Chest pains hit Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Doctors said today President Nixon continued to suffer chest pains following a "restless night" at Bethesda Naval Hospital, where he was admitted Thursday night for viral pneumonia.

Ronald L. Ziegler, White House press secretary, said Nixon's temperature continued to hover between 101 and 102 degrees, but that he was carrying on the "essential work" of the presidency in spite of some pains and the temperature.

Dr. Walter Tkach, White House physician, said however that Nixon's work schedule would be "certainly less than a quarter" of normal while he is in the hospital.

Nixon was admitted to the hospital about 7:15 pm. MDT Thursday after Tkach diagnosed the President's condition as viral pneumonia. Tkach said there were "no complications" with the illness, Nixon's first serious physical setback since he took office.

"We had difficulty in convincing him that he really was a sick man," Tkach said today. He added that Nixon got only four hours sleep after being admitted and he had to be given a "strong analgesic by injection."

Ziegler told the same news briefing at Bethesda that Nixon was examined by doctors twice in the early morning after a "restless night." He said the President was suffering from "chest discomfort," and had only orange juice and fruit for breakfast.

Gen. Alexander M. Haig, Nixon's chief of staff, went to the hospital today to discuss some business matters with the President, Ziegler said. Mrs. Nixon and the President's daughter, Julie, were expected to visit during the afternoon.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, said earlier in the day that he hoped to meet with Nixon some time next week on the Watergate hearings.

Ziegler said Nixon still was in excellent spirits and Tkach predicted he would be back at his office in about a week.

Ervin predicts vote to subpoena papers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin forecast today the Senate Watergate committee would vote to subpoena White House documents relating to the scandal if his coming meeting with President Nixon failed to produce a compromise agreement.

The President's refusal to grant the senators access to the papers, and subpoena action by Ervin's committee, would create a constitutional confrontation almost sure to require settlement by the Supreme Court.

Ervin said during a television interview early today that he would meet with Nixon "tomorrow," but later explained that he misspoke. He said he hoped the meeting could be held next week. It possibly would be held at Bethesda Naval Hospital, where Nixon was admitted Thursday night for treatment of what his doctor diagnosed as viral pneumonia.

The White House said no date had been set yet and that representatives of the President and Ervin would get together shortly, possibly today, to work out arrangements.

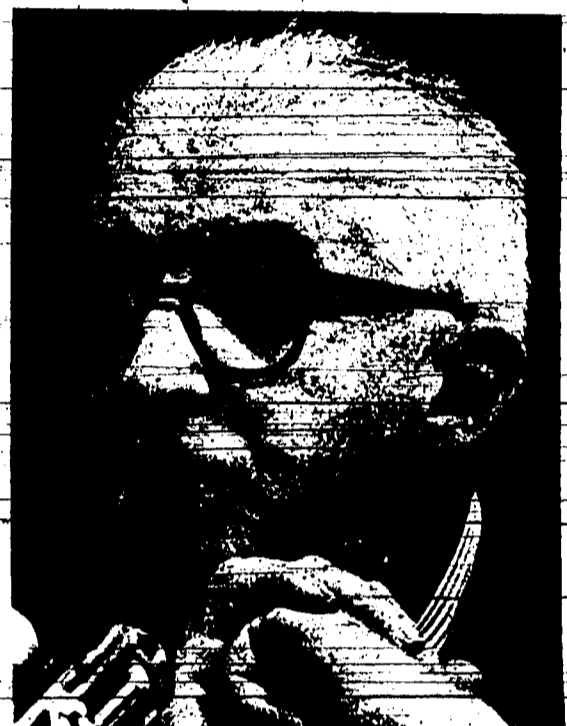

The President has refused to turn over the documents, claiming such action would violate his duty to uphold the doctrine of separation of powers.

Campora quits Argentine post

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — President Hector J. Campora offered his resignation to the Argentine Congress today to allow new elections within 40 days to restore Juan D. Peron to the presidency of Argentina after 18 years in exile.

"It was a decision that was born of my own sentiment, of all of a life in service of one man in whom I believed, I believe and will continue believing," Campora told legislators following an early morning meeting with Peron.

The 64-year-old Campora denied that there had been any pressure on him to resign after only 49 days in office.

RICHARD A. MOORE

Moore claims Nixon fooled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House Special Counsel Richard A. Moore testified today President Nixon sought repeatedly in March to get the facts about Watergate out in the open, and rejected a suggestion that the FBI check into the campaign histories of members of the Senate Watergate committee.

Moore's testimony before the nationally televised Senate Watergate hearings continued to differ sharply in interpretation with that of ousted White House Counsel John W. Dean III.

Moore said that Dean once proposed using the FBI to investigate members of the Senate Watergate committee in hopes of uncovering information that could be used to show that the scandal was nothing new in politics.

In a meeting with Nixon designed to plot moves "to get our side of the story out," Moore said that Dean told Nixon he had worked on Capitol Hill and knew that there were few political campaigns where "something questionable or illegal" was not done.

"We were asked for ideas on where we could take the initiative, and in that meeting at one point, Mr. Dean said to the President—'you know, one way for us to take the initiative' would be to get some responsible official to suggest that the members of the Watergate committee should submit to an FBI investigation of their past political campaigns."

"I think there might be a good idea if someone responsible would invite or suggest that the committee that was about to investigate campaign practices voluntarily offer to submit each of its most recent senatorial campaigns to a full field investigation by the FBI," Moore quoted Dean as saying.

Moore said that Nixon dismissed Dean's idea.

"The President came up with a puzzled look," Moore said, and Nixon told Dean he did not understand what he meant.

Probe finds mace usage

By DAVID ESPO, Times-News writer

RUPERT — An Idaho attorney general's criminal investigation has confirmed earlier allegations that teenaged boys at the Idaho Youth Ranch near here have been maced, handcuffed and struck by ranch personnel.

The eight-page report, prepared by investigator Allan Certe, makes no recommendations about the possible prosecution of any of the personnel involved. Attorney General W. Anthony Park said Thursday he would make such recommendations, if warranted to the Minidoka County prosecutor in the next several days.

Park said he wanted to confer with Department of Environmental and Community Services (DECS) administrator Dr. James Bax before making his recommendations.

Bax whose department licenses the private ranch for operation, requested the investigation after earlier inquiries had turned up the specific allegations of physical discipline. He was out of his office today and unavailable for comment.

The report was prepared after a two week investigation in which past and present employees, victims and witnesses were interviewed.

It details two incidents in which the chemical control agent mace was used to quiet boys, refers to two incidents in which handcuffs were used, and reports five incidents in which boys at the ranch were struck.

In some of the incidents, the suspect, victim and a witness were interviewed for the purpose of the report. "All persons I was referred to for further information were contacted," the report says. "Many are deleted from this report as their information was hearsay." An effort was made to obtain the information from those directly involved.

The specific incidents of the report include:

— A former Youth Ranch employee sprayed mace on a boy, 14, who had apparently shot other boys with a BB gun, and whom the employe felt was in danger of going out of control and possibly running away.

"I maced him and he quieted down, sitting on the bed. I got water and helped him wash his face off. Then I made out a report the next day. I felt this was more humane than fighting with and hurting him," the former employe is quoted as telling the investigator. The incident occurred in March, 1973.

— The employe is also accused by another boy at the Ranch of using the mace in an incident a few months earlier. But the alleged victim could not be contacted by the investigator.

— The employe is also the suspect in two separate handcuffing incidents. In one of them, which took place in September, 1972, he told the investigator he handcuffed a boy to his bedpost. The boy is now at a state mental institution.

The boy's behavior while at the ranch was erratic, according to the employe. "At times he would act like he was three years old and at other times normal."

On the night during which the employe acknowledges handcuffing him to the bedpost, the boy had apparently tried to run away without proper clothing into the "freezing" night. He was taken to the mental hospital the next day by his caseworker.

today in brief

Mitchell 'robbed'
WASHINGTON (UPI) — William Hundley, John N. Mitchell's chief lawyer, says the Watergate committee has robbed his client of the chance for a fair trial in any future case by making him "disclose every facet of a defense" in the hearings and by subjecting him to innuendo, speculation and hearsay.

'Miracle' saves family
KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — A family of 10, including six children, clung to an overturned boat for more than 24 hours in rough seas and torrential rains before being rescued by a pleasure boat.

Records center ablaze
ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Firemen today fought for the second day to control a blaze in the huge U.S. Military Personnel Records Center, which houses the records of 56 million former servicemen.

Solon killed
BALTIMORE (UPI) — Delegate James A. "Turk" Scott Jr., a Maryland legislator awaiting trial on federal heroin smuggling charges, was shot to death early today by shotgun and pistol fire.

AG to float Salmon
BOISE (UPI) — U. S. Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson leaves Boise by plane today for a week-long trip down the Middle Fork of the Salmon River.

Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Beatty of Boise, arrived in Boise Thursday afternoon.

Hindsight shows Andrus in error

BOISE (UPI) — Hindsight prompted Gov. Cecil D. Andrus Thursday to admit his 1.9 per cent holdback the last fiscal year may have been unnecessary and a senate committee chairman contends state officials knew better all along.

State Auditor Joe R. Williams and Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon reported the "free fund" balance of $3.3 million in the general fund at the end of the fiscal year June 30.

Andrus, discussing the surplus left after all bills had been paid and encumbrances against last year's appropriations taken out, said he is sure there are those who will argue that he should not have ordered the 1.9 per cent holdback in spending.

"On the basis of hindsight, I agree," said Andrus.

Senator Richard S. High, R-Twin Falls, in a telephone interview, said, "Last September we all had the same information which basically is economic indicators and state tax collections, and at that time most of us were very optimistic about ending the fiscal year in good condition."

"And I'd like to point out that this legislative position was very non-partisan. I think you'd find very few who were in support of the governor's position regardless of party," said High.

Thesenator added that regardless of the governor's intentions, "what he did was very premature because of the facts in our hands at that time."

Andrus, in defense of his holdback, said, "As conditions existed one year ago, I was compelled to order the spending holdback."

"To do otherwise would have been fiscally irresponsible—and I do not choose over to take an irresponsible course," he said.

Savings interest rates jump

By JOCELYN CLOWARD, Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Bankers here have raised interest rates on savings deposits, but are reluctant to discuss likely increases in interest charges on loans.

New federal ceilings on interest have permitted a one-half per cent hike in the interest paid by banks on passbook savings accounts, bringing the ceiling to five per cent. The new rates can be retroactive to July 1.

All four Twin Falls banks are now paying the higher rate. At the same time, savings and loan institutions can raise their passbook rates from 4 to 5 1/2 per cent.

The new ceilings, in effect, narrow the difference in interest competition between banks and non banking savings establishments.

Ken Newman, vice president and manager of the First Security Bank of Idaho said today the new ceilings "allow banks to be competitive with alternate savings institutions" and will keep "deposits from running off to non-banking investments."

First Federal Savings and Loan Association rates now are at 5 1/4 per cent from 5 per cent with 8 1/4 per cent paid on one year certificates $100 minimum up from 5 1/2 per cent.

