Officers investigate at scene of fatal crash near Curry

New Viet war accord signed

PARIS (UPI) — The four original warring parties of South Vietnam signed today another agreement worked up by Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho to bring a "strict and scrupulous implementation" of the Jan. 27 cease-fire agreement that was supposed to have ended the fighting in Vietnam.

Representatives of the United States, North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the Viet Cong gathered once more in the Kleber Avenue conference hall — site of the long, drawn-out Paris peace talks — for the ceremony that bore a marked resemblance to the first signing four months ago.

It was a reluctant South Vietnam, President Nguyen Van Thieu has said, no signing was necessary because Saigon had not violated the original agreement. But in the end he bowed to U.S. economic pressure and decided to go along with the ceremony, diplomatic sources reported in Saigon.

Since the original Jan. 27 truce war has continued to ravage South Vietnam and each side blamed the other for the thousands of cease-fire violations which have claimed more thousands of lives when there was supposed to be peace after nearly three decades of war.

President Nixon ordered Kissinger back to Paris for more talks with Tho, suspended mine sweeping of the North Vietnamese harbors, broke off talks on postwar U.S. economic aid to Hanoi and modified an intensive bombing campaign in Cambodia. This time the agreement is supposed to bring peace to Cambodia too.

A Communist spokesman said the communique worked out in a last two-hour session today between Kissinger and Tho closely resembled the 14-point plan made public in Saigon Tuesday calling for an effective cease-fire, an end to interference in Cambodia and setting up new machinery for restoring peace.

Kissinger and Tho announced the new agreement then met later to initial it, the first step in making it binding. The four parties were called in for the 4 p.m. (9 a.m. MDT) signing ceremony and it was announced that U.S. and North Vietnamese officials would sign the final documents at 7 p.m. (10 a.m. MDT.)

In a formal ceremony at Kleber Avenue conference center, the four parties put their names to a communique which spelled out measures "for strict and scrupulous implementation" of the Jan. 27 peace agreement. No text of the document was released immediately but peace delegation sources said it differed little from published reports from Saigon Tuesday.

These said the United States agreed to resume talks on economic aid and mine sweeping of Northern harbors while arrangements were made for the two sides to meet at unit commander level to end cease-fire violations.

Kissinger and Tho signed for the United States and North Vietnam.

Minister of State Nguyen Van Thieu signed for the Viet Cong and Deputy Prime Minister Nguyen Lau Vien for South Vietnam.

The signing took place in a 10-minute ceremony in the same chandelier-hung room that saw the original peace pact signed Jan. 27.

TF collision kills Hazelton boy, 13

Reactor impact study asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A U.S. Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday that the Atomic Energy Commission must prepare a report on the environmental impact of breeder nuclear reactors, which may supply most of the nation's electricity by the year 2,000.

The appeals court said the anticipated effects of the breeder reactor program on the environment "are among the most significant, and the most controversial, of all federal programs."

TWIN FALLS — A 13-year-old Hazelton boy was killed in the collision of a car and a smoke-obsured pickup truck west of here Tuesday afternoon.

Michael W. McDaniel died instantly when the small sedan in which he was a passenger collided with a pickup truck driven by Dora Schutte, Curry, according to Sheriff Paul Corder.

McDaniel's stepbrother, Nolan McCann, 12, also a passenger in the car, was injured in the collision. He was reported in critical condition today at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. He sustained a fractured skull and extensive chest injuries.

Both boys were riding with James McDaniel, 33, the father of young McDaniel and the stepfather of McCann. The elder McDaniel is listed in good condition at Magic Valley Memorial. He sustained facial lacerations and shock.

Sheriff Corder said the McDaniel vehicle was westbound on U. S. 30 when the accident occurred about 1:50 p.m. east of the Curry crossing, near the Historical Society Museum.

Corder said Richard Armstrong and his son, Raymond, were burning ditch along the north side of the highway, with Raymond driving a tractor and the father following on foot with the burner. Mr. Schutte was following the tractor in a pickup truck with the blinkers flashing as a precautionary measure, Corder said.

He said the burning operation started with a favorable wind from the south blowing smoke away from the highway. But the wind changed direction, Corder said, and began blowing the smoke back across the road. It was under these conditions that the accident occurred, he said.

Mrs. Schutte was not seriously injured, only shaken up, the sheriff said. He said his officers, who were assisted by Idaho State Police at the scene, are still investigating.

Sheriff Corder said young McDaniel apparently died instantly. He said the small sedan in which the family was riding was forced under the rear of the pickup by the impact.

County Coroner Cloyce Edwards pronounced the McDaniel boy dead at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Nixon slates talk tonight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will disclose new proposals for fighting inflation in a nationwide broadcast tonight at 6:30 MDT, the White House announced.

Details of the plan were kept secret, but it is expected to include some selective price freezes affecting some industries, while omitting a specific wage freeze.

Nixon has been concentrating for a week on various proposals of his economic advisers and Cabinet members for stemming the worst inflation to hit the nation in 20 years, including record rises in food prices. There have been some demands in Congress for across-the-board freezes of prices and wages.

Sources within organized labor said, however, they were "relatively confident" wages would be exempted from any freeze orders. One source pointed out that the Cost of Living Council still has power to control wages if the administration chose to clamp down in that area.

In announcing plans for the prime-time broadcast on television and radio, Gerald L. Warren, deputy presidential press secretary, said only that the speech would run about 15 minutes. He did not say what it would contain.

The President will speak from his Oval Office, Warren said, after separate late afternoon briefings on the speech for Cabinet members and congressional leaders of both parties.

The Washington Star-News quoted administration officials as saying the new controls would not represent simply "cosmetic readjustment" of existing or former rules. "This is strong action, not watery weak," the Star-News quoted one source.

Fireman wants out of Navy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Navy Fireman Patrick D. Chenoweth, 21, Puyallup, Wash., said today he will take immediate steps to get out of the Navy instead of serving out an enlistment running until July, 1974.

Chenoweth was acquitted Tuesday by a court martial board of charges of sabotaging the aircraft carrier Ranger. He was accused of throwing a paint scraper and two heavy bolts into the main gears of the ship last year.

New zoning ordinance to TF panel Thursday

TWIN FALLS — A revised county zoning ordinance will be presented to the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday.

Zoning administrator Ed Woods said the commission will be asked to authorize a public hearing on the 74-page document, to be presented at the commission's regular meeting.

A new subdivision ordinance and a planned unit development ordinance have not been completed, according to Woods, and will not be discussed at the meeting.

The meeting is at 8 p.m. in the County Judicial Building.

Woods said the revised zoning ordinance will not be "a radical change" from existing zoning rules.

He outlined the major changes, including:

1. No subdivisions allowed in the agricultural zone, generally the area south of the Low-Line Canal. Minimum farm units will be five acres.
2. Subdivisions will be allowed in the residential-agricultural zone. Lot sizes will continue to be regulated by the standards of the health department for septic drain fields with a minimum lot size of 12,000 square feet.

3. Residential zones near cities will have uses compatible to the cities.
4. Commercial and industrial zones have been expanded, based on discussions with affected cities.
5. An airport zone has been established. The main provision of the airport zone restricts building heights and the height of objects in the approach paths and traffic patterns of the airport.

Outmoded

LONDON (UPI) — Home Secretary Robert Carr said Tuesday that British prisons will abolish bread and water diet punishments.

"Dietary punishment," he said, "is out of place in the 20th century."

Skylab's targets obscured

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab's astronauts got a clear look at their Cape Kennedy launch site today but heavy clouds obscured much of the nation on their next-to-last picture-taking sweep.

"There's the Cape under the clouds there," control using a television camera hooked up to a telescope. The clouds, however, spoiled the view of much of Florida, including the Disney World complex to the west.

The 32-minute picture-taking pass began over the state of Washington and ended east of Brazil. It was the tenth earth resources run for Weitz, Charles "Pete" Conrad and Joseph P. Kerwin.

Princess, Mark set date

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Anne will marry Lt. Mark Phillips in Westminster Abbey Nov. 14, Buckingham Palace announced today. Palace sources said invitations have been sent out for what is expected to be one of the most splendid royal marriages of the century.

The brief palace announcement gave only the place and date for the wedding of the 22-year-old daughter of Queen Elizabeth and the 24-year-old cavalry officer and the fact it would be solemnized by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of the Church of England.

Brando rips minority treatment

NEW YORK (UPI) — Actor Marlon Brando, in a television talk show appearance Tuesday night, said he asked an Indian girl to substitute for him at the Academy Awards presentations "because of what Hollywood has done to the Indians and all minority groups."

Brando blasted the untrue portrayals of minorities in movies and television, particularly Indians who are given a negative image of themselves.

Gem senator scores short hearing notice

BOISE (UPI) — A state senator sharply criticized the Department of Environmental and Community Services today for failure to give proper notice of a water quality hearing.

Only about a dozen persons turned out when the DECS opened a hearing on its annual program strategy for water quality improvement and the hearing lasted less than 30 minutes.

H. Tom Davis, a spokesman for the Ada Council of Governments, presented the only testimony — saying his organization basically supported the proposed schedule.

Reassurance offered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans testified today that President Nixon told him in a "pep talk" last August not to worry about personal problems the Watergate bugging was causing because "it will all be over eventually."

Returning for a second day of questioning by the Senate Watergate Committee, Stans also said he never questioned and was not suspicious about large cash payments funneled to various Nixon campaign officials and White House aides in the months preceding the bugging of Democratic party headquarters last spring.

"I felt it was not incumbent on us to question the propriety of payments to (G. Gordon) Liddy or anyone else and we didn't," said Stans, who was and still is chairman of the Finance Committee to Re-Elect the President.

"Subsequent events couldn't possibly have been conceived by me or anyone else."

Liddy was counsel to the finance committee and was one of the men convicted in January for the Watergate raid. Stans said he had "no idea" Liddy was drawing huge sums of cash from campaign coffers, although he had checked out a $83,000 payment to Liddy in April, 1972, with former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, then Nixon's campaign manager.

Stans, indicted with Mitchell last month by a federal grand jury in New York on campaign fraud charges in connection with a $200,000 contribution from financier Robert L. Vesco, testified that Nixon had called him one day in August.

"He said he was aware of the fact that I was receiving considerable punishment in the press for not answering all their questions at that time," Stans said. "He said he appreciated the sacrifice I was making...and that it would all be over eventually. It was a pep talk, essentially."

Aside from a meeting with the President 10 days later in which fund-raising problems were discussed, Stans said, he had no other discussions with Nixon during the campaign and, aside from the "pep talk," has never talked about the Watergate scandal with him.

He said he had "absolutely no information" that the President knew of the bugging in advance or was involved in a coverup of the scandal.

Nor, Stans said, had he conferred with Mitchell or other ranking officials immediately following the Watergate in the early morning hours of Saturday, June 17, 1972.

"I don't recall any conference on the 17th and I was not in the office on the 18th," he said. "Other than the possibility I may have said to someone 'That's a silly thing to do,' I had no conferences; none that my records show."

A self-described "stickler for details," Stans told the committee Tuesday that he could provide no details about a $1 million fund that a secret memo claimed he was amassing at the Commerce Department in 1971 to aid Nixon's reelection effort.

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK

The White House Revolution

WASHINGTON — The revolutionary changes now going on in the White House...

were dramatized at the last cabinet meeting when President Nixon said that Laird had flatly rejected the kind of large, personal staff which marked the unornamented...

days of H. R. (Bob) Haldeman and John Ehrlichman. With Laird sitting with him, Mr. Nixon told the cabinet meeting, enlarged for the first time by the presence of the House and Senate Republican leaders, that Laird would work directly with cabinet members "and their own staffs."

Bill Laird, and Kissinger conferred privately and at length in the White House last week before Laird's appointment was announced. Friends of both say Kissinger told Laird that as of now he intended to keep his job as Mr. Nixon's top foreign policy adviser. Should Kissinger change his mind, however, it is expected that the highest White House levels that Gen. Alexander M. Haig, Jr., now the White House staff chief, would take over as national security adviser.

"WHO SAID NEVER ON SUNDAY?"

Those Envoys

The venerable, if not exactly "time-honored" custom of rewarding political contributors with ambassadorships may be on the way out, and few there are who will mourn it.

A pending policy statement by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, already accepted in principle by the State Department, would permit only 15 per cent of ambassadorships to be drawn from outside Foreign Service ranks (compared with a current average of 30 to 35 per cent for noncareer appointments).

In addition, any nominee for an ambassadorship who contributed more than $10,000 to a campaign would be viewed as unacceptable by the committee.

To repeat, few will regret the passing of the old system, except perhaps those "fat cats" who felt that the prestige of the thing or the social class it gave them entree to was worth what it cost them to maintain their posts (more about that below).

However, because everyone these days has been primed to believe the worst about politicians, and political contributors, it should be pointed out that the conferring of diplomatic plums in return for campaign donations was one of those practices which, like Topsy, just grew and was not necessarily the product of conscious evil.

It was a self-feeding process; because a stingy and moralistic Congress consistently refused to provide the funds necessary to run the nation's foreign embassies, particularly in the department of entertainment, only rich men willing to dig into their own pockets could afford to be ambassadors.

