Salmon limits raised

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Fish and Game Department Thursday announced that Chinook Salmon bag limits will be doubled on the Main Salmon River beginning Saturday. The daily bag limit will be increased from one salmon to two per day, with a possession limit increase from two to four fish in any consecutive seven day period. The bag increase limits already were increased on the Little Salmon last week. The daily bag limit remains at one salmon per day and a possession limit of no more than 10 salmon per calendar year. The season limit for the Main Salmon River increases from five to 10 salmon per calendar year.

Childers offers help

DUBLIN (UPI) — Erskine Childers, the first Protestant elected president of this overwhelmingly Roman Catholic republic, volunteered today to mediate the bloody feud between Protestants and Catholics in neighboring Northern Ireland. Childers swept to an upset victory in Wednesday's nationwide vote to pick a successor to retiring President Eamon de Valera. In his campaign he said he would carry out a "mission of conciliation" if elected.

Produce prices jump

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The average prices of raw farm products jumped 4 per cent in the month ending May 15 and were 33 per cent above those of a year ago, according to the Department of Agriculture. The monthly report on prices farmers received for their products is often a guide to future trends in retail food costs. The 4 per cent increase came after farm prices had dropped 1.5 per cent last month, the first decline in a year.

Deficit cut reported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration said today that unexpected revenue from the booming economy would reduce the federal budget deficit in the current fiscal year to $18 billion and to less than $3 billion in the year beginning July 1. If the estimate holds up through the 1974 fiscal year, which begins July 1, it would be the closest to balance the federal budget has been since 1969, the last year the government's books were out of the red.

Actress compares women

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Chinese and American women live in "two different worlds," said actress Shirley MacLaine Thursday. Recently returned from a six-week tour of China, Miss MacLaine said, "Whereas the woman's role in this country centers more around their attitudes about sex, marriage, children, being used and exploitation, the role of women in China centers almost entirely around political organization."

Nuclear tests planned

CANBERRA (UPI) — An Australian senator said today the French government may begin nuclear testing in the South Pacific within 24 hours. Sen. Arthur Gietzelt said French authorities had declared a danger zone in the South Pacific and warned air traffic to stay away from 5:30 p.m. MDT today to 3 p.m. MDT Saturday. The test area is near Mururoa atoll, 5,000 miles south of Sydney. Attorney General Lionel Murphy said International opinion opposes the tests.

Decision near on TF County planner

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County commissioners said Thursday they hope to decide whether to hire a professional planner within two weeks. The county officials heard a proposal by Twin Falls City representatives Thursday in which the city and county would split the costs of hiring a professional planner. County Commission Chairman William Chancey said after the meeting he believed the county's $20,000 share could be arranged if county residents support such a program. Chancey asked the 28 persons representing various political units and farm organizations to submit their written views to the commission within 10 days to expedite a decision by the commissioners. At the meeting Thursday, called by the county commissioners, Twin Falls City Manager Jean Milat urged planning on a county basis to encompass city planning and coordinate growth and development between urban and rural areas. Milat called for an executive board of city and county citizens with authority to direct the program. The board would hire a full-time professional planner who would live in the community and direct a continuous program of planning. The professional planner, he said, would be responsible for implementing a program and changing it to meet changing developments. A competent professional planner, he said, would work with the existing city and county zoning boards and city councils to coordinate their growth problems and expansions with the countywide plan. The city of Twin Falls has budgeted $20,000 for such a program this year and is asking the county to do the same.

Milat said most of the city's growth problems do not end at the city limit, but are also county problems. Chancey said no money was budgeted for planning specifically, but with revenue sharing and other areas of the budget carefully reviewed, another $20,000 should be available. Ed Woods, county zoning administrator, reviewed the county's resource studies by 12 committees. These volunteer workers have completed their inventories and recommendations, he said, but they are now through with their work and a professional or some other type of organization is needed to put the resource material to use. Spokesmen from several Grange and Farm Bureau groups questioned the wisdom of "outside" persons being asked to do the planning in Twin Falls County and several said they felt the cost to the taxpayers would be too great. PREMIER George Papadopoulos abolished the Greek monarchy today. He declared Greece a presidential republic and named himself as its first president. The announcement came nine days after the government smashed a plot to overthrow the regime and restore King Constantine to the throne.

Solons vote war cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The next American plane dropping bombs on Cambodia was defying the express wishes of both the House and the Senate. The Senate, by a vote of 63 to 19 Thursday, and the House, by a margin of 224 to 172 on May 10, have gone on record opposing expenditures for military activity "in, over or from the shores of" Cambodia. The prohibition is not yet law, but Senate war critics said today President Nixon can no longer claim congressional sanction for the air war in Cambodia. Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., said the bombing of Cambodia is "illegal and unconstitutional as of this moment." But Eagleton, the sponsor of the Senate's antiwar amendment, acknowledged there was little Congress could do if Nixon chooses to continue the bombing. Once his amendment is signed into law or enacted by overriding the President's expected veto, however, Eagleton said Nixon will have no option but to stop the bombing. "Not even the most sophisticated Wall Street lawyer could get around this amendment," he said following Thursday's lopsided vote. The Eagleton amendment, part of a $3.7 billion supplemental appropriations bill, would prohibit the use of any congressionally appropriations for the Cambodia bombing, or for any renewal of bombing in Laos. The House version of the supplemental bill, although containing antiwar language identical to the Senate's, does not go as far. Its prohibition on Cambodia funds applies only to the supplemental bill itself, and not to the billions of dollars in war funds Congress appropriated earlier. This means that the supplemental bill must now go to a Senate-House conference to work out an antiwar clause that both houses will accept. The process could take weeks and since the House representatives in the conference likely will be dominated by members who opposed any restriction on funds—chances are dim that the Eagleton amendment will survive. Even if it does, a presidential veto likely would be sustained by the House even though, judging from Thursday's vote, the Senate can now muster the two-thirds majority necessary to override a veto.

Game loss hit

SUN VALLEY — The increased number of big game lost as a result of the ban on use of toxic materials for predator control was stressed at a Congressional hearing here today. The all-day meeting was conducted by the Senate Interior Committee on Public Lands on the problems of predator control. The first witness was Richard Egbert, state senator, Tetonian, who said he had "deep concern for the very survival of the sheep industry." He said "Cattlemen now know coyotes kill calves." He also said substantial evidence exists that coyotes are killing cows also. He said that big game numbers have been "drastically reduced" since the loss of toxicants for predator control. The second witness, Walter E. Little, state representative, New Plymouth, outlined the House Joint Memorial No. 4 which passed the House with only one dissenting vote. He said "the vote by which the memorial passed the house is certainly an indication that the people of Idaho feel the President was ill-advised in imposing the ban on controls. His action was not to the best interest of the people of Idaho." Committee Chairman Senator Haskell, Colorado, said the purpose of the hearing was to compile information on the extent of damage in the usefulness of various methods of control. Sen. Frank Church said about the federal executive ban, "We have lived with it for a year." He said it was time to present evidence and assess its impact.

Rupert ranch chief hired

RUPERT — James W. Worsley, Jr., noise, today was named executive director of the Idaho Youth Ranch. Clyde Greenwell, chairman of the ranch's board of directors, said Worsley will take office as soon as he completes his commitments in Boise. Greenwell was unable to provide background information on the new director today, pending receipt of his official resume. Greenwell also said today he refuses to comment on a call for his resignation by Clifford Morgan, a former house parent at the ranch. Morgan had charged lack of board support for treatment programs at the ranch. Greenwell indicated he would make a statement after the empty positions at the ranch are filled. The entire house parent staff at the ranch resigned last Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Pratt left the ranch on Saturday and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Morgan and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stone left today.

Spy plan 'shocks' Ervin

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C. said Thursday that some of the papers taken from the White House by former presidential aide John Dean "would be a great shock to the people if they were released." Ervin, chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, told a news conference he had been looking the papers over for 10 days since a federal judge supplied them to the committee. Other developments: —William D. Ruckelshaus, acting FBI director, said in an interview with the Post that the agency had suffered "no permanent damage" as a result of some unfavorable disclosures during the Watergate investigation. —Haldeman acknowledged in testimony before a Senate subcommittee Thursday that the White House sought last year to limit one aspect of the FBI investigation of Watergate "in the interest of national security."

SEN. SAM ERVIN ... shocked

The papers outline, Ervin said, "a plan to set up an operation to spy on Americans generally, at least any that didn't agree with the administration." "I don't think it's the function of the American government to spy on Americans," he said. Ervin said he will seek to determine which portions of the papers should be withheld for reasons of national security, but he believed the other information should be made public. He declined to discuss the papers in specific terms. Ervin also denied that he was unduly delaying calling any top witnesses before his panel. Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., a member of the Senate Watergate committee, earlier Thursday urged the committee to immediately begin calling seven former administration officials when the Watergate hearings resume next week. Ervin said "I wish the top level witnesses were available, but we have applied for an order of immunity (from prosecution) for the two I think

State fills key area post

TWIN FALLS — A Pocatello mental health executive has been chosen to head all state health, welfare, environmental, and child development and youth rehabilitation programs in Magic Valley. Milt Klein, director of individual patient services at the Gateway Mental Health Center, Pocatello, was appointed today to the newly created $20,520-per-year position of deputy administrator for the Idaho Department of Environmental and Community Services (DECS). According to Dr. James Bax, DECS director, Klein will oversee the far-flung operations in Camas, Blaine, Gooding, Lincoln, Jerome, Minidoka, Twin Falls and Cassia Counties. The appointment was made by Dr. James A. Bax, administrator of DECS. He said the appointment represents another step by DECS to extend people oriented programs to the local level throughout Idaho. John Van Ornum, Jerome, chairman of the board of DECS, said "I am happy to see people of this caliber being appointed to the regional offices. I introduced Mr. Klein to people around Twin Falls Thursday and they seemed well pleased with him." Klein said he is "concerned with delivering as much equally available services throughout Region 5 as possible for the money spent." "However, he added, "it will be important to develop services around the needs of the community so it can truly be a program of the residents." "Family stability and healthy children must be major goals which can be accomplished through concerned support of every person in Region 5," he said. "I hope everyone will feel free to share their ideas and concerns with the staff and myself." Klein, who is married and has daughters 8 and 6 years old, moved to Idaho three years ago when he began his job at the Pocatello mental health center. He received a master of social work degree in 1963 from Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., studying through a grant from the Institute for Juvenile Research, a statewide child guidance center in Illinois. He will headquarter in the new regional offices of the former Social Rehabilitation Services offices in Twin Falls and is expected to move here within the next few weeks.

Outdoor services Sunday

TWIN FALLS — Drive-in church services will begin Sunday for the convenience of tourists and local residents wishing to attend church before beginning a Sunday outing.

Sponsored by the Protestant churches of the area, the services are non-denominational and begin at 8 a.m. each Sunday during the summer months in the Motor-Vu Theater on Eastland Drive.

Refreshments are served after the services. Although the program is designed largely for the tourists and others traveling through the community, they are also open to area residents. Persons planning a camping or fishing trip may attend in their camping clothes on their way out of town.

Persons attending stay in their automobiles as they do for the outdoor shows.

Boy Scouts from Troop 65, First Christian Church, are distributing window placards this week announcing the start of the summer program. The service continues through Labor Day.

CIA records aid commandant

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Marine Corps Commandant Robert E. Cushman Jr. said Thursday that CIA records support his statement that John D. Ehrlichman asked the agency to help Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt.

According to statements made in the Pentagon Papers trial of Daniel Ellsberg, Hunt used this aid—including false papers, a disguise, a camera and recording equipment—in the burglary at the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

On May 11, Cushman told a Senate intelligence subcommittee that a call introducing Hunt to the CIA came to him in July, 1971, from John D. Ehrlichman, then President Nixon's chief domestic adviser. Cushman was then deputy director of CIA.

Ehrlichman Wednesday gave the subcommittee and the press a written statement in which he said he did not remember making such a call.

Thursday, at a Pentagon news conference, Cushman cited minutes of a CIA staff meeting July 8, 1971. The minutes verified, Cushman said, that he had told other CIA officials at that meeting that he had received a telephone call from Ehrlichman asking aid for Hunt.

But Cushman said, "I do not regard Mr. Ehrlichman's position and mine as being necessarily contradictory. I did not initially recall accurately who had phoned me from the White House regarding Mr. Hunt. I can easily understand why Mr. Ehrlichman does not remember the call."

Crude oil price up

GENEVA (UPI) — Petroleum producing countries and the major western oil companies reached agreement today on an increase in crude oil prices to offset losses caused by devaluation of the dollar.

The agreement was announced after four days of intensive negotiation and with the producing countries threatening to impose sanctions unless the companies paid more for their oil.

Shelima Ali Monguno, President of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), said details would be disclosed later in the day but that "we have reached agreement."

Astronauts sleep in, relax all day

News tips
733-0931

HOUSTON (UPI) — While engineers on the ground focus their talents on solving Skylab's energy crisis, the astronauts took the day off to rest, shower — a space first — catch up on housekeeping and save electricity.

