Nixon vetoes war cutoff bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today vetoed legislation to cut off funds for the bombing of Cambodia. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield angrily warned that Nixon would be responsible for the federal government grinding to a halt if he persists in the air war.

Nixon rejected a $3.3 billion supplemental appropriations bill containing a strong provision barring the use of appropriated funds for further military activity "in, over or from the shores of" Laos and Cambodia.

Mansfield said Congress would keep attaching the same amendment which was sponsored by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., to every available bill.

"We're going to put the Eagleton amendment on more bills," he said. "If he doesn't want to stop the bombing, but wants to stop the government, it's up to him," Mansfield said.

The majority leader said he saw no way out of the constitutional crisis short of a decision by Nixon to end the air war.

As for the supplemental bill, he said it was "up to the House" whether an attempt would be made to override Nixon's veto. Judging from antiwar votes recorded this week, the House does not have the two-thirds majority to override the President, although the Senate probably does.

Mansfield said there was no chance that another supplemental bill would be drafted with the antiwar language deleted.

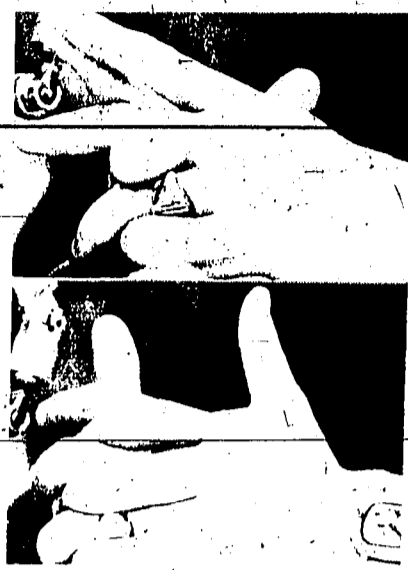

"We'll let it die," he said. "We'll save the taxpayers that amount of money. Evidently the 'urgent supplement' wasn't that urgent after all."

Mansfield said the bombing was "illegal, unconstitutional and uncalled for."

A more serious test of wills between Congress and the President is expected to emerge this week, when Congress sends Nixon a resolution permitting government agencies to continue to draw appropriated funds after the current fiscal year closes Saturday. Unless this resolution passes, government agencies will be without funds to operate.

The House already has voted to attach the Eagleton amendment to this resolution and the Senate was expected to follow and send the measure to the President in a few days.

White House sources in San Clemente said the official announcement of the veto would be made after the House receives Nixon's veto message.

Outward calm
HANDS OF John W. Dean III reflect outward calm which he displayed Tuesday during second day of testimony before Senate Watergate Committee. Dean appeared again today, detailing his knowledge and participation in scandal. (UPI)

Ex-aide pleads guilty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A plea of guilty and a new clash marked the course of the Watergate scandal today.

Frederick C. LaRue, key aide to former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell during the 1972 presidential campaign, pleaded guilty to conspiracy to obstruct justice, waiving indictment.

Chief Judge John S. Sirica of the U.S. District Court accepted LaRue's plea and postponed sentencing indefinitely.

LaRue also declared his willingness to testify against others who may be indicted in the future. He admitted helping concoct false stories to mislead investigators and channeling more than $300,000 to buy silence of seven men convicted in the break-in at national Democratic headquarters.

Before the Senate Watergate Committee today, John W. Dean III stuck by his claim that President Nixon was involved in the Watergate cover-up but Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., a committee member, charged Dean has "not a single shred of evidence" to back up the charge.

Dean's debate with Gurney came during the former White House counsel's third day of testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee. Dean insisted that he became convinced of the President's involvement in the scandal on Sept. 15, when Nixon congratulated him for doing a "good job" on the case.

Seven men were indicted that day for the bugging of Democratic party headquarters three months before. No high White House or Nixon campaign officials were among those indicted, and Dean said he was sure Nixon had been kept posted on White House efforts to hush up the case.

"This was the hottest issue that was going in the campaign," Dean said. "I can't believe that the fact that we were going to contain this matter would totally escape the President's attention and it was a confirmation and a compliment to me that I had done this."

When Gurney demanded to know if Nixon couldn't have been congratulating him for the "investigation," Dean did of possible White House involvement in the scandal, Dean insisted he had made no such inquiry. Further, he said, he had been working on the coverup with presidential aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, whom he assumed had been reporting to Nixon.

Rather than telling him "your investigator has been very accurate," Dean said, Nixon instead told him "Bob's been telling me everything you're doing and you've been doing a good job."

"Did he say that 'Bob' has been telling me everything you've been doing?" Gurney asked.

"He said 'Bob' has been reporting to me, something of this nature," Dean replied.

"I thought you said 'Bob' has been telling me what a good job you've been doing," Gurney said.

"Well, we're quibbling over words," Dean began. But Gurney cut him off.

"No, we're not quibbling over words," Gurney said. "We're talking about something very important... whether the President of the United States knew on Sept. 15 about the Watergate cover-up."

Classroom bid refused

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The manager of the Twin Falls Labor Center has refused to provide space for an indoor classroom requested by the Idaho Migrant Council (IMC).

According to Dionicio Benavides, Twin Falls area IMC coordinator, the agency has asked to use unused rooms in the east end of the armory building to hold classes to teach migrant farm workers to read and write and other basic skills.

Camp manager James Rathbun said he had refused the request Tuesday night.

"I've told him (Benavides) no four times," he said. "I was good enough to let them have this (the camp lawn). I don't know what they're trying to do."

Rathbun said "I'm not interested in it (the IMC program). I don't know a thing about it. A couple of my neighbors around here say it's a bunch of baloney."

Asked if he would open the building for IMC use if so directed by the labor center board, Rathbun said "I've got four bosses. If they told me to do it, I'd let one of them open it. I wouldn't."

Benavides said the reason Rathbun had given him for refusing the use of the building was that some of the windows might get broken. "But as you saw most of them are already broken," he said.

He said the IMC would pay for any broken windows or other damage caused to the armory building while it was being used as a classroom.

The IMC, largely federally funded, had originally scheduled evening classes in adult basic education (ABE) and high school equivalency (GED) in the former St. Edwards' School east of the city park, Benavides said.

However, attendance was low because "St. Edward's is too far (from the labor center) for the people who have just got out of the fields," Benavides said.

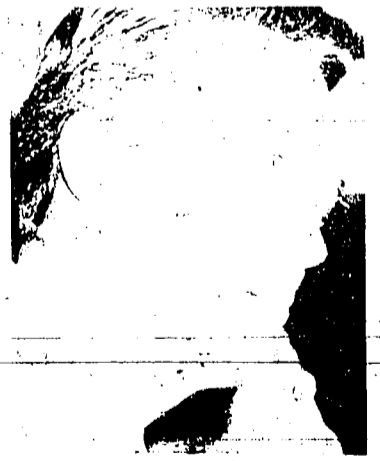

Currently, the IMC evening classes are being held on the lawn at the labor center, a private corporation.

Benavides said he originally approached camp manager Rathbun about using the classrooms but was turned down. He said he then asked labor center board member Curtis Eaton, president of Twin Falls Bank and Trust Co., who gave IMC permission to use the building.

Benavides said IMC officials then got the key to the building from Rathbun and started to clean it up, but when they went to get the key from the camp manager the second time, he told them they could not use the building.

TF's mayor won't run

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

JOHN CHRISTOFFERSEN
... won't run again

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Mayor John Christoffersen said today he will not seek re-election in November.

He cited increasing need for "personal attention" to his business interests as the reason. He owns John Chris Motors Inc., a Twin Falls automobile dealership.

"I need to be closer to the store," he said today.

Christoffersen has served on the City Council for four years, two years of that time as mayor.

"I have enjoyed (the council) work immensely and have learned a great deal from it," he said. "I now understand the magnitude of the problems that the council is faced with."

Improving city facilities while holding down taxes has been a major accomplishment during his term in office, according to Christoffersen.

"Although the city mill levy has risen only about 10 per cent, we have been able to make many improvements" by getting state and federal aid, he said.

He cited the additional one cent of state gasoline tax as the source of numerous road improvements.

The city-county airport has also benefited from state and federal moneys, he added. He also mentioned the planned new fire station and aid to the city library.

Christoffersen headed the current city councilmen and city manager.

"The council devotes much more time to their offices than every other Monday night," he said. He cited City Manager Jean Millar as "exceptionally well qualified and one of the most knowledgeable and hard working city managers."

Kelley wins nod as new FBI head

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today confirmed Police Chief Clarence Kelley of Kansas City, Mo., as the first permanent director of the FBI since J. Edgar Hoover who died in May, 1972.

Kelley was an agent with the FBI for 21 years before he took over the Kansas City police department. Nicknamed "Dick Tracy" because of his electronic innovations in police work, he becomes only the second permanent head of the FBI.

After Hoover's death President Nixon named L. Patrick Gray III, whose nomination failed because of his involvement in the Watergate affair. William D. Ruckelshaus has been serving as interim chief.

Prices hit food supply

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Capitol Hill and food industry spokesmen issued new warnings today of potential food shortages, growing out of a squeeze between high farm product prices and controlled retail food prices.

The National Association of Food Chains said it has told the Cost of Living Council that some processors of oil and shortening have halted operations and others may follow. It said some fruit and vegetable processors are temporarily, at least, stopping sales.

"It has now become abundantly clear that the food shortages at the retail level which we warned earlier (last) week would occur are happening at a faster pace than even we expected," the supermarket trade group said.

Raymond Jennison, president of the American Corn Millers Federation, said in an interview that about a third of the nation's corn milling capacity has been closed down because of the 60-day price freeze announced June 13, and at least one major breakfast food manufacturer may soon have to slow its operations.

The industry Jennison represents mills corn for human food, and handles about 160 million bushels of corn annually. This relatively small proportion of the nation's 5.3 billion bushel crop is ground into products including corn meal, flour and grits. Some of the grits are later processed into corn flakes.

Industry blamed for gas shortage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Federal Trade Commission (FTC) official told Congress today the anti-competitive structure of the oil industry has helped create the gasoline shortage.

The same industry, added James T. Halverson, director of the FTC's Bureau of Competition, may have engaged in a conspiracy to make it appear there is a shortage of natural gas.

The FTC is prepared to recommend antitrust action against eight of the major oil firms, the Washington Star-News said today, pending its report to congressional sources.

Halverson, in testimony before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee, did not forecast FTC action but he said that on the basis of a lengthy FTC investigation of the energy shortage, "the staff of the Bureau of Competition has preliminarily concluded that the structure, conduct and performance of the petroleum industry raises serious antitrust issues."

He added, "The industry is highly concentrated at the refinery level and the barriers to entry at that level are overwhelming."

"Since early this year, the Bureau of Competition staff has been receiving, with increasing frequency, reports of independent (gasoline) marketers who have been forced to close some or even all of their stations," Halverson said. "We are concerned that unless something is done quickly, irreparable harm may result."

He said "our investigation suggests that activities by the major integrated petroleum companies have had significant anticompetitive effects. Their control of refinery capacity and pipelines also constitutes a significant competitive problem in the oil industry and contributes to the independents' present difficulty."

Halverson said that in the Eastern United States and on the Gulf Coast, where 50 per cent of all U.S. gasoline is sold to consumers, the eight largest oil refiners have "more than 65 per cent of the refinery capacity. Since 1950, despite the fact that the demand for gasoline has almost doubled, there has been virtually no new entry into the industry. As a result, concentration has remained practically unchanged."

Because independent refineries have not been developed, Halverson said, independent distributors are increasingly at the mercy of the big oil companies. And now, "since the development of the present crude (oil) shortage, the problem of the independent has become one of survival," he added.

Halverson said he was speaking for himself and not for the commission. His remarks, however, provided an insight into a report the FTC has promised members of Congress by July 1 who asked for an investigation into whether the oil industry had manufactured the whole gasoline "crisis."

Convoy hit by Red fire

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — A river convoy bringing fuel and food supplies to the capital reached Phnom Penh shortly after dark tonight after taking heavy Communist ground fire on the 84-mile trip under heavy U.S. air cover.

Initial reports said one cargo ship was seriously damaged, and two Cambodian marine escort boats were hit.

Four tankers and two cargo ships from South Vietnam made the trip, the first since June 18.

Ambulances waited at Phnom Penh's Mekong River dock for the wounded.

UPI reporters saw a seriously wounded Cambodian civilian and a lightly wounded Thai crewman being removed from the flooded dock in ambulances.

Sailors on the evacuation patrol boat said both men were aboard the crippled cargo ship Aquatic, which at 8 P.M. was still anchored 12 miles south of Phnom Penh undergoing emergency repairs in an effort to get it into the city dockyard before morning.

Food firm spokesmen warn of food shortages

Jennison said two large mills in Illinois closed this week because they were caught between the high, uncontrolled price for corn and the frozen price for processed foods. Another major producer, Lauboff Grain Co. of Danville, Ill., was to cut back to 50 per cent of capacity today, the official said. Executives of the Short Milling Co., Chicago, which operates plants at Mt. Vernon and Kankakee, Ill., were scheduled to meet this week to decide whether to trim their operations, Jennison added.

The trade association official said the Kellogg Co. had indicated that further cutbacks in milling of grits would force it to curtail some of its breakfast food production.

On Capitol Hill, a former Johnson administration official told Congress that supplies of meat, poultry and other livestock foods would shrink, leading to more price inflation, unless the government takes action to end the crunch caused by record livestock feed costs and the temporary retail price ceilings. John A. Schnittker said the cost of soybean meal, corn and other raw feed ingredients used in raising livestock has risen sharply since price ceilings were imposed. As a result, many meat and poultry producers find they can no longer make a profit and production will decline unless the feed-price relationships change, Schnittker said.

Schnittker called for quick administration action to cut feed costs by limiting exports of soybeans and other key feed ingredients.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, the Senate Democratic whip, called on President Nixon to put Phase IV economic controls into effect as soon as possible to avoid food shortages.

"It is little short of ludicrous that we have allowed a situation to be created in our country in which food producers, with demand at its peak, are finding it unprofitable to produce food," Byrd said.

Rep. Peter Peyser, R-N.Y., warned that the entire Northeast may go on milk rationing within six months unless raw agricultural products are placed under the present 60-day price freeze.

Pendleton shop to open in TF

TWIN FALLS — Pendleton, producers of nationally renowned woolen products, is introducing a new concept in merchandising in a shop scheduled to open in Twin Falls Thursday.

The Pendleton Shop will open Thursday at 9:30 a.m. in Cotillon Hall in the space formerly occupied by a delicatessen shop and directly across from the second story entrance to the Top of the Stair teen shop. It will be another addition to The Paris.

Earl Faulkner, manager-owner of The Paris, said the new concept will feature an entire separate facility for the Pendleton line which will feature both men's and women's clothing, blankets and yardage.

If the customer finds something he or she likes in a jacket but needs matching or contrasting pants or skirt they may be made from the selection of Pendleton yard goods.

The women's shop will feature all types of sport clothes, pant suits, dress suits, coats, sweaters and accessories.

In the men's portion of the shop will be a full line of woolen suits, sports clothes, ties, scarves and even caps, Faulkner said.

"We think Pendleton may follow this concept in separate and complete lines of their products under one roof in many of the other stores they serve," Faulkner said.

He said The Paris has handled Pendleton items for a number of years but they will no longer be mingled with the other labels on the clothing racks. They will be in the specialty shop.

A plush blue carpet, which matches the background of the Pendleton label, has been installed and the Pendleton firm has furnished all of the shop decor and equipment.

Sally Turner, who formerly operated Sally's gift and book shop and who has been associated with The Paris the past year, will manage the shop.

