Astros begin record space study venture

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 2 astronauts moved into America's orbiting station Saturday night and wrapped up the start of man's longest space adventure—a 59-day study of the sun, earth and man himself.

Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma headed the space laboratory for an unprecedented research program, designed to benefit both the scientist and common man.

The astronauts started out ahead of schedule in their housekeeping tasks but Bean reported at 7:45 p.m. MDT that he and Garriott experienced a slight feeling of nausea in moving about in the big spaceship too quickly. And he said Lousma took a motion sickness pill and skipped dinner.

Dr. Paul Buchanan, the flight surgeon, said later that Lousma "is having slight nausea with rapid and frequent movements." He said Bean and Garriott were well and did not sound excessively tired after he talked to them privately by radio.

"We've had to move extremely slowly to keep from causing any vestibular problems with ourselves," Bean said, referring to himself and Garriott. "By that, I think both Owen and I have a little bit of stomach awareness so we tend to be fairly careful how we move."

After docking with Skylab on the first try, Bean, Garriott and Lousma entered their new space "penthouse" and turned on the lights and air conditioning like vacationers reopening a summer home.

"From telemetry, your systems are looking good," ground communicator Bruce McCandless told the pilots before they settled down for the night.

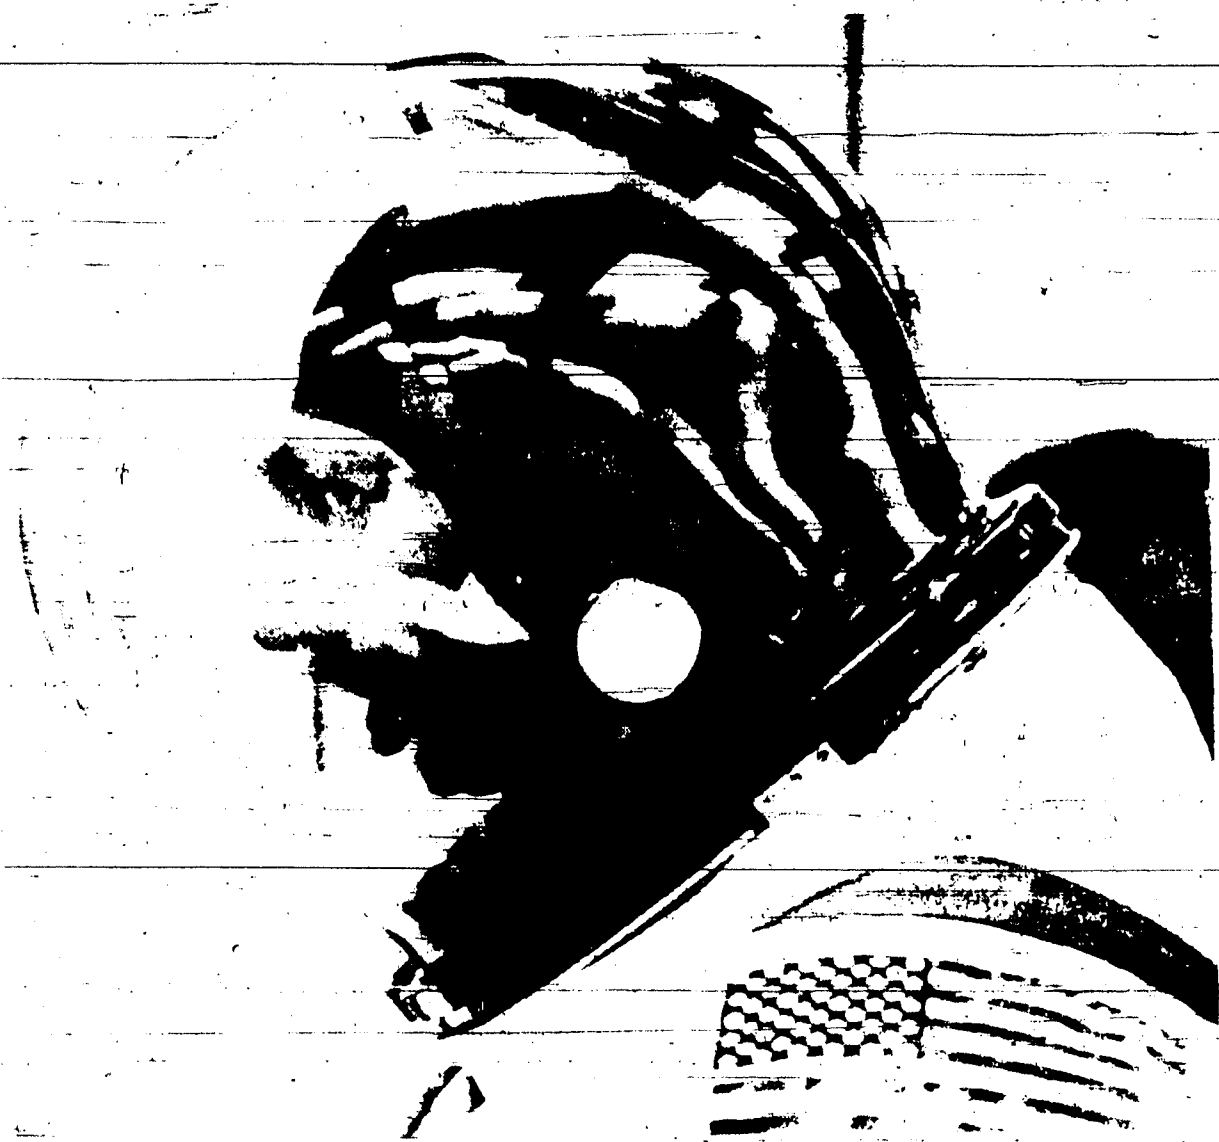

McCandless offered to give the astronauts more work to do in the lab before bedtime, but Bean said they had plenty to do.

"We've got a ton of little things here that we can spend hours doing," the commander said. "Before we launched, I didn't know we'd have quite so much storage. We've got a lot of things we've got to stack somewhere."

The crew will spend two days setting up the spacious living quarters and moving equipment from their Apollo ferry ship. Included in the bulk of materials are two spiders—Arabella and Anita—and an aquarium of minnows scientists will study to learn more of the effects of weightlessness on life.

The hundreds of hours of research planned for the mission began soon after launch with an experiment mounted on the pilot's Saturn rocket. The instrument mapped half the sky for faint star sources and radiated back the data.

"We're very happy at this time and looking forward to a good 59-day mission," said flight director Donald Puddy after the Apollo docked with Skylab.

Iowa family slain

ANITA, Iowa (UPI) — Five members of a farm family, including three children, were found slain Saturday in what authorities described as a murder-suicide.

Authorities said the bodies of five members of the Estey Smith family were discovered in their home near Anita by a neighbor, Max Jones, who had noticed no activity on the farm in recent days.

The victims were identified as Smith and his wife, Kay, in their mid 30s; and their three children—Ricky, 15, Tammie, 13, and Craig, 10.

Officers said Smith apparently shot his wife and children and then killed himself. The bodies, clad in night clothes, were found in their bedrooms.

Kent State girl fined

MIAMI (UPI) — Mary Vecchio, the terror-stricken teen-ager who was photographed kneeling over a victim in the Kent State shootings three years ago, pleaded no contest Saturday to a charge of offering to commit prostitution.

Miss Vecchio, now 17, was given credit for spending one day in jail, fined $50 and released. She was given until Sept. 18 to pay the fine.

Fire rages near Sandpoint

SANDPOINT (UPI) — The Forest Service poured more men and equipment into the Kaniksu National Forest Saturday in an effort to control a stubborn fire which has blackened about 640 acres of timberland.

A total of about 500 men were either on the firelines or in the main basecamp in the Rattle Creek area about 25 miles northeast of here by day's end.

A forest service spokesman said the man-caused blaze is posing no real threat at the present time and only a few trouble spots are preventing crews from building a line completely around the fire.

US 'offensive' in Germany told

(c) N. Y. Times Service

BONN, W. Germany — United States Army intelligence has begun a program of "offensive counterintelligence" against anti-army civilian groups in West Germany — tapping their telephones, photographing their meeting places and trying to infiltrate them, according to intelligence agents.

The agents, who believe that the program is illegal, have protested by disclosing to the New York Times operational orders and copies of transcripts of telephone conversations monitored by American intelligence here.

They say that the counteroffensive includes some operations against German civilian organizations, which, according to explicit written instructions were not to be mentioned to German authorities.

The purpose of the operations, the agents say, is to collect information on both civilian and military groups and on individuals in West Germany who the army believes are encouraging desertion or otherwise causing trouble.

The army's European headquarters in Heidelberg, questioned in detail this week about the allegations by the agents and about telephone tap transcripts obtained by the Times, responded in full.

Activities conducted within the Federal Republic of Germany for the security of USAREUR (United States Army, Europe) are conducted in accordance with US law, FRG law and the status-of-forces agreement. This headquarters does not confirm or deny specific classified operations.

Subpoenas set

(c) Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — The Senate Watergate Committee is ready to subpoena dozens of tape recordings of President Nixon's conversations if it wins a court ruling in favor of its initial effort to secure five White House tapes.

The subpoena of the five recordings of conversations between Nixon and former White House counsel John W. Dean III "was only to open the door," said Rufus Edmisten, deputy counsel of the committee.

Should the courts uphold this subpoena, said Edmisten, then "we'll go in immediately" with subpoenas for tapes of other relevant conversations involving the President.

In particular, the committee wants tapes of Nixon's discussions with former White House aides John Ehrlichman, H. R. Haldeeman, Charles W. Colson and with the former Attorney General, John N. Mitchell, sources said.

I-80 crash kills three from MV

BURLEY — Three persons were killed and two others seriously injured in a grinding head-on crash on Interstate 80 south of Burley Friday night.

Idaho State Police identified the dead as David S. Allen, 22, Acequia; Candis L. Wilson, 22, Paul, and Halvor K. Jones, 52, Wendell. All three died at the accident scene Friday evening.

In serious condition Saturday in Cassia Memorial Hospital were Evelyn G. Jones, 31, apparently the wife of Halvor Jones, and Windy Jones, 12, his daughter, both of Wendell.

State police said it appeared Allen, driving a 1968 Volkswagen northbound on Interstate 80, fell asleep at the wheel. His vehicle, traveling at an estimated 60 miles per hour, crossed the center line, colliding head-on with a 1973 Mazda driven by Jones. Officers said the highway at the scene of the accident, about two miles south of the Cotterell Port of Entry, narrows to two-way traffic and from four lanes to two lanes. The accident occurred at the point the four-lanes diverts into two lanes, officers said.

Both vehicles were demolished by the impact, State Patrolman Dee Davis said. Miss Wilson was a passenger in the southbound vehicle driven by Wilson. The two others were in the Wendell auto.

Cassia County coroner Roger Porter said he plans to meet with Gordon Nielson, Cassia County Prosecuting Attorney, to determine if an inquest is needed. Porter said at this point he does not see any need for an inquest. Investigation is continuing, Office Davis said.

Allen was attending classes at Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, and had completed a two year LDS Mission in Australia. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Allen, Acequia.

Miss Wilson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilson, Paul, had graduated from BYU in April and had just signed a contract to teach elementary school in Salt Lake City.

French explode second nuke device

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (UPI) — France, disregarding protests from a half dozen nations, exploded a second nuclear device above the South Pacific, New Zealand officials said Sunday.

The device was suspended from a yellow balloon hoisted over Mururoa Atoll, 720 miles southeast of Tahiti. It was detonated at 11:03 a.m. Sunday New Zealand time (5:03 p.m. Saturday MDT), accompanied by a white mushroom-like cloud, but no visible fireball.

At the time of the blast it was Saturday afternoon on Mururoa, which is across the International Date Line from New Zealand.

New Zealand and Australia immediately filed protests about the explosion, as they had against the first atmospheric test.

Fraser Colman, a New Zealand cabinet minister aboard the frigate Canterbury, which was sailing 22 miles from the blast as a protest, said the explosion appeared to be "far smaller" than the French blast last Saturday based on the nature of the cloud formation.

A New Zealand defense ministry spokesman said the blast was probably in the same range as the first explosion. He said wind factors might have accounted for the difference in the cloud formation. The first French 1973 explosion was estimated by New Zealand at about five kilotons, a device having the explosive force of 5,000 tons of TNT.

Colman, minister of mines and immigration, said in a telephone interview with UPI in New York that there was an apparent delay of four hours in triggering the blast. "We strongly suspect that something went wrong," he said.

Total US pullout in Indochina hinted

(c) Chicago Sun Times

WASHINGTON — A tentative decision has been reached to withdraw a second squadron of B-52's from Southeast Asia before the Aug. 15 deadline for ending the bombing, a reliable Administration official has disclosed.

The official interpreted the withdrawal as "the beginning of the pullout of U.S. airpower from Indochina." He implied yesterday that it represented a recognition by President Nixon that Congress cannot be persuaded to approve a resumption of the bombing in Cambodia.

Withdrawal of the B-52 squadron — 15 planes — would reduce the B-52 force level in Southeast Asia below 200 for the first time in five years. In the first force reduction since the B-52 was first used in Indochina in 1965, another squadron was withdrawn two weeks ago.

In announcing that withdrawal, the Pentagon said "no additional deployment is planned at this time." But in the interim Nixon evidently has decided he cannot crank up the air war again.

The president was forced reluctantly to accept the Aug. 15 cutoff imposed by Congress earlier this month but apparently hoped to be able to resume the bombing to salvage his policy in Cambodia.

There has been speculation that he would try to circumvent Congress but Melvin Laird, former Defense Secretary and now Nixon's chief domestic adviser, declared Thursday: "that will not be done."

He said: "The President has indicated that he will go to the Congress for an extension of authority should that be deemed necessary."

But the Administration official acknowledged that Nixon's position has deteriorated in the last two weeks and that it is unlikely he could get Congress to go along. Already hurt by the Watergate scandal, the President has been further compromised by disclosure that official reports were fabricated on the secret bombing of Cambodia in 1969 and 1970.

Nixon is seeking a political compromise in Cambodia and, as the Chicago Sun-Times reported two weeks ago, is prepared to jump the entire U.S.-supported regime there and agree to the return of Prince Norodom Sihanouk who was ousted in 1970.

Henry A. Kissinger, the President's national security advisor, has asked for a meeting with Sihanouk during his visit to Peking this summer. He had hoped to make the trip next week but has now delayed it until after Aug. 15 because of the refusal of the Cambodian dissidents to negotiate until after the bombing has stopped.

The State Department insisted last week that the secret bombing in Cambodia in 1969 and 1970 was requested by Sihanouk who demanded that it not be made public. Sihanouk, who has blamed the Central Intelligence Agency for the coup against him, denied making any such request.

However, Laird, who was defense secretary at the time, declared that he carried out the secret bombing orders on the assurance that it was expressly sought by Sihanouk.

Laird defended Nixon for having declared at the time of the U.S. incursion into Cambodia in April, 1970, that "for five years neither the United States nor South Vietnam has moved against enemy sanctuaries (in Cambodia) because we did not wish to violate the territory of a neutral nation."

Laird explained that "the President was talking about the use of American combat forces there" and so was not really making a misleading statement in light of the prior bombing raids.

Nixon defender has 'good answer'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House legal consultant Charles Alan Wright says he will have "a good answer" in court to the question whether President Nixon is putting himself above the law in refusing to release the Watergate tapes.

Wright, 45, a self-styled conservative legal scholar and admirer of Nixon, told reporters recently he is convinced that the President is on "sound constitutional grounds" under the doctrine of separation of powers in ignoring subpoenas for documents and tapes of Nixon's conversations with former aides on the Watergate affair.

It was Wright who wrote the letter last Monday to special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox informing him of Nixon's decision to withhold the tapes, a decision that prompted Cox and the Senate Watergate committee to issue the subpoenas.

Convicts riot

Rebellious convicts surrender

McALESTER, Okla. (UPI) — About 150 rebellious convicts, some drunk on moonshine whiskey, laid down their knives, meat cleavers and axes Saturday and released 11 hostages they held during 22 hours of rioting and burning at the Oklahoma State Prison.

The inmates—last of about 600 to surrender—returned to their cells, and guards began a sweep of the prison. They said they would search every inmate and every cell for weapons.

The red brick penitentiary, built two blocks long in 1909, was left a smoking shell that Oklahoma officials said would cost $10 million to replace.

At least two convicts were killed—both slashed again and again by knives, apparently by fellow inmates. And 26 persons were injured, including five prison employees who were among the 21 original hostages taken when the riot began Friday.

Prison officials said convicts had fought among themselves and the death toll might rise as guards and National Guard troops searched the shattered compound for more bodies.

"You are going to find inmates who are injured. You are going to find inmates who are dead," said Ed Hardy, a governor's assistant, after the hostages were released.

Gov. David Hall flew by helicopter from Oklahoma City to McAlester and met with inmate leaders on their demands for amnesty and prison reform. Hall refused to meet with the rebels until they all surrendered and released their hostages.

"I think the whole state can say a prayer that these men and their families will be together tonight—they will not be lying on their backs in the prison yard," the governor said of the hostages. "Order has been restored. The prisoners have been returned to their cells."

J. E. Martin, a guard who was one of the 11 freed hostages, said the leaders of the revolt were drunk.

"They made the booze right here in prison," Martin said. "Most of the ringleaders were drunk. It was some kind of an ordeal."

UPI photographer Gary Edwards, one of several newsmen admitted to the prison to talk with inmates after they released the hostages, said he overheard one guard, who was a hostage, tell another guard: "I've already got mine picked out. I'm going back in there and whomp 'em."

Marvin Gibson, an inmate from Youngstown, Ohio, said prisoners often were mistreated at McAlester.

"They made us in the cells. You're only supposed to use it in self defense," Gibson said. "I can't change my shorts often enough—they just rot off. You get one shower a week if you're lucky."

Widows' exemption discussed

BOISE (UPI) — A legislative tax committee has agreed to explore the possibility of eliminating automatic tax exemptions for widows in Idaho.

The committee, headed by Rep. Allan Larsen, R-Blackfoot, has asked Boise state Sen. Edith Miller Kline, a Republican, to research widows' exemptions and the proposal.

Another proposal discussed during a committee meeting Friday is designed to give county commissioners more power in determining who qualifies for local property tax exemptions.

Larsen said under the present law some elderly persons are being "taxed out of their homes."

The proposed legislation would give county commissioners latitude in determining who qualifies for a tax break.

Gem solons nix pay hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of Idaho's congressional delegation made it clear Friday they would not support pay hikes for members of Congress, the judiciary and top executive branch employees.

Sen. Frank Church, R-Idaho, co-sponsored a Senate resolution to disapprove any salary increases for the three areas if the President recommended such pay-hikes this year.

The resolution is a stronger

Federal funds not available

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho Rep. Orval Hansen said Friday the law does not permit using federal funds to establish an independent state program to monitor radiation.

He referred to the suggestion by the Idaho Department of Environmental and Community Services that the National Reactor Testing Station be independently monitored, possibly with the Atomic Energy Commission footing the bill.

Hansen said Idaho does have full authority to establish a program with state funds if it wishes. "Other states including Washington, Oregon and California have their own programs to monitor activities involving the use of radioactive materials," he said.

He added, "I do not believe a separate state program to check on the Atomic Energy Commission is necessary, however. It would duplicate the work the AEC has been doing for more than two decades at the NRTS in eastern Idaho."

Aerial tour set Aug. 10

BQISE — A group of officials, including Idaho office holders, will make an aerial inspection tour Aug. 10 of potential geothermal energy sites in southeastern Idaho, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus announced Friday.

The tour will be held in conjunction with Congressional hearings Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, will hold the same day in Idaho Falls on the same subject.

Andrus announced the aerial tour would begin with a 6:30 a.m. departure from the Idaho Falls airport. Aside from the governor and members of the Congressional committee, Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho and Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, as well as members of the AEC Advisory Committee on Geothermal Energy will participate.

The tour will last until the 10 a.m. Church is chairman of the Interior Subcommittee on Water and Power Resources, which is conducting the hearings at the Westbank Motel in Idaho Falls.

"I expect those on the aerial tour will note the close proximity of the NRTS site to adjoining areas along which may be found hot springs and wells which indicate a geothermal heat source," Andrus stated.

Following the fly-over of the AEC site and the rifts, the helicopters will swing south to Bridge, Idaho, where they will set down close to the so-called Raft River geothermal site, the governor reported.

"At Bridge, those on the tour will be able to view water from one or two wells which is still boiling at the ground level. These Raft-River wells are just two of the many obvious sites in Idaho possessing a great potential for the development of geothermal energy," Andrus said.

Andrus is expected to appear first before the committee following the flight.

62 years of dirt

Face-lifting planned for old TF courthouse

By BONNIE JONES Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — A face-lifting for the old Twin Falls county courthouse is being planned by county commissioners.

At 11 a.m. Tuesday the board will open bids for cleaning and refurbishing the exterior of the building. Nobody seems to recall the 62 year old brick and concrete building has even been cleaned and refurbished on the outside other than for an occasional repainting of the wooden window trim.

Commissioners say the step may well cost taxpayers $40,000 to $50,000 but they feel the maintenance, although costly, could mean extending the life of the building by a number of years and prevent an even costlier replacement.

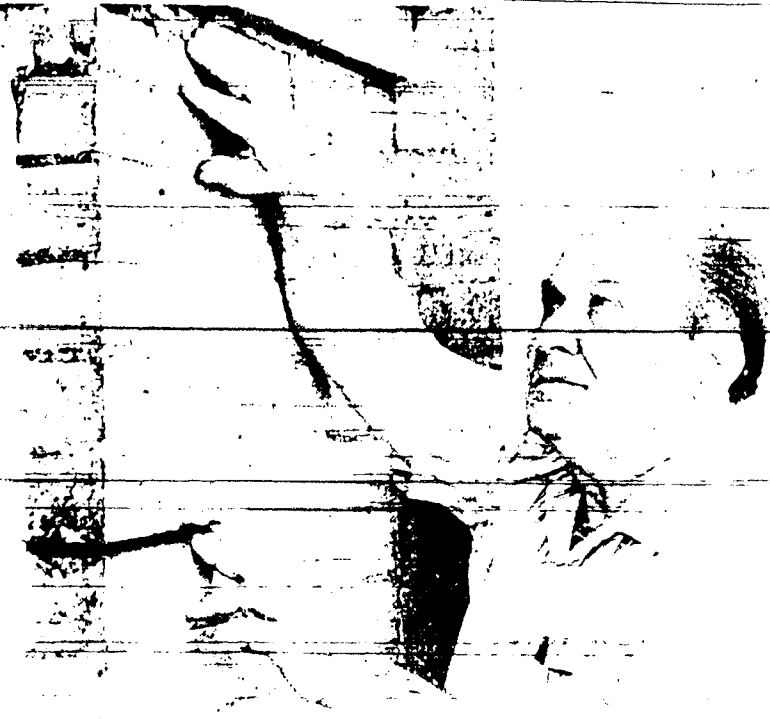

Commissioners say the old building is sound in structure and has already undergone a number of interior changes. A major one is coming up later this summer in the way of remodeling the fourth floor jail area.

In this and other remodeling, efforts have been made to retain the original design and decor of the building including the elaborate hardwood stairs and other woodwork. In addition to providing adequate office space for a majority of the county's business operations, the building has historic value, commissioners say.

A close inspection of the building shows numerous cracks in the brick and mortar and a heavy collection of smoke and dirt on the concrete pillars and building trim. On the roof area around the fourth floor many bricks are falling out where aging mortar has given way. All of this will be repaired under the contract to be let following the Tuesday big opening.

William Chancey said when estimates on the project began running near the $50,000 mark commissioners dropped plans for the project, but after a more thorough inspection of the building's exterior condition commissioners decided some steps should be taken as soon as possible and that part of the county's revenue sharing funds would be well spent in preserving the roof.

Mortar crumbles

CRUMBLING MORTAR around the upper portion of the four-story Twin Falls County courthouse is pointed out by Commission Chairman William L. Chancey. Several areas in which the 62-year old mortar has let go will require patching in the exterior refurbishing of the building.

UP railroad wants to abandon TF-Wells line

TWIN FALLS — The Union Pacific Railroad Co. wants to abandon its Twin Falls-Wells line, according to an official of the Idaho Transportation Council, (ITC).

"But no formal application to accomplish that has yet been filed, according to the chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission

Mrs. Ilene Ross, secretary of the Board of the ITC said efforts are under way to ensure the application of low rates applied to the Twin Falls-Wells lines are transferred to other lines should that service be dropped.

According to Mrs. Ross, the ITC, through its attorney acting for the Idaho Bean Commission and the Idaho Wheat Commission, is seeking the transfer of the lower rates to other lines.

A UP official confirmed

Friday no application had been formally filed to stop operations on the line, but Ed Shafer, the spokesman, said he didn't know whether the company had those plans in mind.

In a July 24 letter stating the ITC had not received abandonment application from the railroad for the line, George Stafford, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C. said

"If and when such a proposal is filed with the Commission, the railroad will be required to advise the general public by posting a notice at every station along the line proposed for abandonment and publish such notice for three consecutive weeks in some newspaper of general circulation in each county in or through which said line of railroad is operated. This notice will contain instructions for the filing of protests, Stafford said."

OK funds

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Boise Cascade Corp. board of directors Thursday authorized the company to increase commitments for its 1973 capital program an additional $15 million to a total of $130 million.

About $80 million of the committed funds will be actually spent by the end of the year.

In other action Thursday, the board elected Howard S. Kniffin, a general partner in a New York investment banking firm, as a director.

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

He Must Paint Himself Out

WASHINGTON — Richard Nixon has painted himself into a corner on these matters of "executive privilege" and "separation of powers." A way has to be found for him to paint himself back out.

This is not merely for the good of Mr. Nixon and the good of his party; these particular fringe benefits have something less than universal appeal. It is simply for the good of the country that the President discover some face-saving way to save his own face. He is the only president we have, or likely will have, until January of 1977; the Gallup Poll finds that 49 per cent of the people now disapprove of his conduct of the office; and this is no way to run a railroad.

In refusing to turn over certain tapes and documents to the Senate investigating committee, or to a grand jury, the President conceives that he is acting out of pure principle. He is fulfilling his "constitutional obligation to preserve intact the powers and prerogatives of the presidency." To yield the papers would "jeopardize the fundamental constitutional role of the presidency."

But the trouble with this position — one trouble with it — is that the people generally will not see it as pure principle. They will see it as pure baloney. The doctrine of executive privilege is as pietistically misty, in its way, as the doctrine of the Holy Trinity, and political metaphysicians are no better than doctors of theology at explaining it. A president presumably has the Fourth Amendment right of any other citizen to be secure in his papers against unreasonable search and seizure, but any additional right of privacy has to be inferred from long custom and from extra-constitutional theory.

It is useless, I submit, for Mr. Nixon to keep trying to sell this bill of goods. He is up against a natural, understandable, and justifiable line of reasoning, to this effect: If the tapes helped to establish his innocence in the Watergate mess, the President would release them; the President refuses to release them; therefore, the tapes would not help to establish his innocence.

The President cannot escape such an inference. He is in roughly the position of a witness who declines to answer questions on the Fifth Amendment ground that truthful answers might tend to incriminate him. Such a refusal doubtless is based upon a proper constitutional right, but its exercise lays down a spoor of guilt. The President's present position is politically untenable. It must be discreetly abandoned.

What now? Let me venture a modest proposal. The President's objection is to being questioned by a Senate committee or by a grand jury. He is unwilling to set a precedent by which the executive may be coerced into surrendering its records to a coordinate body of government. Well and good. But suppose, to be supposing, that a way could be found for him to make these records available to an intermediate body with power to act as it deems best.

Specifically, suppose the President were to create an ad hoc committee of White House trustees. Such a body might include Arthur Krock, the most respected retired journalist in America, and former Sen. John Williams of Delaware, a gentleman whose integrity shines like a lighthouse. It might include such respected figures from law, journalism and public affairs as Earl Warren, George Reedy, Dean Rusk, retired Circuit Judge Albert Bryan, and Publisher John Knight.

Such trustees, chosen to command public confidence, would be remote from political partisanship and from constitutional inhibitions. The President could make all the relevant tapes and documents available to them without jeopardizing his constitutional position. The trustees then could transcribe, summarize, include, exclude, suppress or disclose as they wished; and my guess is that a public which is fed to the teeth with Watergate would accept the trustees' report, with relief, as an honest accounting.

This modest proposal is entirely my own. Others may have much better ideas for resolving the dilemma. My point is that the dilemma must be resolved. The President has 1,274 days, more or less, before his term expires. Many millions of Americans, the Gallup Poll notwithstanding, do have confidence in Richard Nixon; they believe in his programs and want to see him fulfill them; and they do not want their President spending those days under a cloud of skepticism and mistrust.

Don't Believe It

The plan of Chief of Police Barnett to crack down on bicycle rider traffic violations will never work.

His ideas on the subject are well intentioned but he and members of his department — are heading into a dead end street.

