Eight killed

PLAINVIEW, Tex. (UPI) — Eight persons, most of them children and teen-agers, were killed Saturday in the broadside collision of their car and a fertilizer truck on Interstate 27 in West Texas. Investigators said none of the dead carried identification. "One of them was around 20 and the rest were younger," a Department of Public Safety officer said. "A lot of them were children." The driver of the truck was hospitalized in fair condition and in shock.

Dope ring broken

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Federal Bureau of Narcotics says it has broken a major international smuggling ring with seizure of $750,000 worth of cocaine and the arrest of four persons apparently using a film production company as a front. Four former residents of El Paso, Tex., who had been making feature films in South America were taken into custody Thursday.

Price hike warned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Saturday speculation in the commodities markets could drive food prices 15 to 20 per cent above their present levels. He urged more vigorous regulation by the Commodity Exchange Authority (CEA) and said his Senate permanent investigations subcommittee has been looking into the CEA's role.

US military man assassin victim

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Gunmen believed to be members of a leftist guerrilla group Saturday assassinated a U.S. army colonel attached as an adviser to Iran's army forces.

Firing at close range, two men on a motorcycle shot Lt. Col. Lewis L. Hawkins, 42, of Plymouth, Ind., seconds after he left his home to go to his office at 6:30 a.m., the government said.

Police said they suspected the killers belonged to a radical leftist guerrilla group which has carried out killings, bank robberies, sabotage and kidnappings, including an unsuccessful attempt to abduct former U.S. Ambassador Douglas MacArthur Jr.

Last Thursday eight guerrillas of the leftist group were executed by a firing squad at Ahwaz in southern Iran. They had been convicted of killings and blowing up bridges and roads.

A man servant at the Hawkins home in Tehran's fashionable Abbasabad neighborhood told reporters he heard the shots and ran outside but retreated immediately when the gunmen threatened to kill him, too.

The motorcycle borne killers roared off just before Hawkins' wife Anne rushed out. "She almost broke down when she saw her husband lying in a pool of blood," the servant said.

He said he was "too terrified" to remember any details of the killers except that they were "young men with guns." Police ordered officers throughout the Tehran area to hunt them.

Food firm joins TF sewer plans

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Frozen Foods agreed Friday to tie into the city's sewer system and pay its share of the cost of constructing a secondary treatment plant.

The move ended several months of indecision on the part of the processing plant as to whether it would undertake the financial burden of joining the city sewage facilities or seek alternate solutions. At one time closure of the plant was considered.

The move also freed the city to go ahead with its application to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for funds to begin construction of the secondary add-on to the current primary treatment facility.

Notification of Idaho Frozen Foods' decision came in a letter received Friday by City Manager Jean Milar from Consolidated Foods Corp. vice-president and director James A. Schindwein. Idaho Frozen Foods is a subsidiary of the Chicago based Consolidated Foods.

Schindwein wrote: "This is to confirm participation by Idaho Frozen Foods in the City's Waste Water Treatment Facilities Expansion Program, and in accordance with the Federal Water Pollution Control Act amendments of 1972 (Idaho Frozen Foods) will pay that portion of federal grants to the project allocable to the treatment of its wastes."

Under original estimates, Idaho Frozen Foods' share of the cost of constructing the secondary treatment facility would have been about $2.25 million, payable over a 20-year period.

However, according to Schindwein's letter, Idaho Frozen Foods intends to cut back on the amount of effluent it will pump into city lines by about one-third, significantly reducing the amount it will have to pay for the project.

Costs for the secondary treatment plant will be paid by the federal government, 75 per cent; the state, 15 per cent, and local users, 10 per cent.

Under recent grant amendments, private industries must pay back a portion of the federal funds equal to the industry's share of the total effluent being treated.

Idaho Frozen Foods' effluent, measured on a fairly complex basis, would have been about two-thirds of the total effluent being treated by the city. But with the revisions planned by the processing plant the percentage will drop to about 50 to 60 per cent.

Officials of Idaho Frozen Foods could not be reached Saturday to comment on how the company plans to reduce its effluent, but, according to Milar, the company plans to put in a dry peel operation to cut back its sewage flow.

Milar said Idaho Frozen Foods is attacking its pollution problem from two directions — first, by reducing its pollution to reduce its payback costs, and, second, by spending money on upgrading its own facilities with the installation of a new peeling process. Milar said this was "probably a very wise move."

Neither Milar nor city consulting engineer C. J. Voeller, Pocatello, could give a definite figure on how much Idaho Frozen Foods' share of the total effluent would be reduced.

Milar said the food plant's final percentage would be close to 50 per cent, while Voeller guessed 60 per cent. With the total cost of the treatment improvement estimated at $4 million, Idaho Frozen Foods' payback on the EPA and city shares will probably be under $2 million.

Under federal regulations, half of the company's payback will return to federal coffers while the other half will go to the city. Voeller said the reduction in Idaho Frozen Foods' input could mean a reduction in the size of the secondary treatment facility, but Milar was hesitant to agree.

McClure eyes canyon park

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

WENDELL — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, expressed interest Saturday in a cultural park concept for Snake River canyon following a helicopter inspection of the area.

The senator flew the canyon at a low elevation for what he said was his first such inspection of the area. He recently requested a Park Service study to determine National Park potential for preservation of the canyon from Twin Falls to Bliss.

He said historical, geological and scenic factors are impressive and while he has made no concrete proposal for the area's future, he felt his request for a Park Service study constitutes something of a commitment in the region.

McClure said he will introduce legislation for some type of park designation on some or all of the area, based on the study.

The senator said time-wise he expects about a year for completion of the study before any legislation could be framed and introduced. A cultural park concept, completely new in national park planning, would designate the area's many geological factors as well as preserve the old Oregon Trail sites and make accessible many scenic features.

Dean says Nixon knew

NEW YORK (UPI) — John W. Dean, President Nixon's former counsel, has told the Senate Watergate Committee he met with Nixon, alone and in small groups, more than 40 times between late January and late April of this year, the New York Times reported in its Sunday editions.

Quoting sources close to Dean, the Times reported Dean said he could supply first-hand testimony about the meetings to show the President had "substantial knowledge" of the activities of high White House officials in the Watergate investigation.

But the Times said Dean did not discuss specific details of his conversations with the President "because of unresolved questions about national security, executive privilege and the possibility of violation of attorney-client privilege."

In other developments, a former Nixon Campaign official has told Senate investigators that several days before the Watergate break-in, he saw the secret "Gemstone" file on political espionage which he was sure was intended for John Mitchell, it was learned Saturday.

Authoritative sources said Robert Reiser told of inadvertently observing the file on the desk of Job Stuart Magruder, then deputy campaign director who is believed ready to plead guilty and implicate others in a high-level coverup of the scandal.

Stock losses told

SUN VALLEY — Increased sheep and cattle losses to coyotes and a possible increase in big game losses were cited Friday as the upshot of an executive order banning use of chemical toxicants on federal lands.

The all-day hearing to assess the executive order's impact on predator control problems was conducted by the Senate Interior Subcommittee on Public Lands.

Joe W. Smith, representing the Oregon Cattlemen's Association — one of a great number of witnesses representing wool growers and cattlemen from Western states — said, "decades ago coyotes were considered the sheepman's problem." Presently, he said, "cow and calf men are losing 'increasing numbers' of stock to predators."

"Federal lands are simply breeding grounds and refuges for predators," Smith said.

Clay E. Crawford, Benventon, Ore., a retired Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife employe, said, "In my judgment, the selective qualities of Compound 1080 (sodium monofluoroacetate) make it a valuable and safe control tool."

Crawford said that an eagle would have to consume from seven to 30 coyote carcasses — which had been killed to 1080 — to obtain a lethal dose.

Citing a high reproductive rate among most predators, he said, "If current populations, especially coyotes, are permitted to survive through another breeding season, there is little question that the livestock industry — both cattle and sheep as well as big game populations — will eventually face a more serious crisis than exists today." Joseph C. Greenley, director of the Idaho Fish and Game Department, said predator management programs "should involve collection and application of biological information, inventory of the target animals and evaluation of livestock and wildlife losses."

The objective of a predator control program, Greenley said, should be "efficient control, not extermination, while minimizing damage to domestic livestock game mammals and game birds."

Greenley said the department opposes use of bounty system because "history indicates it is not an efficient tool." He said the bounty system encourages killing of coyotes in areas where they are more readily available, not necessarily where they are the greatest problem.

Secretary of State Pete T. Cenarrusa, a wool grower since 1946, cited his sheep losses while ranging in Washington state. Losses between March 16 to September last year, he said, total 562 lambs and 450 ewes. "The coyotes got this," he said. "Bases per capita consumption of lamb in the United States, Cenarrusa said, the loss of the lambs to predators and breeding stock during their useful lifetime would have fed 75,350 persons for one year."

Dr. Floyd Frank, head of the Veterinary Science Department, University of Idaho, said a "continuous predator control program" was one of the factors in the low rabies rate in Idaho and the Intermountain region.

Dr. Frank said the region has a "reservoir" of rabies in its bat population and said he was concerned that an increase in carnivorous species "may represent a buildup of rabies."

Dr. George Baggley, representing the Idaho Environmental Council, said predator control should be treated on a broader basis, as an element of environmental modification.

Dr. Baggley recommended that no toxicants be used for any purposes on public lands, aerial gunning be discontinued and that all bounties on predators be discontinued.

"Any and all controls of predatory animals should be selective rather than broad, and wherever possible, be directed at individual animals," he said.

Wilbur F. Wilson, president of the Idaho Livestock Production Credit Association, presented testimony on the impact predator depredations were creating on the sheepmen's credit rating.

Wilson said five sheep outfits were selected at random from the 22 that the association finances.

Compared to a 7.8 per cent ewe loss in 1971 — before the executive ban was imposed — ewe losses in 1972 were 11.8 per cent, he said.

Chavez vows long boycott

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Vowing to "strike and boycott for 100 years" if necessary, Cesar Chavez is preparing to put his once successful boycott machinery back into operation.

The first grape boycott ended in 1970 when some 300 growers came to terms with Chavez' United Farm Workers Union (UFW) following a bitter struggle which lasted for nearly a decade.

When some of those contracts expired in April of this year, the Teamsters Union stepped in and signed contracts with farmers representing 85 per cent of the grape production in the Conchella region of Southern California.

Most of the contracts with growers in the San Joaquin Valley where most of the nation's grapes are grown expire later in the summer.

In Vancouver, B.C., Friday, as he has on several earlier occasions, Chavez threatened a renewal of the grape boycott to once again force growers to bargain with his union.

"We're confident because we have the people," Chavez said. Chavez organized the first grape boycott in the summer of 1968 and in the next two years he accomplished what five years of strikes and walkouts had failed to bring about.

With the help of national figures like New York Mayor John Lindsay, the late Sen. Robert Kennedy, and Sen. Hubert Humphrey, the union finally brought the growers to the negotiating table.

During the boycott the growers organized a public relations campaign in an attempt to sway public opinion to their side.

Big city shoppers appeared, however, to side with the union and the growers came to terms when they felt the pinch.

Despite continued claims by the growers that the boycott did not hurt them, they filed a $75 million suit against the UFW for damages caused by the boycott.

A number of growers in the San Joaquin Valley have indicated they will not sign with either the UFW or the Teamsters.

The Nisei Farmers League, a group of 1,000 small growers in Fresno and Tulare counties, has boosted wages to $2.30 an hour to keep abreast of union wages. Harry Kubo, president of the league, says the growers doubt whether their field hands want any union at all.

Still, the jurisdictional struggle between the UFW and Teamsters shows no sign of abating.

William Graml, chief organizer for the Western Conference of Teamsters, concedes that Chavez has some public support but feels the workers don't like him.

"His charisma may appeal to some of the public but it doesn't appeal to the workers," Graml said.

Chavez does not agree. "The action of the Teamsters is consolidating our drive to get them out of the fields," he said. "The workers are on our side."

Mayor thief twice

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — The mayor of Idaho Falls, police officers and a citizen who reported a car theft all were surprised Friday when the stolen car was found in the mayor's stall at city hall.

Mayor S. Eddie Pedersen contritely admitted he was the inadvertent culprit who took the car.

It all began when Pedersen, trying to get to a sorority meeting where he was to welcome delegates, discovered the transmission of his own car was on the blink.

In a hurry, the mayor borrowed the car of Police Chief Robert Pollock.

By the time he performed his official duties and headed back to Pollock's car, it was raining. Being in a hurry again, he looked for a "brown car" like the one in which he had arrived, found such a vehicle with the keys in it and climbed in and drove away.

The mayor later discovered the car in which he returned to city hall was not the chief's but a vehicle belonging to someone else.

Pentagon denies violation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon Saturday disputed a senator's assertion that Gen. Alexander M. Haig violates the law by serving as an assistant to President Nixon while remaining on active duty in the Army.

But Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., acting chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and the man who made the assertion, said he was not satisfied with the Army's argument.

Symington made public a letter from the Defense Department and his reply to William P. Clements Jr., acting secretary of defense.

Symington first complained after Nixon named Haig as White House chief of staff, succeeding H.R. Haldeeman, who resigned April 30 because of Watergate disclosures. Symington cited a 1970 law which says no one on active military duty may hold appointive civil office in the government.

In reply, the Pentagon cited four precedents: William D. Leahy, who served Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman from 1942-49 as White House chief of staff; Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, who served President Dwight D. Eisenhower in the same capacity; Brig. Gen. Andrew Goodpaster, who served Eisenhower as staff secretary; and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, who served President John F. Kennedy as military adviser.

But Symington said Haig's case is different. He said that Leahy served Presidents during wartime in their role as commander in chief; that Persons and Taylor retired from military service when they worked in the White House; and that Goodpaster, while not retired, "gave special attention to national security matters" when serving Eisenhower.

Statement OK'd on dam project

BOISE (UPI) — Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton has approved for distribution and review a draft environmental statement on replacement of American Falls dam and construction of a power plant on the Minidoka Project.

Reclamation Commissioner Gilbert G. Stamp said the statement describes the nature and extent of the environmental impact of the proposed construction by spaceholders at American Falls reservoir of a new dam to replace American Falls dam.

It also covers the general impacts of the power plant which is proposed to be built downstream from the new dam. The statement was prepared to accompany legislation being considered by Congress to allow the interior secretary to enter into an agreement with an American Falls reservoir spaceholder organization to construct a replacement dam and negotiate a contract for "falling water" power generation.

TF officials reject bids on cleaning

TWIN FALLS — County Commissioners rejected all bids for cleaning of the exterior of the county courthouse, installing new windows and improvement of the old hospital building Friday afternoon.

William L. Chancey, commission chairman, said there were "irregularities" in the bids. He said the commissioners will discuss the matter further and decide at a later time if they are to call for new bids.

The commission did, however, award one contract — the rewiring work in the courthouse to Showell Electric for $21,332.30. This was the only firm bidding on the work, but commissioners said the bid was in order and was within the anticipated costs.

The rewiring will be for the basement area, first, second and third floors and will allow the offices to use modern electrical equipment such as accounting, copying and other machines which are now in use by most county offices and require heavy wiring.

Two of the bidders on exterior work for the courthouse and old hospital buildings and for window installation do not have Public Works Contractor licenses as required by state law. In an opinion requested by the county commissioners from Robert Galley, county attorney, it was explained the licenses are not essential at the time of submitting a bid, but must be obtained by the time the contract is awarded.

Idaho confabs set on water quality

TWIN FALLS — Water quality regulations as they pertain to lakes and streams in recreational use or for industry and agriculture are being explained in a series of meetings around the state.

Officials of the board of Environmental and Community Services met Thursday night in Twin Falls for a public session to outline standards prior to a public hearing Monday night in Boise.

Alex Schaefer, Jerome, area water quality officer, DECS, outlined the standards established for each water body and stream and various areas of the Snake River.

He also answered questions concerning regulations to maintain standards for prescribed uses. Uses include swimming, permitted in most restrictive areas with water skiing and wading or fishing in the less restrictive standard areas along with irrigation and other non recreation uses permitting still lower standards. Schaefer discussed the effect of excessive depths on the standards.

Living stream classifications and oxygen requirements for fish maintenance were also outlined by Schaefer. A 39 page report on proposed rules and regulations for establishment of water quality and for waste water treatment requirements is available from the DECS.

The new modern bank building will provide complete bank services to commercial and individual customers in the area. It will have five teller locations and a drive-in window for the convenience of motor bank customers.

Weight loss recorded at TOPS meet

GLENN'S FERRY — A loss of eight and three-fourths pounds was reported for TOPS at the Thursday evening meeting at Greb Hall with a gain of one and one-fourth pounds.

KOPS had a loss of three and one-half pounds and a gain of three pounds. Mrs. Steve Parry was named the TOPPER of the week, and had her picture taken. Mrs. Don Anderson drew the Ha Ha box.

Mrs. Mildred Carnahan was welcomed as a new member. The group sang songs, and renewed the club rules and regulations for the benefit of the new member.

Mrs. Clifford Hansen, the May contestant chairman, was absent so the winner of the contest will be announced next Thursday. The music box will be presented to the winner.

Happy 4-H club meets

TWIN FALLS — The Happy-Go-Lucky 4-H Club met Thursday at the home of Marcia DePew.

Mrs. Patrick J. Martin, daughter of Mrs. Fred Britt, was a special guest.

Work was started on food record books, with Christine Britt, teen leader, instructing the new members. The next meeting is from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesday at the home of Miss Britt. Fabrics and patterns will be discussed.

Classes begin

TWIN FALLS — A series of weekly general arts and crafts classes will begin at 9:30 a.m. Monday at the Senior Citizen Center.

Mrs. Frank Mansfield will be in charge of the sessions. Interested residents, especially those who have not taken an active part in center activities, are invited to bring a sandwich along and spend the day.

The center is located at 421 Second Ave. W. The Senior Citizen Shopping Bus will also be making a trip to the Lywood Shopping Center on Wednesday. For further information on the shopping excursion, residents are requested to call the Senior-Citizen Center at 734-5084.

Damages sought in auto deaths

TWIN FALLS — An auto accident near Dubois in 1971 which resulted in the death of six persons has brought a $270,000 damage suit in Fifth District Court here.

Roland and Frances Newton, Buhl, parents of Linda Newton, 17, who was killed June 1, 1971, have filed suit against the state of Idaho, Thelma Schwartz, Twin Falls, an administratrix in the estates of Frank Harrison Rippee, his wife and son, and against the All State Insurance Co.

The Newtons say their daughter was a passenger in a vehicle owned by Mr. and Mrs. Rippee and driven by their son, Michael, when it skidded on wet pavement on the interstate near Dubois and crashed with a vehicle driven by Patricia Taylor Webb with her husband, Harold Webb, as a passenger. The Webbs were from Dallas, Tex. Force of the impact, the complaint states, killed Mr. and Mrs. Webb, Mr. and Mrs. Rippee and Michael Rippee instantly. Linda Newton died of injuries June 5, 1971.

The complaint charges the State of Idaho, through its Department of Highways, was negligent in allowing paving material to be used which was dangerous and slick rather than a rough material.

It further charges negligence on the part of the driver and states All State Insurance Co. which had a policy insuring the Rippee family, gave the entire benefit to the survivors of the Webb family, giving no consideration to the Newtons.

County reviews its rental fees

TWIN FALLS — As landlords renting to a number of state and federal agencies, the Twin Falls county commissioners have decided to review their rental fees.

The county rents space in the courthouse, the old hospital and maternity buildings and the old nursing home to many agencies. Some of the offices are rented for as little as $75 per month while other office rentals around Twin Falls are considerably higher.

County Commissioners Merl Leonard and Bill Wiseman said some of the agencies housed in county quarters are the Idaho State Police, Immigration and Border Patrol, the former Department of Public Assistance, Adult Development Center, state probation and parole officers, driver training rehabilitation service, Alcoholic Safety act program, Extension Service and Soil Conservation Service.

TF councilmen to discuss ordinances

TWIN FALLS — Several ordinances will be considered Monday night when the Twin Falls city council meets in regular session at 7:30 p.m.

An annexation ordinance, No. 1636, will be placed on second reading and the council will consider an ordinance establishing a policy on out of city services such as sewer and water.

An ordinance on floor drain regulations is also scheduled for introduction. In other business, the council will consider a rezoning request on property south of the Shoshone Street Bridge and owned by the late James Lash. A setback variance requested by N. A. N. home builders will be discussed and a request from Clara Dickerson for exemption from irrigation district assessment will be heard.

The council agenda also includes appointment of three men to the Accident Review Board and confirmation of John Brown as city water supply superintendent.

A resolution amending the Federal Aviation Agency grant to increase the amount of ramp paving at the airport will also be discussed.

Under Attack

Even as the journalism fraternity is congratulating itself on its exposure of the Watergate mess and the administration is, to put it mildly, on the defensive because of it, comes a warning that government activities continue to threaten freedom of the press, in the widest meaning of the term.

Government measures attacking the economic capability of the television networks are just as much a threat to journalistic freedom as efforts to stifle free expression, says Robert W. Sarnoff, chairman of RCA.

And "an attack on one news medium," he warns, "is an attack on all." In his own medium, he told a recent NBC Television Network Affiliates convention in Los Angeles, the attack is in the form of attempts to weaken the economic structure of networking under the pretext of "localism" which, he says, "could impede the flow of independent information to the people."

He is not, he says, suggesting that the government has adopted such a design. "But I am concerned that an atmosphere has developed where networks are perceived as fair game." In noncommercial television, he says, we have been witnessing another variation. There, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, controlled directly by government appointees, has been dismantling national news and public affairs programming.

As for the broader threat to journalistic freedom, Sarnoff cites the "unprecedented spectacle" of high federal officials attacking the national news media in general, the increasingly common device of subjecting investigative reporters to subpoenas and the threat of jail sentences and the use of official secrecy as a cloak for official mistakes and derelictions.

"Whichever of these different means of suppression is employed, the effect is to deprive the public of what it needs to know in a free society," he says.

"What the government wants is a tamed press," alleges Sarnoff, and its efforts to make the news media docile and accommodating rely heavily on the technique of intimidation.

But he adds, "This technique works only against those who are willing to be timid."

