Demos back base wage hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Democrats hoped today to pass their minimum wage bill that would raise the hourly rate 60 per cent and extend coverage to an estimated 5.4 million additional workers.

The bill would boost the $1.60 minimum wage to $2.20 an hour in one year and extend protection of the law to 1 million domestics and 4.4 million local, state and federal government workers.

Sandman wins GOP primary race

TRENTON, N. J. (UPI) — Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr. defeated Gov. William T. Cahill in the New Jersey Republican primary election Tuesday.

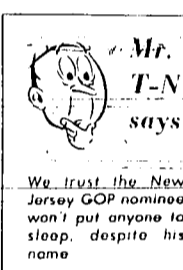

A mushrooming scandal over funding of Cahill's 1969 campaign was cited as a factor in the upset. Sandman will meet Democrat Brendan T. Byrne, a former judge, in the November general election.

UN takes up Mideast again

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The Security Council assembled today for the start of a general review of the Middle East crisis with Egypt expected to lead off by calling for new concerted efforts to restore peace to the area.

But diplomatic sources said Egypt would repeat that peace cannot come at the cost of Arab territorial concessions to Israel.

Foreign Minister Mohamed Hassan el-Zayyat was the scheduled first speaker in the review with Israel the second speaker.

Greek referendum pledged

ATHENS (UPI) — The government pledged Tuesday to hold a free, fair referendum on the future of the monarchy that self-appointed President George Papadopoulos abolished last week.

But opponents of the military-backed government said the republic Papadopoulos announced when he abolished the monarchy would stand no matter how Greeks vote.

Government spokesman Vyron Stamatopoulos said Papadopoulos guaranteed a free and fair referendum on constitutional clauses to transform the monarchy into a presidential republic.

Klein quits White House post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Herbert G. Klein resigned Tuesday as White House communications director to become vice president of Metromedia, Inc.

Klein, 55, has been a friend and associate of President Nixon for 27 years. His resignation is effective July 1. He has held his present job since 1969 and was press secretary when Nixon was vice president.

Henry, Tho resume Viet talks

PARIS (UPI) — Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger opened a new and possibly final round of talks today with Le Duc Tho of Hanoi, seeking to turn the Vietnam cease-fire agreement into a genuine Indochina peace.

The meeting began at a Communist-owned villa in suburban Gif-sur-Yvette at 11 a.m. Kissinger and Tho both expressed guarded optimism in statements Tuesday that this time they could nail down the truce.

Before the meeting, the two sides spent an unusually long session shaking hands. When the teams went into the villa, a North Vietnamese camera team went with them.

Chaperones were invited to the final session of the talks which produced the original Jan. 27 peace pact, but no sources were willing to say its appearance today was specially significant.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon announced today that Melvin R. Laird would return to the administration as his chief domestic adviser and that Gen. Alexander M. Haig would retire from the Army to be a presidential assistant.

In a further shake-up of the White House staff, decreed by resignations and firings as a result of Watergate disclosures, Nixon also gave Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler higher responsibilities as a presidential assistant.

Laird, lured out of temporary retirement, will take over the job formerly held by John D. Ehrlichman, who resigned April 30 along with three other top administration aides including Nixon's staff chief, H.R. "Bob" Haldeman.

Haig, who will retire from the Army Aug. 1, has been filling Haldeman's shoes. It was not stated specifically that Ziegler would now become chief of staff on a permanent basis, but informed sources said that was highly probable.

Ziegler will continue to hold the title of press secretary, but also will have two other titles — assistant to the President and director of communications. Herbert G. Klein, longtime Nixon associate, announced his long-expected resignation Tuesday as communications chief.

Bryce N. Harlow also has been a veteran craftsman in improving relations between the White House and Capitol Hill. The sources said that Nixon's press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, might be elevated to a position as assistant to the President, while maintaining overall supervision of White House press relations.

His staff fiddled as a result of the Watergate scandal, Nixon worked behind the scenes to bring into the administration men with political acumen who are respected in Washington official circles.

The President wanted a "fresh, new image," sources said, to try to wipe out the after-effects of Watergate.

Nixon already has brought into the White House as a part-time consultant former Secretary of Treasury John B. Connally, a strong adviser who apparently played an important role in reassessing the administration's measures to curb inflation.

Nixon and his wife were able to put Watergate concerns aside temporarily Tuesday night in entertaining their old friends, President and Mrs. William R. Tolbert Jr. of Liberia.

Astros practice for repair walk

HOUSTON (UPI) — With their spare station power, supply slowly deteriorating, Skylab's astro-repairmen today rehearsed in the safety of the lab the tricky spacewalk planned Thursday to fix a vital solar electric generator.

Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz worked in the cavernous workshop portion of Skylab, discussing the makeshift procedures with backup commander Russell L. Schweickart on the ground.

They put together a 25-foot handrail from five poles they carried up to rig an outside sunshade, and they had a long-handled bolt cutter and an assortment of other tools, ropes and space station odds and ends for the attempt to open the power wing.

All three astronauts fired question after question at Schweickart, who worked out the procedures during underwater simulations.

"We've got a lot of info we plan on passing up to you," Schweickart said.

Probers gain cooperation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Watergate Committee said today it had been given full cooperation by the White House so far with respect to records of President Nixon's conversations with his former legal counsel, John W. Dean.

The committee's chief counsel, Samuel Dash, said there was no present intention to try to subpoena such logs. Dash indicated at the outset of today's Watergate hearing session that there had been a misunderstanding of remarks he made Tuesday to newsmen about a subpoena being prepared to try to force release of the logs.

Dash issued a written statement saying: "Neither I nor the committee has issued any statement that such a subpoena is being served on the White House. The committee does plan to seek such information."

"However, all communications between the committee and the White House concerning the appearance of White House staff members before the committee or the production of documents have taken place through informal discussions between the chief counsel and Mr. Leonard Garment, counsel to the President."

"To this day, the committee has received full cooperation with all its requests."

MV crashes kill 7

Seven people were killed in two grinding Magic Valley traffic accidents Tuesday and today.

Idaho State police said six persons were killed in a head-on collision near Sublett, 42 miles south of Burley on Interstate 80N Tuesday afternoon. And vehicles driven by two 18 year old friends collided early this morning east of Buhl, killing one of the youths and leaving the other seriously injured.

State police identified the victims of the Sublett accident as a Boise woman and her four daughters, Mrs. William (Orpha) Reese, 42; Petra Reese, 7; Peggy Reese, 11; Robyn Reese, 15, and Tracy Reese, 19, driver of the family station wagon.

The other victim in the Sublett wreck was Benice Didericksen, 59, a passenger in the car driven by her husband, DeLawn Lewis Didericksen, 60, Burley.

He was the lone survivor of the grim accident, but was listed in fair condition today in Cassia Memorial Hospital.

The man killed at about 12:30 a.m. today east of Buhl was Melvin Perkins Matkin, 18, Route 2, Buhl. Ronald Lee Berry, 18, Filer, was in fair condition today.

State police investigating the accident near Sublett said it occurred in a two-way section of the interstate.

Officers said DeLawn Lewis Didericksen, who was traveling north, pulled out to pass a pickup truck and collided head on with the southbound station wagon driven by Miss Reese.

The pickup truck, driven by Ruth Ann Wood, Burley, was not involved in the accident.

Officers estimated both vehicles were traveling at about 65 miles per hour when they collided. The Reese vehicle spun completely around and came to rest facing south again. The other spun around and came to rest facing west. Officers said all but Tracy Reese apparently died instantly. She died shortly after arrival at Cassia Memorial Hospital.

Officers said the Reese family was traveling to visit relatives in Bountiful, Utah, while William Reese, the father and husband was in Kansas City, Mo. at the time.

Everett Pardew, in charge of the state police checking station at Cottersville, was the first officer at the scene of the Sublett accident. He said when he arrived both drivers were out of the vehicles and both were semi-conscious.

Both lanes of the highway were blocked by the wreckage and gasoline was pouring from the station wagon. He said the vehicles were not moved until the Malta fire truck arrived at the scene and washed the gasoline from the highway. In spite of the hazard, he said, neither vehicle caught fire.

The roadway, a two-lane section in the interstate under construction, was blocked for nearly three hours and automobiles were routed around the site via the borrow pit but large trucks, unable to negotiate the detour were backed up.

Pardew said it is the worst accident he has witnessed on that section of highway.

He said Didericksen, who pulled out to pass a vehicle, apparently was under the impression he was still traveling on a divided section of the Interstate.

State Patrolman Duane Owen said young Matkin was traveling west on U. S. Highway 30 about four and one half miles east of Buhl when his car collided with the one driven east by Berry.

Berry, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Berry, Filer, had been to Wendell to visit a girl friend and was returning home, officers said. Parents of the two boys told officers they were friends and had lived near each other in Filer for a number of years before the Matkin family moved to Buhl recently.

Dollar up Ex-aide OK'd wiretaps

LONDON (UPI) — The price of gold in London dropped today and the dollar improved at the start of trading on Europe's seamy money markets, where gold over the past several weeks has skyrocketed and the dollar has crumpled.

But today in London, the world's most important bullion market, gold opened at $122 an ounce and quickly dropped to an official fixing of $121 — down a full $5 from Tuesday's close of $126. The metal hit a record $129 at one point Tuesday.

By New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — John D. Ehrlichman, President Nixon's former chief domestic adviser, authorized a series of espionage missions and at least two previously undisclosed illegal wiretaps.

Beginning in 1969, they were carried out by an ad hoc White House intelligence group, officials knowledgeable about the Watergate investigation said today.

In addition, the officials said, detailed planning for a number of White House-ordered burglaries was authorized by Ehrlichman, although it could not be learned whether any such burglaries — including a planned foray into the Brookings Institution here — actually took place.

Most of the operations were coordinated by John J. Caulfield and Anthony T. Ulasevich, two former New York City policemen who began working for the White House in early 1969, the officials said, including a clandestine investigation into the alleged organized crime background of Mario Biaggi, who was defeated in Monday's New York rat primary.

In addition, Ehrlichman's and Caulfield's informal White House group — described by knowledgeable sources as a precursor of the 1971 "plumbers" operation set up by Nixon to investigate the Pentagon Papers leak.

Aide's choice: perjury or take 5th

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Nixon campaign treasurer Hugh W. Sloan Jr. testified today that he felt he either had to perjure himself or invoke the Fifth Amendment after the Watergate bugging in order to remain in the good graces of the President's re-election committee.

Sloan told the Senate Watergate committee that he was suspicious something was wrong in the Nixon re-election camp in the spring of 1972 when he was ordered to disburse hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash for unknown and unspecified purposes.

He said he voiced his concern to White House aides at a cocktail party six days after the June 17 break-in at the Watergate, and finally, a day before he quit, to former Commerce Secretary Maurice N. Stans, Nixon's finance chairman, and Frederick LaRue, the special assistant to former Attorney General John N. Mitchell.

Sloan, 31, a former White House staff assistant, said that deputy campaign manager Jeb Stuart Magruder told him that he might have to commit perjury in any testimony about the amount of money disbursed to G. Gordon Liddy.

"It's obvious to me that there is a climate of suggestion, in the case of perjury I can trace to Mr. Magruder, and in regard to the Fifth," Sloan said he told LaRue. "It was obvious to me that if I were to stay in the good graces of the campaign organization, I would have to do one."

"I was prepared to do neither," Sloan said, and that Stans advised him not to discuss the matter by telephone but to wait until morning.

Sloan said Stans then told FBI agents the next morning that Sloan had resigned as campaign treasurer — before Sloan actually did resign. Sloan then quit later that day, and by the end of July had relayed his suspicions to federal prosecutors and the Watergate grand jury.

Sloan also told the senators he was informed "you don't want to know" when he asked why Mitchell approved funneling huge sums of cash to Liddy last spring.

Twin Falls County jail panel requests changes

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls County Jail Committee have asked architect Ivan Stone to modify plans for the remodeling of the jail.

Merl Leonard, chairman of the committee, said a meeting to review the plans Monday resulted in the request. Stone was asked today to redesign the fire escape exit for the fourth floor and to consider a sprinkler system for the first, second and third floors as an alternative to building fire walls which would change the entire appearance of the old building.

Leonard said the committee also met with Twin Falls City fire marshal Fred Higgins who approved such an alternative plan. He said a fire escape from the present kitchen area, designed to provide a maximum amount of security when in use and to prevent escape of prisoners, will be prepared by the architect.

This plus a sprinkler system would eliminate other extensive remodeling of the first three floors as called for in the original plan, officials said.

Other members of the committee include the two other county commissioners, Mayor Ted Pence, Buhl, and Mayor Von Nebeker, Kimberly, Sheriff Paul Corder, Paul Ostyn and Tom Nelson representing the Twin Falls City Council, and County Clerk Harold Lancaster.

Leonard said efforts are being made to get the reconstruction program underway as soon as possible. "It will provide separate juvenile detention quarters and more cell space for both men and women."

"We need it now," Leonard said, "and we hope to have construction going this summer."

Caller threatens ship

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The FBI arrested a former major league baseball player Tuesday on charges of trying to extort $250,000 from a steamship line with a threat that bombs were aboard a passenger liner at sea.

Officers on the Island Princess, carrying 850 persons, said they searched and found suspicious packages on the bridge and in the engine room and threw them overboard, the FBI reported.

