Law firm's ethics probed after Pomerelle mishap

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho State Bar Association has forwarded "some information," including sworn affidavits, to the California Bar regarding possible unethical activities in the Magic Valley in behalf of a California law firm.

The information involves possible solicitation of clients following the New Year's Day ski lift accident at Pomerelle Ski Resort which injured at least 19 persons.

Tom Nelson, Twin Falls, president-elect of the Idaho Bar, said the Bar has investigated reported activities involving the California firm.

"We came into possession of some information" concerning the firm "which we forwarded to the California State Bar," he said.

When asked if the "information" related to possible solicitation of clients for the California firm, Nelson said, "We did get some information like that."

Nelson stressed, however, that the information has not been validated.

Information was sent to the California Bar on two occasions, according to Nelson, once in March and again "recently."

He confirmed reports that the information forwarded included signed affidavits from persons who said they were contacted in behalf of the California law firm.

Solicitation of clients is a violation of the code of ethics followed by bar association members in nearly all states, including Idaho and California.

Proof of such an infraction can result in disbarment of the violator. Disbarment deprives an attorney of legal status and privileges.

According to the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility, "A lawyer shall not recommend employment, as a private practitioner, of himself, his partner, or associate to a non-lawyer who has not sought his advice regarding employment of a lawyer."

The code also states, "A lawyer shall not recommend, furnish, or pay for legal services to promote the use of his services or those of his partners or associates."

The specific instances following the Pomerelle mishap involve reports that a man who said he was an "accident investigator" or "insurance investigator" had recommended employment of the California firm. The "investigator" reportedly left the California firm's business card and legal retainer agreements with potential clients.

One of the persons injured in the Pomerelle accident and the father of another have told the Times-News they were contacted by the "investigator," who gave them the business card of the law firm. The father said he recommended, furnishes, or pays for legal services to promote the use of his services or those of his partners or associates."

One of the persons injured in the Pomerelle accident and the father of another have told the Times-News they were contacted by the "investigator," who gave them the business card of the law firm. The father said he given a blank retainer agreement with the law firm's name printed on it when the "investigator" paid an unsolicited visit to him.

Both persons said they had not initiated contact with the man.

Tauna Root, Pocatello, said she was contacted by a man while she was hospitalized following the accident. The man called himself an "accident investigator," she said.

She said the man asked her if she had "thought about" legal counsel.

She also said the man displayed a business card and said, "I can't give you this card until you ask for it."

"Okay, give me the card" was her reply, she said.

Ehrlichman claims Dean 'spun tales'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John D. Ehrlichman testified today that John W. Dean III was "spinning tales" when he swore that executive clemency had been offered the seven original Watergate conspirators with President Nixon's approval. Ehrlichman, the balding Seattle lawyer who was one of Nixon's closest advisers, until this spring, said he certainly had not sought such a promise from Nixon nor had he passed along assurances that clemency would be forthcoming — as Dean has testified.

Calm and self-assured in his second day before the Senate Watergate Committee, Ehrlichman said that to the contrary, Nixon had given strict orders as far back as last July that there should be no discussion of clemency for the men convicted in the June 17, 1972, raid on Democratic offices at the Watergate.

"The President wanted no one in the White House to get into this whole area of clemency with anyone involved in this case and surely not to give them any assurances," Ehrlichman said.

He said he suspected that Dean — fired as White House counsel on April 30, the same day that Ehrlichman resigned from Nixon's staff with the President's highest praise — was trying to cover his own tracks when he testified at the nationally televised Senate hearings about the clemency offers.

"I'm speculating, rankly speculating," Ehrlichman said. "I don't know if that's what happened or not. But it certainly occurred to me as I watched John Dean spinning these tales."

He also said that neither he nor Nixon had expressly authorized the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist — but defended the burglary as necessary and proper to defend national security.

On another matter, Ehrlichman denied — as Dean has testified — that he had ordered the destruction of documents removed from the White House safe of E. Howard Hunt soon after Hunt's arrest in connection with the Watergate break-in.

Dean had testified that Ehrlichman instructed him to "deep six" the documents — throw them over the side of a bridge into the Potomac River.

"I would not have and did not propose the destruction of those documents," Ehrlichman said.

War barred

NEW YORK (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Orrin Judd Wednesday granted a permanent injunction barring U.S. forces from conducting military operations in Cambodia.

He stayed the operation of his injunction, requested by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., to Friday at 4 p.m. to give the government time in which to file an appeal in the 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals.

Judd said he issued his injunction on grounds that Congress had not authorized such military activity.

Environment study OK'd. for canyon

TWIN FALLS — Environmental impact studies may be required for developments in the Snake River Canyon under the new Twin Falls County zoning ordinance.

County zoners Tuesday agreed to include the impact study provision for all developments in outdoor recreation (OR) zones of the county, including the Snake River Canyon, Shoshone Creek, the Cedar Creek Reservoir, Salmon Creek and the Salmon Creek Reservoir.

The action was taken after the League of Women Voters (LWV) submitted an impact study proposal.

I. James Koutnik chairman of the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission, said the impact study requirement "will be good if it is used constructively and not to impede developments."

He said the study will be required only when a proposed development appears "questionable."

LWV spokesman agreed with Koutnik concerning use of the impact study requirement. "We hope this will be used only when there is an apparent need," the spokesman said.

Koutnik said the study would add between $5,000 and $6,000 to costs of the developers.

According to the LWV proposal, the impact study will show "potential effects" of developments on the county's economy, public facilities and environment.

The proposal asked that an impact study be considered for all developments, including planned unit developments (PUD)

Action pledged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman of the House Interior Subcommittee on Water and Power Resources has informed Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, that he intends to take up legislation to authorize replacement of American Falls Dam "as soon as I can work out the schedule."

Rep. Harold T. Johnson, D-Calif., made the commitment in a letter to Church, who is chairman of the Senate Interior Subcommittee on Water and Power Resources.

Church asked Johnson to schedule the hearings on the American Falls Dam legislation in a letter July 9.

Johnson said while the House subcommittee would not be able to schedule field hearings in Idaho and subsequent consideration in Washington before the August congressional recess "I do have every intention of getting down to work on the matter as soon as possible after the break."

June food cost zooms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department's "market basket" — which shows how much it would cost to feed a typical family for a year — went up $24 to a record $1,517 in June.

This was $214 — or $4.14 a week — higher than June, 1972.

The "market basket" calculation covers an assortment of domestically-produced foods needed to feed a hypothetical family of 3.2 persons.

The Agriculture Department's report, released Tuesday, said that between May and June this year the "market basket" price paid to farmers went up $37, but middlemen absorbed $13 of that increase by cutting their profit margins, leaving only the $24 increase paid by consumers.

Supreme Court action on tapes may be swift

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Based on past instances where it has been called on to deal with momentous constitutional issues, the Supreme Court presumably will move swiftly to decide the White House tapes controversy — if the issue remains unresolved.

Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., vice chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, says the matter could reach the high court in three weeks. A committee consultant, George Washington law professor Arthur S. Miller, said the matter can be settled in 60 days.

But even if the court should rule against President Nixon — that is, say he should not continue to refuse to let the Senate committee or Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox hear the tapes — there is no way to tell whether the President would abide by the decision.

Gerald L. Warren, deputy White House press secretary, was asked about this Tuesday. He called it a "hypothetical question" and declined to respond directly. "This is a very complex legal question," Warren said. "I can't speculate. There will be a continuing study by the White House counsel's office."

The President contends that he cannot preserve the power and prerogatives of the Presidency by yielding to requests by the Senate committee and by Cox for access to the tapes of his Watergate conversations. Nixon says they fall in the category of confidential presidential papers.

Unless a compromise of some kind can be reached — and statements by Nixon and his aides so far appear to rule that out — the case could fall into the Supreme Courts lap six weeks before it is scheduled to return from summer vacation, Oct. 1.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger could then call a special term, although he is among those against "unseemly haste" in important matters. He used that term in an opinion issued in 1971 in the Pentagon Papers case just six days from the time the issue reached the court.

In that case, the Court ruled against the government, which had blocked publication in newspapers of Pentagon papers documenting secret decisions underpinning Vietnam war decisions.

If Burger calls a special term on the presidential tapes, he and other members of the Court could insist on more time for consideration — which is virtually new to American jurisprudence.

Freeze worked in TF

By JOCELYN CLOWARD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Phase 3½ price freeze on food apparently worked while it lasted.

Food prices which had been rising at a rate of about two per cent per month were held to almost no rise during the first month of the freeze.

A Times-News survey of Twin Falls grocery store prices showed prices rose by about one-fifth of one per cent during the first month of the freeze, from mid-June to mid-July.

Despite the temporary slowdown in food price increases, federal officials have said they expect a sharp increase in food price levels since the removal of the food price freeze on July 18.

The newspaper survey showed produce costs in the list rose at 6.4 per cent during the month, while meat costs rose 3.9 per cent and the cost of staples fell by 3.7 per cent.

Produce costing $1.00 June 15, cost $1.07 July 18; meat $1.04, and staples .96 cents.

A basket of groceries costing $10 June 15 cost $10.02 July 18. That cost was expected to soar during the early weeks of Phase IV price controls.

So far during 1973, the Times-News price survey shows groceries costing $10 at the beginning of the year, cost $10.25 Feb. 1, $10.39 a month later, $10.83 April 1, $10.76 May 1 and $11.14, June 1. Costs dropped to $11.06 June 15, rose to $11.15 July 3, and were $11.08 July 18.

Only the prices of raw farm products were not controlled by ceilings under Phase 3½.

After the price freeze lift and establishment of Phase IV controls, beef is the only food item now controlled by ceilings lasting until Sept. 12.

The suit also asks $300 to cover damage to the plaintiffs' vehicle.

Nixon must reveal list

(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — After a prolonged fight, the Nixon campaign has agreed to reveal the names of the donors in its $20 million secret fundraising drive last year.

A federal judge has accepted a compromise offer to file the names with the clerk of the House and has set a Sept. 28 deadline.

The $20 million list, when finally made public, is expected to range from such rich contributors as the Rockefeller family to a 33-year-old computer whiz kid now soured on Nixon's second term.

But the chief discovery may come in learning which business firms, such as International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., had executives who made large donations for Nixon in the secret drive.

Both American Airlines and Ashland Oil have admitted in recent days that they made illegal contributions of corporate funds, "laundered" as cash through foreign countries. The Nixon campaign collected up to $2 million in cash from various sources in that secret period.

ITT is thought to be among the firms that used the legal method of delivering personal donations made by top officials. Several ITT executives have acknowledged making contributions at that time last year, while the firm was embroiled in a Senate antitrust controversy.

The $20 million — approaching half of the $55 million total raised for Nixon last year — was gathered in a rush effort before a tough new disclosure law took effect in April 1972.

The court order to identify all the donors came after a year-long battle by the reform lobby, Common Cause.

State decision could mean $40,000 loss for CSI

By JOCELYN CLOWARD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A decision by the Idaho Board of Education, if applied to the College of Southern Idaho, could mean loss of up to $40,000 in sophomore tuition each year.

The state board ruled last week that student residency at state colleges and universities under the board's jurisdiction may be established after one year as a student, providing other qualifications are met.

The language of the board's ruling left in doubt whether the state's junior colleges are included.

According to Milton Small, director of the Idaho Office of Higher Education, the state board did not consider the junior college districts when it made its decisions because the districts do not come under the board's control.

The board of education had said it made the determination on residency following court decisions which overruled Idaho statutes on residency, referring specifically to a U. S. Supreme Court decision in a Connecticut case which said a college cannot classify a resident as a non-resident student.

The decision applies to students who have been physically present in Idaho one year while attending college.

Students who could be affected at the College of Southern Idaho are those second-year students who now pay out-of-district tuition because they live outside Twin Falls or Jerome counties which make up the junior college district.

CSI officials say that 206 students were enrolled last year from out-of-the-district, but there was no information to show how many were second-year students.

CS' president James L. Taylor said Tuesday, "The fact is, a substantial number of court cases have tended to do away with the concept of residency for tuition purposes."

However, Dr. Taylor said, "I don't think at this time we have too much to worry about at the junior colleges in Idaho until we change existing state law."

He referred to Idaho law which makes it mandatory for counties not participating in junior college districts to pay a portion of tuition costs for students from their counties attending state junior colleges.

"We've been confronted with the residency problem for a good long while," Dr. Taylor said. "We've always asked a student to attest to his county of residency, but we haven't had the police power to go out and check."

"All residency questions tie in with voting qualifications, too," Dr. Taylor said.

"We have to follow the dictates of the courts," he said. "Already in Idaho there have been several residency cases. We'll be watching the question very closely."

The board's resolution established several criteria as evidence for a residency application: employment; ownership of property; continuous residence during periods when not enrolled as a student; acceptance of future employment; voting; payment of taxes, state driver's license and vehicle registration; and physical presence for one year or more immediately preceding registration.

Previously, under Idaho law, students, even though attending college full time, have not been allowed to establish residency while a student.

CSI records showed that four out-of-state students were registered at the college during the 1972-73 school year, and 206 out-of-district students were from other Idaho counties outside of Twin Falls and Jerome counties.

However, CSI officials could not say how many of these students were second year students, the classification named by the state board as eligible to establish residency. Presumably, if county residency became a tuition issue, the second year ruling might also be applied.

According to Carl Black, business manager at CSI, students from Jerome and Twin Falls counties pay $62.50 per semester for tuition. Students from all other counties in Idaho are charged $360 per semester, $240 of which is paid by their counties of residency, leaving $120 to be paid by each student personally.

Out of state students pay the whole $360 per semester fee, Black said.

Assuming that one third of the students at CSI might be second-year students, up to 69 students might then apply for residency status within Twin Falls and Jerome counties.

If granted residency, the students would then pay a total of $4,312 in tuition fees to the college each semester. The same number of students now listed as resident students would bring $24,040 to the college per semester in tuition fees, which they pay personally, and $16,560 paid by their home counties.