For the formal opening Thursday morning, Faulkner said, a number of leading officials of Pendleton will be in Twin Falls and a number of the area's leading woolgrowers will be special guests.

CSI split denied

TWIN FALLS — The director of the College of Southern Idaho work-study program said Tuesday remarks he had made to the Times-News had made him appear to be in disagreement with the college's president.

Perkins said he had "really dropped the ball" when he had told the Times-News earlier that work-study students whose time claims had been found "unsupportable" by the college's auditors had been asked to rework the questionable hours.

Perkins' earlier statement had conflicted with a statement made by CSI president James L. Taylor, who had said the students were not required to rework the questionable hours.

Perkins said Tuesday that there were only a "couple of instances" in which students had been required to make the paybacks.

Earlier he had said all students remaining on campus had been required to rework the questionable hours.

In a second instance in which Taylor and Perkins had made statements which had not agreed involved the legality of use of work study students paid primarily from federal funds to install a rock garden and underground sprinkler system at the privately owned home of the college president.

Perkins said Tuesday he had been "misquoted in the Times-News story when he reportedly termed "illegal" use of work-study students for private purposes.

Perkins said Tuesday, "If Dr. Taylor had come to me and asked to use work-study students, I think if he would have said the board had given approval I would have approved it."

If the board had not approved it, Perkins said, "I'd think I wouldn't have approved it." Taylor had said earlier there had not been CSI board approval.

Perkins said he would have questioned the legality and probably would have contacted regional-federal officials to determine the propriety of it.

The new statements from Perkins brought him into closer alignment with the positions issued by the college's president.

Taylor had said he believed there had been no impropriety involved in his use of work-study funds.

According to Perkins, "the thing that bothered me is I'd like to support Dr. Taylor. This article made me appear to be at odds with him. I don't like that."

Winning blood program needs many volunteers

TWIN FALLS — It takes the services of numerous volunteers to keep a blood program successful.

So says Dave Nelson, Twin Falls, Red Cross blood chairman. When the bloodmobile unit sets up operation for the next Twin Falls blood drawing July 2, at least 25 to 30 persons will be donating their time and services to help collect the blood, he says.

One of the most vital of the programs the Red Cross provides, the blood supply is essential to hospitals in the area and must be made available if doctors are going to save the lives of accident victims and surgery patients.

Nelson said there are volunteers in several categories, all equally important. When the mobile unit arrives for the drawing there is a full-time operator and nurses who draw the blood. These are the only paid workers.

Volunteer-licensed practical nurses take temperatures, pulses and make certain the prospective donors are in good health. Another group of volunteers provides typing and serves as receptionists, canteen workers serve cookies, coffee and fruit juice. These people also help the donors from the area where they give the blood to the canteen.

At each drawing a volunteer doctor is present. Registered nurses also support the program by donating services to help check medical information, blood pressure and condition.

Nelson said the most important volunteer, of course, is the donor. But without the services of the others the donor would not be able to make his contribution.

For a number of years the American Legion and Jaycees have donated the use of the building and the Catholic Church now provides the Parish Hall while the old American Legion Hall is under remodeling.

Marguerite Baker, licensed practical nurse, has worked with the Red Cross blood program for 19 years. In the 10 years she has missed only seven blood drawings. She says she believes completely in the Red Cross programs and enjoys the communication with others at the blood drawings.

Helen Hammond, registered nurse, was asked by Mary Bolton to help out with a blood drawing 15 years ago. She has been helping out ever since and says she enjoys the work. She says she finds it an easy way to help out the community and contribute to the people of Twin Falls.

Mildred Nelson, who works with the clerical and canteen forces to direct organization, says she has been doing it for 16 years and was one of the original Hollister Grange members who first established a blood drawing in Twin Falls County.

As one whose family has also been on the receiving end of the blood program, Mrs. Nelson said the availability of blood is so essential the effort to provide it is an enjoyable service.

Frank Mogensen, an Idaho State Police officer, has been donating blood since the bloodmobile began making visits to Twin Falls. As a law enforcement officer covering traffic accidents, he has also seen the need of blood to save lives.

He has been giving blood the past 20 years, having required blood in October, 1944, when serving in the Philippines. He started donating to replace what was given him and is now many gallons ahead.

The Big New Leak Is A Fact

WASHINGTON — As a citizen who likes a little due process with his Watergate investigation, I should not like to be at the mercy of the staff which does preliminary questioning for the Senate Select Committee looking into said scandal.

By committee rules, the testimony taken behind closed doors by staff members is supposed to be strictly confidential — for the exclusive use of the committee during its public hearings. Some joke, if you'll forgive the euphemism: Practically every syllable extracted from witnesses by the committee staff is leaked to the media as soon as the inquisition chamber is turned over to the chairmen.

Consider the case of President Nixon's former counsel, John W. Dean 3rd, who will never make my list of pin-up boys. Information Dean provided to staff interrogators during a five-hour interview last Saturday was leaked almost verbatim, throughout the news media. Only those reporters who were out of town or comatose failed to get a complete fill-in on Dean's "revelations."

Some reporters even were provided with copies of a seven-page, single-spaced summary of Dean's testimony prepared by members of the committee staff. Among other things, the summary quoted Dean as saying that former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell approved the break-in and bugging of Democratic National Committee headquarters and that Presidential aides H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman knew all about the burglary within two weeks of its happening.

The fact is leaking has occurred on such a massive scale it casts doubt on the responsibility of the Senate investigation. It is very well to talk about the public's right to know, but one has a right to expect this purpose will be served in an orderly fashion which protects everybody's constitutional rights.

Not surprisingly, Dean's lawyers refused to allow him to be interviewed further by committee staffers before his public appearance before the committee.

Counsel had a powerful and cogent point. All sorts of fishing-expedition questions are asked by Committee Counsel Samuel Dash and his aides in proper pursuit of the truth, and undoubtedly a lot of names are tossed around. But the committee then decides how much of the testimony is relevant to the investigation, throwing out the immaterial stuff and some of the names in the interests of common justice.

In short, staff members and some committee members have released to the media raw information before the whole committee has had a chance to evaluate it and pass judgment on its relevancy.

Mostly the leaks have been anti-administration. That is to say, testimony has been passed on to the media which involved members of the Nixon team in the lunatic shenanigans. But there also have been obvious Republican moves to discredit Dean as a witness and thus cast doubt on accusations he has leveled at administration figures.

The most flagrant example was the leak to news media of Dean's admission to interrogators that he used more than $4,000 in Nixon campaign funds to finance his honeymoon last October. This had to be a Republican leak, because Dean is the Democrats' star witness against the White House, and for weeks had been pictured as a young man who did wrong and then decided to make amends by telling all.

Unfortunately, due process is a sometime thing in Congressional investigations. Congressional committees can — and usually do — dredge up all kinds of information that would be admissible only in a particularly corrupt Communist of Fascist court. About the only right a witness has is to take the Fifth Amendment and remain silent, and even that tends to suggest he's concealing something naughty.

But Democrats and Republicans alike on the Watergate committee had better watch it. For politics' sake, both sides have stooped to some rather questionable tactics. Clearly, there has been rascality on a major scale, but so far none of the suspects has been convicted in a court of law. Sen. Sam Ervin and his colleagues should remind themselves daily that it is the rascals in our midst who are most in need of constitutional protection, most especially the guarantee of a fair trial.

Blacks Must Help

Georgia legislator, Julian Bond is emerging as something like a black Ralph Nader.

Not only do both men share youth, looks, brains and national prominence as courageous reformers, but both are given to making slightly outrageous statements.

Addressing students at Cuyahoga Community College in Cleveland the other day, Bond said that while blacks can point to many improved conditions in America, there are as many others that are worse.

"We seem to be climbing a molasses mountain dressed in snowshoes while the rest of the country rides an easy ski lift to the top," he said.

Bond has climbed rather high on that mountain through his own efforts, having had to go to court to win the right to sit in the Georgian House of Representatives as a duly elected member. But at a time when many poverty-level white Americans would be glad just to have a serviceable pair of snowshoes, Bond is no longer exceptional.

In his field of politics, Los Angeles councilman Tom Bradley, a black, won a landslide victory over incumbent Sam Yorty, a white, as mayor of that predominantly white city. It was Bradley's second try against Yorty.

Also in California, in Oakland, two black candidates were in the running this year for the mayor's seat against two whites, including the white incumbent. In the run-off, Black Panther Bobby Seal lost to Mayor John H. Reading by almost a 2-1 margin, but what is significant is not that he lost but that he did so in a city close to 50 per cent black.

In Camden, N. J., another city close to half black five black candidates and one Puerto Rican ran for mayor and were overwhelmed by the white Democratic candidate, one of three whites in the race.

These examples suggest that in politics, at least, if whites are riding "an easy ski lift to the top," a lot of minority people must be pulling for them. Conversely, white losers like Sam Yorty may have cause to mutter about sliding down a "molasses mountain."

On another subject that affects all Americans but blacks especially, the president of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners recently made some pertinent and much-needed comments.

"The crime reports I see from day to day show that 75 per cent of crimes in St. Louis are committed by black criminals and that 80 per cent of their victims are also black," said Theodore D. McNeal.

"Whether or not we are willing to face up to the truth, the fact remains that crime — black crime is a noose, slowly but relentlessly strangling the St. Louis black community and every similar community across the nation."

While agreeing that there is some truth to the charge that racism is one of the factors in the increase in crime, McNeal added that "I am convinced that there are not and never will be enough police to reduce and control crime in our cities until and unless the black community becomes actually and actively involved in the overall war against crime."

Travel By Auto

Gasoline prices on a motor trip go up and down like blood pressure on a fellow with a faulty heart.

Yesterday we promised to let you in on just how much it costs to travel nowadays. Well, for eight nights away from good old Twin Falls the cost was exactly $266.35.

The vacation trip was to the Oregon coast, ending up at Waldport, which is on the Pacific Ocean just about half way between the Washington and California borders. It was not made as a mad dash but rather as a "look and see" situation at a relaxed pace. And now, the price breakdown!

We traveled 1,514 miles and paid $44.65 for the gasoline we used. The gas prices, as we pointed out, fluctuated. We got gasoline for 42.9 at Pendleton and for 36.9 at Albany while Boise came in with 44.9 a gallon. Lincoln City saw us paying 46.9 cents a gallon and that was the same price paid at Burns. One station at Waldport charged 42.9 while another a couple of blocks away charged 46.9. Trouble is, when gasoline is in short supply you don't shop. You stop at the first station you come to and hope they will fill your tank. Every station filled our tank with exception of the one in Albany which limited each sale to 10 gallons — and we only required at little over 7 gallons to fill.

Lodging charges took the biggest financial investment. We paid $18.54 (including sale tax) at Boise for one night, $22 at Bend for a night and $20 at Pendleton, also for a night. Best bargain was at Waldport (we stayed at the Cape Cod Cottages, right on-the-beach two miles south of Waldport) and paid $15 a night which included TV, a free morning newspaper, a picture-window view of the beach and the Pacific Ocean, a bath, front room, kitchen and bedroom. We furnished only our food; everything else came for the $15 a day. Total cost of lodging for the trip was $135.54.

Meals going and coming (and a couple around Waldport when Mrs. Spectator got tired cooking) plus groceries purchased came to $83.90. Dinner prices out came to a high $9.50 and breakfast high was only $2.70 — for two people.

Miscellaneous expenditures including postal cards, stamps, evening newspapers and the like came to $2.26.

The grand total, of course, could have gone much higher if we went ocean fishing or visited many other attractions. We didn't because we did most of that three years ago.

It would have been less expensive in a travel trailer or camper — but then the cost of the "outfit" ranging from a low of about $2,000 to a high of $7,000 has to be charged against something. Broken down over a five-year period that would add $400 to $1,400 a year to your vacation costs, even if you didn't move. So anyway any way you go you can't have your cake and eat it.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE:

Most people's financial problems are simple. They're short of money.

WE WONDER

We wonder, each year and with possession and or use of fireworks against the law, how it is so many firecrackers are exploded within the city limits of Twin Falls! Can it be that parents are unable to read? Is this why they purchase out-of-state fireworks for their youngsters or allow the youngsters to obtain them? Next time you hear a firecracker go, just remember there is someone behind it who is off key.

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK

Connally: Take Charge Mr. Laird

WASHINGTON — At a long and very private dinner in Paul Young's restaurant here outgoing White House consultant John B. Connally told incoming White House domestic czar Melvin R. Laird about some of his frustrations, then warned: move in fast and take complete charge.

Laird agreed that his first target must be to end the internal power struggles which still threaten the post-Watergate White House. The vacancies created by the forced departure of H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman are far from filled.

But an even more challenging problem, Laird and Connally agreed, is to reverse what they both regard as the incredible and dangerous flow of power from the departments and agencies and its concentration in the White House.

That power flow was engineered by Haldeman and Ehrlichman over four years with the obvious consent of President Nixon. Thus Laird's determination to reverse the flow of power, difficult enough anyway, may be made more so by the President himself. But even if Mr. Nixon resists, Laird's intimates say he is committed to returning power to the departments and ending what he and other politicians consider the most dangerous accumulation of raw and unsupervised power within the White House ever in peacetime.

Laird has now counted 68 White House aides who, at the start of Mr. Nixon's second term, were working directly under Ehrlichman and responsible only to him. It was that huge staff which gave Ehrlichman sole control over the entire domestic side of the federal government. He ruled it, both Connally and Laird discovered, with an iron hand.

Thus, Connally intimates have told Laird that Ehrlichman's ouster of James E. Akins as top White House staffer on the energy crisis was dictated by Ehrlichman's fear that Akins knew too much — that is, far more than Ehrlichman about the coming oil-and-gas shortage.

Ehrlichman saw Akins as a threat, one Connally insider told us. Ehrlichman wanted to run the whole show, and the President apparently wanted him to run the whole show. The result: a dangerously weak energy policy.

Trimming that swollen staff, back to a maximum of 30 aides is one side of the coin of Laird's problem in reversing the flow of power into the White House. The other side of the coin — convincing cabinet members that they must now start running their own affairs for the first time in the Nixon administration — is going to be harder.

Laird is now quietly visiting each cabinet department, spreading this alien doctrine to cabinet members and their top staffs. Don't send your problems over to the White House anymore; handle them yourselves. For some of the passive, obsequious yes men of the cabinet who were turned into limousine puppets by the Ehrlichman-Haldeman White House, the Laird order means trouble.

"Some of these guys haven't made a decision for months," one Laird lieutenant told us. "They've almost forgotten how."

Since he moved into the White House last Monday (June 18), Laird has been pounding hard on this theme: Stop shunting hard decisions off to the White House.

If Laird's scheme to reverse the power flow works, each department will gain influence over such matters as presidential vetoes of departmental bills, appointments to high office in each department and development of administration policy.

It means, in short, a power revolution within the Nixon administration, requiring almost as much change and perhaps as much time as normally occurs when one administration replaces another.

In addition, Laird plans other changes which could transform the White House from a dictatorial palace to a place where the President lives and the cabinet meets to help him make decisions. One such change, ending near total authority over middle-level personnel by single office in the White House. To supervise the more loosely structured, decentralized personnel policy he has in mind, say Laird intimates, Laird will put newly returned presidential aide Bryce Harlow in charge of post-Watergate personnel policy.

If Laird is able to make these changes, the result will be a profoundly new and improved tone throughout the second Nixon administration. If he cannot, Laird's tenure as domestic White House chief may be distressingly short.