Bicycle riders are governed by the same rules which govern automobile drivers. But there is a difference. Most bicycle riders have never paid any attention to the rules and most of them have no plans to do so.

It is a "lost" day when, driving about town, you do not see several major violations by bike riders. High among the violations is stop sign running, going on a one-way street in the wrong direction, traveling on the wrong side of the roadway, riding down the sidewalks and making "U" turns where they wish.

We can just see the policemen arresting juveniles for these violations. No jail would be big enough to hold them — and the parents who would immediately storm the bastions of justice with protests to the high heavens.

Such a drive has been tried before — in fact several times in our recollection during the 38 years we have been in these parts.

As we said, Chief Barnett's intentions are good, and such control is needed, but enforcement will never work. There must be an answer to the problem. Any ideas?

Plastic Society

Ours is often referred to as a "plastic" society, with unfavorable implications of cheapness and artificiality. In strictly literal terms, however, we have only begun to employ this versatile material.

Seers at the Stanford Research Institute, one of America's leading think tanks, have gazed into their crystal ball and predicted a phenomenal growth in consumer use of plastics by the year 2000.

Their figures suggest that just 27 years from now a good segment of the population will:

Be driving plastic cars. Will be living in plastic houses in some parts of the country may be living in a city covered by a clear plastic dome.

According to the experts, the automobile of the future may have enough plastic in it to cut the average total weight of a car in half — from today's 4,000 pounds to 2,000 pounds. Gas tanks, structural frames and possibly even axles and entire engines will be made of plastic rather than metal.

In homebuilding, fiber-reinforced plastics may be used for the beams of the 21st-century house beautiful. Polycarbonate windows (which resist breaking or scratching), plastic window frames, plastic rain gutters, plastic siding, piping and plumbing fixtures could make housing relatively much less expensive than it is today.

As for air-conditioned, domed cities, we already have domed stadiums, and soon shopping centers and malls will be protected with clear plastic domes.

One of the most important things about plastic is that it can be made by utilizing far less of our natural resources than in processing other materials.

For example, only 0.104 kilowatt-hour of energy is needed to make one cubic inch of polystyrene. This compares with 2.231 kwhr to make a cubic inch of copper piping instead of plastic, or 2.034 kwhr to make a cubic inch of aluminum residential home siding instead of plastic, or 1.101 kwhr to make a cubic inch of steel automobile part instead of one of plastic.

Today, only about one per cent of our total energy stream is used for making plastics, says Ralph L. Harding, president of the Society of the Plastics Industry, out of 40 per cent of the energy stream used by all of American industry.

No Better Word For It

WASHINGTON — John D. Ehrlichman wasn't known as feisty during his glory days in the White House. He was deemed "cool, judicious, thoughtful, not especially combative or contentious."

But battlings for his honor, integrity and, perhaps, freedom before the senate watergate committee, President Nixon's former top domestic aide has been feisty.

There's no better word for it. He declines to defer to his inquisitors, rejecting their premises, their indignation, their suspicions. Where the senators see contradictions and inconsistencies in his testimony, Ehrlichman displays a superior impatience with them.

His White House experience obviously has provided him with the armor of station and arrogance. He finds no inhibitions in lecturing veteran legislators on those little secrets of the bureaucracy by which bureaucrats live and survive.

To maintain this posture of innocence, he has had to impugn the judgments of the Elshberg trial Judge Matthew Byrne, Kleindienst, former presidential counselor John W. Dean III, his own staff man Egil Bud Krogh, and even by careful and probably reluctant indirection, the President himself.

Approaching Byrne to see if he might be interested in the post as FBI head, Ehrlichman was simply performing a "ministerial" function as the President's agent, he told Sen. Daniel Inouye (D-Hawaii). He pictured Byrne as virtually slaving for the opportunity to succeed the late J. Edgar Hoover, about whom the witness also had some outspokenly critical remarks.

If there was any impropriety in "feeling out" Byrne on the post, especially while he presided over a case in which the White House had as Inouye put it, "more than a casual interest," it was up to the judge to state it, according to Ehrlichman. Byrne did not in fact, he asked to see Ehrlichman a second time to emphasize his interest in the FBI post.

Ehrlichman was precise. Kleindienst saw no impropriety in it, nor did the President. And if there was any canon of ethics violated by his action, Ehrlichman challenged Inouye, he'd like to have it cited for him.

Ehrlichman disputed the recollections of Mitchell and Dean repeatedly. And when Inouye asked if he had done nothing wrong, why did the President "fire you?" Ehrlichman denied he was fired. Why didn't he insist "you stay on board?" Inouye inquired and Ehrlichman explained it was his idea to resign, not the President's.

Ehrlichman said he was before the committee to deny any implication in a coverup but also not to make charges against others. The evidence, he said, would speak for itself.

When Inouye finished, through an open mike, the words "What a liar!" were heard by millions of television viewers. Inouye was quoted as the source of the remark.

It is the curse of John Ehrlichman that the caucus room audience is plainly not partial to him. Before yesterday's hearing began, he read from a sheaf of telegrams, all but one of which was favorable, he said. A poll of the audience probably would have produced an opposite result.

But he is not cowed, not intimidated, by all appearances. And as yet, no questioner has managed to disturb his aplomb for more than a minute or two at a time. Other witnesses, particularly those refuted by Ehrlichman, may get inside that armor. The senators have had a problem.

Rivers takes the phone "I gotcha, Mr. Novak. Let the guy keep the $25,000 and leave another $25,000 in the phone booth for the lawyer. I'm sorry, Mr. Novak, for the botchup. Yes, I agree with you. There just aren't any honest people in the world any more."

The Other Side

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Board of Education and Board of Regents deals with approximately $100 million in taxpayers' money the state spends on education annually.

A powerful and important body in state government, its members congregate monthly to make policy, review budgets, iron out problems, recommend which buildings to build and which to shelve, and in general keeps an eye, with its variety of committees and full board meetings, on the state of education in Idaho.

Fortunately for the telegraph industry, it is also the Grand Supreme Being of Football for the State.

There may be someone in Idaho foolish enough to argue that $140 million dollars is more important than a football team. No one on the State Board of Regents would even whisper such treason.

Take the last board meeting, for example. The board met and went through the budgets for the state's four institutions of higher education. A lot of people yawned.

It went over the budgets for radiation leaks at the Snake River aquifer, a $3 million general fund surplus, and an educational television that was a historic first in, of all things, education.

Someone in Idaho wrote the attorney general and asked whether the process under which was 4-3 vote was cast was legal.

Superintendent of Public Instruction D. F. Engelking may participate in matters of higher education. The attorney general, who likes to read Playboy but may or may not be a football fan, still hasn't figured out what to do about that one.

Reporters started calling up other board members. If Engelking's vote is thrown out, will you switch your own? Board members even answered.

If we don't stop them in Vietnam, where will they stop?

If we can get the unit rifle overturned in California, maybe Humphrey can stop McGovern.

Whatever happened to the good old days when $100 million dollars was worth something?

A Buggy Story

Well, folks, here's your golden opportunity. The thirteenth annual collection of Fireflies by Sigma Firefly Scientists Club will begin shortly.

Anyone collecting fireflies through the Club will be paid weekly according to the quality of Fireflies that we caught and turned in that week. Payment is made on a sliding scale with $1 per hundred as the highest rate.

Fireflies are a valuable source of rare chemicals known to research scientists and chemists as the substrate, "Luciferin" and the enzyme "Luciferase." These chemicals are used in medical research for diagnostic purposes and the search for possible cures of human ailments, including cancer. Experiments are being conducted all over the world.

A recent new application is for the detection of water pollution. Bacteria in water supplies can now be detected in four hours; older techniques required 48 hours. With water pollution in some areas already at risky levels, this new application offers an added safeguard to public health.

Sigma Chemical Co., a division of Sigma International LTD in St. Louis is the major source of supply for the chemicals derived from the firefly. It is estimated that millions of Fireflies, often called "Lightning Bugs," are urgently needed for medical and scientific research during the coming year.

Catching Fireflies is a simple matter. A net is necessary and may be made at your home quite inexpensively by attaching a fine mesh cloth to a bent coat hanger. Nets are also available from the club.

So if you are interested in catching Fireflies, then why not write the Sigma Firefly Scientists Club, P. O. Box 14508, St. Louis, Mo. 63178.

Mr. Spectator would caution you folks to be sure to not lift too many Fireflies at one time. You might injure your back.

Also, he wonders why someone cannot find use for Earwigs so we could ship them out of this part of the country.

Also, are there any Fireflies in these here parts?

ART BUCHWALD

This—My Favorite Fantasy

WASHINGTON — Everyone has his favorite fantasy after watching the Watergate hearings. I got mine when I watched Tony Ulasewicz testify last week how he left manila envelopes filled with $100 bills in phone booths and airport lockers to pay off defendants and lawyers involved in the trial.

My fantasy is that I have to call my wife, so I walk into the lobby of a lawyer's building and head for a public phone booth. I dial my number and get a busy signal. I hang up, wondering how long she'll be on the phone. Then I notice a plain brown envelope taped to the side of the phone. I tear it open and find inside a wad of $100 bills.

I immediately call my wife again. "Remember I told you this morning we couldn't buy any steak for a month? Well, that statement is inoperative. Go out and get six of the most beautiful sirloins you can find." I look in the envelope again. "And you can buy some lettuce, too."

"But we can't afford it," she protests. "I just bought a dozen eggs."

"Don't argue," I say. "We're going to eat steak for a week."

I hang up, shove the envelope in my inside coat pocket and nonchalantly leave the booth.

A burly man with a part in the middle of his black, greasy hair comes up to me. "What are you doing with that manila envelope?"

"What business is it of yours?"

"It's my envelope."

"It doesn't have your name on it."

"If you don't give it to me I'll break your knees with a baseball bat."

Just then a man comes out of the elevator and goes to the phone booth. He searches it and comes out looking puzzled. Then he comes over to the burly man and says, "I thought you told me my $25,000 legal fee would be in the phone booth."

"It was in the booth," the burly man says, "but this joker took it out and he won't give it to me."

"There's a law against stealing someone's fee," the lawyer says.

"Show me where there is anything in this manila envelope to indicate this is a lawyer's fee," I reply.

"Well, for one thing," the lawyer says nervously, "I always get paid in $100 bills."

"In a phone booth?"

"Our accountant is on vacation," he blushes.

The burly man says, "I better call Mr. Novak." He goes into the booth.

"Who's Mr. Novak?" I ask the lawyer.

"That's the code name for Mr. Kalmbach, the President's lawyer."

The burly man speaks into the phone. "Mr. Novak, this is Mr. Rivers. No, I didn't pay the lawyer because some guy picked up the lettuce in the phone booth before the lawyer got there. The guy won't give it back. Should we turn him over to the plumbers?"

Well, you better talk to him because I'm going to break his arm. Hey, Mac, Mr. Novak wants to speak to you."

I take the phone. "What's your name?" Novak asks.

"Gemstone Sedan Chair II," I reply.

"I understand you found $25,000 in cash in a phone booth."

"That's correct," I reply. "And as a lawyer you should know whatever someone finds in a phone booth belongs to him."

"It does not," he says. "It belongs to the phone company."

"Okay, I'll give the $25,000 to the phone company."

"No, Don't do that," Mr. Novak says. "All right, let us for the moment assume the money is yours. Would you be willing to donate it to a defense fund for the poor families and starving lawyers who are trying to help the misguided individuals who broke into the Democratic headquarters early in the morning on June 17?"

"Nope."

"Give me Mr. Rivers again."

Really! Small Car Wrecks Cost More!

By O.A. (Gus) KELKER
Editor, Times-News

With all the talk about substituting the small cars for the big cars to save gasoline, try to eliminate air pollution and what have you — it might come as a shock that the small cars have more costly wrecks than the big ones.

It all came to light in a Public Affairs Report published by the State Farm Insurance Companies. It crossed our desk a day or two ago and contained therein some eye openers.

It's no "off the cuff" report but rather a detailed summary and in depth study which documented a wide variation in both the frequency and the amount of collision losses for 93 series of 1972 model passenger cars. It is based on more than 60,000 collision claims supplied by State Farm, Kemper and Nationwide which are among the eight members making up the Highway Loss Data Institute.

The report concluded that "as a group, in general, full-size series tended to have slightly lower average loss payments per insured vehicle year than the other market classes. The specialty series, on the other hand had much higher average loss payments per insured vehicle year than the other market classes.

The report also pointed out vehicle series that were "identical in their make and their car line name" but had shorter wheelbase — in all cases the two-door models — had higher average losses per insured vehicle year than the corresponding longer wheelbase version, which in most cases were four-door models.

For example, the Ford Torino four-door model had a claim frequency of 9.8, an average loss payment of $446 and an average loss payment per insured vehicle year of $44, whereas the Ford Torino two-door models had corresponding results of 12.7 claim frequency, $485 average loss payment, and $62 average loss payment per insured vehicle year.

The report also:
(1) Showed that although the overall average loss payment for all of the cars was $485, the actual distribution of loss payments showed that the overwhelming bulk of the payments were for smaller amounts. The most frequent payment amount was from $60 to $80.

(2) Compared loss experience according to $50 and $100 deductible category particularly for the vehicle series with large exposures.

(3) Compared loss experience for cars with youthful drivers and those with no youthful drivers where there was at least 1,000 vehicle years of exposure. Youthful drivers were much less common for such cars as the Buick LeSabre, Ford Galaxie, Cadillac DeVille, which the study says demonstrates the fact that there is less youthful operator exposure in the full-size luxury and expensive specialty series than in the sub-compact, compact and intermediate series.

Claim frequency for the 13 makes studied was 10.9 claims per 100 insured vehicle years. The average loss payment was $485 and the average loss payment per insured vehicle year was $53.

The series with the four

HIGHEST results in each category:

—Claim-frequency per 100 insured vehicle years — AMC Javelin, 17.2; Mercury Cougar, 16.0; and Ford Mustang and Chevrolet Corvette, 15.6

Average loss payment per damage claim — Corvette $881; Volkswagen 411 Sedan, $645; Javelin, $612, and Pontiac Grand Prix, $590.

Average loss payment per insured vehicle year — Corvette, $137; Javelin, $105; Mercury Cougar, $84; Ford Mustang, $83.

The series with the four LOWEST results in each category:

Claim frequency per 100 insured vehicle years — Pontiac Catalina, 7.4; Chevrolet Impala and Chevrolet Caprice, 7.6; and Chevrolet Kingswood Station Wagon, 7.7.

Average loss payment per damage claim — Plymouth Satellite Station Wagon, $263; Chevrolet Bel Air, $359; and Dodge Coronet Station Wagon and Buick Estate Wagon, $386.

Average loss payment per insured vehicle year — Bel Air, $29; and Coronet Station Wagon, Plymouth Fury III and Kingswood Station Wagon, $32.

The non-profit organization was founded in December, 1972, as an outgrowth of a special data project started by the Insurance Institute For Highway Safety. Its purpose is to gather, process and provide the public with insurance data concerned with human and economic losses from highway crashes. Financial support comes from the member companies.

The research is intended to contribute to "research into ways for reducing highway damage to people and property." It could be used, for example, by the federal government in establishing motor vehicle standards or by manufacturers in voluntarily making certain cars less damageable. It could also be used by consumers in their car purchasing decision.

So there you have it — something to mull over in your mind. And, like we said, just because you have one of those big beauties doesn't mean for sure that you will have the biggest damage bill if you get hit

Essay: About Bona Fides

On Editorial Fantasy

Editor, Times-News:
In response to your bit of editorial fantasy (July 20th edition of Times-News) entitled "LET'S BE FAIR," I would like to suggest a more credible caption. Now that we have been fair, might the following be suggested? "LET'S TAKE A LOOK AT REALITY."

In searching to draw some inferences on what appears to be an amateurish attempt to propagandize, I have concluded that one or possibly a combination of the following inferences would have to apply. 1. This editorial reflects a gross ignorance concerning the dire implications which a broadening scandal of such magnitude holds for the future of this country and the principles on which it was founded. The matter truly transcends partisan politics. This ignorance could only be the outgrowth of deliberate rationalization or an apathetic, head in the sand attitude. 2. It represents a feeble, self indulgent offering by a newspaper to a community patronage whose over-all political coloration is, of course, certainly no secret. A patronage that seeks to placate itself amid the ever growing realization that it has been duped and condescended by the Nixon Administration which it so confidently voted into office for a second term, without so much as a second thought. Or — 3. The editorial was written for the sole purpose of eliciting just such a response as I am about to give, in which case, here it comes.

Now, lets take it from the top and place some of your incantations concerning so called accomplishments of the Nixon Administration into proper perspective.

First, you imply that the news media, with the help of others, is prejudiced against the Nixon Administration. Now it is hard to imagine anything that could be much further from the truth. On the contrary, it is rather amazing and is certainly a tribute to the media that it has been able to demonstrate the forbearance shown, in light of the frantic attempts by this administration to discredit and muzzle it.

You make mention of the 1972 election in which the "silent majority" gave the President a whopping endorsement for another term. What goes unmentioned, however, is that perhaps the reason for the silence of the majority in '72" was the probability that it was unknowingly forced into the position of having little real choice in the election. This was a situation brought about by fraudulent manipulation in the campaigns of opposition candidates and financed through a war chest of illegal contributions solicited by a small army of influence peddlers.

While it is true that Richard Nixon inherited a war in Vietnam, his war policy for four years amounted to little more than a dismal continuation of those of the Johnson Administration. What did Nixon do that could not have been done about three years ago, shortly after he first took office? And at a savings of thousands of lives and billions of dollars. Then we have the ridiculous suggestion that a Vietnam cease fire and the return of POWs was brought about by the development of a "new cordiality" with Russia.

The same war in Vietnam would be with us today were it not for the intense pressure applied on the administration through the force of public opinion and Congress. What you choose to call a "new cordiality" with Russia and Red China carries mounting evidence of a grand sell-out at the expense of American taxpayers and consumers.

"Crime statistics are looking better than they have in years, and efforts to make the streets safe for the citizens have been effective." Now there is a bold statement. Perhaps the streets are safer now since the crime has deserted the street and crept into the executive suite at the highest echelons of government and big corporate business. A glance at the pages of this newspaper, however, would even seem to cast doubt on your contention that the streets are now safer. (Note: "Police Probe TF Burglaries," "TF Man Faces Rape Charge") Maybe you ought to take a look at your own back yard.

As your editorial concludes, and here I agree, "Americans have long been known for their basic sense of fairness." It is precisely this concern, which I urgently hope will soon come to the fore, that is badly needed to displace the apathy and the political considerations which allow this self ordained monarch to continue in the perversion of justice that has been and is still being witnessed.

Failing this, when the euphoric bubble of complacency and false security breaks, as it surely must, it will be too late for America. Too late to break the chains of slavery.

Editorial Praise

Editor, Times-News:
Thanks for the editorial in Friday evening's Times-News. I refer to the editorial "Let's Be Fair" of July 20.

It expressed my views precisely. Why do people forget so easily and so quickly the good men do? Just a few short weeks ago our President Nixon was a "polly good fellow" for "sweating blood" to end the war in Vietnam and to get our boys home in good time. This he did.

Now they have turned so much criticism against him it is almost unbelievable. We should all stand by our President since we overwhelmingly chose to have him guide us for another four years. We should try to get congress to cooperate with him too.

More people. More troubles. Troubles were never so serious as in the past four or five years. Riots, murders, burning and destructions of all kinds. Even hijacking and the worst floods and storms in history. Then there is inflation, high prices and shortages in which we must all share the blame as we are a wasteful, careless people.

We have been told that things will never be the same again and that we must do without and must tighten our belts. Well, we have had that experience in our younger years. We did not get federal aid when our crops failed or disaster struck. We just had to get along until our luck was better.

So again I say thanks for the advise in "Let's Be Fair." Let's hope it catches on and wakes a lot of folks out of their hatred for our government needs us to believe in our constitution and our President. Thank you.

Into Her File

Editor, Times-News:
Congratulations to you on your editorial of July 20. Let's Be Fair. I often point out these facts to my friends but you have said it so much better. I wish we could have more such writeups also on the same page. Bruce Bissat and William Safire.

Some fine men have made an error in Watergate, but the world is weary of this committee and wish they would spend their time and our money trying to solve our problems of inflation instead of worrying in Watergate.

It matters not what this drama says. We know we have now and always will have the cream of American intelligence as leaders in our government.

In my opinion you have had but one of your editorials which I felt was unfair to President Nixon and that was not too long ago. And you were fair enough to publish a critical letter you received as a result of it.

Again my thanks and my appreciation for your good paper. This editorial page goes into my clipping file for keeps.

WASHINGTON A young senator with a sepulchral voice frequently bemoans a "constitutional confrontation."

Television reporters excited by the prospect of high drama talk about a "counterattack" by the President.

Scenario-writers project a dire series of moves' rejection by the courts of the President's refusal to release his tapes, followed by a refusal by the President to listen to the judicial branch, followed by impeaching and the sequestering to a part of American government.

Wait a minute. We are not spectators at a football game or a chess match. We are dealing with a strain on the system that preserves our freedom, and should approach the subject with more respect and less zest.

About ten days ago, the Watergate crisis had passed its peak, with the President hurt but not crippled, and the Congress dominating but not dominating. Events were in the hands of men.

Then, with the revelation of the omnipresent tape machine, men found themselves in the grip of events. With the inexorability of Greek tragedy, players followed the plot laid out by their characters and it roles in life the Senators had to speak for that tape evidence, the special prosecutor had to make his demand as well, and the President had to refuse both.

Even as this mechanical march toward an impasse was taking place, conceivable voices were making it possible for men to overtake events.

"I can understand the President's not releasing the tapes at this time," said Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield. "I'm sure he's waiting until this phase of the hearing is concluded. Then, he'll have his day in court."

Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, while dismissing the constitutional position put forth by White House counsel Charles Alan Wright as "without legal foundation," carefully added, "but I do not question its bona fides."

"Bona fides" means "good faith" — sincerity — and Cox went on: "In seeking and obeying a constitutional ruling with respect to these papers and records, we would promote the rule of law."

Attorney General Richardson issued a statement in a similarly restrained vein. "It seems to me important to try to work out some practical means of reconciling the competing public interests at stake."

These are not the voices of men hell-bent for sawing the executive branch off the governmental tree. At the White House, the reaction has a strong side and a conciliatory side.

1. Toward the Ervin committee, the attitude is "this far and no further." That's nothing new. Two weeks ago, it was decided that the committee had shown itself to be a hostile partisan political force.

2. The President decided that nobody — not the Senate, not the special prosecutor — will be given the tapes. They are ambiguous; their beauty is in the eye of the beholder; they contain all the varied material you might expect would be discussed at the center of power, and a few other things besides.

That's the strong part of the position, too — readily characterized, as a "counterattack."

The conciliatory side has different facets, too.

1. A White House spokesman said "there was no question that the President has abided by court rulings in the past and that he would" in the future. That means that if the Supreme Court were to surprise the President by ruling "turn over the tapes," he would of course do so. With their point won, the responsible men then entrusted with the tapes would become nearly as protective of their contents as the President himself. Nobody wants to be Pandora.

2. The President is sure to make another detailed report as foreshadowed in his May 22 statement; after the hearings, he will subject himself to press questioning and he is considering other ways to address himself thoughtfully to the most profound lessons of Watergate.

So let's all back off a little. We do not have three driverless cars careening wildly toward an intersection. We have a Constitution — born in compromise and men in each branch of government who respect each other and each other's institutions.

The cheerleaders on the sidelines of the game of separation of powers, played to no conclusion for almost two centuries, are well advised to remember that if somebody wins, the game is over — but when nobody loses, everybody wins.

Painfully Ironic

By BRUCE BISSAT
WASHINGTON (NEA)

One cannot look at the long sweep of events from 1971 to mid-1973 without being struck by the high intensity light focused upon President Nixon, and the painfully ironic consequences of that attention.

Endlessly, as the nation moved toward the presidential election of 1972, leading Democrats said "with thundering conviction and sometimes furious emotion that the outstanding need, not just for their party but for the good of the country, was 'the defeat of Richard Nixon.'"

And now we have heard from former Attorney General John Mitchell (and presumably will get the same from other top aides), that the re-election of Mr. Nixon was "of such paramount importance that it justified not telling him the whole sordid tale of the Watergate scandal. Mitchell's presumption, of course, was that the President would 'lower the boom' on the alleged culprits and thereby cost himself the election.

So, there you have it. The Democrats saying really that the United States could not survive another four years of Richard Nixon, and at least one high-placed Republican saying that the nation could not survive without him.

Thereupon, the Democrats proceeded to indulge in one of the strangest, most hervating and most self-centered of all their many bouts of internal warfare — and wound up with a 1972 nominee Mr. Nixon was able to crush by more than 18.5 million votes in winning 49 of the 50 states.

Where, in their most mindless self-entanglements, went the Democrats' great resolve to defeat Richard Nixon "at all costs?"

Meantime, if one is to judge from Mitchell's testimony to the Ervin Senate committee, the President's political managers could perceive none of the advantages steadily accruing to them from Democratic chaos and the clear emergence of crushable George McGovern as Mr. Nixon's adversary.

To the contrary, at a fate hour they still exhibited the fears and obsessions which led to the concoction of Watergate in the first place — notions growing out of the President's status as leader of a minority party, and his own seemingly conspiratorial view of most criticism directed against him.

In this frame of mine, according to Mitchell, he and others chose not to lay Watergate fully before Mr. Nixon.

Enter the deep irony. For, whatever effect their withholding of information (if that is the fact) had upon his election outlook, Mitchell and others thereby assured that — more than ever in his long public life — the President should thereafter become the object of deep distrust and suspicion among the American people.

So, the President indeed "survived" in the narrow sense his managers conceived in 1971-72 by winning re-election.

All this ought to be enough irony for the season.

Secret Viet mercenaries disclosed

SAIGON (UPI) — The United States regularly sent secret teams of Vietnamese mercenaries into North Vietnam on intelligence missions, but few of the men ever survived, military sources said Saturday.

"I took them in regularly and I went back in to pick them up, but I seldom brought any back," a U.S. helicopter pilot involved in the secret operation said.

Military sources said the locally born mercenaries, led by Americans and airlifted into North Vietnam, had the job of gaining information for the Pentagon and Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

The full story of America's clandestine operations into North Vietnam is likely to create a big stir in Washington when, and if, the Defense Department or CIA gets around to admitting the extent of missions.

The Pentagon admitted this week the deaths of 81 Americans in secret ground operations in Cambodia and Laos from 1967 to 1970. The announcement followed admissions that American war planes secretly bombed Cambodia in from 1969 to 1970.

Military sources in Saigon said the clandestine patrols into North Vietnam followed the same general procedure as those in Laos and Cambodia.

The Long Range Reconnaissance Patrols, nicknamed "terps" by the U.S. soldiers involved, usually lasted from five to seven days with U.S. Green Berets leading small teams of local mercenaries under the direction of the CIA.

The Laos patrols, the most successful, operated from a Special Forces camp along the Dak To airstrip, 280 miles northeast of Saigon. Most of the mercenaries were Laotian Kha tribesmen.

The "terps" into Cambodia were operated from a secret Green Beret camp at Chi Lang at the base of the Seven Sisters Mountains, 115 miles southwest of Saigon. Patrols into North Vietnam, labeled a virtual failure by American sources, operated from a Special Forces camp near the Marble Mountain airfield at Da Nang, 370 miles northeast of Saigon.

Cleveland mayor charged

CLEVELAND (UPI) Mayor Ralph J. Perk, charged with assault and battery by a police officer, pleaded innocent Saturday in municipal court and called the charge "ridiculous."

Judge Lillian Burke postponed the start of the trial until Aug. 28. In the interim, an effort is to be made to subpoena film from a Cleveland television station.

This incident has been embarrassing to me, my family, to most of the members of the Police Department, to the city of Cleveland and to the office of mayor," Perk said.

Patrolman Arnold Hovan filed the charge against Perk in connection with an altercation in City Council chambers Monday night.

Coconuts kill

HONOLULU (UPI) — A 2-year-old girl was killed and her 26-year-old aunt injured Friday in a fall of coconuts falling from a 50-foot palm tree in Waikiki.

Police said the cluster of 57 coconuts fell from the palm while the aunt was changing the child's diaper at Kapiolani Beach center.

A parks groundskeeper told investigators he was working a short distance away and saw the falling coconuts, which landed before he could yell a warning.

Leanne Kekoa Fujitaga, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fujitaga, was dead on arrival at a hospital. Her aunt, Jeanne Ono, suffered cuts and bruises.

Burley scouts will attend jamboree

BURLEY — A total of 43 boy scouts from Burley Troop 124 will board a chartered bus Monday for the National Boy Scout Jamboree in Farragut State Park.

The scouts will tour Yellowstone National Park, on their way to northern Idaho and are scheduled to return Aug. 8. The troop, sponsored by the Burley Seventh Ward

LDS Church, held several projects this summer to earn money for the trip. They will be calling KBAR radio, Burley, nightly to report on their activities while at the jamboree.

Scoutmaster Ronald Ford and assistants Andy Wilson and Dr. Paul Brown and Gary Jones will accompany the troop.

