Bombing on, off, on

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. bombing of Cambodia appears to be an on-again, off-again, and now on-again affair.

To make matters more confusing, the bombing is scheduled to be turned off again at mid-month.

Saturday, with the backing of his other colleagues, Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall wiped out a decision issued earlier in the day by fellow Justice William O. Douglas which would have meant an immediate halt to U.S. bombing in Cambodia.

A few hours after the vacationing Douglas telephoned from Yakima, Wash., ordering the bombing ended at once, Marshall reversed his action by granting a Justice Department request to block the original bombing halt ordered by a lower court effective July 27.

It was the second time in three days that Marshall had gotten the case challenging the bombing as unconstitutional. And for the second time, Marshall ruled that the case must make its way through the usual appeals process without advance Supreme Court intervention.

Marshall said the July 27 bombing halt was "stayed pending further order by this court." This seemed to indicate the justices fully expected to receive an appeal from the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York, which now has the case, no matter which way that court decides.

In his five-page opinion, the staunchly liberal Douglas, 74, said he was ordering an immediate bombing halt to avoid further bloodshed in Cambodia.

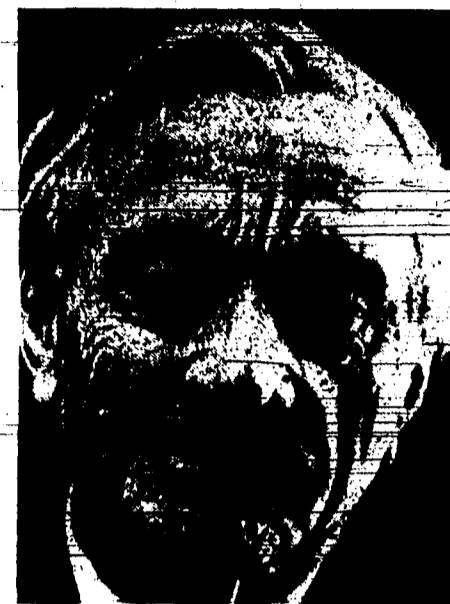

"This case in its stark realities involves the grim consequences of a capital case," he said, and to deny it "would catapult our airmen as well as Cambodian peasants into the death zone."

But Marshall polled his other fellow justices by telephone and said all agreed on the narrower technical point that they should await the appellate court's decision before they act.

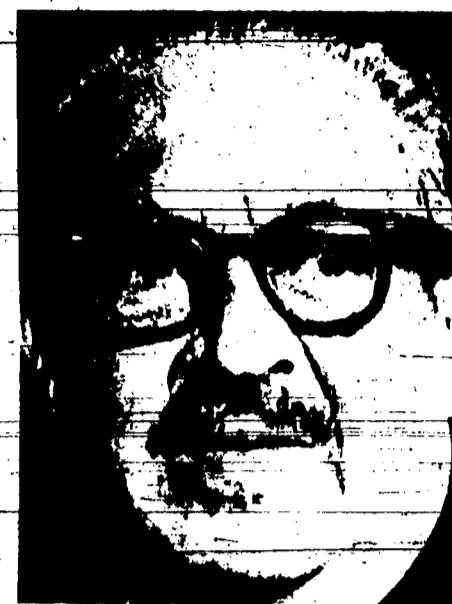

The appeals court has scheduled a hearing on the bombing challenge for Aug. 8 — one week before all U.S. combat activity is scheduled to end in Cambodia under orders from Congress. Marshall cancelled out Douglas' order just as Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., who took the bombing challenge to court in the first place, issued a short-lived statement rejoicing over Douglas' decision.

"For the first time in 10 years, this country will not be at war," she said. "No more desperately needed tax dollars will go any more to fuel this unconstitutional war."

The Justice Department had told Douglas at a hearing Friday that ending the bombing now would be "extremely disruptive."

TF markets report some meat hoarding

By GEORGE WILEY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Some consumers in Twin Falls may have begun hoarding meat, apparently in anticipation of shortages and even higher prices to come.

Retail over the counter meats sales, especially of beef, have jumped markedly in Twin Falls over the last two weeks.

All supermarket operators surveyed Friday said buying had increased. Some estimated the jump at 25 per cent or more. The shopper, they agreed, has his eye on the lifting of the price freeze on beef Sept. 12 and the higher prices that are likely to follow. At the same time frozen food locker rental firms reported lockers scarce at a what is normally slack time of year.

Spot shortages of beef appeared to be developing at some supermarkets, although most operators said supplies were adequate and in some cases were good.

"We're in good shape here still," said Albertson's manager Larry Fullmer. "We're selling a lot more than we have been."

Fullmer said the store has had to change suppliers somewhat to maintain beef, but so far has managed to keep most cuts in the case. Albertson's supplies usually come from Arniour Packing Co. in Nampa, Fullmer said, but now the store is buying more beef locally.

He said the store is paying a little more for beef than it had been last month, but added that profit margins had not decreased "that much."

Fullmer estimated demand had increased 20 to 25 per cent in the last week.

Buttrey's manager, Leroy Geist, said the store is experiencing spot shortages. "It's not real bad yet."

"People are definitely buying more beef," Geist said. He said Buttrey's buys from Independent Meat Co., Twin Falls. "You pretty much pick up whatever he can let you have."

Buttrey's assistant meat department manager, Glenn Miller, said the store has been running short on some cuts. "The slaughterhouse has been breaking it in primal cuts square chuck and tough loins and round ... which enables them to come out better on price. If they sell carcass beef they lose money on it."

"We've just been able to get by barely, keeping our counter halfway full," Miller said, "but we haven't had any surplus." He said the store has been short on the better steak cuts. The meat counter as a whole, he added is "barely breaking even ... and losing money on some cuts."

"Our situation here is that we're trying to put out the merchandise that we have and that's all we can do."

Miller also said pork is running short. "The price has about doubled, but people are still buying it."

He said he expects poultry prices to take a "big increase" the first part of this week.

Dale Ford, manager of Shelby's, said the store is in "great" shape on meat. Despite heavy beef buying, he said the meat department is not running out of choice cuts. He said customers are buying beef, pork, chicken — anything they can get their hands on.

Demand has been increasing over the last two weeks, Ford said, "ever since the newspapers started running everything on the price freeze."

Buhl girl teen-age idol

TWIN FALLS — Debbie Cox, Buhl, was named Miss National Teenager of Idaho here Saturday evening.

She was also the winner of the "What's Right About America?" essay contest.

Margaret Harvey, Twin Falls, was first runnerup; Naomi Marquez, Sandpoint, second runnerup, and Pam Jensen, Caldwell, and Pamela Taylor, Pocatello, third and fourth runnersup.

Miss Marquez also won the Miss Photogenic award, while the Miss Congeniality award went to Miss Taylor. Carol Carey, Grangeville, received the Citizenship award.

Reds grab Cambodian general

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodian Communist forces pressing forward on the outskirts of Phnom Penh Saturday may have captured Gen. Chhuon Chhuon, personal assistant to President Lon Nol, the military command said.

Cambodian troops, fighting with the support of U.S. warplanes and their own artillery, battled the Communists for the second consecutive day along Highway 1, three miles from the southeastern limits of the capital.

Victim's scream unheeded

CHICAGO (UPI) — A San Francisco State University coed was beaten and strangled to death in daylight hours near one of the most popular tourist attractions in the city, police said Saturday.

A 12-year-old boy found the nude body of Lee Alexis Wilson, 23, Friday in dense shrubbery alongside the wall of the Art Institute.

Police said thousands of persons must have passed the site and one man told them he heard a scream about 2 p.m. but did not investigate because no one else seemed to be paying any attention.

Jazzman Condon dies

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jazz great Eddie Condon whose driving, Chicago style of guitar playing sparked bands for 40 years from the 1920s to the 1960s, died Saturday of a bone disease at Mt. Sinai Hospital after a lengthy illness. He was 68.

Astros probe short circuit

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab's big sun observatory was shut down temporarily by a short circuit and the astronauts may search for burned out wiring during a spacewalk Monday, a flight director said late Saturday.

As it now stands, the space agency said, the Apollo would be used only if there were a major problem aboard Skylab requiring a quick evacuation by the astronauts.

Huge range fires out

TWIN FALLS — Weary fire fighters who have battled two giant range fires southwest of here throughout the week moved in to halt a third blaze Saturday in the same area.

The two large fires which blackened a combined 69,000 acres of rangeland, were brought under control Friday. Mop up crews were at work there Saturday.

A third fire, also caused by lightning, and apparently starting as a "sleeper" Friday night broke into life Saturday at about noon.

The two other fires which began Monday following a number of lightning strikes in the area, burned in the Horse Butte and Clover Elms regions. The Horse Butte fire crews were demobilized Saturday. The fire had covered about 35,200 acres of range land.

The Clover Flat fire, burning near Clover Flat ranch, burned 33,800 acres, nearly all of it federal range land. It was controlled at 10 a.m. Friday but had not been declared out Saturday night.

Seventeen plane loads of retardant chemical were dropped on the fire and all available men were used on the ground. It burned about 10 miles southwest of the Clover Butte fire but was contained by 7 p.m. Saturday.

Farm bill passed to increase output

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional farm leaders have won passage of a compromise omnibus farm bill that includes crop support terms designed to increase food production, and liberalized food stamp rules for the needy.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, who sent word President Nixon would sign the measure, has already announced he will use authority included in the four-year bill to support major 1974 crops without requiring the idling of any acreage.

The first crop affected will be 1974 winter wheat, which will be planted before autumn. The House passed the bill by an easy 252-151 margin Friday night.

The massive measure includes a new "target price" support plan for grains and cotton which some administration experts predict will lead to expanded production while cutting subsidies.

It also gives Butz power to force an increase in the controlled price of foods like beef by certifying to the President that controls must be eased to prevent or cure shortages.

Other features of the bill include: — An increase of about 6.5 per cent in minimum milk supports for the 1973-74 and 1974-75 marketing seasons.

— And a proviso ordering the Agriculture Department to give food stamp recipients two cost-of-living adjustments annually.

Gooding lawyer killed

MOUNTAIN HOME — Former Gooding County prosecuting attorney, Mike F. Ryan, 89, died Friday in a traffic accident about 40 miles northeast of here in the Anderson Ranch Dam area. Sheriff Earl Winter said Ryan was dead at the scene when officers arrived. His vehicle, traveling southwest toward Mountain Home on an Elmore County road left the roadway and rolled into Lime Creek.

Winter said the vehicle was partly submerged in water but Ryan apparently died of a head injury caused by the impact. He said the vehicle traveled about 15 to 20 feet down an embankment after leaving the highway and rolling over. Ryan had been staying in a cabin near Anderson Ranch Dam, the sheriff said, and may have been planning to return to his home in Gooding. Sheriff Winter said his office was called at 10:15 a.m. Friday. Ryan was traveling alone when the accident occurred.

Wage floor OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Friday gave final congressional approval to raising the $1.60 an hour minimum wage to $2.20. But the measure remained under the threat of a veto.

The measure would give 4.1 million of the 54 million workers brought under the law prior to 1966 an immediate raise to $2.00 an hour and those who came under it after 1966 would get $1.80 immediately. The pre-1966 workers would go to $2.20 on July 1, 1974 and the post 1966 employees would reach that a year later. The $1.30 an hour farm minimum would go to $2.20 over three years.

Rattler strikes Heyburn boy, 11

BURLEY — An 11-year-old Heyburn boy was in satisfactory condition but in intensive care at Cassia Memorial Hospital Saturday after suffering a rattlesnake bite.

The boy, Paul Carnahan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Carnahan, Heyburn, was bitten by the rattler at 10 a.m. Friday at the Microwave station on Conner Mountain east of Albion.

His mother said he and two younger brothers had gone with their father to the station where he is employed. As they left the family automobile and started toward the station they encountered the rattler in a small group of rocks. The two younger boys jumped over the rocks, not aware the snake was there and as Paul jumped over the snake struck him just above the ankle.

His father applied a restrictive band and rushed the boy to the hospital.

He was given six vials of anti-venom, some shipped from Seattle.

The boy's heartbeat had slowed by about 40 per cent Friday afternoon but was returning to normal Saturday, Mrs. Carnahan said.

M. F. Ryan

GOODING — M. F. Ryan, 89, Gooding, died Friday of injuries received in a car accident along Anderson Ranch dam.

He was born Oct. 17, 1883, at Stuart, Iowa, and served in the U.S. Navy for four years. After his discharge he attended law school at Denver.

In 1915 he married Isabelle DeMoisy at Leadville, Colo. He came to Gooding in 1917 and set up law practice with Frank James. He served as Gooding County prosecuting attorney for 25 years and also served on the school board here for that same number of years.

Mrs. Ryan died in May, 1942. He married Gail Ryan in 1948 and they later were divorced. Mr. Ryan retired from his law practice five years ago. He belonged to the Masonic Lodge and was a charter member of the Gooding Lions Club.

Survivors include two sons, Dr. E. G. Ryan, Gooding, and Richard F. Ryan, Los Angeles, Calif.; one daughter, Mrs. Ruth Larson, Oroville, Wash.; and six grandchildren.

Graveside services will be conducted at 10 a.m. Monday at the Elmwood Cemetery by Rev. Edson Gilmore, United Methodist Church.

Friends may call at Thompson Chapel this afternoon and evening.

Lewis Martin

GOODING — Funeral services for Lewis Martin, 39, who died Wednesday at Gooding Memorial Hospital, will be conducted at 9 a.m. Tuesday at the Gooding LDS Church by Bishop Willis Cheney.

Mr. Martin was born Nov. 1, 1933, at Archer, Idaho, and moved to King Hill in 1951. In 1960 he moved to Gooding.

He did custom farm work most of his life. He was a member of the LDS Church.

Survivors include his mother, Mrs. Mary Martin, Gooding; six sisters, Mrs. Beverly Gooding, Gooding; Mrs. Reva Simmons, Pocatello; Mrs. Eva Hansen, Mrs. Mary Robinson and Mrs. Stella Chambers, all Rexburg, and Mrs. Linda Santmyer, Portland, and one brother, Ervin Martin, Anchorage, Alaska.

He was preceded in death by his father.

Friends may call at Thompson Chapel Monday afternoon and evening and at the church one hour prior to services.

Last rites will be in Glenn Rest Cemetery, Glenns Ferry.

W. H. Black

FILER — William Hamlin Black, 83, Filer, died Friday evening at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital after a long illness.

Born Oct. 8, 1891, at Coatsville, Mo., he moved to Twin Falls from Missouri and had lived in Twin Falls most of his life. He moved to Filer three years ago.

He had been a carpenter and brick mason.

He married Mary Anderson in Elko, Nev., in 1970.

He attended the Nazarene Church.

Survivors include his wife, Filer; seven daughters, Mrs. Ernest Scott, Billings, Mont.; Mrs. Tom Moore, Wilmington, N.D.; Mrs. Dan Cornwell, Springdale, Ark.; Mrs. Bob Chaney, Prattville, Ark.; Mrs. Eldon Kimball and Mrs. Tom Jennings, both Twin Falls, and Mrs. Mildred Buckley, Seattle; seven stepdaughters, Mrs. Newell Johnson, Buhl; Mrs. Larry Giles, Boise; Mrs. Paul Boyd and Mrs. Edward Hoxie, both Twin Falls; Mrs. Ben Jewell, Vista, Calif.; Mrs. Stella Gentry, Fort Smith, Ark.; and Mrs. Delores Boyle, Mesa, Ariz.; one stepson, Ruben Jones, Rogerson; several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by two sons and one daughter.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday at Reynolds Funeral Chapel by Rev. Joseph Chastain of the Twin Falls Nazarene Church. Burial in the Twin Falls Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Chapel Monday and until time of services Tuesday.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service, employing a rarely used "jeopardy assessment," Friday slapped a $22.9 million tax lien on the assets of C. Arnholt Smith, a friend and important fund raiser to President Nixon.

IRS agents moved against the multi-millionaire financier's empire, already the subject of a federal fraud suit, in at least nine California counties.

He was accused of owing the government more than $19 million in unpaid taxes for 1969 and $3.8 million in penalties and interest.

It was believed to be the biggest tax lien for an individual for a single year in the nation's history.

The IRS laid claim to all Smith's assets — which included the San Diego Padres baseball team, which he is trying to sell — up to that amount, by both personal tax liens and simultaneously by "jeopardy assessment."

An IRS spokesman said the assessment is a "harsh action" that is rarely used, and employed only under special circumstances, when the IRS fears it may not get the money otherwise.

"There's no notice, you just pay up," the spokesman said. "We don't use it too often."

L. Patrick Gray admits 'grievous misjudgments'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saying he will never "carry the burden" of his misdeeds, L. Patrick Gray III admits that he read and then destroyed Watergate-related documents while head of the FBI and later lied about it out of loyalty to White House superiors.

Gray's statement of his "grievous misjudgment," delivered Friday in sworn testimony to the Senate Watergate Committee, came on the 35th day of nationally televised hearings into the bugging affair.

It was the first time the balding former submarine commander had revealed publicly that he read portions of the papers — found in the White House safe of Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr. — three days after the June 17, 1972, break-in — and then tossed them into the fire along with his family's Christmas trash last December.

"I believed that I was acting faithfully, loyally properly and legally pursuant to instructions given me by top assistants to the President of the United States," Gray said.

"I have come to believe, however, that I permitted myself to be used to perform a mere political chore. I shall carry the burden of that act with me always."

He read in a flat monotone from a 51-page prepared text, rarely lifting his eyes. The committee postponed questioning him until Monday, when it begins what is expected to be the final week of hearings until fall.

Gray, who quit as acting FBI director April 27 after "source" stories appeared in news media alleging that he had destroyed potential Watergate evidence, also testified that:

— He warned President Nixon on July 6, 1972, less than three weeks after the Watergate raid, that top White House aides were trying to "mortally wound" the President by "using" the CIA and FBI in an effort to slow down the Watergate investigation.

— He collaborated briefly at the outset with Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, deputy CIA director to limit the scope of the investigation under intense White House pressure, but he and Walters refused to stifle the probe and both felt they would rather resign than do so.

— He denied to Justice Department officials as late as April of this year having received and read the Hunt papers, lied to his old friend, Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., a Watergate Committee member, about details of their disposal, and deliberately withheld the story from the Senate Judiciary Committee at his ill-fated confirmation hearings last spring.

Horsemen hold meet in Filer

FILER — The Lost Caballeros 4-H Club held the first meeting of August Thursday at the home of Mrs. Richard Seaman.

The meeting was called to order by Daniel Seaman. The minutes were read and taken by Pamela Mason.

Miss Mason led the pledge to the flag and Tawi Blades led the group in the 4-H pledge. Visitors were Cheryl Albiston, David Mason and Paul Seaman.

Mrs. Seaman read a letter from Gary Helms, former club member who moved to Fruitland, telling of his new experiences.

Next week's lesson was assigned in vet science and quizzing on phases 1 and 2 of the Idaho 4-H program will be given.

The meeting was closed by Seaman and seconded by Miss Blades.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Seaman and Pamela.

Nixon program threatens MV hospital finances

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Memorial Hospital administrator James Rosenbaum charged Saturday that President Nixon's economic stabilization program is seriously threatening hospitals.

Rosenbaum said the restrictions are threatening the quality of services as well as any expansion or improvement of facilities.

He said even before the freeze on hospital rates, hospitals were placed in such a position only those in serious financial trouble had a chance to increase rates to a break-even mark.

Costs of goods and services hospitals purchase increased sharply under Phase III, Rosenbaum said, but hospitals themselves could not raise their charges enough to recover the full amount of cost increases.

Hospitals were one of only three industries under mandatory controls during Phase III, he said. As a result many began using up what reserves they had set aside in the past few years. Some began going into debt to deliver services at the same level as in the past, Rosenbaum said.

Some hospitals are having to borrow money at high interest rates and those in extremely dangerous financial positions may not even do that, he said.

Rosenbaum said Magic Valley Memorial, and many other hospitals, make up the budget prior to the fiscal year by estimating the number of patients it expects to treat during the fiscal year. Using this occupancy rate, it is able to approximate its operating expenses. The hospital also tries to budget a certain amount of reserve for capital and non operating expenses.

In past year, he said, it has been the practice to set hospital prices at a level to balance estimated expenses to operate at a break even point. Rosenbaum said should occupancy rates go above the estimated point and the hospital receive a greater income than expected, the hospital could, before the freeze, set aside this surplus to help cover charity case costs, pay for new construction or new equipment.

Should occupancy rates dip below the anticipated amount, in a succeeding year, he said, there would be a reserve to make up the difference.

However, as things now stand, if we experience an unexpected increase in income from an underbudgeted rise in occupancy, over which we have no control, Magic Valley Memorial will be charged with non-compliance with ESP regulations. Should this occur, the hospital would undoubtedly face a severe penalty, he said.

Rosenbaum said should hospital income increase for any reason such as new management techniques, improved services, automation or similar reasons, the hospital is penalized for increasing its productivity by having to lower its rates below the cost of producing the services, Rosenbaum said.

He said such restrictions discourage a hospital from adopting new cost savings programs such as one day out patient surgery, minimal care units, computerization of medical records or the sharing of services with other hospitals.

Because suppliers are not under mandatory regulations their price increases range from 10 to 30 per cent or more. Hospitals could only raise prices to reflect "allowable cost increases" under the Cost of Living Council rules.

Allowed cost increases for wages are limited to 5.5 per cent of the last fiscal year wage expenses and for non wage expenses were limited to 2.7 per cent of the previous years total expenses.

Rosenbaum said during the past two years since the Economic Stabilization program went into effect, Magic Valley Memorial has suffered a steady decline in reserves.

In 1970, just prior to Phase I, the hospital's total revenue was $100,220 above expenses. In 1971 the amount was $37,698 above expenses and in 1972 the surplus dropped to $19,707. For 1973 hospital officials estimate the hospital will suffer a $48,000 loss, the first loss in many years.

Such constraints as employed under the economic stabilization program not only will result in irreparable financial loss but will force the hospital to consider cutbacks on or severely curtail necessary medical services; lay-off employees; defer overdue and necessary wage and salary increases; consume unrestricted funds and other necessary reserves; reduce charity services or use reserves set aside for replacement of existing equipment and facilities, Rosenbaum said.

"It will unquestionably affect the hospital's financial integrity," Rosenbaum said "our insistence on a sound financial base is not a self serving one; it is the foundation on which our ability to serve the public rests. Sound financing is in the public interest and sustains high quality patient care."

Council slates sewer ordinance

TWIN FALLS — Ordinances regulating water and sewer services to users outside of the city limits and establishing rates for these services will be read Monday night before the Twin Falls City Council.

Four ordinances are involved. One regulates water services to users and housing developments outside of the city limit and another provides the same for sewer services. A third ordinance provides water and sewer services for mobile home parks and the fourth establishes rates for sewer and water services for mobile home parks, tourist camps and trailer parks.

Two ordinances will be considered on zoning variances involving the property of Lyle D. Cunningham and Robert L. Ellis.

City council members will also adopt the 1973 tax levy and discuss the Aug. 3 bid opening. Three city employees will receive certificates and special recognition for outstanding efforts.

The council meets at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the city hall.

GF senior citizens set work project

GLENNS FERRY — Glens Ferry Senior Citizens will have a potluck dinner Monday for those working on the building.

A class in paper mache is set for 10 a.m. to noon Monday.

On Tuesday there will be classes in decoupage from 10 a.m. to noon with Roy and William Murphy from Grand View as instructors. The class is open to anyone interested with the only cost that of materials used in the class.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, will meet with the senior citizens at the American Legion Hall in Mountain Home from noon to 1 p.m. Aug. 14.

At 6 p.m. Aug. 14, there will be an ice cream social in Carl Miller Park, Mountain Home. Glens Ferry senior citizens may attend and discuss any problems with Sen. Church.

In-law note

CHICAGO (UPI) — For some Indian braves there was no mother-in-law problem—just a solution.

The early Cheyenne bridegroom, according to Encyclopedia Britannica, cooperated with his father-in-law but was required to avoid all contact with his mother-in-law.

Collision

TWIN FALLS — Martha Genn Carlson, 29, suffered minor injuries Saturday morning when her car collided with another as she pulled from a parking lot on Main Avenue West.

City police said Mrs. Carlson was pulling from the Sears Parking lot and preparing to turn left when her vehicle collided with another driven by Alfred William Rayl, 21, Twin Falls. The Rayl vehicle was traveling southeast on Main Avenue. Rayl was not hurt. The accident occurred at 10:30 a.m.

Assembly ends Lincoln fair

By MELBA THORNE Times-News Writer

SHOSHONE — The annual Lincoln County 4-H fair ended Saturday after a day of activities including an awards assembly at 3 p.m.

Considered the highlight of the two-day event, the assembly featured 4-H and FFA youth recognition for outstanding work during the season in projects.

Terry Hopkins was presented a wrist watch from the First Security Foundation by Shoshone branch manager Roy Hubert. This award, which alternates to a boy one year and a girl the next, is for outstanding achievement in 4-H projects.

A $25 scholarship to the Idaho Club Congress next summer in recognition to outstanding achievement for girls went to Cathy Churchman. It was presented by the Lincoln County Journal.

D. Sid Smith, Shoshone sheepman, presented $50 and $25 savings bonds respectively to Kristina Kalkins and Frank Dodge for their outstanding sheep projects.

Jenea Swainston received a $25 scholarship to the 1974 Club Congress for her dairy animal achievement. The award was from Ward's Cheese, Richfield. Other scholarships to the 1974 Idaho Club Congress included $25 each to Terry Hopkins and Bryan McGhee, given by the Shoshone Rotary Club for achievement projects; two $36 scholarships to Dale Ralls for beef achievement, given by Dietrich Butte Cattlemen's Association; $25 award to Dan Churchman presented for boy's achievement by the Southern Idaho Production and Credit Association.

A $100 check presented by Bill Campbell to Alton Huyser was for outstanding Charolais projects.

The Magic Grange received the top award in community living exhibits with Dietrich Grange placing second and Wood River Center Grange third and the Dietrich Hobbyettes receiving the special award.

In the flower show division Bertha Caldwell received first place with Harrell Thorne second, and Mrs. Dorothy Bettia third.

In the youth division Deanna Thorne was first and Helen Hopkins, second. Mrs. Caldwell was named grand champion. In the women's division, Mrs. Caldwell and Mrs. Led Swainston tied for first place and Mrs. Donna Olieu was second and Denina R. Leback was third.

Nixon's Tape Decision: To Hide Dirty Politics

WASHINGTON — The potentially disastrous decision by President Nixon assigning H. R. (Bob) Haldeman to review a critical tape stemmed from a compelling desire to shield from public view dirty political talk in the Oval Office. Mr. Nixon did not want anybody new to hear the tape recording of shockingly blunt political conversation in his Sept. 15 meeting with Haldeman, then White House chief of staff, and John W. Dean III, then White House counsel. Safe in the knowledge that nobody else knew about the tape, Mr. Nixon early in July called on private citizen Haldeman to secretly listen to the tape and report back to him.

