrative assistant since 1962 after a 17-year career with the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co.

The Government Accounting

Office (GAO) charged last Saturday that secret funds of the Finance Committee to Re-Elect the President had been funneled into Mills' 1971 campaign.

The Washington Post and Star-News reported Wednesday that the $25,000 cash contribution had not been reported to Maryland election officials, a violation of state law.

Mills left his Easton home about 6:45 a.m. Thursday and drove to a friend's farm two miles away, where he kept five horses. About 7 a.m. a caretaker heard a shot and went to the barn. There he found Mills lying on his back with a shotgun beside him.

Police said Mills apparently leaned on the shotgun and used a pipe to push the trigger.

He was dead on arrival at Easton Memorial Hospital. He is survived by a wife and two children. His funeral was scheduled Saturday morning at St. Mark's Methodist Church in Easton and he will be buried at Hillcrest Cemetery in Federalburg, Caroline County, where he was born.

Bible read

TWIN FALLS — In October, 1972, the congregation of the Tyler Street Baptist Church was challenged to read the Old and New Testament through by Memorial Day.

Those completing the entire Bible were: Nancy Grubbs, Gene Heimgartner, Pastor Himple, Howard Barth, Olive Casebeer, Elizabeth Shaner, Betty Heimgartner, Althea Barth, Jerry Heimgartner, DeVere Briggs, Thelma Ross, and Elsie Wohliab.

Train explosion queried

BEAVER, Ariz. (UPI) — Parts of a bomb-carrying train went up "in mushroom cloud like an atomic explosion" Thursday, the second such blast in a month, and the railroad said it was taking "a very thorough look" at the possibility of sabotage.

The explosions began blasting apart cars of the Southern Pacific train about an hour before it would have been in downtown Tucson.

Two trainmen were slightly injured when they leaped from the moving freight, and two others in the crew escaped unharmful, said Al Bradshaw, a spokesman for the railroad.

The 107-car freight, at least 12 of its cars loaded with explosives from the Naval Ammunition Depot at McAlester, Okla., was wracked by explosions for at least two hours Thursday evening. Six hours after the explosions began, wreckage of the train was still burning on tracks passing through rangeland 40 miles east of Tucson.

Bradshaw said it was not clear how many explosions there had been, or how many cars were destroyed or damaged, because "we're holding everybody at least a mile and a half away as a safety precaution."

On April 20, 21 freight cars loaded with 250 pounds bombs exploded in the Southern Pacific freight yard at Roseville, Calif., wrecking the yard and destroying surrounding homes. Damage was estimated at $10 million.

Richardson's 'oath' today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Elliot L. Richardson accepts the oath of office as attorney general today, facing the possibility he will bring some of President Nixon's former aides to justice.

Richardson's swearing-in ceremony follows a disclosure by the Justice Department that a "key member" of the Watergate conspiracy has agreed to plead guilty without immunity and testify as a prosecution witness in court. But no one will be indicted for another 60 to 90 days, according to the announcement.

Both The New York Times and Washington Post identified the "key" figure as Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy director of the Nixon campaign.

Archibald Cox, a Harvard law professor, already has been appointed by Richardson to act as special prosecutor in the Watergate case. Cox disclosed Thursday that his duties will include a probe of the government's handling of the prosecution of Daniel Ellsberg in the Pentagon Papers trial.

The oath of office was to be recited by Richardson at the White House (at 8 a.m. MDT), with Nixon looking on.

Accepting his third post in Nixon's cabinet, Richardson said his goal would be to erase a "kind of sleaziness" that eroded public confidence in government and law enforcement.

WE'LL BE OPEN ALL MEMORIAL-DAY WEEKEND!

Envoy talks 'wrongs' of cease-fire

SAIGON (UPI) — White House envoy William H. Sullivan, dispatched from Paris to Saigon by Henry A. Kissinger, said today he and South Vietnamese officials are discussing "everything that's wrong" with the Vietnam cease-fire and why after four months it is not working.

"What we are doing in Paris is reviewing the implementation of the accords and seeking measures to improve the implementation," Sullivan said.

"We've been doing that with the North Vietnamese," Sullivan said, "and we are discussing with our South Vietnamese friends just what that is going to mean as far as the future is concerned."

Meanwhile, Saigon military officials reported 66 Communist troop violations today, up slightly from lows of 58 and 55 reported Wednesday and Thursday.

A command spokesman said two skirmishes Thursday within 40 miles of Saigon left eight Communist troops dead. No government casualties were reported.

Sullivan arrived Wednesday to brief South Vietnamese officials on progress at the cease-fire talks in Paris between Kissinger and Hanoi negotiator Le Duc Tho. Those talks have been recessed for two weeks.

"We'd like to cover everything that's wrong" (with the Vietnam cease-fire), Sullivan said today.

Asked if the talks in Saigon and in Paris have been successful, he replied: "We'll know that later. We're going to go back to Paris in June and we're still in the first go round on that."

Sullivan met for an hour Thursday with President Nguyen Van Thieu and later met with Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam, Thieu's military assistant-in-chief, Gen. Dang Van Quang, and Lt. Gen. Pham Quoc Thuan, chief South Vietnamese delegate to the two-party Joint Military Commission (JMC).

South Vietnamese government spokesman Bui Bao Truc told reporters today "rumors that Mr. Sullivan brought with him a map showing the areas controlled by the two sides is purely speculation." Sources in Saigon said Thursday Sullivan brought such a map and that it set boundaries inside South Vietnam for the Saigon government and the Communists.

Sullivan is expected to see Thieu and other officials again before scheduled weekend trips to Cambodia, Laos and Thailand to brief government leaders there.

A South Vietnamese government spokesman said Sullivan's meetings with Thieu and the other government officials were proceeding in an atmosphere of "close cooperation."

The major cease-fire problems presumably under discussion include the lack of a halt in the fighting, Communist and government territorial boundary disputes, failure to account for missing troops and failure to complete the exchange of civilian prisoners.

Guilty

RAWLINS, Wyo. (UPI) — The warden of the Wyoming State Penitentiary Thursday was found guilty of assault and battery on a complaint filed by his wife, Warden Lenard Meacham was given a $50 suspended fine by Justice of the Peace James O. Young. Meacham indicated to Young that he would appeal the fine.

Nancy Meacham filed the complaint April 24 saying that her husband had assaulted her the previous day.

Mrs. Meacham had applied for a peace bond but the application was denied.

US bombers raid posts

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — U.S. B52 bombers dropped more than 1,000 tons of explosives on Communist positions in a 455-mile area of jungle on Highway 4 over a seven-day period, military sources said today.

The disclosure came as U.S. warplanes flew raids for the 10th consecutive day in Cambodia, the "only" Indochina country with no formal cease-fire agreement. B52s and radar-guided F111 jet fighters-bombers flew raids Thursday but bad weather prevented flights by smaller tactical fighters.

The sources said the Highway 4 bombing, involving almost daily flights of from three to six of the big planes between May 15 and last Tuesday, occurred about three miles south of the road—the main link for the transport of vital military cargo from the deepwater port of Kampong Som to Phnom Penh.

Purpose of the concentrated bombing, the sources said, was to keep Communist troops off balance and prevent them from cutting the highway.

But despite the intense air action, rebel troops managed Monday to sever a six-mile stretch of the road near the support.

Military sources said today, however, that the cut was only a diversionary action and that government troops were able to clear the area within a day.

Spokesmen said a 240-truck convoy reached Phnom Penh Thursday without incident on the 434-mile trip along the highway front Kampong Som.

Assessing the air strikes, the sources said that in one instance 12 B52s destroyed stocks of ammunition at a rebel camp used to provide maintenance for supply trucks about 36 miles southwest of Phnom Penh.

The raids were approved by the U.S. Embassy in Phnom Penh as are all B52 missions flown in the country.

Gen-traffic toll mounts

BONNERS FERRY, Idaho (UPI) — The Idaho traffic death toll was increased to 117 with the death of a Bonners Ferry man after his motorcycle went out of control on a curve and left the road Wednesday.

Dead is Daniel Joseph Shirley, 26.

Boundary County Sheriff's Department reported the accident occurred on the Dale Olsen Road near State Highway 1. The traffic fatality toll a year ago at this time was 92.

'Gemstone' file held tap reports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The accounts of wiretapped conversations which Alfred C. Baldwin III says he monitored later became part of the "Gemstone" file kept in the desk of President Nixon's deputy campaign manager, sources said today.

Baldwin told the Senate Watergate Committee Thursday he provided copies of conversations from bugged offices at Democratic National Committee headquarters to convicted conspirator James W. McCord.

The sources said, however, the transcripts eventually were forwarded to deputy campaign chief Jeb Stuart Magruder and were among the documents Magruder ordered removed from his desk at the Nixon campaign committee hours after the Watergate break-in on June 17.

Reports on the conversations typed by Baldwin reportedly referred to "a source who has proved to be reliable" rather than attributing the monitored discussions to a listening device.

The sources said the reports were typed in polished form by Sally Harmony, a secretary to convicted Watergate mastermind G. Gordon Liddy. Both Liddy and Mrs. Harmony have been called to testify when the hearings resume June 5.

Also summoned before the committee that week is Robert Breisner, former administrative assistant to Magruder. Reiser's testimony reportedly may conflict with testimony by Robert C. Odle, former director of administration at the campaign headquarters.

The sources said that Magruder, while in California on June 17, said in a conversation with Reiser and Odle in Washington that Reiser should remove "sensitive" documents from Magruder's desk.

Reiser reportedly asked what documents and Magruder said approximately "The Gemstone file, God damn it."

Odle told the committee at the start of the televised hearings on May 17 that he did not know if the file was named Gemstone, the code for political espionage material and memos dealing with the bugged conversations.

However, Odle said he took a file containing political intelligence to his home for "security" reasons because of Magruder's concern following the arrest of McCord—the committee's security chief—at the Watergate.

Odle testified he never heard mention of the word Gemstone during the three-way conversation with Magruder. He said he took home the "strategy file" and returned it June 19 to Magruder and did not learn until recently it contained things that had no place in a political campaign.

BERNARD BARKER
... Cuban link

'Duty' behind Barker's work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "I considered it my duty," Bernard L. Barker insisted again and again at the Senate's Watergate hearings. "I considered it at the time—and now—that I was correct."

Whether it was the Bay of Pigs, or the Ellsberg break-in, or protecting J. Edgar Hoover's grave from hippies, or the Watergate bugging, the impassioned anti-Communist fighter said he proudly and without regret did what he did because of national security.

Barker testified Thursday with the unshakable conviction of a zealot. And two hours of questioning by senators on the Watergate committee failed to move him.

He testified that he lived strictly by "the code" in such operations, always following orders, never questioning them, and not talking about what he was doing, even with other members of the team.

