Viet peace force hogs anew

SAIGON (UPI) — The four-nation peace keeping force, soon to be crippled by the withdrawal of Canada, bogged down for the fourth time in a week today in nearly five hours of argument over the right to veto.

Pocatello recall bid fails

By RICHARD CHAINOCK

BOISE (UPI) — A recall movement against State Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, failed on a technicality today.

The attorney general took under advisement the question of whether any work can be salvaged Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa met with attorneys for both sides, as well as Chief Deputy Attorney Gen. Clarence Sulter, the news media and a representative of the League of Women Voters to count petition signatures.

By law, the petitioners must obtain 2,336 — 20 per cent of those eligible to vote in the last general election in District 34 — by June 4 to start the recall election machinery moving.

A preliminary count of signatures showed 2,559. Then Cenarrusa began examining the petitions to make certain they contained all information required by law and that the signatures were legible.

Right off the bat he discovered that 341 — more than enough to halt the movement — failed to include the post office of the petitioners who signed.

Sulter said the law requires this to be included; he said the petition forms approved by his office in March contained this information on them.

Benjamin C. Rice, Meridian, an attorney representing the Pocatello petitioners, asked if the remainder of the petitions could be returned so that the defects could be cleared up. He said when an insufficient number of signatures are presented the law allows petitioners up to the statutory deadline to gather "further" signatures.

Sulter said he would have to take under advisement the question of whether the other petitions could be returned. He noted the law said "further" signatures.

He also declined to give an "off the cuff" opinion on whether Cenarrusa must reject by drawing a line through them all of the other signatures on the petitions which lack full information — possibly making them totally invalid in the future.

In examining the petitions, Cenarrusa said all the signatures appeared to be legible. He found one difficult to read but said he has seen many like it in the past and suggested the writer was nervous or possibly elderly or infirm.

Two dozen men and women — one carrying a small baby — arrived by bus from Pocatello Tuesday to present the petitions to Cenarrusa. They said they objected to Miss McDermott's stand on the Equal Rights Amendment and other legislative issues, but nobody would be quoted by name.

Today, Paula West — wife of Dr. Henry West, Pocatello, original spokesman for the petitioners — identified herself to newsmen and said "We will do whatever is necessary to make the recall a success."

Pending an opinion from Sulter on what to do with the remainder of the petitions, Cenarrusa rejected 234 signatures on grounds they contained insufficient information. That was enough to halt the recall movement at this point.

Officials plan to convene later today after Sulter has researched the legal questions involved.

Speed it up, Mac; traffic's delayed

TWIN FALLS — Twelve of 68 traffic citations issued by state police on US 93 north of Twin Falls over the holiday were to drivers going too slow.

According to Lt. Roy Thomas, heavy summer recreational traffic on the north-south route will lead to strict enforcement by state policemen.

He said part of the strict enforcement effort has led to issuance of citations to drivers travelling so slow as to impede traffic flow.

There were still three times as many citations issued to speeders than to slow drivers he said. In comparison to the 12 slow driving citations, there were 34 for speeding violations.

Five citations were for stop sign violations, one for improper equipment, nine for passing over solid lines, one for inattentive driving, two for following too closely, two for obstructing vision and two for intoxicated driving.

Skylab beams solar photos

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab's astronauts beamed back spectacular pictures of the sun today and prepared for man's first in orbit survey of such things as insect infestation in Texas, gypsum beds in New Mexico and volcanoes in Central America.

The initial use of the station's earth resources observation instruments was the major item on the schedule this afternoon. NASA hopes the cameras and other sensors will lead to new ways man can deal with some of his down to earth problems.

But before Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz started the earth resources work, the pilots turned on Skylab's high powered solar telescopes for the second day and flashed back excellent television images of the sun and its atmosphere.

"We've got a beautiful picture down here," said communications officer William Hartshoff.

The instrument in use was called a coronagraph. It used a disc to block out the sun itself so the telescope showed visible light rays from the solar atmosphere reaching out more than a million miles. It was sort of an artificial eclipse.

At one point, Conrad said he saw a bright object sweep through the image, which he monitored on a television screen aboard Skylab. "It looks like a satellite or something," he said, but Weitz said he thought it was debris outside the ship.

While the solar observations were underway, Kerwin started the first test of a man's susceptibility to motion sickness in space. A rotating chair was used and Weitz was the subject.

The astronauts began their sixth day in space when they were awakened at 5 a.m. MDT. They said they slept in Skylab's private bedrooms for the first time during the night.

Repair desired

TF housing aid sought

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The chancellor of the Boise Catholic Diocese toured poverty areas in Twin Falls Tuesday to study the need for housing improvement among elderly and handicapped.

The Community Improvement Association, a privately-run, low-income, social action agency operating in Twin Falls County, has filed an application with the Campaign for Human Development, a Catholic sponsored funding program, seeking $200,000 to upgrade low-income housing in the Twin Falls area.

Rev. Thomas A. Guadagnoli, Boise, Chancellor, toured with CIA officials to evaluate the grant proposal submitted to CHD.

Under the proposal, CIA would use the $200,000 to make grants and loans to poverty level families to bring houses up to adequate levels of safety and sanitation.

According to CIA Director Cecil Galley, the program would make loans or grants up to $3,500 to provide materials, labor and professional advice on housing repairs.

Galley said the program would not only accomplish the housing repairs but hopefully would also demonstrate that the poor "have a repayment capability." He said whether the money were put out in the form of a grant or a loan would depend upon the recipient's financial condition, but in most cases a loan would be arranged.

Rev. Guadagnoli met with CIA members briefly before beginning a tour of the low-income areas. He told the group CHD would have about $4.5 million available for distribution nationally but with over 1,700 applications he could not be too optimistic about CIA's chances of receiving funds. He said no Idaho project has ever been funded by the Catholic agency.

The tour began with a look at five homes built previously for low-income families under CIA's initiative, then moved to a tour of run-down homes, some of them literally shacks, in the Truck Lane area and in South Park.

In many of the homes plaster was falling off walls and ceilings, floors were cracked and rotting and wallpaper was peeling. Some had no indoor plumbing, or if installed it was inoperable.

Patches of tilled lawn and neat rows of vegetables in small gardens were conspicuously well-ordered against the background of crumbling buildings. Some unoccupied buildings were boarded over at windows and doors with "unsafe for occupancy" signs tacked on the criss-crossing boards.

Indo war fund blockade set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A 55 to 21 last vote in the Senate has erased any remaining doubts that Congress is ready to block funds for President Nixon's continuation of the war in Cambodia.

But the question remained when this will actually happen. Administration forces were struggling to put off final congressional action as long as possible to give Nixon's emissary, Henry A. Kissinger, negotiating room and to give American air power time to gain military advantage for Cambodian government forces.

Over protests that Congress was jeopardizing efforts to obtain Communist compliance with the Jan. 28 cease-fire, the Senate rejected a parliamentary move Tuesday by administration forces to declare an antiwar amendment out of order.

This set the stage for final Senate approval which could come today — of a $3.2 billion supplemental appropriations bill containing an amendment by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., that would cut off funds for U.S. military operations "in, over or from the shores of" Cambodia or Laos.

The once-compliant House has already passed the supplemental bill with more limited antiwar language, applying only to $420 million in transfer authority requested to help finance the war.

Body found

GLENNS FERRY — Elmore County officers were attempting to identify a body found Tuesday afternoon in the Snake River about halfway between Hammett and Glens Ferry.

Sheriff's officers said the decomposed body of a young man was found by two boys, ages about 13 to 14, who were arrowhead hunting along the river. It was estimated the body had been in the water about six weeks.

It's perfectly clear: Nixon will not appear

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon made clear Tuesday that he will not testify in either the grand jury or Senate investigations of Watergate, and he wants the independent prosecutor, Archibald Cox, to help find out who leaked a story suggesting he should testify.

Cox, the Harvard law professor who was sworn in only Friday as an impartial special Watergate prosecutor, with a mandate to be independent of any White House pressure, was thus faced with his first request to do a presidential errand.

Cox — rather deliberately, it appeared — retained from making any public reply.

The Washington Post reported today that Frederick C. LaRue, a top campaign aide to former Attorney General and Nixon campaign chief John N. Mitchell, has told the Watergate grand jury he paid about $250,000 in cash to the Watergate conspirators for their silence.

The Post said LaRue implicated Mitchell, former presidential attorney Herbert W.

Kalmbach, and former White House counsel John W. Dean III in the alleged payoff scheme.

H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman were called to testify behind closed doors today to a Senate appropriations subcommittee which is looking into White House efforts to use the Central Intelligence Agency in a Watergate coverup. It was the first congressional opportunity to question former aides so close to the President. Until Watergate swept them out of office, Haldeman was White House chief of staff. Ehrlichman was chief domestic adviser.

The Washington Post had reported Monday that federal prosecutors felt Nixon should testify before the grand jury. Later in the day, White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said this would be "constitutionally inappropriate."

Asked if Nixon would be willing to testify under oath before the Senate Watergate committee, Ziegler said, "No consideration is being given to that matter at all."

Ex-POWs charged with enemy collaboration

News tips
733-0931

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Several more ex-POWs—some of them officers—may be charged with collaborating with their North Vietnamese captors, Pentagon sources said today. Charges already have been leveled at eight enlisted men.

Col. Theodore W. Guy, 44, a former POW from Tucson, Ariz., Tuesday charged five soldiers and three Marines with military violations, ranging from seeking political asylum in Hanoi to making model planes for the North Vietnamese to use in target practice. One was charged with assaulting another prisoner. Pentagon sources said future charges, if made, could include officers up to the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Defense Department spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim acknowledged only that "a few other" POWs have been talking with their lawyers about framing charges against their one-time fellow captives. Filing charges does not mean any of the men will automatically face court-martial. Guy's charges were forwarded to the secretaries of the Army and the Navy. These secretaries, or their subordinates, have the authority simply to drop the charges if they feel the accusations lack substance, or start a court-martial if they feel it is warranted.

At the end of the Korean war, only 565 or 13 per cent of the 4,428 POWs who returned were questioned and investigated. More than three-quarters were cleared without trial. Others were booted out of the service. Only about a dozen were tried and convicted by court-martials.

The maximum punishments on conviction of the charges filed Tuesday start at six months for the lowest charge of failure to obey orders. The highest charge of "aiding the enemy" carries a maximum penalty of death according to the Manual for Court-Martials, although an Army announcement said life imprisonment would be the heaviest penalty.

Guy said last month that some POWs had aided, the North Vietnamese by exposing his efforts to secretly organize the prisoners and set up a communications system. As a result, Guy said, he was beaten and tortured.

Police investigate TF office burglary

TWIN FALLS — Burglars reportedly took more than $1,000 worth of equipment from the offices of Dr. Donald Sonius and Dr. V. V. Telford, 155 and 153 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. City police said the building in which the doctors maintain offices was entered sometime prior to Tuesday morning by breaking in a rear door. Locked doors leading to the various offices inside were also forced. Officers said Dr. Sonius reported about $700 in equipment missing. Included were a desk radio, a stereo, tape deck, clock, small radio and a quantity of needles.