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A Republican figure with a penchant and a talent for human probing says this of President Nixon against the backdrop of Watergate: "He has used the presidency to justify his weaknesses." Obviously the statement can have meaning only if it is understood what this man — and a good many other Nixon watchers — consider to be Mr. Nixon's principal weaknesses. They can be summed up easily under the heading of "inability in human relations." This now is ground pretty well covered in the many hard examinations made of the President's conduct either in or in quest of public office.

What the quoted Republican was getting at is this: Mr. Nixon long ago perceived his own limitations in dealing close-range with people. In his campaigns for the White House, he sought to minimize any possible political and personal damage from these evident shortcomings by devices aimed at controlling the "campaign environment" in which he moved.

This meant carefully contrived public appearances, minimum direct exposure to the press through conferences and interviews, avoidance of the traumatic (for him) business of confronting either ordinary voting folk or political leaders in unpredictable one-on-one situations.

But a president, thrown almost inevitably into all kinds of problems he can't foresee, requires a rich variety of human contacts to fuel his imagination and reinforce whatever creative impulses he may bring to the job.

This difficult leap Mr. Nixon has not made. In the White House fortress which automatically fosters a certain isolation for all presidents, he has moved as he did in his campaign — to control his whole "environment." But in this case, that of course means managing the entirety of government, and its approach to problems which in this age are inescapably limnense, in a manner which supports the President's great lack in the human field.

So he has contrived to run the presidency as the carefully cloistered solitaire player, shuffling the key cards whose symbols spell major foreign and domestic problems. And, to reinforce his chosen devices of control, he has surrounded himself with aides who would keep him secure in his weaknesses — rather than try to help him compensate for them by wide-ranging, understanding contacts with the "human stuff" in politics in this government, and in those abroad.

A president, as any man, deserves some sympathy as he pays the cost of his frailties. Speaking in his own special context of time and circumstance, President Woodrow Wilson once said: "When they shoot at you, they can only take your natural life; when they sneer at you, they can wound your living heart."

Richard Nixon, in the grip of his frailties, has been sneered at long and often. His response has not always been limited to simple self-protection. Wounded in his "living heart," he has sometimes struck back in vengeful bitterness. The irony: That reply has made his heart a still bigger target.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

The Doctor Says

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain what "congestive heart failure" is. I also enclosed 25 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for your booklet, "How to Handle Angina Pectoris."

My heart doctor did not tell me anything other than that my heart was weak. He put in my insurance papers "congestive heart failure," and later on another paper "ASHD with coronary insufficiency and severe angina pectoris." — J.W.D.

You have a good deal of company in your troubles. The booklet will explain a good deal of it to you, but in brief, here's what the various terms mean.

Your heart is, indeed, weakened. The explanation is in the term "ASHD." That means "arteriosclerotic heart disease." That, in turn, means that the arteries feeding your heart muscle have become narrowed or "hardened," so the heart muscle does not get as plentiful a supply of blood as it should have.

Hence it cannot work at full efficiency, and congestion develops — the "congestive heart failure" — and the "coronary insufficiency" which means difficulty in pumping enough blood.

The "angina pectoris" means chest pain which occurs when your heart has to work beyond a comfortable capacity. Nitroglycerin tablets (and sometimes other medications) are used to ease the pain, but you must be careful to keep your exertion within limits that your heart can handle. You'll find it all explained in detail in the booklet.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was told by a doctor that I had catarah, but he gave me no medication for it. Please tell me what can be done for it. — C.M.H.

"Catarah" sounds nicer than "Post nasal drip" or just plain old "runny nose." You don't hear the old phrase "catarrh" much nowadays. It refers to the inflammation of mucous membranes. When the membranes are inflamed, the mucus is produced in greater amounts and simply seeks the path of least resistance, the nose or the throat.

I wouldn't be concerned that the doctor didn't prescribe any medication. About all that can be done is to use nose drops to help clear the swollen membranes and relieve the pressure a little.

Many doctors shy away from this simply because it only treats the symptoms, with the danger that, once the medication is stopped, the condition can rebound, sometimes worse than ever. Catarah conditions can be common among people who have mechanical defects in the nose such as a deviated septum, either congenital or from a blow.

Smoking is probably the commonest cause of catarrh. If the condition continues, you should try to find out the actual cause. It could be that simply quitting cigarettes would help. Worth trying.

BERRY'S WORLD

"CAN'T YOU TALK ABOUT ANYTHING BUT WATERGATE?"

ANDREW TULLY

Getting Caught

WASHINGTON — President John Kennedy was bidding goodbye to a White House staffer about to depart on a trumped-up "official" mission to Paris, where he had a comely girl friend.

"Oh yes, one more thing," said Kennedy cheerfully. "Don't get caught."

I reminisce in reference to the moralistic yammering by critics who unfavorably compare President Nixon's reluctant investigation of Watergate with British Prime Minister Heath's prompt action in accepting the resignation of two lords of the realm for consorting with call girls. The two situations are not to be compared.

Had Watergate entailed illicit sexual coupling, Nixon would have acted just as promptly as his British ally, simply because it is always politically safe to take a stand against boy-girl naughtiness in government. In America as in England, the public tends to take a dim view — publicly at least — of servants of the state who are revealed to have been romantically wayward. Despite Jane Fonda and "Oh Calcutta!" Puritanism still thrives on Main Street.

But Watergate involved much more than the pursuit of secret, paid-for love. The charges of subverting the electoral process extend into the highest levels of the administration and cast suspicion on the President himself. Heath's decision was easy, even though both Lord Lambton and Lord Jellicoe were privy to government secrets. Only the peers were on trial, not Heath's government.

Indeed, the Nixon regime would not now be in any considerable trouble had Messrs. Ehrlichman, Haldeman, Dean & Co. confined their after-hour activities to erotic adventures instead of trying to get their boss elected, unanimously. They would still have lost their heads, but their cases by now would be filed under Boys Will Be Boys.

As Watergate has shown, the biggest peril to government is stupidity, not extramarital sex. Lambton and Jellicoe were pretty dumb to associate with prostitutes, not because it was poor taste, but because girls for hire live in a world that often makes a fast buck out of blackmail. In Lambton's case, the duncery was compounded, by a witless ignorance which resulted in his being photographed with the women.

In any event, Heath had no choice but to throw these amiable rascals out. One was a junior defense minister, the other a Cabinet member charged with overseeing the civil service. However unfair it may seem to the two peers, Heath could not tolerate the possibility of their selling state secrets for silence. Again, there was the question of the lords' insipience. As they must have known, their political careers had been destroyed by their admissions of casual, and human, wickedness. Therefore, it passes understanding that they apparently never considered following the example of the Duke of Wellington when his mistress threatened to sell her diary and his letters. "Publish and be damned!" roared the Iron One.

Various British critics, notably the liberal Financial Times, have come to the lords' defense. The Times inveighed against "the hypocritical element in public opinion," and demanded that politicians be "allowed to keep their private and their public lives to some extent apart."

Unfortunately, that is impossible in today's nervous international atmosphere. It may be true, as many have observed, that politicians are most innocently employed when dallying with a bit of female fluff, but an uneasy public will always fear that in the rapture of the moment they may whisper classified information instead of sweet nothings into those nearby ears.

Still, the British are lucky, blast their rabbit's foot. I'd trade Watergate any day and throw in L. Patrick Gray, for a headline proclaiming that John Mitchell had been caught in flagrante delicto with a cuddly kitten named Maisie.

PAUL HARVEY

The Winner

Sen. Tom Eagleton, since he was rescued from the path of the landslide in 1972, has not been able to do anything wrong.

Tom Eagleton is the Democrat who won.

Have you been paying attention to the public utterances and the personal tending-to-business of Missouri's Sen. Eagleton?

The man Sen. George McGovern dumped because his emotional stability was in question has demonstrated every symptom of superb mental health: poise under stress, serene forgiveness and a gentle, natural sense of humor.

An insecure person in his position might be expected to divert criticism to others; on the contrary, Eagleton shows no such inclination.

At Akron University, asked about high food prices, he said, "It's been a dreadful crop season for our farmers; prices will moderate when the weather gets better."

Asked about Watergate, he replied, "All political parties spy on one another; the Republicans got caught at it." Asked about President Nixon's resumption of bombing in Indochina, Eagleton called it "disappointing."

And asked about his own personal political prospects, he laughingly replies that, whenever any party official telephoned from now on, he, Eagleton, will begin the conversation with "First, have you heard about my mental health?" The fact is that his mental health is now such a lifeless issue that nobody in either party shows any inclination to run against him for senator in 1974.

The man who was propelled from obscurity to fame by a kick in the britches less than one year ago now receives 10 times more requests for personal appearances than he can fill.

More significant than today's applause is the fact that Tom Eagleton was hospitalized three times in the 1960s for "nervous exhaustion and fatigue" — what we used to call a "nervous breakdown" — and has overcome.

The senator has to know that the one-in-ten Americans now in mental hospitals are the benefactors of his triumph.

It takes purposeful remembering to realize that just 15 years ago we did not even speak on radio such words as "retarded" or "breast surgery" or even "cancer." Courts of law associated "insanity" with "criminals"; and any mental sickness was a family shame.

During 15 days in July of 1972 the attic windows were flung open.

And in the months since, the important public attitude toward humankind's most common malady has been so altered that the new issue of the AMA's "Archives of General Psychiatry" reports: "Most former mental hospital patients now find their job wanting... their family relationships improved, the old stigma is no more."

Costly Precedent

Ford didn't have a better idea this time — Argentine revolutionaries did.

Rather than kidnap company officials and hold them for ransom, which can be a messy business — one attempt to kidnap a Ford executive failed — the Trotskyite People's Revolutionary Party hit upon the idea of extorting $1 million from the company just with the threat of kidnaping, bombing and other harassing activities.

The money, which Ford felt it had no choice but to come across with, will go to buy ambulances for hospitals and food and school supplies for slum children.

Revolutionary groups in other countries will no doubt be quick to recognize a good thing when they see it. It certainly beats going through such tedious legal processes as winning elections, establishing governments and passing laws to appropriate the assets of foreign, particularly American, businesses which, in the eyes of the revolutionaries, are the cause of all their social problems anyway.

It could become a regular thing. If Ford can afford $1 million this time, why not $2 million next time? And think of all the other companies ripe for plucking to greater or lesser degree.

Actually, the idea is not all that new. In criminal circles it's called the protection racket.

The Argentine revolutionaries have simply elevated gangsterism to a new and unprecedented height.

A Big Relief

For newsmen seeking respite from Watergate and other scandals, there's a chance to get away from it all. The management of Meramec Caverns and Onondaga Cave in Stanton and Leasburg, Mo., respectively, are offering courtesy memberships in a real "underground" press club.

It's public relations, of course, but not entirely unrelated to the subject that occupies so much journalistic attention today.

Meramec Caverns is where that arch lawbreaker — of the 1870's, Jesse James, is said to have hidden out from the minions of the law, if not the reporters of his time.

When you think of burning up fuel you just must include the airlines. It's hard to believe — but it is the truth. The 747 plane is the largest one in commercial use at the present time. At normal cruising speed it gulps more than 600 gallons of fuel every minute. What do you think of that?

The President of Standard Oil of Indiana now says the gasoline shortage will be worse in 1974 than it will be this year and worse than 1974 in 1975. Production facilities, he said, might just catch up enough so it will taper off in 1976. But the price of gas? The sky may be the limit.

A CALL

Floyd Silva of Shoshone called to tell us that a headline on page on the other day — one saying that certain things were the "firing cause" at the Youth Ranch was not really what was meant. People are dismissed, he said. Cannons and guns are fired. And we believe he is right, according to Webster.

Could Be The Big Ones Against The Little Ones

By O.A. (Gus) KELKER
Editor, Times-News

From where we sit it looks as though the little people are about to have their day, if we can paraphrase an old-time saying. What we actually mean is that in this case the "little people" are the little automobiles.

The impending change in all this big car-little car competition seems to be on the way for two reasons. First, there is a shortage of gasoline (so we are told) and second, the little cars drink less than the big cars. Probably there should also be a third reason — that is cost. This really hasn't come to any big rush as yet but there is a more than good possibility it will.

Everyone who says the way to stop the use of gasoline to any excess is to charge more for it are "cheering" for an additional tax on the stuff.

And the administration in Washington — seeing a way to cut down the inflation and provide more revenue at the same time will make the call before too long.

Just how much will another tax on gasoline raise? Well, hold onto your hat because every cent added on a gallon of gasoline is expected to return $1 billion to the federal money chest. If the tax is raised to five cents a gallon, that will be $5 billion and if it goes to 10 cents a gallon — as many are advocating — it will produce revenue in the amount of $10 billion.

What the government — and the backers of the proposed tax increase — are not saying is that it will also put a lot of tourist-related businesses out of the running and will break them.

But this, of course, is all a matter of arithmetic. The big problem is the future of auto sales in the United States. What will be the likes and dislikes of the motoring public if gasoline does go well above 50 cents a gallon even for the "regular" grade?

This is partially answered by a report just made by the Environmental Protection Agency on the gasoline mileage performance of every 1973 car model sold in the United States.

As expected — according to the official report — the figures on the 364 individual vehicles submitted by 36 manufacturers generally showed that big cars — foreign or domestic — are about twice as gasoline hungry as smaller ones.

The EPA test was designed to simulate the typical 7.3-mile urban trip. It begins with a cold-engine start-up and include the stops, starts, and periods of steady cruising the average urban driver encounters, according to EPA calculations.

The implications of the EPA test weigh heavily on the current gasoline shortage and the growing energy problem. The question of "how to curb the increasing consumption of gasoline by today's high-powered American cars?" ultimately comes back to "how to encourage Detroit to build smaller cars?" They claim records bear out that about 12 and one-half per cent of all the energy consumed in the United States is burned by Automobiles.

The EPA report points out that, as in the past, auto manufacturers are not expected to respond to these possibilities and will probably have to be pushed hard. But they also point out that with the price of gasoline above 50 cents a gallon the driving public — or at least most of them — will be crying circulating nationally and even discussed by President Nixon and termed a "step in the right direction" names names as a result.

SMALLER CARS
The report of the EPA, now

This comparison of gasoline mileage saw Datsun's 2,000-pound range lightweight models turn in the best fuel record at almost 28 miles per gallon with Toyota, in the same weight class, close behind with about 26 miles a gallon.

In the city driving conditions as listed, other cars getting better than 20 miles a gallon included (listed in declining order) Honda, Triumph Spitfire, Fiat Sport Spider, Buick Opel, Mazda, Volkswagen Beetle, Plymouth Cricket, Dodge Colt, Saab 97, Ford Capri, Vega and Pinto.

In the heavyweight class, researchers at EPA's Ann Arbor, Michigan lab found that the Ferrari Spyder gulped 6.3 miles per gallon, while, in ascending order up to about 10 miles a gallon, the Chevrolet Suburban, Ford Wagon, Lincoln-Mercury Station Wagon, Plymouth Satellite, Pontiac Catalina, Rolls Royce, Cadillac, Buick Electra, Lincoln, Oldsmobile, Toronado, Imperial,

Chrysler and the AMC Ambassador wagon all "guzzled their heavy share."

We are told that if you want the official list of the test — with all cars listed — you should write the Environmental Protection Agency in Ann Arbor.

Suggestions of what to do about the fuel shortage are in great depth but perhaps the most unique came from Hobart Towne, financial columnist for the Washington Post. He suggests that a government excise tax be put on which would penalize high horsepower. In other words, a limit on total horsepower to be produced by each auto company. They could either manufacture, say, 5,000 small horsepower autos or 2,500 high horsepower ones.

To which a New York banker answered:

"They could still be expensive. You could have a small Cadillac — still very costly and very smart to own."

The change in all this "auto talk" will not come overnight but there are not very many who doubt that it will come.

Our Rights Threatened

Editor, Times-News:

Open letter to Idaho U. S. Senators and Representatives. Local government is getting a squeeze from Federal and State Government concerning the individuals rights. Both property rights and free enterprise are being threatened.

Our group is asking you as a representative of the people of the State of Idaho, to stand up to this bureaucracy and preserve the land for private enterprise as this nation was established for. With strict, but reasonable, health, pollution, environmental, and safety laws as guidelines, what more is necessary? Of course we have problems, but is that any reason to panic and rush head on into disaster? That is exactly what is happening if those who are in office continue to be fooled, who do not take time to see what restrictions are being laid down to the private citizen.

For the past two years, our group has had to dig into its pockets to uphold the Constitution and its rights. We have had to fight our own tax dollar, provided to those politicians who feel they are "above the law." But the worst of it all, had the County officials done it legally — this County would have been deprived of even its smallest rights, because not enough of these in office took the time to see what the Articles really did have to say.

Had our County Commissioners and Prosecutor won the decision in the Supreme Court, in ANY County in the State of Idaho, would have been able to use "Police Power" to enforce restrictions according to their own personal judgement. Most frightening was they were asking for "Police Power" to break the law, IC-50124; not to enforce one. A very DANGEROUS situation for the citizens of the State of Idaho: What more would we have needed for Idaho to be a "POLICE STATE?" Now we are being threatened by those in State and Federal Government.

We have an Idaho Senate Bill 1111 being presented to the people in Idaho that comes up before the Legislature this next session. Altho' they are telling the people it will not conflict with the Local Government, the bill definitely states it does. It has the Local Government doing all the work, then if it does not meet the state approval, they have so much time to change it, and if not, the Local Government plan becomes void. It also states if ANY discrepancies exist between the two, the state will win. Restrictions there are great, to the point where land fill is not allowed without permission, and "special groups" are favored.

Many Idaho citizens, and we hope the majority, feel they do not need this type of government and the Federal Government is putting the squeeze on the States to compel them to do things their way. So far, their strong arm threats have been to make the State and Local Governments knuckle in to a form of government that "STINKS" of COMMUNISM.

Have we lost sight of all our senses, certainly enough of our blood has been split fighting this dread disease, not to have it flaunted into our faces by our own Heads of States. Show me a Country where Communism

The Mitchell Mystery

WASHINGTON — John Mitchell denied to federal investigators three weeks ago that he had any role in the 1969-70 national security wiretaps despite documentary evidence that he approved them, piling new riddles on top of the mystery over both his past and future role in the Watergate scandal.

Mitchell's denial lacks all plausible explanation. Nor is it the first time that Mitchell's denials of Watergate-connected events have been contradicted by facts which had to be known to him. Thus, investigators in both the Justice Department and the Senate wonder about the value of his future testimony, a growing doubt that could play into President Nixon's hands if Mitchell attacks him.

Agriculture Ignored

Editor, Times-News:

The Times-News of Wednesday, May 23, reported a meeting held the previous night by the League of Women Voters to acquaint the public with proposed changes in the revised Twin Falls County zoning ordinance. A brief summary of what each speaker said was given, but the name of Ralph Olmstead and the views of agriculture he presented were entirely omitted. Mr. Olmstead was just as articulate, just as intelligent, and spoke as reasonably and as well as any of the other speakers. We sincerely hope this omission of his speech was merely an oversight, and not an indication of what the Times-News thinks of agriculture.

No matter how great a metropolis you envision Twin Falls to be, the fact remains that the basic economy of the Magic Valley is agricultural, and this fact cannot be ignored.

A Times-News reporter recently asked us if the local farmer's income averages around one thousand dollars per acre. This ludicrous idea can come only from inadequate information. When farmers receive an increase in prices, this news is printed on the front page with bold-face headlines. Never is any mention made that at least 90 per cent of what the farmer receives is spent for expenses. Decreases in prices received by the farmer merit only a small item near the back of the newspaper, if they are mentioned at all. Farmers incorrectly bear the brunt of the consumers' anger for increased food prices. Never forgot the farmer is a consumer, also. The Times-News of May 27, page 23 (not on the front page, please notice), states that "Albertson's, Inc., announces sales increased 29 per cent and earnings increased 44 per cent for the quarter ending May 5."

The May 28 issue of the Times-News, page 14, tells of the $40 million expansion planned by Albertson's, Inc., which will include 25 new supermarkets and 10 Skaggs-Albertson's joint venture combination units to be opened in 1973. The only conclusions that can be drawn from this are that the consumer has plenty of money to spend and the supermarkets to make a profit, in spite of their anguished lamentations recently that they did not make profits on food. We do commend Albertson's, Inc., however, for publishing the information concerning their profit, since some of the other major food concerns do not.

Those who complain about food prices seemingly do not realize that the current trend is to build more and more houses on valuable farm land. The fertile soil of Magic Valley is a precious gift that should be left in the care of farmers who love it and not destroyed by builders of buildings.

When we have no more land to produce food, what will happen to food prices? Once the land is under cement, do not expect that cement to produce more cement for your table. We really doubt that cement chunks are either very nutritious or very palatable.

The Watergate Case

Editor, Times-News:

Concerning the Watergate case. It reminds me of two groups of small boys playing on the beach. Soon each group has sand castles built, then they get to throwing sand, knock each other's castles down, maybe throwing a few punches, one side gets the worst of it. As they run off I can just hear them holler, "We're going home and get our big brother and we'll be back, and then your guys will get it." Well, they did. The democrats got big brother — the newspapers — and they are getting the republicans.

I think the wire services are doing our president a grave injustice. It's making all of America look bad in the eyes of the world. I don't see that a little eavesdropping is all that bad. If I saw President Nixon with his ear against a door — if the door would be opened quickly you would probably find Mr. McGovern with his ear on the other side. I feel the newspapers have accused our president, tried him and found

Anti-Gun Bill

Editor, Times-News:

Your readers will be interested to learn that an anti-gun bill sponsored by Senator James McClure of Idaho has been introduced in the U. S. Senate. It is S851. Twenty-four similar bills have been introduced so far in the House, and Senator McClure's bill is one among five in the Senate.

These are particularly dangerous bills. They increase or make mandatory additional years of imprisonment for a person using or carrying a firearm in the commission of a crime. If these bills should become law, we will see more and more law-abiding citizens being arrested for protecting their property with a gun, just from the fact that a gun is used.

For instance, suppose that a burglar of — other — unsavory persons invaded your home or place of business and you were in a position to order them off your property at the point of a gun, or that it was necessary to shoot them in self defense. Under such silly laws as this you would be considered guilty of committing a crime with a gun. It states where they already have such laws, it has been the property owner who was prosecuted and given heavy sentence.

