Visit scored

PROTESTING TODAY'S visit by Portuguese Premier Marcello Caetano to London were about 3,000 members of Anti-Apartheid Movement, who marched in London Sunday. Caetano's visit commemorates 600th anniversary of Anglo-Portuguese alliance. Despite tight security at Heathrow Airport, there were no protesters on hand when Caetano arrived for four-day visit. Objections have been raised to Portuguese colonial presence in Africa and reported massacres by Portuguese troops. (UPI)

Rogers: Japan swap requests

TOKYO (UPI) — Secretary of State William Rogers sought Japanese cooperation today in solving world oil, currency and trade problems, but Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira in turn told the United States to do a better job of managing its own economy.

The two men spoke at the opening of the ninth American-Japanese joint economic committee, a two-day cabinet level discussion ending Tuesday.

Mr. T-N says

Secretary Rogers received some good advice from that Japanese minister. Now if the U.S. will heed it.

French N-test time nearing

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — All signs indicated today that France is ready to start its 1973 nuclear test series in the atmosphere over the South Pacific despite growing opposition at home and abroad. French officials in Tahiti and Paris, however, did not indicate when the first blast might come at the Mururoa atoll test site 70 miles southeast of Papeete.

Secret US air raids admitted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department acknowledged today that B52 strikes were made in Cambodia prior to 1970 despite public assertions at the time of U.S. respect for the neutrality of Cambodia.

Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, in a letter to the Senate Armed Services Committee, said raids "had been conducted for some period of time and were fully authorized" before the United States publicly announced attacks in May 1970 into so-called sanctuaries areas of Cambodia near the South Vietnamese border.

"At this period of time, you will remember over one half million men were stationed in South Vietnam," Schlesinger said. "Because of the sensitive operational and diplomatic situation, special security precautions were taken to ensure that the operations would not be compromised."

Schlesinger sent the letter to the Senate panel as former Air Force Maj. Hal M. Knight testified under oath that he falsified records of B52 strikes in early 1970.

He said he acted under orders from superiors that he burn all documents, computer tapes and other materials that would expose the strikes in Cambodia.

"Knight was asked if he ever questioned the procedure. I asked who authorized this procedure," he replied. "I was told not to ask."

He said there always was a cover target with "a strike order in Vietnam" to account for the actual mission in Cambodia.

The Air Force chief of staff Gen. George S. Brown, in another letter to chairman Stuart Symington, D-Mo., of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said it was not correct to characterize as falsification the security precautions pertaining to the raids.

"So long as the reports met in every detail the requirements imposed, they were not intended to deceive those with a security need to know," Brown said.

The reasons why special security precautions were directed was not a reporting issue so long as a responsible higher authority knew in fact what was done and judged it to be in accord with instructions.

TF business man T.J. Lloyd dies

TWIN FALLS — T. J. Lloyd, 95, pioneer resident and long-time Twin Falls business man, died Saturday evening at a nursing home here.

Mr. Lloyd came to Twin Falls in 1907, opening a popcorn and peanut stand on the site now occupied by the Twin Falls Bank and Trust Co.

Later he bought a small confectionery store and engaged in several other merchandising ventures. At one time he owned the Coca-Cola franchise here, the Quick Service Wholesale Co., and the Sunflower Mercantile Co. He established Magic Hot Springs south of Twin Falls.

From 1919 until 1931 he was a director and vice president of the Twin Falls National Bank, and also served for several years as a director of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Mr. Lloyd was a former director and vice president of the chamber of commerce and served as representative from Twin Falls County in the Idaho Legislature in 1922. In 1933, he was Idaho administrator of the Civil Works Administration and later served as director of the Idaho Railroad Corporation, the Resettlement Administration, Farm Security Administration, and Farm Debt Adjustment for Idaho.

Born in Kansas, he earned a bachelor of education degree in a Kansas college and later worked in Oregon and for the Union Pacific Railroad in the Lewiston area before coming to Twin Falls.

Mr. Lloyd moved to Payette in 1952 where he developed a residential tract. He returned to Twin Falls in 1962. Mrs. Lloyd died in 1971.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. Thursday at Twin Falls Mortuary. (Obituary, p. 2)

Kalmbach links advisers, funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Herbert W. Kalmbach, President Nixon's personal lawyer until May 1, said today he raised money for the support of the seven original Watergate defendants on the instructions of "The No. 2 and No. 3 men on the White House staff."

Kalmbach did not identify the men but it was clear his reference was to John D. Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman, Nixon's two closest aides until they resigned April 30 as the Watergate scandal deepened.

Kalmbach made the statement in written testimony prepared for delivery at the Senate Watergate hearings. Kalmbach denied any personal wrongdoing.

"My actions in the period immediately following the break-in which involved the raising of funds to provide for the legal defense of the Watergate defendants and for the support of their families were prompted in the belief that it was proper and necessary to discharge what I assumed to be a moral obligation that has arisen in some manner unknown to me by reason of earlier events," he said.

"The fact that I had been directed to undertake these actions by the No. 2 and No. 3 men on the White House staff made it absolutely incomprehensible to me that my actions in this regard could have been regarded in any way as improper or unethical."

The committee recessed for lunch before calling Kalmbach to testify. It was disclosed that Sens. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., and Howard Baker, R-Tenn., the chairman and vice chairman of the committee, would meet with an unidentified person during the lunch break.

Sam Dash, the chief committee counsel, declined to say who they would meet with, but disclosed it was not President Nixon. Asked if there would be a "surprise witness" before Kalmbach, Dash answered with a smile: "Perhaps, perhaps, perhaps."

Kalmbach was fired by Nixon on May 1 after it was disclosed that he had paid between $30,000 and $40,000 to Donald Segretti, the "dirty tricks" lawyer accused of attempting to sabotage Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's 1972 campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Kalmbach, 51, of Newport Beach, Calif., is believed to be a key witness in the Senate committee's attempt to determine who ordered the wiretapping of the Democratic headquarters of the Watergate and how much the President knew of the cover-up effort to conceal high White House involvement after the bugging plan went awry.

In his prepared statement, Kalmbach denied any prior knowledge of the Watergate break-in or participation in the formulation of any planned conspiracy to cover up that incident or acts of campaign sabotage or unethical activity.

He said he was testifying without seeking immunity from prosecution because he simply wants to tell the truth.

"It is not my purpose to testify for or against any individual," he said.

Kalmbach said he had three major responsibilities to Nixon: To handle personal legal matters for the President and his immediate family through Ehrlichman or John W. Dean III, official counsel to the President.

To act as "trustee" between January 1969 and February 1972 for surplus funds left over from Nixon's 1968 campaign. Kalmbach said he disbursed these funds only on the expressed direction of Haldeman or others with authority to tell him to.

BLM set to OK water easement

By DAVID ESPO Times-News writer

BOISE — The Bureau of Land Management is prepared to grant an easement for a trout hatchery to carry water across federal land in the Box Canyon in the Hagerman Valley.

BLM State Director William L. Mathews said Monday the company, the Clear Springs Trout Co., is making changes on its application for the easement, and until the changes are made, "we're marking time."

But, Mathews said, "most of the indicators are that we'll go ahead" and grant the easement.

The request has become a center of controversy in recent months because of the nature of the Box Canyon area. The trout company applied for the easement to permit it to divert water from the canyon under the Snake River to its hatchery. But should the BLM deny the easement request, the company has indicated it will divert the water at another point, using only privately owned land.

A BLM report prepared on the request indicates the adverse environmental impact of the second alternative may be greater than if the federal government grants the easement.

County rejects TF trailer park

By DAVID ESPO Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County commissioners today turned down a request for a zoning change that would have meant another mobile home park in the county.

At the same time they postponed a decision on a request from a company headed by the head of the county zoning commission for a variance that would permit a subdivision in the sparsely populated western end of the county.

The commissioners turned down a request by Keith Shigar for rezoning to residential agricultural 40 acres of land along Kimberly Road two miles east of Twin Falls. Shigar wants to build a mobile home park on the site. The commissioners, overruling their own appointed zoning and planning commission, said the future of sewage trunk lines and primeness of the agricultural land were their determining factors.

Western Realty Corp., headed by zoning commission chairman L. James Kowalik, had requested a variance on 40 acres of land northeast of Castleford. But the commissioners again turned aside the advice of the zoning commission, and said unanswered questions made a final decision impossible at the present time.

Max Rector, a farmer who owns land adjacent to the proposed development site, convinced the commissioners that problems of possible water seepage and other drainage and sewage problems necessitated a further investigation by county officials.

The zoning commission had unanimously approved the change. The commissioners now intend to make their final determination on the request in a week, they said.

Williams said a breakdown shows $148,362 in appropriated wages, $4,539 in travel, $269,708 in other expenses.

US jets hit rebel posts

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — U.S. warplanes struck within seven miles of Phnom Penh today in an effort to help repel a growing Communist threat to the capital. With the military situation deteriorating, the government was reported considering its first draft.

Ground fighting mixed with heavy American bombing was reported throughout Cambodia today, with heavy government losses reported in fighting directly south of Phnom Penh. Fighting was reported on all sides of Phnom Penh and Gen. Un Kau, said "the situation is very grave."

Informed sources close to the ruling High Political Council said the government was seriously weighing institution of a military draft to bolster the army. Cambodia has no draft now and must depend on volunteers.

The High Command reported fighting in the northern, western and southern sections of the country.

Authoritative military sources said that in fighting along Route 2, about 10 miles from Phnom Penh, the crack 2nd Division lost eight killed and 75 wounded during the weekend.

American bombing continued in support of government forces as they tried to maintain the capital's defense perimeter which now lies within 12 miles of Phnom Penh. The bombing seven miles from the city was the closest raids since last April.

Sources close to the High Political Council said the proposed draft would require all men between the ages of 18 and 35 to enter the armed forces, with the exception of those in official government positions and those employed in essential private jobs.

Dollar value varies

LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. dollar dropped in value today when the European money markets opened and the downward trend worsened as the day wore on. The dollar was up in Tokyo, reflecting its instability.

Trading was light and the amounts of the dollar's fall were small but the troubled American currency slipped slightly in Germany, France, Belgium, Britain and on just about every other European foreign currency exchange.

Nixon improving

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon continued to show improvement today in his battle with viral pneumonia, his doctor said.

"He is progressing satisfactorily," reported Dr. Sol Katz, pulmonary specialist from Georgetown University School of Medicine, one of the team of doctors treating the President at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon's progress is such that he will be able to meet as scheduled with three state visitors in the next two weeks — the Shah of Iran on July 24, Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam on July 30 and Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Tanaka July 31-Aug. 1.

Nixon's spirits were described as "just fine" and Katz predicted he may be able to leave the hospital by Thursday or Friday.

"He's vivacious, loquacious — an excellent patient," said Katz. "His doctors said they were having a tough time convincing him he had to slow down and curtail his schedule. His work load is said to be only about a quarter of normal because of the illness."

HONG KONG (UPI) — Hong Kong took dead aim at typhoon and the China coast today, driving two big ships aground in the colony's harbor and blasting the area with heavy winds.

Question . . .

Do I have to pay Federal Income Tax on the life insurance proceeds I received recently?

Answer . . .

Very probably the insurance money you received is exempt from Federal Income Taxation. Insurance proceeds are usually paid to related beneficiaries for the purpose of providing funds after the death of the insured. However, if the insurance money was paid to you in satisfaction of a debt or for some other valuable consideration then all or a portion of the money must be included in your gross income for Federal income tax purposes. This applies also to death benefits paid under accident and health insurance policies.

Congress urges power limitation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is preparing to send President Nixon a demand for a share in future decisions to commit U.S. troops in conflicts abroad.

Approval of legislation limiting the President's troop commitment powers may come in both houses of Congress this week. A presidential veto is likely.

The resolutions prepared for debate in Congress are aimed at answering the constitutional questions left unresolved when Congress passed a compromise measure June 29 providing for an end to U.S. bombing in Cambodia Aug. 15.

These questions were drawn into sharp relief by the bombing of Cambodia because it continued after clear majorities in both houses had voted to end it.

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The Old Liberals Never Die

WASHINGTON — Old liberals never die, they only crusade away. So it is with James MacGregor Burns, historian, biographer, and uncle-in-chief for the born-again Democrats.

The Williams College professor turned up last Sunday on Meet the Press. Most of his questions predictably went to Watergate, but part of the interview dealt with his role as resident intellectual within the Democratic camp.

of the default, abdication and unroofing of such predecessors as Schlesinger, Galbraith and Moynihan.

Burns was the chief architect, intellectually speaking, of the new party structure built by the Democrats in advance of the 1972 campaign.

First, the poor, especially the urban poor, who would serve as the foundation as well as the chief beneficiary of radical coalition politics.

Fourth, organized labor, the biggest, most economically powerful, most politically mobilized group of all. Fifth, sizable sections of the white collar, middle-class sectors.

Burns was equally definitive on those he would exclude. "The time has come for bluntness; there simply is no room in the Democratic party for conservatives."

The Democrats took Burns' advice. They set up a national convention self-consciously stacked with the poor, the blacks, and the young. They adopted an egalitarian platform that cried in Jacobin accents for the redistribution of wealth; they nominated a candidate who proposed to dismantle the Navy, soak the rich, and give a thousand dollars to every man, woman and child in the country.

Well, Burns was asked, had he given bad advice? The professor was unperturbed. No, indeed. Drastic reformation can't be accomplished overnight.

The principal idea is to strengthen the office of president in terms of domestic affairs. Burns is impatient with our long history of pragmatism, compromise, piecemeal solutions and muddling through.

decree, grant or withhold federal aid, impound or spend public funds. And such a president would Get Things Done! He would eliminate property, preserve the environment, and achieve an "equality of condition" among all the people.

If the Democrats buy this farago of idealism and autocracy, despondent Republicans can revive their flagging hopes. This country does not accept the idea of equality among men, and this is for the best of all reasons, as John Randolph once said, because it is not so.

