Natural wonder

today in brief

Record eclipse darkens Earth

NOUAKCHOTT, Mauritania (UPI) — The moon's shadow crept nearly halfway round the world Saturday in the second longest eclipse of the sun in recorded history, scientists said.

In this northwest African city, Moslem holy men called believers to prayers in the mosques and tribesmen buttoned their robes as temperatures dropped markedly from the 100 degree Fahrenheit average.

The eclipse, which lasted up to 7 minutes, 4 seconds, at its peak, started in Nouakchott at 4:39 a.m. MDT. Nouakchott was about midway in the path of totality from northeastern Brazil to the Indian Ocean.

Darkness fell swiftly as the moon moved across the sun, blotting out all but a tiny crescent.

Elated scientists in inland Chingettii reported winds blew up when the eclipse began, dispersing clouds which threatened to wreck their carefully staged observations. Said one scientific worker: "We can now do good work."

The belt of shade thrown by the moon spread across the earth from northeast Brazil, over the Atlantic Ocean and all of Africa ending east of Madagascar in the Indian Ocean.

A 161-mile belt of totality was edged on either side by an area of lesser shadow stretching as far north as France and Yugoslavia and south to almost the Cape of Good Hope in South Africa.

Bombing pact 'cemented'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress Saturday cemented its compromise decision with President Nixon to cease all U.S. military involvement in Indochina by Aug. 15.

By an overwhelming margin in the House and by voice vote in the Senate, the compromise was attached to legislation permitting continued federal spending after the end of the fiscal year at midnight.

It was the identical end-the-war amendment which was added to a $3.3 billion supplemental appropriations bill passed and sent to Nixon Friday night. Nixon assured Congress through House and Senate Republican leaders that he would sign both bills with the Aug. 15 termination date.

The compromise states that "none of the funds herein appropriated under this act may be expended to support directly or indirectly combat activities in or over Cambodia, Laos, North Vietnam and South Vietnam or off the shores of Cambodia, Laos, North Vietnam and South Vietnam by United States forces, and after Aug. 15, no other funds heretofore appropriated under any other act may be expended for such purpose."

Senate-House negotiators on the catch-all money bill designed to keep government agencies functioning at current levels until Congress approves appropriations for fiscal 1974 agreed on the language of the anti-war amendment.

But Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., who sponsored the amendment in the Senate, said it cannot see any substantive difference between the two versions.

"When I get down to it, I don't see any real difference as far as the objective, which is ending the war," he said.

The president adhered to a position of refusing to respond to Dean's charges "while the hearings are in progress." He decided against a personal appearance before the Senate Watergate committee. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler also said he did not anticipate that the President would submit a sworn statement.

Ziegler said Nixon would answer questions about Watergate at a news conference at some point.

Social Security boost approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress passed legislation Saturday to increase Social Security benefits for 30 million elderly Americans in mid-1974 and adopted several critical money bills needed before expiration of the current fiscal year at midnight.

The Social Security measure and one placing an Aug. 15 deadline on U.S. involvement in Indochina had the reluctant blessing of the White House.

Range fire 'out of hand'

SHOSHONE — A range fire nine miles south of Shoshone was burning out of control late Saturday night.

Bureau of Land Management public relations officer Mike Green of the Shoshone district office said the blaze had consumed about 3,320 acres of grass and sagebrush by 9 p.m. He said strong, gusty winds were hampering control efforts.

Green said the fire started along Highway 93, probably when an axle broke on a piece of farm machinery and shot sparks into the dry grass as it dragged along the pavement. Green said the fire started about 3:30 p.m. Saturday.

Green said there was no danger to homes, farm buildings or other structures at the present time, and he did not foresee any danger to structures. He said most of the fire was on BLM land with a small amount of burning on private land. No damage had occurred to livestock, he added.

The Shoshone district of the BLM had 35 men on the fire, Green said. He also said four tankers and one refill tanker which could fill from canals were fighting the fire.

In addition to the BLM crew, a private crew, made up mostly of ranchers from the Dietrich area, was battling the fire, Green said.

One spotter plane was being used, according to Green, but no tanker planes were called in. He said the fire was burning in a southeasterly direction.

$154,902 grant awarded TF

WASHINGTON, D. C. — U.S. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, Friday announced the Environmental Protection Agency has approved a grant of $154,902 to Twin Falls.

The grant will be used to finance preparation of construction drawings and specifications for a new secondary sewage treatment system.

City officials applied for the grant and for federal funding of the treatment facility in conjunction with new standards requiring secondary treatment of all municipal and industrial effluent going into the Snake River.

after Congress spent at least three days working out compromise bills.

The Social Security bill, which cleared the House by an overwhelming 327-9 margin and the Senate a few minutes later in a voice vote, provides a 5.6 per cent across-the-board raise in monthly checks, beginning July 1, 1974.

The raise would mean an increase from $161 to $170 a month for individuals qualifying for maximum benefits and from $277 to $293 for couples. An additional $36-40 would be withheld from the paychecks of workers earning $12,600 or more during 1974.

Both the House and Senate moved swiftly to complete action on the assorted bills in the rare Saturday session and then adjourned for a 10-day Fourth of July recess.

The legislation was flown immediately to San Clemente, Calif., where President Nixon was spending "working" vacation and expected to sign the bills.

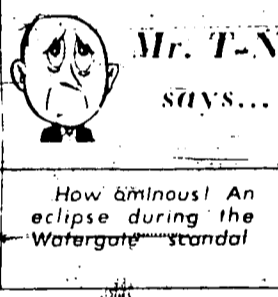

The same end-the-war language was adopted by Congress as part of another bill Friday night. Nixon has agreed to sign both.

In other swift developments: —Congress approved a bill extending the $465 billion national debt ceiling through Nov. 30.

The Senate voted 73-1 to approve a $19.2 billion appropriations bill to fund federal housing, science, veterans and space programs for the 1974 fiscal year. The House passed a different version and a conference will be required after the recess.

The Senate passed 61-1 a bill suspending import duties on brushes, but containing an amendment by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., to allow the agriculture secretary to lift price freezes on agriculture commodities which otherwise would be in short supply.

The Social Security measure was a compromise quickly fashioned by congressional leaders after the House voted late Friday to defeat the increases.

How ominous! An eclipse during the Watergate scandal

Economy message due
SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon will make a radio address to the nation today on the economy. A White House spokesman said the broadcast, which was taped at the Western White House Saturday afternoon, would be 15-20 minutes long. He said it would be aired at 10 a.m. MST on all major radio networks.

Onassis lauds dictator
MALAGA, Spain (UPI) — Aristotle Onassis, spending a two-day vacation on the Costa Del Sol, Saturday described Spain's Chief of State, Francisco Franco, as "the world's greatest genius, who has known how to organize a country like Spain and predict its future." Local sources said the shipping magnate has been looking into the possibility of investment in Spain's popular southern coast.

Nixon 'anguished' over bombs

(c) Washington Star-News
SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. — President Nixon is portrayed by close associates as much more "anguished" during the past week about Congressional efforts to cut off funds for bombing in Cambodia than over the airing of charges that he was involved in the Watergate cover-up.

As a political realist, he accepted the 45-day extension of authority to use appropriated money for military operations in Indochina as the best compromise he could make in a spirit of give-and-take with Congress.

He added that the effort to strip the President of his ability to conduct ongoing operations, would have jeopardized negotiations for a peaceful settlement in Cambodia just as "we are on the verge of bringing this thing to a successful conclusion."

"Innuendo, personal opinion and personal recollections." "Where was the bombshell," he asked, that had been predicted in Dean's testimony? "where was the firm, hard evidence of Presidential involvement?"

Skylab 2's crew ready for launch

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab 2 commander Alan L. Bean said Saturday his crew was trained and ready to take over where America's first space station astronauts left off.

Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma, scheduled for launch July 28, said they saw no hindrance to their 56-day flight aboard the orbiting research ship.

"I don't think there are any barriers at all at the moment," Bean said in a news conference at the Johnson Space Center.

Garriott said the astronauts plan to exercise a lot more in space to avoid the readjustment to "gravity problems experienced by the Skylab 1 crew of Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Wells.

"We've pursued a rather active exercise program for a good many months and it only reinforces our view that is what we want to continue to do when we're in flight," Garriott said.

Garriott said he didn't think the astronauts would have any problems after their stay in weightlessness which will double the world record time of four weeks set by Skylab 1.

"We fully expect to be able to walk out of the command ship normally and feel in good health and conduct our medical experiments," Garriott said.

"But I think we will go at it slowly and carefully and conservatively."

Bean said the Skylab 2 crew will meet with the first crew Sunday and Monday to learn what last-minute training they need before launch and what shortcuts the Skylab 1 crew used working 28 days in space.

He said the two teams of astronauts will work in the training vehicles Monday.

MH girls abducted

MOUNTAIN HOME (UPI) — Law enforcement officers in southwestern Idaho searched for two men of Mexican descent Saturday who are suspected of abducting two teenage girls late Friday.

Mountain Home Police Chief Nelson Olds said the girls, aged 14 and 15, were abducted about 10:15 p.m. but the girls managed to escape separately later in the night.

The girls told officers the suspects driving a black and white 1957 or 1959 model Buick pulled up to the girls as they were walking on a Mountain Home street and asked for directions to the airbase.

When the girls approached the car, a man pulled a knife and forced them into the car, the girls said.

The older girl told officers she was able to jump from the car as it crossed a railroad track. The younger girl was driven about 17 miles west of Mountain Home but escaped when the men's attention was diverted and she ran and hid in the sagebrush until the men left.

Olds said the girl then walked to a main road and got a ride into town, returning about 4 a.m.

US funds earmarked

TWIN FALLS — County Commissioners earmarked revenue sharing funds in the amount of $247,381 for various county programs prior to the July 1 deadline.

William L. Chancey said the funds were placed in general categories and will be divided for projects in those classification as needed.

Public safety was designated for $140,000, the largest single amount. In the allocation action, this will be largely for the reconstruction of the county jail where the county plans to add juvenile detention areas and generally improve and expand.

Another $20,000 was earmarked for recreation.

Chancey said this will be used for county park improvement in such areas as the Salmon Falls Dam recreation area where the county is already making additions of picnic, camping and boating facilities.

For the poor fund, the county used $5,000 and for financial administration $1,031.

Public health was budgeted for $15,000 which Chancey said will be in case additional money is needed for the improvement of a building for the health district.

The county also listed $50,000 for solid waste which will be used to improve sanitary landfill systems in the county. Another $16,400 was budgeted for airport improvements.

Wanted: blood

State, city, county all join in spraying project

TWIN FALLS — Cooperation between the State of Idaho, Twin Falls City and County will be solving a problem too complex for any one agency.

The three levels of government will join in a program to spray trees along U.S. Highway 26 north of the city.

City Manager Jean Milar said the state has no equipment for spraying the trees which are being infested and must be treated if they are to be saved.

The city has equipment geared primarily for weed spraying rather than trees.

The area is outside of the city so the city is not responsible. Together the agencies will handle the spraying early some morning during the coming week.

It was decided the city will furnish the equipment. It has acquired a large truck mounted spray unit capable of shooting a stream of insect spray to the top of the tallest trees. The state will furnish the manpower and the county will supply the chemical.

In this way, each agency will be contributing something but no single unit will incur any excessive expense.

Milar said the city is interested in the project even though it is outside of the city limits.

"We feel the trees should be saved as one of the remaining beautification features of the north entrance to our city," Milar said.

He said the trees are infested by elm beetles which attack not only elm trees but several other varieties as well.

Members of the Twin Falls League of Women Voters promoted the cooperative plan among the three agencies to accomplish the project, Milar said.

Milar said the spray operation will start early morning without wind and will work early in the day to avoid traffic problems.

TOPPER named

GLENN'S FERRY Mrs. Mildred Carnahan was TOPPER of the week for TOPS Id. 179 at the Thursday evening meeting in Greer Hall.

Nine weighed in, but mostly weighed in too much, with two members losing seven pounds.

TOPS had a total gain of 8 1/2 lbs. and a 3 lb loss. KOPS had a 4 lb gain, no loss.

Mrs. Ora Irving drew the Ha Ha box.

The July 5 meeting will be at Greer Hall at 7 p.m. with weigh-in at 6:30 p.m.

Refreshment

TWIN FALLS — Thanks to the Twin Falls chapters of the Odd Fellows and Rebekah, 4th of July travelers will be able to take a refreshment break.

Starting at 10:00 a.m. Wednesday morning, members of the two groups will be serving coffee, lemonade, and cookies to all travelers who stop at the rest area on the Interstate west of Twin Falls.

They are doing this as a community service to encourage drivers to stop and rest, so they will not become overtired by long distance driving.

The groups will also have literature on their organizations available for the tourists to read.

The State Highway Department is preparing signs to put up along the Interstate to let travelers know there will be special refreshments at the rest area.

Besides giving the traveler a chance to rest, the service will also undoubtedly give out-of-state tourists a good feeling about Idaho, and especially the Magic Valley.

Participation urged in Monday's blood drawing

TWIN FALLS — Honorary chairman, John Roper, has urged all residents who can to support the Monday and Tuesday blood drawings in Twin Falls and Filer.

The Twin Falls drawing with a quota of 165 pints will be held Monday from 1 to 6 p.m. in the Catholic Parish Hall.

On Tuesday the Red Cross bloodmobile unit will be at the Filer American Legion Hall from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. with a quota of 83 pints.

Roper said all of the drawings in Idaho this year will have increased quotas because of the growing demand for blood during the summer months. More traffic accidents and other emergencies seem to occur in the summer, he said, and yet many people are busy with vacations and other activities and are not as dedicated about blood donations as they might be.

He said in May the blood mobile visits showed about 100 less collections than for the previous May. A number of drawings in the past month have failed to meet quotas, leaving the blood center able to only partially fill orders for blood.

Roper emphasized hospitals do not need blood. Only patients need blood.

Robert E. Gaddis, administrator for the blood center, said only three bloodmobile visits in May achieved their quotas while three others were reasonably close. In May 1972, nine visits were over the quota and just one reasonably close.

If the trend continues, the center will not be able to fill all blood requests, he said.

Because of this situation, major drawings will be seeking a higher quota in July. The Twin Falls drawing quota was increased from 150 to 165 pints and Filer is also up slightly.

Twin Falls blood drawing in May produced 147 pints of blood, with a quota of 150. Kimberly drew 79 pints with a 100 pint quota.

The first permanent dwellings in what later became Philadelphia were built by immigrants from Sweden in the 1640s.

Landfills closed in area July 4

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls county landfills will be closed Wednesday for the July 4 holiday.

Darrell Heider, director of solid waste for the county, said sometimes the landfills were open on holidays, but "it doesn't seem right for employees to have to work on the Fourth."

The landfill for the east end of the county is located south of Twin Falls, and the one for the west end is near Buhl.

High Court: Steady As She Goes

WASHINGTON — These past two weeks have produced the usual end-of-term crunch at the U.S. Supreme Court. It will be a while before even the most diligent Court watchers can absorb the last-minute flood but this modest appraisal can be ventured: The Court is acting, in general, just as conservatives had hoped and as liberals had feared. It is a delightful state of affairs.

Under Chief Justice Warren Burger, we are getting opinions usually marked by stability, solid law, and old-fashioned common sense. This is better, in the long view, than the activism, judicial legislation, and high-flown theory we used to get under Earl Warren.

These characteristics could be seen on June 18, when the Court divided 6-3 on a couple of State reapportionment cases, one from Connecticut, the other, from Texas. The decisions (by Justice White) were in no sense monumental decisions, but they were typical of the good work the Court is doing in grounding the wild-blue flights of the Warren years.

In Connecticut, a State Apportionment Board came up with a plan that produced an average deviation of only 0.45 per cent in 36 Senate districts and 1.9 per cent in 151 House districts. The maximum deviation from perfect equality ranged from 3.9 per cent under to 3.9 per cent over. The State board sought deliberately to preserve the integrity of most of Connecticut's 169 towns, and it sought also to achieve a rough "political fairness" in terms of Democratic and Republican division. A lower court held the plan unconstitutional.

Representatives be divided into 90 districts that varied from the mathematical ideal by a total of 9.9 per cent. A lower three-judge court found the variation too great and threw the plan out. The Supreme Court reversed the lower courts in both cases. The six-member majority made it clear, as to State legislatures, that "relatively minor" deviations from perfect equality, up to a maximum of roughly 10 per cent, are not to be held violations of the Equal Protection Clause. Such variations will demand no particular justification in court. Larger differences "very likely" will demand judicial review, but as a general rule, the States are to make their own decisions and federal judges are to keep their hands off.

U.S.-Soviet Pacts Spell Gains

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Scientific agreements signed here during the visit of Soviet chief Leonid I. Brezhnev if fully implemented will result in important gains for both nations and be of immeasurable importance to the world at large.

Though the USSR in many ways is backward in this field, Soviet scientists have been doing excellent work in studying ways of moving ships through icebound seas — of great importance to the United States in transporting oil from the Alaskan North Slope, whether a long-distance pipeline is built or not.

nonetheless valuable for climate studies to fishing and other marine activities. The contributions of Soviet scientists in this field working with Americans should make possible eventually a more effective use of the seas for food, minerals (including petroleum) and other materials. Interestingly, the Soviet Union has made some important advances in oil drilling equipment and techniques.

Pres. Nixon Is On Safer Ground

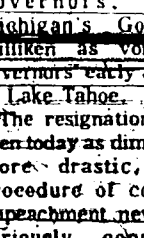

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Though expected new Watergate indictments have not yet been handed down and the Senate Ervin committee is just getting to major witnesses, the feeling spreads here that President Nixon is on safer ground than he was a few weeks ago.

Third, despite the polling evidence of impeachment, a good many veteran appraisers here think the Ervin hearings are already swamping the American people in confusion. It has become exceedingly difficult for even close watchers of the Watergate scandal to tell who did what to whom. Conflicts in testimony are rampant and perjury is obvious.

Shows to be involved — Mr. Nixon just may survive it all. Says one GOP source: "People can't take it all. It's a big amorphous thing." The hearings have become a kind of show-off you look sweet on the stand, you're OK. Think of Jeb Magruder (former Nixon aide). I thought they were going to pass the handkerchief around.

With the big business in the wings, the hearings may or may not take on a continuing, interesting life of their own. However that may be, the view grows here that — even if

The answer was clear: The Fourth Of July was sacred to the freedom won with the blood of patriots in the War of the Revolution. It stood for the triumph of the ideals set forth in ringing terms in the Declaration of Independence. Americans still hold these truths to be self-evident: That all men are born free and equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these rights are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and that to insure these rights governments were instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. But we have lost something of the almost ecstatic faith that was once American. That is a good thing for Americans to think about on the Fourth of July, 1973. The passionate conviction of the dignity of man and his right to liberty is still alive. If Americans hold true to that faith and the cause of freedom this, too, will be a Glorious Fourth. But there are many people — even right here in Magic Valley — who will look at it as just another day off the job, if, in fact, they get off the job at all.