The loss to the college of tuition funds per semester would be $20,528, if those students were listed as residents.

Ben Glauner, chairman of the Gooding County Commission, when asked about the possible transfer of residency of Gooding County students attending CSI said, "I don't like these decisions very well; a county might thus way become involved in something that it couldn't handle."

However, Glauner said Gooding County had few problems with students attending CSI.

"It's been a very good thing for the kids in our county to go over to Twin Falls. We're satisfied with the way things have been," he said. "But if students were permitted residency in another county, then of course I don't think we should pay for them."

Cassia County commissioner J. Weldon Beck said the possibility of residency transfer for students into Twin Falls and Jerome counties for tuition purposes, "wouldn't be a very fair deal at all."

"Each county ought to take care of its own," Beck said. "Actually it would be better to have everyone pay his own way."

"If county residency can be changed for students, it could probably be changed for geriatrics patients and others too. Schools and hospitals would be affected," he said, "and the burden would be on populated areas."

John Hepworth, chairman of the CSI Board of Trustees, said that the college was in "a little different situation" from the four-year colleges. However, he said, "It's entirely possible that an out-of-county student changing residence could affect county contributions."

But, Hepworth said, "I don't feel that it's going to have any dramatic impact."

The statute now amended by the board, Idaho Code 33-3713, Tuition at State Colleges and Universities not Required, says in Section 2 (b) "No student shall be deemed to have gained residency while attending any college or university in the state of Idaho."

However, Section 6 of the same act says, "Nothing contained in this act shall apply to junior colleges..."

McClure urges truths

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho's Junior Senator Tuesday charged that the American people are being deceived and misled over the nature and extent of the nation's fuel shortages.

Sen. James McClure, in a speech before the Senate, warned that "if we are to avoid crippling economic, environmental and social disruptions, it is essential that the hard, cold facts concerning our energy crisis be told."

McClure said that paramount among those "hard, cold facts" are that the present energy shortages are very real, and that well-intentioned but impractical responses to environmental questions are in good measure to blame.

He said there is a need for re-examination of national environmental goals and legislation beginning with the clean air act amendments of 1970.

According to McClure, the environmental strictures on sulphur content of industrial oils and coal have caused massive amounts of diesel and No. 2 fuel oils to be diverted to industry and public utilities, creating shortages in agriculture, transportation and home heating.

He called for "selective, temporary relaxation" of the sulphur content standards for fuels in areas where human health would not be threatened in order to avoid a fuel oil crisis this winter.

Tourists won't forget TF visit

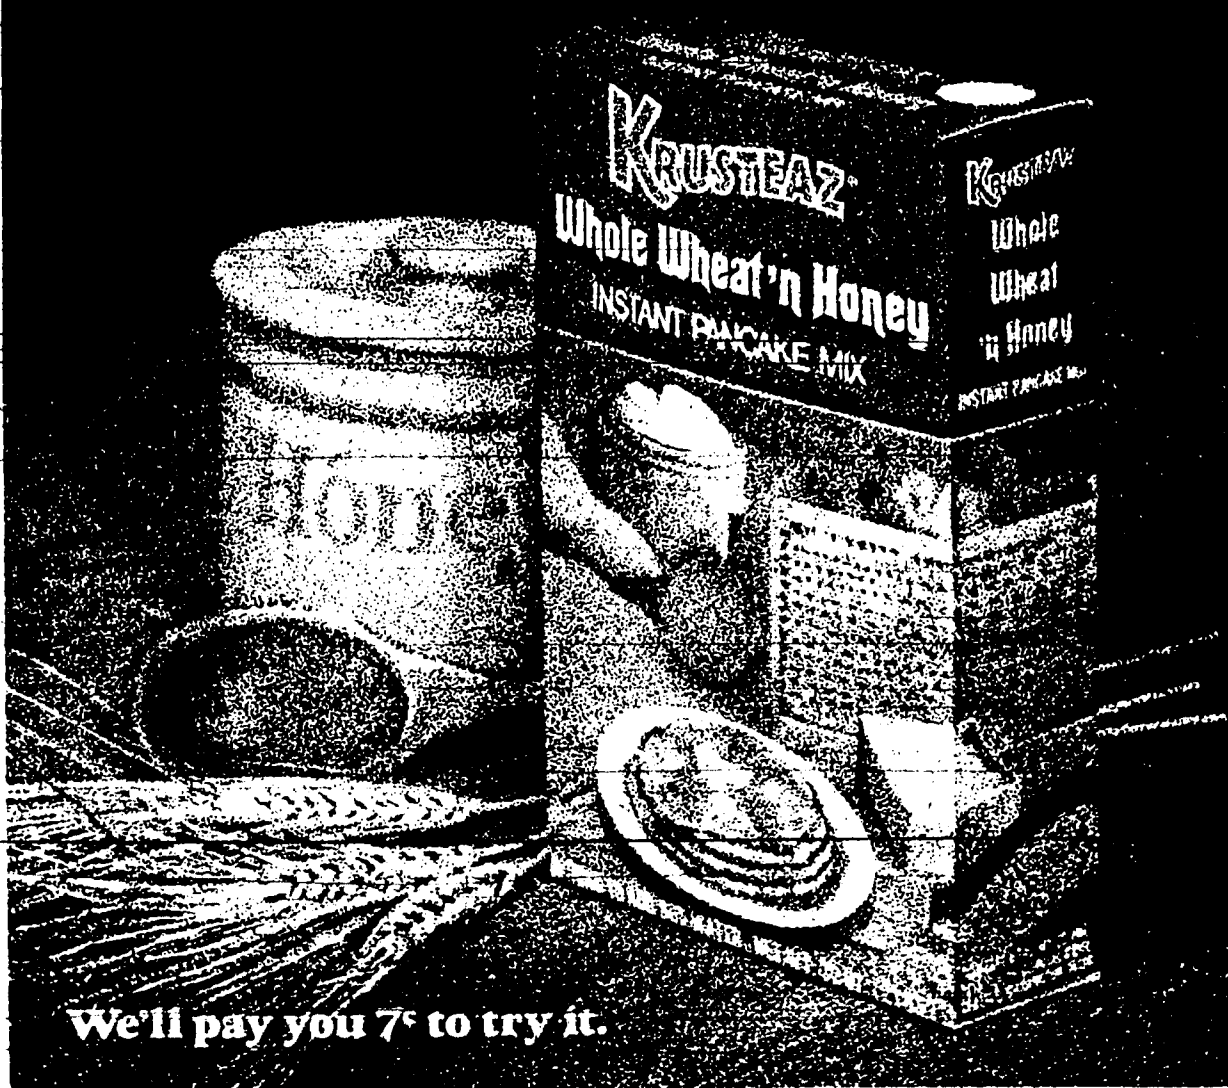

TWIN FALLS — A tourist family from South Dakota will have something to remember about their overnight stay in Twin Falls.

Burglars took an estimated $600 in luggage, clothing and personal articles from the luggage carrier atop the car of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Koppel, Dixon, S. D., city police reported.

Officers said the family stopped at a motel on Kimberly road and checked in near midnight, taking only the luggage they needed for the night. When they prepared to leave this morning they discovered two large pieces of luggage and a box of shoes had been taken from the luggage carrier on top of their car.

The luggage contained clothing for various members of the family, a purse containing $13 in cash and a number of souvenirs as well as six rolls of exposed film. Investigation is continuing.

Nixon Is Ready To Counterattack

(c) Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — The Nixon Administration has signaled its intention to counterattack against critics of its credibility, its handling of the economy and the dollar problem, and of Presidential leadership.

President Nixon himself sounded the trumpet of defiance by declaring he intends to ignore those who "wallow in Watergate" and to resume his White House duties "full tilt all the way."

Giving the back of his hand to his doctors, Nixon told a gathering of the White House staff in the Rose Garden, "No one in this great office at this time in the world's history can slow down. This office requires a President who will work right up to the hilt all the time."

Nixon dismissed the idea that his illness would cause him to consider resigning, calling it "poppycock."

It was his first function after a week in the hospital with viral pneumonia, and while it started out as an avuncular statement of gratitude to the staff, it ended with clear notice that he intends to brazen out the Watergate allegations and other problems swirling in on him.

The latter include charges that reports of bombing in Cambodia had been falsified, doubts raised about the appointment of William Colby as director of the Central Intelligence Agency, and widespread criticism of his Phase IV anti-inflation program.

White House spokesmen said the President's schedule will be a full one of meetings with the cabinet and the congressional leadership.

One sign of the Administration's determination to fight for restored confidence came from Chairman Herbert Stein of the President's council of economic advisers. He told newsmen that one of the paradoxes of the times was the divergence between skyrocketing food prices and the "economy's real condition."

"I know that it infuriates some people to say it," Stein said, "but the American consumer is not suffering, the American businessman is not suffering, the working man is not suffering, and the farmer least of all is not suffering."

Stein also disputed a reporter's question that the international situation was "grave." He said the dollar was "down" but not disastrously so and that the balance of trade was improving. "We're not in dire straits internationally," he said.

He said the devaluation of the dollar has removed the threat of "restrictionism" in this country and pointed toward freer trade and more open international commerce. "We don't like the decline of the dollar, of course, but let's not overstate it," he said. "The danger is prospective, problematical and only of marginal significance to the American people."

Stein said the reported decline in the gross national product from an 8.7 per cent annual figure in the first quarter to 2.9 per cent in the three months ending in June was "something of a mystery." He said it was probably "an exaggeration," and predicted a satisfactory rate of real growth in the third and fourth quarters on 1973.

He said the ingredients of a recession were nowhere in sight, that there was no "credit crunch" and that the liquidity position of most businesses was good.

While Stein reiterated that prices, especially of food, would go up in the next several months, they would become stable. As for controls, he said, "We expect this thing will end. There has been no price control system in the Western World that didn't end."

The President, in obvious references to the consequences of the Watergate investigation, said he was quoting his "Ohio father" in describing as "just plain poppycock" any suggestion that "this President is ever going to slow down while he is President or is ever going to leave this office until he continues to do the job and finishes the job he was elected to do."

when he said, "we are going to stay on this job until we get the job done."

"When events being printed and televised are put in the perspective of 'the ages' and the world, he said, the 'great decisions' made in the oval office would determine whether there will be peace and whether the United States can have 'prosperity without war and without inflation.'"

He ended by ticking off such goals as reducing crime, combating dangerous drugs and providing opportunity for all Americans, and adding: "There are these and other great causes that we were elected overwhelmingly to carry forward in November of 1972."

"And what we were elected to do, we are going to do, and let others wallow in Watergate, we are going to do our job."

The President spent several hours Monday in the White House conferring with top aides before driving to Camp David, accompanied by his old Florida friend, Charles (Bebe) Rebozo.

Soul Searching

The press, which has been wrestling with problems of ethical standards and regulation of the profession since well before Vice President Agnew, is going to have to make room on its worry bench for newcomers.

It is being joined by, of all professions, the law. In the fallout from Watergate, the legal profession has been doing some soul-searching at seeing so many of its own, including a former attorney general, involved in the affair, some admitting to or charged with actual criminal acts.

The new president of the American Bar Association, Chesterfield Smith, is calling for a tightening of professional discipline, including establishment of a national watchdog unit. And it is likely that overhauling of disciplinary machinery in most states initiated by a 1970 Supreme Court study of the problem will be accelerated.

But the questions of how and how much to regulate are not easily answered, legal spokesmen point out. Law, although a public interest, is practiced by private individuals. Regulation can impinge upon such basic constitutional rights as due process and free speech, on sacred traditions such as confidentiality and freedom of choice, and numerous other considerations peculiar to the profession, the importance of which often may be fully understood only by those within it.

It should all sound familiar to the press. Welcome to the bench.

The Thieves

Consumers who think high prices these days amount to robbery are closer to the truth than they may think.

Theft actually adds between 15 and 30 per cent to the cost of every article purchased in retail outlets, merchandisers estimate.

The thefts come in two forms — shoplifting and pilfering. And the latter, theft by a firm's own employees, is by far the most prevalent and costly. In one investigation of massive inventory losses in a major department store chain, old-fashioned shoplifters accounted for only 25 per cent. The rest of the chain's losses were at the hands of its own employees.

Since department stores are not organized as philanthropic institutions, the bill for thefts is not absorbed but is passed along to customers. An expert in the field, Guardsmark, Inc., a major private security service, estimates the bill, the total annual loss through employee pilfering, at a minimum $5 billion and probably closer to $15 billion.

While occasional, and usually petty, pilfering is wide-spread, only a small percentage of employees — estimated at 7 to 8 per cent — steal systematically. But these are responsible for most of the losses.

Pilfering has spurred the growth of a new industry, the professional security service which has largely replaced the local store detective in large enterprises. The services bring greater sophistication to the task — trained personnel, electronic surveillance devices, scientifically devised screening and hiring procedures — but at a cost which, since stores are not philanthropic

It is indeed a problem, most of all for the consumer who one way or the other ends up paying for the high cost of pilfering.

The Doctor Says

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was told by a relative that the cause of arthritis has been found, but because it is venereal disease, the information is not being publicized. Is there any truth to this, or is it just another one of the stories that goes around? — J. P.

There is some truth to it — but V. D. isn't "the cause of arthritis." There isn't any single cause.

Your relative undoubtedly referred to some interesting, but also somewhat frightening, information which emerged from the meeting of the Arthritis Foundation in Pittsburgh not long ago.

There are many forms of arthritis, and one of them is "gonococcal arthritis," which is caused by the same germ that causes gonorrhea, the most prevalent of the venereal diseases.

Dr. Frank R. Schmid of Northwestern University warned that this type of arthritis comes on suddenly and can cause extremely rapid destruction of joints if it is not treated as quickly as possible.

The amount of this type of arthritis seems to be increasing rapidly, which sounds reasonable enough since we already know, beyond any doubt, that venereal disease is spreading out of control.