Law like this are paving the way for the federal agents who have already begun and soon will be invading your businesses, offices, and homes without search warrants, without the due process of law, and conducting unreasonable searches and seizures under the illegal and unconstitutional OSHA of 1970. We should let it be known to our Washington representation that we do not want laws like OSHA, or anti-gun bills like S851.

Deeply Concerned

Editor, Times-News:

As a native growing up in the Twin Falls area, I am deeply concerned about what is happening to our great state. As many Idahoans before me, I left to seek employment elsewhere because of the lack of economical opportunities offered in my state and the beginning of a second discovery of her potential.

I am concerned about what city, county and state governments may do to encourage new growth and exploitation of a once peaceful and tranquil place to live. I wish Idaho not to become "Californiaized" and local governments to use discretion and wise decisions when dealing with new growth. Granted, sound economical growth is necessary but beware of the end results of what it brings. As you all are well aware of the change taking place in the Sun Valley area and in our own area, may I ask these questions?
(1) Do you wish your area to become sprawling housing tracts with shopping centers acquiring great amounts of valuable farm land?

(2) Are there ways of directing city growth to the desert across the Snake River on uncultivated land?
(3) What effect will the population growth have on the agricultural industry?
(4) Does unplanned economical growth bring forth a better quality of life? Granted, good transportation via land and air facilitates economical survival but beware of overdevelopment. California should be used as an example of misguided growth and Idaho must not make the same mistakes in uncontrolled building of freeways and housing. Keep quality in Idaho! Preserve the natural resources and untouched beauty. There are few geographical areas left in the world as beautiful as Idaho.

Cattle Rustling

Editor, Times-News:

We members of the Sugarloaf Grange feel that stronger penalties should be imposed upon persons found guilty of cattle rustling. Theft of livestock has become a very serious problem causing ranchers large losses each year. Most of the Magic Valley counties are planning to hire special deputies in an attempt to reduce these losses. We feel that the money spent on this additional law enforcement will be largely wasted if stiffer penalties are not given the guilty parties. In the recent case in Twin Falls county the parties were caught red-handed butchering approximately $1,200 worth of cattle. A 120-day sentence hardly seems like a strong deterrent in keeping others from doing the same thing. If someone broke into a business establishment and stole anywhere near that value of merchandise they would undoubtedly get a much stiffer sentence. We feel that the guilty parties should have been made to give restitution for the cattle. We also feel that if a person is given a sentence for a crime he should be made to serve that sentence, not just a few days of it. Consumers are complaining about the high prices of meat. Cattle rustling further increases the cost of meat production. We strongly urge that stronger measures be taken to prevent rustling and that stiffer penalties be imposed on persons caught. 170 House members list outside income

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than a third of the members of the House — 170 out of 433 — have outside income-producing business or professional ties, the National Committee for an Effective Congress (NCEC) said Saturday.

The NCEC, a nonprofit bipartisan organization, based its information on reports submitted to the House Ethics Committee by the legislators themselves. House members are required to file reports disclosing specific financial, business and professional incomes by April 30 of each year.

The NCEC said that it was important to note that the overwhelming majority of non-freshmen congressmen have no professional or managerial business affiliations beyond their $42,500-a-year legislative salary.

"Undoubtedly, many of these men and women have conscientiously and deliberately avoided any outside relationship which gives rise to real or potential conflicts of interest, or even to the appearance of such possible conflict," the committee said.

"If this has meant financial hardship, it seems to have been more than offset by the desire to preserve the integrity of public office and to assure the freedom of independent judgment."

The NCEC did not report on the incomes of senators, claiming that "Senate disclosure requirements are so limited as to be meaningless."

State seeks clean-up rights

BOISE (UPI) — A spokesman for the Idaho Department of Environmental and Community Services Friday said the state will continue to do everything possible to gain control over stream pollution cleanup in Idaho.

A. J. Elguren, assistant administrator of DECS, says the department is concerned that the federal Environmental Protection Agency will withhold Idaho's bid to control water pollution clean-up in the state.

He said no official notice denying water discharge permit authority had been received, but news reports from the EPA Thursday indicated Idaho's application to control waste discharges into streams would be rejected.

Greek officers resign; royalists rounded up

ATHENS (UPI) — The Greek government, implementing its abolition of the monarchy, accepted the resignations of a number of ranking military officers Saturday. Opposition sources said police rounded up some royalist supporters of exiled King Constantine.

(In Rome, Constantine remained in his villa for the second day with members of the royal family and maintained his silence on Premier George Papadopoulos' announcement Friday making Greece a republic with himself as President.) Political opposition sources said royalists rounded up during the night and early Saturday included industrialist Christoforos Stratos, 49, who served as minister of the interior in a caretaker government appointed by the late King Paul in 1963. Also arrested were retired Maj. Gen. Nickolaos Fetis and former Police Commissioner Kyriakos Spyrioumis, the sources said.

A defense ministry announcement said the government accepted the resignations of Lt. Gen. Nickolaos Dambasis, second deputy commander of the army; Rear Admirals Theodoris Vanolopoulos, deputy commander of the navy, and Aristidis Yannopoulos, commander of naval logistics, and an Air Force major general.

The ministry, which gave no reason for the resignations, said the Supreme Defense Council will convene on Monday to name their replacements.

The resignations followed the arrest of at least 34 naval officers accused of taking part in an attempted coup smashed by the government 11 days ago.

Papadopoulos Friday accused the king of helping to plan the coup and said he thus displayed an "unforgivable lack of maturity."

English honor monarch; abdication hints denied

LONDON (UPI) — Britain celebrated Queen Elizabeth's 47th birthday and the 20th anniversary of her coronation Saturday with a sun-splashed panoply of military splendor. Palace officials scotched rumors she planned an early abdication in favor of her son, Prince Charles.

Huge crowds turned out in warm weather to cheer the Queen as they did for her coronation on June 2, 1953, and to watch the Trooping of the Color ceremony marking her official birthday.

As the pageant of glittering armor, clattering horses, booming drums and bearskin hats unfolded, officials at Buckingham Palace denied rumors the Queen, still radiant and revered by millions, planned an early abdication in favor of Prince Charles, 24.

"The really big occasion will be in four years time for the 25th anniversary of the queen's accession to the throne," a palace official said in explaining why no specific celebration for the coronation anniversary was planned for Saturday. "So you can take it there's nothing to the (abdication) rumors."

Elizabeth succeeded to the throne on Feb. 6, 1952, on the death of her father King George VI but was not crowned until the following year.

Fuel use high in '72

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gasoline consumption in the United States hit an all-time high of 102 billion gallons in 1972, according to an annual survey released Saturday by the American Petroleum Institute (API).

The 1972 figure of 103,615,535,000 gallons represented a 9.5 per cent increase over the 96,348,943,000 gallons consumed in 1971, and a 54.9 per cent growth over the 66,255,943,000 gallons consumed in the United States in 1962.

API said that these figures represented the amount of gasoline used for both highway and non-highway purposes in 50 states and the District of Columbia.

"Given the number of new cars being sold and the proliferation of fuel-consuming devices, unless there is a drastic change in the buying habits of American motorists, it appears that the strong demand for gasoline will continue unabated during 1973," API president Frank N. Kard said.

State fires Andrus critic

BOISE (UPI) — A welfare mother says she was "temporarily fired" by the Department of Environmental and community services this week after writing a newspaper story critical of the Andrus administration.

Pat Piraino, Boise, said she was told to remove her byline from the story or get out. She had been hired under the Federal Public Service Employment Program to do a report for DECS information office.

She said information chief Don Bybee later went to her home and gave her a letter stating she was being transferred elsewhere in government.

Bybee denied in an interview that he gave Mrs. Piraino an ultimatum to take her name off the Intermountain Observer newspaper story or leave his agency.

He admitted discussing the story with her Tuesday and said he told her he felt it "inappropriate" for a state employee to write such a story under her name criticizing the administration that had hired her.

"I felt I was fired," she said. "He asked me to retract the article or he was going to ask me to quit. I refused and at that point I felt that my employment had been terminated."

Bybee said he took the transfer letter to Mrs. Piraino's home after working hours because she had left the office during working hours.

When he arrived, Mrs. Piraino said, "I told him the memo wasn't true" and he had fired me and there was no transfer involved.

She said she is scheduled to go to work Monday in the DECS Regional Service Center in Boise.

She said she had been on and off welfare in Idaho for the past three years.

Q — In your column on carpets you said sponge rubber gives the best feel underfoot. I say sponge rubber of any weight is the poorest quality on the market and that polyurethane is the best buy. — J.A., carpet installer, Montclair, Calif.

A — You get an argument on which is the best padding. My carpet experts claim sponge rubber gives the best feel underneath the carpet if you buy at least 50 oz. weight (60 to 80 oz. is better).

Polyurethane padding had problems when it was first introduced. It tended to break down. It's much better now but it still compresses more than sponge rubber. If you do buy polyurethane padding, the General Services Administration says it should be at least 3/4 in. thick.

Looking at other types, felt padding (hair and jute mixtures) is good for heavy-wear areas but may tend to mildew if exposed to wetness. Rubber padding is made up of latex foam or sponge rubber. Latex foam breaks down faster than sponge rubber.

Q — To whom do I report discrimination in regard to my job? — Ms. M.L.T., Parsippany, N.J.

A — If it's discrimination in pay, the nearest office of the U.S. Department of Labor can help (to be found in the phone book under U.S. Government in most major cities).

If it's based on religion, race, creed, sex or age, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission should know about it. If you can't find an EEOC office listed locally, write: Office of Compliance; Equal Employment Opportunity Commission; 1800 G St., N.W.; Washington, D. C. 20506.

Q — What causes terry cloth to fray when washed and dried? — Ms. R.V.H., St. Paul, Minn.

A — Professional launderers say terry cloth is particularly susceptible to fraying. When you buy terry cloth products be sure to look closely at seams and ridges. Make sure there are no raw edges and avoid insufficient machine stitching on the edges. Make sure the edge stitching is fairly wide so it will be strong enough.

Are you mixing other pieces of clothing with hooks or buckles in your wash? These can catch on the terry cloth pile. Make sure your washer has no rough spots inside and that you're not using too hot water or too much bleach.

Q — My concrete driveway needs resurfacing. I'd like to cover it with asphalt. Where can I get reliable information? — J.E.K., Fairview Heights, Ill.

A — Beware of the itinerant asphalt peddlers. They may not even use asphalt, using some oily substance instead. These peddlers claim they just finished a driveway down the street, have some extra material left over and will do your driveway cheap. These jobs won't last the year.

Find someone in your county or state road maintenance department to suggest the kind of surfacing that works best in your area. Asphalt is usually less expensive but with labor costs varying widely it may not be the best bargain. Get an estimate from several contractors before you decide.

Value added

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A study by University of Nevada professors showed that a home swimming pool may fully recover its initial cost and continue to appreciate in value each year, adding to the price of the home when sold.

The study was conducted by Dr. Lorne H. Seidman, chairman of the finance department, and Dr. Bernard Malamud, an associate professor of economics. It showed a pool added $5,044 to the resale value of the home.

32-year-old bachelor pays $6,000 for one bottle of 1929 wine

ATLANTA (UPI) — Richard Kronhelm, a man with expensive tastes, is the new owner of a $6,000 bottle of wine.

Kronhelm, a Washington, D. C. liquor distributor, was the highest bidder Thursday in the Premiere National Auction of Rare Wines. Over a quarter of a million dollars of wine changed hands in the prestige wine event of the year.

The 32-year-old bachelor was the high bidder on a reboobam—a bottle six times the normal size—of 1929 Chateau Mouton Rothschild, a red Bordeaux described as "the best claret anyone can drink today." A reboobam—five times the normal size—of the same wine sold last year in Paris for $11,000.

Kronhelm said he doesn't know when he will open the bottle, which will produce 24 glasses of wine at $250 apiece.

The tastes of Lawrence E. Broxley were more expensive than Kronhelm's, but he bought a more modest quantity. Broxley, of Newport Beach, Calif., paid $800 for a 12 ounce bottle of 1727 vintage Rudesheimer Apostelwein, the oldest German wine in existence.

Broxley submitted a sealed bid of $1,200 for the 248-year-old Rhine wine, but everyone else dropped out when the figure reached $800.

Six hundred persons—200 at the auction and 400 who bid by mail—vied for the 30,000 bottles of rare wine.

Five persons besides Kronhelm went home with over $6,000 in purchases. Carl Fazio, a collector from Cleveland, Ohio, spent $14,165. New York liquor merchant Leonard Levine bought over $11,000 in rare wines.

Claro G. Millor, of Tulsa, Okla., who described himself as "a consumer," bought $8,540 in rare wines. Atlanta wine merchant Frank Stone was high bidder on wines worth $7,010; and John Neat, who is in the fried chicken business in Columbia, Tenn. paid $6,149 for his wine purchases.

Tourists 'ungreeted' in Oregon

New officers

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — On the outside, the card reads: "Tain Lawson McCall, governor, on behalf of the citizens of the great state of Oregon, cordially invites you to visit ..."

Opened, it continues: "... Washington or California or Idaho or Nevada or Afghanistan."

It's called an "ungreeting card," and it's the latest effort in a campaign started by McCall to keep his state from being overrun by outsiders.

The card, which sells for 35 cents, is the brainchild of two Eugene men which "started out as a fun thing," said one of them, "and has taken off like a wild fire."

a Eugene drugstore April 2. They sold out immediately. They also sent the first set, which consists of a dozen cards and envelopes, to the governor.

Ron Schmidt, the governor's assistant, told Beeson that McCall "just howled."

After two months on the market, the cards are now sold by almost every large chain store in Oregon and hundreds of small stores. Beeson said the second printing order was for 48,000 cards and now those have run out.

"We're having a little fun with the tourists. It's about time we injected a little humor into a serious situation," he said. "But it's pretty hard to throw a left hook while you're laughing."

Beeson said Oregonians tend to agree with the gags, but describes natives "as really a friendly people—just a quiet Texan."

Another card reads: "The population of Oregon is approximately 2,000,000 umbrellas ... (open card) and 4,000,000 wet feet."

Beeson said he has received between 400 and 500 letters in response to the cards.

Chinese leaders seem confident

HONG KONG (UPI) — The surface political calm in China obscures "a number of crucial uncertainties," according to an analysis prepared by western diplomatic sources specializing in Chinese affairs.

The most crucial uncertainty is the extent of support Premier Chou En-Lai and the other members of the working leadership currently have from Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-Tung, the report said.

Curiously, the report said, Mao has adopted an "ambiguous" position in the campaign to denounce Lin Biao, his former heir apparent who died 10 months ago in an alleged plot to assassinate the chairman and seize power.

The present Chinese leadership gives every appearance of self confidence and current policies at home and abroad seem set for a relatively untroubled run for the foreseeable future," the report said.

"This atmosphere of orderly progress and confidence tends to obscure the fact that a number of crucial uncertainties persist, notable the lack of an authorized top party leadership at the center and the failure to fill top army vacancies."

"Various reasons for this state of affairs can be produced. Unwillingness to rush for hasty solutions to sensitive issues and so upset the delicate balance among the different factions is probably one," the report said.

"Another key factor in the equation must be the attitude of Chairman Mao himself, and this is by no means clear. Apart from regularly receiving important foreign visitors Mao has been a very much more withdrawn figure since 1971. It could be that his attitude toward the present leadership and the purge of his former heir apparent, Lin Biao, is ambiguous.

"He is not on record saying or writing anything that is definitely against Lin. He has made no public appearances on the Tienanmen rostrum or in Peking's parks show his personal support for the present leadership, particularly for Premier Chou En-Lai."

"This is in sharp contrast to Mao's previous behavior which was calculated to show definite hostility toward (deposed president) Liu Shao-Chi and apparent approval of Lin Biao."

The report said there were many opportunities for Mao to give some public show of support and many reasons have been advanced to explain his failure to do so.

"However, there is one possibility which cannot be categorically ruled out. This may be an attitude chosen by Mao—to inter his coolness toward the present leadership in China. If there were a will or the part of Mao to show his warmth, there are plenty of ways he could do so."

Three major fault systems slice across the San Francisco Bay region—the San Andreas, Hayward and Calaveras.

The report expressed some skepticism about the official tales from Peking about the Lin plot and what he was trying to do when he died in September 1971.

"If Lin Biao's crimes really were as great as they are now alleged to be, and if he really did plot to assassinate Mao, it seems odd that Mao should show himself as being so relatively lukewarm in the campaign against Lin.

Merry Pet

Linda Merry, DVM

Question: I hope you won't think this is silly but I want some advice on goldfish. I have a beautiful big brandy snifter that I would like to use as an aquarium.

Answer: Gold fish are beautiful in a brandy snifter but a good rule of thumb is one inch of fish to one gallon of water in a tank. The snifter had better be designed for heavy drinkers!

Question: Our dog is going to have pups soon. It is the first time we've ever had a dog in this condition and we'd like to know what to watch for, how long it will take, etc. We will appreciate anything you can tell us.

Answer: The family usually arrives 58-63 days after the honeymoon. You should have a box ready and start watching the week before the due date. A drop in temperature (as low as 98 degrees) is often the first sign of labor. The dog becomes uneasy and restless she may pant and wear an anxious expression. She'll look for a dark spot (hopefully the lax you've fixed) and begin arranging and rearranging the bedding into a nest.

This activity may continue for 12 to 24 hours before true labor begins.

True labor is characterized by hard, purposeful straining that should produce the first puppy within two hours. After that, puppies should follow one another along every 15 minutes to an hour.

Each puppy will have its own bag or placenta and these will usually be passed with the puppy or soon after. Don't be worried if the sac breaks before the puppy is delivered unless the delivery takes over an hour.

In that case, the dog is in trouble and you should consult your veterinarian. The mother dog will usually clean the puppy off and eat the placenta.

There is little that you'll have to do but you should be near to lend moral support, clean a puppy off if mother is too slow or dial the phone if veterinary assistance is needed.

When everyone has arrived it is a good idea to take the family to the veterinarian. He'll make certain all the pups have indeed been delivered and are healthy, that the uterus is resuming its normal shape, and that the mother will have enough milk for all the youngsters.

If you have a question about your pet, send it to The Merry Pet column in care of the Times-News.

Silversmith named first lady general

BRIG. GEN. HOLM
... flies bomber

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Twenty-five years ago Jeanne M. Holm decided to re-enter the service because she was broke and "had nothing to do." Today she is the first lady two-star general in U.S. military history.

The pert blonde was receiving her two silver stars as an Air Force major general today at a Pentagon ceremony. General Holm was a silversmith before World War II brought her into the Army. After the war she went back home to Portland, Ore., and entered Lewis and Clark College. Then during the 1948 Berlin crisis she was asked to return to the service.

"I was between semesters, had nothing to do anyway and was flat broke," she recalled. "So I went." She has been in the Air Force ever since although she returned to college in 1957 to finish her B.A.

General Holm brought women's lib to the Air Force. She ended the practice of recruiting women only as stenographers and clerks. She began a drive to seek out women to repair radar and missiles and to become civil engineers and gunsmiths.

"We are going to insist on breaking women out of these cultural patterns," she said. Women are excluded by law, however, from becoming combat pilots and navigators. The Air Force won't let them hold non-combat flying jobs either, because flyers are rotated between combat and non-combat assignments.

A few years ago General Holm supported the combat exclusion, saying, "I don't think our culture is ready for women as combatants." But questioned earlier this year, she dodged the issue saying, "Culturally, we don't know the answer to that question."

"I don't think that women and men should be treated exactly alike," she said on another occasion. "But the differences should be those that are legitimate, not those based on myth and cliché."

Miss Holm turns 52 in three weeks but looks decades younger as she patters around her cabin-cruiser-in-bermuda shorts or skis in Vail, Colo.

In 1965 Miss Holm was named director of Women in the Air Force (WAF). The staff side then amounted to only 0.7 per cent of the Air Force. In five more years it is scheduled to be about 7 per cent.

Baby undergoes surgery in Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — A 3-month-old American baby girl with a rare bile duct defect underwent five and a half hours of surgery here Friday and was reported resting in satisfactory condition at Juntendo University Hospital.

Josephine Hanasko, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hanasko of New York, is the fifth American baby in the last four months to be operated on by Dr. Kenjiro Suruga, chief of the Department of Pediatric Surgery at Juntendo. Suruga is the only known doctor to have developed a surgical technique for the defect that employs an electron microscope during the operation.

Josephine suffered from biliary atresia, the absence or constriction of the ducts which carry bile from the liver to the large intestine. If surgery is not performed within three months after birth the disease usually results in fatal damage to the liver due to backed-up bile.

Mrs. Hanasko stood by outside the operating room during the lengthy surgery on her tiny daughter.

Earlier this week, Suruga operated on 3-month-old Richard Martino Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Martino of Cicero, Ill. Richard, still in the hospital here, is in excellent condition.

Suruga will perform surgery next week on a 3-month-old baby boy, Joseph Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith of Detroit.

TF county to use youth employes

TWIN FALLS — At least one Twin Falls County department will be participating in a Summer Youth Public Employment Program.

Ed Woods, zoning administrator for the county, said he will hire three youths this summer under the federal program designed to provide jobs for high-school age youths and veterans.

He said the state has received $446,000 to fund the program and has given Twin Falls County 46 job positions to be filled by the young workers.

Woods said he believes it is the most worthwhile program the federal government has introduced in some time.

Youths are offered jobs in three basic categories. They include disadvantaged youth between the ages of 14 and 22; veterans under the age of 29; and all other youth between the ages of 14 and 22.

The government will pay them $1.62 per hour with the entire cost of their salaries coming from Summer Youth Public Employment funds.

Woods said the program is open to participation by tax supported agencies and gives those agencies an opportunity to obtain help during busy summer months which their budgets could not otherwise afford. It also provides jobs for a number of youth who would otherwise be unemployed. Each employe will be allowed a maximum of 234 hours work during the summer months.

Those approved for the zoning office will be helping clean and beautify county parks and other public grounds and buildings and handling numerous small chores, Woods said.

Youth interested in the programs should contact the state employment agencies in their areas and public agencies needing the service of such youth may also contact their employment offices.

Reading plan

SHOSHONE — A summer reading program at the Shoshone city library will begin Monday and run through Aug. 10.