Gerald E. Priddy 53, former second baseman for the Detroit Tigers, the New York Yankees and other teams, was arrested when he tried to pick up the ransom money at a drop, the FBI said.

According to the FBI, the captain of the Island Princess reported that "two live bombs were located aboard the vessel and disposed of at sea."

But a spokesman for the ship's owner, Princess Lines, said later it was not certain whether the packages contained explosives or not. The FBI could not say what information the report of "live bombs" was based on.

The liner was last reported sailing southward off the coast of Baja California, Mexico, about 300 miles south of San Diego, Calif., with a Coast Guard plane "keeping watch" overhead. It carries about 825 passengers and 325 crewmen, said a spokesman for Princess Cruises steamship lines.

An extortionist made "a series of calls—four or five or more" to the line's office here

Tuesday, demanding the money in return for information on the whereabouts of the explosives, the spokesman said.

"At first he just said there was a bomb aboard one of our ships," the spokesman said, so the line radioed a warning to the captain of both its vessels at sea, the Island Princess and the Princess Italy, which was on a four-day party cruise near the Guadalupe Islands off the west coast of Mexico.

The FBI was notified immediately, and an open circuit establish between the FBI bureau in Los Angeles and the captain of the Island Princess, Eric Bjurstedt. The Princess ships are based in the United States but registered in Norway and sail with Norwegian operating crews and Italian service personnel.

The liner turned toward the Mexican coast so it would be closer to shore in case of an emergency, the Coast Guard reported. But once the "objects" were found and thrown overboard, the ship continued toward its scheduled stop at Puerto Vallarta, Mexico where it was due to arrive Thursday morning.

The passengers were told of the threat while crewmen searched the ship, the Princess line's spokesman said. "There was total calm, and everybody cooperated," he said.

Around 8 p.m., sailors found the objects, one on the bridge and one in the engine room.

The FBI told the captain not to try to open the packages, but to throw them into the sea, the spokesman said. The FBI described the packages as cylinders about 4 inches long and about the same diameter. The FBI said the packages were wrapped in brown paper. The Coast Guard said they were wrapped in grey tape.

The FBI handled negotiations with the extortionist, the line said, including all details of where the money should be left. Agents said Priddy was arrested when he retrieved the package at a location in the area of Burbank, where Priddy runs a sales promotion office, Jerry Priddy and Associates.

He was scheduled to be arraigned today on a charge of extortion, which carries a penalty of up to 20 years in prison, the FBI said.

Priddy confirmed to his jailers that he was the former baseball star, police said. Sportswriters and organized baseball officials also said Priddy was the former second baseman.

Vandals damage parks

TWIN FALLS — City Manager Jean Milar has appealed for citizen assistance in curbing vandalism to public property.

Milar asked Tuesday that Twin Falls citizens report indications of vandalism in parks and other public property as a means of reducing the impact of a wave of damage which occurs annually with the arrival of warmer weather.

Struck in recent days were Cascade Park, South Park and Shoshone Falls Park, Milar said. At Cascade Park, one tree was run over by a vehicle, climbers broke limbs on several other trees, and a fire damaged a trash receptacle. In South Park, a flagpole was smashed, and picnic tables and benches were destroyed at Shoshone Falls.

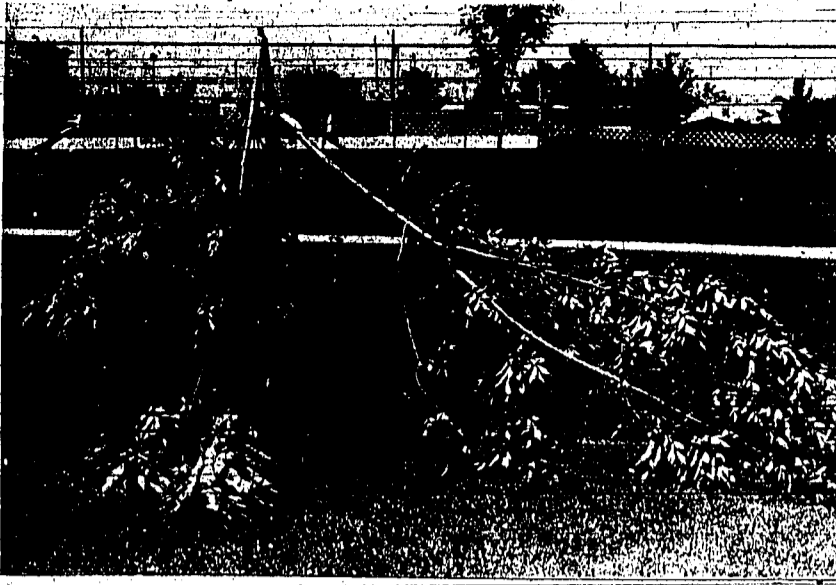

"We would appreciate it if citizens would keep an eye out for instances of vandalism and report them as soon as possible so a rapid investigation may be made and those responsible for the damage be apprehended," Milar said.

Complaints or reports of vandalism may be made to the Twin Falls police, the city parks department or the city manager's office.

"We would hope that the knowledge they may be seen and reported would deter the perpetrators of these deeds," Milar said. He said citizens have a stake in reducing vandalism because the cost of repairing the damage comes from taxes they have paid.

Much of the damage apparently occurs after dark or at times when parks personnel or patrolling police are not in the vicinity of parks or public property.

Head injuries are the cause of most motorcycle fatalities, according to the National Automobile Club.

3 Hailey youths face charges

HAILEY — Petitions have been filed against three Hailey juveniles in connection with the theft of about $300 in goods from a Hailey grocery store. According to Hailey Police Chief Doug Williams, two 16-year-old Hailey boys have been charged with receipt of stolen property and a 17-year-old Hailey boy has been charged with embezzlement. All have been released to parental custody, he said. Williams said the alleged embezzlement occurred at the Triple S over the past four weeks and included between 35 and 40 cases of beer, wine and grocery commodities. Petitions are pending against several other juveniles in connection with the incident, Williams said.

producers will have their choice of prizes donated by local businesses. The June contest ends at 6 p.m. June 30, with the second one running from July 3-31, and the final event during August to conclude at 5 p.m. Aug. 31.

Other kinds of aluminum are welcome and will be accepted, but cannot be used toward the prizes, Smith said. He said Olympic cans should be kept separate. Assisting Smith are Huzz Langdon, directing special events including the aluminum can contest; Mrs. Harold Gerber, commercial collections; Dale Pippitt, storage and sales, and Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Buck, who are in charge of signs and posters to publicize the event.

Other events planned to raise between $5,000 and $10,000 needed to complete the pool include a family carnival set for June 23 at the Y parking lot. Free tickets will be given persons bringing aluminum cans for the pool.

River run slated

MURTAUGH — The Murtaugh Lake Water Ski association heard plans for a river run to C. J. Strike Dam July 8 at a meeting Monday night.

Other events planned include potluck dinner Sunday at Murtaugh Lake. The next club meeting will be July 1 at Murtaugh Lake.

CSI gets 20% cut in study funding

By LORAYNE SMITH Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho probably will request a supplemental work-study grant, in view of a 20 percent cut in funds for next year. The college will receive $158,241 in work-study funds for 341 for next year. It was announced Monday. This is $100,000 less than was asked for, according to David Perkins, director of student personnel services.

This past year about 400 students were involved in the program which was operating on a $198,000 grant. Perkins said the amount of the grant has increased each year since it started with about 200 students involved.

He said CSI will be particularly squeezed since the college has initiated a Talent Search program to recruit students from disadvantaged backgrounds. Last year about 80 youths in this category were enrolled and they are expected to reach 200 for the coming year.

There is a good chance that some of them will be unable to continue school without help from the work-study program, Perkins said. Nearly all will be eligible for the assistance.

He said the way the program operates, you start at the bottom, so the most needy students will receive the money first, probably cutting out students whose parents are in the $8,000 to $10,000 category.

Proprietary schools, such as beauty colleges and business colleges, are now eligible for the work-study grants, he said.

Repairs begin on Rupert store

RUPERT — Repair was under way Tuesday afternoon at Russell's Grocery following a fire which caused extensive damage to the store early Tuesday morning.

The fire was reported at 5:30 a.m. and was believed to have been caused by faulty wiring. According to Ray Saras, the store owner, damage from flames was confined to the attic portion of the building. The Rupert Fire Department did a commendable job, Saras said. "If they had gotten there maybe five minutes later we might have lost the whole thing." Water and smoke damage destroyed almost everything except the canned foods, according to Saras, even though the fire did not burn into the lower area of the store.

Bids for the rebuilding are being taken and Saras hopes to be operating again in four or five weeks. Damage to food and the building has not been estimated.

WASHINGTON — Remember the hulloaloo! In January, when this Congress convened, about extensively revising and modernizing House rules and practices; how things were going to be greatly changed and improved?

Well, five months have elapsed and nothing of any real consequence has happened — and from all indications there is no likelihood anything will

In effect, everything is pretty much as it used to be. The loudly-assailed seniority rules untouched and as potent and pervasive as ever; the top-heavy committees with numerous sub-committees, each with its own well-paid staff, are the same; and basically so are the old rules and procedures.

There has been some minor tinkering — none of it of any moment. Such as "marking up" bills (drafting them) in open session instead of closed meetings. And a few other unimportant modifications.

And that's the whole story — of what five months ago was headline stuff. The reason: the would-be sweeping reformers were long on talk but short on power. They could make headlines, and that's all.

Other words, they were the outs trying to get in, and they didn't make it.

The ins, meaning committee chairmen and other power wielders, gave no ground — and clearly have no intention of doing so. It took them a long time to attain their power bases, and they emphatically propose to firmly hold on to them.

For appearances sake, they may make some inconspicuous concessions. But that's all. And that is exactly what has happened so far.

Further, the reformers (the outs) can't do anything about it. They haven't got what it takes — power. When it comes to the decisive showdowns, their clangorous tirading is just so much hot air.

The power wielders have the last word where it counts — deciding what is and isn't done.

This fact of life on Capitol Hill is currently being graphically demonstrated in the proceedings of a special House committee studying the overblown and immensely costly committee system — last reorganized 25 years ago.

While problems and issues are now vastly different than in 1948, and presumably that calls for extensive reshuffling of committees and jurisdictions, you would never know it from the attitude of committee chairmen. As far as they are concerned, the only changes they deem necessary are in expanding their authority and scope.

In other words, they are all for reorganizing and modernizing — for the other guy.

Following are characteristic illustrations:

Rep. W. R. (Bob) Poage, D-Tex., 74, serving his 19th term and chairman of the Agriculture Committee for more than a decade, readily admitted that the "jurisdictions of many committees could perhaps stand some realignment to make them more appropriate to the times."

But in the next breath, the veteran legislator hung a big reservation on that. He wanted it emphatically understood he was not talking about his committee. Far from it. In fact, Poage thought his panel has jurisdiction over such supervisions. Declared Horton indignantly:

"Over-sight and investigations are the functions of the Government Operations Committee."

That contention promptly drew a sharp rejoinder from Rep. Frank Horton, N.J., ranking Republican member of the Government Operations Committee. "Firstly," he retorted Perkins; and the special committee, that his panel has jurisdiction over such supervisions. Declared Horton indignantly:

"Over-sight and investigations are the functions of the Government Operations Committee."

Of course there are editors in both newspaper and broadcast fields who abuse this right and power, although their number is fewer than some critics would have us believe. But if their abuses become too flagrant, the law says such editors can be made to answer for them before the appropriate agency. The rabble rouser of whatever political persuasion has nothing to lose but his self-respect, if any.

The Planner

We go along with City Manager Jean Milar who contends a planner is needed for both Twin Falls City and County.

Mr. Milar has recommended an available "kitty" of about $40,000 — $20,000 from the city and a like amount from the county. Sounds like a lot of money but in reality, it isn't.

That will be a start financially. Getting an experienced planner at a salary of around $20,000 will be quite difficult. Staff financial considerations and expenses will have to be above that. But if you want an experienced person — one who knows what they are doing from actual experience and not just from "book" reading — you will pay for it. And for the benefit of all our citizens an experienced person is a must.

A planner, we feel, is needed before all the "progress" gets out of hand. So let's get at it.

We would add, with difficulties developing in Jerome and Blaine counties, the citizens there might well consider such a course. Once some distasteful projects get started they are difficult to stop. Beneficial projects are what is needed and a good planner could lead the way.

This job can no longer be done by volunteer citizens who donate their time and effort along that line. Although their hearts are in the right place, they must take care of their own jobs first.

Poor Reader

In a first-of-its-kind case, the San Francisco Unified School District is being sued to the tune of $1 million in damages by an unidentified student called "Peter Doe," who charges that he was graduated from high school with the ability to read only at a fifth-grade level.

His mother also alleges that school officials defrauded her by repeatedly assuring her that her son was progressing normally in school.

"Peter Doe" is an 18-year-old white, middle-class student who attended school regularly, was never held back a grade and was not considered a disciplinary problem.

Essentially, the suit rests on the contention that under California law the state is responsible for minimum educational standards and establishing a system which turns out students who meet those standards.

According to the plaintiff's attorney, Susanne Martinez of San Francisco's Youth Law Center, "This case is the first of what will undoubtedly be a series of this type — a forerunner of an effort on the part of parents and citizens to use the judicial system to focus on the fact that the schools have failed to provide the Peter Does of this country with the kind of education to which they are entitled."