In Dr. Telford's office loss was estimated at $349 including a cash box, some medication and needles. City police are continuing the investigation.

Ex-POW claims charges stupid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) accused the plastics industry today of falsely promoting as safe plastic materials it said may be a serious household fire hazard responsible for an unknown number of deaths. The materials involved are cellular (foamed) polyurethane and all forms of polystyrene and other members of its chemical family used for many things, from bedding to plumbing pipes. The FTC estimated that more than 1 billion pounds of such plastics were marketed in 1972. It is used for insulation, furniture cushions, bedding, wall panels, siding, cabinets, chairs, tables, and even plumbing fixtures.

FTC says plastics hazardous

The FTC said the industry, since at least 1967, has promoted it as "non-burning," or "self-extinguishing" even though it knew, the FTC said, that the materials were subject to flash fires that emit poisonous smoke and extreme heat. It was urethane insulation in the current Skylab project which caused poisonous gas to form in the space laboratory before the astronauts were able to enter and correct an overheating problem. The plastic materials have also been linked to several fire disasters—including some in high-rises—as well as a 1967 fire in the Apollo 1 space capsule.

Murphy talks to TF group

By JOCELYN CLOWARD
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Lieutenant Governor Jack Murphy said in Twin Falls last night many people feel "a great many problems" are arising that are unmanageable except at the Federal level. He urged action by local groups to solve problems instead of relying on Federal solutions. He urged action by local groups to solve problems instead of relying on Federal solutions. Murphy spoke at the annual installation dinner of the Twin Falls Legal Secretaries Association at the Holiday Inn.

society, non commercial and non governmental groups and organizations, as a "forgotten," although "mighty" force in changing social problems. Murphy spoke of the conflict between the establishment and its critics, and said, "Voluntary action on a local scale in response to local problems is the one type of action at this time to move the establishment toward peace and prosperity." "Nationally," Murphy said, "there are some 975,000 non-governmental organizations in the country. Many, he said, have come to believe that independent action is obsolete," and many "drop out of the establishment."

Murphy said, "has any person or group succeeded in withdrawing from the establishment, except by death. In the very attempt at withdrawal," he said, "they influence the establishment they scorn." "The impact they seek," he said, "will only come by working for change within the establishment," by participating in politics and government, by participating in business and making industry more aware of its obligations to society and by participating in the revival and revitalization of the independent sector.

He said that the Watergate scandal would not affect the race as "people in Idaho tend to elect the man, not inconclusive stories." At the annual program at the Holiday Inn, president Doris Paxton introduced Murphy and other guests and Norman Nielson, Burley, installed the association's 1973-74 officers, Charlene Hine, president; Mildred Brock, vice president; Lenora Schaefer, secretary; Lucille Wilcock, treasurer; Doris Paxton, governor, and Billie Jo Mathison, national representative.

TF Fire Station construction set

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Construction of the new Twin Falls Fire Station on property just east of the city hall is expected to begin early in October. City Manager Jean Milar said Tuesday architectural drawings are now nearing final revisions and should be ready for final approval of the council within a few weeks. Formal plans and specifications can then be prepared for bids, he said.

The fire station, expected to cost about $300,000 will be a one-story structure facing on Second Avenue East and will be compatible in design with the city hall, Milar said. Revenue sharing funds will be used to pay for the project. He said several preliminary plans have been prepared and have been studied by fire department personnel. Revisions were made in later drawings incorporating their ideas and suggestions and those of other city officials. The apparatus area for storing fire engines and other equipment will be in the east end of the building with living and training quarters in the central area. Offices for department officials will be on the west end of the structure.

One elderly gentleman said he didn't want anybody "messing" with his tarpaper shack, two disabled heads of family said they would try to get loans to improve their small houses if the CIA program became a reality. Rev. Gaudian said he had not seen such conditions of poverty for a long time.

Twin Falls Bank and Trust president Curtis Eaton said his bank would act as custodian of the funds and assist in handling loan procedures if CIA received grant assistance. "I think anything we can do to better our community we ought to all be interested in," Eaton said. "I think to this point we've had an informal understanding that the bank would be willing to cooperate in this."

"sophisticated" assistance in making and processing the loans to low-income individuals as well as acting as a "corporate" custodian of the funds. "So many of us have been so fortunate for so long that we take it for granted," Eaton said. Rev. Gaudian asked Eaton if funding for the CIA project would awaken interest in the rest of the banking community helping the poor to upgrade their homes.

Real floater

LAKE ELSINORE, Calif. (UPI) — George Perez, 11, can't swim, but he can float for dear life.

Perez, of Alberhill Calif., was playing in the lake here with his brother, Cruz, 12, when the older boy decided to leave the water. Darkness came, and the younger Perez could not be found. The lake was choppy with wakes from many boats, and since George cannot swim, it was thought he had drowned. Bathers found him Tuesday, 15 hours after he disappeared, a mile and a half from where he was last seen. He was floating on his back, officials said, and had kept alive by floating all night. "He looks like a prune, but he's alive," said Robert Emerson, Riverside County sheriff's detective.

'Slow' drivers receive citations

He said five state policemen, including a motorcycle officer now assigned to the district, worked through the Memorial Day weekend, which he said is a taste of enforcement to come. They apparently had their own troubles with traffic. Lt. Thomas said one officer was run off the road twice by impatient motorists who attempted to pass along lines of traffic following a slow moving vehicle. "It was surprising to find many people did not know about the impending traffic law," Lt. Thomas said. "The law has been on the books in Idaho for some time and is worded to provide any vehicle holding up three or more other vehicles without pulling over at the earliest opportunity to let them pass is subject to a citation," Thomas said.

Another motorcycle officer is currently attending school and when the training is complete will also be used on Highway 93, Thomas said. He will work from Redfish Lake to Galena and Holland will work the lower area. The officer said citations to persons with obstructions to vision involved small vehicles carrying motorcycles mounted on the front bumpers and extending above the hoods of their vehicles. Thomas said the speed limit on the highway is 60 miles per hour to Shoshone and 70 miles per hour north of there. Vehicles not able to travel near the limit should make certain they pull out occasionally to permit traffic to pass.

TF street work slated

TWIN FALLS — Street improvement work under Local Improvement District 88, the major street program in Twin Falls this year, is expected to be underway in June. City Manager Jean Milar said the City Council is expected to award the bid for the work by mid June so work can begin immediately.

Improvement District 87, is now nearing completion. Final paving is being done on Locust Street, Elizabeth Boulevard and Sunrise. LID 88 will be completed in a 90-day work period with three basic areas involved, Milar said. These include additional portions of Locust Street, Shoshone Street and Filer Avenue. Milar said legal procedures are now being completed for LID 88 and a detailed report on the work schedule will be available when the bids are awarded. Residents will be advised of areas to be under construction at various times during the summer.

Nielsen Construction Company, prime contractor for the 1972 program is in charge of the work completion now underway. Milar said the J. A. Clawson paving operation which sub-contracted the paving work, has sold to Gordon Paving which is doing the paving for Nielsen under LID 87.

This is a pilot project, of course, and considerable interest will depend on how well it works," Eaton told the priest. "The interest of the financial community is no different from any other. It depends on how well it will work."

Eaton, who has been asked by CIA to serve on the board of directors for the project if it is funded, said Twin Falls Bank and Trust stands "ready to be as helpful as possible with the resources available to us to see that the job is taken care of."

It will take a lot of effort on the part of a lot of people." The tour moved to the office of the Twin Falls county commissioners. Commissioner Merl Leonard asked Gailey how much of the projected funds would go for administrative purposes. Gailey replied that the projected administrative budget of about $35,000 was a necessity, but that the funds would be under the direction of a 12-man board composed half of CIA members and half of interested citizens which would oversee all grants and loans. The administrative costs could be spread further, Gailey said, if the project received more funds once it got under way.

Another sentence given to 'lifer'

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI) — Texas carnival worker Sherman McCrary can add another 29-30 year prison sentence to the two life terms he already has been ordered to serve in Colorado and California.

The 47-year-old McCrary Tuesday was given the additional prison sentence for the kidnaping in August, 1971, of Lakewood, Colo., doughnut shop waitress Leeora Rose Looney. McCrary earlier this month was sentenced to life in prison for Miss Looney's murder. District Judge Dan Shannon said McCrary would serve the latest sentence after completing the life sentence. But he would never be imprisoned in Colorado until he completes a 5-year-to-life sentence in California for assault with intent to commit murder. Shannon denied a defense motion to hold a new trial before he sentenced McCrary. Thirty years is the maximum sentence for kidnaping in Colorado. His attorneys said they would appeal the case. McCrary's wife, Carylon, was sentenced last week to two years in prison for being an accessory after the fact to the kidnap-murder. His son-in-law, Carl Taylor, will go on trial next month in Pueblo, Colo., on the murder charges.

WINFIELD HONORED HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Paul Winfield, an Oscar nominee for "Sounder," was awarded a "Best Actor" award from the CORE organization.

Idaho's April contracts ahead

TWIN FALLS — April contracts for future construction in Idaho are running about 23 per cent ahead of last April's levels, according to the latest economic reports. F. W. Dodge, Inc., a division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co., released the figures today. According to Dodge economist George A. Christie, future construction contracts in Idaho for April 1973 totaled $28,288,000, compared with the April 1972 totals of $22,924,000. Residential building nearly doubled over year-ago figures, jumping from $7,737,000 in April 1972 to $14,194,000 in April 1973, an increase of about 83 per cent. Non-residential construction, however, fell off slightly, dropping to $10,148,000 in April 1973 from $11,188,000 in April 1972, a nine per cent decrease. Nonbuilding construction, which includes streets and highways, also fell off on the month-for-month basis, from $3,999,000 in April 1972 to $3,946,000 in April 1973, a decrease of about one per cent. For the year to date, on a cumulative basis, the Dodge figures show total construction in 1973 at $103,535,000, a one per cent gain over the $102,363,000 for the like period of 1972. Again residential building showed a heavy increase of approximately 74 per cent, from $21,390,000 in the first four months of 1972 to $37,349,000 for the like period in 1973. Total non-residential building contracts also showed an increase on a cumulative basis, to $29,616,000 thus far in 1973, compared to the $26,253,000 for the like period in 1973. This was a gain of about 13 per cent. Nonbuilding fell off in the cumulative category, from $54,720,000 in the first four months of 1972 to $36,676,000 in the first four months of 1973, a decrease of 33 per cent.

742 lambs shipped

TWIN FALLS — A total of 742 lambs were shipped Tuesday in the second lamb pool of the season for members of the Twin Falls County Livestock Marketing Association. Donald Youtz, county agriculture agent and secretary of the association, said participating farm flock owners received $34.16 per hundred-weight for the lambs which averaged 99 lbs. per animal. The first pool, containing only 186 lambs sold two weeks ago at $33.35 per cwt. Another pool will be held June 19. The first wool pool of the season for association members will be shipped Thursday morning from behind the old hospital building in Twin Falls.

Official City and County Newspaper | Member of Audit Bureau of Circulation and UPI | Pursuant to Section 60-108 Idaho Code, Thursday is hereby designated as the day of the week on which legal notices will be published. Published daily and Sunday, except Saturday, at 122 Third Street West, Twin Falls, Idaho, 83301, by Magic Valley Newspaper, Inc. Entered as Second Class Matter April 19, 1918, at the post office in Twin Falls, Idaho, 83301, under the act of March 8, 1879.