Valley Economy Is In Dynamic Growth Pattern

By O. A. (GUS) KELKER
Editor, Times-News

Things are booming. Earl Haroldson, manager of the Idaho Power Company's southern division headquarters in Twin Falls, is convinced there is a dynamic pattern of growth for Magic Valley.

And it is a steady growth with a solid base of facts.

"Our economy in this area is growing at such a vigorous rate that we must have the best planning together with a wise use of our natural resources so that our quality of life can be maintained," Haroldson said in Twin Falls Saturday.

And, as a case in point, he puts forward as evidence the new irrigation load connected by Idaho Power.

Since September, 1972, the company has extended service to new electric irrigation pumps totaling 30,825 horsepower in the southern division. That compares with additional pumps totaling some 26,000 horsepower that were hooked up in the entire 1972 irrigation season.

And there are more new pumps, to come. Idaho Power's southern division office already has received applications for extension of service to proposed pumps that would irrigate several thousand additional acres beginning in the 1974 season.

Haroldson says the new pumps added since last September are providing water from deep wells and streams for more than 15,500 new acres and some 17,700 supplemental acres.

"Most of the new pumps are supplying water for sprinkler systems which do not result in runoff contributing to stream pollution," he says.

Haroldson points to many other significant signs of growth in the Magic Valley economy.

Among them is the fact Idaho Power extended service to nearly 1,885 new customers in its southern division during the 12 months ending May 31.

Of the new customers added throughout the division, 1,530 were residential, 205 were small commercial, 145 were irrigation and three were street lighting.

Leading the division's 10 districts in the number of new customers was the Twin Falls area, which includes, in addition to Twin Falls itself, Filer, Kimberly and the surrounding rural sections supplied from the Twin Falls service center.

A total of 683 new customers were added in the Twin Falls district during the 12-month period, with 598 of them residential, 80 small commercial and 16 irrigation.

The bustling Hailey district, increasing its customers by 570, showed the next-greatest growth after Twin Falls. More than 700 of the new customers provided with service by Idaho Power since May 31, 1972, were residential, 75 were small commercial, 21 were irrigation and one was street lighting.

Other districts in the southern division ranked this way behind Twin Falls and Hailey:

Jerome, 208 new customers; Buhl, 137 new customers; Gooding, 123 new customers; Wendell, 52 new customers; Oakley, 47 new customers; Shoshone, 43 new customers; Rupert, 18 new customers; and Hazelton, three new customers.

Hand-in-hand with the steady increase in new customers has gone a sizable boost in Magic Valley's use of electricity, which Haroldson sees as "one of the best measures of the state of the economy."

During the 12 months ending last May 31, Idaho Power's southern division customers called on its system for more than 1,165 billion kilowatt-hours (kwh) of electricity.

This use, according to division records, compares with the 1,045 billion kwh supplied to Magic Valley customers in the previous 12-month period.

"In other words," Haroldson points out, "use of electricity by customers in the division increased by more than 11.7 million kilowatt-hours in the year ending last month."

The utility's residential customers in the area alone used more than 351.6 million kwh of the total during the period — up by more than 27.5 million kwh from the previous 12 months.

Average use by Idaho Power's domestic customers in the southern division also climbed, providing still another sign of general economic progress and improving living standards.

In the 12 months ending in May, average domestic-customer use rose to 12,248 kwh from the 11,509 kwh that was the average for the previous 12 months.

Haroldson expects the steady growth in new customers and additional load on the company's system to continue.

Among major new customers he already can count on is Twin Falls' Rodeway Inn, a total-electric facility with about 700 kilowatts (kw) of load now under construction.

Others, in addition to new homes that will require extensions of service, will be the Sierra Life Insurance Company building, with about 300 kw of additional load, and the new K Mart, with about 350 kw. Both are under construction at Twin Falls.

Expansion by existing customers, too, will boost demands on the company's system.

Notable is the addition to Tupperware Company's plant at Jerome, now rising in an expansion that not only will double the facility's production but also will double its electric load to about 8,000 kw.

By the end of 1973, Haroldson also looks for the installation of pollution-control equipment by Idaho Power customers to add another 400 kw of load.

"Magic Valley's rapid growth, according to the manager, has taxed Idaho Power's ability to keep up with the demand for extensions of service to new customers."

"All of our own available manpower, in addition to contractors, is being used to supply service as soon as possible," he says, "but shortages of electrical equipment and skilled workers are contributing to the problem."

"We appreciate the understanding that new customers waiting for service have shown and hope they will continue to bear with us during this period of growth."

Editorial Compliment

Editor, Times-News: I hope you will again permit me space in your "Letters" column to compliment you upon the excellent editorial entitled, "Not A King," which appeared last evening, June 25. I think it is a remarkable and most commendable change in your editorial policy, as I have observed it over a two-year period, that you now so forthrightly and courageously demand that the president account for his obviously unconstitutional and illegal behavior in connection with the Watergate crimes, illegal campaign contributions, cover-up activities, and the like. You are entirely right in your observation that the founding fathers of this Republic intended to defend at any cost, against the chief executive's ever adopting kingly powers over the people. It would be more relevant to say "dictatorial powers," for most of us have no knowledge of kings and their behavior. We do, however, have daily knowledge of the actions and behavior of dictators, many of whom on the current scene, like Thieu of South Vietnam, Franco of Spain, and the military junta of Greece, both President Nixon and Vice President Agnew have gone far out of their way to express admiration for. But your main point is correct. Americans do not intend to surrender the control of their affairs to the selfish, misguided, and unconstitutional demands of any dictator — no matter how adroitly he wraps himself in the mantle of patriotism and national security. Uncontrovertible evidence is now before us daily that the actions of the man in the White House, no matter how cleverly he pretends that the gull is alone the burden of his undertakings, is guilty of misconduct of the most serious order. He guided, controlled, and promoted the whole illegal scheme to use the FBI, the CIA, and other government agencies for his own political advantage. My only quarrel with your editorial is in the remedy that you propose for correcting the situation. You suggest that perhaps the laws on surveillance, espionage, security information, etc. must be broadened to give the President the powers he says he needs. That sounds highly suspicious to me, and I would hate to see it happen. I think it would be a far sounder procedure for a President who has broken the law to resign, or be removed by impeachment. Then the republic would be in a position to deal more intelligently with the question of what laws may need to be changed. The founding fathers did include impeachment as a remedy against dictatorial usurpation of power. Let us use the constitution we have before fiddling with the laws that potential dictators find confining. William F. Pinkerton Wendell

Alaskan Pipeline

Editor, Times-News: The issue of which we're writing about is the pending decision regarding the trans-Alaskan Pipeline. Ostensibly, the most damaging aspect of the situation is to rush, undisciplined by facts and public opinion. The Senate Interior Committee has already authorized $1001, a general Trans-Alaskan right-of-way bill. A small but growing cadre of environmentally and consumer oriented Senators will propose a floor amendment requiring a one-year independent study of the situation by the impartial National Academy of Sciences. Those senators have our deepest respect, widely demanding a comprehensible study before any decision is made. They and we the citizenry — must seriously consider what lay in the balance: an obvious, admitted and irrevocable damage of the primitive and beautiful Alaskan environment. Those of us who are concerned for Alaska's future face one of the most powerful coalitions of economic and political interests going, consisting of the major oil companies, their financial backers, the Administration and other interests, to which the surgery of Alaska seems profitable. Initially the oil companies invested millions in equipment, camps, and Japanese pipe before weighing the alternatives. At that point we heard virtually nothing about an energy crisis. Now that their premature investment has temporarily gone stale, it seems dangerously comical that we are being barraged with the energy crisis idea. Be it true or false, their timing in releasing this "propaganda" seems not to be above question. A simple review of the facts to be considered would point to an oil route other than the proposed Trans-Alaskan. The oil route across Alaska would cross about 500 miles of the most active earthquake zone on earth, jeopardizing gross spillage and economic waste, the waters over which the upertankers would then transport the millions of barrels of piped oil are the most stormy and treacherous for navigation and at the same time the most biologically productive. According to Coast Guard studies, major collisions and oil spills will be a certainty. Compounding the error is the fact that the west coast is not the region in need of oil. The region from the Mid-West on east is the great industrial gut of America. The Canadians, who do not wish waters between Alaska and the West Coast U.S., are willing to help in a Trans-Canada pipeline, even to the point of supplying the U.S. with oil while any planning and construction is being done. The list of factors pointing to an alternative route other than the Trans-Alaskan goes on and on. If nothing else it merits an impartial study. We owe it to ourselves and our country to see that this is done. Write to your senators and congressmen — the hour is getting late. Editor, Times-News:

This letter is in response to an article by Marilyn Elliott of the Times-News staff in the Sunday edition of your paper, dated 6-24-73. Said article concerned itself with the possible passing of an ordinance by Burley of cats, necessitating a license fee and prohibit them from running loose in the city. Said article was the most blatant bit of balderdash ever written, much less run by a newspaper as a feature article with a byline. But Miss Elliott was "on the job" and just reporting some stupidity of another group of city fathers — for which she should be thanked.

Now to the stupidity — The fifth paragraph of the story relates the wisdom of how cats rummage through garbage cans. Well, in Gooding there is an ordinance which requires that all garbage cans must be securely covered. I imagine Burley has such an ordinance too. If garbage cans were covered sufficiently, no domestic cat alive would be able to rummage in them. BUT, most dogs would be able to turn said garbage can over and remove the top and rummage. Dogs are stronger and smarter at such activities than ANY domestic cat. Of course, an inadequately covered garbage can is rummage material for even the dumbest cat. That fifth paragraph also concerns itself with how dangerous a cat is when biting and scratching citizens. Cats bite and scratch when their dominion is invaded, or they are picked up and petted against their will. Cats do not run in packs, cats do not chase citizens who are riding bicycles on city streets, cats do not chase cars, cats do not chase and kill livestock and/or large wildlife, cats are not trainable as a dog is, to be a sheep dog or working cattle dog. Cats are also not "guard cats" as dogs can be trained to be. It is just as much some dogs nature to be trainable and/or untrained in the above activities as it is the nature of the cat to be free roaming and nocturnal. Dogs are sociable animals — cats are not sociable. I am not a dog hater. I like dogs — it is just inconceivable to me that people cannot state the real reason for dog leash laws — which, of course, are their instincts of pack running and etc. as stated above. Within the last month the Times-News carried a story about a pack of dogs in Wyoming that attacked several children. According to the story, the children were hospitalized with serious bodily injuries — there was no follow up to the story so that we do not know if the children are all right, or now undergoing Pasture treatments, or what. Cats don't do such things — I have never heard of cats in a pack — attacking and biting children, under similar conditions or any conditions. In Gooding, where the leash law became effective, dogs ran loose in packs and chased children on bicycles, knocked them off their bicycles and bit them. I know of cases to back up this allegation. Also many incidents of dog feces were found on my property. Now, dear editor and dear city council members, I don't know about you, but in my lawn work, I don't wish to shovel any feces, dog or otherwise. Cats dig holes and bury theirs which help to fertilize and loosen the soil. Dog feces and dog urine have been known to discolor lawns and destroy shrubbery. Cats dig holes and bury theirs, which of course, is part of their instinct, as previously stated. My lawn costs me money and time, I don't wish to have to clean it up after someone else's dog. Now, to reiterate — because I don't want a series of foolish letters from dog owners saying I love cats and hate dogs — I like dogs, and would never hurt one just as I would not hurt any living thing. I don't own any but only because I live in the city and have neither time nor place to own a dog. BUT the idea of saying that a cat is "bad" as a dog is ridiculous. IF the City Council is trying to raise money through the licensing of cats — I think they should say so. Tell it like it is, to coin a phrase. So, dear editor, this is all I have to say to the City Council of Burley — if you need income from the licensing of cats — admit it the fact and don't camouflage it with a collection of foolish statements. All Idahoans Wake Up

Editor, Times-News: Being a former Idaho resident (I was born and raised there), I enjoy returning to visit, sight see, fish, etc., etc. several times during the year. We just returned about one week ago from a trip to Island Park — Henrys Lake area where we went to fish. On our arrival, to our dismay, we discovered a sign at the entrance of the Henrys Lake camp grounds which stated the fee for camping for residents and nonresidents. The sign stated $1 per day for residents and $4 per day for nonresidents. Since I had come to the lake, I was really irritated to find that it cost $2 per day to fish and $4 to camp. It was most irritating to think that if I stayed 5 days, I would have to pay $20 for camping and $10 for fishing. Theoretically, a resident would pay for five days $15 for camping and $5 for a fishing license — plus state sales tax for his boat and the license fee to have the boat which would make the fee even higher than mine. What has happened to good old Idaho? What rationale is used to justify such an exorbitant fee? Why do you Idahoans let yourselves be taken for what the market will bear? Wake up Idahoans — defend yourselves! The point is, I feel since I came to Idaho, camping is incidental. I would not have minded nearly so much had I been required to pay $20 for 5 days fishing and $5 for camping because the extra money for fishing could have been utilized to help improve the declining fishing success. I've encountered in Idaho the past few years. However, since the whole problem is reversed I was very disappointed. I've always enjoyed returning to Idaho periodically. We generally spend $30 to $50 on gas, groceries, etc. etc. each time we return. But when I saw the new fee rates for camping, I decided I would not spend any more money for anything in Idaho except what was necessary for us to return to Utah. Since I have a truck with large capacity gas tanks, I was able to get back to Utah by spending only $1 for enough gas to get not across the state line where gas is cheaper anyway. We did not spend any more money for food, etc., as we normally would have done. I hope others will do likewise until Idaho comes to its senses and reverts back to a more realistic fee such as Utah's $2 per night — for everyone regardless of residency. I feel these fees are very unfair and I hope some of the Idaho residents will feel strong enough — as I do — to write their representatives about it. For, after all, they are being taken worse than we nonresidents since they already are paying state taxes for the very privilege they are paying $3 per day for each time they go camping in an Idaho State Park. I can stay in Utah away from Idaho and spend my money in Montana, Wyoming, etc., but you Idahoans are paying regardless of where you go. If any of you Idahoans disagree with my view points, please feel free to drop me a line. Chet Sanders 618 E. 640 N. Gretna, Utah 84067

Praise For Ray

Editor, Times-News:

I would like to take this opportunity to express my thanks to Twin Falls, for the wonderful treatment my wife and I received while in your city.

We had car trouble in Twin Falls while on vacation the first week in June but thanks to Mr. Ray Rostron and his wife Thelma our stay was made a most pleasant one.

Twin Falls can well be proud to have a Chamber of Commerce manager such as Mr. Rostron.

Being a stranger in Twin Falls, and being shown the sights of your city by Mr. Rostron and his wife, was more than we expected. But believe me it was greatly appreciated.

Also, we would like to thank staff members of the Holiday Inn in your city for making us feel so welcome. Again, our thanks. We hope we will be able to visit your city again some day.

Moving Van?

Editor, Times-News:

I would like to be placed first on the list to have the CSI plumber, horticulturist and work study students install a sprinkler system and rock garden at my home.

Dr. Taylor shouldn't object for we're not talking about a hell of a lot of money here. Trustee Hopworth should not be offended because the practice has been very limited. Surely CSI physical plant director McManaman will talk about this letter and he voluntarily does things he talks about.

And the College plumber says, "What do you think we are, a bunch of stupes." TOUCHE. P.S. I wonder if CSI owns a moving van? I. J. Ettinger Twin Falls

Draft ends; new Army begins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The military draft, a gloomy fact of life for a generation of young men from Korea through Vietnam, ended at midnight Saturday.

With the dawning of a new fiscal year, the President lost his authority to order youths inducted into the armed forces of the United States and the long-debated era of the all-volunteer Army became a legal reality, subject only to change by act of Congress.

The start of 1974 fiscal year also marked the birth of two new, 90-day experimental programs to attract more volunteers into the Army National Guard and the Army Reserve — the two branches of the military hit hardest by the end of the draft.

Both plans reduced the length of time a reserve or guard volunteer would have to attend weekend drills. The standard enlistment system calls for six months of active duty, followed by five and one-half years of drills with a local unit.

Sunday marks the first time since 1948 that the President has lacked induction authority, with the exception of a three-month period in the fall of 1971 when Congress temporarily allowed the draft law to lapse.

In actual fact, no young men have been inducted into the armed forces since last December. But the draft halt ordered last Jan. 27 by then-Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird was a voluntary move, made possible by a decrease in the size of the armed forces.

Although the draft has ended, the selective service system continues to register draft-age youths and holds an annual draft lottery. This provides a pool of men who could be called if Congress reinstates the President's induction powers.

Deputy Defense Secretary William Clements, in a recent interview with UPI, said he was optimistic the armed forces could meet their personnel requirements in the future without the draft.

"In doing this, however, we will have to make more effective use of the resources we have," Clements said. He specifically mentioned increasing the number of women in uniform and hiring more civilians to perform non-military jobs — a strategy that already is underway.

More bicycles were sold in the United States than cars in 1972, for the first time since World War I.

Gasoline fears 'soothed'

By United Press International

Four major producers Friday soothed fears of a gasoline shortage this summer by announcing they would be distributing more of their product to gas stations across the nation. One firm said it would be able to supply as much gas or more this year as it did in 1972.

There were warnings, however, that the current price freeze on all-but raw agricultural products would result in food shortages or higher prices once the ban is lifted.

In another development, soybean producers said they did not like this week's administration ban on soybean and cotton seed exports. Both are cotton feeds for poultry and hogs. Exports were banned in an effort to avoid the threat of food shortages.

"Even though the price of soybean meal has gone up from $3.50 a bushel to about $12, said James Wilder, executive vice president of the North Carolina Soybean Producers Association, only a small number of farmers who stored grain will be helped by the higher prices.

Ulbricht honored

BERLIN (UPI) — The Communist world paid homage to East German Chief of State Walter Ulbricht Saturday on his 80th birthday in a brief revival of the cult of personality that surrounded him at the height of his powers.

The Soviet Union and East Germany decorated Ulbricht. Congratulatory messages poured in from foreign Communist leaders and East German political and social organizations.

All six East Berlin morning newspapers printed his photograph on the front page. The evening newspaper, B.Z. Am Abend, bantered, "Hearty good wishes, Comrade Walter Ulbricht."

He predicted that soybean prices will be down when next year's crop is planted, and with seed costing $12, farmers will lose money.