Freed To Farm

American farmers have been set free to farm.

This year, they will be allowed by law to plant as much as they like of wheat and corn, grain sorghums and barley — and soybeans.

And they will plant more — 24 million acres more — this year than last.

Is this the way to bring food prices down?

This is a historic turnaround in government policy relating to agriculture.

Ever since Franklin D. Roosevelt, our farmers have been checkmated by federal restraints on how much they could produce of major crops in an effort to avert surpluses.

Always heretofore American farmers have been capable of keeping ahead of our appetite.

Three factors changed that: First, our own population expansion is overflowing agricultural areas.

Second, worldwide demand for American farm products and the economic need to reverse the outflow of American dollars by selling food and feed grains to other nations.

Third, the soggiest, slushiest, muddiest, most miserable growing year in modern history.

Untold thousands of acres of grain had to be left standing unharvested in the mud. We'll not recover from that loss for many months — and some bankrupt farmers never will.

So food prices soared out of sight and no amount of federal price control can increase the supply. On the contrary, rigid federal controls at an unrealistic level could discourage the farmer from going all-out next year.

Glen Weir of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, which administers crop controls, believes that our best bet for driving prices down is to encourage farmers in every way we can to plant and harvest more of everything.

This year our nation's gigantic food factory will be producing as near to capacity as any factory could on short notice.

Next year's grocery store prices could again be affected by weather; we can't yet control that.

Another imponderable is how many railroad cars can be mobilized in time to haul fertilizer to the farms and crops to market.

will plant and harvest 10 per cent more corn, 10 per cent more wheat, 15 per cent more soybeans. Those percentages should be adequate to drive food and feed prices down to their levels of a year ago or lower.

Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz says we are now gambling on the side of producing too much, but we dare not gamble on the side of too little.

There is one more "if" in our food price outlook: We'll be able to produce more food for less unless labor this spring drives higher the prices of everything the farmer must buy to stay in business.

ANDREW TULLY

New Ruling

WASHINGTON — Rising above the hysteria in some quarters, which demands that a captive public be subjected to the ravings of any lunatic world savior, the Supreme Court has ruled by 7 to 2 that radio and television stations may refuse to sell time to groups or individuals wishing to air controversial views.

In effect, the ruling was a vote against censorship. As Chief Justice Warren Burger noted, the idea of letting everyone be his own broadcaster would unduly restrict day-to-day editorial decisions of broadcast stations by removing "journalist discretion."

He was saying that the broadcast media no less than the nation's newspapers are entitled to the First Amendment's freedom from government regulation.

Just as important, Burger spoke to the matter of accountability. Both newspapers and broadcast stations are accountable for what they publish or put on the air. Permitting any nut to buy time, said Burger, "would be a further erosion of the journalistic discretion of broadcasters in the coverage of public issues" in that it would transfer control over the treatment of those issues to private individuals who are not accountable unless they commit libel.

Predictably, Justices William Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall came up with another of their silly dissents. The Court's ruling, they wrote, "reverses traditional First Amendment priorities" by giving fewer access rights to persons with political message than to those with a commercial message.

What absolute drive! Radio and TV commercials are often offensive, illiterate and, recently, even subtly prurient. But they do not take a stand on controversial issues involving what Brennan and Marshall call "war, peace, pollution or the suffering of the poor."

Admittedly, some of the products commercials seek to sell are inferior and, in the patent medicine field, more than occasionally harmful to the public's health. But they do not seek to influence the vote or the political state of mind of their audiences.

On the other hand, forcing broadcasters to sell time for the expression of editorial opinions might well imperil the Republic's safety. Extremists at both ends of the political spectrum always seem to have enough dough to buy newspaper space or air time to disseminate their ideological madnesses. Thus, as Burger noted, unfettered access to broadcast time might allow "the views of the affluent to prevail over those of others."

God knows the rich already have too much of a leg up on the poor when it comes to selling their self-serving opinions. I do not wish the time to come when a broadcast station is required by law to make air time available to some well-heeled neo-Nazi outfit or a Communist conspiracy financed by one of those foolish billionaires with which the country seems to abound.

In fact, the issue is not one between radical and reactionary. It involves the First Amendment's guarantee of a free press, which now covers the broadcast media. That guarantee gives newspapers and broadcast stations the right to edit their output by selection of the material to be contained in that output. Absolute free access to air time would infringe this right by forcing the editor to print or broadcast material offensive to his editorial judgment.

Of course there are editors in both newspaper and broadcast fields who abuse this right and power, although their number is fewer than some critics would have us believe. But if their abuses become too flagrant, the law says such editors can be made to answer for them before the appropriate agency. The rabble rouser of whatever political persuasion has nothing to lose but his self-respect, if any.

Gas Shortage? Really?

Mrs. Spectator accompanied me to Pocatello the other day. True to the trust the gasoline manufacturers are putting in people to drive slow to save gasoline — we did just that.

We kept the old gashog at 60 miles an hour, instead of the legal 70 miles an hour. Sometimes it seemed we were practically standing still, but then we were saving gasoline.

After taking care of the business at hand in Pocatello, we thought we should get a little gas before starting home. Several stations were closed but one on the west side of Pocatello — in fact only two blocks from the center of town — was open. It was a station of a major company.

We drove in. Two attendants walked up and I opened the door and said "can we have five?"

"Five dollars worth?" asked one of the fellows.

"No, just five gallons. I want to make it easy on you," I answered.

And with this the two guys looked at each other as though they were listening to some kind of a nut.

"Well, do you want to give us more than five, or even fill it?" I asked.

"There will be no problem for us to fill it," the talkative guy said.

And so we had the tank filled. It only took 7.3 gallons but that was more than five and we were offered all we wanted.

Which all shows, perhaps the shortage isn't really a shortage. And here Mr. and Mrs. Spectator were attempting to do their patriotic duty.

TWO MAKING GOOD

Just recently we heard a couple of facts which you folks might be interested in.

Many of you remember Norris Stettler, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Stettler of Twin Falls. His hobby for a spell has been fly fishing and in the June issue of Field and Stream, the national sporting magazine, he has an article on "Fly Fishing For Beginners."

Norris lives near Vancouver — at Washougal, Wash. He's in the real estate and brokerage business in Vancouver. And as a hobby he teaches an adult course in fly fishing at Clark College in Vancouver. For the records, he's a 1936 graduate of Twin Falls High.

Then there is Joanno Stettler Mangus, who is Norris' daughter. She is a 1961 graduate of Twin Falls High School. Well, she just opened her second pottery school on Riverside Drive in New York City. The first one proved so successful that she's branching out.

Nice when former local residents become successful.

Kuwait eyes modern arms

New York Times News Service by JUAN DE ONIS

KUWAIT — Kuwait, the wealthiest of the Persian Gulf sheikhdoms, has decided to invest $500 million in modern arms to protect her enormous oil resources, according to official sources.

No contracts have been signed, but in the wake of a visit here last month by a United States arms mission that put on display an F-4 Crusader jet fighter, Kuwaiti officials are believed to be strongly interested in purchasing 32 of the fighters, which have been used successfully in Vietnam, as well as an air-defense system of American Hawk missiles.

There is interest here, too, in acquiring tanks and helicopters. British and French arms salesmen are here, competing with Americans to meet Kuwait's requirements, as they did for recent purchases by Iran and Saudi Arabia of $3 billion in weapons.

Kuwaiti officials, saying that modernization of arms has been under active study for several years, disclaim any aggressive intentions.

"What we are purchasing is not for us against anybody and is for our own defense," said Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmad Al Jaber, the Kuwaiti foreign minister.

Kuwaiti officials scoff at expressions of concern by Israel that sales of American arms to Arab oil-producing countries could upset the "arms balance" in the Middle East. They cite Israel's arsenal, which is estimated at 400 combat jets and 1,200 tanks.

It is believed that Kuwait's decision to go ahead with arms procurement has been accelerated by a serious border dispute with neighboring Iraq. One factor said to be favoring purchase of the F-4 fighter, the U.S. Navy's carrier-based jet in Vietnam, is that they are available for early delivery.

Kuwait's small army of 7,000 men, backed only by armored cars and its air force, equipped with a score of British Lightning and Hunter fighters, were on the alert for two weeks after Iraqi troops fired on a border post March 30, killing two police officers, and crossed into territory claimed by Kuwait.

Israelis worry over F4 sales

By BERNARD QWERTZMAN New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Israel has opened a major campaign to persuade the Nixon administration to drop its tentative plans to sell Saudi Arabia 24 to 30 F-4 Phantom jet-bombers.

In recent days, Ambassador Simcha Dinitz has met twice with Joseph J. Silco, assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern affairs, and with Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's adviser on national security, to express Israel's concern about the pending sale of the Phantoms, the top plane in the American military inventory.

In addition, Israeli diplomats have been talking openly with newsmen and with public figures here to draw attention to the situation. The administration has defended the sale of the phantoms as part of a package deal to upgrade Saudi Arabia's defenses.

Last week the state department said the sales, not only to Saudi Arabia, but also to other Persian Gulf nations such as Kuwait and Iran, were needed to meet the "legitimate security requirements" of the countries in the area.

Any such sale "takes fully into account our long-standing policy of support of Israeli security," the state department said at the time. Dinitz and other Israeli officials have not objected to the

After vigorous mediation efforts by other Arab countries, the Iraqi forces pulled back. But the incident was followed by an Iraqi demand that Kuwait give up two small, deserted islands, Warba and Bubiyan, which control the access channel to a new Persian Gulf port at UMM Qasr that Iraq is developing, with Soviet aid, as a naval base and oil-export terminal.

Kuwait has rejected the Iraqi demand in two diplomatic notes insisting on the validity of a 1963 agreement with Iraq on a demarcation line that placed the two islands in Kuwaiti jurisdiction.

The crisis is now relaxed but the question is still unresolved. Kuwait, with her weak defenses, faces a more powerful neighbor, that only gave up a historic claim to Kuwaiti territory in 1963 in exchange for a large loan, never repaid.

This desert nation of about 600,000 people, which became independent in 1960 after nearly a century as a British protectorate, ranks third or fourth among world oil exporters, with a daily production of 3.2 million barrels.

This oil, generating about $2-billion a year in export income at current crude-oil prices, is the basis of Kuwait's striking prosperity. This is a country of rich merchants and bankers, of oil workers who earn $800 a month, of free education and health care, low-cost housing for nearly all, and a huge bureaucracy.

The wealth spreads far beyond the ruling Sabah family, headed by Sheikh Sabah Al-Sabah, the emir, and the crown prince, Sheikh Jabar Al-Ahmad Al-Sabah, the premier of this constitutional monarchy.

There is an elected parliament of 50 members who issue considerable criticism of public issues. The parliament includes a small but vocal leftist opposition that is critical of prospective purchases or arms from the United States.

While Britain was exercising a role of maintaining security for her protectorates in the gulf, defense was not a national issue in Kuwait. In 1962, British forces moved into guarantee Kuwaiti independence against an Iraqi threat.

But Britain formally relinquished that role in 1969, and the former protectorates, on the Arabian peninsula and in the Persian gulf were on their own.

Proper address

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To add dignity to senior enlisted men, the Navy has told personnel to stop calling petty officers "Jones" or "Smith" and to start addressing them by their rank.

The lowest three ranks of the Navy will still be addressed by their last names only, according to a notice recently sent to commands throughout the world. The next three ranks will now be addressed as "Petty Officer Jones" instead of "Jones" by their superiors.

Chief petty officers, the top three ranks, have in the past been addressed as "chief," but they will now be called by their full titles, chief, senior chief or master chief.

The Navy said the change was made "in order to appropriately recognize the unique and important positions of leadership." Officers will continue to be addressed as "master" or by their rank.

Screening to end?

NEW YORK — The Federal Aviation Administration, following five months without a hijacking in this country, is studying the possibility of ending the mandatory electronic screening of all airline passengers and searches of all carry-on luggage.

Specialists in the regulatory agency have developed a revised screening procedure that, sources in the agency said, appears potentially to be as effective in spotting potential hijackers as the current method, and it does not require searches and electronic weapon checks of every passenger.

Under a proposed plan being reviewed by agency officials, the now security techniques would first be tested experimentally on several routes. If the tests were successful, Nixon administration policymakers would decide whether to implement them nationally.

Known US oil reserves vast; recovery cost major problem

(Editor's note: The following article is reprinted from the Oil Daily, a daily trade newspaper, in which it appeared on May 28. It was written by Keith Fanshler, president and publisher of that newspaper.)

Throughout the whole furor over the deepening shortage of available energy supply in the U.S. — and the world — and the many avenues of amelioration of the condition, one fundamental fact needs along consideration, but is getting little of it.

The truth is that, in the best authoritative judgment, there is now existing in the continental U.S. truly tremendous stores and total accumulations of crude oil underground in known, existing, accessible locations awaiting recovery.

The magic words are tertiary recovery, and in accordance with known existing technology, it could go far toward solving the shortage without danger or uncertainties.

Tertiary recovery is the next and third step for producing quantities of crude oil, after application of water flooding or other forms of secondary recovery — which in turn follows initial or primary recovery.