His background was right out of an adventure novel—36 years old; an American citizen born in Cuba; an Army Air Force captain and German prisoner of war for 16 months in World War II; a member of the Cuban police force after the war, assisted E. Howard Hunt Jr. in CIA operations involved in the 1961 Bay of Pigs operation; devoted to the cause of liberating Cuba from Fidel Castro; a devoted family man; now a Miami realtor employing 10 sales persons and doing $3 million worth of business a year.

Hunt called him back to duty in 1971 to rifle the office of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist; and in 1972 to infiltrate with his people a group of antiwar protestors in front of the White House at the time of Hoover's death and to burglarize Democratic offices.

"What on earth would motivate you at your stage in life, with your background, to do something that surely you knew to be illegal?" asked Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn.

"Senator," replied Barker, a fleshy, bespectacled man. "E. Howard Hunt, under the name of Eduardo, represents to the Cuban people their liberation. I cannot deny my services, in the way it was proposed to me, on a matter of national security, knowing that with my training I had personnel available for this type of operation. I could not deny their request."

"Why?"

"Because I felt it was my duty to comply with Mr. Hunt's request."

"Why?" Barker persisted.

"Because it involved a matter of national security."

"Why?"

"Because this is a service to my country, sir."

"What national security?" Barker asked.

"Discovering information about a person who I had been told by Mr. Hunt was a traitor who was passing information; he or his associates, to a foreign embassy," Barker said. He said he later was told this "person" was Ellsberg.

Barker used the language befitting what he kept referring to as "pari-military operations." When two earlier attempts to break into the Democratic national headquarters were unsuccessful, "the mission was aborted."

If you got caught, it was by "the enemy." Then you waited while your leaders made every attempt "to rescue you."

In reply to Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., who like Barker is a Spanish-speaking American, Barker said he believed in Hunt, "the commanding officer of Watergate," because Hunt acted as the government's representative at the Bay of Pigs and was a consultant at the White House.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-N.M., asked Barker if he ever questioned whether national security was involved in the attempts to break into the Democratic offices.

"I never asked those questions," Barker said. "I had no reason to speculate on those matters. They were a parliamentary operation. It's not customary to question your superiors."

After Sen. Sam J. Ervin, Jr., D-N.C., the chairman, excused him, Barker tarried a moment, and then gave a final statement.

"In a certain way the things I have said do not represent me as a person," Barker said. "I am part of a team."

SEC-ITT probes into web

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One or more top White House aides will be called to testify before a House investigations committee probing the tangled relations of the Securities Exchange and Commission (SEC) in the ITT and Vesco cases.

Fired White House Counsel John W. Dean III testified for three hours Thursday in a closed door session. White House Commerce Investigations Subcommittee chairman Harley C. Staggers, D-W.Va., would not reveal what Dean said, he indicated that at least one more Nixon advisor would testify.

Dean and William J. Casey, the former SEC head who is now an assistant secretary of state, reportedly had meetings on both cases.

Dean refused to discuss his testimony with reporters after the session. Staggers said Dean's testimony covered "everything that has happened at the SEC."

"We asked him every question under the sun we could think of and he was very frank with us," Staggers said. "He told us everything we knew."

Committee sources said Dean at no time took the fifth amendment during the testimony, although he has been offered no immunity by the committee.

Reiser reportedly asked what documents and Magruder said approximately "The Gemstone file, God damn it."

Odle told the committee at the start of the televised hearings on May 17 that he did not know if the file was named Gemstone, the code for political espionage material and memos dealing with the bugged conversations.

However, Odle said he took a file containing political intelligence to his home for "security" reasons because of Magruder's concern following the arrest of McCord—the committee's security chief—at the Watergate.

Odle testified he never heard mention of the word Gemstone during the three-way conversation with Magruder. He said he took home the "strategy file" and returned it June 19 to Magruder and did not learn until recently it contained things that had no place in a political campaign.

Figueres worried by probe

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — President Jose Figueres, accompanied by the Soviet ambassador, said Thursday night that he fears the Watergate scandal weakens President Nixon's role as leader of the Western world.

He appealed to the American press to "call it quits" in devoting extensive coverage to Watergate and urged the Senate special Watergate committee to end the televised hearings of their investigation.

Figueres voiced specific concern that Watergate might affect Nixon's position in his forthcoming Washington talks with Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev.

Figueres also said he will not act on any U.S. request for the extradition of Robert L. Vesco, a fugitive New Jersey financier wanted by authorities in New York and Washington.

Figueres said any such decision was a matter only for Costa Rican courts.

"It would automatically be a court-to-court matter," he said, because under Costa Rican law, he has no legal power in such matters.

Summary of testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A summary of the testimony Thursday before the Senate Watergate Committee.

— Gerald Aich, a diction-conscious Boston attorney and former lawyer for convicted conspirator James W. McCord Jr., appeared for the second day to testify about discrepancies between his lengthy statement and McCord's claim that Aich advised his client to use a defense that Watergate was a CIA operation.

— Bernard L. Barker, who pleaded guilty in the original Watergate trial and was escorted by federal marshals from jail to the hearing, testified he was just following orders when he broke into the Watergate. "Sir, I wasn't there to think, I was there to follow orders," Barker, testifying under a grant of immunity, said the spy squad was after evidence that contributions from abroad—particularly from the Castro-led Cuban government—helped finance the Democrats and George S. McGovern's pre-nomination campaign, that he had never been offered executive clemency or was "presured" into pleading guilty at the January trial.

— Alfred C. Baldwin III, an ex-FBI agent and another spy team member who was stationed in a motel across the street from the Watergate to monitor bugged Democratic telephone conversations, testified he also was just following orders from "the President's organization," denied he was a "double agent" supposedly working for President Nixon's reelection committee but in reality working for the Democrats.

Don Samuelson ponders comeback

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Former Idaho Gov. Don Samuelson said Thursday he would make up his mind about a political comeback next spring.

In Twin Falls on business with the Department of Transportation, Samuelson said he had been approached by unnamed persons about opposing either Gov. Cecil D. Andrus or Sen. Frank Church in 1974.

But he said he wouldn't "take a look" at the races until early next year and would reserve his final decision until the end of the legislative session, which comes in the spring.

Samuelson, a Republican, served one term as governor, losing the 1966 gubernatorial election to Andrus.

He sharply disagreed with the assessment offered by one prominent Republican legislator last week about Andrus' reelection prospects.

Sen. H. Dean Sumners, R-Boise, speaking to the Idaho Press Club, has said he thought Andrus would be tough to unseat.

Samuelson dismissed Sumners' comments with a reference to the lawmaker's personal friendship with the governor. Referring to Sumners' statement that Andrus would be extremely difficult to unseat, Samuelson said, "that's not true at all."

But he declined to characterize Andrus' performance in office thus far.

Samuelson did say he thought the Watergate scandal now unraveling in Washington would not have an appreciable effect in Idaho elections unless it were shown that a candidate were personally involved in some way with the case.

He said Idaho voters were "independent thinkers" who would "evaluate a candidate on his integrity."

Currently serving as the Department of Transportation's Regional Representative for Region X, Samuelson said individual states should have more leeway to decide how to spend their highway trust funds. The former governor said he favored a system that would continue to channel the funds to the state, and allow each state to determine whether to divert some of the money from highway construction to mass transit systems.

Samuelson was in Twin Falls, he said, as part of his annual trip to the state to visit the localities in his area of responsibility with the Department of Transportation.

Vote penalty law said constitutional

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A state law making corporations which illegally contribute to political campaigns subject to penalties of double their contribution, payable to every other candidate in the race, is constitutional, the Texas Supreme Court said Wednesday.

The court ruled that Handy Andy Inc. is subject to a damage suit under the law because the firm allegedly contributed $15,000 to the Good Government League candidates in the 1971 San Antonio City Council elections.

The original suit was filed by a candidate in the council race, William T. Scott.

He asked for $4,522.08 for himself, and $194,449.44 for the other 43 candidates who did not receive contributions from Handy Andy.

Profumo was minister then, embroiled with red-haired called Christine Keeler. The low life in high places and Profumo's lie to the House of Commons about it feathered the government and forced Profumo into anonymous disgrace.

Ten months later the telephone rang in the office of the new warden of Toynbee Hall, a charity for the poor of London's slummy East End. A woman's voice asked:

"Is there anyone you would snub if he offered to help? Anyone at all?"

"I would never turn away anyone who wanted to help," said Warden Walter Birmingham. John Profumo came the next day.

He has worked full time, without pay, for Toynbee Hall ever since. He spends four days a week at social work there, often working until 10 p.m.

Utah dairies, union start 6th talk series

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The dispute between Utah's three largest dairies and the union representing the delivery and pickup drivers and production employees was down to about 15 cents today.

Negotiators for Cream O' Weber, Hi-Land and Meadow Gold dairies and the Teamsters Union — representing the workers — were scheduled to meet with the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service today in their sixth series of contract talks.

The union has one week left in its three-year contract with the three dairies. The three process about 85 per cent of all milk and milk byproducts in the state.

Facing the midnight May 31 deadline, the two sides are about 15 cents apart on salary and benefit issues, on an hourly basis.

The union has asked for a combined average hourly wage and fringe benefit increase of 35 cents over the average hourly wage of $4. Company officials say they have offered to increase total benefits and wages by 5 per cent — 20 cents for the average salary.

Spokesmen for both sides said most other issues have been resolved to the satisfaction of union and management, but the hourly wage-fringe package and the term of the contract were still in dispute after the fifth negotiating session.

The three-year contract, which expires next Thursday, has no binding arbitration clause and would leave the union free to strike if no settlement is reached.

But, a teamster spokesman said the union members have said they would be willing to continue work past the contract expiration date, "if management is still negotiating in good faith."

The spokesman said, in the event of a strike, "The union members have been urged to continue processing milk for such public agencies as hospitals and schools and for other urgent situations."

Confronted with at least a partial shutdown, the companies would be faced with processing most of Utah's monthly output of 80 million pounds of milk into a non-perishable commodity.

Most milk could be converted into cheese, butter, milk solids and other commodities.

Company spokesmen say the key to the length of the next contract could be the life expectancy of President Nixon's Phase III controls. A short-term contract could benefit the union — should controls be dropped soon.

Nixon resign, prof says

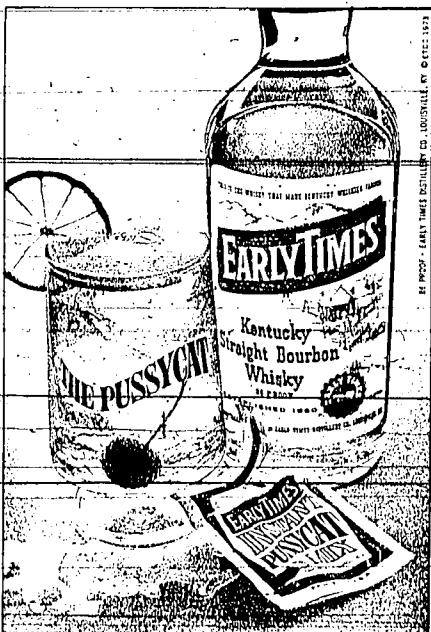

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Geoffrey M. Connally, the younger brother of presidential adviser John B. Connally, said Wednesday President Nixon is moving the country toward a police state and should resign.