Or maybe it was the other way around: Because an ambassadorship was a convenient way to reward a political contributor, and since most contributors were performed well-heeled, the Lemonade Lucies in Congress were able to score points with the public by refusing to vote enough funds to run an embassy in the manner in which the members of the international diplomatic set had accustomed themselves (even if it was only nibbling free sandwiches at the traditional Fourth of July open-house).

Whichever way it happened, the result was the same. But if the fat cats no longer underwrite a significant part of the nation's diplomatic functioning, that means Congress will have to — and that brings us back where the whole thing started.

Good Heavens

Billions for defense, but nothing for the search for extraterrestrial life.

That is the lament of Dr. Carl Sagan, director of the Laboratory for Planetary Studies at Cornell University, who writes in Intellectual Digest that as many as a hundred billion stars in our own galaxy (which is only one of billions of galaxies) might have planetary systems like our own.

the specter of the U.S.S.R. — every time they want a few more bombers or something Sagan notes that the Soviet Union "is now actively pursuing a radio-astronomical search for signals from extraterrestrial civilizations on planets of other stars."

For what we spend for a few bombers, says Sagan, we could build a major astronomical facility.

MR. SPECTATOR

Moonlight

Becomes Me?

Moonlight does a lot of different things for a lot of people.

Day or two ago Mrs. Spectator took down the drapes in the bedroom for a washing. They are thick enough that they took awhile to dry and, of course, you couldn't rush it because they would shrink.

Well, came time to go to bed and no drapes. Mr. Spectator's side of the bed is closest to the window.

Actually, it made one feel a little peculiar stretched out in bed and reading and, with no drapes on the window, wondering if someone was looking in from someplace.

But finally the reading was completed and the light was put out.

Then we noticed the moonlight coming through the window. It hit at the other end of the bedroom and was interesting. But then the Sandman caught up with us and we drifted off.

That was about midnight.

Then came 2:30 in the morning. The moon has shifted and the moonlight which was hitting the end of the room when we drifted off, was now hitting us right in the face.

And there I was, covered with moonlight. But a turn to the right and the task of burying my face in the pillow and the moonlight was wiped out.

So back to sleep.

You know something? The next night the drapes were still not in place. But we were in luck — it was overcast and the moon didn't shine through so, no sleep interruption.

because of light from the heavens!

THOSE SHOES

We bought a new pair of shoes the other day. The one pair we had needed a rest from everyday wearing — and so did our feet.

But we feel terrible about the whole thing. We had never paid as much for a pair of shoes in our lives as we did the other day — and they were just regular dress shoes.

As a kid we can remember even when in high school wearing a shoe known as "The Friendly Five." And that's what it cost — just $5. Well, the shoes we just purchased cost more than nine times that much. Awful, ain't it?

THE PIONEERS

Drove out to the Hansen area where the Oregon Trail cuts across from east to west and immediately thought of the gasoline crisis. Why?

Well, when those covered wagons were coming through this area they also had a shortage of energy. Not the kind that keeps a human moving but a shortage of wood to burn, things for the cattle and teams to eat and food for the train members. And you know what? When those folks had a shortage it was permanent!

DAVID ESPO:

The Other Side

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County Commissioners appear ready to approve a professional planner for the county.

Their approval, should it come, would be an important step in trying to sort out the problems of controlling the way businesses and industry and homes are taking over the area immediately outside the city of Twin Falls, and elsewhere and hopefully leave a little green grass left over in case the builders of factories and homes forget about parks and recreation areas. It could also result in the saving of prime agricultural land from subdivision.

But their approval or disapproval of the planner in a joint venture with the city doesn't alleviate the basic problem that has been present, and is growing more and more evident as Twin Falls itself continues to grow.

As cities in Idaho grow larger, the system of county government as it exists becomes more and more unrepresentative and undemocratic. The discrepancy is partially built into the law, partially the result of how people exercise their right to vote, partially the result of the relatively meager salaries available for commissioners and partially because, while they have enormous power over certain areas of public life, the commissioners are presented in law with no established means of hiring the county's equivalent of a city manager.

Twin Falls County provides an example. The commissioners are elected by about 40,000 people, with half the electorate living inside the Twin Falls City limits. Yet because of the statutory provision that commissioners must represent areas as well as people, no more than one commissioner lives inside the city.

In other words, one half the county's voters are represented by one third of the commissioners. There is no use in pretending that all the commissioners represent all the people in a county, even though they are all elected to large.

There is no use in pretending, further, that they should represent all the people in the county. The circumstances that developed the county system decades ago are changing. Population centers, such as they were at the turn of the century, were smaller and more scattered than they are now. Counties provided an effective level of government below the state level, where there was no city or other unit for local control and local decision making.

But as cities develop and the space between them diminishes, county government begins to conflict with city government. The elected officials feel the conflict and the commissioners begin more and more to represent the non-city voters and interests and leave the problems of the city to the council.

That may in the long run be a wise and even beneficial choice. It is difficult to understand in Ada County the needs and problems common to both the cities of Boise and, say, Kuna.

On a smaller scale, of course, the same situation exists in Twin Falls County. Because the city of Twin Falls has grown rapidly in recent years, and because there is no sign of a let up in the growth, commissioners want to hire somebody at least to gather information and advise them. They are adding the annexing land without any real notion of where it will all end.

But the commissioners have thus far down played the problem of growth because they perceive themselves to be representatives of the non-urban areas of the county, and the false issue of "local control" is raised to argue against hiring a professional planner and making it all palatable to those voters.

The only problem with that viewpoint, of course, is that it disenfranchises about half the county voters, victims not of individual commissioners, but of commissioners themselves victims of an outmoded system of government.

ANDREW TULLY

Getting Dirty

WASHINGTON — The brawl over the cost of defending Western Europe, borne mostly by the United States taxpayer, is getting dirty. Where money is concerned, our loving allies are not above resorting to the swift kick in the groin.

European officials now are bellowing that Henry Kissinger's "new Atlantic Charter" speech of April 23 was an attempt to "blackmail" our allies into paying a bigger share of the tab for keeping the Russians off their sacred soil, in return for U.S. agreement on trade and monetary matters.

"Well, I'd have used a prettier term, like friendly persuasion," says a high State Department man. "But in fact we are putting some pressure on Europe to give us a hand. With Congress deeply concerned over our balance of payments deficit, there's a very real danger it will vote for a unilateral withdrawal of American troops if NATO countries continue to evade their military responsibilities."

State's man knows what he's talking about. For the first time in more than a decade of trying, the Capitol Hill forces led by the highly respected Majority Leader Mike Mansfield have a reasonable chance of enacting legislation to force a reduction of U.S. armed strength in Europe. With the Republic beset by inflation and a weakened dollar, it makes sense to cut that strength because the 300,000 American troops now protecting our Atlantic allies are responsible for more than $2-billion a year of the payments deficit.

Two billion bucks is not peanuts, even today. It could still buy a lot of housing for the poor. Besides, it's an unfair burden on the American taxpayer, produced by Western Europe's unwillingness to lift a little finger in its own defense.

Incredible as it may seem, the only country now contributing economically to the cost of U.S. troops in Europe is West Germany. The rest of that bunch always looks the other way when it is suggested they dip into their fattened bankrolls. Indeed, again excepting West Germany, none of the NATO nations has ever fulfilled its own troop commitment, and Denmark is cutting its contribution. Others have reduced the length-of-service for conscripts or ended conscription entirely. The U.S. draft will not be junked until July 1.

Until recently, Congress has not been celebrated for its participation in foreign policy. Ever since Franklin D. Roosevelt, the gentlemen on the Hill have tended to leave diplomacy to the White House, sometimes with disastrous results. But the Kissinger speech reflected President Nixon's awareness that Congress may force him to reduce U.S. troop strength in Europe.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

To Reduce

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A girlfriend and I started gagging ourselves after eating large meals or rich pastries, hoping that the high calorie level would not affect us or our figures.

It's now six months later and I've begun to get pains and twinges in my stomach and tiny drops of blood in my vomit.

Have I permanently damaged my stomach?

Other girls in the dorm with me said they'll stop doing it if we hear from you. I'm worried about myself and them. — A.R.

Of all the idiotic gimmicks I've run across, this has to take the booby prize.

I hesitated to use your letter, fearing that publicizing this dangerous "weight-reduction plan" would only give other figure-conscious young girls an idea to try it. If you and your dorm mates were the only ones trying it, that would be too many.

Yes, the blood in the vomitus could be and probably is related to the practice you describe.

And yes, it could result in damage to the stomach or gullet linings although, fortunately, stopping it and seeing a doctor for treatment would undoubtedly not leave you with lasting effects.

Show your dorm-mates this article, and if you get a chance tack it up on a prominent bulletin board in your dorm. You may help stop others from trying it.

The unnatural use of vomiting is placing too great a strain on the digestive system, from the stomach on up.

When this happens, damage to the tissue that lines the walls of the system becomes ruptured, accounting, in your case, for the blood. You can also short-change yourself on needed minerals.

In my booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," I list 12 rules to stay thin. You may bet on it, your method is not among these.

If you want a copy, send 35 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Where have I been all day? I was at a place right up the street watching the Ervin committee."

Security strategy looks abandoned

By NORMAN KEMPSTER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon appears to have muted — and may have abandoned entirely — the national security counterattack strategy for dealing with the Watergate scandal.

You might say they ran it up the flagpole and almost nobody saluted it.

In his 4,000-word statement on May 22, Nixon said he had placed restrictions on the FBI investigation of the Watergate bugging to make sure the probe would not compromise national security activities.

He also said he previously had personally authorized wiretaps and approved a plan (which he said was never put into effect) that would have condoned burglary to obtain intelligence information. All of this, he said, was justified by needs of national survival.

The strategy, reportedly worked out in a series of secret White House meetings, was to suggest the nation had greater dangers to its security than the bugging of the Democratic national headquarters or subsequent cover-up efforts.

Some in the White House may have thought that by implying that the publication of the Pentagon Papers and other news leaks had endangered national security, the news reports of wrongdoing by administration officials — many of them based on leaks and unnamed sources — could be discredited.

Analysis

The strategy hit a high point two days after the May 22 statement. Addressing cheering returned prisoners of war, Nixon said:

"Had we not had secrecy, had we not had secret negotiations with the North Vietnamese, had we not had secret negotiations prior to the Soviet summit, had we not had secret negotiations over a period of time with the Chinese leaders, let me say quite bluntly, there would have been no China initiative, there would have been no limitation of arms for the Soviet Union and no summit — and you men would still be in Hanoi."

"I think it is time in this country to quit making national heroes out of those who steal secrets and publish them in the newspaper."

Nixon was criticized, even by some people who had supported him on most other issues, for injecting irrelevant issues into the Watergate debate.

Also by pointedly referring to Daniel Ellsberg, the man who acknowledged giving the Pentagon Papers to the newspapers, Nixon called attention to the fact that Ellsberg had just gone free, in large part because the White House "plumbers" had burglarized the office of his psychiatrist.

Last Friday Nixon made a commencement address at Florida Technological University in Orlando, a campus the White House said was selected for its "solid middle-American student body." But instead of advancing the counterattack, the President ignored Watergate, government secrecy and national security and instead, urged his listeners to concentrate more on what's right with America than on the nation's troubles.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew may have signaled a new direction for the administration's anti-Watergate effort Monday in a St. Louis speech criticizing the Senate's Ervin Committee for holding televised hearings which he said would interfere with the future prosecution of the guilty.

He did not cite national security; he only deplored the lack of courtroom safeguards for the rights of the accused.

Thieu turns cadre into party aides

(c) New York Times Service
SAIGON — Under orders from Nguyen Van Thieu, the black-pajama-clad village cadre who were originally established by the Central Intelligence Agency as the back-bone of the pacification program are being converted into organizers for the president's New Democracy Party.

Instead of helping peasants build schools or get government loans, the 22,000 village workers, known as revolutionary development cadres, are spending their time coercing the peasants into joining the party and giving lectures on the party's programs, interviews with villagers show.

American officials who had long hoped that the RD cadre would prove the key to increasing the government's control in the countryside, are openly distressed.

At best, as one official remarked, the shift in the cadre's function is "ill-advised." At worst, some officials fear, it is part of an attempt by Thieu to create a one-party state modeled on the Communists. But Thieu's aides and leaders of the democracy party insist that this new use of the RD cadre, who are still supported by $3 million in US aid, is necessary to create a mass political organization capable of competing with the communists in future national elections.

"What we are doing is real Vietnamization," one source close to the party explained, "converting an American-created institution into Vietnamese purposes."

In fact, Thieu has also pressured almost all parts of his government and military machinery into helping recruit and train party members. According to knowledgeable Vietnamese and American officials, civil servants have been asked to join in large blocs, province chiefs have been transferred for refusing to organize the party in their areas, and even the lowly unpaid village militia, the popular self-defense forces, have been called out to enroll recalcitrant peasants.

More than 700,000 persons have joined the Democracy party since its active campaign to recruit members began late last year, party leaders say, making it far larger than even the Communist party, which is believed to have about 50,000 actual members in South Vietnam.

Whether the party's enormous apparatus will prove to be more than names on paper, however, is still unclear.

The man entrusted with Thieu with the task of putting the RD cadre to work for the democracy party is Nguyen Van Nhai, a shrewd, ambitious former seantor who was appointed minister of rural development two months ago. The cadre belong to the ministry.