Mrs. Marx Nielsen, librarian, said all readers below the seventh grade are invited to participate.

At the request of teachers of the school, the library will give free reading privileges to children living outside the city as long as they join the summer-reading club, Mrs. Nielsen said.

Title of the program this year is "The Rockhound," and prizes of polished stones will be given for books read, if possible.

June 27 hearing set on TF pornography case

BOISE (UPI) — Federal Judge Ray McNichols tentatively has set June 27 for hearing a Twin Falls pornography case in which Idaho's moral nuisance abatement law is being challenged.

At the same time, Judge McNichols held that a state district court restraining order should remain in effect pending litigation of the case.

Prosecutor Robert Galley brought civil action against operators of the Twin Falls branch of the Tussy Cat Adult Book Store to halt sale of what he considers hard core pornography. He said he brought civil action rather than criminal action because he did not want to make daily arrests under a criminal suit.

Fifth District Judge Theron Ward May 4 ordered a halt to sales of books and materials classified as "hard core pornography."

Operators of the store turned to the federal court, challenging constitutionality of the abatement statute.

Byron Johnson, Boise attorney for the store, argued that the moral nuisance abatement law is designed only to close down "houses of ill fame and gambling establishments."

He said the law, based on a territorial statute enacted in 1860, in this case is "too vague to be enforceable."

"It is a ludicrous application of the act," Johnson said, adding that Ward's order was vague and "should have itemized the material prohibited from sale."

Middle Fork reaches crest

SALMON — The Middle Fork of the Salmon River may have already reached its high mark for the season.

The stream peaked at 5.70 feet May 19 at Thomas Creek.

The river has dropped since then but is predicted to go back to 5.3 feet by Saturday then begin dropping again.

Two feet and below is considered hazardous river floating condition from Dagger Falls to Indian Creek on the upper river because of low water. Two feet to five feet is considered normal hazard for the entire river.

The river is considered always hazardous but safest floating is in the two to five foot range. From 3.1 to 4.5 feet the river is considered extremely hazardous and above 6.5 feet is considered "suicidal."

Middle Fork Lodge reports river readings to the National Weather Service in Boise.

Jerome hospital chosen for grant

BY CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News Writer
JEROME — St. Benedict's Hospital has been selected as one of 30 hospitals in the United States to receive a W. K. Kellogg Foundation grant.

The hospital will receive $15,300 over a three year period from the foundation, Battle Creek, Mich., to conduct a demonstration project involving innovative approaches to in-service education and training for hospital personnel.

The project is part of a larger program under way by the Kellogg Foundation to study a variety of organizational models for hospital education and training, according to Leon Felder, hospital administrator.

The project is being administered by the Hospital

Research and Educational Trust, an affiliate of the American Hospital Association, Chicago.

This group will monitor and analyze data from each of the demonstration projects and the findings will be disseminated to the entire health care field.

The demonstration project at St. Benedict's hospital will be carried out over a three-year period and be under the direction of Ruby Crosby. The project director will be Dolores Hansen, R. N. Felder said the educational program would benefit the community by improving the hospital's work force and insuring the continued availability of high quality patient care.

He explained that the demonstration project consists of first assessing the education and training needs of each department, then following up this survey with the indicated education or training.

"We need to develop both an orientation plan for all new employees and an in-service program to increase staff effectiveness and potential for promotion, provide professional training of unskilled workers where needed, and develop a continuing educational program in leadership and management.

This also will include community health education such as emergency ambulance drivers course, resuscitation and health. Maintenance programs, such as prevention of heart disease, home and child safety and health career possibilities are also planned," Felder said.

Sheep killed

SALMON — A bear maulled to death three ewes and three lambs at the Hoyd Andrews ranch up Sandy Creek and efforts to track the animal failed.

The sheep were in a small lot next to the Andrews house. The bear apparently got in during the night of May 24 while it was raining. The sheep were discovered the next morning along with bear tracks.

NEW ACTIVITIES this year in the Twin Falls Recreation Department summer program are discussed by leaders Connie Lewis, in charge of girls' gymnastics; Robert Donnelley, directing outdoor living activities, and Paul Epperson who plans to add a Babe Ruth baseball league program.

Discuss programs

TF plans new summer projects

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — Several new programs will be featured in the Twin Falls city recreation department summer program this year.

Chad Browning, director, said the department will add a gymnastics program and a new outdoor living skills program this year. In addition something new in the baseball program for older children has been adopted in the Babe Ruth program.

Registration for several programs will begin Monday, including the tennis instruction program, handball play, and the outdoor living program.

The gymnastics program, under the direction of Connie Lewis, will be held June 18 through 29 with sessions from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the high school gymnasium.

Girls will be working out on parallel bars, trampoline, uneven bars and balance beam. There will also be a trampoline and horse for workouts with tumbling warmups each day.

Also new this year will be the junior high school girls drill team. Girls of the seventh, eighth and ninth grades will be given drill team instruction June 11 through 22 at 10 a.m. in the high school gymnasium.

Dawn Thomas and Valle Swafford will be in charge of the drill team program.

Robert Donnelley will direct the outdoor living skills program. This will include training for camping, hiking and back packing. Persons aged ten or above may enroll. Children under 10 may enroll if their parents participate.

Donnelley said families are encouraged to join the program.

In addition to information on how to prepare for back packing and camping or hiking, the program covers such sidelights as fishing, photography, first aid and general outdoor safety practices.

Donnelley said the program will be held July 9 - 13 in the high school gymnasium from 9 to 11 a.m. Hikes and camping will also be practiced by the group in areas outside the city.

New baseball programs for children 13-15 years of age will begin this summer through the Babe Ruth League. Paul Epperson, director of baseball, said this is a more sophisticated program designed to encourage interest in the older children, many of whom have left the baseball programs in the past few seasons.

The eight teams which have been formed will play with teams from Buhl and Castleford and all games will be at night in the Jaycee baseball stadium.

"Boys joining the program will be committing themselves to the responsibility of the League program," Epperson said.

Uniforms will be furnished by the city. Teams will work out and practice for the games as league players do. Boys in the program must participate in all or nearly all games rather than on occasions when they feel like playing, Epperson said.

A regular baseball draft was held to place boys on the various teams. League play begins June 11 and will continue through the summer.

In addition to the regular knothole teams and game schedules, other events in the summer recreation program include the usual playground activities which begin June 12

Cattle slaughtered

SALMON — Officers here are checking into a report that six head of beef were found slaughtered in the Black Rock area northwest of Salmon.

Jed Wilson, deputy sheriff, said a search Wednesday failed to turn up any trace of the animals.

The officer said that Ken

Whitney, Salmon, advised the Idaho Fish and Game Department that he had run across remains of six animals while horseback riding in the area Tuesday.

Whitney was out of town but officers hope to revisit the area when he returns to check out the report.

Planned burn scheduled

SHOSHONE — Plans to burn about 2,400 acres of cheatgrass covered range-land, six miles southeast of Shoshone, are announced by O'dell Frandsen, manager of the Shoshone office, BLM.

Frandsen said the burning is scheduled for this week. The purpose of the burn is to eliminate existing cheatgrass cover and to prepare the seed bed for reseeding next fall, he said.

The establishment of desirable, perennial vegetation will reduce the high occurrence of future wild fires in the area, protect the soil from wind erosion and provide more available forage for wildlife and livestock, Frandsen said.

Summer school begins

BUHL — The Buhl Migrant Summer school program will begin at 8 a.m. Monday at the Buhl Elementary School.

The program will offer classes in mathematics, language arts, science, social studies and health, arts and crafts, music and physical education including motor preception and swimming. All children between 5 and 14 are urged to attend. The classes will be kindergarten, primary and intermediate levels. A lunch will be furnished at noon as well as a mid-morning and mid-afternoon snack.

If enough interest is shown there will be evening classes for those students 15 years of age and older.

Anyone knowing of a Mexican-American family in the community is asked to call the elementary school at 543-5250.

Buhl Grange fete set

BUHL — Members of the Fairview Grange will celebrate the 30th anniversary of the grange founding at 8 p.m. Monday at the Fairview Grange Hall.

Fairview grange, organized by State Master W. W. Deal and William Chambers, deputy, was the first grange organized in this area. Of the 60 charter members two are still active, Anton Suhan, Buhl, and Mrs. Edith Everson, Spokane, Wash.

The evening will feature a program and a tea table and anniversary cake. Mrs. Rudolph Peterson is general chairman for the event.

All former Fairview grange members are especially invited to attend as well members from other granges in the area.

Recommendation on land use set for June 7 meet

TWIN FALLS — Recommendations of the Bureau of Land Management for a comprehensive land use plan of Natural Resource Lands in Twin Falls County will be heard here Thursday night.

BLM officials have called a meeting for 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Room 117 of the Shields Building, College of Southern Idaho, to which the public is invited.

At this time, Nick Cozakos, district manager of the BLM office in Burley, will present comment on plans for use of the resource lands, formulated following public hearings and resource studies. Committee and public meetings have been held, he said, to review data, provide information available and the BLM has now prepared recommendations based on this data to be introduced and discussed Thursday night.

Following the meeting, a decision will be made regarding the present and future management of all of these lands. All users of natural resource lands or other interested persons are urged to attend the meeting.

Among lands to be discussed and included in the comprehensive plan are a number of parcels bordering the Snake River Canyon.

In a meeting in Jerome during the past week O'Dell

Frandsen, district manager in the Shoshone BLM office, outlined the Canyon Planning Unit program. He said the area covered involves the canyon area from Milner to Bliss, most of the land involved being privately owned. About 35,000 acres or 11 per cent of the unit involves natural resource lands. Of these, 6,650 acres are isolated small tracts.

Both Jerome and Gooding counties are involved, Frandsen said, with a high recreation potential on much of it. Some 1,300 acres of natural resource land near Vineyard Lake has been classified for federal ownership under the classification of multiple use.

During the Jerome meeting, it was explained much of the natural resource lands involved are now used for livestock grazing. Some 24 ranchers are now permitted to graze cattle or sheep on the lands during summer months under BLM management.

Frandsen said about 5,700 animal unit months of forage are sold to sheep and cattle owners annually.

Other resources include sand gravel and borrow materials, used for highway construction. About 4-million cubic yards of this material has been produced. In addition oil and gas leading applications have been received by the BLM on 4,200 acres within the unit.

Gary Hansen, BLM, Shoshone, said, one major conflict area is the Perrine Bridge region adjacent to Snake River north of Twin Falls and the vicinity of Interstate 80 and U.S. Highway 93 junction where commercial, light industry, regional airport and even residential uses are sought.

Claude Bernard, chairman of the Jerome County Commissioners, questioned the BLM policy of selling public land or leasing it to private concerns. He said county officials should be informed and given an opportunity to voice opinions on zoning and other regulations before such action is taken.

Some recommendations submitted during the meeting included restriction of firearms along the canyon rim; retention of the area along the rim in its present state; restricting areas to sand and gravel removal; retaining more water in Wilson Lake to improve fisheries and increase recreational aspects; restricting cattle along nesting areas for waterfowl; retaining Box Canyon in its natural state; limiting off-road vehicles to certain areas where damage will be slight; and leaving small tracts of natural resource lands isolated within large tracts of agricultural land.

Blaine school actions said of no legal effect

KETCHUM — Two Ketchum attorneys said Friday that all actions taken by the Blaine County School Board regarding Sam Hazard's employment are "of no legal effect."

The statement is enclosed in a letter to Ronda Hunt, chairman of the board of trustees, written by E. Lee Schlender and Willis Benjamin, who serve as attorneys for Hazard and a citizens group in support of Hazard.

The school voted three to one May 11 not to rehire Hazard as principal of the Ernest Hemingway Elementary School, Ketchum, for the coming year. The board reaffirmed their position in a special, executive meeting May 23.

The letter states, "We consider without question that the vote taken May 14 . . . to be null and void since a member of the board was not 'officially' a member of the board due to the fact he was not sworn to public office."

Concerning the May 23 meeting, the letter states that any rule, resolution or regulation voted upon was "null and void" because the meeting was not declared public pursuant to Idaho Code 33-510.

The letter further states, "It is our position that the board took overt actions in renewing Mr. Hazard's contract for employment for the year of 1973-1974 by requesting authorization from the State Board of Education, that he be authorized to teach and serve as Hemingway's principal for . . . (that school year), pursuant to the letter sent by Mr. Ray Jefferson, the county superintendent."

Notifying the board that the Hazard matter is still pending, the letter states that any actions taken by the board by either communicating with the Department of Education or with prospective applicants for the principal position are "highly irregular" and "in any event, subject to ratification or rescission at the annual meeting of the electors of the school district to be held June 11."

The letter states, "as a deliberative assembly, the electors at the June meeting can, and we assume will, exercise their right to issue directives to the board which will have significant bearing upon the employment of Mr. Hazard."

Sen. McClure tours Snake canyon

Box Canyon, a small dead-end canyon which joins Snake River Canyon near Sand Springs, is a point of special interest, being considered Springs which begin near the head of the canyon flow into the Snake River through a scenic area, creating a number of falls along the way.

Of concern to local residents working for the park designation is the current development in that canyon including a road, small-dam and installations to cap part of the spring water for trout farm purposes.

McClure said it is too early to say if all of the canyon area should be proposed for park designation or if, as originally proposed, several specific features such as the fossil beds,

Box Canyon and Thousand Springs should be set aside for park designation.

"As a national park with a 'cultural park' designation we are looking at the region in an entirely new concept," McClure said, "and therefore have no established guidelines to follow."

He said many beautiful ranches such as Sand Springs Ranch where his party headquartered Saturday, would be retained as they now are to become a part of the natural beauty of the area. Some of the scenic-trout farm installations and hatcheries would also have tourist appeal on a scenic tour route, he added.

As for interim action to stop further development, McClure said little can be done where private land is involved and most of the development such as construction for new trout farms is taking place on private land on which water rights have been established for some time or are being granted in accordance with water laws. Box Canyon privately owned land was purchased from Idaho Power Co.

If designated for national park status, the area would become Idaho's first such park.

Idaho Power Co. has indicated a possibility of removing their Thousand Springs power plant as it now stands, and restoring the scenic falls to the original status. Many residents of the Hagerman Valley region are urging this action and hope it will be followed up with legislation for a national park. At the Sand Springs ranch McClure and his party were greeted by ranch managers, Mr. and Mrs. Gorry Gahrke and by ranch owners, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Clare, Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich Bowler, Bliss.

Much of the land in the area is Bureau of Land Management administered. Participating in the tour with the senator were Don Sweep, chief of resource management, Shoshone BLM office; Mike Phillips, assistant area manager in charge of the Bennett Hills Resource area; O'Dell Frandsen, district manager, Shoshone, and Clair Whitlock, assistant director of the BLM for Idaho. Jim Goffler and Jim Norrell of the senator's staff, also attended.

Indian remains moved

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Skeletons of 147 Nez Perce Indians have been reburied under an agreement between the Army Corps of Engineers, the Nez Perce tribe and the University of Idaho.

The bodies, threatened either by flooding or construction, were reburied at Spalding, headquarters of the tribe.

Dr. Roderick Sprague, head of the university's Department of Sociology and Anthropology, said the remains were taken from lands which will be inundated by lower Granite Dam on the Snake River or from areas where construction or railroad relocation would disturb them.

Sprague said, under an agreement with the tribe, the university studied the remains before reburial.

He said as a result of the studies, the university has been able to give the tribe much more information about its history and burial customs.

Sprague said the project is still underway and another 50 skeletons taken from Wilma Bar located on the Washington side of the Snake River, downstream from the confluence with the Clearwater, were currently being analyzed.

He said they should be ready for reburial by next fall.

Windmills energy source

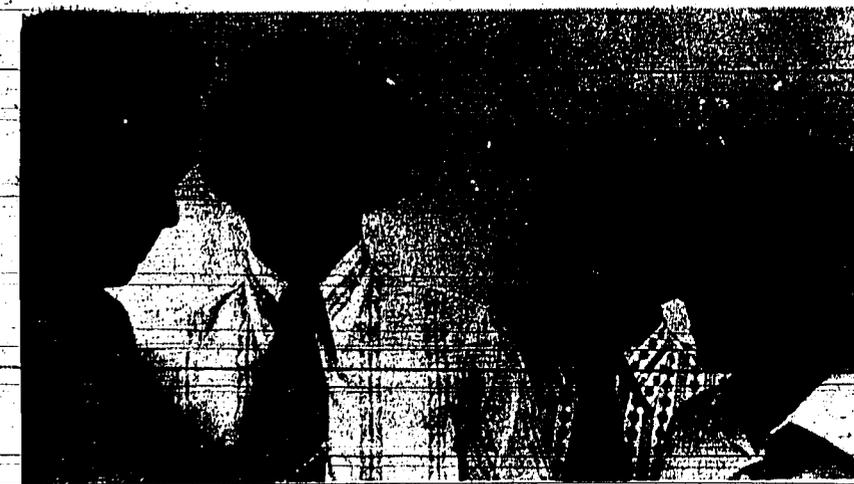

NEW YORK (UPI) — A scientist says wind carries enough energy to provide half the country's electrical power, and he is examining the possibility of building 100,000 windmills to make use of that energy.

The scientist, Frank Rom of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said in an interview printed in the June issue of Intellectual Digest, "What we're doing now is designing windmills—or wind generators—that are efficient and operate at low cost. We plan to construct some for trial."

He said, "Studies show that there is plenty of energy in the wind—enough in the Western Plains, for example, to supply about half the electrical power for the entire United States."

Romance cool

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The arranged marriage between Ling-Ling and Hsing-Hsing, two giant pandas given by China to the United States last year, is making slow progress.

"The male is too young, but I promise you that within six months it will be a great romance," says Dr. Theodore Reed, director of the National Zoo. His remark, made to a visiting Chinese journalist, was reported Thursday at a State Department reception for visiting newsmen.

'Honest mistake' costs

VALDOSTA, Ga. (UPI) — An "honest mistake" in a newspaper advertisement proved beneficial to about 25 customers of a Sears department store, including one enterprising Valdosta State College student.

The store inadvertently listed a 19-inch color television set on sale for $98 dollars. Store Manager W. R. Williams said of 100 inquiries about 25 persons refused to accept his explanation that the ad meant a black and white TV set.

One of the customers was Stan Kalen, a college student, who bought four of the $280 color models at the listed $98 price. He said he sold them for $250 and bought a motorcycle. Asked if he felt bad about capitalizing on the mistake, Kalen said, "No, the American consumer gets ripped off all the time anyway."

Drama award to Filerite

FILER — Connie Allen has received a trustees' tuition scholarship in drama at the College of Southern Idaho.

She also received a scholarship from the LDS Institute at CSI. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Allen, Filer. While attending Filer High School she was active in drill team, drama, declamation, Future Nurses Club and was on the yearbook staff.

She was named basketball queen.

Anti-abortion law introduced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An anti-abortion amendment to the U.S. Constitution, co-sponsored by Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, would give unborn children full rights as persons, regardless of the stage of pregnancy.

Bennett and six other senators introduced the amendment this week.

"This amendment is the only way Congress can restore the traditional concern for protection of the unborn and the abortion statutes of the states which were invalidated by the Supreme Court," the Utah Republican said.

A U.S. Supreme Court decision this year ruled that a woman had the right to an abortion until the sixth month of pregnancy without interference by the states.

The amendment would give the unborn full rights as persons "at every stage of their biological development, irrespective of age, health, function or condition of dependency."

However, the amendment contains provisions for abortions in emergency cases where there is a genuine risk that the mother's life is in danger.

Gem racing panel scores turf club

BOISE (UPI) — Minutes of a May 8 executive session show the Idaho Horse Racing Commission is critical of the Coeur d'Alene Turf club in northern Idaho.

The criticism came for Thursday when an Assistant Attorney General, James Reid, said the commission has the right to hold closed executive sessions but that the records of such proceedings must be open.

Although the minutes were opened to public scrutiny there was some question about their accuracy.

Commissioner Kenneth Malone, Eagle, refused to sign some of the records, saying "some of the are incorrect."

These included written records of meetings held Feb. 23, March 5, March 14, March 21, March 28, April 13, May 8 and May 11.

Normal procedures require all three commissioners as well as the racing secretary to sign the records to ensure accuracy of the official proceedings.

Malone, Clahr, commissioner, and Jerry Harrington, racing secretary, signed the minutes of those meetings, saying they were correct. Malone would not elaborate on his reasons for not signing them.

According to minutes of the Klahr, felt the Coeur d'Alene track and facilities are in terrible shape. Father Harlin felt the security at Coeur d'Alene must be improved.

Comment asked on 'target price'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash Thursday called for public comment on the "target price concept" for farm commodities and other provisions proposed for incorporation in legislation modifying and extending the Agricultural Act of 1970.

Foley, chairman of the House agriculture subcommittee on livestock and grain which is attempting to develop the target price concept as part of the proposed measure, said the subcommittee is anxious to hear from farm organizations as well as individuals.

"The idea of fixing a target price to be maintained on farm commodities was incorporated in the Senate committee bill and is expected to be voted upon soon, by that body," Foley said.

He said the House bill proposed so far is essentially the same as the Senate version.

Farm prices up; 4% boost in May

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department's monthly report on farm prices shows that average prices increased 4 per cent in the month ending May 15.

The report, released Thursday, said prices were 33 per cent above a year earlier and that the increase was due mainly to rising prices for soybeans, cattle, cotton, corn and potatoes.

The report is often a barometer of future trends in retail food costs.

Farm prices, on the rise for six months, reached an all-time record in March and then declined 1.5 per cent in mid-April.

The price index for meat animals increased 2 per cent during the month. Prices for all meat animals except sheep and lambs were above a month earlier.

Beef cattle prices averaged $43.50 per hundredweight — $1.10 above last month and only 10 cents below the record high set in March. Hog prices were at $35.20 per hundred weight, or 10 cents above last month.

Led by a 19 per cent per bushel increase in corn prices, the food grain and hay index was up 11 per cent from mid-April. Corn drew $1.61 per bushel and was at its highest level in over 20 years. Soybeans drew $8.27 dollars per bushel, compared with $6.14 in April and $6.05 in March.

The potato, sweet potato and dry bean index during the month increased 17 per cent, primarily because of higher prices for potatoes.