That decision, made by Mr. Nixon with little if any staff assistance long before the tapes became the focus of a major constitutional confrontation, might well have catastrophic political repercussions. Unwittingly, the President gave the impression that only his old confidant could be trusted to hear the tapes. He has thus eroded his deteriorating relations both with the Senate Watergate committee and special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

only in terms of their existence being absolutely secret until accidentally revealed July 18. Mr. Nixon apparently regarded the tapes as devices to refresh his memory rather than potential evidence in the courts. On that basis in April, he asked Haldeman — still his powerful chief of staff — to review the tape of the President's March 21 meeting with Dean. But senior aides at the White House insist that no tapes were audited in preparing the President's much criticized May 27 Watergate statement. The President has informed aides that he went to his still secret recordings after the Washington Post of June 3 reported Dean's statements to investigators about meetings with the President. To check information that he thought absolutely incorrect, Mr. Nixon informed his advisers, he himself listened to recordings prior to Dean's Senate testimony. But the tape that apparently worried the President the most was the recording of his Sept. 15 conversation with Dean and Haldeman. Dean's testimony interpreted Mr. Nixon as being well aware at that meeting of the Watergate cover-up. But there was much else said in the Oval Office that day, not related to Watergate, which

Mr. Nixon felt could only damage the presidency. By all accounts, Mr. Nixon and Haldeman engaged in a mid-campaign discussion of the seamy side of politics which the public does not generally associate with the presidency. Mr. Nixon emphatically urged Haldeman to look into the records of Sen. George McGovern and other pols, using military records and income tax returns. Thus did Mr. Nixon want to refresh his memory about the Sept. 15 meeting without revealing the contents to anybody else. Why he did not listen to the tape himself is not clear. Instead, he assigned aide Haldeman to listen

(apparently at Haldeman's present home at Newport Beach, Calif., near the presidential estate at San Clemente). With the existence of the tape still secret, the President apparently never planned to reveal Haldeman's secret mission. It was clearly Mr. Nixon's personal decision. Two senior aides now sitting in on Watergate decision-making first learned of Haldeman's audit along with the rest of the world Monday evening. A third senior aide did know about it, but only well after the deed had been done. Even those White House staffers lusting after a refutation of Dean could not imagine a less credible evidence than Haldeman's testimony. What is becoming clear is that the differences between Dean and the President over both the March 21 and Sept. 15 meetings involve not so much the actual words as their context and interpretation. As a result, old Nixon loyalist Haldeman as a principal in the case with a deep-seated personal interest in refuting Dean is scarcely an evenhanded interpreter. Moreover, Haldeman's mission tends to undercut the later pledge to Cox by White House counsel Fred Buzhardt that the tapes were kept in absolute security by the Secret Service. Similarly, after recovering from their early shock last Monday night, several members of the Ervin committee were expressing outrage. Before Haldeman's revelation, the White House seemed to be moving toward some compromise which would give Cox, though not the Ervin committee, private access to the tapes to sort out what directly applies to Watergate rather than wait for an ultimate Supreme Court decision ordering release of the tapes; Haldeman's bombshell while not making such a deal any easier, does not decrease the need for it.

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

An Idea Whose Time Has Come

WASHINGTON — More than 65 years ago, President Theodore Roosevelt sent a message to the Congress. He was concerned about the high cost of the presidential campaign of 1904 and the bi-elections of 1906. The need for collecting large campaign funds would vanish, said the old Rough Rider, "if Congress provided an appropriation for the proper and legitimate expenses of each of the great national parties. Roosevelt's idea, in brief, was for the public financing of federal elections. It is an idea, I submit, whose time has just about come. This represents a change of position on my part, and on the part of other conservatives who have objected to federal financing in the past. We have felt that any such program would be unwise in terms of fiscal policy, and we have argued that corollary regulations, limiting private contributions and otherwise regulating the conduct of political campaigns, would infringe upon first amendment freedoms. These are serious objections, and I reluctantly put them aside. What we are talking about is a complex system of appropriating public funds to be spent by private hands — by political parties and by individual candidates. Such a prospect requires, at a minimum, a network of tight controls, supervised by a massive bureaucracy. A workable plan would have to cover both primary and general elections; it would have to give account to third parties and to possibly frivolous candidates; and it might create new evils, by reviving bossism and entrenching office holders, as objectionable as the old evils it is intended to dispel. Yet it seems to me, on balance, that drastic measures are needed if we are to remove the curse of money that now corrupts our political process. If we do not learn at least this lesson from Watergate, we are doomed to repeat that wretched course of instructions. By fixing tight limitations on individual contributions, the Senate early this week moved in the right direction; yet a great deal remains to be done. Political campaigns, of necessity, are expensive. They are especially difficult, and especially difficult, for newcomers who challenge incumbents. Once we clip the wings of political angels, as the Senate proposes, some alternate plan of campaign financing will have to be provided. The present scheme of tax checkoffs and tax deductions is feeble and ineffective. Roosevelt's forthright proposal of 1907 could dispel the clouds that now shadow public confidence in public institutions. This is the important thing. The walloping contribution from the milk producers to the Nixon campaign may have been utterly untainted by any thought of a bribe; but under the circumstances, it smacked of corruption. The $100 bills that came from Robert Vesco may have been prompted by motives of Snow White purity; but the charge is widely believed that the case bought access to high places. George Spater, chairman of the board of American Airlines, has explained why a large part of the political money given by the business community is given: "It is given in fear of what could happen if it were not given." This pattern has to be broken. Granted, the drafting of a workable law on public financing will not be easy. This whole business of election reform, as last week's debate in the Senate made clear, is in part a choice of lesser evils as better than greater evils. The suspicious thought will not go away that some members, in the pious name of election reform, are in fact taking a leaf from the famous textbook in political science by Prof. John Wesley Dean, "maximizing our incumbency, or, how to screw our opponents."

Patching Relations

As a result of the personal meeting between Japanese Prime Minister Tanaka and President Nixon, there should be little chance for misunderstandings in the future between the two nations on the scale of some which have occurred in recent years. Relations between Tokyo and Washington have been badly sprained as a consequence. Japan and the United States have a growing interdependence upon one another in trade, monetary and economic affairs. Trade between the two has become a multi-billion dollar enterprise affecting major industries and a wide array of commodities. Equally important, Japan has expanded its economic influence in every direction, with the frequent result that it and the U.S. have become strong competitors in many of the same markets. As two of the major economic forces in the modern world, it is to the benefit of both to reduce frictions to their lowest levels. If that much has been accomplished by the heads of state, the cooperative attitude Japan has been displaying to reduce voluntarily the trade deficit suffered by the U.S. will continue.

Checking Controls

Not until food packers began closing their doors and hatcheries began killing their chicks did some people realize the price that was being exacted by controls on the American economy then known as phase 3 1/2. Belatedly, that phase of the control progression now is seen to have been a failure, not only failing to stem inflationary pressures but actually cutting back on production, while increased output was needed to meet consumer demand. If phases 1 through 3 did not correct the economy's imbalances and phase 3 1/2 was almost a disaster, what about phase 4?

Already it has produced another jump in food prices with promises of more to come and investment funds are beginning to dry up under the pressure of higher costs of borrowing. Once again the problem is whether producers will be able to expand their facilities — or will want to do so — fast enough to meet consumer demand and consequently take some of the steam out of inflation. If the answer again is no, the next question is, should not the law of supply and demand be returned to the marketplace as quickly as possible?

MR. SPECTATOR

Friends, Dogs, Vacations, Amelia

We had a friend who turned into a lawyer because he liked to read. He started with Tom Sawyer and just before graduation and passing the bar he read a condensation of What Every Young Girl Should Know — having decided to specialize in divorce situations. You should walk your dog (or dogs) early in the morning so the neighbors will not be glaring at you when you — and the animals — pause on their lawn. Vacation time is rolling around — the best time for a vacation, that is. In these here parts it is in the fall, after school has started and before winter comes. You would be amazed at how quiet are the resorts, comfortable the hotels and motels and empty the highways. In fact this isn't true only in Idaho. It's nationwide. So get ready to get after county fair time.

We have concluded our doctor is pretty smart. He suggested we go on a diet and in the past month we have lost 14 pounds. In fact the tailor has had to take two inches off the waist of five pair of trousers. But getting back to the doctor and the diet. He announced the diet just at the right time and we really appreciate it. In addition to dropping some blubber, we are also saving money because with the price of food going up and up we are having to eat less and less. Viva factor! REMEMBER AMELIA? A lady who had caught the admiration of the world and then vanished from it 36 years ago would have observed her 75th birthday anniversary this summer. Instead, the mystery over what happened to Amelia Earhart remains as unanswered today as it was July 2, 1937, when the last radio contact was made. Gas is running low unable to reach you by radio we are circling but cannot see you. " was the last word from the two-engine plane carrying Miss Earhart and navigator Fred Noonan. Although an exhaustive search was conducted and revived periodically over the years, not a trace of the plane or its occupants was ever found. At the time of her disappearance Amelia Earhart was one of the world's most famous fliers and America's foremost aviatrix. She had set a number of records for women flyers and was well on her way to another at the time of her disappearance. Thirty-six years later the Earhart mystery remains tragically unsolved. HOW ELSE? A mother felt like fainting when her 8-year-old daughter said a boy on the playground had asked her to prove whether she was a boy or a girl. "And," she said calmly, "I proved it"

"How?" the mother gasped. "Why," the prim little miss answered logically, "I just showed him my Brownie card." A MISLEADING NAME? You'd think that a series of events of such drama and magnitude as those which took place in the United States between 1861 and 1865 would have a commonly accepted name. In the North it's the "Civil War" and in the South "The War Between the States." Actually neither one is accurate, but reflects the philosophy of those who prefer it, we read in Strategy and Tactics, a magazine of war gaming or conflict simulation. The northern name is a poor one, it says, because a civil war is a struggle for control of the body politic. The South did not want to control the Union — it wanted to leave it. The southern name, on the other hand, is also poor. Aside from being bad grammatically, it implies that the states have a sovereign existence. The war was really a struggle between a group of southern states and a centralized Union. Other names which once enjoyed more or less popularity but which are now oddities are "Mr. Lincoln's War," the "War To Suppress Yankee Arrogance," the "War for Southern Independence" (which it was) and the "War Of The Slaveholders' Rebellion" (which it also was). Nor is the most logical and accurate name of all — the "War of Secession" — likely to gain acceptance, says the magazine. So we're stuck with Civil War and-or War Between the States. TODAY'S CHUCKLE: The person who cries for the return of the "good old days" is often the same guy who yells loudest when his TV suddenly goes dead.

Opium Cutoff

The much-heralded end to poppy farming in Turkey will have virtually no impact on the amount of illicit opium or heroin flowing into this country, warns an internationally recognized expert on drug addiction and the world narcotics trade. Southeast Asia and the "Golden Triangle" areas (Burma, Laos and Thailand) don't represent much now in terms of opium getting to the United States, says Dr. Maurice H. Seevers, who was chairman of the department of pharmacology at the University of Michigan Medical School for nearly 30 years. But when the Turkish trade is cut off, "there is tremendous potential for them to supply the demand," he says. This will be the last year for Turkey's (legal) poppy crop. With a $50-million subsidy from the United States to encourage its farmers to make the changeover, it is getting out of the poppy-growing business. However, Turkey has always played a relatively small role in both the legal and illegal opium trade. Out of 1,400 metric tons of opium produced legally in the world in 1970, Turkey contributed only 150 tons. By comparison, the Golden Triangle produces an estimated 700 metric tons of illicit opiates each year. Seevers' warning is backed up by a recently released report to the House Foreign Affairs Committee by a special narcotics subcommittee. A major share of heroin coming to the United States flows almost freely from Thailand. But according to Seevers, a large part of the problem lies in the fact that most of the world's illicit poppy farming areas are not under the control of any national government. As he indicates, supply is only one part of the frightening drug equation. The other is demand. The real problem, says Pedro Ojeda Paullada, is U.S. consumption of illicit drugs and the tremendous prices Americans are willing to pay for them.

The Other Side

TWIN FALLS — The state plumbing inspector in Twin Falls said their installations had been "getting better" lately. The receptionist at the Better Business Bureau said the attorney general's office was the place to call. She is the only person in the world who can roll her eyes skyward with her voice. "The people at the Twin Falls local Chamber of Commerce said, yes, we have heard of them. It's a new variation on the oldest theme in the world. 'How they're gonna cover up their tell-tale breath with sassafras one fine night' is how the Selling water conditioners because the rocks in the water cause fabrics to wear out faster than they should. (Make the fabrics better.) The hardness in the water hurts everything the water touches. And water touches everything. The Music Man could do a full length feature on a jingle like that one. The attorney general has been hearing complaints about Master Distributors, Inc. for some months. Last January, his representatives agreed to an Assurance of Voluntary Compliance. The company said it hadn't violated any law; and it wouldn't in the future. But the calls kept coming in. Some of the people complained of what they thought was high pressure. Some of the people said the installations weren't going too well. Some of the people say they thought they had a free-no-obligation trial, and it cost money to get the machine taken out. Selling water conditioners for $398 plus interest. Twenty-one per cent. A total cost of about $1,200. A lot of people bought them. The attorney general has finally filed suit in District Court. It says the sale started off as a telephone survey about pollution and water ecology. Who isn't concerned. Everybody will answer a few questions. Thanks for the answers. Can we send out a gift. Well, everybody likes a free gift. But who likes the hour and a half presentation that comes with it? Master Distributors, Inc. had a sales recruiting meeting in Twin Falls last week. About a dozen men and women showed up. It was an experience in the world of water conditioners. Nationally, one out of four contacts is a sale. Sell enough of the water conditioners, (it's so easy, all you have to do is read the presentation out of a book, prepared by 75, count 'em, folks, 75 master minds), and you qualify for the unique "M" squad. The unique "M" squad. So unique, almost anyone can qualify. That part isn't tough to follow. The "M" squad could mean $1,000 a month, a $200 automobile allowance, a $100 clothing allowance, hospitalization care. Paid vacations. Special deals on odd months. A chance to buy your own water conditioner. And a Saturday morning breakfast, courtesy of the company.

Atomic Station May Aid In Geothermal Field

By O. A. (GUS) KELKER
Editor, Times-News

The Atomic Energy Commission's National Reactor Testing Station at Arco could be expanded to encompass a "National Geothermal Testing Station" role because of nearness to various geothermal resources, Senator Frank Church endorses the possibility.

Senator Church, chairman of the Senate Interior Subcommittee on Water and Power Resources, has scheduled a day-long hearing in Idaho Falls next Friday on the potential development of geothermal energy. A blue-ribbon group of witnesses will testify at that hearing and the suggestion that the National Testing Station could double in the geothermal testing field is sure to be introduced, as it was when the first in the series of planned sessions was held in Washington last June.

Senator Church termed the suggestion, made by Gerald W. Johnson, director of the AEC's Division of Applied Technology, a "most heartening development."

"The Subcommittee on Water and Power Resources stands ready to work with the AEC to accomplish the necessary funding needed to implement such a program," Senator Church said.

"Enough is known about the geothermal resource to justify serious attention. The energy dilemma facing the United States may prove to be one of the most critical national problems of the next few decades. Every significant and attractive energy source must be thoroughly explored."

Where is the place to look?

Senator Church said "perhaps the most exciting potential for geothermal energy involves the resources which have received the least attention. These are the regions where the heat is contained in hot, dry rock systems which, as the result of geographically recent volcanic action, are relatively close to the surface."

One such area, the Senator said, is the famed Craters of the Moon region. There are the surface indications of such action.

"The eastern Snake River Plain is believed by some experts to be underlain by a rich source of such energy which is evidenced by recent lava flows. The plain has not been explored geologically except to the depth of several hundred feet in existing water wells. The well-known Snake Plain aquifer, which begins at a depth of 100 feet and may extend to a depth of 5,000 feet, effectively masks evidence of any geothermal condition beneath," Senator Church said.

In order to evaluate this resource, a great deal more exploration will have to be done including some exploratory drilling to considerable depths. Meanwhile, a number of technologies must be developed, among them are improved methods of drilling in hot deposits and means of fracturing the rock to improve the transfer of heat to circulating fluids, he pointed out.

He said that the geology of Idaho, the abundance of surface indications such as hot water springs and the relatively meager exploration based upon shallow well measurements and seismic indications, have identified a number of known or potential geothermal areas scattered over much of the state.

"The Yellowstone National Park and the Frazier or Raft River area in Cassia county have been designated as "known geothermal resource areas" as defined in the Geothermal Steam Act of 1970, which provides for management of geothermal resources on federal lands," he said.

The Senator said there is "no doubt" but "that further development of the state's geothermal resources for space heating will take place. Some further commercial application will also probably take place, particularly greenhouse heating."

"But the most important potential for geothermal developments — large-scale generation of electric power, industrial process heat and by-product mineral production — must await additional exploration of the resource as well as research and development of the technicalities for its use."

With present technologies, temperatures of about 250 degrees centigrade (482 degrees Fahrenheit) are necessary for economic electric power generation from geothermal vapor. Investigation of hot spring areas in Idaho have not yet revealed areas which are expected to produce such temperatures, but serious geothermal exploration has been quite limited in Idaho as it has been in other parts of the United States.

"Only the most obvious geothermal manifestations have been examined. The geology of Southern Idaho appears especially favorable for geothermal conditions and it is possible either that the usual surface indications of high temperature resources have simply not yet been discovered or are masked by surface conditions such as shallow cool aquifers. An extensive exploration program will be needed in Idaho," Senator Church said.

He said that in an effort to "design a prudent approach" to the problem, and to get this research and development underway, he is co-sponsoring (with Senator Jackson of Washington) legislation to develop alternative sources of energy. One of the key features of the bill is a provision authorizing a large-scale joint effort of private industry and the Federal government to develop necessary technology. A Geothermal Energy Development Corporation would be established to provide up to 80 per cent of the financing for pilot plants to produce electricity utilizing geothermal energy. Once the necessary technology is developed and the process proved feasible, Federal involvement would end, he said.

Right now the only geothermal power plant in the United States is at The Geysers, a facility operated by the Pacific Gas and Electric Co., 90 miles north of San Francisco. This plant, which utilizes geothermal steam directly to turn turbines, has a capacity of 192 megawatts. Presently planned additions will increase it to over 600 megawatts. (Senator Church pointed out that the installed capacity of the Hells Canyon dam is 340 megawatts).

The Senator pointed out that this region (Idaho and the Pacific Northwest) face a dilemma. In the past it has been heavily dependent upon hydroelectric energy. Virtually all of Idaho's electricity presently is provided from water power. Most of the hydroelectric dam sites are now in use and development of those which remain would entail the loss of "unique natural areas" and the few remaining wild river reaches of the region.

"Each of the conventional alternatives carries with it some aspect of the national energy crisis," Senator Church said. "Oil and gas are in scarce and uncertain supply, thermal powerplants based upon the Utah or Montana and Wyoming coal fields, face strong environmental opposition, the nuclear industry is unable to meet the tremendous demand for new generating capacity, and the costs of all of these alternatives are escalating. In this situation, unconventional sources of energy which have been largely ignored until now deserve new consideration."

He said the slow search must be stepped up.

"The National Petroleum Council predicts that by 1985 only one per cent of U.S. energy requirements will be met by geothermal energy."

"But if a major research and development effort were immediately initiated, it has been estimated that nearly 400,000 megawatts of electric generating capacity based upon geothermal energy could be installed in the United States by the year 2000. This amount equals the nation's total present installed generating capacity of all types," he said.

The Cause For Optimism

Editor, Times-News:
Viewing with alarm the rapid military growth and continuing aggressiveness of Communist nations, the American public frequently questions the wisdom of a shift to an "all-volunteer" armed forces.

As a result of recruiting activities in Idaho by the Navy, Army, Air Force, and Marine Corps, there is cause for optimism.

While it is too early for a positive answer, early indications after more than six months' recruiting under a "draft-free" environment are that Idaho's youth are responding to the increased pay and fringe benefits offered by the military.

A recent editorial appearing in the Times-News on July 19th indicates that in their search for recruits, the armed forces, appeals primarily to mentally backward or financially embarrassed young people. The conclusion is drawn that in attracting these people, the military will fail in attracting the numbers needed for the "all-volunteer" program to succeed.

Statistics offered by armed forces recruiters in Idaho indicate that this is not true. The Navy, in the fiscal year ending in June, 1973, reports that nationally they recruited 91.2 per cent of their total manpower requirements. Nationally, only 2.1 per cent of their recruits were in the lowest acceptable mental category. During June, while recruiting 59.1 per cent of their total manpower requirements, the Navy filled 100 per cent of their advanced schooling classroom seats requiring a four year enlistment, and exceeded their requirements in the six-year advanced electronics and nuclear field programs. The shortages occurred in the three-year enlistment program, promising no advanced schooling. Navy goals nationally were the highest for any June in eighteen years.

Figures from the Air Force and Marine Corps reveal that total national recruiting goals have been met or exceeded in the particularly difficult recruiting months of May and June in Idaho, with a continuing decline in the numbers enlisted in the lower mental classifications as determined by pre-enlistment testing procedures.

The facts are that more advanced schooling seats are being filled by all services with smarter young men and women, and that the numbers of recruits in the lower mental classifications are steadily declining.

Recruiters in Idaho report that young Idaho men and women are responding to the incentives of increased pay, broadened opportunities for educational and technical advancement, travel and adventure, and the numerous intangible benefits provided through GI bill-sponsored education.

A young man or woman enlisted immediately earns $307.20 per month. Though hardly enough to meet all needs, this figure is supplemented by numerous fringe benefits. The armed services provide improved quarters (often four or fewer to a room, with freedom to decorate the room to his liking) and three meals a day. Additionally, a young recruit is issued all needed clothing, and is provided with a monthly allowance for replacement of uniform items.

His medical and dental needs are provided free of charge by professional doctors and dentists.

The recruit receives thirty days paid vacation per year. Recent directives from Washington encourage the full use of leave, especially when returning from deployment to forward areas.

Government life insurance is offered to every young man and woman at a cost of three dollars per month for a $15,000 policy.

The government provides for $220.00 per month to the veteran electing to attend college following his military service. If the veteran is married, the grant increases according to the number in his family.

And, for the recruit with career plans, the retirement policy for twenty years service is unmatched in the civilian market. An 18-year-old recruit is eligible to retire at age 38 with 50 per cent of his base pay per month for life. The monthly retirement pay for an enlisted man at pay grade E-7, a realistic achievement, amounts to nearly $350.00 per month for as long as he lives.

For a young man or woman with no career plans, the opportunities for technical training depend on his aptitude. Through a carefully constructed aptitude examination, each applicant is screened and evaluated by the recruiter. If he has the necessary mental qualifications he is offered advanced technical training in a wide spectrum of occupational areas ranging from clerical positions through heavy equipment operations, aviation or mechanical positions, to advanced electronics, communications, or nuclear training opportunities. Requirements for these areas have steadily increased as equipment becomes more sophisticated.

Recruiters demand higher quality applicants. At least 70 per cent of the Navy's quota must be eligible for advanced technical training. Also, 80 per cent of their applicants must be high school graduates or have a competency equivalent.

With the phasing out of the draft, which ended practically speaking in January 1973, young people no longer seek out recruiters to avoid the draft. Since January, recruiters have shifted in role from "order takers" to strong and active salesmen. In order to meet still-high recruit goals, recruiters work closely with high school counselors and other influential citizens to ensure that the nation's youth complete high school. When they are ready for the job market, young men and women have a complete picture of the many advantages of service in the armed forces.

Congress has worked actively to attract volunteers to the armed services. Regular pay increases have boosted pay in recent years. The lowest grade enlisted man now earns more than double his salary of six years ago.

All services have actively worked to eliminate "mickey mouse" regulations. The emphasis has shifted from arbitrary leadership to a "people-oriented" concept of personnel management. The Navy reports that more than 110 orders have been issued by Admiral Elmo Zumwalt, Chief of Naval Operations, affecting the treatment and equal opportunity of Naval Personnel. Similar policies have been directed by the Army, Air Force and Marines. These far-reaching personnel policies have resulted in the reenlistment rate in the Navy doubling (from 13 per cent to 25 per cent) in three years. Other services have experienced similar first-term reenlistment gains.

The response of the youth of Idaho and the nation is encouraging. These young men and women view the military as an opportunity to gain a valuable skill, mature their attitudes, gain the excitement and adventure they need, and earn a respectable salary while they serve their country.

Forum letters must be concerned with topics of general interest and must be of a reasonable length.

The editors of the Times-News reserve the right to refuse publication if, in their opinion, the subject matter is of a libelous nature, is not in good taste or is repetitious and has previously been thoroughly covered in the forum.

All letters must bear the signature and address of the writer. The name of the writer will appear when published unless there is a personal request that it be withheld and the reason for such a request stated.

Army Is Not Pleading

Editor, Times-News:
I would like to make a few comments concerning your editorial, "The New Army", appearing in the Times-News Thursday, July 19.

Our recruiting effort is not pleading, "Pretty please, join up." Rather, we are involved in a concerted national effort to appeal to qualified young men and women. It is true that we have had problems in recruiting, and we have fallen short during some months. Overall, however, I submit that the recruiting effort for the All-Volunteer Army is succeeding far better than some critics would want to admit. The Army achieved about 90 percent of its objective for

Negative Approach

Editor, Times-News:
Your editorial "Don't Believe It" in today's Times-News is about as negative as it could be in helping to solve a problem.

Chief Barnett's idea may not be the best solution to the problem but he at least recognizes the problem and is prepared to make some attempt to correct it. The Times-News editorial is limited to criticism and offers no constructive suggestion.

Now that I have criticized the Times-News perhaps I had better offer an idea. If bicycle riders are governed by the same rules which govern Automobile drivers why not teach those rules in the schools as is done in the case of driver education courses? If these rules were impressed on children early enough, it would have meaningful results.

Why not have a Times-News reporter, a police officer or a citizen who observes a "safe bicycle rider" report the boy or girl's name to the Times-News. The safe driver's picture with a write up could be published in the Times-News perhaps on a monthly basis.

Possibly the Police Department could award a safe driver badge or an identification to be used on the winners bicycle.

These may not be good ideas but — I'll keep trying if the Times-News will too.

fiscal year 1973. Half that time was a draft-free environment.

"As one of your writer's observed on a recent tour of Fort Lewis (Times-News, Sunday, July 1), "How successful the All-Volunteer Army concept may be probably won't be known for another year and a half to two years, when present enlistments begin to expire. The success of the concept will be reflected in the number of men who re-enlist, or who induce other young men to enlist."

"To encourage enlistment, the Army has changed its image," the Times-News story continued. "Pay and quarters have been improved. Technical training, not combat skills, and adventure are emphasized. And a new approach, the "unit of choice," is being tried."

Civilians have replaced the traditional sweaty KP in mess halls in garrison at least — save during basic training. Useless work has been eliminated. Guard is almost a matter of the past, post security often is in the hands of the provost marshal and military police.

"It's an Army much different than that which fought in World War II or Korea" — or even the Army of five years ago."

I would further like to point out that your writer wrote, concerning the tour and how it was set up, "The military escort provided information requested during briefings and interviews, but made no effort to influence interviews."

It is my personal belief that Fort Lewis made every effort to be fair, open and honest. And I, certainly think your newspaper reported fairly, objectively.

I believe, however, that as the Army commander for recruiting in Idaho and Eastern Oregon, I should argue against a few points made in your more recent editorial of July 19.

"This is my personal feeling, but I do not believe that, "Once again circumstances have made a prophet of Thomas Jefferson, who said that the United States 'can never have a regular army in America because there are not enough paupers to fill the ranks.'" We have always had an army of paupers. Nor will the All-Volunteer Army be filled with paupers. We are, in fact, competing in the job marketplace for much better qualified individuals than in the past. Higher pay is only one aspect of appealing to young men and women that the Army is a meaningful alternative. Guaranteed choice of training and location is a very important part of our program.