Much of the crude oil now being produced is being brought up by secondary recovery. But tertiary recovery is as yet relatively unused in practical, large-scale application.

For one thing, costs, as always, enter the picture. It has been estimated authoritatively that costs of tertiary recovery range, depending on differing conditions, both ways from $1 a barrel — a substantial figure in a normal competitive market, but one well worth closely considering in a shortage economy.

It has been estimated by those in position to know that the industry, by using best known methods and technology, has been able, in general, to recover something like 30 per cent of the known existing crude oil in the producing formation. Sometimes much more, sometimes far less. And this is by use of secondary recovery as used in many cases.

Before overcoming the rigors of the energy shortage, it is becoming clearer all the time that we must resort to many methods, techniques and programs. It also is becoming clearer that what we have today is not a shortage of petroleum as such, but a shortage of available petroleum. In our continental underground is more than has ever been brought out.

What is needed is more petroleum made available under conditions of cost and other factors that will be supportable from an economic standpoint.

GOP 'taps' fewer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI has maintained slightly more than 100 "national security" wiretaps a year since President Nixon took office, substantially fewer than during most of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, according to a report by a House subcommittee today.

Scott made the statement about national security wiretaps in an effort to refute what he said was an impression that Nixon had initiated wiretapping and covert surveillance methods.

Scott said he obtained figures dating back to 1945 from Nixon's congressional liaison man, William Timmons, and said wiretaps are "now half of the level of the early to mid-1960s."

Scott said he told Nixon May 22 of his interest in wiretapping in previous administrations. That was the day Nixon issued a 4,000 word explanation of the Watergate in which he said he had ordered wiretaps in certain national security cases.

Scott said there were 123 national security wiretaps in 1969, 102 in 1970, 101 in 1971 and 101 in 1972.

"I've said those figures compared with 140 in 1961, 130 in 1962, 244 in 1963, and 260 in 1964. Those were the years in the Kennedy and Johnson Administrations when the late Robert T. Kennedy was attorney general.

Continuing his figures for the Johnson years, Scott said there were 233 in 1965, 174 in 1966, 113 in 1967 and 82 in 1968. Scott noted that the taps declined sharply after Ramsey Clark became attorney general.

Wiretapping in the 1960s and '70s was far less frequent, according to Scott's figures, than in the years immediately after World War II. He said there were 519 in 1945, 304 in 1946, 374 in 1947, 416 in 1948 and 471 in 1949.

Ellsberg talks to newsmen

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Daniel Ellsberg testified today at a county grand jury hearing into the "Watergate" break-in to the office of his Beverly Hills psychiatrist.

Before going into the grand jury room, Ellsberg told newsmen he had very little factual information to give the jury because he was not aware of the burglary until near the end of his Pentagon Papers trial last month.

The burglary of his psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis Fielding, by two men were later arrested in the Watergate break-in occurred during the 1971 Labor Day weekend.

Ellsberg told newsmen that it appeared the Los Angeles District Attorney's office was going after "leak-taps" in the Nixon administration and the White House since it had granted immunity from prosecution to those who actually carried out the burglary.

"I think the purpose of this hearing is to see what high-ups were concerned," he said.

Ellsberg noted that 10 days passed from the time that Watergate prosecutor Earl Silbert informed the Justice Department of the burglary until the information was relayed to U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne who presided over the Pentagon Papers trial.

He remarked that former U.S. Attorney General Richard Kleindienst resigned during that time.

Ellsberg also said there was information about him in Dr. Fielding's files but he declined to discuss its nature.

He said he understood he would be followed to the stand by Fielding. The psychiatrist said previously he did not connect the break-in and the rifting of his office and the fact that Ellsberg was his patient until the information came out at the end of the Pentagon Papers trial.

Scheduled to testify Wednesday zero E. Howard Hunt, Bernard Barker, Eugenio Martinez and Felipe De Diego.

Troops seize road

PHNOM-PENH (UPI) — Communist troops cut a vital highway today only 17 miles below Phnom Penh, cutting the capital's only link with the major Cambodian seaport and imperiling a populous provincial capital.

Military sources said Communist troops in fierce fighting Tuesday that ended with the cutting of Highway 4. The road is the sole link to the Kompong Speu seaport, 120 miles southwest of Phnom Penh.

Residents of Phnom Penh could hear U.S. warplanes bombing in the battle area but there were no details of the raids.

Government troops who set up roadblocks today near the cut-off point said two soldiers on a motorcycle tried to get through the rebel-controlled area but were shot and killed.

A field officer at An-Spoul, the last government-occupied town on the Phnom Penh side of the roadblock, said Communist troops were digging in 1 1/2 miles southwest of the town. Intelligence officers said the rebels were apparently trying to isolate the provincial capital of Kompong Speu, a town on Highway 4 3/2 miles southwest of Phnom Penh.

Hundreds of civilian refugees from towns threatened by the rebel thrust began pouring into Phnom Penh today.

Fighting broke out along the highway Tuesday when a government reinforcement battalion was sent in 24 miles southwest of Phnom Penh to aid Cambodian troops surrounded at two nearby bases.

U.S. jet fighter-bombers blasted the heavily forested area, but as soon as the planes left the Communists slammed the battalion with heavy mortar barrages and scattered the government troops.

UPI photographer Pat Sun, who was with the battalion, said the Cambodians fought back for only about 20 minutes before dispersing. He said government soldiers carried their mortars and small arms with them but left behind huge stacks of mortar ammunition.

Agency changes ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) says it has found that nitrogen dioxide, an automobile exhaust pollutant, is less of a problem than once thought, and has taken 45 urban areas off the danger list.

The "auto" areas long have contained that federal requirement "virtually" to eliminate oxides of nitrogen from auto exhausts by 1976 are too strict.

While EPA's action Tuesday seemed to side with the auto makers, it will not immediately help cities since the auto industry standards were set by Congress, not by EPA. EPA could delay the deadline for the standards if it chooses to.

Acting EPA Administrator Robert W. Fri said the agency's "current method of measuring nitrogen oxides, and the nitrogen dioxide pollutant which they become after entering the air, produced exaggerated results."

As a result, Fri said, the EPA was proposing that 43 regions and the cities in them be placed in the lowest priority classification, meaning that nitrogen dioxide levels there are below national standards.

"The four that remain Priority 1 (levels substantially higher than the law allows) are Los Angeles, Chicago, Salt Lake City and metropolitan New York," Fri said. "But of these four, there is still some doubt about Salt Lake City and New York, so we will continue to gather data in those areas, and implementation of nitrogen oxides control measures would not be required at this time."

Maurice Stans wants immunity for testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Maurice H. Stans, the most successful political fundraiser in history, is refusing to testify before the Senate Watergate Committee unless an indictment which could send him to jail for 40 years is dismissed first.

Stans was to have been a witness today following the testimony of Hugh W. Sloan Jr.,

who was responsible for disbursing the money Stans collected.

Sloan, treasurer of the Nixon campaign, admits he gave $100,000 to wiretapper G. Gordon Liddy, the "brains" of the Watergate break-in, but denies knowing how the money was to have been used.

Stans' objection that his rights to a fair trial in New York would suffer if he were compelled to testify—but his offer to talk if criminal charges against him are dropped—have postponed his appearance indefinitely.

But it appeared certain the Senate panel would reject his offer and refuse to ask Federal Judge Lee P. Gagliardi in New York to dismiss the indictment against him.

Stans, who collected $50 million on President Nixon's behalf—more than any candidate ever previously amassed—is charged with lying to the New York grand jury which indicted financier Robert L. Vesco and interfering with the Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of Vesco. The SEC has charged that Vesco "looted" four mutual funds of $224 million.

John N. Mitchell, former attorney general, is a fellow defendant in the Vesco case and may raise similar objections to testifying when he is called by the Senate panel.

That strategy, if successful, could stymie the Senate investigation. Stans and Mitchell are the two most prominent persons on its witness list—and among the two closest to President Nixon.

Mitchell was linked closer than ever with the Watergate conspiracy in Tuesday's committee session.

Robert Reisner, a boyish-looking former aide at the Committee to Re-elect the President (CRP), testified he put "Gemstone" files of wiretapped Democratic telephone conversations in a file prepared for Mitchell in the spring of 1972.

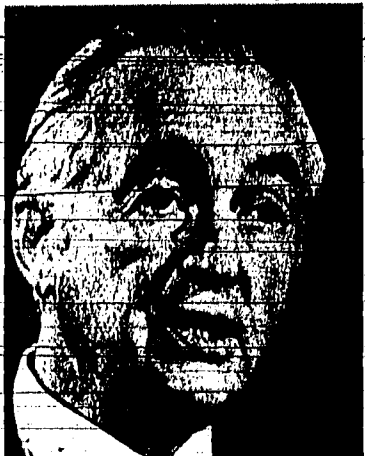

Hearsay testimony damaging to Mitchell came from another source, former White House domestic adviser John D. Ehrlichman.

Ehrlichman, in a sworn disposition given in the Democrats' civil suit against the Nixon campaign committee, said Job Stuart Magruder told him Mitchell in March, 1972 personally approved wiretaps against Democratic offices in Washington and Miami Beach.

Magruder served for a time as a Nixon campaign director. He moved to the No. 2 job when Mitchell in July left the Justice Department and assumed control of the campaign.

Mitchell steadfastly has denied prior knowledge of the Watergate break-in. He said he discouraged such illegal activity when the matter came up at strategy sessions.

Ehrlichman swears Mitchell knew

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former White House adviser John D. Ehrlichman has given sworn testimony that he was told that John N. Mitchell approved the bugging of Watergate and two other wiretap operations.

Ehrlichman's testimony was in the form of a 242-page sworn deposition which he gave in May in connection with a $8.4 million civil damage suit which the Democrats filed against Republican campaign officials over the Watergate incident.

Ehrlichman's allegations with respect to former Attorney General Mitchell were attributed to Job Stuart Magruder, who served as Mitchell's deputy after Mitchell left the Justice Department to direct President Nixon's re-election campaign.

France buries 7 SST victims

GOUSSAINVILLE, France (AP) — Officials and villagers in this mourning Paris suburb made final preparations today to bury their dead—seven persons, most of them children, who died when a Soviet TU144 supersonic jetliner crashed.

Investigators moved among mourners, seeking clues into what caused the first known crash of a faster-than-sound commercial aircraft.

Police said a villager found the TU144's flight recorder, or "black box," on his roof, but that its vitally important tape recording was missing.

If the tape is found intact it could provide, through the pilot's last words, a clue to cause of the explosion and crash Sunday that occurred before 300,000 spectators attending an international air show at Le Bourget airport.

"I believe the Russian pilot, tried a desperate maneuver to

Japan turns down ICCS post offer

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnam said today it asked Japan to replace Canada as the chief Vietnam peace-keeping force, but that Japan declined on grounds its constitution forbids any international military activities.

"It was the first nation we contacted," Sum said. "Japan answered that it cannot take part because its constitution does not permit it to do so."

Canada announced last week that it intends to withdraw from the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) on July 31 because a dispute has prevented it from fully carrying out its peace-keeping role.

Nixon approves buyers for F5E

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said Tuesday that President Nixon has found Chile and Argentina as well as Brazil, Colombia and Venezuela eligible to buy the F5E "International Freedom Fighter" airplane.

Rogers said South American countries will acquire aircraft elsewhere if the United States does not sell them.

The F5E fighter is produced by Northrop and sells for somewhat more than $1 million. It is for export only, and many have been delivered to the air force of South Vietnam.

Nixon greets Tolbert

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Liberian President William R. Tolbert received a warm welcome from President Nixon at the White House today.

Tolbert, wearing an open-necked, short-sleeved, white safari jacket, drove between ranks of an honor guard lining the driveway and entrance to where Nixon was waiting to greet him.

S. Viets attacked

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops attacked South Vietnamese positions with mortar fire today in the Mekong-Delta, where clashes in the last three days produced some of the bloodiest fighting since the cease-fire.

South Vietnamese command spokesman Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien said the Communists hit government positions between Cai Lay and Cai Be with 38 rounds of 82mm mortar, killing one South Vietnamese soldier and wounding two others.

Crisis vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has overwhelmingly voted to direct President Nixon to clamp strict controls on the oil industry's allocation of fuel to help ease the gasoline shortage.

By a vote of 85 to 10 Tuesday, the Senate approved a bill that would require the President to establish mandatory government fuel allocation regulations and impose them whenever he determines that any energy source is in short supply.

Solons suspend Indochina debate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress has given White House envoy Henry Kissinger at least a week—probably longer if he needs it—to work for a new Indochina cease-fire agreement.

House and Senate conferees Tuesday suspended action until next Monday on legislation to cut off funds for the air war in Cambodia as Kissinger left for Paris to renew negotiations with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho.

Abortion law void

MISSOULA, Mont. (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Hunsell Smith Tuesday declared Montana's abortion laws unconstitutional and void in their entirety.

Smith ruled in a "Mary Doe" case in which a Missoula woman sought a therapeutic abortion. The state law had prohibited abortion, except in cases where the mother's life was in danger.

Switch set by Oregon governor

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon is considering a switch from the Republican to the Democratic party to run against Sen. Robert Packwood in 1974.

"Democrats feel I would give them the best possibility they could have of defeating the junior senator from Oregon," McCall told newsmen Tuesday at the National Governors Conference.