A spokesman for Texaco said the company will allow retailers and wholesalers to choose between buying during June and July 10 per cent of the amount they bought during the same period in 1972 or 10 per cent of what they bought during any two consecutive months from January through May 1973 — whichever is greater.

JEROME — According to the Jerome North Side News, the bill for both student labor for a sprinkler system and a rock garden installed at the College of Southern Idaho president's home came to $348.40.

Friday's Times-News erroneously said the amount had been for installation of one of the projects instead of for both projects. The Times-News regrets the error.

Federal auditors have been at the college this week checking the books of the federal and local student aid funds which reportedly had been used on the projects at the President's privately owned campus home.

Or so gently

STEAIDYING himself with a cane, DAVID Watkins, North Madison, Ohio, carefully sits on a case of liquor in Miami. He was mulling 1,000 persons afflicted with a virus while on a Caribbean cruise aboard the ship "Skyward."

The cruise was cut short on the northern coast of the Dominican Republic Thursday morning when an intestinal disease doctor tentatively diagnosed as "shigella" swept through the luxury ship, striking nearly all the 720 passengers and about half the 300 crewmen with diarrhea, vomiting, cramps and fever.

The ship's captain decided to bypass the Dominican Republic and instead for Miami at full speed.

As the 720 passengers left the ship at Miami's Dodge Island seaport, their reaction to the cruise ranged from anger to good-humored acceptance of an "unfortunate incident."

"It was a seven-day nightmare," said Mrs. Nancy Glasscock of Fort Worth, Tex. "I'll never take another cruise."

But Mrs. John Malpas of Mobile, Ala., who celebrated her 10th wedding anniversary aboard the ship, said that "everybody became much friendlier" when the ailment began sweeping through the ship Monday after a stop in Haiti.

Illness sparks ire, jokes

MIAMI (UPI) — The 720 passengers stricken by an intestinal ailment aboard the cruise ship Skyward came ashore Saturday, some threatening lawsuits for the "seven-day nightmare" and others joking about the diarrhea epidemic.

Two passengers were ordered hospitalized. Public Health doctors, who boarded the ship shortly after it arrived here early Saturday said the two were hospitalized "just as a precaution against dehydration."

reporters after the 18 members of the NATO Council had talked for 40 minutes with Nixon and close to three hours with presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, said that the sessions were "very excellent."

Luns said Nixon told the group that he and Brezhnev had not made any private agreements that would affect the interests of NATO allies.

A number of meaningful answers were given to our concrete questions and were very much appreciated," Luns said.

Both Luns and Belgium's Andre De Staercke, the dean of the NATO Council, said part of the meeting was devoted to forthcoming negotiations on mutually reducing conventional forces in Central Europe.

The NATO ambassadors, in the United States for a tour of military bases, were invited to the President's home here so that Nixon could personally tell them their interests were not forgotten while the United States sought to better its relations with the Soviet Union.

Friday Night met with French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert for a similar purpose.

White House officials also described Saturday's meeting as part of the continuing consultations leading up to what Nixon has called his "grand tour" of Europe.

Nixon says 'no secret' deals made with Brezhnev

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon assured the ambassadors from NATO allies Saturday that he made no secret deals during his summit talks last week with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

NATO Secretary General Joseph Luns, speaking to reporters after the 18 members of the NATO Council had talked for 40 minutes with Nixon and close to three hours with presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, said that the sessions were "very excellent."

Luns said Nixon told the group that he and Brezhnev had not made any private agreements that would affect the interests of NATO allies.

A number of meaningful answers were given to our concrete questions and were very much appreciated," Luns said.

Both Luns and Belgium's Andre De Staercke, the dean of the NATO Council, said part of the meeting was devoted to forthcoming negotiations on mutually reducing conventional forces in Central Europe.

The NATO ambassadors, in the United States for a tour of military bases, were invited to the President's home here so that Nixon could personally tell them their interests were not forgotten while the United States sought to better its relations with the Soviet Union.

Friday Night met with French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert for a similar purpose.

White House officials also described Saturday's meeting as part of the continuing consultations leading up to what Nixon has called his "grand tour" of Europe.

McDermott appeal hit

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — A group seeking the recall of Rep. Patricia McDermott Friday argued that a new set of signatures will be gathered if she appeals a fourth district court decision that allows recall petitions against her stand.

Mike Dunnam, Pocatello, said the group considers the appeal possibility a stall tactic. He said a delay of the case could bring a possible recall election in September when college students in the district have returned for classes.

He said the group plans to use new petition forms approved by Attorney General W. Anthony Park and Secretary of State Pete T. Cennarus so there would be no technical dividduties a second time around.

White House officials also described Saturday's meeting as part of the continuing consultations leading up to what Nixon has called his "grand tour" of Europe.

Revolt costs Chile media

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — The army censored newspapers Saturday and closed seven opposition radio stations in the aftermath of an aborted military revolt against President Salvador Allende.

Military officials censored accounts of the rebellion by the 2nd Armored Division, outside the presidential palace Friday in which at least six persons were shot to death and 39 wounded.

The opposition newspaper El Mercurio appeared with several blank spaces on its front page. The newspaper said in a front page box that it had been censored by the military. Gen. Mario Sepulveda, commander of the Santiago emergency zone, established the censorship in a decree in which he also banned "all commentary" in the press on the uprising.

The emergency zone was declared Wednesday, after what the government described as an attempt to assassinate the army's commander-in-chief, Gen. Carlos Prats.

The army closed the seven radio stations indefinitely for refusing to join a national network that broadcast an Allende speech Friday night.

The stations are owned or controlled by political elements opposed to Allende's leftist coalition government.

Meanwhile Interior Minister Gerardo Fajnzon and Justice Minister Sergio Jorjuna stormed out of a Chamber of Deputies session when opposition legislators booted the government's request to declare martial law for 90 days.

The presidential palace area, a no-man's land during the battle with tanks and bazookas, was crowded with sightseers, who examined and photographed damaged government buildings.

Many palace windows were boarded up and shards of glass were heaped on the pavement.

Uruguayan union leaders arrested

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI) — The Uruguayan government used armed troops Saturday to break up a general strike protesting the closing of Congress and ordered the country's largest labor organization disbanded and its leaders arrested.

Police, marine and army units cleared factories, banks, public offices and the central Uruguayan refineries of workers who had defied a Saturday morning ultimatum deadline to stop the strike and leave the occupied buildings.

At the same time the army-controlled national radio and television announced the action against the half-million member National Workers' Conference (CNT).

The government decree also called for confiscation of all property of the CNT which called a general strike Wednesday when President Juan Maria Bordaberry closed both houses of Congress after they refused to impeach a leftist senator who the military wanted to arrest for maintaining contacts with Tupamaro guerrillas. Soldiers immediately raided the CNT headquarters near the government house confiscating records and arresting union men. A CNT source said, however, that the organization had contingency plans for such a situation and its leadership will continue functioning underground.

The government decree Saturday said "all union leaders or members who participated in the illegal strike will be submitted to criminal justice."

Police van sirens sounded through the otherwise vacant streets of downtown Montevideo as police broke up strikes and worker sit-ins. Bordaberry's Interior Ministry warned Friday night that the strike would be broken and basic commodities supplied "at all costs." It backed up the threat by sending armed soldiers to surround the strike sites.

The strikes had left the city without fuel for vehicles, and food in the few opened stores was scarce. About 400,000 workers walked off the job, according to union sources.

Library fund release ordered

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Stephen S. Chandler Saturday ordered President Nixon to release more than $3.4 million in library service and construction funds in three states.

Chandler said the President has no power to withhold funds approved by Congress. He ordered the funds be paid to Oklahoma, New Mexico and Michigan.

The suit originally was filed by the Oklahoma Library Department and the other two states were permitted to enter the case Saturday.

Militant group backs Campora

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Militant guerrilla organizations tempered its previous stand Saturday and announced conditional support for the Peronist government of President Hector J. Campora.

The condition attached to support by the August 22nd Command of the People's Revolutionary Army (ERP) support was that the government develop a program leading toward "construction of socialism" in the country.

The command faction of the ERP has been particularly active in the wave of kidnappings and assassinations that accompanied the inauguration of Campora's government May 25. The command takes its name from the date last year when 16 guerrillas were slain by troops when they attempted an escape from prison at a naval base in the southern port city of Trelew.

Campora's government, whose acknowledged leader is former President Juan D. Peron, has been criticized by guerrilla groups for not immediately socializing the South American nation of 22 million.

In a news conference earlier this week, ERP commander Roberto M. Santucho said the new Peronist government was attempting to "reconstruct capitalism" when it should be trying to "destroy the old Argentina" in order to replace it with a socialist state.

On the government front, the ministries of Justice and the Interior Saturday announced creation of a commission to study the outbreak of kidnappings.

'Fetus fad' exemplifies demagoguery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The recent "fetus fad" in the House exemplified Congress's penchant to drift into demagoguery and the effectiveness of even a handful of members in steering the tide.

Demagoguery, by dictionary definition, is capitalizing on popular views and arousing the prejudices and passions of the populace to gain political influence.

Twice in the past month,

House passed amendments to spending bills to bar use of some specific government funds for experimentation on live human fetuses. In what one member termed a congressional "arms race,"

On the first test, the amendment passed 354-9 with only a single voice raised against it in debate. It was the type of subject encrusted with "passions and prejudice" which few experienced politicians like to oppose.

Even the manager of the bill, Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., said he was sorry the amendment passed but "I voted for it because I did not want some demagogue to say I voted for experimentation on fetuses."

Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., was one of the few "noes."

A month later, a similar amendment got 73 opposing votes to 266 ayes.

The amendment was tacked onto another medical funding bill on June 27. After its author, Rep. Angelo D. Roncallo, R-N.V., explained to a House which didn't want to hear how fetus heads were severed in a Primus experiment, Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., took the floor.

"There are in this country millions of women who have had and continue to have miscarriages," she began quietly. With objectivity, "we can investigate how we can really preserve life so there would not be miscarriages and there would not be fetuses outside the womb of the mother. All that this amendment does is to smother scientific progress."

The usually belligerent Abzug continued quietly: "The mention of the word 'fetus' is somehow or other a signal or a code word for everybody to stand up, every man and some women in this House, to say that we must vote in a way an emotional appeal indicates rather than on the basis of a rational analysis and a legislative approach."

She said: "We should not seek merely to inflame and impassion people instead of seeking to enact legislation of benefit to all humanity and mankind."

Whereas Ms. Abzug spoke quietly, the usually soft-spoken but temperamental Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., exploded:

News Of Servicemen

LONG BEACH, Calif. — Capt. George F. Thometz, Jr., a 1941 graduate of Twin Falls High, will take over the number two position in the Eleventh Coast Guard District later this month when he assumes the duties of chief of staff.

As chief of staff, the Twin Falls native will assist the district commander in the general administration and direction of all Coast Guard activities in Southern California, Arizona, Nevada and parts of Utah. Coast Guard cutters and helicopters in the district are also called upon to assist mariners who find themselves in dire need of aid off the Mexican coast.

Thometz, who left Twin Falls in 1941 to attend the Coast Guard Academy, saw action in World War II in both the Mediterranean, North Africa and the Pacific Theater.

He attended flight training and received his wings in 1948. He subsequently served at Coast Guard Air Stations at San Diego, Manila, San Francisco, Honolulu and Port Angeles, Wash.

Capt. Thometz was commanding officer of the Coast Guard Air Station in New Orleans when that southern city was devastated by Hurricane Betsy. Helicopters assigned to his command rescued over 1,200 persons from the flooded areas.

In 1956 he was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, the highest honor in aviation, for rescuing 66 persons in 12 hours who were trapped on roof tops near Yuba City, Cal., when flood waters cut them off from the rest of the world.

JEROME — Second Lt. Thomas H. Gano, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gano, Route 1, Jerome, has a unique job with the U.S. Air Force's 54th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron at Andersen AFB, Guam — "chasing" typhoons.

Lieutenant Gano, a WC-130 Hercules pilot, and fellow airmen of the famed "Typhoon Chasers," are keeping an around-the-clock weather watch over the western Pacific for the new season's typhoons and tropical storms.

Operating from their home station at Andersen Air Force Base, the Typhoon Chasers provide storm surveillance to the area bounded by the equator, the International Date Line and the Asiatic continent.

The crews locate typhoons and then fly into the teeth of the killer storms to obtain vital data to feed to the Joint Typhoon Warning Center operated by the Air Force and the Navy on Guam.

The 54th is a part of the global Air Weather Service headquartered at Scott AFB, Ill.

Lt. Gano, a 1966 graduate of Jerome High School, received his A. A. degree in 1968 from the College of Southern Idaho and his B. A. degree in 1971 from Boise State College. He was commissioned in 1971 upon completion of Officer Training School at Lackland AFB, Tex.

Politics come alive in Hawaii

HONOLULU (UPI) — An American Studies teacher who says he "can apply government to any aspect" of a student's life, has invented a unique program to take his kids out of the classroom and into the "real world" of high-pressure politics.

Joel Merchant, 29, makes politics and government come "alive" for his junior high school students at a private boarding school with an innovative program called "Hawaii State Legislature Assignment."

For the entire 60-day legislative session, his 80 eager students climb aboard a bus bearing the words MLD-PACIFIC INSTITUTE, and take a 10-minute ride to the $26 million state capitol.

A native of North Smithfield, R.I., Merchant admits "politics has always been a big issue for me." Speaking in complex sentences and articulate phrases, Merchant asked, "What else could I do? I can't put the kids on a plane for Washington, D.C., and the courts are so hard to get into." The legislative branch at the state level, which Merchant describes as the "closest to the people," was the logical choice.

Describing himself as a "theoretical academician," Merchant remains an advocate of old-fashioned book-learning, coupled with "getting out of the classroom and into the real, outside world."

His students at the small boarding school just outside Honolulu choose a partner, and must select a bill which most interests them. Some "start off absolutely bewildered," Merchant said, and say they don't have an interest.

Merchant said he is unimpressed by such arguments, saying, "I can apply government to any area of their lives. And he does, whether the bill concerns surfing or economics.

For the next 60 days, the students visit the state capitol at least once a week, talking with staffers, visiting with legislators, interviewing lobbyists and following their bill "every inch of the way." They must discover who favors and opposes the bill, and why, and what effect its passage would have.

"Between visits to the capitol, the students read newspaper articles, view films, hold discussions and do intensive research into the legislative process," Merchant said.

"I attack them with government. They are ripe and vital. I simply rush at them with politics and what it means."

He talks theory, but with an emphasis on reality. "Government," he said, "affects us day to day. The students begin to learn to look at politics and to find out what politicians do, and why they do it, who they are and the realities of participatory democracy. It's vital." Merchant speaks with sincerity and experience, some of it gained while registering black voters in 1965 in Selma, Ala.

His students, after initial fear, find out that politicians are people who can be talked with. Most of them take it as an assignment, but many really get into it. It becomes a part of their lives.

TF 1913 class holds 60th reunion

By O. A. (Gus) KELKER
Times-News executive editor
TWIN FALLS — "Who are you?" That's the question which went the rounds the past few days as surviving members of the class of 1913 of the Twin Falls High School — the second graduating class of that institution — met in reunion. It was the earliest of all reunions of local graduates. Sixty years ago the 46 class members received their diplomas at the high school — which is now the Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School. As to sex they were evenly divided. There were 23 boys and 23 girls. Mrs. Wanda H. Reed, who lives in Twin Falls, is one of the graduates and who was chairman of arrangements, had expressed the opinion around 20 members would be here for the reunion. Twenty-three graduates are still living. Assisting Mrs. Reed were the Mrs. Lora Doss, Leslie Benoit, Charlotte McMaster, Willie Eaton, of Twin Falls, and Ethel Wall, Buhl, all class members and all still residents. Classmates started arriving around June 20 for "early visits." Lyda and Lee Stettler, LaBuna Beach, Calif., were the first. Beatrice Kier was next to arrive, visiting with her brother Eugene Ostrander. Then others arrived from Washington, Nevada, Ohio, Wyoming and Tennessee. Communication with the graduates was by letter and telephone. Said Mrs. Reed, "I never realized what fun a telephone call could be."

President of the class was Carl Hoag, Seal Beach, Calif., brother of Mrs. Reed. Horton Granville Haight's wife Stella of Boise was here. She's the daughter of I. B. Perrine who founded the tract and city. Mrs. Leslie Benoit's father was manager of the Perrine Hotel and the first hotel, the Waverly, was built in 1905 by W. B. Hoag, father of Mrs. Reed and Carl Hoag. Willie Eaton's husband, the late Harry Eaton, was one of the town's early bankers — he was president of the Twin Falls Bank and Trust at his death, and the father of Ward Husted, now of Laramie, Wyo., was an official with the old Twin Falls News. Planned reunion activities included two events — an informal get together at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Allen Friday night and a luncheon at the Blue Lakes Country Club Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reed, Gooding, and Jack Benoit, children of reunioners, joined the Allens in sponsoring the Friday evening program. Prior to the Country Club luncheon, the reunion members and others met at the city park — which was just getting underway when they graduated from high school, and were taken to the luncheon in cars furnished by local automobile dealers. The Country Club property was I. B. Perrine's famed ranch when the class of 1913 left high school. Haight was master of ceremonies at the luncheon. Mrs. Reed read messages from members unable to attend and Nellie Ostrum utilized the piano to present scores from an operetta "Pretty Pauline" which class members produced when they were students. A sight seeing tour of the area was held following the luncheon.

All class members wore hand painted "Coyotes," the gift of Inez Moore, Denver, a professional artist who was also class artist in 1913. The name "Coyote" has been kept by Twin Falls High School annual staffs through the years.

Flying transmission towers

Jim Bridger, colorful mountain man of the early West, noted as a "teller of tall tales," would have thought he had come upon another "whopper" could he have seen these air-borne aluminum towers, up to 140 feet in height and weighing almost two tons, flying over mountain and desert in Wyoming and eastern Idaho.

They are the towers of Idaho Power's new 235-mile, high-voltage transmission line, being built to bring much-needed electricity from the Jim Bridger project to Idaho.

A technique available only in recent years, the use of helicopters to transport these oversized loads reduces the need for construction roads, thus leaving more of the terrain in its natural state.

New generating and transmission facilities must be built to satisfy the constantly increasing demand for electric energy in our rapidly growing area. In the process, we try to intrude upon nature no more than is necessary, even if it means taking to the air with transmission towers.

Hospital training class ends, Intensive care unit opens

By BONNIE JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — After two years of being closed the intensive care unit of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital reopens today.