The index for commercial vegetables decreased 7 per cent, however, largely because of lower onion prices.

The report also showed an increase of 2 per cent in costs to farmers during the month and a 14 per cent rise over a year ago. This left prices at 85 per cent of the traditional "fair earning power" parity standard compared with 83 per cent a month ago and 73 per cent a year ago.

Average mid-May prices for some other leading commodities, compared with month-ago and year-ago levels, included:

Live chickens, excluding boilers, drew 15.4 cents per pound, compared with 13.6 and 8.8; eggs cost 45.0 cents per dozen, compared with 46.9 and 47.1; milk was at $6.34 per hundredweight, compared with $6.40 and $5.79.

Housewives called key to reduced meat prices

CHICAGO (UPI) — Agricultural economists tend to doubt that the government can do much to achieve a major drop in meat prices in the near future.

The only one who can do that, they say, is the housewife.

Lawrence H. Smierl and J. William Uhrig, professors of agricultural economics at the University of Illinois and Purdue University respectively, noted up some of the odds.

"There will be a million more cattle to be slaughtered this year than last year," Smierl said, "but there's been a 1 per cent increase in population, a 1 1/2 per cent increase in the population of meat-eating age, 4 per cent more people are employed and wage rates are up 7 per cent."

"There are 13 million people getting food stamps, twice what it was two or three years ago. And they don't buy the cheap cuts. They buy pretty good food."

"Prices aren't going to come down quickly unless consumers are willing to cut spending 10 per cent for meat. If they did, prices would have to come down. But off-and-on consumer actions don't get the job done."

Uhrig believed meat prices went on a skyrocket in large part because "people had more money and they were willing to spend it." He did not sympathize greatly with consumers who are now outraged over what has happened.

"Food is a cash-outlay," he said. "It's the biggest cash outlay of anything else you buy. And you buy it every week. Gasoline you can get on your credit card. A car you buy every few years. It and other things you pay for with monthly payments."

"So when you get a rise in food prices this rapid, that's the price increase that pinches. Do people complain so when the price of a television set goes up? Or clothing? Or wine? They just grumble a little. People must accept the idea that farmers have to turn at least a small profit."

Still, the government has felt compelled to do something on its own about meat prices. Besides putting a supermarket ceiling on them, it rejiggered its price supports and farm subsidies and aimed at raising feed grain and soybean acreage by 43 million—the biggest jump in history, Uhrig says.

The idea was that with corn and soybeans flooding the market, feed prices would go down and meat producers would respond by trimming their prices.

The government hopes depended in large part on the weather and the weather betrayed these best laid plans.

Rains poured down all spring on the corn belt. Four flood crests rolled down the Mississippi River, one of them the greatest in recorded history. In Illinois alone, about 750,000 acres of farm land were so flooded that farmers had no hope of getting in their corn crops. In Illinois and elsewhere in the Middle West, wet fields kept other farmers out of their corn fields during the first weeks of May.

Royce Hinton, associate professor of farm management at Illinois, fretted, "We're faced with the old adage that you lose a bushel a day (per acre) after the 10th of May."

Some experts hoped the corn belt could still bring in a record crop. But if it does, they were not sure there would be enough freight cars around to get the crops to market.

A massive railroad traffic snarl began more than six months ago when shippers put all their efforts into meeting the needs of Russian grain exports. Now, Illinois Agriculture Director Robert Williams estimates, there are still 600 million bushels of 1972 corn piled up in elevators or back on the far, waiting for freight cars to wheel them out.

Magic Reservoir water level down

SHOSHONE — Magic Reservoir contained 182,200 acre feet of water Wednesday, compared to being full, at 191,500 acre feet, a year ago on the same day.

According to Leon Grieve, manager of the Big Wood Canal Co., many water users who were drawing 150 per cent of their regular amount at the beginning of the season have evidently cut down their usage. "Magic certainly will not fill again this year," Grieve said.

American Falls reservoir contained 1,079,000 acre feet of water compared to 1,696,000 acre feet a year ago on that date.

About 1450 second feet of water is being used in the Milner Gooding Canal, which is in line with previous usages at 100 per cent delivery.

Art Larsen, Snake River Watermaster, Idaho Falls, said there is enough water available for leasing to fill a large part of the American Falls Reservoir District No. 2 order of 135,000 acre feet. There is some water coming from high snow on the Snake River water shed.

The Big Wood Canal Co. is not allowed to sell Zylene to farmers or even apply Zylene to private ditches for waterusers. Any chemical is supposed to be sold in the original container which has all directions and warnings about the contents. The Twin Falls Canal Co. will have Zylene available in 55-gallon barrels with the emulsifier already mixed in ready to apply amounts.

This will cost $40 for the 55 gallon barrel. The company has been selling Zylene moss-killer to anyone bringing their own containers.

Basset ready for pros after big amateur career

When Tim Basset was first recruited out of Washington, D.C., to play for College of Southern Idaho, area fans were told "he's a great player, well-adjusted youngster and the type you'd want your son to grow up to be like."

Since the first day he stepped onto the CSI campus, Coach Jerry Hale has never had reason to second guess that appraisal. And since that day, Basset has had a succession of personal successes that could well turn the head of anyone. First team all-American junior college, honored while a two-year starter for University of Georgia, signed by the ABA before the individual draft — immediately upon completion of his eligibility and, if one reads the papers out of San Diego correctly, a starter in his first pro game.

He's still, however, Tim Basset, big smiling boy-man, full of enthusiasm and totally unimpressed with his record. There is one difference, though, that probably can be chalked up to maturity.

One feels the 6-9 pro has gained confidence in his playing or his ability to play. He's not always had this sureness, which probably reflects back to his not playing until he was a high school sophomore and then never being a great scorer. Throughout his career he has been surrounded by great talent, leading him just a few months ago to tell a newspaper interviewer "this (the Georgia team) is the first team I've ever played on where they haven't been six or seven players better than me."

That, of course, is no longer true if it ever was and Tim now knows he can go out and play at least break even anyplace.

Basset spent four days in Twin Falls, assisting, along with several other CSI ex-and current players, Coach Hale with his clinic. Although he planned on staying here the full three weeks, he'll leave Sunday for the annual Ruckers tournament in New York City, which will become his professional debut. He'll be playing the next few days with Nate Archibald, Dwight Lamar, Ron Behagen, Jim Brewer, etc., and against competition of the same type. Things have gone well for Basset since leaving CSI. While the University of Georgia had a couple of poor seasons, particularly his last one, Basset became a statewide hero.

"I guess that all started in the Quaker City tournament," he says. "I scored pretty well and averaged 18 bounds and after that the papers were really pushing me."

The push got to the point that it was embarrassing. "The Athens paper came out with a professional negotiations, Basset put all the credit at the feet of his friend and lawyer Lew Schaffel. "Lew called every team in the ABA and the NBA and asked them if they would draft me under a set of conditions. No one in the NBA said they would and Lew told me only one in the ABA agreed. I guess we know now that that was San Diego. The thing that was keeping everyone away was a three-year no-cut clause. The teams told Lew that very few of the first-round draft choices were going to get that."

Sports

From all angles

By Larry Hovey

For the past four or five nights some of the best basketball ever played in this state has been waging at College of Southern Idaho gymnasium.

It's Coach Jerry Hale's basketball clinic which has attracted over 100 for the first week and about that many next week. But it isn't the Magic Valley youngsters who are providing the action, it's the instructors. After 12 hours in the gymnasium, the instructors and friends, running from high school players to fledgling professionals, break out the ball for at least three games of five-on-five.

This basically is what those attending this afternoon's exhibition featuring Nate Archibald will see. The five-on-five is usually a series of one-on-one with passing. At times the play is dazzling.

For instance, 6-3 frosh guard Ron Fryson, who'll be back at CSI next year, has become devastating in close. "You can't let him within 10 feet of the basket or it's a cripple. He's practically unstoppable inside," says Coach Hale. And what Fryson does inside defies any description we can give you because we can't follow what he does. But we can tell you there's a tremendous amount of reverse pivots and spins and the ball generally is dribbled between the legs on each up and down flight. At 6-3, there aren't many you can tell Fryson is.

Then, of course, there's Vic Kelly back in the gym, maybe quicker, demonstrating a better ability to hang in the air. Friday night he made a minimum of five, count 'em, five fakes before putting it in. During that time, three different men went up and came back down empty as Victor shifted the ball from side to side and up and down.

Tim Basset, fighting the deadline given him by his team in the Ruckers tournament in New York, will gamble on staying the extra day to play. And you've got to see Tim. He's stronger, jumping between and his intimidation defense inside has grown enormously. He's putting it on the floor much better and if you like the dunk, you'll love seeing him do it now.

There are many more players there and all have their individual highlights which will go on display. This game lends itself totally to the individual and you'll never see things like this in a regulation game.

Meanwhile, Coach Hale's clinic has been one of two that Sports Illustrated is considering a story on. The national magazine is selecting two football and two basketball camps which it will plumb and see if it can come up with a story.

Now it's easy to see why Coach Hale's camp would draw such interest because it (a) is the least expensive around, offering back half the price in the form of a CSI all-sports season ticket (b) offers far and away the most talented group of instructors from a numbers and name standpoint and (c) is pegged more to the individual locale than any other we've heard of.

But Coach Hale has some trepidation. He's had one experience with Sports Illustrated before and wasn't overly happy with the outcome. That came during his assistant coaching reign at UTEP when the magazine did the several-installment depth on the Black exploitation in the white university. One installment gave UTEP particular fits and Coach Hale wasn't sure as he read it whether it was discussing the same UTEP he was working for — let alone the allegations made against the coaching staff.

Rambin pround a little. Ross Goddard, who was a starting quarterback and then fell into complete disuse at University of Idaho, has transferred to Weber State where he'll sit out a year and then make a Big Sky Conference comeback.

Tracy Nielsen, 6-7 top gun-rebounder for Burley, has accepted a scholarship at Weber State.

Noise State officials believe this has been the best fresh basketball recruiting year in the history of the institution and note that Coach Bus Conner has picked up some JC help for next year's varsity. Assistant Athletic Director Ron Stephenson also is starting concentrated study aim at putting the upper deck on the east side of the stadium, which will increase seating to about 22,000. He believes the project will take a little more time than originally thought and it appears the second deck won't be available for the 1974 season. Maybe 1975. Meanwhile, he said ticket sales at BSC have reached 70 per cent of last year and "so far we haven't even pushed them or advertised. We're getting a lot of people who had two or four seats last year asking for six and eight."

Yankees edge Angels, Ryan

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ron Blomberg and Horace Clarke each drove in a run and Fritz Peterson, with eighth-inning relief help from Sparky Lyle, outduelled Nolan Ryan Saturday to help the New York Yankees beat the California Angels, 2-0, in a nationally televised game.

Peterson had control trouble, walking five men and throwing two wild pitches, but the only hits he allowed through seven innings were a third-inning single by Rudy Meall and a fifth-inning single by Bob Oliver. The Yankees pulled off three double plays in the first four innings to erase Angel baserunners.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — The U.S. Auto Club Board of Directors, reacting to criticism of this year's tragedy-marred Indianapolis "500," Saturday night revised big car rules for all championship circuit races.

The directors reduced the amount of fuel allowed on board championship cars from 75 to 40 gallons and clipped the "wings" or aerodynamic foils on the rear of the big cars, cutting the maximum wing width from 64 to 55 inches.

The Saturday night rules changes came as a surprise. The USAC Board of Directors held the meeting after announcing earlier they would act at some later date on recommendations made during an afternoon meeting involving the USAC competition committee and other key figures.

The action followed two deaths and severe burn injuries to two drivers during May at the Speedway. The wing-size reduction should reduce speeds somewhat. The wing reduction was an exploratory first step and may be followed by other changes in wing rules after USAC has had time for additional testing.

Another rule change requires the pit man designated as the signal or board man, stationed at the pit wall, to remain in that position throughout the race.

USAC approved a rule requiring that all the fuel on board be carried on the left side of the car except for a pickup tank with a maximum capacity of 2.5 gallons. The placing of all the fuel on the left side is expected to be a great anti-fire measure.

USAC also mandated that the area formerly occupied by the right-side tank be filled with an energy-absorbing material.

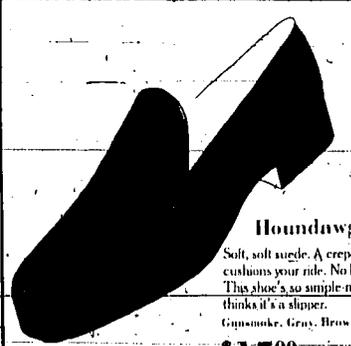

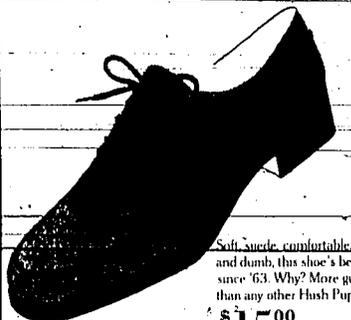

The changes are effective with the running of the Pocono "500" July 1 in Pennsylvania and will apply to all national championship races from that date.

Nate Archibald featured in Sunday cage exhibition

Nate Archibald, who set a National Basketball Association precedent by leading the league in both scoring and assists, will highlight a special Sunday afternoon basketball exhibition at College of Southern Idaho gymnasium. The thing should start at 3 p.m.

Archibald, who due to demands of filming a series of instructional movies in Chicago starting Monday will be available for only one day during Coach Jerry Hale's summer clinic, will probably give a short talk on the game and be available for autographs or answering of personal questions.

"We're extremely pleased that Nate would take the time to spend a day with us," says Coach Jerry Hale, "and we want all our CSI fans and basketball fans in Magic Valley generally to see this outstanding young man."

Participating in that will be now pro Tim Basset, signed by San Diego of the ABA; Gen Strobel, headed for University of Idaho; Vic Kelly, ex-USAC and still eligible collegiate guard; Vince Volmut, signed by Hofstra University; Rick Sobels, still mulling myriad offers; Steve Swanson, signed with Boise State; Roger Campbell, ex-Jerome and incoming CSI sophomore; and

Eagles open trade talks for Gabriel

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Eagles' Coach Mike McCormack said Friday the club was "instituting trade talks" with the Los Angeles Rams after quarterback Roman Gabriel said he wanted to play here.

McCormack announced after a day-long meeting with Gabriel that the Rams star "says he would like to come to Philadelphia" and the matter now rests with Los Angeles General Manager Don Klosterman.

Gabriel, who has stated he does not want to play with the Rams next season, said his objective now was "to become part of this team."

McCormack, at a news conference attended by Gabriel, said he was awaiting a call from Klosterman to find out what Los Angeles wanted for the quarterback.

Cards tip Astros on grand slam homerun

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Pinch-hitter Tim McCarver hit a grand slam home run in the eighth inning Saturday night to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 6-2 win over the Houston Astros. McCarver slammed the first pitch from Houston reliever Fred Gladding into the right field stands. The homer was McCarver's first since being reacquired by the Cardinals before this season, and it was the fifth grand slam of his career.

McCarver's blow drove in Ted Simmons, who doubled, Jose Cruz, intentionally walked by Houston reliever Jim York and Luis Melendez, who singled.

The Cards tied the score with two out in the eighth on a run-scoring double by Simmons.

The Astros had taken a 2-1 lead in the eighth when Alou singled home pinch-hitter Jimmy Stewart, who singled, advanced on a sacrifice by Metzger and went to third when a balk was called on Wise.

St. Louis scored in the second when Simmons doubled, went to third on a throwing error by Jesus Alou and scored on a groundout by Cruz.

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Kurt Bevacqua cracked a two-run triple and scored on Steve Hovley's double to highlight a three-run second inning Saturday night that carried the Kansas City Royals to a 5-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Paul Splittorf, gaining his eighth victory in 11 decisions, pitched the first five innings, allowing seven hits and one run before leaving with a shoulder ailment. Reliever Doug Bird yielded three hits in the last four innings.

Laser Mill Wilcox, 3-2, walked Paul Schaal with one out in the second and Gail Hopkins followed with a single to move Schaal to third. Bevacqua then tripled off the left-center field wall, barely missing a runner and scoring both runners. Hovley drove in Bevacqua with a two-out double.

The previous record of 399 pounds belonged to Vassili Alexeev of the Soviet Union.

Reding set the record in his third try after he first snatched 353 and then 376 pounds.

Besides his winning throw Saturday, Feuerbach did 70-6 1/4. His world record, achieved this spring at San Jose, Calif., is 71-7.

Oakland edges Boston by 3-1

BOSTON (UPI) — Bert Campaneris scored on a passed ball in the sixth inning and Gene Tenace added a seventh inning homer Saturday night to support the three-hit pitching of Jim Hunter and give the Oakland Athletics a 3-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Despite the loss the Red Sox made five double plays in the game to tie the American League record.

The score was tied 1-1 when Campaneris opened the sixth with an infield single. He went to second on Bill North's sacrifice bunt, took third on a fly to right by Sal Bando and scored when catcher Carlton Fisk couldn't hold on to Bill Lee's 62 pitch to Reggie Jackson.

Orioles coast past Rangers

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Tommy Davis drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Al Bunbury tripled in two more in an early explosion Saturday night as the Baltimore Orioles whipped the Texas Rangers, 8-3, behind the seven-hit pitching of Jim Palmer.

The Orioles jumped on Lloyd Allen for a run in the first inning on a single by Rich Coggins, a stolen base and a single by Davis.

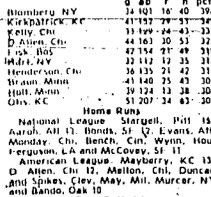

The Orioles added two more in the second, getting started when Bobby Grich led off with a double. Paul Blair laid down a sacrifice bunt, but Allen threw wildly to first, allowing Grich to score and Blair to move all the way to third.

Rod Milburn, the world record holder in the high hurdles, also was a double winner in less than 24 hours.

Friday night he won the 120 high at the college division championships at Crawfordsville, Ind., in 13.1. In the Kennedy Games, he took the highs in a little slower 13.4.

Kathy Schmidt of Norwalk, Calif., who took the American women's javelin record to 207-10 a week ago at the Cal Relays, broke that mark with a 209-1 performance.

Sprinter Steve Williams was a double winner by taking the 100-yard dash in 9.3 and the 220 in 20.6.

In other fine performances, Gordon Minty of England, a three-time college division champ while competing for Eastern New Mexico, took the three-mile run in 13:15.4; world 400 meter record holder Marilyn Neufville set a Games record of 55.1 in winning the women's 440 and Tim Vollmer set a Games record when he won the discus with a throw of 269-4.

Defending champion Betty Burfeindt was all alone in fourth place at 144 after shooting a three-under-par 70 Saturday. She was in a 14-way tie for 16th place with a 74 after Friday's first round.

Mary Mills, Gulfport, Miss., who paced Friday's first round with a 69, fell off to 70 Saturday and was in five-way tie for 14th place with Japan's Chako Higuchi, Judy Rankin, Donna Caponi Young and Carol Mann.

Miss Cornelius had 17 pars and one birdie in putting together her 35-37-72 Saturday. Her four-foot putt for a birdie on the sixth hole was the longest putt I made all day. She had two other one-putt greens, both for saving pars from under three feet.

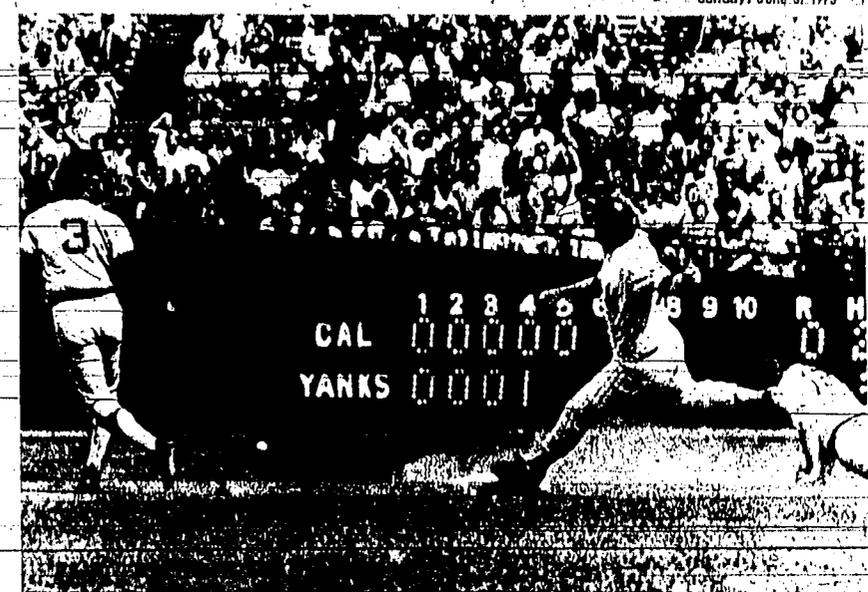

Miss Haynie's Saturday card of 37-36-73 included two birdies, on 8 and 18, and two bogeys, on 5 and 9.

Three share lead in women's tourney

LAS VEGAS, Nov. (UPI) — Two seasoned veterans of the women's golf tour and a left-handed newcomer share the lead in the $100,000 Sealy-Faber Classic going into Sunday's final round with 36 hole scores of 143, three-under par.

Kathy Cornelius, 40, a pro since 1956, and Sandra Haynie, 29, who started playing for money in 1960, are the veterans. Bonnie Bryant, 29, who didn't earn her players card until last year, is the newcomer.

Miss Cornelius, Litchfield Park, Ariz., added a 72 Saturday to her first round 71 over the par 73 Desert Inn Course. Miss Haynie, Dallas, Tex., went 70-73. Miss Bryant, Oakland, had 72-77.

Texas posts best mile relay time

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — The University of Texas closed out the U.S. Track and Field Federation championship meet Saturday night with a 9:05.7 mile relay, fastest in the nation this year.

The race was tight until the Longhorns' third man, John Lee, opened up a 15-yard lead with a :46.3 quarter mile. Kim Itow of Michigan and Skip Kent of Wisconsin could not close the gap on Don Sturgis, the Aggies' anchor man. The winning time was four-tenths of a second better than the Longhorns' previous best.

In the mile run, Rick Wohluter had a career best of 3:58.8, only a week after he set a world record in the half mile.