One of the first actions taken by Nhai, who was one of the organizers of the Democracy party, was to fire the long-time director of the RD cadre national training center at Vung Tau, Col. Nguyen Be. Be, an outspoken, imaginative and independent officer who once commanded a Vietnam battalion, reportedly refused to have any part in the Democracy.

Apparently in an attempt to discredit Be, who was a favorite of American advisers and highly respected by the RD cadre, Nhai has now accused him of corruption — for allegedly embezzling U.S. funds intended for the purchase of the cadre's black pajama uniforms.

Be's replacement, Col. Quach Huynh Ha, a close personal friend of Thieu, has begun courses on the Democracy party for the student cadre and "urged" them to join the party, knowledgeable Vietnamese say.

Seminars on the party have also been held in Saigon for cadre from the provinces, who have been required to attend at their own expense and ordered to enlist in the party. According to a disgruntled cadre, from Long An province in the Mekong Delta, he was told to sign up his entire family — father, mother, and five brothers and sisters.

At the same time, to supervise the cadre in their new party work, Thieu has also ordered the provincial officers formerly in charge of the pacification program to become the chief party organizers for their provinces, U.S. officials say.

These U. S. sources, who have watched the changing role of the RD cadre with dismay, say one of the most time consuming but least productive jobs the cadre have been assigned, is an attempt to register all the people in their villages according to the way they will vote.

In villages in Long An province, peasants report, the RD cadre ordered them to attend the opening meetings of the village party chapter; and when some peasants stayed behind to work in their fields, their identification cards were confiscated by the cadre and the local militia.

Stans provides no details on 'fund'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Maurice H. Stans, a self-described "stickler for details," says he can provide no details about the $1 million fund which a secret memo claimed he was amassing at the Commerce Department in 1971 to help President Nixon's re-election.

The former cabinet officer, noticeably older and grayer than a few months ago, brushed off reporters' questions Tuesday about the memo—a surprise piece of evidence at the Senate Watergate hearing.

It went to John N. Mitchell, then attorney general, and came from Jeb Stuart Magruder, a former White House aide who was then organizing Nixon's re-election drive.

Stans swore he never saw it and didn't know what Magruder was talking about when he wrote that Stans "has built up a discretionary fund at Commerce that will total approximately $1,000,000. He is using this fund for conference, hiring and other activities that will be beneficial to the President's re-election."

"If you feel it is appropriate, Secretary Stans might discuss this concept with other cabinet officers to see if they can develop the same kind of fund within their own departments."

In addition, Stans swore he knew nothing about break-ins, espionage sabotage and cover-ups. He said he concentrated on raising money—the $50 million he collected is a political record—and fretted about waste and "overkill," but left to the political operatives the decisions on how the money was to be spent.

But he did acknowledge providing $75,000 in cash on the urgent request of Herbert Kalmbach, Nixon's personal lawyer and "a man of integrity."

The General Accounting Office, watchdog arm of Congress, says that money was used to pay off the Watergate wiretappers after their arrests. Stans said after Kalmbach assured him the money was vital for "a special White House project" and cleared by "higher authorities," he furnished it forthwith.

Magruder, granted immunity by the committee from prosecutions arising from his testimony, is the next major Nixon campaign figure to be called, possibly late today.

Next will come John W. Dean III, former presidential counsel, and then Kalmbach.

Dean, court sources say, repeatedly invoked the Fifth Amendment on his lawyer's advice when he appeared before the Watergate grand jury Tuesday after Judge John J. Sirica turned down his request for total immunity in exchange for his testimony.

Archibald Cox, the special Watergate prosecutor, said he would not appeal Sirica's ruling rejecting Cox's request that radio and television be banned when Dean and Magruder testify.

Herbert L. Porter, the youthful scheduling officer at the committee to re-elect the President, returned to the Senate witness table Tuesday to tell of a chance encounter with Magruder across the street from the White House this spring. The glum Magruder, 38, told Porter he expected to be indicted for his role in the Watergate coverup.

"Did he mention the names of others he believed would be indicted?" asked Sen. Edward Guernsey, R-Fla.

"Yes," Porter said. "He mentioned Mr. Mitchell, Mr. LaRue, Mr. Mardian, Mr. Haldeman, Mr. Strachan, Mr. Dean and Mr. Colson."

Mitchell resigned as Nixon campaign director July 1. Frederick LaRue and Robert Mardian were two of Mitchell's principal deputies; H.R. Haldeman was White House chief of staff; Gordon Strachan was his political deputy; Charles Colson was special counsel to Nixon.

Rufus E. Edmisten, a North Carolina lawyer who worked for Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., on another Senate committee before he was attached to the Watergate panel, introduced the surprise Magruder memorandum.

Read one way, it could be interpreted as a suggestion that $1 million of Commerce Department funds be legitimately spent to engage in activities likely to reflect credit on Nixon and thus enhance his re-election chances. Read another way, it carried a more sinister suggestion: the federal money had been diverted to partisan purposes.

Edmisten was asked by reporters if the $1 million was federal money.

"I wouldn't want to leave that impression," he said. "It was just money lying around. He would not elaborate."

The memo said news of the fund was relayed to Magruder by "Dick Whitney, who is Secretary Stans' political special assistant."

A Camel's eyes enable him to see backwards without moving his head.

MAURICE H. STANS testifies

Funds hampered by segregation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A U.S. Court of Appeals Tuesday barred federal funds to elementary and secondary schools throughout much of the country unless they desegregate.

The appeals court also gave public colleges in 10 states another 10 months to end racial segregation before the government must start action to cut off their federal aid.

The decisions—upholding lower court rulings—were made Tuesday by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

On Feb. 16, U.S. District Judge John S. Pratt ruled that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare must begin proceedings to cut off federal funds to both public schools and institutions of higher education which do not comply with federal desegregation standards.

"The eight-judge appeals panel said Judge Pratt's order WAS 'unassailable' as to the schools but that the college level institutions need more time to comply."

"We are mindful that desegregation problems in colleges and universities differ widely from those in elementary and secondary schools and that HEW admittedly lacks experience in dealing with them," the court said. It said HEW "must carefully assess the significance of a variety of new factors as it moves into an unaccustomed area."

Bugging incident said destructive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Democratic National Chairman Jean M. Westwood has said in sworn testimony that almost three months after the original Watergate arrests, a bug was found on the telephone of a party official—the most horrible thing that happened.

Mrs. Westwood said the bug was discovered Sept. 13 on the telephone of R. Spencer Oliver, the party official who worked with state Democratic chairmen.

Mrs. Westwood said she received a telephone call informing her that Oliver's secretary had reported "her phone was acting up and she thought it was bugged and laughed at first because we had this attitude."

"That was the most horrible thing that happened," Mrs. Westwood said. "I have worked in Democratic campaigns a long, long time and we usually have depended on volunteers coming in and working free and who felt that they came in because they believed in what you were doing and you accepted them."

"There was a whole change in the atmosphere. Any time a volunteer came in, you had to look at him and wonder, 'Are you a spy or are you here because you really believe in what you are doing?'"

"It was utterly destructive. Everybody's feeling was that whatever you were doing someone might be listening. It became quite paranoid, I therefore felt at first that this was just another of those kinds of incidents but in every case I said, 'Go ahead and check it out.'"

Congressmen call for House probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time since the Watergate affair became public, several congressmen have issued a unified call for the House of Representatives to dip into the case and decide if President Nixon should be impeached.

For 90 minutes Tuesday, nearly a dozen congressmen discussed the matter on the House floor.

Led by Rep. Bella S. Abzug, D-N. Y., they called for establishment of a special committee within the House Judiciary Committee "to sift all the information gathered by the Senate Watergate committee and the grand jury."

Mrs. Abzug added, "I do not propose that we file a resolution of impeachment. I only want this committee to determine if there are impeachable offenses. After that it is up to the House or whatever any member may choose to do."

Rep. Paul N. "Pete" McCloskey, R-Calif., foiled in his own efforts at starting a debate last Wednesday when Rep. Earl Landgrebe, R-Ind., cut him off with a parliamentary maneuver, praised the effort and said that was all he was trying to do last week. Landgrebe was not present during Tuesday's discussion.

McCloskey said he had reserved another hour next Monday to continue the debate.

All those who spoke chose their words carefully and it was obvious they didn't want to give the impression of rushing about with cries of impeachment.

The strongest words came from Rep. Parron Mitchell, D-Md., who said the Nixon administration in the Watergate affair and other actions had presented the elements of "embryonic fascism in this country" growing out of the "awesome power proceeding from one man." Congress, he said, ought to do something about it.

Some congressmen didn't agree with those who spoke Tuesday, and two Democrats circulated a paper for their colleagues to sign stating their disagreement—to show that impeachment action was not representative of the House.

Circulating the petition were Reps. Hugh L. Carey of New York and Fred B. Rooney of Pennsylvania. They said in a statement that "loud talk is not representative of the mood of the House."

Noting Rooney's absence at the end of the discussion, McCloskey said he hoped Rooney would take note that "not a single word of partisan demagoguery" was spoken during the debate and that he would see how "serious and thoughtful" the discussion was.

Segretti trial set in October

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Donald H. Segretti, the young Los Angeles lawyer accused of political sabotage against the Democrats, gets a federal trial in October unless he can convince the trial judge to dismiss charges against him.

U.S. magistrate Paul Game Jr. refused at a hearing Tuesday to dismiss the charges handed down by a federal grand jury at Orlando. He told defense attorney Raymond LaPorte the dismissal motion would have to be argued before U.S. District Judge Ben Krentzman.

Game set Segretti's trial for the fall term of court, beginning Oct. 8.

Segretti was excused from a personal appearance at the hearing. He had pleaded innocent when arraigned last month and asked for a jury trial.

Segretti and Tampa accountant George Hearing were indicted on charges of publishing and distributing, and conspiring to distribute, a phony letter on campaign stationery of Democratic presidential candidate Edmund Muskie on the eve of the March, 1972 Florida presidential primary.

The letter attacked the moral character of senators Henry Jackson and Hubert Humphrey, who also were running in the Florida Democratic primary. Muskie immediately denied any knowledge of the letter at the time and Jackson has been sharply critical of the government for delays in the investigation.

The official charges name only Muskie and Jackson in connection with the letter.

U.S. Attorney John Briggs of Jacksonville said Tuesday "it appears we will have to subpoena at least one of them," adding he feels sure at least one of the senators would testify.

Hearing earlier pleaded guilty to distributing the letter and is scheduled for sentencing Friday. He pleaded innocent to conspiracy and that charge is expected to be dismissed.

13 die since Viet cease-fire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the four months since the Vietnam cease-fire, 13 American servicemen have been killed in Cambodia, Laos and Vietnam and another two are listed as missing—possibly prisoners of war in a non-war.

Defense Department records showed today that three of the dead had been killed in the continuing war in Cambodia.

The two missing men disappeared in their Air Force F4 Phantom April 18, and the Air Force believes they went down in an area controlled by Cambodian rebel troops.

The United States has had no communication on the issue of missing men with the various anti-government forces in Cambodia and has no way of knowing if the pair might be held captive or died in the crash of their plane.

The missing men have been identified as Capt. Samuel L. James and Douglas K. Martin. The pilots killed in Cambodia since the Vietnam cease-fire, also Air Force men, were Lt. Joseph Gambino Jr., the Bronx, New York, whose OV10 observation plane was shot down

April 7; Capt. Jerimiah F. Costello, Chevy Chase, Md., whose A7 Corsair jet was downed near Angkor Wat, Cambodia, May 25; and Lt. Richard T. Gray, Davis, Calif., whose OV10 crashed as he was taking off from Phnom Penh airport June 5.

Of the other 10 men killed since the Vietnam cease-fire, eight died in Laos when their Air Force EC47 was shot down Feb. 5. Although that incident followed the Jan. 27 Vietnam cease-fire, it came two weeks before the separate Laotian cease-fire was signed.

The remaining two casualties were Army helicopter crewmen killed in South Vietnam in separate incidents in which their choppers were fired on.

Newly appointed fair board member William Brockman, Hansen, who fills the vacancy left by the resignation of L. W. Moore, Hansen, will be in charge of 4-H and FFA beef exhibits.

Walter Miller, Filer, will again be in charge of all horse exhibits and Cecil Calhoun, Ruhl, will manage the produce division of the fair.

Gary Blick, Castleford, is in charge of security and trouble shooting and Mike Gray, Twin Falls will direct ticket sales and handle the revenue.

Again this year Ben Mottern, Twin Falls, will be in charge of the grandstand, seating and ushering.

Fair board president, Harold Howe, Kimberly, and Shouse will handle general management duties.

Shouse said work has been underway since the first of the year on fair ground improvements and maintenance. New bleachers have been purchased for some additional seating for the rodeo arena and chairs in the grandstand have also been purchased to eliminate the need for renting chairs.

Hansen water rates cut

HANSEN — The Hansen City Council voted Monday night to reduce city water rates from $5 to $3 per month.

Mayor Junior Miller said today that the reduction was made for the benefit of about five business houses who are "using less water than the other residents." The reduction had not been requested by the businesses, he said.

The new rates will exclude chemical and potato warehouses from the reduction.

A special meeting was conducted immediately after the regular meeting for the first reading of ordinances No. 79 and 80. Ordinance 79 is a zoning ordinance for the city of Hansen, and 80 an ordinance controlling the use of mobile homes within the city limits.