Neither will the voters buy the crash-program activism that Burns has in mind. "Beware of energetic governments," said Jefferson. "They are always oppressive."

COMMENT

Leaking Nuclides

Portland Oregonian

There is a philosophical question as to whether man can achieve a society that will permit the safe management of dangerous nuclear weapons or the hazardous by-products of a nuclear technology for thousands of years.

The Hanford project alone has the land area and the technology to store safely all the wastes from all the foreseeable world reactor products for the next 100 years.

The question raised by the leaking into the Hanford ground recently of 115,000 gallons of high-level nuclides and the leak of 70,000 gallons in 1970 is whether this technology is being properly used.

The Hanford site was chosen for storage because there would be some 200 feet of earth between a storage tank and the underground water supply.

liquid storage to a solidified "cake," a program that is to be completed by 1976. Since 1964, double tanks have been used and sophisticated monitoring devices attached.

Last November in Paris, the nations of the world met to discuss what they are doing about atomic waste products. All of the plans and current practices, whether the encapsulation in molten rock or melted glass and subsequent burial in salt mines or deep in drilled holes, seek to immobilize the material.

The United States has always believed the nuclear wastes should be retrievable, either for the use of future technology for purposes of inspection or a change in disposal methods.

High-level nuclear wastes are perilous substances, never to be laken lightly. There is no evidence that those who daily work with dangerous nuclides have ever thought they were pussy cats.

Men And Times

Idaho State Journal

"WE MUST PLAY with the cards as they are dealt," declared the secretary of agriculture. "Agriculture cannot survive in a capitalistic society as a philanthropic enterprise."

The men and the times they lived in could hardly be more different, but there are striking similarities nonetheless. In August 1933, the nadir of the Great Depression, 10 million acres of American cotton were plowed under.

Now look what's happening. Pultrymen are drowning baby chicks, and farmers are delivering "unprecedented numbers" of pregnant sows for slaughter.

Meat packers are feeling the squeeze, too. Henry Dorfman, chairman of Frederick & Herrud Inc., the largest packing plant in Michigan, has warned that his enterprise may have to shut down because of the current retail price freeze.

lower than the current cost of live hogs.

IT SEEMS REASONABLE to assume that Phase IV of the administration's economic controls program will permit retail prices of foodstuffs to fluctuate within fairly broad limits.

Many agricultural experts foresee bumper harvests of major U.S. crops in 1973, weather permitting. It does not necessarily follow, however, that the upward pressure on prices of meat, milk, eggs, and other staple foods would substantially abate.

In this country alone, for example, there will be approximately two million more human beings to feed at the end of 1973 than at the end of 1972.

THE INESCAPABLE FACT is that agricultural policies concocted in Washington rarely succeed for long, if ever. A free market, with all its faults and failures, still serves best to provide the great wealth of foods which Americans are accustomed to.

West Monument

SEATTLE TIMES

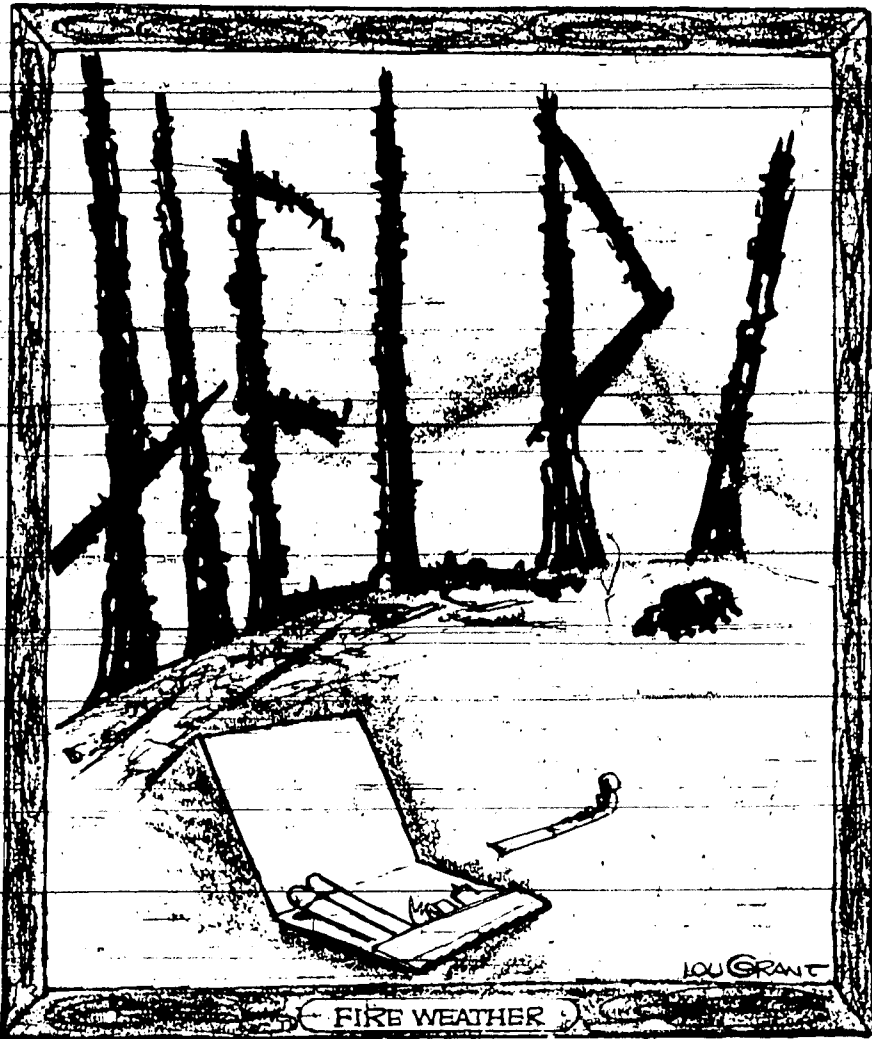

The people who brought us Honor America Day three years ago to try to kill the bitter taste of national pessimism now have another idea. Bob Hope, Billy Graham and others in the optimistic group propose to erect on the West Coast by July 4, 1976, a sister monument to New York harbor's Statue of Liberty.

It is an apt and timely project. The heroic-sized lady off New York was a gift of the French people to the American people on the United States' 100th birthday in 1876.

although it was not finally dedicated until 10 years later. A similar symbol of nationhood on the West Coast would be a fitting 200th birthday present.

The type of monument and its location have not been decided, but naturally the talk is about San Francisco and Los Angeles. Why not, in the spirit of the times, settle on the West Coast city with the least pollution? Seattle and Portland could give California cities a run for the prize with such a standard of selection.

STUDY IN CHARCOAL

EVANS & NOVAK

Nixon And Committee

WASHINGTON President Nixon abandoned his studied aloofness from the Watergate scandal and personally shaped his hard-line refusal to appear before the Senate Watergate committee, sharpening conflict between him and many Republican politicians distraught over the President's deteriorating situation.

Shortly before Mr. Nixon's letter flatly refusing either to testify before the committee or hand over presidential papers, the White House received dramatically contrary advice. Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, the committee's senior Republican, advised the White House that Mr. Nixon should engage in some kind of dialogue with the committee or risk dire consequences.

Baker's view is increasingly shared by Republican politicians, both around the country and in Congress, alarmed by the President's worsening political condition. But Mr. Nixon's active participation in the refusal to testify has cheered middle-level presidential staffers who have consistently advocated a hard line.

The President's letter was prompted by a request from Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina, Watergate committee chairman, for the papers of 35 past and present White House aides. When committee counsel Sam Dash then asked White House counsel Leonard Garment to immediately get papers of ex-aides H. R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and Charles W. Colson, Garment promised a quick reply.

The original refusal was drafted in Washington but rewritten in San Clemente, the chief rewriter Richard M. Nixon, imparting his special tone to the letter. This is vintage Nixon, one high presidential assistant told us.

That overjoyed middle-level White House staffers, including former lieutenants of Haldeman and Colson, who in informal "attack group" meetings had mourned the "soft line" at the White House. They had been dismayed by successive presidential "retreats" waiving executive privilege confessions in his May 22 statement, giving the committee White House logs on Mr. Nixon's meetings with deposed White House counsel John W. Dean III.

These hard-liners were particularly enraged by Dean's being permitted to rummage in his old files and feared those files next would be supplied to the Ervin committee as requested. The blanket presidential refusal is taken by "attack group" staffers as a welcome sign of Mr. Nixon's deciding to fight it out.

But the President's letter dismayed Republican politicians who agree with Sen. Baker, a veteran Nixon loyalist. Just before the President's letter was released, Baker spelled out his views to chief White House lobbyist William Timmons and listed three possible ways for a Nixon committee conversation: (1) written questions, answers and further questions; (2) interrogation "not under oath" at the White House; (3) interrogation "not under oath" on neutral ground. Whichever the arrangement, Baker urged some such dialogue.

Baker's view is supported not only in the Senate Republican cloakroom but at the state party level. I believe this President is not guilty, but he sure acts guilty as hell, one conservative state chairman told us. Such politicians doubt Dean's devastating testimony can be countered solely by friendly witnesses "a view supported by John N. Mitchell's current performance."

Among Senate Republicans, the hard-line letter is regarded as unnecessarily stoking up hostility with the Ervin committee. Since the committee had not formally asked the President to appear, no formal reply was needed. But the reply provoked Ervin's harsh reaction, which in turn generated outrage at the White House.

There is no sign that the sage political hands just signed on at the White House, Melvin R. Laird and Bryce Harlow, contributed to the President's letter. Nor is there any hint they disapproved. But if it becomes politically necessary, Laird and Harlow might well recommend something along lines recommended by Baker. Indeed, some presidential aides suggest Mr. Nixon's present refusal to testify does not preclude "conversing" with the committee. But that would again force a public retreat from a position shrewd politicians in his own party feel the President never had to take in the first place.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

The Doctor Says

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor wants me to have a brain scan done to see what is keeping my blood pressure so high.

I couldn't understand the terms he used, and I am a little afraid of all they do. Do they put needles in your head, and will the electricity cause any brain damage? Mrs. M. M.

A brain scan is a painless procedure. A radioactive material (technetium 99) is injected into the vein of an arm. This travels through the bloodstream and reaches the brain. Then its presence is detected by a Geiger counter.

This has no effect on you. The radioactivity is low enough so it causes no harm. There are no needles used in the head, and there is no brain damage as a result.

It is a useful and frequently-used procedure.

If it will reassure you, and it probably will, compare it to the much-used method of examining the thyroid gland, which is just about the same method. In that case, iodine 131 is used instead, and it is taken by mouth rather than being injected, but the principle is similar. The radioactive iodine goes to the thyroid gland, and it is scanned by a Geiger counter which reacts to very small amounts of radioactivity.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been on a gall bladder diet for several years. Would that account for a chronic constipation? Mineral oil has helped but has not done much to stop the problem.

Is there any medication that could soften the material in the intestine? ER

A gall bladder diet is essentially one that is low in fat. In some patients, uncooked fruits and vegetables may have to be avoided — this depends on how a particular patient reacts. If such raw foods cause distress, omit them. But if they don't cause trouble, then eat them, and they will help the constipation.

A gall bladder sufferer who doesn't tolerate the raw foods very often has no difficulty with COOKED fruits and vegetables — and these, by providing bulk, combat the constipation. Likewise most patients can tolerate prune juice which is an excellent mild laxative.

As to softening stool material, bulk producers (agar and such products which your doctor or pharmacist can recommend) are very useful. So are the so-called "stool softeners," containing dioctyl sodium sulfosuccinate.

You should find my booklet, "The Way to Stop Constipation," helpful, modifying the advice to the extent necessary to abide by your diet. Send 25 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for a copy.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would appreciate your comment on whether a common wax candle is able to purify the air in a room 20 by 30 feet, with an adjoining hallway, two bedrooms and two bathrooms. If you say it's so, I'll believe it. A J

Laird satisfied with new position

(c) Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — Melvin R. Laird says he is "satisfied" with his first month as President Nixon's chief assistant for domestic affairs but hasn't fully settled in yet.

The former Defense Secretary is under no illusions about the problems of restoring the equilibrium of a White House rocked and decimated by the Watergate scandals.

"Let me have another 30 days over here," Laird said in an interview assessing his role as the replacement for John D. Ehrlichman, who resigned as a result of the Watergate disclosures.

Laird said he thought the congressional leaders who "talked me into coming over here" also were satisfied with his work so far, particularly in shepherding a compromise on a Cambodian bombing cutoff date through the House and Senate.

The outspoken Laird indicated he was not altogether happy about the atmosphere in the White House. "A lot of people are still playing games," he said, but declined to be more specific.

Laird emphasized he had agreed to help out the President on issues, not on personnel. "That last thing I came here to do was to get bogged down in the problems of staff," he said. "I'm not a personnel man."

He said he didn't expect the President to accept his advice on everything. "I'm not over here to win every time," he said. "If my advice is rejected, I'll continue to give it." He acknowledged the President didn't share his view that Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler might step aside in the interest of greater credibility.

Asked about his relationship with Gen. Alexander Haig, who took over from the resigned H. R. Haldeman as White House chief of staff, Laird admitted

"there will be some problems."

He explained Haig was not particularly issues-oriented, but was an able administrator and staff man. He recalled that Haig had served as Henry Kissinger's deputy on the National Security Council staff. "Al is probably more responsible than anybody else for making the National Security Council staff work," Laird said. "That's not reflection against Henry. He's a brilliant man, but he can't stand paper work."

Laird said he would "say what I should say. The longer I'm here, the more the President will like Haig and dislike me." That was because he would be taking positions the President will not want to take, Laird added. Asked for an example, he said he would be "willing to go for added taxes if there's any deficit," and apparently Nixon would not.

Laird was vague when talking about his access to the President, suggesting that "a lot of work has to be done" in that area. When his appointment was announced, he had said he would have 24-hour-a-day access to Nixon. There has been no chance to test that yet, but Laird recalled that on his first day he simply walked into the President's office without an appointment after knocking on his oval office door.