If the disease is treated soon enough, it stops both the gonorrhea and the arthritis, but the unhappy aspect is that it is much more prevalent in women than in men. This is because, as I've pointed out often in this column, gonorrhea most of the time is promptly obvious in males, but may go undetected in females.

This form of arthritis sometimes is hard to diagnose, Dr. Schmid said, and he added that it often is preceded by an odd type of rash. Once the disease is suspected, it's short work to make a test for the gonococcus germ.

Not everyone who gets gonorrhea also gets this dangerous type of arthritis.

giving rise to the suspicion that there is more than one form of germ, or ailment, involved. Be that as it may, your relative got part of the story right, and it needs to be publicized.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Recently I was told I needed an operation to remove cataracts from my eyes. I'm 53.

A health book I was reading mentioned exercises and referred to a certain school. I sent for literature and was told I could purchase the kit for $80 (or visit the school) and do eye exercises that would remove the cataracts non-surgically. I would appreciate any information on this. — Mrs. R. C.

There are no exercises that will remove cataracts, any more than there are any exercises that will remove freckles, or warts, or tumors, or scars.

Since you can see well enough to read this "health book," you can see well enough so this "school" probably can kid you along for a few months. Meantime they'll have your $60.

Better save your money for the operation when you realize that cataracts don't go away by exercises. Or anything else except, at the appropriate time, surgery.

Low blood sugar — a puzzler until correctly identified — is often the cause of faintness, headaches, visual and emotional disturbances. To learn how it can be identified and brought under control, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper for a copy of his booklet, "Help For Hypoglycemia," enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated into his column whenever possible.

MR. SPECTATOR

It Would Cost

The realization is coming to many that it is impossible to do something for nothing financially that is!

For instance, there has been — and is — a lot of talk about getting rid of all those wires which run up and down the back of most town lots and even along the front streets in some cases. Some are power lines and some telephone lines and some Cable-TV lines.

Well, in an effort to find out if it was feasible to bury these lines, we did some calling. We didn't make contact on the first two calls — one to Cable TV and the other to the Telephone Company, but on the Idaho Power call we did better and got hold of Earl Haroldson, who is the utility's southern division manager.

Mr. Haroldson said that estimated cost of burying Idaho Power Company's low-voltage residential distribution lines would be $938 million — or more than $5,000 for each of its customers. That amount is just about double the value of the company's entire power-supply system and would have to be reflected in substantially increased rates.

Also, there is a problem in underground construction of long transmission lines operating at high voltages. There has been extensive research on the problem but as of now this is not economically feasible.

New underground main feeder services in residential areas cost about six times as much as overhead, the power company official said, and conversion of existing overhead distribution lines to underground service about eight times as much.

The company, he said, recommends underground service for new residential developments because installation of buried lines is far more economical before laws, driveways and the like are completed. About 10,000 customers are now served through low-voltage underground installations but it would be beyond reasoning to try and replace the entire system.

Just thought you might like to know that — and think about it the next time you look at the overhead wires.

Come now, you who say, "Today or tomorrow we will go into such and such a town and spend a year there and trade and get gain", whereas you do not know about tomorrow. What is your life? For you are a mist that appears for a little time and then vanishes. — James 4:13, 14.

Future Prices

WASHINGTON — If this country is to have any measure of price stability in the years ahead, some far-reaching agreements with other nations will have to be made to answer the following nagging questions now plaguing administration planners:

As the United States becomes more heavily dependent on greater supplies of Middle East oil, what happens to the multibillions of excess dollars in the hands of a few small countries?

Will they be used speculatively to drive the dollar down at irregular intervals?

Will they be used for heavy investment in the United States and for control of some important segments of the oil distribution system in this nation? Will this oil dependency enable these Middle East lands to drive the cost of gasoline and fuel oil up to intolerable levels?

As our unfavorable balance of trade continues, will the large supply of dollars accumulating in foreign hands induce periodic speculation on the U.S. and world commodity and securities markets on a scale which will make price stability in this country almost impossible?

Prices of wool, rubber, nonferrous metals and other commodities were thus driven up heavily by speculation by foreign operators in recent years.

Must the American consumer pay through the nose in the form of serious inflation for periodic worldwide crises in food and agriculture production — as when this country, as in 1972, makes up for crop failures in a dozen countries at once?

Last year's heavy demand on U.S. wheat by Russia and other countries and the effect on wheat prices is well known. Though the present outlook for U.S. wheat is good, with expectations for a considerable increase over 1972, a world shortage of rice makes certain a continued heavy demand for wheat.

The world supply of feed proteins became critical in 1972 when the Peruvian fish harvest dropped sharply, fishmeal being the world's richest source of protein feed. Early this year Peru suspended fishing for anchovies for a period not yet clearly defined.

This has put a heavy load on feeds.

Within the past year, cotton prices have been driven up by heavy foreign bidding.

U.S. lumber prices have gone up sharply. How much higher would they have skyrocketed had the large increase in lumber imports last year not been possible?

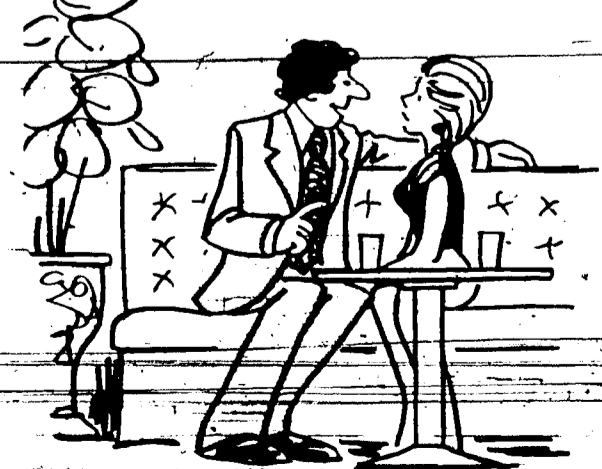

During the decade ahead then, how is this country to insure a flow of essential commodities and raw materials at reasonable prices — reasonable enough, that is, to not force unbearable inflation?

How can this country help to assure some sort of insurance against worldwide crop failures so serious they drive food prices out of sight and cause starvation in many places?

There is a great deal of talk these days about agreements to help maintain the stability of the dollar, and proposals for some new type of international currency system. But out basic underlying problem is the growing shortage of a wide variety of commodities.

This is the issue which must be solved if we are to bring inflation under control.

US power share balance improves

By SHIRLEY ELDER
(c) Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — President Nixon, whether as a casualty of Watergate or simply of the times, is presiding over a government that is slowly settling into a more balanced system of shared powers.

Strong presidents of the recent past, including the first-term Nixon, had tipped that balance — dangerously, some said — toward the White House and away from Congress.

It was not entirely a power grab by presidents; it also was a giveaway by Congress. All too often, Congress sat back and waited for presidents to send along legislative recommendations that were dutifully enacted into law, some with little change.

But this year it all came tumbling down. The high-riding arrogance last fall of a White House staff whose boss had pulled in more votes than any other president has dissolved in the summer heat of Watergate.

The Nixon legislative program, never fully developed, is in disarray. Grand plans for reorganizing government, a "super cabinet," a promised "fresh approach" to governing that would aid Americans, not dominate them — it's all gone.

The reorganization was abandoned.

Analysis

The three super-cabinet members moved out of the Executive Office Building. Proposals for phasing out some programs and sharing revenues with local government for others are being ignored.

Congress is going its own way, writing back into law programs — like housing, O.E.O., veterans care, hospital construction, farm subsidies — that Nixon and his men had ordered ended or cut back early this year.

This does not mean Nixon totally lacks clout.

He has a powerful weapon, the veto, which has been used successfully three times this year and is threatened on three other bills now headed toward his desk.

It takes a two-thirds vote of both the House and Senate to override a presidential veto. Vetoes always bring grumbles on Capitol Hill that Nixon is ignoring the majority wishes of the people. But the veto is enshrined in the Constitution just as firmly as the separation of powers.

The slow emergence of Congress has taken three forms:

One, the handling — and, often, rejection — of Nixon legislative ideas.

Two, a move toward establishing machinery on the hill to re-claim budget control that has been largely pre-empted by the President's powerful Office of Management and Budget.

Three, the firm position, now in the House as well as the Senate, against continued involvement in other people's wars.

Nixon supporters in Congress, and some non-supporters, are quick to point out that no matter what's said in Watergate hearings or grand jury rooms, Nixon still is President.

However, he is weakened. He cannot accomplish by executive fiat the changes that he sought. He will be denied the "fresh approach" that was to make Americans more self-reliant, less dependent on a strong central government.

To some observers, this is a disaster. They fear Congress lacks the leadership and the capacity to move as quickly or as firmly as needed.

Congress does, indeed, move slowly. It is made up of 100 senators and 435 House members, all duly elected in one of the 50 states and with ideas of their own that must be brought together before a law can be enacted. But, as freshman Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., said the other day:

"I personally think that Congress's power has been eroded too much in the past. The executive has assumed too much power, and it is healthy for the country to get back as an equal partner."

Scandal raises conduct question

By LESLEY OELSNER
(c) New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Whatever else the Watergate scandal may mean, wherever else it may lead in debate and reform, it has already raised disturbing questions for the legal profession.

One of the main questions, as many see it, is why there seems to be such a gap between law and lawyers.

There has always been a gap, in reputation at least. For centuries law has been considered the oasis of civilized society. For just as long, lawyers have been criticized and even reviled — by playwrights, such as Plautus and Shakespeare, by newspaper editorials, and by clients.

But Watergate — in which lawyers have admitted to crimes ranging from burglary to obstruction of justice — has shown graphically that the gap is more than one of reputation alone. More importantly it has focused public attention on an inconsistency that has pervaded the legal community for centuries: The legal profession has always taken the official stance that lawyers are "guardians of the law." But most lawyers — whether in private practice, in government or in business — have always paid far more attention to the special interests of their clients, candidates or companies than to the broad legal issues.

Analysis

The key lesson of Watergate, particularly in the view of critics of lawyers, is that the profession must do far more than it has done to insure that lawyers do indeed try to "guard" the law.

No one is willing to say precisely how extensive this gap is between law and lawyers. Nor is anyone ready to spell out the reasons. But Watergate, to many experts, provides some clues.

Much of what the Watergate lawyers did was motivated, apparently, not so much by self-interest in the narrow sense but by a "higher" interest — getting the President re-elected.

And that pattern, according to some observers, is analogous to the lawyer-client relationship in more everyday matters such as divorce and negligence cases.

"The main evil involved in Watergate is one which is prevalent throughout our legal system," said James Kirby, dean of the Ohio University Law School at Columbus, who is one of the nation's experts on legal ethics.

"Clients expect lawyers to do anything" to win their cases, he said, and often, lawyers "don't say no."

The profession must insist that lawyers do say "no" to clients' demands for improper behavior, Kirby says, and one way to do this would be by teaching ethics in law school, using specific examples of what may and may not be done.

There is another analogy between the Watergate affair and everyday law practice. The lawyers involved in Watergate knew that what they were doing was illegal — the criminal laws are clear as to perjury and burglary. But they did not expect to get caught.

The canons of ethics — at least the new version promulgated in 1969 by the American Bar Association, and subsequently adopted by various states are also specific about certain forms of misbehavior. But the profession's disciplinary efforts have been inadequate.

The watergate affair, some observers say, also indicates that the legal profession needs not only increased disciplinary proceedings, but also some new rules on which the proceedings can be based.

Government and politics have been heavily weighted with attorneys for centuries.

The majority of the men who drafted the constitution, for example, were lawyers. For decades, lawyers have either run or helped to direct businesses. Yet the canons of ethics apply for the most part mainly to lawyers engaged in the private practice of law.

Other than some specific rules about prosecutors, and some general rules about being honest that apply to all attorneys, there is little discussion in the canons about the special duties of lawyers who become politicians or business men. Nor is there much discussion about lawyers with corporate clients.

Richardson backs Cox, Nixon in tapes clash

(c) Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson Tuesday backed up Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox's attempt to obtain access to White House tapes, but supported President Nixon's position regarding the Senate Watergate committee's similar attempts.

Richardson's move, which comes at a time when the President is facing the prospect of a constitutional battle with Cox and the Senate committee, in effect redeems a pledge made soon after he took office in May.

During a June 4 question-and-answer session with reporters, Richardson said:

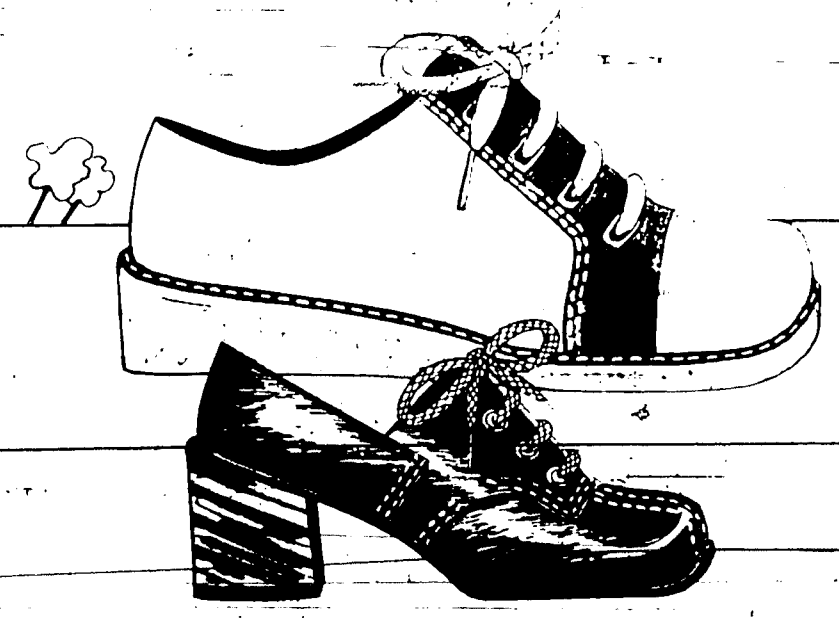

"All I know is that in asking me to become the attorney general of the United States, the president said that he expected me to pursue the evidence wherever it might lead. I have now delegated that responsibility to a special prosecutor. I am confident that the President expects him to do that."