Bicycles bring high prices

TWIN FALLS — Bicycles generally brought higher prices than automobiles in an auction late Monday by the Twin Falls police department.

The department sold at auction eight vehicles including one motorcycle, plus 20 bicycles and one tricycle.

All were items abandoned or stolen and recovered by the department but never claimed.

Officers said a total of $912.55 was received for the items, some of the bicycles bringing nearly $90 and some of the old automobiles selling at $1 for parts.

TF aides delay zone action

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — County commissioners delayed action on a zone change request of the CUI rendering plant Tuesday, pending information and advice from the county attorney.

Owners of CUI rendering plant located east of Twin Falls have asked a zone change in order to expand their plant.

The plant is a non-conforming use in an IM-1 zone and the request is for IM-2 zone which would allow the industry to expand.

IM-1 is an industrial zone which permits all uses except such things as feed lots, wrecking yards, garbage dumps and industries which emit smoke, odors or dust in their process.

IM-2 is the least restrictive zone the county has for land use designation and it does allow odor-producing industries, those uses such as feed lots, cement plants, wrecking lots or land fill and dump grounds.

Residents of the east part of the city and in the rural area around the plant are protesting the zone change and urging the county to close the plant on grounds of a nuisance because of the odor. The protesting residents attending the Tuesday morning hearing said the odor problem has not improved despite new deodorizing equipment installed a year ago.

A letter from CUI asks for the zone change and states if it is granted the plant will stop all rendering within three years. Instead of the rendering, the plant would quick freeze the animal carcasses and ship them out of state to other plants owned by the three-state (Colorado, Utah and Idaho) business. Here they would be sorted out with carcasses suitable for making pet food, processed in this manner and others used for rendering at out of state plants.

The firm argues a freezing process would eliminate all odors from the plant's operation.

Commissioners continued the hearing until June 21 at 11 a.m. They had asked for a letter of intent from the plant, spelling out the proposal in full. The letter was not received and CUI officials did not attend the hearing, Ed Woods, county zoning administrator said.

Kimberly elects board

By JOCELYN CLOWARD

Times-News writer
KIMBERLY — The Kimberly School Board elected Ron Ballard as chairman Monday night at the 1973 annual meeting.

Ballard replaces Jack Claborn Jr. Johanna Brown was elected vice chairman. Jack Shropshire, clerk, and Evelyn Jones was retained as board treasurer.

The board adopted a motion to prohibit the use of metal detectors for non classroom use on school property. The motion was made after discussion of requests to individual board members from citizens interested in searching for coins and other metal with the detectors.

"The Filer Fairgrounds was forced to stop them (those with detectors) because of torn up grounds," board member Holland Houfburg said.

Transfer of school fire and liability insurance was discussed and a motion to leave decisions on such transfers to the school insurance agent A. K. Dodds was adopted.

School lunch prices will be raised five cents for the coming year. The board set prices at 35 cents for grade school lunches, 40 cents for high school and junior high, and 55 cents for adults.

Kimberly schools still lack teachers in speech and drama, math and physics, and music. Supt. Clinton Bugg told the board. Members instructed him to continue to solicit teacher applications.

At a special budget hearing and meeting June 4, four new teachers were hired by the district. Molly Arrossa will teach high school English.

Jerry Mitchner, sixth grade; Becky Messore, and Coral McAdams, third grade.

James Sorenson was granted a leave from the district for three weeks of summer school, two from his vacation time, and one at district expense.

American Falls Dam road mended

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Highway Board was told Tuesday that the roadway over the deteriorating American Falls Dam has been repaired and could be open to two-way traffic again.

State highway engineer Vic Richardson said the two-way traffic would have to cross the roadway at reduced speeds. The crossing has been limited to one-way traffic since last winter.

Richardson said a survey is presently being conducted of the roadway users and that a decision on the traffic pattern can be made within 10 days.

At the same time, the Idaho Highway Board said it was moving with dispatch to coordinate its activities and funding to meet the Jan. 1, 1975, target date for start of construction of the new American Falls Dam — including a four-lane crossing of the Snake River.

Board Chairman Carl Moore told a delegation of the American Falls Reservoir District No. 1 that the board is negotiating a contract with Bechtel Engineering Co. to design the crossing that could be part of the new dam, or a structure standing alone.

The highway board will split the $3.5 million estimated cost of the new bridge with the American Falls Reservoir District, which proposes to issue bonds for construction of the new $19 million dam in a joint effort with the Idaho Power Co.

The US Senate Interior Committee has approved a bill to allow such construction. The dam would revert to the Bureau of Reclamation for operation and maintenance after construction. The bonds would be redeemed from power revenues.

Earlier Tuesday, Richardson told the board the energy crisis could have a double-barreled impact on Idaho.

He said the state's highway program could suffer both from lessened revenues as well as from construction lapses brought on by a fuel shortage.

He said the fuel shortage could become just like any shortage of material.

Richardson said there is no way of knowing just how great the impact of the crisis will be. But some contractors are having difficulty getting guaranteed amounts of fuel for their motorized equipment.

Quarterly loss soars

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Penn Central Company, parent company of the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad, reported Monday that it lost $11.2 million during the first quarter of 1973.

The figures do not represent the losses of the railroad, which is controlled by the U. S. District Court during an attempt at reorganization.

The Penn Central Company's first quarter losses compare with a net loss of $2.4 million in 1972.

Penn Central Company has no control over the railroad during reorganization, but it does own all the common stock of the railroad.

Truck, mower accident injures IF trucker

BLACKFOOT (UPI) — A collision between a truck and a mowing machine being towed by a tractor Tuesday on Interstate 15 near here resulted in injury to an Idaho Falls man.

Deputies said the 10-wheel truck rolled twice, scattering potatoes on the highway.

Driver of the state maintenance tractor was identified as Reed Farrer, 58, Perth. He was not injured.

Bingham County sheriff officials said Dale Ring, 39, driver of the potato truck, was hospitalized in Bingham Memorial with cuts and bruises.

Officers said the truck and the tractor-mower were going the same direction when the accident occurred.

Scandal-ridden Equity Corp. remains afloat

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Equity Funding Corp. of America, involved in one of the biggest financial scandals of the century, will remain afloat even if lawsuits pending against it succeed in obtaining large damage settlements, according to the firm's bankruptcy trustee.

Former executives of the giant financial services firm — fired after the scandal was uncovered and currently under investigation — are helping straighten out the company's tangled affairs, said the trustee, Robert Loeffler.

Loeffler, formerly vice president and general counsel for a Minneapolis-based mutual funds firm, was appointed trustee of Equity Funding by a federal judge.

Aside from the federal and state actions against the company and one of its subsidiaries Equity Funding Life Insurance Co., the collapse brought on several dozen law suits against it, many of them class actions on behalf of all the stockholders.

The total of damages claimed is astronomical, several of the suits seeking damages in the billions of dollars.

Loeffler reported to federal court here last week that after his first two months on the job, he had decided the firm could be saved.

Most of its more than 40 subsidiaries were untouched by the scandal and are operating normally and profitably, he reported. He said the firm could be reorganized, meet its obligations without liquidation and appears to have more assets than liabilities.

Questioned about the impact of possible large legal claims, Loeffler said in an interview Tuesday that he "can't visualize" the firm being held liable for huge settlements.

"If a stockholder class action wins in court, it simply means that any damages awarded will become an unsecured debt of the company," Loeffler said.

He noted that such debts could not be paid until the firm emerges from bankruptcy proceedings.

Bunker Hill testifies on OSHA

BOISE (UPI) — The executive vice president of the Bunker Hill Co. Tuesday told an interim committee that the legislature should wait until the Federal Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) is running smoothly "before complicating it with a state act."

James Halley, Kellogg, told the committee his firm opposes state enforcement of OSHA at this time.

The committee finished the day-long hearing by setting Aug. 13 for the next hearing. The committee, composed of legislators, will hear the public sector concerning the act during the August meeting. During the Tuesday meeting the committee heard testimony from the private sector.

Halley said, "Bunker Hill seriously questions whether it is advisable to attempt to transfer the Occupational Safety and Health Act to the state at this time."

He said he felt the federal government was in a better position at this time to achieve the basic objectives of minimum standards, fair and efficient enforcement by qualified personnel and fair review of enforcement activities.

Halley said the federal act and its accompanying regulations are very complex. Many standards are not spelled out in the regulations but adopted by reference, he said. "Committee member Gary Ingram, R-Post Falls, said the "sad part" about the federal act is that owners and operators of small businesses in Idaho don't have the time nor the money to find out what the regulations are all about.

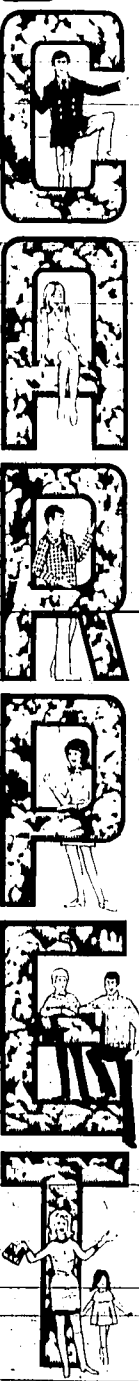

He said the larger industries can hire someone to study the rules and regulations and then make sure the firm is complying with them.

Pleading fails

DESPITE pleas from his wife, kneeling in white pants, and neighbors, Daniel Zerblino, 33, Queens, N. Y., is about to leap from sixth-floor fire escape. After an hour on the escape, Zerblino jumped to the ground, missing a police life net. He suffered massive internal injuries. (UPI)

Lincoln County auditor resigns

SHOSHONE — Mrs. Luella L. Kinsey, clerk and auditor in Lincoln County for 19 years, has resigned effective Aug. 1 for health reasons.

Mrs. Joy McClure, who has been deputy clerk the past two years was appointed by the county commissioners to complete the one remaining year of Mrs. Kinsey's four-year term.

Prior to working in the clerk's office, Mrs. McClure served as deputy assessor for Lincoln County for several years. The appointment was made by county commissioners after a petition with the proper number of signatures was filed Monday. Taking oaths of office were Mrs. Imogene Holsley as deputy auditor and clerk, and Mrs. Lois Bessiger, deputy assessor.

Commissioners were also informed Mrs. Jeanne Annett, tri-county home extension agent, will be leaving office after the first week in July to accept a teaching scholarship at a university in North Dakota.

Meeting with the commissioners Monday were Mrs. Annett and Blaine Linford from the University of Idaho extension service. Linford said a replacement will be made later for Mrs. Annett. Walter Bowman was appointed to serve as the non-voting representative for Lincoln County for the South Central Public Health District board.

Commissioners are asking for cost estimates on painting the front entrance of the courthouse. Persons interested in the project are asked to contact their office.

A resolution was passed to provide for procedures in adopting ordinances. They will be read once in full and twice by headings.

An ordinance establishing controls over children under 18 years of age was passed. This pertains to children who have run away from home and remain away or who have attempted to run away or who are incorrigible. The ordinance also established a curfew for children under 14 years of age, requiring they not loiter between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m.

Commissioners authorized purchasing a posting machine for the county treasurer's office and new light fixtures for the treasurer's and assessor's office.

Pollution aired at meet

PAUL — Minidoka County residents heard representatives of state agencies discuss the problems of air, water and land pollution at a meeting Monday.

The meeting at the West Minico Junior High School, Paul, was financed by the Idaho Department of Environmental and Community Services — DECS.

Scott Hugginbottom, of the University of Idaho Bureau of Public Affairs, coordinator for the program, opened the meeting by listing the ways the environment is polluted. He said that air, exhausts and industry are major contributors of air pollution. Industry, farming, mining and recreation were cited as major polluters of Idaho's waters.

Murray Michael, Jerry Yoder and Ed Barker represented DECS.

Michael discussed the problems of air pollution saying the Clean Air Act of 1970 is a revision of the 1967 act "with some teeth in it" giving the government power to enforce standards. The act divides the responsibility for air pollution control between the federal government and the states, with the federal government providing grants to pay up to two-thirds of the cost of state air pollution control programs.

Yoder said that the federal government has money available for state water pollution control programs and for the construction of municipal sewage treatment plants.

He said the federal government sets water quality standards and the states are responsible for enforcing them.

Local governments are responsible for the construction and operation of the plants. Yoder said industries may construct their own treatment systems or connect to municipal sewage systems, paying for the service, depending upon the circumstance.

Barker said that at present the "sanitary landfill is the best temporary answer (to the solid waste problem) to be found since the recycling system isn't workable in this part of Idaho."

Fire district formed at Bliss

GOODING — County commissioners here said Tuesday the Bliss Fire District has been organized following a June 6 election.

The vote was 42 to 1 in favor of the district. City and rural fire departments will be formed.

Sheriff's deputy Bill Bunn met with the commissioners Monday to inquire if the county plans to contribute to the hiring of a cattle rustling special deputy as part of a special four-county anti-rustling project.

Commissioners Ben Glauner and John LeMoine suggested the sheriff's department obtain as much money as possible from the cattlemen and the county will then make up the balance.

Commissioner LeMoine said cattlemen are a special interest group and county funds are being used to support them so they should provide as much of the money needed as possible.

County Clerk Vivian Burden presented an appeal filed Friday by Robert Weaver, Buhl, attorney, protesting the county approval of two subdivision plats in Hagerman Valley.