WASHINGTON — An astounding blitz is underway in Congress to perpetuate the widely denounced, scandal-blackened Legal Services program of the bedraggled Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO). Legislation to do that is slated to be rammed through the House and Senate this week after the most cursory consideration.

It's a crass grease job if there ever was one.

The backstage record of this high-handed operation, masterminded by Democratic leaders of the House Education and Labor Committee and the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, is without parallel in recent history.

Following are the shocking details on this bill — to set up a so-called independent corporation to provide legal services for the indigent poor. It would be supervised by an 11-member board appointed by the President, and financed by the government at a cost of more than $70 million annually:

(1) No hearings have been held on the measure. All efforts to present views were brushed off by chairman Carl Perkins, D-Ky., of the House Education and Labor Committee, and chairman Augustus Hawkins, D-Cal., of the Subcommittee on Equal Opportunity.

(2) Without a word of testimony, Hawkins' liberal-packed subcommittee extensively revised the bill to strip it of virtually all safeguards — such as prohibition of political activity, specific eligibility standards, participation by local bar associations, etc.

(3) This watered-down version, which leaves unchanged the existing conditions and factors that have so widely besmirched the Legal Services program and subjected it to scathing denunciation was set to be rushed to the full Education and Labor Committee for immediate approval and submission to the House for action the same day. The secret intent was to pull off this coup last Wednesday.

Up to this point, it was a slick and smoothly manipulated scheme that appeared certain to succeed — but it didn't come off.

Reason was the determined and shrewd opposition of Rep. Earl Landgrebe, R-Ind.

Seizing on the Committee's rule requiring a three-day delay for the submission of a minority report, he effectively blocked the liberals' plan to blitz their doctored bill to the House and then rush it to the Senate for similar speedy approval there.

Invoking this Committee rule, Landgrebe forced the legislation to go over to this week — thus adroitly upsetting the Hawkins-Perkins blitz strategy, while he and several other Republican committeemen prepared a forceful minority report.

The Committee is heavily Democratic — 22 to 16 Republicans. Also more blacks are on the Committee than any other — Reps. Hawkins, William Clay, D-Mo., and Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y. Another committeeman is Herman Badillo, a Democratic candidate for mayor of New York.

Unless the legislation is drastically tightened up, it's headed for veto.

That's the warning by Rep. Landgrebe and other Republican committeemen. They are serving it flatly and unequivocally.

"We know what we're talking about," they are telling Democratic leaders.

"You apparently have the vote to ram this unacceptable bill through, but it won't do you any good. It will be vetoed by President Nixon and that will be the end of it. You haven't been able to override a single one of his vetos so far, and after being thoroughly licked three times, you ought to know by now you can't win on this issue."

The next few days may tell the story in the House.

"Open the Door, Richard!"

ANDREW TULLY

Physical For The Journalists

WASHINGTON — If one can believe a recent Reuter dispatch from Tel Aviv — and one is trying not to — the Israeli government has adopted a very unreasonable policy toward foreign correspondents who apply to cover operations of the Israeli army.

Reuter's Colin Bickler reports that henceforth these knights of the typewriter must pass a rigid physical examination, including five minutes on one of those horrid exercycles, in order to qualify for accreditation. The explanation is that the Israelis don't want their troops held up by "overweight, tired, nervous, over-drinking, unhealthy journalists."

I will not go so far as to depose that there is no other kind of war correspondent.

Times have changed, and I suppose there must be one or two newsmen somewhere who are models of physical fitness. After all, I personally know two such during the bad old days of World War II, namely Wes Gallagher, who I think recently was appointed King of the Associated Press, and the Chicago Tribune's Bob Cromie, who ran a mile a day, traded his liquor ration for candy bars and still was the nicest guy in the Gen George Patton's press corps.

But even in the more antiseptic year 1973, I should think the turndown rate among aspiring war correspondents in Tel Aviv would be horrendous. With few exceptions, reporters are not physical fitness nuts. They tend to take cabs to the cable office two blocks away and believe that if they have pounded a typewriter for a couple of hours and bent an elbow into the night they have had enough exercise.

Besides, covering a war is not that much of a physical workout. Correspondents mostly hide in jeeps and helicopters in their pursuit of the fighting, and agility is called for only when falling shells require the reporter to leap from a jeep into the "nearest sewage ditch." Admittedly, I found this a touch more challenging during a brief stay in Vietnam, but I always made it. The survival instinct does a lot even for a middle-aged citizen.

As for World War II, the hardships were mostly those of personal inconvenience. It takes time for a correspondent accustomed to sleeping in a bed enclosed by a house to adjust to a blanket roll set in a muddy Normandy field and drenched by nightly downpours. Anyone who has foolishly tasted scrambled powdered eggs knows that a war correspondent also makes sacrifices, for his boss if not his country. Shaving with cold water from a helmet is not recommended for miles with tender skin.

We also made do. When athlete's foot struck the result of a paucity of hygiene, there was no alternative but to carefully pour precious whisky over the toes. A rumor floated by a jealous enemy that I caught the used fluid in a pannikin for future internal use was groundless.

Bathing became an obsession. The games atmosphere in a mess tent jammed with reporters whose bodies have not known soap and water for weeks is indescribable in a family newspaper. It is also a situation that causes otherwise decent men to descend to the lowest levels of cunning.

Even now, my indignation lingers when I recall the time I furtively rented the only bathroom in a small hotel in Etain, France, for $20 an hour. Left to rustle up a piece of soap hidden alongside the engine in my jeep, and when I returned, found a former friend named John Wilhelm selling baths to a horde of reeking correspondents for $10 per three minutes.

I got my bath three days later in a creek outside Verdun.

When the war became a touch more organized, the press was housed in an assortment of hotels and brothels all over Europe. These accommodations were heaven after months of camping out, but there were drawbacks. Thanks to enemy bombings, there was seldom any running water and even when a trickle was coaxed out of the pipes it was cold, muddy, and often teeming with animal life.

There were also bed bugs — insects in such numbers they must have migrated from the Balkans, drawn by reports of toothsome tidbits provided for their taste buds by a beneficent mercian army. We were armed with DDT powder, not yet denounced as an environmental scourge, and the bed bugs laced it because it made such cozy nests. Once, in Bad Homburg, an old Washington hand named Buck Griffin won a $100 sweepstakes by killing 37 of the beasts in two hours.

Those indeed were the days — an era in which a war correspondent was called upon only to suffer, not run a mile in under four minutes.

MR. SPECTATOR

It's The Changing Things In Life, Which Startle

Things are just not what they seem.

For instance! Most community leaders think along lines of getting more business to come into an area. That's fine — but it is not always the peaches and cream expected.

We have in mind a situation developing up at Boise. The Hewitt-Packard Company — a big electronics firm — is thinking of pitting a new plant in the Boise section. It would be on a 93-acre site near Cloverdale and Chinden (streets they are).

Wonderful, everyone said. So, as the rules say nowadays, an impact analysis was prepared by the Ada Council of Governments Regional Planning Staff.

The planners determined the new plant would affect all phases of area-wide planning. The most immediate effect would be on necessary roads. Then there is the increased development pressure in the area and between there and the city limits. Now the proposal comes up that all action on subdivisions, zone change and commercial development must be held up pending adoption of the Comprehensive Plan and implementation measures.

The ACOG officials report an intensive effort on revision of plans will be necessary, including the metropolitan sewer plan, the drainage study, the street plan for the West Bench, consideration of a future valley-wide mass transportation system, zoning ordinance amendments and land use plan revisions.

To prevent new residential areas which are bound to develop around the campus-like industrial site from engulfing Eagle and possibly Meridian and from spreading in an amorphous sprawl, the immediate confirmation of the urban concept should be considered," the report said.

Traffic pressures for commuters to the plant — probably several thousand a day — and residential developments which are likely to sprout around it should lead to construction of the Highway 55 extension to the Interstate. Planners also see a major junction of that sort — as a very strong location for a regional shopping center.

And all this new shopping area — along with other centers now built and under consideration or construction — could very well spell trouble for downtown Boise, the planners say.

So there you have it. How like the situation in Twin Falls. We do not have a big plant wanting to go in north of our community but we have plenty of other things wanting to go — or going — into that area and also spreading across the Snake River canyon and into Jerome county along the rim and, in fact, clear to the Interstate.

All this "progress" might not be as beneficial as it looks on paper. The pollution and crowding might just be more than people are able — or ready — to take. The planned ecology studies might signal a big fight over the planning.

And then, of course, there's the money to pay for the necessary sewage additions including treatment plants, new roads, burying of high tension lines and telephone lines. This will be the taxpayers' "baby" and they might not want to help in the "raising."

WE'RE SHOCKED

A story from Washington shows the annual cost of a typical family's market basket of food rose 1.6 percent to a record $1,480 in April. The market basket is a collection of U.S. raised foods needed for a theoretical "average household" of 3.2 persons.

That amount shocked us. Not that it was so high — but rather that it was so low.

There are only two of us left in Mr. Spectator's household and I'm sure what we spend for food comes to a whole lot more than the "average household" of 3.2 persons.

Course, we could be eating too much. We wonder if that is the theory behind our doctor's suggestion that we should go on a diet. We'll find out when we see him June 11. That's a terrible thing to face — but then it might just save Mr. Spectator money! Even if we only get down to the "average," that is.

US may find accords with friends tough to attain

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Reaction from Europe to President Nixon's proposal for a "New Atlantic Charter" suggests he may find it more difficult to reach agreement with his friends than he did with his potential Russian and Chinese enemies.

In April, Henry A. Kissinger, the president's adviser on national security, suggested the President would be ready on a visit to Europe later in the year to sign the new charter which would provide the base for agreements on money, security and trade.

The new charter would take the place of one signed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill in 1941.

One after another, the United States' three most powerful European allies have rejected the idea.

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt believed it unnecessary and that any issues between the United States and Europe could be settled through existing institutions.
French President Georges Pompidou and British Prime Minister Edward Heath concluded at a two-day meeting ending May 22 that European integration through the creation of a Common Market had not yet reached the state where a single document could be signed to represent the views of all.

It was considered certain that Pompidou would reject trade concessions because of the money it must spend to maintain troops in Europe.

They say it is impossible to compare the cost of maintaining a U.S. army division to a can of corn and that negotiations on defense and economic matters must be conducted separately.

Market adjust its agricultural policy to permit a large expansion of U.S. food exports to help balance the trade deficit.
Here, too, the French are in opposition.
Also received coolly by Europeans has been the Kissinger suggestion that Japan ultimately be brought into the New Atlantic Charter as a "principal partner in our new enterprise."

Analysis

NATO ranks standing uneasy

LONDON (UPI) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), troubled by escalating defense problems, is now increasingly faced with difficulties within its own ranks.
The dispute between Britain and Iceland over fishing limits has brought two NATO members into direct and open conflict with potentially serious consequences for the alliance's efficiency.
The regime of the Colonels in Greece and the mutiny last week of a Greek ship while on NATO exercise is causing embarrassment and uneasiness within the alliance.
So is Portugal, whose attitudes toward Africa and Rhodesia are at variance with the policies of the alliance as a whole.
Neither does Turkey's policy on the Eastern flank of NATO altogether match the ideals of NATO's allies.