"It's still a little formalized, though," he conceded. He added he was "not sure" the President "knows quite how to handle me."

Laird scoffed at the notion that he would act as a domestic "czar" of sorts while the President would concentrate on foreign affairs. "You just can't do that," he said with finality. He implied strongly there could be no stand-in for the President in any area of government.

He said he had impressed upon every cabinet officer the need to make decisions that did not cross departmental lines and to fill top vacancies. "They understand that they're now in charge of their own personnel," he stressed.

Laird said he was working on a farm bill compromise, health legislation, water resources policy and kindred issues. "We have to have the kind of planning in the domestic area that I'm familiar with in national defense," he said.

Ask for help

(c) Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — Some 75 congressmen may soon be hearing from both political friends and enemies trying to convince them that cities and states should be allowed to use their share of highway construction funds on mass transit.

Members of the Highway Action Coalition, an amalgam of environmental, transportation and civic groups, are poring over lists of contributors to the campaigns of about 75 House members. The coalition plans to contact heavy contributors and ask them to use their influence on the men they backed to see if they can be persuaded to vote in favor of using highway trust funds on bus and rapid-rail commuter systems.

John Kramer, director of the coalition, says they also will ask candidates who ran against the 75 congressmen in the last election for help.

Medical first

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — The first medical correction program of its type in the nation was initiated in Mississippi in 1946. The state legislature provided funds for use, when matched locally, in correcting medical defects of children of indigent parents. The program gave new hope and medical correction to more than 10,000 children.

Suspicion mounting

WASHINGTON — Acceptance of the White House's explanation for President Nixon's hospitalization at the National Naval Medical Center in Bethesda, Md., requires what Samuel Taylor Coleridge defined as "that willing suspension for the moment of disbelief, which is poetic faith."

Certainly no American, on the celebrated enemies list or off, would begrudge this president any care needed to guard his health. But to send him off to the hospital for the stated symptoms of his present "illness" is ridiculous.

It is probably fair to say that if the patient were not the President of the United States there wouldn't be a physician in the country who would make a house call for the complaint described last Thursday evening. One must search for another than medical to justify the decision to hospitalize

Nixon. The White House boasts not only a full-time medical staff but also a superbly equipped clinic which is more than adequate to deal with the "viral pneumonia" attributed to the President. There is little that can be done for this condition besides bed rest.

Captives return

THE CANADIAN Ambassador to South Vietnam Michel Gauvin, left, greets Captains Fletcher Thomson, 25, center, and Ian Patten, 28, as they return to Saigon after being held captive by Viet Cong since June 28. The two Canadian members of the International Peace-Keeping Force and their two Vietnamese aides vanished while on a routine drive through the rubber plantation country south of Xuan Loc. (UPI)

Canadian officers freed

(AP) New York Times Service SAIGON — Two Canadian officers, who were freed yesterday after having been held for 17 days in the jungle by the Vietcong, said they had been constantly interrogated, taken on forced marches, and occasionally beaten while in detention.

The two men, Ian Patten and Capt. Fletcher Thomson, said the Viet Cong had told them they were being held because they were "American spies" and had tried to get them to sign confessions that they had entered Communist territory illegally.

But the two officers, of the International Commission of Control and Supervision, reported that they had refused to sign any statement and insisted they had been on legitimate commission business when they were detained by Viet Cong troops in a rubber plantation 35 miles east of Saigon on June 28.

The officers, who appeared to be in good physical condition, recounted what they termed the "adventure" at a news conference in the international commission's headquarters in Saigon this morning.

The two Canadians were picked up from the jungle yesterday by an 11-man commission recovery team along with their Vietnamese interpreter and driver who had also been detained.

Patten, 28, a ruggedly-built man with short sandy hair and a confident manner, said that they had received as good food as their captors, but "there were certain personalities. I was most dissatisfied with... I was rifle-butted on the back and pushed around," he said, adding that "whenever we were taken on marches we were bound with our arms behind our backs and a noose around our necks."

According to Patten, one reason they had been moved frequently was because of continual harassing mortar and artillery fire and air strikes in their vicinity. Presumably the operations were conducted by South Vietnamese government troops, but Patten declined to say from which side the shelling came.

Skylab countdown smooth

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The countdown rolled along smoothly today toward the July 26 launch of three more Skylab space explorers who plan to man the orbiting station for a record 56 days.

The count was kicked off on schedule at 11 p.m. EDT Sunday, 12 days before astronauts Alan L. Bean, Jack R. Lousma and Owen K. Garriott plan to ride an Apollo command module up to the lab for another scientific research journey.

The first hurdle in the countdown is a practice launch at 5:08 a.m. MDT Friday. The countdown clock will then be turned back to T-47 hours and started again two days before the real launch of the space crew by a Saturn-1B rocket.

Launch officials will spend most of today running tests of the command module and rocket systems to make sure they will function properly on launch day.

The Skylab 2 countdown is the first time the dress rehearsal has been combined with a real launch.

Officials said they adopted the new countdown schedule because of the proven reliability of the Saturn launchers, the rockets that almost flawlessly boosted men toward the moon. The astronauts won't take part in the dress rehearsal for the first time, too, because of the Saturn 1B's good record.

Garriott, a civilian, is the first physicist-astronaut and his expertise is expected to add knowledge about the sun and about man coping with weightless space for long periods.

The astronauts will also be continuing research begun in the 28-day Skylab manned mission about how the body reacts to prolonged space voyages, and what can be learned about the earth's natural resources from orbit.

Bean, Garriott and Lousma passed their next-to-last major medical examinations last week, and are continuing training in semiquarantine, to keep them from getting sick, at the Johnson Space Center in Houston.

Gen. Haig delays Army retirement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., the White House chief of staff, is engaging in a "sleazy deal" by delaying his retirement from the Army until Aug. 1 to gain an extra $3,300 a year in retirement pay, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Sunday.

Aspin said the General Accounting Office (GAO), the investigative arm of Congress, has ruled that Haig could not legally serve in the White House job while on active military status. Haig replaced H. R. Haldeman as chief of staff when Haldeman resigned at the end of April.

"It is incredible that this administration continues to condone flagrant law breaking by White House officials," Aspin said. "But to Gen. Haig an extra $3,300 of booty in his own pocket is more important than obeying the law."

Aspin termed the arrangement "one of the chintziest deals I ever heard of" and "a sleazy deal designed to lap up a few extra monetary goodies."

Movie rights HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Producer Hal Wallis and Universal Pictures have acquired motion picture rights to "To Die in California," a new novel by Newton Thornburg.

CEA unit recommends tax adjustment power

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A research group recommended Sunday the President be given power to deal swiftly with a sudden change in economic conditions by raising or lowering income taxes by as much as 10 per cent.

The Committee for Economic Development (CED), a non-profit, nonpartisan research and education group, offered the suggestion. Its members are both business and academic leaders.

The committee said the President also should have the power in case Congress fails to take action. It suggested Congress pass a law authorizing the system.

"In order to provide a means for the executive to meet unexpected changes in the economy or congressional inaction, we recommend that the President be granted discretion by Congress to raise or lower personal and corporate income tax payments by up to 10 per cent in a form to be decided by Congress," the committee said in a report.

"The power to raise or lower income taxes would place on the President an unequivocal responsibility for stabilizing action that he could exercise only when he certifies that in his judgment economic conditions are running significantly counter to the objective of high employment, price stability, economic growth and balance-of-payments equilibrium."

The group has been urging Congress to reform its budget-making process for more than a quarter century. It also has proposed establishing a single finance committee in the House and the Senate.

The CED said a composite committee in the House should review the budget each year, questioning the director of the Office of Management and Budget, the treasury secretary, the chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers and other administration officials.

It also recommended that the President and Congress adhere to a stabilizing budget "which would set tax rates to balance the budget and provide a moderate surplus at an agreed high level of employment and price stability."

Terrorism issue talks to resume

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Under pressure from Arab and African countries, the General Assembly shelved action to deal with international terrorism last year. But the issue itself was not killed and discussion of it by a special 35-member committee resumed today.

The subject remains as delicate and controversial as it was when it first came up.

The committee will confer for four weeks on the subject and recommend action when the assembly opens its session in September.

When Secretary General Kurt Waldheim put the issue of global terrorism before last fall's assembly, the world was still shocked by the slaying of 11 members of the Israeli team at the Olympic Games and a series of attacks against civil aircraft in various parts of the world.

Arab extremists were responsible in every case. Secretary of State William P. Rogers also introduced a proposed treaty to deal with global terrorism, but later the United States decided instead to seek a General Assembly conference early this year that would consider international action to combat terrorism.

But the assembly, under pressure from Arab and African countries fearful that international measures to curb terrorism might become weapons against national liberation movements they support, voted 76-35 to delay any action.

Tycoon donates $2 million

(C) Chicago Sun-Times
CHICAGO — Multi-millionaire insurance tycoon W. Clement Stone has released a previously confidential list of politicians to whom he gave a total of $2 million during the 1970 off-year elections.

Stone's largesse included $1,234,203.70 in loans and $81,659 in outright contributions. About $700,000 in loans has not been repaid, Stone said.

In what he described as "an all-out effort to provide President Nixon with the help he needed" in Congress, Stone poured funds into the campaigns of 56 candidates in 30 states.

All the candidates were Republicans and members of New York's conservative party, although Stone said that in other years, he has occasionally contributed to Democrats.

Stone's 1970 dollar blitz had disappointing results: 15 candidates he supported won, 41 lost.

The winners included California Gov. Ronald Reagan, Sen. William E. Brock, III, (R-Tenn.) and Sen. James L. Buckley (C-R-N-Y).

The losers included White House aide Clark MacGregor, who lost a bid for a Senate seat in Minnesota to Hubert H. Humphrey; Sen. Ralph T. Smith, who lost to Adlai E. Stevenson III in Illinois, and Barry Farber, who was defeated in a House race by Bella Abzug in New York.

The philanthropist, whose aides say he has "given away" $73 million since 1953, also disclosed in an exclusive interview with the Chicago Sun-Times that he contributed about $100,000 to local Illinois political races in 1968 and 1972.

Stone overlooked these contributions in detailing his political funding activities for the first time in an earlier interview.

The additional $100,000 pushes Stone's total contributions and loans since 1968 above the $7 million mark — to $7,014,706.75. This is perhaps the largest sum ever contributed to political campaigns by an individual. Stone said $25,000 of the $100,000 was contributed to Richard D. Ogilvie in his successful 1968 campaign for governor and the rest was distributed among state and local candidates in Illinois. Because of a political falling out, Stone limited Ogilvie to only $1,000 in 1972.

Stone's 1970 gifts and loans were laddered out to candidates from Maine to California. Most of the out-of-Illinois contributions were to candidates for Congress or governor.

Overall, the contributions average $10,000 per campaign, but some key Senate

Nixon should volunteer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, a Watergate committee member, believes President Nixon is "in trouble" over the scandal and should come forward voluntarily "with his papers and himself" to clear up the matter.

Inouye, D-Hawaii, said Sunday he would vote to subpoena presidential papers if the White House continues to withhold them from the Senate select committee.

He said he believed the American people had formed themselves into a "great jury" to try the case, and he would favor letting the people, rather than the courts, sit in judgment if the White House refuses the subpoena. He said he believed a refusal would bring a negative response "from the public."

Inouye made his remarks in a television interview. In another interview, Sen. James L. Buckley, the Conservative senator from New York, said he believed the "White House ought to be leaning forward" backwards to cooperate "in providing documents that would be helpful to the Senate investigation. Buckley said he also felt it was important to preserve the "clear executive privilege" that attaches to internal presidential memoranda. Buckley is not a committee member.

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., who does serve on the committee, said he would vote against subpoenaing the President to appear before the committee and against subpoenaing any documents which had been signed or directed to the President. But he said he felt Nixon's handling of the Watergate scandal "has just been miserable" and that Nixon "is not acting like a President."

Inouye was interviewed on CBS "Face the Nation." Buckley appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press." Weicker was interviewed by a New York television station.

The Senate committee meets today through Friday of this week. Today it was to call back to the witness table Richard A. Moore, a special counsel to the President, who last week rebutted portions of testimony given earlier by White House counsel John W. Dean III that implicated Nixon in the cover-up of the Watergate affair.

After Moore finishes his testimony, the seven-member panel will call Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal attorney, who allegedly handled payment of Nixon campaign funds to seven Watergate conspirators and their attorneys after the arrests at Democratic national headquarters June 17, 1972.

In other Watergate developments:

—The New York Daily News reported today that James W. McCord Jr., a convicted conspirator, "suggested" that G. Gordon Liddy might break his silence and talk to authorities. Liddy has been described as the ringleader for the break-in at Democratic headquarters.

—Time Magazine reported it had learned that Senate investigators were seriously probing the possibility that Republican campaign funds may have been used to help purchase Nixon's San Clemente estate. The magazine said investigators were eyeing a sum of $1.6 million left over from the 1968 presidential campaign and "the secret Public Institute funds" raised by Kalmbach as "possible sources" of money used to buy the California property.

—Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said in a speech Saturday night at Springfield, Mo., that he had talked to Nixon the night before the President was hospitalized and that Nixon had told him "the Watergate thing will pass" and that he was not going to be deterred in his efforts to get "the economy of the country straightened out."

—Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox officially expanded his Watergate investigation by appointing two men to pursue related inquiries into 1972 election campaign "dirty tricks" and the White House security squad known as the "plumbers."

Accused

MIAMI, FLA., DETECTIVES said today they would seek three murder warrants against opera singer Salwa Merrige-Abrams on charges of killing her ex-husband and two children. Mrs. Merrige-Abrams, who took a handful of pills after the murders Saturday, police said, was hospitalized. (UPI)

Iraqi embassy threatened

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Rabbi Meir Kahane, leader of the Jewish Defense League, said today he proposed to associates in the United States that they blow up the now-empty Iraqi Embassy in Washington, D.C. to draw attention to the plight of Iraqi Jewry.