Banks are offering various length savings programs, all with interest rates up about 1/2 per cent from previous rates for the same category of savings, Pete Youngberg, assistant vice president and manager of Equitable Savings and Loan Association reported that the company's main office in Portland is studying similar accounts.

"They will have something to say about rates in a few days," he said.

Bank officials hesitated today to discuss possible effect of higher interest ceilings on their loan practices.

Lyle Frazier, Senior Vice president of Idaho First National Bank, said "Loan rates may be up a little bit to offset the increased cost of savings and timed certificates. There are so many factors in determining loan interest rates," he said.

Curtis Eaton, president of Twin Falls Bank and Trust Co. said only that "Our loan policy will be determined as experience dictates."

While most of the bank and savings and loan officials declined to comment specifically on possible loan interest rate increases, some discussed the tight-money situation.

Newman said, "It appears that money is going to be tight for awhile. We've had unusual demands for several years. Because of the continued local expansion, we've had extra demands on loan funds."

— Jim Dodds, vice president and treasurer of First Federal Savings and Loan Association said, "All of our home loans are now at 8 per cent and commercial loans at 9 per cent. Nobody knows what's going to happen tomorrow. When the cost of your money goes up there has to be a corresponding change in charges."

"We're holding the line as best we can," he said.

Teenager disappears

J. PAUL GETTY, III, 16, Rome, Italy, teenage grandson of billionaire J. Paul Getty, has been kidnaped, the Getty family said Thursday. (UPI)

Billionaire's grandson said kidnaped in Italy

ROME (UPI) — J. Paul Getty III, 16-year-old grandson of billionaire J. Paul Getty, was reported missing and possibly kidnaped Thursday. Police said they were treating the case seriously and would make a statement later today. Mrs. Gail Getty, the youth's mother, told police and UPI that she received an anonymous telephone call Thursday saying that her son was kidnaped. "We have kidnaped your son," police said the caller told Mrs. Getty. "Start gathering your money together now for a ransom. We will call you later." Mrs. Getty told UPI that she could not discuss the ransom demand. "I can't tell you now," she said. "It was all so peculiar. I beg on my knees that the life of my child is not endangered," she said.

According to Moore, Dean told the President, "You know — the whole life in glass houses shouldn't throw stones."
Moore said Nixon shook his head negatively and did not encourage Dean to continue discussing the idea.
Dean has testified that he believes Nixon knew as early as Sept. 15 of the attempt to cover up top-level involvement in the bugging of the Democratic headquarters at the Watergate three months previously.
"In this period of March, in five personal meetings with the President, in every single one of those meetings, I think," Moore testified, "he emphasized 'Why don't we get our story out ourselves?'"
"Forthcoming" was the word he kept using, "be forthcoming," Moore said.
"That's one of the reasons I was convinced that the President had no blooming idea of what now turned out to be going on or he wouldn't be pressing to get it out," Moore said.
Moore's testimony came after Fred D. Thompson, the committee's minority counsel, asked him about meetings in March that he and Dean had with Nixon.
Dean testified in June that he had five conversations with Nixon — on Sept. 15, Feb. 27, Feb. 28, March 13 and March 21 — in which they discussed the Watergate cover-up.

In his prepared statement Thursday, Moore said the three men met in Nixon's Oval Office March 20, and "it seemed crystal clear to me that he (the President) knew of nothing that was inconsistent with the previously stated conclusion that the White House was uninvolved in the Watergate affair, before or after the event."
Nixon said later that he learned of "major developments" March 21 that led him to launch new White House inquiries into the case.
Moore said he never suspected a cover-up was in progress until late February or early March this year, when Dean began telling him what had been going on.
"Did you consider going to the President yourself to tell him?" asked Thompson.
"I was considering it seriously," Moore replied. "But all I had was gossip; nothing evidentiary... I felt it was coming to a head, but I had nothing but hearsay, gossip and rumor. But I was worried."
He said he believed "implicitly and totally" until March that Nixon had been correct last Aug. 29 when he said — based on an investigation made by Dean — that no one in the White House or in the administration had been involved in the scandal.

Ervin to see President

In a letter to Nixon prior to the phone call, suggesting a conference by the committee with Nixon to discuss access to the any Watergate-related White House documents, Ervin pointed out the committee hearings were on-going and said "time is of the essence" to try to resolve the issue.
Ervin said today the matter involves a conflict between the executive and legislative branches but could be "worked out very simply" if representatives of each went through various papers "and separated the documents which the committee is entitled to use."
"I see no great difficulty with a little cooperation," he said.

Ervin said if the President continued to refuse to give the committee access to the documents he would vote to subpoena them and believes that he would be supported by the entire seven-man committee.
"The powers of government are not quite as separate as some people believe," Ervin said, referring to Nixon's argument that turning over the documents would violate the separation of powers between the two branches of government.
"Information which collected at the expense of the American taxpayer belongs to the American people," he said. He said the doctrine of executive privilege did not extend to either political campaign material or material concerning illegal acts.

Garden coffee meet held

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls Garden Club had a morning coffee meeting Wednesday at the home and garden of Mrs. John Flatt.
The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Ada Powell, Mrs. Leo Geppner and Mrs. Emma Steffen. Mrs. Ray Legg, Kimberly, was a guest.
During a brief business session, Mrs. Sam Porter gave the secretary's report and Mrs. T. W. Hicks, president, read thank-you notes from Mrs. Frances Watland and Mrs. Darlene Curtis in regard to flowers and corsages provided for the Art Train show in May.

TF zoners stand firm

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County zoners Thursday "held the line" on commercial and housing developments in agricultural areas.

East and the Twin Falls grade and commercial building on Highway 30 east of Tolman's Corner.

Both areas are currently zoned agricultural. Gordon Crockett had requested a variance for 37 acres on Falls Avenue East to permit division of the area into 10 lots. Agricultural zoning requires lot sizes of at least five acres (limiting Crockett to no more than seven lots). Crockett asked the variance to "permit the best use of the land." He said the land is "not conducive to farming."

representing Globe, said Whitmore Oxygen Co., Twin Falls, was seeking a new building site. He said "mini-warehouses" would be provided in the rear of the commercial building.

The zoners disapproved the Globe request, with chairman L. James Koufink dissenting in the 7 to 1 vote.

Andrus admits bad judgment

The two cochairmen of the Finance Appropriations committee, Sen. High and Rep. William Roberts, R-Buhl, had criticized the governor's holdback at the time it was first announced, saying that economic indicators at the time had not supported the move.

"But to take the lid off all agencies undoubtedly would have meant they would have spent their full appropriations and they had been getting along quite well on the amounts that were available to them under the holdback," he said.

PARIS — The Soviet Union's diplomatic offensive has now succeeded in altering a basic Western and, above all, United States precondition that has hitherto underlain the complex of East-West negotiations.

The world, as it edges hopefully to détente, has been focussing on the idea known in contemporary shorthand as M.B.F.R., or mutual and balanced force reductions. The idea is that just about everyone recognizes that the sums invested in weaponry are insanely exaggerated but that nobody should be disadvantaged as rival adversaries begin to pare their defenses.

Thus "force reductions" are acceptable by just about all nations so long as a formula can be devised which makes them truly "mutual." That is where the world "balanced" comes in with reference to the North Atlantic Treaty powers on the one hand and the Warsaw Pact powers on the other.

The mutual benefit to both sides of saving costs by reducing arms levels has never been questioned but America's European allies want to insure the cuts are balanced. A sizable shrinkage in U.S. forces stationed here means they must return across the Atlantic. A similar shrinkage in Soviet forces means they simply have to pull behind the U.S.S.R.'s frontier.

If three American divisions fly home, they are a lot further from the zone of potential tension than three Russian divisions motoring eastward. Furthermore, given the flabby U.S. dollar, executive and economy and the initially disappointing response as Selective Service is replaced by a volunteer military establishment, it isn't even probable that the units brought home would be maintained on more than a skeleton basis, even if theoretically earmarked for NATO.

Therefore, our North Atlantic allies have been preoccupied by the "B" in M.B.F.R. They interpret this as meaning, because of the greater distance travelled and the difficulties of potential return, that any mutual force reduction requires that more Soviet than U.S. forces be withdrawn from Europe if a true "Balance" is maintained.

On this point France, no longer in NATO but still a signatory to the North Atlantic Treaty, has been as reluctant as any ally to see a diminishment that is not "balanced" as well as "Mutual." Most of our partners accept this point even though the Netherlands swings away and seems about to terminate its air force.

Yet, as I wrote from Brussels in early June, the new U. S. defense secretary, James Schlesinger, gave an ugly hint to the alliance that America was re-evaluating the situation and reckoned there were 35 fewer Soviet and Warsaw pact divisions in East Europe than NATO's own intelligence staff officially estimated.

Allied diplomats promptly suspected Washington was getting ready to respond to political pressures and reduce its forces by suddenly insisting the alliance is relatively stronger than previously suspected.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

The Doctor Says

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you possibly tell me why my fingernails peel in layers?

I used to have long nice fingernails but not anymore. They don't just break off at the ends. They break or peel off in layers, halfway up the nail. — L. McC.

After examining your nails, and you, I probably would have a much sounder idea of what the cause is.

However, keep these points in mind. The nails are, like the skin, part of the body's covering. Like the skin, they can reflect your general health or an infection or irritation.

From the standpoint of general health, one thinks largely in terms of faulty metabolism (low thyroid activity); insufficient nutrition, particularly of protein and vitamins; or the presence of anemia, particularly an iron-deficiency type of it.

Infection would be revealed by the nature of the scaling and pitting of the nails.

Irritants would include such chemicals as nail polish, polish remover, or contact with variety of other common household chemicals — many of these affect some people, don't bother others.

Thus, correcting peeling fingernails isn't something that is likely to yield to some home remedy, prescribed sight unseen.

Rather, you should have your doctor (or a dermatologist) evaluate the possible factors in your situation. If you are anemic, building up your blood is important for many reasons than your nails. Faulty thyroid can be effectively treated — if that's the trouble.

If it's nutrition, the use of vitamin B and more protein (other than just gelatin, which is so often recommended) may be the choice.

But if there is no indication of any of the above problems, then you have to take a hard look at irritants. It isn't always easy to spot the offender, but it can be done. Sometimes the dermatologist can give you some shrewd leads as to the probable ones. Sometimes you have to rely on a process of elimination. It takes time, but it's worth it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: This may sound silly. My 18-month-old son has a squeaky foot or ankle. At first I just thought it was his shoes — but now he has two new pairs and I still notice the squeak when he walks. Is this anything to be concerned about? — Mrs. R. O.

That's a new one on me. But tell me this: does he squeak when he goes barefoot? If not, then I'd assume that you have had extraordinary luck (good or bad) in getting him nothing but squeaky shoes.

If anybody else knows anything about squeaky feet, I'm ready to be informed.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any sure way of knowing when one is finished with menopause? Can one be sure after a certain time has passed, or does it depend on the individual? — Mrs. S. W.