Charles "Pete" Conrad, Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Wertz, beginning the second week of their marathon, had seven hours of free time on their schedule. It was the first day off given to Americans in space.

While planned to do some sightseeing, and Wertz asked for coordinates for the Pyramids of Egypt and for Mt. Kilimanjaro in Tanzania.

For a while Thursday night, it appeared the pilots would give up three hours of their time today to insert a television camera through an airlock to inspect the power generating wing jammed against the side of Skylab. The crew agreed to do it but controllers later decided they didn't have time to work out the necessary jury-rigging procedures.

Skylab's power shortage, however, was a top priority item and controllers continued to look at the possibility of using the television camera later to see if a spacewalk would be safe and likely to do the job. Engineers suggested the pilots might use a bone saw from a medical kit to cut metal holding the wing.

Skylab's power problems worsened Wednesday when the second of the station's 18 main battery circuits failed. They serve as power conduits from the solar wing generators to the space station and the loss of two robbed Skylab of 11 percent of its energy.

Skylab's generating capacity, produced by four good solar panels, is now down to 4,200 watts—the bare minimum for running the station and conducting most of its experiments, although on a limited basis.

If the broken solar panel could be unfolded, its solar cells would convert sunlight into enough electricity to add 3,000 watts. This would end the power crisis and give the ship enough electricity to support a total of nine men in orbit for 20 weeks of space research.

"We have high hopes of being able to get OWS (orbital workshop) wing No. 1 deployed," said flight director Donald Puddy late Thursday night. "It would be a tremendous boost."

There no longer is any power margin, and controllers said Skylab's important earth resources photographic surveys probably would have to be curtailed.

To save power, the astronauts have turned off some ventilating fans, lights, and a hot water heater. They canceled an earth resources pass Thursday but gathered five hours of valuable sun watching data and ran important medical tests.

"We've been running absolutely minimum lights," Conrad told mission control. "We leave all of the lights off in the experiment area if we're not down there and we leave them off in the bedrooms."

Bombers pound Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — U.S. F4 Phantom and A7 Corsair fighter-bombers striking hours after the U.S. Senate voted to cut off funds for the air war in Cambodia today pounded a suspected rebel buildup southwest of Phnom Penh in the same region hit by three waves of B52 bombers overnight.

The B52 raids, 18 miles from Phnom Penh, were the closest flown to the capital in at least three weeks, residents said. The rumble of the falling bombs reverberated throughout Phnom Penh.

The raids came as news reached the Cambodian capital of the U.S. Senate move to cut funds for bombing in Cambodia, carried out by Thailand based jets.

Authoritative military sources said the intense raids were called for by the Cambodian army after U.S. spotter planes detected movement of Communist troops in the direction of the province capital of Kompong Speu, some 34 miles to the southwest of the capital.

The bombing by Corsairs and Phantoms in the area was confirmed by radio monitoring in the capital.

News of the U.S. Senate's action caused scarcely a comment in the streets of Phnom Penh, or among troops in the field questioned by reporters. However diplomats close to the government said there was "considerable anxiety" in those circles.

Shortage 'trick', TF man says

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls gasoline distributor says motorists are being tricked into believing there is a gasoline shortage when there is none.

Joe Clements, told Kiwanis Club members Thursday noon at the Turf Club the gasoline shortage stories are the "greatest untruths that have ever been dished out."

He claimed that the move is a step by the major gasoline concerns to crush the independent concerns.

"This thing couldn't have developed in so short a time by itself," Clements said. "It is a manipulation of the major oil concerns. They will make it work even if it kills them and takes us (the independents) with them."

Pointing out that independents have about 30 percent of the market, he said the major gas companies "have the most powerful lobby in the world."

Behind the false gas and oil shortage claims, the speaker said, is the attempt to force building of the Alaskan pipeline and to continue the fight of the big oil concerns against the environmentalists.

He claimed that present talk of higher gasoline taxes, even as high as a possible 10 cents a gallon, is a move by the major companies to "get your mind off the real issue. They say it will stop inflation but this is the first time I ever heard of fighting inflation by raising taxes."

Claiming the "shortage" is not real, Clements said the majors are rationing gas and closing some of their own stations just to make it look good. Continued manipulation by the majors will result in the "death" of independent dealers, he said. This situation will carry into the fuel oil business next winter if these manipulations are continued.

Historical tour slated

TWIN FALLS — Summer activities for the Twin Falls County Historical Society will begin with a field trip to Idaho City Sunday.

Another trip will be held June 10 with state and county societies invited to the Lake Bonneville washout site from Milner Dam to Shoshone Falls.

The Minidoka County Society picnic will be June 17 at the Twin Falls County Historical Museum where the Twin Falls County Society will also meet June 24 for a potluck dinner.

In July, the Twin Falls County society will take a field trip to Rocky Bar, and in August the Idaho and upper Snake River Historical Society will travel to Market Lake.

County planner decision nears

Gene Walker, Farm Bureau, said he believes the people who live in the county can do the job and there is no need for a professional.

Clinton Dougherty, Pomeroy Grange, said, "Remember who was here first. We do not want to be surrounded on our farms by subdivisions. I think a committee of eight or ten citizens could do the job."

Ted Pence, Buhl-Buhl mayor, said Buhl has not yet seen too many growth problems but they may be coming. He said Buhl is watching Twin Falls actions for future guidance. He said he would like more information on professional planning before asking Buhl taxpayers to support it.

Dan Kauffman, Piler mayor, said his town is also handling growth as it comes but more and more housing is developing around Piler and there is a potential need for good planning. He said Piler would cooperate with the county and other cities as needed.

Clyde Van Ausden, Grange member, said an over-all plan for the county is essential not only to guide development of housing and industry but to protect food producing agricultural lands. If it requires professional guidance, he said, the county should give this favorable consideration.

He said he could not favor giving a planner a "blank check," but feels the final authority with a board of county citizens may be the answer.

Paul Kelley, executive director for the South Central Resource Development Assn., a four-county planning group, said unless the county can establish a good comprehensive plan it will no longer be eligible for federal funds such as those available for the Housing and Urban Development agency.

Small communities have little hope for establishing costly sewer systems, treatment plants and water developments without federal funding.

TF burglary probe continues

TWIN FALLS — Burglaries of two adjacent business firms on Eastland Drive are under investigation by Twin Falls sheriff's officers.

Simplot Co. offices were broken into an about $100 taken from coin-operated machines and desk drawers.

Officers said the building was entered by breaking through a side door. Offices inside were also entered and a shop building was ransacked, but nothing was reported missing.

County officers said considerable damage resulted to the building from vandalism. Two wash basins were stopped up and water turned on to flood the building. Hand lotion and liquid soap were spread around the building and other damage caused inside the Simplot Co. offices.

Officers said tracks indicated the burglars then walked next door to Gallatin Valley Seed Co. where entry was gained by an undetermined means. Officers said one office calculator and a personal file of one employe were taken.

Doors were found open, officers said, but there was no evidence of forced entry. One broken window was found but investigation indicated the burglars did not use this method of entering the building. Slight damage was reported in the Gallatin Valley building.

Environmental Action Workshop scheduled for June 12 in TF

TWIN FALLS — Environmental problems in the Twin Falls area will be discussed in an Environmental Action Workshop scheduled for June 12 at 7 p.m.

One of 20 such meetings to be held around the state, it will be in the High School "quad" rooms, under the direction of the Bureau of Public Affairs Research, University of Idaho and the South Central District of the Department of Environmental and Community Services (DECS).

Also assisting in sponsoring the meeting will be the South Idaho Resource Planning and Development Association.

Gov. Cecil Andrus, who has endorsed the workshop program in the state, said he hopes participants will consider ways to achieve two objectives: expanding the economic base to provide good jobs and at the same time protect the purity, beauty and natural resources of the state.

Dr. Sydney Leunow, associate director for the Bureau of Public Affairs Research, said interested citizens attending the sessions will be asked to help identify and take action on environmental problems of their areas.

Dr. Wayne Carte, director of the district health program, said information from the workshop will be used by the South Central District and DECS.

A federal grant to fund the workshops was obtained through assistance of Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, who said each session is intended to give citizens a chance to hear authorities discuss pollution problems and use information to formulate solutions designed to fit each community.

A slide presentation will be given on environmental pollution and its sources and a questionnaire which will give workshop directors information on local attitude toward pollution problems will also be given out.

Following the general session, those attending will divide into smaller groups for discussion of specific environmental problems and solutions with one workshop director assisting each group. Directors will collect summary information from each group for use in making future plans and projects.

Interested persons are invited to attend the meeting.

Conventions are big business. People attending conventions in this country spend more than $9 billion a year. How come Yourtown doesn't get more of that business?

What really terrifies Bonn, however, is the prospect that the Senate isolationists will prevail against a weakened Mr. Nixon to force a massive unilateral withdrawal of 100,000 troops or even more.

Against these paramount considerations, irritation by the prosperous German public over 122,000 American GIs is trivial.

Protect unborn

PROVISIONS of constitutional amendment protecting lives of unborn children are outlined by two sponsors, Sen. James L. Buckley, R-N.Y., and Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore. Proposal was offered in Senate Thursday. (UPI)

Anti-abortion amendment offered by 6 senators

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Six senators Thursday proposed a "Human Life Amendment" to the Constitution which would prohibit abortions except when the mother's life is endangered. Spurred by the recent Supreme Court decision which struck down anti-abortion statutes in the 50 states, the senators proposed an amendment which would define an unborn baby as a human being with full constitutional protection. Sen. James L. Buckley, R-N.Y., prime sponsor of the proposal, said it was drawn to cover not only abortion but to head off what he termed a growing trend toward acceptance of mercy killing. Joining Buckley were Sens. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, Carl Curtis, R-Neb., and Dewey F. Bartlett, R-Okla. The amendment establishes that unborn children "are persons within the meaning of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution," Buckley said. The only exception to the prohibition is when the pregnancy risks the mother's life. "The exemption is severely limited in scope, and most emphatically does not cover the spurious claims of risk to maternal life and health which are a transparent cloak for abortion-on-demand," Buckley said. Buckley said the amendment was aimed at preventing what he termed was a "new ethic" that he feels is present in the Supreme Court decision — implying that the unborn do not possess the "capability of meaningful life." "When this kind of sociologese creeps into a Supreme Court opinion, and when it is used to justify the taking of innocent human life, albeit unborn human life, thoughtful men ask themselves where such logic might lead," Buckley said. "Already there is a renewed interest in so-called mercy-killing," Buckley said. "Such talk is no mere idle speculation.

It is taking place on the highest levels of the scientific establishment, where ideas that the public would consider truly shocking just a few years ago are being debated with great and serious intensity. "We are, I fear, entering an era where the sacredness of human life, born and unborn, will be sacrificed on the altar of social utilitarianism," he said. A constitutional amendment must be passed by Congress and three-quarters of the state legislatures before it becomes effective.

OAU ducks dangerous issues

By PHIL-NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst. Considering the fact that unity has been the ingredient most usually missing in the Organization for African Unity, the mere fact that the OAU has passed its 10th birthday is in itself noteworthy. One could almost hear the sigh of relief that went up from its 41 members when, at the close of its annual meeting in Addis Ababa, President William Tolbert of Liberia was able to say:

the dispute by recent discoveries of natural gas in the area and hopes for the future discovery of exploitable oil deposits. Among African nations border disputes become especially sensitive since national borders usually follow old colonial rather than tribal lines.

To recognize and dispute would be to open a Pandora's Box involving most of Africa. The attitude to be taken by the OAU toward the Mideast dispute occupied days of heated debate which broke into the open when the Libyan delegate accused Ethiopia of supporting "Zionists and colonialists."

He then proposed that "all African countries sever relations with the United States and with Zionists" and that the seat of the OAU be moved from Addis Ababa to another site, namely Cairo, least African of all African capitals. In an angry rejoinder, Ethiopian Foreign Minister Menassie hailed declared "no representative of an African government in this room is prepared to accept dictation from Libya. Africa is not for sale." In the end, delegates shouted down the demand for a move to Cairo, and employed the time-honored device of referring to committees the border dispute and the search for a peaceful settlement of the Mideast question. There, it was hoped, both would be safely buried. Despite its obvious weaknesses, the OAU has proven valuable. It has encouraged economic integration, has helped to settle border disputes and given the new nations a sense of participation in African affairs. United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim has described it as the U.N.'s "best ally for the maintenance of international peace and security on the African continent."

US-China trade links loom

HONG KONG (UPI) — American-Chinese traders may have a permanent liaison office in Peking by the end of the year, high level Japanese trade sources just back from the Chinese capital said today. The office would operate under the auspices of the newly organized National Council for U.S.-China Trade. Establishment of a permanent private liaison office to Service American businessmen probably will be proposed by David Rockefeller, chairman of the Chase Manhattan bank, during a visit to China starting June 23.