The JDL leader told a news conference that he had sent a letter to unnamed persons "shortly after five Iraqi Jews were killed" several months ago.

"I proposed that a bomb be placed in the empty Iraqi Embassy in Washington to help save the other 400 Jews still in Iraq," he said.

Kahane, who faces charges of conspiring to kidnap and murder a foreign diplomat in the United States in a Jerusalem trial beginning Friday, said he had been charged with conspiring to blow up the Iraqi Embassy in the same indictment. He added that he plans to plead guilty to the facts of the indictment, but will deny that he committed any crimes. Meanwhile, he told newsmen that he would run in this fall's Knesset (parliament) elections, even if he should be behind prison bars.

"Of course, I'll let my name stand for the election. If I'm in jail, I'll want to get out," he said.

Kahane plans to ask the Jerusalem District Court to postpone his forthcoming trial until Nov. 20, nearly a month after the election. If he wins a Knesset seat, he would be free from prosecution, as are all Knesset members.

Kahane spent a month in jail before the Supreme Court allowed him out on $24,000 bail July 6 in connection with the conspiracy charges.

US, Japan agree on oil resources

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan and the United States appeared close to an agreement today to work together on investment in developing the oil and natural gas resources of Soviet Siberia.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers gave his blessing to the idea in a speech at the ninth meeting of the U.S.-Japan Joint Economic Committee today.

Discussing measures to be taken by oil importing nations, Rogers listed "the expansion of supply through joint projects between Japanese and American firms aimed at the development of new energy resources in Siberia and elsewhere."

"While the United States cannot direct the investment decisions of our private firms," Rogers said, "we stand ready to encourage them to consider the possibility of common ventures with Japanese firms."

The Soviet Union for almost a decade has been seeking a loan of $1 billion from Japan for construction of a 4,850-mile pipeline from the Tyumen oil fields in the Urals to Nakhodka harbor on the Siberian Pacific Coast.

Under the Soviet proposal, Japan would take its repayment in crude oil starting in about 1980, after the pipeline is completed. Serious negotiations between the two countries have been under way since early 1972.

Japanese government sources said today that Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka has decided that the project would be too much for Japan to handle alone. Tanaka, who is scheduled to visit Moscow in October, will present the idea of joint Japanese-American venture to the Soviet government.

Informed Japanese government sources told UPI that behind Tanaka's decision lies a fear that the Soviet Union would not hesitate to use the oil deal for diplomatic bullying of Japan.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: We have two grandchildren whose other grandparents have taught them that grandparents always bring presents!

When we go to visit them, they run to greet us with open hands, asking, "What did you bring us?"

And when they come to our home, they keep waiting for us to bring out some special gifts for them because their other grandparents always have something for them. When they came here last Sunday, before they were inside the door they asked: "What do you have for us?"

I replied, "What did you bring for us?" That stopped them cold!

Kids won't be fooled

Abby, we don't want to buy their love, but now that they have been spoiled by their other grandparents we don't want to suffer by comparison. I spoke to the other grandmother about this, and she said: "Giving presents is a grandparent's pleasure."

So what's the answer?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Children are smarter than you think they are. Spending time with them, and showing honest affection and genuine interest will net you more love in return than a carload of presents. Continue to follow your own philosophy, and let the other grandparents follow theirs.

DEAR ABBY: "Grandma's" letter struck a familiar chord with me. It isn't thanks we want from our grandchildren when we buy them gifts, it's an expression of love. To be totally ignored is to be deeply hurt.

We give them presents because we love them.

When one grows old, every phone call and note is doubly appreciated.

Our children try to make enough for their children. They say: "The grandchildren are too busy to write or call."

We notice, however, they are never too busy to cash our check as soon as it arrives.

GRANDMA IN THE SAME BOAT

DEAR GRANDMA: Judging from my mail, that's a large boat you're in.

DEAR ABBY: How would you answer a 4-year-old, born out of wedlock, when she asks, "Why don't I have a daddy?"

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: Tell her everyone has a daddy, but not all daddies live with their families, and hers does not.

No need to go into explanations. At her age, she wouldn't understand anyway. Just answer all questions as they arise, one at a time—and honestly.

DEAR ABBY: My mother in law seems to think that she should sit next to her son in the car when the three of us ride together.

As my husband holds the door open for us, out of respect for his mother, I let her enter ahead of me, which puts her next to my husband.

I think my place is next to him. What do you think?

BOILING IN BALTIMORE

DEAR BOILING: I think you're wasting a lot of energy over a trivial matter. Quit boiling, simmer down, get next to yourself, and skip it.

FASHION NEWS, FALL '73

By Mary Sue Miller

The significant aspect of fall fashion news is how energetic. For designers, it's a "H" theme. The way you avoid it is to avoid the "H" theme. When you purchase items, look for "H" in the name. And if you don't see it, think "H" in your mind. Be it a blouse, skirt, or dress, it's "H" time.

• The Big Look: It's knit. Knit fabrics, sweaters, blouses, trousers, and jackets are the focus. Knit fabrics are softer and more comfortable than other fabrics. They're also easier to care for. Knit fabrics are also more forgiving when it comes to fit.

• Colors: Grays, naturals, earthy browns, woodsy greens and blues, maroon and burnt red, black.

• Fabrics: Other than knits, much-used materials are challis, jersey, melton, mohair, tweed, and many-wear classics.

• Designs: The new designs are simple, clean, and sophisticated. They're also more functional. They're also more forgiving when it comes to fit.

• Shirts: In classic women's, the "out skirt" falls, brought over when pleated. The jacket wraps or has a one-button closing. Pantsuits—watch for straighter pants and wrapped, belted jackets.

• Blouses: Very soft and dainty blouses, many with side-the-tailored shirt.

• Coats: Here again the word is big. Tops on blouses or skirts are fuller, or both. Long-sleeved fur-like leas and tassels make it big as collars and cuffs.

• Lengths: Just above the knee to just below. (When you can't find the letter, maybe you'll have to shop abroad. The Couture backed all lengths in depth.)

• Colors: Grays, naturals, earthy browns, woodsy greens and blues, maroon and burnt red, black.

• Fabrics: Other than knits, much-used materials are challis, jersey, melton, mohair, tweed, and many-wear classics.

Jim: This play couldn't do him any harm. If the king failed to drop he would eventually get to dummy with a diamond after losing the diamond finesse and lead a heart toward his queen.

Oswald: He was sure to make his contract if East held the king of hearts. This way he had that small extra chance. West just might hold the king all by itself.

Farm property prices spurred by many factors

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This year's boom in farm and food prices has been accompanied by a boom in the price of farm land, an Agriculture Department report says.

The report, prepared by economists of the department's Economic Research Service (ERS), said the average value of each farmland acre sold during the year ended March 1 was up 13 per cent from a year earlier. This is nearly double the average 6.9 per cent annual increase reported over the last decade.

Experts said the sharp increase in land prices during the past year was spurred by a combination of factors including plentiful credit and stable interest rates and continuing increases in net farm income.

Major gains in nonfarm income also may have played a part in the land boom by stepping up demands for rural homesites and recreation property, and by increasing demand for land to be used for suburban and commercial development, the report said.

Also, experts added, more investors may have turned to land recently as a hedge against inflation.

The report said future gains in farm land prices may be slower than those of the past year.

Farm income for 1973 is expected to set another new record, but economists pointed out that credit for land purchases may be tighter.

The Federal Reserve Board recently cranked up the discount rate to the highest level in years. This will undoubtedly have an impact soon on interest rates for long-term lending, and recent reports of tight money in the housing market may foretell a general tightening of credit availability," the ERS report said.

Specialists added, however, that while the rate of gain in farmland prices may slow down, continued increases are likely and the advances over the next few years have a "good chance" to match the 6.9 per cent annual rate of the 1963-72 decade.

The report said lending market reports of the past year reflect the price boom. Farm mortgage loans held by major lenders on March 31 were up $1.7 billion from a year earlier. Most of the increase was posted on loans made by Federal Land Banks, which issued 7.5 per cent more farm mortgages than during the previous year. Life insurance companies increased their farm mortgage lending by 40 per cent over a year earlier.

Mortgage rates charged by major lenders during the first quarter of 1973 were "a shade lower" than a year earlier, the report said.

According to the ERS, Wisconsin led the states in land value increases in the year ending March 1 with a gain of 21 per cent. California had the slowest rise, 2 per cent, because higher grazing land values were partly offset by lower prices for cropland. All told, only four states showed increases of less than 10 per cent. In addition to California, they included Utah, Arizona and Louisiana.

Watermelon game

TWO young workers unload a truckload of melons at a market in Atlanta, Ga. Because of excessive rainfall and cool temperatures earlier this year, most crops of cantaloupe and watermelon from south Georgia missed the usual market, but are available in abundance now. (UPI)

Russian wheat prospects good

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department announced Friday that Russia may harvest a record grain crop this year and Soviet grain imports may drop below earlier estimates. But officials refused to say how far they think the import reduction may go.

The department said that in light of reports of good weather and crop conditions, prospects as of July 1 indicate the 1973 Soviet grain harvest could total a record 195 million tons, up 16 per cent from last year's poor harvest.

But on import prospects, officials would not be precise.

"Our information is conflicting. It would not be a service to give a specific figure," an official of the Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS) said after release of the statement which predicted that Soviet 1973-74 grain imports from all sources will be down "somewhat" from a previous FAS estimate of 15 million tons.

Another expert, however, said privately he believed the decline would be "slight." Whatever the final figure, it will be down sharply from Russia's grain import for the 1972-73 season. In that season, following the poor 1972 crop, Russia imported nearly 30 million tons of grain from all sources, including about 19 million tons from the United States.

The Agriculture Department earlier this week reported that Soviet orders for U.S. wheat and corn for 1973-74 delivery so far totaled 7.845 million tons.

Northwest livestockmen unite in feed effort

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — Livestock operations in northern Idaho and northeastern Washington plan to join forces in applying for emergency farm loans to buy livestock feed.

Washington Gov. Dan Evans said his cabinet has been working with Idaho officials to set up the first phases of the emergency loan program to assist livestockmen being threatened by a severe drought.

In making the announcement, Evans said "The dry season is no respecter of state lines. It is only reasonable that our approaches to the Farm Home Administration and U.S. Department of Agriculture from both our states should be a joint one."

Successful Investing

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Please explain the term "secondary distribution."

The term "secondary" is used to distinguish this type of share offering from a new or primary issue. The secondary distribution usually consists of nonpublic outstanding shares in a publicly held company. The selling shareholders may be officers or directors of the company, an estate executor, an institutional or an individual holding a large block. On occasion, a combination distribution will include both secondary and newly issued shares.

Although large blocks may change hands without the service of an investment banker — particularly among institutional holders — an underwriter is generally employed in order to provide broader market distribution for the shares. The impact of this additional supply of stock on the trading level depends on the offering price, the size of the distribution compared with the floating supply of stock previously available, and the climate of the overall market.

Last fall I purchased 100 shares of Cadco, Inc. (ASE at 12). I watched it decline and bought another 100 at 12. Do you think if this stock is held it will eventually recover? E. H.

Cadco opened two new 85,000 to 90,000 sq. ft. units in March, causing the number of outlets to 21. Five additional stores are scheduled for opening by the year-end. Share price action has been disappointing, reflecting general market conditions as well as that having reported for fiscal 1972. While sales improved 11 percent, income rose only 1 percent in the year ended Jan. 31, 1973. Management disclosed that for the first three months of the current fiscal year sales advanced 21 percent while earnings rose 24 percent to 8 cents a share.

Cadco's sales mix in fiscal 1972 was 69 percent hard goods, 31 percent soft goods. The latter category, which carries higher profit margins, was upgraded from 23 percent four years earlier. Continued penetration of this area is one of management's goals. A higher than industry average for sale per square foot has been achieved by this well-run discount store chain. Shares should be held for gradual recovery.

'Gray Panthers,' elderly discards

(c) Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON—America's 20 million elderly, 65 and over, will remain in the dustbin for discards unless they learn to reorganize and fight for their economic, social and political rights, two prominent retired scientists declared.

Doris and David Jonas even have a suggested name for such an organization — the Gray Panthers.

The husband-wife team assumedly picked up such a militant approach after retiring themselves — he as director of medicine-psychiatry, and she as anthropology department director in New York's Institute of Theoretical Medicine.

Relating in "Young Will We Die" (Coward, McCann and Georgehegan Dirs. 6.95), how they began research work among the elderly, they report shock at the unexpectedly cruel conditions in which they found a majority of their 65-and-over fellow citizens existing. They remark:

"If these 20 million individuals had been an ethnic minority, a hue and cry would have been set up long ago to relieve their situation."

That situation, they declare, "literally cries for organization and leadership to a standard of living below the poverty level. Nearly two-thirds, living alone or not with relatives, are merely 'getting by' at a bare subsistence level, and their fixed incomes cannot keep pace with the rising rate of inflation."

Desperation, the two scientists report, has begun to light sparks in such places as Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, San Francisco and Sacramento, where retired persons are clamoring for such relief as partial tax exemptions, special transportation privileges, better job opportunities, shopping discounts and more generous benefits.

But, the Jonases go on, "Isolated actions of this type, while they may bring local ameliorations, will not produce total reversal of public attitudes (toward the elderly)

... until they coalesce into a national movement, with centralized and regional leadership."

The clout of the elderly, the Jonases assert, lies mainly in how they can make their total numbers count in politics and economic buying power.

They did the latter in Florida, the writers point out, where an estimated 14.5 per cent of the population is 65 and over. It used to be this class of person was "bait" for real estate interests. But by banding together, the elderly changed that situation so that now, say the Jonases, they are the masters.

"Today," the writers declare, "a retired person thinking of moving to Florida has the possibility to choose from every imaginable type of home, already built, and many already furnished, equipped and ready for occupation."