This is a difficult notion to combat — the notion that menopause is something that starts and stops. Like the measles or a cold.

That isn't what menopause is. Menopause is a permanent change. Compare it to becoming an adult. Nobody ever asks, "When will I be through with it?" You won't be through with it.

It's the same with menopause. At some variable age, usually but not always in the 40s, menstruation comes to an end. That's what the word means — the cessation of menstruation.

So accept it as something that happens. You've changed. Don't expect to change back again. You won't.

Justice With Mercy

The secretaries of the Army and Navy have announced that all charges have been dropped against five soldiers and two Marines charged by Air Force Colonel Theodore Guy with collaborating with the enemy during their imprisonment in a prison camp in North Viet Nam, called "The Plantation."

An eighth Marine accused by Col. Guy, Abel Kavanaugh, killed himself in Denver. His widow, two months pregnant, has charged the accusations were fictitious and has filed suit against both Guy and the Navy.

The charges were dropped on the basis that there was insufficient evidence to support and prosecute them and also as being contrary to the established policy of not prosecuting returned prisoners of war because of alleged propaganda statements.

We think the decision will meet with approval of the American public. There is a special sympathy for returned prisoners of war — as there should be. These men were captured in 1967 and 1968. Thus, at the time of their return, they had been imprisoned five or six years under conditions that were extremely difficult to bear.

It is notable that Col. Guy, the senior ranking officer in "The Plantation," was Air Force rather than Army or Marine Corps. This may have been a factor in the antagonism that developed.

None of us, certainly, can make a valid decision about the charges levelled by Guy. To do that, we also would have had to have been prisoners at "The Plantation" and have undergone the stresses which these men did. What would have been our reactions jailed in a foreign land, far from home and friends, and very uncertain of ever being liberated, or for that matter, ever leaving the camp alive?

We cannot reconstruct, nor would it be easy for a military court, the relationship which existed between Guy and the other men in the camp.

We do feel, however, that we correctly judge the temper of the American people on this issue. We think they will approve the decision of the secretaries and approve the dropping of charges.

Granted, this feeling has been sharpened by the suicide of Sergeant Kavanaugh. It is pitiful that a man survived the rigors of enemy captivity and then saw fit to take his own life.

And, of course, none of us can know the part that Guy's charges played or did not play in the sergeant's final decision.

It is compassionate to temper justice with mercy in the case of these men, who have already undergone so much. Any other step would meet with popular revulsion from the people. And after all, in the final determinant, the people are the government and the decision makers in our country.

High Grade

Notre Dame's first group of undergraduate women has completed its first year at the formerly all-male university.

Outnumbered 17-1, the 365 women registered a grade point average of 3.12 for the first term, compared with an overall university average of 2.94. The coeds also gave Notre Dame an above-passing grade.

In their responses to a survey, the women generally commented favorably about the predominantly male faculty, but the tendency of some teachers to single out women for a "feminine viewpoint" during class discussion drew criticism as being "patronizing."

There is nothing like a dame, but don't say it at Notre Dame or you'll get their fighting Irish up.

MR. SPECTATOR

Today's The Day

Mr. Spectator would point out that if you haven't been run over, fell off the curb, slipped out of bed onto the floor, fell down a flight of stairs, been evicted for non-payment of rent, wrecked your car, had a minor heart attack or lost your wallet:

Well, don't give up just yet. It is still Friday the 13th until midnight. Lots of things can happen between the time you are reading this and midnight. So hang in there!

A COMPLAINT

What with having me on a diet, Mrs. Spectator is also prodding me to walk more. As a result, we do go out every now and then and walk.

Usually we drive the old car downtown, park it, and walk the circuit of some 12 or 14 blocks — coming back to collapse in the car before driving home. However, we every now and then walk in neighborhood areas — especially now that there is a dog leash law in the city.

But that is not the point. You would be amazed at the number of people who permit their trees to hang low over the sidewalk. And along we come and run our head right into a limb, or about put out the old eyes with hanging branches.

So come on now, folks! Let's get out and trim those overhanging trees before we get our head knocked off — or drag someone into court. So there!

ANOTHER COMPLAINT

Hughes Airwest officials at the Twin Falls City-County Airport are complaining. Late arriving passengers are making the planes late in getting out of here. For instance, the morning jet just recently, from here to Salt Lake and then, to the West Coast, was about 20 minutes late, because of late arriving passengers.

What with security measures now in effect, these folks just can't be rushed through with a great deal of speed. Passengers should arrive at least 30 minutes before the flight is scheduled.

We might just put in a warning here — if you are one of the late ones you might just find out the plane will take off on time and you will be left standing there watching it go.

ART BUCHWALD

Going To The Dogs

WASHINGTON — Just before we get used to digesting the energy crisis, we are informed that we face a food crisis because of the recent price freeze.

The food producers say they can't sell food at the prices the government wants them to without losing money.

Before we all starve to death, I think it's about time someone said something about a subject that has been taboo in this country for more than 10 years. And that is the large amount of food that is going to dogs and cats in this nation rather than to human beings.

If you watch television at all, you will realize that almost every other TV commercial is devoted to dog or cat food. And if you believe the message these commercials are sending out, the various dog and cat food companies are providing the best beef, the tastiest chicken and the most delicious fish in their products to satisfy the gourmet taste of the pet population of America. The food they advertise looks so good that my mouth starts salivating every time I see a dog or cat digging into a plate of his favorite name-brand dish.

When this country had enough food to go around, there was no reason to object to all the Tuffy pet foods filling up the shelves of our supermarkets. But if we are to believe that food doomsayers, then we're going to have to take the food away from the dogs and cats in order to survive.

A generation ago, before the dogs and cats got sucked into convenience foods, Americans fed their pets leftovers and scraps from the table. The dogs and cats were part of the family, waiting patiently for whatever we would toss them.

They were good dogs and they were good cats and weren't spoiled as they are today. When you gave a dog a bone, he was grateful and would lick your hand. When you put a fish head on a cat's plate, he meowed with glee. These dogs and cats grew up healthy, strong and filled with the American ethic that you can't get something for nothing. You were proud to call them your pets and they were grateful to call you their masters.

But since the advent of canned dog food, frozen dog burgers, instant chow and the rest, the pet population in this country has changed. They're spoiled rotten by the affluent society. They eat the costly packaged foods and then growl at you afterwards. They are careless in their toilet habits and walk around with long hair.

They think the world owes them a living. They don't know what it is to beg for a dog biscuit or an almost-spoiled can of sardines.

The dogs and cats of this generation have never had to work for a meal in their lives. If you ask them to mind the house while you're away, they become surly and sink off to a corner. If you ask them to fetch the paper or a ball, they ignore you as if you didn't exist.

All they want to know is: "What did you bring me from the Safeway or Giant?"

Well, the time has come to face up to reality. We cannot supply canned and frozen food for both our pets and ourselves. Eliminate the packaged dog and cat foods in America and you will have enough meat and fish to feed the world.

Let's put our pets back on scraps and leftovers, soupbones and old cornflakes. Give them the back-to-the-Pioneer spirit that once made the American dog and cat the envy of the Free World.

They may protest at first, but after a while they will be grateful to us for giving them the strength to face the challenges of tomorrow.

In this hour of food crisis, the dogs and cats of America must ask themselves not what the country can feed them, but what they can feed the country.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I don't know what's the matter with me, but I just can't say no. I go with the kind of guys who can talk me into anything. I am only 18, and I can't even remember all the guys I've gone all the way with. Some of them I didn't feel a thing for. I just didn't want to hurt their feelings.

My parents think I'm a "good" girl because I don't stay out late.

I am not dumb, and I am nothing special to look at. I am just average, but I would like to stop giving in to one guy after another. Can you help me? CANT SAY NO

DEAR CANT: You need counselling. Get in touch with your Family Service Agency (if you can't afford private counselling). They can help you straighten out your thinking. Or check your phone book for the Mental Health Clinic nearest you and ask for an appointment. (P. S. I'd like to hear from you after you've followed these two leads. God bless you.)

GRASSHOPPER PIE
Chocolate shell:
1 cup semi sweet
chocolate chips
3 cups toasted rice
cereal

In a double boiler over hot water, melt the chocolate chips. Gently stir in rice cereal until all is coated. Pour into well buttered nine inch pie plate and spread evenly over bottom, sides and rim. Refrigerate until ready to use.

Filling:
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1/2 cup milk
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 eggs, separated
1/2 teaspoon peppermint extract
1 cup heavy cream
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup cold water

Few drops green food coloring in a medium heavy sauce pan, combine the sugar, salt and cornstarch. Stir in milk until mixture is smooth. Cook over medium heat until mixture thickens and comes to a boil, stirring constantly. Boil for one minute. Remove from heat.

In a small bowl, soften gelatin in cold water. Beat egg yolks slightly and add about one-half cup of the hot mixture and return all to hot mixture in sauce pan. Return to heat and cook two minutes longer, stirring constantly. Again remove from heat and add gelatin and peppermint flavoring. Cool to room temperature, but do not let set. Beat egg whites with a few sprinkles sugar until stiff. Beat cream until stiff and fold into egg whites. Add a few drops green food coloring to tint a delicate green. Fold gently, just until blended, into the custard mixture and pour into the prepared pie shell. Chill for two and one-half to three hours. (Can be garnished with a dollop of whipped cream and grated chocolate. Serves six to eight.)

The Times-News will pay $5 each week for Magic Valley Favorites. If you have a favorite recipe, just mail it to the Recipe Department, Women's Page Editor. The recipe becomes the property of the Times-News and cannot be returned.

She can't say 'no'

DEAR ABBY: I have a suggestion that would give great hope to cancer victims. Most of them make a habit of reading the obituaries with apprehension and fear.

It would, I believe, give them courage and confidence if families would allow obituaries to read: "Mr. X died at the age of 72 of a heart attack. He underwent cancer surgery 20 years ago."

Is there any reason this can't be done? NEW YORKER

DEAR NEW YORKER: Your idea is great for those who have survived cancer surgery. But how do you think it would affect persons with heart conditions?

DEAR ABBY: I had a very irritating experience recently at a family gathering. One of my aunts greeted me with, "I didn't recognize you because you got so fat!" (And she said this in front of a lot of people.)

As one who has always been heavy, I am very sensitive about my weight and I found this very embarrassing. I feel that such comments are as rude and uncalled for as making fun of a cripple or an otherwise handicapped person.

My family tells me to drop the matter because my aunt is elderly and should be excused. I maintain that age is no excuse. What is your opinion? BURNED

DEAR BURNED: Age could be an excuse. However, since no one can insulate himself against possible hurtful remarks, your only defense is to avoid those who are inclined to make them; b. develop a thicker skin; c. try to reduce your "problem."

DEAR ABBY: My husband has earned a Ph.D. in psychology, and it took him 10 years of hard work to do it. Recently at a party a woman said, "My brother in law is a doctor—a REAL one." I felt like I had been slapped in the face.