"I think there ought to be a lot of pressure on the President to resign," the third of the five Connally brothers said. "Regardless of the outcome, even assuming he's never directly implicated, his competence has been clearly questioned."

"How can he admit he didn't know this? It's just proof he didn't do his job. That's enough reason for asking him to resign."

"I'm not as surprised as some about Watergate. I guess what surprised me was the boldness with which they subverted the law. It's clear that it was pretty directly moving toward a police state."

Geoffrey Connally, the economics professor, and older brother John Connally, the recent Democrat-turned-Republican and now presidential adviser, have never shared a common political ideology. While John was running the Democrats for Nixon in 1972, Geoffrey was campaigning for Democrat George McGovern.

TF miss, Pfc. Simmons marry in First Methodist ceremony

TWIN FALLS — Sharon Jorgensen became the bride of Pfc. Harley Simmons in an evening wedding, rites May 24 at the First United Methodist Church, Twin Falls.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Charlotte Jorgensen, Twin Falls, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Simmons, Jerome, and the late Reed R. Simmons. Rev. Herbert Morris performed the ceremony before an altar decorated with baskets of yellow chrysanthemums and greenery and candelabra decorated with white candles and greenery. The aisle pews were decorated with white bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Michael Jorgensen, wore her mother's wedding dress which was fashioned by the bride's great-grandmother, Mrs. W. C. Depew, Jerome. It was made of white stipper satin with a bouffant skirt and chapel train. The long high-point sleeves were of lace and scalloped lace yoke trimmed the fitted bodice. Her "elbow-length" veil of bridal illusion was held by a satin crown decorated with lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses centered with a white orchid on a white Bible. She wore a single-pearl necklace, a gift from the bridegroom's mother. She wore her maternal grandmother's diamond wedding ring. Debra Requa Clark, friend of the bride, was matron of honor. Diana Jorgensen, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Their gowns were of matching design and fashioned by Mrs. T. H. Clark, Jerome, grandmother of the bride.

Alan Biggs, friend of the bridegroom, was best man and Carl Simmons, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsmen. Candlelighters were Kevin Jorgensen, brother of the bride and Lyle Cupps, cousin of the bride. Ushers were Ed Clifford and Dale Shropshire, friends of the bridegroom, and Jay Depew, uncle of the bride.

Karen Christensen was organist and Mitzi Bryan was soloist.

The couple was honored at a reception after the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church. Guests were registered by Joy Simmons, sister of the bridegroom. The bride's table was covered with a white brocade cloth with a white table overlay. The table was centered with a three-tiered cake decorated with yellow roses and green leaves. It was topped with two satin bells joined by a dove and entwined with silver candelabra with green and yellow candles. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Woodrow Bingham, Twin Falls.

Mrs. Raymond Clark and Mrs. Jay Depew, aunts of the bride, served the cake and Mrs. Marvin Cupps and Mrs. Joan Sater, aunts of the bride, served the punch and coffee.

Brenda Clark, cousin of the bride, Debbie O'Toole, niece of the bridegroom, and Linda Rippe were in charge of the gifts.

Special guests were the bride's maternal great-grandmother, Mrs. W. C. Depew; maternal grandmother, Mrs. Jewel Depew; and paternal grandparents, Mr and Mrs. T. H. Clark, all Jerome, and the bridegroom's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Sophia Clements, Rexburg. Guests attended from Southeastern Idaho, Salt Lake City and the Magic Valley area.

The bride was graduated from The Twin Falls High School in 1972. She attended the College of Southern Idaho and was graduated May 13. The bridegroom was graduated from Jerome High School in 1972, joined the Army in December, 1972, and took his basic at Fort Ord, Calif. He was graduated from Military Police School at Camp Gordon, Ga.

After a honeymoon trip to Sun Valley, the couple will reside at Ft. Lewis, Wash., where the bridegroom is stationed with the Army.

The bride was honored at a pre-nuptial shower given by Debra Requa Clark.

Then South had an inspiration. East had worried a lot about his lead in trick two. Maybe East was under leading the king-queen-jack of spades. South played his 10 to hold and all South's worries were over. As a matter of fact he made an over-trick.

East's spade play deserved a better title. Had he led back an honor, South could have ducked, won the second spade, and eventually discarded a spade on one of dummy's club honors.

Would he have made his play? We think so. Anyone who could come up with that 10 spot play counts me "very interesting hands" most other problems.

DEAR ABBY: I am nearly 21 and am presently serving in the Marine Corps. I have read your column in the Stars and Stripes all over the world and think you might be able to help me. I have heard that first cousins aren't allowed to marry because if they do their children will not be right. Is this true?

For the last two years my first cousin and I have been seeing each other. I am not going to say that nothing serious has happened between us because that would be a lie. I am sure she loves me as much as I love her, but I guess we are both afraid. We just don't know what to do. I would appreciate any information you can give me on the subject of cousins marrying, because we really are in love with each other.

Please don't mention the state we are from because we don't want our families to know about this yet.

YOUR FRIEND IN THE U. S. M. C.

Marine needs help

DEAR FRIEND: First cousins MAY marry in some states, but I think you and your cousin should see a doctor, let him evaluate your family medical histories (on both sides) and get his opinion on the advisability of such a marriage should you want children.

DEAR ABBY: An unusually attractive and sophisticated-looking woman, probably in her late 50s, lives in my apartment building. She wears no wedding ring and does not seem to work. We sometimes pass each other on the way out of the building, in the elevator, or coming in. It's such a large building that I don't know where she lives. Any ideas about how to find out her name?

INTERESTED BACHELOR

DEAR INTERESTED: Introduce yourself, ask her name, and suggest coffee or something. If she's interested in you, you won't need a road map. If she's not, you aren't out anything.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter was married several months ago. Because of the circumstances, there was no wedding or reception. She and her fiancé just went away and got married. They jumped the gun and had to get married before they had planned to.

I didn't make up any ties. I just accepted things as they were. She married the young man she had been going with for two years and they are very, very happy.

Am I right in thinking that friends and relatives should send her some kind of gift? I send wedding presents to brides whether they had a wedding or not. Some of my relatives say she doesn't "deserve" a gift. Why? Because she didn't have a big wedding?

Please give me your opinion.

DEAR MOM: A gift should not be a "repayment" for a wedding and/or a reception. It should carry with it the message, "Enjoy this—it is sent with love, and best wishes."

CONFIDENTIAL TO "VIRGO" IN YAKIMA, WASH-INGTON: Even tho he claims he doesn't have a "real" marriage, he will have to get a real divorce before he is free to marry you. Talk is cheap, but time is precious, and it's my view that you have already wasted too much time on him.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 89766, L. A., Calif. 90089. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

FHA donates recorder

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls High School Future Homemakers of America Wednesday donated a tape-recorder to the Child Development Center.

The new portable instrument was presented by Homemakers club president Molly Curtis. The club raised money to buy the tape recorder by selling sandwiches to the faculty at the High School during the school year.

Darrell Bourner, coordinator for the early identification and home intervention program at the Center, said the tape recorder will be used for language assessment and the teaching of language skills to children in the home.

He said recordings of children will be made in the home and then brought back to the Center for evaluation by language specialist. He said the program focusses on children from infancy to six years of age who demonstrate lags in intellectual and physical development.

Miss Curtis said the Homemakers raised most of their money for a community services project, of which the donation of the tape recorder was a part, by selling tuna fish, egg salad and baloney and chowchow sandwiches made daily by club members.

She said the club also sold rolls at the school and handled the concessions at one basketball game during the school year to raise money for their project.

In addition to donating the tape recorder, Miss Curtis said the club donated Christmas presents and clothing to children of welfare families and will be donating $25 to the YWCA swimming pool fund.

'Catch' not illegal

JEROME — Stu Murrell, regional conservation educator, Idaho Fish and Game Department, said today it is not illegal to catch and then release trout in Idaho.

He said a news release from Robert Weaver, Clear Lake fish committee chairman, indicated such a practice is illegal.

Murrell said only if the fish have been badly hooked so as to cause injuries from which they may not recover, should the fisherman refrain from putting them back into the water. He said Weaver's statements made public by the Times-News Wednesday pertained to the Clear Lake area only and Weaver's concern for loss of the badly hooked fish which are returned to the stream in that area.

Butz halts big cotton grant

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has delayed approval of a $10 million federal grant to a private cotton promotion group, scheduled to have been paid July 1, it was learned today.

Butz and two top aides reviewed plans to pay the money to Cotton, Inc., of New York, and then decided they could not approve it without more detailed information on how the group would spend the funds.

Among other things, they want to know about salaries and fringe benefits paid to the organization's high-paid staff.

According to Agriculture Department records the group pays its president, J. Dukes Wooters, $100,000 a year and pays $35,000 to $44,000 annually to about six other employees.

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, has written Butz protesting the $10 million payment, saying "I see no reason why the American people should be gouged for such a huge subsidy for an organization that is apparently rolling in private wealth."

Cotton, Inc., gets its basic financing from a $1-a-bale fee paid voluntarily by farmers for sales promotion and research.

But since fiscal year 1972 this has been supplemented with an extra $10-million annually in federal funds provided by a 1970 farm law.

The third and final federal payment under the three-year law is due July 1 for the 1974 fiscal year, and the Senate Agriculture Committee has recommended extension of the payments for five more years.

Gross' protest was touched off by discovery of an internal Agriculture Department audit which showed that Cotton, Inc., had been spending all its federal money but had been putting part of its private funds into a reserve. By June 30 the reserve will be up to an estimated $18 million to $15 million, department reviews show.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Clayton K. Veutter said Cotton, Inc., has proposed to spend about $24 million for the year beginning July 1—$10 million in federal funds and about $14 million of its own "producer money" which presumably would include some of its reserve.

Australia sets China sugar sale

CANBERRA (UPI) — Australia has sold another 50,000 tons of sugar to China, Minister for Northern Development Dr. Rex Patterson announced Wednesday night.

Patterson told newsmen he had received a telegram from Sugar Board Chairman Sir Alan Summerville that the board had sold 50,000 tons of Queensland raw sugar to China.

Patterson said it is becoming clear that there was very possibility of further sales of sugar by Australia to China and if further transactions of this size could be secured, China would become a most important market for Australian raw sugar.

What makes THIMET the big one for sugar beets?

Because—it offers these advantages:

- Effectively controls the insect vectors of sugar beet virus diseases.
- Planting time treatment controls beet leafhopper, carrier of "curly top." Also controls leaf miners, mites and beet root maggots.
- Topical treatment controls green peach aphid, carrier of "virus yellows." Also controls mites.
- Crop records show THIMET use helps increase sugar tonnage and profit to the grower.
- Widely recommended by sugar companies.

THE BIG

— ATTENTION — ALL POTATO GROWERS!!

