Devaluation rumors put dollar on skid

LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. dollar, already at an all time low, fell even further today in Europe, Hong Kong and Tokyo in the face of a flood of rumors that the United States would devalue the dollar for the third time this weekend.

The London Evening Standard said a major development to deal with the monetary crisis could be imminent and may involve linking European Common Market currencies to gold instead of the dollar. It said the situation had reached crisis dimensions and that "market men were talking of a crunch being imminent possibly this weekend."

The dollar bought less than four French francs in Paris today for the first time in 16 years. It reached an all time low against the Japanese yen and American tourists in Hong Kong got less than five Hong Kong dollars for $1 today for the first time in history.

It fell to new lows in Frankfurt and Zurich and there were reports that soon it might buy only two West German marks — and it would buy four less than a year ago. In Oslo the dollar changed hands at 6.16 Norwegian kroner, a 20 per cent decline since the dollar was devalued 10 per cent in February.

European market men have insisted that the dollar was undervalued and that there was no logical reason why it should continue to sink.

They have blamed it on the Watergate case and a lack of confidence in U.S. leadership, on the increasing U.S. balance of payments deficit, and on U.S. failure to move resolutely against inflation.

The United States last devalued the dollar on Feb. 12 when Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz announced a 10 per cent devaluation immediately, the second devaluation in 14 months. The first devaluation came when international exchange rates underwent a major revision in December 1971 at the Smithsonian meeting in Washington.

Since February the dollar has declined steadily and West Germany was forced to revalue its mark upwards. Theoretically that should have helped the dollar but the steady erosion continued and a new monetary crisis began building up. As the dollar fell, gold rose.

In Tokyo the dollar sank sharply to its all time low of 262 yen to the dollar just before the market closed today. On Thursday the rate was 265.35.

In Hong Kong the dollar fell to 4.98 Hong Kong dollars, below the 5 mark for the first time in history. The HK dollar is officially pegged at 5.085 by international monetary agreements but there was talk in Hong Kong the HK dollar would be allowed to float.

Wholesale prices zoom during June

(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — Wholesale prices soared 2.3 per cent last month, before President Nixon imposed a freeze, while the unemployment rate dropped below 5 per cent for the first time in three years, the Labor Department reported today.

The rate of joblessness declined from 5 per cent in May to 4.8 per cent in June, mainly because teenagers had an easier time than usual in finding work.

The 2.3 per cent rise in wholesale prices, adjusted to discount seasonal influences, works out to an annual rate of 27.6 per cent. That matched the March surge, which was the sharpest rise for any month since January, 1951.

Wholesale prices had risen 2 per cent in May. Nixon responded June 13 by clamping on a price freeze, to be followed by Phase 4 controls. Almost all the figures in today's price report were collected before the freeze.

Farm and food prices again led the way in the surge of wholesale prices, which inevitably influence consumer prices.

(Combining food and other goods, wholesale prices of consumer finished goods increased 1.8 per cent seasonally adjusted in June.

Reply sought

(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — The special Senate Watergate committee, meeting in a closed-door session next Tuesday, will consider how to get President Nixon to respond to charges leveled against him.

For more than a month, the President has refused to answer any Watergate accusations, including charges last week by former White House counsel, John W. Dean 3d that Nixon was deeply involved in the cover-up of the Watergate scandal.

Rufus Edmiston, deputy counsel of the committee, said Thursday the Watergate hearings have raised "a lot of questions that only the President can answer."

"The only way to determine if the statements attributed to the President are true" is to question the President about them, said Edmiston.

Idaho anti-porno law creates uncertainties

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Would you believe "True Confessions" is pornographic?

One Magic Valley magazine store owner apparently has some questions about that publication, and is no longer stocking it for sale. The reason for the uncertainty is the new Idaho anti-pornography law, a measure that passed in the last hours of the legislative session last winter and went into effect July 1.

According to Ron Silvers, area manager for Seven-Eleven Stores, a company in Salt Lake City official had ordered Playboy off the store racks by June 25 in anticipation of the law going into effect.

A check of the Twin Falls Albertson's store, however, indicated Playboy was available, although not displayed on magazine racks. A Playboy pocket book was on the bookstand inside the store one day this week, however.

Shelby's Twin Falls store still has Playboy for sale.

According to Mrs. Virginia Otto, Otto News

Agency, a Magic Valley magazine distribution business, a few dealers have stopped purchasing some magazines.

"We have never put out any hard core pornography," Mrs. Otto said, but a few dealers are returning "anything that's got a girl with a bikini in it," she said.

While the uncertainty of the new law has had an effect on business, Mrs. Otto said, "It hasn't been as horrible as we expected."

The uncertainty apparently is being felt in the Twin Falls county prosecutor's office, as well.

Twin Falls Prosecutor Robert W. Galley said in an interview the new state law as well as a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling have strengthened the hand of the prosecutor in dealing with pornography.

But Galley said he wasn't going to "rush headlong into anything." He said he wanted to be able to confer with other area officials on their approaches to the new law, and said he hoped some discussion would be held at the Idaho State Bar Association meeting next week at Sun Valley.

Contributions admitted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American Airlines acknowledged today that it made illegal contributions of $75,000 to President Nixon's re-election effort. It charged that Nixon's personal lawyer, Herbert W. Kalmbach, solicited the money. George A. Spater, the airlines chairman, said in a statement that he made cash contributions in five instalments between November 1971 and March 1972.

Uruguay protest broken up

MONTEVIDEO (UPI) — Police and army units using tear gas today broke up an antigovernment demonstration by students in downtown Montevideo. It was the first violent protest carried out in the city since the June 27 coup in which President Juan Maria Bordaberry at military urging dissolved the legislature and announced he would henceforth rule by decree.

Bank boosts prime rate

NEW YORK (UPI) — Midatlantic Banks Inc. Thursday announced a new increase in the prime interest rate from the recently achieved 8 per cent to 8 1/4 per cent.

The prime rate, the minimum banks charge to loan money to major commercial customers, has steadily increased in recent months. Some experts say it is only a matter of time until it reaches 8 1/2 per cent, which it last hit during the credit crunch of 1969-70.

Midatlantic said its seven member banks will go to 8 1/2 per cent Monday.

Chou rejects US visit

PEKING (UPI) — Premier Chou En-lai met today with members of a visiting American congressional delegation and complained bitterly about continued U.S. bombing in Cambodia. He also told the congressmen as they left that he would never visit the United States so long as the "Chiang Kai-shek clique" had an ambassador in Washington.

Snake's aquifer gets atom waste

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

ARCO — Radioactive wastes are being dumped into the Snake River aquifer near here. And plutonium, the most carcinogenic (cancer causing) agent known to man, is being buried in steel drums above the aquifer, although "some leakage" was detected in the drums in 1970.

Officials at the National Reactor Testing Station (NRTS) near Arco confirm Thursday the radioactive discharges and plutonium waste method, but deny any threat to human welfare.

Dr. Wayne Bills, director of production materials and the waste management division at the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) test site, says the Snake River aquifer will not become dangerously contaminated by radioactive wastes generated at the NRTS.

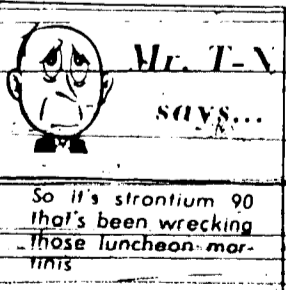

"We get our drinking water from the aquifer," he said. "If there was contamination, we would be the first affected." Cesium, strontium 90 and tritium, "low level" radioactive wastes, are discharged into the aquifer through wells and ponds at the NRTS, according to Bills, but cease to be dangerous long before they reach public water supply points.

He said equipment installed at the NRTS in 1971 reduces the radioactivity of strontium 90 and cesium by as much as 80 per cent before they are dumped into the aquifer.

Tritium is not treated before being discharged, Bills said. Deadly plutonium wastes are "packaged" in plastic bags and placed in steel drums, according to Bills. The drums are then stacked on an asphalt pad, covered with more plastic, and buried. The burial grounds "resemble bunkers"

Pork-lifting?

TWIN FALLS — Pig rustling?

Grand larceny charges were brought against a 41 year old Rock Creek man today in connection with the theft of about 150 pigs.

Sheriff Paul Corder said today Charles F. Chitt, 41, was in custody in lieu of $2,000 bond and investigation is continuing.

The man was arrested early today in Twin Falls and is charged with taking about 150 pigs from the Smith and Bauer hog ranches south of Kimberly. Officers said the thefts have been under investigation for some time and the owners have reported 10 to 15 pigs missing at a time over a period of about six to eight months.

Officers said the pigs have apparently been sold through area livestock sales rings.

TF food prices stabilize in June

By JOCELYN CLOWARD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Grocery prices in Twin Falls stabilized during the month of June, following a 60-day federal price freeze established June 14.

Curiously the prices dropped slightly in the first half of June before the federal price freeze went into effect. Since the freeze, however, prices rose slightly to about the same level as at the beginning of the month.

The midyear prices stood 11.3 per cent higher than at the beginning of the year.

During the period, the Times News Price Survey of five Twin Falls grocery stores showed a decrease in prices for the 20 listed items of 0.8 per cent by June 15. Prices between June 15 and July 3 rose 0.7 per cent, however, making a slight total price increase for the month of 0.1 per cent.

During the month of May, prices on the same items had risen by 3.8 per cent.

The price freeze was ordered by President Nixon on June 14 in an attempt to battle inflation. During the freeze, sellers may not charge more than the highest price at which items or services were sold between June 1 and June 8.

Ceilings are based on the highest price charged for at least 10 per cent of transactions of a particular item during that period. It is this 10 per cent calculation which makes the slight increase in prices possible for the first month of the freeze. Items surveyed June 1 may have increased in price before June 8 and therefore may be frozen in price at the higher level.

It appeared also that the slight rise in prices was due primarily to the fluctuating prices of produce, particularly potatoes.

The average survey price for a ten-pound bag of potatoes was 21 per cent or 24 cents above the price averaged June 1.

During the month of June items which cost an average total of $10.00 June 1 cost $9.92 June 15, and $10.13 July.

Produce prices during the month at $1.00 June 1, rose to $1.06 by June 15, and rose again to $1.13 by July 3, an increase of 13.2 per cent.

Meat prices fell, however, from $1.00 June 1 to 91 cents June 15 then rose slightly to 94 cents, making a total decrease in meat costs for the month of 5.2 per cent.

The survey for the first half of 1973 shows that groceries costing $10.00 at the beginning of the year cost $10.35 Feb. 1, $10.32 a month later; $10.63 by April 1; $10.76 by May 1 and $11.14 June 1. The June 15 survey showed costs falling to $11.06.

British couple drifts 117 days on life raft

SEOUL (UPI) — A British couple rescued after drifting for 117 days on a life raft in the Pacific said today they survived on rain water, 30 turtles, eight seagulls and six sharks.

Michael Bailey, 41, and his 32-year-old wife were picked up by a South Korean fishing boat on June 30 but the story of their ordeal was not disclosed until Thursday.

We are happy now, Bailey told a Seoul newspaper, "but we will not sail a boat again." The newspaper Hankook Ilbo said it talked by radio for 20 minutes with skipper Suh Jungil and the Baileys, en route to the South Korean port of Pusan aboard the vessel Weolmi. The ship is scheduled to dock early next month.

Bailey, a printer, and his wife left England a year ago aboard an eight-ton yacht on an around-the-world voyage to New Zealand. They had left Panama on Feb. 26, they said, when the yacht sank after colliding with a whale March 4 about 400 miles off Mexico.

Then, they said, they pieced together two life rafts and began drifting.

They drank rain water, the Baileys said, and seagulls, turtles and sharks they caught with hooks fashioned from pins.

Seven vessels passed without seeing them, the couple said, before the Weolmi approached. The skipper said he ordered his ship to approach cautiously after a crewman spotted an object bobbing in the water at a distance of about three miles.

When rescued, the couple said, they were in "extremely weak condition" and could hardly stand.

The skipper said the couple is still undergoing treatment but have not fully recovered from the malnutrition they suffered.