Why do some people think that unless a person is a medical doctor, he isn't a "real" one?

I am angry with myself for not having set that woman straight, but what could I have said?

Please print this, Abby, so others won't make the same mistake. GALLED IN GALVESTON

DEAR GALLED: You could have said, "My husband is also a 'REAL' doctor. He's a doctor of psychology." (P. S. Ignorance is no mistake.)

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 99709, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

West's ace of clubs lead was eminently correct. Had he led the queen or jack South would have made two overtricks. As it was, the best South could do was take the fourth club trick and cash five spades for down one.

Had North doubled, South would have bid hearts. West would have bid more clubs and eventually South would have played in three or four hearts, making four.

In either case a lot better than losing 200 points at one no-trump.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

A reader asks, "Why is your choice of your first bid important?"

The answer is that if you make a wrong bid you may never be able to correct it.

North's spade bid illustrates this. He had enough high cards and the right hand to double the club opening. Instead he elected to overcall one spade.

South's no-trump was sort of a general response. He thought he had too much to pass.

West's double was primarily for business. North was happy to leave it in. East was unhappy

$ outlook uncertain

LONDON (UPI) — The dollar met mixed fortunes in nervous and uncertain world money markets today and nobody seemed willing to bet on which way it would go.

The dollar opened higher in Paris, lower in Amsterdam, higher in London, barely higher in Frankfurt. Movements were marginal and trading was "both nervous and light," according to a London dealer.

In London it took $2.5422 to buy a British pound, compared with $2.5433 Thursday night. A dollar bought about 4.135 French francs today instead of 4.115 Thursday, but only 2.616 Dutch guilders instead of 2.6225. The German mark price of 2.3975 to the dollar was fractionally higher than Thursday's close.

The weakened American currency, which has dropped for months in the amount of foreign money it would buy, turned around at the beginning of the week. It climbed everywhere on the belief that government central banks—particular the U.S. Federal Reserve Board—were about to step into the market and buy dollars to push its value up.

But by mid-week there was no solid evidence of such government intervention, and the dollar started to slide again.

Today's opening prices, however, were a muddle. There were no clear trends.

In Zurich, the dollar bought 2.8745 Swiss francs today, compared with 2.8575 at the end of trading Wednesday. The American currency was slightly up in Belgium, priced today at 36.875 Belgian francs, a bare .19 per cent gain on Thursday's closing price of 36.825.

There was equal uncertainty in early gold trading. In prefixing trading in London the gold price dropped to $120 an ounce, 75 cents below Thursday's closing price.

The dollar rally that started Monday was inspired chiefly by suggestions from government bankers meeting in Basel, Switzerland, that they would intervene in money markets. Then, the U.S. Federal Reserve Board said it would make $6.25 billion available to support the dollar.

But by Thursday, currency dealers had found that such action had not come and the pressure was back on the dollar again.

In Zurich, the dollar dropped to 2.8575 Swiss francs compared with Wednesday's price of 2.894 francs.

In Paris, the dollar fell to 4.115 francs, down from 4.17 francs on Wednesday.

Demo confident of vindication

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Democratic congressman from Brooklyn, indicted on charges of perjury and bribery in an airlines case, said Thursday he was the victim of political assassination and "only the first, not the last congressman whose career is threatened by...the White House."

Rep. Bertram L. Podell, a congressman since 1968, was served with a 10-count federal indictment alleging that he solicited $57,000 and then received $41,350 in bribe payments from a Florida air taxi company, in exchange for pressuring various federal agencies to get the firm a mail route.

Podell last Sunday said that he possessed documents showing that the Justice Department had overruled a suggested staff investigation of pricing practices by the Precision Valve Corp., owned by President Nixon's close friend, Robert Abplanalp. Podell claimed the action represented a conflict of interest within the department.

"My indictment and political death is meant to atone for the cesspool of crime and corruption uncovered in the Watergate hearings," Podell told newsmen in Washington. "I am only the first, not the last, congressman whose career is threatened by...the White House."

"I am ready to go to trial today, right now and I am confident of my ultimate vindication."

Pat stays home

WASHINGTON (UPI) — First Lady Pat Nixon and her daughter, Julie Eisenhower, stayed at the White House Thursday night when President Nixon was taken to Bethesda Naval hospital for treatment of viral pneumonia.

They had been assured the President's illness was not dangerous and that he could expect to be released from the hospital in no more than a week.

Mrs. Nixon and Mrs. Eisenhower said goodbye to the President in the family quarters before he was driven by limousine to the hospital in the Maryland suburb. He was accompanied by two aides.

Earlier, Nixon ate a light supper in the Lincoln sitting room, his favorite retreat in the executive mansion. Mrs. Nixon and Julie had their dinner in the East Hall where they could watch television and chat.

Mrs. Eisenhower's husband, David, was in Philadelphia where he is a weekly sports columnist for the Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Nixons' other daughter, Tricia Nixon Cox, and her husband, Edward, were notified of the President's illness. They were at their New York City apartment.

Julie is the only member of the family who has been making frequent public appearances lately. On several occasions she has defended her father from charges leveled about the Watergate affair.

In a recent interview, she told reporters that members of the family talked the President out of any consideration of resigning on grounds that it would be "an admission of wrongdoing."

Mrs. Nixon has cancelled her public appearances. She has avoided reporters and appeared reluctant to talk with them for fear they would ask questions about the Watergate scandal. Her only public comment has been, "Like Julie, I have faith" that Nixon "will survive the Watergate ordeal."

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, concerned with the status of the dollar on foreign markets and the illness of President Nixon, opened lower Friday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average was off 0.75 at 901.19 shortly after the opening. Declines led advances, 193 to 161, among the 503 issues crossing the tape. Turnover amounted to more than 420,000 shares.

The stock market has followed the course of the dollar during the week, and has shown an overall gain. The dollar and the market rose during the first three days and fell together Thursday. The dollar was unsettled abroad early Friday.

Analysts said another thing which might affect the market during the day's session is the hospitalization of President Nixon for pneumonia. Nixon had been expected to lift the price freeze and announce some Phase-IV guidelines.

Trading boom awaited

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Intermountain Stock Exchange expects recent price increases in gold and silver to enhance the future of the oldest registered exchange between the Midwest and the Pacific Coast.

Ernest Muth, exchange president, said, "We haven't had a boom in trading here since 1968, but now we're hoping price increases in gold and silver and the western exploration boom for oil and natural gas will bring us back to that level."

Tax revenues rise

BOISE (UPI) — Sales tax revenues in Idaho during the past fiscal year were so good that local units of government will receive an additional $2 million, according to Tax Commissioner Jenkin Palmer.

Palmer said the local units — cities, counties, school districts and others — will get $12.1 million. That is $2 million more than diverted to them in the previous year.

Under a law enacted by the 1967 legislature, local units of government receive 20 per cent of the three per cent state sales and use tax. The money is diverted to them to replace funds they lost when the inventory tax was phased out.

Farm bill shelved by veto warnings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Facing a veto threat, the House Thursday shelved its massive four-year farm bill for the weekend while farm bloc leaders sought to engineer a less-costly compromise.

Chairman W. R. Poage, D-Iex., of the House Agriculture Committee told reporters he thought it might be possible to revive the bill by limiting it to a two-year term instead of four years. He said a price support "escalator" clause in the bill, which was primarily responsible for the administration veto threat, actually would have little or no impact until the third and fourth years of the bill's operation.

"If we get rid of the escalation problem, and I think limiting the bill to two years would do that, I think we then would have eliminated their opposition on that issue," Poage explained. An earlier, even costlier version of the bill passed by the Senate would run for five years.

Administration officials had no immediate comment on Poage's suggestion. Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carroll G. Brunthaver said Agriculture Department and White House officials planned to meet to review the situation, but he could not predict what they would decide. Brunthaver agreed, however, that potential government subsidy costs could be trimmed by holding the bill to two years.

The House bill, embroiled in bitter controversy since floor debate began Tuesday, already has been amended over the opposition of cotton state lawmakers to include a $20,000 per farmer limit on wheat, cotton and feed grain subsidy payments coupled with a tough ban against avoiding the impact of the ceiling by lease or sale of cotton allotments.

The veto threat which temporarily, at least, derailed the bill came after a vote Wednesday when the House rejected an administration-backed amendment to strip the so-called escalator clause for grain and cotton supports from the bill.

The measure was built around a new "target price" support plan for grains and cotton. It set 1974 support targets of $2.05 a bushel for wheat, $1.38 a bushel for corn and 38 cents a pound for cotton, and provided that growers of these crops would get government subsidies only if actual market prices fell below those figures.

For the three years following 1974, the escalator clause would boost the target prices to help keep income protection for farmers in line with increases in their costs.

Poage said Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz telephoned him early Thursday to say the White House Office of Management and Budget could not accept the prospect of increased subsidy payments raised by allowing support targets to escalate through 1974, 1975 and 1978, "and we would have to expect a veto."

Ram sale set

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The National Ram Sale will be held August 22-23 at Utah State Fairgrounds, says the National Wool Growers Association.

Edwin E. Marsh, executive secretary of the association, said the sale is the oldest and most prestigious in the nation.

"Because of the competition which prevails at the event, the sale has played an important role in improving the quality of sheep breeding stock in the country," Marsh said.

A feature at this year's event will be the sale of 14 performance-tested stud rams, he said.

Hopper help asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, Wednesday urged Secretary of Interior Rogers C. B. Morton and Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz to give immediate attention to combatting an infestation of grasshoppers which has plagued farmers and ranchers in southeastern Idaho.

Church made his request in telegrams to the two administration officials.

Church told Morton and Butz the reports indicate the insects are migrating off unsprayed Bureau of Land Management lands and onto adjoining privately-owned range and cultivated lands."

Club post for Harney

TWIN FALLS — Robert Harney, Twin Falls, was elected to the board of directors of the American Appaloosa Club during the national convention last week in Salem, Ore.

Harney, an Appaloosa breeder in Twin Falls for a number of years has been active in several regional Appaloosa clubs and has worked with the regional and national youth programs to assist young exhibitors. He will serve a three year term on the board of directors representing the western states of Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Montana, Nevada, North and South Dakota.

No criminal violations reported in grain sale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department says it has found no criminal violations involved in last year's $1.1 billion grain sale to Russia.

But it declined to give investigators for a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., access to FBI reports on the grain deal.

Instead, it sent Sen. Jackson on July 5 a summary of the investigation and a letter saying it is government policy not to release FBI reports. The summary was made public Wednesday.

The summary said the FBI found no criminal actions either by grain companies or by present or former Agriculture Department officials. It said Continental Grain Co., which handled more than half of the sale, filed several inaccurate weekly reports to the Commodity Exchange Authority (CEA) but that these "in no way adversely affected the government and in fact could have operated to Continental's disadvantage."

It also said no violations of laws dealing with conflict of interest or improper disclosure of confidential information had been found involving former Assistant Agriculture Secretary Clarence D. Palmy, Clifford J. Pulvermacher or Charles W. Pence.