In a two-paragraph statement, his first on the question of the subpoenas issued Monday for the presidential tapes, Richardson said, "The President's decision to protect the confidentiality of presidential conversations rests, in my view, on substantial legal and constitutional foundations. The separation of powers argument seems to me particularly persuasive with reference to the Ervin committee."

"It is also my view that Mr. Cox, in seeking access to the tapes, is acting in full accord with the requirements of his job. In the interest of justice, it seems to me important to try to work out some practical means of reconciling the competing public interest at stake."

The issuing of the subpoenas leaves the President facing a virtually unprecedented challenge in the courts of law and the larger court of public opinion.

Cabbie tipped

LONDON (UPI) — A London judge ordered a woman who tried to avoid paying a $1.65 taxi fare to pay it Monday — and to give the cabbie an extra 12 cents.

"I don't see," said the judge, "why the driver shouldn't get a tip."

Book ban aired

PHOENIX (UPI) — The Arizona Board of Education is considering new rules to outlaw textbooks considered offensive, embarrassing or that encourage breaking the law. But opponents say this could mean deleting such things as the Boston Tea Party from history books.

What constitutes disruptive studies and who interprets it? said opponent Thomas Beag-champ of Flagstaff, Ariz., a high school teacher and president of the Arizona Education Association.

Thomas Paine could be classified as disruptive. This could distort the true image of what history is like," Beag-champ said at a board hearing Monday.

The Arizona Federation of Teachers also spoke out against the proposed rules, which it said would put teachers in the position of having to weigh "whether to teach about Thomas Jefferson or the Boston Tea Party."

The board adjourned for the day without reaching a decision.

The guidelines, contained in a policy manual to be issued to local school boards, say in part:

Textbooks presented for adoption shall not include language or illustrations which are blatantly offensive; would cause embarrassing situations in the classrooms; and would cause interference in the learning atmosphere of the classroom — or contribute to civil disorder, social strife or flagrant disregard of the law.

Opponents said this could mean the banning of a wide range of school subjects, including social and political demonstrations, and would lead to many lawsuits. Opponents also said textbook distributors would bypass Arizona, rather than tailor their books to suit the requirements of one particular state.

But Stephen Jenkins, the chief architect of the guide, said "it is necessary to have rules to operate by," and the policy manual would provide guidelines that would promote local school efficiency.

Beef supply drops

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Beef soon will join other commodities in short supply on supermarket shelves, a major grocery chain executive said Tuesday.

Donald S. Perkins, chairman and chief executive officer of Jewel Companies, Inc., a leading Midwest chain, said meat markets would run short of beef next week because feed lot operators and packers are holding back their supplies until initial confusion over Phase IV rules clears up.

Perkins, who heads the Cost of Living Council's (CLC) food advisory committee, said beef supplies should return to near normal during August but would tighten up again in early September as the September 12 deadline for lifting the meat price ceiling nears.

Meanwhile, the CLC said the Internal Revenue Service was making spot checks Tuesday at food outlets in Los Angeles, Atlanta, Dallas, Boston and the District of Columbia to ensure compliance with Phase IV rules.

Perkins was outspoken in his criticism of the Phase IV rules. Noting that beef prices still are frozen and pork prices are not, he asked rhetorically how a packer was to figure out how much to raise the price of a sausage that is half beef and half pork.

"We need Einsteins in every meat plant," he said.

Perkins said grocers "are scared to death and afraid to cheat."

"I guarantee you that less than the maximum allowable price increases under Phase IV) will be passed on simply because nobody can figure out what the maximum is," Perkins said.

Phase IV has forced grocers to run their business in a distorted fashion, he said. This week's explosion in egg prices, for example, would not occur in normal times because grocers would simply cut their profit margin on an item in short supply and raise prices a little on the thousands of other items in the grocery inventory.

Stark conflicts unfold

(C) Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON — Stark new conflicts in sworn testimony and documentation has emerged from the Senate Watergate Committee appearance of former White House adviser John D. Ehrlichman.

Sharpest of all was the contradiction between Ehrlichman's denials that he authorized the 1971 burglary at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, and evidence uncovered by the committee strongly indicating that he did. The evidence consists of a memo approved by Ehrlichman recommending a "covert operation" to get at Ellsberg's psychiatric files; and closed-door testimony by David Young, former co-director of the White House special investigations unit known as the "Plumbers," that Ehrlichman gave a final go-ahead by telephone just before the burglary.

Ehrlichman said the "covert operation" referred to in the Aug. 11, 1971, memo that he initiated did not necessarily imply an illegal entry. He said he did authorize a "covert investigation" of Ellsberg, the man who gave away the Pentagon papers, but expected that his investigators "might have gotten access through another doctor, through a nurse."

Ehrlichman said: "There are all kinds of ways that one could get this information" without a burglary, although committee Chairman Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-N.C.) asserted that it is against the laws of every state to obtain confidential medical records without a patient's permission or a court order.

Committee Counsel Samuel Dash indicated Young would testify that he and Egil (Bud) Krogh Jr., the other director of the "plumbers," told Ehrlichman by phone while he was on a Labor Day vacation at Cape Cod in 1971 that the break-in was feasible.

According to Dash, Young has said Ehrlichman replied: "OK, go ahead and let them do it."

The break-in was led by "Plumbers" operatives G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, later convicted in the Watergate conspiracy.

Dash asked Ehrlichman: "Do you recall that call made to you by Mr. Young and Mr. Krogh while you were in Cape Cod?" Ehrlichman replied: "No, I don't, as a matter of fact; I don't recall any business calls while I was up there at all."

Bellino denies spying charge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican National Chairman George Bush has charged that the chief investigator for the Senate Watergate Committee was involved in wiretapping Richard Nixon during the 1960 Presidential campaign.

Bush said Tuesday he had affidavits which state the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy coordinated spying on the Nixon camp in 1960. Carmine Bellino, the committee investigator, was a Kennedy aide in 1960 and received spying reports, Bush said.

Bellino said the charges were "absolutely false" and said he never "ordered, requested directed or participated in any electronic surveillance whatsoever in connection with any political campaign."

The Watergate Committee's deputy counsel, Rufus Edmisten, said Bellino was the "best investigator on Capitol Hill... (but) I'm sure Carmine couldn't even wire the most elementary household lamp in America."

Bush said at a news conference he was not making formal accusations but would like to have his charges looked into.

The affidavits included one from the late John Leon, a private investigator, alleging that Leon gave the spy reports to Bellino.

Leon's signed statement said that he never participated in the electronic surveillance of Nixon but learned of the bugging after one of the crucial Kennedy-Nixon television debates. He said he was "confident" Nixon was bugged because of the way Kennedy was prepared for all of Nixon's arguments.

Charges made on 'hoax'

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — "My God, I believe that was Butch," Earl Pardick exclaimed to his wife Sunday night as they watched a new film on TV about a phony POW and a Playmate.

Thomas "Butch" Eugene Pardick was arrested by FBI agents Tuesday and charged with impersonating an officer of the armed forces, a charge punishable by up to three years in prison and a $1,000 fine.

The FBI said the 27-year-old automobile mechanic posed as a former prisoner of war to swindle the Playboy Club of Chicago out of a candlelight dinner and a date with a playmate.

Whatever made him do something like that, his father, a 51-year-old paper hanger from Champaign, said. "I had three good children up until this incident."

"It's awful, shameful. I was a World War II vet. It's a disgrace. If you were a prisoner of war, would you want someone impersonating you that wasn't?"

"I think it's not the right thing to say, but a year (in jail) wouldn't hurt him for what he's done. It's kind of hard to say, but you don't pull a hoax every day," Earl Pardick said.

The father said he called the Playboy Club on Monday and asked for a photograph as "positive proof." At the club's suggestion, he called the FBI. Pardick said he had not received the photo yet.

The hoax began Friday when the Playboy Club received a call from a man identifying himself as "Cmdr. Robert Stevens of the Great Lakes Naval Station."

Probe continues

SEN. SAM ERVIN, chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, faces ousted White House aide John D. Ehrlichman during Ehrlichman's appearance before the group Tuesday. (UPI)

Court rejects Vesco return

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — The highest court in Costa Rica rejected a U.S. request Tuesday for the extradition of fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco, who was indicted in a criminal case involving money donated for the re-election of President Nixon.

The ruling left Vesco, who fled to this Central American state while under a federal indictment, free to live in Costa Rica if he chooses.

An appeals branch of the Costa Rican Supreme Court ruled that the extradition treaty between the United States and Costa Rica did not apply in Vesco's case.

U.S. Ambassador Viron I. Vakey filed the appeal two weeks ago after a lower court refused to extradite the New Jersey financier.

Lawyers say Nixon to win

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's lawyers predict they will win their fight to prevent Watergate affair investigators from gaining access to recordings of Nixon's White House conversations.

Watergate Committee and Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox. They responded by serving subpoenas on the President—the first such action since the administration of Thomas Jefferson.

"We're going to win this," Charles Allan Wright said Tuesday. He is the Austin, Tex., constitutional law authority hired as a consultant on Watergate by the White House.

Nixon's lawyers, including Wright, will respond to the subpoenas at 10 a.m. Thursday in U.S. District Court in Washington.

Navy, Marines named in suit

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — William R. Sutherland, who says he was thrown in a Marine Corps brig and had his moustache shaved off because he is a dead ringer for his fugitive cousin, filed a claim against the Navy, the Marines and the city Tuesday for $1 million.

The dispute, which involves the separation of powers of the presidency and the Congress, probably will end up in the U.S. Supreme Court. The court would have to take the rare step of interrupting its summer recess to handle the case.

New scenery featured for girl watchers

By BARBARA VARRO
(c) Chicago Sun-Times
Men became glum as hot pants and miniskirts began to fade and legs were sheathed in long pants.
But fashion came through with new scenery for girl watchers so they wouldn't have to spend the long, hot summer contemplating the sky. Their gazes shifted from the legs to the torso because of the abbreviated tops that are the rage on city streets this season.

As soon as the heat was on, girls started to go for bare essentials that exposed the midriff and/or back. Halter-neck styles are the most popular of the brief topings, and most are worn braless.

The little tops — once restricted to the beach, backyard and other spots where sportswear was the rule — are showing up in offices and stores. We've even seen a few in church.
Critics of the barely there styles say Chicago is beginning to look like a resort town rather than a sophisticated metropolis. While some people say the cool and ultracausal styles are making the city more scenic, other denounce them as too sporty and provocative for an urban setting.

"It's no wonder there's so much crime in the streets today. Girls are just asking for trouble," said one male. Another said: "A girl in a plunging halter top sneered at me as though I were a mate chauvinist pig when I turned around to look at her. What does she expect when she's parading around in clothes like that?"

A woman said: "The exposed midsection and plunging back just don't belong in a conventional office. They belong on a beach or at a picnic."
Some of those who oppose the new casualness blame it on designers. But that can be refuted. Most designers of the bare-midriff tops meant them as sportswear in a sporty atmosphere or for after-5 wear. It is difficult to put a label in a particular style stating exactly when and where it should be worn.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: For 20 years my employer, his wife, and I have been good friends. Mine has always been one of those "dreamy" jobs. I ran the office, had everything my way and the pay was great.

Recently we added a young divorcee to our staff and it's apparent that she and my boss are carrying on an affair. This girl has him wrapped around her little finger and he is walking around in a daze. His wife is suspicious. She calls and asks me all sorts of questions. Of course I cover-up for him, but it is making a wreck of me. I can't keep my lies straight and I am popping tranquilizers like crazy.

To leave this job would be a big sacrifice for me. Besides I dislike having this girl run me off.

Should I keep taking tranquilizers and hope this affair will end soon? Or should I just quit? Don't suggest I talk to him. I already have and he is so far gone, it's hopeless.

MEDICAL SECRETARY

Duties get out of hand

DEAR SECRETARY: It's too late to tell you that it would have been far better for all concerned had you and your boss (and his wife) maintained a strictly professional relationship. Now you're trapped because you're more than an employee—you're a trusted friend. Your only solution is to try to wait her out, and lay off the tranquilizers before you become so "tranquil," you're carried off for dead.

DEAR ABBY: I am divorced, 40 years old and am madly in love with a man who is only 30. I have known and dated him for seven months. We are amazingly compatible and unbelievably good for each other. I was married for 17 years before, but I feel more like a schoolgirl now than I felt 25 years ago.

I want to marry this beautiful, wonderful man, and he's been asking me for three months. He is big and husky and has gray hair. He looks more like 35, and I look like about 38—in the dark.

Our relationship has reached the point where we either get married or say goodbye forever. My friends keep reminding me that when he is 50 and I am 60, I might regret it. I guess I need someone to give me some encouragement.

IN LOVE

DEAR IN: The number of birthdays you've had isn't nearly as important as the state of your health and the state of your mind. If you feel young and think young, you ARE young. I say, marry the man and good luck to you.

DEAR ABBY: My stepdaughter is 19 years old. She works in an office and pays us $15 a week room and board. She doesn't do one thing to help me with the house. All she does is wash and iron her own clothes. On weekends she sleeps until 2 or 3 in the afternoon. She says she doesn't have to help me in the house because she pays for sewing here.

My husband says she doesn't have to do anything. Who is right? She moved out once for three months and begged to come back. Of course she said she would change, but she hasn't.

Please print this with your answer. If I am wrong I won't say anything more to my husband about it.

HOUSEWIFE

DEAR HOUSEWIFE: The problem here is that you and your daughter do not have a clear-cut understanding with regard to what she should do to "help" you. You say she promised to "change." Spell out exactly what is expected of her. And if she agrees and then fails to live up to her word, you can complain.