On board the life raft, the skipper said, were a small oil stove, a map, four knives, a compass, a camera, four books on navigation, a watch, the couple's British passports and two plastic water containers.

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The government of President Lon Nol announced for the first time today it was willing to negotiate peace with deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk and said it would accept the imposition of an immediate cease-fire in place.

The statement outlining a six-point peace plan was made in the government palace by Foreign Minister Long Boret in the presence of the diplomats from both east and west, including U.S. Ambassador Emory C. Swank.

The rumble of nearby attacks by American warplanes shook the windows of the conference hall and occasionally drowned out Long Boret's words.

The United States has long brought pressure on the Lon Nol government to work for a cease-fire but Lon Nol has refused to have anything whatever to do with Sihanouk whom he deposed as chief of state in a bloodless coup on March 18, 1970 while Sihanouk was visiting in France.

Appeal court denies new trial to Bremer

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — The Maryland Special Court of Appeals today refused to grant a new trial to Arthur H. Bremer, the former Milwaukee dishwasher convicted of shooting Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace last year.

Bremer is serving 33 years in the Maryland Penitentiary for shooting Wallace during a political rally May 15, 1972, at Laurel, Md., shopping center.

The court's opinion said, "We hold the trial court did not err in denying a motion for a new trial."

Bremer filed his appeal March 31. One of his arguments maintained that a CBS television newsfilm of the shooting, shown nationally on television, was prejudicial.

DECS aide plans merger

By DAVID ESPO
Times News Writer

TWIN FALLS — The new regional director of the Department of Environmental and Community Services (DECS) is trying to establish a "one door policy" for the state's largest agency.

Milton Klein, who took over as the local region's administrator last month said space limitations would be an obstacle in the way of bringing services under one roof.

But, he said, "My responsibility is for pulling the combined agencies together under one administrative umbrella that is designed to be responsive to the residents of Region V."

Merged from the former Department of Environmental Protection and Health and Social and Rehabilitation Services and State Youth Training Center, the local DECS region covers the eight Magic Valley counties. It employs about 150 workers in the area, according to one official.

Klein, who gave up his job as director of individual patient services at the Gateway Mental Health Center in Pocatello to accept the regional administrator position, said one place the "one door policy" would be possible is at the vacant state tuberculosis hospital in Gooding.

The hospital is now under the control of DECS, and Klein said plans are being formulated to allow the state to offer a variety of services there.

A contract has been signed with the Magic Valley Rehabilitation Services Inc., a private corporation, to provide a work evaluation training program, Klein said, for "mentally limited individuals."

In addition, previous plans to establish a satellite child development center for a part of Magic Valley are still being considered.

Elsewhere in the region, Klein said, mental health programs are a "priority" for Magic Valley residents. Currently mental health services are available in Twin Falls, Hailey and Rupert, he said.

Dr. James A. Bax, DECS administrator, indicated publicly that mental health programs were "considered important for the local region when the DECS board met in Twin Falls several weeks ago, but there has been no formal announcement beyond that."

2nd courthouse bid call set

TWIN FALLS — A second call for bids for reconditioning the exterior of the 62-year-old Twin Falls County Courthouse is planned by county commissioners.

Chairman William L. (Bill) Chancey said Thursday the commission will advertise as soon as possible, possibly opening the bids July 31.

Chancey said the original bids were rejected because two bidders did not hold current contractor licenses in Idaho and the other bid was believed at the time to be excessively high.

"After looking at the outside of the building a little closer maybe we were wrong and the high bid wasn't too far out of line," Chancey said.

Max Stuart, Inc., bid $55,640 for cleaning and refurbishing the exterior of the building.

Chancey said it has been neglected for 62 years with the only outside maintenance being repainting around windows.

The commissioners also are considering alternative bids which would include improving the outside of the old hospital and old nursing home buildings.

Other planned improvements to keep the 62-year old courthouse in good repair and continued use, Chancey said, include some leveling and plumbing changes. These are tentative at this time, he said.

Summer musicale scheduled in TF

Small car economy aired

BOISE (UPI) — State Purchasing Agent Dan R. Pilkington believes Idaho can save $400 on each new passenger car and 20 to 25 per cent on gas consumption by buying compact cars.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus on June 28 ordered state agencies to buy smaller cars to save gas and money beginning July 1. The smaller-engine policy is to be applied to purchases of trucks where feasible.

The governor also urged state employees to go to work in car pools and asked other levels of government and private industry to follow suit.

The executive order to purchase only six or four cylinder passenger vehicles in the future exempted the Department of Law Enforcement.

Since the issuance of the executive order, Pilkington has been busy compiling comparison sheets on the new smaller cars made by American firms.

The state last year bought 91 new passenger cars at a cost of $298,507 or about $3,507 each. There were 422 vehicles purchased in total costing $1,918, 049 or an average of $4,545 per vehicle, for the 89 law enforcement rigs and 222 trucks.

Pilkington said a certain number of new cars are purchased every year, when the cars get 50,000 or 100,000 miles on them. Cars are used for three years.

"We would probably be able to save in excess of $400 per passenger car by buying the smaller variety," he said. "We are waiting for specifications for the 1974 models to show us what these cars come with, engine sizes and prices."

Pilkington said the state consumes about 2.5 million gallons of gasoline a year and "while we have no documentation on how much gas we might save by going with the smaller cars

I would estimate we will probably use 20 to 25 per cent less gasoline."

He said he doubts if there will be less gas consumption by state trucks that need V-8 engines because they are used as off-road vehicles and require more horsepower.

Robert Frandorf, assistant deputy commissioner of insurance, said there are no figures compiled on how much the state might save on insurance by purchasing small cars because it depends on each department and how much they drive.

Pilkington said requirements for new cars should be in from the state agencies by Sept. 1, and different dealers will make bids for the state contract.

Shot kills Boise youth

BOISE (UPI) — An 18-year-old Boise boy was shot and killed Thursday evening while visiting the home of a teenage friend.

Boise Police Detectives Dan Sherry and Russell Reneau said they believed the shooting was accidental but the incident was still under investigation. They said the victim was shot once in the face with a pistol. He died a short time later after being taken to a Boise hospital.

Officers were withholding the name of the victim until his relatives had been notified.

Attorney asks AG opinion

BOISE (UPI) — Attorney for the Pocatello group seeking to recall Rep. Patricia McDermott Thursday asked the Idaho attorney general for an opinion on whether Miss McDermott is violating state laws because of her marriage to a paid lobbyist.

Attorney Stanley Crow, Boise, asked Attorney General W. Anthony Park is Miss McDermott violation of the law which prohibits legislators from accepting benefits from persons known to be interested in pending or planned legislation.

Miss McDermott is married to R.H. Baeber, a lobbyist registered with the Idaho legislature.

Prisoner meal costs listed

TWIN FALLS — Meals for Twin Falls county prisoners cost an average of 49 cents per meal during June, or about $1 per day.

William Chancey, county commission chairman, said today there were 2,453 meals served during the month with an inventory on hand at the start of the month of about $217.67, a total of $758.61 spent for food and $650 for labor. Total cost was $1,409.94.

He said the system of hiring a cook and the county buying the food is working out well economically for the county.

TWIN FALLS — Someone must have wanted small change in a bad way.

He used an empty trash can to climb over a fence at the concession stand at Harmon Park, then broke into the small building. When the burglar left, $2 in pennies from the cash box was taken.

Nothing else was disturbed. Colleen Berry told Twin Falls police today.

3 patrolmen hired in TF

TWIN FALLS — Three new patrolmen have been added to the Twin Falls police department on a one-year probationary period.

Police Chief Frank Barnett said the three include Edwin C. DeVall, 24, Filer; Donald K. Green, 35, Twin Falls, and Robert M. Hodge, 26, Modesto, Calif.

DeVall is unmarried and presently resides with his parents in Filer. He has been working recently as a member of the Filer police department and is a native of Twin Falls County.

Green, married and the father of five sons and daughters, served previously with the sheriff's department in San Bernardino, Calif. He attended schools in Filer and most recently has been with the U.S. Postal Service in Upland, Calif.

Hodge, 26, is married to the former Carol Martin, daughter of Ralph Martin, Twin Falls, and is originally from north Idaho. He has just completed his schooling, receiving an associate of arts degree in police science from Modesto Junior College, Modesto, Calif.

Barnett said all three men are veterans and all three have served with the U.S. Air Force.

Barnett also announced the resignation, effective July 1, of William A. (Bill) Davis. Davis has served with the department approximately six years, spending two years as a patrolman and just over three years as a detective.

Barnett said he resigned to move to Alaska where he accepted a police position at a higher wage than he has been receiving in Twin Falls.

Training program to begin Monday

TWIN FALLS — A one-week back packing training program begins Monday under direction of the Twin Falls City Recreation Department.

Robert Donnelley, in charge of the program, said all interested persons should plan to meet at 10 a.m. in the Twin Falls High School gymnasium. The class will continue from 10 to 11:30 a.m. with the first day's program covering introduction, organization and some back packing films.

On Tuesday and Wednesday the program will cover equipment and camping skills. Thursday the group will take a pack trip in the Sawtooth area to try out their skills.

Donnelley said the program is open to anyone from 10 years of age up.

Nixon uses China connection

By GEORGE SHERMAN

(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — President Nixon is nursing his Chinese connection now that the Soviet summit is past and the Aug. 15 bombing halt in Cambodia forces his hand in Indochina.

Nixon's sudden invitation to the top Chinese diplomat in the United States, Huang Chen, to visit the presidential home in San Clemente, Calif., today is the latest strand in this intricate web of power diplomacy.

Another strand, according to informed sources, is the stepped-up bombing of Cambodia begun last week. Despite Pentagon denials, these officials insist that escalated use of tactical air power is meant to "signal" the Cambodian insurgents that the President's hands are not tied by a bombing halt still six weeks away.

Almost no one outside the inner sanctum of the White House knows just what is happening behind the scenes. But the overwhelming impression is that Nixon and presidential aide Henry A. Kissinger are trying to mobilize maximum pressure on the divided Cambodian insurgents to negotiate.

Informed sources expect Nixon to go over his ground with the Chinese diplomat. The White House has carefully worked against expecting any new announcement in what is billed as a "regular contact." But other sources indicate that the Nixon-Kissinger meeting with Huang Chen, and a special dinner Kissinger is giving for him, can scarcely be labeled routine.

Huang Chen is a skilled and seasoned diplomat, a member of the Chinese Communist Central Committee and — according to American sources — empowered to discuss "in depth" what ever subjects Nixon and Kissinger raise.

From all information available, two issues preoccupy the United States side:

— Enlisting Peking behind a compromise in Cambodia.

— Assuring Peking that the recent Nixon-Brezhnev summit meeting did not produce secret Soviet-US agreements against China.

The first point is more immediately important, but less likely to yield quick progress. It is thought that Huang Chen will arrange a new visit to Peking by Kissinger, late this month or early next, for top-level discussions with Premier Chou En-Lai.

The problem is sorting out the rivalries within the Cambodian insurgent forces and then getting Hanoi, Peking and Moscow — all with competing interests — to join Washington in pushing negotiations with the weak government of Lon Nol.

A key question mark, for instance, is exiled Cambodian ruler Norodom Sihanouk, a protege of the Chinese who has lived in Peking since his overthrow in March, 1970. The US has previously refused to deal with him, as he has been opposed by both the Lon Nol governing group and Communist insurgents supported by Hanoi. But times are changing. Not only are Hanoi and the insurgent forces increasingly treating Sihanouk as the titular head of the resistance — though perhaps one without real power — but the Chinese are also showing some sign of containing the war.

Sihanouk himself complained, in a recent New York Times interview, that both Peking and Hanoi were holding down arms and ammunition deliveries to Cambodia in "strict compliance" with the January Vietnam accords reached with Washington.

The Nixon position also seems to be changing. Hints are being dropped that Kissinger will negotiate directly with Sihanouk when he goes to Peking in the next four weeks.