RAY CROMLEY

No Seclusion

WASHINGTON (NEA) After watching Melvin Laird in operation at the Pentagon for four years, it is easy to forecast that with Laird in the White House, President Nixon will find it impossible to seclude himself with the yellow pad and pencil for interminable intervals, whatever his inclinations. One way or another, the gregarious Laird will get the reclusive Nixon reluctantly mixing with those men and women Laird believes essential to getting the President's job done. The bouezy, plitics-loving Laird will be a dominant figure at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. Already, Laird men are in key posts. William Baroudy, his legislative assistant in Congress and Pentagon aide, is now a White House political adviser. Mrs. Nixon's special counsel, Fred Bushardt, was a Laird-picked man at Defense. Laird has had the reputation of being one of the few men in Washington able to say "no" to the President, Kissinger, Haldeman and Ehrlichman all in the same week, and to make the "no" stick in each case.

Overall, despite exceptions, he had his own way in the Vietnam war. He ran the Defense Department with little effective interference. He came to the job on his own terms as a favor to Mr. Nixon and left at a time of his own choosing. Laird carries the heavy backing of the Republican party apparatus and the GOP bloc in Congress where he was long an influential figure. As never before, the President needs the help of orthodox Republicans.

Laird's congressional friendships go wider than the Republican minority. Witness this success with the Defense budget last year when military spending was not in high favor. By contrast, Mr. Nixon has faded miserably in his own relationships with the legislators. As for corruption and hanky-panky, colleagues tell me that Laird, while in Congress, was unwilling to trade his vote for what another congressman wanted in return for something he, Laird, desired — for his district a straight-laced attitude almost unheard of on Capitol Hill.

There's no question Laird's move to the White House will lead to strong staff in-fighting and an end to orderliness and quiet. There are bound to be serious White House tiffs as these strong men — Laird, John Connally and Treasury Secretary George Shultz — "try to mount one stool," each pushing vigorously his own views on bringing the economy into line.

Laird will be no domestic Kissinger. Though he's long had a deep emotional attachment to health, welfare, education and labor problems, some liberals find the conservative Laird more liberal than they; he does not have the same kind of expertise in economics, money problems and general finance that Kissinger has in the foreign field.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

The Doctor Says

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a severe case of colitis; and the third year of living with it almost drives me out of my mind.

The doctor tells me to try to adjust to it and live with it. I have taken every pill on the market, it seems. Last year I was in the hospital three weeks. I am on a bland diet.

The diet seems of greater importance than the medication, but I still can't decide what agrees with me and what does not. I run to the restroom 12 and 15 times a day. — R. R.

When your doctor urged you to adjust to it, I think what he was trying to say was that your emotional attitude has a lot to do with the trouble going on and on.

I grant that colitis isn't necessarily "all in your head," so you make use of diet and medication — but many a patient, if he can manage to turn his thoughts to others' things and not constantly dwell on how soon he's going to need the bathroom again, usually finds that his troubles dwindle. I suggest that you send 25 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for my booklet "Colitis and Kunder Complaints," but I also strongly urge you to try to change your thinking patterns. Or refocus your attention. Or whatever you choose to call it. It's usually necessary to do so in such cases.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son-in-law, 26, is bothered almost daily with heartburn and indigestion. He will vomit at times on getting up in the morning, and sometimes at other times of the day or night. He does not indulge in alcohol or over-indulge in food.

He refuses to go to the hospital for tests or even to a doctor. He knows I am writing to you. Four and a half years ago when he was applying for a job, one company refused to hire him because of a rupture. I wonder if that could cause the above trouble — Mrs. E. D. I can't see how the rupture would have anything to do with it — but I just plain don't understand why he doesn't go to the doctor and find out what is wrong. At 26, he could very well have an ulcer.

What are ulcers? How should they be treated? What can you do to help rid yourself of ulcers and stay rid of them? For answers, read Dr. Thosteson's helpful booklet, "How To Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep Them Healed." For your copy write to him in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Note to R. A. P.: Can't answer your question because you refer to "X-ray light" treatments. Are you sure you didn't mean to say "ultraviolet light?" To learn the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms, treatment, how to speed recovery — write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper for his booklet, "The Pesky Prostate," enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope to cover cost of printing and handling.

Summit called 'modest' success

By HEDRICK SMITH
(c) 1973 New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — So much have Soviet-American relations improved in three years that the harmonious summit meeting of President Nixon and Leonid I. Brezhnev in the last week is being taken as only a modest success, more important for promoting the climate of détente than for providing practical results. The meeting lacked the drama of Nikita S. Khrushchev's feisty barnstorming tour of America in 1959 or the visit to the Kremlin last year of that old cold warrior Richard M. Nixon, snubbed in years past by Moscow's rulers. It was held without the crisis tension of President John F. Kennedy's 1961 confrontation with Khrushchev in Vienna or even Nixon's 1972 journey to Moscow in the shadow of the mining of the Halphong harbor. It did not produce the substantial achievements of the Moscow summit meeting, leaving most of the hard bargaining on the toughest issues until later. Nor did it provide any serious diversion from this capital's obsession with Watergate. In fact, for all the exuberant salesmanship of Brezhnev, whose first American venture added to his international stature, this meeting seemed blandly routine, an interim matter meant more to push Soviet-American relations further along the track laid out in 1972 than to break now ground. Nonetheless, the second Nixon-Brezhnev meeting demonstrated that the sense of trust between the White House and the Kremlin has developed to such an extent and the political climate has improved so much that the two leaders dared to set a target, that may become a deadline,

Trade deficit back in May

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — The nation's foreign trade slipped back into deficit in May after a surplus in April, the Commerce Department reported Tuesday. The deficit, not a surprise in the current period of erratic trade movements, was $157.9 million. The amount was much less than in the extended period of heavy trade deficits in 1972 and the first two months of 1973, when the average was well above $500 million a month. However, the peaks of the May trade figures caused a drop in the dollar's value on the foreign exchange markets and an associated jump in the price of gold. The United States' foreign trade performance will be crucial to the trend of the over-all balance of payments, and hence to the dollar's exchange rate against other currencies.

Kissinger said planning trip to Peking in July

By GEORGE SHERMAN
(c) 1973 Washington Star-News
SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. — Presidential aide Henry A. Kissinger is reported likely to travel to Peking next month to explain to Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai the results of the summit meeting between President Nixon and the Soviet Communist Party leader, Leonid I. Brezhnev. During the proposed visit, according to information here, Chou may accept Nixon's invitation, made during his February, 1972, trip to China, to visit the United States. It would be the first such visit by any Peking leader, and observers believe it would give a further boost to Nixon's Watergate-dampened prestige. But White House officials firmly denied a Japanese press report Tuesday that Chou's visit was already under active preparation for October. These officials insisted that the Chinese have given no such indication yet. The Chinese premier had said previously that he would not visit Washington as long as a Nationalist Chinese embassy remained there. But that statement was made before the Chinese agreed in February to the establishment of "liaison offices" representing each country in Washington and Peking, and thus establishing diplomatic relations in all but name. In any case, a visit by Kissinger, the President's adviser on national security, in July is under active preparation, according to reliable sources. This trip to Peking would be the second since emergence of the "pattern of triangular relations" between Washington, Moscow and Peking.

Agnew 'bugged' by LBJ

By JEREMIAH O'LEARY
(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — The FBI conducted a secret investigation of Vice President-elect Spiro Agnew in 1968 on direct orders of President Lyndon B. Johnson to J. Edgar Hoover, according to a memo obtained by John W. Dean III from an ex-FBI official in February. Former assistant to the FBI director, William C. Sullivan, confirmed Tuesday that he supplied the information to Dean. The former White House counsel testified before the special Senate Watergate committee that Sullivan had alluded to the use of the FBI for political purposes in previous administration.

Dean said in his statement that President Nixon, hearing about these examples of political activity, had told him (Dean) to get this information from Sullivan. Sullivan told the Star-News that the FBI probe of Agnew, then the relatively unknown governor of Maryland, had turned up no adverse information as far as he could recall. Sullivan, who sent in his retirement papers from the Justice Department post of coordinator of national narcotics intelligence last weekend, said he had no reason not to talk to Dean in February and recalled that Dean at that time had not yet been implicated publicly in the planning of the Watergate bugging or the subsequent cover-up.

Few gripes heard

Jerome—Few protests were heard at a public hearing in Jerome Monday night over a proposed zoning ordinance for mobile homes.

The Jerome City Zoning Commission recommended to the Jerome City Council that the proposed amendments to the city zoning ordinance and regulations for mobile homes be approved with only one amendment, changed. The amendment pertains to the placement of double wide mobile homes in residential district 1-A.

The first proposal stated that a double wide trailer could be placed in the district, provided it had a minimum of 1000 square feet in area measured by outside measurements.

The amendment suggested requires that the 1,000 square feet would be determined by the certificate of ownership on the trailer rather than the outside measurement.

The proposed zoning ordinance establishes an additional residential district, 1-A, which is the largest district and encompasses most of the southeast section of Jerome, with the exception of one area by the city water tower which is designated Residential District 1.

District 1 areas are also located northeast of Jerome in the new subdivision area.

The third residential area referred to now as District 2 is mostly comprised of the area west of Lincoln Street.

Also included in the proposed zoning ordinance are some changes in the business and industrial districts.

Under the new zoning proposal, double wide mobile homes with the minimum of 1000 square feet, skirting with non-flammable materials with tongues removed and set on concrete blocks with a proper foundation, will be the only trailers permitted in Residential District 1-A.

No mobile homes or trailer houses of any kind will be allowed in Residential District 1.

Mobile homes of any size skirting with non-flammable material will be allowed in Residential District 2.

Also included in the proposal are livestock restrictions which brought a lot of questions from those attending the hearing.

Under the proposal, livestock will now be completely restricted from Residential District 1. However, horses, cows, sheep and goats will be permitted in residential districts 1-A and 2 if requirements listed in the ordinance are met.

The major protesters at the hearing were Mr. and Mrs. Terry Stewart, who felt there was no need for any type of zoning in the city. Stewart said that several other cities in the United States do not have zoning laws and have had no problems at all. He recommended that all zoning laws for the city of Jerome be dropped.

The zoning commission stated that their recommendation, which now goes to the City Council, does not list the present moratorium that has been placed on the placement of trailers on city lots within Jerome. It will now be up to the council to either approve or disapprove the commission's recommendations. If the City Council accepts the recommendations, a public hearing will be held before the new ordinances can be adopted and the moratorium lifted.

City building inspector Lynn Bingham said that he feels the non double-wide mobile homes that are now in residential district 1-A will be permitted to remain, but if they are removed they can only be replaced with double wides that meet the new requirements.

Manned launch aired

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union's chief cosmonaut, denying Western reports of recent Soviet space failures, said Tuesday there will be manned Soviet launches before the scheduled 1975 joint flight with American astronauts.

"I believe there will be manned experiments prior to the joint mission," Maj. Gen. Vladimir A. Shatalov said in an interview with a group of American correspondents. "I don't know how many."

The Soviet Union has not launched a man into space since three Soyuz 11 cosmonauts died in June, 1971, en route home from 23 days aboard the Salyut 1 space station. Soviet officials said their craft accidentally depressurized.

Western reports said the second Soviet space station, Salyut 2, launched last April, broke up in space after 23 days. Western experts said this cast doubt on Soviet readiness for the 1975 joint mission linking up a two-man Soyuz craft and a three-man Apollo.

Shatalov, 45, a veteran of three space flights, said there had been no "specific trouble" in training Soviet cosmonauts for the joint mission. "They are quite fit even now," he said.

He said he was not familiar with what Western newspapers had written but denied there had been any recent Soviet space failures. Of Salyut 2, he said:

"This craft this time was not intended for manned flight. The experiment was successfully completed and we are satisfied with the results."

He said Salyut 2 had a "much more narrow purpose" than Salyut 1, which had been intended to house several teams of cosmonauts. "It was intended to finalize some design peculiarities," he said.

"As soon as it fulfilled its task, it finished its existence."

He said American correspondents might be able to watch future launchings from the Soviet space center at Baikonur in Central Asia. But he said they would not gain much by doing so because they would not be allowed to go closer than four miles from the launch site.

GM urges delayed action

WASHINGTON (UPI)—General Motors urged the government Tuesday to delay implementation of 1976 federal clean air standards for reducing oxides of nitrogen (NOX) from automobile exhausts for one year.

Ernest S. Starkman, a GM vice president in charge of environmental activities, made the request at a hearing before the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), which heard similar pleas Monday from Ford and Chrysler along with warnings of increased fuel consumption if the deadline is not extended.

"Even though we have diligently sought solutions to meet the 1976 NOX standards," Starkman said, "we have been unable to develop the requisite technology to meet all the requirements of the law for 1976 models."

Starkman, like the spokesmen for Ford and Chrysler, asked for the one-year postponement so that Congress could review the 1970 Clean Air Act which laid down the antipollution standards.

The fuel consumption could be as high as 20 per cent more than that of 1973 models because of the need to further reduce emissions of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide to 1975 levels, said Sydney L. Terry, Chrysler vice president for environmental and safety regulations.

"It appears that the control of nitrogen oxide emissions combined with even greater control of hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide, extracts a disproportionate fuel penalty," said Herbert L. Misch.

Dean says Nixon telling untruth

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Dean III says he believes President Nixon did not tell the truth this spring when Nixon denied complicity in the coverup of the Watergate affair.

Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., pinned down Nixon's former White House counsel on the point Tuesday as the Senate Watergate Committee for the second day examined its star witness before a national television audience.

Montoya read from Nixon's April 17 statement in which the President said, "I condemn any attempts to cover up this case, no matter who is involved."

"Do you believe he was telling the truth?" Montoya asked.

Dean paused. "No, sir," he said. Nixon, who is in San Clemente, Calif., is refusing to comment on Dean's testimony. Aides said Nixon was not watching the televised hearings. One spokesman said Nixon's mood was "very good."

Dean, 34, acknowledged his account cannot be reconciled with Nixon's. He said he is willing to match his statements against the statements of others in lie detector tests.

"I'm very concerned about your credibility and whether it will be sustained or whether the President's will be sustained," said Montoya.

Dean replied, "Frenetic implications when I speak about the President but I have only one ally and that's the truth."

He said it dawned on him that while the cover-up story born in frantic haste in June, 1972 had survived the election, it was bound to come apart.

While he was courting his wife, Maureen, Dean said he told her that "somewhere down the road it's going to be a tough situation."

"At some point I realized it was the end of the line," he said. "I just couldn't continue it. I started swimming the other way."

He said he went to the federal prosecutors and offered to give his account of the coverup. At the same time, Dean said he met regularly with Nixon and implied to the President that he should put the full story before the American people, too.

Nixon did not take his suggestion, Dean said. He implied Nixon did not even understand what he was getting at.

At one meeting in March, he said: "I just kept shaking my head. The President kept saying, 'Do you agree with that?' I said 'no.' And then I said there was reason to believe that Ehrlichman, Haldeman and Dean were indictable."

"I felt I had not gotten the message I was attempting to convey through to the President." Nixon defended H. R. Haldeman, his chief of staff, and John D. Ehrlichman, his domestic adviser, in the April 30 television speech in which he blamed Watergate on overzealous underlings. Dean was removed from office that day, too.

In another instance, Dean said, he "explained to the President it would take perjury on top of perjury on top of perjury" to continue the cover-up. "I just couldn't do that."

Since April 30, Dean said, there have been steady efforts to discredit him.

He listed some: a planted rumor that he abandoned his wife and ran off with a beautiful foreign girl; a charge that he had accepted $100,000 in secret campaign funds; private investigators poking around stores where he shops; inquiries at his bank; questioning of friends and neighbors; a planted newspaper story that he wanted immunity out of fear his boyish looks would invite homosexual attacks if he were ever imprisoned.