The lesson, the writers say, is that "where large numbers of persons make their requirements plain, their needs are catered to, rather than remaining the victims of exploiters."

The over-65s comprise about 10 per cent of the nation's population, and represent about 17 per cent of the country's voters. And — in the latter case, unlike the young — they vote in much higher proportion: the Jonases estimate about 70 per cent of eligibles.

However, the two scientists continue, the elderly must be convinced "of the strength of their position," and then banded together to "use this strength to change the public image of the old as an ineffective part of society that merely utilizes space and resources, and has no further function."

Banding together presumably won't be an easy goal to achieve, the authors say. The old apparently got into their "useless" bind because "the elderly are not inclined to take to the streets, and demonstrate for action. Their very sense of personal dignity prevents them from advocating and taking part in violent measures."

Billboard incenses women's libbers

DETROIT, Mich. (UPI) — "Have some fun, beat your wife tonight."

That billboard inscription, used as part of an advertisement promoting bowling as a family activity, has raised the ire of one or more women's liberationists.

Ann Cass Strella, executive secretary of the Bowling Proprietors Association of Detroit which paid for the sign, may never hear the end of it.

Friday, it was discovered that somebody had painted out the word "wife" and spray painted over the entire sign in large letters the word, "obscene."

Strella said that incident followed a series of letters and threatening telephone calls he has received regarding the sign, located alongside the John Lodge Freeway.

One telephone call came from a woman who said "they'd continue to destroy our sign as long as we advertised beating your wife."

Strella said she didn't care that beating your wife is worse than being prosecuted for destruction of property.

Ex-addicts must have employment

(c) Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — Money spent on drug treatment programs may be wasted if ex-addicts are unable to find work in the tangled maze of legal restrictions and employer prejudices, a new study says.

"The typical rehabilitated addict will be difficult to place because of a criminal record, lack of education, scanty work history and minority group status," Hugh Ward, a New York City manpower specialist, says in the report, "Addiction and Employment."

It was prepared for the Drug Abuse Council, a private, non-profit foundation here.

Not only are addicts at a disadvantage because of their background but Ward wrote in the report, government policy has also passed the issue of employment.

Addicts in treatment programs, at the local, state and federal level are denied access to regular job training and placement programs, and treatment programs have not been set up with such resources, he said.

"Such neglect is patently counterproductive," and "substantial waste of public money," Ward said in light of the "virtually unanimous agreement that employment is a necessary ingredient in the rehabilitation process."

Given the typical addicts' lack of preparation for work, and the absence of manpower training or job counseling in treatment programs, former addicts face additional obstacles, the report said, in their efforts to lead a straight life, including:

— Labor unions have shown little concern for addiction problems, except in terms of treatment for present members.

Existing manpower training programs are being cut back, and their effectiveness in actual placement of trainees has not been high.

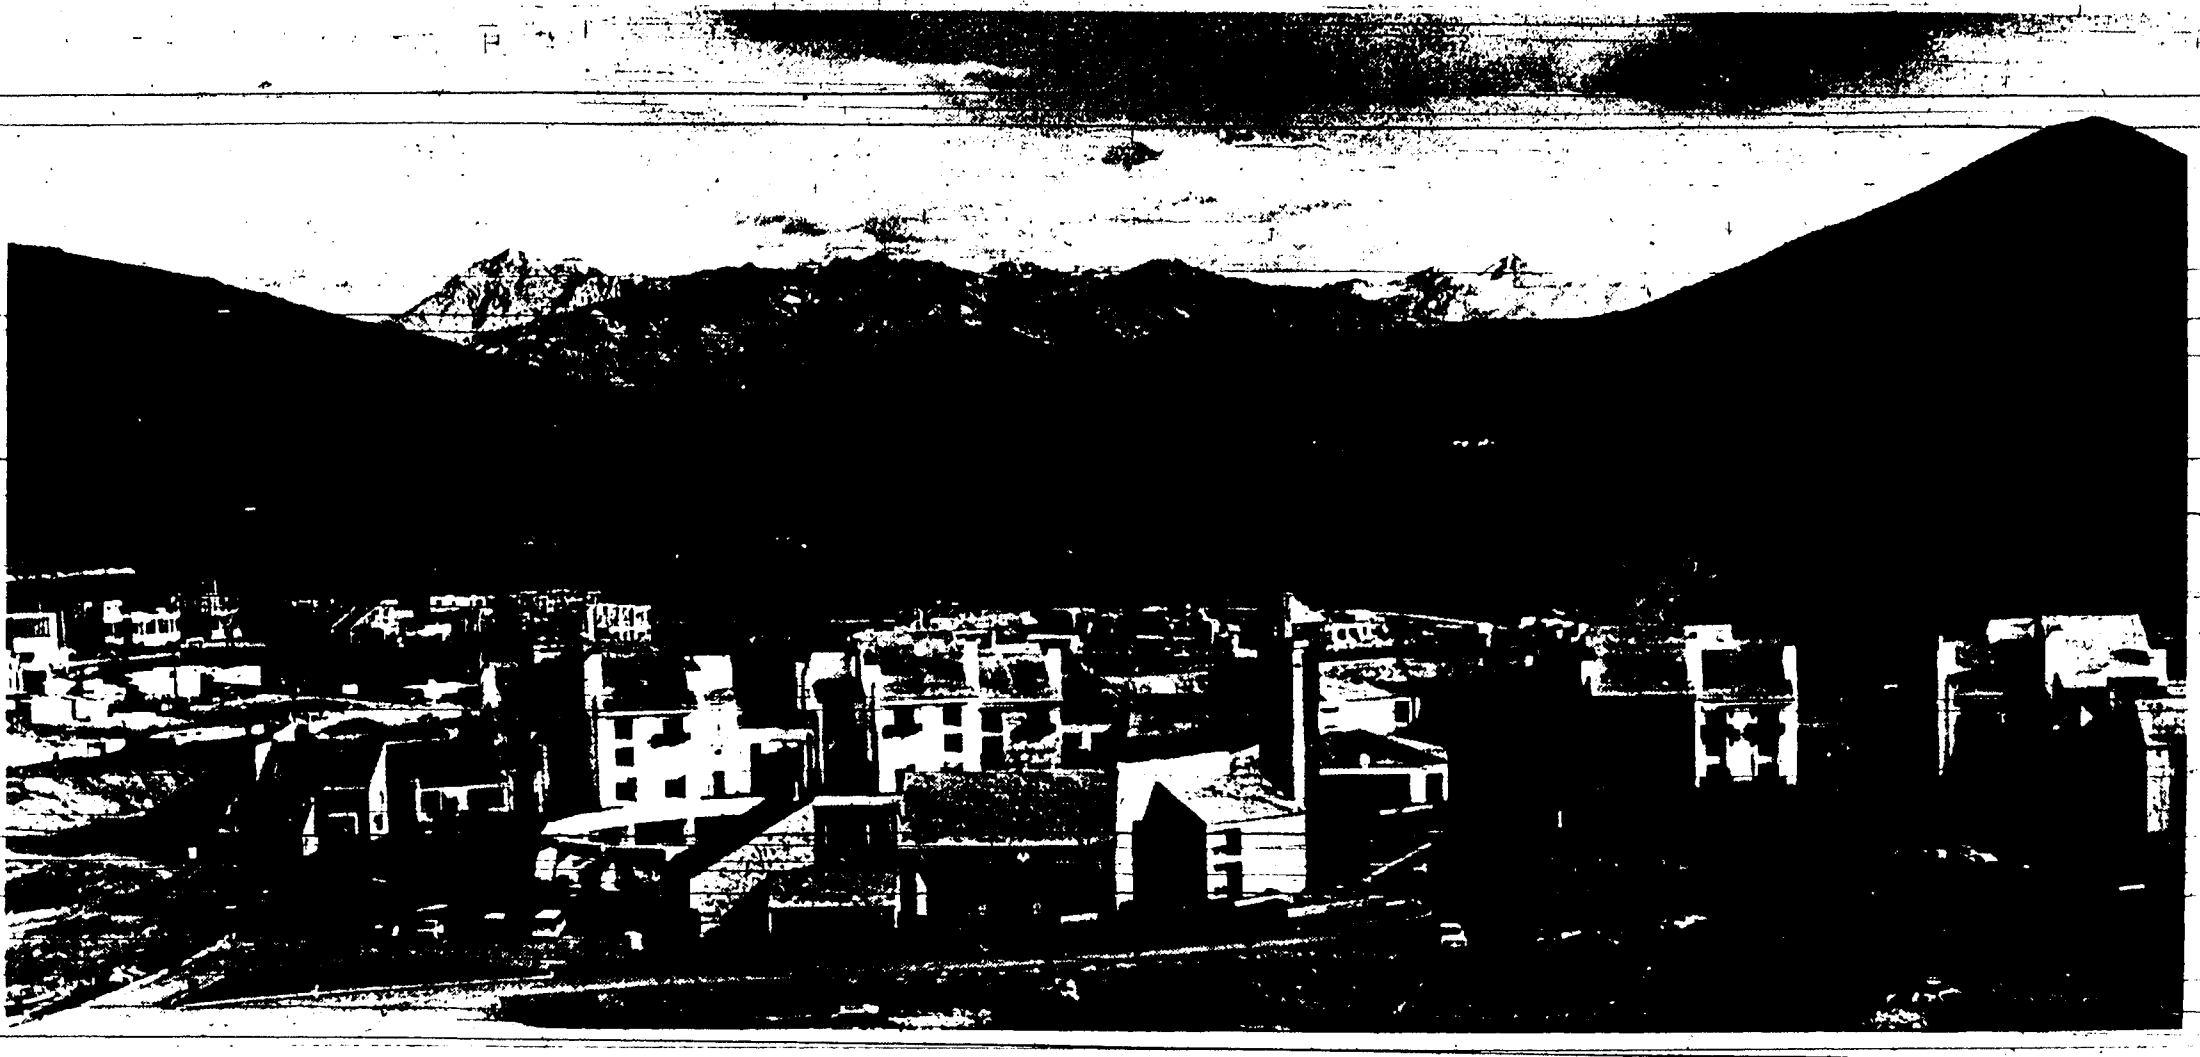

Treatment programs, private and public, do not have the experience or know-how to deal with the manpower issue, and some regard prospective employers of any stripe as "the enemy."

Legal restrictions further narrow the job field for ex-addicts, in terms of obtaining licenses to set up small businesses or loans to back such enterprises. Persons with criminal or addiction histories often cannot get certification in human service jobs, in day care centers or as first aid workers, for instance, or in stores that sell liquor.

Moreover, no positive policy for hiring ex-addicts has been established by the federal Civil Service, and this lack of leadership has stymied efforts to foster more receptive attitudes in the private sector.

Although treatment programs themselves are often largely staffed by ex-addicts, as the problems of drug abuse are brought under control, they, too, will be left with nowhere to go, and, as a spokeswoman for the Drug Abuse Council noted, no one wants to permanently perpetuate "a drug abuse treatment complex."

Ward strongly recommended the manpower aspects of treatment programs be increased, and that government at all levels show more positive leadership in hiring and training of former users.

WH staff advance man identified

CHICAGO — The Secret Service says a man seen ripping down demonstrators' signs during President Nixon's visit to Peking, Ill., was a "volunteer White House staff advance man."

Neither the White House nor the Secret Service made clear what the duties of such volunteers were or how many there were, but the Secret Service said the man identified in a photo as having torn the signs was Peter C. Murphy.

A statement by the Secret Service said the identification was made after an investigation that included interviews with eyewitnesses, a review of police reports, review of allegations made by citizens and a review of photographs.

The White House said Murphy has served as an unsalaried advance man since the 1972 campaign. His expenses have been paid by the government, the White House said.

According to the White House, Murphy is an officer of the Murphy Co., a family-owned lumber company in Eugene, Ore.

Senate Watergate Committee Assistant General Counsel Terry Lenzner told the Chicago Sun-Times by telephone from Washington: "We will definitely look into this action by a member of the White House staff. It may be a continuation of the pattern of incidents that occurred in the 1972 campaign.

The White House has not disavowed the actions dissenters but sources said that Bill Henkel, the chief of the advance men, had talked to Murphy about the Peking incident.

The sources declined to say whether Murphy would again be used.

The sources also said steps have been taken to make sure that all volunteers are made aware that they are to take no action "alien to the president's philosophy." This was the only indication that Nixon opposed to the type of behavior of which Murphy is accused.

The Chicago Sun-Times published a photograph of the man identified by six witnesses as the one who tore down signs, including a 4-by-12 foot banner, during the June 15 visit.

Gerald L. Warren, White House deputy press secretary, described Murphy as a "volunteer man," he said Murphy "does not work for the White House but is called in to help on an occasional trip."

Jack Swartz, a Secret Service spokesman, said the White House staff was not connected with the Secret Service and had no security role to perform in Peking.

Officers of the Illinois Indiana Peace Campaign had charged that apparent Secret Service agents, with orange lapel pins and walkie talkies, forcibly removed their signs including the banner reading "stop the bombing" just before the president's car was to drive by.

Sen. Charles H. Percy (R-Ill.) who called for a Secret Service investigation when the charges were first made, said "I have asked to the White House to investigate immediately what Mr. Murphy's role might have been. I've been apprised that such harassment of our citizens is not authorized for any White House advance men."

Percy also called for an investigation by the Civil Rights Division of the Justice Department.

Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III (D-Ill.), who also called for an investigation, said he was writing the President to "express my dismay at the excesses attributed to the individual identified as a White House advance man."

Stevenson said the President owes an apology to any citizen whose right to peaceable dissent was abridged by members of his staff during his visit to Peking.

Stevenson also asked the Secret Service to investigate the identity of two other plain clothesmen who forcibly removed Richard Grawey, 25, of Peoria, from the crowd when he carried an "unpeach Nixon" sign.

Nixon braces for outcome

(c) Newhouse News Service WASHINGTON — Eventually, the current big question — did Nixon know? — will become almost irrelevant in deciding whether he should remain in the White House.