The sources, who have been involved in large-scale trade with China for more than a decade, said the Chinese have hinted they would be "favorably inclined" toward such a proposal. Rockefeller, who recently opened the first American banking office in Moscow in more than 50 years, is scheduled to spend two weeks in China. He will be accompanied by his wife and two Chase vice presidents, Frank Stankard and Joseph Reed. However, a Chase spokesman in Hong Kong said Rockefeller was going to China as a vice chairman of the council, not as Chase chairman. The spokesman said Rockefeller would visit Peking, Sian, Shanghai and Hangchow and was scheduled to have talks with officials of the Bank of China, the Ministry of Foreign Trade and Foreign Ministry as well as the Commission for Cultural Relations with Foreign Countries.

The commission has a trade promotion group which would be the closest thing to a counterpart of the new U.S. council on China trade. The Chase spokesman said Rockefeller was scheduled to discuss China's "domestic economy, foreign affairs" and other subjects. But he said he had no information on specific items the banker might bring up in Peking. American diplomatic officials in Hong Kong said the subject of a private business office in Peking to coordinate American trade activities had not been broached to Chinese officials by the U.S. Government Liaison Office in the Chinese capital.

"I think I can express for us

What the organization actually had accomplished was difficult to assess.

It had, however, assured its continued existence and it had managed to sidestep two issues most likely to lead to its own destruction.

Many among the new Black African nations regarded this as a threat to their own independence.

Nixon friend accused

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A long-time friend and key financial backer of President Nixon, C. Arnholt Smith, was accused by the Securities and Exchange Commission Thursday of a multimillion-dollar fraud.

Smith was named in a civil suit by the SEC, along with two associates and six of the companies in his far flung business empire.

Smith has been a confidante of the President since Nixon was a congressman. He reportedly raised more than $1 million for Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign, including $250,000 of Smith's own money.

Just last weekend it was revealed that Smith had agreed to sell the San Diego Padres baseball team, of which he is the majority owner, to a Washington, D.C. group for $12 million, the highest price for a team in the history of professional baseball.

Final ride

Prison hearing ends in bloodbath

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A "grievance hearing" between a Holmesburg prison official and two Black Muslim inmates turned into a bloodbath Thursday that left the warden and assistant warden dead and three persons seriously injured.

Warden Patrick Curran, 48, and Deputy Warden Robert

Fronhold, 51, both were stabbed in the chest with what police said were finely sharpened table knives. They were pronounced dead at Nazareth Hospital.

Capt. Leroy Taylor, 49, who attempted to aid the officials, was reported in stable condition at Nazareth with multiple stab wounds.

The two inmates—one convicted of killing a policeman and the other awaiting trial for murdering a police officer—were under heavy guard at Philadelphia General Hospital after they were subdued by other prison guards.

Joseph Bowen, 25, was listed in serious condition with a captured spleen, a broken arm and a possible concussion.

Fred Burton, 26, received head injuries, multiple bruises, cuts and a possible arm fracture.

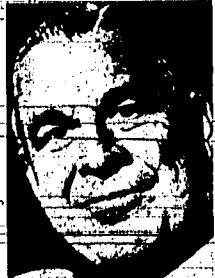

Mayor Frank L. Rizzo, who went to the scene with Police Commissioner Joseph F. O'Neill, said Bowen and Burton had gone to Fronhold's office to discuss a request for daylong Muslim prayer services.

More than 250 police officers, armed with shotguns and rifles and accompanied by 30 K-9 Corps dogs, were brought to the 77-year-old prison in the northeast Philadelphia area.

Some 1,200 prisoners were searched and returned to their cells without incident following the attack. The prison was built to hold 700 inmates.

Rizzo called the incident "a good case for the death penalty."

"You'll never deter crime without it," Rizzo said. "I'm tired of hearing this baloney about be kind to criminals. They were in there because they were criminals."

C. ARNHOLT SMITH
... accused of fraud

Smith, 74, rose from bank teller to the director of a financial empire that includes the U.S. National Bank, Yellow Cab franchises in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Phoenix, hotels and office buildings, tuna canneries here and in Puerto Rico, an airline, Air California, produce, real estate and insurance firms.

The SEC suit charged that his Westgate-California Corp. included in its earnings statements manufactured earnings of over $17.5 million from 1969 through 1972.

The SEC suit contended the defendants used their positions at Westgate and U.S. National Bank to wrongfully appropriate the assets of those two firms for the benefit of the defendants, to the detriment of the other shareholders.

The complaint, filed in U.S. District Court, asked the court to order Westgate into receivership, and bar Smith, the firm's chairman, or Phillip A. Toft, its president, from acting as officers of the firm.

In a separate federal action, the comptroller of the currency moved against U.S. National Bank, the cornerstone of Smith's empire. The comptroller said the bank had exceeded legal limits in making loans to Westgate California, and ordered the bank to get the excess loans back.

A spokesman for the bank would not comment when asked whether Smith's projected sale of the Padres was aimed at providing the cash needed to comply with the comptroller's order.

Republicans want to end Watergate exam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republicans, some of them facing re-election next year, are urging a quicker tempo and a speedier end to the Senate's investigation of the Watergate scandal.

Within a 24-hour period, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, former Republican National Chairman Robert Dole, and Sen. Edward J. Gurney, a member of the committee, echoed the same sentiments.

Dole, the junior senator from Kansas, and Gurney, the senior senator from Florida, both must face the electorate next year and there are already fears that the Watergate scandal may rub off on congressional candidacies.

Agnew, untouched by the scandal, was generally regarded as a leading contender for the 1976 GOP presidential nomination.

But if Watergate keeps boiling, the Republicans may reject anyone who was even connected with the Nixon administration.

The suggestion that the committee go to the heart of the Watergate scandal originated with Sen. Herman E. Talmadge of Georgia, also a committee member.

But Talmadge is a Democrat and, although he is up for re-election in 1974, a Talmadge does not get beaten in Georgia. Usually, he has to serious opposition.

In an interview with the New York Times Thursday, Agnew said "I feel like Sen. Talmadge does. I'd like to see it dredged and get it over with."

Agnew said the public has difficulty separating "what has been proved from what is simply alleged, and as long as you have that in a terribly complicated thing that this has become, swirling around in the public consciousness, it has to be politically damaging."

PHILADELPHIA police wheel one of two prison officials into hospital morgue after he was stabbed to death at Honesburg Prison. According to police, the warden and deputy warden were killed by two inmates already charged with murder of police officers. (UPI)

Public TV loner status preserved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's public television system has reached an internal agreement which it says will preserve its independence and insulate it from political interference. But it may have to go to court to prove it.

The agreement defines the working relationship between the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB), which manages and dispenses federal money for public broadcasting, and the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS), the network linking the nation's 234 non-commercial TV stations.

The two agencies had been struggling most of this year for control over program content and scheduling, amid charges that the White House was trying to stifle controversial programs through the CPB, which is run by a presidentially appointed board.

The Ford Foundation, which had been withholding its annual $10 million grant to public television because of the dispute, announced shortly after the agreement was revealed that it would resume funding. "We are ready to grant funds as we receive formal requests from individual production centers," said Fred W. Friendly, the foundation's adviser on public broadcasting.

The agreement, announced Thursday, essentially allows PBS to decide what goes on the network, but it must then submit its schedule to CPB for approval. If there is disagreement by two chairmen who settle the matter or—falling that—a third party to be chosen by them jointly will decide.

US, Reds exchange TV films

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Broadcasting Co. and the Soviet Union will exchange radio and television programs under an agreement signed Thursday.

NBC called the agreement "wide-ranging and long-term" and said it calls for exchange of news specials and documentaries showing life in the two nations.

The exact programs to be shown will be determined in future discussions in New York and Moscow.

The agreement took four years of negotiations, NBC said, and also provides for an exchange of production and technical personnel and middle-level management employees.

Old Mother Lodge mines stirred back to life

United Press International
The old, nearly forgotten Mother Lodge mines of California and the Bonanza region of Nevada are being stirred back to life by soaring gold prices, which also have nudged mining companies in four states to begin new exploration.

Inquiries about risk-free gold mining loans in California and Nevada "have gone up 50 percent in the last month or so," said Harold Stager, an official of the Office of Mineral Exploration in Menlo Park, Calif.

"Six months ago there were 10 to 15 a month," now it's up to 30," he said Thursday. The "assistance project" loans, under the U.S. Geological Survey, do not have to be repaid if the gold mining venture fails.

He said two applications from Nevada were pending and five other firms, in Nevada and California, were already doing exploratory work with the federal money.

Bill Clark, a gold expert with the California Division of Mines and Geology in Sacramento, said "there is a definite increase" in gold mining interest.

"There are a number of companies which have contacted me or the department. Naturally they want to keep it a secret," he said.

The official, US controlled price on gold is $42.22 an ounce, not enough authorities predict to spark widespread interest in mining. But there are still other lucrative gold markets, such as dentistry, jewelry and industry, and the price on the London market Thursday was more than $114 an ounce.

In the Black Hills of South Dakota, miners are "real tickled about the prices and figure they're going to go higher yet," said Iren Borup, state mining inspector. "There's going to be a lot of mining, that's all there is to it," he said. "I think a lot of these guys are getting ready to mine, but they're waiting to see if the prices will stay around $100 an ounce or come back down. People are already kind of sneaking around."

The Black Hills is the home of the Homestack Gold Co., which has been producing gold since it was $35 an ounce.

In Colorado, the Gold Cycle Gold Corp., floated a $6 million loan earlier this year to reopen the Ajax Gold Mine in Cripple Creek.

IEC agency abolished

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Intelligence Evaluation Committee (IEC), set up three years ago to improve and evaluate domestic intelligence gathering, has been abolished by the Justice Department.

Existence of the committee was revealed May 22 by President Nixon in his statement on the Watergate case. Jack Hashen, Justice Department spokesman, said Thursday the IEC was composed of representatives of the FBI, Secret Service, Defense Intelligence Agency, National Security Agency, Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and two Justice Department lawyers.

He said letters were sent to the participating agencies to inform them of the IEC discontinuance.

He said its assignment was to evaluate and analyze intelligence about "terrorists and revolutionary elements in the United States" and submit reports to the White House and other interested agencies.

Nixon said in his statement that the committee's activities "are now under investigation" by the Senate Watergate Committee. "I did not authorize nor do I have any knowledge of any illegal activity by this committee," he said.

Nixon said the IEC was an outgrowth of an ad hoc committee established in June 1970. The ad hoc committee, Nixon said, submitted a report which he said was approved, but rescinded five days later because of objections by J. Edgar Hoover. The report called for expanded intelligence operations, including authorization for burglary.

AFL-CIO gives suit notice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The AFL-CIO threatened the administration with a court suit today if the Cost of Living Council refuses to disclose prices, costs and profits of large corporations which raise prices more than 5 percent.

The labor federation's threat of possible court action came in a letter to the council from AFL-CIO Research director Nathaniel Goldfinger objecting to a proposed regulation that would bar disclosure of such information.

Goldfinger said the Senate adopted an amendment by Sen. William Hathaway, D-Maine, requiring disclosure of this information. Hathaway's amendment replaced a proposal by the Administration that would have banned disclosure, he said. But Goldfinger said the COLC now claims "that the Hathaway amendment bars disclosure of information unless it is the exact analog of the information required to be supplied to the Securities and Exchange Commission.

"This view, which precludes all cost and profit data disclosure, is contrary to Sen. Hathaway's clearly disclosed purpose to expand disclosure and cannot be justified," he added.

Billy Graham in S. Korea

SEOUL (UPI) — An estimated 300,000 persons gathered in a public square late Wednesday to hear evangelist Billy Graham preach at the opening of a five-day series of services in South Korea.

The government lifted its midnight to 4 a.m. curfew in and around the square for the occasion.

Graham said it was the largest crowd ever addressed by any preacher.

"Tomorrow morning," he said, "people all over America will read that this is the largest crowd ever preached to at one time in the world."

Observers noted that Roman Catholic popes have often spoken before as many as a half million persons in St. Peter's Square and elsewhere.

Persons swarmed into the plaza hours before Graham appeared.

Aides said the previous largest audience Graham attracted was 200,000 in Rio de Janeiro several years ago.

A 6,000-member choir sang and several thousand persons sat all night in the square praying.

Police said 1,000 men were assigned to maintain order.

Promise kept

REV. David Bailey of the First Baptist Church in Okaville, Ill., keeps a promise he made in an attempt to boost church attendance. He said if a goal of 100 people in attendance could be reached he would preach the news from the rooftop. (UPI)

Clergyman conducts typewriter ministry

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Frederick Buechner is a Protestant clergyman who conducts his ministry at a typewriter.

He has written several novels which are good reading in their own right, without reference to their unobtrusive but distinctive Christian viewpoint. Now he's back in the bookstalls with a non-fiction book entitled "Wishful Thinking: A Theological ABC," (Harper & Row).

It's cast in the format of a dictionary, a device which enables Buechner to write brief, pungent, witty essays on a large number of different subjects.

The book begins, for example, with this definition of agnostic:

"An agnostic is somebody who doesn't know for sure whether there really is a God. That is some people all of the time and all people some of the time."

An atheist is "one who is willing to face the full consequences of what it means to say there is no God." These include giving up any notion of Absolute Standards of right and wrong. The atheist may think it's wrong to murder a child, but if he encounters someone who disagrees he has no higher authority to invoke in choosing one view over the other.