Your editorial did not point out that in addition to that base pay of $307, the new recruit also received food, clothing, housing, medical care, 30 days paid vacation every year, and other benefits, including the GI Bill for education. The whole package is far above the "pauper" category, as any young man or woman in the service today will tell you.

Further, I do not believe that the all-volunteer concept "was to a large extent a selfish device engineered to keep college men — the sons of the most vocal and influential segment of the population out of the service." A large number of college men, in fact, are joining our ranks. They are joining because the Army is able to compete for their skills, offering an attractive package in terms of guaranteed schooling, travel, pay, and improved living standards. College graduates continue to be interested in officer programs. Men and women with one or more years of college often find our warrant officer programs most attractive.

It is not, in my opinion, a matter of selling the all-volunteer Army to the poor. It is a matter of selling it to the nation. And that means everyone — young men and women, their parents, their teachers and counselors, and their community leaders.

I just do not think the all-volunteer service can be in any way construed to be the design of any selfish motive. It's your Army, after all. The American public will be the final judge. But as I have said many times, I do not think the all-volunteer concept can succeed or fail overnight. We have to have reasonable time to work the wrinkles out.

I believe, and think that all of my recruiters believe, that we can make the all-volunteer Army work for the Nation.

Critical Letter

Editor, Times-News:
In the Sunday, July 29th, edition of the Times-News in an editorial entitled, "Don't Believe It," you ask for ideas on how to control traffic violations concerning bicycles. The idea I would like to submit is that you do not write editorials telling every bike rider in the valley he or she is immune to traffic laws because they can not be enforced!

If you were caught running a stop sign or going the wrong way on a one-way street would you expect to be arrested or to be given a traffic citation? Why, in your editorial, do you say, "We can just see the policemen arresting juveniles for these violations?" (All bike riders are not juveniles, by the way.) Bicycle riders can be ticketed just like automobile drivers. A ticket and the consequences following might save that bicycle rider's life in time to come.

You haven't much faith in parents if you think they will object to help in keeping their children safe.

To quote you again, "Such a drive has been tried before — in fact several times in our recollection during the 38 years we have been in these parts." If I understand you correctly, you are saying control has not been successful in the past; therefore, I rate that kind of logic right up there with the idea of never changing a system because, "This is the way we have always done it."

If might be better if you stick to your field and let the Police Department attempt to control the traffic situation before you tell everyone that it can not be done.

Arsonists sought as 51 died

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (UPI) — Police kept a close watch on ferries and aircraft leaving the island Saturday in a hunt for three boys wanted for questioning in the Fun Center fire disaster that claimed more than 50 lives.

Five more bodies were found in the charred remains of the acrylic plastic and steel entertainment complex, raising the death toll to at least 51, a police spokesman said. Only 13 of the victims have been positively identified, he said.

Police have a list of 52 persons not accounted for since Thursday's disaster at the Summerland Fun Center and it is feared other bodies may be in the debris, he said.

Chief Constable Frank Weedon said he believes the fire was started deliberately and wants to question the youths, aged about 15, seen acting "furtively" near the miniature golf course. Fire officers and forensic experts have confirmed eyewitness accounts that the blaze began at or near a hut used as a kiosk on the course.

One of the youths was described as having blond hair, with a German helmet-style haircut, and a scar on his face covered with a purple dye. The other two youths had dark hair.

Four policewomen and eight detectives flew in from England Saturday to help the island's police in the search and to take statements from survivors.

The Summerland leisure center, a seven-story building with walls and ceiling covered with transparent plastic sheets, caught fire Thursday night while crowded with about 2,000 British and Irish vacationers.

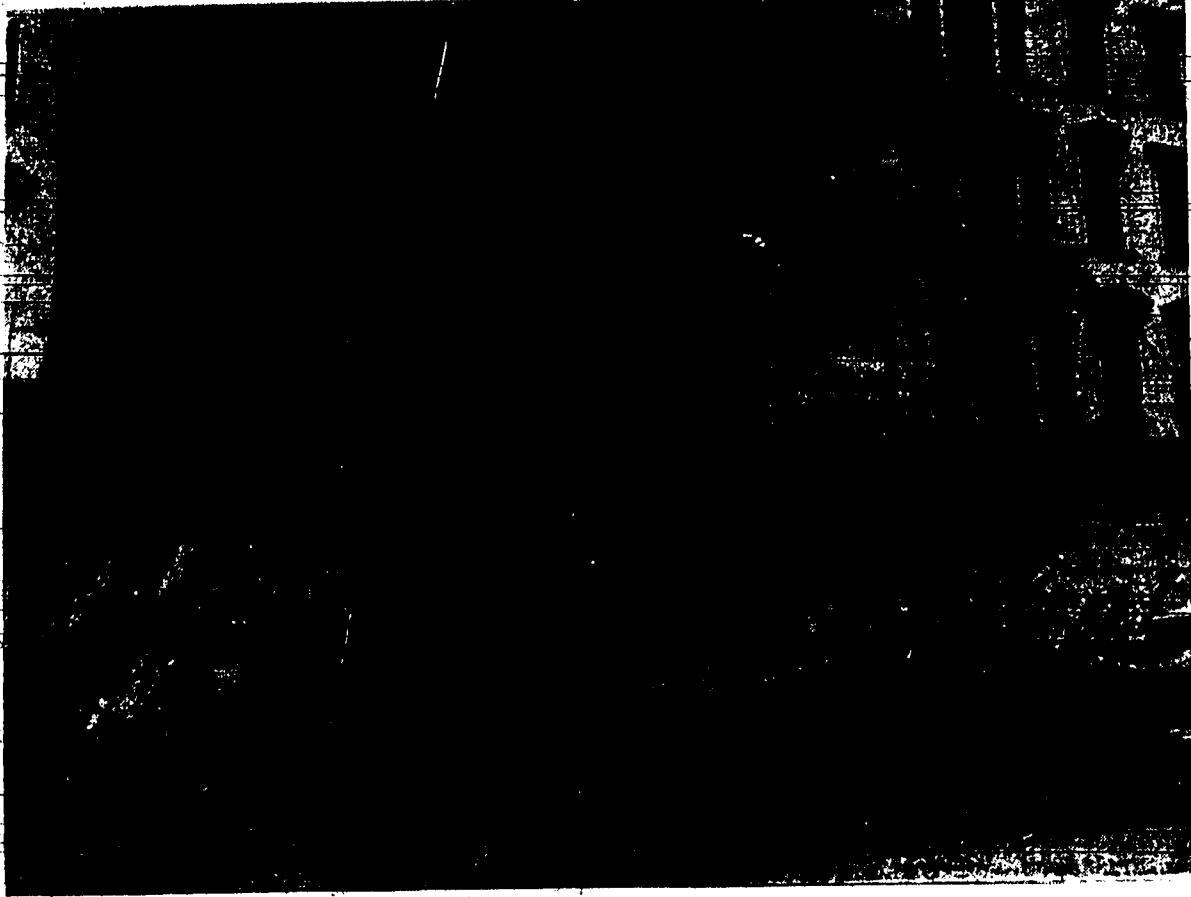

Gray had no doubt on order

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Patrick Gray III said today he read "Watergate-related documents and then burned them with his family's Christmas trash last year because he had 'no doubt' that senior White House officials wanted the material destroyed."

Gray, who asked President Nixon to withdraw his appointment as permanent FBI director in April as the Watergate scandal burgeoned, disclosed for the first time that he read some of the documents and skimmed others before destroying them.

In testimony prepared for the afternoon session of the Senate Watergate Committee hearings, Gray said the documents included an apparently false State Department cable linking the Kennedy administration to the assassination of a South Vietnamese president.

Gray also said he warned Nixon on July 6, 1972, that presidential aides were trying to "mortally wound" the President by using the CIA and the FBI in connection with the scandal.

Dillinger's slayer dies

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UPI) — The man credited with firing two of the three bullets which killed gangster John Dillinger outside the Biograph Theater has died. He was 82.

Charles Winstead, for many years considered one of the FBI's most accurate pistol experts, died Friday at the Albuquerque Veterans Hospital.

Winstead, a native of Sherman, Tex., spent much of his early years in the FBI chasing the gangster duo of Bonnie and Clyde through Texas and Louisiana but his meeting with Dillinger on that night of July 22, 1934 was the most publicized event of his career.

Winstead recalled Dillinger attempted to run into an alley and reached for his gun. Winstead and Hurt both fired simultaneously. Dillinger began to "spin like a top and fell dead."

Cancer prediction research revealed

HOUSTON (UPI) — The first phase in predicting lung cancer susceptibility in humans — and its relation to smoking — has been revealed by a University of Texas scientific team.

Dr. Charles R. Shaw, head of a three-man team at the university's M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, said Friday the test was not a proven means — although the first results were favorable.

He said tests measured the activity level of the enzyme Aryl Hydrocarbon Hydroxylase (AHH) that combined with hydrocarbons to produce an agent necessary for the development of the lung disease.

Shaw said hydrocarbons alone introduced into the lungs by inhaled cigarette smoke were probably not cancer producing, but alteration by AHH began the process in humans.

The researcher said although results indicated a person with a low level of AHH activity was less likely to develop lung cancer, too many other mechanisms were involved to consider it an absolute.

"Not all smokers with the higher levels of AHH get lung cancer and someone is not absolutely protected from getting cancer if he has a low activity," he said. "You can't say a person who has a low activity can smope his head off and not get cancer. He might, but the chances are less."

Shaw said the AHH activity level in a cell increased when hydrocarbons were introduced. He said the first part of the study indicated the amount of increase in healthy people varied.

FBI agents appear on bugging charge

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Two FBI agents appeared before Federal Judge Winston Arnov Saturday to answer charges they had attempted to spy on the Gainesville Eight, on trial for conspiring to violently disrupt last year's GOP Convention.

Agents Carl Ekblad and Robert Romann were caught Tuesday afternoon with a suitcase full of sophisticated electronic surveillance equipment in a broom closet adjacent to the courthouse offices reserved for the defendants and their defense attorneys.

The attorneys were talking to defendants John Briggs, Scot Camil, Alton Foss, John Kniffin, Peter Mahoney, Stan Michelsen, William Patterson and Donald Perdue after Tuesday's opening day of the trial when the agents were spotted in the closet.

Ekblad and Romann claimed they were simply checking a phone panel in the closet for possible bugs on federal lines. Judge Arnov, however, granted a defense motion for an evidentiary hearing on the incident.

The judge also ordered two telephone and electronic experts — J. D. Klise and Ovid Gano — to check the room and phone panels for bugs or "anything unusual."

The hearing on the alleged bugging incident came after a Saturday morning of testimony by former private detective and Pinellas Park policeman Charles R. Marshall Sr. At one point his comments prompted defense attorney Larry Turner to call for a mistrial.

Marshall told how defendant Camil had shown him some wrist slingshots and said he had seen some M-14 rifles in a Gainesville home rented by Camil, and other members of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War (VVAW).

The government claims the defendants had planned to disrupt the Republican's Miami Beach convention with "fire teams" armed with automatic weapons, explosives and wrist rocket slingshots.

Marshall said he saw the guns and slingshots in May of 1972, but admitted under cross-examination he didn't report it to the FBI until last month.

World leaders say US took beating in Viet

By GEORGE GALLUP
PRINCETON, N. J. — Now that the U.S. has withdrawn its troops from Southeast Asia, the judgment of the leaders of the world as to what the U.S. achieved by its long struggle there has special significance. In their collective view, was the Vietnam War worth it?

A representative sample of leaders from 70 different nations of the world were asked to give their judgment on many aspects of the struggle in Indochina and the future of the two Vietnams.

The international leaders who participated in the survey believe:

1. That the United States made a mistake in intervening with military forces in Vietnam.

2. That the U.S. lost prestige by its involvement there.

3. That the Communist cause in Southeast Asia, on the other hand, did not suffer a similar setback as a result of the war.

4. That the United States should help rebuild North Vietnam.

5. That they would like to see North Vietnam and South Vietnam joined as one nation.

6. That North Vietnam will eventually control all of Vietnam. The survey is based upon a random selection of persons included in "Who's Who in the World" and "The International Who's Who." Among the 341 world leaders, out of a total sample of 1,353 persons who participated in this mail survey, were statesmen and diplomats, elected and appointed public officials, educators, scientists, corporate executives, economists, bankers, physicians, attorneys, media executives. The results include the views of very few (6) leaders in Communist nations.

Following are the questions and the results received to date in the survey now nearing completion:

"Now that the United States has reached a peace settlement in Vietnam, do you think it was a mistake for the United States to intervene there with military forces in the first place?"

Yes, 66; No, 30; No opinion, 4.

"Do you feel that the United States gained or lost prestige by its involvement in Vietnam?"

Gained Prestige, 9; Lost Prestige, 86; No opinion, 5.

"Do you think Communism suffered a setback in Southeast Asia as a result of the Vietnam War?"

Yes, 26; No, 55; No opinion, 19.

"Do you think the United States should help to rebuild North Vietnam?"

Yes, 59; No, 24; No opinion, 17.

"Would you like to see North Vietnam and South Vietnam joined as one nation?"

Yes, 55; No, 20; No opinion, 25.

"Do you think that North Vietnam will eventually take control of all Vietnam, or will South Vietnam be able to maintain its independence?"

North Vietnam will control, 67; South Vietnam will keep independent, 22; No opinion, 11.

Army eyes nerve gas shipment

DENVER (UPI) — Army Secretary Howard H. Callaway said Friday he wants to remove nerve gas from the Rocky Mountain arsenal near Denver, but a final solution may be years away.

Callaway said a target date of 1976 for detoxification or removal of the gas was an "optimistic projection."

"I'm sure that the issue will wind up in court," he said, "and that could delay the final solution for years."

Watergate panelists 'tired'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After hearing 37 witnesses give testimony spanning more than 6,000 pages over 35 days, the Senate Watergate Committee is tired, cranky and still without definitive answers to the key questions confronting it from the start.

For the four Democrats and three Republicans on the panel, the most crucial unknowns concern President Nixon's role — what did he know about the scandal, when did he find out and what did he do about it.

How much ultimately is depended about the President and his top aides will depend heavily on the outcome of the legal battle over the secret White House tapes. Further court action is expected next week, with special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox and the Senate committee seeking judicial orders for Nixon to comply with subpoenas demanding disclosure of the tapes.

Next week also will mark the end of the first phase of the Senate hearings, with Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., adjourning them until after Labor Day and concluding the inquiry into the bugging of Democratic national headquarters and the ensuing cover-up.

Still to come are investigations into other activities put under the umbrella heading of Watergate: the "dirty tricks" allegedly done in the President's behalf to sabotage 1972 Democratic campaigns; the methods used in raising nearly $50 million for Nixon's own campaign, the most costly in history; the Ellsberg burglary and, perhaps, other illegal acts conducted in the name of national security.

Since the hearings began May 17, exactly 11 months after the June 17, 1972, Watergate arrests, the Ervin committee has focused on four basic areas:

What was the President's response and how active an interest did he take in the investigation during the months, before and after his reelection, when the press carried constant reports that his associates and political aides were implicated in a cover-up.

—Who actually authorized the break-in? John N. Mitchell, John W. Dean III, and Jeb Stuart Magruder, Mitchell's deputy at the Nixon campaign committee, have acknowledged attending meetings where the bugging plans were discussed, but each has sworn to a different version of what happened in those sessions.

—How did the cover-up evolve? And how many high officials in the government and at the Committee to Re-elect the President (CRP) took a hand in hiding the facts? Dean, ousted as White House counsel April 30, said Nixon himself was a cover-up conspirator. Mitchell, the former attorney general, said he concealed the facts from Nixon, but would have answered if Nixon had asked. H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, the President's closest White House aides until they too resigned April 30, said Nixon was in the dark and was eager to see the truth come out while insisting they themselves were innocent of wrongdoing.

McGovern bastard sought

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UPI) — Board of Health records will be searched for a missing birth certificate which may or may not list Sen. George S. McGovern as the father of an illegitimate child.

Circuit Judge Hermann Busse Friday granted permission to attorneys for the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel to prove or disprove rumors about the birth certificate.

The judge said he took the action with reluctance and set conditions for the search and release of any information.

"I am a Republican but I won't go along with scandalizing George McGovern," Busse said in issuing his order. He blamed "stupid, dirty, sticky politics" for the rumors and said he was not approving "any kind of snooping expedition."

Busse said his order included provision to prevent disclosure of the name of the mother or child if such a certificate is found. He also ordered the search be conducted jointly by attorneys for the newspaper and the Fort Wayne Board of Health and that only a "blanket statement," subject to his review, be released of the findings.

His order was issued after a former official for the Fort Wayne Board of Health said there was no such record on file here, despite published reports released in Washington, and a statement by a city official that an alleged copy of the birth record was in the city offices last fall.

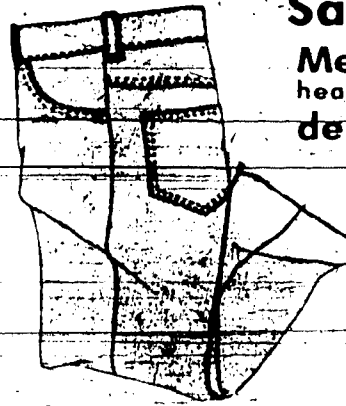

Busse said the matter was now of great interest and apparently the confidentiality of the records had already been compromised.

Mrs. Virginia McVey, former head of the vital statistics section in the Board of Health, recalled a visit paid her last Aug. 18 by a man identifying himself as a Senate investigator.

She said that at that time she examined the birth certificate and that McGovern's name was not on it.

No gallows for execution

FORSYTH, Mont. (UPI) — Two men are sentenced to hang Sept. 13 but a deputy sheriff said Friday the county doesn't own a gallows and hasn't started building one.

"We don't know anything," was the way Deputy Graham Makin summarized the legal status of James M. Shields, 21, and Wallace L. Rhodes.

The condemned men were transferred Thursday to McNeil Island Federal Penitentiary at Puget Sound, Wash. to continue serving previous sentences for kidnaping convictions in Minnesota. They were sentenced here Monday by Judge Alfred B. Coate to hang for the shooting death last year of Donald Kalberg, 58, a Hardin, Mont., jeweler.

No appeal has been filed but one is expected. Coate said Friday he did not know what the two men have decided.

"That's up to Shields and Rhodes," he said. The pair's attorneys were not available for comment.

Inmates firebomb plant

McALESTER, Okla. (UPI) — Inmates at the riot-gutted Oklahoma State Penitentiary Saturday firebombed the prison's soap plant and critically stabbed an inmate in a new outbreak of violence.

Ed Hardy, spokesman for Gov. David Hall, said the wounded man, Kirby Lee Bickerstaff, was "stabbed several times and then dragged from the soap plant over to the far north face, then dragged another 100 feet or so and left there."

He said inmates refused to bring Bickerstaff to a gate so 20 National Guardsmen cut a hole in the fence, pulled the wounded man through the opening and took him to a medical aid station. The hole in the fence was repaired and guarded.

No reason was given for the latest outbreak of violence in the prison. Protected by National Guardsmen and state troopers, officials strip-searched 600 inmates Saturday and herded them back into the security of barren, partially repaired cell-blocks.

A federal corrections expert called the riot in which 22 persons were taken hostage, four others died and $20 million in damages was caused, "one of the most disastrous events in the American correctional history."

The 600 had huddled in a corner of the prison yard for the past week refusing to reenter the rubble strewn cellblocks because, they said, the rioters would kill them.

Thirty-two rioters were bused to isolation cells in Tulsa and Oklahoma City Friday and another 14 were chained in McAlester's maximum security unit. Shortly before dawn the new violence erupted.

Corrections consultant Lawrence A. Carpenter said the prison was so old and so badly damaged that he would not recommend that federal funds be used to rebuild it.

"The cellhouses are not worth the expenditure of funds which would be necessary to restore them to minimal usefulness," he said. "They have not been satisfactory in the past and will not be in the future."

American bar chief to kick out establishment

(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — The new president of the American Bar Association has vowed to "kick out the establishment and the old timers" from the positions of leadership they have traditionally held in the powerful organization of lawyers.

Chesterfield Smith, a blunt-spoken attorney from Lakeland, Fla., said in a speech Thursday that he intended to force the A.B.A. to take "a turn in direction" which will make it more democratic.

He said that "individual members" of the A.B.A. will be given a greater role in "shaping the destiny of the organized bar and thus shaping the destiny of the country."

Smith, 56, delivered his speech during the opening day of the A.B.A. convention, which will continue here until next Thursday. After a year as A.B.A. president-elect, Smith will take over as president at the close of the convention. As president-elect, he said, "I have worked to kick out the establishment and the old-timers. I haven't appointed a past president to anything, nor do I propose to."

The bar association's convention here, which is expected to draw about 15,000 attorneys, will move into full swing on Monday when Chief Justice Warren E. Burger delivers his annual state of the judiciary address.

One of the chief topics for discussion at the convention is the Watergate scandal, in which numerous lawyers have been implicated.

Smith said the association was unlikely to pass any resolutions condemning attorneys who were involved in the Watergate affair.

The A.B.A. president said he would push for creation of national center for disciplinary enforcement, which would coordinate and fund efforts by local and state bar association to discipline unethical lawyers. Such a center has been proposed by an A.B.A. study group and the association's house of delegates will vote on whether it should be created, Smith said.

US combat activity in Cambodia to end Aug. 14

By ORR KELLY
 (c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger has ordered American commanders in Southeast Asia to end all combat activity in, over or off the coasts of Cambodia and Laos at Midnight Aug. 14.

The orders from the Pentagon were to be outlined to key congressional committees Friday by defense officials.

The briefings will stress that, while all combat activities are to end when the congressional mandate for a cessation of bombing goes into effect, the United States will continue substantial military, economic and humanitarian aid to the government of Cambodia.

Schlesinger's specific orders, and the detailed briefings being provided on Capitol Hill Friday — the day before Congress goes on vacation — are reportedly an effort by Schlesinger to ensure his credibility with congress.

The briefings come in the wake of disclosures last month that the U.S. conducted at 14-month bombing campaign against portions of Cambodia with only limited briefings of half a dozen congressional leaders.

There were indications that Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's adviser on national security affairs, who is deeply involved in efforts to bring about an area-wide Indochina cease-fire, was not pleased with Schlesinger's decision to spell out in public precisely what will be permitted and what will not be permitted after the bombing halt goes into effect.

Kissinger met with Schlesinger at the Pentagon Thursday morning.

Schlesinger's orders to commanders in the field rule out bombing, strafing, the use of helicopter gunships, forward air controllers, reconnaissance, artillery fire control and advisers to Cambodian units on the ground.

The U. S. will, however, continue its military assistance program to Cambodia and the military equipment delivery teams will continue their operations, congress will be told.

The end-to-bombing will not prohibit flights of American supply planes bringing military equipment, domestic goods and humanitarian assistance, according to the Schlesinger ground rules.

The administration has left open a possibility that congress might be asked for permission for a resumption of bombing after the Aug. 15 cut-off date.

Merry Pet

Linda Merry, DVM

Question: Could a little sore on the side of my dog's face make him sick? Snuffy has always been a good eater and very active. Lately he has lost a lot of weight because he doesn't eat much and he just lies around.

The only thing I can find wrong is a little sore by his eye. It healed up once but it is there again now.

Answer: Little sores sometimes have deep roots. In this case I suspect the root of all evil belongs to the upper fourth premolar tooth. This particular tooth is one of the largest in the head, lies almost on a line dropped from the inner corner of the eye, and has three roots.

Veterinarians sometimes think those roots go to China. Actually, one of them goes to the maxillary sinus, a large space between bones extending under the eye. Disease of the roots of this tooth results in a collection of pus and exudate in the sinus.

Under pressure the pus erodes the maxillary bone, breaks through the skin, and creates a chronic dental fistula (the sore you're seeing on Snuffy's face). If the pus drains out awhile, the skin may heal briefly until pressure again caused it to break and the cycle is repeated.

Sometimes a bite or wound over the sinus causes infection that works down to the cheek tooth. More often a fracture of the tooth causes infection that works upward. The funny thing is that the tooth often looks perfectly normal. X-rays may show that it isn't.

Either way, extraction of the tooth is a must if the sore is ever to be healed.

Dental extractions for dogs are done the way people would like to have it — painlessly. The dog is given a general anesthetic and slumbers through the whole procedure. Afterward, he is given antibiotics and within days will have regained his lost appetite and youthful exuberance.

Question: How often do dogs come in heat? My dog is seven months old and still hasn't shown any signs.

Answer: Patience. Most dogs come in heat the first time between six months and one year of age depending on breed. After that they usually cycle every six months.

If you have a question about your pet, send it to The Merry Pet column, in care of the Times-News.

Blaine crash

MR. AND MRS. Albert C. Jones, Birmingham, Ala., escaped injury when the bumper on this pickup was hooked by one driven by Thomas C. Kennedy, Paradise, Calif., as he attempted to pass the vehicle driven by Jones. Both vehicles were towing trailers which came loose and rolled, as did both pickups. Kennedy and Mrs. Marianne Kennedy, a passenger in the vehicle driven by her husband, also escaped injury. Both vehicles were southbound out of Bellevue Thursday morning.

Bicycle riders get citations

TWIN FALLS — Eight citations were issued by Twin Falls city police during July to bicycle riders and numerous warnings given in the city's effort to reduce bicycle accidents.

Police Chief Frank Barnett said his officers were asked in May to begin warning bicycle riders to observe all traffic laws and in July to issue citations.

All eight citations were for riding a bicycle after dark without lights. Many warnings were issued on such things as violating traffic regulations which apply to bicycles as well as motor vehicles.

Barnett said the use of bicycles has increased greatly in the past few years and the numbers of bicycle accidents in the city have also climbed. Officers are not "campaigning against the bicycle riders," Barnett said, but rather are simply enforcing all traffic regulations on the city books.

Barnett said a few years ago anyone over 13 years of age would not be "caught dead" on a bicycle but now bicycles are in fashion and riders range in age from 6 to 60 and older.

He said previously the department worked with the schools and a bicycle safety program in the grade schools reached most of the riders. Now there is no central program which can reach the majority of the bicycle operators. In 1970 there were 12 bicycle accidents with injuries in Twin Falls. This increased to 19 in 1971 and to 28 in 1972.

Barnett said almost all bicycle accidents involve injuries because they nearly always involve an automobile and a bicycle.

He said statistics at the department show accidents in June this year almost doubled over last year. There were four in June, 1972, and seven this year. In the first seven months of 1972 there were 13 and in the first seven months of 1973 there were 15 accidents.

The police chief said it is too early to determine if the greater effort toward enforcement of traffic regulations for bicycles will cut down the accident rate, but officers feel it will.

August and September are usually heavy bicycle accident months, he said.

A number of warnings have been issued the owners of unlicensed bicycles. Barnett said all bicycles owned by residents of the city of Twin Falls and operated on city streets or roadways must be licensed. The licenses may be obtained at a $1 fee for the life of the bicycle and are available from the Twin Falls Fire Department.

Protest set

BURLEY — The horse races at the Cassia County fair and rodeo may be restricted to straightaway contests only this year.