The appeal was turned over to John Varin of the county attorney's office. The commissioners met as a board of equalization for tax purposes following their regular meeting.

Planning district discussed

RUPERT — Creation of a land use planning district will be discussed at 8 p.m. Monday during a meeting sponsored by the Minidoka Wildlife Federation.

The meeting will be in the Rupert City Hall.

Sheridan Hansen, Twin Falls Bureau of Land Management, will discuss a land-use planning district recently established in the Twin Falls area. He will explain how to set up a planning district, how to involve the public and how to evaluate results of such a project.

W. F. (Bill) Whitton, federation president, said land use is one of the important priorities for future generations. "People have to get involved in land use to decide what is going to be done with resources available and how to manage wildlife for future use," he said.

The Minidoka Wildlife Federation was founded in March of this year, and has about 100 members.

Gen. Haig performs illegally

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., says Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. is illegally performing White House duties and has compounded the violation by bringing other active-duty military men to help him.

President Nixon brought Gen. Haig back from the Pentagon, where he was Army chief of staff, to replace White House aide H.R. Haldeman, who left in the Watergate crisis. The White House says Haig will retire from military service Aug. 1.

TF zoning decision scheduled

TWIN FALLS — County Commissioners will decide by 11 a.m. Thursday on a request for rezoning of land proposed for a mobile home park south of Twin Falls.

A public hearing on the request of Gordon Beckstead to zone the property from agricultural to agricultural residential to allow for a 60-acre development as a mobile home park was held Monday and taken under advisement by the county commission.

Commission Chairman William L. Charney said a decision would be reached by Thursday. He said the area has both water and sewer services available from the city of Twin Falls and would not endanger domestic well water supplies in the area by having to install septic tanks or other sewage treatment facility.

In the first phase of the program Beckstead and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Snyder, Boise, who plan to develop the area, would install hookups and parking for 100 units. Eventually the entire nearly 60 acres would be developed.

Properly scheduled for development by Beckstead and Snyder is directly across the airport road and to the west of the present Skyline Mobile Home Park in the vicinity of the city water tank.

County planning and zoning commission members approved the zone change request by a vote of 6 to 5 in a May 10 meeting. Lloyd Webb, Twin Falls, attorney for Beckstead and Snyder, presented information on behalf of the developers.

Gene Glenn, Harvey Quesnell and Ralph Olmstead opposed the request for the mobile home park zoning. Two of the men objecting are involved with feed lot operations in the general area. Glenn, who owns the land just west of the proposed park, said the plans to expand his feedlot operation and his attorney, Robert Paine, said his client fears the new zoning ordinance will prohibit him from doing this, especially if additional housing is located in the area.

Olmstead said he objects to "strip zoning" and said the city growth should be kept adjacent to the city limits while Quesnell objected to the many homes, people and pets being brought into a rural area. He said this would create numerous problems for the farmers.

Judgment affirmed

BOISE (UPI) — In a 3-2 decision, the State Supreme Court affirmed Tuesday a District Court judgement against Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Russ, Mountain Home, who tried to nullify a property sale.

The Russes originally sued Mr. and Mrs. Floyd F. Brown, also Mountain Home, to nullify sale of Wagontown Lodge in Elmore County.

They alleged the Browns, as sellers, fraudulently misrepresented nature and extent of the lodge's water rights. The lower court found there was no fraud and entered judgment for the Browns.

But the Supreme Court, in a majority opinion written by justice Allen G. Shepard, affirmed the lower court decision because the Russes failed to prove all elements of alleged fraud by clear and convincing evidence.

Energy crisis ailed

BOISE (UPI) — State Highway Engineer Vic Richardson told the State Highway Board Tuesday the energy crisis could have a double-barreled impact in Idaho.

Richardson said the state's highway program could suffer both from lessened revenues as well as from construction lapses brought on by a fuel shortage.

He said the fuel shortage could become just like any shortage of material.

At present, there is no way or knowing just how great the impact of the crisis will be, Richardson said.

Gooding chairman named

GOODING — Claude Scanlon was elected chairman of the Gooding School Trustees and Rodney Glauner, vice chairman, at a reorganization meeting Monday night.

The board heard an accreditation report from the Northwest Accreditation Association which commended the district on new facilities at Gooding High School, and advised the district to add to the number of library books. The school was given full accreditation.

Contracts were awarded for improvements in the three district schools. Grant Stuart, Twin Falls, was low bidder for painting Fremont Junior High School at $2,229 for the school and $1,107 for the gymnasium.

Gordon Paving, Burley, received the contract to blacktop the elementary school playground for $5,155, and Greenawalt's, Gooding, will carpet the entryway of the elementary school for $71; Bartlett Brothers, Twin Falls, will restrain redwood at the high school for $1,807.

Patient transferred

BURLEY — DeLawn Didericksen, 60, Burley, sole survivor of a two-car collision which killed six people near Sublett last week, has been transferred to Veteran's Hospital, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Hospital officials say his condition is good.

Affect stream flow?

BOISE (UPI) — A member of the attorney general's office said Tuesday a recent ruling by a fifth district judge on the appropriation of water from a South Central Idaho spring could have a bearing on the constitutionality of minimum stream flow in state rivers.

Judge Charles Scoggin ruled last week that the Department of Parks had the right to appropriate water from the Malnd Spring for recreational and aesthetic purposes.

Deputy Attorney General Matthew Mullerley, who represented the parks department, said the ruling could have a direct bearing on legalizing

DR. HOWARD RONK selected

Blaine trustee chairman named

By TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News writer

HAILLEY — Ronda Hunt, Carey, has been elected chairman of the Blaine County school board of trustees.

The action came Monday night during the board's annual meeting. Hunt had been serving as interim chairman since the resignation of former trustee chairman William Mallory. Selected as vice chairman was trustee Leif Odmark.

In other action, the board:

- Adopted a schedule for non-certified personnel pay increases.
- The schedule calls for head cooks to receive $2.25 per hour instead of $1.80; full time cooks to receive $2.15 instead of $1.70 and part time cooks to receive $2 per hour instead of $1.65.
- Five per cent raises were also granted for Inez Hatch, hot lunch program supervisor, and Glenn Wright, transportation supervisor. Custodian's salaries were increased to $500 a month. Substitute teacher's salaries were increased from the present $15 a day to $20 per day.
- Swore in newly elected board members Mark Patterson and Dorothy Moore and appointed member Dr. Art Richards. Hunt commended outgoing trustees Jane Kneeland and Glenn Steina for their service on the board.
- Agreed to have acting Supt. Ray Jefferson solicit dealer bids for trading in about six surplus district cars on an about 11 passenger utility vehicle. Jefferson said the surplus vehicles presently cost about $4,000 a year to maintain, license and insure.
- Approved a request by Shirli Reay to use district transportation to allow students to attend a Future Farmers of America contest June 18 in Moscow.
- Disapproved a request to use two buses to transport Blaine and Lincoln County residents to an LDS dance festival July 4 and 5 in Boise.
- Disapproved a request by Richard Neal, Lava Lake Ranch, to extend the bus route to provide transportation for his son.

TF County zoning ordinance planned

6. Areas of "mutual agreement" surrounding cities have been plotted on the master zoning map. Zoning decisions within the areas will be taken by the county commissioners after consultation with officials of affected cities.

County zoners will also be presented plans for three subdivisions Thursday.

Dr. E. R. Allison, Twin Falls, will request approval of a 10-acre subdivision north of Filer. Gordon Crockett, Twin Falls, will request a subdivision on the southeast corner of the Falls Avenue — Twin Falls grade intersection.

Tom Shafer, a Twin Falls engineer, will present plans for a subdivision northwest of Twin Falls adjacent to Rock Creek.

Keith Silgar, Twin Falls, will ask county rezoning of a tract one-half mile west of Tolman's Corner on Kimberly Road from agricultural to residential-agricultural.

Western Realty, Twin Falls, will ask a variance to allow housing on 40 acres approximately two miles east of Castleford.

Volunteer army affects offices

TWIN FALLS — Local draft board offices have been victimized in Idaho by the all-volunteer army.

A state selective service official said today six area site offices were being established to centralize draft board proceedings. There had been 44 separate draft boards operating out of almost that many offices.

The new regional sites, according to Mrs. Mary Van Hook, will be in Twin Falls, Pocatello, Idaho Falls, Boise, Lewiston and Coeur d'Alene.

The 44 boards will still continue to exist, she said, but will meet only quarterly to classify draft-age men, even though there are no draft calls anticipated in the future.

The shift involves the elimination of about 20 jobs, Mrs. Van Hook said, held by the secretaries of the local offices. Each regional site will be staffed by two women, she said, with the Boise office having four employees.

The boards are currently classifying men born in 1953 and 1954 with lottery numbers from 1 to 20. Mrs. Van Hook said.

She also said that although there is no more draft, registration with the Selective Service is required within one month of a man's 18th birthday. The local address for registration is 1061 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

The Twin Falls regional office will replace the former offices in Twin Falls, Cassia, Minidoka, Jerome, Gooding, Camas, Lincoln and Blaine counties.

TF veterinarian named head of TF school board

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Dr. Howard Ronk, Twin Falls veterinarian, was elected chairman of the Twin Falls School Board Tuesday night.

Frank DeLuca, who was elected in last month's trustee election, was sworn into office and named vice chairman by his colleagues. He previously served on the board and replaced John Wolfe, who has served the past 11 years.

First items of business of the newly organized board was to express appreciation to Wolfe, who has served as chairman for several years, and to re-appoint J. T. (Jeff) Anderson as clerk-treasurer.

Trustees approved hiring of Robert Tidd, Twin Falls, as attendance officer for the coming school year at a salary of $6,800, plus a maximum of $50 per month travel expense.

Hiring of Tidd was discussed earlier but delayed pending his completion of details in ending his previous employment.

The board will arrange a meeting with College of Southern Idaho trustees to discuss joint participation in use of a new all-weather track at the Twin Falls High School.

Bob Donnelly, high school athletic director, estimated cost of the project at $38,750. It is planned to widen the track from six to eight lanes, install new pits for field events and move bleachers as well as resurface the track.

Two additional teachers were hired. They are Mrs. Joan A. Watson to teach seventh grade reading at Robert Stuart Junior

Ketchum meet set Thursday

KETCHUM — Citizens for Quality Education has called a public meeting for Thursday evening in Ketchum.

According to group chairman Mary Sidwell, purpose of the meeting will be to discuss the Blaine County School Board's decision not to rehire Sam Hazard as principal of the Ernest Hemingway Elementary School, Ketchum, and the formation of a second county school district.

The session is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the St. Thomas Episcopal Church, Sun Valley Road.

Council to push referendum vote

HAILLEY — The Council for the Defense of the Wood River Valley has pledged to push for a referendum vote after July 1 on the Hailey City Council's annexation of the McCulloch Properties Inc. development site.

Group member Ralph Rutter, Hailey, Monday night presented a copy of a letter to the council which had been sent May 30 to Robert P. McCulloch Jr., president of McCulloch Properties.

Containing 80 signatures, the letter stated that the signers will also sign the necessary petitions to call for a referendum vote to seek to overturn the council's annexation action.

Under a change in state statute, which becomes effective July 1, Rutter said about 10 additional petition signatures will be required to call an election.

Rutter said the letter was intended to inform McCulloch that de-annexation could be possible. He said the group hoped the letter would serve as a legal instrument and that any further investment in the development would be at McCulloch's own liability.

The group, Rutter said, presently wants to schedule an election on whether a referendum should be conducted to coincide with the city government primary in October. If approved, the referendum may be on the ballot for the November election, he said.

Jerome trustees name chairman

JEROME — Lyle Van Orman has been named to head the all new board of trustees for the Jerome School District.

He was elected Monday night during the board's annual meeting. Also elected were Alvin Chojnacky, vice chairman, and Mrs. Cheryl Hymas, treasurer. Other new board members are Jack Thomas and Darrel Wolfe.

Patrons of the Jerome School District elected an all new board of trustees earlier this spring resulting from district zone reorganization. All incumbents seeking re-election were defeated.

Other action Monday night included the approval of re-appointment of Warren Keys, clerk of the board, and Frank Reddick, school district attorney. Keys administered the oath of office to the new board members.

Board members also voted to change the system the district uses in issuing checks in order to eliminate duplication of work.

Mrs. Hymas checked the board to request the Idaho Department of Education to meet with the new board to explain the needs

High School and Blaine Eugene Moyer, industrial arts at the high school.

The board authorized publishing bids for 30 student desks at O'Leary. The estimated cost of $7,000 will come from the plant facilities fund.

In other business, trustees:

- Accepted a bid from McCoy Coal and Transfer Co. of $20 per ton for coal.
- Approved purchase of a school bus from the lowest bidders. Separate bids were received on the chassis and the bus body, Anderson said.

Low bidder on the chassis was Magic Valley International, Inc., with $5,160. Anderson said the chassis will have to be moved to Mitchell, Ind., to get it with the body, and this will cost $69.75 for transportation.

The Cannon Engineering and Sales Co., Salt Lake City, had the low base bid of $4,042 for the body for the 66-passenger bus. There will be an additional $237 charge for a luggage compartment to transport musical instruments.

Three other bids were received for the body and one other for the chassis, Anderson said.