"What makes it hard to be an atheist is the feeling you sometimes get in the pit of your stomach that there must be an absolute good in terms of which such an act can be denounced as absolutely evil."

In his short dissertation on the Bible,

Buechner (pronounced Beek-'ner) scoffs at the suggestion that it be read as literature. Written by many different men over a period of 3,000 years, the Bible is "in fact" a disorderly collection of sixty-odd books which are often tedious, barbaric, obscure and teem with contradictions and absurdities.

One reads this compost because in it men for generations have encountered God. "To read the Bible as literature is like reading Moby Dick as a whaling manual or The Brothers Karamazov for its punctuation."

Here are a few more Buechner definitions guaranteed to provoke thought:

Compassion — The sometimes fatal capacity for feeling what it's like to live inside somebody else's skin.

Confession — To confess your sins to God is not to tell him anything he doesn't already know. "Until you confess them," however, they are the abyss between you. When you confess them, they become the bridge.

Envy — The consuming desire to have everybody else as unsuccessful as you are.

Miracle — It is possible to look at most miracles and find a rational explanation in terms of natural cause and effect. Faith in God is less apt to proceed from miracles than miracles from faith in God.

Theology — The study of God and His ways. For all we know, dung beetles may study man and his ways and call it humanology. If so, we would probably be more tolerated and amused than irritated. "One hopes that God feels likewise."

Denver layman lectures in TF

TWIN FALLS — Vern Howell, Denver businessman and active layman, will speak at the Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship dinner meeting at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Holiday Inn.

He has traveled more than 30,000 miles from northern Montana to Monterey, Mexico, answering requests to speak at full gospel fellowship meetings, and also has addressed many gatherings in Catholic, Methodist and other denominational churches and groups.

Wayne Barney, Twin Falls, president of the local fellowship, said Howell has dedicated his life to the call of the sick and the lame and believes God is answering prayer. He has seen visible miracles of faith healing.

Howell is president of the Metropolitan chapter, vice president of the North Glenn chapter and director of the Denver chapter and has belonged to the businessmen's fellowship since 1955.

Barney said reservations may be made for the dinner meeting by calling 733-2973.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl with a broken heart. I met Rick in college at the beginning of the year. We fell in love and planned to be married this summer. Rick is a graduate student.

My daddy is in oil and has a lot of money, but I wish we were poor because Daddy's money is what caused my problem.

When Rick went to talk to Daddy about marrying me, Daddy asked Rick to meet him at his office. Daddy had a lawyer there with some papers for Rick to sign, saying if the marriage didn't work out Rick wouldn't get any of my money I'll be getting when I turn 21.

Rick wouldn't sign anything, instead he called me up and said he didn't want any part of a family like mine, so now I am without a boy friend.

Money oils the skids

My daddy said if Rick really loved me he would have signed those papers. I told my Daddy he had no right to ask Rick to sign anything.

Please tell me what you think about all this? I don't have a mother.

DEAR CRYING: Your father should have talked it over with you first. But if Rick gave you up just like that, your daddy could have been right. Dry your tears, honey. Rick could be back.

DEAR ABBY: Because my husband and I are unable to have children of our own, we applied as foster parents thru our state welfare department.

Our first child was a teen-age girl, fresh out of a girls' correctional institution. It was a frustrating experience for us—and for her, too. After admitting our failure, the case-worker removed her from our care and gave us another foster child. Since then, we have had many, mostly teenagers. Many we've helped. A few we have not, but those we've helped have more than compensated for the others.

Abby, you wouldn't believe the number of friends and relatives who ask us: "Why do you take in those damaged kids who have been abused and kicked around and taught to lie and cheat? If they were your OWN, you'd have to put up with them, but you're crazy to ask for unnecessary headaches. Can you really love those kids?"

Our reply: "Most of our children are just like your children, with one exception. Our children have been denied the love and understanding of their natural parents. We have tried to provide them with that love and understanding. If you and your spouse were to suddenly die, and neither friends nor relatives wanted to take on 'unnecessary headaches,' what would happen to your children? I guarantee you, we could love them as easily as we love the children we now have."

What else can we say, Abby? —POSTER PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Nothing. You've said it all. And beautifully.

DEAR ABBY: Recently my wife and I went to the office of a physician by appointment. It was our first visit there. It was a nice morning, and on entering the waiting room I said: "Good morning, everybody!"

There were about a dozen people of all ages sitting there, and not a single person responded to my greeting! I thought perhaps I had come upon a group of deaf and dumb people, but they all answered when their names were called by the receptionist.

My question: Has it gotten to the point in this country where nobody speaks to anybody except by appointment? SENIOR CITIZEN

DEAR CITIZEN: I'm surprised that out of a dozen people, not one returned your friendly greeting. But why make it an "American" trait? Such an unexpected burst of cheerfulness on entering a doctor's waiting room would probably have met with the same lack of response in England, France, or Italy.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69706, L. A., Calif. 90088. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

By Oswald & James Jacoby
South's five club call was one of those all-purpose pre-empt. He didn't know who could make what, but he knew that he couldn't be hurt much at five clubs.

West's double was also all-purpose. He rather hoped that his partner would be able to find a bid, but expected to beat the five club contract in any event.

Actually East-West can make four hearts and not five and while they can beat five clubs they failed to do so.

South put it right up to East at trick two and East did not rise to the occasion.

South won the first trick with the ace of hearts and discarded his two of spades. Then he led a low spade from dummy and right here is where East failed to rise. He played second hand low. South's 10 lost to West's jack.

West led a second heart. South ruffed, cashed out high trump, led his last spade to dummy's ace, ruffed a spade, entered dummy with the nine of trumps and was able to discard one diamond on the last spade.

Should East have gone up with his queen of spades? It would have been a tough play to make, but we feel that he might well have made it if he had been really alert.

High meat costs fact for year, perhaps longer

CHICAGO (UPI) — The high cost of meat could be a hard fact of life for at least a year, maybe more. The days of good cheap cuts may be gone forever.

This is the consensus of agricultural economists and farm leaders who are close to the gritty gritty in the Midwest corn belt.

In Washington, Agriculture Department people have already scrapped early predictions that the meat price freeze, government acreage policies and a projected record corn crop could combine to start bringing prices down as early as July.

They now talk of light at the end of the tunnel and more meat on the table sometime next fall. Midwest experts tend to doubt it.

It is not just that, steadily, spring rains and record floods kept farmers from planting their corn until mid-May. It is not just that freight car shortages still have 1972 grain stranded in elevators. It is not just that the fuel drought has farmers worried whether they will have enough gasoline to run their tractors.

It is not just that a spiraling consumer demand national but worldwide—sent meat prices zooming at an unprecedented rate last winter.

It is all these things, plus the fact that, two, three or more years ago, farmers started holding back cattle and hogs from market so that they could breed more cattle and hogs.

Such holdbacks, or breeding cycles, are so regular that farm economists can trace-them back to the Civil War. In cattle, they generally occur every 14 to 16 years. Pork producers and others operate over a shorter span. They happen because farmers and ranchers reason that when prices are good they can afford to keep some of their stock and build up their herds on the supposition that they can cash in later.

But this, a farm expert said, is the first time in my memory that the various livestock holding cycles, plus shortages from blizzards, have coincided to keep all sorts of meat—beef, pork, veal, lamb and poultry—from the market.

"The cyclical lows and highs in production are usually offsetting," said Lawrence H. Simerl, professor of agricultural economics at the University of Illinois.

"Unfortunately, however, the low periods of beef, pork, broilers and eggs have come at the same time.

"The farmers have been holding back helters for breeding. There was a 4 million head increase in 1972, but 3 million were put into breeding; heads.

"There has been a relative shortage of beef in the last five years... this cycle takes about five years. We will not get much of an increase in slaughter this year. But surely it will be evident by 1975—something on the order of 10 per cent.

"There is a four-year cycle on hog production. This one started in 1970 and will last four years thereafter. Hog production is now the highest per capita in modern history, but it will be fall in 1974 before hogs begin to peak."

He said that time might be a little sooner than Simerl speculated, but added:

"There has been a surge in consumer demand, starting in mid-December and going to mid-March. One of the steepest price increases in history resulted. Nobody can fully explain why.

"You just can't increase production that fast to meet such demand. The biological time lag is simply longer.

"We'll just have to put up with it for a little while. It's going to be a fact of life.

"I doubt if meat prices will ever go as low as they were a few years ago."

Idaho Demo sends new fuel plea

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho said Wednesday he has written again to President Nixon concerning the plight of Idaho farmers and independent gasoline dealers faced with a fuel shortage.

Church said the Office of Oil and Gas of the Interior Department recently issued guidelines for voluntary rather than mandatory allocation of crude oil and refinery products.

"While farmers have been given priority status, the guidelines give no definite assurances that this group will have supplies available when needed and in the quantities required," he wrote.

Housewives sue-mart

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Safeway Stores, Inc., was sued for $1 million Tuesday by two East Bay housewives who charged the supermarket chain with violating meat price control regulations.

Sheila Kreiss, Oakland, and Joan Malmquist, Livermore, said in their U.S. District Court action that Safeway illegally raised the price of ground beef and ground lamb or increased the fat content of the ground meat without reducing the price.

This, the women said, violated rules set by the Cost of Living Council.

Choosy Bean Bugger

There are good bugs and bad bugs in every bean field. And DYLOX selective insecticide knows the difference. It delivers a quick cleanout of western and variegated cutworms, armyworms, Mexican bean beetles, lygus bugs and stink bugs. But it doesn't wipe out populations of beneficial predators and pollinators; when used as directed.

Help! The good bugs help you. Let them "police" your bean fields until "bad" bugs get the upper hand. Then treat your beans with DYLOX, liquid solution or soluble powder. DYLOX will knock out the bad bugs quickly. But the good bugs will continue to multiply and give you extra insect control that doesn't cost a cent.

That's DYLOX, the choosy bean bugger, in the package with the Blue Bullseye. Look for it at your chemical dealer's.

Farm fuel supply pledged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government has taken adequate steps to assure that fuel shortages this summer and fall will not cause higher food prices, an Agriculture Department official says.

"I don't think we're going to be hurt very much by a fuel shortage this year," said Howard J. Simons, who collects reports on farm-fuel shortages for the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

"We're right on the ragged edge on fuel and we can't afford to waste any," he said. "We really don't see fuel as being a factor in affecting the production this year."

Farmers need fuel to power their tillers, tractors, harvesters and almost every other piece of farm machinery, let alone the trucks used to deliver the supplies to the farm, and the end product to market.

With most of the attention centered on the effect of the fuel shortage on motorists, little public attention has been given to the fact that if the farmer doesn't have enough fuel after an already two-week spring, less food is going to be produced and the price will go sky high.

To forestall that possibility the administration designated farmers as top priority recipients for gasoline and other fuel supplies and worked out voluntary agreements with oil companies so farmers and farm suppliers would receive what they need.

The voluntary program was begun less than two weeks ago, and Simons said, Tuesday he was "received" about 100 complaints from farmers and farm suppliers in 21 or 22 states about not getting enough fuel.

About 14 or 15 of the most critical were resolved quickly, he said. As an example of the program's effectiveness already, he said that at the start of the program Michigan was in bad shape. Some farmers were having difficulty getting fuel to run their tractors, he said. But all are receiving fuel now and "Michigan is pretty much out of the woods," he said.

Most of the reports now are coming from Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska and Florida, Simons said. Many problems turn out not to be problems at all after the farmer or supplier is told by ASCS that this is a priority need which will be filled.

As a result, Simons said, "No significant production has been lost anywhere on account of the fuel shortage."

He said the critical problem now is the planting. The weather delayed much of the planting in the key agriculture areas of the Midwest. The next critical need will be in harvesting, crop drying and transporting the product.

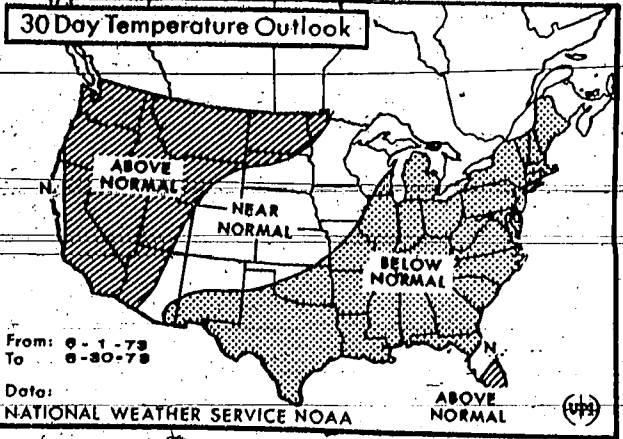

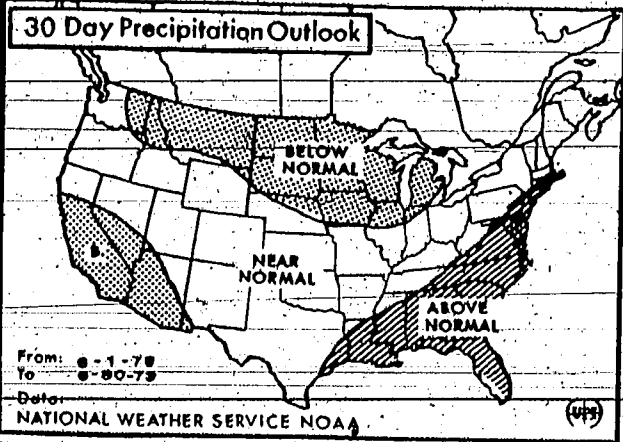

"That's way down the road and hard to see clearly," Simons said, but he doesn't think the problem then would be any worse than it has been.