"Lots of Democrats have asked me to come over. I'm considering going possibly to the Democratic party or becoming an independent."

Packwood, 40, the youngest Republican in the Senate, said in a telephone interview from Washington, "Tom has told me at least three times he would not be a candidate against me and I've known him a long time and his words always have been good and I see no reason to assume he'll go back on it now."

Except for Alabama Gov. George Wallace's brief switch from the Democratic to the American Independent Party in 1968 in order to run for president, there have been no instances in recent years of governors jumping parties.

"I am kind of an object of a tug of war that is very flattering and I'm not discouraging it," said McCall, 61.

McCall, who like Packwood is regarded as a GOP liberal, said New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has "asked me to stay on his side." Rockefeller is a potential candidate for the 1976 Republican presidential nomination.

Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., is encouraging him to defect to the Democrats, McCall said. McCall said he has until Sept. 15 to decide whether to switch. That is the latest date he can change party registration and still run in the Democratic primary next May.

Senate lauded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, Tuesday praised the senate passage of legislation to require the president to implement a mandatory allocation system of scarce fuel in times of severe shortages.

Church noted the administration has issued voluntary guidelines for allocation of scarce fuel but said the shortage has become so serious in some areas the voluntary efforts "are inadequate."

The measure passed by the Senate Tuesday directs the president to develop a program of mandatory allocation, Church said.

The Idaho Senator said provisions of the bill of special importance to Idaho give priority to the agricultural sector of the economy and insure that independent gasoline dealers will not be forced to bear the brunt of fuel shortages.

Separated

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — A bill establishing a separate statistical category for persons who have had their sex changed has been approved by the state Senate Health Committee.

Dr. Forest Edden of the state Public Health Department said currently persons who have had sex change operations "are nothing" to the state.

Church backs bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate Tuesday passed legislation sponsored by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, prohibiting the Federal Government from taking action against hospitals or health personnel who refuse to participate in abortions because of religious beliefs.

The Senate unanimously accepted the bill as it was passed by the House and sent it to the president as part of an omnibus health care bill.

The legislation was drafted by Church in the aftermath of the recent Supreme Court decision that states cannot prohibit abortions during the first three months of pregnancy.

Attorneys debate recall

By RICHARD CHARNOCK BOISE (UPI) — Attorneys for both sides debated Tuesday whether rejected signatures could be revived to put a recall movement against Rep. Patricia McDermott back on the track again.

After hearing comments from lawyers both for the petitioners and the Pocastello Democrat Attorney General W. Anthony Park took the question under advisement.

He said he was hopeful he could give Secretary of State Pete T. Cenarrusa a written opinion on what he should do by Wednesday.

Last Wednesday, Cenarrusa derided the recall movement by summarily rejecting 2,230 of 2,559 signatures on grounds they did not include post office addresses as required by law. He did so on the attorney general's advice.

Late Monday, the petitioners brought back the petitions — along with 11 new signatures. This time, the post office addresses were written in after the lined out names of the rejected petition signers.

Basically, the question now before Park is whether the signatures can be rehabilitated in such a manner or whether Cenarrusa's rejection — complete with lining them out — requires re-signing.

Stanley Crow, Boise, an attorney for the petitioners, argued at an informal hearing conducted in Park's office, that the secretary can change his mind and accept the signatures.

James B. Green, Pocastello, a lawyer for Miss McDermott, argued that "in order to revive or rehabilitate these signatures would take a wholly new signing."

Park pointed out this is a case of "first impression" in Idaho and he will not have legal precedents on which to rely. Instead, he said, his advice to Cenarrusa must be based on interpretation of the statute.

Crow said that a statute involved with a basic constitutional right such as recall should be interpreted liberally — that only criminal statutes are interpreted narrowly.

Green countered that there are criminal provisions for violation of certain prohibitions in the recall statute. He suggested that those who added the post office address of "Pocastello" to the rejected signatures may have been guilty of "felonious conduct" and urged Park and the prosecuting attorneys of the counties involved to investigate.

Crow disagreed there was any felonious conduct. At one point he even refused to concede the signatures were the same ones Cenarrusa rejected last week even though they were lined out and bore Cenarrusa's initials.

Then Green suggested he was being "specious" and told him to save his "sophistry" for formal debates.

Crow's basic arguments were that the original form approved by Cenarrusa on advice of the attorney general last March did not require listing of the post office address. The word "Pocastello" was not listed after the original 34 signers who submitted a petition to have the form checked.

Therefore, he said, Cenarrusa should not have rejected the signatures last week.

In event the word "Pocastello" still must be included he argued that the petitions now bear that word and that they were filed with Cenarrusa before Monday's deadline. Green did not agree with Crow. He even challenged the filing of the petitions after 5 p.m. Monday, saying the office normally closes at 5. Crow argued that the law requires they be filed on a certain day and does not flat the time.

Andrus predicts double billing

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus Tuesday told the National Governors Conference that consumers would be double-billed if public utilities raise rates to finance advertising promoting the use of energy.

Andrus asked David Freeman of the Ford Foundation's energy policy project for an estimate on how much the various energy industries have spent on advertising during the past year.

Freeman replied he did not have the figures.

Gov. Stanley K. Hathaway of Wyoming suggested state utility commissions "should be permitted to amend their regulations to encourage an increase in utility industry expenditures."

Andrus replied that is "fancy language which can be construed to mean 'grant them a rate increase.'"

"I submit that on public utility commissions, laws have been okayed for expenditures construed as the cost of doing business for advertising to encourage the use of more energy," Andrus said.

He told the governors to consider a reduction equal in amount to that which has gone for advertising if utilities approach the public utilities commissions seeking a rate increase to justify new explanations in order to avert the energy crisis.

Burley to control cats

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News Writer

BURLEY — The Burley City Council has approved raising dog license fees but delayed hiking city parking fines.

MEETING — Monday, councilmen agreed to raise the existing $2 fee for impounding dogs to $5. They also voted to raise dog license fees to $10.

The current income from dog impounding fees is not even paying to feed the dogs, Mayor Garis Robertson told the council. With the completion of recent improvements at the pound it was time the $2 fees were raised, he said.

City Atty. Bill Parson objected to the previous "discrimination" in charging licensing fees of $3 for male dogs and $5 for females so the council decided to make a flat rate for all dogs.

The council also asked Parson to draw up a new ordinance for both cats and dogs. Although few cities include cats in such ordinances, the council felt that the city needed regulations concerning cats since "they can be as dangerous as dogs."

Robertson suggested the council raise parking fines from 50 cents to $1 which would double if unpaid in 24 hours. The council declined to act until the entire board was present. Councilmen Jim Roper and Ted Smith were not at the meeting.

The council approved a request by the South Idaho Resource Planning and Development Association (SIRPDA) to cooperate in setting up a joint planning advisory group in the county to work with the association and with individual planning commissions within Cassia County in planning area development.

SIRPDA has made the same request of the county commissioners in an attempt to coordinate planning efforts in Cassia, Minidoka, Jerome and Twin Falls counties.

July 2 was set for a public hearing on the new city zoning ordinance, after the council accepted the request from the city planning commission.

Steven Rogers was approved by the council for new city treasurer at $700 a month with a six-month raise to $780. Rogers, originally from Rupert, has worked for the last two years as an accountant with A and P.

The council under a stipulation in the city ordinance allowing them to set up fees in "special situations," approved a $150 fee to the Ramada Inn for one hook-up to the city sewer to accommodate an overnight camping area for motor homes.

Jim Tawzer, representing the Ramada Inn, said they had already spent $2,500 to pave West Seventh Street North for access to the site and were installing the eight-inch sewer line. The proposed $1,050 fee for 10 hookups was excessive he told the council.

The council lowered the fee, but in the agreement stipulated that the sewer would belong to the city, which would maintain it, so further hookups could be made if needed in the future.

Parsons was asked to draw up an agreement charging $25 a month rent plus $1 for each boarding passenger over a total of 30 for Trans-Maglo use of the airport facilities.

The agreement is to include definition of the facilities used and will require that Trans-

Magie keep up the interior of the terminal building while the city keeps the exterior in repair.

The decision follows a disagreement between the company and Phil Payne, who operates a private flying service at the airport, concerning parking and hangar space.

The council agreed to the continuation of the "taxway" paving project at the airport by J-U-B Engineers Inc., Twin Falls.

The project, as now projected, will cost about $100,000 plus about 20 per cent for engineering fees bringing the total to $120,000.

The engineering company will write up and submit plans and applications for grants from both the state and federal government for the project.

Outside TF city hookups stopped

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council Monday heard the first reading of an ordinance that disallows future sewer or water hookups outside the city limits.

Current out-of-city services and previously submitted applications for them are not affected by the ordinance.

The council also heard the first reading of an ordinance that requires installation of backwater valves in floor drains that are less than one foot above the upstream man hole. The ordinance will release the city from liability in backwater damage cases.

City Manager Jean Millar said nearly all floor drains in the city would require backwater valves under the proposed city law.

In other action, the council appointed John Brown as city water supply superintendent to replace retiring Ken Leazer. Leazer has 32 years of city service and agreed to provide city sewer services for 80 additional mobile homes at the Lazy J Park. The park owners agreed to request annexation when feasible and to build a fence bordering the mobile park upon city request.

He approved a plat for the Jonathan Heights subdivision east of Twin Falls. The development will be one mile east of Eastland Drive and one-quarter mile south of Addison Avenue.

He appointed city employee Douglas Hemingway, Cecil Duffey and Wilson Biggers to the Accident Review Board.

Pentagon Paper Red leak denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Embassy denied Tuesday it had been given copies of the Pentagon Papers in June, 1971.

The alleged leak, according to former White House aide Egil Krogh, was partly the reason the administration set up a special investigative unit which broke into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

The Washington Post quoted sources as saying an unidentified man, using an alias, had handed the Soviet Embassy a complete set of the top-secret papers. An embassy spokesman called this "a fabrication."

The Embassy categorically denies these allegations as absolutely groundless," the statement said.

Krogh swore in an affidavit to Federal Judge Matt Byrne of Los Angeles, who conducted the trial of Ellsberg, that he was told by the FBI that the Soviets had the papers.

Concern over the national security leak led to the setting up of the White House special investigative squad known as the plumbers," Krogh said. He headed the group.

According to the Post, administration sources said there was no evidence either Ellsberg or the newspapers to whom he gave copies of the Pentagon Papers had also passed copies to the Soviets.

Ranch houseparents accepted on trial basis

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

RUPERT — One new set of houseparents has been accepted on a trial basis at the Idaho Youth Ranch although only two boys are living there now.

Interim ranch manager William Mitchell said Mr. and Mrs. Larry Gooden, Rupert, had been accepted on a 30-day trial basis as houseparents Tuesday. The Goodens spent the past weekend at the ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Allison, Rupert, were expected to arrive at the ranch Tuesday for a trial period as houseparents.

Neither couple is specifically trained for working with youth. Three sets of houseparents and one relief parent resigned over a week ago because of disagreements with the ranch program following the resignation of ranch director Lee Childs and the dismissal of ranch manager Dwayne Peterson.

Mitchell said only two boys were at the ranch Tuesday and if places could be found these boys would also be transferred.

There were 28 boys at the ranch at the time of the resignations. Since then, 28 boys have been sent on home leave or referred to foster homes or other agencies. Teachers from the ranch have been filling in as houseparents.

Mitchell said he planned to suggest to the board of directors only two houses instead of three be maintained for the boys at least temporarily. The ranch could handle about 28 boys then, he said, though it would put a heavy load on the houseparents.

"We're going back to relief houseparents," Mitchell said, to take some of the constant work load off the houseparents.

According to Mitchell, the board is going to be "more active" in ranch affairs in the future, especially in selection of houseparents.

The new ranch director, James W. Worley, is a business man and not a psychologist, Mitchell said, so much of the program load will be given to the ranch's social worker, Wendy Miller.

Mrs. Miller said Tuesday that "a good therapeutic program" could be helpful to the boys when they return from their current referrals.

"The success of the program will depend in part, she said, upon what happens to the boys while they're away from the ranch.

"Right now everything is in a state of turmoil," Mrs. Miller said, and if the boys "can make it" until the new director arrives next week, the program could be effective.

Mitchell said he hoped to start out the ranch with a new group of boys, rather than bringing previous residents back. "Since we're going to have all new personnel," he said, the residents might as well be new too.

Mrs. Miller said she was considering Mitchell's proposal but had made no decision.

"We don't have a program right now," she said, because there are no boys and few personnel.

"I felt we had an excellent program before," she said, it had "great potential."

Mrs. Miller said she hoped the recommendations presented by the state in its investigation report would include a staff training program.

"You don't have to have a degree to be a good houseparent," she said, "but a background in youth work would help provide a good program."

The state report has not yet been made public although it is in the hands of the ranch's board of directors.

"If the program goes custodial then we've lost it," Mrs. Miller said. The state involvement with the ranch should have some good influential assistance, however, she said.

7 die on MV roads

Berry was driving a 1973 pickup truck and Matkin a 1970 sedan. Both vehicles were demolished, officers said but there were no skid marks to indicate either driver had time to attempt to stop. Officers were still attempting today to determine which vehicle crossed the center line and collided with the other.