The Idaho State Horse Racing Commission sent fair officials a letter last week stating that "in the best interests of safety," races in Malad, Rupert and Burley will be restricted to straightaway only in 1973.

Representatives of the Minidoka and Cassia County fair boards, along with their attorneys will meet with the state commission in Boise Monday to protest the ruling.

"I don't know for sure where we stand," Cassia County Fair Board member Jack Funk said. "We've already passed inspection, and there have been no accidents on either the Burley or the Rupert track," Funk said.

Races were held during the Rupert 4th of July celebration on the oval track. Annual parimutual horse races are scheduled to begin Aug. 16 at the Cassia County fair and rodeo.

Irish killings reported

BELFAST (UPI) — A gunman shot and seriously wounded a man in the crowded streets of Dungannon, 35 miles west of Belfast, Saturday. South of the border Irish troops shot a 17-year-old Belfast youth when he fled from a checkpoint.

In Belfast police broadcast a warning to shopkeepers to check their premises following the firebombing of four stores Friday.

Armed police chased the Dungannon gunman but he escaped into crowds of shoppers and got away in a car. Police said the getaway car later was found burned out outside the town.

The youth wounded by Irish soldiers at a checkpoint in Navan, 55 miles north of Dublin, was driving south in a northern registered car, Irish police said. When he saw the checkpoint he jumped out and ran toward nearby woods. He was shot and wounded when he refused to stop, the police spokesman said.

An Irish Army explosives expert blew open the luggage trunk of his car, but nothing was found, the police said.

GF TOPS, KOPS clubs show gain

GLENN'S FERRY — TOPS showed a loss of nine pounds, and a gain of 9 1/2 pounds at the Thursday-evening meeting at Greer Hall.

KOPS showed a gain of 3 1/2 pounds without any loss.

Mrs. Oral Irving was named TOPPER of the month of July and had her picture taken in the purple royal robe and silver crown by the leader, Mrs. Don Anderson.

Mrs. Lois Clark was chosen TOPPER of the week and had her picture taken. Mrs. Irving and Mrs. Anderson were presented perfect attendance bracelet charm awards for the past three months.

Mrs. Irving also received an award for the greatest weight loss, 12 1/2 pounds in the past three months. Mrs. Mildred Carnahan was named for second place for a five pound loss.

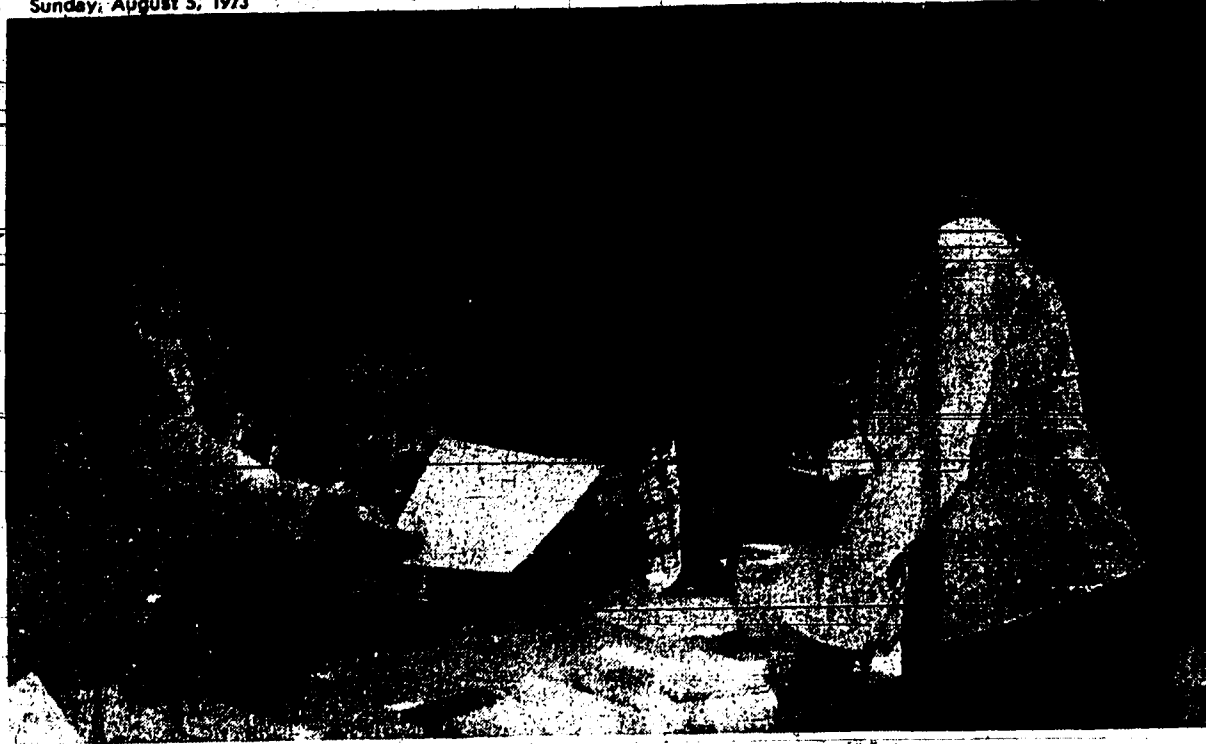

Mrs. Irving was named the winner for the weight contest covering the past two months and received a prize of a hanging basket.

Mrs. Rose Shook received the Ha Ha box. Vicki Reed of Hammett was a guest at the meeting.

Mrs. Clark was appointed by Mrs. Anderson to prepare a new contest to begin at the next meeting, Aug. 10 at Greer Hall at 7 p.m. with weigh-in at 6:30.

CSI host to Laurel conference

TWIN FALLS — About 400 LDS girls ages 17-18 attended a Laurel conference on the College of Southern Idaho campus Thursday through Saturday.

Those attending were housed in the homes of local church members, according to Mrs. Katherine Cook, Twin Falls, chairman of the adult central planning committee.

The girls from southern Idaho and eastern Oregon attended workshop sessions conducted, "to acquaint them with knowledge about life in general," according to Mrs. Cook.

Sessions included study of clothing, diet and cooking, child care and other homemaking topics, dating, LDS Church prophecy and gospel, prayer, faith and marriage.

Thursday night a musical program was presented in the Fine Arts Auditorium by Broadway singer Melva Niles and Friday night LDS Church authority Elder S. Dilworth Young spoke to the group.

Events concluded Saturday with a sunrise testimony meeting and a brunch.

Other adult committee members were Mrs. Francine Condie, Rupert; Mrs. May Swigert, Caldwell, and Mrs. Faye Neves, Boise.

Laurel launching committee members were Margo Jensen, Caldwell, chairman; Mona Morrison, Twin Falls, secretary; Mary Anderson, Glenn's Ferry; Eileen Pratt, Boise, and Donna May, Rupert.

Youth assists theatre

TWIN FALLS — Martin Wright, well known youthful musician from Murtaugh, is putting his many talents to practice this summer as musical director of the Antique Festival Theatre.

He sings in the quartet in "The Streets of New York", which will be presented in the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. Aug. 15, sponsored as a benefit performance by the Twin Falls Mental Health Association.

Graduating last spring as valedictorian of the Murtaugh High School, Wright has studied piano for 12 years, the last six with Teala Bellini, Twin Falls. He is a voice student of Sharon Roswell, Murtaugh.

Now on a $350 scholarship to the Antique Festival Theatre, this summer his duties as musical director include arranging for different instruments, choosing the instruments and directing rehearsals and performers.

His main instrument will be an oldtime pump organ, but guitar, banjo, zither, recorders and flutes are also used in the summer repertory.

Arranging is nothing new for young Wright for he has assisted in arranging several songs with Brenda Sudweeks. They wrote songs for a group of five vocalists called "Family Portrait" which sang for two years in Magic Valley.

He has done several arrangements for band and swing choir, and a few numbers for mixed instrumental and vocal groups as well. He also has done much accompanying and has been church organist since he was 10 years old.

Wright won the youth auditions in voice and has sung with the Idaho State University Civic Symphony, Pocatello, and was piano soloist with the Magic Valley Symphony orchestra here last spring.

He had a part in "Carmen" production here last fall which was mostly vocal dialogue and when another actor became ill, he played both roles during the opera performances.

He plans on attending BYU this fall and has a $1,000 academic scholarship to major in voice and piano.

How much does electric water heating really cost?

Would you believe $3.93 a month?

Nobody knows your family's exact water heating cost, as it varies from day to day and month to month with changing hot water use. The facts below are based upon a University of Illinois study* which reports that use of 1500 gallons, would require 430 kilowatt-hours of electricity.

FACT No. 1.
In 1972 Idaho Power's average residential customer used 918 kilowatt-hours of electricity per month at a cost of $15.37

FACT No. 2.
If he did not have electric water heating, thereby removing 430 kilowatt-hours of use, his bill for the remaining 488 kilowatt-hours would have been $11.44

FACT No. 3.
This makes the difference in cost for water heating $3.93

Chicano teacher intern working on bi-lingual textbook in TF

By BART E. QUESNELL
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Dan Duarte says he is probably the first Chicano in a professional role as a teacher in Twin Falls. He is also probably one of the few to be working on a children's bi-lingual text book which he soon hopes to publish. As an intern in the Idaho teachers' CIP, Duarte has been assigned to teach at Bicket School where he estimates Chicano children comprise nearly one-third of the student population which runs through grade six. Along with eight other interns out of the 40 throughout the state, Duarte has chosen to concentrate on Chicano curriculum development. He hopes to get through to and educate migrant children as well as local Chicano children who often find themselves in a strange situation surrounded by English speaking peers. "Chicano is inclusive of Spanish, Spanish American, Mexican, Latin or whatever else name people have attached to Spanish speaking people," Duarte said. "Chicano has become an identification around which the lower classes can rally. It used to be derogatory almost like the term nigger to many upper level Mexicans but gradually it has become a name everyone can identify with." There are some Mexicans in Twin Falls he said, however, who think of the word Chicano as bad and who hate anyone who goes by the term. "I am trying to make the Chicano aware of his culture," Duarte said. "Most Chicanos come here without pride or self confidence. I am trying to bring something out of these kids to become interested in things and to appreciate their accomplishments. He admits that several times during classes discussions will branch off into several terms that Chicano students just can't understand. Duarte will speak a few words of Spanish and the students comprehend immediately. "They really get off," Duarte said of his Chicano students. "that another Chicano is up there speaking to them in Spanish. The English speaking students perk right up too and start asking, what did you say. Sometimes I draw diagrams using bi-lingual terms on the board and the whole class gets interested and stays alert." Interns like Duarte are being 90 per cent federally funded. The other 10 per cent comes from the local school district according to Duarte. Other teachers with the corps are earning degrees in their special fields while they teach. The classroom experience bolsters each person's experience so they can take over a full-time teaching job after they get their degree. Often, according to Duarte, the school district will offer interns a job similar to or exactly what they have been doing. Working with another fellow intern, Trent Orr, stationed in Arco, Duarte has managed to illustrate and accompany with text part of a children's bi-lingual book. The storyline is simple — the complete day of a Chicano child. The pair have completed the morning and afternoon of the child's day. The text calls for an evening part which is still unwritten.

The goal of the book is to increase the reading vocabulary of the Chicano who may be behind in school. Duarte is tinkering with the idea of using flip cards to warn the students up before they take up the text. Duarte hopes the book can be used to help Chicanos in Twin Falls as well as in Burley, Rupert and the few Chicanos in American Falls. Much of the text is related to the immediate area which Duarte feels will increase the Chicano empathy with the character. "I'm trying to get the Chicano to retain his first language as he learns a second," Duarte said. "Many of the local people have lost all their Spanish and done well in English." Once the Chicano begins to have pride in his language the pride in his culture will build, according to Duarte.

Rice harvesting risky in Mekong

By DAVID K. SHPLER
(c) New York Times
News Service

LONG TIEN, South Vietnam — For the farmers of this village in the Mekong Delta harvesting rice is still a risky business, as it has been for years.

The level of fighting has dropped sharply here in the last few months, but the vast sea of rich green rice paddies remains treacherous.

Booby traps — usually grenades triggered by trip wires — are still hidden in the fields. A man who goes to work on his land never knows when he might be caught in an artillery barrage or a skirmish between the Vietcong and the South Vietnamese Army.

Nevertheless, the peasants risk their lives daily to take in their crops. Many work even while artillery shells explode only a few hundred yards away.

A farmer squinted out over the fields and said, "If every time you hear the noise you go home, you will be home all the year."

Artillery fire is a part of the battle of flags which has been puttering on since the January cease-fire. The Vietcong once raised two of their flags on tall poles at the top of the tallest trees in a line of woods across a sweep of paddies. Nearby a South Vietnamese government flag flew.

"We have a man who is an expert at shooting down flags," said a South Vietnamese soldier who patrols the road. Recently, he said, his regiment shot down three Vietcong flags with a .57-MM recoilless rifle.

"The communists try to put up flags," the young officer complained, and also guerrillas try to locate our positions, and they use slingshots to deliver grenades to our positions and then run away. They never stand and fight. Why did the other side sign the truce agreement and keep fighting?"

The South Vietnamese army

sent an additional regiment into the area two or three months ago, and since then government control of the region — at least along the major roads — appears to have increased.

The dirt road that runs through Long Tien still bears gaping holes where land mines exploded, but the road is now busy with traffic, testifying to its relative safety. Army officers say that Vietcong snipers no longer shoot at buses.

A farmer, commenting on the army's rather casual artillery bombardment of Vietcong flags, observed that when such flags were put up a year ago, "there would be planes dropping bombs, artillery fire all the night, and the gunfire was like the winter rain."

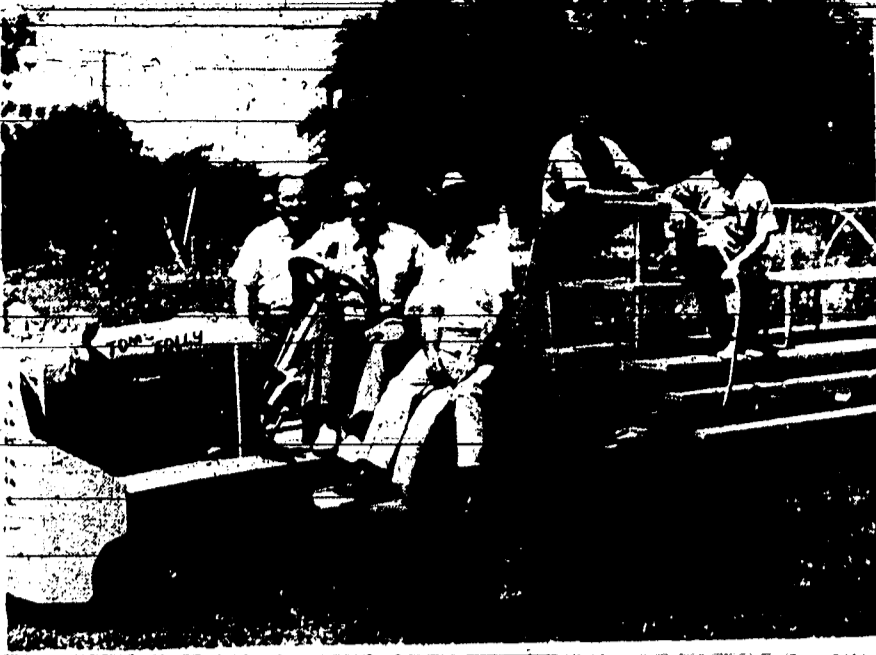

Dinh Tuong Province, where Long Tien is, has been a focal point of the war in the Delta. It is one of the most fertile and heavily populated provinces, and it flanks Route 4, the main highway linking Saigon with the rich rice-growing regions.

Here and in Chuong Thien Province, to the south, the Vietcong and North Vietnamese made a substantial military effort last year.

Now, officials report, the North Vietnamese fifth division, which had been in active combat since the spring of 1972, has pulled back into Cambodia. It is believed to be greatly depleted after long months of fighting. After it left Dinh Tuong a few months ago to join the battle for Hong Ngu, near the Cambodian border, the officials say, it never returned.

Government forces are visibly present in much of the province now, and while it is impossible to ascertain the extent of government and Vietcong control in areas far from the roads, the roads themselves are so firmly in government hands that no one hesitates to drive into the province from Saigon.

South Vietnamese Army Engineers have begun widening and repairing stretches of road linking farms and markets, and additional army outposts are being built. "The situation gets better and better," a soldier remarked.

First ride

Mini-train readied for TF county fairgrounds

By MARJORIE LIERMAN
Times-News writer

FILER — A mini-train "Tom's Folly" was displayed publicly for the first time Tuesday at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds. The train will be used this fall during the Twin Falls County Fair Sept. 4-8 to transport aged and handicapped people around the fairgrounds and also to take people from the parking area to the fairgrounds center.

The motorized carrier consists of the tractor-engine and three open cars or carriers. It was purchased by the Twin Falls County commissioners last summer in Boise from surplus commodities and was formerly used at an air force base.

The train was over-hauled and painted in bright colors of cerise, green blue and yellow.

Each car will hold about 16 people or 48 on the entire train. It will run all day long during fair time, according to Tom Shouse, secretary-manager, who added that this year's fair is dedicated to the Senior Citizens of the area and is an appropriate time to inaugurate this new carrier for their convenience as well as all people attending the fair.

Fruit exhibit deadline given

FILER — All exhibits in the fruits department of the Twin Falls County Fair Sept. 4-8 must be in place at the time of the fair opening.

All exhibits must remain in place until counted by the judges, and all exhibits must be claimed by the exhibitor. There are to be no auction sales at the close of the fair.

Exhibitors are urged to make their exhibits early, according to Cecil Calhoun, superintendent. Entries will close at 6 p.m. Sept. 3 and judging will begin at 10 a.m. Sept. 4.

A plate of apples, peaches and pears shall be five specimens. Grapes shall be four clusters; plums, prunes and like seed fruit ten specimens, and nuts, ten specimens.

Horse show Livestock Wednesday at Gooding

GOODING — The Gooding County Fair AQHA, IQHA and IQHBA approved Quarter horse show will begin at 8 a.m. Wednesday at the Gooding County fairgrounds.

Halter classes are first on the schedule to be followed by youth and adult performance classes. Dr. Raymond Gustafson, Conrad, Mont., will judge all classes.

Trophies will be awarded to first place winners. Ribbons will be given to fourth place in all classes and to sixth place in young classes. An all-around youth trophy will be awarded to the youth earning the most points in performance events. There will be two runner-up trophies awarded, one in each age division.

In the adult division, an all-around performance horse trophy will be awarded to the horse earning the most points.

Standard Oil supports Arabs

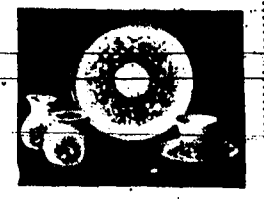

(c) Chicago Daily News
LOS ANGELES—Standard Oil Co. of California has set off a flap with a letter asking stockholders and employees to support "the aspirations of the Arab people" in the Middle East.
 "As an American and as a Jew I am shocked and dismayed," Edward Sanders, president of the Jewish Federation Council of Greater Los Angeles, said in a statement issued by his office.
 In an interview, Sanders said he still had a tankful of Standard gas in his car and a Standard credit card, but he'd decide what to do with it only after Standard board chairman Otto N. Miller decides whether to "send out a new letter."

"If he doesn't, we as a community will consider what he will do next," Sanders said.
 In San Francisco, Standard spokesman Guy Caruthers told the Chicago Daily News the most reaction to the letter has been from newsmen seeking more information and that he has received no objections from the Jewish community. He added that he felt Miller's letter may have been misunderstood since little emphasis was placed on two final paragraphs:
 "We must acknowledge the legitimate interests of all of the peoples of the Middle East and help them achieve security and a dependable economic future."
 "It is in our mutual interest to encourage a United States government course which recognizes the importance of these objectives to the future of all of us — a course which above all seeks a peaceful and just settlement of conflicting viewpoints."

 Sanders declared that Miller failed to mention Israel specifically in his letter which he said "seems to call for an unwarranted and irresponsible interference with stated American foreign policy objectives in the Middle East."

"The letter raises serious ethical and moral questions as to the utilization of vast profit-making organizations to influence American foreign policy," he said. "We do not see the same concern expressed by Mr. Miller for the legitimate aspirations of the people of Israel."

Space book, movie rerun in real life

By ARTHUR J. SNIDER
 (c) Chicago Daily News
 Martin Caidin envisioned it in print first when he wrote "Marooned" (later made into a movie), a chilling story of three astronauts in an orbiting laboratory.
 Mission Control, noting physical deterioration in the men, ordered a return to Earth but the re-entry rocket was faulty. A new, untested type of vehicle was dispatched for the rescue. That was in the book.
 Skylab 2's problems are well upstream from "Marooned" but some parallels are evident. Cape Kennedy has gone into a "rescue mode" and has begun to prepare Skylab 3 as a lifeboat.
 It will be ready for launch in 35 to 45 days, well within the life-support capabilities of the orbiting workshop which is stocked with three months of food and fuel.
 Two members of Skylab 3 crew, Gerald Carr and William Pogue, would dock the rescue ship in the second port hole of the workshop and five men would return to earth.
 The rescue craft will have been reconfigured by removal of stowage lockers and addition of two new couches and personal oxygen kits.
 Rescue of stranded astronauts is one of three options open to the space agency.
 Another is to fly the crippled ferry back to Earth, trusting that the two functioning guidance thrusters will carry the astronauts safely through the atmosphere.
 The third is to proceed with the mission as scheduled while experts on the ground attempt to determine what caused the two faulty guidance thrusters on the command module to begin leaking.
 NASA is currently exercising the third option, secure in the conviction that should either of the other two thrusters fail, the rescue capability will insure that the astronauts would not be stranded.

 How does the author of "Marooned" feel when he sees the possibility of a real-life portrayal of his work of fiction?
 "Frankly, there is a feeling of calm about it," said Caidin in a telephone interview from his home in Cocoa Beach, Fla. "I'm not surprised."
 "Marooned" keeps repeating itself. It occurred in Apollo 13. Jim Lovell, having seen the movie, told me that in the Apollo 13 catastrophe he had the feeling of having been there once before.
 "If you do your homework carefully and extrapolate a situation, there are only so many ways it can come to life, if it does."
 What does Caidin extrapolate out of the present situation?
 "Russia has probably offered her assistance," he replied, "but it is very doubtful that NASA will accept it. Only if the current situation degrades much more seriously would the Russian offer become critical."
 "What if the rescue mission of the converted Skylab fails? At that point Russian assistance becomes a matter of life or death. There is no question in my mind that the Russians are preparing one or more Soyuz spacecraft for just that eventuality."
 What if the U.S. rescue effort fails and the Russians are unable to effect a rescue mission?
 "There are several options. One, getting a crash program under way to put a Saturn-1-B on the line, the 1-B booster that is now being prepared for flight in the U.S.-Russian linkup in 1975. The chances seem slim but NASA always has been able to pull out miracles before."
 "There is always the capability of sending additional supplies in an unmanned ship to Skylab, carrying food, batteries, oxygen and other critical materials."

If you've decided against electric heat because you were told its operating costs are too high, then chances are you haven't looked into Intertherm's electro-hydronic... HOT WATER HEAT WITHOUT PLUMBING

The question of high operating costs is a burden electric heat has had to bear. But with Intertherm's hot water electric heat, we have managed a solution to this problem. Our heating system follows the principle of ordinary electric resistance heat, than it does the principle of economical hot water heat.
 With almost a half million Intertherm installations under our belt it is simply amazing to us the number of people who write us telling how pleasantly surprised they were of the low operating costs.
 And not only is Intertherm economical, it's also the most comfortable kind of heat you can provide for your own family. That's because it eliminates cold floors and cold drafts. And there is none of that "on-again, off-again" type of heat just unsmooth, even, comfortable heat.
 It's also a healthful heat, now being recommended by allergists all over the nation and in Canada for patients susceptible to combustion gases and "fried dust", caused by the hot heating surfaces of ordinary heating plants.
 And finally, it is so absolutely safe, a child can stuff the flimsiest tissue and gauze into the baseboards without the slightest danger.

I can only tell you with the utmost sincerity, that before you do anything else, before you go through another discomforting winter, look into Intertherm. Write in for literature. We won't have a salesman at your door the next day. Just examine what we have to say, and make your own decision. But do write to us today.

Armed Services panel approves weapons budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Armed Services Committee Friday approved a defense weapons budget $1.5 billion below the Pentagon's request, but restored a major slash in the Trident missile submarine program.

The Trident was saved by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who reversed an earlier accidental — proxy vote against it.

The committee approved a $20.4 billion budget — the same total voted by the House on Tuesday.

The Senate committee's version of the bill included a 7 per cent reduction in the size of the armed forces, cutting the Pentagon's requested 2,232,900-man force size by 156,100 and leaving it up to the Defense Department to decide where the cut should be made.

The weapon procurement bill will go to the Senate floor for debate after the August recess, which began Friday.

The most dramatic action by the committee was its turnaround on the Trident submarine.

On Wednesday the committee voted 8 to 7 to cut $885.4 million from the $1.5 billion Trident program. A few hours later, however, the committee discovered a proxy vote cast by Goldwater had been mistakenly entered in favor of the cut when Goldwater actually wanted to support the full administration request.

As a result, the committee took up the Trident issue again Friday and in an 8 to 7 vote — reflecting Goldwater's switch — restored the full Trident request.

When the weapons and research bill reaches the Senate floor it will face new cutback demands.

Upset over the increasing trend to cut the Pentagon budget, Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger said Wednesday:

"We're into the postwar follies. It is now fashionable, as it has been in the past, to attempt to disestablish the defense establishment of the United States. It is the enchanting illusion of the postwar years that you can cut into fat without cutting into muscle."

Delta Queen approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate gave final congressional approval Friday to legislation to give a new five-year lease on life to the Delta Queen — last paddleboat steamer that carries overnight passengers on the Mississippi.

The bill exempts the Queen for five years from regulations governing fire hazards on ships. The exemption, until Nov. 1, 1978, is intended to allow time for a new ship to be completed to meet the safety standards.

Kent State head welcomes inquiry

GREENSBORO, Vt. (UPI) — Kent State President Glenn A. Olds said Friday he welcomes the new inquiry ordered by Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson to "get all the facts and adjudicate justice" in the 1970 fatal shooting of four university students.

Olds, who just arrived here for a vacation, said he may have to cut short his stay because of Richardson's decision to reopen the investigation.

Olds called Richardson a "man of integrity and intelligence" and said the attorney general probably ordered a new inquiry "to leave no stone unturned in the matter."

"I think it's the wisest step to take," Olds said. "There are still a lot of questions unanswered. Kent State is no longer an event, it's history."

He said any effort to get all the facts and bring justice "is to be commended."

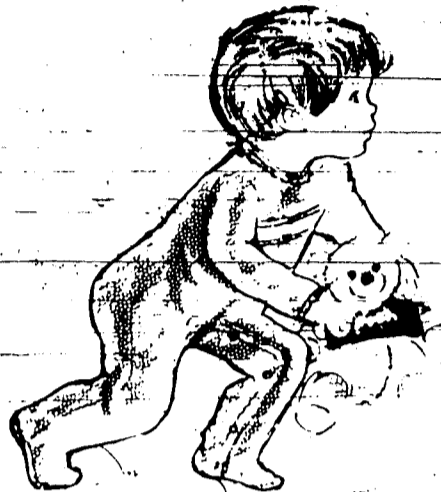

"I welcome this to get all the facts," he said.