FAIRHAVEN, Mass. (UPI) — Electrical problems

Saturday forced two divers hunting for a $2 million treasure to surface in their underwater living chamber and delay for several more days an attempt to cut into the sunken luxury liner Andrea Doria.

Rick Whitney, spokesman for the divers, said the underwater habitat lost its electrical power Saturday morning as the divers were preparing to cut into the hull of the liner, 240 feet beneath the surface about 45 miles south of Nantucket Island.

Forced to use emergency battery power, the divers and the crew aboard the support ship Narragansett decided to raise the chamber when it became apparent the electrical problem could not be corrected at the scene.

Senate votes lid on 'fat cat' money

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A reform-minded Senate voted Saturday to impose tight spending limits on presidential and congressional candidates and crack down again on "fat cat" campaign contributors.

By an overwhelming 70-11 vote, the Senate approved a spending limit of 10 cents per eligible voter in primaries and 15 cents in general elections for senators and House members.

Then by voice vote, the Senate added a provision that presidential candidates could spend only 75 per cent of the same amount in the general election and the full amount in the primaries.

Also by voice vote, the Senate approved an amendment that would limit to $25,000 the amount any individual could contribute to political campaigns in a single year.

It approved another by voice vote that would require all members of Congress and congressional candidates to make public disclosure of their income and assets.

The spending ceiling was offered as an amendment to a comprehensive package of campaign reforms which had included ceilings of 20 cents per voter in the general election and 15 cents in the primaries. The amendment was offered by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo.

Had the ceilings been in effect in 1972, President Nixon and George S. McGovern each could have legally spent only $13.9 million in the primaries and $15.6 million in the general election — a total of $29.6 million for each.

Nixon actually spent between $50 million and $55 million on his campaign last year, while McGovern spent $25 million to $28 million.

In addition, the bill would prevent a presidential candidate from transferring his spending allocation for one state to another. A presidential candidate could not, for example, take his quota for Illinois and use it in California.

To protect members of Congress in small, sparsely populated states such as Rhode Island, the bill includes spending floors below which the ceilings could not fall.

The floors established by the bill are $125,000 for statewide races, $90,000 for single-district races in the primaries and $175,000 for statewide races and $90,000 for single-district races in the general election.

Gunmen kidnap Cypriot minister

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — Two masked gunmen in military uniforms kidnaped a Cypriot cabinet minister during a violent night of bombings and anonymous telephone threats on this politically divided island, the government said Saturday.

A government spokesman said authorities were taking part in a massive, nationwide search for Justice Minister Christakis Vakis, who was abducted from his home Friday night while his wife stood by.

The spokesman said the kidnapers, believed to be supporters of Gen. George Grivas, told Vakis' wife, "The leader wants to see him." The two men told her they would return her husband in two hours and promised nothing would happen.

Grivas, rival of Cyprus President Archbishop Makarios, is head of the EOKA rebel band fighting for union with Greece.

The kidnaping came during a night of 35 bombings on the island.

'Wall-to-wall' rock fans crowd New York festival

WATKINS GLEN, N. Y. (UPI) — A half million young rock fans — "95 acres of wall-to-wall people" — jammed a grandprix race track Saturday to hear 12-hours of music at a festival larger than the Woodstock blast of 1969.

Police estimated that 100,000 fans had walked in from as far as 20-30 miles away after roads became jammed by thousands of abandoned cars.

"It's like a herd of cattle going up the street here," Deputy Ralph Gould said as he watched the dungaree-clad crowd stream through this resort village in the 90 degree heat carrying tents, bedrolls and coolers of beer.

The "Summer Jam" festival, featuring such stars as The Grateful Dead, the Almond Brothers and The Band, did not begin until noon Saturday, but the crowds began pouring in Thursday and Friday.

Four persons were killed in traffic accidents on the way to the festival Friday. The four hospitals in the area said 108 persons had been treated and released, and 27 admitted.

Most of the hospital cases were for cuts, scrapes and drug abuse.

"Apparently people are getting stoned on drugs or wine then falling down or riding on roofs or hoods of cars and then falling and getting injured," said a hospital official.

Troopers said about 60 persons had been arrested on relatively minor charges.

"There are 95 acres of wall-to-wall people in there," said Lt. Richard C. Tonzi, commanding the state police checkpoint.

Marcos rule supported

MANILA (UPI) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos appeared Saturday night to have won overwhelming endorsement in a two-day compulsory referendum to remain in office and administer the Philippines indefinitely under martial law.

Election officials reported tabulated votes running five-to-one in support of Marcos, and Election Commissioner Flores Bayot predicted an eventual 95 per cent vote of support for Marcos beyond the expiration of his four year term at the end of the year. The ballot simply requested an affirmative or negative reply to the question: "Do you want President Marcos to continue beyond 1973 and finish the reforms he has initiated under martial law?"

In the provinces, three governors predicted votes in their areas of at least 90 per cent in favor of Marcos with one — Gov. Juvenal Guerrero of La Union — saying his region would go 99.97 for the president

Election officials said it might take until Aug. 4 or 5 for the final tally to be known, but an irreversible voting trend would be known much earlier.

The National Police reported calm and order at the 41,000 polling centers across the country in sharp contrast to the bloody elections before Marcos established martial rule on Sept. 23, 1972.

Election officials estimated between 18 and 20 million persons took part in the compulsory voting. Filipinos over the age of 15 were threatened with up to six months in jail for failing to vote.

Viet truce marked by fierce fighting

SAIGON (UPI) — North and South Vietnamese troops marked the six-month anniversary of the Jan. 28 cease-fire agreement Saturday with the third day in a row of fierce fighting northeast of Saigon.

The South Vietnamese command reported a total of 216 Communists slain in the fighting near Phu Giao, 30 miles from Saigon. Fifteen government soldiers were reported dead and 45 wounded in the battle.

Military sources said at least a regiment of the government infantrymen were battling an equivalent force of North Vietnamese regulars near Phu Giao in one of the most violent clashes since the start of the cease-fire.

A Viet Cong spokesman accused the government forces of trying to take over Highway 14 which runs past Phu Giao, but a command spokesman said the Communists sparked the fighting by cutting the road.

In the latest reported clash, the command said 89 North Vietnamese soldiers were killed six miles southwest of Phu Giao Friday with two government infantrymen slain and 24 wounded.

'Butcher' victim identified in Boise

BOISE (UPI) — The butchered body of a teen-ager was identified Friday as that of a Caldwell girl following the arraignment of a Boise man on a first degree murder charge in connection with the crime.

Police, working through fingerprints, said the dismembered body was that of Pamela Weidemann, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Weidemann. The body was found in a plastic bag in the Lucky Peak reservoir Friday morning.

Late Friday, Timothy W. McGuire, 24, a health major at Boise State College, was arraigned on a first degree murder charge in a Boise magistrate court and transferred to the Gem County jail to await prosecution.

Police officers found the body hours after the local college student came to the Boise police station with a nine-inch knife and a bizarre story.

The girl's father tentatively identified his daughter Friday at St. Alphonsus Hospital, police said, but he wanted fingerprints matched to make sure.

Police said it appeared the girl had been killed sometime Thursday afternoon or evening in the mountains west of Smiths Ferry, a recreation community 55 miles northwest of Boise. Later the body of the 5 foot 3 inch, 110 pound girl was dismembered, put in a plastic sack and thrown into the reservoir 12 miles northeast of here.

The suspect entered the police station after midnight, showed the desk officer a large knife and said, "I just killed a chick with this knife."

After several hours of questioning McGuire, police went to the reservoir near Mores Creek and fished the sack out of the water.

The girl was killed in Gem County, Police said. Ada County Prosecutor James E. Risch said investigators did not know at what point the body was dismembered. It was found in several pieces — the torso separate from the rest of the body.

Records at the college showed McGuire attended BSC this spring and majored in health science. He was in the Navy from 1967-1973.

A newspaper advertisement which ran Friday said the girl had been missing from her home for more than 10 days.

Gem fund report due on surplus

BUILE (UPI) — Rep. William Roberts, R-Buhl, co-chairman of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee, said the committee is preparing a report that shows the state's general fund had a surplus of more than $5 million at the close of the last fiscal year.

Roberts said the committee will ask the 1974 legislature to refund a one-mill property tax at the school level in light of the surplus.

Roberts said a legislative auditor's report on the surplus for the last fiscal year will be made to the special revenue projection committee in Boise Monday.

He said the report will show the excess to be greater than $5 million, which is more than the $3.3 million surplus announced by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus several weeks ago.

Roberts said the report will compare "oranges" to oranges, and will show that the revenue accruing to the general fund in the last fiscal year "is much greater than previously estimated."

Andrus says crackdown planned on cattle rustling

SILVER CITY, Idaho (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus today told the annual meeting of the Owyhee Cattlemen's Association that the state is undertaking several new programs in an effort to curtail a nationwide increase in cattle rustling.

Andrus prefaced his remarks by saying, "one of the reasons for this rise in rustling is the supposedly exorbitantly high price of beef these days."

He said this excuse is usually offered by those who have not bothered to research the question. The governor said he had found that the price of beef has risen "relatively little in the past 20 years. In contrast, the price of everything else has skyrocketed."

Andrus said that so far this year, 528 head of cattle valued at $150,000 have been reported stolen.

According to the governor, the State Brand Department in conjunction with the Police Academy at Idaho State has conducted six "cattle theft" schools. At these schools state and county police personnel familiarize themselves not only with livestock laws, but also with methods of preventing rustling and apprehending rustlers.

He said preventive programs are also underway among cattlemen.

Andrus also criticized the Nixon Administration for lifting the freeze on most sectors of agriculture, but "unfairly" keeping the lid on the cattle industry.

Pollution hearing set

BOISE (UPI) — A public hearing on air pollution control compliance schedules will begin at 9 a.m. Tuesday at the State Capitol.

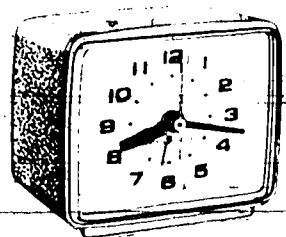

The schedules, developed by the Department of Environmental and Community Services, establish individual timetables and deadlines for each company to meet air quality standards.

Included for hearings Tuesday are compliance schedules for Simplot Company and Agricultural Products Corporation. Both operate phosphate fertilizer plants.

Asphalt batching plants, lumber mill boilers and rock-crushing companies also are included.

Mexican-American protest erupts on Dallas streets

DALLAS (UPI)—About 2,000 Mexican-Americans, disrupting what had been planned as a peaceful protest of the killing of a 12-year-old boy by a policeman, Saturday tossed bottles through windows in the downtown area, attacked police and forced storekeepers to barricade their front doors.

Witnesses on Main and Commerce streets, where the disturbance appeared centered, said small crowds of demonstrators ran along the sidewalks, throwing rocks and bottles through store windows and shouting insults at police.

There were no reports of shooting.

All of the windows in stores stretching three blocks from City Hall west had been broken, according to witnesses. Storekeepers scooped merchandise into baskets and pulled it away from the broken windows.

One storekeeper told UPI photographer Phil Huber that a demonstrator grabbed a handful of merchandise as the storekeeper was raking it away. Security guards were posted at the doors of all stores, letting customers out but not letting anyone inside.

There have been scattered incidents of violence since 1:30 p.m., a spokesman for the police department said. "We have had five officers injured and have arrested three demonstrators."

At 4:30 p.m., a police spokesman said the city had quieted, and that there were few new reports of instances of vandalism.

The protest began with a march that left the Kennedy Plaza, on the western edge of the city, at noon, grew double its size by 1 p.m. and ended at the City Hall for speeches protesting the shooting by a policeman last Tuesday of Santos Rodriguez, 12. The officer accused of shooting Santos was held in the county jail near Kennedy Plaza.

A witness said stores that had been open locked their doors, many with customers still inside, to keep the protestors out.

Five policemen were reported injured and three protestors were arrested. The most seriously injured policeman had a broken arm and another had "been pretty badly beaten," a spokesman for the police department said. The others had head injuries.

"In one instance, we were trying to protect some motorcycles," the spokesman said. "They did get to the motorcycles, and they burned two of them. The gasoline in the motorcycles was set on fire."

The three persons were arrested on suspicion of aggravated assault on a police officer, disorderly conduct, simple assault and theft under $50, which comprised a policeman's hat and badge.

The march began at about noon at the Kennedy Plaza in the western part of the downtown area, and wound eastward to City Hall. One group began the march at noon, an hour earlier than scheduled, and then another, equally large group, joined the first at 1 p.m.

The police provided a vehicle with a public address system for City Councilman Pedro Aguirre to speak to the group," the police spokesman said. "He spoke, but then someone else grabbed the microphone. The crowd got a little edgy, hostile, and a minor scuffle broke out."

The march was in protest of the killing last Tuesday of 12-year-old Santos Rodriguez.

A BLOODY demonstrator is held by the hair by police after being arrested when 2,000 predominantly Mexican-Americans broke their vow of peace and went on a rampage in downtown Dallas, Tex., Saturday. They were protesting the killing by a policeman of a 12-year-old boy. (UPI)

Angels grounded

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Navy Saturday cancelled the rest of the 1973 schedule of performances by its famed "Blue Angels" acrobatic flying team because of a series of crashes that killed three fliers and destroyed six planes.

This year has been the worst ever for the Blue Angels, and it was the first time their spectacular, high-precision aerial demonstrations have been called off in mid-season since the team was organized in 1946.

Although Blue Angel pilots escaped unharmed in two earlier crashes—at El Centro, Calif., March 8 and Lakes Charles, La., July 8—three were killed last Thursday in a two-plane collision over the Lakehurst, N.J., naval air station.

Memorial services for the three—Lt. Cmdr. Skip Umstead, 30, of Detroit, Marine Capt. Mike Murphy, 29, of San Antonio, Tex., and PO 1C Ronald Thomas, 30, of Ponca City, Okla.—will be held Tuesday at Pensacola, Fla., naval air station, their home base.

The cancellation will affect 22 previously scheduled performances through November. So far this year, the Blue Angels had put on 17 shows in 11 European cities, including performances at the Paris air show and 14 demonstrations in a dozen U.S. cities.

Polls guarded for Greek vote

ATHENS (UPI)—Greek troops took up positions at polling stations throughout the country Saturday on the eve of a constitutional referendum to confirm President George Papadopoulos' rule as chief of state for an indefinite period.

As balloting committees sealed ballot boxes in the 11,978 polling booths, a committee of 30 opponents to the military regime issued a statement saying the government has blocked all attempts to make the referendum honest and democratic.

The committee of former government ministers, diplomats, lawyers, military officers and professional men issued five specific complaints which it said constituted a "denial of any concept of democracy."

"What we have got then is the imposition of a presidential parliamentary republic under martial law and without civil liberties and with opponents of the regime in prison," the committee statement said.

The government ordered troops to guard the polling stations and ballot boxes through next Monday when the results of the Sunday voting will be announced. The ballots offer voters only a yes-or-no choice on Papadopoulos' plan.

Drug agents to replace CIA in Laos

BAN HOU SAI, Laos (UPI)—As the end of U.S. military involvement in Laos nears, the once familiar Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) field operations agents are being replaced by Justice Department narcotics specialists.

This change in U.S. policy is most evident in this Golden Triangle village of Ban Hou Sai on the upper Mekong River.

The Golden Triangle, at the juncture of Thailand, Laos and Burma, produces or is the shipping channel for an estimated 1,000 tons of raw opium and morphine derivatives annually.

The drugs from the Golden Triangle, Southeast Asia's largest narcotics producing area, are traded by caravan along rugged mule trails to remote pickup points in Thailand.

Hou Sai, as it is most commonly abbreviated, is a small town of wood and thatch houses with only five noodle stalls and two shops selling rice with meat and vegetables.

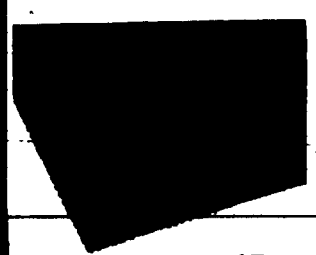

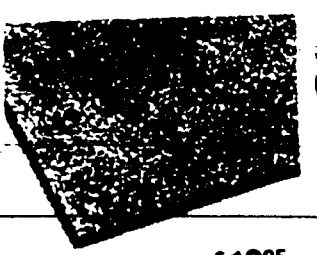

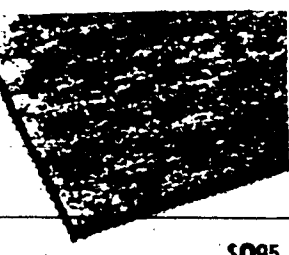

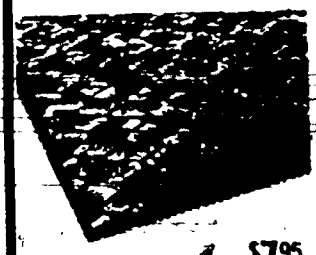

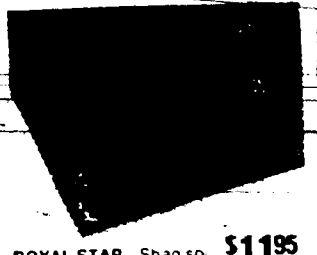

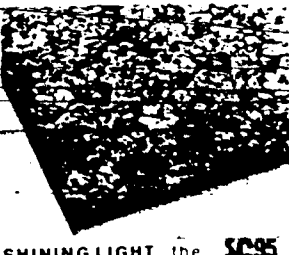

Traditionally, it has been a sleepy backwater assignment for three Americans working under the cover of the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID).

Now there are more than a dozen Americans assigned to the continually shrinking area controlled by the government around Hou Sai in northwest Laos.

"The U.S. has no influence in Burma, but we run the show in Laos," one American explained. "Since we cannot get to Burma where the real problem is, the program in Laos gives the 'narcotics agents' something to do to make them feel useful."

Ingram proposes to force open meetings

POSTFALLS — His proposal to force open meetings of elective bodies and agencies has been met with "a very favorable response," Rep. Gary Ingram, R-Post Falls, said Friday.

In a prepared announcement, the first-term state representative said such legislation will not only be good for the public "but that it will also be good for elected officials who serve as city councilmen, county commissioners, school board trustees, commissioners for various local political subdivisions and state agency board and commissions."

In announcing several weeks ago that he would seek the legislation to "open the doors to let the sunshine in and let the smoke out," Ingram said too many elected officials were abusing the law that permits executive sessions.

Ingram said there are a few instances which warrant closed door sessions, and acknowledged that writing these exceptions into his bill will be the most difficult aspect of preparing his legislation.

2 burglaries reported to Twin Falls police

TWIN FALLS — Two reports of burglary were being investigated Friday by Twin Falls City Police.

Dennis Venzon, 161 9th Ave. N., said a set of golf clubs was taken from his unlocked 170 Scout between July 9 and July 25 while he was vacationing. He said relatives had been driving the vehicle but could not recall seeing the clubs in the vehicle when they used it, leading him to believe they were taken early in the period in question. He valued the loss at $204.

Jane Moore, 188 Blue Lakes Blvd., N., told officers someone entered her home between July 21 and July 24 and took one dress from her closet and tore and otherwise damaged numerous other clothing items, leaving them in the home. She estimated the total loss at $360.

Merry Pet

Question: We have a manx cat and its hair is more like sheep's wool, very thick. Anyway, the hair has started to peel off in blots the size of your hand, down to the bare hide. Otherwise it seems okay. What can I do for it?

Answer: There's a long and a short of this hair problem. The short is getting those dead "blots" of hair off immediately before eczema starts under them. That's easily said and usually done by owners only with difficulty, scratches, and a few bite wounds.

Matts are composed of hair tangled from side to side and stem to stem. The hide is pulled along with the hair and Mr. Gato is one sore hombre under there. A good, decisive snip of the scissors often lays the skin open in areas you didn't dream were involved and requires 15 or 20 stitches to repair.

So, if you decide to do the Samson and Delilah bit at home — be careful. Cut only a few hairs at a time and never close the scissors unless you can SEE the bottom blade.

Taking the cat to a veterinary clinic where he may be sedated or in some cases anesthetized and shorn quickly and safely may be least traumatic to everyone. "Blotchy" cats often get a Lion trim that leaves them a mane, tail plume, and stylishly bare body in-between.

The long of it comes in preventing the same thing happening next year. Long-haired cats need almost daily brushing, skin and coat conditioner in the diet, and a hair ball remedy weekly. Start brushing as the hair grows back and by fall the cat should have a luxurious fur coat.

Question: Please can you help me? I am keeping my class guinea pig and she is supposed to have babies. But it has been a long time and nothing has happened and I'm worried.

Answer: How long is a long time? Baby guinea pigs take 67 to 68 days to arrive, almost 10 days longer than Momma dogs wait. If your pig has been waiting longer than that, you'd better make sure Ms. Pig is a Mrs.!

If you have a question about your pet, send it to The Merry Pet column, in care of the Times-News.

Tongue removed

BOUNTIFUL, Utah (UPI) — The Utah Humane Society has filed charges against a Bountiful man who allegedly cut out the tongue of a female German Shepherd.

The society charged Robert Burns caught the dog in a baited steel-jawed trap, and then cut off the animal's tongue.

The dog, which belongs to Mr. Alton Fenstermaker, Bountiful, has been under Dr. Daniels A. Sims care in the Bountiful Dog and Cat Hospital for the past two weeks.

Sims said he has performed extensive surgery on the animal's tongue in an attempt to provide the animal with some means of eating normally.

US military allowed cost of living increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About 107,000 U.S. military personnel in West Germany will get cost of living payments of up to $8.60 a day to help them offset the financial squeeze caused by dollar devaluations and inflation.

It was the second major allowance increase in less than a week for American servicemen stationed in Germany. Last week, the Pentagon boosted housing allowances an average of 25 to 50 per cent because of dollar devaluation. It was estimated this would cost $19 million in the coming year.

The increases in costs were expected to give more ammunition to members of Congress, including Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, who are seeking a 50 per cent reduction in U.S. troop strength abroad.

The cost of living payments will depend on the rank of the servicemen and the availability of U.S. support facilities where he is stationed.

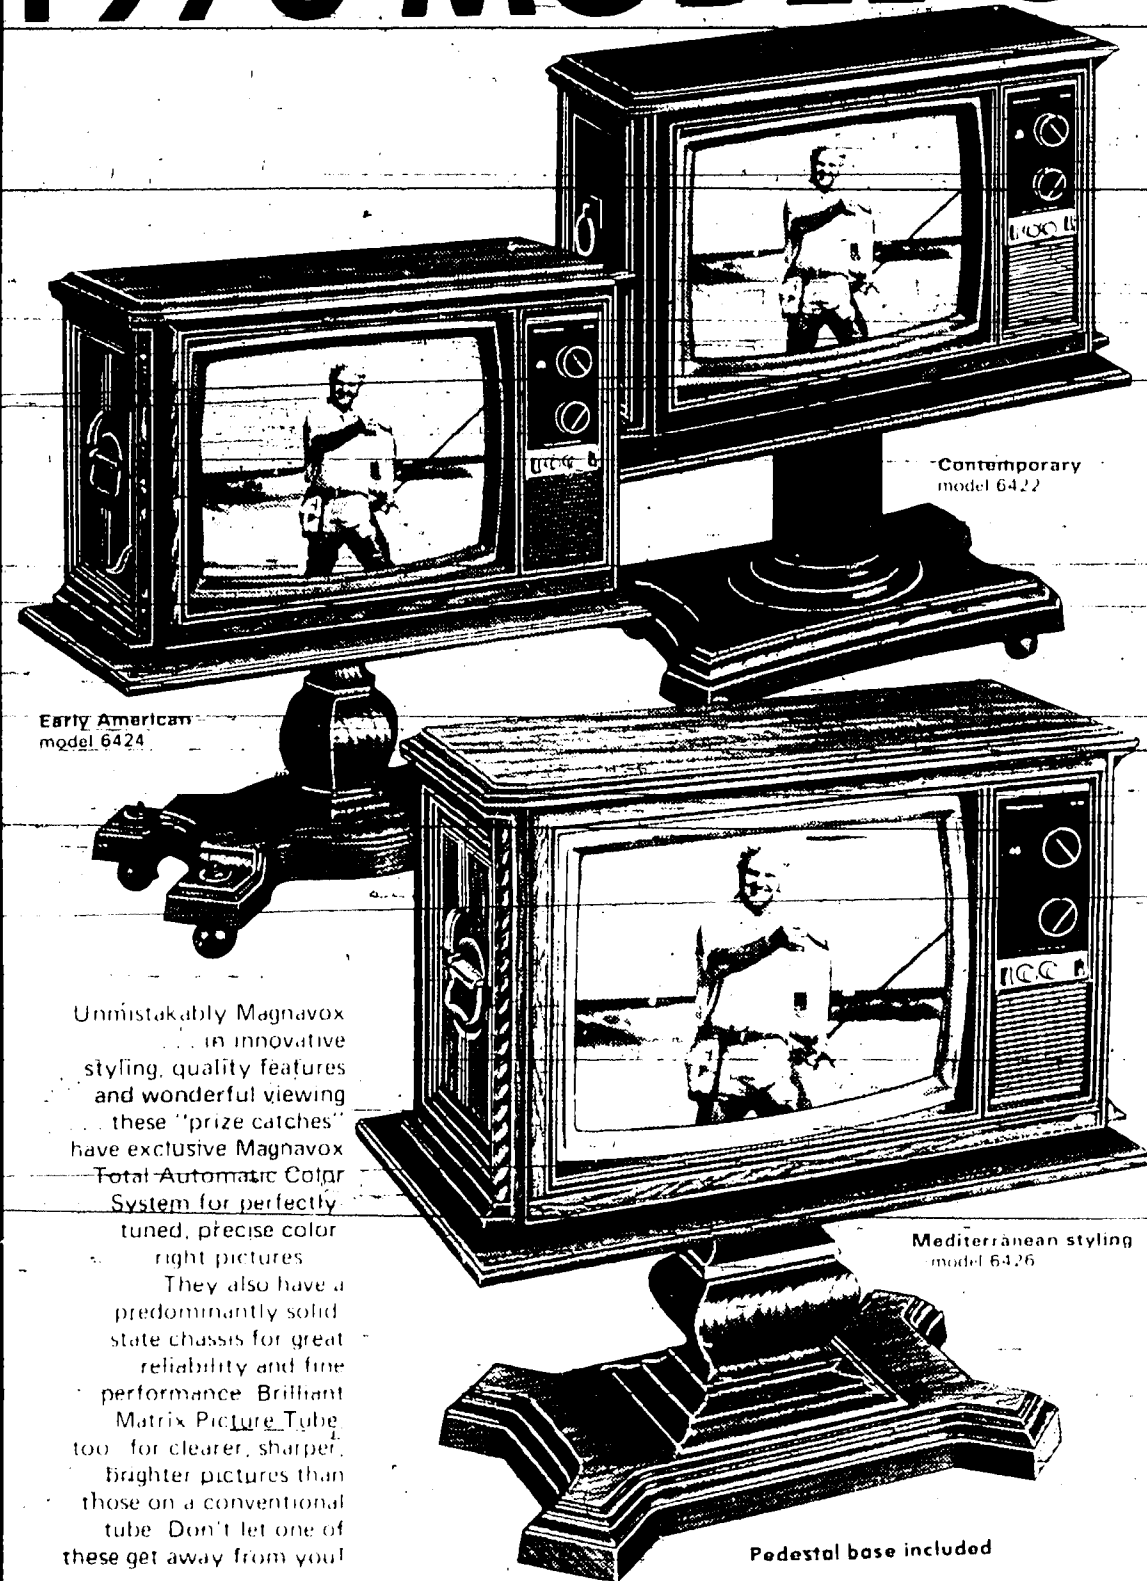

Defense Department officials said the cost of living payments were the first authorized for servicemen in West Germany except for about 20 Navy and Coast Guard personnel stationed at Sylt and Flensburg, who already were receiving a differential.

The falling value of the U.S. dollar and inflation in Germany has cut in half the purchasing power of some military personnel paychecks in the past year or two.

Nixon overruled political pros in tape battle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon overruled the advice of his political pros and decided to battle through the courts his right to keep secret his taped conversations, his chief domestic adviser has disclosed.

White House counselor Melvin R. Laird told reporters that he himself had looked at the question of turning over the tapes to Watergate probes in terms of political repercussions.

Nixon, he said, "spent hour after hour before he made the decision" to fight to retain privileged recordings on "legal and constitutional grounds."

"He looked at every option and had a wide variety of views," said Laird. "The decision was made after thorough and complete deliberation. He is taking the long term, rather than the short term view."