In January, 1970 the unit opened with very little fanfare but much pride and enthusiasm on the part of the hospital staff and administration. Eighteen months later it closed and has remained closed since that time.

Carefully designed and fully equipped with intricate life saving devices, the ICU was and is complete in its array of hardware. The deficiency which caused its closure was in the "software" line — nurses.

Hospital officials and staff members took a good hard look at the problem and decided if they were to have properly trained nurses in sufficient numbers to keep the unit open around the clock it would be necessary to train their own staff.

Nurses serving in the special unit must have appropriate training in handling the intricate equipment and the special problems of the intensive care patients.

After a frustrating year and a half of trying to recruit such highly skilled nurses at salaries considerably below what they could command in larger hospitals, the training program began.

With the participation of many members of the medical staff, a series of 20 weekly intensive care and coronary care nursing classes were conducted for those scheduled to work in the unit or for other nurses interested in this type of work. Between 40 and 50 nurses attended these classes, receiving training in intensive and coronary care.

There was also a 120-hour course taught over a three-week period on a full day basis for the six registered nurses who will staff the unit. In addition they will be assisted by licensed practical nurses in the 24-hour care of the patients.

There are seven beds in the unit with the nursing station in the center and each bed visible from the station. Here too, is located the monitoring units for cardiac patients. An attachment at the patient's bed will record every aspect of his condition, recording it on small circular screens at the monitoring station.

Because of their specialized training, the unit's nurses are allowed to initiate life sustaining treatment in the absence of a physician.

On the medical or surgical floors, the hospital has about five patients for each nurse. In the ICU, the ratio will be a nurse for each two or three patients.

Persons suffering heart attacks, those critically injured in accidents or otherwise needing constant observation will be placed in the unit.

Hospital administrators say they believe with the number of intensive care and coronary care nurses now trained in the community, the unit will stay open this time.

As of 7 a.m. today, it was ready to receive patients with a full complement of "software" as well as the modern and highly specialized collection of hardware with such fancy names as defibrillators, suction respirators and the like.

Coronary care units date back to about 11 years, the first such unit opened in Bethany Medical Center, Kansas City, in an effort to prevent death in the cases of hearts too young to die.

Doctors on the staff of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital who have undergone special training for cardiac and intensive care units say Dr. Claude Beck, a noted physician, discovered in 1947 an electrical shock treatment could be used to restore the natural rhythm of the heart which developed ventricular fibrillation during surgery.

The efforts which followed developed equipment which could be used to benefit heart attack victims without the need of entering the chest of the patient.

This unique new method was found to be of little value, however, unless the patient was under constant observation as heart attacks have a habit of occurring at odd hours.

Magic Valley Memorial Hospital's coronary care unit and intensive care unit is now ready to begin saving lives, on an around the clock schedule.

Check charts

REOPENING of the intensive care unit at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital has been accomplished. Here three of the nurses who did much of the preparation work check charts at the central desk in the new unit. INSTRUCTORS for the hospital's own training program for special nursing skills required in the unit included Toni Parsons, left, and Sue Woods. While most of the patients will be cardiac cases, others requiring constant attention will also be served.

Special paraphernalia

EVERYTHING ready. Beds in the intensive care unit are now ready for patients. Unlike those in the regular private or semi-private rooms, the beds are surrounded by a number of special equipment items to provide needed services. Sue Woods will be head nurse in the division.

Monitoring equipment

FOCAL POINT of the intensive care unit is this monitoring equipment with a screen for each of four beds. Nurses Denise Murray, left, and Sue Woods check out monitors which at a glance tell of any problem a patient has.

Coach Nixon victorious with 10-inch kicker spikes

By MIKE ROYKO
Chicago Daily News

And here we are in the locker room of the Washington Redskins, and it is pandemonium. The Redskins have just won the 1972 superbowl and, as you can see, the jubilant players are pouring catsup on each other.

We'll try to get the victorious head coach up here for an interview. Coach Nixon, could we get you up here sir?

"Yes, good evening, this is your victorious coach speaking."

Coach, we'd like to congratulate you on a great victory. And I guess the big story of the day is really that you did it in your first year as a football coach, after those years in public life.

"Yes, it was a great victory. I would say it was the greatest victory in the history of football."

That may be, coach. But now let's talk about some of the highlights of the game. I think the big surprise was the way you stifled Miami's great offense. Nobody has done that all year. Yet, they didn't gain a yard or score a point. Your defensive team seemed to know just what they would do on every play. How did you do it?

"Let me explain. Last night we had members of a special team — we call them the shoemakers — enter their locker room. They remade the kicker's shoes. The spikes on the left shoe were 10 inches longer than those on his right. That was why he kept missing the ball. He was too high to kick it."

Terrific, coach. Tell me, what happened in the last two minutes of play. You had a 69 to 0 lead, but right near the end your boys were hit with a series of roughing penalties, and 16 of them were injured.

"Well, in the intense competition of the moment it is only natural that some people might become too enthusiastic. And it is unfortunate that in our zeal so many of their players were injured. But I doubt if they will be in any shape to bother us next season, hah, heh."

Thank you coach. I'll let you get back to your boys. Say, there's Miami's great middle linebacker. And he's in here with your boys, pouring catsup on them. Why, he's a great sport and a good loser, isn't he?

"Not really. He works for us."

By gosh, you think of everything coach.

"Does that surprise you?"

It South had been up on contemporary civilization he would have known that for every man walking the streets of London because of not pulling trumps there were two walking the streets of Tokyo for the opposite reason.

Then he would have led a club at trick two. He would then pull trumps, lead a second club, get back to his hand with the ace of diamonds which he would still be holding, lead a third club toward dummy and make his slam.

What if clubs were 5-1 and the second club got ruffed? Too bad. You can't have everything.

Leads Trumps Too Early

South knew all about the thousands of men walking the streets of London with no soles on their shoes because they hadn't pulled trumps. Hence, after winning the first trick with his queen of diamonds he drew trumps.

Then he led a club toward dummy. West played the three, dummy the Jack and East the nine.

Back to his hand with the ace of diamonds to lead a second club. West played the eight. He knew that his partner's nine was showing a singleton or doubleton.

Back in dummy again South had no way to get to his hand. He led a third club with the hope that the ace would have to come up but

"Several days ago, I met with my coaches, who are my closest advisers. We exchanged ideas. I believe in that. But when I did as I always do — I retired to the lonely seclusion of the coach's office to give it long and calm thought. One must make these decisions away from emotion and heated conflict. And, as always, my mind seemed to become clearer, and I was able to come to my final decision."

Right, and what did you decide to do about their potential offense?

"I decided to steal a copy of their game plan. I planted one of my men in their locker room as an attendant. He is very tiny and he hid in a helmet after everybody left. That night he came out. The rest was easy."

That's great coach. Now, one of the key plays of the game was when your entire defense blitzed their quarterback and broke both of his arms. Everybody in the stadium expected a run, yet you sensed it was going to be a pass. I noticed that just before the play, you were on the phone. Did you spotters in the press box tell you to watch for the surprise pass?

"Not at all. When I picked up the phone I was listening in to their spotters in the press box. That's how I knew they would pass."

Wonderful, coach. Now, I was surprised that their great field goal kicker had so much trouble today. He actually kept missing the ball with his foot. Did that surprise you?

"We expected it."

But how could you expect something as strange as that?

TWIN FALLS — Small appliances are a big help to the modern cook, and nearly everyone who has portable grills, electric fry pans or other electric pots, finds they use energy wisely, keep the kitchen cooler, and add variety to meals.

Less tender economy meat cuts are especially suitable for long cooking methods using "plug-in pots" rather than the kitchen range. Just a few years ago the idea of cooking without a range was unthinkable.

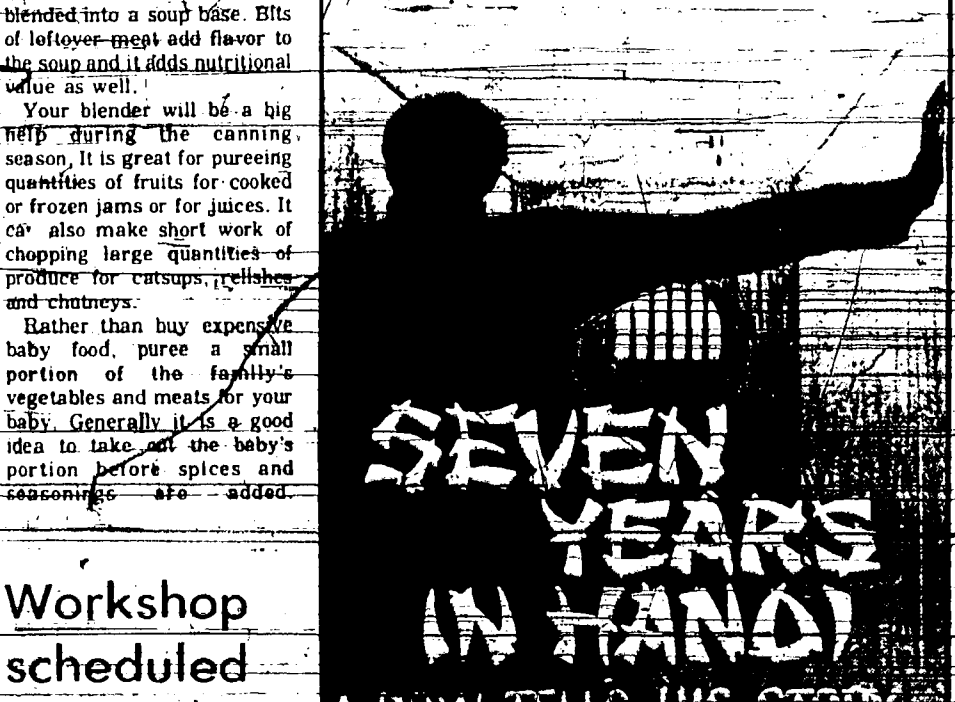

Today you can use exciting small appliances to prepare a complete meal that is simple, delicious, wholesome and interesting.

Blenders are especially valuable for making use of food items which may otherwise be thrown away. For example, the tough ends of asparagus, broccoli, or carrot stalks may be cooked until tender in a meat stock or water and blended into a soup base. Bits of leftover meat add flavor to the soup and it adds nutritional value as well.

Your blender will be a big help during the canning season. It is great for pureeing quantities of fruits for cooked or frozen jams or for juices. It can also make short work of chopping large quantities of produce for catsups, relishes and chutneys.

Rather than buy expensive baby food, puree a small portion of the family's vegetables and meats for your baby. Generally it is a good idea to take out the baby's portion before spices and seasonings are added.

Women spruce up more with men in neighborhood

MUSKEGON, Mich. (UPI) — Regardless of age, women still like men.

This is the observation of Jeanette Riley, manager of the high-rise Hartford Terrace apartment complex for the elderly and the Muskegon Housing Commission.

The project so far has 140 units filled. Of these, 122 units will have women occupants. There are 12 single men signed up and six others come under the category of couples.

The single women outnumber the men 10 to one. The Housing Commission wants the complex balanced and has ordered the other 20 units remaining left open for single men, 62 years or older.

According to Miss Riley, elderly women spruce up and are more alert when men are around the building.

Miss Riley cited a situation at an apartment complex she visited in Maryland. The manager told her that when a 69-year-old bachelor moved in, "the whole morale of the building went up." The ladies started going back to the hair dressers.

The more time the elderly widows, divorcees and single women have, not conducive to the best management of the complex, according to Housing Director Paul Oakes.

The complex will open in August for occupancy. Miss Riley is black. She said so far only five units will be occupied by blacks or minority groups. She said she is not sure why more minorities have not taken advantage of the eligibility for low cost rentals.

Golden Wedding Circle celebrates

TWIN FALLS — "Grow old along with me — the best is yet to be" — in Magic Valley the Golden Wedding Circle members are proving the poet's eloquent lines.

This group of people meets once a year for a dinner meeting. To be a member of this select club, one must have observed his Golden Wedding or 50 years of married life.

About 45 members and guests attended this year's meeting in the Twin Falls IOOF building. Members came from Twin Falls, Buhl, Filer and Kimberly.

Arrangements of garden flowers accented by golden numerals "50" centered the tables for the potluck dinner. The decorations were arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Thomas, Filer.

Elmer Annis gave the table invocation, and Frank Eastman, president of the circle, welcomed members and guests and introduced his wife and the officers of the organization.

These included Lloyd Nicholson, first vice president, Elmer Annis, second vice president, and Mrs. Pearl Buchanan, secretary.

Mrs. Howard Annis, Filer, has graciously volunteered her services in serving the potluck dinner for a number of years, and was assisted this year by her daughter, Kristy.

A program of lively musical numbers was presented by Ben Lutzer, Lennie Matone, Dorothy Bryson and Russell Dille. Lloyd Nicholson gave a vocal solo, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Elva Olsen, and the group enjoyed singing favorite songs. Bill Boyd was guest speaker for the afternoon.

Honored as the couple married the longest were Mr. and Mrs. Guy Cleveland, Twin Falls, who observed their 65th Wedding Anniversary last Oct. 10.

Mr. Cleveland will be 82 on Sept. 27 and Mrs. Cleveland will be 86 the 15th of July. She has lived all her life in Idaho while her husband was born in Dixon County, Neb., and came to Idaho as a young man.

They were married in 1907 in Viola, Idaho, which is about nine miles north of Moscow. They lived in Kootenai where he worked as a barber until his retirement.

This charming couple enjoys quite good health and has many interests. They have done considerable traveling and still do some gardening.

The "Baby Couple" of the group was Mr. and Mrs. Noel Bailey, Kimberly, who observed their 50th anniversary Dec. 12 of last year. The Baileys were born in Missouri and came to Idaho in 1910 and 1915 where he farmed and later operated the Berger Store for many years.

The Baileys have four children, 16 grandchildren and six great grandchildren. They, too, enjoy hobbies together, especially fishing.

Golden Wedding Circle members reminisced about years past during the afternoon. One member recalled how Joe Koehler, former owner of the one-time Roxy Theatre in Twin Falls, unofficially started the club when he used to entertain couples who had celebrated their golden weddings.

New officers were selected at the end of the meeting. Eastman was re-elected president; O. A. Higgins, first vice president; Elmer Dossett, second vice president, and Mrs. Buchanan was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Annual program

FRANK Eastman, top picture left, was re-elected president of the Golden Wedding Circle Club during the group's annual meeting. Mrs. Pearl Buchanan was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Lloyd Nicholson, second from right, is past first vice president, and Elmer Annis is past second vice president. The couple honored for being married the longest was Mr. and Mrs. Guy Cleveland, left, who celebrated their 65th Wedding Anniversary last winter. To be eligible for membership in the club, couples must have observed their 50th Wedding Anniversary.

'Aunt Lou' observes 90th

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Lou (Aunt Lou) Potee will celebrate her 90th birthday anniversary Monday at her home in the Raod Apartments.

Born July 2, 1883, at Glenwood in Sevier County, Utah, to John and Ann Jones Kirkman, she is a graduate of Glenwood High School and attended Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, as a music major.

Mrs. Potee's family, which included seven brothers and one sister, sang and played for social and church events. She remembers many practice sessions with townspeople gathered on her lawn to enjoy the music.

She taught piano lessons in Glenwood and rode her bicycle to teach in the nearby towns of Annabelle and Richfield.

Mrs. Potee was the LDS Stake organist in Twin Falls for five years at one time, and helped to pay for the first area LDS Church organ by playing at dances, dinners and dramas.

She came to the Twin Falls area with her family in 1914. Her brothers, Lawrence, John M. George, Wallace, June, Leo and Roy Kirkman, and her sister, Mrs. Daniel (Clara) Hansen, all bought farms on the Salmon Tract near the present Twin Falls airport.

Mrs. Potee remembers helping with the threshing on the farms, holding the big sacks being filled from the threshing machine.

She was employed at one time in ladies ready-to-wear departments at Walkers in Salt Lake City, and at the ID Department Store in Twin Falls until 1920.

She married Hadley Potee in 1922. The couple moved to Downey, Idaho, and returned to Twin Falls in 1930, where Mr. Potee was manager of the Mountain States Implement Co.

She raised many flowers at her home on Kimberly Road, supplying floral arrangements for many church meetings.

Her many nieces and nephews considered her home their headquarters in Twin Falls and, "Aunt Lou was just like a mother to them." One niece, Mrs. Russell (May) Herron lives in Twin Falls now.

Mrs. Potee has been a lifelong member of the LDS Church where she has held offices in the Relief Society, Sunday school, and Mutual Improvement Association.

She also is known for her participation in many church and social events and has been called "the best gravy maker in town."

Book Review

By MARILY JARDIN
Twin Falls Public Library

TWIN FALLS — "The Single Parent Experience" by Carol Klein is a well-researched study of men and women who have chosen the role of single parent.

Some are people who have never married and choose to adopt a child. Others are women who choose to bear their own children and raise them alone.

These people were interviewed by Ms. Klein, and they described to her their individual reasons for wanting children and the problems and satisfactions involved in this rather unique role of single parent.

Ms. Klein also interviewed people in the fields of psychiatry and psychology and obtained their professional opinions of possible successes and failures of these parents and children.

Single parents also choose varying life styles for themselves and their children. One father is a successful businessman who employs a housekeeper to care for the child. Another built his own home in a New Hampshire commune, and his son is cared for by his father and others in the group.

Most single mothers support themselves and their children by working outside the home. They have solved the day care problem in various ways: day care centers, individual baby-sitters and leaving the child with non-working mothers. One woman took her baby to work with her.

Other mothers worked during their pregnancies and saved so they could stay at home after the baby was born. They also got some assistance from welfare services.

Ms. Klein also discussed with them the problems of their social lives and of their relationships to their own parents. No judgments are made in the book, but the reader leaves it with the impression that Ms. Klein has presented a very well-balanced view of a new cultural phenomenon.

Single parents is one of the new waves breaking on the shores of old seas of traditional beliefs about child-rearing, and they have received a good hearing in Ms. Klein's book.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband told me he had met a girl he wanted me to share him with. I was shocked when he suggested I meet the girl. The three of us met. She is quite pretty, my age (30), and seems intelligent and serious.

She said: "I have a great capacity to love and so has John, and we feel that the more people we can touch with love during our lives, the better." Then she said: "I don't want marriage or a family because nothing in this world is permanent, and people change as they grow. I don't believe in deception, and unless I have your permission to love John, I will never see him again."

Meanwhile, John just sat there. I was amazed at my self-control. I told her I wouldn't consent to such an arrangement, but if John wanted her, I would give him a divorce.

Husband on shares

John said he wanted six months to think it over. But while thinking it over he wanted to see her. I said I wouldn't live with him while he was seeing her, so he said he wouldn't see her. Somehow I believe this girl, but I'm not so sure about John. Help me.