Congress is already turning its attention to the broader aspects of the charges and allegations against this administration, which form a pattern suggesting staggering misuse of the national trust.

President Nixon, as his aides now boast, may well escape direct complicity in the narrow Watergate phase of the charges, but it is increasingly clear that he will still face grave political and legal problems.

The reality hitting home with Congress is that whether or not the President participated in unpropriety, he let it happen on a massive scale.

William Safire, former Nixon speechwriter, who now writes a pro-administration column for the New York Times, put it plainly this week:

"Grand Juries (he wrote) are burrowing into Watergate and related matters in Washington, D.C., New York, Houston, Orlando and Los Angeles.

Senate appropriations and armed services committees are both looking into CIA and FBI involvement, and House Armed Services, commerce, and banking and currency committees will have their day on CIA-TTT, Mexican laundering, grain deals and you name it. Four civil suits filed by common cause, Ralph Nader's Public Citizen, the Democratic National Committee, and a former national security council staffer will, the litigators hope, generate publicity for years, as will SEC and FBI investigations, and the anticipated criminal trials that could turn Washington into Nuremberg."

The scope and depth of the scandal are almost too much to comprehend. Indeed the public, having decided overwhelmingly, according to the latest Gallup poll, that Nixon is lying about his involvement in the Watergate break-in and cover-up, has more or less washed its hands of the matter, and turned it over to the elected representatives.

As much as Congress had hoped to avoid this responsibility, it is now clear that a decision will have to be made, perhaps as soon as October, on whether the President, who sat at the summit of this mountain of snakes, should be permitted to remain in office.

Nixon and his advisers are, of course, well aware that the crunch likely will come in the chambers of Congress. There is now in the White House almost a reconciliation to the inevitable, and the President is bracing for it.

Fed-up

BOISE (UPI) — A service station manager, "fed-up" with a car that wouldn't start, went on a window smashing rampage that left the vehicle and the station in ruins.

Authorities say the manager became angry when he could not start the vehicle, so he smashed out its windows. He then turned on the station, breaking all the windows in the front and back of the building.

A lawnmower, a cooking system flusher, a battery charger and a cigarette vending machine were also damaged.

Mike Josephson, 21, Boise, was charged with malicious destruction of property.

Witnesses said Josephson complained he was "fed up with everything."

Staffer admits actions

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Peter C. Murphy Jr., the former White House advance man who admitted tearing down an antiwar sign, said Saturday his action had pleased the crowd.

"I was a hero. Little old women were saying, 'Thank God,'" Murphy said.

Murphy disclosed his action during an investigation by the Secret Service to determine if its agents were responsible for the incident, which occurred during the 1972 presidential campaign in Peking, Ill.

Murphy, head of a family-owned lumber firm in Eugene, was serving as a volunteer White House staff advance man.

In Murphy's version, persons who had waited for hours for President Nixon were unable to see because of young people holding up an antiwar sign.

When he tore down the sign, Murphy said a scuffle resulted, and an Illinois state trooper came to my rescue.

Gas sales rapped

BOISE (UPI) — Dan Pilkington, Idaho state purchasing agent, says the reluctance of gasoline distributors to sell fuel in bulk supplies could cost the state as much as $675,000 per year. He said Idaho is currently buying most of its gas in bulk or through contract for about 19 cents per gallon. He said the "so-called" gas shortage is making distributors hesitant about selling in bulk when they can get a higher retail price. Pilkington said it could cost as much as 27 cents per gallon if the state had to fill the tanks of its 3,500 vehicles at retail rates. The state uses about 2.5 million gallons of gas each year, and the added cost, he said, could total $675,000 per year.

BLM director named

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Curtis J. "Curt" Berklund, 43, Cottonwood, has been named director of the Bureau of Land Management, Secretary of the Interior Rogers C.B. Morton announced today. Berklund succeeds Burton W. Silcock, former Burley resident, who was sworn in July 12 as federal co-chairman of the Joint Federal-State Land Use Planning Commission for Alaska. The position of director of the BLM is a secretarial appointment and is not subject to Senate confirmation. Berklund joined the department in April, 1970, as assistant to the associate director, Bureau of Land Management and special assistant to the assistant secretary for Public Land Management. In April 1972, he was named deputy assistant secretary in the office of the Assistant Secretary for public land management. He was named acting assistant secretary for Public Land Management Jan. 23, 1973, to serve through March. Since then he has worked closely with Assistant Secretary Jack O. Horton in the development and administration of policies and programs concerned with public lands.

Wendell inspector quits, reconsiders

By PEGGY CHU Times-News writer
WENDELL — City building inspector A. J. Thomason said today he is reconsidering his resignation announced angrily last week. He said he will decide whether to stay at the next City Council meeting on July 26, at which he will seek to reach agreement with councilmen regarding his duties. Thomason had angrily resigned during the city council meeting Thursday after he said the city's mayor, Eugene Soares, had issued a building permit to a trailer house which had not conformed to the building code. Mayor Soares said today that if Thomason had been present when the mayor discussed the permit with the trailer owner, to which Thomason had been invited, "we might have been able to work something out with the people."

Soares confirmed today he had issued the permit, but said the permit should have been issued even though the trailer house failed to meet the code. According to Soares, the case involves a trailer house being used as a dwelling while a permanent home is under construction on the same lot. The building code requires a concrete foundation for the trailer.

Soares said he felt the requirement should be waived, while Thomason had insisted on strict enforcement of the code.

Thomason had refused to permit the trailer without the foundation.

After the trailer owner had complained to Mayor Soares, a meeting had been called to discuss the matter, which Thomason had refused to attend.

The mayor then personally signed the building permit, he said.

"It would have to fall upon someone if the building inspector wouldn't do it," Soares said.

Soares had said earlier that he had "no alternative" but to sign the permit when the building inspector failed to attend the meeting.

"I can't buck the public and you (the mayor) too. . . . If the mayor wants to issue building permits he can do so from now on and save the city hiring a building inspector," Thomason had said at the time of his resignation.

According to city clerk Gwen Collett, the building permit for the trailer was requested by Mrs. John Austin, who hoped to rent the trailer on the property owned by her brother, Rex A. Lee.

Construction had not yet started on the proposed home at the site.

Airport project gets nod

BURLEY — A letter made public today indicates a Federal Aviation Official sees "little or no conflict" for the Instrument Landing System and Control Tower at the Twin Falls airport and a proposed new regional airport.

The letter, written in mid-April by George E. Buley, chief of the Airports Planning Branch of the FAA, was made public today by officials of the Southern Idaho Regional Airport Authority (SIRRAA).

The ILS and tower will continue to serve Joslin Field regardless of the operations that will take place at the new airport. Buley wrote to George Forschler, chairman of the regional airport board of trustees, "provided that the Joslin Field activity remains high enough to warrant retention of the facilities."

The SIRRAA wants to build a new regional airport for the Magic Valley at a site north of the Snake River in Jerome County. Some Twin Falls City, county and airport officials have raised questions about the plan in view of the local taxpayers' investment in the existing airport.

Buley's letter also indicates that if the landing system and tower were removed, the maximum cost for the job would be about $575,000. "If the facilities were to be relocated, we expect that the cost would be much less than that quoted," he told Forschler in his letter.

TF man faces rape charge

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man was taken into custody early Sunday on charges of rape and burglary. Jack Harold Kraft, 29, was arrested about 9:45 a.m. Sunday on one count of rape and one count of first degree burglary.

According to chief of detectives Tim Qualls, Kraft allegedly broke into a residence in the 400 block of 2nd Avenue East about 1:35 a.m. Sunday and removed nearly $200 in jewelry.

A short time later, according to Qualls, Kraft apparently entered the home of a Twin Falls woman while she was asleep and sexually assaulted her.

Qualls said the rape charge against Kraft was filed by a woman in her mid-20's. He said the woman told police she had gone to sleep in her home on Maurice Street North and had forgotten to lock the door. About 2:30 a.m. Qualls said, Kraft allegedly entered the woman's home through the unlocked door and assaulted her.

The woman was alone in the house at the time, Qualls said. He said that investigation revealed the woman and Kraft "were not acquainted with each other" prior to the assault.

No bond had been set for Kraft prior to arraignment this morning in Fifth District Court.

Shelley girls die

SWAN VALLEY (UPI) — Two 10-year-old Shelley girls have died as a result of injuries sustained in a motorcycle-bus collision near Swan Valley.

The Bonneville County sheriff's office said the girls were identified as Sandra Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Adams, and Jenis Glauser, daughter of Mrs. Eldon Parker.

Deputy Les Poole said the girls had been riding a minibike in the Falls Valley campground when they turned into the Falls Creek and McCloy Creek road and collided with a Jackson Stage Line bus.

Deputy Poole said the bus driver veered off the road and knocked down several trees trying to avoid the bike but failed.

Trial to start

PAYETTE (UPI) — The first degree murder trial of Ray C. Hurd, 33, Emmett, was expected to begin today in third district court here.

Hurd faces the count in connection with the Feb. 16 shooting death of floy M. Bell, 36, Emmett Hurd, his young son and Bell lived together at an Emmett home. Police said Bell was shot in the face with a 22-caliber pistol allegedly owned by Hurd.

Lewiston man installed

SUN VALLEY — John H. Bengtson, Lewiston, was installed as the new president of the Idaho State Bar Saturday during the group's four day annual meeting in Sun Valley.

Bengtson replaces former president John M. Sharp, Idaho Falls. Serving as president elect is Thomas G. Nelson, Twin Falls.

Elected commissioner was Gerald H. Olson, Pocatello.

Probe continues

BELLEVUE — Investigation is continuing into an apparently stray bullet entering a Bellevue residence.

According to city marshal Duane Dudley, an about 22 caliber bullet penetrated an about five to six inch wall in the Charles Young residence and lodged in a dresser.

The incident, Dudley said, was believed to have occurred sometime Saturday night.

Law officials hunt fugitive

BURLEY — About 25 city, county and state law enforcement officers combed Burley without success last night for Inez Ybarra who had escaped while being transferred to the city jail. Ybarra, 26, wanted on a fugitive warrant from California was being transferred from the county jail to the city jail at about 8:10 p.m. when he broke loose from officers on the main floor of the courthouse and fled through the south door, which was standing open.

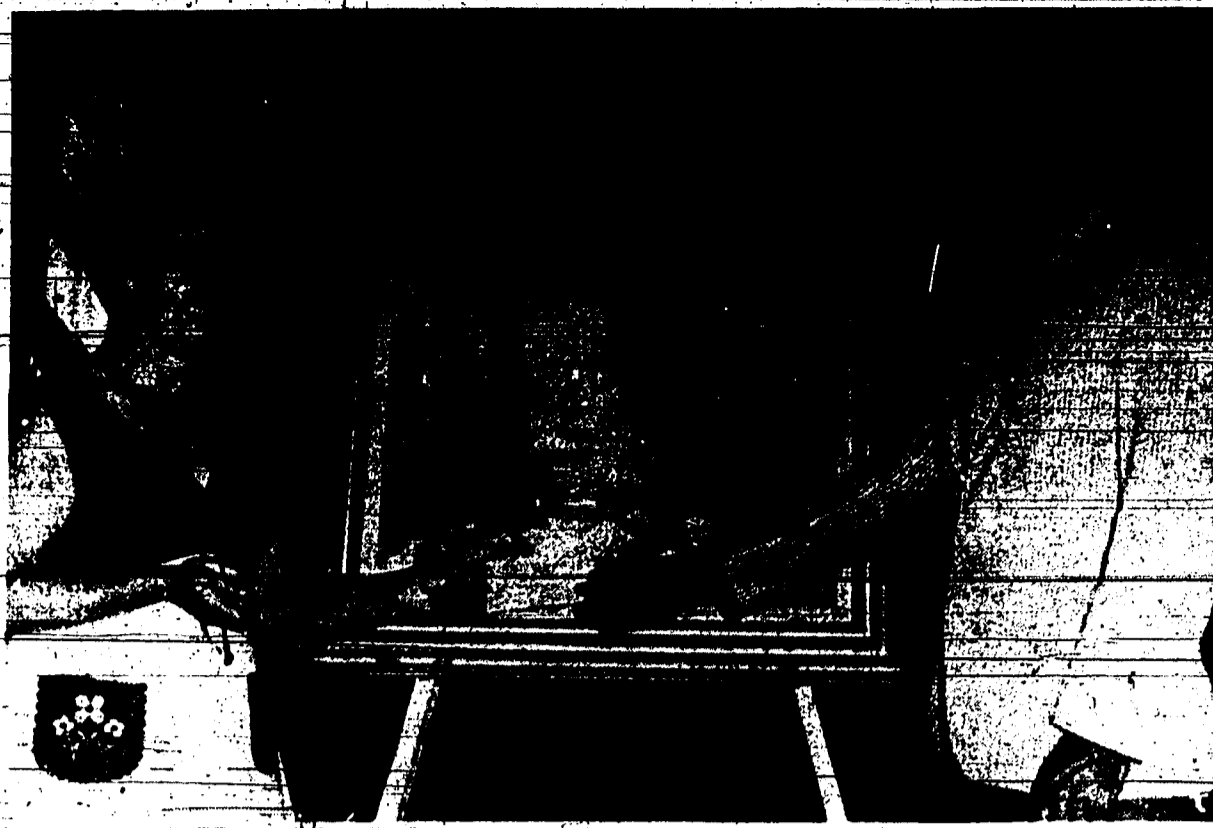

Officers thought he was located in a house on 16th Street at one point in the evening, police chief Ken Barry said, and officers were sent to the scene. The information, however, proved incorrect.

"We had lots of informants," Barry said, "some weren't too good."

Ybarra was being taken to the city jail Sunday night so the California officer here to return him to that state could pick him up about 7:30 a.m. today to catch the plane. The county building, where he had been held is not open that early.