All are "absurdities," he said.

Solons pass foreign military aid bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Tuesday approved a $770 million foreign military aid bill. The final figure was $540 million less than President Nixon had asked, but the Senate struck from the bill two provisions that the administration opposed.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., voted against the bill, saying it marked "the end of U.S. involvement in military assistance. We're pulling in our horns and I want no part of it."

The Senate voted to provide Jordan with $65 million in supporting assistance, which the administration had requested, instead of the $15 million approved by the Foreign Relations Committee. It voted $50 million for Israel instead of the $23 million requested.

The bill would provide $150 million in military aid to Cambodia but none to South Vietnam or Laos. The measure, however, does permit the United States to reequip South Vietnam with ammunition and weapons on a one-for-one basis under the terms of the cease-fire agreement.

The Senate, by voice vote, also added a prohibition against the transfer by other nations of sophisticated weapons, particularly jets, obtained from the United States.

The vote was 50-42.

Killed were a Foreign Relations Committee provision that would have phased out the assistance grant program over a four-year period and another provision that would have forced nations receiving grant assistance to pay 25 per cent in counterpart funds — money left for U.S. use in that country — instead of the current rate of 10 per cent.

The administration had opposed both provisions.

Watergate panel member considers impeachment

LONDON (UPI) — Sen. Daniel Inouye, a member of the Senate Watergate Committee, Tuesday said Congress should consider impeaching President Nixon if former White House counsel John Dean's testimony is substantiated.

In a television interview Tuesday night with the British Broadcasting Corp. (BBC), Inouye, a Hawaii Democrat, said of Dean's testimony in the past two days, which implicated Nixon in the cover-up:

"At this moment, if Mr. Dean's testimony could be corroborated I would say impeachment should be considered. But I would say this is premature at this time."

A BBC spokesman, releasing the transcript of Inouye's remarks, said the U.S. Information Agency (USIA) refused permission for the interview to be filmed in one of its Washington studios on the grounds that "it would not be in the best interests of the United States."

The program, in which Inouye answered questions from British viewers, was later broadcast from the Washington studios of a local television company, the spokesman said.

Inouye agreed with a viewer who suggested the President is, in effect, being tried in his absence by the Senate committee, although he may not have been involved in the Watergate affair.

"Even though this is not a court of law, 200 million people are watching this (the Senate hearing) and I would assume that in their minds they are now determining the guilt or innocence of the President and people who have appeared before the committee," the senator said.

"Therefore the President should be given the opportunity of presenting his case before the people of the United States."

Inouye said Nixon could do this by either appearing voluntarily before the committee or holding a news conference on the subject.

Army contacts deserters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army has sent letters to a third of its deserters living overseas saying it is prepared to kick them all out of the service, Pentagon records showed today.

The 677 men are all aliens who disappeared from their units more than a year ago. The Army reasons they aren't likely to return to the United States, where they could be prosecuted.

The discharge in absentia has been a rarity until now. Less than 10 a year were issued in the past seven years, the Pentagon said. They usually are used against aliens.

Each of the men has been sent a letter saying he may have free military legal help and present his case to a discharge board if he wishes. The letters say an undesirable discharge is recommended but a better grade of discharge may be issued. None of the 677 soldiers has been discharged yet.

The undesirable discharge is the middle grade of five discharges used. The two lower grades, bad conduct and dishonorable, deprive a man of virtually all post-discharge benefits available to the two higher grades, honorable and general. The holder of an undesirable discharge falls into a limbo in which the benefits allowed are determined on an individual basis.

"Most aliens return to their countries of origins and become full members of those societies," the Pentagon said in a written answer to questions placed by UPI.

"The likelihood of their returning to the United States is minimal."

France continues arms race despite agreements

RAMBOUILLET, France (UPI) — Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev assured President Georges Pompidou Tuesday his summit talks with President Nixon last week produced no U.S.-Soviet decision involving any other country.

"It was neither the intention nor the consequence of his summit with Nixon to take decisions on behalf of other countries," Elysee Palace spokesman Xavier Marchetti said Brezhnev told Pompidou after the two leaders met for more than three hours at the 14th century royal castle of Rambouillet.

As the two men headed today into a second day of wide-ranging discussions, French government officials said Pompidou intended to tell Brezhnev France was determined to continue building up its nuclear arsenal despite the U.S.-Soviet agreement reached in Washington to rule out nuclear conflicts.

The Nixon-Brezhnev nuclear pact caused apprehension in French official circles. Government officials attending the talks at Rambouillet, 32 miles south of Paris, stressed that France has every intention of proceeding with its nuclear arms production program in spite of the Washington announcement.

Marchetti said Brezhnev and Pompidou Tuesday also agreed to serious negotiations at the July 3 Helsinki conference on European security.

Marchetti said the two men "agreed that the Helsinki conference should be effective and concrete, but there was no discussion of an East-West summit."

Paris' view is that a decision on the 34-nation summit, suggested by Brezhnev and Nixon as a possible follow-up to the Helsinki foreign ministers' meeting, can be made only by all 34 countries involved in the security conference.

Pompidou went on national television Tuesday night to proclaim his talk with Brezhnev "positive and constructive."

Security prompted outlays

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — The nearly $2 million spent by the federal government for improvements on President Nixon's homes at Key Biscayne and here was for security, undertaken without Nixon's knowledge, his aides say.

The President did not request and was not aware of most of the improvements, including landscaping, according to Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren.

In response to questions about the outlays Tuesday, Warren said: "As you know the General Services Administration has made a thorough and detailed account of the work done dictated by security and security needs. The President was unaware of much of it. It was not done at his request."

Warren said the thousands of dollars spent on plantings were considered a "security item." He said the GSA "has gone all through this meticulously. Mrs. Nixon herself has done extensive work on beautifying the house."

The government has reported that major expenditures included $104,174 for electrical work at Nixon's home here, $57,582 for a block wall around the property and $132,852 for landscaping and landscaping maintenance.

Academy wants POW camp

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (UPI) — The U.S. Air Force Academy, which is seeking $244,000 to build a mock prisoner-of-war camp in mountain terrain near the school, has been operating such a camp since 1963.

Spokesmen at the military school, located in the foothills near 14,110-foot Pikes Peak, said the existing mock POW camp is located on two acres of land in the Rampart Range. It is surrounded by a chain-link fence topped with barbed wire and has one 20-foot guard tower.

The new federal funds would be spent mostly on building permanent structures to replace the tents now used.

"It will be considerably more realistic," said Lt. Col. Jim Jones, an Academy public information officer.

The Academy said at least three former American POWs would participate in the planning and training at the new compound. It tentatively is scheduled for construction later this year or early in 1974 on the northern part of the academy reservation.

Plans for the new compound have been criticized by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., who called the proposal a "ghoulish expenditure."

"The last thing we need is some half-baked Hand Hilton in the Colorado mountains where cadets can play psychological tricks on each other," he said.

The existing compound and facts about the training, conducted at the site are classified "for official use only." Cadets are instructed not to discuss the compound with outsiders.

The young Air Force cadets undergo about 40 hours of harassment, interrogation and indoctrination at the camp. They are not allowed to sleep during that period.

Dr. Louis Mutschler of Lincoln, Mass., a former academy staff psychiatrist, called the current training program "definitely traumatic."

Mutschler observed use of the camp during the summers of 1970 and 1971. He said it caused some cadets to temporarily become psychotic.

"They snapped out of it at the completion of the training, though," he said. "They came out of there with a clear understanding that they never wanted to be captured."

Mutschler said the mock POW training "was appreciated by the cadets as one of the few realistic things they underwent at the academy."

Dr. Lee Coleman of Berkeley, Calif., another former academy staff psychiatrist, said a doctor and medical technician are at the present POW compound during training. He said there had never been a serious injury at the camp.

Coleman said he had seen several cadets with "lots of lacerations" on their backs, however, and reported seeing one freshman in a state of semi-consciousness after apparently being kicked.

"The game was to get or resist giving a confession," he said.

New bills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, Tuesday announced he has introduced two bills to facilitate the adoption of Vietnamese-American orphans.

He said one bill would grant immediate citizenship to Vietnamese-American orphans, once adoptive parents have been approved by a licensed US adoption agency.

The other bill proposes that a new branch of the Peace Corps called the Vietnam Assistance Volunteers be established to allow volunteer Americans to work directly in resettling refugees and caring for war orphans.

Boise okays plan

BOISE (UPI) — Boise School District patrons Tuesday voted in favor of a measure to raise $225,000 to support a kindergarten program for five-year olds beginning this fall.

There were 4,631 ballots in favor and 3,612 opposed to the measure with Jefferson school results not reported.

The balloting ran 56 per cent in favor of the measure.

School officials said only three schools — Koelsch and Lowell elementary schools and South Junior High School — reported balloting opposed to the kindergarten measure.

The advisory election gave the school district officials authorization to implement the program for children whose parents want them to attend the kindergartens. The kindergartens will be located at most grade school attendance areas throughout the district.

Included in the amount approved by the vote was salaries for one kindergarten supervisor and 13 teachers. It did not include funds for transportation for the children to the teaching sites.

Andrus hopes Gem solons can remap

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus Tuesday said he hopes the Federal District Court will allow the Idaho legislature to redraw lines of apportionment next winter.

Atty. Gen. W. Anthony Park said an alternative to letting the legislature redraw the apportionment would be for the federal court panel to make the changes to bring the legislative apportionment into line with the constitutional requirements.

The US Supreme Court Monday by a vote of 7-2 said the apportionment with a 19.4 per cent population disparity between districts violates the one-man, one-vote rule.

In response to questions from reporters, Andrus said the court decision, because of the 19.4 per cent variance, "does not come as a surprise to me."

"I do hope, though, that the district court will permit us to reapportion ourselves at the next legislative session without ordering a special session of the Idaho legislature," said Andrus.

The governor added that "the court does have several options open for consideration and we will have to await their decision."

In invalidating the apportionment made by the legislature in 1971, the court remanded back to a three-judge federal panel a case brought against the state by Sen. H. Dean Summers, R-Boise, Dorris M. Blough, and C. J. Hopkins.

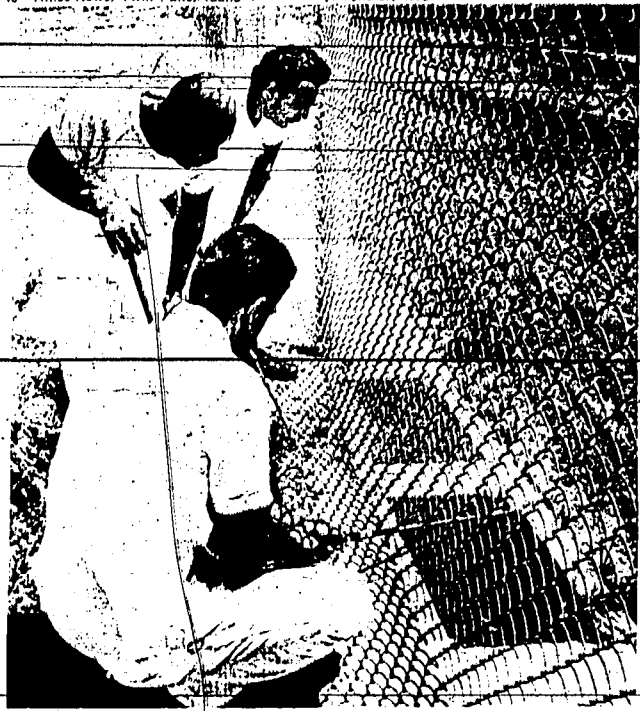

The panel, comprised of Circuit Judge M. Oliver Koelsch and District Judges Fred M. Taylor and Ray McNighols, earlier held the remapping to be constitutional. The plaintiffs then appealed.

"The three-judge panel will now be required to re-evaluate Idaho's reapportionment plan in keeping with the Supreme Court directive," said Park.

"In view of the fact that the next election of the Idaho legislature is not until 1974 it is conceivable that the court will defer further action until the next session of the legislature has had an opportunity to correct the defect," he said.

"On the other hand, of course, the court has the option to impose its own plan if it wishes to do so."

"In any event, it seems certain that the parties will be back in front of the federal panel in the not-too-distant future," Park said.

Reorganization project said arrogant by Demos

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon Administration's plan to reorganize the Forest Service and close offices in Utah, Montana and New Mexico was branded as arrogant, ridiculous, political and insensitive Tuesday by Mountain West Democratic leaders.

Comments at a Senate subcommittee on environment, soil conservation and forestry hearing included:

— Sen. Frank E. Moss of Utah — "the attempt to draw new boundaries for the Forest Service is not an organizational move but a political one...based on giving the administration more power, not on what is best for natural resources development."

— Rep. Wayne Owens of Utah The Forest Service plan

"demonstrates again this administration's insensitivity to the realities of people and resource policy needs in this country."

— Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana — "Unwise, ill-conceived and ridiculous." He accused Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz of "arrogance" in pushing the reorganization plan.

Under the reorganization plan most of the Forest Service operations in the Rocky Mountain area would be moved to Denver. New Mexico would come under the Forest Service regional office in Atlanta, Ga.

Referring to the New Mexico-Atlanta tie-up Mansfield said, "How this contributes to efficiency is extremely difficult to understand."

The Senate Democratic leader added: "Quite frankly, I am tired of having the management of our national resources dictated by the bookkeepers of the executive branch. These people are urban oriented in their thinking and unaware of the complexities of this vast country."

Utah's Moss hit the plan just as hard. He told the subcommittee: "It will lead to further control from the White House... The proposal to swing the Forest Service into the 10 standard federal regions is a phony. Several of the Forest Service regions would not conform with standard boundaries."

Moss said "it makes no sense" to have an agency manage natural resources in the same regional pattern as other agencies managing such things as welfare, housing and other civilian services.

Water hearing slated Thursday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, has called a hearing for Thursday to hear testimony from members of the National Water Commission on their final report to Congress, released earlier this month.

Church, chairman of the Senate Interior Subcommittee on Water and Power Resources, said the primary witness will be Commission Chairman Charles F. Luce, former interior undersecretary.

Church said the commission's recommendations, encompassed in a 579-page report, are "so broad — and their consequences, if adopted, so great — that congress should undertake the most thorough possible study of what is at stake here."

In 1968, Congress imposed a 10-year moratorium on any federal studies of water diversions between water basins in the western US.

Owens said that while he supports efforts to streamline government he strongly opposes the Forest Service plan because he cannot see how it will improve the agency's efficiency.

He said the administration conceived the plan without thorough studies into its efficiency and came up with a proposal "which is poorly constructed at best, and absurd at its conclusion."

Return ordered

BERLIN (UPI) — West Berlin ordered a 17-year-old girl returned to East Germany Tuesday to stand trial in the hammer murder of her father, the first such extradition case since the border was sealed 12 years ago by the Berlin Wall.

The decision by a West Berlin prosecutor came only one week after a reconciliation treaty between East and West Germany went into effect, recognizing the existence of two German states.

The case provoked criticism in West Berlin for both political reasons and out of sympathy for the girl, student nurse Ingrid Gerda Brueckman who fled to West Berlin last October to join her mother and her mother's second husband.

Zweifel fights charges

CHEYENNE (UPI) — A federal judge took under advisement Monday arguments on behalf of Oklahoma mining speculator Merle Zweifel, who is fighting the government on 1,500 contested mining claims in Wyoming.

Clement T. Cooper of Washington, D.C., who represented Zweifel and 300 other defendants, said a government civil suit to quiet title on the claims was an issue for the Interior Secretary, rather than the court, to decide.