JOHN'S WIFE: DEAR WIFE: You say you believe the girl, so if she said she wouldn't see John without your permission, and you said: "No dice," you don't have to worry about John's seeing her. But you do have to worry about being married to a man who wants swinging privileges.

DEAR ABBY: A married man chased me until he finally wore me down. He said he couldn't live without me. His wife hadn't made one affectionate gesture toward him for more than 10 years, and if I didn't live with him he would kill himself. [I'm a divorcee and live alone.]

I finally agreed. I rented an unfurnished apartment and had my mother take my six rooms of furniture out of storage and ship it to me. It was a 1,500-mile haul. Well, the day I moved into that apartment he called me and said his wife broke down and wanted to try to make a go of their marriage and he couldn't leave her.

Abby, I signed a one-year's lease for this apartment and I can't afford to live here without his help. [And to think I gave up a really eligible man for this spineless jellyfish!]

Should I sue him? He has plenty. Don't tell me to see a lawyer. This man IS a lawyer.

DEAR STUCK: You need another lawyer, this time for professional advice only. I.P.S. There's a moral here: Don't throw away the old pot until you're sure the new one will hold water.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for six years to a man who is a good father and an excellent provider. However, he is a very jealous man. Why he is jealous is beyond me because I have never given him any reason to be.

He doesn't allow me to go anywhere alone. When there is shopping to be done, we do it on Saturday TOGETHER. If I want to buy lingerie or try on something, he goes with me and "waits" for me. I am not alone for a minute.

It's not like I have something "wrong" to do. I would just like a little privacy and I'd like to feel trusted. He is always questioning me. "What did you do today? Did you talk to anybody? Did you see anybody?" Every evening I get the third degree.

Abby, he's not sick. He is just possessive and needlessly jealous. I care for this man, but he is making me very nervous. If you have a clue to his behavior, please tell me. And don't send me any letters. All the mail is saved to be opened TOGETHER when HE gets home.

DEAR PRISONER: If you meekly accept his word as law you will be a "prisoner" forever. And as for the nightly "third degree," there is an old French saying: "A man is not likely to look behind a door unless he has stood there himself."

CONFIDENTIAL TO "YOUNG PHILOSOPHER": No one said it better than Horace Greeley when he said, "Fame is a vapor; popularity an accident; riches take wings. Only one thing endures, and that is character."

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 6700, L. A., Calif. 90029. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

FTC rules against company

WASHINGTON (UPI) — a Federal Trade Commission (FTC) judge ruled today that Holiday Magic Inc., a multi-million-dollar door-to-door cosmetics firm, is guilty of running an unfair and deceptive marketing scheme. Administrative law Judge Edgar A. Buttle said the firm has been luring "a substantial number of unsuspecting participants" into believing they could make a lot of money recruiting other cosmetics salesmen, when in reality there is a limit on how many people can get involved in such an operation. Buttle ordered the San Rafael, Calif.-based firm to pay back, with interest, all the money invested in Holiday Magic by prospective distributors since October of 1964.

The decision, growing out of a complaint first lodged by the FTC in 1970, may now be appealed to a higher court for review, by the full commission.

Starting at 5 p.m., prime Idaho beef and lamb, potato salad, baked beans and rolls will be served in the "Button Barbecue" scheduled for the Hailey City Park.

Lightning starts fires at Salmon

SALMON — A severe lightning storm struck the Salmon area early Friday morning producing three minor fires on the Salmon Forest.

The spot-size blazes were on Napoleon Ridge, Hacksaw Tom and Wagonhammer Creek.

All three were manned by helicopter helitrack crewmen.

Salmon volunteer firemen were called Friday at 7:32 a.m. to the Raymond Hathorn residence where lightning apparently struck a tractor loader causing damage to the motor, battery and gas tank.

Frank Barsalou, fire chief, said residents reported a lightning bolt had jolted the area.

The firemen were also called Friday at 12:55 p.m. to East Main Street where someone had tossed a smoke bomb into the front seat of a parked auto.

Jerome carrier sues postoffice

JEROME — A Jerome mail carrier who said he resigned under protest after 26 years service has brought suit in U. S. District Court against the U.S. Postal Service and Postmaster General E. T. Klassen.

John W. Wiswall, Jerome, brought suit, asking $7,500 in back wages and requesting a hearing before the postal service action in his case becomes final.

Wiswall said he resigned under protest for fear of losing his retirement benefits when the Jerome Postmaster Dale Vining brought a grievance action against him. He said Vining's grievance notification alleged he "interfered on the job and on several occasions delivered mail to the wrong addresses."

Wiswall said in his complaint he learned after resigning the grievance was not such that he would lose retirement benefits and attempted to withdraw his resignation but was refused the opportunity to do so.

He has requested an oral hearing and reinstatement in his former job as well as the lost wages.

The reception was sponsored by the Jerome Chamber of Commerce, which presented her a check for $100. Assisting the chamber were the Lions Kiwanis and the Rotary clubs.

Jerome Mayor Jack Russell presented Miss Davis with a dozen red roses. She also received a check for $135 from KART radio station and several local merchants. Making the presentation on behalf of the chamber and the service clubs was Vince Alberdi, chamber president, and on behalf of KART radio station and merchants, John Henry Rue, news director for KART.

Miss Davis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Davis, Jerome, who were also present at the reception. Miss Davis, who represented Twin Falls, won the Miss Idaho title at the state pageant in Boise June 16.

She will represent the state of Idaho at the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City, N. J. in September.

Her next major appearance will be July 4 when she will participate along with Gov. Cecil Andrus in Independence Day events at Idaho Falls. She is scheduled to appear at several fairs throughout the state this summer. On July 21, she will relinquish her title as Miss Twin Falls during the annual Miss Twin Falls Pageant.

Gov. Andrus and Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy, invited to the reception for Miss Davis, were unable to attend due to prior commitments, but sent their regrets.

TF county land termed limited

By BONNIE JONES
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Most of the land in Twin Falls County is highly limited as to its ability to absorb septic tank filtrations, an Idaho Water Resource Board study shows.

A countywide study by the Idaho Water Resource Board, financed by the Farmers Home Administration, was presented county commissioners and other interested county officials Friday. Larry Trumbull, chief of the board's environmental branch presented the report.

He said because of the shallow soil in the proximity of the rocky Snake River Canyon, septic tank filter fields are highly limited. County commissioners noted this is contrary to many soil studies of the Soil Conservation Service.

This is one of 25 county studies for Idaho financed under a special grant for rural water and sewage planning from the Farmers Home Administration and carried out by the Idaho Water Resource Board.

In addition to studies of the rural areas, the project covers each of the small communities of the county. It points out with the exception of Rogerson, all of the communities utilize underground sources for domestic water. Seven areas, Buhl, Castleford, Filer, Hansen, Hollister, Kimberly and Rogerson, have central domestic systems but Murtaugh and Curry utilize individual sources.

The study omits Twin Falls city as not qualifying as a rural area because of a population over 5,500.

Trumbull said the report is to provide guidelines rather than to give mandatory regulations to the communities and counties involved.

At this time only the smallest communities of Twin Falls County are without central sewage collection and treatment facilities. These are Castleford, Curry, Hollister and Rogerson. For economic reasons, the report says, only Castleford is likely to install such facilities within the next 20 years.

Fully contained sewage disposal systems or expensive tertiary treatment will be required for all municipal effluent charges by 1985, the report predicts. As a result such fully contained systems are projected for Buhl, Castleford, Filer and Hansen.

Several communities with sewage treatment plans will need to add chlorination and land disposal to meet the 1985 standards, the report shows. For Hollister, however, the report recommends continued septic tank and drainfield use.

Detailed reviews of each community water and sewer facilities are given along with recommendations for upgrading and estimated costs of meeting the proposed improvements.

Sentencing set

SHOSHONE — Jim Trowbridge, 26, Shoshone, charged with cattle rustling, is scheduled for sentencing on July 19.

District Judge Charles Scoggin continued the case to that date when the probation officer had not turned in the pre-sentence investigation report Thursday.

Trowbridge entered a plea last week to the charge and is out of jail on a $10,000 bond.

Plends innocent

SHOSHONE — A plea of innocent was entered by an attorney for William Kerner, Jr., north Shoshone, on a charge of animal neglect.

The case was originally scheduled for Thursday of this week, but is now continued to a date to be set. Magistrate Nancy Haddock states.

Kerner is charged with the neglect charge as result of action instigated by the Lincoln County Humane Society after 28 dead calves were found on his property. The animals allegedly died of starvation.

Severt Swanson, Gooding, is Kerner's attorney.

Open house set

SHOSHONE — Open house will be held at the Lincoln County Courthouse from noon until 5 p.m. on July 9 for Mrs. Luella L. Kinsey.

Mrs. Kinsey is retiring, her resignation effective Aug. 1, after 19 years as the county auditor clerk. She has resigned due to ill health.

Case studied

SHOSHONE — Judge Scoggin has taken under advisement evidence presented in a two-day civil trial before him in Lincoln County this week.

The Shoshone Highway District brought the charges against property owners Herb McCowan and Jack Witherspoon, Dietrich, and the case pertains to an easement of roadway over their property.

The highway district claims that an oral easement has existed on the land.

Jay L. Depew, Twin Falls, is attorney for the highway district, while Frank Rettig, Jerome, represents the defendants.

Bids authorized

GLENNS PERRY — At the Thursday evening board meeting of School District 192, bids were authorized for a small bus for the Rye Creek route.

Dick King, Glens Perry, was elected chairman of the board, Bud Allen of King Hill as vice chairman.

Alan Riggs was hired as custodian for the junior high school for the coming year. Linda Lundblade of Idaho Falls was hired as home economics teacher, to replace Gloria Hansen who resigned to be married.

A committee was named to investigate prices on carpeting for the high school library, and on the office space for the elementary, junior and senior high schools.

Shoshone sets fiddlers fete

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone Chamber of Commerce will again sponsor the Maggie Shaw Old Time Fiddler's Jamboree at the Mary L. Gooding Park, Shoshone.

The event will be held July 8 with actual playing set for about 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Musicians from all over southern Idaho, and possibly others, will be participating with Shaw acting as master of ceremonies. Last year the event drew about 7,000 persons to the Shoshone area. Shoshone has hosted the event for about 10 years.

George Kenaston is the general chairman this year. Kenneth Blackburn is the jamboree donation chairman, assisted by John McKenzie.

Francis Bergin is in charge of preparing needed equipment. The chamber is soliciting an organization to serve food, with proceeds to go toward the county swimming pool fund. The Rotary Club snow cone machine will be in operation.

Families of those present are encouraged to take their lunches and use the natural park setting for a family outing and picnic while they listen to the music.

Jerome council to meet Monday

JEROME — The Jerome city council meet Monday at 8 p.m. at city hall instead of Tuesday night.

Jerome Mayor Jack Russell said the meeting has been changed to Monday night because of the Fourth of July holiday.

The council is expected to take under consideration a recommendation by the Jerome City Zoning Commission that the city adopt a proposed zoning ordinance concerning the location of mobile homes within the city.

The zoning commission has recommended that the city adopt a third residential classification, that of Residential District 1-A and that double wide mobile homes be allowed in the district that are a minimum of 3,000 feet, placed on a proper foundation with the tongue removed and skirted with a non-flammable material.

Also the proposal will permit trailer homes of any size in the Residential District 2 and will not permit mobile homes of any kind in Residential District 1.

Also included in the proposal are several livestock restrictions, one which will not permit any livestock in Residential District 1. However, livestock will be permitted in Residential District 1-A and residential district two provided a minimum of 12,500 square feet per animal exists for one cow and a minimum of 6,250 square feet are provided per sheep all exclusive of buildings.

Blaze battled near Bruneau

TWIN FALLS — Inter-Regional fire fighters from Twin Falls were dispatched Saturday to help battle a 10,000 grass fire 15 miles south of Bruneau.

Sawtooth National Forest officials said the fire crew and four Spanish American fire crews were dispatched from Twin Falls to help on the fire, burning in cheat grass and sagebrush on Bureau of Land Management land.

On small lightning fire in the Black Pine area of the Sawtooth Forest was reported Friday but was brought under control immediately.

A crew of 10 men battled a 50 acre range fire in the Twin Buttes area, 30 to 40 miles south of Glens Ferry.

Celebration set

GOODING — The Gooding County Senior Citizens Center will celebrate Independence Day July 2.

There will be refreshments, fireworks and games from 2 to 4 p.m. at the center. The Gooding Senior Citizens board of directors authorized the purchase of a minibus for transportation of senior citizens in the center.

Volunteers will drive, making a circular route through Wendell, Hagerman and Bliss two days a week, and short local trips three days a week in the center, according to Marlene Lees, director.

Two new staff members have been added to the organization. Bertha Gardner, bookkeeper, and Edna Kistler, cook.

The first meal will be served at the center the third week in July, Mrs. Lees said.

Army takes up new battle: keeping volunteers

FT. LEWIS, Wash. — For the first time in over 25 years, the United States is depending on volunteers to fill the ranks of the US Army.

Other armed services — Navy, Marines, Air Force, Coast Guard — have always relied on volunteers to meet their manpower needs, save in certain periods during wartime.

But since ending the draft late in 1972, the Army is relying on volunteer soldiers for both combat units and technical assignments.

How successful the all-volunteer Army concept may be probably won't be known for another year and a half to two years, when present enlistments begin to expire.

The success of the concept will be reflected in the number of men who enlist, or who induce other young men to enlist.

To encourage enlistment, the Army has changed its image. Pay and quarters have been improved. Technical training, not combat skills, and adventure are emphasized.

Civilians have replaced the traditional sweaty KP in mess halls — in garrison at least — save during basic training. Useless work has been eliminated. Guard is almost a matter of the past; post security often is in the hands of the provost marshal and military police.

It's an Army much different than that which fought in World War II or Korea — or even the Army of five years ago.

To give Idahoans a look at the new Army, 49 dozen newspaper, television and radio representatives from an area extending from Driggs to Nampa spent two days at Ft. Lewis early this past week.

That post was chosen because the Ninth Infantry Division stationed there has concentrated its recruiting efforts on the northwestern states and there is a sizable number of Idahoans in its ranks.

Accompanying the group during two days on post were an assigned escort officer, Lt. Brad Jackson, an artillery observer and a West Point graduate, his assistant, West Point Second Classman Dave Annon, and several enlisted men. Two representatives of the Idaho recruiting office in Boise — one Army enlisted man and one civilian — also made the trip.

The military escort provided information requested to supplement facts learned during briefings and interviews, but made no effort to influence interviews.

Military men encountered during the visit ranged from the division commander down to line soldiers. Most answered questions freely. Places visited included barracks, mess halls, cafeterias, schools and classrooms, helicopter units, and reserve officer cadet training for artillery in the field.

(The artillery training for the reserve cadets was being conducted by enlisted men and officers of Ninth Division artillery units.)

Most of the Ninth Division troops are young — in the 18 to 25 year age bracket — and so are their noncommissioned officers. Many of the junior officers are of comparable age.

West Point men and Vietnam veterans are plentiful. There are many seasoned non-commissioned officers, though few appear old in years. (As a result of changes in the Army's structure and approach in recent years, old NCO's have either adapted or else retired or otherwise been separated from duty.)

As an infantry division, the Ninth is made up principally of foot soldiers and their supporting armor, artillery and aviation detachments. All save the largest artillery can be moved by air if need be.

Weapons and equipment include the latest in the Army's inventory. As examples, the division is equipped with the AH-1G Cobra attack helicopter — a craft which looks sinister and deadly even sitting on the ground — and the newest version of the 105 millimeter howitzer.

That weapon can either be towed behind a truck or folded into a compact bundle and lifted along with its ammunition by a helicopter.

The truck to tow it is also brand new. A six-wheeled, articulated vehicle called a "Gamma Goat," it resembles a piece of road construction machinery more than an artillery prime mover.

Editor's note: Times-News City Editor Dale Stewart was among more than a dozen representatives of Idaho newspapers, television and radio stations visiting Ft. Lewis, Wash., early this past week for a first-hand look at the all-volunteer Army.

The accompanying stories and photos offer a report on what the Idaho newsmen observed during their two-day visit. Arrangements for the trip — including expenses — were handled by the US Army.

all-volunteer army and the unit of choice program is Col. Clayton Moran, division artillery commander for the Ninth Division.

"I approve of the concept of the all-volunteer army," he said. "But only time will tell if it will work out."

In the Ninth, the method used to recruit troops — the division's manpower totals around 17,000 men at full strength — is the "unit of choice" system.

Based on what recruiters and division officers call a contract, it states that an enlistee will receive training for a certain job with a certain division, provided that slot is available.

If the slot isn't available, then the enlistee can wait until the specific training becomes available, has an option to take other training, or he can get out under a "broken contract."

"If we keep the contract with a young fellow and he plays square with us, then we should come pretty close to filling all of our slots," Col. Moran said.

So far the Ninth Division has been successful in its efforts to build a full strength infantry division from scratch in little more than a year since it was reactivated.

The division has seen duty in four wars, including a tour in Vietnam which ended in 1969 when it returned to the United States and was deactivated.

In 1972, it was reactivated at Ft. Lewis under Maj. Gen. William B. Fulton who had been told in effect — to recruit his own division.

Col. Moran said by April 17 this year the lost open position in the division was recruited, but because of basic training and delayed departures for enlistees the division will not reach full strength until September.

About half the men in the lower four enlisted grades have come in as "unit of choice" men. Others are transfers, many Vietnam veterans.

Col. Moran views his job as "making sure the contract is kept" with the unit of choice soldier, and making certain that he receives the training he wants — whether as a cannoneer or for some other job — and preparing the soldier for returning to civilian life a better man than when he came into the service.

Saying that at that point a person can look back and see that he has done something, Col. Moran said, "There are no medals for this sort of thing but it is what makes the world go around."

There are various approaches to the objective of molding enlistees into a combat-ready unit. One is elimination of "harassment" of troops with useless work. Another is adoption of an eight hour training day over a five day week. A third is injecting variety into training and field exercises.

The latter may be done several ways. Col. Moran hopes to send several forward observer and liaison teams on a trek across the Olympic peninsula this fall, supplying them by air,

COL. CLAYTON MORAN
"time will tell"

Another project has sent men into remote forested areas of Washington State to plant trees and carry out conservation projects.

While they are performing those tasks, they are receiving training in moving across rough terrain, air supply, and augmenting field rations by fishing.

Col. Moran said "unit of choice" men performed well in a battalion combat readiness test given the first unit ready for that proficiency check a few weeks ago. Others, who show a solid knowledge of their jobs, are assisting with training of 900 Reserve Officers Training Corps cadets for several weeks this summer.