Palmy and Pulvermacher left the Agriculture Department last summer after participating in preliminary U.S. negotiations with Russia and joined private grain firms, which later took part in the Soviet sales.

Heat, wind hit crops

BOISE — Non-irrigated crops and ranges in Idaho are beginning to show stress from lack of rain and drying winds.

According to Crop-Weather, publication of the U. S. Department of Commerce, prolonged lack of moisture in North Idaho is causing small grains to ripen ahead of schedule. Small grains and range grasses in the eastern dryland are now in need of general rains.

Grasshopper populations are increasing in dryland areas and pose a threat to crops, and warm days and persistent winds make it difficult to keep up with irrigation demands.

The weather service publication said warm weather is hastening the development of small grains throughout the state. About 50 per cent of the winter wheat crop has turned and 10 per cent of the fields are beginning to ripen, while 60 per cent of the spring wheat fields have headed. Early fields have started to turn, particularly in the southwest.

Barley is more advanced with 40 per cent of the fields turning and some ripening taking place.

In the southwest the middles are closed in 80 per cent of the potato fields. About 30 per cent of middles are closed in the south central area and 10 per cent in the east.

By the close of the week of July 9, the first cutting of alfalfa was 8 per cent complete statewide. In the southwest, the first cutting is near completion. It is 85 per cent complete in the south central portion, and in northern and eastern areas, 7 per cent of the crop is harvested.

Temperatures during the week varied between three degrees below normal to three degrees above throughout the state. Grandview recorded a high of 101 while low readings of 27 to 30 degrees were recorded in the higher valleys July 2.

Precipitation was generally below normal with measurable amounts in the

Import oil up 10 fold

By United Press International
Government-owned gasoline stations could help solve the nation's energy crisis and provide a yardstick on price and environmental policy for private industry, Lee C. White, former Federal Power Commission chairman suggested Thursday.

In Washington, the Senate was in no mood to delay construction of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline, and the Department of the Interior announced the amount of oil imports has increased nearly 10 times over last year.

White, at a San Francisco news conference, said a new energy policy task force set up by the Consumer Federation of America has endorsed a concept as a major goal.

The former federal official is head of the task force which believes the government-run service stations could evolve from the establishment by Congress of a federal fuels corporation.

He said the government stations would serve as a yardstick for private industry in terms of costs and careful regard for environmental considerations.

White said his consumer organization endorses Congressional moves toward mandatory controls as a means of assuring that every part of the nation gets its fair share of fuel and that high priority needs are filled.

In the nation's capital, Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton announced the amount of oil imports permitted to enter the United States has increased nearly 10-fold over last year, following President Nixon's lifting of import restrictions during the current fuel shortage.

Morton said the Oil Import Appeals Board allowed only 40,000 barrels of petroleum products into the country each day in 1972, but current licenses issued by the board permit 371,500 barrels of oil imports.

The President lifted import restrictions March 23.

And the Senate, which has been debating enacting new legislation that would permit construction of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline by removing legal objections ruled in federal courts, was in no mood to accept a proposal by Midwest senators that would delay construction.

The proposal—an eight-month study of an alternate route through Canada offered by Sens. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and Birch Bayh, D-Ind.—faced almost certain defeat today as the Senate entered its fifth day of debate on a bill to permit construction of the $3.5 billion pipeline across Alaska.

Viet Cong may free Canadians

SAIGON (UPI) — The Viet Cong said today it has received new information on the whereabouts of two missing Canadian officers and said they might go free Saturday.

But first, it said, South Vietnam must provide adequate safety guarantees.

Capt. Phuong Nam, the Viet Cong press officer, said the new information was turned over to Canadian Maj. Gen. Duncan McAlpine, who immediately started action to seek the safety guarantees requested by the Viet Cong.

The two missing Canadians, Capt. Ian Patten, 31, and Capt. Fletcher Thomson, 25, disappeared 35 miles east of Saigon on June 27. On Monday, the Viet Cong confirmed that it was holding the two men.

Boy buried with dream

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — An 8-year-old boy who died of leukemia before he could realize his dream to become a policeman will be buried today in a full dress sergeant's uniform and with a police honor guard attending.

During the last three years, when it was discovered he had leukemia and until he died Tuesday, John Guiry collected more than 1,000 shoulder patches from police agencies around the country. His mother said he also collected "just about everything a policeman has."

The boy had three cousins who are policemen. They and their colleagues provided him with the three-striped uniform that he will be buried in. He also had a state trooper hat.

State troopers and policemen from the Colone and Bethlehem forces will make up the honor guard.

US B52 bombers to remain in Thailand

BANGKOK (UPI) — U.S. military spokesmen said today there are no plans for withdrawing B52 bombers in Thailand that are used for most of the bombing in Cambodia. Administration sources in Washington said Thursday the United States would start pulling some of the big bombers out of the Pacific as early as this weekend because of the planned Aug. 15 halt in the Cambodian bombing.

About a dozen of the estimated 140 B52s at Andersen Air Force Base on Guam would return to the United States, they said, with other withdrawals of the planes from Asian bases following quickly.

The approximately 60 B52s in Thailand are stationed at U Tapao Air Base, 70 miles south of Bangkok. They have been doing most of the bombing over Cambodia since the Pentagon cut back daily flights by the planes from 60 to about 40 late in May.

Spokesmen in Bangkok indicated that current plans call for the full complement of bombers at U Tapao to remain at least until Aug. 15.

"Beyond that," a spokesman said, "depends on whatever is decided by the Thai and U.S. governments."

Deputy Foreign Minister Charitchai Chunahawan assigned to a peace-keeping International Commission of Control and Supervision team based at the provincial capital of Xuan Loc.

At Canada's request, regularly-scheduled ICCS meetings were adjourned this week. Ambassador Michel Gauvin said the reason was the detention of the two Canadians and two Vietnamese employees of the peace keeping organization.

France silent on S. Pacific test

By United Press International
France maintained silence again today on its plans for carrying out nuclear tests in the South Pacific, but opponents leading international protests to prevent them said the first explosion could come at any time.

"The secret is well guarded," the Paris newspaper L'Aurore said in reference to reports the tests might start Saturday.

However, radio operators aboard a yacht sailing near the test site said the weather was not favorable for testing. They did not elaborate.

French newspapers said today South Pacific islanders do appear upset over the forthcoming series of French nuclear tests, although Australia, New Zealand, Japan and other countries bitterly oppose them. They fear fallout will endanger their populations.

The test site is the Mururoa atoll, about 750 miles from Tahiti. France has used the site since 1966 for its atmospheric tests, but only in the last year has widespread opposition grown.

France established a prohibited area around the atoll Tuesday, warning ships and aircraft to stay out of the area. Traditionally, the warning comes only a short time before testing begins.

French authorities did not indicate what kind of device they intend to test, but some military sources said it was a fission trigger.

In Wellington, the capital of New Zealand, officials said the country's most modern frigate is ready to sail for the French nuclear test zone as part of a protest campaign.

The frigate Canterbury will replace its sister frigate Otago on patrol inside the 72-mile security zone France established.

Hells Canyon land lawsuit filed

BOISE (UPI) — An official of the U.S. Agriculture Department has filed condemnation suits in federal court to acquire 6,980 acres of privately owned land in Hells Canyon.

Assistant agriculture secretary Robert Long brought one suit to acquire 2,493 acres, most of which are owned by George E. and Helen Wilson, Nyssa, Ore. He bought the other to obtain 4,487.10 acres from the Circle C. Ranch Co., New Meadows, and Equitable Life Assurance Society of the U.S. The government deposited two checks totaling $1,004,415 — estimated compensation for the takeover — with the court.

NO MEASURE. NO PREMIX. NO BLIGHT.

DU-TER®. Now in a unique water-soluble pack that takes all the work, time and mess out of measuring and mixing your potato fungicide. Just fill your spray tank, half full of water, drop the soluble 50-ounce pack into the tank with full agitation. Complete filling, then agitate the mix 3 to 5 minutes to dissolve the pack. It's the fastest, most efficient way to get the jump on blight this season. Because DU-TER is an ultra-low volume fungicide, we recommend application of just 5 to 10 ounces per acre, as opposed to 1-1/2 lbs. per acre with other fungicides. Begin early and spray every 7 days as conditions dictate. Be especially alert to blight attacks when temperatures remain above 50° F. or when relative humidity is above 75% for 48 hours or longer. DU-TER is also registered for sugar beets. Try a tankful of DU-TER. You'll like the convenience of the new water-soluble pack, and the effectiveness of DU-TER's blight control. So will your potatoes.

Petitioners seek vote in Burley

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

BURLEY — In a last ditch effort to get a vote for city-manager government on a ballot a group here is canvassing for signatures through the weekend.

The citizen's group must have a petition with about 785 signatures, or 25 per cent of the total number of voters in the last general election, to put the issue on a ballot. They now have 503.

Since the vote must be held 60 days prior to the November elections, the committee is trying to round up the over 200 signatures needed before Monday's City Council meeting for consideration so legal printing can get underway.

Petitions were being circulated earlier this spring but the issue faded in recent weeks.

The petition merely asks the council to set up the vote and does not obligate the signer to any particular position if the issue comes up to a vote.

The ballot will ask if the voter prefers the mayor-council form of government now in use, or if he desires a change to the manager-council form.

Mayor Garis Robertson has indicated repeatedly that he will not seek re-election and, as yet, no one else has expressed intention to seek the office.

The committee emphasized that Burley has a $3.5 million budget and needs a highly qualified individual to supervise its operations.

The group will be going door-to-door seeking signatures for the petition this weekend. In addition, a fair booth will be set up downtown Friday and Saturday to answer questions and offer petitions for signatures.

If an election is called for by the council, the committee will hold hearings and present explanations through the media concerning the issue.

If called, the election will be sometime in September.

61 Valley students graduate

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News writer

EDEN — Special graduation ceremonies for 61 students of the Valley School District summer migrant education program were held Thursday night at Eden.

Arlyn Bodily, superintendent of Valley Schools, awarded diplomas during the program at the Edén Elementary School. The program presented by the students included the operetta "Billy Goat Gruff," finger plays and several vocal selections.

The ceremonies ended six weeks of schooling for the students, of whom 55 per cent were migrant children.

The summer program was started seven years ago under the guidelines of the State Department of Education and is open to pre-school children, migrant children and special education children.

A special nursery is also provided so that migrant children who would normally have to remain at the labor camp to care for their younger brothers and sisters may attend.

Mrs. Ronald Metcalf, instructor since the beginning of the program said this year's attendance was 100 per cent from labor camp children.

She said 87 students were originally enrolled in the program, the largest attendance ever recorded, but because the parents of 26 of the students had to move on to other jobs, only 61 were graduated.

She said the children were divided into groups according to their needs.

"The kindergarten students and the non-reading Spanish children were offered a reading program in reading, writing, math and oral language. The older children were given a special reading, math and oral language program starting with their needs and building upon that," she said.