U.S. District Judge Fwing T. Kerr ordered Cooper and Asst. U.S. Attorney Tosh Sayematsu to file supporting briefs within 10 days.

Zweifel's attorney sought to have Kerr grant a summary judgment and in effect dismiss the lawsuit aimed at invalidating the mining claims filed by Zweifel and others.

The 62-year-old Shawnee, Okla., man was not present for the proceedings. He is currently serving a six-year term in the Nevada Penitentiary on his conviction of mining law violations in that state.

The government's civil action against Zweifel and others seeks to void the claims on the grounds that provisions of the law in staking the claims had not been satisfied.

But Zweifel's attorney argued the government already possessed title and that it was not in question.

Protests presented

RUPERT — Nearly all testimony at an advisory hearing Tuesday night was in protest to funding methods for proposed street improvements near the county courthouse.

Over 70 people crowded into a meeting room above the City Council chambers to voice their opinions about the city's proposals for street improvements on the west side of G Street and on H Street between Eighth and Ninth, and on Eighth between G and H Streets.

Nearly 20 people spoke out at the meeting with opinion well divided for and against the improvements. Some protests were lodged against removal of trees from the courthouse and many requests were made for street improvements in other areas of the city.

City engineer Ron Klebe said the seven residents directly involved would pay about one-third of the cost of the improvement or about $821.66 apiece. The county, he said, would have to pay $5,542.30 and the city would pay $5,007.02.

Because of the limited area involved, the city decided to negotiate contracts with those involved instead of imposing an LID, city attorney William Goodman told the crowd.

"We felt if all, 100 per cent, of the property owners were willing we could negotiate contracts," Goodman said, saving the owners five to eight per cent of the projected cost.

Because the city has a right of way up to the sidewalks in the affected areas it "has the right to open that area for street purposes," Goodman said. The right of way hasn't been taken before, he said, because it wasn't needed, but now the council feels it is needed.

Several of those speaking requested extensions of the improvements so as not to cause a bottleneck on Eighth Street. Requests were made to extend improvements to the canal on Eighth Street.

Councilman Bill Strasser said approximately 3,400 cars travel that section of Eighth Street each day.

Lyle Taggart, 801 I Street, drew applause from the crowd when he said LIDs should come from the people and not from the city. Comments protesting the funding methods drew frequent applause at the meeting.

Ray Condie, 723 H Street, summed up many of the evening's comments when he said, "We need a good overall plan to improve our city," and the current proposal is not adequate.

Strasser told the group that the city must "take a look at priorities." The section of Eighth Street being considered is a bottleneck, he said and "we have to consider safety."

Councilman W. F. (Bill) Whitton, the only councilman who voted against the original LID proposal, said the improvements were "just a foot in the door. I don't know if the people are ready for it or if they can afford it."

Repair cable

MOUNTAIN BELL crew works to restore service to 800 subscribers after a main telephone cable was severed in a construction accident Tuesday. The cable involved 1,200 pairs of lines which had to be put back together by tone matching. Crews completed the work at about 8 p.m. Tuesday. (CN photo by Bonnie Baird Jones)

Phone service restored

TWIN FALLS — Service crews from Mountain Bell Telephone Co. worked nearly 12 hours Tuesday to restore service following the break in a cable on Shoshone Street.

Kenneth Mann, district manager in Twin Falls, said service was restored about 8 p.m. Tuesday night to the full 800 to 900 subscribers whose service was involved in the break.

He said because of the type of cable involved, it was necessary to match the lines by tone. Men worked in pairs with one listening for the tones on specific lines and another making the repairs.

The company was able to restore about 100 lines per hour with the first service restored about noon to the county courthouse and Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital.

A backhoe, working on improvement of Shoshone Street, severed the cable shortly after 8 a.m. Tuesday while tearing out a section of curb at Sixth Avenue East and Shoshone Street.

Blaine council approves contract

By TERRY CAMPBELL, Times-News writer

HAILEY — A contract covering provisions for the 650-acre McCulloch Properties Inc. (MPI) Woodside Development and nine initial plats was unanimously approved by the Hailey City Council Tuesday night.

The contract calls for MPI to provide an additional fire station and $350,000 for sewage treatment plant expansion.

Executing the contract were Robert P. McCulloch Jr., president of MPI; Wells (Brian), a senior vice president; Lawrence Heagle, mayor of Hailey, and Steven Clayton, acting city attorney.

Meeting prior to the special council meeting, the Hailey Planning and Zoning Commission voted to recommend to the council that final approval be given to the nine plats.

The plats encompass about 250 acres — about the west half of the development — and include 498 general residential, limited residential, condominium, apartment, duplex and commercial lots.

Contract provisions include the following: That MPI install a water distribution system in accordance with Hailey City and Idaho Department of Environmental and Community Services standards.

The water production program will begin this summer, and will be completed by Dec. 31, 1975, according to the contract. It would produce sufficient water service for an ultimate 4,400 population within the development.

That MPI will install a gravity outfall sewer line from the development site to the sewage treatment plant and will install the necessary pumping plant and pressure lines to deliver the sewage flow from the lower end of the development to the outfall line.

That, on recording the first plat, MPI will pay $20,000 to the city for engineering services toward sewage plant expansion.

According to the contract, the payment schedule for plant expansion further stipulates that Hailey will be reimbursed $350 for each lot platted, in seven equal annual payments of $50 each for the platted lots, beginning one year from the recording of each plat.

The contract states that if less than 1,000 total lots are platted, the $350,000 will be adjusted downward to equal the total recorded lots times $350.

That MPI, at its own expense, shall be responsible for snow removal on all roads within the development until the first snowfall of the winter following completion of the roads and their acceptance by the city.

That MPI shall provide, for Hailey's use, a fire station site not to exceed one-half acre in the development's park area adjacent to the proposed school site. The contract also states that MPI will construct on the site, or at Hailey's option on the airport property near the main entrance to the city business area, a fire station adequate to house two fire engines.

That MPI will donate a 20-acre school site to the Blaine County School District and when school construction begins, will provide road, sewer and water services to the property line.

Development may lower Blaine County tax levies

HAILEY — McCulloch Properties Inc., Woodside Development may cause a 4.5 mill levy reduction in Blaine County when completed, according to Max Yost, executive manager of the Associated Taxpayers of Idaho.

Yost reviewed the association's analysis of the development's impact on taxes during a Hailey Chamber of Commerce meeting Monday.

The analysis states that the development "will be a governmental fiscal benefit to the community" in that "the increased tax and revenue base will more than offset the increase in demand for governmental services."

Yost told the chamber, however, that any projected levy drop would be contingent on proper budgetary planning to meet future needs. Such planning, he said, was necessary even without the addition of the McCulloch development.

In response to a question by time between construction and realization of taxes, Yost said that the development, when recorded, would "immediately change from its present status to residential lots at a pretty high rate."

Yost said the association's analysis was based on the "assumption that the development was completed because of the 'many imponderables inherent in the 20 years of integration into the community forecast by the completion schedules of the proposed addition." Projections included an increase of the 1973 Hailey budget of $24,000 for salaries to $128,000 when the development is complete and an increase of the present fire department budget of $1,700 to $90,000.

Yost said the analysis did not take into consideration the "nebulous" factor of the increased business and economy brought by construction of the development.

MV accident injures four

FILER — Four persons were treated at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital today for injuries after two pickup trucks collided at a rural intersection near here.

Cpl. Elvin Albiston, Idaho State Police, said both vehicles were demolished.

The injured were identified as Charles (Gary) Bean, 42, Filer, who was treated and released, and Lyle (Jack) Alley, 52, Filer, and his two sons, Dwain Alley, 13, and Harry George (Buddy) Alley, 12.

Alley was listed in fair condition with a fractured pelvis and other injuries. Both boys are listed in good condition with minor injuries.

Albiston said the younger boy was thrown into an irrigation ditch with water about knee deep and probably would have drowned had not a farmer, Robert Blass, pulled him from the ditch.

The Alley family dog was taken to a veterinarian and reported in "good condition."

Officers said the 1963 pickup driven by Bean was traveling west on a county road and the Alley vehicle was going north when they met at the center of the unmarked intersection.

The accident occurred one mile west and three miles north of Deadman's Curve.

Tree planting set in Blaine

KINSEY CREEK — Slash and diseased Douglas fir trees were eliminated in preparation for a new planting during a controlled burn Tuesday near Kinsey Creek northwest of Hailey.

Aiding in the burn were the 30 member U.S. Forest Service inter-regional fire crew stationed at Big Smoky north of Fairfield, and the six-member forest service, Ketchum helitack crew.

According to Kent McAtee, Ketchum Ranger District fire control officer, the burn encompassed about 65 acres and also served as a training session. The operation, he said, would take about two days.

McAtee said the Douglas fir trees had sustained a mistletoe infestation. The parasitic plant, he said, attacks the cambium layer of the tree, pulling moisture and nutrition from it, resulting in stunted growth.

The timber stand was appraised and the lumber rights were sold to a private firm, which logged the area in 1965, McAtee said.

The fire control officer said the area will be replanted with Douglas fir next spring and that lodge pole pine, which is resistant to mistletoe, will be planted around the perimeter to prevent further infestation.

McAtee said the trees in the burn area were about 150 to 250 years old. The newly planted trees, he said, will be ready to harvest in about 90 to 100 years.

Controlled burn readies Blaine planting area

Turner hearing scheduled Monday

TWIN FALLS — A preliminary hearing has been set for Monday at 9 a.m. in magistrate court here for Sally Turner, 23, Kimberly, on involuntary manslaughter charges.

She is accused of shooting James Lee Dotson, 27, Twin Falls, at her home May 22. Mrs. Turner has been released on bond of $15,000 pending further court action.

Mrs. Turner is represented by Charles Brumbach, appointed by the court. Witnesses at the Turner home at the time of the shooting told officers Dotson forced his way into the Turner home east of Kimberly and engaged in an altercation with several other men in the house just prior to the shooting.

HANSEN — Delbert Mothershead, Hansen City marshal, has submitted his resignation to the Hansen City Council.

Applications for the position are being accepted at the city office or by Mayor Harold Miller Jr. Those interested may call the city office or Miller for more information.

Mothershead resigned to accept a position as a ranch foreman in Nevada.

CBS TV features Jackpot in news film feature

By MIKE ROBERTSON, Times-News writer

JACKPOT, Nev. — A major television network has "discovered" Magic Valley's gambling and recreation community, Jackpot, Nev.

Last week a CBS television film crew with network producer and correspondent Terry Drinkwater were in Jackpot filming a feature on the roadside gambling community for the CBS Evening News Show.

Drinkwater said CBS decided to shoot the news film feature after he had heeded many interesting comments about the community from several of his friends and a number of other people who had visited Jackpot.

This is the second story on Jackpot to be done by a national news organization this month.

Earlier in June the newspaper, National Observer, published an in-depth story about Jackpot and why it exists.

Drinkwater seemed instantly taken with and fascinated by Jackpot and its reasons for existence.

As the film crew toured the area and Drinkwater interviewed the people, he seemed continually intrigued with the idea that people would come from all over Idaho, Utah and Montana to Magic Valley's southern-most community — an unincorporated roadside gambling town — just to gamble, eat, watch western entertainment and play golf.

In the television feature, Drinkwater equated Jackpot with more famous Las Vegas and the way it sprang out of the desert to become the entertainment center it now is today. Drinkwater seemed to predict this same thing about Jackpot in the future.

He interviewed several persons at random simply asking

"Why do you come to Jackpot?"

With all the answers given the primary reason for most people to be in Jackpot was to gamble.

In making the film feature of Jackpot, the first of the three-man crew, Steve Lighthill, came to Jackpot early in the week to film footage of the area over which Drinkwater will narrate and describe what Jackpot's existence is all about.

His film coverage includes the airport, the golf course and living conditions of those who actually live in Jackpot. When Drinkwater arrived later on the film and sound crew then toured the casinos filming the entertainment, food service and people doing their thing at the gambling tables and slot machines.

Drinkwater said he is one of only two CBS network correspondents covering 14 western states for the network.

He said with such a large area for the two to cover, it isn't very often he is able to cover places like Jackpot.

Most of the population near the small gambling community probably take the existence of Jackpot for granted, Drinkwater said. Because of this they don't really understand how interesting it is to people in other parts of the nation who have no such place "south of the border," that exists expressly to snare people who want to gamble from all over the northwest.

Drinkwater agreed that most people in the area probably also take skiing at Sun Valley for granted where it is special enough to many other people to travel thousands of miles to ski world-famous Sun Valley.

When asked if he will make it on camera in reporting this feature, Drinkwater said half seriously and half in jest, "Of course, I'm a TV celebrity."

So goodnight Roger, from Jackpot, Nev.

Chicks killed

EMPLOYEES of a hatchery in Joaquin, Tex., dump baby chicks into a barrel to drown them. The order to kill the chicks was given due to the high cost of feeding them. (UPI).

Economy kills chicks

JOAQUIN, Tex. (UPI) — They are like little balls of yellow fluff that twitter and blink as A. J. Boyett removes the tops from their boxes and the sunlight spills over them. He tilts the cardboard and they slide into a 50-gallon barrel.

Box after box—430 boxes—into the barrels, 2,500 chicks to a barrel, 43,000 chicks in all, cheeping and fluttering and stepping on one another in their panic.

Then each barrel is shoved to the side to await the trip to a rendering plant in Tyler where they will be cooked, dried and ground and made into chicken feed.

"I spent hours back there with the machines. I set up several nights to make them hatch out 79-80 per cent and I'm on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week. You know how that must make me feel," said Boyett, a hatchery veteran. "I been with this man 12 years and this is the first time I've ever had to throw any into the barrel."

But Boyett was not the only man killing chicks Saturday in Texas, or even in the country. It was happening or would soon happen in Arkansas, Georgia, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, wherever eggs are hatched in large scale operations.

Hatcherymen say it will get worse if the price of chicken feed continues to rise. They say it is caused by the President's freeze on the price of chickens while prices on the raw agricultural products from which chicken feed is made, continue to rise.

"Just to show you what I mean, we used to buy a 75-ton hopper car of soybean meal for $7,000 to $7,500. Today that car costs us $35,000," says Madison Clements of Waco, Tex., who contracted to have the chicks hatched and then ordered them killed. "It's cheaper to drown 'em than to put 'em down and raise 'em."

"I think it's a pretty sad situation when people have to do this in the United States because of a shortage of products," said Dwight Hill, owner of Center Hatchery & Feeds where Boyett works.

"Back in the depression people was killing hogs and way back we killed cattle."

"Of course, the government was doing it for us then, but it's the same principle. The prices are so high we can't buy our own products."

Hill said he has stopped setting eggs and will probably dump 100,000 eggs or more Monday before they hatch unless the growers place them. He said he would not hatch any more until prices change.

Meanwhile, Boyett kept dumping the chicks.