NATO is plagued by serious problems arising from the changing pattern of the East-West conflict and the shifts in defense patterns.
The United States' bilateral negotiations with the Soviets on nuclear arms curbs have taken a vital segment of defense strategy out of NATO's immediate scope. Some NATO members see it as the beginning of a gradual American disengagement and are watching all the more anxiously current moves to reduce force levels in Europe.
Latest reports suggested that the Warsaw Bloc, which already had a major arms lead over NATO in Central Europe, has improved its military stance considerably lately with more tank forces and modernizing other weaponry so as to improve its negotiating position in the arms cut negotiations.

Despite American pledges to the contrary, European members of NATO remain fearful of an eventual unilateral withdrawal of some U.S. forces from the continent as the result of a deal with Russia.
The Americans in turn complain that European NATO members are not doing enough for their own defense and that they should put more money and more men to keep NATO strong.
These problems will be tackled more closely in the coming months as a result of America's suggestion for a new Atlantic Charter that would also look at the whole complex of the Western alliance.

Meanwhile the differences within NATO members are adding complications to an already problematical situation.
The British-Icelandic conflict could endanger the important Keflavik base on the island from which Soviet naval movements are being watched. Iceland already has signified its intention to renegotiate its base arrangements with the United States.
NATO's southern flank, never among the strongest and most secure, is guarded by Greece and Turkey as well as Italy; now all experiencing more or less grave domestic problems none of which is considered conducive to keeping the flank strong.

Mekong R. convoy takes rebel fire

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The same Mekong River supply convoy that came under heavy Communist fire Monday on the 84-mile run up from South Vietnam was fired on again today almost as soon as it left on the return trip from Phnom Penh.
The seven oil tankers and three barges, which left Phnom Penh under an umbrella of heavy U.S. air cover today to make the hazardous dash down the river, was reported under rebel fire 72 hours after it left Phnom Penh.
Communist gunners firing mortars and rockets from the riverbank killed four men on the convoy on Monday's upriver trip. The shelling also set one tanker on fire.
"Fire from the bank," a U.S. spotter plane pilot radioed to an American control plane coordinating today's convoy protection. The control plane, a C130, ordered an air strike on the area but results of the raid were not known.
Naval sources said the convoy should reach the Cambodian-South Vietnamese border by mid-afternoon.
In its dash upriver Monday, the convoy carried vitally needed gas, aviation fuel, rice, ammunition and general cargo.

On the diplomatic front, Son Sann, former Cambodian foreign minister who returned to Cambodia from self-imposed exile in Paris earlier this month, today urged immediate negotiations between the Communists and the Phnom Penh government to end the Cambodian war.
"If we don't move now, the opportunity may be lost," Son Sann said in a speech to a group of students.
Son Sann, 66, has been living in Paris since shortly after the beginning of the Cambodian war three years ago. He said he had only Cambodian interests in mind in pressing negotiations.
"I am a man of the Khmers, not of the United States, France or Peking," he said.
Asked by a reporter if he would go to Peking in his quest for reconciliation, Son Sann said: "I have no plans to go Peking, but should it be necessary to go, I would go. I am seeking the mandate of the people to open up contacts for negotiations. I returned to Cambodia with the permission of the government in Phnom Penh to talk to people—all kinds of people—to do this. Now I am asking the people."

Rails to cost taxpayers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar said today that those who call for massive federal spending to rebuild bankrupt northeastern railroads are taking a "taxpayer be damned" attitude because private money can be found to do the job.
Brinegar also dismissed as "clearly premature" a proposal that the government buy the Boston to Washington Northeast Corridor for passenger service. This proposal has won the backing of almost everyone in Congress, the railroad industry and regulatory agencies.
Brinegar's statements came as Sen. Vance Hartke's Surface Transportation Subcommittee began hearings on the deteriorating state of northeastern railroads.

The Senate hearings, the beginning of a showdown between the Senate and the administration, boil down to two basic points: Who will or can pay for the necessary rail restructuring? And will the decision on which lines will be abandoned be made before or after Congress passes its legislation?
The question of timing came up early with Hartke demanding Tuesday that Brinegar produce a map of which lines would be saved. But Brinegar said in his prepared testimony that it is too early to make such decisions.
Brinegar said little new in his prepared testimony except for the unusually brusque turnaround of the idea of purchasing the Northeast Corridor. Brinegar again outlined the government plan which calls for formation of private corporations to issue stock to buy essential lines of the bankrupt carriers and to either form a new railroad company or sell the lines to the profitable companies.

Brinegar then turned on his critics who have said his plan, which envisions only $40 million in federal funds, was unrealistic and unworkable.
"Since we haven't proposed that the nation's taxpayers lay out a billion or so to bail out the northeast, we are accused of callously adopting a public be damned attitude," Brinegar said. "I submit that our approach is the opposite of public be damned."
Brinegar said little new in his prepared testimony except for the unusually brusque turnaround of the idea of purchasing the Northeast Corridor. ## House debates gold ownership

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House debated on Tuesday an amendment that would have allowed Americans to speculate in world gold markets after the end of this year.
The 162 to 162 vote upheld a House Banking Committee amendment that would allow President Nixon to decide when the U.S. monetary position is stable enough to allow gold ownership by Americans.
The debate over gold ownership came during House debate on legislation officially ratifying the latest devaluation of the dollar. The bill would raise the price of gold from $38 an ounce to $42.22 an ounce, resulting in a 10 per cent dollar devaluation. The devaluation already has taken effect in world money markets. After turning aside several other efforts to allow gold ownership, the House passed the devaluation bill 281 to 36.
Under present law, Americans may buy gold for industrial purposes. They may also own gold jewelry, fabricated gold, or trade in rare gold coins. But they are prohibited from acquiring gold for speculative or investment purposes.
The Senate recently voted to allow Americans to speculate in gold, and a House-Senate conference will have to settle the dispute.

Nixon may seek gas tax hike to balance budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will decide soon whether to ask Congress to raise the four cents a gallon federal tax on gasoline.
Deputy Treasury Secretary William Simon and his boss, Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, confirmed Tuesday that the pros and cons of a gas tax hike were being debated within the administration.

Among the most persuasive pros, Simon told reporters, was that for every one-cent increase in the gas tax, the government would collect an additional $1 billion.
Since the administration now is projecting a budget deficit of $2 billion in fiscal 1974, a gas tax hike of two cents a gallon theoretically would balance the budget in the 12 months beginning July 1.
A higher gas tax also would discourage consumption and thus help conserve scarce gasoline supplies, Simon said.
On the other hand, like any form of sales tax, a gasoline tax is "regressive."
"In other words, the poor pay a greater share," of their income, Simon said. Under a "progressive" tax, like the personal income tax, wealthier persons pay a greater proportion of their income to the government.

Fishermen seek Alaska pipeline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spills by tankers carrying Alaskan crude oil to refineries in Washington and California could all but wipe out the salmon and shellfish industries of Alaska and the Pacific Northwest, Congress was told Tuesday.
The warning came from Saunders C. Hillyer, a Washington spokesman for Alaska's commercial fishermen, in testimony before the House Public Lands Subcommittee.
He said Alaskan fishermen favored construction of a Trans-Alaska pipeline to carry oil from Alaska's north slope to the U.S. Midwest rather than a proposed $3.5 billion trans-Alaskan pipeline. Hillyer is the Washington representative of the 450 commercial fishermen who make up the membership of the Cardova District Fisheries Union. He said he also was appearing in behalf of the United Fishermen of Alaska and the western division of the National Federation of Fishermen.

The FIS feared massive oil spills by the huge tankers that would take on 2 million barrels of oil daily at the Alaskan port of Valdez for delivery to refineries to the south.
In addition to huge spills resulting from possible collisions and grounding of tankers, Hillyer said, there would be "chronic pollution" of the clean, fishery waters of Prince William Sound from the pipeline terminal itself.
"It is not an overstatement to say that the fate of the entire Northeast Pacific hangs in the balance on the decision to build one or the other pipeline," he said.

Utah's Gov. Rampton enters dairy dispute

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Hoping to forestall a threatened strike against Utah's three largest dairies, Gov. Calvin L. Rampton entered the dispute in an 11th hour bid to bring a settlement.
Rampton called the dairies—Cream of Weber, Hi-Land and Meadow Gold—and the Teamsters, representing the production workers and delivery men, into a private session Tuesday, asking them to consider several alternatives to a total strike and then meet with him today "to discuss where we are."
"I asked the two parties to meet with me because of my concern over the impact of a strike on the state," Rampton said.

The Teamsters three-year contract with the dairies ends at midnight Thursday. Six negotiating sessions, under the direction of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, have ended in a deadlock.
The parties had settled all disputed issues, except for increases in fringe benefits and the length of a new contract. But after last Thursday's sixth negotiating session, a company spokesman said the dairies had made "our final offer," leaving the matter of a new proposal up to the Teamsters.
Rampton said, "Such a threatened work stoppage is of great concern to the public, much more so than under a regular strike."

Korean spy ring broken by agents

SEOUL (UPI) — Intelligence agents said today they cracked a large-scale North Korean spy ring that used as its cover a company supplying food for the South Korean army.
Details of the case were made public today when three members of the alleged ring went on trial in the Seoul district criminal court.
On trial were the reputed ring leader, Sanjo Sawamoto, 62, his wife and Kim Sun-ki, 39, a Korean residing in Japan.
Two other members of the ring were reported still at large.
The three on trial were arrested by intelligence agents March 23 on charges of spying for North Korea over a 10-year period.
Sawamoto was identified as the chief representative of a trade firm in Tokyo who invested $100,000 in a company that supplied food to the South Korean army.
Agents said the ring received the money from North Korean agents in Singapore and Macao last December and January this year and sent it to Seoul through the United States.
Members of the ring reported to North Korea 30 times on military and political situations in the south, the government said, and "tried" to exploit business deals in preparation for what the government called a revolutionary uprising in the south.

Sen. Proxmire seeks Haig's resignation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., today urged Gen. Alexander M. Haig to either quit the Army or resign as President Nixon's top assistant.
"For the good of this nation, Gen. Haig should either give up his military career and continue working at the White House or immediately resign as assistant to the President," Proxmire said in a written statement.
"He cannot remain a military officer and a political staff assistant," Proxmire said. "The choice is his."
Nixon named Haig, then vice chief of staff of the Army, to take command of the White House staff after top aides H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman resigned and John W. Dean III was fired in connection with the Watergate scandal.
Named for an unspecified interim period to mold a new staff for Nixon, Haig is now Nixon's top full-time aide.
Proxmire said "two hundred years of military tradition and good sense have been violated by Gen. Haig's acceptance of a political post in the White House."

Haiti record

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — Aided by increased international flights and a more relaxed atmosphere, the Caribbean island of Haiti in 1972 for the first time exceeded the 100,000 mark in arriving tourists.
Dr. Andre Theard, director general of the National Office of Tourism, said the 1972 total of 107,815 arriving air and sea visitors at Port-au-Prince was an increase of more than 23 per cent over the 87,438 visitors in 1971.