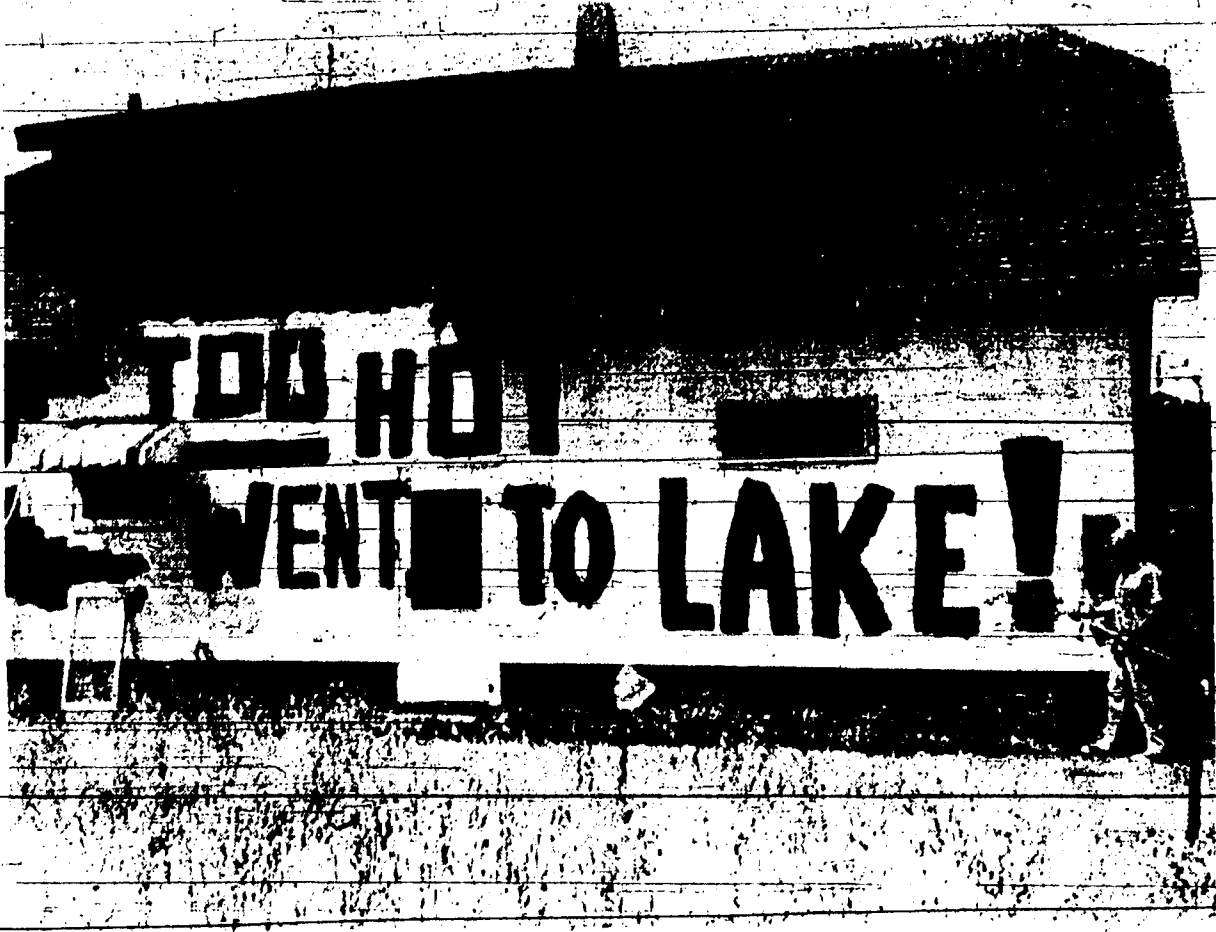

Laird met with reporters mainly to quell rumors that like former Texas Gov. John B. Connally he was disgruntled with his new White House post and was ready to quit. "I'm a stayer," he said. "I'll be here long as I can make a contribution... as long as the President wants me to stay."

Laird did little to quiet reports that he is running into friction with Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., Nixon's chief of staff, and Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. "In the domestic field there's never been any conflict" with Haig, he said. But he indicated that was some rift in other fields.

Asked how he got along with Ziegler, he answered with a terse: "Fine, very fine."

Laird said that he did not feel that he had to attend every White House social function or to make every trip with the President to feel he was "in close touch."

"I have no problem as far as access is concerned, no problem whatsoever," he said.

Mind over matter

WITH temperatures in the 90s, Joe Lommel Jr. got too hot while painting his dad's tavern in a rural town 12 miles west of St. Cloud, Minn., so he decided to take a dip in nearby Beaver Lake. (UPI)

Firm seeks new MVMH paving bid

TWIN FALLS — Larry Hansen, secretary-treasurer of Gordon Paving Co., Twin Falls and Burley, said Friday his firm has asked the Twin Falls County commissioners to issue another call for bids for paving the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital parking lot.

Hansen said his firm's attorney submitted the request by letter this week after a contract was awarded by the county commissioners to a higher bidder.

Commissioners awarded a contract for the parking lot project Tuesday to Beymer Paving Co. in the amount of $4,659.96.

Hansen said his firm's bid was $400 below this figure but was rejected by the commissioners on grounds a bid bond was not included with the bid. He said the commissioners did not ask for the bid bond in their specifications.

"We have been bidding on paving projects for 15 years and this is the first time specifications did not ask for the bid bond if one was desired. If they had asked for a bond we would have included one. We have a reputable bonding agent who would have made the bond available," Hansen said.

Hansen said it may be correct the state law requires bonds on all public works projects but all other agencies specify the bond in their bidding instructions when one is required.

County Commission Chairman William L. Chancey said a letter has been received from Gordon Paving and is now in the hands of the county attorney for review and recommendation.

He said before the bid was let Tuesday to Beymer, the attorney was asked for an opinion.

"He told us the state law requires a bid bond on such projects and it is not necessary for us to repeat the requirement in our bidding specifications," Chancey said.

He said no action will be taken on the request for a new bid call unless the commissioners are advised by their attorney to do so.

Plans to withhold beef eyed

DENVER (UPI) — Stockgrowers in Colorado have been asked to withhold beef from the market if possible until federal price ceilings are lifted Sept. 12, a spokesman for the Colorado Farm Bureau said.

"That's what we're saying to them, if it is economically feasible," said Dean Kittel, administrative officer of the CFB. "There is no way they can market today with current feed costs and break even."

Kittel said he received calls daily from ranchers and farmers throughout the state asking for advice because the current price of feed is more than the price received for beef.

"Stockgrowers are only gambling they can hang on until September until we can take another look at this situation," he said. He also said the gasoline shortage in Colorado could seriously jeopardize corn and sugar beet crops if it is not solved by fall.

"We're worried because of our early winters," said Kittel. "Once you get past mid-October, you're into the snow season. We have two crops that go into the fall— corn and sugar beets."

Michigan pastor to talk

TWIN FALLS — Rev. Samuel Johnson, pastor of the First Apostolic Church, Ann Arbor, Mich., will speak Monday through Wednesday nights at the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium.

His topic Monday will be "The Divine Vaccine." There will be special music by both choral and instrumental groups. All three services begin at 7:30 p.m.

During the past year Rev. Johnson has traveled more than 20 countries and also has preached in about half of the states. He said members of all faiths are welcome.

Rites set

PROVO (UPI) — Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, will deliver the commencement address at Brigham Young University's summer graduation exercises Aug. 17.

BYU President Dallin H. Oaks said the retiring senator will also receive an honorary Doctor of Public Service degree.

Bennett will leave office at the end of his current term in 1974. He was first elected in 1950.

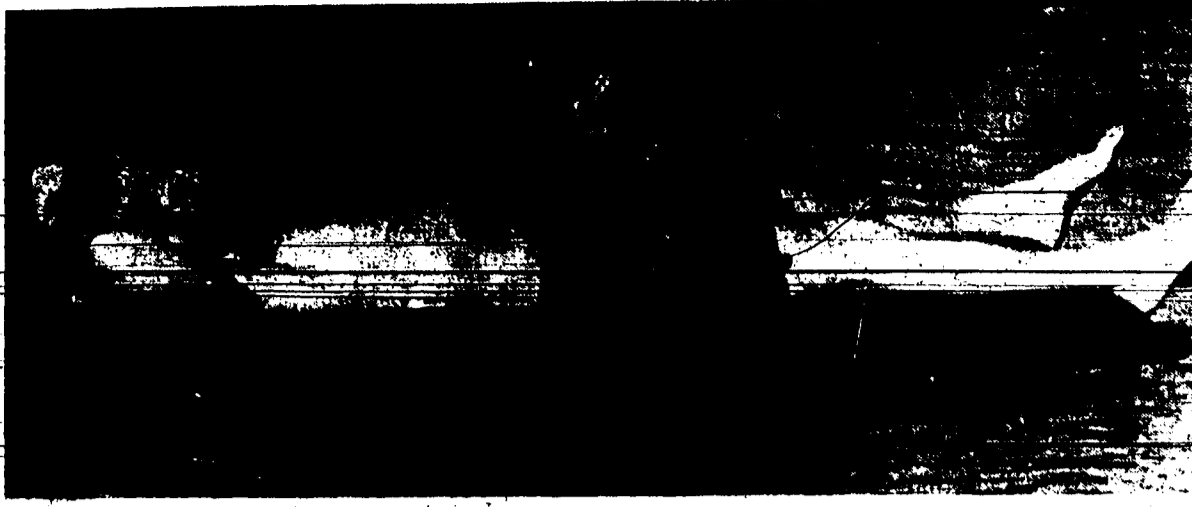

The services will begin at 9 a.m. in the Marriott Center.

Rogers sees no combat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said Friday he is convinced Hanoi has decided against any more large-scale combat operations.

While saying Hanoi had failed to carry out all the provisions of the Paris peace agreements ending the Vietnam war, Rogers said, "I am satisfied that North Vietnam will not continue the war in Indochina on a large scale. What they will do... I am not certain."

Rogers testified before the Senate Subcommittee on Foreign Operations in support of administration requests for foreign technical and military assistance.

Snoopy's high and dry

A dachshund named Snoopy joins his master, Pete Johnson, in a cooling-off voyage aboard an air mattress on Seattle's Lake Washington. Johnson said Snoopy agreed to go along after much coaxing and carefully took a position that would keep him high and dry. (UPI)

Senate votes stiff penalty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted Friday in favor of stiff criminal penalties to prevent illegal diversion of campaign contributions.

The penalties would range up to 10 years in jail and a $25,000 fine for any candidate or anyone acting in his behalf who embezzles, converts to his own use, or hides political donations.

An amendment providing for such penalties, offered by Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., was added to a comprehensive campaign reform bill which already places ceilings on contributions and candidate spending. The amendment was adopted 88-1 with Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., the lone dissenter.

Mind Your Money

Q — My Formica counter in the kitchen gets stained from various foods. I've tried getting rid of stains with scouring powder but it doesn't seem to work. Any ideas? — Mrs. M. H., Los Angeles, Calif.

A — Don't use scouring powder. That's too harsh for Formica and for other chemical-fiber materials. In the case of Formica, continued use of abrasive scouring powders or pads wears away the melamine surface on the laminated plastic and makes it more porous and even easier to stain.

You can use strong soaps or diluted chlorine bleach (good for removing felt pencil marks and USDA ink labels off meat).

Cleaners such as Fantastik, 409 or Dow bathroom cleaner are good for ordinary use. Wax can help a surface that has been abused. A self-cleaning wax such as Jubilee or Favor is best.

If somebody has already put on too much wax, you can remove it with Dow grease and oil remover. If this doesn't work, the surface may be coated with an acrylic polish. In this case, you have to use ammonia.

Q — I was most interested in your column on possible vitamin overdoses. Both my son and I have been taking large quantities of vitamins and have experienced some of the side effects you mentioned.

In one paragraph you say the government wants to limit the dosage of vitamin A to 25,000 units and then in another paragraph you say they want to limit it to 5,000 units. Which should we adhere to? — Mrs. W.R.S., Camp Hill, Pa.

A — The 25,000-unit limit for vitamin A is the point above which the Food and Drug Administration feels you should get a doctor's prescription. The 5,000-unit level is the "recommended daily amount."

Because its side effects are more serious and there's a narrow tolerance for overdose, FDA has proposed setting 400 units of vitamin D as the maximum recommended daily intake and also the point beyond which you should get a prescription.

Q — In your column on automobile antifreeze, you state that the mere addition of ethylene glycol is enough to raise the coolant boiling point to near 265 degrees. I thought it was important to have the cooling system operating under 15 pounds of pressure or more. — C.F.H., Kansas City, Mo.

A — A certain amount of pressure is necessary to help raise the boiling point in a radiator.

You can raise the boiling point by pressure alone, but that would be too dangerous. Ethylene glycol is necessary because it can raise the boiling point without putting the cooling system under too much pressure.

By the way, this is a good time of year to check your radiator coolant. If you don't have enough ethylene glycol or the radiator coolant has become too dirty, you could be in for a spectacular "boilover."

Q — We have three accounts — his, hers and ours — in one savings and loan association. Are all these accounts insured?

A — If your savings institution has the word "federal" in its name or if it's insured by one of the federal insurance corporations, you're insured for each account up to $20,000. Some state-chartered savings institutions may have different insurance regulations.

TF property owners file highway suit

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Alton Bastian, owners of property in the vicinity of West Five Points in Twin Falls, have brought suit against the Idaho State Highway Board members in connection with right-of-way acquisition.

The Bastians own the property on which Albertson's market is located and value the property at $375,000. Taking a strip of land at the southwest corner and strip along the south side of the property amounting to 8,466 square feet would seriously hamper the site's use as a supermarket and parking area, the suit charges.

Property in the same area used by a medical center, is valued at $75,000 by the owners. They estimate its value would be reduced to $32,000 by the loss of 1,243 square feet of the site, which the Department of Highways seeks for right-of-way.

Named defendants in the suit, filed in Fifth Judicial District Court in Twin Falls, are Karl C. Moore, Lloyd F. Barron and Roy F. Stoschein, members of the Idaho Department of Highways Board of directors.

C-130 cargo plane tested

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (UPI) — The capability of a U.S. Air Force C-130 cargo plane to help fight forest fires will be determined during simulated fires next week near Boise.

Boise Interagency Fire Center officials said Thursday the aircraft from California will be part of the Modular Airborne Firefighting System (MAFFS), using a series of Modular fire retardant tanks which can be installed in cargo aircraft.

The system is to be used to deliver large quantities of fire retardants on fires, in cooperation with the U.S. Forest Service.

MAFFS are to be tested and evaluated on eight simulated fire drops between July 30 and Aug. 10 near Boise and afterwards will be evaluated on actual fires in the Western United States.

Sixty per cent of the working population in metropolitan Los Angeles drives to work, says the National Automobile Club.

TWIN FALLS — Often seen, seldom noticed. That's a succinct description of street lamps, found on almost every corner and in some areas in mid-block as well.

Street lamps in Twin Falls — like most other towns and cities — are seen principally at night when they illuminate the area around and below them. But, how many persons have really noticed those same street lamps?

Twin Falls has a surprising variety of street lamps, ranging from ultra modern designs on the downtown mall through the streamlined, long armed, highpowered lights which illuminate broad areas through some older units which consist of wire-supported metal shields above bare bulbs.

The more modern varieties of street lamps are found in newer residential areas and many of the older sections of town where newer lamps have been installed. But many antique models are still lighting busy thoroughfares as well as less frequently used intersections in industrial areas and older residential districts.

Some of the wide variety of street lamps which can be found above Twin Falls streets are shown in the accompanying photographs. Do any of them look familiar?

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I had a date with a very handsome and charming fellow nearly three years ago. We seemed to hit it off, but he never called me again and that was that.

A month ago he called me out of the blue and the first thing he asked was, "Are you married yet?" I kiddingly said, "No, I'm still waiting for you!" He asked me for a date that very night. I accepted.

Well, we had a marvelous time. We danced and laughed and talked and just hated to say goodnight. Before we parted he asked if he could see me the next night. In fact, he dated me up for every night that week. Abby, I was in heaven! I never knew two people could fall in love so fast.

'Pray for a miracle'

We saw each other every night for nearly three weeks, and then came the bombshell! He told me he loved me and would ask me to marry him, but he had leukemia and his time was running out. At first I thought he was giving me a line, but then he showed me all the books and medical journals he had collected on the subject, and he invited me to talk to his doctor. I did, and the doctor said he had maybe another year of health. He wasn't sure. He didn't know.

I have fallen deeply in love with this young man, Abby, and want to make the rest of his life as happy as possible, but am I being fair to myself? Should I break it off now? Please help me. I am 25 and he is 29. I can't even tell my mother.

BROKENHEARTED

DEAR BROKENHEARTED: Knowing that your days are numbered aren't everybody's? It makes every day more precious. You would be less than fair to yourself were you to break it off now. If indeed you could, which I doubt, in enriching his life, you will enrich your own. Pray for a miracle, and God bless.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are both 21. We've been married for nearly two years and we have one child. He joined the service out of fear of being drafted and now he's in Germany.

My question: Why do men (even married men) tell me I shouldn't think my husband is sitting in the barracks every night just thinking of me? They say he is only human and he is out for everything he can get over there. They say all the guys in the service cheat on their wives.

Abby, this upsets me terribly. Some of these men don't even know my husband so how can they pass judgment on him that way?

TRUE BLUE WIFE

DEAR WIFE: They can't. They are trying to suggest that if you want to cheat on your husband, you would be justified. Don't believe them. There are plenty of "true blue" men in the service, and your husband could be one of them.

DEAR ABBY: I did something terrible and I can't sleep nights. I wish I were a Catholic so I could go to confession.

I work in a department store which gives a discount to employees for items they purchase for themselves.

I have a relative who wanted a dress for her daughter's wedding, so I told her to come to the store, pick out a dress, and I would say I was buying it for her as a birthday gift, and I would get the discount. Then she could pay me what it cost.

She came in and picked out a dress, but when my boss rang up the sale he looked at me kind of funny, like he knew I was lying. I am not a very good liar because I don't lie often, and I am so embarrassed now because I am sure he wasn't fooled.

I'm afraid he will tell the other clerks about it, and I just hate to go to work and face them. Please tell me how to get this off my conscience.

GUILTY

DEAR GUILTY: Tell your boss you'd like to return the amount of the discount. It won't be necessary to explain further. Then you'll both feel better.

Youth group tours Hagerman area

By MARJORIE LIERMAN Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — The Castleford Christian Youth Fellowship hiked into scenic Blind and Box Canyon near Hagerman to view a proposed fish hatchery development.

After meeting at a designated spot in Buhl, the group drove to the T. E. Roach Boy Scout Camp in the Snake River Canyon, and from the Scout camp, set out on foot for a mile hike to Box Canyon.

Approximately 30 young people, an inter-denominational group, were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Jon Wells, Buhl, advisers; Mr. and Mrs. Don Kramer, Mr. and Mrs. Gail Conner, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wells, all Castleford; Mr. and Mrs. Cline Hickok, Portland, Ore., and this reporter and her husband.

Along the foot path the group crossed several rustic bridges over rushing streams, and walked through thickly wooded brush. They were afforded excellent views of the river and the canyon sides. Deer and other wildlife are frequently seen in the area, according to reports.

At the site of a new fish hatchery now under construction, Nyal Hoffman, assistant manager of the Clear Springs Trout Co., met the group and took it to the spot where the company is building a dam to divert water from the Thousand Springs Canyon under the Snake River.

A pipe has been sunk ten feet deep in the river to transport the water. The pipe on the outside of the river banks will be completely covered when finished and will not show, said Hoffman.

The fish hatchery has purchased the right of way for a canal from private owners and also has received the right of way to go across the river from the Department of Water, Administration, Boise.

The springs have 600 second feet glowing at the entrance of the canal being built, which increases into 800 second feet at the river mouth. Water measurements list a second foot as meaning one cubic foot of water flowing by a certain point each second.

The company would use 300 second feet or half the amount, leaving the remainder to continue flowing down into the river. At the site of the fish hatchery, all excess water will spill over and back into the river.

Hoffman said his company is employing 35 high school boys this summer to work on project. His company has no desire to detract from the scenic beauty of the area, he said, rather the company is now growing a thousands trees which will be transplanted at the landscaping of the new site.

The project will contribute two things, Hoffman said, as it will make the area more accessible, and also will make it more beautiful as the now dry grass and undergrowth along the road and on the hillsides will be watered by the company and will be lush and green.

Following its tour of the canal site, the group of young people returned to the Boy Scout camp for a picnic lunch. Other recent tours made by the group include one to Bruneau and one to the Sand Dunes State Park.

The group plans soon to go to Everett, Wash., where it will spend a week engaged in community services including renovating a park for the city and doing repair work on a boys' ranch. They also plan to tour the Craters of the Moon before it is time for most of them to report back to school.

MR. AND MRS. LYNN PETERSEN

TF miss, Petersen exchange promises

TWIN FALLS: Mary Frances Miller became the bride of Lynn Petersen July 13 at St. Edward's Catholic Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Miller, Twin Falls, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Petersen, Buhl.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Father Melvin Sprute, Keuterville, Idaho, friend of the bride, before an altar. A vase of yellow rosebuds was placed on each of the side altars.

Candelabra decorated with white flowers, green foliage and yellow ribbon flanked the main altar. Green and yellow bows marked the pews in the church.

The bride, given in marriage by her mother and father, wore a floor dress in an empire style made of nylon with a taffeta underskirt and full chapel train. The bodice and sleeves were trimmed with white satin ribbon.

Her floor length mantilla veil was also trimmed with white satin ribbon. She carried a formal cascade bouquet of yellow rosebuds and white cushion chrysanthemums accented with white ribbon.

Marsha Foster, Twin Falls, was maid of honor. Matron of honor was Linda Lee, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Phyllis Petersen, sister of the bridegroom, Patty Miller, sister of the bride, Marsha Fiske, Omaha, Neb., cousin of the bride and Judy Van Engelen.

Randy Bean, Filer, was best man. Ushers were Bill Miller, brother of the bride, Jim Lee, brother-in-law of the bride, Larry Andrews, Filer, cousin of the bridegroom, and Steve Dennis, Buhl.

Attending boys were Jim and John Miller, brothers of the bride, Bob Fries was soloist and Mrs. Joanne Cubit was organist.

The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony in the parish hall of the church.

The quartet tables were decorated with yellow and green underskirts with white lace overlays. Baskets of yellow roses and green ribbon decorated the tables. A fountain of green was placed so that it was surrounded by tables. White lanterns with yellow candles lighted the aisle to the receiving line.

The bride's table was covered with a yellow underskirt and white lace overlay trimmed with green ribbons. The three tiered cake was decorated with yellow icing and tiny yellow roses and greenery. White bells topped the cake.

The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Frances Fiske, Omaha, Neb., aunt of the bride and Mrs. Mary Peterson, Buhl, aunt of the bridegroom. Mrs. Norma Andrews, aunt of the bridegroom, served the punch and Sally Gulick, aunt of the bride, served coffee. Mrs. Gloria Fleming, cousin of the bride, served tea sandwiches. Conni Stradley, Vicki Herzinger and Julie Morris, all Twin Falls, were in charge of gifts. Teresa Andrews and Shannon Andrews, cousins of the bridegroom, were gift bearers. Marsha True registered the guests.

Honored guests were Mrs. Bart Miller, grandmother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Andrews and Mrs. Laz Petersen, grandparents of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Louise Petersen, great-grandmother of the bridegroom.

Guests attended from Omaha, Neb., Buhl, Filer, Jerome, Gooding, Wednell, Meridian, Rupert, Hollister, Rogerson, Castleford and Twin Falls.

Showers for the bride were given by Vicki Abo, Mardell Plant and Julie Morris, Boise State College roommates of the bride, and by Marsha Foster and by Julie Morris and Judy VanEngelen.

TWIN FALLS — This year there is definitely an increased interest in the canning, freezing and drying of foods at home.

Homemakers with little experience or training in food preservation may have some problems. The purpose of proper processing is to destroy micro-organisms which might cause food to spoil.

One of the most deadly is botulism. It is a form of food poisoning caused by a spore-forming (seed-like bodies) bacterium. It grows only in the absence of air in low-acid conditions. The spores are common in soil and foods may be contaminated with them.

Under certain conditions present in low-acid foods, such as vegetables, meat and fish and poultry, the organism grows and produces a very poisonous toxin. It is extremely important that a pressure cooker be used for canning these foods. Pressure cooker gauges should be tested every year before the canning season begins.

Only under pressure does the temperature rise enough to kill these bacterial spores. With proper processing and care, there is little danger of botulism. To be sure, before tasting home canned foods, bring foods to a boil, cover and boil for 10 minutes. There is no danger of botulism poisoning from foods preserved by freezing.

tomatoes and other acid foods and the steam-pressure method which is recommended for vegetables, fish, poultry and all other low-acid foods. Other methods such as: oven canning, open-kettle or the use of chemical preservatives are not recommended.

Another very important factor in food processing is the altitude adjustment for times and temperatures. Direction tables are usually prepared for low altitude areas. The higher the altitude the lower the temperature at which water boils. Consequently at high altitudes it is necessary to process foods longer in a water bath. For pressure cooking a higher altitude will require a greater pressure.

Use the large element on your range for the canners. Follow the directions in your canning book. Turn the unit on high, then when the water is boiling freely or proper pressure is reached (depending on the method used), reduce the setting just enough to keep the pressure constant or the water at a low rolling boil. Too high temperatures or too rapid boiling will draw juice from the jars.

Plan to do the canning in the morning while it is still cool and use the vent fan to exhaust heated air and moisture. This will keep the kitchen cooler and reduce the load on the air conditioner. Mail questions to: Helen Walker, Home Service Representative, Idaho Power Co., P. O. Box 8, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.

Clothes price hike slated for winter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prices for your fall and winter clothing will be going up.

The Cost of Living Council (CLC) has exempted the textile and apparel industries from the price freeze.

A CLC spokesman said "nobody knows" how much prices will move up because of the exemption.

The council said it acted to prevent "serious hardship and gross inequity for most firms in the industry."

The Clothing Manufacturers Association of the U.S.A. appealed for an exemption on behalf of the industry, claiming that apparel producers were being squeezed by the June 13 price freeze and that many small companies were near bankruptcy.

Under the freeze, which continues in force until Aug. 12 for most of the economy except food, clothing manufacturers were obligated to ship their fall clothing lines at prices prevailing for spring and summer styles. They could not raise prices to reflect higher costs of labor and textile prices.

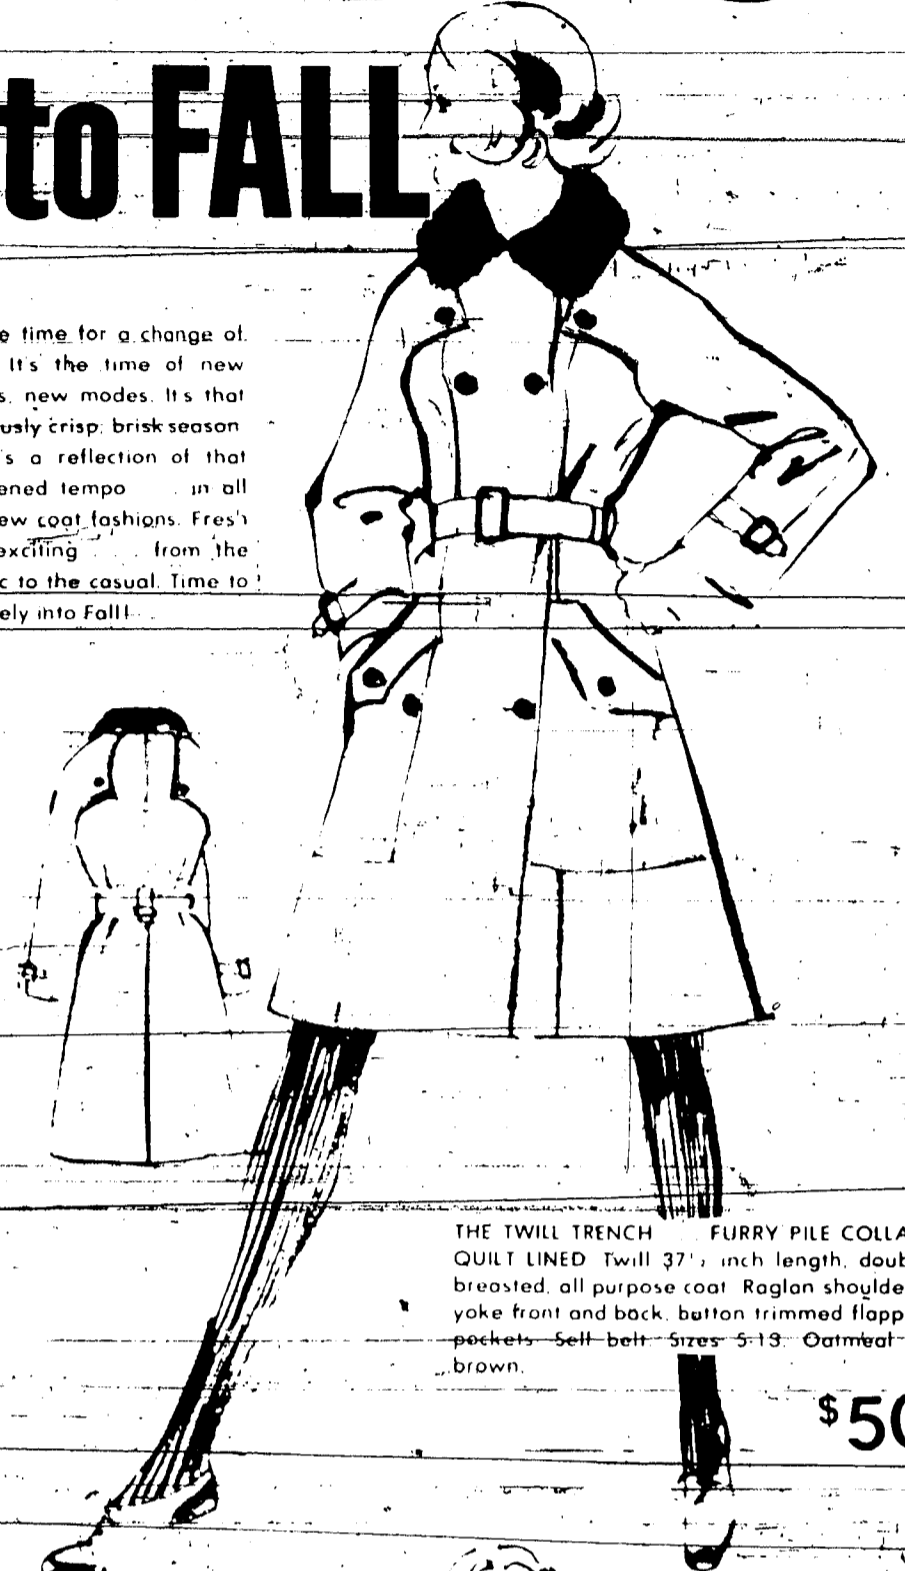

As a result, many companies were refusing to ship and retailers were threatening to cancel orders.