The Berry vehicle rolled over following the collision and came to rest on its wheels. Officer Owen said Berry was out of the vehicle when he arrived at the scene and Matkin was pinned in the car. He was pronounced dead at the scene. Both drivers were alone in their vehicles.

Owen said he was unable to talk to Berry following the accident. Berry is the brother of Rodney Berry who was driving a potato truck involved in a fatal accident near Buhl earlier this year. A Twin Falls school teacher died in that accident.

In a motorcycle accident Tuesday afternoon, four young Malta residents were injured. The two cycles collided near Malta but details of the accident were unavailable. Hospitalized in the Cassia Memorial Hospital were Samuel Dechock, no age given, in satisfactory condition; Nic, Durfee, 17, listed as critical; Danny Anderson, in condition, and Michelle Smith, 15, good condition.

Jerome hearing slated

JEROME — A public hearing is scheduled for 7 p.m. June 25 at the Jerome City Hall on changes in the proposed mobile home ordinance.

The changes, suggested by the city planning and zoning commission and approved by the City Council Tuesday night, include addition to the designated areas where mobile homes can be located and upgrading of residential zoning.

The designation was changed from first, second and third classification of residential to 1, 1A and second, according to B. L. Kleinkopf, chairman of the zoning commission.

There has been considerable public interest in the proposed mobile home ordinance, but no one appeared at Tuesday's council meeting.

Land use meet set

JEROME — View on a proposed Canyon Planning Unit for land use along Snake River Canyon will be discussed by community and government leaders of north-side communities and state officials Thursday.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Jerome County Courthouse. At that time Bureau of Land Management officials will ask area representatives for views on use of National Resource Lands in Jerome and Gooding Counties.

McCulloch brings revenue

HAILEY — The huge McCulloch development in Hailey will be a "governmental fiscal benefit to the community," according to the Associated Taxpayers of Idaho, Boise.

In a study released Tuesday, the non-profit group said, "The increased tax and revenue base will more than offset the increase in demand for governmental services."

The study "assumed that the (McCulloch) addition was complete and would be part in total of the budgets for the city, county and school district for the current year."

Assessment of McCulloch properties for taxes and commercial construction at a faster rate than population growth are also assumed.

Sewer and water utilities and streets and curbs in the addition will be constructed at no cost to the government, according to the report.

"Each new family unit (in the addition) will be subject to the city sewer and water service fees which, if maintained at the present level, $13.50 per unit, will provide sufficient revenues to the city to obviate the need for a property tax levy to operate city government," the report states.

"This is because the present charge is computed to service a facility necessary for a population of 1,400 to 1,500 while the projected population is estimated at 7,800."

Data compiled by the Trico Development Corp. as to projected population, market value and assessed valuation was used in the study.

State revenue payments to the city of Hailey will increase due to the larger population, according to the report.

The city's share of state liquor profits will increase from $3,475 in 1972 to $25,000. State motor vehicle fund payments to Hailey will jump from $17,430 in 1972 to an estimated $80,000.

School funds received from the state will increase but perhaps not to the extent of the increase in school population, the report states. "This is because the assessed valuation in the school district will still provide a larger than average local support of the foundation program."

TF zone request under advisement

TWIN FALLS — County commissioners have taken under advisement until 10:30 a.m. Thursday a zoning request for commercial designation of 13 acres on Highway 50.

Don Harney, who has been granted a commercial classification on several acres of land on the highway on which to relocate his Kimberly lumber firm, has asked for additional land under the same zoning in order to add other commercial firms to the site.

Plans call for a fertilizer plant, truckstop, pipe firm and possibly other commercial interests.

Members of the county planning and zoning commission have recommended that the commission deny the request.

A hearing was held by the county commissioners Tuesday morning followed by an inspection of the property by commission members.

500 expected

BURLEY — Nearly 500 people are expected to attend the 41st Veterans' of Foreign Wars (VFW) convention which began here today.

The MOC of the VFW meets today at noon at the Ponderosa Inn. About 60 members of this honorary organization from seven states are expected for the session to discuss fund raising for hospital donations.

Thursday at 9 a.m., the general session opens with speeches from state officers and continues in the afternoon with a business meeting. That night a western dinner and dance will be held at the Ramada Inn.

The convention continues until Saturday afternoon when new officers will be installed.

Utah firm gets bid

BOISE (UPI) — A Provo, Utah, company was the apparent low bidder for an Idaho Department of Highways project at the Pocatello Creek Interchange on Interstate 15 in Bannock County.

Roberts and Anderson Construction Co. were one of four companies bidding on the project. Their bid was $139,818.

Dam highway plan aired

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — The race against time in beginning construction on a new American Falls Dam was the primary theme of an American Falls Reservoir District No. 1 board meeting Tuesday.

Board members were concerned with finding a way to authorize funds for Bechtel Engineering to begin design studies on a new roadway crossing at the dam site.

The Idaho Highway Department has estimated the cost of a four-lane crossing at about $4 million, a two-lane crossing would run about $2 million.

Tom Nelson, an attorney for the reservoir district, told board members Bechtel had said it would need to begin designing the crossing by the end of June in order to stay within a Jan. 1, 1975, deadline for construction of the new dam.

Nelson said there was some question whether an irrigation district could legally participate in the construction of a roadway. He suggested that the board meet with Gov. Cecil Andrus to decide on procedures necessary to get the roadway design and construction underway.

Nelson said that action by the legislature might be necessary to empower the reservoir district to provide partial funding for the roadway.

Nelson said it was important to get the roadway completed prior to beginning dam construction in order to save money by routing traffic around construction at the dam site.

"If we haven't got the 'go' signal by the end of June, we lose a year," Nelson said.

Officials from the highway department will meet with waterusers in Burley on Thursday to discuss plans for the crossing. The highway board will also meet next Tuesday in Boise with reservoir district officials to attempt to iron out difficulties in getting the roadway design project underway.

Dean Tisdale, deputy state highway engineer in Boise, said today that the highway board can authorize Bechtel to begin design studies by June 15, provided the board has some assurance from water users that they can participate in the costs at a later date.

Tisdale said the highway department agreed several years ago to provide an extra two lanes of the roadway. He said the department was committed to this arrangement if the reservoir district could provide funds for the other two lanes.

He said costs, both for design and construction of the roadway, would be shared 50-50 by the highway department and the reservoir district.

Tisdale said the critical part of the construction at this time was getting in piers for the roadway during low water. He said the highway department could begin work on the project this summer but it would mean an alteration in the department's priorities on construction projects. He said this decision would be up to the highway board.

Cost of design studies on the crossing, Tisdale said, had been estimated by Bechtel at $300,000. The design package would include environmental impact studies.

According to Tisdale, Bechtel favors edging the roadway into the side of the new dam rather than putting it on top of the dam like the current roadway across the old dam.

At the reservoir district meeting Tuesday, Sen. John M. Barker, R-Buhl, who is also president of the district, agreed to meet with Gov. Andrus at the earliest possible time to get assistance on the roadway problem.

The reservoir district board also voted to hire the New York investment banking firm of Kidder, Peabody and Co. as fiscal agent for the proposed bond issue by the district necessary to begin construction of the dam.

In addition, the board authorized Barker to execute a contract with Bechtel for preliminary design studies on the dam project.

Both Bechtel and Kidder-Peabody were brought into the project under the wings of Idaho Power Co., which has agreed to pay the reservoir district $10 million for falling water rights at the new dam.

The Idaho Power participation would offset most of the cost to reservoir shareholders on the estimated $24 million needed to construct the new dam.

In return for the $10 million, Idaho Power would construct a power plant at the dam site and would use all water flowing through the dam to generate electricity for its customers.

For the new American Falls Dam to be built through a reservoir district bond issue as planned, two authorization bills must be passed by Congress. Idaho Power will also require a license by the Federal Power Commission.

This is in addition to agreement by reservoir shareholders to float the bond issue, and possibly the authorization of the state legislature to allow the irrigation district to participate in the construction of the roadway.

Attorney Nelson said the dam project is "one of those things where everybody runs on parallel tracks and gambles a little money that it will all work out."

Rangers seek instant aid in 18-year-old prep star

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Texas Rangers, looking to shore up their pitching staff "now", made 18-year-old freeballing southpaw David Clyde of Spring Branch, Tex., the No. 1 pick Tuesday in major league baseball's annual summer free agent draft.

Clyde, whose pitching feats have drawn raves on a par with a teenage sensation of another era—Sandy Koufax, is the author of nine no-hitters this season and allowed only three earned runs in 141 innings for his Westchester High School team in Houston. It is expected that the Rangers will move Clyde right up to the major league roster when his high school season is completed but that decision will come from the team's owner Bob Short and manager Whitey Herzog. "We haven't decided anything definite yet," said Rangers farm director Hal Keller at the draft, "and afterward you have to remember, he hasn't even finished high school yet."

But Clyde, who has won 44 of his last 45 games and struck out 830 batters in 468 1-3 innings over the past four years, said from his home that he "wouldn't mind going to the minors."

DAVID CLYDE, 18-year-old freeballing left-hander still in high school, was the No. 1 draft choice of the Texas Rangers Tuesday. (UPI Telephone)

No. 1 draft pick almost quit baseball because of wildness

HOUSTON (UPI) — Before he started shaving, David Clyde almost retired from baseball. "I was terrible — just a wild left-hander," he said.

That was back when he was 14 and a high school freshman. "I was wild," said Bob French, his coach at Houston Westchester. "He walked 13 batters in a row in one game. We almost ran him off at one time."

did think I'd be picked first. My dad said before the season started that I'd have a chance to go fairly high, but I didn't think it would be this high. "It was a shock and a surprise. It's something I've dreamed about for 12 years and it's hard to explain how it feels that a dream has come true. I wasn't nervous at all before the telephone call from the Rangers' (General Manager "Joe Burke"), Clyde said. "Then all of a sudden after the call, I got nervous. I think it was kind of a joyful nervousness. I wasn't scared."

The 6-foot-5, 195-pound Winfield, a multi-sport standout, has already been drafted by the Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League, the Atlanta Hawks of the National Hockey Association and the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association. After averaging 10.5 points per game for Minnesota's nationally-ranked basketball team, Winfield joined the baseball team and won eight of nine decisions while batting .374 as a leftfielder.

ABA players set merger guidelines

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Netherlands Antilles (UPI) — Arlan Preblud, attorney for the American Basketball Association Players Association, said Tuesday night they were in favor of a merger with the NBA if "some guidelines" were observed.

"I want to thank a lot of people," Clyde said. "One of them is Coach French who could have tossed me away when I was a freshman and walked those 13 batters in a row."

Other standouts to be selected in the first round included Ohio U.'s slugging catcher Steve Swisher, who was grabbed by the Chicago White Sox as the 21st pick, Arizona State's southpaw pitching ace Eddie Bane, taken by the Minnesota Twins as the 11th pick and Tulsa U.'s big first baseman Jerry Lynn Tabb who was grabbed by the Chicago Cubs as the No. 16 selection.

Preblud said in an interview, however, that he personally doubted there would be a merger before 1974.

"If they feel I am ready, then fine," Clyde said of the big step to the big leagues. "But if they want to season me (in the minors), to help me learn a few more things, then that's fine with me."

Outstanding high school prospects in addition to Clyde and Yount to be taken early were John LeMaster, a shortstop from Paintsville, Ky., drafted sixth by the San Francisco Giants.

"We're in favor of a merger if some guidelines are met," he said during a break in the players' association annual meeting being held here.

But Doug Osburn, coach at Rice University in Houston, had an answer to the problem. "It would be a waste of time to send Clyde to the minors," the college coach said. "About all he would learn in the minors is how to order meals on the road."

There can be no reserve or option clause, there can be no compensation given to a team once a player becomes a free agent," he said.

Gene Clyde, the boy's father, said he and the Rangers agreed to withhold comment on possible financial offerings.

Several P.C.C. sources said the commission was prompted to act by two series of articles in the Washington Star-News. One series questioned the relationship among team owners, broadcast executives and sportscasters.

By United Press International Bon Crenshaw of Austin, Tex., perhaps the nation's best-known amateur golfer, qualified for the U.S. Open Tuesday but only by the barest of margins.

Onkmont, Pa., just a couple of miles down the Allegheny River from where Crenshaw qualified.

Crenshaw, the low amateur in the Masters at Augusta each of the last two years who is considered by knowledgeable observers to have a bright future, had to "survive" a playoff for the final spot at Pittsburgh before earning his place in the Open.

The medalist at Pittsburgh was another amateur—Gary Koch of Temple Terrace, Fla., who shot 72-67-130. Among those failing to qualify were 1965 PGA champion Dave Marr, who shot 76-72-148, and 1947 Open champion Lew Worsham, who shot 78-75-153. Worsham is host pro at Onkmont.

Tuesday's sectional qualifiers were the final ones to fill the field for the 73rd Open which begins June 14 at

FCC will classify sports announcing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission has decided unanimously to investigate whether sports play-by-play broadcasts are news or entertainment.

The other was publication of installments from "Kiss It Goodbye," a book in which former Washington Senators sportscaster Shelby Whitfield charged that owner Robert Short forced him to say only favorable things about the Senators during his broadcasts.

And, more specifically, the commission wants to know whether sports broadcasts are distorted by the fact that many sportscasters are on the payrolls of the teams whose games they broadcast.