Olds, who took over as president of Kent State two years after the shooting by members of the Ohio National Guard, said Watergate has "shattered youths confidence in justice" and the best thing that could happen at Kent State would be to clear the campus shooting matter by getting all the facts.

'Portable housing' gains popularity in TF area

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Attitudes toward mobile home living are changing in Twin Falls County. Zoning boards have responded favorably to increasing requests for mobile homes. More and more persons are turning to "portable housing" as a solution to the high cost of home construction plus increasing taxes and maintenance costs on conventional homes. Mobile homes also fill a need for "instant housing."

Ed Woods, county zoning administrator, says there is another reason too. Many persons, especially retired couples, are selling their houses with large lawns and landscaped areas to buy mobile homes. They can spend their leisure time fishing, golfing or traveling while the mobile home park caretaker mows and irrigates the small lawn.

When a mobile home owner takes a trip, he simply locks the door and drives away knowing the court owner or operator is keeping an eye on his home and his lawn and shrubs will be cared for.

The Twin Falls County assessor's office estimates 700 mobile homes are now in use in Twin Falls County, most of them in courts. This is an increase of about 100 units per year recently.

Statewide there are about 26,000 families in mobile homes, about double the amount in 1970. Ada County with 3,826 estimates seven per cent of its housing is now mobile homes, or one out of every 14 families.

This trend is also moving into Twin Falls County. Within the past month zoning officials have authorized new mobile home courts or expansions which will add about 500 units. Dealers estimate they will fill these within a short time.

One dealer said he has a number of mobile homes sold and still on his lot waiting for developers to complete space where the owners can move them. A month ago not one space was reported available in the county but because the units are portable the situation changes by the week.

Development has been approved by the county for an 80-acre park adjacent to the present Skylane Park south of town. About 100 units will be developed initially in this site by Gordon Beckstead, Twin Falls, and Richard Schneider, Boise.

Skylane is currently adding 35 spaces and several have already been occupied. Keith Sligar has just completed 78 spaces at Hansen and while landscaping is still underway several of these spaces are already occupied. He reports a number of others are waiting to move in.

Lazy-J court, north of the city, has maintained a waiting list for nearly a year and is beginning construction of a new section to include about 75 luxury units. Half will be four double-wide trailers and half for single units.

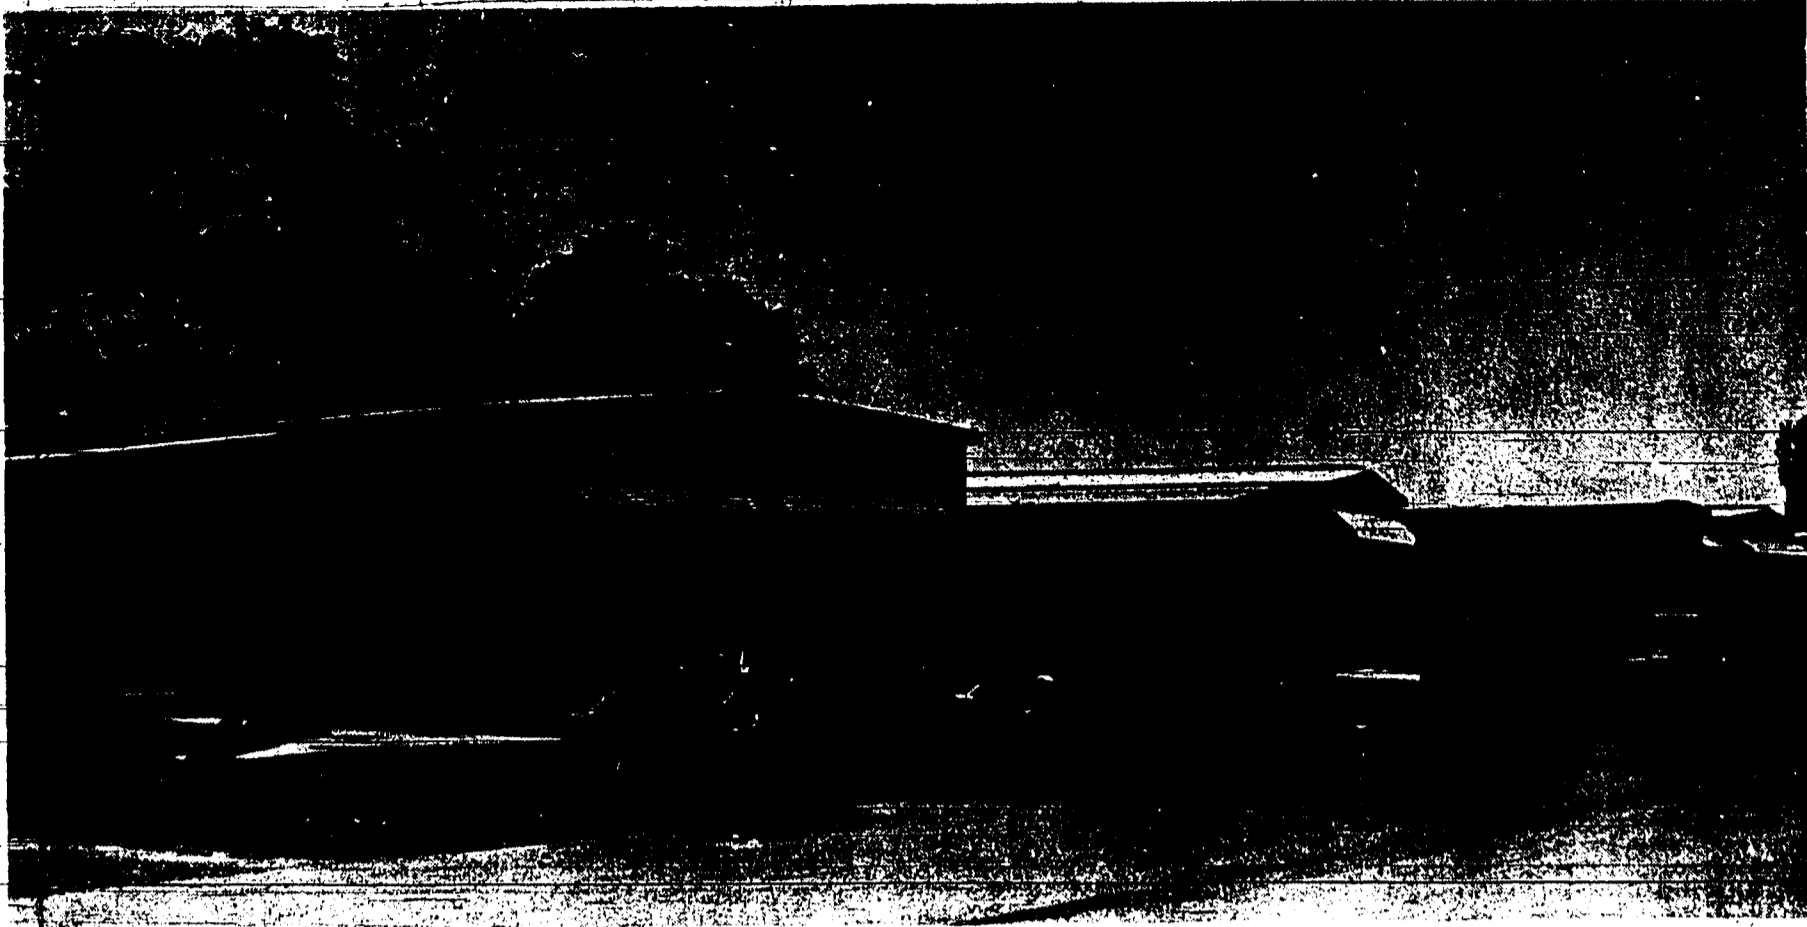

Ross Ward, who has been attempting to start mobile home construction for two years, will soon go ahead with his project on Martin Street and Fuller Avenue.

Robert and Arlie White will build a court near the new K-Mart shopping area on Eastland Drive. About 100 homes can be accommodated.

Another court has been approved on the Bodenstab property northwest of Twin Falls but construction has not been announced.

In its new zoning ordinance, the county has tried to accommodate all mobile home needs by establishing three classifications. In the primary classification, courts in residential zones, only 7 units per acre will be allowed, giving each 12,000 square feet of space or the same as an average residential lot.

In secondary areas, permitted in commercial and industrial zones, 80 per cent of the lots must contain at least 3,000 square feet and 20 per cent may have 2,000 square feet. These areas can accommodate smaller and older mobile homes.

A third classification, permitted only on major highways or near recreational areas, will be for temporary use such as overnight travel trailers and campers.

Woods said he looks for county and city zoning to tighten up on mobile home courts for a while to keep supply in line with demand. He said many persons in the county have discussed converting farm land to trailer parking.

Sanitation pretty well governs this, he said. City and county officials are reluctant to grant mobile home zoning unless the land can be served by sewer systems such as city treatment plants and lines.

Several dealers say more mobile homes would be in use in Twin Falls County had past zoning boards been more willing to permit courts to be constructed. Protests by farmers objecting to high density housing in their agricultural areas has kept some such development out while concern over heavy septic tank use in non-sewered areas has prevented others.

New county zoning will require mobile home courts adjacent to the city to meet rigid city restrictions against the day the city expands and annexes the courts.

Several courts, 10- and 12-year old, have been annexed to the city, bringing with them a number of problems. As mobile homes have gotten larger and larger they have outgrown the spaces in 10-year-old courts.

MR. AND MRS. RICKIE L. BROWN

They now extend into what was once the street, leaving asphalt lawns for the residents and limited one-way drives. They now provide almost no visitor parking space. Wiring has become outdated in some and court facilities overtaxed.

Zoning experts hope to avoid this situation in the future by requiring larger lot space in all new parks.

One dealer says the average mobile home now being sold is 14 feet wide and 70 feet long. Some courts in use today were designed for mobile homes 40 to 50 feet long only and eight to ten feet wide, but they are accommodating the 70 foot lengths of new trailers.

Ed Woods sees yet another problem in the future. "As the mobile home owner trades in his portable housing for newer and better units, are we going to have mobile home wrecking lots?" he asks.

Richfield couple says vows

RICHFIELD — Brenda Susan Johnson became the bride of Rickie LaRae Brown in July 20 rites at the First Baptist Church, Shoshone.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Johnson and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. LaRae Brown, all Richfield.

Rev. Nathan Ware, United Methodist Church, Shoshone, performed the double ring candlelight ceremony before baskets of blue and white gladioli, roses and daisies. Candelabra decorated with big blue bows flanked the altar. Blue bows centered with white carnations marked the pews in the church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown in an empire style fashioned of white crepe over taffeta with an overlay of sheer twinkling satin. Appliques of lace roses and seed pearls adorned the collar, sleeves and skirt.

Her layered fingertip veil was attached to a headpiece of tiny rosette flowers with seed pearl centers. She carried a small cascade bouquet of blue daisies, white roses and baby's breath on a white Bible given to her by her maternal grandparents.

Her jewelry was a heartshaped necklace with a pearl, a gift of the bridegroom, and pearl earrings borrowed from her maid of honor.

Mickey Holland, cousin of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. Colleen Brown, cousin of the bride and the bridegroom, Connie Brown, sister of the bridegroom and Robin Johnson, cousin of the bride, were bridesmaids.

Jodi Hilderbrand, cousin of the bridegroom, was flower girl. The bride's gown and the attendants' dresses were designed by the bride and made by Mrs. Fred Petersen, friend of the family.

David Brown, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Wade Allred, Nick Hubsmith and Jimmy Brown, cousin of the bride and the bridegroom. Johnny Heck, Twin Falls, cousin of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

Candlelighters were Rod Johnson, brother of the bride, and Shane Gill, cousin of the bride. Mrs. Tom Farnworth, Carey, was soloist and DeAnn Dixon, Hunt, was organist. Luann Edwards registered the guests.

The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church. The hall was decorated in shades of blue.

The brides' table was covered with a dark blue satin cloth with a white lace overlay trimmed with blue bows and carnation centers. The three tiered cake was decorated with blue roses and white doves on blue ruffled net. A miniature bridal couple under a lace archway was placed on top of the cake.

Candelabra with blue candles surrounded at the base with floral arrangements of blue and white daisies flanked the cake. The couple lit a memory candle before cutting the cake.

Guests were seated at quartet tables covered with light blue satin with white lace overlays. Small blue candles with blue and white daisies surrounding the base were placed in the center of the tables.

The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Jim Brown Jr., aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Dawn Stirton, aunt of the bridegroom. Mrs. Nadine Hilderbrand, aunt of the bridegroom, served frappe and Mrs. Odell Chaffield, Jerome, aunt of the bride, poured coffee. The flower girl passed out thank you scrolls to the guests.

Mrs. Mike Swainston, Ketchum, cousin of the bride, and bridegroom was in charge of the gift tables. She was assisted by Mrs. Dennis Gubler, Dublin, Ga., cousin of the bride and Mrs. John Heck, Twin Falls, aunt of the bridegroom. Pam and Kim Heck, Twin Falls, and Tammy Holland, all cousins of the bridegroom, were gift bearers.

Honored guests were grandparents of the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Wayment Burley; Mrs. Martha Heck, Twin Falls, and Mrs. and Mrs. Jim Brown Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Johnson. Guests attended from Dublin, Ga., Ogden, Utah; Twin Falls, Carey, Jerome, Dietrich, Eden, Fairfield; Burley, Ketchum and Shoshone.

A pre-nuptial shower honoring the bride was given by Mickey Holland, Colleen Brown, Connie Brown and Mrs. Mike Swainston.

The bridegroom's parents were hosts for a rehearsal dinner at Shoshone Park.

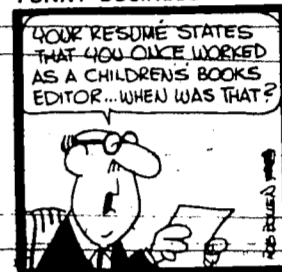

Following a wedding trip to Sun Valley, the couple resides at Rt. 1, Hillcrest Rd., Twin Falls.

Registration set

RUPERT — Mrs. Pat Welmer's kindergarten, located in the St. Nicholas school in Rupert, will hold registration Aug. 13 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. There is a $5 registration fee.

Sir Reginald kept that British stiff upper lip and stood for the redouble. Things wouldn't have been too bad if spades had been led, but West opened the king of hearts and shifted to a club. East won the jack and led back a heart to West's ace. A second club picked up North's king whereupon East cashed the last high club and finally led a spade.

Reggie rose with the king. West took the ace, cashed the last two clubs and gave his partner the rest of the tricks with a spade lead to pick up a nice comfortable 3400 points.

Our nameless hero was not fazed. He remarked, "My bidding wasn't that bad. I could have saved five tricks in the play by holding my king of spades."

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our brother is 21. He just graduated from college, and has a job that pays him $100 a week. Brother wants to live at home with our parents. They think it will teach Brother a sense of responsibility if he pays them $75 a month for his room and board.

Since Brother is the oldest of six children, what goes for him will probably go for the rest of us.

We don't think children should have to pay to live with someone they love.

Our whole family would like to know how you feel about this. THE OTHER KIDS

DEAR KIDS: How long should an able-bodied, gainfully employed 21-year-old expect to live with Mama and Papa for free? Six months? A year? Forever? Circumstances and opinions differ in all families, however, reasonable people should be able to agree to terms that will satisfy both the lover and the lovees.

Should kids pay own way?

DEAR ABBY: I am a 20-year-old girl, living alone. I date a guy who is 20 and lives at home. He called and some relatives had come in from out of town and wanted to stay all night, but they were short of room at his house so he told his mother he would sleep at a friend's house. Well, the "friend" happened to be me.

When he asked if he could sleep here, I said: "Sure," thinking I'd put him up on the sofa. When it became apparent that he thought he was going to share my bed, I said: "Nothing doing."

He said I was "undersexed" and I threw him out of the house. He hasn't called me since.

Am I undersexed? LINDA

DEAR LINDA: No. He's over optimistic.

DEAR ABBY: A mother wrote that her daughter wanted to be married in the park by a justice of the peace. She says her daughter doesn't believe in anything, and neither does the young man. Your answer was absolutely right. A civil ceremony is the only appropriate one.

What puzzles so many of the clergy today is why so many people completely ignore the church, but when it comes to being married and buried, they want a minister.

I am a retired Episcopal priest and admit that I have officiated at many such weddings and funerals, but I am still not sure whether I was showing Christian charity or moral cowardice by doing so. EPISCOPALIAN PRIEST

DEAR PRIEST: I would be inclined to say you showed Christian charity.

DEAR ABBY: You had a phrase in your column which fits me to a "T." People who are "terrific in bed, but lousy otherwise."

My husband picked me up on a street corner. I was 18, and looking for adventure. He had just been discharged from the Army after three years in Europe; and was looking for some excitement. We didn't waste much time getting to know each other. I was amazed at his virility, and he was flattered by my honest need for him.

To make a long story short, we were married, but because I was such a pushover from the beginning, he never really trusted me out of his sight.

Thank heavens we could afford domestic help, because I was the world's worst cook. My talent was in the bedroom. After 27 years, it still is.

My husband is afraid if he loses his virility, I'll leave him for a younger man, and I'm afraid when his sexual appetite tapers off, he won't want me anymore because that's all I'm good for.

So, take it from a woman whose only talent is in the bedroom. It's not enough. BEEN THERE

Church of Nazarene rites unite couple

FILER - Sherry Lynn Maxwell and Rodney W. Stearns were married in July 20 rites at the Church of the Nazarene in Filer.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob D. Maxwell, Filer, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade F. Stearns, Nampa.

The Rev. Romone Banderpool, Kent, Wash., uncle of the bridegroom, and Rev. Gernie Iwerson, Filer, conducted the double ring ceremony. The church was decorated with two candelabra holding green candles and baskets of mixed flowers.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with lace overlay, ruffled sleeves, scalloped neckline and ruffled hem. The gown was designed by the bride who made her seven foot lace and pearl trimmed veil. She was given in marriage by her father.

She carried a handkerchief that belonged to her great-grandmother. She wore a cross necklace given to her by the bridegroom. Her bouquet of rainbow colored daisies had a white orchid center which she wore as a going away corsage.

Denise Shaub, Buhl, was maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Brenda Cullinan, Twin Falls, cousin of the bride.

Ron Maxwell, Filer, was best man. Murray Todd and Rick Humphrey were ushers. John Wydick, Sacramento, Calif., was groomsmen. Kevin Iwerson, Filer, was ringbearer and Lori Maxwell, sister of the bride, was flower girl.

Mrs. Ralph Maxwell, aunt of the bride, was organist. Mrs. Clyde Wright and Ronnie Wright, Filer, were in charge of flowers.

The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony in the church parlors.

The bride's table was covered with a pink cloth and had a green skirt. It was centered with a three tiered wedding cake topped with bells. Heart shaped cakes with the bridal couple's names on them flanked the cake. Multicolored mints, nuts and a silver service completed the table setting.

Launa Harp, Buhl, and Peggy Ainsworth, Filer, cared for gifts. Linda Buschhorn, aunt of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

Beth and Suzanne Schuyler, Pat Lyda, Sherry Iwerson and Mary Pat and Cheryl Stearns, Sisters of the bridegroom, served refreshments.

The bridegroom's parents were hosts for a rehearsal dinner at the Depot Grill.

The bride was honored at a miscellaneous and lingerie shower preceding the wedding.

Following a wedding trip to Canada, the couple will reside in Boise where both will attend Boise State College.

Miss Heath, Kerner marry

SHOSHONE — Velda Heath, Shoshone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Violet Floyd, Buhl, and the late Edwin Heath, became the bride of Dale E. Kerner, July 28 at Shoshone.

Kerner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Kerner, Shoshone. The Rev. Nathan Ware, Shoshone Methodist minister, performed the double-ring ceremony before baskets of white gladioli, yellow mums and a large mint green ribbon bow. Other decorations on either side of the altar were wrought iron candelabra with alternating yellow and mint green tapers.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Don Engman, Shoshone, the bride wore a white floor-length gown of bridal satin featuring an empire waist, long sleeves of lace, wide matching lace around the high neckline and down each side of the front of the skirt.

A chapel train of white satin was fastened at the waist. The gown was made by Mrs. Tony Palacio, North Shoshone.

The bride's shoulder-length veil was of fine net, attached to a tiara of nylon and sculptured lace heart-shaped petals trimmed with pearls. It was made by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Clarence Heath, Shoshone.

The bridal bouquet was of hanging green and white carnations and spider mums arranged around a center of yellow rosebuds and had long white ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Dale Connell, Shoshone, sister of the bride, was matron of honor.

Kathy Stowell and Vicky Simpson, both Shoshone, were bridesmaids.

Randy Bryant was best man and attendants were Kent Green and Rick Peak, all Shoshone. They also served as candle lighters.

Donna Kerner, Shoshone, sister of the bridegroom, was flower girl and Gene Colter, Northeast Gooding, cousin of the bridegroom, carried the rings on a white satin heart-shaped pillow made also by Mrs. Clarence Heath.

Mrs. Ferrell Carraway, Shoshone, was organist and Mrs. Lawrence LaRue, Wendell, cousin of the bridegroom, was soloist.

A reception was held at the Wood River Center Grange after the wedding. The serving table was covered with white lace over yellow.

A white three-tier wedding cake had a base of four small cakes. It was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom under an archway of white satin leaves and yellow daisy trim.

The applesauce and nut cake had other decorations of yellow flowers and mint green leaves and was made by Mrs. Gordon Sorensen, North Shoshone. Other decorations on the table were green tapered candles.

Quartet tables were covered with white and had centerpieces of floating yellow roses on green water in snifters.

The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Clarence Heath, Shoshone, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. William Kerner Sr., Shoshone, aunt of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Carl Kerner, aunt of the bridegroom, attended the green punch bowl, and Mrs. Jerry Anderson, Gooding, aunt of the bride, poured coffee.

Assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. William Varin, Mrs. Tom Lowman Sr. and Mrs. Kenneth Colter, all Gooding, and Mrs. Oscar Kerner, Shoshone, all aunts of the bridegroom.

Kathy Mullinex, Twin Falls, cousin of the bride, registered guests. In care of the gift table were Kathleen Kerner, Shoshone, a cousin of the bridegroom, Ann Struchen and Jane Clark, both Shoshone.

The couple went to Newport, Ore. and along the Oregon and Washington coast to Seattle and then to Montana.

The new Mrs. Kerner attended Shoshone High School and plans to continue her high school education this fall.

Mr. Kerner is a 1973 graduate of Shoshone High School. The couple are at home at Rt. 1, Box 155, Shoshone, where they are engaged in farming with his father.

A personal shower was given for the bride by Mrs. Rick Connell and Mrs. Dale Connell prior to the wedding.

A bachelor party for the bridegroom was held at the Charles Green home by the bridegroom's wedding party attendants.

Special guests at the wedding were her grandmother, Mrs. Sylvia Heath, Shoshone, and his great uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gee, Gooding. Other relatives and friends attended from Welter, Pocatello, Twin Falls, Gooding, Wendell, Jerome, Dietrich, King Hill, Castleford and other communities in Magic Valley. Boyd King and Keith Kennoy, both Richfield, provided guitar numbers and singing for dancing at the reception.

Fashionettes

By United Press International
When buying shoes, fit is first.

Have pants had it with the girls heading back to school? Some fashion seers say the student in a skirt no longer will be in the minority in the classroom—as was the case in many schools last academic year.

For party time there's no argument about the skirt length for the little girls. Long dresses of gingham or calico score everywhere.

Blue jeans are so neatened that it's hard to tell them from dress pants. The blue jean shape, at least, comes in plaids, stripes and solids other than blue.

Little girls this fall will flaunt their shiny patent-leather straps on Sunday-go-to-meeting occasions. Or else they'll keep up with big sister in their nearly grown-up pumps, bowed at the throat with a golden rand sparking the toe and heel.

Kids have tried to make the clog their exclusive domain ever since they borrowed it from their elders.

Couple weds in home rites

GLENN'S FERRY — Anne Marie Woolen and George Hilton Bowman were married July 20 at the home of the bridegroom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Nadeau, Boise.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Woolen, Glenna, Ferry, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Bowman, Boise.

The 8 p.m. double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. D. E. Smith, Methodist Church, in a garden setting with a scenic bridge, statues and masses of flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose an egg shell white satin floor length dress, trimmed with lace. It featured an empire waist line, a high neck long sleeves and a long train. The dress was made by Mrs. Trudy Ham, Boise.

She carried a bouquet of white daisies and yellow rosebuds.

Paula Woolen, Boise, sister of the bride, was maid of honor.

Ronald Jones, Boise, was best man.

The bride's table at the reception following the ceremony was covered with white linen cloth trimmed with lace and centered with a three tiered cake decorated with yellow and blue roses and wedding bells.

A miniature bridal couple topped the cake. It was flanked by yellow candles.

The room was decorated with baskets of old fashioned flowers.

The cake was cut and served by Sally Jilek, Boise, cousin of the bridegroom. Sue Ann Lenninger, Boise, former Glenns Ferry resident, served punch. Carrie Jo Yocum, Nampa, cousin of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

Following a honeymoon trip to Canada, the couple resides at 4703 Kootenai Street, Boise.

The bridegroom attended Boise Schools and served for four years in the U. S. Navy. He is employed by his father at a service station in Boise.

The bride is a graduate of Glenns Ferry High School, attended Idaho State one year and has been employed in an Albertson store office, Boise.

MARY JOHNSON plans rites

TWIN FALLS — Dr. and Mrs. Zach Johnson, Salmon, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Margaret, to Douglas Borah, Twin Falls.

Borah is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett M. Borah, Twin Falls.

Miss Johnson was graduated from Boise State College and is employed as a registered nurse at St. Alphonsus Hospital, Boise.

Borah is majoring in criminal justice administration at Boise State College.

The couple plans an Aug. 25 wedding in Salmon.

Temple rites set in August

SPRINGDALE — Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Baker, Springdale, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriages of their daughter Cheryl, to Dale Johnson, Provo, Utah.

Johnson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl W. Johnson, Provo.

Miss Baker is a graduate of Burley High School and has been attending Brigham Young University, Provo. Johnson is a student at BYU and has filled an LDS Church mission to Brazil.

The couple plans an Aug. 9 wedding in the Salt Lake City LDS Temple. A reception is planned for Aug. 10 at the Springdale Ward LDS Cultural Hall from 8 to 10 p.m.

Couple recites vows

FILER — Cindi Hadley and Larry Meyer were united in marriage July 22 in the Clover Trinity Lutheran Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hadley and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Meyer, all Filer.

MR. AND MRS. LARRY MEYER

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. T. D. Johnston before background decorations of altar cases of colored daisies and large white baskets of chrysanthemums and colored daisies. The candelabra were decorated with white daisies and green foliage.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of sequined acetate and nylon. Chantilace formed the full sleeves, basque bodice and bustle effect skirt over lace-edged ruffles that swept to a chapel train.

She carried a handkerchief belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. Adam Tipton, and wore a string of pearls, a gift from her grandmother. Her earrings were borrowed from Mrs. Robert Hainline, Torrance, Calif., aunt of the bride. She carried a bouquet of daisies in colors of pink, blue, yellow and green with matching ribbons.