DEAR "NAG FEVER" IN JERSEY: No horse can go as fast as the money you bet on him. Try Gamblers Anonymous. You sound like a compulsive gambler to me.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90000. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Today's hand was played in the Texas summer nationals of 1952. South was Oswald Jacoby, just back from two years spent in Korea as a naval officer. North was James Jacoby who had learned bridge at Notre Dame while his father was 10,000 miles away.

The final contract of six no trump was a reasonable one although father Jacoby had probably overbid the hand a trifle.

The contract also made easy. East held queen and one diamond and South was able to collect four diamond tricks which was all he needed when added to four spades, two hearts and two clubs.

The play should be of interest. Jacoby senior won the heart in his own hand, led a diamond and finessed dummy's nine. This lost East's queen but the four needed diamond tricks came right in.

Wasn't that a rather unusual play you made? asked Jim.

Yes, it was, replied Oswald. It was unusual but it was the play that gave me the best chance to make six no trump. Of course I gave up the chance to make seven, but it appeared to me that my main purpose was to make six. I know Notre Dame has an excellent curriculum, but there is no course in the correct way to play suit combinations.

This play gave Oswald a 68 per cent chance to make his contract. The alternate play of finessing the jack only gave 62 per cent.

If you disagree with us, just write enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope and we will be glad to give you a more complete explanation.

Sterilization flap continues

(c) Newhouse News Service WASHINGTON — The controversy that began with the sterilization of two teenage girls in Montgomery, Ala., appears unlikely to subside, despite the recently proposed federal guidelines to govern the procedure.

Reactions ranged from fears that the guidelines are not strict enough to truly protect the rights of minors and mental incompetents, to fears that legitimate access to this most final form of birth control may be stymied.

The guidelines were issued July 19 by Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) secretary Caspar Weinberger in the wake of the controversy arising over the sterilization in a federally financed clinic of the two black, Alabama teenagers, who were adjudged mentally retarded.

The HEW guidelines — a general outline for more detailed regulations that will not be finalized before October — would require clinics operated with federal funds not to perform the procedure on minors until a local review board had approved the decision, or on the legally incompetent until both the review board and the courts had deemed it in "the best interest of the patient."

Dr. Erwin Friedman of the National Children's Center and a leader in the current reevaluation of the rights of the retarded, expressed strong reservations about the guidelines.

"My immediate reaction is that the people on the review committee will be only too willing to give consent to sterilization," he said. "There is this inbred stereotype of the retarded individual as a sex fiend, who will populate the world with defectives."

Friedman believes that many of the retarded can be trained in other methods of birth control, and that sex education can keep such young people safe from sexual exploitation.

"Sterilization might be a good thing for one individual, and it might be a good thing for society, if this one case could be taken alone. But once these things start, they can't be stopped so easily," he said. "I have great doubts about sterilization of minors or legal incompetents under any circumstances."

Botulism forces FDA mushroom inspection

(c) New York Times Service NEW YORK — The current episode of botulism, in which a Montreal woman became ill and a Massachusetts processor was forced to recall 336,000 glass jars of mushrooms from 10 states, including New York and New Jersey, is the fourth case this year of botulism contamination of commercial mushroom products.

The discovery of this contamination of mushrooms packed by Wirth Food Products, Lawrence, Mass., comes at a time when the Federal Food and Drug Administration is just completing an intensive inspection of the approximately 40 producers of canned and bottled mushrooms.

In fact, the Wirth plant was inspected in May and apparently was found to be observing good manufacturing practices designed specifically to prevent botulism contamination.

The federal agency had no explanation Monday for the current lapse in the Wirth operation or for the sudden cluster of tainted mushroom incidents. Only one of the four incidents was discovered by an FDA inspector.

Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., reiterated her opposition to the guidelines raised earlier in a letter to Weinberger from the black women members of the House.

Chisholm said in the July 10 letter that guidelines covering all sterilizations — on adults, as well as minors and legal incompetents — should be issued because of the wide variance in state laws.

A spokesman for HEW, Dr. Carl Shultz, director of the Office of Population Affairs, said the agency plans to leave the area of sterilization of competent adults to the 50 states.

Bum advice

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Police Lt. Fred Cobb says he's getting out of the marriage counselling business and sticking to police work. It all stems from Cobb's advice to Mrs. Louella Roberts a week ago. He told her to set up a picket line in front of the apartment where she claimed her husband, Charles, was spending time with another woman.

Mrs. Roberts was also told to leave the apartment premises.

"Lieutenant Cobb told me to go back and demonstrate on the sidewalk off the apartment property," she said. "The manager said he'd have me arrested if I did, so, I think I'll just sit back and think about it."

Gem tourist booths open

BOISE (UPI) — Tourist booths at four Idaho rest stops are handing out information to keep visitors in the Gem State at the same time they conduct a survey to find out who is visiting Idaho.

Lloyd Howe, director of the Idaho Department of Commerce and Development, said the booths are at the Portneuf rest area, seven miles south of Pocatello, at the Rogerson rest stop south of Twin Falls, in downtown Moscow and at the Huetter rest area west of Coeur d'Alene. The booths will operate through Labor Day week 11 hours a day, seven days a week, with two persons assigned to each station.

Howe said the project is a cooperative venture with the local chambers of commerce who provide the housing spaces and assist the state department in supplying the tourist information brochures and maps.

Seven of the eight employees manning the booths are Vietnam veterans. The eighth is a woman. Howe said most of them are students and all are paid through the Federal Public Employment Service Program grant to Idaho.

"They encourage visitors and travelers in the state to stay longer," said Howe, and provide information on the "things to see and do in the state while they are here."

While distributing the literature and information, the crews make a survey of where the tourists are from, how many there are, and what type of recreational vehicle they brought with them.

In Coeur d'Alene, the crews work from a fiberglass teepee.

3 food additives safe, 1 unsafe

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) said today it has determined that three widely used food additives are safe for continued human use, but a fourth additive should be placed under new controls.

The announcement was the first positive result of a review the FDA began on Dec. 8, 1970, of all food additives generally recognized as safe. That review was ordered by President Nixon in his 1969 consumer message, partially in response to the controversy that rose after the artificial sweeteners cyclamates, previously on the safe list, were banned as possible cancer causes.

There are 533 ingredients now on the generally recognized as safe (GRAS) list. That category was created in 1958 when a law covering food additives exempted those which had been approved for use prior to enactment of the law or which had been "generally recognized as safe."

Today the FDA said its review has determined three widely used food additives have passed the test and should continue to be recognized as safe. They are propyl or methyl parabens, widely used as preservatives; mannitol, used as a sweetener and thickener among other things; and sorbitol, used as a sweetener, stabilizer, lubricant and for other purposes.

In proposing these three additives on a new post-review GRAS list, the FDA also proposed that labels of food products of which a consumer might eat more than 20 grams of mannitol or 60 grams of sorbitol should warn the buyer that "excess consumption may have a laxative effect."

But the agency proposed a different treatment for a fourth additive—carob bean gum, also known as locust bean gum. The dried gum from the bean has been used for years as a stabilizer and a thickener for food and as a coating for the inside of food packages.

The agency said its review committee suggested that course because while there was no evidence the gum represents a hazard, additional data is needed to determine whether a significant increase in consumption would constitute a dietary hazard.

The agency said that once an additive now on the list is tested it will be put into one of four categories: banned from future use in the food supply; affirmed as safe.

Judge dismisses bombing suit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch has dismissed a suit by eight members of Congress that sought to halt the American bombing of Cambodia.

Gasch ruled Tuesday that the issues in the suit involved "political questions which are clearly beyond the proper limitation of judicial power." The suit did not differ from several other suits seeking to halt U.S. participation in the Indochina war, which also were rejected, the judge said.

The congressmen filed their suit before Congress and President Nixon reached an agreement to halt the bombing Aug. 15. They contended legislation passed last year and in 1971 demonstrated that Congress did not intend for the United States to conduct military operations in Cambodia.

Pentagon files new POW charges

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Three weeks ago, the Army and the Navy dismissed prison camp "misconduct" charges against seven young former POWs for lack of evidence.

Today, with new charges filed against them, four of those men once more face the possibility they might be court-martialed for alleged antiwar activities while they were held by the North Vietnamese. The other three named in the original charges also were accused in the new charges. But the Pentagon said they cannot be court-martialed under any circumstances—or tried in a civilian court for their prison camp activities—because they have been discharged from the Army.

An attorney for one of the men still in the service said the renewed charges were "vengeful harassment."

The Pentagon announced the new charges Tuesday, saying they had been filed Monday by Air Force Maj. Edward W. Leonard, Jr., who was imprisoned in North Vietnam's "Plantation" prison camp with the men he accused.

A Defense Department spokesman said Leonard charged all seven men with mutiny, which carries a maximum of life imprisonment upon conviction.

The spokesman said there was no legal question of double jeopardy in Leonard's charges because the earlier allegations did not include mutiny and were dismissed before they were brought to trial.

Leonard's charges named Marine Pvt. Frederick L. Elbert, 25, of Brentwood, N.Y.; Marine Sgt. Alfonso R. Riata, 28, of Santa Rosa, Calif.; Army Spec. 4 Michael P. Branch, 26, of Highland Heights, Ky.; Army Sgt. Robert P. Chenoweth, 25, of Portland, Ore.; Army Sgt. James A. Daly, 25, of New York City; Army Sgt. King D. Rayford, 27, of Chicago; and Army Sgt. John A. Young, 27, of Greyslake, Ill.

These were the same seven men originally charged—along with Marine Sgt. Abel L. Kavenaugh of Denver, who committed suicide a short time later.

Libyan government will try hijackers

CAIRO (UPI)—Libya announced today that it will try the hijackers of a Japan Air Lines (JAL) jumbo jet blown up Tuesday in eastern Libya minutes after they gave the 150 passengers and crew members five minutes to escape.

The Libyan government radio said it would ask passengers and crew members to supply affidavits for evidence at the trial, but gave no other details.

The Libyan radio, the Radio of the Popular Revolution, quoted Maj. El-Khweldi El-Hamidi, the interior minister and member of the ruling Revolution Command Council, as telling passengers to submit reports on the hijacking "to be used in the procedures of investigation and trial."

That remark, the only mention of a trial in the broadcast, marked the first time Libyan authorities have publicly raised the possibility of some kind of trial for the hijackers.

All the passengers and crew members were reported in good condition in the eastern city of Benghazi, where they rested at a hotel as the guests of the Libyan government, waiting to

Convict kills two guards

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (UPI)—A prisoner serving a life sentence for murder at Ohio's maximum security prison somehow got a pistol, and when its cell door mysteriously opened Tuesday, he killed two guards—for no apparent reason—before he was subdued.

Officials identified the prisoner as Wayne Lester Raney, 23, of Dayton, Ohio. The dead guards were identified as Arthur Spouse, 40, Lucasville, and Gary Underwood, 24, Parkersburg.

John Linta, public information officer for the Ohio Corrections Department, said officials had no idea why Raney killed the guards, or where he obtained the pistol.

"In fact," said Linta, "we still aren't sure why Raney's cell door was unlocked."

House moves

TRAFFIC was diverted Monday as this house rolled down Blue Lakes Boulevard heading toward an acreage north of Filer. Current owner Dr. Eddie Allison said he is moving the house because it was on property which will be developed. The house was built in 1926 and was moved with its rock fireplace intact.

1974 cars idle unless seat belts fastened

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON Many prospective car buyers may be surprised to find that 1974 models, which go on sale in September, will be equipped with a device designed to keep the engine from starting unless front-seat occupants have buckled their seat belts.

The Department of Transportation is deeply concerned over driver reaction to the new system, and some officials are suggesting privately that a backlash of indignation and protest may be touched off.

The Department's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration is conducting an informational campaign to get the word to the public that the interlocks are coming. Officials of the safety agency held press and radio-television briefings here and in several other cities this week as the public relations program got under way. If their hopes are realized, the "ignition interlock system" will soon become a household phrase.

To start a car equipped with such a device, the driver must sit down, buckle the belt and turn the ignition key, in that order. If either the center or outboard passenger seat is occupied, the passenger must also buckle up.

Once the engine is running, belts may be unbuckled without causing it to stop. But a warning light will go on, and a buzzer will sound, and this will continue until the ignition is turned off.

Some 1973 cars have an audible warning system, which sounds if the engine is started while the front seatbelts are unfastened. However, the car can be started with the belts unbuckled.

In their press and radio-TV briefings, federal safety officials are emphasizing the benefits of the 1974-model system and discounting its inconveniences.

They point out, for example, that the new belts are much easier to buckle and more comfortable to wear than present models.

France plans second Pacific nuclear test

PARIS (UPI) — France intends to follow up its relatively small nuclear test blast in the Pacific with another explosion, possibly involving a hydrogen warhead that may be detonated by Wednesday, French newspapers said Tuesday.

Reports from Papeete, Tahiti, said the French naval squadron policing the seas around the Mururoa Atoll test site will remain on station, strengthening the belief that a second blast would come shortly despite widespread protests.

The mass circulation newspaper France-Soir and the conservative Le Figaro said that last Saturday's test of a low-yield nuclear triggering device may be followed by a much more powerful hydrogen explosion.

"A new nuclear test might be carried out tonight," France-

Soir said. "It is reported to be a megaton charge, probably an 'H' bomb."

New Zealand naval observers aboard the protest frigate Otago estimated the size of the first explosion at five kilotons, the equivalent of 5,000 tons of TNT. A megaton blast would be equal to the explosive force of a million tons of TNT.

Military sources in Paris said the current test series is needed to perfect a trigger for hydrogen warheads to be used aboard atomic submarines.

French government officials said that Peru's decision to sever diplomatic ties over the blast would not stop the current series.

Radical French, Socialist party leader Jean-Jarques Servan-Schreiber, who had participated in a protest against the tests throughout Polynesia, Tuesday called for a nationwide referendum on whether to continue the building of a nuclear arsenal.

In Wellington, New Zealand, officials said the protest frigate Otago, which viewed last Saturday's blast, was steaming back to its operational position 20 miles off Mururoa Atoll to await future explosions.