Grand jury charges Illinois firm

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal grand jury has indicted Abbott Laboratories and five of its present or former officers on charges of distributing contaminated intravenous solutions linked to 50 deaths and 350 injuries.

The indictment, returned by a grand jury at Raleigh, N.C., Tuesday and announced by the Justice Department here, names the North Chicago, Ill., firm and the employees on 60 counts each.

The contaminated fluid was allegedly shipped from the firm's Rocky Mount, N.C., plant from September of 1970 to April of 1971.

The U.S. Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said its investigation of the case showed 394 persons suffered blood poisoning after receiving the Abbott fluid and that 50 of them died.

The deaths, and an estimated 350 injuries which occurred all across the country, were traced by government investigators to a faulty capping system on several kinds of intravenous solution, officials said.

The fault allowed bacterial microorganisms to survive in the fluid even after sterilization and caused blood poisoning when administered to hospital patients, according to the Center for Disease Control.

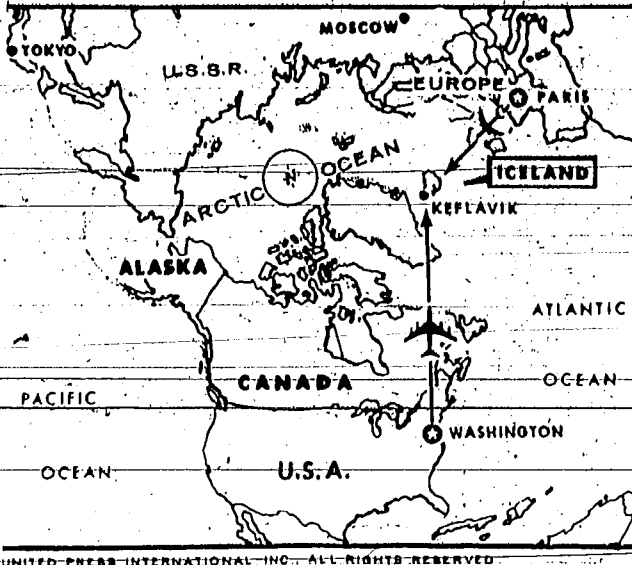

At the time of the incident

Abbott was the nation's major producer of intravenous solutions. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) recalled millions of bottles from hospitals and other medical installations to prevent additional injuries. The FDA later recommended criminal action against the firm.

The indictment returned Tuesday charges the firm and its employees with shipping adulterated and misbranded intravenous solutions in interstate commerce—a criminal charge.

If convicted Abbott Laboratories could be fined $1,000 on each of the 60 counts. The employees could be fined $1,000 and sentenced to one year in jail for each of the 60 counts.

The five individuals indicted were Herbert M. Gross, president of Abbott's Hospital Product Division and an Abbott vice president; Clarence J. Endicott, vice president for scientific and quality affairs in the Hospital Planning Division; Robert T. O'Donnell, former director of quality assurance for the Hospital Products Division, now a stock broker trainee in Chicago; Robert A. Otto, plant manager, Hospital Products Division; Rocky Mount, N.C.; and Harry W. Howell, quality assurance manager, Hospital Products Division, Rocky Mount, N.C.

PRESIDENT Nixon goes to Iceland today for sweeping summit talks with French President Georges Pompidou on the future of the Atlantic alliance with the passing of the cold war.

Nixon, Pompidou talks scheduled in Iceland

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon goes to Iceland today for sweeping summit talks with French President Georges Pompidou on the future of the Atlantic alliance with the passing of the cold war.

The President, accompanied by 12 top-level diplomatic and economic advisers, departs Andrews Air Force base at 8 a.m. MDT aboard the presidential jet for Keplavik, an Arctic air base where American troops are stationed.

During two days of meetings beginning Thursday, Nixon is expected to reassure Pompidou that he will not forget the interests of European allies in his rush to end two and a half decades of cold-war confrontation with the Soviet Union.

The summit with Pompidou ends a series of conferences between Nixon and European leaders in advance of Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev's arrival in Washington in mid-June.

Aides also indicated that Nixon hoped his skillful summit diplomacy would demonstrate his standing as a world leader has not been impaired as a result of the swirling Watergate scandal.

Nixon also hoped to convince Pompidou that economic and defense all are interrelated in U.S. relations with Western Europe. Pompidou has refused to link trade with other common problems of the alliance.

Pompidou and other leaders fear the U.S. is trying to lump all problems together to wring an economic advantage in exchange for the nuclear shield it provides against the East.

Foreign affairs adviser Henry A. Kissinger reassured allies in a statement Tuesday that the United States is not trying to "blackmail" them into economic concessions by stressing other problems.

"It is not correct that the United States, by emphasizing the relationship of various fields to each other, is trying to blackmail its European allies in the economic field," Kissinger told reporters.

He said the "deeper purpose" is to "lift the Atlantic debate out of the rut of purely technical controversies" and to discuss the relationships in the "framework of more long-range objectives."

"It is impossible for the two sides of the Atlantic to emphasize regional egoism in economics, but to maintain the doctrine of integrated defense within the Nato structure," he added.

Pompidou reportedly will not make any trade concessions to ease the U.S. balance of payments situation until Nixon agrees to convertibility of the dollar into gold.

Kissinger made it clear that Nixon was not ready to make any concessions until the next round of trade, monetary and Nato conferences this fall.

By the time Nixon takes his "grand tour" of Europe in late October, or possibly early November, Kissinger said allied leaders may be more receptive to all-European summit meeting. It would depend, however, he said on whether there has been "sufficient progress" in preliminary negotiations to justify it.

This was Nixon's second trip to Iceland. He visited the Arctic isle when he was Vice President in 1956.

Canadian team will withdraw

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The names of at least 10 Western or neutral nations have "been raised as a possible replacement for Canada on the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS), sources said today.

Canadian External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp announced Tuesday that the 200-man Canadian team will be withdrawn no later than July 31, because of continued violations of the Vietnam cease-fire.

The ICCS, which also includes Poland, Hungary and Indonesia, was established to supervise the cease-fire.

Diplomat sources said discussions will begin soon with North Vietnam to settle on a mutually acceptable nation to replace Canada.

Although no specific countries were under active consideration, sources said, a number of names have been mentioned. These include Norway, Brazil, the Netherlands, Belgium, Iran, Tunisia, Ireland, Finland, Colombia and Italy.

Presidential assistant Henry A. Kissinger likely will raise this subject in Paris June 8, when he meets with North Vietnamese Politburo Member Le Duc Tho.

White House and State Department officials said they regretted the Canadian decision to end participation in the ICCS, particularly in view of Kissinger's efforts to improve the implementation of the Vietnam peace agreement.

Canadian officials said Kissinger had conferred by telephone last Friday with Mitchell Sharp and outlined his efforts to improve the execution of the cease-fire agreement.

But Sharp, the sources said, remained adamant that the ICCS had failed to operate effectively because its movements had been restricted and its reports were far from objective.

The Canadians have argued that the withdrawal of their team will have no significant impact on maintaining peace in Vietnam, although they believe that their participation in the formation of the ICCS may initially have been useful.

Canada served with India and Poland on the International Control Commission, which was established in 1954 to supervise the Geneva peace agreements of that year, which ended in the withdrawal of France from Vietnam.

Kissinger, in a White House briefing Tuesday, said he expects next week that he will satisfactorily conclude "new understandings" on implementing the Vietnam peace agreements. He was referring to his upcoming talks with Tho.

He said his last round of talks in Paris, also with Tho, resulted in "significant progress." But he said he was not at liberty now to discuss details.

Under the terms of the Vietnam peace agreement signed last Jan. 28, the United States, North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the Provisional Revolutionary Government of Vietnam must hold discussions to find a mutually acceptable replacement for any country which drops out of the ICCS.

Postal boost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Postmaster General E. T. Klassen says labor negotiations with postal workers probably will result in higher postal rates for the first time in two years.

The increase would be the first since the Post Office Department was reorganized into the semi-independent U.S. Postal Service on July 1, 1971. The last increase, which raised first class postage from six to eight cents, took effect May 16, 1971.

Viet leaders, US confer

HONOLULU (UPI) — Top level business leaders from South Vietnam and the United States are meeting to review South Vietnam's investment and business potential.

The four-day conference, sponsored by the Center for International Business, started Tuesday.

The delegates also will explore various possibilities for the private sector of American business to contribute to the economic development of South Vietnam and assess the risks involved.

South Vietnamese Minister of Finance Hu Xuan Truong headed his nation's 20-member delegation that included industrialists, business leaders, economists and finance experts.

Othman killed

BEIRUT (UPI) — Instigators from Marxist Southern Yemen today assassinated Sheikh Mohamed Ali Othman, one of the three members of Yemen's ruling Republican Council, the Egyptian Middle East News Agency (MENA) reported.

Mena said Sheikh Othman, 61, was ambushed outside his home in the North Yemen city of Taiz, by attackers using machine guns and bazookas.

Othman represented the Sunni Moslems in the three-man Republican Council established in 1966 to provide "collective leadership" representing North Yemen's most important Moslem sects.

The other members are Abdel Hakim Iryani, president of the Republican Council and Lt. Gen. Hassan Al-Amri, representing the Armed Forces.

Cushman testifies

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Gen. Robert C. Cushman, former deputy director of the CIA, said Tuesday that he warned White House aide John Ehrlichman to be wary of E. Howard Hunt, a key figure in the Watergate and Ellsberg burglary plots.

Cushman, now commandant of the Marines, appeared before a county grand jury investigating the Ellsberg break-in. He told reporters afterward that at Ehrlichman's request he authorized Hunt's use of CIA disguise without knowing Hunt wanted it for the Ellsberg burglary.

He later grew suspicious of Hunt when the requests mounted, Cushman said, and called Ehrlichman to warn him Hunt had "questionable judgment."

"He was sort of running in all directions like a bull in a china shop," Cushman said. He said Ehrlichman replied "Okay, I'll restrain him."

"This let us (the CIA) off the hook," said Cushman, who added, "Certainly feel I was put upon."

Cushman said Ehrlichman, one of President Nixon's most trusted aides until he resigned in the Watergate scandal, called him at the CIA on July 7, 1971, and asked him to "give a hand" to Hunt on a national security matter.

Hunt, an ex-CIA agent later convicted for his part in the Watergate break-in and burglary, was then working for the White House "plumbers squad," trying to plug leaks of classified material. He allegedly supervised the break-in at the Beverly Hills office of Dr. Lewis Fielding, Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Cushman said Hunt asked for "papers and disguise so he could conduct a very sensitive interview and not reveal his identity."

The CIA gave Hunt a driver's license under a false name, glasses, a wig, a speech-changing device, and a small camera and tape recorder, Cushman said.

"A puzzling aspect of this case is why he wanted that stuff," Cushman said. "You would think he would have requested look picks."

Asked if he would have authorized it if Hunt had asked for such burglary tools, Cushman replied "Oh, Lord no."

Cushman said it was late August of 1971 when he became suspicious of Hunt, who by then was asking for help in opening an office and establishing a telephone monitoring network.