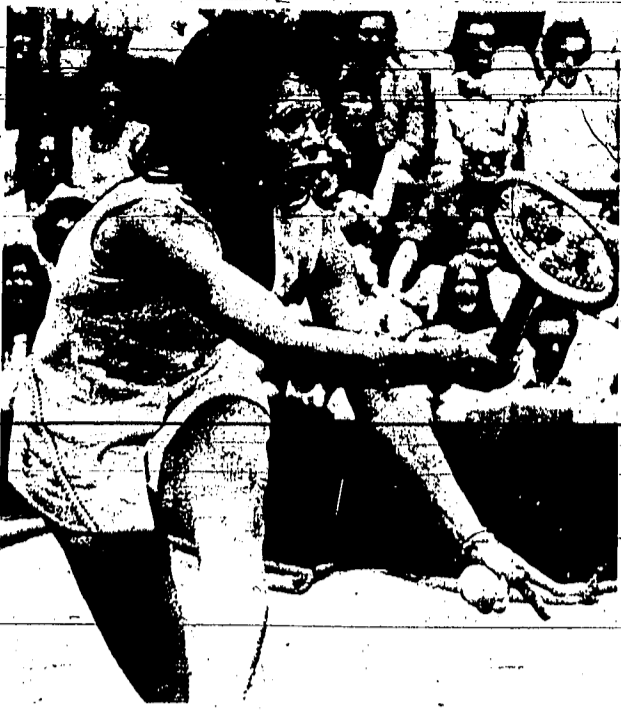

"They can't get out and when they go into the cooker it's about 200 degrees," he said. "It's kind of hard to just think about the people who could use them, who could have eaten them after they were nine weeks old."

Boyett was the only man dumping the chicks for the first hour and then he let a couple of boys help him with the barrels.

"I hope I can sleep tonight," he said. "I'd hate to say I will, but I hope I can."

Losing part of learning to win, Miss Evert says

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — The one good thing about losing is that it helps you win.

That's the gospel of Chris Evert, the Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., two-handed baseline expert and fourth seed in the women's singles of the Wimbledon Tennis Championships.

Not that the 18-year-old American No. 3 player always practices what she preaches. A rangy Uruguay girl named Florella Bonicelli can testify to that.

Miss Evert polished off Miss Bonicelli 6-3, 6-3 in her first match of the tournament Tuesday, and then said she was in better mental condition than ever to do well here because she dropped a few matches during the season.

Last year at her Wimbledon debut, Miss Evert lost to Evonne Goolagong after leading 6-3, 3-0 in the semifinals. Part of that defeat, she said, was due to pressure on her in newspapers and on television and nerves, resulting from her first appearance on the hallowed courts she had heard so much about.

"Now that I've lost a few this year," she said, "I'm feeling pretty loose."

Miss Evert said her new attitude was: "If I win—great. If I lose—I go on to the next tournament."

From that stance she refused to predict how she will do at the championships.

"The field is tougher this year than last year," she said. "Margaret Court is playing. Any seed could win. If I concentrate I could do well. As for winning...well, there's Billie Jean, Margaret and so on."

Miss Bonicelli's flat forehead spin bothered Miss Evert and she agreed that she had not played as well as might have been expected. "But I play better the more I play," she said.

Top seeds post easy Wimbledon wins

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Billie Jean King was all power and bustle on a day of lackluster tennis Tuesday as she led the seeds with embarrassing ease through the second day of the 87th Wimbledon championships.

Mrs. King, the defending women's singles champion who is seeking her fifth title here, reached the last 32 with a crushing 6-0, 6-2 win against Italy's top-ranked Lucia Bassi on center court.

In the men's singles, second seed Jan Kodicek of Czechoslovakia, third seed Roger Taylor of Britain and seventh seed Owen Davidson of Australia all reached the last 32 with routine straight-set victories over mediocre opposition.

The quality of the tennis did not affect the attendance, and for the second day in a row it strolled past Pietro Marzano of Italy 6-0, 6-4, 6-3 and Davidson ousted fellow Aussie Barry Phillips-Moore 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

In other first round women's singles, Marita Redondo, the 16-year-old from National City, Calif., overcame to defeat West German Katiya Ebingerhaus, one of the best looking girls in the tournament, 1-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Pro tennis players figure Wimbledon's done although turnstile still spinning

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — The first of the boycotting professionals to show his face at the Wimbledon tennis championships looked at the crowds in the courts and pouring through the gates and bravely predicted the golden flood would not last.

"Wimbledon might be able to stand it (without the professionals) for a year or two,"

said John Newcombe, winner of three singles and four doubles titles here. "But not if it goes on."

Instead, he threaded his way through the throng to center court to cheer on a friend making her first Wimbledon appearance. Newcombe is coached by Henri Lindo who also coaches pretty Dianne Fromholtz, a brilliant prospect only a few weeks past her 16th birthday and looking even younger.

Rangers to send No. 1 draft choice against Twins tonight

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — David Clyde, the nation's No. 1 choice in this month's baseball draft, opens his big league career Wednesday night for the Texas Rangers and his debut is expected to lure the largest home town Texas crowd since the franchise moved from Washington.

"I just want to get the ball over the plate, get by the first inning and not embarrass myself," said Clyde, the 20-year-old fireballing lefthander who threw nine no-hit games for his Spring Branch, Tex., high school before the Rangers turned him into a major leaguer overnight.

"I know I will be a little nervous. But I usually pitched my best games in high school when I was nervous and I had that adrenalin flowing."

Clyde will be sent against the Minnesota Twins and more than 30,000 tickets have sold for the occasion. The Ranger home crowd record is 24,000, set last year.

Bob Woods scored from first base on a scoring error in the bottom of the seventh inning Tuesday night to lift the Twin Falls Legion past Buhl 8-7.

Rozelle outlines program to curb NFL drug abuse

NEW YORK (UPI) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced a new National Football League drug program Tuesday, including the appointment of a medical consultant and the installation of a strict reporting program of all drug use by the teams.

Rozelle listed new programs supplementing the NFL's original program on drug misuse which was implemented over two years ago.

Rozelle announced his new program at a meeting of the club owners after reviewing the original policy adopted in March of 1971.

Under the new program, Rozelle will be able to discipline team personnel for improper disposition or use of drugs. He said that failure to comply with the reporting requirements would also result in appropriate disciplinary action.

Rozelle, though, did not recommend an urinalysis program, which the NCAA has installed on a spot basis for its athletes. The NFL Players' Association vigorously opposed any urinalysis program.

Rozelle's reporting program on the use of prescription drugs has four parts. These are:

1—The operating head of each NFL team shall be responsible for submission to the commissioner's office—by July 15 of this year, and by each succeeding Jan. 15 and July 15 thereafter—of a current inventory of all prescription drugs in the possession or under the control of team physicians or trainers.

2—The head of each team shall be responsible for submission to the commissioner's office, beginning on Aug. 15 and thereafter on a monthly basis throughout each full calendar year, of copies of all prescription drug bills received during the previous 30-day period.

3—The head of each team shall submit to the commissioner's office by Aug. 1 the details of the program he has developed to assure adequate reporting of his team's drug bills.

4—Investigators under the direction of the NFL's Director of Security will occasionally conduct spot audits to assure compliance with the reporting requirement as previously prescribed.

Among the original steps outlined by the NFL two years ago and in practice since were: the team physician was designated as having complete authority among all club personnel regarding the dispensation of any medication; immediate steps were taken to educate players regarding the impact of amphetamine usage; NFL security representatives discussed drug misuse during their pre-season, camp visits and club held seminars; clubs were urged to insert in their playbooks a memorandum detailing improper use of stimulants; and a sign detailing league policy on the use of forbidden drugs was displayed prominently in each training room.

Rozelle said that the head of each team is now responsible for reporting to his office any situation involving drug incidents among any personnel on his club.

A's top Texas on solo homers

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Solo home runs by Bill North and Joe Rudi, combined with a two-run homer by Rich McKinney, carried Oakland past Texas Tuesday night 6-2.

North broke a 1-1 tie in the third inning by slicing a homer into the left field seats off loser Jim Merritt. In the next inning, Rudi touched Merritt for another home run, this one carrying against the wind over the 390-foot mark three rows deep into the left-center field stands.

McKinney, who played basketball during the 1939-42 seasons at the University of Wyoming, cited his experiences as a collegian as playing a vital role in his rise to the top of the broadcasting industry.

Collegiate athletics gave me an education and people in the administration helped me get a start in my profession," he said. "It also taught me discipline and how to compete. Athletics forced us to learn to work with each other and gain goals."

Gowdy spoke at a noon luncheon where Ernest B. McCoy, director of athletics at the University of Miami (Fla.), was named to receive the James J. Corbett Memorial Award for distinguished service to intercollegiate athletics.

Gowdy says colleges fill discipline need

DENVER (UPI) — National sportscenter Curt Gowdy said Tuesday American youth is in search of discipline and collegiate athletics can fill that need.

"Today's youth wants discipline," Gowdy told 500 delegates to the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA) convention. "We are not giving it to them at home and the young people are turning to collegiate athletics. A college-oriented mind and competitive sports background will teach discipline, determination, humility, cooperation and respect, all items needed to succeed in one's occupation after college," he said.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Minnesota right-hander Joe Decker struck out 15 — a single-game high in the American League this season — Tuesday night and allowed the Chicago White Sox only four hits in pitching the Twins to a 4-0 victory as Wilbur Wood lost for the seventh time in his last eight games.

Decker pitched four batters in his 20th career start, allowing two runs and two hits.

McCoy, who has been at Miami for two years, was athletic director at Penn State for 16 years prior to moving to Miami. He left Penn State after reaching the mandatory retirement age.

Gowdy said he knew of many athletes who were thankful for the opportunities they derived from their collegiate educations.

O. J. Simpson told me once," Gowdy related, "that if it hadn't been for college athletics he'd probably be in jail." Gowdy said there were numerous other instances of young athletes who were saved by collegiate athletics.

Gowdy spoke at a noon luncheon where Ernest B. McCoy, director of athletics at the University of Miami (Fla.), was named to receive the James J. Corbett Memorial Award for distinguished service to intercollegiate athletics.

Twins pin 10th defeat on Wood

CHICAGO (UPI) — Minnesota right-hander Joe Decker struck out 15 — a single-game high in the American League this season — Tuesday night and allowed the Chicago White Sox only four hits in pitching the Twins to a 4-0 victory as Wilbur Wood lost for the seventh time in his last eight games.

Decker pitched four batters in his 20th career start, allowing two runs and two hits.

Reichardt leaves team during game

CHICAGO (UPI) — Outfielder Rick Reichardt, disgusted at the lack of progress in his efforts to sign a 1973 contract with the Chicago White Sox, walked off the bench and out of the locker room before completion of Chicago's game with Minnesota Tuesday night.

Reichardt and Mike Andrews have not yet signed their 1973 contracts and Reichardt, before Tuesday night's game, conferred with General Manager Stu Holcomb for about 20 minutes on his contract.

"We've reshaped everything from a-to-z," Holcomb said, "and there was no change in the position of either side."

Tanner said he would take no action against Reichardt unless he failed to show up for Wednesday night's game. Holcomb indicated he would give Reichardt "a little more time to decide what he wanted to do."

Reichardt indicated he would give Reichardt "a little more time to decide what he wanted to do."

"If we haven't heard from him after a few days, I'll try to contact him and find out what he wants to do," Holcomb said.

Muskogee, Okla. (UPI) — The U.S. Golf Association and Muskogee Country Club were ordered to pay a $25,000 judgment Tuesday to a spectator struck by a golf ball during the 1970 U.S. Women's Open.

Golfer Gerta Whalen Boykin was not found liable for the ball she accidentally hit into the crowd.

Mrs. Boykin testified Tuesday she did not know that Marcheta Sheets of Muskogee, a multiple sclerosis victim, had been hit.

Andrus, Church plan geothermal inspection

BOISE — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has invited Sen. Frank Church and the Subcommittee on Water and Power Resources to join in an aerial inspection of potential geothermal sites in southeastern Idaho on Aug. 10.

Sen. Church is scheduled to hold a hearing in Idaho Falls on the subject of geothermal energy that day. He has indicated he will accept the governor's offer.

In the letter of invitation to Church, Andrus said, "This will provide a unique opportunity for Idaho to demonstrate its interest and need for development of geothermal resources."

"I feel it would be both mutually beneficial for myself, the members of your committee, and members of the Atomic Energy Commission Advisory Committee on Geothermal Energy to inspect some of these sites before your hearing commences."

Andrus also sent a letter of invitation to Gerald Johnson, director of the AEC advisory division of Applied Technology, to stay over following a meeting of the AEC advisory committee in Idaho Falls on Aug. 7 and go along on the aerial inspection.

In both letters, Andrus pointed out that state agencies and others within Idaho have submitted proposals to the federal government for funding of various research projects into the use of geothermal energy, but that so far no agreements have been reached and no funds committed.

"At the present time, Idaho is interested in soliciting as much assistance as possible from the federal government in exploring any and all possibilities for use of this energy source which appears to be widespread throughout the southern half of our state," Andrus wrote.

Gruesome find

NEW YORK (UPI) — A group of children were playing outside a housing project in Brooklyn when a 14-year-old boy came by and took one of them, 3-year-old Darrel Roy, to a basement.

Soon afterward Wednesday, Darrel's 9-year-old brother came looking for the child.

The 14-year-old boy, police said, came out of the basement and told the brother to follow him if he wanted to find Darrel.

In the basement, police said, the child found his brother's body floating face down in a boiler room catch basin. A rope was around Darrel's neck.

The 14-year-old was charged with homicide. His identity was not revealed because of his age.

Park seeks consolidation

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's divisions to deal with criminal and civil law.

Atty. Gen. W. Anthony Park Monday suggested all legal activities of the state be placed under his office, through executive reorganization.

Park said it is "not only desirable but, in fact necessary" that all legal activities be handled by one agency.

"There can be no other logical choice to head up that department than the attorney general," Park told the reorganization commission.

Park advocated that the quasi law enforcement boards such as occupational licensing boards, architectural examiners, athletic commission, barber examiners, morticians board be combined under an Idaho Department of Justice.

The department would have

White willing to take the youth training center from the Department of Environmental and Community Services, the board was not in favor of merging with the DECS.

The corrections board warned that the personnel working in corrections might balk at such a consolidation.

also said it would be "compatible" to have the youth rehabilitation program consolidated with adult rehabilitation programs.

Nixonburger spoofs President, Watergate

NEW CANAAN, Conn. (UPI) — President Nixon suggested fish and agriculture Secretary George Schultz recommended cheese to housewives eager to beat meat prices. Now, some housewives are asking the two to eat their own words.

"They have compiled a cookbook with 42 varieties of 'Nixonburger,' including one from Donald R. Lowley of Winsted, Conn., which called for one teaspoon of Watergate to be added 'when no one is looking.'"

Lowley said the ingredients should be fried "in a bit of special interest oil. Serve on meatless days only, usually Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday."

His entry was the only inedible one.

The collection of recipes had its origin during the April meat boycott and followed the suggestions of Nixon and Schultz. The contest itself was sponsored by the New Canaan Democratic Town Committee.

The book is dedicated "To the man who has made meatlessness a way of life in America," says Mrs. Lester Brooks in the foreword of the paperbound recipe book. The cover features the President sandwiched in a bun with the words: "Let them eat fish, cheese, nuts."

Eight women put the book together and one, Marilyn Dereyna, did the drawings. The women particularly recommended "Dandelion-egg Nixonburger" and "Pecan Nixonburger," and the "Soy Polloi Nixonburger."

The book, containing hundreds of Recipes from Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Vermont, was introduced at "the great Nixonburger burnoff."

Mrs. Brooks said it was all well and good for Nixon and Schultz to suggest fish and cheese, "but why should it be the consumer who should be punished?"

The five winning entries were sent to the White House, but Mrs. Brooks says, "We suspect they were turned over to the bomb squad."

Vending machines target for Missouri mother's plan

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — A boy of about 10 muttered to himself and stared at the gumball machine near the front door in a grocery store. Sherman Swartz, a young housewife, recalled that she asked the child if something was wrong. They waxy his eyes were downcast she thought perhaps he had dropped something.

The boy replied that he put a coin in the vending machine. The device dispensed some trinket, but he wanted a cigarette lighter.

"I told him gumball machines don't give out lighters," Mrs. Swartz said.