— Re-affirmed the second Tuesday of the month as the regular meeting night.

— Recessed until the July meeting to comply with a new state law, effective July 1, which establishes July as the month for the trustees' annual meeting.

Orth to head Wendell board

WENDELL — Frank Orth was elected chairman of the Wendell School Board Monday night at the annual reorganizational meeting.

Joe Leeper was chosen vice chairman and new members Fred Maltz and George Serr were sworn in.

High school principal Will Spaulding and athletic director Elwin Behrens met with the board to discuss holding athletics during school as a regular school period. Football and basketball training has been conducted during sixth period.

Educational value was pointed out as similar to that of music classes and home economics which are also held during school hours. Some scheduling problems are created, according to Spaulding. The gymnasium is tied up when physical education classes could be offered, he said. Further discussion was postponed until the next regular board meeting.

The board increased fire insurance coverage by 12 per cent and will check into increasing liability coverage, according to Supt. Lawrence LaRue.

A student lounge will be available next year by adding a partition in the library, LaRue announced.

The board also approved a new lighting system for the high school music room and an outside basketball court for the grade school.

The mileage allowance was increased from 10 to 1 cents per mile for district travel.

License denied

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — The Reno City Council has told William H. Myers to forget about buying a rickshaw.

The council unanimously denied Myers' request for a license to operate a rickshaw service along "casino row" in this northern Nevada gambling town. He had planned to pull a single-seat carriage himself, either on the sidewalk or street.

assessment survey and how the district might conduct such a survey.

Trustees discussed a new bus contract for the coming year which Jerry Diehl, high school principal, said is now being reviewed by the board's attorney and will be presented for a vote at a later date.

Diehl said the contract as proposed by the bus company allows for an annual increase to cover cost of living figures so long as they continue upward but makes no provision for lowering costs of living costs decline.

Don Hite, a 1973 high school graduate who was ordered to shave off a mustache, was scheduled to meet with the board to discuss student rights but did not appear.

Gordon Hofffield, past board chairman, informed the board he has received a letter from the State School Trustees Association, saying under the new Better School Act of 1973, boards must hold two "annual" meetings. He said in addition to the Monday night meeting another must be held in July or board action could be nullified.

Minidoka teachers cited

RUPERT — Esther Whiting, Barton Templeman and Mardene Nield, Minidoka County teachers, have been chosen Outstanding Secondary Educators of America for 1973.

Nominated by their superintendent earlier this year, the three teachers were selected for the honor on the basis of their professional and civic achievements.

Mrs. Whiting, who has taught for 30 years in the Minidoka School District, currently teaches English and social studies at East Minico Junior High School.

"She is a genius at finding the good in all kids," Supt. Darrell Hatfield said of Mrs. Whiting.

Barton Templeman has taught at Minico High School for four years. In addition to teaching government, Templeman is the head football coach and coaches wrestling and track.

"He relates well with kids as a teacher as well as a coach," Hatfield said of Templeman.

Mrs. Nield has taught for 21 years, nine of them in the Minidoka School District. She is currently head of the Minico High School English department and has served as a state officer in the Idaho English Teachers Association.

Outstanding Secondary Educators of America is an annual awards program honoring distinguished men and women for their exceptional services, achievements and leadership in the field of secondary education. Each year, the biographies of those honored are featured in the awards volume, Outstanding Secondary Educators of America.

The three teachers are now eligible to receive the Outstanding Secondary Educator of the Year Award trophy. Five $500 unrestricted grants will be awarded to the schools represented by America's five Outstanding Secondary Educators.

A panel of judges, along with the board of advisors, will select the five individual secondary teachers to be honored.

"The men and women chosen for this high honor have explored new paths, developed new insights and effectively communicated their knowledge to their students and colleagues. They are exceptional teachers," Dr. V. Gilbert Beers, director of the program, said.

Guidelines for selection include an educator's talents in the classroom, contributions to research, administrative abilities, civic service, and professional recognition.

Serving with Beers on the board of advisors are Doug Blankenship, past president of the U. S. Jaycees; John Patterson, former governor of Alabama; Bob Richards, director of the Wheaties Sports Foundation; Dr. Frank A. Rose, chairman of the board of the General Computing Corporation; Wil Rose, president of Involvement; James A. Skidmore Jr., past president of the U.S. Jaycees; Elvis J. Stahr, president of the National Audubon Society and James E. Davis, executive director of the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools.

US grazing land adequate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. has enough forest and range grazing land to support steadily expanding meat production through at least the year 2000, an Agriculture Department report said today. The report from the Forest Service added, however, that some changes including "more

The report said some lands are being overused, but Long said the Forest Service study indicated that the twin goals of expanding meat production and protecting the environment can be met "at management costs comparable to today's costs." Long said the information and research technology developed in the study will permit adoption of national policies aimed at providing ample forage on both publicly and privately-owned lands. He said grazing practice changes may be needed, particularly on privately-owned lands in eastern areas. The study indicated 835 million acres of forest and range land currently are being used for livestock grazing. About 14 per cent is controlled by the Forest Service, about 17 per cent by other federal agencies, and about 69 per cent is controlled by private owners and state and local agencies.

Dairying Conservation profits backers scored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Booming livestock feed prices last month reduced a key dairy industry economic indicator to its lowest level since August, 1965, an Agriculture Department report shows.

The monthly milk production report also indicates that dairymen faced with rising feed costs last month produced 11.1 billion pounds of milk, down 2 per cent from a year earlier. Thereportsaid dairy farmers' returns for milk in May were up 55 cents per hundredweight from a year earlier. But it was a profitless gain for producers, because their feed costs for the month were up from a year earlier by $1.21 for each 100 pounds of ration.

As a result, the milk-feed price ratio (the number of pounds of feed which can be purchased with the return from one pound of milk) fell from 1.50 in April to 1.37 in May, the lowest figure since an identical 1.37 reading in August, 1965.

The May ratio was 19 per cent below a year earlier and 24 per cent below last November when rising feed costs started the current decline in the ratio figure. Last month's ratio was 9 per cent below the April level.

The new report indicated milk production this year is down because the number of milk cows fell to about 11.5 million, 2 per cent below a year earlier. Milk production per cow during May was unchanged from a year earlier.

intensive management" of top-quality grazing lands may be needed, according to Assistant Agriculture Secretary Robert W. Long.

Payment decision pending

DENVER (UPI) — A spokesman for the timber industry Monday charged supporters of the environmental movement with being selfish and forcing the American standard of living to be lowered. The environmental conservation movement is pushed by a small minority of affluent people who are immune to the economic pressures of the average citizen," said Nicholas J. Kirkmire, executive vice president of the Federal Timber Purchasers Association.

"They do not recognize, or perhaps even care, that their activities are contributing to a lowering of the standard of living for the low and moderate income in the United States," he said. "Wilderness advocates are unwilling to compromise." Kirkmire made his statements at a hearing in Denver on the proposed designation of three new wilderness areas in Colorado. They are the 422,000-acre Weminuche Primitive Area, the 212,000-acre Flat Tops Primitive Area and the 125,000-acre Gore-Eagles Nest Primitive Area.

Kirkmire said the timber industry used to support wilderness, but has seen its errors in trying to compromise with wilderness issues "because the wilderness advocates refuse to cooperate." Officials of Club 20, a group of western Colorado businessmen, were upset with the hearing being held in Denver, instead of near the areas in question.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carroll G. Brunthaver, appearing before a House cotton subcommittee, said the subsidy guarantee levels included in the Senate bill "are simply too high" and must be lowered to gain administration support for the measure. The Senate bill set a 1974 "target price" of 43 cents a pound for cotton, and provided for higher targets in later years if farm costs increase. If actual market prices fall below the proposed new targets, the government would pay farmers the difference. Brunthaver said the administration was prepared to accept a cotton target price of 35 cents a pound with no escalation in later years. The administration has suggested similar cuts in the Senate bill's price targets for wheat and feed grains.

In addition to the guarantees of income protection if prices fall below targets, however, the Senate bill also included a provision cutting annual cotton and grain subsidies to individual farmers to $20,000 a year. At present, farmers can get up to $55,000 a year on each of three subsidized crops—cotton, wheat and feed grains.

6 injured by horses at Salmon

SALMON (UPI) — Accidents involving horses have injured six persons in the Salmon area.

Peggy Owen, 20, Avenal, Calif., broke her left ankle when the horse she was riding reared backwards and fell on her. She was flown to LDS hospital in Idaho Falls for treatment by a specialist. Mrs. Curt Banta, 21, Salmon, broke her left leg in a fall with a horse at her residence. She was taken to Steele Memorial Hospital.

Sara Hickey, 17, Fourth of July Creek, broke a collar bone when a horse threw her at her residence. Arch Marsing, 63, Tower Creek, broke some ribs and partially collapsed a lung when a horse rolled on him. Dennis Harris, 34, Leadore, received head injuries when a horse fell on him at his ranch May 31. He remains unconscious at St. Anthony hospital in Pocatello.

Dale Combs, 30, Salmón, received an injured foot when a horse stepped on him.

Aid plan outlined

Distress loan program set up for grainmen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has authorized a special "distress" loan program for grain producers who may find themselves unable to get either storage or transportation for their 1973 crops at harvest time.

Under the program, state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committees will set local conditions for the loans. In some areas, loans may be granted on commodities stored on the ground; in others, the loans will be available on grain stored in temporary facilities.

Officials said the special loans will be available for wheat, barley, oats, sorghum, rye and corn, and farmers will be able to file applications for 30 days after local announcement of the program or 30 days after harvest, whichever is later.

The loans will mature in 90 days, but can be converted to regular price support loans if approved storage is found in the meantime. If a regular loan is not made, the special loan must be repaid with interest. The special loans will be made at 75 per cent of the amount which would be offered under the regular support loan program.

The special program could fill a gap for producers in areas where boxcar shortages result in a local backup of supplies at harvest time. It will provide temporary credit for grain in types of storage, or for grain stored in the open, which is not eligible for regular price support loans.

No exemption

BOISE (UPI) — A spokesman for the Idaho Cattle Feeders Association told a legislative interim committee today there should be no agricultural exemption from the Occupational Safety and Health (OSHA) Act.

Tom Hovenden, executive secretary for the cattle feeders, told the study committee, "We feel there should be no agricultural exemption. We feel that everyone should be in."

Hovenden did say, however, his organization wants state participation in the enforcement tied to a "credible education and voluntary compliance program."

"If it can't do this we should turn it back to the federal government," Hovenden said.

4 jailed in theft

NEWPORT BEACH (UPI) — Federal, county and local authorities joined Monday in arresting four persons on charges of stealing a truck filled with 40,000 pounds of meat being shipped from Colorado to Los Angeles.

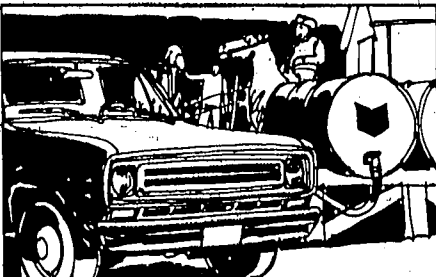

The FBI said the meat was being sent from Greeley, Colo., to a restaurant chain in Los Angeles aboard a refrigerated 40-foot trailer that arrived in Burbank, Calif. Friday.

Agents said the driver of the truck, Daniel Mecca, left the truck unattended and returned Monday morning to find it missing.

He reported the theft to Burbank police, who notified the FBI and other police agencies, leading to a search for the boxed beef which ended in this Orange County beach community.

FBI agents said four persons were arrested with the stolen truck only two blocks from the police station here after a tip led to undercover negotiations to buy the meat. All four were charged with theft from an interstate shipment and held in lieu of $10,000 bail.

Texas draft choice inks rich contract

HOUSTON (UPI) — David Clyde, baseball's No. 1 draft choice, signed a major league contract with the Texas Rangers Tuesday for possibly the largest bonus ever paid an untried rookie. Manager Whitey Herzog said Clyde would start for the Rangers during the club's next homestand. Rangers officials and Clyde's parents would not announce the amount of the bonus, but Rangers President Robert E. Short said it was at least $150,000. Eugene Clyde, the 18-year-old's father, said the bonus was "very substantial with several zeroes."

Clyde, with an 0.65 career earned run average in high school, will join the Rangers Sunday night in Minneapolis. The Rangers sport an 18-34 record and a 4.78 team earned run average and are badly in need of pitching. Short called the bonus given Clyde "the largest baseball has ever given to any 18-year-old." The contract, which included a college education, a "very substantial" salary and a number of incentive clauses, was signed Saturday night in Houston but was only approved Tuesday by American League President Joe Cronin. The announcement was made by the elder Clyde in his home and Short and Herzog phoned the family from the dugout as the Rangers prepared to play the Cleveland Indians at Cleveland. "We were never very far apart," said Short. "It was not my wish to try to sign him at the cheapest price possible. We gave a figure, he told us what he wanted and then we agreed on it." The major league clause in the contract makes Clyde immediately eligible for the major league pension fund among other benefits. Short said Clyde earned the major league start with his performance in the state playoffs against Dallas Kimball High School in which the opposing pitcher threw a one-hitter. Dozens of scouts and four Rangers officials were in the stands that day and Clyde pitched the ninth no-hitter of his career. "You seldom see a pitcher come through under those circumstances," Short said. "I think he earned an opportunity to pitch in the majors. Assuming he pitches anyway like he pitched in high school he will be successful in the major leagues."