The CLC has agreed to allow manufacturers to raise prices within the guidelines of Phase III of the economic stabilization program, which was replaced by the price freeze.

4-H program adds to safety habits

SHOSHONE — With warmer weather, Americans are moving out-of-doors to participate in all forms of recreational activities, notes the county extension service, Shoshone.

Boating, camping, hiking, cycling, sports and other outdoor activities, as well as driving for pleasure brings the families into the recreational mainstream.

However, with the fun comes the added danger of accidents and increased need for safety precautions.

Participating in the 4-H safety program, sponsored nationally by General Motors, young 4-H people are learning and participating in safety habits wherever they are. They also are taking what they've learned and are sharing it with their families and other youth and adults in their communities.

Claiming safety education is for all seasons and working individually and through three clubs, 4-H'ers use all kinds of activities and methods to spread their safety messages. They enlist the help of community leaders, businessmen, law enforcement personnel and others to make their communities as safe a place to enjoy.

Efforts by safety minded 4-H'ers and 4-H groups are eligible for recognition provided by General Motors. Outstanding youths in the program receive medals of honor, while state winners receive an expense paid trip to the National 4-H Congress, and $1,000 scholarships are awarded to eight national winners.

For more information on the group and individual activities in the 4-H safety program, contact the county extension office.

Internationalist Paul Soloway, who sat East, had listened to the bidding. He knew South had started with 5-4-3-1 distribution and eventually would take a heart finesse and make the slam.

Paul decided to give him a chance to find another line of play. Paul dropped the queen of diamonds on dummy's ace.

Now it seemed to declarer that he would not need the heart finesse at all. He discarded one heart on the last good club, came to his hand with the king of hearts, led his last diamond and took what appeared to be a certain winning finesse against the 10.

Thought to have been, but it wasn't. Paul produced the 10 for down one and then the queen of clubs.

CSI library marked by changes

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Following the departure of its librarian, change has become the byword at the College of Southern Idaho library.

The changes, involving both rearrangement of stacks and reclassification of books in "accepted library classification," result from criticisms arising over operation of the library under direction of former librarian Dr. Bruce Harrison.

The recommendations suggested by Dr. George Douglas, library consultant, who was called in to evaluate the CSI library and issued a report to the board of trustees in February.

One of the major points in the evaluation, which termed the library-materials collection as "in many ways commendable," was the necessity to re-establish rapport with the faculty which, the report said, was not using the library, since a "complete lack of rapport exists between them and the chief librarian."

Improving communication between faculty, students and the library personnel so as to create wider usage of the facility is one of the prime goals of Eugene McGuire, who has been at the CSI library the past two years and also taught library science courses.

No announcement has been made regarding Harrison's replacement. McGuire, as acting librarian, has enthusiastically undertaken the "fantastic job" which has now been completed in rearranging the stacks.

The library shelves, which previously "created a wall effect" have been turned at right angles from the old location, allowing the potential library patron a feeling of openness as he enters the room. The aisles are wide enough for wheel chairs.

This arrangement also makes for better visual control from the circulation desk. The card catalogue has been moved directly across from the desk, making it much easier for staff members to notice when some one needs assistance, McGuire said.

The moving project was completed in about four weeks after school closed in May, McGuire said, with the assistance of work-study students.

The student crew, which varied from one to six students, was under the direction of Susan Gass, library staff member. McGuire said he had not expected the project could be completed before the end of August, and he and Mrs. Gass both agreed the students "really put out."

All materials have been classified under the Dewey Decimal system and fiction is now arranged alphabetically by author, according to conventional library practice. It previously was arranged by title. Periodicals have been arranged by title alphabetically and some periodicals have been microfilmed. Microfilm readers have been ordered. The periodical file is now located at the main desk, for easier access.

McGuire said there has been considerable "weeding out" of the book collection and some of the more out-of-date volumes are being stored until additional space is available. This follows another of the recommendations by the library consultant, which had noted a large percentage of the library's 100,000 volumes included books of questionable value.

McGuire hopes to reactivate the faculty advisory committee and is actively seeking assistance from faculty members in disciplines where he feels the library materials should be expanded.

He has instigated a procedure for letting faculty members know when books they have requested are ordered, received and available for use, all with the idea of making the library facilities more useable.

"I tell the staff to emphasize three things," McGuire said, "people, service and quality."

He feels a library should be a "living, active center, and it also can be a fun place."

McGuire, who spent part of his early years in Magic Valley, wanted to return to Idaho. He has been in professional library work for about 20 years, both in colleges and industry and came here from Chico State College, Calif. His family ranches north of Ketchum and he recalls chasing the few remaining wild horses in the Hagerman area. One of the highlights of these years was when the movie "It Happened in Sun Valley" was filmed and the McGuire family cows were "rented" for $25-per day.

"That's more money than we made on anything else on the ranch that summer," he laughed. McGuire has an A.B. degree and master's degree in library science from Denver university and has done graduate study at the University of San Francisco. He has worked in the Portland public library system, a Oregon State university and set up a technical library for Boeing Aircraft Co.

Home.

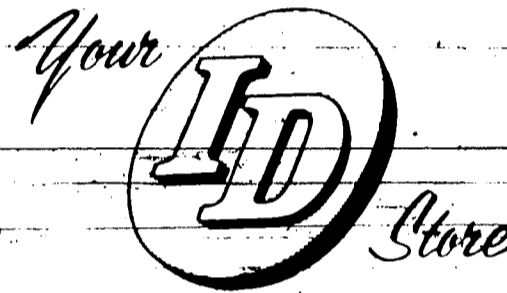

The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Ramsey Thompson, Havasu, Ariz., aunt of the bride. Mrs. Clifford Callison, aunt of the bridegroom, served punch and Mrs. Jack Russell, Jerome, aunt of the bride, poured coffee.

Teen-agers interested in future of canyon site

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Adults aren't the only persons concerned with the future of the Snake River Canyon. At least 109 Twin Falls eighth graders are just as interested.

The Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission held a meeting on July 20 to take public comment on possible zoning of the Snake River Canyon. Zoning will have a decisive impact on preservation or utilization of the canyon area.

Twin Falls City Manager Jean Milar took the floor

during the meeting to read a letter sent to him by 109 eighth grade students at O'Leary Junior High School.

The letter, attached to a sheet of notebook paper bearing 109 signatures was signed by Gary Seaman.

"Dear Mr. Milar," the letter began, "We the people who have signed the following paper are concerned with the future of the Snake River Canyon. We are concerned because the Canyon is being industrialized and bought out by private owners such as Mr. Simplot who is planning to build a private golf course in the area."

"Also they are starting on plans for a suburban housing development in the area. We would thank you if you would write back and give us your views on this issue."

Milar then read his reply to Gary and the other students. The Snake River Canyon "has been privately owned for many years," Milar answered. "At one time it consisted of cultivated fields, orchards and tree lined roads. It provided great scenic beauty from the canyon rim. In recent years the land, trees and fields have been allowed to depreciate to the point where the land looks forlorn and poorly attended."

Milar continued, "Mr. McCollum and his partner, Mr. Simplot, intend to build a golf course, riding and fishing areas and many fine homes. Certainly this will be an improvement in the land appearance."

Milar said the canyon land must be purchased by the public before it can be developed for public use.

The problem of property acquisition brings up many questions, according to Milar, including "How much will it cost? Who will buy it? Are the taxpayers willing to pay taxes to buy and develop the land?"

The city of Twin Falls owns two miles of canyon rim, the Twin Falls Highway District owns another 2,000 feet and the state and federal governments own four miles of the rim, all within five miles of the Twin Falls City limits," Milar reported.

Twin Falls City and County and the highway district also own about one mile of Rock Creek bottomlands, according to Milar.

"Of all these public places," he said, "only Shoshone Falls and a small county park are developed for public parks and recreational areas."

Addressing Gary and his classmates, Milar wrote, "You can see that the taxpayers would hesitate to spend money for more land when we have so much yet to develop."

Club bylaw change voted for Goodwill

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Goodwill Club decided at a meeting Wednesday to change some of the organization's bylaws to meet with the every day needs of our society.

The meeting was at the home of Mrs. Ivan Waring and was conducted by Mrs. Chloe Carr, president; Mrs. Ronald Scherupp led the Lord's Prayer. The flag salute was led by Mrs. Virgil Malone.

Members answered roll call with "long trip desires." The club contributed $18 to the Salvation Army to help send a boy to summer camp.

Secret pal gifts were received by Mrs. Scherupp and the thought for the day was given by Mrs. Henry Wambolt. Mrs. Scherupp received the white elephant gift.

Members receiving refunds are asked to contact Mrs. Charles Mattice, 733-7782, if they are unable to attend a meeting.

No decision made on route nuclear fuel elements to follow to Nevada

IDAHO FALLS — No decision has been made on what route radioactive nuclear fuel elements will take on their way from Las Vegas, Nev. to the Idaho Nuclear Reactor Testing Station (NRTS) for uranium extraction next year.

The public information officer at the Nevada Operations Office of the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) said the decision about the method of transportation and the route the fuel elements will take won't be made for three or four more months.

The AEC announced last week it would have the fuel elements sent from the Nevada site to the NRTS to recover enriched uranium estimated to be worth $25 million. It awarded a $68,150 contract to the Westinghouse Electric Corp. for two years for the recovery project.

According to David Miller, public information officer at the Nevada AEC site, the radioactive fuel elements, radioactive material, will be encased in Department of Transportation-approved shipping casks for the trip. Each cask, he said, weighs 42,800 pounds, and will carry a "payload" of 500 pounds. He said he was uncertain about how many carloads it would take to transport all the fuel.

Miller and Richard Blackledge, public information officer at the NRTS, agreed the shipments won't take place until early summer, 1974. The reason, according to both men, is that the NRTS rover fuel storage facility is only 25 per cent complete, and is not expected to be ready to receive the material until early spring of next year.

Blackledge said the fuel elements would be stored there until the equipment needed for processing has been constructed.

The casks in which the radioactive material is expected to be transported will be subjected to a series of tests to ensure their reliability, Miller said, including drop tests, piercing tests, water-tightness and fire tests.

Two possible methods of transportation under consideration are truck and rail, he said.

Ketchum bids top estimates

KETCHUM — Two construction bids submitted for a Ketchum Sewage treatment plant modification project have topped estimated costs by $40,000 to $50,000.

During a bid opening Friday night, the Ketchum city council took both bids under advisement with the recommendation they be studied to be determined if deletions can be made to bring them closer to estimated costs.

Harold Cox, JUB Engineers, said his office will review the bids, check compliance with specifications and will make recommendations to the council by about Tuesday.

Cox said the project was estimated to cost about $191,000. Hunter-Saucerman Construction Co., Idaho Falls, submitted a bid of $232,925. Phillip Ritzau, Ketchum, submitted a base bid of $242,210.

The modification project to increase plant efficiency is designed as an interim measure to full plant expansion. The project has been projected to be completed by December.

Dents harmful

BOISE (UPI) — A Department of Environmental and Community Service official said Friday badly dented cans of food are potentially harmful, especially if dents occur along seams or rims.

Vaughn Anderson made the comment in view of present concern over over unwholesome canned food. But he said only dented cans that show signs of leakage are highly suspect.

outlined, according to Crumrine. They include:

— Vocational evaluation, with each client receiving an individual two-month assessment of his physical, mental and emotional limitations.

— Work adjustment and training, involving vocational training and "person-adjustment training." According to the outline, vocational training involves on-the-job instruction in work skills, while person-adjustment "emphasizes the individual's adjustment to the work environment and not the acquisition of skills."

Current work programs will include janitorial training, maid service training, day worker training, materials handler training as well as a variety of other manual occupations, including food service workers. This stage could consume up to one year.

— Placement and follow-up which, according to the outline, is designed to include job placement in a competitive situation and permit monitoring once the placement has been made.

— Extended employment, which includes more closely monitored employment conditions for clients not capable of open competition in a job market. Persons under this program are paid, according to the outline, but not necessarily at a competitive wage.

For those persons in the program who must travel to the Gooding Hospital, according to Crumrine, DECS will furnish the transportation. He said, however, the firm was tentatively making plans to expand services to a new facility in the Burley-Rupert area at the end of a year.

The company has scheduled a dinner for Thursday at the Lincoln Inn in Gooding to inaugurate the program. John Van Orman, Jerome, head of the DECS board, and Dr. James Bax, DECS administrator, have been invited, according to Crumrine.

Cooperation asked on TF belt route

By BONNIE JONES
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — State Department of Highways officials agreed Friday afternoon under strong urging by City Manager Jean Milar to make statistics on their U.S. Highway 93 study available in connection with a Twin Falls belt route plan.

Members of the Twin Falls Transportation Commission met in the Holiday Inn with two state planning engineers.

Committee chairman Merl Leonard, county commissioner, said the committee has gone as far as it can in holding meetings and has reached the time for putting facts together and establishing priorities if a belt route around the city of Twin Falls is ever to become a reality.

Twin Falls city manager Milar told the state officials the study their department is conducting on U. S. Highway 93 routing between Rogerson and the Perrine bridge does have a bearing on the local belt route study.

Providing the state is planning a relocation of U. S. 93 in the vicinity of Twin Falls and providing it just might happen the routing would coincide with the proposed belt route routing. "We may be in business together," he said.

"If you are planning to continue U. S. 93 through Twin Falls, then we are not in business but we need to have some idea of what the state is doing before we plan our action," he told the state officials.

Milar also told state officials he believes some of the statistics being gathered by their department in the U. S. Highway 93 study will duplicate some of the needs of the belt route study and it would benefit both groups to compare notes.

Everett Kidner, Shoshone, and Howard Pilkington, Boise, Department of Highways planning engineers, agreed to share their study results as they apply to the immediate Twin Falls area.

Members of the Transportation committee are attempting to determine if a belt route system, probably with limited access, could be established to relieve some of the congested traffic areas within the city.

Pilkington recommended the committee keep the local study simple enough so as not to involve several years time in preparation.

He presented an outline in several separate divisions designed to help the local committees prepare a suitable basic study. He said much of the information is already available without conducting additional long range traffic counts and origin-destination studies.

He estimated the state would not be able to complete necessary studies, conduct hearings and obtain funding for major changes on U. S. 93 for seven to 10 years. For the local proposal to qualify for state funding, he said, a plan should be presented as soon as possible using what information is readily available.

Committee members agreed to allow state highway officials 30 days at least to prepare information they may have available which is pertinent to the belt route and U. S. 93 rerouting plans.

After that time, it was agreed the committee will complete compiling information for a firm proposal and will proceed with hearings and right of way acquisition. City council members and directors of the Twin Falls Highway District also serve on the Transportation committee.

Budget OK'd in Gooding

GOODING — Fifth Judicial District Judge Charles Scoggin has approved an amended Gooding County Budget increasing revenue sharing expenditures from $98,795 to $248,410.

District court action is necessary to amend a county budget. Commissioners originally budgeted only $98,795 of the anticipated revenue sharing money the county will have by the end of the current year. Funds must be budgeted and spent in the year they are given the counties.

The additional amounts approved by the district court and proposed by Gooding County commissioners allocates $50,000 to solid waste; $70,615 to county fairgrounds improvement; $5,000 for a road and bridge department truck; $5,000 for an accounting machine; $1,500 for Magic Valley Recreational Council support; $1,200, county recreation; $1,500, mental health; $500, senior citizens; $3,000 weed department pickup truck, and $10,000 for the five per cent contingency fund.

Previously budgeted revenue sharing money included $800 for the clerk's office for capital outlay; $15,000, sheriff's office for new radio equipment, two automobiles and bulk gasoline tank; $2,500, assessor's office; automobile; $300, prosecuting attorney; capital outlay; $4,000, county building fund for capital outlay; $15,000, fairgrounds; $50, public health capital outlay; $20,000, county landfill; $20,000, bookkeeping machine; $8,645, South Central Health District; $10,000, road and bridge truck, and $2,500, county planning commission.

Juvenile charged

HAILEY — A 17-year-old juvenile from Newport Beach, Calif., has been charged with auto theft in connection with an alleged theft of a vehicle July 17 in California.

The youth was arrested shortly before midnight Friday by a Blaine County deputy sheriff on U.S. Highway 93 near the East Fork Road junction.

The youth is being held in the Blaine County jail for California authorities. The vehicle, a 1971 small foreign pickup truck with a camper, has been impounded by the sheriff's department.

Board meet set

BURLEY — The Board of Trustees for Burley Joint School District No. 151 will meet at 8 p.m. Monday in the board room.

Dr. A. Paul Bown, chairman, will be in charge of the meeting. The board is expected to approve the hiring of teachers Sandra Brown and Paul Black; approve a change in transportation rates, hear a report on the Richardson property and review Declo preliminary drawings, Burley Junior High schematic drawings, Raft River project bid procedures and the Oakley project status.

BOISE (UPI) — A poll conducted by Research Associates shows Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has unparalleled popularity among top business executives in Idaho and among the citizens of Ada county.

The poll was conducted by Opinion Research West of L. E. Johnson and Associates of Boise.

Andrus topped out at 80.7 per cent favorable performance rating among 75 top executives from a like number of the state's largest companies.

Andrus' performance was rated as being from good to excellent. Rated second in performance was Sen. James E. McClure with 69.2 per cent, followed by Rep. Orval Hansen, 64.1 per cent.

Rep. Steve Symms got 48 per cent and Sen. Frank Church recorded 30.8 per cent.

The line-up was different in a poll of 200 Ada County families. Andrus led the list with 72.8 per cent in rating the job he was doing. Church came in second with 56.8 per cent followed by McClure and Symms.

The poll also showed that inflation, the energy crisis and interest rates were the "overriding" significant issues among the top executives.

Several executives cited "environmental overkill" as a key problem for the businessmen of Idaho.

Shortages don't affect tourism

KETCHUM — Rumored fuel shortages are not expected to effect tourist volumes in Idaho, according to an administrative assistant for the state Department of Commerce and Development.

Ken Stearns was a guest speaker before the Ketchum-Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce meeting at the Holiday Inn.

Stearns told the group that while tourist volumes will remain about constant, tourist patterns will change. Instead of traveling from 300 to 400 miles per day Stearns said tourists will probably stay in one place for about three to four days.

He said this situation will not generate as much revenue from the gasoline tax as in the past.

However, Stearns said, publicity about fuel shortages had "scared a lot of people" and it has cut down tourist travel to Idaho from the Great Lakes area. That area and California contribute a great deal to tourist volume in Idaho, he said.

Stearns said motorists have been questioned in Department tourist booths about possible fuel shortages they have encountered while traveling. He said he believes shortages are beginning but said these shortages do not constitute a crisis.

Tourist volume through Idaho is expected to dramatically increase next year with the "Expo-74" planned for Spokane, Wash., Stearns said.

Stearns said the Department was initiated in 1955 about two thirds of its budget was allocated for tourist promotion, with the remaining third allocated to a "low keyed" promotion of industry.

No power

TWIN FALLS — Problems encountered by workmen replacing cables were blamed Saturday for brief power outages in Twin Falls.

James Johnstone, Idaho Power Co., spokesman, said power was expected to be off for about 45 minutes in the northern part of the city. He said the company had experienced a cable problem about ten days ago and workmen were replacing the cable when they encountered the problems.

Service unlikely to resume soon

TWIN FALLS — Trans Magic Airlines service to Pocatello and Idaho Falls is unlikely to resume in the near future, according to an airlines official.

James Lee, vice president for operations for the airlines, said his firm was caught in a squeeze brought on by a price freeze, government subsidy to other airlines and a possible shortage of airplane fuel.

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission had announced late last week it was granting the airline's request to suspend service to the two airports for six months, and directed it to report back at the end of that time. The six months began today.

"We don't anticipate any service until the communities can demonstrate such a need for service," Lee said, "or make it profitable or a state, local or federal subsidy is introduced."

Rehabilitation to begin

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Two Idaho state agencies have signed contracts with a new Twin Falls corporation to begin a work rehabilitation program in the Magic Valley this week.

Jeffrey Crumrine, director of the newly formed Magic Valley Rehabilitation Services, Inc., said the program would begin Aug. 1 at the vacant Gooding Tuberculosis Hospital as well as in Twin Falls, where the firm's offices are located.

Crumrine said the program, funded with a $121,677 contract with the Department of Environmental and Community Services (DECS) as well as a $9,200 Vocational Rehabilitation contract, is geared for 46 persons with existing staff levels.

In addition to the two basic contracts, he said, it is aided with a $60,000 equipment contract signed with Vocational Rehabilitation.

According to Milton Klein, area DECS administrator, the program contracts for "services we don't have" in the area. "This is something we haven't had around here, he said, "and we think it's pretty valuable."

Crumrine said the program would receive its clients through referrals from the agencies involved. According to an outline put together by the corporation, the aims of the program are: "To assist the individual to acquire personal habits, attitudes and skills that will enable him to function effectively in spite of his disability; to develop or increase work tolerance prior to engaging in vocational training or in employment; to develop work habits and to orient the individual to the world of work."

According to Klein, "we want to make people employable and self-sufficient."

Renewed use at Gooding facility

GOODING — The former state tuberculosis hospital here, vacant for a number of years, seems headed for renewed use.

The Magic Valley Rehabilitation Services Inc. announcement this week that it would install a state program here is only part of what state officials call new "enthusiasm" for the buildings and grounds.

According to Milton Klein, area administrator of the Department of Environmental and Community Services, (DECS) other possibilities for the structure are a program for the "trainably retarded" students from nine Magic Valley school districts.

In addition, he said, the state is investigating the possibility of a short-term evaluation program being set up for youngsters "to cut down on poor placements." Klein said an evaluation that might take 14 to 36 hours is being looked at by officials.

DECS administrator Dr. James A. Bax, said in an interview several days ago the state might also consider putting a "half-way" facility for mildly delinquent youths in at the former hospital.

The building was transferred from the Department of Public Lands, where it had been classified as surplus property, to DECS last winter by the legislature.

Idaho visitors

VISITING CADETS from the CAP organizations in Australia are in Magic Valley as part of their tour of the United States. Here Capt. Joy Walte, Jerome and Maj. George Faulkner, Rupert, standing at rear, explain scenic Snake River Canyon areas.

Australian cadets visit Magic Valley

TWIN FALLS — Four Civil Air Patrol cadets and their senior escort are in Twin Falls County through today as part of the International Cadet Exchange program.

The party arrived here Thursday from Boise, via Mountain Home Air Force Base, and will be in Twin Falls and Kimberly through today, leaving there for Rupert. In Rupert, the group will be the guests of George Faulkner, Idaho CAP wing commander. He plans a number of scenic trips in that area for the group.

Thursday afternoon the cadets were taken on a tour of Snake River Canyon areas including the Snake River Trout Farm. Capt. Joy Waite and 2nd Lt. Carol Cooke, deputy and assistant deputy tour cadets with the Twin Falls squadron, conducted the tour.

Friday they flew the visitors over the Sawtooth Mountain area with a stop at Smiley Creek. While in Twin Falls area they were guests of the Lloyd Shewmaker family in Kimberly.

The four visitors and their leader are from Australia on tour of the United States. While they are here a group of Idaho Cadets including Kim Shewmaker, Kimberly, are traveling in other parts of the world as exchange cadets from Idaho.

A luncheon was held at the Rogerson Hotel Thursday for CAP officials of Twin Falls and the visiting cadets.

Those on the tour include Peter Hannaford, Gary Feldman, Andrew Nacsa and Josef Sadler, cadets, and Allen Hart, squadron leader and escort.

Black night

TWIN FALLS — Approximately 800 power customers were affected by a power outage in Twin Falls Thursday night.

David Barber, Idaho Power Co. maintenance official, said an aerial splice burned out in the vicinity of Martin Street, causing power outages of one hour to one hour and 45 minutes in the Martin Street, Heyburn Avenue West and Magic Valley Memorial Hospital areas.

Customers were routed to other sources until the repair could be made, he said.

Magic Valley Memorial Hospital was involved in the outage but operated on its auxiliary power equipment which automatically switches on in five seconds, Barber said.

FTC files lawsuit

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has filed suit in U.S. District Court against Forever Young Inc., a Denver firm, on charges of false and misleading advertising.

According to the suit, the company advertises a skin-peeling, "facial regeneration" treatment to help clients "lose 25 years in just 12 days" through its sales representatives in Hawaii, California, Washington, Colorado, Oregon and Virginia.

According to the complaint, clients are flown by the company to Denver to receive the treatment, which costs $2,500 and involves chemical peeling of face and neck. The company has been in business since 1969.

Thermal energy answer

PALO ALTO (UPI) — If its own relatively minor problems can be solved, geothermal energy could hold the answer to America's energy crisis enigma.

Geothermal energy is produced by either steam or hot water originating naturally under the Earth's surface. Pacific Gas & Electric Co., for instance, operates such a plant at the Geysers, Calif., and claims it "has proved both an engineering and a commercial success."

The supply is potentially enormous and the environmental impact of producing electric power from geothermal sources is far less than that for other energy sources, according to a book published by Stanford University Press.

The book, "Geothermal Energy: Resources, Production, Stimulation," grew out of a symposium of geothermal energy held at the 1972 annual meeting of the American Nuclear Society in Las Vegas, Nev.

Prof. Paul Kruger of Stanford and Carel Otte of Union Oil Company's geothermal division edited the papers presented at that meeting by various experts to make up the new book.

"The United States leads the world in per capita consumption of energy," the authors say. "And human labor in the United States constitutes far less than 1 percent of the work performed in factories, refineries and mills."

"Unlimited supplies of low-cost energy have been taken largely for granted in the United States, and long-range projections or increases in the real gross national product and improvements in the quality of life have been based on assumptions of a continued abundance of energy. Yet it is a fact that the United States is falling from a position of relative energy self-sufficiency into dependence on other countries to meet its requirements."

Kiwanis hears officials

TWIN FALLS — County government operations were discussed Thursday noon as four officials spoke to members of the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club.

Speaking were William Chancey, county commission chairman; William Wiseman and Merl Leonard, commission members, and Harold Lancaster, county clerk and recorder.

Chancey discussed county projects on which revenue funds were being expended and said refurbishing of the courthouse — more than 60 years old — was among projects planned.

Also funded was a water system at the county fairgrounds at Filer and some funds for use in the required security arrangements planned for the terminal building at the Twin Falls City-County Airport.

Leonard, who is also a member of the American Falls Reservoir board, told of plans to construct a new dam at American Falls, a project which, it is hoped, will receive early fall approval following field hearings in August.

Wiseman, a former chairman of the Magic Valley Hospital board, said that out of a $4 million plus budget, county taxes furnish $175,000 or three mills. He said occupancy in 1968 was running 77.9 per cent while now it is running 81.3 per cent. A bond issue for further expansion and upgrading will be needed he said.

Lancaster told of the additional workload since reorganization of the court system two years ago. Under new laws a daily report must be sent to the supreme court. Ten years ago such a report was required annually, he said. All facets of the legal area in the courts has increased and he said that public defender funds would require a larger budget next year.

Administration watches commodity future mart

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Both the administration and Congress are showing growing interest these days in tighter regulation of commodity futures trading.

The Agriculture department's Commodity Exchange Authority (CEA), itself the target of charges that it has failed to adequately police the frantic market conditions of recent months, moved recently to demand more self-policing by commodity exchanges.