Protests over the testing and possible fall-out resulting have come from Australia, Japan, Canada and Sweden in addition to New Zealand and Peru.

Deafness misjudged; state commits man

DETROIT (UPI) — Twenty-year-old Kestor Benson of Detroit has spent the past 18 months confined in a state hospital because authorities misjudged his deafness as mental incompetency.

So much so, that Ionia State Hospital was petitioning to have Benson, charged in 1971 with felonious assault, committed permanently. All because Benson couldn't hear what authorities asked him.

But a Wayne County probate judge happened to run across Benson during the course of his daily docket, and a wrong is in the process of being righted.

Judge Joseph J. Perruck, himself the son of deaf parents, knew something was wrong when he reviewed the transcript of Benson's arraignment and found that he had failed to answer most of the questions asked him.

Perruck brought in a couple of specialists who found the judge's suspicions accurate. Benson was indeed deaf and had not been provided with an interpreter at his original arraignment in Detroit Recorder's Court.

And the psychiatrist assigned to Benson at the state hospital, Dr. E. Don Joo, had not been using any interpreters in dealing with Benson for the past 18 months.

Meat future uncertain, says TF meat packer

BY BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Skyrocketing pork prices and beef shortages are likely in the short run, according to Otto Florence Jr., general manager of Independent Meat Co. of Twin Falls.

Florence's prediction comes in the wake of President Nixon's announcement Wednesday ending the Phase 3½ price freeze on produce and pork, but retaining the retail price ceilings on beef.

Throughout Phase 3½ hogs were in short supply according to Florence. The local price of hogs during this month and a half period rose a dollar from $37.38.50 per hundredweight to $38-41.50 per hundredweight.

Since the freeze on pork was lifted, hog prices have risen dramatically, he said. At the beginning of this week between $45 and $48.50 was being paid per hundred pounds of hogs, up about $8 per hundredweight in three trading days — an increase of about 20 per cent.

Florence said that during the price freeze on pork, Independent Meat Co. sustained losses varying between $3 and $6 per slaughtered hog and cut its hog slaughtering operation 30 to 40 per cent.

The company was partly able to offset its losses in the pork arena by maintaining a normal profit on beef production, he said.

While Independent Meat Co. has not had to lay off any employees due to production cuts, Florence said, it has not hired men to replace those who left since last year. The company's staff is down 10 per cent since then.

When the ceiling price of pork was lifted Thursday, Independent Meat sought to restore its hog slaughtering operation to former levels.

Other packing companies did the same and the immediate rise in demand brought a corresponding upsurge in the price of hogs. In turn, the rise in hog prices causes packers to charge more for their pork products.

According to Neal Ambrose of Ambrose Distributing Co., Wendell, the long term, root reason for the rise in hog prices is the corresponding rise in the price of soybean meal and grains used to fatten the animals.

Two or three years ago, Ambrose said, soybean meal sold at $100 a ton. Recently, prior to soybean export restrictions, the meat cost up to $550 per ton. Now, the price is down to $330 per ton. Ambrose added that grain costs doubled from $2 to $4 per hundredweight during the past two or three years.

The price of pork may rise further because of the freeze on beef, continued to Sept. 12.

Since Nixon's announcement Thursday the local asking price of choice steers rose from $47.50 per hundredweight to between $48 and $48.50 per hundredweight.

Florence reported that fed steers were bought at this price locally. At the beginning of Phase 3½ a month and a half ago the price of steers was between $46 and $47 per hundredweight.

He said the rise in cattle prices coupled with the continued freeze means losses for Independent Meat Co.

Oakley observance

Oakley draws crowd

OAKLEY — Over 1,000 area residents were treated to 700 pounds of buffalo and beef roasts here Tuesday afternoon during the annual Pioneer Days celebration.

A line of persons stretched the length of the Oakley City Park waiting to try out the buffalo roast. The meat had been pit, cooked the night before for the occasion.

A gymkhana, a movie and a Pioneer Day program were all held in the afternoon following the barbecue.

At 6 p.m. a large crowd turned out to watch the parade. There were about 25 entries and several public officials in the parade, including Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy and his family, Sen. Robert Saxvik, D-Burley, and his family, and Rep. Ernest Hale, R-Burley, and his family.

A rodeo was held Tuesday evening in the Oakley Posse grounds.

Today the annual 25-mile Pony Express race is set for 7 p.m. at the rodeo grounds. Each entry will include five horses and one or more riders competing for a first place purse of $1,000. Second place will be $400 and third place will be $200.

The rodeo will be held again tonight at 9 p.m., winding up the celebration.

Florence said that the company will lose at least $3 to $5 for each head of cattle slaughtered. Other packers, he said, now are losing between $20 and $30 per head of cattle slaughtered.

Independent Meat's losses probably will not be as great as those of other packing houses partly because the Twin Falls company has a backlog of cattle purchased prior to the President's economic announcement, and partly because live cattle prices in the TF area have not risen as rapidly as prices in other parts of the country, Florence said.

In the midwest, the price of steers was between $47.50 and $48.50 just prior to the President's announcement and rose to between $50 and $50.50 by the middle of this week.

Florence said that the company may offset its losses on beef production by raising the price of pork. The future is uncertain, he said, but if cattle prices continue to rise while the freeze is on, Independent Meat may have to cut back on beef production also.

Knowledge of the beef price freeze lift Sept. 12 is likely to raise the current cost of cattle. Florence said many cattle owners, expecting to get more money when the freeze is off, will hold back cattle ready for market until Sept. 12.

Holding back ready cattle now would mean overly fat cattle in September, Florence said. This would also mean higher prices for lean meat.

Speaking of the beef price outlook through this year Alex Sinclair, Ritten Co. Commodities, said, "There does not appear to be any relief in sight for the consumer."

Sinclair said that the cattle futures market for December rose $3.37 per hundredweight out of a total permissible limit of $4 per hundredweight since Nixon's announcement. He concluded from this that the cash cattle market is going to continue to show increases into December.

Blaine approves lease

By TERRY CAMPBELL / Times-News writer

HAILEY — The Blaine School Board has approved a one year's lease on a bus maintenance garage.

During a special meeting Monday night, which included an about three hour executive session, the board accepted the sole bid submitted by Del Panting to provide a garage, facilities and equipment in Hailey for $325 a month.

At the board's request, the administration will select a school bus mechanic.

In other action, the board:

- approved a ten month contract for Richard Jones, school psychologist, and stipulated that the administration would write a job description to be approved by the board.
- Approved a $14,000 contract for Asst. Supt. Ray Jefferson. The contract reflected an increase over last year about equivalent to the teacher pay increase schedule.
- Approved a one year contract for newly appointed Supt. Wayne Fagg, effective July 1.
- Accepted an 11 month, about $12,600 contract for Victor Jensen, principal at Ernest Hemingway Elementary School. The board also stipulated that, if Jensen is rehired next year, the contract will be on a ten month basis.
- Agreed to pay an about $197 bill from Dr. Archbault and an about $108 bill from Dr. Thomas Bell, University of Idaho, for consultant services on the county plant and facilities study.
- Tabled, until the full board was present action on Supt. Fagg's recommendation that a music program be initiated at Hemingway elementary. Fagg said the program was planned about three years ago, but was not implemented.

Ketchum hookups ordered

HAILEY — Fifth District Judge Theron Ward Wednesday decided in favor of the Grayhawk Development Corp. Inc. in its suit against the city of Ketchum and the Sun Valley Water and Sewer District.

The issuance of a preliminary writ of mandamus capped about three days of hearings on the matter which began June 28.

In his ruling, Judge Ward stated that Grayhawk — if it meets other building regulations — be granted hookups to the sewer system and be guaranteed actual sewage service not later than Jan. 1.

Judge Ward said Ketchum created an obligation to supply sewage services by establishing a sewer district and assessing the land within the district.

Judge Ward also found that Ketchum's action in disallowing sewage hookups for Grayhawk constituted "arbitrary, unjustified discrimination."

According to his figures, Judge Ward said Ketchum allowed about 170 sewage hookups, including the 114 unit Holiday Inn, after the city's January moratorium on hookups.

Judge Ward said the Holiday Inn was outside the Ketchum City limits, outside the sewer district and outside the assessment district.

The judge also stated that "almost one year ago Ketchum was aware of a possible problem facing them" with the sewage treatment plant.

"Apparently no one did anything," Judge Ward said, beyond attempting to stop infiltration of ground water into the sewage lines.

Judge Ward recommended that the city "start moving" to raise additional funds to meet problems with the treatment plant.

E. Lee Schlender served as litigation attorney for Grayhawk. The city was represented by Willis Benjamin and Buck Hiller. The water and sewer district was represented by Thomas Nelson and Robert Paine.

Trout firm no longer wants canyon easement

BOISE — Citing a production and financial necessity, the Clear Springs Trout Co. has told the Bureau of Land Management it no longer wants an easement across federal land in the Box Canyon area.

The company had applied for the easement, claiming that while it could construct a pipeline to carry water to the hatchery it is constructing there.

BLM state director William Mathews said today the notification from the company informed him the construction across private land had not been as difficult as originally thought.

"At this point the job is essentially done," Mathews said, and granting the easement wouldn't help to mitigate the "adverse effects very significantly," he said the company told him.

The efforts of the firm to obtain through the canyon and gain the easement had become a matter of controversy because of the environmental concern for the canyon.

"We refused that right of way because we were trying to go straight through the government," John Hepworth, a spokesman for the trout company, said. He added the reason the easement was sought was to avoid having to cut through a ledge to construct the pipeline.

But he added that by the time the BLM had completed the necessary "red tape," construction was 90 per cent complete, and the easement unnecessary.

Hepworth said the company was "on a very tight timetable" because they started their operation last spring and needed the water at the hatchery soon. It also became clear, Hepworth said, that "the cut (through the ledge) was much less than we had anticipated we were going to have to make."

The BLM had recommended granting the easement to lessen the impact on the untouched canyon of the pipeline. But it also had attached stipulations to the easement to protect the canyon. Mathews said "everyone was acting in good faith" but no final agreement had been reached.

Hepworth said the firm had plans to restore the canyon area.

Mathews said the company had told him it would repair the damaged areas, but it was on its own and repair was "dependent upon their willingness to do things that will benefit the public values."

Lincoln tops quota

SHOSHONE — The Lincoln County Red Cross blood drawing Tuesday afternoon was termed a "record breaking success" by Mrs. Leo Senften, county chairman.

The quota of 75 pints was exceeded by 23 pints, with 98 pints donated by area citizens, Mrs. Senften said.

For a number of years, Lincoln County has had difficulty in filling blood drawing quotas, she said, and a warning that the county might lose its blood bank ties if it continued to lag behind quotas had been issued by the Red Cross.

If the ties were lost, county citizens would have to pay for needed blood at $50 per pint, she said.

Several county residents were listed as blood recipients in the drawing. Some had required over 12 pints of blood. One future recipient may be in need of as much as 17 pints of blood for open heart surgery in August, she said.

Impact studies passed

PUD's require specific plans for development which, when approved, must be followed precisely.

Suggested elements of an impact study, as proposed by the LWV, would include the development's effect on drainage, grading of slopes, utilities, vegetation, air quality, water quality, public and wildlife easements, water sources, sewage facilities, transportation, fire and police protection, schools and recreation.

County zoners are currently conducting a page-by-page review of the proposed new county zoning ordinance. Meeting in "work sessions," the group has covered 66 pages of the 74 page document.

The zoners Tuesday set Sept. 20 as a "target date" for presentation of the new zoning rules in a public hearing.

Recent revisions in the proposed zoning laws include:

- Requiring that the county zoners and commissioners evaluate sewer and water facilities for subdivision lots of less than one acre in residential-agricultural and residential medium zones. The review by the zoners and commissioners will be in addition to approval of the health department.
- Limiting permitted uses in OR zones to public parks, water utility facilities, agricultural uses, one family dwellings, private summer cottages, uses considered compatible with recreation and conditional uses.
- Classifying mobile home parks as a conditional use in residential medium zones more than one mile from a municipality. Public hearings will be required before approval or disapproval of the trailer parks.

Possible unethical lawyer solicitation probed

The name of the California firm was printed on the card, she said.

After talking to her father, Root called the "investigator" who was staying at the Ponderosa Inn in Burley.

The man then brought her a blank retainer agreement with the California law firm's name printed on it, she said.

Although she did not take any subsequent action concerning the law firm, she said, she later received telephone calls from the man "a couple of times." He was calling from California, she said.

The man told her the firm "had gotten a lot of money for people in Wyoming or Montana," Root said.

She described the man's approach as "very high pressure." She said she "definitely got the impression he was representing the lawyers."

She said she later gave the firm's business card to Kent Church, a Burley attorney.

Root also confirmed that she had signed an affidavit as part of the Idaho State Bar's investigation of the incident.

Howard Brown, Sr., Burley, said he was contacted by a man who called himself an "insurance investigator." Brown is the father of Howard Brown Jr., 18, who was injured in the Pomerelle mishap.

The elder Brown said the "investigator" visited him "within a week" of the accident. The man left the business card of the California firm, he said.

The man also left a blank retainer agreement bearing the firm's name, Brown said.

Brown also confirmed that he had signed an affidavit for the Idaho Bar Association.

Merrill Sunderland, 22, Rupert, another Pomerelle accident victim, recalled an incident similar to Root's and Brown's, but he could not be as specific as the other two. He could not recall the name of the man or firm involved.

According to Sunderland, he was visited in the hospital by a man "who said he was from a California law firm."

He could not recall whether he had been given a business card. "He asked me about the possibility of filing a suit — whether I was planning on it. I told him no," Sunderland said.

"He didn't actually say 'Can I work for you', but that was the impression I got very strongly," he said.

When contacted at his California office, a member of the law firm refused comment on the reported operations of the "investigator." He also refused to say whether he personally had ever been in Idaho.

Robert Hoag, recreational officer with the Sawtooth National Forest, Twin Falls, said he had talked to the same California attorney in Twin Falls "soon after the accident." Hoag also produced the attorney's business card identifying him as a member of the California firm.