Barry described Ybarra as about 5 feet eight inches in height, weighing 220 pounds and having black hair and brown eyes. He was last seen wearing a brown checked shirt and loud pants and white shoes, he said. Officers are continuing their search for Ybarra.

Hagerman scene

Gooding artist donates painting

WENDELL — Mrs. Nadine Rice Gooding, has donated an original painting of a Hagerman Valley scene on behalf of the Boise Branch Artists Guild in memory of the late Charlotte Duggan.

The painting is on display at the Wendell branch of the Idaho First National Bank and will be moved to the Idaho Power office in Gooding at the end of July.

Funds in the Charlotte Duggan Memorial Funds will be used to offer a scholarship to a deserving junior or senior who is majoring in fine arts at an Idaho university.

Mrs. Duggan helped organize the Wendell art group in February 1963. The group grew from a handful to 40 members under her guidance. She belonged to the Idaho Art Association and started a traveling slide library that was available to all persons in Idaho. She helped with the Sawtooth Brush Art Guild, Gooding, and the Art Mart, Twin Falls.

Mrs. Duggan taught with the philosophy, "I cannot teach you to paint, maybe help you to improve, but I can help you to see with your eyes the colors and beauties that have never been apparent to most of you before."

Mrs. Rice was asked to represent the group because she was named "Best of Fair" during the year of 1972.

Anyone interested in donating to the scholarship fund should call at the Idaho First National Bank, Wendell, or Davis Photo, Jerome, or Mrs. Bill Johannsen, 934-5349; Mrs. John Miller, 934-4944; Mrs. Nevada Omohundro, 837-4997, or Mrs. Earl Schrenk, 536-2765.

CHARLES IRETON, manager of the Wendell branch of the Idaho First National Bank, presents Mrs. Earl Schrenk, Wendell, with first donation toward the "Charlotte Duggan Memorial Fund" for art scholarship to deserving student majoring in art at an Idaho university.

Prayerful arrested in Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vowing to continue civil disobedience tactics at the White House until the end of the American bombing in Cambodia, three more Roman Catholic peace protesters were arrested Saturday outside the White House when they refused to pray.

The arrests brought to 25 the number of demonstrators arrested since July 6 when four were brought from the line of White House tourists and kept to pray.

Arrested by Executive Protective Service police were Robert Dieter, 27, James Hoogstra, 21, and Chris Thomas, 27, all of Washington and all associated with the Community for Creative Nonviolence (CCNV). They were charged with unlawful entry and turned over to metropolitan police for processing.

"We've come to pray. We urge you to join us in prayer," the three said to tourists beginning the White House tour.

The three said they were at the White House to "reject any timetable which allows murder to go on; to reject any compromise which allows illegal and immoral bombing of people to go on."

Charges filed

FOUR of five Spanish missionaries who said they had completed a dossier to back their charge that Portuguese troops butchered native villagers in Mozambique. They are from left, Enrique Fernandez, Julio Moure, Miguel Buendia and Alberto Font. (UPI)

Portuguese charged with massacre

LONDON (UPI) — "If the Portuguese Army won't tell the governor of Mozambique where the ill-fated village of Wiriyamu was, let him ask the African population of Tete," a Spanish millionaire expelled from Mozambique said here Friday.

Father Miguel Buendia scoffed at official denials of the massacre of 400 people at Wiriyamu and at denials of the very existence of the village. He supplemented geographical information already given by another missionary.

"It used to lie near the junction of the Zambeze and Mazoe rivers, not far from the main road between Tete and Beira. All of the African population within a 25-mile radius knows exactly where the massacre occurred." He and other missionaries pointed out that official maps used by Portuguese authorities do not show every little jungle village, and the fact that it does not appear on the map does not mean that it is nonexistent.

Another missionary who managed to escape after authorities had closed down his mission near Tete, Father Enrique Fernandez, dismissed as a "lie" a Rhodesian government official's statement that Rhodesian troops did not operate in Mozambique.

He added: "I saw Rhodesian troops near Tete. I saw them get out of their helicopters. I even gave them water to drink because they were thirsty. The first priests who are in jail in Lourenco Marques spoke to Rhodesian soldiers in English after the priests buried the bodies of some of the people they had massacred at Mukumbura."

Father Ferrando said that "not only did the two priests who are now in jail see the Rhodesians carry out a military operation, but their testimony is also a matter of Portuguese public record." He said the priests had "testified to the effect at the trial of a Portuguese priest in Mozambique, who had complained to authorities about the slaughter of the natives."

Priests of the Spanish Foreign Missions Seminary headquarters here have compiled a dossier on the Portuguese government's activities against the natives of Mozambique. In addition to detailing the deaths, injuries and tortures of hundreds of Africans at the hands of Portuguese and Rhodesian troops and Portuguese police, the dossier says that such operations have inspired "fear and terror among the Negro population" and that the natives "flee from their villages and seek refuge even in foreign countries across the border."

The dossier says: "The present moment in Mozambique — which we can only describe as tragic — represents nothing more than an explosion and the result of a long history of oppression, repression and violence, perpetrated on the black people by Portuguese colonialism in the name of western civilization and misnamed 'Christianity'."

Nolan Ryan throws second no hitter of '73 season

Ryan says no-hitter helped California

DETROIT (UPI) — Fireballing Nolan Ryan became the first pitcher in 20 years to throw two no-hitters in the same season Sunday, embellishing his superlative performance with 17 strikeouts to pitch the California Angels to a 6-0 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Ryan struck out 12 of the first 14 outs he got in the game to give early indication he would duplicate his May 15 no-hitter in Kansas City. He struck out 12 Royals and walked three in winning that game 3-0. Curiously enough, May 15 was also the date the last pitcher to hurl two no hit games in a season got the first of his, Virgil Trucks of Detroit no-hit Washington on that date and then came back on August 25 to no-hit the Yankees.

However, he took 203 strikeouts for the season into the game and the ones he got Sunday are believed to give him more at this stage of the season than any other pitcher has ever had. Sandy Koufax holds the record with 382 strikeouts in a season. The 17 strikeouts tied Ryan's personal high, which he set last season. The American League record of 18 was set by Hall of Famer Bob Feller in 1938.

Ryan gave up a bullet line drive by Gates Brown with one out in the ninth which Rudi Myslinski stabbed at shortstop without jumping and when he got Norm Cash on a high pop behind shortstop to end the game, he was given a standing ovation by the 41,411 fans who showed up on Cap Day.

DETROIT (UPI) — Nolan Ryan said "I really wanted it." He got it, too, his second no-hitter of the American League season, something only three other major league pitchers before him had done.

He pitched against other clubs like he has against us," Sims said. "I can't understand why he's 11-11."

"I was really excited about it. I wanted it more than the other one," Ryan said. "I've been through one before. I know what the pressure is like. I'd like to do it again. I definitely feel there's more pressure in a World Series game," Ryan said.

California scored five runs in the eighth against Detroit, no-hitter for the second time this year, which not only increased the score from 1-0 to 6-0 but also gave the California right-hander about 20 minutes more rest than he really wanted.

Oakland rallies for 8-5 victory

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Bill North's ninth-inning double drove in two runs and Reggie Jackson added a solo home run Sunday as the Oakland A's scored four runs in the ninth for a come-from-behind 8-5 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

before Dick Green and Bert Campaneris singled with one out prior to North's two-bagger. North doubled past third baseman Don Money to score Green and Campaneris and with two out Jackson hit his 20th home run into the right field bleachers.

Yankees blank Kansas City 2-0

NEW YORK (UPI) — Roy Wright, 5-1, and finished the eighth inning Sunday to pick up his 11th save of the year.

McDowell 4-1, allowed three hits while walking seven and fanning seven but Lyle pitched the ninth and allowed one hit to pick up his 24th save of the year.

Milwaukee nutter Chris Short, in relief of starter Jerry Reitz, struck 14 A's in order

Kolhe Pingers, who relieved John "Blue Moon" Odom in the third, held the Brewers scoreless the rest of the way to record his third victory against five losses. Short took the loss, his second against three triumphs.

Baltimore slips by White Sox

CHICAGO (UPI) — Baltimore erupted for three runs on four hits in the top of the sixth inning Sunday to back up Mike Cuellar's seven-hit pitching, as the Orioles went on to edge the Chicago White Sox 3-2.

Darrell Porter homered in the fourth for Milwaukee. His 25-foot belt into the Oakland bullpen in right-center scored George Scott, who moments before tripled to score Don Money and Johnny Briggs who had singled.

Cincinnati beats New York Mets 3-1

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds, scoring two of their runs in the fourth inning, beat the New York Mets, 3-1, Sunday to give left-hander Ross Grimsley his ninth victory against five losses.

Boise team runs off with crown

Nielsen North American Van Lines of Boise needed only five innings to drill Bengal Hut of Boise 13-3 in the finale Sunday and claim the Twin Falls slowpitch invitational championship.

Boise team runs off with crown

The White Sox scored in the first inning on single by Pat Kelly, Carlos May and Bill Metton.

Cincinnati beats New York Mets 3-1

Cuellar walked one and struck out nine, while coasting until the bottom of the eighth inning when May drove his ninth home run of the year with two outs.

Cincinnati beats New York Mets 3-1

The loss, his 11th of the season against seven victories, went to Met lefty Jon Matlack.

Boise team runs off with crown

The two powerhouses swept through the round robin tournament with 5-0 records during preliminary skirmishing Saturday and early Sunday. But Saturday night, the Boise crew ended the event unexpectedly easily. The game ended at the end of five innings due to the meet's 10-run lead regulation.

Los Angeles topples Chicago, sweeps series

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Willie Crawford slugged a three-run homer and double and Willie Davis added a two-run single and triple Sunday as the Los Angeles Dodgers pounded out a 9-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs and completed a sweep of the three-game series between the National League divisional leaders. By capturing their fifth victory in a row, the first place Dodgers maintained their seven-game bulge over San Francisco in the NL West. It is the largest advantage Los Angeles has enjoyed since winning the pennant in 1963.

Meanwhile the Cubs dropped their sixth in their last eight games. Though he yielded 10 hits, Dodgers' lefthander Claude Osteen went the distance to register his 11th victory in 16 decisions.

Rick Reuschel, who also entered the game with a 10-5 record, was tagged for six of the Los Angeles runs on nine hits in his six-inning stint to absorb the loss.

Chicago had built up an early 2-0 lead but the Dodgers exploded for five runs in the third inning to mark the 27th time they've come from behind to win this season.

With two out, Davis singled in the first two Los Angeles runs. Then, following a walk to Joe Ferguson, Crawford blasted his seventh homer of the season over the left field fence.

A single by Ferguson provided the Dodgers' with a run in the fifth and they scored three more times in the seventh off reliever Jack Aker.

Smith scores easy win over Orantes

BAASTAD, Sweden (UPI) — Top-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., easily defeated defending champion Manuel Orantes of Spain, 6-4, 6-1, 7-5, Sunday to pocket $8,000 for winning the $50,000 Baastad Tennis Grand Prix tournament.

Smith's strong serve, brilliant volley net-play and beautiful passing shots was too much for the Spanish southpaw, who earned second place money of $4,300.

The 26-year-old Smith, saying that he had played one of his best matches ever in Sweden, took just 15 minutes to win the second set.

Orantes, who won last year's final by taking the Nastase of Romania in straight sets, led only once through the entire match when he broke Smith's serve in the seventh game of the third set. But the lanky American sharpened his play and with two sizzling forehands and a slice backhand he broke back. Orantes managed to hold his two next serves but couldn't go down 7-3 in the tiebreak.

probably not as his best today," Smith said. Smith said that he felt like a Swede after winning three competitions here within a year. He won the Stockholm Open last November and the World Champions of Tennis Tournament in Goteborg earlier this year.

In the women's final, Britain's Glynnis Coles rallied to beat Swedish champion Christina Sandberg, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Namath reports to Jets camp

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — Quarterback Joe Namath reported to the New York Jets training camp at Hofstra University Sunday for his physical and received permission to leave pre-season headquarters to fulfill some TV commitments.

Namath, who weighed in at 205 pounds, passed his physical and orthopedic exams and, after an hour-long meeting with coach Ken Shipp, who is in charge of the passing game, departed for the West Coast. Namath last week was given permission by head coach Weeb Ewbank to report late along with three other players.

Rookie struck by pellet

THE OAKLAND RAIDERS have disclosed that rookie end Steve Sweeney from the University of California was struck July 10 by a super's pellet as he drove down a Modesto, Calif., street. Coach John Madden said Sweeney was struck by a heavy over-sized pellet which lodged in his skull over the left eye. Sweeney is shown during a workout at the Raider's camp. (UPI Telephoto).

Beman wins in Robinson open

ROBINSON, Ill. (UPI) — Deane Beman fought off a blistering challenge by three players in the final round Sunday to take a one-stroke, 13-under-par victory in the $25,000 Shrine-Robinson Open Golf Classic.

Beman said he played "very solid" golf and the way he's going now, "I can beat any course in the country."

He sank a 20-foot birdie putt on the second hole and he said that was the "key" to his round.

He ran 16-foot putts for a birdie on the ninth hole and a 3 1/2-footer on the third hole. He said the 510-yard fifth hole put him in the only danger of a bogey when he chipped on 15 feet beyond the cup.

But Beman averted the danger with a 2 1/2-foot putt.

Beman's first four-year win was the 1972 Quad-City Open. His other tour wins include the 1969 Texas Open and the 1970 Milwaukee Open.

Henry said he certainly could use the money he earned for the second place tie.

"One of my boys fell off a high dive and landed on his head on the concrete. Then my wife went to a hospital to have a baby," said Henry, who had won only $455 this year.

Phillies blank Houston 2-0

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Dave Roberts blanked the Phillies in a rain-shortened 5 1/2 inning game Sunday and the Houston Astros used RBI singles by Doug Rader and Bob Watson to post a 2-0 victory over Philadelphia.

Roberts, 37, has now beaten the Phillies eight straight times.