"There are ways to save in operations," Simons said. "I think this is important to be brought to the farmer's attention. Make every gallon go as far as possible."

To that end, the Agriculture Department advises farmers to put off until after the crisis such operations as ditch cleaning and land leveling and to reduce their tillage operations as much as possible. To determine just how serious the situation is and may become, the USDA scheduled a one-day meeting in Des Moines, Iowa, on Thursday to hear from government officials, farmers, farm suppliers and farm organizations on the effects of the gas shortage.

Rains aid crops

BOISE (UPI) — The U.S. Agriculture Department reported Wednesday rains which fell last week greatly aided the state's agriculture, especially in northern Idaho where soil moisture was low.

The department reported all crops are now making good growth and haying activities are under way in the southwest.

Pasture and range situation were improved by rains during the latter part of the week.

The report said the fruit crop is developing well in the southwest and a good crop is reported for most fruits although some orchards in the Emmett Valley were extensively damaged by the hail storm of May 18.

Avoid a burn

NEW YORK (UPI) — Consider the time of day if you decide to sunbathe. Today's Health, publication of the American Medical Association, says the sun's rays are most potent between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., or after 4 p.m., standard time.

The sun is most directly overhead then. You are most likely to tan or burn. There is little chance of getting either if sun exposure is before 8 a.m. or after 4 p.m., standard time.

Snake flow stays high

IDAHO FALLS — Reservoir storage on the Snake River remains at high levels this week.

Arthur L. Larson, watermaster for Idaho, said Jackson Lake contains 785,500 acre feet of water this week compared to 446,000 acre feet last year at this time.

Palisades Reservoir has 1.14 million acre feet in storage but had only 467,000 at this time last year.

American Falls Reservoir holds 1.07 million acre feet, well below last year's 1.68 million.

Stream flow is holding up well, Larson said, with Milner North Side Canal carrying 2,780 second feet compared to 2,530 second feet at this time a year ago. Snake River below Milner had only 62 second feet compared to 5,900 as of May 28.

Milner South Side Canal carries 3,540 second feet and at this time in 1972 had 3,480 second feet of flow. Lake Walcott reports 96,030 acre feet in storage, with 92,300 a year ago. Minidoka Northside Canal is carrying 1,390 second feet with 1,440 second feet last year while Minidoka Southside Canal has 1,000 second feet with 1,060 a year ago.

Snake River at Minidoka measures 7.36 feet with 8,470 second feet of flow compared to 12,800 a year ago.

Heifer shows herd gain

MOSCOW — A heifer bred from the University of Idaho dairy herd brought $2,400 at the annual Idaho State Holstein sale in Meridian.

Dr. Richard H. Ross, professor and dairy scientist at the university, said the 19-month old heifer reflects improvements made in the university herd used for research.

The $2,400 price was fourth highest in the sale. Average sale price was $1,531.

The university has been selecting bulls from various artificial insemination organizations on the basis of their ability to transmit high milk production and better physical characteristics and this animal represents the progress made so far. "We're selecting the most desirable hard sires in the United States to continue to improve the dairy herd," Ross said.

The university wants to improve milk production in its Holstein herd so it can participate in the North Central Regional Research project on nutrient requirements of cows producing large quantities of milk.

Present nutrient requirements were worked out for cows producing 30 to 40 pounds of milk per day, Ross said. Cows now produce 50-60 and up to 100 pounds of milk each day. "We're trying to find out the nutrient requirements for these high producing cows," he said. Results will help dairy farmers improve milk production.

The university's heifer, Idaho Bootmaker Cyrene, brought a high price because of her breeding and physical characteristics, Ross said.

"She's a stylish, attractive individual — from a cow's standpoint. The heifer has prospects of a show animal if they wanted to show her," Ross said.

Ricks president outlines program

TWIN FALLS — Dr. Henry B. Eyring, president of Ricks College, will speak here Thursday evening at an area-wide business, industry and farm banquet.

The session, set for the Holiday Inn at 7:30, will feature a discussion of the world-wide scope of the school system of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints and also the future of Ricks College.

Outlining the educational program of the church throughout the world will be Dr. Neal Maxwell, Salt Lake City, commissioner of education for the church.

Officials say 500 are expected at the banquet, which is by invitation. The invitations went to a broad segment of Magic Valley community leaders, both in and out of the Mormon Church.

Distribution of invitations was under the direction of Glen R. Erikson, Ricks development director.

One feature during the evening's session will be the showing of a new slide series on education entitled "Beyond Books — Beyond Borders." Dr. Eyring, formerly of Stanford University, received his master's degree and doctorate in business administration from Harvard University.

Recently he conducted a management seminar in Brussels for leaders of 16 of the largest companies in Europe. The seminar was on management techniques and procedures.

Dr. Maxwell, prior to being named commissioner of education, was executive vice president of the University of Utah, had served as dean of students and was also assistant to the university president.

He is active and is an officer of the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce and is on many boards as well as being editor of the National Education TV Network.

Stan Snow, program chairman for the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club, said Dr. Eyring would speak at the club's luncheon session at the Turf Club, also on June 7.

Small graduating class proves teacher's point

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — The graduation ceremony at "Sutton School" will consist of one graduate in cap and gown.

For James D. Sutton, it proves a point. The single graduate is his eldest son, James Jr. The other three students at the school are Sutton's other children.

Sutton was fired a year ago as a teacher in the Spokane school system in a caucus of 156 teachers after a $9 million special levy election failed. All but 35 were rehired several months later under a court order, and the rest have been negotiating with the district.

"I'm teaching my own children to prove a point: I am not a poor teacher as the district has tried to prove," Sutton said.

The 43-year-old math and science instructor said he "used to be a mild-mannered professor. I'd sit back and take my knocks and never utter a complaint."

"But when my whole world caved in after 20 years, endless hours of summer school and preparation, I had to fight back," Sutton said. "It's my whole life."

The short, stocky father of six said he expects to have his school accredited by the state this summer after a safety inspection. But he's not sure of its future.

"I want to go back to work in the city system. I'm broke. It's difficult to support a family on no income. I've proved my point."

He said his wife sold real estate "to keep groceries on the table, but I'd like to get back to teaching. I'm not bitter about the experience, I would just like to get it over with."

In the meantime, Sutton said the first "and hopefully last" graduation ceremony is being planned at Sutton School.

James Jr., will be graduated "with honors" on Friday.

A full program, including a one-man procession, baccalaureate address, cap and gown ceremony is being prepared by Mrs. Sutton.

The Rev. Joseph Echols Jr., a family friend, will give the invocation and Jim Martin, a lawyer, will be the guest speaker.

"Jim was a good student," said headmaster Sutton with a wide grin. "He got a hardearned A in government after working two months on the McGovern campaign for his class project."

Of the other students, Sutton said they were pulling down B's and C's "with lots of room for improvement."

Fraud award affirmed

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — The Nevada Supreme Court Wednesday affirmed a $100,000 judgement against the H & B Block Company and criticized the firm for fraud and misrepresentation.

The suit was filed in Reno by Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. Waters and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace D. Waters, all of Sparks, who complained about the method by which the tax-preparing company handled returns related to their business activities.

Block appealed to the Nevada Supreme Court, asserting that there was no evidence of fraud and the award of damages was motivated by passion and prejudice by the jury.

"This contention has no merit," said the high court. The court said the evidence showed "willful and wanton misrepresentation in appellants' advertising and in their internal business practices, specifically aimed at deceiving the members of the public who might rely on them for tax expertise."

The court said the firm's claim of "guaranteed accurate tax preparation" didn't square with the fact that "they made no effort to hire employees with even rudimentary skills in accounting or in the preparation of tax returns."

The court said the individual who prepared the returns of the Waters had received no formal training in their preparation, either before or during his employment with block. The employee was a former construction worker.

The court said "The evidence, taken cumulatively," supports a determination of fraud.

Seymour H. Patt, attorney for the Waters, said the suit was directed against Block's national office in Kansas City.

Mediator Buhl girl honored rejected

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Wednesday Israel is willing to meet with President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia for talks about the Middle East conflict, but that Bourguiba would not be acceptable as a mediator. Bourguiba said in an interview last week with an Italian newspaper, Milan's Corriere della Sera, that he would be willing to speak with Israel about the Middle East stalemate. Israel has said this did not constitute a formal request through diplomatic channels.

KRIS WRIGHT gets grant

BUHL — Kris Wright has been awarded an Idaho State University Presidential Grant for $350, according to Roger Michener, Buhl High School principal.

She was active in Drama Club, Thespians, German Club, band and FHA. She participated in the Environmental Days Workshop and was in the 4-11 Rocket Club.

She is a member of DeSales Club and was a representative for the Idaho Catholic Youth Convention in 1972.

MIA monument closer

SPOKANE (UPI) — A monument to the missing in action in the Vietnam War came a step closer to reality Wednesday with the unveiling of a design for the project.

Sculptor Harold Balazs, showed his design for the first time at a news conference at the Catholic Diocese Chancery Building.

Balazs said the abstract design symbolized the five races of humanity in a circle showing they are all part of the world. He said he got his idea from the quotation "God in his inscrutable wisdom has taken the white of Europe, the black of Africa, the brown of the Middle East, the yellow of Asia and the red of the American Indian to weave into a beautiful and sacred tapestry called humanity. Let us not soil it with our prejudices."

Balazs said the statement was made by John J. Akar, ambassador from Sierra Leone to the United States.

Eileen Ewing, associate editor of the diocesan newspaper, The Inland Register, and organizer of the drive to collect prisoner of war bracelets, said "well over 6,000" of the metal bands have been collected since the drive began in mid-February.

She said she expected to continue the drive for about another month.

"The monument will be a memorial honoring the missing, the killed in action and the missing in action in Vietnam," Mrs. Ewing said. She said the location of the monument has not been decided yet by the advisory committee headed by Helene Knap, Washington, D.C., chairman of the National League of Families of those missing in action in the southeast Asian country.

Jerome Chalet Amusement Center 'under fire'

JEROME — The owner of the Chalet Amusement Park said Thursday he doesn't know what he will do if the Jerome County commissioners refuse to grant a rezoning to allow the park to operate.

Val Feller, Caldwell, said the failure to rezone the property prior to beginning operation was an oversight, principally on the part of the Idaho Department of Public Lands from which Feller leases the property on which a go-cart track and miniature golf course are located.

No officials of the department were available for comment when an attempt was made by the Times-News to contact them today.

Feller was ordered to shut down his operation Wednesday or face a criminal complaint for violating the Jerome County Zoning Ordinance. The Jerome County commissioners are due to meet next week to reconsider Feller's application for a zoning change from recreational to commercial.

Until this winter Feller operated his amusement park on the south side of the Snake River Canyon, immediately southwest of the Perrine Bridge. However, Idaho Highway Department construction plans for the new Perrine Bridge forced the removal of the park, which is now located just north of the present Perrine Bridge.

Feller said he leased his old site from W. R. Cameron, former owner of the property. When Cameron sold the property to the highway department, Feller protested that under the terms of his lease with Cameron he had first right of refusal on sale of the property.

It was following this protest, Feller said, that the highway department began to "run interference" for him with the state lands board to allow him to lease the site he currently occupies.

Feller said he dealt mainly with Hugh Harris, superintendent of rights of way for the highway department in Dolse and William Scribner of the lands board in acquiring his present lease.

Harris said today that the department is obligated under relocation law to assist people displaced by a highway project. Feller found the land, Harris said, and the department worked with him and with the state department of public lands in relocating.

"Our function is to assist," Harris said. "I think Mr. Feller overlooked the fact that there is zoning in Jerome County."

The purchase of property by the state under the power of eminent domain, the right to acquire property for public use, has nothing to do with the lease or purchase of land to help those displaced, Harris said.

Feller said under the terms of his old lease with Cameron he paid $100 per month. He said the lease was due to be renegotiated shortly after the date on which the highway department purchased the land.

Under his agreement with Cameron, he said, his rent then might have gone as high as $400 per month.

Under the terms of his current lease with the lands board, Feller pays $100 per year or three per cent of gross receipts whichever is greater, providing it does not exceed $300. After 1975, the $300 limit is removed and the lands board is free to change rental prices. The lease runs for 10 years.

Feller said he will also be compensated in part by the highway department for moving his installation from the south side of the canyon. He estimated the costs of moving and laying a track and digging a well at the new site, at about $9,000. The highway department may, according to Feller, compensate him for a little over $4,000 of this expense.