The reasons are clear. First, the administration is faced with the Congressional edict against further military involvement after Aug. 15. Second, it is clear from the dismal military and political situation that the present Lon Nol government cannot maintain a Cambodia free of North Vietnamese influence that is, free of North Vietnamese sanctuaries along the South Vietnamese border.

Therefore, dealing with Sihanouk under the Chinese umbrella may be the only compromise left to the US. While in power he proved deviant enough to steer clear of Hanoi domination, while earning the hatred of local Cambodian Communists for his repression.

Most US experts believe that neither the North Vietnamese nor the main force of Cambodian Communists now intend more than a puppet role for Sihanouk.

Watergate jolts US ideals

Editors note: In the following dispatch, UPI correspondent Nicholas Daniloff, who has covered both Moscow and Washington, looks at the Watergate scandal and draws some parallels.

By NICHOLAS DANILOFF

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In this Fourth of July season, the ideals which have been at the center of American democracy for the last 197 years appear to have suffered a severe jolt from the Watergate affair.

For this former Moscow correspondent, one of the sobering reflections suggested by the hearings is that, after nearly two centuries of democratic practice, there is no guarantee against the development of "totalitarian" attitudes in the White House.

Of course, the degree to which White House officials may have been guilty of "totalitarian" attitudes is far less than occurred in Stalin's Russia. There have been no purge trials, executions or sentences of exile. But there are some startling similarities.

Former White House counsel John W. Dean III has revealed that the White House, during the last election campaign, kept an "enemies list" of politicians, newsmen, actors and other distinguished personalities considered hostile to the administration.

Stalin had his own list, and those Soviet citizens who were on it became known as "enemies of the people."

Where Stalin was prepared physically to destroy his opponents, the present White House administration — according to Dean's account — was preparing only to have the Internal Revenue Service audit their taxes.

Lenin, the prime mover of the 1917 Bolshevik revolution, realized very early in his struggle to seize power from the Russian Parliament that the press would be an extremely important instrument for shaping the political views of the population and holding its support.

The Nixon administration, it seems, also set out to conquer the press although not with the crude mechanics of censorship.

It had Vice President Spiro Agnew attack the medium of television news, seeking to neutralize its often-critical "instant" analyses and raising the threat that broadcasting licenses might not be renewed by the Federal Communications Commission.

And it had White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler denounce the New York Times and Washington Post.

The Russian Communists, immediately after the 1917 revolution, set up their own apparatus to safeguard their political achievement. This was the All-Russian Extraordinary Commission for Fighting Counterrevolution and Sabotage.

Its present-day successor is a police authority known as the Committee on State Security, or KGB.

The Nixon administration has nothing like that. But it did have a plan, at one point approved by the President but which he said he later rescinded, to use bugging, interception of mail and breaking and entering as tools of domestic surveillance. There was also the burglarizing of the psychiatrist's office of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg.

Secrecy has been a way of life for the top leaders of the Soviet Communist Party. They have never been under any compulsion to explain publicly or candidly to the Soviet population how they were running the nation's government.

In the present White House, also, there has been a penchant for secrecy at the highest levels.

The President, for all his polished appearances on television, remains a very reserved and private man. He has avoided press conferences.

The one very hopeful aspect of the American political system emerging from Watergate is that the system of checks and balances and an independent press really does work, but if takes time, patience and courage for all the facts to be brought to light.

Hansen says recall 'misuse'

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, says those trying to recall Pocatello Rep. Patricia McDermott are misusing their constitutional rights.

Hansen made the statement at a Fourth of July picnic here in honor of Adm. Hyde, a former legislator from Bonneville County who was recalled several years ago.

Recall should be used to terminate service of a public official who is guilty of malfeasance or misconduct in office," Hansen said.

Hansen said it should not be used to recall an official because of a vote that reflects a personal conviction.

In the case of Representative McDermott, it is one of the clearest cases of a time when it recall should not be used because Miss McDermott took a position on a matter of personal conviction prior to the last election. Judge Alfred Hagan ruled that some 2,000 names on a recall petition against the Pocatello Democrat should be accepted by Secretary of State Pete T. Cenarrusa.

Cenarrusa, on the advice of the attorney general's office, earlier rejected the petitions containing the names because some information was not included with the names.

The recall group took the issue to the courts.

Gem union supports McDermott

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho State AFL-CIO has distributed letters to union members in District 34 urging them to withdraw their names from recall petitions against Rep. Patricia McDermott, if they have signed them.

One of the form letters — which the state AFL-CIO office said were sent out last week — was received in the office of Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa Thursday.

The letter form, signed by State AFL-CIO President Robert W. McParlane, Boise, said the organization did not take a position on the bills that are cited as reasons for the recall of the Pocatello Democrat.

"It should be remembered these issues were acted on before she was re-elected in 1972, including the new Criminal Code and the Equal Rights Amendment, as we felt that our people had different views on these issues," the letter said.

McParlane said they have taken solid positions on bills for the minimum wage increase, equitable taxes for workers, more money for education and the new workman's compensation bill passed in 1971.

"Pat McDermott has always supported us on these bills and others affecting the wage earner in Idaho, and many times has carried these and similar bills on the floor of the House for us," the letter to union members stated.

Magazines banned

BRASILIA (UPI) — The department of the federal police announced Wednesday that 69 magazines, all considered pornographic, have been prohibited in Brazil by police censors.

Among the magazines were Cavalier, Penthouse, Playmen, Sir, Lui, and the Brazilian magazine "Garotas e Píadas," (Girls and Jokes).

Playboy was still being reviewed by the police censors.

Among the 3,100 magazines permitted full distribution by the censors were five German magazines subjected to a temporary ban two months ago — Der Spiegel, Stern, Quick, Bunte and Neue Illustrie.

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Pocatello City Councilman Mel Morgan said today he was glad that police and the county prosecutor shut down the Gallery adult theater this week in Pocatello.

Morgan, who owns the building where the theater is located, was earlier criticized for renting space for the operation. Morgan said he was not fully aware of the type of operation when he made the lease agreement about a year ago.

Tuesday, police and Bannock County Prosecutor's officers confiscated 20 cartons of books, magazines, films and so-called novelty items at the adult theater.

No arrests were made, although prosecutor Garth Pincock said he holds a warrant for the owner of the business if he can be located.

The action was taken under a new, tougher state obscenity law which went into effect July 1. It forbids display or sale of obscene material, Pincock said.

Only one employee was on hand at the theater, running the projection machine. He was not arrested because the statute exempts employees working for wages with no interest or ownership in the company.

Former aide takes Fifth Amendment

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former White House aide Egil "Bud" Krogh, who once accepted responsibility for the Ellsberg burglary, took the Fifth Amendment Thursday before the grand jury investigating the crime.

Krogh spent only five minutes before the "Watergate West" grand jury, made a brief statement to reporters that took less than a minute, then left.

Although the grand jury proceedings are secret, it was apparent from the in-and-out appearance by Krogh, the climactic witness before the panel, that he had refused to testify. The Los Angeles Times today quoted sources close to the case as saying Krogh took the Fifth Amendment.

He was expected to be the last witness of significant importance until the grand jury reconvenes Sept. 4, when District Attorney Joseph Busch indicated he will seek criminal indictments.

"We're not here for the fun of it," the district attorney said.

Krogh, in his letter to President Nixon resigning from the government, said it was his "overwhelming desire to take responsibility" for the burglary at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist by the White House "plumbers." The break-in was one of the factors cited by the judge in the Pentagon Papers trial for dismissing all charges against Daniel Ellsberg on grounds of "pervasive government misconduct."

Krogh had agreed to appear voluntarily before the grand jury, but later backed out on the grounds, according to his lawyer, that he was the main target of the investigation. He was subpoenaed and brought from Washington on orders of a federal judge.

He told newsmen after his appearance that "some time ago, I felt compelled to make some statements about some matters currently under investigation. There has been a variety of interpretations on these statements, and I find myself subject to investigation. I have been advised by my attorney, Steven Shulman, not to make additional comments at this time."

Krogh has given investigators a notarized statement detailing his involvement in the burglary, as an assistant to former presidential adviser John Ehrlichman. He said in that statement that Ehrlichman had given him authority to use "covert operations" to find out more about Ellsberg.

The district attorney said action is being undertaken in federal court to obtain documents from Watergate investigators in Washington.

One of the documents is reportedly a memorandum by David Young, who worked with Krogh in the White House, indicating Ehrlichman had prior knowledge of the Ellsberg burglary plan.

Ehrlichman, in his testimony before the grand jury, said he had no such prior knowledge.

EGIL KROGH won't testify

Agnew panel unlawful

(c) Chicago Daily News WASHINGTON — The General Accounting Office has reported five apparent violations of federal law in the effort to fatten the gate for a 1972 tribute to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

The GAO, the investigating arm of Congress, referred its findings to Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson for possible prosecution.

The finance committee to re-elect President Nixon, the GAO said, apparently violated the law by failing to report a secret $50,000 transfer to the "Salute to Ted Agnew Night" committee in April.

The transfer was designed to give the impression that ticket sales to the event were $50,000 better than they were, the report said.

The hoax was disclosed by Hugh W. Sloan Jr., former treasurer for the Nixon finance unit, in testimony before the Senate Watergate Hearings.

The GAO also reported the following apparent violations of law:

- The salute to Ted Agnew committee falsely reported contributions received.
- Bladen H. Wharton, treasurer of the Agnew committee, made false statements to GAO and signed under oath to documents he believed to be untrue.
- The Agnew Committee received $47,000 in contributions from corporations and used $40,000 of this sum to help pay for the tribute.
- Persons acting for the Agnew committee participated in the concealment of the $50,000 received from the Nixon Finance Committee.
- The vice president issued a statement to say he knew nothing of the $50,000 or the holding of the funds until he read the story in the newspapers.
- This audit revealed that the Agnew Committee listed fictitious contributions (ticket sales) on reports filed with this office and fabricated records to substantiate the fictitious contributions, the GAO said.
- It said Maurice Stans, chairman of the Nixon Finance Committee, and Sloan gave $50,000 in cash to Alexander Lankier, Maryland Republican chairman shortly after April 7, 1972. The transfer of funds was not reported at the time

Hickel blames Nixon system

(c) New York Times Service ANCHORAGE, Alaska — President Nixon is responsible for the Watergate scandals whether or not he knew about the acts in advance, in the opinion of Walter J. Hickel, the president's first secretary of interior.

"He created the atmosphere and the attitude for it to happen," Hickel said of Nixon, who dismissed him from the cabinet in November, 1970, after the former Alaska governor had criticized the bombing of Cambodia and raised questions about the moral tone of the administration.

"I don't think the Watergate could have happened under Eisenhower," Hickel said. "He used the staff system, but he used it differently. He understood that I don't think that I know of a presidency in history that quite operated the way the Nixon administration did, one that was isolated from the reality of the American public."

Hickel said that by June, 1969, when he had been in Washington for less than six months, events occurred in his dealings with the White House that caused him to say to an assistant, "Hey, they're playing games. This isn't right."

His remark referred to undisclosed actions of H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and Egil Krogh, then aides to the President, Hickel said. By early 1970, he said, he began to speak out in criticism of patterns he saw develop in the presidential staff.

"I saw them circumvent what I call the System," Hickel said. "I think the system is great. Congress can call a cabinet officer down there and literally chew him up."

This gives the President a source of information on which to judge the nation's attitudes, he said, because members of Congress are relating to voter attitudes. But when cabinet officers are replaced by presidential staff members as the President's main information sources, trouble is bound to occur, Hickel said.

Conflicts with the Nixon staff played a major part in his dismissal from the cabinet, Hickel said.

In an interview conducted in his office overlooking the racing tides of Cook Inlet and the mountain ranges of Central Alaska, Hickel said he was happy to be back in Alaska.

Allende names 7 aides

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — President Salvador Allende overhauled his government Thursday, picking seven new ministers for an all-civilian cabinet designed to move quickly in dealing with social and economic crises.

It was one of the most extensive reshuffles since Allende, the first elected Marxist leader in Latin America, took office in 1970.

He said his government would begin action immediately to carry out a 14-point emergency plan requiring "great sacrifice and effort" to combat problems that he said earlier had taken Chile to the verge of civil war.