On Capitol Hill, meanwhile, there have been a series of demands for tighter protection against price manipulation and uncontrolled speculation both by the CEA and the exchanges.

Both Houses of Congress, for example, have voted to boost the CEA budget — although the administration didn't ask for extra money — in order to hire more regulatory specialists.

Thursday a subcommittee headed by Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, concluding the first phase of its investigation into grain trading and transportation, was told the CEA should be replaced by a tough, sophisticated new regulatory group able and willing to crack down on conflict of interest and manipulation in futures markets.

The recommendation, endorsed by Smith, came from Harry Fortes, a veteran Chicago attorney and commodity market specialist who long had an insider's view as a former vice president of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Fortes charged that consumer food bills were inflated by hundreds of millions of dollars this year because "manipulative" trading drove soybean prices $5 to $6 per bushel beyond the level justified by supply-demand conditions.

Smith's subcommittee, which appears to be pointing toward proposals for new market control regulation, has now finished the initial two-day phase of its hearings. But it plans to resume the probe in September and October and to broaden its study to include grain transportation and other marketing problems.

Cans aid pool fund

TWIN FALLS — About 800 pounds of aluminum cans have been collected during July for the YMCA swimming pool fund.

According to director Charles Upton, Kurt MacNeil leads the pool fund contest today, with 631 pounds of aluminum cans contributed.

The pool fund has reached the 50 per cent mark, Upton said, and workers will soon put in filter room equipment and wall in the pool.

The July contest, with prizes from area merchants for 12 winners, will end at 5 p.m. July 31.

Reed-led 49ers drop Patriots in exhibition

CANTON, Ohio (UPI) — Second-year quarterback Joe Reed moved San Francisco to two second quarter touchdowns as the 49ers beat the New England Patriots 20-7 Saturday in the annual Hall of fame exhibition game.

Reed, who was on the taxi squad most of last season, moved the 49ers 45 yards in six plays, three of them pass completions, before Jimmy Thomas swept right end for two yards and a score midway through the second quarter.

Then with eight seconds to play in the half, Reed threw a 29-yard pass to Dick Witcher for the second touchdown, climaxing a 90-yard drive.

The veteran San Francisco defense blanked the Patriots until Tom Reynolds caught a 31-yard touchdown pass from Brian Dowling with 1:53 to play.

Tom Wittum kicked 12 and 17-yard field goals for the other San Francisco points.

Reed played most of the game for San Francisco with John Brodie and Steve Spurrier appearing for only one series of downs apiece.

In the second period, he hit successive completions of 14, 14 and 9 yards. The last one combined with a personal foul to move the ball to the New England nine-yard line where three running plays took it across.

The next time the 49ers got the ball, a penalty backed them up to their 10. After one running play, Reed threw 10 straight passes, hitting seven, the last to Witcher wide open in the end zone.

All-stars report to pro camp

CHESTER, Pa. (UPI) — Tight end Charlie Young, offensive tackle Jerry Sisemore and guard Guy Morriss, who played in the College All-Star game Friday night, joined the Philadelphia Eagles at their Widener College training camp Saturday.

The addition of the Eagles' three top draft choices raised the number of players in camp to 66.

The Eagles completed two-day workouts and will begin practicing once daily starting Monday to prepare for their pre-season opener with the Buffalo Bills Aug. 4 in Jacksonville, Fla.

Philadelphia completed the Saturday practice session by working on goal-line offense. The offensive unit was given the ball on the three-yard line and was allowed three downs to score. Head Coach Mike McCormack was pleased with the offense which consistently scored on two plays.

"I was very encouraged," McCormack said. "The blocking was crisp and we did what we wanted to do. The kids enjoyed it. They were having a lot of fun, and that's what football is all about — emotion."

Chargers' new passer looks sharp

IRVINE, Calif. (UPI) — San Diego's Wayne Clark, the Chargers' backup quarterback last season, completed 4 of 8 passes for 145 yards — including an 80-yarder to rookie Joe Pelly of Arizona State for a touchdown — in a controlled scrimmage Saturday.

Coach Harland Svare didn't use 40-year-old Johnny Unitas in the 60-play scrimmage. Quarterback Tony Adams, a rookie from Utah State, was 8 for 14 for 126 yards.

Seven-year pro Dave Williams and rookie Al Reese of Tennessee State each caught two passes while Bob Thomas, a running back acquired in the off-season from the Los Angeles Rams, led all rushers with 63 yards on 9 carries.

Aussie lumberjack cops title

HAYWARD, Wis. (UPI) — Ron Wilson of Tasmania, Australia, was a double winner Saturday in the second day of the annual Lumberjack World Championship.

Wilson won the underhand chopping event with a time of 24.3 seconds and the standing chopping event with a time of 26.9 seconds.

In the speed-climbing event world record holder Larry Downing of Castle Rock, Pa., was two seconds slower than his record of 32.2 seconds, but that was good enough to beat everyone else.

In the powersawing event Gary Bradley of Crandon had the top time of 14.0 seconds and in the two man bucksaw event a father and son, Sven and Ron Johnson of Jewett City, Conn., won for the second day in a row with a time of 11.3 seconds.

Winner of the one-man bucksawing was Ron Hartill of British Columbia with a time of 24.8 seconds and the top man in treetopping was Art Williams of British Columbia with a time of 52.0 seconds.

Intercepts kill Dallas offense

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys defense intercepted three passes to breeze past the offense 30-17 Saturday in the team's annual intrasquad scrimmage.

Free safety Cliff Harris, linebacker Dave Edwards and rookie strong safety Bill Drake, a free agent from Oregon, made the interceptions.

Wide receiver and No. 2 draft choice Golden Richards of Hawaii scored on a seven-yard pass from quarterback Jack Concannon. Running back Calvin Hill scored the other touchdown for the offense on a one-yard run over the middle.

Hill led the rushers with 54 yards in 14 carries. Bill Thomas had 50 yards in eight carries. Tight end Jean Pugett led the receivers by catching two passes for a 30-yard total. Concannon completed 10 of 20 for 121 yards with one interception. Veteran Craig Morton completed 4 of 12 attempts for 46 yards and two interceptions.

Roger Staubach missed the scrimmage due to his mother's illness but was expected to return to training camp Sunday.

American juniors tip Soviets

ODESSA, USSR (UPI) — The U.S. national junior track team, future American Olympians, Saturday defeated the Soviet Union 194-182 to end their two day track and field meet.

The American men, down 64-61 going into the final day, rallied to win 123-108. They captured all the running events. The American girls won four of their six events Saturday, but could not quite make up for a Friday performance that had them down 38-15. They were edged 74-71.

"I'm very satisfied," head coach Joseph Healey said. "It was really our runners against their field men."

Earlier, Healey correctly predicted a victory.

Houston has contact work

KERRVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Coach Bill Peterson sent the Houston Oilers through a 27-play offensive scrimmage Saturday highlighted by the play of quarterback Edd Hargett.

Hargett, acquired in an off-season trade with New Orleans, hit five straight passes for 61 yards and led the Oilers on a 50-yard touchdown drive. The former Texas A&M star shared the quarterbacking spot with last year's starter, Dan Pastorini.

Three enter hall of fame

CANTON, Ohio (UPI) — Raymond Berry, Jim Parker and Joe Schmidt, three former stars of the National Football League, were inducted Saturday into the pro football Hall of Fame.

Berry, one of the all-time top receivers, and Parker, an offensive lineman, were teammates on the Baltimore Colts in the 1950's and 1960's and Schmidt was a linebacker and more recently coach of the Detroit Lions.

The induction, prior to the hall of fame football game in which San Francisco beat New England 20-7, highlighted a three day festival in Canton, where the first pro football league was formed 53 years ago.

Broncos, Jackson remain far apart

DENVER (UPI) — The attorney for veteran Denver Broncos guard Larron Jackson said Saturday the team's management was refusing to negotiate a new contract for the star lineman.

Jackson reported to the Broncos training camp in Pomona, Calif., last Monday but refused to practice until his 1973 salary was negotiated. Coach John Ralston, who suspended Jackson Monday, said the lineman wants the salary of a veteran pro quarterback.

But Robert A. Esperti, Jackson's attorney, said Jackson has no contract demands.

"We haven't had the opportunity to negotiate," Esperti said. "They (the Broncos front office) won't talk to us."

Esperti said Jackson returned to Denver after his suspension and is working out every day. He is one of six Broncos holdouts.

Irish Sonnet wins foul claim

OCEANPORT, N. J. (UPI) — Irish Sonnet, impeded by first-finisher Honky Star on the stretch turn, was awarded victory by disqualification in the $104,970 Sorority Stakes for two year old fillies at Monmouth Park Saturday.

Honky Star, ridden by Donald Macbeth, was first to the wire in the six-furlong race in 1:10.2-5 and edged Irish Sonnet by a head.

Irish Sonnet, a supplementary nominee ridden by Braulio Baeza, returned $1140, $540 and $320. Honky Star paid $2420 and $560 and In Hot Pursuit, the third finisher in the field of seven, paid $240.

Rentzel case expected to be Rozelle's major test

By DAVID ISRAEL
(c) Chicago Daily News
CHICAGO — The most severe legal test of Pete Rozelle's authority as National Football League Commissioner will be initiated next week in a Los Angeles federal court.

That's when the NFL players association will file suit requesting the immediate reinstatement of Los Angeles Rams' wide receiver Lance Rentzel, who was suspended Monday by Rozelle for "conduct detrimental to football."

The suit was announced here yesterday by Ed Garvey, executive director of the players association. Rentzel was suspended indefinitely. The suspension stems, apparently from his recent conviction for possession of marijuana. The conviction is being appealed in the California courts. Rentzel previously was convicted of indecent exposure in Texas.

If the suit is successful, it will have a profound effect on the structure of the NFL. For Rozelle will be stripped of the power he now has to suspend a player without due process.

According to the current NFL constitution, Garvey said, the commissioner not only has the power to suspend players as he sees fit, but is also the only body to whom the suspension can be appealed. Should the suit succeed, only individual owners, with whom contracts are entered into, will have the right to suspend players, Garvey said.

"Essentially, we are saying that any interference by the league in the employment of a player with a team is a violation of the law," Garvey said, "that's an attack on the league structure as we know it."

Garvey admitted that he was particularly incensed by the suspension of Rentzel at this time.

"Lance Rentzel is one decent human being," Garvey said. "He is desperately trying to overcome his problems of the past. But Rozelle is making him the scapegoat because of all the adverse publicity about drugs. This action might jeopardize the appeal."

"I'm infuriated with Rozelle's lack of sensitivity. I find this really obnoxious. Pete Rozelle should not be the court of last resort."

From all angles

Things are a little less tense right now for Twin Falls high school and Legion pitcher Mike Anderson.

Anderson, who signed with College of Southern Idaho on a baseball scholarship this week, also had another happening. The youngster has been pitching for the past two years with varying degrees of discomfort and pain.

At first it was thought he'd injured cartilage or muscle just below his right shoulder blade. But Wednesday, after the knot had started to develop rather rapidly, exploratory surgery indicated it was a tumor, which, happily, proved benign.

"It didn't amount to much," said the relieved Anderson. "It was just under the skin. I should be able to pitch in the state tournament (Aug. 9) without any problems."

Jim Wallace, former athlete and coach of note in these parts and now head golf pro at Clarkston, Wash., sent a representative into Magic Valley this week. The man was his son John Wallace who qualified for the National Association of Insurance Agents state qualifying. He didn't make it to nationals, finishing at 87-90, but John is only 12 years old — and that could be a record for qualifying even for the state playoffs.

Twin Falls halfmiler Gary Sievers says he's done thinking and its all over. He has signed the national letter of intent for a BYU track scholarship and that's where he'll go.

Chad Browning recreation director for Twin Falls city, went on an experiment and may have come up with the answer to the baffling problem of where do Twin Falls baseball players go.

Probably every boy in the city, athletically oriented or not, plays in the city Knothole League at one time or another with most of the grades managing from eight to 12 teams. But for the past many years, the ball players, good and bad, start dropping out around the fifth grade and by the seventh and eighth it was a matter of getting four teams out of the eighth and ninth to play a semblance of a schedule.

This spring Browning kicked in $80, signed up eight teams and made that age group part of the state Babe Ruth program. He shifted the playing times to evenings and, although it didn't come through this year, had a promise of some inter-city competition.

Bango! Twin Falls had eight teams in the Babe Ruth situation and everything appeared very good. In addition, Twin Falls sent a team to the state playoffs in Idaho Falls.

"We're really happy with the way it turned out. We were even considering cutting off the program after the sixth grade because participation was falling off so badly," Browning said. "I don't know if it is necessary that we schedule any games outside the city limits but we talked some with Buhl last spring and heard Filer and Gooding and some other towns might be interested."

He said he couldn't say whether such a thing could become a league or whether it would just be a matter of having the intra-city league with some independent games.

Either way, the program should do away with the situation Coach Harold Brown is fighting with the Legion team now of having only a couple three 18-year olds and relying very heavily on 16 and 16 year olds.

A's adjusted designated hitter thinking and started winning

OAKLAND (UPI) — When the American League instituted the designated hitter rule for the 1973 season, the Oakland A's tried to fill the spot with contact-plus-speed batters and the results were less than desirable.

"We had to completely revise our thinking on the designated hitter rule," manager Dick Williams said recently in admitting the mistake. "We were being out-designated."

"At first, we wanted hitters who could make contact and who also had some speed. As we went along, we realized we needed one experienced hitter to stabilize the spot."

What Williams was referring to was the 2-9 start the defending world champions got off to and the sub-500 record the A's carried for several weeks.

Then in mid-May, Oakland made a turn around. It came when Charles O. Finley, an owner not afraid to spend money to acquire players he thinks can help, picked up Deron Johnson from Philadelphia on interleague waivers.

When the A's sprung the DH rule, it actually caught the A's by surprise. Only a few months earlier they had released Orlando Cepeda, now a top hitter with Boston. Before that, the A's peddled another notable DH, Tommy Davis of Baltimore.

The 35-year-old Johnson, who eight years ago led the National League in runs batted in, paid a dividend the first night in an A's uniform and has been instrumental in aiding the team build up a little breathing room in the Western Division race.

In his first game, Johnson knocked in four runs. He didn't let up either. Over the next 12 games, he drove in eight more runs.

He's been more than he hoped for," Williams said. "I don't have to say he's been excellent as our designated hitter. With him behind (Sal Bando and Reggie Jackson), it really helps our attack. He's an experienced hitter and that's a big, big factor."

Although he has been with the A's less than three months, Johnson ranked second on the club in runs batted in (55) and third in home runs (12) at the All-Star break.

The fact that Johnson is able to run and play major league baseball is a story in itself.

Last year, he suffered a nerve ailment that deadened his lower left leg. Medical experts were unable to determine the exact nature of the affliction.

"The foot just hung there and flapped," Johnson said, recalling the terrifying days when he didn't know whether he'd ever walk again. He's still not sure how the nerve cured itself, but it did.

After spending almost all of his major league career in the NL (although he once played for the A's when they were still in Kansas City), Johnson's initial reaction to his new-found role was one of strangeness.

"It felt strange not going out on the field at first, but I didn't feel the pressure of a pinchhitter," he said. "I still don't feel part of the game because I know I'm going to hit more than just once."

"I'm used to it now. The big thing is contributing to a team that has a chance to go all the way."

Cards and Bears hold scrimmage

RENSSELAER, Ind. (UPI) — The Chicago Bears and St. Louis Cardinals played to a standoff Saturday in a controlled scrimmage in which each team ran 89 plays, including nine field goal attempts.

The format called for the Bears' offense to play against the Cardinals' defense and the Cardinals' offense against the Bears' defense with both games under way simultaneously at opposite ends of the field. They ran plays from identical situations, mostly from the 35-yard line.

In one series, where each team ran 10 goal line plays from the four-yard line, each team scored four times. On the field goal attempts, three of the Cardinal tries were blocked and one by the Bears.

Only one touchdown was scored in the plays from midfield, a 35-yard pass from Tim Van Galder to Ara Person for the Cardinals.

Steelers conduct scrimmage

LATROBE, Pa. (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Steelers completed their second week of training camp drills Saturday with a 38-play scrimmage in which there was no scoring.

Backup quarterback Terry Hanratty directed 20 plays and completed one of six pass attempts for 12 yards. Starting quarterback Terry Bradshaw remained sidelined with a pulled stomach muscle.

Joe Gilliam took over for 18 plays, completed three of eight passes for 19 yards and experienced interceptions by defensive back Mike Wagner and linebacker Jack Ham. For the second consecutive scrimmage, Rocky Bleier led the running backs, gaining 31 yards in five trips. He also caught two passes for 13 yards. Franco Harris ran 24 yards in four trips.

Other veterans sidelined with injuries were guard Bruce Van Dyke, wide receivers Ron Shanklin and Frank Lewis, tight end Larry Brown and linebacker Andy Russell.

Defensive back Jim Thomas, the Steelers' No. 1 draft choice this year, and linebacker Gail Clark, who played for the College All Stars Friday night, reported to camp but did not take part in the scrimmage. Clark suffered a back injury playing against the Miami Dolphins and will have X-rays taken this weekend.

Leo doesn't like new name

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston Astros General Manager H. B. "Spec" Richardson said Saturday he would check into reports pitcher Don Wilson called manager Leo Durocher an uncomplimentary name.

The incident occurred shortly after the Astros had returned from Los Angeles where they defeated the Dodgers 3-2 Friday.

Overhead interception

Dolphins claim they were bored with all-star game

By TIM WEIGEL

CHICAGO — It was the kind of coterie one expects to find riding on the tail of a world champion football team. It was a wave of blond hair, painted lips and halter tops and it was undulating toward the door of the Miami Dolphin dressing room.

Suddenly, the door opened and the Dolphins' all-pro defensive tackle Manny Fernandez stepped out, duded, up like bachelor number one on the dating game. One of the groupies squealed for an autograph, but Manny didn't hear. He just yawned and moved on.

The girl just like the college all-stars, couldn't seem to turn the Dolphins on. For whatever reasons, it appeared the world champions weren't in the mood to play last night — football, or anything else.

"I was bored out of my mind out there," Fernandez had said of Miami's soggy 14-3 nudging off the collegians in Soldier Field.

It was hard to get up for this. It was like a scrimmage."

Then someone asked if the game had been disappointing, or even embarrassing experience for Manny and his mates. After all, these were the undefeated kings of football's fat cats, being pushed to the brink by a band of college kids who hadn't even scrimmaged in the two weeks before the game.

"Yeah, all of us regulars were disappointed we had to play the whole game," Manny said.

Undoubtedly, it was a mixture of all-star zeal and Dolphin boredom that denied the pro champs their big score and forced them into a full four quarters of game time. And some college joes might even let away with insisting that All-Stars would have won, with a break or two. Anyway, the Miami mob didn't care enough to argue.

The Dolphins took the opening kick-off and marched crisply for 60 yards and first blood. Larry Csonka and Jim Kick carried on nine of the ten plays of the drive, but the key was a 22-yard play-action pass from quarterback Bob Griese to Hubert Ginn which gave the pros a first down on the Star's 12.

Csonka eventually banged in from the three and most of the neo-capacity crowd shook their heads, anticipating the inevitable Miami landslide. But the college kids were in the mood to play. And only some boyish bungling kept them from grabbing the game by the throat. The stars blew at least three opportunities to make the Dolphins' night miserable as well as yaw-worthy. The first came, in the opening quarter when star quarterback Bert Jones completed three laser-beam tosses and had his club with a first down on the Miami 13. But then Greg Pruitt danced into the line carrying the ball as if posing for the cover of Sports Illustrated. He dropped it and Fernandez recovered and Pruitt had his first professional football lesson.

Even more crippling was the illegal motion penalty in the second quarter. The collegians were first-and-goal on the Dolphins' one, thanks to some great ruffing by Purdue's Otis Armstrong. Then coach John McKay sent in Sam Slam-bam Cunningham to execute his legendary human cannon ball routine.

But slam-bam got antsy and jumped the count and the penalty set the stars back to the six. They had to settle for a Ray Guy field goal and a 13 halftime deficit.

9 cool ways to save energy

1. Insulate! Biggest energy-saver we know. We recommend ten inches overhead (R-30 resistance factor). Save on cooling and heating costs.
2. A vent fan to carry off excess heat in the attic can reduce living area summer temperatures by ten degrees and prevent moisture condensation during winter months.
3. Given a choice, locate your window air conditioner on the shady side of the house so the condensing unit can dissipate heat more readily.
4. Obstructions to air flow reduce cooling efficiency. Don't let shrubbery smother the outdoor section of your air conditioner. Keep the inside grill free from furniture or curtains. Most important, clean the filter regularly.
5. Use the vent fans in your kitchen or bath to carry off heat when cooking or bathing.
6. Don't try to live like an Eskimo! During hot weather, air conditioning experts recommend inside temperatures 12 to 15 degrees cooler than outside temperatures.
7. Draperies can do more than look pretty. Use them to keep the sunshine out during daytime hours (and to keep heat in during the winter).

Defense of Saints tips offense

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (UPI) — The New Orleans Saints' defense defeated its offense 14-9 in a Saturday scrimmage by stopping 10 drives and recovering two fumbles.

The fumble recoveries came when linebacker Adrian Young picked up a ball dropped by Bob Gresham and when another linebacker, Steve Ferrughelli, recovered a Jim Ford fumble.

The offense scored on a 41-yard field goal by Happy Feller and a three-yard run by Jeff Horsely.

"It was a good, hard-hitting scrimmage," said head coach J. D. Roberts, "and it is obvious that our defense has improved."

Roberts said quarterbacks Archie Manning, Bobby Scott and Bob Davis all looked good controlling the ball and that running back Bill Butler did a fine job. Roberts also praised running backs Frank McGuigan and Horsely.

Spencer and Church share early Burley amateur lead

BURLEY — Defending champion Bill Spencer and counselor Tom Church fired identical three-under par 69 Saturday to set the pace in a sizzling battle for the annual Burley amateur golf tournament.

Some 12 persons still were within a stroke of par going into the final round as the 30-man championship flight lived up to its pre-tournament billing.

Spencer, a 16-year-old, was the only teen-ager among the top dozen or so leaders but the young turks were in evidence. And Burley's top golfers definitely were in position to make it a home town affair if possible. Glenn Blakely of Burley and Jeff Thomsen of Twin Falls were knotted at 71. Alone at 70 was rodeo champion Dean Oliver of Boise who pieced together a remarkable four straight birdies and five in six holes to break away from some early bogies.

Oliver, three over on the first seven holes, birdied eight, nine, 10 and 11, settled for par on 12 and birdied 13 but he couldn't keep it going.

The other flights basically were dominated by Burley players. In the first flight, Dale Williams, who tied for first-flight honors and lost in playoff at Gooding last week, fired an even par 72 for a two-stroke advantage over Don Hulbert of Twin Falls and Garth Jones, Burley. Two other Burley men, Scott Stanfield at 75 and Doug Hoggan at 76, rounded out the top four.

Jim Campbell of Burley, rolling up the best score of his career — a one-over 73 — still had only a two-stroke lead on runner-up Mike Kloepfer. George Anderson stood at 76 with Bert Sorenson and Jay Hatt sharing 78.

In the third flight, Fred Allen carded a 78 to open up a five-stroke lead on West Carolson and Jerry Vegwert, both Burley. Burleyites Bill Isham and John Kober had 84s.

The fourth flight prizes are based totally on net scores. Leading is Don Manning, Burley, at 80, followed by Craig Nelson, Twin Falls, 61; Dick Adams, Burley, 63; John White, Burley, and Clarence Hatt, Burley 64, and Virgil Cross, Burley, 65.

The fourth flight will tee off from 6:59 to 7:55 a.m. Sunday with the third flight going from 8:09 to 8:50. The second will be split, the higher division (81 and up) will go from 9:12 to 9:26 with the lower half starting at noon and running to 12:28. First flight goes from 12:42 to 1:30 with the championship flight following.

Twins sign McCormick to contract

McCormick, who was 22-10 for the San Francisco Giants in 1967, was recently released from the Hawaii Islanders after posting an early season 6-11 record and a 3.76 ERA. He was the last man cut by the Giants last year.

Semi-finalists

Red's Trading Post and Brehm Construction, who've been battling it out for league supremacy all year, moved into the championship semi-finals of the Twin Falls city women's slowpitch softball tournament Saturday night.

The two will meet at 1:30 p.m. Sunday with the winner of that one being in the strong position since it will require two defeats later in the day to wrest the title from it.

Brehm Construction sailed into the semi-finals with victories over Elsing's, Farm Bureau and the Turf Club while Red's was dropping Mary Carter Paints and Twin Falls Bank and Trust.

In other Saturday action, Stutzman Construction dropped Twin Falls Feed and Ice, Turf Club defeated Stutzman, Faux Cigar store dropped D and B Supply and Ditch Witch and Red's then defeated the Bull team.

In two loser bracket games, Stutzman ousted Elsing's and Ditch Witch eliminated Mary Carter Paints.

Hadl and Rams drill Broncos

FULLERTON, Calif. (UPI) — John Hadl hit 16 of 28 passes for 226 yards and one touchdown for the Los Angeles Rams against the Denver Broncos in a passing scrimmage Saturday.

The NFL clubs also had a two-hour rushing scrimmage at the Rams' training camp.

Each club used four quarterbacks in the passing session.

For the Rams, James Harris was 13 of 18 for 139 yards while rookies Ron Jaworski and Sonny Sixkiller were 1-of-3 for 10 yards and 2-of-4 for 18 yards, respectively.

Charley Johnson, the Broncos' No. 1 quarterback, hit 9 of 26 passes for 135 yards. Mike Ernst was 10 of 16 for 149 yards, Steve Ramsey 5 of 10 for 80 yards and rookie John Hufnagel 6 of 9 for 72 yards.

"I thought our passing drill was beneficial considering we looked at a lot of people," Knox said. Added Ralston, "I think our passing game is ahead of last year."

L.E. loses

IDAHO FALLS — Jack Moose of Lewis-Clark of Salmon, poked a two-run homer in the last inning — his second round-tripper of the game — to defeat Twin Falls 5-3 in the state Babe Ruth baseball tournament.

Coach Charles Brown's crew outfit the winners 11-7 and committed fewer errors, 2-3, but left too many men on base.

Twin Falls will play the Wallace-Nampa winner at 5:30 p.m. Sunday and if successful would face a possible doubleheader Monday.

Namath hits on two TD passes

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — Quarterback Joe Namath was on target Saturday as he threw two touchdown passes the first two times the offense had the ball in a New York Jets intra-squad game.

The 30-year-old Namath found rookie wide receiver Tony Lomax on a 40-yard toss and then connected on a nine-yarder to tight end Rich Caster.

John Ebersole's 68-yard interception return for a touchdown was a feature of the Jets defensive.

Veteran wide receiver Don Maynard reported to camp after being excused for two weeks to settle business matters in Texas. Also reporting were three college all-star players who faced the world champion Miami Dolphins Friday night. They are No. 1 draft choice Burgess Owens (Miami, Fla.), cornerback, Robert Woods offensive tackle from Tennessee State and Bruce Bannon, a linebacker from Penn State.

Ashe and Okker gain net finals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tom Okker and Arthur Ashe gained the finals of the $75,000 Washington Star-News International Tennis championship Saturday, humbling Chile's Jaime Fillol and California's Tom Gorman, respectively, in straight sets.

Ashe polished off Gorman in one hour, 6-4, 6-0 and Okker took five minutes longer to put away Fillol, 6-1, 6-4.

Neither of the winners at any time was in serious service trouble despite the soft clay surface. The second seeded Ashe acknowledged afterwards that his game was not particularly sharp and Gorman beat himself with frequent ground strokes into the net.

The third seeded Okker said he has hope of overcoming Ashe's overpowering service in Sunday's finals. But the little Netherlander — who gives up six inches in height to Ashe said "its not much fun playing him." He said Ashe has won about 15 of their 25 matches in the last five years.

Atlanta has first scrimmage

GREENVILLE, S.C. (UPI) — The Atlanta Falcons held their first full training camp scrimmage Saturday, and the results showed some improvement on the defensive line in professional football.

Defensive ends Claude Humphrey and John Zook and tackles Mike Tilleman and Mike Lewis made a shambles of Atlanta's offensive line for the second day in a row.

The front four dumped the quarterback three times, batted down a couple of passes and scored two touchdowns on a fumble recovery and an interception.

Zook, a five year veteran from Kansas, intercepted a Bob Lee pass for a TD. Humphrey, an all-pro from Tennessee State, picked up a fumble and rambled 18 yards for the other score.

Brewers rally in third inning to edge Yankees

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — John Briggs' home run and run-scoring singles by Tim Johnson and John Vukovich in the third inning Saturday gave the Milwaukee Brewers a 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees.

The win snapped a five-game Brewers losing streak and ended a three game Yankee win streak.

The Brewers trailed 3-2 when Briggs led off the third with his 11th home run to left field to tie the score and George Scott, Darrell Porter and Johnson and Vukovich singled to put the Brewers ahead to stay.