After voicing his suspicions to Ehrlichman, Cushman said, he never heard from Hunt again.

"For all I knew he had dropped off the face of the earth," Cushman said, until it was revealed Hunt had been arrested for his role in the Watergate break-in.

Sea captain and wife visit in TF

TWIN FALLS — His feet still got "Rky" at times, probably because the surface beneath them isn't seaborne.

Captain Johannes Skogland, Haugesund, Norway, went to sea in 1924 when he was 20 years old. He retired in 1965 after more than 40 years at sea.

Captain Skogland and his wife, Marie, are currently visiting their Twin Falls relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Arne Romelvat.

Lean and weathered, smoking a pipe, the 60-year-old Norwegian fits every boy's picture of an experienced seaman. His entire career was spent with the same shipping company.

For the last fifteen years of his service, Captain Skogland commanded a cargo liner. During that time he sailed shipping lanes between Vancouver, British Columbia and Valparaiso; Chile and between the west coast of the United States and Australia.

Sea duty took Captain Skogland away from home for two to four years at a time.

Shunning any "tall tales" of the sea, the captain recalled his experiences during World War II. He was a crewman on a ship anchored on the coast of South America when Norway was occupied by German forces.

The Axis-dominated government set up in Norway ordered his ship to return home. But the ship's captain disobeyed and sailed instead for London, where the "true Norwegian government" had been relocated.

"As far as I know, there wasn't a single Norwegian ship that returned to Norway," Captain Skogland said.

All Norwegian vessels were combined into one shipping firm — Nortraship — during the war. The ships hauled cargo for the Allies from the United States to England, the Middle East and Australia.

The Skoglands were separated for seven years during Norway's occupation. "There was no communication between them 'Just rumors', the captain said.

"My father had a little farm (in Norway) where my family lived," he recalled.

His ship returned to Norway in March of 1946. "All the wives were on the dock to meet us," he said.

Captain Skogland is proud of his country. "Norway is very peaceful and quiet. Things don't move as quickly as here."

Asked how he and his wife traveled to the United States, the captain said they came by airplane. "It's very fast that way. You can leave at lunchtime and arrive in time for supper."

But speed wasn't the heart of Captain Skogland's career. "I would recommend a life on the sea to young people today," he said proudly.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a married man. It began two years ago when I went to work for him. I am married and have two children, six and eight. My husband is a nice guy, but nothing special. We don't communicate at all anymore. His whole life is sports.

Abby, I want more than anything else in the world to have my lover's child because I know I can never have him. He says he loves me, but he will never leave his wife because he loves her, too — in a different way. Also, he says having an affair is one thing, but he doesn't believe in breaking up another man's home.

I have expressed my desire to have his child, but he says it would be the worst thing I could do to myself. I don't agree with him. I feel that if our affair ends—as most affairs do, at least I will have a part of him to remember him by. Who would that be hurting as long as nobody but us knew it?

MY DREAM

'Dreamy' affair

DEAR MY: Your "dream" sounds like a plot for a grade "B" movie. Wake up! You're courting disaster with such hazardous notions.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I invited a friend to dine with us at a family restaurant to celebrate her birthday. Across from us sat a couple, their son, who looked about 4 years old, and another adult.

The child talked loudly and incessantly. At one point he amused himself by loudly saying the ABC's over and over, making it impossible for us to converse.

When our guest went to the restroom, the boy followed her and tried to get in. Fortunately the door was locked. The boy's parents witnessed the whole thing and didn't say a word. After our guest vacated the restroom, the boy didn't go in, which indicated he didn't have to use it, he only wanted to annoy her.

That child ruined our evening. When we left we spoke to the owner about it and he said the parents and that child ate there often and there was nothing he could do about it.

Please print this to let parents know that they should either train their children to behave in public or leave them home. They have no right spoiling an evening out for others.

NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: Parents of ill-mannered children don't care whose evening they spoil. You should have complained directly to the parents or to the management earlier in the evening, and when it became clear that nobody cared, you should have gone elsewhere.

DEAR ABBY: A woman signed "IGNORED" wrote to complain that her husband made it plain that he preferred the TV set to her, and you replied: "Maybe it's because he can turn off the TV when he wants to."

You should have added that he can also turn the TV "ON" when he wants to.

—ROBERT B.

DEAR ROBERT: I would have had I thought of it. Thanks for the assist!

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GOT THE BLUES": Uh-huh; honey. A big disappointment today could be a blessing-in-disguise tomorrow.

Problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 48766, E. A., Calif. 94668. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

A GIRL HAD TOO MUCH CURL

By Mary Sue Miller

Heat and humidity, outdoor activity, or just sitting in the sun do not take the curl out of everyone's hair. Not by a long shot.

Columnist walks around this time with complaints about curly heads that get curlier... to an uncomfortable, unmanageable state. Too early locks can be more of a problem than a poker-straight hank ever is.

Curls, however, can be "relaxed," which term means softened, not straightened. The process is a chemical one. The necessary equipment, now available for both salon and home use employs chemicals that treat the hair more gently than older types. Uncurl-kits for home use include giant rollers and special conditioners.

Results are very good when directions, with emphasis on strand tests, are scrupulously followed. Results last for six weeks or more, depending on the rate of the hair's growth. The process may be repeated if hair is in top condition. There is wisdom in taking conditioning treatments on a systematic basis.

In addition, frequent applications of hair-to-hold pomades and sprays are helpful. Do investigate individual needs for hand dryers with styling brush or comb attachments.

It just may be that the hair's quality could turn out like one of nature's best efforts.

his words. If West had simply played his third high heart East wouldn't have ruffed and I would have made my contract.

South was a good loser but he didn't have to be any kind of loser this time. No one was holding a gun to South's head and saying "Overruff, or else."

South could have paused for thought and seen that he had to lose a club some time or other and that the time to lose it was when East played that six of trumps.

South should have let the six-spot hold to discard a low club. That would have been his third and last losing trick of the hand.

Nets to name Debusschere as new general manager

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dave DeBusschere, considered by many the best defensive forward in professional basketball, who has helped lead the New York Knicks to two National Basketball Association championships in the last four years, is expected to be named general manager of the New York Nets Wednesday, beginning the season after next.

The Nets, who recently hired Kevin Loughery as their new head coach, announced what they called a "blitzbuster" of a news conference for noon EDT. A spokesman would only say the announcement would concern the naming of a general manager-vice president with one person filling both posts.

DeBusschere's move to the rival ABA has been rumored for a month but he refused to discuss the possibility during the playoffs, saying he had another year left on his Knicks contract. However, DeBusschere, who will be 33 in October, never has flinched to deny the rumor.

An 11-year NBA veteran, DeBusschere joined the Detroit Pistons after graduation from the University of Detroit. For his first couple of years, besides playing with the Pistons, he also pitched for the Chicago White Sox during the summer but quit baseball for good at the age of 24 when he was named player-coach of the Pistons. He held the dual position for three years.

Cardinals run win streak to seven by blanking Redlegs 2-0

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Lou Brock scored on an error by Joe Morgan and Ken Reitz singled home a run Tuesday night to give the St. Louis Cardinals their seventh straight win, a 2-0 shutout over the Cincinnati Reds.

Brock led off the third inning with a double, and Ted Sizemore followed with an infield single. Morgan fielded Sizemore's grounder and tried to flip the ball to first baseman Tony Perez, but the ball went wild allowing Brock to score.

Reitz singled in the seventh to drive in Tim McCarver, who singled and advanced to second when Ted Simmons' fly ball drove Bobby Tolson to the wall in deep centerfield.

Cubs hit early to sink Astros

CHICAGO (UPI) — Bases-loaded "singles" in the first inning by Jose Cardenal and Randy Hundley scored four runs and sent the Chicago Cubs on to a 7-1 victory over the Houston Astros Tuesday.

It was the fifth win in the last six games for the Eastern Division-leading Cubs and spoiled the first professional visit to Chicago for Leo Durocher since he was fired by the Cubs last August and became manager of the Astros.

Mets rally by S.F. in ninth

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Felix Millan singled with the bases loaded in the ninth inning to spark a four-run rally that gave the New York Mets a 5-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants behind the three-hit, 10-strikeout performance of Tom Seaver.

The Mets, trailing 2-1 entering the ninth, began their rally when Ken Boswell led off with a walk off Jim Barr. Randy Moffit replaced Barr at that point and was greeted by a single by Bud Harrelson. Seaver, who had accounted for the Mets' first run with a home run in the fifth inning, bunted wisely to load the bases and Wayne Garrett walked to force in the tying run.

Snead still seeks one that got away

FAR HILLS, N.J. (UPI) — Sam Snead, a 61-year-old golfing marvel, will begin another attempt next week for the only major golf championship he never has won.

Snead and 599 others face sectional qualifying at 13 sites next Monday and Tuesday for spots in the 73rd U.S. Open championship scheduled June 14-17 at Oakmont, Pa. Thirty-three players, headed by defending champion Jack Nicklaus, are exempt from qualifying.

Aparicio now 14th in tenure

BOSTON (UPI) — Veteran shortstop Luis Aparicio moved into 14th place on the major league longevity list Tuesday night when the Boston Red Sox took on the California Angels at Fenway Park.

It was the 2,504th major league appearance for Aparicio, sending him past Babe Ruth in that department. He needs only two more games to pass Sam Crawford's 2,505 and take over 13th place.

Milburn putting on pounds and awaiting call from Rams about pro grid career

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Talented Rod Milburn is packing around 13 more pounds than he carried to his impressive victory at the Munich Olympics last year.

"I've been splitting my time between football and track," he said. "If I had a contract, I'd spend all my time on football. That's why it's important that I know pretty soon about the Rams situation. It's just like any job you want to be prepared to do your best."

Tommy Lee White and Charles Rich, all ranked in the top 10 in the world in the event last year. Milburn was rated No. 1, of course.

Egan signed to three-year pact by NBA Rockets

HOUSTON (UPI) — John Egan, 34, the youngest coach in the National Basketball Association, has signed a three-year contract with the Houston Rockets, general manager Ray Patterson said Tuesday.

Egan, who succeeded Tex Winter as coach at midseason, immediately announced he will emphasize defense next year. The Rockets led the NBA in offense, averaging 112.0 points a game, but finished next to last on defense, giving up 114.5 points.

"We must have goals on defense," Egan said. "I'd like to set up a system where we'd give up so many points a night — like 105 or 106. The Knicks led the league last season with 98. That's phenomenal."

"We might have to sacrifice six or seven points a game offensively to reach our defensive goals," Egan said. "That really doesn't bother me. I don't care whether we average 114 or 104. We must play better defense.

"I won't spend as much time on offense in fall practice as Tex did. I assume that guys who come to the pros got there on their offensive ability."

Egan said he didn't plan on any major trades and would use Don Smith and Otto Moore at center, the Rockets' weakest position. He said the two centers should be in the prime years of their careers.

Egan, who joined the pros in 1961 out of Providence, played with Detroit, New York, Baltimore, Los Angeles and Cleveland before coming to the Rockets in San-Diego Dec. 9, 1970.