One F.C.C. official said there was a general feeling among the commissioners that since sportscasters were also retained by broadcast stations — even if in some cases club owners have vetoes over their selection — they are to a certain extent journalists.

The investigation, which will be in the form of a general public inquiry into sports broadcasting, was approved by the seven commissioners at a meeting last week. The decision has not yet officially been made public.

Four basic issues are involved in the F.C.C. investigation. The first is whether the broadcast station owners, while letting the club or sponsor choose, hire and pay his play-by-play announcer is improperly relinquishing control over programming to somebody else.

Russell moves all-league Haywood to center

SEATTLE (UPI) — Spencer Haywood may have been the National Basketball Association's all-league forward this past season, but from here on he'll play center only for the Seattle SuperSonics.

Haywood, all-league forward, is now center," new Sonics coach and general manager Bill Russell said. "Now, how's that for messing with success? But I figure that if he can make all-league forward and the club wins only 26 games, there's something wrong with that."

Russell came to town to meet local sports writers and broadcasters and covered a lot of ground, but foremost on his mind were plans to revamp the Sonics and get them into next season's playoffs.

The new Seattle coach also plans to play high-salaried 7-foot Jim Daniels, a major disappointment last season, at forward next season.

Reds nip Mets 6-5 on four-run 10th

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Johnny Bench hit a three-run homer to clinch a four-run 10th inning and gave the Cincinnati Reds a 6-5 victory over the New York Mets in a rain marred game Tuesday night.

Bench's home run, his 12th of the season, came off Phil Hennigan with none out. Pinch-hitter Richie Scheinblum touched-off the winning rally drawing a walk from Tug McGraw. Pete Rose then singled Scheinblum to third. Minutes later Scheinblum scored on McGraw's wild pitch. McGraw then walked Joe Morgan and was replaced by Hennigan who served up the game-winning homer.

The Mets had taken a 5-2 lead in the 10th on Duffy Dyer's bases-loaded triple off Don Gullett with two out. Felix Millan ignited the rally with a single, his third of the night. Two outs later, after Millan had moved to second on an infield out, Jim Fregosi was intentionally passed. A walk to John Milner filled the bases, and preceded Dyer's hit, a sinking liner to rightfield which got past Bobby Tolan as he attempted a shoestring catch.

HOUSTON (UPI) — The two teen-age sons of Gordie Howe signed four-year contracts Tuesday with the Houston Aeros of the World Hockey Association in a WHA coup rivaling the signing of Bobby Hull last year.

Mark Howe, 18, and Marty, 19, the oldest sons of former Detroit Red Wing star, signed with Aeros President Jim Smith after 10 days of negotiations. Howe did not disclose the terms of the two contracts, which he and the family's agent negotiated.

"The figure has a few zeros," Howe said. "We're happy. I don't show much emotion, but this is one of my happiest days. They are starting out in a way I couldn't. They've got the security I never had as a young player."

Howe, who joined the National Hockey League (NHL) when he was 18 and rose to become one of the game's greatest players, said the Aeros had made him an offer, but it wasn't enough.

"Jim (Smith) and I are going to think about it and then talk again," Howe said. "We are in the same ballpark, but the figure will have to be a little closer than it is now. It's just a matter of putting it in one word — money."

"I feel in an awkward position now in that I'm still being paid by Detroit," Howe said.

He has been a vice president of the Red Wings since retiring Sept. 9, 1971, after 25 years in the NHL. But he said he always has wanted to play on the same team with his sons and would sign if he and Smith can agree on terms.

"It would be a high moment in our lives to play with dad," Marty told a news conference. "And I'm sure he could help."

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices opened higher Wednesday in a moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Shortly after the opening bell, the Dow Jones industrial average had tacked on 0.23 to 901.64. Advances were almost three-one-half ahead of declines.

On Tuesday, the market pitted a 1/2 dollar, gold and Watergate worries to stage a strong technical rally. The Dow went up 14.90 to 900.81, after losing almost 45 points in the five previous sessions.

The advance was fueled by speculation, set off by Senate minority leader Hugh Scott that President Nixon might be moving closer to a tougher anti-inflation policy, similar to the Phase II wage-price controls.

Late Tuesday, Council of Economic Advisers Chairman Herbert Stein confirmed the administration was indeed actively reconsidering its economic stance, but indicated the existing program was not about to be scrapped.

Early Wednesday, Girard Bank of Philadelphia announced a 1/4 point boost in prime lending rate to 7 1/2 percent, possibly signaling a new round of increases by the nation's lending institutions.

Idaho Valley Weather Report

Outlook dry, warm with cloudiness

Twin Falls, northside, late today and Thursday. Lows tonight upper 40s with highs Thursday upper 70s to mid 80s.

Outlook for Friday, mostly dry and warm.

Synopsis: A massive high pressure centered over Colorado continues to produce sunny skies and warming temperatures from the Plains to the Pacific Coast states. Some moisture at high levels is moving toward Idaho from the west and south-west. This moisture will slowly increase high level cloudiness late today and Thursday over Western Idaho. However, there will be considerable sunshine on Thursday. A few afternoon and evening showers may occur over the western portions of the central Idaho mountains and will increase slightly over all of Idaho north of the Snake River Valley Thursday.

Extended outlook for southern Idaho, Friday through Sunday, calls for mostly dry and warm weather with highs in the 80s and lows in the mid-40s to mid-50s.

Mutual Funds Fraud case plea filed

NEW YORK (UPI)—John L. Clark, former head of a chain of nursing homes pleaded guilty Monday to a massive stock fraud involving $200 million.

Clark, 46, of Oklahoma City, is the former board chairman and president of the Four Seasons Nursing Centers of America. According to federal prosecutors, he turned a $27 million profit in what prosecutors called the most massive securities fraud in 40 years.

Clark pleaded guilty to one count in a 32-count indictment returned by a federal grand jury last year. In an eight-page statement Clark said: "I was willing to accept the consequences of my conduct as soon as it is practicable."

Federal prosecutors said investors lost an estimated $200 million through the illegal manipulation of Four Seasons stock.

Sentencing of Clark was set for Sept. 10. He faced a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a $100,000 fine.

Two codefendants also have pleaded guilty to similar charges and the five other codefendants are scheduled to go on trial soon in Oklahoma City.

Rate boost looms

NEW YORK (UPI)—The upward surge of short-term money costs in the open market is likely to force an increase in the prime lending rate of the nation's largest banks to 7 1/2 percent from 7 1/4 percent within the next two or three days, informed bankers said Tuesday.

Should an increase occur, it would be the sixth quarter-point jump in this key minimum charge on large business loans so far this year, and it would come less than two weeks after the previous increase, which was kicked off by the Chase Manhattan Bank on May 24.

Previously, bankers had been waiting about three weeks between prime-rate actions, in deference to the Nixon administration's committee on interest and dividends, which has asked banks to go "as slow as possible"—in bringing their lending rates in line with the market.

Protection sought

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The National Transportation Safety Board has issued a series of recommendations designed to ease the threat of munition explosions.

In a preliminary report on the May 24 explosion of a Southern Pacific train near Benson, Ariz., the board urged the railroads "to temporarily require at least one spacer car—a freight car not carrying hazardous materials—to be used between each freight car loaded with munitions."

The board, whose final report on the accident will be issued later, also urged railroads to use "spark shields" and improved brake shoes on freight cars carrying munitions, to reduce the possibility of sparks triggering fires.

Finally, the railroads should "increase inspection and surveillance of cars selected" to carry munitions, the investigators said.

Twelve cars of the Southern Pacific train loaded with bombs destined for Vietnam caught fire and exploded in the desert near Benson.

Muskie upholds Nixon

TOKYO (UPI)—Sen. Edmund Muskie said today that he does not support the suggestion that President Nixon resign "at this point."

Muskie made the statement at a news conference on the second day of a six-day visit to Japan. He was asked for comment on the suggestion by former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford that both Nixon and Vice President Spiro Agnew resign because of the Watergate affair.

"I would not take that position at this point," Muskie said. "The question Clifford is addressing has to do with the President's role. Such questions do exist and must be answered, the quicker the better.

"The FCC controls the issuance and renewal of broadcast licenses and can set regulations to prevent distortion of the news or require stations, under the so-called "Fairness Doctrine," to air both sides of controversial issues.

"The Star-News carried reports recently that local sportscasters usually are on the payroll of teams whose games they broadcast, as well as being retained by their radio or TV stations. The paper said team owners or club officials also hold a veto over which announcers are allowed to broadcast their games.

Nixon avoids queries

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, hoping to avoid the courtroom-like cross examination of a full scale news conference, was searching Tuesday for another way to meet with reporters to discuss the Watergate scandal, White House sources said.

They said the President under pressure from both Republicans and Democrats to submit to questioning on the subject of Watergate, was weighing several different proposals.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said recently the President would meet with reporters "in the near future, but no date has been set."

Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott, who met with the President Tuesday, predicted "there will in due time be a press conference when I assume every question thought of will be asked."

But he added: "I don't think he has to reply to every innuendo or every threat of frightened people in the pursuit of the avoidance of jail."

One of the proposals that has been put to Nixon by his staff, sources said, was to submit to an interview by one television commentator, or by the anchorman of the three main networks.

Still another suggestion was that Nixon allow five selected White House reporters question him.

Sources said White House aides would like to avoid a full-scale press conference on the Watergate, fearing that the intense questioning would give the impression that the President is on trial.

Aussies censor minister's talk

SYDNEY, Australia — A Sydney television channel blanked out last night several sharp phrases used by Prime Minister Gough Whitlam in criticizing a Roman Catholic bishop, and thereby touched off a heated national debate with political, religious and legal ramifications.

Whitlam attacked the bishop's intervention in a critical state election last month over the issue of liberalized abortion laws, which the prime minister favors and the church bitterly opposes. Whitlam's Labor Party lost the election in the key conservative state of Victoria in southeastern Australia.

Since then, the labor government and Whitlam personally have slipped badly in public opinion polls.

According to a Gallup Poll, Labor would have lost in a national election last month. A significant side effect of the censorship episode, in which the words of Whitlam referring to the bishop were obliterated on the videocast by "bleep" sounds, has been to unite the news media behind a proposal by the minister of the media, Sen. Douglas McClelland, to relay Australia's severe libel laws.

The interviewer, Mike Willesse, asked Whitlam what he thought "of the Catholic bishop coming out and saying don't vote labor because of abortion." Whitlam's answer in part, as heard on the sound track, was: "... it was one (bleep) man... he (bleep)... I think the church would do well to insist on the retiring age for some of (bleep) men."

Duties begin for TF range deputy

TWIN FALLS — An additional range deputy in Twin Falls County is expected to be on duty by Monday, Sheriff Paul Corder said today.

At the request of cattlemen of the county and through special arrangements by the county commissioners, the addition of a deputy and vehicle is being made to the regular county law enforcement staff.

Sheriff Corder said he will transfer T. M. Kendrick, Buhk, to the new position. Kendrick has been westend county deputy the past several years and has requested the new post, Corder said. He will be working with Ivan Kistler who has been handling outlying county areas the past several years.

With only one man and vehicle, there are times when the special range patrol is not being covered, Corder said, but the addition of one fulltime man will assure a range deputy on duty at all times.

He said there will be no specific hours worked by the two men, but rather they will change shifts to provide protection at various times.

Corder said cattlemen in the country are deeply concerned about the current range season because of high price of meat and the increase of cattle thefts.

"I am concerned too, and I think by doubling the law enforcement staff for this purpose now we will be able to prevent an increase in thefts," the sheriff said.

He said the range deputies will also be checking feedlots and pastures from time to time. They will also patrol new farm development areas including Blue Gulch and Bell Rapids.

Sheriff Corder said the westend deputy position will be filled by Gilbert Sweesy, now working in the Twin Falls office as dispatcher and desk duty. It is expected that Sweesy will take over the assignment immediately.

At the same time the sheriff announced the addition of a new deputy to work as dispatcher and desk officer.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 20 and I'm dating this guy who is 28. I like him as a date, but I don't like the battles I have with him to get him to keep his hands to himself.

Ten minutes after I'm in his car he's all over me. He is really just like a high school sophomore—oily stronger. The day after I've been out with him I ache all over from fighting him off. I'm not kidding. I've even left some scratches on his hands and face in addition to ripping his shirt and breaking his wristwatch.

I am not against a little affection, but this guy acts like a sex maniac. I am no big turnon, I'm a plain-looking girl and I don't invite his advances, so I can't understand it.

How can I cool him down without losing him completely? ARIES

Wrestling match

DEAR ARIES: If you continue to date this guy you must be hard up. Quit while you're ahead and tell the octopus to get lost.

DEAR ABBY: Our fine, handsome grandson is graduating from college soon, after which he is marrying a nice girl he met at college. (I'll call her Mary.) Mary is one of 12 children so there wasn't much money for extras in her family. To get to the point, Mary is desperately in need of dental work. It would improve her appearance 100 percent. I can well afford to pay for any dental work Mary needs done, but I don't know how to make the offer to our grandson without offending him. It is a wonder to us how this girl could have let her teeth get into such bad shape. And a greater wonder that our grandson wouldn't have noticed it. (Or perhaps he has, but didn't know what to do about it.)