Mrs. Judy Hardey, Caldwell, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Rogene Meyer, sister of the bridegroom, and Linda Danos, Teresa Tipton, cousin of the bride, was flower girl and Brian Nice, Kenniwick, Wash., was ring-bearer.

Glen Meyer, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Mike and Steve Hadley, brothers of the bride. Rick Tipton, cousin of the bride, and Shirley Meyer, sister of the bridegroom, were taper lighters.

Ushers were David Easterday, cousin of the bride, and Dennis Lierman, cousin of the bridegroom.

Deborah Lutz was organist and accompanied soloists Bruce Lutz, Pamela Meyer and Marsha Meyer.

Jill Hadley, sister-in-law of the bride, registered the guests.

A reception was held in the Cover fellowship hall. The tables were decorated with red and blue candles on white cloths. The bride's table was covered with white lace over satin and centered with a four-tier wedding cake decorated in rainbow colors and flanked by red candles in candelabra.

Mrs. Wayne Easterday, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Albert Nice, aunt of the bridegroom, served the cake. Nancy Garey served punch and Linda Gibbs poured coffee.

Honored guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Adam Tipton, grandparents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lierman and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Meyer, grandparents of the

Raku courses set at SV arts center

SUN VALLEY — Raku, a centuries old Japanese pottery technique, will be taught in two special one-week courses through the Sun Valley Creative Arts Center, beginning Monday.

Raku was originally developed for making ceremonial tea bowls.

Bob Brady, previously affiliated with the Hal Riegger Raku Workshop in California, will be teaching adults in a special workshop, Aug. 6 through 10. The workshop will begin at 8 a.m. each day.

A raku workshop, specially designed for youngsters from ages 8 to 18, has been scheduled for Aug. 13 through 18. This workshop will be taught by Maggie Fuhrman, who is currently completing a master's degree in primitive ceramics at Utah State.

bridegroom.

Following a honeymoon trip to Sun Valley, the couple will live in Clover where the bridegroom is farming with his father.

Showers for the bride were given by Mrs. Wayne Easterday, Mrs. Glen Easterday, Mrs. Boyd Tipton and Mrs. Glen Tipton, and by Mrs. Edgar Meyer, Mrs. Judy Jagels, Pamela Meyer and Marsha Meyer. The parents of the bridegroom were hosts for a rehearsal dinner.

Twin Falls motel owners face increasing theft

By BART QUESNELL
Special to the Times-News
TWIN FALLS — At least one motel in Twin Falls is losing between $7,500 and $10,000 in stolen items each year.

Twin Falls Detective Capt. Tim Qualls said several televisions have been reported stolen in the last three months from overnight establishments. Other less valuable items were also taken, he said.

All managers expect articles to be stolen. Some consider it advertising and not theft at all. "These small thefts are expected," according to Mrs. Betty Ainsworth, co-manager of the Lamplighter Motel.

"If it's not bolted down or attached to the wall or bedding, then it's expected it will be taken," she said. "People like a souvenir. I would consider it as advertising, not theft."

The Best Western motel system provides the motel with tissue, glasses, soaps, etc. It's all part of the advertising for the firm, according to Mrs. Ainsworth.

Hotel and motel tax write-offs for stolen merchandise take the ire out of many managers concerning theft. Some write-offs are as high as 10 per cent of the gross income, according to one area manager.

Most managers, however, agreed they had no idea what percentage the write-off was because the bookkeeping was handled by a national firm or certified public accountant.

"We still come out with a loss," Mrs. Ainsworth said, "but the write-offs take some of the sting out of it."

Mrs. Merlin Lakey, Twin Falls Travelodge co-owner, said theft was a real problem when she and her husband first took over management. On two occasions rooms were completely stripped except for heavy furniture and the television.

Everything loose was taken, including bedding, coffee pots, towels, ash trays and pictures on the wall.

Thefts have decreased at the Travelodge recently, although towels and ash trays are still reported missing.

Some thieves have stolen the light globes and replaced them with their own old ones.

Some establishments in Twin Falls have been hit by "racket" men according to Mrs. Ainsworth. One man registered under the same name in several places one night and stripped the room in each place.

Thieves can sell merchandise to black markets in larger cities. Detective Qualls said he knew of no market in the immediate area.

"Cat-prowlers" work larger motels and hotels, especially at peak occupancy times, Mrs. Ainsworth said.

She said they check each door carefully, looking for wallets, jewelry and other items in rooms that are not locked.

"It's a very old thing," she said. "Location has a lot to do with it and lighting does too."

"We have filed complaints with the police for stolen merchandise," Norm Bergman, manager of the Holiday Inn, said. "They think of us sometimes as using them as a collection agency." Bergman considers anything that is taken out of the motel as theft, including glasses and soap.

"We had to pay for it and we have to pay for it again," he said.

Last month the Holiday Inn inventory showed the motel had lost $350 on wash cloths alone during June. Hand towels amounted to another $200. Bergman said this was about normal.

"Some people pay $20 a night and think they're entitled to take towels," he said. "It doesn't take too long for it all to add up. I would venture to say it will keep getting worse."

Most hotels and motels will not take the responsibility of theft on their premises.

"If people have something valuable, they can put it in our safe," Bergman said. "I can't afford to put a night watchman on. A thief can watch his rounds and be robbing one room on the other side of the building."

In the future, Bergman said, the Holiday would be putting in more lighting on the dark, east side of the motel.

Bergman said stolen items were impossible to trace in many cases.

"It's useless," he said "because they register with fictitious names and licenses and we can't check every one." Managers agree that it is dangerous to accuse a person of theft.

According to Mrs. Ainsworth, "You never know who you are dealing with. There could be a lot of trouble. There are so many loopholes."

A manager can detain a suspect by making a citizen arrest, but this can be a sticky affair.

Recently, a belligerent suspect had to be wrestled to the ground by Bergman and employees until police arrived.

The Travelodge and Lamplighter managers are cautious about accusation.

Mrs. Lakey said, "There really isn't much you can do. You can't search cars very well if they've hid the merchandise somewhere and you can't find it, they could sue you for false arrest."

Detective Qualls said hotel and motel managers are not concerned enough to obtain proper information from overnighters.

Hotels and motels are required by law to obtain the vehicle license of an occupant that rents a room. In several cases the department has investigated this information has not been verified.

Qualls said, "Motels are lax to verify information that the renter is obligated by law to put down."

A noticeable increase in theft has occurred in the last three months, according to Qualls. Several televisions have been stolen as well as luggage from cars parked outside hotel rooms for the night.

"Most of the items stolen here in town are by local talent," Qualls said. "I think very few professional burglars hit this town."

Police cannot arrest on grounds of suspicion only, Qualls said. "There has to be reasonable grounds."

"If we knew that only one person was in the room and we knew which item was in there and we knew that no one else had been in the room, then a search and arrest procedure could take place," he said.

Watergate hearing end sought by Byrd

(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — Senate Democratic whip Robert C. Byrd said Friday that the televised Watergate hearings have gone on too long.

That is not to say, Byrd added, that the inquiry should end, only that the first phase should be completed shortly, and the television lights turned off.

However, he said in a meeting with reporters Friday morning, the "ever-deepening tragedy" of Watergate will not go away. It has left the President's ability to govern "severely damaged," he said, and left the credibility of the administration "impaired almost beyond repair."

Byrd listed what he described as White House crimes: "conspiracy to subvert the political system. Violation of national security in name of law and order."

One reporter said the statement sounded like a call for impeachment, but Byrd said neither the facts nor public opinion would support such a move at this time.

Weiskopf maintains 1-shot lead in Westchester meet

HARRISON, N.Y. (UPI) — Tom Weiskopf slipped to a three under par 69 when he bogeyed the final hole after a run-in with a camera-carrying fan, but held a one-stroke lead Saturday after the second round of the $250,000 Westchester Classic.

On every hole Saturday because the course was so wet from recent rains. DeWitt Weaver, former Southern Methodist quarter-back, was alone in second place following a second straight 67 for a 134.

Second-year pro Tom Kite and Dan Sikes who holds the course record here was another stroke back with 135, both with 65's Saturday. Sikes' round included a string of six straight birdies.

—Bruce Crampton, the tour's leading money-winner, was at 136 after a 69 along with Frank Beard.

Fuentes' 11th-inning homerun lifts Giants over Dodgers 3-2

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Tito Fuentes' fourth home run of the season with one out in the 11th inning off All-Star pitcher Jim Brewer Saturday gave the San Francisco Giants a 3-2 win victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The victory was the ninth without a loss in extra innings for the Giants and cut one game off the Dodger lead in the National League West.

The winning pitcher was Elias Sosa, 7-2, who came on to get the Giants out of a ninth inning jam and pitched 2 2/3 innings of one-hit ball.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jeff Burroughs' third grand slam in the last nine days capped a five-run rally in the top of the eighth inning Saturday to lead the Texas Rangers to a 9-3 verdict over the Chicago White Sox and deal the 16th loss of the year to Wilbur Wood.

Burroughs, who drove his 18th homer of the year off relief pitcher Cy Acosta, finished the day hitting .400 for the last 11 games which has included six home runs and three with bases loaded.

The PGA revoked the credentials of the news photographer even though Weiskopf said he had nothing to do with the incident and specifically said he was upset at the fans—who aren't even supposed to have cameras on the course—not with news photographers.

The five-stroke difference between Weiskopf's opening round 64 and his 69 Saturday came on the four par five holes. He played them in four under par the first day Friday and one over par Saturday.

GREENVILLE, S. C. (UPI) — The ol' "Dutchman" is playing it cagey. The Atlanta Falcons appear to be pretty well set at every position except, maybe, quarterback and while Coach Norm Van Brocklin wouldn't admit it on the rack, one gets the impression that Pat Sullivan is the present choice there.

Coach Sullivan, who has been coaching the Atlanta Falcons since 1969, said he had no intention of coaching the Atlanta Falcons.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Duane Thomas, a dropout from pro football last year, returned to action Friday night, but wasn't enough to prevent the Detroit Lions from upsetting the Washington Redskins 17-14 in a preseason contest featured by Mel Farr's 47-yard touchdown run.

Thomas, who hadn't played since leading Dallas to a Super Bowl victory in January, 1972, was used by the Redskins throughout the third period and part of the fourth. He carried 11 times for a net 36 yards and helped set up a touchdown in the final period.

Coach George Allen has newly-acquired safety Ken Houston to take over in place of Taylor, but he must decide shortly if he wants to begin working aging quarterback Sonny Jurgensen into pre-season games and risk further injury to the brittle signal caller.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Redskins suffered two costly injuries in their 17-14 pre-season opening loss to the Detroit Lions Friday.

Guerin canned in latest Hawk shakeup

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Hawks of the National Basketball Association Saturday fired general manager Richie Guerin in the second shakeup of Hawks management in recent weeks.

The Hawks said Pat Williams, 33-year-old general manager of the NBA Chicago Bulls, would replace Guerin, who joined the Hawks in 1964.

U.S. tracksters cop lead over Africans

DAKAR, Senegal (UPI) — Victories by sprinter Steve Williams and hurdler Tommy White gave the touring U.S. men's track team a 58-48 lead Saturday over an all-African contingent, as the Americans captured seven of 10 events in the first day of competition.

American wins came in the 100 meters, 110-meter hurdles, 100-meter relay event and in four field events.

Second Evert will turn pro

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Jeanie Evert announced Saturday she would join her older sister, Chris, as a professional on her 16th birthday Oct. 5.

The U.S.L.T.A recently lowered its age requirement for professionals to 16. Chris Evert had to wait for her 16th birthday last winter before she could turn professional under U.S.L.T.A rules.

Jeanie has played in several professional tournaments, even at the age of 15, but was never allowed to collect any money because of her amateur status.

Baseball's new immortals

Net loop conducts first draft

NEW YORK (UPI) — Proudly announcing it had signed Billie Jean King and John Newcombe and saying that it had eight other unnamed but top players committed, the World Team Tennis League held its 16-team draft Friday amid some confusion.

Billie Jean, at an estimated $100,000 a year for five years with Philadelphia, Newcombe, at $75,000 for five with Houston, were not in the first round selection since they had already agreed to the terms offered by the cities where they wished to play.

The other eight, according to Steve Arnold, player recruitment director for the 16-team league, had come to terms with the league but went into the draft pool and the teams selecting them would take over the contracts.

With each franchise seeking a team which would play 44 "games" of a men's singles, a women's singles, and a mixed doubles, the first round was a strange mixture of names and sexes.

Conspicuous by their absence in the first call-over were Stan Smith, the Nastase, Wimbledon Champion Jan Kodec and Arthur Ashe.

Miami, given first pick by lot, went for 18-year-old Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., America's darling of the court two years ago but who has yet to win a major title.

Rod Laver and Ken Rosewall, both nearing the end of astonishing careers, were grabbed by San Diego and Pittsburgh, respectively.

Big 10 selects grid favorites

CHICAGO (UPI) Michigan and Ohio State again should settle the Big Ten football championship when they meet in the last game of the 1973 season, conference coaches agree.

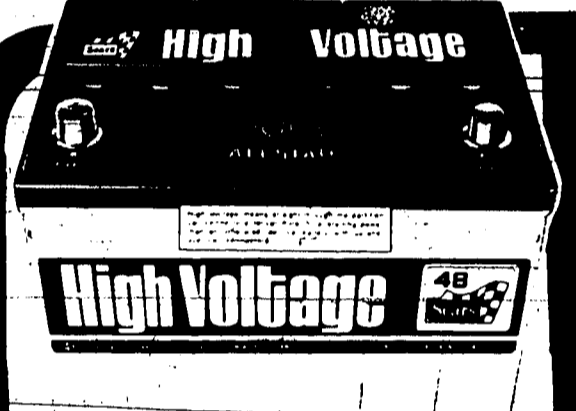

Every coach in the league, attending the annual conference kickoff luncheon, chose either the Wolverines or the Buckeyes to wind up on top, and Wisconsin's John Jardine said "you can flip a coin to decide which one."

Below the two pace setters, though, every coach expected an improved team, and perhaps a better finish. "Outside of those two, we're all darkhorses," Minnesota's Cal Stoll said.

Neither Michigan's Bo Schembechler nor Ohio State's Woody Hayes disclaimed the role of the favorite.

ISU, Montana State loom as Big Sky grid favorites

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Six of the seven football coaches in the Big Sky Conference picked Montana State and Idaho State Saturday as the teams to beat for the conference crown this fall.

Montana State won the championship last year and Idaho State was the runner-up.

They also expected trouble from Boise State, Idaho and Montana on the conference gridiron this fall.

All but the coach from Northern Arizona University attended a conference between sports information directors, sportswriters and coaches.

But while the coaches gave the pre-season nod to Montana State or ISU they also stressed they felt anything could happen this fall when football season opens.

Bob Griffin, head coach at Idaho State, pointed out that last year when the coaches made their pre-season picks for the press nobody mentioned Montana State or ISU.

Even coach Allyn "Sonny" Holland of Montana State put the Bobcats in top contention for the conference title this year.

"I predict we're going to take a run at the title," Holland said with unblinking candor.

But, as a hedge, he added "every single one of the other schools is taking a run at the title. I don't think pre-season predictions mean a damn thing."

Holland said Montana State's strength lies in the offensive and defensive fronts and the 13 starters among the 33 returning lettermen.

Dick Gwinn, new head coach at Weber State, said his team faces a "very aggressive schedule" this fall. He said he is going to change the Weber offense a good deal and move the defense from an eight-man to seven-man front.

Weber State's principal strength, Gwinn said, lies in three fine running backs. But he said he is very concerned about filling his quarterback spot.

Don Robbins of Idaho, said this season's schedule will be a "real challenge" to the Bengals. He said he had a "good spring drill and has 20 seniors on the club.

Robbins, declined to say whether the abortive attempt to get Idaho into a new conference will affect his players' morale this fall.

"It possibly will make some difference to them," he said, when pressed on the subject.

He also said he is giving a new look to both the offense and defense, putting more stress on the option game while hoping to keep his passing game "respectable."

Jack Swarthout, head coach at the University of Montana, said bad publicity from the trial over the university's football troubles had an effect on recruiting this year. But even so, he said, Montana did get "some good people."

"I think we can weather the storm and be back in there," Swarthout said. "If our offense can jell we could have a pretty good football team."

Tony Knap of Boise State College said his team basically will be pretty good on offense but will have a questionable defense—a factor that could cost the Broncos a shot at the title.

"We all know to win the title you have to be very good on defense," Knap said.

He said he has five offensive and four defensive starters back from last year and had an outstanding recruiting season in which he picked up nine junior college transfers and 10 freshmen.

Griffin said Idaho State will be banking in large measure on a big freshman backup with 10 or 11 starters back from last year.

"We're going to call an awful lot on the freshmen to provide support for us," Griffin said.

"If we have to call on those freshmen real early and they're not ready we'll have real problems."

He said his principal problem may be with his offensive line.

No one hurt

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Los Angeles Dodger coach Tom Lasorda and Charlie Fox, San Francisco Giants coach, took a swing at each other when tempers flared before the start of the game Sunday.

The two coaches were arguing behind the batter's box during warmup practice when Fox said, "try me," and Lasorda did—hitting him with a left jab to the stomach.

Fox then swung and clipped Lasorda across the forehead with a right.

Giant teammates broke up the brief scuffle.

St. Louis batters Viks in scrimmage

MANKATO, Minn. (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals bested the Minnesota Vikings 55-40 in a controlled scrimmage Saturday night at the Vikings training camp at Mankato State College.

Coach Bud Grant said the scrimmage, played in 85 degree weather, "got a lot of players into the game, and I don't believe any player on either side was hurt." He said he was very satisfied.

St. Louis scored several times on the goal line situation, taking the ball at the four yard line and trying to move in.

Grant said, "The Vikings have not seen the wishbone formation as St. Louis ran it on short yardage situations."

"The concept of the scrimmage was very good," Grant added, "and gives us a good way to evaluate ourselves after looking at the film. This is one time you can't say that each team didn't enjoy good field position."

St. Louis rookie Terry Metcalf, one of the quickest backs in the league, appeared in the most impressive back in the scrimmage.

Doug Sutherland and Amos Martin made some fine defensive plays for Minnesota.

Fred Cox of Minnesota kicked field goals of 26, 36 and 21 yards, and barely missed from 54 and 57 yards. Les Perry, also of the Vikings, kicked a 42 yard field goal and just missed at 52 yards.

Jim Bakken kicked goals of 29 and 42 yards for St. Louis.

Maniac shoots fans at game

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A stocky young man dressed, completely in white wounded two fans with a .45 caliber automatic as a crowd of 50,000 persons watched the Pittsburgh Steelers defeat the Baltimore Colts 34-7 in a National Football League exhibition game Saturday night.

Police blocked off all but two exits of Three Rivers Stadium on the city's north side to facilitate a search of the capacity crowd following the game.

More than 193 million automobiles are registered in the world.

Miss Rankin jumps lead to four shots

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Mrs. Young, one of the four Judy Rankin overcame possible disaster on the ninth hole Saturday to shoot a one-under-par 71 and take a commanding four-shot lead at the end of the second round of the $35,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association Pabst Classic.

Mrs. Rankin, leading money winner on the LPGA tour this year, had a 36-hole score of 140 on the 6,500-yard par 72 Riviera Country Club course, to lead Donna Young and Betty Burfeindt.

Miss Higgins, Miss Creed and Miss Austin all had 73s Saturday and Miss Post a 71.

Stenerud's four field goals let Chiefs down New Orleans

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Jan Stenerud kicked four field goals Saturday night, lifting the Kansas City Chiefs to a 12-6 victory over the New Orleans Saints in a touchdown-less and lackluster National Football League exhibition opener for both teams.

Stenerud split the uprights on kicks of 26, 10, 15 and 24 yards, while Happy Peter kicked 45 and 17-yard field goals for the Saints before a crowd of 67,216.

The Chiefs played Mike Livingston at quarterback in the first half and Dean Carlson in the second half, while Archie Manning went all the way for the Saints. Len Dawson, the chiefs' regular signal caller, did not play.

Stenerud's first field goal was set up by Larry Marshall's 26-yard punt return to the Saints' 26. Three plays moved the ball to the 18 and Stenerud drilled a 26-yarder with 4:38 to go in the first quarter.

The blond Norwegian slugged in a 10-yarder with 5:39 remaining in the second quarter after a 52-yard drive bogged down on the New Orleans' three. The big play in the drive was a 17-yard pass from Livingston to Morris Stroud.

Stenerud put the Chiefs ahead, 9-0, with 9:11 left in the third quarter, kicking a 15-yarder after Nate Allen intercepted a Manning pass and returned it to the Saints' 20. A clipping penalty put the ball back on the 35 and seven plays later the Chiefs ran out of downs at the New Orleans' eight.

Stenerud added a fourth field goal with 18 seconds remaining in the game when he toed a 24-yarder.

Feller pulled the Saints back into contention with field goals in each of the last two quarters.

Gooding senior golf meet set Sept. 8-9

GOODING — The annual Bob Lyon senior golf tournament is scheduled for Sept. 8 and 9 at the Gooding municipal course, announces chairman Bob Lyon.

Lyon said the field again will be limited to 116 and indicated it rapidly is filling up. Last year, the tournament was oversubscribed by about 20 players who had to be rejected. Lyon said entries from all parts of the state have been received already although no public information has been released as yet.

The event is open to men 50 years and older and women 45 and older. The schedule includes a free practice round on Friday followed by 18 holes of play on Saturday and Sunday. Social event will be a dinner Saturday evening.

Lyon said a full field would indicate a merchandise prize list of about $1,000 not including some added prizes donated by the Gooding Merc and First Security Bank.

Those interested in playing should contact Lee Fleishman at the Gooding course (934-9977) immediately.

Patriots set first game for new field

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Coach Chuck Fairbanks and New England's three first round draft choices make their home field debut Sunday night when the Patriots take on the Oakland Raiders in a National Football League pre-season game.

The Patriots broke training camp Saturday at the University of Massachusetts after completing preparations for their second pre-season game. They dropped a 20-7 decision last weekend to the San Francisco 49ers in the Football Hall of Fame Game at Canton, Ohio.

Sunday night's game will be the first of the year for the Raiders. Kickoff is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. (MDT).

In addition to Fairbanks and seven new assistant coaches, New England fans will get their first look at the Patriots' three first round draft picks — guard John Hannah of Alabama, running back Sam Cunningham of Southern California and wide receiver Darryl Stingley of Purdue.

Hubbard made it after being released

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI) — Five years ago, Marv Hubbard got the word athletes fear most. The Oakland Raiders told him, "We're releasing you."

The Colgate product, admittedly lacking confidence, had expected the pink slip but to himself, his failure was difficult to accept.

After a quick look by another National Football League team, Hubbard headed for his home in upstate New York to ponder his future and, for all intents and purposes, considered active participation in football a thing of the past.

And because of some shrewd maneuvering by Al Davis, the astute managing partner of the Raiders, Hubbard is making his line-busting charges for Oakland.

"They had a right to let me go," Hubbard, a compactly built 6-1, 225-pounder, said of his initial try with the Raiders. "I wasn't good enough to make the team. I think I should have been cut and I thought so then."

"I came here and was awed by everybody and didn't have any confidence in myself. But I don't have any hard feelings about it. I'm just glad to be back."

Hubbard's first two seasons with the Raiders consisted mostly of work with the special units. He did manage to carry the ball a few times but it wasn't until 1971 that he blossomed into a full-time performer.

That season, he carried the ball 181 times for 867 yards and a 4.8 yard per carry average. The 11th round draft pick made it all the way to the top last season as he topped the 1,000-yard rushing mark by 100 yards on 219 carries.

What has pleased Hubbard more, however, is his pass-catching improvement. One of his major faults as a rookie was hanging on to a thrown ball.

"My teammates used to kid me a lot about that," Hubbard said. "But the kidding was on the square. So I worked on the speed bag for hand and eye coordination and it's made a tremendous difference."

Women golfers face suspension

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Several players in the $35,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association faced possible disqualification for "making a rules judgment which was in error" during the second round Saturday.

Rene Mondine, co-tournament director for the LPGA, said it had come to light that some players had taken relief from guywires used to hold up small trees on the two-year-old Riviera Country Club course.

"Some of the girls apparently made a ruling which was in error," Mondine said. "If they have broken a rule, they are disqualified."

SUN VALLEY (UPI) — Citing cost factors, the Southern Idaho Conference (SIC) has voted 9-3 against admission of Lewiston, Bonneville, Burley and Blackfoot high schools into the athletic league.

William Jameson, Boise, SIC president, said the three Boise-area schools voted for admission of the four other schools but the six eastern schools and three schools from the western division voted against it.

Besides cost factors, Jameson said, the distance between Lewiston and the southern schools was mentioned as a reason for turning down the request.

Meantime, the SIC voted to award a rotating sweepstakes trophy each spring to the school which accumulates the most points in all sports.

Rotation of the SIC spring championship playoffs among the western, central and eastern areas of the conference also was approved. They have been held in the past at Twin Falls.

T.F. Legion meets 'oldtimers' Monday

The Twin Falls American Legion team will tune up for their state tournament opener by playing the "oldtimers" at 7 p.m. Monday at Jaycee Park.

The oldtimers, some stretching clear up to 27 and 28 years of age, topped the Legion team 7-2 Friday night in a game that was abbreviated by weather.

Coach Harold Brown said the task of beating the oldtimers was tough. "I looked out at their defense and every where I looked they had a guy who had played regularly for me in a state finals," Coach Brown said.

Coach Brown added his team would leave Tuesday for the state tournament and was scheduled to meet perennial power Lewiston Wednesday afternoon.

But the coach believes if he must play Lewiston, the opener would be the best time since his pitching staff would be intact and the boys can concentrate more on that game than any other in a tournament.

"Lewiston is always a fine ball team. They don't make mistakes that beat themselves and their pitching and defense is always good," Coach Brown said.

Only the champion of the state team ill advance to the regional playoffs.

The golden eagle may stand three feet high, weigh about 10 pounds, have a seven foot wingspread and live to be 30 years old.

Kloepfer leads way in Rupert pro-am

RUPERT — Mike Kloepfer, the shoeless, nine-handicapper from Burley, tied the best in the field Friday afternoon as he fired a two-under par 69 to win amateur gross honors in the special Rupert Country Club pro-am.

Kloepfer, who plays barefooted, and found a place to spend Sunday afternoons, share the low score with professionals Bill Downs and Preston and Jim Packard who split the top pro sweeps money.

Dave Tapp, who led his Mountain Home team to the best ball victory, was third at 70 while host Jim Peterson, Al Jones of Montpelier and Dean Candland of Logan shared 71s.

Kloepfer's 69 gave him a three-shot edge over Burley's Glenn Blakeley while Jeff Thomson, Twin Falls, was third in the low handicap division at 73.

On the net side, Curt Thomson, Twin Falls, was first at 67 with John McCloskey, Pocatello, carding a 68. Knotted at 69 were Rex Wood and Carl Hoss, Twin Falls; Doug Hoggan, Burley; Tom Vesey, Mountain Home.

The next pro-am is slated Monday at Idaho Falls Country Club.

Friday night, Buhl came up with five runs in the top of the eighth inning to defeat Orofino with the help of some solid ninth-inning relief from Kim Martin. Earlier, Idaho Falls, using homerun power, sent Jerome to the sidelines 9-7.