Using pattern drills the smaller children were taught to speak in full sentences. They learned to use correct English and good sentence structure and time was spent developing a good reading habit," Mrs. Metcalf said.

She said students were shown to films and had stories read to them, used the library and had free time to enjoy books. They were taught to observe and be aware of plants, animals, air and all things of nature. A physical education program was offered along with a program in music and band, rhythms and song. To further their experiences, they were taken on field trips which the students helped to plan. The trips were evaluated and discussed, both before and after.

She said emphasis was put on teaching the children to swim. "They were taken each Friday to a pool in the Hagerman area and given special instruction in water safety. We felt this was very important to the students because so many of them work with their parents or by themselves along ditchbanks and canals in the fields," Mrs. Metcalf said.

Lightning starts six range fires

SHOSHONE — Lightning strikes in the Shoshone BLM District started six range fires Thursday.

Michael Green, BLM information officer, said all but one of the fires were extinguished by rain. The remaining fire, 8 miles northeast of Shoshone, burned ten acres. Due to the inaccessible location of the fire, fighters were sent to it with back pumps. A B-26 made two chemical retardant drops in the area also, Green said.

All except one of the fires started between 9:30 and 11 a.m. Thursday. The sixth began around midnight, Green said. Two were near the Dietrich Butte four miles northeast of Dietrich; two near the Star Lake area in the eastern end of Lincoln County, and one was five miles northeast of Shoshone, Green said.

Gilbert Farr of the Ketchum ranger district, Ketchum, said the electrical storm, which began late Thursday evening went from Baldy to Ketchum and then to the Big Lost River. He said no fires were reported and that an aerial patrol surveyed the area the storm crossed.

Horse injured

BELLEVUE — One horse was injured when a horse trailer apparently separated from a moving pickup truck Thursday evening south of Bellevue.

According to Blaine county deputy sheriff, Steven T. Lund, 37, Twin Falls, was driving a pickup south on U.S. 93 near the East Magic Road, towing a double horse trailer.

The deputy said the trailer apparently separated from the vehicle, struck a side road embankment and flipped end over end landing on its wheels on the south side of the roadway.

One of two horses in the trailer was thrown out and the trailer rolled over.

The deputy said the trailer sustained about $200 damage.

Report eyes youth ranch

The employee is accused by one of the witnesses to the first handcuffing incident of having handcuffed another boy's hands behind his back, for attempting to burglarize a trailer on the ranch premises.

Another former ranch employee is accused of striking boys on four separate occasions. At one point, a witness to one of the incidents told the investigator, the employee admitted it, saying he couldn't help it, and that he was sorry later.

On two of the occasions, he struck the boys in the stomach, while on two others, he slapped the boys in the face. One of the boys was involved in two of the incidents.

Three of the incidents centered around classroom problems involving the employee and the various boys. The person involved voluntarily contacted Twin Falls area Assistant Attorney General Paul Smith, but did not discuss specific incidents, according to the investigative report.

Smith told the investigator, "He talked of problems with the school administration, staff training and lack of organization. He did not bring up any specific incident of striking kids, but gave his philosophy as 'when you have acting-out behavior, you need aggressive behavior.' He said when he first got to the school he understood paddling was allowed as a last resort, but that he was never officially advised of this."

A third person, still a Youth Ranch employee, told the investigator of an occasion in which he rode up to a boy and "slapped him with my bridal reins on the back."

Both he and the boy and a third person were on horseback at the time. The incident occurred in November, 1972, the report says. He took the action, he said, because the boy "just couldn't get with it," and he also told the investigator he took the action to "snap him out of it."

None of the persons listed as "suspects" in the report could be reached for comment today.

Slowdowns won't affect Burley

BURLEY — Previously announced slowdowns in secondary energy deliveries by the Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) reportedly will not affect Burley.

The curtailment of secondary systems will affect only industries, according to Martin Anderson, hydraulic engineering technician with BPA.

"If there is a brownout, the industries will go first," Anderson said.

As for Burley, the BPA "doesn't foresee any difficulties," according to Anderson. "I think we'll get by to the end of the year," he said.

Power demands have been increasing in the area, Anderson said, primarily due to the great numbers of farmers converting to sprinkler irrigation with requires electric power.

BPA is currently building up the Heyburn substation and expanding its operations to take care of the increased loads, Anderson said.

Banks increase interest rates

Bill Seek, assistant manager of the Bank of Idaho said "Most of the customers we deal with have loan rates from 9 - 10 per cent, the maximum in Idaho for single payment loans."

"We'll probably find that in this tight money situation, credit will be restrained generally," he said. "It may restrain some of the economic development in the area."

"Money the banks themselves borrow from the federal reserve system is costing considerably more than it was six months ago, he said.

"Idaho will be hit fairly severely because we've had an expansion phase over the past 2 1/2 years," he said. "There is considerable demand for credit."

Basque fete set

SUN VALLEY — The Old Karl Dancers, Boise, Basque weightlifting, and a fat lamb auction will be featured at the annual "Basque Dinner" Saturday at Sun Valley.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the Hemingway Elementary School playground and the Ketchum City Park. Co-chairmen are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brown.

A no-host cocktail hour will begin at 6 p.m. at the Trail Creek Cabin, with dinner scheduled for 7 p.m.

The fat lamb for the auction was donated by John Peavey, Carey.

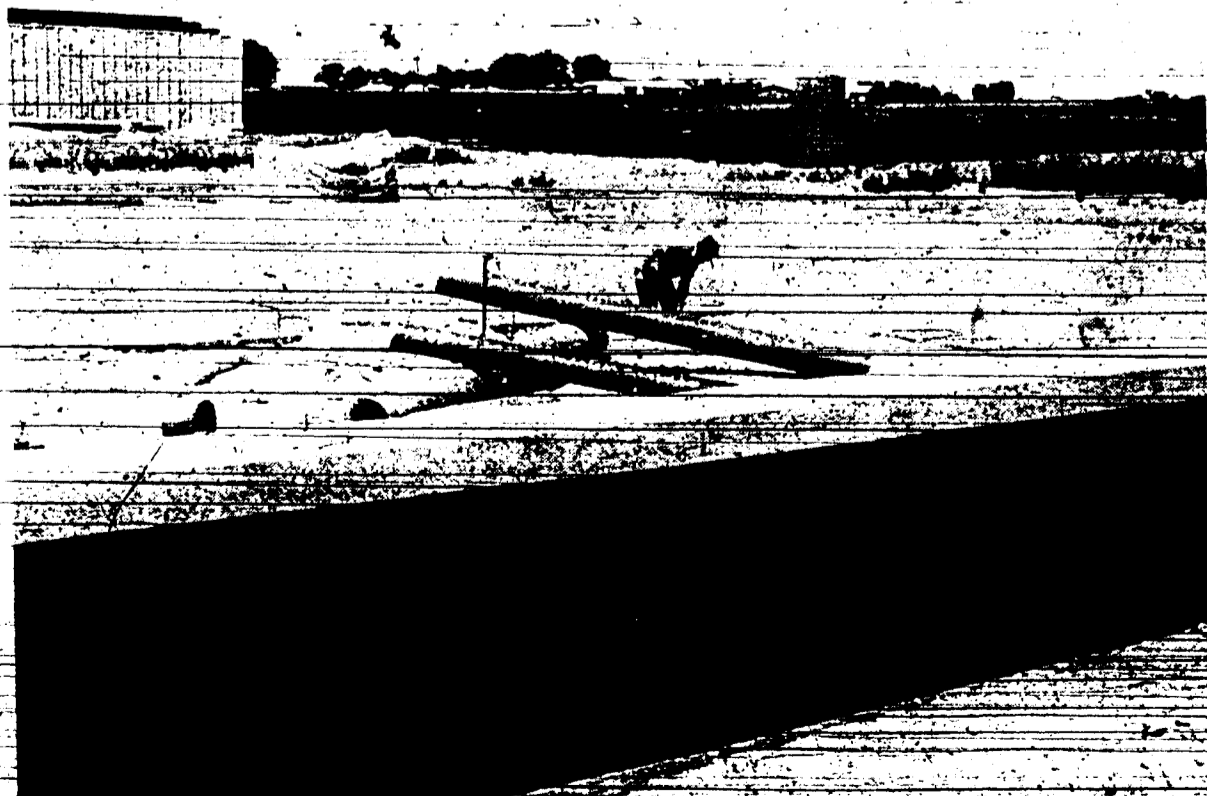

Tickets will cover the price of dinner, wine and dancing. According to Brown, ticket sales will be limited and tickets will be available at the door only if they are not sold during the advance sale.

They may be purchased at the Atkinson's Market or the Ketchum Drug, Ketchum; or at the Sun Valley Lodge newstand or the Sun Valley Sports Desk, Sun Valley.

Range land burns

BURLEY — A range fire near Milner Dam Wednesday afternoon burned 80 acres of land before it was brought under control.

The fire, of undetermined origin, burned lands included in a wildlife refuge near the dam. Bureau of Land Management crews had the fire under control in a few hours.

CONSTRUCTION work on the new Regional Fish and Game office in Jerome is well underway with the foundation poured and construction of the storage shed behind the office is almost completed. It is located on the west edge of Jerome, along U.S. Highway 25.

Building under way

Blaine aide stresses 2-way plan

HAILEY — Constant communication with the public will be stressed by Wayne Fagg, newly appointed superintendent of the Blaine County School District.

Fagg said he believed in "informing the people about school district activities and keeping them informed."

"A great deal can be gained by two-way communication. As long as we discuss things we can solve problems," Fagg said. The new superintendent said, "The door will be open here to anyone in the district at any time."

Fagg said that any changes that he will implement within the district will be "gradual and with the permission of the school board."

For the past 18 years, Fagg has been involved in school administration, including serving as high school principal at Wendell for two years; Camas County superintendent for one year; Wendell superintendent for six years, and principal of the East Minico Junior High School for nine years.

According to a district news release, while Fagg was at Wendell a new elementary and junior high school were constructed and the high school was extensively remodeled.

During his service at Rupert, he was instrumental in the planning and construction of two new junior high schools. He also assisted in setting up the new curriculum that is presently in operation at the two new schools.

Fagg received a bachelor of science degree from Utah State University in 1950 and a master of education degree from the University of Idaho in 1958, majoring in education with a minor in school administration.

Fagg's wife, Barbara, has served for the past nine years as an English teacher at Minico High School, specializing in creative writing.

Camper still missing

STANLEY — A search continues in the White Cloud Wilderness for a camper believed to have disappeared in the rugged mountain range sometime last fall.

The missing man's identity has not yet been made public. David Lee, outdoor recreation planner for the Sawtooth National Forest, said extensive searches this week have proven fruitless. Lee said three backpackers contacted the forest officials July 8 after they found a camp which appeared to have been abandoned while still containing personal effects of a camper.

Lee said he and other forest officials went into the White Cloud mountains and located the camp containing sleeping bag, tent, back pack gear and a pair of glasses and a wallet. A search in the immediate area of the camp was made that day and subsequent searching by Custer County sheriff's officers and forest service personnel have not produced any evidence of the missing camper.