How can we let our grandson know we will foot the bill if Mary will see a dentist? GRANDPA

DEAR GRANDPA: Tell him [privately] what you've told me. (P. S. And since when is dental care an "extra"? It's vital to general good health.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl with a big problem. My favorite cousin is getting married in two months and my parents won't let me go to the wedding unless I take off 10 pounds! That is an awful lot to lose in two months, but my mother said she talked to the doctor and he said I could do it if I tried. Abby, I would have to live on practically nothing to lose all that weight in two months. I'm afraid I would get so weak I couldn't do as well in school, etc.

I have enough money in the bank to fly to the wedding which is across the country, but my parents say I can't go at all unless I lose 10 pounds, and if I do, they will buy my ticket.

Why are people so prejudiced against overweight people? It's as if we weren't even human.

Are my parents being unfair to me, Abby? I just have to go to that wedding. I pray a lot and it makes me feel better but it doesn't get me there. Please help me. HEARTBROKEN

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Five pounds a month is not too much to lose, and if the doctor says you can do it, you should try. Quit looking for excuses why you CAN'T, and start on a diet right now and you'll make it. Good luck.

mond. His eight lost to West's king. West led his 10 of hearts and there Hal was right where he didn't want to be.

Nothing daunted, he ran off four diamond tricks. West discarded three spades and East two.

Hal cashed dummy's ace of clubs and got the queen from East and the eight from West.

Up to this point Hal had played with lightning speed. He stopped to think, led a club from dummy. East was in with the king and had to give Hal game and rubber with the top spade.

Simple, or was it? Just try the hand on anyone and see if he works the whole play out.

Former resident exchanges promises

TWIN FALLS — Donna M. Erickson became the bride of Garth N. Huddleston in an afternoon ceremony May 28 in the forest near Helena, Mont. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Erickson, Helena, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Huddleston, Great Falls, Mont., former Twin Falls residents.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

In what position do you usually find yourself at the exact moment you wake up every morning? Try to recall. Inasmuch as it's probably the most comfortable for you, that's the position you ought to get into on those nights you can't dose-off right away. Or so suggests a medical expert who has made a study of insomnia.

Pound for pound, there's more water in a man than in a woman, usually. Body fat explains that. It contains less water. And women have more of it. Look, young lady, don't you sit there at your typewriter, staring insolently at my midsection. You're tired!

On a mountain peak, the mountain goat's sure-footedness, few folk realize several of these beasts dies annually in falls off rocks.

Three out of four of those expectant girls in their teens drop out of school.

LOVE AND WAR

Young lady, please listen now to the excellent advice of that famous Love and War expert Madame Darjaux. With age, we realize certain facts are better left unlearned. So if you are afraid of knowing exactly what's the role of your cousin from Chicago in your husband's life while you were so ill, it would be better not to ask the question. Besides, either a husband is civilized and tells a lie, or he's brutal and tells the truth.

Q: "When was the great bubonic plague?"
A: "Which one?" In Egypt, 1542. In Italy, 1348. In London, 1666. In Hong Kong, 1894.

Q: "Who was the first US president elected after the woman nationwide got the vote?"
A: "That good-looking fellow Warren G. Harding."

FENDER BENDER

Take those cars wrecked but not totaled. Three out of five show corner damage only. Fenders mostly. Also three out of five are said to be damaged while moving at speeds of 5 m.p.h. or slower. When Ford came up with those findings in a study of 20,000 damaged vehicles sometime back, analysts concluded parking lot accidents were significant. Too significant. And the build-a-better-bumper boys got serious, and serious.

Musical vocabulary of the meadowlark is said to contain at least 264 notes. The piano, just 88. Is it too whimsical to point out that the meadowlark can fly at least three times better than a piano, too?

Add, also, to the long list of sad facts the report that more windows are broken weekly on the Long Island railroad than on all the trains of Franco.

Still don't know what always keeps a cucumber about one degree cooler than the air around it. But that phrase "cool as a cucumber" has some foundation in fact, true enough.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A very difficult day and evening to try to get others to do what you want them to do; also difficult to keep your discontent under control, unless you consciously study problems to realize they give you opportunities to show how well you can handle them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have to get at all that work ahead of you in a quiet and controlled fashion, otherwise you make a real mess of it. Plan some time for health improvement. You can accomplish far more in the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Although you may be worried about something, show others you are a cheerful person and get good results. Do something nice for the one you love and have more happiness. Get rid of possible tensions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Matters at home can be quite troublesome, so be sure you use tact and iron out any wrinkles. Get about looking better by some effort on your part. Try to understand the viewpoints of others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get that shopping done even though it could be a little difficult; be sure to count your change. Use a quiet tone of voice with associates, or you get into arguments. Think along more practical lines.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Use care in handling property or money affairs today, tonight. Save more money for the future when you may need it badly. Extravagance for fun is both wrong and unwise. Think.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get rid of that depressive feeling so you do not criticize others unmercifully and get yourself in real douch with them. A good friend can be in a teasing mood, but do not let this bother you. Be happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get busy handling all those small tasks that have accumulated and they are soon behind you, if you don't grumble about them. Free time for the future. Don't start an argument over some thoughtless word from a friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't get into an argument with a pal or there could be a serious severance of connections. Don't voice or force that personal aim which is really not what you want. Think it over more carefully.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you take the liberty of calling down some bigwig, you could regret it later on very much. Show you are of a more practical nature, instead. Follow every rule that applies to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 30) Get busy studying data you need rather than go on some foolish tangent that could cause you trouble. Think before you speak or act and you get along much better. Avoid one who does not really respect you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 31 to Feb. 19) You had better sleep over those promises you have made before you actually get into the work on them. Mate could be irritated, so do nothing to make matters worse. Keep silent and all is fine.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Partners are discouraged or upset in some way, so do nothing that can further disturb them, but be helpful instead. Nothing can be done about that civic matter how, so study it further. Tomorrow is a better day for such.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those young people who likes to solve problems, help others, so give a chance early to handle own affairs and help with family ones as well, since there is much ingenuity here. Give the best education so this youngster can handle all the fine details of projects that are difficult for others. Then your offspring will become very successful, otherwise he or she will be frustrated, instead.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

MAJOR HOOPLE

Farm bill compromise hinted

Farm

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman W. R. Ponge of the House Agriculture Committee said Tuesday he was willing to discuss a compromise with the administration on new farm legislation, but "we're not going to do all the giving."

The Texas Democrat's comment came in an interview after he and Rep. Charles Teague, R-Calif., the agriculture committee's ranking Republican, met privately Monday with Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and Undersecretary J. Phil Campbell.

Ponge's committee is currently at work constructing its own version of a new farm bill scheduled for floor debate in the Senate this week.

The measure, to be effective beginning with 1974 crops, would fix new "target prices" for three major crops and then — if market prices slipped below the targets — would guarantee government payments to farmers to make up the difference.

Administration officials have already indicated they are willing to seek a compromise based on the target-price system. But Ponge said Butz takes the position that the price targets set in the Senate bill are too high.

"I think he's wrong," Ponge said. He said the Senate plan "can't cost the government a dime" if commodity markets remain at their current high levels.

The Senate target prices for 1974 would be $2.28 a bushel for wheat, $1.63 a bushel for corn, and 43 cents a pound for cotton. In future years, the targets would rise in line with a government index of farmer's costs.

Ponge added in the interview that despite his differences with Butz, he felt a compromise would be necessary to win passage of any new farm bill to replace programs which expire this year.

"The administration can't pass a farm bill by itself. We (farm bloc lawmakers) can't pass a bill by ourselves. But if we work together, we can do it," Ponge said.

The Agriculture chairman added he hoped to have more private negotiating talks with administration officials in the process of drafting a new bill. Administration experts, meanwhile, have calculated that if grain and cotton market prices remain at May's high levels, subsidies under the Senate version of the farm bill would drop to $245 million in 1974 — less than a tenth of this year's expected spending.

But the "escalator" clause for target prices in future years would bring outlays by 1978 to between $1.6 billion and $3 billion, depending on the pace of inflation in the general economy, officials estimated.

Officials stress, however, that they do not expect market prices to remain at current peaks after this year.

"Under what officials term a 'reasonable' estimate of future markets, they calculate the Senate farm plan would cost $3.8 billion in subsidies in 1974 with costs rising to between $4.5 billion-$7.8 billion by 1978.

Jerome FB hears terms of new Gem brand law

JEROME — Jerome County Farm Bureau President Gordon Hollifield has presented a report to the board on the changes in the state brand law.

Hollifield said changes in the law go into effect July 1. Hollifield said Rep. Earl Greenawalt, R-Jerome, who met with the Farm Bureau, said that in his opinion the new bill was a good one. Greenawalt told the group the purpose of the bill is to provide better protection against cattle rustling.

Hollifield said the new law raises the maximum fee for inspection from 20 cents to 30 cents a head and also raises the maximum fee that may be charged for recording the brand and related services from $5 to $15 for a five year period.

The new law states that the state brand inspector shall be responsible to the state brand board, and that the state board shall have the authority to require inspection of all cattle, horses, mules transferred in any manner or which shall be placed for sale, or to establish proof of ownership. At the point in time a living animal becomes a carcass meat, the law requires inspection not more than 96 hours prior to slaughtering whether for commercial purposes or for the owner's immediate family needs.

Greenawalt told the group the general tax which had been levied against all livestock in the state has been dropped and only the ones using the brand inspection services will be paying for it.

In a discussion of the regional airport, Greenawalt said he opposed the airport before the people voted it.

He said that had the law required all eight counties to join the authority with a majority vote, the present five county authority would not now be in effect.

He said it is apparent that the five counties can not build a regional airport and that the airport authority board can cost Jerome County over the next 10 years $74,000 and still not have a regional airport.

Greenawalt said now that the authority has been established he supports it and feels that the Farm Bureau members should also actively support it. Greenawalt suggested Farm Bureau members become active in the city and county planning commissions to help the orderly growth.

Del Hlatt, Farm Bureau chairman, suggested that the Farm Bureau circulate petitions to abolish the present regional airport authority board and start over so that all counties could vote again, Farm Bureau members have taken no action on his suggestion.

Hollifield said District III of the Idaho Farm Bureau reached its membership quota and has been awarded the President's Trophy. Bob Sexton, district fieldman, told the county board an all time high was set.

The district includes Camas, Mindoka, Lincoln, Blaine, Jerome, Twin Falls, Gooding and Cassia counties.

The Farm Bureau will sponsor a film of the 4-H tour to Japan. Produced by the Farm Bureau, the film will be shown on television in Idaho Falls, Salt Lake City, Twin Falls, Boise and Spokane, Wash., Hollifield said. He said tentative plans call for showing the relationship of Idaho agriculture to Japan's agriculture, the diet of the Japanese and how it is changing and their use of American agricultural products.

Wyoming wool grower scores agency policies

CASPER, Wyo. (UPI) — The U.S. Department of Interior should be relieved of its responsibility for predator control because it has "bungled" the program, John Burke, Wyoming Wool Growers Association president, said Monday.

"The Department of Interior is demoralized at the Washington level with preservation oriented officials that have bungled the predator animal control program since 1939 when the Interior assumed responsibility of the program from the Department of Agriculture," Burke told a Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee hearing.

Burke was among about 50 persons from Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and New Mexico testifying at the hearing.

Wool growers representatives from each state urged lifting of an Environmental Protection Agency ban on poisons to kill predators and urged return of predator control to the U.S. Department of Agriculture in cooperation with state departments of agriculture.

Sen. Cliff Hansen, R-Wyo., was the only committee member present at the hearing.

Hansen said the EPA ban would not be lifted because of the "emotionalism" created by killing of wildlife by poisons.

Ed Merrick, regional representative of the National Wildlife Federation, said that poisoning predators was an "archaic" practice and that non-poisonous forms of predator control should be researched.

Tom Garrett of Laramie, a representative of the Defenders of Wildlife and Friends of the Earth, said the federal government should fund a program to train sheep herders to protect the animals from coyotes.

Merrick also said research showed that large numbers of coyotes do not prey on sheep, but that in most cases one or two coyotes repeatedly prey on a flock.

State Sen. James Thompson, R-Converse-Niobrara, said in a year coyotes would outnumber employees in the Department of Interior.

Idaho farm chief says control OK

BOISE (UPI) — State Agriculture Commissioner Wilson Kellogg says food producers should accept industry controls but create them as well and "stay ahead of the game."

"Keep controls at home is what I preach," Kellogg told a Boise meeting of the Food Producers of Idaho.

He said agriculture now is "dovetailed" into society demands and must take a realistic look at such agencies as the environmental protection agency which represent a plurality of votes. Kellogg said agriculture must correct its own failures, facing and changing decisions of the past.

Club draws camp plans

TWIN FALLS — The Healthy Cookie Cutters met Monday at the home of Pam Moseley.

The meeting was conducted by Diane Murphy, president. Pledges were by Valerie Kerr and Miss Moseley. Enrollment was completed and members discussed achievement day, July 12, and 4-H camp. New secret names were drawn.

Dolls were used for demonstration in the child care project, conducted by LuAnn Platt, leader, and clothing record books were worked on. Lori Burgess gave a magic handbag demonstration. Shelley Britlett gave a demonstration on sewing boxes. Miss Platt gave a quiz and discussed the buying and storing of dairy foods.

All projects and books should be completed by June 25. The next meeting is June 11 at 1:30 p.m. at the home of Diane Murphy.