At least 19 persons were injured New Year's Day at the Pomerelle Ski Resort near Albion. The injuries occurred after the three-braking systems on the resort's chair lift failed to function properly.

Unrestricted, the weight of the 120 skiers on the chair lift drove the supporting cable backward down the 4,600 foot slope, tossing some occupants to the ground and causing many others to jump.

Although inspections revealed that the chair lift initially lost power, because of a broken hydraulic coupling, forest service officials later disclosed that the lift's backup brake had been wired out of position, rendering it inoperable.

Since the Pomerelle accident, claims totalling $1.45 million have been filed against the federal government. The forest service is responsible for licensing of ski resorts on federal land, including Pomerelle.

Three persons have filed the claims: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tainiga, Twin Falls, and Christine Stevens, Hagerman. Tainiga and Stevens refused comment when asked if they had received unsolicited contact from the California firm.

A spokesman for the California Bar Association declined to confirm receipt of the information reportedly forwarded by the Idaho Bar. The spokesman also refused comment when asked if an investigation of the California law firm had been undertaken or was planned.

The spokesman would say, however, that there had been no previous bar association findings against the firm.

Hailey chamber picks candidates

HAILEY — The Hailey Chamber of Commerce nominated seven candidates for six board-of-directors posts Monday during a regular meeting. The membership will vote on the candidates during the chamber's annual meeting Aug. 13. Retiring president William Shaw will become the seventh director. The new board will subsequently meet and select a new president and vice president. The seven candidates include Jerry McGrath, Kent Franssen, Claude Porter, Dyane Leiby, Larry Haskin, Marty Marthdate and Wally Young. In other action, the chamber: — Heard a tentative financial report on the "Days of the Old West Celebration" from vice president Wally Young, who also serves as chairman of the celebration committee. Young also commended the persons who aided in staging the event. — Expressed concern over recent vandalism incidents and agreed to invite Hailey Police Chief Doug Williams, Blaine County Sheriff Orville Drexler and Lyle Breneman, Hailey police commissioner, to speak at the Aug. 13 meeting.

TF commissioners accept paving bid

TWIN FALLS — County commissioners voted Tuesday to accept the bid of Beymer Paving Co. for $4,659.96 for surfacing additional parking space at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. The bid was one of two received but no bid-bond was included in the Gordon Paving bid. Commissioners said the figure, submitted by Beymer was within estimates and the budgeted amount. Work is expected to begin within a few days, pending completion of electrical work for parking lot lighting.

Asylum request touches off fuss

HELSINKI (UPI) — A freighter picked up Viktor Schneider as he rowed across the gulf of Finland — and touched off a diplomatic hassle involving the United States and three other countries. Schneider, 26, was rowing across the Gulf of Finland when a Finnish freighter picked him up last week. He said he was a Lithuanian whose parents were German and he was going to West Germany to ask for asylum. But, Finland said it wants to return him to the Soviet Union as required under an agreement with Moscow. The Soviet Union says it wants him. West Germany says he possibly is, as he alleges, a German citizen. The United States is appealing on humanitarian grounds for his release. The foreign ministry said Monday he wants West German ambassador Detley Scheel to present written proof that Schneider is entitled to German citizenship.

Schneider flagged down the freighter because, he said, he thought it was West German. The freighter's skipper took him to Helsinki — and the police, who said he must go back to the Soviet Union. Schneider carried no passport or identification papers and did not ask Finland for asylum. Under consular agreements with the Soviet Union, Finland is obliged to return Soviet citizens in such cases.

Gloria Miller bet Lois Turner:

"The fastest way to find a telephone number is to look it up yourself."

It was a good bet.

Calling Directory Assistance is not always the quickest way to find a telephone number. In fact, our research shows that in most cases, you can look up a number yourself in half the time it takes to get the number through Directory Assistance. It makes sense. One call is faster than two. Twice as fast. So remember, when you need a telephone number fast, look first in your Directory.

Miami to use USC offense but pro-type quarterbacks

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Miami Dolphins may have to beat the Southern California offense to win the annual All Star game Friday night, but they'll have to beat pro-style quarterbacks running the attack.

Bert Jones, from Louisiana State, and Joe Ferguson, from Arkansas, have similar talents, and it's likely both will get into action to see how well they can do against the National Football League champions.

Jones, the No. 1 pick in the draft by Baltimore last winter, was regarded as the most likely starter, although Coach John McKay of the Trojans hasn't specified that he'll get the job. Regardless, McKay believes in using all his personnel, so Ferguson will get a chance, too. It's rather strange that both

Jones and Ferguson probably will share the signal calling for the collegians, since their careers have been parallel. Both are from Louisiana and played three times against each other in high school. Each time, Ferguson won.

When they went to college, neither saw any point in both attending the same school to divide their playing time, or waste their talents. Now they're on the same All Star squad competing against each other in friendly fashion, again.

Both have the size to be pro quarterbacks. Jones is 6-3 and 205 pounds and Ferguson 6-2 and 175. Both can throw long. Both have speedy deliveries. Both can deliver the ball to a receiver in a crowd.

McKay has to face the problem of what might happen should both of his quarterbacks be injured. But he has had practically no scrimmages in training camp so if either of them is hurt before the game, it will be a non-football injury.

And if something should happen to both of them in the game, then George Amundson, a running back from Iowa State, has been prepared to be a fill-in quarterback.

McKay doesn't figure to beat the Dolphins on his passing, though. His Trojan teams passed, when necessary but relied on the run to win, and he has prepared the All Stars in the same fashion.

The All Stars will be trying for their 10th win in the 40 games between the pros and collegians, but haven't won since 1963 and earned only three victories in the last 22 years.

Yank winner

TEEN-AGER Mary Decker, left, a 14-year-old from Garden Grove, Calif., won the 800-meter run in 2:03.2 at the USA-USSR track meet. Despite the victory, the Russians swept the men's, women's and aggregate titles. (UPI Telephoto)

Valley wins

HANSEN — Coach Monte Andrus' Valley team won the Magic Valley Little League tournament title over the weekend by defeating Gooding in the finals 10-5.

Wendell claimed consolation honors with an 11-2 decision over the Buhl Modjes.

Wendell also was voted the sportsmanship trophy while Bruce McGee, Gooding catcher, was named most valuable player.

The meet concluded the area's regular season although most will participate in an extra-curricular event, the Wood River Little League Invitational, which opens Friday and runs through Sunday.

McNee leads in quest for second meet spot

Bruce McNee of Twin Falls and Joe Higham of Shelley, who already have qualified for one national tournament, and hopeful repeater Gary Duncan of Twin Falls posted the top scores in the first round of the junior pro-proxy qualifying at Blue Lakes Country Club Tuesday.

The event, sponsored by the National Association of Insurance Agents, was slated to conclude Wednesday with the top three finishers winning a berth in the national event in Wichita, Kans., next month.

McNee took a double bogey on the 18th hole to see a comfortable three-stroke lead melt to one Wednesday. He posted an even par 71 while Duncan, who went to Houston in this event last year, and Higham were right on his heels at 72.

Still well within contention were Dave Williams of Burley and Carl Aers of Boise (in the winter) and Rupert (in the summer) at 74. A jam developed at 76 among Brent Godfrey, Salmon; Tim West, Boise; Bill Spencer, Burley, and Joe Hubbard, Boise.

McNee and Higham took care of their national tournament aspirations Monday when they won qualifying spots in the state tournament for the USGA junior meet. Playing at the Idaho Falls Country Club, Higham was the low qualifier at 73 while McNee defeated Ayers in sudden death for the second berth. McNee carded a birdie on the second hole to clinch it.

McNee and Higham will leave for the USGA junior finals at Signing Hills Country Club, El Cajon, Calif., this weekend. The thing is scheduled for July 31 through Aug. 4.

Russian tracksters dominate Americans

MINSK, USSR (UPI) — Long after they forget the score, the Soviets who watched the annual Soviet-American track and field meet will remember two American teenagers, Mary Decker and Steve Williams.

The two delighted the crowds in the two-day competition, which ended Tuesday with the Soviets winning the men's event 121-112 and the women's 95-51 for an overall 216-163 score.

Miss Decker, a 14-year-old from Garden Grove, Calif., her red-ribboned pigtails flying, spurred the last five yards to win the 800-meter on the final day.

Williams, 19, from San Diego, Calif., humiliated Valery Borzov, two-time Olympic gold medalist, in the 400-meter relay on opening day. Tuesday he won the 200 meters, which Borzov passed up because of nerve trouble in his leg.

It was only the third time the U.S. men have lost in 11 dual meets. The American women, traditionally weaker than their Soviet counterparts, have only won once.

Losing did not appear to bother many of the U.S. athletes and their coaches. The meet in the Byelorussian capital stadium ended with Soviet and American athletes trotting around the track hand in hand to the rhythmic clapping and cheers of about 30,000 fans.

The Soviet men, with virtually all their top athletes participating, came up with strong performances in the last three events to defeat a weak and tired U.S. side missing several of its top athletes. The Americans are in the third week of a European tour that has already seen them defeat West Germany and Italy.

The U.S. men needed firsts in only the steeplechase, long jump and decathlon to turn defeat into victory, but the Soviets won them all.

The crowd came alive when it saw the five-foot, 86-pound Miss Decker, the youngest competitor, turn on a burst of energy to snare victory in the last five yards in the 800 from Russia's Niele Sabaitz, a silver medalist at Munich.

"I heard her coming," the diminutive Miss Decker said later. She admitted, "I was scared before it started."

The youngster, who has been competing since she was 11, set a personal record of 2:02.9 on the rubberized asbestos track which produced slow times throughout the meet.

The men's second day was better than the first.

There was Williams' 200-meter win and victory in the 1,500 by Dave Wottle, the 800-meter Olympic champion from Canton, Ohio.

U.S. Head Coach Jim Bush said his team was tired and lacked depth.

"We didn't get enough," he said. "The steeplechase killed us. You can't run that race three weeks in a row."

Bush praised the Soviets for their hospitality and said he hoped the friendliness and good will that prevailed would be remembered long after the meet's results have been forgotten.

Miller playing super on eve of Canadian golf championship

MONTRÉAL (UPI) — United States Open golf champion Johnny Miller toured the first nine holes of the Richeheu Golf Club, scene of the $175,000 Canadian Open golf championship, on Tuesday and he hit the ball so good it scared him.

"I hate to talk about it because I hit it so good it scared me," said the blond native of San Francisco.

"I was hitting it very long for me, and I reached both par fives on the back nine, and I was probably four under par for nine holes without making many putts," he added. "I was standing up taller to the ball and using my leverage and coming into the ball with a bigger move," he said. "I was hitting the ball super straight and a long, long way. I sort of quit while I was still going good."

Miller, who finished 17th in earnings on the PGA tour last year, and has earned over $115,000 so far this year, thinks it will take rounds of 69 or better to win the Canadian Open, which begins Thursday, and he feels confident that he can do it.

"I think the winning score is going to have to be probably four 69's or two 69's and two 68's. I think I can win this," he added. "I'm a little tired but I'm going to rest for a while and then I think I'll be able to give it a really good try."

Miller was not certain how the absence of Jack Nicklaus would affect him, but he wasn't going to let it worry him very much.

"If you want to know the truth it seems like I play better when Jack's around," he said. "I don't know what the reason is but I don't think I've ever had a good tournament without him around. I'd just as soon have him playing. He gives me a little incentive in knowing I have to play real good golf, but I'm not worrying about that."

Miller is not letting golf take a hold on his life as he quickly pointed out.

"I like to play the game as a game, not as my life," he said. "I think I can be a better person if I learn to play it that way and not let anything get me really upset, like Gene Littler.

Miller has noticed however the change that has taken place since he won the U.S. Open, "the most important one in the world," according to him.

"It's sort of amazing how much attention I've been getting now that I've won the Open. Everyone expects a lot from me and I sort of enjoy the feeling too. I was a good golfer before I won that but I guess everyone thinks I'm supposed to be a better one now, maybe I am."

Ball shows big chunk of history

LAGHANGE, Ga. (UPI) — When Don Wilkerson gave his eight-year-old son a baseball, he gave him more than just a ball. He gave him a chunk of history.

Wilkerson, a vending company worker, has managed to gather signatures from baseball's three all-time home run leaders — Babe Ruth, Henry Aaron and Willie Mays — Plus single season home run king Roger Maris.

Wilkerson saw the Babe play in 1947 at an American Legion tournament in Chattahoochee Valley, Ala.

"I got within two yards of the Babe," Wilkerson recalled. "I'll never forget it."

Last week Wilkerson brought his family some 70 miles to see the Atlanta Braves play and he asked the team's front office to help him get Aaron's signature.

Braves' public relations director Bob Hope not only got Aaron's name, but also Maris' and Mays'. Wilkerson said he hasn't ended his search for signatures of baseball immortals and won't give up until he gets at least three more autographs — Mickey Mantle, Joe Dimaggio and Harmon Killebrew.

He said he really doesn't know what would happen if someone offered to buy his baseball time capsule.

"I gave it to my boy so he'd have something to pass on to his boy," Wilkerson said.

Falcons plan fines

GREENVILLE, S. C. (UPI) — Atlanta Falcons coach Norm Van Brocklin warned his players Tuesday he will levy $1,000 fines against players who "initiate any negative publicity."

Van Brocklin, angered by the remarks of placekicker Bill Bell, who was placed on waivers Monday and taken by the New England Patriots, said he considers negative publicity "just negative stuff about football in general." Bell had charged that Van Brocklin used gestapo-like coaching methods.

John Mackey retires

IRVINE, Calif. (UPI) — San Diego Chargers tight end John Mackey announced Tuesday he is ending his 10-year football career.

"I decided it was time to turn it over to the kids and let them do their thing," said the 32-year-old Mackey, adding, "I ain't walking away from this game healthy."