Despite the favorable view by Col. Moran, the volunteer army and "unit of choice" program face several problems. One is drug use. Another is absent without leave, or AWOL, in military jargon.

Marijuana is prevalent, but "no more than elsewhere," Col. Moran said. He believes since it is present on the post, it is best to allow it to be kept under surveillance of non-commissioned officers and other soldiers in the barracks. His attitude indicated he was little worried about pot smokers.

But harder drugs and pushers are another matter. A pusher won't be in Col. Moran's unit — which consists of four artillery battalions — for long, he said. And men with drug problems can have help in treating their addiction if they want it.

Violations of military regulations are handled through prescribed channels, with disciplinary action handled at the battery or battalion levels.

Col. Moran said while efforts are made to help men solve their problems, periodically men come under his command who cannot avoid trouble and cannot be assisted despite all efforts.

"We found that a lot of men who went AWOL thought the first one was free," Col. Moran said. "A lot of them go AWOL because they are young and have not had a lot of responsibility."

To combat AWOL problems and strengthen units, teamwork is emphasized. This takes the approach that a component of the division or the division itself cannot function properly unless all men are doing their jobs.

Col. Moran said the number of AWOLs has been cut down, but not eliminated entirely. "Some of these men nothing would keep from going AWOL. Others go over the hill because they can't wait until morning to talk to their battery officers about their problem."

Gen. Fulton, a tall, balding officer who is a veteran of three wars — World War II, Korea, Vietnam — thinks it is too soon to say one way or the other whether the all-volunteer Army will be successful.

That success — or failure — will depend on the way it is received by the men who make it up now — how they advertise it to other prospective enlistees or whether or not they enlist. But that second round of recruiting effort is many months in the future for most of the men in the Ninth Division.

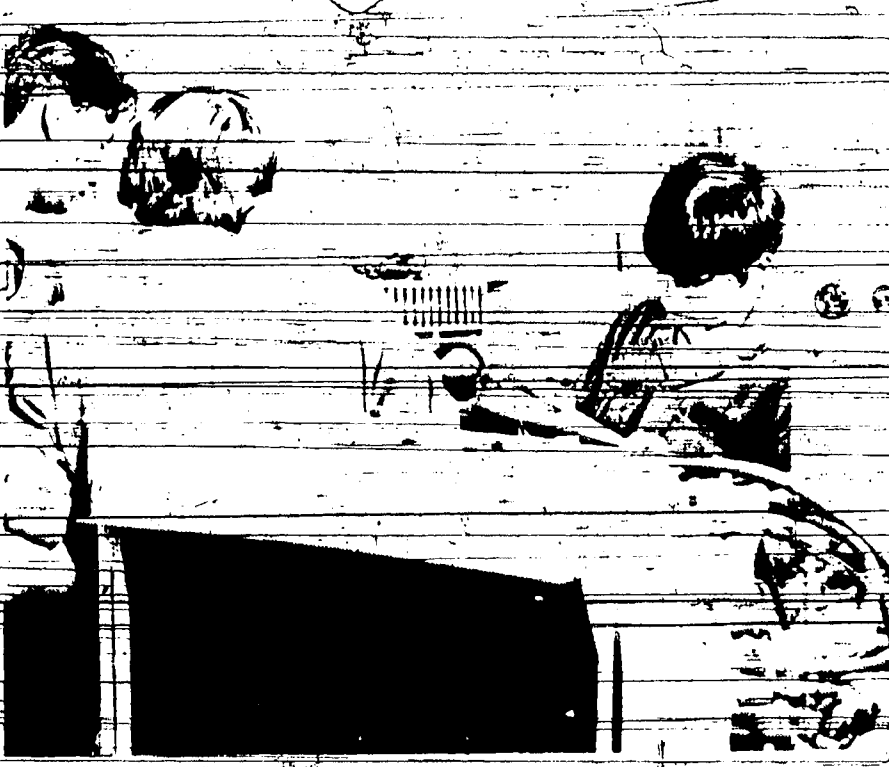

Gen. Fulton, however, is confident he can keep his division at strength indefinitely. Meantime, the division is presently emphasizing advanced individual and basic unit training following his theory of flexibility to be ready for possible combat assignments in a wide variety of areas — mountains, deserts or jungles.

And while many of the activities which formerly consumed time and irritated soldiers because they seemed useless have been discarded, some traditions — such as daily retreat ceremony for lowering the colors — are being maintained within the division.

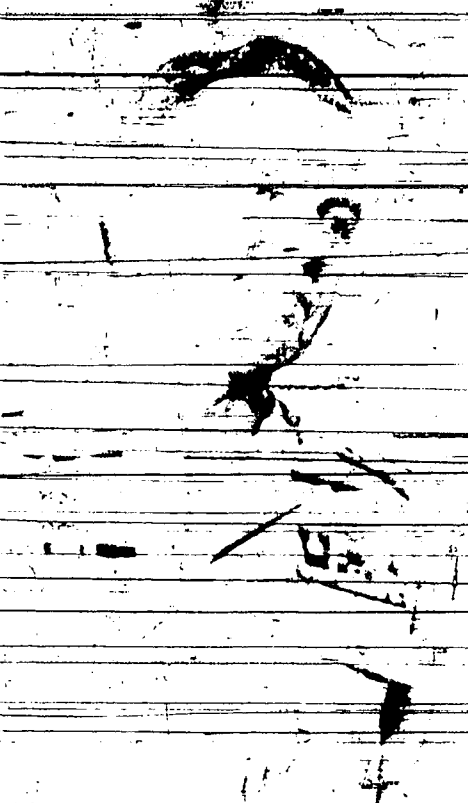

"You don't throw the baby out with the bath water," he says.

Another problem facing Gen. Fulton and his planning officers is the fuel shortage. The general sees a cutback ahead in certain operations of up to 30 per cent, with resulting economies to be ordered in vehicle use. So more

Magic Valley soldiers' views of 'new' Army vary

FT. LEWIS, Wash. — Three Magic Valley soldiers have mixed views of the all-volunteer Army.

They like some aspects of the unit-of-choice plan used to recruit men for the Ninth Infantry Division but are skeptical of others. At least one would like to see tighter discipline.

Interviewed were PFC Leonard King, 21, Burley; Acting Sgt. Marty Peterson, 20, Carey; and Spec. 4 Richard Carotta, 21, Rupert. All are assigned to Ninth Division units.

King, a vertical chart operator in a fire direction section of Battery B, 1-11 Field Artillery, has been in service 18 months, with half that time spent at Burley on home town recruiting assignment. He has been at Ft. Lewis seven months, and has half his three year enlistment remaining.

Peterson, a wheeled vehicle mechanic in Headquarters Company, 2-39th Infantry, has 14 months of service behind him. He has been at Ft. Lewis since August, 1972. Drafted, he extended his hitch to three years to obtain assignment to Ft. Lewis.

Carotta, a quality editor with the 9th Finance Company, enlisted last September after receiving a draft notice. Aside from schooling at Ft. Benjamin Harrison Ind., he has been stationed with his Ninth Division unit for nine months.

King believes the Army now has several good factors going for it, including increased pay, better food and living conditions — notably two-man rooms, which are standard in many units of the Ninth Division — and a "more-humanized approach."

King entered the Army because he thought he could benefit from enlistment and because he had no money to attend college. He had considered re-enlisting but hopes to enter the real estate field in civilian life.

He cited two areas of dissatisfaction — inefficiency and morale. "Like any larger organization, the Army isn't as efficient as it could be," he said. He used as an example the "waste of manpower" in "sending five men to do a job for two." He said he thought morale in his unit was "fairly low" but was improving after it passed a battalion test for combat readiness.

King said marijuana is around on the post but "not much hard drugs." He said those caught using or selling drugs are punished but "not as harshly as they could be." Possession of an ounce of marijuana brought a soldier a fine of $15 and a 30 day restriction, he said.

discipline needed

Peterson said he felt the Army had played square with him and honored his unit of choice "contract." It guarantees a man a place in a certain job with a unit of a certain division, if the spot is available.

He said he has considered working as a mechanic in civilian life but is undecided on possible re-enlistment. He has found certain aspects of the Army favorable but said there are some instances where he believes improvements could be made. One of his dislikes is a new articulated six-wheeled truck called a "Gamma Goat."

He said he thinks morale on the whole is good but also thinks there should be a return "to a certain extent" to some of the more rigid ways of the "old Army" to maintain troop discipline.

Carotta's work in the division's financial section is devoted to trying to keep clerical errors to a minimum. He is undecided at this time about possibly remaining in service after his present hitch ends.

As for the all-volunteer Army, he said he "hopes it's working" although he hears reports that it isn't working as well as anticipated, possibly because not enough high school graduates are interested in coming into the Army.

Carotta said morale in his unit is "the greatest" with officers and enlisted men getting along well together. "I have a great bunch of guys to work with," he said. As for military discipline, he said it's needed because a unit would "fall apart without it."

All three soldiers concurred that respect for officers is based as much today on a man-to-man working relationship as for the rank-the-officer holds. They said officers in their units work closely with the men in their commands and join with them in recreation as well.

Combat has frequently blurred the distinction between officers and enlisted men, notably at the smaller unit level. However, it has been only in the past few years that efforts have been made to make those lines less noticeable among men assigned to garrison duties.

The need for strong discipline was voiced by a soldier from North Idaho, Spec. 4 John Topp of Sandpoint. He termed discipline "lax" and said during a field exercise "it was almost impossible to get people to work without threatening them."

troops may be walking instead of going by truck, and some training movements may be curtailed.

One battery level artillery officer thinks the volunteer army is about like the "old army" in one regard — the troops are in better spirits when they are in the field and active, although morale is generally good.

Around barracks areas, there is the usual griping and minor friction which seems to characterize military units. But when a unit moves into the field the attitude changes and spirits improve.

This officer said limits on ammunition expenditure and fund problems hamper planning for live training, but even when units are "dry firing" — going through all the steps save actual firing — field activities spark troop interest.

A couple of other factors may also have a bearing on troop morale.

From the point of quarters and base facilities, Ft. Lewis is undoubtedly one of the best continental duty posts in the US Army.

It's a generally modern post, and the recreational opportunities offered by nearby natural features — mountains, ski areas, fishing streams — and three major cities close at hand are an attraction.

Presently, the bulk of the troops recruited into the Ninth Division are from the northwestern states — Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California, Montana — which means they are serving in their home region.

Still another factor is modern housing for many units which places men in rooms holding two men. Non-commissioned officers are given the privilege of living by themselves.

While certain furnishings are issued, such as bunks, a desk, lockers and a chair, and there are requirements governing placing of clothing and equipment, wide latitude is permitted soldiers in decorating their rooms. Posters, stereos, rugs, a US flag, photos of family and similar distinctive items are found in many rooms.

However, on occasion the decorative schemes go too far and soldiers are required to adopt a more conservative approach to fixing up their homes. While they conform to the rules imposed, they are quick to express their distaste for them.

Although many units are in newer barracks, there are many standard wooden barracks still in use as quarters for some units and for training facilities for others.

'Years ago we relied on our old sergeants

... our sergeants are all young now.' — Lt.

Col. B.J. Fox says

Because of higher educational requirements for enlistees and the increasing technical complexity of the equipment of a modern army, education of the soldier is given high priority. There is a dual approach to education for Ninth Division soldiers.

One deals with the needs of the military man to meet the requirements of his job and to do it better. The other is aimed to improve the educational level of the soldier.

Specialized military education, with emphasis on management techniques and leadership, is handled through the Ninth school command headed by Lt. Col. B. J. Fox. Many courses under his supervision are designed for units on the post, although some National Guard and Army Reserve members also complete them.

Those courses include management practices for the combat unit, maintenance and supply, the non-commissioned-officer academy — actually a Sixth Army course — and the basic leadership course, small arms repair and a five-week wheeled vehicle mechanics and wrecker-crane operator course.

As much as possible, training is "hands on" or practical experience, Col. Fox said.

Most recent addition to the list of courses is one for junior officers dealing with supply, management, training and legal aspects of military justice.

"Years ago we relied on our old sergeants to teach officers these areas but our sergeants are all young now," Col. Fox said.

Not all students are men. A few weeks ago a WAC completed a wheeled vehicle mechanics course, finishing fifth among 25 students, Col. Fox said.

Aimed at improving the educational level of the soldier is Old Reliable University, equipped and put into operation early this year to offer soldiers a chance at education during on-duty time.

Classes are offered which will lead to a high school diploma, or — through arrangement with several colleges and universities — will lead to credit toward an associate of arts, bachelor's or even a master's degree in certain fields.

There are also special interest courses, these deal with aviation and auto mechanics or leisure time activities. Vocational training is also offered.

Broadening educational opportunities for soldiers is considered important with requirements that 70 per cent of enlistees have a high school diploma or its equivalent. Enrollment in the most recent term was 1,800.

'Old army' point in time, memories

FT. LEWIS, Wash. — The "old Army" is a point of view.

It's usually a personal matter.

To a former soldier who has not had a close-up view of military life since his own days in uniform, the point of comparison changes with age and with the span of time under consideration.

For some, that may be but a few years. Or it may be as much as 20 years, possibly even longer.

Today, with the U.S. Army relying on volunteers to fill its ranks, there have been changes made in the past few years which are considered almost heretical by old line regulars with stripes and hashmarks from shoulder to wrist.

Some of those changes — such as beer in barracks, lack of "K" duty in garrison for line units, and a less rigid atmosphere — have been instituted to make the Army more attractive to prospective enlistees.

A two-day visit to this post for a newsman whose Army years were during and immediately after the Korean War provided an opportunity for comparing the "old Army" of the middle 1950's and a service being adapted to a time when the military is not held in the highest esteem.

There are some differences. But there are many aspects of service life which seemed little changed.

Clothing, weapons, equipment, insignia are different. Some of the changes reflect lessons of the Vietnam war.

For some men, quarters are one or two man rooms instead of barracks bays holding bunks for 30 or more men. There are rugs on the floor, posters on the walls. There is a less formal attitude between officers and enlisted men — although officers are still saluted and called "Sir" by their subordinates and by enlisted men.

Still, some aspects of service life are little changed.

Food is served in a dining hall instead of a mess hall, with plastic covers on four man tables instead of a small building holding bare tables seating 10 or a dozen. And the diners have a choice of a regular meal or short orders, washed down with a choice of coffee, soft drinks or milk, rather than a fixed menu for all diners.

The long line of men waiting to eat is still a fact of life. As soldiers have long done — and probably always will — they exchange badinage or voice their gripes while they wait, and view with suspicion and curiosity anyone passing them for the head of the line.

There is still pride in a unit and its accomplishments.

Between long-time soldiers, there is still found the less formal attitude which minimizes but does not erase a difference in rank because it is based on professional respect.

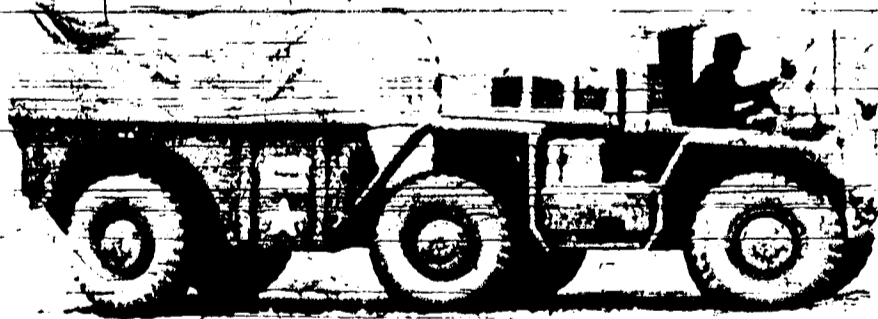

There are fewer troop assemblies and formal coronations. But some of the latter remain, fortunately.

There is something stirring — be it patriotism, sentiment, or some other unknown and undefined emotion — in the rendition of "To the Colors" echoing across a post, with saluting troops at attention for the lowering of the flag as long prescribed.

There are many changes in the Army. Some have been wrought by war, others by peacetime technical advancements and still others by changing attitudes.

The "old Army" is now a point of view and a matter of memory.

But there are many of the attitudes, the duties and the activities which make up the routine life of the soldier which have changed little — and because human nature changes only slightly will probably never change.

Fairfield youth employed in D.C.

JAKE HANSEN
OEO employee

FAIRFIELD — A 19-year-old Fairfield youth is working this year in the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington, D.C.

Jake Hansen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lev. rd Hanser, Fairfield, is in the migrant and Indian division of the OEO. In a special assignment to the associate director, he said in a telephone interview, "Basically, I help sort congressional mail."

"The bureaucracy here is shocking," he said. "A simple letter often has to go through five or six departments before signing. It seems pretty needless to me," he said.

"I also work as a congressional liaison. I take materials and speeches from Congress to my office and back," he said.

"The OEO is doing a lot of work on migrant programs in the west, and much of our work is involved with OEO financial grants," he said.

"You'd be proud of my office," Hansen said. "It has Sun Valley posters and a map of Idaho decorating it."

"I never realized what Idaho had to offer until I left it," he said. "Just to go out and catch a trout or something is a privilege."

"I came here because I wanted to see what federal government was like," Hansen said. "I had had some taste of campaigning in state government as Boise College vice chairman of Young Voters for the President last year, and I also worked as a page in the Idaho State Senate in January and February. I've been working all along with the Young Republicans National Federation."

"We're convinced that the President had no prior knowledge of Watergate," he said. "We also think that the Republican Party will pull out of this and might make a showing in next year's election."

"Since I've been here," Hansen said, "I've been interviewed by the Washington Post, and also by the New Republic. A reporter from the St. Louis Post Dispatch was trying to get me to implicate someone for more Watergate type news, I think," he said. "That's a joke, considering my lowly status, but he did use a lot of sneaky journalism trade tricks such as asking a series of yes or no questions and then popping in a loaded question."

"I haven't seen anything in print yet," he said.

Hansen is a 1972 graduate of Wood River High School and has spent much winter time with his parents at Soldier Mountain north of Fairfield where, until this winter, they were partners in ownership of the ski area. He has instructed at the Soldier Mountain Ski School for "about four years."

"There's just no way in Washington to get the exercise I want," he said. "Living expenses are high, although so far the gas shortage hasn't affected me."

"One thing I've found," he said. "It's easy to get lost around this place. Of course I've done a lot of sightseeing. And I did see the Skylab launching in Cape Kennedy, Fla., in May. Craig Thompson from Kelchum flew out with me, and then we took in the Washington sights too. We went to a concert at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts," he said.