Currently, Feller treats sewer at his amusement park with a septic tank which leads to a holding tank which is hauled away and emptied, but Jerome County has not approved the arrangement.

Feller said the Jerome County Highway District has approved his access road, subject to meeting drainage requirements.

He said the amusement park has not yet been officially opened for business. "Some people came and wanted to use the go-carts," he said, "and, in a limited way, we accommodated them."

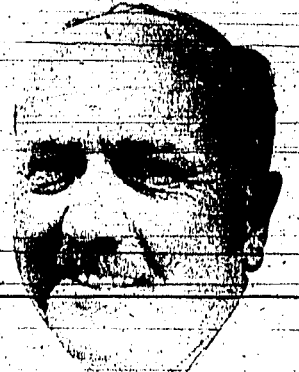

Feller said the first that he knew of the zoning restrictions on his site was when Scribner of the state lands board told him that the area was not zoned commercial and that he, Scribner, was going to a zoning meeting on April 26 in Jerome to request a rezoning of the property.

According to statements made by Claude Bernard, Jerome County Commission chairman at Jerome County Zoning Commission meetings during May, the county was not contacted about the property lease prior to Feller's move to the property.

Feller's application for a rezoning to commercial has been given tentative approval by the Jerome County Planning and Zoning Commission, but requires the further approval of the Jerome County commissioners.

The Jerome County Planning Council, a volunteer group of interested citizens, has gone on record before the Jerome County Commission as being opposed to the rezoning request.

In addition, the Jerome commissioners themselves have filed a protest with the state lands board and have asked the Idaho attorney general's office to investigate why Feller was allowed to lease the endowment land and set up his operation without Jerome County being consulted.

Gooding passes dam resolution

GOODING — The Gooding County Planning Commission passed a resolution Thursday night requesting private financing for the replacement of the American Falls Dam.

The action was taken at the recommendation of Ed Gunning, chairman of the agricultural committee of the commission.

In his agricultural report, Gunning said there are 100,000 acres of irrigated farm land in Gooding County and 253,000 of total farmland.

He recommended the development of new farm land in the county in order to promote prosperity and an upgrading of the financial conditions of farm laborers through unemployment benefits.

The planning commission discussed limiting development in the flood plain areas to parks and green belt areas. They also tackled the question of whether to encourage growth within given limits and concentrate population in order to consolidate services, or whether to encourage residential expansion into rural areas.

Death accidental

RUPERT — A Minidoka County coroner's inquest has ruled accidental the death of John M. Cunningham.

Cunningham, 22, Rupert, died May 11 in a Pocatello hospital from injuries received when the vehicle in which he was riding failed to negotiate a curve three miles north and six miles east of Rupert and overturned on May 9.

The vehicle was driven by Dale J. Hacking, 23, Rupert. Two other passengers were treated and released from Minidoka Memorial Hospital.

Castleford man charged

TWIN FALLS — John Joseph Pretl, 44, Route 1, Castleford, was in county custody today charged with destruction of property and driving while intoxicated.

Sheriff's officers arrested Pretl after Mrs. Ernest Wills called the county officials at 11:24 p.m. Thursday night to say a car was stuck in her newly planted lawn.

Officers said the man had driven his vehicle onto the new lawn and become mired in the soft dirt.

Pretl was being held in lieu of $250 bond on each count pending court appearance.

Bullet hits home

SALMON — A bullet which struck the Frank DeMark residence north of Salmon Tuesday evening apparently was of 25-06 calibre.

It came from a distance, probably across the Salmon River to the west, Jed Wilson, Lemhi County deputy sheriff, said.

He said the bullet probably was a stray. It struck the front of the DeMark house, penetrating the wall of the living room and lodged in a piano.

Home at the time in an adjoining room were Mr. and Mrs. Val Slagowski and their young daughter, Mrs. Slagowski is the DeMark's daughter.

Power rate hike disturbs Burley

BURLEY — Projected rate increases of 25 per cent by the Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) could increase Burley's electric costs by $5,000 a month next year.

Don Hoel, BPA administrator recently said the company predicts "an increase in rates on the order of 25 per cent, which is approximately the rate increase we expect we will have to propose."

"We are about to launch a study; first, whether any realistic BPA wholesale power rate proposal or reasonable alternate proposals could have consequential effects on the consumption patterns of electricity in the Northwest and second, how such altered consumption patterns might effect the human environment," Hoel said.

Burley Mayor Garis Robertson said notice of the possible increase for 1974 has been received and discussed by the city council.

"We can't do anything but take it (the increase)," Robertson said. A contract change to the Idaho Power Company would increase monthly rates by $10,000 or more, he said.

Because users of BPA take stock in the company, Robertson said the power is purchased wholesale and consequently much cheaper than from other companies.

The increase "probably won't make any difference with resident rates," he said. "We'll just have to absorb it in city funds."

Fired ag aides present case

MOSCOW — Some research personnel dropped by the University of Idaho agricultural extension service were terminated when 30 per cent or less of their program was cut.

Special board of appeal hearing and appeal by those terminated was told by Dr. A. R. G. Gillins, U of I Entomology chief, that one man spent 30 per cent of his time on a project which was cut and that another man spent only 10 per cent of his time on a project which was dropped.

Both men had their positions terminated. Other programs occupying the remainder of their research time were to continue.

The cuts were made after a declaration of financial emergency was approved at a meeting of U of I regents April 5.

Dr. Robert Conrod, vice president in charge of academic affairs, said the approval was given on the basis of the presentation made to the board by Dr. A. M. Mullins, dean of the College of Agriculture.

In discussing the determination of the emergency, and legislative appropriations, Dean Mullins said the Legislature included in its budget $231,000 in federal funds which will probably not be received by the university.

"Frankly, legislators are not knowledgeable of the way these funds are allocated to experiment stations and the extension service," Mullins said.

"No commitment has been made by the legislature as to intent to replace funds which the federal government does not supply," he said.

Dr. Conrod said "he separated financial deficiency" from "financial emergency." He said the College of Agriculture has operated under a "financial deficiency" for many years and that such a state did not require drastic action, but could be corrected over a period of time.

He said the emergency did not become apparent until the president's office was advised of the probable loss of federal funds by Dean Mullins.

More campground areas to open

TWIN FALLS — Additional campgrounds are open for the coming weekend and water has been turned on in most Sawtooth National Forest officials said today.

In the Sawtooth National Recreation area, campgrounds are fully open in Sawtooth Valley, Stanley Basin, Wood River and upper Salmon River areas except for the Redfish Lake campgrounds where water has not been turned on other than in the Cannon Bay and Mountain View units. Others are open but without water, until repairs can be made to a broken water main.

Alturas Lake Inlet campground is closed due to construction work and other Alturas Lake campgrounds are open and have water but limited toilet facilities due to construction. Most SNRA campgrounds are now under the $1 per day charge program.

As of Thursday the Salmon River was reported flowing at a moderate level and water was fairly clear. High country is still snow bound and lakes are ice covered above the 7000 to 7500 foot levels.

In the South Boise River area campgrounds along the river are open. The road has been graded from Featherville over Couch Summit. Plect Summit and Wells Summit roads are open but Dollarhide is impassable.

In the Ketchum area campgrounds are open with the exception of Federal Gulch The Trail Creek Summit road is still officially closed and Warm Springs road is open for 20 miles.

In the South Hills area, campgrounds up Roek Creek Canyon, south of Hansen are open and water is available in all but Pettit and Porcupine. The road is open from the Magic Mountain Ski lodge to Rogerson but closed from there to Oakley due to snow at the head of Third Fork.

Bostetter Campground is accessible from Oakley but will be occupied this weekend by the Cassia District Boy Scout Camporee. Campgrounds in Howell Canyon are closed due to wet conditions.

Minidoka center funds revised

By MARIYAN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Revised figures for city shares in the new Minidoka County Law Enforcement Center have decreased Heyburn's allotment and increased Paul's.

The county commissioner sent notices of the revised figures to the four cities involved, Heyburn, Paul, Minidoka and Rupert this week.

The changes follow questions brought up during a Heyburn Council meeting about 6 weeks ago when the late Wayne Hollenbeck and Elmer Ketterling, Minidoka county commissioners, presented the figures for Heyburn's approval.

The four cities will pay the cost, divided according to population, for half of the $22,000 communications center in the new law enforcement building. Heyburn officials pointed out at the meeting that Heyburn's percentage was high compared to Paul's.

Originally Paul, with a population of about 900, was to pay five per cent, and Heyburn, with a population of about 1,000, was to pay 18 per cent. The figures have been revised to eight per cent for Paul and 13 per cent for Heyburn.

Under the revised percentages Paul would pay $880 towards the center while Heyburn would pay $1,850.

Rupert's percentage remained at a disproportionate 75 per cent because it will receive more direct benefits from the center. Minidoka's share of 2 per cent remained unchanged.

The percentage changes also apply to the new county dog pound. Paul's share will change from 125 to $200 and Heyburn's from $450 to $375.

Heyburn Mayor Harold Hurst said the change would be presented to the council for consideration at the next meeting, June 11, but doubted there would be any disagreement. "I'm sure we would have paid it the other way," he said.

Robert Larsen, Paul mayor, said he foresaw "no big problems" when the council considers the figures at their meeting next Wednesday. "It's our fair share," he said.

The earlier figures had already been approved by all four cities.

Coronation of rodeo queens set Sunday

Special rodeo events outlined

FILER — Thursday evening's performance for the Fifth District High School Rodeo was cancelled because of rain.

In order to complete all scheduled events, a Sunday afternoon performance has been set for 2 p.m.

There will be a change in the time of coronation of rodeo queens, which will now be held Sunday afternoon instead of Saturday night.

Performances are scheduled tonight and Saturday at 8 p.m. as previously scheduled. They will be held "rain or shine", officials said, because with 185 youths participating it is necessary to keep to the schedule to complete the two go-rounds before the final performance. There are some 400 entries, with many youths competing in several events.

The 10 queen contestants were judged on personality and appearance at Thursday morning's breakfast at the Rogerson hotel and horsemanship judging was held Thursday afternoon at the Fairgrounds.

Queen contestants include Peggy Peters, Jerome; Pam Kalbfleisch, Filer; Sherri Muir, Jerome; Robin Ford, Twin Falls; Dawn Thompson, Jerome; Betty Schell, Rogerson; Duett Finney, Buhl; Suzette Butler, Rupert; Tahya Jolley, Albion; Vikki Redman, Albion; Helen Parke, Malta; Laura Bray, Bliss; Nancy Wonderlich, Twin Falls; Timmie Dumas, Filer; Betty Will, Eden; Robin Jewett, Gooding; Justine Novak, Buhl; Shari Aslett, Filer, and Derril Fender, Kimberly.

The girl selected as district queen will compete to the state high school rodeo title at Burley in mid-June.

Pahsimeroi steelhead run provides 4 1/2 million eggs

The Pahsimeroi steelhead spawning run for 1973 has ended with the Idaho Fish and Game Department reaping four and one-half million eggs from just under 1,500 adult returnees.

C. R. "Bob" Quidor, superintendent of the Niagara Steelhead hatchery, said the last females were spawned this week and his facility currently is in the process of hatching three and three-quarter million eggs.

Although this year's run was about a third the size of last year's record breaker, Quidor noted the egg take percentage was up. Last year, with just under 5,000 adults returning, the department harvested just over 10 million eggs. This year's total of four and one-half million reflects a good percentage of female returnees — about 69 per cent. "It seems in years of low returns, the percentage of females always is better and we come out in pretty good shape," he said.

Meanwhile, the first of the Chinook salmon which run up the Pahsimeroi have been taken in the weir, Quidor reports. Some of these are held and spawned while the large part are passed through the barrier to spawn naturally. All Chinook spawn taken in the Pahsimeroi are returned to that stream, the eggs being eyed and hatched at the Mackay hatchery and the young — about an inch long — then being held in one of the Pahsimeroi holding ponds over winter and escaping downstream with high water the following spring.

Under man's care, mortality is reduced "to little or nothing and it is hoped the help will at least keep the run at a static figure if not improve it." Quidor said the department also was buoyed by the successful hatch of the two million eggs airlifted here from the Clearwater. "We brought off a 73 per cent successful hatch and that's an outstanding figure for green (uneyed) eggs in such warm water temperatures. We would have considered 40 to 50 per cent loss about normal."

He added the Chinook returns to the Rapid City hatchery near Riggins has surpassed the 6,000 mark now with some of the surplus males being moved into the Little Salmon River to provide some sport fishing.

"The overall results gives the department banners years back-to-back in its anadromous fish perpetuation drive, giving rise to Quidor's hope that someday salmon and steelhead in Idaho will be as plentiful as carp."

The 1973 Chinook Salmon run into Idaho appears to be one of the best in recent years and fishing for these trophy fish should be excellent with the low water conditions we are experiencing.