The 6-foot guard became a playing assistant coach Jan. 18, 1972, and was still on the active roster when he became head coach.

Egan, who didn't play after he was promoted, coached the team to a 16-19 mark after they had gone 17-30 under Winter.

That ain't boxing!

PART OF THE MELEE that kept a crowd of 5,498 fans delighted found referee Cy Godfrey, the busiest man in Miami Beach Tuesday night, moving in to aid Cuban-born Frankie Otero who is getting a wrestling-like slam from British fighter Ken Buchanan. # Three CSI players pick new schools

Three College of Southern Idaho basketball players have decided on their schools for their last two years of eligibility while Rick Sobers continues to ponder offers.

All three, Steve Swanson, Vince Volmut and Willie Williams, have decided on schools close to home. Swanson has signed a letter of intent with Boise State, being a graduate of Boise high school. Volmut has decided on Hofstra, Hempstead, N.Y., about 20 miles from his home in New York City. "It's nice out there... at least it's not 99 percent concrete," Volmut said.

Williams will be within 15 miles of home when he enrolls at Northwestern University. The Chicago product said the hiring of Tex Winter, who has had a successful college coaching career and tried his hand with the pros, had a great deal to do with his decision.

Darwin's solo homer, shutout pitching by Blyleven lets Twins nip Brewers 1-0

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Bobby Darwin hit a seventh inning homer for the only run of the game and Bert Blyleven survived a ninth-inning threat Tuesday night to give the Minnesota Twins a 1-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Blyleven, who evened his record at 6-6 with a six-hitter, surrendered singles to Ollie Brown and John Briggs to start the bottom of the ninth. Gorman Thomas, who ran for Brown, got to third base on Briggs' hit.

But then Blyleven nailed Don Money on a pop to short, and got pinch hitter Ellie Rodriguez to — bounce to shortstop Jerry Terrell, who took the ball just in front of second base and turned it into a game-ending double play.

Thomas was the only Milwaukee runner to advance beyond second base.

homer in the second inning Tuesday night, giving the Boston Red Sox a 2-1 win over Nolan Ryan and the California Angels.

The Red Sox trailed 1-0 when Reggie Smith drew a walk from Ryan to open the second. Cepeda then hit his seventh homer of the year into the Boston bullpen in right field to give the Red Sox the lead for good.

The Angels put together three singles in the first inning for their only run. Sandy Alomar started the game with a base hit to center, moved to second on a single by Bobby Brooks, took third when Frank Robinson grounded into a doubleplay and scored on a single to center by Bob Oliver.

Indians outslug Rangers 9-7

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — George Hendrick singled home a run in the third inning and doubled home two more in the fourth Tuesday night to lead the Cleveland Indians to a 9-7 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Cleveland jumped on newly-acquired pitcher Lloyd Allen for seven runs in the first three innings and relievers Tom Hilgendorf and Jerry Johnson turned a 7-1-3 shutout innings to preserve the triumph.

Yankees maul Oakland 7-1

NEW YORK (UPI) — Roy White, Bobby Murcer and Graig Nettles hit home runs during a five-run third inning outburst Tuesday night powering the New York Yankees to a 7-1 victory over the Oakland A's behind the five-hit pitching of Fritz Peterson.

Nettles, who ended Jim Hunter's string of 27 scoreless innings with a two-run homer in the second, climaxed the five-run third with a two-run shot into the bleachers which gave the Yankees their 7-1 margin.

City council will fight Padres' move

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Transfer of the San Diego Padres franchise to Washington may have hit a local snag with the City Council Tuesday.

Mayor Pete Wilson emerged from a closed door session with the council and told newsmen the city has "a binding lease with 15 years to run."

Wilson said councilmen share the point of view we would like the club to stay here.

Padres owner C. Arnholt Smith announced Sunday the franchise had been sold for $12 million to Joseph Danzansky and two other Washington businessmen. Two conditions of the sale were release by the city from the stadium contract and approval of that agreement by National League owners.

Wilson said he had no written communication on the sale from the Padres. He said, however, that lawyers for the city and club met Tuesday.

The mayor again denied the city had offered to release the club from the stadium agreement for $2.1 million.

The mayor said Smith told him about 10 days ago he was attempting to sell the club. He said Smith cited high interest costs, estimated at $700,000 annually, on the $10 million purchase price for the franchise.

16-year-old Swede still giant-killing

PARIS (UPI) — Top seeds Stan Smith and Ilie Nastase faced seeded players for the first time today in their bid for spots in the quarterfinals on the men's singles in the $150,000 French Open tennis championships.

Smith, the number one seed bidding for his first victory in the Paris tournament, was scheduled to meet Tom Okker of Holland, seeded 16th, and Nastase, second seed and Romania's top player, was set to clash with Frenchman François Jauffret, seeded 15th at the other end of the draw.

may prove a considerably tougher opponent on the clay courts of Roland Garros Stadium.

Panatta has dropped only one set on his way to the fourth round and Borg may find his giant-killing act ended by the 22-year-old Italian.

Borg has brought the championships to life and on each occasion he has played, outside courts have emptied as French fans flocked to the center court to see him.

Robinson bats Orioles to win

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Brooks Robinson slammed a run-scoring tie-breaking single in the eighth inning Tuesday night, hitting the Baltimore Orioles to 3-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals behind the seven-hit pitching of Jim Palmer.

Paul Blair slapped a one-out double in the eighth, his third hit of the game, took third on a wild pitch by loser Paul Spittorff and scored on Robinson's single past the drawn infield.

Sox edge Cal on Cepeda's HR

BOSTON (UPI) — Designated hitter Orlando Cepeda cracked a two-run homer in the eighth inning Tuesday night to give the Boston Red Sox a 3-2 victory over the California Angels.

Paul Blair slapped a one-out double in the eighth, his third hit of the game, took third on a wild pitch by loser Paul Spittorff and scored on Robinson's single past the drawn infield.

Buchanan decisions Otero in 10

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Former champion Ken Buchanan used a jarring left jab and well-timed combinations to win a unanimous decision over Cuban-born Frankie Otero Tuesday night in a rousing 10-round lightweight fight.

Buchanan decked Otero in the seventh round.

Both judges scored it 49-44 for Buchanan on the five-point must system and the referee had it 48-43. The UPI card had it 49-46 for Buchanan.

Buchanan's knockdown came midway in the seventh round when he started a flurry in a neutral corner, caught Otero with a solid right, sending him toward the canvas, and nailed him with a left hook as he went down.

Kansas City NBA franchise sold to home group

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A group of Kansas City businessmen have bought the Kansas City-Omaha Kings of the National Basketball Association, it was announced Tuesday.

The purchase price was undisclosed.

The Kansas City group is headed by Ray Evans, president of Traders National Bank, and H. Paul Rosenberg, president of Midland Lithographing Co. Evans is a former all-American halfback at the University of Kansas.

The sale, effective July 1, must be approved by the stockholders of Missouri Valley Pro Sports, Inc., the present owners, and the board of governors of the NBA.

The Jacobs family of Buffalo, N.Y., owned 70 per cent of the team's stock, while 73 others, mostly from Cincinnati, own the rest.

The transaction represents a sale of the total assets of the team.

In announcing the sale, Evans and Rosenberg emphasized the present front office and coaching staffs will be retained.

"We have offered Joe Axelson, and he has accepted, a new three-year contract as president and general manager," they stated. "He will continue to function as the team's governor at NBA meetings. Bob Cousy has indicated to Axelson that he will be back for his fifth year as head coach."

The team, which played 26 home games in Kansas City and 15 in Omaha last season, set an all-time attendance record for the team, averaging 6,387.

The new owners will be known as the Kansas Professional Basketball Club, Inc. They will assume the current lease on Municipal Auditorium in Kansas City and have endorsed a lease for the new American Royal Building, which will house the Kings and the new National Hockey League franchise in 1974.

Missouri Valley Pro Sports, Inc., stockholders will meet in Cincinnati June 25 and the NBA's board of governors will convene in Los Angeles June 27-29. Approval of the sale from both groups is anticipated.

Besides Evans and Rosenberg, there are six other members of the purchasing group.

They are Clay Blair, management and real estate consultant; Herbert R. Jackson, vice-president of A.D. Jacobson Co., Inc.; Leon Karosen, president of Youthercraft Coats and Suits, Inc.; Robert Margolin, partner in Marolin and Kirwan; John T. Muir, investment broker, and Leonard Strauss, president of Inland Cold Storage Co.

Evans will serve as chairman of the board. Rosenberg will be executive vice-president and alternate governor to the NBA and Margolin will serve as secretary-treasurer.

Soggy Indianapolis hopes third time will be charm

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — A third attempt will be made to run the rain-plagued "500" mile auto race today and the weatherman is no more optimistic about the prospect of getting in this one than he was about the previous two.

Showers are forecast again for today and while the major portion of the front moving from the central plains is expected to affect southern Indiana primarily, the Indianapolis area has not been ruled out as a possibility for precipitation.

When rain washed out activities for the second straight day Tuesday, it marked the first time in "500" history the event had ever been postponed twice in succession.

The race turned into a shambles Monday when rain followed a 10-car collision which occurred only seconds after the start, and Tuesday more showers again resulted in a postponement despite the fact the cars actually did get into two preliminary professional laps before they were red-flagged to a stop.

Only 32 cars were ready to go Tuesday since the machine driven by Salt Walther of Dayton, Ohio, was demolished in Monday's accident. Walther is still hospitalized in serious condition with a broken wrist and severe burns.

They managed to run the parade lap and the pace lap Tuesday, but as the racers reached the starting line, rain began falling on the two north turns. That was when the field was stopped. The drivers then remained on the track, in their cars, hoping for the rain to stop and the race to start.

The postponement announcement finally was made at 12:46 p.m. (MDT), 4 hours and 46 minutes after the scheduled starting time. Today's start also is scheduled for 8 a.m. (MDT).

Chief Steward Harlan Fenger explained to the diminishing crowd that a wet track had made running too hazardous. Car owner Roger Penske, and drivers Gary Bettenhausen and A.J. Foyt also spoke over the public address system.

Feeding the masses providing big headache at race track

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — "It's terrible. People are so hungry and we can't take care of them."

That summed up the complaint of a concessions worker's regarding the compounded logistics problems after two days of postponements of the 500-mile auto race due to rain.

The trouble is, the concessions woman said, "we can't get food to them."

There are many problems, she said.

"You can't find people to work," she said. "Most of our employees are women and our help is part-time. Many of our old hands have quit to take full-time jobs. They need the money."

On Monday a record crowd of more than 300,000 attended only to go away disappointed. The race never came off. It was canceled after a spectacular 10-car accident and after the rain soaked the oval for the fourth time.

The crowd shrank to about 150,000 Tuesday and again was disappointed. They ran the parade and the pace lap and that was all. Rain again interfered and the track never dried up sufficiently for the green flag to be displayed.

That makes more than 400,000 fans for two days and although the great majority hauled their own provisions into the sprawling and well-soaked Speedway grounds, they also drained the foodstuffs supplies.