"I've even been up toward Buffalo, N. Y., looking for mountains which, of course, I didn't find," he said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John E. Ingersoll quit Friday after six years as head of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs (BNDD), saying he was squeezed out in a reorganization of federal programs because former presidential aides John D. Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman "were out to get me."

Under the reorganization, to take effect this weekend, the BNDD will be abolished and a new "Drug Enforcement Administration" will be set up to combat narcotics traffic in the United States and abroad.

Ingersoll submitted his resignation to Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson, recalling in his letter that he had been advised last February by then Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst that he would not be appointed to head the new agency because of opposition from "unnamed White House officials."

Since then, Ingersoll told a news conference, he had concluded that "it was pretty obvious that Ehrlichman and Haldeman were out to get me." Asked to explain why he blamed the two presidential aides, who resigned April 30 as a result of the Watergate scandal, Ingersoll said he could not be specific.

"It's hard to describe," he said. "It's the kind of thing you had to live with every day."

Ingersoll also said he had never met alone with President Nixon to discuss the government's efforts to fight the narcotics problem.

Ingersoll, 43, formerly police chief of Charlotte, N.C., said he was going to work for a private firm to run its international security program. He declined to name the company.

In his letter to Richardson, Ingersoll wrote, "Last February, as you know, your predecessor (Kleindienst) advised me that unnamed White House officials did not intend to retain me after the drug control program was reorganized."

AMA may study ethics

His prediction Thursday that the issue of euthanasia would become a focal point of public concern followed by one day the murder indictment brought against a New York physician, Dr. Vincent Montemarano, for the alleged mercy killing of a man with terminal cancer.

Astronauts in good condition

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab commander Charles "Pete" Conrad said Friday "so sickness and stories about other astronauts returning to earth 'parched out' his partner, Joseph P. Kerwin at the end of their 28-day mission."

"All of us were surprised we are in as good shape as we were," Conrad said at the first news conference since he, Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz returned from their journey.

"Joe just got sunbaked out there," he said. "That command module was really bobbing. Joe turned green for no reason other than he was sea sick."

Kerwin, the first U.S. astronaut-physician, said it was clear there were some immediate physical changes in returning from four weeks in weightlessness, "and we paid the price for it."

But he said by last Sunday all three crewmen were able to do a normal day's work. "In flight it was continuous and pleasant surprise to me to find out how easy it was to live in zero (gravity) and how good you feel," the space doctor said.

Conrad and Kerwin agreed that with "reasonable, normal health," the average man or woman could eventually expect to fly aboard future space stations.

Conrad said he was pleased with the accomplishments of his flight aboard the giant space station and it will be "no strain" for two other three-man

Crampton moves 2 shots ahead in Western open

CHICAGO (UPI) — Australian Bruce Crampton, an early favorite and pro golfer's biggest money-maker this year, swept into the third round lead of the Western Open golf tournament Saturday, nudging early leader Billy Casper aside with a five-under-par round of 66 and a 54-hole total of 201.

Crampton was only two strokes off Friday's 129-pace set by Irwin heading into the three-quarter stage of the 72-hole grid.

He made his run for the lead with four birdies on the first nine holes, and five more coming in his card were 12 strokes under par for the 54 holes over the 6,654-yard Midlothian Country Club layout, which Crampton called "a not very demanding golf course."

Crampton's view appeared to be borne out by the fact that 46 of the 77 tourney players were hitting under par 71.

Caldwell Legion breezes to doubleheader win over T.F.

The Caldwell American Legion team benefitting from errors and pounding out enough hits to make them all count, drubbed Twin Falls 11-0 and 13-1 in a doubleheader Saturday.

Twin Falls hit three hits in the opener and contributed some extra base hitting and RBIs of his own. In the five-inning game, Fred Wigglesworth and Spran combined for the victory.

Caldwell added another on two errors in the third and an error provided an unearned run in the fifth.

The teams are slated to play a single game at 11:30 a.m. Sunday at Jaycee Park.

Caldwell took the lead in the second inning of the opener when Summa drew a walk and Guy followed with a double.

In the sixth inning, Caldwell put together four hits and a pair of walks for four runs and Guy highlighted a four-run seventh with a two-run triple.

Kansas City sweeps pair from Rangers

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Amos O'Leary drove in two runs in the eighth with a single and his 13th homer Saturday night to spark the Kansas City Royals to a 4-2 victory over the Texas Rangers for a sweep of their doubleheader.

Dick Drago scattered 11 hits and Steve Howley belted a three-run homer in the opener as the Royals posted an 8-3 triumph.

O'Leary singled home a run in the sixth inning and homered in the eighth as the Royals handed Sonny Siebert his seventh loss in 12 decisions.

The Royals broke Siebert's string of scoreless innings at 22 and 11th without an earned run at 25 when they took a 1-0 lead in the fourth on John Mayberry's bad-hop run-scoring single.

Howley's homer in the eighth was the Royals' seventh loss in 12 decisions.

Bob Floyd also singled home a run for the Royals in the eighth.

Irwin, a former all-Big Eight football player at the University of Colorado, started off his unsatisfying play by bogeying the 33rd and 34th holes. He missed the 15th green for a bogey five, and he was wide again when he fired a two-iron for the 37th green.

Casper, the 1969 Western Open winner, turned in a four-birdie card in his 67 round, and said he "played as well as I could expect."

"I'm in good position for the finale," Arnold Palmer's 68 in the third round gave him a 205 and left him in fourth position. At 206 were Miller Barber, Larry Hinson and Rich Crawford. Lee Trevino had a 207.

Frazier promises to show off new form

LONDON (UPI) — Joe Frazier says when he meets European champion Joe Bugner July 2, the fans will see a very different Frazier from the one George Foreman stopped in two rounds.

The bookies believe him. "We have been taking bets on how long Bugner will last than anything else," said a spokesman for a leading London bookie.

The odds offered a prospective Frazier backer are hardly tempting. It's 2-7 for a Frazier win, but anyone willing to risk a little cash on the action can get at least 5-2.

That does not say too much for Bugner's chances against the former world champion, but the big-blond Hungarian-born boxer does not let it worry him.

"They said I had no chance against Muhammad Ali and I won the title," Frazier said.

"Well, obviously now I believe Joe has a very good chance of beating Frazier," Smith said, "but not just because of the Foreman defeat Frazier suffered."

Frazier said he is picking up around $250,000—the deal also includes half the U.S. television rights, figured it a little differently.

"I just want my title back and Bugner is the first step towards that goal," said Frazier who scoffed at a suggestion from one questioner that his tough 15-rounder against Ali may have taken a little more out of him that he realized.

"I don't think Ali should have any of the credit for the Foreman defeat," he said. "I've thought over that Foreman fight and I know what the problem was. I should have been much more mobile and next time I'll be so much faster there won't be any mistake."

How did he figure on handling Bugner, who like Foreman, will have a big advantage in height and reach?

Twins drop Angels, claim second place

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Designated hitter Tony Oliva collected four hits in five at bats to drive in three runs and Joe Lis added a two-run double Saturday night as the Minnesota Twins defeated the California Angels, 6-3.

The Twins' second consecutive win over California enabled them to advance into second place in the American League West race, just one-half game behind Oakland.

The Angels, in first place on Thursday, dropped beneath Chicago into fourth place, a game and a half out.

Oliva singled with a two-out, two-run double to put the Twins ahead 4-0.

California ended a scoreless string of 27 2-3 innings in the fifth by scoring twice off winner Joe Decker. Ken Berry doubled home the runs following singles by Vada Pinson and Richie Scheinblum.

Idaho sets 14 homer cage games

MOSCOW, Idaho — Coach Wayne Anderson will have a home schedule of 14 games this fall and winter as the Vandal basketball team faces six new teams in their 26-game schedule.

The Vandals will open at home on Dec. 1 with Doane College of Nebraska and will then face other newcomers in Arizona State at Tempe, Arizona at Tucson, Arizona, Western Washington at Moscow, University of Utah at Salt Lake City, and Cal State at Santa Barbara at Moscow.

Non-conference teams which the Vandals have faced in the past and will meet this season include Nevada Reno, Seattle Pacific, Puget Sound, University of Portland, Portland State and Washington State.

Anderson feels that he has much improved varsity team returning with the loss of only one senior, 6-2 guard Chris Clark.

Steve Weist, a 6-2 sophomore who led the Vandals in scoring average last year in just 12 games, will return and he will be coming back in some good company.

Steve Ton, who led the team with 293 points, Ty Fitzpatrick, a veteran guard, Marty Stegwein, a 6-7 forward, and Roger Davis, a 6-9 center who led the conference with a 11.9 average in rebounds, gained valuable experience last season. In addition, Rick Nelson, junior forward at 6-6, Jim Valentino, a 6-11 guard, Sid Hansen, a 6-8 center, and Bob Jorgensen, a 6-6 forward, all saw plenty of action last year.

UP from the freshman team will be Roy Deaton, a 6-7 center, and Dick Fields, a 6-2 guard.

Record?

IDAHO FALLS, (UPI) — An Idaho Falls bowler may have set a new Idaho record for a bowling series in league play by rolling an 822 series.

Ken Hendelman, manager of the Bowler-L Bowling lanes where Rossi played Friday night with the Navy Midriers team said although there have been persons who bowled an 800 series in open play he cannot recall anyone rolling an 800 series in league play.

Rossi in the three separate games rolled a 279, a 278 and 265.

Idaho has a great variety of boating waters for just about any craft. The greatest acreage is in large reservoirs and lakes, which supply excellent water skiing opportunities in addition to trolling and boat fishing. Some of the more important waters of this type are the series of large lakes in North Idaho—Pend Oreille, Coeur d'Alene and Priest. Larger reservoirs are scattered throughout the Snake River system with some of the more heavily utilized being Brownlee, Lucky Peak, Anderson Ranch, C. J. Strike, Magic, Blackfoot, and Pallasades. I've often thought a sailboat would be a lot of fun on these waters with the winds we normally have. One caution during the summer months, if a black thunderhead appears it is best to get off the lake in a hurry, because waters can really whip up on these large bodies of water. It is also a good safety precaution to head for shore if lightning is striking, since a person in a boat is the highest object on water and could be struck.

Idaho is probably best known for its wild rivers suitable for rubber rafting, pontoon rafting, kayaking, drift boating or jet boats. The most famous is the Middle Fork of the Salmon River, which is classified as one of the nation's wild rivers. The water conditions dictate what portions of the river can be run with various crafts. Two years ago several people drowned in the Middle Fork and main Salmon River, by trying to run it, when best to check with the U.S. Forest Service, who administers the area, before attempting it. Low water can be just as bad as high water, since it exposes many more rocks which make it unsuitable for running with the larger craft. The main Salmon from the end of the road at Corn Creek clear to its mouth is spectacular water with some of the biggest rapids near the mouth. Both the Middle Fork and main Salmon are not for beginning boaters. I've run the

My advice to the beginning boater on river systems is to try your outfit on smaller rivers first. Some really nice runs for families are the lower St. Joe, lower Clearwater from Croppin downstream, the lower Selway from Selway Falls to Kooskia, the Boise and Payette Rivers in the Boise Valley, the upper Salmon River from Smiley's Lodge downstream to the steel bridge about 2 miles upstream from Redfish Lake Creek, and many other smaller streams. Don't go below this steel bridge in the upper Salmon River, unless you know what you're doing, since it has a hazardous canyon section right below it.

One of the nice floats for a little more experienced person is the South Fork of the Snake River below Pallasades Dam. This is good fishing in it and enough rapids to make it thrilling. A canoeist has many opportunities for interesting trips with such areas as Silver Creek near Ketchum, again the Boise and Payette Rivers in the Boise Valley, and other smaller streams. I saw several canoeists on Redfish Lake and Alturas Lake, which make nice trips when the valleys are hot and mountain lake shoreline is real attractive. In fact, canoes can be used very effectively for jump shooting ducks on some of our streams, in addition to an excellent fishing outfit for reaching hard target waters.

On caution for all these activities, don't overload your boat and wear those life preservers! It's required by law.

LA nips Reds

8-7 in 13th

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Manny Mota doubled and came home on Lee Lacy's two-out single off reliever Ed Sprague, in the 13th inning Saturday night, giving the Los Angeles Dodgers an 8-7 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

George Culver, the last of five Dodger pitchers, blanked the Reds over the last two innings, to pick up his fourth victory against four losses. The loss was the third straight against no victories for Sprague, one of six pitchers used by the Reds in the game.

Cincinnati's Joe Morgan, sidelined with an upset stomach, came off the bench in the ninth inning and hit a two-run pinch-homer off lefty Pete Richter to tie the game at 7-7. Los Angeles, Cincinnati

Wood, now 14-11, was touched for back-to-back homers by Bando and Jackson in the first inning and Jackson's 16th roundtripper snapped a 2-2 tie in the fourth. Bando's home run was his 15th, equalling his entire 1972 total.

Dave Hamilton stopped Chicago on four singles before being lifted in the eighth inning and is now 5-1 after an 0-1 1973 start. His only trouble came in the third, when Carlos May singled home both Chicago runs with two outs after a pair of walks and John Jeter's base hit.

Probably the most dangerous of all river runs in Idaho is the Hells Canyon section of the Snake River. It has one rapid near Granite Creek that the jet boats stay away from and the main people that run through that area are the outfitters with very large pontoon rafts. It is most dangerous because of the tremendous force of that big water, which is not really apparent when looking at some of the smooth sections of the river.

San Diego scored its other run in the sixth on doubles by Locklear and Roberts.

Arlin, now 4-5, didn't allow a runner past first base and gave up only one walk. He struck out seven in pitching his first shutout in 11 starts this season. Roberts' looping single to center drove in Gene Locklear with the Padres' first run in the first. Locklear and John Grubb hit Teagoff singles and Grubb moved to third on Roberts' single. He scored on Nate Colbert's sacrifice fly.

To the surprise of just about no one, Rick Sobers, latest of College of Southern Idaho's all-American baseball players, has signed a national letter of intent to attend University of Nevada at Las Vegas.

That brings Rick together with Jerry Tarkanian, who built Long Beach into a national power the past couple of years. Tarkanian long has been regarded as one of the super recruiters in the college game. A fact amply substantiated in the out-of-sight offer Las Vegas made to get him to shift jobs.

CSI Coach Jerry Hale said "Rick looked at a lot of things on the final schools before he chose Las Vegas. Maryland and San Francisco both should have good teams next year and be nationally ranked. But both are being carried by seniors and they'll be gone when Rick's a senior. Las Vegas is going to be respectable next year and win its share of games but it also is a young team and should be considerably stronger Rick's senior year."

The name of the game is exposure. One little tidbit to the Tarkanian recruitment of Sobers. The coach took Rick to lunch in Sun Valley about six weeks ago and we happened to be talking to coach Hale when they came back. Sobers went down on the floor to play and the three of us stood there watching. Basically, it was a matter of Tarkanian asking questions like "how do you rate his quickness" and Coach Hale replying "excellent."

After a brief lull, Coach Hale almost broke Coach Tarkanian's neck with a statement that started with Tarkanian looking almost bored and ended with a snap of the head upward and practically wide-mouthed disbelief.

Very quietly, Coach Hale said "he's (Sobers) a better talent than the boy you played at Long Beach this year."

Still staring downward, Tarkanian asked, "which kid?"

"Ratleff," said Hale.

That really spun Coach Tarkanian around since Coach Hale was referring to Ed Ratleff, Long Beach's two-time all-American and one of the very top picks in the pro draft.

For those CSI fans bemoaning the loss of Sobers as an interesting player to watch, let us just say Arnold Dugger will be here. Something for the veterans to think about. John Irwin, a 17-year-old senior to be at Kimberly high school, had a few spare minutes on his hands last Wednesday and decided to go bowling.

Twelve games later he had run off series scores of 694, 703, 679 and 633 for an average of 224 per game. His high game was 246 with three games in the 240s and the low was 185, the ninth game of his session.

Kirk Williams, a 1965 graduate of Twin Falls who has been bon vivant-ing it around the world the past few months, decided to go serious and applied for a job. He broke up the sophomore basketball position at Borah high school and may assist with baseball.

Ed Ratleff, a former NFL player, died Saturday evening of a Chicago hospital.

Layden, 76, was head football coach and athletic director at Notre Dame from 1934 to 1940 and was NFL commissioner from 1941 until 1946, the World War II years. He later became an executive of a Chicago area transportation firm.

He married the former Edythe Davis and the couple had four children, Joanne, Elmer Jr., Pat and Mike.

Ironically, Layden died at Passavant Hospital about the time the first edition of the Chicago Tribune reached the street carrying a column by syndicated sportswriter Red Smith entitled "Get Well Card for Layden."

In the column Smith wrote that news of Layden's illness reached him shortly after the death of Frank Leahy, who followed Layden as coach at Notre Dame.

"So this is a sort of 'get well' card for a guy who is all class," Smith wrote.

Layden first earned fame as the fullback in college football's most famous backfield, the Four Horsemen. With Harry Stuhldreher at quarterback, Jim Crowley at left half and Don Miller at right half, the quartet led Notre Dame to an 18-1 record in 1923 and 1924, with Layden gaining a first team berth on the Walter Camp All-America squad in 1924.

After a brief lull, Coach Hale almost broke Coach Tarkanian's neck with a statement that started with Tarkanian looking almost bored and ended with a snap of the head upward and practically wide-mouthed disbelief.

Padres' Arlin blanks Astros

HOUSTON (UPI) — Steve Arlin pitched a three hit shutout and Daye Roberts drove in two runs with a double and a single to pace the San Diego Padres to a 3-0 triumph over the slumping Houston Astros Saturday night.

Secretariat romps to match win

CHICAGO (UPI) — Secretariat, the chestnut wonder horse, easily galloped to a convincing victory over three rivals Saturday in a $125,000 invitational race at Arlington Park.

Secretariat, carrying 126 pounds and ridden by Ron Turcotte, was shooting for the track record of 1:46 4/5 for the distance and the world mark of 1:46 1/5 and he might have gotten both of them had he been pressed.

Thus, without pressure, he was clocked at 1:47, missing the track record of Damascus set six years ago by a fifth of a second and the world mark set by Figonero four years ago by four-fifths of a second.

He was out of the gate last in the field of four but almost before the clock was turned on scant yards from the starting gate, he was in front and appeared to be going eased up with none of his rivals, My Gallant, Our Native, or Blue Chip Dan, able to put on the pressure.

Secretariat was widening his margin over My Gallant in the stretch and captured the race by nine lengths. My Gallant edged Our Native by a neck and Blue Chip Dan finished last, 17 lengths out.