"Then I looked at the machine and there were cigarette lighters inside. I couldn't believe it; it was so absurd. Why would anybody put such a potentially lethal device in machines used 99 per cent of the time by little kids?"

The incident more than a year started Mrs. Swartz, mother of a 2½-year-old boy, on a one-woman crusade to ban cigarette lighters in vending machines.

She visited other stores in the city and found many of them displayed banks of vending machines that sold bubble gum, plastic rings, miniature toys — and full-sized cigarette lighters. "One model," she said, "even has Mickey Mouse's face on it."

In the past year Mrs. Swartz has spoken in person or by telephone and corresponded by letter with dozens of store managers and city government officials. She also contacted senators and representatives on the state and federal levels as well as various federal agencies that regulate toys and commerce.

Mrs. Swartz cited statistics from the National Bureau of Standards showing that 28 per cent of accidental garment fires resulted from igniting matches or lighters. Children, particularly those under 10 years old, are most often the victims of these fires, the bureau said.

Although cigarette lighters sold through vending machines contain no fluid, Mrs. Swartz found evidence that sparks caused by lighters even without the fluid are sufficient to start a fire.

She showed skeptical bureau-aided newspaper clippings of the story of 6-year-old Elizabeth Belet of Des Moines, Iowa, whose nightgown was set afire by a spark from a fluidless lighter.

Doctors thought she would die from her burns. Thirty operations later, she can now walk again, but is badly scarred.

"One enforcement agency is the city license collector's office where Mrs. Swartz has become a familiar figure, Collector Benjamin Goins, who staged several heavily publicized raids on vending machines with expired license stickers, said he has no power to cart away machines simply because they contain cigarette lighters. He said he could similarly not refuse to issue a permit because a machine dispenses lighters.

The police department also cannot arrest someone for selling lighters through vending machines, according to the department's legal counsel, John C. Livingston.

"It would be absolutely unlawful for us to arrest anyone on such a charge," Livingston said.

He recommended civil suits for parents whose children might have been harmed by lighters obtained from gum machines. He further suggested that the city pass an ordinance outlawing such sales.

THE ROAR of motorcycle engines drowned out the ring of wadding balls as Mr. and Mrs. William Warren, Chicago, depart from church after they exchanged nuptial vows recently. Some 40 fellow members of the same club to which Warren belongs, thundered right behind the couple as they thrifted off into wadded bliss (UPI).

Program praised

SHOSHONE — Staff members at the Wood River Convalescent Center, Shoshone, are pleased with the new activity program, according to Mrs. Willa Carraway, an activity director.

Amy Eldredge and Ida Layne are working on a baby quilt for the activity fund. Mrs. Carraway said.

She said some of the residents have made Valentine plaques for all the others and wastebaskets have been made to replace outdated ones.

The activity director arranges some kind of entertainment at least once during the middle of the week she said. The Old Time Fiddlers are among the favorites of the residents. Home movies taken of various parts of the country by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kennison were also very welcome.

Mrs. Frank Lane, Mrs. Wesley Johnson and nephew, David Stone, played and sang old-time songs. Mrs. Ray Coles plays old-time songs on the piano during the school year. Ronald Jenkins, high school music teacher, brought choir members to the center to entertain residents.

Volunteers to visit, read, write letters and entertain are welcome at the center. Mrs. Carraway said.

'Furbearing' winter outlined

NEW YORK (UPI) — The ready-to-wear industry forecasts a furbearing winter for American women but furriers pledge that the skins used for the new season are not from endangered species.

"Furs in the new collections range from rabbit to sable," said the commentator at the recent industry-wide show. "But not the jaguar, the leopard, the tiger, the cheetah."

The latter named specifically are among the several furbearing animals that are on conservationists' endangered lists.

But some species are not threatened, the industry said. Ranch-raised mink and fox, for example, are plentiful and will cultivation of some such furs is big business.

"Don't feel guilty about wearing furs," was the message on a film clip that was part of the presentation.

"Wear your furs proudly," said Irvin Hoeft, president of the Fur Conservation Institute of America, representing all facets of the industry including manufacturers and labor.

"We deplore nothing, we pollute nothing," he said. "We produce beauty. We have become conservationists because the very product we use makes us conservationists. We firmly believe we must protect our natural resources. We will do all we can to enhance, to improve, to conserve."

Hecht told fashion reporters covering the show "ecology, environment, pollution...these words at one time were not part of our vocabulary. Now they are. We are not removed (now), not remote from the source...just the other day in Ottawa we presented a check to the Humane Society to develop a more humane trap."

The show itself did run the range from rabbit to sable, and in a retail price range from $500 (in the rabbit area) to $10,000 (in mink, sable and chinchilla).

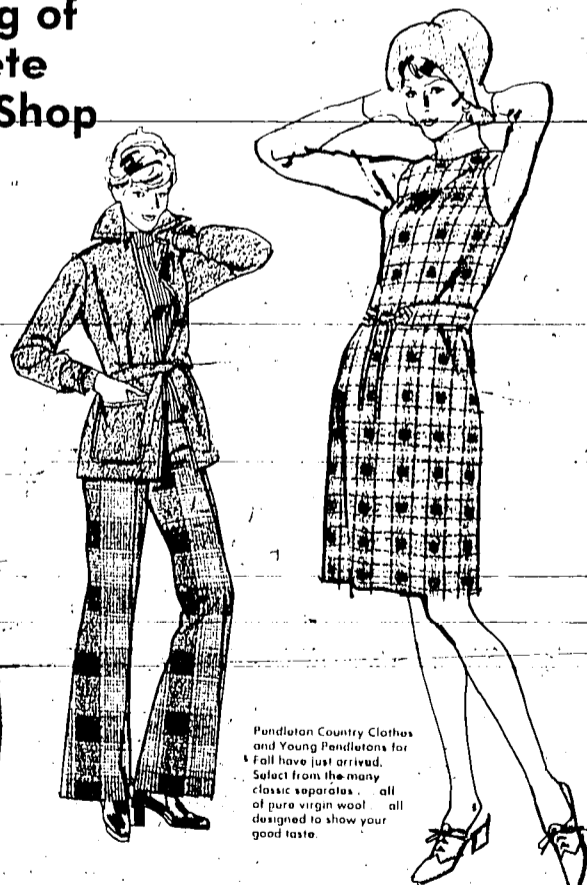

Gold may have been found in California as early as 1579 when Sir Francis Drake first explored the coast.

Practice set for fair

FILER — Members of Los Caballeros 4-H Club will practice for the fair at 7 p.m. Thursday.

President David Seaman said members have heard a lecture on horse manners and were given training instructions and demonstrations by horse trainer Roy A. Zebarth, Kimberly.

TWIN FALLS — Seven students from high schools in the west end of Twin Falls County have been awarded trustee tuition scholarships to attend the College of Southern Idaho this fall, it was announced today by Paul E. Ostyn, Director of High School Relations.

The students, all members of the 1973 graduating class have been outstanding during their high school years. Among the group are Brenda Meyers, valedictorian and Sandra Heaps, salutatorian, Filer High School. Also, from Filer High School are Ron Griff, voted outstanding high school wrestler in District 4, and Connie Allen, drill team president.

Randall Rector, Castleford, was the district FFA vice president.

Buhl High School recipients are Tammy Sue Carson, varsity cheerleader, and Shelley L. Van Ostran.

Mini Reviews

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Public Library officials have released mini-reviews for some of the new books recently received by the library.

"Frank Lloyd Wright" by Charlotte Willard. Here is the fascinating story of a college dropout at the age of 10.

"The Death of Attila" by Cecilia Holland. At the heart of this book lies the moving and dangerous attempt to build a friendship across every barrier of race and custom.

"Disease and History" by Frederick Cartwright. Here the influence of disease upon civilizations is traced, and we are warned that no less than other generations, we are vulnerable to widespread outbreaks of disease.

"Facing Life" by Oscar Handlin. The social history of young Americans on the threshold of life — a study of those crucial years in which youth leaves home.

"Blowing the Whistle" by Charles Peters. Whistle blowers are a modern variant of muckrakers. They are exposing corruption and mismanagement from the inside of government and corporations.

"Set the House on Fire" by William Styron. Almost overwhelming in its concept of the varieties of good and evil. Its characterizations are deep and relentless.

"Castle to Castle" by Louis Ferdinand Celine. The whole novel is crowded with a swarming mass of human beings, victims of one sort or another, herded together in the corridors of a dilapidating hotel.

"Call it Sleep" by Henry Roth. Literary critics have been calling for its re-issue since it was first published 25 years ago. It is the story of a little immigrant Jewish boy and his bewildered parents caught up in the slum jungle of New York City.

"Up Your Banners" by Donald E. Westlake. Oliver just can't get it through his non-wooly head that he is important enough to be the center of a controversy.

"Every Night's a Festival" by John Gardner. A story smelling of greasepaint, rich in well-drawn characters.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I desperately need advice. I can't consult a lawyer because I can't afford it. I am a 34-year-old expectant mother. The baby's father is married and has no intentions of divorcing his wife or acting as father to my child.

I have never been married. I know that what I have done was wrong, but I was so emotionally involved with this man that I wasn't thinking straight.

My baby is due in three weeks. I plan to keep it, but I don't know what to do about the birth certificate. The baby's father is urging me to leave his name off. He says he will be ruined if I use his name. He has suggested that I make up a name.

Please tell me what to do, Abby. If I make up a name I'm afraid the baby's father will be relieved of all responsibility for the support of his child, and that is not fair because he is well able to help me. (He hasn't paid for even a diaper pin so far.)

I am so alone and troubled. Please help me.
NAME WITHHELD

He rejects responsibility

DEAR NAME: Get in touch with your local Legal Aid Society. They will guide you. Make no decisions until you speak with them.

DEAR ABBY: What is my responsibility in the following situations? Mind my own business? Or stick my nose in and look for a punch?

Example: Tots (2 years to 6) are climbing on top of a convertible sports car and sliding down the back. Owner of car working, mother busy inside, the kids having the time of their lives.

Example: Three new homes being built and a sign posted, "Parents! Keep your children away from construction site," but the 2- to 6-year-olds are exploring the half-finished floors and calling to each other from the empty window frames.

Fun is fun, but danger is danger. I have youngsters, but I know where mine are all the time. Do I say something to the children or walk away? I've done both. The mothers shrug and the kids return.
MRS. N.C.B.

DEAR MRS. B.: You can't be a full-time self-appointed policeman, but you can continue to warn the children when they endanger themselves and urge their mothers to be more watchful. Structures in various stages of construction are considered "attractive nuisances" and every effort should be made [by the builder] to keep children out. Signs do not necessarily relieve the builder of responsibility.

DEAR ABBY: Last night my wife threw a tantrum because I wouldn't take her on a business trip with me. She smashed cups and plates against the wall, so I took her across my knee and gave her a good, sound spanking.

Now she claims I "beat" her, and she's suing me for divorce. Abby, she acted like a child so I treated her like one. Was I wrong?

How do you feel about husbands spanking their wives when they have it coming?
HURT AND ANGRY

DEAR HURT: I disapprove of physical punishment in any form. A "good, sound spanking" serves only one good purpose: It gives the spanker an opportunity to vent his anger. But I recommended a punching bag—not another person.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going to a psychiatrist of late, with moderate success, and then one day my mother made an appointment with him [for what reason I do not know] and went to see him, too.

Since then I have been totally unable to relate to him. Doesn't this seem to you like a divorce lawyer trying to represent both sides in a divorce?
WONDERING IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR WONDERING: Quit wondering and ask your psychiatrist.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 68766, L.A., Calif. 90066. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Boise miss, Neher wed in June rites

SHOSHONE— Marcy Lyn Valentine and Richard Glen Neher were united in marriage June 23 in rites at the Whitney Friends Church, Boise.

Rev. Robert Dean of the Piggler Presbyterian Church, Burns, Ore., officiated at the candlelight ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Carson Valentine, Boise, and the bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Royal G. Neher, Shoshone.

Preceding the ceremony Susan Neher, sister of the bridegroom, sang.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional white satin gown accented with a pinafore of embroidered organza. She carried a garden bouquet of pink roses, bachelor buttons, baby's breath, and stephanotis.

Her attendants were Mrs. Ron Broker, Lakeland, Fla., and Sue Billington, Twin Falls.

Charles Neher, Boise, brother of the bridegroom, as best man. Ushers were Alfred Kristal, Shoshone, and Steven Yowell, Salmon. Lisa Parke was flower girl and Jeremiah Kristal, nephew of the bridegroom, carried the rings.

Out-of-state guests were Dr. Clarence Neher, Baton Rouge, La.; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Neher, Ft. Bragg, Calif.; Mrs. Ross Ople, Fargo, N.D.; Mrs. Ron Broker, Lakeland, Fla.; Mrs. Pete Kasowin and Margaret Valentine, Grand Forks, N.D.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Valentine, Spokane, Wash.; Larry Schacht, Laramie, Wyo.; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Temple, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cagle, Leyton Jump; Tom Harpole, Dan Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Valentine, Susie Jones, Rick Hites, Robin Reece, Mark Dunn and Karen Spaulding, all Oregon.

A reception followed the wedding ceremony in the church parlors. Dr. and Mrs. Neher were host to the wedding party at a rehearsal luncheon at the Hillcrest Country Club.

The bride and the bridegroom are graduates of the College of Idaho.

They will spend the summer in Shoshone, where Neher is employed by his father. They will then reside in Portland, Ore., where Neher will attend the University of Oregon Medical School.

Grant given

BOISE (UPI) — A $200,000 grant from the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute will allow women in southwest Idaho to undergo examinations to detect possible breast cancer.

The project is the result of a grant awarded to the Mountain States Tumor Institute in Boise.

The grant, one of 20 awarded nationally by the American Cancer Society and the Institute, totals $200,000 per year for a two-year period.

Officials said some 10,000 women over the age of 35 will be given the opportunity to participate in the screening project during the two-year period.

Parents consent necessary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Supreme Court has refused to grant a stay of execution, that would allow minors in Utah to receive contraceptive information and supplies without their parents' consent, and it upheld the state's "Little Hatch Act," in separate rulings.

The nation's highest court said Monday it would not issue the stay order against a Utah Supreme Court ruling, pending an appeal of the question.

The court has on its docket an appeal by an unmarried 16-year-old Salt Lake City girl who sued the Planned Parenthood Association of Utah after she was being denied counseling by the group.

The unnamed girl won a ruling from Third District Judge Stewart Hansen, but his decision was reversed May 14 by the Utah Supreme Court.

The girl's attorneys asked that the state supreme court ruling be blocked pending the appeal, but the U.S. Supreme Court refused without comment.

The state court had said the girl could get the information she wanted by making an appointment with PPA and notifying her parents of it.

Noting that the girl wants to engage in sexual intercourse without becoming pregnant, the state supreme court said the association's program "is not intended to make strumpets (prostitutes) and streetwalkers out of minor girls."

That wasn't too much to ask, but there was a little problem of finding enough entries to dummy so that he could get two club discards without having to play more than two rounds of trumps.

South took his ace of clubs; led a heart to dummy's king; ruffed a heart with his 10 of trumps; led a low trump and finessed dummy's nine. This apparently unnecessary finesse was taken to give himself an extra trick entry to dummy.

South ruffed another heart. Both opponents followed and business was good. A trump to dummy's king brought down the last two enemy trumps.

Now South discarded his two clubs on the ace and six of hearts; conceded a spade trick and racked up the slam.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

"Who have been the greatest male and female screen stars of all time?" inquires a client Clark Gable and Greta Garbo, probably Now you know how old I am. Greatest here, please note, doesn't mean most talented. Just the most commanding romantic leads, probably.