The new 15-man cabinet, which observers said maintained the political balance of the cabinet that resigned Tuesday after an unsuccessful army revolt, would put the emergency program in effect within a month.

Illegal drug raids aired

(c) New York Times Service WASHINGTON — The retiring head of the government's drug abuse law enforcement office said this week that he could not guarantee that drug raids on innocent people would be stopped.

"I can't tell you that in the future there wouldn't be some knuckleheads who might go off half-cocked on their own to conduct raids," Myles T. Ambrose told a news conference Thursday.

Ambrose is retiring this week as assistant attorney general in charge of drug prosecution.

"We're trying to find out what can be done," to prevent illegal raids, such as the two that occurred in Illinois, Mr. Ambrose said.

Asked what changes the Department of Justice had made since federal narcotics agents mistakenly raided the homes of Herbert Gigglio and Donald Askew in Collinsville, Ill., in April, Ambrose replied: "A million steps have been taken."

He cited two saying that he had sent a memorandum to every agent and supervisor of the drug abuse office demanding "great care and judgment" in future raids, and that he had put the problem on the agenda for a conference here tomorrow of the regional directors of the drug abuse office.

Such incidents have been minimal, according to Ambrose, who is leaving the government to return to private law practice in Washington. He said the New York Times had reported three cases of illegal raids by agents of the drug abuse office, "but that was over four years."

"Last year we (federal, state and local officers) made 527,000 narcotics arrests," he said, adding that he was not trying to "justly" the violations.

According to justice department sources, Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson had been planning to respond to a New York Times story citing dozens of cases where innocent citizens have been the subject of mistaken, often violent and illegal police raids, by local state and federal agents in search of drugs.

Ambrose, noting that during his service at the drug abuse office the drug addict population of the country had decreased, said the "overall strategy had been successful," if the "tactics sometimes were wrong."

No guarantee

OUTGOING Special Assistant Attorney General Myles Ambrose said at a news conference Thursday that there was no guarantee that drug raids on innocent persons which occurred twice in Collinsville, Ill., recently wouldn't be repeated elsewhere by "knucklehead agents." (UPI)

Vatican issues report

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Vatican said Thursday there are good things in other Christian churches, but that Roman Catholicism is the one true church and no one can question the teachings of the Pope.

A doctrinal statement "against certain errors of the present day" was issued by the Vatican's department for the doctrine of the faith, once the powerful and feared Holy Office.

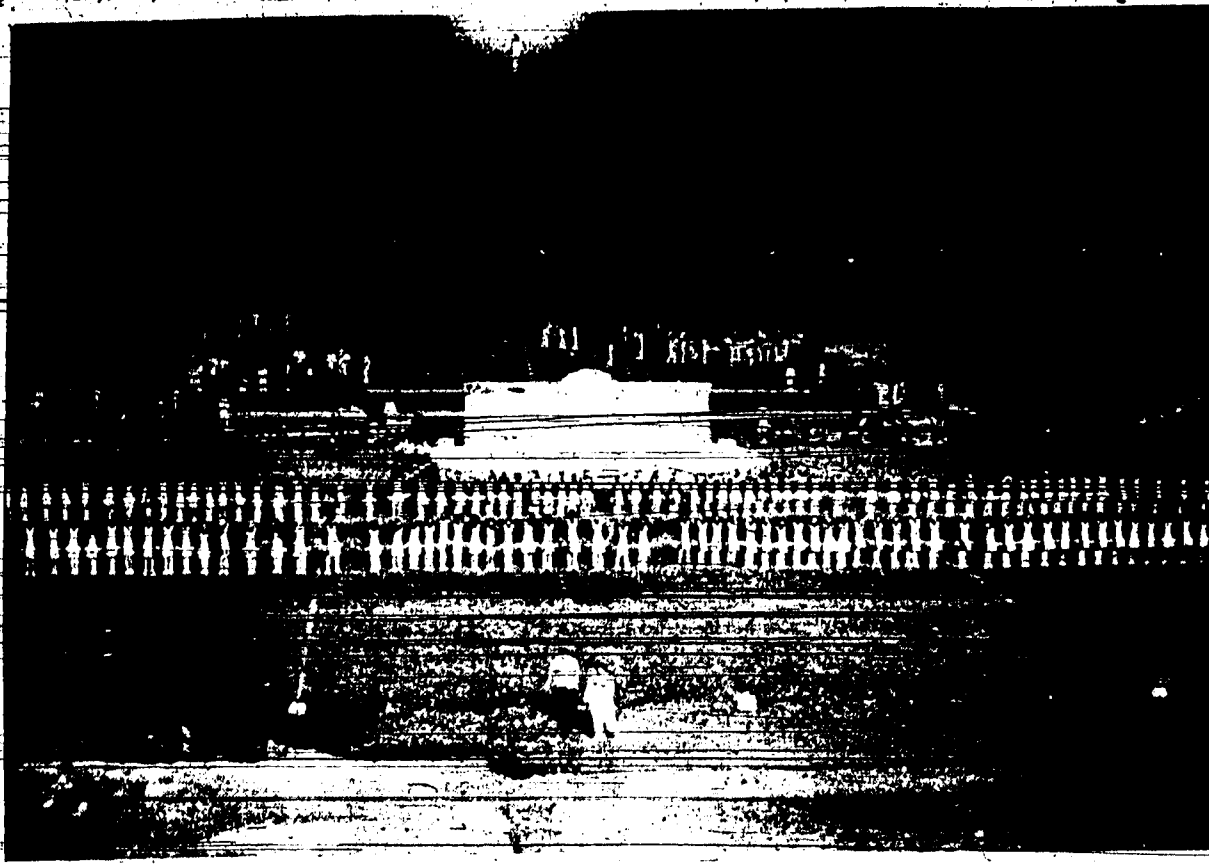

The statement named no one specifically, but said it was aimed at liberals in the Netherlands and some other parts of the Catholic Church after the second ecumenical council 10 years ago.

The document said a number of theological studies since the council had helped to clarify the Church's teaching but "others, through the use of ambiguous or even erroneous language, have obscured Catholic doctrine, and at times have gone so far as to be opposed to Catholic faith even in fundamental matters."

One such error, it said, was to believe that ecumenism had weakened Roman Catholicism's claim to sole possession of full religious truth.

Canonics must joyfully acknowledge and esteem the truly Christian endowments derived from our common heritage, which are to be found among our separated brethren, and they must strive for the re-establishment of unity among all Christians," the document said.

But at the same time Catholics are bound to profess that through the gift of God's mercy they belong to that Church which Christ founded and which is governed by the successors of Peter and the other Apostles, who are the depositaries of the original Apostolic tradition, living and intact," the document said.

Mormon welfare works

BOISE (UPI) — An Idaho official of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints says the church welfare program works to keep church members self-sufficient and off the public dole. Marion J. Callister, LDS welfare chairman for the Boise-Nyssa, Ore., area, said in a telephone interview Thursday the Mormons pay their taxes like everyone else does to take care of persons who do not qualify for the church welfare program.

But he said the Mormons don't feel that any worthy church member should be dependent on the public for assistance.

"We think they have a call on their brothers and sisters" of the church to help them out if trouble strikes.

Callister, who is an Idaho Fourth District Court judge, concurred that the church welfare program is responsible for reducing the welfare rolls in Idaho counties where a high percentage of the population is Mormon.

Lutherans split over doctrine

(c) New York Times Service
ST. LOUIS — An ecclesiastical struggle will culminate today when the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod convenes in New Orleans.

At issue for the 1,000 delegates representing the 2.8 member Lutheran body will be a host of key elective positions, administrative policies and theological statements — all revolving around whether the Bible must be interpreted literally and how far church authorities can go in demanding such belief among its teachers and administrators.

A major decision in the opening days of the gathering, which will be held at the Rivergate convention complex, will be whether to re-elect the Rev. Dr. Jacob A. O. Preus, who will be completing his first four-year term as president. A fundamentalist on the major issue facing the church, Preus appears to be a slight favorite among six other candidates, including a Lutheran Hour radio preacher, the Rev. Dr. Oswald C. J. Hoffman.

Preus, who came to the synod as a Latin teacher from a small Lutheran sect in the late 1950's, has led a three-year-long campaign against the church's principal seminary, Concordia of St. Louis, for what he and other fundamentalist churchmen consider the teaching of unorthodox doctrine.

Specifically, Preus says the faculty undermines the traditional authority of the Bible by questioning the historical authenticity of such Biblical accounts as Genesis, Exodus and Job.

Last year one Old Testament professor at the seminary was dismissed, although formal charges of teaching false doctrine were never made.

Earlier this month, in what many church professors and teachers fear could become a frequent occurrence is Preus is re-elected, a religion instructor at Concordia Junior College in Milwaukee was formally convicted of false doctrine.

The school board of control ruled that the Rev. Dr. Bruce V. Malchow had undermined Biblical authority by questioning historical details about such old testament characters as Adam and Eve, Noah, Ruth, Esther, Job and Jonah.

If the conviction is upheld by two appeal boards, Dr. Malchow will be dismissed. It would be the first time in the 125-year history of the synod that false doctrine was tied directly to belief in the historical details of Biblical accounts.

Although theology and seminary administration will be the major focus for the delegates, the fiscal affairs of the church under Preus and its treasurer, Milton Carpenter, has emerged in recent months as a serious concern among some laymen.

Attention has been focused particularly on the financial affairs of the Brazil district of the synod. More than eight months ago, fundamentalist-minded pastors in this country began raising money to send an unprecedented number of Brazilian delegates to the 1973 convention.

Critics charge that the funding amounts to "buying votes" for fundamentalist causes of which the Brazil district president, the Rev. Elmer Reimnitz, is a leading spokesman.

It has also been disclosed in recent weeks that the synod last year approved an as yet unexplained loan of $375,000 for development of a mining operation in Brazil, which apparently, was designed to help the Brazil church become self-supporting.

Showman combines 2 careers

HONOLULU (UPI) — A sympathetic counselor sat in a church, listening to the plight of a young woman involved with a married man.

They discussed the situation frankly until the woman was able to recognize the problems, re-establish her values and resolve to terminate the relationship.

That afternoon, the counselor was dashing around a television studio, delighting Hawaii's children with the antics of Pogo Pogo.

This is the double life of Morgan White, an existence he finds challenging, fulfilling and anything but dull. The 47-year-old entertainer who has gained fame in the Islands co-hosting the "Checkers and Pogo" show for the last five years spends his spare time helping young people as a lay counselor for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

White admitted that when he was first asked by the bishop to serve as a counselor, he was concerned about how people would react, talking over their problems with Pogo Pogo.

"But I found my television role didn't make any difference," he said. "Although those I counsel usually know who I am, they separate Pogo Pogo from Morgan White."

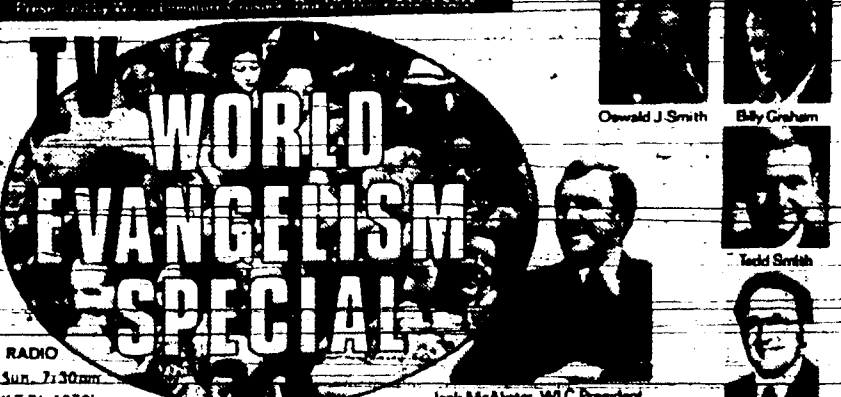

Almost every day, White is called upon to help someone, and although he's been doing it only since November, White said he's dealt with a whole range of problems, including drugs, sex, anxiety over leaving home for school and the many other difficulties youngsters encounter.