The following is an excerpt from an ad placed in major newspapers by the J. R. Simplot Company in the spring of 1970.

"Our records indicate that growers in your area last year who contracted with us received from $1.25 to $2.35 and averaged $1.95 plus per cwt. for U.S. No. 2 processor grade and better. We feel this year's contract should return the average grower $1.99 plus per cwt. for the same average delivery."

The average paid to Simplot growers in 1972 according to Simplot's figures were: Burley area $1.95 per cwt., Caldwell area $1.90 per cwt. and the Eastern Idaho area $1.88 per cwt. for an average of $1.91 for the 1972 crop of potatoes. THIS IS FOUR CENTS LESS PER CWT. than Simplot's 1970 ad claims they paid for potatoes in 1969.

Mr. Farmer, has your cost of production decreased since 1969? Can you continue to absorb increased production cost to insure Simplot's of the lowest cost of raw product of any processor in the state?

The Potato Growers of Idaho, Inc. feel that the J. R. Simplot Company MUST be aware of increased potato production costs, since that company is currently selling seed, fertilizer, fuel and chemicals to potato producers with the price of these items reflecting sky rocketing increases.

Yet in spite of this fact, the simplot contract offer for 1973 does nothing to adequately compensate the farmer for these increased production costs.

The potato has made both Idaho and J. R. Simplot Company famous. In order to maintain this position, the growers must be adequately compensated for doing their part in producing Idaho's most famous product.

Let's be proud of our Idaho potato and not agree to raise them below our production costs, just to subsidize Idaho's largest potato processor.

Texas cowmen selling beef directly to consumers

MESQUITE, Tex. (UPI) — Young, tall, with a close-clipped shock of reddish-blond hair and wearing orange boots, Terry Hollan looks like the cattleman he is.

But more often than you'll find him leaning on a rough rail fence, he'll be quoting cattle prices from behind a walnut-grained desk on the second floor of a bank, manning a telephone and punching a hand calculator.

Such is the nature of cattle dealing these days.

Spurred by the spring housewife meat boycott and the subsequent ceiling on meat prices levied by President Nixon, Hollan and his business partners in the Diamond Cattle Co., are selling cattle directly to consumers, cutting out the middle men, who, he said, make market prices too high.

Hollan said his type of business may be the coming thing. He offers the consumer his choice of more than 25,000 head of cattle at 49 cents per pound — live, hide, bones and all.

"You want beef? You come out here and you can cart the calf of your choice away for your family," Hollan said, swinging his orange boots onto a nearby table. "Put it right in the trunk and away you go or drive away the whole herd if you're that hungry."

Hollan said there is nothing unusual about his going straight to the consumer, cutting out the middlemen.

"What we're doing is a form of marketing that has been in existence since the beginning of man — one man going up to another and buying the product he needs," he said. "When God made men and bartering, He didn't see any particular need to create a third man to stand between them and state the prices."

The Diamond Cattle Co., has run advertisements in Dallas' area newspapers that are direct.

"Enjoy steak for the price of hamburger? Eliminate the 'middle man' completely. Buy direct from the ranch choice Texas corn-fed beef. No free gifts, come-on gimmicks, or price switching — just straight beef sale from cattlemen."

If the buyer doesn't want to carry off a prime animal of 49 cents a pound on the hoof, he may purchase a dressed carcass for 51 cents per pound or have the beef packaged and delivered for 56 cents per pound. All prices are based on "live weight" — the weight of the cow at the time it is sold, minus 4 per cent shrinkage.

The ads have brought some calls from the Dallas' Better Business Bureau, which claims "live weight" is deceptive and misleading to the public.

"We are not retailers or packers," Hollan said. "The only way we could sell these cattle is 'live weight' because the last time we see them when they're going out the gate is with their skins on and their tails a-waggin'."

"We're not going to get rich selling this way. But at least we are not going to lose any money, either."

"The Better Business Bureau has been feudin' and a-fusin' with us about our supposedly misleading the public. But hell, we're stating it like it is."

Wheat price climb looms

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Wheat prices could begin another climb this summer as a result of poor weather conditions and pressure from foreign purchasers, according to two officials of the Association of Operating Millers.

The association is holding its national convention here.

F. A. Lindholm, assistant manager of milling operations for Deavey Co. in Minneapolis said floods in Missouri and Illinois will affect supplies for this mill. He said the degree to which wheat supplies are affected will be determined by the success of emergency corn plantings in those two states in the next few days.

Lindholm said a shortage of corn would increase the demand for wheat as livestock feed.

Frank Jennings, vice president of production for Fisher's Mills Inc., Seattle, said the Northwest crop is being hurt by rainfall half of normal levels. He said, however, the Montana crop appears to be in good condition.

Lindholm also mentioned pressure put on the Midwest grain industry by Russian purchasers last year.

Nevada firm buys Ore-Ida property

ONTARIO, Ore. (UPI) — The sale of the 10,000-acre Skyline Farm northwest of Ontario was reported Thursday.

Skyline Farm, Inc., a Nevada corporation, purchased the local farm from Ore-Ida Foods, Inc., a subsidiary of the H. J. Heinz Co.

The purchase was confirmed by John Basabe, general manager of Grandview Farms and vice president of Skyline Farms, Inc.

The farm is to be operated for Skyline Farms of Grandview, Idaho.

Basabe said the farm near Ontario will retain the Skyline name and continue its present operation. The farm has been used to grow potatoes, sugar beets, grain and hay.

Irrigation water for the farm is pumped from the Snake and Malheur Rivers.

Farm Cotton export gain forecast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cotton exports in the 1972-73 marketing season, which ends July 31, will reach the highest level since 1963, but domestic cotton use may dip to the lowest level since 1938, an Agriculture Department report said.

The report by department economists also said recent floods in the Mississippi Delta may keep total U.S. cotton planting for 1973 "a little below" March estimates of 13 million acres.

This "indicates plantings could be a million acres below last year's 13.9 million acres. The reduced 1973 planting could produce a crop slightly below the 12.5 million bales that experts estimate will be needed for domestic and export markets in the year beginning Aug. 1, the report added.

According to the report, a sharp increase in cotton prices following the Mississippi floods may produce increased cotton planting in other areas to partly offset acreage losses in the delta. Economists said some delta planters are switching to soybeans, which can be planted later than cotton.

The report said export sales in the current marketing year, spurred by stronger demand, including sales to mainland China, may reach or top 5 million bales, but that overloaded shipping facilities may limit actual movement to about 4.75 million bales. This would be the largest export figure since the 5.7 million bales of 1963.

Domestically, mill use of cotton was expected to sag to about 7.75 million bales from 8.2 million a year earlier, the lowest since the 6.9 million bale figure for 1938. A spokesman said, however, the current year's figure could also equal the 7.8 million bale level of 1948.

Sale rules change

BOISE (UPI) — Amended regulations for sale of timber from national resource lands administered by the Bureau of Land Management will become effective July 1, William L. Mathews, Idaho BLM director announced today.

One revision is a change in the bidding procedure requiring a person who wishes to participate in oral auctions for BLM timber to submit a written bid. Previously, potential bidders were permitted to qualify by posting a deposit, but were not obligated to bid during the oral auction.

Revised timber sale procedures also will allow a timber sale purchaser to furnish a performance bond to insure payment of the first installment on a contract and to provide payment bond to allow him to cut and remove timber before payment.

Landmark study nears completion

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Though the study is nearly completed, it may be two years before the City of Rocks is designated a national landmark, John A. Rutter said Thursday.

Rutter, director of the Pacific Northwest Region of the National Park Service, told about 40 people that July has been set for final reports and recommendations to the park advisory board on the area south of Burley.

"If the plan is approved by the board, he said, it must be submitted to the legislature for approval. Previously bills frequently took two years to get through the interior committee," Rutter said, but "I'm being optimistic, I don't feel that it need take two years."

Under the tentative plans, Rutter said, the major development would be in the periphery areas and the core area would be restored as nearly as possible to its historic condition.

Car use would eventually be phased out and replaced by stagecoaches and covered wagons provided by the park service. Hiking trails would also be laid out.

Some informal camping would be allowed in the area, he said, along with rock climbing, although it will be restricted to areas without specific historic interest.

Rocks will be sand-blasted to remove marks of recent vandalism and proper sanitation service will be established, he told the group.

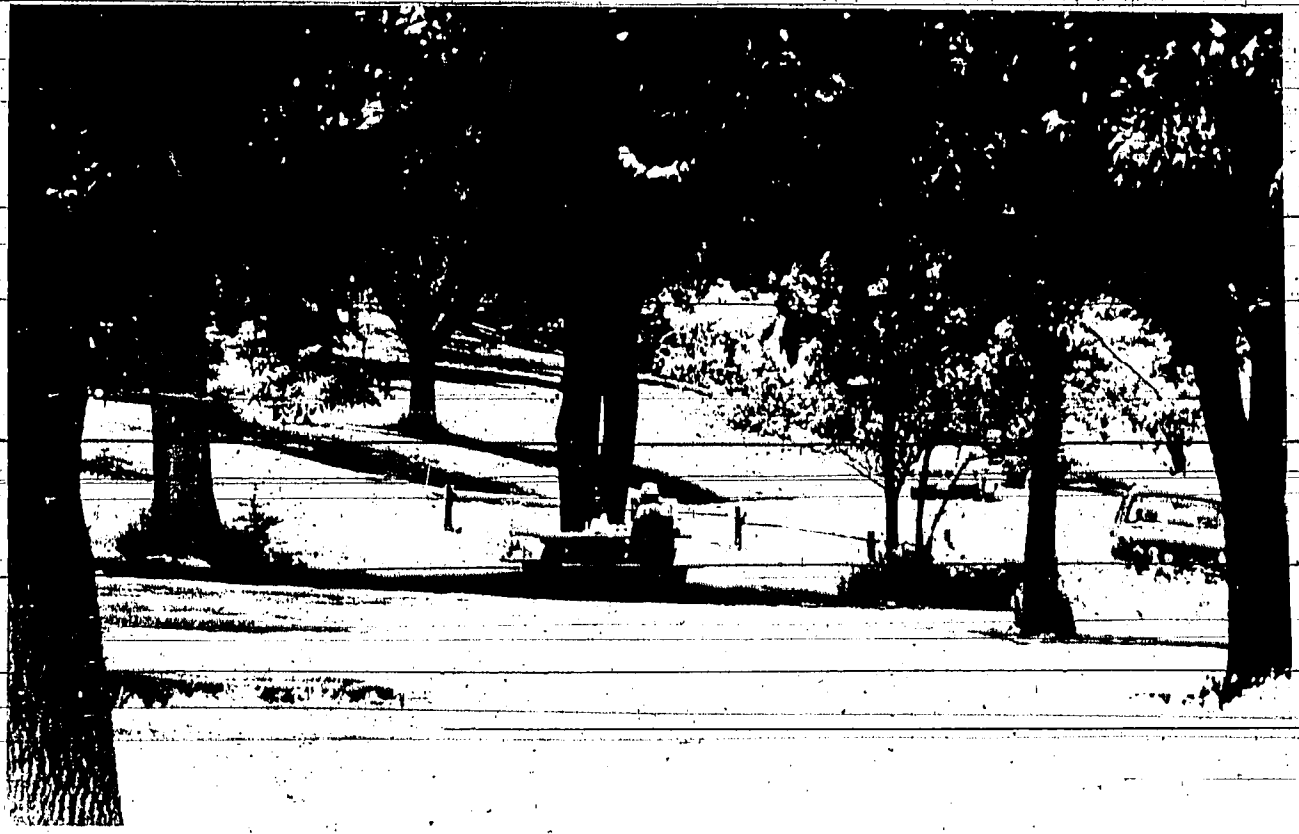

The exact extent of the area has not been determined, he said, but plans are being made to negotiate for a buffer zone agreement with landowners surrounding the area.