BAITIMORE (UPI) — Aurelio Rodriguez singled home pinch-runner Jim Northrup with the winning run in the ninth inning Saturday night to give the Detroit Tigers a 3-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles and hand Joe Coleman his 16th triumph of the season.

Frank Howard opened the Tiger ninth with a single and Northrup was sent in as a runner. Bill Freehan's sacrifice bunt moved Northrup to second base and after Dick Sharon tapped out to Mike Cuellar, Rodriguez singled up the middle to easily score Northrup.

Twins top Sox for 5th in row

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — George Mitterwald continued his torrid hitting with three runs batted in Saturday night to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 6-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox for their fifth triumph in a row.

Mitterwald drove home a run with a groundout during a four-run Twins' rally in the fifth inning and doubled home two more runs in the seventh inning. He has had four home runs and driven in 14 runs during the Twins' current winning streak.

The Twins jumped on starter Bart Johnson in the fifth inning after he had yielded only a scratch single over the first four innings.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Joe Woolley, the high school coach who admitted altering the transcript of quarterback Kerry Jackson so he could play football for the University of Oklahoma, was severely reprimanded and placed on probation Saturday by the Texas High School Coaches Association.

The association said Woolley would remain on probation until an investigation into the scandal is completed. The action means Woolley will not be able to work as a Texas high school coach until the probation is lifted.

CHICAGO (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals rapped Ferguson Jenkins for three runs in the first inning and stayed safely in front behind the pitching of Reggie Cleveland and Al Hrabosky to defeat the Chicago Cubs Saturday, 7-2.

The victory increased the Cardinals' lead in the National League East to 2 1/2 games over the skidding Cubs who have lost 12 of their last 14 games.

Lou Brock hit the first of six Cardinal doubles to lead off the first inning and scored on Tim McCarver's double. Joe Torre was hit by a pitch and advanced to third on a single by Ted Simmons that seeped McCarver. Torre scored when Bernie Carbo bounced into a rundown double play.

Giants keep LA on skids

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Willie McCovey got three hits, driving in two runs, and Bobby Bonds clouted his 28th homer Saturday night to lead the San Francisco Giants to a 5-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers before a regular season record Dodger Stadium crowd of 55,025.

Right-hander Jim Barr pitched his second shutout of the season. Barr walked one and struck out five to square his record at 9-0.

Only two of the Giant runs were earned as the Dodgers committed six errors.

This was the fourth Dodger loss in their last five games and cut their lead in the National League West to four games over Cincinnati and five over the third-place Giants.

Don Sutton started for the Dodgers, lasted five innings and gave up four runs on seven hits to take his seventh loss against 12 victories.

The Mets, looking to escape the cellar of the National League East as they begin a 14-game home stand.

Milner, who has hit at nearly a 500 clip while batting safely in the last nine games, tagged a 3-2 pitch from loser Mike Torrez over the 396-foot sign in left-center field for his 16th homer of the year. The blow capped a five-run inning as the first five batters to face Torrez all scored.

A's badly need Fingers' relief

OAKLAND (UPI) — The first 16 weeks of the American League season were hard to take, admitted Oakland ace reliever Rollie Fingers just before the All-Star break.

Not long before the mid-summer classic, the lanky righthander with the handsome handlebar mustache had the league's lowest earned run average but had no victories to show for it. Instead, he had five decisions in the loss column.

Then during a one-week stretch on the road, Fingers put on a performance that prompted his field boss, Dick Williams, to select him for the A's All-Star Game staff.

In that six-game span, Fingers picked up three victories on performances reminiscent of 1972 when he won 11 and saved 21 others.

On the eastern swing, he pitched 11 2-3 innings, gave up no runs and struck out 11.

Fingers' clutch appearances were something the A's needed badly. They left home with a slim one game lead and returned with a definite edge going into the last third of the season.

"He's done the job for us," Williams said as he looked over Fingers' 3.5 record, 1.27 ERA and 10 saves. "Don't look at his win-loss record. Look at his ERA and saves. To me, he's the best reliever around."

Fingers, refusing to make reference to his outstanding year in 1972, said he knew his bad streak couldn't continue indefinitely.

"I felt good in the spring and reported in shape," he said. "I had a good spring except for a couple of times when I got hit hard."

But all that changed when the championship race started. And it stems from the American League's adoption of the designated hitter rule.

In spring training, A's managers were able to use all their pitchers, including relievers, in all situations because nothing was at stake.

Once the regular season started, however, hitting specialists made their marks, thereby enabling teams to go with smaller pitching staffs and, more important, allowing managers to stay with their starting pitchers for a longer period, especially in close games.

The A's were no exception. "Our starters were going most of the way in the early going and I wasn't getting much work," Fingers said.

"And it seemed every time I did pitch our guys couldn't score any runs for me."

Slowly, the opposition wore down Fingers and worked him for runs which cost him the game five times.

"I knew it couldn't stay that way all season long," Fingers said, trying to sound convincing. "I'm not doing anything different now and you can see the results."

Originally, the A's had hopes of making Fingers a starter. His credentials in the minors all indicated that he had the arm and stamina to go nine innings.

The A's changed that with Fingers' help in 1971. As a starter, Fingers got rocked frequently and was finally moved to the bullpen.

"I had only four wins, all of them in relief, plus 17 saves and that got people to thinking," he said. "Besides, I was too nervous as a starter. I'd try to think too much on the mound about batters and situations that I'd start aiming the ball."

Greenwood cops auto victory

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. (UPI) — John Greenwood won what developed into a two-car race Saturday, edging pole-sitter Warren Agor by 90 seconds to win a Trans-American auto race at Road America.

Greenwood and Agor had the two fastest cars among 34 drivers that took part in the race and they held the first two spots the whole way.

Agor, of Rochester, N.Y., had won the pole spot with his Camaro and led for the first five laps until Greenwood passed him in his Corvette Roadster.

The Pontiac, Mich., driver never lost the lead and went on to post a winning average speed of 96.145 miles per hour.

Agor never lost second place and dueling Greenwood unsuccessfully the rest of the 312-mile race, which is 78 laps around the twisting Road America course.

Al Holbert, Warrington, Pa., finished third in a Porsche Carrera; Paul Nichter, Buffalo, N.Y., was fourth in a Camaro, and Carl Shafer, Wyoming, Ill., was fifth in another Camaro.

Greenwood qualified just fractions behind Agor and had the No. 2 spot when the race started. Agor had the fastest car, posting a course record on the third lap with an average speed of more than 127 mph, but speed wasn't enough.

US business aides OK monetary plan

By LEE M. COHN
(c) 1973 Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — The main elements of the Nixon administration's plan for international monetary reform have been endorsed by a prestigious organization of U.S. business and academic leaders.

The committee, for economic development, in a report issued Thursday, supported the administration in recommending new rules requiring prompt reduction of excessive balance-of-payments deficits and surpluses, and on other key features of the reform plan proposed by Treasury Secretary, George P. Shultz.

Howard C. Petersen, chairman of the Fidelity Bank of Philadelphia and chairman of the C.E.D. committee that drafted the report, said the recommendations were reached independently.

He also noted that the C.E.D. report went beyond the administration's plan in some respects, such as a proposal for a special lending facility in the international monetary fund to help cope with massive movements of short-term capital.

The report by the C.E.D., a blue-ribbon research organization, also recommended a structural strengthening of the I.M.F., an issue not emphasized by the administration.

Monetary reform is being negotiated by an international committee of finance ministers, which will hold its next meeting here Monday and Tuesday. Paul A. Volcker, U.S. under Secretary of the Treasury for Monetary Affairs, told a news conference he was "reasonably satisfied" with progress so far, but warned against expecting firm decisions at next week's meeting.

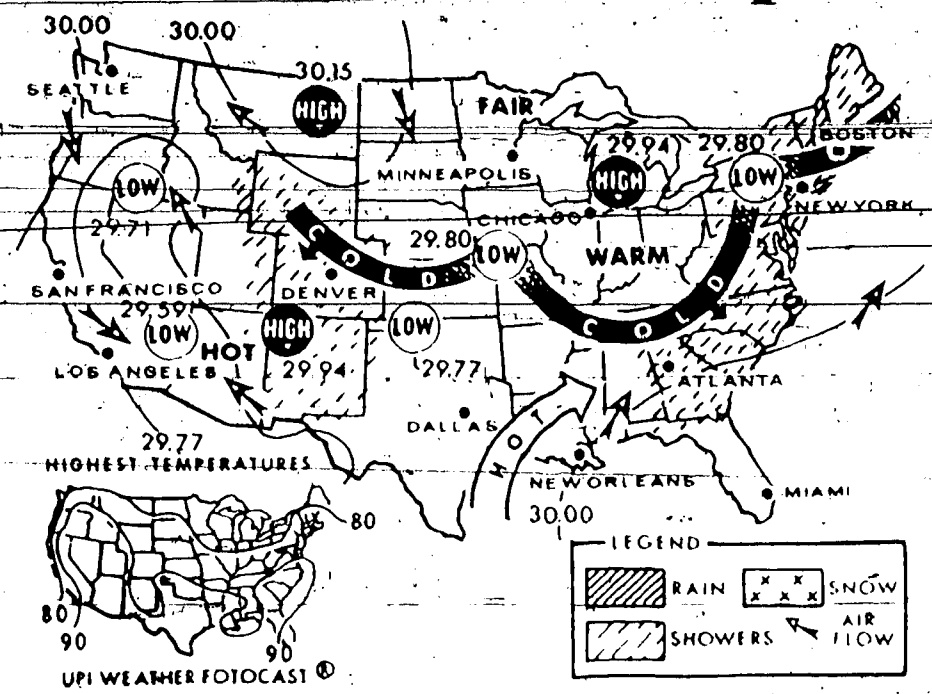

Major recommendations in the C.E.D. report, prepared under the direction of Frank W. Schiff, the organization's chief economist, included:

- Rules to trigger changes in currency parities or other adjustments to reduce big deficits and surpluses in national payments balances.
- Use of both fixed (but adjustable) currency parities and floating (fluctuating) currency values.
- Restrictions on use of trade and capital controls.
- Cautious movement toward restoring convertibility of the dollar into reserve assets.
- Reduced reliance on gold and national currencies as monetary reserves, and increased reliance on special drawing rights, a form of reserves issued by the I.M.F.

New grocery store opens at Gooding

GOODING — Don and Mae Morrow have moved to Gooding and opened a small grocery store.

The Morrows have lived in Reno, Nev., for the past 10 years, where he was a line driver for a trucking company and she was a dentist's receptionist. They are both former Idaho residents.

"We always planned on returning and going into business for ourselves," Morrow said.

In addition to operating the market, Morrow owns a 40 acre farm here. The Morrows like Gooding. "It's a good place to raise kids. There are not enough things for children to do in the city," they said.

Morrow says he has been around the grocery business all of his life. His market has an $8,000-$9,000 inventory which will be added to gradually, he reports. "Business is good, better than I thought this quick," Morrow said. He describes his store as a sort of after-thought for people. "We can't compete with bigger stores, we're too small to offer specials, but people stop in here for basics or if they run out of something."

The Morrows have two boys age 10 and 13 who help in the store, located at 421 9th Ave. W. The market is open from 7:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. seven days a week.

Two powerful forces are at work today which make a steep rise in the price of silver seem inevitable.

First, the demand for silver surpassed new production for each of the last 20 years. And for each of the last 11 years the demand for silver surpassed new production by more than 100 million ounces. This excess of demand over supply is exerting a strong, steady upward pressure on the price of silver. During the 1960s, the price of silver rose 95%.

Second, soaring federal budget deficits, record balance of payments deficits and 17 years of inflation have brought the dollar to the brink of collapse. Many believe whose backs How You Can Profit From The Coming Dollar Collapse. The price of the first dollar devaluation in 37 years, and the record gold prices warns. The alternatives are narrowed to either runaway inflation or a full scale depression.

For nearly 2 600 years, since the first silver coinage, knowledgeable investors have turned to silver for financial protection — because silver generally performs well in bad times. For instance, between 1912 and 1935, the terms of the Great Depression, the price of silver more than tripled.

Our new booklet, The Case for Silver: How to Protect Your Assets Against Inflation by Louis E. Carat, Jr., President of the Pacific Coast Coin Exchange, shows you:

- How silver protects your assets against inflation and monetary crises

Twenty-five years ago, women who wore their hair exceedingly long tended to seem highly moral, even somewhat prudish. Now the long-haired girls are thought of rather as sexpots. It's the women who cut their hair quite short that are apt to be regarded as straightlaced and strict. Used to be, these close-cropped girls were read like hello-sailor-buy-me-a-drink. These foregoing is pointed out by a male subscriber who says these sudden shifts in style make it difficult for a Seasoned Citizen. Difficult to interpret the romantic inclinations and aversions of the girls. Particularly difficult, he says, if said Seasoned Citizen doesn't get much interested but about once every 29 years.

Among drivers, when comparing the male to the female, point out that the average male can hit his car's brakes in 57/100ths of a second while the average female takes 62/100ths of a second to do likewise.

Did I tell you certain chimpanzees have been noted to eat 50 bananas at one sitting?

MATERNITY

Q "Why is it so many maternity gowns are designed to leave the woman's shoulders bare?"

A Because the shoulders are the only parts of the female torso that don't change during pregnancy.

Q "This sign on my doctor's desk reads 'Primum non nocere.' I'm aware it's Latin, but what does it mean?"

A "First of all, do no damage."

Q "What's the difference between a Yankee dime and a Dutch quarter?"

A A Yankee dime is a kiss, a Dutch quarter a hug. Such be the quaint vernacular here and there.

BIRD CALLS

Your voice box and mine are at the top of that throat pipe called the trachea. A bird's is at the bottom. Thus bird calls come from closer to the middle, not just from the beak. This has the effect of making the entire body of the bird sort of a whistle-with-wing. The foregoing begins an essay I intend to finish someday, on singing from the diaphragm.

Argument continues as to whether human fingernails actually grow after death. Some medicos say no, that shrinking skin tissues only make it appear so. But a doctor at New York University Medical College claims his studies prove fingernails grow at virtually the same rate as in living persons for the first three days after death.

A warm and affectionate nature, that's the characteristic which single girls say they most prefer to find in their gentlemen friends. Or so the pollsters report in an illuminating new survey. How about it, young fellow? Do you have a warm and affectionate nature? If not, practice up. Cuddle a kitten. Pet a pup. Kiss a guinea pig.

What You're Saying

Should President Nixon release the Watergate tapes?

John Hahn — TF
 Absolutely not. I think the President is entitled to certain privileges without having to appear before the Senate committee or any committee. I think the President of the United States is entitled to have taped conversation, and to protect his conversation and dealings during his tenure in office. This is for the President and nobody else.

Glenn Boren — TF
 I think he should. I'm a retired navy man and I don't think he has any more rights than I have . . . The whole truth should come out. If he is wrong, he's wrong. But information in the tapes concerning national security should not be released.

Duane Wiedenheft — TF
 I think the people's confidence in the presidency has been shaken very badly by the whole Watergate affair. In order to clear the problem up, I think he should release those tapes. Otherwise, there is an implication of guilt where there may be none . . . His office is in itself no proof of innocence.

Sheryl Munsee, Paul
 I think he should release them, but I don't think he should be forced to. It's the only way to get the confidence of the people back. I think he will release them. He shouldn't be made to release them because of executive privilege.

James Brennan — Filer
 I think that he should not release them. The credibility of the tapes would be questioned even if unaltered. There is a lack of judicial safeguards regarding evidence and hearsay evidence presented to the senate committee . . . What has he got to gain? The ones that are convinced are going to stay convinced anyway. Meanwhile, he loses his privileged communication with various officials.

Katie Bixler — TF
 I don't think so. Johnson didn't have to release his and why should Nixon have to release his tapes. It's his own personal business.

Mark Warren — TF
 If he hasn't anything to hide I don't know why he shouldn't release them. If he's hiding something maybe he's wrong. We have the right to know what's going on as a people. On the other hand, if we knew everything that is going on in the government, we'd be scared to death.

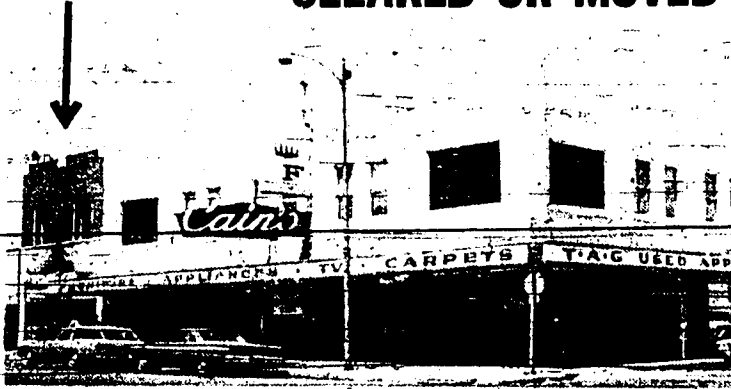

Jolinda Jensen — TF
 I don't know. It seems like the politicians are always hiding something up their sleeves. They cloud the issue. If President Nixon were to release those tapes, the issue would still be confused.

Original Ed Murrow Program Focused On Farm Workers

CBS REPORTS: "Harvest of Shame," the Thanksgiving broadcast of 1960 which first focused national attention on the plight of America's migrant workers, will be presented on "CBS News Retrospective" Sunday, July 29 on the CBS Television Network.

On Nov. 25, 1960, Edward R. Murrow, presented the report on those who harvest the food for the tables of the United States - at a time when the migrant worker was not a national issue.

"Harvest of Shame" showed how migratory workers lived, traveled and labored in America's fields and orchards. Producer David Lowe and a CBS REPORTS crew spent months preparing the report, traveling northward from a marshaling point at Belle Glade, Fla., filming workers in the fields, in crowded trucks and buses and in the shacks that served as their temporary homes. Another group of workers were followed along the Atlantic coast, and others were seen on the highways and at the labor camps in Kingsland, Ga., Fayetteville, N. C., and Holland, Mich.

Among those who appeared on the historic broadcast were James P. Mitchell, then U.S. Secretary of Labor; Harrison A. Williams, a senator from

New Jersey; and Charles B. Shuman, who was president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Murrow reported on the broadcast: "Only an enlightened, aroused and perhaps angered public opinion can do anything about the migrants. The people you have seen have the strength to harvest your fruit and vegetables. They do not have the strength to influence legislation. Maybe we do."

As CBS News Correspondent John Hart, host of the retrospective series, reports, new laws have helped alleviate some of the migrants' plight.

"But," says Hart, "in 1973 the average migrant worker can expect only 96 days of farm work. His income from farm work will be less than $1,400. And with other jobs he will be able to make his take for the year under $2,200.

"It's a smaller problem for the nation now, in one way," says Hart. "There are half as many migrant farm workers working in this country as there were in 1960. Machines are doing the work of the others. But for the 184,000 people who pick for us, there is still shame enough."

Peter Poor is producer of "CBS News Retrospective"

Sally Quinn New Anchor "Man"

Sally Quinn is a new CBS News Correspondent. Sally Quinn is also the new co-anchor - with Correspondent Hughes Rudd - of the restructured "CBS MORNING NEWS," which premieres on the CBS Television Network Monday, August 6.

Sally Quinn has lived with the idea of being the new kid on the block all her life.

Daughter of an Army general, Miss Quinn says of her childhood, "We moved to new places all the time. I went to 22 different schools before I went to college. My tenure at Smith was a record for me - the normal four years to get my B. A.

"I remember every time I went to a new school when I was a little girl, I tried so hard to impress the teacher that I became an 'A' student as soon as I possibly could. I learned awfully early that somebody's first impression of you is usually the lasting one.

The Hairless Rug

Keye Luke is pulling a Yul Brynner. The veteran Chinese actor, after some 150 films and countless TV shows, has finally come across a role that is proving too "hairy" for him. As Master Po in ABC Television Network's "Kung Fu," Luke appears bald. He must wear a flesh-colored head piece to achieve this effect and the "hairless rug," as he laughingly calls it, is just too hot to wear all day under the lights or summer sun.

So Luke is going to shave his head completely before the start of filming later this month for the new season. And how will he keep his newly-defuzzed pate from becoming sunburned? By wearing a California Angels' baseball cap. Luke, who was Charlie Chan's No. 1 son for many years, is the Angels' No. 2 fan (so sorry, but Gene Autry is No. 1 fan).

"Kung Fu," starring David Carradine, airs Thursdays.

Tough Policeman

TELLY SAVALAS stars as a tough but compassionate veteran police officer in the new hour-long dramatic series "Kojak" premiering in the fall on the CBS-TV network Wednesday evening.

Ben Murphy Teamed With Lorne Greene

Ben Murphy, who has starred in several television series including ABC's "Alias Smith and Jones," has been signed for a stellar role in the ABC Television Network's new contemporary detective series, "Griff," joining title role star Lorne Greene.

Murphy will play S. Michael ("Mike") Murdoch, teamed with Wade Griffin, a former police captain who left the department because of personal differences and became a private investigator. They limit their practice to major cases, operating from Griff's office in the Westwood area of Los Angeles. Mike is the son of a former police associate of Griff. He was educated in mechanical engineering and reflects the values and views of a person his age. He is a fine athlete but reluctant to engage in physical combat because he is so good at it. Griff sees in Mike the potential for becoming a fine investigator.

A native of Jonesboro, Ark., Murphy grew up in the Chicago suburb of Hinsdale. He attended five universities and received a degree in political science from the University of Illinois and a B. A. degree from California's Pasadena Playhouse.

He co-starred as young reporter Joe Sample on "The Name of the Game" series and has guested in segments of a number of series. He has had starring roles in two ABC "Movie of the Week" productions, "The Letters" and "Runaway." His film credits include "The Graduate," "The Thousand Plane Raid" and "Yours, Mine and Ours."

"Griff," premiering in the fall, will air Saturdays, 10-11 p.m., PT. David Victor is executive producer of the series, a Universal Television production in association with Groverton Productions, Ltd. Steven Bochco is producer.

Alcatraz Prison Opens To Public Tours Starting November 1

SAN FRANCISCO — "One of the prisoners said it was like living in a tomb."

The water sparkled in the morning sun. Splashes of vivid color — lavender lippia, orange nasturtium, red fuchsia, purple pelargonium — drenched the hillside behind us.

We were standing alongside the landing dock at Alcatraz — the once infamous prison island in tide-rippled San Francisco Bay — listening to a former resident, Phil Dollison, commuted to school by boat when his father was associate warden there.

He recalled the riot of 1946 when three prisoners and two guards were killed in an attempted break, pointed out the isolation cell where Robert ("Birdman of Alcatraz") Stroud studied and the aperture where Mamma Capone talked in Italian on a two-way phone to Al.

Over a century of inescapable isolation is drawing to an end, for the Bay's grim bastion.

Comp. November, Alcatraz's current custodians, the National Park Service will open it to the public, running conducted tours from the San Francisco waterfront a mile and a quarter away. Access to the 12-acre island will be free except for a minimal ferry fee. The boat will carry up to 100 visitors an hour in groups of 25.

In the meantime, the Park Service is researching the history of la Isla de los Alcatrazes (isle of the Pelicans), trying to separate fact from fiction. Legend of the "Hellcatraz" and Devil's Island genre was allowed to flourish by the Federal Prisons Bureau to perpetuate The Rock's image as a dread, escape-proof citadel, Park Service ranger David Aines said.

Since 1858 it has been successively a fortification, a U.S. military prison, an army disciplinary barracks, a federal penitentiary and an American Indian stronghold.

On March 21, 1963 the last of The Rock's inmates — 27 pale men in wrist and leg shackles were transferred to other federal penal institutions. The last of the Indians were evacuated on June 11, 1971.

Reminders of their 18-month occupation are emblazoned on the water tank — "Peace & Freedom Welcome Home of the Free Indian Land" — and over cells assigned to "Nixon, Reagan, L. B. Johnson, S. Agnew, Walter J. Hickel, David & Julie" and others.

Alcatraz is now a unit of the Bay Area's 36,000-acre Golden Gate National Recreation Area created by Congress and signed into law by the President on October 27, 1972.

Many of its buildings were gutted by Indian fires or razed by the General Services Administration when The Rock's future was in limbo.

But the main prison block with its steel bars, claustrophobic (9 x 5 foot cells, mess hall, library and "dark holes" where recalcitrants languished in inky blackness is structurally intact. So is the windswept exercise yard with its concrete bleachers and towering walls topped by guard towers and catwalks.

The road angles steeply up from the dock through a tunnel past old fortifications, staff barracks and an indoor rifle range to the tan bastille at the top.

The Rock's administrative code was "Complete Control." At no time did the big house's 450 cells hold more than 250 captives. The staff ran as high as 100. This did not prevent three inmates — Frank Lee Morris and John and Clarence Anglin — from tunneling out with sharpened spoons in 1962. The feat took years, and they were never found. Their seemingly successful escape was a factor in the Prison Board's decision to phase out the aging institution.

Today the ocean echoes hollowly in the prison library which leads directly to solitary. If ever you've had a masochistic urge to experience instant hysteria, the deep six is the place. Just ask the guide to close one of the steel-plated doors behind you.

Northwest of the main cell block, but off limits to visitors, is the industries area where convicts were kept busy turning out canvas goods, clothes, furniture and, oddly, on a waterless island, the Sixth Army's laundry.

The National Park Service has no plans for Alcatraz's remaining buildings for the next four or five years. Whether they are preserved or cleared depends on the popularity of the tours.

The craggy escarpment rising 135 feet out of the Bay is surprisingly verdant. From one aspect it resembles a bombed-out Italian hill town, from another a snatch of the Mediterranean coast.

On a clear day the seldom-seen views of the San Francisco skyline and Golden Gate, alone, are worth the crossing.

Even in ruins, Alcatraz is still a spellbinder.

Joanna Cassidy Makes Hollywood See Star

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)

These are the days when studios, what's left of them, pour all their meager resources into pushing directors when they have a new film they like.

But MGM is turning back the clock. For the first time in years, that once-giant studio is going all out to push a young performer. Her name is Joanna Cassidy. The picture is "The Outfit." They think Joanna Cassidy may be a big one.

You can see the magic working when you're with her. She's a tall, beautiful girl. She dresses like a star. She walks like a star. She has the effect of a star.

We were having lunch. Several hard-bitten Hollywood hands seized on any excuse to come over to our table. They just wanted to meet her.

"Don't you ever get tired of hearing people tell you how beautiful you are?" one man said coining a cliché.

"No," said Joanna, with a big smile.

She wants to be a star. She says she won't give her soul to any man for awhile. She wants to save it for awhile and give stardom a shot.

She thinks maybe she came along a decade or so too late, because of her height. At 5 feet 8 inches she would have fit nicely with such greats as Gary Cooper and Clark Gable, but she says today's leading men are too short.

Her background is interesting, too. She comes from Haddonfield, N. J., and went to Syracuse University. When she was a freshman, a Jewish fraternity asked her to be their Homecoming Queen candidate. She accepted and won — the first freshman to be so honored, she says, in the school's history.

Her mother once sent her to see the family's Methodist minister "to cure me of my independence." She says she found out that the minister was a hypocrite — "he told me one thing and he was carrying on with a lady in the congregation at the same time."

When she learned that sordid fact she says she quit the church. Since she liked the boys in the Jewish fraternity at Syracuse, she converted to Judaism.

Later, she married a Jewish doctor, and had two children. He practiced in San Francisco and then, in the Army, in Columbia, S. C.

"While I was in Columbia" she says, "I found out I had had it with being a housewife. So I went to the local TV station and got a job."

That was the start of everything. She modeled and she acted and she worked on TV. Now she's done two movies — "The Laughing Policeman" before "The Outfit" — and things are happening.

MGM took her to Hollywood Park, for a day at the races.

Early Indians Camped Here

Blue Lakes Area Was "Home" For Wandering Tribes

By O.A. (Gus) KELKER

Editor, Times-News

Not many of the early travelers through this section even saw the place. But the Indians knew it was there and had used it for hundreds of years as sort of a resting, eating, living place.

Then, too, in times pre-historic the strange animals of those times—including great hairy elephants—gathered in the same place. Their bones have been found there and are still there.

But back to the first explorers to travel through. Not many saw the area because the trails were not too close to the rim of what is now called the Snake River. Walking past only a mile or two from the rim was not reason enough to walk over and take a look. Most anywhere the early travelers looked it all looked the same.

Then, later, when the Oregon Trail was being followed it was a considerable distance from the rim in this area. In fact it was so far south that few diary writers on the wagon trains even mentioned having seen what was then Canadian Falls (now Shoshone Falls) or the other falls above that area now known as Twin Falls. They were going to Oregon and the big task was to get there—not indulge in side journeys just to take a look at a river.