As of May 22 there were 51,419 spring chinook counted over Little Goose Dam and heading for Idaho. They are arriving at the Rapid River Hatchery near Riggins at the rate of 300-500 per day with over 5,000 into the hatchery by May 22. Fishermen have reported good success in the lower Salmon River, but recent high water has reduced this somewhat. Five chinook arrived at the Pahsimeroi Fish Facility on the weekend of May 19-20 and more are coming in, so they are already in the upper river.

It is very difficult to determine the reasons of why one salmon run is larger than another. The 1973 salmon run should have been reduced according to studies made, when the downstream migrants were heading toward the ocean. Those studies showed a significant loss of these small salmon to nitrogen gas poisoning caused by the effects of lower dams on the Snake and Columbia Rivers. Either there was an error made in these studies or the survival of the remaining salmon was above average in the ocean. There are larger numbers of 5 year old salmon in the 1973 returnees, which makes for very large fish and adds to the usual run of 4 year old fish. One very large chinook of an estimated 100 pounds was counted over the lower dams. There are many fish in the 20-25 pound class arriving at Rapid River Hatchery.

The daily bag limit on salmon is one fish per day no more than two can be caught during a seven consecutive day period. A person fishing for salmon must have a $1.00 salmon permit card and record his catch immediately upon landing his fish. A non-resident is required to have a $15.00 non-resident season fishing license, in addition to his salmon permit, to be able to fish for salmon. The possession limit for salmon is two fish and the annual limit is five fish. Salmon season in the upper Salmon River runs from May 26 to July 15 in the section between the mouth of Redfish Lake Creek upstream to Hell Roaring Creek. The season continues until July 31, in the Salmon River from the mouth of Redfish Lake Creek. Check your regulations for salmon seasons on the other tributaries of the Salmon River.

A wide strip of timber will be left along the reservoir and along the main watercourses. This forest landscaping measure, along with a 170-acre selective cut area along the ridgetop, will also allow adequate cover for big game, during the winter and protect the streams from silting and being filled with debris. The south-facing slope is visible from the reservoir. A possible drawback of the project could be the negative visual impact the first year or two after burning until the new vegetation becomes established. The temporary unsightliness will be easily outweighed by the increase in winter food supply that will be made available to one of Idaho's most important elk herds.

Examines browse

Browse transects play large role in big game management

SALMON — 3-D-75-2 inches," said Hadley Roberts, Salmon National Forest biologist. Bob Carpenter, Leadore District range conservationist, checked the appropriate blocks on his field form and the pair trudged another 30-40 feet up the hill to check another deer browse plant.

The entry on paper was a coded version of the relative health of a mountain mahogany plant on a big game winter range on the lower foothills along the Lemhi River. It is a measure of how much forage had been removed by deer and elk during the past winter, the amount it grew during the past year, and the condition of the plant.

In this case, the coded numbers and letter indicate a plant that is all within the available height zone for a deer or elk, it is severely hedged from past browsing, is decadent, approximately 75 per cent of last year's growth had been browsed, and there was an estimated average leader growth of two inches over the entire plant.

From this information, the two range specialists concluded that this plant is not producing a large amount of forage due to lack of vigor brought about by past overuse. And if the current trend is not reversed by alleviating the pressure on this plant, its life expectancy will be short.

Every spring, the Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management and Idaho Fish and Game Department work cooperatively on similar studies to evaluate the impact of big game browsing on the range plants.

Approximately 50-60 transects, or groups of 25 plants, are inspected annually by agency personnel on selected areas throughout the Salmon River Region, on the Salmon and Challis National Forests and on the BLM's Salmon District.

Limit doubled

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Fish and Game Department Thursday announced that Chinook salmon bag limits will be doubled on the main Salmon river beginning Saturday.

The daily bag limit will be increased from one salmon to two salmon per day, with a possession limit, increase from two salmon to four fish in any consecutive seven-day period.

The bag increase does not include the Little Salmon River because salmon bag limits already were increased there last week. The daily bag limit remains at one salmon per day and a possession limit of no more than 10 salmon per calendar year.

The season limit for the main Salmon River increases from five to 10 salmon per calendar year.

These study areas are located on all the main winter range areas, including the East Fork, North Fork, Middle Fork and main Salmon Rivers and the Lemhi and Pahsimeroi rivers. The 25 plant transect is a line of plants of one species spaced out over 200-300 yards to get a representative sample of a given unit. The plant species involved are mountain mahogany, bitterbrush and several species of sagebrush. The mountain mahogany and bitterbrush are nearly always heavily used. But sagebrushes are different, because of the many different forms and relative palatabilities. Deer may overuse a threepart sagebrush plant, but not even look at a big sagebrush nearby. Rangemen must therefore be careful to recognize the likes and dislikes of deer, and not include in the pantry a species deer will not eat, Roberts explained.

After all the results are in, recommendations based on available forage are made to the Idaho Fish and Game Commission as to seasons and bag limits for the following hunting seasons.

Preliminary results gathered during the last month indicate that the lower portion of all winter ranges were used less than last year, and ones located at higher elevations were used more.

Thousand acre timber sale set for benefit of wintering elk

A one thousand acre timber sale is being planned in the upper Dworshak Reservoir area in the North Fork of the Clearwater River drainage as an initial step in creating an increased winter food supply for big game, primarily elk. After logging is completed, incoming shrub growth will help offset winter range losses that resulted from the construction of Dworshak Dam and reservoir.

Through this joint effort by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, the Bureau of Land Management, the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, and the Idaho Fish and Game Department, the sale was scheduled to take place at the end of May, with logging to begin early this summer. The area is located at Hughes Point, 40 miles up the reservoir from Dworshak Dam, at the confluence of the North Fork and the Little North Fork of the Clearwater River.

In 1910, wildfire destroyed most of the timber on the southern aspect of Hughes Point. Large brushfields which followed provided an abundant supply of browse for wintering big game. Now, however, vegetative succession is well advanced and conifers have again reclaimed the area and shaded out browse plants. Although some brush patches are still present, increased use of these remaining areas has led to elimination of most desirable browse plants.

With little chance of another large wildfire with modern fire fighting techniques, artificial methods must be used to imitate mother nature if big game animals are to be maintained. Commercial timber will be harvested, and slash will be left scattered on the ground to be broadcast burned in the fall. Fire is essential to seeds of the number one browse species, redstem ceanothus. They lie dormant in the soil, having been dropped by plants, perhaps as much as a century ago. Two hundred-degree heat is necessary to break the seed coat to allow germination and growth of new plants.

A central ridge divides the Hughes Point area into two main parts — a steep-sloped southern aspect and a moderately-sloped northern aspect. The north-slope will be logged using conventional methods which will necessitate a temporary road system. The steep south slope will be logged by helicopter. The chief drawback of normal clearcut logging here would be the amount of erosion and the adverse visual impact caused by a road system and log skidding. Helicopter yarding will eliminate the need for roads and skid trails.

A wide strip of timber will be left along the reservoir and along the main watercourses. This forest landscaping measure, along with a 170-acre selective cut area along the ridgetop, will also allow adequate cover for big game, during the winter and protect the streams from silting and being filled with debris. The south-facing slope is visible from the reservoir. A possible drawback of the project could be the negative visual impact the first year or two after burning until the new vegetation becomes established. The temporary unsightliness will be easily outweighed by the increase in winter food supply that will be made available to one of Idaho's most important elk herds.

Two ISU runners to vie in USTFF meet

POCATELLO — Two members of the Idaho State track team and four Pocatello Windblowers will accompany Coach Bob Beuten to Wichita, Kansas for the U. S. Track & Field Federation Meet this weekend.

The four members of the Pocatello Windblowers girls team are Lynn Farris and Sandy Parkin of Highland H. S., Pocatello, and Cheri Sneddon and Kelley Butler, Alameda Junior H. S., Pocatello. They comprise a 44-yard relay team with a best time of 3:07.7 were invited off their indoor performance this winter by Director of the USTFF, Carl Cooper. Misses Farris and Parkin will also run in the open 100 and Misses Sneddon and Butler will run the 220.

The ISU representatives are sprinter Carl Lawson and intermediate hurdler Larry Corner. Corner placed second in his heat of the 440-yd IM's last weekend at Modesto. He must better 52 seconds at Wichita to get an invitation to the NCAA Meet June 8-9-10 in Baton Rouge.

Lawson is slated to run the 100, which he has a best time 9.2, wind-aided, and 9.3 legally. He also has the fastest legal 220 in the country, 20.2, and the fastest wind-aided 220, 19.9. Last weekend Lawson did not enter any individual events at Modesto, but ran well on the ISU 440 and 880 relay teams.

Guides OK 'watchdog' committee

SALMON, Idaho (UPI) — A "watch dog" committee representing the outfitting and guiding industry has been established to coordinate activities involving the industry.

Martin Capps, Salmon, president of the Idaho Outfitters and Guides Association, will serve as coordinator.

Capps said the committee, made up of association presidents from various states, has established lines of communications and will build support to meet anti-hunting and environmental "misunderstanding."

When issues involving the industry arise, the committee will act to keep on top of the matter and gain support where support is needed, he said.

The group hopes to include Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho, Montana, California, Oregon and Utah.

Boise nabs two Idaho footballers

BOISE — Two Idaho high school football players, Bruce Pooley from Boise High School in Boise and Ned Smith from American Falls, have signed national letters of intent to attend Boise State next fall.

Making the announcement of the signings was Bronco head football coach Tony Knap. Pooley, who stands 5-9 and weighs 155 lbs., was a wide receiver and defensive back for the Boise High School Braves which had a 7-3 record in 1972. Last year he caught eight passes, four of them for touchdowns, for 245 yards. He averaged 30.6 yards per reception.

Pooley is the younger brother of former Bronco wide receiver Dennis Pooley. Smith was a running back and outside linebacker for the American Falls High School Beavers. He stands 5-10 and weighs 185 lbs. He averaged five yards a run and scored six touchdowns last year on the ground and caught two TD passes.

He was the defensive captain of his team which had a 4-4 mark in 1972. Smith was all conference offensive second team in the Southeastern Idaho Conference.

Weiskopf ties record in taking Kemper open lead

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Red-hot Tom Weiskopf shot a seven-under-par 65 to tie the course record and vault into a one-stroke lead in Thursday's first round of the Kemper Open golf tournament.

Hard on the heels of Weiskopf, 1971 Kemper winner and runner-up last week in the Atlanta Classic, was North Carolinian Lanny Wadkins with a 67.

Five golfers — Ken Still, rookie Patrick Fitzsimons, Mac McLendon, Hubert Green and Leonard Thompson — were grouped at five-over 67 on the 7,219-yard, par 72 Quail Hollow Country Club course.

"I'm playing about as well as I ever have," said Weiskopf, fifth in money winnings for the 1973 tour and winner of the Colonial Invitational earlier this year.

"I didn't get a decent night's sleep last week," said Weiskopf, explaining that his two children had been ill. "Maybe I should play this way all the time."

The 6-foot-3 Ohio native had seven birdies, four on the front nine and a string of three straight on 13, 14 and the 599-yard No. 15.

Wadkins, relying on long drives as did Weiskopf, also had seven birdies, but a bogey four on No. 13 kept him at six-under.

"I putted pretty well," said Wadkins, who is one shot ahead of Weiskopf in this year's money winnings. "I hit 16 greens."

Noting that he had taken a couple of weeks off the tour, Wadkins said he returned "a better player, a little stronger, a little more alive."

Weiskopf, runner-up in three tournaments this year, missed a chance at going eight-under when he missed a birdie by inches on the 18th hole.

Bruce Crampton, No. 2 money winner on the tour this year, had a 68, as did Arnold Palmer. Also bunched at 68 were Al Geiberger, Wayne Yates, Dave Marad, Larry Ziegler and Martin Bohlen.

Sixty-one-year-old Sam Snead, Orville Moody, Bruce Devlin and Bert Yancey joined a crowd of nine at three-under 69. Leo Trevino, "Chi Chi" Rodriguez and 10 others had 70, well off the pace under Thursday's blue skies and 80-degree temperatures.

Among the happiest players in the logjam at 67 was Fitzsimons, a 22-year-old rookie.

"On putting, you didn't have to try and hit the cup," he said. "You just start them rolling and let them go."

Weiskopf, however, sounded a sour note about the course, longest on the pro tour.

"I think this course gets tougher every year," he said. "They have more rough and have tightened up the greens with a few traps."

Trevino, third in money winnings for the year, said he let his round "get away from me." He had four birdies and two bogeys.

"I could have been better, but I could have been worse," he said. "I made some good par putts."

Palmer, who had five birdies and a bogey at his first tournament in a month for the 68, said his showing "wasn't an outstandingly good round, but from a personal standpoint it was encouraging."

Babe Hickey scored the fourth hole-in-one of his career Thursday on the 151-yard par No. 2 hole and earned $5,000 from the Kemper management for the feat. His ace came after Weiskopf, Dan Sikes and Ray Floyd — playing in the preceding threesome — each birdied the hole. Hickey managed only a 71 for the entire round, however.

TOM WEISKOPF, Columbus, O., seems pleased with this chip shot on the 18th hole during the first round of the Kemper Open. Weiskopf equalled the course record at 65 to take the lead in the tournament he won in 1971. (UPI telephoto).