In that first homestand Clyde could face the Oakland Athletics, Minnesota Twins or the Kansas City Royals. "I'll be nervous," Clyde said. "It'll be another challenge to me. I'll think of it as another game. It's a pro game, but if I can think of it as I do my others, I think I'll be able to pitch better. I'd kind of like to strike out Harmon Killebrew or Reggie Jackson. I don't know if I can or not, but I would like to have the chance." Clyde said the Athletics were his favorite team when he lived in Kansas City. Clyde's father said he did not insist on the major league contract but that it was offered by the Rangers.

Idaho disappointed but hardly surprised by Big Sky action

MOSCOW (UPI) — University of Idaho athletic director Ed Knecht said he was "disappointed but not surprised" by the action of the Big Sky Conference in putting the Vandals football program on probation for a year. "We did what we had to do to maintain our program," Knecht said. "We knew we were over the number of rides (grants-in-aid) allowed by the conference." The President's Council of the Conference put the Vandal football program on probation for "willful violation of financial aid limits in football."

Within the probationary term, the Vandals will not be permitted to accept bowl bids should they win the conference. And if they win the conference next fall, they would be declared ineligible. They also will not be allowed to receive television money from any sports telecasts. Knecht said the sky rules state that the school may provide athletic scholarships for 62 full rides. It's a total dollar amount, but can be divided up into partial scholarships as long as the total number of athletes does not exceed 75. He said the Vandals last year averaged 70 athletes on full rides, and had eight other football players on partial rides. Asked if the Big Sky punishment would heighten the Vandals' enthusiasm to get out of the conference and join the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, Knecht said that would be discussed this weekend when the school's board of regents meets. The PCAA has invited the Vandals aboard.

Knecht said the PCAA allows 75 full rides and does not place a ceiling on the number of athletes a school can recruit within the dollar amount of the 75 full scholarships. continue to fund these nonmission activities," the Bureau wrote. The Bureau told the senator it is studying the possibility of transferring the management of the refuges to some other agency which has more direct responsibility for recreational programs.

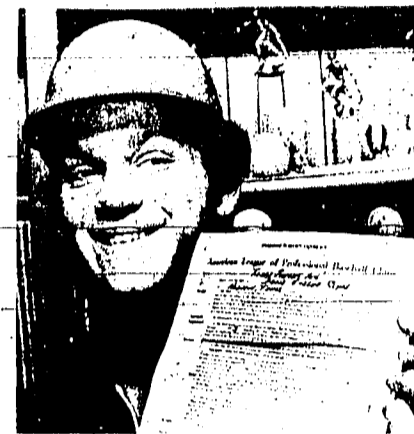

Minidoka refuge management studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife says it is seeking alternative methods of managing the deer, flat and Minidoka Wildlife Refuges in Idaho but does not plan to phase them out. In a letter to Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the Bureau said the contribution of the areas to the waterfowl resource is well recognized and assured the senator that whatever decision is reached will not have a serious adverse effect on this resource. Church had inquired of the Bureau concerning the future of the wildlife refuges. Deer Flat is located near Nampa, and the Minidoka refuge is near Rupert. The Bureau said the two refuges are heavily used by the public for recreational activities such as swimming, boating and water skiing. "The management of these refuges, which are foreign to the primary mission of our Bureau, consumes a substantial portion of our budget at both refuges. Because of current budgetary constraints, we cannot

Leise named all-America second unit

Bob Leise, two-year starting centerfielder for College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles, has been named to the national junior college all-American second team, reports Coach Bob Banfield. Leise, who is expected to sign a national letter of intent to continue his education and baseball career at Creighton University in Omaha, Neb. for the Eagles this year as CSI gained the national tournament for the second straight year.

Coach Banfield also said he hoped to sign at least two Magic Valle youngsters to scholarship letters within the next few days. The Yankees are the second team to draft Nelson. He was first chosen by the San Francisco Giants in the January draft and then last week in the free agent draft. Leise was the top run scorer and leading baserunner-stealer for Coach Banfield over the past two seasons. His speed in the outfield also gave CSI tremendous defensive strength up the middle. One other man from the 18th regional, Jim Davidson of Linn-Benton, was named to the second unit. In other CSI baseball news, Coach Banfield reported Tuesday night that Kevin Nelson, a Twin Falls graduate and sophomore-to-be at CSI next fall, has rejected

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Quarterback John Unitas, who earned glory and a fortune in 17 years with the Baltimore Colts, plans to go to court for another $300,000, he says, his former team owes him. Baltimore News-American Sports Editor John Steadman said Tuesday that Unitas, now a San Diego Charger, will sue to collect money he contends is owed him for a personal services contract that was to take effect when he quit playing. Joe Thomas, Colt general manager and the man who benched the football star early last season before selling him, said, "If John wants to sue, that's his business." But, Thomas said, "All along I have said we stand ready to fulfill that contract. He can come back to the Colts any time he wants after he has finished playing. We will be more than happy to have him. All I can say is I wish he would come back to work with us," Thomas said. Steadman, quoting attorney Dario Leardi, Unitas' business partner and a long-time friend, said the suit would accuse Thomas, the team and perhaps the National Football League with breach of contract and "even a conspiracy that started from the benching of John... after five games of the season when he was having a good year." Unitas signed a 1970 contract for $125,000 annually and a 10-year, $30,000 salary for personal services to the team when he quit playing. But that was before Carroll Rosenbloom sold the team to Robert Irsay and before Thomas moved in as general manager. After watching closely the first five games, Thomas benched Unitas and several other established players and went with Marty Domres as quarterback in a youth movement. He has since traded a half-dozen or more veterans, including Unitas who signed a two-year contract with San Diego last week. Unitas played only a few moments after Domres spelled him in his final appearance in Memorial Stadium — at least as a Colt he threw a 60-yard touchdown pass.

Cycle race set across sagebrush

JACKPOT — More than 100 will participate in a cross country motorcycle race June 17 at 1 p.m. here, committees announce. Riders will come from Idaho, Utah, Nevada, Wyoming and Oregon. Most entries, however, will be from Pocatello, Twin Falls, Idaho Falls and Boise. Kenneth Medley, Pocatello, won the overall prize of $100 last year. His brother, Jim, Ontario, Ore., was second. Besides trophies, winners in four classes — 125 cubic centimeters and under, 126-200, 201-250 and 251 open — will divide $600 in prize money. Ribbons will go to all who finish. Winners will be formally announced at a 4:30 p.m. assembly in Cactus Pete's dining room.

Reds, Padres make trade

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds Tuesday traded outfielder Gene Locklear, minor league pitcher Mike Johnson and an undisclosed amount of cash to the San Diego Padres for pitcher Fred Norman. Locklear, 23, has been used almost exclusively as a pinch-hitter this season by the Reds and is hitting .192. He won batting championships his last two years in the minors, hitting .325 last year at Indianapolis and .323 the previous season at Three Rivers. Norman, a 30-year-old left-hander, has been very successful for the Padres against the Reds. His lone win against seven defeats this year was over the Reds and he beat Cincinnati four times in five decisions last year.

Phillies sign rookie catcher

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies said Tuesday they had signed catcher John Stearns of the University of Colorado, college baseball's leading home-run hitter this year, to a National League contract. Stearns, 21, who batted .413 and hit 15 homers for Colorado this season, was the Phillies' first choice in the annual free agent draft. He also was picked in the 17th round of the National Football League's draft by the Buffalo Bills. Stearns played defensive safety in football. The 6-foot, 195-pound Stearns will report to the Phils on Thursday and work out through the weekend, a spokesman said. He then will report to the Reading, Pa., farm club.

Pacers show loss after leading ABA in attendance for 6 years

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — In the six years the Indiana Pacers have been in the American Basketball Association they have drawn the largest crowds of any of the franchises. They have won three ABA titles, had innumerable standing room only crowds and still have never operated in the black.

Indiana was a first-round pick of the Boston Celtics and has signed with the NBA club. "Right now our attitude is pretty much that we have a championship team and it's going to take pretty good talent to show up at camp next fall and make it," he said. "A year ago we were faced with the expansion draft which was pretty tough on us after a championship year and after trades and some sales were made there were only about five or six players left from the previous year," he continued. "I'm not so sure we want to go through that again." Weissert, who accumulated data to present to the National Hockey League in an attempt to secure a franchise, said the Pacers refuse to enter the bidding war with the NBA. "We pretty well defined the guidelines for each player," he said of the Pacers' draft choices. "If they are interested in playing for us this fall, fine. If not, then it's up to them to find other offers." Weissert said no definite changes are now envisioned in the Pacer lineup.

NHL lifts restraint on youths

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, the chief source of young hockey talent, stands to become a victim of the battle between the two major professional leagues.

National Hockey League President Clarence Campbell told newsmen at the annual NHL meetings Tuesday that the league's pro-amateur agreement with the CAHA may not be renewed at the end of the month.

"The pro-amateur agreement with the CAHA expires on June 30th and the owners are not interested in carrying on unless we get the same rights as our competitors," Campbell said.

While it was obvious Campbell was referring to the World Hockey Association, the NHL president did not mention the rival league by name since the WHA and NHL are now involved in litigation proceedings.

The long-standing arrangement between the NHL and the CAHA prevents a junior player from being drafted by the NHL before his 20th birthday. The CAHA receives rich benefits from NHL clubs which draft these amateurs and such payments would be cut off if the agreement was ended.

The WHA has no such agreement with the CAHA and two weeks ago the Houston Aeros drafted the underage sons of former NHL great Gordie Howe, Mark and Marty, to the charge of the National League.

"I'm sure all the junior teams will cry because they don't want to be put out of business," said Campbell, "but we have to have the same rights to have these players as anyone else.

"So, under the present situation, we are not in a position to continue our agreement with the CAHA."

Howard's first homer of year lets Tigers nip Sox and Wood

Howard's road roommate, Willie Horton, had opened the eighth inning with his third hit of the game off the top winner in the majors, who now has six losses to go with his 14 wins.

CLEVELAND (UPI) — John Ellis and Walt Williams hit two-run homers Tuesday night to power the Cleveland Indians to a 5-4 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Ellis, whose game-winning single Sunday snapped a 10-game losing streak for Cleveland, wiped out a 4-3 Texas lead in the sixth when he belted his second home run of the season-scoring George Hendrick who had singled.

USC stuns Gophers on 8-run 9th

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Southern California, down 7-0 at the hands of potent Minnesota, scored eight runs in the bottom of the ninth inning Tuesday night for one of the most spectacular victories in the history of College World Series.

The 8-7 win put the defending champion Southern California club in the Series final Wednesday night against Arizona State, a 6-5 victor over Texas in the earlier game Tuesday night.

Should Arizona State win, another game would be played Thursday night.

The Southern California explosion overshadowed the performance of the Gophers' Dave Winfield, who struck out 15 and rapped three singles before going to left field in the ninth.

The eight hits by the Trojans in the final inning were capped by a line single by Creighton Tevlin bringing in Marvin Cobb from behind for the winning run.

All Trojan hits in the inning were singles. In addition to Tevlin's game-winning liner, they came off the bats of Rich Dauer, Ed Bowman, Daryl Arenstein, Roy Smalley, Ed Putnam, Brian Hueblein, and Ken Huizenga.

Woman honored as KOPS

HANSEN — Mrs. Fred Howard was honored as a five-year KOP at the Idaho Tops Club No. 84 meeting Monday night at the home of Mrs. Steelsmith.

Mrs. Howard, a charter member of the club when it was organized in July, 1967, lost 20 pounds by the following April and since gaining her KOPS status after the required KOP-in-writing period, she kept her KOPS status for the past five years.

Swiss couple honeymoon in TF

TWIN FALLS — A young Swiss couple is honeymooning in Twin Falls this week.

Hansjorg and Colette Heim, Geneva, are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Ludwig Landwehr, Twin Falls. Heim is a nephew of Mrs. Landwehr whose husband is a local chiropractor.

Married about three weeks ago, the Heims began their American tour with stays in

New York City, Washington, D. C. and Salt Lake City. They plan to remain in Twin Falls for the rest of this week before going to San Francisco, Los Angeles, Las Vegas and the Grand Canyon.

An accountant in Geneva, Heim said he likes America "very well indeed." He said Idaho is "much nicer" than New York. Mrs. Heim said she also likes Idaho, especially the flatness of the countryside which contrasts with the mountainous terrain of Switzerland.

Heim said one noticeable difference here is the distance one travels routinely. He said it is nothing for an Idahoan to drive 100 or 200 miles for a picnic.

"In Switzerland, if you drive 10, 20, 30 miles for an outing, it's already a lot," he said.

Messengers installed were Jodi Craig, first; Lorie Allison, second; Pam Lancaster, third; Becky Clark, fourth, and Bonnie Walters, fifth. The Rose Festival ceremony was narrated by the new queen's father, Ronald Rogers.

Do not attempt do-it-yourself installation of an air conditioner unless the manufacturer specifically so instructs or provides a kit. Then carefully read the instructions before starting.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Will you please settle a misunderstanding among myself, my husband, and my mother concerning my 7-year-old son?

Dickie loves to talk to his grandmother (my mother) on the telephone, and occasionally, as a disciplining measure, we deny him that privilege.