Grazing will be allowed in some areas for a while, Rutter said, and will be allowed indefinitely in others.

From a natural as well as an historic standpoint the area is "outstanding," he said. Because of its double significance, the park service had a choice of designations to give it, he said.

Currently plans are to make it a national monument, although when the Oregon Trail historic study is completed, the City of Rocks may become part of a national historic complex, he said.

"I don't think the world will beat a path to our door," Rutter said in response to a question about expected area use. "But the area will draw a lot of history buffs, and there are a lot of people interested in history in this country today," he said.

Conrad reported a "nice staging" as the first stage of the Saturn 1 rocket fell away on schedule. Moments later he reported the launch escape tower jettisoned without problems.

"We're go here, Houston," Conrad said, his voice reflecting his obvious delight to be spaceborne for the fourth time. The pilot is a veteran of two Gemini Earth-orbital missions and one Apollo moon landing. "It looks good in here," he reported.

The first stage dropped away as planned 2 1/2 minutes after liftoff and the rocket's second stage took over, accelerating the Apollo to the 16,850 mile an hour orbital speed.

Almost seven minutes after launch, the crew was 101 miles into space and 416 miles downrange from Cape Kennedy. The astronauts were traveling almost parallel to the east coast of the United States, "the most northerly powered flight for astronauts thus far," mission control reported.

Conrad's on-board computer showed the spacecraft had achieved an orbit ranging 217 to 211 miles above Earth. Mission control confirmed his figures and said everything was going as planned.

Skylab was about 750 miles ahead of Apollo in its 157th orbit around the Earth when the astronauts began their mission.

"Coming up over Europe," reported Conrad on the first circuit: "I've never seen so many contrails in my life down there."

A radio relay aircraft was supposed to provide communications between the spacecraft and ground at the time Apollo achieved orbit, but failed to do so. A few minutes later, however, radio contact was established and Conrad reported a smooth separation and said he'd gotten "a good look at the booster."

Debris cleared on Burley rails

BURLEY — The railroad tracks west of Burley were opened before 11 this morning as Union Pacific crews cleaned up the aftermath of yesterday's derailment.

One engine unit and five railroad cars have yet to be re-railed following the accident which threw three engines and nine railroad cars including a 30,000 gallon propane tank off the tracks near Starr's Ferry four miles west of Burley at about 5:15 a.m. Thursday.

A crew of about 55 men began work yesterday afternoon and continued until 11 p.m. Beginning again at 7 a.m. today, they had the track cleared by mid-morning.

Work should be finished Saturday afternoon, according to trainmaster Paul Wint.

No estimates of damage have made and a thorough investigation is planned in the next day or two, Wes Soulier, assistant director of public relations for Union Pacific in the intermountain area said.

The cause of the accident was reportedly a switch which had been left open Wednesday night after a car had been unloaded at the siding. An eastbound train apparently set the switch as it passed and the westbound train was thrown off the track as it passed over the switch later.

Although the liquid petroleum car was punctured in the accident there was no fire. Fire trucks with foam equipment were called to the scene but were not used. The propane car has not yet been re-railed.

Summer program set

GOODING — Preparations are being made for the summer recreation program at Gooding.

The city swimming pool will open June 1, and painting began this week. The arts and crafts program is scheduled to begin June 11 and baseball program will begin June 1.

Marlene Lees, director of the Senior Citizens Center said objectives for the second year including remedial services, telephone reassurance to begin in July, meals on wheels, meals at the center, and better transportation for the seniors.

In the future the center hopes to provide a retired senior volunteer program and a foster grandparents program, she said. The first year's program was concentrated on recreation and free time activity and two hundred people attended the center during the last year, she said.

Services slated

WENDELL — Memorial services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday the traditional Memorial day, in the Wendell Cemetery.

The Wendell High School band will play. Dee Collins, commander of American Legion Post No. 41 will be in charge. Speaker will be Eugene (Gene) Halstrom, Weiser, state department commander of the Legion.

Tax study planned

HAILEY — The Associated Taxpayers of Idaho has agreed to conduct a study on the tax impact of the McCulloch Properties, Inc., development, Hailey.

Max Vost, Boise, executive secretary for the organization, said Thursday that he was approached by W.D. (Marty) Martindale, Hailey, to conduct the tax impact study.

Questions about the McCulloch development's projected impact on taxes formed most of the discussion at the Hailey City Council public hearing on the McCulloch petition for annexation.

The Associated Taxpayers of Idaho is an independent statewide group of taxpayers.

Cars derailed

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — Four cars of a Union Pacific freight train left the tracks on the Capital Avenue crossing today in downtown Idaho Falls.

The derailment blocked traffic as Union Pacific personnel attempted to clear the tracks and the roadway.

The cause of the mishap was not immediately known.

Officials said no injuries were reported.

Rains cause slide

WEISER, Idaho (UPI) — Heavy rains caused a mud and rock slide north of Weiser which covered a road and a section of Union Pacific Railroad track.

Washington County Sheriff Jim Johnson said the slide occurred Thursday night about five miles north of Weiser. He said about a 100 yards of railroad track were covered with mud and rock and a section of the old Ferry Road was also covered.

Johnson said a Union Pacific train ran into the slide Thursday night, but damage was minor. There were no injuries.

The train moved through the area this morning.

No hearing set tonight

TWIN FALLS — There will be no public hearings tonight on EPA pollution permits for Amalgamated Sugar Co. of Twin Falls and two other Idaho sugar companies.

A listing of the meeting on the College of Southern Idaho calendar, as well as press releases, are reportedly in error. The meeting will be held June 25.

Jerome facility contract awarded

JEROME — Dilman Construction Co., Twin Falls, has been awarded the contract to construct the Idaho Fish and Game regional office east of Jerome.

The Idaho Public Works director made the announcement Wednesday that the contract had been awarded to the firm, upon recommendation of the Idaho Fish and Game Commission.

Dilman's bid was $115,781 which was the second lowest bid received by the department. The lowest bidder, Wills Construction, Twin Falls, was disqualified when it was learned one of the sub-contractors was not licensed by the state.

Construction is expected to begin June 4, with completion scheduled for Oct. 1.

Work already has begun on the construction of a covered storage shed and covered parking area which will be located behind the new office building. This work is being done by Keyes Construction Co., Caldwell.

Philip Jenson, Boise, Fish and Game department engineer, has been transferred to Jerome for the duration of the construction and will serve as resident engineer on the project.

Horse show set

CAREY — Events for quarter, Arabian, appaloosa and grade horses will be featured at the annual Carey Valley Horse Show Saturday in Carey.

According to show secretary Becky Eldredge, the show will be conducted at the Carey rodeo grounds, with halter classes beginning at 9 a.m. and performance classes beginning at 2 p.m.

Overall judge for the show will be Austin Beebe. Ted Grand Dilworth will serve as grade horse event judge.

Miss Eldredge said the show has been approved by the American Quarter Horse Association (AQHA) and the Idaho Quarter Horse Association.

Trophies will be awarded to first place winners, she said, with ribbons awarded to second and third place winners. Awards will be given to the grand champion and the grand champion reserve.

Miss Eldredge said this year the AQHA has donated a trophy to be awarded to the all-around, high-point youth exhibitor. Admission to the horse show is free.

Shopping problem aired at Shoshone

SHOSHONE — If the out-of-town shopping pattern in Shoshone does not change the town could "die on the vine."

That warning came at a meeting of the Lincoln County Development Inc., Thursday night from Joe Slagg and Ben Sorensen, both Boise, representing the Mountain States wholesale division of Albertson's.

The mendicussed the possible location of a shopping center here and told what is involved in setting up such a center. They also reported on a survey taken in Shoshone earlier by their firm.

Dr. Rick Hart, Boise, director of the Business Research Institute at Boise State College, was the main speaker at the meeting. He discussed the feasibility of local business development and advised the Lincoln group to formulate definite objectives.

He said he will return before the June 21 meeting to assist with study-of-business-developments.

Officers will be elected at the June 21 meeting, according to Robert Miller, president.

Eye gift brings sight

TWIN FALLS — On Mother's Day, a Pocatello teenager died following an auto accident near Twin Falls.

This week, a Texas youth reportedly will see because of an eye transplant from the dead boy.

Kevin Barney, 16, suffered extensive internal injuries in a one-car rollover east of Twin Falls on May 11. He died on May 13 at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital after two days of unsuccessful effort by physicians there to save his life.

Following the decision by the boy's mother, Mrs. Raey Barney of Pocatello, that her son's eyes should be donated to an eye bank, contact was made by the hospital with the local Lions Club, which in turn arranged for shipment by air to the Lions International Eyesight Foundation in Boise.

The specially designed ice-packed container carrying the donated eyes was re-shipped almost immediately from Boise to Corpus Christi, Tex., in answer to an emergency request.

According to James E. Rosenbaum, Magic Valley Memorial Hospital administrator, although the term "eye transplant" is commonly used, what actually happens is that only a portion of the corner of the eye is implanted.

The corners the thin covering of the eyeball. A small window, large enough to cover the iris, or colored portion, and pupil of the eye, is transplanted onto the damaged eye of the recipient.

Corneal transplants are used to prevent blindness in cases where the cornea has become injured or occluded due to trauma, a foreign body or some disease process.

"We have just learned that a corneal transplant from Kevin Barney was surgically performed on an 18-year-old boy who desperately needed it," Rosenbaum said. "At last report it appeared the transplant was successful."

Rosenbaum praised the Barney family in deciding upon this "living memorial" and expressed appreciation for the role of the Lions Club and Lions International.

Power outage

BOISE (UPI) — A series of power outages beginning about 11:30 p.m. Thursday left Boise without traffic lights and had the Ada County Sheriff and St. Alphonsus Hospital on emergency power system.

A transformer blew up on Fourth Street leaving the east and north sections of the city in the dark. Another outage was reported in the vicinity of Highway 44 west of town.

Officials at St. Alphonsus said their emergency power system went into use shortly after midnight.

Rodeo events start

FILER — More than 100 college contestants will be participating today and Saturday in the College-Rodeo event at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds.