Frazier signs, saying he can't afford any loss

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Former world's heavyweight champion Joe Frazier Thursday formally signed for a 12-round fight with European heavyweight champion Joe Bugner July 2 in London, saying he "can't afford to take any more whippings."

The non-title bout will mark Frazier's first ring appearance since losing his title to George Foreman in Kingston, Jamaica, last Jan. 22 on a second-round TKO. Frazier, 29, hit the canvas six times before the fight was called.

"This fight is very important to me," Frazier said. "I have to prove to myself not to have a mishap like in January. I have to prove I'm the same Frazier I was before. I can't afford to take any more whippings. I already took one."

The 23-year-old Bugner, of St. Ives, England, was outpointed by Muhammad Ali in his last appearance, going the 12-round distance in Las Vegas Feb. 14.

Mickey Duff, London matchmaker who was present at the signing, said the winner of the about "should be the No. 1 contender for Foreman."

Frazier's manager, Yank Durham, earlier this week sent a letter to Boxing Enterprises of Houston, which holds the option on Foreman's next fight, asking for an immediate renoucement.

Durham said he would even consider pulling out of the Bugner match for a return bout with Foreman. The manager explained he has been searching for "a just couple of months" for a top-ranked opponent for Frazier, settling on Bugner because "we couldn't come up with anything else."

Allen drilled his 11th homer of the year with two men aboard in the sixth inning and also doubled home a run in the second, while Melton scored a run with an infield-out in the first and singled home a pair in the second. Allen's homer was his eighth during the month of May.

Auerbach opposes legalized gambling

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Celtics general manager Arnold (Red) Auerbach said Thursday that legalized gambling would have an "insidious potential to corrupt."

A bill before the Massachusetts Legislature is designed to legalize betting on all sports.

"I won't mince words," Auerbach said. "To legalize betting on all sports has an insidious potential to corrupt. I want to emphasize the effect that such legislation could have on the athletes themselves. They will be suspect, suspect and suspect."

"Every time a shot is missed, there will be shouts from the stands of 'dump, dump, dump.' Athletes will be accused of playing the point spread."

Auerbach concurred with the positions taken a week ago by Red Sox Vice President and General Manager Dick O'Connell against the proposed legislation.

"My sport, basketball, will be the most susceptible to suspicion because of the profuse scoring," Auerbach said.

"Most athletes don't even know how or where to place a bet, other than at a racetrack. If it is legalized and opened, the athletes — can go in and bet. Even if the league imposes penalties and contracts forbidding betting, how can it really be prevented? Others can place bets for a player."

Labor board dismisses unfair charges brought against NFL owners by players

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) Thursday unanimously threw out unfair labor charges filed against the National Football League by the players' association involving artificial turf and automatic fines for fighting.

Judge Melvin J. Welles, who had ordered Rozelle to rescind $21,200 to 106 players involved in three episodes in 1971 pre-season games.

The NLRB, which heard arguments in the case on March 5, agreed with the players union that the installation of artificial turf is a mandatory subject for collective bargaining because it affects the players' working conditions.

But the decision said there was no evidence that the league had refused to bargain on the issue and had indicated a willingness to negotiate about the artificial turf issue.

NHL would hate to lose Howes

DETROIT (UPI) — National Hockey League President Clarence S. Campbell said Thursday it would be a tragedy if Gordie Howe switched leagues but he said the NHL probably could not do anything about it.

"I think myself it's one of those situations where we're locked in," Campbell said. "I can't conceive of any action we can take at this time that we can stand up to and be free of serious legal consequences."

Johncock earns $236,022 for Indianapolis victory

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Gordon Johncock won $236,022 for his victory in the rain-shortened and wreck-plagued Indianapolis Motor Speedway announced Thursday.

Johncock's payoff was more than the $218,707 won by 1972 winner Mark Donohue but less than the record first place prize of $238,454 pocketed by Al Unser in 1971.

The total 1973 Speedway purse was $1,066,105, about $5,000 less than the record $1,011,845 paid out in the field last year.

This was the fourth straight year the total prize money exceeded $1 million.

Should the traditional three-abreast start of the "500" be changed for safety's sake? These and other questions were being debated in gasoline alley, the garage area of the racing plant, as most crews packed up to prepare for the Rex Mays 150-miler in Milwaukee, the next stop on USAC's championship calendar.

The Milwaukee race originally was scheduled for next Sunday but was pushed back a week to June 10 because the "500" was delayed two days by rain. The "500" was halted after 33 1/2 miles, or 133 laps, by showers with Johncock leading second-place Bill Vukovich by about 25 seconds.

Armando Teran, 22, Santa Monica, Calif., a pit crew member for New Zealander Graham McTear, the Speedway's new "Rookie of the Year," was run down at the starting line in the pits when a fire truck raced to the scene of Swedo Savage's fiery wreck that stopped the race after 50 laps. Teran was pronounced dead at Methodist Hospital of a skull fracture and other injuries.

"Somebody made a mistake," said George Bignotti, chief mechanic for Johncock, who said he had just crossed over to the pit wall ahead of Teran when Teran was hit. "It was something that shouldn't have happened. I don't think any truck should be driving in the opposite direction to the normal race car traffic in the pits."

Manager for the McTear crew, said Teran's death was caused by "sheer ignorance."

"That truck had no business going that fast the wrong way through the pits," he said. Chief Steward Harlan Flegler said emergency vehicles, "under certain conditions," can go in opposite direction on either the track or in the pits.

"It was a tragedy," said Flegler. "We have cautioned all those in the pits time and again to watch for traffic. This vehicle was trying to help."

Veteran driver Art Pollard was killed during practice in a crash May 12 and David "Salt" Walther was injured badly in Monday's 10-car accident at the start of the race that finally was washed out.

Recall move stalled

BOISE (UPI) — Attorney General W. Anthony Park told petitioners seeking the recall of State Rep. Patricia McDermott Thursday he cannot change the law just to help their cause.

Park said petitioners seeking the recall of an elected official must comply with all provisions of the recall law, that is, contain all information required by law.

A movement to recall the Pocatello Democrat from the legislature failed Wednesday when Secretary of State Pete T. Cennarus was forced to strike out 2,230 of the 2,339 petition signatures. These signers had failed, as required by law, to list their post-office addresses.

Four petitioners met with Park shortly before noon Thursday in an effort to get him to change his mind about the sufficiency of the petitions. "I have to follow the laws of the state," Park said. "If I advised the Secretary of State to accept those signature I would be subjecting the state, the secretary and even this office to a lawsuit."

"We're not going to change the law to accommodate any group," Park said.

Park, who had a previous commitment, had to excuse himself in the middle of the conference with the petitioners in order to catch an airplane. Chief Deputy Clarence Suller and Assistant Secretary of State John Croner continued to meet with the petitioners well into the lunch hour.

Park, Suller and Croner all advised the petitioners to get a lawyer before trying the recall movement again. Suller recalled he had given the petitioners that advice last March 6 when they filed their initial petition.

Della Jolley and Paula West told Park they were upset because they thought the initial petition had been approved. All 54 signatures on that petition were stricken Wednesday because they lacked a post-office address.

Park and Croner advised them that only the "Form" of the petition was approved last March that nobody checked the sufficiency of the signatures because at that point nobody was required to do so by law. Mrs. Jolley expressed reluctance to hire an attorney because she could not be assured his opinion would coincide with that of the Attorney General.

Croner said the Secretary of State puts his entire operation in the attorney general's hands insofar as the legal aspects are concerned.

"That is why we think getting a lawyer is superficial," Mrs. Jolley said.

Park said if they had had a lawyer back in March their movement might not have failed. He said his office would attempt to answer in writing any questions submitted by the group's attorney if it decides to hire one.

Mrs. Jolley told the officials the petitioners are not through with their attempt to recall Miss McDermott from office. "We are going to have a recall," she said. "We are going to start again."

When she and the other petitioners asked how soon they can begin a new movement Park said to put the question in writing and he will consider it.

Court rules

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The Court of Appeals, New York State's highest court, ruled Wednesday that a police chief acted reasonably when he limited the size of his officers' sideburns and mustaches and prohibited beards.

In its ruling, the court quoted a lower court decision which held that the length of a man's sideburns "had no constitutional dignity."

David Greenwald, a Nassau County policeman and president of the County Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, had brought the suit against the county's police commissioner.

GARY ARFORD appointed

Academy notice received

BOJILL — Gary Martin Arford has received a congressional appointment to the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo.

The notification came from the offices of Sen. Frank Church D-Ida. and Rep. James McClure, R-Ida.

Arford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Arford, Buhl, has been a high honor student, a member of Mu Alpha Theta national math club, delegate to Northwestern Mathematics Convention and received a scholarship to attend computer programming class at Moscow the summer of 1972. He received a letter of commendation for being in the top three per cent nationally on the NMSQT-PSAT test. He is a past member of ARTC electronics club, Chess club president, Table Tennis vice president, a member of B Club and was on the student council for two years.

He has been active in baseball, football, bowling and track. He is a member of the Madrigals Singing group and played the lead in the school musical during his junior year.

He is a past vice president of the Missionary Society of the Buhl Church of the Nazarene. His hobbies include motorcycle riding, horseback riding, chess, ping-pong and reading. He plans to become an officer in the Air Force and serve as a pilot.

Nader, friends file suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader and the environmental organization Friends of the Earth, Thursday filed suit to shut down 20 nuclear power plants on safety grounds.

Two of the plants, Nader said, are near President's Nixon's California and Florida homes — the San Onofre No. 1 plant, located "a few hundred yards" from Nixon's San Clemente home and Turkey Point Plants No. 3 and No. 4 at Biscayne Bay, Fla., site of Nixon's Florida home.

The suit also named Surrey Plants—No. 1 and No. 2 at Gravel Neck, Va., located an estimated 40 miles from Washington.

The suit asks the Federal District Court to order the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) to revoke the operating licenses of the 20 plants until all safety standards have been met.

The AEC immediately responded by declaring all the plants are safe although it is in the process of evaluation of additional features for its back-up safety programs.

"The safety record of licensed nuclear power plants is excellent," the AEC said. "It said the statements by Nader and Friends of the Earth 'are the same views repeated once again that have been expressed in various other forms' by the same individuals."

A spokesman for the industry's Atomic Industrial Forum said that contrary to critics' widespread adoption of nuclear power will not compromise our concern for the environment or public health and safety.

1st Protestant elected

DUBLIN (UPI) — English-born Erakine Childers Thursday became the first Protestant to be elected president of the overwhelmingly Roman Catholic Irish Republic, succeeding 61-year-old Eamon de Valera, the Brooklyn-born patriarch of Irish independence.

Political sources said the victory by Childers, 68, over his Roman Catholic opponent in Wednesday's presidential elections was a dramatic gesture of conciliation toward predominantly Protestant Northern Ireland — where the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) is waging a war of violence.

With only one constituency still outstanding, Childers, candidate of the opposition Finna Fall party, held an unbeatable 46,816 majority over Tom O'Higgins, 56, representing the governing Fine Gael and Labor party coalition.

The popular vote gave Childers 612,033 against 566,117 for O'Higgins. A recount has been called in the last voting district but the result would not affect the result.

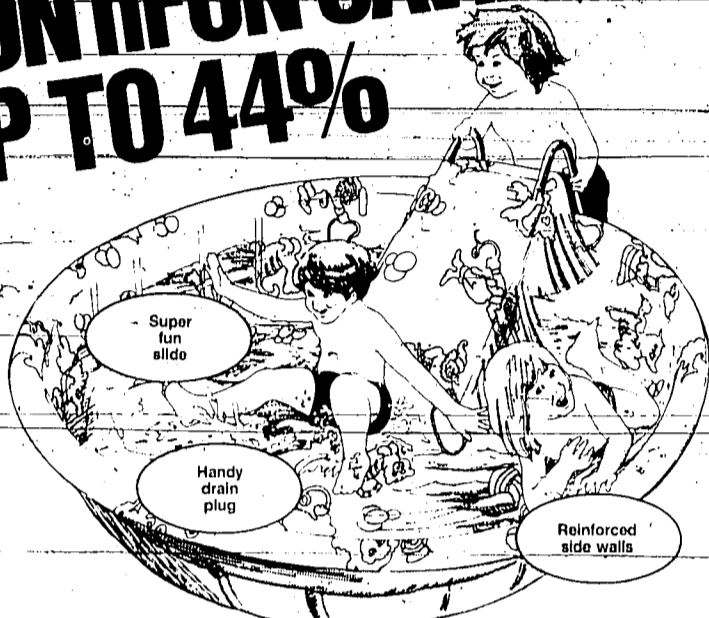

magnificent gesture by the Irish people."

He said one of his first tasks as president would be to ask the government's consent to invite representatives of the two communities in Northern Ireland to meet him.

"I would invite them to visit me so that we could explore common ground," he said. "I will do anything, just anything, to help that situation."

Only 55 per cent of the Republic's 1.0 million registered voters cast votes in the election to select a successor to De Valera, who plans to retire next month.