"We discuss things forthrightly and frankly," White said.

Usually assigned cases by the bishop, White said when someone requests him specifically he is concerned that their choice not be made because he is a television personality.

One youngster asked for me, and when she was asked why, it turned out it wasn't because of Pogo Pogo at all. She thought I was a sympathetic person."

Housing aid denied many rural needy

By BERNARD BRENNER UPI Farm Editor

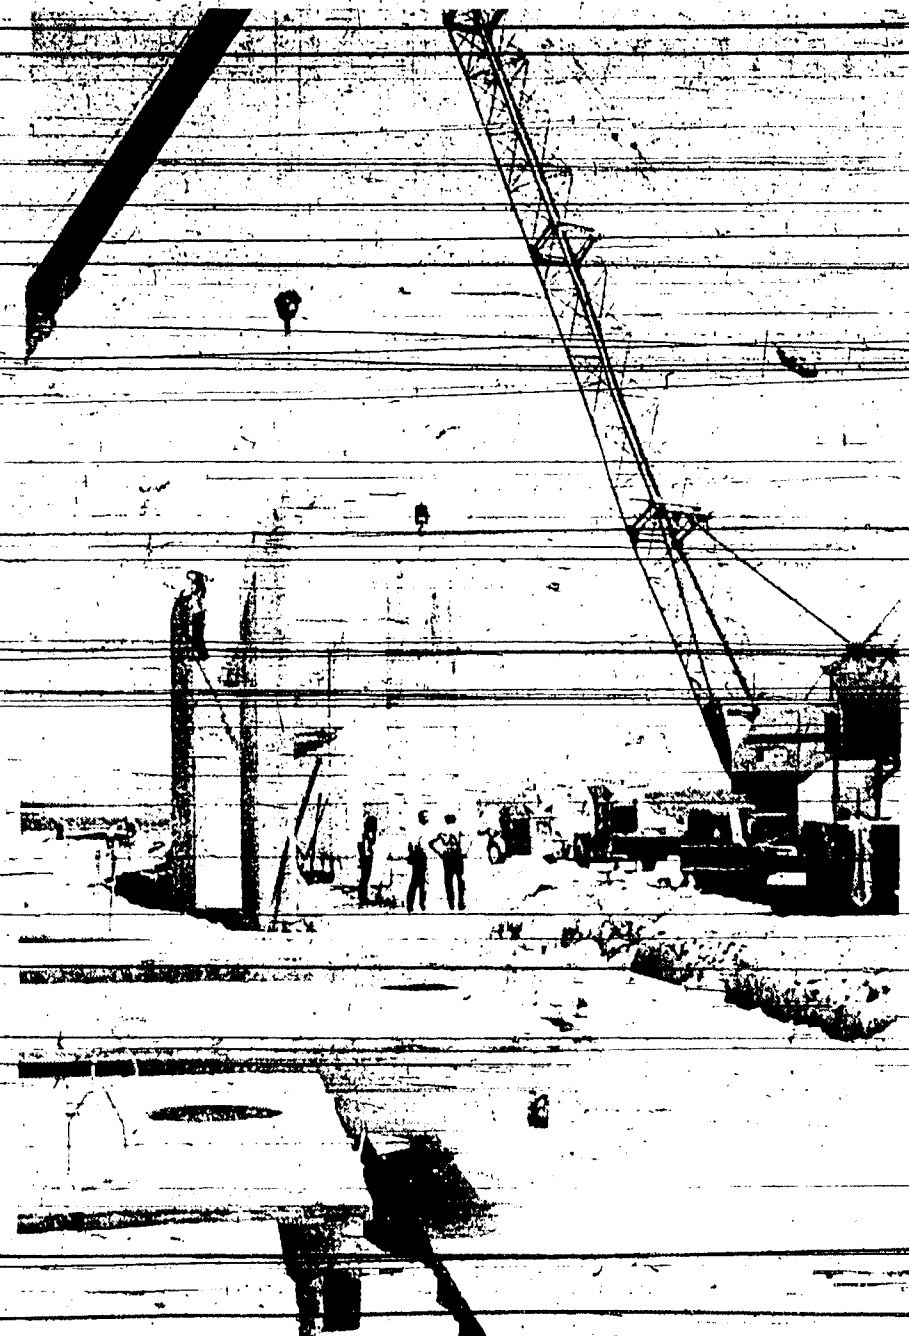

WASHINGTON (UPI) Most needy rural people who need housing aid can't get it under the Agriculture Department's credit programs, a government rural development specialist says. As a result, according to economist Ronald Bird, officials operating rural housing credit programs should stop trying to include poverty families in planning program operations. He said these officials should, instead, concentrate on families that can be helped — those who live in substandard homes but have incomes far enough above the bleak poverty line to enable them to repay loans. Poorly-housed households whose incomes are too low for credit programs to help them need to be identified separately so other programs can be designed to help them," Bird said in a report published by the Agriculture Department's Rural Development Service. Bird did not specifically estimate how many needy families were unable to qualify for help under credit programs, but he laid out statistics showing that:

Farmers Home Administration (FHA). About 2.6 million of them were "substandard," lacking complete plumbing. Nearly half of these substandard units, about 1.2 million, were occupied by families whose 1969 income was below that year's "poverty guideline" figure of about $3,000 a year for a family of four.

The FHA operates a low-to-moderate income housing credit program, which made loans totaling about $2 billion in the year ending June 30. Most borrowers pay interest rates based on the cost of money to the government, but for needy families the program permitted special subsidies cutting the interest rate to as low as 1 per cent.

"But even with the addition of this interest subsidy provision, federal agencies have not reached many of the very poor. In the year ending June 30, 1970, less than 5 per cent of FHA's low-to-moderate income loans went to families with annual incomes of less than $3,000 a year," Bird's report said.

The report said similar results were reported from subsidized housing credit programs operated for urban areas by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Tree fruit farms hit by strike

FRESNO (UPI) — A "general strike" was initiated against tree fruit growers in Fresno County by the United Farm Workers Union (UFW) this week with more than 20 ranchers facing pickets Thursday. UFW official Joe Rubion said the 250 pickets, receiving UFW strike benefits of $75 a week, were able to convince 375 workers to leave the orchards. Many of the 50 grape and tree fruit growers had contracts with the UFW which expired April 15. There have been rumors the growers may sign with the rival Teamsters Union. The harvest of early peaches, nectarines and plums began this week.

N. Mexico hit by grasshoppers

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (UPI) — About 4.5 million acres of eastern New Mexico rangeland are infested with grasshoppers, the worst outbreak of the insects in at least five years, the New Mexico Department of Agriculture says. As a result of the infestation, state and federal agencies are offering aid to ranchers in the area through the cooperative spraying program. Agricultural Director William P. Stephens said an area is considered to be economically infested with grasshoppers when there are eight or more grasshoppers per square yard of land. He said eight grasshoppers can eat as much range grass as one cow. Stephens said the state agency and the U.S. Animal-Plant

Health Inspection Service completed a survey Tuesday that showed about 4.5 million acres in nine eastern counties were infested. The counties, and the acreage infested include: Chavez, 1.3 million; Lea, 1 million; Roosevelt, 860,000; Lincoln, 450,000; De Baca, 402,000; Eddy, 271,000; Curry, 50,000; San Miguel, 25,000, and Quay, 20,000.

Ed Cullen, state supervisor of the federal agency, said the cooperative spraying program would mean that the federal and state governments would pay two-thirds of the cost of spraying, with the rancher paying the remaining third. He said the cost was about 60 cents an acre.

Wrong boat

WORTHING, England (UPI) — A Church of England minister told his parishioners how he and his wife found themselves stranded in a Yugoslav nudist camp by mistake. The Rev. Tony Potter, 34, and his wife Yvonne were vacationing when they spotted an advertisement offering a boat trip to a "naturalists' island," he said in the Worthing parish magazine. "Only when they got there and found the place 'alive with nudists' did they realize the advertisement should have read 'naturalists' island,'" Potter said. They had to wait for hours for the boat to return and get them. "Odd as it may seem, I am convinced that exposure to such an experience would kill Tlust stone dead," he said.

Ant fungus seen health aid

POCAHONTO, (UPI) — A fungus that leaf-cutting ants grow for their food may contain a new antibiotic for the treatment of disease.

Dr. F. Dewitt Reed, a pharmaceutical chemist at Idaho State University, and his biochemist wife Patsy, hope to isolate the substances that make up the complex sterile-matrix formed from ants' secretions, fungus and the leaves they chew up.

valuable for mammalian use, Reed said. He said the medical implications and importance of new antibiotic substances are obvious. "It never hurts to have another antibiotic. Many become ineffective because organisms ignore them or destroy them," he added.

Reed said no satisfactory explanation has been published so far on the ant-fungus interrelationship, though several investigators have worked on the problem. "The Roads' research with a German biological chemist at the University of Heidelberg during the past two years concerned detailed examination of

Fireball levels part of Kingman

KINGMAN, Ariz. (UPI) — A railroad tanker of propane gas exploded Thursday, engulfing a factory, half a dozen businesses, part of a major transcontinental highway and scores of people in a monstrous blooming fireball 500 feet high.

Four firemen were killed and 80 persons burned. Several of the injured were not expected to survive. Military helicopters and airplanes were pressed into service to carry the injured to hospitals in Phoenix, Ariz., and southern Nevada.

Screaming victims, their flesh charred, wandered through the disaster area, survivors said.

A portion of the U.S. 66 covered by the fireball's flames was still closed today because of leaking storage tanks. There are gas pockets still there and all it would take is a spark, said an officer of the Department of Public Safety.

Fuel being transferred between a railroad tanker and a siding storage tank at the Doxol gas plant caught fire Thursday afternoon. The blaze began atop the railroad car. Firemen were fighting the blaze, drawing a large crowd of curious spectators into the area.

"First the fire was outside the tank, it seemed to be shooting up under pressure," said Ray Kirn, a DPS dispatcher who saw the disaster from about 200 yards away. "Then it got low and went into the tank. That's when it exploded."

"The fireball was clear out in the middle of the highway. It was monstrous. I saw a ship blow up once, a tanker. It looked just about like that. I'd say flames went 300 to 600 feet in the air.

Then the tank car itself went up ... and over end in the air.

Most of the Doxol plant was left in ruins. The "Country Kitchen Cafe," which had about a dozen customers at the time, caught fire and was destroyed, as well as a two-company yard and a fire sales firm. Two service stations were gutted, and homes and trailers throughout the area were scorched and their windows shattered.

Hazel Hadley, 40, of Kingman, said she was a block from the explosion, sitting in a truck, when the fireball raced at her. "I just ran out of the truck, but it seemed I couldn't run away from the fire fast enough," she said, as she was taken off to be treated for burns at a hospital in Henderson, Nevada.

A man ran to his office, Kirn said, "burned bad from the neck up, face, hair ... screaming, he was in shock, his flesh was just hanging on him."

All that fire, it seemed to last an eternity; I suppose it was 30 seconds," said fireman John Howell.

Twenty-five victims, their bodies packed in ice, lay in rows at the Kingman airport, a single strip field with no control tower, as relays of military helicopters and private planes flew them off to hospitals. Some of them did not reach hospitals for more than five hours.

EPA lists limits on toxicants

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Thursday proposed limits on the amount of 12 poisonous substances — including DDT and mercury — to be allowed in waste dumped into the nation's waters.

The government will use the list when it becomes final, the EPA said, to regulate discharges of pollutants from factories, cities and other waste producers.

Listed as toxic pollutants in addition to DDT and mercury are aldrin, dieldrin, benzidine, cadmium, cyanide, DDD, DDE, endrin, PCB's and toxaphene.

The EPA said toxic pollutants are defined under the new federal water cleanup law as those which will cause death, disease, cancer or genetic problems in any organism with which they come into contact.

The proposal was left open for 30 days of public comment after which the list will be made final, with possible additions and alterations.

Savings earn more; FHA, VA interest rates soar

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Your savings account can now earn more interest, but the interest you will pay for an FHA or VA insured home mortgage is also about to go up.