The Chicago Track Club ace, passed up an invitation to a special half mile after a good qualifying time in the mile. He took over early in the first lap and sprinted away from the field at Wichita State's Cessna Stadium.

"I wanted to run under four minutes and felt that this track would be a pretty good place to get that time," Wohluter said, emphasizing he considers himself primarily a half-mile runner. "I'm not used to running a mile and I thought I was out there for an eternity."

Olympic champion Dave Wottle had trouble winning the invitational half-mile event without Wohluter's competition. He shot from seventh to the top of the pack on the final curve for a narrow win at the tape in a time well above Wohluter's 1:44.6 record.

Wottle, the Bowling Green runner with a gold medal and a record in the 800-meter run, nipped Skip Kent of Wisconsin at the tape in 1:49.5. Kent had moved into a 10-yard lead with 300 yards to go but faltered in the backstretch.

Oklahoma City's Jeff Bennett set a new meet record for the deaththru, scoring 8040 points.

John Craft of the Chicago Track Club leaped 55 feet, 2 inches in the triple jump, but the world-beating record was negated by 15 miles an hour winds.

Dennis Schultz of Oklahoma State topped a fast field in the men's 440-yard run with a 45.8 clocking. The Cowboys senior put on a furious finish down the final straightaway against 12 mile an hour winds to win by five yards.

A former teammate of Schultz, Jim Bolding, now with the Pacific Coast Track Club, had predicted he would finish first in the 440 intermediate hurdles. He turned the last corner with a five-yard lead, but Efron Gibson of Lamar University put on a final flourish in the last 60 yards and nipped Bolding at the tape with a 50.2 clocking.

Purdue's Larry Burton captured a close 100-yard dash in which the top three finishers were timed in :0.2. He held off Mark Lutz of Kansas and Earl Lawson of Idaho State.

Ryun wins slow pro mile run

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Distance runner Jim Ryun, troubled by an aching right hip, won the mile run for the second time in as many nights Saturday in an International Track Association meet.

Ryun took the mile in a time of 4:05.1, dashing past Keith Munson, who led the race most of the way, at the start of the final lap. Ryun crossed the finish line 16 yards ahead.

Ryun had been scheduled to duel an old rival, Kip Keino of Kenya, in the two-mile event. But he decided to run only the mile because of bursters in his hip. Ryun said running frequently on indoor wooden tracks had caused his hip to act up.

In other meet action, Brian Oldfield, the leading money winner on the IMA circuit, won the shot put with a throw of 60 feet, 4 1/2 inches. Fred Debernardi was second and former Olympic champion Randy Matson was third.

Jean-Louis Revelomson won the men's 60-yard dash with a time of 6 seconds flat. It was the second night he won the event.

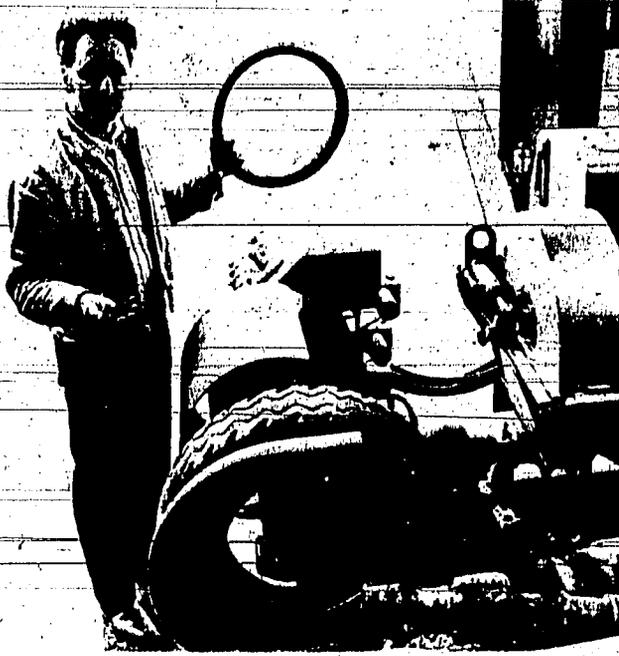

Barbara Ferrell and Wyomia Tyus Simerly tied in the women's 60-yard dash at 6.7.

Bob Hayes of the Dallas Cowboys beat Earl McCulloch of the Detroit Lions in the 40-yard dash. Paul Gibson won the hurdles, and Henry Hines won the long jump.

The shutout stretched one Mets scoreless innings to 21.

Kirby, now 2-5 hasn't won a game since opening day and his start was his first in a month.

Nixon cautioned on summit pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's top economic adviser prepared a warning for him that it would be "a serious mistake" to settle any important monetary or trade issues with French President Georges Pompidou during the Iceland summit meeting, UPI learned Friday. Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz wrote prior to the current meeting that France, through its bargaining in the international monetary arena, was trying "to undercut the ability of the United States to exert effective leadership in world affairs."

impression that you welcome his personal attention to this subject (monetary and trade reform), in the sense that the economic dimension is crucially important in laying the basis for lasting peace... "You might privately recognize the particular importance of France and Mr. Pompidou to a successful resolution. "On the other hand," Shultz continued, "I think it would be a serious mistake to attempt to settle bilaterally with President Pompidou in Iceland any of the concrete issues in these negotiations."

Apres Islands that produced agreement to devalue the dollar in concert with a realignment of other major currency exchange rates. In addition to heading the Treasury, Shultz acts as spokesman for all administration economic policy, foreign and domestic. He warned that Pompidou "will probably probe for specific and substantive concession to his monetary views in return for vague and imprecise relaxation of resistance to our diplomatic and defense objectives."

Bank opening set in Filer

FILER — The grand opening of the Filer branch office of the Idaho First National Bank is planned for Monday. A tree planting ceremony is scheduled for 9:15 a.m. and the public is invited to visit the new facility at the corner of Fair Avenue and Highway 30. The bank will give free tickets to the Shrine Circus on Tuesday for the first 250 children attending the opening accompanied by a parent. Refreshments will be served throughout the day. Edgar H. Jensen, Boise architect, designed the new structure which features brick masonry structural walls with a wood frame roof. Bank officials participating in the tree-planting ceremony include Mayor Dan Kauffman, Thomas C. Frye, president of the Idaho First National Bank; Fred C. Humphreys, executive vice president, and Carlson.

Seattle bank plans telephone computer

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — A telephone computer linkup that allows customers to pay bills without checks and automatically reminds them of their spouse's birthday goes into operation next Tuesday at the Seattle-First National Bank. The bank's telephone computing service, billed as the first of its kind in the nation, also will take care of the family's bookkeeping. Every two weeks it will mail a print-out summarizing expenditures for that month and the year to date. One of the aspects of this service of which we are most proud is that the user controls the computer from his or her home," said Joseph W. Gelzer, president of the telephone computer service. "It does the functions the user wants, keeps the information the user wants it to not the other way around." The computer will keep track of important dates and appointments and send a calendar of upcoming events every two weeks. Cost of the computer hook up is $6.50 a month for a household.

Corporate head scores degrees

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's rare to find a corporation head who is downright hostile to Harvard MBA's and to Masters of Business Administration in general, but President Jay Monroe of Tensor Corp. is one. Monroe is the man who created the boom in high intensity lamps a few years ago and followed up by pioneering steel and aluminum tennis rackets. He now is working on a coverless, complex plastic tennis ball he says will revolutionize amateur tennis. Monroe admits that his dislike of MBA's is partly emotional. One thing that turned him against them was the comment by Chairman David Rockefeller of the Chase Manhattan Bank that "America should reach some accommodation with the Arabs." Monroe blamed that on some of Rockefeller's MBA advisers, but he promptly took Tensor's account out of Rockefeller's bank. He followed up by making a speech before the New Enterprise Club of the Harvard Business School that gave the whole MBA concept a verbal lashing. He charged that teachers at Harvard and other business schools routinely put profits ahead of morality and even ahead of sound management. "It's wishful thinking to believe that a young MBA from Harvard can help a business that's in trouble or even if it isn't in trouble," Monroe said. "What they learn in the MBA course is useless to most businesses. It's almost like expecting a boy to go out and play varsity football just on the basis of reading about the game, without coaching or practice." Monroe told United Press International that the trouble with MBA's is they have an exaggerated idea of the importance of their obligation to the stockholders. "I don't think management's obligation to the stockholders is any greater than its obligation to the employees and customers," he said. "and not as great as the obligation to follow sound long range policies." He said the "bottom line" (net earnings) preoccupation of MBA's, especially the Harvard breed, made them overcautious and inclined them to unwise penury in management. "They always want to skimp on advertising and on research and development costs," he said, "and the plain truth is that for many companies, sound and adequate spending on advertising and research and development is the very breath of life." Maximizing profits sounds fine and may work for a few years but it also can put a company on the road to the cemetery, he said. Monroe said his experience with the boom and shakeout in the high intensity lamp business convinced of this more than ever. "It's time it," he said. "I over-advertised the high intensity lamp and attracted a lot of competitors. It reached a peak manufacturers' market of $30 million in 1967, of which Tensor had $7.5 million.

TF Retired Senior Volunteer program starts

BY LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — You're a widow who can just afford to keep your own home, but paying for lawn care and upkeep is threatening your future.

You might be a young boy vainly wishing for a chance to go fishing, but there's no adult to take you.

Or, you may be a still-vigorous retired businessman or professional person wondering how to fill your newly-found free time.

All of these circumstances, and endless other situations are being successfully "put all together" by matching needs with volunteers in a newly formed project in Twin Falls called the Retired Senior Volunteer Program.

The project, whose initials RSVP add a preventive appeal—is federally-funded—but locally planned and administered.

It is under the enthusiastic direction of Nancy Hollifield who, though only 22 herself, seems aware of the vast reservoir of ability, experience, patience and skills often lying latent in persons known as senior citizens. And unlike many young people, she believes she can learn from the seniors, and they obviously respond to her leadership.

Aim of the project is simple enough—getting retired people with extra time matched to persons or situations needing the skills or interest they have to offer. While some of this type of activity has long been done in terms of simple neighborliness, the challenge is to enlarge the framework both as to the known needs in the community and the number of volunteers and provide a clearing house so that both segments of the project can be expanded.

Miss Hollifield, who soon will become the bride of Kent Taylor, new Twin Falls attorney, visualizes expansion of the RSVP program to the entire Magic Valley within five years.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hollifield,

Hanson, she has a B.A. degree from the University of Idaho and has nearly completed requirements for a master's degree from Boise State College. In addition she has had experience with senior citizens study and social programs at Boise.

The concept of utilizing the many times wasted skills of senior citizens and giving them a recognized role in the community was formulated into a nationwide program by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in 1969 and RSVP became operational in July, 1971. It is part of the broader ACTION program which has incorporated VISTA, Peace Corps, Foster Grandparents and other volunteer programs.

The organizational procedure is simple—an established local institution, in this case College of Southern Idaho, applies for a grant and when it is approved serves as the fiscal agent for the program.

The college then hired Miss Hollifield who with the help of a local advisory board now being selected, plans and carries out the project. Board members are to include medical, legal and religious representation with a 25 per cent senior citizen membership.

Marvin Glasscock, director of adult education programs at CSI, serves as institutional adviser.

The Twin Falls RSVP, even though it incorporates customs of human concern old as mankind, is relatively new in Idaho. The only other operating volunteer program in the Gem state, Miss Hollifield says, is at Welsch, which she visited as her first assignment when hired a few weeks ago.

She then concentrated on finding out who needs what kinds of volunteer services in the Twin Falls area. Wisely building on what is already functioning, the youthful director began working with the Senior Citizens Centers in Twin Falls, Kimberly and Duhl. She considers them a main cog in her expanding network of volunteers and their directors her "right hand man" (women in this case.)

These leaders, Lorna Bolton at Twin Falls; Ruth Mitchell at Kimberly and Freida Johnson, Duhl, generate concern for each of their "patrons" as well as giving efficient direction to the physical operation of the centers.

To no one's surprise, through her contact with these centers as well as other institutions and personal contacts, Nancy has verified that "hundreds of people need volunteer services"—small things like a ride to the doctor's office because they are unable to walk and can't afford a taxi, or being telephoned daily to make sure they are all right, which sometimes means the difference between an elderly person being able to stay in his own home or going to a resthome.

Where has she found places of need? The obvious ones — rest homes where volunteers with only the humble talents of friendliness can brighten the patients' days by visiting, reading, writing letters and doing other sundry errands. Others area of service:

... Hospital, where bookmobile services are welcome.

... County commissioners welcome help with filing.

... Library plans "talking tape" project where oldtimers tell what it was like in 1920 and before. Tapes then are sent to the Idaho Historical Society in Boise and the volunteer "talker" will receive a copy, providing a priceless bit of local history.

... Department of Social and Community Services which now encompasses the old Department of Public Assistance needs volunteers for follow up work, driving retarded children to Child Development Center, home patient aides to read, visit, assist in bathing and other simple health care.

Volunteer service

BABYSITTING service is another volunteer service offered by seniors at the Kimberly Center. Fronia Campbell cares for Julie Keefe and her baby sister, Elizabeth, while mother works on Wednesday afternoons. They are daughters of Rev. and Mrs. James Keefe.

Current Cues

By HELEN WALKER
TWIN FALLS — Do you remember emptying the drip pan on the old "icebox," or how about defrosting the refrigerator?
 Modern frost-free refrigerator-freezers are certainly work savors. However, they are often so taken for granted, that homemakers tend to forget there is a right way and wrong way to use them.
 They do need a thorough cleaning a few times a year. First, unplug the refrigerator and turn all controls to "off." Remove all food and protect frozen items from thawing. Remove crispers, meat pans and shelves.
 Wash everything in warm sudsy water. Rinse with water to which you have added baking soda. Be sure to remove and wash the water evaporating tray and air grill below the unit. Vacuum the condenser and other areas where dust can collect. Refit parts, plug in and turn the controls on.
 Take a look at where your refrigerator-freezer is placed. It should be located in the coolest spot in the room. Avoid placing it right next to your range or heat source.
 A setting of 32-42 degrees is normally considered best for refrigerators; zero degrees for the freezer.
 Don't overcrowd the refrigerator. This interferes with the circulation of air and overworks the compressor to maintain the cold temperature.
 During humid weather, moisture will accumulate on the cold surface within the refrigerator. This is normal, especially if the refrigerator door is opened frequently. Keeping liquids covered will cut down on moisture build-up.
 Try to keep the refrigerator or freezer door opening to a minimum. Be sure the door gaskets seal tightly — replace if worn.
 If you have a manual defrost model — defrost regularly when the frost build-up is about a quarter of an inch thick. Too much frost accumulation will require the unit to work overtime.
 Let hot foods cool before placing them in the refrigerator or freezer.
 Your refrigerator-freezer will give you many years of fine food-keeping convenience if you use it wisely.
 Please mail questions to: Helen Walker, Idaho Power Co., P. O. Box, 8, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.

RSVP under way in Twin Falls

Community Action agency needs office workers, also volunteers to assist home patients.
 Twin Falls School district needs volunteers for tutoring, decorating bulletin boards, help on field trips.
 Another aspect of the volunteer program is finding adults who will teach handicraft skills so that oldest adults in rest homes can earn a few dollars through sale of ceramic articles, for example.
 Already in her few weeks of operation, Nancy has received requests for someone to teach square dancing, antique classification, fly tying, knitting, crocheting and quilting. The list is endless.
 One of the most pressing needs is for volunteers to call shut-ins under a systematic plan which Nancy has dubbed "Tele-Care" and the Friendly Visitor project. While they both are things many people have done on their own for years, through RSVP the volunteers' efforts are channeled to maximum efficiency.

 There is also the important aspect of putting the volunteer where his or her efforts are best suited. Service of volunteers will be formally acknowledged at a recognition banquet planned for June 22.
 Volunteers are reimbursed for mileage and for meals encountered in line of "duty." Participation in the program can also be through organizations as well as individuals, Miss Hollifield said.
 Already some 35 persons have responded to the new program. Some 200 can be put to use.

Activities scheduled

THE SNOW IS gone, but nobody seems to care as Sun Valley lists a full schedule of activities for its 37th summer season.

SV schedules conventions

SUN VALLEY — Sun Valley is in full swing with over 100 conventions scheduled for the 37th summer season.
 Convention highlights include the United States Ski Association, June 8 to 10; the Sun Valley Forum on National Health, June 24 to 30; the Idaho State Bar, July 11 to 14; the Pacific Regional Association of National School Boards Associations, July 20 to 22; the Annual Conference of School Administrators, July 31 to Aug. 3; and the Idaho Hospital Association, Sept. 29 to Oct. 3.
 On the recreation side of the Sun Valley summer, a new program called "Family Summer" has been initiated.

Sale set

TWIN FALLS — The Community Improvement Association of Idaho Inc. will sponsor a garage sale June 9 and 10 at the old Twin Falls Business College, 260 2nd Street East.
 The receipts from the sale will be used by the non-profit organization to start an emergency fund for the disadvantaged. Those interested in donating materials or cash should contact CIA secretary Deo Quigley at 733-9351.
 Pickup services are available.
 According to a Sun Valley news release, the new program "provides for vacationing family togetherness and time apart." Activities offered to the family group include a western barbecue, a picnic hike to one of Idaho's ghost-towns, a breakfast hayrack ride and an all day float trip down the Salmon River as well as choices of 70 different sports activities.
 At the 18-hole Sun Valley golf course, golfers will find a new program of instruction, tournaments and games.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Since this is anything but complimentary to women I'm sure you won't print it, but I'll write anyway.

When an X-rated movie comes to town, the women flock to see it in droves. Many come by themselves. I'm not referring to just mildly pornographic films, I'm talking about the really rough ones which leave nothing to the imagination.

I've attended such movies and I notice the women's reactions are no different than the men's. Occasionally someone will walk out before the end of the film, but strangely enough, it's the women who usually stay until the very end. How do you feel about such movies?

Women turn out

I have always heard and read that women are not turned on by the visual the way men are. If that's true, what are they doing there?

MADE MY POINT

DEAR MADE: So you've made your point; the point being that you suspect that women are just as "turned on" by the visual as the men are. Could be. But most people flock to X-rated movies (at least once) because they are curious—not necessarily because they want to be "turned on." And if the morals squad would just ignore them instead of staging raids, confiscating film, and arresting exhibitors and patrons, thereby giving these trashy movies millions of dollars worth of free advertising in the press, they would die a slow death.

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of this situation: A girl of marrying age (18-20) leaves town for an abortion. This is a family secret—or so she thinks. She returns and begins planning a big formal church wedding—white gown, veil, and all.

Are we, her friends who are wise to all this, supposed to act dumb? Should we buy her shower and wedding gifts and dance at her wedding as tho nothing had happened?

I don't like to be made a fool of while she and her family think nobody else knows the whole story.

HATES-HYPOCRITES

DEAR HATES: If you would feel less "a fool" were you to tell her that you know the whole story, tell her. But if you buy her shower and wedding gifts and dance at her wedding, she might mistake you for a friend, so unless you identify yourself, you're also a hypocrite.

DEAR ABBY: My husband took me to a company party where there was an orchestra for dancing. We didn't even have one dance when my husband left me, saying he'd be back in a minute. Not five minutes later I saw him out on the floor dancing with a girl. I just sat there alone and waited for him.

After what seemed like forever my husband came back and said one of the executives asked him to please dance with his wife because he [the executive] wanted to dance with his secretary and he didn't want to leave his wife sitting alone.

What about ME? I was left sitting alone, but that didn't seem to matter.

Abby, I love to dance, and my husband is a marvelous dancer, and there have been very few occasions where we have been able to dance, and I was really hurt.

During the evening my husband left me THREE times to ask that same lady to dance, so her husband could dance with his secretary. The secretary had a husband somewhere, but he never asked me to dance.

I told my husband when we got home I was humiliated and hurt and he said I was the only woman alive who would react that way. Am I?

ODD WOMAN OUT

DEAR ODD: Not while I'm alive.

Problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90009. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

MR. AND MRS. DOUGLAS W. MOORE

Miss Roerich, Moore exchange promises

TWIN FALLS — Tamefa S. Roerich became the bride of Douglas W. Moore in services May 19 at the Immanuel Lutheran Church in Twin Falls.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Roerich, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Moore, all Twin Falls.

Rev. Donald Winterrowd officiated at the double ring ceremony before an altar arrangement of blue and white chrysanthemums.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a bridal gown of lace, accented with an empire waistline and long full-length sleeves. Her shoulder-length veil of bridal illusion was held by a satin bandeau. She carried a cascade bouquet of white and yellow daisies and blue starbursts accented with baby breath flowers.

Mrs. Ronald Lyda, Boise, was matron of honor and Mrs. Douglas Brown was attending matron. Boyd Winterholler was best man. Ushers were David Austin and Doug Etter. Douglas Brown also was an attendant and Bridget Roerich, sister of the bride, was flower girl.

The couple was honored at a reception after the ceremony in the church parish hall. The bride's table was covered with a white brocade cloth. Decorations featured crystal candelabra holding pink tapers.

The table was centered with a three-tiered cake with four hearts forming the base. The cake was decorated with blue and white daisies and sugar bells accented with light blue lacework. It was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom under an archway of daisies.

The quartet tables were covered with white damask cloths, centered with crystal candleholders and blue tapers.

Mrs. Harold Call, aunt of the bride, and Patty Cooper served the cake. Dawn and Robin Moore, sisters of the bridegroom, served the coffee and punch. Sandi Bolton was in charge of the guest book and Chris Malone and Patty Bradford handled gifts.

After a wedding trip to Sun Valley, the couple will reside in Twin Falls where the bride is employed at Penny-Wise Drugs and the bridegroom at Kellwood.

Tennis games gain popularity in TF

By BARTQUESNELL, Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Organized tennis is back in Twin Falls.

Tennis clubs have thrived and diminished in the city over the years. Twin Falls was proud once of its high school program.

The game failed for one reason or another but now is gaining strength again.

The Twin Falls Tennis Association, with an initial interested group of 12 people in March, solidified and started meeting once a week on Saturday to "hit a few balls."

That first group has grown to somewhere around 60 people including children. The association decided a "clinic" was needed last weekend to get people interested in the game.

Fifty new persons showed up to improve upon fundamentals they had forgotten. Many had never touched a racket but wanted to learn the game.