There will be 14 college rodeo teams including the College of Southern Idaho team participating in three performances. The first will be at 7:30 p.m. tonight and two are scheduled on Saturday. An afternoon show at 1:30 p.m. will feature special family rates for two adults and any six youngsters 16 years of age or under.

The final performance will be at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. Some of the area's top college rodeo performers will be taking part in the nine events scheduled for each performance.

Half rate asked for 'seniors'

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has recommended to the Idaho Parks and Recreation Board that the overnight camping fees for residents over 65 be cut by 50 per cent.

The camping fees in Idaho range from $2 to $4 per night, depending on the facilities.

In a letter to Earl T. Gunnell, chairman of the board, Andrus said, "I recommend that the overnight camping fees for all Idaho residents 65 years of age or older be reduced to one-half the fee normally charged Idaho residents."

Andrus told a press conference today that he was vitally concerned about the ability of retired townsmen, most living on fixed incomes, to afford the increased charge for camping in parks their tax dollars have constructed and maintained.

Crowd seeks safety

BELFAST (UPI) — A crowd of men and women seeking work fled to safety Thursday minutes before a bomb blew out the front wall of a government-employment office in Cookstown, 30 miles west of Belfast. Police said no one was hurt.

In Belfast, the army reported soldiers said they hit a gunman in the Roman Catholic Andersonstown district after a foot patrol was fired on. Later police reported a 19-year-old youth was admitted to a hospital with a neck wound.

Londonderry was reported quiet after two days of clashes between troops and police and gangs of young rioters who hijacked and burned buses and other vehicles to protest against the death of a youth struck by a rubber bullet.

The death toll in nearly four years of violence among Northern Ireland's minority Catholics, majority Protestants and security forces stood at 802.

Police said a long line of persons was waiting at the employment office in Cookstown when an anonymous telephone caller reported that a bomb had been planted in the building and gave a seven-minute warning of the blast.

Andrus urges 'gas' plan

BOISE (UPI) — Because of the "so-called" gasoline shortage, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus revealed a plan today urging Idahoans to take their vacations within the Gem State.

"Whatever the facts may be concerning the reported shortage of gasoline in the United States, or whether in fact there will be an actual shortage of gasoline this summer, it is clear that rumors or reports of shortages may cause many people to cancel or curtail planned vacation trips this summer," Andrus said.

The governor told a press conference that the "so-called" gasoline shortage may "cut seriously into the volume of our summer tourist and recreation business." He added that tourism is one of the leading industries in Idaho, touching many segments of the state's business life.

He said because many Idahoans may cancel their vacation plans in light of the energy situation, the governor suggested they take a "leisure loop-tour" through their home state.

"I am urging that this summer and fall, Idahoans spend their vacations in Idaho," the governor said, "getting acquainted with parts of the state they may not previously have visited."

He said the two-week trip through the state would cover 1,750 miles, less than a trip from Bonners Ferry to San Francisco.

He suggested that the trip could be driven at a slow pace, saving gasoline.

"Let me repeat," Andrus said, "Idaho is a great place to visit this summer and fall. Let's make that a slogan for Idahoans."

He said in the past the state has been advertised as the place to go.

"For Idahoans, it is also the place to be, and the place to Jail break foiled

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Two astonished guards at escape-prone Orleans Parish Prison foiled yet another break from the old jail by picking up a would-be fugitive who bounced out of a garbage can and landed at their feet.

Police said Wednesday Kenneth Tate, the 119-pound prospective escapee, was hiding inside a garbage can being carried out of the jail by another inmate.

But the inmate tired of carrying the can and bounced it down a flight of steps.

Assorted scraps of barbage landed at the feet of the two guards. So did Tate, who was returned to his cell.

Dean talks 'facts'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Dean, ousted White House legal counsel, testified under oath Thursday at a closed congressional hearing about what he knows about the sudden transfer of some files from the Securities & Exchange Commission to the Justice Department.

A House investigation subcommittee summoned Dean for testimony about the action, involving 35 boxes of files relating to an antitrust suit filed against the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. over ITT's proposed merger with Hartford Fire Insurance Co. in 1971.

The shift from the SEC to the Justice Department kept congressional investigators from seeing the records for a time.

Included in the material was a controversial memo attributed to Dita Beard, an ITT lobbyist, suggesting that ITT was trying to arrange a favorable settlement of the suit in return for a promise to provide $400,000 to help underwrite costs of the 1972 Republican presidential convention.

Dean refused to talk about the case with reporters as he entered the hearing room. He was accompanied by his wife Maureen who came along out of "curiosity as to what a hearing is," Dean said.

The committee chairman, Rep. Harley C. Staggers, D-W.Va., said the hearing would involve "the ITT case in general and some other related question."

A thought for the day: American poet Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "Happy is the house that shelters a friend."

Blaine asks volunteers

HAILEY — Volunteers are being sought for the newly formed Blaine County Search and Rescue organization.

The group was initiated to provide a well-trained and well-equipped mobilized force of volunteers that can carry out and conduct search and rescue missions within the county," it said in a statement.

Organized as a division of the Wood-River Recreation Association, the group will be under the direction of Blaine County Sheriff Orville Drexler. According to Bill Osterstein, Hailey, one of the organizers, a need exists for people with all types of search and rescue equipment.

"We want people who have off-the-road vehicles, snowmobilers, boats, scuba and skin divers, cross country skiers, mountain and rock climbers, people with horses and people on foot," he said.

Officers will be elected and members accepted, at a meeting scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday, May 31, at the county courthouse, Hailey.

Prospective members must be 18 years old or older.

Nicklaus fast finish nets tie for lead at Atlanta

ATLANTA (UPI) — Always favored Jack Nicklaus, showing the class that has carried him to the top of the golf world, closed with a pair of birdies Thursday to post a 5-under-par 67 and a tie with David Glenz and B.R. "Mac" McLendon for the first round lead in the $150,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

Nicklaus, who had not played since winning the Tournament of Champions last month — his third victory this year in just nine appearances — seemingly was out of contention for the lead going into the final two holes.

But he two-putted from 60 feet on the par 5, 17th hole to close within one stroke and then placed his approach shot just five feet from the cup and sank the putt he needed at the final hole to catch Glenz and McLendon.

The "Golden Bear," favored to top every time he shows up, made an even more sensational shot nine holes earlier when he nearly went into a lake and still salvaged a par.

Tour sophomore Glenz sank a 35-foot eagle putt on his final hole.

Glenz, a 24-year-old Oregon native who tied for eighth at Houston and for fourth last week at Memphis, also had two 25-foot birdie putts and another birdie putt of 15 feet.

"These greens are so nice, you can have a 30 foot putt and think about making it," the modish Glenz said with a grin. "On most courses, when you have a 30-footer, you usually think about laying up."

Nicklaus, Glenz and McLendon, who had to battle a swirling wind during most of their rounds as late starters over the hilly, rain-soaked Atlanta Country Club course, held a one-stroke lead over a trio of early starters.

In at 68 were four-lookies Bruce Ashworth and Tom Kite plus Hubert Green.

Dave Hill, winner last week at Memphis, was at 3-under 69 along with Rod Funseth and Larry Wise, a long-time club pro who just rejoined the tour three months ago.

Gary Player, making his 1973 U.S. debut after having to delay his return from South Africa because of an operation, shot a 4-over 76 Thursday, nine strokes higher than the score with which he shared the lead in Wednesday's pro-am.

Nicklaus, who missed three relatively short birdie putts, said he was "very happy about my round." Nicklaus said the course "was not very demanding lengthwise," but required a great deal of finesse.

"This was especially true today because of the way the wind was swirling," Nicklaus added. "You had to make good guesses and the wind didn't always hold the way you expected."

McLendon started off with a 25-foot birdie putt but was only one under at the turn. He had five birdies coming home on putts ranging from 4 to 15 feet but missed an eight-footer that would have given him the lead alone.

Top moneywinner Bruce Crampton, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer are not playing here this week. Nicklaus, who already has won more than $146,000 — an average of better than $18,000 per tournament — can regain this year's money lead by winning the $30,000 top prize here.

Nicklaus said earlier reports that he had played very little since the Tournament of Champions were in error, that actually he played all nine days prior to coming to Atlanta.

Billy Casper, making a rare appearance in this part of the country, shot even par 72 Thursday while Masters champion Tommy Aaron, a native Georgian who won this tournament three years ago, had a 75.

Rodgers decides to try Canadian ball

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Johnny Rodgers, the flashy flanker from Nebraska and winner of the 1972 Heisman Trophy, has decided to play professional football in Canada for more money.

The 21-year-old Rodgers, who was a No. 1 draft pick of the San Diego Chargers, said he will sign a contract today with the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League.

He did not reveal the terms but there was speculation he would get in the neighborhood of $100,000 a season plus fringe benefits.

Rodgers was represented in negotiations for his first pro contract by World Sports Management, a Los Angeles firm which called a news conference Thursday to make the Montreal announcement.

Mike Trope, president of the firm, said the offer accepted by Rodgers was "80 to 100 per cent larger" than the last offer made by the Chargers. He said the Chargers told him their offer was larger than that made to most first round draft picks.

The Chargers head coach, Harland Svare, did a rather unusual thing — he made a statement saying if the Chargers went any higher they would have grossly distorted the salary structure within the San Diego organization.

Svare's complete statement was:

"We made our best offer. Anything above that would have grossly distorted the salary structure within the San Diego organization. We could not justify those kinds of salary demands for a rookie and still be fair to the heart and soul of our team — the veterans. One individual does not win championships. Teams do."

California probes Charger drug use

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The California Board of Medical Examiners and district attorney's office said Thursday they have begun investigations into allegations members of the San Diego Chargers National Football League team were supplied with potent drugs which were taken without prescriptions.

"The case has now been officially opened for investigation," Darrell Schryver, special consumer investigator for the district attorney's office, said. "We will be getting the depositions as soon as possible."

The alleged drug practices were revealed in depositions taken in a lawsuit filed by former San Diego player Houston Hodge against the Chargers. An out-of-court settlement was reached in the case.

The San Diego Union newspaper carried a series of articles concerning the depositions recently.

The information was so clear and well documented by depositions that it was mandatory that some form of probe be started as soon as possible," Ray Reed, executive director of the Board of Medical Examiners, said in Sacramento.

The depositions said basically that the Chargers were given 1,000 prescription pills a year through a bulk delivery system. In one year, 2,250 desbutal pep pill capsules, 1,850 sedative-type drugs and 1,000 capsules of molidar, a sleeping pill, were among the drugs delivered, the depositions said.

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Tennis Association will sponsor a tennis clinic Saturday at Harmon Park. Adults will be given fundamentals from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Children will be instructed from 1 to 3 p.m.

Vandals sign 3 eagles

MOSCOW — Wayne Anderson, head basketball coach for the Idaho Vandals announced Wednesday that three more highly recruited basketball players have signed National Letters of Intent to attend the University of Idaho.