When the phone rings, if I don't get it before Dickie and it's his grandmother, he tells her that he's not allowed to talk to her.

My mother gets upset because she feels he should be able to talk to her grandson when she calls. She even suggested that if she should die suddenly and Dickie hadn't been allowed to talk to her, he would hold it against my husband and me. She asked me how I would feel then?

Dialing trouble

My husband and I think we have a right to discipline our son as we see fit, but since my mother brought up this dying business we aren't so sure. Thanks for any help you can give us.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Surely you and your husband can discipline your son in some other way. By denying him the privilege of talking to his grandmother, you are punishing her, too. But he's your son so YOU make the rules. And don't let grandma blackmail you with talk of sudden death and ensuing guilt.

DEAR ABBY: All of a sudden my sister in law stopped speaking to me, and being a sensitive person I wanted to know why, so I asked her. She said: "I'll be honest with you. When you asked us for the plans of our house, we gave them to you, not dreaming you would make yours a carbon copy of ours, including the landscaping, the fence, and lawn furniture. Then you had to get a car like ours. And now you are planning to vacation the same place WE vacationed last year, and that is the last straw."

I was shocked. If they didn't want us to have the same kind of house, they should have said so. Instead, they acted honored. Our car is a different color, and lots of people go to the Virgin Islands for a vacation.

Should we change our vacation plans, Abby? I don't need a person like her for an enemy.

SISTER IN LAW

DEAR SIS: If you think it will improve your relationship, go somewhere else. And now that you know the rents being copied, try to be a little more original.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever I read or hear about a woman who is overweight but says, "My husband likes me this way," I think of myself 30 years ago. I was 35 years old, 5 foot 3, and 260 pounds. My handsome husband told me he didn't care—he liked me just the way I was.

My mother kept telling me how unhealthy it was for me to carry around so much weight, but I kept saying, "I feel fine, why should I diet?" If a friend suggested that maybe I should lose some weight, I avoided that person.

Then it happened. High blood pressure, diabetes, and a heart attack. One thing after another, and all directly related to my obesity. Why didn't a doctor warn me? Because all those years I was too ashamed to go near a doctor because I knew he'd put me on a diet.

I know now that if I had reduced 30 years ago, I'd have been a lot healthier. As for my husband, he has paid some staggering doctor bills. Poor man. Sign me,

A Lovelier You HAVE COAT, WILL TRAVEL

By Mary Sue Miller

Suddenly it's summer. And the travel-bent Lovelier needs a rain-sun-cold-heat-soil-resistant coat suddenly.

What sort of coat fits every requirement? Think warmth first. How could it be at stopovers after dark? If your itinerary takes you to Scandinavian lands, you'll want a light-weight wool tweed or knit or cotton blends with zip-in lining. In warmer climates, nylon, polyester, rayon, all blends give sufficient protection.

A handbag of care label fills you in on a fabric's treatments against rain, soil and wrinkle. With these practicalities ticked off, style and color are the fun parts. Check on "From travelers' reports" khaki trenchcoats fare best on rugged jaunts.

White double-breasted coats, often alligator quilted, star in the big cities by day and night. Water green, palest beige, no-color pink and blue, navy are much in evidence. As are sashes, back belts, patch pockets, knee-lengths.

Of course there are all manner of variations, from wild plaids to tent widths. Just consider that your coat has far to go, looking the Lovelier Anglian like you.

West didn't have any attractive lead against six no trump but he managed to find the worst one. When it is clear that your opponents have based their bidding on point count, you want to make your safest lead, not one that is likely to cost you a trick.

Normally 34 high card points is more than enough for a small slam. This time, even after South had let the heart lead come around to his jack, he could only count to 11 tricks.

The twelfth would have to come from a 3-3 break in a red suit or a squeeze of some sort.

South planned for all contingencies. At trick two he led a heart to dummy. Then he led a diamond and stuck in the seven-spot. When you are after a squeeze for 12 tricks you try to concede a trick early since you aren't interested in all 13.

West won with the nine and led a third heart to set up his queen. It also forced East to make a discard. This was no problem. He let a club go.

The problem developed three tricks later after South had cashed the good clubs. This time East had to let a spade or diamond go. Either discard would be fatal but he tried the diamond as his best chance.

South, who was something of a show-off, proceeded to show his hand with the remark, "If East still has the diamonds stopped I will play the ace and king and squeeze West. If he doesn't have them stopped my eight of diamonds will be my 12th trick."

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 14, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An opportunity is present today for you to discuss business matters with an influential person. You are able to work out plans for a new project that brings success to you with minimum effort. Correspond with those far away.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Go to a new location with a clever friend whose judgment is good and put a new plan in motion. Attend the social tonight and obtain the information you need. Avoid a troublemaker.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): You understand exactly how to get the data you need from a bigwig, so do just that. Handle money matters properly. Give more support to mate. Remember, it's a matter of teamwork.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Accompany an associate to a worthwhile place that will give you a better insight into modern trends. Expand where the spiritual side of life is concerned. Adopt a new viewpoint.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Become more cooperative with co-workers instead of deviating so much, and get better results. Buy new items to make your wardrobe more charming. Bring out the inner you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Make this a profitable and enjoyable day with business associates. Take the time to show mate how much you value the alliance. Avoid one who has some strange ideas. Relax at home tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): A good day to put your business affairs in order so that you can realize your fondest dreams very soon. Some entertaining at home can be most enjoyable tonight. Show that you have poise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Improve on your appearance and then keep the important appointments that will help you to advance in your career. The evening is fine for the social side of life. Use your charm.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Concentrating on how to add-to-present-income-is-fine. You can now get fine ideas and suggestions from successful businessmen. Plan a trip you want to take for good purposes. Keep sober.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You can go to those persons for the favors you need and get excellent results. Become more gregarious in your attitude and manner. This can bring excellent results in the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Instead of angling so much, bluntly state what it is you want from others and get far better results. Put your hunches to work which are accurate now. Avoid one who is a hypocrite.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): A good day for making new contacts and being your own gregarious and happy self. Attend interesting group affairs. Don't get yourself in a hassle over something unimportant.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You can work progressively in a civic matter, especially if you confer with important officials. See that your credit rating is good. Take time to engage in hobby you enjoy.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful young people with an active and philosophical mind. For this reason your progeny should be given an opportunity to travel a good deal and meet people of various backgrounds. The study of foreign languages and comparative religions should be included in the formal education. Give ethical training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

It's the retired man, not his wife, who wants to light out for some other part of the country. It's he, not she, who's most apt to toy with the notion of buying a camper, travel trailer or motor home. And it's he, not she, who's inclined to send off for brochures about national parks, monuments, campgrounds, so on. Why this difference? Can you explain it?

Statisticians claim one in every 400 bills sent out by the credit card companies is in error. Don't believe I mentioned the ruby throated hummingbird has 940 feathers. Whiskey termed 100 proof in Great Britain would run 142 proof in the United States. An elephant's normal walking pace on level ground is about eight miles an hour. That sunshine sport most popular in the nudist colonies nationwide is said to be volley ball.

Incredible how much litter is picked up annually by the country's cleanup crews. Enough, it's said, to fill a gondola train so long it's locomotive could be in New Orleans while its caboose was in Detroit.

CRUDE OIL
How much of a barrel of crude oil winds up as gasoline?

A Just 44.8 per cent of it. As fuel oil, 32.8 per cent. As kerosene, 5 per cent. As asphalt and road oil, 3.7 per cent. As jet fuel, 3.3 per cent. As lubricants, 2 per cent. And as whatever else, 8.4 per cent.

The Armed Forces qualification test is really a basic mental examination. That place where the largest percentage of young men regularly fail it is Washington, D.C. Where the largest percentage of men pass it is the State of Washington.

Psychological researchers at Colgate University have insisted their studies prove the "you-say-it" of "phony" talk are less shifty than those of honest souls.

DOCTORS
Was the custom in China some centuries ago for a doctor to hang a lantern in front of his place of practice anytime a patient died? No, not just the custom, an edict by the emperor, it was. And said lantern was left out there for quite awhile. History doesn't tell us how long exactly. But long enough, it's understood, for the citizenry to get some notion of how successful or otherwise that doctor was in healing his clientele.

Hardly anybody anymore gives appropriate credit to that English inventor J. I. Stassen who in 1869 first coined the word "bicycle." Unfortunate.

If the young man is definitely interested in the girl, he tends to blink as he gazes at her. Contrarily, no blink, no interest. Or so the university researchers now report. And the faster he blinks, they say, the more intense the interest. Those findings were made with hidden cameras in campus cafeterias. But it's said romantic young men don't blink accordingly, if they're aware they're being watched.

Minidoka airs food stamp plan

By ROBERT SCHLEEF
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Discussion on a proposed switch from a food stamps program to a commodities program continued when the Minidoka County Commissioners met Monday.

Three women, currently on the food stamps program, discussed a survey they had taken. They felt that the food stamp program had the support of the city, markets, and county. According to them they had been received well everywhere they went.

One of the women said that one of the problems with the food stamp program was that many of the food stores in the area neglected to check for proper identification when items were purchased with the food stamps. She also said that on one occasion she had not signed her food stamps while in a Rupert store, and the food stamps were still accepted.

The women said that the food stamp program would be more effective and less abused if the program regulations were better enforced.

When Cassia County switched from the food stamps program to the commodities program earlier this year there was a decline of about 50 per cent in the program recipients. The maximum earning for a family to be eligible for food stamps is $7,500 a year. The maximum for commodities is $5,000 a year.

In April 176 families received food stamps in Minidoka County at a cost of $106 to the county, with the remainder of the program costs paid by the Federal Government.

According to Commissioner Chairman Elmer Ketterling, the commission is still gathering information. He said if the switch from food stamps to commodities is made, Minidoka County will set up its own warehouse and handle the distribution. The county would not work with Cassia County as proposed earlier.

"We don't want people going over to Cassia and shopping when they go to pick up their commodities," Ketterling said.

"We want to try and enforce the regulations governing food stamp purchases first."

According to Commissioner Lyle Barton, no move will be made to initiate the program until the beginning of next year if the switch is accepted. "But," he added, "we are still only into the very beginning of the research stage."

Vern Hacking, from the U. S. Soil Conservation service, and J. Meuleman, of the Minidoka Irrigation District, met with the commissioners to discuss joining the Resource Conservation and Development District.

The RCD in the Wood River Valley is working in Blaine, Camas, Gooding, and Lincoln Counties. Joining the organization would give Minidoka County access to federal funds to set up a sprinkler irrigation system in the county to expand farmland acreage under irrigation.

Water for the project would come from the main canals and travel in underground pipes. Secondary ditches coming from the canals would not be used.

The commissioners will attend the next RCD meeting to gather information about the project.

Hunt area picnic planned

EDEN — The Hunt Community picnic sponsored annually by the Hunt Women's Club will be at 6:30 p.m. Friday at the Eden Park.

All residents of the Hunt area and all those who have lived there and their families are invited to attend, according to Mrs. George Nye, vice president of the group.

Those attending are asked to bring a picnic lunch. Punch and ice cream will be furnished by the women's club.

Shoshone school board reorganizes

SHOSHONE — Waldo Jones was elected chairman of the Shoshone School Board during a reorganizational meeting Monday night.

Jones who has served on the board for several years, was re-elected to a three-year term in the recent school election. He was sworn in Monday night for the new term.

Gordon Braun was elected vice chairman and Mrs. Ruth Chess re-appointed clerk and treasurer. Uncertified employees were rehired with a 10 per cent salary raise. These include Mrs. Chess; custodians, Martin Lueders and Joe Gonzales; secretary Mrs. Rosita Lecertua; hot lunch supervisor Mrs. Josephine Lequerica, and cooks, Mrs. Esther Sturgeon and Mrs. June Rands.

Kerner, and a clerical aid, Mrs. Carol Sturgeon. These two will be working specifically with the new media program in the grade school, funded partially by a federal grant.

There are three vacancies in the teaching staff for the coming year. These include the music department, a teacher and coach combination for junior high school and a high school English and Spanish combination position. Kenneth Crothers, superintendent, said contracts have been offered but no final decision has been made.

The July 9 meeting was postponed until July 16 to enable the superintendent to attend a national federation meeting of the High School Activities Association in Minneapolis, Minn.

Miss Rodeo Idaho contestants entered

TWIN FALLS Miss Rodeo Idaho contestants are now being entered for the state event Sept. 5-8 in conjunction with the Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo.

Gene Hull, Miss Rodeo Idaho chairman, is receiving entries for the event at the Twin Falls Bank and Trust Co., Twin Falls.

Harold Hove, president of the county fair board, said rules for the state contest will be the same as those for the Miss Rodeo America contest sponsored by the International Rodeo Management.

Contestants must be 18 years of age by Sept. 1, 1973, and not over 24 years of age. They must be single and never have Hove said Idaho girls have done well in the national contest with three Miss Rodeo Americas having been named from the Gem State.

Working with Hull in the contest will be Mrs. Karen James, Jerome, a former Miss Rodeo America, in charge of personality judges, and Mrs. Alma Vickers, Twin Falls, in charge of appearance judges.

Deadline for entries will be Aug. 27, Hull said. Current Miss Rodeo Idaho, Iola Anglin, Tondoy, will be making numerous appearances around the state this summer and fall.