Jan Mittleider, who is chairing the steering committee, said, "This is one of the biggest turnouts ever for anything of a tennis nature."

"The interest in the game has spread so fast in the past few years that many people are waiting for the chance to get into a club like this."

Many towns in southern Idaho have clubs. Boise boasts of having some of the best players in the state. Sun Valley is starting to build a solid club with other clubs planned in the future.

Idaho Falls, Pocatello and several high schools in the area play organized tennis and several towns are interested in starting their own clubs.

Bates wants to travel to Twin Falls to play some of the members of the new club and several members on the Twin Falls club are traveling to Sun Valley this weekend to play in the tournament sponsored by that club.

City recreation manager, Chat Browning, has told the association he will reserve the eight Twin Falls courts for matches and tournaments.

One sporting goods store has already donated a trophy to the winner of the association tournament to be played at the end of the year. Several stores are offering discounts available through the club.

The association, working through the city recreation department, is holding a ladies day for beginners and advanced players during the week throughout the summer.

The steering committee decided that people would not pay exorbitant rates for a newly organized enterprise.

They stuck to a $3 yearly membership fee for a single member and $6 for a family.

The infant organization is hoping to gain enough strength in its first year to get some good tennis surfaces put down and more practice areas set up. "Everything has just come together," Ms. Mittleider said. "We're getting some good players now too and that will help boost this club."

Book Review

By KATHRYN GALLOWAY
Twin Falls Public Library

TWIN FALLS — A theme of "Green Darkness," Anya Seton's new novel, is reincarnation.

The author gives credence to this doctrine in which both her parents believed. However, even though you may not believe this theory, it may be read for the story and historical reconstruction, and the theme can be accepted as a sort of science fiction.

"Green Darkness" is a story of great love, mysticism and suspense which begins in 16th century England and is solved in the year 1968. Life in England in the 16th century is well-reconstructed and the accuracy of that reconstruction of the Tudor Period affects the loves and tragedies of the characters of this novel.

The death of Stephen Mandson, a Benedictine monk, in 1586 and the possible connection of this death with the simultaneous disappearance of a young woman remain unsolved till 1968. Here, in this modern day, fate offers them a second chance for redemption of their wrongs.

Other characters in "Green Darkness" may remind you of your own friends and neighbor. Certainly, you will find the reincarnation theme an interesting one.

his contract

All he had to do was to note that as long as trumps broke 2-1 that the play of the ace of trumps could not hurt him. This time it would have picked up the singleton king. But just suppose East had started with king and one-trump.

After winning that first trump trick, Gus would cash his last high heart. Then he would throw East in with the king of trumps and East would be caught in an early end-play and forced to lead away from one of his kings.

Suppose West held the guarded king of trumps. In that case South was doomed to defeat from the start.

Answer: Mommy

Have you wondered why we don't install transmission lines underground?

TAKE THIS QUIZ AND SEE!

Few people question the necessity for adequate electric energy for their homes and their places of work. Yet many ask, as they see power lines stretch across mountain and desert, why we don't put transmission lines underground. If you have this question, take the quiz at the left, then read the answers below.

ANSWERS:

- True. Surrounding air carries off a large share of the heat generated by the flow of electricity in overhead conductors, thus increasing their load-carrying capacity.
- True. Very expensive, pipe-type cable is considered the most satisfactory conductor. Usually two aluminum pipes are used, one inside the other.
- True. In a 345-kv line, for example, each conductor would be wrapped with insulating tape, and further insulated by oil circulated at 265 pounds pressure from interspersed pumping stations.
- True. Transmission lines buried in the earth are in hostile territory and must be protected by one among several costly methods.
- False. Buried conductors can be damaged by digging, freezing, thawing, or earth movement. Trouble spots are hard to locate, expensive to repair, and take longer to repair, so outages last longer.
- True. Details are too complex for this ad, but power capabilities of a 345-kv line, for example, can be depleted in 20 miles. To correct this power loss requires extremely expensive and bulky compensation equipment.
- More. Present undergrounding methods cost up to 30 times as much as overhead installation. If all transmission lines had to be put underground, electric bills would have to be increased in some proportionate amount.
- True. For higher voltages and longer distances, underground transmission is not yet economically feasible.
- None. About the only underground transmission lines in service today are in crowded urban areas where space is at a premium, not in Snake River Valley.

Idaho Power Company

A CITIZEN WHEREVER IT SERVES

While it is not practical to bury our high voltage transmission lines, we are undergrounding hundreds of miles of lower voltage lines for residential and commercial service. Your comments or questions are invited. Call your local manager, or write: Public Information Department, Idaho Power Company, Box 70, Boise, Idaho 83721.

Questions:

- The heat dissipation of high voltage overhead lines by surrounding air helps make these lines cost less than underground lines. True? False?
- High voltage underground electric energy is carried inside pipes. True? False?
- When installing high voltage lines underground in pipe-type cable, it is necessary to provide a means of cooling the conductors. True? False?
- High voltage underground lines must be insulated from the ground itself. True? False?
- When you put electric lines underground, you can forget maintenance and outage problems. True? False?
- Some electrical energy is lost in transmission, whether overhead or underground, but underground losses are far greater. True? False?
- Would you like to put high voltage lines underground costs less? About the same? Twice as much? Five times as much? Ten times as much? More than that?
- While much research and development is presently underway, it is not only impractical, but almost impossible, to put long transmission lines underground. True? False?
- In view of the above, how much of Idaho Power's transmission system would you say is underground? None? Five miles? Fifty miles? A hundred miles? More?

Benefit program set for August

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Mental Health Association plans to sponsor a benefit performance of the Antique Festival Theatre.

Plans for the Aug. 15 performance, tentatively scheduled for College of Southern Idaho, were made at a dinner meeting Wednesday night at the Rogerson Hotel Colonial Room.

Gwen Touch, VISTA worker in Boise, told members of plans for two VISTA volunteers to come to Twin Falls in mid-August for a one-year commitment.

The Idaho Mental Health Association is serving as sponsor for four volunteers, with to be located in Canyon and Ada County.

The two volunteers coming to Twin Falls will assist in developing after care programs for patients from Idaho mental hospitals.

Although the average re-admission rate in the state has been one out of three, last year the rate rose to one out of two and the state mental health organization feels the VISTA volunteers can serve as the catalyst to direct community attention to solving this problem.

They will try to formulate a task force of local people who can design aftercare programs for returning mental patients.

The VISTA volunteers will have time to do the leg work and act as resource persons, Miss Rouch said, but the program is deliberately "opened" and should be designed by local people to be appropriate to the community.

The volunteers will work in close cooperation with the local mental health center here, she said.

Dor Barlow, center director, reported on a social services directory which the Twin Falls Mental Health Association plans to have printed for mass distribution.

The data included in the directory, Barlow said, was gathered as part of the information compiled in writing the grant for expanded mental health services for the Magic Valley which is Region 5.

Rev. John Wallace reported on the annual mental health banquet held last month at which Rep. Orval Hansen spoke.

Nine St. Bernard puppies orphaned

SALMON — Billie Ankrum is raising nine orphaned St. Bernard pups.

The young dogs, born April 7, became orphans April 23 when their mother, Bernadette, was run over by a truck.

Since then Mrs. Ankrum has been training and feeding five of the pups at her place and has the others farmed out to a girl friend who is doing the same.

hours during the day. Now they are on milk and baby cereal, eating from a bowl.

Mrs. Ankrum tested one pup on another mother who had pups but it was rejected.

Despite their orphaned condition the pups are now playing, barking and growling. Before long Mrs. Ankrum hopes to have them on solid dog food.

In the beginning, the pups were bottle fed every three hours after birth.

Future looks good for MV Living Center

By JOCELYN CLOWARD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS— Magic Valley Living Center, two and one-quarter miles south of the Curry Crossing, is the only large area shelter home for the handicapped.

Jerry Kershaw, co-owner of the center with Richard Brown, discussed the operation of the home this week.

"The general public usually hasn't heard of the shelter home concept," he said. "The future looks big. The idea is to create a family-type environment for people who need some help. Many people are unaware or scared of our operation, and scared of the handicapped and the retarded," he said.

The home now houses 20 residents, and the owners hope some day to house 40.

"We serve a worthwhile purpose," Kershaw said. "Many of our people are without relatives. Most of them are free to come and go whenever they like, but they need a place to live. We have one resident who had undergone treatment for brain cancer, and who had never since been out of institutions," he said.

"He doesn't need that institutional care, but that was the only place for him to go until he came here. Many of these people have only known institutions," he said. "Most come to us as referrals from the Idaho State Department of Environmental and Community Services. Some of our residents come from state hospitals. These are all people who need a place to live."

"For most of them," he said, "the best choice is a shelter home."

The center is run from private funds invested by Brown and Kershaw. Mrs. Brown said that community interests and support is needed. "These handicapped need many things," she said. "We want community organizations to work with us on the program," Kershaw said.

"There are many people in the area unaware that they might be eligible to live here," Mrs. Brown said. "For a group who likes projects, we're a good project."

"We have been helped by TORCH and the local grange," Kershaw said. "The Immanuel Lutheran School eighth grade has helped us, too," he said.

The class, according to teacher Larry Brose, "adopted" the living center for its annual service project. The students recently assisted with gardening, weeding, trash cleanup and painting of new dormitory living units as a final project for the school year.

"What we are trying to achieve is a rural family atmosphere," Kershaw said. "We try to provide lots of recreation. Many sports are possible for the handicapped. We hope to purchase some snowmobiles, and we do go alight riding and swimming often. We need a swimming pool. Our people love snowball fights out here," he said.

"We try to plan one major recreation event per week," he said. "The DECS also has weekly recreation activities such as basketball which we take the residents to."

"We hope to get our recreation hall built so that we can have pool tables, shuffle boards, and so on. Now we're using the dining room for games," he said.

"Our people can get to town easily, as we go into Twin Falls about three times every day," Kershaw said. "The DECS gives schooling to many of our boarders in sewing, furniture finishing, pressing and other basic living areas."

though we are not required to have a resident doctor as nursing homes are," Brown said. "Mrs. Brown is a registered nurse."

"We do have requirements to meet," Kershaw said. "In fact, I think we're the only shelter home in the state now building to meet future state and federal standards. We have to build appropriate living space and meet sanitation requirements and fire codes."

"We are allowed to charge only $125 for each resident," Kershaw said. "We have to use all of our resources carefully. We eat all of our fresh garden produce, although state law doesn't allow us to do any of our own canning."

"We felt the gardening out here was a very worthwhile thing to do," Brownsaid. "We have 176 acres here, and right now we have gardens, a berry patch and some fruit trees," Kershaw said. "We also have a small cattle operation, and have given one of our residents some pigs to raise, and plant to order some chickens for another."

"We feel that if these people are involved with the land and animals, that life will be more enjoyable for them," he said.

GARY BENT, resident at the Magic Valley Living Center, top picture, clears out the berry patch at the rural center for the handicapped which is located two and one-quarter miles south of Curry Crossing. At right, Immanuel Lutheran School students, Scott Gordon, left, and Ken Bohr, cultivate a garden field at the center. The school's eighth grade "adopted" the center as a service project.

Polls have shown that 80 per cent of American men really prefer brunettes, that's a matter of record. A majority, true. Still, what's revealed here is just how much of an advantage the blondes and the redheads enjoy. Nowhere nearly enough of them to satisfy the masculine yearnings of those 41 per cent who do not prefer brunettes.

Sir, how many shaves do you get out of one razor blade? When researchers at the Mellon Institute looked into this weighty matter, they discovered the longer the man soaks his beard before shaving, the more shaves he'll get out of the blade. With 15-second soaks, the average blade can be expected to last for two shaves, they said. With three-minute soaks, that blade should be good for four shaves. With 10-minute soaks, the blade should hold up for at least five shaves.

DROWNING
It's typical of a woman to think she can't swim as well as she is actually able. It's typical of a man to think he's niftier in the water than he really is. Those analysts who study the statistics believe this explains why 66 per cent of all persons rescued from drowning are men.

Q. "Aren't freckles temporary?"
A. On four out of five faces, yes.

In the sign language of the deaf and dumb, plurals are made by swiftly repeating the signals, something like "big, big, tree, tree."

Why it's correct always to hang women's clocks by the waistband and men's by the cuffs remains a mystery.

ROCKING
Young fellow, would you call yourself an athlete? How would you describe your coordination? Superior? If so, it's likely you were rocked a lot as an infant. How the medicines arrived at this theoretical notion is as follows: Studies of numerous premature babies, deprived for some weeks of the rhythmic rocking motion in the maternal midsection, showed them to be awkward in their physical movements. So researchers concluded that rocking, before birth and later, is what develops coordination.

Law in Spain allows that an amateur bullfighter can be shot if he tries to test his prowess outside the ring against some bull on the range. Such practice would sharpen up the bullfighter, true. But it would sharpen up the bull, too. A few evil lessons in the field would make a bull too dangerous for your work.

A professional fellow who makes his living by tracking down runaway husbands says No. 2 on that list of what makes men take off is negging. However, he contends it's not nearly so common a cause as No. 1, lack of money. Nothing is so likely to send an old boy on his lonely way as the quilty notion he can't properly come up with the provender.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY He or she will be one of those practical young people who should do well in the field of merchandising, and it would be wise to direct the education along such lines. There is a tendency toward a martyr complex here, so when things go wrong, teach to rise above such things. Give a good spiritual training early in life. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you.

The Gasoline Problem

QUESTION: Have you cut down on driving as a result of the gasoline shortage? Do you plan to curtail vacationing this summer?

MAX HOWELL, Twin Falls:

"Not yet, but I sure plan to. I've got a tankful now, and if that's gone I may cut down."

"It may curtail a couple of trips we had in mind, yes."

"I'd still make necessary trips (if price goes up) but of course the higher it goes, the less I'd drive. If it gets to a dollar a gallon you'd walk a lot more."

TEO GUZMAN, Burley:

"Not that I know, I don't plan to cut down because I need the gas everywhere I go. I've got to cut down on that (vacationing). I go to Florida every year; but I can't go this year because it will take too much money."

ETHAN BROWN, Twin Falls:

"I haven't so far, but I imagine if it keeps up we'll have to. It doesn't look very good for business, does it? Especially not in this state where they've got so many tourists in the summer."

"Yes, I would (any vacations will be effected) because we planned to go on a vacation back to Detroit this summer, but now we're getting leary about it. The wife and I were talking just the other day whether to even start."

"What's going to happen to the farmer?"

LARRY HESS, Twin Falls:

"I've been thinking about selling my car. What's going to happen when they bring out the new electrics? Nobody's going to be able to get a trade-in on their old gas models."

"Pretty soon kids are going to be dragging Main Street on horses, comparing trappings and so on."

"There won't be any communication from town to town. Ten-speed bike salesmen are going to get rich."

"I wonder what the 1984 Ford is going to look like?"

FRANK WARR, Twin Falls:

"Yes, I live here in town and I don't drive very much. I bought a car which gets 30 miles per gallon. That was my solution. It only holds 10 gallons, so I guess they can't short me more than that."

"I think this is only the beginning. Unless the gas companies expand, which they don't seem to be doing since their depletion allowances were cut, it can only go one way."

"I really don't drive anywhere unless I have to. The cheapest vacation I guess is sitting in the home relaxing."

AL DAISS, Buhl:

"No, not particularly. I guess I have to live with it, though."

"Not particularly, no (cutback vacation)."

"I'm concerned but not worried."

"Yes (expects price increases)."

"More or less (has cut back driving to the necessities)."

50 Happy Disney Years Are Here

Walt Disney Productions marks its 50th birthday in 1973.

On Sunday evening, June 3, on NBC-TV, "The Wonderful World of Disney" will kick off the year-long celebration of Walt Disney Productions' golden anniversary with a special hour-long program filled with highlights from more than 50 Disney films that nostalgically recapture "50 Happy Years" of family entertainment inspired by the late Walt Disney.

It was in 1923 that Walt Disney founded his own company, which eventually led to his innovative cinema art form of animation. With the appearance five years later of Mickey Mouse — a cartoon character soon to be known to millions around the world and the symbol of Disney tradition — in the animated short "Steamboat Willie," Disney became a forerunner in the ever-developing motion picture industry.

Now, after 50 years, Walt Disney Productions maintains its lead in the entertainment business.

The empire Disney built began in a garage in Hollywood. There Walt and his brother, Roy, manufactured the first Disney cartoons with a meager initial operating capital of $500. Following the success of Mickey Mouse in later cartoons, the firm expanded. By the mid-thirties, with plans underway for making a feature length, all-color cartoon entitled "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," blueprints for larger facilities in Burbank, California, were fast changing the small company into a major film production studio. "Snow White" was a box office hit. It was praised for its ingeniousness and artistry. The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences gave it a special Academy Award with seven miniature Oscars attached, one for each of the dwarfs.

The money from "Snow White" helped complete the move in 1940 to Burbank, where the studio is still located and from whence a tradition began that influenced the art of motion pictures for decades to come.

While "Snow White" initiated an era of such memorable animated feature films as "Pinocchio," "Dumbo," "Peter Pan," "Fantasia," "Alice in Wonderland" and "Cinderella," it was but one of Disney's major contributions to public entertainment over a half-century span.

Among his other achievements were the creation of cartoons with a live-action star, "Alice Comedies," and the first synchronized sound cartoon, "Steamboat Willie" (1928).

In 1929, "The Skeleton Dance," synchronized animation and classical music. Full color was introduced to animated cartoons with "Flowers and Trees" (1932).

Disney technicians developed the Multiplane Camera in 1937. This unique camera gave animation a three-dimensional quality, showcased in the first cartoon to create an emotional mood, "The Old Mill."

Fantasound, a pioneer form of stereophonic sound, was first heard in 9 tracks in the Disney masterpiece, "Fantasia," in 1940. 1942 saw 95 per cent of the studio's staff engaged in making military training films and designing insignias for the armed forces during the years of World War II.

The combination of live action and cartoon characters in full color came into existence in 1941 with "The Three Caballeros" and the famed True-Life adventure natural science series was introduced with "Sea Island" in 1940.

The first cartoon in 3-D, "Adventures in Music-Melody," arrived in 1952, followed by the first CinemaScope cartoon short, "Toot, Whistle, Plunk and Boom," in 1953.

A year later, the studio's weekly anthology series began on network television, and is the longest running primetime program on TV today. "The Wonderful World of Disney" has consistently rated among the top 15 shows since its inception.

"The Mickey Mouse Club," a daily children's program, premiered in 1955. That year also saw the opening in Anaheim, California, of "Disneyland," which has since played host to more than 116-million visitors.

Following refinements in Circle-Vision, a unique motion picture technique created by Walt Disney Productions that totally surrounded viewers at the Brussels World's Fair in 1958, Disney perfected three-dimensional audio-animatronic figures (animated sculptured figures which move and speak with life-like actions) with "Great Moments With Mr. Lincoln" for the New York World's Fair in 1964. It was also in 1964 at the studio that a new sodium vapor photographic process was invented. This permitted the combination of live-action and animation to be filmed with precise registration as seen in the highly successful "Mary Poppins" and "Bedknobs and Broomsticks," among others.

Most recently, the company opened its $400-million "Walt Disney World" complex in Orlando, Florida. In its first year the amusement park exceeded — estimated attendance records, hosting nearly 11-million guests.

Walt Disney Productions has received commensurate honors for its 50 years of monumental achievements. Disney films have accounted for 61 Academy Awards. The "World of Disney" has won seven Emmys, TV's highest honor of excellence. And more than 1100 plaques, citations and special awards have been bestowed for the company's accomplishments in related fields of endeavor.

Most of these distinguished moments highlight the 50th anniversary show. Among them are vignettes from "Alice in Cartoonland," "Steamboat Willie," "The Old Mill," "Peter and the Wolf," "The Three Little Pigs," "Alice in Wonderland," "Bambi," "Cinderella," "Dumbo," "Fantasia," "Lady and the Tramp," "Sleeping Beauty," "Pinocchio," "Mary Poppins," "The Absent-Minded Professor," "Song of the South," "Swiss Family Robinson," "21" Leagues Under the Sea," "Old Yeller," "Davy Crockett," "Zorro," "The Mickey Mouse Club," "Salt Island," "The Vanishing Prairie," "The African Lion," "The Living Desert," "The Magic of Walt Disney World," "A Day at Disneyland," "The Ugly Duckling," and "Disneyland: Around the Season," plus numerous others.

Shoes Of Fisherman Scheduled For Friday Evening

Anthony Quinn, winner of two Academy Awards, heads a distinguished cast of performers in the exciting motion picture version of Morris L. West's best-seller, "The Shoes of the Fisherman."

"The Shoes of the Fisherman," a three-hour film presentation on "The CBS Friday Night Movies" Friday, June 8 on the CBS Television Network. (Originally presented on the Network on April 2, 1972.)

Laurence Olivier, Oskar Werner, David Janssen, Vittorio De Sica, Leo McKern, John Gielgud, Barbara Jefford and Rosamunde Dexter co-star.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev (Olivier), hoping to establish a Russian sphere of influence in Rome, arranges for the release of political prisoner Kiril Lakota (Quinn), a Catholic archbishop held in a Siberian prison camp for 20 years.

Lakota is first briefed by Khrushchev on the world situation, with emphasis on a serious famine in China that is threatening world peace. Shortly after Lakota's return to Rome, the Pope dies.

Meanwhile, the Chinese begin to mobilize along the Indian and Mongolian borders.

When the Cardinals deadlock in electing a new Pope, Lakota, against his will, is chosen. In his efforts to avert world war, Lakota travels to Outer Mongolia to meet with Khrushchev. When he returns to Rome, he astounds the world with an unprecedented action.

Michael Anderson directed and George Englund produced "The Shoes of the Fisherman." John Patrick and James Kennaway wrote the screenplay for the 1961 MGM release.

Kris Kristofferson Is A Young Man On The Rise

Kris Kristofferson, Texas-born son of an Air Force pilot, who has flown planes in his own life, studied abroad as a Rhodes scholar, taught English at West Point and has written a novel, was completely unknown three years ago. However, within that brief time he has emerged as one of the most influential Nashville-based folk-rock names and is fast making a place for himself as an international film star. He scored an impressive debut in a 1971 film "Cisco Pike," just completed another, "Blume in Love" and currently stars as Billy the Kid in the MGM western, "Pat Garrett and Billy the Kid."