These were the results of a series of government actions announced Thursday. Debate has already begun as to whether they will be good or bad for the average citizen and the economy.

Both the National Association of Home Builders and the National League of Insured Savings Associations denounced the actions as inflationary.

Effective immediately, the government allowed commercial banks to raise interest on passbook savings accounts from 4 1/2 to 5 percent. There were similar increases for certificates of deposit.

Savings and loan institutions were told they can soon raise their passbook rate from 5 to 5 1/2 percent.

The ceiling on interest for mortgages backed by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) and the Veterans Administration (VA) will go from 7 to 7 1/2 percent. In the case of FHA, this won't happen until Congress completes the technicality of renewing the government's mortgage authority. Congress went off on its Fourth of July recess, letting this expire June 30.

James T. Lynn, secretary of housing and urban development (HUD), says the FHA increase will be good for the average citizen because it will keep FHA money available for home buyers.

He said it will also reduce the number of "points" involved in the sale of a home. A "point" is one per cent of the mortgage. It is a one-time fee charged by lenders to circumvent the interest rate ceiling. It is paid sometimes by the seller, sometimes by the buyer and sometimes both. In any case it, in effect, raises the cost of the house.

HUD estimated that buyers, under the new FHA and VA rates, will end up paying about the same amount because of the reduction in points which it expects, but which it does not actually control.

George C. Martin, president of the National Association of Home Builders, said the government actions were "inconsistent with the anti-inflationary battle."

The National League of Insured Savings Associations said they would "add fuel to the inflationary fires already burning too bright across the nation."

Loner gas men complain

By United Press International
A spokesman for the independent service station operators Thursday charged that major gasoline firms are using a small fuel shortage to take a giant step toward monopoly.

Leo Auer, acting executive director of the Missouri Congress of Petroleum Retailers, told members of the House small business energy subcommittee at a hearing in St. Louis that some independent service stations have been told to close down within 10 days.

"These owners have investments of between $15,000 and $20,000 at stake," he said, and asked for mandatory government controls on allocations and 90 days notice for termination.

Auer said the big suppliers were using an alleged 5 per cent shortage to gain a monopoly and covering it up with slick public relations.

In other developments, a North Carolina official said lack of fuel would hurt the tobacco crop and the Massachusetts national guard announced plans to cut gasoline consumption during summer exercises.

Rep. John Y. McColister, R-Neb., said at the St. Louis hearing that oil companies now have "ultimate control of supplies." Ninety-nine per cent of all service stations are leased directly or indirectly from the major oil companies, he said.

Victor Gray, legislative director of the Missouri Farm Bureau, recommended that government impose at the earliest possible date a mandatory fuel allocation system.

In Raleigh, North Carolina Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham Thursday said fuel supplies in some tobacco producing areas of the state are so critical that farmers may lose their crops unless there is immediate relief.

Graham said in a statement "no encouragement has been given to these areas as to when fuel can be expected.... There is little doubt that serious crop losses will occur unless steps are taken now by those who control the fuel supply."

Gen. Howard Elliott, who oversees the U.S. Army summer camp operations for the national guard in Massachusetts, said Thursday that three battalions of about 2,100 men were serving two-week stints in Massachusetts rather than Virginia to save the gas used to transport them.

In addition, he said, the guard has ordered that units traveling as far as Texas for summer camp be sent by bus and plane rather than truck convoys.

The general said the total amount of gasoline saved would not be available until all men had completed tours.

Temblor prediction time runs out

STANFORD (UPI) — There was no temblor in the "earthquake capital of the world" Thursday, and a Stanford University geophysicist had to apologize.

Two weeks ago Robert L. Kovach said a "good-sized" jolt — 5.8 on the Richter scale — would rattle the off-shaken Hollister area in central California within 14 days.

"When time ran out, he said, 'I'm not a prophet.'"

He added, "Our ability to pinpoint the time is not as accurate as we would like."

But he did say he still felt a quake would jar the area along the San Andreas Fault soon.

Kovach on June 20 was careful not to call his quake statement a prediction but only a test of a theory.

B52 pilot refuses missions

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — A B52 bomber pilot said today he refused to fly a mission over Cambodia because "the destructive power B52s unleash is totally unnecessary in that war."

The pilot, Capt. Donald E. Dawson, 26, of Danbury, Conn., also said that he told superiors on June 21 he would not fly because "the morality of the bombing of Cambodia bothered me. I just got to the point where I decided I did not want to do it any more."

Cassia cattlemen ask authority on rustling

BURLEY — Members of three Cassia County cattlemen's associations are asking to be deputized to fight increasing cattle thefts in the southern portion of the county.

Donald Mabey, president of the Oakley Valley Cattlemen's Association, said they planned to ask the sheriff to deputize two or three men from each of the three associations, the Goose Creek, Oakley Valley and Dry Creek-Cottonwood.

Loss of cattle "is starting to show up in increasing numbers," Mabey said.

"You count the animals on the summer range and when they come in in the fall, you're short," he said, "and you surmise they're gone." The problem was worse in the fall than in the spring, he said.

Maybe attributed part of the loss to hunters who are unable to find and shoot a deer during the hunting season. The deer situation is much worse than the Fish and Game Department leads you to believe," he said.

"People want meat, and they'll get it one way or another," Mabey said.

Several area ranchers talked to the Cassia County commissioners two weeks ago and plan to talk to the sheriff.

They hope to get one full-time deputy to patrol the range but the budget wouldn't allow it, Mabey said, "so we volunteered to do it without pay."

Maybe said he rode the range at least every other day as do most of the other ranchers in the area, "but we've got no authority." The ranchers need the authority to take action if they come across someone stealing cattle, he said.

The deputies, he said, would patrol the area and set up roadblocks to try and stop the rustling.

"This is something new we're going to try," he said.

Cassia County Sheriff Ray Mitchell said he would make no decision about deputizing the men until he had met with them.

Bellevue allocates funds

BELLEVUE — The Bellevue City Council Thursday night allocated an initial $1,200 toward purchase of protective equipment for the Bellevue volunteer fire department.

The sum will be used to purchase seven helmets, coat and boat outfits and two breathing apparatuses.

Newly named Fire Chief James Pigg said the city presently has 14 qualified, state trained, volunteers. He told the council that protective equipment was key to the department's efforts to lower the city's fire rating as well as to provide protection for the volunteers.

Pigg said the volunteers had just completed a successful fund raising program to purchase a two cylinder resuscitator and the department had received a donation of gloves and a first aid kit.

The fire chief said additional fund raising projects are planned, including a firemen's ball, for department supported equipment.

In its decision to allocate the $1,200, the council trimmed an original request by Pigg for 14 outfits. However, the council stated that if the initial purchase proved inadequate it would consider an additional allocation, when funding was available, to purchase more outfits.

In other action, the council:

- Unanimously approved and signed a 15 year franchise with D. L. Weathers Construction Co., Inc., allowing the company to establish and maintain a cable television service in Bellevue.
- The company representative said the firm hoped to conduct ground work and establish transmission and sending towers this summer. Next summer, he said, the firm will lay lines from the tower and hopefully would be able to make the service available for a great part of the area by the end of that summer.
- Weathers said the service was planned as an "up to date system," with the majority of lines to be underground.

The franchise provides a 16-month period for the construction company to put the system in operation.

The service will be offered to the public at a $6 monthly rate with an initial hook-up fee of $7. Persons 65 years old and older in retirement status will not be charged a hook-up fee and the monthly service charge will be $4.

A non profit organization, such as schools and churches, which desire the service for educational purposes, will not be charged an installment fee or a monthly fee.

The franchise also provides that three per cent of the system's gross revenue will go to the city.

- Approved Shamrock Construction Co. bid of 76 cents a foot to dig, lay and backfill about 800 feet of new water line and install hydrants to serve Martin's Trailer Court and neighboring residences.
- Agreed to send a letter to Ted Devine, stating that he must control his irrigation water and keep it off city streets and city property and stating that the city will take legal action if necessary to enforce its ruling.

Forest service transfers two

TWIN FALLS — Two Sawtooth National Forest staff members are being transferred to other forests, it was announced today.

Don Parker, assistant personnel director for the Sawtooth Forest the past eight and one half years will leave for a similar position on the Targhee National Forest with headquarters in St. Anthony.

Parker began his forest service career on the Targhee with a summer job in 1958 and moved to the Uinta National Forest in Utah while attending Brigham Young University. He graduated from BYU in 1960 and in October of that year accepted a job on the Humboldt National Forest in Nevada.

In March of 1963 he moved to the Bridger National Forest in Wyoming and from there came to Twin Falls with the Sawtooth. He and his wife, Delene, have six children.

Replacing Parker on the Sawtooth will be Larry Hacking who has served with the Targhee National Forest for five years. He accepted the position there as a personnel officer after graduating from Weber State College in 1969. He is a native of Vernal, Utah, and he and his wife, Sharon, have three children.

Another position change involves the Sawtooth National Recreation Area. Lynn Sprague who has served as a recreation planning officer since creation of the NRA in 1972 is leaving for Salt Lake City where he will be district ranger there on the Wasatch National Forest.

Sprague joined the forest service in 1960 as a smoke jumper on the Payette National Forest while attending college. In 1963 he joined the regional office in Ogden, assigned to Boise. He moved to the Bridger National Forest in Wyoming in 1965 and in June, 1966 moved to the Teton National Forest as a district ranger. From there he moved to the Sawtooth Valley ranger district and held that position until creation of the SNRA.

He will be succeeded there by Norm Malone who has transferred from the regional office in Ogden. He has served as head of the planning team on the SNRA project, working in the division of recreation and lands. He will reside in Ketchum.

YAWNING hole in the side of the Oakley High School marks the spot where the building's old heating boiler was removed. The building will be heated from a second boiler located behind the school's gym. The work was done as part of the $3.9 million bond proposal approved in April by Cassia County School patrons to upgrade the district's buildings.

Nixon replies probers' goal

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N. C., the committee chairman, believes that the only reasonable way for the President to answer charges is to appear before the committee and undergo interrogation by committee members, according to Edmiston.

But Ervin is not inclined at present to try to subpoena the President to testify at a committee hearing, Edmiston said.

He indicated the seven-member committee is unlikely at its Tuesday meeting to decide on any specific proposal for getting the President's side of the Watergate affair.

White House spokesman Ronald L. Ziegler has declared that the President will submit to questions by newsmen once the committee completes the first phase of its hearings next month.

But this may not satisfy the members of the committee. Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., has said that a Presidential news conference "would be the very worst forum" for Nixon to use to respond to accusations against him.

The White House has steadfastly maintained that the President will not honor a subpoena by the Watergate committee, testify voluntarily or meet privately with committee members or staff investigators.

The committee meeting Tuesday will precede the beginning of testimony by former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, who will be the first witness when the committee resumes hearings after a 10-day recess.

TF commission sets public meet

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a public meeting Tuesday to consider changes to the proposed county zoning ordinance.

County zoning administrator Ed Woods said Professor Ross Fasolino who drafted the ordinance, will attend to answer questions and offer advice.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the County Judicial Building.

Woods said four possible changes will be considered; reduction of areas in which subdivisions are allowed, inclusion of an "open space" zone on the rim of the Snake River Canyon, reduction of allowable uses within the canyon proper and reconsideration of home occupation allowances.

Woods stressed that comments from affected residents are needed.

Hearing continues

HAILEY — A show cause hearing on the Greyhawk Development Co. Inc., suit against the city of Ketchum in the Sun Valley water and sewer district has been continued until July 19.

During a brief session Thursday, Fifth District Judge Theron Ward granted the continuance to allow additional time for the defendants to file responsive pleadings.

Twin Falls attorney Thomas Nelson, who represents the water and sewer district, also made a preliminary statement on his client's position in the case.

Greyhawk is seeking a building permit and sewage hookup for a 60-acre development planned for the Warm Springs area of Ketchum. Serving as litigation attorney for the development firm is E. Lee Schlender.

Willis Benjamin, Ketchum, represents the city of Ketchum.