Lee said he flew by helicopter over surrounding ridges and again could find nothing. He said the search will continue.

The missing camper is 24 years of age and reportedly a resident of Montana. Investigation indicates he left home to tour the wilderness areas last summer and was last seen in August.

The camp appears to have been abandoned all winter. Sheriff Wayne Sorenson, Custer County Sheriff, said in Challis today he has not yet received the name of the missing camper or the full report from his deputy in Stanley, but he believes the young man in question was seen in Ketchum in August.

Lee said the family had not heard from him since late summer but had not reported him missing as it was not unusual for him to neglect writing his family.

Modern day Hawthorne hides in church for two years

By MARY BREASTED
(c) New York Times Service

NEW YORK — In a room that reverberated every Sunday with the sounds of a bell that could be heard for miles, William W. Hughes, a 28-year-old bail jumper, hid out for nearly two years from his friends, his relatives and the police, New Jersey State troopers said Wednesday.

Police said that when he was finally caught late Monday afternoon, Hughes told them, "I'm glad it's over," so wearied was he by his lonely nocturnal existence.

He described for police a life like that of Nathaniel Hawthorne, who, for 12 years never left the house of seven gables in Salem, Mass., except at night.

Similarly, Hughes hid just under the belflower of the Leesburg, N.J., United Methodist Church each day until darkness fell on the little town of 500. Then he ventured forth to steal food from stores and gas stations, police said he told them.

And if Harry Vanaman, a parishioner of the little church, had not forgotten his Bible after last Sunday's services, Hughes might still be living under the pigeons and the bats and the powerful bell.

But early Monday morning Vanaman went back into the church to look for his Bible,

Views of church where man hid for two years and he heard a noise in the church bathroom.

He spotted Hughes, who he said, was bearded and "very pale," coming out of the bathroom.

"I recognized him right away," said Vanaman, "but I hoped he didn't recognize me."

Hughes had grown up in the area, and many of the residents knew he was wanted by police.

He had been missing since September, 1971, shortly before he was indicted on two counts of breaking and entering and one of larceny.

He had been arrested in March of 1970 and charged with breaking into and stealing from his father-in-law's gas station in Leesburg. And in May of 1971, he was arrested and charged with breaking into a Leesburg elementary school.

In September 1971, he allegedly started hiding in his car, and, for a brief time, had the company of a teen-age girl who hid with him and helped him steal food.

Police would not reveal the identity of the girl, but they said she later told them about hiding with Hughes. On the basis of what she said, a warrant was prepared for Hughes charging him with abduction, fornication and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

In October of 1971, his wife, Ann May, divorced him. She moved in with her parents in Leesburg, taking her two children, ages 7 and 9, with her. She was unavailable for comment Wednesday, but her mother, Mrs. Ann Peterson, described her life with Hughes as a difficult one.

"He would lose jobs very quickly for one reason or another," said Mrs. Peterson, "but he wouldn't tell her he had lost his job. He'd go out in the morning pretending he was going to work. After he disappeared, Hughes sometimes called his wife.

Mrs. Peterson said, "but he would never tell her where he was."

Vanaman, who was present when the state troopers arrested Hughes late Monday afternoon, said that Hughes apologized to him for "causing me some trouble," and told the police he was glad they had caught him.

The tiny 12-foot-by-12-foot room where Hughes lived contained a number of empty soda bottles when police entered it Monday and Hughes had rigged up a radio to the wiring of the church. Vanaman said he had also arranged an iron upside down on some bricks so that he could use it as a small stove.

The bell could be rung by a rope that descended into the vestibule of the church; thus there was never any reason for anyone to climb up to Hughes's sanctuary during the time he lived just under the bell.

Synod may purge accused leaders

(c) Washington Star-News
NEW ORLEANS, La. — The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod has taken an unprecedented step in modern church history by elevating a doctrinal statement, prepared by its president in the heat of a theological controversy, to an official confession of the denomination, almost on a par with the venerable Augsburg Confession and just as binding on church members.

The move was a pivotal one in the systematic efforts of Dr. Jacob A. O. Preus to set the stage for what is regarded as a "heresy trial" against 29 members of the faculty of Concordia Seminary in St. Louis.

After two hours of discussion, the 50th biennial convention of the denomination authorized three hours of questioning of the faculty members before the convention acts on a resolution which accuses them of teaching false doctrine at the seminary.

Should the convention pass the resolution, the next scheduled step in the theological purge being engineered by Preus and his following of theological conservatives would be to act on a resolution calling for the firing or resignation of Dr. John Tietjen, president of the seminary, and the accused professors.

By elevating Preus' statement, titled "A Statement of Scriptural and Confessional Principles" to confessional status in the church, Preus and the conservatives gained a potent tool in establishing their right to move against not only the seminary staff but any others in the church who hold unorthodox views on the Bible and the Lutheran Confessions. The confessions, along with scriptures, constitute the rule of faith for Lutherans.

Immediately after the Preus statement was incorporated into the skein of Lutheran Confessions and thereby given importance only slightly inferior to the scriptures and the Augsburg Confession, up to 400 of the more than 1,000 delegates surged forward to sign their names in protest, declaring that they in good conscience could not accept what had been done.

Many of them could not hide their tears and a somber mood swept over the conservatives, who up to that time had won every major issue of the convention and had succeeded in electing their own candidates to pivotal church posts.

Preus had issued the doctrinal statement in consultation with the vice president of the denomination on March 3, 1972, and it was used to clarify his position on what should be taught at the seminary, the principal source of the church's pastoral staff. The theological moderates opposed the statement primarily on the grounds that a simple majority meeting in convention, regardless of their expertise in theological matters, could determine what Lutheran doctrine is.

The dissenting delegates did not contest the doctrinal correctness of the statement, and were in accord with it as being in alignment with the scriptures and confession. But they did challenge the new procedures for determining theological content — a wide departure from historic Lutheran practice.

When the resolution was read charging the faculty members with teaching false doctrine, Tietjen said, "We reject the charges that have been brought against us. The faculty has not been heard and the report did not describe the position of the faculty accurately — it distorted their position."

"Please do not compound the problem," he pleaded. "Hear us. Do not condemn us wrongly."

The accusatory resolution charges that the teachings of the Concordia staff subvert the authority of the scriptures, follow a pattern of extracting only the pertinent element of the gospel out of certain biblical accounts such as Adam and Eve and the fall of man, and do not teach the old testament law as a guide for the Christian in his early life but allow each person to decide for himself what moral standards he will follow.

These are the first heresy moves by a major denomination since the house of bishops of the Episcopal Church attempted to try the late Bishop James Pike as a heretic in Wheeling, W. Va., in 1967.

Jehovah's Witnesses stage convention

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Jehovah's Witnesses jammed the Oakland Coliseum Wednesday for the opening session of a convention emphasizing the theme, "Victory Over the World Without Armed Conflict."

More than 40,000 persons showed up with Bibles under their arms and umbrellas to protect them from the sun in the sporting arena.

The keynote address was given by John O. Groh, a member of the board of directors of Kingdom Hall, the group's world headquarters in Brooklyn.

He said the world victory would be achieved "not by carrying a Bible in one hand and a sword, grenade or rapid-fire gun in the other, but by challenging the world's hatred and peacefully going forward, unarmed, in preaching this good news of the kingdom."

Jehovah's Witnesses number some 1.6 million throughout the world and stress obedience to civil authority although refusing to serve in the armed forces of any nation.

The Oakland convention is one of 69 being held around the world this summer under what is termed the divine victory international assembly.

Former TF pastor returns as speaker

TWIN FALLS — Rev. Donald Blackstone will be guest speaker at the Twin Falls Presbyterian Church Sunday.

Rev. Blackstone, formerly pastor of the church from 1946-1959, recently retired from the First Presbyterian Church of Davenport, Iowa, and now lives at Batesville, Ark.

His sermon at the 10 a.m. services will be "Some Ways To Pray."

Kent Stokes will play a violin solo at the service. A reception for Rev. and Mrs. Blackstone will be held following the service at the church dining room.

Parish picnic planned at Nat-Soo-Pah Sunday

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Episcopal Parish of the Ascension will have their annual all parish picnic at 1 p.m. Sunday at Nat-Soo-Pah resort east of Hollister.

The menu includes charcoal grilled hamburgers and hot dogs, salads and ice cream.

Games and contests for the children are planned, including a softball game between the "old men" (over 30) and the "youngsters." There will be swimming and other activities. Walter Eiker is general chairman for the event. Other committee chairmen are Dottie Eiker, food, and Jeri Robbins, transportation.

Persons needing transportation are urged to call Mrs. Robbins, 733-2998.

Services at the church this Sunday include 10 a.m. Holy Communion at 8 and 10 a.m. with Father Albert E. Allen celebrating and delivering the sermon. Sermon topic is "To Be a Christ-In."

Salt Lake City's location is almost on the 41st degree north latitude, corresponding to Madrid, Naples, Peking, Istanbul and New York City.

LDS Church sets education week

TWIN FALLS — Education week sponsored by the LDS Church will be July 16-18 at the Twin Falls West Stake Center on Harrison Street.

The program, which covers a variety of subjects mostly on modern-day living, is open to men and women of all ages. Teenagers and children must be accompanied by parents.

Included on the faculty for the courses are Clifford J. Barborka Jr., a broadcasting advertising and marketing consultant, and his wife, Melva Niles Barborka, singer and actress, and Kim Cameron, a sociology professor at Rick's College, and his wife, Melinda Cummings Cameron, a daughter of movie star Robert Cummings.

Other faculty members are Stanley A. Peterson, dean of the division of continuing education at Brigham Young University; Clarence "Bernie" Jensen, a religion teacher at Rick's; Joseph C. Muren; Weber State College faculty member; Gerald Peterson, principal of the South High School; Leonard J. Arrington; church historian and director of the Charles Reed Center, and Elmer Knowles, professor of family relations at BYU.

Classes range from case studies in religion to developing competency in husband-wife relationships to speed reading. The classes begin at 10 a.m. each day and end at 8:30 p.m. On Wednesday evening there will be a special presentation of The Melva Niles Show.

Valley schedules elections

TWIN FALLS — Two general meetings of the congregation of Valley Christian Church have been called for the purpose of making decisions which are of major importance to the church.

The first of these will be Sunday immediately following the worship service. At this time the new officers of the congregation will be elected to take responsibility for the leadership of the church for the 1973-74 year.

A sample ballot will be mailed to the participating membership prior to the meeting. Suggestions for nominees may be submitted to the pastor or Willard Ihler, who are on the nominating committee. It is also acceptable to make other nominations from the floor. The other congregational meeting will be on Aug. 5, also immediately after worship, and this will be for the purpose of voting on the plans and bid recommendations of the building plans committee. By that time, it is projected that bids will have been presented for the new joint facilities and the general board will have made its decision on the building plans committee report.