Playing as the visiting team, Buhl scored in the first inning when Pat Barr doubled and scored on an error. But Orofino came back in the bottom of the second when Randy Aldrich and Randy Parsons sandwiched singles around an error that let Mark Nygard live to load the bases. Steve Dale promptly unloaded them with a grand slam.

Buhl came back with two in the third as Hobb King singled and Pat Barr walked to set up RBIs for Pat Hamilton and Gary Fawcett.

Orofino came back with a run each in the third and fourth to stretch ahead 6-3 as Bob Thornborough came on for stop the northern division champs for a couple of innings.

Fawcett started the winning rally in the eighth when he led off with a hit and rode home on Jerry Hills' second homer of the tournament. Thornborough came up with perhaps his first hit of the season with Lee Hammerquist, one year away from open-heart surgery, and King following with hits, King getting an RBI. Hammerquist scored on Barr's sacrifice fly and Martin wound it up with a single that plated King.

Orofino got one back in the bottom of the eighth when Allen Dale scored on Randy Parsons' hit. Then in the ninth Orofino staged a major bid as the first three men drew walks to lead the bases and bring in Martin. He extricated Buhl from the situation.

Idaho Falls and Jerome did a lot of run trading in the early innings with Jerome, which finished second in this event last year, moving ahead 7-4 in the fourth when Jeff Weigle, who had homered earlier, collected a double to send his fourth RBI across the plate.

Idaho Falls got one back in the fifth and then iced it in the sixth when Jay Hendrickson opened with a hit but was erased on Neal Dutton's fielder's choice. Jim Canabo struck out Thurman and Pat Packard, with a two-run homer.

Miami nips Bengals in last quarter

MIAMI (UPI) — Third string quarterback Jim del Gaizo threw a 52-yard pass to rookie Charlie Wade to set up the winning touchdown in the fourth quarter Saturday night to give the world champion Miami Dolphins a come-from-behind 14-13 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals in an exhibition game.

White Miami coach Don Shula kept his first string backfield on the bench for the whole game, the Bengals, with Virgil Carter at quarterback most of the way, nearly ended an 18-game winning streak that carried Miami through last season, the playoffs, the Super Bowl and the All-Star game last week.

Paul Brown's Bengals ran up a 13-7 lead on Carter's seven-yard touchdown run, Horst Mahmann's extra point and field goals of 8 and 11 yards by rookie Dave Green before the Dolphins pulled it out near the end of the fourth quarter.

Miami went two quarters with only one serious threat before Hubert Ginn, who runs behind Jim Kluck and Mercury Morris, tugged one yard over a pile of linemen for Miami's first touchdown in the third quarter.

Then in the final period, Del Gaizo fired the full house of 80,050 in the Orange Bowl with his soaring throw to Wade, a rookie from Tennessee State who at 170 pounds is the lightest man on the team and at 5-foot-9 is taller only than regular placekicker Garo Yepremian.

The throw carried Miami to the Cincinnati five and two plays later Charlie Leigh scored from four yards out to tie the game. Rookie Jeff White kicked both extra points for the Dolphins.

Renner wins USGA junior
EL CAJON, Calif. (UPI) — San Diego's Jack Renner shot par on the second hole of a sudden death playoff Saturday to win the title in the 26th United States Golf Association Junior Amateur Championship.

Renner, 1-down on the 18th hole, defeated Mike Brannan, Salinas, Calif., in the final. The two met after weeding out the other two semifinalists in match play at Singing Hills Country Club earlier in the day.

Both youngsters landed about 75 feet from the pin on the 18th hole, but Renner two-putted while Brannan three-putted. Both birdied the 19th in the sudden death playoff.

On the final hole Brannan who had been 2-up after nine holes, went one over par to lose.

Eagles slip past Buffalo by 13-6

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Running back Ron James scored from three yards out Saturday night to break a 6-6 tie and lead the Philadelphia Eagles to a 13-6 exhibition victory over the Buffalo Bills in the Gator Bowl.

James carried the ball for a total of 39 yards in nine plays for the only touchdown drive by either team with 3:05 left in the game.

Former University of Florida quarterback John Reeves, playing before a partisan crowd, put together the Eagles' scoring drive. Reeves replaced Roman Gabriel at the start of the second half after the former Los Angeles quarterback was unable to get his offense rolling.

Mike Clark, the Bills' field goal specialist, kicked a field goal with less than one minute gone in the second quarter to open the scoring.

Then Tom Dempsey of Philadelphia hit on a pair of field goals — one from 48 yards with 2:20 left in the half and the other 21 seconds before the intermission.

Steelers trounce Baltimore by 34-7

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Terry Bradshaw plunged for a touchdown, passed for another and Franco Harris scored to ease the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 34-7 victory over the Baltimore Colts Saturday night in the pre-season opener for both teams.

Preston Pearson, the game's leading runner with 126 yards in 10 carries, set up two opening period scores the first two times Pittsburgh had possession. He scampered 89 yards to the two-yard line and two plays later Bradshaw sneaked over from the one. Pearson's 39-yard gain set the stage for Harris' 18-yard scoring run.

Ron Shanklin caught a seven-yard pass from Bradshaw for another score. Terry Hanratty, filling in for Bradshaw, lunged a five-yard touchdown pass to Steve Davis in the final period.

Roy Gerela kicked field goals of 18 and 38 yards along with four conversions.

Denied a score by the Steeler defense after they rolled 88-yards to the Steeler one in the third period, the Colts regained momentum. They capped a 55-yard touchdown march with Marty Domres' 17-yard pass to Glenn Doughty in the opening seconds of the final period.

A's slip past California 3-2

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Reggie Jackson singled home what proved to be the winning run into the third inning Saturday night to give the Oakland A's a 3-2 victory over the California Angels and help Ken Holtzman to his 17th triumph of the year.

Jackson's hit, which scored Bill North who had walked and stolen second, gave the A's a 3-0 lead, but it took some strong relief work by Rolife Fingers and Horacio Pina to preserve the victory.

Expo rookie beats Cubs

MONTREAL (UPI) — Rookie sensation Steve Rogers pitched a eight-hitter for his third consecutive win and Ron Fairly slammed a two-run homer Saturday night to lead the Montreal Expos to a 6-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs before a capacity crowd of 25,037.

Rogers, who has yet to lose a game, made his fourth start since being purchased from Peninsula of the International League on July 16th. In his first Jarri Park appearance, he scattered eight hits while striking out seven and walking three.

Cards' ace trumped

Cards lose Gibson to injury during 4-3 win over New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Torre's run-producing single in the eighth inning broke up a 2-2 tie and sparked St. Louis to a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets Sunday after the Cardinals veteran righthander Bob Gibson left the game with serious knee injury.

The 37-year-old Gibson, currently tied with Juan Marichal for most victories by an active major league pitcher at 236, twisted his right knee and suffered possible torn cartilage while trying to get back to first base on Ted Sizemore's line drive-out in the third inning. He attempted to remain in the game but collapsed after throwing one warmup pitch and was replaced by Al Hrabosky.

Lou Brock started the Cards rally in the eighth by beating out a hit to deep shortstop. He advanced to second on Sizemore's sacrifice and scored on Ted Simmons' single to center. Simmons went to second on the throw home and scored when Torre singled to right. The Mets had taken the early lead against Gibson when Jerry Grote walked in the second inning and scored when Luis Melendez dropped Ted Martinez's fly ball for a three-base error.

But the Cards tied the score in the following inning on Mike Tyson's double to center, Gibson's bunt single and Lou Brock's sacrifice fly to center.

Onion hangs first defeat on Secretariat

ARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (UPI)—Hobbeu Farm's Onion led all the way Saturday at Saratoga to score a length victory over heavily favored Secretariat in the $53,850 Whitney Stakes.

Onion scored one of the biggest upsets in racing history since the race. Carefully rated on the lead by Jacinto Vasquez, Onion, a four-year-old gelding gamely turned back a stretch challenge from Secretariat, the 1-10 favorite, to score by a length in the 1 1/2-mile race.

Rule By Reason finished a half-length farther back in third with True Knight and West Coast Scout completing the field.

With win betting only, Onion returned $13.20. Secretariat, meeting older horses for the first time after dominating the three-year-old division all year, appeared to have no "valid" excuse in the race except for an incident just prior to the start when he attempted to break through the gate.

Breaking in the middle of the pack, the chestnut son of Bold Ruler-Something Royal was well-placed by regular rider Ron Turcotte in the early stages of the race and was well within striking distance of the leaders, never more than five lengths back.

After a half-mile Onion led by a length as Turcotte moved Secretariat into third.

On the backstretch Onion still led as Secretariat began cutting into the lead to trail by only a head.

When Turcotte set Secretariat down at the head of the stretch and the Meadow Stable colt tried to respond, Turcotte went to the whip, striking the colt's rump several times—one of the few occasions he has had to resort to that tactic.

Through the stretch, Secretariat was never able to draw on even terms with the leader and through the closing stages Onion began edging away from his younger rival. Onion's victory was his fourth this season as he ran the distance under 119 pounds in 1:49.15 over a fast but dull racing strip. The winner's time was a second off the track record.

Onion, who last Tuesday set a track record of 1:15.15 for 6 1/2 furlongs, earned $32,310 for Jack Dreyfus, owner of the Hobbeu Farm.

Turcotte was at a loss to explain the disappointing showing of Secretariat, who suffered his second loss this season in eight races after finishing in front in seven of nine races last year.

"I really can't explain what happened to him," Turcotte said. "Maybe the fact that he tried to break through the gate and hit it with his head just before the break affected him. He seemed to be running all right and the track appeared to be to his liking.

"The pace was slow and we were only a head off it, but when I set him down in the stretch he just wasn't the same horse."

Onion, considered primarily a sprinter, was winning in the first stakes of his career and had been expected to set the pace in the Whitney. But few in the record crowd of 30,119 believed he could carry his speed throughout.

Allen Jerkens, trainer of the winner said after the race. "I told Jacinto to try and slow it down as much as possible so he'd have something left. He did that, the fractions show it. He rode a fine race."

Vasquez, who was riding Onion for only the second time this season, said. "We didn't go out there just to beat Secretariat, we wanted to beat them all."

"My horse was fit and ready and he held his ground all the way. In the stretch it was close and we were head and head but my horse had a little extra and he gave it to me."

ATLANTA (UPI)—Mike Lum, playing for resting Hank Aaron, collected four hits including a homer Saturday night to pace the Atlanta Braves to a 14-3 victory over San Diego in the second game of a doubleheader after the Padres won the opener 4-3 on Fred Kendall's eighth-inning sacrifice fly.

Aaron, who usually only plays one game of a doubleheader, was hitless in three at bats in the opener. But he was walked twice intentionally, the second time with two out and none on in the ninth.

Lum doubled and scored in the second inning when the Braves broke the second game wide open with a six run rally.

ISU boosters will meet

BURLEY—An Idaho State University booster meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Bob Hilliard. The entire Idaho State coaching staff will attend and show highlight films.

Walk given to Aaron rouses ire

ATLANTA (UPI)—Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves received two intentional walks in the first game of Saturday night's doubleheader with the San Diego Padres, and the second one was a subject of much controversy.

Aaron, who received his first intentional pass in the fifth inning with first base open and a runner on second, came to bat with two out and nobody on and his team trailing 4-3 in the ninth inning of the opener and was issued another intentional pass by Mike Caldwell, who was operating on orders from Padres manager Don Zimmer.

The move went against the general strategy of baseball, which says never put the tying run on base purposely, but Caldwell justified the move because of the tremendous respect the Padres had for Aaron.

"We thought he could tie the game," said Caldwell. "Don Zimmer thought he could tie the game and since he didn't want to lose it, he told me to pitch around him."

Briggs' six hits help Brewers win

CLEVELAND (UPI)—John Briggs became the first American League since 1969 to bang out six hits in a nine-inning game and Pedro Garcia capped a five-run ninth inning with a two-run homer to power the Milwaukee Brewers to a 9-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Briggs, hitting in the leadoff spot for the first time this season, singled in the first and scored on George Scott's two-run single and doubled and scored on Bob Coluccio's single in the second. Briggs also singled in the fourth, sixth and ninth innings and added a double in the eighth.

Phils, Pirates swap victories

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Rennie Stennett knocked in three runs with a pair of singles Saturday night to lead an 18-hit attack that gave the Pittsburgh Pirates an 11-4 victory in the nightcap after Bill Robinson's two homers and two singles led the Philadelphia Phillies to an 11-5 triumph in the opener.

NY tips Tigers in 14 innings

DETROIT (UPI)—Horace Clarke's first home run in 419 at-bats this season leading off the 14th inning Saturday night gave the New York Yankees a 3-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Clarke's only home run of the season came off ace relief pitcher John Hiller of Detroit and made the lefthander 6-4 this season. It was only the Tigers' second loss in 11 games since the All-Star break while the loss was only the Yankees' second in nine games.

U.S. Davis cup team grabs 2-0 lead on Chile

NORTHLITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—Stan Smith, recovering from a shaky start and finishing with a roar, downed Chile's Pat Cornejo 7-9, 6-2, 8-6, 6-4 Saturday to give the United States a 2-0 lead in the American zone finals Davis Cup play.

Chile exercised its option under international rules governing Davis Cup play which provide that a player playing as many as 15 games in one day does not have to play another match that day.

The match took two days to play. It was suspended at dusk Friday after the final's opening match between America's Tom Gorman and Chile's Jamie Fillol, which Gorman finally won, went a marathon four hours and included one of the three longest sets in Davis Cup history.

Gorman defeated Fillol 17-15, 6-4, 4-6 and 6-5 Friday. Only twice before had sets been extending to 17-15 in Davis Cup play, once in 1914 and again in 1923.

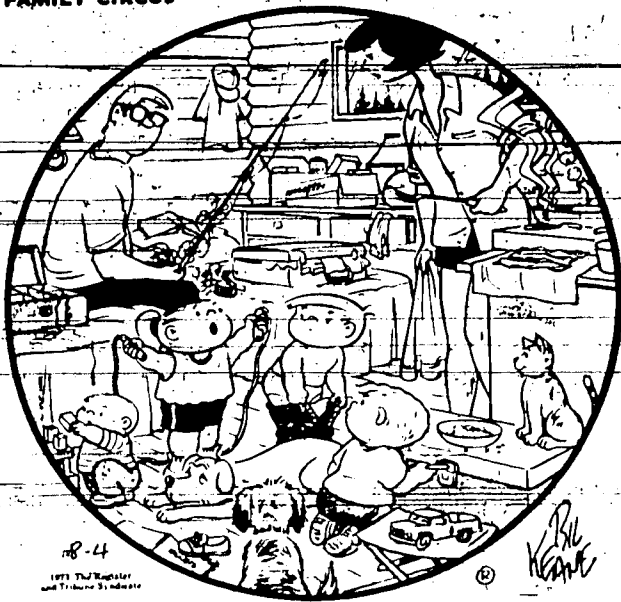

A doubles match between Chile and the United States scheduled for Saturday was postponed until Sunday because of the delay, and the closing two singles matches set for Sunday have been pushed back to Monday, extending the finals by one day.

LOVE AND WAR

Do women who get married in their 30s have anything else in common? That's what the matrimonial experts wanted to know.

A circus clown of lengthy experience says those types who laugh most readily, in order, are children first, predictably, then elderly ladies, teenage boys and young wives.

It's the quoted opinion of that expert on oratory Dorothy Sarnoff that a speaker should talk more swiftly than usual when delivering an address either on Monday morning or Friday afternoon.

Vesco yacht seized

(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — Robert L. Vesco, the fugitive financier who is becoming a modern-day "man without a country," has now had his travel on the high seas curtailed.
U.S. Customs officials have seized Vesco's plush 137-foot yacht, the Patricia, in Miami, Fla.
Vesco, under indictment for obstruction of justice stemming from a $200,000 secret Nixon campaign donation in cash, was not aboard the luxury yacht when it sailed into Miami last week.
The New Jersey financier, sought on a fugitive warrant, has been living in Costa Rica and the Bahamas. Costa Rica has refused to extradite him to the United States.

The yacht, worth an estimated $1.5 million, was seized last Friday, pending a customs investigation.
In general, a foreign yacht owned by an American citizen is subject to a 5 per cent customs tax upon its first arrival in a U.S. port.

Government sources said the yacht is registered to Andean Credit, S.A., a firm in Panama. However, its expenses apparently are being paid by a trust organization in Vesco's financial empire in the Bahamas.

The vessel cruised into a large boatyard in Miami about 10 days ago. "There was nobody but the crew aboard," said an official at the yacht basin.

The import levy could run as high as $75,000 for the $1.5 million yacht.

The International Revenue Service has already placed a jeopardy lien of nearly $195,000 on Vesco's property in his hometown of Boonton, N.J., as a hedge against payment of any taxes due for 1972.

CBS president hopes to boost morning ratings

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sally Quinn, the young and bold Washington feature writer whom CBS hopes will boost its sagging morning news ratings, takes on Barbara Walters Monday, NBC's reigning matriarch of the breakfast table.

Quinn, 32, was handpicked by CBS' vice President Gordon Manning to head a revamped version of the CBS Morning News in an effort to put the program back in competition with Barbara Walters and the Today show, which has long dominated the early morning ratings.

The new show, which replaces the old CBS morning news with John Hart, will contain less hard news and more newsfeatures, guest personalities, humor, and give-and-take between Quinn and her cohost, veteran CBS correspondent Hughes-Rudd. The emphasis, says CBS, will be on "a softer, breezier, more folksie approach."
Quinn's debut has been a favorite topic of conversation at Manhattan cocktail parties ever since New York magazine came out with a cover story picturing her perched on top of a pile of luggage. "Good Morning, I'm Sally Quinn. CBS brought me here to make trouble for Barbara Walters," read the caption underneath.
There has been a lot of talk and a lot of publicity about the competition and the ensuing "catfight" between the two personalities. Both have cringed at the gossip.
Quinn was said to have been furious about the flashy New York magazine article, which gave intimate details about her private and romantic affairs, including a chronology of her relationship and decision to live with New York Post city editor Warren Hoge. She disclosed that the magazine's photographers had originally proposed to photograph her in a pajama top crawling out of bed, an idea she firmly nixed.

Mind Your Money

Like everything else, closing costs for buying a home have been going up through the roof. These costs include title search, title insurance and various other fees and taxes. According to the Department of Housing and Urban Development, closing costs for homes selling for more than $28,000 can range anywhere from $300 on up to $1,000.

Remember, you do not automatically have to accept the title company, lawyers and other fee chargers designated by the lender or real estate agent. The more a lender tries to tie you to its own title company or lawyer, the more reason you should move on to another lender.

You can cut down a number of these closing costs if you investigate them as carefully as you investigated the location of your new home. First off, you've got to understand that the real estate agent represents the seller, not the buyer, and the lawyer at the closing ceremony (if one is required) represents the lender. All these people may murmur friendly phrases but they are not being paid to look out for your better interests. You must get your own lawyer, one who is wise in the ways of real estate law. Your local bar association can give names. Consult with your lawyer as soon as you've found the home you want. Never — but never — sign anything without showing it to your lawyer.

If you aren't buying your home through an FHA or VA-backed loan and are making less than a 20 per cent down payment, your lender will require mortgage insurance for protection against the possibility of your failing to make payments. You will be asked if you want "owners' mortgage insurance which is a form of life insurance to protect your heirs in case you die. The insurance pays off your mortgage.
Home buyers under 35 will probably find they can get this kind of life insurance protection for less money elsewhere. But older buyers should consider it. You get in on a group plan without a physical examination and will probably find mortgage insurance cheaper than policies you could get elsewhere.

In shopping around for a good mortgage lender, ask plenty of questions. Ask, for example, if you can choose your own title search or escrow company. Ask each lender to give you detailed lists of all closing costs even if they have to estimate some of them. Use

What you're Saying

What are you doing
high food prices?

Mrs. Elva Cornwall, Jerome: "I try to economize by supplementing when I can. We raise our own beef, but I won't pay 94 cents for eggs. I'd raise my own chickens before I'd do that. I've been buying eggs from other farmers. It (the high prices) is bad; I've seen many families doing without."

Opal Beckstrand, Twin Falls: "I only buy what I truly have to have. When you're a senior citizen you don't have much money. But I'm thankful to live in America and have food available."

Mrs. J. F. McMullin, Route 4, Twin Falls: "We farm so we're not as affected as those who have to buy milk and meat. I try to be careful, but then, I've economized all my life. But there's really not too much you can do about it."

Imogene Heath, Twin Falls: "Eating always has come first with my family. I would rather pay money for groceries than for doctor bills. I watch what we eat and we try to cut down on snack foods, though."

Gene White, Twin Falls: "We try to supplement some of the highest priced items. My mother, Mrs. Fern Hutchinson, cooked for the school district for years, and she is an expert at putting things together."

Cheryl Phipps, Twin Falls: "We don't buy hamburger any more and we're buying more vegetables. We also are using meat substitutes like dry beans and peanut butter, and less dairy products."

CBS News Gets New Director

George F. Hoover has been named Director of CBS News Information Services, effective Aug. 6. It was announced today by Richard S. Salant, President, CBS News.

In his new position, Hoover will act as Information Officer for CBS News, and will be the liaison between CBS News and the Broadcast Promotion, Print Advertising and Press Information departments at the CBS Television Network.

Hoover has been director of information services for Group W (Westinghouse Broadcasting Company) since Nov. 1971, responsible for public relations and press activities, which he coordinated with Group W's radio and television stations.

Prior to Group W, he operated his own public relations company, Hoover Communications, Inc., for one year, including among his clients DuPont, Warner Bros., The American Broadcasting Company, owned radio stations and Daphne Productions.

From 1968-1970, Hoover served as vice president of Edward Bleier Associates, a television packaging and marketing firm, where he was in charge of all public relations and promotion activities as well as the development of special interest broadcast formats. He has also been director of press information for ABC and associate editor of Sales Management magazine.

He attended Los Angeles City College.

Indian Image Still Insults TV's Tonto

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)

Some things change. Some things don't. Jay Silverheels says the way movies and television treat American Indians is one of the things that doesn't change much.

Silverheels, one of Hollywood's veteran Indian actors, feels that Hollywood still treats Indians poorly. He says that maybe there will be two or three films in which Indians are shown in a respectable light. But then one comes along in which the Indian is portrayed badly — and the one bad one cancels out the three good ones.

As an example of the bad, he says he recently was asked to do a Gunsmoke episode.

"It was a cliché that was old 20 years ago," he says. "I was supposed to play a villainous, snarling Indian, who attacked the wagon train and kidnaped the beautiful white girl. Then Matt Dillon single-handedly went after the Indians, knocked out or shot a dozen and rescued the girl."

"I turned it down."

He says there was a time when he didn't turn that kind of part down. He knew if he didn't do it somebody else would. He felt he had to get established as an actor before I could begin to exert some influence.

Now, he believes, he's strong enough in the business so that he can exert that influence. He has founded the Indian Actors Workshop which teaches young Indians the fundamentals of acting, writing and the various film crafts. He also serves on the Ethnic Minorities Committee of the Screen Actors Guild.

And, now, he picks and chooses his parts with care. You can see him, currently, in "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing" and he's presently shooting Disney's "One Little Indian." He thinks both parts are good.

For eight seasons, of course, he was Tonto on The Lone Ranger.

Zane of Brooklyn, a photo-journalist and filmmaker, are the parents of three children and reside in Manhattan.

James Hay has been Director of Nighttime Program Production, East Coast, since August 1969. He joined ABC in March 1965 in the production area, becoming a unit manager late that year. In March 1967, he moved to ABC Sports as coordinating producer for the 1968 Summer Olympic Games. Prior to joining ABC-TV, he served for five years as a general manager of Music Fair Enterprises.

A veteran of the Air Force, Mr. Hay flew 58 combat missions during the Korean conflict. Following his military service, he attended Temple University. He and his wife Suzanne, live in Westport, Conn.

Dennis Doty has been Executive Assistant to Mr. Starger and Director of Program Administration since February 1971. He was a program executive, West Coast, from 1969 until that appointment and has been with ABC since joining the television network on the West Coast in 1963.

The fourth executive reporting to Mr. Vane is Brandon Stoddard whose appointment as Vice President, Daytime and Children's Programs, was announced yesterday.

Bob Shanks has been Vice President, Program Development, East Coast, for ABC Entertainment since October 1972. He came to ABC from his own company, Comco Productions, Inc. He has had an extensive career which has included producing programs for ABC, CBS, NBC, PBS, and Group W. In addition, his motion picture credits include three award-winning films, "Fall River Legend," "Central Park" and "Tivoli."

Mr. Shanks was reared in Lebanon, Ind., and received his B. S. degree in theater arts from Indiana University. He and his wife, the former Ann

Key Executives Named To Two CBS Positions

Assignments of key executives for late-night and special programs at ABC Entertainment were announced today by Edwin T. Vane, Vice President, National Program Director for ABC Entertainment.

Bob Shanks has been promoted to Vice President, Late-Night Programs, with responsibility for "Jack Paar Tonight" and "The Dick Cavett Show" as well as the dramatic variety, "In Concert" and event programs.

James Hay has been named Director of Special Programs.

As previously announced, Dennis Doty will continue to report to Mr. Vane as Director of Program Administration. In his capacity as Executive Assistant to the President of ABC Entertainment, Mr. Doty continues to report directly to Martin Starger.

CBS Morning News Getting New "Face" August 6

During the four years Leo Townsend was CBS News' National Editor, he was often heard making the same vow — never to become a producer. "But I never said anything about being an executive producer," quips Townsend, who was recently named executive producer of the "CBS MORNING NEWS," with Hughes Rudd and Sally Quinn.

The new "CBS MORNING NEWS" will premiere Monday, August 6 on the CBS Television Network. However, Townsend has been laying the ground work for many weeks.

"Planning a new broadcast is difficult," he admits. "The change from my old job to this is more significant than I thought it would be. After making at least 20 major decisions a day as National Editor, I find myself in a situation where it can take a month to make one important decision. An example was finding the right anchor team. In retrospect, it was certainly worth the time, but there were moments when I felt like going back to 20 decisions a day."

Townsend could not be more enthusiastic about his plans for the broadcast and the new anchor team — Hughes Rudd, a 14-year veteran of CBS News, and Sally Quinn, whose reporting skills with the Washington Post won her fame in the Capitol, and a job as a CBS News Correspondent.

"Sally and Hughes will co-anchor the broadcast from New York, which we feel will not only help establish an immediate rapport, but will also contribute to a faster-paced, lively and vital newscast," says Townsend. "The broadcast will come from a studio overlooking the main CBS newsroom, which we think will give it a more natural feeling and look, and will also give the two journalists a familiar working atmosphere.

"Sally and Hughes will write a lot of their own material, but will also utilize that lively art known as conversation," Townsend adds. "In other words, in addition to reporting the day's news, they will also talk about it in an interesting, informal and candid manner. If we can judge from those who have seen them in action during camera tests we've

Job, Insurance Problems Face Cancer Victims

By JOHN H. JONES
Science Writer

American Cancer Society

Ray Disinger began having trouble with his throat in the winter of 1963. At first, it was just hoarseness.

"I did a lot of talking in my business and I had been smoking 12 to 14 cigars a day for years," said Disinger who was a Los Angeles automobile dealer.

"Then my voice began disappearing for three or four hours at a time and I became really alarmed."

Disinger's physician referred him to the Medical Center at U.C.L.A. "It took them a couple of minutes to discover I had cancer of the larynx," he recalls.