Speedway officials defend flying start

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Anytime 33 race drivers with nearly 900 horsepower at their disposal begin a race for more than $1 million in prize money, there can be problems, says chief steward Harlan Fenger of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

No Speedway or USAC official yet knows what caused Salt Walther's car to suddenly dart to the right and strike the front-left wheel of Jerry Grant's racer seconds after the field passed the starting line on Monday.

Perhaps they will never know.

But Fenger and 1957 Indianapolis "500" winner Sam Hanks, now director of competition for the Speedway, does not believe the higher speeds now generated by the racing machines and the diminished relative width of the 2 1/2-mile oval because of the wider tracks and huge tires now used, are reasons to change the famous flying start of the race.

Fenger said it is his decision and his alone as to when the green light goes on to start the race. When I decided to start the race, the green light went on and the first row was away as it crossed the entrance to the pits.

"It is a difficult start normally," Fenger added, and Monday's four-hour rain delay undoubtedly increased normal pre-race tension among the drivers.

"A great number of people forget the race is on when the green light goes on," he said.

Hanks called the race start excellent. "We ask the drivers to abide by the rules and regulations," he said.

Texan throws no-hitter in state finals

DALLAS (UPI) — Left-hander David Clyde threw his ninth no-hit game of the season Tuesday as Texas Rangers officials watched the tense high school playoff game won by Clyde's Houston Westchester team 1-0 over Dallas Kimball on an error.

Maybe tomorrow

The elusive Ernie DiGregorio, wearing a black and white striped suit with a matching cap and a blue turtle-neck sweater, finally met the Buffalo press for the first time since he signed his contract with the National Basketball Association Buffalo Braves.

The news conference was the fourth scheduled by the Braves since they thought they had DiGregorio signed. He was finally signed last Friday night, two days after Braves owner Paul Snyder confidently announced that the little Providence star "is a Buffalo Brave."

"I have a feeling we've all been here before," Snyder said, opening Tuesday's news conference.

He explained that after the Braves thought they had an agreement with DiGregorio last Wednesday, "Ernie's attorney Larry Fleisher of New York City told us that our deal was off and that Kentucky made a much better offer and told us we couldn't compete."

Elusive DiGregorio shows up at Buffalo

DiGregorio flew back to Providence following the press conference for a rehearsal for his wedding Saturday. He planned to return later in the week to talk to Braves officials for a day or two.

When in college, he said, "there's no question you have to put the time in on the books."

But DiGregorio drew laughter when he added that he "put an hour a day in the books," and "five hours a day in the game."

The six-foot guard, who reportedly signed his contract for somewhere around $1 million plus other undisclosed benefits, just grinned. "I'm not lying to you, really."

Jews stage protest

MOSCOW (UPI) — Ten Soviet Jews denied permission to emigrate to Israel staged a brief demonstration Monday in front of the attorney general's office.

Fifteen minutes after they sat down on a sidewalk in front of the building on Gorky Street they were taken into custody by members of the Druzhinka, the voluntary auxiliary police.

They were taken to nearby Druzhinka's headquarters, where they refused to identify themselves, and were released after about 10 minutes.

The demonstrators earlier delivered a letter to the attorney general's office in which they demanded an answer to their complaint made two months ago that the KGB, the Soviet secret police, had illegally blocked their exit visas.

"If this silence continues, we ask you to tell us who controls the attorney general's office and we will remain beneath your windows awaiting a response," the letter said.

An official in the office up on the letter in front of the demonstrators.

Scandal hampers program

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said today the Watergate scandal may have "hampere" American assistance to South Vietnam's postwar economic program.

Addressing more than 3,000 administration officials at a seminar on the postwar economic program at Thu Duc National Police school, Thieu said: "Much of the hard work I did during my trip in the United States may have been hampered by the Watergate scandal."

Thieu visited the United States in April for extensive talks with President Nixon and other American officials on possible assistance to South Vietnam's efforts to revive its economy.

Thieu has asked the United States to increase economic aid to South Vietnam from the present level of nearly $500 million a year through 1973. For the fiscal year of 1973, South Vietnam continues to receive an estimated $48 million in economic assistance.

The new budget, sent by Nixon to Congress earlier this month, includes $632 million in foreign aid for Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. The sum does not include North Vietnam.

Bronze statue dedicated

CANTON, Ohio (UPI) — A life-size bronze statue of 1st Lt. Sharon Lane, first American servicewoman to die in Vietnam, was dedicated Monday as part of Memorial Day services.

Miss Lane, 25, of nearby North Industry, was serving with the Army Nurse Corps at Chu Lai when killed by a Communist rocket in June 1969.

The statue stands on the grounds of Altman Hospital, where she attended the School of Nursing. On the base of the statue are inscribed the names of the 100 American servicewomen who died in Indochina.

"I have lost a wonderful daughter," John Lane said at the ceremony.

"She had planned to resist for another year after her tour of Vietnam," he recalled. "She wanted to see other parts of the world before returning home."

Anne plans rites

LONDON (UPI) — Ten weeks after she insisted they were just good friends Princess Anne, 22, changed her mind and asked her mother, Queen Elizabeth, for permission to marry Lieut. Mark Phillips, a 24-year-old, $100-a-week career soldier.

The Queen gave the couple her blessing and announced the engagement tonight, thus bringing into the royal family a man whose mother does most of her own housekeeping, whose father is only comfortably off as a director of a pork sausage and ice cream firm.

The announcement in the court circles said: "It is with the greatest pleasure that the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh announce the betrothal of their beloved daughter, the Princess Anne, to Lieut. Mark Phillips, the Queen's Dragoon Guards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Phillips."

The Buckingham Palace press secretary, Ronald Allison, said the wedding would be in the early autumn — probably November — either in Westminster Abbey or St. George's Chapel on the grounds of Windsor Castle.

"The Queen and Prince Philip, who have both known Lieut. Phillips for some time, are delighted with the engagement," Allison said, adding that Mark's parents would lunch with the royal family at Buckingham Palace tomorrow.

The news was heralded by an unusual gathering of royalty at one of the royal family homes in Scotland, Balmoral. Prince Charles, heir to the throne, flew in from his ship in "The Caribbean and Queen Mother Elizabeth, Princess Margaret and the Earl of Snowdon also were present.

Phillips was the only commoner present. And when it was the express invitation of Princess Anne it became obvious that she and the lieutenant were not sticking to the "just good friends" story they gave journalists in March.

The young couple will be on the overnight royal train from London tonight with the Queen and the other members of the royal family.

France stands firm

NOUMEA, French Caledonia (UPI) — High Commissioner Louis Verger said Monday France will not be deterred from her determination to hold nuclear tests in the South Pacific by Australia's and New Zealand's opposition campaign.

Verger told the Territorial Assembly, an advisory body, France will defeat the boycott of her Pacific territories by Australia and New Zealand and insure regional food and other supplies to their populations.

"Verger said the fully-armed and ready government will do everything so that New Caledonia does not suffer in any way from these maneuvers."

"For the rest, it is clear that France, an independent power, will resolutely pursue the building of her defense policies and therefore, of its atomic weapons, which are an indispensable guarantee of our national independence in the present world."

The Australian and New Zealand governments last week have filed a plea with the International Court of Justice in The Hague in an attempt to halt France's plans for new nuclear tests in the Tuamotu archipelago.

France, said the court was not competent to rule on national defense matters.

Verger said "our tests are surrounded by a true luxury of precautions which have failed to be taken by other countries, though they are not being criticized."

"All the foreign scientists called in to make on-the-spot checks have agreed that there is absolutely no danger of fallout," Verger said.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 31, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES After a slow start you find the latter part of the day is fine to think out a new course of action under which you can operate in the days ahead. Fine time for gaining the information you need. Take care of communications.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handle your obligations in a most intelligent way and plan to make the future more profitable. State your ideas to others and gain their cooperation so they can be more successful.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Talks with monetary experts can bring the advice you need and will require careful study later on. Make plans to improve whatever property you may own. Take it easy tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are thinking very clearly now and can solve puzzling matters quickly. Attend the social affairs that can help you meet those persons who can help you advance in your career.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make plans how to properly channel your increased business affairs. You need to be alone with more of it you are to have harmony. Make repairs in your home.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Showing good friends that you really like them is important now, since they need bolstering up. Repaying special obligations is wise. Show others you are a worthwhile person to know.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Engage in civic work that can bring you the goodwill of bigwigs who can be helpful in your business. Learn to say no to whatever is wrong and against your wishes. Be resolute.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Find the right ways and means through which to advance in the near future. You can easily obtain the data you need from a new contact. Make the evening a happy one with close ties.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have unusual vision now and should use it to advance in your career. Come to a better understanding with mate so that there can be greater happiness and prosperity in the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Ask associates questions and know what is expected of you and then try to please them. Discuss past agreements so there is better understanding. Do something thoughtful for mate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't permit others to take you away from the important work you have to do today. Persevere and you win. Do some shopping for apparel that will improve your appearance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Schedule your time cleverly so you can get your work done quickly and well. Use those talents you possess and become a very popular person. Taking health treatments is wise.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) The morning could be dreary but later you will feel more enthused and bright-eyed. Take time to plan a wiser foundation for your life. Do some entertaining in the evening.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one of those intelligent young people who needs careful guidance and should be taught to complete whatever tasks that have been started, otherwise your progeny could become a jek of all trades and master of none. Send to the right schools, and then this becomes a most successful chart. Give the right kind of spiritual training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

What's What

L. M. Boyd

Back in the days when numerous characters carried holstered revolvers on their hips, it was considered dangerous for a girl to drape herself around a fellow in an untoward manner. For this reason, it's said, the city fathers of Norman, Okla., passed an ordinance, still on the books, to make it illegal for a woman to sit on a man's lap unless she first puts a pillow under her.

After age 5, the older the boy gets, the less often he dreams of animals.

It was Napoleon's watchmaker, Abraham Louis Breguet, who in 1791 first invented the self-winding watch. Yes, sir, dates that far back.

Our Love and War man says this little clue in romance only applies to cigarette smokers. But among such, it's understood the girl is a serious candidate for marriage, if she switches from her own cigarette brand to her gentleman friend's.

BOWIE KNIFE

No, James Bowie didn't design what's now known as the Bowie knife, not really. He submitted a design for such a knife to blacksmith James Black of Washington, Ark. And Black made that knife, true. But he also made one of his own design. And after examining the two, Bowie chose Black's.

Men who carry umbrellas on sunny days. Men who keep their change in small purses. Men who, hold pipes in their mouths. And men with red hair. These have one thing in common, according to porters on the Canadian National Railway. They don't tip well, if at all.

TOBACCONI

O. 'Wasm't it Arturo Toscanini who said, 'Let love be like the misty rain, coming softly but flooding the river?'

'At 'No, that's an African proverb. Toscanini said, 'I loved my first woman and smoked my first cigarette on the same day, and I've never had time for tobacco since.'

Those surgical sex changes are executed four times more frequently from male to female than from female to male.

Seemingly severe fellow, the great George Washington. Am asked what he did for amusement, if anything. Historical footnotes report he most liked to train baby foxes to do tricks.

Figure the average woman's teeth are about 4 per cent smaller than the average man's. Figure her bones are about 8 per cent smaller than the man's. This clearly indicates that the female is relatively tougher than the male. Chewer. Nipper. More bits to the pound.