Mackey, who played with the Baltimore Colts from 1963 when he was a second round draft choice from Syracuse University until 1971, said he was being considered for the head coach position at Syracuse next year.

Mackey had reported to the Chargers' training camp for practice before he announced his retirement.

He said he still had some obligations to fulfill as president of the NFL Players' Association, but he said, "Right now I plan to take a vacation and relax."

TV's eye on Aaron

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — NBC-TV will soon begin taping Hank Aaron's every at-bat and will break into whatever program is being televised on the occasion of the Atlanta Brave star's 714th homer, it was announced Tuesday by Carl Lindemann Jr.

Lindemann, vice president of NBC sports, said a special crew will be assigned to follow Aaron when he gets close to Babe Ruth's career mark of 714. Aaron reached the All-Star break with a career total of 700 and will finish the season with 716 if he continues to hit homers at his current seasonal pace.

"NBC-TV is the baseball network," said Lindemann, "and it is altogether fitting that we give this event of national importance the coverage it deserves."

Miller signs with Bengals

Jeff Miller, third-place state low hurdle finisher for Twin Falls track team, has signed a letter of intent with Idaho State University.

Miller, pencilled in as an intermediate hurdler by ISU Coach Bob Beeten, also is a sprinter. He will join brother Mark Miller, one of the team's fastest, on the ISU club.

Most seeds win in net tournament

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top-seed Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., defeated Antonio Munoz of Spain, 6-1, 7-6, Tuesday in first round play of the Washington Star-News International Tennis Tournament.

Munoz won the first game, but Smith came back with six games in a row to win the first set 6-1. The next set was closer with Smith having to score a tiebreaker to win 7-6.

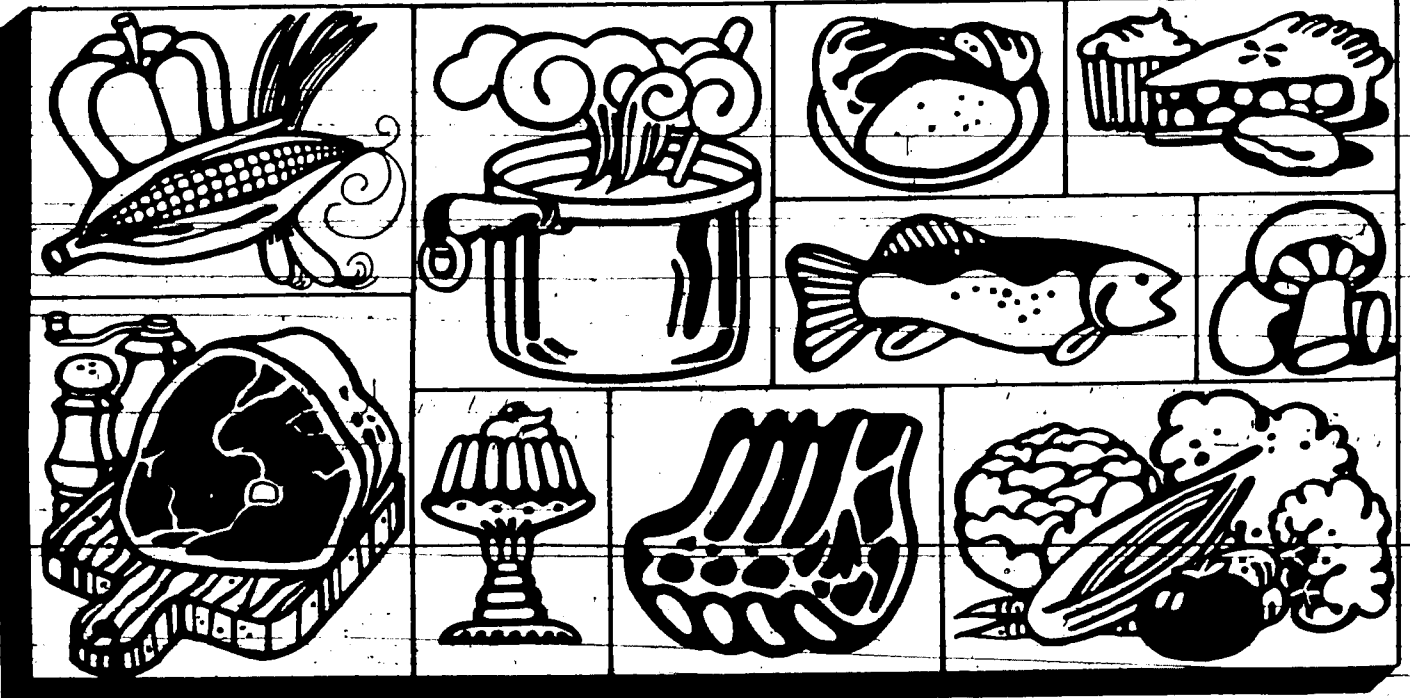

Tom Okker of the Netherlands, seeded second in the tournament, had little difficulty in beating Mike Kreiss of Los Angeles, 6-3, 6-2.

Third-seeded Arthur Ashe of Miami lost the first set to Graham Stilwell of Great Britain, but came back to win, 5-7, 6-2, 6-3, for his first round victory.

Unseeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina defeated No. 4 seed Mangel Orantes of Spain, 7-5, 6-1, while sixth seed Marty Riessen of Chicago had little difficulty overcoming Torben Ulrich of Denmark, 6-3, 6-2.

food.

It costs enough to buy it. Don't waste money to cook it.

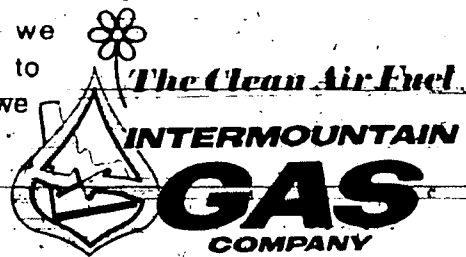

It just doesn't make sense. You can shop for food bargains to save money. Then spend the money you save on expensive cooking heat. Why not shop for an energy bargain?

Cook with gas. It costs less than electric cooking. A gas range operates at 35% less cost for home cooking than a comparable electric range. By cooking with gas, you have exact heat control... instant on and instant off. You can broil with the oven door closed, conserving heat and helping to keep your kitchen clean and cool. And a gas oven cleans itself while in use, so no extra gas is used during a separate cleaning cycle. Stretch your cooking dollar like you stretch your food dollar.

In Idaho we have gas to burn but we want to burn it wisely.

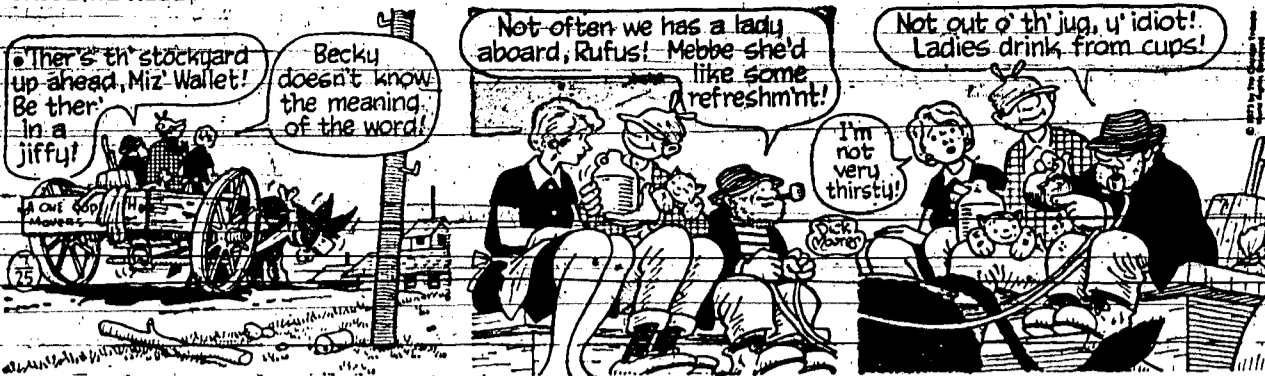

We'll finance it. Make monthly payments with your gas bill.

OUT OUR WAY

THE WORRY WART

What's What

L. M. Boyd

Consider, please, the mothers of famous men. What have they had in common? Three things, says a scholar who has studied same. They've appeared to be: 1. Discipline-minded. 2. Religious. 3. And rather poor if not downright impoverished. Remember that, young lady. If you're strict, devout and broke, maybe your son will be renowned.

It's the Irish who put away the most grub. They average 3,450 calories a day that beats citizens hereabouts who only average 3,290. Or so the UN statisticians say. The Indonesians eat the least with only 1,750 calories.

When a national magazine surveyed 3,995 girls under age 20, it found that 33 per cent of them don't date at all and 30.5 per cent go steady.

Now here's a study which indicates 89 per cent of the divorced fathers don't meet their child-support commitments.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS

Q "What proportion of the new mothers suffer that thing called post-birth blues?"
A About half.

Q "Louie, can you name the vegetables mentioned in the Bible?"

A Not offhand, regret to report. Will check. Do know the potato isn't mentioned, though. That's why the Puritans wouldn't eat same when Sir Walter Raleigh introduced it into England.

Q "What's a 'rubbermake'?"
A An oddball reptile of the box constrictor family with a tail that looks almost exactly like its head. Crawls around the northwestern part of this country and southwestern Canada. When attacked, it curls up in such a manner that the head is completely covered but the tail is exposed. Predators keep hitting the wrong end, the dummies. Gets pretty scared up.

BURPING COWS

Believe I told you 10 cows burp enough gas each year to heat a small home. That data came from the Environmental Protection Agency. Main thrust of its complaining report was that burping cows nationwide emit 50 million tons of hydrocarbons into the atmosphere annually. This, said the EPA, means cows must rank as the No. 1 source of air pollution. Ah, my Aunt Mimi!

Q "Do you suppose a skunk is likewise repulsed by its own horrible scent?"

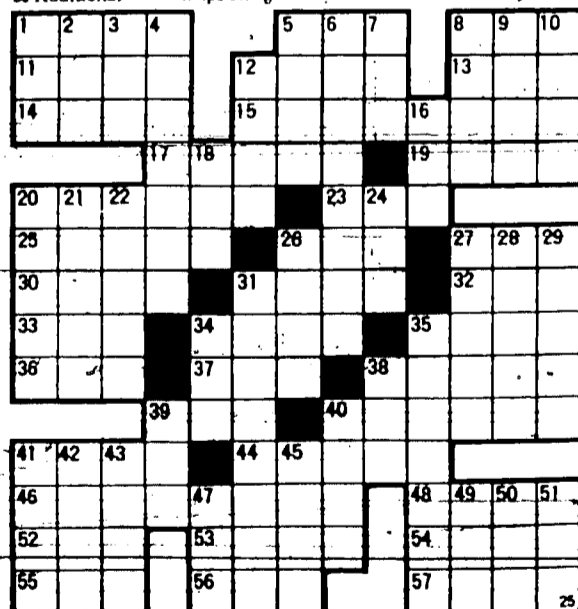

A Don't know, don't know. But some scholars think so. What else, they inquire, is the little beast so reluctant to fire?

It was that philosopher Adlai E. Stevenson who observed: "Man are sometimes cruel, but Man is kind. Meh are sometimes greedy, but Man is generous. Men are mortal, but Mah is immortal." That's about it.

MAJOR HOOPLE

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, apparently still riding the crest of favorable earnings reports, opened higher in moderate trading Wednesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

Shortly after the opening, the Dow Jones industrial average had risen 1.36 to 920.08, with advancing issues almost three-to-one ahead of declines, among 312 traded.

On Tuesday, the market staged a turnaround after being moderately lower during most of the session. The rally in the last trading hour carried the Dow 5.57 higher to 918.72, the average's seventh consecutive advance.

Analysts continued to peg the current rise on superlative second quarter earnings being posted by many corporations. However, Watergate intruded on the market's winning streak for the better part of Tuesday, demonstrating the scandal's persistent psychological impact.

Observers also cautioned the market has not yet solved all its problems. One of these, the competition offered common stocks by the increasingly attractive interest rates offered by banks, could draw more investment dollars away from Wall Street.

Grain sale probe turns to agency's briefings

(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — The Central Intelligence Agency will be asked to disclose what briefings it gave high Agriculture Department officials before the 1972 Russian wheat deal.

How much agriculture officials may have known in advance about the deal and the world market conditions that led to it continues to be the focus of a probe by the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee.

Wash. the subcommittee's chairman, said that it will attempt to get the CIA to divulge the content of the briefings in executive session.

He made the statement yesterday after hearings during which Carroll G. Brunthaver, assistant secretary of agriculture, and others said repeatedly that the department had not seen, could not remember, or did not believe reports that was imminent.

The testimony prompted another subcommittee member, Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., to remark that the deal, which caused widespread price increases, transportation disruptions, may have been a "bitter price to pay" to learn how to deal with a shrewd team of buyers from a large, centralized government such as the Soviet Union.

Monday, subcommittee investigators noted the state department notified agriculture in late June that a three-man Soviet wheat buying mission had been granted a visa to enter the United States.

Brunthaver said his memory was hazy about a visit to his office on July 3 by Bernard Steinweg, vice president of the Continental Grain Co., who testified earlier that he told Brunthaver that the Russian team had offered to buy over 4 million metric tons of wheat from Continental.

And Brunthaver said he did not remember a phone call Steinweg says he made on July 6, telling Brunthaver that Continental had signed the sales contract with the Russians — the first and largest transaction in the unprecedented 12-million ton sale.

"Surely there must be some way you can check these things out," said Jackson, who added that he would arrange a new hearing so Steinweg and Brunthaver could appear for a confrontation over the reported meeting and phone call.

Jackson and other subcommittee members have repeatedly referred to the fact that the impact of the Russian trade cost the US over $300 million in subsidy payments to wheat exporters during the late summer of 1972.

By setting the Russians over 350 million bushels then in US surplus wheat stocks, they have pointed out, all or most of the subsidy payments could have been avoided.