"Two days later Disinger had surgery. It saved his life but cost him his only trained means of livelihood — his voice.

"After the diagnosis and surgery, I had to sell my business. The insurability of a cancer patient was just about zero then. It still is. To be in business for myself, I needed credit. And to get credit, I needed life and health insurance. All my insurance was cancelled when I had my surgery. They just returned my checks," he said.

But he launched a determined program for what was to be his most difficult selling assignment — himself.

First he began to learn esophageal speech in Los Angeles. This is the method by which a laryngectomized person whose voice box has been surgically removed reproduces speech by breathing through a neck opening called a stoma.

Under the guidance of Dr. Games C. Shanks, a speech pathology professor at the University of Indiana, whom he met at an International Association of Laryngectomees meeting, Disinger became conversationally fluent.

But there were more obstacles. "When I applied for jobs," Disinger says, "I was turned down flat as soon as the company's medical director saw the opening in my neck."

Finally, after four years of trying, a small electronics firm hired Disinger in 1968 to write management systems. From there he went to the Pacific Telephone Company as a communication consultant improving their line of equipment for handicapped persons.

Disinger, now 52, has also organized a "self-help" program for Pacific Telephone, in which he counsels groups of disabled people on overthrowing their handicaps.

"While in a few isolated instances understanding is increasing," according to Disinger, "insurability and employment are still the major problems facing all cancer patients."

Disinger, who is one of the 1,500,000 people who have been cured of cancer, credits the American Cancer Society's seven warning signals with saving a lot of lives.

"If you have any of the signals, especially the one about hoarseness or cough, have it checked out thoroughly," he urges.

done, we have a news team viewers will want to listen to."

There is one aspect of the new "CBS MORNING NEWS" which will not change, says Townsend. "We will definitely remain a hard-news broadcast. We've always felt and many in the news business agree, that the 'CBS MORNING NEWS' provides the most comprehensive news coverage to viewers. We hope by continuing to provide the news and possibly even more of it but with greater informality, we will hit upon a successful formula."

Although other changes are anticipated, they will probably be subtle ones, Townsend continues. "We hope to generate a greater sense of immediacy. We will continue to have interviews, for instance, if they are relevant to something happening now

LEARNING TO TALK AGAIN was the first, but not the last, hurdle Ray Disinger had to face after his larynx was removed.

We Still Have Room In Which To Think

Roaring down the Interstate, or fighting your way through town traffic, you might not believe it. But we folks out West still have room in which to think.

This is especially true in our own state of Idaho, and in our neighboring states such as Wyoming.

There are still places where you can walk all day and never see another human being. There are places where you can actually hear the birds singing and where you can hear the deep-throated call of the early morning bird-risers.

There are places where you can hear the water of the brook tripping over the stones. Water so clear you can see the rocks over which it passes and can catch glimpses of trout as they flash by.

There are places where the clouds and the sky and the mountains all seem to meet and where, looking up into that sky, you can see beyond the cares of Earth.

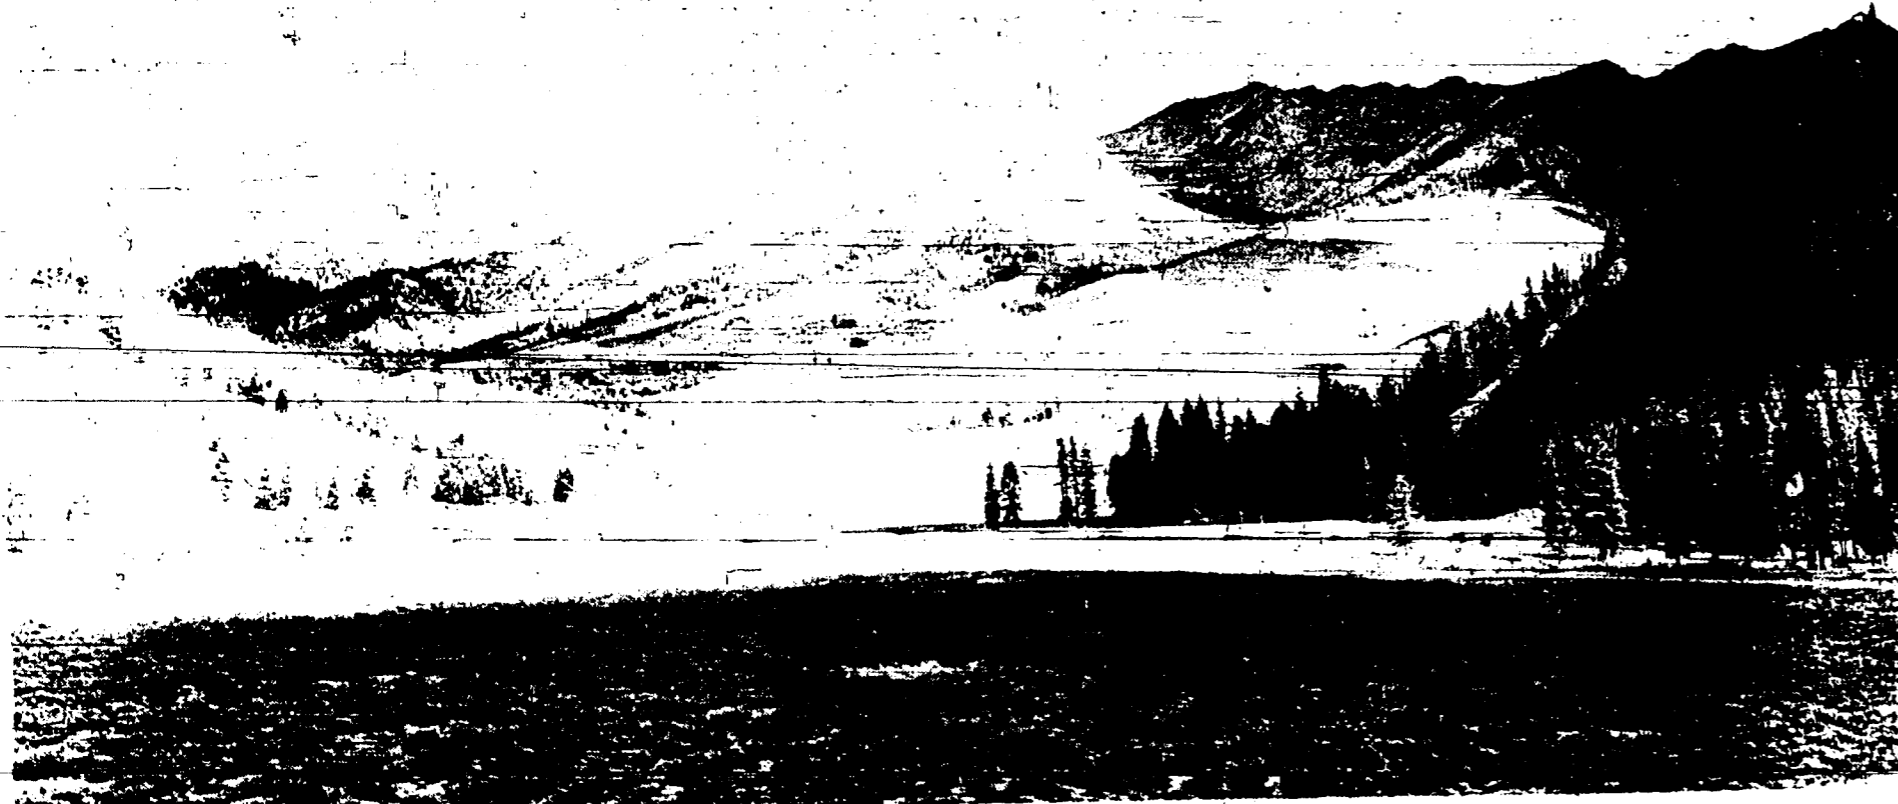

There are places where the pines are so close together a thousand people could be watching you — yet you would not see a one.

There are places where God and you can be alone — where you can stop, and think, and plan, and dream, and hope, and pray!

These places still exist — in our West.

Historical Specials Are Keyed To 1976 U.S. Bicentennial

The ABC Television Network will present a series of major dramatic-historical specials in anticipation of the American bicentennial anniversary celebration in 1976, it was announced today by Martin Starger, President of ABC Entertainment, Texaco, Inc. will be the sole sponsor for the series.

Under the banner "Texaco Presents the American Heritage," a series of hour-long dramas will be presented which reveal significant new details and a behind-the-scenes look at the events which led to the nation's most important historical moments.

"This impressive series of specials will certainly be among ABC's major dramatic contributions to the coming bicentennial anniversary celebration," said Mr. Starger. "We are proud to be associated with Texaco and American Heritage in this important venture which will recall for all Americans the wide sweep of their history."

The series, produced by David L. Wolper for the Wolper Organization in association with the American Heritage Publishing Company, will lean heavily upon accuracy of detail. The segments fall into three areas — the struggles of the new nation, its growth and expansion, and the ideas of its founders. Each dramatized segment will be filmed on location in the areas where the events took place.

The premiere program, "Washington and Cornwallis at Yorktown," will be presented in November. It re-creates the grave conflict between the gentleman planter from Virginia and the professional British commander-in-chief as they prepare to meet in the last major battle of the War for Independence. The telecast will be filmed in a number of locations including New Hope, Pa., Washington's Crossing Pa., Philadelphia, and Mount Vernon, Va. Dr. Richard Morris of Columbia University will act as a special consultant for the program.

The president of American Heritage Group, Paul Gottlieb, emphasized that each telecast in the series would bring to life one of the critical turning points in American history within the framework of historical accuracy. Toward that goal, an illustrious advisory council of noted American historians has been assembled: Dr. Daniel J. Boorstin, author of "The American: The emocratic Experience"; Dr. James MacGregor Burns, Pulitzer Prize winner for "Roosevelt: The Soldier of Freedom"; Bruce Catton, Civil War authority; Dr. John A. Garraty of Columbia University; Dr. Eric Goldman of Princeton University; Walter Lord, author of "A Night to Remember" and "Day of Infamy"; Dr. Richard Morris of Columbia, an outstanding American Revolution authority; Dr. Arthur Schlesinger Jr. of the City University of New York and two-time Pulitzer Prize winner; and Mrs. Barbara W. Tuchman, Pulitzer Prize winner for "The Guns of August."

The executive producer for the "Texaco Presents the American Heritage" series is Warren Bush or David Wolper and the Wolper Organization. Robert Guenette is producer-director of "Washington and Cornwallis at Yorktown." Texaco, Inc. is represented by Benton & Bowles.

Eileen Heckart won an Oscar last year as supporting actress for her work in "Butterflies Are Free." She's now shooting "Zandy's Bride," and she reports happily on the value of an Oscar.
 "The little gold man still means a lot," Eileen says. "I have offers which will keep me busy well into '75. I've got a great play for the fall. And I've always wanted to play 'Mother Courage' and happened to mention it in an interview, and I got four calls from producers who want me to do it for them."

By BUCK BIGGERS
& CHET STOVER

We interrupt for this important message — a game of question and answer from the Mail Box. Bet you can't get ten right! Just answer yes or no.

1. Now that Dean Martin's son, Dino, has a boy of his own, does he feel Dean was a good father?

2. Could I have seen Belle Britton ("Secret Storm") in a movie with Natalie Wood?

3. Before "The Waltons" I don't remember seeing the actor who plays the father. Is he new to TV?

4. I never see Al Pacino ("The Godfather") on talk shows. Does he do them?

5. Patricia Neal seems like the perfect wife-mother on those commercials, but isn't she having daughter problems?

6. Mark Spitz may be a great swimmer, but he's a terrible actor. Has this first season finished him on TV?

7. Is her present husband (the guy who watches all the football) Suzanne Pleshette's first?

8. Was Art Fleming a sportscaster before he began hosting "Jeopardy"?

9. Did Natalie Nevins leave Lawrence Welk over a money dispute?

10. Fess Parker hasn't had a new series in more than three years. Has he permanently retired on "Daniel Boone" royalties?

11. Isn't Marlo Thomas a Jeannie-come-lately to the women's lib cause?

12. Will Frank Sinatra "go it alone" on his Magnavox Special?

13. Why did Salli leave the team of Sandi and Salli ("Lawrence Welk Show")? Does she want to do a single?

14. Was "Gunsmoke" the first series Burt Reynolds appeared on regularly?

Okay, let's check your Box Score.

1. YES. Says Dino about Dean Martin, "I'll be very happy if I can raise my son like Dad raised me — lots of love and understanding, but no puppet strings."

2. YES. The role of Belle Britton on "Secret Storm" is played by Marla Adams who was Natalie Woods' girlfriend in the movie "Splendor in the Grass."

3. YES. Ralph Waite (John Boy's father) has a wealth of acting experience, but only one TV appearance (Nichols) before "The Waltons." Says Waite, "I was always too busy making movies."

4. NO. Al Pacino seldom sits still for any kind of interview or "talk." He is, believe it or not, a shy sort of guy. "I think it was my being overprotected as a kid," he explains. "I'm not very outgoing."

5. YES. Patricia Neal wonders if she made a mistake in allowing 16-year-old daughter Tessa to appear in a movie. Tessa now refuses to return to school; wants to be an actress.

6. NO. Mark Spitz already has a number of guest shots lined up for 1973-74 including an early one on "The Dean Martin Show."

7. NO. Suzanne Pleshette was first married to Troy Donahue, but only briefly. "God, we were young," says Suzanne.

8. NO. Art Fleming, "Jeopardy" host, was not a sportscaster but an actor, starring in TV series like "The Californians."

9. NO. Natalie Nevins left the "Lawrence Welk Show" because, according to Lawrence, "She was unable to travel with us on tours. She is now living in her hometown, Philadelphia, and doing some work around there."

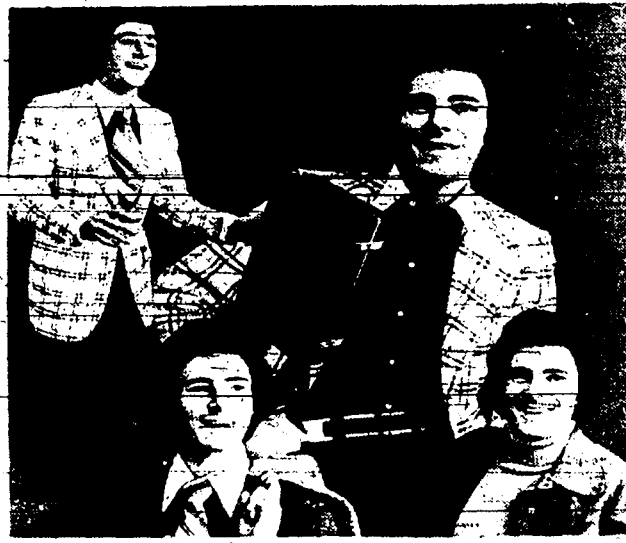

10. NO. Fess Parker simply has not found a successful vehicle for a new series. But with the success of a woody show like "The Waltons," we should see Fess in 1974-75.

11. NO. Marlo Thomas has long battled for women's rights. "In my series, 'That Girl,'" says Marlo, "I even had to fight to avoid living with a maiden Aunt!"

12. NO. Frank Sinatra's one and only guest for the Magnavox Special will be Gene Kelly.

13. YES. Salli Flynn broke up the Welk team of Sandi and Salli to try her luck as a single. Right now, she's doing a San Fernando club date.

14. NO. Before "Gunsmoke," Burt Reynolds was a regular on "Riverboat," a series with Darren McGavin.

Man-On The Go

ACTOR DON HAMILTON usually dresses casually when he reports to the studio to tape episodes of "The Secret Storm" daytime serial seen weekdays on the CBS Television network. But on set he dresses as his character, as noted in the various costumes he appears in here.

Green Thumb: All About Those Zinnias

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

TROUBLE OF ZINNIA:

There was a time when any one could grow zinnias without any problems. Not so today. Zinnias have plenty of diseases: (1) Alternaria leaf spot. Caused by a fungus (alternaria zinniae); affected leaves first take on small reddish spots with grayish centers. These enlarge and may run together. After a while leaves come dry and brown, flowers are spotted and blighted.

CONTROL: Use resistant types such as State Fair. Spray with folpet or maneb at rate of one tablespoon per gallon of water, at 7 to 10-day intervals. Spray before disease strikes. Yank out badly infected plants and burn.

2. Gray Mold (also called Botrytis blight). Causes whitish fur on leaves and blossoms.

Control: All faded flowers and dead plant parts should be removed promptly. Benlate fungicide at rate of one tablespoon per gallon is helpful, before disease strikes.

3. Powdery Mildew. Quite a similar to gray mold, but caused by different fungus. Appears on leaves in late summer as a white to gray powdery growth or coating. Plants in partial shade get it worse. Control: Try Benlate.

4. Root and stem rot. Caused by the fungi rhizoctonia and pythium. Plants are stunted or wilted and, usually, die. Pull them up and burn.

NOTE: Next spring, try to rotate your planting area, where zinnias haven't been for the past three years. Drenching the plants with terraclor at rate of one tablespoon per gallon is helpful at planting time.

BAD NEWS FOR WHITE FLY: Here's good news about a bad pest, the white fly, common on house plants and greenhouse crops. A new material, a synthetic pyrethrum derivative, is claimed to give outstanding control of all white fly stages, including eggs and with a minimal danger of harming plants.

We haven't used the material in our own greenhouse yet, but hope to as soon as we can get the material, and will give you a report on it. Meanwhile, we aren't bothered with a white fly on our greenhouse crops because we're using a biological control, a parasite known as Encarsia, mentioned in this department a short time ago.

BAGGING GRAPES: If bees, wasps, hornets or birds get your grapes before you do each year, try bagging individual clusters. Bagging consists of enclosing the bunch in a thin paper bag when the grape "berries" are the size of a pea or larger.

Use thin manila bags only, preferably numbers four or six. Never use waxed, plastic or any other type of bag because they cause grapes to either cook or rot. Place the bags over the bunch, fold down and staple.

Sounds like a lot of work, but is worth the effort if you can keep the birds or bees from ruining the clusters.

GREENHOUSE CLAY POTS: If you happen to have a batch of clay flower pots on hand and they're covered with white salts, it might be a good idea to dispose of them. Eventually old clay pots can build up enough fertilizer and hardwater salts to make them impermeable to air and water.

Such pots do not "breathe" and plants do not do well in them. Try buffing them with a wire brush, or an electric buffer. If they're in too bad a shape, toss them out.

HOME GROWN POTATOES: More and more gardeners are raising their own potatoes and we've had dozens of letters from readers who grow them under a straw mulch. One of the big problems has been to get good "seed pieces" (you don't plant potatoes from seed).

Most seed houses do not sell potatoes for seed but a reader of ours who raises his own potatoes, also raises his own "seed."

"Each fall I go over our potato crop and pick out small potatoes about one and one-half inch in size. I eliminate those with any blemish, keeping only fully developed small tubers. Next spring I plant them whole.

"A lot of people say it can't be done, but I've been doing this for the past 10 years and get terrific crops each year. I still have a few edible cobbles from last fall in the cellar. They are the result of seed carefully selected and planted for some 10 years. The trick: Careful selection of the seed."

Green Thumb Note: Our reader has phenomenal success growing potatoes under a straw mulch. We'll mention his idea shortly.

HOLES IN LAWNS AGAIN: We've had all kinds of reasons why holes are in your lawn. The latest is night crawlers. A reader writes: "If you go out at night with a flashlight, especially after a rain, you will see them (night crawlers) all over the place. They slide back into the ground when you shine a light on them.

"They're good for the ground, so don't try to get rid of them." Other reasons advanced for holes: skunks, flickers, starlings, gackles, certain types of wasps, and squirrels. Any more ideas?

BLOSSOM END ROT OF TOMATOES: Right now the blossom end (opposite end from the stem) of a tomato fruit may turn black and become sunken. This happens during dry weather or when soil becomes too dry, especially if the plants have been growing vigorously.

To avoid blossom end rot, make sure your tomatoes are watered and mulched with straw or some other material. Stake tomatoes often get blossom end rot more than mulched, or unstaked vines.

QUESTION BOX
QUESTION OF THE WEEK: F. R. of Filer "We started our own vegetable and flower plants in our bright window. The results were disastrous and we felt badly as we cannot afford to buy all the plants we need for our grounds. We even baked our starting soil. What do you suppose went wrong?"

Most of the troubles home gardeners have in starting seeds is poor starting materials. You can't go out in the garden and scoop up soil and bring it indoors for seed starting.

Commercial florists stopped that practice. They now use "soilless" mixtures, containing peatmoss, vermiculite and perlite. These mixes come under a variety of names such as Jiffy-Mix, Pro-mix Redi-Earth, etc. and are ideal for starting bedding plants, vegetable plants and many other pot plants.

You use the mix just as it comes from the bag. These are soilless mixes are money savers because you get a lot more germination than with our home made soil mix. Seedlings have balanced root and top growth. They transplant young seedlings.

These soilless mixes are also useful for growing pot plants and for rooting medium for a wide range of plants including mums, poinsettias, succulents and other green plants.

Next time you start your own seeds, buy a bag of one of the soilless mixes from your seed house. We don't mean a bag of "potting soil" which often contains nothing more than black muck. We mean the mixtures which are composed of shredded sphagnum peatmoss and vermiculite. These are free of disease organisms, insects and weed seeds.

C. G. of Twin Falls: "Will you please tell us what is meant by a determinate or indeterminate tomato? Ours are rambling up on stakes as high as my head."

Tomato vines are classed into two groups: Indeterminate and determinate. The indeterminate tomato has an end or tip that continues to grow and grow, and the plant is capable of growing indefinitely. Usually, a blossom cluster is produced at every third internode and is separated by three leaves.

The determinate tomato (also known as self-topping or bush tomato) is different. Generally, there are two leaves, sometimes one, often no leaves at all between one flower cluster and the next.

The stem ends in a blossom cluster, giving it a self-topping habit. All patio tomato varieties such as Pixie or Presto are determinate as are many standard varieties for home gardeners and commercial growers.

Tom Laughlin and his wife, Dolores Taylor, who made and starred in "Billy Jack," are branching out into five diverse show-business companies. One of them will make family and children's films, with Miss Taylor in charge.

"My first will be "The Indian Friend," she says. "I want it to be good. I don't consider a lot of Disney films good for children — they wake up with nightmares from the terror."

Would You Believe Non-Violent Westerns?

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — There's only one western on television now — CBS' Gunsmoke — and there's not a new one in sight. Plenty of cops and comics, but no cowboys.

Westerns used to be television's backbone, but no more. According to TV insiders, the big anti-violence movement of a few years back killed them. There is almost no way to do a non-violent western; violence is inherent in the western scheme of things.

Gunsmoke manages to get by because it has become an anthology series. It tells dramatic stories which just happened to be set in the Old West. Rarely does Matt Dillon show up any more, because he's the violent one. They pretty much keep him out of sight, where he can't hurt anybody.

It seems to me, however, that they could produce, nonviolent westerns, if they'd simply gentle up the clichés. For example:

"When I count three you'd better draw. Here's a pad and pencil."

"Head 'em off at the pass — but be nice."

"The Indians are threatening to attack. Let's bug the chief's wigwam."

A New Job?

PETER FALK seems to be enjoying a new role as a television culinary expert which is quite a departure from his usual police work — but police work is what he's actually doing on NBC-TV's "Columbo" each Sunday evening.

TV Drama Filmed In Oregon To Kick Off ABC's Movies

"Deliver Us from Evil," starring George Kennedy, Jan-Michael Vincent, Bradford Dillman, Jack Weston, Charles Aidman and Jim Davis, and "She Lives," starring Desi Arnaz Jr. and Season Hubley, will open the 1973-74 season for the ABC Television Network's "Movie of the Week" series, beginning its fifth year on the network.

In "Deliver Us from Evil" the rush of the rapids and the dangerous, untouched beauty of Oregon's Mt. Hood provide a wilderness background for five basically honest men who must fight for survival while they face the unknown depths of their own greed when they recover $600,000 from a skyjacker. Filmed entirely on location, the movie blends and contrasts the natural hazards of the untamed terrain and the even wilder emotions and fears that the money inspires.

"Deliver Us from Evil" will open the season as the "Tuesday Movie of the Week" Sept. 11.

"She Lives," based on a popular novel which Life magazine called "a moving counter-culture switch on 'Love Story,'" concerns two sensitive college students who find each other, fall in love and discover a reason for living, only to learn — just when life seems almost perfect — that she is dying. Defying doctors' pronouncements that she cannot be cured, they put all their energy and the strength

Arthur Gregor Program Set

Arthur Gregor, the man and his poetry, will be the subject of "Things That Abide" on "Lamp Unto My Feet" Sunday, Aug. 5 (8:00-8:30 a.m. PT) on the CBS Television Network.

Filmed at California State University at Hayward, where Gregor recently completed a year as poet in residence, the broadcast follows the poet on campus, conducting a poetry workshop and in a seminar discussion group with students. During the half-hour, Gregor reads eight of his poems, with accompanying film attempting to capture visually the mood of his writing.

"Gregor has been called one of the most deeply spiritual poets of our time," says Alan Harper, producer of "Things That Abide." "Without question, his work mirrors the pain and hope and passion of the world, for to him, the significant poetry of this century reflects the condition of the contemporary soul."

"Lamp Unto My Feet" is a presentation of CBS News, with Pamela Illott as executive producer.

of their wills into a desperate, demanding search for an experimental scientist who will dare to join their war on death.

Season Hubley, in her first starring performance in a TV movie, plays the emotionally-charged role of Pam, inspired by Andy (Desi Arnaz Jr.) to reject the predictions of imminent death as final.

"She Lives" will be the "Wednesday Movie of the Week" Sept. 12.

These two will be the first of some 48 new features planned for the coming year on "Movie of the Week," which has already presented four of the ten top-rated movies ever shown on television (including theatrical films). The season will include the first dramatic television appearance for Kim Novak and a return to TV for Allen Funt.

During the past season, "That Certain Summer" joined "Brian's Song" as one of television's most respected dramas with its sensitive story of the aching confrontation of a homosexual father and his son.

Director Lamont Johnson was honored by the Directors Guild for this picture, and Scott Jacoby received an Emmy for the Outstanding Performance by an Actor in a Supporting Role in a Drama.

"A Brand New Life," a gentle tale about a middle-aged couple preparing to have their first child, won an Emmy for Cloris Leachman for Best Single Performance by an Actress in a Leading Role, and the taut, suspenseful "Night of Terror" took an Emmy for its cinematography.

Other outstanding films during the past season included "Goodnight, My Love," a tongue-in-cheek tribute to the private eye movies of the '40s ("One of the most enjoyable private eye nostalgia ventures video has done... I love it" — Rick Dubrow, UPI); "The Crooked Hearts," which brought Rosalind Russell, Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Maureen O'Sullivan to television; "The Night Strangler," a sequel to "The Night Stalker" (the highest rated movie ever made for TV), and "Go Ask Alice," a frank and true drama of the teenage pill-culture.

The new season finds both Emmy-winning performers returning — Cloris Leachman in a tale of terror called "Dying Room Only" and Scott Jacoby as a tormented child looking for love and acceptance in "The Man Who Could Talk to Kids."

Also during the 1973-74 season, Kim Novak and Tony Curtis will star in "The Third Girl from the Left," written by Dory Previn, Peter Boyle ("Joe") will be starred in a very different role as "The Man Who Could Talk to Kids."