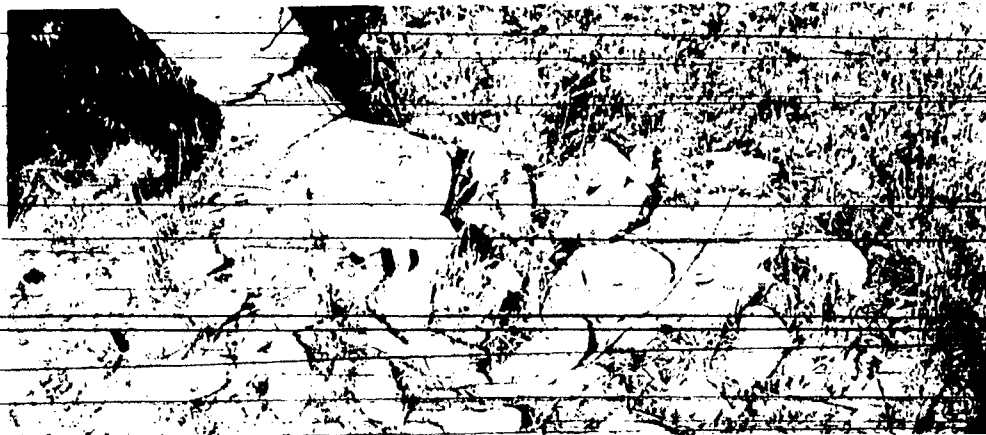

But, as we said, the Indians knew of the place. Today it is west of the Blue Lakes Country Club and on the floor of the Snake River canyon.

In that area today is much evidence of their camping habits. Thousands and thousands of river clamshells are scattered about. The Indians of old retrieved the clams from the river and ate them nearby. The shells which remain are all about four inches in length. Today those who eat river clams are few and far between. But years ago the water was pure and the clams, apparently, tasty.

Nearby, just above the spot where Rock Creek drops into the Snake River, is a fishing hole which the Indians utilized. This great hole was a resting place for the great Sturgeon (it still is) and here, also, the migrating fish from the ocean (including salmon and steelhead) rested before turning up Rock Creek to spawn in the waters of the South Hills. There was some spawning above this hole but the falls (Shoshone) stopped migration and no sturgeon have been found above that point.

Indian Fishing Hole

It is probable the Indians wintered in the area because the canyon walls protected from the winds and was always a few degrees warmer than the rimland.

The area—with few changes—looks much today like it had to look when the Indians used it. Only the tall, pioneer-planted Poplar trees indicate the work of the early settlers of the Twin Falls Tract.

But the pre-historic beasts whose remains have been found in the same section:

their weather and surroundings were much different. Then it was tropical and warm.

When the first remains were found a few years back it was hailed as an important find. Archaeologists surfaced some of the bones which vandals promptly destroyed. And apparently this "important" find is to be forgotten.

But for thousands of years it attracted either beasts which no longer exist, Indians who in pre-historic and historic time lived there and pioneers who first settled in what is now the Twin Falls area.

Starfighter Jet

Air Force Jet On Display Here

TWIN FALLS — A U.S. Air Force Lockheed F-104 Starfighter, sometimes called "the missile with a man in it," will be on public display at Lynwood Shopping Center July 29-30.

The Starfighter is the only aircraft in the world to simultaneously hold the world records for speed, altitude, and time-to-climb.

On Dec. 13, 1958, an F-104 captured the time-to-climb record when it rocketed to 82,000 feet in 4 minutes 28 seconds. A new world speed record was established May 17, 1958, when an F-104 was flown 1,404 miles per hour, breaking the previous record of 1,207 m.p.h. The F-104 set a world altitude record of 91,243 feet May 9, 1958, breaking the old record of 76,392 feet.

The Starfighter was also the first aircraft to fly twice the speed of sound in level flight.

The aircraft, with its stubby razor-sharp wings, was powered by a General Electric jet engine which produced a thrust of 15,000 pounds with afterburner.

Because of its multi-mission capability the F-104 was flown both as an air superiority interceptor and as a tactical fighter. Today it is flown by members of the Air National Guard and is used in Air Force testing programs. There are over 1,700 advanced versions of the F-104 in operational status in the Air Forces of eleven foreign countries.

Susan Strasberg To Join Series

Susan Strasberg, one of the country's most distinguished young actresses, will make her television series debut as Patty Toma in the new hour-long ABC Television Network series, "Toma," premiering in the fall on Thursdays.

Tony Musante stars in the title role. Also starring is Simon Oakland as Toma's superior officer, Inspector Spooner.

Miss Strasberg created the role of the detective's wife in the ABC Television Network "Wednesday Movie of the Week" feature which was the forerunner of the series.

The daughter of Actors Studio founder-director Lee Strasberg and the late actress, Paula Miller, Susan made her theatrical debut at the age of 13 in the off-Broadway play "Maya." At 17, she won acclaim in the title role of "The Diary of Anne Frank" on Broadway. One of the youngest stars of early television, she portrayed a teenage Juliet in the Kraft Theatre production of "Romeo and Juliet" in the mid-1950s and later made her motion picture debut in William Inge's "Picnic," receiving star billing with William Holden, Kim Novak and Rosalind Russell.

In recent years she has guest-starred in episodes of "Marcus Welby, M. D.," "Medical Center," "McCloud" and in several movies for television.

Her motion picture credits include "Stage Struck," "Scream of Fear," "Adventures of a Young Man," "The Trip," "Psych-out" and "Chubasco," plus a number of European productions.

Saturday Night In Cold Springs Station

By TOM TIEDE
COLD SPRINGS STATION, Nev. (NEA) — Years ago, when the Pony Express was operating between Missouri and California, the vast wastes of the West were interrupted by way stations where, in the summer heat or winter growl, a horse could be fed, a stage might unload its passengers for restroom privileges, or a cowboy with a thirst or need for civilization would mosey in for an occasional Saturday night blow.

Children's Show Names Subjects

"Make a Wish," ABC News' Peabody Award-winning children's television series, delves into the many meanings and associations of the words "sand" and "car" Sunday, Aug. 5.

Host Tom Chapin sings and plays the "Make a Wish" theme song plus two original musical compositions about the subject words.

If he were sand, Tom muses, he could be a sand castle, a sand dune, a sand box, a sand lot, a sand bar or even a love letter in the sand.

He could be the Sahara Desert, on which the Egyptian pharaohs built the Great Pyramids. But since the pyramids were built, man's architecture has been changed and refined as well.

For a look at the relationship of architecture to ecology, "Make a Wish" takes viewers to Cosanti in Scottsdale, Ariz., to meet with Paolo Soleri, one of the great architects of the 20th century.

Turning his attention to car, the host reflects that if he were a car, he could be made in Detroit, which would mean he would probably be a sedan, a coupe or a limousine. He could be a cable car, a railroad car, a car pool, the opera "Carmen" or a city such as Carson City, Nev.

Dick Brown of Mazda Motors, which uses the revolutionary Wankel engine, talks about steps being taken to curb air pollution caused by cars.

"Make a Wish" is recommended for viewing by the National Education Association and by the National Catholic Education Association.

The series is written by Lester Cooper, who is executive producer. Producer is Tom Bywaters. "Make a Wish" is an ABC News public affairs presentation.

First since

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Albert Ruddy, producer of "The Godfather," is making his first movie since the Oscar-winner, a full-length animated and live action feature titled "Coon Skin."

Things Haven't changed much. Cold Springs Station today received fewer horses and no stagecoaches, but its historic function on Saturday night continued down to the last beer. It is now called a service station-cafe, many of the customers are sunburned tourists in Polaroid spectacles, but the place remains for dozens of stuckaway cowboys, shepherds and miners the only nightlife, the only let-you-take-a-break joint, the only relief from routine for miles.

Located in midstate, highway 50, "directly between nothing and nowhere," the station is one of the last of its nature. Turnpikes and population growth have negated the need for watering holes in much of the America of 1973. Most of the roadside spots that do still remain are hokey souvenir spas.

But Cold Springs? Earthy. The tourists might mind that the drinking glasses are spotted, but the citizens of the area are not so fussy. "Even if there were someplace else to go," says one, "I wouldn't."

Admittedly, in this era of tourism, the station does leave much to be desired. Owner John Holley says there is no electricity, no running water. "But I wouldn't trade one bit of sagebrush here for The Ritz Club in New York. Hell, if they put a telephone in here, I think I'd feel crowded."

The regular customers agree. They could stop 30 miles east, in Austin, "where the bars outnumber the churches," or they could go 60 miles west to Fallon, "the big city as we call it." But they stick, on Saturday night, to Cold Springs Station, dirty glasses and all. (Most of them don't bother with glasses actually; they drink their brews from the bottle.)

Part of the reason the regulars stick is owner Holley and his wife Mary. Both in their 50s, they foster, in different ways, an old-shoe camaraderie with the regulars. He is a rumpled, whisker-rubbing sort who offends no one. She is an energetic, sometimes loud old babe who keeps things lively.

And lively it is here on Saturday night. Not jumping, since there are at most only about a half-dozen customers, but brisk. Mary plays pool with two young shepherds ("Maybe it ain't ladylike, but I'd rather do it than pull on the arms of those goddamn slot machines in Reno"). John discusses travel with tourists from San Jose. A lumberman from Fallon feeds the jukebox for a song by Marty Robbins. State highway worker Charles McCambridge, wearing levis and Stetson, laments the day he ever left "cowboying." Flies flutter in a water ring on the bar, three fellows on stools chuckle over a blue joke, a visitor wonders if it's true Nevada has legalized prostitution.

There is little sophistication in it all. No talk about politics, for example. Holley, when asked, says "The worst mistake I ever made was in voting for Nixon in 1968." Mary says Watergate makes her "so damn angry I don't want to think about it." McCambridge fades at any mention of the world, wishing instead to talk only about "the colt I'm breaking for a friend."

Indeed, the regulars prefer the confines of their isolation. Realities confuse or bore them. The talk of Nixon is rapidly eclipsed by a story about old Ray Walker, alias Walky Talky, a sometimes hermit and leading citizen of a nearby ghost town.

"I don't know how he does it," somebody says, "living out there all by himself. Last time I saw him I asked him if he ever got lonely and he said no, that he busied himself telling jokes all day. Oh, I said, you got company then? No, he said, I tell the jokes to myself; that way I always get a good laugh."

That's the kind of thing that counts at Cold Springs. John Holley says he's so cut off from society that the last time he saw a show was 30 years ago — "Frankenstein."

His wife says the only time she mixes with the outside world is when she shops for groceries.

"I do all the shopping myself. One time I asked him to bring home a head of lettuce and you know what he got — cabbage! I'll never trust him again."

So it goes here on Saturday night. Someone's in the corner reading a National Geographic. A mousy little vagabond, who stutters, sits on a barstool hoping that Holley will hire him as a handyman. Jerry Lee Lewis, taking over for Marty Robbins, is singing "Drinkin' wine spodeo" on the juke. Mary, wobbling a bit from a beer too many, is frying a hamburger near a wall decorated with Christmas cards.

"They call me Mrs. Minnesota Fats," Mary says. "I don't know about the Minnesota, but I am fats."

It will continue until 10 or 11, or until owner Holley falls asleep. Then the pool cues will be racked, the bottles gathered up, the stove turned off and the gas pumps locked. And the regulars will return to their mines, to their ranches or to wherever it is they go out here when Saturday night is over.

TV Boxes—Idle And Otherwise

By BUCK BIGGERS
and
CHET STOVER

MALE BOX: If you remember "That Girl" starring Marlo Thomas, you will recall Ted Bessell who made a major contribution to the success of that series. Since then, Bessell's career has gone nowhere. He accepted a role in a short-lived disaster where he co-starred with a chimp, yet he turned down a good part in "MASH". For next season, he made a pilot (CBS) which put him back in the magazine business (as he was in "That Girl"), but the episode looked like something created for 1965. He deserves a manager who realizes TV times have changed.

IDLE CHATTER BOX: Better wear gloves while reading these redhot personal items... Dick Cavett hates being labeled an intellectual (Okay, how about being labeled a jerk?)... Tom Snyder, who will host NBC's "Tomorrow" show, collects toy trains! (Who gives a toot?)... Demond Wilson, Lamont on "Sanford and Son," is an excellent bridge player! (Is that why Fred calls him dummy?)... John Berardino, Dr. Steve Hardy on "General Hospital," once played professional baseball! (The play was still the thing)... Jimmy Stewart thinks old hats bring him good luck in his movies! (And have you seen the big white rabbit lately, Jimmy?)

TIP OF THE HAT BOX: From Avery Westin, ABC newsmah: "Television news is not alone enough to keep citizens properly informed. It is an illustrated headline service that functions best when it is used by its viewers as an important adjunct to newspapers."

INSIDE THE BOX WORKS: You may not have realized it, but ABC has been the top network in the field of made-for-TV movies. First, their movies have consistently drawn larger audiences than those produced by NBC or CBS. Second, and more surprising a number of them have been of a calibre which earned wide critical acclaim... like that ABC movie "Duel" which starred Dennis Weaver (an NBC star yet!). It was not only a smash on TV here, it drew such large theatre audiences in Europe that Dennis made a special trip over there to take bows. But ABC, we are happy to report, is not sitting back on its laurels. For this coming season, they are planning some very new concepts — for example, a movie based on a comic strip "Wonder Woman," a Candid-Camera-Funt-movie

"Remember Marriage," and the first made-for-TV musical "Queen Of The Stardust Ballroom." Sounds intriguing, huh?

BOX SEATS: Speaking of movies, that CBS Late Show "Summertime" is interesting. Starring with Michael Douglas as his love interest is Brenda Vaccaro, his living-partner in real life. And the film was produced by guess who? Michael's dad, Kirk. Maybe they should have titled it "Family Affair."

JUKE BOX: Don't hold your breath waiting for enough of those cassette TV sets to be sold to bring down the price to a reasonable area. It seems that Cartridge Television, Inc., the biggest company in cassettes, has gone bankrupt! So shocking is this news that it will probably affect all companies planning to crack this field. Which means that the day when the average home will own a jukebox-TV is now not likely before the 1980's.

Green Thumb: Plants That Climb

BY GEORGE ABRAHAM

PLANTS THAT CLIMB: If you own a small greenhouse or have a small bay window you can grow foliage plants that climb and hang.

That "aerial space" is useless so put it to work and grow some climbing plants. They are ideal for the greenhouse gardener who finds his bench and shelf space overflowing.

Hanging plants are popular today, and you find them not only in greenhouses, but in homes, on patios and carports. Keep in mind that hanging baskets are in the air, and thus dry out quicker, so they need watering more often.

Use a soil mixture of one part each of sand, peat and loam. Containers come in many sizes, shapes and colors. Just make sure they are properly drained.

Here are a few items you want to consider for climbing: Achimenes, Asparagus plumosus, (asparagus fern), Begonia pendula (hanging tuberous begonia); Bougainvillea glabra, broussaisia, Campanula (star of Bethlehem or Italian Bellflower), Cissus (kangaroo vine), Clitoria (glory bower), Cobaea scandens (trump and saucer vine), Columnea, Cyanotis, Episcia, Ficus or creeping fig, fuchsia, gloriosa or climbing glorylily; Hedera or English ivy, Hoya carnosa, or wax plant.

Morning glory (Ipomoea), Jasminum officinal, Lantana, Passiflora (passion-flower), Pelargonium peltatum, ivy geranium, Pellionia, petunia, philodendron, strawberry begonia (Saxifraga), Scindapsus (devil's often called "Pothos" in commerce;

Sedum morganianum, or burro tail; stephanotis, Thunbergia alata, (black-eyed susan vine).

Tradescantia or wandering Jew vine and Zebrina pendula or "inch plant." We'd like to add another one, the Monstera deliciosa, also called "swiss cheese" plant, a handsome climber. In its juvenile stage (before the leaves develop holes) it is erroneously called "philodendron pertusum" which it isn't.

BEE STING CURE: A reader writes: "When you get stung by a wasp or bee, get a tomato leaf and rub its juice on the sting. The pain will stop at once, and there will be no swelling. Must be there is something in the leaf which destroys the chemical acids left by the sting."

ORNAMENTAL GOURDS: A reader writes: "Last year our son took in $33 by selling ornamental gourds from our garden. He's only 14 years old, and plans to raise some in our small greenhouse this winter. Would that be possible?"

No reason why he can't raise ornamental gourds under glass. I would start the seed in small peat pots and either grow them in pots in the greenhouse or up a trellis. Be training them to grow up you take advantage of aerial space and thus get more mileage from your greenhouse.

Gourds are gaining in popularity and most florists will buy all you can grow, outdoors or indoors.

Here are some small gourd varieties to try in your garden or in your greenhouse: striped pear, hedgehog, nest egg, apple, multi-colored types, miniature, pomegranate, small bottle, spoon, orange, Aladin's lamp, crown of thorns, warted hybrids, Turk's turban, mixture and Queen's Pocket melon gourd.

There are large gourd varieties you can train up a trellis: Hercules, Penguin, Tobacco Box, Dipper, Dolphin, Half Moon and Star, Long Marmorata, Chinese Water Jug, Bird's Nest and a mixture of above.

Good luck on your gourds. You deserve highest credit for encouraging your son to grow gourds for fun and profit.

GRASS BETWEEN STONES: Some people who have a walk of flatstone, or bricks, do not like to see grass growing in the cracks. Personally, we like to see grass between the stones as it adds beauty and helps hold the stone in place.

If you prefer not to have grass grow between the stones you'll have to constantly fight to kill it out. There are weedkillers which can be painted on with a brush. These are available at your garden center, or farm store.

Here's what we do: Keep the grass mowed close, by setting the power-mower as low as possible. The grass may spread flatwise and cover part of your flagstone. With the cordless electric clippers you can manicure the grass and trim it back with little effort.

Some gardeners put small crushed stones between the flat rocks or brick. Grass will still come up in the stones and you have to hand-pull any seedlings.

LAZY MAN'S POTATOES: We've received dozens of letters from our organic gardening friends who told us how they grow potatoes in straw. In a nutshell, here's how it's done:

Get the soil in tip-top shape. Plant your spuds right on top of the ground (still time!) and spread three or four inches of straw over the potatoes.

After the sprouts come up through the straw, add another three inches and forget them. That's all there is to it.

In late summer or fall, you can rake away the straw and find fine spuds on top of the ground, looking so clean, you'd think they'd been washed. No weeding, no digging, you'll find that the potatoes covered with straw come up scab free, and no bugs on it.

The straw system works great if your area is annually plagued with summer drought. By the way, this fall gather lots of leaves (not black walnut leaves) and confine them in an area where you want to grow spuds next spring. Place seed pieces on leaves and cover with a good layer of straw, three to six inches.

In a 9 by 15 foot patch, one gardener harvested just over two and one-half bushels of spuds — growing them under a thick layer of straw. It ought to be 8 to 10 inches thick so that skins on tubers won't show green due to sunlight.

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: D. F. of Twin Falls:

"Please settle an argument in our family. My husband says you should water the garden only at night, but I say you can do it during the day as well. Who's right?"

Let's put it this way: You can water any time during the day or night. Time of day is not important, although you do lose some water to the sun in the heat of the day.

When plants are irrigated in day, you lose about one-third to the air, so if you live in a water-short area, you might want to wait until night to do your watering.

All growing plants need water, and most vegetables are about 90 per cent water. That means they must have an even supply of moisture — one to two inches of water per week. Throughout the hottest part of the season most garden crops benefit by at least one inch of water a week.

To apply the equivalent of one inch of rainfall requires about two-thirds of a gallon of water to each square foot of soil.

A lot of plants are tougher than you think and need less water than you may be giving them. Did you ever wonder how a vegetable or grass comes through a dry spell?

They are helped by dew. Dew can often total as much as 18 inches of water a year, so even if your soil seems bone-dry, the plants may still be getting some moisture in the form of dew.

One way to save moisture in the soil is to avoid unnecessary hoeing or heavy cultivation in dry weather. This wastes precious soil moisture. Yank out moisture-robbing weeds.

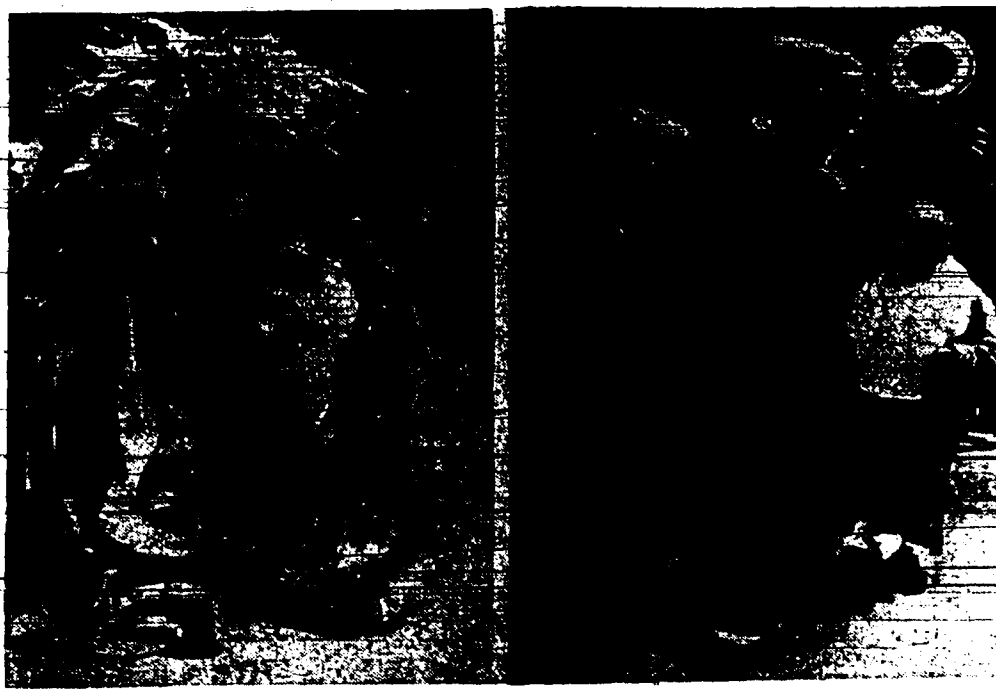

Use mulches to keep roots cool, prevent leaf curl, blossom-end rot on tomatoes, and to save moisture. Any kind of material is useful.

How about laundry water? In some areas water is so scarce some gardeners use wash water, dishwasher or laundry water for their flowers and vegetables. Nothing wrong with this, even if they contain detergents, soaps, ammonia, borax and other household chemicals.

The ammonia, supplies nitrogen, soaps are harmless, and the detergents actually make the water wetter, more able to penetrate. So if water is scarce, use wash water on fruit trees, shrubs, evergreens, flowers and vegetables.

C.E. of Murphy: "Last year we grew our own cucumbers and made many jars of pickles. They didn't turn out too well. Does water have anything to do with it?"

Yes, use soft water since minerals in hard water may affect pickles. If soft water is unavailable, boil water, let it cool then remove scum. Also use pure granulated salt or pickling salt. Table salt containing less than one per cent of substances added to prevent caking may be used. Iodized salt may cause pickles to darken.

Friends Off Camera

Academy Winner Gets Title Role

Cecily Tyson, Academy Award nominee for her performance in the motion picture "Sounder," has been signed for the title role in "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," a two-hour drama special to be presented during the 1973-74 season on the CBS Television Network, it was announced by Philip Capice, Director, Special Programs, of the Network.

The special will be produced by Bob Christiansen and Rick Rosenberg of Tomorrow Entertainment from a screenplay by Tracy Keenan Wynn, based on Ernest J.

Games' novel. The drama will be directed by John Korty, who also directed the highly acclaimed television plays "Class of '63" and "Go Ask Alice."

The fictional story traces the life of Jane Pittman from her youth in slavery at the close of the Civil War to the age of 108 in the early 1960s.

Miss Tyson's extensive credits include "The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter" and guest appearances on the Network's "Mission: Impossible," "Gunsmoke" and "Medical Center."

Assistant Director Appointed For ABC Radio News

Joseph F. Keating has been named Assistant Director of ABC Radio News, it was announced by Thomas A. O'Brien, Vice President and Director of ABC Radio News. Keating has been Executive Producer, Special Events, for Radio News.

In making the announcement, O'Brien said, "Since joining ABC Radio News in 1966, Joe Keating has displayed a combination of seasoned news judgment and innovative imagination which ideally equip him for this broader role in the management of ABC's Radio News operations."

Joseph F. Keating, a journalism and English major at Rutgers University, entered broadcasting in 1942, the year after his graduation, when he went to work for NBC in New York. Following four years in the Army Signal Corps in World War II, he joined WOR in New York and became production supervisor for the Mutual Broadcasting System in December 1946. During his years at Mutual, he served as production manager and manager of program operations. In 1959 he was elected vice president for programs and operations at Mutual.

Keating joined ABC Radio News in July 1966. Since that time he has been charged with the planning and production of radio coverage of primaries, political conventions, space shots, special reports and special news programs. In February 1972, he was in overall charge of radio pool coverage of President Nixon's visit to the People's Republic of China. He has also planned and produced all ABC radio coverage of the US manned spaceflight program since he joined the network.

TV Tinderbox

By BUCK BIGGERS & CHET STOVER

We interrupt for this important message — a game of question and answer from our Mail Box. Bet you can't get ten right! Just answer yes or no.

1. Now they all say what a great actor Burt Reynolds is, but wasn't he fired from "Gunsmoke"?

2. For awhile, Janet Leigh got a lot of publicity. Now, nothing. Is she ill?

3. Is Sonny really domineering with Cher?

4. I thought Richard Boone had big things going in Hawaii. Did he come back because of financial troubles?

5. Does David Cassidy hate the worship of his fans like some mags say?

6. Carson said the Beatles are together again on a new album. Can that be right?

7. I read "Mod Squad" was cancelled because Peggy Lipton became bored with the series. True?

8. Was doing comedy always Paul Lynde's ambition?

9. Lori March of "Secret Storm" — hasn't she opened a cooking school in Connecticut?

10. Seeing John Boy on "The Waltons" was like seeing someone from the past. Could he be the son of ballet dancers Richard Thomas and Barbara Fallis?

11. Burr says that when he leaves "Ironside", he wants to take Don Galloway with him into a Fiji series. Have they always been so close?

12. Is there a gal Flip Wilson is serious about?

13. Does Paul Anka have a new series pilot?

14. Rich Little mimics almost everybody, but I've never heard him do Bob Hope. Does he?

15. Wasn't Maude (Bea Arthur) a flop as a nightclub performer?

Okay, let's check your Box Score.

1. NO. After two seasons, Burt Reynolds left "Gunsmoke" because his role was too confining.

2. NO. Janet Leigh's health is fine, but once again she is getting no decent film or TV offers. So the plucky gal has put together a nightclub act.

3. YES. Says Sonny: "I don't know exactly why I'm dominant, but I guess I am." Says Cher: "I think it's good for us."

4. NO. Richard Boone has no financial woes. "Believe it or not," he admits, "I started to miss the TV rat-race."

5. NO. David Cassidy complains sometimes about being hemmed in, but he admits, "It's a very exciting experience. I'd miss the fans if they left me."

6. YES. The four Beatles harmonize on Ringo's new album, but while Ringo, George and John recorded their parts in Hollywood, Paul added his to the tapes in England.

7. NO. "Mod Squad" was cancelled because the ratings fell apart.

8. NO. Says Paul Lynde, "I always wanted to be a serious actor."

9. NO. Lori March, Valerie Northcote on "Secret Storm", opened a crazy "general store" in Connecticut with buddy Meg Mundy of "The Doctors".

10. YES. Richard Thomas' parents, formerly with the American Ballet Theatre, now have their own New York School of Ballet.

11. NO. Raymond Burr is a very powerful personality, and Don Galloway is no weakling. At first, their personalities tended to clash. But Don has come more and more to respect Burr's judgment. Now he says, "I can't think of anybody in the world I would rather work with than Ray."

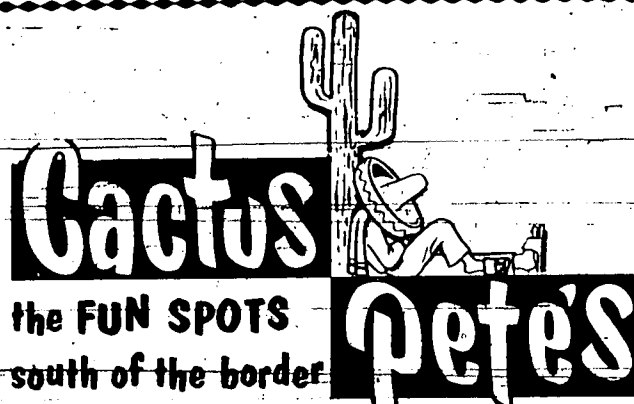

12. YES. As of now many of Flip Wilson's friends believe he will marry Rosylin Taylor. Rosylin thinks so too. Says Flip, "The network pays me to perform on TV, not to talk about my love life."

13. YES. Merv Griffin's company has completed a Paul Anka Las Vegas pilot, but unless it's much better than recent Anka Specials, it's a longshot.

14. NO. Says Rich Little, "I just can't seem to perfect Bob Hope. I wish I could. There's a heckuva lot of material there."

15. YES. Says "Maude" (Beatrice Arthur) without batting an eyelash: "When I couldn't land roles as an actress, I proceeded to bomb out as a singer in small clubs."

We return you to the Box. Look happy.