Youth arrested

TWIN FALLS — Sheriff Paul Corder said today a 17-year-old juvenile is in custody in connection with the theft of $1,300 from Jordan's Market in Filer.

He said the juvenile will be petitioned into magistrate court under the youth rehabilitation act. Investigation is continuing in the case, Sheriff Corder said.

The theft was reported by the store manager late Tuesday. He told officers someone entered the small upstairs office area by going through the meat counter portion of the store and using a knife to unlock the door.

The manager said the money was there at 7:30 p.m. but when he went to the office to close up for the day about half an hour later, he discovered the loss.

SR aquifer not dangerously contaminated

Bills said this "above grade" burial method was adopted in November of 1970 after "some leakage" in the barrels was detected. The drums formerly had been buried "below grade" and several were found to contain moisture upon inspection.

Richard Blackledge, public information officer for AEC, said the burial site receives only eight to nine inches of moisture per year, further reducing the opportunity for corrosion of the drums and leaching of the plutonium into the aquifer.

"You could speculate that if they (drums) get enough water, they could be leached out," Blackledge said, "but I don't know how because the plutonium is in solid form, not liquid."

Jack Barraclough, research project chief with the US Geological Survey (USGS) team at the NRTS, said his agency acts in an advisory capacity at the site, testing ground water and the radioactivity it carries.

He said tritium deposits have moved 5.5 miles in a "southwest" direction with the aquifer since they were introduced to the groundwater 30 years ago.

Tritium has a half-life of 12.5 years (it takes that amount of time for it to reduce its radioactivity by one-half), Barraclough said. And seven to 10 half-lives are needed to reduce radioactivity to negligible levels.

Using the maximum number of half-lives, it would mean that tritium would cease to be significantly radioactive after about 125 years. A measured movement rates as a base, Barraclough said, a "ballpark" estimate of 20 to 30 miles might describe how far the tritium will travel with the aquifer before it loses most radioactivity.

The USGS uses 130 wells drilled in a "shotgun pattern" throughout the NRTS in testing the aquifer, according to Barraclough.

Strontium 90 (with a half-life of 28 years) moved about 1.5 miles with the aquifer in 20 years, he said. The element is highly absorbable and much of it is removed from the groundwater by the soil, according to Barraclough.

Cesium has not been detected "even in wells 750 feet from the point of introduction (into the aquifer)," he said. Cesium has a half-life of 30 years.

Bills indicated that the burial of plutonium (half-life of 24,000 years) is a temporary procedure that will cease when federal repositories are established. The waste will then be shipped to central points for permanent disposal.

Montana officials will assist Rupert ranch

RUPERT — Two officials from the Yellowstone Boys Ranch will be at the Idaho Youth Ranch here next week to "help the ranch get started."

According to the new ranch executive director, James Worsley, the two men, Frank Robbie, executive director, and Lawrence Soft, superintendent of the Montana Ranch, will help set up a new program at the ranch.

The Idaho Youth Ranch will contract for their services, Worsley said, and will use their evaluation system to screen all ranch employees.

Three couples recently hired by acting ranch manager William Mitchell as houseparents are there on a probationary basis, Worsley said, and would be evaluated before they were hired on a permanent basis.

All hiring in the future would go through his office, he said.

A new ranch director is expected about July 15, Worsley said, but he declined to give details until agreements are turned up.

Worsley said the most immediate objective at the ranch is to "dress it up." The grounds are currently being cleaned up and repairs are being made, he said.

The next step will be to combine the offices, so personnel are not scattered at all ends of the ranch, he said.

A nominations committee has been appointed to enlarge the board of directors. Better representation from different geographical locations throughout the state is needed on the board, he said.

"We need individuals on the board that are clinical psychologists, magistrates, and attorneys," Worsley said, "people that are more aware of the needs at the ranch."

The current board has agreed with the move, he said.

There was previously no outline of responsibility for ranch personnel or the board, Worsley said, and he is "bringing all that up to a point of reality."

Both board and personnel regulations are being evaluated and rewritten, he said, in an attempt to better outline responsibilities.

In reference to a report written by Rita Blackaller, director of Family and Children's Services at the Department of Environmental and Community Services, Worsley said, "I will be directly involved with the administration."

Blackaller's report said that the administration at the ranch had "broken down" and recommended that the fund raiser be removed from all responsibility for the treatment program.

The report was one of two reports, the other written by the state attorney general's office, made following the resignation of executive director Lee Childs, the firing of ranch manager Duane Peterson and the resignation of the entire houseparent staff nearly two months ago.

Worsley said, "If we need somebody to do extensive fund-raising, we'll hire someone."

"If you show what your program can do, you won't have any problem raising funds," according to Worsley, who has served as executive director of the Idaho division of the American Cancer Society for 15 years.

"I still don't know everything that happened out there," he said, but there were "definite warning signals some time ago" that things weren't going well. "It's like a malignancy," he said.

Worsley said he "expects prosecutions" if the criminal investigation report currently being made into child abuse charges by the attorney general's office points up criminal actions at the ranch.

He, along with several members of the board of directors, will make statements following the release of the report next week, Worsley said.

"I think there are areas of discipline that can be set up that are not so unacceptable," Worsley said.

Discussions are planned with Minidoka School District officials and referral agencies to develop better programs at the ranch, he said.

Meanwhile, Worsley is compiling a list of all the boys who have been at the ranch in the last couple of years in order to review them and see where they are now.

"I want to see what good things have come out of the youth ranch," Worsley said.

Rocky Bar tour set by TF group

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Historical Society will make a bus tour to the almost ghost town of Rocky Bar on July 15.

The buses will leave Robert Stuart Junior High School at 7:30 a.m. and travel to Rocky Bar via Fairfield and over Couch Summit, returning by way of Pine and Anderson Ranch Dam.

According to Charles Sprittles as told to Dorothy Povey, author of "Idaho's Bohanza Years," a rich gold strike was made early in 1863 at Rocky Bar on Bear Creek, tributary to the South Fork of the Boise River.

In its heyday, Rocky Bar boasted a bigger and better brass band than Boise, according to Sprittles, and one of the biggest stage holdups on the road from Boise to Atlanta occurred near the town of Dixie in the late spring of 1889. Bandits robbed the passengers and rode away with a strong box containing $75,000 in gold bullion.

On Feb. 4, 1884, the legislature had named Esmeralda, a tiny gold camp in the narrow canyon down the creek toward Featherville, the county seat of Alturas County. After one short commissioner meeting, the title of county seat was surrendered to Rocky Bar.

Sprittles, who lived most of his life in Rocky

Bar and was known as the "mayor," kept a conversation piece across the street from his tiny store and service station. The tourist stopper was the last remaining fire plug of the camp's once extensive fire department. He kept it red and shiny as the day it was first installed.

The plug served as milepost 1 for the 25-mile-long steep road over the 9,000-foot Bald Mountain Summit leading to Atlanta on the Middle Fork of the Boise River.

After Rocky Bar became an almost ghost town, Sprittles was its sole inhabitant until the winter of 1964 when he died in the snow while returning to his cabin from Mountain Home.

The town now has some summer residents. Residents for the society's bus trip may be made by calling 731-0341 in Twin Falls or 543-5802 and 543-4039 in Buhl. Those taking the bus should bring a sack lunch.

Tickets should be purchased and memberships must be bought in advance at the museum on Highway 30 west of Twin Falls or members may mail membership cards or money for the purchase of memberships and tour fare to the museum, Route 2, Filer.

A self-addressed, stamped envelope must be sent with membership or bus ticket purchase. Allow three days for return.

TF firm wins case on claim

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court has reversed Fifth District Court's judgment in a suit between Abbie Urigen Oldsmobile — Buick Inc., Twin Falls, and the U.S. Fire Insurance Co.

Urigen originally sued for the cost of defending punitive damage claims arising out of an automobile accident, as U.S. Fire refused to cover those claims.

District court entered judgment for the insurance company on grounds that Urigen was under no legal obligation to retain counsel to defend the punitive damage claims.

In an opinion by justice Allan G. Shepard, the supreme court held that when U.S. Fire refused to cover the punitive damage claims, it breached its obligation to defend lawsuits against Urigen.

The high court remanded the case to the district court with directions to award Urigen its attorneys fees in defending the punitive damage claims, as well as its attorneys fees at trial and non-appeal.

The first traffic control signal was put in use in 1915 and was called a "crow's nest", says the National Automobile Club.

HEW head orders freeze on sterilization funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, disturbed by the involuntary sterilization of two young black girls in Alabama, Thursday ordered a freeze on federal funds used for such operations.

The funds will remain frozen until HEW works out new guidelines for their use.

"My purpose in directing the preparation of guidelines is to insure that the rights of the individual are always paramount, always observed and always secure," Weinberger said in a statement.

He said he had ordered Charles C. Edwards, HEW secretary for Health and Welfare, to have new guidelines "compatible with state laws" ready by July 19.

The statement released at a news conference did not say which HEW funds or how much money would be affected. Weinberger said he had ordered HEW's ten regional directors in cooperation with state governors "to discontinue use of HEW funds to pay for sterilization of minors and other legally incompetent individuals until guidelines compatible with state laws can be developed to protect the rights of these persons.

Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson, a former HEW secretary, also has ordered the Justice Department Civil Rights division to investigate the Alabama sterilization "by a family planning clinic which receives Federal funds.

"I am deeply disturbed by allegations surrounding the sterilization of two young black girls in Montgomery, Alabama," said Weinberger.

"The charge that their rights may have been violated drives home the point that in cases of sterilization, especially upon minors, the rights of the individual must be accorded paramount consideration and observed meticulously."

HEW estimates that 7 million Americans have been sterilized, including about 1 million men and women during 1972, most of them from middle and upper income groups.

A great majority of these sterilizations are initiated voluntarily, Weinberger asserted. "But when involuntary sterilizations are performed, they should be done to increase the well-being of the individual."

'Kick back' charge made

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal grand jury Thursday indicted former Rep. J. Erving Whalley, R-Pa., on charges of mail fraud and obstruction of justice.

Whalley is charged with devising a scheme beginning in 1963 to require 17 members of his congressional staff to "kick back" portions of their salaries to him.

The indictment accuses Whalley of using the "kick back" money to pay the salaries of some of his relatives who could not be placed on the congressional payroll.

The money was also used to defray the costs of Whalley's congressional and business enterprises, according to the indictment.

The indictment accuses Whalley of concealing the scheme from the House of Representatives by submitting exaggerated salary figures to the finance office and then placing the excess money in checking accounts which he controlled.

Other charges alleged Whalley placed two printers on his payroll, misrepresenting them as employees, submitted a false affidavit to obstruct justice and threatened a witness.

The indictment said Whalley submitted the false affidavit to the House Ethics Committee which was conducting an inquiry into alleged misconduct in the congressman's office.

The threat against a witness, the indictment said, was an effort to prevent him from communicating information to FBI agents who were investigating the possible mail fraud charges.

Whalley served in Congress from 1961 to 1972. He was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Douglas H. Elliott from Pennsylvania's 12th District.

He is a resident of Windber, Pa. where he had been actively engaged in automobile, banking and coal businesses.

Whalley served in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives and Senate before being elected to Congress.

If convicted, Whalley could face a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison and an $11,000 fine.

Pitcairn cannon recovered

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI) — The inhabitants of Pitcairn Island have recovered a cannon that lay undisturbed on the ocean floor for 183 years, since their ancestors stayed the mutiny on the Bounty and burned the ship.

"This cannon is about a yard long, and is in quite good condition," reported Tom Christian, radio operator for the tiny island in the South Pacific.

The cannon, which was brought up by Steve Christian and several other young fellows, he said, has been cleaned and oiled and may be displayed in the village square beside the Bounty's anchor.

Another cannon was recovered many years ago, he said. "One of my grandfathers lost his life over that first cannon. It was custom to fire it off for special occasions. Unfortunately, he made a mistake loading it and died when it discharged into his chest."

Christian reported the find this week in his regular chat with the Voice of Prophecy, a radio communications center here run by the Seventh Day Adventist Church, to which almost all the Pitcairn Islanders belong.