The Astros got Roberts a run in the third when Cesar Cedeno walked, stole second and scored on Rader's single up the middle. They added another run in the same manner in the fifth when Roger Metzger singled, stole second and scored on Watson's hit to left.

Rookie Erik Ruthven, now 38, took the loss.

TF swimmers win 2 rough water events

Twin Falls swimmers set a precedent by scoring a pair of firsts in the annual rough water swim Sunday at Dierke's Lake.

Kristine McFadden, in the eight and under girls class, ran away with that division, swimming approximately two-thirds of a mile and defeating everyone in the age group including boys. Later Dr. Jack McNeese and son Scott McNeese won the father-son combination race, breaking a five-year stranglehold on that event held by the Killpacks of Magna, Utah.

About 400 participated in the day-long event to climax a record-shattering Intermountain AAU tank test. The first two days were conducted at the Harmon Park swimming pool with the Pirate swim club of Magna running off with another team title.

If the entire meet was easily the largest ever held in the intermountain area," says Dr. McNeese, who started and still oversees the event.

McCovey, Marichal lead Giants to 12-0 victory

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Willie McCovey became the 15th major league player to reach the 400 homer plateau with two round-trippers and Juan Marichal pitched his first shutout since April 25 Sunday in leading the San Francisco Giants to a 12-0 rout over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

McCovey's bases empty homers paced a 15-Giant attack and gave him 17 for the season and 401 in his career.

Garry Maddox and Ed Goodson added two-run homers as the Giants piled up 10 hits off four Pirate pitchers.

Marichal spaced four hits for his seventh victory in 12 decisions. That gave him 27 career victories over Pittsburgh and 234 lifetime victories overall, one ahead of Bob Gibson of the Cardinals among active pitchers.

Bob Moose started for Pittsburgh and left after four innings with his ninth loss compared to six victories. He served up McCovey's first homer in the third and Willie greeted reliever Bob Johnson in the fifth with his second homer.

Marichal struck out six and walked only one batter. Only Richie Hebner with a leadoff double in the fifth got as far as second on the Giants' right-hander, who picked up his first victory since May 22.

Moose hit Tito Fuentes with one out in the first and Maddox followed with his sixth homer for a 2-0 lead. McCovey accounted for the next two runs with his homers and the Giants scored three more in the seventh on a walk, Goodson's homer, another walk, a hit batter and a single by Marichal after a double play.

San Francisco completed the rout with five more runs in the eighth off rookie Tom Dettore. Key hits were a two-run single by Gary Matthews, a two-run double by Mike Phillips and a run-scoring double by Bobby Bonds.

Cardinals edge San Diego 5-4

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Bernie Carbo doubled with two out in the top of the 15th inning Sunday, to drive in Ken Reitz from first base with the winning run as the St. Louis Cardinals outlasted the San Diego Padres, 5-4.

The win gave the Cardinals a sweep of the three-game series and moved them within two games of the first-place Chicago Cubs in the National League's Eastern Division.

Al Hrabosky, fifth St. Louis pitcher, worked the final two innings to pick up his first decision of the year. Mike Corbins, who entered the game in the 13th, was the loser. His record now is 3-6.

Corbins easily retired the first two batters to start the St. Louis 15th, then gave up a single to Reitz before Carbo, who came into the game as a pinch-hitter in the 13th, doubled over the head of Jerry Morales in left to produce the winning tally.

Morales sent the game into over-time with his fifth homer of the year to lead off the bottom of the ninth inning and tie the score 4-4.

The Padres put together four hits off starter Tom Murphy for a pair of runs in the sixth to narrow the deficit to 4-2 and Dave Roberts hammered out his fifth roundtripper in the eighth to cut the St. Louis lead to 4-3 before Morales walloped his tying homer to start the home half of the ninth.

Puttemans defeats Steve Prefontaine

LOUVAIN, Belgium (UPI) — World 5,000 meter record holder Emile Puttemans of Belgium defeated Steve Prefontaine of Eugene, Ore., and Olympic champion Lasse Viren of Finland in the 5,000-meter run Sunday, but a rain-soaked track prevented any great performances.

Olympic champion Dave Wottle of the U.S. Air Force had no trouble winning the 800-meter race in 1:50.4, the only other important international event in the meet.

Repeated showers during the day made the track "heavy" and it was clear from the start there was not going to be any records set at the Daring Club Stadium. A slight drizzle set in toward the end of the 6,000-meter race.

Belgian Andre De Hertoghe took the lead at the start of the race and set the pace for about half the distance. When the 1,500-meter specialist dropped back, Prefontaine and Puttemans took turns at the lead.

Prefontaine was leading as they went into the last lap, but Puttemans easily went past him in the straightaway to win by about 20 meters. Puttemans was clocked in 13 minutes, 30.6 seconds, more than 17 seconds over his world record 13:13.0.

Willy Van Den Wijnngaerden of Belgium set the pace during the first half of the 800-meter event, while Wottle hung back in fourth position.

Atlanta topples Montreal

ATLANTA (UPI) — Ron Schueler scattered five hits as the Atlanta Braves won their 11th game in their last 15 starts Sunday by beating the Montreal Expos 5-1.

The Braves broke the game wide open with five runs on five hits and three walks in the third inning. The key hit was Johnny Oates' single that drove in Schueler and Ralph Garr. At one point Schueler, 5-4, retired 12 batters in a row.

Montreal's run came on John Boccabella's fifth homer of the season in the seventh.

Frank Tepedino hit his second home run of the season in the fifth inning for Atlanta's final run.

Mike Torrez, 5-8, was the starter and loser for Montreal.

New type fish screen placed near Challis to save salmon

By JIM HUMBIRD

Idaho Fish Game Department

A new type of fish screen, capable of handling 150 cubic feet of water per second, was installed recently on a large irrigation canal near Challis by the Idaho Fish and Game Department. Within the next five years, 75 or 80 electric drive, rotary drum screens will be installed as replacements for existing louver and plate type screens. The new screens are adaptable only where electric power is available on-site, and where the water flow through canals is fairly deep and slow.

Fisheries people have known for a long time that many young salmon and steelhead on their way down to the ocean follow the current into irrigation water diversions and are lost. These downstream migrants swim until the water stops. Then they die in the mud—in the ditch channel, or in the field at the end of the flow. There is no way for them to get back into the mainstream.

In 1938, the United States Congress authorized a program designed to help perpetuate and increase salmon and steelhead production in the Columbia River drainage. The program was activated in 1948 with the states of Oregon and Washington participating. Prior to 1956, it was known as the Lower Columbia River Fishery Development Program and was limited to the Columbia River below McNary Dam. In 1956, the program was extended above McNary Dam and Idaho became a participant. Principal objectives of the program are to reintroduce lost runs, to improve spawning habitat, remove blocks to migration, construct hatcheries where needed and screen irrigation diversions.

During the past 15 years, 222 fish screens have been designed and installed in the Salmon River drainage, starting in 1958 on the Lemhi River with needed surveys and landholder easements. Since water is the life blood of irrigated agriculture, irrigators understandably were sensitive about anybody "monkeying" with their

Minnesota nips Cleveland 7-6

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Danny Thompson's one-out sacrifice fly to rightfield in the 10th inning scored pinchrunner Mike Adams Sunday and gave the Minnesota Twins a 7-6 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Adams entered the game as a pinchrunner for Tony Oliva, who walked to lead off the 10th. He took second when George Mitterwald walked and third on a walk to Jim Holt.

Successive eighth-inning home runs by George Mitterwald, Joe Lisk and Jim Holt gave the Twins a 6-5 lead but Buddy Bell singled home the tying run in the ninth. The homers, all off Gaylord Perry, erased a 5-3 lead supplied earlier in the inning on a three-run homer by George Hendrick, his 19th.

The game was a bizarre one in which both starting pitchers—Perry and winner Bert Blyleven—were subjected to towel rubs following accusations of applying foreign substances to the ball.

Howard collects state golf crown

CALDWELL, (UPI) — Shooting a one-under-par 70 Sunday, Boise golfer J. P. Howard won the Idaho state men's amateur golf tournament finishing the 54 holes at 206.

Behind him with a par-71 was Denny Howell, Pocatello, who had a total of 211 for the three-day mid-summer classic. Craig Griswold, Lake Oswego, Ore., also shot a 71 for a 54-hole total of 213 to take third place.

Defending champion Scott Masingill, Payette, an Oregon State University student, stayed in fourth place until the last, shooting a 72 for a 215 total. Boise's rodeo star Dean Oliver, who also shot a 72 on the last 18 holes at the Purple Sage Golf course here, wound up in fifth place at 216.

Dave Molitor, Boise, who shot previous rounds of 69 and seven-over-par 78, wound up with a 70 Sunday for a 217 total and sixth place, while Caldwell's Gordy Crockett had rounds of 71-76-71 for a total of 218 and seventh place.

Mike Sweet, Weiser, who shared fifth place Saturday with Oliver, ended up in a tie for seventh place with Crockett. Sweet shot a 74 on the final 18, to go with a pair of 72s for the first two rounds.

Comparisons are made between home run kings while Las Vegas gambles on record

By RED SMITH

(c) 1973 New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — While Henry Aaron toils in spooky pursuit of Babe Ruth in the race of the millennium, a house of worship in Las Vegas has cut itself in on the action. Anticipating the excitement that will be stirred when Henry closes in on the Babe's lifetime record of 714 home runs, Caesar's Palace has set up a guessing game in connection with the event. God-fearing citizens can win a free weekend in the American loursdes for self and companion by predicting (A) the date Aaron ties the record or (B) the date he breaks it. The contest closes Aug. 1, and if more than one seer picks the correct date for No. 714 or 715, the entry with the earliest postmark qualifies for three days of spiritual refreshment on Caesar's cuff.

As this is written, Aaron is still 19 home runs short of Ruth's total, and he has already inspired a formidable body of literature, some of which makes sense. On the other hand, some of the stuff written—well, you read things like a statement that the air in Atlanta is lighter than New York air, enabling the batter to drive a ball out of the Braves' playpen even when he gets only a piece of it. Trouble is, nobody ever tells us who weighed the air.

You also read that if the Yankees had played in the Polo Grounds instead of moving to Yankee Stadium in 1923, Ruth would have hit 800 or 1,000 home runs. This is an argument stoutly defended by characters who never saw the Polo Grounds and are misled by the knowledge that the right field foul line measured 258.

The fact is, the stands in Yankee Stadium are a much more attractive target than the seats were in the Polo Grounds, and that is no accident. The stadium was expressly designed as a showcase for the Babe's special talents. Though a popfly could reach the Polo Grounds seats if it was "just inside the foul line, the fences slanted away abruptly to a depth of 475. In the stadium, the entire right field section clear out beyond the bullpen is in range for a left-handed pull hitter.

In his three seasons in the Polo Grounds, Ruth hit 54, 59 and 35 home runs. With the Stadium as his home, he hit 60 one summer and more than 40 every full season until 1933, his 20th year in the majors. That summer he got only 34.

Baseball people have always taken an innocent, child-like pleasure in speculating about what this or that player might have done if he had played at another time in another league or for another team in another city. When Joe McCarthy managed the Yankees, he was asked whether he agreed that Ted Williams would have broken Ruth's home-run record if he had been based in Yankee Stadium instead of Boston's Fenway Park.

Lou Gehrig didn't. Joe said The Stadium was Gehrig's home park for 17 seasons, and nobody could hit a ball farther than Lou. Except Ruth.

It has been pointed out that some parks in the American League today are bigger than some were in the 1920's, that Ruth didn't have to play at night or suffer jet-lag after transcontinental flights. These would be minor considerations for a guy who hit the ball across county lines, who slept only when there was nothing else to do, and who consumed his full ration of prohibition booze, burning feathers in his mouth for a chaser.

In the continuing comparisons of the job Ruth did and the job Aaron is doing, the matter of racial slurs comes up. "Ruth never got letters beginning, 'Dear Nigger,'" it is said. That is more or less true, but not quite so true as most people think.

Babe never bore the black man's burden, but when bench jockeys wanted to score heavily they called him "nigger." The cast of his features and his vague family background made this insensitive man acutely sensitive about that epithet. The Giants made capital of this during the World Series of 1922.

That was a hard time for the Babe in more ways than one. The series went five games, and the best the Yankees got was one tie. Ruth hit one double and one single for a batting average of .118. After the third game, a 3-0 shutout, he and Bob Meusel barged into the Giants clubhouse where the Babe singled out Johnny Rawlings, a reserve infielder.

"If you ever call me that again," he was saying, when Frank Frisch spoke up. "Ruth is trying to get his name in the papers. He knows the reporters are here and he has to do something, the way he's hitting."

Ruth looked around and saw half a dozen newspapermen. He was genuinely dismayed. "Please, guys," he said, "don't write about this." He and Meusel retreated in haste.

"I'm sorry this happened," Babe said at the door. "I don't mind being called a — or a —" he used two obscenities that would curl Bowie Kuhn's hair. "But lay off that personal stuff."

He left the Giants howling.

TF wins Little League tourney

McClusky wins at Twin 200

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich. (UPI) — Roger McClusky, who lost the Pocono 500 on July 1 when he ran out of gas while leading on the last lap, won the championship car half of the Twin 200 at Michigan International Speedway Sunday with a 24.4 second victory over Johnny Rutherford.

McClusky, second in his last two United States Auto Club championship starts at Milwaukee and Pocono, averaged 161.146 miles an hour in winning his division of the Twin 200.

The Tucson, Ariz., wheelman said he tried not to think about the amount of gas he had in his tank this time, "although those things do go through your mind."

The pit strategy went flawlessly for McClusky, whose crew didn't bobble once over the 200-mile route. Pole sitter Bobby Unser, who set a track qualifying record of 204.487, retired with a blown engine on the 73rd lap.

McClusky collected $17,250 for the win. Rutherford got $9,245 for second and Billy Vukovich, runner up to Gordon Johncock in the rain-shortened Indianapolis classic this year, took $5,236 for third.