Yes, it was in Australia where Dr. Margaret Raphael studied 825 lady laborers. To discover that those working girls who took The Pill were absent from the job an average of only 4.7 days a year while those who didn't take said medication missed 5.6 days a year.

Question arises as to why more are more lively than women to turn up their radios, TVs and stereos to a high volume. Nothing mysterious about that. Most women would prefer to talk. Most men would just as soon shut out the dialogue.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS

Q "Isn't it true you can mail yourself through the postal service in Great Britain?"

A Not anymore. For awhile there after World War II, the British Postal Service for sixpence per mile would send a postman with you to show you how to get there, wherever. But too few took advantage of this lancy social service, so it was cut out.

Q "Tell me, dad how come all manhole covers are round?"

A Because if they were square or rectangular, my boy, they could fall into the hole.

That young lady born under Virgo said to be the most feminine and delicate of signs, looks best in the color white, claim the stargazers.

The front foot of a rabbit always leaves their tracks behind, not ahead of the tracks of the back foot, got that? Figure about 5,000 Americans turn age 65 every day.

LOVE AND WAR

That bachelor and single girl are most apt to be attracted to one another if they possess similar virtues but opposite faults. For instance, if one were generous, it would be better if the other were likewise. But if one were hot-tempered, then it would be better if the other were not. Too obvious? Maybe. says a scholar who has studied love and war. Point is that in romance, it's not true simply to say that opposites attract nor that like chooses like. Rather, more specifically, he contends, like virtues choose like, opposite faults attract.

Suppose it's because a woman's lungs are smaller that she tends to sigh a little more often than does a man. Man's average is once every three minutes.

Seven out of 10 doves born this year won't live to age 1. Even so, they're the most common upland game bird in the country. Pretty prolific.

About 40,000 wedding rings are sold in Hungary about 50,000 couples get married there. Each year.

The education should be directed along such lines, but teach to specialize. Give as much spiritual training as the mind here will take. Religion could very well be a fine outlet. "The Stars Impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Voter lines to change

BOISE (UPI) — A federal court panel may redraw the lines of legislative apportionment in Idaho or may let the legislature do the job itself next winter, Atty. Gen. W. Anthony Park said Tuesday.

Park said these appeared to be the most likely alternatives in the wake of a U.S. Supreme Court decision that held Idaho's present legislative apportionment to be unconstitutional.

By a vote of 7-2 Monday the high court said the apportionment with a 19.4 per cent population disparity between districts violates the one-man, one-vote rule.

In invalidating the apportionment made by the legislature in 1971 the court remanded back to a three-judge federal panel a case brought against the state by Sen. H. Dean Summers, R-Boise, Dorris M. Blough and C. J. Hopkins.

Earlier, that panel — comprised of circuit Judge M. Oliver Koelsch and district Judges Fred M. Taylor and Jay McNichols — held the remapping to be constitutional. The plaintiffs then appealed.

The three-judge panel will now be required to re-evaluate Idaho's reapportionment plan in keeping with the Supreme Court directive, Park said.

"In view of the fact that the next election of the Idaho legislature is not until 1974 it is conceivable that the court will defer further action until the next session of the legislature has had an opportunity to correct the defect," he said.

"On the other hand, of course the court has the option to impose its own plan if it wishes to do so.

"In any event, it seems certain that the parties will be back in front of the federal panel in the not too distant future," Park said.

Girl Scouts raise flag in Jerome

Scout day camp held in Jerome

JEROME — Girl Scouts of Neighborhood 18-A began a week-long session of day camp Monday at the Jerome County Fairgrounds.

Junior Girl Scouts and Brownie troops from Jerome and Gooding are participating in five days of camp activities at the fairgrounds.

Cadet troops under the direction of Mrs. Nancy Kennedy participated Monday morning in flag raising ceremonies at the fairgrounds and were guests of the junior troops and Brownies for lunch.

The cadet 4 troop from Jerome and Gooding left the fairgrounds after lunch to spend the week camping at Scout Camp C. T. Roach on the Snake River.

This is the first time that the cadet troops have left the day camp activities and spent the week camping out. While at the camp the girls will learn camp skills and crafts to earn merit badges.

Planned activities include canoe trips, trail hikes and camp crafts plus learning how to cook on an open fire.

The junior troops and Brownies will spend the day at camp and return home after each day's activities. They also will learn how to cook out side and participate in different crafts and classes that will help them to earn merit badges.

The final day of camp Friday the cadets will return from the Snake River camp and participate along with the juniors and Brownie fly-ups in a camp out and bon fire Friday night at the fairgrounds.

Nixon shadowed Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House put Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., under surveillance during a 1971 trip to Hawaii but learned little beyond the fact that he played tennis there, according to John W. Dean III.

Dean also told the Senate Watergate committee Monday that the White House, in 1969, asked the FBI for information on the foreign travels of Mary Jo Kopechne, who was killed in Sen. Kennedy's automobile accident at Chappaquiddick.

Dean said the White House sent Anthony T. Ulasewicz to Chappaquiddick within six hours of the June 18, 1969, accident. He said Ulasewicz, a former New York City policeman who has testified in the Watergate hearings, posed as a reporter and "always asked the most embarrassing questions" at press briefings.

Dean said a report on Kennedy's August, 1971, trip to Hawaii was compiled for John J. Caulfield, also a former New York City policeman, who worked for the White House. Dean did not say who conducted that surveillance.

The report, Dean said, described Kennedy's arrival, departure and people he visited in Honolulu—all very routine. It said Kennedy stayed at the private estate of J. Otani, described as a "millionaire Democrat" and made no public appearances.

"Discreet inquiry determined that Kennedy used the estate solely for sleeping purposes, took only his breakfast meal at that location and quietly visited friends at other locations on the island," the report said. "It is known that he played tennis on Aug. 18 at the estate of one Lloyd Martin identified as a wealthy Honolulu contractor."

"An extensive survey of hotels, discreet cocktail lounges and other hideaways were conducted with a view towards determining a covert EMK (Kennedy's initials) visit," it said. "The results were negative."

Dean said Attorney General Richard Kleindienst instructed him to call Cartha DeLoach, then deputy director of the FBI, to obtain information on the foreign travels of Miss Kopechne and "to pass that information on to Caulfield."

He said H.R. Haldeman, then chief of the White House staff, requested in the fall of 1971, through aide Larry Higby, that Caulfield begin 24-hour surveillance of Kennedy and make regular reports on his activities.

Dean said Caulfield protested that this could be misinterpreted as an attempt on Kennedy's life and that the idea was dropped. But he said Caulfield was instructed to keep a general overview on Kennedy's activities.

Whaling committee approves proposal

LONDON (UPI) — The Technical Committee of the 14-nation International Whaling Commission today approved a U.S. proposal that would ban the catching and killing of whales for commercial purposes. The full commission takes up the proposal later today.

Conference sources said the committee approved the proposal by a straight majority vote at the end of a 3 1/2 hour debate this morning.

The sources said approval of the U.S. proposal by the full commission is far from certain, since a three-fourths majority, or 11 votes, is needed.

The voting in the Technical Committee was not disclosed. But one conference source said the debate was "long and hard and relatively bitter."

Chief opposition to the U.S. proposal came from Japan and the Soviet Union, the sources said. They said Britain, Australia and a number of other countries came out strongly behind the U.S. proposal.

Milk producers seek freeze lift on prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumers will find some dairy foods gone from retail counters and will be paying "wildly inflationary prices" later this year unless the administration acts immediately to let dairy prices rise, spokesmen for milk producers warn.

Officials of the National Milk Producers Federation (NMPF) told a news conference Monday they have asked the administration to lift its freeze on retail dairy prices and return to Phase II rules under which hikes in raw milk prices can be passed through to retail consumers.

Unless this is done, farmers will make further deep cuts in production because they are being squeezed between record cattle feed costs and the ceiling on retail prices, NMPF said. The current price freeze does not forbid increases in prices paid to farmers for raw milk, but NMPF Secretary Patrick B. Healy told newsmen the exemption for farm products is worthless because processors — whose prices are frozen — cannot afford to swallow any increases in farm prices.

Penal system fails

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Crime Committee said today the nation's prison system is an intolerable, archaic jungle, and it recommended changes to lower the high rate of repeat imprisonments.

"After a century of prison reform, our country has a penal system that is a dismal failure," the committee's report on correctional institutions declared. "The American taxpayer has been deluded into believing that our penal system provides treatment and rehabilitation for criminal offenders while it protects the public by keeping offenders incarcerated."

It said the FBI estimated that two-thirds of all offenders released from prison are re-arrested within four years. The report noted that during the 12 months ending June 30, 1971, taxpayers paid $1.5 billion to keep 400,000 prisoners in federal, state and local prison facilities.

"And in return for their money the taxpayers are the victims of more and more felonies 80 per cent of which are committed by former offenders," the report said.

The committee recommended that Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) funds be denied to states which fail to show "that every prison and correctional facility has an up-to-date riot and disorder control plan and that such plan has been formulated in concert with state and local law enforcement authorities."

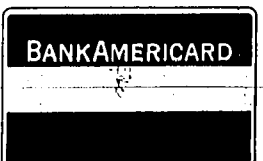

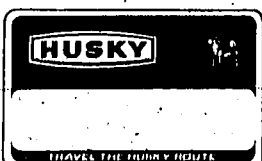

The committee also recommended a national prison ombudsman be established within LEAA, as well as state ombudsmen, unified state corrections departments and instructional aid in all prisons to help prisoners prepare themselves for better jobs after release.

POW claims filed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charges of mutiny, aiding the enemy, misconduct as a prisoner and failure to obey orders have been filed against two high-ranking former POWs by Rear Adm. James B. Stockdale, who was deputy commander of all U.S. captives in North Vietnam, the Navy said today.

Stockdale filed his charges against Marine Lt. Col. Edison Wainwright Miller, 41, Tustin, Calif., and Navy Capt. Walter E. Wilber, 43, Columbia Cross Roads, Pa.

Stockdale, 49, Coronado, Calif., mailed his charges to the Pentagon last week after deliberating one month whether he should file them. The charges arrived at the office of Navy Secretary John Warner Monday. Details were withheld until today so that Miller and Wilber could be informed.

In bringing charges against his fellow-POWs, Stockdale defied the wishes of the only U.S. captive senior to him, Air Force Brig. Gen. John P. Flynn, who was commander of the so-called 4th POW wing while in captivity.

Flynn said after his release he hoped POWs would follow a forgive-and-forget policy and refrain from charging fellow-captives with prison camp misconduct.

The U.S. government has said it will bring no charges against any former POW for anything done in captivity, but nothing can stop individual servicemen from filing court-martial charges under the military Code of Justice.

Both mutiny and aiding the enemy carry a maximum penalty of death "at all times," the Navy said.

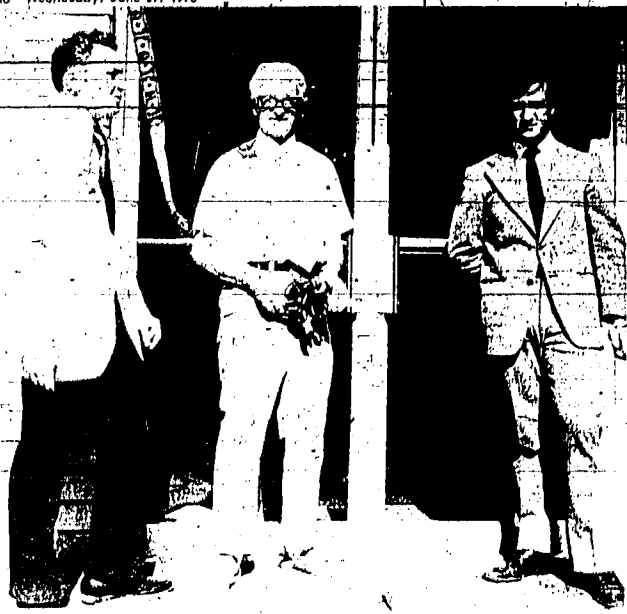

Stockdale's charges were the first brought against officers released from Communist prisons since the cease-fire. Eight enlisted men were charged late last month by Air Force Col. Theodore W. Guy with divulging prison camp secrets to the North Vietnamese.

Stockdale charged Miller and Wilber with violations under seven sections of the code.

The Navy said the violations alleged by Wilber included "Article 81, conspiracy; Article 82, solicitation; Article 92, failure to obey order or regulation; Article 94, mutiny; Article 104, aiding the enemy; Article 105, misconduct as a prisoner; and Article 134, cause and attempt to cause insubordination and disloyalty."

The Navy did not provide immediate details of the charges.

Miller is presently assigned to the U.S. Naval Hospital at Camp Pendleton, Calif. Wilber is assigned to the U.S. Naval Hospital in Philadelphia. Navy officials said both are at home on convalescent leave.

Viet battle shapes up

SAIGON (UPI) — A South Vietnamese division commander in the Central Highlands has given Communist forces there an ultimatum to stop their alleged offensive west of Kontum by Thursday or face a heavy counter-attack, field reports said Tuesday.

The reported offensive and the threatened counter-attack meant that the biggest battle since the cease-fire began five months ago could be shaping up.

Both the Saigon command and the international truce team confirmed that Brig. Gen. Tran Van Cam, commander of the South Vietnamese 23rd Division, had threatened to order wholesale aerial bombing and artillery shelling of Communist positions. Kontum is 200 miles north of Saigon.

A third source said Cam indicated he envisioned a heavy ground attack. The source quoted Cam as saying, "If they don't get out of there, I'm going to go in there and get them out."

UPI Correspondent Kenneth F. Engle, in Kontum, reported, "South Vietnamese military sources said the Communists started the battle on June 7 by moving across the Kan Ta river and capturing the village of Povel Krong, about eight miles west of Kontum, and a nearby hamlet."

"Intelligence reports say the Communists have two regiments—about 6,800 men—immediately west of Kontum," Engle said.

He said the Communists are reported to be building up, preparing artillery sites, bringing in tanks and trucks and, in general readying a major offensive.

Kontum "is very close to the tri-border area where South

'Fifth wheel'

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new expression "fifth wheel," is being added to the vocabulary of many American families who like to go camping in style.

The term identifies a new, super-size vacation trailer that's towed by a pickup truck. Robert L. Wallace, vice president of C.I.T. Financial Services, Inc., which provides instalment financing for recreational vehicles, says "fifth wheels equipped with all the comforts of home are among the fastest-growing segments of this market."

Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos meet," Engle noted. "If the Communists could capture it, it would give them a major city not far from their supply network."

"It would also put them in an excellent position to advance on Pleiku, the Highlands' military center 30 miles to the south."

The Saigon command said

General Calm issued his counter-attack ultimatum in an official letter to the Joint Military Commission, which is made up of the South Vietnamese government and the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG).

Patients get medicare

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An estimated 13,000 kidney patients will be eligible for Medicare payments beginning Sunday under the first extension of the health insurance program to persons under age 65, the government said Tuesday.

The Health, Education and Welfare Department issued regulations covering benefits to the newly eligible kidney patients at an estimated first-year cost of $250 million. HEW said 13,000 patients will be eligible by the end of this year and 8,000 to 10,000 annually thereafter. The order also freezes the number of eligible facilities at the current level of about 750 which provide artificial kidney services and about 235 which perform kidney transplants.

"In order to minimize any unnecessary investment of proliferation of facilities and resources, facilities approved to provide kidney disease services will be limited to those currently providing them," Dr. Charles C. Edwards, assistant secretary for health, announced.

HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said that virtually all persons under 65 with chronic kidney disease would become eligible for Medicare benefits, including payments for artificial kidneys and transplants.