Tim Bollin, a 6' 8" forward from Livonia — Bentley High School at Livonia, Mich., is an excellent shooter and was named to the all-league team this year. He averaged 22.6 points a game and was voted the Outstanding Player in his league.

Randy Sheriff is a 6' 7", 205-pound forward who played for Coach Ben Snowden of the AAA Washington State Championship Roosevelt High School team of Seattle, Wash. Sheriff averaged 12.1 points a game this year and then capped it off with a 22-point performance as he led his team to the AAA title in the championship game.

Art Blackwell, a 6' 2", 185-pound guard, rated honorable mention as an All-American junior college player from Southwestern Community College in Creston, Iowa, this past year.

Coach Anderson has previously announced the signing of 6' 6" Craig Palmer of Challis High School at Challis, Idaho, and 6' 2" Terry Scodeller, who played for Cascade High School at Everett, Wash.

Quarry will fight Shavers

NEW YORK (UPI) — First there was the proposed $1 million match with George Foreman. Then it was to be Venezuelan Jose Luis Garcia. After that, the name of Jimmy Ellis was mentioned as an opponent for Jerry Quarry.

Foreman said "No," Garcia got knocked out in a tuneup, and Ellis wasn't ready. So matchmaker Teddy Brenner has come up with Earnie Shavers to fight Quarry in a 12-round bout at Madison Square Garden on June 16.

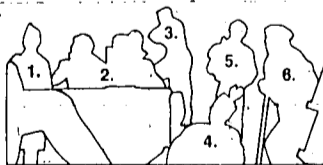

The winner of this so-called "elimination" bout will get the opportunity to scream and yell for a shot at the title.

Temporary setback

ALWAYS FAVORED — Jack Nicklaus grimaces as he misses a birdie putt on the 16th green during opening round play in the Atlanta golf tournament. But he birdied the next two holes for a five-under par 67 to tie for the lead with Dave Glenz and B. R. McLendon. (UPI telephoto).

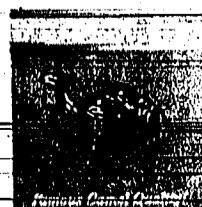

Can you spot the Camel Filters smoker?

Even at the firemen's parade, everyone seems to have a gimmick — almost everyone. Pick the one who doesn't. 1. Sorry Meel "Clean Ed" Mealmangel, discount diner owner. Gimmick: Leaves his thumb print in the mashed potatoes. Smokes: ABL's "Any Brand Left" in the ash trays. 2. No. And no Tex'n Tully, icky-poo radio-TV personality. Gimmick: If it moves, interview it. They once even used a stethoscope to talk to a mole. 3. Jerry Jabroni. Spends so much time setting up, he never sees parade. Smokes cigarettes so super-long he almost needs binoculars to light them. 4. He's Tom Thump. His bass drum really is a gimmick. Can't stand the noise, but he likes to wear it. Puts cotton in his ears and in his cigarette filters. 5. Right. He enjoys the passing parade without any gimmicks. That's why he smokes Camel Filters. They're good tasting, easy and honest. His kind of cigarette. 6. He's "Swapps" Streato. Hopes mounted police won't parade. But they always do.

Indy racers run through last test

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Under threatening skies, the starting field in the $1 million Indianapolis 500 auto race made final carburetion tests Thursday without any mishaps. Former winner Bobby Unser, the fastest qualifier last year, turned in the best practice speed at 192.5 miles per hour in his Dan Gurney Eagle.

Al Unser, Bobby's younger brother and twice winner of the Memorial Day Classic, was second fastest at 191.4. Only two other drivers were timed unofficially at 190 or better.

Dave "Swede" Savage and Mike Mosley.

Gary Bettenhausen, another favorite in Monday's race, was clocked at better than 189 mph. All 33 starting machines and one alternate made final practice runs over the 2 1/2 mile oval under simulated racing conditions and with full fuel loads.

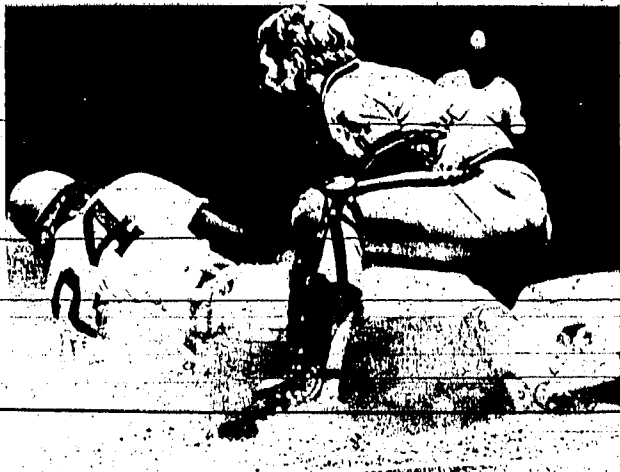

The only incident came when a car driven by Dave "Salt" Wadner stalled and needed a tow.

Following the three-hour racing period, crews were allowed two more hours for pit practice but without engines running. The track then was closed to be cleaned in preparation for Monday's race.

Chief Steward Harlan Pengler and his staff also met Thursday with drivers, car owners and mechanics to go over the rules and various procedures to be followed on race day.

The flying start of the race is scheduled for noon EDT, Monday, following a parade lap and a pace lap, with pole sitter Johnny Rutherford in the No. 1 starting spot.

Clarke wins west's first hockey award

MONTREAL (UPI) — Bobby Clarke, 23-year-old high-scoring center of the Philadelphia Flyers, today became the first western division player in National Hockey League history to win the league's most valuable player award.

A diabetic who takes daily insulin shots, Clarke was voted the Hart Memorial Trophy by a wide margin over center Phil Esposito of the Boston Bruins, who won the trophy in 1969, and defenseman Bobby Orr of the Bruins, who was the NHL's most valuable player in each of the last three seasons.

Clarke, who stands 5-10 and weighs 175 pounds, received 154 points in the voting by members of the Professional Hockey Writers' Association in the 16 NHL cities. Esposito was the runner-up with 96 points, followed by Orr with 63, Ken Dryden of the Montreal Canadiens with 53 and Gil Perreault of the Buffalo Sabres with 45. No other player received more than eight points in the voting.

Clarke, who finished second in scoring with 104 points, is a native of Elm Flon, Manitoba, and is the first known diabetic to play in the NHL. Some experts doubted that he would have the stamina to play in the NHL because of his ailment.

U.S. selects 12 collegians for basketball tour of China

WALTHAM, Mass. (UPI) — A group of 12 collegiate basketball players, including two each from Kentucky and Memphis State, will tour the Republic of China for three weeks and compete in eight games.

The team, headed by Kevin Greve and Jim Andrews of Kentucky and Ronnie Robinson and Larry Finch of Memphis State, will arrive in Hong Kong June 14. It will begin playing two days later along the Chinese border. The players are scheduled to return July 7.

Announcement of the team members and playing schedule was made Thursday by Nicholas Rodis, director of athletics at Brandeis University and president of the United States Collegiate Sports Council, which is coordinating the tour for the State Department.

The full squad includes: Andrews, Greve, Robinson, Finch, Alvin Adams of Oklahoma, George Karl of North Carolina, George Pannell of South Plains Junior College, Kevin Stacom of Providence, John Shumate of Notre Dame, Quinn Buckner of Indiana, Donald Jackson of Xavier, La., and Richard Kelly of Stanford.

Gene Bartow, who led Memphis State to the finals of the NCAA tournament, will coach the squad, with help from Bob Hopkins of Xavier of New Orleans. Bartow has compiled a 63-21 record in three years at Memphis and coached the 1972 Puerto Rican Olympic basketball team.

OSU given okay on bias claim

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon State University was cleared by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare Thursday on charges it discriminated against two black athletes.

The team headed by Kevin Greve and Jim Andrews of Kentucky and Ronnie Robinson and Larry Finch of Memphis State, will arrive in Hong Kong June 14. It will begin playing two days later along the Chinese border. The players are scheduled to return July 7.

Demaret challenges gal golfer

HOUSTON (UPI) — Jimmy Demaret, a member of the golf hall of fame, Thursday accepted an offer to play Donna Caponi Young, but said he would like to play for more than $10,000.

In a report to Robert MacVicar, the university president, HEW said, "On the basis of evidence gathered during the investigation, the office has concluded that neither Verdell Adams nor Bobby McCarty was discriminated against on the basis of their race."

"The evidence did not support the additional allegation that retaliatory action had been taken against Verdell Adams," HEW said.

HEW said, however, "There are still some problem areas which need the university's attention" in regard to race relations.

Adams had charged he was cut from the Oregon State baseball team without grounds and that he was not provided adequate coaching by then-coach Gene Tanselli. Tanselli later was released as coach.

Later Adams charged that the university had denied him financial aid because he had filed the original complaint.

Mrs. Young, 28, who won the $30,000 Bluegrass Invitational in Louisville last month, sent Demaret a telegram challenging him to play her on the Hunting Creek Country Club course in Louisville. She said $10,000 had offered for a winner-take-all match.

Demaret, 60, who won the Masters in 1940, 1947 and 1950, last week challenged Kathy Whitworth, the leading money winner on the women's tour. He has not received an answer from her.

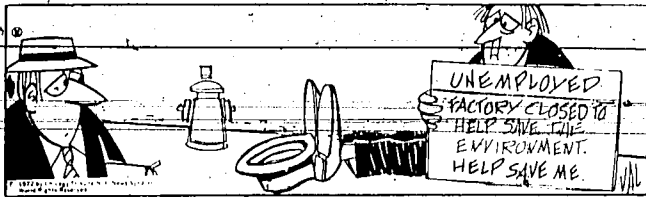

"I'd love to play Donna or any of the other ladies," Demaret said. "I want to give it some thought and raise the ante a little bit."

"I don't care where we play," he said. "I'd rather play here in Houston. It'd probably be of more interest."

He said he had talked to a television official about televising part of the match.

Church census planned; Luke, Acts, to Twin Falls homes

TWIN FALLS — Twelve Twin Falls congregations are planning to participate in a scripture distribution and census Pentecost Sunday, June 10.

Their effort will involve as many as 400 people in placing copies of the books of Luke and Acts in every Twin Falls home.

The Rev. James B. Hughes of the First Baptist Church is general chairman of the Pentecost Sunday project. He notes that it will be conducted in relation to Key 73, the continent-wide evangelistic thrust composed of over 150 Christian brotherhoods in the U. S. and Canada.

Rev. Hughes expressed this week his hopes that congregations participating in the Key 73 emphasis will commit themselves to both prayer and action in achieving the objectives of the Twin Falls effort. Sunday members of the local congregations will make their commitments to the scripture distribution ministry by dedicating themselves to assist on June 10.

Each congregation will report its number of callers to Pastor Eugene B. Tjarks of Our Savior Lutheran, who will be responsible for assigning calling areas to each congregation in accord with its number of workers. It is hoped that each church can have a caller for every twenty families of its active membership.