"I just sort of fell into acting in a piece called 'The Last Movie,' which Dennis Hopper directed in Peru. I was down there scoring the music for it when I wound up doing a bit. I found I had a feel for it, acting that is, and when 'Cisco Pike' came along I was glad to accept it. 'Course none of it had a thing on Billy. This is just about the toughest role I've had yet, but I'm hanging in there," he explained while on location in Durango, Mexico.

"Pat Garrett and Billy the Kid" was directed by Sam Peckinpah, from an original screenplay by the novelist and screenwriter, Rudy Wurlitzer. Borden Carroll produced the film, the story of pursuit and confrontation at the end of the last century in the American southwest. It is the tale of two men who once rode together on both sides of the law who find themselves on opposite sides of it. Garrett has become the Sheriff of Lincoln; Billy has remained an outlaw. Arrested, he escapes from Garrett's courthouse cell and kills two of his deputies. The search is then begun; Garrett has to bring him in.

"Billy doesn't run though," Kristofferson points out. "He just sort of drifts around, hanging out at Fort Sumner which is more or less his home. He is something of a drifter which I think is part of his appeal today, part of the thing that makes him attractive even though, let's face it, he is a killer. But I can understand that part of his character, the drifting. I've drifted somewhat myself."

After he left his native Brownsville, Kristofferson attended Pomona College in California, studied in England, passed four and a half years in the U. S. Army in Germany and eventually landed in Nashville where he felt at last he wanted to be. He wrote music while tending bar and working on construction gangs and began to achieve some recognition when such artists as Johnny Cash and the late Janis Joplin recorded some of his songs, most notably "Sunday Morning Coming Down" and "Me and Bobby McGhee." He himself began to record his own material, appeared on TV, cut a few hit albums and wrote and recorded the score for the Mick Jagger film, "Ned Kelley." Then he became involved with "The Last Movie."

While on location, he appeared a friendly, soft-spoken man whose shoulder-length hair, loping gait and slight drawl suggested a man of another era, and most of all, a cowboy. He spoke in a disarmingly unaffected manner, fixing his intelligent, clear blue eyes on you, and looks ten years younger than his thirty some odd years, which is perfect for the part, for the real Billy was gunned down at twenty-one.

"Even though this is an 'action western,' he explained, "all of the characters are three dimensional so it's a challenge making the character convincing. But it's coming along well, I think. Sam and I have worked on the character over and over and I've spent a lot of my free time on a horse, getting the feel of what it must be like being a cowpoke on the move. Then, too, the atmosphere on the set is great 'cause in a way it feels like home. I got a lot of my old friends involved in this, you know."

These friends are none other than Bob Dylan who plays the role of Alias, a Lincoln youth who runs out of town to ride with Billy the Kid's gang, and also Donny Fritz, Kris' long time piano player who plays Beaver, another member of the Bonney gang. Kris also speaks highly of those on the film like Peckinpah and James Coburn (who plays Pat Garrett) whom he did not know before he signed up for the film.

"You should see Sam and I play poker," he laughed. "This feeling of camaraderie is most important for he still feels something of a novice and is interested in the opinions and the experience of his co-workers."

"Man, it's a bit complicated, you know, hitting your mark and working out of sequence, but I feel like I'm mastering it and it feels pretty good."

However, despite the demands of film making and the apparent success he has achieved in it, Kris has no plans to give up his music. Quite the contrary in fact. During the film he took a long weekend and flew to New York to appear at Lincoln Center in concert, a prior commitment. Prior to the start of filming he appeared at the Troubadour in Los Angeles.

"I think the acting helps my music and my music the acting," he concluded.

ABC Boxing Set For July Start

Boxing will return to network television on a weekly basis for the first time in more than a decade, it was announced in New York today by Roonee Arledge, President of ABC Sports, and C. Charles Jowaiszas, Executive Vice President, Madison Square Garden Center.

The seven-week Saturday series, which will spotlight many of the nation's most promising young boxers, debuts Saturday, July 7, 4-5 p.m. PDT. The series will continue through Saturday, Sept. 1, from Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum with the exception of July 28 and Aug. 11. The July 14 program will be televised 3:30-4:30 p.m. PDT.

"The renewal of weekly boxing shows at the Garden will mark the first time a national TV series has emanated from our new building," Jowaiszas said. "I would like to congratulate ABC Sports for its foresight. It is filling a void that has lasted too long for boxing fans around the country. Now television will be giving the people something they want, as a regular attraction, not just now-and-then fights."

Arledge, the award-winning executive producer of the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich, which were also televised by ABC Sports, also expressed enthusiasm for the new boxing series.

"We are very excited about this new boxing series," said Arledge. "Boxing interest has increased greatly in the United States in recent years. Ratings evidence confirms this rejuvenated interest.

"On 'ABC's Wide World of Sports,' it receives significantly higher ratings than any of the other hundred plus sports we cover on that show. The Olympic boxing telecasts from Munich also generated great excitement and interest. ABC feels strongly that there is a good group of young professional fighters in this country who will be performing in this series from Madison Square Garden, the home of boxing. These are boxers people rarely have the opportunity to see on a national basis. I think that TV can play an important role by exhibiting these solid, young professionals on a weekly basis during the summer of 1973."

QUICK CHANGE BOX: From mass to brass - Flip Wilson, deserting his mass audience long enough to be the banquet entertainer for NBC station brass... From duels to jewels - Gene Barry, "Bat Masterson" of the west, involved in the movie jewel robbery "Maroc 7"... From Paring to sparring - Peggy Cass, Jack Paar's announcer, getting an argumentative fiancée on "Love, American Style"... BLACK BOX: Last June, "Sanford and Son" producer Aaron Ruben, on the lookout for blacks capable of writing scripts for the series, saw a New York Times picture of young (24) black playwright Ilunga Adell. Without having seen a word he had written, Ruben phoned Ilunga and asked him to take a crack at a script. The result? Five of last season's "Sanford" episodes were Ilunga's and eight of this season's will be his. "I'm a great believer in destiny," says Ilunga. "I think if you're presented with an opportunity you should capitalize on it." Man, you did.

BOX SCORES: In most cities, these three daytime shows are opposite each other: A. Edge of Night, B. Dating Game, C. The Doctors. Can you put the letters in order according to show ratings? Answer: CAB.

INSIDE THE BOX WORKS: CBS was not blind to those made-for-daytime "movies" on ABC this season. They pulled top ratings. As a result, you are going to see some "experimental movies" this summer on CBS in the late afternoon time slot. A full 90 minutes in length, these will actually be pilots! That's right, if they rack up the kind of ratings CBS has in mind, they will eventually lead to the first 90 minute "soap opera" - and it could be a blockbuster, replacing "Price Is Right", "Hollywood's Talking" and "Secret Storm". This experiment could end up changing the entire face of daytime TV. The beauty of such a 90 minute show would be that if it ever gets a toehold, the other networks would be almost powerless to dislodge it by any other means than to meet it head on. Look out!

OPEN BOX: The networks are not supposed to allow any of their afternoon shows to run into prime time without getting an okay in advance from FCCaesar. But what could ABC do during the Byron Nelson Golf Classic when they were coming up against prime time just as the match went into "sudden-death" playoff? They kept the telecast going, and afterwards begged for approval. But FCCaesar said no; refused to give any after-the-act approval, and warned that if it happens again, ABC gets sudden death!

SOAP BOX: After much more than the usual amount of casting sessions, "Return to Peyton Place" producers finally selected soap opera veteran Charles Saylor to play Tom Dana, a mysterious stranger. It was felt that the slim, brown-eyed Saylor has a special "quality of mystery which makes him ideal for the role." It figures. Any guy who has a name like Saylor and yet chooses to join the Army has got to be mysterious.

TOY BOXTOPS: Up in Canada, they've banned all drug or vitamin commercials directed to kids. What's more, any personality on a kid show is forbidden to do a commercial of any kind, and the only cartoon commercials allowed are those offering public service messages. Odds are, we'll have much the same rulings in the U.S. very shortly.

BOX VOICES: "I don't want to entertain people," says John Denver, June 11 host of Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show." "I want to touch them." For how much?

Should We, As Tax Cheaters And Ticket-Fixers, Expect More Of Our Political Friends?

By RALPH NOVAK

We watch in despairing disbelief the stream of acidic revelations of corruption, scandal and criminal behavior among our elected and appointed government officials. Hardly a day passes without a new wound being opened or an old being scraped.

Former Illinois governor and federal judge Otto Kerner, convicted of bribery. Former US senator Daniel Brewster of Maryland, CONVICTED OF illegal gratuities. The whole state of New Jersey, riddled with so much official misconduct that everyone from close associates of Gov. William Cahill to mayors of the smallest towns are involved in indictments on what appears to be a regular basis. Watergate: a morass, so vast and depressing that it threatens to bog down even the most determinedly optimistic of us. These are our leaders? These are our leaders?

"Things fall apart," Yeats wrote, "the center cannot hold - Mere anarchy is loosed upon the world - The blood-dinned tide is loosed, and everywhere - The ceremony of innocence is drowned."

Maybe it is, after all, high time that we do lose our sense of innocence. For the expectation of innocence, our bizarre willingness to believe that the people who govern us on all levels are "public servants," succeeds only in making us vulnerable to hypocritical disappointment.

Why do we insist on pretending that holders of public office are any more likely than the rest of us to act out of anything other than self-interest? Why do we insist on ignoring the fact that the desires for money and power are crucial in enticing people into public office? Why should a nation of ticket-fixers and police-bribers and tax-cheaters fill itself with righteous indignation at "betrayers of the public trust"? Rather it should chastise itself for failing to keep a close enough eye on the scoundrels in the first place.

We are a people dedicated to individual initiative and enterprise, qualities which often blue the line between the legal and the illegal, the ethical and unethical, the moral and immoral. Aggressiveness counts. "Conscience," said H. L. Mencken, "is the inner voice that warns us somebody may be looking."

So the same Richard M. Nixon who now quails and shivers in the hot glare of the Watergate case was able, as a young congressman in 1948, to bristle with propriety during the investigation of Communist infiltration of the State Department. The Truman administration, Mrs. Nixon charged then, was more interested in concealing "embarrassing" facts than investigating the case. The Justice Department, he cried, was showing "no apparent interest in getting to the real crux of the case."

Why do we insist on pretending that holders of public office are any more likely than the rest of us to act out of anything other than self-interest?

Those sounds you hear are the breaking of windows and snapping of wings. The pigeons are coming home to roost in the glass house.

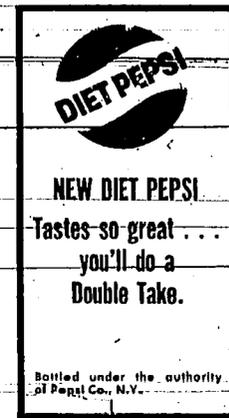

But then who isn't guilty? Few politicians are as frank about it as George Washington Plunkett, an early 20th-century New York politician-millionaire who was fond of drawing fine distinctions between "honors graft" and "dishonest graft." "If my worst enemy was given the job of writin' my epitaph when I'm gone," Plunkitt once said, "he couldn't do more than write: 'George W. Plunkett. He Seen His Opportunities, and He Took 'Em.'"

Not all government officials are corrupt, of course. There are many who perceive that they can achieve success as they define it by working for the good of society. There are others who are afraid of getting caught being corrupted and muddle along doing a more or less honest job. There are still others who would not have enough imagination to recognize an opportunity if it walked up waving a bundle of cash.

But most of them - most of us - subscribe to Plunkitt's philosophy in one form or another. Whether the opportunities lead to money or prestige or power, it is only human to want to take advantage of them.

This doesn't mean that we should shrug off government corruption as inevitable, like the chicken pox or torpedoes. On the contrary, a heightened awareness of the likelihood of corruption in government could lead up to more realistic, effective ways of protecting ourselves from it.

Spoof Movie Is Set On Thursday

The wild comedy team of Marty Allen and Steve Rossi put out all stops in the intemperate spy spoof, "The Last of the Secret Agents," to be seen for the first time on television on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" Thursday, June 7 in color on the CBS Television Network. Nancy Sinatra and Lou Jacobi also appear in the film.

It all starts with a note which passes from the handsome spy to the lady to the frogman to the milkman and many other hands before it mysteriously gets to Marty Johnson (Allen) and Steve Donovan (Rossi), a pair of permanent American tourists in France. Working at odd jobs, and not very successfully, the two are surprised to be called in by an international police force to help track down stolen works of art. The two become instant spies, ineptly mingling with arch professional criminals.

The film was produced and directed by Norman Abbott and written by Mel Tolking for 1968 Paramount release.

"TESTADIRAPA"
 "Testadirapa," prize-winning Italian motion picture about a 19th-century father who tries to keep his son from attending school, will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, June 2 on the CBS Television Network. (This rebroadcast was originally shown as a two-part film Feb. 4 and 11, 1968.)

EXPANSION-REMODELING SALE

For weeks workmen have been preparing the adjoining building to our present facilities so that we can encompass it into our operation, which will give us an additional 25% display area . . . on all three floors. Progress is ahead of schedule. The doors into the new areas were completed last week and we will start on the 'new look' of our present facilities this week.

To facilitate the progress of the workmen and to avoid handling and damage of merchandise, we decided it would be wise to make every effort to clear a large portion of our present display stock.

To help accomplish this we have taken

MARKDOWNS TOTALING $30,000 and almost every department is involved.

Watch for a large colored mailer. It will itemize some of the values being offered.

We ask your indulgence for the next few weeks. We apologize in advance for the untidy appearance of all departments. It is a means to an end — to introduce to Magic Valley this new concept of merchandising Home Furnishings.

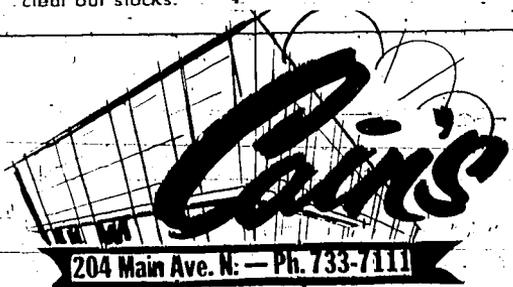

IN ADDITION TO THE IMPORTANCE OF CLEARING MERCHANDISE FOR OUR EXPANSION PROJECT, WE THOUGHT WE WOULD MENTION A FEW ITEMS THAT MIGHT BE OF INTEREST TO YOU.

- We have unloaded into our warehouse a car shipment of famous Wright air coolers for homes and mobile homes and in order to clear them fast we have discounted them about 20%.
- We have far too many chairs so we have discounted them liberally. You might want to layaway one for Father's Day.
- We have several school appliances left and a car of freezers have just arrived. It is important that we move them out fast.
- We are moving our entire carpet department into our new addition, so you'll find drastic markdowns here on our entire roll stock.
- The second floor of our new addition will be our complete Sleep Shop, so to avoid moving our mattress, bunk beds, and sleeper sofas, we would prefer marking them down to a figure that would assure their clearance.
- We are modernizing our entire main floor — lowering the ceiling, etc. You'll love the savings on every item presently displayed in this area.
- Our overstock condition of color t.v. and stereos will assure you a real low price. The 1974 models are coming — We must clear our stocks.

Drop in this week for sure, if for no other reason than to see what we are doing. We think you'll find it interesting.

If you want to make a purchase, you'll never have a better opportunity to save money on most items.

The voice of the informer is heard in the land

Fink (fing), slang. → n. An informer; stool pigeon, a contemptible or thoroughly unattractive person.

By TOM TIEDE
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Armed with shotguns, dressed as wildmen and spouting adolescent bragadoct, federal narcotics agents raided a pair of East St. Louis, Ill., homes last month in what, if not for the terror of it all, would have resembled a replay of the Keystone Kops.

The agents battered furniture, knocked people down and pointed pistols as if to use them. Primly, quickly as they came, they left — mumbling something to one numb homeowner about "being in the wrong damn house."

How could such a thing happen in America? Easy, as one of the unapologetic federal raiders said it: "We just got a bum tip is all."

Is all?
Never mind how it could happen, then, the question may rather be: How is it that such a thing does not happen more frequently in America?

The "bum tip," after all, is given thousands of times daily to law enforcement officers. Along with the "crank tip," the "spite tip" and the "good tip," it has become as much a part of police work as target practice. Long discredited — not to say smelly and unreliable — tool of investigative work, the informant system nonetheless thrives and even appears to be expanding in the land today.

Why? Partly, say police authorities, because increasing numbers of citizens seem only too anxious to squeal on their neighbors. Sociologists might equate the phenomenon with the modern nomadic trends — one of five U. S. families move every year — which help create neighborhoods of strangers. Others believe prime-time TV is forming an audience of grubby gumshoes ("You get two kinds of shoes on TV," says an FBI agent, "cops and robbers or robbers-and-cops").

Still others feel that the general shakeup in American values has resulted in the burial of old-time fair play — says one newsmen familiar with the recent East St. Louis raid mistake: "We're becoming a nation of finks."

But if the public is more willing to rat these days, it is in good part due to governmental encouragement. Every federal agency with investigatory powers (and what agency, as they say, doesn't have investigatory powers?) uses and sometimes abuses the informer system. In fact, they are lifting the tactic to something of an awful art.

The FBI has been known to wire informers for sound. Immigration authorities have trained foreign ne'er-do-wells to first sell illicit items to smugglers and then turn the same smugglers in. The Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs not only pays informers handsomely, but adds fringe benefits, "moving them from city to city or from country to country if necessary."

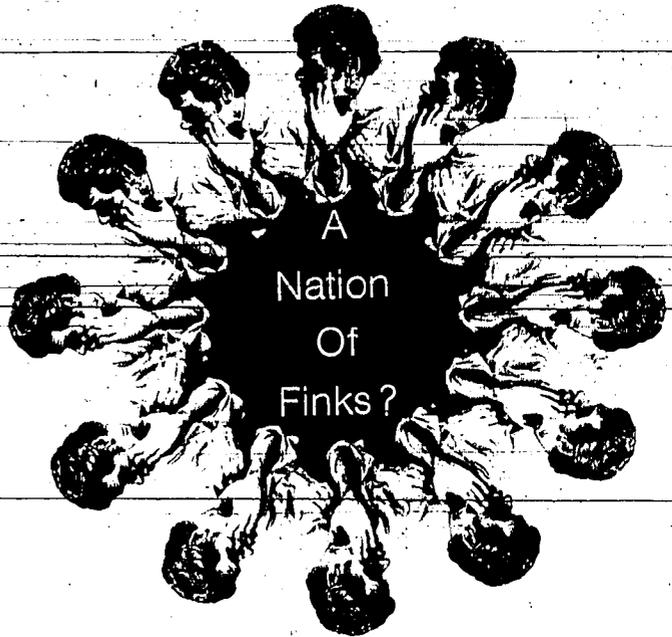

As for protecting squealers, the Justice Department recently requested the 25 federal jobs be made available to informant-witnesses who may have to be moved to Washington for their health or well being.

The most flourishing of the modern informant techniques is the "hotline" procedure. It is perhaps also the most abused. Used for years by local police seeking private information on specific capers, the anonymous phone tip is now national in scope. Dozens of cities have set up special numbers to call for everything from drug control to "runaway" reports. So too has the federal government. For more than a year the Nixon administration's Drug Abuse Law Enforcement Agency (DALE) has been receiving an average of 90 calls a day over its 800 number "Heroin Hotline." The idea, says DALE director Miles Ambrose, is to encourage good citizens to turn in their local drug pushers.

Indeed, many have been doing just that. DALE information director Robert Feldkamp says that in a recently measured 13-month period the hotline had recorded 26,788 calls, more than 24,500 of them considered significant. Ambrose calls the record "excellent." As many as 400 arrests have reportedly been made from the hotline tips, 50 which included other crimes besides drug abuse, and one which resulted in an alleged killer being captured.

But if the results of the Heroin Hotline have been "excellent," they have also been highly criticized. One Washington civil liberties attorney says the operation smacks of Nazi Germany: "What the hell kind of government asks its people to spy on each other? Hitler did it. Now Nixon does it!"

The inherent potential for disaster, add others, is high.

What kind of government asks its people to spy on each other?

The tragic Missouri raid of last month, for example, was the result of an erroneous tip to DALE's regional office.

For his part, DALE's Ambrose minimizes the philosophic aspects of his hotline. A stocky Irishman from New York, with P. S. 109 bravado, he says he was warned on the classic Victor McLaglen movie "The Informer" (in which an Irish rebel turns a pal in to police only to have pangs of conscience), but suffers no such fink-hating scruples himself.

He says "drug people are the very vermin of humanity," thus suggests that it takes low tactics to catch low life. We think, he adds, hotline tipsters are "the least odious" method of catching criminals.

Others in government, operating similar informant systems, are not so confident as Ambrose about the morality of their doings. The Internal Revenue Service, for one, has long had a "bounty-informant" system for which there is precious little official liking. Says an official IRS statement on the Tax Informant policy: "The Revenue Service is fully aware of the distasteful implications to Americans of any actions which involve the spying of one individual on another." For this reason the policy is seldom publicized and never encouraged. "The law says we have to use it," adds one official, "otherwise . . ."

Suspense Feature Of Monday Show

Gene Barry, Elsa Martinelli and Cyd Charisse star in "Maroc 7," a mystery-adventure filmed on location in Morocco, on the ABC Television Network's "ABC Monday Night Movie," June 4.

Leslie Phillips, Denholm Elliott and Alexandra Stewart also star in this tale of international jewel thieves and an undercover government agent.

In "Maroc 7," secret agent Simon Grant (Barry) uses his skill as a safecracker to join an international gem smuggler (Cyd Charisse) and her team on an expedition to Morocco for the theft of an ancient jeweled medallion.

The operation also involves the services of a top fashion model (Elsa Martinelli), a professional thief and killer (Leslie Phillips), a Moroccan police inspector (Denholm Elliott), and his beautiful assistant (Alexandra Stewart).

The theft is successful. However, Morocco is often called "The double-crossroads of the world," and a series of betrayals leads to multiple murders and a final showdown in a deserted Berber fortress.