FILER — Gary Dougherty has received his second lieutenant's bars in the National Guard during the Idaho Military Academy ceremonies at Gowen Field. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Dougherty, Filer. He also received an efficiency award and an academic award.

The potential for growth in education within the district is as great as ever, Hoesel said, if the population capitalizes on the resources available. Hoesel and Dean B. J. Chandler, of the school of education, Northwestern University, will present a full written report on the study progress to the district board of trustees within about 20 days. A partial report was reviewed June 21 during a study committee meeting. Prior to serving as on-site coordinator, Hoesel was headmaster at the Lake Forest Academy, Lake Forest, Ill.

Hailey coordinator moves to Spokane

HAILEY — Walter Hoesel, Hailey, has accepted a position as headmaster at St. George's School, Spokane, Wash.

For about the past year, Hoesel has served as on-site coordinator for the Blaine County Plant and Facilities Study. He will serve as headmaster for grades 9 through 12 at St. George's — a day college preparatory school.

Hoesel said that the county study has accomplished much to date and said that he sincerely hoped that the basic concepts of the study will be continued.

Bare costume

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Others may be allowed to commute to and from their jobs in their working clothes but not Kathryn la Cava.

Police said they stopped a car driven by Miss la Cava, 19, because it was weaving, and cited her for driving with broken eye glasses.

Miss la Cava told officers she works as a topless go-go dancer in Scottsdale and always commutes in her working outfit.

Cruise ship's water supply chlorinated

MIAMI (UPI) — Public health officials said Wednesday that the chlorination of water aboard the cruise ship Skyward would be increased to insure the health of passengers on the ship's next cruise, set for Saturday.

The Saturday voyage will be the Skyward's first since an intestinal ailment diagnosed as shigellosis struck most of the 1,020 passengers and crew last week.

Norwegian Caribbean Lines was advised by the officials of the Public Health Service that increased chlorination of the drinking water aboard and the continued medical treatment of the crew should prevent a recurrence of the diarrhea epidemic.

Water was blamed as the source of the ailment but health officials said the manner in which the bacteria entered the water was unknown.

A check by public health engineers failed to turn up any defect in the liner's water system.

Book banned

NITEROI, Brazil (UPI) — The book "Last Tango in Paris" was prohibited in this city across Guanabara Bay from Rio de Janeiro by a judge who said he read it from cover-to-cover. Judge Eneas Machado Cota ruled the book is a depository of pornography and an undignified effort to offend public morals and good customs.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

It wasn't because this lady's husband required her to address him by his military title of major, that's not why she filed for a divorce in Milwaukee. It was because he also treated her salute him whenever they met, she said. Understand the husband denied that. Said he only required the salute once daily upon his homecoming. Judge decided for the wife, anyhow. That sort of thing isn't unique. I knew a hotel chef once who forced his wife to wear one of those big white mushroom caps everytime she cooked in her own kitchen. Their matrimonial life together didn't last forever, either.

From birth to maturity, the weight of your body increases about 17 times. Of your eyes, about four times. Of your brain, about three times. File that, too.

Statistically, that vehicle in which the driver is most apt to be drinking is the snowmobile, it's reported.

JUVENILES

Q. "What, Louie, you don't know the whereabouts of the first special court set up for juvenile delinquents?"

A. Certainly know both the whereabouts and the whereabouts. At Adelaide, Australia, in 1893. A court somewhat similar was established in Toronto, Canada, a year after that. And five years later, the first juvenile court in this country was opened at Chicago.

Am also asked why the Japanese prefer to hire women as pearl divers. Some argument about that. There are those who claim that girls, being smaller, are most lissome underwater. But I think it's because the men make these decisions, and pearls have to be harvested when the water is at its coldest.

INSECTS

All birds are blind to the color blue. That was reported. Not reported, though, was the fact that entomologists are now agreed that no insects see any light which does not contain blue rays. The point: Birds, which can't see blue, prey upon insects, which can't see without blue. Does that have anything to do with why the insects survive? Speculate, a please.

The ex-husband is twice as likely to commit suicide during the first 12 months after the divorce as is the ex-wife. Wait, don't store those potatoes in the same bag with those onions. The onions therein will make the potatoes spoil faster. Do you pay $358 or thereabouts a year for doctor, medicines, health care? Latest available statistics show that's average.

Is the melting of the Polar icecap making the New England coastal waters rise? If not, maybe some subsoil is sinking a little. At any rate, I deeply regret to report that one state up there is getting smaller every year. Why does it have to be Rhode Island?

What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

First, look around the basement, garage, store room and make a list of every worthwhile thing you find that isn't being used or enjoyed anymore. Things like appliances, dishes, sports equipment of all kinds, TV, radios, stereo, power tools, power mower, yard and porch furniture, typewriters, musical instruments, rugs, drapes, good outgrown toys and clothing. All of these things and others you find are worth GOOD, HARD CASH to some other family — but really, worth nothing to you if you no longer use or enjoy them.

Alabamans hail Wallace

DECATUR, Ala. (UPI) — Some came in pickup trucks with gun racks hanging on the back and foxtails flapping in the breeze. Some came in air-conditioned sedans.

They included antibusing groups from Michigan and hardhats from Cleveland, but most were hill people from northern Alabama, many barefoot, wearing blue jeans and overalls. When Sen. Ted Kennedy appeared, they gave him warm applause.

But the rebel yells and waving arms and shouts of "Amen, Governor!" made it obvious who they really came to see.

Some stood for hours at the Independence Day celebration with the soft Alabama mud oozing through their toes to see and hear Gov. George Wallace. After a while, some just gave up and sat down in the mud puddles.

Before he spoke, the conservative Alabama governor was praised as a patriot and given a special award by Kennedy, whose brother President John F. Kennedy thwarted Wallace's schoolhouse door stand 10 years ago with federal troops. When Wallace finally rolled his wheelchair onto the stage, the crowd whooped. They screamed when he stood erect in a special platform and they cheered when he spoke. Wallace said he wasn't going to make a speech — just a response to the special patriotism award presented by Kennedy in a joint appearance at "Spirit of America" festival designed to unify the liberal and conservative wings of the Democratic party.

"I didn't want to speak this long," he said. "But with a crowd like this I just can't quit."

And the withered farmers and weary-looking housewives sitting in the plastic lawn chairs and in the mud hollered, "Amen, Governor!"

With Kennedy looking on, Wallace talked about the people of Alabama, how they love freedom and are just as good as any people in the nation.

Wallace's speech was not new. Most of the people had heard it so many times its themes were like the refrains of an old hymn. But nobody was tired of listening.

One woman handed her three-year-old baby to a deputy sheriff so he could lift the child above the crowd for a glimpse of Wallace. As the deputy held the boy, looking at Wallace perched on his useless legs, he turned to the woman and said, "Ain't it a damn shame about a man like that?"

"If shore is," she said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some political professionals have assumed that the ripple effects of Watergate could turn into a political tidal wave in the 1974 elections.

Now they're not sure at all and wonder whether the reaction won't be more like a Dead Sea with voters bogging out of any political activity.

There have been some signs of a developing attitude of a plague-on-all-politics because of Watergate.

Contributions to the Republican party have dwindled since Watergate, so that free tickets have had to be passed out to fill seats at political rallies.

Contributions to the Democratic party also fell off after a brief increase when Watergate revelations neared a peak earlier this year. Since then, the Democrats have made a major attempt to raise funds, using Watergate as an appeal.

Letters were sent out to a series of combined mailing lists appealing for funds to continue the civil suits against the Nixon campaign committee because of the Watergate break-in of the Democratic National headquarters.

It is also too early to say whether that money drive can be labeled a success.

However, Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss has expressed private and public concern that the most serious effect of Watergate may be to make people cop out on politics. He has cautioned Democrats against counting upon Watergate to carry the party's candidates to victory next year.

The revelation that the White House kept a list of political enemies is a new factor adding to the concern of the political professionals. According to the testimony of John W. Dean III before the Senate Watergate Investigating Committee, people on the list were intended to be targets of government investigations, possibly including audits of their federal income tax returns. On the list were some big time contributors to Democratic presidential candidates.

Some reacted to the news with amusement or with the facetious remark that they're happy to make the "Dean's" list. Privately and publicly some expressed resentment and outrage.

There also is the implication in the Dean statements that government contracts might be denied firms on the list. That could be a serious deterrent to future political contributions which, under the present law, must be made public in future election campaigns.

Charles W. Colson, former White House aide, insists there were two lists: one of people who just shouldn't be invited to White House social occasions; the other, prepared by Dean himself, as vulnerable to political attack. Colson says his office prepared only the list of those subject to the social affairs boycott. On it, however, are some obvious names of people who wouldn't accept an invitation from President Nixon. There is considerable question how much use was actually made of the enemy list. Documents presented by Dean indicate resistance by heads of the IRS to pressure from the White House to get the tax collection agency into the field of politics. But Dean also indicated the same could be accomplished with anonymous letters to field offices of the IRS. At this stage of Watergate, the political consensus is that the 1974 elections will be fought out on strange and uncertain waters.

Germany aides release Turner

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — West German authorities released millionaire U.S. businessman Glenn W. Turner from jail Wednesday because Britain dropped its request for his extradition, a court official said today.

The official spokesman for the Frankfurt court said Turner had been set free Wednesday evening. He had been held in custody 20 days. The prosecutors office said Britain had notified it no extradition demand was forthcoming after all in Turner's case, and therefore there is no further case against Turner in Germany," the spokesman said.

"As far as the court is concerned, Turner can go where he pleases," he said.

West German police and court spokesman said border police arrested Turner June 15 at Frankfurt airport because of a British request for his extradition, circulated by Interpol, the international police force.

These spokesmen said he British request accused Turner of business malpractices in Germany, but a Frankfurt court decided June 18 at the first hearing on the case that the British would have to furnish more details. They never did, the court spokesman said today.

Turner, 38, a one-time South Carolina sharecropper, built a business empire in the United States during the 1960s that operated on the "pyramid principle" of customers selling sales franchises to more customers. The best-known of Turner's many enterprises are Koscot Interplanetary Inc., a cosmetics firm, and the Dare to be Great confidence-building courses.

More than 40 U.S. state courts and a U.S. federal court in Orlando, Fla., handed down indictments against Turner's business enterprises based principally on challenges against the legality of the pyramid principle.

US kids rate

NEW YORK (UPI) — Students in elementary, junior and senior high schools in America did at least as well as and in many cases better than their counterparts in the schools of 19 other nations on science, reading, comprehension and literature achievement tests. The tests were given on a world-wide basis by the IEA — International Association for the Evaluation of Educational Achievement.

The testing involved some 258,000 students in 8,700 schools in 20 nations. United States headquarters for the study is Columbia University's graduate school of education.

Building leveled

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — An explosion leveled an apartment building, downed power lines, destroyed eight of 10 vehicles and began a two-alarm fire Wednesday night, the fire department reported.

A man walking his dog said he saw the gas main in the street explode and a wall of fire engulf the front of the building.

There were no reports of deaths, but four injuries were reported, and authorities feared others may have been trapped in the fire, which broke out at 8:45 p.m. PDT.

Two of the injured, Arthur

Falvo, 31, and his wife, Lana, 22, suffered burns on the lower parts of their bodies.

Daniel Calcedo, 21, escaped with 75 percent burns after jumping from his apartment. He said he heard a "loud, hissing noise" prior to the explosion.

A second building was threatened by the blaze.

Police units opened a giant hole in the intersection with flames spewing from it.

Firefighting efforts of the eight engine companies dispatched to the scene were hampered by downed power lines.

Pilot faces charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force said today that a B-52 pilot based in Thailand faces a possible court-martial for refusing to fly bombing raids over Cambodia.

Charges were filed against Capt. Donald B. Dawson, 28, of Danbury, Conn., an Air Force spokesman said. He said the charges are being investigated by the military equivalent of a grand jury. Dawson is assigned to U. S. Air Base in Thailand.

"He has been charged with failure to obey an order to fly a combat mission," the spokesman said.

Information about when the charges were filed was not immediately available. The spokesman said Dawson was the only one charged.