The Rev. Father Cosmas White of St. Benedict's Priory and Pastor Donald H. Winroward, Immanuel Lutheran minister, will organize each congregation's materials so that they can be picked up at the Episcopal Church of the Ascension the morning of May 2.

The Rev. Leslie C. Brown, minister of Valley Christian Church, will direct publicity for the project and serve as treasurer. He said that the total cost of the scripture distribution ministry will be around $750 and has asked participating churches to continue their faithful support of the evangelistic effort.

Training of callers will be the responsibility of each congregation and will follow a basic guide which will be sent to each church. At 2:00 p.m. Pentecost Sunday, just prior to going out a brief prayer service will be held at the band shell in the city park for the callers. Following the devotions, the callers will embark on their ministry.

Other churches participating in the effort, include the First Assembly of God, First Christian Church, First Church of the Nazarene, First United Methodist, First United Presbyterian, and the Maple Valley Christian Center.

Others may share in the effort and are invited to do so by contacting Rev. Hughes at the First Baptist Church.

Union difficult to accomplish

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Church union has proved very difficult to achieve through wholesale merger of national denominations.

However, it may yet come about piecemeal, through coalescence of local churches on the community level.

The need for a grass-roots approach to unity was a major theme of the recent meeting in Memphis, Tenn., of the Consultation on Church Union (COCU).

COCU is a forum in which eight U.S. Protestant denominations are trying to work out a merger. The project now is 11 years old. It has attained notable results in revealing what a large area of common ground already exists among Protestants on questions of faith and worship that once were bones of bitter contention. But the dedicated men and women for church unity in COCU have not succeeded, thus far, in imparting to rank and file members of their denominations their own bright vision of a united church.

As they acknowledged in a statement issued at Memphis, surveys of popular sentiment in the eight participating denominations reveal a general unreadiness to accept the organizational structures proposed for a united church.

LDS restoration center dedicated

NAUVOO, Ill. (UPI) — The restored home of Brigham Young and four other buildings here will be dedicated by the First Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints May 26.

The LDS First Presidency called the ceremony another major step in the restoration of historic Nauvoo.

President Marion G. Romney, second counselor in the Mormon Church leadership, and President Spencer W. Kimball, president of the LDS Council of Twelve Apostles, will participate in the ceremony.

The Brigham Young family moved into the two-story brick home May 31, 1843. One year later, after the fatal shooting of then-LDS President Joseph Smith, Young added two wings to the house. On Feb. 22, 1846, Young left here never to return.

As the second president of the Mormon Church, he led a group of pioneers to Salt Lake City.

The other buildings include the home of Lucy Mack Smith, widowed mother of Joseph Smith. The home was built in 1843. It had two stories and a full basement.

Also in the restoration project were the properties of Jonathan Browning, gunsmith and inventor of repeating firearms. He constructed a two-story brick home and brick blacksmith-gunsmith shop.

The Seventies Hall, dedicated Dec. 27, 1844, by Brigham Young, has also been reconstructed on its original foundation. The first floor served as a chapel, and the second level as a community library and museum.

And the last structure in the home of Edwin P. Webb. The building was finished in August of 1843 and served the city as a wagon and blacksmith shop. The limestone building included two forges.

The dedicatory services will be conducted at 2 p.m. in the LDS Visitors Center. All of the restored houses and buildings and the center are open to the public, free-of-charge.

Restoration activities at this western Illinois community began in 1962 with the creation of Nauvoo Restoration Incorporated. Dr. J. LeRoy Kimball, a Salt Lake City physician, is in charge of the activities.

There are many projects on the docket where both men and women can help. Meals will be furnished beginning with breakfast on Saturday. Those desiring can stay overnight Friday.

Those attending are asked to bring sleeping bags, warm clothing, towels and swimming suits, as well as tools, paint brushes and rollers.

Those planning to attend are requested to let Rev. Watson know.

Keenagers dine

TWIN FALLS — The Keenager group of the Presbyterian Church held its May potluck dinner in the church dining hall Tuesday evening.

Rev. Robert Van Nest gave the invocation preceding the dinner and introduced Mr. and Mrs. Dick Stafford-Kimberly, who showed slides of their tour of South America and displayed articles brought home from their trip. A copper necklace was purchased in Chile. It was one of the last ones made before Allende, Chile's President took over the Chiquilimata copper mine and the Anttonda refinery which the United States purchased in 1916.

A llama hair poncho was displayed which was made by the Inca Indians of Peru.

The Keenagers will have their next dinner meeting in September.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

"No blonde of any age need stay single long, if she is willing to move to Mexico City," says an international expert on romance. What our Language man now is trying to find is the origin of "horawoggle" and "bamboozle." One sort of earthworm in Australia defends itself by shooting an alkaline spray. Stings can go about 14 inches. Wasn't the Irish of shillelagh fame, as commonly believed, but the Dutch who introduced the night stick as a police tool. Blackmarket prices for stolen credit cards now is said to average about $120 apiece.

Ancient Greeks recorded the existence of that beast known as the gorilla. But less than 2,000 years ago if any believed there really lived such an animal. Wasn't until 126 years ago that the gorilla was rediscovered by the Western World. This fact is repeatedly pointed out by those believers who contend numerous unexamined animals are still at large. Such as the Abominable Snowman, the Loch Ness monster and the Big Foot beast of Northern California.

FRONTIERS

Am asked the whereabouts of some now frontiers, if any. Underpopulated places where men can go to make their fortunes off the land. Specifically don't know. Generally, do know that only one out of every 10 human beings live below the equator.

It's the female of the species, not the male, who's least apt to buckle up a car seat belt, studies show. The ladies are aversive to muzzing up their costumes, it's said.

Just overheard "I didn't realize how little my wife thought of me until she filed for divorce in Small Claims Court."

MR. RITZ

"The customer is always right." First to utter that largely forgotten phrase of yesteryear's merchandisers was Cosar Ritz, the famous hotel man. What, you've never heard of him, young fellow? His Ritz Hotel was regarded worldwide as the classiest. So classy, in fact, that anytime anybody got decked out in particularly fancy livery, seasoned citizens described said party as "putting on the Ritz." Oh, you've never heard that, either? How old we grow.

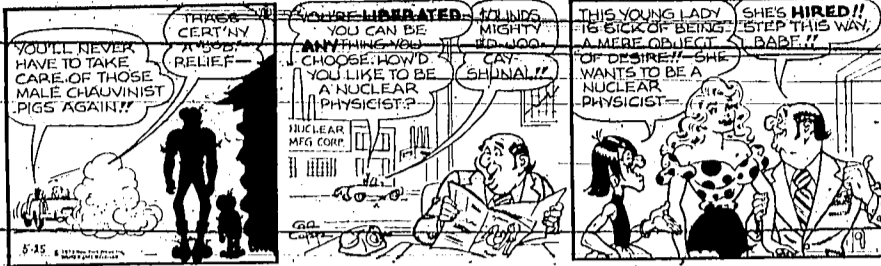

What's the most exclusive labor union in the world? The sidewalkers. Steel engravers. With a membership of about 40. They turn out the plates to make currency, stock, bonds and stamps.

Color for mourning in Turkey is violet. In Ethiopia, grayish brown. In Burma, yellow. And in some parts of China, white.

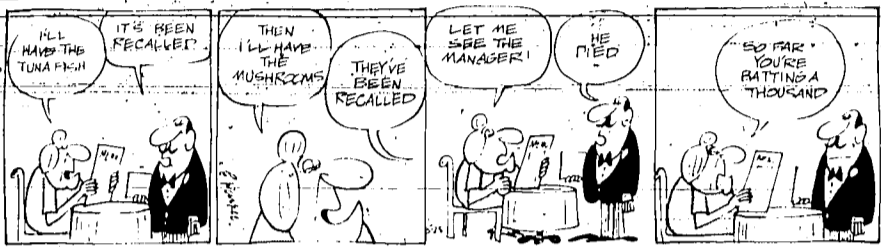

It's also a statistical fact that single girls sleep far more than do married women.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MAY 26, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES. Not a Saturday to take any chances, since possible depression, delays and many obstacles are in the path of your desires. Try to be philosophical and casual in what you do, expecting some hindering conditions so you will not get upset when it takes a while for things to work out as you wish. Keep cool, poised.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have much to do that could bring in benefits so don't feel sorry for yourself and complain, but get busy. See that utilities, etc., are in fine working order. Duties done today can save much time later.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Avoid that friend today who is acting in an obtrusive way, and go after your aims with vim and vigor. Take a run check on that invitation, since the social is not for you now. Make notations of good ideas.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure you do not jeopardize your position with bigwigs by doing something thoughtless, either in career or home affairs. Pay that bill instead of worrying about it. Show that you are conscientious in all that you do.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Read through those periodicals that will give you the information you need, but use a new slant for best results. Better avoid one who wants to clutter you out of your belongings. Use tact. LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You had better keep the promises you made to others instead of going out for fun, which is better relegated to another day. Use diplomacy with mate if you want more cooperation. An angry word could lead to trouble, real trouble.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Cut your conversations short with a partner or serious arguments could result. That civic work you have to do should be done in a clever fashion. Don't permit others to put one over on you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Patiently get at that work that is boring but which has to be done so you have more harmony around you. Beautify surroundings for greater happiness. The evening is good for going out to the theater.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) That plan for greater prosperity is not working out as yet, so get into light pleasure you like instead of fretting about it. Take the time to dress fastidiously. Avoid one who gets on your nerves.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Learn to keep calm in the face of noise and other disturbances at home, otherwise you could become a bundle of nerves. Make improvements at home that could include insulated rooms. Be practical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are feeling confused and should now take care in motion, speech, deals with others. Keep your money where it will be safe. Avoid those people who are using you for their own purposes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You may not be thinking very clearly now so take particular care in all you do and say. Do not overspend, and make it a habit to save more money in the days ahead. Don't take up with one who is unworthy.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have ideas but they may be quite far-out, so be sure to check first with experts before doing anything about them. They might be made workable then. That new friend may be too fast-moving. Steer clear of him or her.

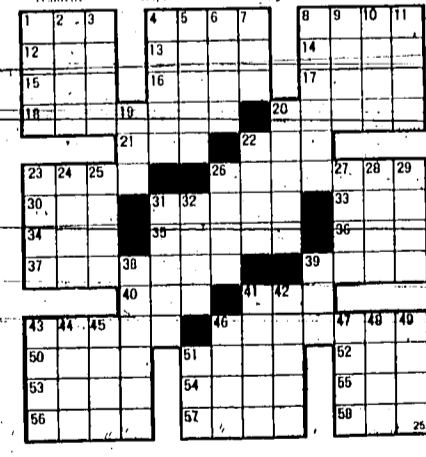

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one of those fascinating young people who needs much training in the truths of life, and should be given an opportunity to be with people of high standing early so that much of worth can be absorbed from them. Give as fine a practical education as you can afford and ethical training at home. Look after the diet so the depressive feeling here is eliminated. Sports in the fresh air are particularly fine here. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!