Church briefs

TWIN FALLS — Subject for the Christian Science lesson-sermon at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls Church, 160 North Ave. E., will be "God." The public is welcome at both the Sunday and 8 p.m. Wednesday services. Title of the 6:30 p.m. Monday KTFI radio program will be "Loving is Healing."

BUHL — Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Waller entertained members of the Buhl Firewill

Baptist Church at a barbecue at their home Sunday afternoon.

TWIN FALLS — An open house at the LDS Institute building on Falls Avenue will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Sunday. Films and pictures of the church will be shown along with displays of different organizations and their activities. The public is invited.

Christian churches plan special services

TWIN FALLS — Rev. James Keefe of the Kimberly Christian Church will give the sermon Sunday at the Drive-In Church at the Motor-Vu at 8 a.m. Rev. Keefe will speak on "Tested and Approved" with music provided by Carolyn Keefe and pianist Mrs. Holly

Moore. Retired minister, Rev. Henry Gernhardt, will be the special guest speaker Sunday at the Twin Falls First Christian Church. He will speak on "The Way of Peace." Guest soloist for the morning service will be Peggy Black-

Experienced hikers will tell you it's not the uphill climb to get there that makes you ache the next day, but the downhill walk back. No, striding downhill isn't harder. Just uses a batch of muscles far less frequently exercised. Incidentally, is your wife interested in losing weight from her thighs? If so, tell her to walk up stairs backwards three times a day. Nothing beats that, say the experts.

Why is it so few women go in for dentistry, particularly dentistry for children? A career counselor of some renown contends no profession offers a girl more opportunity. Partly because of her small hands, her delicate touch, and her usual dexterity. Partly, also, because of that thing called maternalism which supposedly enables her to work well with youngsters.

RAINBOW

What's the rainbow arch? A That's what the Italians call a rainbow. Lot of different names for it. Some North Africans refer to it as "the Bride of the Rain." In Sanskrit, it's known as "the Bow of Indra." The Aztec people say it's "the Little Window in the Sky." And here and there in Central Europe, it's called "the Arch of Saint Bernard," "the Bridge of the Holy Spirit," "the Crown of Saint Martin," and "the Girdle of God."

Am now informed the highest toll ever paid in the Panama Canal was $32,196 in June of 1968 by the Norwegian bulk carrier the Victoria.

You won't be far wrong if you figure about five million to the pound in tallying up cottonwood seeds. What will draw more crowds in the next 12 months than pre-football and major league baseball combined? The zoo. That's what. The weather boys insist just about 45,000 hail storms crop up somewhere around the world every day. I don't believe it. Still, say a smart car company now could make a large dollar by putting out a snazzy compact coupe with a rumble seat. Our Language man is collecting synonyms for dohunny, ngamajig, thungabob and whatyoumaycallit. He requests suggestions.

PESSIMISTS

Those Scandinavians appear to be more pessimistic than most. International surveys indicate the majority of citizens worldwide think the nuclear bombs tend to deter global war. But not the natives of Sweden, Norway and Denmark. They've told the pollsters they're inclined to feel the big bombs make a third world war more likely.

The remote islands of Tristan de Cunha are about as far removed from the pressures of civilization as possible, quite true. But do you know one of the commonest medical complaints there? The headache.

Two thirds of a newborn baby's weight is in its head and liver. I'm told.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JULY 14, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when arguments could result unless a special effort is made to use soft answers that turn away wrath. Considerable amount of preparation could keep out potential trouble. Be alert to uncertain activities of the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Avoid a temptation to undermine a higher-up or you could lose the support of this person which means so much to you. A civic matter should be handled on a better day. Sidestep arguments.

TAUROS (Apr. 20 to May 20) It is wise to stick to interests that you know about because new ones could cause some confusion. Obtain the data at libraries and other reliable sources. Be well prepared for the future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have not kept promises made to others because you've been too busy at work, so be sure to attend to such now. Don't let a romantic interlude interfere with important duties.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) This is not a good day to persuade a procrastinating associate to do as you wish, so wait for a better time. A mistake you have made in the past can now be erased. Relax tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have much work to do, which is fine, for you will be safe from mischief that could lead to trouble. Take health treatments. Get together with one who can put new zip into your life.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Having fun today is fine as long as you don't persuade others to do anything against their will. Put more time into a special project that appeals to you. Show you are a good sport.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Concentrate on whatever is pleasant at home instead of the opposite or there could be trouble ensuing. Forget a touchy topic of conversation. Evening is fine for entertaining at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try not to argue with others and be sure to keep an eye on your purse or wallet when out shopping. You have the right solution to current problems, but state them quietly to others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You need money quickly but must not do anything unethical in trying to get it or you will regret it later. Listening to business experts is wise. Avoid a troublemaker.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have a particular aim that needs careful thought before making any definite decisions. Do whatever will impress others favorably today. Take steps to improve your appearance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan how to make your personal affairs more as they should be and add to present security. Stick to the practical and forget the romantic side of life for now. Be logical.

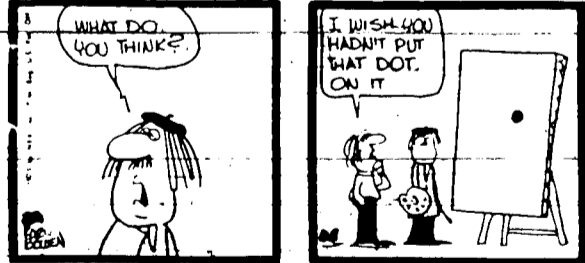

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Spend more time helping others today instead of yourself and all works out fine. Not a good day for attending social functions that could lead to disagreements. Seek good advice.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one of those delightful young people who likes to stir things up for the love of excitement. Teach to use this energy for constructive purposes and strive for harmony instead. Make sure that a course once started is not changed because of a whim. The field of finance is especially fine here.

MAJOR HOOPLE

Lincoln Rotary installs

SHOSHONE — Myron D. Johnson, newly elected president of Shoshone Rotary Club, took office at the Wednesday noon meeting. Johnson received the gavel from retiring president Roger Maxwell. Other officers who will be serving with Johnson are Ivan C. Hopkins, vice-president, and Leon Grieve, secretary-treasurer. New directors are Howard Hill, Roy Hubert, Robert Miller and Grieve. A special thanks was given

Benefit breakfast

READY TO serve a pancake breakfast Sunday are Mrs. Bob Thompson, left, Dick Henning and Mrs. Jim Schmidt. The benefit, proceeds of which will go for an air conditioner and stove, will be at St. Edward's Catholic Church Parish Hall after 8 and 10 a.m. masses at the church and 9 a.m. mass at St. Benedict's Priory.

Francis Bergth, who retired as secretary after serving eight years in the post.

In other business Wednesday noon, the club received notice from the Idaho Parks and Recreation Department that Shoshone Swimming Pool project has qualified for $100,000 toward construction.

The amount is contingent upon availability of state funds.

The project has been placed on the "priority" list scale, and available funds will be distributed on the basis of a scale, the next apportionment to the state will be made available in September.

The notice cautioned, however, against not to start the project until further notification of federal approval.

As another fund-raising project toward the pool on a local basis, the club has taken over the aluminum can recycling process from Frank Carothers.

Anyone with cans may take them to the former Gateway Toggery business location building and they will be put through the pressing machine.

Johnson said the local people are still urged to contribute to the swimming pool fund as there is yet more than $3,000 to raise on a local basis.

2 youths injured at Carey

CAREY — Two youths were listed in fair condition Thursday morning at the Blaine County Hospital after they were injured in a one car rollover accident Wednesday evening near Carey.

The two were the driver of the vehicle Jeff Baltzen, 19, Hickory Hill, Ill., and a passenger Denny Delezene, 16, Idaho Falls, who received minor injuries after being thrown through the windshield of the vehicle.

According to a Blaine County sheriff's deputy, the accident occurred about 5 p.m. on State Highway 68 about one-fourth mile west of Carey.

Baltzen told the deputy that he was eastbound and after passing a vehicle attempted to apply his brakes to slow down on the Picabo Hill curve.

The deputy said Baltzen lost control of the vehicle, it traveled into the Westbound lane, rolled over twice and landed on its wheels in the borrow pit on the north side of the highway.

The two were taken to the hospital by Bird's Ambulance Service. Baltzen's 1968 small foreign vehicle was demolished.

The deputy said that no citations have yet been issued pending further investigation.

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS

1. You browse through 2 acres of cars, and with the assistance of one of our courteous salesmen select the model, color and equipment of your choice.

WRITE YOUR OWN DEAL...

2. That's all the salesman will do. From there you will meet with the sales manager and he will furnish you with our cost on that particular new car.

THIS SALE ON ALL DODGE AND CHRYSLER AUTOMOBILES ONLY!!!!

NEED FINANCING?

Should you need assistance with financing or insurance on your new car or truck you will then meet with our finance manager and figure the finance terms.

IT MAKES SENSE TO BUY YOUR CAR NOW — WHERE WE DON'T FORGET YOU AFTER THE SALE! YOU CAN DEPEND ON IT!!

GO! A TRADE-IN??

5% PROFIT...
3. You will then figure your own deal by adding to dealer cost, a service and handling charge of $60, plus 5% profit for the dealership.

4. Should you have a car to trade in, you will deduct the actual cash value, less reconditioning expenses from the previous dollar amount you figure mutually acceptable to you and the dealership.

Filer class events set

FILER — The schedule of activities for the reunion of the Filer High School class of 1953 has been released by Mrs. Keith Stein, chairman of the reunion committee.

The event will open with a coffee hour at 10 a.m. Saturday. Those planning to attend should contact Mrs. Bob Clatter, 326 5th St.

Other events planned for Saturday include an open house at Filer High School at 2:30 p.m., a social hour at 7 p.m. at the Turf Club, Twin Falls, and a dinner at the Turf Club at 8 p.m.

A picnic is planned for 1 p.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds.

Mrs. Stein said that if information has not been sent to all classmates, it was because addresses could not be obtained for some.

Early Spanish explorers found that oil seeps along the California coast were used by Indians to caulk canoes, waterproof baskets and attach spear points to shafts.

Hot-dog

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Police have recovered a stolen hotdog valued at $35,000.

It was a wienermobile, a hotdog shaped vehicle belonging to the Oscar Mayer & Co., a frankfurter concern. It was found abandoned Thursday 10 miles from the company's parking lot.

Miss Idaho gets car

SHARON DAVIS, Miss Idaho, 1973, steps into a car donated for her use for a year by Wills Motor Co., Twin Falls. The Jerome miss was sponsored in the Idaho contest by the Twin Falls Lions Club. The car's donation reportedly was the first time a Twin Falls car dealer had provided transportation for a Miss Idaho.

Camas picnic set Sunday

FAIRFIELD — The annual Camas Prairie Pioneer picnic will be held Sunday at 1 p.m. at the Pioneer Camp Grounds 12 miles north of Fairfield.

Picnic dinners should be brought. Coffee, punch, silverware, napkins, and paper plates and cups are furnished by the Pioneer Association.