Betting was restricted to win only, with Secretariat against the field. The crowd, estimated at more than 35,000, bet $224,605 on the stake, laying $196,691 on the Meadow Stable colt to make him a 1-10 favorite.

Secretariat scored his 13th victory in 16 starts, including one race in which he finished first but was disqualified, and boosted his bankroll to $970,343, putting him well on the road to becoming racing's 11th-million dollar horse.

It was his fourth straight victory and his sixth in seven starts this year, with the disqualification costing him the other decision.

Secretariat put on his greatest speed in the final three quarters. He was two seconds slower than Damascus on his record setting turn at the quarter and the half, four fifths behind at the three-quarters in 1:11 and only two fifths behind at the mile with 1:35.

Secretariat returned the legal minimum of $2.10, required by state law, and there was a chance for a minus pool.

However, because many tickets on Secretariat were expected to be retained as souvenirs and not cashed, the track could come out ahead despite the one-sided betting on the sensational thoroughbred, already rated as perhaps the greatest ever.

The race probably was one of the last four or five for the super horse before he is to be retired to stud Nov. 15. He has been syndicated for $6,080,000 and can run only until that date before going into the breeding barns.

Trainer Lucien Laurin indicated that Secretariat probably would make his next start in the Travers at Saratoga and later could run in the Suburban at New York, facing older horses there for the first time.

My Gallant's second place finish under Craig Perret paid $30,000 to boost his bankroll to $143,520, while Our Native got $50,000 for third to raise his earnings to $336,844. Our Native was ridden by Tony Rini and Blue Chip Dan by Leslie Ahrens. All three carried 120 pounds.

Part of the crowd was admitted to the infield for the first time in Arlington history and several thousand were held outside the turf course rail until the horses were coming into the gate.

Then they broke through the lines, crossed the turf course and lined up against a second barrier some 15 feet from the dirt track on which Secretariat raced.

For the presentation of the trophy, they swarmed onto the main track and surrounded the area in which Mrs. Penny Tweedy, operator of Meadow Stable, and Laurin received the trophies.

Secretariat, Horse of the Year as a 2-year-old, is the ninth horse and the first in 25 years to win the Triple Crown events.

Teen-ager grabs two-stroke lead in Lady Tara tournament

ATLANTA (UPI) — Teen-age sensation Laura Baugh fired an even-par 73 Saturday to take a two-stroke lead after the second round of the Lady Tara Golf Classic.

Miss Baugh, an 18-year-old playing in her first professional tournament, survived a double bogey on the 15th hole to finish at three-under-par 143.

First round co-leader Sandra Haynie came in with a 75 and was tied for second at 145 with Judy Rankin and Bonnie Bryant, who both shot 72s Saturday.

"I'm sure I'm going to be nervous tomorrow but it feels great right now," said Miss Baugh, who earned her LPGA playing card the day before the tournament began.

"I got really mad after that double bogey at 15 and I was determined to get that birdie at 16."

Sharon Miller, who switched to cross-handed putting, shot a three-under-par 70 and was all alone at even-par 146. Mary Mills shot a 70 for a 147.

All-time LPGA money leader Kathy Whitworth had a 75-150 total, and Jane Blalock, who won here in 1970 and 1971, finished 75-152.

"I just got tired," said Miss Haynie, who held the lead most of the day but finished with a fat four over-par 40 on the back nine of the Indian Hills Country Club course. "I just flat gave out—I was wondering when it would happen."

Miss Baugh, of Long Beach, Calif., finished the day just as she had the opening round—without a bogey. The double bogey at 15 was the only hole she played over par.

"I was playing pretty steady out there but I just fell asleep at 15," the dimpled, blue-eyed blonde said. "I feel like I could have played better."

"It's great to be in this position but most of the time I like to come from behind."

"When you know you're behind and you catch up on the final holes, it's just a great feeling."

looking. I'll go out there tomorrow and play the best I can and see if it holds up," Miss Baugh said.

TF standings don't reflect tournament

Midpoint standings of the Twin Falls stowpitch league hardly reflect the finals of last weekend's city tournament.

Only First Federal Shuffle Inn is in the same place, second in the A league, while tourney winner Depot Grill-Turf Club is tied for fourth and tourney third place Culligan-Paris-Bank and Trust is running first at 10-1. The fourth place tournament team Pepsi Cola, leads the B league at 10-2.

The standings, as released by statistician Julie Astoria, show Paris-Culligan at 10-1 with First Federal and Royal Lounge tied at 83. Depot Grill and The Alley are knotted at 7-4. East Five Points is 4-7, Ford Transfer 3-7, Taco Bandido 3-8, Maxie's Pizza 2-8 and Klover Klub 2-9.

Gains and Master Sheet Metal are one game behind Pepsi Cola at 9-3 in the "B" league while Wills Motor and Ken Rolfe continued atop the "B" hitting parade, although D. Coats has trimmed the difference to .008 at .667 to .659. Larry Wahl is .611, Karl Malone .590, Ted Manker .582, Wayne Carroll .569, Steve Gentry and Wuthrich .558 and Larry Weeks .551.

Rick Gatley and Rocky Reece lead the A loop with four homers while Paul Epperson has seven to lead "B" clouters.

Matlack hurls Mets past Chicago 2-1

CHICAGO (UPI) — Southpaw Jon Matlack scattered four hits and Willie May's doubled home a run Saturday to lead the New York Mets to a 2-1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs before a national television audience.

Matlack, 5-10, struck out three and walked three. Matlack survived an eighth-inning showdown by striking out Ron Santo with two men on and two out.

Mays put the Mets on the scoreboard in the third inning with an opposite field double to score Teddy Martinez who had angled and sacrificed to second.

The Mets scored the winning run in the fourth. After Ken Boswell walked and raced to third on a single by Rusty Staub, George Theodore grounded slowly to Santo at third. Santo's throw to the plate attempting to pin Boswell, was too late and Boswell scored.

The Cubs scored in the sixth on a single by Don Kessinger and Jose Cardenas's double inside the leftfield line.

Lozer Bert Hooton, 6-8, also scattered five hits.

TV cameras zero in on Perry's pitch

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gaylord Perry's "spitter" may not be discernible to the naked eye, but those TV cameras are something else.

Perry, a veteran 34-year-old pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, who won the Cy Young award in his first year at Cleveland in 1972, has been accused repeatedly during his career of putting something on the ball besides his fingers. He has been charged with applying everything to the baseball—from saliva all the way to vaseline.

Despite many examinations by umpires, Perry has never been caught in the act. Once the umpires even had Perry disrobe in the locker room so they could check his clothes. They couldn't come up with any evidence of him using any foreign substance.

Now, however, the inexorable eye of the TV camera has been brought to bear on Perry's delivery.

ABC cameras were trained on the Cleveland right-hander during Friday night's game with the New York Yankees. Perry lost the game 7-2, giving up two homers to Roy White and one to Bobby Murcer, but what could be more significant perhaps was the TV camera's detection of Perry going to his armpits and putting a foreign substance on the ball. This action was shown in slow-motion replay.

Bobby Bragan, former Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Atlanta manager and now Texas League president as well as a member of the baseball's Rules Committee, did the TV color commentary on the study of Perry and said that in his opinion several pitches were "definitely doctored," and he thinks Perry does throw a spitter.

The tape showing this was seen nationally Saturday afternoon on Wide World of Sports, but Perry had little to say about the filmed segment because he did not see it.

"How can I comment on the tape when I haven't seen or heard it yet?" Perry said.

Perry did comment that he occasionally lets some sweat get on the ball, but he didn't consider that a foreign substance.

Tom Payne convicted of rape

MARIETTA, Ga. (UPI) — Tom Payne, former Atlanta Hawks basketball player already serving two years for rape, faced a new 15-year sentence for rape and sodomy Saturday after he was convicted of attacking a 42-year-old woman.

An all-white jury of seven men and five women deliberated for four hours Friday night before finding the 7-foot-2 former University of Kentucky center guilty.

Before sentencing, Payne stood and told the jury, "I'm a man. I'm all man. I stand seven-two ... I'm proud and I don't kick anybody's shoe."

Payne also faced the victim and said, "I'm telling you right now I never saw that woman in my life before I came into this courtroom." The woman replied, "Oh, yes you have."

Judge Howell C. Ravan, who called Payne's statement, "an affront to everything America stands for," threatened defense lawyer Howard Moore with contempt when Moore criticized individual jurors after the verdict was in, but before sentencing.

Allen's leg broken

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dr. Gerald Lotus, Chicago White Sox team physician, Saturday confirmed an earlier diagnosis that Sox star infielder Dick Allen suffered a hairline fracture of the fibula in his lower left leg during play Thursday night, and the Sox put Allen on the 15-day disabled list.

Lotus put the leg in heavy bandage wrappings. He said he felt that after 15 days Allen would be able to return to the roster, but he would not speculate on how much he would be able to play. The Sox meanwhile recalled outfielder Buddy Bradford from the Iowa Cubs, their farm club in the American Association.

Look at sleep, that's what some University of California researchers say is most apt to cause the blues. Majority of people, they contend, suffer same about one sixth of the time. About one half the time, they believe, the majority is in neutral, not up nor down, just so-so.

It has been discovered that a man ordinarily manufactures the greatest amount of male sex hormones about 8 a.m. daily, the least amount about midnight. But wait, the New York Medical College researchers, who found this out, say it doesn't necessarily tell you when a fellow is most romantic. It has more to do with meeting his energy requirements to get his work done, they believe.

What kills the most people in Japan are apoplexy, heart disease, cancer and traffic smashups in that order.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS

Q "What proportion of all boys are named after their fathers? And after their grandfathers?"

A About 35 per cent for their fathers, about 17 per cent for their grandfathers. Or so the surveys indicate. Doesn't mean each of the 35 per cent is a "Junior" or each of the 17 per cent is a "The Third". Frequently, they just take a first or middle name from their dads or granddads, but not necessarily the name entire.

Q "How can you tell the female guinea fowls from the male guinea fowls?"

A Only by their noises. The female shrieks a two-syllable sound like "buckwheat." The male, a one-syllable sound like "quill."

Q "Has the birth control pill hurt the maternity clothing business?"

A Badly. Understand sales are nowhere nearly as high as predicted several years ago.

POCKETS

A head waiter of lengthy experience says two out of three men who walk into his plush restaurant immediately plunge their hands into their pockets to assume a casual air. He counts clothes that stem from this hands-in-pockets mannerism in the average fellow's first reaction to self-consciousness. Maybe so. I toyed with this minor notion the other day in a conversation with a police polygraph operator. He said yes, almost every man assigned to take such a test walks in with his hands in his pockets.

You know that sort of bicycle with the underslung handlebars? Requires the rider to peddle the bike in a bent-over position. Fat's some getting used to. But medical experts confirm the claim that it's more natural, more efficient, more comfortable to ride a bike that way than to sit straight up.

Exactly how they found out I don't know, but university scholars say mothers and dads talk to girl babies more than to boy babies. Much more.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JULY 1, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES. A beautiful day for relaxing and getting in tune for the activities of the summer, especially where your own household is concerned. If you wish to entertain, be sure to include members of your own clan. Make future plans.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan to start an uptrend where your basic affairs are concerned, otherwise you could get into trouble now. A thoughtful act toward those with whom you have alliance is wise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Tune in with the Infinite today, whether at services or wherever and get a spiritual uplift. Then engage in hobbies you like with persons who are congenial. Do something pleasing for them.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan how to have greater prosperity in the future while having holiday fun. Don't add to present expenses or you will regret it later. Try not to judge another too harshly.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Do those things that make your life more meaningful and show compassion to those in need. Do some studying of your surroundings and see where to make proper improvements.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Visit a charming place where you can be inspired and build up your health as well. Do some meditation that will help you to know how to make the future brighter and more abundant.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Spend as much time as you can with good friends and have a good interchange of ideas and delightful conversation. Gain their goodwill. Stop being so anti-social. Enjoy life more.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day to be active in the outside world and to engage in philanthropic or civic work that appeals to you. Talk the future over with an influential person who can assist you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You know exactly what you want to do, where you want to go, and persons you want to see, so get an early start and make big headway. Discuss an important matter with a trusted friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Tap your subconscious for the right answers you seek, and then act without delay. The one you love is in a fine mood and this can be a very happy evening for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Ideal day to get a situation clarified with a friend which has been difficult to do in the past. Go out with mate to some outside pleasures that can be mutually enjoyable.

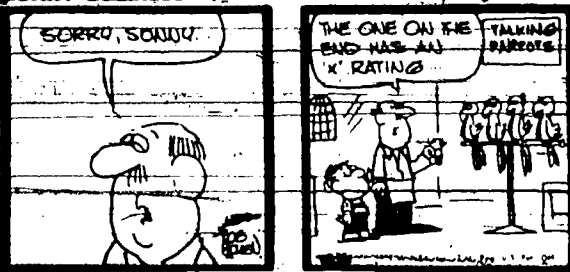

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get in touch with persons who have been very kind to you in the past and show how much you appreciate them. Plan some time for improving your health. Happiness can easily be yours.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Visit a cheerful person and be inspired yourself, while having a delightful time. Listen to what admirers have to say so that you can add to present happiness. Relax at home tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those sensitive young people who will need the direction of others throughout a long lifetime in order to have a happy life and do the best work. Fame could come in the field of music, writing or other creative fields. Teach to stand on own two feet to avoid a martyr complex. Live as fine an education as you can afford. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Banker tells 'dire' story

(C) 1973, Chicago Sun-Times
CHICAGO — Unemployment will rise sharply, corporate profits will nosedive, interest rates will hit a post-civil war high.

That dire picture was drawn here at a press conference Thursday by the president of Chicago's fifth largest bank, William G. Ericsson, head of the American National Bank and Trust Co., said the current boom will fade fairly rapidly this year and the economy will approach near-recession in 1974. Unemployment could well rise to the 6 to 8 1/2 per cent level (it's 5 per cent now) while first-quarter 1974 corporate profits will be down some 20 per cent from the very high level of profits in 1973's first quarter.

Companies now are in a growing money squeeze, Ericsson said, as are banks. The prime rate — without government controls — should be at the 8 1/2 per cent plus level right now, he added, and despite federal government pressure may hit the 9 per cent level this summer.

In their competitive battle for depositor savings, banks are driving interest rates through the roof, the banker said. He added, however, that short-term rates should speak in the third quarter.

Ericsson also said he doubted investors will recover their confidence in the stock market for some time to come, he added: "we must get rid of the specialist system."

Also at the press conference, Vice President Milan Hibben said that "probably the most disconcerting aspect of all basic economic trends is the alarming rate of growth of debt, both public and private." Consumer overuse of credit has been a major factor in the current high level of inflation, Hibben said.

Council to meet
SHOSHONE — The City Council will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the city hall.

TF opening

New manager at Gibson's

TWIN FALLS — Thomas P. Newby Jr., has been named manager of the Gibson Discount Center store in Twin Falls.

He succeeds E. R. Phillips who had managed the firm since it opened two years ago.

Mr. Newby is a native of Twin Falls county. He was born in Twin Falls and attended schools in Buhl, graduating from the high school there in 1952. He joined Gibson's at the time the store opened here as a manager trainee and has been associated with the local outlet since that time.

He said he plans to continue the operation with the same personnel and company policies and maintain a continuous effort toward improvement.

Newby, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Newby, Sr., Twin Falls, is married to the former Nina L. Palmer, Gooding. The couple has four sons, ages 6, 8, 12 and 13.

Standard Oil keeps 'cool'

By EDWIN DARBY
(C) 1973, Chicago Sun-Times
Last year Standard Oil Co. of Indiana spent a cool billion dollars on worldwide explorations for oil and on new plant and equipment.

Always going back to the days when Indiana Standard was split off (1911) from the old Standard Oil trust, the company has had to work hard to assure itself of supplies of crude oil. Last year's effort was an intensification of a drilling and discovery program that has been going forward even more rapidly in recent years.

Paralleling the drive to find new sources of oil and natural gas, a major diversification program was begun by the company a dozen years ago. The diversification program has paid off handsomely for Standard, particularly in a day when it is forced to allocate gasoline to Amoco stations and to publish advertisements urging motorists to conserve gasoline.

Standard has stayed pretty well within its own area of technology and marketing expertise. Its first move was to find oil overseas and then to refine and sell petroleum products. By 1973 it was selling gasoline and other petroleum products overseas to the tune of 140,000 barrels a day.

Standard's new move, naturally enough, was into chemicals, plastics and fertilizers, all based on petroleum technology. Last year worldwide sales of these products increased 25 per cent over 1972.

"With reasonable luck," says Swearingen, "we should reach $1 billion in sales of these products in five or six years."

"We have two excellent proprietary positions. With our plants in Illinois, Alabama and Belgium, we produce one-half of the world's supply of resins that go into the making of polyester fibres (Double-knit clothing is one big growth factor.)

"Then we have a very prosaic but excellent business. We produce and weave polypropylene fabric. The big use is for the backing for carpets. Last year we produced 500 million square yards in this country and overseas.

"In both these areas we can't seem to add enough capacity to keep up with demand."

Loan officer picked

JEROME — Merna Johnson, Jerome, has been elected Timeway loan officer at the Jerome branch of the First Security Bank.

According to James E. Phelps, senior vice president and supervisor of the southwestern division, Mrs. Johnson has been with the bank since 1949 when she joined it as a bookkeeper.

She also has served as a paying and receiving teller and a note-teller as well as a clerk in the Timeway and proof departments until 1970 when she was elected operations officer.

A native of Santaquin, Utah, she moved to Idaho in 1946. She is a graduate of Jerome High School and is a member of the American Institute of Banking. She is active in the LDS Church and in the March of Dimes and is serving as treasurer of the Jerome chapter of the March of Dimes.

New manager named

SHOSHONE — Joe Egusquiza has become the new manager and operator of the Arco Service Station, Shoshone.

Egusquiza said he will be offering small vehicle service jobs and continue in the self-serve and regular Richfield service and the operations. He plans to remain open in the evening, as needed to accommodate patrons. He also offers Dodge, Chrysler and Plymouth automobiles for sale.

Egusquiza has been a resident of Shoshone for nearly three years. He is married to the former Becky-Health. They have a seven-week-old son.

miles per gallon coast-to-coast

We say our new Datsun 1200 delivers around 30 miles per gallon. But recently we drove a new Datsun 1200 from L.A. to New York, and without special equipment or special tuning, we averaged an incredible 37.9 miles per gallon. (Just $29.85 for gas, coast-to-coast!) The average car in America gets around 13 1/2 miles per gallon. It would cost nearly three times as much for the same trip! We think buying gasoline is one of the dullest things you can do with your money. Save real countable dollars with a new Datsun 1200!

Drive a Datsun... then decide.
